Kenyon may pick library over commission

By Gary M. Cates
staff writer

Plymouth Township residents apparently aren't as concerned about controlling the community library as are their elected officials.

Fueled by a concern over budget input and representation, township officials are urging the adoption of a joint library district at the Sept. 10 special election.

However, as of Tuesday only four township residents had taken out nominating petitions to serve on the district's nine-member governing body. Five city residents had petitions out.

None of the nine had returned their petitions by Tuesday but reportedly are in the process of collecting the 109 signatures required to become a candidate.

Unless more petitions are taken out and returned, it appears city residents will comprise the majority on the board — assuming the nine with petitions out return them.

The deadline for returning petitions is 4 p.m. Friday, July 26. Petitions can be picked up at either municipal clerk's office and can be signed by either city or township voters, or a combination of both.

UNDER THE district plan, an elected board of trustees from the city and township would operate the Dunning-Hough Library on Main Street.

Currently, a city-elected board operates it with funding split between the two governments.

Township representation in library matters currently comes through membership on an appointed advisory library board comprised of city and township residents.

At the Sept. 10 election, voters will be asked to establish a district with taxing powers and elect nine trustees. The district would take full responsibility for library operation and staff.

If approved, library district trustees would be expected to seek one-mill property tax authorization in November. The millage would be levied on the entire district to generate operational funds.

Because it is possible voters could approve the district and then vote down the millage, an interlocal agreement is being hammered out.

That agreement will dictate how funding without a millage would be handled, as well as the divestiture of assets in the event the district is dissolved.

Attorneys from both communities still are working on the agreement but expect it to be in place by the Sept. 10 election.

City Attorney Chuck Lowe said the differences have been limited to a few "minor points" and the document soon will be forwarded to officials.

INCLUDED IN the nine potential trustee candidates is City Commissioner Ralph Kenyon.

Kenyon, whose commission term expires in mid-November, cannot seek reelection because of a charter clause limiting commissioners to two consecutive terms.

Lowe said Kenyon, if elected, would have to choose between serving on the library board and finishing his commission term.

"The job of library trustee would be incompatible with the job of city commissioner," Lowe said.

But Kenyon can run for library trustee without resigning from the commission, according to Lowe. In the past, city employees have decided not to run for city commissioner because they would be forced to resign or take a leave from their job.

"He can go ahead and run for it because he is an elected office, not an employee," Lowe said. "He is not an employee of the city, he is elected by the people to represent them in the city."

The law under which employees are forced to choose prior to election doesn't include elected officials, he said.

In the event Kenyon resigns from the commission, the remaining commissioners would have to decide if they wish to fill the vacancy, according to Gordon Limburg, city clerk.

"The commission could appoint someone or let the position go unfilled due to the short time involved," he said.

Library trustees likely will be taking office within a week of the Sept. 10 election. Thus, Kenyon's seat only would remain vacant for two months if someone wasn't appointed.

THE OTHER potential library candidates include:

• Judy Morgan, a city resident active in the American Association of University Women (AAUW) and the Plymouth Community Arts Council (PCAC).

• Carol Davis, a township resident who has served on the school board and

Fun in flood

At least the kids had fun as a result of the sudden downpour Monday morning in Plymouth. The heavy rain in a short period of time resulted in flooding on some city streets, such as Virginia where Chad Coble (above) kicks up a wake on his bicycle and Jennifer Johnson, 4, (left) sets sail to her boat. But the downpour did not result in fun for all as there were reports of downed trees and other problems.

Arrest linked to 59 break-ins

By Gary M. Cates
staff writer

Police are touting Tuesday's arrest of an 18-year-old Plymouth man as a major break in the rash of Old Village and downtown burglaries.

Ron Mills of Starkweather has been charged with breaking and entering (B&E) in connection with the Nov. 30, 1984, burglary of the Forest Laundry, 585 Forest Ave.

Mills pleaded not guilty to the charge Tuesday before 35th District Court Judge James Garber. Mills was released on $10,000 personal bond, awaiting a July 26 preliminary examination.

Mills was arrested on May 4 in connection with the burglary of Central Middle School. Officers responding to a B&E call arrested Mills inside the school building.

POLICE CHARGED Mills with B&E of a school building, and he will stand trial in Wayne Circuit Court. Mills pleaded innocent to the school charge and is awaiting a trial date.

"We made him on fingerprints," Lt. Robert Commire said Tuesday, referring to the laundry arrest.

"After we arrested him for the Central Middle B&E, we submitted his fingerprints on some of the other B&Es," Commire said.

Police believe the man's fingerprints match those found in the laundry, following the burglary. Some $390 worth of quarters was taken from the business.

Commire said officers talked with Mills Tuesday and agreed to charge him only with the laundry B&E if he

Teacher killed in car rollover

A 35-year-old Pioneer Middle School teacher died Tuesday night following a traffic accident in Washtenaw County.

Allan Cieslak of Pine Trail Court in Plymouth Township was pronounced dead at St. Joseph Hospital in Ann Arbor at 8:15 p.m., about one hour after his car left the road and rolled over.

Cieslak was traveling south on Curtis Road, approaching Joy Road at a high rate of speed when he failed to negotiate a series of curves, according to Washtenaw County Sheriff Deputy Mark Giffin.

The car, a 1977 Oldsmobile Cutlass, first went off the road on the right side. It then pulled back across the centerline and went off the road on the left side, Giffin said.

As Cieslak's car left the road the second time, Giffin said the wheels dug into the ground, causing the car to roll over — making a complete flip and landing on its wheels.

The cause of death, according to Giffin, has been listed as head injuries and cardiac arrest. Cieslak was not wearing a safety belt.

"If he had been restrained, he probably would have lived with just minor, superficial injuries," the deputy said.

Officers don't know if alcohol was involved.

CIESLAK, MARRIED and the father of two, started work with Plymouth-Canton Community Schools in February 1974.

He worked at Pioneer during his full tenure.

The English and social studies teacher recently moved his family from Morrison Street in Canton Township.

"He just bought a new house and moved," said Carl Taylor, Pioneer principal. "He moved right next to the school."

"This is a shock, he was so well liked by the staff and the students at Pioneer," Taylor said Wednesday morning.

According to Taylor, Cieslak was an avid golfer and sponsored several student trips to Washington, D.C.

"I believe Allan's loss will be felt by the staff and students at Pioneer, as well as the whole district," said Richard Egli, community relations director.

"He apparently was very well thought of... it's very tragic when you lose someone, especially when he was so young," Egli said.

CEMS returns to spotlight

Graper to probe alleged 50-minute response time

By Emory Daniels
staff writer

Emergency medical response time again was the topic of discussion by residents at Monday night's Plymouth City Commission meeting.

The complaints were centered on an alleged 50-minute response time by Community Emergency Medical Service (CEMS) to the Arbor Health Building in Plymouth.

Plymouth resident Stella Smith had been driven to Arbor Health Building by her husband after she had suffered cardiac arrest.

After she was examined and stabilized by the medical staff at Arbor Health Building, the staff there called CEMS in Farmington Hills to have Mrs. Smith transported to St. Joseph Hospital in Ann Arbor.

It took 60 minutes for a CEMS unit to arrive to transport Mrs. Smith to Ann Arbor, she said. Her son, Larry Smith of Plymouth Township, appeared as a family spokesman during the citizens comments portion at Monday night's commission meeting.

CITY MANAGER Henry Graper, at the onset of the discussion, said he was investigating and could not comment on the factual details of the incident as he had not heard CEMS or Arbor Health Building versions of what occurred.

Smith, however, continued to press

Graper and the commission to respond to his charges of wrongdoing by CEMS. Graper insisted he had to hear both sides, and not just Smith's version, before he would form a conclusion or communicate his findings to the commission or the Smith family.

Supporters of the fire department criticized CEMS and the commission's decision to use a private company for paramedic ambulance service. Among those critics was Bob Kroeger, candidate for the commission and former volunteer firefighter. (Firefighters have wanted to retain the ambulance service and have been opposed to the contract — when it was held by St. Joseph Hospital and now by CEMS).

Smith said from the time the first call was placed to CEMS to the response by one of its units in Northville, 50 minutes had elapsed. His mother's life was threatened by the delay, he said.

The incident occurred June 2. Last week, in mid-July, an open letter to Graper was sent to both newspapers in Plymouth. Graper said Greg Beauchemin of CEMS has been on vacation and has not yet been able to supply the city with information it wants. (The Plymouth Observer published the letter July 15).

SMITH CLAIMED there were two incidents last year when fatalities occurred because CEMS either showed up late or with the wrong equipment.

Graper disagreed, saying in the one incident, doctors at Botsford Hospital investigated and said CEMS personnel did everything they were instructed to do.

In the second incident, Graper said, CEMS was exonerated of wrongdoing directly related to the death at the C&O yard but as a result of that occurrence, the city acquired a rescue van for the fire department to function as a first-response vehicle.

In the Smith incident, the city ambulance could have responded in three-five minutes if Arbor Health personnel had dialed "911" for emergency, Graper added. Instead, they called CEMS, so the city was not directly involved, he said.

ACCORDING TO Smith, CEMS said his mother's situation was not life-threatening and they had a unit out on a higher-priority call and could not respond immediately. "I don't know what a dispatcher is doing making a medical decision like that. My mother spent three days in the hospital before it was determined she had not had a heart attack."

Smith said CEMS advised Arbor Health to call another ambulance company for transport service.

Graper repeated that he would review the tapes of telephone conversations between Arbor Health Building and CEMS personnel to determine what was said by all parties involved and at what time. He promised to make a full report to the city commission and communicate his findings to the Smith family.

Graper said he did not decide on his own to contract with CEMS. The city commission made that decision. Any change would require city commission action.

THE IDEA to investigate using a private company for paramedic service came from former Commissioner Mark Wehmeyer, and not the administration, based on the excellent emergency paramedic care Wehmeyer mother had received from paramedics in Southfield, Mayor David Pugh said.

Graper told Smith that if there was an unjustified 50-minute delay, action would be taken.

A public relations problem exists as people respond favorably to city firefighters but react differently to medical personnel employed by a for-profit company, Pugh and Graper said.

Keeping one ambulance with one paramedic in the city costs $100,000 a year, Graper said. It would take 2.7 ambulances or $270,000 a year to have units in the city on a 24-hour basis.

Smith argued that the money the city was receiving from Plymouth Township for police protection in the past should have been invested in public safety, including ambulance service, instead of going into the general fund.

In awe of Big Four, transit board can't act

By Tim Richard
staff writer

In Michigan's law books, there is no such thing as the "Big Four."

In politics, the Big Four are a potent force, and the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority board stands in awe of them.

"We're in a dilemma," said SEMTA board member Gerald E. Jackson of Macomb County as the deeply-split SEMTA board failed Tuesday for the third time to appoint a permanent general manager.

The reason is that the Big Four want to replace the SEMTA board with themselves, and don't want SEMTA to hire a permanent general manager.

THE BIG FOUR are Detroit Mayor Coleman Young, Wayne County Executive William Lucas, Oakland County Executive Daniel T. Murphy and Macomb County board Chairman Walter Franchuk.

A bill by state Sen. Richard Fessler, R-West Bloomfield, to replace SEMTA and its 15-member board with a tri-county Regional Transit Authority led by the Big Four has advanced through the Senate and stands a good chance of House passage.

The Big Four, who meet informally behind closed doors about once a month, want that general kind of reorganization, and most SEMTA members think the Big Four have the political clout to get it. Directly or indirectly, members of the Big Four already control a majority of the current SEMTA board.

Meanwhile, despite their political power, the Big Four have no operating authority. The result — the "dilemma," as Jackson put it — is that the SEMTA board can't/won't hire a permanent general manager.

Instead, the SEMTA board Tuesday authorized Chairman Tom Turner of Detroit to meet with the Big Four, explain the dilemma and get some kind of direction.

ALBERT A. MARTIN, previously the personnel manager, has been acting general manager of SEMTA since Gary Krause was forced out 13 months ago as the embarrassing details of the People Mover construction controversy were bared.

Martin, 43, was one of three finalists for the permanent job and was the apparent favorite among at least Detroit's four SEMTA board members.

As many as seven SEMTA board members favor William G. Stead, 38, who recently quit as director of operations for the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority. Despite the tie-ups, Stead last week still wanted the SEMTA job.

But it takes eight of the 15 SEMTA members to make the appointment. Twice Philip Dondero of Oakland County has nominated Stead, and twice he was short of a majority. Dondero planned to nominate Stead again Tuesday but didn't when only nine SEMTA board members showed up for the meeting.

DONDERO, Oakland's planning director, suggested the SEMTA board offer to arrange for its three general manager finalists to be interviewed by the Big Four and advise SEMTA. "What do you think of the idea?" he asked.

R. J. Alexander, retired Oakland County public works chief, thought little of it. "The Big Four's not involved at this point," said Alexander. "They should not tell us who we should hire and why."

Robert Keith Archer, board member from suburban Wayne County, agreed with Alexander, adding, "If the Big Four indicated an interest (in making the appointment), that (consulting them) would be appropriate."

"Unless we do something," said Turner, "we're going to find ourselves in this situation board meeting after board meeting." Turner worried aloud about the morale of SEMTA employees at having no permanent boss after more than a year.

AFTER THE meeting, Alexander, shaking his head, said the job should be given to acting GM Martin.

Any (outsider) who would take it has got to have holes in his head. We should remove the 'acting' from Al Martin's title," Alexander said.

The nine-year SEMTA veteran was critical of the Michigan Legislature for spending so much time on SEMTA reorganization and virtually none on getting the transit authority its own source of tax revenue. SEMTA meets farebox shortages and capital needs with federal and state grants — and the federal government is phasing out operating subsidies to local transit authorities.

In 1968 SEMTA was born as a seven-county agency with a nine-member board — six appointed by the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments and three by the governor.

A 1976 reorganization gave SEMTA its current 15-member board — four Detroiters appointed by the mayor, four Wayne County suburbanites now appointed by the county executive, three Oakland County members appointed by various methods, two Macomb County members appointed by the board of commissioners and two representatives for the four small counties appointed by the governor.

Time for family is just one of the things alcoholics lose. As the disease develops, they become preoccupied with thinking about the next drink. Dependence on alcohol and other drugs leads to neglect of job, family and other interests.

Tragically, the alcoholic or drug dependent individual is often the last person to recognize what is happening. Denial—the inability to see what is really happening—is a common symptom of the disease.

There is hope. Persons suffering from the disease can get well. If you or someone you know has trouble with chemical dependency, seeking help is the first step toward recovery.

Barbara Clark of Canton will travel to Germany armed with Michigan souvenirs for her friends-to-be.

Students exchange schools, lands

By M.B. Dillon Ward
staff writer

The flavor at Canton's Roman Forum restaurant was unmistakably international Monday as Canton Rotarians bid good-bye to two European-bound students. Blond Swede Mattias Pettersson, 17, was winding up his year in Canton and Plymouth, and attending his last club luncheon. A jet he boards tomorrow will take him home to Tumba.

A bubbly Barbara Clark, a Canton 16-year-old, told Rotarians how eager she is to leave for Hanover, Germany, where she'll enroll at Schillerschule, a college prep high school, this fall.

"I will miss American weather," said Pettersson, who thought nothing last winter of running along a snow-covered Warren Road. "Winter comes later here. At home it starts to get chilly the end of August."

"I had very nice families — all four," added Pettersson, who lived with Lisa and Bob Huth of Plymouth, and Canton families Roberta and Karl Peterson (no relation to Mattias); Sue and Jim Johnston, and Claudia and David Snyder during his stay. "Also I made friends. The people here are more friendly than back home. Here they say, 'Oh, you're from Sweden!' and they make a fuss over you."

Something Pettersson won't miss is dependence on the automobile.

"Outside Stockholm where I live, you can go to nearby places to meet people. Here you need cars to go to private parties to make friends," said the youth, who thoroughly enjoyed the 8,000-mile bus tour of the U.S. he recently took with 136 other students from all over the world.

Clark, who wants to become an actress, photographer or musician, will be back for a final Rotary farewell in August before embarking on her year-long adventure.

She and Pettersson exchanged gifts and formalities with Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, who also attended the luncheon.

GREETINGS soon will be in order for Luis Ivan Escobedo Delgado, a 17-year-old Mexican student due here next month, and Canton's Pam Burton, freshly returned from Japan where she spent a year as a Rotary exchange student.

Families still are needed to host Ivan for several months each. They'll be asked to supply room and board and some social diversion for Ivan, whose other expenses will be covered by his parents and the Rotary Club.

The youth, who hails from the island of Campeche, is considering a career in agriculture. Interested persons may call 453-2577, 981-4400, or 981-5279.

"We do this to expose the exchange students to different social and economic conditions," said Canton Rotarian Chuck Bares, an international youth chairman with the Ohio-Erie District Youth Exchange Program.

The inter-cultural experience is a rich one for both families and their new "members," he added.

Human Synergistics promotes Hill, Webber

Human Synergistics of Plymouth have promoted Richard Hill and Thomas Webber to new executive positions.

Hill has been named executive vice president while Webber has been appointed to director of research and development.

Formerly vice president of marketing and consulting services, Hill now will oversee the company's marketing and its more than $4 million in annual sales.

Also under Hill's leadership will be the company's international network of consultants and extensive field operations.

Before joining Human Synergistics on Plymouth Road in 1981, Hill worked for 13 years with General Electric in human resource management. Following his various management appointments at GE, Hill was executive director of the Dow Conference Center at Hillsdale College and managed his own consulting firm for eight years.

Webber, a clinical research specialist for the company since 1976, will now head up the firm's non-profit research and development department. As director he will supervise all field testing and research for the company's 85 training and development tools.

HUDSON'S OVAL ROOM

Change's the norm in the Old Village

By W.W. Edger
staff writer

Former residents who return to Plymouth for the hot days of summer wouldn't know Old Village and possibly wouldn't believe even after they saw it. Once a series of antique shops it now boasts several restaurants, a dancing academy, a tauto parlor, and modern condominiums.

If you can imagine a three-story condo built on the middle of a steep hill that's what you would see and you'd wonder who conceived it.

Well Pat Hann has put her imagination to work and the result is one of the most amazing dwellings in southwestern Michigan.

Along with that the old hotel at the railroad which has been an eyesore in recent years is being replaced with a modern storage building that will change the appearance of the entire neighborhood.

And even Bill's Market on Starkweather doesn't look the same. It was purchased by Kevin McNamara, son of the Livonia mayor, and renovated to the point where it now is a modern market.

AND the fish market that was in the rear of the market is now beside on the street. It is modern, too, and even boasts a restaurant where one can select his choice of fish in the cases and it will be prepared right there. It gives Old Village one of the real seafood houses in the area. What's more, it gives the area a very diversified list of eating places.

And because there is a demand for housing, condominiums are being built on the edges of parking lots in Old Village. And they are adding to the charm of the area these former residents left.

The old Chevrolet showroom on Main Street is now a church and the building that used to house part of the Daisy plant is now a restaurant with stained glass windows.

All around there are interesting sights. What had been a freight house at the railroad crossing on Starkweather is now a restaurant. To give the entire area a changing look there now is a dance studio that used to be a dog training unit. This is the Northern Ballet Theater where modern dances are taught. It is a great change in that the lower floor of the house is now the dance studio.

IT IS operated by Michelle Wolf as theater director. On the staff is Heather Stants who recently won the choreographers' Monticello scholarship to study choreography at a conference in Clement, Calif. James and Donna Kaiser are the directors of the Dimensions in Dance.

And only a few doors away is the tauto studio.

The modern Old Village would be a shocking surprise to the former residents who return to their old haunts for a summer vacation.

Free health tests attract many here

The free health screenings at Arbor Health Building in Plymouth have scored a hit with residents.

"I think they are great," said Isabelle Kuczyński of Plymouth. "Why? Naturally because they're free. And they're close."

At an earlier screening program this year, Kuczyński was diagnosed as having hypertension (high blood pressure) and referred to her family physician.

"I thought I was fine," she said, "I never thought I had a problem."

Now she is under a doctor's care and uses the screenings to keep an eye on her blood pressure between doctor's appointments.

THE ARBOR HEALTH Building, 990 Ann Arbor Trail at Harvey, is a subsidiary of Catherine McAuley Health Center in Ann Arbor.

For the convenience of Plymouth, Canton and Northville residents, a variety of free health screenings are offered at the Arbor Health Building on the last Monday of each month.

Hours are arranged to meet the needs of the residents, said Janet Zielasko, Arbor Health Building's program coordinator with the Office of Health Promotion.

The next screenings will be 3-7 p.m. Monday, July 29.

AT A RECENT session, screenings were offered for vision, glaucoma, hypertension, hearing and lifestyle health risk.

Those with abnormal test results were advised to see a physician for further evaluation.

In a few weeks, the staff will check to see if those referred to their physicians did get follow-up help, Zielasko said.

One man waiting for the hearing test said he was there to find out if he was losing his hearing or if his wife was whispering. He smiled when he found out his hearing was fine. But how was he going to tell his wife to speak up so he could hear her?

Elizabeth Karam of Plymouth had nothing but praise for the screenings and the workers performing the tests. "Everybody is so nice here, so nice. They're just wonderful, really."

Besides the friendliness, Karam said she was delighted with the patience of the screeners. They were thorough, she said, and took time to explain what they were doing, why and what the results meant.

"They're really super."

Karam added she also enjoys the free health education lectures at the Arbor Health Building but is surprised so few people take the time to learn more about their health.

RECENT LECTURE topics offered at the Arbor Health Building by professionals from Catherine McAuley Health Center have included glaucoma, skin care, preparing for surgery, health benefits of friendship, and minor emergency and ambulance services.

The classes and screenings are open to persons of any age although predominantly senior citizens attended the recent session.

"I guess we're just more aware of the importance of our health," said one woman as she waited to have her blood pressure checked.

Some said they found the free screening session more convenient than making an appointment to see their doctor when they may not have a problem. And, they noted, the screenings are free.

"Sure I'll come back," said one man, "It's convenient. It's free."

George Kenyon of Plymouth looks straight ahead as nurse Elaine Brown screens him for glaucoma.

Anyone who is, or has been, concerned or uncomfortable with their drug use — particularly involving alcohol and marijuana — or that of a family member, would benefit from this series, says Dave Breeden, executive director of Plymouth Family Service at Wing and Forest in Plymouth.

The series also would be helpful to anyone who grew up in a home where there was a problem alcohol use, adds Breeden.

Topics will include attitudes, physiological effects of alcohol and the symptoms and phases of a drug problem.

There also will be a special emphasis on alcoholism and the family, which will look at what happens to family members caught up in an alcoholic family system and how to get help.

● PERFUME BOTTLE EXHIBIT

Plymouth Historical Museum is exhibiting a collection of perfume bottles, some in the shape of 19th-century figures with flowing skirts in many colors. Many other perfume bottles — from the 1920s — are slender and made of colored glass, hand-painted or with gold overlay.

The arms race uncontrolled

To the editor:

As an avid watcher of the 6 o'clock news and reader of at least two local papers, I have just one question.

Whatever happened to the arms race?

I'm sure you remember all that stuff about kill ratios, nuclear winter and mutually assured destruction. It was in all the media for a while. But now we have Geneva and the "new" arms control talks, so we leave it to the experts.

But the arms race goes on.

This last year, while we have been so earnestly talking about nuclear weapons, 800 new ones have been deployed. That's almost 300,000 kilotons of explosive force — equal to 23,000 Hiroshima-size blasts.

AND WHILE this may be shocking, it is not surprising. All the major new weapons developments of the last 15 years have occurred under the auspices of arms control agreements.

Joan Pence
Plymouth

In the opinion of this writer, it is time to do more than talk about controlling the arms race because the arms race will remain out of control as long as the essential strategic decisions continue to be made in places inaccessible to the democratic process.

AND THE talks will continue to produce nothing as long as each side continues to think in terms of national rather than global security. There can be no doubt that we live in a complicated world, fraught with wars both hot and cold.

But there is one facet of our existence that remains clear; we cannot hope to avoid nuclear war as long as we continue to plan and build for it and we will not survive it when it does come. This is the paradox we face.

Postal Service can assist when moving

Mail which can't be delivered as it is addressed is a costly problem for the U. S. Postal Service, besides being an inconvenience for mailers.

The problem typically becomes worse during the summer months when there is an increase in the number of people moving to new homes.

"It happens every year," said Postmaster Gene Cole. "People move and don't notify the post office and the people and businesses with whom they correspond."

Cole said people who move should provide notification to the Postal Service at least four weeks before the relocation. The notice should include the new address.

Such notices also should be sent to friends, relatives, magazine and newspaper publishers and organizations to which the moving person belongs.

"The Detroit post office offers a free change-of-address kit to persons and businesses planning a move," Cole said.

"The kit contains a supply of post cards — one to send to the post office, and the others to send to credit card companies, doctors, department stores, magazines, insurance companies and the others who send mail regularly," he said.

Also, the Postal Service will forward First-Class mail free for 18 months to persons who submit a completed Change of Address form to their post office.

House votes to aid anti-Marxist guerrillas

Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes after returning from their Fourth of July recess.

HOUSE

ANGOLA — By a vote of 236 for and 185 against, the House adopted an amendment to permit U.S. military aid to South African-backed guerrillas fighting the Cuban-backed Marxist government of Angola.

The vote lifted a 10-year ban on such aid but authorized no money for the Angolan guerrillas.

It was another example of Congress' new willingness to openly fund anti-Marxist rebel forces around the globe, at the risk of inextricable American involvement in foreign disputes.

The amendment was attached to HR 1555, the $12.6 billion foreign aid bill for fiscal 1986, which was headed for final passage and conference with the Senate.

Supporter Robert Dornan, R-Calif., criticized African leaders "who embrace Marxism initially without understanding that it entails secret police, midnight arrests, kangaroo courts, Guag concentration camps and death — killing by the thousands — the iron embrace of the bear and with it the oppressive embrace of Castro himself."

Opponent William Gray, D-Pa., asked: "Does America want us to be funding military insurgency 6,000 miles away... an insurgency supported by South Africa and the Botha regime?"

Members voting yes favored American military aid to anti-Marxist, South African-backed rebels in Angola.

Voting yes: Republicans Carl Pursell of Plymouth and William Broomfield of Birmingham.

Voting no: Democrats Dennis Hertel, Harper Woods, William Ford, Taylor, and Sander Levin, Southfield.

CAMBODIA — By a vote of 288 for and 122 against, the House adopted an amendment to permit for the first time the channeling of U.S. military aid to non-communist forces fighting the Vietnamese occupiers of Cambodia.

The vote authorized $5 million annually in military and economic aid in fiscal 1986-87. The amendment was attached to the 1986 foreign aid bill (see previous vote).

Sponsor Stephen Solarz, D-N.Y., said military aid would strengthen the morale of the anti-Vietnam resistance movement in Cambodia and "enhance the prospects for a political settlement... pursuant to which the Vietnamese may be induced to withdraw their forces."

Opponent Romano Mazzoli, D-Ky.,

said "the moment that we go in there with $5 million or $2 million or 10 cents, we put America's fingerprints back in that conflict, never to extricate ourselves..."

Members voting yes wanted to send military aid to non-communist forces fighting the Vietnamese in Cambodia.

Voting yes: Pursell, Levin, Broomfield.

Voting no: Hertel, Ford.

FAMILY PLANNING — By a vote of 234 for and 189 against, the House prohibited U.S. aid to any private international organization that advocates abortion as a method of family planning.

By a law, U.S. money cannot be spent directly on abortions overseas — a stricter limitation than Congress has imposed on the funding of domestic abortions.

This amendment goes further to deny aid to non-governmental organizations, such as the International Planned Parenthood Federation, that use other than American funding in behalf of abortion.

Supporter Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., said, "It should not be our policy to include the use of abortion as a method of family planning..."

Opponent Olympia Snowe, R-Maine, said the amendment would cause "greater deprivation to the already overpopulated countries of the world and, yes, even more abortions."

Members voting yes wanted to prohibit U.S. aid to foreign groups that promote abortion to control population growth. Voting yes: Hertel, Broomfield.

Voting no: Pursell, Ford, Levin.

SENATE

GUN CONTROL — The Senate passed, 79 for and 15 against, and sent to the House a bill (S 49) to relax several gun controls that were legislated after the 1968 assassinations of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy Jr. and the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr.

In part, the bill legalizes interstate gun transactions under certain conditions, allows the interstate transport of unloaded guns, lifts certain permit requirements on dealers and collectors, limits the power of federal authorities to inspect dealers' records, and requires prosecutors to prove that alleged violators of gun laws did so with the intent to commit a crime.

Supporter Jake Garn, R-Utah, said, "This bill helps to re-establish the protection of the right of American citizens to keep and bear arms."

Opponent Edward Kennedy, D-Mass.,

rollcall report said, "The National Rifle Association wins again."

Senators voting yes favored loosening federal gun controls. Voting yes: Donald Riegle, D-Mich.

Voting no: Carl Levin, D-Mich.

HANDGUNS — By a vote of 69 for and 26 against, the Senate tabled (killed) an amendment to continue the federal ban on virtually all interstate sales of Saturday night specials and other handguns.

The vote left intact language in S 49 (above) that legalizes interstate sales of most types of firearms, provided that the transaction is conducted face-to-face, complies with state laws and meets other conditions.

Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, who voted to table the amendment, said, "Prohibiting a citizen from purchasing a firearm in another state that he could buy at home has no effect whatsoever on crime."

John Chafee, R-R.I., who wanted to continue the ban, said, "Handgun control is an essential part of effective law enforcement."

Senators voting yes wanted to permit interstate sales of handguns under certain conditions.

Voting no: Levin, Riegle.

Courts don't belong in religious arena

SEPARATION of church and state is mandated by the U.S. Constitution. But a look at recent headlines might lead you to take another look at the First Amendment.

Our courts increasingly are being called upon to settle questions from the religious arena. And the most recent have nothing to do with abortion, capital punishment, school prayer or the teaching of evolution — the mainstays of previous court battles on religious/moral grounds.

Consider the following:

- A woman won a $39-million fraud judgment against the Church of Scientology on the grounds that church teachings said Scientology could improve her weak eyesight and increase her IQ.

- Oakland County Circuit Judge John N. O'Brien dismissed a lawsuit aimed at preventing the closing of a Catholic Royal Oak high school by the Archdiocese of Detroit.

- The U.S. Supreme Court ruled in a Grand Rapids case that public school teachers may not teach in religiously affiliated schools. And in a New York City case, it ruled against the use of federal money for public school teachers to teach remedial reading in parochial schools.

HOW DO WE SEPARATE religion from state concerns when religion is so tightly interwoven in the lives of some and when matters of faith can't be judged in a traditional legal system?

Is it the responsibility of government to subject religion to the same standards as business? Should we set up a consumer protection agency to guard followers against the preachings of their chosen faith? Should the state jump in as a referree as soon as a church member perceives injustice? Should public dollars be shared with private causes?

The Scientology ruling seems to say the courts should make such decisions. The Royal Oak, Grand Rapids and New York rulings seem to say no.

THE FILING of these court cases indicates a desire to have your cake and eat it too.

Services were sought from a religion — services that either are not provided by government or provided with a decidedly different emphasis.

In the Scientology case, when a woman's idea of what her religion provided differed from the religion's hierarchy, she sought restitution from the courts. In the Royal Oak case, plaintiffs wanted the court to uphold what they perceived as their right to keep a parochial school open. In the Grand Rapids and New York suits, complainants said they wanted a piece of public education's pie even though they in effect had rejected public education.

If separation of church and state is to remain a hallmark of our system of government, the courts need to reject suits that ask to mix public dollars for private causes or ask for public bodies to guarantee the morality of private religion.

Let's consider again cleaning our lakes

NOW THAT THE hot weather of summer is here and many are flocking to the beaches it is a shame that the state doesn't do something to clean up Wilcox Lake and the others along the route of the Rouge River.

Several weeks ago it was reported that the Rouge was so far gone that it should be dug up and a plan arranged to make the stream what Mother Nature intended it to be.

At the moment the section on the Northville side of the bridge going into the City of Plymouth is cluttered with all sorts of weeds and logs which makes it a sorry looking sight.

Several years ago plans were afoot to make Wilcox Lake a place with a fountain which would show colored lights at night. It was to be a masterpiece. At the same time it was planned to copy Camp Deaborn and have paddle boats for the children.

Aside from that the Mayflower Hotel had planned to have a boat — naturally called The Mayflower — to sail up and down for a contented ride.

PLANS WERE gong along fine until it was found that it became a political football. Plymouth Township owned the section that is the biggest part of the lake and the water pumps were on the city's side. So the factions couldn't meet and the plan was forgotten.

discover Michigan

The year 1837 was a big year in Michigan history. It was the year Michigan was admitted to the union as the United States' 26th state.

In that year, the Rev. John D. Pierce became the state's first superintendent of public instruction and Douglas Houghton was appointed the state's first geologist.

The first state prison was also established at Jackson, Michigan, and today it is the country's largest walled prison.

On the brighter side, laws were also passed establishing the University of Michigan and locating it in Ann Arbor.

It no doubt would have made a large difference to the development of the two cities if the prison had been located in Ann Arbor and the school of higher education in Jackson.

Later a walk was built across the mouth of Wilcox Lake — supposedly to speed the flow of the water. It worked but the harbor is now filled and virtually choked with weeds.

There was a time, too, under the leadership of then-Gov. William Milliken, that $100,000 was placed in his budget to start beautification of the lakes. But an emergency arose and the sum was stricken from the budget. Two years later the same thing happened. Now it has been forgotten.

Meanwhile the lakes are filling with debris and it seems no one cares. Wilcox Lake could be a favorite place, especially with its shoreline picnic grounds. It is a perfect setting for a fountain, paddle boats, and even a copy of The Mayflower.

PHOENIX LAKE to the north is another fine body of water which could be a fisherman's paradise.

And Newburgh Lake in Livonia, now a stopping place for birds on their return from the south, could be much like Jack Miner's place in Canada which has been popular for years.

The lakes are there. Mother Nature put them there.

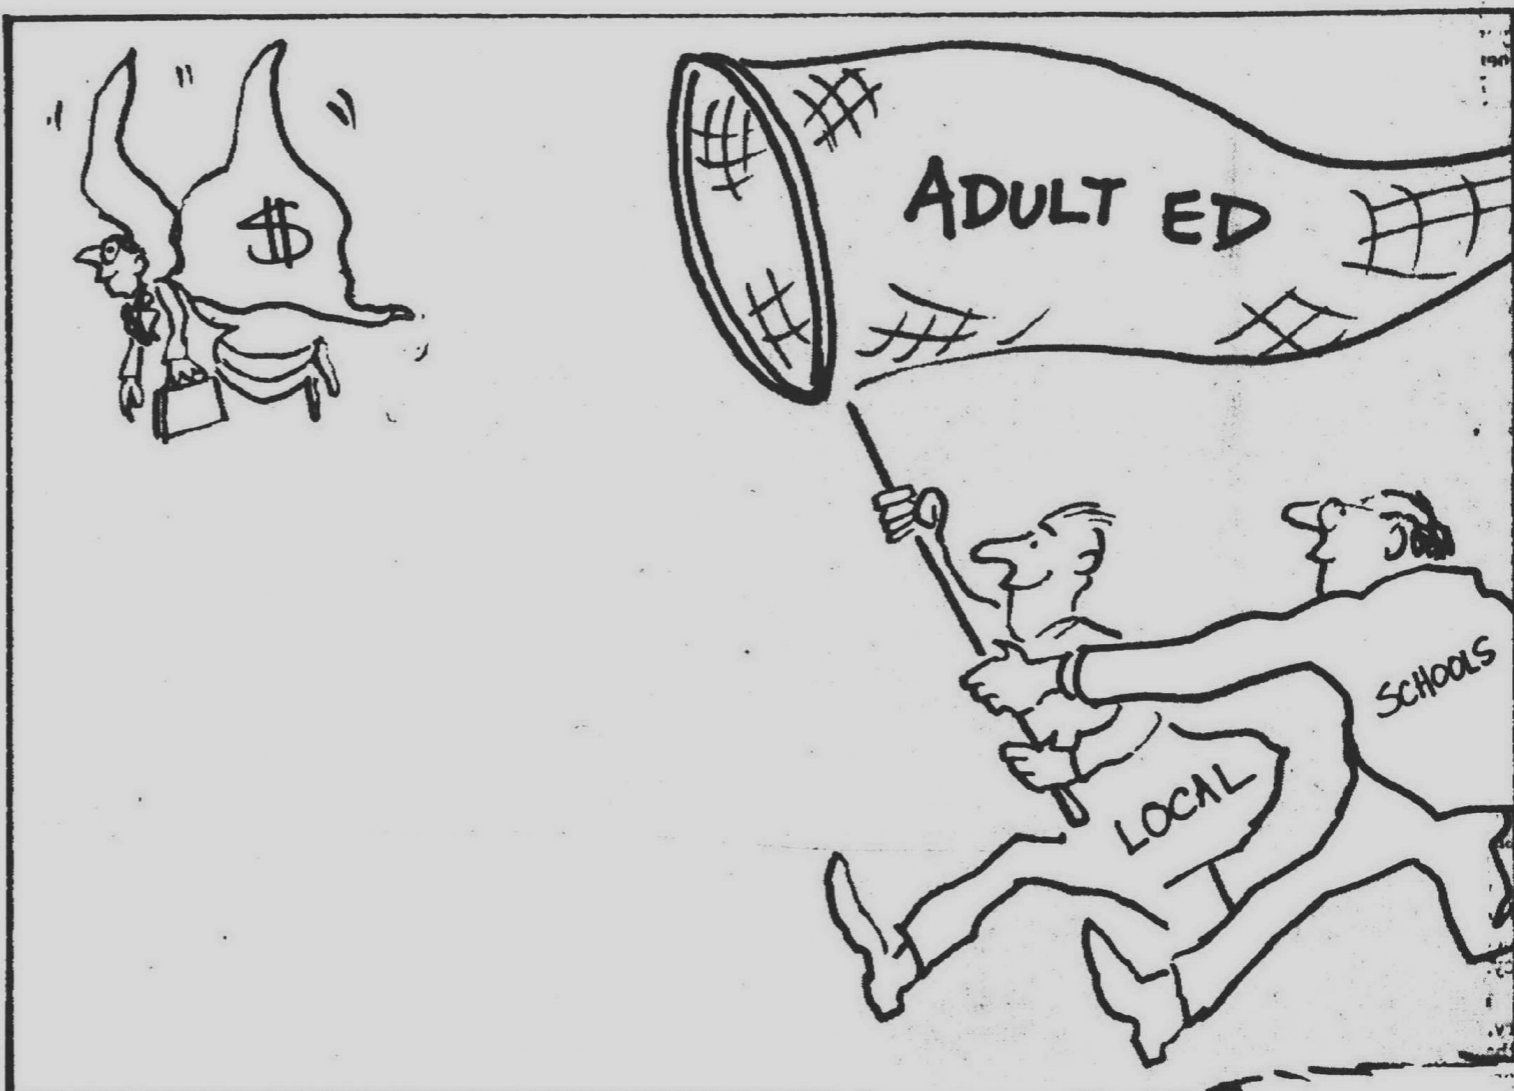

It is just a shame they are being left alone to become only a resting place for weeds and debris. It is about time action was taken to please Mother Nature.

Adult ed aid funds skewed

BUSINESSES ARE expected to make profits. But when the business is your local school district and the product is adult education, should the same principle apply?

That question is posed in a report by the Citizens Research Council of Michigan, a private, non-profit organization funded largely by business.

"The Financing of Adult Education in Michigan," released in May, explains the profit motive in educating adults with less than a 12th-grade education. In some cases, that motive was so strong that it led to abuses in the system of state aid.

RESEARCH FOR the report was done by Robert McKerr, who previously served 18 years as state associate superintendent for legislation and finance.

Ironically, McKerr as a state employee and the council's executive director had knowledge of reported abuses in the Wayne-Westland school district. That case prompted the council to review the "overall issue" of aid to districts that educate adults, McKerr said.

This report isn't about abuses. It shows that what's faulty in state aid for adult education is the system itself.

That makes it required reading for legislators, for educators in cheated districts and for taxpayers.

THE SYSTEM'S formula favors districts with low property values and high enrollment. The more students enrolled, the more state aid to in-formula districts.

In years past, inflation and cuts in state aid ordered by Gov. William Milliken squeezed the general cost of kindergarten through 12th grade education. Some in-formula districts compensated by developing marketing strategies to boost their enrollments and, consequently, state aid.

The numbers are significant. In the 1983-84 school year, adult students accounted for 24.52 percent of enrollment in the Redford Union school district, according to the report. That district operates an adult ed program for the two Redford districts and Livonia, which gets no state aid.

Percentages of adults in Wayne-Westland and Garden City districts were 11.41 and 13.71, respectively. In at least one district, adult students accounted for 30 percent of enrollment.

IN DISTRICTS WHERE the illiteracy rate is low — such as Troy, Farmington Hills, Southfield and Livonia — one wouldn't expect them to operate such programs.

But the report found 75 percent of adult students concentrated in 59 districts which accounted for only 32 percent of all aid-eligible memberships.

That's important because state aid may not be going to districts where the greatest need is. Despite Redford's high percentage of adult students, it nearly matches the need in that area, unlike Grand Rapids with 9 percent of the adult students and 2 percent of statewide illiteracy.

The result is that the principle of equalizing resources has become skewed.

LEGISLATORS NEED to set priorities in distributing aid to educate adults.

The 1980 census showed that families headed by adults with less than a high school education have a high rate of poverty, especially if the head of the household is a woman.

Since state figures show that twice as many women graduate from those programs, the question has to be asked: Who is most likely to benefit — a) a senior citizen finally able to go back to school, b) a person in a nursing home or mental health facility or c) a woman with a family to raise?

It's too late to expect changes in the 1985-86 school aid package, but legislators and their constituents have a full year to decide whether they want some districts to profit from serving adults.

Manipulating the market

MICHIGAN'S attempt to tinker with the auto insurance market will go down in the economic history books as another classic failure at political manipulation of the free market.

In 1981, the Legislature passed a law requiring every motorist to have insurance — the so-called "Essential Insurance Act."

Someone figured out that many Detroiters, with high theft and damage losses, couldn't afford essential insurance.

So instead of letting insurance companies use actual losses to set premium rates, government decreed that there could be no more than a 10 percent differential between one rating zone and the next. Thus, if the rate in the central zone of Detroit were $1,000, the rate in the next zone would have to be $900, then $800, etc.

There was another political proviso: The lowest rate charged by an insurer could be no lower than 45 percent of the highest rate — or $450 in our example.

THERE WERE three interesting effects.

First, suburban motorists got socked because their rates were tied to Detroit's.

According to Sen. Doug Cruce, R-Troy, Detroiters pay $40 million in premiums and collect $80 million a year in benefits. Suburban customers pay the $40 million difference.

Second, the Michigan insurance market was broken into two separate markets — the metropolitan area and outstate — because of the 45 percent rule.

Insurers with realistic rates in Detroit couldn't afford to charge 45 percent of that rate in the hinterlands. The auto theft rate in Traverse City, for example, is only 2.3 percent of the theft rate in Detroit.

Companies had to make decisions about which market they would deal in. Four companies became dominant in each market. Thus, political manipulation of insurance rates reduced competition between companies.

THE THIRD effect of the Essential Insurance Act is a little more difficult to pin down. It appears the insurers are trying to reduce their losses by avoiding the Detroit market.

Sen. William Faust, D-Westland, quotes state administrative officials as estimating that up to 40 percent of Detroit drivers aren't insured — even with the heavy subsidies paid to them by suburbanites.

Detroit lobbyist William Ryan, former House speaker known for thinking up ways to subsidize Detroit, declared a "subtle form of redlining" is in effect. Rep. Matthew McNeely, chairman of the House Insurance Committee, tells his Detroit constituents with complaints to travel to the suburbs to seek out an insurance agent.

CALL IT "redlining" or any deplorable term you want — the fact is that insurers are acting logically, in avoiding markets where losses are high (Detroit) and concentrating on markets where losses are lower (suburbs).

We should have learned the lesson from ancient Rome's failed price control. We should have learned the lesson from the 1776 revolt against the mercantilist policies of King George III.

People won't be forced by law to engage in lines of work that cause them to lose money.

The Michigan Legislature has amended the act. Gov. Blanchard should sign it.

State maps lose track of 4 national forests

By Lem Mesee
outdoors writer

LOST: nearly three million acres of recreational land in a state whose No. 2 industry is tourism.

Culprit: the state government of Michigan, which systematically ignores the existence of four national forests.

You've read this complaint in past years. Well, the situation isn't getting better. It has become worse.

Now the state Department of Natural Resources has joined the Department of Transportation in pretending four national forests don't exist. Some of DNR's material is positively misleading.

ITEM: the Michigan transportation map, commonly known as the "highway map."

The Ottawa, Hiawatha, Huron and Manistee national forests aren't shown.

Why not? One alibi given by MDOT officials a few years ago was that showing them would "clutter" the map. Nonsense. Other vacation paradises such as Colorado show their national forests. Even Illinois, where Michigan DOT Director Jim Pitz previously worked, shows national forests on its transportation map.

In fact, as late as 1982 Michigan's official map showed national forests. It was easy. MDOT used a green tint.

Another reason from MDOT is that owners of private tracts within national forest boundaries objected to showing the national forests, claiming vacationers set up on their properties believing everything was in public ownership.

If that tale is true, then we have sunk a long way toward becoming a plutocracy where a handful of northern property owners call the shots on state policy.

ITEM: A DNR campground directory, which we picked up in the lobby of the State Capitol, indicates all northern property is in state forests. (See map.) The DNR map is positively misleading. (Note the national forests map.) DNR ought to recall and correct it.

There are at least as many national forest campgrounds as state forest campgrounds. Moreover, many of the state forest installations are tiny (three to eight sites), poorly maintained mosquito hatcheries.

Like the MDOT map, the campground map could be easily corrected without becoming cluttered. National forests could be indicated in a different color. A sentence could be inserted saying that maps of the national forests and lists of campgrounds and other facilities can be obtained from U.S. Forest Service headquarters in Ironwood, Escanaba and Cadillac.

ITEM: DNR in 1984 published a "Mapbook of Michigan Counties." At $9.95, it's a bad buy.

There is a full-page chart of state forest campgrounds in the front of the book and another chart of state parks and recreation areas on the back cover. (Incidentally, why couldn't they have been run on facing pages?)

The only indication in the text that national forests exist is a series of telephone numbers on the back cover. The text never hints that these might have campgrounds, picnic sites, boat launches, skiing facilities or other tourist attractions.

For the vacationer, a much better buy is "Guide to Fun in Michigan" published by Michigan United Conservation Clubs. MUCC's guide lists all campgrounds — national, state park, state forest, county and township — by county. MUCC's guide also lists sizes and facilities in the campgrounds and sizes of lakes.

Although both guides have a lot of small, almost illegible, maps, the MUCC guide is the more nearly readable. The DNR maps are all on the scale of three-eighths of an inch to a mile. MUCC blows up its maps of northern counties with lots of recreational facilities and reduces maps of places like Wayne County with few campgrounds and lakes.

IT'S AS IF there were some kind of bad blood between state government in Michigan and the U.S. Forest Service, which owns and operates the national forests.

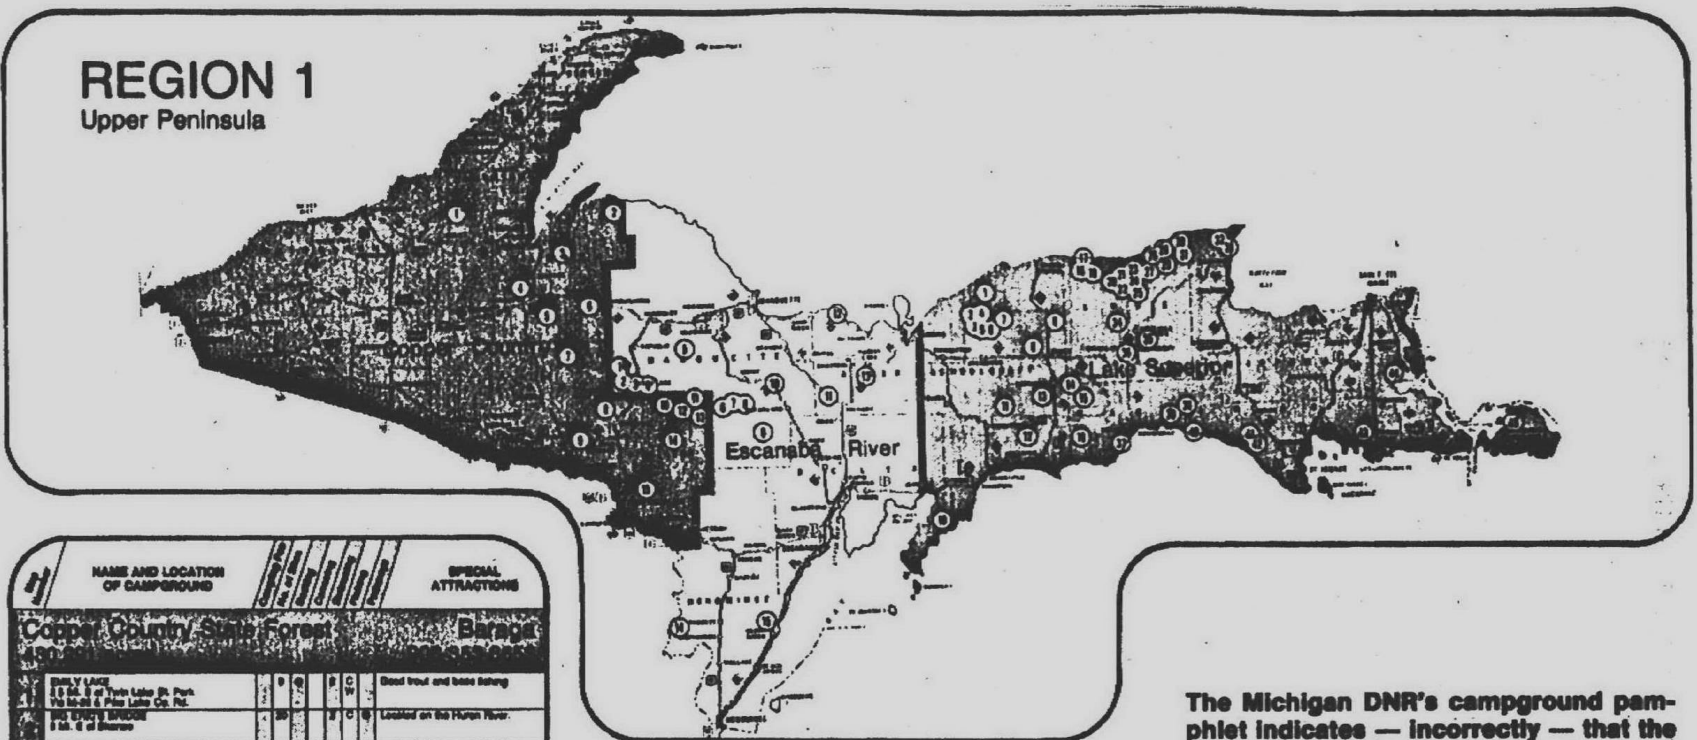

The state behaves as if the feds were its rival, as if General Motors were publishing a map of its dealerships and didn't want potential customers to know about Ford and Chrysler dealerships.

Tourists — even campers — mean money in the pockets of gas stations, restaurants, grocery stores, bait dealers, equipment shops and souvenir stands. Those retail sales generate taxes to the state and money for schools.

It's in the interests of both state government and business to inform people of the recreation resource known as national forests. State government should at least acknowledge the presence of — and even promote — these 2.7 million acres of national forests and their dozens of recreational opportunities.

Editor's note: The pen name of Lem Mesee has been used by two dozen Observer & Eccentric writers over the past 16 years. In this article, Lem's "ghost" is Tim Richard.

REGION 1 Upper Peninsula

The Michigan DNR's campground pamphlet indicates — incorrectly — that the entire Upper Peninsula is in three state forests. It fails to indicate the existence of the Hiawatha and Ottawa national forests.

Blanchard orders tourism push

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Gov. James Blanchard is ordering all state departments — particularly Natural Resources — to become more conscious of tourism.

"DNR's going to need more integration with other departments. It's an empire unto itself," Blanchard said in an interview.

The governor was told of outdoors writer Lem Mesee's criticism that Michigan's Department of Transportation and DNR "systematically ignore the existence of four national forests."

"That's the first time that issue has been raised with me," replied Blanchard, in the third year of his first term as Michigan's chief executive.

"IT'S DIFFICULT to get all state departments to think about tourism," Blanchard went on.

He said he has ordered all depart-

"We need to have coordination of slogans, themes, brochures. We need to sensitize DNR to tourism."

— Gov. James Blanchard

ments to designate one staff member to sit on a committee that will coordinate promotion of tourism, Michigan's second largest industry.

"We need to have coordination of slogans, themes, brochures," Blanchard said. "We need to sensitize DNR to tourism."

Blanchard was interviewed by this writer and a group of Upper Peninsula newsmen in a Munising restaurant following his appearance in the Alger County centennial parade.

Cold, rainy weather that day drove downstate tourists from the beaches and rivers into town for any kind of amusement.

"I like the UP," said Blanchard, who had flown in from his Mackinac Island residence. "This is my 15th trip here. I'm the first governor to carry every county in the UP since Chase Osborn, and he was a UP resident." Osborn, a Sault Ste. Marie Republican, was a game warden and newspaper editor before being elected governor in 1910.

STATE REP. Pat Gagliardi, D-Drummond Island, agreed that departments of state government don't always work together.

"We are finally understanding that Michigan has a growth industry even during a recession — tourism," said Gagliardi, who attended the news conference.

The UP lawmaker praised Blanchard's appointment of an inter-departmental committee to coordinate tourism promotion, adding, "The federal government spends a paltry amount to promote foreign tourism in this country."

But Gagliardi wouldn't agree that there's no cooperation at all between state and federal agencies. He said Grant Peterson, superintendent at the Pictured Rocks National Lakeshore, has worked extensively with the state in promotion efforts.

The state also has promoted the Seney National Wildlife Refuge and Isle Royale National Park, Gagliardi said.

The U.S. Forest Service has four national forests with some 2.7 million acres in Michigan — more than any state east of the Mississippi.

Leah Niziol, 10, hugs a wooly friend during last week's Redford Parks and Recreation tour of the 4-H Pet-A-Farm.

Soft touch

Kids cuddle up to animals

By Richard Lech
staff writer

A group of Redford children made some barnyard friends last week.

The kids found the cows "udderly" enchanting, the pony downright "neigh"borly and the rabbit "all ears" for their comments.

This city-meets-country encounter took place as the youngsters toured the 4-H Pet-A-Farm at the Wayne County Extension and Education Center in Wayne.

The children got to handle, pet or feed such rural denizens as a duck, goat, sheep, chickens and pigs.

Which animal did the kids like best? A very informal "gall-hop" poll showed the pony and the rabbit tied for No. 1.

THE PET-A-FARM offers hourlong tours four times daily on weekdays. This particular tour was organized by the Redford Parks and Recreation Department programs at Fisher and Stuckey schools.

Supervising the Pet-A-Farm this year is former Westland resident Barbara Dobozy, a 4-H program assistant. Dobozy said the tours are designed to be educational as well as fun.

Before taking the tour, the youngsters see a slide show on how to feed and approach farm animals.

The children "start small" by handling the smaller animals, such as the baby duck, Dobozy said. Then they work their way up to larger animals such as the calves and the pony.

As the children pet the animals, the tour guides discuss the animal's breed, and the food products that come from it, as well as how to care for the animal.

After this, the children take a 10-minute tour of the extension center's grounds and are given some information on 4-H.

THE PETTING farm is paid for by United Community Services of Detroit. The animals are donated for six weeks by 4-H alumni or current 4-H members.

The tours are free and open to individual families as well as groups, but groups should make reservations in advance, Dobozy said. Small groups (under 15 people) should call at least a day in advance. Larger groups (15 or more) should call three days to a week ahead of time.

The tours will continue at 10 and 11 a.m. and 1 and 2 p.m. Monday through Friday through Friday, Aug. 9. But there will be no tours this week as the 4-H Club members devote their energy to the Wayne County 4-H Fair, which will continue through Saturday at the Belleville Fairgrounds.

For more information on the petting farm or to make reservations, call the 4-H office at 721-6576.

Matthew Logan, 6, and Edwin Blake, 12, had some fun horsing around with the Pet-A-Farm's pony.

After being introduced to the animals, the Redford Parks and Rec group toured the grounds of the Wayne County Extension Center.

Nothing like that 1st birthday

While you were sunning on the porch, slaving in your gardens, or hiding in your homes, Shirley and Jack Roberts were gathering their wits about them to throw their first "Grandchild Birthday Party."

I realize many of you already have experienced this. But many of you out there, I'm sure, are just itching for the day when you can throw all caution to the wind and dive head first into your first Grandchild Holiday. For those of you who are inexperienced in this area, perhaps it can best be likened to your very first child's first Christmas — without guilt about the expense.

So it is, with parenthood versus grandparenthood. I suppose that's why they call it "grand" parenthood. It's much more fun!

THIS PARTICULAR case had an extra twist.

The Roberts' daughter, Shelly, had come to stay with mom and dad while her husband, Mike, hunted for a new home in Wisconsin. Naturally Jessica, the one and only grandchild, came along with Shelly.

All of us had expected Mike would take at least the summer to find a suitable new home. After all, he had his new business — renting recreational vehicles — to tend to day and night. He had no time to be house hunting.

We figured Jessica and Mom would just spend the summer here and give Grandma and Grandpa a chance to get their fill of baby.

Mike, of course, was invited to the party. Little did we know he would take Jessica and Mommy away the following day.

Canton chatter

Sandy Preblich

THE THEME of the party was Care Bears.

Everyone received a party hat upon entering and everyone wore them, too, even Uncle Joe, former football Rock at Salem. Under the close supervision of her parents, Jessica, wearing her lovely stylish sunglasses, very carefully and s-l-o-w-l-y opened each gift.

Her grandma ran around, trying to replenish everyone's drinks as fast as she could, while trying not to miss a rip or tear.

The entire event was videotaped, of course, not to mention Uncle Joe popping up now and then to get candid sneak shots.

ATTENDING the gala event were the Talbot family — Jim, Jan, Jeff, and Jody — and a friend of the family, Mark Barnes. Jimmy, the eldest son, was unable to attend due to a previous commitment, his job. Evelyn Collins and Amy Handley were there, both with husbands also tied up at work.

The Preblich family — Ken, Sandy, Al, Cathy and Tammi — brought family friend Kristen Karpinski. Son Brian had to work.

I'm afraid the Birthday Girl herself hasn't acquired any real close friends in this neighborhood, or perhaps they were all working. But at the tender age of 1, I tend to think she just hasn't been able to develop any real tight relationships yet.

Jessica demolished her own private cake, smearing it all over everywhere. Her guests took a symbolic jump in Grandma and Grandpa's in-ground swimming pool, so she wouldn't feel conspicuous about needing a quickie bath. The guests did stay in the pool longer than it took Jessica to clean up, but I don't think she noticed.

I'll tell you who noticed, Noekie and Adrian, the German shepherd and Doberman pinscher who got to eat the remaining cake. They could follow that kid around forever. Jessica shares her food like a good girl. What a polite child, and only 1-year-old.

I think the cutest part of the whole day was watching Uncle Joe with his niece. The big varsity football player and body builder was lying on a blanket playing kootchi-kootchi-koo with Jessica, or trying to make her understand why the jack-in-the-box won't come out of the box so she can hold it.

She liked the way it arrived to music, but what good is a doll that refused to let you hold it?

So happy birthday, Jessica, and all the other wonderful babies whose grandparents will surely call me soon, so I can write about their party. You must understand I'd love to wish you and yours happy anything, but I need your call.

SPEAKING OF birthdays, Carol and Al Alterman cannot get over how cooperative their children are now that they are married and gone. Daughter Debbie had a bouncing baby girl about nine months ago. Son Todd, with cooperation of wife Gaynee, had a baby girl just in time to get all the hand-me-downs from Debbie and Ritchie's daughter.

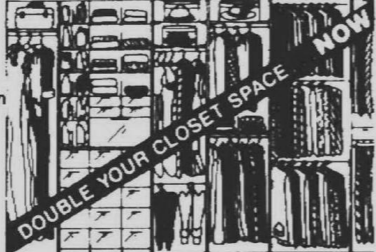

Gaynee did it the easy way, three hours of labor and presto... a baby girl. Congratulations to all the Altermans. There is the one small problem that Todd and Gaynee live in New York. But families can work these things out. After all, if they can manage to have girls, perfectly spaced to pass along clothes, they can manage to transport the clothes.

I should add, Todd managed to go to a tennis tournament that afternoon and win his first match of the tournament. Gaynee had been playing tennis just three days before delivery.

Not bad, kids. Oh to have that energy again!

Mail can be held for trips

Vacations are more enjoyable when you don't have to worry about the mail, says Postmaster Gene Cole.

"You can alleviate that worry by following these suggestions," Cole said.

"Before leaving, either ask someone you trust to check your mailbox each day and hold your mail, or arrange for the post office to hold delivery for up to 30 days.

"If you choose the latter, contact the post office to complete the appropriate form, and remember to notify the post office promptly on your return."

THE REUNION was everything they had anticipated and more. Five members of the Plymouth High School Class of '46 spent the better part of last week together. It was the first time they had gathered — as a group — in 39 years.

Natalie Reitzel McMahon of Cleveland hosted the house party at the McMahon vacation home on Lake Caroline near Richmond, Virginia. Her guests were Mary Jane Christensen Minahan of Wisconsin, Jackie Dalton Troutman of Plymouth, Jean Murray Harsha of Plymouth, and Marilyn Vershure Markey of Raleigh, North Carolina.

They were disappointed when Emmy Lou Hough Eagen of Niles, Michigan had to cancel out at the last minute.

She promised to see all of them at their 40-year class reunion next summer.

NATALIE'S HUSBAND, Bob McMahon, who had referred to the gathering as a pajama party, sent along a package. It contained a white T-shirt for each of the women with Camp Caroline in navy blue letters on the front. Each was personalized with their names, in red, on the back.

They put on the coffee pot their first morning at "Camp Caroline" and started talking. There had been murmurs of "going for a swim" and "getting breakfast" but the conversation continued. In no time at all, someone noted that it was 5 p.m.

They revived Tin Roof Sundaes and had them every night — an almost ceremonial rite.

Jean Harsha departed for home on Saturday, because of her involvement in the 150th anniversary celebration at First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth. The rest of them left Sunday.

THERE ARE A few tickets left for the Plymouth Woman's Club benefit theater party 8 p.m. Saturday, July 20 at the Birmingham Theater, 211 S. Woodward, Birmingham. Admission price of $12.50 includes the live presentation of "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" with Jeffrey Bruce in the role of Pseudolus, and an afterglow with the cast after the musical.

Tickets are on sale at Little Professor on the Park, Main Street, Plymouth.

Profits from the benefit will go to the club's scholarship fund.

NADINE AND RALPH Heid of Plymouth Township spent some time in Rome during their two-week tour of Europe. When it came to reading the local newspapers, they ignored the old adage, "When in Rome, do as the Romans."

Nadine said, "We couldn't read a word of Italian, so we didn't spend time looking at the papers. It was the same with television, we didn't watch it because we couldn't understand what they were saying."

But one day, the front page of a newspaper really caught her attention. It featured a large picture of a smiling Tom Hulce holding an award. She said she was so surprised, she was telling perfect strangers that he was from her hometown.

The Heids collected copies of the papers with stories and pictures of Tom winning the Donatello Award for his performance in "Amadeus." The Donatello is Italy's equivalent to our Academy Award for best actor.

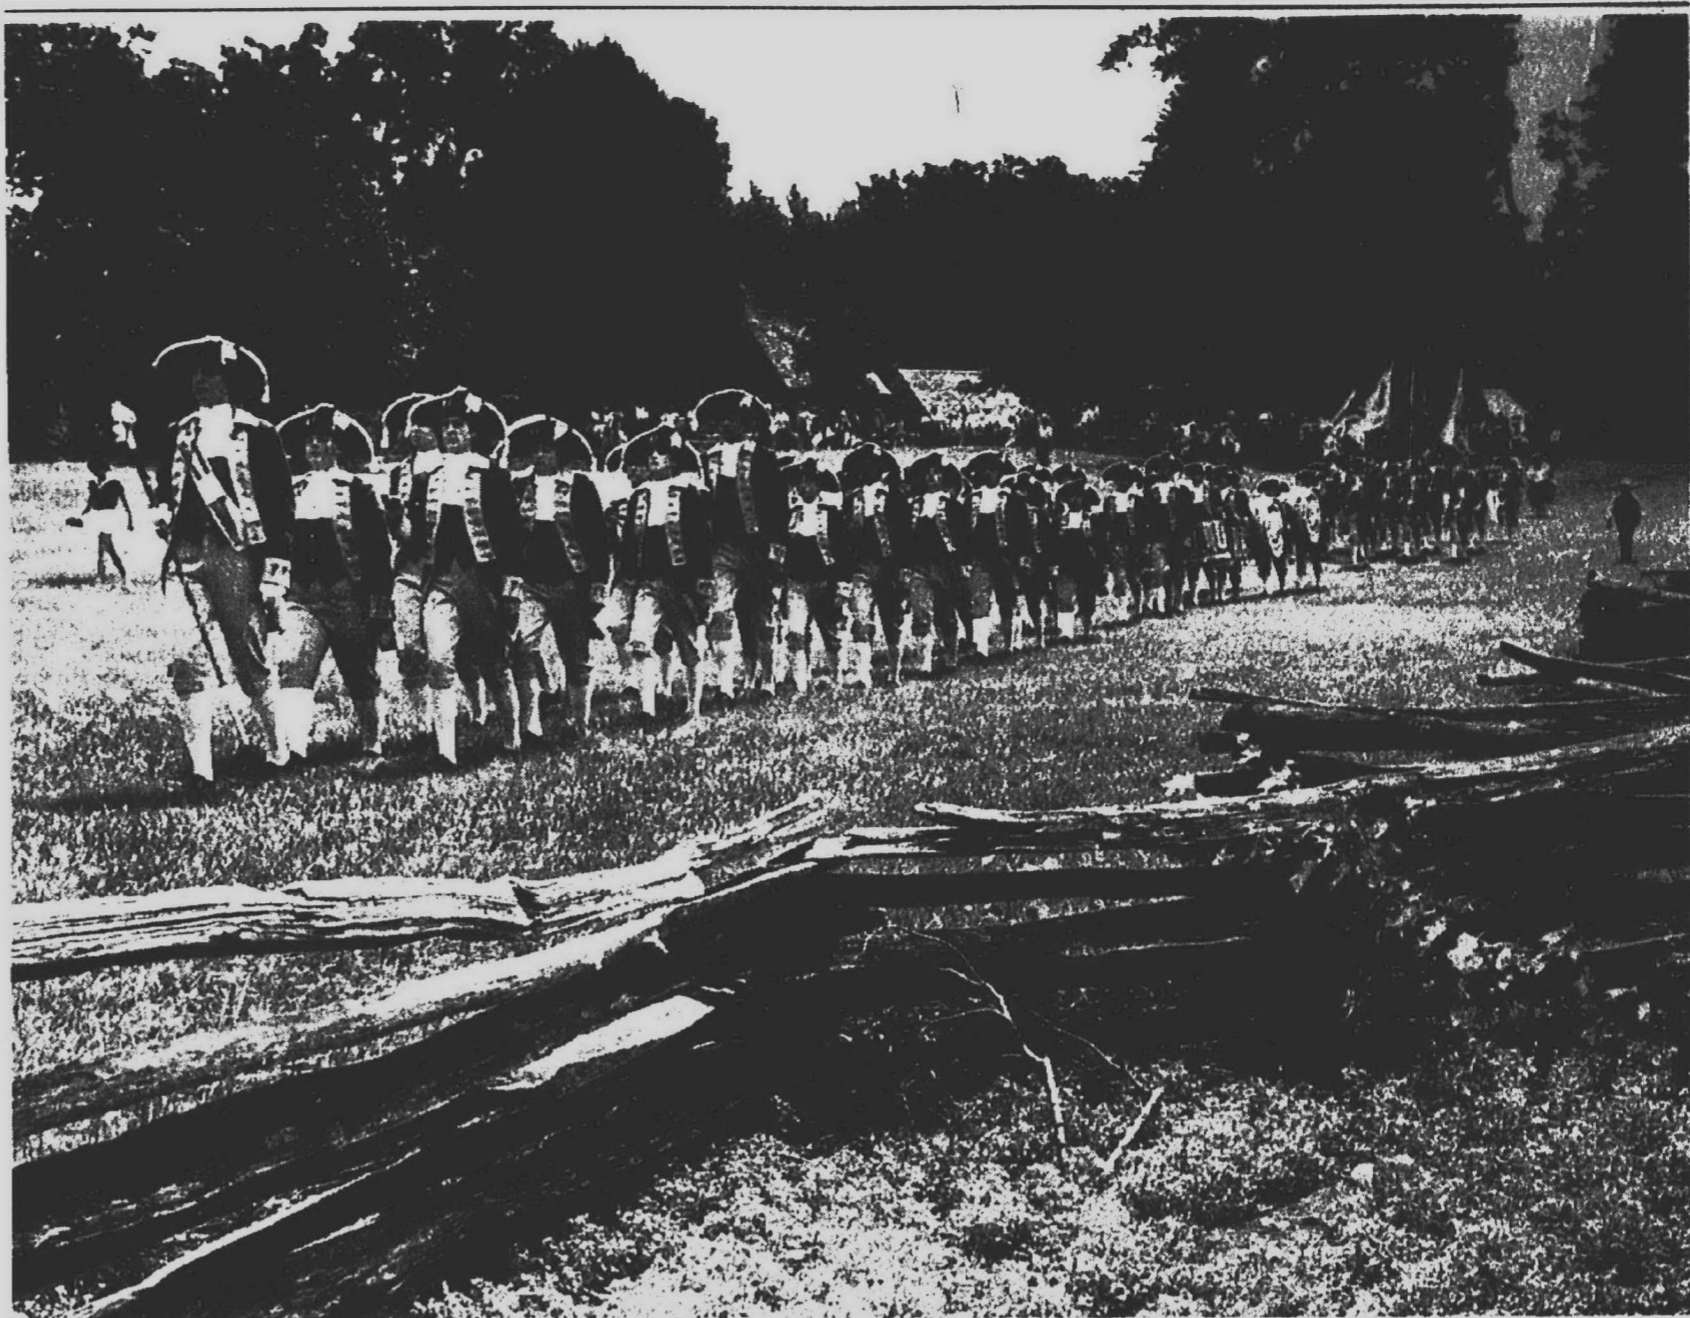

"They loved him in Italy," Nadine said.

When they got home, they gave the Italian newspapers to Joanne Hulce, Tom's mother.

WANDA ATWOOD of Plymouth a suggestion for people tracing their roots — visit the old churches.

A Canadian cousin of hers went to a Presbyterian Church in Weston on the Green, Oxfordshire, England in search of family information. She found marriage records in the church and also discovered an English cousin who had written a book about the Coggins family. Wanda's mother's people. The book is a novel, "Oak and Maple," and the author changed the family names in the story.

Wanda attended the 60th Coggins and Cousins Family Reunion last weekend in Port Rowan, Ontario.

Classes answer to summer blahs

New Morning School has a cure for that common malady, the summer complaint. The school has planned in-teresting classes and activities in an-swer to the old refrain, "There's noth-ing to do, Mom. I'm bored. Can I watch TV?"

Marionettes for 7- to 10-year-olds meets Tuesday and Thursday mornings for three weeks. Each student will cre-ate and produce a finished marionette by the end of the sessions. Papier mache heads, dowel rod bodies and hand-sewn clothing will require hard work and a feeling of accomplishment.

Students are asked to bring a light bulb to the first class. Registration is $36 plus a $4 materials fee.

Classes are small and will give plen-ty of one-to-one instruction. Call the school for information about times and dates.

BUGS AND OTHER Critters is de-signed for 4- to 7-year-olds who are in-clined to get a little "antsy" as summer wears on.

Class meets Monday and Wednesday mornings for three weeks beginning July 29.

Dinosaurs for 5- to 8-year-olds will meet Tuesday and Thursday mornings. Enrollment in both these classes is limited. Parents should call the school for enrollment information.

Summer office hours are 9 a.m. to noon Monday through Thursday. Par-ents may call the school, 420-3331, for information, to register for classes, or to request a brochure on fall classes. There are some openings in the morn-ing preschool classes and the afternoon kindergarten class beginning in Sep-tember.

New Morning School, state-certified since 1973, is a parent co-op school for preschool children and grades kinder-garten through 8. The school is at 14501 Haggerty Road, just north of School-craft, Plymouth Township.

ACADEMIC summer school eases worries of returning to school in Sep-tember for students needing review and help with their academic skills.

There are openings for grades 1-5 and grades 5-8 in the two-hour daily sessions at New Morning. Classes pro-vide individualized instruction in read-ing, writing, math and/or study skills.

Instructor Kathleen Kerekes, M.A., who has a background in learning dis-abilities, makes an educational assess-ment on each student. An appropriate program then is planned.

This tactic produces growth, tax-free income

Recently, Mr. S. came to our office hoping to find an investment that would provide him both current income and potential for growth. Normally, no single investment can provide both features.

It is commonplace that bonds generate current income while equity investments provide a potential for growth. Fortunately, however, there is a novel product available on the market today that combines income and growth.

Let's call this investment Guaranteed 7 (G7). It provides two separate guarantees. Half of the money you invest in it grows tax deferred and doubles in seven years.

The other half provides guaranteed monthly income for seven years, the majority (72.3 percent) of which is tax-free. The money that grows tax deferred can be withdrawn any time, subject to a surrender charge and a 5-percent penalty if withdrawn before age 59½. The guaranteed rate of return on both parts is 10.10 percent.

SAY JOHN Client, age 55, invested $100,000 in G7. Half of that ($50,000) investment is put into an immediate premium annuity.

John will receive $807 per month for 84 months (7 years). Of this monthly in-finances and you

come, $583 (72.3 percent) will be tax-free. Total income received from this source is $67,788; of this, only $17,788 will be subject to tax.

The other $50,000 is put into a deferred annuity. By the end of the seventh year, it would double in value ($100,000).

G7 is an outstanding investment for those who would prefer a guaranteed return and current income. This investment is in no way influenced by interest rate fluctuations and cannot be canceled by the insurance company.

On the negative side, the portion put into immediate income annuity can be surrendered, but there is a charge for such an action.

the advice of your financial planner.

AFTER the end of the seventh year, the immediate annuity is exhausted, but the value of the deferred annuity portion is doubled. ($100,000).

This investment can be rolled over into another annuity type of investment without triggering a tax consequence. Also, when this investment is withdrawn after retirement years, all the typical single premium deferred annuity choices become available.

Guaranteed 7 is an outstanding investment, but it is not for everyone. Before you make your final decision, seek

A special seminar will be conducted by the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers and the Coordinated Financial Planning staff Tuesday, Aug. 13, at the Kingsley Inn. Out-of-town guest speakers will present specific investment products. This seminar will be free and registration is required. For further information, call 643-8888.

Marketplace takes kids back to biblical times

Garden City Presbyterian Church flipped the calendar back to biblical times recently for its vacation Bible school.

The church put on an outdoor marketplace. The children who participated wore outfits common to the Holy Land during that era.

At shops set up under tents, the youngsters learned how to make candy, baskets, bricks and other items that craftsmen made 2,000 years ago.

Children ages 4 through those in the sixth grade took part in this time-traveling effort.

Live for today — and tomorrow too

moral perspectives

Rev. David Strong

Live just one day at a time. Live as though you were going to be here forever. These two philosophies appear to be in contradiction. They are not.

Live one day at a time, is often suggested as a view which will help us to overcome our problems.

It is easy to get into the habit of worrying about what will happen tomorrow. Particularly when one has a serious illness we worry about what the future will bring. "Do not anxious about tomorrow" is the advice we read in the Bible.

Such a philosophy will help us to live in the present. We can be thankful for today. We can face tomorrow when it comes. We can trust that we will have the capacity to deal with tomorrow.

The physician William Oser recommended to his medical students that they live one day at a time. He likened life to a great ocean liner whose major safety feature was its many watertight compartments. Live in "day-tight compartments" was the advice of Oser. He believed that his physicians in training would need such a philosophy.

WORRY and anxiety about the future can destroy a person. It can rob today of its value.

On the other hand, it can be tempting to live only for today. Too many seek only the short-term advantage. Our youth want instant success large enough to buy a new car and not themselves up in a place to live.

Even some clergy that I know move every four or five years. They can only become acquainted and accomplish a few short-term goals. It is often easier to move on than to struggle with the more difficult problems.

A neighbor once told me that they would be moving on in four years. It was not surprising that they did not get involved in the neighborhood or in the community. Their most important concern seemed to be their landscaping for it would retain a good short-term investment.

Rarely a person comes into a community and becomes very involved though they know that they will only be there a short time. I have a great admiration for such people. They become involved and they then suffer the pain of leaving friends. Yet their life is full and rich.

IT IS A DIFFICULT balancing act to live both philosophies at one time. Live for today and live as though you were going to be here all your life. If we fail to creatively combine these two elements we either are not involved fully in life or we burn out.

One way to help us to balance these two philosophies is to keep a daily journal. Writing down our daily experiences helps us to see the significance of this day.

We are more apt to objectify these worries which tend to creep on upon us. Dag Hammarskjöld's book "Meditations" is just such a journal.

Here we see a wonderful man who paid attention to the day, down his anxieties and concerns for future. It is an ongoing challenge.

Using a basketball to dribble diplomacy

HOW OFTEN WE, the unworthy and undeserving, have cast envious eyes toward the huge men who prance up and down basketball courts shooting a round ball through a hoop for a living. For eight months of work a year they get paid millions, and while they fly coast-to-coast to play their games we travel no further than refrigerator-to-couch to watch them on TV.

So many times our envy turns to bitterness and despair. Why should they be so fortunate? we demand from an unanswering television. We would cheerily, graciously accept such a job for one-tenth the salary.

But whatever magnitude our despair reaches over such an injustice, we let our dream dissipate with little argument, believing the opportunity will never come. The reason is simple: We do not possess their talent.

LIKE A GREAT majority of us, Dennis Nazelli has shared such dreams. But like a minority of us, Nazelli has brought his dreams to fruition.

"I have two very serious passions in life," the Livonia resident explained. "One is traveling and the other is basketball. So I just married the two and made it a basketball exchange."

It sounds too easy. And yet Nazelli realized his goals with an elaborate plan: form a team, find some overseas competition, and figure out a method of funding.

On that premise, Nazelli created Young Athletes Abroad (YAA) in 1982. It's goal was to take a team of young and willing basketball players to Europe. The learning experience, on and off the court, would be invaluable.

"We use basketball as the passport," said Nazelli, also a Dearborn High School assistant basketball coach. "That's the purpose of our traveling. We don't go over there with the intent of dominating the world. We share our knowledge, our technique and our drills, and we get the same from them."

"So in that sense, it does become a basketball exchange."

NAZELLI RETURNED last month from his sixth trip abroad with the team he coaches, the Livonia Cardinals. He has made two trips a year since founding YAA, normally taking 12- and 13-year-olds in April and 13- and 14-year-olds in June.

Their destination always includes Sweden. The April team plays in a minor tournament there, but those on the June squad play for the Stockholm Basketball Cup, the largest such youth tournament in the world. Teams from Egypt, Iceland, Republic of China, Sweden and Finland form the competition.

But this year's June team took a side trip — to Leningrad, to play the Russian Spartak squad.

While in Stockholm for last year's tournament, Nazelli learned of a ship line, ScanSov, that sailed twice weekly to Leningrad. After a few inquiries, he found he could bunk his team on the ship during a trip into the Soviet Union.

The director of ScanSov used his Russian contacts to set up a game against Spartak. Nazelli later discovered his Cardinals would be the first youth team from the United States to play in Russia.

SPARTAK, the second-best youth team in Russia, won the contest 61-46. The Cardinals returned home with a 10-2 record, including a third-place in the Stockholm Cup, and as Nazelli described it, "a different appreciation for their own lifestyle."

Which perfectly defines what Nazelli hopes to accomplish with the YAA. His method of selecting players has little to do with basketball talent. "I want them to have one or two years of playing experience because I don't have time to teach them the game," he said.

But anyone who answers his newspaper notices, which appear in August and September, can make the trip. The team tryout consists of Nazelli imparting his expectations of his players, usually dealing with academics and fund-raising efforts. "Normally, a chance like this only goes to the all-star athlete," said Nazelli. "But I've found an all-star can have an all-star attitude, and I don't need that. I'm more interested in their attitude than their talent."

FOR THE EIGHT months prior to the trip, team members bury themselves into efforts to raise money. The goal is to collect 50 percent of the amount needed, with a different method each month (raffles, candy sales, etc.). The fund-raising is on an individual basis, so some benefit more than others.

The June trip cost $1,350 for each of the eight team members. The least amount raised was $800, the most $1,000. The difference is paid by the player's parents.

The success of Nazelli's program has attracted attention. Livonia Ladywood used YAA methods to send its girls basketball team on a trip through Scandinavia, and currently a pair of Swedish female teams are in town.

The Swedish teams started their 10-game tour last night at Livonia Stevenson. In the next two weeks they'll play teams from Bloomfield Hills Andover (July 25), North Farmington (July 30-31), and Ladywood as part of a two-game tournament at Schoolcraft College Monday and Wednesday.

His program is nobly designed to benefit the young, but Nazelli makes no attempt to hide his own gains. "I'm so fortunate to be able to travel and coach all over the world, especially Europe," said the YAA founder.

Surely, it's a dream come true.

MSHL clash pits cats against dogs

By Chris McCosky
staff writer

The two division leaders in the Plymouth-based Midwest Summer Hockey League are on a collision course.

The Wildcats, 3-0 and on top of the Bakes Conference, and the Bulldogs, 4-0 leaders of the Tex Conference, will clash at 9:30 Thursday night.

The leaders fended off serious challenges Sunday.

The Bulldogs trailed the Falcons 3-2 with just 1:27 left to play. But rapid-fire goals by Rick Tosto, Mark Hamway and Joe Hamway ended the Falcons' upset bid.

Jamie Boisineau and Mike Stahley also scored for the Dogs.

Tim Osborn scored a pair of goals for the Falcons (1-2).

THE WILDCATS held off the Lakers 10-9.

"This has to be the biggest shootout in MSHL history," said Lakers coach and league commissioner A.J. Baker.

The Lakers, down 8-3 late in the second period, twice pulled within a goal of the Wildcats. But Tim Heiber's goal late in the third period iced the game for the Cats.

Mike Finn scored twice and added three assists; Kerry Kennedy scored twice for the Wildcats.

The loss dampened a huge night for the Lakers' Jason Tratechoud. Celebrating his 15th birthday, he scored twice and had three assists. Troy Thrun added a pair of goals for the Lakers.

Also on Sunday, the Wolverines notched their first win of the season beating the Broncos 6-3. Bart Cammarata scored twice and Scott Robins chipped in a goal and two assists.

Pat Marody, Rich Hutchinson and Fritz Brown tallied for the Broncos (1-2).

The Wolves are 1-2.

ON MONDAY, it was the Huskies' turn to notch win No. 1. They did so at the expense of the Winless Spartans, 8-5.

Dave Bramble, who played minor league hockey at Three Rivers, scored the hat trick and added three assists to pace the Huskies (1-3). Jeff Dobek contributed a pair of goals and three assists.

MSHL STANDINGS (as of July 15)

TEX CONFERENCE

Bulldogs	4-0
Falcons	1-2
Wolverines	1-2
Broncos	1-2

BAKES CONFERENCE

Wildcats	3-0
Lakers	2-2
Huskies	1-2
Spartans	0-3

For the Spartans, Livonia Churchill's All-Observerland performer Ed Shepler scored a goal and added an assist as did John Galuardi.

Baker's Lakers lost for the second time in two days on Monday. His club ran into one of the hottest lines in the league as the Bulldogs won big, 9-2.

The Dogs' line of John Doeher (Colby College), Joel Kovlak (Plymouth College) and Todd Hohl (Catholic Central) figured in six of the nine goals.

"Those three are real small and real fast and right now, they are red hot," said Baker.

Doeher scored twice and added an assist, Kovlak notched two goals and two assists and Hohl scored once. Brian Rennell, acquired from the Huskies Monday, scored twice in his Bulldog debut.

Thrun and J.C. Cerney scored for the Lakers (2-2).

MSHL DEALS: Commissioner Baker, in an attempt to keep a balance of talent throughout the league, has engineered a pair of trades.

He sent Brian Rennell and Drew Anderson from the Huskies to the Bulldogs for Brad and Pete Joelson.

Don Krussman went from the Bulldogs to the Wolverines in exchange for Livonia Stevenson product Matt Wiljanen.

The MSHL, sponsored by Little Caesars and Chrysler-Plymouth, features players from the professional, junior amateur, college and high school ranks. It also showcases some of the top talent throughout the Observer & Eccentric service area. The league is housed at the Plymouth Cultural Center.

Nature stalls star classic

By Chris McCosky

THE LAST ROSE

Mother Nature made things messy and uncomfortable last year. This year, she forced the postponement of the annual Adray All-Star Sandlot Baseball game Monday at Tiger Stadium with a unrelenting rainstorm.

There was talk among the organizers afterward of setting a makeup date for the annual classic which dates back to 1945, but not everyone is optimistic about the reality of replaying the game.

"They won't make this game up," said John Moraitis, who managed the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League all-stars.

Too bad if they don't. Until the rains came Monday, the prospects looked good for some serious baseball.

THE LIVONIA all-stars took the field against all-stars from the Detroit Adray League's first, third, fifth and seventh place teams at 10 a.m. The game was called after three innings with Detroit clinging to a 1-0 lead.

It was to be the first time in three years that Detroit and Livonia had played each other. Livonia, long considered a weak sister to the Detroit league, was out to prove it could compete with the elder circuit.

John Rogers, a Catholic Central grad now playing at the University of Detroit, started on the mound for Livonia representing Redford Little Caesars. He was greeted with a blast to the base of the right field wall by Adray Photo's Tom Hauck for a double.

Hauck, an Eastern Michigan University standout, moved to third on Scott Willis' (Adray Photo, EMU) fly ball to right. University of Michigan's Tom Brock (Adray Sound) then sent a fly ball to left center, some 400 feet away, that Tyrone Gaines (Caesars) ran down. Hauck scored on the play.

Livonia got a single from Todd

Pete Rose, a Michigan State baseball player and a member of Ron Heller's Livonia Adray baseball team, is playing his last season in the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League. Krumm (Livonia Adray) to lead off the second inning. But Detroit hurler Ron Rightnowar (Adray Photo, EMU) picked the MSU football-baseball star off first.

LIVONIA PITCHERS Doug Doyle (Walter's Appliance) and Derron Armstrong (Caesars) checked the Detroiters on one hit each in their one inning of work.

Meanwhile, Detroit pitchers Dave Karasinski (Adray Sound, U-M) and David Sala (Adray Sound, U-Cincinnati) blanked Livonia. The rains washed out the scheduled duel between the Lansing all-stars and stars from the Detroit Adray League's second, fourth and sixth place teams.

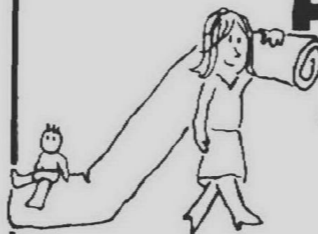

Featured performers in that game were to be former Farmington Harrison football-baseball player Bob Wasczenski who was playing for the Lansing team. Wasczenski plays football at MSU.

On the Detroit squad were such area players as Dave Slavin, former all-state catcher at Plymouth Salem now playing for the University of Missouri, and Bob Graham, a former star at Southfield High who now attends Henry Ford Community College.

The rain did go away Monday in time for the clash between the LCBL stars

Officials change date for MDA 10K run

By Marty Budner
staff writer

Although they certainly got their feet wet, representatives of the inaugural Michigan MDA 10-kilometer road race held last November along the streets of Southfield were less-than-pleased with the race's rather stormy debut.

Officials believe the second race — moved up to Aug. 18 this year — will prove to be more successful for the its ultimate beneficiary — the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

"We had the race in November last year. The weather was rainy and there was just not enough publicity time," said race director Mike Keeler, who works for the Southland Corp. which helps to sponsor the race.

"We wanted to move the race date closer to the actual (MDA) telethon (over the Labor Day weekend). That way it's right near the MDA activities.

"It's an ideal date for us and we'll try and stick with that third Sunday of the month each year," he said.

The 1984 race was held in cold, rainy conditions, limiting the field to just under 250 runners. Keeler said the race still netted $6,000 for the local branch of the MDA.

BECAUSE OF the switch in race dates, Keeler figures to attract upwards of 600 people this year.

running

The race begins 8:30 a.m. at the Southfield Civic Center and will conclude in the Southfield Towers area. Although the exact course is yet to be determined, it again will be routed along Civic Center Drive.

Awards will be given to men's and women's winners in each of the five age divisions: 19-under, 20-29, 30-39, 40-49 and 50-over. T-shirts will be awarded to the first 400 entries.

Joe Caruso of Monroe and Cindy Barber of Lincoln Park, members of the Racquets Unlimited Racing Team, are the defending overall champions.

The Racquets Unlimited Racing Team is a group of 11 dedicated runners sponsored by the Livonia-based Racquets Unlimited sports store. They travel around the country and are considered one of the best teams in the Midwest, according to store owner and race-team director Ben Tasitch.

"I think we have the strongest team in the Midwest," said Tasitch. "Our runners come from around the state. We consistently finish among the top teams at all the races.

"WE HAVE GOTTEN performances this year from our runners that you usually only see from nationally ranked teams. We won the Cherry Festival race with the minimum requirement of only three runners, we won the Ludington Lake Stride Race and the Borgess Medical 10k.

"We have a team of high quality runners, next to the people who run for money," he said.

Paul Baldwin and Sam Torres of Flint, Dave Emery of Farmington Hills, Tony Mifsud of Allen Park, Ron Lessard of Ferndale, Gary Wolfram of Lansing, Don Andersen of Garden City, Gary Reffitt of Ypsilanti and Sherri Sly of Dexter are other members of the Racquets Unlimited Team.

Besides the Southland Corp., other major sponsors of the second Michigan MDA 10k race include the Observer and Eccentric Newspapers Inc., Racquets Unlimited, Melody Farms and Gatorade.

For more information and to register for the race, call the Michigan MDA 10k hotline at 356-0830.

DRC Mile scores at gate

The first Michigan Mile that Ladbrooke, first-year owners of Detroit Race Course, hosted Saturday did not meet expectations.

First, Pat Day, the nation's leading jockey over the past three years, disappointed many race fans by riding just one winner in eight mounts. That left him three victories short of his 3,000 win goal.

There was more disappointment to bettors who made Day's mount, Big Pistol, a 7-10 favorite in the feature event. Big Pistol ran fourth in the Mile, while Michigan-bred Badwagon Harry pulled away down the stretch to win the $189,120 race. Harry, ridden by Ricardo Lopez, went off at 13-1 and paid $29 for a $2 win bet.

BUT ATTENDANCE for the Mile gave Ladbrooke officials something to cheer about. Under 10,000 had been anticipated. The race drew 10,757 to the Livonia track, the best crowd since the 1982 Michigan Mile when Willie Shoemaker made an appearance.

Ladbrooke DRC officials attributed the solid turnout to an excellent racing program led by Day; good advertising and marketing; and a pair of special promotions — a free $2 daily double bet and a new car giveaway.

The betting was also the best since Shoemaker's appearance: $1,782,065. The 1982 Mile drew 14,000 fans, who bet over $1.8 million while watching the legendary Shoemaker.

The showing boosted hopes of Ladbrooke DRC officials. Since their takeover and subsequent switch to an all-thoroughbred racing program, attendance has improved from an average of 3,500 last year to 4,100 this year, with betting increased from an average of $616,000 in 1984 to $666,000 currently.

Still, a true thoroughbred course generates $800,000 to $1 million in betting per racing day, according to a Ladbrooke source, and it will be awhile before DRC reaches that mark. The next major promotion is free tote bag day Saturday, Aug. 3.

Harry was a longshot in the Mile despite his victory in the Michigan Breeder's Handicap July 4. Ten Gold Pots ran second and DeJean was third.

Soccer tourney at Schoolcraft

The sixth annual Great Lakes Women's Soccer Festival will feature a bunch of firsts.

For one, the tournament has changed formats, from whatever team wants to play to an invitational. Secondly, trophies will be presented to the top teams. And third, the tourney is sanctioned by the Michigan Soccer Association's Senior Women's Division.

It should make for better competition. Sixteen teams will take aim at the titles available in three divisions: B (only three 19 and under players allowed on the field at one time), over 30 and open.

All games will be played at Schoolcraft College, with preliminary rounds starting at 9 a.m. Saturday and continuing until 5 p.m. Semifinals will start at 10 a.m. Sunday, with B division finals at 1:30 p.m. and the over 30 and open division finals following at 3 p.m.

All teams will play a minimum of three games. Among those vying for titles are the defending tourney champion Crusaders, featuring players from Livonia, Plymouth and Canton; the Troy Spirits; the Farmington Furries; the Plymouth-Canton Avengers; the Canton Wildcats; and the Milwaukee (Wis.) Kickers.

SOCCER NOTES: The Crusaders will hold an open tryout for under-19 female soccer players. The tryout will be 6:30-8:30 p.m. today at Schoolcraft College.

Adray keeps hold on 1st place

By Rob McElhaney
special writer

Patience helped Redford Little Caesars salvage a split of its Livonia Collegiate Baseball League (LCBL) double-header with Livonia Adray Sunday night at Redford's Capitol Park.

Todd Krumm tossed a four-hitter in a 6-1 Adray win in the first game, but Caesars rallied from a two-run deficit in the nightcap with single runs in the third, fourth, fifth and sixth innings and hung on for a 4-3 victory.

The split kept Adray in first place in the LCBL with a 20-5 mark. Caesars is a half-game back at 20-6. The two teams collide again at 2:30 p.m. Sunday at Livonia's Ford Field in a contest that could decide the LCBL regular season champion.

"We chipped away with a run here and a run there and kept the game close by playing good, fundamental baseball," said Caesars coach Bob Moraitis of his team's performance in the second game. "We were also able to move runners over and we had good defense."

CAESARS BENEFITTED from good relief pitching in the second game by Tom Liss, who entered in the fifth inning for starter Derron Armstrong and allowed one run on three hits while striking out three.

"We played pretty well in the first game, but didn't hit that well in the second," said Adray manager Ron Heller. "It's tough on a long, hot day to score a lot of runs."

Kevin Harrah (4-2), Adray's second-game starter, pitched no-hit ball for four innings, but walks, sacrifices and an error allowed Caesars to score twice to tie the game.

Kevin Krill led off the third with a walk and eventually scored on Don Taylor's sacrifice fly. In the fourth, Kevin Schwanz reached base on Adray first baseman Jeff DePorter's fielding error, went to second when Dan Michaels walked, advanced to third on Mike Hodge's sacrifice bunt and scored on Mike Hackett's ground out.

CAESARS TOOK the lead for good in the fifth. Tyrone Gaines singled for Caesars first hit, then stole second. Mike Betz moved Gaines to third with a fly ball that umpires ruled was trapped by Adray center-fielder Dave Austin.

After Taylor walked to load the bases, Heller summoned Rick Rozman from the bullpen. Schwanz greeted Rozman with a sacrifice fly to score Gaines with the go-ahead run.

A Mike Vigna single drove in Mike Hodge with Caesars fourth run. Krumm, who had three hits in the game, homered for Adray in the seventh to cut the gap to 4-3, but that was all the LCBL leaders could muster off Liss.

Austin also homered for Adray, sending an Armstrong pitch soaring over the right-field fence in the third inning.

IN THE OPENER, Krumm had his fastball, curve and forkball all working to near perfection, as he raised his record to 6-0.

"I got the Caesars batters to hit a lot of grounders off my forkball," the Michigan State football and baseball star said. "I started to really concentrate on the forkball from the third inning on, and three of my six strikeouts were off the fork pitch."

Heller added, "Krumm is doing a super job for us. He was throwing the forkball quite a bit and it worked well for him."

Krumm made just one mistake, surrendering a long home run to Gary Lizanich in the first inning.

After Lizanich's blast, the opener belonged to Adray. Austin and Krumm each scored runs in Adray's half of the first without the aid of a hit. Mike Johnson's sacrifice fly scored Bill Ulle in the fourth to boost Adray's lead to 3-1.

Ulle paced Adray with two hits, while Austin collected a hit and two runs batted in. Lizanich had two hits for Caesars. John Rogers was the losing pitcher, absorbing his first defeat of the season after five wins.

NORTHVILLE 3, WALTER'S 1: Chris Willeren fired a no-hitter to jolt Walter's Appliance's LCBL title hopes Sunday at Livonia's Ford Field.

Willeren fanned seven and walked seven as Northville improved to 11-14. John Fraser was the losing pitcher for Walter's, which fell to 18-7.

Tom Cotter doubled in one run and Greg Ryba singled and later scored on a wild pitch for the winners.

CAESARS 13, GARDEN CITY 3: Mike Betz paced a 19-hit Redford Little Caesars assault with three hits and seven RBI Friday at Ford Field.

Betz belted a two-run homer and a double, and Kevin Schwanz delivered four runs with three hits, including a homer. Tyrone Gaines added three hits, one a double, and Gary Lizanich and Don Taylor had two hits apiece.

Dan Michaels went the distance to earn the pitching victory, surrendering seven hits while striking out three.

Canton Ruth stars eye state crown

The Plymouth-Canton Babe Ruth Baseball League (14-15 year olds) all-stars are heading to Lansing this weekend to play in the eight-team state championship tournament.

The all-star team, coached by Bob Ruete of Canton Craiger, earned the trip to Lansing with a two-game sweep of the Babe Ruth District Tournament in Canton last weekend.

The all-stars defeated Westland 8-4 on Friday, then whipped Detroit 17-5 on Saturday.

Hurler Todd Marion fanned 13 Westland batters Friday and allowed just two hits. Chris Kennedy's two-run single in the seventh provided the game winner for Plymouth-Canton.

THE ALL-STARS scored early and often Saturday against Detroit. Eleven of the 17 runs were driven home by Tim Lake, Marion and Fidell Cashero. Cashero was the winning pitcher.

The winner of this weekend's state tourney in Lansing will represent Michigan in the Ruth Regional Tournament in Owensboro, Ky. in August.

The Plymouth-Canton all-stars are: Scott Browne, Fidel Cashero, John Davis, Aaron Durham, Bob Ford, John Ford, Chris Kennedy, Tim Lake, Todd Marion, Rob Ruete, Mike Schwartz, Jeff Sebuck, Mark Stanforth, Jay Sawiecki and Dave Walsh. Assistant coaches are Larry Sebuck and Dennis Kennedy.

Foss dumps Salem Mack

At the beginning of the summer, coach Glen Murdock looked at his young Don Foss Connie Mack baseball team and concluded that a .500 season would have to be considered a success.

His club has surpassed expectations. Thursday night, Foss upped its record to 7-5-1 with a 5-3 victory over Plymouth Salem (5-6).

Redford Union High School standouts Kevin Moore and Dennis Bushart triggered the win, each propelling two-run home runs. Each had a pair of hits on the night.

Pat Miller scattered 10 hits but managed to hold on for the victory. He fanned three and walked three.

STEVE SOBDITCH led Salem's attack with a walk, single and a double.

Don Foss and Livonia Stevenson played to a 4-4 standstill Tuesday. The game was stopped after nine innings.

Foss sent the game into extra innings with a run in the bottom of the seventh. Catholic Central product Larry Kirchner tripled (his second hit) and scored on Scott Butler's perfect suicide squeeze bunt.

Bushart, hitting at a .468 clip, went 2-for-4 for Foss.

Ypsilanti (9-2) and Buff Whelan (6-2) lead the Connie Mack League. Plymouth Canton is in third place with four losses and Don Foss is a game back in fourth.

Area bowling contingent is crowned new state champ

One of the proudest bowlers in the Observerland area is Mrs. Rosemary Prueter, captain of the Cherry Hills team in the Wednesday night all-star league.

She has reason to be proud for she has just been notified, officially, that her team is the new state champion.

The word came from the Michigan Bowling Association, telling her that the score of 2977 was tops in the team event and that the official trophy will be presented at the annual banquet in Battle Creek on July 17.

Aside from Mrs. Prueter, the other members of the team are Leslie Szurek, Marion Saunders, Helen Fox and Ruth Piepney.

WONDERLAND: The trio league continues to be a high scoring loop. This was proven again during the week when John Kmiecik showed the way with a 265 (high game of the night) and a 905 series.

WOODLAND LANES: Connie

Beane set the pace in the Family Foursome league with a 256. In the seniors league Walt Caveney was top man with a 220.

WESTLAND BOWL: In the Monday morning men's league Ken Jacobs showed the way with a 279 in a 638 series. Next to him came Herman Morningsky with a 604 series.

BEL-AIRE: Tony Stipcak rolled an 873 series to pace the trio league. At this figure he was five pins ahead of Mel Gartovia who fired a 868.

Summer-Stage:

something delightful
— a comedy tonight

Producers are hoping for something delightful when a comedy opens tonight at the Birmingham Theatre.

Steven Sondheim's whacky musical comedy "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" is the first in a series of SummerStage musicals at the Birmingham. It runs through Aug. 4.

Robert Moloney Productions, a company that produces entertainment for theme parks, cruise ships and special promotions, is behind the project. "Hello, Dolly," also produced by Moloney Productions, is scheduled for an Aug. 7-25 run.

Raymond Allvin of Bloomfield Hills is executive producer of SummerStage and vice president of Moloney Productions. He also teaches at Oakland University, where he created the commercial music department and worked with the Meadow Brook Estate show choir.

In December 1983, he teamed with Robert Moloney, who wanted to use young talent in an entertainment production company.

In show business, most aspiring entertainers must resort to stop-gap jobs — driving cabs or waiting tables just to pay the rent during the inevitable months between jobs in the unpredictable entertainment business. It's a discouraging, unstable way to live.

FOR MALONEY, founding the entertainment company offered a way to bring stability and a steady income into the lives of young performers short on cash and long on talent. But the production company is also a business venture for Moloney, who won Advanced Medical Research Center in Pontiac, a diagnostic medical laboratory.

Allvin does most of the musical training for the company. Moloney, whose longtime sideline is choral music, works with the groups to oversee development of the shows.

"Mainstreet" was the first group created by Moloney Productions. Seven "high-energy, bright-eyed, American boys and girls next door" now travel all over the country performing. They project "youth and vitality with fast choreography and do a great deal of patriotic routines as well as solid-gold songs through the years."

A GIANT wall calendar in Allvin's office at the headquarters for Moloney Productions on Willow Road in Pontiac is covered with nearly non-stop bookings for the touring group.

"Mainstreet probably will end up on television in a star-search kind of show," Allvin said. "We're thinking about it now."

Mainstreet performs shows for special events and business openings and charges $2,000-$20,000 per show, depending on the costs to develop, costume, and stage the production. They put on a patriotic holiday show July 4 for 15,000 people at a park in Georgia.

At the end of July, they're scheduled to play the opera house in Cheboygan.

MALONEY Productions auditions all over the Midwest for the singers and dancers in its shows. "We bring them in, house, train and costume them, then ship them to the site," said Allvin, a big man with silver hair and a Salvador Dali mustache.

Bolbo Island and Canobie Lake Park, N.H., are the two theme parks for which Moloney Productions provides summertime entertainment. Each theme park group has 14 members, many college students who will return to school at summer's end.

The five-member group "Le Zaz" provides glittering Las Vegas-style song-and-dance shows on an Eastern Line cruise ship sailing out of Miami.

"In the future, we hope to do the Las Vegas, Reno and lounge circuit," Allvin said, "and handle two more cruise ships."

IN JUST 1½ years, Moloney Productions has grown impressively. "Mainstreet," their premiere group, now tours extensively in their own bus with a road manager and technical crew. Two other groups work at theme parks, and another cruises the Caribbean.

In order to put together new acts for the groups plus rehearse the musical comedies for SummerStage, the Moloney Company uses four stages at three locations, two of them in a warehouse. The offices and production facilities are all in Pontiac, not far from the headquarters of Advanced Medical Laboratories.

THE COMPANY shares part-time staff members from the business department of the medical company and now has six full-time staffers of its own, including Allvin's secretary, Mary Jane Parker of Rochester.

Local experts who work with the company include vocal coach Jan Albright of Birmingham, production and sales coordinator Caroline Chipman and personnel director Nell Findley, both from Rochester, and choreographer Jackie Ammond of Berkley.

"A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" and "Hello, Dolly" will run for three weeks each at the Birmingham.

"We wanted something light for summer shows that would suit the artists we had in mind," Allvin said. They chose Rod Maxwell of Toronto to direct the two shows because he's "colorful, clever and unique as a director."

THEY CAST Jeffery Brute — best known to Detroit audiences as a guest host of afternoon TV's "Kelly and Company" — as Pseudolus. Patsy Garrett — who has starred in two "Benjie" movies — has the lead in "Hello, Dolly."

Moloney Productions held open auditions in Pontiac to fill other roles in the musicals.

Chuck Storey of West Bloomfield, Nancy Kolton and John Carver of Southfield will play Romans in "A Funny Thing." Birmingham natives Pamela Ann Martin, Mary Callaghan Lynch and David New won parts in "Dolly," as did lifetime area resident Martin Flynn.

"Saturn 3" (1980), 8 p.m. Friday on Ch. 4. Originally 88 minutes. TV time slot: 120 minutes.

No one raves about "Saturn 3," but there are a few things undeniably appealing about it. One is its futuristic premise about an outpost on one of Saturn's moons. The lifestyles of the outpost's inhabitants — played by Kirk Douglas and Farrah Fawcett — are idyllic until a serpent, in the form of a robot named Hector, enters their Eden. Hector and the inhabitants eventually clash, of course, but ideas clash first. That's one nice thing about "Saturn 3" — ideas and action take precedent over special effects. Yet the special effects, which are used most economically, are quite convincing. It's also nice to see Fawcett appear comfortably convincing in one of her first grown-up roles after she abandoned the bubblegum-brained "Charley's Angels." Harvey Keitel co-stars.

Rating: $2.95.

Manhattan Transfer jazzes up its lounge act

It used to be that the Manhattan Transfer was a chic nightclub and hotel lounge act that dealt in nostalgia and effortless quartet vocals. Not anymore. You could see before the show began Saturday night at Meadow Brook Music Festival that this was no ordinary lounge act. The thick sheath of cables that snaked down the center aisle and was hooked to two banks of 12 speakers and the imported light show announced that this was going to be a show to reckon with.

And so it was. Not only is a present-day Manhattan Transfer show a visual and aural extravaganza, it is also sold out. That tells you the popularity of their type of vocal jazz. Like Linda Ronstadt bringing nostalgia back into its own, the two guys and two gals of Manhattan Transfer have spearheaded the vocal jazz scene becoming more successful than any other group that's ever put words to jazz solos.

So, thanks to "Birdland" and other Manhattan Transfer hits, the type of singing that Lambert, Hendricks & Ross pioneered in the late 1950s has found popular acceptance. Which does not mean that MT is a slouch quartet looking for the easiest way to make a buck. The group's been paying its dues through 12 albums dating back to the early 1970s.

on music

WEARING FLASHY clothes and with a traditional acoustic quintet backing them, Tim Hauser, Janis Siegel, Alan Paul and Cheryl Bentyn began with "Rambo." Not a nod to Sly Stallone, but a tune written by jazz trombonist J.J. Johnson and featured on their soon-to-be released album, "Vocalese."

Vocalese, as the quartet explained, is writing and singing lyrics to recorded jazz solos. Just as Lambert, Hendricks & Ross before them, MT sang, often in dizzying and dazzling fashion, new lyrics to old or recognizable solos.

Horace Silver's "Doodlin'" and a Thad Jones tune got the MT treatment, which means harmonies sung in an exquisite and almost-always faultless style.

It is to be noted that when the group takes chances, as with the late Clifford Brown's chord progressions of "Joy Spring," there are missed cues. But the exuberance and the stylings are still impressive.

Because of the number of tunes done by MT which are to be heard on their new album, Jon Hendricks, the writer of vocalese lyrics, came in for considerable praise. Several outstanding sets of lyrics in the show came from Hendricks' splendid and inventive pen, including those for "Killer Joe."

EVIDENCE that MT has moved from the small concert hall to the big-time concert is the pacing of their performance. When they returned for the second set, there was a new staging and the backup band switched to electronic instruments and keyboards. With this change, the tempo of the performance picked up, too.

The foursome's stage presence and ability to spark the interests of a diverse audience was noted as they did a section of 1950s-style rock and roll tunes that had the audience clapping and rocking. Their four-part harmony wasn't sacrificed when they did less jazzy and more rock-oriented tunes. But just to remind the crowd of what MT was all about, they did Cannonball Adderley's "Janine" before bringing the show to a peak with their hit "Birdland."

Independence: treasury of Truman history

HARRY TRUMAN still can be seen every day in downtown Independence, Mo., his bronze figure leaning forward, cane in hand, on a marble pedestal, but almost as if he were walking along in front of the Independence Square Courthouse.

The red brick courthouse is where Truman served as Presiding Judge of the Jackson County Court from 1926 to 1934. His lifetime terrain was this small historic town within a half-hour drive of downtown Kansas City.

Independence was once the starting point of the Santa Fe, Oregon and California trails. Three gunshots and a "westward ho" would lead inexperienced easterners into weeks on the wagon trail.

Iris Jones

contributing travel editor

Harry Truman was 6 years old when his family moved to Independence. His wife Bess was born and died in the house that still stands at 219 N. Delaware St., within walking distance of Independence Square. The couple lived in that house during all their married life outside the White House. Bess remained there until she died in 1982.

THE TRUMAN Home is a big white clapboard house built by Bess's grandfather in 1867 and kept now exactly as Bess left it to the National Park Service. Harry's coat still hangs on the coat rack, and the living room, music room and study are as full of family memorabilia as they would be in any family home.

Just visiting the Truman Home is enough to restore any lost faith in the American presidency. There is very little sign of Truman's years in the White House, no royal inclinations, just photographs of children and grandchildren, and of the piano that Margaret Truman was given for her eighth birthday, when all she really wanted was an electric train.

Harry and Bess ate breakfast and lunch every day at a tiny table for two against the wall in their old-fashioned kitchen, although Bess used to say that she couldn't stand it when Harry came home for lunch. It was bad enough that he ate toast and bananas for breakfast; for lunch he particularly enjoyed peanut butter and sardines.

One of many nice little touches in the house are the oilcloth cover on that little kitchen table, and the toaster where Harry made his own toast.

THE NATIONAL Park Service is restoring the house to the retirement years, when the wrought-iron fence was added for privacy and to keep visitors from carrying the house away piece by piece.

The shades are kept drawn about 18 inches above the sills, even though it gives the house a gloomy look, because that was needed to keep out prying eyes in the later years.

The first floor of the home is open to the public. The upstairs is closed, at Bess Truman's request, as long as her daughter and husband are alive. There are no barricades in the house, and the park service likes you to see it as a home and not as a museum, so only eight people are allowed into the house at one time.

Free tickets are available from the information center downtown near Independence Square. On busy midsummer days the tickets for the whole day could be gone by 11 a.m., so get them early.

The statue of Harry S Truman in downtown Independence.

THE INFORMATION CENTER is also the first stop on a shuttle tour of Independence. A minivan stops at each designated place along the looped route every fifteen minutes. A film in the information center shows you the daily lives of the Truman family before, during and after the presidential years. You'll see them sitting on the screened back porch of the house at 219 N. Delaware, playing cards, reading the newspaper, eating Sunday supper with friends.

If you want to see President Truman's life in its historic presidential sense, one of the main stops along the shuttle route is the Harry Truman Library and Museum, a low contemporary building that has been built around an outdoor courtyard.

Every day of the year you will find men and women leaning over the fence that surrounds the Truman gravesite, pointing out the inscription on the gravestone to their children.

THE LIBRARY is used for historical research but regular visitors browse the exhibits that put Truman's life and presidency in perspective, with special attention to the oval office, which has been authentically reproduced inside the museum.

Other Truman-related sites include "The Man from Independence" audio-visual presentation shown in the Independence Square Courthouse, on Independence Square. The presentation runs from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday.

The Truman Office Museum is also at the Courthouse. There is a 25-cent admission charge for adults. Also, at the Harry S. Truman Railroad Station is a pictorial exhibit regarding Mr. Truman's 1948 Whistle Stop Campaign that can be viewed during station hours. Amtrak service is available at the station.

Reminders of the frontier west and Victorian abound in Independence. The 1859 Marshall's Home and Jail Museum, 217 N. Main, is the restored Civil War era residence of the county marshal, with limestone jail, museum wing and 1865 schoolhouse.

Harry and Bess ate breakfast and lunch every day at a tiny table for two against the wall in their old-fashioned kitchen.

THE JAIL served as headquarters for union troops during the Civil War and housed such famous personages as William Quantrill and Frank James. Admission to the Jail Museum is $1.50 for adults and $1 for students (children under 12 are free). The site is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily from March through December.

Independence is also the world-headquarters of the Reorganized Church of Latter-day Saints (RLDS). Joseph Smith Jr., founder of the Latter-day Saints movement, chose Independence in 1831 as the place for the "City of Zion," and what followed was a turbulent history culminating in a split: the Mormon migration to Utah, and the return of the RLDS, which established its world headquarters in Independence.

The auditorium, which faces the historic Temple Lot, is topped by a massive copper dome. Inside the Council Chamber, the impressive organ has 6,395 pipes ranging in size from a quarter of an inch to 32 feet. The Utah Mormon Visitors Center, also adjacent to the Temple Lot, displays church doctrine and history.

For further information on touring the Independence area, write City of Independence, Tourism Division, 111 E. Maple St., Independence, Mo. 64050.

In Cajun country, every meal is one that satisfies

By Susan D. Bliss
Smithsonian News Service

Travelers agree that south Louisiana restaurants can serve up some of the tastiest regional food in the nation. Some Louisianians believe that's because restaurants have to compete with home cooking.

Louisianians generally are proud of their cooking. No one sitting in Maude Ancelet's living room in Lafayette, La., following a dinner of crawfish creole, shrimp etouffee and fig cake could wonder why.

And the kind of cooking that Maude enjoys is catching on with the rest of the country, thanks in part to the reputation and merchandising power of New Orleans restaurateur Paul Prudhomme.

America's new enthusiasm for the spicy, flavorful food that they eat every day in Lafayette, heartland of Cajun culture, doesn't surprise Louisianians.

Neither does it surprise Prudhomme, who says simply: "Cajun food is popular because it tastes good."

THE STYLE was developed by hardworking people who made use of whatever ingredients were available from their Louisiana farms, bayous and coastline.

Their forebears were French-Canadian immigrants expelled by the British from Nova Scotia — then known as Acadia — in 1755. Settling in south Louisiana, the Acadians, or Cajuns, brought along their French language, food traditions and culture, adapting them to a subtropical region with a long growing season, flat terrain and plentiful waterways.

In south Louisiana, the Cajuns lived side by side with Indians, African and Caribbean blacks and French, German and Spanish landowners who had gathered in a bustling commercial center fed by Mississippi, Caribbean and Atlantic trade.

Cajun menus were spiced by the distinctive cooking styles of French ancestors and new neighbors. These environmental and cultural influences are well mixed in south Louisiana cuisine.

At Schwegmann's, a large New Orleans grocery store, 40-foot-long shelves are stacked with every size, color and shape of dried bean. Aisles are lined with boxes and bags of rice. Vegetable bins hold squashlike mirlistons, small green tomatoes and plantains. The fish bins are filled with jumbo Gulf shrimp, local crawfish and whiskey 10-pound catfish.

THE CULTURAL mixing process, or "creolization," percolated strongest in New Orleans, where "creole" cuisine is centered. Glenn Conrad, director of the Center for Louisiana Studies at the University of Southwestern Louisiana in Lafayette, traces the origin of "creole" back to "a person born in the colony. Hence, creole is a synonym for 'born here.'"

But to the New Orleans restaurant community, creole means Louisiana haute cuisine derived from classic French cooking.

Often, to "cook creole" means to combine French and Afro-American cooking. Usually, the city folk who do so can trace their New Orleans ancestry back to 18th-century French or Spanish colonists and African or Caribbean blacks. Outside New Orleans, in Cajun country, to "cook creole" means to cook soul food.

Mathe Allain, president of the Louisiana Historical Association, was born in France but makes her home in Lafayette. An enthusiastic cook herself, Allain has devoted many of her studies in Louisiana culture to the investigation of traditional foods.

"You have things like pralines, Louisiana transformation of a classic French recipe using walnuts dipped in sugar," Allain says. "Here, pralines are made with syrup — cane syrup, naturally — and pecans," which are grown nearby.

CARMEN RICARD'S crawfish etouffee is another Louisiana interpretation of a French classic. To thicken the sauce, Ricard begins her preparation with a roux. In France, this handy thickener is made with butter and flour, but in south Louisiana, where land was given over to sugar and rice cultivation, dairy products are not prevalent. Instead, a roux made with vegetable oil is the base for many a gumbo, creole or stew.

"You can make a roux in 10 minutes

To the New Orleans restaurant community, creole means Louisiana haute cuisine derived from classic French cooking. But often, to "cook creole" means to combine French and Afro-American cooking.

or one hour," Ricard says, depending on how dark you want it, "and just as the roux gets to the right point, you throw your seasoning in. That cools it down and stops the cooking process." To her roux, Ricard adds two pounds of crawfish, the tiny, lobsterlike crustacean that has helped make Cajun food famous.

Over in Henderson, La., you can visit Seafood Inc., one of the region's biggest crawfish processing plants. "Henderson is just a Cajun town where everybody lives on catchin' crawfish," plant manager Lonny Guidry says.

Many Cajun good traditions are still closely tied to the agricultural year, even though fresh ingredients are now available through the seasons. Lucy Sedotal, who is from Pierre Part, La., (a Cajun town "you have to want to get to," according to local wisdom), for many years helped her husband "make a boucherie" (butchered hog) each fall.

"We'd make our own cracklins, salt meat and 'andouille' (smoked sausage)," she explained. "Then we'd put salt meat the leftover pieces you didn't know what to do with in a 5-gallon crock. The pig's tail went at the bottom." The scraps were preserved and used in cooking. Cracklins were eaten as snacks. "When you got down to the tail, you knew it was time to boucherie some more," she recalls.

CARMEN RECARD, a Creole, was born in New Orleans' French Quarter, but she learned to cook Cajun style from her late husband, who was raised in the country. She makes hoghead cheese at Christmas, a tradition based on the autumn butchering Sedotal describes. Richard's family eats black-eyed peas and cabbage, flavored with ham, at New Year's.

To a visiting Northerner, the abundance of shrimp, oysters and crawfish in south Louisiana is enviable, and Louisianians do take full advantage of their good fortune. When Sylvia Conrad was in high school, shrimp was so cheap that "our high school parties were shrimp boils."

Conrad, who is descended from early French settlers, uses Cajun recipes and also follows the food traditions of the Creole parish where she was raised. Her seafood gumbo is thick with crab, shrimp and oysters, standard fare in New Iberia, La., where she lives.

Sharing food is the neighborly way in Louisiana. The shrimp in Maude Ancelet's etouffee was fished out of the Gulf of Mexico and donated for a family dinner the next night by her son-in-law. "I don't buy many groceries," Maude says.

"What we don't use, we give away," Elmo Ancelet, Maude's husband, adds. He gives a visitors a tour of the vegetable garden behind the house. Over the long growing season, it will yield enough Irish potatoes, carrots, little purple hull beans, okra, lima beans, four kinds of tomatoes, mirlistons, green eggplants, strawberries and cucumbers to feed family and friends most of the year.

The taste for fresh food expertly prepared dies hard, apparently. Carmen Ricard tells the story of her brother Arthur who lived in California. On a recent visit to New Orleans, he stocked up on fish, shrimp, crawfish and oysters. Lacking a container to transport his treasure, he packed his suitcase with ice and seafood and left his clothes in Louisiana.

GARAGE SALE

HOW TO DO A LITTLE BUSINESS ON YOUR OWN...

Holding a garage sale is a fun way to do a little business on your own . . . but it takes a bit of planning.

Like you'll want to decide what to sell and how much to charge for each item . . . and then you'll need price tags so other people will know what you're charging.

And you'll have to be able to make change for all your customers . . . so that means you should have lots of one dollar bills and an assortment of coins.

Then you'll want to advertise your sale to attract that crowd. You can do it with a sign or signs in your neighborhood . . . but you'll want a bigger crowd than that . . . so you'll run an ad in Classified which tells the time and place of your sale to a host of potential buyers.

Have fun with your little business adventure!

Pick up your free Garage Sale folder in our office when you place your ad! (Contains two signs, two arrows, a handy ledger, 14 tips for a successful sale and nine tips for a successful ad)

Ann Arbor art fairs offer rich diversity

There's something new about the oldest of Ann Arbor's art fairs, and visitors can see for themselves Wednesday-Saturday, July 24-27, when the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair comes to life on South and East University avenues, near the University of Michigan campus in Ann Arbor.

For these four days, Ann Arbor becomes an open air art gallery. Each booth offers a new art treasure and the chance for conversation with an artist. Fair hours will be 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Wednesday-Friday and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday.

The Ann Arbor Street Art Fair is the city's oldest and original juried fair, the one that started Ann Arbor's art fair tradition in 1960.

A RIGOROUS jurying process has led to the fair's reputation as one of the most outstanding in the country. This year, a change in that selection process has brought in more than 100 new artists, (out of a total 250) to exhibit their work.

Whether or not an artist is invited back for the next fair depends on the results of the on-street jurying done during the art fair itself.

"In the past, only a limited number of openings for new artists were available because each year 75 percent of participating artists were asked to return," said Jean Lau, co-chairperson of the art fair's Acceptance Committee. "As a result, the 900 new artists applying to the fair every year were in competition for 40 to 60 spaces."

THIS YEAR, the Art Fair Board decided it was time to make a change in the rules. From now on, every medium (clay, fibers, etc.) will be completely rejuried every four years, on a rotating basis. The year that a medium is scheduled for rejurying, no artist in that medium will be invited back for the next year's fair. All artists will have to reapply, in competition with new artists who never have exhibited in the fair before.

To apply to the fair, artists send in five slides that are judged by panels of professional artists knowledgeable in their fields.

Clay, sculpture and wood works were completely rejuried this year. As a result, twice as many new artists are in the 1985 fair than in previous years.

ART FAIR Week in Ann Arbor is actually a coming together of three distinct art fairs: the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair, the smaller State Street Area Art Fair and the Summer Arts Festival. Each has its own unique flavor and dedicated following, and the combined fairs present the work of close to 1,000 artists during the four-day event.

The State Street Art Fair, which began in 1968, is a juried fair of some 165 artists sponsored by the State Street Area Association.

The Summer Arts Festival, displaying the work of nearly 600 artists, takes place at two locations: on Main Street, between William and Huron, and on State Street, between William and South University. All of its exhibitors are members of the University Artists and Craftsmen Guild, a national organization committed to the promotion, development and cultivation of contemporary arts and crafts. It will run until 6 p.m. Saturday.

OVER THE years, the diversity of artwork shown at the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair has increased. In 1960, most of the artwork fell into three categories: ceramics, painting and weaving. Now fairgoers can see sculpture, photography, prints, woodcarvings, blown glass, drawings, enamels, jewelry, paperworks, engravings and etchings. The weaving category has expanded to include other kinds of fabric creations, such as clothes created from painted fabrics, soft sculpture and off-loom weaving.

All artists are present in their booths, giving the fair the atmosphere of an art colony. Fairgoers can satisfy their curiosity about how a piece of art was produced or what materials were used. And the fair provides the perfect opportunity for finding out about the life of an artist.

The goal of the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair Board hasn't changed over the years.

"We wanted and we still want to put before the public the work of good artists. We like to educate the people," said Esther Rainville, one of the original organizers who still is involved with the fair.

ONE METHOD of educating people — demonstrations by the artists — has proved to be a very popular feature of the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair. This year, 21 individual artists plus the Ann Arbor Potters Guild will give fairgoers a peek at the creative process as they produce original artwork step-by-step in their booths.

Demonstrations have been a part of the fair since its very beginning.

"We have people who are good in a field and we have them demonstrating so people can see how things are done," Rainville said. "If we just had people selling, the public wouldn't be learning."

COMMUNITY PARTICIPATION is another goal of the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair.

In addition to providing an opportunity for visitors to watch artists at work in their booths, the fair operates a supervised Children's Activities Booth, staffed by the Ann Arbor Y, to give youngsters their own hands-on experiences of art. The booth will be open from 10 a.m. to noon and 2-4 p.m. daily.

"Here, children are encouraged to dirty their hands making papier-mache masks, glue and sawdust pictures, paintings, or simply to experiment with new materials, such as wood or clay," said Mary Keren, who coordinates the booth.

Members of the Senior Citizens Guild have been participating in the fair for many years. The guild has a booth on South University between East U and Church streets, where it exhibits its members' work for the community to enjoy and purchase.

The Potters Guild also exhibits and sells members' work at the fair. Potters Guild members demonstrate ceramic techniques during the event.

THE FAIR'S Purchase Awards program gives corporations and individuals the opportunity to be visibly supportive of the creative arts.

From jazz to mime, it's under the Arch

Daylong entertainment at the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair will be featured under the Graceful Arch spanning East University Ave.

The Arch is a work of art itself, a striking free-form structure of aluminum and tentcloth that covers a performing arts stage. This year the Arch has a new look. It has been completely refabricated in two shades of blue.

Entertainment has been scheduled from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. Wednesday-Friday, July 24-26 and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, July 27.

Helga Haller, executive director of the Washtenaw Council for the Arts, has scheduled a variety of performing artists and groups to entertain the crowds with folk, bluegrass, jazz and chamber music; dramatic presentations; mime; children's theater; ethnic, modern and jitterbug dancing; and more.

Alumni Center offers 2 Eskimo art exhibits

Two Inuit (Eskimo) art exhibits are now on display at the Alumni Center, home of the Alumni Association of the University of Michigan, 200 Fletcher in Ann Arbor.

The exhibits, open free to the public, are among the Alumni Association's co-operative efforts with the Ann Arbor summer festival and art fairs.

The Alumni Center is open 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays during the summer.

TWELVE INUIT sculptures, mostly of soapstone, are on view on the Alumni Center's second floor. They are on loan from the Gallery of Eskimo Art, 527 E. Liberty in Ann Arbor. The sculptures include bears, walrus, birds, musk ox, narwhal and seal, as well as an Inuit drummer and hunter.

Soapstone sculptures vary in color from green through light gray to black, depending on the type of soapstone and the polishing or incising techniques used by the artist.

Twenty Inuit prints and drawings from Baker Lake, an Inuit community in Canada's Northwest Territories, are on exhibit through Aug. 2 in the Founders Room on the Alumni Center's first floor. Titled "Multiple Perspectives from Baker Lake," the works highlight the distinguishing characteristics of the graphic works of the older generation of Baker Lake artists.

Two-dimensional graphic representation was basically foreign to the Canadian Inuit. While some artists created images that correspond to our familiar way of looking at things in a linear perspective, other artists, primarily the older ones, transposed their uniquely Inuit view of the world onto paper, creating the works in this show.

"Multiple Perspectives" includes works of stonecut and stencil, polychrome silkscreen, colored pencil drawing, linocut and stencil and lithograph.

MARION "MAME" Jackson will describe the print show at 4:30 p.m. Friday, July 19, in the Founders Room, as part of the alumni enrichment series of lectures relating to the summer festival. While intended for Alumni Association members, other interested persons are welcome to attend the series.

Jackson is a doctoral candidate in the U-M History of Art Department who is completing her dissertation on drawings of Baker Lake's Inuit artists.

Where to park

The huge popularity of the Ann Arbor Art Fairs presents the city with a parking problem.

As an alternative to parking downtown, the Ann Arbor Transportation Authority will offer the Art Fair Shuttle Bus service. Visitors may park their cars free at Briarwood Shopping Mall or Pioneer High School, and take a shuttle bus to the fair.

One-way fare for the shuttle bus is $1. Children under age 5 ride free. The service will operate continuously from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. Wednesday-Friday, July 24-26 and from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday, July 27.

PIONEER HIGH School is located across from the Michigan Stadium. Take I-94 to the Saline-Ann Arbor exit 175 north. Visitors coming from the north should stay on M-14 to Maple Road and follow Maple and Stadium to the high school. To get to the shopping mall, take I-94 to the State Road exit 177 and follow the signs north to Briarwood.

Two shuttle bus routes will be available. The "Main Street" shuttle will take visitors to a de-boarding point at Main and William for the Summer Arts Festival and Main Street Fair. The "South University" shuttle will service the Street Art Fair and State Street area art fair. This bus will stop at Tappan on South University.

Summer means taking watercolors on location

This is another lesson on art and drawing by special columnist David Messing. He has taught for ten years and operates an art store, Art Store and More, 16338 Middlebelt, Livonia, 522-6311, 265 N. Main Street, Plymouth, 455-1222. Messing encourages questions and comments from readers. You may write him at his store or c/o Observer Newspapers, 23352 Farmington Road, Farmington, MI 48024.

By David Messing
special writer

Hey folks, it's summer. I imagine if I were a construction worker, I would sit artifacts

atop a lumbering bulldozer smoothing out a stretch of road.

As I adjust my hard hat stoically, I would glance at lines of cars trying to pass me. Never wearing a shirt, I would quickly become as brown as a bear. (Did you ever notice how brown fat looks so much better than white fat?)

If I was a roofer, I would wonder if I was being punished for the sins of a former life as I muck tar around in the sweltering summer heat on top of some strange building.

If I was a fisherman, I would be on the water with the first rays of daybreak. Rising and sinking, with the swells of the water I would ponder deep questions, like: "what am I doing out here so early?" or "who left the worm, that is now welded to the bottom of my tackle box?"

If I was an office worker, I would sit and gaze out tinted windows wishing I could trade jobs with anybody doing just about anything in the out of doors. Then hypocritically, I would opt to stay indoors for lunch because of the air-conditioned comfort.

BUT I AM an artist and I have to get out there and draw, sketch and paint. After an hour or two of sitting on the wet grass, I will return home with a world class backache, a wet seat and a sinus headache that would stop a rhino.

So Mr. Nature Lover, "Dave," will take a synthetic Advil for his back and an unnatural Sinutab for his headache and beam with joy for the opportunity to have suffered in the great out of doors to produce a work of art.

So let's talk a little about art on location or on vacation. Probably my favorite medium for outdoor color work would be watercolor. There is nothing like the perfect light of the sun to appreciate the richness and flow of watercolors.

Here is what I recommend you take with you for "on location" painting. Umm . . . let's see, I guess water would be one of the first considerations. Just fill an empty plastic milk container and take it along . . . What you don't use, you will probably drink.

So that's the "water" part, now the "color" part is a little more difficult. Customers always ask me to help them pick out a good assortment of colors for their beginning water color palette.

IN TURN, I always ask them, "what do you think you will be painting?"

Every palette I feel, must have the truest red, yellow, blue, black and a few greens or browns.

But if you only do animal paintings you should carry more browns and tans than purples and greens. Then again, if flowers and weeds suite your artistic fancy you should carry more purples, reds, oranges and greens.

If you are just starting watercolor, I recommend you go the econo route; Niji (brand name) makes two beautiful sets of half tubes of watercolors. A set of 12 colors is $3.50 and a set of 24 is only $6. Why that is about what you would spend on lunch (including the tip).

I paint with Grumbacher's "Academy" line of watercolor. The "finest" line is much more expensive and personally I don't see any difference. "What about a palette?" Many ask, "can I just use a plate?"

"Sure," I say "you can even use the back of your hand if you want." But really folks for about one or two dollars you can buy a nice little palette made out of white plastic. By the way, stay away from the metal ones they make it difficult to see the true color of your mix.

FOR $6.50 you can buy the best. This palette is the little brother to the very excellent "Robert Wood" palette that cost about $15. So if you don't mind the missing autograph of "Robert Wood," you can save about $7.50.

This palette has a cover to protect your paint and best of all on the cover is a large indentation which not only is a handy place to hold your brushes and paints, but when you set up, it also is a nifty place to pour your water for mixing.

Another, and better, container for water is a little plastic box by Raphael. It cost $3.50 and all it does is hold water. But it has a division which separates the water to keep one side clean or cleaner. It also has a serrated top to hold your brushes in place so they don't roll around or have them damaged by leaving them stand in the water.

Let's see now that's the water, the color, the container and now the brushes and the paper. Just take three brushes; an oval mop brush for large areas, a medium round brush #8, #9 or #10 and a small round #4, #5 or #6. My favorite is the Beaux Arts Line by Grumbacher and they cost about $5.50 to $7.

BY ALL MEANS use a watercolor block when on location. A block is a pad of watercolor paper which is sealed on all four sides so that the paper is prestretched and cannot wrinkle.

When your first sheet is done (or "done for") simply peel it off to reveal a perfectly smooth sheet unaffected by the previous painting. Blocks are so popular now that they come in a variety of qualities and surfaces of paper.

Most are 140-pound cold press ranging in price from $6.50 to $35. But, start with Morrill (brand name). It's about the cheapest and many love it so much that they never try any other. My favorite is Strathmore #400.

Don't forget a square or two of paper towel for catching drips or quickly lifting wrong or too dark of a color. An H to 4H is my pencil choice and either a white or kneaded eraser for corrections and oh, yes . . . Don't forget the Advil and the Sinutabs.
