Dingeldey retiring; McLaren faces Breen, Dean, Pedersen

No Dems file for top 2 posts

PLYMOUTH TOWNSHIP — Plymouth Township Supervisor J. D. McLaren, who many thought would not seek re-election, has decided to do so but must fight off three challengers for his post.

Soren T. Pedersen, owner of a local real estate company and a recently appointed Plymouth Township Planning Commission member; Gregory W. Dean, an engineer and homeowner association official; and Maurice M. Breen, the former township supervisor who was defeated by McLaren in the GOP primary two years ago, have filed for the Republican nomination for supervisor.

The winner of that four-way race on the Aug. 6 primary ballot is virtually assured of election since no Democrat filed for the post.

Plymouth Township Clerk Helen Richardson has filed for re-election and is virtually assured of retaining her office since no one opposes her in either the primary or the general election.

In the township treasurer race, four Republicans will vie for their party spot. On Aug. 6 to run against Janet G. Pierangelino, who filed as a Democrat.

Those seeking the GOP nomination for the treasurer post are: Weyona Lee Fidge; Thomas Notebaert, a local real estate company owner; Anna Milligan, an unsuccessful candidate two years ago; and Joseph J. West.

The incumbent treasurer, Elizabeth Holmes, announced earlier this year that she would not seek re-election.

In the race for the two four-year trustee spots, two Democrats will face two Republicans. Since only two filed in each party, they are all assured of winning the party nomination on Aug. 6.

Frank Millington, an incumbent; and Richard Gornick, a planning commission member, have filed for the GOP trustee spots. Thomas P. Sullivan and Orville L. Tungate have filed for the Democratic nominations for trustee.

Incumbent Gene Overholt announced last week that he would not seek re-election.

In the race for two two-year constable posts, those filing as Republicans are: Donald King, Gordon J. Campbell and Leonard W. Dobbie. Filing as a Democrat was Ronald G. Fournier.

Only clerk's race spared fight

CANTON TOWNSHIP—Philip Dingeldey, Canton Township supervisor for the past nine years, has decided not to seek re-election.

However two Democrats and two Republicans have filed for the post, thus creating primary battles in both parties.

Robert Greenstein, an attorney and president of the Canton Homeowners Federation, and Jack Marts, who lost in his bids for supervisor in 1970 and 1972, will face each other for the Democratic nomination for supervisor in the Aug. 6 primary.

James Poole, a township trustee, and Ralph Foote, a former justice of the peace for Canton, will vie for the GOP nomination for supervisor.

The winners of those two races will face each other in the November general election.

Township Clerk John Flodin is virtually assured of re-election to his seat since he was the only one to file for that office. He is a Democrat.

Perhaps the toughest race of all in Canton's primary is that for the treasurer's seat where incumbent Grant Campbell must face two opponents — Carl Parsell, president of the Windsor Park Homeowners Association, and Thomas B. Stevens, a local auto parts dealer—for the Democratic nomination.

The winner of that three-way race for the Democratic nomination must face Richard I. Wolfe Jr., a Republican who is an administrative assistant for Wayne County and who was last week appointed to the township board, in the November general election.

There will be primary battles in both the Democratic and Republican parties for the two four-year township trustee spots up for election.

Filing for the Democratic nomination to the two spots are: E. Brian Schwall, an incumbent; Joseph De-Lauro, an art professor; and Robert Myers, head of the Michigan Mobile Homeowners Association, an unsuccessful trustee candidate two years ago.

Incumbent Trustee Donald Korte is not seeking reelection.

Vying for the Republican nomination to the two trustee seats are: Joseph R. Kinnick, chairman of the planning commission; Warren E. Attwood, a local industrialist; and William Ryan.

The two winners in each of the three-way races will run in the general election with the two top finishers there winning the seats.

The winner of a three-way race for the Democratic nomination to the one two-year trustee term is virtually assured of election since no one filed as a Republican for the post.

Running are: Frank A. McMurray, a local insurance agent and an unsuccessful trustee candidate two years ago; Irene G. Murphy; and Gerald Cheske.

Cheske had originally filed for the four-year trustee terms race but withdrew to enter the two-year term contest.

He is running on the Canton Democratic Club slate with Greenstein, Parsell, DeLauro and Myers and it was discovered that the slate's three trustee candidates, who filed two weeks ago, had all filed for the two four-year terms race.

Incumbent Trustee Donald Korte is not seeking re-election.

Only four Democrats filed for the four two-year constable terms.

They include a husband and wife team, Jack L. and Ann L. Blevins. If elected she will be the first woman constable in known township history.

Also filing for the Democratic nominations for constable are: Gene W. Reaves and Timothy W. Murphy.

Dingeldey era draws to close

By W. EDWARD WENDOVER

CANTON TOWNSHIP — The Dingeldey era of Canton Township will end on Nov. 30.

That's the day Supervisor Phil Dingeldey, who has served the township in public office for the past 34 years, will retire from public service.

Dingeldey, who has served as township supervisor since 1965, has decided not to seek re-election.

Although he had obtained some signatures on a nomination petition for re-election, he did not file it Tuesday, saying his decision not to run was being made for his family.

During his past two years in office, Dingeldey has often come under fire from homeowner groups representing the newer Canton residents attracted by the building boom seen here since 1970.

Still active in county 4-H activities, Dingeldey represented the agricultural era of Canton when the community was known for producing sweet corn and not overnight subdivisions.

As the farm fields were sold to developers who built houses which were in turn occupied by Canton's newer residents, the political pressures in the community began to build.

More than once at township board meetings, Dingeldey's temper was aroused by some of the township homeowner group residents.

His views in support of the controversial regional shopping center known as the Mocer Project brought him much criticism.

Dingeldey's witticisms frequently lightened township board meetings and he was always able to summon up a barb against the county's services — or lack thereof — to the township.

In former years he was known to respond to broken water main calls and to work alongside DPW crews in repairing them. He put up some of the paneling in the township offices himself rather than pay a contractor to do it out of township funds.

Injured seriously in a motorcycle accident two years ago, Dingeldey's other illnesses have often kept him down during the past several months. He sold his family farm on Hagerty Road to a developer two years ago.

Dingeldey, 63, is married and the father of eight children.

Schools -- PEA talks to resume

PLYMOUTH — Negotiations between the Plymouth School District and the Plymouth Education Association (PEA, teachers' union) will resume Monday.

The PEA last Friday announced it would support 22 teachers assigned to the year round school program who have notified the schools that they will not teach in the program unless a contract is settled.

Norm Kee, administrative assistant for personnel for the schools, said Tuesday, "We're going back to negotiations."

He said the schedule for bargaining with the teachers includes sessions on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Twenty two of the 26 teachers assigned to the '45-15' pilot program at Miller Elementary School scheduled to begin July 22, signed a letter to the schools Friday saying they wouldn't teach until a contract with year round school provisions was ratified.

In reaction to that letter, the school board met in executive session Monday night. Kee said that no decisions were reached there but the administration is investigating "alternatives" to the proposed program. He did not elaborate.

Jaycees plan July 4th gala

PLYMOUTH—All the ingredients that go to make a super Fourth of July celebration will be combined in Plymouth under the banner of "Unity in the Community."

Sponsored by the Plymouth Jaycees, the annual July Fourth parade will begin at 12:15 p.m. with dozens of floats and special entries expected to take part.

Grand marshal of the parade will be Former Mayor James McKeon. Other dignitaries expected to participate include Gov. William Milliken, Wayne County Sheriff William Lucas, British Consul General James T. Hylop, U.S. Rep. Marvin Esch, District Court Judge Dunbar Davis and State Rep. Ray Smit as well as Plymouth's present mayor, Mrs. Beverly McAninch.

Parade chairman is John Stow of 3920 Koppernick.

The Jaycees are again handling the bike contest that is held in conjunction with the event.

A ground display of fireworks will be held at 9:30 p.m. July 2 and 4 at Middle School East to climax the merriment.

In addition to the parade, Jaycees will hold a carnival on the grounds of Middle School from noon to 11 p.m. July 2 to 6 in cooperation with Happy Land Shows. Contests being held in connection with the carnival will offer as prizes a week's use of a motor home, $100 in cash and two gift certificates to a nightclub.

And one more thing — just in case you're wondering — there'll be elephants in the parade again this year as well as bands and marching units from as far away as Canada and Ohio, Stow announced.

Any civic or community organization interested in joining the parade may contact Stow for further information.

Schoolcraft board ready to approve added tax

By R. T. THOMPSON
Unless a majority of the members of the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees change their mind between now and next Wednesday, June 26, property owners in the five communities supporting the community college will be assessed 0.23 mills more on the next tax rolls.

That became apparent in a study session last week when a poll of the seven trustees present showed all favored making the assessment. It will be done by vote of the board but not by a poll of the electors and is termed as perfectly legal.

"Legally right but not morally right," was the way Trustee Arch Vallier of Plymouth put it as he fought for and gained tentative approval from the board that the assessment would be for one year only.

Then, the consensus appeared to be, the college will go to the voters for enough additional millage to operate properly without financial problems each budget time.

APPROVAL OF the 0.23 mills assessment is expected to come at a public hearing on the budget next Wednesday. In the past there haven't been enough persons from the various communities attending hearings to give the trustees any kind of direction.

Whether that trend will be changed with the prospect of an unvoted assessment remains to be seen. It appears after last week's lengthy sessions the trustees have only one way to go to insure operation for the 1974-75 college year and that is to secure additional needed funds through the increased millage.

The 0.23 mills will bring $380,000 to the college. It can be used only for debt retirement under provisions of the state law but will release additional funds for the general operating fund.

Without the increase and despite the eight per cent increase in state equalized valuation, the college would not have any new personnel, new services or new equipment for 1974-5. That was explained by President Nelson Grote in a series of charts drawn up especially for presentation to the trustees and for whatever members of the general public were present. Seven of the eight board members listened to the presentation but the general public didn't have a single representative.

"If we have to budget with no levy outside the voted millage, then we wouldn't be able to take care of the faculty increments for the next year let alone salary increases," reported Grote. "With the 0.23 mills levy outside the voted millage, we would have $183,913 available for increases for an estimated average of five per cent boost in salaries."

The administration recommends the board levy the 0.23 mills outside the voted millage for a total budget of $7,852,608. This would provide for $175,000 in a special maintenance fund and would give the negotiating team something to carry into the sessions with the Faculty Forum team in contract talks.

GROTE TOLD the board several Michigan colleges have taken advantage of the opportunity to assess property owners outside the voted millage when in financial binds similar to that of Schoolcraft College.

"We were thinking of going to the voters for additional millage this spring," said Grote, "but realized it might work a hardship on the school districts of Livonia and Plymouth, which were seeking additional funds, and decided to delay such an election until a later date."

"Whether we acted right or wrong remains to be seen but one thing is certain, Schoolcraft College is in a financial bind and the only possible way out this year is to assess the 0.23 mills. What happens in another year will be the decision of the trustees."

Board President Jack LaRue started an open discussion in which all board members were urged to participate by saying he felt it must assess the 0.23 mills to keep the college operating.

The assessment will bring in $380,000 for debt retirement and release other funds for general operating which we need," he said. "It is legal under state law but has received some adverse publicity. I feel we must assess it."

Trustee Paul Kadish said the board has the responsibility of providing education and the assessment is the only way possible at this time.

"I disagree this is taxation without representation," he emphasized. "We have been elected by the voters and therefore we are their representatives. If we decide this millage is necessary, then the electors gave us that permission by placing us in these posts."

Vallier expressed qualms about assessing the 0.23 mills, saying he preferred going to the people for a vote rather than assessing outside the voted millage.

"I think the people are entitled to vote on any issue that is going to cost more money. I would go along with the 0.23 millage for one year and then have an election next June to decide what the people think of furnishing additional funds to keep this college operating as it should."

"A special election would cost $30,000 and we don't have the time. There really isn't any other way to go right now than to assess the 0.23 mills outside the voted millage and then hold a vote next June."

TRUSTEE Lee Bennett said he was certain the assessment was legal but he felt the same as Vallier on going outside the voted millage.

"We didn't increase the tuition fees," he emphasized, "a step I am in accord with, but I believe we have to go to the people for a vote next June and ask them to give us what is needed."

"Most of us on the board didn't want an election this year because we thought it might jeopardize the Plymouth and Livonia school millage votes. We'll have to use the 0.23 mills this year, there isn't any question about that but the future will have to depend on what the voters say in an election next June."

Trustee Rosina Raymond told the board she thought the assessment would be for only one year and all had understood it that way.

"We agreed to try and hold the tuition fees at the same level since higher fees would have made it rough on a good many of our students," she related. "But now we find we have to have additional funds for the next college year and this is the only way of doing it."

Trustee Ron Cowden explained the board was in a position where it knew it has to come up with additional funds to meet the demands of the Faculty Forum in the current bargaining sessions.

"I can't see any other out," he said. "We have to have additional funds in a hurry. This method has been declared legal even though there is some question about how right it is morally and it does give us most of the money needed."

Now the matter goes into a formal discussion at the public hearing next Wednesday at 7 p.m.

How they're dancing their way to Scotland

PREPARING for a trip to Scotland next year to compete in the Highland Dancing Festival, members of Diana MacPhee's (right) Highland dancing class work on improving their skills.

By JAN WILLIAMS

Bad arches and weak lungs have kept Diana MacPhee from doing what she really wants to do, but fortunately she has found an acceptable substitute.

At the age of six, Miss MacPhee asked her father, a professional bagpiper, to teach her to play the bagpipes. He rerouted her enthusiasm into dancing, however, because girls aren't supposed to be able to play the bagpipes. "Their lungs are weak."

So Miss MacPhee learned Scottish Highland dancing instead. She became proficient enough that she reached the top echelon of Highland dancing and won more than 100 medals within eight years.

Then, at the age of 14, the doctor told her she shouldn't dance anymore because she had bad arches. Now that bagpiping and dancing both were out, a determined Miss MacPhee put her skills to work teaching Highland dancing.

Now one of 16 Highland dancing teachers in the area, Miss MacPhee has about 15 students she teaches in the basement of her grandmother's home in Northville.

As a member of the United States Highland Dancing Association, Miss MacPhee's class will be going on a trip to Scotland in August 1975, to compete in various dancing festivals. Approximately 250 dancers from Plymouth, Livonia, Garden City, Northville, Redford, Farmington and other surrounding communities will be participating.

Each teacher is in charge of raising funds for her class. It is estimated the trip will cost each student about $300. Dance recitals and garage sales have been held to raise money and other fund-raisers are being planned.

Most of Miss MacPhee's students are girls. However, there are a few boys. Most range in age from five to 18, but there is no age limit.

There are five different levels in Highland dancing: baby (anyone up to seven years), beginner, novice, intermediate, and open. A student has to win three medals at one level before she can move up to the next level. Although you can go no higher than the open level, Miss MacPhee says it is a continual learning process.

To be a Highland dancing teacher, one must have reached the highest level and be at least 16 years old. Miss MacPhee is 17 and has been teaching since September. She is a junior at Northville High School.

There are about nine different competitions held in the area throughout the year, with the main event held in May at Oakland University.

Miss MacPhee says it usually takes about six to eight months of lessons before a student is ready for competition.

Some of the dancers are the Highland Fling, Sword Dance, Shean Trews, Scottish version of the Irish Jig, Sailor's Horn Pipe, Scottish Reel and other traditional dances.

Costumes for the dancers are kilts with matching socks, vest, blouse and Highland dancing shoes, special shoes similar to ballet shoes.

Next month, Miss MacPhee will be taking her nine-year-old sister, Donna, to Scotland to compete in the Edinburgh Festival and Sterling Highland Games. Donna has also won more than 100 medals and 30 trophies in Highland dancing competition.

Miss MacPhee has worked up a tremendous amount of enthusiasm for teaching dancing and at this point has no thoughts of giving it up.

She hopes some day to be able to dance again, depending on arches. As for the bagpipes, she has decided to leave that to her father and her brother.

An avid sportsman, Shear spent many of his retirement days fishing and hunting.

He also served as president of the Rotary Club, and of the Chamber of Commerce — of which he was a charter member.

Shear was 86.

He is survived by his wife, Cora; a son, J. Frederick Shear of Ann Arbor; a sister, Mrs. August Petoskey of Li-von; two grandsons; and several nieces and nephews.

Policeman running for county position

WESTLAND—Andy Spisak, Westland police lieutenant, will seek the Democratic nomination for the 27th District Wayne County Commission post in the Aug. 6 primary.

Spisak, a former Wayne policeman who has been with the Westland force since it was organized nearly eight years ago, nomination in the district which includes the southern portion of Westland, city of Plymouth and the townships of Plymouth and Canton.

The candidate, 39, and the father of five, has been a Wayne-Westland resident for 14 years and is a trustee for the Wayne Ford Civic League.

Citing upcoming county issues, he said he is "disturbed by the threatened cutbacks" of sheriff's road patrols in the out-county area by the board of commissioners.

He said government spending is the key issue and promised to see that taxes are spent wisely.

Spisak said "it is up to the people to make county government more responsive to their local needs."

Library hosting gem, mineral show

PLYMOUTH—Displays of Michigan gems, minerals and fossils will be on exhibit at the Plymouth Dunning-Hough Library during the month of June.

Since Michigan is one of the richest mineralized states, members of the Michigan Mineralogical Society and the Rock Exchange Club of Garden City are using this theme to display all the minerals and fossils that can be found in Michigan.

Viewers will have the opportunity to see native copper from the Keweenaw which was mined more than 100 years ago. Minerals of the iron country, blue celestite, sulphur, calcite, selenite, marcasite and pyrite are some of the other specimens on display.

Maurice Woodworth, 1100 Simpson St., a member of the Rock Exchange Club, was responsible for bringing the display to the Dunning-Hough Library. The exhibit will also be on display in 26 other libraries in the greater Detroit area during the summer.

Members of the Rock Exchange Club and other sister clubs throughout the state are busy preparing for the major project of the year, the Greater Detroit International Gem and Mineral Show. The show will be held in October at the Light Guard Armory in Detroit.

Information concerning this hobby and local clubs can be obtained from the librarians at the Dunning-Hough Library during the display period.

Damman is 'overwhelmed' he was picked by Milliken

By ROBERT KIPPER
LANSING—James Damman said the last few days before receiving word that Gov. William Milliken wanted him for a running mate felt a lot like waiting for returns on election night. "I had done everything I could," he said. "All I could do was wait."

Gov. Milliken did keep Damman waiting, notifying him less than 12 hours prior to the Thursday press conference, which made public the governor's choice for lieutenant governor.

The governor's decision — relayed to Damman and his wife Peg by telephone at 10 p.m. Wednesday — ended the public guessing game over who that choice would be. It also "overwhelmed" the 41-year-old Damman, who began his political career just five years ago as a Troy city commissioner.

UNTIL THEN, the identity of Milliken's running mate was, as Republican State chairman William McLaughlin put it, "one of the best kept secrets in Lansing."

Although names such as State Rep. Melvin Larsen (R-Oxford), Oakland County Commissioner Pat Nowak of Farmington and State Sen. William Ballenger (R-Lansing) were also among those mentioned as front runners, when Milliken entered Thursday's news conference it was with a beaming Damman in tow.

"I have consistently said that I would want as a running mate a person with whom I could work closely and a person with the integrity, respect, ability, judgment and dedication to serve the public interest," Gov. Milliken began. "I believe Jim Damman is such a person."

Calling Damman "a man for all Michigan," Milliken said he has what it takes to be "a strong running mate, an effective lieutenant governor and a potential governor."

FACING NEWSMEN and camera crews that crowded the governor's office, Damman said he was "pleased and proud" to be associated with a man he thinks is one of the greatest governors the state has had.

He added he is "absolutely confident" the Milliken-Damman ticket will win in November.

Within minutes of the news conference, the receptionist in Damman's office was flooded with calls from well-wishers.

"I haven't had a chance to shake his hand," the receptionist said as she kept the line of newsmen and friends flowing.

Sitting at his desk with a half dozen congratulatory memos strung out before him, Damman called the previous 24 hours' events "unbelievable."

DAMMAN acknowledged he is still amazed at the distance his short political career has traveled: From city commissioner in 1969 to state representative in 1970 to candidate for the state's second highest office four years later.

Quite a stretch for a man who says he never harbored political aspirations as a youth.

Good customer

Western Electric, manufacturing arm of the Bell System, purchased some $666,000 in goods from local firms, according to local manager Haze Wilson. Twenty-seven Livonia businesses sold Western Electric $633,578 in goods and services last year, and 33 Plymouth businesses sold it $231,909 in goods and services.

New director denies social security failure

Amid speculation that the Social Security System is in financial trouble, acting regional commissioner of the Social Security Administration Harry R. Shandelson has announced the appointment of Stefan Gasparovic as the new district manager of the Detroit-Northwest Social Security Office.

That office administers the social security system for over 80,000 beneficiaries in the Northwest Wayne County area.

The appointment comes at a time when the Social Security Administration is under attack because of reports the old age, survivors, and disability insurance trust fund is failing—that it is going broke.

However, Gasparovic said, this is not an accurate representation of the facts.

While it is true, he said, that by the late 1970s the social security trust funds may be "in the red," sufficient funds will be on hand "for many years to come" to pay benefits due.

Congress will have time, he added, to correct the problem of future under-financing of the trust funds.

Before coming to this district, Gasparovic served as district manager of the Saginaw Social Security Office. He has been employed by the Social Security Administration for 23 years, and has held various positions in district offices in Flint, Saginaw, Highland Park, and Marion, Ohio.

County clerk runs for judge

Wayne County Clerk Joseph B. Sullivan has filed as a candidate for judge of the Wayne County Circuit Court.

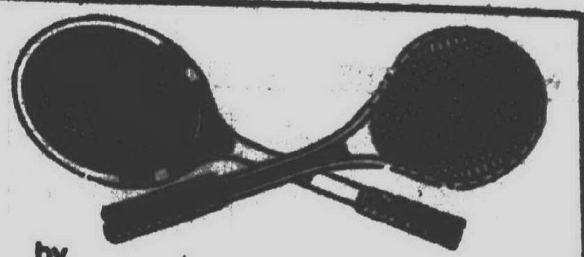

Sullivan, 52, filed nominating petitions with the secretary of state's office in Lansing to run for one of the five new seats on the circuit bench created by the State Legislature.

Along with serving as clerk since 1970 he has headed the criminal division of the Michigan attorney general's office, in private law practice and in key governmental posts.

Sullivan was executive secretary to Detroit Mayor Jerome P. Cavanagh and was elected member of the Detroit Charter Revision Commission.

He is a member of the Detroit Bar Association and the State Bar of Michigan. He and his wife, Mary, have two children and live in Detroit.

SALEM LUMBER CENTER

30650 PLYMOUTH ROAD

Now they're letting EVERYBODY run

The races are on!
But where are the Plymouth Township Democrats who two years ago came so close?

In this year when even Republican candidates for township constable are nervous about Watergate backlash, the Plymouth Township Democrats couldn't muster anybody to run for the top two Plymouth Township offices.

Does this mean that after coming so close, the Democrats are going to give up forever?

Even without the inter-party battles we saw two years ago, election year in Plymouth Township will be as exciting as it will be in Canton.

With four candidates running for the GOP nomination for Plymouth Township supervisor, it wouldn't be at all surprising to see one (or maybe even two) of them drop out.

J. D. McLaren, who seemed to have taken his job so reluctantly and who constantly feared he was "in over his head," surprised many by filing for re-election.

Maybe now that he's done so, Soren Pedersen and - or Greg Dean will drop out to leave the race to a rematch of the McLaren - Maurice Breen primary fight of two years ago.

Rumor has it that Dean might pull out and Pedersen said last week he was filing because he thought McLaren might not run again.

Apparently residents of both Plymouth and Canton townships are satisfied with their clerks. Neither Helen Richardson nor John Flodin face opposition in re-election bids. "It's reassuring," Mrs. Richardson said.

While Janet Pierangelino sits quietly back until August, the four candidates for the Republican nomination for Plymouth Township treasurer will battle it out.

It makes you kind of suspicious that the treasurer's job would attract so many candidates doesn't it?

It's the same way in Canton where there are three candidates for the Democratic nomination for treasurer and one Republican candidate - a surprise.

Do you think Incumbent Treasurer Grant Campbell would like to reconsider his vote to appoint Dick Wolfe to the township board vacancy last week now that Wolfe has filed to face the winner in the Democratic race for treasurer?

The Canton supervisor's race should be a good one.

Greenstein's victory over Jack Marts - who has lost in his bids for the supervisor post in 1970 and 1972 - is almost certain.

In the GOP race for the top spot, Jim Poole, currently a township trustee, will face Ralph Foote, a former justice of the peace for Canton. (Greenstein is also a former JP.)

Poole admits he entered the race to do battle with Greenstein and that's probably how it will end up. "We understand each other," Poole said of Greenstein.

There'll be fights in both parties on Aug. 6 to win nominations for the two four-year Canton Township trustee posts. Three candidates have filed in each party.

In the race for the one two-year trustee term are three Democrats. The winner of that primary fight wins the seat since no Republican filed.

Jerry Cheske apparently drew the short straw between Joe DeLauro, Bob Myers and himself when the Canton Dem Club slate's three township trustee candidates all filed for the two four-year terms. Cheske's now running for the two-year stint.

The races in both Plymouth and Canton townships once again prove that politics and real estate mix real well.

Maybe it's because real estate agents figure they've already got signs made with their names on them to be used in campaigning, but once again they've flocked to run.

You'd think that in the booming communities of our two townships the real estate people would be too busy getting rich to run for public office.

It once again raises the point that almost every action a township board or administrator takes, affects land values in the community.

In Plymouth Township we have Pedersen, Breen, Tom Notebaert and Joe West as candidates who are involved with real estate sales and in Canton we have Poole.

Even if they were to put their real estate licenses in escrow for their terms of office, the actions of the township boards in the meantime will affect land values that in turn would affect those licenses' value when put back into use.

Wouldn't we all be more comfortable if the real estate people would just stay away from public office?

In America, we let just anybody run - even real estate salesmen.

And from the looks of the Plymouth and Canton township primary ballots for Aug. 6, they let anybody run, and everybody too.

The Canton firefighters received their charter last week, according to Fire Chief Mel Paulun, and have elected officers. President is Lt. Arthur Winkel. Vice president is Frank Chakrabarty and Sgt. Ken Witt is secretary.

The new union will act in its own behalf in salary negotiations prior to the submission of the fire department budget next October, Paulun added.

Bill seeks District Court financial reform

By MARTHA MAHAN

LIVONIA — A bill to make financing of district courts a state responsibility is moving through the Legislature in the wake of an earlier action creating 14 new judgeships.

It would replace the present "unit control" formula which, in some instances, entangles judges in seeking and disbursing funds to as many as seven local governments.

"They are state courts and ought to be state operated," said 10th District Judge James E. Mies of Livonia, president of the Michigan District Judges Association.

Current forced reliance on local government generosity to operate the courts has resulted in unfair, disparate conditions, Mies said. "In some places the judges don't even have an office," he declared.

THE PRESENT LAW places courts in one of three situations, he explained. In some instances, the court's "unit control" is just the city, as is the case in Livonia.

In other cases, the unit is a combination of cities and townships. Such, for instance, is the 35th District Court, which includes the City of Plymouth, Plymouth Township, the City of Northville, Northville Township and Canton Township.

In the third case, the control unit is the county. Where a court is operated by multiple units of government, it must negotiate for funds and disburse the funds it collects in fines on a pro-rated basis.

This leaves a court such as Trenton, which has seven local governments in its control unit, in a complicated financing situation.

THE BILL, providing for state financing, which has passed the House and now is in the Senate, would take over financing and operating expenses of all district courts in Michigan.

The state would receive all funds collected by all the courts and return one-third of its contribution to each individual municipality.

The returned funds would recognize local contributions toward court services in such form as police enforcement.

Both the bill adding the 14 new district judges, which was signed into law Friday by Gov. William G. Milliken, and the bill to provide state financing have Jan. 1 effective dates.

In the Observer & Eccentric area, only the 47th District, composed of Farmington and Farmington Hills, gets another judge. Michael Hand now is the court's only judge.

The measure creating the new judgeships was hastened through the legislature to give candidates time to file by the June 18 deadline.

The needed petition signatures, based upon a percentage of the vote in the last election in the judicial district, was cut in half to further aid candidates.

NEED for the new judges is supported, Mies said, by statistics which show the number of criminal cases coming before district courts has increased by about two and a half times in the period from 1952 to 1972 and civil cases have gone up three times in the same 10 years.

"But there's been nowhere near that increase in court personnel," he said.

The increased court load is due not so much to increased crime as to population shifts, the judge said.

"The courts originally were set up on the basis of one judge per 50,000 population, two judges per 100,000 population and so on.

"In some areas the population has grown quite markedly. Take, for example, the Trenton district court which includes Brownstown Township where there has been a great influx of population."

"That means more traffic offenses, more homes to be broken into. 'I understand Judge Dunbar Davis is even conducting trials at night in the Plymouth-Northville district to keep up," Mies said.

Additionally, the judge said, the public is becoming more "sophisticated, more aware of legal rights."

"We have cases coming up now that would never have been thought of years ago."

Instead of by population, new district judges are being added through criteria such as the number of cases, ability to keep up with the case load, etc., Mies said.

JUDGE JAMES McCANN, Livonia's senior jurist, sees some problems with the state financing measure as passed by the House.

"I think a bill eventually will be passed," he said, "but it needs amendments as it is structured right now."

As now written, the measure leaves too much control over the district courts to the Michigan Supreme Court's administrator and not enough to the individual districts, in McCann's opinion.

A last minute amendment, he said, also leaves judicial pay to the decision of the legislature.

"If amended, I'm confident the bill will go through," McCann said. "It would be an advantage to other districts of the state — a big improvement."

Livonia has not asked for a third judge.

"We're busy but not at the point where there is real need," Mies said. "We're able to handle the caseload pretty well."

"One thing that hurt though," he said, "is that, in the past, district judges have been reassigned for periods of time to sit in Wayne County Circuit Court to help catch up on the caseload there."

That meant a pileup back home.

"I SAT there in December, and I'm still not caught up" with Livonia cases, he said.

Now, however, two district judges are assigned regularly to hear circuit court cases, he said.

"Money making" by the courts in the way of fines also varies considerably, Mies said. "In some communities it represents a substantial amount, not by design but because of the caseload."

Livonia probably makes $200,000 a year from fines, beyond the cost of maintaining the court," he said. "But in smaller areas, some courts maybe just break even or it costs the county a few dollars to operate them."

Off to darkest Africa with tape recorder, Bible

By SHERRY KAHAN

Not many people would be willing to exchange such amenities of life as steaks, brick walls and polished floors for the crocodile meat, mud walls and dirt floors of a remote African village.

But Mike and Gloris Naruta can't wait.

Formerly residents of Westland, he as a computer programmer for the city, and she as a substitute teacher, the Narutas are champing at the bit to be off to the Vai tribe in Liberia.

Although the tribe lives only about an hour and a half from the capital city of Monrovia, it is still primitive enough to have a language not yet in written form.

The passion of the Narutas, who will speak in Westland's St. Matthew Lutheran Church June 23, is to bring to this tribe the Bible.

"But first we will have to learn their language," said Naruta. "Then by using the international phonetic alphabet we can write down any of the sounds the human voice apparatus can make, including African click sounds."

His wife explained that "we next will put the sounds into an alphabet, and then modify it to suit the national script and eventually create a written language for the 29,000 members of the tribe. In time we will teach them to read the Bible."

Mrs. Naruta said, "We always felt that missionaries were important and that where ever we were, we were missionaries in a sense and it was our responsibility as Christians to share the joy of knowing Christ."

The fact that they will be living in a primitive area does not mean that the tools of their work will be primitive.

"Tape recorders will be useful because you can keep a record of what you hear," said Naruta. "We can also give them to the Africans to take around to record events we might miss."

They are also helpful in recording material from native authors, which can later be used in a literacy program.

"It is frustrating for someone who begins to make progress in reading to have to stick with primers," he said. "With our tape material on folk lore and the words of native story tellers, we can create our own books. We also hope to develop a native newspaper."

"Mike is investigating the use of a computer to aid in analyzing the language because it can handle so much data," said Mrs. Naruta.

Naruta, who earned his ham radio operator's license when he was 11, will also make use of this tool in his African work. In his younger days he used to be in communication with the scientific base at Antarctica, arranging phone patches so the men there could talk with their families in this country.

Moving from contacts with one of the coldest areas of the world, he will soon be contacting with one of the hottest.

He will use a radio to maintain communication with the city in case of emergencies. "It will be nice to hear English spoken once in a while when we talk to other missionaries," said Naruta.

The Narutas first learned about the fact that so many remote peoples of the world were unable to read the Bible through a speaker who came to St. Matthew Church.

"It really surprised us to hear that there were so many tribes without God's word in their language," said Mrs. Naruta. "When we heard that the missionaries sometimes use lay people, we thought we'd write to Lutheran Bible Translators."

Naruta said, "Then a letter came back saying they could use us. He added: 'I had always thought of doing mission work, but there didn't seem to be a place for me to fit. Now I realize my ham radio hobby was a gift from God that I can use to serve him."

The couple then attended the Summer Institute of Linguistics, sponsored by Lutheran Bible Translators.

"We hope to work as a team with the people of the tribe," said Mike. "They will be the language helpers who can later be trained to become teachers. I plan also to teach them something about radios because they are very intelligent about machinery."

Yet the tribes still hold to many of their old beliefs, said Mrs. Naruta. "They still use witch doctors, and we know there is a lot of fear because they still try to appease evil spirits by sacrificing food before going on a journey."

The Narutas call theirs a faith mission which means they are trying to raise the money for their trip by appealing to various individuals and church groups.

"We will probably be there three or four years," said Mrs. Naruta, who expects to give birth to her first child in January in one of the two hospitals in Monrovia.

"The translation program can take five years," she explained. "The complete work of translating, teaching, completing the Bible and preparing the tribal people to read it usually takes from 10 to 15 years."

She believes the work will move along swiftly because "leaders in the tribe have asked for linguistic translators and literacy teachers."

She has pointed out that since she and her husband are traveling around the state and are difficult to reach, anyone wishing to get in touch with them may contact Mrs. Roger Swarthout, 29533 Hennepin, Garden City.

It is the hope of the Narutas to be able to leave on their mission this August since "a lot of people are praying for us."

Players debut for VBS

The Ward Players, a group of teens interested in dramatics, will make their debut and provide an added attraction for Ward United Presbyterian Church's Vacation Bible School June 24 to 28.

The Players, led by Mrs. Carolyn Paperski of Westland, will present skits that go with the scripture readings opening each day's session at 9:30 a.m.

"We'll have the scripture reading," said Mrs. David Strong of Livonia, the director, "and then the kids will act out the application of that passage for modern living."

The Players, recently organized of junior and senior high students, will be continued as a regular church organization after Bible School is over.

"Jesus is the Way" is the theme for this year's program, planned for youngsters from kindergarten through seventh grade. Crafts, games and songs will be included in the activities.

Ward church is located at Farmington Road and Six Mile in Livonia.

Church plans activity days

Activity days for youngsters from first to sixth grades are planned throughout the summer by the Garden City Free Methodist Church, 27415 Maplewood.

Beginning today (Thursday, June 20), the church will sponsor a program of recreational games, crafts, stories, field trips and refreshment times every Thursday from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m.

All children in the area are welcome and there is no registration charge. A small fee will be necessary for handicrafts and for field trips.

Lutherans put children back in 'Bibletimes'

A visit to biblical times—as realistic as five Bible School directors working together can make it—is in store for children in six area Lutheran churches in Livonia this summer.

The project begins with a week of "Bibletimes" in Holy Cross Church, 30650 W. Six Mile, from June 24 to June 28.

Before the summer is over, it will have involved Holy Trinity, 39020 Five Mile; Christ the King, 9300 Farmington Road; Faith, 30000 Five Mile; All Saints, 8850 Newburgh, all of Livonia, and Prince of Peace, 37775 Palmer, Westland.

In the Bible School programs, the children will set up a marketplace as it was in the time of Jesus' years in Nazareth, and it will be the center of the school's activity.

Students will make sandals, money purses and togas and will wear the costumes in the market place as they learn to weave, bake unleavened bread, make pottery and do some carpentry in different centers within the market place.

"We hope the children will come to understand the people and some of the everyday things of long ago and will sense a feeling of Christian community as they work together," said Diane Jurick, coordinator for the Holy Cross school.

Daily worship and local field trips also are planned, and in several of the churches visiting deaconesses will play an active role in conducting the schools.

Directors of all the schools have been working together so that resources for the programs can be shared. All schools will be in session from 9:30 a.m. to 12 noon.

Following the Holy Cross school, Holy Trinity and Christ the King will conduct their programs July 29 to Aug. 9. The dates for Faith and Prince of Peace are Aug. 12 to 23, and the school at All Saints is scheduled Aug. 19 to 29.

Information on any of the programs is available by calling the churches.

So if you leave $10,000 in this account for four years, you'll earn $751.80 in interest the first year alone! Even more when interest is compounded daily during the second, third and fourth years. Of course, withdrawals prior to maturity earn regular passbook rates, less 90 days' interest.

A bill to phase out the oil depletion allowance and impose a tax on windfall profits of oil companies is "an example of positive people-oriented legislation," Ron Egnor recently told the congregation of St. Clare of Assisi Episcopal Church in Ann Arbor.

Egnor is a Democratic candidate for nomination in the 2nd Congressional District which includes Livonia, Plymouth, Monroe County and part of Washtenaw.

"FOR TOO LONG the laws governing energy production in our nation have favored the great corporations, not the people that Congress is constitutionally mandated to represent," Egnor told the church's social concerns committee.

"Ample energy is critical to our modern technological society — Congress must insure no private corporation or group of organizations can obtain a stranglehold on this lifeblood of our nation.

"I do object, however," Egnor continued, "to a provision of the bill that gradually drops the oil depletion allowance over a three-year period. This unfair tax break to the big oil-producing corporations should be cut off immediately."

The bill would drop the present oil depletion allowance from 22 per cent to 15 per cent in 1975, eight per cent in 1976, and phase out completely in 1977.

EGNOR ADDED the bill would also set a windfall profits tax on crude oil prices should extraordinary economic conditions drive prices above $4.50 a barrel.

DONALD J. KREBS of Detroit has been appointed resident comptroller of Chevrolet's Eckles Road plant in Livonia. Once a member of the Detroit Board of Education, Krebs succeeds Eugene Sharp, who has been taken the same post as Chevrolet's Parma manufacturing plants. Krebs, a native of St. Louis, received a BS degree from St. Louis University and a master's degree in business administration from Michigan State University, joining Chevrolet in 1962.

U.S. decision on nuclear aid

The Nixon Administration was strongly criticized for agreeing to supply nuclear fuel to Egypt by Dr. Ed Pierce, an Ann Arbor physician seeking the Democratic nomination for Congress in the 2nd District.

"I am very disturbed by the agreement made between President Nixon and Egyptian President Sadat," Pierce said to supporters in Monroe. "I think it's a serious error to ship atomic products that could be used in making nuclear weapons into a situation like that in the Middle East."

"When you consider the kind of deep-seated hostility that exists in that area of the world, and the destruction already done there with mere conventional weapons, it seems hard to understand why anyone would want to, in any way, risk nuclear weapons coming into the conflict."

Dr. Pierce also noted that under the Atomic Energy Act there is a 30-day waiting period before the pact goes into effect, and that during the period Congress could pass a bill of disapproval nullifying the agreement.

"I am urging the Congress to very seriously consider the consequences of this treaty, and to pass a bill disapproving it," Pierce continued.

"One of the major contentions of my campaign has been the fact that Congress has been neglecting its responsibility to participate in determining foreign policy. This would be a golden opportunity for the Congress to head off a dangerous situation in the Middle East and at the same time to reassert itself in an area where it has let the President dominate far too much. "Just a few days ago, to my great disappointment, India used her improving technology for the purpose of exploding an experimental nuclear bomb," Dr. Pierce concluded. "I don't think that this country ought to further jeopardize world peace by inadvertently helping Egypt to add its name to the list of nuclear powers."

Science funds being studied by Esch unit

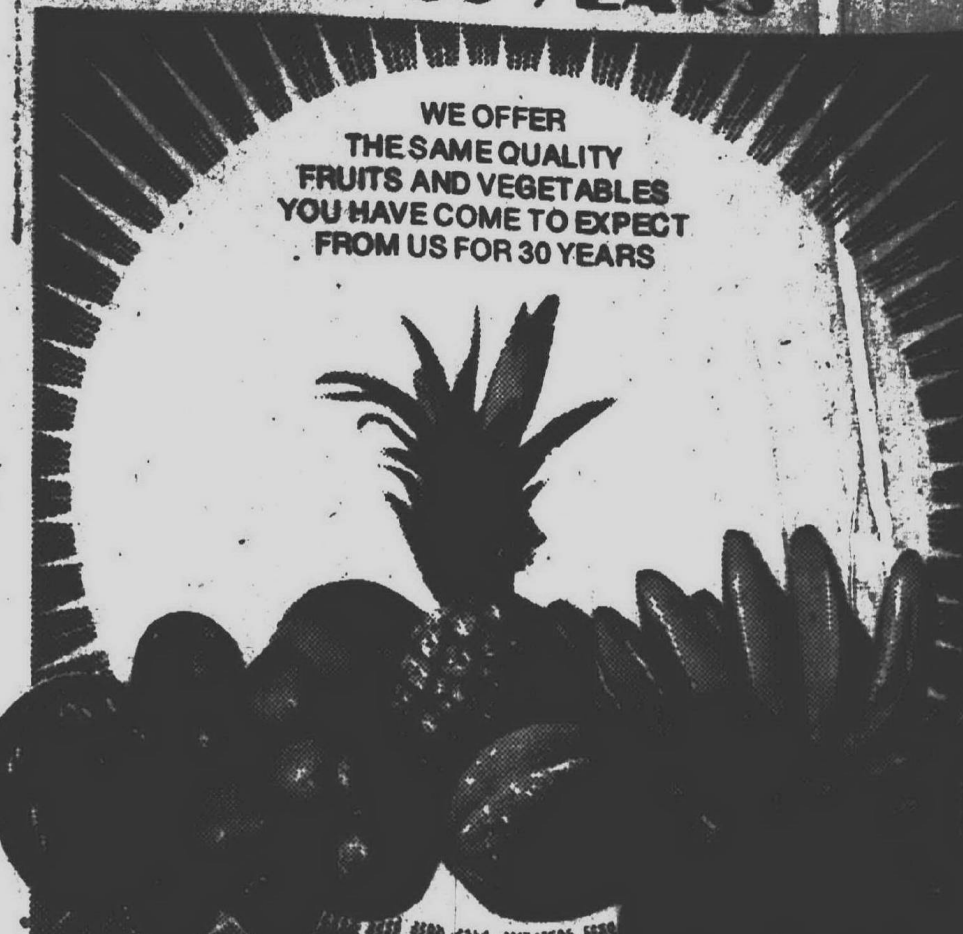

U.S. Rep. Marvin L. Esch (R-Ann Arbor) has been named to a House-Senate conference committee pondering legislation to authorize funding of the National Science Foundation.

"Since the National Science Foundation (NSF) plays a key role in the nation's effort to achieve energy self-sufficiency the focus of my activities will be in defining the federal government's participation in energy research and development," the 2nd District congressman said.

He will also concentrate on the critical role of NSF in directing the country's general science education and basic research efforts which account for an annual budget of more than $400 million.

"Esch was chosen for assignment to the conference because of his familiarity with the National Science Foundation and his experience in matters dealing with energy and general science," said Chairman Olin E. Teague (D-Texas) of the House Science and Astronautics Committee.

Spree '24'

THE "WHIZ KIDS" will be part of a rock concert to be presented at "Spree 24" in Livonia on Thursday, June 27. Tickets are available at the Livonia Parks and Recreation office, 32625 Seven Mile Road.

Kelly exhibit opens

Ellsworth Kelly, one of the key figures in American contemporary art, will personally supervise the installation of his paintings and sculptures in the retrospective exhibition of his work opening at the Detroit Institute of Arts, Wednesday, June 26.

More than 50 sculptures and paintings, many of them oversized, and some 20 drawings will be placed in four galleries of the South Wing for viewing through Sunday, Aug. 11.

Detroit is the last stop on the cross-country tour organized by New York's Museum of Modern Art. It is free to the public.

Twenty-five years of preoccupation with shape and color have been traced in the retrospective directed by Eugene C. Goossen, art critic and professor of art at Hunter College.

FROM HIS HOME and studio in Chatham, N.Y., Kelly will attend the dinner-preview of the exhibition on Monday, June 24. The event is sponsored by the museum's Founders Society group: The Friends of Modern Art (who added Kelly's oil on canvas, "Black White" to the permanent collection in 1966) and the Junior Council.

Kelly was born in Newburgh, N.Y., in 1923. After a brief period of art study at the Pratt Institute he was assigned to a U.S. Army Engineers camouflage unit (1943-45) and finally resumed his studies (1946-48) at the School of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts. The next six years he lived and worked in France: since that time he has based himself in or near New York City.

Military camouflage with its art of form and shadow, its construction and destruction of the visible, wrote an influential chapter in Kelly's biography. (Also in the 603rd Engineers Camouflage Battalion was Bill Blass, who would become a name fashion designer, and Albert Landry, one-time director of Detroit's J.L. Hudson Gallery).

FROM EARLIEST small paintings, done while he lived in France, to the recent "Curve" series, all forms found in Kelly's work derive, however distinctly, from something "real" that he has observed, analyzed and translated on metal or canvas.

Sketches or photographs of slots in the Brooklyn Bridge pylons, the sharp "V" of a neck scarf, the structure of a window frame, or the accidental overlay of colored papers on a studio table have all been abstracted by Kelly into stencil-sharp enlarged images.

"The Ellsworth Kelly Retrospective Exhibition" may be seen during regular museum hours from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Tuesdays through Sundays.

MCA committee favors community arts funding

Community art organizations throughout Michigan may get a share of the $1.1 million allocation requested by the Michigan Council for the Arts for use among the state's six major art institutions.

The executive committee of the MCA recently approved allocating a portion of the $1.1 million item in its budget request for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1974, to smaller established art organizations in addition to the six institutions originally specified—Interlochen, the Detroit Symphony, Michigan Opera Theater, Detroit Institute of Arts, Cranbrook and Meadow Brook Theater.

The action was taken at a regular meeting of the executive committee on June 13 in Ann Arbor and was unanimously accepted.

In announcing the decision, council chairman Walter Boris of Jackson, said, "In the course of public hearings, recently conducted by both the council and the Joint Legislative Committee on the Arts, the needs and desires of intermediate-sized and smaller arts organizations have been so vividly illustrated to us that it seemed appropriate to take this action now, rather than addressing these needs in our proposed budget for the next fiscal year, as we had originally intended."

"While the details of this funding category are not entirely worked out, as yet," Boris said, "it is probable that approximately one-third of the $1.1 million would be made available to these kinds of organizations, assuming they meet certain, basic criteria."

"All this is, of course, dependent upon the full council's confirmation of the executive committee's recommendation, and the assumption that the portion of our budget request containing funds for this purpose is retained by the legislature, as it moves through the appropriations process."

Boris added that it is important for everyone to understand that funding proposals for the six major cultural institutions are not intended primarily for support of ongoing operations, but rather to enable these organizations to extend their resources to portions of the state they are not currently serving.

The six original institutions have submitted detailed proposals to make their particular talents and abilities available throughout Michigan.

In related action taken by the executive committee at the June 13 meeting, a list of proposed 1975-76 objectives for the Michigan Council for the Arts was also discussed, approved and forwarded to the full Council for action.

Included are two objectives which would invite the state's large and intermediate arts institutions "to propose projects which will make their resources available on a statewide basis" and would, in addition, offer "supportive grants to Michigan cultural institutions to supplement the financing of existing programs."

Dull film fills spare time

By JAN WILLIAMS

"Thunderbolt and Lightfoot" is the prime example of the kind of film you should spend a Wednesday afternoon on if you've got absolutely nothing else to do.

Clint Eastwood, alias Dirty Harry, jumps to the other side of the law as the notorious robber, Thunderbolt. His sidekick in this film is none other than Lightfoot, played by Jeff Bridges.

The story involves the chance meeting of two rather "shady" characters, although one happened to be posing as a priest. Thunderbolt takes Lightfoot under his wing and the two become inseparable.

THE FACT that two men are chasing Thunderbolt with the intent to kill him arouses Lightfoot's curiosity. Eventually Thunderbolt tells him he was a partner in a robbery years ago which netted about $500,000.

Suburban Chorale joins Spree 24

The Suburban Chorale will participate in Livonia's Spree 24 during the variety show Saturday, June 29, from 3 to 10:30 p.m. in Ford Field, Farmington and Lyndon Roads.

The chorale, a group of approximately 50 women from surrounding suburbs, will perform from 5 to 6:30 p.m.

Director of the chorale is Bruce Graden, also instructor of vocal music at

The money had been hidden behind the blackboard in a one-room school in Montana. The two remaining partners in the crime were Thunderbolt and the guy who was chasing him.

Thunderbolt knew where the money was hidden and he set out with Lightfoot to try to find it. With the other partner hot on their heels, they discovered the one room school had been replaced with a more modern structure. At about this time, the other partner and his sidekick caught up with Thunderbolt and Lightfoot.

John Glenn High School in Westland. Pianist is Mrs. Patricia Claypoole.

The chorale performs for such groups as veterans' hospitals, nursing homes and other special shows. Rehearsals are held every Wednesday in Clarenceville High School and anyone interested in the group may attend. It is sponsored by Livonia Parks and Recreation.

THE OTHER partner thought Thunderbolt was trying to make off with all of the loot and of course a two-fisted battle ensued.

Eventually the matter was straightened out and the four of them decided to regroup their forces to try the same robbery again, thinking that the other money was gone for good.

The crime caper itself was amusing, but of course at the end—well, it's really not worth spoiling for those who want to see it and not worth telling for those who don't.

Home & Garden

Many gardeners have written to tell us that their tomato, pepper and other plants have been clipped off at the base. This is the work of the cutworm, a C-shaped grub that hides under stones and in sod during the day, then comes out at night. Cutworms are common in grassy or weedy areas but are also present in "clean" gardens. They cut off the stem directly at the base.

CONTROL: Wrap a piece of waxed paper around each transplant to act as a barrier. Many gardeners use a cardboard milk carton (top and bottom cut off) and sink it in about one inch in the soil, enclosing the transplant.

If the stem of your tomato plant is cut off on a slant, this is not the work of cutworms, but is rabbit injury. Rabbits always leave the stem stub sticking up about an inch or so above the soil.

The stem is always cut at a sharp slant. Not so with cutworms. They always make their cut at the soil surface.

Controlling rabbits is not easy. A snow fence stretched around the garden is the simplest way to keep them out. Some persons say that buckwheat flour sprinkled on plants and around them will repel rabbits.

Others use a highly scented (and inexpensive) talcum powder to repel rabbits. The powder is dusted around the plants. Hot pepper will also keep them away.

HANGING BASKETS: Why not grow herbs and tomatoes in your hanging baskets? Hang them in your patio or kitchen.

Best soil for a hanging basket is equal parts of soil, sand (perlite or vermiculite) and peatmoss, with some compost added. For an eight to 10-inch diameter pot, use two plants or so, in the center, and three or four trailing plants on the outside.

Good drainage is important. Water the basket thoroughly after planting.

There are scads of flowering plants you can grow in hanging baskets. For shade try Artillery plant, asparagus fern, Boston fern, browallia, caladium, Christmas cactus, English ivy, grape ivy, impatiens, coleus, pothos, petunias, tradescantia, tuberous begonia and Zebbrina.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC: "Snails have started working on our plants. I heard salt sprinkled on them is sure death for snails. Is this true?"

Answer: Yes. Many gardeners take a salt shaker and flashlight in the garden at night. A pinch of salt, sprinkled on a snail, quickly finishes it off.

Body Heat measured in 'mets'

If you're sports-minded, you're probably aware of the fact Shea Stadium near La Guardia Airport on Long Island.

But if you are energy-minded, you should know about "mets" with a small m; they're important, according to the Air-Conditioning and Refrigeration Institute.

A met is the unit of measurement of the heat produced by the human body. It represents about 400 British thermal units per hour and adds that much to the heat load your air-conditioning system has to remove.

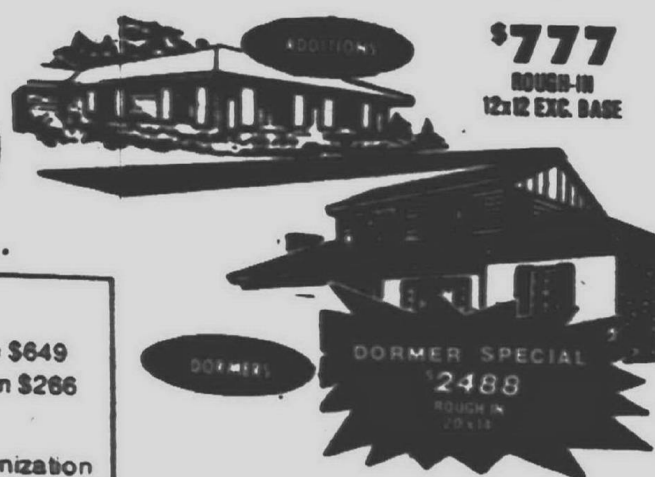

It is a product of multiplying 18.4 Btu times the skin area of the individual. Since the average adult human is covered by about 21 square feet of skin, the body at rest produces just about one met.

The same "average" body produces 1.6 to 3.3 mets in the performance of light work, 3.3 to five at moderate work and five to 6.7 at heavy labor.

A gift from the Jaycees

Pat Duggan, chairman of the Jaycees' candle-light ball, a fund-raising project; Floyd Jarvi, Livonia Jaycees, and Jim Greene, Garden City Jaycees.

Pursell bids for Senate re-election

"After four years of full time effort, I am ready to take my record of accomplishments to the people of my district," said State Sen. Carl D. Pursell (R-Plymouth) after announcing his candidacy for re-election in the 14th district.

Pursell, selected in 1971 as the "out-standing senator" has become one of the most respected members of the Senate's powerful appropriations committee. He serves as chairman of the Community Colleges Finance Committee, is a recent appointee to the Governor's Crime Commission, and has been a leader in the growth of Schoolcraft College.

Pursell says he wants to offer fresh "leadership" to the senate. His resource recovery proposal, considered the "model" bill in the United States, is designed to encourage new technology and jobs in Michigan.

Along with dealing with legislation Pursell focuses his attention on local problems. In his first term of office he secured funds for a new vocational center at Schoolcraft College, obtained DNR approval and funding to clean local lakes, and developed the first state bicycle paths for Northville and Livonia.

Scored 77 goals

Michigan State Lacrosse senior midfielder Val Washington of Baltimore, Md. scored 77 goals in four years of play with the Spartan varsity.

Pursell's district includes Livonia, Plymouth, Northville, Redford Township and the northeast part of Westland. Pursell, 41, is a lifelong resident of the district and has a wife, Peggy, and three children, Philip, Mark and Kathy. In 1965 he was selected as Plymouth's "man of the year" and is a member of Kiwanis.

Garden City moving in the right direction

Observation Point

by PHILIP H. POWER

It's very easy - and very self-serving - for news people to rail against secrecy in government.

Excessive preoccupation with secrecy produced the paranoid climate in Washington which made Watergate possible. Canny secret activities of lobbyists at times make a shambles of law-making activities in Lansing. Secret school board or city council meetings in this area have been used as covers for unfair personnel practices or for curious backroom political deals.

True. And no secrecy makes a news person's job that much easier.

Which is why whenever the press gets up on its high horse about secrecy, it's always wise to take it with a big grain of salt.

BUT THERE are big chunks of validity to the argument against secrecy in the public's business.

First, if it's the public's business, why shouldn't the public know about it?

Second, if getting the facts out won't harm someone unnecessarily or inhibit the advancement of the public's interest, why not do it?

Third, usually it is only under the dark of secrecy that funny business, deals, payoffs, or what have you can occur. The steady light of publicity on the dealings of governments has a remarkably cleansing effect.

IN THIS connection, it's good to see the news coming out of Washington that a Senate Subcommittee has turned up a secret plan to link all federal computer files on citizens together into a huge system called FEDNET. It would coordinate all the 1.2 billion files on individuals currently held by the federal government, and as such probably represents a real saving in cost and improvement in efficiency.

However, it turns out that plans to put the system together were kept secret from the press and Congress until recently, when the Subcommittee stumbled on them.

What is even more interesting is that all this secrecy concealed the fact that in many cases these files are kept with no legal authority.

I don't happen to like much the idea of big brother watching me behind the massed computers of FEDNET, nor do I like the feeling that somewhere in Washington there may be a file on me being kept with no legal authority and no safeguards against my personal privacy.

Now that the story is out into the press, you can be sure that this will be changed pronto.

EVEN MORE encouraging is the move here in the suburbs to do away with the common and illegal practice of secret city council meetings.

In Garden City, where they have been working on a new city charter, they decided this week to write a ban against secret meetings into the document itself.

Formerly, the charter language would have allowed secret meetings for topics which might defame the character of an individual. But, as Charter Commission Chairman Vincent Fordell says, "We were attempting to do something that words wouldn't let us do. Rather than build a loophole which might lead to misunderstanding, we wiped out the secret meeting clause."

He and the Commission merit congratulations for their precedent-making step. So far as I know, their proposed charter is the only one in the state with an explicit ban on secret meetings.

This does not mean as a principle that there should be no concern for the rights of privacy or of individuals or appropriately confidential information. What it does mean is that those proposing secrecy must make their case against a presumption against secrecy in government.

And that's as it should be.

Don't believe TM is non-profit

Figuring things out:
Nine years ago, the first time I ever used drive-in banking facilities, a customer could cash his paycheck and make a partial deposit in his checking account in 40 to 50 seconds. Today it takes close to two minutes. That means with all the computers banks have, a bank cashier's efficiency has been cut in half.

One of banking's grossest disservices to the public, by the way, is the drive-in window. Drive-in banking used to be limited to quick transactions; now you can pay your installment loans, utility bills and everything. Rule of thumb: If there are three or more cars in line, and if at least one of the drivers is a woman, go inside and forget the drive-in stuff.

THE FINANCIAL pages report that business executives are the latest suckers for transcendental meditation (TM) rip-offs. TM may have validity as a relaxing technique, but the prices are incredible for what one learns.

Businessmen, erroneously figuring their youngsters are on to something, are plunking down $125 for a course, a two-thirds increase over the $75 TM charlatans were charging a year ago. Superinflation, anyone?

And don't fall for the line that TM is a "non-profit" organization. The foundation that offers TM can well be non-profit because it operates out of rented offices and has virtually no capital equipment on which it must pay stockholders' dividends. But the TM gang is drawing some pretty fancy salaries out of those four-session courses.

One sees better world at slower speed

It's true. The 55 mile an hour speed limit does make a difference.

You can read the traffic reports which indicate the lowered accident rate. You can be told of the gas savings but until you actually get out on the highways for a period of time, it doesn't sink in.

For the first time this month I drove on the open road for period of time - the Detroit Toledo Expressway and the Ohio Turnpike.

It is not easy for a heavy-footed driver like myself to keep the red needle at 55. That's the first thing I noticed, maintaining the new rule calls for a measure of self-disciplining. Without one eye on the speedometer and the other on the road, the needle quickly lurches upwards.

But quickly, it was obvious that everyone else was trying just as hard as I was. Cars with much more power than my six year old Chevy, the Mark IVs, the Porsches, the big Cadi's and the tandem trucks, were all keeping the 55 to 60 pace.

In the rear view mirror, it looked like a slow motion movie of the old days.

I always get mentally geared up for the Ohio run aware that it is going to be almost five hours of hard driving with the big trucks riding your back bumper if you lag.

Tim Richard writes

Which is the better deal? The Detroit News' fishing derby where 2,200 kids catch 1,200 trout? Or the Western Wayne County Conservation Association's derby on Newburgh Lake, in which 291 youngsters caught 3,264 fish? It figures out to a half-fish each in the News' contest versus more than 11 each in the Western Wayne contest.

IT WAS GENUINE fun to see western cattlemen moaning and groaning about low beef prices the other day. They're even getting a White House conference out of it. Funny, you never heard them complaining when beef was $3 a pound or wondering what they could do to help the consumer.

Now that meat prices are declining, keep bugging your friendly steak house manager about when his menu prices are going to be shaved. Remember how many pieces of tape there were on menus a year ago as beef and restaurant prices rose?

Here's a new, fun game. Whenever you buy something like a ballpoint refill or transistor battery, notice how much paper and plastic it's wrapped in. Well, save that excessive amount of wrapping and mail it back to the company with a note to quit wasting expensive paper. Better yet, mail the wrapper to a stock broker and tell him the company is wasteful and inefficient.

Corinne Abatt writes

At about the half-way point on the familiar 225 miles, it dawned on me that the usual pressures were not there. Drivers smiled as they moved into the passing lane. And I swear they looked more relaxed.

Someone else will have to figure it out because I can't. My time on the road was almost identical to what it has been for the same trip over the last 10 years. There wasn't more than five minutes difference.

And the way I calculate I averaged close to 20 miles per gallon or about a quarter of a tank less than is normal for the trip.

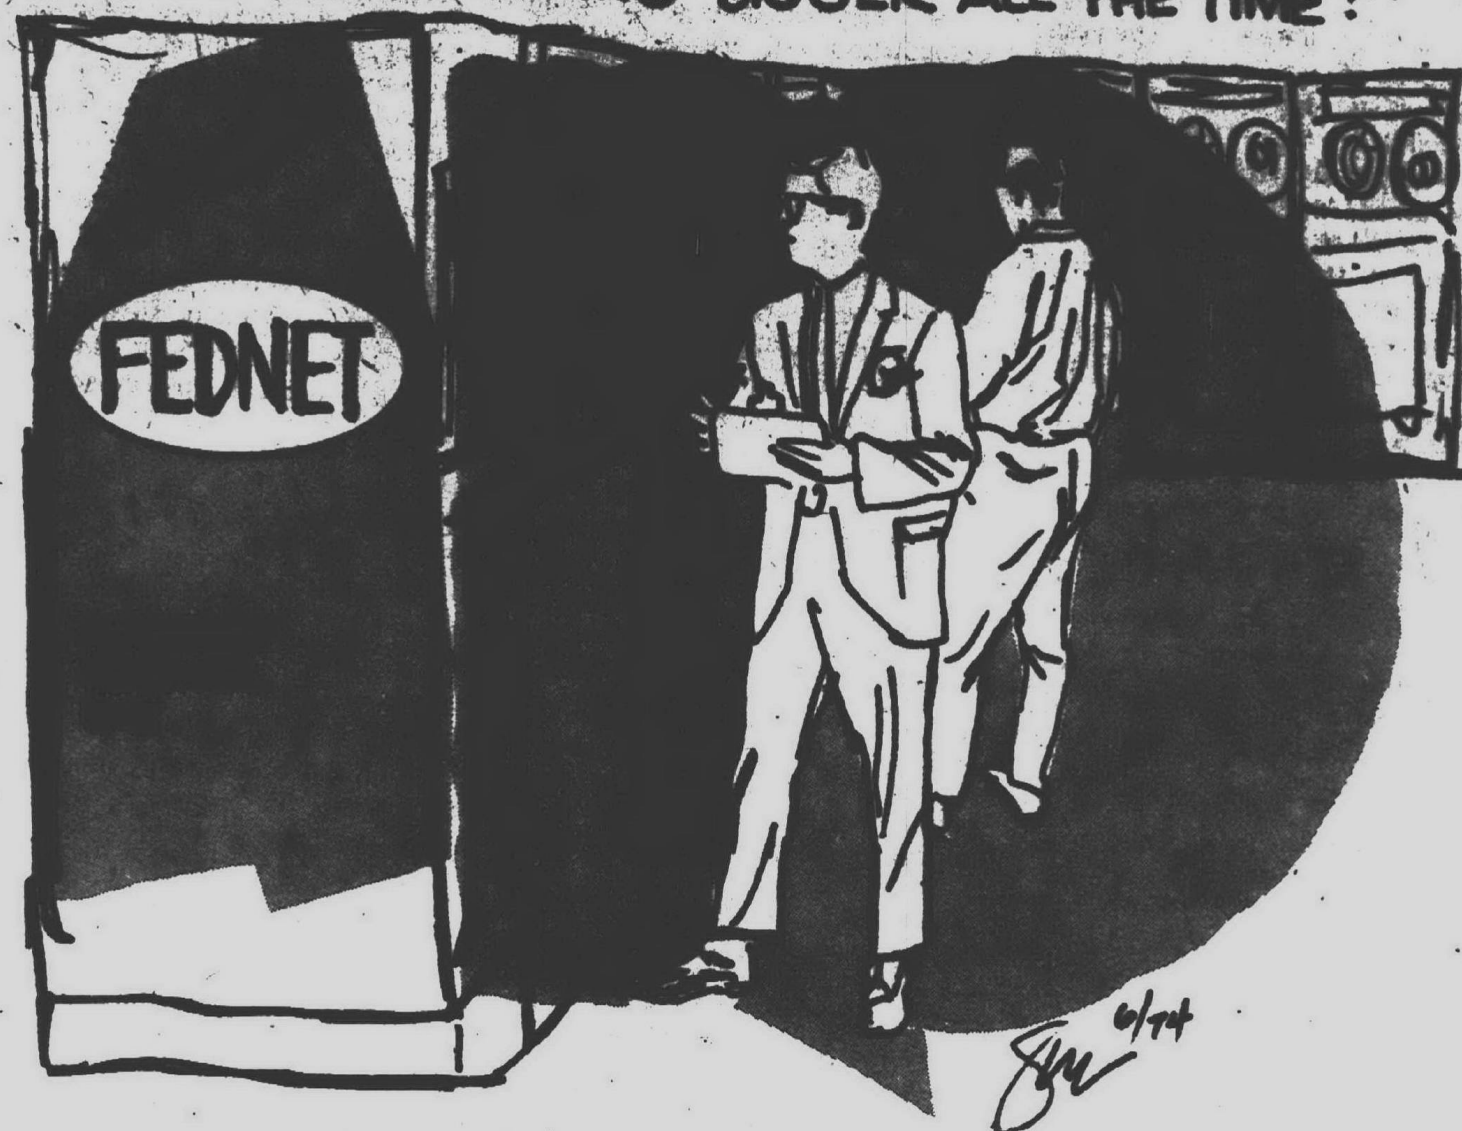

Granted the turnpike was crawling with sheriff patrol cars, but I didn't see them pull a single driver over during the entire trip.

It was a pleasant trip. The countryside was green, the farm crops were coming up and for the first time I spotted a few barns that I had missed on previous excursions.

On the risk of sounding overly self-righteous I'd like to add that it feels good to be just a mile less power and time conscious and for a change cruise along at a moderate speed and just enjoy.

BIG BROTHERS GETTING BIGGER ALL THE TIME!

Press gets criticism and vote of confidence

Eccentricities

by HANK HOGAN

Never before in its history has the press been under such attack. It is accused of bias, sloppy reporting and outright conspiracy to "get" certain political figures.

The intensity of the attack is probably directly proportional to the increased role the press has played in investigating public officials.

Obviously, nobody can say that the press is all wrong, nor can the press say that it is all right.

While it is a fine institution, it is built on human beings, who have a tendency to err on occasions.

But the press today is better than the rumor mongering, slanderous press of the 18th century which existed when the framers of the constitution sat down to write.

AS THEY WERE being broadsided by yellow journalists, the writers of the constitution did not, in the first amendment, guarantee the right of a fair press. But they did guarantee the right of a free press.

In other words, the fathers of this country felt that freedom is better protected by a free press than by a fair press.

If they had gone the fair-press route, it would have allowed the government to make restructurings. History will show that one of the first steps leading to the demise of democracy has been government regulation of the news.

AN INTERESTING sidelight about the attacks on the press is that at the very time the volume of criticism has increased, the polls show the public has shown greater confidence in the press. As a matter of fact, public confidence has increased 10 per cent since the Watergate situation was first exposed. To be honest, though, the increase of 10 per cent still does not bring the figure over 50 per cent.

A free press plays a continuing role in preserving democracy. Many years ago the American people were very critical of decisions by the Supreme Court which seemed to hinder police officers as they dealt with criminals. As the press brought these things out, public sentiment crystallized and there was a public outcry that something had to be done about the courts.

ABOUT TWO YEARS ago there was a feeling that the administrative branch of government had reached its highest point of power in the history of the country and that Congress and the courts both felt that they were being dominated by the executive branch. If the public can remember, there was a feeling that the president had almost attained the power of a dictator and that his closely-knit associates were running roughshod over the government.

As unpopular as it was, the press exposed Watergate, which in the long run will be beneficial to democracy, because the people will be more interested in the type of people they elect to public office.

If there had been no free press in this country, the question is, how long we would continue to be a democracy?

Congratulations for a super job

R. T. Thompson writes

each coach hopes his team will be the one to hit a hot streak and record one upset after another.

That's what made Churchill's job so tough. The team had been rated second most of the season in the state rankings and that means every team is gunning for the big club ... in this instance Churchill.

Coach Frayer knew he had a real job cut out before his pitcher threw the first ball in the first game. He knew the Chargers would have to play twice as hard to win and built that idea in his players early in the tournament.

THUS IT WAS NO SURPRISE when Churchill advanced through competition at the local level, marched through the district and then fought its way into the semifinals. For some strange reason the semis and championship games were scheduled in nearby Pontiac this year and this Churchill finally got a break. It was playing close enough to home for its followers to get out and cheer the team to victory.

That's exactly what happened. There were plenty of Churchill rosters in the stands when the Chargers met and defeated Flint.

Of course this doesn't tell of the high winds and heavy rains that hit the area just as the games were beginning and forced a lengthy delay. Sometimes a delay bothers a keyed-up team but it didn't bother Churchill at all.

The Chargers had gone to Pontiac with one thought in mind ... win the state tournament ... and they did by crushing Hazel Park in the finals.

There wasn't any question as to who was the champion. Churchill acted like champions, played like champions and wound up champions.

That's why we congratulate Coach Frayer and his team. They did an excellent job all season and wound up on a high note as king of the hill. It takes a lot of work, a lot of concentration and means giving up a good many things along the way but the joy of grabbing that big trophy makes up for it all.

Congratulations to a great state championship team coached by a real champion—Roger Frayer.

Madonna to train emergency staffs

Madonna College in Livonia has established a program to train emergency medical personnel who serve in ambulances or fire and police emergency vehicles. The three-level program will lead to the certificate of achievement, the associate of science and the bachelor of science degree.

Scheduled to begin in September 1974, the program will be based on approved emergency medical training with the addition of extensive clinical experience in medical units and hospital emergency room situations.

College-level courses in anatomy and physiology, the natural and physical sciences, and other liberal arts electives will provide the student with career mobility. Clinical facilities to be used are St. Mary Hospital, St. John Hospital and Garden City Osteopathic Hospital.

"Legislation has been proposed to require certified emergency medical technicians in all fire and police departments," said Sr. M. Lauriang, Madonna dean, "and Madonna will be among the first to offer college-based training to fill this impending need."

Students in other programs, such as criminal justice, nursing, and allied health fields will find the emergency medical courses valuable supplements to the curriculum, she stated.

The advisory committee developing the Madonna program is chaired by Kathryn Robinson, director of allied health programs, and includes Sr. M. Danatha, Madonna president; Sr. M. Lauriang; Chief Daniel Bojlad, superintendent of emergency medical service, City of Detroit; Dr. Joseph Weiss, director of emergency room, Wayne County General Hospital; Dr. Eugene Cebnar, director of emergency room, St. John Hospital; Dr. John Rogers, director of emergency medicine, St. Mary Hospital; Thomas Crenshaw, associate director, Comprehensive Health Planning Council; Wayne McKenna, chief of medical services, Michigan Division of Health Facility Standards and Licensing; and Robert Church, Michigan Instruments Co.

4 women are trooper grads

Four women were among the 48 Michigan State Police officer candidates who graduated as troopers recently in ceremonies for the 87th recruit school. The graduates bring the department's women officer strength to seven.

The class began Feb. 25 with 82 candidates. With this graduation, the department enlisted strength is 1,984, which is 46 below the authorized complement of 2,030.

Of the graduates, 43 had college training which included 10 with four-year degrees and 12 with two-year degrees. Five troopers had previous police experience, and four had been state police radio operators.

Principal speaker for the graduation was Dr. Robert L. Ewigleben, president of Ferris State College at Big Rapids.

Colonel John R. Plants, department director, gave the oath of office to the new troopers and presented their badges. He also addressed the class members, their relatives and friends.

Post assignments for the probationary troopers were announced by LTC Forrest Jacob, deputy director for field services.

During the program Matthew L. Thacker of Lansing received a certificate of appreciation for assisting the department in organizing and operating the underwater recovery squad which began in 1957.

Others participating in the program included: LTC John Brown, deputy director for staff services; CPT Gene Rooker, commander of the training division; SGT Gary McGhee, recruit school commander, and the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Jerome Mac Eachlin, department chaplain.

Arrowsmith makes his income public

Wayne County Commissioner Brian G. Arrowsmith (R-Canton Township) has disclosed his income and its sources for last year because of his appointment to the county labor relations board.

The commissioner said he was acting in accord with the code of ethics for county officials adopted by the board of commissioners May 2, although the code does not require such disclosure by elected officials.

HE REPORTED a total income of $13,129.50 for the 12 months preceding his labor board appointment. That included $11,995 from the county and $1,134.50 for part-time work at his father's camper sales business.

Arrowsmith was chairman of the subcommittee which drafted the code. The subcommittee was advised by the county corporation counsel that the board of commissioners lacks authority to require financial disclosure by elected officials.

"I am voluntarily disclosing the amount and sources of my income because I personally favor full financial disclosure by public officials and candidates for public office," Arrowsmith said.

"I also want it to be clear that the legal prohibition, and not any reluctance to make such disclosure, was the reason we did not include disclosure by elected officials in the code."

THE CODE states: "The county official appointed to a department, board or commission shall be required to file a 'full disclosure' report of his sources of income at the time of appointment as well as the previous 12 months."

Arrowsmith said he deliberately was "going beyond" the code in reporting the amount of his income as well as its sources.

His income from the county included his $10,000 base salary as a commissioner plus $1,995 in $30 per diem payments for attending committee meetings.

The labor relations board consisting of five county commissioners represents management in dealings with county employe unions.

No drinks at Cass Lake parkground

Alcoholic beverages are prohibited in Dodge No. 4 state park on the shores of Cass Lake in Oakland County.

The state Department of Natural Resources took the step to "hold down rowdiness and disturbances." Notices of the alcohol ban will be posted to notify park users.

Meanwhile, the DNR lifted last year's alcohol ban in the picnic areas of Silver and Halfmoon lakes in Livingston and Washtenaw counties.

Alcohol bans have been placed on these parks and campgrounds: Hoffmaster (Ottawa-Muskegon counties), Holland (Ottawa County), Silver Lake (Oceana County) and Warren Dunes picnic area (Berrien County).

MRS. FLORENCE GRACE with a few of the many quilts she has made. (Staff photos by Harry Mauthe)

Grandma's quilts are coming home

BY MARGARET MILLER

It's only an estimate, but Mrs. Florence Grace guesses she's made "easy 200" patchwork quilts in her 91-plus years.

Lots of them, of course, are long gone in years of use by growing families. But many are treasured still by daughters and sons and grandchildren and great-grandchildren, and 60 or more of the quilts will be coming back to visit Mrs. Grace Sunday.

They'll hang on lines strung in the spacious yard of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Bud Grace of Livonia, as the big family enjoys a reunion.

IT'S GOING TO BE a one-woman art show for Mrs. Grace, who now makes her home with a daughter, Mrs. Kathryn Buckley, of Westland.

Mrs. Doris Grace, hostess for the event, explained that her mother-in-law had been sewing all her life and "has made so many beautiful things for all of us, we thought we'd like to get them together for her."

Besides the quilts, there will be displayed a few hooked rugs, ties Mrs. Grace has made for the men in the family, quilted pajama bags, needlepoint old-fashioned dolls she has dressed, and samples of a more recent enthusiasm, Christmas tree ornaments covered in gingham and calico.

MRS. GRACE WAS BORN in Altoona, Pa., and she and her husband, Harry, settled half a century ago in a rural area that's now part of Dearborn Heights.

They had 13 children, nine of whom are still living, and there are 39 grandchildren and 61 great-grandchildren.

"I've made quilts for just about everyone in the family," she said.

And they've stayed in the family. The only one put up for sale was a recent creation offered to the Elmwood Church of the Nazarene in Westland to help raise funds.

"I'm a charter member of that church and I wanted to do something to help," Mrs. Grace said. "But when it came down to it my grandson bought it—he said he couldn't see it going to strangers."

THE DOZENS OF QUILTS Mrs. Grace has turned out have been in a variety of patterns and a wide assortment of materials but all by machine.

"When I was married my mother—she was middling old then—gave me our sewing machine and said I could have it if I'd make some things for her. So I did, and I've been sewing everything ever since."

Many of her quilts—the warmest ones—have been made from wool scraps. One son used to work for a men's clothing store and brought her the bolt ends of fabric.

For others she used scraps left over from her children's clothes and bought remnants. Virginia Reel and Log Cabin have been favorites of the many patterns she has used, and a tulip pattern quilt won a blue ribbon at the Indian Festival in California 14 years ago.

HER MOST RECENT creation is in contemporary bright hues and shows a stylized figure on each of its squares. The figures are copied from a whimsical bit of wall paper in Doris Grace's breakfast nook.

"I guess after a lot of times having lunch there the figures inspired her," the younger Mrs. Grace said.

That quilt is appliqued, also by machine. Mrs. Grace does only the quilt tops and has others do the actual quilting for her.

THE GRACE FAMILY had a birthday party for its matriarch in January and 86 relatives filled the Bud Grace home then.

Many of the family members are planning to be back for the "quilt reunion".

Mrs. Grace's living sons and daughters are John Grace of Texas, Phil Grace of Westland, Harry Grace of Hillsdale, Bud Grace of Livonia, Mrs. Irma Morrey of Dearborn Heights, Mrs. Clarence Pime of Altoona, James Grace of Columbia, Pa., Mrs. Martha Rupert of Tecumseh and Mrs. Kathryn Buckley of Westland.

Still in excellent health and enjoying good eyesight for her sewing projects, Mrs. Grace also likes to read—mostly her Bible and church lessons. She doesn't watch television much.

"I believe it's through the Lord that I've had such wonderful health and such a fine family," she said. "I won't say my family is the best, but no one could have better."

This classroom has volcanoes, sea monsters

By SHERRY KAHAN

For the past few weeks volcanoes have been erupting and sea monsters have been locked in terrible combat in a sixth grade classroom in Grant Elementary School in Livonia.

Led by their teacher, Ralph Debaske, the sixth graders have been preparing an animated film using clay figures for the central characters. The film is based on "Journey to the Center of the Earth" by Jules Verne.

"It all began when one of the reading groups read the Verne story and we decided it had filming possibilities," said Debaske. "So we set up groups to do the work."

"First," he explained, "the students had to select the best scenes and write them up into a shooting script."

"It's hard to work on the script," said Eric Malburg. "It was much more fun to make the volcano."

He added: "We made it out of cardboard and plaster of Paris. Then we mixed baking soda, vinegar and red food coloring to make it erupt and look like real lava was flowing down."

"It was a good chance for the students to be creative," said Debaske, who plans to add sound to the film after the final scene is done. "We tried to make the settings as close to the book as possible. If it asked for a dark and cloudy day, we tried to reproduce that."

"For the cave scene we had to roll up newspapers and then cover them with wheat paste and brown paint," said Kevin Donovan. "We had to dig our hands into the mess and slosh in on the newspaper so it will look like the inside of the cave."

Judy Colwell explained that the furniture was made of "bent cardboard with cotton inside and material stapled to the sides."

The mushrooms are made by putting papier mache over small Tupperware bowls, she said, adding "the stems are made of paper cups or toilet paper rolls."

"The top of a beer can together with rolled up pieces of the sides will make a chair," Cindy Muma said as she held up one of the objects.

The students also began making out of clay the three main characters of the story. Debaske said, "A few of the girls took the finished figures home and made them clothes."

"It was hard work," said Paul Dietz. "The people kept breaking and I had to take them apart and fix the wires. Somebody once stole one of the heads and one of the arms is still missing."

Sea creatures and other awesome beasts had to be conceived by youthful minds and then carried out in clay. John Wagner, Grant's art teacher aided the students in this work along with scene painting and other tasks.

Ready to shoot, Debaske set up his modest eight millimeter movie camera on its tripod and the students began. Walter Tadday claimed that "photographing animation is fun."

He explained that he shot three frames for each segment and then someone had to change the arm or foot position of the clay figures for the next three frames.

How did he know when three frames had been shot?

"You can hear a little sound," he explained. "It goes click, click, click."

"We tried to film in sequence," explained Debaske, who has taken a course in film making at the University of Michigan. "It has been a worthwhile venture, I feel, because the students learned a great deal about planning. They also learned to work together as a group."

"Everybody helped on everything," agreed Peggy Gordon, assigned to the sink area. "I liked it all except the cleaning up."

Debaske, it should be mentioned is no novice in the film world. Last fall with the same class he filmed in living color a story called "Christmas in Gorki Town," well-received by more than 200 parents and critics at the premiere held in the school gymnasium.

Having directed and filmed this movie with live student actors, Debaske will be remembered by all true film buffs for a pioneer scene he allowed to remain on the completed celluloid.

The sequence, which a less daring director would have doubtless left on the cutting room floor, featured the wicked Mortimer, ably played by youthful actor and violinist, Eric Malburg.

Running through the forest in pursuit of villainy, Mortimer suddenly lost his badge of evil, his moustache. Debaske left in the moment, which if judged by the enthusiastic response of the audience, was a brilliant decision.

"We had a very good reaction from the parents to the first film," said Debaske. "I think they came expecting to see a hodge-podge of scenes. But it came off like a regular movie with a plot and everything, and I think they were impressed with what their kids could do."

YOUTHFUL CAMERAMAN Walter Tadday focuses on a sequence for the animated film.

CINDY MUMA ADJUSTS the arms and legs of the clay figures in preparation for the next scene.

Capt. Yoder—the man in the SA bus—leaving Plymouth

Salvation Army Capt. Warren Yoder, friend to Plymouth's tiny children and senior citizens and a lot of folks in between, is leaving this week for a new assignment.

"We just received our orders last week to take over the work in Midland," said the man whose little yellow bus off on a service trip has become a familiar sight in Plymouth.

"I have to say we hate to leave—I would prefer not to leave because the people of Plymouth have been so accepting of Salvation Army work."

"But I guess that's why the Army keeps moving you around, so you don't get too attached to one spot."

Starting next week, the man behind the wheel of the yellow bus will be Salvation Army Cadet Lt. Dallas Raby, originally from Flint and a recent graduate of the SA school for officer training.

Capt. Yoder, in Plymouth four years, knows he'll miss the bus and the frequent trips he made to transport pre-school youngsters on field trips and senior citizens on visits to the grocery store, as well as for assorted other purposes.

The officer, who in 1973 was named by the Plymouth Jaycees as Man of the Year, said he has much enjoyed all his associations in Plymouth but probably has received the most satisfaction for new programs he helped develop for small children and retirees.

A drop-in center for mothers and tots has become a regular part of the scene in the Salvation Army building on Fairground.

Working first with Mrs. Cathie Walker—who also was honored by the Jaycees for the project—and later with a couple of other directors, Capt. Yoder has watched the center fill a real need for homebound mothers who need to get out of the house and their small children who need some socializing.

The Salvation Army not only provided a spot for the drop-in center but also helped out in excursions around the area—with the yellow bus, of course.

Equally at home on that bus are the residents of Tonquish Manor, Plymouth's residence for retirees. Capt. Yoder made it a regular practice to drive anyone interested in going to the grocery store twice a month, to the bank once a month and occasionally to the fruit market or on a social outing.

Firefighters knew the captain well from the times the Army bus became a refuge at the scene of a disaster. Coffee and sandwiches were always made available to firemen and policemen.

At the Packaging Corp. fire a year and a half ago, the Army bus arrived with the captain at the wheel just behind a fire engine.

There were many individual families in the community who found Capt. Yoder on their doorsteps in times of need.

It was that kind of dedication that led to his being nominated twice last year for the Jaycee's distinguished citizen award.

Senior citizens often found the captain standing by to remember an event when they would otherwise be forgotten.

Mrs. Mary Mihos of the Tonquish Creek Manor said, "We all want you to know how much we will miss Capt. Yoder."

"We will always have wonderful memories of your kindness and devotion. We wish him the best of luck and God's blessing in whatever he does and wherever he goes," she said in a letter to the Plymouth Observer & Eccentric.

That kind of praise pleased Capt. Yoder, of course, but also embarrassed him a bit.

"If we've succeeded in Plymouth,"

he said, "it's because of the cooperation and acceptance of the people in Plymouth."

"If some communities don't receive that kind of service from the Salvation Army, well, maybe it's because they don't open up as well to the Salvation Army."

Yoder's wit was ever-ready for any occasion. Once, when joining with the Plymouth Jaycees to light the Christmas Tree, the teetotaling captain was asked to meet them in the park across from the Box Bar.

"The what?" Yoder asked with a twinkle in his voice.

The captain was a member of the Plymouth Rotary Club and an active participant in the Goodfellows program.

When Capt. and Mrs. Yoder and their five children relocate in Midland, they expect to find a work quite comparable to the one in Plymouth. But no yellow bus.

"I expect to do quite a bit of bragging about the Plymouth Salvation Army bus," the captain said.

"I suspect that if one is needed there, we'll have it in a little while."

Farewell for Yoder

PLYMOUTH — A special farewell service will be held for Capt. Warren Yoder at 11 a.m. Sunday in the Salvation Army Hall, 290 Fairground (just south of Ann Arbor Trail).

The service will honor Capt. Yoder, who is being promoted and transferred to Midland.

The Plymouth Jaycees are sponsoring the non-denominational service.

Talmans eat dinner at firehouse

PLYMOUTH — What could be more exciting for a kid than to have his dinner served to him by firemen at a firehouse?

Well, Mrs. Barbara J. Talman of Plymouth thought about it and decided to do something different for her children. She made the highest bid during Channel 56's annual auction for the privilege to have her kids served dinner prepared by the members of Squad 4 at Engine Company 31, a Detroit fire station at 1697 W. Grand Blvd.

"We thought it was unusual and something that the children would enjoy rather than buying them something," said Mrs. Talman. "Also, we thought this would be a good way to help Channel 56."

It was. She bid $78 for the dinner and a guided tour of Engine Company 31.

Give a carnival for a cause

Expecting to be up a wall once the kids are out of school?

The Muscular Dystrophy Association has a solution for you. Their colorful, 12-page kit, "Carnival Against Dystrophy," contains complete instruction for staging a backyard carnival, with the proceeds going to dystrophic children.

The kit contains cut-out tickets, badges, booth signs and even ringmasters' moustaches and bow ties. Instructions for setting up a ring toss, penny pitch, balloon relay, marble shoot and other games are also included.

Bright-looking posters are provided to advertise the carnival around the neighborhood.

"The kits are a great way to teach children to make their own fun and help other children at the same time," said Mrs. Ira Kaufman, president of the local MD chapter.

"It really doesn't matter whether the child raises $2 or $200," she added, "the important thing is doing something for someone else."

Proceeds from "Carnivals Against Dystrophy" help to provide medical care, therapy, wheelchairs, braces and other services, free of charge, to dystrophy patients throughout southeastern Michigan.

4 million boaters can't be wrong

Great Lakes have 3,000 miles of shoreline, 63 harbors

Michigan's fascination with the water has developed into a full-fledged love affair with more than half of this state's nearly nine million residents expected to go boating this summer, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

An Auto Club survey shows that Michigan has more boats registered than any other state with nearly 600,000, or almost nine per cent of the national total.

"The reason for the tremendous popularity of boating in this state is the 3,000 miles of Great Lakes shoreline which allows Michiganders to explore or fish in some of the world's finest bodies of water," explains Joseph Ratke, Auto Club touring manager.

TO HELP the state's more than four million boaters enjoy the Great Lakes even more, the accompanying Auto Club map pinpoints the locations of the 63 State Waterways Commission-sponsored harbors in Michigan.

The guide also details the major services provided at each of the harbors, including information on where to buy gas as well as which facilities offer marine repairs, holding tank pump-outs and launching ramps.

"Considering that boaters pumped an estimated $940 million into the state's economy last year, it is significant that they used only about 1.25 per cent of the state's gasoline supply," Ratke states.

"While Michiganders should find sufficient gas to meet boating needs this summer, it is essential that all sailors help conserve fuel to insure the availability of gas," he points out.

FOLLOW THESE six gas-saving marine tips:

- Do your boating closer to home to reduce gas consumed in your car and your craft.

- Reduce speed to a comfortable level and don't operate at full throttle. Also, shut off the engine when docked or anchored.

- Plot trips thoroughly to cut operating time.

- Keep your engine well-tuned so that it operates at maximum efficiency.

- Match your engine to your boat. Also, use the right propeller and keep it free of nicks and bends.

- Distribute weight correctly and don't overload your boat.

"By observing these simple gas-saving suggestions, boaters expected to use Michigan waters this year will have the satisfaction of knowing they are doing their part to conserve fuel," Ratke states.

"Thousands of Michiganders have discovered that a boat provides the perfect getaway for total enjoyment of leisure time," he states. "It is the type of fun the entire family may enjoy."

"Since this state is the recognized boating capital of the nation with shoreline on four of the five Great Lakes, it is significant that Michigan has developed a program of boater safety and convenience that is unmatched in North America," according to Ratke.

"Boaters venturing onto the Great Lakes find they are rarely more than 15 miles from the public harbors or any of the more than 500 commercial and special marinas scattered all along the lakes," he adds.

"Not only have these harbors provided many conveniences for boaters but they have helped take the uncertainty of being stranded out of Great Lakes boating."

A BREAKDOWN of public harbors shows Lake Michigan heading the list with 25, followed by Lakes Huron and Superior with 16 each. The southeast Michigan sector, including Lakes Erie and St. Clair plus the Detroit and St. Clair rivers, has six harbors.

The state's 63 "ports of call" — two more than last year with facilities on Lake Michigan at Marquette and Lake Huron at Au Gres being added — offer a full complement of services.

Twenty-one have nearby U.S. Coast Guard stations, 49 have holding tank pumpouts, 23 marine repairs, 54 launching ramps, 57 gasoline and oil, 57 electricity, 58 water, 59 telephone, 54 ice and supplies and 55 restroom facilities. Ten render all of the listed services.

Auto Club points out that exploring the Great Lakes shoreline in Michigan has become an increasingly popular activity with each of the lakes offering something unique and different to boaters.

The gamut of Great Lakes boating runs from the picturesque cliffs and unspoiled beauty along Lake Superior to the urban areas of southeast Michigan, where day-sailing, boating clubs and waterside restaurants are favored.

In West Michigan, sailors may find the sandy beaches and dunes that sometimes reach an elevation of 600 feet to their liking. The Lake Huron shore is beach lines to the south but becomes cliffbound to the north.

Unlimited resource

Water, the dictionary says, is a tasteless, odorless and shapeless liquid compound of hydrogen and oxygen.

But through the millenniums, man has thought of water as a good deal more than a tasteless compound. Water, or the seas or rivers or lakes that it fills, provides an endless fascination for the people who live at its edge.

Water was there in the beginning of life. It nourished man. It provided rivers for him to travel, oceans for him to sail and explore.

Water: the source of mystery, awesome power, serenity. Water: where fishermen fish and swimmers swim and children play and women wade and mother and child enjoy each other. Water: everything and anything to everyone.

Home & Garden

Porch deck adds to outdoor living

WIDE STEPS PROVIDE approach to porch deck of 2x4-inch western wood on edge, improving access to front yard, adding sunny sitting area.

In years past, a front porch was a social area, a place to sit and chat with neighbors when they walked by, or where a boy and girl could sit and swing, romantically.

Porch swings are scarce these days, but the idea of a place to relax with family or friends after a busy day offers strong inducement for adding some kind of outdoor living area.

A porch deck leading to the front door and extending across part of the house front offers a friendly welcome as well as a place to stretch out and entertain drop-in company.

THERE ARE MANY variations of front porches, both in size and style. A porch deck can be enclosed with a baffle screen for privacy or to blunt strong breezes.

Or it can be covered with a sun screen or trellis to gain partial shade. If there is a large tree providing shade, the deck can be built around it, or landscaping can be incorporated in the plan.

One family expanded a small entry with a deck of 2x4-inch western wood, improving the access to the front yard. Extending the deck across the front of the house provided a walkway to the carport and a place to sit in the afternoon sun.

The main deck is reached by two wide steps leading up from the side-walk. Steps and deck are constructed of 2x4-inch western wood on edge, and the deck is supported on 4x4 posts and 4x8 beams of Douglas fir.

ANOTHER STEP leads up to a small decked area in the recessed entry.

Two long planter boxes under the window help soften the lines of the deck, and other potted plants help mark the edges in the absence of a railing.

For front porch decks that are close to the street, a screen of slightly spaced boards or a hedge of tall shrubs will block the view.

Bench planters serve as rails

For safety's sake, a deck that's more than one foot above the ground calls for a barrier around the edges.

A railing three or four feet high is the functional solution, but much more can be added, especially if wood is used.

Permanent benches will serve two purposes, even three if planters are spaced to break up the long lines of the seats.

Or the railing can be built in book-case fashion, with shelves for potted plants. Western wood species are suited to these uses.

Vacation Bible schools opening in area

Vacation Bible Schools, conducted by churches all over the area, replace regular classrooms for youngsters next week.

For a week or two, children just out of public school will fill their mornings with Bible stories, singing, service and special activity projects.

Bike parades Saturday, June 22 are launching at least two of the VBS programs.

Clarenceville United Methodist Church, 2000 Middle Belt, Livonia, will begin its parade at 10 a.m. Saturday at the William Grace elementary school in Farmington. Clowns, balloons, floats and cars will join the procession.

CLARENCEVILLE Bible School will be held from Monday, June 24 to Tuesday, July 2, with classes for nursery through high school. The hours will be 9:30 to 11 a.m.

Hats and buttons, prizes for decorated bikes, refreshments and a movie on bike safety will be featured in the bike parade scheduled to begin Saturday, June 22 at 10 a.m. in the parking lot of the Church of God of Prophecy, 2803 Pardo, Garden City.

That church's Bible School, to be held June 24 to 28 from 6:45 to 9 p.m., will follow the theme "We Look to Jesus."

Lesson topics include answering Christ's call, putting faith into action, speaking out for Christ and growth in Christ.

On June 29, the church plans a VBS picnic at 9:30 a.m. and a closing program at 7:30 p.m.

THE PARADE for Vacation Bible School at Memorial Church of Christ, 35475 Five Mile, Livonia, was held June 15, and the school itself is scheduled from June 24 to 28, running from 9 to 11:45 a.m.

Activities are offered for children aged five to 13, and all in the area are welcome.

THE REV. HUBERT KARL of the Rural Bible Mission is director of Vacation Bible School at Covenant Community Church, 25000 Student, Redford Township. The program will run from June 24 to 28, 9 to 11:30 a.m.

Rev. Karl has worked with the rural mission for a number of years and has chosen for the local program "This is the Life." Bible stories, magic, songs, games and prizes are planned for children in classes from kindergarten through sixth grade.

"GOOD NEWS is Jesus" is the theme for VBS at Nankin Mills Baptist Church, 32430 Ann Arbor Trail, Westland.

The program, directed by Mrs. Bertha Igrisan, former missionary of the American Baptist Convention, will feature the Bible, study, crafts and refreshments for children from kindergarten through sixth grade.

MR. AND MRS. LESTER W. KITCHEN SR.

Kitchens celebrate 50th anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Lester W. Kitchen Sr., former Plymouth residents now making their home in Garden City, recently celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary.

Some 150 relatives and friends from New York, Florida, Ohio and the local area attended the dinner reception hosted by the couple's children.

Lester Kitchen, a native of Clinton, N.Y., and Florence D. McFall of Utica, N.Y., were married June 18, 1924 in St. James Episcopal Church in Brightmoor, Mich.

Mr. Kitchen worked for the Kelly Coal Co. and Schieber Manufacturing Co. before retiring in 1965.

The couple have a daughter, Mrs. Earl Robertson (Shirley) of Garden City, and a son, Lester W. Kitchen Jr. of Plymouth. There are three grandsons and one granddaughter.

College week theme 'Chance or Choice'

"Your World — Chance or Choice" will be the theme of the college week program at Michigan State University June 25-28 for women who wish to learn more about themselves, their families and society.

In addition to a wide range of material discussed in classes, the "four-day adventure" will include a planetarium show, a tour of the campus, swimming, a presentation by the Michigan Farm Bureau titled "Bread and Milk," an exhibit of program ideas for organizations and a musical program presented by the Suitcase Theatre.

Some of the classes offered have been titled "Dollars and Decisions in the Supermarket," "Family Insight: How Your Family Functions," and "Understanding Yourself and Interaction with Others."

Others are "A More Creative You," "Self-Help Approach to Weight Control," "39 and Holding" and "The Metric System of Measurement."

The energy situation is the topic of three assemblies during college week. The first will feature an overview of the energy situation by Herman Koenig, chairman of the department of electrical engineering and systems science at MSU.

Dr. Karl Hosford of the state office of land use will speak on energy from a political vantage point and will include some of the mechanics used to deal with the energy situation.

The final assembly will be addressed by Dr. Beatrice Paolucci, professor in the MSU department of Human Ecology.

College week for women is an annual event sponsored by the Family Living Education program of the Cooperative Extension Service of MSU.

Cost of the program is $45 which includes three nights lodging in an MSU residence hall, 10 meals and all assemblies and classes. Commuters pay a $10 fee that includes classes and assemblies but no meals or lodging. One-day participants pay $5 for that day's assembly, classes and lunch.

Further information may be obtained from Kathy Bufton, extension home economist for Wayne County, 5455 Wayne Road, Wayne.

Churches advised on meeting needs of older members

Many churches are seeking new ways to meet the needs of their older members and utilize the wealth of time and talent they can contribute to the total church program, according to Esther Stamats, consultant in church relations for the American Association of Retired Persons.

Through its liaison with leaders of the nation's religious bodies, including Catholic, Protestant and Jewish, AARP is helping churches develop new service outlets through which older members can find satisfaction and meaning in their later years.

"CHURCHES ARE unique in the opportunity they afford older persons to serve their fellow man while at the same time providing spiritual sustenance through worship and the communal aspects of church life," Miss Stamats notes.

Among the programs suggested by AARP to serve elderly churchgoers are:

- Transportation services for older members unable to walk or drive to church;
- Visitation groups of the elderly to the elderly;
- Discussion groups where older members can share ideas about adjustments they face in retirement; and
- Information centers offering referral services for persons needing assistance with medical, housing or financial problems.

Other activities through which older members can offer voluntary service to the church and community might be participation in church-sponsored day care centers or the Red Cross, supervision of recreational facilities for neighborhood children

39th Detroit Horse Show opens June 21

The 39th annual Detroit Horse Show will have two new big-money events added to its nine-day program when it opens Friday, June 21, at the Bloomfield Hunt Club, 405 E. Long Lake, Bloomfield Hills.

Featured for the first time this year are the $3,000 North American Working Hunter Classic and the $1,000 North American Junior Amateur Hunter Classic.

In addition, the North American Open Jumper Classic, traditionally the climax of the show, carries a prize of $5,000 instead of $3,000 for the first time this year.

Long regarded as one of the most demanding events of its kind, the classic is expected to draw some of the finest jumpers in the country. It is scheduled at 2 p.m. Sunday, June 30, the final day of the show.

Some 700 mounts from 16 states and Canada are expected to participate in the show. Public admission will be $2, and there is space for parking 7,000 cars.

It's Mile Day Saturday at the DRC

IT'S MICHIGAN MILE DAY this Saturday, June 22, at the Detroit Race Course and pretty Miss Terri VanBuren sports the 'Mile' trophy along with that victory smile which will go to one of the entries in the race. (Staff photo by Tom Donoghue)

Now comes the biggest racing event of the year in Michigan thoroughbred racing... the 26th renewal of the $100,000 Michigan mile and eighth at the Detroit Race Course with more than 20,000 expected Saturday.

And the biggest question of all will be whether Crimson Falcon, a four-year-old owned by Livonia industrialist Pete Salmen, Sr., will be able to follow in the path of his father Crimson Satan, who won the Mile 11 years ago.

Crimson Satan was the victor in the 1963 Mile and in the process established a track record which still stands—1:40.3 for a mile and a sixteenth. Crimson Falcon wound up second in the Michigan Mile Prep last Saturday, losing by a neck to List.

THE FALCON WON $105,883 a year ago as a three and shows earnings of $67,000 thus far this season. A victory in the Mile would send him well over the $100,000 total and mark him as one of the better young horses in Salmen's Crimson King Farm.

Salmen, long associated with the runners, is the owner of the Dependable Kellering Co. of Schoolcraft Road, slightly more than two miles from the DRC plant.

A second question that will be answered when the big field leaves the starting gate will be whether Golden Don, the surprise winner a year ago, can become the first repeat champion.

Joseph Goldcamp and Dr. Archie Donaldson, of Kentucky, is noted for his ability to come from far back in the stretch of distance races. It was this characteristic that enabled him to beat out Tri Jet in the drive to the wire a year ago and it could be a major factor again this year.

Trainer Oscar Dishman Jr., who has handled the horse from the time it was first trained, feels his star is in better shape this year than in 1973. An additional year has made Golden Don stronger and more able to make those patented drives to the wire. Dishman isn't saying much but then he didn't as much as say 'boo' last year and went home with all of the marbles.

OFF HIS VICTORY of last week List, a four-year-old son of Herbager, has to be considered a top contender. Under the guidance of jockey Sam Maple, List came from well off the pace in the final half-mile and just did pass Crimson Falcon in the duel down the stretch.

After that race Maple was quoted as saying "List handled just like a Cadillac" and he acted like one in the final going. He is among 10 stakes winners being campaigned by Mrs. Joe W. Brown of New Orleans since she took over the racing stable of her late husband in 1959. He shows three wins and a second in nine starts and earnings of $37,905.

Everton II, a South American bred from Chile, adds an international flavor to the Mile. The five-year-old has raced against the best this year including: Forego, Prove Out, Arbees Boy, Our Native and Prince Danton. He has won $83,872 with three wins and a second for his eight starts and definitely has to be considered one of the top threats for the Mile.

OTHER CONTENDERS are Lone Bird, from the Michigan delegation; Rastafarian, winner of $41,808; and Tom Tulle, a four-year-old which has won $105,390 already with four firsts and three seconds for his nine outings.

The Mile is listed as the ninth race on the afternoon card which gets under way at 1:30 p.m. The schedule calls for the horses to reach the gate shortly after 5:45 p.m. for the race which will be televised on Channel 4 and will be aired over three major radio networks.

And one can expect most anything in the historic Mile where more often than not the favorite is beaten by some outsider.

The biggest win mutuel was paid in 1967 when Estreno II, a South American import surprised all and rewarded the longshot bettors with $250.60.

On the other side of the board, the smallest price was paid in 1962 (Beau Prince) and 1964 (Going Abroad) when the board flashed prices of $4.80.

THERE HAVE BEEN four three-year-old winners including: King's Hope (1951), No Double (1968), King's Bishop (1972) and Golden Don (1973).

Who do you think made the most starts in the Mile? None other than Detroit owned Second Avenue who was second in 1952, won in 1953, 11th in 1954 and sixth in 1955.

With the season's largest crowd expected, the gates to the parking lots will open at 10 a.m., with the grandstand and clubhouse opening at the same time.

The crowd won't come close to the all-time high attendance of 27,470 in 1966 but Vice President and General Manager Dick Wilson believes it will be the largest since 1971 when 22,098 saw Native Royalty win with surprising ease with Ron Campbell up.

Plymouth splits with Royal Oak

Plymouth Bidwell bounced back from an opening game, 7-1 defeat to tip Royal Oak in the nightcap, 3-2, and stand at 4-1 in the Livonia Adray loop.

It was giveaway time in the opener with three of Plymouth's six errors coming in the fourth inning where Royal Oak scored all seven runs.

Mike Smock and Rick Bylin worked the Plymouth mound with Smock giving up six hits in four innings and Bylin two with Smock taking the loss. All seven runs were unearned.

Picking up the win for Royal Oak was Jim Flynn who gave up just six hits, walked two and struck out 10.

The disastrous seven run explosion took place in the fourth after one was out. Scott Hornbacker opened it with a single that saw him advance to third when the ball got by the right-fielder.

Kevin Smith singled in Hornbacker and after Don Brownie went down on strikes, Jim Flynn and Bob Hamilton singled. Dan Bustin was safe on an error at third with two runs scoring. Tom McWilliam singled up the middle to score another. Joe Bluceren was safe at first when the Plymouth hurler threw away a toss to first on a grounder and Paul Harr singled to finish off the assault.

Plymouth's solo score came in the seventh on a double by Dan Longeway and a two out single by Chris Martucci.

Mark Falvo, a '73 graduate of Thurston High took the mound for Plymouth in the second game and managed the split.

Falvo had a no-hitter on tap until the sixth and wound up tossing a five-hitter, walked four and struck out six for the win. Kevin Smith took the loss with Plymouth banging out six hits.

Plymouth scored in the third when Falvo singled and moved to second on a stray pickoff attempt. After two were out, Wayne Darragh singled in Falvo.

An error opened the door for score No. 2 in the fourth. After Mark Caswell struck out, Longeway was safe on an error. Jeff Waller popped out but Falvo kept things alive with a single to right and Longeway dashed in to make it 2-0.

A single by Yockey, walk to Martucci and an error upped it to 3-0 in the fifth.

Royal Oak gave it a clean sweep shot in the sixth but fell one shy of its mark. Busto singled and after a strikeout, Joe Blugerman singled. Harris was safe on an error at second with Busto scoring and Smith singled in run No. 2 before Falvo shut the door.

Redford Adray blasts Farmington team, 9-2

Redford battered Royal Oak, 6-5, in nine innings and blasted Farmington Sinicola, 9-2, to remain in a tie for second place in the Adray baseball loop.

Southfield is on top of the nine club league with a 4-0 mark while Redford and Plymouth Bidwell sport 4-1 records.

Redford Coach Bob Atkins used three hurlers in the nine inning contest. Tom Nippa started and was followed by John Knox and Tommy Miller with Miller chalking up his first win to compliment his two saves.

Royal Oak banged out 12 hits off the Redford trio while Scott Hornbacker who went the full route for Royal Oak gave up 10 hits, walked one and struck out eight.

A single by Bob Hamilton, back-to-back triples by Bob McWilliams and Joe Blugerman and a single by Hornbacker gave Royal Oak a first inning, 3-0 lead.

A solo four-bagger by Gary D'Ascenzo in the last of the inning got one back for Redford. But Royal Oak bounced back in the third when McWilliams tripled and with Knox taking over the mound, Blugerman singled home McWilliams.

A single by John Roy, an error and single by Bill Campbell sliced it to 4-2 in the fourth. The fifth saw Redford take control for the first time. Mark Yourchock was safe on an error, Steve Friedman blasted a homer, Roy doubled and wound up scoring on a groundout.

Royal Oak came back to tie it up and send it into extra innings in the sixth on a double by Hornbacker and an error.

Atkins brought in Miller on the mound in the seventh and the Redford ace got out of a jam when Royal Oak had runners on second and third with only one out. Friedman at third saved the day when he stabbed a line drive tabbed for extra bases.

Redford put the win away in the last of the ninth. Mike Kalil singled, was passed ball to second and with two down, Friedman singled up the middle

The battle with Farmington Sinicola saw Redford collect 13 hits off two pitchers in Andy Hohlak and Dennis Hegan with starter Hohlak taking the loss.

Kevin Bara went the route for Redford and gave up just three hits, walked one and struck out 12.

Singles by Yourchock and Friedman and a double steal got Redford off to a 1-0 lead in the first. A hit by John Broder and doubles by Bara and Lupe Bravo upped it to 3-0 in the fourth.

The fifth saw Redford push it to 4-0 when Roy and Yourchock singled and Broder sacrificed in Roy.

Farmington pushed across one in the sixth when Rick Pauline singled, was passed ball to second and scored on an error.

Redford iced victory in the top of the seventh with five runs on five hits.

D'Ascenzo singled, Roy singled, Yourchock singled in one run, and Friedman singled in another. Broder lofted a sacrifice fly to score Yourchock, Bara singled and Kalil single to complete the assault.

Westland-Garden City split 1-0 decisions

Westland Burger King and Garden City Sports turned the 1-0 tables on one another in Adray baseball action.

It was Westland 1-0 in the first of a twinbill with Roland Morency tossing a four-hitter. Garden City's Terry Dobbs turned things around in the nightcap and hurled a three hit shut-out.

George Yakel's Westland now stands at 2-3 after dropping a 7-4 decision to Livonia Griffin along with the split with Garden City.

Morency, a hurler Yakel picked up from Sacred Heart, allowed just four hits in the 1-0 opener, walked one and struck out eight. Taking the loss for Garden City was Paul Tatro who hurled a five-hitter, walked three and struck out nine.

Westland's winning tally came in the fourth when Art Mach drew a walk, Bob Ganzak singled him around to third and Tony Dattilio lofted a sacrifice to produce the first game's score.

Game No. 2 saw Dobbs allow three hits, walk one and strike out six with Mach taking the loss, giving up two hits, walking two and striking out nine.

Garden City's score came in the second. Don McLelland drew a walk and on a Dobbs' grounder, Westland second baseman Steve Hodgkins tossed wildly to his brother at second and McLelland moved around to third where he scored on a squeeze bunt by Jim Wisniewski.

Livonia Griffin's Jerry Cyrul was the winning hurler over Westland in another Adray match-up. Cyrul gave up five hits while the Westland two-some of Jeff Hodgkins and Jerry Trybas allowed 11 hits with starter Hodgkins taking the loss.

Livonia scored twice in the second on singles by Mark Temby, Bill Van-derLinden and Bob Wasilewski. The top of the third saw Griffin's crew up it to 6-0.

Cyrul, Bobby Blaies and Tim Livesay all singled. Gar Frantz doubled, Leonard drew a walk and Temby singled to center.

Westland got one back in the last of the inning on walks to Trybas and Hodgkins and a single by J.P. McBride.

The Burger King crew got hungry in the sixth and gave that five run deficit a real shot. With two out, Glenn Ambrose singled, and Mack and Ganzak drew walks. Ken Robertson singled in two runs, Dattilio walked and Ganzak singled before Cyrul quelled the fire.

Livonia added an insurance tally in the seventh and Westland now finds itself in a twin bill with Royal Oak Sunday, June 23, starting at 1 p.m. at Royal Oak Kimball High School.

Turf Tips, Quips

By Doc Minard

With Sunday racing out of the picture as far as the Detroit Race Course is concerned this year and no chance at all for harness racing to pick up the slack since it was not included in the amendment to the Michigan Racing Act, it appears as if Northville Downs will have to fight competition from Windsor and Toledo during its abbreviated 24 night meeting starting June 26.

Jackson Racing rang down the curtain on its moderately successful spring meeting Tuesday night and Hazel Park will close out Michigan's greatest harness racing campaign in history next Tuesday.

The figures aren't all in yet but the east side plant is a sure bet to wind up with a nightly wagering average of more than $800,000. That will be the first time in Michigan a harness meeting has outdone the runners ... it's apparent the DRC isn't going to hit $800,000 this year.

ALTHOUGH JOHN J. CARLO, executive manager at Northville Downs, has two bitter complaints at this time, it appears he won't get answers to either this year but you can bet your last buck he'll be fighting to have both corrected in another year.

Carlo is very bitter with Racing Commissioner Leo Shirley for cutting back his summer dates from the original 60 to 48 to 36 and now a scant 24. Originally Northville Downs was allotted 30 days for the summer of 1974 but the opening week was to be in direct competition with Hazel Park.

So, with a variety of reasons, some valid but most not, Shirley trimmed the meeting to 24 nights. Carlo immediately protested but to no avail and he faces one of the shortest parimutuel meetings ever awarded in Michigan.

Despite his protests that figures show it isn't profitable to open for just four weeks, the commissioner stood pat and it eventually wound up into a situation of take it or leave it ... naturally Carlo had to take it.

Carlo's second complaint, one that will probably come from other groups before the end of the year, is over the Sunday racing bill. He alleges it is the most biased bill ever passed by the Legislature in that it does permit the thoroughbreds to race on the Sabbath but doesn't include the pacers and trotters.

Perhaps his major contention at this time evolves around the failure of the DRC to use the Sunday dates during the remainder of its current meeting.

Carlo points out Northville Downs will be going against Windsor Raceway which will have Sunday racing and it puts the Michigan harness tracks in a bad light but not being able to furnish competition. It appears he has an excellent point, if the thoroughbreds aren't going to use the Sundays, why can't the standardbreds?

But it is something that will have to be resolved in the next session of the lawmakers in Lansing and it means there will have to be some tough lobbying. The bill as currently passed was the result of hard work by the running tracks, now it's up to the harness tracks to hire their own lobbyists and get moving.

Unfortunately the harness group has never been able to present a united front and we don't think it will happen this time.

FROM JACKSON Raceway comes word that President and General Manager Leon Slavin left immediately after last Saturday's races to rest and loaf in the Florida sun for the next several months.

Slavin became ill shortly after the start of the Jackson spring meeting and never did regain his full strength. We're hoping the long rest between now and late October will bring the old master back to us at his best again. Leon has had complete charge of the operation at Jackson for the past 25 years and just can't bring himself to gradually turning it over to others.

Management of the Detroit Racing Association is looking forward to the largest crowd in several years Saturday for the 26th renewal of the historic $100,000 Michigan Mile and an eighth.

With that in mind, the gates will be opened at 10 a.m. to the parking lots, the grandstand and the clubhouse. If you haven't made reservations for the clubhouse, then you're going to be in trouble. Our information was that all tables for the terrace and the new clubhouse had been taken as many as 10 days ago ... even if you know someone it won't do any good.

POSTTIME FOR THE state's richest thoroughbred stake is approximately 5:44 p.m. and from all indications the field will be the finest and the largest in recent years.

This will be the final chance for the DRC to attract more than 20,000 fans into its lavish quarters, something that has happened in recent years and Vice President and General Manager Dick Wilson hopes to reach that peak again.

A few years back it was unusual when the runners didn't have crowds of 15,000 to 17,000 on Saturdays and 22,000 to 25,000 on holidays. That appears to be past history but Wilson has hopes that interest can be rekindled in another year and rebuild attendance figures.

On that logic, he feels there isn't any better time than for the ancient Michigan Mile to bring out the largest crowd of the past several years in metropolitan Detroit. At least he's going to make a great try.

Teacher fights utility boost rate

By CORINNE ABATT

Without little fanfare or financial backing, a group of the Consumers Alliance of Michigan are quietly fighting the battle of the purse.

One outspoken leader of the alliance is Lynn Ehrle of Westland, social studies and consumer and career education teacher at Franklin Junior High School in Wayne.

As chairperson of the alliance's energy committee, Ehrle has been attending public hearings on utility rate requests, appearing on radio and television and doing a lot of writing on his findings.

He describes the three year old non-profit, non-partisan alliance as dealing with consumer issues at the state level.

IN HIS work in the utilities field, Ehrle has found what he feels are many inequities.

One of these is the money which the companies use "for witness and lawyer fees to build the rate cases." Unfair, Ehrle says because the money for these comes from the consumer and is included in the costs which the companies present as a reason for a rate increase.

The alliance, on the other hand, has no funds to intervene in these cases. Presently, the alliance has several hundred members who paid $5 each to join and this barely covers the regular newsletter mailing.

Ehrle would like to see the state Public Service Commission collect funds from the utility companies for an intervention fund available on a continuing basis.

Admitting that State Atty. Gen. Frank J. Kelley "has been supportive to a certain extent" in opposing the rate hikes, Ehrle says, "Kelley has a two hat deal. He represents the Public Service Commission and also the public."

"That is a difficult position to be placed in."

Since the three members of the commission are appointed by the governor and have the final word on rate increases, Ehrle says, "The Consumers Alliance of Michigan holds the governor directly responsible for this sorry state."

EHRLE DESCRIBES the things which the alliance feels have created the 'sorry state' - over $3 million in rate increases in the past two years, race and sex discrimination in certain utilities, billing which most people don't understand, and the "April 24 massacre." On that date Detroit Edison asked for a $93 million rate hike, Michigan Bell asked for $111 million and Consumers Power $72 million. "All on the same day," Ehrle notes.

He mentions the petition now before the commission to eliminate utility company advertising.

Ehrle defends the petition pointing out that utilities have a guaranteed rate of return and monopolistic service areas.

"Why do they need advertising with these guarantees?" His research tells him that Edison ads are "not informative, but an argument for another rate increase."

He describes what he calls a "damned if we do, damned if we don't, situation the public is caught in."

Consumers have been urged to conserve energy. When less is used, profits decrease, the company makes less money and then goes after a rate increase. Ehrle calls the regular rate increases "piggyback refills."

THE CONSTRUCTION of nuclear power plants is "a whole new ballgame," he said.

"It's the nuclear power questions that are crucial. We are condemning our children to be watch dogs for nuclear waste."

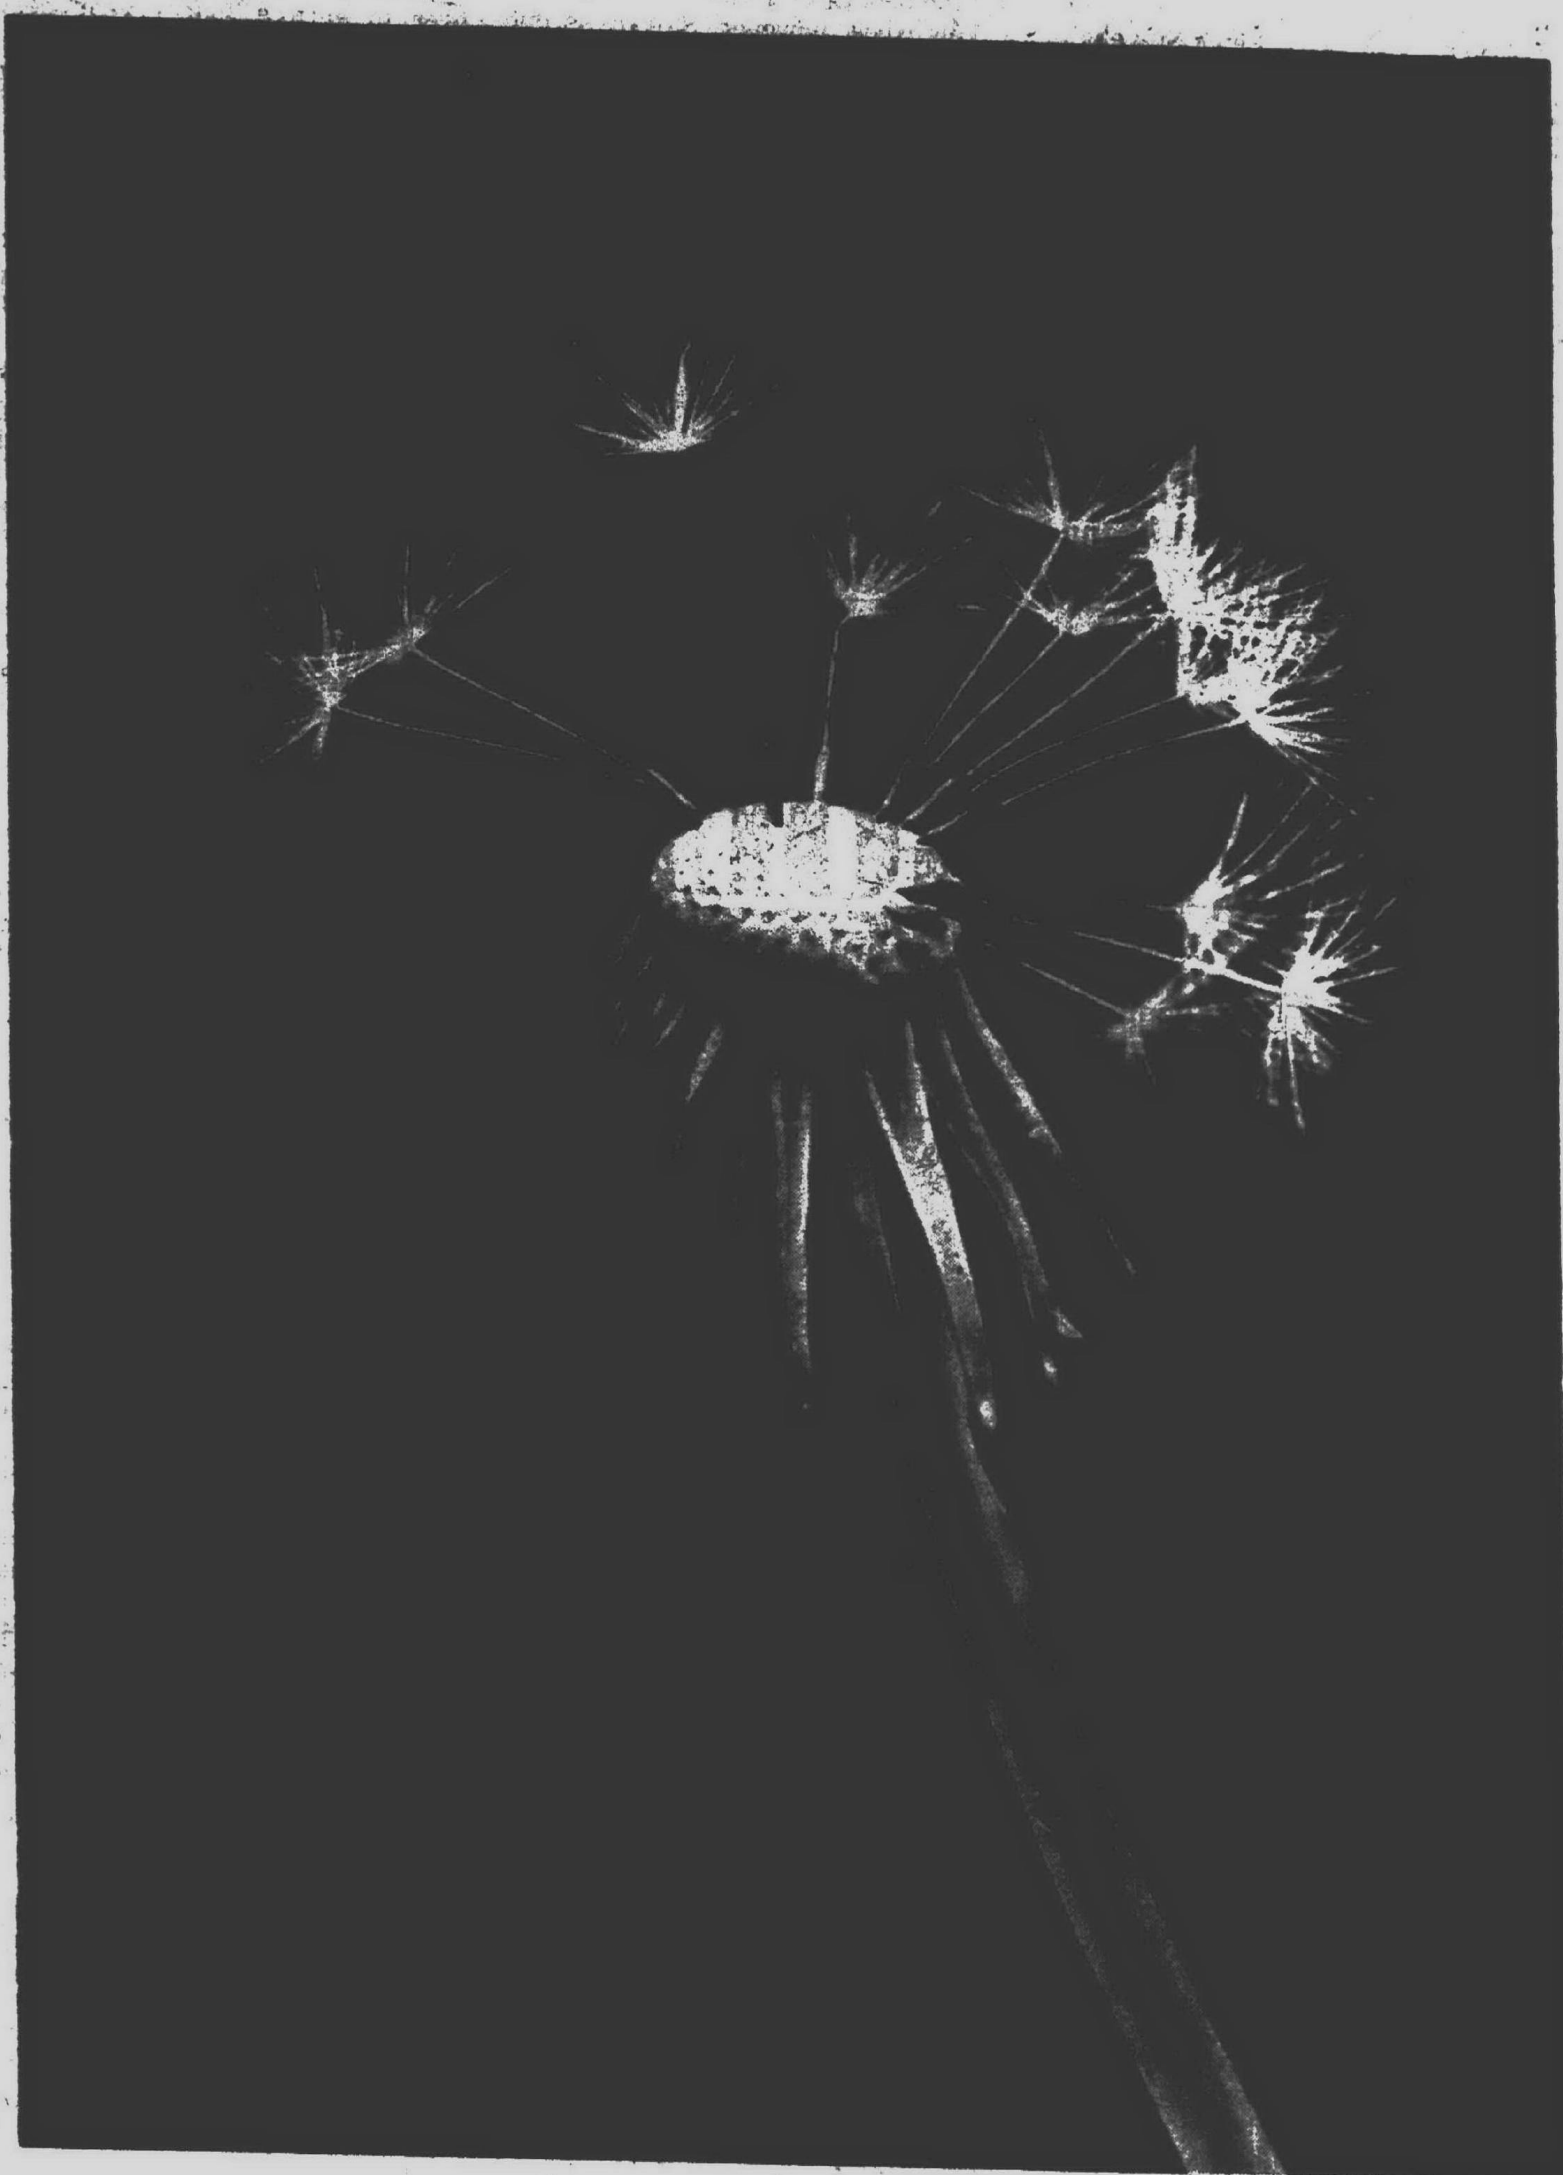

Ehrle's interest is not solely in the immediate problems but "in the issues in the broad perspective of the quality of life."

He mentions both site and radiation problems which some nuclear plants in the state have encountered as well as the disposal of nuclear wastes.

ANOTHER THING that bothers Ehrle is the notification and location of the public hearings which the utility companies schedule.

By law they must hold public hearings. But Ehrle says that in a recent Edison hearing, the notice was in the paper about a month before the hearing and only five or six people showed up.

He would like to have the commission require utilities to notify customers of the hearings on the monthly bill.

The last puff of spring

With the onset of spring comes untended fields of golden dandelions, a nightmare for the homeowner who takes pride in his weedless lawn but a welcome sign that warm weather has arrived. The golden bursts of petals quickly turn into gentle puffs, daring the wind to whisk each feathery seed away to become still more dandelions. But as the fluffy balls disappear in the breeze, and in the tiny hands of children at play, on stage comes summer -- with more of the blooms sure to appear.

TUNING UP FOR THE MICHIGAN MILE were List and Crimson Falcon who battled to the wire in last Saturday's Michigan Mile Prep at the Detroit Race Course. List, Sam Maple up, won by a neck and these two will be in action this Saturday in the $100,000 stakes.

Reuther calls for inflation control panel

John Reuther, Democratic candidate for the nomination for Congress in the 2nd District, recently proposed that a special "inflation control" panel be assembled as part of the decision by Congress to establish independent machinery to process the federal budget.

"Inflation is breaking the back of the working man and woman in this country and creating panic and real deprivation among our senior citizens on fixed incomes," Reuther told a group of supporters at a houseparty in Livonia. The 2nd District includes Livonia and Plymouth.

"THIS BUDGET BILL, while a good one because it will give the Congress better understanding of the money flow, should also be positively directed toward controlling inflation."

"The Nixon administration has demonstrated extraordinary ineptitude in dealing with inflation. A well informed, adequately staffed Congress could begin to make the changes the Republican administration is either unwilling or unable to make."

The bill, among other things, will create a congressional budget office to provide the Senate and House with their own fiscal experts to analyze revenues and spending and be able to effectively deal with the budget presented by the executive Office of Management and Budget (OMB).

DESPITE THE massive technical expertise available to the president through the OMB, Reuther claims, "We continue to see the ludicrous internal bickering among Nixon's economic advisors and very little else."

"We have one advisor advocating monetary restraint and another urging fiscal solutions, followed by petty public arguments about who is really in charge." (Fiscal solution involves government spending and taxation levels while monetary policy is the Federal Reserve System's control over the money supply to tighten or loosen credit to business or consumers.)

"The end result is that nobody is in charge and the American consumer has to pay for it," Reuther continued.

"When we are told the price of gas in Michigan is going up three or four more cents despite the embarrassing profits oil companies are reporting. Something has to be done, and it has become clear this administration isn't going to do it."

"That leaves the Congress. The need for effective policies to combat the ravages of inflation without bringing on more unemployment and recession is urgent. I believe a well informed Congress, with a clear mandate to halt the inflationary spiral threatening our economic and political stability, is the only available solution."

Make crime fight 'inter-county'

While the Wayne County Board of Commissioners recently approved funding for two law enforcement projects, its chairman, Robert FitzPatrick urged state attorney general Frank J. Kelley to "utilize a coordinated inter-county counterforce against crime" in southeast Michigan.

The board approved third-year local funding of $163,110 for the sheriff's metro narcotics squad and second-year local funding of $7,172 for the sheriff's helicopter squad.

The board's commitment represents 50 per cent of the $326,220 cost of the narcotics squad for the fiscal year beginning July 1. A $146,799 Federal Law Enforcement Administration (LEAA) grant and $16,311 in state funds covers the balance.

The county would have to pick up the full cost of the unit after the third year.

The Metro Squad appropriation drew comment from FitzPatrick (D-Detroit) and Commissioner Mary E. Dumas (R-Livonia).

FitzPatrick noted that Kelley had met earlier with Detroit Mayor Coleman A. Young to discuss plans for a state-local attack on narcotics traffic in Detroit.

"In addition to talking to the mayor, I would hope the attorney general will talk to us because we are the only unit of government that is putting in cash plus personnel," FitzPatrick said.

In a letter to Kelley, FitzPatrick urged that any state crime probe encompass the entire metropolitan area of Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties. He said a Detroit-only effort would be "folly."

Mrs. Dumas said she wanted to "remind the board that the Metro Narcotics Squad was not given a good evaluation" by the Detroit-Wayne County Criminal Justice System Coordinating Council and the Michigan Office of Criminal Justice Programs.

She said she was voting to continue the Metro Squad because there was "no alternative."

In his letter to Kelley, FitzPatrick urged:

Cooperation, including financial participation, by the affected county level of government and their agencies.

Accurate and systematic reporting of the crime control agency activity to legislators and boards of commissioners.

Use of potential of such Wayne County agencies as the Organized Crime Task Force and the Metro Squad.

Attack on drug syndicate kingpins in southeast Michigan with an inter-county and inter-community counterforce on a regional scale.

Prisoner graduates with honors

By BOB ERICKSON

LIVONIA — Mark Peter Stevens of Livonia is an inmate of the State House of Correction and Branch Prison at Marquette. He has been there for the past three years.

This week, however, Stevens is due to be paroled just in time to receive his bachelor's degree from Northern Michigan University. He will be the first inmate, prison officials believe, ever to earn a four-year degree while in a Michigan prison.

Moreover, Stevens will be graduating with top honors. He holds a 4.0 grade average and last year took a law school entrance exam which placed him in the top two per cent of students taking the test across the nation.

Ironically, Stevens was sentenced to prison, originally for 10-25 years, in connection with the bombing of a biology lab at Oakland Community College in the spring of 1971. Earlier, he had been expelled from Schoolcraft College in Livonia and arrested (but later released by the circuit court) for allegedly yelling obscenities during a meeting of the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees when that board reprimanded several staff members whose names had appeared on an anti-war pamphlet.

Then 21, Stevens was sentenced, along with two other students for conspiracy to bomb and for placing a bomb with intent to destroy. The bombing resulted in "several thousand dollars" worth of damage to the Orchard Ridge Campus lab. Stevens was sentenced to the lengthy term by Oakland Judge Arthur Moore. That sentence was later reduced to 4 1/2 - 8 1/2 years by an appeals court. With "good time" he is being released after serving just over three years.

Stevens hasn't much to say about the bombing except that "then we saw it as supportive" of the student strikes and campus riots that were taking place over the war issue and allegedly racially discriminatory hiring policies at the college.

Whether three years of prison regimen has changed Stevens' politically and socially radical views is impossible to judge until he is actually returned to society. His plans for the future and his conduct in prison, both inside the walls, and more recently on the prison farm where security is minimal, were apparently major factors in his early parole.

Stevens said that while he passed the law school entrance exams with flying colors, he doesn't "think much of lawyers," and has no intention of going to law school.

However, after his graduation from Northern this week, he intends to enroll in graduate school and pursue both a master's degree in history and a pre-med curriculum simultaneously. His bachelor's degree work already includes majors in both history and social studies and a minor in English.

While incarcerated Stevens has apparently been a remarkable prisoner. Before being released to the prison farm — a minimal security area — he had been teaching inmates inside the walls, working in remedial reading and helping those without high school diplomas to prepare for their high school equivalency tests.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Stevens, young Stevens' parents, are quite naturally excited about his upcoming release and his graduation which will take place coincidentally on his father's birthday.

"I called to talk to the warden," she said, "and to ask him if he couldn't speed up the paperwork that is delaying Mark's release on parole (officially, he was due to be paroled April 24).

"I started to tell him who my son was and I heard this big sigh. When I started to explain that I knew he was busy and couldn't keep track of everyone, about to be released, he stopped me." "Madam," he said, "I assure you we know very well who your son is, and are proceeding with due haste."

"I said, 'Oh, it's kind of hard not to be aware of him, isn't it?' He sighed again. 'Madam,' he said, 'it is impossible not to be aware of your son.' "I suppose," Mrs. Stevens laughed again, "that he's right."

GARAGE SALE

Here's a handy sign for your garage sale!

And here are some helpful hints for holding a successful sale:

1. When you're rounding up those usable but no-longer-used items for your sale, be sure to check all the storage areas in your home—the basement, garage, attic, closets, seldom used cupboards.

2. Saleable items include outgrown bicycles, lawn and patio furniture, small appliances, dishes, kitchen utensils, toys, golf clubs and other sports equipment, lawn mowers, decorator items, books, records, musical instruments—your "extras" may be "extra-special" to someone else!

3. Visit a few garage sales before you hold your own. You'll get great ideas, and maybe pick up a treasure or two.

4. Once you've picked the date for your sale, call The Observer & Eccentric Classified Department and place your Garage Sale Want ad. (O&E Want Ads reach more than 155,500 households every Monday and Thursday!) And remember, Double Action Family Want Ads—same ad, two consecutive issues—save you $2.00 off the regular Want Ad rates.

5. When you're clearing out your garage, you'll probably discover that some of the items in there will have to stay there—even though you won't be selling them. Try to cover these "not-for-sales" or push them out of the way.

6. Use tables to display as many of the sale items as possible. Items on the floor of the garage, especially small items, may be overlooked by prospective buyers.

7. Make sure there is enough walking space through the garage, and that sale items are easy to reach.

8. PUT A PRICE TAG ON EVERYTHING! Prospective buyers will appreciate it, and you'll find it makes things easier for you.

9. Before your sale begins, be sure you have change and some sort of cash box on hand. Set up a "check-out" table just outside the garage.

10. Be ready for a rush at opening time—garage sale shoppers like to come early, and with your ad in The Observer & Eccentric, you'll have plenty of shoppers!

(And don't forget to use the sign above. Just paste it on heavy cardboard and post it by your house. It will help people locate your sale.)

Man dies in crash

LIVONIA—A two-car collision Monday on Ann Arbor Trail, west of Hix Road, claimed the life of a 64-year-old Westland man and hospitalized two persons.

Shirwell Joseph Rudd, of 32234 Bertram Drive, was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Mary Hospital following the accident at 3:45 p.m.

Police said Rudd was east bound on Ann Arbor Trail when a car, driven by Robert Bruce Bushway, 18, of Hamburg, Mich. slid broadside across the center line, hitting Rudd's car.

A passenger in Bushway's car, Donald Lincoln, 38, of 1000 N. Territorial Road, Plymouth, was sent to St. Mary Hospital as was Bushway.

Patrolman George Zellman, at the scene of the accident, said Bushing told police his right front tire blew, causing him to swerve into the oncoming car.

The accident is still under investigation.

Bentley Crowe rips Redford, 8-2

Bentley Crowe came up with four runs in the third inning and added one in the fourth to upend Redford in an opening round of Berry Mack baseball action, 8-2.

Crowe, coached by Dick DeVries, jumped off to a 3-0 lead in the first.

Al Bolz singled, Paul Roshirt doubled, and Ernie Storm bunted home Bloz. Bob Cross singled in both Roshirt and Storm.

Redford didn't waste any time in getting back in the game. Three pitchers into the last of the first, Bill Stafford and Tom Ackerman were on by way of bloop singles with a wild pitch moving them around to second and third.

Dan Bushart singled to score both. Bentley sent eight batsmen to the plate in the third inning as it broke things open with four runs on five hits. Storm led it off with a single to left that wound up being a homerun when the ball bounced over the head of the leftfielder.

Cross and Mark Newell singled, Dave Waldoock singled in Cross, Glenn Stevens singled and after a foiled suicide squeeze, Tom Schulz was safe on an error at second with two more scoring.

Crowe's final score came in the fourth when Storm was safe on an error, stole second and scampered in on a hit by Newell.

Curt Richards started on the Bentley mound and chalked up the win with Dan Vezina picking up the save in the rain-shortened six inning affair. Richards went the first four and Vezina the final two with Redford collecting 11 hits.

Bushart was tabbed for the loss for Redford as Bentley banged out 11 hits.

Franklin Berry's tips Fanchers, 3-2

Paul Hunt's Franklin baseball crew, which finished 14-3 last season and ventured as far as the state district finals, opened its '74 campaign with an eight inning, 3-2 win over the Stevenson varsity Fanchers.

Jamie Knapp went the seven inning route for Berry and gave up just nine hits, walked two and struck out six with one run unearned.

Tom Warring suffered the loss for Fanchers with Berry collecting 11 hits.

Singles by Tom Schmidt and Mark Temby got Fanchers off to a 1-0 lead in the third inning. Berry bounced back in its half to score twice on singles by Tom Tresick and Ron VanDerlinden and a double by Joe Pol-lard.

Fanchers tied it at two-all in the fourth. Tom Zaliagaris was safe on an error, Bob Hope singled and John Kolis singled in Zaliagaris.

It remained at two-all until the last of the eighth. VanDerlinden and Pol-lard drew walks and Knapp was safe on a bunt single to load the bases. Jim Baigrie was hit by a pitch to force in VanDerlinden with the winning run.

"Putting Around" with Tom Donoghue

Some of the best golfers in the country go an entire lifetime without notching the No. 1 dream in every's golfer book - a hole in one.

Harold Mango of 14349 Salem in Redford Township has defied the law of averages and for the third time in a 15 year career, scored a hole-in-one.

The 54 year-old Mango aced the No. 8, 189 yard hole at Idyl Wyld in the Tuesday Diesel League. Mango used his five wood and carded a 76 for the 18 holes.

Over at Whispering Willows, Kay Coppola and Jackie Stocks tied for championship flight honors with identical 45s in the women's loop.

The A flight also saw a tie with Alice Game and Elaine Blair scoring 51 each. Irene Pritchard won the B flight with a 50 and Lue Nelson the C flight with a 57.

Doris O'Connell took D flight honors when she came in with a 53 and Pat Brown won the E flight with a 60, and Kay Korta took F flight with a 60. Judy Parkinson captured the G flight and Barbara Gibson the H flight with respective 67s and 68s.

Marguerite Clark and Myra Coch-rane shared top billing in the Hilltop women's Thursday morning league, each carding a low gross of 51.

Joan O'Connell didn't battle the winners all the way but did manage to come up with three pars in the nine holes. Ruth Zarnow won the "tournament six" contest as she came up with five six pointers.

The Idyl Wyld Swingers Loop fea-tured a longest drive tourney on the par five, No. 7 and 548 yard hole. Jan Christner won the first flight, Helen Burger the second and Joyce Ed-wards the third.

Low gross honors in the first flight went to Eileen DeGrosso with a 48 with Jan Christner next with a 49 and 18 putts and Marci Morgan with a 49 and only 16 putts.
