Where can a heroin addict turn for help?

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the secand part of a series on heroin addiction in the Plymouth community.)

By. W. EDWARD WENDOVER

PLYMOUTH -- Where can heroin addicts turn for help in breaking their habit if they have no money?

The answer to that question was not easy to find, one Plymouth couple discovered.

Larry and Shelley are two of Plymouth's heroin addicts.

Through treatment at a private hospital in Ann Arbor, they have been freed from their physical and psychological dependence on heroin -- for

"There's no such thing as an ex-addict." Shelley will remind you. meaning that she and her husband must stay away from heroin altogether or be hooked again as soon as they Breaking their habit was not easy. When they realized their taking heroin "wasn't to get high, it was just to keep from getting sick" they decided weren't getting high, we were just to seek help.

Larry called the Our House "Buzz Line" run by the crisis counseling center in Plymouth.

"You can get as much help from information," he said. "They only gave us a bunch of phone numbers." Next they called Livonia Aide Center which they found to be "really good but it doesn't handle heroin treatment," Shelley said.

Their habit was getting worse. "We

Larry turned to his father, Earl for Earl had begun to suspect that Larry was using drugs during his son's last year in high school. When money came up missing from the family's business and their home, Earl began to suspect his son was getting more involved in drugs. He asked his son whether he was on drugs, Earl said, and he said "no." Then one Friday night, $100 disappeared from the family's house. "Monday my son came in and he looked like hell," Earl said. "He (Larry) said, 'Dad, I've got to have some help. I'm hooked on heroin

"You take my taxes don't you?" Earl said he asked the nurse.

Next the father called Northville State Hospital, where, he said, he also got "a run around." Finally they suggested contacting a methadone clinic

Community support eases Joey's long, tedious wait

PLYMOUTH--The Fred Crissey family of Plymouth is still managing to stay at least outwardly calm in the midst of one of the most important periods of their lives.

Nine-year-old Joe Crissey was originally scheduled for an operation to hopefully relieve the symptoms of his crippling illness, dystonia musculorium deformans, the middle of this

But, Dr. I.R. Cooper of St. Barnabas Hospital. New York City who will perform the surgery, was delayed in Europe.

Now, Mrs. Crissey and Joe are scheduled to leave for New York on April 30 and the operation is set for the first week in May. Fred Crissey will join his wife and son before the PLYMOUTH-"How do you thank operation takes place.

"Sure," he says of Joe, "he's a little disappointed and anxious to have it done, but he's really more interested in what's happening right now -watching baseball on TV and playing

And Joe, his father says, "is sort of money behind it. The money is the tip oblivious to what is going on."

The family has turned down the many requests to have Joe appear at the benefits, not because they don't appreciate what is being done, but because of the youngster himself and their desire to keep his life as normal

But, the Crisseys continue to be deeply touched by the outpouring of

of the iceberg," Fred Crissey says.

"We haven't made a public thank you, there's so many people to thank, but after we come back from New York, we will."

When Mrs. Crissey packs Joe's suitcase for New York, it's possible that she will be requested to include a couple of treasured possessions -- a letter from the Detroit Tigers, an autographed ball and an autographed "The caring comes first and the picture of pitcher Mickey Stanley.

For an avid Tiger fan like Joe Crissey, those are pretty important

Joe doesn't talk much about what it would be like to grab a baseball mitt and run out of the house to play ball with the kids. He keeps his life going as best he can. But there's a hope that some day he will be able to.

That's somewhere in his thoughts and very much in the prayers of hundreds and hundreds of friends, both known and unknown in the Plymouth

Grange to mark 100th anniversary

By SHERRY KAHAN

PLYMOUTH - The official big day is not until July but members of the Plymouth Grange are already making plans for a celebration to honor the 100th anniversary of their farm - oriented organization.

Chartered in 1874 when Plymouth was a quiet island of a few shops and homes entirely surrounded by farms, the Grange was formed to improve farming conditions and to obtain better roads for getting produce to mar-

this problem at all."

Livonia - like Lathrup Village,

SEMCOG has failed to recognize housing problem -- Raymond

The state of the s

uburbia has a housing problem, but a new plan adopted by the Southeast Michigan Council of Govern-ments fails to even recognize it.

So says Jerry Raymond, known in these parts as a Livonia city councilman but also known in SEMCOG circles as one of the half-dozen most influential elected persons in the six-county organization.

Raymond recently voted in the SEMCOG executive' committee for adoption of the new housing plan, so that southeastern Michigan would have something on the books of the U.S. Housing and Urban Development Department.

But he insists the plan (1) fails to come to grips with Detroit's housing problem and (2) fails even to recognize a growing suburban problem of young and older persons.

TO UNDERSTAND Raymond's criticism, you have to see the SEMCOG staff analysis of Detroit's problem. Briefly:

Affluence, as well as poverty, plays a role in the deterioration and abandonment of housing. The income of middle class households rises, and they move out of Detroit.

"This migration from Detroit and the older suburbs has left thousands of units available to the only potential buyers or renters - lower income households. . .

"Problems arise when the new (low income) owner finds he does not have adequate funds to cover the costs of nance of the home, Also, the apartment owner finds that the new tenants cannot afford to spend as much as the previous residents."

The result is failure to perform basic maintenance, mortgage defaults, failure to pay taxes and abandonment.

"THAT DOESN'T have to be true," Raymond counters. "This reads like a case for tearing down old housi putting up new housing. But the old housing is structurally sound. Why not try other methods - subsidize it? Grant tax relief?"

The councilman, an attorney in private life and 24-year resident of Livonia, also disagrees with two other parts of the SEMCOG analysis: The contention that, except in a few instances, there is no housing shortage in the area; and the notion that housing is a regional problem.

"If housing is available for people from Livonia in Monroe, that doesn't solve the problem. They don't face priced for many persons in their 20s and early 30s, as well as for retirees, to live there. Young people can't afford to live in the town where they grew up; retirees and "empty nesters" can't afford to stay in the town they helped build.

"What is our city going to be like," Raymond asks, "when adults who now occupy the homes move away? Will the Livonia market hold up when people are deciding between used homes versus new homes at low inter-

"If 20 or even 15 years from now the Raymonds aren't on Oak Drive, it's not likely that two people will move into our house," says Raymond whose household, when he moved in, consisted of his wife, "four kids, a cat, a dog and a brother in-law."

WHAT SHOULD the Livonias, the Lathrups and the suburbs like them do about their housing problems?

"I'm not saying, 'Hear me, hear me, I have the answer,' Raymond replies. "But we should sit down and

Cluster housing makes sense, although Raymond warns that financing "commons" areas such as clubhouses and pools could run into trouble if several residents run into household problems all at once.

A man in a single-family detached dwelling can lose his job and be unable to pay his paving assessment, but only he will be affected. With "commons" areas, the entire cluster can be in trouble in such a case.

Contrary to what people think, Raymond says, the population of Livonia is dropping rather than rising, but even these statistics blur the nature of the housing problem.

The population of Livonia (like many other suburbs) declined from 110,000 in 1970 to about 103,000 today.
Yet, says Raymond, perhaps 10,000 new people have moved in.

The number of move ins, however, is more than offset by the number of young persons who grow up, leave their parents households, and are forced to move to another community to find housing they can afford.

Raymond shakes his head: "It's a strange city -- we raise kids to move out of the community."

Exchange students add an international flavor

By KATHY GOTSHALL

nial Education Park has an inter-night national air with its seven foreign exchange students.

Only a slight accent distinguishes them from the other students as they the third grade. They study a second file from class to class, exercise in the gym and wait in cafeteria lines. However, unlike the majority of students they have a means of comparison when they give their opinions.

They find Plymouth to be friendly but expensive and are critical of the lack of public transportation and meeting places for youths.

anywhere without a car," said Alexandra Bernaldez, a dark-haired 16-year-old from Buenos Aires, capital of Argentina. "The public transportation is very good and inexpensive in Argentina. For us. 20 blocks is nothing. My friends and I take buses everywhere in the city but in Plymouth this is impossible," she

In Mexico, A. Rufo Gutierrez and Sonia L. Mjuica Iniguez enjoy dancing in discotheques and talking with their friends in cafes. They like parties and American music. Both agreed there are not many places in Plymouth where students can meet and talk. "Here in restaurants you eat and are expected to leave soon afterwards." they said.

Dennis Casaje. 15, who likes art and plays basketball, football and baseball said entertainment is much more expensive in the United States than in the Philippines. "I go to the movies at least once a week at home because it only costs 35 cents or 40 cents. The price of shows in the United States surprised me," Dennis said.

According to Antonio Lonigro, advisor for the foreign students, none of the students will receive credit for this year of study. They are living Youth For Understanding and International Cultural Exchange programs and have made this sacrifice for the experience of living in another country and improving their English.

The academic work load is heavier in other countries. Students take a minimum of 10 subjects and have two PLYMOUTH - Plymouth Centen- to three hours of homework every > Sten Westerberg, a tall, blond 18-year-old said "in Sweden students begin their first foreign language in language in seventh grade and a third in 10th grade.

"In this high school there are many students who have never studied any other language than English," Sten said. "American students have very little knowledge about other countries. We are often asked whether there are dogs in Germany or if people eat "In this area it is difficult to go sandwiches in Mexico. Someone asked me if Africa is near Sweden and how far Latin America is from South

> Sten thinks geography, international relations, comparative government and languages should be stressed in American schools.

> Elisa Alvarenga, 16, wants to be a doctor and return to the United States to specialize. "In Brazil I only go to school in the morning. We do not elect our courses and the subjects are very difficult," she said, but added there is more "social life" in American schools.

> "Brazilian students who want to go to a university must pass an exam at 18 years of age. They are serious and work hard," Elisa explained.

Heiner Labonde, a stocky 17-year-old from West Germany is impressed with the facilities in the high school. "The library, science and art departments are better equipped than in Germany," he said. "Our schools are crowded and we must share a limited number of supplies," Heiner

All of the students will return to their countries this summer. The struggle for summer employment is apparently nonexistent. Rufo, like the others, has never had a summer job. Students do not usually look for work because it is a lack of prestige for a family to have working children. It means they cannot afford to support their families. We ask our parents for money when we need it," he said.

Both of Dennis' parents are optometrists. During the summer he helps in their office but he said it would be very strange to read want ads looking for a job."

"In Germany most of the positions are filled by adults and trained people. Because of the high rate of unemployment there are few jobs available for only three months. We spend the summer along the beach with our friends," Heiner said.

Dennis would like to return to the Philippines with an American flag and an emblem straight from the White House. "The Philippines should adopt some of the American automobile safety laws. A large percentage of our cars do not have seat belts," he

However, Dennis said there should be stricter laws pertaining to crimes in America. "Punishment should discourage people from committing crimes rather than make them think they can get out of jail," he said.

"I don't know what gifts I will take back to my family in Argentina," said Alexandra. American products such as blue jeans and Mickey Mouse watches are not uncommon in European shops.

"What I miss are fresh flowers and fruits and vegetables. In Argentina, my mother buys everything in small shops in our neighborhood. Perhaps there is less variety but the quality of the products is superior to the large supermarkets," said Alexandra.

Both the American families and the students say they have benefited from this exchange.

"I am happy to be here living with an American family," Sonia said. "I really feel a member of the Arthur Desch family. Sometimes I get sad because I know I'm going back to my country soon. I will never forget this Suzi Desch, president of the high school exchange club, went to Holland two years ago as a foreign student. "Sonia is the third exchange student we have had. When she came, Sonia hardly spoke a word of English but now she understands everything. The ties between foreign students and their families are never forgotten," Suzi said.

Dennis believes going to another country, meeting other people, learning about their customs and understanding them is the best way to understand your own country.

"Suddenly Dennis became a member of our family," said Mrs. James O'Day. "We get as much out of the exchange as we give, if not more. It is a tremendous experience. The worst part is saying goodbye at the airport after having spent a year to-

Smit wants points restored

PLYMOUTH - State Rep. Raymond J. Smit (R - Ann Arbor) has introduced House Bill 5929 to restore the penalty point system to the state's new highway speed law, brought about by the energy shortage.

Smit's bill deletes all sections exempting violators from receiving penalty points if the violation is more than 55 miles per hour and less than 70 mph.

At the outset, Smit called the new law "unenforceable and discriminatory". He said that on many highways where former speed limit signs are now gone there is no way of knowing the old posted speed limit, so law enforcement is hampered.

Canton Dem Club seeks candidates

CANTON-The Democratic Club of Canton has sent letters to civic organizations in Canton Township requesting assistance in selecting a slate of candidates for the upcoming Aug. 6 primary election.

The letter, which is signed by Democratic Club President Bob Greenstein, asks the civic groups to submit the names of qualified candidates for any of the positions of supervisor, clerk, treasurer and two trustee posts that are up for election.

"It is extremely important that the Democratic Club choose a slate of candidates which is representative of all of the people of our township so that we may present a united front at the primary and subsequent November election," Greenstein said.

"This is the reason we are seeking the help of the many concerned civic groups in the township," he added.

"While the methods and procedures of the many township organizations are varied, I believe the goal of nomi-meeting set for mid-May.

nating a truly representative government for the township is shared by every group and every citizen in Canton," Greenstein stated.

The letter explains that the club will consider all suggestions and that the organization's board of directors will meet with any interested group to discuss candidate recommendations.

Greenstein said that township residents not affiliated with any group also are welcome to submit recommendations. Suggestions should be sent to Democratic Club of Cantón, Box 1, Plymouth.

Among the groups receiving letters were: Windsor Park, Northwest Canton Homeowners, Carriage Hills, Pickwick Village, Canton Newcomers Club, League of Women Voters, Canton Chamber of Commerce, Canton Jaycees and the Michigan Mobile Homeowners.

Among those receiving certificates are: Charles E. Bietler, 19772 Imperial; and Jerome A. Myszkowski Jr., 26721 Dover, both of Redford; Connie R. Murphy of 35978 Lyndon, Livonia; and, Kathy J. Rinna of 44756 Twyckingham Lane, Plymouth.

Other new CPAs are Westland residents Milton L. Baker of 8142 Beatrice, Edwin G. Ciesla of 6235 Westland Dr., Vincent E. Grainer of 34334 Spring Valley Dr., and Michael Yugovich II of 7436 Central.

Commissioners consider ethics

All elected and appointed Wayne of others; arrangements for personal County officials , may eventually be subject to a code of ethics.

The proposed code, submitted to the general government committee of the been under study since last August.

It was submitted by a three - member subcommittee which included Brian G. Arrowsmith (D - Plymouth), Richard E. Manning (D - Redford) and Huey A. Gerguson (D - Detroit). If approved by the full board, the code would establish a five member ethics commission to investigate alleged violations and report findings to the board of commissioners. Commission members would be appointed by the beard chairman for staggered five year terms with not more than three being from the same

The code would cover three areas of conflict of interest. These are: unauthorized divulgence of information for personal gain or for the gain

Need counsel? then, prove it.

Wayne County Board of Commissioners Chairman Robert E. FitzPatrick is urging stricter procedures for assigning count appointed attorneys for indigent defendants in Detroit Recorder's Court FitzPatrick implied that Recorder's Court judges do not require sufficient evidence of a defendant's inability to pay for counsel. State law requires the county to pay for indigent defense - a $2 million budget item in Wayne County this year. He said he recently learned Recorder's fudges "do not use the same procedure that the Circuit Court uses in indigent assignments in Wayne County.' He noted: "We have very complicated procedures to indicate the indigency of an individual for federal welfare and health care services." He called the assignment of a court appointed attorney, "an expenditure to the taxpayers of Wayne County that is ever increasing" and urged new methods "so that disbursement of the funds are more equitable for the taxpayers."

A U. S. Supreme Court ruling requires courts to assign attorneys for defendants who can't afford to hire their own.

Golf course now open

The golf course at Kensington Metropark near Milford is now open. The 18 - hole course covers 6,400 yards and par is 71.

Hours are (when weather permits due to morning frost conditions) 8 a.m. to dusk daily, with earlier times on Saturday, Sunday and holidays and extended hours later in the season.

Fees for the course are: 18 - hole. Monday through Friday, $4.50; and Saturday, Sunday and holidays, $5.50; 9 - hole, Monday through Friday, $3; and Saturday, Sunday and holidays, benefit based on position or authority; solicitation or acceptance of gifts, favors or other profit arrangements.

. Arrowsmith, chairman of the subcounty board of commissioners, has committee which submitted the code, said: "We are blazing a new trail with this code. Our study found that Montgomery County, Md. is the only individual county with a code of ethics although the State of Iowa has just adopted a code that applies to all its counties."

Arrowsmith continued, "We made the code as tough as we legally could. I. don't think any elected official would want to risk public censure and disclosure of the reasons for it."

Investigations and findings would be confidential until a commission majority had voted to submit a finding of guilt to the board of commissioners.

As an alternative, the commission would have the authority "to pass appropiate corrective or rectifying orders directed to the official and department or agency involved," after notifying the board chairman.

Failure to comply would be grounds for action by the board of commis-

The preamble to the proposed code says it is "essential that citizens have confidence and trust in public officials who should carry out their duties with absolute honesty and integrity."

Serenade of music fulfills youth's life

By CORINNE ABATT

No matter what musician you decide Randy Herkness. 14. of Garden City sounds like, you won't be too far

The versatile young ninth grader from Radcliff Junior High, who started with a guitar when he was seven. has added organ, bass and banjo to his instrumental repertoire, as well as hundreds of songs.

Randy is one of those born with a rich musical talent. For several years he has been sharing it with countless numbers.

He does the folk mass at 9 a.m. each Sunday in St. Richard Catholic Church, Westland, singing and playing the guitar, and another mass each Saturday at 4:30 p.m. in St. Raphael Catholic Church, Garden City. At this service, he plays the big pipe organ and usually sings several songs accompanying himself on the guitar.

For the masses, he may choose songs such as "Day By Day"; "Bridge Over Troubled Waters"; or "Teach the World to Sing." But, no way is he limited to these popular ones. After hearing a recording of the Lenoard Bernstein mass written for the Kennedy Center opening, he wrote an arrangement for his own use.

Esch attacks HEW bungling

U.S. Rep. Marvin L. Esch (R - Ann Arbor) has attacked the U.S. Dept. of Bealth. Education and Welfare tHEW) for "inexcusable bureaucratic bungling" which has virtually elimidated a scholarship program for needy students.

Esch, whose 2nd District includes Livonia and Plymouth, says the program was enacted by Congress more than 17 months ago to help needy students become doctors, dentists, nurses and other health specialists.

Esch has asked the General Accounting Office (GAO) and House commerce subcommittee on health to be in immediate investigations into the failure of HEW to implement the program aimed at relieving the shortage of health professionals in many parts of the nation.

The Public Health Service had advertised that applicants for the current semester would be notified by Feb. 15 if they qualified for a scholarship. HEW, however, hadn't approved proposed rule making for the program until March 25.

This bungling. Esch says, has deprived at least 1, 000 students including eight at the University of Michigan of consideration of their applications for scholarships.

"Furthermore, HEW claims now expenses can be vaid for the period prior to acceptance so that any students granted scholarships this year equal to only one month stipend will be required to serve an entire year of obligated service.

"This is absurd and will discourage student participation as will the mandatory two - year service requirement.

In a letter to Caspar Weinberger. HEW Secretary. Esch noted there are more than 132 counties in the nation that have no doctors and more than 5,000 communities which have no health care services whatsoever.

The voice is pure Randy Herkness, but the rhythm and style are reminiscent of Presley.

Randy listens as his mother plays the tape, bounces lightly to the rhythm, taps his foot and does a scat chorus that makes the original sound even better.

"It all started when we bought him a cheap electric guitar for Christmas when he was seven," says Mrs. Herkness, "he really took to it and he made music.. Then we got him a folk guitar and another electric guitar. He took lessons for three years.'

Randy, a straight "A" student, plays the bass with the school orchestra and is editor of the school news-

Music, Randy says, is always going to be a part of his life, but he has already made up his mind he is going

In the meantime, he is going to keep right on playing, arranging, and composing, something he has gotten into recently. There is a possibility that he may record one or more of his own songs. He plans to join the musicians' union when he reaches the required age of 16.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Herkness, have furnished all of the in-struments. Randy was born with the talent, but works constantly to improve it. As a result, this young musician is achieving early and well - deserved attention in the field of country and pop music.

School board association asks for fairer negotiations

LANSING — The governor has been asked to schedule a series of public hearings statewide on several legislative proposals to revise the Michigan Public Employe Relations Act.

The request was made recently by the Michigan Assn. of School Boards (MASB) to help resolve labor disputes in the public school sector.

Mrs. Mary Keeler of Grand Rapids. MASB president, says local school board members strongly believe voters and taxpayers want to see the act revised before the new school year begins in the fall.

"We anticipate that the people of this state will react very strongly if there is another rerun of apparently programmed statewide teacher strikes this fall. as we experienced during 1973."

Two key positions being taken by MASB are: that the starting day of school in the fall be mandated by state law, such as being the Monday after Labor Day: and, provisions in the law which would guarantee the right of local boards to establish a school calendar by Aug. 15 of each

The association also asks for provisions to assure that all established procedures, such as mediation or fact finding, are exhausted before an impasse is reached in bargaining or a strike is called.

The Legislature is being asked to commit itself to adopting the annual state school aid appropriation bill no later than April 15 of every year.

Although the MASB would like to $ see strikes by teachers avoided, the associations says when strikes are taken steps should be made to relax the present 180 - day minimum school requirement.

"Teachers must not be permitted to strike without 'loss of pay' for every day that they are on strike." the now owned by Jack Wilcox. Purchase price of the stable was $2,500.

In those days one of the attractions of Grange affiliation was the chance to take part in purchase contracts under which members bought supplies at reduced prices.

When the word went out that the coal, binders twine, feed or fence posts ordered were due in town, horses were hitched up all over the

Down to the railroad siding rumbled dozens of wagons to pick up whatever was brought in that day.

When Mrs. Louise Spicer Tritton joined the organization 52 years ago she lived six miles from town on the Spicer farm at Warren and Napier (now Pilgrim Hills subdivision).

The original land grant deed signed by President John Quincy Adams for this farm is still in the possession of her sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Norman, who continues to own 10 acres at the

"I was 14 when I joined," said Mrs. Tritthn. "My parents ate, slept and drank the Grange so it was perfectly natural for me to join too. People did things as a family then."

Mrs. Mary Fillmore who joined in 1914 recalled that the Grange had dinners as well as day meetings in those days, and one of the things talked about was having better roads.

"They 've worked hard to get the Canton Center Road paved from Michigan Avenue to Plymouth," she said "and this was done in 1915."

"The building was heated with a Grange, reported Mrs. Hilda Lunn. It craft to Davison and then to John R. dents attended only during their high coal stove," said Lloyd Fillmore who lives at 197 S. Union. "We had an indoor privy like you have never seen before. They called it a depot toilet because the railroad used it - it didn't freeze in winter. We ran water in it during meetings to keep it from

"You sure got a cold breeze up from the bottom of it," added one member who preferred not to be identified.

The original box stalls and hay chute were still in the stable when the Grange took up its new residence. The wood was all brightly varnished possibly because the horses stabled there were considered the pride of the village.

In 1932, a fire broke out in the burned a hole up through the second floor, destroyed records and did enough damage so that the members had to meet in each others' homes until repair work could be completed.

The building now has a meeting hall on both floors, a modern kitchen and the depot toilet is long gone.

"The Grange organization has worked hard to bring about such improvements in American life as rural free delivery, parcel post, the extension service of land grant colleges, rural electification, pure food laws and social security," explained Mrs Lunn who lives at 15854 Marilyn.

According to Grange records, the organization used to hold a harvest picnic every year. In 1891 it was held

To help the farm families pass the time in the winter the Grange had literary contests for two winters. In 1912 - 13, it offered prizes at rural school fairs for farm - oriented work done by the pupils.

Reminiscing about Plymouth Mrs. Fillmore recollected that the town once had red brick pavements and street car tracks. "It was a shame taught by one teacher for about 25 to they covered up those bricks," she 30 children scattered through eight "Schoolcraft had two paved lanes and very little traffic," he said.

His wife remembers that the park in the center of Plymouth once presented a rural picture that would delight Andrew Wyeth or even Norman Rockwell. Along Ann Arbor Trail were hitching posts to which Mrs. Tritton often hitched her horse and

A tank full of water for horses stood to one side. For a while a bandstand, frequently filled with local musicians, was a part of the park scene. A severe ice storm in March 1922 damaged many of the trees in this park.

Saturday night movies were shown on the streets in the center of town from 1915 to about 1929. A large curtain was draped over the area where the S.S. Kresge store is now located. Across the street a projector was set up, with the viewers in between.

Mrs. Tritton spent eight years in the one - room Hanford School at Hanford and Ridge. This was not because she failed to be promoted. It was a school grades.

Not being 14, Mrs. Tritton was unable to obtain a driver's license. "But the police gave me a permit to drive just to school and back," she said. "I could only run errands if I had written permission from my parents."

Most of these Grange oldtimers regret the passing of the rural era they remember. "When I came in to high school it was extremely unusual for me to run into someone I didn't know," observed Mrs. Tritton.

Mr. Fillmore finds himself getting a little angry now and again at the thought of good farming land now being swallowed up by housing developments. "Some of those money hogs have rocks in their heads," he said. "There are plenty of places around with sandy soil that could serve their purpose just as well."

Trying to adapt and build for the future, the Grange two years ago started a Junior Grange for young people between the ages of five and 14. It emphasizes such things as woodworking, a growing project, cookie making, and occasionally some needlecraft.

At the present time a member no longer has to be an active farmer. it is open to anyone with an interest in

At Eloise the man answering said they do not accept patients "just for drugs (problems) unless there's a mental problem associated with it.

"But I have some numbers here I can give you," he said, putting down the phone.

After a two-minute pause he came back, "I can't seem to find the numbers of the crisis center but if you can find the number. . . " he then laid the phone down again and after another pause came back with the number of a clinic in Detroit that offered a methadone program.

Northville State Hospital said they do not treat patients only for drug problems.

Larry and Shelley considered the Detroit clinic but decided they preferred to kick their heroin habit "cold turkey" rather than through the methadone treatment.

They were both critical of the methadone program because, they felt, it was substituting one drug for another: Later, as Larry was relating his experiences, he told of a young man he knew who had been a heroin addict since he was 16 years old.

He had tried methadone treatment to break his habit, Larry said.

"After a while he had to go to all three (methadone clinics) at once to get a buzz." Larry said the young man told him. "He was buying methadone from other patients in the program who sold their methadone to get

At last, after he reached the doctor, the arrangements were made but then it was discovered there was room at the hospital for Shelley but not for

Shelley and Larry went in when two openings were found.

Those are questions that this community must face, stress Earl, Larry and Shelley.

PLYMOUTH-"The bicycle is back with us," said Plymouth City Commissioner John C. Cummings at Monday's commission meeting.

We have issued more than 1,000 bike licenses already this year." he continued, "and have a duty to our citizens to protect bicyclists."

Cummings' comments came just before the commission's passage of a resolution to approve the proposed bicycle route and printing of a bike safety pamphlet including rules, regulations and map of the adopted route. (The map appeared in Monday's Plymouth Observer & Eccentric)

The council voted unanimously to spend the $6,500 that may be necessary to implement the adopted route and print the related pamphlet. Signs would be installed along the route and some other improvements in the route made with the funds. Money for the route would come from federal revenue sharing.

In other action, the commission assed a resolution agreeing to prohibit stopping, standing and parking on M-14 (Ann Arbor Road) within Plymouth city limits after improvements being made to the road are completed by the Michigan State Highway Commission.

That decision was part of an agreement signed with the state highway commission affirming the city's action in 1973 to disallow parking on Ann Arbor Road from Sheldon to Mill.

Old auto dealers a passing scene

By W. W. EDGAR

PLYMOUTH - Another era has ended in Plymouth.

When Walter Beglinger recently sold his Cadillac agency to Don Mas-sey he was the last of the colorful auto dealers who dominated the Plymouth scene when cars started rolling off the assembly lines in record numbers.

Passing into the wings of retirement, he joined his old competitors, Paul Wiedman, who had one of the first Ford agencies: Carl Shear, who had a Buick agency on Starkweather where the Blunk store now stands; Ernie Allison, who had the Chevrolet agency on Main Street before it was moved to Plymouth Road, and Ross Berry, the Pontiac dealer on Ann Arbor Road who later sold to Bruce Craig.

Shear, who was twice mayor of Plymouth, entered the auto dealership when he purchased the agency from Clyde Bentley, and retained it until he sold to Jack Selle. Jack left the Starkweather address and built his own building on Ann Arbor Road. Weideman was one of the most colorful of the lot and had a major part in developing the downtown area. In fact, he was one of the group that sponsored the building of the May flower Hotel. The parking lot on Main Street at the side of the hotel is named in his honor.

The Chevrolet agency thrived under Allison, too, even though he was at the end of Main Street, close to the terminal point of the old plank road.

As the years piled up, he finally turned the agency over to the management of his son, Frank, and later sold it to Don Hassinger, a young Ann Arbor man. He sold it to Lou La Riche who moved it down to Plymouth Road in a new agency to keep company with Leo Calhoun who purchased the Weidernan Ford agency and moved it out of the downtown

Meanwhile, the Berry Pontiac agency remained on Ann Arbor Road and later became the Bruce Craig dealership.

While the others were moving about, Beglinger was thriving on Ann Arbor Road until two years ago. At this point General Motors ruled against one man having two cars in an agency and removed the Oldsmobile, leaving Walter with the Cadillac

The car dealers were quite a group of keen rivals but staunch sticklers to the business at hand. They thrived long before the days of "making deals" for cars. When you dealt with them it was the first price - and no

There were other dealers in the Plymouth area, chief of whom was Clyde Smith who handled the Essex and Hudson cars that have long since

Sheriff car in accident

PLYMOUTH - Two Wayne County Sheriff deputies were slightly injured Tuesday evening in a two - car collision on Mill at Ann Arbor Trail.

Police Chief Timothy Ford said that at about 6:30 p.m. the sheriff unit, driven by Deputy David Wygonik, was going south on Mill with lights flashing. As he attempted to pull around a truck, a car driven by Jerry Lampton, 21, of 358 Maple, was making a turn into a driveway. The two cars collided, and the sheriff unit crashed headon into a tree.

Wygonik and his partner, Martin Mittlestat, were taken to Wayne County General Hospital suffering cuts and bruises, police said. Lampton was reported not seriously injured.

The accident is still under investigation. No ticket has been issued.

passed from the automotive world. With them too, were Tom Notebart with a Dodge-Plymouth agency; Jack Chapman who handled the De Soto and Plymouth; Cy Owens, the Kaiser-Frazer dealer at the close of World War II: Lou Chalmers who handled the Willys - Overland and Floyd Hellman, who had the Reo and Jewett agency. Like the cars they handled, many of . them have gone from the scene. They were representatives of an era, too, in that they were prominent before autos were built in mass production num-

Strangely, though the Alter car was built in Plymouth, there was no agency here. It has been said, through the years that only a few of the later cars were built and the sole survivor now stands in the Dunning Memorial Building as one of the prime exhibits of the Historical Society.

The long-time auto dealers have passed out of the scene but their colorful contributions to Plymouth's business community will not be forgotten.

Schools question land gift

PLYMOUTH - A gift of 9.519 acres of land adjacent to the Saltz Road site has been taken under advisement by the Plymouth Community Board of

The land is being offered by the Republic Development Co. as a possible future school site.

The hitch in the offer came when Trustee George Lawton asked what could be done with the land at the moment, saying the board may be held responsible for its upkeep and in turn would open the way for requests from other developments.

Finally, it was agreed to have a member of the board meet with Plymouth Township officials to discuss plans. If the area is not used for a future school site, the land would revert back to Plymouth Township and likely would become a park or would be sold for homes.

Give a vote of confidence

EDITOR:

Are we so like the ostrich that we cannot see the problems which accompany an inferior school district? The problems include an almost immediate exodus of families who value a "good" education for their children.

These people place "for sale" signs up by the hundreds in our immediate neighborhoods, serving as a warning to any new home buyers that problems exist in our neighborhood.

We can prevent this from happening in the Livonia and Westland areas by giving our schools a vote of confidence to continue being "good." A yes vote in the next millage election is essential.

However, in previous years, the board's excuse always ways, "We can't FIND one." This year, of course, the rationale is, "We can't AFFORD one."

Is the school board truly sincere about wanting to gain the public's trust? If so, it is hoped they will accept the accounting firm's perennial recommendation and make a concentrated effort to hire this individual -

Let schools tighten belt

EDITOR:

Mrs. R. Brown is so right. If the Livonia school board doesn't get its way, it just keeps coming back. They did this in the past, and now we have extra classrooms that are not being properly used.

If Supt. Upton was doing a better job, he would not need all the administrators, assistant principals and counselors. Mr. Upton still believes taxpayers are willing to finance Upton's Camp Livonia folly.

Maybe, if trustee Connie Hierta understood that taxes cost money, she could explain the complicated issues of school financing to the voters instead of deciding on what tactics she can use against voters.

The Observer didn't do the right thing either by trying to convince the voters that the additional millage would not increase their taxes because of the homestead exemption. It is apparent you haven't filed your income tax and don't understand the exemption.

Why not continue the present millage and do the belt tightening that should have been done long ago?

School trustee has 'had it'

EDITOR:

education. They have an election, we get out and vote no, and it never That's from one of your readers' recent letter. I agree!

I've had it with the Livonia Board of Education, too! I'm swapping the Monday night flustration called board meetings and often Tuesday and Wednesday and Thursday nights and Saturday mornings also, with a trustee from a district in Alaska or American Samoa or somewhere else half a world away for the next two years. That way I can give the residents who bother to vote at all exactly what 50.371 per cent of them evidently wanted March 11, further emasculation of an educational system that once was renowned throughout the land for the excellence of its offerings for kids.

Under my new arrangement, I'll be able to give 50.371 per cent of the voters of the Pago Pago School District exactly "what they want. . . I'll be able to completely blot out the hours of reading, study and listening I've done in the last four years in order to know and understand something about the Livonia School District and what it takes to educate 34,495 of someone else's kids

If five bucks a month in new taxes is so important to the voters of Pago Pago, I'll give 'em cuts and cuts and more cuts. I won't have to worry about their understanding of such mysteries as the inflation of school costs, new state aid formulas, increased SEV per student when enrollment drops, statutes on collective bargaining, or the difference between building construction and school operating dollars, before they go down to vote on a school millage issue. .

The board is going to be trying very hard again to explain the facts of this community's kids' needs and dispel the misconceptions, misinformation and myths that too many of us are using as rationale to go and vote no, or not go and vote at all.

I pray that Mrs. R. Brown, who wrote you recently, and her husband and her neighbors do "get out and vote again" June 10. I only ask that they also give their board a couple of hours of their time at one of their neighborhoods schools to share with one of us the story as we see it about their school district and what dollars it takes to make even a minimal education available to all of their kids.

Beautiful county is clean up goal

County commissioner Ervin A. Steiner, Jr. is elated by the response to his idea for an annual 60 - day spring clean up period in Wayne County.

He predicts "dramatic results within a very few years."

Acting on his proposal the board of commissioners recently proclaimed the 60 days beginning April 1 as the time for the cleaning, painting and fixing effort.

Steiner says that the reaction from cities and organizations has been very encouraging. Dearborn, Redford and Wyandotte have pledged cooperation as well as a number of cities on the eastern border

"Many people complain about messy streets, parks and alleys," Steiner noted. "It's true that government should do its best to clean up those areas, but in most municipalities it would mean higher taxes for government to really do the job alone.

Steiner, whose business of staging industrial shows and other events takes him to major cities in the United States and Europe, believes the program could have important side benefits.

"We in the nation's third largest county can inspire the whole world," he said. "I believe we can make Wayne County one of the must visit spots on every tourist's list....It won't happen overnight. But if all of us pitch in starting now, I think we will see dramatic results within a very few years."

Don't blame wheat

At current prices, the farm value of wheat in a 11/2- pound loaf of bread is just over seven cents. That's a rise of 3.4 cents in five years, compared to a 10.3 - cent rise in other costs involved in producing a loaf of bread.

Ford blasts education bill

U.S. Rep. William D. Ford (D-Taylor) has criticized the White House-endorsed formula for distributing federal education funds included in the education bill which passed the House of Representatives this month.

Ford, whose 15th/ District includes Westland, Garden City and Canton Township, recently told educators in Flint that the formula for distributing federal educational funds was both irrational and inequitable.

"It doesn't provide enough money for suburban schools and it doesn't do an adequate job for the big city school districts either."

Ford says the stated purpose of the bill was wrong. "The stated purpose is to channel money to educationally disadvantaged children - or so-called poor kids. But we weren't writing a poverty bill; we were writing an education bill."

Ford argued that federal funds should be channeled to every district having educationally disadvantaged children, not just to districts having poor children. The terms, he added, aren't synonymous.

"What the bill really does is to help sparsely populated rural school districts at the expense of the big cities and suburbs." Wayne County would get an 18 per cent boost under the formula, Ford explained, compared to 146 per cent for Charlevoix County. 155 per cent for Houghton County, and a whopping 290 per cent for rural Keweenaw County.

Ford said he voted for final passage of the bill because it extended virtually every federal education program for three more years,

OLD BUSINESS - High Rise Associates, Bud Cline, Executive Director -- Re: Tax Abatement for High Rise Development on Ann Arbor Road. Mr. Cline explained that there are three basic rates set by the government and the State of Michigan for rents. Anything up to $3600 is entitled to full subsidy. The rent would be from $45.00 to $60.00 a: month including utilities. The basic rate is from $3600 to $7600. The rent would be from $115.00 to $120.00 a month including all utilities. Twenty percent of units must be rented to the people with less than $3600 income a year. And only ten percent of the units at market value. The third rate is an income of over $7600 and that is called exceptional rent. The rent would be about $145.00 to $150.00. Mrs. Holmes moved that we ask our attorney to prepare an Ordinance for permitting tax abatement for a High Rise Development on Ann Arbor Road and request that it be on the April 23, 1974 agenda. Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Verduce. Re: Report from Herald Hamill on problems with sewer system in Lake Pointe Subdivision. Mr. Hamill read a letter that was sent to the Board that stated that Mr. Kincade, Mr. Rorabacher and Mr. Hamill observed and measured the flow at critical points in the Lake Pointe Village sanitary sewer system. Mr. Hamill explained the problem is that the weeping tiles flow into the sanitary sewer and not the storm sewer. Mr. Ash said that a solution would sump pumps throughout the neighborhood pumping the water into the storm sewer. Mr. Hamill also said that a solution might be future construction of the proposed Sly Drain but this was being held up because of not knowing the depth at which it should be built. They must wait to see what the development will be in the area. Mr. Hamill said that a present solution might be to continue pumping to avoid flooding. Mr. Verduce said he wanted to know what will be done in the future. Mrs. Holmes said that Board had talked about the Sly Drain but that the cost is now at about $2 million. The Board, in the future, will have to face the fact of a bond issue. This will take one and a half years to get underway. Mrs. Richardson warned of the pitfalls of a referendum, and the possibility that the electorate may even then reject any proposed sewer construction: Supervisor McLaren thanked everyone for their comments and said it was now in the hands of the Board for a decision as to future

Children from split homes often need aid

Suburban parents have organized to b children of divorced parents.

The state of the s

Board members from Westland, Livonia, Garden City and other suburbs met Sunday to launch the Wayne County Humane Society for Children.

Their goal is to change state laws relating to children of divorced parents and help meet the emotional needs of those children, said board member Peter Narsisian, of 6640 Farmington Road, Westland.

He said there are no state laws which specifically meet the needs of those children, who are being harmed by irresponsible mothers and fathers.

There are no laws which penalize a parent for neglecting a child's emotional needs, he said.

"Those children have been neglected to the kind of violence which doesn't require hate but simply a lack of love and concern for their emotional needs," he added.

He said the "hidden violence" to those children is devastating to their minds for the rest of their lives and this affects a whole generation and society in a destructive way.

Specifically, he said divorced fathers are failing to visit their children for long periods with the mother moving away and using distance as a weapon and a wedge against the fa-

The new group has contacted state legislators to gain their encouragement on suggested changes in laws covering divorced parents.

One suggestion is that fathers be responsible for providing financial support for the emotional needs of their children, who would be cared for by a male attendant who would represent a positive male image. Narsisian said.

Reuther hits Esch votes on consumers

John Reuther, candidate for the Democratic nomination for 2nd District congressman, has criticized Rep. Marvin Esch's support of "gutting amendments" to the Consumer Protection Agency bill.

Speaking before a group of retirees at United Auto Workers Local 849 in Ypsilanti, Reuther endorsed the vote of Esch (R - Ann Arbor) for establishing the agency.

But Reuther said Esch supported amendments offered by Rep. Clarence Brown (R - Ohio), "an attempt to severely restrict the power of the proposed agency." The Brown amendments would have taken away the agency's interrogatory power and limited the right of the CPA to participate in, and seek judicial review of, agency decisions, said Reuther. The necessity for a strong, effective measure designed to protect the consumers has been demonstrated time and again," said Reuther. "This amendment would have taken the jeeth out of the bill. The American consumer has, for too long and in too many instances, been plagued with products that are unsafe and transactions that are unfair.

"A few years ago, the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy observed that the business community has the Department of Commerce representing it, the farmer has the Department of Agriculture, workers have the Department of Labor, and most other groups have effective lobbyists to speak for them. But the consumer must rely entirely upon Congress."

Heredity is a factor

What makes some persons allergic?

Allergic people are different. Their bidies recognize and react to naturally occuring substances such as pollen grains, mold spores, house dust and foods which have no such effects on non - allergic people.

These substances are called "antigens" and are generally protein molecules capable of entering the body and stimulating the production of antibodies. Antigens vary in strength. An example of a very powerful one is the smallpox vaccine, which stimulates protective antibodies in nearly 100 per cent of people.

If both parents are allergic, three -fourths of their children will be aller-

The allergic person, therefore, is not lacking anything but actually has something extra. He has in his blood and body tissues antibodies — that is, protein molecules which develop after exposure to the weak, naturally occurring antigen substances.

Sometimes it takes months of exposure to develop these antibodies, sometimes years. For instance, a person coming to this area from Europe, no symptoms the first mid - August to the first frost season. Usually it is the second ragweed season when symptoms start, but it might be several years later. Some people become allergic to ragweed at age 50 after being exposed to it for 49 seasons.

Antibodies are very specific. If the antigen is house dust, the antibody is anti - house dust. Ragweed causes the development of anti - ragweed anti-

If this reaction occurs in the lung tissues, one has asthma; if in the nasal tissues or eye tissues, one has hay fever or sinus; if in the skin, hives or eczema; and if in the intestinal tract, one may have colic, diarrhea or vomiting. If the brain is the shock organ, headaches occur. The symptoms depend on what the shock organ is - the lung, nose, eyes, skin or intestinal tract. One person allergic to ragweed could have hay fever from mid - August to the first ceptible shock organ or tissue frost, another could have asthma, and

Although food allergy tends to favor intestinal symptoms, some persons have nasal symptoms or asthma when they eat a food to which they are allergic. In the majority of cases, multiple allergies are the rule.

In summary: To be allergic one must have a hereditary propensity to develop antibodies after varying degrees of exposure to weak antigens in nature. During subsequent, even minute, exposures, symptoms occur and are determined by the particular suspresent.

In the morning Dr. Stanley Krippner, director of the Maimonides Dream Laboratory in Brooklyn and director of research York Institute for Child Development, will discuss ESP and related phenomena in the USSR and Eastern Europe.

The afternoon session will feature an address by Dr. Krippner on Kirlian photography and psychotronic generators. In addition, Dr. Richard Brooks. associate professor of philosophy at Oakland, and Ruth Reva, a psychic and teacher of ESP, will join Dr. Krippner for a discussion of parapsychology today.

Car pool drivers will pay smaller insurance premiums

An auto insurance plan which rewards drivers who reduce the amount of their driving has been approved by the Michigan Insurance Bureau and put into effect across the state.

Instituted by-Allstate Insurance Co., this plan is directed primarily to drivers in car pools. Under a new car pool classification plan, adult - rated motorists can reduce their present auto insurance premiums by limiting the number of miles they travel.

Their premium will be based on the coverage they have, the distance they previously drove to work before joining a car pool, and their annual mileage, said Albert Bilgen, regional manager of Allstate.

For example, a driver who lives near the center of Detroit and normally drives 10 - 20 miles one way to work, can save $21 or six per cent by joining & car pool. At the same time, depending on how much he reduces his annual mileage, he could be eligible for the additional saving of $40. bringing the total savings to $61 or 18 per cent.

Economic encouragement is seen for women

"A paycheck is an indication of one level of your value as a human being - and it's beautiful."

That word of economic encouragement came to 150 women from Barbara Kabcenel, director of graduate opportunities and placement (GROP) at the Orchard Ridge Campus of Oakland Community College in Farmington Hills.

The women, all white and 20 to 55 years in age range, attended an OCC career seminar for women Monday.

Ms. Kabcenel said calls come to her office most often from employers seeking secretarial and accounting help, and most often for full time

"Of course they know we are a junior college so they wouldn't call us about needing a lawyer or a doctor. "I HAVE MY own campaign on,"

she said, "to convince employers that two women working part time at the same job instead of one full time might be to the employer's advan-

"Instead of one woman who's all dragged out by the end of the day, you get a fresh new employe at noon every day."

So far, her campaign hasn't been overly successful.

While women dominate the nursing, teaching and secretarial fields, Ms. Kabcenel cited figures showing that women comprise only 14 per cent of all photographers, nine per cent of the musicians, nine per cent of doctors and only two per cent of engineers.

"Women are fighting societal conditioning when it comes to seeking employment. Child care, husband care and the caring for old parents are all considered primary duties of women, and even their neighbors may show disapproval of their being working mothers."

MARILYN BECKER, a psychiatric social worker at Operation Hope in Detroit, was quick to point out that women are so conditioned they often fail to realize raising a family and keeping a home are already a full time career.

This wasn't a pitch on her part to keep women at home. She said, "I just want you to sppreciate yourself a little more." Rape victim aid proposed

A network of rape crisis centers throughout Wayne County is being proposed by Commissioner Mary E. Dumas (R - Livonia).

She made the proposal at a recent meeting of the general government committee of the board of commis-

The centers, she said, which would provide professional and volunteer assistance for rape victims, might qualify for federal funding.

Mrs. Dumas also asked for special training for new police officers which would include 256 hours training o rape orientation. She also recommended similar training for others such as social workers who would provide continuous moral support to the victim "from the time she reports the attack until she has recovered from the impact of the trial."

Along with Commissioner Rose Mary C. Robinson (D - Detroit), Mrs. Dumas is sponsoring a resolution before the board of commissioners asking endorsement of House Bill 5802 and Senate Bill 1207.

These bills would reduce the maximum penality for rape from life in prison to 20 years, but would also broaden the grounds for conviction by establishing four degrees of rape.

The resolutions have been forwarded by the general government committee for approval by the full board on Thursday, April 18.

If the legislature does not act upon the senate bill by May 1, Mrs. Dumas said the Michigan Women's Task Force will call a public hearing in Detroit on Wednesday, May 15.

editorial opinion

This incentive plan can help cut crime rate.

If there is to be a revolution in local government (and I think there will be), it will come because a heavily taxed, enraged public will begin to insist and demand proof that its tax dollars are being spent with maximum efficiency.

Teacher accountability - the idea that it's only fair to insist that teachers demonstrate that they are in fact educating their students -- is the first wave of this revolution. Much fought in Detroit (it was at the heart of the teacher strike last year), the general notion of accountability seems to have been accepted this year by both the Legislature and the Michigan Education Association.

Now comes a suburb of Los Angeles, Calif., to carry on the drive for effectiveness in local government, this time in the area of crime. The city of Orange is paying its police what amounts to a commission plan: The less crime the cops permit, the more money they are paid.

THE INCENTIVE plan covers only four types of "repressible" crimes - robbery, burglary, rape and auto theft. In these areas, if crime rate is cut by three per cent for eight months beginning July 1, 1973, compared with the same period the previous year, the police would get a one per cent raise. If crime falls by six per cent, the raise is two per cent. If crime continues to fall over a longer period, even more raises are forthcoming.

Observation

After initial uneasiness in the police force, the: Orange plan seems to have had spectacular success. In the first seven months of the new program, crime in the four categories fell 17.62 per; cent; other crime figures held steady, which;

Morale in the department seems to be very high - contemplating salary increases of around 25 per cent, whose morale wouldn't get a boost?

ON ITS FACE, the incentive - based, anti crime plan seems to make enormous sense. After all, why not relate police pay to police performance?

In fact, I hope that at least a few local subinteresting to compare their crime rates after a year with those suburbs which chose not to try the incentive plan.

...IF you can believe crime figures

Headlines in daily newspapers and pronouncements on network TV newscasts give the impression big city crime is down while suburban crime is on the upswing.

That may be true in some big towns and some small cities, but there are many factors to consider in deciding whether crime is really a problem in your community. The best source of raw information is police department statistics covering the past calendar It didn't quite happen yet, but there could be similar communities with identical crime figures whose city officials come up with conclusions 180 degrees apart. Up - tight suburbanites worried about their law - and - order image can get more gray hairs when they learn that big city police precincts are larger than most large suburbs and the precincts have a

The argument can also be used both ways.

If there is a boost in crime (or the crime statistics), local officials can argue with councilmen who control the budget that more men are needed to handle the problem.

Those concerned with the financial burden of adding extra officers and balancing a city budget without new taxes contend the caseload per officer actually went down.

They can point, in some towns, to a five per cent boost in police calls but a 10 per cent boost in manpower. On paper, this lowers the workload

Pro - police people will argue that officers need more time to handle problems and people. After all, people involved in an auto accident don't want the investigating officer taking off to handle a nearby burglary.

A suburb with a regional shopping center may find that the center's auto break - ins and store shoplifting complaints may stop at the private security force at the center instead of going to the city police department - and winding up in the following year's annual statistical report.

A city with a major university may find its police activities boosted substantially if there is an anti - war demonstration (remember those before the Vietnam conflict was ended?) and the number of arrests seems to set local records.

Other towns with major freeways will have more auto accidents, fatalities, and tickets to report than neighbors without a freeway.

The federal government has now reported a new wrinkle to the problem of interpreting police reports. That is the "unreported" crimes. These are crimes that take place but are never reported to the police by the victims for a variety of rea-

Some are that the victims feel that nothing will happen, the stolen property won't be recovered, or if someone is arrested, they don't want to spend the time to appear in court.

A shallow commitment

He didn't stick around long, so maybe you don't remember Walter Shapiro, who took a good crack at becoming congressman from Michigan's 2nd District. In 1972's six-way Democratic primary, Shapiro ran a strong second behind State Rep. Marvin Stempien, who untimately lost to GOP incumbent Marvin Esch.
As I said, Shapiro left town after that race and surfaced in December of 1972 with an article in an obscure opinion magazine called The Washington Monthly. In it he bemoans his lack of media coverage (CBS television and the Wall Street Journal were his top choices, but they ignored him). He also gave a view of Livonia that most of us would barely recognize.

SHAPIRO HAD "Nader Raider" and research type credentials and, at age 25, youth connections, all of which he thought qualified him for the United States House of Representatives.

Yet he had never done anything for these suburbs - or, for that matter, Ann Arbor either: Never served in the Legislature or the city council, never worked on another candidate's campaign, never worked on the United Fund, never participated in a service club or scouting or PTA, never ran a business or led a union...he had done literally nothing here so that we could take stock Ponder his description of Livonia: "Keenly attuned to the labor - dominated and ethnic - oriented politics of the Detroit metropolitan area ... I can't really remember seeing any sidewalks...What cohesion the community has lies in the shared asphalt of interchangeable parking lots and Burger Chefs."

In truth, when Walter Shapiro walked into this newspaper's office, he didn't know a soul in town. His ineptness gnawed at a soft spot in my head, so I gave him the names and numbers of a few Democrats around town whom I thought might give him the time of day. I beg their for-

SHAPIRO REFERS to himself as a "spellbinder" and "transfixer" oratorically, but as I remember him, he stammered badly. It was scary Patman or a Wilbur Mills.

Tim Richard writes

"My principal opponent was UAW - backed Marvin Stempien, the 38-year-old floor leader of the state House who played a major role in having Livonia added to the 2nd District," Shapiro recalls, adding that Stempien was "public enemy No. 1" to Ann Arbor's abortion lobby and had "a sorry record on related women's issues."

In six years in Lansing, Stempien did one heckuva lot more than gerrymander a congressional district. His record of legislation and his attitude toward metropolitan problems put him almost in a class by himself among local represen-

While abortion was intensely important to some folks, it wasn't much of a congressional issue. And Stempien's "sorry record" on women's issues included chief sponsorship of the constitutional equal rights amendment.

Shapiro gives this hilarious account of a forum covered by our Kathy Moran, now editor of the Redford Observer & Eccentric: "A young reporter"-note his condescension-"from the biweekly Livonia Observer wrote an account so lacking in nuance that it summarized the debate by saying, 'There was only a hairsbreadth of difference between Shapiro and Stempien on most issues."

In the context of a campaign that included rustics from Lambertville and Ypsilanti Township, there was indeed only a small difference between Stempien and Shapiro on national issues. But from Shapiro's narrow point of view, those marginal disagreements were immense, I sup-

SHAPIRO CONTENDS he didn't get as much media coverage as he would have liked and implies that voters, as a result, weren't familiar enough with his views and qualifications. I have my doubts. I think the voters spotted his type pretty well. So much for the "youth" candidate. And so much for the depth of his commitment to the 2nd Congressional District.

Politicos should open tax books

Vice President Ford's visit to the area last week was thought-provoking, not necessarily for what he said but for what he is on the American scene. He is described as Mr. Clean, and one of the few truly honest men in Washington.

When I saw the vice president, thoughts of both Spiro Agnew and Richard Nixon came to Nixon has become an enigma to me. I don't really believe he has been guilty of anything. But the way the Watergate situation was handled has allowed the American people to question his credibility and, inevitably, he has become less effective as a president.

BECAUSE OF THIS, I have felt that he should either face up to the public or step down. But now, in thinking about Spiro Agnew, I am not sure that the president should resign.

Agnew said something interesting at the time he resigned from the vice presidency. He said his major problem was that he had been held to a new moral standard devised for public officials

This implies that morality is a relative thing and that public officials now have to be more honest than they used to be.

I question at this point whether democracy was served by Agnew's resignation. He was allowed to cop a plea and plead guilty to a felony. His supporters claim that he was pressured into this action by the president and made a scapegoat, and that he actually is a very honest man. Since no evidence was presented, there are still doubts about exactly what Agnew did.

It is hard for me to believe that a man would plead guilty to a felony just because of pressure. The more logical reason to cop a plea is that if the facts were to come out, he might be found guilty of a much more serious offense.

But Agnew's resignation closed the books, and the public will never know the full facts.

IF NIXON, TOO, is pressured into resigning before the facts of Watergate are aired, the public again will be cheated out of its right to know.

Looking at Jerry Ford and the fact that he is considered to be something unique, an honest man in Washington, brings to mind Nixon's tax

Nixon's tax returns were audited by a political group. I am sure that, to minimize an extended airing of the problems, he agreed to pay the taxes that the joint congressional committee said

Although the public's evaluation of Richard Nixon is low, the polls show that its evaluation of the honesty and integrity of Congress is even low-

All public officials need to clear the air, and if joint tax committee members in Congress are to judge people, they should have their own tax returns publicly audited to show that they are in a position to judge.

And there should be a public auditing of the past returns of Eisenhower, Kennedy, Johnson and Humphrey to see if Agnew was right concerning a new standard of morality.

The American people want more public offi-cials like Jerry Ford. The burden on our politicians is to prove that they fit this image if democracy is to work.

At least once or twice in every man's lifetime, some person or persons will have had a profound effect on your career, and besides my father that other man was Walter Cosens, athletic director at Franklin High School, Livenia, who passed away so untimely April 2.

EDITOR:

I am a student at Churchill High School in Livonia. I think that you usually publish a very good sports section, but lately you seem to be pro-Franklin, especially in basketball.

I am referring to the Franklin -Churchill game on March 8. I agree that Franklin has an excellent basketball team, but so does Churchill. In your article, you hardly made any mention of Churchill except for the fact that they lost. You mentioned every detail about how great Franklin played, but Churchill also played very well. After all, the score was 59 - 58? If Churchill would have won, would it have been the other way around? I hope things will change next bas-

'Cheap shot' at League

EDITOR:

In reviewing W. Edward Wendover's cheap shot at the League of Women Voters, I was left with several questions. Was he as sincere and straight forward in applying for membership as Ms. Watts was in accepting him as an associate member, or was his objective from the onset to make

After completing this battle for the male minority, will he also be zealous in supporting the rights of other groups like women, Indians, Poles, Jews, blacks, the elderly, the poor, etc. in our community, or will our verbal Don Quixote instead apply for membership as a Rotary Ann or in the Brownies?

Elephant mistreated

EDITOR:

Recently I took my daughter to the Livonia Mall to see the elephant that was there to give children rides. I had thought that it would be an enjoyable experience, but we left the elephant feeling sad and angry.

The elephant has spent the last five of the 10 years of her life being hauled from one shopping center to another and spending her days walking around a very small circle while people gawk at her and children scream when she puts her trunk out looking for goodies.

We noticed many open sores on her ears and neck. The handler told us that he beats her when she does not cooperate with his wishes. He said that he does not like the elephant and has the job only because he needed

Such a marvelous animal deserves a better life than this, and I sincerely hope that shopping centers will discontinue the use of animals to attract

Garden plots popular at Schoolcraft campus

By CORINNE ABATT

The staff of Newman House on the Schoolcraft College campus know it's spring. They don't even have to step outside

The telephone calls about the garden project are coming thick and fast.

For the first time last year, Judy Kaltz of the Newman House staff, offered plots for gardens to students. and residents in the five school district communities - Livonia, Plymouth, Northville, Garden City and Clarenceville School District.

From all standpoints - the quantity of fresh vegetables, the friendships and participation, it was a big success. Some 135 plots, 25 by 30 feet, were planted, weeded and tended all

This year, Miss Kaltz hopes to have 300 gardens in the area behind Newman house. She doesn't have much to worry about because some 200 already are spoken for. Those interested should call the House if they have a yen for a vegetable garden.

But first timers who think this will be simply a matter of bending the back to hoe, weeding and picking vegetables when the crops ripen, have a surprise in store.

"Gardeners," says Sister Margaret of the Newman House staff, "are very beautiful people. The retirees help the young children. Veteran gardeners share their knowledge with the newcomers. And there are no generation

In a sense, it becomes a a close knit ardening community. They exchange as not only on how to grow vege-

One gardener hung an assortment of aluminum and metal objects which clanked in the breeze, intended to create noise to ward off hungry trespassers. Others anchored a path of co-op evolved. newspapers around their gardens.

"Raccoons," Sister-Margaret says with new found wisdom, "don't like crawling on paper."

Some used a protective planting of marigolds and nasturtiums. Certain animals and insects can't tolerate the smell of these two species.

As soon as each gardener makes a request for a plot, he is sent a packet of materials to help him plan. This includes information on gardening, how the plan is organized and such specialized information as companion planting. This latter deals in what plants are compatible, what combinations do well in a given area. For instance, potatoes and beans do well together because the insects which like potatoes do not like to be in bean

Those who have reserved space will be invited to an organizational meeting before things get under way. The charts will be made so that each gardener knows where his plot is located. concerned, very interested, very, very They are then marked off with stakes

As soon as the weather permits, the plowing and discing will be done for the entire area.

Sister Margaret describes her personal success as a first time vegetable grower, mentions the rocks in the field where the glacier stopped, but says the soil is good anyway.

A lady of strong faith, she smiles for a moment when asked how the gardens are watered.

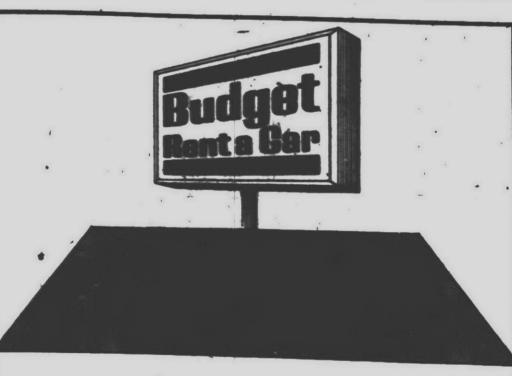

"We don't water the gardens," she answers. "The water table is high, the soil is moist...and our water comes from above."

SPRING CAN'T BE far behind when Judy Kaltz, staff member of Newman House on the Schoolcraft College campus, gets her garden tools out. The college owned land behind Newman House is available for tenant vegetable growers who enjoy gardening mixed with a bit of friendship.

Preventive medicine is Westland hospital's aim

BY SHERRY KAHAN

Preventative medicine spells the difference between Metropolitan West Hospital in Westland and most other hospitals.

"We prefer our patients to come in vertically rather than horizontally." said William Rothman, executive director of the hospital.

"By offering day - to - day visits to our doctors on an out - patient basis, as well as the accompanying tests, we catch many illnesses before hospitalization is required and we prefer it that way."

One of the links in a chain of two hospitals and several clinics in the Detroit area, Metropolitan West Hospital offers these services under the Metro Health Plan, the third largest pre - paid, preventive care plan in the country.

The plan, the hospitals, and clinics are owned and run by Michigan Blue Cross - Blue Shield in a departure from its customary role as insurance

Health Maintenance Organization is the name the medical world is now using for places like Metropolitan

As a new wrinkle in the medical delivery system these organizations recently received the attention of Congress to the tune of $375 millios. The money is earmarked for setting up HMO's in this country and then evaluating their success at preventive

'Prevention is our bag," claimed Arlene Bommarito of Livonia, patient services representative at Metropolitan West. "The reason we can offer this total medical package at low cost is that we work hard to keep the

She pointed out that the hospital does many things on an out - patient basis most hospitals do on an in patient basis. When a patient is scheduled for an operation, all physicals and tests are performed on an out patient basis, thus greatly reducing hospitalization costs.

OUT -PATIENT PHYSICAL THERAPY costs are minimal for members of the Metro Health Plan. Here Mary Jo Blackwood receives ultra -sonic treatment on her neck from therapist, Patricia Morris.

"We prefer our patients to come in vertically."

"For those who participate in the Metro Health Plan, it is so inexpensive to have regular checkups that patients have them more regularly than they might otherwise," said John Bateman of Livonia, president of the board of directors of Metropolitan Hospital in Detroit, the parent hospital of the plan.

He explained that, "depending on which plan a member is part of, he can have a complete checkup with tests for a cost that ranges from nothing at all to-$8.

This means $2 for the doctor's work and $2 apiece for lab work, X - rays, and an EKG. In addition, the system gives the patient the convenience of an examination and tests all under one roof.

Under this one roof at Metropolitan West, a patient can make an appointment with an internist, gynecologist, urologist, pediatrician, and neurologist. Surgeons are also available.

Metropolitan West also has a medical social worker and an alcoholic therapist on hand. For damaged or aching bones and muscles, it offers out - patient therapy in the form of whirlpool baths, parellel bars, and a hydroculator which produces wet heat. The cost for each visit for members of the plan is $2 or less.

An inhilation therapist is present for respiratory problems, and there is a pharmacy on the premises in which those covered by some of the Metro plans may purchase prescriptions at "The rate of hospitalization under our plan is considerably less than for hospitals in the rest of the state," Rothmaan said. Under other Blue Cross plans, the rate of hospitalization is 1,100 days of hospitalization each year per thousand in population. These figures exclude Medicare

"Under our preventive care plan, the rate is 525 days of hospitalization, and this includes Medicare patients," he stated. "This means we use two beds per 1,000 in our hospital compared to four beds in others.' With hospital costs at about $125 a day for room and board in most Detroit hospitals, it is clear preventive medicine saves our subscribers money, he said.

The senior physician, Dr. Victor Totah, is of the opinion that "our patients are happier at not being hospitalized so readily."

"They also appreciate the fact that tests and physicals are done under the same roof. "If necessary I can have results in 15 minutes."

"All doctors at the hospital as well as the rest of the staff are on salary," explained Rothman. "This means that a doctor has no financial interest in needlessly hospitalizing people or in asking them to make a return visit."

"We are rather pleased with our involvement in the Metro Health Plan," said Robert Reveley, executive director of alternative health care systems for Michigan Blue Cross. "It has done better than we expected."

Since we took it over from the Community Health Association in 1972, our membership has risen from 78,0000 to 83,000, he said.

Reveley pointed out that while becoming involved in HMO's was not the general custom of the Blues, nonetheless, his organization is closely tied up with them in a number of American cities including New York City, Chicago, Los Angeles, Milwaukee, Washington, D.C., Cambridge, Mass, and Rochester, N.Y.

While many doctors are sceptical of the promises of HMO to deliver better health care in a cheaper package, Michigan Blue Cross has received complaints from medical men on its new preventive approach in Detroit only in connection with its recent advertisements for the Metro Health

"The Michigan State Medical Society claimed that our advertisement was in violation of medical society principles that say doctors cannot advertise," Reveley said.

"Our answer was that it was not our doctors who were advertising, and that Blue Cross has an obligation to tell the community of the health options open to it."

While acting the role of pioneer in preventive medicine, Metropolitan West Hospital has developed a kind of decentralized nursing that returns to the old basics.

Created by Mrs. Ursula Somera, hospital administrator, it stresses what the nurses call the old bedside approach. Nurses rarely leave the corridors where the rooms of their patients are located. A movable cart holding a locked medicine cabinet and all the needed charts stands near them, readily available.

With less need to go to the central nursing station where the paperwork is done by clerks and unit managers, the RNs then concentrate on taking care of the patient's needs.

"We carry bedpans, administer shots and talk to the patients about their illnesses and their families," said Mrs. Susan Perosky, supervisor of nursing, "I love it. In fact, that is why I am here."

In too many hospitals, she contended, the RN functions as an executive officer and sometimes doesn't even see all the patients. "But here no patient can ever say I haven't seen him. That's my idea of nursing."

It is the job of Miss Bommarito to collect cards given to patients for a description of their feelings about their care in the hospital. "I have never had one complaint about the nursing," she said.

The system of pre - paid and preventive medicine at the two Metropolitan Hospitals and their outlying clinics is the outgrowth of concern for catastrophic health problems on the part of Walter Reuther and Emil Mazey of the United Auto Workers.

After administering a clinic for four years, the UAW founded the Community Health Association in 1955, offering it a $7 million loan for the purchase of the Detroit hospital and two

Two years ago when the entire system was taken over by Blue Cross, the 105 - bed hospital at 28303 Joy, Westland, (formerly called Parkview) was added to the setup.

A spring vacation the week before Easter took some friends right through the part of Ohio that was ravaged by tornadoes.

They came back with descriptions of the devastation, some pictures taken through the windows of their car, and a deep sense of gratitude that they were elsewhere when the great wind blew.

They also came back with a copy of the Xenia Daily Gazette, the first one published after the staff managed to return to its own building from a forced visit to the facilities of a nearby town's news-

That 14 - page paper painted a portrait of a tragedy - struck community working its way bac to normal.

On the front page were stories about buildings tagged for demolition and expanded federal relief, but the rest of the page was news as usual from other parts of the country and world. Inside were plenty of notices of cancelled meetings and revamped plans, a photo of the first modular home reconstructed in a hurry, and an editor's note telling how publication had been maintained despite a wrecked plant. Turning the pages, you find a full page advertisement that says in huge Old English type "Thou Shalt Not Steal," and adds in only slightly smaller letters "Looting is stealing, and don't thou forget But it was in the classified section that the heart of the community came into view.

"Have room to sleep three persons," read the first ad under Personals, and a column of type in like vein followed. Some families offered accomodations for the elderly; one couple specified they had a spot for a baby. There were offers of storage space, and someone had a car that maybe someone else could put to use.

A drug store offered free disposable diapers and a store with a copying machine said it would not charge tornado victims for copies of papers that might be needed for insurance claims.

Free use of chain saws and trucks and free carpentry service also were offered, and a church let the community know it had clothing and furniture available. I was glad of the opportunity to read that paper. I found myself wondering how this paper might read if that tornado had veered a

Life is good at 90

BY MARGARET MILLER

Mrs. Beatrice Craig of Livonia has lost a husband and four sons and has to admit that now, at 90, "I get a little lonely sometimes,"

Her remedy, often as not, is a session at the organ that has been her pride and joy for two years.

She has to stretch her legs to reach the pedals because she stands Jess than five feet tall, but her enjoyment in making music is obvious and contagious.

"I've played the piano for years," Mrs. Craig said. "I play it by ear. But I really need to learn more about the organ. I took a few lessons, and I'd like to take some more."

The problem, though, is that her teacher died.

Mrs. Craig lives with her grandson, James Patrick, in a spic and span one - story home in Rosedale Gardens. James does a lot of the cooking now when he isn't at work, but it's his grandmother who does the housework. She has to move about slowly and several years - but she keeps her home in perfect order. "I was married in 1908," she said, "and since then I've had help with the stiffly - arthritis has troubled her for housework only twice." When Mrs. Craig turned 90 March 18, her neighbors staged a surprise party for her. "They brought everything and we had such a good time," she said. "I have such wonderful neighbors." She also received letters on the birthday from Gov. William Milliken. and Vice President Gerald Ford. "I know it was my friend, Sam Elias, who sent them my name," she said.

The governor wrote that "birthdays have a special meaning for each of us, and I am sure that this one, bringing with it many warm wishes, will be long remembered and will recall fond memories of other birthdays."

The letter from the vice president "You have my wish that every day will be a special one marked by happiness and contentment in all your activities."

Mrs. Craig was born in Sanborn, N.Y., 10 miles from Niagara Falls. After her marriage to Edward J. Craig they moved to the Detroit area and he was a ticket agent in the Union Depot.

"I used to pick him up at the depot downtown, or sometimes in Plymouth," Mrs. Craig said. "We had a railroad pass, so we used to do some traveling - to Quebec once.'

Her husband died 10 years ago and death also has taken two sons, Edward and Harry, in recent years. Two other sons died in childhood.

"I guess life is what you make it," Mrs. Craig says now.

"I've had a lot of sorrow, but I manage to throw it off. And I believe. I have a lot of faith. I guess you have to go on."

'Lifestyle planning' workshops beginning

Two eight - week workshops on lifestyle planning for women will begin next week in two locations under auspices of the Schoolcraft College Wornen's Continuum:

The first will meet from 1 to 3 p.m. Mondays beginning April 22, in room B - 170 of the Liberal Arts building on the campus at 18600 Haggerty. It continues through June 17.

The second series, in the Garden City center at 29205 Florence, will meet from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. Wednesdays April 24 to June 12.

SC continuum sets planning session

Women interested in working with the continuum program at Schoolcraft College are invited to attend an informational meeting Friday, April 19, from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. in the college administration building.

Mrs. Nancy Dufour, head of the program, said more volunteers are needed to meet several goals, and these will be discussed at the planning Considered particularly will be need for a local Women's Resource Center, need for volunteers to research information, answer telephone calls and counsel women in the community, and the need for specific committees to carry out these projects.

Mrs. Dufour said there also would be discussion of a projected Women's Opportunity Fair and committees to gather information on education, employment and volunteer opportunities, social services and legal rights of Tultion for both workshops is free, but participation will be limited to the first 20 who register for each.

Nancy Dufour, who heads the continuum program at Schoolcraft, will lead both workshops, tailoring the content of each to suit the need the participants.

Proposed topics for discussion include: changing lifestyles of men and women; the current status of women; value clarification; the assessment of motivation, strengths and interests: the reassigning of home and family care; opportunities in education, employment and volunteer work; job hunting techniques; time management; and, decision - making. Women interested may register by calling the SC Continuum office.

The Michigan Council for the Arts, a state agency, has announced the second in a series of public hearings being held across the state on a re-

Designed to allow private citizens a chance to air their view, primarily on government support of the arts, the hearing will be held on Friday, April 19, at 7:30 p.m. in River Room 614 of the Veterans' Memorial Building, Detroit. Council Chairman Walter R. Boris of Jackson stated: "This will be an open hearing with all the residents in the southeastern section of the state invited. We will listen to all comments regarding the arts. "Both the council and the state legislature feel that, when these hearings are completed, we will have a great deal of excellent information on which to base our future planning."

Boris says that besides the verbal statements, written statements of any length will be accepted. These may be submitted in advance, at the hearing, or in the two weeks following. "This hearing is not intended to be a question and answer session, as such," he said. "What we wish is to provide a forum to hear the views of various groups and individuals interested in the arts."

Schoolcraft College's eighth annual summer music school is scheduled for July 1 through July 25, and admission auditions have been tentatively scheduled for May 11 and 25.

This year's annual series of concerts and recitals will feature the Schoolcraft Faculty String Quartet, the Woodwind Quintet and the Jones'

The summer program is headed by Richard T. Saunders, Schoolcraft's director of fine arts. The music faculty consists of 15 professional musicians, 10 of whom are members of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra. They are: Clement Barone, flute: Mario Di-Fiore, cello: Norman Fickett, percussion: Paul Ganson, bassoon; Oliver Green, clarinet and David Ireland, viola.

New members of the faculty this summer will be Inez Hullinger Redman and James Waring, violin; James Tamburin, brass; Eugene Wade, French horn and Maxim Janowsky, double bass.

College instructors who serve during the summer school festival are Robert W. Jones, theory and composition; Donald L. Morelock, piano, and Saunders, who also conducts the student and court orchestras.

Dr. Allen Shaffer of Norfolk State College serves as assistant director of the summer school, and David Mariotti of the Indianapolis Symphony will be teaching oboe.

The Summer Music School is for talented college, senior high school and exceptional junior high school musicians who will expe:ience outstanding instruction and the opportunity to perform in a variety of concerts. They are instructed in chamber music, orchestral peformance and in music history and theory.

This summer the student orchesta will study and perform such works as Dvorak's "New World Symphony," "Orchestra Suites" by J. S. Bach, Handel's "Watermusic Suite," "Death and Transfiguration" by Strauss and Haydn's "Symphony No. 104."

Student concerts will be presented on July 18 and 25, and chamber music programs have been scheduled for Thursday mornings and the evening of July 24. There will also be an opportunity for an outstanding student soloist to perform on the final orchestra concert of the season.

Tuition is $44 for resident students and $88 for non - residents for the four - week school. Classes are held Monday through Thursday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., with an hour off for lunch.

Four faculty concerts will be presented. The Jones Consort on July 2 and chamber music recitals on July 9, 16 and 23. All concerts begin at 8 p.m. and will feature the String Quartet, Woodwind Quartet, and other chamber ensembles. Tickets will be available at the door.

Special opportunities for young musicians will be available in the school for pianists and classes for young composers. Selected pianists will be provided opportunities for ensemble performance.

As in the past four summer sessions, Robert W. Jones will accept a firmited number of students interested in music composition.

Applicants should send a copy of a recently completed composition, or one upon which they currently may be working, to Robert Jones, Schoolcraft College, 48600 Haggerty, Livonia. They may have an opportunity of hearing their composition performed during the session.

Further details about performances and programs will be announced in early summer. Persons wishing information about other aspects of the program should contact Saunders at Schoolcraft College.

Tom Mc Kay, secretary of the Greater Detroit Bowling Association, had the right hunch.

While many people were moaning about the fuel shortag and abhoring the necessity of lining up at the gaso-line pumps, Tom calmly remarked, "This could be a good thing for our annual city tournament."

He recalled that in other years many of the city's tournament minded teams wandered to all parts of the mid - west to bid for prize money and in so doing ignored their own association event. "Maybe they'll stay home this year," he said, "and help boost our entries."

That's exactly what happened. When entries closee for the tournament that opens Saturday evening at Satellite Bowl, the field had reached 746 teams. That's an increase of 95 teams in the regular division, while the senior division drew five more for a field of 111 when the firing starts.

The Greater Detroit Association which has jurisdiction as far north as Pontiac, now boasts more than 130,000 members. It is the largest city association in the country and should draw more than 746 teams.

But Tom Mc Kay isn't complaining. He's just tickled his prediction that the gasoline shortage would help came true.

The Bowling Hall of Fame Dinner, held last Saturday at the Shiawassee Hotel, was the largest since the event was inaugurated in 1957. More than 300 persons were on hand to witness the ceremonies in which Charles (Buck) Walby, owner of Thunderbird Lanes in Troy; Mary Beck, former Detroit Councilwoman: Bill Bunetta. member of the famed E&B and Pfeiffer teams, and Fred Bujack, of the same teams who received the posthumous award, were honored.

One of the most interested of all the old timers present was George Farmington Lanes where Gloria Bryant, original organizer of the E&B ' Mertz topped the Friday Classic with team, who accepted the award for the a 232 in 618 and Judy Wilkinson had

There was a time not long ago woen a 700 series was a rarity on the bowling front. Now they are becoming common, especially as the league sea-

This week there were four sharpshooters who broke the barrier and two of them did it at Bel-Aire Lanes in Farmington. They were Ted Smith who linked games of 196, 236 and 268 for an even 700 in the Classic, and John Lennon who put together counts of 199, 246 and 268 for a 714 in the Businessmen's League.

A third 700 popped up at Farmington Lanes when Glenn Stock, bowling in the Civic League, had a middle game of 267 in 738. The fourth was produced in the Westland Bowl Classic when Eddie Marzka opened with a 269 and closed with 256 for 738.

With his big count, Marzka beat out Rick Capaldi who fired a 670 and Leo Cantamburlo who posted a 661.

At Bel-Aire Smith's 700 gave him a 17 pin edge on Jack Brown who fired a 683 and Greg Hatter landed third Salem fell in its opener to Thurston, 7 - 1, but quickly bounced back to top Westland John Glenn in the first of a twin - bill behind the no - hit pitching of Tom Willette, 3 - 0. Glenn salvaged the nightcap, 6 - 2.

The 16 - year - old Willette at 6 foot - 2 and 175 pounds faced only 23 batters in the three run triumph, walking two and striking out 10.

His batterymate Mark Stephens aided his cause by throwing out two would - be base stealers.

Taking the defeat for Glenn was Steve Kaufman who allowed the three runs on five hits, walked six and struck out five. Salem tallied once in the last of the second when Dan Moore singled, Doug Tripp walked and Moore scampered in on John Major's single.

The Rocks upped it to 3 - 0 in the fifth on three walks, an error and single. Stephens was safe on an error by the left fielder and Don Bidwell drew a base on balls. Tom Davidson then singled in Stephens, Moore walked to fill the sacks and Tripp walked to force in Bidwell with run No. 3.

The rest of the show belonged to Willette.

Salem picked up where it left off in the top of the first inning with two runs on two hits and an error.

Major started with a single and Bidwell sacrificed him to second and was safe on a Glenn error. Doug Ward then moved the runners along to second and third and with two outs, Chuck Thomas walked to fill the bases. Darrell Rowe delivered a two bagger to make it 2 - 0 and the rally was snuffed when Ward was tossed out at the plate attempting to score on a passed ball.

Jeff Hodgkins and Kaufman were both safe on Rock mishaps and Jim Decker singled to load the bases. With no outs, DenHouter lost his counterpart McElyea on four balls to score Hodgkins and then with two outs, Dean Marnelly walked to score Kaufman to notch it at two - all.

The Rockets broke it open ithe next inning with four runs on two hits. Decker, who wound up three for four, led off with a single, McElyea sacrificed him to second and with two outs, Marnelly drew a base on balls off DenHouter who then balked home one run. Murray Duncan followed with a walk and the Rocket eighth batter Jim Khollman unleashed a three - bagger and scored on a throwing error to make it 6 - and that's the way it stayed.

How township provides emergency medical service

By MAURIE WALKER

PLYMOUTH: - A hospital on wheels. This is a description given the ambulances now in service for the Plymouth Township Fire Department.

The two vehicles, costing approximately $22,000 each, including all supplies and equipment, work out of the two fire stations, one on Ann Arbor Road, the other on Schoolcraft.

Plymouth Township Fire Chief James Gignac said the vehicles were especially constructed for his department.

"Each ambulance is a standard van - type, however the chassis has been widened 15 inches and the roof raised 12 inches," the chief said.

This extra space allows room for four stretcher patients in addition to making space available for the various types of life-saving equipment.

Both ambulances are staffed by a two-man crew. All firemen assigned to the rescue units are licensed by the State Department of Health as ambulance drivers and attendants.

Their training consists of a thorough Red Cross course as well as a course from the Michigan Heart Assn.

In addition to the normal medical equipment and stretchers carried in ambulances, the township's units carry burn sheets for fire victims, a portable device for registering the heart beat and blood pressure, a complete poison antidote kit as well as equipment for heart victims. This includes a shock system for congestive heart failure. There is a complete piped - in oxygen system in each ambulance.

The units carry special traction and splinting equipment for all types of broken bones

Additional rescue equipment includes a 110 - volt electric saw, an air hammer, a device for prying open car doors in accidents, as well as special pry - bars for freeing trapped victims. Gignac said drugs and intravenous injections can't be administrated by the fire department because of a state

These items are carried for use by doctors or nurses should they need them at the scene of an accident." the

"By carrying these items we are able to provide emergency service to medical personnel."

Thechief said the township rescue units' prime purpose is that of strictly emergency service to injured or ill persons.

Commission opposes county police millage

PLYMOUTH - By a unanimous vote, the Plymouth City Commission has gone on record opposing the proposed plan of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners to levy a one mill property tax for the purposes of improved law enforcement.

On motion of Commissioner Joe Bida, a resolution was adopted pointing out that the best interests of all communities within Wayne County would be better served through an increase of local taxes by local governmental units to provide such services as strengthened law enforcement when deemed necessary.

"Our units can take patients to any one of 22 hospitals withing a 17-mile radius of the township. We don't, however, transfer patients from one hospital to another."

Gignac said his department monitors all Michigan State Police and Wayne County Sheriff calls and has a working agreement that in a personal injury accident, the township ambulances respond automatically.

We have a mutual aid pact with surrounding departments and should we need it, can get assistance from them.

We are also in constant contact with these departments through a special radio hookup," Gignac said.

The department doesn't charge Plymouth Township residents for its services, the chief said.

"Persons who are on the job at any of the industrial places within the township are not charged for service

We do charge $25 to non - residents who don't work here, however there is no charge for our services for assisting other departments." he

By having two ambulances, one at each station, response time to any -emergency has been cut in half. Gignac said.

Part of the cost for the two vehicles was absorbed by a $16,080 federal grant and a $2,600 donation by Ford Motor Co. Sheldon Road Plant, Burroughs Corp. supplied an additional $2,300.

The Stroller...

The seniors' plight

It's surprising what a fellow can run into while in quest of nuggets of information while strolling along the journalistic trail.

Take the other morning, for example, when The Stroller met up with Old Jim whom he hadn't seen in years. Expecting a warm handshake and a broad smile at seeing each other again Old Jim snarled and asked, "When are they going to do something worthwhile for the senior citizens?"

This wasn't like the Jim of yore who always had a ready smile and enjoyed a laugh with the rest of us. Now, he was disturbed and wasn't afraid to let anyone know it.

"Lots of things are being done for the senior citizens," The Stroller countered. "You get reduced rates at the theater, special days at the parks and now they're planning to give you free rides in the taxi cabs in some of the suburbs.

"Why, you're even getting all sorts of favors in the bowling establishments. It seems everywhere a fellow goes these days the senior citizens are being granted favors."

Old Jim just snarled. None of these things had any effect on him. Raising his voice he shot back, "These are only trifling things. When are the local government officials going to assume an obligation to take care of us as honest-to-goodness citizens and not

He didn't wait for an answer. Instead he offered the plight of the old folks and used himself as an example. "When I retired," he began, "I had a nice nest egg, or so I thought. I owned my own home, fully paid for, and all things seemed rosy. But not now."

He went on to tell how inflation has hit him - and many others. Their property taxes continue to rise and, as old Jim pointed out, they have paid school taxes for years and never had a child in school.

Unable to keep their home in the face of rising taxes and the fact that the old home might be too big, they attempted to sell.

'Suppose I sell my home for $50,000," Old Jim went on. "Uncle Sam steps in and takes a big portion of it and by the time I pay the points to the real estate broker I'll be lucky if I escape with $30,000."

Old Jim snarled again just by thinking of his plight.

"Now if I want to buy a smaller home," he said, "I've got to go out

"What would you suggest as a remedy?" The Stroller asked. It didn't take very long for Old Jim to make a suggestion.

"I think the time has come," he vowed, "that the city step in and assume an obligation to provide suitable places for the old folks to live in their twilight years.

"Don't get me wrong," he went on, "I don't mean these federally funded senior citizens complexes, or what they call the low income developments.

"Instead, the cities could build apartment complexes in the downtown areas where the rent. would be within the range of the retired persons who had a nest egg eaten up by

"I don't mean that we are looking for something for nothing. We are willing to pay. It's just that we can't keep up a big home and pay the increasing taxes any more, We've done our part in helping to build the city. Now something should be done for us in the golden years."

This is something to think about and offers proof again of the things a fellow picks up strolling along the journalistic trail.

Area groups aid Indians at Easter

Civic groups, schools and businesses again teamed up to send Easter gifts to Michigan Indian settlements the last two weekends.

The Indian affairs committee of the Western Wayne County Conservation Association and apprentices of Ironworkers Local 25 made trips to Indian settlements at Petoskey, Traverse City and the mission school at Harbor Springs.

Gifts included more than 800 cans of food, 106 boxes of new and used clothing, 10 boxes of toys (to be saved for Christmas), 15 boxes of Sanders candy, pop and toilet articles.

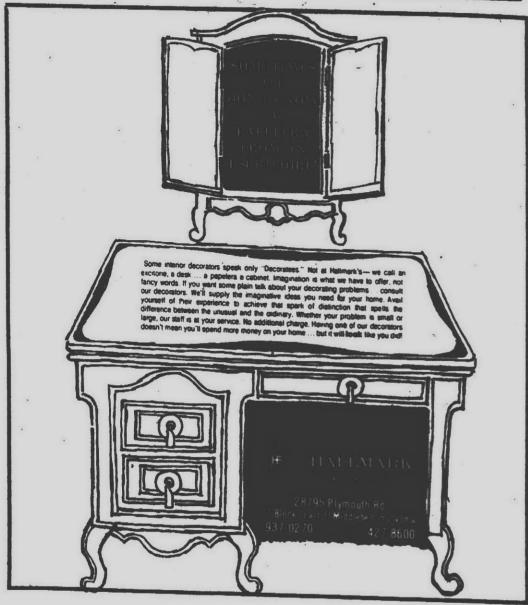

Committee chairman Hank Chruscial, whose home at 19345 Brentwood, Livonia, was the collecting point, said tornado - damaged areas of Hillsdale County were also offered help but declined with thanks.

Fourteen apprentices from the Ironworkers local drove their trucks, cars and station wagons to make the two deliveries.

Friendly Easter bunnies included: Marianne Shops of Westland, Wonderland, Livonia Mall and Tel - 12; Salem United Church of Christ in Farmington; a store that asked to remain anonymous; Indian Maidens of the Livonia Family Y; Bird Elementary School and Bluebird Troop 686, both of Plymouth.

(Editor's note: Several weeks ago we received a call from Mrs. Dennie Meffer of Livonia. A perfectly dry bulb, that she had put away for the winter, had suddenly sprung to life and was growing at an enormous rate. She asked for help in identifying the smelly plant. Staff photographer Harry Mauthe took a picture of the home and garden section.)

After many letters, phone calls, post cards and visits to the library, Mrs. Dennie Meffer's mystery plant has been identified.

Former Livonia residents, Mr. and Mrs. Veikko Kivimaki, sent a clipping from their retirement home in Hancock. It was a picture in the local upper peninsula paper of them and their Sacred Lily of India. The headline in the accompanying story said, "Giant Lily springs to life in Hancock."

Home&Garden

One caller had a similar bulb which was as large as a bushel basket. She said her husband threatened to leave giant lily which was published in our it in the garden to freeze. It was just too heavy to dig up every fall.

> One gentleman said he knew the botanical name. Another caller said it was an East Indian plant called the giant Krubi.

But the folks at the Alfred Noble branch of the Livonia Public Library tracked down the information and background of the unusual lily.

The Amorphophaltus is a giant aroid from the eastern tropics. They are propagated by offsets of the tu-bers. These offsets are miniature tubers which grow out of the parent tu-

The flowers are like a huge calla except that the spathe and spadix are a dark chocolate color.

Mrs. Meffer was told the bad odor that accompanied the blooming of the plant was to attract carrion insects to aid in the pollination of the flowers. When the white ring of flowers drops off the sickening smell goes with it.

Some readers of our garden pages reported their plants had reached a height of eight feet. Growth is so fast

The plant shoots forth twice a year and the bulb requires no special handling. The large flower growth of late February or March soon wilts and the bulb remains dormant until planted outdoors in late spring.

At that time it reaches a growth of about half the earlier size. Instead of flowering it produces palmlike leaves at the top that spread out several grees warmer than the surrounding

The plants should be lifted again before the frost, and potted in any good, rich soil, according to the information garnered by the library. Mrs. Meffer let the top of hers die down in the fall

To prevent this, check and repair all flashings (edges of roof) which are broken. A broken flashing will let water underneath the roof coating resulting in blistering.

Firm designs means of recycling water

By CORINNE ABATT

The idea for the product designed and manufactured by Water Saver terns of Farmington developed from a need for water.

George Moore, chairman of the board of the company which creates and installs sealed pressurized water cooling systems for industrial use. once had a water problem.

At the time his plant, Sun Steel Treating, Inc. was located in Farmington on Middle Belt north of 10 Mile. "It was a dry area," Moore says,

"and we had to truck in water." He began to think about a way to recycle-water in a closed pressurized cooling system. The water was used to cool the furnaces of the tool com-

-Moore, a long - time Farmington resident, eventually relocated his company in the Industrial Park area. Now there are three separate companies, Moore Production Tool, Sun Steel which does heat treating, and Water Saver Systems.

There was plenty of water available at the Farmington location, but Moore says: "We had already learned our lesson."

And now, years later, he says he continues to be energy conscious in all phases of his industrial activities.

But, in the days when water was a problem, Moore pursued the idea of recycling water and contacted Al Richardson, a mechanical contractor who is now vice president of Water Saver Systems. They designed a system and tried it.

"It worked so well," says Moore, "we tried it first with one furnace and then made a larger system.'

He continues: "We built the first working model in 1964, tested it for two years, applied for patents in 1966 and built several units for ourselves in the heat treatment plant. The 150 gallons of water have been in there

"Before we used 32 million gallons of water a year to cool the electrodes of the furnaces of Sun Steel. Now we would be using 64 million gallons of water a year if we didn't have our sealed pressurized system."

The system utilizes pumps, coolers and controls which regulate the flow

ne system indefinitely

Richardson explains how this is done. He starts by saying that all water, even what is called pure water, contains minerals and that these are not impurities, they are necessary to life. He says that all water also carries free air which is released in the form of bubbles until the water reaches the same temperature as the at-

"If there was no free air in the water, the minerals would remain in a suspended state. They won't adhere to anything unless free air gets in.

"The iron and calcium are on a free ride. They just travel around hunting free air. They are not rejected, they are in free suspension."

Water Saver Systems removes the free air from the water to keep the minerals in suspension rather than using chemicals to treat it.

"This," Richardson says, "is the difference between ours and a closed system. In order to stop scale and corrosion, you must remove the free Richardson says his interest in the system developed because: "I started looking at unsolved problems relative to the heating and cooling industry, the misplaced design and destruction of equipment. I became concerned with the horrendous amounts of money being spent on heating systems that were failures, water boilers and the destruction of equipment being purchased that had no life.

"Particularly, school systems had destruction in their heating systems. No one knew why. We began a meticulous search to find out what was happening. What the slide rule says a system should do, it wouldn't do.". He says this destruction is due to the build-up of corrosion and sludge in the pipes and passageways of the water cooling equipment. The higher the temperatures go, the faster the suming and costly. In fact, the disposal of the sulphuric acid waste from the cleaning operation is a major problem which the environmentalists are deeply concerned with.

In an article published in "Foundry" magazine, Richardson tells how the free air is removed: "Air is eliminated by swirling the fluid around in a cylindrical vessel and piping off rising bubbles to a storage tank.

Because the system doesn't discharge any water, there is no pollution problem. Until legislation was passed prohibiting the dumping of water more than two degrees above the temperature of the stream or lake, industries were the leading thermal ' pollutors of natural waterways.

Now, instead of the lakes and rivers, millions of gallons of hot water are dumped daily into the sewer sys-

Not only does the demand for water tax the resources of a community, the disposal of it a short time later is a tremendous burden on the local sewer system, Moore points out.

Company officials use the story of the Water Saver installation in the Hayes, Albion plant in West Unity, Ohio, as an example.

Hayes Albion was using 720,000 gallons of water a day to cool 108 machines in three temperature ranges. A crisis developed when the town wells were threatened and an irate farmer (some say shotgun in hand) complained that his sheep were getting sick from drinking the oil slick waste water the company was dumping into the open drainage ditches.

Not only did the Water Saver installation save the town fathers the expense of drilling an addition well, the company amortized the cost in 16 Now, still concerned with the conservation of energy, the Farmington industrialists are recycling the heat carried by the water as it leaves the furnace or machinery area on its way to the cooler. The Water Saver equipment in a foundry in Elkhart, Indiana is located in a room next to the work area. There are baffles on both sides, one set leads to the outside, one set to the In the warm months, the heat is directed outside; in the cold ones, it is recirculated back into the foundry. Richardson says, "Elkart is heated without any heating system but the heat rejected from the fur-"When we get wise enough, we'll learn to use and then reuse and reuse. our energy. It' will take great imagination and money, but it can be done." Richardson still has difficulty accepting his findings on a recent visit to the atom plant near Benton Harbor. "They use one million 500 thousand gallons of water a minute to cool

He checks his figures and comments: "And there are 16 billion 500 million BTUs per hour of wasted heat - and the plant is only 42 per cent eificient they think."

Although disheartening, it does present a challenge to the Farmington men who are thriving on the big unanswered question of this time, how to conserve the energy we have and use it wisely.

"It will be right on the money,"

It is an expression he uses often, and with reason.

SIX YEARS AGO he was restoring a car as a hobby in his garage. Today, Rancour, who lives in Southfield, is president of Classic Auto Restoration, the second largest automobile restoration shop in the nation.

In his 15,000 square foot shop in Farmington are more than 35 antique and classic ears, each in different stages of restoration. On an average, the 25 craftsmen in the shop will complete work on two cars a week.

Rancour credits his success, in part, to the recent trend toward nostalgia. People yearn for the quality of products made earlier in the century, he said. But more importantly, they want to recapture that whole quality

And if it's quality people want, it's quality Rancour gives them - for a

TO RESTORE a Model A Ford from a pile of rust and rotting rubber would cost roughly $7,500. Restoring a 1955 Ford Thunderbird might cost $6,500.

The charge for restoring any car will vary, depending on the age, condition and kind of car to be restored.

"I'm trying to build pieces of art, not the ordinary run-of-the-mill cars," "Most of these cars are grand classic, high prestige cars. I get very, passageways, the build-up acts as an very few Model A fans. Very few want their cars restored the way I do

THIS IS THE WAY Rancour does it. First, the person wishing to have his car restored must complete a lengthy check list.

Observer Eccentric

Thursday, April 18, 1974

This list contains 142 different items, from gravel shields to ball joints to ashtrays. The person notes those items needing to be replaced, repaired, overhauled or repainted.

When the check list is complete, Rancour gives the customer a "ball park figure" of the cost involved. Then comes a wait of perhaps two months, because orders have backed up and because Rancour makes it a policy to have all the parts in the shop before the car is brought in. When the car does come into the shop, it will remain there for about 60 to 90 days before the restoration is Within his shop, Rancour has the facilities and craftsmen necessary to build a car from scratch, if need be.

HE HAS a woodworking shop capable of reproducing wooden parts used in older cars. He has a glass shop that can reproduce windshields, windows and wind vents of virtually any size or shape.

He has a shop where new interiors and convertible tops are made. He also has a shop where new fenders and panels are created out of sheet metal. He refuses to use fiberglass, plastic or synthetic parts.

On his staff, Rancour has blacksmiths, metalurgists, pattern makers, woodworkers and other skilled trades-

Their services cost the customer a flat rate of $25 an hour. "THEY'RE ARTISTS in their field," Rancour said. And, because of the shop's growing reputation, other skilled restorers have come to see Rancour and the op-

"They come to see the shop, how it's laid out," he said. "We've got everything laid out the way it goes (the process of restoration.)"

"It's a restorers dream, the way it's supposed to be."

But the dream is only the beginning. The ultimate goal of his company is to be able to rebuild any and all automobiles.

This, he said, would give people a choice between buying a new car or restoring the one they have.

According to Rancour, with the growing scarcity of raw materials, the big automotive and manufacturers may have to turn to restoration as an alternative to manufacturing.

But by the time the companies realize the necessity of changing to restoration, he said, it will be too late.

"I'll have my setup there long before they can. As I build up my company I'll be hiring the skilled men to do the job before the big car producers can turn around." HE NOTED THAT raw materials are already getting harder to find. Most new cars, these days, are made from old cars that have been crunched, smashed and melted down. But the steel that is produced is not refined as much as it used to be.

"They don't get all the slag off," he complained. "That's some of the reason why the steel is still on the Model A and on a 55 Ford it's all gone."

The shop is located at 22456 Orchard Lake Road in Farmington.

CUSTOMIZING classic cars has become a healthy business in this era when nostalgia is the mood of the people. An antique car dealer is doing good business in Garden City, and now money is being made in Farmington by a firm which restores classic cars. (Staff photos)

Will motorcycles ease gas crisis?

The owner of a Livonia motorcycle dealership believes the growing number of persons using motorcycles for everyday transportation has helped ease the national gas crisis.

M.J. Toutant, owner of Pierre Kawasaki in Livonia, believes increased use of economical motorcycles means more gas is available to auto drivers.

"If the average auto driver uses 10 gallons of gas each week, he could easily save half that amount by using a motorcycle. With more than five million motorcycles now being used nationally, I believe cycles are saving more than 25 million gallons of gas each week," says Toutant.

"The majority of people recently visiting my dealership are interested in economical transportation, while the remainder want a form of recreation they can use without having to drive their cars."

The most popular Kawasaki model fills both transportation and economy requirements, designed for riding around town and to get 70 miles per

"In fact," Toutant continues, "motorcycles are becoming so popular for everyday commuting, that the energy crisis may cause a motorcycle shortage. We nearly sold out last year and that was before the energy crisis hit home. This year the cycle supply could get even tighter."

To help increase the supply, Kawasaki became the first major manufacturer to start production in the U.S. by purchasing a plant in Lincoln, Neb. Motorcycles are expected to start rolling out of the $20 million cycle manufacturing complex this October,

"We know that motorcycles aren't for everyone, but they can help a lot of people with economical transportation and as a source of recrea-

U. of D.'s Dean of the College of Business and Administration, Dr. Rikuma Ito, reflected on the preparation of the new plan of studios, and said:

"This new program is part of the large movement towards interdisciplinary programs we see at colleges and universities across the country today. It will produce. It will produce effective managers who will have knowledge of the legal environment as well as business practices.

"We believe the graduates of this very demanding program will be very versatile people in both law and in business, and will possess an unusually well-integrated knowledge of both areas. This will be our goal in structuring a truly integrated program that will culminate in a nine-hour thesis that will require the students to display this knowledge in an integrated manner."

Ito stated that U. of D. intended to be highly selective in choosing students for the program, and was limiting the openings to 12. He termed it a program that demands a "commitment" on the part of the student,

School of Law Dean Richard Braun stated: "We view the J.D. - M.B.A." program as a significant step in broadening the scope of our educational offerings while, at the same time, continuing the tradition of our law school in serving the needs of the metropolitan community.

"The exposure of attorneys to basic" business techniques and practices? and, similarly, the legal education of business people has been long overdue. We are pleased to assume the leadership in Michigan in offering a program of this nature.

To my knowledge, we are the first university in the nation to incorporate the interdisciplinary thesis approach into this type program. We welcome the program with great anticipation."

Tutf Tips, Quips

By Doc Minard

With schools closed for the annual Easter vacation, the Detroit Race Course will give the youngsters a big climax to the week when it stages its annual Old Time Day program Saturday. It will be a day in which all children under 12, accompanied by a parent, will be admitted free.

Just to make it even more inviting, there'll be dime hot dogs, nickel pop, ice cream and pop corn and a chance for the kids to load up all afternoon while Mom and Dad watch the thoroughbrade.

The annual celebration has always been a big day for the track since it is the one time of the entire meeting that youngsters under 12 are admitted to the grounds. Other than that, you have to be 12 and over to get inside the premises.

Racing Commissioner Leo Shirley decided to crack down on the kids a couple of years back and allowed each track one or two programs to which children under 12 are admitted and that's all.

Inasmuch as the Saturday post time for the first race is 1:30 p.m., it behooves fans to arrive a bit earlier than usual for we know well that there'll be kids coming out of every corner to take advantage of the dime hot dogs...imagine a dime in these days of inflation and especially in meat prices.

Incidentally, a recent communication from Harness Tracks of America Inc., information service of the harness tracks, has some interesting news that is well known to track management but not to race goers.

It may come as a surprise to bettors, and it certainly will to non racegoers, but it is the hot dog, the admission ticket and the parking charge, not the money bet on horses, that enables race tracks to meet their expelises and turn a profit in these days of rising costs.

A survey conducted by HTA among its 50 member tracks in the United States and Canada shows that total raceway operating expenses now average 118.1 per cent of income from parimutuel retention, the amount of money tracks get to keep from the total bet. A similar survey 10 years ago showed expenses ran 110.6 per cent of income from the wagering handle.

Thus it's rather easy to see that tracks must get income from other courses to meet expenses and the only other places are from the concession, programs, parking and admissions.

That's why so many racing plants now have a very tight policy in regard to passes. Management has discovered you can't give away the gate and still show a profit. So the answer to that is, provide folks with an afternoon or night of entertainment and make them pay for it just as they would if they attended a movie or a night club.

After the relatively slow start during the late winter dates at the Detroit Race Course, the runners and trotters have settled down and it now appears both the DRC and Hazel Park are in for banner years...especially the latter.

Hazel Park shattered several wagering records Saturday when a season high crowd of 12,789 wagered an all-time Michigan high of $1,217,159. The attendance was more than the 11,544 at the afternoon races at the DRC where the handle was a season high of $1,226,696.

During the course of the evening, Hazel Park saw records for wagering on a singlerace bettered twice with new standards for betting on the nightly double the perfecta and the superfecta.

Just to make the evening a complete success, Chris Boring, the veteran Adrian driver-trainer who checked in only on Thursday with his large public stable from Chicago, recorded the first four-bagger of the year, including a victory in the $10,000 invitational pace.

The pace went to Blu Fireball, a Michigan owned, who was clocked in the fastest mile of the year a quick 1:59.3, the first sub-2:00 win.

Fran Smith, the capable public relations and publicity director at Windsor Raceway, has taken some new duties during the period between meetings. He was recently named administrative assistant for public relations and advertising during the 1974 meeting at Chicago's Maywood Park.

The appointment was announced by General Manager, and Vice President Sid Anton, former Windsor general manager who hired Smith for the PR job there.

Although limited to 24 nights for its summer meeting, Northville Downs will host one leg of the rich Canadian-American pacing series for three and four-year-olds. A total of 105 have been nominated for the series which will offer more than $200,000 in pur-

Northville has been awarded the June 28 leg with a value of $12,500. The series winds up with a $49,450 championship on Aug. 16 at Batavia Downs near Buffalo, N.Y.

Rule of the competition provide that pacer must compete in at least half of the 10 events and be among the top eight in points to be eligible for the finale.

The stake brought many of the North America's top stars to the Downs a year ago and Executive Manager John Carlo is looking for even better entrants this year.

After a miserable showing in the Provincial Cup stake at Windsor Raceway a month ago, Sir Dalrae, harness racing's horse of the year in 1973, struck with power and speed recently in Chicago to win the $25,000 qualifier of the $150,000 Metropolitan Pacing Series in 1:58.2.

The west coast speedster had more than two lengths on Black Gamecock and Armbro Nesbit was fourth.

Trainer-driver Jim Dennis reports his great star had a high fever at-Windsor which didn't show prior to the race but did after it suddenly stopped and finished a dismal last.

Fabulous Joe O'Brien, a member of harness racing's Hall of Fame, will have part of his large public stable at Hazel Park. He will send 50 head to the Detroit area and 50 to Brandywine Raceway and divide his time between both tracks.

This isn't the first time the diminutive O'Brien has had a large stable in this area. Years ago he checked into Wolverine Raceway with all of his horses, a second and third trainer, a number of grooms, his head book-keeper and all other personnel necessary for an operation that size and stayed for the entire meeting.

O'Brien adds quite a bit of class to any meeting he has horses since has had so many top stars he has to move them around to get races. At Hazel Park he'll find plenty of opportunity for most of his stock so fans can be assured they'll see a lot of O'Brien this spring.

WHAT IS SUPER SAVINGS SENTERS?

The owners and originators of SUPER SAVINGS SENTERS believe that you, the customer, will recognize exceptional value and quality workmanship when offered and packaged in pleasant environment. With this thought in mind, the two young men who own SUPER SAVINGS SENTERS are experimenting with a totally new idea and are attempting to bring this concept into reality through the use of neighborhood gas stations. The owners of SUPER SAVINGS SENTERS have had over 15 years experience as purchasing agents, buyers and merchandleers for the largest conventional and discount automotive stores in the world. We have been able to convince major national suppliers with whom we have dealt for years, of the logic of establishing discount oriented neighborhood Service Senters, to be housed in existing service stations. Because of relationships we have, we are able to buy merchandles at prices close to prices paid by super chains. Because of our utilization of existing facilities in your neighborhood, we are able to save significant overhead costs which we are passing on to you— our customer. Our promise to you is that we'll meet and where possible beat any price offers on comparable merchandles, by super competition, regardless of size, or we'll refund the difference in cash to you. It is our intention to be "THE" competition and not to follow others. We ask but one thing. That you read this hooklet and compare our prices and guarantees with competitors like K-Mart, Sears and shy other large chain of automotive centers. We are positive that you will recognize the outstanding and abvious values in this booklet. The two owners of SUPER SAVINGS SENTERS are so confident in the belief that the public will seek out REAL VALUES that they have purposely located themselves away from the high rent shopping centers, in low overhead gas stations and have placed themselves away from the high rent shopping centers, in low overhead gas stations and have placed themselves.
