Teacher negotiations continue, future uncertain for 45-15

By TOM SCHRAM

PLYMOUTH-Negotiations continued late Wednesday between the Plymouth school board and the Plymouth Education Association (PEA, teachers' union), leaving the future of the pilot 45-15 year round school program in doubt.

Both sides expressed optimism that the Monday scheduled starting date of the 45-15 program at Miller Elementary School.

The negotiations continued in spite of a noon Wednesday deadline unanimously set by the school board at a special meeting Monday night.

The school board has set up a "hotline" to Miller School to serve as an school Supt. John M. Hoben said that the deadline was violated because an informal poll of three board members had indicated a desire to continue negotiations.

Specifications of the board's deadline were that if an agreement was not reached by Wednesday noon, the negotiations would be submitted to binding arbitration, the 45-15 program was to be cancelled and a number of students from the Miller School area were to be bused to a new elementary school at East Middle School as an alternative to solving the overenrollment problems at Miller.

President of the PEA, Dolly Carter, said Tuesday the PEA was against binding arbitration, at this time.

"We do not reject the concept of binding arbitration, but with seven a settlement could be reached prior to weeks remaining before the expiration of our present master agreement to submit to binding arbitration is premature and inappropriate at this time," she said on the PEA "hot-line" Tuesday night.

She would not discuss the issue on Wednesday afternoon because she said that it was still on the bargaining

Mrs. Carter did say on Wednesday that the basis for an eventual agreewould be an "informal offer" made on Wednesday morning. Hoben also acknowledged that an offer was made but neither side would divulge details of the offer because of possible effects on negotiations.

While no formal schedule for negotiations has been established, both sides indicated willingness to continue as long as necessary in order to reach an agreement in time to save the 45-

Hoben said that the three members of the school board who had made the descision to continue negotiations past the deadline had also indicated to him that they were willing to "exhaust all possibilities and do everything possible to save the 45-15 program." Mrs. Carter also indicated the willingness of the PEA to "enter into ment is not reached.

marathon bargaining sessions if necessary" in order to reach a settlement before Monday.

Both sides said that a settlement seemed close but the PEA warned Tuesday that the teachers at Miller were "holding fast to their original commitment" not to work if an agree-

State hearing set on annexation

PLYMOUTH — The State Boundary date for a public hearing has been ommission has set a hearing for July 31 on the two petitions from the City of Plymouth seeking annexation of parts of Plymouth Township.

The hearing will be held at 9:30 a.m. in the State Treasury building in Lansing to determine whether the petitions are legally sufficient.

If the boundary commission finds the petitions to be in order, it may set a public hearing on them. Boundary commission officials say no tentative

The two petitions involve the site of the Hillside Inn and the Burroughs parking lot across the Plymouth Road. The township has approved that lot for a multi-million dollr development which would include apartments and commercial development.

A third petition seeking annexation of the entire township which was filed on the same day by the city, must wait until the first two are resolved.

CANTON-"Is this the way I'm going to die?"

That's what my friend asked during the few moments when blackness engulfed us and we thought a tornado would sweep us from the glass-enclosed swimming pool.

In retrospect it seems ridiculousjust a shattered glass panel, broken sundeck railing and a torn roof from Deer Creek's clubhouse were reminders of what had seemed like doom.

But seeing the shingles flying and the darkness enclose the pool, it seemed like doomsday.

The day had been sweltering and the water was so cool that we ignored the dark, foreboding sky and the first gusts of wind.

Ed left to put the top up on his car and just a minute later the wind came from nowhere. Linda and I scrambled from the water to see if Ed had made it. But by then the wind was swirling thick with expressway dirt and blocked our view.

We paused by the window to look for him and gasped as part of the roof and railing fell in front of the glass. There was the cry "flying glass" and we turned to see the window wall fall in as the others, including Joei, fought dren called to each other and everyone scrambled to find the exit doors. I had visions of crumbling cement walls and felt as though I was hurrying to an even more dangerous place as I felt along the cold wall to find the doorway.

Then there was the panic of losing a friend. The last we had seen of Joei was when she was fighting to get out of the water. She didn't answer our calls so we felt our way to the door hoping to get out of the room into one with natural light.

We went through the second dark room, up a few stairs to the clubhouse hallway where people stood dripping and checking to see if anyone was

"Isn't there a basement here?" people asked as they fumbled barefoot, scared, wet and shivering.

Joei came stumbling from the men's dressing room-it looked safer to her than the women's after she saw the shingles flying.

We considered crawling under the pool tables but the wind was subsiding and everyone was told to run for their apartments when the wind broke. After the wind stopped, people helped each other back into the locker room to claim shoes and apartment keys. Then we ran for the apartment, too overwelmed and hurried to notice the shingles, insulation and broken trees left by the storm. We only paused to see an apartment

Somehow, I had expected to be in a regular cell, but I found myself with seven strangers in a large area, maybe 15 feet wide and 50 yards long with a wall of bars on one side and a dozen small cells on the other. Some of those were locked, and some were

"What're you in for?" asked a voice from one of the locked cubicles. I looked to see a kid - he looked about 15 - dressed in a pair of prison blue jeans, sitting on a steel bunk with a Zane Grey novel in his hand. "You a weekender?" he asked.

I told him that I was — that I had been busted for driving on a suspended license and sentenced to two weekends in jail.

He smiled and asked me if I'd ever peen in jail before. "Yes," I said, "but I've never been in prison, just in a small town jail." "This ain't prison," he grinned, "this is DelioCo." I discovered later that DeHoCo is not in a class with the larger state prisons like Jackson or Marquette, and, reportedly, is not searly as rough as even the Wayne County Jail.

Acquaintances are easily made in jail. Inmates are eager to talk about nearly anything - there is little else to do on "the inside."

Number Four (the kid's cell number - I never learned his name) told me that he had been in that tiny eight by ten cell for nearly 30 days because he had refused to "snitch" on inmates discovered to be planning an escape.

The cells that lined the side of the block Gere solitary confinement cells out only "five minutes a week to take shower.'

Number Four, I found out, was really 18 years old. In on a charge of larceny, reckless driving and malicious destruction, all apparently stemming from one incident, he spoke softly about his girl, his brother and about "going back to Ohio" when he got out. "I wanted to prove that I could make it in Michigan," he said,

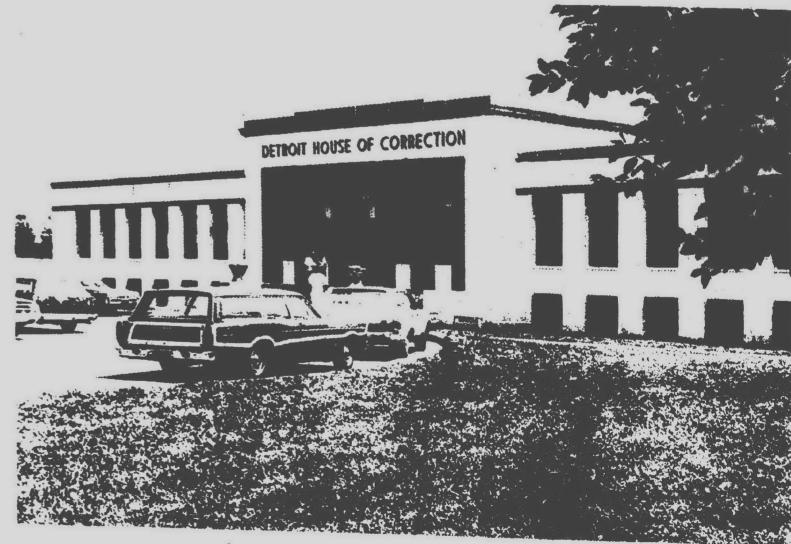

"but now I just want to go home." I was a little surprised at this young man and the rest of my weekend roommates. I had expected tough, belligerent and aggressive "cons," but I found men, mostly young and mostly black, anxious to talk or play cards or chess to take their minds off the walls. They didn't resemble the Humphrey Bogart - James Cagney types that inhabit movie prison cells. Most were there because they had no money. No money for a lawyer, for a ball bendeman, for a fine, or to pay their debts meant they had to go to jail. "The poor man's hotel," some-body called it.

At the end of the cell block, the door clunked open again. "Awright new men, inside!"

Ten more men filed past the fat guard carrying sheets and Army blankets. As they moved to take the remaining bunks lined up in the open area in front of the cells, I picked up my own blanket and moved into the empty, unlocked cell next to Number

The new men were little different from us weekenders. They would not, however, be leaving the next day.

Anxiety, sexuality S'craft seminar topics

Managing anxiety and human sexuality are topics which will be covered in two new courses offered by the Schoolcraft College counseling staff this fall

Counseling 98-Anxiety Management is an eight week seminar developed by counselors Richard Tornalty and Ronald Rogowski. It is designed to help persons cope with stressful situations such as test taking, public speaking and preparing for that "big task." The course will include exercises in relaxation and desensitization. These will be combined with human potential techniques for developing positive self-image and regard for others to achieve the goal of managing anxiety. "We felt a need to develop a course like this after talking with students who had problems taking tests or giving speeches." Tomalty said. "We hope to help students with typical anx-

Students will have an opportunity to take a pre-test and an after-test. This will be an indicator to what they know and what type of learning should take place during the course.

"We plan to utilize trained individuals from the community to act as resource people," Ms. Vukmirovich said. They could be doctors, pharmacists and other speakers

There are no fees for either seminar. However, students will register for them during advance and regular periods along with their credit

Once again the counseling department will offer Counseling 90-Group Counseling Seminar designed to help participants develop their personal potential and Counseling 95-Vocation Decisions, a seminar to held develop career decision making skills.

Lansing raps Esch for cool education action

Marjorie Lansing, speaking at a federal sources. I oppose raising meeting of supporters in Livonia recently, criticized Rep. Marvin Esch (R-Ann Arbor) as being a 'fairweather friend" of education.

"Education at all levels is in financial crisis," says Mrs. Lansing, a candidate for the Democratic nomination to Congress in the 2nd District which includes Livonia and Plymouth.

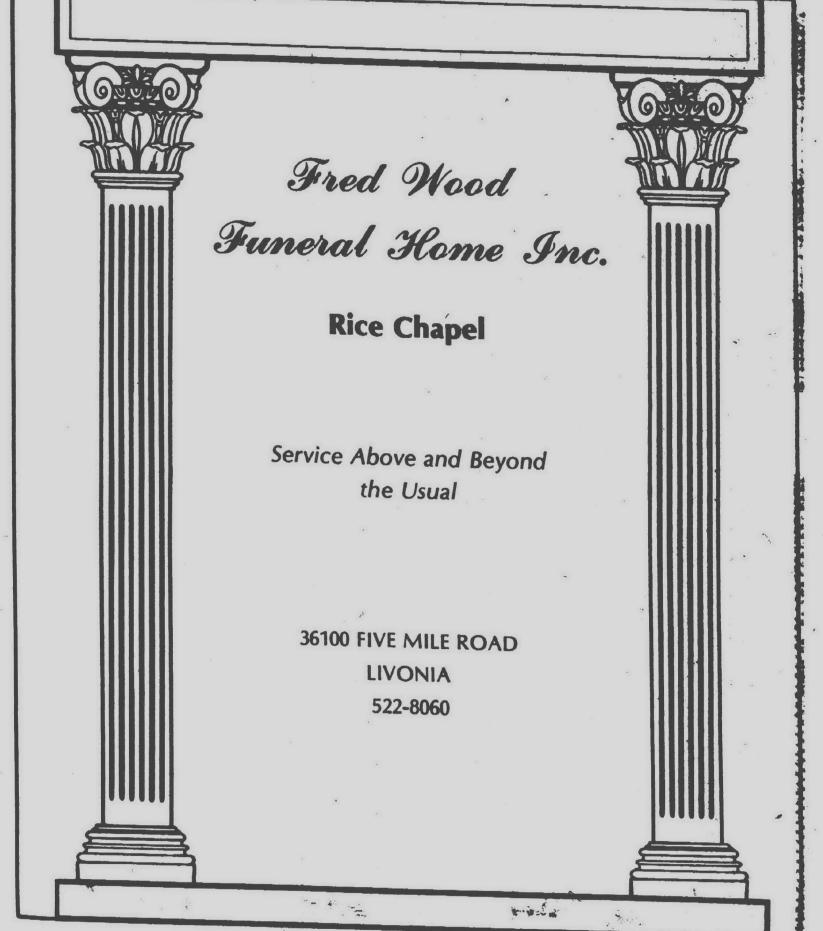

"Local taxpayers are overburdened in Michigan where only three per cent of public school budgets come from taxes, but Congress can spend much less on military hardware and provide up to one third of school budgets from federal taxes.

"I strongly support local control of schools and believe most federal aid should be in the form of general grants. Specific aid should be increased for special education and vocational programs.

"It seems incredible to me that and Labor."

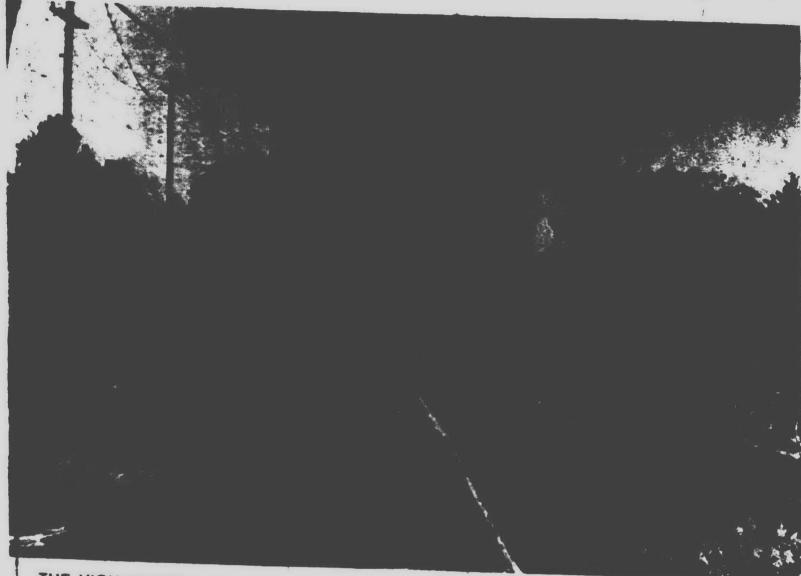

Esch supports only about half of the legislation designed to improve quality education. For example, he has voted to allow Nixon to cut some $400 million from education, health and welfare appropriations.

"In a district with more full time college students than any other district in this nation," she continued, "we need consistent representation on the House Committee on Education

The Plymouth Township fire department responded to 17 alarms, nine to assist the Canton department which received 15 alarms.

All off-duty firemen were called in when lines were reported down all over the area of Pilgrim Village and the Deer Creek apartments.

Michigan State Police say they received a report at 5 p.m. that a tornado had struck Pilgrim Village condominum on Lilley Road between Joy and Warren.

The high winds also damaged homes in the Windsor Park subdivision, west of Pilgrim Village.

At 5:30 p.m., Fire Chief Mel Paulin notified the State Police he had been advised that a tornado had hit the Deer Creek apartments.

Police report that 16 homes and condominiums had been damaged in the Pilgrim Village area and that 14 apartment roofs were blown completely off at Deer Creek. The roof on the Deer Creek clubhouse was also destroyed.

The fire departments were kept busy due to the number of power lines knocked down. Much of the area was without electric power for several hours.

Units of the sheriff department along with the State Police sealed off the areas to prevent injury to persons

PLYMOUTH TOWNSHIP — James Briggs, head of Plymouth Township's building department, has sent letters to all Plymouth Township candidates asking them not to put up campaign signs in the township.

Briggs, although citing the ordinances which prohibit such signs in his letters, asks for voluntary cooperation from the candidates.

He added however that he was having problems with Canton Township candidates who have been erecting signs on the north side of Joy Road (which is in Plymouth Township). There are Canton candidates' signs on the north side of Joy at Canton Center, Lilley and Tavistock. "With all that land they've got over there (in Canton) I don't see why they have to put them on our side (of Joy

City police launch park crackdown

By MAURIE WALKER

PLYMOUTH-Twelve persons, including two juveniles, were arrested in Kellogg Park over the weekend on charges ranging from consuming alcohol in a public place to violation of the Controlled Substance Act.

Police Chief Timothy Ford, who is withholding the names of the 12, said 10 were arrested Friday night and two Saturday.

Of the dozen, only one was a Plymouth resident, the others coming from Westland, Wayne, Dearborn, Northville Township, Plymouth and Canton townships.

Ford said as the result of complaints from residents, his department has had the park under surveillance for over a week.

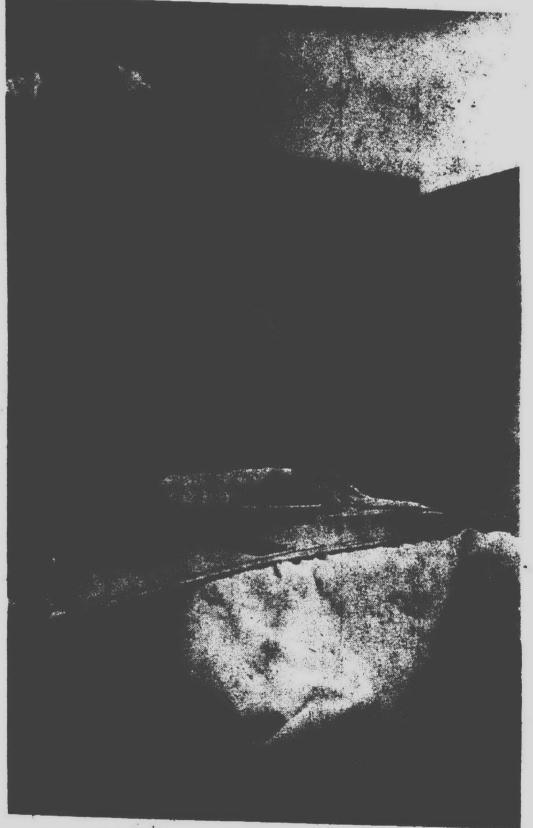

"We were not there to hassle the persons in the park but to warn them violation of the city ordinances will not be tolerated,", the chief said. He said the majority of young persons living in Plymouth recognize the problem and are cooperating. "They want to enjoy the park just as do the older persons," Ford said. "We gave the groups of persons adequate warning before cracking down."

Ford said the groups of younger persons in the park had been getting larger recently, especially on weekends.

"We will not let Kellogg Park become a Hines Park. Violators will be charged whenever and wherever we find them," he said.

Varsity hockey postponed

PLYMOUTH-Plymouth schools may have to wait until the 1975-76 school year before they can put hockey teams on Cultural Center ice, following a decision by the board of education Monday night to table the issue until September.

According to Supt. John M. Hoben, the city refused to allow the schools to use the ice for less than $35 per hour. The city leases the land on which the arena is built from the school district for $1 per year.

Hoben said that city officials claimed the city and the school district were "not contiguous," and they would therefore be subsidizing people in Plymouth and Canton townships if ice time were offered to the schools at a lower rate.

School administrators estimated that the $35 hourly fee could cost the district as much as $12,000 in the first season of interscholastic hockey.

An insider's view of DeHoCo

Most were in for 30 to 120 day sentences on a variety of charges from small larceny to non-support.

A little less bewildered than than the weekenders, the new men settled quickly down on their bunks-many, it appeared, had been inside before. A young black man about my age and height noticed me in my homeaded cell and asked me for a cigarette. He had already asked several others without success, and Number Hour advised me not to give him one, but I did anyway.

Cigarete, like any possessions al-lewed inside, are as good as money. ey are used for barter, not generaly given away. You have to get them on year yighters, if you have any, or ny them, if you can, twice a week om the prison commissary.

Lacking those resources, you can inoke hand-rolled cigarets made with a coarse, lung-ripping tobacco called "Chippewa" which is given to prison-

"What you in for?" he asked as he took the cigaret I offered him. "Traffic," I said, "You?"

He said his name was "T" and he had been ordered to jail for six months on a charge of non-support, apparently a very common offense among the inmate population of De-HoCo.

ever, that it wasn't because he didn't cleared. get along with his ex-wife that he was there. "It's that damn fren' of the court," he said. "My old lady is out right now tryin' to get up the $600 I owe her so she can give it to me, so I can give it back to her, so I can git out this place before I lose my job."

"T" said he was going to school while trying to work at Ford Stamping Plant and make child support payments all at the same time. If his wife was unable to get him released by Monday (and this was Saturday) he would lose his job and be unable to either go to school or help support his

"Damn," I said incredulously. "Yeah," he sighed. "It sure is hot in here—I wish I had a beer."

It was hot. My shirt was wet and I took it off. The cell block must have been nearly 100 degrees as the sun elimbed in the sky outside. The only breeze was down near the end of the block where some of the men were gathering around some card players. "T" and I moved down to watch and catch what air was available. Sumber Four, locked in his cell, poured a cup of water over his head and cursed the heat.

the block with so many men standing and sitting on bunks around the card players. But, the game was inter-tating—they played "Whist"—and one of the players, a thin middle-age black man with one eye and a big Afro with shocks of white, was telling prison stories. He had been in prisons for 22 years of his life.

· He said he had spent those years in ints" like Jackson and Marquette cuz ah keeled a man down on Haststreet when ah wuz young an' d." At 18, he said, he had been a mp "with three fine women" and ien another man had tried to take me of those women away "I shot him Tween his eyes."

He had been finally released from prison after serving a 20-year senance for murder and two years for a escape, but was now in DeHoCo on 2 120-day sentence for "frequenting in after-hours bar."

One of his prison stories, about being handcuffed standing up in a cell at Marquette Prison for weeks after maiming another prisoner with a garden tool, made the card players nervous. He had done it, he said, because the man was cheating at cards. His stories were vivid. Everyone beseved him.

With the stories, cards, and a bately visible baseball game on a ravaged Motorola TV, the sweaty afternoon passed. Jangling keys and the clunk of the cell block door signaled Trusties, neatly dressed in starched and pressed denims, brought metal trays of food into the block for the confinement prisoners and pushed them under the cell doors. The rest of us wre marched loosely down to the basement "dining room," a large area with long low wooden tables and whitewashed concrete walls decorated with hand-painted landscapes, ludi-crously out of place in the dungeon.

The food, predictably, was awful. I had once thought of the Army as the culinary bottom, but this fare plumbed new depths.

Water in a steel cup, mushy boiled potatoes, a chunk of reeking cabbage, and a slice of thick, greasy, not-quitefried balogna constituted a meal. I ate some of it, but most of the weekenders, knowing they would be out the next day, just drank their water. Marched back up to the block by our fat guard with his eternal reprimand, "tuck yur shirt-tails in," we settled in front of the cell block TV, hoping to take our minds off the heat.

Despite curses, threats, and detailed instruction from the confined inmates who had been dealing with the decrepit thing for weeks, no one seemed to be able to focus the TV or make it stop "rolling."

After some time, I took my turn at it, put the rabbit ears between the bars of the cell block, secured them "T" was quick to point out, how- with a shoelace, and the picture

Suddenly, I was something of a hero. And, I had a nickname-"TV Man." The next day, and the following weekend when I returned for the remainder of my sentence, everyone called me "TV Man."

One of the prisoners, whom everyone called "Giggles," hooted that when I got out, I could tell people I had learned a trade while I was in "the joint."

After a while, when the boredom began to get to many of us, some attempted to sleep. I found it nearly im-

Sunday morning was uneventful, and while I waited, now impatient to be released, I talked to Number Four and to some of the others about what they would do when they got out. Everyone wanted some of the same things—a cold beer, a woman, and a long walk. One young man said when I get out, I ain't never gonna wear blue jeans again."

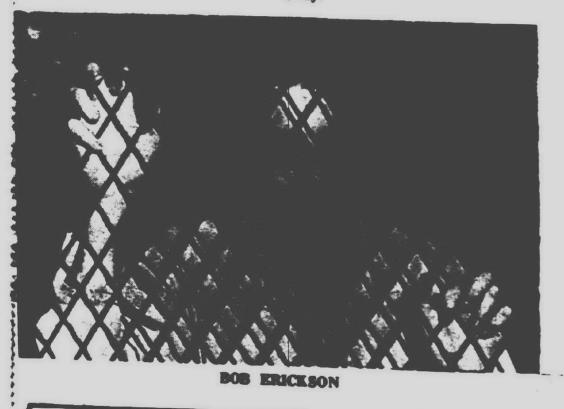

Some wanted drugs, though they said that if you had the money, you could get anything you wanted in the prison. Some said they would try to stay away from drugs. Number Four said he wouldn't have been there in the first place if he hadn't been "messed up on drugs." He only talked about going home.

I wrote down phone numbers and names of friends and relatives given me by several inmates, and promised to make the calls and deliver the messages as soon as I was released. "Tell my old lady I need $65 to get outta here," said one. Another wanted his mother to get him a transistor radio and to tell her he was OK. Number Four asked me to call his brother and find out how he was. I told him I would try, and would let him know when I returned the following week-

When the guard came to get us ("Awright, weekenders, let's move.") I gave my leftover cigarets to Giggles who had been choking on the Chippewa hand-rolled cigarets, and gratefully followed the guard to the release

Sweet corn: Field to table, PDQ

Keep sweet corn cool and moist (do not soak) and use as soon as possible. As fresh corn ages, its sugar content turns to starch. At room temperature, corn loses more than half its sugar in 24 hours. Store corn briefly in the husk or huskless in a moisture -vaporproof container.

Choose ears that are well-filled with bright, plump, juicy kernels, just firm enough to slightly resist pressure. If the milk is thick, the corn will make a better cream-style than whole kernel product.

Choose husks that are green and wound tightly on the cob. Silk should be shiny and dark brown, not dry. Slight insect damage can be cut out.

When you harvest lettuce from the the ground to produce more leaves. garden there are two ways you can do Others pull up the entire clump and it. Some people pull off a few leaves cut off the leaves, but rather than toss at a time, leaving the parent plant in the roots out, they replant the root.

This is a fine idea because the roots, if watered well, will send up all new growth and within a couple weeks you'll have more leaves. It takes a lot less time for new leaves this way than if you planted seed. Lettuce likes a lot of water, so if you want a lot of juicy, tender leaves keep yours watered.

Did you know that an old English farmers' remedy for insomnia is a tea made by simmering three or four chopped lettuce leaves in a cup and a half of water? After 20 minutes the tea is strained and taken as a bedtime beverage.

SUMMER'S A GOOD time to get stung in your back yard, by bugs. Here are a few tips on how to avoid insect stings:

Don't use any hair net sprays or perfurnes before going into the garden. These attract wasps and hornets.

Items such as soft drinks and ripened fruits and scraps of meat attract wasps and hornets, also bees. Keep sweet drinks covered and pick fruits as they ripen. Dispose of rotten

If a stinging insect lands on your body, swiftly brush it away. Don't slap it against you. Slapping the insect will trap it and cause it to sting. In most cases, if you stand still and stay quiet, the pest will fly away.

If you spot an insect nest, use a high-pressure aerosol spray against it. The aerosol should contain pyrethrin, an instant knock-down insecticide. Best time to do it is in evening when the pests are all home.

President Nixon doesn't have a great deal of support in the 2nd Congressional District, according to an opinion survey poll released recently by incumbent U.S. Rep. Marvin L. Esch (R-Ann/Arbor).

The questionnaire is sent each year to residents of the 2nd District, which includes Livonia and Plymouth. This year, some 25,000 persons responded.

Of those returning quesionnaires, only 29 per cent felt Nixon should remain in office while 39 per cent felt otherwise. Of the 39 per cent, 17 per cent felt the president should resign and 22 per cent felt he should be impeached by the House and tried by the Senate. Some 33 per cent felt the House Judiciary Committee should conduct a thorough investigation to determine if there are grounds for impeachment.

When asked if a congressman should judge whether the president should be impeached before the judiciary committee releases its report. 82 per cent answered no and 18 per cent yes.

SEVENTY-EIGHT per cent of 2nd District residents replying felt the energy crisis was manufactured. Of those who did. 84 per cent felt it was done by oil companies with 26 per cent feeling it was collusion between the oil firms and government. COR-RECTION:

SEVENTY-EIGHT per cent of 2nd District residents replying felt the energy crisis was manufactured. Of those who did, 84 per cent felt it was done by oil companies with 26 per cent feeling it was collusion between the oil firms and government.

Respondents felt the government's role in the energy crisis should be: collection and monitoring of oil company data, 61 per cent; establishing public ownership of energy suppliers, including oil companies, 39 per cent; less interference in the free market system, 29 per cent; and, reducing or delaying of environmental standards. 26 per cent.

CAMPAIGN REFORMS given support were: a strict limit on individual contributions, 62 per cent; strict limit on campaign expenditures. 73 per cent; public financing of all federal campaigns. 24 per cent; and public financing of presidential campaigns, 17 per cent.

Another 53 per cent favored establishment of one campaign committee and requiring full disclosure of all contributions and expenditures by that committee. Some 35 per cent favored a prohibition on all group giving. Half of the respondents felt the defense budget should be reduced, 24 per cent felt it should be increased, and 26 per cent felt it should remain the same.

Budget cuts were supported in these areas: weapons systems, 43 per cent; overseas troops, 73 per cent; and military aid. 73 per cent. Some 51 per cent felt the civilian functions of the Army Corps of Engineers should be transferred to the Environmental Protection Agency. Forty-nine per cent disagreed.

FIFTY-SEVEN per cent were against extending the president's authority to implement wage and price

On expenditure priorities, respondents said the following percentages of the federal budget should be devoted to: defense, 21 per cent; education, 17 per cent; environment, 12 per cent; energy, 11 per cent, welfare, nine per cent; transportation, nine per cent; space exploration, six per cent; and foreign aid, five per cent.

Underground railway line ran through Plymouth

PLYMOUTH Plymouth was an important station on the "Central Michgan" line of the Underground fallway prior to the Civil War. Exactus Hassey, one of the first setters in Plymouth, was the chief contactor of the line.

The Underground Railway was a system set up in the northern states to help runeway slaves make their way to Canada and freedom. Railway terms were used in referring to the system. Routes were known as "lines," stopping places were called "stations," and those who helped the slaves were called "conductors."

Although said to have existed earlier, the system did not spread in the 14 northern states until 1630. The first slave rode the Michigan Underground about 1829 and the last in 1862.

Outstanding nationally in the movement were Levi Coffin, of Cincinnati, and an escaped slave, Harriet Tubman, known among the slaves as "Moses." Erastus Hussey was one of the Underground Railway's best known leaders in Michigan. Like most of the operators in the system, he was a Quaker and an abolitionist.

Hussey, born in Cayuga County. N.Y. in 1800, hought land in Plymouth Township in 1824 but did not become a resident here until 1826. He took an active part in community affairs, becoming highway commissioner 1828-29, school imspector in 1831, assessor in 1832, and school commissioner in 1833.

In 1833, Hussey moved to Battle Creek where he became a successful merchant. In 1840, he was approached by a Quaker from Indiana who asked him to take charge of the station in Battle Creek.

Most of the slaves who escaped through Michigan came from Missouri or Kentucky. Their goal was Detroit, from which they were ferried into Canada. The terminal in Detroit. was the livery stable of a hotel, the Temperance House, operated by abolitionist Seymour Finney. The Temperance House stood at the corner of Woodward and State and its stable was at Griswold and State.

Many of the slaves who reached Canada were given small farms provided by philanthropic and abolition societies in the United States and Canada. Colonies of blacks were established near Windsor, Chatham and Amherstburg. Western Ontario still has communities with a substantial number of descendants of slaves who escaped by way of Plymouth and De-Erastus Hussey was interviewed by Charles E. Barnes in 1885. Barnes' article in the "Michigan Pioneer and Historical Collection" tells, in Hussey's own words, his experiences as leader of the "Central Michigan" line.

"Our work was conducted with the greatest secrecy. After crossing the Ohio River, the fugitives separated, but came together on the main line and were conducted through Indiana and Michigan. Stations were established every 15 or 16 miles ... The stationkeepers received no pay. The work was done gratuitously and from principle. We were working for humanity."

The route came into Michigan at the famous Quaker settlement near Cassopolis. Other stations were Schoolcraft, Climax, Battle Creek, Marshall, Albion, Parma, Jackson, Michigan Center, Leoni, Grass Lake, Francisco, Dexter. Scio, Ann Arbor and Geddes.

"I can't tell the names of the agents at Ypsilanti or Plymouth," Hussey told Barnes. "At the former place the route branched, leaving the Michigan Central for Plymouth. Sometimes they went to Plymouth from Ann Arber. From Plymouth they followed the River Rouge to Swartsburg, then to Detroit." Hussey estimated that he Personally helped about 2,000 slaves to escape.

It was Plymouth's loss when Hussey moved to Battle Creek. In addition to his humanitarian efforts on behalf of slaves, Hussey was a valuable citizen in other ways. In 1844, he was a presidential elector for the Abolition ticket. He helped to organize the Free-Soil Party, formed in 1848 to oppose the extension of slavery into the territories. He also published a Free-Soil news-

Police seeking jewelry thief

By MAURIE WALKER

REDFORD-The bandit, who last Saturday robbed the Rose Jewelry store at 25485 Grand River in 7-Grand Shopping Center of an estimated $67,000, is still the subject of an intensive search by Redford Township police.

Described as being between 20 and 25 years of age, the bandit weighs 150 to 170 pounds, is six-feet tall, of medium build.

He had a mustache that curved around his upper lip and wore a small "pork pie" style hat with the brim turned down. He wore a blue shirt and pants and carried a small, blue steel revolver.

Police say the bandit entered the store about 5:50 p.m., walked over to the ladies ring counter and sat down. He asked the clerk to see some rings. As the clerk was taking them out of the how case, he pulled a gun.

The clerk was ordered not to move and to put all the trays of rings in a brown paper bag the bandit was car-into the back room where the bandit took $450 from a cash register. A second clerk was also ordered into the back room and both were told to "stay there or I'll blast you."

After putting the nine trays of rings into the bag, the clerk was ordered

Woman killed cleaning filter

REDFORD-A Redford Township woman was electrocuted while cleaning the swimming pool in her back yard at 25396 Ivanhoe Monday after-

Mrs. Ruth Kuhn, 52, died in Redford Community Hospital where she had been taken by the township firemen who attempted to revive her at the

Mrs. Kuhn was reportedly standing in the pool cleaning the pool's filter which had not been disconnected.

Her death raised questions about an ordinance governing construction and operation of portable pools in the township. Although Redford once had an ordinance to guarantee the safety of pool owners, it was revoked because it was unenforceable.

Jack Madden, director of public services, said it is difficult to write ane enforce ordinances that govern pools which can be dismantled and removed. Redford does have an ordinance governing permanent pools.

By W.W.EDGAR

Several hundred choice bits of property around the state, once used as old time family burial plots, are providing a problem for the State Cemetery Commission.

In most cases these plots are so old there no longer is any member of the family still living to establish ownership.

As a result these old grounds are abandoned, become prime targets for vandalism and are allowed to grow up in weeds. In many cases they are a drag on a community.

"WE ARE AT a loss," George Bruce, executive secretary of the State Cemetery Commission, stated, "to determine ownership. Ordinarily the next of kin would be the rightful owner, but in these cases the entire family has passed on and we can't establish ownership.

"It sure would be a great help if someone could be found to take over these plots and relieve the problem."

He pointed out that, under the law, the community in which the cemetery is located is held responsible for its maintenance. But, in many cases, these are not licensed cemeteries such as we have today, but just old family burial plots.

One of the prime examples is the old abandoned cemetery on North Territorial Road in Plymouth Township. This is just off the corner of Ridgewood Road and, for years, all attempts to establish ownership have failed.

Meanwhile the plot, little less than an acre of heavily wooded land lies idle. But for the beautiful trees it would be just another plot of weeds. "It sure would make a beautiful building site," Supervisor J.D. McLa-ren stated, "but ownership should be established-and that's a problem." FROM TIME TO time Plymouth Township residents have attempted to establish ownership and failed. The last was the late Mrs. Sterling Eaton, whose residence (now occupied by Sen. Carl Pursell) is at the top of an adjoining hill.

Meanwhile the old family plot has been the victim of vandals as all the grave markers are missing and the mausoleum has been destroyed.

"I can recall helping my father disinter bodies out there," Edwin (Bud) Schrader, the Plymouth funeral director, confided, "But don't ask me where they were taken-I just don't remember, it was so long ago."

Several years ago, John McEwen, then township supervisor, approved a study of the plot but very little information was obtained and the State Cemetery Association, when appealed to, admitted it was at a loss to establsh ownership.

Some of the facts of the McEwen study uncovered included the establishment of the cemetery on Nov. 26, 1832. At that time Henry Tibbetts sold the plot to one John Tibbetts for the establishment of a cemetery.

Then, in 1938, the bureau of taxation had it listed on the rolls as a cemetery but ruled it exempt from taxes. Between these dates there are many and varied twists and turns in the identity of the owners.

WHILE THE old cemetery was started by the Tibbetts it gained new owners through the years and the last known identification was the old Shearer Farm cemetery.

Paul Albright, one time safety director in Plymouth Township, did much of the research during the McEwen regime and in one report stated the last known burial there was 90 years ago.

At one time-the date unknown-it was known as the Lee Farm and the people known to have been buried there included Mr. Lee, his grandfather, Martin Lee, and three children, Anne, Charles and Walter. The grandfather's burial was traced back to 1865

In the years that followed all trace of the families and the real ownership have been lost- much to the discontent of Plymouth Township officials and the State Cemetery Associ-

But "Walter Mitty" visions of panning for gold along the shores of an out-of-the-way creek or roughing it in a rustic cabin in the wilderness during Dad's two-week vacation no longer apply: The days when a family's vision of a vacation home was little more than a covered frame or a poorly constructed bungalow have largely passed into history.

IN MANY WAYS today's vacation homes are more accurately described as second homes. They are built with heat and air conditioning systems for vear-around living.

Since their owners often consider moving into them permanently when they retire, the ability of a second home to conserve energy becomes of prime importance.

'Careful planning not only enables the prospective buyer of a second home to avoid pitfalls, but also lays the groundwork for years of comfort and relaxed enjoyment for his family

Homeowners easy-care walls

Despite all the talk about "getting back to nature" there's one modern advantage no homeowner is likely to give up. That is low-maintenance building materials.

Homeowners who no longer need to spend time and money on periodic house maintenance are not eager to return to the "good old days" of oldfashioned chores. Their preference for easy-care homes is reflected in an increasing use of pre-finished wall covering, such as vinyl veneer paneling which requires no attention other than an occasional damp wiping to keep it looking new.

A leading paneling manufacturer reports that a recent remodeling survey by a national consumer magazine shows paneling to be the most popular wall covering for dens, family and recreation rooms.

Faust asks end to 'ludicrous' pollution fees

Legislation introduced in the Mich- lic agencies," said Faust, whose disigan Senate by Sen. William Faust (D-Westland) would, if adopted, save taxpayers from being billed twice for the state's air pollution control program.

The measure prohibits the Michigan Air Pollution Control Commission from charging air pollution control fees to governmental agencies or to agencies or authorities established by governmental units.

"While the commission has exempted many governments and pub-trict includes Garden City and Westland, "a few glaring exceptions have meant some Michigan taxpayers are forced to finance the cost of the pollution surveillance program on the state end and to pay for the surveillance fee charged governments and the public agencies at the other end.

"This just doesn't make good

One of the exceptions cited by Faust is the Central Wayne County

Sanitation Authority in Dearborn Heights which serves Westland, Wayne, Garden City, Inkster, Dearborn Heights, Allen Park and Taylor.

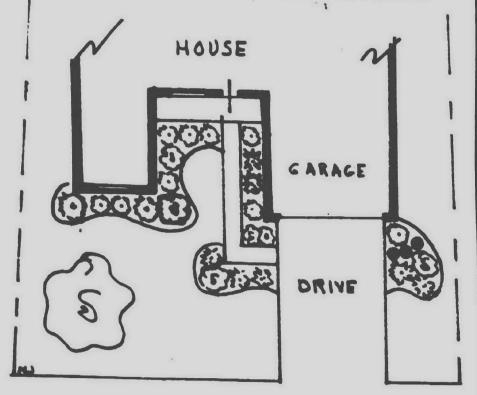

"Every year." Faust says, "the authority is being assessed an air pollution surveillance by the state. I think it's ludicrous for the state to insist on that charge while most other municipalities and governmental agencies have been exempted. My proposal will end that kind of discrimination by the State Air Pollution Control Commission.

'Chinatown' is shocking success

By JAN WILLIAMS

Now I know, thanks to director Roman Polanski and his latest film "Chinatown."

I also discovered what Jack Nicholson looks like with his left nostril slit up to his eyeball. On top of all that, John Huston, director of such films as "The Bible," rapes his daughter, portrayed by Miss Dunaway who always seems to wind up on the short end in this movie.

(or maybe because of them), "Chinatown" turned out to be one heck of a of the goings on in the Los Angeles movie. It's even worth standing in a long line for tickets and sitting in a stuffy, crowded theater. Another bonus for movie-goers—theaters are In spite of all those shocking things charging regular admission.

Not easy to enchant voters now

The state legislature adjourned last week for its bi-annual spasm of summer campaigning.

The generally positive results of the past session by the lawmakers were marred by the lastminute failure to come to agreement on any kind of campaign reform legislation. This is very regrettable, since by the time the new legislature gets around to doing anything concrete on the idea, public pressure derived from the Watergate scandals will most likely have evaporated.

One very useful piece of legislation was passed but essentially neglected by the press. It is a bill to help Michigan industry remodel and purchase new equipment through a system of property tax breaks.

SINCE 1967, Michigan has shown a relative decline in investment in new manufacturing plants and industrial equipment. This decline in business investment is a major factor bringing the state's unemployment rate -- currently 10.3% -- to its highest point in 13 years.

Both businessmen and economists have argued that business investment in Michigan has lagged because firms lack incentives to modernize or restore their obsolete plants instead of relocating in other states which have lower property taxes or other incentives to promote business in-

This is no small matter, and the concern extends to the suburbs as well as core cities. For example, some years ago when Plymouth's biggest employer, Daisy Air Rifle, picked up stakes and moved to the South, the city had a very tough time getting through the period before other industrial growth took up the slack.

ACCORDING TO State Rep. John Markes, who serves Westland and Livonia, the law would permit local government units to establish "plant rehabilitation districts" in areas containing obsolete industrial plants and equipment. The owner of such a facility would apply to the local government unit to freeze its current tax assessments in exchange for a solid commitment to modernize or replace the facility.

If granted, the taxes on real and personal property would be frozen for approximately 12 years. An exemption certificate would be issued by the State Tax Commission and a special tax called the "industrial facility tax" would be levied on the facility; the amount of the special tax for replaced or restored industrial property would be determined by multiplying a given year's total tax rate in the community by the state equalized value of the plant in the year prior to replacement or restoration.

What all this means, according to Markes, is that local businesses with old plant or equipment would be given an incentive - a tax freeze for 12 years, at a time when taxes are going up steadily ·· to modernize.

It was discovered later that Smeekens was getting more than $30,000 a year from the company as its president and financial advisor. ONE WAY to uncover Smeekens-like situations is to have officials and their opponents reveal their income at election time, or on a regular paigning for more open government and improved campaign reform laws, has asked state Legislators to volunteer their income so voters will know sive to their problems.

SUCH MODERNIZATION does two important

1) It provides, generally, more jobs, and it keeps those jobs in the local community. 2) It increases productivity, since new plants and equipment are generally more efficient than old ones. Productivity increases, incidentally, are probably the only long run defense against inflation.

The new law is very important to suburban development and maturation, as Markes points out.

If our suburbs are ever to become more than bedroom communities, they will need to develop and sustain business enterprises right at home. Many suburbs in this area -- Livonia, Birmingham, Plymouth, Farmington, and Rochester among them -- have substantial numbers of older industrial plants. The continued growth of these suburbs depends in large part on the continued existence of these businesses.

The new law is a far-sighted, flexible and sensible approach to the problem of how to keep jobs in Michigan and keep our suburbs growing.

R. T. Thompson writes

Time to pitch in, help cleanup

The month of July officially has been designated as "pitch in" month, a period when every Michigan community is being asked to pitch in and make communities more inviting through the cooperative efforts of the citizenry.

The primary theme of the campaign is to have everyone pitch in to cleanup every section of the state, make it something worth seeing rather than a drab, litter covered area.

One of the most serious threats to the natural beauty and splendor of the state is the thoughtless and needless act of littering local and urban sec-

Thanks to the efforts of such organizations as Keep Michigan Beautiful and the various groups in the individual cities such as Southfield, Livonia, Plymouth, Farmington and Redford efforts have been made to beautify and cleanup in the past few years.

For instance the Jaycees in Plymouth, Northville, Livonia and Redford Township have joined forces more than once to try and cleanup the Rouge River.

Through their members with the assistance of Boy Scouts and other groups, the Jaycees have done their bit, pitching in to cleanup the debris that collects in the meandering river. Sure it's a thankless job and one that could be started over almost as soon as a drive is completed, but it is an effort to make the area cleaner and more beau-

That's what the sponsors of Pitch In month hope to accomplish. They hope everyone in Michigan gets involved and pitches in to help make Michigan a cleaner and more beautiful Great Lakes state.

With the cooperation of all a great deal can be accomplished. But it requires everyone getting out in the hot sun and making his and her contribution to the joint effort.

It doesn't mean that one has to work to the point of exhaustion but rather a little assistance here and there ... it is remarkable what can be accomplished in a month. Then we would have a state all would be proud of, one in which all of the natural beauty of a beautiful state would be on display.

Today's youngsters need to learn values

There's an old cliche about being sick and tired of people who know the price of everything, but the value of nothing.

Maybe this appeals to me now, because supposedly when you approach middle-age, you discover that you are not immortal, and have deep thoughts about how you want to spend the rest of your life and whether the first half of your life

In our competitive materialistic society our kids are taught that they are "out" unless they have a 10-speed bike, fiberglass skis, and live in a house that has a surplus of bathrooms.

MANY OF OUR residents are self-made people who developed themselves into successful by HANK HOGAN individuals in spite of the economic condition in which they were brought into the world.

Some of these same people when they reach the financial level where they can afford most luxuries, continually say their kids are going to have all those things they never had as a child.

Though the philosophy is commendable, where would they be if their parents could have afforded those luxuries?

The ambition and incentive that makes them people worth knowing, derived out of their coping with deprivation, will be lost to their offspring.

IT CREATES another problem for their kids if they plan to live in our community after they leave the family nest to set up housekeeping on their own.

A person starting off in the business world usually starts off at the bottom, where compensation is commensurate with the position.

If the kids' values are based on how much; things cost, they are going to be very unhappy in early life when they discover they can't afford the best there is, which is what they are used to.

If somehow, and it is always easier to see. what is wrong than be specific in prescribing how to cure the malady, our kids were imbued with values of a moral nature when they were young." and impressionable, they would be happy in improving themselves regardless of how much money they had.

IS A PERSON happier in a new car which he treats with gay abandon, or an older model which, is shiny and in good running condition that he, somehow had to help purchase?

Is a person a better skier because he has the best boots and bindings, or a credit to his community because his parents could afford to buy him a pony?

I know the people I like to be around are those who have overcome the need to tell you how; much money they've earned and are truly interested in the needs of others.

If this were instilled in children when they are young, the road of life would be easier for them.

OBITUARIES Recent survey indicates 'New Majority' was a myth

In 1972, Dearborn, like other traditionally Democratic strongholds voted heavily for presidential candidate Richard Nixon. Many political analysts attributed the switchover to an emerging "new majority" of Democrats and Republicans.

Now, a recent public survey of about 500 Dearbornites shows that the 'new majority" never existed.

Dr. Ronald Stockton, Dr. Francis Wayman, University of Michigan Dearborn assistant professors of political science, along with a group of UM-D assistant professors of political science and UM-D students, conducted a comprehensive survey which termed Democratic support for the Republican presidential candidate in 1972 "a short-term defection based on evaluation of the two candidates' personalities, not the issues."

STOCKTON EXPLAINED that the survey, which questioned participants on a wide range of controversial issues, hardly insures smooth sailing for Democrats or Republicans.

"Conditions for realignment and new issues are emerging," said Stockton, "but so far the traditional Democrat hasn't found the Republican party the best source for solutions to new problems."

Dividing respondents in terms of Nixon Democrats (those who voted for Nixon in 1972) and McGovern Democrats (voted for McGovern in 1972), the surveyors discovered that Democratic defections were on short-term SSLIPS

Statistically, 55 per cent of the Dearbonites questioned still classified themselves as Democrats, 28 per cent as Republicans, and 17 per cent as independents.

Party identification had not changed in the past five years for 80 per cent. The Dearborn residents, who Stockton and Wayman consider typical of Eighty-four per cent favored lowcost medical care; 69 per cent, loans to needy students; 69 per cent, guaranteed employment; 63 per cent housing loans to those in need, and 62 per cent, a guaranteed standard of living.

IN THE AREA of social and racial attitudes, the responses were mixed. Seventy-five per cent favored capital punishment and 90 per cent agreed that judges are too soft on criminals, but only 16 per cent opposed gun registration and 70 per cent felt that every woman has the right to have an abor-Most respondents said the best advice to blacks who want better jobs is education, (51 per cent), while 49 per cent attributed the high black unemployment rate to lack of training, 13 per cent to discrimination, 12 per cent to low reliability, and 27 per cent to lower intelligence.

"Some of these figures suggest that, if Dearborn is a good predicator of much of American society, the Democratic party could well be polarized on racial and law and order issues in 1976," Stockton said, "although the Democrats are held together by a fundamental agreement on economic

A successful Democratic or Republican presidental ticket in '76, he predicts, "would have to focus on issues which cut across a wide spectrum of concerns."

A SURVEY of 27 Democratic and Republican party leaders (all unelected) carried on simultaneously by Stockton and Wayman's Public Opinion Study Group, reveals that in areas of social concern, the Democratic leaders appeared more conservative than the general sample.

For example, only 54 per cent of the most nothern suburban working-class Democratic leaders favored abortion, while 85 per cent of the Republican leaders showed approval.

On the traditional "New Deal" issues, the Democratic leaders reacted as expected, with 92 per cent in favor of guaranteed employment as opposed to a 54 per cent figure for Republicans.

To Stockton and Wayman, the diversity of responses among the Democratic leaders emphasized that "Democrats are more of a coalition. The leadership of the Republican party, at the intermediate level, is far more homogeneous."

Ninety-two per cent of the Republican leaders ranked themselves as "middle class," while only 54 per cent of the Democratic leaders classified themselves accordingly.

Who would be the strongest presidential candidate in 1976? Dearbornites, asked to rank political personalities on a scale of 0 to 100, gave the highest rating for a possible Republican presidential contender to Gerald Ford, 61.7, and for a Democratic contender to George Wallace, 57.3.

Beating the high cost of living has become almost a national game.

Shoppers in the supermarkets discuss the upward price changes since been familiar with cutting corners. the previous week. In small groups And even in the good years which folwives exchange ideas on how they can cut costs and still provide the basic necessities for their families. Wage earners commiserate on inadequate cost-of-living increases and those on fixed incomes bemoan the decrease in their living standards.

"Rising costs are hitting seniors harder than anyone else," says Mrs. Mary Naboychik, Livonia senior citizen coordinator. While many of them who are living on Social Security incomes and have had two raises recently, it still does not meet the expenses which they incur monthly, particularly if they are still maintaining a home.

Those in the senior citizen housing often fare better because rent is based on a percentage of income.

Many singles in their late teens have general concerns, but because they have only been active consumerbuyers for a few years, their experience is limited by their years.

On the other hand many a housewife can remember when the five pound bag of sugar which now costs $1.55 was available several years ago for 50 cents. She is paying $16 a pair for her children's shoes which only a few years ago were about $12.

Families with children feel the pinch because they do a major portion daling. of the food and commodity buying. They're the ones with the children who outgrow clothes in less than a Kris, 8, and Mark, 3. year, have three and four bedroom check-out counter without any luxury or convenience foods

Seniors who were raising their families in the depression years have long lowed, they maintained the careful saving habits and distained being party to the throw-away generations. Now, there is a new wave of savers, people who think before they spend and try to get their money's worth. Mothers of young growing families are actively involved in economizing and they talked about it while their children took swimming lessons at the Family Y in Livenia and the Northwest Y in Redford Township. Mrs. Sirkka Gudan of Livonia says the bicycle is an important way of economizing in her household. "For anything under two miles, we're not driving we're bicycling. She and her children, Kenneth, 10, and Kristin, 7, bike to the Y for swimming lessons, the Livonia Mall for shopping and the nearby branch library. "Whenever we go to a drive-in. all four of use ride our bikes."

Not only do they all feel better, but the bike riding for all short trips, Mrs. Gudan estimates, saves about a tank of gas a week.

The only disadvantages, and she hesitates to label it a disadvantage, is that she must plan ahead and allot adequate transportation time.

The gas savings is about $10 a week meaning the Gudans will save several hundred dollars a year if they keep pe-up $60 worth of groceries at the vegetable garden for the first time this summer. It's a family project.

Mrs. Huysken has the jars and lids ready when the time comes to can the homegrown tomatoes and other vegetables.

"I'll be doing fruit, too," she says. "I saw a story in the paper this spring about renting an apple tree. I paid $35 and when my apple tree is ready, the orchard will call me. It will yield about 10 bushels and I'm collecting recipes for ways to can apples including applesauce."

She has plans for peaches, too. "My folks have peach trees and in the past when they gave us peaches we used to just eat them. Not this year. This year I'll be freezing them for winter."

The Wayne Co-op Extension Service office reports calls on canning and preserving foods are coming in by the Home economist Johne Criner estimates, "Almost every call we get between now and September will be about food preservation."

Her concern is that while the interest in canning is booming, many of the oldtime methods are not recommended. The extension service publishes canning instructions and puts on a weekly demonstration at the Eastern market in Detroit.

Mrs. Jan Mirza of Livonia says she is a comparison shopper. She reads the newspaper ads for best buys be-fore she does her weekly shopping.

She's also found there's a savings when she makes clothes for her threeyear-old daughter, Farah. Mrs. Mirza has been successful in finding attractive remnants for Farah's clothes at Minnisota Fabrics.

She adds with a smile, "One more

Mrs. Mirza bakes her own bread. The cost savings per loaf may be slight, but she adds wheat germ to her whole wheat flour and feels hers is far more nutritional for the money

Mrs. Joan Campbell of Livonia has joined a consumers association. The mitial fee was $26 plus $3.20 per month for two years. After that the family will be lifetime members. The office buys specific items which members call about, calling to find the lowest price.

Mrs. Campbell found an air-conditioner she wanted with a $185 price tag. She gave the association the make and model number and after checking they found her air-conditioner for $160.

About once a year the Campbells, parents and two daughters, buy a side of beef which they have cut to table size portions for freezing.

Mrs. Ed Wilson of Livonia says she tries to do her grocery shopping when there are sales. She buys in larger quantities which are cheaper per pound, has it cut to meal size for her and her husband and freezes it.

Mrs. Wilson says she has no special secrets for cutting costs, "I just don't waste and I cut corners wherever possible."

Energy for cooking is one of her corners. She cooks as many things as possible in the same pot. She frequently combines peas and potatoes. If she uses her oven for one item, she will plan to use is for everything.

Mrs. Wilson says if she warms up a meal, she will put it all in foil to heat at the same time.

Because she always has beans from her mother's garden, Mrs. Wilson frequently makes bean soup. She buys a thin slice of ham and chunks it in the soup, serves it with a salad for a nourishing one-burner meal.

The Wilsons are active in the Livonia Senior Citizen group.

Mrs. Martha Berna of Detroit talked while several of her six children took a swimming lesson at the Northwest Y.

"We go out less than we used to. We don't go to movies much anymore and we're not using baby sitters as often."

She says she used to buy her little children about six play outfits each summer. This year she bought fewer and is laundering more frequently.

Mrs. Linda Page of Farmington says that on top of rising costs, her d took a sizeable cut in pay. She countered to stretch the shortened budget by buying a pressure cooker to do more canning, making more clothes for children, going to rummage sales and trading maternity and haby clothes with her friends. She has a vegetable garden for the third year.

Trading baby clothes is a very usual occurrence and a good money saver since they are used for such a short time and prices on layette items have risen sharply.

In addition to canning peas, green beans, lima beans and tomatoes from her own garden, Mrs. Page has been going out to pick her own fruit to freeze.

She says, "We don't eat as much meat as we used to. I don't buy roasts

Mrs. Sam Giaimo of Detroit saves by sewing and just not going shop-She says she can make a nice pair of slacks from a yard and a quarter of fabric for about $6. The same quality slacks ready made would cost between $15 and $20. Mrs. Pat Gulock was knitting a

"I find, too," she says, "that most people I know aren't taking vacations this year. Instead they're planning short weekend trips.'

Mr. and Mrs. Gulock plan to do the same. They have budgeted $125 to take their four older children to Toronto for a weekend.

Her friends don't believe it can be done, but she says, "I know I can do it for $125."

She describes her plans, "I'll prepare two meals to take with us. The science museum sells a family ticket for $3.50. I'll take the small boxes of cereal and Tang for breakfast and we'll buy food to have lunch in the

Today's society may be described as throwaway, and it's true that we don't know how to conserve and make do the way our grandmothers

But I'm convinced the instinct to save is still very much with us. It's just that it takes a lot of different forms.

For instance, I may suggest to the girls that a room-cleaning would be in order, with maybe some discarding of some of the hoarded items that cause the clutter.

And then, when finally the hoeing out is accomplished, I check the pile of discards. "Somebody might want that sometime," I find myself saying, and stow it away in a different spot.

As possessor of the least green thumb around, I long ago decided that growing food was a false economy.

One of my friends feels this way too, actually, but this spring the high price of fruit led her to hire a sprayer for an apple tree neglected several years. She figures she's so far spent about $40 on the project and that by fall she will be eating very expensive apples.

Another friend was horrified when I made ready to throw out the candles used on a birthday cake. "We always save them until they are stubs," she said.

With me, the saver instinct comes out when I'm clearing up after dinner. My thrifty soul won't let me throw away any small dab of food-until, of course, it has been in the refrigeratorfor a couple of weeks.

Then there's the matter of paper bags. You need some, of course, but my family seems to go to extremes. Every one that comes into the house is saved, and finally I announce I'm throwing some out so there will be room for us.

They humor me. They don't even mention those stacks and stacks of old boxes I have stashed away in the attic.

Women on the Go

Busy Westland resident now serving on board

BY MARGARET MILLER

There are plenty of reasons why Gail McKnight is pleased to be one of the first women named by the Westland City Council to serve on a major municipal board.

As an ardent Westland booster, she likes the idea of serving her community on the zoning board of appeals.

As a homemaker, she's gratified to note the "common sense approach" of the board that decides the kind of construction Westland residents may have.

As a former newspaper reporter and part-time worker in political campaigns, she likes being on the side of governmental news- making.

And as a law student she's sure it's going to be an invaluable look at government in action.

GAIL McKNIGHT, now 28 and winner of Westland's first citizen of the month award this June, was named with Mrs. Marge Nyman to serve on the zoning board of appeals.

Attending their first meeting last week, they surprised seasoned members of the board-as well as themselves- by "plunging right in and making motions. From my newspaper days." Mrs.

McKnight said. "I had some idea of the board's function as a sort of court of last resort for both city and citi-

"But it was most interesting to see how it operates-largely on common sense and let's-take-a-look-and-see.

The matter before the board at her first meeting was the case of a homeowner who wanted to build a second garage to house his boat.

"His appeal was denied." Mrs. the fall I'll arrange classes so the zon-McKnight said. "The board ruled that attaching a second garage on the house would leave only five feet between his projected garage and the next building-not enough to get fire equipment in should it be necessary. The decision also was that it was not a case of undue hardship for him to keep the boat in his large back yard.

the public safety factor is a big one."

THE NEW BOARD MEMBER said she had told her professor at Wayne State University law school that she would be missing the class that night to perform her civic duty "and she agreed it would be appropriate."

"It's the only time there will be a ing board night is free."

Law school classes have been a big part of Gail McKnight's life since last September, when she decided to follow the career lead of her husband, Richard C. McKnight, former newspaperman and now attorney.

IT'S SOMETHING I've wanted to do ever since my husband started law "The reason for asking variances school," she said. "Of course I waited seems to be considered carefully and until he finished—a family budget can't stand more than one law stu-

> During those years, too, the McKnights adopted two children, Teddy, now five, and Molly, two.

"My husband has encouraged me to go to school," she added. "He said I'd be home with small children for several more years, and I might as well comflict." Mrs. McKnight added. "In spend that time being in school."

She chose to go to night school—five evenings a week- and reports "it really has worked out well."

"I'm sure my being away evenings hasn't been any hardship for the children," she added, "and after sharing the same career with my husband for a time and then having different ones. it's good to be back in the same field again."

SHE ADDED THAT "for us, this is a good arrangement, because we've always shared the responsibilities of our home and family."

"He often does the grocery shopping and I like to paint," she went on. About three more years will be needed to complete a law degree. Mrs. McKnight said, and at this point she isn't sure what kind of work she

"My little one will just be starting kindergarten so I don't think I will be ready for full time work right away." she said, "but I'm very sure I'll be using the training in some way. "I certainly am not going to law school just for enjoyment.

HER CURRENT SCHEDULE has left Mrs. McKnight with less time for all the community and political activities in which she has engaged, but she keeps in with both.

Chairman of Westland's first spring festival in 1971, she has played some part in that event each year and this May headed its publicity.

And in the current election campaigning, she and her husband are working for Democratic gubernatorial candidate Sander Levin, not nearly as demanding a program as last summer's when McKnight was managing the bid John Nichols made for the office of Detroit mayor.

Gail enjoys keeping her hand in writing press releases.

"It's the kind of thing I can do while the children are napping." she

A YEAR AGO she was afraid the family was facing a rough decision. because if Nichols had won it might have meant a move back to Detroit.

"I would really have hated to leave Westland," she said. "Once I had worked on my first festival and was acquainted with people. I realized I couldn't imagine living elsewhere."

Still other activities in Westland have claimed her attention in the several years she has made her home here.

She has done publicity work and edited a publication for the Westland Chamber of Commerce and served on the Wayne-Westland YMCA board of management.

She also is a former member of the Wayne-Ford Civic League and a former worker on Goodfellow publications and served for a time as secretary of the Wayne-Westland Democratic Club.

"I THINK THE ACTIVITY in which I learned the most was as Westland representative to the Wayne planning division of United Community Servces," she said.

She explained that when she started working with the organization in 1969, it had been determined that some special service was needed in the Norwayne area of Westland.

"In order to do that there were three service organizations that had to be involved," she went on. "Progress was slow, and that was hard for me to understand because I like to get right on with the job.

"But though things seemed to lumber along, the three organizations did get together and changes have been made that are good for the people in the area.

MRS. McKNIGHT says her husband, in giving complete support to her law studies, has joked that "I'm his best investment, because I appre-

Girls attend convention held in Switzerland

Memorizing a passage of scripture helped carry Plymouth residents Karen Bradford and Kim Hamlin all the way to Switzerland.

The two young women, both members of Nazarene Young Peoples' Society and the First Church of the Nazarene in Plymouth, were selected to be delegates to the 25th annual convention of the society.

"Because this was an important anniversary, it was decided to make this a world-wide meeting and hold it in Flesch, Switzerland," Karen said.

"We heard about it at our youth group meeting," her friend added, "and we found out that they would choose delegates in November."

One of the things the girls had to do was memorize a passage from the book of Acts. They also had to go for interviews with church leaders, and both were among 30 delegates selected from eastern Michigan.

THE CONVENTION drew young people from 42 different countries in two shifts of about 1,200 each to the little Swiss town. Karen and Kim went the second week, from June 23 to July 1.

Mornings at the convention were spent in Family Life Groups, the girls said. These, following chapel, were discussions of "life goals, and how to get along with each other and with our families and with God."

IN THE AFTERNOONS sightseeing and exploring the Alpine area was in order, and the girls felt this part of the experience was of just as much value.

"We met so many kids from all over the world," Kim said. "Many could not speak English but we managed to get along. It was interesting to see how proud of their own countries all the kids were.

"When we were getting ready to go home, we were still meeting new

By MARGARET MILLER

A popularly-distributed new translation of the Bible contains some distortions in meaning, a Livonia minister contends.

The Rev. James W. Schaefer, pastor of the Pilgrim United Church of Christ (Congregational), was voicing objections to "The Bible-paraphrased", published by Tyndale House of Arlington, Texas. He feels changes in the meaning do damage to the Bible's value as a "standard authority."

"I don't mean to quibble," he added, "but I am serious when I say the meaning is distorted in several instances I have noted."

REV. SCHAEFER SAID the translation he finds objectionable differes from many earlier ones in that it is the work of a single individual and put out by a single publishing house and "the publisher and the book stores are making money hawking this book."

By contrast, he said, the effort of many scholars went into such translations as the venerated King James Bible, the American Standard Bible of 1901 and the Revised Standard version. of the 1950s.

"I have the feeling," Rev. Schaefer said, "that changes have been made in The Living Bible so that it says what the translator wants it to say-even thinks it says.

"But I'm not so concerned about what one person thinks the Bible

"To me, the Bible is one standard authority, and if you start to tamper with authority you are on dangerous ground."

TWO EXAMPLES were pointed out by the clergyman. One changes a passage in Isaiah from "the house of Jesse" to "the house of David." he said, and added: "That's a minor point, but it's distortion. Jesse was the father."

In another instance, Rev. Schaefer points to two translations of verses in the Gospel of John.

Instead of "Bad men all hate the light and avoid it, for fear their practices should be shown up," the Living Bible, he said, has it "They stayed away from that light for fear their sins would be exposed and they would be punished."

"The idea of punishment is added where it was not before," said the minister. "That's quite a change."

REV. SCHAEFER said Biblical scholars see the Bible as "a collection of writings recounting the dealings of persons with God over a perios of some 1800 years."

In such diverse material, he said, there are bound to be inconsistencies. and that leads to some changes.

"Some with a literalist bent use the Bible as a predicter of future events." he added. "The author of the Living Bible Paraphrased goes part way: he realizes the Bible is inconsistent due to its multiple origins, so he changes passages to make them consistent with each other.

"But when we read the Bible as tool, a re-telling of history, we can find the truth. If we consider the context of each author, and take into ac; count his purpose in writing, we can find wisdom and guidance—the Bible becomes our test of faith. "If we use our God-given minds we can learn from error as well as faith fulness, just as we profit from our mistakes and good decisions today. If we don't do that, honest faith can bedistorted into false religion. HE SAID IT MAKES a difference whether you are using the Bible as a standard authority or for comfort. "If the latter, the changes don't make as much difference." he added. Rev. Schaefer said he found another recent and colloquial translation "Good News For Modern Man." published under the American Bible Society, to be "quite good."

This translation—so far only the Gospel and Psalms and Proverbe-he characterized as good for private reading but "I wouldn't use it from the pul-

'Pirates' to invade Livonia church

Captain Hook and several fellow pirates will invade the Trinity Full Gospel Church, 11663 Arcola, Livonia, for four days of evangelistic meetings July 21 to 24.

The captain is really a 30-year-old minister named Von Saum, who lost an arm and a leg in a motorcycle accident several years ago, became a Christian as a result of that experience and later dreamed up the pirate route to evangelism.

His wife, Parn, and their three children also assume pirate roles for the meetings. A dummy named Sharky and a talking parrot also will be on Persons of all ages are invited to the meetings at 7 p.m. each evening in the church located near Plymouth Road and Inkster.

"Children and grown-ups will find that their lives will never be the same," predicted the Rev. Barbara Merritt, pastor of the church. "The captain is an imposing figure, and his preaching of fundamentalist Christianity mixes family entertainment with Christian education."

She said Saum was riding with a tough motorcycle gang when he was hit by a car in a small town police had asked the group to leave.

Mexican families 'show more love,' scout finds

BY JO GALLI

"There is no real difference between family life in Mexico as compared with the United States except the family there is closer knit and they display their love more than Americana," said senior Girl Scout Nancy Lynn Jacobs of Livonia.

Spending a few days at the home of Taxco, the silver capital of Mexico. a Girl Guide in Mexico City was only one of the highlights of Nancy's weeklong trip to Mexico on the Scouts International Wider Opportunities summer travel program.

Money from the program and the Juliet Lowe scholarship fund enabled Nancy and seven other scouts from the United States to study the Mexican language and culture up close.

"We stayed at the Cabana, which is one of the Girl Guide-Girl Scout International Centers near Cuernavaca," Nancy said. "It is a group of four buildings, each having two dormitories. There were about 68 scouts and advisors staying there and by the end of the week we all got to know each other.

The girls participated in a variety of projects including two service projects involving the poor people in the area. Nancy's Spanish backround came in handy when she was placed in charge of the sporting events for one of the projects.

"We visited a home for delinquent and orphaned girls that was near our Cabana," Nancy explained, "and we played volleyball and danced with them. It gave us a good chance to talk and meet with the girls. They're really good at volleyball."

Nancy and the other scouts also had the opportunity to do a lot of sightseeing through Indian ruins, and the nearby cities of Cuernavaca and

"We visited the pyramid of the sun," she said. "As the story goes, ancient sun worshippers held human sacrifices at the top of the pyramid where there is an altar. They would pray to this god for rain for their crops to grow or to keep the bad weather away that was destroying their farms. There is also another pyramid there that was used for prayers to the god of the moon."

Bargaining with the street vendors, including children, enabled the girls to learn more about the life of the poor in Mexico.

"The children who are poor are first taught to add, subtract, multiply and divide," she reported. "That is because what they sell during the day is usually what they use to support themselves. It's terrible to say but they are excellent con artists."

"But I spoke with the people," Nancy added, " and they said that they are happy. They seem to accept their lives. They beg the Americans so much because they think that all Americans are very wealthy."

Although the scouts were plaqued by rain and "Montezuma's revenge" (sickness from the change in food), Nancy is enthusiastic about a return trip to the golden land.

"I definitely want to go back soon. I have a family down there now that I want to see again .

A SUCCESSFUL GARAGE SALE AND HOW IT BEGAN...

It all started when a certain couple we know decided they had too many extras around their home. They no longer used the bicycle. They no longer needed the buggy. They no longer played the piano. They had a new typewriter and a new power mower - the old ones were usable but no-longer used. There were, in fact. dozens of extras taking up space - and they needed that space for the things they did use.

So they made a list of all those no-longer used items and determined a fair price for each of them. Then (and this is most important!) they placed a Garage Sale Want Ad in The Observer & Eccentric. The friendly Advisor at The Observer & Eccentric explained about the low Want Ad rates, Double Action Want Ads...and offered to help word the ad for best results. The rest is history. The day the Want Ad appeared in The Observer & Eccentric, the crowd appeared at the Garage Sale!

The couple who held the sale were very pleased. They sold every item they had for sale and gained the spaced they needed. The people who came to the Garage Sale were pleased too...pleased that they'd been watching The Observer & Eccentric's Classified Pages and pleased that they found such bargains!

Why not plan your own successful Garage Sale? All it takes is a decision to sell your no-longer needed items...and a Want Ad in The Observer & Eccentric. What could be easier?

In the 2nd District

The candidates and the heroes they admire

By EMORY DANIELS

A man is known by the company he heeps, but his political philosophies can often be determined by the men Arbor) who is running unopposed in

With this in mind, the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers asked candidates in the 2nd Congressional District which political heroes they admired and why.

Board elects new officers

Robert M. Erickson has been unanimously elected president of the Clarenceville Board of Education for the 1974-75 year.

Erickson has been a member of the board since July 1967 and has served as treasurer for a number of years. He is a credit programs administrator in the division of urban extension at Wayne State University. Raymond Chaiken, who has served on the board since July 1960, was re-elected vice president. Richard J. Wood was elected as secretary. He has served as a board member for six years.

Thomas C. Wilson, a veteran member of the board for 18 years, was elected treasurer.

Daniel G. Morrison was sworn in as a newly elected member to the board of education

Hinged bus trial here

MAN, Germany's largest manufacturer of public transit vehicles has provided a standard hinged bus for demonstration and testing on regular routes for suitability and passenger acceptance in the United States.

The bus is on tour through major U.S. cities and will be in Detroit this

The bus was introduced July 9 on the SEMTA Metropolitan Division Michigan Avenue-Wayne Line.

OPERATED by one person, the bus has a seating capacity of 63 compared with 50 on regular buses now in use in the Detroit area.

Powered by a 253 horsepower engine which meets California emmission standards, the 54 feet long demonstration bus will reach a top speed of 50 mph. The bus is primarily designed for service in heavily populated metropolitan areas.

SEMTA officials are considering purchase of up to 25 of these buses for use in the region. If purchased, the buses would include some modifications, including airconditioning.

The bus is a common sight in Germany and other European cities where they have proven their efficiency and reliability for over 25 Responses were received from the five Democrats seeking nomination in the Aug. 6 primary and from incumbent Rep. Marvin L. Esch (R-Ann the primary. The 2nd District includes Livonia, Plymouth, Monroe County and parts of Washtenaw County.

ESCH LISTED three heroes that have gained his admiration - Lincoln, Calhoun and Elliot Richardson. "In historical perspective, Lincoln and Calhoun. Lincoln for obvious traits - he was a man of the people. "Calhoun for more subtle reasons: his philosophy was one of compromise - of attempting to bring conflicting ideas into synthesis for the good of the country. "In contemporary times, Elliot Richardson, for his willingness to draw a line and uphold the principles on which he stands.

"These traits - holding firm on personal principles, and having the ability to compromise within bounds of those principles, and being close to the people - are the ones which should be emulated today."

RONALD EGNOR replied that he didn't have any heroes as such. He added, however: "I do admire John L. Lewis and Harry Truman for their forthright, honest, do-something approach."

MARJORIE LANSING listed as personal political heroes Thomas Jefferson, John F. Kennedy and Eleanor Roosevelt.

"Jefferson's deep commitment to the fundamental rights of people, his understanding of the value of a free society under democratic rule of law. and his outstanding contributions to the formation and guidance of the new nation are unexcelled in U.S. political history.

"Kennedy, who offered a 20th century Jeffersonian view of duty and democracy, activated young voters and demonstrated to them that honest, unselfish service to country could help to make the world a better place.

"Eleanor Roosevelt, partner of New Deal President Franklin D. Roosevelt, is remembered and revered for demonstrating that involved and concerned women, although not elected to office, contributed to the democratic process as voters and citizens, and that such efforts are essential for effective citizenship.

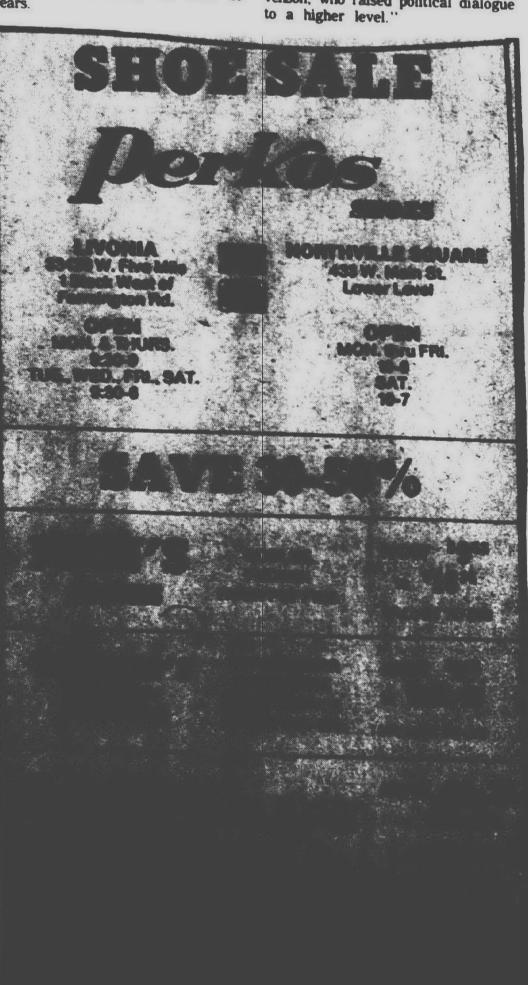

JOHN REUTHER says: "The one political figure who stands out in my mind is the late President Kennedy.

"The combination of idealism, intelligence, wit and dedication to the betterment of mankind is a memory which my generation can cherish.

"My regret for this generation is that they have Watergate, when we had Camelot."

DR. EDWARD PIERCE picks as his heroes Lincoln, Martin Luther King, Harry Truman and Adlai Steven-

"Lincoln, who attempted to heal the wounds of a nation after a terrible war; King, who worked through nonviolent means to change the country for the better; Truman, who always called things as he saw them; and Stevenson, who raised political dialogue to a higher level.'

THEO WILLIAMS says: "I tend to couraged in government. admire persons like the late John F.

"I also admire newspapers that Kennedy and his brother Robert Ken- have the courage to print the unpleasnedy, for the new concepts they en- ant truth about unsavory government

Redford Adray pushes mark to 18-2

Redord all but wrapped up the nine-club Adray loop with a 9-7 victory fought back to take it, 9-7, before twin sweep of Southfield upping its mark to 18-2

Royal Oak is the closest competitor with a 13-6 showing and with just four games remaining on Redford's slate, one will wrap it up.

Redford spotted Westland six runs downing Southfield, 5-1, and 2-1. With Jeff Moon on the Redford mound, Westland Burger King went to work. J.P McBride singled and went to second on an error and Jeff Hodgkins singled him home. Bob Ganzak singled and Art Mach cleared the fences with a 430-foot shot.

Coach Bob Atkins had seen enough and called Ray Ivey to the mound. Tony Dattilio walked, Jerry Hamann was safe on an error and after a sacrifice, Glenn Ambrose bounced into a fielder's choice to score one and Ivey balked Hamann home.

Redford took a bite into the deficit in the second with three scores on only two hits. With one out, Mike Kalil singled, Gary Fulks walked, Ivey was safe on an error to score one and John Roy singled to score Fulks and Ivey.

The third inning saw Redford move to within one. Mark Yourchock walked, Steve Friedman tripled and John Broder singled to slice it to 6-5.

Campbell then drew a walk and John Roy singled the two home to finish it off at 9-7.

Westland threatened in the last of the inning but reliever Knox put out the fire and chalked up the win. Roland Morency and Jeff Hodgkins worked the Westland mound with Hodgkins taking the loss and Redford collecting 10 hits to Westland's eight. Then came the doubleheader sweep of Southfield. Kevin Bara chalked up his sixth victory of the campaign in the opener with a six-hitter to his credit. Bara walked none and struck out eight. Bara threw only 68 pitches in the seven innings. Taking the loss for Southfield was Ed Watkins with Redford mustering seven hits, and strik-

Franklin Berry remains No.1Mack club at 10-1-1

By TOM DONOGHUE Sports Editor

Franklin Berry is on top of the Berry Mack baseball world and Coach Paul Hunt is all smiles.

His Franklin crew pushed its summer mark to 10-1-1 with a 3-1 tipping of Plymouth Elks, an 8-4 blasting of Redford Adray and a narrow 4-3 victory over the Thurston Eagles.

Franklin's only competitor thus far has been Churchill, the team that handed Hunt's crew a 2-1 defeat earlier. Since that time, Franklin routed the same Churchill team and has an opportunity to wrap up the loop tonight in a 6 p.m. contest with Churchill at Rotary Park.

With four games remaining, Franklin's 10-1-1 mark has to look tall over second place Churchill at 8-4. Coach Hunt elected to carry just 12 boys on the Mack team

"I can't see carrying kids on the roster all summer if they aren't going to be playing," he said.

Hunt has almost been stung on this idea as one ace hurler in Rich Gaber is out for the season with an appendix operation and infielder Jim Baigrie tore ligaments in his knee

But the past few weeks have seen Hunt and Franklin take on and conquer all Mack foes.

"Sure we are scrapping around,"

Hunt said. "Hey, everyone is doing the job and the kids realize if they don't. there is nobody behind them. Attitude has just been great. "I have never coached a finer bunch of baseball kids."

The 3-1 win over Plymouth was Jamie Knapp's fourth triumph against one loss as he two-hit the Elks walked two and struck out four.

Tom Willette suffered the loss with Franklin banging out six hits. Berry scored one in the third after two were out. Tim Livesay singled, Ron VanderLinden walked and the two pulled off a double steal with Livesay scoring on a single by Joe Pol-

The last of the fifth saw Franklin pump in two unearned runs. Tom Tresick and Livesay were safe on errors, and VanderLinden and Pollard followed with run scoring hits.

Plymouth's lone score came in the ast of the seventh. With one out, Bill DenHouter singled and Thomas and Doug Tripp walked to fill the bases. Knapp wild pitched in DenHouter but bore down and struck out Jeff Baller to get out of the jam.

It was Dave Watkins who got the call to the Franklin mound against Redford and the Berrys righthander responded with a 12-hitter, walked one and struck out eight.

Wins 440 hurdles

Bob Cassleman of Michigan State won the 440-intermediate hurdles title at the 1974 Central Collegiate Conference championships in a meet record time of :50.6. It was his second straight CCC crown in the event.

Performance award

Winner of Michigan State's Chester Brewer Award in 1974 for distinguished athletic and classroom performange is senior lacrosse midfielder Val Washington of Baltimore, Md.

Dan Bushart and Tom Miller worked the Redford pitching chores with Bushart taking the defeat and Franklin collecting 13 hits.

Redford struck first in the top of the third on a walk to Tom Jones, a single by Greg Wood and single by Bob Miller.

Franklin jumped in front in the fourth. With one out, Livesay walked, VanderLinden walked and the two pulled off a double steal with an infield hit by Ken Fry loading the sacks. Dan Longeway then suicide squeezed in Livesay and Watkins singled in two.

Redford bounced right back in the top of the fifth on singles by Jones, Stafford, Hill and Ackerman tying it up at three-all.

A three-run homer by VanderLinden in the last of the inning all but sewed things up for Franklin. Knapp doubled to start the explosion, Tresik singled and with one out, VanderLinden delivered his game-winning blow.

Berry added two in the sixth and Redford struck for one in the seventh. The contest with Emil Majeski's Thurston saw Franklin capture a 4-0 lead in the sixth only to see it melt away to 4-3 in the seventh with a fluke play getting Hunt's crew out of Knapp worked the Franklin mound and came up with a six-hitter, walked three and struck out five. Jeff Trachsel and Rob Roy shared Thurston mound chores with starter Trachsel taking the loss.

The first inning saw Franklin take a 1-0 lead when Fry walked, was passed ball to second and score on a hit by Livesay. Franklin's offensive assault peaked in the sixth for three more runs on four hits.

Fry started it off with a double and Tresik singled him around to third. say banged into a fielder's choice with Fry scoring. VanderLinden sin-

VanderLinden and Livesay pulled off a double steal and Pollard singled them both in to make it a 4-0 contest.

Thurston was down to its final three outs and gave it a real shot. Mitch Drozdowski, Brian D'Ascenzo, Jerry Janssens and Dave Beebe all singled for two runs and Mark Purkiss sacrificed Janssens to third and Beebe to Jeff Krzywada walked off Knapp to load the bases and Dennis Litwinczuk blooped a single over short. Janssen scored on the hit but Beebe was forced out at third as he had to hold up between second and third on the short fly.

Knapp then got Kuschel to line to center to end the contest.

It was a two-run homer off the bat of Dennis Kuschel that crushed Bentley's hopes after two errors and a walk pushed one across for Crowe in the first of the inning.

Bob Bessonen and Jeff Trachsel worked the Thurston mound with reliever Trachsel picking up the win. Bessonen worked the first five innings and was touched for two runs on five hits, walked two and struck out four. Trachsel went the last five and gave up three runs on three hits, walked

Richards and Vezina followed with two innings each, Vezina taking the It was Thurston's fourth win of the summer against six defeats. Thurston got off to a 2-0 lead in the third inning. Dave Beebe singled and went to second on an error. Jeff Krzywada singled in Beebe and moved to second on the throw to the plate and scored on a hit by Dennis Litwinczuk.

A walk to Stevens, an error and singles by Mickey VanEss and Ernie Storm enabled Crowe to tie it at fourall in the top of the seventh and that's the way the score stood until the top of the 10th.

Bentley broke the ice when Mark Newell was safe on an error, Bob Waldock walked and Tom Duprie was safe on an error allowing Newell to score and make it 5-4.

Turf Tips, Quip

By Doc Minard

It isn't a battle but one could say there is considerable confusion in the minds of horsemen, both thoroughbred and standardbred, about what steps to take at the end of this week when the Detroit Racing Association ends its 120-day meeting and the DRC mile track is transformed from the soft cushion needed for the runners to the hard surface used for the pacers and trotters.

Especially is this interesting when one is told that management at Hazel Park hasn't sent one card to any stable at the DRC notifying the owners and trainers of the stall allotments at the meeting scheduled to open Monday at the east side plant.

There have been indications that Hazel Park expects as many as 500 horses to ship in from the recent meeting at Ak-Sar-Ben in Nebraska and there are reports stables from Oaklawn Raceway at Hot Springs, Ark. have received stalls and will be arriving this week.

BUT AS OF MONDAY not one trainer or owner at the DRC knew whether he was going to be able to ship horses crosstown or not. And that, my friends, isn't exactly the right way to handle matters when a meeting is in the final week and stables are wondering where they go next.

For contrast, Wolverine Raceway management held a meeting with representatives of the Michigan Harness Horsemen's Association Wednesday at which stall applications were carefully screened and all allotments made. Cards were in the mail Thursday before noon notifying all applicants whether they should make plans to ship in and how many horses had been accepted.

Dick Wilson, who wears the hats of vice president and general manager of the DRA meeting and the Wolverine campaign, will have his track crew busy stripping the big mile track within hours after the final race Saturday. He knows that he must have the racing strip in top shape for the opening of the 82-night meeting Wednesday and can't take any changes ... the work must be done as quickly as pos-

TO THE THOROUGHBRED owners and trainers, this means they must get their horses off the track by Sunday since there will not be any place for workouts. That's why notices from Hazel Park are so important. It appears they will be in a position to ship out beginning Thursday and be off the premises by Sunday.

Inasmuch as Hazel Park officials have been anything but cooperative to this point, then it appears the horsemen will have to look for other tracks and allow Ak-Sar-Ben and Oaklawn stables to take over, provided they check in as Racing Director Bud Sears predicts.

All of this confusion is coming from the inability of the track management to reach agreement with the mutuel clerks union on terms of a new contract—a situation that has reached a point where the union will take a strike vote next Saturday if negotiating sessions slated this week fail. Up to this time, members of the union negotiating team report no progress. The union presumably presented its demands several weeks ago but it seems there have been no answers from the management team.

THERE WAS A TIME when we thought the negotiators had plenty of time to resolve their differences but when one considers the race meeting is scheduled to open next Monday and nothing has come out of any of the sessions ... well, it appears as if time is running out.

Even if it is, there isn't any reason we can think of for Sears and his associates not notifying the horsemen at the DRC what is ahead for them at Hazel Park. The 120-day meeting extends well into December and the question arises as to whether the Oaklawn and Ak-Sar-Ben stables will remain or whether they will ship to New Orleans in early November as they have for so many years.

That's when it is important to have Michigan and Ohio owned stables on the grounds, they'll stay until the final race on the final day and many of the horses are well-known to bettors ... something that is very important to bettors.

Meantime, there is quite a bit of talk among union members about the prospects of a 4 p.m. post at Hazel Park. 'Tis said the Hazel Park management has sent a communication to Racing Commissioner Leo Shirley to that effect.

Even though the Michigan racing act doesn't specifically say the commissioner has the right to affirm or deny requests for post times, it does give him entire authority over the conduct of racing in the state of Mich-

On that theory, then the commissioner can tell the track management what he considers is a proper post time. Perhaps he could face a court fight if he says "no" to a 4 p.m. post but at least it would clearly define his powers regardless of what decision came out of the suit.

We are thinking of the future when requests may come in for a 4:30 p.m. post for the runners, then 5 p.m. and eventually a shift from day racing to night racing. Don't laugh, it could hap-

THE CURRENT RACING situation requires a strong, aggressive person in the commissioner's seat. One withthe ability to step into the stymied negotiations and take a leading role in attempting to resolve the situation.

It needs a person who understands the problems of the horsemen, both thoroughbred and standardbred, and can take steps to assure a smooth transition from the runners to the trotters at Wolverine Raceway and get the Hazel Park meeting off as scheduled next Monday.

Any delays at Hazel Park, such as a strike, will prove costly to the state in loss of its share of the mutuel handle. It also will be costly to the track in that it will be losing some of the choice summer dates and it will mean loss of income to all employes.

On the other side of the picture, it will benefit Wolverine Raceway since it will have the only game going in the entire area.

DRC wraps up meet.

The $50,000 Michigan Futurity, the state's richest race, for homebred two year old thoroughbreds, will serve as a fitting climax Saturday for the clos-ing program of the 1974 Detroit Race Although the meeting has been better than that of a year ago, it will not go into the records books as one of the best conducted by the Detroit Racing Association. The mile run for the top juveniles in Michigan will be worth some $14,000 more than last year when Shinrone Farm's Rattling Fool whipped Val's Brat for the winner's share of $21,834. The powerful Shinrone Farm, owned by W.O. (Bill) Bridge of Bloomfield Hills, will be back front and center Saturday with a pair of young speedsters which finished 1-2 in DRC's Michigan Futurity Prep on July 12. Director B edged his stablemate Dr. Morrow by a neck in the six furlong tuneup.

Other likely starters include Robert Matthews' Grotes Note, who set an all-time track record for the quarter mile at the DRC on April 11 with a :21.4; R.C. Wilson's Dear Val. winner of the $12,250 Sickle's Image Stakes on June 28; and such impressive DRC winners as Ocean Drive, Spicy Spoon, Pescador, Fickle Fate and Dublin Deb. first add DRC finale. Post time for the closing day's program of the 120-day season will be 1:30 p.m.

Privacy right under attack Williams says

America is facing one of the worst invasions on privacy since the days of Sen. Joe McCarthy, Theo Williams recently told an audience in Huron High School in Ann Arbor.

Williams, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congress in the 2nd District, called for strict controls on the use of government data banks to limit "the already massive invasion on individual privacy."

Williams noted the U.S. Governent has files on more than one billion citizens, more than 850 data banks maintained by some 54 federal agencies, that 84 per cent of the data banks had no real legal authority.

Williams also cited the need for civil service job protection for FBI employes, especially agents. He also said he favored a healthcare plan similar to the one proposed by Sen. Edward Kennedy.

Williams emphasized the need to reduce the military arms hardware budget and called for a reduction of up to $25 billion by proper procedures in new weapons procurement.

Williams concluded by claiming that incumbent Rep. Marvin Esch (R-Ann Arbor) was definitely beatable because of his lack of performance in Washington.

Clarenceville struck for one in the last of the second: Rick Canady led off with a two-bagger and moved to third on a single by Jim Hill. Murphy got tough and struck out both Rick Beyer and Mark McCammon.

But the pitching performance went for naught as Crowe catcher Marty Springfield uncorked a wild toss to third on a pickoff attempt and Canady Fischetti added two scores in the fifth when Tim Laird singled, Tim McCammon singled and on a sacrifice attempt by Brian Luka, Springfield tossed wild to third and Laird scampered around for the second tally.

McCammon then scored on a suicide squeeze by Canady for the final Singles by Howard Inch and Tom Willette, a scrifice by Bill DenHouter and two-bagger by Mark Stephens pushed Plymouth into a 3-1 second inning lead.

But Fischetti scored one in the third and another in the top of the sixth to tie it at three-all. The last of the sixth saw Plymouth break it open. Jeff Waller opened with a double and Inch singled him home. Tim Dillon walked and the stage was set for DenHouter's 355 foot shot over the fence.

Fischetti came back with two in the seventh but fell two shy.

Sparkman gave Chuck Thomas his first start in the Redford outing and the Plymouth hurler gave up one unearned run on seven hits, walked none and struck out five.

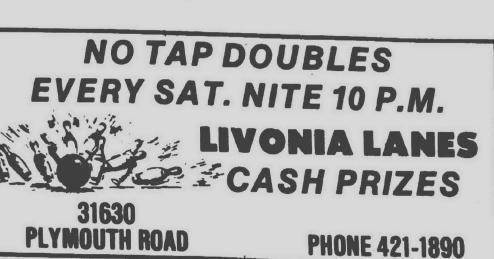

Ted Ackerman was tagged with the loss with Plymouth scoring its three runs on seven hits.

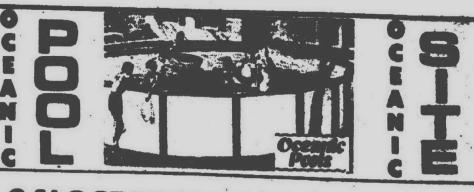

Plymouth scored once in the top of the fourth on a single by Willette, sacrifice by Brian Wolcott and double by Doug Tripp. The last of the stanza saw Redford even it up when Gary Stafford was safe on an error by Dillon at third and scored on a hit off the bat of Craig Hill.

The deciding two scores came in the fifth for Plymouth. With one out, Mark Stephens walked and stole second. Dave Pierce was safe on an error and the two attempted to pull off a double steal.

The Redford catcher tossed back to Ackerman on the mound who had Stephens picked off third. But when Ackerman tossed to the third baseman, Stephens broke for home and Greg Wood's relay to the plate was wild.

Pierce wound up on third base where he promptly scored on a hit by

When you choose interest you get annual yield.

High interest compounds in our New Savings Passbook Account!

The 7.25', interest on our special passbook account actually becomes 7.52% when interest is compounded over 12 months!

And that's the highest legally allowable rate on 48-month accounts.

So if you leave $10,000 in this account for four years, you'll earn $751.80 in interest the first year alone! Even more when interest is compounded daily during the second, third and fourth years. Of course, withdrawals prior to maturity earn regular passbook rates, less 90 days' interest.

As little as $1,000 opens your new time passbook account at any of our offices in the Metropolitan Detroit Area. Then you'll see 7.25% become 7.52%. And you'll enjoy the good feeling of bank security.

INFLATION: Candidates address the issue

By EMORY DANIELS

Inflation is an issue in the 2nd Congressional District which might be on voters' minds even more than Watergate. Morality in government makes for good conversation, but inflation hits the pocketbook and is apt to be a larger issue when citizens decide whom to support Aug. 6.

To illicit position statements from candidates in the 2nd Congressional District, the Observer & Eccentric asked each who or what is to blame for inflation and what each would do if elected congressman.

Responses were received from the five Democrats vying for the nomination: John Reuther, Ronald Egnor, Marjorie Lansing. Ed Pierce, and Theo Williams. Also responding was incumbent Rep. Marvin L. Esch (R-Ann Arbor).

The 2nd District includes Livonia and Plymouth, Washtenaw and Monroe counties.

"His policies to produce profit inflation during the wage-price phases seriously disrupted fair, equitable, and low prices. His politicizing of regulatory agencies has breeched the public trust and seriously weakened regulation.-

She adds that Nixon has encouraged overexpansionary monetary policy during the 1972 elections to guarantee his re-election, despite the anticipated and realized inflationary outcome.

"To the extent Congress hasn't opposed the policies excesses of the president, nor legislated wisely to overcome the deficiencies of Nixon economic policies, it shares some of the responsibility.

"As a member of Congress, among other actions," she concludes, "I would seek tax reform, more support for antitrust enforcement, greater congressional responsibility for economic budgeting as a weapon against inflation and as a tool for maintaining full employment, tax relief and cost of living adjustments for low income recipients, and less inflationary mone-

REUTHER SAYS the most unacceptable cause of inflation is the current system of costly payoffs to special interest groups.

'The Russian grain deal, which netted millions for commodity speculators, has increased every family's food bill by 15 per cent. Nixon's milk deal is costing us $500 million a year in higher milk prices. Both deals were payoffs to the same interest groups which finance political campaigns.

"Public finance of elections is the best solution because it would eliminate much of the incentive for such inflationary giveaways."

DR. PIERCE contends that inflation is the result of:

A growing worldwide demand for goods; an inherent greed in big business for unrealistically large profit margins; poor U.S. trade policy (such as the wheat deal with Russia); and the fact workers have been underpaid for a long time in this country and are catching up at a very fast pace.

"To control inflation, a congressman must be ready to support tough measures regulating the economy, even if they may not be popular. Prices and profits cannot be allowed to continue to rise unregulated indefinitely."

WILLIAMS maintains that government spending is the main cause of in-the military to have a truly unified tactical air force and more than $26 billion by proper methods in new weapons systems procurement.

"Even Sen. Goldwater hesitates to spend $19 billion for one fighter type airplane, $800,000 for one Army tank, $1 billion for one aircraft carrier. And economists at MIT state that for every $1 billion changed from military to civilian programs, 6,436 more jobs would be created."

EGNOR SUGGESTS the blame for inflation is "acute fiscal mismanagement by an administration dedicated more to the interests of big business than the people it is supposed to serve.

"We need a comprehensive system of price and profit controls, applied for limited duration, to cool off an economy allowed to run wild.

"Controls have a bad name, not because they could be effective, but because they were discredited by the selective enforcement that continually favored big business over the individual taxpayer." ESCH SAYS there is no one reason for inflation, nor is there one simple solution to bringing it under control.

"Both short term and long range "Up to $34 billion could be saved by causes can be identified. In the short an intelligent military hardware budg- run, we see the greatest inflation in et, a saving of $8 billion by forcing the price of food, fuel oil and gasoline. The recent oil embargo, and to some extent oil company profiteering is responsible for the former; the Russian "wheat deal," combined with shortages, falling inventories, and rising labor costs for the latter."

Yet inflationary pressure hasn't come upon us suddenly, adds Esch. "During the '60s the government insisted on a 'guns and butter' policy and refused to increase taxes to pay

"International forces have also played a part. Two devaluations of the dollar were intended to make U.S. exports more competitive but they also generated such a demand for our foodstuffs, silver, and timber that domestic prices skyrocketed.

"As a congressman, I have: introduced budget control legislation to limit government deficit spending and reform the budget making process; supported moves to have the Federal Energy Administration audit oil company data on prices, operating costs and profits; asked (and received assurances from) the head of the Federal Trade Commission for a comprehensive study of pricing policies of supermarket chains; and, voted for reduction and limitation of farm subsidies and to return more land to food production."
