Dunning Museum locates a curator

By W.W. EDGAR

PLYMOUTH—The long search for a director to take charge of the Plymouth Historical Museum has ended.

It came to a successful conclusion Friday when Phillip E. Mroczkowski, currently assistant director at the Monroe County Historical' Museum, agreed to take over on May 1.

His selection came from a field of more than 60 candidates who have been interviewed during the past year and a half and brings to the Museum a man who has been interested in history of all kinds since his early school days.

"It took quite a while to find our man," Margaret Dunning donor of the building that houses the museum, stated, "but I think we found the one we wanted.

"HE HAS SEEN the museum in its present state and likes it," she continued, "and he is anxious to get to work getting things in order for an official opening within several months."

The new director and his wife. Carol, made a complete tour of the building and were loud in their praise for the work that has been done thus

I am looking forward to some interesting times after we get organized."

Mroczkowski, 29, is a graduate of Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo and holds degrees in American history., literature and culture and special honors in early American history. Presently he is working on his masters degree in American history. His wife is a graduate of the University of Kentucky and has a master's degree from Western Michigan University.

Prior to his assignment at the Monroe Museum, Mroczkowski spent two years in the Medical Corps of the U.S. Army and was stationed at Fort Bragg, N.C.

His acceptance of the position was a great relief to Miss Dunning, who has waited patiently to complete the memorial tribute to her parents by opening the building to the public.

SINCE THE BUILDING was dedicated in May 1973, Miss Dunning and members of the Historical Society were several times on the verge of each time they met with disappointment.

One candidate, for instance, accepted expenses to fly here from Oregon, only to change his mind when he returned home and looked again at his home on the Pacific Ocean.

was well pleased with the future, "provided you lower the ceilings."

Meanwhile, Clarence Moore, current president of the Society quietly has gone about his work of construct-, ing the store fronts on old Main Street that will be shown to the visitors. With him, Norma Cassady, the curator when the building was finished, worked patiently with a group, registering the thousands of items that were contributed from community residents. She retired, however, at the end of her term and left the Museum without a work force.

Only a few permanent gifts have been placed. Among them is a large mural, showing the downtown intersection of Main Street and Penniman Avenue on July 4, 1904. There isn't an auto in sight. This was the gift of the Rotary Club of Plymouth.

Another prize exhibit is the only model still available of the Alter car that was manufactured in Plymouth back in the 20s.

There will be plenty of others. getting the man they wanted. And That's why both Margaret Dunning and the new director are anxious to get to work for a grand opening as soon as possible.

Road patrol appeal definite

CANTON-An appeal of Circuit Court Judge Thomas Foley's March 27 opinion, stating Wayne County is not obligated to fund the Sheriff's. Road Patrol, will be filed.

That was the unanimous sentiment of representatives from six of the seven townships currently fighting the county over the road patrol.

Representatives from Plymouth, Huron, Brownstown, Sumpter, and Van Buren townships met with Canton Supervisor Robert Greenstein Thursday and voted to appeal the decision and hire a new attorney. No representative from Northville Township was present.

Bert Burgoyne, a Detroit attorney, has been picked to replace Louis Wechsler as counsel.

Commented Greenstein, "It is not uncommon at this stage of the game to change lawyers to get some fresh ideas. Bert was here to discuss some business he is handling for us and I suggested we retain him for the road patrol case. The other supervisors agreed."

He added, "The supervisors seemed convinced their interpretation of the law is correct, and they received some support from Burgovne in an informal talk."

'Happy nightmare' Parents await war orphans

By MARILYN FITCHETT

They're calling it a "happy nightmare." But no one is sure when the happiness will begin and the nightmare will end.

"They are the expectant parents waiting to receive work that their adopted Vietnamese children are on their way to the United States from Saigon.

The "happy nightmare" is the government's decision to waive paperwork needed for Americans to adopt foreign-born children following the communist takeover of South Vietnamese provinces which have left thousands homeless.

Adopted Parents of Asian (APAC) children presently is working to raise $85,000 to charter a plane for an airlift of Vietnamese children, and area churches are becoming drop-off points for baby clothes and non-perishable food items.

AT BEST, the situation is iffy, says Livonian Millie Dreisbach, member of APAC and mother of an adopted 13month-old Vietnamese daughter.

"There's nothing that definite," Mrs. Dreisbach explained. "It depends on if we can raise the money, if we can get a plane and if we can get into Vietnam."

The airlift, which was planned for this past weekend, was aimed at "transporting as many children as could fit in the plane." All of these children would be placed with families who have gone through the adop-Bowling tion process. Brevities "Now we have to find a way to pick up the children who haven't been Deaths Editorial Opinion adopted," she said. "We are seeking a blanket passport for these orphanages," Mrs. Fox said. "It's obvious that President Ford's decision to airlift 2,000 orphans amounts to a drop in the bucket."

As plans stand, APAC hoped to charter a Pan Am plane to Saigon over the weekend. The group is in contact with a Georgia couple, Dick and Jody Darragh, who both work for Eastern Airlines and who promised to secure an escort service for the children. OVER THE WEEKEND trucks stopped at pick-up points at Rosedale Garden Presbyterian Church and Newburg United Methodist Church in Livonia to pick up children's food and clothing.

An order of dismissal of the township's case was signed by Judge Foley Friday, April 4. Wechsler had asked for a declaratory judgment from Foley stating how much the county should pay for the road patrol and what level of service it should provide.

Attorneys for the county asked the case be dismissed, and on March 27 Foley ruled in their favor. Friday's order made the decision official, and the townships have 20 days to file an appeal.

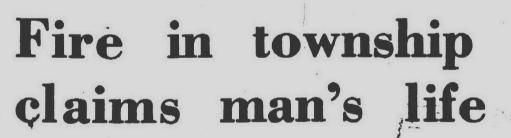

According to Greenstein, the appeal will serve a second function. It will not only test Foley's opinion, but prevent the county from withdrawing the road patrol until the appeal is ruled

The supervisor added one reason Burgoyne was hired was because he had argued and won a similar case in the past.

Burgoyne was the attorney for the circuit court judges when they who filed suit against the county board of commissioners and the sheriff for more probation officers. He won and was upheld in the State Supreme Court.

At this point the road patrol case has cost the seven townships slightly more than $7,000 in legal fees.

Said Greenstein, "We haven't heard from Mr. Wechsler since the decision."

Mayor Young's bid for clout spurned by SEMTA members

By TIM RICHARD

Most suburban officials reacted negatively to Detroit Mayor Coleman Young's demand that he be allowed to appoint four of the nine board members of the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority (SEMTA).

The idea was aired, at Gov. Milliken's request, before the executive committee of the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments. SEMCOG, a six-county planning agency, appoints six of the SEMTA board members; the governor names three.

SEMCOG delegates who spoke on the matter Friday also favored a weight (auto license) tax or an income tax as the preferred methods for financing the region's 10 per cent COG and gubernatorial process. share of constructing a rail rapid transit system. The federal government would pick up 80 per cent of the tab, and Milliken has pledged his support of the state's picking up the remaining 10 per cent.

an Oakland County commissioner, summed up what appeared to be a majority view (there was no vote) when he predicted SEMTA "will become a political football" if individual cities begin appointing board members, as Young proposed.

Pernick said Detroit's interests could be adequately protected by appointing Detroiters through the SEM-

Pernick called public transportation "a regional problem-not a Detroit or Oakland County problem. It's time to put politics aside and think of service to the people."

The Oakland commissioner called it "unrealistic to have an income or LARRY PERNICK (D-Southfield), property tax increase" to pay for rapid transit. A gasoline tax or a weight tax would be justifiable, he said, because traffic would benefit and drivers be aided if people drove less and used public transit more.

> JERRY RAYMOND, Livonia city councilman, had a different view of the Young proposal.

> Raymond said only Detroit has any great amount of capital poured into public transportation; only Detroit and Ann Arbor levy any great amount of taxes to finance public transportation; and only Detroit has a charter requirement that a vote of the people be taken before the city's Department of Transportation (DOT) can be merged into SEMTA.

> Therefore, said Raymond, Detroit has a good case for asking for a bigger role on the SEMTA board.

> FRED HOUGHTEN (R-Rochester), chairman of the Oakland County Board of Commissioners, looked with some unhappiness at past transportation tax plans.

"Oakland County got short-changed for 25 or 30 years for its road work from state gasoline and weight tax funds. Oakland doesn't want to be a majority taxpayer and get shortchanged on benefits again."

or three tax ideas rather than reliance on a single tax could be used to raise the region's $22 million a year estimated share of construction. He added that SEMTA board members should be elected officials from local government, perhaps getting their appointments through their county boards of commissioners.

JOHN BARR (D-Dearborn Heights), vice chairman of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners, voiced strong objection to "Detroit's weighty influence. It violates the regional planning concept."

Allowing the mayor of Detroit to appoint four board members beholden to him would "give away the regional viewpoint" on rapid transit, he said. Sid Alexander, Oakland County public works official, said there should be "no restructuring of the SEMTA board until after the merger" of SEMTA and Detroit's DOT. "Detroit would be on both sides of the bargaining table" if Young's demand were met said Alexander.

JAMES KELLOGG, head of the state Department of Highways and Transportation's rapid transit section, was personally tapped Milliken to sound out the regional viewpoint to Young's suggestion. Kellogg and State Sen. Carl Pursell (R-Plymouth) held meetings with local officials to sound them out.

Young has insisted Milliken back him in presenting a "Detroit Plan" to President Ford.

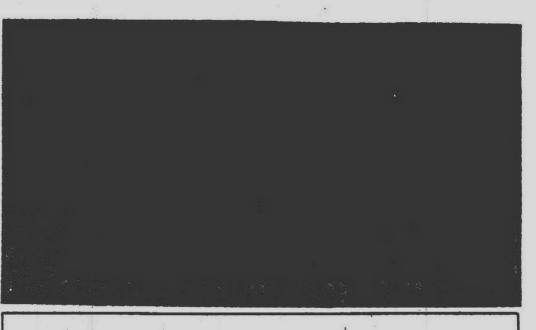

Young has talked of a Detroit-only rapid transit program if SEMTA cannot stir up enough interest or money to carry it out.

Milliken, however, is strongly committed to regional (seven-county) planning for and solutions to broad-scale Houghten said a combination of two problems, according to aides.

> FOUR QUESTIONS were put by the governor:

1. Should there be an agreement to merge SEMTA and D-DOT? Overwhelmingly, SEMCOG officials felt there should.

2. Should SEMTA's board structure be reorganized on Young's proposed 4-4-1 basis, with Young naming four, SEMCOG four and the governor one.

Dick has over 15 years' experience in the printing business. He can handle almost any printing job you need-from business cards to brochures. Although Printing While-You-Wait is the specialty at Kwikie Duplicating, larger, more sophisticated printing jobs can be handled in a matter of days. The meeting will be sponsored by the Livonia-Redford Chapter of the Michigan Association of Children with Learning Disabilities.

"Educational Aspects of the LD Child, Secondary Level" will be the topic of the speech by Mrs. Vedder, who is co-director of The Farm Camp for Learning Disabled Children and advisor to North Oakland Chapter of MACLD.

Wayne BPW sets benefit

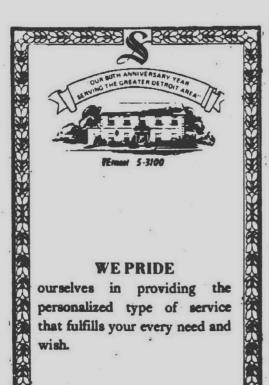

The Wayne Business and Professional Women's Club will hold its annual card party Wednesday, April 9 at 8 p.m. in the parish hall of St. John Episcopal Church, 555 S. Wayne Road.

Proceeds will go toward a nursing scholarship. A $1.25 donation will cover refreshments and prizes as well as the evening of cards.

Polonaise sets dinner dance

Polonaise Society Lodge 3160 will honor lodge members who bowl in the National Bowl Tournament, with a dinner dance Saturday, April 26 at 7:30 p.m.

The event will take place in the Warren Valley Country Club, 26116 W. Warren, Dearborn Heights. For reservations contact Eugene Ulfig, 6147 Dwight, Dearborn Heights.

The heavy majority felt there should be no formal reorganization but that Detroit's interest could be protected by SEMCOG and the governor naming enough Detroiters to the board.

3. Should SEMTA's district size be reduced from seven counties to three (Wayne, Oakland and Macomb) inasmuch as it will be decades before any transit lines reach out to Washtenaw, Livingston, Monroe or St. Clair counties? Majority reaction was that planning should be done on a sevencounty basis, but taxing and operations should be confined to the three metropolitan counties for the immediate future.

4. What kind of tax should be levied to finance the region's 10 per cent share of building a rapid transit line?

Central pupils 'sentenced'

By DARLENE STINSON

PLYMOUTH-Pounding his gavel in the 35th District Court, Judge Brad Lamborne sternly delivered his sentenced "You will write 25 sentences, due by 2:30 tomorrow afternoon, 'I will try not to talk in class again.'

"Next case," the fifth grader commanded, while enjoying Judge Dunbar Davis' swivel chair.

Such scenes, which Stu Fisben's fifth graders performed in the second floor courtroom of Plymouth City Hall, are common occurrences in Central Elementary School, where Raben's and Bruce Alnatalo's fifth graders don't need teachers to tell them to behave.

That's because classroom constitutions, drawn up by students themselves, govern behavior and rights in the elementary school classrooms. There students daily inform fifth grade ticket writers of constitution violations and regularly try their peers before a student judge and jury.

According to Raben and Alatalo, the courtroom sessions serve as good classroom management tools as well as social studies lessons.

"It helps the students realize they have to answer for some of the things before their peers, which is the way it would be for me, if I had to appear in court.

"If I hand out a punishment, it's coming down from above," he said. "After all, the students are the ones being imposed upon, when someone misbehaves."

Most of the crimes for which students stand trial involve pushing, speaking without permission, name I think it's cruel and unusual punishcalling and playing "keep-away" with another's belongings.

The punishment fits the crime and increases in severity as the number of violations and severity of the crime rises. Most. punishments involve sentence writing, a few hours in which

"Surprisingly enough, the students they do," Raben explained. "They're | are quite fair," said Alatalo. "The punishments are designed to fit the crime. In the case of name-calling. for example, the student might be told to call himself a name." Raben_added, "Luckily, there's never hard feelings about sentences. Students know the whole thing will break down, if they don't come through with their sentences.

"I'm liable to lighten a sentence, if ment," Raben confessed. "We have a pretty full docket right now."

Court sessions began in Alatalo's classroom last year and in Raben's in November, after fifth graders viewed Judge Davis' proceedings in 35th District Court.

the offender is prohibited to speak - "The students were quite impressed and- worst of all- a note home to with Judge Davis," Raben said. "He was just fantastic. Now we're doing the same thing on a smaller scale."

THE OBSERVER & ECCENTRIC

Students drew up their own classroom constitutions and elected a judge, court clerk, court secretary and policemen to deliver violation notices. The entire class acts as jury, and recommends sentences from which the presiding judge picks and chooses.

"I've learned a lot about the court," confessed fifth grader Sue Katchka. "It's not run the way Barnaby Jones does it."

Fifth grader Darcy Johnson said, "It's a better way to get back at the kids than telling our teacher." Her classmates Joanna Miller added, "It's easier when we have court, because the children who give punishments understand what you did better."

Fire station site OK'd

PLYMOUTH TOWNSHIP- A land parcel on Wilcox, east of the Lakepointe Branch of the Detroit Bank and Trust, is now the official site of the township's proposed new fire station. The township board of trustees called a special meeting to officially sanction the site, proposed as the new home for the fire station on Schoolcraft. It gave Supervisor J. D. McLaren permission to sign a contract with the Michigan State Highway Commission to purchase the land and build a "replacement" facility.

The Highway Commission is covering land acquisition and construction costs, according to Clerk Helen Richardson, since the Schoolcraft post will be torn down to make way for the expressway.

"Before they could proceed with anything, we had to sign the contract," Mrs. Richardson explained. The township had considered two other sites, Mrs. Richardson said, but discarded them because of the absence of utilities.

Although the Highway Commission will finance a replacement facility, the township may have to dip into its own funds, if the board decides to build a larger facility than the present Schoolcraft station.

"We're talking about an expanded facility," said Mrs. Richardson, "but we're just talking. If we could scrape up the money. I'd say we'd expand

According to Mrs. Richardson, the township will have to advertise for construction bids.

"I have no idea when that will be." she said. "I would hope this whole thing would be behind us in a year. But you never know."

In December, township officials feared a clause in the deed of Detroit Bank and Trust, requiring adjacent buildings to form no obstructions to the bank's visibility, would force alterations in the station's design and placement on the Wilcox site.

Mrs. Richardson said the matter has been resolved.

As of Thursday night, Mrs. Dolinski said she was sure her son was safe, and said she was reasonably sure he was not aboard the Air Force plane which crashed with 243 Vietnamese children aboard. But she was unable to send cables on Friday.

1974 housing continued decline in 1974 for new housing construction in southeast Michigan slumped by almost 38 per cent below 1973's achieve-Thent

That report has been issued by the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG).

The decline marks the third consecutive year new housing activity has dropped in the region. It is believed to be the lowest decline reported in 20 years, according to SEMCOG's report entitled "1974 Residential Construction in Southeast Michigan."

PERMITS WERE issued last year for construction of 22,238 new dwelling units.

This included single-family, twofamily, and multifamily housing units throughout the seven-county region of Wayne, Oakland, Washtenaw, Macomb, Livingston, Monroe and St. Clair counties.

In 1973, permits were issued in the same area for 35,632 new dwelling units.

"The primary cause of the continuous sharp decline in housing starts in 1974 was the rapidly rising prime interest rate during the first six months," the report states.

"Other factors which appear to have affected the housing market last year were the energy crisis, shortgage of building materials, and the economic recession."

ALL COUNTIES, except Monroe, experienced sharp declines in permits issued, with Wayne and Macomb showing the sharpest drops.

Wayne was down some 47 per cent and Macomb dropped by more than 42 per cent over 1973.

Monroe's increase of nearly 29 per cent above 1973 was attributed to the development of several multifamily housing sites in Frenchtown Township. In this county, permits were issued for some 1,323 new dwelling units during 1974, compared to permits issued for 1,027 new units in 1973. Although down from its 1973 figure

Cheerleaders plan activities for next year

Schoolcraft's basketball team finished the season 16-11 (13 more victories than last year) with five pretty and spirited cheerleaders figuring in its success.

For next fall the cheerleaders are planning new activities to generate a more active club. Such activities will include sponsoring dances and supporting athletic functions by encouraging more involvement and participation of the student body.

Coached by part-time psychology instructor Gina Smith, the squad this year included Captain Kyra Turner and Sally Pepera of Garden City, Co-Captain Cathy Clark and Patty King of Livonia, and Diane Leftwich of Westland.

'There has been a tremendous rape of trees in the township'

By RICHARD GOLD

6A(P,C)

CANTON-Treasurer Carl Parsell wants to"put Canton Township on the map." He thinks it can be done by putting trees in the ground, and at the next board meeting, April 8 he will ask that a tree ordinance be adopted. Although the ordinance is not yet drafted, Parsell says it will include three sections: one to preserve trees already in the ground, one to make provisions for trees to be planted in future subdivisions, and a final section that will name all future subdivisions after the species of tree planted in it. He said, "We have acquired copies of various ordinances from nearby municipalities, and we have studied them. We also have a model ordinance from the State Department of Natural Resources (DNR). The heart of our ordinance will come from the DNR text, but we will incorporate some variations from the Ann Arbor ordinance."

He added, "We want not only to preserve what we have, but add trees as the township expands so the trees, subdivisions and township may grow together."

The treasurer commented that the last thing a potential homeowner thinks about when purchasing a new house is trees. He explained, "They'll sink a lot of money into the house and the grass and the landscaping, but the first thing to get cut from the budget are trees. Maybe five or 10 years later, the homeowner will plant a tree when he gets the money. Well, the tree should go in before the grass."

Parsell will ask that the ordinance force future builders to plant trees in every lot. He said, "We want sizable trees put in right away. We realize that the cost of this will be transferred to the purchaser, but it is the only way we can get the trees in before the subdivision gets built up and occupied." Parsell also wants to see part of the ordinance include a section stating that developers cannot remove a tree without planting a similar one somewhere else, "either in the subdivision or in the township recreation areas." He added, "There has been a tremendous rape of the trees in this township in the last few years. Builders and developers have destroyed too many. Maybe this way we get some back.'

The DNR model, on which the Canton ordinance will be based, says the ordinances are valuable because they "control problems of flooding, soil conservation, air pollution and noise." It specifically says that it shall be unlawful to:

permit.

• Break, injure mutilate kill or destroy any tree or shrub or permit any fire to injure any portion of any tree or shrub.

•Permit any toxic chemical to seep, drain, or to be emptied on or about a tree or shrub.

•Fail to erect a suitable protective barrier around trees or shrubs apt to be injured during any building operation.

• Fail to repair or stop any leak existing or occurring in any gas pipe or main within a 40-foot radius of a tree. Knowingly permit any electrical wire to come into contact with any tree or shrub.

•Excavate any ditches, tunnels, trenches, or lay any drive within a radius of 15 feet from any tree or shrub without a permit.

A section on subdivision planting est ordinance we can."

•Fasten any sign to a tree without suggests that at least one tree be planted on every lot under 75 feet and at least two trees be planted on every lot over 75 feet where new homes are under construction. Houses built on corner lots should have trees planted on each street.

However, trees that are considered a public nuisance or interfere with the use of streets, parks or public improvements could be declared a nuisance and would not be subject to the ordinance.

The DNR ordinance also says that residents who are affected by the ordinance may appeal any problems to the board of appeals and may be granted variances.

Parsell explained that while he would like to see most of the provisions of the DNR ordinance enacted, it may not be possible. He said, "We'll try to push through the strong-

Incumbent trustee Ronald Cowden of Livonia will seek re-election to the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees in the district's June 9 election.

In announcing his candidacy, Cowden emphasized the importance of professional knowledge and experience in dealing with the problems of education.

"Because of our tight economy and Schoolcraft's nearness, more and more students are availing themselves of our community college offerings. It is important that we meet their vocational and academic needs as well as providing community services for all our residents."

COWDEN SAYS one of his goals as trustee is to evaluate Schoolcraft programs to keep them relevant to the changing world.

Other goals the candidate listed are: insuring the programs of students transferring to four-year colleges and universities; emphasizing growth on vocational education; providing financial accountability with balanced budgets; and developing the child development center in conjunction with Wayne State University to benefit Schoolcraft College residents.

Cowden was elected to a two year term on the board in 1973. Besides his seat, voters will decide who will fill the spot on the board left by John LaRue's retirement as trustee. LaRue was up for election in '75 but is moving out-of-state.

The two winning candidates June 9 will serve six-year terms and the runner-up will receive a two-year term on the eight-member Schoolcraft board. Schoolcraft serves the local school districts of Livonia, Plymouth, Clarenceville, Garden City and Northville.

COWDEN WAS named as outstanding young man by the Livonia Jaycees this year for his commitment to young people and involvement in community activities.

A graduate of Livonia Bentley High, Cowden was recently appointed administrative assistant to the superintendent of Livonia School District. He has had experience as an assistant principal of Livonia Churchill High and director of student activities at Livonia Bentley.

During his term as Schoolcraft trustee, Cowden was appointed to and served as vice-chairman of a special State Board of Education task force to study external degrees. He has also been appointed by U.S. Rep. Marvin L. Esch (R-Ann Arbor), whose 2nd District includes Livonia and Plymouth, to serve on the congressman's committee to select candidates for the U.S. military academies.

Labor specialist followed by past

By JACKIE KLEIN

The nattily-dressed man in the gray flannel suit and expensive pink shirt, sitting in his opulent Southfield office, pays more money in yearly income taxes than most people see in a lifetime.

time. Yet, he says, if he had his 57 years to live over again, he'd come back bigger and better in one pair of pants.

"Hindsight is 20/20 vision," says Leonard Schultz, a slightly built, articulate, labor relations consultant who admits to having 10 strikes against him.

"I'd give every penny I own to wipe out my criminal record. But society doesn't accept ex-cons who want to come back and lead a decent life."

Schultz says he realizes he's thought of as a "sharpie" but he considers himself a homebody who loves to garden and work around his three-acre home in Franklin Village.

"I never want to be away from home and that's why my office has a comfortable atmosphere.

"Does this look like the office of a criminal?" he questions when he points out a small library filled with books on labor cases and law.

"I NEVER went to college, but I know more about labor relations than most lawyers. I work hard for my clients and I tell each one about my past record. I've never had one turn me down yet."

Schultz says he cringes when people point to him and whisper, "That's Lenny Schultz."

"I hate being a target for that kind of notoriety." he says. "I ean run away from it. but it hurts my boys. That's the price I'll have to keep paying until I die."

Schultz was born and raised in Detroit and attended Northern High School. His father was an alcoholic, and in the depression years. at the age of eight. Schultz sold newspapers to help the family.

"My mother sold chickens in the back yard and I flicked them myself so she could beat the competition and sell cheaper," he recalls. "I peddled fruits and vegetables in a horse and wagon for $1.50 a day.

wagon for $1.50 a day. "I took any job I could get, selling in drug and grocery stores 15 to 18 hours a day for $5 a week. On Saturdays. I mopped floors, washed windows, and sold sodas and hamburgers to college kids on Woodward and Wargot a maximum sentence of four and half to five years."

Schultz, who was married by that time, appealed to the Michigan Supreme Court and was out on bond for three years pending a decision. He says he lost his business paying for attorneys and "police shake-downs."

"It took every penny I had to fight that case. The cops were taking me to the station every 72 hours on one phony charge after the other so they could build up an arrest record. My new attorney finally convinced the judge that the original sentence was a mistake and I was placed on probation for three years."

bation for three years." Six months later, Schultz says, he gave a check to a friend, was charged with insufficient funds and violating probation and served 18 months of a maximum five-year jail sentence.

"I didn't have the money to cover the check and I was desperate. When I went to jail in 1947, my wife was six months pregnant. We had a son, Lowell, who's now 27.

"In 1949, I went to work in a clothing store and the manager bought a stolen television set. He wanted to sell it and be asked me to sign a receipt with a phony signature. The police caught the thieves and I was in the middle because I had a record."

IN 1950, the year his son Jeffrey was born, Schultz was arrested for larceny in a dwelling and recent possession of stolen goods. He says the larceny charge is misleading because he never broke into a home.

"I served 18 months on the larceny charge and concurrently I got 60 days in the house of correction on a charge of uttering and publishing. I had cashed a check for a friend and it was fraudulent. I wouldn't tell the police who gave me the check so I was convicted."

In 1959, Schultz went to work for the Fisher Body tank plant in Grand Blanc for $115 a week. The same year, he was charged with arson, given a $1,800 fine and three years probation.

"During those three years, I worked at the plant and became interested in union activities. I did some organizing for the Teamsters and opened a restaurant in the Alamo Hotel. I took correspondence courses in labor relations and studied 18 hours a day. That ended my criminal career.

"My first client was a nursing

Schultz later became the owner of a, number of nursing homes, which he says made him a rich man. He was a labor consultant in a downtown office for 10 years before he came to Southfield.

Schultz is upset because his sons were denied a liquor license for the Southfield Athletic Club because of his record.

"When the publicity about my background broke in the papers, I panicked because I didn't want the boys to know," he said. "But Jeff and Lowell told me they had known for years and didn't want to hurt me by telling me they knew. They took a lot of static in school and Lowell, who had 16 hours in law school, was harassed until he was forced to quit."

ROBERT L. ISRAEL of Livonia, senior vice president in charge of the commercial loan, installment loan and mortgage departments of Michigan NationaBank West Metro, has been appointed to the board of directors of West Metro. A graduate of Western Michigan University, his previous banking experience was with American National Bank of Kalamazoo, bank examiner for the comptroller of the currency, and vice president of Michigan National Bank Oakland.

"I couldn't care less about a liquor license, but I don't see why my boys, should be penalized because of me. I loaned them money to go into business like any father would. But I volunteered to have the notes changed to unsecured notes so I couldn't take possession of the club if the boys didn't pay me back.

"THEY'RE OPERATING a separate corporation and I'm not involved. They each invested $15,000 in stock, money they made in the nursing home, and wedding and Bar Mitzvah gifts."

Schultz insists he never knew alleged underworld figure Tony Giacaloni until he became a member of the Athletic Club. Giacaloni has since moved to Florida.

"Giacaloni brought three guys into the club and when their memberships expired, they didn't rejoin," he says. "Vito Giacalono is a member but he seldom comes. And this is what gave the club and my boys bad publicity."

Schultz, labor relations consultant for Joshua Doore Inc., says the club got more adverse publicity when the furniture company's board chairman Harvey Leach was murdered last March.

"I have two clean sons and the liquor license is a matter of principle," he said. "I've been clean for 15 years, given money to charity, and I've paid my debt to society. I came out of jail with $7 and I wanted to go straight to the Detroit River and jump. Do the boys have to suffer for my mistakes until I die?"

SCHULTZ MANAGED to get through high school but he couldn't afford to go to college. He always wanted to be an attorney but he settled for working at Federal's Department Store for a weekly salary of $18. He then went to work in a pawn shop and later opened his own in 1940.

"That was my Waterloo," he admits. "I was probably the youngest pawnbroker in the country. I started with $3,000 in savings and I did well until some old friends came in and sold stolen merchandise.

"They got caught and confessed they sold the stuff to me. Actually, I was downtown at the time and my sister was in charge of the store. I doubt if the value of the stolen clothes and cheap furs exceeded $50."

Schultz says he didn't know the package was under the counter when police officers came and searched the store. But he was charged with receiving stolen property and convicted.

THE CITADELLE is at an eleva-mountain climb on horseback to the historic Citadelle.

On the highest peak, La Ferriere, the monument is visible by land and air, General Henry Christophe built the Citadelle under the direction of General Dessalines, after Haiti's independence was declared in 1804. It has been called the eighth wonder of the world.

Our group of 20 Nomads had signed up for a side trip to the Citadelle on a recent visit to Port-au-Prince, Haiti's catital city.

The Nomads, a metropolitan Detroit-based air travel club, arrived in Palace. It was built by Christophe in Haiti aboard its own 90-passenger Lockheed Electra jet-prop. The club is in its 10th year, and this was its 262nd trip.

OUR ADVENTURE to the Citadette, and the Sans Souci Palace along the way, began when the tour bus from the hotel dropped us at the Port- simple homes of Haitians who, like au-Prince Airport.

There we boarded a 28-passenger DG-3, which touched down in Cap Haition. By car, we drove to the nearby village of Milot.

At Milot, we waited in an open courtyard for the promised donkeys, which turned out to be horses. Meanwhile, a hassle was going on between soldiers and some Haitians, while prisongrs gazed through windows of the local jail and townspeople looked on from the other side of the wall.

My horse was named Jocko, said one of the two boys who was to escort

ACTUALLY, one man did happen to ride on a donkey. He was heavy and said at the end of the trip he was glad to get off (we all were) because when the animal went up, he went down, and vice versa.

Besides the two boys for each rider, our group was accompanied by youngsters, some barefoot, carrying big coolers filled with beer and Cokes on their heads.

At the first stop, shortly after setting out, we got off our bumpy rides and toured the ruins of the San Souci 1807 and destroyed by earthquakes.

We continued our climb, along a path that would have been wide enough for a car, if the car could have made the ascent. The Citadelle reigned tantalizingly in the distance.

ALONG THE road, we passed our guides, were primitive and poverty-striken. The mountain's edge was close. Above and below we could see more mountains and valleys, purple peaks and an incredible expanse of sky.

At a rest stop, cooler carriers quickly popped the tops of beers, or Cokes. whichever you would buy for your boys. The path became increasingly rocky and steep.

On the way, the boys pointed out where breadfruit, avocados, bananas, coffee, cocoa and mangoes grew. Reaching the Citadelle at last, we tion of 2,845 feet. Christophe's tomb is in the center of the parade ground and bears the inscription, "I shall rise again from my ashes."

We walked among the ruins and right out onto the top and as close to the edge as you wanted to. Some accepted the challenge, others just waited safely back.

Back on our horses, we began the descent, which was more tricky and swift than the ascent, and took about an hour.

Both on the way up and coming down, the boys kept reminding us how they were "taking good care of you," in hopes of getting a bigger tip.

THE CLIMB seemed arduous to us, but our tour leader, Jerry, who said he has made 1,000 trips to the Citadelle, said the path has been cleared of much rubble.

Haitians were doing some road clearing as we climbed. Soon the ascent to the Citadelle will be even more accessible. (There is also another. shorter tour available, where you drive in closer and take donkeys to the top, the tour company director explained later at lunch in Cap Haitien. Now they tell us!)

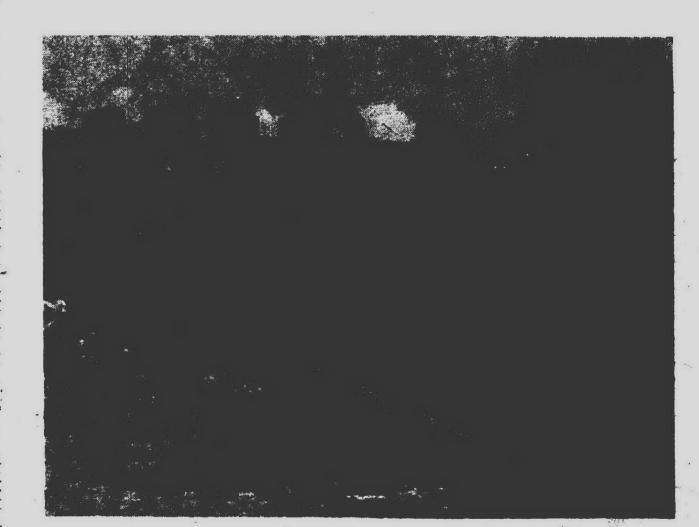

It is expected that before long major airlines will fly direct to Cap Haitien from Miami and other gateway cities.

A few days later, as our Nomads plane left Haiti, the pilot dipped down for a view of the Citadelle so photo buffs could get pictures. It was hard to believe I had been there.

A little snow and wind never hurt anyone

editorial opinion

Monday, April 7, 1975

There was a loud hue and cry from some sections of the Plymouth School District Thursday morning when the announcement was made that classes would be held as scheduled.

THE OBSERVER & BCCENTRIC

124(P)

Matter of fact the school offices on Harvey Street in Plymouth were swamped with calls in the early morning protesting having classes while many surrounding school districts closed for the day due to the high winds, blustering snows and / slippery roads.

Parents called Supt. John Hoben's office complaining about the situation. And would you believe it there were some calls from teachers who felt they should have the day off if other school districts closed buildings?

Of all persons, we wouldn't believe the teachers would want more days off after their strike last fall that closed Plymouth's schools for 15 days. But apparently there are some who do feel they should have another day off.

Most residents of the district weren't bothered at all. They figured that if such a storm had come in January or February it would have been accepted by all as just another winter snow. On that basis then, why should so many become "sissies" when we have another bad day? Just because it came in early April doesn't make it any worse than in mid-winter.

But getting back to the real meat of the situation, Supt. Hoben had to make the decision. He did early Thursday morning after getting a report from Transportation Director Bob Houghton that the roads were safe for the buses. Houghton made a test at around 2:30 a.m. and again at 5:30 a.m. and made his report.

Thus, with this information, the school chief quickly decided there was no need to close the Plymouth schools. It was a good decision since all of the buses but two made the trips without incidents and the two got stuck in the snow and were quickly freed.

A check of the schedules shows that buses were only a few minutes behind time in the morning and met all scheduled times in the afternoon.

In addition, the attendance reports indicate more than 70 per cent were in classes, much higher than Supt. Hoben had predicted in the early morning.

In addition, the closing would have cost the school district between $60,000 and $80,000. That's quite a wad for a district trying to cut everything to the bone to stay within the budget.

Despite the calls from a few frantic parents, we think Supt. Hoben made the proper decision.

After all he was advised by the transportation director that roads were safe, so what other excuse could there be for not opening? All of the youngsters had just come off a week's vacation on Monday and it hardly seems they would need more rest four days later.

The situation at Garden City was a bit differ-ent from that in Plymouth. There many of the teachers do not reside in the city and had to drive fairly long distances to schools. And some just couldn't get to Garden City due to the condition of the roads.

We give a tip of the topper to Hoben for his decision. It may not have appeared right to a few but it was right to the vast majority. -R.T. THOMPSON of board's position

Editor:

Safety is a strange thing to the Plymouth Community school board. If it's free, or containable with minimum effort, or if it can be tied to a millage issue in a school board election year to act as a sounding board for 'aspiring candidates... then it is duly recognized with much show and self-righteousness.

However, if the criteria are not met, then safety be damned, and full speed ahead.

This was the impression left after the school board meeting of March 24. In fact, they are so opposed to spending money to insure safety that they are willing to hire legal counsel (for whose fee funds become magically available).

At issue is the building of a temporary road for the construction of a school in Windsor Park. The initial plans included this road, but after much confusion and conflicting estimates from $20,000 to much, much more, the road was deleted.

The big snag, however, and the attendant need for legal counsel, is the fact that the Wayne County Road Commission will not approve the site plans if there is no construction road. It would be interesting to see a study of the safety implications to determine moral responsibility as well as legal responsibility. In view of the most recent indictment of school safety by the AAA report, it seems ironic that any hint of a safety problem would not give the school board cause for consideration.

In this age of citizen distrust of most governmental bodies (aftermath of Watergate), the erosion of faith in the school board in the future is a possibility. Next election, if they should win their legal right to avoid moral obligation, we may remember where the school board stands on safety... when it isn't politically advantageous. G. FEIERFEIL

Canton Township

Supports Canton on bridge lights, road

Editor:

I'm writing in regard to Mike Arnholt's editorial entitiled "Blaming others proves nothing" in the March 31 issue of the Observer & Eccentric.

I take exception to this editor writing such derogatory, condemning and critical editorials concerning our Canton Board on these two issues. It is clearly the school board's responsibility to provide schools for the children in the district and if building the school on the site in question means building a temporary road, it is the school board's responsibility, and no one else's.

The idea of Plymouth Township sharing the cost of the Joy Road overpass lights did not come from the Canton Board, but from the judge who ruled in the lawsuit. Therefore, why is it- wrong for the Canton Board attempting to carry out the judge's ruling? In my opinion, Mr. Arnholt's statement, "they try to place responsibility for the bridge lights equally with Plymouth Township" was completely unfair.

To use the prestige and the power of the Canton Observer & Eccentric editorial page to publish such a negative article is very disappointing to me. Not one positive or constructive idea or suggestion was in the article. Anyone can criticize, but it takes imagination to come up with a suggestion to a solution.

The Canton Board has enough problems and burdens without additional burden of criticism from our friendly local editor. With friends like him, who needs enemies?

It appears that Mr. Arnholt is more interested in making sure no headway is made in solving the problems than in trying to help find a solution. Could the fact he lives in Plymouth have some bearing on his position?

As a taxpayer of Canton and the Plymouth School District, I wholeheartedly support our township board's position on both of these issues.

No more colorful parade ever was held (save for St. Patrick's Day) than Owner Frank Navin leading that procession to the strains of Bill Finzel's band.

Arrival at the ball park signaled the start of several time honored ceremonies. First, Finzel's band, that had a contract for life with the Tigers, entertained with a concert along the first base line. Then the presentation of the floral horse shoe to the team manager (The Stroller still can see Ty Cobb accepting it with a grin-- the only time he grinned all day). The peak event came with the march to the flag pole with both teams taking part in raising the flag and standing at attention for the singing of the national anthem!

This done, all hands turned to the vicinity of home plate for the tossing of the first ball. And would you believe that at one time this was considered a political prank, especially if the VIP battery represented rival political parties. If the Republican pitcher threw wild it was claimed he did it to embarrass the Democratic catcher.

Opening Day was always great fun and the old park was done up in its best finery with bunting by the yard all over the place and the spectators dressed in their finest togs. In fact, it was a society event.

And above all, was the appearance of Owner Frank J. Navin, the shrewdest owner the Tigers ever have had. With his shiny bald pate he was the cynosure of all eyes as he viewed the proceedings with the same enthusiasm as a father watching his children at play-- until the game started. Then he was the steely-eyed, cold blooded gambler who calmly watched every move without comment.

And who ever could forget Ty Cobb, the greatest Tiger of them all, striding to the plate swinging three bats. No player ever has done that since.

Well, Navin and Cobb, the great combination, have passed to the Great Beyond and now Opening Days never seem the same.

There still will be one link with the past when Charley Gehringer, the peerless second baseman of the pennant winning team in 1934, takes his seat.

He'll bring back memories of the days when Mickey Cochrane drove the pennant after a wait of 25 yearsand the Old Timers still will be seeing Cochrane scoring the winning run in the 1935 world series against the Chicago Cubs to set off one of the wildest celebrations the area ever has known. That, alone, will make attending the opening game worthwhile.

Borgess High senior in running for top national DAR award

Cecilia Wright, Bishop Borgess senior who is honor student, yearbook coeditor and star of school musicals, also could become top Good Citizen in the nation for the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Miss Wright, better known as Sally to family and friends, received the Good Citizen award for her school this year from the DAR John Sackett chapter. Then last week she was selected from among 12 finalists as 1975 Good Citizen of Michigan.

questionnaire she filled out have gone to DAR national headquarters in Washington.

If chosen from among the rest of the state winners, she would be invited to attend the DAR's 84th Continental Congress April 14 to 17 in Washington and would receive a $1,000 scholarship.

MISS WRIGHT, already winner of a scholarship grant to study occupational therapy and art at Eastern Michigan University, had to miss a couple of rehearsals of the Borgess production of "The King and I" in order to attend the luncheon the Michigan DAR gave for its state finalists in the Pantlind Hotel in Grand Rapids. Then, after winning the big prize, she and her parents were snowbound in Western Michigan for another day, so the production had to get along Now her school transcript and the without its Anna. Miss Wright also was Nancy in "Oliver," the Borgess 1974 musical.

> "The King and I" will be given the next two weekends.

Attending the luncheon with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Wright of Detroit, she said she knew she'd won because of the way the finalists were introduced.

"I was last, just like Miss America," she said.

For being Michigan's top Good Citizen, she received savings bonds for $100 and $50. The other finalists were awarded $25 bonds.

SELECTIONS WERE MADE on the basis of school records and the answers the girls gave about their interpretation of the four criteria for Good Citizen awards-dependability, leadership, service and patriotism.

One question, Miss Wright remembered, had to do with the girls' ideas on what they could do to make better the society of the future.

"I said I thought the world had to improve through its people," she said, "so the most important thing I can do is resolve to be a good mother." Wright said the example her own par- and Mrs. Harry Paulger.

Doing it well requires an ever-increasing store of knowledge as innovations affecting the food industry keep finding their way to the grocery shelves.

Today's shopper needs to know about the new nutritional labels on food products-when to look for them. how to make comparisons, how to assess relative values of the ingredients listed.

She must be knowledgeable about what additives are present in the foods she puts into her cart and whether these are valuable or harmful. And soon, if present thinking of food retailers continues, she may find she needs to do some careful checking

Drug Administration gives the family food shopper both a challenge and a great aid in her effort to buy nutrition instead of just something to eat.

Known as nutrition labeling, it will take full effect July 1, after a sixmonth delay, and it has been described by Dr. Alexander M. Schmidt, U.S. commissioner of food and drugs, as "a landmark along the path of modern regulatory initiatives."

What it does is require that all products which make nutritional claims or have added nutrients state clearly on the labels how many servings are in the container and the contents of each serving in calories, protein, carbohydrates and fat.

In addition, it requires that the labels list the vitamins an minerals present, and, for each, the percentage of the U.S. Recommended Daily Allowance (RDA) contained in each serv-

IT COMES OUT to a row of figures that can be confusing or invaluable, depending on how you look at them. Stop, for instance, by the shelves of cereals with their array of varieties. Nearly all cereals bear the nutritional labels, since nearly all lay claim to being body-builders. Cereal labels, in addition to listing ingredients in each serving of the package contents, include a listing of the same serving if half a cup of whole milk is added.

The variations from brand to brand can be interesting for the discerning shopper.

Two relatively-new products, advertised as all natural, nothing artificial added, cost 85 and 86 cents for a 16ounce box, and each one-ounce serving has 130 calories and three grams of protein and of carbohydrates. Compare that with an instant cereal, 54 cents, 18 ounces, 110 calories, four grams of protein.

Two other products, one sweetened are 110 calories per serving without milk, and both are vitamin fortified. The difference here is in cost, the unsweetened one is 64 cents for a 15ounce box and the sweetened is 69 cents for eight ounces.

OTHER SHELVES bring the shopper to more consumer knowledge. One orange drink is 100 calories for six ounces and is fortified with 100-per cent of the RDA of Vitamin C and less than two per cent of the RDA for other ingredients including as Vitamin A. It costs 52 cents for 46 ounces.

Another, 39 cents for 20 ounces, has 90 calories and 50 per cent RDA in each six-ounce serving.

You may need a calculator, but it's quite possible to determine how to come out with the most nutrition and least calories for the least money.

THE RDA LISTINGS may need a word of explanation. The FDA has exment but must be labeled and marketed as a drug.

THE REASON for this regulation. one nutritionist pointed out, is that it's; very possible to "over-vitaminize."

"Vitamins A, D, E and K are fat-soluble," she said, "so they store up and build up in the system. This is not true of C and B, but the evidence is they do not do a lot of good in excessive quantities."

Shoppers should also be wary in choosing dietetic products. One such, can of pineapple slices has a calorie listing higher than one not marked" dietary, yet the cost is higher.

However, several cans of diet juices. list caloric amounts definitely lower than regular fruit juices. It's label reading that shows which is the better, buy for the calorie-counter.

SO FAR, THE LABELING requirement applies only to certain foods those with nutritional claims or addi-,, tives-but the hope is that the food industry will use the labeling for many... more.

There is some shelf evidence that this is happening. National brands now have labels on products like canned fruits, vegetables and juices as.id well as cereals and others that are read quired to be labeled.

Comparable house brands, at this point, in general do not bear nutritional labels.

More information about the new labeling is available from the Detroit Consumer Affairs Officer, U.S. Food and Drug Administration, 1560 E. Jefferson, Detroit, 48207.

Autocross craze booms at Schoolcraft College

Gace every month, $5 fanatics can stock and a modified division." be seen driving between traffic cones at Dreakneck speed on the parking lot of Schoolcraft College in Livonia.

What's more, the avid group, known as- the Schoolcraft Sportcar Club, seand to enjoy the relatively new sport . known as autocross.

Autocross is a form of automobile racing wherein cars with a wheelbase smaller than 10 feet maneuver between pylons spaced at varying distances. The object is to drive the course as quickly as possible without upsetting the pylons.

All of which may sound easy, but according to club president Randy Anderson, the sport has become so competitive and specialized that now national championships are held in 20 different classes each year.

"The classes are determined primarily by the weight of the car, wheelbase, engine size and suspension. Tire size is critical and each class has a

ACCORDING TO ANDERSON, the sport's popularity is booming and each event draws more people than the previous one with up to 100 entries per event.

"Autocross is a hobby for a lot of people. For others, it's a way to get into auto racing. For the last race, we went six hours with the cars running more or less one after another. It was a long day." he said.

Part of the reason for the sport's popularity is that the average small car can be modified in engine size and suspension and turned into a fine autocross model.

"While we have a lot of sports cars involved in the racing, there are always some smaller 'family' cars involved."

The group awards trophies for every class in which there are more than three entries with the money coming from the entry fees. Fees are $4 for non-members.

Although the club is listed as a student activity, it is open to all who wish to join according to Anderson. "Most of our members do not go to Schoolcraft anymore. A lot are former students and some have been members since the club was formed in 1967."

THE COURSE IS located in the north parking lot of the school which is located on Haggerty Road between Six and Seven Mile. It usually takes between 35-50 seconds to maneuver the course.

"It really doesn't look that big, put if you stretch it out it will measure about ¼ of a mile. We change the locations of the pylons within certain limitations for every race to provide diversification," said Anderson.

Those interested in learning more about the sport are encouraged to contact the office of Student Activities at Schoolcraft.

Tiger opener in doubt; field termed unplayable

The man responsible for getting the field at Tiger Stadium in shape for the scheduled opener tommorow cast doubt as to whether the field could be played upon late Friday.

"Unless we get an immediate warming trend, I believe the field will be unplayable," said Ralph Snyder; field manager at the stadium.

"There's lots of ice and snow on the field right now and unless we get some cooperation from mother nature, we won't be able to play." Snyder said the major problem was p.m. getting the outfield in shape.

"Right now we're just letting the sun shine on the outfield. The infield is ready because we've had the tarp on it. We spent most of the day shoveling the ice and snow off the tarp and we'll remove it for a while tommorow if the weather is allright."

Turf Tip, Quip,

By Doc Minard

The after effects of Thursday's blustering snowstorm were felt at the Detroit Race Course Friday when several of the top jockeys refused to ride on the grounds the track was too dan- reason for dropping the afternoon gerous.

The day's program started 27 minutes late but management took less time between races and eventually completed the nine race program.

Racing Director Tom Dorsey had some of the trainers check the track conditions on the backstretch, where the riders were complaining about ice under the surface. The trainers expressed thoughts the track was muddy and slippery but not too dangerous for racing. That was the report from the track's publicity department.

Seems like there is no end to problems when a snowstorm hits unexpectedly. Both the Detroit Race Course and Northville Downs were dark Thursday.

The DRC closed due to track conditions and inability to clear the parking lot because of the high winds which made it almost impossible to eliminate snow drifts.

Northville was dark because Racing Secretary Harry Peterson learned he had some 40 ship-in horses on the Thursday card and the trainers couldn't get in from places as Jackson Fowlerville, Adrian and such points.

So putting it bluntly, Peterson pointed out "We have to have horses for races. No horses, no races and that appears to be the story this time."

THERE WAS SOME talk of asking the racing commissioner for permission to hold a matinee program on Monday and give the horsemen a chance to get in an additional race before the start of activities at Hazel Park on Wednesday. But it was dropped when the question arose about whether the thoroughbred tracks might not ask a similar question sometime with a request for night races.

It would have been a natural for Northville to have matinee and night programs since the DRC is dark on Mondays. But then there is a valid card.

'Tis well known that the thoroughbreds would like to get permission for night races. Just a wee opening such as the suggested matinee-night program could open the door. And what a thing that would be with night harness racing on one side of metropolitan Detroit and night thoroughbred races on the other.

We might suggest that unless there is a move by the legislature to clearly define when the runners can go and when the pacers and trotters should race... there is a distinct possibility of a big fight for racing dates and times. Northville Downs concludes its most successful winter season in history with all-time records for wagering and attendance.

The 'Downs did take a whipping Wednesday night when it raced in spite of high winds, a sleeting rain and miserable driving conditions after the races. The handle and turnstile count were far below normal figures. Then came a dark Thursday with the prospects of the biggest weekend ever on Friday and Saturday.

The figures for those nights were not available when this was written Saturdy morning.

HAZEL PARK OPENS its 82 night season Wednesday and all indications point to an even better meeting than the all-time record maker of 1974. Racing Secretary Bill Connors reports many top stables already on the grounds with more expected from California and Florida within a week or 10 davs.

Connors knew he was going to have some excellent stables on hand since most of the better pacers and trotters were shipped to Hazel Park when the grandstand fire forced Windsor to close two weeks early.

THEN TOO, many stables shipped across town from Northville Downs including such powerful outfits as Bob Kalish, Jim Merriman, Wally and Don McIlmurray, Jim McGarty and Ted Smith.

THE DRC STAKES program will be one of the richest in several seasons. headed by the $100,000 Michigan Mile. The colorful Michigan futurity, for Michiganbred two-year-olds, is heading for a purse of $50,000 or more. The Dowling Memorial and Frontier Handicap will settle somewhere between $40,000 and $50,000. The Michigan Oaks has a prediction of $40,000 plus and the revival of the Milette Stake for fillies and mares will be at $35,000.

The DRC management announced the fourth purse increase in less than a month when it boosted the minimum to $2,800, the Saturday features to $15,000 and those on Sundays to $10,000.

The hikes range mainly between $100 and $300. The minimum, by the way, never reached $2,500 last season.

FIRST AID

FIRST AID means exactly that...emergency aid until medical attention can be obtained. No plans an accident: they just happen. But, when an accident occurs, it's comforting to know someone near knows emergency first aid.

WE TRAIN groups of employees from the stores, office and distribution centers. The course used in the American Red Cross multi-media first aid course. Participants in the course become certified first aiders.

Dan Crittenden, first ald instructor, checks a bandage on Phil Roehl, a Meijer truck driver.

DAN CRITTENDEN from the Grand Rapids Distribution Center, Loss Prevention Department, is our primary instructor. Four other certified instructors assist Dan with the classes.

THE 3 BASICS of emergency first aid are to (1) to stop bleeding (2) to start breathing, and (3) to treat for shock.

YOU'RE IN GOOD HANDS when you shop at Meijer. Added to the list of services available, we hope you never need emergency first aid. But...we're there when you need us. We're glad to be able to conduct classes in first aid with help from our local Red Cross. At, work or at home, you never know when an emergency procedure could save a life.

THE HUG OF LIFE

THE FIFTH MAJOR CAUSE of accidental deaths in the United States is choking to death on food and foreign substances. In a choking attack, the victim cannot speak, struggles from the lack of oxygen and turns pale, then blue. Death can occur in four minutes or less.

THE HUG OF LIFE or the HEIMLICH MANEUVER is a recently publicized technique to prevent people from choking to death. Developed by Dr. Henry Heimlich, director of surgery at Jewish Hospital, Cincinatti, Ohio, the technique forces the blocked matter from the windpipe. To use the HEIMLICH MANEUVER, grasp the victim from behind, with both arms around the victim's waist with one hand holding the other wrist, tug suddenly against the victim just below the ribs. The victim should be leaning forward from the waist.

THE "HUG" FORCES the diaphragm up, causes the lungs to compress and expel the matter from the windpipe.

AT MEIJER, we're pleased to present this emergency procedure, that might save a life.
