Board will seek bond, millage approval

By Margaret Neubacher
staff writer

The Plymouth-Canton Board of Education tentatively agreed Tuesday to ask voters to approve a $5 million bond issue this fall.

The decision came after a two-day board workshop where goals and objectives for the upcoming school year were discussed.

Monies raised by a bond issue would be earmarked for what is broadly stated as "equipment needs."

Board members were given an exhaustive list of building, equipment and supply needs compiled by teachers and administrators throughout the district.

"These are things that we'd be unable to do within the general operating budget," said Dr. John Hoben, superintendent.

Some of the items needed are: student furniture; renovations for Husling, Field and Erickson; computers; buses; and a management information system.

It's likely the actual bond issue request would be less than $5 million, according to Hoben.

"As much as $300,000 to $400,000 of items on this list would not qualify for purchase with bond monies," Hoben said.

The "wish list" will be reviewed by state school administrators in Lansing before a final bond figure is set.

THE DISTRICT would ask for a 18-year repayment program which would cost taxpayers about 0.64 of a mill. This millage would be added to the district's debt retirement levy of 1.74 mills.

"A bond will take the strain off the operating budget," said Dr. E.J. McClendon, trustee, who added the people's investment in the schools is falling and needs to be maintained.

"This is a one-shot deal to replenish much-needed items," Hoben said.

If passed bond monies would be budgeted through 1987, which would provide adequate time to complete refurbishing projects and purchase equipment.

The "wish list" compiled by teachers and administrators breaks down as follows: $347,000 is needed at the elementary level; middle schools are requesting $369,000; the high schools need $751,000; and central services are asking for $3,292,950 over the next four years.

When discussion turned to millage, board members agreed they had no choice but to ask voters again to approve a 1.74-mill increase.

Voters turned down this request in June's school election.

"The millage increase represents the amount of money we need to come out with a zero fund balance at the end of 1985-86," Hoben said.

"I think it's important that voters know if the millage is not passed now, we'll have to double the request next year to make ends meet," said Elaine Kirchgatter, board secretary.

Dr. Hoben pointed out that 8.6 mills will be coming up for renewal next spring.

BOARD TREASURER Thomas Yack asked how to build support for a bond and millage request and wondered if there was time to do so before an October election.

"Instead of a quiet approach, we have to go out and thunder," said Hoben. "In the last election we didn't work the plan; time got away from us. On May 18 we were holding an election organization committee meeting — that's too late," said Hoben, who admitted hindsight is always 20-20.

Nancy Quinn, a newly elected board member, suggested the millage was defeated in part because the schools were not specific enough in their request.

"There is never a good time to go for a millage," Hoben said. "We just aren't getting our message out that we have needs."

"In every building I've visited, staff have shown me things they need — I mean basic equipment to teach with," said McClendon.

Hoben said that close to 50 percent of all elementary school fathers are not registered to vote.

"This makes it a two-step campaign," said Les Walker, another new board member. "We have to get them registered and get them out to vote."

The board resolved to begin a series of community coffees in August to get some dialogue going about education in the Plymouth-Canton school district.

Plans nixed on soccer facility

By Gary M. Cates
staff writer

A proposed indoor soccer facility, planned for excess city land near the DPW yard, has been given the boot.

All plans for the Plymouth Towne Club, a proposed 27,000-square-foot project expected to cost more than $700,000, have been scrapped, according to City Manager Henry Graper.

"What happened is that the law was changed," Graper said.

Developers hoped to finance the project through local Economic Development Corp. (EDC) bonds. But Congress recently changed the rules for the national program which provided tax-free bonding for local projects.

According to Graper, Congress approved an amendment limiting the amount of bonds which can be sold for recreational projects. Only 25 percent of a bond issue can be used for such purposes, he said.

Reportedly the soccer-facility developers, headed by attorney John Thomas of Plymouth, needed the EDC bonding, as well as other incentives such as property tax abatement, to build. The Plymouth City Commission already had approved 12 years of 50-percent property tax abatement for the proposed development.

The commission was scheduled to act on the EDC request at its July 2 meeting. But the request was taken off the agenda at the last minute, in view of the congressional action.

"We probably would have been grandfathered in if we were at the point of delivering bonds," Graper said. But the city wasn't that far along with the project.

"We are very disappointed," he said. "The land now goes back up for sale." The city-owned property is zoned light industrial.

Thomas earlier said the developers planned to deed the land and building back to the city after the debt was paid.

Under that agreement, the city could have continued to use the building as a soccer facility, sell it for industrial use, or do whatever it chose.

If the project would have paid for itself, through user fees, Graper said the city could have been handed a facility worth about $1.5 million.

The project would have created about 15 construction jobs and some 10 permanent jobs.

Salvation Army leader welcomed

Lieut. Larry Manzella, new leader of the Salvation Army in Plymouth, says he was amazed by the welcome he received upon arriving in town.

"I always have liked Plymouth," he said, "but I never expected to be greeted the way my family and I have been since we took over."

"The entire set-up has amazed me and I know I will be real happy to serve here."

While the officers placed in charge of a unit never know how long they will remain in any place, he wishes he could remain as long as his predecessor, Capt. William Harfoot, who served here eight years.

The new leader not only was pleased with his welcome, but with the facilities and the program that has been scheduled.

He added that there was no reason why he couldn't succeed with the facilities that have been available since the Army purchased the old church on S. Main and converted it to new Salvation Army headquarters.

Before being assigned to Plymouth,

Lt. Manzella served three years in Warren which was his first assignment as a Salvation Army officer. During that time he had heard of the Plymouth corps and its activity and wondered if he ever could get a charge like that.

Now that he has received it he admits to being overwhelmed.

"I have been taken around the city and my directors have left little undone to get me acquainted. I even got to speak at the dedication of the new parking deck and have received invitations to the luncheon clubs. Really, I am just overwhelmed."

Manzella actually grew up in the Salvation Army as his grandmother was an officer. He trained at the Chicago headquarters where he lived on campus for two years. It was there he met his wife, Jean.

When his training was completed, he was assigned to Warren and now to Plymouth.

"I find that Plymouth is much closer knit than Warren, and if our first few days here is any criterion we will have an enjoyable and satisfying time here."

2 retailers plan downtown openings

Two new stores will open soon on Plymouth's Main Street.

Set to open Sept. 1 in Plymouth Park Center is a 2,400-square-foot Little Professor book store. The lease for the store was signed June 30 between leasing agent James McKeon and co-owner Jacqueline Powers, a Dearborn Heights resident.

On Friday, McKeon signed another lease with Bill and Carol Mason for a women's fashion and accessory store for the remaining space in the center, formerly occupied by Plymouth Furniture and, before that, Kresge's.

Other Masons clothing stores can be found at 12 Oaks Mall, Fairlane, and in Birmingham, Troy, and the Detroit Renaissance Center.

Masons plans to open the 1,500-square-foot Plymouth store Sept. 1, according to Bill Mason.

In a decision which disappointed many downtown merchants, Winkelman's last month decided not to open a store in the space now being leased to the book store and the clothier.

McKeon had been negotiating with Winkelman's for months, had gotten a verbal agreement and was close to signing final papers when the company decided against coming to Plymouth.

Powers said she and her husband, Leo, now are house-hunting in Plymouth.

"We want to work with the town, live there and become a part of it," she said. She said the book store franchise is her first business venture.

"I always wanted a book store," she said. "But it's not a romantic business where you stand on a ladder and put books away. It's a tough business."

The Masons started their first clothing store in 1977. They currently have five locations and plan on opening another besides the Plymouth store.

The stores are unlike most clothiers in that Masons encourages women to bring in wardrobe items they already own. Masons personnel then assist the customer in selecting accessory items for their wardrobe.

Plymouth was up for balloons

Thursday, July 12, 1984 O&E

(P1A)

By Gary M. Cates
staff writer

Praises for volunteers rang out this week following the most successful Mayflower Hotel Hot Air Balloon Festival in the event's four-year history.

Despite cooler temperatures Friday night, the weekend festival brought an estimated 150,000 to 200,000 people into Plymouth and Plymouth Township.

"You can only handle a crowd like that if you have traffic control and buses," said Henry Graper, Plymouth's city manager. "I think what the township did with the traffic and the buses was just terrific. The CSOs (Community Service Officers) did a fantastic job."

Besides the CSOs, volunteers from the local PACT and REACT organizations assisted in traffic control and parking. Their job was made easier in part by the use of a shuttle bus system which transported festival-goers from the Ford Sheldon plant parking lot to the balloon launch site at the Plymouth Township Park on Ann Arbor Trail.

"It was because of the volunteers that everything went so smoothly," said Carl Berry, Plymouth Township police chief. "The volunteers were excellent representatives of the community."

"With the volunteers and the bus drivers we stressed being friendly and courteous. They were, and because of that the crowd was in a very festive mood and we had no problems," Berry said.

The praise for volunteers was echoed by Plymouth Township Supervisor Maurice Breen and Plymouth Police Chief Ralph White. Both cited the volunteer organizations and traffic planning as key elements to a successful weekend.

EQUALLY EXCITED about the outcome was Scott Lorenz, Mayflower Hotel general manager and festival sponsor.

Although it was "too windy" Friday night, Lorenz said the weather Saturday and Sunday was "just super. You couldn't ask for much better weather."

Some 45 balloon pilots took to the sky for the four racing events during the weekend.

The winner in the postponed American Airlines race was Ron McBurny, who piloted the Eastern Airlines-sponsored balloon (Lime Twist). The race was scheduled for Friday, but winds delayed it until Saturday.

McBurny won two American Airlines tickets.

Then on Saturday, the American Airlines-sponsored balloon rallied to win the Eastern Airlines race. The American Airlines pilot was D.J. Ostrand, who won two Eastern Airlines tickets.

Lorenz was the winner in the British Airways race, but the two airline tickets to London went to second-place finisher Robin Green, who piloted the Pugh-Cannon Properties balloon.

Because he is the sponsor of the event, Lorenz said it "wouldn't look too good if I would have taken the tickets."

"It was kinda rough, but after much thought I decided I won't be going to London," he said jokingly.

WHILE THE pilots flew, spectators flooded local businesses and the Artfest in Kellogg Park.

"It was phenomenal," said Fred Hill, owner of the John Smith clothing shop on Main Street.

A traditional event during the festival is an "Inflation Sale" in downtown Plymouth held early Saturday morning.

"In past balloon festivals we usually were busy from five to six. This year we were busy all day long," said Hill, who along with his employees came to work in pajamas.

"Usually our busiest days are during the sidewalk sale, but this weekend was that kind of traffic through the store," he said.

Likewise artists in the Artfest reported terrific business.

"A lot of them told me they were sending back to their homes so they would have items to sell on Sunday," Graper said.

Artfest director Dianne Quinn said the weather helped the event.

"We had 93 artists and all did very well. They all were very happy," Quinn said.

"There will be more people in it next year. A lot of people have asked if they can participate," she said.

Balloon festival organizers also are counting on an even bigger and better event next year.

"This thing is just growing in quantum leaps. You really don't even know what type of factor for growth to use in planning for next year," Lorenz said.

Pilot Walter Noeske (above right) of Novi and Linda Rowland of Plymouth plot a course to fly over the park. Noeske's "Orange Crush" balloon (left) takes off Saturday evening from Salem Airport. Early birds (right) Courtney O'Grady, 5, of Wyandotte and Dawn Simon of Brownstown Township watch the balloons Sunday morning.

Several balloons take off Sunday morning from the Plymouth Township Park on Ann Arbor Trail. Some 45 balloon pilots were in town this weekend for the Mayflower Hotel Hot Air Balloon Festival.

From the air, balloon pilots flew over the park Saturday night as part of the Eastern Airlines race. The object was to drop a beanbag as close as they could to the cloth X below.

School board eyes busing cuts

The safety committee, in its report, stressed that some of its recommendations "were based on the availability of reasonably adequate walking areas rather than sidewalks." The committee considered, and rejected as not practical, a plan to offer temporary busing during bad weather only (January, February, March).

PRESENTLY ABOUT 1,500 students receive temporary busing, according to Dale Goby, director of transportation. If all 1,500 students walked to school, said Goby, the district probably could get by with five fewer buses on its routes.

"Getting students to school is not the responsibility of the school district," said Trustee Tom Yack while discussing the practice of temporary busing. "It is the responsibility of the parents to get students to school, and providing a safe way for students to walk to school is the responsibility of the municipality."

Yack suggested the board get to the point where it will eliminate all temporary busing, give the public plenty of advance notice and leave it up to residents to decide whether to provide sidewalks or other types of walkways.

"It's really up to the taxpayers to decide if they want to spend tax money busing students or building sidewalks. Personally, I'd rather education money be spent on educating students than on busing them."

In referring to the resistance from the townships to provide sidewalks, Yack added: "I find it fascinating that the new bank at Sheldon and Joy (in Canton) has made all site improvements now except for sidewalks."

Trustee Elaine Kirchgatter suggested the district may not want to make great efforts to get a walkway to Lowell since the board may discontinue the lease arrangement with Livonia because of declining enroll-

Yack said the district might find it more economical to continue leasing Lowell and close one of its own middle schools because of the great expense of busing Canton students to a middle school in Plymouth if Lowell were closed.

Yack said he sees the Lowell walkway as a high-priority item but the district's problem is that the property owners who would pay for the walkway are not residents of the school district.

Trustee E.J. McClendon suggested it might be cheaper for the district to provide the Lowell walkway itself rather than continuing to pay the expense of busing.

Trustee Dave Artley said there also was a problem walking to Lowell along the east side of Hix where there was a walkway. The walkway is seldom kept clear by property owners, Artley added, and does not provide any safety for students. This walkway is in Westland.

Fund begins campaign

The Plymouth Community Fund/United Way had its official kick-off this week.

The local campaign was launched Monday by the 1984 campaign chairman, 35th District Judge James N. Garber of Plymouth, who announced that this year's goal has been set at $365,000.

As announced earlier this year, Plymouth Community Fund/United Way has a new logo which will be appearing all around the community in connection with the fund-raising effort.

Garber stressed that the money designated for Plymouth Community Fund remains in the Plymouth community to support the local agencies and to benefit Plymouth residents.

In support of the Kick-Off, Yer Grampa's Moustache barbershop at 137 W. Liberty in Old Village is offering to split all proceeds (from new customers) with the Community Fund on a 50-50 basis now through July 25.

Greg Huddas, owner, said his shop (originally started by Eston "Curly" Gray in 1927) is the oldest barbershop in town and has retained its antique appearance over the years.

The shop offers discounts to senior citizens (male and female) before noon, and caters primarily to hair styling in the afternoon. To ensure that the proceeds are divided evenly, Huddas is asking that patrons bring with them a piece of paper containing their name and the date.

Europeans are anti-nuke bombs

To the editor:

I am writing to you from the peaceful environment of the small fishing village of Dordrecht, out nearest town being Plymouth Devon.

My wife, family and friends are greatly disturbed at the present world situation and the breaking off of all meaningful arms negotiations. The West is beginning the largest escalation of nuclear weapons in its history and the Soviets are beginning to respond.

Nuclear war is not just possible or even probable but, on present trends, is becoming inevitable. On our small island there is a total of 135 American military bases and facilities as well as our military establishment and in a future conflict our whole country would be completely destroyed.

There is alarm in Britain about the new generation of Cruise, Pershing II and Trident missiles. Pershing II stationed in West Germany can reach their target in eight minutes — that means that the Soviet nuclear button will be on hair target alert. Also Cruise can fly undetected under enemy radar, consequently the Soviets develop their own brand of these weapons and it becomes to each side's advantage to strike first.

The majority of European people oppose the deployment of these American nuclear weapons in Europe. Some 70 percent of Norwegians and 75 percent of the Dutch oppose these weapons. A million Sicilians have petitions against the Cruise facility at Comiso, Sicily. In Britain in a recent opinion poll in the "Guardian" by Marplan, 61 percent of the population disapprove of the deployment of Cruise missiles and only 27 percent are in favor.

On your President Reagan's recent visit to London more than 200,000 had a demonstration in Trafalgar Square to voice their opposition to the build-up of these American nuclear weapons in Britain and Europe.

We believe in democracy. But what else can we do than demonstrate again and again, in the polls and on the streets, that the majority of people in our countries do not want these missiles. We must now count on the help of the American people to make democracy work. The freeze movement in the U.S.A. supports our struggle to stop the new missiles, while also calling on the Soviet Union to reduce its intermediate-range missiles aimed at Europe.

We appeal to the American people to urge Congress to oppose the funding of testing, production, and deployment of Pershing II and Cruise missiles and to halt all efforts in their deployment.

Protesters set vigil

Anti-nuclear protesters announced they will hold a candlelight vigil at 8:30 today (Thursday) to express solidarity with five jailed demonstrators who have begun fasting.

They will march from the Oakland County Courthouse, 1200 N. Telegraph, Pontiac, to the jail a block away.

Marchers want to encourage a change of heart by Circuit Judge James S. Thorburn, who sentenced the five to civil contempt in refusing to obey a court order. They were ordered to cease trying to block the entrance of the Commerce Township plant of Williams International Inc., which produces parts for U.S. cruise missiles.

To "purge" themselves of contempt and win release, Thorburn said they could promise never to return to the Williams plant, on W. Maple west of Haggerty roads.

The five were sentenced June 11 and began their open-ended water fast July

5. They are: Mary Girard, 29, of Lansing; Pat Mentzer, 50, of Detroit; Sheila Gaine, 68, a nun in the order of the Immaculate Heart of Mary, Detroit; Bill Kellermann, 35, a Methodist minister from Detroit; and Margaret Dewey, a Dominican nun from Adrian.

Dewey has started a partial fast for health reasons.

A rally for peace

A peace rally was held in Kellogg Park in downtown Plymouth last Friday to protest the proliferation of nuclear weapons. Among the activities was a talk by Brian Larkin of the Committee for a Sane Nuclear Policy and painting of clown faces on children by Joan Pence, coordinator of the Peace Resource Center at Schoolcraft College. Shown with the sign above advocating a nuclear freeze is Marge Peters of Dearborn.

Lawmakers choke on no-smoking rule

"Except as otherwise provided . . . a person shall not smoke in a public place or at a meeting of a public body, except in a designated smoking area."

— House Bill 5210

SOUNDS NICE and simple, doesn't it? A person who wants to smoke — whether at work, shopping in stores, traveling in a public vehicle or attending a public meeting — will have to use a special area set aside for smokers.

Apparently, however, the fear of raising the ire of smokers has been enough to cause the state House to choke on the idea.

"It's stuck in committee," said state Rep. Justine Barns, D-Westland, who introduced the bill. "There aren't enough votes to get it out."

The little-noticed proposal was introduced last December, but Barns expects it's dead for this session. She said she will push it when the Legislature gets back to work in the fall.

We're counting on it.

Non-smokers subject to the thoughtless pollution of their puffing peers have rights, too. When smokers infringe on those rights, it's time to take action.

NON-SMOKERS subject to the thoughtless pollution of their puffing peers have rights, too. When smokers infringe on those rights, it's time to take action.

That's just what one Wayne-Westland school board member did when asthma prompted her to ask for a smoking ban in the meeting room. Now, several months after the burning issue was debated, the room is smog free, and smokers use the lobby to fend off a nicotine fix.

One observer predicted the ban would lead to shorter meetings. Although that hasn't happened yet, the prospect of shorter meetings alone would be reason enough to push for the legislation.

BUT THERE are plenty of more serious reasons to ban unlimited smoking. The past director of pulmonary medicine at Wayne County General Hospital noted that 90 percent of all his patients have diseases related to smoking, most of them lung cancer.

"Today there's no good treatment for lung cancer. For every one tumor we remove, 10 have spread," Dr. Ravi Krishnan said. He added that soon smoking will be the number one cause of cancer in women.

Smoke stinks. There's no other word for it.

If the smell could be confined to the personal space of the smoker, it wouldn't be such a problem.

Smoke can't be confined, however. It's particularly irritating to non-smokers, who are sensitive to the smell that lingers on everything from dirty ashtrays to clothing.

"We're not telling people not to smoke," said Barns. "We have no right to do that."

Barns described the ban as "preventative medicine," with the work place a good spot to begin.

ACTUALLY, BANS on smoking already exist outright in grocery stores, and smoking is limited in restaurants. Members of police associations and the chamber of commerce, whose opposition the bill has ignited, ought to take a look at how effective they are.

With the right attitude, the bans work. After a mild complaint to a butcher at a Southfield Great Scott, a cigar smoker oblivious to his odor was asked to douse his smoke. He complied.

Some restaurants — Denny's and Bill Knapp's come to mind — do a fine job of offering non-smoking areas.

"Change is traumatic," Barns admits. "Collectively, we have to do a massive bit of education."

If this bill is going to pass next year, non-smokers will have to get fired up enough to educate their legislators.

— Sandra Armbruster

A small step for equality

ONE SMALL step for equality was taken last week when the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that the Jaycees must accept women members. The court upheld a Minnesota public accommodations law that requires Jaycees to grant membership to women.

Michigan has such a law. At a national convention later this year, the Jaycees are expected to change their rules to abide by the Supreme Court decision. By the end of this year, your local Jaycees chapter may include women.

It's long overdue. It's a shame it takes a Supreme Court decision to shake up all-male organizations to do what is right.

MOST ALL-MALE organizations such as Jaycees, Rotary, Kiwanis, Optimists and Lions were started in the early years of this century. It was a different era when most women stayed at home.

Service clubs were started as a means for persons of different professions — lawyers, doctors, bankers and merchants — to come together. At that time those occupations were virtually all male.

That has changed. Today a majority of adult women work outside of the house. They are lawyers, doctors, bankers and merchants, too. But because of antiquated rules formulated 70 or 80 years ago, they are excluded from membership in local service clubs.

That's not right, and it should be changed.

This does not mean women would rush to join the local Jaycees or Rotary. Many have formed their own professional organizations and have no desire to change. But the principle is that women have the right to join these groups.

LOCAL REACTION to the Supreme Court decision, as expected, has been mixed.

Former Michigan Jaycees President Terry Sever of Farmington Hills is happy with the decision. "I am very pleased that they ruled the way they did. I'm pretty confident that before the year's end, the U.S. Jaycees will vote to change the by-laws."

Joe Bruner of the Avon Hills Lions Club had a different view.

"It goes back to some classic arguments like, 'Why do we have men's and women's bathrooms?' I think it should be separate because it's a matter of choice."

That baloney of relating bathrooms to equality goes back to the debate over the Equal Rights Amendment. It doesn't deserve a response.

ALTHOUGH FEW service-club members would be as blunt as Bruner, many silently support his view.

Unfortunately, the Supreme Court only spoke specifically about the Minnesota Jaycees. How that applies to other organizations is open to debate.

THE SUPREME COURT, however, may have left a crack in the door for other service clubs.

The justices implied that private organizations more selective than the Jaycees may have greater freedom in picking members. Jaycees accept all applicants who are men between ages of 18 and 35.

So the battle must continue. Wouldn't it be nice if local service clubs acted on their own to permit women to join?

Don't count on it. Another case will wind its way through the courts, and all service clubs will be required to drop their male requirement.

For now, equality may be limited to the Jaycees.

State poll primed voters for tax query

COMMUNITY COLLEGES clearly were big winners when the state Board of Education took a telephone survey of the public's attitudes toward higher education in May.

Michiganians think their community colleges are good to excellent. They find the two-year colleges meeting the needs of minorities, the handicapped and women quite nicely, thank you. They think highly of the community colleges as places for remedial as well as vocational-technical training.

The blockbuster finding was that 67 percent said they would vote in favor of a property tax millage increase for their community college. Only 15 percent said no, and 8 percent were undecided.

THAT WAS music to the ears of good ol' Dick McDowell, president of Schoolcraft College. The hit-the-deck-running chief executive has been saying since he arrived late in 1981 that a millage proposal one of these years soon is inevitable.

Trustees, particularly veterans like Paul Kadish, shudder at the word. During the 1970s, they tried four times to persuade the public to pass various forms of millage increases. The best they ever could get was a 42-percent "yes" response.

Has anything changed now that we are in the mid-1980s? In Lansing, the politicians are so scared of tax talk that they won't even put a SEMTA sales tax on the ballot, let alone advocate it. And yet for all the hot air about recalling the governor, a dozen state senators and a dozen or so representatives, only two recall proposals actually made it to the ballot.

I THINK it would be dangerous to put too much stock in the state Board of Education's survey.

Those taking the survey apparently asked a lot of questions about higher education and got positive results, before popping the millage increase question. Items:

Tim Richard

- 74 percent of Michiganians said a college education is "very important" compared to 58 percent of Americans answering a nationwide Gallup poll.

- 54 percent think Michigan colleges are as good as those in any other state, and 16 percent say ours are better.

- 22 percent gave Michigan's 29 community colleges "excellent" ratings, and 46 percent called them "good," which is a lot of A's and B's.

- 30 percent said community colleges are best at providing adults career planning and guidance services; 21 percent ranked the four-year colleges best and only 13 percent opted for adult education programs.

IN SHORT, the entire survey put the respondents in a positive frame of mind, and that probably colored the results of the millage question.

In the real world, voters don't dwell on how wonderful their community colleges are before going to the polls.

They think about inflated assessments, the 11 percent who are still unemployed, their Consumers Power bills, the self-centered attitude of unions, their own prospects for promotion and riches, Mayor Young's latest raid on the state treasury.

In other words, before voting, they think about a lot of bad news that the state Board of Education's survey failed to stir up.

Mystery of the garden solved

A QUESTION that has bothered The Stroller since the first day he started to work in his garden this spring has been answered.

It seems almost each week, as he set about the task of trying to beautify the lot, some new type of flower or plant sprung up. And he vows he didn't plant them.

First, there was the iris or blue flags, as the Pennsylvania Dutch call them. One stalk appeared, and now there are more than a dozen.

Then one morning he noticed several seams coming up alongside one of the trees, and he knows he didn't plant them, either. When they finally bloomed this spring, they were peonies. There are groups of them in three different sections of the garden.

ONE BIG SURPRISE came when the tall thin stems that he had been pulling out of the ground bloomed. They were buttercups.

It was the same in the barbecue area where the section had been closed in with evergreens. Lo and behold, he spotted poppies there and later under the kitchen window.

There are some growing the names of which he doesn't know. And it has been most puzzling. While The Stroller likes the stroller

W.W. Edgar

what he sees, he can't help asking, "Where did they come from — or who put them there?"

For a time, he thought perhaps it was the neighbors, all of whom take pride in their flower gardens.

Then the other day, one of the visitors to whom he was showing off the garden pointed to the surprise flowers, looked at him and smiled, "And you don't know where they came from?"

"DID YOU EVER give any thought to the fact that the birds and other animals might have planted them, just as a matter of saying thanks for the many kindnesses you have shown them throughout the year — even in the coldest weather and the heavy snowstorms?"

As he looked around the yard, the visitor pointed to the tall evergreens, explaining that each could have served as a highrise apartment for the birds. Then he noticed two large birdbaths which the birds have enjoyed all summer, especially during their frolicking at dusk.

He noticed the bird feeders that have graced the back yard, serving as eating places when the snow was several feet deep. The pans of food were always there.

"These plants and flowers that have been surprising you are the birds' and squirrels' way of saying thank you for your kindly thoughtfulness. You know they can't talk. But they partially repay you with their visits in the evening and the little games they play, and then top it all off by dropping flower and plant seeds in the most unexpected places as a way of showing their appreciation."

THE STROLLER never had given that a thought. It was the same with ferns that have taken over the sunken garden in the front yard.

Several years ago, one little fern showed its head. Now the garden is circled with them, and passers-by stop to look.

It is the same with lilies-of-the-valley. There are rows and rows of them — along with the bordering fences. He never knew where they came from.

Now the birds have spoken. It is their way of saying thanks for the kindnesses shown them throughout the year.

The Stroller's puzzling question has been answered, and no longer need he wonder why they gather each evening.

If only the birds could speak!

Waterfalls

'Roar of Thunder, Whisper of Wind'

By Len Meese
outdoors writer

"Waterfalls and I get along. I don't get antsy. I can sit there for six hours," said C.J. (Chuck) Elfont.

"They're hard to get tired of. They're all different," added Edna Elfont, his wife and collaborator.

And so the Huntington Woods couple has produced the definitive book on one of Michigan's most neglected natural resources — the several hundred waterfalls which lace the northern woods.

It's entitled "Roar of Thunder, Whisper of Wind," and last week it was published in hardcover by Michigan Natural Resources Magazine. MNR will promote and take orders. The volume also may be ordered through bookstores.

YOU MIGHT think a state so protective of its ecosystem, so boastful of its beauty, would have a glut of books on waterfalls. Just the opposite was true until the Elfont's book came along.

Ten or more years ago, the Upper Peninsula Tourist Association had an excellent guidebook with fairly explicit directions. It long has been out of print.

Today the tourist group will send you a pamphlet listing a number of waterfalls with almost useless directions — e.g., eight miles northeast of such-and-such a town.

Two or three years ago, MNR Magazine produced a waterfalls article, with Chuck Elfont's pictures. Again, the directions were poor. And the art director made the serious error of using white print on a black background, so you couldn't underline key words or make notations.

"The feedback we got on that article," said Elfont, "was that people were wandering around with the magazine in their hands, trying to find them (waterfalls). Department of Natural Resources field workers were getting a lot of questions on specific directions."

THE BOOK, which retails for about $20, is actually two volumes for two purposes:

• A hardcover book of pictures and descriptive text for display on a coffee table or relaxing bedtime reading. But it's too nice to take on a camping trip.

• A pullout pamphlet on cheaper paper listing 56 waterfalls (all but Ojibwa in the upper peninsula). In their travels, the Elfont's checked mileages and landmarks. Gabro Falls in Gogebic County, for example, is found thus:

"On US-2 between Wakefield and Bessemer, go north on the gravel road to the Black Jack Ski Area (indicated by a road sign). Drive 1.4 miles and turn left on the dirt road located opposite and orange and white post topped with an empty sign frame."

IF CHUCK Elfont's name is familiar, it may be because the children's dentist is a pal of our photo columnist, Monte Nagler. They made a trip above the Arctic Circle to Baffin Island a few years back.

Chuck picked up photography as a 13-year-old in Baltimore. Although he has taken pictures for a medical book, a cat fanciers magazine, newspapers, magazines and salons, he has had almost no formal class work.

"I know a lot of these guys; when I have a question, I just call them," he said.

As a young camp counselor, he developed a taste for canoeing and just about anything else having to do with water and rivers. He is a member of the Sierra Club, which was instrumental in prompting his interest in waterfall photography.

EDNA, BORN in Brooklyn, has a Ph.D. in biology and works in the pathology department of Sinai Hospital in Detroit.

Although she has a long list of scientific publications to her credit, Edna relaxed and wrote an "enjoy" text for the waterfalls book. "It's a description of the sights and the mood of each falls — casual observations about the interesting geological features and some of the trees."

"On the ceiling of the grotto behind Scott Falls is a very rare moss which sparkles in the right light," she said.

A literary touch is added by her cinquains, five-line, unrhymed poems with (respectively) two, four, six, eight and two syllables per line.

Chapters are organized geographically.

YOU CAN get into an argument about how many waterfalls Michigan has and, indeed, what a waterfall is.

"The UP guide lists only 119," Chuck said.

"There are only 150 named waterfalls," Edna added.

Actually, there may be twice that many, but quite a few are on private property or in such remote locations that "you need a mule and a backpack to get in," Chuck said.

They confined their list to 56 that are at least five feet high, nearly all on public lands, accessible by a passable road, and from a few feet to two miles from the parking spot.

That may be a reason Michiganders fall so abysmally to promote waterfalls: Except for Tahquamenon, they aren't in places where you can set up stands to sell hot dogs, pop and souvenirs. You just can't make money off waterfalls.

NOT ONLY do the Elfont's share their secrets about where to find the waterfalls, but Chuck lists all his technical data for each of the 124 photos — film, shutter speed, aperture and all.

The first thing you notice is that he uses time exposures rather than snapshot shutter speeds — 1/10th sec. to two minutes. That means he must shoot with a tripod and cable release.

Result: The water is a blur, just the way you see it with the human eye, rather than drops frozen in space, as you would see it in a photo shot at 1/500th sec.

PLANNING A surprise party for Karen (K.C.) Mueller is something of an undertaking. K.C. excels at planning parties, luncheons, dinners, and so on for the Woman's Club of Plymouth, the Newcomers, and other organizations.

Her husband, Laurence, accomplished the difficult feat of a surprise fete for K.C. on her birthday. Laurie arranged a dinner party in the loft of the Round Table Club.

Guests Carole and Vern Hackett, John and Judy Lore, Roger and Pat Centofanti, David Frost, Carole and Chuck Brandt, and Sonja and Bob Fedyke were on hand to greet the Muellers when they arrived at the loft. The menus and match books were printed in honor of K.C.'s birthday. The dinner was perfect and the birthday cake a work of art.

The guest of honor's sister, Sonja Fedyke of Rochester, had surprised K.C. earlier in the day with an electric sign on the Mueller front lawn. The sign, so they say, flashed the message "Lordy, Lordy, Karen's..." (The last word almost rhymed with the first two.)

DAVE PUGH, city of Plymouth mayor, had to do some advance planning for wife Sharon's surprise party. He was going to be out of town on her birthday. In fact, Dave was in Japan when the big day rolled around.

The Pughs' daughters, Jennifer and Sigrid, proved themselves to be fine hostesses, following their father's detailed instructions to a T. Dave's party notes were fool-proof, including the diagram for the placement of lawn chairs.

A belated happy birthday to both K.C. and Sharon.

DEBBIE SUE Beasley, a 1974 graduate of Plymouth Salem High School, will report Monday to the Boston University Medical Center. She will assume the position of assistant professor of renal physiology at the center. Debbie received a bachelor's degree in physiology in 1978 at Michigan State University; her doctorate, in 1982, at the University of Michigan. Since then, she has been doing her post-doctorate work in medical science laboratories at U-M.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Beasley of Holly Drive, Canton Township.

ACCORDING TO ERNIE Koi, the local American Legion Post is considering a change of name. The Passage-Gayde Post, organized in 1944, was named after the community's first Army and Navy victims of World War II.

Elmer Passage of the Army and Peter Gayde of the Navy were the first local casualties of World War II. The old Plymouth American Legion Post on Newburgh Road was named after Myron H. Beals, a Plymouth serviceman killed in World War I. It was built when an area of Livonia Township, south of Middlebelt, was in the Plymouth Schools and postal districts.

Now the Legion members are trying to identify the first local casualty of the Korean War. They already have the name of first casualty of the War in Vietnam.

They are asking the community for help in finding the first local resident to die in the Korean War. If you have any information, please call the American Legion, 453-9393, or write to P.O. Box 588, Plymouth 48170.

A 10-YEAR HIGH school reunion of the class of 1975 at the Plymouth Centennial Education Park is planned for the summer of '85. Cam Miller has asked that anyone willing to serve on the reunion committee contact him by writing to: Class of 1975 Reunion, P.O. Box 5353, Plymouth 48170.

The class had a five-year reunion and wants to get an early start organizing its 10th.

NEWS OF THE DEATH of Ernest M. Ligon, Ph.D., 87, of Schenectady, N.Y., saddened old friends in the Plymouth community. Ligon originated, developed and implemented the Character Research Project, scientifically designed to direct the lives of children into responsible Christian adults.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Character Research Project, Union College, Schenectady, N.Y.

Teen-age work crew lends a helping hand

Nine teen-agers from First United Methodist Church of Plymouth experienced a week of inner-city living. They left the depressed area of Flint with a new awareness of people and poverty, and the thought that they had left it just a little brighter.

In past summers, young people from the church have traveled to deprived communities in the south, usually in North Carolina. They gave a week or so of their vacation time and their best physical efforts to refurbishing run-down churches. This year, it was suggested that they did not have to go out of the state to find a poverty-stricken area.

Their first choice was an Indian reservation in the Upper Peninsula, but other youth groups had signed up for the work projects. The Rev. Steve Wenzel, youth minister at First Methodist, made some telephone calls. A work program was arranged with Flint Neighborhood Improvement and Preservation Project (NIPP).

THEIR ASSIGNMENT was painting the trim on an old three-story house. The trim included a lot of Victorian "gingerbread."

Kim Lybarger, Curt Gresock, Eric Kieb, Tracey Somers, Kris Travis, Clay Good, John Aho and Anne Thompson arrived in Flint on a Sunday evening. They were accompanied by adults Alan Steffan, Ellen Thompson and Steve Wenzel.

They slept in sleeping bags in a Methodist Church and had their meals next door in the Dort-Oak Park Neighborhood House. More than 1,000 people visit the neighborhood house each month for food, clothing, recreation, transportation or classes.

Twenty "neighborhood kids" have two meals a day at the house. Ellen Thompson said the food was interesting. "I had never before eaten a sweetened chocolate breakfast cereal. And one night the cook prepared a soul food dinner for us. It was very good."

THE YOUTH group immediately was aware of the different lifestyle of the neighborhood.

They don't see people wearing shower caps on the streets of Plymouth. Doors and windows were barred; a window of their pickup truck was smashed and money stolen within half an hour of their arrival.

They spent Monday, their first day, learning the rudiments of scraping old paint, painting and they even learned how to build a scaffold. They were up at 7:30 a.m. each day, painted for a couple of hours in the morning and were back on the job 1-5 p.m. every afternoon, applying the bright yellow paint.

Dinners and a picnic had been arranged by NIPP with church groups and members of the neighborhood house council as hosts. They found time for devotions before lights out at 11 p.m.

On their last evening, they had dinner at Windmill Place, went to a movie, and lights out was extended. The eighth through 12th graders were on their way home by noon.

Class of 1954 plans 30-year reunion

Plymouth High School class of 1954 is planning a 30-year reunion Saturday, Sept. 1, in the Plymouth Cultural Center. The 176 members of the graduating class wrote a class will, song and prophecy. And they promised never to forget each other.

Since then, they have had three reunions. They missed their 25th but this, their fourth, promises to be a big one. Jim Isbister, senior class president, is coming from Washington, D.C. Tyler Caplin, probably the best golfer ever to graduate from PHS, is coming from California, where he now has his own golf course. Mike Reh and his wife, Jan, are coming from Georgia.

Members of the reunion committee are Jacqueline O'Neill Brown, Marv Cranford, Jerry Kelly, Margie Burr Kidston, Brian Kidston and Howard Oldford. They mailed invitations in June to all the classmates whose addresses they could find. The following were returned unopened by the post office: Carlean McCollum, Hugh Daly, Lawrence Tillotson, Robert Lewis, Eric Eklund, George Gottschalk, Lloyd Johnson, Donna Read, William Stockton, Frank Taft, Carl Taylor, Nelson Rose and Judy Monteith.

UPDATED ADRESSES are needed for those people.

Addresses also are requested for: Ed Barrett, Judy Bays, George Brown, Joyce Campbell, Luella Caron, Ronald Church, Dale Cowan, Sam Davis, Dolores Eckstrom, Helen Graham, Doane Harris, Laura Hatch, Mike Hershey, James Hessler, Jerleen Hotfield and Roger Ingall.

Also, Beverly Kehrner, Robert Lorrimer, Theresa McCarthy, Robert Markley, Judy Marshall, Alice Miller, Edith Nicks, Charlene Paulger, Ronald Raven, Lillian Rohroff, Richard Rose, Melvin Sawyer, Marilyn Sheer, Nancy Schaal, Lloyd Smith, Jean Stapleton, William Tallian, Richard Thomas, Marilou Truesdell, James Van Wagoner and Donald Wasko.

Anyone who can help locate any one of the above is asked to call Margaret Kidston, 453-8340; Marv Cranford, 800-238-6126, toll free between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.; or Jackie Brown, 422-6917.

MANY MEMBERS of the class of '54 started to kindergarten and graduated from high school in the same building — the old high school, which is now Central Middle School. Kindergarten, elementary, middle and high schools were in the building at Main and Church streets. Some of the students attended Starkweather, the only public elementary school in the city, or Our Lady of Good Counsel. Bird and Smith were built after their elementary school years.

Nellie Bird was principal of the elementary school and Carvel Bentley was high school principal. Russell Isbister was superintendent of schools.

The 30th reunion dinner dance at the Cultural Center will begin at 6:30 p.m. and last until 1:30 a.m. The charge is $19.54 per person. Deadline for reservations is July 15. Correspondence, checks and reservations should be sent to Jacqueline Brown, 482 Henry Ruff Road, Garden City, Mich. 48135.

The Plymouth High School Class of 1954 will have its 30-year reunion on Sept. 1 — the Saturday of Labor Day weekend — in the Plymouth Cultural Center. The planning committee has set admission to the dinner dance at $19.54 per person. They know four of their classmates have died, but they are asking for the community's help in finding addresses for a number of the 176 members of the "remarkable class of 1954."

Polish-American youth compete at track meet

I think I've got it! I think I'm in the right place, on the right day, and all is well. I realize things were a little mixed up there for a while, but I think we've got it right now. I'm sorry for any inconvenience and I appreciate your patience and phone calls, more than I can say. It's nice to know somebody missed me.

Summer is here, everyone is busy and Canton kids are no exception.

One very busy little girl is Kristen Karpinski, who attends Pioneer Middle School. Kristen has just returned from six days of fun at Eastern Michigan University which recently hosted 678 people for the National Polish "Zlot," which is similar to the Olympics. It features, primarily, track and field competition.

There is so much to explain, I don't know where to start. It sounds so interesting as Kristen got a taste of a mixture of the fun side of college life, and summer camp all rolled into one.

The organization is called the Polish Falcons. The Falcons offer a variety of year-round activities throughout the United States. The Detroit District has three groups. Each group is called a "nest." Unfortunately, none of these is in the immediate area. The Karpinski family belongs to the nest in the 8-Mile and Mound roads area.

ONE PURPOSE of the Falcons is to "promote, develop and maintain social and educational activities and physical fitness." And from what I have heard, they do.

Regular gymnastic classes, yearly swim meets, a Michigan track meet every two years, a national track and field meet every four years, as well as national folk dancing every three years. Bowling and golf tournaments are offered every year for the adults. Add to this the dances, Bingos, the traditional "Wiegale" or Christmas dinner, the "Swinczowka," the traditional Easter meal, and already time is running out for anything else. And those are just some of the highlights.

Each nest within a district decides just what direction they wish their group to take. This allows them activities tailored to their area. For example, some nests in Florida retirement areas love to get together, but have no use for the National Track and Field competition. They may, however, choose to build a pool, or tennis court, or even their own bowling alley.

Actually, seven nests do own their own bowling alleys. Some even have area camps, where the children can go every year.

I HOPE THIS gives you a little background so you will understand what type of competition Kristen participated in, and to inform some of you of Polish descent of a great idea.

It's like having a private YMCA and country club rolled into one. I know there are many Polish Americans in this area, and I think it's a shame that you don't have a group of your own out here. I do have a number you can call for information about existing groups, Julia Serafin, 382-3057. But I still think you should get together and start a group out this way.

Now on with what Kristen did!

Entries for scholarship pageant now available

Young women ages 17-26 may compete in the Miss Plymouth-Canton Scholarship Pageant Oct. 26. The winner will go on to the Miss Michigan Scholarship Pageant in Muskegon and the state winner may compete for the title of Miss America.

The local pageant is the brainchild of Gloria Tactac of Chic Boutique in Plymouth. She is interested in this type of pageant because it is based on talent and scholarship. The participants are judged on talent, interviews, swimsuits and evening wear. There is no registration fee.

The pageant is being sponsored by the Miss Plymouth-Canton Pageant Inc., a non-profit corporation formed by Tactac and other interested Plymouth-Canton residents. Residents interested in assisting with the pageant are asked to call her at 453-6390.

ENTRY FORMS, rules and regulations may be obtained from: Plymouth City hall, 201 S. Main Street; Plymouth Township Hall, 42350 E. Ann Arbor Road; Canton Township Hall, 1150 S. Canton Center Road; Great Shape salon, 630 Starkweather; and Chic Boutique, 17 Forest Place Mall.

Tactac has announced the appointment of heads of various pageant committees.

They are Barbara Pedersen, public relations; Joanne Delaney, hostess; Dean Swartzwelter, finance; Bill Robinson, awards; Barb Carpenter, entries; Mary Childs, judges; Elaine Sabourin, production; Teresa Pavone, Deb Swartzwelter and Jeanine Street, program.

Ronald Loiselle, Ronald Lowe, Marc and Jacie Avery, and Glen Carls have agreed to provide their professional expertise to the pageant.

Kris roomed with a girl from Detroit, Patti Knauber, who was 12 years old. These girls had it tough. Up at 7 a.m., then off to breakfast 7:30-8:30. Then to the track and field area by 9 a.m. where they watched all the events and waited for their events.

Lunch was at noon and it was back to the games at 1:30 p.m. All events were completed, usually, between 3-4 p.m. Then there was all the swimming they wanted, dinner, and of course the video game room. Or, it was off to the dorm for hours of chit-chat and chatter and dancing until their feet fall off! Rough, eh?

They even had an awards ceremony July 4 where they presented Olympic-style medals and merit awards.

EACH NEST earned the money to purchase matching uniforms, just as the different countries do in the Olympics, and they all gathered for a huge demonstration of drill techniques. They performed the national drill known as the Nierzucim Ziemi. Although each nest had practiced separately, hundreds of miles from each other, they performed precisely and beautifully.

Then, each nest had a drill routine of its own. Kristen performed to "Eye of the Tiger," and (what else?) "Beat It."

The adults executed their drill to the inspiring sounds of Neil Diamond's "America!"

Although Kristen broke a toe on the first day, she still participated in the 50-yard backstroke and freestyle in the swimming competitions. In track and field, she entered the long jump, shot put, long and short dashes, and the relays.

Lori, Kristen's older sister, is employed and was unable to stay on campus, but she did compete in the long-jump, shot put and volleyball.

Even their dad, Richard Karpinski, joined in the volleyball. But brother Rick was unable to take part due to a splint on his leg. However, not to be left out entirely, Rick, who happens to be an excellent artist, took first place in the National Arts and Crafts Division, with a pencil drawing of "Motety Crue," and two honorable mentions. One was for an ink drawing of a woman and one for a drawing of two deer. Kristen received an honorable mention for a cat drawing in pencil and colored pencil. She entered it in the Miller School Arts and Writing Fair, in which she received an Outstanding Art Work award.

SO ALL IN ALL, this was one very wonderful week for the Karpinski family, and for their friends who enjoyed their success, and loved hearing about it.

The Polish Falcons has 29,000 members with more than 150 youth groups nationwide.

As Kristen's mother, Judy, said, "It was a great opportunity for children to be away from home, meet new people, and learn sportsmanship and the camaraderie of belonging to a special group, like our nest." Judy confesses she had tears in her eyes as she watched her daughter performing the drills so precisely and beautifully. She had no idea Kristen was so good.

They live quite a distance from their nest, and they aren't as active as they would like to be. However, they enjoy everything they have time to participate in.

Judy put it nicely when she said, "It really made you proud to be a Polish-American."

So Kristen, if you have recovered from your glorious fun-filled week, perhaps you could tell me more about the welcome dance, which featured a live band, and the farewell dance with the D.J., that kept you up until 12:30 a.m.

PLEASE LET me know what you're doing this summer. Personally, I'm trying to retille around my bathtub, where the tiles are falling off the wall of my 10-year-old home.

John Hopkins' horse and surret is a favorite of photographers and children as art festival visitors line up for rides.

Ceramic balloons, in keeping with the hot air balloon festival out at Plymouth Township Park, attract Carolyn Dzileo of Plymouth and daughter Robin, 3.

Crowds flock to art fest

The art fest in Kellogg Park attracted thousands of visitors Saturday and Sunday. The downtown area was jammed Saturday as people flocked to the early morning inflation sales in the stores, the Farmers Market in The Gathering and the art fest. Many of the artists and craftsmen reported booming sales. There was a wide selection in the booths and tents. Paintings, ceramics, baskets, stencils, stained glass, afghans, hand-knit sweaters, dolls, wooden toys, doll cradles, soft sculpture, dried flower arrangements, and so on, were offered for sale. And for the young at heart there were cotton candy, soda pop, popcorn and hot dogs as well as rides in a horse-drawn surret.

Crafters set up displays on the stretch of lawn in front of the old Wilcox House on Penniman Avenue Saturday and Sunday for the art festival in the park. Thousands of visitors bought accessories for their homes and did some early Christmas shopping.

We Are Proud To Announce: Construction Has Begun On The New Mercywood Hospital

Groundbreaking ceremonies this week mark the beginning of construction on the new Mercywood Hospital located on the Huron River site of the Catherine McAuley Health Center.

This new 130-bed hospital will provide both inpatient and partial hospitalization programs to meet the increased need for comprehensive community mental health services. Scheduled to open in the fall of 1985, the new Mercywood has received much of its funding from community philanthropy through the Commitment '83-'84 capital campaign. When completed the new Mercywood Hospital, along with St. Joseph Mercy Hospital and the other facilities of Catherine McAuley Health Center, will be another step closer to our goal: health care services designed to achieve optimal health and well-being for every person in our community.

The Tribes of Israel from around 29 A.D. will be gathering under the old oak tree in the park-like area next to the First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth for an interesting re-enactment of early biblical times. It's all part of a three-day vacation Bible school experience sponsored by the church. The children will venture out into the marketplace to learn about the world. Here, a typical family visits a potter. Shown are Jay Uhl (left), 9; Susan Pritchard, 6; Sally Evans, a tent mother; Pam Pritchard, 9; and potter Susan Seidel. The Bible school experience is open to all area families. It will culminate with a Celebration Festival on the last day. For details on how to enroll, see the item in the vacation Bible school column below.

Worldwide TV holds great promise

Last week our family drove through eastern Kentucky. In the midst of these hollows and hills, we saw great numbers of large dish television antennas. The people are no longer isolated by the hollows and hills of Kentucky. They have a connection to a communications satellite.

I wish someone would tell me why we do not yet have access to international television. When this occurs, we will experience a political, cultural and language revolution in our world.

I do not find myself interested in cable television because it seems to me that it will just give me more of what we already have — entertainment. On the other hand, having the ability to plug into the world holds forth excitement and challenge.

moral perspectives

Rev. David Strong

WHEN THIS HAPPENS, the individual will be able to become as involved in world issues as those who represent us at the United Nations. We can become acquainted with the "anchorperson" of a news broadcast from India or Cuba. World issues can become as interesting a topic of conversation as the latest Tiger ball game. The difference between people who are free to receive world opinions and those who face government censorship will become more pronounced.

I believe that our cultural differences will become better understood. In my seminary days, I took several courses in world religions. I doubt that I ever entered into the real meaning of these religious practices. A world television network can help us to experience the meaning of our many cultures and religions.

My son is about to choose a language to study. If we lived in the southwest or southeast, he would choose Spanish. Here there is little reason to choose one over another. With world television networks, language will be important to all of us.

SUCH AN EXPERIENCE will challenge our English mindset. Many of our high schools are dropping advanced language courses because of a lack of students. Worldwide television will do for language what the computer has done for math.

What will the future hold for us? I find that worldwide television networks hold great promise for us. They will challenge our understanding, our acceptance of diversity and encourage our appreciation of every culture.

Judges will give priority to the content of the slide but also will take into consideration the degree of difficulty in taking the picture, technical quality and the ability to reproduce for publication.

SC trustees balk at men's vs. women's prizes

On the heels of one of its most successful fund-raising events, the Schoolcraft College Foundation is hoping to co-sponsor its first bocce tournament — if the board of trustees can come to grips with the prize money question.

Trustee Sharon Sarris raised an eyebrow about differences between prize money in men's and women's divisions. "I'm concerned, too, particularly if we put our name on it," added trustee Laura Toy when the college board met late last month.

TOTAL PRIZE money in the proposed Aug. 25-26 tournament is $4,200.

Sarris noted the top prize of $1,500 will go to the first-place men's team, while the first-place women's team would receive $500, same as the third-place men's team.

Athletic director Marvin Gans replied, "Very few women compete in bocce ball in comparison with men." Twelve to 15 men's teams compete for every one women's team. Gans added that women may be included on the four-person teams in the men's division.

After the trustees' debate, college President Richard McDowell said their questions would be raised in a college committee. "We are not going to decide the rules of the tournament, but whether we will compete or not," McDowell said.

He said the Schoolcraft Foundation — one of three co-sponsors (with Fonte D'Amore restaurant and Action Distributing — may be unable to withdraw its sponsorship because preparations are already under way.

"We've set our prize money on the estimated number of respondents. If large groups of women participate, the prize money will go up (in their division)."

THE BOCCE tournament is a first-time endeavor. Proceeds will aid the foundation.

The bocce (pronounced "bot-che") tournament is part of an Italian Festival. The game is akin to lawn bowling or curling.

During the past year, McDowell said, more than $47,000 has been raised by the foundation to aid college programs. Two years ago, the foundation raised $1,700.

Thus, he said, the college has exceeded its $40,000 goal. A recent golf tournament raised more than $10,000 — "a significant accomplishment," the president said.

He attributed the golf tournament's financial success to "a cast of thousands," adding he hoped the bocce tournament would attract similar community interest.

IN OTHER business, the board of trustees:

- Approved purchase of 18 Apple computers for $21,600 through Intracom Computer Center of Novi.

- Approved purchase of 273 campus telephone instruments and peripheral equipment from AT&T for $14,380. It is the same equipment the college has been renting for $13,800 annually, according to Vice President W. Kenneth Lindner.

- Approved purchase of 20 IBM typewriters for $11,210 from IBM's Southfield office. The new machines will replace others which are eight to 10 years old.

- Approved purchase of two Allen-Bradley programmable controller systems for $9,184 from McNaughton-McKay Electric Co. of Madison Heights. They will be used in the electronics lab.

- Accepted gifts totalling $2,700 in value.

McKelvey's invention improves manufacturing of auto windshields

A Plymouth resident has been awarded a patent for a device invented to improve the manufacturing of automobile windshields.

Harold E. McKelvey was recipient of the patent awarded in May 1984 and assigned to Shatterproof Glass Corp., Detroit. He is research manager for the firm.

Automobile windshields normally consist of a layer of thermoplastic material between two sheets of glass which are bonded by heat and pressure.

The bonding is done through a two-step operation by first subjecting the three assembled sheets (or laminations) to a preliminary pressing to remove the air from between them.

THE ASSEMBLED sheets then undergo a final heating and pressing in a strong pressurized vessel (called an autoclave) which completely bonds the three sheets.

During the preliminary bonding, the three sheets are laid one upon the other to form a "sandwich" which is placed in a flexible vacuum bag which is connected to a vacuum pump by a hose so that air can be withdrawn from between the sheets.

The vacuum bag must be sealed tightly because it is essential that all the air be removed from between the sheets during the preliminary pressing operation. An ineffective seal would allow air to seep into the bag and between the sheets, causing undesired air bubbles during subsequent cooling of the laminations after bonding in the autoclave.

Earlier methods of sealing the flexible vacuum bag have not been consistently reliable in preventing leakage of air into the bag — a problem addressed by McKelvey's invention.

McKelvey invented a flexible vacuum bag which receives the sheets of the windshield and seals them in such a way that the air is withdrawn from the bag and from between the sheets during the preliminary pressing and cannot seep back.

Judges' ruling staggers Payne

LIFE MARCHES ON. Even for Craig Payne, who looked so deflated, so betrayed, when the announcer delivered the most crushing blow he's suffered in his boxing career.

"In the red corner . . ." was all that could be heard. It was enough. Because Tyrell Biggs occupied the red corner, not Craig Payne.

That devastating announcement, declared at the close of Saturday's Olympic Box-offs in Las Vegas, ended Payne's amateur career.

It might have extended it three or four more bouts, had the boxer from Livonia been proclaimed the winner instead of Biggs. Payne would be training in earnest for the Olympics. Instead he's listed as the alternate. His job is to help Biggs prepare.

PAYNE'S FINAL weekend as an amateur fighter was packed with peaks and valleys. The peak came Friday night when he pounded Biggs into submission, forcing a rematch Saturday with the Olympic team berth at stake.

Indeed, Payne's manager and coach, Paul Soucy, could scarcely believe that Biggs survived Friday's onslaught still standing. But the top super heavyweight did, and that proved costly for Payne. As the No. 1-rated boxer, Biggs had to be beaten twice to lose his spot on the Olympic team.

Had Payne knocked Biggs out Friday, Biggs would have been forced to forfeit Saturday's rematch. Amateur rules deem it so, stating all KO'd fighters must wait 30 days before stepping into the ring again.

Still, it seemed Payne had the psychological edge so vital in this game. He surprised Biggs with an aggressive attack Friday, beating him to the punch constantly and dominating the battle thoroughly.

And yet, a forboding omen was forthcoming: Payne won 4-1. One judge, Paul Konnor, actually ruled in favor of Biggs.

SUCH POLITICS have haunted Payne throughout his career. They did again on Saturday.

There was a slight delay before the opening bell. Soucy noticed one of the judges was Carmen Williamson. He recalled a remark Williamson made after a previous Biggs-Payne bout.

Craig Payne

Biggs 59-58. The fifth was Urbek. He gave every round to Biggs, scoring it 60-58.

Such scoring is implausible and unacceptable, except to those who know boxing, a sport that allows anything to be plausible and acceptable. A name in a corner — like Don King — is often enough to assure victory in the ring.

"I HURT more than people know," Payne said Tuesday. He believed, and always will, that he won Saturday's fight convincingly.

"I beat him fair and square. I hit him harder," Payne claimed. "Some of the best people in the sport of boxing judged it in my favor, and this guy (Urbek) calls it perfect for Tyrell Biggs."

Which recalls, hauntingly so, Soucy's remarks before the Box-offs began. "We're going to have to knock Mr. Biggs out," he said. "We'll never win a decision."

That prediction proved true.

But, despite the devastation so evident on his face Saturday afternoon, life indeed continues for Payne — at an accelerated Las Vegas-style pace. Eddie Futch, who trains, among others, world heavyweight champion Larry Holmes, is interested in Payne's professional career.

CONFERENCES CONDUCTED through Tuesday indicate that Fuch will indeed handle Payne, in part. "I'll be turning pro with Paul (Soucy) and Dick (Quilton, his coach-trainer)," Payne said. "I'll just be taking some other people with me."

Payne also plans on staging some pro fights in Livonia, although most will be in the big-money world of Vegas. But nothing, Payne pledges, will happen in his pro career until after the Olympics. He has promised to help Biggs prepare, and he will stick to his word.

That's much more than you can expect from most others in boxing. It's a brutal, hard-hitting world, where the most savage blows are oftentimes delivered after the bell has sounded.

Payne — winner of seven national titles and more than 90 amateur fights — knows. He's been KO'd by more judges than opponents.

Adray All-Stars taste the big time

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Pete Rose, not to be confused with the Montreal Expo version, will tell his grandchildren some day that he hit a home run at Tiger Stadium.

This Rose was in full bloom Monday morning in the annual Adray All-Star games held at the corner of Michigan and Trumbull.

A starter at second base for the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League (LCBL), Rose drilled a solo homer over the left-field fence in the fourth inning, but it wasn't enough as the LCBL lost to the Lansing All-Stars, 6-5.

"I was just trying to hit the ball hard," said the Livonian. "I was looking for a fastball. It was a decent pitch — near the belt."

Rose, a sophomore reserve this season at Michigan State, is one of the leading hitters on the first place Livonia Adray club.

"I was thinking about it last (Sunday) night — that it would be great to hit one out at Tiger Stadium," he said.

MEANWHILE, another Michigan Stater, center-fielder Todd Bidelman, was putting on a hitting show of his own for Lansing.

He took Dave Rodriguez' first pitch of the game and sent a shot over the 365-foot sign for a homer. In the second inning, Bidelman singled in another run to make it 4-0.

"I told them (his teammates) that I was hitting the first pitch out," Bidelman joked. "I've been hitting well lately. Really, I was just trying to get a hit here. That was my goal."

baseball

The homer seemed to shake up Rodriguez, the Livonia Adray ace who has never been beaten in the LCBL.

"This is the first time Lansing has won," said Livonia Adray manager Ron Hellier. "This is a better ballclub than they've had in the past."

"But our guys stayed with it."

AFTER ROSE'S homer cut the deficit to 4-2, Lansing struck for two runs in the fourth after two were out. Walter's Appliance pitcher Jeff Barnett got wild for Livonia, walking four batters and tossing four wild pitches.

The Livonia All-Stars, however, battled back and made a game of it by scoring three runs in the fifth on an RBI single by Redford Caesars' Carl Ruffino and a two-run single by Garden City's John Bolen.

The loss, however, did not diminish some solid performances turned in by the Livonia All-Stars.

Pitchers Jay Bobel, Bill Matthews and John Recker, all from Livonia Adray, kept Lansing off the scoreboard. Michigan National Bank's Clint Scollard singled twice and Walter's Bob Foust just missed a home run in the first inning when the ball caromed off the screen in left field, just below the foul pole.

Foust settled for a double.

Don Dombey: Slugger is at a career crossroad again

By Chris McCosky
staff writer

The Adray Baseball League serves a multitude of purposes for its players. To most, it provides a competitive atmosphere wherein they can work on their game and prepare for the upcoming fall college baseball season.

To others, though, it is perhaps a final chance to showcase their skills to professional scouts — one last shot at fulfilling the dream of someday wearing a Major League uniform.

Two of the players performing for the Livonia Adray team in Monday's Adray All-Star Game at Tiger Stadium fit the latter description.

Don Dombey and John Recker went into Monday's game with one expressed purpose — impress the scouts.

Recker, a 1981 graduate of Farmington Harrison High School, has not found college to his liking. After helping the Hawks to the Class B state semifinals as a junior and a district championship in his senior year, Recker enrolled at Oakland Community College.

THE STOCKY-built young man played two years at OCC. He toiled both in the outfield and on the mound. Then last year he transferred to Cleve-

Payne classy in final defeat

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Craig Payne's quest for a spot on the U.S. Olympic Boxing Team rested squarely in the hands of five judges Saturday in the finals of the Olympic Box-offs at Caesars Palace in Las Vegas.

The super-heavyweight from Livonia lost a close 3-2 decision to Tyrell Biggs of Philadelphia, Pa. in a nationally televised match that was determined by no fewer than one point on four of the five judges' scorecards.

Well-known U.S. judges Robert Surkin and Rolly Schwartz each scored the fight 59-58 in favor of Payne, while Tony Filippelli and Elmo Adolph each gave the edge to Biggs, 59-58.

The swing vote appeared to belong to Massachusetts judge Eddie Urbek, who scored it 60-58 — Biggs.

"I fought my heart out and I tried everything the last round," said Payne in the post-fight press conference afterwards. "There wasn't any use of saving anything. It was the last fight and for all the marbles. I wish him (Biggs) all the luck in the world. I'm behind him 100 percent."

The heartbreaking loss came on the heels of Payne's greatest triumph in his 3 1/2-year amateur career.

ON FRIDAY NIGHT, Payne stunned the amateur boxing ranks by scoring his first victory in five tries against Biggs, a convincing 4-1 decision.

Payne, who lost a 5-0 decision to Biggs in the Olympic Trials last month in Fort Worth, Texas, looked like a different fighter in the Friday night rematch.

The 23-year-old Payne dominated action from the opening bell, beating

"I fought my heart out and I tried everything the last round. There wasn't any use of saving anything. It was the last fight and for all the marbles."

— Craig Payne
Olympic runner up the taller Biggs to every punch. Although tiring at the end, the aggressive Payne built a healthy lead with quick jabs and punishing body shots against the reigning World Champion.

During Friday's telecast, ABC commentator Howard Cosell said he had been told by Payne: "I'm the lightest I've ever been."

Payne, who weighed in at a season-low 217 pounds, attributed the win to "better conditioning."

"I gave it everything I had and he (Biggs) didn't get off like he usually does," Payne said. "The conditioning paid off. I ran longer and did more sprints."

"IT WAS the sweetest victory we've ever had," said Livonia Boxing Club coach Paul Soucy. "We went in knowing we had to take it to Biggs."

Biggs went into the match complaining of sore ribs.

"The last three fights we had with Biggs were not good," said coach Dick Quilton of the LBC. "We wanted a good fight this time and I took advantage of Tyrell's condition. It was a decisive victory."

Can O&E tourney equal drama of 1983?

Can either of this year's Observer & Eccentric/Whispering Willows golf tournaments capture the dramatic flair of last year's classics?

It would require quite an effort. Ann Lauer of Birmingham was crowned as women's champion, but she had to out-duel Livonia's GERALYN Repasky down the stretch before claiming the title.

And in the men's tourney, John Van Vleck of Farmington Hills needed a record effort to pull out a victory over Kevin Ryan of Livonia.

Lauer and Van Vleck each won by a single stroke.

Lauer shot an 81 to claim the victory over three-time O&E tourney runner-up Repasky. Lauer beat the odds in claiming the title: she never played Whispering Willows until the tournament, and she had no idea Repasky was only a single stroke behind (despite being in the same foursome) as they hit their drives at the 18th hole.

THE SCENARIO was quite different for Van Vleck. He had won two previous O&E tournaments and had the advantage of playing 90 minutes behind Ryan. Ryan carded a 139, tying Mike Kerr's 1978 tourney record.

golf

But Ryan's name stayed in the record book only until Van Vleck finished with his 138. As Van Vleck started the 15th hole, he had a two-stroke lead over the already-finished Ryan. That advantage slipped to one, but he fired a closing-round 68 to win by a stroke.

Some 240 golfers living within the circulation area of the Observer & Eccentric newspapers competed for honors in last year's tournaments.

The 1984 version of the O&E women's tourney will be Wednesday, Aug. 22. As in the past, it will be 18 holes of medal play.

The men's tournament will be Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 22-23, with 18 holes of medal play slated for each day.

COMPETITION WILL be divided into four flites: championship, first, second and third. Plaques will be presented to low-gross and low-net winners.

Entries for the women's tournament are due no later than 6 p.m. Aug. 17. Men's entries must be in by 6 p.m. Sept. 15.

The cost for the women's tournament is $15, while the men's fee is $30. Participants must reside within the O&E coverage area. Other pertinent information is included with the coupon or can be obtained by calling Whispering Willows Golf Course at 476-4493.

Will this year's tournaments match the excitement of last year's? There's only one way to find out — be there!

Women's, Men's golf tournament sponsored by O & E/Whispering Willows

Chipping tips are stroke savers

My first column concerns the golf swing and ways to lower scores.

I'm going to start with the most important of stroke-savers — the principles of chipping or short pitch shots.

The principles of chipping are important; a good chipper (or short game player) may par any hole regardless of a topped or popped up tee shot. Even a terrible second shot can be salvaged if followed by a good pitch or chip shot close enough to one-putt.

FOLLOW THESE four basic rules for chipping:

- Select a club that will allow you to land the shot onto the green with the proper trajectory and force to make it bounce and roll to the cup. Generally, use less loft on short chips (seven or eight iron) and more loft on longer shots.

- Choke down on the club shaft as you address the ball. This assures maximum club control. Also, at address, play the ball far enough back in stance so that your hands lead the club. Pull your left foot back slightly, opening up your stance. The wrists should remain firm throughout the stroke and there should be little or no body movement. Keep your head still, just like on a putt.

- Imagine a short chip shot from just off the green (or on the fringe) as being nothing more than a long putt. As you address the ball, imagine the amount of force you would need for such a putt. Then chip the ball with the same amount of force.

- Strike your chip shots with a short and firm, but smooth, stroke. See that your hands lead the club head into the ball and then continue toward the target without turning, keeping club head square to the target like a putter.

golf

KEEP IN MIND chip shots produce a minimum of backspin, thus helping the ball attain a true bounce and roll. Pitch shots, with a pitching wedge or sand wedge, produce a maximum of backspin and little roll.

Also keep in mind that in both chipping and/or pitching, as well as putting, PRACTICE MAKES PERFECT!!

Gary Whitener is in his 16th year as golf pro at Livonia's Whispering Willows Golf Course. Whitener also serves as secretary for the Michigan PGA. This is Whitener's first in a series of golf tips, designed to help all types of golfers improve their game.

Dombey dreams of pro chance

land State. He was to be the team's short-relief specialist a la Willie Hernandez, but found himself on the academically ineligible list instead.

After sitting out last baseball season, Recker's career is in limbo.

"I'm kind of just waiting to see what happens," he said Monday. "I may sit out next year then go to Michigan State University."

If he does that, he'll have one year of eligibility left. In the meantime, Recker is keeping his strong right arm intact by pitching for the Livonia Adray team.

"John throws the ball real hard," said Livonia coach Ron Hellier. "He's up in the mid to high 90s (mph) most of the time. But, he can only go two or three innings at a time."

But, in those two or three innings, Recker has been one of the toughest pitchers in the league. Against the Lansing All-Stars Monday, Recker worked the final two innings, allowed just one hit and fanned four. He was, arguably, Livonia's most impressive pitcher on the day.

RECKER REMINDS many Adray experts of another strong right-handed relief specialist that used to throw for Hellier's Livonia team. His name was Jim Ross. Ross caught the scouts' eye two years ago and signed with the Detroit Tigers. Last word was that Ross was still in the Tiger organization. Recker would like nothing more than to follow in Ross's footsteps.

"I really don't know what I'm going to do," Recker said after the game Monday. "I'd like to get signed. That would solve all my problems."

Don Dombey would probably echo Recker's sentiments. Dombey was a highly touted infielder coming out of Plymouth-Canton in 1983. A powerful right-handed hitter, Dombey clubbed 10 home runs in his junior year at Canton. In fact, he was the team's leading hitter in both his junior and senior years.

DOMBEY ACCEPTED a baseball scholarship to Ocala Junior College in Central Florida. He was hitting over .400 in the fall, but was ineligible to play in the spring.

Now Dombey's baseball future is every bit as clouded as Recker's. Dombey will either return to Ocala — his baseball scholarship still awaits him — or transfer to Central Arizona University. His father may be getting transferred out to Phoenix.

"I really don't know what I'm going to do," said the personable third baseman. "I have a month to make a decision. A lot depends on what my dad does."

Dombey batted twice Monday. He triggered a three-run rally in the fifth with a smash to shortstop that was ruled an error. He popped out in the seventh.

"It was great to play here," Dombey said of Tiger Stadium. "A great thrill for me."

A pro contract would no doubt be an even greater thrill.

It's Canton in a walk

By Chris McCosky
staff writer

You may as well turn out the lights, because the party is just about over.

The Canton Elks Connie Mack baseball team is making a mockery of the Redford Adray League. About the only person not conceding victory to the Elks is their coach, Dave Racer.

"Hey, we still have an awful long way to go yet," said Racer.

Right. There are nine games left in the regular season. Canton is 12-0. The closest rival is Redford Union Don Foss. Foss has three losses, two administered by the Elks.

The battle is clearly for second place in the Redford Adray league.

But, Racer does have some legitimate concerns. He has to make sure his club doesn't get complacent, especially with tournament time just around the corner.

FROM THE looks of things, complacency won't be a problem for the Elks. Last Tuesday, they pounded Salem Elks 20-9. It was the team's fifth mercy-rule-shortened victory this season.

baseball

John Nissen was the winning pitcher against Salem, benefitting from a massive hit parade led by Tim Collins (4-for-5) and Chris Parsons (2-for-3 with two home runs).

Tom Moore, Chris Belhart, Doug Kirkpatrick and Jim Lynch each had a pair of hits for Salem.

On Thursday, Canton came back to whip Oakland 13-5. Mark Bennett was the winning pitcher. Parsons again was the hitting star, going 2-for-4 with another home run. Tim Michalik went 2-for-2.

That set up Saturday's semi-showdown with second-place Redford Union. Union came in with an awful lot to prove. Last time the two league leaders met, Canton pounded on them 17-0.

"We'll give them a better game next time," vowed RU coach Glenn Murdoch. Indeed they did. Canton prevailed, 5-2, but it wasn't easy.

RU hurler Mike Wilkins pitched no-hit ball at Canton for the first 4 1/2 innings and RU held a 2-0 lead.

BUT, WITH two outs in the fifth, John Longridge doubled. Jeff Wittner walked and a wild pitch put the runners on second and third. Parsons, who else, came through with a two-run game-tying single.

Meanwhile, Nissen was keeping RU at bay. The strong right-hander fanned eight and allowed just five hits in seven innings. His efforts were rewarded by three Canton runs in the seventh. RU errors set the table for Parsons and Collins who delivered RBI singles.

"Our task the rest of the way is to prepare for the tournament," said Racer. "We've got a lot of things to work on yet."

That's for sure. In their last two games, Canton has actually had to go the full seven innings. Must be a slump.

Adray tops Team Canada

By Chris McCosky
staff writer

John DePillo was waiting his turn at bat in the seventh inning Monday.

His team, Livonia Adray, was trailing the Canadian Olympic baseball team 5-3 in the fifth annual exhibition staged at Ford Field in Livonia.

"You know something," he said to a friend beside the dugout. "I haven't hit one out in a while."

The friend replied, "Why don't you do it then?"

"I think I will," DePillo said.

And doggone it if he didn't walk up there and swat a 2-1 pitch over the right-center field fence for a grand slam home run to ignite Livonia's dramatic 10-6 win.

The loss finished a tiring six-games-in-five-days tour through Canada and Michigan for the Canadian Olympic team. The team had defeated the Detroit Adray All-Stars earlier in the day Monday, 7-3, at Tiger Stadium.

THE CANADIANS boarded a plane bound for Holland Wednesday where they will play an eight-game sweep through Europe before heading to Los Angeles for the Olympics Aug. 1.

"I don't know about the players, but I sure am tired," said personable Canadian coach Eric MacKenzie.

What was billed as an exhibition turned into a highly competitive nine-inning slugfest that left the Livonians immensely pleased. "Bring on the hockey team," they chanted. But the Canadians only longed for a nice, soft bed.

"That is the type of intensity we have got to play with in the playoffs," said Livonia coach Ron Hellier, whose Collegiate Adray League team appears bound for a trip to the AAABA World Series in Johnstown, Penn., this year. "That's why this type of game is so important for us. We have six more games, then the playoffs."

It was only the second time in four games the Livonians have been able to beat the Canadian national team, which has been ranked No. 5 in the world this year. Last year's exhibition was rained out.

DePillo was the hero, with a 3-for-4, five RBI hitting performance. But give some credit to the wise, veteran coach.

FIRST OF all, it was Hellier who noted a flaw in the way a slumping DePillo was holding the bat. A quick adjustment and DePillo knocks ropes all over the field.

Then, in the top of the eighth, Hellier's always-observant eyes may have saved the day. With his team clinging to a 7-5 lead, Canada put runners on first and second with two out. Doug McPhail then drilled a Brian Porter fastball into right center. A double that scored two runs and tied the game.

"Appeal third, appeal third," Hellier came charging out of the dugout.

Sure enough, the second runner had missed third base and the umpire called him out. Make it 7-6 after 7 1/2 instead of 7-7 with a runner still on second.

The game offered a good deal of excitement to the large crowd that lined the open Ford Field diamond.

There were four long home runs in the game. Three by Canadian hitters. John Ivan's solo shot cut into Livonia's early 2-0 lead in the third. Rob Thomson's two-run shot put Canada ahead in the fourth — those were off Livonia starter David Rodriguez.

Jay Bobel came on in the fifth for Livonia and yielded an opposite-field shot to Scott Maxwell. It was a 5-2 game after 6 1/2.

THE LIVONIA bats finally came alive in the seventh and eighth. They scored five in the seventh with DePillo's blast, and three more in the eighth to sew things up.

John Recker came on in the last inning to register a save for the Adray bunch. Bobel, who plays for Michigan State University, got credit for the win. Canada's Alain Patenaude was stuck with the loss.

It's on to Holland for the Canadian Olympians and, hopefully, on to Johnstown for Adray.

United kickers move on

The United under-12 girls soccer team has advanced to the Michigan State Youth Soccer Association Midwest Regional Tournament July 20 at Schoolcraft Community College in Livonia.

United, a first-year select team from Plymouth, Canton, Northville and Farmington, has a 15-3-2 record this year. The team, organized by Canton coach Mike Morgan and coached by Bob Dart, has won the Midland Invitational championship, the Bonanza Premier Under 12 League championship, the Michigan State Cup and were runners up at last weekend's Wolverine Five Tournament.

After the Midwest Regional, which is the pinnacle of the Under 12 season and features 11 teams from 11 different states, United will compete in the Blue Water Invitational in Sarnia.

Apple computers sponsor MSHL

By Chris McCosky
staff writer

There are miles of smiles around the Midwest Summer Hockey League headquarters these days.

Yes, the league is more evenly balanced than ever and the level of hockey talent is supreme. But, that's not why the MSHL folks are so happy.

The league has finally got a sponsor — that's the reason for the euphoria. "We couldn't be happier," said MSHL Commissioner A.J. Baker.

The MSHL is now sponsored by Apple Computers, specifically, Apple's manufacturing representative firm in Ann Arbor, the ELM Group.

What that seems to mean is, the MSHL will be around a long, long time — a fact that was in doubt until now.

MEANWHILE ON the ice, the eight teams got back into action at the Plymouth Cultural Center after a July 4 break.

The Bulldogs got their first victory of the season Monday night beating a good Spartans team 7-2. Ann Arbor Pioneer's Tim Helber and Patrick Marody, who plays junior hockey with Data Vision, each tallied a pair of goals.

After a 1-1 first period, the Bulldogs erupted for five straight goals to blow the Spartans off the ice. Keith Helber, Steve Shellman and Jeff Dobek also scored for the Bulldogs.

The Spartans got goals from a pair of well-known collegiates — Jeff Easley from Michigan State and Troy Thrun from Western Michigan.

The Spartans are 3-2 on the season while the Dogs are 1-3.

THE FALCONS, once the hottest team in the league, have fallen back to earth. The Huskies handed the Falcons their second straight loss Monday, 8-5.

And the Huskies can thank the perseverance of goalie Jeff Johnston for the win. Johnston started his first game of the season Sunday and got shelled 9-1 by the Wolverines. But, against the Falcons Monday, he was tough to beat allowing just two goals through the first two periods.

But the Falcons, behind the league's leading scorers, fought its way back into the game with three third-period goals. Mike Donnelly and Kerry Kennedy, who lead the MSHL with 14 points each, did the damage.

Donnelly, another Michigan State standout, scored the hat-trick giving him 10 goals on the season. Kennedy, from Bowling Green, and Jon Doebr from Colby College also scored.

The Huskies are 3-2 while the Falcons are now 2-2-1.

The MSHL action continues with one game at 8:30 p.m. Thursday and three more beginning at 6:30 Sunday night.

Rowdies get Wolverine title

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Three area teams came away with titles last weekend in the prestigious Wolverine V soccer tournament at Schoolcraft College.

Over 200 teams and 3,900 players competed for titles in 11 age divisions. The three-day tournament, which ended Monday, drew nearly 12,000 fans.

The area champions included FLIP Rowdies, who captured the girls under-19 division for the second straight year; the Livonia Diamonds, boys 14 (Division I); and Vardar III, boys 14 (Division II). FLIP stands for Farmington, Livonia, Plymouth.

The Rowdies, Midwest Regional champions, beat Centerville Micromil of Ohio for the title, 1-0.

Kim Reeves scored the winning goal on a cross-header from Sue Ferguson with eight minutes to go. Goalie Doreen Beagle, who made 18 saves, earned the shutout.

"THEY (Centerville) beat us three times prior to the final," said Rowdies coach Dave Lussier. "It was a goal we wanted to accomplish before the tournament. It was the last bit of finished business you could say."

Lussier said that defense was the key to the championship win.

Led by defenders Cheryl Galindo, Margie Wangbichler, Danielle Montroy, Chris Lussier and Sheri Wolfe, the Rowdies posted three shutout victories en route to the crown.

"The defense kept us in the games until our offense got going," Lussier said. "We set the same pattern that we had in the Midwest Regional. We got a little stronger each game."

The Greenhill Gators earned a 3-3 tie against the Rowdies in first-round action. But the Rowdies came storming back with wins over Saginaw (6-0) and the Troy Eagles (4-0).

The all-around play of midfielder Kim Paterson carried the Rowdies past Troy.

The Rowdies trailed 1-0 against Saginaw before Dorene Dudek and Lussier scored to propel the Rowdies to an easy victory.

"The tie helped us come together a little more and to play stronger," Lussier said.

THE DIAMONDS, meanwhile, battled back to win their division after losing to Sparta, Ill. in the first round, 1-0.

A third-place team in the Bonanza League, the Diamonds beat Troy United for the championship, 2-0, on goals by Brian Thomas and Brian Daniel.

Troy United, which tied the Diamonds twice during the season, qualified recently for the Midwest Regional.

Getting a reprieve after the Sparta defeat, the Diamonds reached the final with wins over North Olmstead, Ohio (5-1) and London, Ont. Youth (1-0).

"We've had kind of hard luck all year," said Diamonds' coach Scotty Oxley. "We started the year with three fractured ankles and we lost two games to the WSSL Kicks. But we won the Midland Tournament. That gives us two titles in four tournaments, so that's not too bad."

VARDAR III, comprised primarily of Livonia players, rallied to beat Livonia United, 3-2, for the Boys under-14 Division II crown.

Dave Dinglie scored the game winner with just under a minute to play. Bill Stoyanovich scored the other two Vardar goals after United had built a 2-0 halftime lead on a halftime lead, both on corner kicks.

Vardar, coached by Walt Barrett, reached the championship match with a narrow 3-2 semifinal win over the Troy Mavericks.

It was the fourth title this season for Vardar, which won the Buckeye Tournament, the second half of the Four Seasons Indoor League and the Bonanza League. The team is 34-4-2 for the year.

Buddy Rich is a dynamo on the drums

band displayed great musical compatibility with bandleader Buddy.

AN OLD BEATLES hit, "Norwegian Wood," showcased the talents of tenor saxophonist Steve Marcus, who has been in the orchestra more than 20 years. The mutual admiration between drummer and saxman was clearly notable in more than one tune.

The two newcomers in the band, having just joined two weeks earlier, are Mark Pinto, second alto, and Todd Schwartz, trumpet. The horn and reed sections complemented each other all night and were very much apparent on "Talk of a Rhoda Rat" and the final number "West Side Story."

Of the more than 50 albums on which Rich has performed, many have been with his orchestra, over which he has creative control. This

"creative control," he said, "which is why I've never had a hit." His next album with his band will be "Live from Europe" later this year. "I like the sound to feel natural, have some spontaneity," Rich said of his music.

The great jazzman, J.C. Heard of Troy, once told this writer about the time in New York when there was a battle of the drummers with himself, his "old" friend Buddy Rich and Gene Krupa. Krupa was No. 1, Rich

No. 2 and J.C. was No. 3. But Rich doesn't remember it like that. "It wasn't a battle, just three great drummers making music and trading ideas, but with those two I must have come in third."

Closing the show, Rich commented on J.C. Heard, "J.C. is an old friend of mine. In fact, he's very old." Now, c'mon fellas, be nice and go to your corner, and when the bell rings, come out swinging.

Chamber winds deserve fair share of attention

By Avigdor Zaromp
special writer

Members of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra (DSO) maintain a busy schedule these days, in preparing two separate programs each week for the ongoing Meadow Brook Festival.

For some musicians the schedule is even busier. One such group is the Detroit Chamber Winds, made up of DSO wind and brass players and their conductor, Robert Reynolds.

Their recent program was presented at the Rackham Auditorium in Ann Arbor. This was part of the Ann Arbor Summer Festival, which had just begun.

The event, starting at 11 a.m., was just the beginning of their day. They conveyed their apologies to the audience for being unable to stay for a reception and left for an early afternoon rehearsal at Meadow Brook where they were scheduled to perform at 6 p.m. that evening.

Having attended both events as a listener, I felt like a sleepwalker at the end of the day even without the pressure of a performance.

THIS HEAVY schedule didn't markedly affect their highly proficient performance on this program. The three selections consisted of a divertimento by Haydn and serenades by Mozart and Dvorak.

The Haydn Divertimento No. 1 might have been a forgotten work today had Brahms not taken upon himself to write his famous set of orchestra variations. Indeed, the second movement of the Haydn work, which features the famous St. Antoni Chorale, is the best known movement of the entire work.

While at the conclusion of this movement one might have instinctively wished that it were followed by the familiar Brahms variations, the performance of the subsequent movements showed that they have considerable merit, even though I still consider the Brahms work to be musically more profound.

A crowd-pleaser 'Baby Traps' or Buddy Rich, he's still drumming

By E. Cory Monson
special writer

HE HASN'T HAD a hit record, but he's played in front of millions. He's shared the stage with Frank Sinatra, Ella Fitzgerald, Tommy Dorsey, Zoot Sims, J.C. Heard and other greats. His real name is Bernard Rich, A.K.A. Buddy Rich.

The Buddy Rich orchestra entered a near-sellout crowd for a single appearance one night last week at Jamie's on 7 in Livonia. The audience was in awe of Rich's virtuosity with his drumsticks and his band's enthusiastic, swinging play.

Without an introduction, the band onstage was gearing up for the first of two sets when Rich started tapping out a beat that led into "God Bless the Child." Though Rich's face showed signs of a cold that he couldn't shake for four days, his muscular arms and feet marched to a different beat as he displayed his mastery of the traps in Duke Ellington's "Cathedral."

His style is all his own. Casual and relaxed, he pounded away a drum solo on "Up Jump Spring," then swished with his brushes like you brush barbecue sauce on a turkey, gingerly, on the Miles Davis classic "All Blues."

THAT EASYGOING look that

Rich displays is a treat to see. Some 18 months ago before a concert in Ann Arbor, he had a heart attack and underwent heart bypass surgery. There were those who thought he might, and should, retire.

Later, in a brief interview, Rich indicated he was annoyed by the idea that he would retire. "I've recovered and there's no reason I should retire. I'm not an airline pilot, and I don't have to get out. I'll play as long as I can, because that's what I do, play!"

And play he did!

"One O'Clock Jump," the Count Basie tune, which was no doubt a tribute to Rich's late, great friend the Count, was spectacular. Midge Ellis, special events coordinator at Schoolcraft College in Livonia, who has seen Rich numerous times, exclaimed, "That was the most dynamic arrangement I've ever seen Buddy play. It was great."

Rich closed the set with "Good News" and addressed the crowd for the first time.

"We'll be back in 20 minutes, same songs, same set, who cares!" Rich then made reference to the show he did two weeks before at Meadow Brook Music Festival on the Oakland University campus near Rochester. Referring to Vic Damone's low-key style, which apparently lulled the audience into a sleepy state, he said, "I worked with Vic Damone a couple weeks ago. He was so good. Can you imagine what's he's like when you're awake."

THE CROWD WAS roaring. Jamie Coe, co-owner of Jamie's, was beaming that both performer and audience were having a good time. "Buddy loves the audience, and the crowd certainly loves him," Coe said. "He's a very talented man."

Rich has always been a crowd-pleaser. Just before walking off-stage to take a break, he said, "If you have any requests, please keep them to yourselves."

Born in 1917, the man they used to call "Baby Traps" started out as a boy wonder in vaudeville as a singer/dancer with his parents in a family act. A self-taught drummer, he has won numerous polls and awards and has been deemed by critics "the fastest drummer in the world."

In regard to young drummers copying his style, "I'm flattered, but musicians should move on and play their own material, their own style," Rich said during the interview.

The second set opened with the only original number by a member of the band, "No Exit," written by Bill Cunliff. He's the smooth piano player who along with the whole

Rich and his band played two sets at Jamie's. The band also was at Meadow Brook Music Festival recently, sharing the bill with singer Vic Damone.

"Soylent Green" (1973), 12:30 Monday night on Ch. 7. Originally 100 minutes. TV time slot: 120 minutes.

"The Victors" (1963), 1 Friday night on Ch. 50. Originally 175 minutes. TV time slot: 174 minutes.

Vince Edwards, Albert Finney, George Hamilton, George Peppard, Eli Wallach, Senta Berger, Melina Mercouri, Jeanne Moreau, Romy Schneider and Elke Sommer co-star in this sprawling World War II opus that's right on the money when combat rages but which too often bogs down in the unlikely romances of the dogfaces it otherwise so realistically portrays. Only "The Big Red One" (1982) comes to mind as better capturing the everyday agonies of regular GI Joe. So filter out the pulp and tune in to the soldiers' travail.

Rating: $2.85.

"Magnum Force" (1973), 11:45 p.m. Saturday on Ch. 7. Originally 124 minutes. TV time slot: 140 minutes.

"Magnum Force" is the disappointingly lurid sequel to "Dirty Harry," the film in which Clint Eastwood originated the character of San Francisco police detective Harry Callahan. Most of the wit and irony of the original is missing but, rest assured, Eastwood makes the most of his opportunities to engage in gunplay and spout right wing, reactionary rhetoric. David Soul, Robert Urich, Hal Holbrook and Tim Matheson co-star.

Auto World: part theme park, part history

The stuffed bear in front of Todd's Tavern will be bald before they finish the first month of operation at Auto World in Flint.

Anybody older than 6 is attracted to this 300,000-square-foot indoor entertainment complex because it is themed to the automobile, but toddlers are more interested in bears.

Especially real stuffed bears that are as high as a kindergarten's eye when the bear is sitting down and the kid is standing up.

Every kid who goes past the reconstructed tavern building, just across the river from Jacob Smith's cabin, pats the bear on the head. Jacob's cabin is the first stop in the 70-foot-high dome which is the entrance building at Auto World.

THE DOME is dedicated to fun and games in two historic eras of Flint's history: the log cabin days of the fur trader and the brick street days when one-of-a-kind traveler

Iris Jones

contributing travel editor

Flint was a major manufacturer of horse-drawn carriages.

If you had your eyes open when you drove off Interstate 475 and into the parking lot, you know what has happened to Flint since. Flint is a General Motors town, with automotive factories marking the skyline in every direction.

Jacob the fur trader gives you a little history through one of those miracles that make a plastic dummy talk, smile and roll his eyes around.

Across the river and past the bear you curve into turn-of-the-century Saginaw Street where musicians, jugglers and sidewalk players delight the kids on their way to the first hands-on entertainments.

All this activity, set among 200 tropical trees and 2,500 shrubs in a 70-degree setting, makes you realize the advantage of an indoor theme park. It is never too hot to ride the bumper cars at the Traffic Jam and the dads will still be elbowing the kids away from the remote control cars when snow is flying in the middle of a Michigan winter.

It is a busy but low-key setting with a balcony restaurant overlooking the treetops. The fish of the day, or a generous serving of roast beef, cost $5.95. Unfortunately the setting and the moderate prices are more impressive than the food. Those who prefer chicken and hot dogs on a paper plate can settle into the patio tables below.

Your $8.95 admission fee to Auto World (free for kids under 3) gives free admission to everything except a few coin-operated machines, although you may have to stand in line for some of the special events after you leave the dome for the auto-related exhibit area.

THE THREE-STORY high, red six-cylinder engine that dominates the rotunda sets the theme for what follows. The engine is the heart of the auto so there it is, revolving above exhibits of smaller cutaway models, with more hands-on activities around it.

Computerized machines allow you to play games, design a car or see what happens when you drink and drive.

The most popular event in this area is Automotive Wonders where animated mechanical musicians play their guitars and bass fiddles while crowds watch the past and future of the automobile on surrounding screens, and a real working robot, the kind used on a real assembly line, spot welds a car frame and occasionally nods its head to the music.

There are several auto-related exhibits and entertainments on the second and third floors, but the traffic jams occur at the huge-screen IMAX film entitled "SPEED," a film showing "The Car of Your Dreams" through 35 years worth of television commercials and at the two experiential rides.

THESE ARE definitely not for roller coaster fans. The Great Race takes you on old-fashioned "cars" down a track through the great auto races: high speed down the Daytona Speedway and twisting through French village streets during the Le Mans Grand Prix.

The Humorous History of Automobility

ity, which had waiting times of an hour when I was there, takes you on the same kind of old cars down a track through the craziest dreams of technicians gone wild and witty: from the monkeys in It All Started with a Rock, past the Mexican Jumping Bean Machine and Michigan Auto Parts (A Division of Fly-By-Night) to Sell-You Lloyd the Dealing Droid.

Auto World was built with an unusual combination of private and public money and is being run by Six Flags, which operates theme parks around the country. It is part of a massive effort to inject new life into the sagging economy of Flint, which has the pleasure and pain of being based too strongly on the auto industry.

A complex centered on a new Hyatt Regency hotel has already opened nearby. Several other shopping centers, parks, and office complexes are planned for the surroundings, including a 40,000-square-foot Water St. Market developed by James Rouse, developer of Faneuil Hall in Boston.

Auto World will be open year-round. Hours are 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. through Labor Day. Winter hours are not firm yet, but may be limited to weekends.

Auto World is in downtown Flint just off I-75, 65 miles north of Eight Mile Road in Detroit. Follow signs to I-475 and Exit 8-B. Park adjacent to the building if you're lucky; otherwise park blocks away and take the shuttle bus.

MICKY JONES

Auto World (above), which opened last week, is in downtown Flint just off I-75. Follow signs to I-475 and Exit 8-B. Hours are 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. through Labor Day.

Racing commissioner has 'good bet' for state

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Michigan is missing a good bet, says state Racing Commissioner William S. Ballenger.

"The state is taking, taking, taking (from bettors) and putting nothing back. Michigan has the highest tax on racing in the country," said Ballenger, 43, in his Plymouth office.

If state government and the "stodgy" industry promoted horse racing a fraction as much as the state promotes its own lottery, the result could be healthier revenues for all, he said.

NEVERTHELESS, Ballenger insists horse racing is a better wager for the bettor than the state-run lottery.

"Bettors get back 80 cents on $1 bet in racing. That's better than the lottery, which pays back 45 cents on a dollar."

"The (Bureau of the) Lottery spends $6.5 million to advertise itself. The lottery takes no skill. It provides no entertainment."

"Racing spent barely $1 million, cumulatively, to advertise itself in 1983. That's what I'm yelling about all the time."

Michigan's average tax on racetrack bets is 6.23 percent, highest in the nation, said Ballenger, a Republican of moderately conservative views. His approach to the job he has held for a little more than a year is one of promoting economic growth in an industry with a $2-billion investment providing 12,000 jobs.

The bulk of racing activity is at the Detroit Racing Association course in Livonia (thoroughbred runners and harness), Hazel Park (both kinds) and Northville Downs (harness). Outstate tracks include Jackson, Saginaw Valley Downs and Glendale Downs.

HE SHAKES his head at the suggestion of cutting racing dates to improve quality of races by eliminating inferior horses.

"The horse supply can support more races," he said. "You can make a case that, yes, cut the number of racing dates in half. The daily average of attendance and betting would go up very slightly — but nowhere near enough to cover the overall loss from fewer racing dates. I've examined the data from other states."

The Ballenger plan for improving the industry:

• On the demand side, promote racing more vigorously and make tracks more attractive by offering tax credits to improve aging tracks.

• On the supply side, cut Michigan's 6.23-percent tax on wagering to the 3.7-percent average of other states. Offer better purses to horse owners, and attract better horses. Revise racing rules.

Of the tax-cut proposal, he says, "The $11 million in lost revenue is insignificant in a $9-billion state budget. It is penny-wise and pound-foolish to destroy the racing industry (through high taxes)."

BALLENGER BROUGHT to the job his experiences in legislative politics, governmental administration and even some knowledge of farming, though little of racing. (The racing commissioner is organized under the Department of Agriculture.)

With a bachelor's degree magna cum laude from Princeton University and a master's in public administration from Harvard, the Flint native was a state representative at 28 and state senator. He was director of Licensing and Regulation for Gov. William G. Milliken and an assistant during the Ford Administration to then-HEW Secretary Caspar Weinberger.

Two tries for Congress — one for the House and another in 1982 for the Senate nomination — were unsuccessful. But he has been honored with a distinguished service award from the Michigan Agricultural Conference and as one of Michigan's five outstanding young men by the Jaycees.

Ballenger is analytical, ebullient, erudite. The most prominent poster in his office is not a politician or a triple-crown winner but the journalistic curmudgeon of Baltimore, H.L. Mencken.

RACING HAS been going steadily downhill in Michigan, both in attendance and wagering, for years, though the number of racing dates has been doubled in the last two decades.

Attendance at six meets last year was just under 2.6 million, lowest since 1963. The picture is worse than it appears, however, because 20 years ago there were only 326 racing days vs. 695 days in 1983.

But Ballenger sees some good signs: Parimutuel wagering totaled $355 million, up from a year earlier but still below the 1974 level.

"Attendance at harness horse racing was up for the first time since 1975, reversing nearly a decade-long decline," Ballenger said. "Wagering on harness racing in 1983 totalled over $215 million, an increase of more than $5.3 million or 2.56 percent, over 1982."

Why the slight upturn? Ballenger had three answers: "The steadily improving state economy; the absence of labor strife (first year since 1979 with no strikes) and the 'Say Yes to Michigan Horse Racing' promotional campaign."

"OUR TRACK population is changing. We're not attracting the young," Ballenger said.

"In terms of betting, per-capita betting continues to be high. It (the problem) is not what the patrons bet but getting them there in the first place. In Michigan, as the industry keeps losing the entertainment dollar, you're getting a concentration of the gamblers (compared to spectators). So the per-capita bet stays high.

"Michigan is losing population, and the younger ones are leaving. I don't think that shift is so pronounced, though, that racing couldn't make up for it."

"The industry is extremely conservative, not creative; unimaginative, stodgy, in a period of retrenchment."

BALLENGER points to a couple of administrative accomplishments in his short tenure:

• Sharon Whitesell, the first female deputy commissioner ever.

• Sheila Gaudreau, the only woman thoroughbred racing steward at a pari-mutuel track anywhere in the U.S.

• Lynwood Gallimore, the first black steward in Michigan racing history.

Charges of race fixing at Detroit-area tracks don't reflect directly on Ballenger. They are mainly an outgrowth of disputes between horse owners and the Hazel Park track.

"I welcome an investigation by anybody and everybody," said Ballenger. "We're cooperating in a kind of task force approach (with the FBI). If there's any validity to any of the charges, obviously I want to know about it, and the patrons of the tracks want to know about it."

"Racing depends on its integrity."

Anderson opens mental health clinic

Marcia Anderson, a 20-year resident of Plymouth, has opened a mental health and substance abuse treatment center at the Renaissance Center.

Personalized Care is staffed by master's and doctorally-prepared nurses who are certified mental health specialists and licensed substance abuse counselors.

The nurses use a research-tested treatment model called "personalized nursing" to assist clients in decreasing perceived stress and abuse of alcohol and drugs (if necessary) and to increase the patient's sense of well being.

Dr. Anderson was invited to present the treatment model to a government-sponsored conference in Washington, D.C. Personalized nursing will also be the subject of a government publication in 1985.

One of the outstanding aspects of the treatment model, says Anderson, is that it offers immediate relief for many stress conditions.

Personalized nursing has been offered at the Mental Health Nursing Clinic at Detroit Receiving Hospital since 1980. Nurses using Personalized nursing recently have moved to Personalized Care clinic.

The mental health and substance abuse treatment is provided in such a way that participation is not easily discernible by others. There is no identifying name on the door of Personalized Care which shares Suite 500 in the 400 Tower with business neighbors, says Anderson who stresses there is no way clinic clients can be differentiated from clients of other firms which share Suite 500.

House bill pushes up U.S. debt ceiling

Roll Call Report

Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes in the days before the current House and Senate recess.

HOUSE
DEBT — By a vote of 208 for and 202 against, the House passed a bill (HR 5953) raising the government's legal borrowing limit by $53 billion, to $1,873 billion or $1.87 trillion. The new ceiling will hold through August. The Senate also approved the measure, but refused to hold a record vote on the politically embarrassing issue.

Debate revealed that interest on the national debt will cost taxpayers $164.5 billion next fiscal year, and that the agency that manages the debt has 2,500 employees and an annual budget of $198 million.

Supporter Ed Jenkins, D-Ga., said, "If we want to cut down federal spending we should do that before the debts are incurred."

Opponent George Miller, D-Calif., called it "obligatory" to reject the bill "if the House is going to stand up for reducing our outrageous national deficit."

Members voting yes wanted to raise the national debt ceiling.

Voting yes: Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, William Ford, D-Taylor, William Broomfield, R-Birmingham.

Voting no: Dennis Hertel, D-Harper Woods, Sander Levin, D-Southfield.

EX-PRESIDENTS — By a vote of 180 for and 232 against, the House rejected an amendment to cut $890,000 from the $1.17 million appropriation for supporting former presidents Carter, Ford and Nixon in fiscal 1985. The outlay covers their $83,000 pensions, Secret Service protection, staff allowances and other expenses.

The vote occurred during debate on HR 5798, later sent to the Senate. On a separate vote, the House cut the $1.17 million figure by $147,000.

Sponsor Andrew Jacobs, D-Ind., noted that former presidents can parlay their governmental experience into huge lecture, book and corporate fees. "If you are making $1 million a year, you ought to at least be able to pay your secretary . . . your office rent," he said.

Opponent Silvio Conte, R-Mass., told Jacobs that "fighting for the little guy, toppling the kings of our day, makes great press," but overlooks the legitimate expenses faced by Carter, Ford and Nixon as former chiefs of state.

roll call report

Members voting no were opposed to the proposed 76 percent cut in 1985 outlays for former presidents.

Voting yes: Pursell, Hertel, Ford, Levin.

Voting no: Broomfield.

CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET — This House approved, 253 for and 157 against, the conference report on a bill (HR 5753) appropriating $1.55 billion to run the House, Senate and congressional agencies in fiscal 1985.

Conspicuously missing was a 2-percent, across-the-board cut the House had inflicted the first time it considered the bill. This was knocked out by the Senate (below) and replaced by lesser cuts. The bill increases House and Senate spending for salaries, travel, perks and other congressional expenses by $77 million over 1984 levels. Since 1970, Congress has quadrupled spending on itself.

Supporter Jerry Lewis, R-Calif., said the House should refrain from "self-flagellation" over a bill that represents only a tiny fraction of total federal spending.

Opponent Bill Frenzel, R-Minn., said defenders were using a "somewhat deceptive" arithmetic in justifying the bill as fiscally responsible.

Members voting yes favored a $1.55-billion 1985 budget for congressional operations.

Voting yes: Hertel, Ford, Levin.

Voting no: Pursell, Broomfield.

SENATE

CUT — The Senate voted, 39 for and 36 against, to eliminate a House-approved, 2-percent across-the-board cut in the fiscal 1985 legislative branch budget. As later signed into law, the bill (HR 5753) raises spending for the House, Senate and congressional agencies by 5 percent over 1984 levels, to $1.55 billion.

Jake Garn, R-Utah, said he favors item-by-item spending cuts rather than an indiscriminate across-the-board approach.

Opponent Don Nickles, R-Okla., said:

"For crying out loud, people have been telling us to get our house in order . . . we have to make some sacrifices as well."

Senators voting yes were opposed to a 2-percent across-the-board cut in the legislative branch budget.

Michigan Democrat Carl Levin voted no and Democrat Donald Riegle voted yes.

DRINKING — By a vote of 81 for and 16 against, the Senate approved legislation that pressures states to raise their minimum drinking age to 21 years. States not complying by 1987 stand to lose 5 per cent of their federal highway money in fiscal 1987 and 10 percent in fiscal 1988.

The provision was attached to HR 4616, which was headed for the White House and President Reagan's signature. The bill also provides financial incentives to encourage states to enact mandatory sentencing of drunk drivers.

Supporter Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., said the higher drinking age will "help put an end to the carnage on our nation's highways."

Calling the legislation "coercion and blackmail by the central government," opponent Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., said, "I believe it to be repugnant to the Constitution, inconsistent with sound principles of federalism and not in the best interests of our country."

Senators voting yes wanted states to set 21 as their minimum drinking age.

Democrats Levin and Riegle voted yes.

SUBSTITUTE — By a vote of 38 for and 63 against, the Senate rejected an attempt to water down legislation (above) to bring about a nationwide minimum drinking age of 21 years.

The substitute proposed that financial incentives, rather than penalties, be used to encourage compliance by states. And it enabled states to keep lower drinking ages as well as full federal highway funding if they significantly cut traffic deaths by other means.

Larry Pressler, R-S.D., who supported the substitute, said the use of federal penalties "raises serious constitutional questions about states' rights in our federal system."

Opponent Frank Lautenberg, D-N.J., said adoption of the substitute would mean "business as usual" on the nation's highways.

Senators voting yes wanted to soften legislation to bring about 21 years as the legal drinking age in all states.

Democrats Levin and Riegle voted no.

Capitol idea

Architect develops long-range plan

Bingham Farms-based architect Sigmund Blum may be best known on home turf for his design of the K mart World Headquarters in Troy, the First Federal Building in Detroit or the United Terminal at Metropolitan.

But, across the state, he's the architect behind the changing face of the Capitol complex in Lansing.

His grand design, conceived 20 some years ago, which would have made the complex a regional showplace, never made it. But, a modified plan is now taking shape.

The original called for a broad plaza, retaining the old Capitol at one end and new, contemporary-styled buildings for the executive, legislative and judicial branches at the other.

But, all isn't lost. Blum's two-section Ottawa Street Office Buildings, thin structures sitting on a podium with a sunken courtyard containing a stainless steel fountain, were completed last winter.

They came in $1 million under the estimated $44 million, something of a phenomenon in this time of continually rising costs.

To indulge in a bit of hindsight, had Blum's entire plan been carried out in the 1960s, it would have cost $40 million, now it would be at least five times that figure.

HIS NEW obelisk shaped Capitol Building, the basic design for which was approved in the 70s, is still on the drawing board.

Seated at his desk in the Bingham Farms office building, Blum said there never was any thought of demolishing the old Capitol which he said should be restored and maintained to "give a historical viewpoint" and house certain departments.

"The whole concept is to see the old Capitol at one end and the new one at the other," he said.

The Ottawa Street buildings are of limestone panels and thermal gray insulating glass. The panels match the exteriors of the Law and Mason buildings and blend with the Capitol.

The new buildings have four floors of office space above the plaza level and two below for computer space, conference center, cafeteria and parking.

Blum also designed the 25-foot tall stainless steel fountain, "Ottawa Falls," in the sunken court.

Blum completed his architectural studies at University of Illinois and has been a visiting professor at University of Detroit, University of Illinois, University of Michigan and Lawrence Institute of Technology.

He has also been active in local and national activities for the American Institute of Architects and has received more than 50 international, national and local design awards.

The stainless steel "Ottawa Falls" fountain, 25-foot tall, was designed by Sigmund Blum. The fountain with a stainless steel dish, 14 feet across and four feet deep, rests in a sunken courtyard by the Ottawa Street buildings at the western end of the complex.

View of the Michigan governmental complex in Lansing shows the twin Ottawa Street buildings in the foreground at the western end of the mall. The buildings in the complex have been limited to a height well below that of the Capitol dome.

The Ottawa Street buildings are the newest addition to the governmental complex. The stepped facades of the structures on the west and south are designed for shading and energy efficiency.

This is another in a series of lessons on art and drawing by special columnist David Messing. He has taught for eight years and operates an art store, Art Store and More, 18774 Middlebelt, Livonia. By David Messing
special writer

"You might as well give up... you know I'm going to win," these were my confident words as I looked my arms around my 14 year old son and began dragging him across our deck to throw him into the swimming pool. Then to my surprise I felt a strength that wasn't there last summer. To my greater surprise all 220 pounds of me was airborne, as I went into the pool. Talk about a revelation.

Thinking it was all a fluke, I said come on in boys, let's play keep away or as we call it, "slapshot ball." "Do you think you're stronger than your Dad... hey? Take this," I said as I grabbed Scott from behind. Well, what "used" to happen was I would grab Scott and push him down to the bottom until he let go of the ball. What did happen was that suddenly I was being held on the bottom and I didn't even have the ball. Finally the big bully let me up for air. Spitting and coughing, I with bruised and pulled "Oh, yeah... but I bet I can draw better than you."

If I look at that one too, Scott's picture will be in the upper left corner of next week's Artifacts.

What does a moment like that offer? To many it would be looked on purely from the humorous side. But, for an artist, it was an inspiration, truly a revelation, and a motivation toward creativity. With water still gurgling in my ears and wind pipe, I (the vanquished) sat in a lounge chair thinking. I remember those hands so small within my hands, when did they grow to become the same size as mine? Time is moving much too fast. And with its passage, too soon will my hands be weak within the hands of my son, as he in turn helps his aged father.

"HOW SILLY," you might be thinking, for a man 38 years old to be thinking about old age. Maybe so, but that inspiration and revelation forces the artist in me toward creativity. Creativity is the "fulfillment" or "follow through" of the artist to make visual his mental or spiritual inspiration. So at times, often inconvenient, the artist is hit with a thought or circumstance that triggers a whole series of emotions that seek fulfillment or creativity. What a waste if that inspiration dies for lack of fulfillment or visual expression.

I myself, at times, am a frustrated artist. Being an artist has blessed me with much artwork, being an art teacher has blessed me with many students and owning an art store has blessed me with many customers. Even though my clients in effect support me financially and my students and customers are like friends to me, still I must express my own creativity of my own inspirations. The press of business has temporarily placed my own art work on the shelf. But, the press of business does not stop inspiration nor creativity. I find fulfillment by writing down a few one liners here and there, that somewhat capes my inspiration. Then those few written lines freeze in time the emotion and inspiration until I can create a visual expression. Creativity is by definition, "to produce, or give being, form or shape to." Just as it is important to write down your inspirations, so it is just as important to be able to produce or form and shape the inspiration. For me, writing down the inspiration is the first step toward creating a visual expression.

Turn the page. How silly are you? Creativity is by definition, "to produce, or give being, form or shape to." Just as it is important to write down your inspirations, so it is just as important to be able to produce or form and shape the inspiration. For me, writing down the inspiration is the first step toward creating a visual expression.

Beach is all-year opportunity

Photography at the beach offers many creative opportunities over and above the standard snapshot.

The changes that take place at a beachfront can be dramatic especially from season to season. A small area in the summer can be packed with hundreds of oiled bodies competing for a place in the sand.

All of this turmoil and activity can make exciting pictures for your camera. But the same spot in winter becomes a gray barren wasteland full of mood and mystique.

A beachfront pier in summer is surrounded by bustling activity and accented by colorful beach umbrellas and surfboards. In winter, blistering winds peel away the paint and create a completely different mood.

Both of these extremes offer many potential images for your camera. So don't let the off-season keep you away from the beach.

LOOK closely next time you're at the beach. Rippled contours in the sand caused by a receding tide can be used either as an abstract subject or as a lead into a different subject such as a solitary figure.

Low sunlight and a low camera angle make sand contours more pronounced. Unusual rock formations, gnarled pieces of driftwood, or a pattern of tall beach grass all offer photographic potential.

photography
Monte Nagler

And keep on the lookout for unusual objects washed up on the beach after a storm.

If taking overall shots, make sure the horizon line is level. Nothing can be more distracting than a boat falling out of the photograph.

Use a low horizon line to get a picture with a feeling of spaciousness and a high horizon line to accentuate closeness.

Clouds and storms over the water can be truly dramatic. Often at the beach you'll see rays of sunlight breaking through the clouds and beaming down on the water. These breathtaking scenes can easily be captured on film.

Take a close look at waves, too. From the intimate crest of a wave receding along the sand to a full splashing high in the air, waves are thrilling subject matter.

Practice is key to style

FOR EXAMPLE If you are an accomplished pen and ink artist and are inspired by the softness and beauty of a sunset, would pen and ink effectively lend itself to your inspiration? So creativity is increased by competence or an ability to effectively handle all of the media.

Creativity is stifled without inspiration and unfulfilled without ability. But what most people think of when they hear the word creativity is style. Style is that distinctive manner that holds your artwork above the common place. Style initiates comments like "he or she is so creative with the stroke of brush or pen." Style comes with practice and not age. I have some teen-age students whose style is wonderfully distinctive.

Creativity is not drawing space ships and monsters from other planets, it is the way you represent even everyday articles. Creativity is therefore not "what" you represent but "how" you represent it. Creativity is the combination of inspiration, ability and style. The creative stroke is there for feelings you express, the medium you choose and the way you use the medium.

So open your heart and mind to inspiration and revelation, work and learn that your ability increases and finally your own style will begin to emerge and people will one day look at your work and marvel at your creativity.

*1984, Monte Nagler
