

Franklin's 8-0 Mark To Get 'Bulldog' Test

By TOM DONOGHUE
Sports Editor

It's "backyard black and blue" gridiron rival time in Observerland with five city championships highlighting an eight game card.

The Farmington, Garden City, Livonia, Redford Township and Southfield city titles will be at stake in this final weekend of prep football for all but two area schools.

The '73 campaign will stretch a week longer for Farmington High and Harrison. Their regular scheduled Sept. 15 contest was postponed to Nov. 17 because of the teacher's strike at the opening of the season.

For everyone else in Observerland, this weekend is it for '73.

This afternoon's lineup has a 2-6 Plymouth Canton squad of the Western Six in Dearborn and Churchill at Stevenson.

Tonight's action features two city title games.

The Garden City crown will be decided on the East gridiron with the West Tigers favored. Both clubs sport 4-4 marks to put a winning season on the line.

Gary Humphrey's East Panthers hold a 5-2 margin over West in a crosstown rivalry that started in '65 with West winning 13-6. West downed East the following season, 21-0, but that's been all for the Tigers.

East won in '67, 14-12, 7-0 in '68 and 20-14 the following season. The two clubs fought to a 14 all tie in '70. The Panthers have walked away with it all the last two years, winning in '71, 33-14 and crushing the Tigers last year, 49-0.

Another city title will be at stake in Southfield with a 4-4 Southfield invading Southfield Lathrup which sports a 3-5 record.

This contest shows Lathrup with a 3-2 edge. Southfield won the first of the battles back in '68, 40-0. The Chargers bounced back the following year to win, 12-0. It was Southfield, 18-16, in '70, but Lathrup the last two years, 14-8, and 60-6.

All signs show Southfield is due for a comeback and first year Coach John Finlayson wants to close out a winner.

Friday night play is rounded out with Farmington Harrison at Plymouth Salem. Harrison tipped the Rocks in '71, 28-14, but fell hard last season, 35-6. This has to be Salem Coach Tom Moshimer's night to shine as a win against Harrison will give his Rocks their best effort in the past decade.

A 7-2 mark will shine if Harrison falls.

Of the eight grid clashes this weekend in Observerland, four are between clubs rated in the area's top 10 poll.

The most important has to be No. 1 ranked Livonia Franklin with an 8-0 record playing host to No. 9 Bentley at 3-5.

The solo unbeaten club in the Observer area is apt to get a real test by a squad that almost knocked off the top Suburban Eight powers.

"We really think this game will be as tough as Churchill," stated Franklin Coach George Lovich who is seeking his first perfect season. "Bentley's defense is not as good as Churchill, but its offense makes up for that."

"We will be facing the best quarterback in the area in Bob Wasilewski," added Lov-

successful "Captain Jack" play that covered 65 yards. But see Harrison's No. 86, Don Siekas, with an arm latched onto a Raider (arrow) that would have called the play back if the officials had seen it. (Observer photo by Tom Donoghue)

Streak Halted At 24 Spartans Dunk Bentley

The Bentley Bullfrogs finally met their match.

After splashing to 24 consecutive swim victories in a span of three seasons, Bentley's girls swim squad went under.

The Stevenson Spartan girls, champions of the Inter-Lakes Conference, dunked the Bullfrogs, 93-79. Bentley won the 200 medley relay and Stevenson the 400 freestyle relay but Stevenson captured firsts in five of nine individual events.

Liz Hatfield headed the Spartan squad with a 2:33.9 first in the 200 individual medley and a 1:18.0 first in the 100 yard breaststroke. Bentley's Sue Mooradian also took double honors with a 2:12.3 first in the 200 freestyle and a 58.2 first in the 100 freestyle.

Stevenson finished off the '73 season with seven victories and two losses and will be sending six girls to the state meet. Colleen Donovan, Jan Hickerson, Cindy Miller, Terry Pilgrim, Liz Hatfield and Tina Sien make up the Spartan roster that will be off to the state meet.

The Stevenson sixsome qualified for the 400 free relay. In addition, Miss Miller qualified for the 100 butterfly; Miss Pilgrim for the 50 and 100 freestyle; and Miss Hatfield for the 200 individual medley and 100 butterfly.

The dunking of Bentley had to be extra sweet for Stevenson Coach Lois McDonald. Last season the Bentley crew was allowed in the Inter-Lakes and the Bullfrogs swept to top honors. This season the Bentley team switched to the Suburban Eight where it also won the league but wound up '73 on a sour note with the new Inter-Lakes champions putting a halt to the 24 victory sweep.

Gas Strike May Halt Pupil Busing

School buses in the Plymouth School District may soon come to a slow halt -- they're running out of gas.

A strike at Marathon Oil Co., the district's gasoline supplier for the past four years, has depleted reserves to a point where the buses are now driving to a Livonia gas station for refueling.

Plymouth school officials say the crisis may become critical next week and that if more gasoline cannot be found, it may mean the district will have to suspend transportation of pupils.

If that happens, said Dr. Earl Hogan, deputy superintendent, parents will be asked to provide pupil transportation and schools would remain open.

More than half of the school district's 11,856 students are bused, estimates Robert Houghton, the district's transportation director.

He explained this results from the subdivision boom occurring in the far reaches of the 54-square mile school district.

An estimated 6,700 students are transported to and from classes daily on 39 buses and five vans. This takes an average of 550 gallons of gasoline a day, Houghton said.

Tom Abbott, supervisor of purchasing, said attempts to secure other gasoline supplies have proved fruitless.

"All the bulk companies couldn't give us anything," he said. "We can't get gas. At present it's critical."

Abbott added that he had made 57 calls one day to secure more gasoline -- all without success.

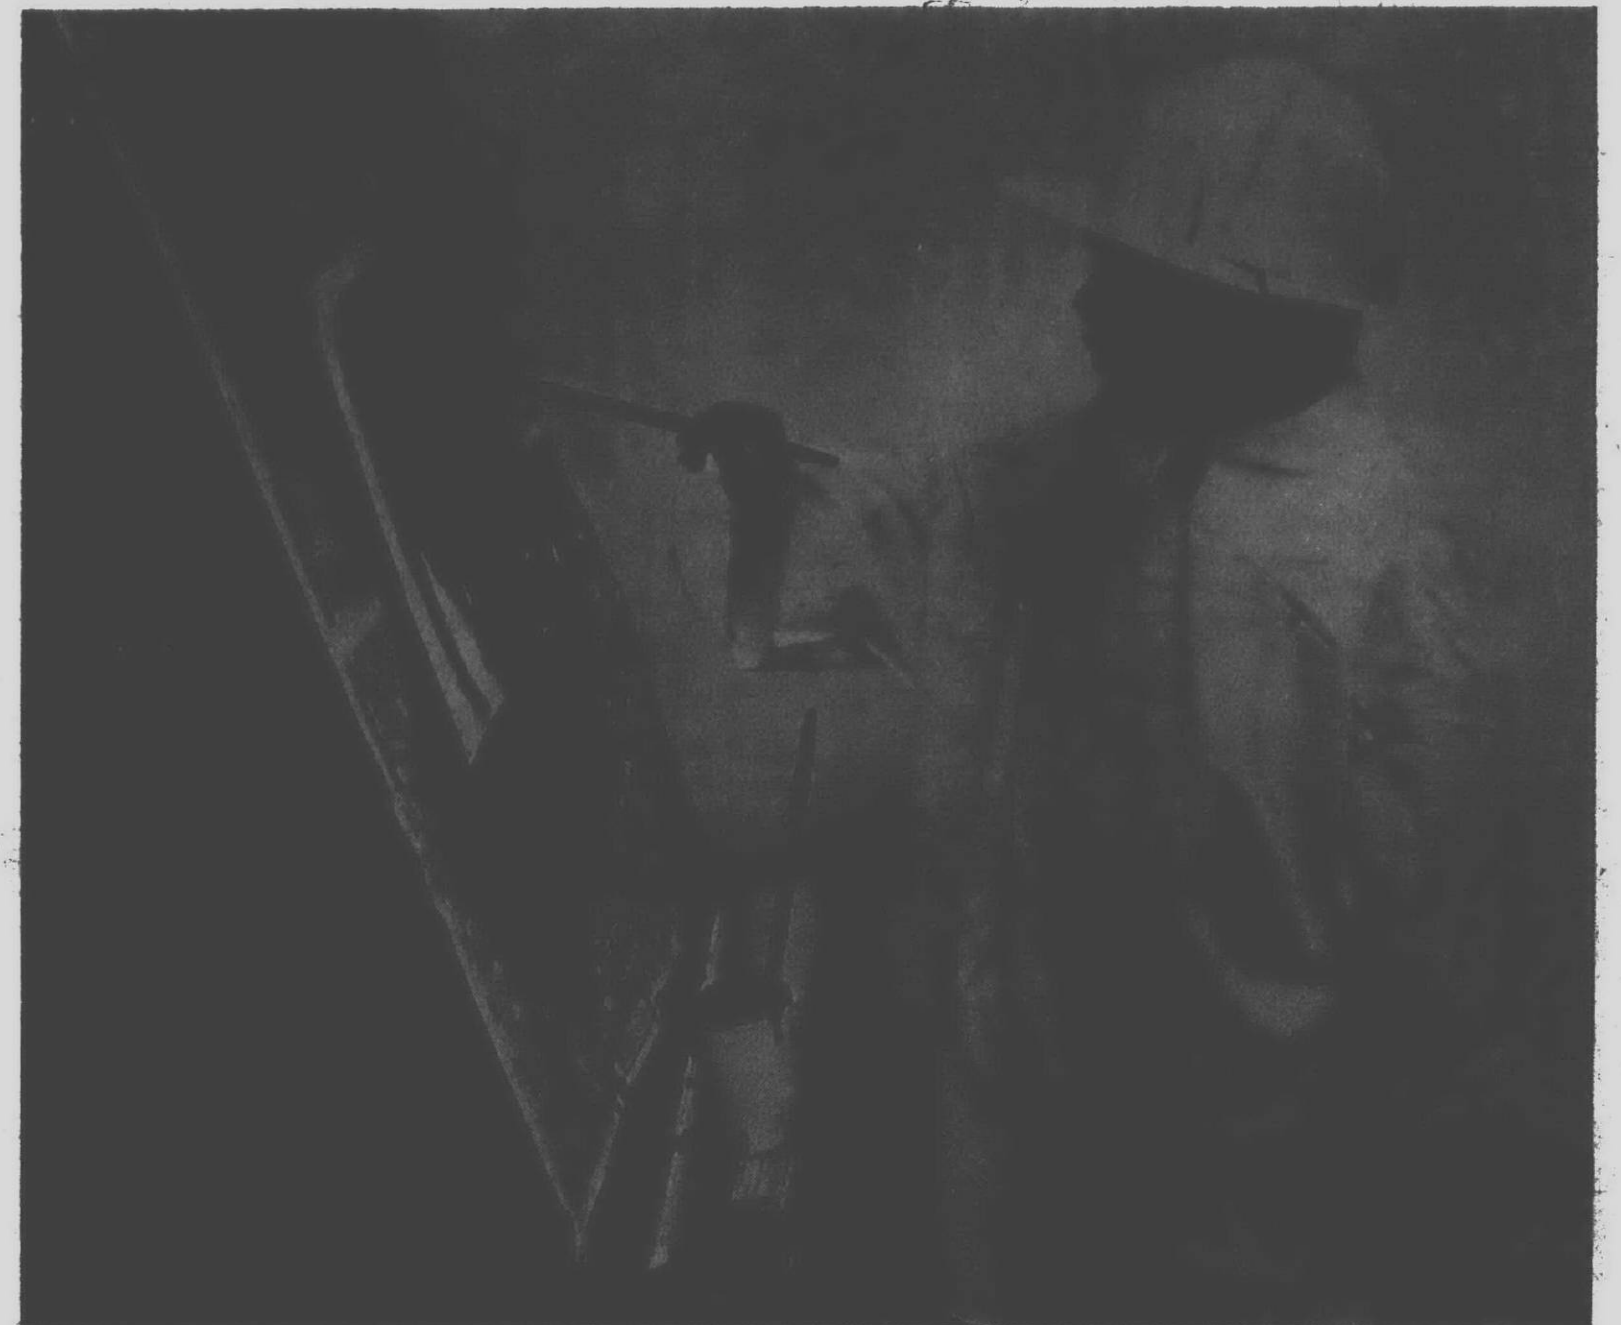

An emergency supply of 1,000 gallons is all that remains in the district's tanks.

The solution to the crisis is not yet in sight, school officials say.

The State Board of Education was asked for advice, Abbott said, and recommended the district buy gas at service stations.

City Election May Help Recreation Pact

By EDWARD WENDOVER

The area-wide recreation authority has been given a stay of execution by Tuesday's city commission elections.

While the newly elected commissioners -- Norbert Battermann, the lone re-elected incumbent; Joe Bida; John Moehle; and John Cummings -- apparently split evenly on the city's joining the recreation pact, the overall change on the commission gives the authority another chance.

The city commission voted 4-3 on Oct. 15 against committing the city to the recreation pact.

At that time, Beverly McAninch, James McKeon, Battermann and Harold Guenther opposed the city's joining while Commissioners Ernie Henry, William Silvius and Robert Sincok voted in favor of joining.

Silvis said Monday, however, that he had meant to vote "no" on the matter which would have made the vote 5-2.

But Silvius, McKeon and Guenther -- all of whom opposed the authority as it was proposed -- are leaving the city commission when the new commissioners take over Monday night.

Only Mrs. McAninch, whose term was not up for election, and Battermann, who was re-elected Tuesday, remain of the commissioners who opposed the city's participation in the pact.

Sincok and Henry, who both voted in favor of the city joining the authority, remain on the commission since their terms were not up for election.

Of the four carry-over commissioners then, the vote would be divided two-two.

Of the three commissioners elected for the first time Tuesday, Bida has favored a recreation pact while Moehle and Cummings said at the candidates' night they were undecided.

The fate of the city's parti-fate of the recreation authority itself -- apparently rests with the two newly-elected undecided commissioners. If either of them votes in

ich. "We will be changing our pass coverage and mixing from a zone to man-to-man."

"This season has brought our entire school closer together," commented Lovich. "The one thing I cannot figure out are the kids they don't seem to be taking to the pressure, they seem loose."

Franklin's defense, No. 2 in the area behind North Farmington has given up six touchdowns by way of the pass this season and one on a fumble. That's it as the Patriot defense has not given up one via the ground game.

Bentley's 3-5 record, will have the perfect opportunity to show it has a winning team.

Goode has never beaten Franklin and the Bulldogs face an uphill showing against the Patriots with five of the games being decided by one point. A journey to the Franklin gridiron tomorrow at 2 p.m. might prove to be an interesting one.

Two other city titles will be at stake Saturday with North Farmington at Farmington and Redford Union at Thurston, both kickoff times slated for 2 p.m.

North Farmington holds an 8-2-1 record over Farmington.

North won the first meeting between the two clubs back in '62, 7-0. There was a 0-0 tie in '64 on Rex Cawley Day. Farmington won in '66, 20-0, and last season, 27-0.

Other than that, it has been all Raiders of the North.

The only losing season North has had was in '66 when it finished at 3-5-1 and lost to Farmington. Last year's loss to the Falcons, 27-0, was a complete upset.

The tie and two losses have all come on the North gridiron. Holland will have this going for him tomorrow as his Raiders take on the 4-3 Falcons at Farmington, a place North has never lost.

The 90-day Detroit Race Course thoroughbred racing meet draws to a close Saturday afternoon and when the final statistics are available, they are expected to show the big mile track did a bit better in handle and attendance than a year ago.

It won't be the best season in a long time, that much is already known, but it will be an improvement. Recalling, of course, that 1972 was probably the worst meeting since the track opened 24 years ago.

The final program will be an average one as far as races are concerned but it will be a big one for those patrons who appreciate giveaways and always hope they'll win the big prize.

Perhaps the one prize that stands out over the others is a 100-pound steer that will go to some lucky winner of a contest. With prices of beef where they are these days, winning the steer would be just like having the only ticket in a perfect...the money value would be about the same.

There will be turkeys for those winning some of the contests as well as numerous other awards.

It may not be the greatest day at the races but at least it will be a different ending.

Post time for the first race will be 1:30 p.m. and Vice President and General Manager Dick Wilson hopes to have fans streaming out of the plant after the finale before 6 p.m.

"The lessons we learned this year should prove invaluable in making out plans for 1974 when we expect to have the honor of opening thoroughbred racing in Michigan," said Wilson.

"The racing commissioner probably won't announce next year's dates until the end of the month but we do have an arrangement with Hazel Park to alternate and it's our turn to have the early days."

Meanwhile, Hazel Park is busy converting the racing strip from the hard clay surface for the trotters and pacers to the soft track for the runners.

Recreation Pact

favor of joining, it would mean four votes - a majority.

But for the issue to be brought back before the commission, it must be changed somewhat.

That in itself puts some of the responsibility back on the recreation authority board to redefine its proposal.

In doing so, it may pick up additional support from the commissioners who opposed the issue in its original form.

But it may then run the risk of making it unacceptable to the Plymouth school board and the Plymouth and Canton Township boards which have already approved the pact and committed money towards its implementation.

Howard Oldford, president of the authority board, said he hopes the new city commission and the recreation authority board can meet on working out details for an agreement acceptable to everyone.

He added that he hoped one of the city commissioners would bring that idea up for consideration.

Apparently Oldford's hope will come true, for Bida told The Plymouth Mail & Observer Wednesday that he is "definitely going to put it back on the floor."

Bida explained during his campaign that the pact should be considered in a different concept but "I don't want to lose what we had."

He added that he looked towards Cummings as lending support for the city's participation in the pact.

So if Sincok, Henry, Bida and Cummings (and/or Moehle) can agree on a proposal for the city's participation that is acceptable to the other participating governmental units, the stay of execution for the area-wide recreation pact may turn into a full pardon.

Whatever the outcome of the final vote, the election's impact on the authority issue can only be considered as a plus for the pact's proponents.

The Plymouth - Canton Recreation Authority may be the first major issue to test the new commission and show how its voting patterns will shape up.

If the new commission commits the city to the authority, it could mean the start of a new direction for the city government.

"What the future holds we're just not sure," Hogan added.

He said that if the crisis worsens and transportation has to be suspended, parents would be notified in advance.

By JAN WILLIAMS

With today's emphasis on physical activities, many sports once low in popularity are enjoying a tremendous boom. Two are tennis and skiing.

Not all sports, however, have climbed the ranks so quickly, nor scored so highly with the general public. One such sport is roller skating.

Jack Hurley of Westland, president of the Michigan Roller Skating Union, feels this is due partly to a misconception on the part of the public.

"When most people hear of roller skating and competition, they think of the knock-down, drag-out roller derby. This just isn't true." Hurley says roller skating is similar to ice skating. A competitive skater goes through figures, dance, freestyle, spins and jumps much the same as his ice counterpart.

Roller skating is divided into three classes: (1) artistic, (2) speed and (3) hockey. The artistic class includes dances done to music, interpretive freestyle, jumps, spins and lifts. Speed includes relay-type skating around a track, similar to speed skating on ice. Hockey is also the same as on ice. This category, however, is just getting started in Michigan. According to Hurley, there is only one Michigan hockey team at present.

Hurley says the state association, which consists of 10 clubs and is affiliated with the U.S. Amateur Roller Skating Association, is in the process of training teams. "We hope to have four hockey teams within the next two years. We plan to compete against other teams throughout the country."

At present, Hurley's club, which includes members from Livonia, Westland, Plymouth, Garden City, Farmington and Redford, is giving demonstrations for hospitals and convalescent homes. The club also participates in state and national club meets.

The club is a non-profit organization, and members aren't allowed to take money for any type of skating. Once a skater takes money, he's considered a professional, not an amateur. The only source of income for the club is ticket sales for competitive meets.

According to Hurley, this area can claim more than 65 per cent of the national

The Green Thumb
 By GEORGE ABRAHAM

Now's a good time to start plants in bottles, jugs, fruit jars, peanut jars, or what have you. This is called

"bottle gardening."

Don't throw away any kind of glass containers. Even the narrow mouth containers can be used for bottle gardening. Long tweezers can be used to insert plants into them. In fact, we have fashioned a looped "plant placer" out of a wire coat hanger. It lets plants down into narrow mouthed jugs with no problem at all.

Plant materials can be found in meadows, swamps or weeds now or in early winter. It's an easy way to bring the outdoors indoors. Sprinkle some woods' soil in the bottom of the container and add a few bits of charcoal to keep the soil sweet.

You can add any kind of plant available, such as tiny evergreen seedlings, odd bits of bark, lichens, sticks, small flowering plants, mosses, and tiny moss-coated pieces of wood.

Small evergreen seedlings can be dug up in the swamps or woods, and planted in leaf mold, where they'll stay alive all winter inside the container. Then they can be planted outdoors in spring.

When it comes to watering, go easy. Terrariums and bottle gardens need amounts of water, and if you apply too much the plants rot. Remember, the moisture inside the glass recycles itself over and over, losing very little. You may have to water once a month, or even less.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC:
 "We have a Zebra plant whose leaves are getting dry around the edges. Please tell us what care it needs."

Answer: Aphelandra or Zebra plant likes a rather moist (not soggy) soil. Set pot in a tray of pebbles and add water to the pebbles. It likes a loose soil. Avoid hot sun, but keep in a bright window. It prefers average room temperature, around 72 degrees F. or so.

Civic Theater Planned

By CORINNE ABATT

SOUTHFIELD
 A new civic theater is the latest in a growing list of cultural projects being fostered by the Southfield Parks and Recreation Dept.

A meeting for everyone interested in the theater project will be held at 8:30 p.m., Wednesday, Nov. 14 in the Thompson Junior High auditorium.

At that time, the concept of the theatrical company and the director, Charles Rossi, speech and drama teacher at Thompson, will be presented.

David Jorlett, Southfield schools music teacher and founder - director of the summer music workshop, will serve as producer for the adult civic theater.

Doug Gaynor, recreation superintendent, says that since Parks and Recreation is putting up the money for the theater, the department is the executive producer.

Rossi says those who are accepted for the theatrical company will start off in a series of workshops. These workshops will deal in both acting and technical aspects of theater.

Rossi says, "The workshops are going to be very instructional at first. There will be at least two a week for two hours an evening. We will be able to accommodate up to 60 or 70 people. I plan to divide them into small working groups and each will be doing performances for the others. I'll also be bringing in outside professionals for things like a special seminar on lighting or make-up as well as other theater groups."

The workshops and the first public performances will be given at Thompson Junior High. This, Jorlett feel, points up the need for a performing arts center in Southfield, the high schools are so booked that time and space is almost non-existent. Gaynor says he feels it is wise to start at Thompson.

"We feel we should start small with this too - we did the same thing with our summer music workshop for students and it has grown tremendously. We're really excited about this, we really think it's needed. As you know, our philosophy has always been that if people want to do something, we'll find a way."

Gaynor said that while no budget for the new theater project has been prepared, funds will be available for the director and producer salaries from the department's general funds. He plans to present a formal theater budget for the project next spring.

Rossi anticipates the first public performance sometime next spring.

Woman On The Go

No Cobwebs Here

By MARGARET MILLER

One of the myriad of signs you can read in Plymouth's new Alphabet Gallery contains these words:

"The creative woman-cobwebs in her corners but not in her mind." It pretty well sums up the way the Gallery's five proprietors feel about the unusual shop that is their creative enterprise.

The shop at 499 S. Main is full of creative handwork, because that's what all the women love to do, and there's an emphasis on signs, because all are fascinated by words and letters.

"Some cobwebs may be there, both in the shop and at home," said Wilma Halliburton of Plymouth, one of the entrepreneurs.

"But we're really enjoying ourselves. It's something we've all had in our minds for a long time and we just decided to go ahead and try it."

"We were kind of scared, but it's worked out fine so far," added Nancy Sheehan of Livonia.

Mary Wollens of Livonia, who keeps books for the enterprise, pointed out it's been in the black for the five months of operation.

"And that," put in Linda Golbesky of Novi, "isn't bad for a store that opened at the beginning of the summer."

Elaine Hill of Plymouth is the fifth member of the Alphabet Gallery quintet.

The shop's wares are largely the work of the five women.

There are some things accepted on consignment—one such contributor is Nancy's aunt, who is in her 60s and loves to make Raggedy Ann dolls and patchwork items—but most of the things for sale are brought in by one of the proprietors. "Some weeks the shelves get kind of empty," Nancy said, "and then you know you just have to produce."

Most of the art work has a primitive and homespun flavor. That's Wilma's trademark, and the others have taken craft classes with her at one time or another.

"And this is a recycling thing," Wilma pointed out. "Half of our props and materials are throw-aways."

Notable among these are the packing crates she retrieves from behind supermarkets and the painted bench that sits outside the door.

"We found the bench on a trash pile and brought it over and painted it," Wilma said. "It's great—gives just the atmosphere we want and the kids like to sit on it while their mothers browse."

Browsing is a big thing with the Alphabet Shop too.

"We love having people come in just to look around," Nancy said. "They get ideas and tell us about their creative projects. Sort of an old world market atmosphere."

It's fun, too, to sell something, she added. She found a real rapport with the young woman who walked out with a plaque she had lettered with a Carl Sandburg quotation.

"Life is like an onion," the plaque read. "You peel it off one layer at a time and sometimes you weep."

Those words, Nancy said, "have real meaning to me and she felt the same way."

The five women take turns minding the shop.

All in all, they agree, it's a venture full of satisfaction. As Wilma summed it up, "The whole idea is to seriously have a good time."

FOCUS

holidays -- worth presenting well

By JUDITH BERNE

Blonde, sophisticated Bess Decker relies on nature for home decoration — holidays and everyday.

Married to artist Albert Decker, the talented Garden City woman has arranged displays for a fashionable Ann Arbor store for nearly 20 years and now concentrates on her own home and occasional talks to local groups.

For the holiday table settings she whipped up especially for Observer readers, "I didn't go out and buy anything," Mrs. Decker pointed out. "Most people have the makings of a lovely holiday centerpiece right within their homes and yards. They just don't realize it."

"TOO MANY PEOPLE deny their eyes. They think in terms of standard table settings, standard centerpieces and standard holiday fare."

"I don't like people being dictated to by rules and regulations."

Mrs. Decker depends on her garden for many of her table arrangements as well as for treatments throughout her home. "I can't leave nature," she explained simply. "It's exciting to find things that go together."

Cuttings from the boxwood hedge and pine trees in her yard are included in two table arrangements . . . one in combination with a pyramid of osage oranges (known as hedgeball) and the other to set off turquoise Christmas balls resting in a crystal bowl.

"When I use artificial things, there is no doubt that they are artificial," the talented lady stipulated. "I never try to cheat nature."

An arrangement of alabaster grapes and figs and glass balls makes a lovely centerpiece against a backdrop of leaves which Mrs. Decker dips in glycerine to preserve. The combination of evergreens and rosehips delicately interwoven is another centerpiece idea straight from the garden.

"Never deny the simplicity of fresh fruit in an arresting bowl for a focal point," Mrs. Decker admonished. "It says you cared enough." And colorful napkins arranged in a wicker basket can make a perfect centerpiece for an informal supper — pert and practical.

"I love the glow of candles, but you have to be careful," the artful Mrs. Decker explained. "Candles should either be lower or higher than eye level in a table setting, or they intrude."

"Actually, I prefer candles used around a table rather than on it. Or, they may be used to welcome people to the table and then removed."

She believes that a holiday table, as well as any other, should harmonize with the room and house around it — and also the host and hostess. "It's just smart to wear something which blends in. That totalness becomes part of the party."

"THE BEST WAY to welcome guests into your house is to have things in order," she continued. "Trying to force decorations and feelings just doesn't work. It will make people immediately uncomfortable. Just relax with nature."

Mrs. Decker finds that at the Christmas season people have a compulsion to use red, regardless of whether it fits their color scheme. "If you are uncomfortable with red, just don't use it," she advised. Greens and golds or silvers and blues symbolize Christmas just as well.

For people whose homes avoid nature's colors, such as decorative schemes built around red and black, Mrs. Decker suggests using nature's shapes rather than its colors: trace leaf shapes on black paper, or dip something from nature into a color which will go along with your existing setting.

She observed that food color as well as taste should be considered in planning meals and table settings. "I'm a strong advocate of white china. It's a perfect backdrop for colorful foods and looks well on any tablecloth or placemat."

She also advised against using total sets of dishes. The perfect trio is elegant dinnerware, a casual line and a dessert or coffee set — different in pattern and texture, but in harmonizing colors to be used separately or together.

"IT REALLY DRIVES me up the wall when someone tells me they can't use a certain piece because it isn't part of their set. Heirloom pieces, miscellaneous pottery picked up on a vacation, an antique store find — these are all stories by themselves."

"So much buying today is done without thought," Mrs. Decker mused. "Look at the fantastic number of garage sales, the piles of rubble in front of people's homes on garbage pickup days. How much energy and money is wasted on tossed out kinds of things!"

"People aren't content to live with what they have. They haven't learned to build, to draw from nature. If you know the atmosphere you want to create, then buy and put things together accordingly, you can move things from room to room."

"We each weave our own pattern. It's all out there just waiting to be captured."

PART OF HOLIDAY party planning is to recognize your own dictations and limitations, according to Mrs. Decker. "If you have a set menu, then start from there and let your table and decor revolve around the foods. If there are certain dishes you want to use, then let that be your starting point."

"I don't believe in doing any kind of entertaining without a schedule. Once you have your list, find out what can be done and made ahead . . . and do it. My most important list is the last half hour before my guests come and the first half hour they are here. I write things down almost minute by minute."

She laughingly admits that one reason this list is so important to her is that she is a great talker. "If my guests come into the kitchen, and I get started talking, I'm lost without a list. I get so wrapped up in the conversation that all those last minute things just fly out of my mind."

And mental woe unto the dinner guest who arrives at the Deckers with cut flowers. "It is really upsetting to a hostess to bring a gift which is going to take her time at the last minute," according to Mrs. Decker. "The thoughtful guest should realize that situation."

DEVELOPING A HOME that is always ready for friends — from centerpiece to frozen ahead casserole — is a well-placed ambition, the articulate designer believes.

"If you have nature around, you can always set a 'fun table' if company drops in unexpectedly. A deep dish of something in water — ivy, philodendron — is a perfect centerpiece. Dress it up with a single flower."

"Bread and jelly or toast and cream cheese is a lovely offering if it is done well. The presentation is the important thing."

"Be creative, not apologetic. Don't panic. Just go to the refrigerator and see what you can start with."

She predicts that despite rising food costs and concern over affairs on both the domestic and international fronts, people will still reserve the holidays 1973 for entertainment.

"We're a sentimental people; we like to tie things down to annual events. If we ever lose the format of family, then we will really have lost something."

"To me, a table represents a circle. It brings us together. Holidays are for togetherness. They are worth presenting well."
