Fall Festival expected to be biggest, best ever

By JAN WILLIAMS

PLYMOUTH-If everything goes according to plan, the 1974 Plymouth Fall Festival will be-once again-the friendliest, most enjoyable, biggest and best festival ever.

Outgoing festival manager Tony Flum, who has held the position for nine years, says he hopes this year really will be "the best" because it will be "his last."

"It's always a headache, but once things get going it always comes off well," Flum says.

Flum says rain ("God forbid! I don't even like to talk about it.") might be the festival's only problem.

"We hope politicians won't take advantage of the festival by handing out their literature since this is an election year. We want to keep the festival free from any sort of commercialism or promotion."

A PROBLEM that cropped up prior to the festival was a shortage of booths. Earlier this week. Flum discovered they were seven booths short of the required number for festival participants. But extra booths were ordered and were expected to be set up in time for the festival opening. Plymouth Police Chief Tim Ford says he never anticipates trouble at the festival.

"The fall festival is populated by beautiful people. There has always been a great crowd and I expect there will be again this year."

Ford says this will be his fourth festival and he's looking forward to it because "it gives the chief a chance to get out of the office for a while."

He warns out of town festival goers, however, to check their route to Plymouth due to heavy road construction in the area.

"Road construction may pose a traffic problem and I advise motorists to check with the Wayne County Road Commission before starting for the festival."

If a record breaking crowd does show up for the festival this year, there will definitely be enough food to satisfy even the heartiest of appetites. Bob Sparling of the Plymouth Rotary Club, says Rotarians expect to serve 16,000 chicken dinners on Sun- Lions Club providing 1,200 pounds of day, Sept. 8, compared to 14,500 last fish and 800 pounds of French fries. year.

"WE'RE PRAYING for sunshine because if we don't get it, this whole town may be eating chicken for two months.'

Sparling added the chicken dinners will be available for the first time on a drive-in, carry-out basis on Sunday at the corner of Ann Arbor and Lilley roads.

Mildred Blackford of the Business and Professional Womens Club, says they expect to serve 4,000 German dinners today (Thursday).

"Last year we served only 2,500 dinners. I don't think anyone will go hungry this year."

And festival goers certainly won't go hungry on Friday either, with the Robert Erdelyi of the Lions Club, says they will be prepared to serve 3,000 dinners from 11 a.m. Friday until the fish runs out. Last year they served 2,600 dinners.

Erdelvi says a special rate on fish dinners will be offered for senior citizens from 1 to 5 p.m.

"We have lots of fish so we're hoping to see lots of hungry people on Friday."

Trying hard to satisfy eveyone's appetite on Saturday will be the Plymouth Jaycees serving up 2,300 rib dinners.

Bill Graham of the Jaycees says he expects the dinners to be even better

Teacher strike continues; 300 at board meeting

cussion of the teacher strike. Only part of the crowd-nearly 300 strong-was able to get into the school board conference room. (Staff photo by W. Edward Wendover)

No settlement reached

PLYMOUTH - Negotiations between the Plymouth Education Association (PEA, teachers' union) and the school district continued Wednesday afternoon but no agreement was reached.

School remains closed and the Plymouth Board of Education has asked parents in the district not to send their children to school until notified through the media that the strike is over

According to Margaret "Dolly" Carter, president of the PEA, a general membership meeting of the teachers' union has been scheduled for Friday morning in the Penn Theater to discuss the ongoing strike.

School Board President E. J. McClendon said the board would take one hour of public comments at its regular meeting at 8 p.m. Monday in the Plymouth - Canton High School auditorium

McClendon made that statement at Tuesday's special meeting of the board of education which was attended by some 300 persons hoping to discuss the strike that began Tuesday.

Following that meeting, which was not officially opened to the public although most of the board members stayed afterwards to talk with the audience. Mrs. Carter said there was really nothing new to the PEA's position.

She said that thus far no picketing has taken place at the schools even though some activities such as sports and band practice are continuing.

V

Mrs. Carter did say, however, that the 12.5 per cent raise being sought by the PEA (and mentioned by the board at Tuesday's meeting), was a "table position" and "not a settlement figure."

A debate between PEA representatives and school officials wa held Wednesday afternoon to discuss the strike.

The schools have been notifying area radio and television stations as well as the Plymouth newspapers about the status of negotiations and any change in the situation will be carried by them all.

Mrs. Carter said the PEA executive board has decided the press will not be admitted to its meetings of the general membership.

W. EDWARD WENDOVER

PLYMOUTH-Nearly 300 persons, including students, teachers and residents of the Plymouth School District, jammed into Tuesday night's special Board of Education meeting called to discuss the teacher strike.

The crowd, which at first wound down the stairs of the school district offices and out into the parking lot on Harvey Street, gradually worked its way into the second-floor conference room and into every available standing and sitting spot.'

Gathered at first around a circular table, the board moved the table inward to accommodate the crowd which had come to see what the Plymouth school board was going to do about the teacher strike.

But the board surprised the audience by simply reading and adopting a brief statement before adjourning the meeting in less than five minutes.

Following the close of the official meeting, however, six of the seven school board members (Board President E. J. McClendon left immediately) and school administrators informally discussed the strike with the often hostile audience.

The statement, read by McClendon, said that the school board:

"Will continue to seek binding arbitration (PEA, teachers' union) on a last position offer. (Meaning that an arbitrator selects which of the two final positions submitted by each side is the most equitable.)

"Will continue to encourage the PEA to enter into meaningful factfinding. (The school board has already requested the state to oversee factfinding but says the PEA will not agree to this.)

"Will continue to bargain at the table with the respective negotiating teams (which did occur both Tuesday and Wednesday although no settlement in the dispute was reached). "In the meantime," the board statement continued, "the Board of Education wishes the PEA to know the buildings are open.

"The board will allow any and all activities (to continue) that do not penalize students or citizens as long as proper supervision is available.

"The board further directs its administration to continue to consult with legal counsel to determine counsel's recommendation for further action, available to bring conclusion to the strike."

Another part of the board's statement Tuesday was a letter being sent out to all residents of the school district. It says in part:

"In the interest of the health and safety of the boys and girls, we ask that you do not attempt to send them to school until notified (to do so) through the media.

"We regret the need for this action. However, the board's negotiating team has, in good faith, offered the teachers' union representatives, a salary increase averaging 71/2 per cent plus the normal step experience increases (increments) that range from four to seven per cent.

"This would give teachers employed in Plymouth last year, raises of $1,181 to $2,148 the first year of the new contract and a second year offer of settlement of six per cent increase on the salary schedule or two-thirds of the cost of living allowance and stated fringes. "This position is well within contract settlements already completed in Wayne County and represents fiscal and professional responsibility to the citizens and children of the school dis trict," the board statement concluded. It passed by a unanimous vote of the board.

Before the official meeting was adjourned, McClendon said the board would discuss the strike issue at its regular board meeting to be held at 8 p.m. Monday in Plymouth-Canton High School's auditorium. He added that a one-hour limitation would be placed on that public discussion of the strike.

Then the board adjourned officially Tuesday, and McClendon left.

Members of the audience, angry at the inability of the board office conference room to accommodate the crowd and at the board for not more fully discussing the strike officially, attacked the board.

Trustee Gary Mirto defended the board's position against the PEA, saying the teachers have denied both binding arbitration and fact finding.

In answer to the suitability of the conference room for the meeting, the school board members said that the site was the usual one for special meetings and when Tuesday's meeting was tentatively called on Friday, it was not known what the current situation would be.

Trustee Marcia Borowski defended the board's negotiating positions, saying they were "what we honestly feel the budget can afford and still keep the kind of programs that are good for this district."

Mirto added, "We have nowhere to go but back to you (taxpayers) for more money to meet these added costs."

A man from the audience asked the board members whether the last best offer approach at binding arbitration could be a gamble. Board members agreed that it was.

Another man from the audience said, "It seems that somebody on both sides is going to have to be flexible or we're never going to get a decision." He was greeted by applause.

Mirto and Mrs. Borowski differed on whether they felt this current board offer were final - Mirto said it was, Mrs. Borowski said "not necessarily." Trustee Car! Berry said all

Handwriting analyst finds Ford, Nixon share traits

By ANITA CRONE

Gerald R. Ford, 38th president of the United States, has an unbelievable high degree of personal pride, says John Silvi.

Silvi, a handwriting analyst living in Livgnia, analyzed the president's handwriting for the Observer & Eccentric.

Hank Meijer, Observer & Eccentric reporter, had a sample of the president's handwriting which he loaned to Silvi for the analysis.

Currently devoting much of his time to teaching and lecturing on handwriting analysis, Silvi was the subject of a feature story in Observer Newspapers a year ago. IN THE COURSE of his study. which took more than three days of careful work, Silvi also noticed a strong similarity between Ford's handwriting, and that of Richard Nixon.

"But," Silvi said, "Ford's handwriting shows temporizing traits which will keep him out of the trouble Nixon found himself in."

Silvi's anaylsis of the president's handwriting also showed tendencies toward self-approval, optimism and a high sense of purpose. According to Silvi, the new president also tends towards a reluctance to admit his mistakes and a mentally pokey, but not a lazy attitude in decision making processes.

"One of the strongest traits indicated in the handwriting of President Ford," said Silvi," is an unbelievably high degree of personal pride.

"The intensity of this trait is such that it will affect his entire personality; it will color his behavior; and it will influence his thinking.

"This pride is fed by a deep and probably unrecognized desire for approval. This man wants to be looked up to, and this desire is so intense that it almost constitutes a compulsion.

"Naturally, this will result in behavior patterns that will be tailored to produce the approval responses that "In addition to wanting and needing approval from others, Gerald Ford satisfies a large part of this hunger with a high degree of self approval.

"This man likes what he is; he likes what he does; and he likes what he thinks. The booby trap here lies in the fact that there may be times when he makes wrong decisions, but he will be reluctant to recognize or admit that he made a mistake.

"This is because of his intense pride which borders close to vanity and keeps feeding him the message that because Gerald Ford is such an admirable working mechanism it is extremely unlikely that he could be wrong.

"The thinking processes of Presi-dent Ford embodies a contradiction which may result in an inner conflict of which this man may be completely unaware.

"We have on one side a sharp analytical mind; and at the same time there are some areas in this man's thought brocesses where he refuses to move but stolidly pokes along with a complete disregard for the urgency of the matter at hand.

"This is not due to mental laziness, as is so often the case, but this man's writing indicates that this occasional pokiness is an integral part of his mental process, and is a quality that has probably been with him most or perhaps all of his life.

"This quality, as part of the mental functioning of the the president of the United States could be dangerous because situations might arise where there would not be time for any delayed action in decision making.

"PRESIDENT Gerald Ford has an admirable quality of optimism.

"He will have a tendency to look for and find the bright side of any dark situation, and he will be spurred on by an assurance and an expectation of favorable results in any questionable enterprise or undertaking. He will continually expect tomorrow to be better than today.

"This man is sustained by an inner buoyancy that will enable him to tackle problems that might otherwise seem insurmountable. "Along the same vein, Gerald Ford

By W. EDWARD WENDOVER

CANTON-It is a new day in Canton Township.

The old political machine has creaked to a halt, overloaded by the burgeoning population it fostered, and a new political machine is already in control.

Although the old machine has not yet entirely rusted away, the new model has eased it out to the very edge of the throne.

The demise of the Ghost of Canton Past was sealed by the recent primary elections, but the Ghost of Canton Present (and Future?) was already haunting the township before the elections.

IT WAS EVIDENT on the filing date for township candidates last June that the old era was over.

Supervisor Phil Dingeldey was retiring, as was Trustee Don Korte. Bob Griffin had died and his seat was filled by young Dick Wolfe only days earlier.

The new Canton residents -the thousands who have arrived with the housing boom-were in control.

Trustees Jim Poole, Brian Schwall and now Wolfe, were new Cantonites. They were three of seven on the board-but what had really turned the tide was Clerk John Flodin's "coming of age."

In the past, Flodin was considered a mirror image of Dingeldey on the board because of their close friendship.

Then, some three years ago, Flodin began to emerge as an independent, and forcefully so. (The fact the Canton Democratic Club ran no one against him showed Flodin had the new residents at heart and/or enough of their support to continue in office.)

WITH THE FLODIN, Poole, Schwall and Wolfe majority on the board, the new era had arrived. Then with Dingeldey's and Korte's retirements, the impact was clear. Dingeldey could have fought on (he had his reelection petition filled out), but he chose not to.

In the primaries, Treasurer Grant Campbell and Planning Commission Chairman Joe Kinnick (a new Cantonite but old-era sympathizer) were defeated. Now the new residents were firmly in control beyond danger of a reversing trend.

Both Campbell and Kinnick lost because of their support of the controversial proposed regional shopping center known as the Moceri Project.

It was Canton's new residents who scuttled the Moceri Project in the first real exercise of their political clout.

Now the new era has affected the township political system, and the November elections will retire the old machine along with Canton's agricultural days.

WHAT IS AT contest in November is not the old machine fighting to regain control, but just what form the new governmental era will take. Bob Greenstein, the Democratic nominee for supervisor, is virtually guaranteed the election. His Republican opponent, Poole, admitted that the night of the primary elections.

Jerry Cheske, a member of Greenstein's Dem Club slate, won the primary for the one two-year trustee post and thus is assured of election since no Republican opposes him. That means the Dem Club can count two seats on the board as theirs

In the race for the two, four-year township trustee seats, incumbent Schwall and Bob Myers, the latter a member of the Greenstein slate, won the Democratic primary with so many votes that they will likely be easy victors in November over Republicans Bill Ryan and Warren Attwood.

With Myers' election likely, the. Dem Club seems headed for three seats with some certainty,

But Greenstein said before the elections that his club will have failed if it did not win a majority on the boardfour seats.

Thus the battle for control of the new Canton political era has boiled down to slate vs. anti-slate.

Cheske has won, and assuming Greenstein, Schwall and Myers win, the board splits three slate members (Greenstein, Myers, Cheske) against three anti-slate members (Poole, who'll retain his trustee seat, and Flodin and Schwall, both of whom spurned Dem Club nominations).

THE REMAINING BOARD seat. that of treasurer, will thus be the decider of Canton's political direction under the new machine.

Slate member Carl Parsell and Republican Wolfe (who loses his trustee seat after the November election) must fight it out for the decision. Since Parsell didn't have to campaign very hard to win the Democratic nomination, and since Wolfe had no opposition in the primary, the two must now pitch battle in earnest.

THE TEST BEGINS.

Both candidates must fight through "conflict of interest" charges from the other side.

Wolfe is an administrative assistant for Wayne County and has been accused of split loyalties by the Democratic Club slate.

Parsell is executive director of the Michigan Police Officers' Association which would probably be bargaining agent in Canton's police department when that's created.

Strong credentials in education, economics and governmental administration are Wolfe's forte. They make him a strong candidate in the treasurer's race and even Parsell's slate mate, Cheske, has said as much publicly.

Parsell's advantage is the wellgreased Dem Club campaign machine, which has already demonstrated its effectiveness.

So the treasurer's race will be the indicator of how the new Canton political structure will be run.

Even though the Ghost of Canton-Past remains in the driver's seat, the new machine is already in control.

The new era in Canton Township politics has dawned. After November, residents will know what kind of day it will be.

Canton firemen win waterball contest

By ANITA CRONE

CANTON-The Canton Township Fire Department has proved again that the firefighters from Superior and Van Buren townships, Dearborn Heights, Plymouth, and the mutual aid squad are no match for them.

The Canton firefighters bested a six-team field and took home top honors for the fifth year in a row in the annual waterball battle.

"A lot of the credit for Canton's overwhelming victory has got to go to Bill Grady up front on the nozzle," said Jim Davison, coach of the Canton firefighters.

Correction

PLYMOUTH—In a recent picture in the Plymouth Observer & Eccentric honoring the 90th birthdays of Louella Evans and Anna Chappel, Mrs. Ruth Strebbing was given credit for having baked the birthday cakes. She was assisted in the cake making by Mrs. Helen Eckles and the cakes were baked in the name of the Plymouth Grange. The five-man team didn't allow the opposition to score any time-points against them, while amassing 1,671 time-points against their opponents. The object of the waterball battle is to get the ball past the opponents' lines, while keeping it away from your own goal.

The game involves much the same skills used in fighting fires, with the hose and water pressure being the deciding factors.

The contest was divided into heats, with each team competing in three heats. The Canton Firefighters bested the Mutual Aid society, 636-0, downed the Dearborn Heights Fire Department 506-0, and made short work of the Superior Township firemen 529-0 in the day-long contest.

The contest originally was scheduled to take place at Gallimore School but had to be moved at the last minute to Plymouth-Canton High School when a water main broke.

Despite the quick switch of locations, more than 200 persons were on hand to watch the firemen get wet. "We get a lot wetter fighting fires," Davison said.

Waterball takes some skill, but almost half of the contest is luck, he added.

"The coach is important because oftentimes he is the only one who can see the ball," the coach said. "The nozzle man is busy keeping control of his hoze, and the water stream blocks his view."

This year's team consisted of Bill Sprengel, Roger Pollack, Davison, Steve Berger and Grady. AND SHOWNES

Disaster center established

BY SHERRY KAHAN

St. Mary Hospital is hoping to raise $40,000 for a new radio system that will link the hospital with all the emergency rescue trucks maintained by the fire departments in the area.

"This hospital has been designated an an emergency center for 10 different communities by the Michigan Hospital Association," said Rita Radzialowski, administrator of St. Mary. "If a big accident or disaster occurred it would give us a better chance to be prepared here at the hospital."

Wallace Heikka, plant operations director, expanded on the usefulness of a radio system.

"At present all the rescue vehicles have radios with two frequencies," he said. "One enables them to keep in touch with their own fire department. But the other could be used to talk to a hospital or a hospital network. However, right now there is no hospital with the right equipment that would allow them to communicate."

If a big accident took place, he continued, the people in charge of the emergency truck could call the hospital and say, "We have 15 injuried people here. How many can your emergency room take?" "Supposing it was a diaster such as a bus or airplane accident," he said. "Those on the scene could radio saying they have seven burn victims. We could then advise them to take them to the burn center at University Hospital in Ann Arbor. Then we could call the burn center and tell them these patients were on their way."

This kind of radio interface could also be used to contact fire and police departments if traffic control was needed at an accident or if cars were needed to escort the emergency vehicles.

Miss Radzialowski observed that such a radio system would permit the hospital "to give assistance to those in the field because we know the language and what to look for."

Heikka also saw it as contributing to the speed with which St. Mary could respond to emergencies within its own walls. It could be used as a swift paging system for those in the hospital who have been designated as members of emergency crews. "With a special patch worn on a belt they could be notified if their services were needed," he said.

The Schoolcraft College Sunday Health Club begins Sept. 8 and will be open for 33 Sundays during the 1974-75 season.

'Membership is $25 for individuals and $60 for families regardless of size. Payment may be made by check or charged on MasterCharge or Bank-Americard.

In its second year, the club is cosponsored by the physical education department and community services office. It will operate from noon-4 p.m. most Sundays through May 18, 1975.

Members enjoy use of the entire physical education building and facilities. These include two gyms for basketball, badminton, volleyball and jogging; six handball and paddleball courts; weightlifting machines in the auxiliary gym and wrestling room; gymnastics equipment room; a swimming pool with three and one meter personnel could be reached quickly this way," he said. "It could speed up the carrying out of our disaster plan, requiring the shift of nurses from nursing stations."

He added: "We could notify porters to bring more carts and stretchers, laundry and central service to send us extra laundry supplies and pharmacy to bring extra drugs."

The hospital has placed a request for funds for the radio equipment with the state office of highway safety blanning in Lansing.

"Some local organizations such as the Rotary Club of Plymouth and the Jaycees of Livonia have also contacted us about a contribution to the radio system." said Miss Radzialowski.

'Third parties' seek fairness

AMERICAN HARDWARE

Michigan's Most Unusual Hardware Store

Two "third parties" in Michigan have issued special appeals seeking equal treatment with the major political parties, Republican and Democrat.

Robin Maisel, Socialist Workers Party candidate for governor, has announced his acceptance of a proposal by Gov. Milliken to arrange for debates between the candidates of all parties in the gubernatorial race.

Meanwhile, Josephine Chapman, American Independent Party (AIP) candidate for lieutenant governor, has sent letters to the campaign managers for Milliken and Democrat Sander Levin asking that the AIP be included in all debates, symposiums and radio programs which include gubernatorial candidates.

MAISEL HAD proposed a debate in April but Milliken then defered discussion of details until after the nominating conventions of the major parties.

Maisel notes that James A. Barnes, Milliken's campaign director, has urged that debates not be limited to the Democratic and Republican candidates.

Maisel says "the voters are entitled to an open, face-to-face exchange of

Township meeting slated

The Michigan Townships Association (MTA) announced a meeting for all township officials of the 18th MTA district for 9 a.m. Sept. 17 at Eastern Michigan University.

Township supervisors John Beutler of Erie in Monroe County, Edwin J. Coy of Lima in Washtenaw County and Philip Dingeldey of Canton in Wayne County, who represent the area on the MTA board of directors, said 325 officials have been invited.

The 18th MTA district consists of townships in Livingston. Monroe, Washtenaw and Wayne counties.

The all-day meeting will include presentations from state personnel and views involving Democrats, Republicans, socialists and others." Speaking on behalf of 34 other social-speaking on benalt of 34 other socialist candidates, Maisel stated the willingness of all candidates of his party to participate in similar debates.

THE SOCIALISTS' candidate for Congress in the 2nd District, which includes Livonia and Plymouth, is Martha E. Pettit, a graduate student in art history at the University of Michigan.

She has stated that Watergate has demonstrated the unwillingness of Democrats and Republicans to let the majority of the people rule. "That is, they have taken it upon themselves to squash the mass movements for social change like the anti-war movement, the black and chicano liberation movements and the socialist movement.

"Another way our system of minority rule is outmoded can be seen clearly in the example of the oil companies. These giant oil companies have had their chance at controlling energy production and have failed miserably."

She added that "reforms". won't solve national problems. "The problem is the capitalist system itself. Our party's campaign is to organize people to fight against this system of inequality, and creating a socialist system with a planned economy for the benefit of all instead of for the profit of the few." MRS. CHAPMAN wrote Barnes and Laird Harris, campaign chairmen for Levin, that:

"We consider ommission of the AIP from participating in such debates to be a flagrant admission of cowardice to debate the issues, to give the people of Michigan a choice in 1972, and in fact constitutes denial to the people of the right to exercise their privilege to vote for the party of their choice which is the American Independent Party.

"We consider the Republican, Democratic and the Human Rights Party to be first cousins with the common goal fidentiality of student records and destruction of student records at Schoolcraft College were rejected at the recent board of trustees meeting.

The proposed policy regarding confidentiality of student records provided that student records would be released only with: written authorization for release by the student; pursuant to court order; specific authorization by the vice president for student affairs or his designee. Student information considered public knowledge would not be restricted to the above conditions.

All board members were opposed to Policies regarding the con- item three of the proposal on the grounds it was too general and requested the proposal be withdrawn, redrafted and resubmitted at the next meeting.

The proposed policy for destruction of student records provided that when student records have been reviewed and determined to be obsolete or invalid, they would be destroyed under supervision of the administrator in charge.

The board again felt the policy wasn't specific enough and moved it also be withdrawn, redrafted and submitted at the next regular meeting of the board Sept. 24.

has an unusually powerful sense of purpose. Some people call this will power. President Ford's handwriting gives a remarkable indication of this man's motivational drive in the accomplishment of a given purpose or goal. "The writing indicates a will power that hurls itself against obstacles and goes through like a bulldozer to the other side.

"PRESIDENT FORD'S handwriting is loaded with aggressiveness. It is easy to see how this man was able to accomplish an unusually strong and powerful will power or purpose.

When we add a marked aggressiveness and when the continuity of the effort is sustained by an optimistic outlook that will not recognize or tolerate the possibility of failure then we have an unbeatable combination insofar as the accomplishing of a given purpose is concerned.

"The president's handwriting indicates a marked conservatism. This is a man that will use ample consideration before he spends. It may be said to his credit that he will apply this quality to himself as well as others:

lack of any desire for unnecessary ornamentation and a complete lack of any desire for anything beyond the basics. This is a man that is not interested in window dressing.

"To sum up, it may be said that President Gerald Ford's worst enemy could very well turn out to be himself. We have here a man with a combination of sterling qualities that add up to a powerful potential for presidential achievement.

"However, the one flaw in Gerald Ford's armor is his compulsive desire for approval and the ensuing delusion that because he is such a 'great guy' he cannot ever be wrong. If he will recognize and correct this dark corner of his mental make-up, he could go down in history as one of the greatest Presidents this country has ever had.

"If he does not make the correction, it is my opinion from a study of his handwriting, that he will succumb to an inner erosion that will disintegrate what started out as a very promising structure indeed."

THE CONCLUSIONS in that analysis of Gerald Ford's handwriting have been formulated by a study of the handwriting and that only.

Silvi has done the study without regard to what has been printed in the newspapers about the president.

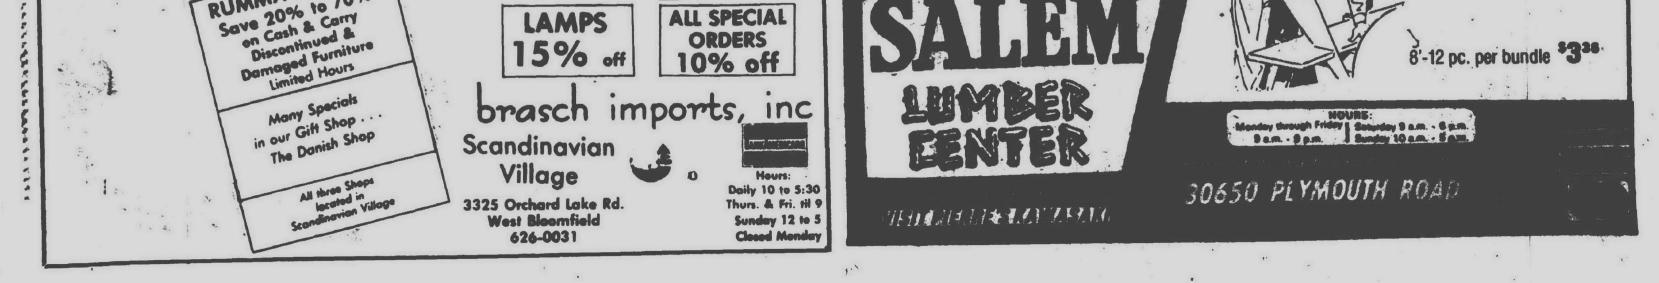

Perhaps the most interesting part of the study, was that Silvi noted a striking resemblance between the handwritings of Richard Nixon and Gerald Ford.

"Both men have an overwhelming desire for people to say what great guys they are," Silvi said. "But Gerald Ford has temporizing traits which show up in his handwriting that the former president lacked."

Ford is more down to earth, Silvi said, and this will keep him out of the trouble that Nixon found himself in. Silvi admits to being 39 years old

Job placement center opened by state here

By HANK MELJER

An employment office doesn't have to have drab, cement-block walls, a tile floor and a row of metal folding chairs, according to George West, manager of the Redford district office of the Michigan Employment Security Commission.

The MESC's new Livonia branch beers him out.

Located in the Burton Hollow Shopping Center, at the corner of Six Mile and Farmington Road, the 1,300square-foot facility may become a prototype for future MESC expansion. It's also going to find jobs for a lot of people.

WITH A NEW sign out front, wood paneling and wall-to-wall carpeting, the office is the plushest yet for the Department of Labor-run agency.

"We're trying to upgrade the image of employment offices," West said. The Livonia office is one of several satellite branches now operating in the metro area.

"This is a fairly new concept for this agency," said Tim Burns, manager of the Livonia office. "There's a lot of business and industry in Livonia. I've got the highest hopes for this thing."

The Livonia office doesn't even attempt to counsel or test job-seekers. People in need of those services are referred to the Redford office. Its sole purpose is job placement.

Burns and his staff try to connect on jobs not only for the unemployed, but for those who want to move up or out from their present jobs.

"You don't have to be unemployed to get this service," Burns said. He has set an initial goal of placing 100 people per month. How is success measured? "The end result is how many people get hired. What we're attempting here is to have a more professional situation that a mass hiring hall."

THE OFFICE already has 200 local employers on file and is constantly on the lookout for others who may be in need of new employes. But local openings are only a small part of the service offered. The key to the whole concept of the satellite branch is its tie-in with the "job bank," a computerized listing of every known job opening in the state of Michigan. Openings are listed on microfiche, sheets of microfilm the size of file cards which can be read on a viewing screen. Each sheet holds several columns of jobs. Listings for six metro area counties are updated every day. The MESC is notified of about 1,900 new openings daily. On the microfiche, the employer's name is concealed so that applicants don't go ahead and apply for the job without first discussing it with the MESC interviewer to make sure they have suitable qualifications.

Outstate listings, which show the employer's name, are revised every three days.

The job placement service is available to a yone who wants to work regardless of where he lives. "Any person who's eligible to work can walk in that door and we'll take him," West said.

ONE GROUP of job applicants who Burns expects to help in the Livonia office are married women who are returning to the labor force after raising their children.

"Out here I've been hitting a fair amount of that," he said. "They're good applicants: they're mature and they have work skills from before they were married."

Whatever the applicant's qualifications, the job bank microfiche makes job-hunting easier. While waiting to see an interviewer, an applicant can study job openings in his or her field by scanning the microfiche on one of the viewing screens.

"It works both ways," Burns said. "The interviewer can serve more applicants that way, too."

When the office reaches full volume, the staff will include four interviewers and a clerk, in addition to Burns. Right now he is operating at about half-strength. "When the load demands it we'll add more people. We'll sit with what we've got for now," he said.

WITH THE upemployment rate hovering at about nine per cent in Detroit and six to seven per cent in the suburbs, Burns and his staff may not have to wait long for business. While the MESC competes for job applicants with private, profit-seeking employment agencies, it has one edge: its services are free to employer and applicant alike.

If you can't see your DETROIT BANK-er during the week, wait 'til the weekends.

According to West, that means that where private agencies might steer an applicant into the wrong job just to collect their fee, the MESC staff can take greater pains to make sure the match-up is a good one.

One of the first challenges that faces Burns and the Livonia staff is to make its services known to the community. Churches have been contacted and the MESC sets up booths at job fairs and similar events.

"We're attempting to cooperate to the maximum with everybody," Burns said. "We try to get involved with the community as much as we can so that they know we're here."

Autumn is time to spruce up lawn

Autumn is the ideal season for sprucing up a lawn, even though the big payoff comes next spring and summer. You'll also get good-looking grass this autumn, and a better turf through winter.

If you are determined to get the most for the time invested and the dollars spent, mate good lawnseed to soil during September.

With such a headstart, lawngrass beauties like Fylking Kentucky bluegrass have all of the very best onslaughts.

aration. Cultivate the ground at least two inches deep, mixing in plenty of fertilizer-say some 10-20 pounds of a complete plant food to each thousand square feet (follow the "new lawn" rate on the bag).

If there are soil pockets which need to settle, soak the soilbed thoroughly; after the surface dries, rake or cultivate again to provide a chunky, loose surface receptive to seed. Only very fluffy soilbeds need rolling.

As little as 1¹/₂ pounds of Fylking bluegrass seed to each 1,000 square A mulch, such as a thin layer of pelletized organic mulch free from grain or weeds (woyen nettings, excelsior, sphagnum moss, etc., are often used)', helps a new seeding to a fast start. Mulch keeps seed moist, hastening

IF YOUR LAWN is an older one but could stand some upgrading, autumn is renovating time, too. Fylking lawnseed can be scattered over the old lawn, letting it to nature to get a few

But renovation stands a much better chance if you take pains to see that seed is planted into soil. Many old sods have a thatch layer at their base-organic debris that keeps' seed from reaching soil.

A lot of gusto at the end of a rake can rid a small lawn of most of its thatch (don't be fearful if most of the grass is torn up), but it is easier to rent a powered dethatching or thinning machine and run this over the lawn in a couple of directions, slicing into the soil and tearing out the thatch.

If thatch is so light that it need not be swept up, overseeding can precede use of the machine; at least some of the seed should become buried during the agitation that accompanies thatch loosening.

Youth discovers Australia through music

By JAN WILLIAMS

Australia has more to offer than koalas, kangaroos and tennis players, as Stephen Pangrazzi of Westland re-cently found.

Pangrazzi, a senior at John Glenn High School, spent five weeks in Aus-tralia this summer as a trumpet player in Musical Youth International.

MYI is a chartered people to people youth group, based in Saline, which annually visits a distant area of the world to experience interchange of living at the personal level. Each year 200 students are selected from high schools in the Great Lakes area to organize a concert band and chorus.

a total of 30 concerts within 30 days in such places as Sydney, Armydale, Camberra and Perth. But the students also had some time of their own. Pangrazzi visited a sheep shearing farm where he learned there are as many sheep in Australia as people in America and as many sheep in America as people in Australia. He also visited Parliament and the War Memorial in Canberra, tried surfing in the Indian Ocean, went mountain climbing and met native Australian Shane Gould, an Olympic gold medal winner in swimming.

Although Pangrazzi says he saw no wild kangaroos or tennis players (wild or otherwise), one member of his group stayed with a family who PANGRAZZI says the band played lived next door to John Newcombe.

Every purchaser of Gilot work is entitled to a signed document of au-thenticity for work purchased for historical and tax purposes.

The gallery, open noon to 7 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday, is at 16705 Middle Belt Road, Livonia.

Pangrazzi says the Aussies are very friendly and hospitable and he enjoyed his stay with the 10 different families there which included a prison guard (a former Olympic weight lifter), an Italian family, a garage mechanic, accountant and truck driver.

"ONE LADY ASKED me how our queen was," Pangrazzi says. "But that was really kind of unusual. Most people wanted to know about Nixon. Watergate and Disneyland."

The concert band played several concerts in the new Sydney Opera House, one of the most unique and expensive in the world. Under construction for the past 20 years, the Opera House cost $102 million, 14 times the original estimated cost. It was designed by Danish architect Jorn Utson.

Pangrazzi was even subjected to a bit of American flavor while in Australia, as a transportation strike in Perth delayed the group's journey home.

The three-day delay caused a cancellation of concerts scheduled in Los Angeles, but gave the group extra time for sightseeing which Pangrazzi says he gladly accepted.

Pangrazzi, who also went to Mexico and Venezuela with MYI, says this was his last year to join the group. And what better way to end it than in Margaret Court country.

Mrs. Robinson is PR director

The Michigan Opera Theater has named Blanche M. Robinson director of public relations.

Mrs. Robinson will be responsible for public and community relations for both the Michigan Opera Theater and its Opera in Residence program, according to General Director David DiChiera.

The Michigan Opera Theater was recently awarded a $108,000 grant by the Michigan Council for the Arts which will allow it to expand its season to a touring performance in Flint and Kalamazoo, and to visit nine cities throughout the state with its Opera in Residence program.

Hilberry, Bonstelle set season

Fourteen plays, spanning 25 centuries of theater, will be presented matinee program. during 1974-75 in Wayne State University's Hilberry and Bonstelle Theaters.

The Hilberry graduate repertory company productions will range historically from Euripides' "Medea," written in the fifth century B.C., to Peter Luke's "Hadrian VII," which appeared in 1967. "Medea" will be presented in Robinson Jeffers' widely acclaimed adaptation.

Other 20th century plays are John Steinbeck's "Of Mice and Men" (1937) and Jean Anouilh's "The Waltz of the Toreadors" (1952).

Sir Arthur Wing Pinero's comedy, "The Magistrate," represents the 19th century, and Shakespeare's "The Taming of the Shrew," which will head the bill of the company's school matinee repertory, represents the 16th. "Tartuffe" and "Hamlet," both from the 17th century, are being held over from last season. "Tartuffe" will be in the regular evening repertory during the fall, while "Hamlet" joins

"Taming of the Shrew" for the school

The Bonstelle subscription series is largely modern, with four of its six plays coming from this century. There are two musicals-George and Ira Gershwin's "Oh! Kay," with book by Guy Bolton and P.G. Wodehouse, and "Purlie," the successful musical version of Ossie Davis' "Purlie Victorious." The two contemporary plays are Aime Cesaife's "The Tragedy of King Christophe" and Dale Wasserman's "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest."

The Bonstelle's period plays are Shakespeare's "As You Like It" (1600) and a dramatization of Alexandre Dumas' 19th century novel, "The Count of Monte Cristo." This will be the premiere production of an all-new adaptation of "The Count of Monte Cristo" by Marshall Borden, former Hilberry and Meadow Brook actor now in the national company of "A Little Night Music."

The Bonstelle season opening is scheduled for Oct. 18, with "The Tragedy of King Christophe" and the Hilberry's new season starts with Piner0's "The Magistrate," presented at the President's Preview Nov. 8. and officially opening Nov. 13. Prior to this the Hilberry will be offering revivals of last season's "Tartuffe," beginning Oct. 18, and "Hamlet," starting with an Oct. 9 matinee.

Brochures with complete informa-tion about plays, schedules and tickets will be available later in the summer and may be requested by writing Wayne State University Theater Box Office, Detroit, 48202.

Pros help new theater series

Professionals from all areas of the theatrical world will descend upon Ann Arbor this season to help inaugurate the new Guest Artist Series in the Power Center for the Performing Arts, according to Richard D. Meyer, director of the University of Michigan Theater Programs.

As a further step toward integrating the Professional Theater Program and the academic program, guest art-ists-in-residence will be working with students on productions of "Cyrano de Bergerac" by Edmond Rostand, William Shakespeare's "Pericles," a world premiere play by poet-in-residence Donald Hall, and Aristophanes' "The Birds."

"The opportunity of working with seasoned professional artists is important both for the excellence of the productions and for the education of the students," Meyer said. "We have found in the past that close working contact with professionals has been of maximum educational value to theater students."

Last season featured guest designer Robert Darling, guest director Carlton Molette, playwright Arthur Miller and a company of six guest actors-in-resi-dence for the world premiere of his play. "Up From Paradise."

"Cyrano de Bergerac," scheduled for performances Oct. 9-12, will feature the special movement and fencing techniques of Patrick Crean, the foil master of the Stratford Festival Theater of Canada and former fencing coach for Errol Flynn. A guest actor for the title role will be announced at a later date.

Distinguished actor Nicholas Pennell will re-create his performance of the past two Stratford seasons as Pericles in the production that will mark the completion of the Shakspeare Canon by the university, Nov. 27-30.

People who buy and people who sell get together in the Observer&Eccentric Newspapers

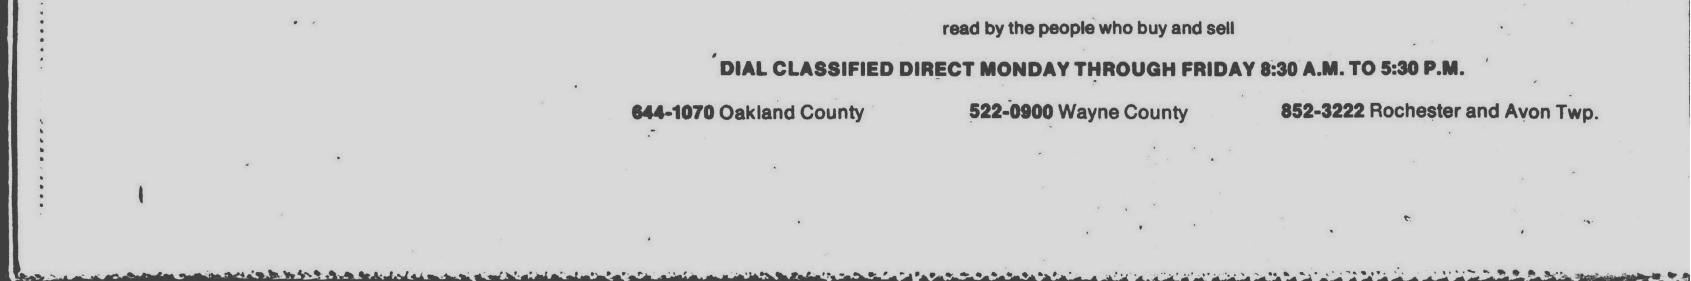

Buyers and sellers are "strange" people. Strange to each other, that is. People with lots of different needs and wants, people who need to get together. They need to get together in the quickest, least expensive and most effective way possible the Observer & Eccentric Want Ads.

Say you need a buyer for a bunch of baby basset hounds, or a really good home for a litter of antiques...How do you meet those unknown admirers with an eye for your special goods? How do you keep track of sellers with garage sales, and owners of autos and pets to trade? It's easy -- when you know where buyers and sellers get together best the Observer & Eccentric Classifieds.

It's easy to get double buying and selling results, too. Double-Action Ads bring people together from all over Wayne and Oakland Counties. These suburban communities include: Birmingham, Bloomfield, West Bloomfield, Farmington, Farmington Hills, Rochester, Avon Twp., Southfield and Troy in Oakland County; Livonia, Garden City, Plymouth, Plymouth Twp., Canton Twp., Redford Twp., and Westland in Wayne County. Smart buyers and sellers place a Double Action Family Want Ad (non business) of 15 words or less in two consecutive issues, with no changes in copy and no cancellations -- and they pay only $6. That's a savings of $2.00 off the regular cost of placing an ad in two issues.

When you have something to sell...when you have something to buy...you've got a lot in common in the Observer & Eccentric Classified Want Ads.

The Stroller On Labor Day

W. EDGAR

There was a strange silence in our neighborhood Monday afternoon.

It was Labor Day, the last major holiday of the summer. Yet there was not a sound. Not a leaf was stirring. It was so different from many Labor Days of the past.

Then of a sudden. The Stroller could tect a faint echo of thousands cheering, bands playing, and roars of hero worship being directed at presidential candidates, sports heroes, and even speedboat drivers who were churning the Detroit River into white caps in the staging of torrid international battles.

As he sat there The Stroller closed his eyes for a few moments and again he saw Gar Wood, the Gray Fox of Algonac, upset Kaye Don, the British challenger for the Harmsworth Trophy, most coveted of all speedboat trophies, and cause an international ruckus that lasted for months.

And, there, coming through the mist of years, was the sight of President Harry Truman, then seeking re-election, opening his campaign with a real "give 'ern hell' speech-the kind that brought him victory over Tom Dewey, the Michigan favorite son and earned him another four years in the White House.

The president chose to open the campaign in Detroit because he was seeking the labor vote and what better place to get it than right here at the seat of the labor movement.

On that Labor Day in 1948, thousands jammed Cadillac Square in front of the old city hall (now only a memory) to hear the president talk. And they were treated to a rare performance.

NOT ONLY DID the president speak, but the labor movement put on its best bib and tucker and sponsored a parade down Woodward Avenue that was a sight to behold.

The labor movement was then in its swaddling clothes and used the parade as a means of showing its strength.

earth moving a more simple task, pro- Saturday before Labor Day, it was vided a day that will live long in mem-OFY

A decade before he had gone to England and captured the Harmsworth Trophy,-a bit of bronze with an intrinsic value of about $60 but coveted nevertheless. This was an affront to the British who vowed to regain it.

To this end they sent to our shores a daredevil auto racer named Kaye Don, to drive a boat in which Sir Malcolm Campbell had established a world record, in the hope that he would bring "the bit of bronze" back home.

Detroit was in a frenzy. The people, suffering through the dark days of a depression, were looking for some escape from their troubles. To get it they flocked by the thousands to the banks of the Detroit River, just east of the Belle Isle bridge.

When Don won the first heat on the Newcomers' Golf League gives awards

PLYMOUTH—The 1974 Plymouth Newcomers Golf League held its annual awards luncheon recently at the Hillside Inn.

Awards were presented to Scotty Morrison, the assistant pro at the Hilltop Golf Course, for a hole-in-one he shot on the 6th hole at Hilltop, to season winners in Flight A, Audrey Paul for low gross and Mary Hogan for low net, and to season winners in Flight B. Joan Anderson for low gross and Ruth Flynn for low net.

Other trophies were presented to Maureen Stocker for most improved golfer and Mrs. Paul for having the low gross for the season (the "Traveling Trophy"), and Ringer awards to Mrs. Paul for a 36 in Class A and to Mrs. Flynn for a 53 in Class B. Mrs. Hogan, chairman, and Mrs. Paul, co-chairman, announced that Mauguerite Miller will be chairman of the golf league for 1975. Arrangements for the luncheon were made by Margaret Retting and assisted by Pat Marshall.

the first defeat Gar Wood ever had suffered in unlimited hydroplane competition. The defeat set the stage for a day that has gone down in history as one of the wildest the old river ever has known.

The Harmsworth was run in a best of three heats. With one defeat against h im, Gar was in a spot the like of which he never had known as the American fans gathered for the drama.

It wasn't long in coming.

AT THE APPOINTED hour, late in the afternoon of a bright, sunny day, Don brought the British challenger to the starting line at the Detroit Yacht Club dock.

In turn the DYC members reluctantly brought the Harmsworth Trophy to the judges' stand for the presentation of what many figured would be to the Englishman.

Then it happened. A few minutes before the starting time Wood phoned the judges stand and asked for a short delay to repair a leak that had just been found in the gas line.

Don refused, claiming that Gar had another boat and could race with that one. He was cock-sure of victory.

"Okay," Gar shouted over the phone, "Tell Don we'll be there and we'll be on time."

As Don circled his boat in a warmup waiting for Gar's appearance, a great roar went up. There across the river came Gar with his trusty mechanic Orlin Johnson, at his side, heading for the starting line.

Don was caught napping and in his frustration went over the starting line before the starting gun sounded and was disqualified. What's more when he tried to cross Gar's wash at the Detroit Boat Club turn, Don and his boat capsized.

The challenger was at the bottom of the Detroit River...the Harmsworth Trophy remained in America-and Detroit went wild.

It was drama, the like of which no fiction writer could duplicate. But the end was not yet. Don, when lifted from the water, claimed he had been tricked, and the matter became an international debate for months on end. It was the climax to a Labor Day of by gone years-but the echo of that roaring crowd still could be heard, even ever so faintly, in the eerie silence last Monday.

Suburban politicians do well without 'bloc'

The other day there came across my desk a letter from a reader grousing that suburban politicians have failed to get together and form a power bloc to push suburban interests.

Pointing to votes in the U.S. House of Representatives, the writer showed that with the exception of opposition to cross-district school busing, there was little evidence that representatives from the suburbs voted as a coherent bloc on issues of high importance to suburbanites, such as mass transit, green space and aid to schools. Instead, the writer pointed out, representatives tended to vote on these issues along party lines or in regional groupings.

Superficially, a similar trend might be inferred from the Michigan Republican and Democratic state conventions, which were held two weeks ago. The Democratic gathering featured a staggering number of special blocs - caucuses met for blacks, Chicanos, teachers, women, and both the UAW and AFL-CIO - which notably did not include suburban interests. The Republicans, who have never gone in for special caucuses, confined their attention this year to geographical distribution across their ticket rather than to specifically suburban versus rural or urban interests.

CLOSER ATTENTION, however, to just who will be running this fall for state-wide offices from both parties reveals remarkable suburban representation.

Of a total of 28 people nominated by both parties to run state-wide, 14 or exactly 50 per cent are suburbanites. Republicans picked eight suburbanites for 14 positions, or 57 per cent, while Democrats chose six candidates from the suburbs for their 14 nominations, or 43 per cent.

Democrats will head their ticket with Sander Levin, from suburban Berkley, while the Republicans counter with Lt. Gov. nominee James Damman of Troy and Lorraine Beebe of Dearborn Heights for secretary of state.

Republicans selected two suburbanites --James O'Neil of Livonia and Jo Saltzman of Bloomfield Township -- for State Board of Education, while the Democrats picked Roger Tilles of Swartz Creek, a suburb of Flint.

Democrats Thomas Roach of Grosse Pointe Park and Sarah Power of Ann Arbor have suburban connections in their race for the University of Michigan Board of Regents, just as do both Republican nominees for Wayne State University Board of Governors, Norman Stockmeyer of Westland and Dr. Frank Walker of Grosse Pointe.

Michigan State University trustees feature the greatest concentration of suburban residents, with Democrats John Bruff of Fraser and Raymond Krolikowski of Bloomfield Township facing Kenneth Thompson of East Lansing.

Suburban strength for Supreme Court Justice race is less than other slots this fail, with Republican Allan Miller of East Tawas but formerly of northwest Detroit counting as the only suburban' connection.

WHAT SEEMS clear from the results of both party's annual meetings is that although there are no special caucuses devoted to suburban interests as such in either party, suburbanites are playing an increasingly important role in Michigan politics.

Many party leaders are from the suburbs, and most strategists from both parties recognize as a basic assumption in this fall's campaign that the results will be determined by the suburban vote.

Probably it's the case that the suburbs are so important that they don't really need any separate caucuses of their own. $\frac{1}{6}$

editorial opinion Lawmakers could stop grass roots secrecy

Frank J. Kelley, our politically motivated, fast talking attorney general in Michigan, has taken some lumps from this corner of the page. But the other side of the coin is that we give a person credit when he has it coming, and today Frank gets the other side of the coin.

You'll recall that this observer and others have long lamented that local government is generally conducted under a veil of secrecy; that the public is entitled to know not only government's final decision but the reasoning process; and that local officials who do business in secret should be punished somehow; and that how on earth can a legislative body conduct an "executive" session?

We also said the so-called "open meetings bill" passed by the State House of Representatives actually opened more loopholes than ever for grass roots secrecy and specifically knuckle-rapped our local legislators, all of whom voted for it.

Tim Richard writes

istrators, get pressure from developers and unions and lobbyists and civic associations, all behind closed doors. Kelley says the bill should be amended to make "deliberations" a part of the "public meeting" process. He's absolutely right.

On one point I wish he would go a step further. The law fails to make secret deliberations a crime and provide for their punishment. We have lots of Nixons and Haldemans in our communities, and we need to deal with them harshly.

Amnesty in '74

It's traditional and moral

Arguments on the annesty question are often filled with emotion and are sometimes illogical when used in context with the Vietnam War. I take exception to arguments by those against that amnesty would set a historical precedent making it difficult to draft in the future, and that Vietnam wasn't different from other wars.

I believe Vietnam was quite different from other wars. First, it seems apparent by now, our national security wasn't at stake. Instead, the motives for the war lie in imperialism (world police syndrome) and to keep that country's resources from being grabbed by unfriendly hands.

LIKE THE Korean War, Vietnam was never declared by Congress.

The Selective Service Act was adopted by Congress to grant authority to the president to draft men for wars duly declared. Should this authority automatically pass on to presidents for an undeclared war? Obviously, it did.

But the differences of the Vietnam War go far beyond its initial questionable legality and motives. The war's history is replete with immoral and illegal acts — the deliberate killing of women and children, bombing of villages and other civilian targets, and the secret bombing of Cambodia.

War is ugly, but we killed far fewer innocent civilians in the two world wars and the Korean War. This doesn't make other wars "more moral" but does challenge the "morality" of the Vietnam chapter of our history.

This isn't a reflection on those who fought or served during this era. It was the command officers who looked the other way, and Pentagon officials, Cabinet officers, congressmen and presidents. It wasn't killing that made Vietnam immoral, but INDISCRIMINATE killing.

HISTORICALLY, conditional amnesty granted by President Ford wouldn't set a precedent. Indeed, it would set a precedent if amnesty WERE NOT granted for Vietnam resisters and deserters.

An amnesty bill was on President Lincoln's desk the day he was shot. That bill was signed and America eventually reunited after a drawnout war which split the country. Amnesty, especially then, was to help heal our wounds and bring back citizens under one flag. A similar need exists today.

Amnesty has been granted after every major war. Yet, history shows America hasn't had great difficulty drafting enough soldiers to wage the wars that followed. The granting of amnesty in the past didn't destroy future drafts. Why should we assume this amnesty would?

The suggestion that amnesty will weaken the draft is historically incorrect. It won't happen because it hasn't happened.

IF MORALITY is to be injected, then the conclusion ought to be one of forgiveness. I believe the greatest moral behavior is to forgive those who trespass against you and to love thy neighbor.

Morality, subjective and varies with individuals — just as my stand on amnesty is different from other writers on this page.

Let me go on record, though, that amnesty without strings is acceptable and conditional amnesty is entirely in order. It's just something to be done.

NOW KELLEY is on the backs of the legislators, contending that the "open meetings bill" is a step backward and worse than the inadequate law we now have. In a letter to a state representative which he made public, Kelley gave his legal objections to the bill.

The bill would allow public bodies to go into those misnamed "executive" sessions for "strategy sessions" on litigation or strategy; hence, the provision is much too broad.

Whenever a board acted in secrecy, the bill provides that a civil action could be brought against it and the action could be voidable. Now catch this very important distinction: Kelley says the board's secret action should be automatically void — not merely voidable.

In other words, the governmental body's action would be void from the beginning, not just after a cumbersome court action.

THE PRESENT LAW requires that public bodies vote in public, and what happens in practice is that our city councils, township boards and school boards do their voting in public.

But they debate their proposals, listen to admin-

THE VOTERS and taxpayers have a right to know a lot more than what the government plans to do to them after the governing body has de³, cided to do it.

They've got a right to know what the governing body is considering doing next week or next month.

They've got a right to know what alternatives : the governing body considered — which ideas were dropped before plan X came into being.

They've got a right to know the reasons for and against an idea.

They've got a right to know how the final plan was amended.

They've got a right to be secure in the belief that when a governing body calls a special meeting to discuss (say) a "delicate personnel matter," the body won't also discuss next year's budget, too.

THE SUBURBS like to think of Detroit and Washington as the places where low-level politics abound. Actually, those governments have full time legislators, and they're easier for watchdogs to keep track of.

The real danger of secret deals is where governing boards are composed of part-timers. That danger exists in the suburbs where governmental secrecy is a fact and way of life.

Cutting inflated costs? Start with Mr. Nixon

Richard M. Nixon resigned as the 37th president of the United States.

He resigned because he was about to be impeached, convicted and removed from office because he obstructed justice and used federal agencies to harass his enemies.

Other presidents may have done this in the past, but Nixon got caught.

Last week the new administration in Washington asked Congress to appropriate $850,000 for Nixon's pension and expenses through next June 30.

THE REQUESTS include some $250,000 not specifically provided for under existing law.

The $850,000 does not include the cost of Secret Service protection or the value of the Western White House building Nixon will use as his office.

By law, $450,000 of the amount is provided under the Presidential Transition Act of 1963 to cover expenses for six months to provide an orderly transfer of executive power. None of this need be used for salaries because he can, and has, received help from aides still on the White House payroll.

The additional $400,000 includes $60,000 for his pension, $96,000 for staff salaries (of which his secretary, Rose Mary Woods, will be paid between $30,000 and $40,000 and the rest can be used for legal expenses if he wishes); $40,000 for transportation; $5,000 for office supplies; $65,000 for office furnishings; $21,000 for communications; $10,000 for printing; and $100,000 for miscellaneous.

Ford has pledged that his administration will cut government spending.

The amount requested for his care and feeding goes far beyond what is reasonable to run the office of a retired official.

I voted for Nixon in 1968 and 1972.

I am shocked by this request for funds and hope that Congress pares it down as the first move against inflation.

A man should not profit from his resigning to avoid conviction.

Why owners should tag dogs

EDITOR:

Today I committed a grown dog to death. Three weeks ago a dog rested on my lawn. He was dazed and hurt, probably hit by a car. I fed him and doctored his sores as best I could. Then I advertised in all the nearby suburban papers and also the Detroit papers, trying to locate his owner.

I spent hours on the telephone answering ads for the lost dog. In the meantime. I grew to love him and he loved and trusted me. He made no attempt to run away.

Today, I killed that love. I took him to the Westland branch of the Humane Society. Why? No one answered the ads to claim him. Maybe the owner was too busy to read the papers. This dog wore a collar, but had no tags. He had been well fed, so he hadn't been lost too long. It doesn't cost that much for a license, nor much to run an ad.

I cried today when I left him. His big brown trusting eyes will haunt me forever. I'm sure the owner will miss him too, but I hope they've learned a lesson.

If I hadn't three pets of my own, I would have kept him myself. As it is, I feel like a murderer and don't really know if I could ever go through this ordeal again.

So. please. all you dog owners, make sure your pet is tagged so he can be sent home instead of being sentenced to death through your carelessness.

Kristen was entering second grade this year. She had had a taste in first grade of what it is to learn, to be able to add, to read road signs, to feel so grown up. She was to take her sister to kindergarten.

They had spent two weeks trying on their new clothes and deciding what to wear; they had had their bath and their hair washed. It was going to be such a special day.

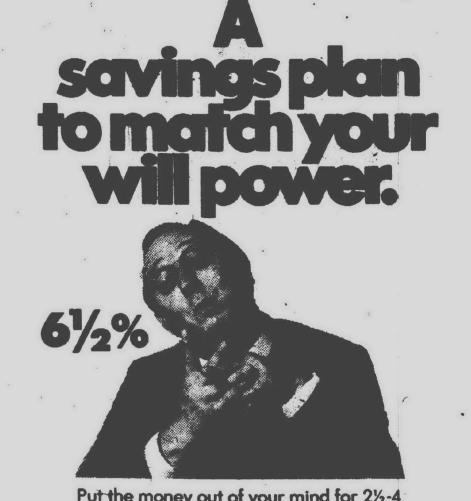

BITLARIES

Kristen didn't get to sleep until about 11 that night. Their mom had bought them an alarm clock, and they were to wake each other at 7 a.m.

Kristen's mother heard the alarm go off in the morning. She quietly tiptoded in and turned it off. Kristen awoke anyway, crawled into bed with her mother and said, "Get up, Mom! Did you forget? Today is school!" When Mom said there would be no school, Kristen'said, "Why, Mom?"

Why was there no school on that first special day? I know and you know. But please, someone, help me to explain it to Billy and Kristen. JANE MARTIN, Plymouth

WATCH FOR the "Big Diamond" in the fall sky, says University of Michigan astronomer Hazel Losh to stargazers.

The constellation Pegasus, the winged horse, forms the diamond during September, says the popular retired professor. "This 15-degree square rises around sunset slightly north of east," she says. The northeast corner of the square is a star of the constellation Andromeda, which stretches in a row of stars across the northeastern horizon.

"Above the third star from the Pegasus corner is the famous Andromeda galaxy, a universe containing perhaps one hundred million stars. Andromeda is believed to be very similar to our galaxy, though somewhat larger."

FALL BEGINS officially at 5:59 a.m. Sept. 23 when the sun rises and sets almost exactly in the east and west. Day and night are roughly equal.

There's an optical illusion, however. Day appears to be longer because the earth's atmosphere bends the sun's rays and makes the sun visible before it actually rises.

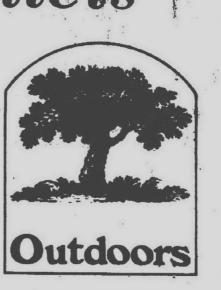

Not until Sept. 26 will day and night appear to be the same length.

WHILE BASICALLY a library in many ways, the center has one important new wrinkle incorporated in it. It will offer volunteer counselors to those needing advice on what to do with their lives.

"Our counselors will help the women brainstorm all the alternatives before them," said Ms. Dufour. "We want to show women the wide range of choices before them so they won't think there is only one class, one plan or one group where they belong."

About 25 women of varying ages have been trained in listening skills and problem solving to help those who come in for advice.

Interestingly enough, the women doing the counseling will also be using the center for their own college work or their own needs.

"I decided to become a volunteer because from my own life experiences I have noticed there is a real need to know where in the community to get information," said Mrs. Peggy Price "More people should be studying of Livonia. "I have a child with a women are broadening tremendously through their getting more independence and more education.

asking will report back to the community on their findings.

The first topic will discuss what the resource center can do for women. On Oct. 14 those attending will discuss value clarification and goal setting techniques.

IN THE WEEKS that follow there will be interest testing and a decision making exercise with a $1.50 fee for testing. One week the audience will investigate the gaps between their job training and the current job demand, and at the same time consider developing their own job.

"How to Get Educated in Your Spare Time When You Don't Seem to Have Any" is the title covering the Nov. 4 meeting in the center.

The following week will be concerned with volunteer work and the opportunities for new skill development and personal growth. Something special for the homemaker in the way of enrichment activities is in the Nov. 18 slot.

The series will end Nov. 25 with a discussion of "Retirement - The Age of Opportunity."

St. Mary picks nurse as its Miss Torchy

BY SHERRY KAHAN

"I'm honored," said Cindy Nasser of Livonia, regarding her election as St. Mary Hospital's Miss Torchy. "I didn't realize how many friends I have at St. Mary."

In a contest sponsored by the United Foundation, Miss Nasser was voted Miss Torchy on the basis of appearance, personality, poise and ability to communicate.

Margaret Spindura, a physical therapy assistant from Livonia, was first runner-up and Christine Sass, a dietary aide also from Livonia, was second runner-up.

Yvette Houde of Westland, who works as a clerk in St. Mary's emergency room, was the third runner-up. As the winner at St. Mary, Miss Nassar, a staff nurse in the operating room, will compete with candidates throughout the area to become the United Foundation's Miss Torchy of 1974.

The winner of this contest will make numerous appearances at luncheons, dinners, meetings and special events during the Torch Drive.

"I hope I don't let anybody down, especially those down in the operating room," said Miss Nassar, who has worked at the hospital since 1972 when she graduated from Madonna College.

"I always wanted to be a nurse," she continued. "I wanted to help people and do the best I can. I don't think I could be anything else than a registered nurse."

She added: "I really truly enjoy it. The people in the operating room make it interesting. They help each other to help the patient. Thank goodness everyone sees the patient as the prime person to help.

Miss Nassar is not the only member of her family employed at the hospital. Her mother, Mrs. Rene Nassar, works as a nurse in the nursery.

New book views church financing

BY MARGARET MILLER

"Churches are always asking for money" is the age-old complaint of the member in the pew.

"But churches constantly need money to operate," the pastor in the pulpit has been saying for just as many ages.

It's a problem that often looms No. .1 in church operation as pastors and administrations seek to balance budgets without constant hounding of members.

And it's the question addressed specifically in a new book by a Livonia pastor and his wife, Dr. Bartlett L. Hess and Margaret Johnston Hess.

"HOW TO HAVE a Giving Church" is the title of the slim, readable book that goes on sale in local bookstores Sept. 9.

And Dr. and Mrs. Hess, whose church is Ward United Presbyterian at Six Mile and Farmington Road, could be considered reasonable authorities on the subject.

Their church, a 57-member mission congregation in 1957, has become one of the largest in the area. More than 2,000 members now fill a sanctuary and education buildings valued at well over a million dollars, and the church's annual budget is now around $110,000

This has been accomplished, say Dr. and Mrs. Hess, without membership canvasses, without pledges, without bazaars and other fund raisers.

IT'S THEIR "BETTER IDEA" helping people want to give- that is the subject of "How to Have a Giving Church."

Education is the key, said Dr. Hess, adding that he had learned this gradually as he served several churches early in his ministry.

Mrs. Hess, well-known for previous religious writings and Bible classes she has conducted for women in this area, said she and her husband had been asked to prepare the book. She authored the narrative and they worked closely together on the mes-

"We felt we had developed something that could help other churches," she explained.

DR. HESS SAID the book is a story that began when he accepted a call to a church that had not many members a $4,000 budget and a $380 coal bill immediately pressing.

In the course of the 127 pages, he and Mrs. Hess tell of their decision to avoid pleading for funds, because "the trouble with pleading is that it's a one-shot deal" and their dislike of fund-raisers because "they will not support spiritual life and anything. that stultifies spiritual growth stunts giving."

Their decision, Mrs. Hess wrote, was for "a bit of education about giving each Sunday."

"It was only three to five minutes before the offering," she went on. "I watched that there was never enough at any one time to annoy or bore, and Bart watched that there was never a Sunday when it was omitted."

LATER, AS EDUCATION in giving continued, members of the church tried tithing their incomes, or giving at least one-tenth to the church, and they were asked to tell the congregation how they felt about it, the couple said.

Reporting on this part of their route to a giving church, the book names several congregation members, including some who currently worship at Ward.

The book is written in popular style, Mrs. Hess said, "because even ministers like things that are easy to read."

DR. HESS SAID the "step-by-step" account describes the kind of education that still continues at Ward

"We have seen people turned off by many methods of church financing," he added, "so we try to educate in a way that does not turn them off.

Here's a handy sign for your garage sale!

And here are some helpful hints for holding a successful sale:

1. When you're rounding up those usuable but no-longer-used items for your sale, be sure to check all the storage areas in your homethe basement, garage, attic, closets, seldom used cupboards.

2. Saleable items include outgrown bicycles, lawn and patio furniture, small appliances, dishes, kitchen utensils, tays, golf clubs and other sports equipment, lawn mowers, decorator items, books, records, musical instruments—your "extras" may be "extra-special" to someone else!

3. Visit a few garage sales before you hold your own. You'll get great ideas, and maybe pick up a treasure or two.

4. Once you've picked the date for your sale, call The Observer & Eccentric Classified Department and place your Garage Sale Want ad. (O&E Want Ads reach more than 155,500 households every Monday and Thursday!) And remember, Double Action Family Want Ads-some ad, two consecutive issues-save you $2.00 off the regulor Want Ad rates.

5. When you'r clearing out your garage, you'll probably discover that some of the items in there will have to stay there—even though you won't be selling them. Try to cover these "not-for-sales" or push them out of the way.

6. Use tables to display as many of the sale items as possible. Items on oor of the garage, especially small items, may be overlooked by 8. PUT A PRICE TAG ON EVERYTHING! Prospective buyers will appreciate it, and you'll find it makes things easier for you.

9. Before your sale begins, be sure you have change and some sort of cash box on hand. Set up a "check-out" table just outside the garage

10. Be ready for a rush at opening time-garage sale shoppers like to come early, and with your ad in The Observer & Eccentric, you'll have plenty of shoppers!

(And don't forget to use the sign above. Just paste it on heavy cardboard and post it by your house. It will help people locate your sale.)

Teacher strikes peril area prep sports

BY TOM DONOGHUE Sports Editor

A six letter word is once again attempting to toss a wrench into prep athletics.

Six area high schools have been hit by a "strike" with the teachers showing their power in the Plymouth, Garden City, Wayne-Westland and South Redford School Districts.

But for five of the six schools, the green light is still on for the fall sports card. Westland John Glenn is the lone school where a lockout has popped up with the people in charge refusing to let the programs carry on. Meanwhile things are moving right along, but with a cautious step at Gar- for the opener with Livonia Churchill den City East and West, Thurston, Plymouth Canton and Plymouth alem.

With the fall sports card set to kick off next week in golf, cross country and football, some quick decisions are going to have to be made.

Over at Garden City East, newly appointed athletic director Jan Moore states,"We will continue with our sports program through the strike. The board has given us the okay and can see no harm ahead."

The same holds true at South Redford's Thurston High where Don Reel's Eagle gridders are preparing on Sept. 13.

The SREA has given Thurston athletics the go-ahead sign and has stated it will co-operate all the way to keep sports from getting set back.

The one problem spot is John Glenn High School in Westland where the board has locked out all concerned and varsity football Coach Lloyd Carr is caught in a position where his entire 74 could go down the tube.

"We have been directed by the board that we cannot coach at all," stated Carr who is in his second year. "I really didn't think the board would do this to us.

"We prepared for the lockout by taking out all of our equipment but now we are told that after Aug. 26, a high school football team cannot practice away from its regular practice site.

"The kids are the ones who are going to suffer from this. Here we have been preparing a year for this season and now a few people with power are taking it all away. These people are showing no concern at all for us but as of right now, I have no choice but to obey their orders.

Over at Plymouth Canton High, head mentor Jim Muneio, expressed some strong feelings.

"I will not withdraw my services as far as coaching is concerned," stated some strong feelings on the matter. Muneio."I will do anything in my power to keep the program going.

"I really can't see our kids giving it out during the summer months to have it all taken away now. We have been given approval as of now to continue the program.

"You know, there just wouldn't be any purpose to stop us from coaching. There is no profit to be had from it and I don't intend to have this thing effect me or my program at all, finished the Canton coach.

Plymouth Salem golf coach Bob Waters whose Rocks are out to defend the State Class A crown expressed

"I'll tell you one thing, this golf program is going on for sure. I am entirey against the strike. The orginial offer we were given was good. I just can't understand some of these people and their ideals.

"I work with my kids, an hour a day, every day of the year except Saturday and Sundays and I am not going to stop the program.

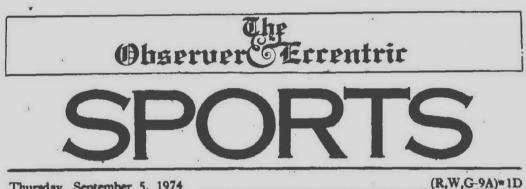

"A few of my kids have scholarships riding on this season and I am not going to deny them this.

"I will continue working with my kids until I am physically taken away from them," finished Waters.

'Experience is our key'- Muneio

Canton gridders are optimistic foot-10 and 175 pounds) and Lindman and Pink will be the defensive ends with Hammonds the monster-back.

The defensive backfield is perhaps Muneio's biggest question mark at this stage of the campaign.

"The secondary was a real problem for us last year," commented Muneio. "We are working some new kids into the slots now.'

Ray Mandle at 6-foot-3 and 165 pounds along with Stemberger, Dunagan and Tiller are the top candi for the backfield positions. antehih ness now," said the Canton head mentor.

"Stemberger is going to be carrying a lot of weight on his shoulders."

"This Western Six race is really going to be a dog-fight," added Muneio whose Chiefs failed to win a contest in five outings last year.

Canton was outscored in the five Western Six loop battles, 168 to 77.

"No matter what the Churchill staff has said. I think it is going to have one heck-of-a-club and Northville and Farmington Harrison will probably be fielding their best clubs ever.

"I'll be happy if we win them all," exclaimed Muneio whose coaching staff includes Dan Chrenko. Jim Jarvey, Gary Grady, Russ Carlson, and Tom Garrett.

"You know, the one thing I can't understand about this year is that we have only 10 sophomores and unless we have a big change, the junior varsity program won't be able to function." stated Muneio.

Stemberger, who averaged about 38 yards per punt in '73 will be the '74 punter and Pink and Ogden are battling it out, for the place-kicking assign-

"We have that good front-eight on defense and are just working on quick-

"I guess kids just don't want to pay the price anymore."

Canton's price for a winning season in '74 ought to be an interesting figure - one that experience is going to have to ring up victories.

Turf Tips, Quips By Doc Minard

The Grand Circuit moved into Wolverine Raceway Monday after a rather hectic closing at DuQuoin, Ill. where it appeared for a time the Hambletonian would have to be postponed due to heavy rains and rescheduled later at another mile track.

Wolverine was the logical choice and had tentatively accepted if the rains continued. But the weather broke in southern Illinois and the rich three year old trotting classic was finally held last Friday, three days late, with Christopher T a surprise winner.

Now the Roaring Grand has shifted its big show to Wolverine and as usual with some startling events. For instance, the big mile track presented a 12-race program Wednesday with betting allowed on 10 and non-betting on the other two.

One was the three year old filly trot and the other was the runoff of the three year old colt pace, always one of the top races of the meeting. This time the track management received permission to hold the filly pace between the fourth and fifth races and then scheduled the runoff after the 10th betting race.

WOULD YOU BELIEVE the same thing will happen tonight (Thursday) in the $53,940 three year old trot which had to be divided into two eliminations with the first five finishers in each coming back for the championship finale.

And folks are going to get a chance to see a rerun of the Hambletonian for free, minus betting, in the runoff after the 10th race.

Christopher. T., surprise Hambletonian king, drew into the second heat with Spitfire Hanover, Missile Speed and Golden Sovereign Nevele Diamond, second in the rich classic, is in the first heat along with Journalist, Smug, and Hero Almahurst.

The runoff could well be better than the Hambletonian since it should have all of the top contenders in the same race and give fans a chance to see the best of the sophomore trotters in action.

ALSO ON THE THURSDAY card is Hanover, Armbro Petch, Tadaro Hanever, Skipper Don (remember the Michigan colt who paced to a big victory a week ago in 2:00.4), Far The Best and All Time Bret to mention a few that have been in the headlines this year.

THEN ON FRIDAY, Wolverine presents its traditional "Good Ol' Times" night when the prices are turned back to the turn of the century, and every possible step is taken to make it the big night of the year for fans of all ages at the big mile plant. It's the night when you can take junior and the other youngsters in the family to the track, pay a 50-cent admission charge to the grandstand and all of the kids 12 and under are admitted free.

Just to keep them interested there will be dime hot dogs, five-cent soft drinks, popcorn and peanuts along with other bargains. And you can buy hot dogs until every member of the family is full and then some.

There'll be a Dixieland band to liven up the occasion and other events as the evening progresses. Headlining the racing program will be the eighth and last of the Grand Circuit stakes, the Matron three year old filly pace and the weekly in-vitational trot.

It was the first three-day weekend for the east side track and for any up plant in Michigan since it was the first in which Sunday racing was sandwiched between a Saturday and Monday.

The Labor Day Monday probably. would have been the biggest of the meeting had the weather been anything but what it was. Cold and grey-... skies in the morning and until race time and then a drizzle throughout the ... afternoon changing to a heavier rain during the early evening which continued for the remainder of the night.

ALTHOUGH THE RUMORS : haven't been confirmed, it is believed that Hazel Park management will start enclosing the Roaring 20s before the end of the week. The popular betting ring atop the clubhouse was just. about the coldest place this side of the north pole last Monday and nothing would make the regular customers happier than to have it enclosed for warmth in the cold weather and air conditioned for the hot, muggy days.

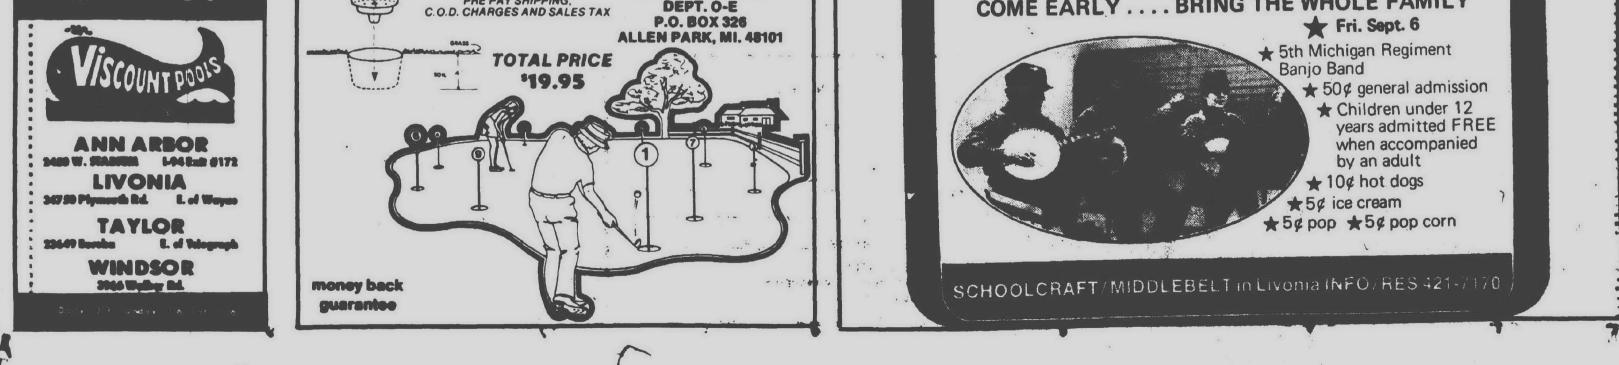

There isn't any question in the minds of anyone close to the situation that the Roaring 20s is a spot that should be open at all times. It gives patrons an excellent view of the races, there are permanent seats for ". about 500 and tables and chairs to ". take care of an additional 500.

Glass enclosing, installation of heating and air conditioning units would, be a smart move on the part of Messers Hartman and Tyner.' Judging from their performances thus far, neither is one to miss a chance to make improvements if it means more dollars going through the machines. The history of the Roaring 20s since it was first opened will attest to its success.

Incidentally, Hazel Park is making big plans for Saturday, Sept. 14 when it will present a stakes program worth more than $50,000. It will be the richest to date under the Hartman-Tyner ownership.

Director of Racing Bud Sears and his crew of assistants spent the weekend visiting tracks in the midwest. south and east seeking entries for some of the stakes. The results of their efforts will be known in a few days.

Redford girls stung

The Redford Stingers got stung. The state women's softball champions from Redford Township failed in their bid to defend the national title in the 36 team tourney in Louisville, 17

Nelli Grimwade's crew which was made up of 17 through 23 year-olds wound up eighth.

The Stingers, who are now 68-11 for the season, won their opener contest, 150, but quickly fell into the losers bracket, 2-0.

Redford bounced back with a 10-3 and 5-2 wins but fell out of the tourney 9-6 against the Shamrocks of Winston Salem, N.C.

"The girls really felt bad about not going all the way," commented Coach Grimwade."But we lost to good teams and we are hoping to bounce back this weekend in a 12 team tourney up at East Tawas."

The national opener saw Redford crush St. Charles Hospital out of Long Island, N.Y., 15-0. Stinger hurler Marilyn Turner tossed a two-hitter while her teammates banged out 16 hits.

Redford scored one in the second, three times in the third, in the sixth and finished off with six scores in the seventh.

Sue Pulju and Sherry Cran sparked the Redford attack with homeruns, third baseman Margaret Spindler banged out four hits in five at bats and Sue Riedel and Gail Snyder each collected three hits in four at bats.

Then came the crushing blow as the Zodiacs of Knoxville, Tenn., handed the Stingers a 2-0 setback. Redford managed only seven hits and left seven runners stranded. The Zodiacs put together nine hits and scored solo runs in both the second and fourth innings.

The losers bracket saw Redford get off to five runs in the first inning and coast in with a 10-3 triumph over the Steelers of Louisville, Ky.

Redford collected 12 hits and held the Steelers to five. The opening inning saw two errors open the door for the Stingers with Sherry Cran, Nancy Gumtow, Amy Gierak, Judy Huntsman and Spindler all ripping out singles.

Golf Tourney card filling up

With the entry deadline only a week away on Wednesday, Sept. 11, entries for the fifth annual Observer & Eccentric Newspapers open golf tourney are beginning to pour into the headquar-ters at the Whispering Willows golf course, Newburgh at Eight Mile Road in Livonia.

That was the word from pro and tournament director Gary Whitener who believes this years entry will exceed any of the past four.

"We have had numerous inquiries from Observer & Eccentric readers in Oakland County," he said, "This is the first time the tourney has been open to golfers in Rochester, Troy. Birmingham, West Bloomfield. Bloomfield Hills and Bloomfield Township.

"In the past, entries were limited to the circulation area of the Observer Newspapers but the merger of the Observer and the Eccentrics in January threw it wide open to all golfers, male and female in areas covered by all of the papers."

Whitener has received assurance of Bud Stevens, two-time champion, that he'll be back to defend his crown. He also has received inquiries from the famed Proben family in Redford Township and youthful Jeff Roth of the Farmington Country Club who has shown some interest in making a bidfor the area open championship.

Entry fee for the 36 hole medal play handicap tournament is $18.50 which covers green fees, prizes and trophies.

The pairings will be made immediately after the 6 p.m. entry deadline on Sept. 11 and entrants are urged to call the Whispering Willows pro shop Friday after 10 a.m. to get the starting times for the play on Saturday and Sunday.

Whitener reports entries for the women's division also are well ahead of a year ago. This year's tournament is scheduled for Friday, Sept. 20 with the deadline for entries on Tuesday,

Like the men's division, the gals will be divided into flights with suitable awards in each.

The entry fee for the distaff golfers is $7.50 which covers green fees and trophies.

Any golfers desiring additional information are urged to call Whitener at the Whispering Willows golf course.

Livonia gals win tourney that closed last Monday night at Hartfield Lanes in Berkley.

It was Bill's first appearance with the country's leading pros this season and while he didn't reach the finals, he stole much of the spotlight with the only perfect game of the three day event.

Bill did survive the first cut in the large field and then found the going tougher and tougher until the cut for the five finalists on Sunday.

Aside from Spargo's perfect game interest centered on Earl Anthony's bid to draw closer to the money winning record of $85,000. Earl had to be content with third place and $2,500 which boosted his earnings to $76,500.

The victory finally went to Steve Neff, a newcomer from Sarasota. Fla., who never had won one of these weekly tournaments.

The big event proved, too, that the Detroit area is a logical place for a permanent date on the tour. It is more than likely the pros will make the area a regular stop.

got away to a great start last week at ing game of 235.

Meanwhile, the Stroh team that rolled a 3437 series to open the season a year ago at Shafer Lanes, paced the Michigan Open field again, but rolled only a 2970.

Last season the Stroh count shattered all records for opening night and it stood up throughout the year as · the top mark. It also earned Stroh high ranking on the national honor roll.

The new Stroh lineup with Bob Hart, erstwhile member of the Goebel team that won the ABC all-events title last spring, rolling in fourth place, let it be known that it is the team to beat by pacing both the All-Star Classic, the Michigan Open and the John Gavie Sweepstakes within the period of three nights last week.

Prior to pacing the Michigan Open, the Brewers showed the way in the All-Star Classic at Satellite Bowl with The new all-star league in the metro- a 3082 count. To mark his debut Hart politan area - the Bonanza Classic - rolled a 637 series that included a clos-

With them will be the Classic at Bel-Aire Lanes in Farmington and the competition promises to be keen from the rolling of the first ball.

Last season the Wonderland Classic was the highest scoring loop in the entire area and George Bashara sees no reason why his league shouldn't show the way again.

Now that Labor Day has come and gone, all of the leagues in the metropolitan area swing into action. Because of the increase in women's interest in the game the leagues are certain to set an all-time record for the number of competitors.

A recent survey of the establishments in the area revealed that there is not a league opening during prime time and the day schedule is fast filling with women's leagues. In fact the league schedules in many places are so demanding that many of them are switching to Sunday afternoon bowling. Even the All-Star Classic is now bowling on eight Sundays. Nothing like this ever has happened in the metropolitan Detroit area.

It promises to be a great season.

topped Northville and Trenton and bounced Sterling Heights in the finale, 53.

After trailing, 3-0, in that finale, Wendy Sobolewski tied things up for the Flames with a three-run homer. A single by Peggy Gardella and triple by Carlene Kusza provided the goahead and winning score.

Ornamentals hit by disease

Home&Garden

Disease is taking its toll of Russian olives and junipers in Michigan this year, reports Harold Davidson, horticulture specialist at Michigan State University.

Russian olives that started normal growth in the spring are suddenly wilting and dying, Davidson says.

Though the problem seems to be, more prevalent on older, less vigorous plants, younger plants growing in nurseries have also been affected.

"FLANTINGS that have suffered from the disease for a few years will have accumulated a good many dead and dying branches," the specialist says. "Unfortunately, little can be done for the infected plants besides cutting and burning the infected branches."

Davidson observes that juniper blight has been a common malady this year, apparently as a result of the unusually moist spring weather. Browning tips and dieback may be so extensive that plants have to be dug out and destroyed.

For junipers less severely affected, Davidson recommends cutting and burning infected branches. When new growth begins next spring, spray weekly with Bordeaux mixture.

TO MINIMIZE the chances of spreading the disease as you cut it out, prune on a calm day when the foliage is dry and sterilize pruning equipment between cuts. Dispose of all diseased material.

Avoid juniper blight by keeping your plants healthy and vigorous, Davidson advises. Water during dry periods and fertilize if needed.

If you're choosing new plants for your landscape, select the more resistant varieties—your nurseryman can help you.

The low spreading forms have been most severely affected by the disease, Davidson notes, and clipped junipers appear to be more prone to infection than those left unclipped.

Weather affected by plants

You know that old saying about how you can't do anything about the weather?

It isn't so. You can change the climate around your home with plants.

Trees can help keep your home cool in summer, says Harold Davidson, extension horticulture specialist at Michigan State University.

Now is a good time to plan where you want trees for shade, he suggests, because you know now where and when the sun's rays beat on your home.

Properly placing trees around the house can reduce the temperature in shaded areas by as much as 15 degrees, he notes.

IF YOU WANT trees for shade, the scape, find out how large various types of shade trees will grow. Too many huge trees can dwarf your home and crowd the landscape.

Soil and water conditions are important to your choice of a tree, too. Some trees, such as honey locust and Norway maple grow best on high, dry ground; others, like red maple and willow prefer lower, moist terrain.

TREE ROOTS have a way of getting into your water lines, Davidson points out. They can also ruin the foundation of your home and cause sidewalks, driveways and patios to crack and buckle. He suggests that large trees should not be planted less than 25 feet from house or tile lines. Smaller trees may be planted as close as 15 feet. indicates that trees on a residential property may increase its value up to 20 per cent.

Public warned

Area residents particularly the elderly, have been alerted by the Better Business Bureau to watch out for itinerants posing as home repairmen, roofers or lawn dressers.

These "gypsy" repairmen have moved into the area in a caravan of panel and pickup trucks. The trucks are unmarked or have a general title such as "General Waterproofing" written on the side.

The itinerants have no license to do business in the state, their contracts do not comply with the Michigan and FTC guidelines regarding in-home sales, and they have no address where to contact them if a problem arises.

Youre A Winner When AL Hts 3000

That is, if you've guessed correctly the date AI will bat that soonto-be famous number 3000 hit. When he does, he will be the only player now playing in the American League to do it. Only 11 players in the history of baseball can claim membership in this select group of hitters, and everyone's waiting for AI to make it number 12.

The date he gets number 3000 safe base hit will be the basis for a contest among the readers of the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers.

The winner of the contest will be the person who most accurately predicts the date AI steps across the 3000 hit club threshold. Most people think the time will come before the end of AI's 22nd season.

When do you think AI will do it? Simply pick the date of the game and send it in to the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers. John Dohany's piano composition hasn't got a name yet, but if he per-forms it often enough at the Plymouth Fall Festival it may become the cele-bration's theme.

used to practice "My Merry Oldsmo-bile" on his mother's upright piano. Later he played bars, performing on the spoons as well as the piano. When he wasn't playing honky-tonk and "getting in brawls all the time" he was catching the concert of every great pianist who passed through De-troit. Rubenstein, Horowitz and Schnaubel are his favorites.

Dohany and his son, Mike, who live at 9004 Elmhurst, have both composed original songs and will performing them at the Kellogg Park bandstand during the festival.

Dohany's daughter Rosemary, 23, of Westland sings and will perform with both her father and her brother. She is at ease singing the swing era com-positions of her father as well as Mike's folk-rock.

In 1967 Dohany brought his family and his stack of Classical records to Plymouth Township. They had to sell the family piano, but just as Dohany was growing restless enough to go back to playing in bars just to be able to bang on one, a lady's house burned. Her baby grand was intact but she didn't have a place for it so she of-fered it to the Dohanys.

John Dohany will be on stage Friday, Sept. 6 at 4:30 p.m. and Mike will play his guitar pieces Saturday, Sept. 7 at noon. Although their per-formances are only hours apart, their music spans the years.

Although his father has been trying to make a piano player out of him, Mike Dohany prefers the guitar and harmonica. He corresponds with a friend in California who writes the lyrics to go with his tunes.

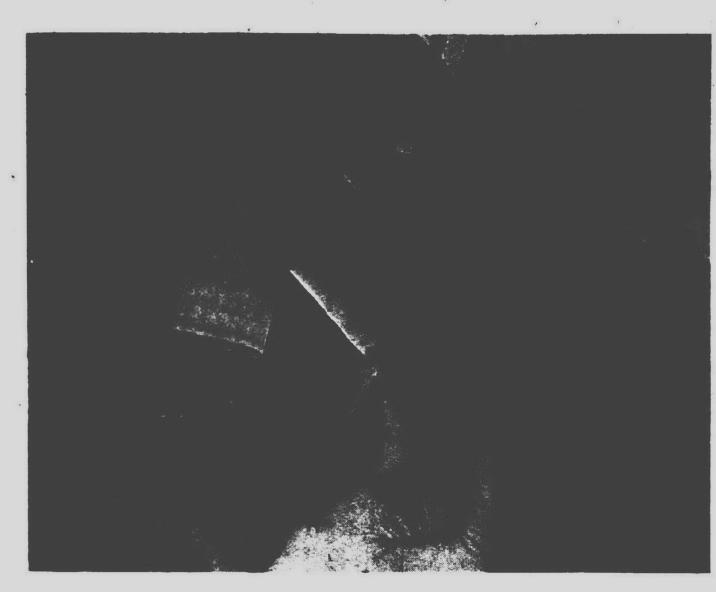

His father, agrees. "You're starting to get that harmony that I had," he told Mike. "There's never too much music around."

"There's plenty of room for me in the musical world."

"When it comes to the music there's quite a generation gap," said 20-year old Mike, who is a 1973 graduate of Plymouth-Salem High School. He has played the guitar for two years and will begin music classes this fall at Schoolcraft College. The lessons will be a first in the family of gifted musicians. John Dohany is 63 and has been playing the piano for the last 52 of those years. "I never took a lesson in my life," he said. "My mother played and I was bound and determined to be as good as she was." There's hardly any time of the day when a song isn't running through my head." When Dohany isn't playing the piano for the last 52 of whose years. "I nove music," he said. "There's hardly any time of the day when a song isn't running through my head." There's hardly any time of the day when a song isn't running through my head." There's hardly any time a doggone funeral partor and the dead would get up and walk over." The retired Continental Baking Company employe has memorized 400 songs over the years and organ, too. "The keys are exactly the same," he said. "It's just the touch that's different."

Mike and Rosemary have been play-ing together informally for years, but this will be their first performance to-gether on stage. While Rosemary, a 1971 Plymouth High graduate who sang in the choir, sings along with both of the family's musicians, her musical tastes lie somewhere in be-tween theirs—she prefers the Carpen-ters and Dionne Warwick to Mike's rock and Dohany's golden oldies. All three are practicing now for their Fall Festival roles, with the greatest amount of preparation in-volved in readying the Dohany over-ture. "I haven't named it yet," Do-hany. said. "We might put up a con-test for it at the festival. In the mean-time I'll be beating my brains out." Rosemary doesn't think her father is all that nervous about his own per-formance. "You're more worried about me blowing the solo for you," tradition Lions continue II-year

Lions Club participation in the Plymouth Fall Festival began in 1963, when the Lions sponsored their first Melon and Ice Cream Social. Wives of the Lions pitched in with the serving of cantaloup halves with a scoop of vanilla ice cream, home baked cake (baked by the wives), and coffee. Located in the center of Kellogg Park, the event was continued for six years and eventually an old fashioned hot dog stand was added to the activiţy.

In 1969, the Ice Cream Social was dropped in favor of the Friday Fish Fry. This year's dinner, on Friday, Sept. 6, from 5 to 9 p.m., will be the sixth annual Lions Fish Dinner, mark-ing 12 consecutive years of participa-tion in the Fall Festival by the Plymouth Lions. General chairman of this event for the first four years was Dick Schwal-ler, who just completed his year as president of the club. In 1963, the chairman was William Fehlig and this year's chairman is Robert Erdelyi. The Fish Dinner has growm steadily over the years. In 1970, 2,000 dinners were served and by 1972, the number were served and by 1972, the number was approximately 2,500. This year, Chairman Erdelyi plans to serve 3,000 dinnefs. requiring 1,200 pounds of fresh Iceland perch, 900 pounds of fresh fresh and 500 pounds of cole slaw, along with all the rolls and bev-erages that are served with each meal. The proceeds from this event will from at capacity has been increased, and this year six gas-fired cookers will run at capacity to keep the lines of diners moving steadily. The proceeds from this event will help finance the traditional Lions Glub projects: Leader Dogs for the Blind, Michigan Eye Bank, Plymouth Com-munity and School Eye Examination and Girl Scout Troops, Cub Pacts and many others.

"I think nine years is enough for anyone," Flum says. "It's time for someone else to take over, make some changes and maybe bring about a different atmosphere." Flum also says he's leaving due to job commitments as manager of the Instaloan department at the National Bank of Detroit on Sheldon and North Territorial Roads.

BUT IT'S HARD to imagine the fall festival with a different atmosphere. Each year the festival has enjoyed tremendous growth and success under Flum's management. It is expected that Ed Page, cur-rently assistant manager of the festi-val, will take over the job as manager as of Dec. 31, 1974, Flum's official res-ignation date. Page is the director of pupil personnel services for the Plymouth School District.

Page says. "I just hope to be able to keep up the tradition that Tony has set—to keep things running smoothly and efficiently." Other than his duties as assistant manager for the past two years, Page has been involved with the Lions Club activities at the festival since 1967. Flum, reflecting on his eight years as manager, says it was definitely worth all the hard work. "Perhaps the hardest job is keeping the festival free from commercialism and political campaigning. But with so much cooperation from the commu-nity, we have been able to accomplish this every year."

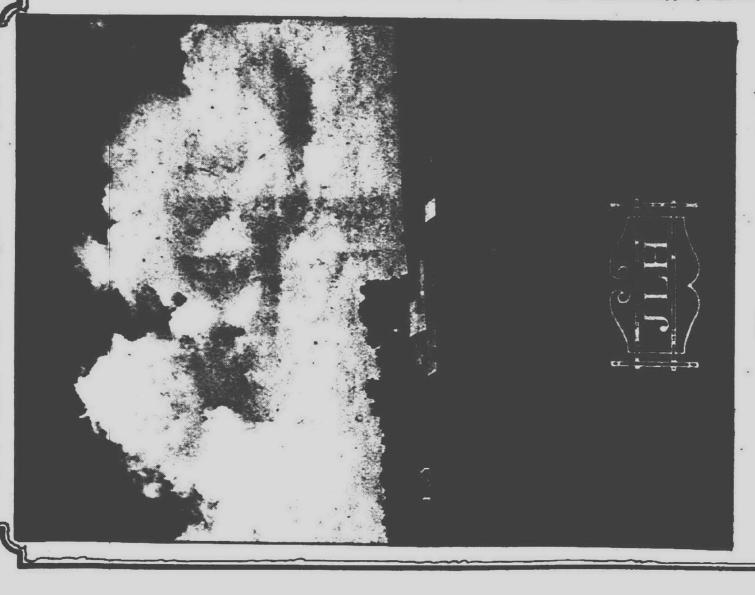

FLUM SAYS another problem is the abundance of bees attracted to the fes-tival every year because of the cookies, cakes, etc.

"Last year was the heaviest swarm of bees we've ever seen at the festi-val. That brings about a danger of bee stings, but there hav never been any major problems resulting from any this.

Flum says the festival continues to grow and to improve every year and this year's will be the best yet. Page will of course try to make next year's festival exceed this one. "I'm really looking forward to being 'just one of the crowd' at next year's festival," Flum says, flashing a grin at Page.

Down through the ages, houses are lived in, added to, re-sided and re-roofed,damaged by fire, swept away by floods, and then rebuilt for new generations. peop

Tall buildings house offices and stores, shops and storage space . . . they've been changed, remodeled, painted, resurfaced, and torn down for parking lots or apartment complexes. Barns have sheltered goats and cows and horses; combines, tractors and plows. They've faded in the sun and sagged under the weight of winter snows. . . and made way for subdivisions, golf courses, and new schools.

On the surface, these changes take place as a matter of course . . . giving way to change, progress, to neglect and to the elements. And then the cycle repeats itself over and over.

But one thing does not change.

The Land.

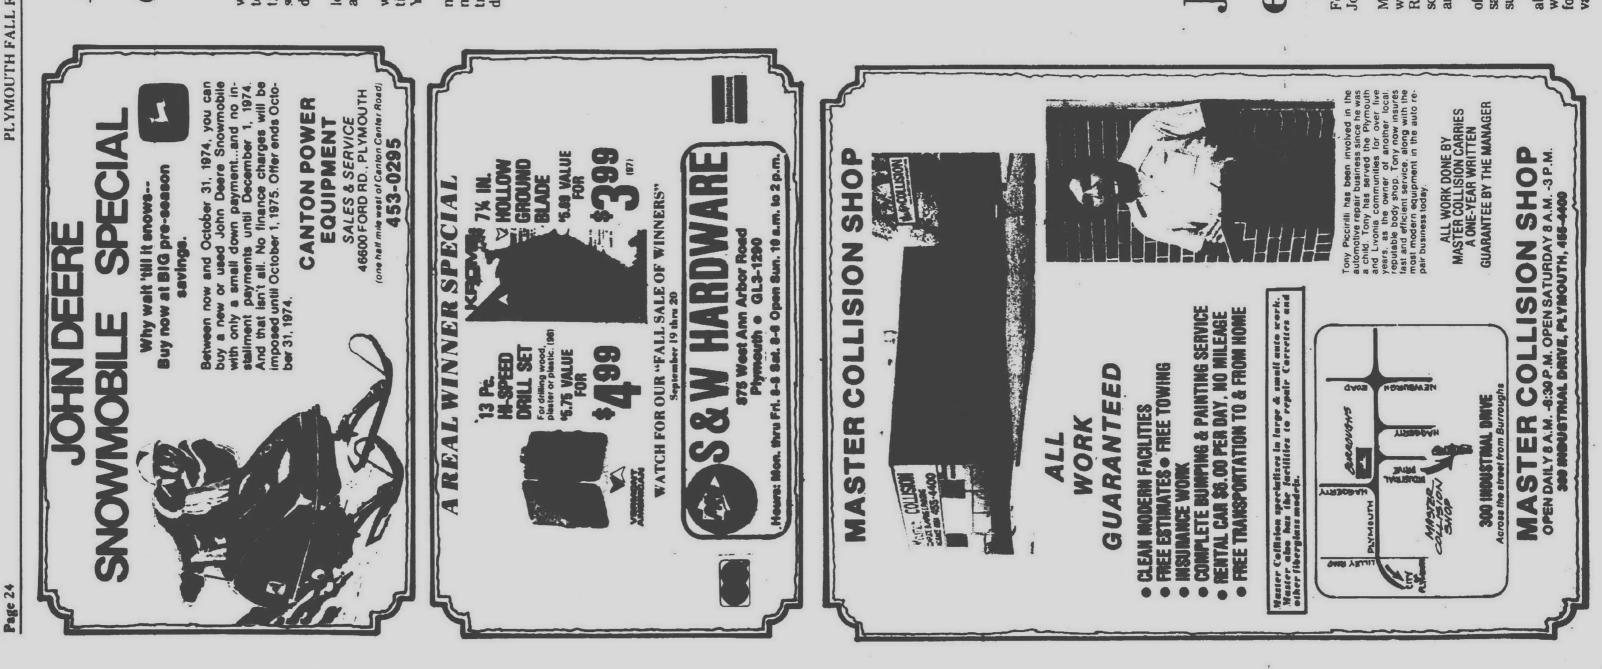

That piece of God's earth that is the very literal base of any structure does not change. It can be dug in and seeded and planted and paved over, but it is still there. It can't be eliminated, but more important, it cannot be replaced. It cannot be manufactured or reproduced. It is there and it is going to stay. This is the Real in real estate ... this is the priceless, irreplacable heart and soul of life itself. And each year it becomes more and more valuable by the mere fact that it cannot be replaced.

The Real part of real estate is today's best investment. Blood will flow at Fall Festival

By ANITA CRONE

Although most of the young people who visit Youth, Inc. in Plymouth are too young to give blood, one of the ac-ti, rities the youth organization is spon-soring is the Red Cross bloodmobile during the Fall Festival. Potential blood donors must be at least 17 years old and have parental approval if under 18. "We wanted to do something that would serve the community, in addi-tion to our fund-raising activities." a Youth, Inc. spokesperson said. The organization will receive no money for sponsoring the blood-mobile. The Red Cross will have a trained staff on hand, while a local doctor will volunteer his services for

This is the first time that a blood-mobile has been used in conjunction with the festival. On Saturday the bloodmobile will be parked in front of Youth, Inc. from 1:30 until 7:30 p.m. and on Sunday from noon until 6 p.m. The youth cen-ter is located at 271 S. Main. No festival is complete without food, and Youth, Inc. will be selling corned beef sandwiches and cole slaw, topped off with a soft drink dur-ing the four-day event. In case people have need of addition-al funds, Youth, Inc. will sponsor con-tests on Friday and Saturday with two winners receiving $100 each and a grand winner receiving $300.

JOHNNIE CROSBY of Plymouth will be one of the many exhibitors at the Fall Festival's arts and crafts show. The event, sponsored by the Plymouth Community Arts Council, will be Saturday, Sept. 7, from noon to 9 p.m. and Sunday, Sept. 8, from noon to 7 p.m. in the Central School auditorium, Church and Main Streets. Among the exhibitors at the Fall Festival's arts and crafts show will be Johnnie Crosby of Plymouth. A graduate of Cornell University, Mrs. Crosby first started art lessons with Marion Sober, owner of the Joy Road Studio. She has also taken les-sons at the Bloomfield Art Association and Wayne State University. Mrs. Crosby appeared on the cover of the July-August issue of "Impre-sario," a magazine of the arts and lei-

Her awards include first and honor-able mentions in the Ann Arbor women painters shows, a second prize for a 1972 sculpture in Plymouth; and varying recognitions in the Artrain

Three Cities Show, J.L. Hudson and Michigan Water Color Society Travel Show in 1965 and 1967. Mrs. Crosby is presently exhibiting her work at Robert Thom Gallery in Birmingham. Past exibits include Cornell University, University of Mich-igan, Manchester College, University of Texas. University of North Dakota, Bowling Green State University, Uni-versity of Delaware and Lawrence University.

Her work may be seen at the Fall Festival's arts and crafts show, spon-sored by the Plymouth Community Arts Council, on Sept. 7 and 8, in the Central School auditorium.

By W.W.EDGAR

Among the many thousands who visit Kellogg Park each year to enjoy a meal and the festivities of the Fall Festival few realize they are partici-pating in one of the most unusual char-ity affairs in the country.

It makes little difference whether you indulge in the German meal spon-sored by the Business & Professional Women: the pancake feast prepared by the Kiwanis; the fish fry or the roast beef meal put up by the Jaycees or the chicken barbecue made famous by the Rotary Club, the result is the same-a real contribution to charity. Unlike many charities, the Fall Fes-tival funds are syphoned off in many directions and have helped send many a young person to school or helped beautify the city. One of the finest examples of this beautification is found in Kellogg Park. The fountain that gushes in the middle of the area was the gift of the Rotary Club, while the brick walks were not only provided but laid per-sonally by the Kiwanis Club mem-bers. It was quite an undertaking, but the members got a real kick out of it. Meanwhile, the B&PW has stressed scholarships for the young folks seek-ing higher education. During the past year this group provided a scholar-ship at Interlochen. The Jaycees, too, are always at some plan to help the city and further the cause of young people. They also sponsor the July Fourth parade and a host of other things for the benefit of the community.

Aside from these beautification Aside from these beautification measures, the Rotary and Kiwanis Club do a great charity. For instance, during the past year the Rotarians do-nated two kidney machines to St. Mary Hospital in Livonia for the estab-lishment of a kidney unit. It was the first such unit established in this area by a service club. Along with this gift the Rotarians also have established a scholarship fund along with the Paul Harris schol-arships used around the world. Aside from their work on the beau-tification projects, the Kiwanians also emphasize activities with helping the scouts. During the past year they have provided another girl scout camp.

So the funds provided by the Fall Festival are put to good use in many directions. That's why you will see industrial and civic leaders, along wiith busi-ness executives, standing shoulder to shoulder over hot stoves, whipping up pancakes or barbecueing chicken, while the women in high stations also take their turns serving sauerkraut and German sausage to the multi-

The Plymouth Fall Festival re-mains unique in that no commercial events are allowed. Money raised goes to community organizations and the Fall Festival Board.

Be it Plymouth, or Livonia, or Farmington or Garden City-the festi-vals are booming.

The festivals are a popular way to raise money. For instance, Garden City to the south of here found the Chamber of Commerce floundering. The group rallied around a circus and the turnout has helped save the local C of C there.

Canton is getting into the festival business this year with its Labor Day weekend fair, which will include a car-nival, parade and several special events.

More than 50,000 persons jammed Ford Field during the four-day event. Spree organizers sold 542 cases of beer; other organizations taking part sold out by the end of the festival.

"The crowds in Farmington get big-ger every year. This year was the ses-quicentennial-the 150th anniversary-of the founding of Farmington by a small band of Quakers who came there from New York. Special events were staged to com-memorate the historic year-1824. Plymouth's founding came about one year later when the first settlers arrived in the area in 1825.

Just why people flock to these events is hard to tell. Best guess is that they offer a mixture of old-fash-ioned carnival fun and a nostaligic re-turn to simpler times.

Whatever the reasons, they are doing great. Plymouth's big neighbor to the east, Livonia, finished its an-nual festival-Spree 74-at the end of June and broke all kinds of records.

Farmington is also in the festival business in a big way. Their efforts are spread out over several days and several locations.

PLYMOUTH-Every town in Mich-igan, it seems, has some kind of festi-val or carnival or spree and they are drawing big crowds-bigger than pre-dicted by even the most avid promoters.

Fond of old things? Like to browse around in antique shops? Enjoy seeing what dealers in Penn-sylvania. Ohio and Indiana have to offer as well as area entrepreneurs?

The Plymouth Symphony League brings them all together in its 12th an-nual antique mart during the Plymouth Fall Festival. You say there's a fuel shortage and you haven't the time?

Assembled under one roof in the Cul-tural Center on Farmer Street will be 22 dealers. Several private collectors whose wares are available to the public only once or twice a year at se-lected shows, will be there. The four out-of-state dealers are a real find according to the show's co-chairmen, Betty Zimmerman and Betty Laird. They expect them to bring an exceptional group of primi-tives, pewter, Staffordshire and old glass.

For those not shooting for a dead-line or a newspaper I'd certainly be tempted to try the new Kodacolor II film in a 35 mm format. The new film replaces Kodacolor X and from what we have seen so far it is a much better film. It is designed to be processing labs are much hap-pier with it. The new temperature cut negative developing time down from about an hour in the old C-22 (Kodaco-ler X) process to about 25 minutes with the new Flexicolor process (for Kodacolor II). Even used in the new Kodak small cameras-the 110s-the film gives sharp pictures and good color. The fall festival, it seems to me, is a good place to try this and some of the other new Kodak films (Kodach-rome 25, etc.). Top choices for photo-
