Canton races are slate vs. anti-slate

By HANK MEIJER

CANTON—Candidates for Canton Township offices split along "slate" and anti-slate lines in debate at a candidates night Thursday on whether the township should have a full time attorney.

That question and other issues drew sharp divisions between the views of Canton Democratic Club nominees and other candidates for township offices.

The event, which was held at Plymouth-Canton High School and sponsored by the Canton Jaycees, League of Women Voters and American Association of University Women, attracted only about 50 residents.

Democratic Club Supervisor Nominee Robert Greenstein defended the slate approach as a means of dealing with township problems and attacked opponents who charged the "team" with merely echoing his views.

"With five votes (on the board) there is nothing which cannot be accomplished overall," he said. "I suspect that all the others here would like to be on the team if they were asked."

"The slate scares the hell out of me," said James Poole, Republican candidate for the supervisor's post.

"What will happen if only two or three members of the slate are elected?" asked Brian Schwall, a Democratic candidate for a four-year term as trustee.

Schwall took issue with charges by some slate members that its critics are disappointed they were not asked to participate.

"I emphatically don't want to be part of the slate," he said. "I was pleased with to be on it, but my vote is my own and I refuse to give it away to this or any other supervisor candidate."

The only supervisor candidate other than Greenstein to speak out for a full time attorney was Republican Ralph Foote. He was the first of the candidates to present his views Thursday night.

"I have no master plan," he said. "I have seen too many fall by the wayside—such as mass transit. My top priority is to be a full time supervisor. I have no business interest to divert me."

James Poole, currently a township trustee and Foote's Republican opponent in the Aug. 6 primary, said that he would create a seven-member citizens group to work with township planners and a three-member consumer protection committee.

"I would ask for resignations of all appointed officials presently serving," he said. "That would be the planning commission, civil service commission and the tax review board. Not because of what they've done, but out of courtesy."

Poole accused the planning commission of being imbalanced, with five of its members living south of Ford Road and four west of Canton Center Road.

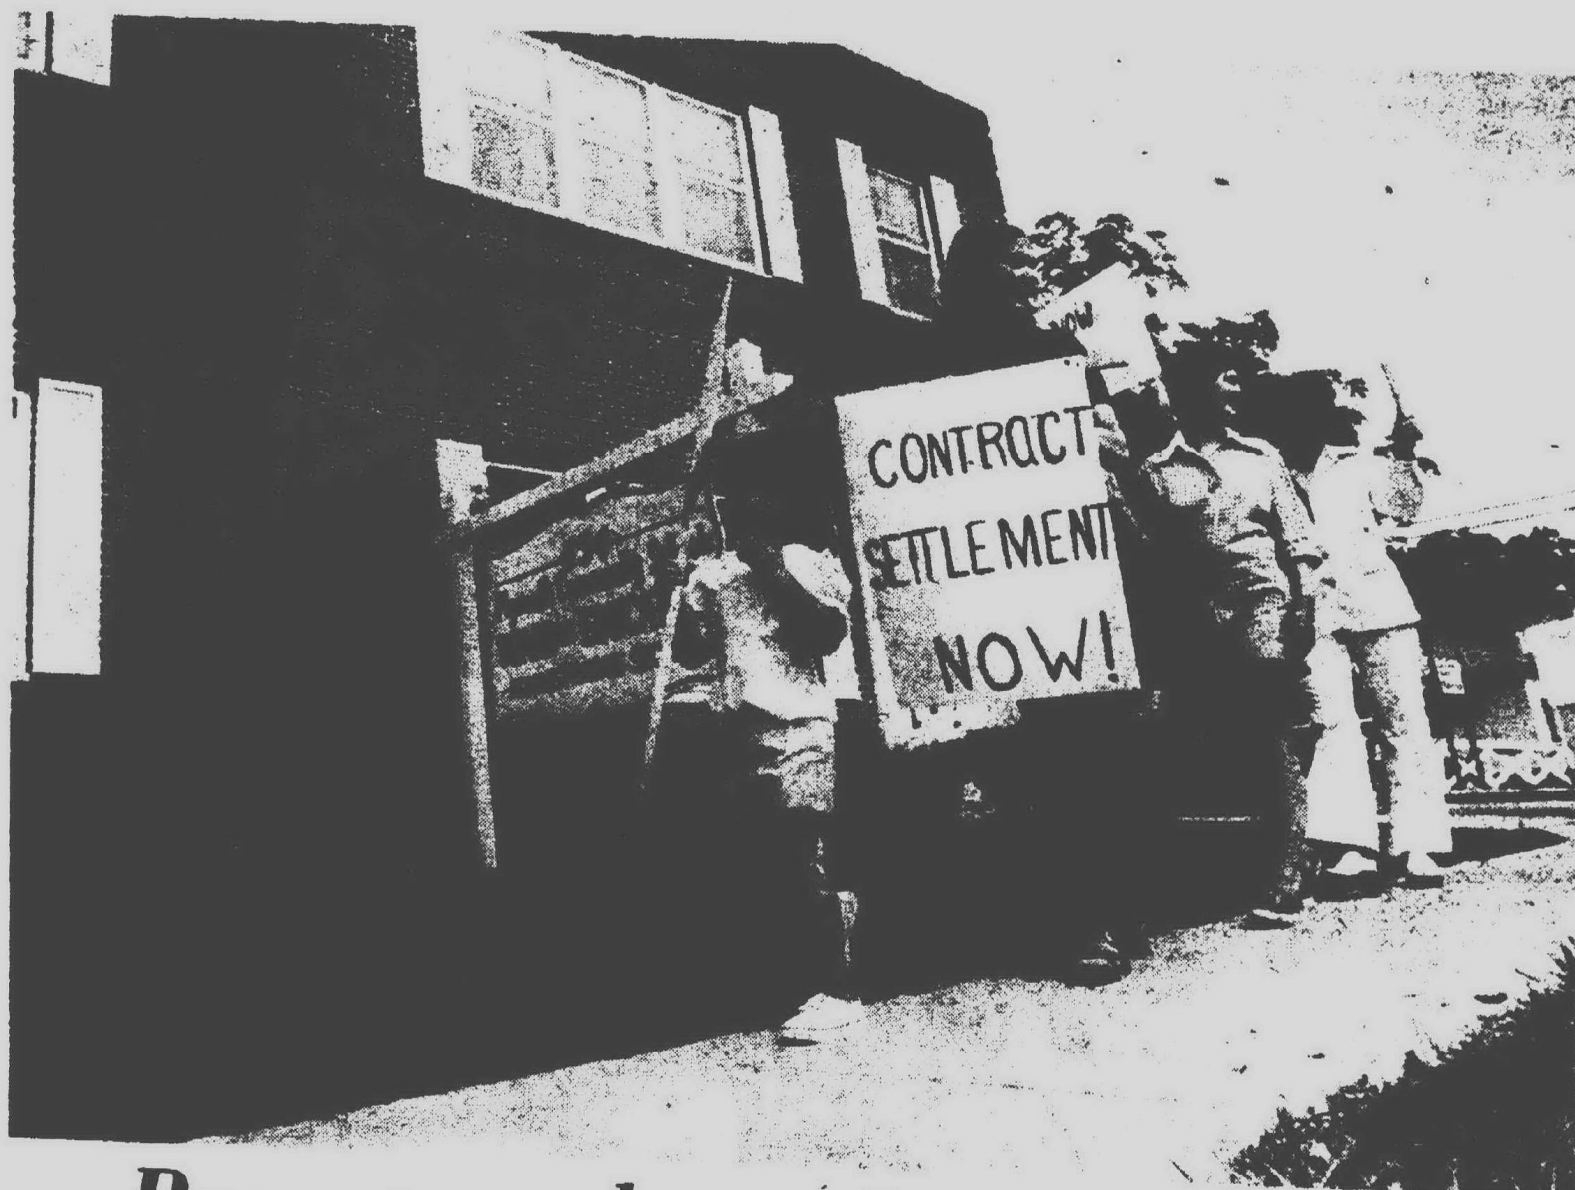

He opposed a full time township attorney. "We don't need one," he said. "There's not one decision we've needed and lacked for."

Democratic supervisor candidate Jack Marts attacked the "professionals" whose government he said would mean more problems for the township.

"You don't have to be qualified to be supervisor," he said. "You have to know in your heart what's good for the township. I'm convinced that we need just plain old people, men and women."

In reference to his opponent Greenstein, who practices law in Livonia, Marts stressed that he himself would do a "full time job" as supervisor. "I'm fearful of having so many at-

Parents seek teacher settlement

PARENTS FROM MILLER Elementary School's attendance area picketed offices of the Plymouth school board and the Plymouth Education Association (PEA, teachers' union) Thursday to urge the settlement of a contract. The parents said they hoped the school board and the PEA could reach agreement in time to start the pilot year round school program at Miller today (Monday). School administrators said the program could not start today (a week after it was scheduled to begin) because of scheduling problems and plans are being developed to start a new elementary school at Middle School East that will handle the rapid growth in student population at Miller. No new negotiating sessions between the schools and the PEA were scheduled as of Friday afternoon. (Staff photo by Bob Woodring)

Township candidates link services to budget

By W. EDWARD WENDOVER

PLYMOUTH TOWNSHIP — The present and future needs for governmental services in Plymouth Township are tied to that community's budget limitations.

That central theme — represented in several forms relative to a variety of issues — was shared by most of the candidates at Wednesday night's candidate forum.

A small crowd of about one person per candidate attended the forum sponsored by the local chapters of the League of Women Voters and the American Association of University Women.

The township supervisor's race, in which Maurice Breen and J. D. McLaren are squaring off against each other in the Republican primary with no opposition from the Democrats, got most of the attention.

Breen said the township is now "faced with the same problems it's always been faced with. They've always been with us and they always will be with us."

On the law enforcement issue, Breen said "we've had committees upon committees" to discuss the problem and that the best route is contracting with the City of Plymouth which has an existing force and which would eliminate the need for a great amount of capital investment.

"Ultimately it will have to come to a vote (for additional millage) but financially it's better to go with the city," Breen said.

The former supervisor, who was defeated by McLaren in the Republican primary for the supervisor's race two years ago, said other areas of importance to the township are recreation, sidewalk construction and "implementation of a sewer program (to the western portion of the township) if a referendum does not stop it."

McLaren opened his comments saying, "I had hoped this would be a primary election where all personal vendettas were left out."

He responded to what he said was a criticism of his leadership abilities saying, "I would accept that criticism but I've often been reminded that the mark of a good administrator is to delegate responsibility."

"Public office has been a world apart from everything I've ever done or known before," McLaren said.

On the police protection issue, McLaren said that while the townships in Wayne County were fighting the county sheriff's threatened end to the road patrol, the township should look towards starting its own police department.

"Under the (city's) proposal (to contract police services for the township), the township would have absolutely no voice in the police department," McLaren said.

He also said he thought the city proposal was too expensive.

Other important issues, the supervisor said, are: maintaining an "adequately staffed" building department, expanding fire protection "as funds are available," completing purchase of the Hilltop Golf Course and "controlling the budget."

He also said township refuse collection might be looked at.

Township Clerk Helen Richardson, who is running unopposed in her Republican party primary and in the general election, said, "There are not too many things we can do here without additional millage."

She also said the Hilltop purchase and "development of neighborhood parks is very essential to me."

"Development of the Ann Arbor Road corridor is also important to the township," the clerk added. "At this point in time, I personally am very ashamed of Ann Arbor Road."

In the township treasurer race four-way contest for the Republican nomination, the candidates split in their interpretation and prioritizing of the issues.

Weyona Lee Fidge said her first priority was "to be responsive to the community."

She said another goal was "to pursue actively a cooperative and working spirit with other communities."

Adding that she was opposed, however, to the city's annexation attempts, she said she favored a local police force and "extending sewer and water where residential patterns warrant it." An updating of the master plan is also needed, Mrs. Fidge said.

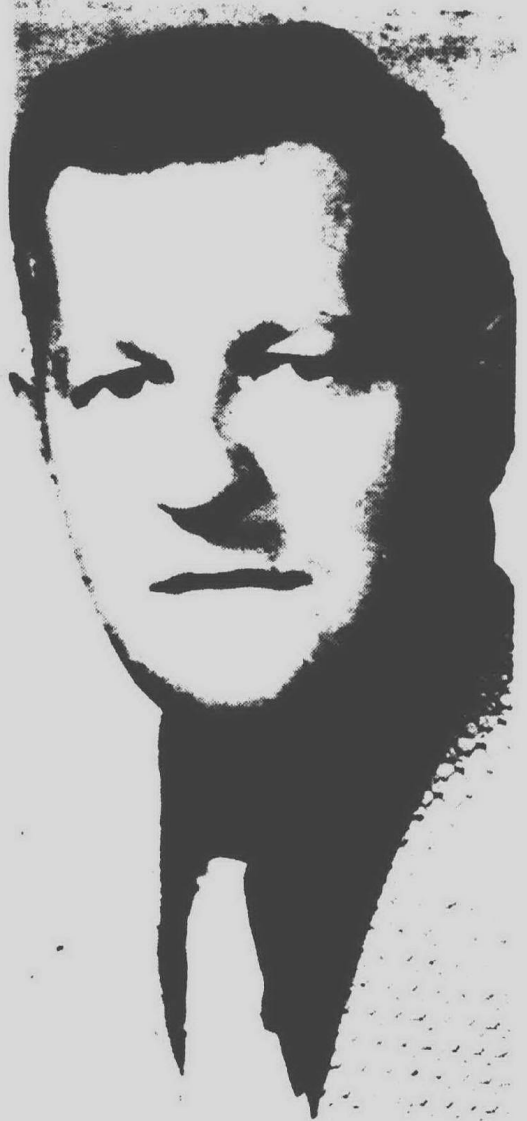

Anna Milligan said the township should organize its own police department but that she "would gladly back down from that position if study warranted it."

Better cooperation between the city and township, a better program for youths were also goals of hers, she said.

Mrs. Milligan said she favors extending sewer westward into the township "providing this section does not grow too rapidly or haphazardly."

Tom Notebaert said that "at the moment we're probably getting by with the sheriff department and state police" providing police protection, and

"WORRY FREE home delivery" is the motto of the Twin Pines Milk Co. but that wasn't exactly the case last week when this truck, parked at the Twin Pines plant on Northville Road, rolled out into the street, over a stop sign and started down the gully into Wilcox Lake. After the spilled milk was cleaned up, a tow truck pulled the milk truck back onto the road. (Staff photo by Bob Woodring)

Lottery kicks off Fall Festival

PLYMOUTH—This year's Plymouth Fall Festival, scheduled for Sept. 5-9, will kick off with a drawing from the Michigan State Lottery in Kellogg Park across from the Masonic Temple.

The lottery, which will be held on Thursday, Sept. 5, at 9:45 a.m., will feature a super drawing in which an estimated $380,000 will be given away to past lottery winners.

Prior to the super drawing, a regular weekly drawing will be held at which prizes up to $10,000 will be given away.

Michigan Lottery Emcee Jim Culver and the green-clad "Lottery Lady" will officiate over proceedings.

Those interested in obtaining booths at the Plymouth Fall Festival are encouraged to contact Tony Flum at the Plymouth branch of the National Bank of Detroit.

Busing ruling gains Hoben's support

PLYMOUTH—School Supt. John M. Hoben, obviously pleased at the U.S. Supreme Court's 5-4 decision striking down the Detroit cross district school busing plan, said Thursday, "We intend to comply with the court."

While the Plymouth district was not one of the school districts named in the initial cross-district busing plan, "indirectly we were involved," Hoben said. Plymouth schools had filed their own petition with the courts asking to be excluded from the busing plan; ordered by the late Federal Judge Stephen Roth rather than join with the suit filed by most of the districts involved.

Hoben said he was glad the Plymouth district will not be involved in a metropolitan busing plan because "I couldn't conceive of three hours on the bus from a pickup point to Detroit."

U.S. Rep. Marvin Esch (R - Ann Arbor), whose district includes the city of Plymouth and Plymouth Township, said Thursday about the Supreme Court decision:

"I was especially pleased that the Supreme Court reaffirmed the concept of local control of schools and the thrust of the Esch anti-busing amendment in the decision today overturning the Roth decision in Detroit."

New guard rails on Schoolcraft to reduce fatalities

By W.W. EDGAR

If you happen to be driving along Schoolcraft Road, alongside the new Jeffries Freeway, and notice the absence of the old steel guard rails that were fastened to posts at regular intervals don't become alarmed. They have been shunted into the limbo of forgotten things.

In their place you'll find a pure white curved wall which is the latest thing in traffic safety and it promises to greatly reduce the number of fatalities that have been reaching outlandish figures.

THIS NEW safety device, designed to prevent the vaulting of the median into oncoming traffic, is a product of the General Motors proving ground in Milford and is now playing a prominent role in all future highway planning.

Not only is this new concept safer, but is much cheaper to install. According to engineers in the state highway department, the new concrete wall can be installed for $12 a foot compared to $20 for the old metal rail.

The real safety factor comes in the design which will cause a car that has gone out of control to be turned back into the traffic stream in which it was headed.

This has been brought about by the fact that the new white wall is 32 inches high, six inches wide at the top and flares out at the bottom. At intervals it will be 15 inches wide at the top to permit the installation of lights, (which also is a new safety factor).

IN THE TESTS at GM proving grounds it was found a vehicle hitting the wall at a 20 degree angle will be reflected back into traffic. And at 35 mph a car hitting the new wall will suffer no sheet metal damage.

With the old metal guard rail cars out of control often vaulted the metal barrier into an oncoming traffic stream or, at times when the wheels became entangled in the metal on impact, the car flipped over, usually with a loss of life.

With lighting being placed on top of the new white wall, the light posts no longer should be a danger mark on the new highways—at least this was proven so in the tests.

Before being installed on the Jeffries Freeway (Schoolcraft Road) they were used as an experiment on the Ford Freeway in the Shaefer Road area. Later they were installed as experiments just east of both the Ford and Chrysler freeways on Detroit's east side.

THE SUCCESS in those areas caused the highway department to adopt the new safety wall and it is now being installed on the Ford Freeway as far as Warren Avenue. Later in the year it will be extended to Eight Mile Road.

Proof of the value of the new device was furnished in the experiment at the Dequindre yards on the Ford Freeway. Always rated as a danger spot, there hasn't been a fatality since the new wall was constructed.

Over the years Ford Freeway had a record of 11 fatalities annually, most of them caused by heavy trucks crashing through the barrier. This crashing no longer will be possible and highway officials are looking for a great decrease in the fatality rate when the new device is installed.

The white wall is the third step in the safety program along the freeways of the state.

WHEN THE freeways were started several decades ago, heavy wire ropes and chains, fastened to six inch posts on the median were used to guide the traffic.

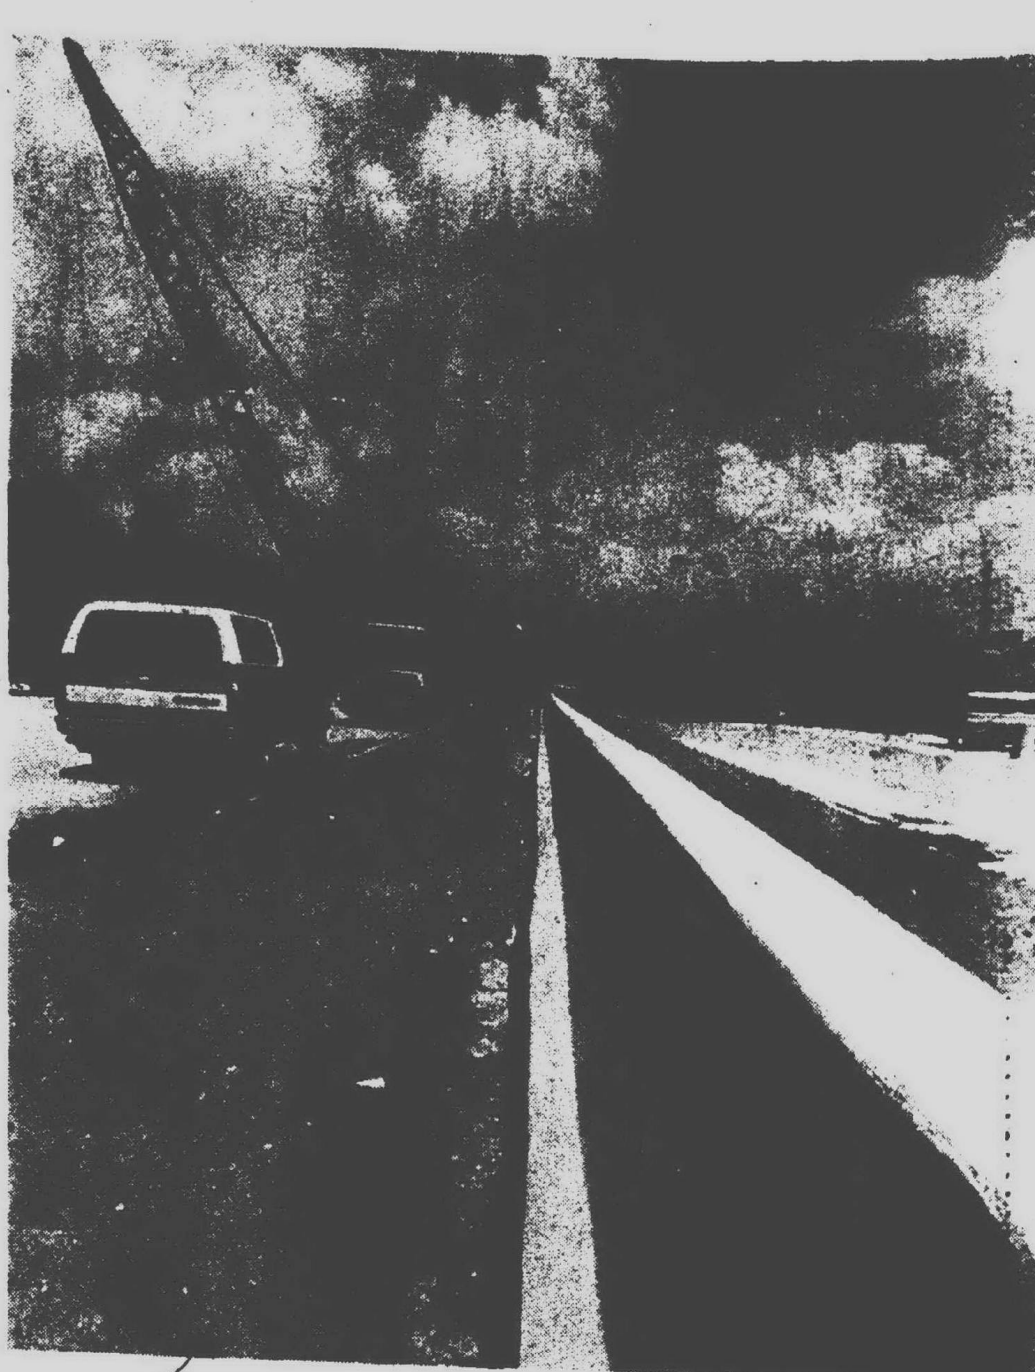

These ropes and chains gave way to the wide metal strips on posts and, in some cases, a wire fence such as is being used in the Kensington Park area. At times shrubbery also was put to use.

None of these plans provided the safety highway officials had hoped for until General Motors developed the wall.

So, if you miss the old metal guard rail and the white posts, there's a good reason for their absence. It is a matter of life and death.

THE FAMILIAR metal guardrail on freeways have been responsible for many traffic fatalities as the wheel of the auto gets caught in the rail, flipping the vehicle over.

AN INNOVATION, which highway engineers believe will save lives, is this ramped cement device now being installed on Schoolcraft Road for the new Jeffries Freeway. (Staff photos by Bob Woodring).

Ryan runs for probate seat

Harold M. Ryan, Detroit attorney, is among the candidates seeking election to one of the newly created seats on the Wayne County Probate Court.

Speaking recently to the Michigan Building Tradesmen, Ryan said he would like to see a change in the juvenile delinquency law, so that youth who are home and school truants should be classified and dealt with differently than those who are charged with a criminal offense, and that juvenile court should retain jurisdiction of these cases.

"My experience as an attorney for more than 30 years, and as a legislator in the state and U.S. Congress, along with my constant participation in community affairs, have contributed in preparing me for this important and judicial function as probate judge," says Ryan.

Ryan received his law degree from University of Detroit. He had been elected for seven consecutive terms as Democratic State Senator from the 1st District. During those 14 years, his colleagues elected him to be the Senate Democratic leader.

He was then elected to Congress and served two terms under both President John Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson. He remained in office until the merger of two eastside congressional districts, after which he resumed the practice of law.

Twp. candidates' forum

that the township might investigate forming an auxiliary police force with the city.

Notebaert wondered, "Are we being fairly treated" on the township's state equalizing factor and said he would investigate that if elected. As to sewer extensions, he said, "Certain areas are in need of sewers and certainly we've got to get them to them."

Joe West said his aim as treasurer would be "to keep taxes to a minimum. He also favored "establishing our own police protection when the time arrives" and said greater cooperation with the city is needed.

Rezoning must be watched, West said, and sewer should be extended wherever it is "beneficial."

The winner of the four-way race for the Republican spot in the treasurer race will face Janet G. Pierangelino in November. She is unopposed for the Democratic nomination.

Stressing the population growth as the township's most important issue, Mrs. Pierangelino said, "More people require more services."

She said the city proposal for contracting police services is "a reasonable solution for a township that shares common boundaries with the city." Ecology measures such as bike paths and an outdoor public pool are also needed, Mrs. Pierangelino added.

Although the two candidates for township trustee in each party face no primary opposition, they also spoke at the forum.

Richard Gornick, a Republican, said he was an "advocate of strong township government" and an opponent to consolidation. "I'm in favor of our own local police department," he added.

Strong ordinance enforcement and refuse disposal by the township were two issues which Gornick said were also important.

Frank Millington, an incumbent Republican, said he had served well as a trustee and criticized the township's frequent demands for legal opinions.

"Give us an injunction, that'll settle the legal opinion in a hurry," Millington said.

Democrat Tom Sullivan said his primary concern is the "question of how and in what manner we're going to survive. We are fast becoming a part of the urban fringe."

He said the township should look at different types of governments and "have the foresight to look at those things and present these options to the people" as it did in the consolidation study.

Sullivan suggested that one option to be seriously considered is that of becoming a charter township which would fix the boundaries and thwart annexation.

Orville Tungate, the other Democratic candidate for trustee, did not attend the forum.

Responding to a question from the audience, four of the township candidates revealed connections with the real estate business.

Notebaert, who holds a broker's license and owns his own real estate company, said that if elected, he would "do something with my business so there would be no conflict."

West, who holds a real estate sales license, said that if elected he would place it in escrow.

Mrs. Milligan said that while she has a real estate sales license now, she has not been using it.

Breen said that he is an attorney for a real estate firm but added later that he would not give up his law practice if elected supervisor. "You just don't do that," he said.

New Canton fire station proceeds if millage OKd

CANTON — Trustees awarded a bid for an addition to the Cherry Hill Road fire station, but will await the outcome of the Aug. 6 election before proceeding with construction on a new station at Warren and Haggerty Roads.

On the recommendation of its architect, Ralls, Becker and Hamill, the board approved the low bid of Reliance Construction Co. of Livonia of $113,700 to enlarge facilities to better accommodate larger equipment the township has on order.

The addition should be completed in six months.

An architect's sketch presented at the board meeting last week showed that the proposed fire station in the northeast sector carries a "guesstimate" price tag of $335,750.

Among the features of the project are a 60-by-40 maintenance building for servicing all township vehicles and a 1,500 square foot community meeting room in addition to offices and living quarters for fire personnel.

Trustees directed the Livonia architectural firm to proceed with preliminary plans, noting that complete approval will depend on the outcome of the Aug. 6 election. On the ballot is a three-mill request earmarked for

Canton groups holding forum for candidates

CANTON—A candidates night for Canton Township residents voting in the Aug. 6 primary will be held Thursday, Aug. 1 in the cafeteria at Plymouth-Canton High School.

The Pickwick Village Homeowners and Civic Association, Northwest Homeowners Association and Windsor Park Civic Association will sponsor the event, which will begin at 8 p.m. and include short presentations by the candidates followed by written questions from the audience.

torneys and professionals in township government," he said.

In response to Marts' attack, Greenstein promised that "I'll spend as much time as necessary on township business. I don't think the supervisor's job can be classified as full time, that means you can quit after 40 hours. I'll put in the time, even if it's 60 hours, whether that's full time or not I'll let you decide."

Greenstein vowed to oppose more apartment and commercial zoning in the township in the near future. "I don't think any court in the U.S. would force us to zone any more multiple or commercial land," he said. "We're going to do something very serious about the planning commission."

He advocated election of the entire five-member Democratic Club slate. "If all five are not elected a lot of goals will never be realized because there won't be the vote," he said.

Slate candidate for treasurer, Carl Parsell, said that he would give "high priority to business and industry moving into the township, but we must blend it with the rural atmosphere." He advocated asking developers to replace every tree they destroy with a new one elsewhere on their land.

Democrat Thomas Stevens, also a candidate for treasurer, cited his background as preparation for the Canton post. Born in Yugoslavia, he fought as a pilot in allied air forces in World War II and immigrated to Canton 27 years ago.

"I traveled the entire European continent, Asia, Africa and came to Canton to run for treasurer," he said. He called for more industry in the township, but stressed that it should be well-planned. "Not just with garbage strewn around," he said, "but make it look attractive."

Democratic candidate Grant Campbell, the incumbent, did not attend the candidates night.

Republican Treasurer Candidate Richard Wolfe Jr. cited his educational background and work with the Wayne County Board of Commissioners as qualifications for the post. "It's crucial that our treasurer be well qualified," he said.

Township Clerk John Flodin is unopposed as a Democrat in the August primary and has no opposition in the November election. "I hope it means some people are satisfied with what I'm doing," he said.

Candidates for the two four-year terms on the township board of trustees include Democrats Brian Schwall, Joseph DeLauro and Robert Myers and Republicans Joseph Kinick, Warren Attwood and William Ryan.

Attwood vowed to "strive for economy in township government" by seeking additional grants from state and federal sources. He said he would "continue to encourage development of recreation. I believe this can be done by supporting existing programs." He asked for township codes for weed control and junk cars as steps toward beautification.

Kinnick spoke in opposition to the Democratic Club's slate. "The thing I'd like to do is not ask, 'what are you going to do,' but 'who are you going to work with?'" he said. He called for increased police and fire protection. Kinnick has served on as chairman of the Canton Township Planning Commission and defended the efforts of that body.

Democratic Slate Candidate Myers attacked the job of the planning commission. "We've lacked effective leadership for a long time," he said. "Some people may say Canton is pretty well planned. I say Canton township is planned chaos."

He asked for greater attention to recreation needs and agreed with Parsell that developers should be called upon to replace trees they destroy.

Republican Trustee Candidate Ryan advocated more thorough analysis of the township budget. Asked how often he has attended board meetings, he said: "I've been to no meetings of the U. S. Congress, but I'm interested; I've been to no meetings in Lansing, but I'm interested; I've been to six meetings of the Canton Township board and I'm interested."

Democrat Schwall, an incumbent, outlined a four-part list of township priorities; rational land-use planning, public safety, organization and efficiency in township government and preservation of recreational space, including development of recreational areas.

Democratic candidate DeLauro, a member of the Democratic Club slate, was absent.

Candidates for the one two-year term on the board of trustees are Democrats Frank McMurray, Gerald Cheske and Irene Murphy.

Cheske, a member of the Democratic Club slate, called for stricter zoning regulations and limiting multiple-unit dwellings to 20 per cent of the total dwellings in the township.

McMurray asked for elimination of air traffic at Mettetal Airport and said citizens should "work together, not in factions. Our community identity will come when our short and long-range goals are clearly established."

Mrs. Murphy did not attend the candidates night.

Virtually all candidates present called for passage of the public safety millage on the Aug. 6 ballot and voiced strong opposition to the cable television franchise proposed for the township.

Canton board: vote 'no' on cable TV

By MARIE MCGEE

CANTON—Canton trustees have taken a position of urging a "no" vote on the cable TV issue that will appear on the Aug. 6 primary ballot.

A resolution urging the defeat of the controversial issue was sponsored by Trustee James Poole with support from Trustee Brian Schwall. The only "nay" vote was that of Clerk John Flodin. Flodin, however, did speak out against the issue at the candidates' night public forum Thursday night.

Poole has been critical of the contract granting a 30-year cable TV franchise to Canton Community Systems, Inc. since the outset of talks between the cable TV firm and trustees. He was the only trustee to vote against the contract when it came up for a vote a year ago.

His first official night on the board, Schwall had voted in favor of the contract, but has since labeled his action "a mistake."

More attention on the issue came when the Plymouth branch of the AAUW last week publicly urged a "no" vote after extensive research by its media group.

The AAUW cited five reasons in its position paper which was printed in the Thursday edition of the Plymouth Observer & Eccentric. The AAUW paper was also read into the minutes of the Canton board meeting.

THE LAST TWO major fires in Plymouth Township destroyed buildings which had been condemned - a large barn on the former Brinks Farm site and the Specialty Feed and Grain building. Although the township had ordered those buildings torn down, their owners had not complied. Since the barn fire, the Brinks farm house has sat empty and open to vandals. (Staff photo by Doug Johnson)

No police department hampers building condemnations

By MAURIE WALKER

PLYMOUTH TOWNSHIP—"Without a police department, it is difficult to enforce a condemnation order. In many instances the only answer is a costly court case."

This is the response of James

Briggs, Plymouth Township building inspector when questioned about recent major fires in buildings which had been condemned by the township.

One of these fires, the Specialty Feed building occurred on June 25 costing the township approximately $2,700 to fight.

This structure belonged to the C&O Railroad who had received notice from the township last April 25 that the building should be torn down.

"I sent a letter to the C&O April 25 telling them the building was condemned. On May 1, the railroad, in a letter to me, acknowledged the feed building and several other structures on the property were unsafe and they had it under study," Briggs said. He added that he had given the C&O 10 days to respond to his letter informing the railroad the buildings were in violation of the township building codes.

"They responded within the limit, saying they may use some of the buildings."

"The railroad has not been uncooperative but the feed building fire still ended up as a cost to the township," Briggs said.

The building inspector added that it is almost impossible to enforce a condemnation order to a big firm.

"The little man usually doesn't have the money to fight the order, but large firms have their own lawyers and can take the case to court. This automatically gives them a delay pending outcome of the court case."

Another fire in a condemned building that proved costly to the township was the one on the old Brinks farm, last month.

"I wrote a letter to Equity Resources Inc., owners of the property, on Jan. 4, 1973 informing them of condemnation proceedings."

"The firm responded Jan. 9, agreed to tear down the old 'haunted house' but asked for a delay on the Brinks farm to July, 1973 'because of an impending sale.'"

Briggs said the delay was granted. On July 17 last year, he sent another letter asking the firm to demolish the building as requested in January.

"About Aug. 1, the township board of trustees received a letter from Gregory I. Donovan for Equity complaining of 'inadequate' fire and police protection, stating the firm was a big taxpayer and that it would cost them $9,000 to raze the building."

"I waited for some action by the board and then last March 15 sent another letter to the firm asking for compliance with the order to demolish the building. We threatened legal action," he said.

On March 31 a blaze destroyed the large barn on the property but the house, which was saved, has been sitting open ever since.

Briggs got no response to his letter and brought the case to the attention of the township attorney. Nothing has happened yet, he said.

Township Fire Chief James Gignac said he feels the only way action will come in condemnation procedures is to have a fire inspector, a move he started two years ago.

Bowling alley has opponents in 4 areas

By LEONARD FOGER

A developer planning a 50-lane bowling alley will appeal the Westland Planning Commission's denial of the required rezoning.

The rezoning sought for the southeast corner of Joy and Hannan was opposed unanimously by the commission and a standing-room-only crowd of 100 Westland, Canton, Plymouth and Livonia homeowners.

The proposed bowling alley on a 15-acre site is sought for the intersection which touches the boundaries of three of Westland's neighbors.

ALL BUT one of the speakers at the hearing opposed the rezoning, including the Detroit Catholic Archdiocese which sold the site to Anthony Capaldi, who owns Westland Bowl, on Wayne Rd. near Ford.

Capaldi told the Observer & Eccentric after the one-hour public hearing Wednesday he plans to appeal the commission's action to the city council immediately.

HE DENIED claims of Neil Hayes, attorney for the archdiocese, that he misrepresented his intentions when the preliminary purchase agreement was signed recently.

Capaldi revealed his plans for a bowling alley on land presently zoned for single-family houses on 80-foot lots.

Hayes said the agreement was based on the existing zoning and the archdiocese opposes the commercial rezoning request on that basis.

There was also a three-way debate among Hayes, Capaldi and commissioners who legally controls the land.

Hayes said the archdiocese still has the deed to the property and may go to court to keep Capaldi from gaining possession of the land.

The archdiocese retained six acres on the intersection's southeast corner for a new church, Divine Savior Community, for which building plans have been submitted to the planning department.

Besides neighboring residents in Canton, Plymouth and Livonia, opposition came from the Canton Township Board, represented by Trustee Brian Schwall.

Schwall said the township board the previous night unanimously opposed the rezoning because of traffic safety hazards for nearby residents and people using the Fiegel Elementary School.

The board said:

"IT IS OUR firm belief that when one is confronted with the choice between good planning which will preserve the environment necessary for the quality of life we seek and economic and financial benefit to a single developer or even to a city, we must choose good planning, environment and quality of life."

Planning Director Ted McMullan recommended denial of the rezoning based on residential zoning on three sides of the L-shaped parcel and a commercial zone would constitute "spot zoning."

He said a commercial zone on that site would also hinder residential development on adjacent land, a point disputed by Ernest Maddock, Westland's economic development director.

In a memo to the commission, Maddock said:

"FROM A land economics point of view, it is felt (the land) will never develop with single-family housing."

He disagreed with the director's spot zoning conclusion, noting that there is a commercial zone to the west of the proposed bowling alley.

"Rezoning the parcel as requested would simply be a matter of extending existing commercial zoning," Maddock said. "It is also felt that to consider a parcel of this size (15 acres) spot zoning is to abuse the concept of spot zoning."

He felt the site is "undevelopable under its present zoning classification" and a commercial rezoning "will be a logical and intelligent use" of the site.

Capaldi said he tried for five years to buy the site from the archdiocese, which had declared 15 of the 21 acres as surplus property.

He said controls the land and has a purchase agreement and binding contract.

He stressed that the purchase isn't contingent on the commercial rezoning.

Capaldi defended the site as a good location for a bowling alley since other facilities are filled and there are no others in the area, a point disputed by residents in the audience.

Capaldi disagreed with the church's attorney that he promised to retain the residential zoning.

COMMISSION Chairman Fred Myers said that promises made between the buyer and seller aren't the business of the commission.

If there is a dispute over who legally owns the land, that is a case for the courts, not the commission, he added.

McMullan said he contacted City Attorney John Nellis on that issue and quoted Nellis as saying Capaldi is entitled to the commission hearing.

Traffic hazards cited by Schwall, Robert Greenstein, attorney for the nearby Holiday Park subdivision and residents were the two-lanes of Joy and the heavy traffic generated by the Deer Creek apartment complex, a short distance west of the proposed bowling alley.

Establishment of a bowling alley and the possibility of a liquor license there would also create traffic safety problems for persons attending evening activities at Fiegel Elementary, just west of the site.

COMMISSIONER David Gooze said that the Michigan Liquor Control Commission usually denies liquor license requests if a majority of neighboring homeowners object.

He said that a commercial rezoning would not only have an "adverse affect" on residential development in the northwest corner of the city but also lead to future commercial and apartment requests in that area.

Representative candidates split on land use laws

PLYMOUTH—Democrat Mrs. Merian Frederick of Ann Arbor and Republican Roy Smith of Ypsilanti Township, unopposed contenders for 52nd District state representative, disagree on the role the state should play in land use legislation.

The 52nd District includes most of Washtenaw County, the City of Plymouth and most of Plymouth Township. Both candidates replied to several questions posed by the Plymouth Observer & Eccentric.

"I PREFER local control," Smith said of land use supervision. Mrs. Frederick favors state action: "The state must increase protection to irreplaceable land assets, such as the Great Lakes shore line, in a way which permits the owner to enjoy, but not destroy, his property."

"The state should encourage local units to develop plans which," she continued, "consider total impact even across governmental boundaries, coordinate with plans of other communities and provide a commitment for capital improvement projects which will be needed for satisfactory living and which were necessitated by the development."

Both candidates are opposed to local governments holding secret sessions. "I sponsored and was successful in having passed the first legislation in the State of Michigan making mandatory an open public meeting law in 1968," Smith said.

"I recognize the need for discussions by public bodies dealing with certain personnel where the right, welfare and human dignity of the individual must be respected and protected," he added, citing an occasion when a secret session might be in order.

"Secrecy corrupts," said Mrs. Frederick. "Closed meetings should be allowed only for a few legally-specified subjects. The vote to close a meeting should be by a publicly-recorded roll call."

"Actions taken in illegally-closed meetings should be voided. Citizens should be able to sue for enforcement; no law works without teeth."

MRS. FREDERICK expressed support for a $100 transportation billion bond issue proposed by the governor and the mayor of Detroit.

"It would give Michigan a badly needed balanced transportation system without increasing taxes," she said.

"'Balanced' means some alternative to the private automobile such as rapid transit facilities and lake ports."

"I feel we need to move quickly in the area of public transportation," Smith said. "I am not familiar enough with this particular bond program to say whether it is the best method."

Both candidates hold Abraham Lincoln among their personal political heroes. Mrs. Frederick also cited Thomas Jefferson and the French writer Voltaire (for saying, "I disagree with what you say; but I will defend to the death your right to say it").

Besides Lincoln, Smith also particularly admires George Washington, Harry Truman and Dwight D. Eisenhower.

ASKED WHO is to blame for segregation in the suburbs and what can be done about it, Smith said:

"We all are. We should continue to enforce our laws in fairness of treatment for all."

Egnor raps postal delays

So-called "innovations" by the U.S. Postal Service will make mail in the Ann Arbor-Ypsilanti area even slower than it is now, said Ronald W. Egnor, Democratic candidate for nomination to Congress from the 2nd District, at a recent meeting of the Ann Arbor City Democratic Party.

The Ann Arbor Post Office, which serves as a clearing house for mail from area post offices, "is blessed with one of the most efficient postal departments in the state," explained Egnor.

"Out-of-town mail is dispatched directly, either to the air mail facility at Detroit Metro Airport, or to other specific destinations within the state."

"PLANS ARE being made to send all out-of-town mail from Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti to Dearborn to be sorted," said Egnor, then sent to Detroit for dispatch.

At the heart of this "innovation," is a Postal Service desire to cut back on personnel to save money, whether or not service suffers in the process, said Egnor.

In Ann Arbor, "40 part-time postal assistants, mostly students, will lose their jobs. Twenty other full time employees have been notified their positions may be in jeopardy," Egnor said.

THIS IS HARDLY the first time the U.S. Postal Service has opted to sacrifice for fiscal or political considerations, noted Egnor.

"In 1972, for most of the year, the Postal Service was under orders from the Republican-appointed postmaster general not to hire new personnel. As a result deliveries became more and more backlogged until Christmas, when the post office was completely overwhelmed."

"Why did this happen? Because the White House told the postmaster general to do whatever necessary to avoid a rate increase before the November election."

Egnor also criticized incumbent Republican Rep. Marvin Esch (R-Ann Arbor) for wringing headlines from local newspapers with a call for public hearings on the postal system, then failing to accomplish anything.

On March 8 of this year, "our present congressman called public hearings on the postal service," Egnor said.

"On June 1, the postmaster general rejected Esch's suggestion. Esch has cooperated with the administration the overwhelming majority of the time."

"The postmaster general clearly isn't too worried about him making any waves."

Schoolcraft board told of state aid

BY SHERRY KAHAN

Dr. E. Nelson Grote, president of Schoolcraft College, told trustees at a recent meeting that in a school aid bill for community colleges passed recently by the state legislature, Schoolcraft will receive $100,000.

The college will also profit from the passage of a capital construction bill to the tune of a $5,000 planning grant, he said.

"While this was not as good as receiving a construction grant, we were told by legislators it was the best they could do."

"This grant will set into sequence the funding of our culinary arts addition."

He also discussed the retirement bill recently passed by both houses and expected to be signed by the governor. This bill is a 30-and-out bill applying to all educators in the state.

"We will be monitoring it to see how it affects our situation," said Grote. "There will soon be a conference to bring together college administrators to interpret it."

BUSY OR unathletic students frustrated by the college's requirement for two semesters of physical education will be interested to learn this requirement has now been dropped by the board.

While still concerned that students continue their gym courses, the board changed the requirement to a recommendation urging students "earn a minimum of two credits in physical education."

In the discussion before the vote, Grote expressed concern on the need for physical education credits for students transferring into certain universities which have physical education requirements.

Athletic director Marvin Ganz pointed out that Schoolcraft's counselors feel those enrolled in their nursing program should also take the first-aid course offered by the physical education department because this knowledge is not available in any of their other courses.

Opposing the change Leroy Bennett pointed out that "physical education means physical fitness."

"There are unfit people all over the world," he said. "Physical education is part of education and ought to be a required course in a business curriculum."

Bennett suggested the athletic courses be incorporated into the curriculum for credit.

"If a course is needed it should be given toward the 60 hours credits needed for graduation. If it is not needed we shouldn't require it."

Grote said that to include gym credit toward the 60 credits needed for graduation would jeopardize a student's ability to transfer to another institution.

In resolving the issue, trustees decided that if it were necessary for a student to have a certain course, or a number of physical education credits toward transfer, his counselor would so advise him.

The final vote favoring relaxation of the physical education requirement was five to two.

Grote observed that with the elimination of this requirement "it could eventually mean we put ourselves in a layoff position."

TRUSTEES accepted a gift of $100 to the college from the Plymouth Optimist Club.

However, a gift of $1,000 from the Bulldog Aquatic club was not accepted. The club requested its gift be "specifically directed toward the purchase of electronic timing equipment for the swimming pool."

Rosina Raymond supported acceptance of the gift. Grote pointed out, however, that "should the board agree to accept this gift of $1,000, then it will be necessary for the board to authorize a transfer of at least $4,300 from the general contingency account" to pay for the electric timing device.

After Ganz pointed out that the extra money could eventually be raised from its swimming meets, the board voted to return the money.

However, it moved to ask the aquatic club if it would be willing to hold the money for the college until after the fall swim-a-thon, so the college could then see how much money could be realized from such events.

WHILE THE board was discussing some of its long range curriculum ideas for the future, trustee Archibald Vallier criticized the college for failing to take advantage of the presence in the Schoolcraft area of many large automotive, electronic and air-conditioning firms.

"We have to develop liaison with the top management in these plants," he said. "They can tell us what courses we need and what we should be training our students for. We don't have the industrial support we need in this college."

"They could give us money, support and advice. We should get them behind us. Here is a golden opportunity we are missing."

Grote pointed out that, when the report recently developed by the community services department is completed, "you will find we are doing more with business and industry than you are aware of."

"But it is still not enough," he added.

THE VENDOR'S list used by the college for informing businesses that it invites bids on its equipment or projects was also the subject of some anger on the part of Vallier.

He claimed a number of area companies had missed opportunity to bid for Schoolcraft's business because they had not been added to the list.

Bennett suggested this error be avoided in the future.

By unanimous vote the board resolved to honor college librarian Edmund S. Snyder, who will retire in August after a 45-year career in education, both as a teacher and librarian. The board voted to award him the rank of librarian emeritus.

Hathaway a candidate for appeals court

Recorder's Court Judge James A. Hathaway, a candidate for the Michigan Court of Appeals, has urged lawyers to uplift and improve the standards and image of the legal profession.

In an address to the Livingston County Bar Association recently, Hathaway said attorneys as a whole have received a tarnished reputation because of national publicity of the Watergate figures and attorneys who have achieved notoriety on a local level.

"Attorneys must not do that which is easy and convenient to do, but must undertake that which is necessary to do in order that the nation may survive and flourish."

HATHAWAY WARNED that a revolution was coming in the legal profession and if the organized bar associations failed in their responsibilities, the reform would come from outside the legal profession.

"We as individuals and as the organized bar must answer this question or the public will surely inquire: 'Is the legal profession in some ways a sham?'"

"Do we promise equality under the law, and conduct a system of law which functions only because large groups of citizens are ignorant of their legal rights and remedies, a system that appears to work because most people don't use it?" he asked.

IN HIS CAMPAIGN for one of the two new appellate positions, Hathaway has stressed the importance of the court of appeals and the need to insure it is staffed with jurists who have demonstrated ability, expertise and disposition needed.

Presently, he says, the court of appeals handles more than 3,200 appeals yearly and the caseload is increasing.

Michigan Court of Appeals, expressed the view that a strong appellate judiciary should perform its constitutional decision making duties with a strong dose of judicial self-restraint.

"There is a tendency on the part of some appellate judges today to write their opinions in the distant and abstract isolation of appellate conference rooms, without taking into careful account practical impact their decision will have upon generations to come."

MAHER EXPLAINED that in recent years there has been a proliferation of appellate court cases of "incredible and unnecessary length, in which some judges write on countless issues not really before them."

"In consequence, the judges impose upon the people of Michigan, for generations to come, political, economic, and social policy neither sought by, nor approved by, the people of Michigan, and often wholly unacceptable to them."

Normally, he said, cases reach court of appeals with very narrowly defined issues calling for appellate decision, but sometimes the higher court expands and issues an overbroad opinion to impose the judge's personal philosophy.

1st battle lost in maneuvers for county executive

By BOB ERICKSON

A power struggle between representatives of Wayne County suburbs and Detroit-oriented forces in the Wayne County Board of Commissioners appears to be shaping as a defeat for the suburbs.

Despite backing by Wayne County Commissioners from this area, the concept of a chief executive for the county has not been favorably received by the full board.

AN ATTEMPT by Commissioner Mary Dumas (R-Livonia) to push through a resolution that would put the question of a county manager on the November ballot ran into considerable opposition at a board of commissioners meeting last week when two attempts to expedite action on the resolution were decisively defeated.

Those attempts, which received support from commissioners Dumas, Tom F. Taylor (D-Westland), and Brian G. Arrowsmith (R-Canton Township), were beaten by what another suburban county officer, Commissioner Richard E. Manning (D-Redford), called "tremendous opposition from organized labor and...the black caucus."

According to Manning, who was not present for the voting, forces from the Detroit area on the commission are opposed to the concept of a chief executive or county manager because they feel an elected county executive would dilute their power in the county and could place control of many county offices like sheriff and county auditor under the control of the suburban population.

The defeats came when Mrs. Dumas tried, midway through the board meeting, to move the question of the resolution higher on the agenda to assure a quorum would still be present.

sent if the matter could be brought to a substantive vote.

That motion was defeated 11-8 with Dumas, Taylor and Arrowsmith all voting in favor. Eighteen votes would have been needed to pass the motion.

MRS. DUMAS tried again later in the meeting when she moved to suspend the rules to allow action on the resolution on the same day it appeared on the agenda. That motion was even more soundly defeated, 13-2 with one abstention.

Some board members reportedly opposed the resolution on the additional grounds that if the question were put on the November ballot and passed, a later special election would have to be held to actually elect the proposed county executive. That election could cost the county about $800,000.

The possibility of electing someone to such an office is new to the county. It was just last year the state legislature passed a law allowing counties to elect a chief executive whose functions would be similar to those of a mayor, a city manager or a governor in other levels of government.

A county executive would, under the terms of the new law, have the authority to appoint persons to county offices that had previously been elected offices.

INTERESTING FACTS

Here's quite an oddity that few people realize. Three of the first five U.S. Presidents all died on July 4! The second U.S. President, John Adams, died July 4, 1826 at Quincy, Mass. The third U.S. President died at Charlottesville, Va. on July 4th, 1826 - the same day in the same year as Adams. And the fifth U.S. President, James Monroe, died July 4, 1831 in New York - thus completing this amazing coincidence.

AND HERE'S ANOTHER interesting fact... Hospital Costs... have increased well over 100% during the past ten years! Are you adequately covered by your present Hospital Insurance? # We endorse Canton public safety millage

There are two referenda on the Aug. 6 Canton Township ballot which are vitally important to the future.

The first, a proposed three-mill tax to provide funds for public safety purposes, can have a tremendous impact on fire safety and police protection for the township. We strongly recommend its passage.

Thus far the township board has not said how much of the three mills it would levy at first if it passed, but Township Clerk John Flodin has said it is unlikely that all of it would be assessed.

In endorsing the millage, we insist that the township board be more specific about its plans for its use but agree that the future of public safety programs — police and fire — in the rapidly growing township mandate additional millage.

There was quite a furor following the fire that claimed the lives of the James Burnham family, and many suddenly realized that the township needs more fire protection. (A citizens' study committee reached that conclusion following its investigation of the Burnham fire.)

With Canton's rapid growth and the county's persistent threat to discontinue providing police protection for townships, we believe more funding for the local government is necessary to insure adequate law enforcement for residents.

The public safety millage deserves the support of all who thus far have registered only negative comments about public safety in Canton. It is a positive step, but the township board must carefully explain its use of anything levied of that three mills.

ALSO ON THE BALLOT will be the proposed cable television franchise. We recommend a "no" vote on this.

In a reversal of its decision to grant the franchise, the township board has even voted to recommend its defeat. (The American Association of University Women cable TV study committee has also endorsed a 'no' vote on the franchise.)

The board granted an exclusive 30-year franchise to one company which as such should not be approved by the voters. (The City of Plymouth has granted a non-exclusive franchise — the best guarantee against non-performance by a company or a get-rich-quick sale of the license.)

In addition, the company to which the Canton Township board assigned the franchise has demonstrated no ability in the field of cable television, has had little communication with township officials about implementing the service and has no local contact where such information can be ascertained.

Coupled with recommending the franchise's defeat, we urge the township board to seek professional help in drafting an acceptable franchise and recommend soliciting bids from several other established cable television companies.

County school one mill tax needed for special children

Fifty thousand children need your vote and help on primary election day, Aug. 6.

Wayne County voters can provide that help by approving a proposed one mill ($1 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation) for local schools' special education programs.

The levy, on a county basis, would raise an estimated $13.4 million and would enable the county to qualify for another $5 million in state funds.

Wayne County Intermediate School District officials pledged that the funds would be returned to local districts to use for their own programs.

Benefiting from the money will be youngsters who are physically, mentally or emotionally handicapped and need special help available in existing programs.

The millage would allow local districts to improve and expand on special education programs. We recommend a 'Yes' vote.

'Undertones are disrupting Canton board meetings'

EDITOR:

Having read the article about the undertones that go on at the Canton Township trustees meetings by Lynne Goldsmith, I must say that I totally agree with her. Sometimes I wonder why some of this stuff is tolerated or allowed.

It would seem to me that you come to these meetings to find out information on what is going on in the township and not to visit with your friends and neighbors.

To do this you would have to sit in the front row to determine the board's words from the undertones that are going on all around you.

I would hope that Bob Greenstein and his concerned team are remembering all the places that they are putting up their various signs for this campaign and remember that they said they would take them all down later on.

It appears to me that you can't go to far in this area of Canton and not see a large sign about a concerned team. I would think that a really concerned team wouldn't need quite so many signs or quite so large, a few of which restrict the view of oncoming traffic.

'Greenstein is a man of courage'

EDITOR:

May I have equal space to reply to Lynn Goldsmith's "Greenstein Campaign Elsewhere?"

I too have observed Mr. Greenstein's behavior and found it disturbing but I can understand his difficulty to contain himself.

Here is a man who has a special love for this township for the openness and privacy the area provides for the wholesome growth of his children. He moved away from the tar and cement development that enveloped Livonia.

For him to stand idly by while the great land giveaway goes on in our township is next to impossible. He is a man who has totally immersed himself in preventing the encroachment of privacy which the disregard of the original township plan is bringing upon us.

Don't condemn him, Lynn, until you've experienced the privacy and serenity that Hanford Road and the few remaining Hanford Roads in our township have to offer. Come enjoy and remember, while you can, for the few fleeting moments that remain before the bulldozers rape to pieces nature's handiwork.

There are too many of us who are content to lay back while he takes up the cudgel in our behalf.

He is a man of courage; a man of conviction. We need him if we want to restore stability to our township's development.

He has my respect and vote.

Garden is tiny but yield is big in produce and fun

By CORINNE ABATT

In square footage, the family garden at the Redford Township home of the John Baloh family is small. But, in amount of produce and flowers, it rivals many three and four times its size.

The trick is in planning, tending, watering—plus plenty of creativity. Barbara Baloh says of her garden-husband:

"He's creative, and every year he adds something new and every year he does something different."

All the family, Dale, 17; Diane, 15; Donald, 14; Dave, 11, and Darlene, 9, do their part to keep father's garden blooming and beautiful.

Flowers and vegetables are mixed in appealing combinations.

In the garden at the corner of Dixie and Schoolcraft, the small deep green clumps of bib lettuce are separated by yellow marigolds. These form a border for a row of green peppers with a few zinnias mixed in for color and contrast.

Behind is a row of tomato plants, more than four feet tall, each growing in the center of a cylinder of wire fencing. Poles of stained redwood with cross bars on top support ropes for the string beans and cucumbers to climb.

In another small garden near by, there is a border of several kinds of leaf lettuce and farther in are onions, romaine lettuce, sturdy clumps of Swiss chard, castor beans and sunflowers.

Baloh, his wife says, will fill every planter he can find and last year discovered wine barrels. He cuts the barrel in half through the center, paints the wood with redwood stain, touches up the hoops with black paint and the planters are ready.

Two of them on posts in the garden are planted with petunias of a variety of colors. In the center of each is a tall plant with lush gray, green leaves and bright purple flowers—egg plant.

"He read about doing this in a gardening book," Mrs. Baloh says of her husband, "and decided to try it and it really works."

She has already frozen string beans from the garden, is certain there will be enough tomatoes to can and is using zucchini from the big plants in the far corner full of bright yellow blossoms.

Mrs. Baloh has two favorite ways of preparing zucchini, both of which have family approval.

To make stuffed zucchini, she peels and removes the centers and lets the zucchini drain. She browns about a pound of hamburger and some garlic together, then adds a half a cup of parmesan cheese, two eggs, bread crumbs, salt and pepper and a small amount of water.

When the zucchini is stuffed with this filling and placed in a baking dish, Mrs. Baloh makes a sauce for the top from onions browned in a skillet to which tomatoes are added. She lets the sauce mixture simmer until the tomatoes are soft and adds a tablespoon of sugar.

The stuffed zucchini topped with the tomato sauce is baked in a 350 degree oven for an hour to an hour and a half.

For a side vegetable, Mrs. Baloh slices the zucchini thin, rolls the slices in flour, eggs and bread crumbs and fries until golden brown.

In the yard behind the house, a high redwood fence encloses an above-ground swimming pool. Cabbage is planted among the flowers in the border garden along the fence. Cucumbers climb the ropes which stretch from the ground to the top of the fence.

The family members have been growing vegetables and flowers together for several years. They all take turns weeding and helping tend and harvest the crops.

And Mrs. Baloh says, "We water all the time."

They all agree it is a lot of work, but objections in the face of the tasty rewards are hard to come by.

And during the long, cold winter when the flavor of the crunchy giant radishes and the four or five kinds of lettuce is only a summer memory, there will be homegrown beans in the freezer and homegrown tomatoes on the cupboard shelf.

VEGETABLE GARDENING is a favorite activity in these days of high food prices, and many are trying it for the first time no matter how small the plot. The John Baloh family of Redford Township have combined flowers and vegetables in a tiny yard with great results. Here, Mrs. Dorothy Baloh (right) and daughter Diane check the ingenious climbing room for beans and cucumbers.

JOHN BALOH, 11, finds a spot among the marigolds, bib lettuce, tomatoes, peppers and zinnias.

A PLANTER made from half a wine barrel is home for a huge eggplant surrounded by petunias.

CHIEF GARDENER in charge of weeds, nine-year-old Darlene Baloh is willing to do her part because she likes lettuce salad. A temporary fence over the onion patch keeps the family dog off the young plants.

Canning cuts costs, but be sure it's for you

If inflated food prices are pinching your pocketbook, keep in mind that home food preservation is an excellent way of seeing to it that the pinch never reaches your stomach.

With produce grown at home or purchased from nearby fruit and vegetable stands, the homemaker can prepare for a snug, satisfying winter just as her mother and grandmother did — by canning and freezing in her kitchen.

With prices about to shoot off the charts, it is essential that a large number of services will be dropping off the price ladder and the busy planner.

program, has some words of advice.

SHE SUGGESTS BEGINNERS start with jelly. It's relatively simple, doesn't require elaborate preparations and satisfactions are quick in coming.

But even before making any specific plans, Ms. Criner says, "Hey, find out if your family really wants to eat this way."

So before picking the blackberries, grapes or cherries for jam, be sure that the family really will like it.

IN THE VEGETABLE department, tomatoes are for the beginner. Because of their high acid content, which helps in preservation, tomatoes don't need to be processed in a pressure cooker.

Working with jelly and tomatoes will give the novice canner an idea as to whether she really wants to continue with her new hobby.

For example, other vegetables such as green beans have a low acid content, and have to be processed in a pressure cooker, the average cost of which is $45.

"This," Ms. Criner says, "is a big outlay especially if you find afterwards that you might not enjoy it."

SHE WARNS AGAINST bringing in large amounts of fruits and vegetables to can. "Don't get so much in that you're working night and day," she advises because this could lead to frustrations and anger which "take the joy out of life for everyone around."

Another suggestion is that if time is short and the weather bad when the fruits for making jelly are ready, they can be frozen and the jelly made later in the cooler months.

Some of the "No-no's" from the extension service are not to do beans and other low acid vegetables in anything other than a pressure cooker. Oven methods are out for such processing. The jars may break and the temperature never reach the heat necessary for safe preservation.

GLASS JARS SUCH AS mayonnaise containers are not suitable for canning. The glass is not tempered and therefore won't stand the high heat.

Such old tricks as putting a copper penny in the bottom of the pickle jars to keep the contents green are absolutely verboten, Ms. Criner said.

Remember when processing canned foods in boiling water, the jars do not have to be sterilized ahead of time because the boiling process itself will take care of that.

Jars from other uses, however, can be adapted for jelly making since they do not go through the boiling and high temperature processing. To be safe jelly jars should be placed in boiling water and simmered for 10 minutes before using.

WHILE BERRIES ARE available now, the prices of raspberries may deter some would-be jelly makers.

However, many calls have come into the extension service about making mulberry jelly. Housewives are taking another look at the laden mulberry trees in their yards and wondering.

Ms. Criner suggests mulberry jelly can be made from the recipe for blackberry or other berries which call for the use of pectin or one of the other commercial preparations which insure the jelling process.

One veteran jelly maker suggests putting a white sheet or paper, well anchored, under the mulberry tree and shaking it or leaving it overnight to catch the fallen fruit, rather than picking it by hand.

Legislature affirms credit rights of women

A bill banning discrimination in granting consumer credit to women was approved by the Michigan Legislature last week.

The approval culminated a two-year project of the Michigan Consumers Council to have the legislation enacted.

"We've done extensive research on the problems encountered by women consumers operating in today's credit society and feel a great sense of victory with the passage of this bill," said James D. Hunsucker, council acting director.

The Consumers Council began its women and credit discrimination study in August 1972 with a survey of selected financial institutions and credit lenders in the state. The survey revealed women were not treated the same as men when applying for credit.

Hunsucker, who conducted the survey, said, "Attitudes of lending institutions varied, but their cumulative mood indicated a great inequality facing women whether married, single, widowed or divorced.

"This new law is definitely going to change those attitudes."

He noted that the bill (HB4639) concurred upon by the House was slightly weakened by Senate amendments removing jail sentences for violators and the treble damages provision from the civil penalties section.

"But the effect," he said, "is that the state of Michigan has gone on record in affirmation of the credit rights of women and it can be expected that the law will bring about some changes in the practices of granting consumer credit to all qualified women applicants."

The new law, sponsored by Rep. William Brodhead (D-Detroit), was given immediate effect by the Legislature and sent to Governor Milliken for his signature. Technically, the law amends the public accommodations provisions of the Michigan Penal Code to include prohibition of discrimination by credit granters on the basis of sex or marital status.

Hunsucker said as he congratulated the Legislature on passing this bill that there is other pending consumer legislation and urged the legislators to attend to that too.

He listed the Consumer Protection Act (HB4001), creation of a mobile home commission to regulate mobile home manufacture, sale and parks (HB5666), regulation of auto repair practices (HB5047), regulation of collection agencies (SB 439) and the Home Purchase Protection Act (HB4637).

"These are our priorities for the remainder of the 1974 session," Hunsucker said, "but, by no means the full scope of necessary attention that must be given consumer issues by the Michigan Legislature."

U-M study reveals women are graduate dropouts

An 18-month study by a University of Michigan committee on the status of women in graduate education and later careers has confirmed that "the higher the rung of the academic ladder, the fewer women are to be found."

At each new stage of graduate study, a progressively lower percentage of women apply, enroll and graduate. The pattern exists nationally as well as in Michigan, the study found.

A report outlining ways to give women more access to graduate study has been adopted as official policy by the Rackham School of Graduate Studies at the university.

To offset the pattern, the U-M graduate school will begin implementing the committee's recommendations. These include:

The development of more flexible admissions and financial aid policies and programs for part-time and returning students.

The collection of comprehensive information on admissions, attrition, financial aid and placement so that discriminatory patterns can be identified and solutions developed.

The appointment of a graduate school staff member to take charge of affirmative programs at the graduate level and to oversee and enhance the quality of educational experience which graduate students receive.

The committee also recommended active recruitment of women for graduate study in the sciences; the improvement of master's level study programs; a positive effort to increase female faculty members; and a regular review of departmental placement efforts.

"Most reports of this kind are graciously accepted and benignly ignored," Prof. Maxine E. Loomis, committee chairwoman comments. "We believe this is the first time a university has approved such recommendations as official policy and begun implementation immediately. It is a great step forward."

The 70-page report titled "The Higher the Fewer" notes that during the 1972-73 academic year, 44 per cent of the bachelor's degree recipients, 14 per cent of the doctor of philosophy degree recipients and five per cent of the full professors at the U-M were women.

In addition, the committee discovered the U-M women PhD recipients were unemployed or under-employed at three times the rate of their male counterparts.

Several recommendations were concerned with the removal of various administrative barriers to non-traditional students within individual departments and the graduate school as a whole.

"Women have traditionally fallen into the category of part-time or returning student more than men due to marriage and family demands," the committee notes. "But, opportunities for part-time study are rare. Child care facilities for potential students with families are almost non-existent."

"Currently, financial aids are restricted almost entirely to full time students. A number of national studies have shown that lower proportions of women receive teaching fellowships as well."

Other national studies document discriminatory attitudes among faculty members toward women graduate students. Some of the observations are that women graduate students are not taken seriously by the faculty and departments are reluctant to invest scarce resources in women who may drop out, lost interest or get married and have babies.

Besides pointing out that the 'higher the fewer' phenomenon is self-perpetuating, the study admits that the high attrition of women from graduate studies is undoubtedly partially the result of social conditioning.

There is a hopeful note in the report.

"The increasing numbers of women seeking higher degrees suggests women themselves are beginning to redefine their roles and to raise their goals. Higher education should focus on reinforcing these professional aspirations and on reducing the institutional barriers that have discouraged them."

Susan Woodhouse is recent bride

Susan Anne Woodhouse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Woodhouse of Redford Township, became the bride of Dwight William Danley in a recent ceremony in Grace Comberland Presbyterian Church, Lincoln Park.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Danley of Wyandotte.

For the double-ring candlelight ceremony officiated by the Rev. James Jones, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white silk organza of Victorian design with lace bodice, lace appliques on the long, sheer sleeves and cathedral train.

A silk and lace headpiece made by the bride held a full-length veil and she carried white roses and baby's breath.

Maid of honor Sharmon Wickens and bridesmaids Carol Danley, Linda Jones, Chris Skog and Nancy Heffernon wore long blue dresses and carried spring bouquets. Flower girl Dawn Danley, niece of the bridegroom, had a long white dress with blue trim.

Wayne Danley was best man and the groomsmen were Jon Wickens, Steve Jones, Mark Danley and Eric Woodhouse.

The reception was held in Camaron Hall in Taylor and the newlyweds went to New Orleans for their honeymoon.

Foundation gets $1 million to give free Pap tests

The Michigan Cancer Foundation has been awarded a million dollar sub-contract from the Michigan Department of Public Health to conduct a three-year cervical cancer screening program in "high-risk" population areas of Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties.

The goal is to provide free Pap tests for 25,000 women during the first year of service. First-year funding amounts to $320,276.

Women considered to be in "high-risk" include those who are medically under-served or medically indigent. Women who are reluctant or unable to obtain medical check-ups and periodic Pap tests often are in lower socio-economic groups. The incidence of cervical cancer is highest in these groups.

QUALIFIED health care personnel will do the screening. Laboratory work will be performed at MCF's Meyer L. Prentis Cancer Center headquarters in Detroit and at other facilities with laboratories licensed by the Department of Health.

Women who have positive tests (indicating pre-cancerous cells or presence of cancer) will be referred to physicians designated by the women themselves, or to out-patient departments of community hospitals and to local health centers which will be co-operating in the cancer detection effort.

THE CANCER FOUNDATION, a Torch Drive-United Way agency, was selected to administer the screening effort because of its past and continuing efforts in cancer research, detection, clinical investigation, patient services and rehabilitation, and public health education.

Funds for the sub-contract were issued through the National Cancer Institute, an agency of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

"We know if we can detect cervical cancer early and if treatment is immediately initiated we can save lives," said Dr. Michael J. Brennan, MCF president.

"Our goal is to reduce the cervical cancer death rate by more than 50% over a 10-year period," he said.

MCF BEGAN a comprehensive community Pap clinic program in 1971. Since that time nearly 40,000 women have received free Pap tests.

Cancer detection efforts are part of MCF's community services.

"We're looking ahead in a positive direction" said Abraham Brickner, director of the community services division. "Our community Pap test program will be continuing throughout a four-county area and now we'll be able to add a new dimension of service and reach even greater numbers of women as a result of this new effort."

Brickner noted that planning for the new service already is under way. He said cervical screening under the Department of Public Health sub-contract could begin as early as August.

CERVICAL CANCER is the most common type of uterine cancer, which causes an estimated 450 deaths a year in Michigan.

Approximately half of the state's population is in the tri-county area where the newly-funded service will be concentrated.

Early detection of cervical cancer has resulted in dramatic reductions in death rates nationally as well as in Michigan and the Detroit metropolitan area.

MCF OFFICIALS believe there are additional public health gains to be made.

In spite of increased public awareness of the Pap test, an effective diagnostic tool, approximately 47% of the nation's women fail to get Pap tests each year.

Developed by Dr. George N. Papanicolaou, the Pap test involves microscopic examination of cells taken from a simple, painless smear of secretions from the cervix or vagina.

Pre-cancerous states or the presence of cervical cancer can be detected through analysis of cell color, size and shape.

In addition to cervical cancer detection, MCF offers comprehensive breast cancer screening at its Breast Cancer Detection Center. Soon, a free oral cancer detection and diagnostic service will be offered.

Adray All-Stars move into Tiger Stadium

Mark this Wednesday, July 31, on your area sports calendar. The Livonia Adray loop All-Star team will be making its debut in Tiger Stadium against the likes of the Detroit Adray All-Stars. Game time is set for 1:30 p.m.

The two games that precede the Detroit-Livonia clash are Ann Arbor versus Macomb at 9 a.m. and Mt. Pleasant against Lansing in the 11:15 a.m. battle.

Redford's own Bob Atkins will be heading up the Livonia "blue chip-pers". His Redford team won the Livonia loop last year and made it 10 straight this '74 season with a 21-3 mark.

Livonia Griffin's Ron Hellier and Atkins' coach Lee Bjerke will be assisting in the coaching ranks. This will be Atkins fourth All-Star Adray game. There was no game last year and the year before, Pat Sheridon who was then directing the Redford team, bowed to Detroit, 6-4.

Champion Redford heads up the 24 player contingency from Livonia with six on the All-Star roster with Livonia Griffin, Westland Burger King, Garden City Sport and Royal Oak each boasting three on the team. Plymouth Bidwell and North Farmington sported two and Southfield and Farmington one each to round out the team.

Atkins' pitching staff will be made up of Kevin Bara and John Knox of Redford, Royal Oak's Scott Hornbaker, Livonia's Jerry Cyril, Southfield's Jack Booth and Farmington's Andy Hoholek.

Redford's Bara at 6-feet and 170 pounds will get the starting assignment. Bara was 7-0 on the season with a 0.51 earned run mark and walked only nine and struck out 50 in the 43 innings worked.

Behind the plate with the catching duties will be Royal Oak's Tom McWilliams and Redford's John Broder.

At first base will be Gar Frantz of Livonia Griffin and Redford's Mark Yourchock with Garden City's Jim Wisniewski and Bob Ganzak splitting second base chores.

Jerry Herbst of Garden City and Steve Friedman of Redford will be at third base and Royal Oak's Joe Blugerman, Garden City's Steve Orr and Westland's Jeff Hodgkins listed at shortstop.

The six-man outfield consists of Redford's John Roy, Livonia's Jeff Waterstone, Steve Robb and Chris Martucci of Plymouth, Marty Raymond of North Farmington and Westland's Art Mach.

Bump Bentley Crowe, 6-3

Plymouth Elks take division title

Wayne Sparkman's Plymouth Elks woke up in the fifth inning to score three runs and tie it at three-all and pumped in three more in the top half of the seventh to crush Bentley Crowe in a Berry loop finale, 6-3.

This one was for all the marbles in the Red Division of the Berry American League with the victor advancing to state tournament play this weekend in Lincoln Park.

BEHIND THE four-hit pitching of Tom Willette who really didn't find "his stuff" until the fourth inning. Plymouth wound up 9-7 in the regular season standings while Dick DeVries' squad finished at 8-7-1.

After Bentley had struck for three runs in the first three innings on four hits, the lefthander Willette set down the last innings on four hits, the lefthander Willette set down the last 12 Crowe batsmen in a row.

It was win number six in eight decisions for the senior to be at Plymouth Salem. Willette walked two and struck out seven and wound up with 65 strikeouts in 50 innings worked this summer along with an 0.98 earned run mark.

Curt Richards started on the Bentley mound and showed good poise until the fifth when an error opened the door for Plymouth. Later that inning, DeVries was forced to bring in his reliever, Dan Vezina, who went the final three innings and took the loss.

Richards gave up three runs on four hits, walked four and struck out four. Vezina was touched for three runs on only two hits, walked two and struck out four.

BENTLEY OPENED the scoring in the last of the second.

With two out, Dave Woldock was safe on an error at third, was wild pitched to second and scored on a bloop opposite-field single by Richards.

Then after Plymouth tossed away a scoring opportunity in the third when Richards picked off a runner on a suicide squeeze play, Bentley came back with two in last of the third.

Mark Newell beat out an infield dribbler and Ernie Storm, attempting to bunt, popped one to Willette who booted it with runners now on first and second.

Willette then wild pitched the runners to second and third where they scampered in on a hit to left by Tom Duprey.

That was the extent of Bentley's attack as Willette proceeded to retire the final 12 batsmen while the Elks took to the offense.

Redford tips Stevenson

A six run explosion in the third inning and an outstanding pitching performance by Craig Barrowcliff gave Redford Adray a Berry season finale victory over Stevenson Fanchers, 6-1.

Barrowcliff was just two outs away from a no-hitter in the seventh inning when Fancher's Tom Zaliagiris ripped a shot up the alley in left-center for four bases.

Steve Brown then banged out hit No. 2 off Barrowcliff but the next two batsmen popped out to end it at 6-1. Barrowcliff walked one and struck out five.

Gamble went the first three innings on the Fancher's mound and suffered the loss with Bob Ganzak going the final four and Redford collecting six hits.

Redford finished up at 7-9 while Fanchers wound up 6-10 in the Berry American loop.

The third inning that did it all for Redford began with Bob Miller lining a single up the middle. Then on a sacrifice bunt attempt, Ron Miller was safe when Gamble booted the ball.

Tom Jones followed with a single that loaded the bases and Gary Stafford singled in Bob Miller. Greg Wood followed with a hit that scored Ron Miller and Craig Hill connected for a single to score Jones and Stafford.

Bruce Stadler followed with a sacrifice that moved the runners up and after Ted Ackerman went down on strikes, Barrowcliff hit a shot to third that was booted to allow both Wood and Hill to score.

Plymouth Merchants win National

Fred Crissey's Plymouth Merchants wrapped things up in the Berry National loop in victory style.

The Merchants handled Michigan National Bank, 7-3, to finish at 11-2 in the league with the Bankers next best at 8-6.

It was Bill Parson who got the call to the Plymouth mound and the Merchant righthander came up with a two hitter to record his fifth win of the summer behind no defeats.

Parson walked five, struck out eight and hit one batsman.

Bob Burrows and Dave Palmisano hurried for the Bankers with starter Burrows taking the loss and Plymouth collecting eight hits total.

Plymouth broke a scoreless dual in the top of the fifth when Parson walked, stole second and dashed in on a hit by Brian Stemberger.

The Merchants opened things right up in the sixth with six runs on four hits with a homerun off the bat of Bob Ayotte the key blow.

Keith Randazzo walked to start the inning, and Dave Pink was safe on an error at second. Mike Verduce then delivered a single but Randazzo was tossed out at the plate, leftfielder Dave Pelli to Gary Beyrand.

With one out, and runners on second and third, Ron Lack beat out a suicide squeeze bunt for one run. After Parson popped out, Bob Ayotte lined a shot over the 340 mark in left for his second roundtripper of the summer and Plymouth had itself a 5-0 lead.

The Merchants weren't through as Chris Martucci and Stemberger drew walks and after Martucci stole third, Plymouth pulled off a balk steal with Martucci scoring and Scott Dunagan singled in Stemberger to make it 7-0.

The Bankers finally got into the scoring column in the last of the sixth. Jerry Dixon walked, stole second and with two out, scampered in on Randy Besh's single.

The seventh saw Palmisano double. Beyrand walk, an error move the runners up and after two strikeouts, Rob Rose drilled a shot to short that was booted and two runners scored before Parson shut the door on a championship season.

Ex-MSU aide to take over Schoolcraft cage program

Bob McGriff, former junior varsity coach at Michigan State University, has been hired to take over the Schoolcraft College basketball program.

The hiring of McGriff, 29, was announced by Dr. Marvin Gans, director of athletics at Schoolcraft.

"We're extremely pleased with our new basketball coach," commented Gans. "He's young and enthusiastic, and we feel he has the ability and desire to build a competitive program that will improve our reputation at the community college level."

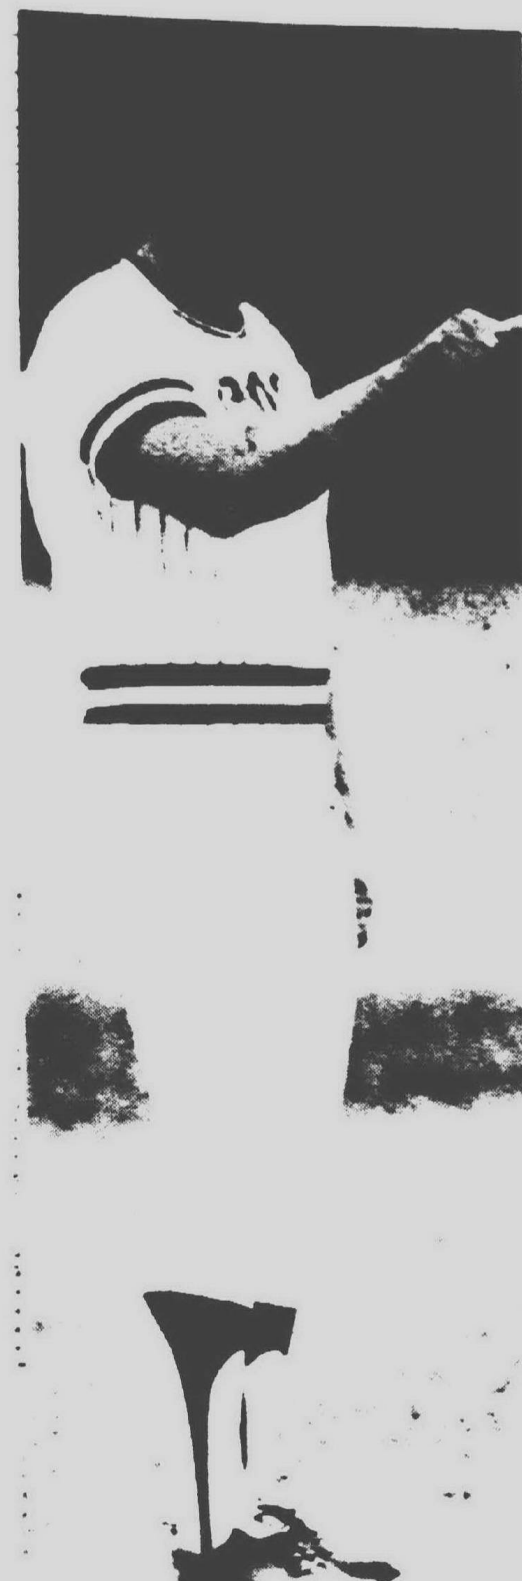

McGriff attended Michigan State University after graduating from Brooklyn (Mich.) High School and while at MSU, earned a BA in physical education and is currently working on his master's.

His previous coaching experience includes two years at Sandusky High School where his teams posted a combined record of 52-15. He spent the 1973-74 season at MSU where he coached the Spartan junior varsity club to a 12-3 mark.

McGriff, who ascribes to a "controlled fast break" style of play, has already begun recruiting for the 1974-75 Schoolcraft team.

"I want to make Schoolcraft synonymous with good basketball," he said. "It's a good area and I think the potential is there to establish an outstanding program."

"There are a lot of good ballplayers available who can definitely help us. I will make the kind of coaching effort to complement this and the excellent facilities."

Redford Adray blanks sputtering Thurston, 5-0

Behind the four-hit pitching of Dan Bushart, Redford Adray topped the Eagles of Thurston, 5-0. It was Redford's fifth win in 13 games and Thurston's ninth defeat of the summer.

Bushart evened up his individual pitching mark at four-all, walked two and struck out seven.

Dan Pesonen suffered the loss for Thurston. The Eagle hurler was touched for all five runs on eight hits, walked two and struck out four.

Redford struck for one in the first when Greg Wood was hit by a pitch, stole second and dashed in on a hit by Craig Hill.

Singles by Hill, Ted Ackerman and Bruce Stadler pushed it to 2-0 in the fourth. Redford put the finishing touches on the Berry loop triumph with three runs on three hits in the sixth.

After George Willard singled, Ackerman was safe on an error and Tommy Miller bunted his way on to load the sacks. Stadler then singled in two and Bushart was safe on a fielder's choice to score Miller with the fifth tally.

Candidates make appeal for Dem group support

By LEONARD POGER

Political candidates made emotional appeals before the Wayne-Westland Democratic Club before gaining important endorsements for the Aug. 6 primary election.

The club followed its executive board's recommendation in endorsing State Rep. Thomas Brown for renomination to the State House seat he has held for four years.

Brown was visibly irritated about comments from his challenger, Robert Erwin, who implied that Brown has opposed campaign reform, and open meeting bills and refused to disclose his personal finances as Erwin had done.

The legislator said Erwin's comments were a "personal affront" to himself and his family and the challenger was making accusations without offering proof.

Erwin commented he was talking only about legislators in general and didn't specify anyone by name.

Philip Marsh, an Erwin supporter, tried to get the club to make a dual endorsement in the State House race but was outvoted overwhelmingly.

ANOTHER DISPUTED endorsement came in the 27th county district in which Commissioner Brian Arrowsmith is seeking renomination after switching parties last month.

Arrowsmith failed to gain an endorsement, which went to Royce Smith, Belleville mayor and active Democrat for many years.

Although the club's by-laws require endorsement of an incumbent unless he is guilty of "unprofessional conduct," the club felt that Arrowsmith is technically a Republican until his current term expires Dec. 31.

Arrowsmith's supporters argued that he is listed on the primary ballot as a Democrat and should be considered a Democratic incumbent.

The executive board had endorsed Andrew Spisak, Westland police lieutenant, who last week announced his withdrawal from the campaign.

ARROWSMITH'S supporters said he has a good voting record on labor issues and won the endorsement of the Metropolitan Detroit Building Trades Council, AFL-CIO.

But others felt Arrowsmith should "prove himself" as a Democrat before getting the club's endorsement over Smith "who has a proven record as a Democrat."

The club routinely endorsed other Democrats running unopposed in the primary.

THE FIRST RACE ALMOST "BENT TO THE DUCKS" on the opening night of Wolverine Raceway at the Detroit Race Course as Speedy RL(8) which was heading the pack down the back-stretch found itself confronted with a family of ducks crossing the track (arrow). The ducks just did get out of way but Speedy RL lost the race. (Staff photo by Tom Donoghue)

Turf Tips, Quips

By Doc Minard

There's nothing but good news filtering into Wolverine Raceway after all of the turmoil surrounding the opening last week. The track did open on schedule last Wednesday and things have been progressing normally since.

From Racing Secretary Bill Connors comes word that Lew Williams, the brilliant black driver who normally takes his stable to Northfield outside of Cleveland, will check in over the weekend. Lew was one of the top reinsmen during the winter at Windsor and has a stable that includes pacers and trotters in all classes.

Then, too, Connors is looking for Chris Boring to move his large public stable from Chicago to Detroit over the weekend. Chris has a number of youngsters that will be competing in the season long Michigan colt stakes but also has others in his string that can go with the best at the track.

Gene Riegler, of Greenville, O., didn't know until Thursday that Wolverine had opened as scheduled. He had been informed at Scioto Downs that a strike had delayed the meeting. So he didn't ship in his large and powerful stable. It will be here for this week's racing.

LITTLE RAYMOND RABER, the tiny horse trader from the Amish colony near Chalm, O., was at Wolverine for the first three nights and reported he was successful in buying six horses for his Amish patrons. Raymond, who only scales 4'1", is the one designated by the large Amish settlement in central Ohio to go to the harness racing tracks and get as many horses as he can. They are shipped back to Ohio where they become work horses or are used in pulling surreys and carts. Oftentimes the Amish owners work with the broken down pacers and trotters and get them ready to return to the races. In many instances these horses have made remarkable comebacks.

Remember Love Byrd of a few years back who pulled a plow in Amish country for a couple of years and then returned to racing where he was a standout for a couple more seasons. Then his old habits caught up with him and at last reports it was back to the plow.

Another fugitive from the Amish ranks was a fast closing third in Wednesday's third race and looks like it may develop into a good one before the end of the meeting.

The pacer is T J's Ron, a four-year-old owned by Thomas Owens of Lansing and driven by Harold Fisher, who was clocked in 2:04.4 according to our informant. The horse was trained on the hard roads in the Amish community until termed ready and then turned back to his owner. From all indications it appears as if the Amish trainer did an excellent job since Fisher believes it may be much better in another week or so.

The running battle between the managements of Hazel Park and Wolverine reached a new high last Thursday when a helicopter appeared over the east side track around 6:30 p.m. bearing a sign "Leave now and make the daily double at Wolverine. Post Time at 8 p.m."

We didn't hear the conversation between Dick Wilson, of Wolverine, and Bernard Hartman, of Hazel Park, but those who did report it was a sizzler. Wilson reportedly was a bit miffed when the final race Wednesday at Hazel Park didn't get off until 7:13 p.m. and left Wolverine short of mutuel clerks for its opening race that same night.

Whether the helicopter and sign had anything to do with it or not, Thursday's program was over at 6:45 p.m. That gives the mutual clerks ample time to report for work at Wolverine.

Then there is another rumor making the rounds that if Hazel Park insists on dragging the races out beyond 7 p.m., the mutual clerks union may call all workers off machines after the eighth race. Appears the contract calls for eight races daily with extra pay for any additional races. Thus the union may decide not to work after the eighth if time is running out. It will be interesting to see what does happen.

Jockey Glenn Brogan got off to a hot start in the first two days of the Hazel Park meeting, winning four on opening day and coming back with both ends of the daily double on the second day. Then came the bad news, he has been suspended for five days.

Northville Downs rang down the curtain on its shortest summer season in 31 years, a scant 24 nights, but it turned out to be one of the most successful in history.

The half-mile plant was allotted the bottled campaign by Racing Commissioner Leo Shirley and figures for crowds and wagering were ahead of those for 1973.

The final night's handle of $371,081 boosted the nightly average to $392,495, a hike of 16.2 per cent over 1973. Attendance averaged 4,474 an increase of 10.4 per cent over that of last summer.

Jim Merriman, veteran Ypsilanti driver-trainer, won the driving championship by a mere seven percentage points over Mrs. Bea Farber of Brighton. Merriman compiled a .370 winning percentage with 24 starts, five firsts, four seconds and five thirds.

The Court Jester

by BILL CAMERON

If you missed last week's tennis match between the Detroit Loves and Philadelphia Freedoms, you missed an entertaining evening.

It's amazing how one player can attract so many spectators. Of course, I'm talking about Billie Jean King, whose presence accounted for more than 8,000 spectators. Even though she lost the big one, Wimbledon, she still has to be ranked as the No. 1 woman tennis player of the world, apologies to Chris Evert and Margaret Court.

B.J. brings a certain charisma to the game as well as classic strokes, which always put her a notch above her opponents. Credit has to be given to Rosie Casals, the Loves number one player, who has probably played more matches against Ms. King than any other gal on the circuit. Rosie is probably the fourth or fifth best female player in the world, but against B.J. she inevitably comes up short.

Watching the two of them do battle is like watching poetry in motion. There aren't two women in the world that are as quick and move as well as these two. If you've never seen them play doubles together, you've missed a rare treat.

All in all, the matches were enjoyable entertainment but toward the end of the evening and the last match, which happened to be mixed doubles, most of the spectators started filing out.

True, it was a meaningless match as far as the total score was concerned, but the feature players were sitting on the bench, something about league rules only allowing them to play in two matches. I'm always left with the feeling of "what would it be like if the matches were best of three sets." Some players are slow starters and don't get a rhythm until the second set.

I felt sorry for the substitutes who came in cold off the bench with no warm-up at all. This is one of the greatest ways to expose oneself to muscle pulls and torn ligaments, which could shorten a player's career rather quickly. I wonder if their contract covers injuries?

IN THE POCKET

By W.W. EDGAR

The Michigan Youth Bowling Association will shatter all records for membership when the rolls close for the year on Wednesday.

Over the weekend, Mrs. Ethel Heenan, director of the MYBA, announced that the number had now reached 35,561 members and that each mail was swelling the ranks.

The latest figure is several thousand above the record set last year and proves again that bowling is one of the most popular of youth activities.

When the YBA was organized in Michigan little more than a decade ago it was hoped that a goal of 16,000 members could be reached. Now that goal has been doubled and officials are now looking forward, eagerly, to next year when the mark may pass 40,000.

With its present membership the Michigan YBA is one of the pace setters in the nation.

Competition has grown so keen in the All-America Youth championships that the Michigan delegation didn't survive the regional tournament in Cincinnati.

The four member delegation included Shelly Cole of Belleville, who was doing well until forced to change lanes because of the TV program. In the switch she lost her "line" to the pocket and failed to qualify for the trip to Washington, D.C. and the finals.

Though the ABC tournament ended more than a month ago, the showing of the two metropolitan Detroit teams still is the talk of the bowling world.

In the current issue of the ABC magazine there is a feature story including pictures of both the Goebel and Coon Bros. teams. Goebel won the team all-events and Coon Bros. landed second place in the regular division.

Between them, the teams won $13,199.92. Of this amount $6,962 went to Goebel for its showing in the Classic and $6,237.92 went to Coon Bros.

It was the largest financial haul ever made by the Detroit teams.

Down through the years bowling has provided many oddities as the pins went flying. But few ever will equal Count Gangler's 300 game. It was bowled in the dark.

The Count was one of the great bowlers of another era, but around the middle west his name still lives and many are the tales they tell about his days in and around Chicago.

But the 300 game tops them all.

It was thought for a time that Buddy Bomar bowled the oddest 300 when the pin rack broke down after the ninth frame one night in Texas and he had to return the following week to bowl the 10th frame.

Imagine that! One week between the ninth and 10th frames. Yet it didn't bother Buddy. He got his 12 in a row.

Gangler's was different. He vowed he could bowl a perfect game in the dark—with just one proviso... the lights would go on after he rolled each ball.

Challenged to prove it, the Count stood at the foul line, got his feet in position as they handed him the ball. Then the lights went out. He didn't take a single step. When the lights returned there wasn't a pin on the lane. He had rolled a strike.

What's more, the Count repeated the performance 12 times—and it was a legitimate perfect game... bowled in the dark.

This is the hull before the storm on the bowling front as many of the establishments are having the lanes resurfaced. The hull won't last long. In two weeks the all stars will open practice for the opening of the Classic season during the last week of August.

WE KNOW WHAT A PAPA GOLDFISH IS WORTH.

What happens when somebody says, "We put in that little pond by the apple tree 6 years ago. And the papa goldfish is 8 inches long now!" That ought to be worth something. We think it is. And so we take the pond and the afternoon sun and spring blossoms into consideration. If they're worth something to the owners, they'll be worth something to the people we'll find to live in their home. And everyone will be pleased.
