Parking situation from bird's eye view

THE FUTURE OF DOWNTOWN Plymouth may depend on whether the city can meet the demands of central business district traffic by creating parking structures which will connect with the loop road which encircles downtown. This aerial photo, which was taken for a parking study conducted by Viliian-Leman Associates city planners, shows loop road streets and existing parking lots.

Answer to city parking situation—go up

By HANK MELJER

PLYMOUTH—As space gets scarcer and more costly, parking in the central business district has nowhere to go but up—that's the consensus of downtown businessmen, city officials and the planners who are designing Plymouth's future.

Most of the merchants agree that parking structures rising three or four stories above ground are the key to a prosperous downtown, but where to put them and how to finance them are questions which still must be resolved.

Going strictly by the numbers, there may be enough parking downtown right now. "We keep tearing down places and making parking," said Ken Vogras, director of Plymouth's Dept. of Public Works. "I really can't see why. Business downtown isn't that much greater than it was 15 years ago. Everybody just wants to park right in front of where they shop."

Asst. Police Chief Loren Johnson agrees. "My feeling is that we have ample parking," he said. "I've seen merchants who park right in front of their places of business and then complain."

But what parking there is, isn't in the right places to encourage business growth downtown, say the merchants.

Viliian-Leman Associates, city planners who have studied Plymouth's needs, divide the central business district into four quadrants surrounded by a loop road consisting of Harvey, Wing, Deer, Union and Church Streets. Planner Jay Eldridge sees a critical need for more parking in the two quadrants south of Ann Arbor Trail—the square blocks which include the Mayflower Hotel and the Mayflower Meeting House.

The lot behind the Mayflower Hotel is already over-crowded and new businesses are planned on adjacent properties. Across the street, there is little parking for the Box Bar and no room for new buildings in what is considered prime development space.

"Our ultimate solution to parking in those two quadrants involves parking structures," said City Manager Fred L. Yockey. "I don't think we can afford the luxury of surface parking."

A parking structure had been proposed for Deer Street behind the Mayflower Meeting House, but merchants in the affected area could not agree on their portions of the cost.

Plans for that structure and others have fallen through because the city lacked means of financing and merchants couldn't agree on the part they would play.

"It's a tough thing getting so many different people together," Eldridge said. "Property owners want to be co-operative, and they see the need, but the mechanics of getting it all together

Acting postmaster puts ZIP in renovations

By CORINNE ABATT

As fast as you can cancel a stamp, changes are taking place in the Plymouth post office.

Former postmaster Art Mulligan's resignation was official July 30. The next day, Ken Harris, manager of finance in the Southfield post office and district trouble shooter, arrived to become officer in charge until the postmaster's position is filled.

Since there are three qualified in the local post office, Jim Grater, assistant postmaster, Fred Carter, superintendent of mail and Jim Mulka, foreman of mail, no attempt is being made to find other candidates.

Harris estimates the appointment, recommended by the district and made by the Chicago regional office, will take place in a month or two. Although it was once considered a political plum, Harris says that is a thing of the past.

ALTHOUGH HE says he doesn't want to knock anyone, he was appalled at the condition of the post office when he arrived.

He says the custodial staff is not adequate to care for the building which was built in 1935 and while an additional custodian has been approved, Harris adds, "We can't wait."

A day or so after arriving, Harris contacted Youth, Inc. and found seven youths delighted to have jobs helping to clean up the building and grounds. The young people have been sweeping, painting, polishing trim, scraping old paint and helping to move equipment.

Chief mover, Harris himself, immediately began to create work areas for the staff. For the first time, the assistant postmaster has an office. Work stations have been rearranged, grouped to provide maximum efficiency in the most pleasing surroundings. Corners have been cleaned, baseboards, window sills, radiators and metalwork have been scoured.

OUTSIDE, the truck and loading areas have been cleared, weeds have been removed from the paving cracks, walks and the front yard have been swept and raked.

All this is only part of the house-keeping and renovations planned. Harris is already in the process of contracting to have the old wooden floor replaced, the interior painted, and the windows replaced.

Before the summer is over, the old shrubs in front will be trimmed and new ones will replace the dead ones. The lawn will be sodded and the garden area trimmed with either wood or stone chips.

"The old post office used to be a show place, we're gonna see that it is again," Harris says. "We aren't going to modernize it to the point of losing the atmosphere, we're going to keep the original look in mind with the window and exterior treatment."

He says that most certainly the mural which depicts the history of the community will remain.

Not only does he feel the changes will be good for both community and employee morale, but he says it is general policy with the United States Postal Service to try to provide working conditions that at least match those of private industry. He says the improvements, hopefully, will let the

Should Nixon be tried? Politicos, prof disagree

By TIM RICHARD

Congressmen—and perhaps Americans in general—are of two minds about whether Citizen Richard Nixon should be tried and possibly punished for his alleged misdeeds while he was president. Nixon's resignation speech last week admitted only errors in "judgment," but no wrongdoing. "He had no personal conception of what in the world we were on the brink of, no sense that the methods of the people around him were wrong," said U.S. Rep. William D. Ford (D-Taylor), himself a lawyer. "Most people don't want to be vindictive," countered U.S. Rep. Marvin Esch (R-Ann Arbor), after attending the inaugural Friday of President Gerald R. Ford. "Undoubtedly there would be a hue and cry from the people if Nixon were to receive special immunity, and it bothers me personally that he could be placed above the law," said Prof. Samuel D. Estep of the University of Michigan.

BILL FORD SEEMS indignant that Nixon refuses to admit wrongdoing. "I have been taking a position for some time he should not resign. The one serious disadvantage of resignation is that the entire record of this matter should be on the public record, now and for all time. There are still quite a few people very close to him under criminal indictment and on trial. There is no way he can refuse a subpoena. Where does that leave us if he becomes a witness in a conspiracy trial if others are convicted and go to jail and he doesn't?"

Ford, whose 15th District includes Garden City, Westland, Canton Township and two precincts in Livonia, recalled that former Treasury Secretary John Connally and former presidential assistant H.R. Haldeman are either on trial or to be tried, as well as former Attorney General John Mitchell and former Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans.

Ford said any speculation on whether Nixon will ever face trial in either state or federal courts "would be guessing." And he said Congress has little to say about it.

But he made it perfectly clear he would like to see Nixon's degree of wrongdoing ascertained in court. "He talked like a coach after a losing season trying to explain things to the alumni association, particularly in his assertion that not one man or woman ever enriched himself at the public expense."

ESCH MADE four points on the immunity question: "Congress shouldn't take over matters that belong to the executive and judicial branches," indicating a coolness to the idea of a congressional resolution on immunity.

"From the standpoint of historical precedent, we should find out once and for all what occurred at Watergate. The Judiciary Committee will continue on this and write a report."

"Third, most people don't want to be vindictive."

"Fourth, I'm disturbed at the emphasis of some people who want to look behind rather than look ahead. We've got to pull the country back together. I'm not certain whether anyone will want to kick the former president," said Esch, whose 2nd District includes Plymouth and most of Livonia.

PROF. ESTEP, of the U-M Law School, saw three possibilities for a grant of immunity to Nixon.

One was for Congress to grant immunity. A second is an agreement between Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski and Nixon. The third is that President Ford could grant Nixon a pardon.

Estep recalled that former Vice President Spiro Agnew bargained for partial immunity by agreeing to plead "no contest" — and in effect guilty — to one charge in return for all others being dropped.

All local ballot proposals rejected

A News Roundup

"No," said the voters to all local ballot proposals in Tuesday's election.

The only proposal approved in the area was a special education request of one mill by the Wayne County Intermediate School District. Nearly 53 per cent of county voters like that one, passing it 137,307 to 122,508.

THE PRESTIGE of Mayors Edward McNamara of Livonia and Eugene McKinney of Westland suffered

An argument could be made, said Estep, that a grant of immunity to a former president could be challenged in court as a violation of the "equal protection of the laws" concept in the 14th amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

REPS. FORD and Esch are both looking forward to a greater era of good feeling.

Esch recalled an Ann Arbor incident a few months ago when newsmen sang now-President Ford's college fraternity song for him on a plane trip. They had learned it the night before at a session in the boisterous Bimbo establishment in Ann Arbor, Esch said.

"My assistant, Ed Dooley, who was with UPI for eight years, jumped up and down for joy when he heard Ford had named Jerry Ter Horst of the Detroit News as his press secretary."

Bill Ford recalled the angry mail he sometimes got from his blue collar constituency when then-Congressman Jerry Ford attacked Democratic administrations with Sen. Everett Dirksen on what was called "The Ev and Jerry Show."

"I had an identity crisis," Bill Ford said.

Bill Ford agreed that Jerry Ford has no enemies but added: "Some of his political philosophy is very obtuse and not what I believe in."

Bill Ford is planning to spend much of this fall helping Democratic nominee Sander Levin run for governor, but he concedes: "The ascension of Jerry to the presidency is going to make it tough on us."

as ideas they backed were turned down by voters.

A proposed amendment to the Livonia charter to make the city treasurer's post appointive was defeated by 1,400 votes of the nearly 10,000 cast.

McKinney's public safety millage proposal was disapproved by 56 per cent of Westland voters, and a recreation millage lost even more heavily, by 2-1.

Aug. 29 is showdown for schools-PEA pact

By W. EDWARD WENDOVER

PLYMOUTH — If a contract isn't settled between the Plymouth School District and its teachers by Aug. 29, the teachers will meet that day to decide what to do.

According to Dolly Carter, president of Plymouth Education Association (PEA, teachers' union), that date has been set for a general membership meeting of the union because its the day the teachers report back to work.

One of the options that will be considered if a contract is not settled, admits Mrs. Carter, is a strike.

"I think that's one of the alternatives to be placed in front of the membership," if a contract isn't settled, she said.

Negotiations between the PEA and the schools are scheduled to resume today (Monday) although no further sessions are scheduled.

Mrs. Carter will be unavailable for further negotiations until about Aug. 24 because of her participation in a workshop for middle school teachers.

Thus the final hour of negotiations between the schools and the teachers will probably come the last week before school is scheduled to start.

According to a tentative agreement between the PEA and the schools reached on June 4, school is scheduled to start for the teaching staff on Aug. 29. Students are scheduled to report on Sept. 3 — the day after Labor Day.

This is a change from the past when students reported on the Thursday following Labor Day.

School officials say the PEA leaders have requested and received a copy of the preliminary budget in order to study it for negotiation purposes.

Homeless, directorless:

YMCA struggles for survival

By RON GARBINSKI

PLYMOUTH—It has been a crazy summer for the orphaned YMCA in Plymouth.

In May, the YMCA lost its program director John Schmuhl, in June the organization lost its building and in July it lost its patience.

"But we have not lost our hope and energy," says Mrs. Mimi Settles, board president of the Plymouth, Canton, Northville YMCA.

"Our problems began developing early this year. Program director John Schmuhl gave us notice that he would be leaving soon. After working with us for 14 months he went on to bigger and better things."

That was in May and the start of their problems. Little did the Y's board know it soon would have to cope with a second problem.

"WE KNEW in the beginning when we took over part of the old Methodist Church building on Church Street a year and a half ago it would not be permanent," explains Mrs. Settles. "So in June when the building was sold we had to go out and find new quarters."

With no director to organize its continuing activities and no building in which to conduct its programs, the YMCA began its struggle.

"We are a non-facility Y and an independent branch," she says. "We have to beg, borrow and rent what we have. Finances are a problem for us just like they are for any other non-profit voluntary organization."

According to Mrs. Settles, the YMCA has found some solutions to these problems.

"We were able to find a back office at the Youth, Inc. center in Plymouth. It's small, but at least we have an office again. We also changed our address to a post office box in order to give the Y some consistency in having all its mail sent to the same place. That was a great help."

DURING THE PAST few weeks, the YMCA's board has been in the process of finding a new program director. After interviewing many candidates for the position, Mrs. Settles was happy to say the vacancy hopefully will be filled sometime this week.

The Plymouth Community Y started in 1958 with Mike Hoben as its first director. It was based on service to the community, more on the basis of social services, and had offices in the Plymouth Community Credit Union, Hoben, then high school football coach and counselor, served at the school in the morning and the YMCA in the afternoon.

The programs especially were heavy during the summer when Hoben and Tom Workman, now an elementary school principal, arranged camping, canoe and weekend trips and many other daily activities for the underprivileged in the community.

They also had a summer job placement program with the assistance of the Plymouth Mail and Plymouth Observer, both separate newspapers at that time. This program brought as much as half a million dollars into the community during the summer in jobs for high school students.

WHEN HOBEN was elevated to assistant principal at the high school, the Y's programs were turned over to Mrs. Johnnie Crosby who served as secretary and director for many years until a full time director was named.

It was during the Hoben-Workman-Crosby regime that arrangements were made for Y youngsters to pick apples from Dave Wood's orchard. The Y then sold the apples by the bushel as a fund raising project.

The Indian Guides program was started and flourished during the early years of the YMCA with Harvey Ziel as one of its leaders.

During these years many of the community's leaders gave financial assistance to help keep the programs going.

The Y was largely responsible for starting the junior basketball program in Plymouth which later was taken over by the junior basketball and baseball associations.

It sponsored numerous activities such as dances and community programs in the old community building in back of city hall. These eventually were dropped because of vandalism and lack of interest.

ACCORDING to Mrs. Settles, the concept of the YMCA in Plymouth has become a whole different ball game over the past 10 years. It has lost many of the old Y ideas. The Plymouth YMCA has realized this change and is trying to build a family YMCA and not just one for the younger men as it has been in the past, she says.

In the late '60s, the format of the Y was changed from a community structure to a family Y with hopes of someday building a facility.

The former format was dropped and only the Indian Guides remain as part of the original structure. As the Y was changed, many of those who were staunch supporters were dropped by the wayside.

Mrs. Settles feels there is room for many new problems at the YMCA. When she took over as board president, she had hopes to add and expand programs. She has accomplished some of these hopes — but not all. When her term as president expires this year, she says she will continue to work with the program committee to see that programs will expand to meet the growing community needs.

"I WOULD LIKE to see the Y in Plymouth become more of a family program in the future. There is room for more adult education programs during the day and night," she says. "Our tiny tots program can be improved so that both the little kids and mothers can get out and exercise."

"I would like to see more girls' programs because there are many girls in the area who like to run around and exercise just as much as the boys. We also should get the senior citizens interested in some programs we could provide for them. Since we are small and local, we should get more personal with everyone in the community by offering programs for the whole family."

The YMCA will go ahead with its fall programs and will continue to have its after school and Saturday afternoon programs.

"We have innovated in the past and we will continue to innovate in the future," the YMCA president continues. "We don't lack activities, just a building and program director to handle all our programs."

Probably the biggest program the Y offers is the Indian Guides and Maidens. It is a one where over 200 families from the community are able to do something together, both with their own children and other families.

"THIS IS OUR biggest contribution to the community. The program lets fathers give a real commitment to junior," explains Mrs. Settles. "Both groups have great turnouts. They go on campsouts, to baseball games, march in parades and do all kinds of other things together."

The YMCA is currently funded by the Plymouth community fund, memberships and donations.

What it must do is keep track of where all its members are coming from. Now, about 95 per cent of its membership comes from the Plymouth area even though it is called the Plymouth, Canton, Northville YMCA. But most of its operating STUDYING ABROAD in Paris for six months is "Sam" Keith, a student at Plymouth Canton High School.

Sam sees Paris in the fall, winter

By JANAN GHANNAM

PLYMOUTH—Imagine living in a plush apartment near the foot of the Eiffel Tower. It's Paris in the fall, and you have six months to explore a whole new world.

It may sound unrealistic, but for 16-year-old Susan Keith, daughter of Mrs. Nancy Keith of 14354 Northville Road, it became a reality.

Known to all her friends as "Sam," she is one of four students from the Plymouth High Schools participating in the foreign student exchange program sponsored by the International Cultural Exchange.

Two other Plymouth students will be studying in South America and another in Mexico.

No foreign students are participating in the Plymouth school foreign exchange program. Ambivalent in feelings, ("She was frightened, yet excited, eager yet apprehensive," Mrs. Keith said) Sam left Aug. 4 to study abroad — something she had always dreamed of.

"IT WAS THROUGH her initiative that she is in Paris," Mrs. Keith said. "She had to have three letters of recommendation and a high scholastic average to qualify, so there was some competition involved."

An 11th grade honor student at Plymouth Canton High School, Sam has had three years of French, German and Spanish and someday hopes to use her language skills possibly as an interpreter at the UN.

Her first month in Paris will be devoted to sight-seeing, and three hours of intensive conversational French.

In September, Sam will begin classes studying chemistry, geometry, typing and French literature — all in French.

She also hopes to teach English as a foreign language to the students in the French school she will be attending.

The family Sam will live with is considered one of Paris' high society families, and have previously sponsored a girl from Oklahoma.

Mrs. Keith explained that M. Gaury is a high-ranking engineer and his wife, Mme. Gaury is a society manager (one who plans parties for other people).

"THE STUDENT from Oklahoma wrote us and said that because of the Gaury's high positions, many dinner parties are given and that they are great people to have as sponsors," Mrs. Keith said.

Before leaving Paris, Sam hopes to be able to go on one of the "holidays" that French people are so noted for.

She may miss the McDonald hamburgers and the Dairy Queen cones, but you can bet that in six months Sam will be coming home singing, "I love Paris in the fall."

How Plymouth people reacted to resignation

"I'm very hurt," said Mrs. Glenn Frederick Friday morning after President Richard Nixon announced his resignation as the 37th President of the United States.

Her voice choking, Mrs. Frederick said that although she had confidence in Gerald Ford, she had some doubt that he could continue the United States' foreign policy in the same course that Nixon had charted.

"Richard Nixon is a good man," the Plymouth resident added. Along with her husband and son, Kirk, Mrs. Frederick watched the television coverage of the president's speech Thursday night.

"It brought us closer together," Mrs. Frederick said, "watching the dignity of the man. He must have had a lot of hostility, but he didn't show it."

In Thursday's Observer and Eccentric, a story quoted Mrs. Frederick as saying that "Meeting the president (Nixon) was one of the thrills of my life."

By Friday morning, the president was an ex-president and Gerald Ford held the nation's highest office.

Mrs. Frederick and her sister, Mrs. Wickman, both say they voted for Richard Nixon in 1968 and again in 1972.

With Mrs. Frederick's son Kirk, and Mrs. Wickman's daughter, Noreen, the two women had been on vacation in the Washington, D.C. area.

Although Mrs. Frederick had visited the area three times before, she had never met a president before.

While meeting the vice president, Kirk asked for his autograph but was told to write a letter and Mr. Ford would be glad to send the 12-year-old his signature.

When the question was asked, none of the parties had any idea that Gerald Ford would become the 38th president, or that Richard Nixon would resign.

Also, while the four area residents were in the nation's capital, they had a chance to hear the oral arguments in the famous Watergate tapes case—the tapes that some consider the deciding factor in Richard Nixon's resignation.

Mrs. Stan Wickman was also saddened by the resignation of the president.

"He will probably go down in history as one of our greatest presidents," the Livonia resident said.

Calling the president's failure to disclose what he knew about the Watergate cover-up a "mistake," Mrs. Wickman added that the president probably didn't think the matter was "all that serious."

In the short time that Mrs. Wickman and Mrs. Frederick met with then vice president Ford when they were in Washington, they both were impressed with his cordiality. "Even though he was in a hurry, when we told him we were from Michigan he came over to talk to us," Mrs. Wickman said.

"It was just a day over a month ago that we met the president and Mr. Ford," Mrs. Wickman said. "And now he's gone and Ford is president. It's interesting how fast these things happen."

While on vacation, the two women stopped at Andrews Air Force base to see Air Force One. When the plane arrived from Key Biscayne, Fla., President Nixon stopped and chatted with the people lining the fence, including the Wickmans and the Fredericks.

BY SHERRY KAHAN

Washington political insiders don't agree on much, but one thing they can be certain about is that President Richard Nixon did not become involved in the Watergate case just to give the citizenship class at Wayne Memorial High School a living lesson in civics.

Yet that was what happened all during the summer in Paul Nastoff's class for immigrants to this country wishing to become citizens.

From faraway places such as Thailand, India, Trinidad, South Korea, Jordan and Germany they had come to attend a kind of class which down through the decades has dealt with the Constitution as a document dry as dust.

TO ATTEND such a class Thursday on the night of the president's resignation was to attend a happening.

"The Constitution is alive," said Nastoff, a Plymouth resident who has been teaching this course for six years. "It is a living thing."

On the night of the president's resignation when class members were celebrating the conclusion of their step toward citizenship, lively questions were popping all over the room.

Neel Kibe, a senior quality control analyst for Michigan Blue Shield and formerly a citizen of India, enjoyed citing sections and articles from the Constitution.

"In section 2, article 2 it says the president has power to grant reprieves," he said. "Does that mean he could reprieve himself?"

Nastoff said no, adding, "But a new president could reprieve him."

"Who does the president give his resignation to?" came another question.

"To the secretary of state," replied Nastoff.

IN MANY ways the seventh crisis of Richard Nixon was reassuring to a class made up of immigrants with stars in their eyes about America.

Maurice Safadi of Jerusalem noted that "in another country it is not easy to get rid of a president and it usually is done through a coupe in which the army interferes with the rule of civilians."

"By impeachment you can get rid of a president without needing the power of the army," he said. "It presents a good view for people outside the country, that you can change leaders without guns."

Coming to the class from Ann Arbor where he is employed in a claims department, Chat Phatharaphak, formerly of Thailand, brought his daughter, Laurie, and his sister, Sumala Pennive, to the party that ended the course.

"I THINK IT is nice to see history prove to us that our Constitution has been working for the past 198 years," he said. "I am hopeful it will work for another 198."

He added: "What is going on today is making it easy for us to learn about history and government, but it is kind of tragic to see this happen to the president."

Yongcha Neff, a South Korean, who has lived for 2½ years in Westland, said that in previous years she has known little about impeachment and had little interest in it.

"But our teacher makes me close to law and to government," she said. "I have learned quite a few things and now I want to know more. Every night I listen to the news."

Marlies Muncie, who came to this country from Germany as the bride of a serviceman, felt sorry for Mr. Nixon.

"But I don't think he should be allowed to get away with anything," she said. "I don't think there is any man above the law. It is a good sign that even a president can be brought to justice by the people."

Diana Bostwick regards the Constitution "as a star guiding us along."

"IT WOULD have been a disappointment to me if Nixon had gotten away with the cover-up," she said. "But he is lucky there is a Constitution here. In some countries he might have been pulled down by some kind of rebellion. This country is lucky, too."

Before attending the class Mrs. Bostwick knew the U.S. had a Constitution, but she never understood it.

"It meant nothing to me," she said. "Now I think I understand about 90 per cent of it. If the whole world had a Constitution like that it would be marvelous."

Eager to become a citizen, Mrs. Bostwick said, "I am so excited about it."

"I never thought I'd be so excited," she laughed. "But I feel I'm being adopted. I'm not saying the U.S. is perfect, but it is the best I've seen."

But no one is more excited about the incipient citizenship of Mrs. Bostwick and other members of the class than their teacher.

moneys comes from the community fund in Plymouth.

"We are lucky to have many good friends of the Y. Without their memberships, it would be hard to get along," she says. "We will have a membership drive in the fall to see if we can attract more people from the other areas. We hope to expand further into Canton because the increasing number of people moving in there creates a great need for community activities and programs."

MRS. SETTLES believes the YMCA has a good and dedicated board. "It is a new board and that is probably our biggest problem to overcome. But they do a good job. They are people who are very busy elsewhere, yet feel strongly committed to the Y and its ideals that they give several hours a week of their time to the board and the Y."

"As you can probably see, none of our programs really use a Y building. That's because we don't have one," she says kiddingly. "But we are interested in finding a new facility and if someone wants to donate 10 acres, we'll surely take it."

As Mrs. Settles predicts, someday the Y will have its own building, hire a new program director. It will expand all its programs to serve the whole family and some day may even affiliate with the Detroit YMCA by becoming a metropolitan branch.

The YMCA in Plymouth hopes that some day will not be too far in the future.

Until the recount is over, it's 'John and Eddie' show

By TOM SCHRAM

Until an expected recount is completed, 2nd Congressional District voters will be treated to the "John and Eddie Show."

John Reuther, apparent winner of the Democratic nomination in Tuesday's primary, and Dr. Ed Pierce, runnerup who will ask for the partial recount, said they will "run together" until the nominee is officially determined.

Pierce lost to Reuther by the slim margin of 69 votes out of a total of 41,000 cast. That margin, which represents approximately one quarter of a vote per precinct, was one of the smallest for a congressional race in history.

AS OF LATE Thursday, both candidates were reportedly out of the area on vacations. But before they left, they issued an unusual statement:

"We (Reuther and Pierce) will run together until a victor is declared, and then whichever of us becomes the candidate will have the wholehearted support of the other in the vital job of retiring the Republican incumbent."

The victor will be declared only after the expected recount of an undetermined percentage of the 270 precincts in the congressional district by Pierce. The Republican incumbent is Marvin L. Esch.

Esch was undaunted by the unusual move of the two candidates in banding together.

"It will take both of those guys to run against me," he said.

A SPOKESMAN for the Reuther campaign, press secretary Ed Jessup, detailed plans for the battle against Esch.

Repeated efforts to contact the Pierce campaign both at campaign headquarters and Pierce's home were unsuccessful.

"There are a lot of things we can do right now while we are waiting for certification and a possible recount," Jessup said.

Jessup indicated what Reuther would do is exactly what he has been doing for the past eight months.

"He'll be going door-to-door, attending meetings and just generally talking to as many people as possible in order to beat Esch," he said.

JESSUP EXPRESSED optimism that the recount would fail, but said that if Reuther had lost by 69 "we would be doing the same thing—looking at the numbers and trying to find precincts where a recount might be successful in gaining some votes."

"But we are not in the business of recounting votes. They are," he said.

Jessup predicted a Reuther victory over four-term incumbent Esch in the November general election. Jessup said Esch was associated with former President Richard M. Nixon and that the association would hurt him.

"Also, the economy is in a shambles and you can blame the Republican Party for that. Esch has displayed a general lack of leadership for the people in this district," Jessup said.

Jessup said that he expects incumbents in general and Republican incumbents in particular to fair poorly in the general election and claimed that the Reuther campaign would be waged "as cleanly as possible" against Esch.

Wayne-2nd GOP convenes Wednesday

Newly elected Republican precinct delegates in the Wayne County portion of the 2nd Congressional District will hear State Chairman William McLaughlin at their convention Wednesday.

The convention will begin at 8 p.m. in F 530 of the Forum Building on the Schoolcraft College campus. Purpose of the convention is to elect delegates to the GOP state convention Aug. 23-24 in Detroit's Cobo Hall.

The state convention will nominate candidates for lieutenant governor, attorney general, secretary of state, Supreme Court and four education boards.

Wayne 2nd Chairman Sylvia Skrel expects 100 delegates from 86 precincts in Livonia, Plymouth and Northville to attend.

The only likely local candidate known so far is James F. O'Neil, who is expected to seek renomination for the State Board of Education. O'Neil, of Livonia, is a Ford Motor Co. executive.

A former Northville resident, McLaughlin has been state chairman for four years.

editorial opinion

Politicians were invented to keep journalists amused

Someone once said that politics were invented to keep journalists amused.

We are not amused. The primary elections are FINAL-ly over, and it's time for a little Monday - morning quarterbacking.

The Plymouth Township supervisor's race surprised many people I talked to. I don't know why.

Maurie Breen, although admittedly disgruntled immediately after having lost, didn't seem to take his defeat very gentlemanly. He complained that he felt there were "questions" about the vote totals.

Nobody's heard anything more specific since those charges, so I assume the matter is finally put to rest.

THERE WERE LOTS of comments about our endorsement in the treasurer's race — all on behalf of candidates who didn't get our support.

One such disagreement with our assessment of the candidates came from Greg Dean, president of the township's Community Improvement Association, who thought that Weyona Lee Fidge should have won.

But it's interesting indeed that Dean complained (he also lost a lunch bet) since as president of his association, he sent out a two - page letter to the association's members reminding them that J. D. McLaren, Mrs. Fidge, Frank Millington and Dick Gornick (all association members) were running for office.

Dean stressed in his letter that the association would never actually endorse anybody — the newsletter was just to gently remind members of the candidates who belonged to the association.

But Dean forgot that Tom Notebaert, a candidate for treasurer, was also a member of the association. At least he said he forgot.

IT WAS PROBABLY interest in the races for township supervisor and treasurer in the Republican Party that kept Plymouth Township voters from crossing over to the Democratic primary this year.

There seemed to be little crossover effect.

This seemed also to be true in Canton Township, although it's hard to

With Malice Toward None

By W. EDWARD WENDOVER

assess the election there since this is the first time new Canton residents have represented a majority.

Comparing this primary with ones in the past would be like comparing apples and oranges.

And speaking of fruits — no I won't start in on the candidates like that.

THE VOTERS narrowly defeated (by 25 votes) the public safety millage. Would that outcome have been any different had the township board been more specific about what the three mills would be used for and exactly how much was to be levied?

The board should take a lesson from that and get the issue back on the ballot for November — but more precisely defined. (That's the same lesson the Plymouth school board learned on the bonding issue.)

It was amazing to me that Jack Marts got 584 votes. While he probably has some supporters, I have to guess that that vote represented a strong anti-Bob Greenstein vote. If there were a Republican crossover in the primary, it could be that Marts' vote total reflected it.

GREENSTEIN'S 1,169 votes (as well as the votes for Carl Parsell, Bob Myers, Joe DeLauro and particularly Jerry Cheske) showed that the Canton Democratic Club slate worked hard for the primary.

Many voters base their decision at the polls on how hard candidates try to get elected — and that is one place you can't fault the Canton Dem slate.

Jim Poole, who'll be running against Greenstein in November, has got to have one of the frankest (and often funniest) public manner ever seen in a candidate.

In his candidate's statement to us — which by the way took some judicious editing but not nearly as much as Greenstein's magnum opus — Poole said that during the war he served in the armed services, "our side" he noted in parentheses. (We cut that.)

Well, it seems Poole may have put his foot in his mouth this time with his frankness, saying on election night he probably can't beat Greenstein and wishes he hadn't run.

Of course Cheske did the same thing to slate colleague Parsell by saying that Republican Dick Wolfe will really give Parsell a run for the money.

ANOTHER EXAMPLE of gaining dividends from hard work is Brian Schwall — he ran off more copies of our endorsement of him than we printed, I think. And he did it more quickly, too (our endorsement edition was late).

Maybe one reason Schwall hustled with last minute literature was to overcome a sudden decision by retiring Supervisor Phil Dingeldey to print up flyers backing Myers and DeLauro even though Schwall now sits on the board.

Dingeldey told Schwall he didn't pass them out but that's not what we heard.

Oh well — it's over for the time being.

THE GENERAL election isn't until November so let's declare a one-month moratorium on politics, huh? Let's get the Fall Festival over with, school open (on time and without a strike, I hope) and then we'll grind up for the political circus again.

So, dear readers, rest a month from politics. We're tired of writing about the races and I'm sure you're tired of reading about them.

The Stroller Freighters are gone

By W. W. EDGAR

If a fellow wants to get the real low-down on the condition of our country with its spiraling inflation, growing ranks of the unemployed and the other ills of the moment he need not delve through the columns of the Wall Street Journal, read the fine print of the stock market reports or listen to any of the expert economists.

All he need do is to spend a few hours up along the St. Clair River between Algonac and Port Huron and talk with the natives who have been watching river traffic for years.

"Just look at the boats," one of them told The Stroller the other afternoon, "and you can tell that something is wrong."

"We don't have as many of the big freighters going by these days and even those that do pass here are different."

At that moment a big, black hulled freighter, riding high out of the water, went by and the Old Timer wasted no time using it to bolster his opinion.

"That shows you what is happening," he went on. "That is one of the boats that has been used to help reduce the high cost of operation."

"You see," he said, "it wasn't always that long. But some one figured if the boats could carry more of a load with the same sized crew it would cut the cost of operation. So they cut the hull in half and inserted a piece about 200 feet long. Now, it can handle a much bigger load for almost the same cost."

THAT WAS ONLY one of the changes the Old Timer pointed out as his eyes scanned the horizon for the sight of another freighter.

"By carrying bigger loads," he explained, "there isn't a need for so many boats. And that's only part of the story."

"We have more boats going up or down empty that we ever have had. It used to be that the big boats were loaded while travelling in either direction. Now, that doesn't happen too often. More often than not they make one trip empty."

It used to be that the freighters would take a load of automobiles or steel to such places as Alpena, Rogers City and Duluth, or shipments of merchandise to Chicago, then return loaded with such materials as limestone and cement or iron ore from the regions in Lake Superior.

"Now, many of them are going up empty, riding high out of the water, and showing that the economy is in a slump."

Another example, according to the Old Timer, is the reduced number of foreign boats making the long trip through the St. Lawrence Seaway.

"We used to have quite a few of them," he said, "and they were a sight to see. Now, from what I hear, many of them are unloading at the port of New York and returning home, across the ocean, while the cargo is shipped west by railroad. That makes a difference, too."

There was a time, before the inflationary spiral set in, the huge fleet of freighters furnished a lot of "color" along the river. Most of the crew members lived in these small towns and would signal their families by so many "toots" of the whistle, when they were passing by.

IT USED TO be fun to watch the mother and her children race down to the river bank and wave to "Dad" as the boat went by. And it always was interesting to hear them shout messages, or hear a wife call out, "There'll be a letter for you at the Soo."

Now, with the reduced number of boats these journeys to the river bank are fewer and you don't see entire families making the jaunt anymore to wave to "Dad." It's too bad, too, for the signaling from the big freighters was one of the big moments in these towns. The natives could tell, by the number of "toots" on the whistle who was passing and which freighter it was.

As we sat there watching for the next freighter to come along—and there wasn't one for more than three hours—the Old Timer turned and said:

"We have fewer boats today, but many more fishermen. They're all trying to land a big one for the evening meal and beat the high cost of living."

Yes sir, the beautiful St. Clair River tells the story of the condition of the country better than any so-called expert economist could.

Celebrity models in RSL style show

The Redford Suburban League, long-time friend to retarded and handicapped children, is enlisting help from some of the most glamorous women in the metropolitan area to boost its fund-raising this year.

Social leader Dollie Cole, former Miss America Pam Eldred and TV newswoman Doris Biscoe are among the celebrities who have agreed to model in the fashion show the league will stage Nov. 6 at Raleigh House in Southfield.

"They were very gracious and said they would be glad to help because of our cause and the fact we have done so much to help retarded children," said Mrs. Kitty Flynn, Suburban League Models chairman for the luncheon and style show.

"Another of the models is Judy McCarthy, wife of J.P. She said she didn't see how anyone could turn us down when we've worked so hard and the effort is so much needed."

THE LIST OF CELEBRITY models also includes Marilyn Turner of television fame. Mrs. Joseph Slavik, builder's wife and former chairman of drives for Aid to Leukemia-Stricken Children (ALSAC), and the wives of sports figures Norm Cash, Alex Del-vecchio, Joe Coleman and Jim Yarbrough, more

And among models will be a "home-grown" celebrity—Redford Suburban League member Lila Mason, who is a former Mrs. America.

Mrs. Barbara Babcock, publicity chairman who invited some of the models to participate, said Miss Eldred told her she "always has a soft spot in her heart for retarded children" and would be glad to help.

Mrs. Babcock said the Redford Suburban League has a major fund-raising project each year to support various projects that aid handicapped children.

"We've found fashion shows go over best," she said, "and decided to put on a major one this year."

THE EVENT WILL FILL Raleigh house and will feature, besides the latest styles from Matthews of Birmingham, a parade of past and future fashions with members of the RSL as models, and a boutique sale featuring items the members have been creating in summer workshops.

Tickets are $8.50 and will go on sale the first of September, when they may be obtained from all league members.

Mrs. Janine Duprey, RSL ways and means chairman for 1974-75, is in charge of the event.

THE REDFORD SUBURBAN League was founded in 1955 by 15 women interested in helping retarded children. The group now has 292 members, and its work throughout its 21-year history has always been in the area of helping mentally and physically handicapped children.

Over the years, the RSL has donated nearly $50,000 to many organizations and for many programs of help to the handicapped.

It also has initiated a number of programs, the most recent titled Presents and Love, or PAL for short. It involves some 225 persons, most of them league members and friends, who have kept close contact with some "forgotten" retarded child or adult.

Special efforts on behalf of the handicapped, retarded and forgotten have brought major honors to several league members. Mrs. Marjorie Gibbs and Mrs. Barbara Moore have been recipients of Heart of Gold awards by United Community Services and Geraldine Liblang was Redford Township's Woman of the Year in 1968.

Sore feet, buffalo stew mark Girl Scout trek

By MARGARET MILLER

Barb Casler wonders if the women of covered-wagon days could possibly have had feet as sore as hers.

Shelly Caldwell finds it hard to believe the pioneers of a century ago ate as much buffalo meat as she did.

Mary Birmingham thinks maybe the early settlers would have liked it if forgetfulness had kept the Indians away, as happened last month.

Without a doubt, the three agree they and some 150 other Girl Scouts from all over the country know more now about the lives of those who understood first-hand how the west was won.

THE THREE LIVONIA Girl Scouts, all members of Senior Troop 2254, joined a week-long caravan trip across the prairies of North Dakota.

Eleven covered wagons, with teams to pull them, and a couple dozen saddle horses were with the travelers. The trek has been made in the area by a number of organizations in recent years, but this year's trip was a first for the Girl Scout Wider Opportunities program.

The journey was over an old supply route from Jamestown to Fort Totten, N.D., a distance of about 70 miles as the crow flies. But Girl Scouts and covered wagons don't fly so they traveled 115 miles.

BARB CASLER IS WELL AWARE of that distance. She walked it all the way.

It wasn't exactly intended that way, she said. The plan was that any scouts who wanted to could rent horses for the trip, and the others would take turns riding in the wagons.

"So the first day I didn't ride at all and decided then it would be really neat to walk the whole way," she said.

Barb was the only one of the girls on the trip who covered the whole distance on foot. At the end of the trail she was awarded a pair of beaded Indian moccasins for her feet's feat.

SHELLY AND MARY did their traveling on horseback. The Girl Scout brochures about the trip told them to make their own arrangements for horses, so they worked out the rentals.

"My horse," Shelly said, "had a great disposition, but he was pretty ugly in looks. He didn't have a name, so we kept thinking all the way what to call him. By the time we finished, it was 'Ichabod Cranston TW Snord.' I'm glad I didn't have to call him by that too often."

Mary's companion for the trip was more prosaically named Sugarfoot.

PIONEER DRESS was the order of the day for the trip.

Actually, the girls did a lot of the daily trekking in jeans, "but we had to wear our dresses in chow line at night or we didn't get fed," Shelly said.

The calico dresses also were the garb the girls wore for special events that were part of the trip, the annual Fort Totten Indian pow wow and international Indian dancing competition and a parade that was part of a Fort Totten days celebration.

The girls agreed the long dresses of the pioneer women might have a few advantages over today's denim pants.

"Hard to get used to, but probably cooler out on the trail," Mary decided.

"But a pretty wierd feeling when you're riding horseback," was Shelly's description.

ALONG THE WAY the wagons and horses and girls went pretty much the way the pioneers had.

"Wherever possible, we followed the route of the wagon trains of 100 years ago," Shelly said. "Of course, in lots of places buildings and roads got in the way, but in some places where we traveled we could see the ruts originally made by the old covered wagons."

Cooking was done over open fires, at least for the morning and evening meals.

"And at night it was always buffalo meat," Shelly reported. "Buffalo stew, buffalo burgers, buffalo steaks. It was good the first night. The meat could pass for beef in stew, but as steak it was tough and stringy."

ONE OF THE BIG FEATURES of the trip was supposed to have been an Indian raid, the girls said.

"They've had it several years when people were taking this trip," Shelly said. "We were prepared, but the Indians never came. I guess somebody forgot about us."

Sleeping was in pup tents or under the stars or "wherever," they reported.

"One night it rained and we all scrambled into our wagon," Barb recalled. "That was pretty crowded and I don't think our driver was very happy to see all of us."

The wagons were owned by people in the North Dakota area and each was pulled by a team of horses. All but Barb's wagon, which was drawn by oxen.

EVENINGS AROUND the campfire the girls joined in a special project that helped wind up the trip in good fashion. They produced a quilt to present to the museum at Fort Totten.

"We were divided into groups by wagons," Shelly said, "and each group was given an 18-inch square of material and a box of stuff to decorate it with. Things like scraps of material and yarn and trims."

Varving ideas produced a gay assemblage of the finished product was presented to the chief of the Sioux tribe that uses the reservation at Fort Totten.

And what did the local scouts decide about pioneer life?

It's fun to be a pioneer for a little while, they agreed, but probably a lot easier to be living now.

Is high-rise parking needed?

er involve a long, laborious effort." The chamber of commerce has formed a committee to bring merchants together on parking solutions, but harmony appears to be a long way off and that leaves the city holding the bag.

"We (the city) should go ahead and build parking to induce some developers—to show some cooperation on the part of the city," said Fred Hill, owner of John Smith Men's and Boy's Wear and a member of the chamber of commerce parking committee.

According to City Commissioner Harold Guenther, the realities of the city's tax base demand that it encourage business growth. "The whole thing begins from an economic base," he said. "Tax-wise, people aren't a good bargain for the city. They never pay their way (compared to the tax contributions of retail businesses). Local business is still the best bet we have."

In the past, the city has acquired parking lots, installed meters on downtown streets and equipped the Central Lot with attendant parking, but it has yet to go the next step—building a parking structure.

"The city has to be out there leading the parade," Guenther said. "We have to ask: Can the city per se, in furtherance of its own welfare, take over parking?"

He thinks it can and must, with merchants assuming the financial burdens of paying off the structures. "I advocate the principle of the city being responsible for the physical existence of parking," he said. "The responsibility for paying for it would then be with business and the consumer."

"Our economic salvation lies in promoting local business and all the amenities that go with it. The city has to say 'we're in bed with business.' THE city has the tools of bonding and condemnation, we need to think of ourselves as a shopping center."

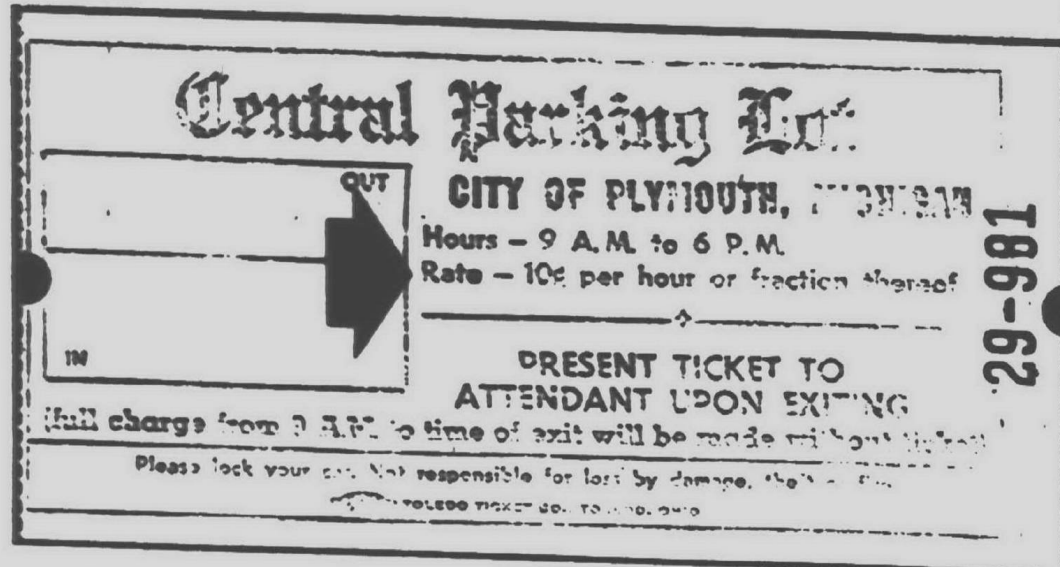

Shopping centers, after all, pose the chief competition to downtown businesses. In the large centers (the land lord imposes "free" parking on his tenant stores and includes the cost of parking lot maintenance in their rent.

Many downtown merchants feel that the central business district would best be served by free parking. But it's not a simple matter.

"There's no such thing as free parking," said Hill. "The question is, who's going to pay for it?" Many of the merchants would like to have an equitable arrangement whereby they could share the cost of maintaining city parking facilities at no expense to their customers.

"I haven't seen a parking meter or coin slot in any one of the shopping centers around here," said Fred Beitner, owner of Beitner's Jewelry. "That gives them a tremendous competitive advantage."

Beitner suggests a special assessment district where downtown mer-

IF THE TICKETS now in use at the Central Lot are any indication, the days of the five-cent parking space are numbered. You can still park there for a nickel, but when the DPW ran out of five-cent tickets recently 10-cent ones were ordered in anticipation of approval of a rate hike. City officials requesting the increase hope it will offset much of the city parking fund's $25,000 annual deficit.

chants would be assessed parking costs according to their square footage of retail space.

The trouble with that, Guenther contends, is that some merchants are always going to be closer to prime parking than others and would therefore get more for their money.

"That's a hard thing to work," he said. "By its nature it requires graduations of cost. It would take a Solomon to lay it out."

Eldridge advocates a development authority which could supplement the existing Municipal Building Authority which owns two of the city's lots. The authority would be a vehicle which the city could use to float bonds and take the initiative in parking structure construction.

Currently before the legislature is a bill which would allow cities to establish these "downtown development authorities" by empowering the city commission to levy a special assessment up to two mills per $1 on real and personal property within the designated downtown district.

1. Authority could issue revenue bonds or borrow money through the state Municipal Finance Commission, acquire property by purchase or right of eminent domain and improve the land and construct buildings.

The authority's first priority would be to relieve the crowded quadrants behind and across the street from the Mayflower. Former Mayor James McKeon wants to encourage growth in those blocks, such as the new restaurant planned for the Consumer Discount building on Forest, by adding enough parking to handle the area's needs.

"When Ralph (Mayflower owner Ralph Lorenz) throws something on we're just paralyzed," he said, "but that's what we want."

Another section where parking is short is around Penniman and Main. "That's still a critical area," McKeon said. "If it weren't for Schrader providing free parking it would be a disaster. There's an example of a single man providing money for parking."

All of the proposed parking structures would be served by the loop road, which completely encircles the central business district.

The route would provide easy access to the parking structures as well as to existing city lots and would relieve congestion on Main and Ann Arbor Trail. It would also require elimination of street parking on the streets included as loop roads.

Most of the loop road property has already been acquired, but before the route will be effective its intersections will have to be rounded off.

Among the lots serviced by the loop would be the Central Lot, with its entrance on Harvey Street. Some of the merchants whose stores adjoin the lot suggest that a second-level deck would boost downtown parking and also open second story space in their buildings for retail operations.

But as it is now, the lot is seldom full. Eldridge feels downtown expansion would be better served by distributing parking space where acute needs exist.

"We don't think it realistic," he said. "To add to parking here, is to place the emphasis in the wrong place. It's not putting it where the need is."

Eldridge also dismisses suggestions for underground parking in the critical quadrants. "Underground is more expensive and psychologically undesirable," he said. "The preferred approach is an open, airy parking structure with an attractive skin which complements the surrounding retail area."

Eldridge would like to coordinate parking improvements with a large retail store which would "anchor" smaller shops. "One sizable shop would make downtown gell," he said.

It's all going to call for an initial outlay of money by the city. "Sometimes you have to spend money to make money," said Yockey. "Which comes first, the chicken or the egg? Do you build the parking first?"

Guenther thinks so. Developers will insist, "I want a picture of you not reprieve with failures to find parking space," he said. He considers decisions on metered parking and attendant parking fees as insignificant compared to the city's need to encourage business growth by building parking structures.

"They're playing with pennies and the dollars are flying away," he said.

Eldridge and McKeon both point to Birmingham as an example of a community with a revitalized downtown. "Plymouth has more opportunity for developing an effective downtown shopping area than Birmingham had," Eldridge said. "It has the ability to really develop as an interesting downtown."

"Plymouth has to go now as a retail area if it's to maintain its competitive edge," he concluded. "It's got only two ways to go—up or down. In the next five years you're going to see a notable change in downtown Plymouth."

townspeople know the post office is concerned.

IN ADDITION to readily approving the expenditures for renovation, the regional office is almost certain to go along with Harris' plan to recognize the work of long standing, faithful employees with salary increases and cash awards.

Enthusiasm is infectious. As a financial and accounting person, he has been sent by the district office for periods of time to post offices in Royal Oak, Detroit and other areas, to untangle problems and smooth operations. He says he thoroughly enjoys his job and is a strong booster of the postal system.

The charm of the Plymouth commu-

BY TOM DONOGHUE
Sports Editor

Before the largest crowd ever to assemble for a baseball clash at Livonia's Ford Field, Bob Atkins' Redford Adray crew romped past Birmingham, Ala., in the opening round of the Triple ABA regionals, 7-3.

A crowd of nearly 3,000 witnessed the Redford squad push its season mark to 38-3 and move a step closer to Johnstown, Pa. for the nationals which begin Aug. 14.

By topping the Woodhaven club of Birmingham, Ala., Redford was to play Buffalo, N.Y., on Saturday in the two-game knockout between the three teams.

KEVIN BARA started on the Redford mound and lasted eight full innings before being pulled in the ninth. Tom Miller and Tom Nippa finished off the triumph.

Redford showed signs of finishing Alabama off in the first when it loaded the bases with no outs. With Joe Beckwith on the mound for the Woodhaven club, Redford's John Roy popped the first pitch of the ball game over short for a single. Mark Yourchok followed with a bouncing single to right and Tom McWilliams walked to fill the sacks.

Steve Friedman bounced one back to Beckwith on the mound who tossed to the plate to force out Roy for the first out. Art Mach grounded out, second to first, Yourchok scoring the game's first run. Beckwith got out of the jam with no further damage by striking out John Broder.

ALABAMA threatened off Bara in the last of the inning. After two were out, Russ Aldrich doubled to left, but Bara got the next batsman to ground out to first to halt that threat.

The Redford bats hit a cold spell as Beckwith retired 13 straight hitters, six on strikeouts, while his teammates tied it at one-all in the last of the third.

Ed Speakman singled and was sacrificed to second. After a strikeout for the second out, Jim Reeves lashed a double over McWilliams' head in left to score Speakman, and it was a new ball game.

With two outs in the top of the fifth, Redford broke that streak of 13 outs in a row when Gary D'Ascenzo singled up the middle. Roy then singled to right, and when the outfielder bobbled the ball, D'Ascenzo moved to third and Roy to second to set the stage for the game's key hit. Yourchok lined a double down the line in left to score two and give Redford a 3-1 lead.

THE SIXTH SAW the Adray crew make it 4-1 when with two down, Broder doubled and scored when Bara was safe on a pop fly that was dropped by the Alabama shortstop.

The regional opener broke wide open in the seventh with Redford pumping in three more runs on four hits and an error.

D'Ascenzo led off with a single and Roy banged out his third hit to put runners on first and second. That's when Alabama made a pitching change and brought in lefthander Bill Cranford, who struck out Yourchok and got Bob Ganzak to line to right.

But Friedman kept things alive with a single to left, and when the outfielder booted the ball, both runners scored. Friedman wound up on second and scored on a hit by Mach to make it 7-1.

Alabama got one back in the seventh off Bara. With two out, Richard Ezell singled, Steve Hill singled and Cranford was safe on an error by Yourchok at first with Ezell scoring. Bara got Dennis Kizziah to ground out to halt that rally.

REDFORD LOADED the bases in the ninth in an attempt to add some insurance runs but failed to score when Broder bounced into a double play after Ganzak had singled, and Friedman and Mach drew walks.

It was down to the last of the ninth, and Ezell walked off Bara to open the inning. Redford second baseman Mike Kalil made a diving catch of a pop fly off the bat of Hill for out No. 1, and Cranford drilled one deep in the hole at second with Kalil's toss to second late in an attempt to nail Ezell.

Kizziah followed with a single to left to score Ezell, and that's when Atkins brought in his ace reliever Miller. Reeves tapped a roller to Kalil with Kizziah forced at second for the second out. But then Miller walked Aldrich to load the bases with two down and bring the potential tying run to the plate.

Atkins made another change, and in came his lefty Tommy Nippa, who struck out Steve Hammond on three straight pitches and it was into round two for Redford.

Bara chalked up the win for Redford, his 11th of the summer, as he gave up eight hits, walked one and struck out six with one of the two runs off him earned.

Clarenceville Fischetti wins 2 in state rec. play

Del Cory's summer Trojans of Clarenceville High are kicking up their heels in the Michigan Recreation baseball tourney.

Clarenceville Fischetti, which knocked off Franklin Berry in the Livonia recreation final, 5-3, has scored back to back shutout wins in the one-game knockout tourney to move into semifinal action today (Monday) against Wyandotte with the winner meeting Dearborn on Thursday.

Clarenceville blanked Godfrey of Ann Arbor, 4-0, and did in Jackson Merchants, 3-0, to move closer to that recreation title.

Chris Curtis was on the mound for Clarenceville in the opening four run victory. The Trojan hurler tossed a five-hitter, walked one and struckout three while recording his second win against two losses.

Taking the loss for Ann Arbor was Rick Benditt with Clarenceville banging out six hits.

A walk to Rick Beyer, passed ball and single by Jim Hill got Clarenceville off to a 1-0 lead in the first. The fourth saw the Fischetti sponsored crew push it to 3-0. Curtis walked, Dino Mastropietro singled, the two moved up on a passed ball and scored on a hit by Nil Sheena.

A solo homer by Mastropietro upped it to 4-0 in the last of the sixth. Then came blankin! No. 2 with Brian Luka tossing a four-hitter to up his individual summer mound performance to 7-2. Luka gave up two walks and struckout four.

Ken Pall suffered the defeat with Clarenceville collecting seven hits, walking twice and striking out four.

Clarenceville's first tally came in the last of the fifth when Gary Juntunen sinRled, Tim Laird walked and Luka singled home Juntunen.

The sixth saw the Trojans put it away on a single by Mastropietro, a three-bagger off the bat of Hill and a fielder's choice.

3rd Proben to join EMU golf squad

Eastern Michigan University's golf squad has caught another Proben. Ray Proben, a '74 graduate of Thurston High School in Redford Township, signed his letter of intent. The 1973 Detroit News All-Metro golf team selection and 1973 Michigan Junior Amateur champ is the third member of the family to join the EMU golf ranks.

He will join brother Bob, an all-MAC returning sophomore letterman in the fall, on the Huron varsity squad. Tom Proben, the oldest of the three brothers, graduated in June after starring for two seasons on the Huron links.

Ray is among a list of five high school standouts that EMU golf Coach Jim Nelson announced signing of intent letters. Jackson High School's Steve Kusisto, Frank McAuliffe of Monroe Catholic, Bob Simmons of Northville and Mike Maron of Lansing Sexton round out the five.

The EMU golfers open their '74 campaign Oct. 4-5 in a Wolverine Invitational at Ann Arbor before moving on to the Illinois State Invitational, Oct. 11-12.

Franklin Berry team in 'D' inter-city tourney

By taking second best in the Livonia Recreation baseball tourney, Paul Hunt's Franklin Berry club has qualified for the eight team inter-city class D tourney to be held in Wyandotte.

Franklin the solo Livonia team still alive in any sort of tourney play, will be up against Wayne tomorrow (Tuesday), in a 1 p.m. clash. If Berry wins this one, it will meet the victor of the Trenton - Wyandotte contest on Wednesday at 3 p.m. with the tourney final set for Friday, Aug. 16, at 2 p.m.

The one game knockout set involves Hazel Park, Dearborn, Inkster, Westland, Wayne, Trenton, Wyandotte and Livonia.

Hunt's "pickups" for the tourney included Ernie Sotrm of Bentley Crowei Sam Bird of National Pride and Gary Stafford of Redford.

From all indications action along the metropolitan bowling front will reach an all-time high when the new season gets under way later in the month.

So great has been the demand for league times that the All-Star Classic, a Tuesday night fixture since its inception four decades ago, is being forced to bowl on eight Sunday nights. There just isn't room enough for the all-stars any more.

Commenting on the demand Tom Mc Kay, secretary of the Greater Detroit Bowling Association, said that more and more houses are finding it difficult to spare an evening during the week because of the demand for local league time.

The demand also is building up in the women's ranks, too, as Rose Marsh, secretary of the Detroit Women's Bowling Association, explained.

"We're finding that there isn't much shifting by the leagues," she said. "Most of the growth is in new leagues and the demand is growing each day."

Usually, at this time of year, the various establishments are letting it be known that there are openings available in some of their leagues. But these are few and far between for the campaign just ahead.

For example, George Bashara, at Wonderland Lanes in Livonia, commented that his schedule is filled — both night and day. It is not unusual in this high scoring house to have the night schedule filled, but having a complete day schedule is something new.

The same is true at Bel-Aire Lanes in Farmington where there is only room for an eight team league left for a complete schedule.

Some establishments have leagues going full blast from 9 a.m. until the final league goes on at midnight. This is in contrast to the days when two leagues a day was considered the break-even point for the proprietors.

In keeping with tradition, the John Gavie Sweepstakes will usher in the new season for both men and women. This event is scheduled at Thunderbowl in Allen Park on Monday, Aug. 26.

While providing keen competition the Gavie affair also serves as the "warm-up" for the all-star leagues.

The all-star classic will open on Tuesday, Aug. 27 at Satellite Bowl in Dearborn Heights and the women follow a week later at Motor Lanes where the Bowlerettes will hold forth and at Pine Tree Bowl where the Ladies Major League will decide its championships.

The books have been closed on the 1973-74 season and here are the highest scores bowled throughout the area:

Men's team event—Stroh rolled 3437 for high series and a 1261 for high single game. The former was bowled at Shafer Lanes and the single game at Belmar Lanes.

Men's individual series: Fred Ringrose topped the list with an 803 bowled at Wonderland Lanes. He beat out Rick Mc Cutter who registered an 801 at North Hills.

In the women's divisions Carol

Yurkus' Detroit Bowling Sales team rolled 2994 for high series and the Syl Thiel team, formerly the Thunderbird combination, posted a 1087 for high game.

Among the individuals Rosalind Stewart, who bowled a 300 at Fleetwood Lanes, was high and Cora Feibig rolled a 727 series to lead the field. It was the only 700 series in the women's ranks all-year. And Rosalind's perfect game was only the seventh ever bowled by a woman in the metropolitan area.

To help bolster the women's showing Cora Feibig took a team of 'sixth' members to Muskegon and the pickups won the state tournament.

So, all in all, it was a big year for the women.

As the summer season comes to a close one of the most pleased of all the competitors is Ron Sarah, whose No. 1 team live up to its name at Bel-Aire Lanes.

The team won the title and Ron finished with an average just above 210 that included a 727 for high series and a 289 for high game.

One of the few leagues on the hunt for bowlers is the Greenview School league that bowls on Friday mornings at Farmington Lanes on Grand River Avenue.

Anyone interested in this PTO loop should contact Jo Ann Pellegrin, 18295 Giffman, Livonia.

Churchill wraps up overall '74 campaign at 38-8

Churchill High Coach Roger Frayer has hung up his baseball hat and is already off to football camp with 75 promising Charger athletes.

After piling up a 22-2 mark in prep action which included a Western Six title and a state class A championship, Churchill came from four games back to tip Franklin Berry and win the toughest division outright by one point in the Berry loop and then knockoff the Plymouth Merchants for the overall title, 2-0.

Livonia Vikings set tryouts

The Livonia Vikings of the Michigan Junior B Hockey loop announce that they will be holding an open tryout on Saturday, Aug. 24, at 8 p.m. at the Devonair Ice Rink, one block east of Merriman on West Chicago in Livonia.

The Vikings will compete as a paid gate team this '74-75 season and will play a 40 game schedule with Ford Arena in Livonia as, its home ice.

The Livonia squad will be coached by Ken Lerg, former coach of the Michigan Eagles, a midget team that captured the National Midget Championship last year. Lerg formerly played college hockey with Ohio State College.

Churchill finished 16-6 for the summer to make it a 38-8 showing.

The final two defeats came in the state Connie Mack play in Saginaw after Churchill had whipped Saginaw in the opener, 3-1.

Saginaw Super-Flite dumped Churchill in game No. 4, 4-1, and the Chargers bowed out of '74 in the following contest against Lake Orion, 1-0.

The 2-0 Berry loop title for Churchill saw Roland Morency pick up the victory. Morency allotted Fred Crissey's Canton crew just one hit while Plymouth's Chris Martucci gave up two in taking the loss.

Churchill's two scores came in the fourth when Larry Lipa and Gary Condon drew walks, Rod Hawraney singled in one run and Mike Gottshall sacrificed in Condon.

Then came the Mack district opener and once again Frayer called on his summer ace Morency who was only one out away from tossing a no-hitter.

With two outs in the seventh and his squad up, 3-1, Mark Peterson banded a single up the middle to ruin the gem. Morency wound up with the one-hitter, struckout 12 and walked four.

Saginaw scored its lone run in the second on a walk, sacrifice, passed ball and wild pitch.

Churchill scored its first run in the last of the second on a solo shot over the 365 mark in left by Hawraney. The deciding two scores came in the third. With two down, Lipa ripped a ground-rule double to right, Condon singled to left, stole second and scored on a double by Hawraney.

What followed were two quick defeats to knock Frayer's Chargers out of the tourney.

Brad Bonk tossed a three-hitter in game two, walking three and striking out seven for the Super-Flite squad. Taking the defeat for Churchill was Jamie Knapp who gave up five hits, walked three and struck out three.

Churchill scored its lone tally in the first and Super-Flite exploded for four in the third to wrap it up.

Lake Orion, behind the two-hit pitching of Bill Trapani, halted Churchill's season in 1-0 style. Trapani gave up singles to Al Leirstein and Jay Nelson and that was the extent of Churchill's assault.

Trapani walked one and struck out six while Dave Panzoff took the defeat for Churchill. Lake Orion collected six hits and scored its lone run in the last of the sixth on a walk, sacrifice and two-base throwing error by Panzoff on a sacrifice bunt.

IT WAS JUNIOR GOLF CLINIC TIME AT LIVONIA'S WHISPERING WILLOWS and the juniors took over and did their thing. Nine-year-old Doug LeMaster (left) takes a fierce practice swing (or did he just miss the ball); Chris Karorski (center) concentrates before hitting, and Peggy Petras (right) seems to have this drive mis-lined. My friend 'Alvin the Squirrel' finds a softie

By MAURIE WALKER

My friend Alvin is an aggressive sort of fellow. At our first few meetings he was shy, but as we got to know each other better, he became more of an extrovert.

Alvin, the name I tagged on him, is actually a Fox squirrel that lives in a big Oak tree not far from my house.

ONE DAY, a couple of years ago, he appeared near our back door, evidently looking for something to eat.

You see, it was a cold winter and I figured whatever nuts he had buried earlier were either all gone or so snow covered that he couldn't find them.

Squirrels, in case you didn't know, don't have a system of food storage like certain rodents of western North America and Asia and others that actually stock their winter food supply in summer and fall.

Our squirrels have gone part way in food storage by burying nuts all over their home range which they industriously search out for winter food.

A single squirrel, like my friend Alvin, may hide more than a thousand nuts, and if he finds them all, should make out all right for winter. It is questionable, however, that a squirrel finds all or most of these hidden nuts.

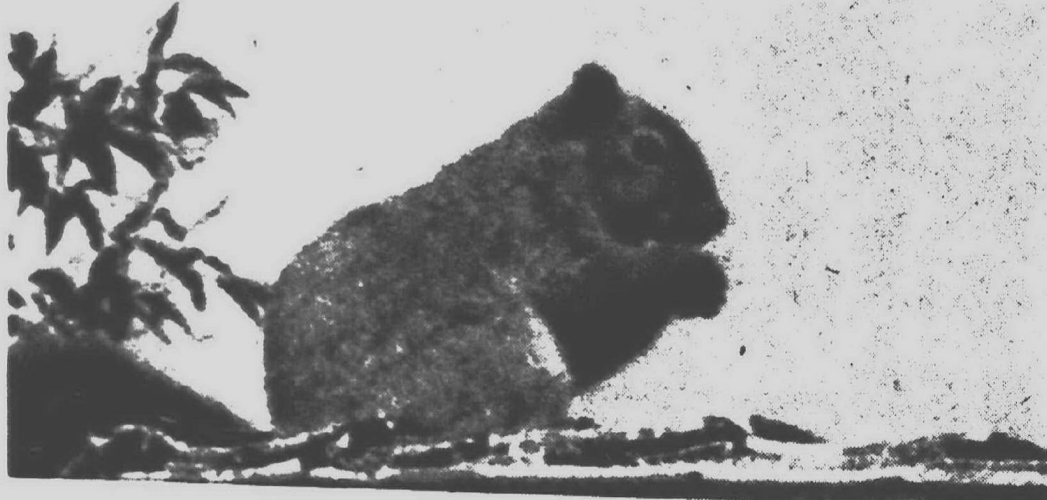

It is supposed a combination of memory and a sense of smell are used by the squirrel but it is also unlikely that even the luckiest and smartest, like Alvin, ever finds all of his hidden treasure.

BE THAT as it may, Alvin soon learned he had a "softie" at our household.

I had thrown some peanuts into the yard when I first noticed him there. And, as I said, being an aggressive fellow, Alvin made my house a daily stop on his rounds.

I thought that once winter was over, Alvin would go his merry way and not bother stopping by for a snack each day. I was wrong. Boy, was I wrong.

When spring came, he continued to haunt my yard. In fact, one morning while having my morning coffee in the kitchen, which faces out toward the yard, Alvin came racing into view.

MY FRIEND "ALVIN"

He climbed on the garage roof, giving him a good view into the kitchen, and started chattering.

At first I didn't notice him, but as the loud chattering continued, I looked up to see a rather perturbed Alvin staring in my direction.

Putting my coffee down, which is a real sacrifice for me first thing in the morning, I went outside to see what was disturbing my little friend.

It didn't take but a minute for me to learn he was put out because I hadn't tossed any nuts his way.

Tail wagging angrily, and still chattering, he glared at me like a restaurant patron looking for a waiter.

Problem was, I had run out of peanuts. What to do to maintain our friendship?

MY GOOD WIFE suggested maybe Alvin would be content with some corn chips we had in the cupboard.

Looking at her with amazement, I never-the-less took her suggestion and tossed some to Alvin.

He raced over to the tree by the garage, scampered down and came over to see what was for breakfast.

When he first sniffed at the chips, he looked like a person whose morning eggs weren't cooked right. Giving the corn chips a second look, Alvin decided to try one.

Perhaps it was because he was really hungry, or maybe he actually liked them, whatever the reason, he grabbed one, sat up with the chip between his paws, and chewed away.

"Not bad," he seemed to say. Devouring one, he went back for more. There he had his fill, Alvin made several trips around the yard burying the leftovers.

It was rather disheartening, but I soon learned Alvin is a bit of a thief. There is a bird feeder hanging from the garage and one day Alvin discovered it.

Working his way cautiously from the garage roof, he eased his way onto the feeder. Using his tail and hindfeet for balance, he stuck his head into the bird feeder and ate hardily.

As time passed, Alvin became bolder. If there is nothing in the yard for him to eat, he climbs up on the backdoor screen, chattering until I come out with some food.

ALVIN DOES have his problems though. Maybe it's because he steals the bird seed, but often, when I throw some nuts to him, Bluejays dive out of nowhere, scaring him off so they can steal the nuts.

Perhaps this is poetic justice, I thought. Alvin, though, doesn't give up. He continues to return, and is now bringing either members of his family or just friends.

There are times when he has three other squirrels with him, all looking for a handout.

The other squirrels are more timid, leaving the choicest food for Alvin who by now knows he has a friend in me.

Maybe, as my wife says, he knows he has found a friend who is nuts about squirrels.

RELOCATING DOESN'T HAVE TO BE DISLOCATING.

We belong to RELO, a national real estate organization whose job it is to relocate you physically without relocating you mentally.

And this we can do. Through our association with RELO, we can help relocate you to at least 6,500 different communities throughout the country.

All you have to do is contact any one of our offices, and we'll take it from there.

But remember one thing. If we can relocate you from coast to coast with a minimum of woe, imagine what we can do anywhere around Detroit and its environs.

TRULY A QUALITY MOTOR HOME
WITH AN ECONOMY PRICE From $7995

Here's a handy sign for your garage sale!

And here are some helpful hints for holding a successful sale:

- When you're rounding up those usable but no-longer-used items for your sale, be sure to check all the storage areas in your home—the basement, garage, attic, closets, seldom used cupboards.
- Saleable items include outgrown bicycles, lawn and patio furniture, small appliances, dishes, kitchen utensils, toys, golf clubs and other sports equipment, lawn mowers, decorator items, books, records, musical instruments—your "extras" may be "extra-special" to someone else!
- Visit a few garage sales before you hold your own. You'll get great ideas, and maybe pick up a treasure or two.
- Once you've picked the date for your sale, call The Observer & Eccentric Classified Department and place your Garage Sale Want ad. (O&E Want Ads reach more than 155,500 households every Monday and Thursday!) And remember, Double Action Family Want Ads—same ad, two consecutive issues—save you $2.00 off the regular Want Ad rates.
- When you're clearing out your garage, you'll probably discover that some of the items in there will have to stay there—even though you won't be selling them. Try to cover these "not-for-sales" or push them out of the way.
- Use tables to display as many of the sale items as possible. Items on the floor of the garage, especially small items, may be overlooked by prospective buyers.
- Make sure there is enough walking space through the garage, and that sale items are easy to reach.

8. PUT A PRICE TAG ON EVERYTHING! Prospective buyers will appreciate it, and you'll find it makes things easier for you.

9. Before your sale begins, be sure you have change and some sort of cash box on hand. Set up a "check-out" table just outside the garage.

10. Be ready for a rush at opening time—garage sale shoppers like to come early, and with your ad in The Observer & Eccentric, you'll have plenty of shoppers!

(And don't forget to use the sign above. Just paste it on heavy cardboard and post it by your house. It will help people locate your sale.)
