'45-15' School board considering plan for year round school

BY CORINNE ABATT

PLYMOUTH — The slogan in the Plymouth School District may well be "45-15 or bust." Between now and April 1 the school board will decide on how to deal with overcrowding Supt. John M. Hoben said.

It's a simple case of too many elementary students, too little room," Hoben says. "We're just plain out of room."

The "45-15" plan for year round school is one of the alternatives under serious consideration. If approved, it will be piloted at Miller Elementary School, Hoben said.

Miller is in the middle of a high density area in a state of rapid growth. The school is air conditioned.

This is important because the plan entails school during the summer.

The student body would be divided into three, possibly four, groups or tracks. The groups would attend school on a staggered year round schedule. Each would be in school nine weeks at a time and out three. At any given time, two thirds of the student body would be in school.

All pupils would have the same Christmas, Easter, Thanksgiving and national holiday vacations. But, at least a third more students could be enrolled over what is considered capacity under the traditional plan.

Under the "45-15" plan, each child would still have the required 180 days of school each year, but attendance would be broken into nine - week or 45 - day segments followed by 15 school days of vacation.

The school would be completely shut down for two weeks in July and this plus the student's three weeks off sometime during the summer, would replace the usual summer vacation period.

Population growth in the Miller area is the prime reason for its selection if the plan is approved. The fourth Friday count there last fall was 569. This is the official figure the state uses for school aid.

But in the ensuing months the Miller population has risen to 692. Hoben puts building capacity at 672 adding that there is no relief in sight because 337 homes and 24 multiple projects are now under construction in that area. The superintendent estimates these will produce another 128 elementary students by next fall.

It isn't just the Miller district, but the whole Canton Township area which is leaping ahead of school facilities. There are 801 elementary students from there this year. Projected figures indicate there will be 879 next year; 84 in 1975; 1,145 in 1976, and 1,385 the year after.

Other alternatives have been investigated. None seem too palatable for providing quality education without adversely affecting the children, Hoben said.

One is to divide the district and bus the youngsters to whatever classrooms are empty.

Hoben describes this as a piecemeal solution or "plugging holes in the dike."

Another solution or alternative is to build schools. While the district has

'Ann Arbor Road widening starts this summer,' state says

By W. EDWARD WENDOVER

PLYMOUTH — This year the state plans to widen Ann Arbor Road (M-14) to a five - lane road.

Last year the state and county highway officials said the same thing, but disagreement over how the road would be built delayed the project.

The Wayne County Road Commission said the only way to get the job done properly was to rip up the existing two lanes of pavement and then build five new lanes.

The State Highway Commission officials argued that the existing two lanes could be retained while three new lanes were constructed and then put a new top layer over all of the road.

It appears now that the state got its way and will have control of the project.

Bids for the project will be let in June.

Larry Brown, a spokesman for the state highway commission, said the M-14 widening should be completed by August or September, 1975.

Part of the four - mile long widening will mean closing the road to through traffic although local traffic will be given access during most of the construction, Brown said.

All of the road, from the viaduct at Edward Hines Drive to a few feet past Sheldon, will be widened.

During the time the bridge across Tonquish Creek is rebuilt to four lanes, the road will be closed to through traffic. Brown said the contract specifications call for that closing to be a maximum of 45 days.

Work will begin on the northern lanes first, Brown said, which means roads connecting on the south side will remain open. When the southern lanes are under construction, connecting roads on the north side will be reopened.

According to the state, the following connecting roads will be closed at one time or another during the project:

Brookline, Elmhurst, Marlowe, Oakview, Northern, Harvey - Corinne, Ball, Rocker, General Drive, Gold Arbor, Southworth, Marilyn, Lakeview Drive and Riverview Drive. (Marilyn and Southworth will not be closed at the same time.)

Brown said the construction schedule is not set yet although he expects the Tonquish Bridge construction to be done this summer.

He said he "hopes" the road will be left totally open to traffic during the winter months when the project is stalled by bad weather.

After the new lanes are constructed, he said, the entire road surface will be repaved.

Curbs and gutters will be installed as part of the project and the City of Plymouth will participate in the project for sidewalks along the north side of M-14 between Mill Street and Sheldon Road.

Twp. proposed budget up 3%

PLYMOUTH — During its next fiscal year, Plymouth Township is expected to spend about three per cent more than it is currently spending.

According to the proposed budget for the 1974-75 fiscal year, the township will spend some $323,830 - up $26,336 from what it spent for general operation in 1973-74.

Although the budget for 73-74 shows the township spending level at $1,018,494.20, there are two items which don't apply to the proposed 1974-75 budget.

They are: $65,000 shown in the current budget for the purchase of a new pumper truck for the fire department and $56,000 for storm sewer levy.

The money for the fire truck had been carried into the 1973-74 budget as part of the fund balance and thus doesn't appear in the proposed budget because the pumper has been purchased.

Auditors advised the township that the storm sewer levy, which was $56,000 in this year's budget, should be shown in a special budget portion and shouldn't be put in the general budget as in the past.

Without adding those two items to the 1973-74 budget, the township spent $897,494.

On the receipts side of the proposed budget, property tax revenues and state revenue sharing incomes are each expected to provide an additional $20,000 during 1974-75.

Other increases in smaller amounts are expected from refrigeration permits, builders' licenses, electrical permits, district court fees, and interest on investments.

A decrease of $20,000 in building permits is expected during 1974-75 while building and plat fees and private contributions are expected to each decrease by about $5,000.

Smaller decreases are anticipated for insurance refunds, plumbing permits and heating permits.

On the expenditure side of the proposed budget, major increases are shown for the elections department (for the upcoming elections' expenses) and the parks and recreation department (reflecting the money set aside for an area - wide recreation authority).

In addition, staff salaries for most departments, excluding the fire department, reflect increases for clerical personnel salaries of from six to seven and a half per cent.

The three top elected officials and the fire, building and DPW department heads would get about 10 per cent raises under the proposed budget.

According to the proposed figures, those six officials would receive (the 1973-74 amount is shown following in parentheses):

Supervisor, $18,500 ($17,000); clerk, $16,500 ($15,000); treasurer, $16,500 ($15,000); fire chief, $16,300 ($14,750); building inspector, $16,000 ($14,350); DPW head, $13,000 ($12,000).

The proposed budget also includes small increases for township board expenses (not salaries), district court administration, township hall maintenance, library services, and "contingencies."

Not shown in the budget is an increase in fire department salaries which haven't yet been determined by negotiation.

The proposed budget calls for decreases in spending for debt administration, insurance and bonds, and public improvement.

At its meeting Tuesday night, the township board will hold a public hearing on the proposed budget and vote on it.

Michigan Week set for May

PLYMOUTH — It's getting to be Michigan Week time again.

Plans are already under way for Plymouth's observance of the 21st annual celebration.

One of this year's highlights of the eight - day week which runs from May 18 - 25, will be the exchange of mayors with the city of Grosse Pointe on Monday, May 20.

Plymouth's mayor, Beverly McAninch, will trade places with Grosse Pointe Mayor John L. King.

The eight days of the "week" each will honor a specific topic. May 18 is Community Pride Day, May 19 is Spiritual Foundations Day, May 20 is Government Day, May 21 is Heritage Day, May 22 is Livelihood Day, May 23 is Education Day, May 24 is Hospitality Day, and May 25 is Youth Day.

PEE -YEW! Sewage bubbles and spurts from the green pools in Henry Viers' backyard. In the summer the water smells up the whole neighborhood in Canton Township's McIntyre subdivision. Viers and his neighbors want the township to move faster on sewer service for their area.

Cantonites fight open sewage flow

By HANK MEIJER

CANTON — "The whole neighborhood stinks," says Henry Viers. He likes his Canton Township neighborhood, but isn't looking forward to the fumes in his back yard this summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Viers live at 1548 Elmhurst in the McIntyre Manor subdivision of Canton Township. They bought their house a year ago when snow was still on the ground. When the snow melted there was something new in their backyard - little pools of sewage. Pools that bubble up when the Viers flush their toilet or do the wash.

When the Viers bought the house, its former owners told them that in 1972, when the house had been rebuilt after a fire, they had paid a $600 "tap - in fee" to the Wayne County Health Department in order to use the existing drainage field. According to Viers the fee was for a sewer which was set to extend into the McIntyre area from present lines on Ford Road. It has never been built.

The county health department issued a permit in 1972 which approved construction of the house and use of an existing drain field.

But the existing field is clearly inadequate. Sewage isn't properly drained off. When warm weather comes the Viers keep their windows shut. The smell is so bad "you can't even open the door," Viers said.

The Viers aren't the only ones who face a smelly summer. Other residents of the subdivision have been circulating petitions and questioning township officials for several months now, but they still aren't much closer to hooking up with township sewer lines.

According to Viers the neighbors don't blame him for the smell because others also have had drainage problems and they think the tap - in fee entitles him to something more than the stench in his backyard.

"There is a commitment on the part of the community to do something about it," said township engineer Bob Wade, but he says it's going to take time.

McIntyre residents confronted the board of trustees with their plight at the last meeting. "People demanded a timetable on the sewer construction," Wade said, "but I just couldn't give them one."

Township officials claim they

Security vs. humanity is walkaway issue

By HANK MELJER

As of Wednesday, only those Northville State Hospital patients en route to a specified activity program will be permitted to walk alone on the hospital grounds. All others will have their passes lifted in an attempt by hospital officials to reduce the number of walkaways. The problem of patients who escape or walk away from the hospital grounds and bother area residents was the subject of a public meeting

Wednesday night in the Northville State Hospital auditorium. "Neighbors have a right not to be annoyed by their neighbor, the hospital," said Dr. E. Gordon Yudashkin, director of the Michigan Dept. of Mental Health and former Northville superintendent. He and Dr. Richard Budd, the hospital's current administrator, listened to complaints from neighbors and presented their own suggestions for curbing the problem.

There have been as many as 230 escapees and walkaways this winter alone. "You're frightening us in the community, scaring us to death," said Mrs. Kenneth Bellenir. She and many others of those present in the crowded auditorium live in the area directly across Seven Mile Rd. from the hospital grounds. This neighborhood is the one most frequented by walkaway patients.

"Our house is one of the friendly-looking ones; I am very distraught about the situation," said Mrs. James Scott, who lives east of the hospital on Seven Mile. According to Mrs. Scott, as many as eight or 10 patients a week come onto her property. "I've given up in despair of calling you people because I get no results," she said.

"Part of the problem is geographic," Dr. Budd said. "If we had 1/4 or 1/2 mile between the neighborhood and the hospital we wouldn't have much of a problem." Suburban growth has spread residential streets all around the 400 acre facility.

Some neighbors suggested keeping patients indoors at all times or erecting a barbed wire - topped fence around the grounds.

"One solution that's out of the question is running the hospital as a 100 per cent maximum security institution," Dr. Yudashkin said. "That's not a humane approach to the treatment of the mentally ill."

So far there have been no incidents of violence reported as a result of patients wandering the neighborhood. But residents complained of patients who scared their children, pounded on doors, and even one man who exposed himself in a front yard. In another case, "there was a man in my living room and I didn't know where my baby was," said Mrs. Scott.

Relations between the hospital and the neighborhood are also strained because hospital security personnel have been slow to respond to frantic calls that "there's a nut outside."

Dr. Budd vowed to install a hot line telephone so that residents can get immediate responses to their calls for aid. In response to a request from one neighbor, hospital security people will carry maps of the surrounding area in order to locate the trespassing patient more quickly.

Other ideas from residents included installing TV cameras with telescopic lenses atop the hospital, equipping an enlarged security force with walkie-talkie radios, and making all patients wear uniforms. Walkaways are so common, one neighbor suggested, that their number could be reduced "if there was just somebody looking out the window."

"If they'll work, we'll buy them," Dr. Yudashkin said of the proposals. "The reason I'm here is that what has developed is an epidemic situation, a mass kind of behavior."

The hospital administration is currently reviewing its policy on issuing grounds passes to patients. Dr. Budd asked that a couple of persons from the neighborhood association join the policy committee so that the interests of area residents could play a part in setting new rules.

Five homeowners accepted the invitation and will meet soon with administrators to consider future steps. They are association president L. T. Sylvestre, Frank Tomjack, Edward Atton, Robert Sweeney, and William Yant. All live near the hospital.

Budd and Yudashkin admitted that their three - pronged program of stricter issuance of ground permits, fast response to calls, and inclusion of residents on a policy - making committee won't solve the walkaway problem entirely. "We're going to have to wait and see if the figures fall," said Dr. Budd.

Two serious factors make the problem nearly impossible to solve completely in the foreseeable future: escapees and patient boredom.

The statistics are hard to assess, but there are probably more patients who escape from confinement than those who abuse their ground privileges and walk away. "Ingenious teenagers can figure out more ways to escape than you can imagine," Dr. Budd said. "The younger the patient, the greater the problem."

Young men get bored the fastest.

While the hospital population is about evenly divided between male and female patients, men walk away three times more often than women and escape four times more often.

According to Dr. Budd, boredom is the root of the walkaway trouble. But he needs a bigger staff to provide more activities and attention. Due to increasing costs he must instead trim 40 staff members by July 1 to meet this year's budget.

One reason why the walkaway problem is more severe at Northville than at Michigan's other mental institutions is that its patient population is more transient. They are admitted almost immediately and on an average stay less than 30 days.

"We get acute admissions out of Detroit General Hospital," said Dr. Budd. "If someone goes psychotic in Detroit in the morning, they work him up there and he comes over here in the afternoon."

Since last fall any patient caught off the grounds has his pass revoked and cannot get it back without the consent of Dr. Budd. The superintendent points to this as one factor in reducing the number of walkaways somewhat in recent months. For some years all wards in the hospital have been locked or closed wards.

The doctors emphasized that the vast majority of the patients are harmless and wander off the grounds out of curiosity. One angry resident demanded a guarantee that they would never harm anyone. When the doctors couldn't give him one he said: "Then fence them (the patients) off." Others observed that patients endanger themselves when they try to cross Seven Mile Rd.

"How do I get him out of my house?" was a question several housewives asked. They reported frequent instances where men came to their homes while their husbands were at work.

"Don't approach them in a hostile way," Dr. Yudashkin suggested. "The majority of the patients are poor, helpless souls - not the raving lunatics you make them out to be."

The doctors acknowledged the validity of neighbors' fears.

Schoolcraft hires extra counselors

Two counseling students, Ben Robinson of the University of Michigan, and Nancy Gode of Eastern Michigan University, have joined the Schoolcraft College staff.

A graduate student specializing in community college guidance and counseling, Robinson came to Schoolcraft because of his interest in the college's Systematic Career Counseling program.

Since obtaining a bachelor of arts in philosophy and psychology at Michigan, Robinson has worked in child guidance clinics and run-away counseling crisis centers. He now works part - time at Michigan's counseling and referral services.

Having already completed her masters in guidance and counseling, Mrs. Gode chose to intern at Schoolcraft to get a practical view of counseling at the community college to decide whether her interests in preventative community mental health could be applied at this level.

She is currently active in group work within the community.

She has worked with parent education classes and parent development groups and also leads groups under the Michigan chapter of Parents Anonymous, a child abusive parents group.

Mrs. Gode also teams with her husband for group work utilizing the transactional analysis approach.

Married to a pediatrician who is just completing a graduate program in child psychology, the Godes have four children and live in Ann Arbor. They will soon be moving to Seattle, Washington, where her husband plans to work as a child psychologist at the University of Washington.

Role playing fights drug abuse

By CORINNE ABATT

The role playing technique may sound like an easy way to pick up the other fellow's point of view. But, it isn't always so.

Just ask a group of students and faculty from Plymouth and Redford high schools who have been involved in a Drug Abuse Reduction Through Education (DARTE) five week leadership training course.

They met for the final session in the Plymouth board of education building this week.

In an informal way, the final session involved some tests. In the morning session, the two groups each tried to convince a referee that their way to use $50,000 for drug control would be the most effective.

All group members wore signs indicating who they were in the mock drama.

Group I had several addicts, a bartender, a radical college student, a municipal judge, and a disc jockey among others.

Group II included a ghetto parent, social worker, city councilman, a psychiatrist and some other professional people.

Denise Browne of Plymouth - Salem High School presented I's argument and plan for the money.

She explained that it would be used to lobby for the legalization of drugs. This, she told her audience, would wipe out drug crimes. Deaths from unclean drugs would be lowered since street drugs would no longer be sold, only "clean drugs" would be available.

Group II countered with its plan for drug education for the whole community, including an educational program through the schools.

John Koch, Thurston High School English teacher, playing the role of a councilman, made the presentation.

Al Goldman, DARTE staff development consultant, acting as a referee, awarded the $50,000 to Group II explaining why he felt their presentation was more effective.

In the discussion which followed Goldman's decision, Group I Member Jack Harms, Thurston High School principal, playing the role of a radical college student, said he felt it didn't matter that his group did, the establishment group was going to win.

"I felt the only way I thought we could win was to convince somebody that it would be purely discriminatory not to give us the money."

DARTE's director Kenneth Kaminsky who sets up these kinds of training programs throughout the county, told both groups the practice is important.

He said, "The competition for dollars for such programs is stiff. These things happen in real life."

After a lunch break, the groups returned in the afternoon to make their presentations before a mock board of education.

Those who finished the five week session will then go back to their own schools as teams made up of parents, administrators and students to implement DARTE programs.

Denise Browne, Plymouth - Salem High School students, explains in a mock drama how her group would use $50,000 to aid in a substance abuse program. It was part of a five week training session sponsored by DARTE. (Staff photo)

DARTE DIRECTOR Kenneth Kaminsky, back to camera, discusses some of the problems which this substance abuse leadership group will en-

haven't got room in the budget to make improvements right away. They have studied the feasibility of floating a bond issue to get funds for sewer construction.

Before the township can go ahead with a bond issue they have to file data with the Michigan Department of Natural Resources and the Wayne County Department of Public Works which shows the capacity of the planned sewers, the township's master sewage plan, and the results of an infiltration-inflow study on possible leakage problems in a new system.

According to Wade it will probably take at least several weeks for the township to make its studies and report the findings to the government agencies. "It may be several meetings before we can get answers from the two governments and meet with the bond people. At that point we can go ahead," Wade said.

Relief for the Viers is still a long way off.

Viers charges that the township has been dragging its feet on the McIntyre problem while new multiple-dwelling units a few blocks away get quick sewer service. "It doesn't seem to me that the township, the people that are responsible, are interested in doing things for citizens," he said.

"If we can't get sewers through here I anticipate suing these people. I moved out of Sumter Township to get away from this problem, and I moved into one that's worse."

"If they're not going to put the sewer in, they're going to refund my tap-in fee, pay me my damages, and build me a house somewhere where I can live."

Wade estimated that the proposed sewer system will cost in excess of $400,000. But that would not be for work in McIntyre subdivision alone. According to Wade the bond issue is likely to win approval more smoothly if it includes improvements for more than one parcel, so several others areas may also be in line for sewers.

Viers isn't satisfied.

"I've got a home that's no good for me," he said. "I can't sell. Who's going to buy it when they have to hold their nose just to walk out in back?"

"When I drive home from work in the summer and turn onto Elmhurst I get sick to my stomach before I even get to the driveway," said Mrs. Viers.

With summer come the flies. "Green flies are in the millions out there," she said. She worries about the danger of hepatitis. "It should be condemned as a health hazard," she said, pointing to her backyard. In summer the grass grows high because Viers can't mow the soggy area.

"When we wash it's like a river flowing," Mrs. Viers added.

"I invited the treasurer and all of the trustees to take a swim in my pool that I didn't realize I had bought," said Viers. "I wish they'd come out here in the summertime, or anytime."

So far nobody has accepted his offer.

Year round school

sites available, it does not have funds. Plymouth district voters have twice turned down bond issues for school buildings, in December 1972 and June 1973.

Even if the voters approved a bond issue this June, it takes a minimum of two years to get a school from the drawing board to the point where it is ready for occupancy.

There are positives, negatives and unanswered questions about the year round plan, the superintendent admits.

Positive is the fact that the building is being used on a year round basis. A continuous education program, with three week breaks increases student retention of what they have learned. It also gives the family some vacation options which they otherwise would not have.

Hoben calls it "a better way of packaging instruction." He strongly supports the arrangement that would keep students and their teachers on the same schedule, so they would not come back each time to new teachers.

In the case of Miller School, the attendance area would remain intact and children who live side by side would not be bused to different schools.

One of the disadvantages could be the affect on family summer vacations, if they are planned for an extended period of time. Like Northville, which now has the 45-15 system in operation, Plymouth would probably plan to have all children in the same family at one school and attending at the same time, unless otherwise requested.

The superintendent is not sure how the teachers will accept the plan. Certainly, there would be some in-service training sessions so the plan could be implemented smoothly and teachers understand the concept.

As yet undetermined is the possible cost savings resulting from running a school year round. Hoben feels it would vary with implementation. Most districts using the plan have not had it in long enough to give definite figures on cost savings.

Northville is using a three track system. Parma Western district outside of Jackson has been using it for a year from kindergarten through 12th grade. Hoben prefers the extended day rather than the extended year at the high school level.

Lapeer has voted to try 45-15 next fall and some smaller Michigan districts are using a form of it in some of their schools.

One of the best known is the Valley View School District in Roneoville, Ill. A book on this program has been published.

Hoben admits the plan is running into resistance from parents which he attributes to "fear of the unknown."

He feels he could probably find a stopgap solution to the rising enrollment for next year, but says, "Although I can see my way clear for next year, I'm vitally concerned for 1975-76."

Central Elementary School was opened this year and many Canton Township students are bused there. Next year's solution would also involve busing — anywhere in the district where there is room.

In spite of these one-year solutions, Hoben says, "Very shortly we're going to have to make a decision on how to house these kids."

Miller School parents are presently being surveyed for their opinions on the "45-15" plan and their preferences on other alternatives. Coffees are being held in the attendance area to answer questions and explain the plan.

On a district wide survey last year, residents were asked to rate solutions for overcrowding. There was an 85 per cent response to the 15,000 questionnaires.

The extended school year at the high school level was rated first and at the elementary level a close second. Right behind was the extended school day. Fourth was building more buildings and fifth was to hold split sessions at the high school level.

In order of preference after that were: to rent space in other buildings; splitting sessions at the elementary level; holding kindergartens in area homes; renting space outside the district; sending pupils to school in other districts on a tuition basis.

Hoben says the administration has been well aware since 1968 that it was going to be faced with the overcrowding problem. Both bond requests were approved by the Municipal Finance Commission which stated the need was genuine.

Hoben speculated on what the school district's population growth could mean in the future.

"In square miles this district is half again as big as Livonia. We're 54 square miles including five townships and one city. And Livonia is the third largest district in the state in student enrollment."

RETAILING SEEMS to come naturally for Donna Mathews, left, and Nancy Dommer. Their customers are Mary Harper and Greg Tigani. The Clarenceville High School store is open from 6:30 a.m. until the end of the school day and business is booming.

The reality of retailing experienced by students

By CORINNE ABATT

Students in Ken Zornes' Clarenceville High School retailing class used to make fun of the skits in class designed to illustrate sales techniques.

"That isn't the way it happens," or "she wouldn't react that way" and "it isn't real," were frequent comments.

Zornes brainstormed the problem — if it didn't seem real, he would make it real.

He proposed to the school board that his class be allowed to open a store in the school.

Zornes says of the board: "They were very responsive. They gave us some money and half the student book area."

The store opened last month and business is better than either Zornes or his students anticipated. Candy, sold only after lunch, is the big seller, but far from the only one. Posters go well, so do albums (sold below suggested retail price), eight track tapes, jewelry, pantyhose (fair traded) and novelty items.

Each student in the retailing class works in the store at least one hour a week, most more. They all handle ordering, select what they think will sell and keep books, working with the student in charge of each phase of the operation.

Now, all the textbook theories on advertising, marketing, merchandizing and ordering have a practical application.

Zornes says of his students: "They have become very aware of sales practices. When a wholesaler talks with them, they can spot the sales pitch. And when they don't like an item, they're not afraid to tell him so. It's pure honesty. They're not afraid to say, 'that won't go.'" Student body and faculty are enjoying the benefits of the store. Not only is it convenient, but it opens every morning at 6:30 a.m. to serve coffee and donuts until classes begin.

Even while the store is still operating on a trial basis, Zornes has dreams of expanding both inventory and services. He'd like to offer credit and issue student credit cards with $5 limit.

All students in the retailing class are seniors, practically all attend classes in the morning and work at co-op jobs in the afternoon.

Zornes graduated from Eastern Michigan University and joined the Clarenceville faculty two years ago.

THE QUESTION in the minds of Clarenceville High School students Tim McCammon (left) and Sue Martin, is "will it sell." Their retailing teacher, Ken Zornes, is equally interested in a display of silver rings. They decided to order a limited number in several styles from salesman Marvin A. Miller of Livonia.

Supreme Court told county jail improving

A "progress report" describing how $3.5 million in improvements and other changes have eased conditions in the Wayne County Jail has been filed with the State Supreme Court.

The report is a response to allegations filed in November by attorneys for inmates whose 1972 charges in Circuit Court led to an order threatening the jailing of members of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners.

Robert E. FitzPatrick, chairman of the board of commissioners, said the progress in improving conditions at the jail demonstrates that commissioners have responded to needs in a "capable and orderly manner." As a result, FitzPatrick said, jail facilities and the treatment of prisoners "have improved more in the last two years than they had in the previous 20 years."

The response cites the following:

- The average daily number of inmates housed in the county jail has dropped from 1,500 to 992 to 671.

Complaints that cells are too small (four square feet short of the state penal code) do not take into consideration that from 6:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. every day every inmate in a ten-cell ward has available in an adjacent area a shared cell-block space of 60 or more square feet per inmate.

- A reception - diagnostic center now examines all inmates as they are received, testing routinely for infectious diseases and maintaining medical care that "is an area of pride of accomplishment."

- A requirement that a convalescent ward be established will be met as soon as the sheriff utilizes appropriated funds for equipment for same. These funds were made available to the sheriff in the 1973-74 budget by the board of commissioners. Meanwhile, the board of commissioners has maintained an appropriation which provides for convalescent care of inmates at the Detroit General Hospital.

- Emergency dental services are available for all inmates, and statistics from the sheriff's report for the quarterly period ending Dec. 31, 1973, showed that one of every three inmates had received dental care during that 90-day period.

- There were no suicides in the county jail for a 16-month period between August, 1972, and November, 1973. This record is far better than in many other similar facilities. Tombs Jail in New York, Cook County Jail in Chicago, Los Angeles County Jail and the Philadelphia County Jail all had one or more suicides during that same period.

- A program for identifying and treating drug addicts incarcerated in the county jail is beginning with the cooperation of the Wayne County Office of Substance Abuse Services. As this program is accelerated, methadone will be utilized for heroin addicts and other efforts will be made to assist addicts to all drugs, including alcohol.

- Efforts to provide indoor recreational facilities by utilizing the police department gymnasium located across the street from the jail were unsuccessful. Thus, during winter months, there are no recreation options available. However, an outdoor recreation area adjacent to the jail, which required $40,000 in construction expenditures, has been and will be used.

- Food service has been greatly improved despite difficulties in remodeling the kitchen, and obsolete heating carts for food distribution.

- More than $3.5 million has been expended to modernize facilities. Most of this sum ($2.5 million) was invested in renovation involving sanitation facilities - toilets, sinks, showers, and the extensive plumbing work needed and in electrical improvements.

The board of commissioners appealed to the State Supreme Court three major aspects of the jail "improvement" orders handed down by a three-judge Circuit Court panel in March, 1972. Oral arguments were heard last Nov. 8 and a decision is pending. The commissioners' progress report was submitted in conjunction with the appeal.

The board of commissioners asked the high court to rule on three contentions set forth in the appeal. These are:

- That the county should be required to meet only the Michigan Department of Corrections jail facilities code instead of that, plus the State and City of Detroit housing codes, as ordered by the court. This could eliminate the Circuit Court requirement that the cell sizes be increased by four square feet. The appeal contends that the 48-square foot cells, plus the "rock" recreational area accessible to inmates from 6:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m., effectively gives each inmate at least 108 square feet, "more than twice that required by any code."

- That the Circuit Court panel violated the constitutional separation of powers between the judicial and legislative branches by delving deeply into the administration of the jail and mandating expenditure of funds; and,

- That the Circuit Court panel did not have the authority to appoint a monitor to oversee the conduct of the elected Board of Commissioners with regard to jail improvements and to order the commissioners to pay the monitor.

It used to be a male's secure refuge... a place to recall the big play on the gridiron; a place to debate politics, talk business, or just to enjoy a cigar and relax with his own kind. That was the barbershop.

Was, I say, because it no longer is a man's world. The barbershop infiltration by women has begun and the conspiracy has been traced to Mel's Golden Razor Barbershop in Plymouth.

Terry Bondy, a pert young lady of 25, has for the past two weeks been on Mel Bobcean's barbering staff, doing her fair share of snipping, trimming, and shaping.

Why have you abandoned your fellow chauvinists? I asked Mel.

"It's simple," he said. "I tried a number of fellows before I hired Terry and they just couldn't do the job as well as she."

This makes business sense, but wasn't he a bit apprehensive about hiring a girl barber?

"Not really, since a number of shops in the country have successfully employed women. In Chicago, in fact, there is a shop that has more female than male barbers and their business is great," he explained.

How does Terry view her unusual role? "I've had no problems" she says, preferring the amiable confines of a barber shop rather than "being cooped up in a little beauty shop with a lot of women."

Terry even claims to enjoy the male conversation topics, noting that her expertise on basketball has greatly increased.

Her schooling at Lamar Barber College in Detroit helped prepare her for the male world of barbering as she was one of four girls in a class of about 30, and one of the two who completed the one-year course.

Did she have problems finding a job? She says no, but recalls one shop owner hired her by telephone and then changed his mind when meeting her.

As for Mel, he's happy to have found a competent barber in Terry, who he says is particularly adept at cutting and styling longer hair.

Mel's biggest problem now he says, is that "the fellows at the coffee shop kid me a lot about spending a lot more time at the shop."

Doing their part to further international relations (and play good tennis at the same time) members of the Northwest Racquet Club of Livonia have planned an April trip to Windsor, where they will play tennis and squash matches.

Gordon Preston, manager of Northwest Club, claims the language barrier will present no difficulties since he speaks fluent Canadian.

Township backs out - county courts

By MAURIE WALKER

PLYMOUTH — The Plymouth Township board of trustees at its meeting Tuesday voted to lend its "verbal support" to the Wayne County Board of Commissioners' attempts to establish out - county court facilities in western Wayne County.

The action came in response to a letter from Commissioner Brian G.

Cox finishes Navy training

PLYMOUTH—Mark Cox, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Cox Jr., 40321 Gilbert, has completed recruit training at the Great Lakes Naval Training Center. He attended Plymouth-Salem High School.

Arrowsmith, who told the trustees, "I believe that a resolution from your board will lend weight to our attempts to assure out - county courts."

In his letter, Arrowsmith reminded the trustees that "Two years ago the Wayne County Board of Commissioners made a commitment to provide out - county court facilities and appropriated $250,000 for this purpose."

The commissioner said his board is faced with a campaign by the circuit court judges, the Detroit Trial Lawyers and the Detroit branch of the Wolverine Bar Assn. to prevent the implementation of the board's intent.

He said, however, that "Many of the western Wayne County police chiefs, attorneys and judges want the facilities."

These groups, he said, "have expressed the need for such facilities to provide greater convenience to out - county residents and to cut down unnecessary loss time by patrolmen and witnesses who must lose considerable time from work in coming to the downtown Circuit Courts."

He said the out - county commissioners believe that at least some of the five new circuit court judges to be elected in 1975 should serve in a facility or facilities in western Wayne County for the convenience of the 50 per cent of the population who reside outside Detroit.

Gina Lukens gets 4.0 point

PLYMOUTH — Gina Lukens, 287 Irvin, had a grade point average of 4.0 at the end of the fall semester at Eastern Michigan University.

Letter To The Editor

Support community

EDITOR:

How many communities the size of Plymouth have a symphony orchestra and professional theater?

The Plymouth Symphony Orchestra offers fine concerts each year, and the Plymouth Community Arts Council has for the first time this year brought professional theater to Plymouth.

March 30 in the afternoon you can see "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown" and in the evening "Fantastiks" (tickets at Detroit Edison).

My point is "If the community doesn't give support, there won't be any more."

So, Plymouth Community, BUY TICKETS. ATTEND! WE NEED YOU!

Interlochen scholarships being offered

LIVONIA — For the fifth consecutive year, the Livonia Civic Chorus is offering two fully paid two-week summer scholarships to Interlochen, the national music camp.

One is for vocal excellence and the other for instrumental excellence.

The auditions, open to all Livonia senior high students, regardless of where they attend school, will be held on Saturday, April 6 at Bentley High School.

Applications are available from Mrs. P. J. Boos, 16456 Bell Creek Lane.

The applicants must be Livonia residents, be in the 10th, 11th or 12th grade, and be recommended either by a high school or private music instructor.

Applications must be postmarked no later than Monday, March 25.

cense tabs, could bring the longest license sale lines in state history, according to Joseph Ratke, licensing manager of the Automobile Club of Michigan. March 31, normal final day of purchase, falls on a Sunday this year.

Normally, about one of every seven passenger car owners waits until the last minute before buying plates. But, this year, there has been a drop in total sales of 275,000 so far for the normal license buying period which started last Nov. 15. Ratke blames this decline on uncertainties surrounding the energy crisis.

"Motorists aren't going to buy the tabs if they can't get enough gas to run their second or third cars. Many large fleet owners also waited until just before the Feb. 28 deadline before buying commercial plates." He also cites the growing unemployment situation in Michigan as a major reason for the drop in new license sales.

Total license sales are down through the first week of March even though the Department of State's recently completed mail order tab sale exceeded 700,000 for the first time.

To obtain a tab, motorists must bring in either the prepared renewal form which was mailed to them or the certificate of vehicle title plus proof of public liability and property damage insurance.

Social Security announces increase

Monthly social security benefits will be increased in two steps starting with checks sent out in April, according to Marion D. Colvin, acting district manager of the Detroit - Northwest social security office.

"The increase will enhance the financial security of about 30 million people who get social security retirement, disability, and survivors benefits," Colvin said.

Average social security retirement payments will increase from $167 to $179 a month starting with payments in April and to $186 starting with payments in July.

Disability payments will increase from $184 to $197 a month starting in April and to $206 starting with payments in July.

The overall increase will amount to 11 per cent for most beneficiaries. Seven per cent of that will be included in checks delivered in April the other 4 per cent will be included in checks delivered in July.

"People getting social security don't have to do anything to get the higher payment," Colvin said. "The increase will be added to checks automatically."

The percentage rate of social security deduction from covered earnings remains 5.85 per cent each for employees and employers - and has been reduced from eight per cent to 7.9 per cent for self-employed persons.

The amount of yearly earnings subject to social security deductions has been increased from the first $12,600 to the first $13,200 for 1974.

"Those earning over $17,600 will pay more in deductions this year," Colvin said, "but they also can expect higher social security benefits in the future as a result. Benefit amounts are based on average earnings on which social security contributions have been paid."

Supply of small cars holds key

Rising auto sales seen for balance of year

By EMORY DANIELS

Automobile workers in this area are now facing what is expected to be the most difficult time during fiscal year 1974.

Workers at both Ford plants in Livonia, for instance, are being laid off every other week. The same holds for many other auto workers at other plants operated by the Big Four.

Economists see the first three months of 1974 as the most difficult in terms of layoffs, both temporary and indefinite. The prophets, however, feel demand for autos will pick up when the supply of small cars begins to reach the market later in the year.

The rising unemployment is directly linked with decline in consumer spending on automobiles. Once the smaller cars reach the market, consumers are expected to reveal their preference for greater savings and begin buying again.

A shift in spending has resulted in only 16 per cent of total consumption being directed toward autos, appliances, furniture and other durables.

On the other hand, 43 per cent of total consumption goes toward purchase of services such as insurance, vacations and medical care. The remaining 41 per cent is spent on non-durable items such as food and clothing.

The energy shortage isn't the only factor responsible for the shifting auto demand for smaller cars. The market share of standard sized American cars has been shrinking in recent years -- independent of the energy supply situation.

One factor has been the declining family size and increasing proportion of single women and men. Consumers also have wised up to the fact that the add-on emission controls, along with weight penalty from safety mechanisms, have had a greater negative impact on gasoline consumption of big cars than of the smaller models.

Cities hardest hit by the cutback in 1974 models are Flint, Lansing, and Pontiac -- homes of Buick, Oldsmobile and Pontiac. The Ford plant in Wayne is being converted to production of the smaller Maverick.

Economists from Michigan State University believe the current slide in automotive employment will fall far short of the drop during the first quarter of the previous recession: around 30,000 as opposed to 50,000. The workweek, however, will average close to 40 hours during the present quarter which is a decline of about 10 per cent from 1973.

An indication that employment will pick up is seen in the 1973 annual report of Chrysler Corp. Among the information reported is that more than half of Chrysler's total car production in the U.S. and Canada is currently in small cars.

By May, more than 60 per cent of Chrysler's production capacity will be devoted to small cars. Chrysler also installed six-cylinder engines in a higher percentage of its 1973 small cars than did its two major competitors.

The corporation's engineers are intensifying their research into light substitutes for metals in an attempt to counteract the weight and fuel penalties resulting from government safety and emissions requirements.

It is becoming increasingly clear that part of what has appeared as lower automobile sales is actually a shift in demand to smaller autos -- a situation aggravated by fear of sharply rising gasoline prices.

It would appear that the consumer remains king when it comes to determining the course of economic activity. Expectations are when plant conversions are completed, and consumers have available the small cars they apparently desire, that employment will return to normal and consumer buying will become more predictable.

PHIL GRAM of Westland has been presented with the fourth annual Silverdale Award by the Michigan Driver and Traffic Safety Education Assn. Gram, manager of driver safety programs for Ford Motor Co., received the award for statewide achievement in improving motoring safety education. He has worked on traffic safety programs since being named assistant director of the Greater Detroit Safety Council in 1955 and since joining Ford in 1962. Among his activities is distribution of a driver education filmstrip series to high schools in Michigan.

Hydromation income rises

Hydromation Filter Co. of Livonia reports increased net earnings for the six months ended Jan. 31, 1974.

The firm's consolidated net earnings for the first six months of fiscal 1974 were $882,131 or 48 cents per share compared to $662,538 or 36 cents per share for the same period a year ago.

There was no significant extraordinary or non-operating income in this period for 1973 or 1974, reports Gene Hirs, president and chairman of the board of Hydromation.

The company's consolidated total revenues for the first half of fiscal 1974 were in excess of $11.5 million, with U.S. operations accounting for about $9.2 million. Consolidated total revenues for the same six month period in 1973 were about $8.6 million.

The second quarter of this year produced consolidated total revenues of about $5.7 million and consolidated net earnings of $460,042 or 25 cents per share, compared to revenues of about $4.8 million and net earnings of $344,509 or 23 cents per share in second quarter fiscal 1973.

Hydromation's consolidated backlog held steady over most of this last quarter, says Hirs, and then jumped significantly in January. "The current trend of business for Hydromation appears to be quite healthy," he concludes. "The company looks forward to favorable effects from further improvements in the capital goods market."

The week-long tour, conducted by John Hopkins of the Centennial Education Park, is open to all Canton and Salem students interested in French language and culture. (Staff photo by Harry Mauthe).

French students plan Montreal trip

PLYMOUTH — The fifth annual French trip for students at Canton and Salem high schools is scheduled for April 12-19. In past years the students, under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. John Hopkins, traveled to Paris. In light of the energy crisis the trip this year will be to Montreal and Quebec via railroad.

All students at the high schools are eligible for the seven-day trip. The $185 cost includes round-trip fare on the Canadian National Railroads, hotel accommodations, and three meals per day.

Highlights of the tour will include a bus tour of Montreal, a carriage ride through the haute-ville district of Quebec, a boat trip across the St. Lawrence River, dinner at some of the finest restaurants in both cities, and visits to Canadian television and radio stations, a jazz cellar, shops, and an authentic French bakery.

The group will depart Windsor station Friday, April 12, in the evening and return to Windsor at noon, Friday, April 19.

Participating students may pay for the trip in three installments. A non-refundable down payment of $35 is due by March 15, then a $75 payment by March 31, and another $75 installment by April 10.

As with such trips in the past four years, the event is not sponsored by the schools. The chaperones, Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins, assume responsibility for the group.

Change in state law prompts Redford to buy golf course

By KATHY MORAN

The purchase of Glenhurst Golf Course, once thought to be a dead issue in Redford Township, has been revived with township officials now confident they can purchase it at no cost to local taxpayers.

Prior to Monday's township board meeting, the board authorized its attorney, Richard E. Manning, to negotiate for purchase of the 105-acre course located south of Six Mile between Garfield and Glenmore.

Township Supervisor Bill Robbins said Manning has complete authority to bargain for the purchase. In the meantime, parks commissioners will be applying for every state or federal grant the township can get.

Possible purchase of the golf course came back within township grasp recently when parks commissioners learned of possible state funding. Previously golf courses didn't qualify for state recreational funds.

Township recreation officials and representatives from the Dept. of Natural Resources were scheduled to meet this week to discuss funding.

Robbins said Glenhurst might be purchased with 50 per cent state funding and will be financed through revenue bonds in the same way the Redford Ice Arena was built.

The township building authority will be the purchasing authority because townships aren't authorized to purchase land.

In financing the purchase, the township will sell revenue bonds to the bank offering the lowest interest rate. It will then pledge revenue collected from operation of the golf course toward making payments on the bonds.

In event the revenue collected from operation isn't sufficient to meet the annual bond payments, the township would have to subsidize the golf course.

However, this isn't considered likely because the state funding should bring the bond payments down to a reasonable amount which could be met by golf course income.

The ice arena was financed in the same manner and hasn't been subsidized by the township.

If township purchase of Glenhurst is finalized, it will culminate almost seven years of controversy surrounding the course.

It will also signal a final victory for homeowners in the Glenhurst area who have successfully fought off three apartment projects to keep the course as a recreational area.

The most recent apartment and commercial complex was dropped by developer Paul Boracks last October after a lengthy zoning dispute.

The previous township board had rezoned the property to accommodate Boracks' plans for "Glenhurst Village" including 780 low-rise luxury apartments, 40 single-family residences, a private swim club, 200-bed nursing home and enclosed shopping mall. Boracks had hoped to attract a major department store, grocery store, banking facility, theater and several small shops.

Homeowners won reversal of the zoning change in Wayne County Circuit Court. Boracks appealed to the state Court of Appeals which ordered a new trial in circuit court. The case was still pending when Boracks decided to drop it.

Since that time, discussion on possible use of Glenhurst has been quiet. Although the township would like to have purchased it earlier for a township-run golf course, it didn't have the funding until the state grants were brought to the attention of parks commissioners.

The timetable for purchase and operation of Glenhurst by the township is uncertain, although Robbins expected the purchase to take a few months.

"It's a nice piece of property and should remain recreational," Robbins said.

State police issue records

Michigan State Police officers made 21,074 arrests in January - 17,576 on traffic and motor vehicle offenses and 3,498 on criminal complaints.

In addition, 482 juvenile traffic offenders were arrested and there were 903 delinquent minors apprehended.

Troopers assisted 3,972 motorists, investigated 9,122 cars, issued 20,685 verbal warnings to drivers, made 28,897 property inspections and 2,694 checks on liquor establishments.

Department vehicles traveled 2.2 million miles, of which 900,000 were on traffic patrol while 1.3 million were logged during investigations of criminal and other complaints.

Breath testing for suspected drunk driving was administered by Michigan police agencies to 1,976 drivers. There were 1,840 ratings of intoxication (.10 or per cent or higher in blood alcohol level), 60 impairment, and 76 indicating little or no intoxicant effect. Test refusals numbered 725.

The identification section processed 23,260 sets of fingerprints, of which 13,872 were criminal and 9,388 noncriminal. There were 12 wanted persons identified.

Of 2,501 applicants for permits to carry concealed weapons, 168 were identified with criminal records through fingerprints. One unknown dead was identified by fingerprints.

Drivers ignore traffic controls

Last year in Detroit, more than 67,000 drivers and pedestrians were driving or walking "blind" in traffic - paying no attention to the traffic signals, stop signs or other traffic control devices, - and either caused or were involved in an accident, according to the Traffic Safety Assn. of Detroit.

"Traffic laws and traffic control devices are designed to help people move in traffic both safely and expeditiously," state Howard Cox, assistant managing director of the safety association, "and the enforcement of them is a strong educational means of seeking compliance."

"If people would remember," Cox adds, "that the enforcement connected with these devices is to keep other persons from hitting them as well as to restrict their actions, perhaps they would favor more and firmer enforcement."

"There may be those who feel they can violate signs and signals in perfect safety, because they know what they are doing," Cox continues, "but these same people don't credit that assumption to the other guy."

"Enforcement, to be effective, must be impartial. The officer is not concerned with the who or the why of the violation, he is only concerned with the fact of the violation."

Last year in Detroit: 89 persons were killed and 8,424 injured as the result of speed violations; 58 persons were killed and more than 15,000 injured because someone disregarded a stop sign or traffic signal; and, 52 pedestrians were killed while 1,208 got off with an injury for their violations. In all, 226 persons were killed and nearly 40,000 were injured in the more than 67,000 traffic accidents.

Determined students push college fine arts center

By CORINNE ABATT

LIVONIA — If Schoolcraft College ever gets a fine arts building, it will at least in part be due to the efforts of a group of students enrolled in fine arts.

A presentation establishing the need for such a center was prepared by Diane Detter and Kathy Hildebrandt and presented to the board of trustees last month by Heidi Cobb.

Richard Saunders, fine arts department head, said he will be going to Lansing this week to see Thomas McClung, state budget analyst, about the building.

Saunders said of the presentation to the board: "The board of trustees was surprised, but happily so, to find students making the presentation. The need has never been so forcefully demonstrated. They also presented a petition with 500 signatures."

Plans for the center which Saunders says would serve as a cultural center for the five supporting communities, were drawn up several years ago by an architectural firm with a cost estimate of $4 million. Saunders figures the building would cost another million today.

Saunders says the plans call for a complete center for the performing arts, multiple theaters, ample instructional areas for the teaching and practice of the fine arts, graphics, ceramics, painting, music and theater as well as staging facilities for major community events.

He uses the recent Maynard Ferguson concert as an example. The college sponsored it, but it was held in the Schmidt Auditorium at Clarenceville High.

"That auditorium seats a thousand people. Tickets were sold out. We'd like to have had those thousand people on campus to see our campus," Saunders said.

The supporting communities for the college are Livonia, Plymouth, Garden City, Clarenceville and Northville. Saunders says several of these are talking about constructing their own fine arts centers.

"One here could serve that whole area," he says explaining that it would be located on the north end of the campus with an entrance from Seven Mile as well as from the campus.

Saunders hopes in his meeting with Lansing officials that they will agree to reimburse the college for $15,000 spent on preliminary planning. With this, a full presentation could be prepared for the state.

After that one of two decisions could be made. The state could refuse any financial help at all, or it could agree to participate up to 50 per cent of the total cost. The college would then be responsible for securing the remainder, possibly through a bond issue.

The students, however, do not intend to stop after having made their plea to the board. They are writing their legislators who at the moment Saunders says, "are inclined to fund for vocational education rather than fine arts."

RICHARD SAUNDERS

Treats ahead for food fanciers

There's good food in your future if you're a real or would-be gourmet. at Schoolcraft College and Meadow Brook.

Tickets are already on sale for the spring wine and cheese festival at Schoolcraft College. It will be held on campus at the Waterman Center, Monday, May 6, 7-10 p.m. All proceeds from the $6 a person event will be used for educational purposes.

Those who procrastinate on ticket orders could be left outside the door.

Robert Breithaupt, college faculty member and director of the gourmet club sponsoring the event along with the Michigan Chefs de Cuisine Assn., says he is prepared to handle 1,000 guests. He says a similar festival on the east side, "was a tremendous success."

"It is not a dinner, people won't be sitting, they'll be walking around. We'll have at least 10 different wine tables manned by experts who will explain the wines and how to sample," the chef says.

There will be international wines from France, Germany and Italy as well as a good selection of American ones. Strolling minstrels will provide music to sip wine by.

The Schoolcraft College Gourmet Club has been in existence since 1968 and schedules about four international dinners a year to which the community is invited.

Breithaupt, a member of the other sponsoring organization, says the Michigan Chefs are a civic minded professional organization who recently accomplished one of their long term goals, national certification for executive chefs. Until that legislation, anyone with even limited experience could be hired and qualify as an executive chef.

Breithaupt says dress is optional for the May 6 festival. Tickets are available through Breithaupt's office at the college or checks made payable to the Michigan Chefs Assn. and mailed to Wine and Cheese Festival, Schoolcraft College, 18600 Haggerty Rd., Livonia, 48151.

If a Sunday drive isn't beyond your ken (or gas tank), Meadow Brook Hall of the Oakland University campus, Rochester, is offering a few food treats of its own.

Beginning this month, Sunday visitors to the Hall which is really a magnificent 100-room Tudor mansion, will be offered complete dinners, light lunches or coffee break fixings, from 1-4 p.m.

Shakespeare class going to England

The dream of studying Shakespeare in the setting of Stratford-upon-Avon in England will come true for students who enroll in Eastern Michigan University's course, "Shakespeare and the Shakespeare Country." It will run from April 22 to May 14.

Graduate and undergraduate students will study in a community which combines the Royal Shakespeare Theater, the library at the Shakespeare Center and the charm of an English market town.

Director of the program is Arthur J. Harris, associate professor of English at EMU. He holds both MA and PhD degrees from the University of Birmingham, England, in conjunction with the Shakespeare Institute.

Primarily a study of comedies and histories, the three-credit hour course will be altered to include a tragedy if one is in performance at the theater.

Lectures by Harris and staff members of the Shakespeare Institute, public lectures, recitals and performances at the Royal Shakespeare and such nearby theaters as the Birmingham Repertory, Coventry Playhouse and the Oxford Playhouse will be included.

Additional information may be obtained from Harris or the Division of Field Services, Eastern Michigan University, Ypsilanti, 48197.

EDITORIAL OPINION

Let's vote on replacing the camel

A camel, goes the old saying, is a horse designed by a committee. County government, in turn, is a camel.

Virtually every organization in American society has some kind of chief administrator — be it the president of the United States, the governor of the state, the college president, the city manager or mayor, the president of a company, the general manager of a plant, the business agent of a union... every one except the county.

If you take a look at the pictures of county buildings in any Michigan history book, you can tell why. Counties were tiny operations handling mainly legal functions — recording marriages and deaths, registering deeds, collecting and disbursing taxes, running courts and a jail.

Committees of the old-fashioned boards of supervisors could provide whatever leadership and budget supervision was needed. The committees were neither fish nor fowl, neither policy makers nor administrators. They didn't have to be.

CONSIDER, however, modern Wayne County government with its elaborate crime control programs, health and environmental programs, planning functions, medical examiners, hospital and general welfare programs. A camel type of government won't do.

That's why it was good to see County Board Chairman Robert FitzPatrick (D-Detroit) pushing for a ballot proposal to elect a county executive — a person who could run all the departments except the handful run by such elected officials as the clerk, prosecutor and sheriff.

FitzPatrick is pointing to PA 139 of 1973 which, if so happens, was chiefly sponsored by State Sen. Carl Pursell (R-Plymouth), himself a former county commissioner of merit.

The Pursell act allows (but doesn't require) the voters of a county to establish either (a) an appointive county manager or (b) an elected county executive, much like a mayor.

In terms of professional competence, the county manager seems to be preferable, especially when one considers the great length of our present ballot and the fact the true election would occur in the August Democratic primary. But Freudian psychology, too, must be considered, and Wayne County's majority Democrats are more comfortable with an elected father figure to pat them on their head and kick their rumps. So be it. We get an elected county executive or nothing, and we've had nothing for two centuries.

BUT IF WE ARE to get the kind of county administrator we need, the board of commissioners must act soon — by May 4, so the proposal can go on the Aug. 6 primary ballot.

Tim Richard writes

dence or powers of cities or townships, nor does it permit counties to increase taxes in any way."

At the Aug. 6 primary, voters would do two things: Decide whether they want a county executive; and, if so, nominate candidates in that partisan primary.

FitzPatrick points out, for the benefit of the right-wingers who fear every reform will infringe on their baronial estates, that the executive plan "does not infringe in any way upon the indepen-

And Pursell comments: "A single administrator with ultimate authority over county programs is the only truly efficient model to use... And I think this form offers the best chance for success in earning the respect of the people under the county's jurisdiction."

Pursell adds voters would "get a streamlined, reorganized county government. The current proliferation of boards, commissions and authorities would be limited and specified by law."

In other words, enough of these camels from committees. Let's see that county executive plan on the Aug. 6 ballot.

Stations ration gasoline for us

More and more talk is being generated these days about the need to start a gasoline rationing program. Seems like some of the eastern states are using a system of odd and even days for car owners to get needed supplies.

The theory is that cars with license plates ending in even numbers would drive up to service stations on even dates on the calendar and those with odd numbers on the odd days.

The system seems to be working with the possible exception that stations may run out of gasoline and those slated for service that day would be out of luck.

Then there is the situation in Washington where millions of dollars have been spent printing ration coupons which may or may not be used. It seems to depend on which senator or congressman has the attention of the news media on a particular day and what his thinking is on rationing. He gets a chance to sound off. Then comes another day and a legislator with a different view has his moment of glory.

Be that as it may, it appears the service station operators in the lower half of Michigan have taken the matter of rationing out of the hands of everyone by adopting a system of their own.

Perhaps it can't be called rationing in the strict interpretation of the word, but the fact remains stations have been closing in mid-morning after pumping an allotted number of gallons.

It seems the suppliers, especially those that own the stations, have told the operators they have so much gasoline to pump over a certain period of time and whether it is done in one day or over several days is entirely up to the station manager.

The results are the long lines one sees at service stations all through the area, from the northernmost area of the Observer & Eccentric circulation in Rochester to the southerly boundary in Westland, which form in the early morning hours and vanish shortly after 10 a.m.

We thought it rather strange there should be such a mad rush for a period of a few hours and then absolutely no cars at any of the pumps. At about that same moment we discovered our own tank was near empty and the pumps had been closed for the balance of the day.

Mind you, we traveled Telegraph Road from Maple to Joy Road recently and didn't see a single service station open. If a motorist ran out of gasoline, it appeared he would have to foot it the rest of the way. There wasn't a single sign designating this as an emergency station to take care of emergencies.

We suppose if such an emergency happened the State Police or local police officers would have had some means of getting a few gallons of gas for the marooned motorist.

Actually, what has been happening is that service stations are pumping from as early as 6 a.m. to 9 or 10 o'clock and then calling it quits for the day. All of which means this was their own way of rationing. Those that needed gasoline could either crawl out of the sack early in the morning or forget driving for another day.

Our experience was arising at the crack of dawn, hustling around long enough to drive to one of the nearby stations, getting whatever gasoline was available and then heading back home for an additional nap.

Just to add a bit more, the fact that one was up and around at 6 a.m. didn't necessarily mean one could get all the gasoline needed to fill the tank... perhaps the limit of the station was $3 or $5 and oftentimes only as few as five gallons.

So back to the hay for a few more winks and the knowledge that tomorrow would be another day and another early hop out of bed for another round of the service stations and perhaps enough gasoline to fill the tank this time.

Who needs rationing when the service stations already have a workable system. It's just a question of who wants to sleep in and who jumps out of bed early to get in line at the pumps. The old saying about the early bird getting the worm certainly works out in this case... 'tis the early bird who rides around with a full tank of the precious fuel.

Long lines feed themselves

You can tell the federal government has been involved in the fuel shortage problem. Things just seem to get more confusing every day.

Michigan was very fortunate because lines at gasoline stations didn't start to appear until the end of February. In other parts of the United States, the problem has existed since December.

Unfortunately, lines at gas stations feed on lines. If every time you pass a gas station you see a line, you start watching your gas gauge and have the tendency to go to a gas station more often, thereby creating longer lines.

THE ENERGY CZAR suggested that people limit themselves to 10 gallons every time they get gas.

Ten gallons, for most of our super bombs, is half a tank.

On the other side of the coin, the Automobile Club encourages us to drive on the top half of the tank to keep ourselves out of trouble.

Consequently, a motorist must stand in line

Eccentricities

by HENRY M. HOGAN, JR.

twice to get a full tank as long as stations limit purchases to 10 gallons or $5.

In addition, the panic from seeing lines at stations encourages people to top off their tanks even if they don't need gas. So, many people are buying less than $5 worth each time they go to a gas station, causing the lines to be longer.

It is human nature, I know. In the last two weeks, I have seen a gas station with a short line and have 3/4 of a tank of gas and have topped off my tank because I was planning to take a longer trip the next day and wanted to be prepared. But I just made the lines longer.

GAS STATIONS may enjoy prosperity from a $5 or 10 gallon limit because they have more customers visiting their stations to whom they can sell oil, batteries, tires and the like.

But if all people were allowed to fill up their tanks every time they go to a station, they would save a considerable amount of time by not having to wait in line twice, and they would cut the lines in half.

This certainly should be obvious to anyone who has thought about it, so does this mean that the people in Washington aren't thinking about it?

The oil embargo may be over, but we will have lines for another 60 days unless someone does something about it.

Observation Point

by PHILIP H. POWER

Property tax distorts our local decisions

Last Monday, by a margin of 96 votes out of a total of 14,326 ballots cast, electors in Livonia whacked $7.5 million out of next year's $40 million school district budget.

On April 2, voters in Southfield will decide the fate of a 3.5 mill proposal for police and fire protection. Although many groups of community leadership are pushing the millage, passage is not yet certain.

On April 9, voters in Rochester and Avon Township will choose whether or not to consolidate the two local government units. Although there is considerable logic in eliminating duplicated expenses, many voters in the area are worried about the effect consolidation might have on their property taxes.

EACH OF these examples shows just how silly, unfair and just plain wrong our present system of property taxation really is.

In Livonia's case, the school board hoped by coming up with 4.5 mills of renewal mixed with an additional three mills that passage of the total 7.5 mills would be assured.

Not only did they guess wrong, but the vote — as is usually the case with millage votes — came so late in the year that the school administration is now faced with a terrific problem of how to slash $7.5 million out of an already thin budget.

The defect of the property tax in this case is that because of the uncertainty of passage of millage, school officials cannot plan budgets and operations for the coming year.

SOUTHFIELD represents a different aspect of the problem with the property tax.

Of all cities in the United States with populations over 50,000, Southfield ranks second in median per family income. Bluntly, it is a very wealthy city.

But is the wealth of Southfield's residents most accurately measured by their property holdings? Of course not, as a short drive by any of the elaborate and expensive apartment and condominium complexes in the city will prove.

The property tax, reasoning from the 18th century, assumes that a person's property holdings are an accurate index of wealth. This is simply incorrect.

Income is a much better measure of wealth, and a tax on income is both fairer and more accurate than a tax on property.

IN ROCHESTER, fears of the effect of consolidation on tax millage threaten to distort what otherwise has been a reasonable community discussion of a highly emotional issue.

Certainly, one big question about any consolidation proposal is its effect on tax bills. But the actual taxes we pay reflect both the millage level and the assessment of our home. Assessment practices vary widely from community to community, and one hidden item on the Rochester consolidation agenda is its effect on assessment practices.

This points up another unfairness of the property tax. As long as a home can be assessed at $10,000 in one community and $20,000 in another, the basis of the tax system is arbitrary and therefore unfair.

Life will go on, with or without the property tax. But in Livonia there is uncertainty; in Southfield, future growth is at stake; and in Rochester, debate is distorted.

All because of the property tax. Let's get rid of it.

Sense And Nonsense

A police desk sergeant was startled at a recent telephone call he received while on duty.

A lady called saying, "Sergeant, I need help. I've done a terrible thing."

Thinking perhaps the woman had killed her husband, the sergeant asked what her problem was.

"Well, we got our 1974 license plate tab," she said. "Wanting to help my husband, I put the tab on the lower right hand corner of the front license plate. Oh, I should have read the directions."

"Later I did read them and learned the tab should have been placed on the rear plate."

"Sergeant, will I have to go out and buy new plates now?"

Not believing his ears, the sergeant asked the lady to repeat her story. When he realized she was serious, the sergeant offered this advice:

"Don't say anything to anyone, but when it gets dark, go outside, take off the front plate, put it on the back. Then put the rear plate on the front. I'm sure the police will never notice what you did."

Gleelessly, the woman thanked the "kind sergeant" and vowed she would never tell anyone about it.

The sergeant hung up the telephone, still shaking his head.

Student groups touring the Livonia Police Station are impressed when they learn that a part of the building is a bomb shelter with walls and ceilings in one section three feet thick.

They are equally impressed with the knowledge that part of the building is sitting on massive springs that will allow it to sink and then rise again in the event of a nuclear attack.

On a recent tour, an alert eighth grader noticed that doors were missing from the open hallway leading to the bomb shelter.

"Where are the doors?" he asked. "I don't know — and I don't think the City of Livonia knows either," was the answer he got from the police officer in charge of the tour.

Bottle ban called costly, wasteful

EDITOR:

If I were to say let's pass a Senate bill and allow only the Free Press to be printed because newspapers are a big form of litter, and the news in all these papers are pretty much the same so it's a big waste of natural energy, your reply would be it's unconstitutional, freedom of the press.

freedom of choice, yet one of your reporters wrote an article on Senate bill 946 and House bill 4926, the returnable bottle bill (Margaret Miller) with about that much research and fact in it for the public to read.

1. A returnable bottle has to be used over 11 times to pay the original cost of making it. That's using precious gas in transporting it at least 77 times a bottle.

2. The bills would have the taxpayer pay the stores' storage money. What a fine expense and room for a lot of funny business that would be.

3. The only roach I have seen in my whole life came out of a returnable case.

4. I have more newspapers and paper goods littering my neighborhood than bottles and cans.

5. How about being fair and making all cans and bottles returnable, not just beverages. Wouldn't the housewives like that!

6. These people have good ideas on paper. But as with our pollution free gas burning cars, there are flaws to the easy solutions. Like litter is a people problem made by and caused by people. We are forced to buy cars with pollution controls. If these bills pass we will be forced to buy only returnable bottles. What next will be forced to do without or buy in this democracy? I say freedom of choice is still best.

I think in my own opinion Margaret Miller's article should have been recycled and the waste of energy used by the press saved.

'Teen queen' contest 'sexist'

EDITOR:

I have just received a flier in my mailbox from the Castle Garden Civic Assn. announcing a contest to choose a "teen queen." This sexist ritual is to occur on March 29 at 7:30 p.m. at Randolph School.

Castle Garden's teen queen will be selected on the basis of "poise, personality and appearance." She will then compete with queens christened by civic associations throughout the city for the privilege of marching down Livonia streets in the Memorial Day parade, by virtue of these queenly traits, for the Livonia Federation of Civic Associations.

In order to enter these queen contests, one must become a member of a civic association. Reading of this causes me to wonder what sexual characteristics are required of male members in these civic associations. Is length of important? Or a full head of hair? Are they expected to doff their hats or bow before "ladies"? Do they wear armor or bare their chests to prove their worth to the organization?

Why should any young woman have to be subjected to judging "on poise, personality and appearance," then paraded through streets extolling such qualities? I find myself embarrassed to be living in a subdivision which promotes such a contest.

A dirge is in order for all of Livonia as its civic associations band together in this outdated sexist practice to encourage membership applications.

Loose hair danger in shop

EDITOR:

A few weeks ago, a picture was published in your newspaper showing a group of young girl students viewing a drill press at one of the schools' shop rooms. The hair of these students was long and hanging loosely below the shoulders.

Enclosed is a picture showing what happens when the magnetic field set up by revolving spindles and static electricity in the hair are introduced. Picture only shows a non-serious accident — a picture of a complete scalp is something else.

The teacher involved should not allow anyone near this type of machinery unless both proper hair and eye protection are worn. The photographer should know if you are going to take a picture, some authenticity has to be put into it. For his next assignment, he should assist the teacher in posting this on the bulletin board in the shop classroom.

Florida canal affects us

EDITOR:

I have written a letter to Congressman William D. Ford asking him to co-sponsor a bill introduced in Congress last year by Rep. L.A. Bafalis (R-Fla.) to de-authorize the Cross-Florida Barge Canal. You may wonder why I feel the canal is an important issue to people here in Michigan. I hope that some excerpts from my letter to Congressman Ford will explain my feelings:

"As a concerned person, I must care about the few areas of wilderness that are left for our children and grandchildren to enjoy." "We do care about how Congress feels in regard to pork-barrel projects that benefit a few and deprive many."

"We must protect our wilderness areas."

I would like to re-emphasize the fact that this is a pork-barrel type issue and that it is important to us all that our congressman understands that our interest is in our environment. We hope that all representatives of the people will have the courage to set a precedent and support this bill. I want my congressman to help save our wilderness areas.

In Westland voters care

EDITOR:

The facts were crystal clear to anyone who cared enough to find out that the Livonia School District desperately needed the passage of tax proposals A and B (March 11 ballot).

Too bad the people of the City of Livonia portion of the district did not see fit to support the 7.5 mills property tax. Apparently they are not as interested in quality education for their youngsters as we in the Westland portion are.

Irony — isn't it? — when the majority of homes in Livonia are bigger and the homeowners' salaries are larger, that they should be the ones to defeat the tax increase. I guess they are more concerned with materialism than with the education of their youth.

They passed proposal B for maintenance and repairs of school buildings. What good are well kept buildings without an adequate teaching staff and programs to go with them?

Livonia used to be No. 1. I was once proud to say my children attended Livonia schools although we lived in Westland. Today I am proud to live in Westland and wish my children attended the Wayne - Westland School District. Under the dynamic leadership of their new Supt. Tim Dyer, they are leaving Livonia behind in their dust.

Incidentally, I would urge the Li-

DAR honors contest winners

PLYMOUTH — Sherri Rorabacher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Rorabacher of 9606 Gold Arbor, won first place for fifth graders recently in the Daughters of the American Revolution "history month" essay contest.

"A Child of 1774" was the topic of the essay. Sherri is a student at Allen Elementary School.

The contest was sponsored in this area by the Sarah Ann Cochrane Chapter of the DAR, Northville, Plymouth, and Novi students in grades five, six, and seven submitted a total of 102 essays. Judges were Mrs. D.H. Baumhart, Mrs. Kenneth Hulsing, and Mrs. David Christensen.

The Sarah Ann Cochrane Chapter hosted a luncheon for the winners and their mothers March 18 in the activities room of the Plymouth Federal Credit Union. Mrs. Donald Hiller of Northville served as chairman.

The winning essays were read and each winner received a certificate of award and a $5 check for first place, $3 for second, or $2 for third place. A certificate of appreciation was given to other participants. First place essays were sent to Dearborn for the state competition.

Other area winners were fifth graders Eric Bock, second place, and Lauri Thomas, third place; sixth graders Kathy Schoder, first place, Susan Sager, second place, and Pat MacLaughlin, third place; and seventh grade first place winner Andrew MacLeod.

Sherri Rorabacher's first place fifth grade essay follows:

A CHILD OF 1774

It was the year 1774 in the town of Williamsburg. The Hamilton family of this well-known town was gathered around their fireplace, each one doing something that would help their family, as they did almost every night.

Mr. Hamilton, the father, was making bullets so that they would have a good supply of ammunition in case the revolution spread to Williamsburg. Mrs. Hamilton, the mother, was mending the old socks and making new ones. Joseph, their son, who was the oldest at 14, was in the corner weaving shoestrings. Melissa and Laura, their twin daughters, were 10. They always worked together at night. They enjoyed combing and spinning the wool for their mother.

As each one finished they quietly got up and went to bed to prepare for another day of life in a very common household.

Melissa and Laura woke up first to build the kitchen fire for breakfast. Then they went outside to chop more wood for the next their chores was to get water from the well. While they were doing this their brother was helping his father with the garden and pasture chores. Soon their mother called them for breakfast. They had eggs and bacon, hot rolls and coffee. Then the children got their books for school and began their mile and a half walk to school. When they arrived at school it was already time to go in. Melissa and Laura went to one side of the room while Joseph went to the other side. Joseph was in a higher grade so he sat on the opposite side.

Everyone was very self-controlled in school because of how strict it was. No talking was permitted whatsoever. If a kid was found talking he was placed in front of the room and embarrassed. The teacher worked with different. In mid-afternoon the school was dismissed and the children wasted no time getting out of the building. They loafed on the way home because they knew that more chores were waiting for them at home.

When the children arrived home their parents had lots for them to do, as usual. The girls were told to churn butter until dinner, with the hope that there would be butter for dinner. Their brother was to help Mr. Hamilton build the new shack. Soon their mother called them for dinner. They were sure glad, for they had been working for about two hours. They ate their dinner heartily.

Then they went to their fireplace once more to do their everyday things once more.

To sit there and just enjoy the serenity of the evening and the fire was a great pleasure that wasn't enjoyed very often in the day. A child of 1774 did not have much time for fun and games like we do. They all had to work as a family to survive.

High school counselors celebrate week

PLYMOUTH — Parents of students at Plymouth Centennial Educational Park are invited to have a chat with counselors during a special Plymouth Counselor Week beginning Monday.

The counselors, it is felt, will have the answers to many questions puzzling or troubling the parents — even why parents and their young often disagree.

Other questions which can be answered are test results and purpose and use of testing information. Counselors also can interpret the information for the parents.

If a counselor can't himself handle a student's problems, he often can provide information about counseling services in the community which are available.

They can help both parents and students examine potentials and help make career choices. And they can help in selecting the right college.

The counselor has access thousands of relevant facts and figures about almost every college in America.

Parents are invited to either call or visit.

Poison Center can help--but it's better to prevent

By SHERRY KAHAN

"As long as we can save one life it is worth it," said Mrs. Alfred Allen, Livonia, of her volunteer work for the Poison Control Center at Children's Hospital, Detroit.

"The best way for parents to observe Poison Prevention Week is to start today finding methods to keep children from finding poisons in their home," added Mrs. William McGaughy of Livonia, another volunteer at the hospital.

Potential death lurks in the most harmless-looking places, Mrs. Allen explained. The four greatest danger points around the home are under the sink, in the medicine cabinet, mom's purse, or the garage.

Even the leaves of certain house plants can be toxic if eaten. Plants such as caladium, dumbcane, elephant's ear and some philodendron are in this category. The bulbs of the hyacinth, narcissus, and daffodil, and autumn crocus can cause nausea, vomiting, and diarrhea when ingested.

Mrs. McGaughy has worked as a volunteer in the recovery room at Children's Hospital, and knows from personal experience what happens to children who have caustic poisoning from such products as ammonia, bleach, lye or oven cleaner.

"It can lead to horrendously painful surgery which may last for months," she said. "Surgery has to be done every two or three weeks in order to stretch the esophagus tube which leads to the stomach."

She added, "While this dilation is done the child has to stay several months in the hospital to receive special feeding and attention."

To warn people of the lethal qualities of various objects and products, Mrs. Allen offers a slide presentation to scout, religious and civic groups of the area.

It displays a garage laden with gasoline, kerosene, and weed and bug killers. A mother's or grandmother's purse lies open. Aspirin, birth control or heart pills that had been inside are spread out on the floor. Any one of these substances have been known to be fatal to children when taken in substantial amounts.

Mrs. Allen asks her listeners to look up all medicines and keep pills in child-proof containers.

Don't take medicine in front of children and never call medicine candy. Clean out old medicines regularly and flush them down the drain. Rinse out containers thoroughly before disposing of them.

She urges parents to use pots and pans or canned foods to fill that crucial area beneath the sink. "Then the worst that can happen is that you may have to eat several cans of the same kind of soup which your child has opened," she said.

Northwest YW spring classes set

To shake the gloomy winter doldrums, over 57 different subjects will be offered in the expanded spring program at Northwest Branch YWCA, 25940 Grand River.

To begin April 8, the program is designed for men, women, and youth. There is a nominal fee for enrollment, and registration opens March 25.

For those interested in art and creative expression, the following subjects may be appealing: Ceramics, crafts, decorating, sketching, flower arranging, and oil painting.

Those interested in handicrafts and do-it-yourself projects will find cake decorating, chair caning, cooking, crocheting, jewelry making, knitting, macrame, men's wear sewing, needlepoint, powderpuff mechanics, sewing, and weaving.

The YWCA is also offering such subjects as antiques, aircraft ground school, driver's training, guitar, human potential, investments, conversational Chinese, English for the foreign born, photographer, piano, transactional analysis, ballroom dancing, beauty seminar, bridge, and Gadabouts (trips by chartered bus to events around the city.)

YWCA membership is $7.50 per year for adults and $3 for those under 17.

m.m.memos

My telephone call to the young lady I wanted to hire for photographic help landed me with an answering service.

I tried to leave my message, but it was complicated, and as usual a couple of "real" telephone calls were needed to straighten things out.

I just don't function very well for the electronic devices of answering services.

I freeze when I hear that recorded message, and when I hear the tone and I'm supposed to start talking invariably I turn tongue-tied.

Our furnace repairman must have understood people like me when he introduced the device to his customers several years ago. At that time his message began "Don't be alarmed." Then it went on with the advice to speak slowly and distinctly and leave one's name, number and problem.

His message isn't that soothing any more, and the last time I called for service the time ran out before I could explain where I would be at what time. I had to call back to finish.

But I've never had the real trouble encountered by a friend not so long ago.

Because she is involved in a community service project of large magnitude, she and her husband decided to install an answering device to use at mealtime and late at night.

It was quite helpful in consolidating calls, she reports. But one night it backfired.

She had driven to a nearby town to give a speech and her husband, after the late news, turned on the answering service and went to bed.

His wife finished her speech and then, starting for home, couldn't start her car.

She telephoned to ask him to come and pick her up, and was told to speak clearly and distinctly, leaving her name and number, and her call would be returned in the morning.

"I finally called our next-door neighbor," she reports, "and he went over and rang the doorbell."

-Margaret Miller

BECAUSE THIS is Poison Prevention Week, Mrs. William McGaughy (left) and Mrs. Alfred Allen, both of Livonia, make note of the lifesaving telephone number of the Poison Control Center at Children's Hospital in Detroit. More than 20,000 calls from the metropolitan area were made last year to the center to get help for children who had swallowed poisonous substances. (Staff photo by Bob Woodring)

The Observer & Eccentric PEOPLE

Thursday, March 21, 1974

* 1B

Mrs. Allen has been a volunteer at Children's Hospital for 14 years. She also is a member of the women's auxiliary, which finances the Poison Control Center as its service project.

A list of hundreds of drugs, products, plants etc., together with their chemical properties is within quick reach of those answering the phones at the center. A antidote is quickly suggested. In its literature the center also suggests that parents obtain one ounce of syrup of ipecac from a pharmacist to keep in their home in case its use is advised.

The center logged 20,000 calls this past year. It reported that incidents of lye poisoning are increasing in Detroit, up one third over last year.

This may be because people are buying lye crystals to use as a drain cleaner. But when these crystals are found lying in a box they look appetizing to youngsters. Lye takes approximately nine seconds to burn a child's throat severely enough to require major surgery.

Prevention is a better way.

Elected by brothers

Nancy heads her fraternity

BY MARGARET MILLER

Nancy Vandersloot of Livonia is the new top "man" in her fraternity.

No, the organization is not a woman's group officially labeled fraternity instead of sorority.

It's the Detroit College of Law chapter of Sigma Nu Phi, and Mrs. Vandersloot is the only woman active as well as the leader.

She says she figures she was elected chancellor by her 40 fraternity brothers "because they thought I could do the best job."

Willing to give it a try, this second-year law student will have help close at hand. Her husband, Donald, a Livonia policeman as well as a second-year student at Detroit College of Law, is vice-chancellor.

With most of its members working as well as carrying full class schedules, Sigma Nu Phi plays a supportive more than social role in their lives.

"We have a store front meeting place near the school, located on East Elizabeth in downtown Detroit," Nancy said.

"We try mainly to help each other, studying together and getting copies of course material and study aids. One thing we can do is get materials from the library and have them available in our headquarters."

"When time is so precious, we try to save a lot of trips to the library."

It is that sort of help, she said, that has increased the fraternity membership rolls in recent years.

"Students have so many obligations that a lot hesitate to join until they realize it's a help more than an obligation," she said.

The fraternity has, however, been the basis for many good friendships, and there are social occasions too. A recent one was a Founder's Day dinner and there will be a spring party for the members and their wives.

"I don't say husbands too because the only husband also is a member," Nancy said.

The new chancellor isn't the first feminine member of Sigma Nu Phi.

There was a woman who graduated last semester," Mrs. Vandersloot said. "But she never showed up for meetings."

Nancy did — and was right there with the actives when alumni came back for the Founders Day dinner.

"I think some of the alumni were not too pleased to see me there," she conceded.

Like many fellow-students, Nancy Vandersloot is studying law after earning a degree in another field, and she's going to school in addition to working. She is an account underwriter at All State Insurance.

A 1967 graduate of Eastern Michigan University, she taught school for three years in the Cherry Hill district in Dearborn before she and her husband moved to Lakewood, Colo.

"He went to participate in an experimental police program, in which the officers did not wear uniforms and conducted their work in different ways from those in most police departments," she said.

"He wasn't entirely pleased with the program, and we came back here after 18 months. We've been in Livonia for two years." When Don decided on law school, his wife went along.

"We had made up our minds not to have children, so I decided I'd rather study with him than sit home waiting for him to finish his homework."

Don had in a semester of law school when Nancy applied for Detroit College of Law and was accepted.

"I didn't realize until later how hard it is to get in," she said.

Being a law student has opened all sorts of new vistas.

"I really love the study," Nancy said. "With everything new that I learn I wonder how I survived without being aware of it. It's wonderful to see all the different sides of a question and the logic on all of them."

Next year she hopes to be in several classes with her husband, which should simplify time schedules.

And beyond that, she isn't sure of the kind of work she'll do.

"When I started, I thought it might be very difficult for a woman to break into law practice," Nancy said. "But already I've had several offers to join law firms, and I'm sure they don't represent tokenism."

Nancy finds a bit of joking chauvinism among her fraternity brothers and it doesn't bother her a bit.

"I'm top man in my class, and they tell me I'll be that as long as I behave myself," she said. "If I don't, it's top woman."

"I don't mind. I'm a liber, but the kind that figures the important thing is to go ahead and do a good job."

That's what this chancellor intends to do.

A dark, high-contrast black and white photograph. The scene is very dimly lit, with most of the frame in deep shadow. On the right side, a person's face and upper body are partially visible, illuminated by a light source. The person appears to be looking down or towards the left. The background and foreground are filled with dark, textured shapes that could be rocks, cave walls, or dense foliage. In the lower right corner, there is a bright, out-of-focus light source, possibly a flashlight or a fire, creating a strong contrast with the surrounding darkness. The overall mood is mysterious and somber.

Cooking contest for working women

Working women of southeastern Michigan would be well advised to drop everything this minute and copy down a favorite recipe to submit to the Queen of the Kitchen contest before midnight, March 31.

The first prize will be a deluxe range while the second place winner will receive an electric kitchen center, which is a combination mixer, blender and grinder. Third prize will be a super pot, an eight-quart thermostatically controlled pot used for everything from roasts to stews to canning.

The contest, sponsored by Detroit Edison, is open to women employed outside their homes and who live within the company's southeastern Michigan service area. They are invited to submit a recipe for a main dish which can be cooked in one hour or less.

From written entries received, 10 women will be chosen to take part in a cook-off on April 24. Names of finalists will be announced April 11.

Entries must include name, address, place of employment and telephone number, and should be sent to Queen of the Kitchen contest, 2000 Second Ave., Detroit.

Judges will be food writer Kay Savage; Cyrilla Riley, household editor of the Detroit News; radio personality Lee Murray and Jeremiah O'Connor, president of the Fogcutter restaurant in Port Huron.

"The one-dish meals on which these contests have been based are nutritionally sound, lend themselves to easy preparation and cleanup and, best of all, don't waste electricity," pointed out Kathryn D. Riney, head of the company's residential consumer services.

Crisis hits volunteers

"The energy shortage could raise havoc with our volunteer program," Louis J. Schult, director of community relations at Northville State Hospital, worried recently.

Those who help in the hospital on a volunteer basis already are giving of their time and energy, he said.

"Many of those in the volunteer program," he added, "are paying increased costs of gasoline and most of us here hope that should rationing occur they will get their share."

Mrs. Jean Bachelder of Plymouth, volunteer services coordinator, directs the work of more than 35 individual volunteers and 21 church groups.

Some of these, she reported, come to the hospital from as far away as Mt. Clemens and Walled Lake, making lack of gasoline a problem for them.

Others come to the hospital from Northville, Plymouth, Livonia, Dearborn Heights, Garden City, Southfield and Detroit.

Livonia church has Chinese services

By SHERRY KAHAN

The church is in Livonia. The book is the Bible. The hymns are the familiar ones. But the words are Chinese.

For the past three years in Livonia a group of Chinese have been holding a Bible study program twice a month in one of the assembly rooms of the Church of the Savior, Reformed Church of America at 38100 Five Mile.

It is an informal service. Small children are held on their parents laps, wander off and then return to be scooped up and held again. Meanwhile the Reverend B. W. Yap, who first became acquainted with Christianity as a youth in Amoy, China, conducts the service entirely in mandarin, one of the chief dialects of China.

In his hands and in the hands of the 30 or so Chinese sitting with him in a circle are familiar-looking black-bound Bibles. But inside the letters are vertical instead of horizontal.

Occasionally, as Rev. Yap reads the lesson, he stops and the passage is then continued, one by one, by each person sitting in the circle. Presently the wife of the pastor goes to the piano and the congregation bursts forth in Chinese with "I'd Rather Have Jesus" followed by "God Hath Not Promised" and "Leaning on the Everlasting Arms." The singing is done with spirit.

Trained in the church in China Rev. Yap served both in that country as well as in the Philippines before coming to the U.S. to attend the seminary of the Reformed Church of America in Holland, Mich.

"There is a great deal of ecumenical spirit in missionary work abroad," said Rev. Yap. "Missionaries see the need for reaching out with a message of reconciliation for all people."

He then quoted the Bible, "My house shall be called the house of prayer for all peoples."

Attending the seminary with Rev. Yap was a young man named Ron VanDer Werf, who was later to become minister of the Church of the Savior in Livonia. By the time that took place Rev. Yap was minister of evangelism for the Reformed Church in the Detroit area and dividing his Sunday sermons between Westland, Livonia, Warren and Royal Oak.

Aware that there were a number of Chinese in this area he arranged a meeting place for them at the church on Five Mile.

Mrs. Marie Ting of Livonia is one of those who is glad he did. She likes the pastor's words and finds it a friendly church. Her husband Larry Ting, an engineer for the Ford Motor Co. seconds her opinion.

Their friend, Mrs. Amy Lin of Farmington, was brought up on the island of Taiwan and appreciates the opportunity to speak Chinese once more at these gatherings. She came to this country to further her education, earning a masters degree at North Dakota State University. Today she is employed at Sinai Hospital.

Her husband Dr. Chris Lin, also born in China, received a doctorate from the University of Michigan in engineering and is employed by an engineering firm.

From Kiangsi Province to the Burroughs Corp. in Plymouth has come James Liao with an engineering degree from the University of Minnesota in between. He is another frequent participant in the Friday night Bible program.

Another member of the group is Mrs. Lily Liu, who was brought up as a Christian in her home in the Philippines.

Like many of the others she came to this country for higher education. Having trained as a medical technologist in Detroit Memorial Hospital, she now works at St. Mary Hospital. Mrs. Liu enjoys the Bible study as well as the family gathering later on which is carried on in Chinese over refreshments.

The contact between these Chinese and the Livonian church is deeper than two meetings a month. The Church of the Savior also lends them its facilities for a cultural school on Saturdays. Here their children - divided into two classes - learn about Chinese history and culture and study the Chinese language.

The church has also been the focal point for a colorful rehearsal series of Chinese dances which the group later presented both at the Livonia Mall and the Chinese ethnic festival in Detroit. The elaborate costumes were home-made.

As a result of the frequent interaction of the two groups, two Chinese-Americans are now on the board or consistory of the church. Dr. Lin is one and George Wong of Livonia is the other. Dr. Lin is also co-leader of the recently formed Outreach committee.

One of the highpoints of the year as far as Rev. VanDer Werf is concerned is the Chinese dinner the group has each year.

and Mrs. James Liao and their son, Elijah; Dr. Chris Lin and his son, Bruce, and Rev. Yap. Mrs. Yap is at the piano. (Evert photo)

Speaking of you

Wife opposes no-fault divorce

Dear Dr. Friedman,

I know that a lot of people are delighted with the fact that many states are heading toward no-fault divorce. That is, that you don't need grounds in order to ask to have the marriage legally set aside. It seems to me that as we do everything else in society, we go from one extreme to the other.

As a woman who has just been thrown aside after 20 years of marriage with three young children and no job skills, I am totally against divorce on demand. Let me tell you what a horrible shock it is to have a man walk out and leave you financially and emotionally deprived.

Dear Reader:

I am personally very bothered by the fact that we even use a term like "no fault" in the area of divorce. I feel this is a total misnomer and actually the no-grounds approach to divorce should have as its title "shared responsibility" rather than "no fault".

I only indicate this since I feel that we are tending in this society to put the responsibility for most of our life conditions outside of ourselves. When there is a divorce, while it is possible that one individual is the victim and another the persecutor, usually we both share the responsibility of creating the marital discomfort.

By

There is no question that the single biggest problem becomes the fact that a woman such as yourself is qualified only as a domestic servant and the lack of job skills puts her in a devastating situation as far as supporting herself and her children are concerned.

FURTHER, SINCE there is a tendency away from alimony in "no-fault" states, she does indeed find herself in an extremely dependent situation. Both our expectations for marriage and the conditions under which marriage exists must change.

The immediate needs as I see them include (1) divorce insurance which would be required at the time that people take out a license for marriage. This insurance would provide enough money for a woman to develop her skills to put her in a marketable position should a divorce occur.

(2) Additionally, I feel that divorce counseling should be offered by agencies or private practitioners to help individuals get through the harrowing emotional experience that the transition from the marriage to a divorced state produces.

(3) Further, I feel that the courts should appoint a child ombudsman. This would be an individual who hopefully would be a stable influence upon the children of divorce by giving them a warm and interested adult with whom they can relate over time and who would lessen the impact of the power play that often enters the life of these youngsters.

THERE IS no question that as long as divorce remains an adversary procedure, destructiveness instead of dignity will be the predicted end result. Therefore, the inception of a family court system is greatly needed.

Where you are directly concerned, a possibility of counseling appears indicated. Your bitterness, while understandable, will not permit you to make a healthy life for yourself. Each of us must be prepared to be self-sufficient, for the possibility of death, divorce, or desertion of a mate looms over all of our heads.

For the woman of today, her marriage and her children can only be part of her life unless she is willing to put herself in a high risk position emotionally and financially.

Moral perspectives

Kung Fu violence really aids peace

Kung Fu is unusually popular in movies, bookstores and on television. Some reject it because of violence but a case can be made that it contributes to peace.

Wanted posters all over the West of the 1860s warned that the hero's hands and feet were dangerous weapons. Yet, beneath the surface there is a strong message of nonviolence.

Many scenes contain symbolic actions. The hero, Caine, was exiled from China because he killed the emperor's nephew. Symbolically, Caine broke the spear before using it to kill in self defense.

VIOLENCE IS clearly the last resort after other efforts have been tried and failed. Violence is never praised or recommended.

Violence is pictured in slow motion to accentuate agony. The sounds, particularly voices, are distorted to emphasize that violence is inhuman.

Caine is always in control of himself when using his strength.

By
REV. CHARLES ERICKSON
Congregational Church of Birmingham

He displays no mindless, impassioned rage.

HE REFUSES guns when offered to him. He proves his skill to break free and then submits to torture rather than contribute to the suffering of an innocent victim.

The training of the hero as a Shaolin monk portrays universal truths about peace. Harmony is sought in a whole life based on being one with self, with nature, with others and with solid truths of love and justice.

Participants reflect on the meaning of an event and one said, "May his death wake the dove in us, the lamb in others, and not violence in any."

THE SOURCE of life in the Kung Fu style is "Chi" which the western world calls spirit. It is a guiding, motivating, energy center of each person. This inner strength possessed by everyone is found when pursuing skill by searching inward. The ancients teach that "it lasts through age and beyond."

Power for peace is in us and flows in relationships. Kung Fu portrayal of violence invites us to be strong enough to risk seeking the great joy of harmony and thus build peace. When we are strong enough to risk a non-violent life style we will stop thinking peace can be created by violence.

Editor visits adult class

Joe Stroud, editor of the Detroit Free Press, will be guest speaker for the adult studies class of St. Paul Presbyterian Church Sunday, March 24, at 11 a.m.

His talk will be part of the class's series of discussions on "Where are we going?" The church is located on Five Mile west of Inkster.

Stroud, a native of Arkansas, was editor of the Winston-Salem Journal and Sentinel before joining the Free Press in 1968. He has won the William Allen White award and a Michigan School Bell award.

CONCERTMASTER Mischa Mischakoff will head the string section of the Scandinavian Symphony Orchestra, along with his wife, Hortense, also a violinist.

Mischakoffs join local symphony

Concertmaster Mischa Mischakoff and his wife Hortense, will head the string section of the Scandinavian Symphony Orchestra in its new Southfield home.

Music director William Savola noted that this orchestra is Michigan's only musical group with a record of 44 consecutive seasons, and will begin its 45th anniversary year this fall.

Mischakoff, one of the world's most famous concertmasters, has served the Chicago Symphony under Frederick Stock and the Philadelphia Orchestra under Leopold Stokowski. He was concertmaster of the NBC Symphony for 15 years under Arturo Toscanini and more recently with the Detroit Symphony under Paul Paray and Sixten Ehrling.

Hortense Mischakoff, an accomplished violinist and teacher, will join her husband as principal second violin. This will be the first time that both will appear as principal players in the same orchestra.

Savola, the orchestra's conductor for the last five years, feels "the romantic appeal of this popular couple will be a delight to audiences."

The Mischakoffs will make their debut Sunday, April 14, with the Scandinavian Symphony in a half-hour television special performance on Channel 56. The orchestra, normally at full complement of 78, will be expanded for this special event.

Experienced musicians are encouraged to write the personnel manager, Scandinavian Symphony Orchestra, 1811 Stanford, Berkley, 48072, if they desire to join the orchestra.

Offering the film at 7 p.m. will be Ward United Presbyterian Church.

Farmington Road and Six Mile, Livonia, Calvary Missionary Church, 29650 Six Mile, Livonia, and Livonia Wesleyan Church, 14590 Merriman, Livonia.

Showings at 7:30 p.m. are scheduled in St. Paul Lutheran Church, Eight Mile and Middle Belt, Farmington, and Main Street Baptist, 9451 South Main, Plymouth.

Evangelical Covenant Church, Eight Mile and Telegraph, plans to show the picture Sunday, March 31, at 6 p.m.

The picture, directed by J. Michael Hooser, is described as one that "abandons traditional story lines to involve the viewer in the life experiences of real people."

It uses the technique of bringing together stories about people, appearances by Evangelist Graham, and video - vignettes coupled with original new songs.

Songs introduced in the film include a title song and "Gone Away," by Tedd Smith, and "The Soap - Box Song" by Judy McKenzie.

"Isn't It Good To Know" will be shown, free of charge in all five churches. Free will offerings will be collected.

ALBERT B. CRICHLLOW

JESSICA PICKETT

2 lecturers come to CS churches

Two Christian Scientist lecturers, Albert B. Crichlow of Trinidad and Jessica Pickett of Chicago, will speak in area churches during the coming week.

Miss Pickett will discuss a "yardstick which Christ gave for right decisions" when she gives her talk Sunday, March 24, at 3 p.m. in the Fourth Church of Christ, Scientist, 24400 W. Seven Mile, Detroit.

Mr. Crichlow's talk is scheduled in the Eighth Church of Christ, Scientist, Grand River and Evergreen, on Thursday, March 28, at 8 p.m.

It will concern the power of prayer as a way out of "depressing attitudes, defeating habits and ill health."

Crichlow is the first black to become a Christian Scientist lecturer. He served as a flying officer with the Royal Air Force and later as an architectural design engineer and building contractor in Trinidad before joining the board. His lectures deal with healings of racial prejudice as well as physical ills.

Miss Pickett, who will be introduced by Mrs. Chlomara D. Austin, second reader, is a native of Atlanta, Ga., and a graduate of the University of Chicago.

She was in advertising, public relations and interior decorating before joining the Christian Science ministry. Both lectures are free and open to the public.

How about this follow-up for 'Exorcist'?

By LESTER KINSOLVING

There is happy news for the nation's masochists, voyeurs and sadists — particularly the weird ones who get their jollies from watching the torture of children.

That box office smash, "The Exorcist" (2-million first week), is to have a sequel. Next month, Hollywood's Capital Productions plans to release "The Exorcist."

"Variety," which headlined this thrilling news, did not mention any details of "The Exorcist's" content—the very thought of which boggles the mind. "The Exorcist" appears to be the picture with everything — including official Catholic approval.

The Division of Film and Broadcasting of the U.S. Catholic Conference has rated "The Exorcist" "A III" — "Morally unobjectionable for adults, with reservations."

In fact, says this organization, which is the successor to the famed Legion of Decency, this film's "special effects, make up, camera work, editing and lighting" constitute "a unique example of film making."

Among special effects noted by the movie critic for "Newsweek" magazine (which is hardly regarded as a conservative periodical):

1. — The film's 12 year - old devil - possessed girl "masturbates with a crucifix."

2. — "She screams the most obscene language ever heard on the screen."

3. — "Her face and body a ghastly wreck of blood, pus and welts, she kicks a doctor in the groin and makes lewd overtures to her mother."

Georgetown University, a Jesuit - owned institution which allowed this sado - masochistic spook story to be filmed on its campus, did draw the line at permitting one of its altars to be desecrated. And since such devilish desecrations are allegedly fecal, this deprived Hollywood of what would have been a special effect indeed.

Even without such crossing of a new frontier of taste, the faintings, retchings, screamings and nightmares occasioned by this film have been keeping the wire services busy throughout the nation.

The film's producer has announced several believe - it - or - not coincidences which allegedly took place during the filming, and which surely suggest that Old Nick himself was ominously on location.

Even the communications officer for so sophisticated an archdiocesan permission had been given for a priest to drive a number of demons from one of the city's suburbs.

It is unfortunate that there are apparently no such priestly teams available to hold special services for the considerable number of psychotics who are convinced that rather than being possessed by Satan, they are either God or Napoleon Bonaparte.

But those under such divine or Napoleonic delusions should soon be outnumbered by those who, through the suggestions of priests and producers, become convinced that they have been occupied by Satan himself.

Fortunately there are some Catholic priests who have denounced this sick horror story by Georgetown graduate William Peter Blatty.

There is Fordham University's Father Raymond Schroth, who describes the book as a "commercial gimmick - shocker . . . a piece of Catholic nostalgia of more service to the cause of superstition than to true religion."

Religion Update

One good effect may emerge from "The Exorcist," however: It may well be the last time any thinking person ever takes official Catholic censorship seriously.

The very same film and broadcasting division which approves the public filming of a little girl masturbating with a crucifix has given a C rating ("condemned") to the films "Magnum Force" and "Class of '44." A decade ago a condemned rating was given to "The Pawnbroker," while "The Carpetbaggers" was approved.

Understandably. Neither of these two films had Catholic priests as heroes, nor were they photographed on a Catholic campus, nor did they reinforce Pope Paul's June 1972 announcement that Satan really exists.

Computer now checks on dads who don't pay

Wayne County fathers who skip support payments while their families are on welfare now have a computer on their trail.

The result is saving taxpayers more than four dollars for every dollar invested. Presiding Judge Joseph A. Sullivan of Wayne County Circuit Court reports.

Judge Sullivan recently announced the first results of the court's new child support cooperative reimbursement program, designed to assure that dads, and a few moms, live up to the court orders to pay their share in supporting families who are dependent upon public support because they have left.

The program has resulted in doubling reimbursements to a total of $11½ million in its first 18 months of operation, $8 million of it in 1973 alone, Judge Sullivan said. In contrast, the total of such payments in 1971, prior to the program, was $4 million.

Total cost of the program for the 18 months, including startup expenses, was $200,000, shared equally by the state and federal governments. The program is supervised by Alfred B. Thomas under the direction of Frederick C. Hailer, friend of the court.

The reimbursement program, was begun in June, 1972, under new legislation aimed at making it tougher for fathers to avoid family support where welfare payments are involved.

Typically, the families are receiving Aid to Dependent Children (ADC) support from the state department of social services, while the father, by court order, is supposed to be reimbursing the state through the friend of the court for all or part of the welfare amount.

"Until this new program came along we simply couldn't keep track of all the cases," said L.M. (Pat) Jacobs, Circuit Court administrator. "We usually had to wait for a complaint from the wife or ex-wife, then find the man and charge him with a crime of non-support."

By the time all this was done, Jacobs said, the accumulated nonsupport might total thousands of dollars, with the father realistically unable to catch up.

Now the friend of the court can proceed with a civil lawsuit against the delinquent father - not wait for the mother to file a complaint.

"This also has cut down sharply on the possibilities of collusion, where the State pays the welfare bill and the separation is a sham, Judge Sullivan said. "Since it is known that we can proceed without a formal complaint from the mother, there have been a rash of instant reconciliations," meaning in many of the cases that the family has gone off welfare - or at least the father is now paying his share of the support.

The computer operation has been a key to the reimbursement program's success, Judge Sullivan and administrator Jacobs agree.

With some 77,000 Wayne County families receiving ADC, keeping check on support payments has been almost impossible through manual record-keeping. This past year alone there were 4,300 new cases under the family support division.

In addition, the new program in the last year has catalogued 15,000 divorce cases where welfare funds are involved and is steadily adding to its lists.

"Now we will be able to continually cross-check these cases by computer and keep on top of them," Jacobs said.

Before the end of 1974, Judge Sullivan expects the new program will be ready to send out computerized letters to fathers who have fallen behind in their payments. If that letter is ignored, a computer-activated order for a court appearance will follow.

Although designed for the welfare reimbursement program, the computerized operation also will be capable of pursuing other dads who fail to make support payments, such as in divorce or paternity cases which do not involve taxpayers' money.

"Besides helping these families get their lawful support, it should also help keep them from becoming welfare cases," the Judge said.

"The system is working well, and we think it will get even better," Jacobs said. "Of course we still have the one problem we've always had - 'find the man.' But even that is easier with the computer and the early start in looking for him."

A FOXY SOLUTION TO THE GAS PROBLEM.

The Fox by Audi gets about 25 miles to the gallon. Which is about average for an economy car. The thing is, the Fox isn't an economy car. It's a sports sedan. It does 0 to 50 in 8.4 seconds. It has sports car steering and suspension. As well as front-wheel drive. And the fact that you can buy a car that has all this (and more) for a reasonable price provides a Fox solution to another problem as well.

FROM HUMBLE BEGINNINGS of a store-bought cake emerges the elegant Ambrosia angel food. Secret is in the luscious fruit and creamy fillings.

Glamor dessert from angel cake

By ELLY

Oh the joys of a store bought angel food cake. Time was when the ability of a cook was measured by the height and texture of her angel food cake.

The high price of eggs is a deterrent to even the purists these days. With a little ingenuity the 59-cent special at the super market, enthroned on grandmother's footed cake plate, achieves an elegance of stature.

A favorite, that seems to go with springtime and daffodils, is the pineapple pouffe.

Empty a large can of crushed pineapple, juice and all into a sauce pan. Stir in a package of vanilla pudding mix, the kind that requires cooking.

Cook these two together, stirring all the while, until thick. Cool. Cut an angel food cake into three layers, using a serrated bread knife.

Whip up a package of dessert topping and fold into the chilled pineapple mixture. Frost between, around and over the three layers. A lighted yellow candle or a small nosegay in the center lends an added festive air to the light dessert.

Mrs. James Landis of Christian Hills uses the same idea with a different twist for large parties. The Plymouth Symphony League has used the recipe at its annual spring luncheon.

PINEAPPLE DESSERT

1 angel food cake
1 can prepared vanilla pudding
1 can crushed pineapple, drained
2 pkg. dessert topping

Break the cake into bit-sized pieces and mix with the crushed pineapple and the pudding. Spread in a 10 by 18-inch pan. Top with beaten topping. Refrigerate overnight. One pan serves 12.

CHOCOLATE DESSERT

1 angel food cake
1 can prepared chocolate pudding

1 small pkg. chocolate chips
2 pkg. dessert topping

Break cake into small pieces, combine chocolate chips and pudding and proceed as with pineapple dessert.

AMBROSIA ANGEL FOOD

CREAMY FILLING

3 T. sugar
4½ t. cornstarch
1 c. milk
1 t. vanilla

¼ c. heavy cream, whipped

Mix sugar and cornstarch in double boiler. Stir in milk, a little at a time. Cook over boiling water, stirring constantly until mixture thickens. Cover and cook 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove from boiling water. Stir in vanilla. Cool, then chill. Beat with rotary beater until creamy. Fold in whipped cream.

FRUIT FILLING

½ c. chopped candied cherries
½ c. chopped candied pineapple
½ c. chopped white raisins
½ c. chopped nuts
½ c. flaked coconut
½ c. orange juice
3 egg yolks
¼ c. sugar
2 T. margarine
2 c. creamy filling

Combine cherries, pineapple, raisins, nuts, coconut and orange juice; marinate for two hours. Mix slightly beaten egg yolks, constantly, about five minutes or until mixture thickens slightly. Stir in fruit mixture; cool. Fold in the creamy filling. Stir in fruit mixture; cool. Fold in the creamy filling.

Slice cake into three equal layers. Spread lower layer with fruit filling. Cover with center layer; spread with creamy filling. Top with last layer and frost with your favorite white frosting.

Franklin meets Brother Rice tonight

UNSUNG HERO OF FRANKLIN'S basketball success has to be 6-foot-8 senior Kenneth Blazaitis (52) who together with teammate Kevin Kaseta, also standing 6-foot-8, come up with their finest performance ever to top Brother Rice tonight in a quarterfinal game at Ferndale High. (Staff photo by Tom Donoghue)

Battle of the big men to be quarterfinal key

By TOM DONOGHUE
Sports Editor

"The good will always find its way there - it will always reach the top," commented Franklin High Coach Bob Visser when asked of his team's ability.

Visser's Patriot cagers have made believers out of every team around and are now one of eight Class A schools remaining in state tourney competition.

Franklin's toughest test comes tonight when the 22-3 Patriots take on a 23-2 Brother Rice in a quarterfinal clash set for 7:30 p.m. at Ferndale High.

"Hey, this is what the season is all about," added the Franklin coach. "The fun part of the season is now. The kids are ready to go and of course we expect a tough game but that's what it is all about."

Franklin has never played Brother Rice, winner of the Catholic League playoffs over Catholic Central. But the quarterfinal foes have played an identical opponent in Garden City West.

The Patriots crushed West in their first meeting, 76-67, and got by Chris Babler's crew in the districts, 58-55. Brother Rice had an easier time beating West, 97-59.

"That comparison doesn't mean a thing," explained Visser who contends his club is not really feeling the pressure most clubs would feel at this stage of the state tourney.

"I see a lot of enthusiasm around here, not pressure," he added.

"This one tonight should be a real defensive struggle. Kevin Kaseta will be at about 85 per cent and we are going to have to block out like we have never blocked out before."

"His ankle is still real puffy but at least the discoloration has gone away."

Visser's 1973-74 story began with only two returning starters in Jamie Knapp and 6-8 Kaseta. Knapp was boasting an 11 point per game average and Kaseta 19.

The Franklin head mentor whose club finished 15-9 last year and won its first district crown ever had a good nucleus back in his two top scorers in rebounders but that was it. The other three positions were open.

"I knew we would have to switch to a passing game this year but there were so many question marks to be answered on offense -- I just wasn't sure of anything," he said.

"Everything then became a matter of finding the right combination.

"I really thought we would open with five straight wins and somehow finish with about a 17-3 mark."

The Patriots didn't win their first five games, in fact they dropped the opener to Wayne Memorial, 71-65, and then blew a six point lead in the final minute to lose to Plymouth Salem, 68-67.

"After those two games I was starting to wonder that maybe -- just maybe -- I over estimated the club."

"But everything started to jell, and beating John Glenn in our league opener, 69-52, really gave our kids a lift."

"Maybe overconfidence did us in those first few games."

"But we did come up with the right combination in Ken Fry and Matt DeMars to go with Kaseta and Blazaitis and like I said, the good will always come to the top," explained Visser.

One of the brightest success stories of the Franklin championship season has to be in the blossoming of 6-foot-8 Keith Blazaitis.

"You know, Keith came out for basketball in the 10th grade and we cut him. Sure he was tall, but he couldn't pick up his right foot and come down with his left foot."

"Come last season, his junior year, Keith was out again for the team and I told him he could stick around because of his height but he wouldn't be playing."

"Keith stuck around last year, played a few minutes on varsity but spent most of his time on the junior varsity."

Blazaitis scored only three varisty buckets before this season.

"Keith worked the entire summer and fall with Kaseta and what a change ... he has confidence and is improving with every game."

Blazaitis has picked up 76 blocked shots in the 25 games played thus far, averaged 10.2 points per game and 12 rebounds per contest.

"Keith's play has made Kaseta a much better ballplayer in that we don't have to rely so heavily on just one big man now. It has been a real joy just watching this kid develop into a fine basketball player."

"Yes, the good always finds their way to the top -- Franklin is on top now and knows that Brother Rice is right there ready for that jump ball tonight."

Tonight's winner will advance into the state semifinals Saturday at Ann Arbor's University of Michigan Crisler Arena.

Streaker crosses lanes; 'bowlers in blue' watch

It was bound to happen.

The Observerland bowling front has had its first "streaker" and his identity still is a puzzle to the police and the bowlers who saw him streak across the approaches.

It happened Friday night at Mayflower Lanes and, of all the times to have it happen, the Streaker made his appearance while the police league was on the lanes.

From all accounts he wore nothing but a bag over his head and raced from one side of the building to the other and escaped through a side door.

The police were too shocked to take up a chase to identify him and it is worthy of note that their bowling scores weren't reported either.

Dale Seavoy, the slender Redford Township bowler who has been in a slump recently, came out of it over the past weekend to win the monthly tournament of the Michigan Major Association.

Bowling at Country Lanes, Dale, a member of the Stroh team, set a terrific pace to lead the field of 96 bowlers in the two day event.

Scoring along the Classic fronts skyrocketed during the past week. When the rumbling of the pins subsided Jim Hardy, of the Charrion Insurance team at Wonderland Lanes, was the high man with a 754 series on games of 254, 244 and 256. In the same session Fred Ringrose, fired a 731 on splits of 208, 257 and 266.

The scoring lid really was blown off at Westland Bowl where three of the sharpshooters broke the 700 barrier. Showing the way was Leo Scantamburlo who linked games of 235, 278 and 235 for 748.

At that figure he had a mere 10 point edge on Bill Spargo who closed with games of 268 and 267 for a 738. Closing out the trio was Jerry Cole with counts of 244, 269 and 255 for 768. Ken Kossich came in for a share of the night's honors when he rolled a 276 to tie for high single game.

IN THE POCKET

By W.W. EDGAR

None of the bowlers in the Garden Lanes Classic came close to breaking the 700 barrier.

Ken Gessler was high man with a 653 and his closest rivals were Bill Walker, with a 631, and Ted Kress with a 624.

Bill Montgomery, one of the most enthusiastic bowlers in the Moose League at Garden Lanes, found the pressure of piling up strikes too much.

After eight in a row and being well on the way to a perfect game he suddenly fell off and had to settle for a 277 game.

Tony Hemmelstack, a member of the Farmington 151 Mixed League at Country Lanes, is in a quandry. He doesn't know whether to part with his own bowling ball or give it another chance. The reason for the quandry came when he used a "house" ball this week and paced the league with a 663 on games of 189, 197 and 277.

Close finishes marked competition in both the Bel-Aire Classic and the Businessmen's league.

For instance, Bob McLeod posted a 734 in the Classic and needed a 254 finishing game to beat out Steve Kiehlman who contributed a 701 with a start of 247.

And right behind this pair came Greg Hatter who used a 267 middle game for a 692.

Competition was even closer in the Businessmen's League where only four pins separated the two leaders.

With a starting game of 243 John Lennon went on to post a 656 and beat Aron Lipshy who faltered after a fast start and settled for a 654. And only two pins further back came Harold Davis with a 652.

Among the other Bel-Aire Pacemakers were Bill Prachsel who showed the way in the Senior House League with a 678 and Nancy Wilson who took the women's honors with a 543.

The girls in the Farmington Lanes Ladies Classic had a great time when four of them posted double century games.

Jan Kaiser showed the way with a 213 in 610, while Dianne La Bourdais had a 233 in 583 to land the runner-up berth. Third place went to Marty Eko with a 234 in 569 and Julie Lahr had 231 in 552.

In the men's junior house league John Miller had a 684 series that included a 248 game, while Jim Mitchell had a 247 in 645. In the men's classic the top man was Tom Hay with a 257 in 672.

Bowling in the Kings and Queens League at Merri-Bowl Kay Capola took scoring honors for the week with a 674. Closest to her was Rich Hughes in the Junior House League with a 672.

A closing 266 gave Clarence Bishop a 685 at Mayflower Lanes and a big edge over Bill Mullins who turned in a 638. The Mayflower women continue to convert splits in fancy fashion. Barbara Knox toppled the 2-7-10; Gerrie Patterson added the 5-6-10 and Pauline Friend converted the 5-7-9.

Lou Miller with a 247 in 582 and Betty Currie with a 221 game paced the senior citizens at Plymouth Bowl, while Sam Lo Casio, another senior citizen converted the 8-10 split at Plaza Bowl.

Schoolcraft matmen take 4th in finals

Johnnie Jones claimed the 118-pound championship and Howard Strick finished second at 126 pounds to lead Schoolcraft College to a fourth place finish in the 1974 National Junior College Athletic Assn.'s wrestling championships at Worthington, Minn.

Jones became the first Schoolcraft wrestler ever to win a national championship, and the fourth place finish in the team standings was the highest ever for Schoolcraft in four years of junior college mat competition.

"I had hoped we might be able to finish in the top five and we came in fourth, so I was extremely happy with our performance," said Larry Meyer, the Ocelot coach. "We've never had a national champion in wrestling at Schoolcraft before, and you had better believe that it's some kind of thrill to see one of your men walk off those mats as the best in the nation."

Jones, a freshman from Ann Arbor Huron High School, earned his championship by gaining a 4-2 decision over John Phillips of Clairmore (Okla.) J.C. in the 118 pound finals.

Strick, who finished fourth at 118 pounds last year, made his way into the 126 pound finals before dropping a 14-10 decision to Ken Hiltzenderger of Bismarck. Strick, a graduate of Hazel Park High School, was voted the tourney's sportsmanship award.

Three other Schoolcraft grapplers contributed points to the fourth place total. Bernard Wells had a decision at 134 pounds, Mike Mirick had two falls at 158 pounds, and Fred Stanton had a 22-0 superior decision in the heavy-weight division.

It's Franklin-Stevenson in hockey final

It will be league champion Franklin pitted against second place Stevenson tomorrow night (Friday) in the Suburban Hockey loop tourney finale of the Observer & Eccentric sponsored George Gee clash.

After a four all tie after two periods, Stevenson took a 5-4 advantage with just three minutes remaining and exploded for four more goals to topple the Churchill crew, 9-4.

The second contest last night saw Franklin nip Bentley in three overtimes, 4-3.

Faceoff tomorrow night is slated for 8 p.m. at the Livonia Ford ice rink. Besides the presentation of the George Gee Trophy at the conclusion, Sports Editor Tom Donoghue will announce the all-area selections along with the tourney's most valuable player and the season's Sportsmanlike award. Score-O will be played during the second and third period break.

Churchill cagers top all-loop selections

The Western Six basketball champions, Livonia Churchill, had top billing in the All-League selections.

Seniors Don Braun at 6-foot-7 and Ken Landini at 6-foot-3 were first team shoos for the Chargers who finished 10-0 in the league. Mike Grace at 5-foot-11 from Waterford Mott, Walled Lake Western's John Spranger at 6-foot-5 and Northville's Todd Eis at 6-foot-3 round out the first team.

The second loop squad saw five different clubs represented. Don Forest at 6-foot-5 from Churchill headed the list and was followed by WL Western's John Gabriele at 6-foot-3, Farmington Harrison's Bob French at 6-foot-2, Northville's Ed Kritch at 5-foot-10 and Plymouth Canton's 6-foot-2 Ron Lack.

Honorable mention honors went to Tom Eis of Northville; Bob Mason of Harrison; Mark Gisse, Bob Swindell and Blaise Saffron of Waterford Mott; Bill Romberg of WL Western; Rich VanWagoner of Churchill; and Tom Close of Canton.

Still openings in open softball loop

Two team openings still exist in the Western Suburban Open slo-pitch softball league.

The eight team loop has its home field at the Thompson Memorial Field on Six Mile and Beck Roads in Northville. Open softball competition will be on Sundays with each club slated for a twin-bill and having every fourth Sunday off.

Any club interested in applying for the open loop should contact Tom Donoghue at the Observer & Eccentric offices in Livonia.

Turf Tips, Quips

By Doc Minard

For two tracks buffeted by snow, rain, fog and whatever weather Michigan has to offer at this time of the year, the Detroit Race Course and Northville Downs fared rather well last weekend.

It appears the big mile track is recovering from the initial shock of a rather poor opening week and is now beginning to show signs of awakening and really doing the business expected of the first thoroughbred meeting of the year.

With more horses in the fields and the programs expanded from eight to nine races, the DRC is on its way, and unless hit by some unprecedented weather, could well be on its way.

We hope so because no single individual has put in more time planning more ways to attract crowds than Vice President and General Manager Dick Wilson. He isn't one to give up easily but the opening week following on the footsteps of the disastrous meeting last fall just about did him in.

But the weather has been brighter, the handle has been better, more horses are being entered and Wilson quickly shook off the doldrums.

The DRC had its first million dollar day of the season Saturday with a total of $1,005,000. That isn't much over a million but it is an indication that better days are coming, especially when one considers it was dark, dreary and drizzling at a time Saturday when most followers of the runners should have been on their way to the races. As it was more than 10,000 were on hand, that's quite something everything considered.

That same night Northville Downs had its best evening of the 39-night season which ended Wednesday. There was a little bit of everything, starting with the same driver bringing in a nightly double worth $272.20, a trifecta that had the crowd roaring when the price of $1,209 was posted and a perfecta worth $119.

Roger DeMoss, of Pinckney, hasn't been the most successful driver at the meeting but he moved up quite a few notches in the eyes of the public when he guided Red Bob to victory in the opener to pay $16.20 and then came back in the second with Meldonnas Choice worth $48 and a nightly double payoff of $272.20. Meldonnas Choice, an eight year old, hadn't won in 35 previous starts over a two year period but she had it this time.

It was a combination of a young driver winning his first race at a pari-mutuel meeting with a longshot with another long one coming in second that resulted in such a big trifecta.

Youthful Jim Hornbrook Jr., of South Lyon, who has been described by veteran drivers around the track as a promising newcomer, had it all working for him this time. He finally took over the reins of Regal Rhonda, a five-year-old which had won its last two with Al Forney in the sulky, and found the bay mare full of run, so much in fact she won her third in a row by two lengths.

Perhaps it was because Hornbrook Jr. was in the cart that she went off at almost 6-1 and paid $13.60. Anyway she was largely responsible for the rich price on the trifecta.

Bay Bulls, a five-year-old owned by Earnest Haynes of Southfield and guided by Duane Dilworth, stormed down the stretch for second followed by Flapjack. The combination of 1-3-4 made many folks happy in the stands.

Charley Smith, the young Northville driver who is rapidly developing into one of the best in the area, collected a double with A Susan Knox ($3.20) and Ritzie Range ($12). The latter won the $6,000 Shaffer Farewell pace in 2:07.4, fastest mile of the entire week.

FROM FLORIDA comes news that Leon A. Slavin, president and general manager of the Jackson Raceway events from the night it first opened 25 years ago, is still recuperating from the illness that hit him in January.

There is a strong possibility Slavin will not be on hand for the Jackson meeting starting in early April... that is not for the opening, but we have a strong feeling he'll be around as soon as the weather breaks.

Leon didn't shake the ailment as quickly as he thought this time and when the doctors told him to stay in Florida and rest, and his friends told him the same thing, he finally capitulated much to the relief of his wife, Ann.

John Carlo, veteran executive manager of Northville Downs, is seething a bit these days over the failure of Racing Commissioner Leo Shirley to acknowledge a request for a rehearing on the 1974 harness racing dates in which communication Carlo asked for reinstatement of the six nights taken from the 'Downs by the commissioner.

Shirley is charged in the letter with arbitrarily revoking and vacating racing at Northville from June 19 through 25 this year, reducing a 36-night season to 24.

Carlo asks for the rehearing with the hope the 1974 dates for harness racing be changed to: Northville, June 26 through July 31; Wolverine Raceway, Aug. 1 through Nov. 2 and Jackson-at-Northville, Nov. 4 through Dec. 31.

He challenges the commissioner's reasons for the change as not being valid and writes "it appears to me that if you have the authority to modify or revoke dates after issuance, it would have been more advisable to use the dates suggested above."

Carlo points out that a 24-night race meet is contrary to all sound principles of conducting a meet. He says that during the winter, a race meet of 39 nights increases costs by at least $2,000 per night. Thus it follows a 24-night season would boost the costs even more.

"It is most unusual," Carlo writes, "where a tenant, Jackson Racing Association, has been granted 83 nights while the landlord, Northville Downs, ends up with 63. This is a situation that is unique to Michigan."

Carlo quotes track operators from other sections who stated it was impossible to have a successful operation during a 24-night campaign.

"When successful track operators all seem to concur in regard to extremely short meetings," Carlo writes in his letter. "And when, in our own judgment it raises grave doubts, we must in good conscience take exception and question the rationale that would arbitrarily deprive a successful pioneer and respected member of the harness racing community to carry on its affairs in the manner that has made it a credit to harness racing and the state of Michigan."

Carlo's letter was dated Feb. 27, 1974, just eight days after receiving a message from the commissioner telling of the change in dates. On Monday, March 18, he had not received a reply from the commissioner. That's why he was more than a little irked.

- 5 - REDFORD UNION
- 6 - THURSTON
- 7 - PLYMOUTH SALEM

The sweatshirts have been tucked away...the weight reduction pills capped for another season - bring on the spaghetti, another prep wrestling campaign has come to a close.

And the squad that survived all of the weight cutting, blood, sweat and tears is Jim O'Leary's North Farmington crew, the No. 1 team in the area.

North placed three grapplers on the area's first team in Steve Haller, Carl Darrah and Brian Chisholm, one on the second squad in Bill Lough.

Plymouth Salem and Thurston ran a close second with both schools sporting two wrestlers on the first team and two on the second.

Seniors dominated the 19 school area's first team pickings with Farmington High junior Mark Churella the solo junior.

The second team boasted seven seniors, three juniors and two sophomores.

Of the 12 matmen on the area first team, five can lay claim to All-State acclaim in the talent of Clarenceville's Tim Wehner, Randy Steckroth of Garden City West, Mark Churella of Farmington, Thurston's Ken McLain and North Farmington's Brian Chisholm.

All-area pick at 98 pounds is Westland John Glenn's first team selection in Ken Arble. The Rocket grappler was All-Northwest and victor in the Schoolcraft tourney.

At 105 pounds, Plymouth Salem's John Major gets first billing.

The Rock wrestler was 7-2 in dual meets and 13-7 overall and recorded six pins in placing fifth in the Schoolcraft invitational and second in the Redford Union invitational.

Farmington High's senior Dave Longtime is No. 1 at 112 pounds. Longtime finished at 26 - 10, placed third in the Oakland County meet, second in the Western Wayne, second in the Schoolcraft tourney, first at North Farmington's invitational and qualified in the districts but lost in the regional finals, 2-1.

At 119 pounds come the first of the area's five All-Staters in Clarenceville's Tim Wehner.

Wehner closed out his senior stint with a 35-3 record and was champion in the Wayne-Oakland League. The Trojan matman was third in the Schoolcraft meet, first in the South Lyon invitational, first in the regionals and fourth in the state meet.

His three losses were against Mark Machowing of Warren Woods who placed third in the state in Class A; to Dennis Cluley of Mount Pleasant who finished second in the state in Class B and to Chelsea's Mike Agopian who was third in state Class B action.

Wehner finished fourth in the state Class B meet for his All-State acclaim.

Tim has been chosen Clarenceville's most valuable wrestler and team captain the past three years to complement his straight A grade average. Wehner is also President of the senior class and Vice President of the Varsity Club.

North Farmington's Steve Haller is the top matman at 126 pounds.

The Raider senior co-captain was 30 - 6 in dual competition and placed second in the Ypsilanti invitational and was champion of the Oakland County meet. Haller won the Redford Union meet at 126 pounds, placed third in the Schoolcraft tourney, was league champion at 126 pounds, placed third in the Schoolcraft tourney, was league champion at 126 pounds for the second straight season, qualified in the districts and regionals and wound up losing to Class A state champion Brad Holman, 5-0.

At 132 pounds we have another All-Stater in Garden City West's Randy Steckroth. The Tiger wrestler who received a black-eye during a state bout was a Tri-River champion and placed second in the state behind Dennis Brighton of Temperance Bedford. Brighton pinned Steckroth in 3:56.

Steckroth closed out a three year All-League career with a 29-8 showing.

Thurston High's 138 pounder Tom Lovachis captured top billing with a 28-7 record. Lovachis placed in every tournament the Eagles were in and was voted the most improved on the Thurston team.

Carl Darrah, the chaplain of the North Farmington squad, was picked No. 1 at 145 pounds.

Darrah finished 28 - 7 overall, placed second in the Ypsilanti invitational at 155 pounds, second in the Schoolcraft meet, second in the Redford Union invitational, second in the North Farmington invitational - all these seconds behind Farmington's All-Stater Churella.

Darrah was Northwest loop champion at 147 pounds, won in the districts and regionals only to lose in the state meet to Catholic Central's Joe Ryan, 5-4.

The lone junior to break into the all-area selections is a second year repeater in Farmington's Mark Churella at 155 pounds.

The 5-foot-9 Churella had a perfect 36-0 dual meet season, paced the Falcons to a 7-0-1 Inter-Lakes crown and placed second in the state.

At 167 pounds, Thurston's Ken McLean finished with a 40 win and seven loss showing and placed fourth in the state meet for All-State honors.

McLean was co-captain of the Thurston squad and was nicknamed "fatboy" by his team mates because he eats a gallon of ice cream after each wrestling match and consumes 27 pancakes the morning after. He was voted the Eagle's most valuable performer.

Larry Fidge of Plymouth Salem was a unanimous first teamer at 185 pounds.

Fidge recorded 15 pins in a 22 win and four loss dual season.

The Salem matman placed third in the Schoolcraft tourney, first in the Redford Union meet with three straight pins and second to Joe Dixon in the Suburban Eight League meet.

The final berth and anchorman of every team is the heavyweight grappler and that No. 1 honor goes to North Farmington's first All-State wrestler ever in Brian Chisholm.

Chisholm was 33 - 7 in dual competition and heavyweight champ in the Ypsilanti tourney. Chisholm placed third at Schoolcraft, won the Redford Union tourney, and was Northwest League champion for the second straight year.

Brian also qualified for the districts and regionals and placed third in the state meet.

There it is - the all-area wrestling squad, 11 seniors and one junior and five all-staters strong.

JIM O'LEARY
No. 1 Wrestling Coach

North's O'Leary picked top coach

North Farmington's 1973-74 wrestling campaign was tabbed one of spirit and team dedication - a label that is not often found in an individual sport like wrestling.

The man behind that team spirit drive has been selected the No. 1 coach in the area.

A tip of the hat to Jim O'Leary, the main force behind the area's No. 1 wrestling team.

"This was the finest team I have ever coached," commented O'Leary who has now been varsity coach three years and assistant coach four years prior. "The kids were always pushing one another and in a sport that is almost all individual showing, we worked and functioned as a team with team spirit and dedication."

North placed third in the Ypsilanti eight team tourney; 12th in the 32 Oakland County meet; third in the eight school Redford Union meet; sixth in the 32 school Schoolcraft Invitational; second in the Northwest loop; second in a 20 squad district; sixth in a 56 team regional and 28th in the Class A state meet.

North wound up 8-1-1 in dual meets which included a victory over the No. 9 ranked team in the state Walled Lake Central and the Raiders finished 15th in the state themselves.

"We set our goals at the outset of the season to go unbeaten in dual meets," said O'Leary. "We then lost in the final match to John Glenn, 31-22 and the entire team just sat down and cried in the locker room afterwards."

"A default cost us that meet but that moment was of great pride for me - it showed me just how much it all meant to the kids."

"The kids really bounced back to win the rest of the meets and give an overall fine showing in all tournaments."

"My assistant coach Ralph Temby made a world of difference with this team," added the North coach. "Our different personalities complimented one another to give it all to the kids."

North's mat season was rewarded at the finale when heavyweight Brian Chisholm placed third in the state meet to become the first North wrestler ever to win All-State acclaim.

Jim's wife, Connie, has to be his No. 1 wrestling fan along with his three daughters Kelly (7), Erin (5), Bridget (3) and son Patrick (8).

Once again, a tip of the hat to the area's Wrestling Coach of the Year - Jim O'Leary.

Sure cure for 'empty nest' syndrome

There's a time, early in every marriage, when improvisations like fabric-covered orange crate tables and brick-stacked bookcases must necessarily suffice for home furnishings. It's the honeymoon stage in a couple's life together, when you are young and so much in love that you never notice the lack of amenities.

When the first baby comes, you are thrilled to be able to afford a new sofa bed in the living room...a washer, a dryer.

At last there is the move to your first house, with a yard, a dishwasher, and a bona fide rec room for Cub Scout or Brownie meetings.

And then, at silver anniversary time, things come around full circle. The last of the kids is off on his own and you are alone again, facing something the psychologists call the "empty nest syndrome." It can be a traumatic experience or a great time of life, depending how you approach the challenge.

The ideal, of course, is to capitalize on your freedom and get a fresh new lease on life.

First of all get rid of the accumulated clutter. Give it away. Have a garage sale. Recycle your life completely.

If the house is too large, settle for a place with fewer rooms. If it's not too large, give your home (not yourself) cosmetic surgery.

Redecorate.

Where to start the face-lifting? The "public" area is a good beginning since the living room - dining room area is the showplace of adult living.

You can unify two rooms with a sophisticated approach to carpeting. By combining wall-to-wall and area rugs, you can use both versions to "marry" the rooms decoratively. A patterned rug allows for a handsome floor border and outlines the dining area. A matching wall-to-wall carpet pushes out the walls in the living room and expands the look of the room size.

Not only can you start decorating this way, but you can go "eclectic."

Mediterranean, Oriental, Provincial and treasured antiques can be combined for a total appearance that is soigne.

Rather than the end of an era, a 25th wedding anniversary should be cause to celebrate the launching of a new one - a coming of age - in taste, attitude and outlook.

THE MOOD IS COMFORT with off-hand elegance in decorating with a new lease on life. A carefully selected cross-section of the best in design and variety make for a sophisticated "eclectic" decor.

Home & Garden

Houseplant of the week

The peperomia plant is a native of South America. It is characterized by its succulent stem and short petioles, with waxy green or variegated leaves shaped like a spoon. Some species have deeply corrugated or wrinkled leaves. The entire plant grows to a height of 12 inches, say Michigan State University horticulturists.

Soil should consist of equal parts of perlite or vermiculite, good garden soil, and peat or humus. Commercial potting soil, African violet soil or begonia soil also may be used.

Water sparingly during the winter months. During the growing season, water thoroughly using tepid water.

and allow soil to become moderately dry between waterings. Peperomia will tolerate neglect but the roots and stem will rot if overwatered. Temperatures can range between 62 degrees F. at night, rising as high as 85 degrees during the day, with a relatively low humidity. Keep the temperature a few degrees cooler during the dormancy or rest period, and keep the plants away from drafts.

The peperomia will tolerate the reduced light found in most homes in winter. It is one of the few plants that will survive in a north window; however an east window is preferred. If placed in southern window, shape plant from direct sun.

Propagation is by leaf bud cuttings or stem tip cuttings.

Redecorating easy with floor tile

Redecorating is fun for most women. A skillfully planned job can radically change a room and the way it is used in a family's daily life.

Redecorating does not have to be an expensive project. For example, you can lower costs by using paint rather than wallpaper, and choosing furniture that is easy to slipcover or for which you can buy readymade covers. Make your draperies. And install a resilient floor covering rather than wall-to-wall carpet.

patterned tile. You can put it down right over the old resilient tile. It is the perfect decorator - yourself product.

A well-planned room can be changed seasonally, with little work or expense. In summer use cool colored drapes, slipcovers, pillows and rugs; then switch to a warm set for winter.

You'll discover new pleasure in your "new" room. And, incidentally, the fabrics will last longer when not in constant use.

Bare posts dressed up

Bare support posts in a basement become fluted columns when half rounds are nailed on all sides, a baseboard is added at the bottom and a cornice molding at the top.

The Better Floors Council suggests installing vinyl asbestos tile in a neutral or pastel color or a wood pattern because these go with any and all furnishings. You can use area rugs of any color over the tile. And if someday you tire of such a discreet flooring, get adhesive-back vinyl asbestos in some glorious solid color or a bold Ideas and details on how to apply decorative wood moldings to chests, doors, walls and dividers fill an eight-page booklet that's available for 10 cents in coin from Western Wood Products Assn., Dept. 518 - P. Yeon Bldg., Portland Ore., 97204.

Home & Garden

Thursday, March 21, 1974 THE OBSERVER & ECCENTRIC * 5D

Home gardeners who have never used the so-called "Jiffy pellets" for starting plants, should try them this year. These are highly compressed pellets only about 1/4 inch thick, but when you place them in a shallow pan of water, they swell in minutes into a cylinder about two inches high and in diameter.

These are then all ready to sow seed in or set cuttings or transplants into. No pot is needed since the growing "soil" is enclosed in a plastic net that holds its cylindrical shape. When ready, the plant and pellet are set out in the garden, with no shock of transplanting or check in growth. The roots continue to grow right through the net.

And while you're at it, it's a good idea to buy some instant soil mixes if you want to sow your own seed. Don't scoop up some soil from the garden and use it for starting seeds.

The "instant soils" which florists use for starting seed has no soil in them, but are loaded with peatmoss, vermiculite, perlite plus some nutrients. These materials are sterile and will practically reduce "damping off" diseases to zero.

Not only are the instant mixes sterile, but they provide good aeration, drainage, more uniform growth as well. These are great for starting your seeds of tomatoes, peppers, eggplants and all your flowers.

One of the best house plants we have today is the Rieger begonia, something new. The Rieger eliator (eliator means "exalted") has semi-double flowers, grows larger than regular begonias and blossoms the year round.

It's a cross between the showy Christmas begonia (Gloire de Lorraine, or "Busy Lizzie") and a tuberous begonia. The result is a fibrous-rooted type with sterile flowers. That means the Rieger is not propagated by seeds because they produce sterile seed.

Cuttings are taken from the tips and rooted in perlite, vermiculite or plain tap water. Of course, they are patented so legally it's not right to propagate them for sale or otherwise. Like all begonias, the Rieger likes a loose soil mixture, such as 10 percent loam, 45 percent perlite or vermiculite and 45 percent peat.

In summer they do not like direct sunlight, but the rest of the year they can get moderate sunlight. Rieger has a tendency to get leggy and must be pinched back. Don't let the soil dry out completely at any time, and avoid overwatering.

Never wet the foliage as it encourages diseases such as mildew and botrytis. Riegers may be big bloomers but they are not heavy feeders, so go easy on the plant food. Feed them a liquid plant food such as 23-19-17 once every five or six weeks. Plants with dark green heavy foliage do not produce as many flowers as plants slightly on the hungry side.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC: "We have a Maternity plant, or Kalanchoe. Please tell us how you pronounce the scientific name. Is it Kalen-cho?"

No. Pronounce it Kal-an-koh-ee. Any scientific plant name that ends in "oe" is pronounced as two syllables for those letters. So Kalanchoe is "Kal-an-koh-ee." Same as for the medicine or healing plant, Aloe. You can call it "al-oh-ee."

WAX BEAN GOLD CROP, newly developed for spring gardens, was a bronze medal winner in the all-America selections for 1974.

Conversation pit made from tile

The Better Floors Council has some good suggestions to help lessen the pain when your living room won't rearrange the way you want it to.

First, decide on the major grouping. Decorators recommend this be planned around some focal point, such as a bay window or fireplace. If the room lacks a focal point, make one by installing a vinyl asbestos tile floor in big color blocks, or by outlining a conversation area with contrasting tile or feature strips.

You can do this by marking out a section large enough to hold the sofa and as many chairs as you wish, plus lamps and a table within reach of every seated person. This area should be well away from traffic passing through the room.

You could pave it with a neutral color tile and cover the rest of the floor with a tile that picks up either the major color scheme or your accent colors. Or you could do the reverse and tile the "conversation pit" with an intense solid color or a brightly patterned design.

The simplest way to plan furniture arrangements is with graph paper, colored pencils and cutouts of the furniture made to scale. Don't forget to mark all doors and windows on this outline.

One other hint from the council: If your room is small and can hold only one conversational grouping, a light-colored vinyl asbestos tile on the floor will make it appear larger.

Gypsy moths on westward march

Leaf-eating gypsy moth caterpillars defoliated an estimated 1,773,846 acres of woodland in nine northeastern states this summer, the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture (USDA) reports. This is an increase of about 400,000 acres over the 1972 defoliation.

Leo G. K. Iverson, deputy administrator of USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS), said the pest now is spreading from the New England area and heading through Pennsylvania. APHIS scientists also point out that the pest is moving from an area of less-favored food to a region where its favorite hardwood trees are more prevalent.

Pennsylvania was the hardest hit northeastern state this year with approximately 856,710 defoliated acres. Other states with defoliated acres include an estimated 333,215 in Connecticut; 254,065 in New Jersey; 248,441 in New York; 43,970 in Massachusetts; 35,925 in Rhode Island; 400 in Maine; 200 in Vermont; and 40 in New Hampshire.

Iverson said the Pocono region of eastern Pennsylvania was particularly hard hit. In several counties, 70 per cent of the trees were almost completely stripped.

Back in 1969, nobody, except the scientist in Massachusetts who accidentally released them thought gypsy moths would ever get to be much of a problem. But it turned out that most folks were wrong.

Gypsy moths immediately attacked the forests and had things pretty much their own way until DDT came on the scene. That looked like the end for the scourge of our oak forests.

In 1961, however, DDT was abandoned as a gypsy moth control agent, because it lasted too long in the environment, it killed non-target insects and it had some other undesirable side effects. Other chemical insecticides took DDT's place, but were never able to achieve DDT's control.

The most recent weapon against gypsy moth larvae has been a chemical insecticide called carbaryl. Carbaryl is less persistent than DDT, and somewhat less effective, but its environmental impact is not nearly as devastating. It has been the standard weapon against gypsy moths in recent years, but like DDT, it, too, has been attacked by environmentalists.

Carbaryl, they point out, is not selective. It kills insects other than gypsy moths (notably honey bees and the insects which are gypsy moths' natural enemies) and say the environmentalists - may affect other forest inhabitants and humans as well.

In an attempt to find an ecologically acceptable control measure, many different techniques are being studied and tried. Among them are sex attractant lures, releasing hordes of tiny parasitic wasps into gypsy moth infested areas and, of course, Bacillus thuringiensis (Bt). Of all the "new" controls, Bt is the only one that has proven effective for large scale gypsy moth control.

In addition, it has been shown to be universally effective against the larvae of other lepidopterous insects which are also major regional problems: elm spanworms, spring and fall cankerworms (inchworms), cabbage loopers and tomato hornworms.

Bt is sprayed on foliage as a mixture of spores and crystals of spore-produced endotoxin. When the caterpillars eat the treated leaves, the specific environment of their gut triggers the endotoxin, paralyzing the mid-gut and causing feeding to cease. Gut walls are disrupted, causing the larvae to die, usually within several days.

Only the gut of lepidopterous larvae offer exactly the right environment for triggering the toxic mechanism of Bt, so other creatures - even other insects - are unaffected by Bt. Birds have been observed feeding on dying caterpillars without any ill effect.

Bacillus thuringiensis can be stored for long periods as long as it is kept in a dry powder form, but it loses its effectiveness in a relatively short time when it is moistened or mixed with a liquid.

CABBAGE LOOPER feeds on a lettuce leaf.

GYPSEY MOH CATERPILLARS damaged 1.7 million northeastern acres in 1973. The pest is moving farther and faster with the help of the vast camping public. The caterpillars, pupae and egg masses can attach to anything stationary in the woods; a simple tent, camp stove, lawn chair or truck-mounted camper. All these items are potential carriers of a new infestation when the unknowing camper starts traveling.

THE TOMATO HORNWORM is a common denizen of the home garden.

How to handle tax form 1040

By P. Thomas Austin,
CPA, President,
The Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants

Many persons who have successfully managed to finish high school or obtain a loan from a bank or sell a house or take out a driver's license consider themselves unable to unravel the mysteries of Federal Income Tax Form 1040. For most, this belief is probably unfounded.

The secret is not to let yourself be cowed by the rows of numbered entries on the 1040. Take them one at a time and they are not so threatening.

(This is the second in a series of articles on the 1973 federal and state income tax returns.)

The person setting out to square his annual account with Internal Revenue Service should first get his income records together - W-2 withholding reports from each employer he has worked for during the year, plus information from banks, brokers, etc. on interest and dividend income the taxpayer has received.

IF YOU ARE going to itemize deductions (and if you are not, you may be eligible to use Form 1040A - the short form) you will need canceled checks, receipts and other evidence of deductible expenses: Taxes and interest paid, medical and dental costs, charitable contributions and unreimbursed business expenses.

Next, you'll need the applicable tax forms - the 1040 plus the schedules for submitting various categories of lists. The IRS usually sends taxpayers the same documents they used the previous year, but if you need new ones this year you can pick them up at almost any bank or post office, or you can write to the nearest IRS office.

One government document that's indispensable is the instruction booklet for Form 1040. Among other things it tells you what documents you will have to submit and how to fill them out.

Now, with all the needed papers on hand, simply start at the top of page one, with your name and address, occupation, etc. If you are stopped by a question, consult the instruction booklet, which lists 21 steps to be taken, in order, and augments the guidance included in the forms and schedules themselves.

IF YOUR FINANCIAL affairs are too complex to permit you to handle Form 1040 on your own, that fact will soon become apparent.

Persons likely to require professional help in filing their tax returns in most cases are those whose affairs are complicated by factors such as:

- Large capital gains or losses.
  - The selling of a home during the year.
  - A large jump in income over previous years that may suggest income averaging.
  - Self-employment, with several sources of income.
  - A drastic change in dependency relationships during the year, as through divorce.
- But for most people such complications are rare.

Personalities can make you

In performing psychological assessments of management candidates, the question of matching personalities often arises.

In selecting people for a management team, should one look for similar personalities who would get along well together or different personalities who would complement each other and fill in for each other's weaknesses.

The answer is probably more a matter of values than of psychological science.

MANY EXTREMELY productive organizations are composed of very different personalities. However, the most ineffective organizations are also composed of diverse people just too different to get along together.

There is much less risk if people are very similar. There is probably also less potential pay-off.

The matter also depends a great deal on the size and history of the individual organization and the nature of the industry.

Some fields lend themselves to the fast action and individual decisiveness often typical of the good diverse organization. An example might be real estate development. A very different style is necessary in some of the regulated industries.

IT ALSO DEPENDS on the goal.

In one client firm, the owner has made a decision to hire young, sophisticated people who will see many things differently from the way the present management group does.

He deliberately wants to rock the boat and he knows he will have to pay a price for it.

In another client organization, the chairman of the board feels that the present president has a unique expertise that is essential to the future of the company. His main objective is to keep the president happy.

He wants middle management people who are not too aggressive, but who will go along with the rather paternalistic, unstructured style of the president.

The management psychologist can predict what the results of different decisions will be, but it all depends on what kinds of results are being looked for.
