Township's fiscal future to be decided

A low turnout is expected today as Plymouth Township voters decide a four-mill property tax question.

The polls opened this morning at 7 and will remain open until 8 tonight. On the ballot is one question: Shall the township be authorized to levy four mills for general operation — in addition to the debt levy and one mill special voted for fire?

Clerk Esther Hulsing said all of the township precincts will be open at their regular polling places, with the exception of Precinct 13.

Voters from the 13th, who normally cast their ballots at the Lutheran Church, will have to vote in Room 12 at Pioneer Middle School on Ann Arbor Road west of Sheldon.

All of the registered voters in Precinct 13 should have received earlier notification of the change, Hulsing said.

Officials expect a low percentage of voters to decide today's question, despite a strong turnout for absentee ballots.

A great majority of the 546 absentee ballots requested before the election were returned by Friday.

"That's an excellent number of ballots to go out during a summer election, especially a special election," Hulsing said.

The number of absentee ballots requested, 546, compares to slightly less than 600 requested for the last presidential election, she said.

FOR ALL practical purposes, voters are being asked to authorize the township's charter limit of five mills for operational purposes ($5 for every $1,000 of state equalized valuation or SEV).

This is the first time the full charter limit has been sought, as well as the first time an open-ended millage has been requested.

In the past, township voters have been asked to approve special millages earmarked for police or fire — for a specified number of years.

Township officials are seeking authorization of up to five mills for all operations, for an unspecified number of years.

Although five mills would be available to levy for operation, township officials have promised they would match each year's millage rate with the budget demands.

Officials said they are abandoning the special voted millage tradition because of continuing development and an increasing demand for services.

Township trustees claim they need flexibility in setting the millage rate, rather than holding elections each year for special voted millages.

If the authorization is approved, township trustees have indicated the 1985 millage rate would be set at 3.88 mills for operation — although the 1986 budget has been adopted (township property tax bills are issued Dec. 31, 1985 for 1986 revenues).

If defeated, the township would be forced to operate on two mills in 1986 — one for general operation and the one special-voted for fire through the year 2000.

10 candidates file for library

Only 10 people have filed petitions for the nine library trustee seats up for grabs this fall.

Voters in Plymouth and Plymouth Township will be asked to approve the formation of a joint library district and elect nine trustees during a special Sept. 10 election.

The deadline for returning nominating petitions, containing the signatures of 109 registered city and/or township voters, was 4 p.m. Friday.

Those returning petitions were: Jack Bologna, Janet Campbell, Carol Davis, Catherine Doetsch, Stephen Harper, Mona Irvine, Jack Kenyon, Judith Morgan, Betty Pint and Mary Ann Prehlik.

Obviously, the library district must be adopted before any of the candidates would become trustees.

THE DISTRICT is being sought in the wake of budget and representation squabbles between the city and township. Currently a city-elected library board operates the Dunning-Hough Library on Main Street.

Funding for the library operation and debt is split between the city and township — through a contract for debt and resolution for operation. Total costs for the library are about $300,000 a year, or $150,000 for each government.

Township representation in library matters, a current bone of contention, comes through an appointed board which serves as an advisory to the city-elected board. City and township residents serve on the advisory board.

Under the district plan, the elected trustees would be responsible for the library operation. Voters would be asked — in a later election — to approve up to one mill tax power for the district.

If both are approved, the district and taxing power, the library district would become an independently operating governmental authority.

BESIDES DECIDING which one of the 10 trustee candidates will fill the nine seats, voters will determine which community will hold a majority of the seats.

Because only nine will serve, and five from each community have filed, the question of a majority will be decided by who doesn't get elected.

Those from the city are: Morgan, Pint, Doetsch, Kenyon and Prehlik.

Kenyon currently is a Plymouth city commissioner and, if elected, would have to choose between the library board and city commission.

In the event Kenyon leaves the city commission, the remaining commissioners would have to decide whether to fill his seat by appointment — which expires in mid-November.

Library trustees will take office shortly after the election results are verified.

Doetsch and Prehlik currently serve on the city-elected Library Board.

Those from the township are: Bologna, Davis, Harper, Irvine, and Campbell.

Davis and Harper are former members of the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education. Bologna is a computer security consultant and instructor at Adrian College.

More than home for Beyer buyer

By W.W. Edgar
staff writer

One of the oldest homes in the Plymouth community, known as the Beyer homestead since 1912, now has a new owner.

The home at Mill Street and Liberty in Old Village was built in 1912 by a Mr. Joliffe and then passed along to the Beyer family — where the family has lived ever since.

Now Mickie Beyer has sold the white home to Marda Bensen, former member and president of the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education.

"I no longer can live alone," said Mrs. Beyer, widow of the retired pharmacist Bob Beyer who died this past year.

"I love the place," she said while sitting in the living room facing the place where Beyer had spent most of his leisure years.

"It isn't easy," she said, "sitting here among all these memories, and knowing that every move one makes recalls an incident in our lives. So, while I hate to have the homestead change hands, it has become necessary for me to change to a condo — as soon as one is available."

"Bob and I spent many happy hours right here in the old homestead."

THEN POINTING to a room, she continued, "Bob was born in that room and never lived anywhere else. So, there is some feeling every day I pass. His mother also lived here and she, too, brings back many memories."

She recalled that she met Beyer while she was a clerk for the Daisy Air Rifle Co. and he was serving with the U.S. Navy in Idaho.

"We met in our Lutheran Church one day and became attached, and wed two years later." The union produced two children, and Beyer went on to become a druggist of great standing in the state.

The first drug store was opened across the street from the house. Later there was another opened on Forest Avenue and still later one at Mill and Main Street.

"I will always have the memories for Bob and I had such good times traveling around the country in our motor home. We have been in every state in the union, and always with a great laugh."

As she looked back through the years, she said that it was a terrible blow to lose her husband to a heart attack, but that he had been warned that he had but five years to live and he lived eight years before he died in St. Mary Hospital in Livonia.

SHE RECALLED how he enjoyed the druggist business, claiming to be the oldest business in Plymouth. Each year there were arguments that the Schrader Funeral Home was the oldest. But Beyer always contended that the Beyer drug stores were the oldest.

"I hate the idea of giving up this home that Bob and I and his parents, liked so much. But I no longer can live alone and sit in the midst of things so close to me every day. So, I am moving, hopefully into a condo — not to forget but to live in a place I can take care of, just for Bob's sake."

"I know he would agree with me and like it. So, the old home will be looked upon in Old Village as the Beyer homestead."

Commission candidates split on public safety

By Emory Daniels
staff writer

Public safety and budget cuts drew the most discussion at last week's Plymouth candidates forum.

It was sponsored by the League of Women Voters of Northville, Plymouth, Canton, Novi in Plymouth City Hall.

Participating were eight of the 10 candidates for Plymouth City Commission in the Aug. 6 primary. Lloyd Dustin did not show and Greg Green boycotted the meeting.

Green had sent a letter to all candidates asking them to stay away and that "instead we send one representative out of 10 to represent the candidates — this 10 percent to reflect the 1 in 10 registered voters expected to vote Aug. 6."

Green added his boycott was a "protest, as well as a means to focus attention on the expected low voter turnout at the polls. . . . I certainly mean no disrespect for the League of Women Voters; in fact, I applaud their efforts in providing these forums and their other works to inform voters."

THOSE WHO were there Thursday night made opening and closing statements and answered questions from the audience.

Of the questions, the two generating the most discussion seemed to be on public safety and budget cuts to avoid tax increases.

All candidates were asked to express their opinion on public safety — having officers function as combined police and firefighters as is done in Oak Park and the City of Farmington amongst other municipalities.

Bill Robinson, incumbent, said the commission was presented with a study on forming a public safety department, but it was shelved because of the police contract with Plymouth Township. "Because of the contract with the township public safety was found not to be feasible. I am willing to consider it again."

Robert Jones said public safety operations in other cities has been both a success and a disaster. "It depends a lot on the feelings of the group and of the citizens. It can work."

Karl Gansler II said public safety can be more efficient but should not be looked upon as a way of saving money. "In fact, it takes a lot of money to get it going, but many are satisfied with the results of public safety."

DON KELLER said the present city commission "must address the issue of police, fire and ambulance service and its structure must be resolved and not put off this time. If public safety is better, then we must do it."

Jean Morrow was against public safety. "I'll never be convinced a professional policeman and a professional fireman can be combined into one person. It's not feasible to think of."

Prison battles: Far from over

By Gary M. Cates
staff writer

If push leads to shove, then a fight over land usage is brewing between officials from Plymouth Township and Detroit.

In what has the potential of a real knock-down, drag-out, township trustees took action last week designed to "push" Detroit into selling Detroit House of Correction property.

Although a new state law prohibits building any more prisons in Plymouth Township, the board rezoned the DeHoCo land to insure no more correctional facilities are placed there and to promote industrial development.

DeHoCo, in Plymouth and Northville townships, used to be comprised of 1,100 acres on both sides of Five Mile Road between Ridge and Beck. Some 120 acres on the Plymouth Township side, including the jail compound, recently were sold to the state for a medium security prison.

Township trustees voted unanimously Tuesday night to rezone the remainder of the DeHoCo land in their jurisdiction (on the south side of Five Mile) from agricultural to industrial.

"It was rezoned in anticipation that the City of Detroit has indicated it has some plans for the development of that property," said Supervisor Maurice Breen.

"We wanted to insure that the land is developed in concert with the township's future land use plan," Breen said.

AT THE same time state lawmakers approved purchase of the prison, now called the Western Wayne Correction Facility, they adopted a moratorium bill which prohibits the addition of any correctional facilities in Plymouth or Northville townships.

Detroit officials successfully added language to the moratorium bill which said the city was free to do what it wanted with the remainder of the DeHoCo land.

Township lawmakers subsequently modified the Detroit clause by adding language which says development of the land must meet zoning restrictions.

Tuesday's rezoning undoubtedly will create some problems for Detroit, as the city administration reportedly doesn't want the land to be developed for industrial uses.

In a recent deposition given in connection with Plymouth Township's Supersewer lawsuit, Detroit Planning Director Corrine Gilb said her city was opposed to economic development in western Wayne County.

Based on Gilb's comments, sale of the remaining DeHoCo land would be expected to include a deed restriction prohibiting any industrial use. Such a move would block the township from continuing industrial development along Five Mile.

Major industrial development already is well under way along Five Mile between Sheldon and Beck. The Metro West Industrial Park, with work starting in the park's final two phases, is one of the fastest growing areas in western Wayne County.

BY REZONING the remaining DeHoCo property, just west of the industrial park, township officials are hoping to force Detroit into selling it.

Before Detroit can build anything on the property, building permits must be obtained from the township.

To obtain a building permit, development must conform to the zoning classification or receive approval for a non-conforming use.

Because it is unlikely the township will allow Detroit to build anything besides industrial buildings, the city administration has two basic choices — sell to a developer or hang onto the property.

Because it is unlikely the township ever will rezone the property to a use other than industrial, there's no advantage to Detroit hanging onto the property — there's nothing they can do with it.

Also, considering the price of industrial land in that area, hanging onto the property means passing up a source of revenue for the city.

Plymouth Township officials, who have placed the ball in Detroit's court after Tuesday's move, also view the land as a possible source of revenue.

The township currently doesn't collect property taxes on the property. Selling the land would mean its return to the tax rolls.

CEMS gives its position

To the editor:

I would like to take a few moments to respond to a letter dated July 2, 1985, which was recently printed in your newspaper concerning Community Emergency Medical Service's (CEMS) response to a non-emergency call at the Arbor Health Center in Plymouth. It should be noted that CEMS received the initial call from Dr. Prychodko, Arbor Health Center, at 3:41 p.m., not 3:10 p.m. as stated in the letter. It should also be noted that at 3:37 p.m. (4 minutes prior to the Arbor Health Center call), we responded to a medical emergency at McDonald's Restaurant in the city of Plymouth for a possible miscarriage.

As would be expected, we responded to the emergency call immediately, and sent a second vehicle on the non-emergency call at Arbor Health Center. Both responses were expedient, and in fact only a total of 13 minutes elapsed from the time the call from Arbor Health Center was received to the time our vehicle arrived on the scene for Mrs. Smith.

Furthermore, I have met with the Arbor Health Center and pre-arranged certain criteria that would be utilized in the event an ambulance was required to transport a patient from their facility. They agreed that in life-threatening situations, they would request our vehicle to respond using lights and sirens which in this case they did not.

We have worked, and communicate, very well with the Arbor Health Center and feel that they have provided excellent care for the residents of Plymouth.

I feel it is most unfortunate that such empty allegations continue to pester CEMS's reputation when, in fact, through the cooperation of Community EMS and the Plymouth Fire Department, we have saved many lives with the use of advanced life support, although this is not the image of our service normally portrayed by the media.

It would be truly unfortunate if this high level of emergency medical care was ever compromised based upon an obvious lack of understanding by the public.

All above response times are verifiable through telephone tapes and police records. In fact, I am going to forward a duplicate of our telephone tapes to Plymouth City Manager Henry Graper for his review.

I hope this information is enlightening.

Mastodon dig site reveals new findings

Scientists examine skeletal remains

By Teri Banas
staff writer

AT ONE time, he stood eight feet at the shoulders. Matted, reddish-brown fur covered his massive bulk. A long tusk protruded from his upper jaw.

He nourished himself mostly on tender, young leaves and new tree shoots and spent part of his day dodging such predators as prehistoric wolves and bears.

No more than 15 years old at the time of his death, he was considered an adolescent by mastodon standards.

Today, some people call him Herman.

IN AN off-the-road dig site located in a farmer's field in northern Oakland County, Herman's remains are being uncovered by a collection of volunteers, neighbors, scientists and students from Oakland Community College and Wayne State University.

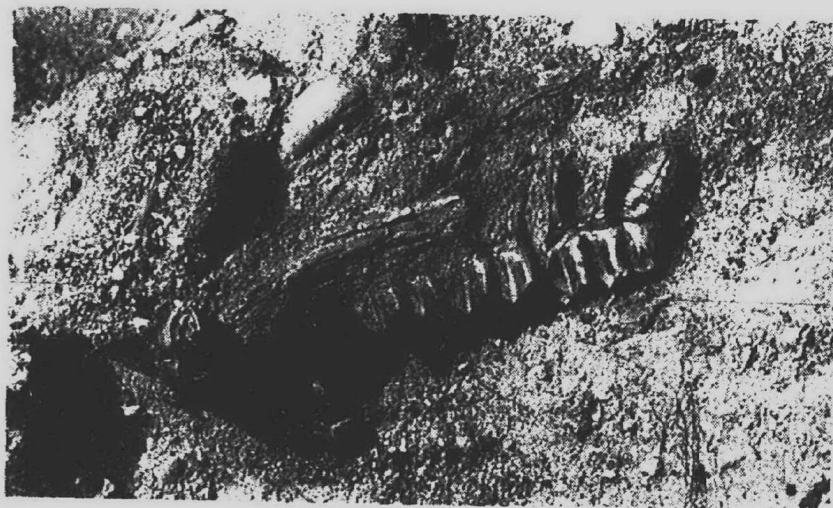

Each piece of Herman's remains found in the rich dirt and sandy soil motivates the searchers to toil longer in the hot sun with the hope of finding yet another piece in the puzzle of Herman's life. His life is estimated to have ended 12,000 years ago as the last glacier receded.

"Sometimes I tremble when I find one of these bones or a piece of prehistoric wood," said Hezy Shoshani, expedition director and a WSU graduate student. "I feel like having goose bumps. History is popping right out of the ground. It's so thrilling."

Since beginning their work three years ago, the searches have uncovered numerous pieces of the mastodon's remains including his cranium, several ribs, tusk and teeth. They are disappointed, however, that they've been unable to uncover any leg bones.

Still, the group has found snails and prehistoric muskrat larger than anything known today are among other findings so far.

THE DIRT also has yielded remnants of prehistoric tree life — cones of jack pine, black spruce and white spruce trees. The discoverers have cross-pollinated those seeds with living ones and have planted them with the hopes of their sprouting.

In the past weeks, they've been excited by the discovery of the large jaw of a prehistoric giant moose called a Cervulus. It is the only confirmed finding of one in Michigan.

Last week came one of the biggest discoveries to date.

Several stones unearthed near the mastodon bones resemble "lithics"

(roughly-made tools used by humans), said Sandra Lash, a Roeper Middle School science teacher and Bloomfield Hills resident working at the site.

The stones were found near some of the mastodon ribs and are estimated to be about the same age, 12,000 years old. If they're proven to be true lithics, they would be the first human artifacts found in the same place as mastodon bones, he said.

In that period of Michigan life, Paleo Indians sporadically inhabited the area.

Nonetheless, investigators have been wary of assuming too much before doing a thorough investigation.

"THE PRESENCE of the tools is both interesting and important, but it won't be the end of the questions," cautioned Dan Fisher, a University of Michigan paleontologist from Ann Arbor who was asked to look at them.

"You never know if something is a breakthrough unless you've studied it thoroughly or you're better off just calling it one more brick in the wall."

Shoshani, who as leader of the expedition has lived at the site during prime digging months, concurred. He recently brought the stones to the WSU campus. Fisher and five other scientists, mostly anthropologists, examined them. But the members of the group were unable to walk away in agreement.

"On the safe side, we're calling them possible lithics or hunting implements," Shoshani said, adding the group split over whether the stones were lithics. One explanation was they may have been fashioned coincidentally by rushing water as in a stream.

"That's how it is in science . . . Science progresses in such a total basis. It takes a lot of patience, a lot of painstaking procedure before you get a thing," he said.

SHOSHANI AND his group have exhibited that kind of patience in the three years they've spent at the dig site. It also took some happenstance before they even got there.

It was in 1977 that two neighborhood youths playing in a pile of dirt discovered a bone in the farm field off Seymour Lake Road, between Sahabaw

Cops catch hard-to-identify bicycle suspects

Two Detroit residents, arrested Wednesday afternoon in connection with a bicycle theft, gave Plymouth police a run for their money after being taken into custody.

Police "went through a roll of telephone paper" trying to find out the identity of the two and if they were wanted elsewhere, according to Lt. Robert Commire.

"One of them had more than 40 aliases," he said.

Arrested were Phyllis M. McCloy, 24, and Jose A. Rodriguez, 25, both of 1177 McKinstry in Detroit.

The two were arraigned Thursday in 35th District Court before Judge John McDonald. They both pleaded innocent to misdemeanor charges — McCloy to possession of stolen property and Rodriguez to larceny under $100.

McDonald set bond at $35 for each of them. Both posted bond and were turned over to Pontiac police. The two face 90 days in jail, a $500 fine or both, upon conviction of misdemeanor charges.

THE WHOLE incident started about 2:30 Wednesday afternoon when Plymouth officers responded to a bike theft.

According to a police report, the suspects had taken a bike parked outside the Lawson's store at Penniman and Harvey.

A witness told police a man and a woman drove up outside the store in a pickup truck. The man got out and jumped on the bike, a white 10-speed valued at $50.

As the man rode out of the lot on the bike, he told the woman she better get moving, the witness said.

The witness got the truck's license plate number and ran inside the store to contact the owner of the bike, who in turn called police.

Plymouth police broadcast a BOL (be on the look out) for the truck. Minutes later, Plymouth Township officers Roger Neirynck and Jamie Ploch spotted the truck at Ann Arbor Road and Main.

The township officers stopped the truck at Ann Arbor Road and General Drive and contacted Plymouth police.

In the bed of the truck was a bike matching the description of the stolen bike.

Plymouth officers Curtis Hill and Tom Bowling responded and arrested the two. In the process of impounding the truck, the officers found a razor and a plastic bag containing a white powdery substance.

Because of their findings and the fact the vehicle identification numbers (VIN) looked altered, Plymouth police sought a search warrant for the truck.

IN THE MEANTIME, Plymouth Det. Mike Gardner attempted to identify the two who were arrested. Positive identification was made through finger prints.

He found the man had been known to use such aliases as Jose A. Torres, Jose A. Melendez, Pedro Juan Galindo, Rodriguez Martinez and Louis L. Naranjo.

Police confirmed outstanding warrants for Rodriguez out of Pontiac for forgery, Dearborn for fraud, Taylor for larceny and Wayne County for violation of conditional bond.

Police confirmed outstanding warrants for McCloy out of Pontiac for forgery and Oakland County for probation violation.

Plymouth police may add charges for drug possession but they are uncertain at this time.

According to Commire, preliminary tests on the powdery substance indicate it is baking soda — not cocaine, as officers originally suspected.

"I don't know . . . who carries bags of baking soda around with them," Commire said.

Police found nothing in the subsequent search of the vehicle, and Commire said the VIN proved to be unaltered.

As for the cooperative effort between the city and township department, Plymouth Chief Richard Myers sent a letter of thanks to Township Chief Carl Berry.

The township recently took over law enforcement responsibilities for itself, a job formerly contracted to the city department.

"This inter-agency cooperation is the hallmark of contemporary, professional policing," he wrote. "I commend officers Neirynck and Ploch for their alert and prompt actions."

Berry was equally impressed.

"I think the officers did a good job, and it shows the type of cooperation that can happen between the two departments. I hope it will continue," Berry said.

Mastodon found

and Dartmouth in Brandon Township. The ground had been overturned during the property owner's efforts to form a duck pond.

Young Todd Haddock and his friend assumed that the large bone was that of a farm animal. They found out otherwise when they showed it to Todd's father. According to Lash's retelling of the story, the boy's father had been raised on a farm and he knew it "belonged to no farm animal he had ever seen."

The mastodon was nicknamed Herman, in honor of the farm owner, Herman Shelton.

Some 200 mastodon remains have been uncovered in Michigan over the years, supporting theories that great herds once roamed the continent.

Not quite as tall as today's African elephants, mastodons averaged more than 10 feet at the shoulders and carried their heads in a more horizontal position than the modern elephant. According to Shoshani, many mistakenly consider the mastodon a direct ancestor of the elephant, but their relationship might better be considered that of cousins.

HERMAN lived at the end of Michigan's fourth Ice Age. He probably died of natural causes at the end of one winter, based on studies Fisher has performed on the animal's molars and incisors found at the site.

His bones — not rocky fossils but actual bones — were found in scattered locations. They probably were dispersed after rolling down a hill to what was once a lakeshore, they guess. Examination of the bones showed no evidence that Herman was butchered.

About 11,500 years ago, the area also supported nomadic tribes known as Paleo Indians. They lived in small groups and entered the area sporadically, Lash said.

Today area residents like Jann

Grimes and her family are among those eager to uncover the earth's mysteries on the Shelton property. As a hot summer sun baked the earth one recent day, she stopped to say what attracted her to volunteer her summer at the site.

"Through magazines I read articles about archeology, but I never thought it was in my grasp until I read about it here."

"It's addictive. That's why I keep coming back," said the mother of two. "Last year I found a piece of the mandible to the moose, and this year I found a rib and one of the mastodon's incisors."

ANOTHER VOLUNTEER, Dave Thomas, is putting together a slide show of the dig for his geology students at Washtenaw Community College.

"Previously, I had collected a lot of fossils, mostly primitive invertebrate animals, but never this kind of life form," Thomas said.

But perhaps one of the most excited is Shoshani, himself, who is living out a life-long fascination and commitment at the site. Before he arrived in the United States almost 20 years ago, he was raised and lived in Israel where as a young man he worked as a zoo keeper at the Tel Aviv Zoo. During his youth he had read a story of a boy's fascination with an elephant. "The facts of the story were so touching, they just grabbed me."

He moved on, traveling to Asia, Africa and Sri Lanka, and all the while observing elephants.

He arrived in the United States, initially to study veterinary medicine, and then enrolled at Wayne State to study biology. Today, he is the founder and director of the so-called "Elephant Interest Group," a more than 600-member worldwide organization aimed at the investigation and dissemination of information about modern elephants.

Anthony Anason said people wouldn't think of asking a doctor to be a lawyer and it's the same thing to ask a firefighter to be a police officer, and vice versa. "Both are a big enough job now."

He also said there could be problems with liability for the city.

William Bingley also was opposed to public safety. "I believe a police officer should perform police duties and a fireman should be in the fire fighting business."

Robert Kroeger also was against public safety officers. "I was a volunteer firefighter and will go into a burning building, but wouldn't think of getting involved in gun fire."

ALL CANDIDATES were asked how they would go about lowering the cost of operating the city to keep taxes the same.

Jones said the work of all departments should be analyzed to see if work

Counselor loses license

A Plymouth marriage counselor has had his certificate taken away by the state.

Dr. Douglas McClennan surrendered his certificate to practice marriage counseling, effective June 12, to the Bureau of Commercial Services, Michigan Department of Licensing and Regulation. By voluntarily surrendering the certificate, a formal hearing was not necessary.

In December 1982, according to a state spokesman, Dr. McClennan had his license to practice psychology taken away by the Board of Psychology.

simplification methods could cut costs. He suggested a series of public forums with department managers describing their services and the costs, and then the people could be asked what services could be eliminated once they knew all the costs involved.

Gansler suggested naming a blue-ribbon committee of residents to come up with a service-cutting program. "How do you keep the basic services and the same level of taxation? People want to cut taxes but not the services, and that's difficult."

Keller said: "The problems will not go away. A careful examination is required, maybe six months in advance of budget adoption or maybe by a blue ribbon committee. We must balance what the citizens want with what they are willing to pay for, and we are not there yet."

ANASON COMMENTED that there has not been a tax increase in the city for the past three years. "What services do you cut," he asked, noting that the police department already has been cut 27 percent with reductions made in the fire department. "You only have the Cultural Center, public services, and the administration left."

Bingley said a great deal of study would be required and it would be necessary to set priorities and then follow those priorities.

Kroeger commented: "I don't know the answers, but if elected I will look into it and see what can be cut. I would represent a fresh approach and would not go for what's always been done."

Robinson said that other departments in the city also had been cut, noting that 11 employees have been laid off in the office areas in the past five years. He stressed that any major cuts must come by eliminating employees as the largest part of the budget is salaries and fringes.

All were asked what they would do if faced with a choice between conscience or constituents? Voting to follow their conscience were Bingley, Robinson, Jones, Gansler, Morrow and Anason, while Kroeger said he would follow constituents over conscience and Keller did not express his opinion before the time ran out.

Weekly editors: A reunion of the survivors

Editor's note: Tom Riordan was executive editor of Observer & Eccentric Newspapers from 1978-80. This column, reprinted with permission from a June 27 Upper Peninsula weekly, brings us up to date on Riordan's interest in community journalism. Many of the social challenges facing the country editor also face the suburban editor.

by Dave Rood, Editor
Manistique Pioneer-Tribune

IN THE early 1950s Tom Riordan spent six years as publisher, editor, advertising director and janitor of a small weekly newspaper in Greenwich, Ohio.

He thought his degree in journalism from Michigan State University completed his education, but in truth it was just beginning. If you really want to learn more than you understand about newspapers, buy a small-town weekly and try to survive.

It's a matter of survival because small-town weeklies are an endangered species these days, similar to the snail darter and argyle socks. The newspapers are hurting because the small towns in which they are flourished are hurting.

The small bank, the corner drug store, the little movie theater — all with and vanish when their communities decline.

TOM WENT BACK to Greenwich several years ago to find everything had changed. Only three or four stores survived on what had been a thriving main street.

It had been a railroad town, with three major lines meeting and crossing, but today the watchtower at the junction is empty and no trains stop.

The two-story frame building that housed the newspaper on the first floor and the publisher on the second is gone, and the newspaper, now converted to a shopping guide, is operating out of the old garage that once housed a thriving Ford agency.

Most of the stores are empty and there are weeds growing in the vacant lots. The Greenwich that Tom knew 30 years ago is just a memory.

TOM IS semi-retired now, but he's found something to keep him busy. He and his wife bought a trailer and hit the road, trying to find and preserve — in print at least — that increasingly rare specimen, the country editor.

His goal is to find at least two in each state and to write a story about them that will tell not only what they do, but why they do it.

The why is probably more important than the what, for although the art of newspapering involves relatively similar patterns and practices of production, you have to look into the editor's soul to determine exactly why persistence exists in the face of adversity.

Tom is a good candidate for this assignment. He's been down that country road, wrestling with obsolete equipment and battered type and reluctant advertisers and irate subscribers, so that his interviews are more like a reunion of survivors.

HIS STORIES are being carried in The Publisher's Auxiliary, a trade publication, and so far he's done about 15, including one with Wes Maurer Sr., the ageless cherub who once headed the journalism department at the University of Michigan and who now publishes the St. Ignace News and the Mackinac Island Town Crier.

The interviews have also included chats with the woman editor who would not tell her age but did allow that she was about as old as God, and with the Florida editor who loves 144 point (two inches) Railroad Gothic headlines in color and refers to his subscribers as "crackers and peasants."

There's a book somewhere in all of that, and Tom knows it. He isn't sure which route to take; whether each editor could be a single chapter, or each chapter a composite of their thoughts and experiences.

There are threads of commonality. Each of the survivors has experienced at least enough financial success to make them independent of pressure; there is agreement that their newspapers have to print all the news, good and bad, in order to keep the respect of their readers.

There is also a uniform commitment to the town, or towns, that they serve. The editors have to love their towns and stick with them, boom or bust, good or bad, joy or sorrow. They are historians who bring that personal touch to their writings and compilations.

THERE IS the thought that every aspiring journalist who dreams of the big time and the big city, the exciting scoops and the Pulitzer prizes, should be required to spend a month or two laboring in the rural vineyards with the country editor.

It might not improve their writing techniques, but it would help to develop a sense of balance and values and fairness and concern about what is newsworthy and what is not, all of which would be a treasure when the time comes that their efforts are read or viewed by millions.

The country editor may be a vanishing breed, but he or she deserves a place in posterity as a remembrance of the America that once was, and the small towns that today, much like the country editor, are an endangered species.

A famous figure in his own right, Dave Rood published a weekly newspaper in the southwestern Michigan village of Three Oaks before moving to the UP. He gained national attention in the late '70s when he was fired by publisher John McGoff as editor of the Escanaba Daily Press for refusing to run a bureau story that President Carter was planning to dump Walter Mondale as vice president and run wife Rosalyn in the No. 2 spot.

AAA will cap premiums

To allay fears of huge auto insurance premium increases as a result of the proposed changes in the Essential Insurance Act, AAA Michigan announced it will not raise rates before March 1, 1986, beyond a 5.5 percent request filed last month.

"We believe we are demonstrating our commitment to the new Essential Insurance Law and guaranteeing our policyholders, including those in Detroit, that we intend to do everything in our power to make certain that car insurance remains available and affordable to every state resident," said AAA Michigan President Jack Avignone.

"WE APPLAUD" the provisions in the law which cap the rate of increase in Detroit at 4 percent plus the Detroit consumer price index (CPI)," Avignone said. "The Legislature has struck a good balance under very difficult circumstances."

"They have restored competition to the auto insurance market and encouraged the reduction of insurance rates for a large number of motorists throughout Michigan while continuing the protection Detroiters must have against huge increases," he said.

Auto insurance premiums have gone up an average of more than 10 percent annually over the last four years in Detroit. But the cap in the new state bills would limit annual increases over the next five years to 4 percent plus the CPI. The CPI was 3.5 percent last year and 2.8 percent in 1983.

AVIGNONE ALSO commended the portion of the legislation which creates an Automobile Theft Prevention Authority within the Michigan State Police. It will be funded by a $1 policy surcharge.

"The gravity and magnitude of Michigan's auto theft problem and its impact on consumers require us to utilize all the resources we can muster to combat this crime. This new measure helps to strengthen one of the major tools available to us in this effort — added law enforcement," he said.

Avignone also pointed to AAA's own programs against auto theft, including its recently announced policy of refusing to buy salvage sheet metal parts to make collision repairs.

Since 1983, AAA also has instituted etching vehicle identification numbers on car windows, established an information reward program called ACTION (Arrest Car Thieves In Our Neighborhoods) and created a special theft investigative unit in the tri-county area.

WHY DIDN'T THE INJECTION WORK?

As you may know, physicians undertake joint injections to provide immediate treatment for inflamed joints. You may have received a joint injection but found no relief from pain. Why didn't the therapy succeed?

One answer is that the injection didn't reach the correct area. In stocky persons in particular, it is difficult to identify the landmarks of bone and muscle which guide the physicians to the knee or shoulder joint. If the needle failed to reach that location, then the medicine injected is not likely to take effect.

Another cause of failure is that the arthritic flare is more intense than you or your physician appreciate. In such instances the usual amount of medicine won't be sufficient to quell the flare-of inflammation.

Do not be discouraged if an injection has failed once; often a return to this therapy will be successful. If such is the case, you will be spared the need to undertake medication that is potentially more toxic and possibly less successful in relieving your pain and immobility.

High School made college-approved list in 1901

(Part 14)

Soon after fire destroyed Plymouth High School in 1916, the board of education named a committee to arrange housing for school classes during the coming year. Classes commenced on Sept. 4 in numerous buildings scattered throughout the village.

Some were quartered in churches including the Christian Scientist, the Universalist, the Baptist, and the Presbyterian. Others met in industrial settings including the Bennett Manufacturing Building and the factory on Amelia Street where Frank Millard manufactured bugles for the U.S. Army.

In addition, the carriage house of Kate Penniman Allen on Penniman Avenue, the store of John Gale on Main Street, and three lodge halls — the Oddfellows, the Knights of Pythias and the Masonic — became classrooms. The halls were hired for $50 a month.

The school board provided janitor service for some of the locations. One janitor, for example, took care of the Baptist Church and the Bennett Manufacturing building. Another had two churches and the three halls to service. Each janitor was paid $50 a month. From this he had to hire his own help.

DR. J.J. TRAVIS, who had been re-elected as trustee and president of the board, resigned in August.

Appointed to replace him was J.J. McLaren who had just closed his frog and fish spear factory prior to succeeding his father as owner of the McLaren lumber and coal business.

The board held its meetings at a variety of locations during the period before the new school was completed. In the fall of 1916 it met at the residence of board member Dr. Luther Peck, the well-known local homeopathic physician. In December, it used the Oddfellows Hall.

past and present

Sam Hudson

The annual meeting in 1917 was convened at the Grange Hall on Union Street. Typical among the items approved at the Jan. 10, 1917, meeting of the board was $9.05 for a month's electricity to illuminate classroom space in the basement of the First Presbyterian Church.

The new school house, built on the site of the one that had burned, was completed late in 1917. In September of that year, the board granted the churches of the village permission to use the school auditorium for religious services for four weeks beginning Oct. 21.

That was in the days before a succession of lawsuits began to challenge the practice of prayer in schools. In those days, school boards went out of their way to encourage religious behavior on the part of those who attended school.

On Nov. 21, 1917, for example, the Plymouth school board decided that chapel exercises would be held in school once a week. Students who completed a systematic study of the Bible at their church Sunday School were given high school credit on the recommendation of Sunday School officials.

In September 1917, the board decided to take out $85,000 insurance on the new school building. The business was apportioned among the several insurance agents in the village.

BY THE TIME classes commenced in the new school, Plymouth High had been on the university accredited list for the preceding 17 years.

The process of achieving accreditation had begun in 1900 when officials first tried to get the school on what was called "the University list." In July of that year, the board authorized the hiring of an extra teacher, hoping that action would expedite the accreditation.

In 1901, when Professor J.E. Meally succeeded Mr. Rogers as school superintendent, one of the board's first instructions to him was to "get the school so that it could be placed on the University list."

The school had been on the "Normal List" for the preceding two years. That referred to the Michigan State Normal School, in Ypsilanti, which held its first classes in 1853. The Normal School later became Eastern Michigan University.

In 1903, the school board asked University of Michigan authorities to send an inspector to Plymouth High with a view of keeping it on the University list, an indication that Professor Meally's efforts in 1901 had borne fruit.

By 1907, Margaret M. Ableson was able to write:

"The course of study in the high school contains the branches necessary to entrance to the University of Michigan and to the State Normal College, and many of its graduates have done credit to themselves and to it in those institutions."

"Graduates are admitted to the Freshman Class of all colleges in the state and to advanced standing in the Agricultural College, our school having been placed on the approved list of high schools in 1901." The Agricultural College, which opened in 1857, later became Michigan State University.

Appointed

Tim Ford of Plymouth, former police chief for the City of Plymouth, has been named program coordinator for a new series of courses by Schoolcraft College for people in law enforcement. The in-service program will be offered at the Schoolcraft Radcliff Center in Garden City from September to December. Offerings include Doppler Radar Operators Training, Auto Theft Investigation Review and Legal Review and Update. Ford has been an adjunct faculty member at Schoolcraft since 1971 as an instructor in criminal justice. Since 1973 he has been on the college's Law Enforcement Curriculum Advisory Committee. A former member of the Governor's Committee on Forensic Science, Ford earned his bachelor's degree from Wayne State and master's degree from University of Detroit.

When a fellow travels along the journalistic trail for any length of time, there comes the day when he finds the best stories are behind the scenes.

When he was a young lad traveling with the baseball and the college football teams, the Stroller always made it a point to visit the locker rooms, talk with the players, and the coaches or managers. And he seldom missed finding an interesting story that had nothing to do with the games.

And now he has learned that the same results can be found on the political scene if you get in touch with the politicians who spend their days in the nation's capital.

Oftimes reading the newsprints these days, the stories at times seem a bit thin and jumbled. But when you visit with one of the legislators, you'll find that there are many interesting points that don't appear in newsprint.

the stroller
W.W. Edgar

It was that way the other day when The Stroller had a visit with his longtime friend, Carl Pursell, who is serving his ninth year in the House of Representatives in Washington.

WITHOUT GOING into great details on the present fuss over the budget and how to reduce the deficit, we got to talking about the causes for much of the trouble in today's world and how we fit into it.

"Our biggest mistake was made years ago," he said, with a very serious look. "We made it when we didn't become friendly with the Latin American people in Central America. They are our next door neighbors and yet we didn't greet them in a friendly manner."

"So, you can see how easy it was for the countries overseas, like the Russians and the other middle countries, to take offense and sort of get even."

He went on to point out that if we move into a new area, we try our best to become friendly with our neighbors. But we didn't do that years ago. Now we are paying the penalty.

As he spoke, The Stroller was reminded of the advice his mother gave him when he was a youth. "Always be friendly but never be envious. Just make the most of what you got."

If that case had been followed by our country we may not be in the troubles we are now.

ANOTHER THING Pursell pointed out is that in most countries there is no middle class — they are all rich or all poor.

Middle class workers are not a majority. So there is always a battle between classes. That's why you see so much trouble in the Middle East. The TV shows you daily the two classes — the rich leaders and those starving and fighting for their lives.

One other thing our congressman pointed out is that with no middle class, when manufacturing of any kind is attempted there are no high pay scales. The monetary reward is low.

And our American auto firms have invested money in overseas companies. However, they want to make gains on their money. That's why we are being flooded with foreign cars.

We should have been friendly with the Latin American years ago.

AMERICA NEVER CHANGE.

SOME DO.

U.S. Savings Bonds.

Now Paying 9.49%.

In the 1800's, baseball was a child's sandlot game. Then came the curve ball, the slide, the crowds and the legends—like Babe Ruth. Baseball had become our national pastime.

Some things never change.

But one great American tradition has changed—U.S. Savings Bonds. Now Savings Bonds pay higher variable interest rates like money market accounts. Currently, Bonds are paying 9.49%.

Just hold Savings Bonds for five years and you get the new variable interest rates. Plus, you get a guaranteed return. That means you can earn a lot more, but never less than 7.5%.

You can purchase Bonds at almost any financial institution, or easier yet, through the Payroll Savings Plan where you work.

Buy U.S. Savings Bonds. Like baseball, they're another part of our proud heritage. For more information, call toll-free 1-800-US-BONDS.

U.S. SAVINGS BONDS
Paying Better Than Ever

Variable rates apply to Bonds purchased on and after 11/1/82 and held at least five years. Bonds may mature before 11/1/83 with variable rates when held beyond 10/31/82. Bonds held less than five years earn lower interest. A public service of this publication.

SET SAILS FOR SUMMER FUN

It's anchors aweigh this summer as the imagination conducts a magic ride on a sailboat or catamaran that only sets anchor for the deep, yummy taste of pudding. With Mom's help, any First Mate can sight ships ahoy, if only by taste alone.

Those sunny-day dreams of the sea can take on a special reality — and taste. The makers of Jell-O sugar free instant pudding and the Children's Museum of Denver have come up with some creative, summer fun experiences for children.

The fun is in the sailboat making — and even the tasting. To capture the high sea for a sailboat, new sugar free instant pudding becomes the sea and a slice of pear, the boat. Because it looks as good as it tastes, this sailboat won't have time to be blown out to sea before being eaten by the First Mate.

Create a catamaran from a banana split. Bananas become the twin hulls, held together by pudding. Cargo or crew — fresh fruits, nuts, toppings — whatever your First Mate requests — is then loaded on board. It's not meant to be seaworthy, just eaten. It's all fun eating, and only Moms have to know that it's good eating, too. Mothers concerned about the amount of sugar in their children's diets will especially appreciate the fact that this new sugar free pudding is sweetened with NutraSweet, and it has lots of wholesome goodness because it's made with lowfat milk. For nutritious toppings, use raisins, fruits or nuts.

SETTING SAILS

More creative play games to go with this story of the salty sea can provide fun after lunch or snack.

To help the Admiral Mom cope with too many doldrums of a still summer sea, here are ideas for a thaumatrope, a parachute and a pudding box raft to help all the mateys pass the time. Just follow the directions for making a thaumatrope that creates the illusion of a parrot flying from its cage. The parachute is made of any empty pudding box and a piece of paper towel. It plummets toward a target on the ground. Let it float to the ground empty or watch what happens when you fill it with nuts, paper clips or anything else. Make a pudding box raft and sail it in a wading pool, a pan of water or your own bathtub.

The Children's Museum of Denver, creators of these fun ideas, is a nationally acclaimed hands-on learning center dedicated to fostering discovery among children and adults by playful exploration. So this summer, kids can enjoy the new sugar free instant pudding and the box it comes in!

Pudding Sailboats

- 1 package (4 serving size) sugar free instant pudding and pie filling, any flavor
- 2 cups cold lowfat milk
- 4 wedge-shaped pieces of fruit (peach or pear slice, grapefruit or orange section, quartered banana or whole strawberry)

Prepare pudding with milk according to package directions. Pour into 4 dessert dishes. Chill. Just before serving, place a fruit piece on each. Cut 4 small triangles from white paper to make sails. Insert wooden picks through sails and insert into fruit pieces. Makes 2 cups or 4 servings.

Note: Recipe may be prepared in shaker as directed on package; let stand 1 to 2 minutes.

Pudding Banana Splits

- 1 package (4 serving size) vanilla flavor sugar free instant pudding and pie filling
- 2 cups cold lowfat milk
- 3 bananas, cut in half lengthwise
- Diced strawberries, sliced green grapes and chopped walnuts

Prepare pudding mix with milk as directed on package. Arrange bananas in banana split dishes. Spoon on pudding and top with fruit and nuts. Makes 3 servings.

Note: Recipe may be prepared in shaker as directed on package; let stand 1 to 2 minutes.

PUDDING BOX RAFT

What you need:

- Empty pudding box
- Scissors
- Toothpick, drinking straw or twig
- White or colored paper
- Glue
- Small piece of clay

How to do it:

1. Cut out one of the larger sides of the pudding box (front or back) to make a boat.
2. Cut a small sail from the paper and push the toothpick through the sail to make a mast.
3. Attach the bottom of the toothpick to the inside of the raft by sticking it into a piece of clay on the deck of the raft.
4. Fill the sink or tub with water and test your raft!

PARACHUTE

What you need:

- Empty pudding box
- Piece of paper towel, tissue paper, lightweight material or facial tissue
- Thread
- Tape or sewing needle
- Scissors

How to do it:

1. Cut the front or back out of the pudding box, leaving the sides intact.
2. Tape or sew lengths of thread to each corner of a paper towel, tissue or piece of cloth.
3. Tape the loose end of each thread to an inside corner of the box.
4. Drop your parachute from a high place and watch it float to the ground. If it falls too quickly, enlarge the size of the chute. If it falls too slowly, place some objects in the pudding box.
5. Experiment with size of chute and length of thread until you get your parachute to perform smoothly.
6. Decorate the canopy of your parachute.
7. Draw a target on the ground or on a piece of paper. With a group of friends, drop your parachutes and see who can get theirs nearest the bull's eye. (You could also assign points to various parts of the target and after several drops, the person with the most points would be the winner.)

THAUMATROPE

What you need:

- The pictures in this newspaper of the parrot and bird cage
- Scissors
- Pieces of thin cardboard (3"x3")
- A Tinkertoy stick or a straw in which you make a 1/2"-3/4" slot at the top
- Crayons or magic markers
- Paste or glue

How to do it:

1. Cut out the pictures of the parrot and bird cage.
2. Glue one picture on one side of the card.
3. Glue the related picture on the opposite side of the card.
4. Put the card in the slot. (If the card is too thin and does not stay in the slot, fold the bottom edge to make it thicker.)
5. Hold the stick between the palms of your hands and rub your hands together quickly. What happens when you spin the card?

Fresh peas make these Italian dishes sparkle

Many Americans identify spaghetti and meatballs, veal parmesan and pizza as favorite Italian foods, but these dishes are not as quintessentially Italian as we have come to believe.

Even the carefully tended sauces that simmer for hours in the kitchens of Italian-American households are considerably different from the lighter tomato sauces used in traditional Italian cooking.

In her new book "Italian Fast & Fresh" (Harper & Row, $15.95), Julie Dannenbaum provides a sampling of these two related, yet distinctly separate, culinary traditions.

Having spent the past nine summers as a cooking instructor at the Gritti Palace Hotel in Venice, Dannenbaum has had extensive contact with Italian chefs, and this association has given her a first-hand knowledge of regional Italian cooking.

DANNENBAUM DISCUSSES the similarities and differences between the styles of cooking she observed at Gritti and the Italian-American cooking that she was exposed to during her childhood in Philadelphia.

She also discusses their connections to a common culture and a common way of cooking, and she shows that Americanized Italian food has evolved after years of gradual adjustments and "tinkering" with recipes.

It is evident that Dannenbaum has a love for both types of Italian food. Dannenbaum reminisces about learning from Italian chefs as warmly as she recounts fond memories of the pungent smells that emanated from the home of Mrs. Pellegrino, an Italian-American neighbor from whom she first learned of the joys of Italian food.

Dannenbaum proclaims that, whether "in Italy or America, Italian food is fun food."

HER RECIPES can be made in an hour or less, which makes for relaxed meal preparation as well as enjoyable dining and, although she sometimes offers information on the origin of a recipe, or an explanation of the origin of a recipe, or an explanation of the differences between Italian and Italian-American preparation methods, Dannenbaum presents both cooking styles with equal gusto.

Dannenbaum's recipe for Fettucine with Shrimp and Fresh Peas, reprinted here, is an ideal way to take advantage of fresh peas that are at their peak during the late spring and early summer or fall. Also reprinted is a recipe for Chicken Breasts with Sausage which combines the delicacy of tender chicken breasts with the distinctive flavoring of sweet Italian sausage.

CHICKEN BREASTS WITH SAUSAGE
3 whole chicken breasts, skinned, boned, and halved
2 tbsp. oil
1 small onion, chopped
1 garlic clove, chopped
1/2 lb. sweet Italian sausage, casings removed
3/4 cup fresh bread crumbs
1 tbsp. chopped flat-leaf parsley

1 tsp. chopped rosemary
Salt and fresh pepper to taste
4 tbsp. butter
6 finger-size pieces mozzarella or Fontina
1/4 cup dry white wine
Juice of 1/2 lemon

Flatten the 6 pieces of chicken by pounding with a wet mallet or pound between sheets of wax paper or foil.

Heat the garlic in a skillet. When hot, add the onion, garlic, and sausage meat. Cook, while stirring with wooden spatula, for about 5 minutes, or until the sausage is cooked through. Using a slotted spoon, remove the mixture to a bowl. Pour off the fat.

Mix the bread crumbs, parsley and rosemary with the sausage. Season with salt and pepper.

Melt the butter in the same skillet. When the foam subsides, sauté the chicken pieces, a few at a time, about 2 minutes a side.

Remove the chicken pieces. Lay them on a board or countertop and divide the filling evenly. Lay cheese on each. Roll up the chicken, tucking in the edges. Tie to secure or fasten with toothpicks. Lay in a baking dish, seam side down.

Add the wine and lemon juice to the skillet. Boil up to deglaze. Swirl around over heat for 1-2 minutes. Pour over the chicken. Bake at 350 degrees for 15-20 minutes. Remove strings or toothpicks.

Serves 6.

FETTUCINE WITH SHRIMP AND FRESH PEAS

1 1/2 lbs. shrimp, peeled and deveined, shells reserved
1 lb. peas, shelled
1 small onion, finely chopped
1/4 cup sliced mushrooms
1/4 cup dry vermouth
2 cups heavy cream
Salt and fresh pepper to taste
1 lb. spinach fettuccine

Place the shrimp shells in water to cover. Bring to a boil. Cover and cook on moderate heat 20 minutes. Strain. Reserve 1 1/2 cups of stock.

Place the peas in a saucepan with just enough water to cover. Bring to a boil, reduce heat to moderate, and cook 10 minutes, or until barely tender.

Add the shrimp to the peas (it may be necessary to add more water but do not add too much). Cook until the shrimp are just poached, 2-3 minutes. Strain and reserve the juices. Place the shrimp and peas back in the pan.

In another saucepan, place the onions, mushrooms, dry vermouth, reserved shrimp stock, and strained juices from shrimp and peas. Reduce over moderate heat to approximately 1 cup.

Add the heavy cream and cook until the mixture coats the back of a metal spoon.

Combine the reduced mixture with the peas and shrimp. Reheat. Season with salt and pepper to taste. Serve over hot pasta.

Serves 4-6.

Use beef specials to stock freezer, barbecue

Beef prices are lower this summer and many cuts will be featured specials. As these cuts are available at the local supermarket or butcher shop, consumers can buy the lower priced steaks, ground beef and other cuts, store them in the freezer where they will be readily available for cooking outdoors.

Ground beef can be stored in the freezer for up to three months and other fresh beef can be stored for up to 12 months.

For best freezing results, wrap meat tightly in moisture/vapor-proof material such as freezer paper, aluminum foil and polyethylene films and freeze quickly at 0 degrees F. or below. Place the beef in meal-size packages convenient for your family. Label each package with the date, cut and weight or number of servings.

Many of the leaner beef cuts, such as the top and bottom round, will probably be available at attractive prices. When marinated before cooking on the grill, these cuts become more tender, juicy and flavorful. Use liquids such as wine, vinegar or lemon juice as a base for the marinade ingredients. Marinate beef for at least six to eight hours before cooking, turning at least once to let the flavors penetrate and to tenderize the meat fiber.

THREE-WAY TOP ROUND STEAK
1 beef top round steak, cut 1 inch thick
Lemon Herbed, Burgundy Wine or Mexican-Style Marinade

Prepare Lemon Herbed, Burgundy Wine or Mexican-Style Marinade. Place steak in plastic bag; add marinade, turning to coat. Tie bag securely and marinate in refrigerator 6 to 8 hours (or overnight if desired), turning at least once. Drain marinade from steak; reserve marinade. Broil steak over low to medium coals 22 minutes for rare; 26 minutes for medium. Turn once. Brush with marinade occasionally.

LEMON HERBED MARINADE

1/2 cup chopped onion
1/2 cup lemon juice
2 tablespoons oil
1/2 tsp each salt, pepper, dried thyme leaves, marjoram leaves and rosemary leaves

Combine onion, lemon juice, oil, salt, pepper, thyme, marjoram and rosemary. Yield: 1 1/4 cups.

BURGUNDY WINE MARINADE

3/4 cup Burgundy wine
2 tbsp oil
2 tbsp chopped green onion
2 tsp brown sugar
1/2 tsp salt
1 clove garlic, minced

Combine wine, oil, green onion, brown sugar, salt and garlic. Yield: 1 cup.

MEXICAN-STYLE MARINADE

1/2 cup tomato juice
1/4 cup vinegar
1 can (4 ounces) chopped green chilies, drained
2 tbsp oil
1 tsp sugar
1/2 tsp each salt and ground cumin

Combine tomato juice, vinegar, chilies, oil, sugar, salt and cumin. Yield: 1 1/4 cups.

GINGERY BEEF KABOBS

1 beef sirloin steak, cut 1 inch thick (about 1 1/2 pounds)

3 tbsp brown sugar
2 tsp each cider vinegar and soy sauce
1 clove garlic, minced
1/4 tsp each grated ginger root and hot pepper sauce

Cut steak into 16 one-inch cubes. Combine brown sugar, vinegar, soy sauce, garlic, ginger root and hot pepper sauce. Place beef cubes in plastic bag; add marinade, turning to coat. Tie bag securely and marinate in refrigerator 1 hour. Pour off marinade. Thread 4 steak cubes onto each of four 8-inch skewers. Broil kabobs over low to medium coals 10 to 15 minutes, depending on doneness desired (rare or medium), turning occasionally. Makes 4 servings.

MEXI-BEEF BURGERS

1 pound ground beef
1/2 tsp each ground cumin and salt
1/2 tsp pepper
3/4 to 1 1/2 tsp seeded, chopped jalapeno peppers
1/4 cup shredded Monterey Jack cheese
4 tomato slices
4 hamburger buns, split and toasted

Combine ground beef, cumin, salt, pepper and jalapeno peppers, mixing lightly but thoroughly. Shape into 4 patties, 1/4 inch thick. Broil patties over medium coals 5 to 6 minutes. Turn and continue broiling 5 to 6 minutes or to doneness desired. Sprinkle 1 tablespoon cheese on each patty 1 minute before end of cooking time. Place beef patties and tomato slices between bun halves. 4 servings.

SLIM LINE BEEF STEAK

1 beef blade steak, cut 3/4 to 1 inch thick (approximately 2 pounds)
1 can (6 ounces) cocktail vegetable juice
1/4 cup lemon juice
1 tsp spicy brown mustard
2 tsp sugar

Buy produce at peak times

Quality is best and prices are lowest when fruits and vegetables are in peak supply.

Wise shoppers take advantage of this and plan to buy their summer fruits and vegetables when they are at their peak, says Debbie Slezak, Oakland County Home Economist.

Although peak seasons will vary somewhat depending on weather conditions and locations, there are some general guidelines consumers can follow.

JULY: Sweet and tart cherries hit their peak in July with sweet cherries coming in a little earlier than the tart.

Raspberries and blackberries also hit peak supply during July.

AUGUST: The greatest quantity and variety of Michigan grown vegetables become available, both in home gardens and at the retail level, in August.

Sweet corn, green beans and summer squash peak this month.

Salad vegetable are abundant, including celery, green peppers, cucumbers and tomatoes.

Michigan peach supplies are heaviest in August.

The fresh, new crop of apples begins with Paula Reds leading the way, and other varieties following in September, October and November.

SEPTEMBER: Plums, pears and grapes peak this month.

September vegetables include cauliflower and broccoli, root vegetables, such as turnips, hard shell squash, rutabaga and potatoes.

Peak times may last anywhere from 7-14 days, says Slezak. During a peak time, quality will be high because the crop is so abundant that only the higher quality produce will sell. Prices will also be at their lowest.

IT WAS THE ULTIMATE in garage saling.

When the long, luxurious limousine drew to a sedate stop at area garage sales, garage sale entrepreneurs and their customers were unbelieving. Some said later that they thought it might be Jeffrey Bruce and "I knew Mohammad Ali was in the area."

Nancy Gut was amazed when the limo arrived at her Plymouth Township home at 8:30 a.m. Thursday. The whole thing was a birthday surprise for Nancy planned by her sisters-in-law, Teri Gazsi of Canton Township and Judy Besco of Westland, Suzann Bogden, Nancy's neighbor, also was in on the caper. Nancy loves garage sales and she was going to cover them in style, wearing a tiara and a wrist corsage.

The four of them — Nancy, Teri, Judy and Suzann — took off to make the rounds, with the handsome Dino, limo owner, at the wheel.

Garage sale hostesses got into the spirit of the celebration. They suggested she choose a birthday gift from their wares. They ran into to their houses for cameras to record the event.

After several hours of garage saling it was time for Nancy's birthday luncheon. They drove over to Brighton to Knott's Berry Farm.

Teri said later that Dino was the star of the show at the restaurant. "The waitresses and a group of about 20 women at another birthday party thought he was wonderful."

My mother would have said they were "smitten."

The perpetrators had as much fun as Nancy. It was a wonderful day.

THE PLYMOUTH chapter of the Old Newsboys Association has elected new officers. President is John Johnston. Serving with him are Fred Libbing, vice president; Henry Berghoff, treasurer; and Donna Cash, secretary.

Although meetings have been adjourned until October, the Plymouth Goodfellows remain active throughout the year, providing assistance for families with food, shelter, fuel and clothing.

Assistance requests may telephone 453-4987 or 453-7284.

CORRECTION: A picture of Christina Branham in Thursday's Observer identified the trophy she was holding as one awarded to the Plymouth Salem High School Rockettes, as a group. It was Christina's own trophy for Miss American Drill Team, won in stiff competition at summer camp at Ashland College in Ohio.

IF YOU'VE BEEN wondering about the flag flying below the Stars and Stripes at Plymouth City Hall, it is a Prisoner of War/Missing in Action (POW/MIA) flag. Alice Fisher, a member of the Mayflower-Lt. Gamble VFW Post Auxiliary, presented the flag to the city at a commission meeting. Alice also presented a POW/MIA flag to Plymouth Township.

CARL WILSON, a student at Plymouth Canton High School, attended SEMINAR 85, Western Michigan University's summer music camp July 14-27. Carl plays bass clarinet and was enrolled in the woodwind division of the seminar. He takes private lessons from Mary Kleam of Plymouth.

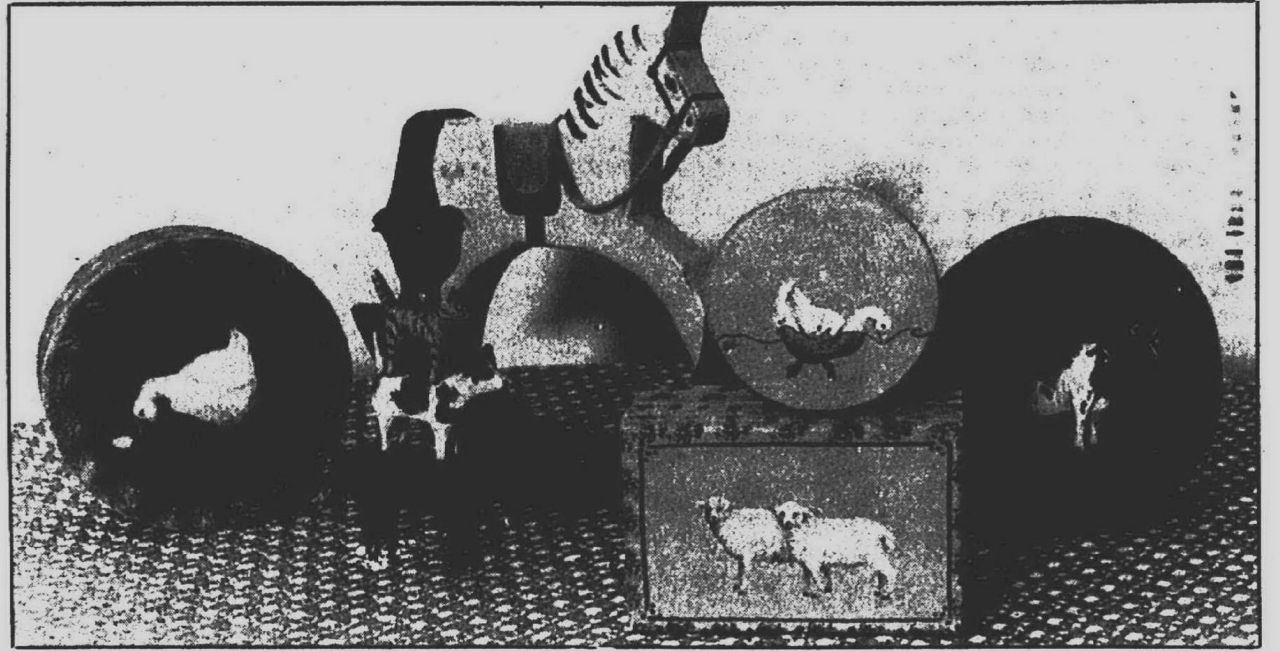

The seminar concluded last weekend with a final concert Saturday afternoon in Miller Auditorium on the WMU campus. Carl is the son of Linda Wilson, Turkey Run, Plymouth.

CAROLYN SCHLICK will enter Michigan State University's Veterinary Medical School in the fall. She was a spring honors grad at MSU with a bachelor of science degree in physiology. Carolyn attended Our Lady of Good Counsel grade school and graduated from Plymouth Canton High School in 1981.

She is the daughter of David and Anne Schlick of Sheridan Avenue, Plymouth.

Elizabeth Gribble, folk artist, decorates wood box lids in her home studio.

Each item is hand-painted and signed by the artist.

Artists prepare for PCAC show in September

ARTISTS AND craftsmen from Charlevoix, Michigan to Lima, Ohio are working toward the first weekend in September. They are the 90 applicants whose works have been accepted for the Plymouth Community Arts Council show Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 7 and 8. The two-day show in Central Middle School is part of Plymouth Fall Festival.

Some of the artists are long-standing regulars at the arts council show. For some, like Elizabeth Gribble of Plymouth, this is her first. She has been working away this summer, creating a variety of folk art items for her booth.

Many of the crafts show shoppers buy with Christmas in mind, so she is painting Shaker-type wood boxes and wood figures with stylized Santa Clauses. They range from a lanky St. Nicholas to a chubby Santa. She also is painting accessories with year-round charm.

EXHIBITORS never know what the big sellers will be. Some of the artists have steady show-to-show clientele. Others come one time and do not return in spite of the arts council selection committee's eye to fine craftsmanship and what will attract the buyer.

Among the local exhibitors is Pat Robinson of Plymouth with her dried flowers and herbs. She stood in her booth last year after her first day in the show and said, "Look. I worked all summer for this and I haven't anything left for tomorrow." They loved Pat's products.

Plymouth crafters and their specialties are: Bonnie Andrews, stained glass; William Doughty, wood toys; Joyce Harrington, stuffed bears; Don Hay, woodworking; Donna Hood, handwoven rugs; Grace Kabel, basketry; Beth Kohmescher, lamp shades; Nancy Lulek, folk art; Virginia McGraw, wreaths; Theresa Ohno, basketry; Phyllis Overhiser, folk art; Audrey Paul, oils, acrylics; Roy Pedersen, pottery; and Lyle Sweet, marquetry.

CANTON TOWNSHIP residents are Diane Bradley, fabric; Joanne Fredericks, calligraphy; Joe Krause, metal folk art; Susan Logue, stuffed animals; Sherri and Jim Lough, woodwork; Judy Moore, calligraphy; Kathy Rae, stenciling; and Nan Wiecek, weaving.

Others from surrounding communities and far away places are specialists in leather work, bread dough ornaments, tole art, etched glass, cross stitch, primitive dolls, patchwork, smocking, knitting, photography, jewelry, thumb prints, doll clothes, toys, fabrics and primitive reproductions.

These revivers of the old arts and creators of new art forms are working against deadline the big PCAC show at the Plymouth Fall Festival.

ARE YOU READY TO GIVE UP YOUR SECURITY BLANKET?

For over 100 years, the Red Cross has been there all those times America needed us most.

Now we're the ones who need help. Because saving lives can be very expensive. And to continue meeting all of America's emergencies, we need your help.

So give time. Give money. And give now. Please.

If you still believe in me, save me.

For nearly a hundred years, the Statue of Liberty has stood on the edge of the New World, America's most powerful symbol of freedom and hope. Today the ravages of almost a century of weather and pollution have left their marks. Corrosion has eaten away at the iron framework. New holes continue to appear in the copper sheets that form the exterior.

Less than a mile away, on Ellis Island where the ancestors of nearly half of all Americans first stepped onto American soil, the Great Hall of the Immigration Center is a hollow ruin. Rooms are vandalized, passageways overgrown with vegetation, walls crumbling in decay.

Inspiring plans have been developed to restore the Statue and to create at Ellis Island a living monument to the ethnic diversity of this country of immigrants. But unless restoration is begun now, ceremonies marking the hundredth anniversaries of these two landmarks in America's heritage could be held in commemoration of national treasures that no longer exist. Sections of the statue have already been declared unsafe and closed to visitors. The 230 million dollars needed to carry out the work is needed now.

All of the money must come from private donations; the federal government is not raising the funds. This is consistent with the origins of the Statue. The French people themselves paid for its creation. And thousands of American school children contributed to its construction and to the pedestal.

The Statue of Liberty-Ellis Island Centennial Commission appointed by President Reagan is asking every American business, every American citizen to join in raising these funds. The torch of liberty is everyone's to cherish. Could we hold up our heads as Americans if we allowed the time to come when she can no longer hold up hers?

One hundred years ago school children gave their pennies to put her up. Your dollars can keep her from falling down.

The hero, Taran, meets a funny creature named Gurgi in "The Black Cauldron," animated feature film from Walt Disney Pictures.

the movies
Dan Greenberg

'Black Cauldron' hasn't got the magic of Disney classics

It is an interesting sign of the times that Disney "animated classics" now require parental guidance, at least if one pays any attention to the questionable standards of the Motion Picture Producers Rating System.

"The Black Cauldron" is Disney Studios' latest but certainly not greatest feature-length animated film and it is rated PG.

How does a parent guide a child through the terrors fantasy can hold? Certainly Disney cartoons, feature-length or otherwise, long ago provided terror and good, old-fashioned thrills and spills for generations of kids who survived without the rating system, albeit they may have had parental guidance.

Many of us remember vividly the death of Bambi's mother and the Bluebird of Happiness flying through the burning forest while all the animals fled in fear of flames.

But little children do not understand the difference between reality and film fantasy. After the hero of "The Black Cauldron," Taran, fell down while horsing around with his clairvoyant pig, Hen Wen, I heard a small voice in the theater ask, "Mommy, is he dead?"

Children need to be raised with parental love and guidance and learn what is real and what is not, what is to be feared and what is not, what is to be respected and what is not. It is foolish of filmmakers to pretend there is much meaning to their silly rating system. Certainly "The Black Cauldron" is no more fearful than any other Disney "animated classic" — nor is it less. We all survived those films, didn't we?

"The Black Cauldron" story is a conventional one, with Good triumphing over Evil after a dangerous trek through frightening forests, culminating in a great battle in the evil Horned King's castle.

THE FILM IS BASED on Lloyd Alexander's series "The Chronicles of Prydain." Taran is taught and led by the wise old Dallben. In his journey to protect the oracular pig, Hen Wen, Taran meets and falls in love with Princess Eilonwy, as well as becomes friends with a mischievous, squirrelly creature, Gurgi; an Elizabethan minstrel, Fflewddur Fflam, and the Fairfolk. Three weird witches, Orwen, Orgoch and Orddu, and the Horned King's evil minions, particularly Creeper, complete the cast.

Taran's mission is to prevent the Horned King from finding the Black Cauldron and using its power to conquer and destroy the world.

While this story has overtones of Tolkien's "Lord of the Rings," this film turns out rather flat. "The Black Cauldron" lacks the sparkle and tension of fantasy and of the best Disney features.

With all due respect to the Disney Studios and the enormous staff of animators who produced more than 2½ million drawings during the 12 years it took to complete "The Black Cauldron," the film just isn't worth the $25 million spent.

Whether time and money were running out, or the studio didn't feel little children could handle a fully developed story with well-dimensioned characters, the movie seems unfinished in both regards. Every time Gurgi began to endear himself to the audience, the focus shifts to someone or something else and we are left wondering what other mischief he might discover.

GREAT CARE WAS TAKEN in producing "The Black Cauldron," except in character and plot development. One such example, the casting of the voices, was approached with solemn concern and resulted in John Hurt's appearance (vocally) as the Horned King, John Byner as Gurgi and John Huston narrating the prologue. Not all the voices are by individuals named John. Susan Sheridan is Princess Eilonwy and Freddie Jones is Dallben. The pig is silent.

In the end, the denouement seems rushed. We all know going in that good triumphs over evil in fairy-tale fantasy. The pleasure is in seeing how cleverly the producers develop the victory. In this case it lacks tension and excitement. It just happens.

"The Black Cauldron" will probably amuse the kindergarten set and lots of parents will sit through it with their children, but unlike so many earlier Disney "animated classics," this film is not destined for a hallowed place in media history.

The Creeper is in the service of the evil Horned King. The film is based on Lloyd Alexander's book series "The Chronicles of Prydain."

Wine ceremony is part of dinner

Judging from reports we read and the crowded conditions we encounter, one of the great hobbies of the American public today is Eating Out.

Fridays have become impossible, which forces crowding into Thursday and Saturday evenings. Mid-week promotions bring in the others... the business seems to be doing well, even at the prices charged.

One aspect of the event, at most places, and for some people — the more civilized — is the ceremony known as the Ordering of the Wine. So many questions are involved, issues at stake. For example, how much to pay, the color desired to complement the diverse array of entrees, who is to order (and who is not to), the amount to be consumed, changes in selection for the second bottle... the list goes on.

I was recently put into the "take charge" position while dining at a fine Traverse City restaurant. I was handed the fat, pseudo-leather-bound tome that told of the wondrous vinicultural delights awaiting us in "The Cellar." Some discussion ensued among the four of us as to how much was to be spent and what foods we were about to order.

THIS SETTLED, I began the tome study. Prices were reasonable (normal being a doubling of the restaurateur's cost of the wine which is about 67 percent of what you and I pay for it on the shelf), the array formidable.

We settled on ordering white wine (not a happy choice but I was outvoted) in the $15 range, anticipating that we would probably need two bottles for the evening. The Foppiano 1983 sauvignon blanc was chosen, a bottle I had not previously had but knew their previous efforts: light, dry, wholly inoffensive.

Away the waitress went, only to return a few moments later with a too well-iced bottle of 1981 Foppiano sauvignon blanc. "But your wine list," I said, "shows the 1983. This is not what you have promised in your list."

Well, she wondered what all the fuss was about but offered to check. "No," she returned saying, "this is what we have. The manager says the 1983 isn't here yet."

A dilemma. No big deal, except that a four-year-old sauvignon blanc may not be at its best any more. Images of wine-writer articles flashed through my head. What is expected here?

I DID the noble thing after a brief rumination. I backed down, accepted the 1981, knowing I was being a disgrace to wine snobbery.

As expected, the first bottle (it was all right) was soon empty, well ahead of the arrival of the entrees. Another was in order. It was established that my guests had never tasted gewurztra-

wine

miner, and we knew that our food choices were apt to be rich and well-seasoned. So, a bottle of the DeLoach 1982, as shown on the wine list, was ordered.

You have guessed it already.

Not only was it the 1981 that she brought (that must have been a big year in T.C.), the cork had been pulled! This waitress was not about to let some dude trouble her again. She was clearly a Type 4 and not about to be dominated by me or a vintage date.

What would you have done?

RECENT RELEASES of note, Good Value department.

Taylor Cellars, amid a flurry of prohibitive litigation, has released its Blush Wine. The furor concerns ownership of the word "blush" by the Mill Creek Vineyards of Sonoma who registered the name in the late 1970s. A few of the smaller wineries have used it since but always with permission. The giant Taylor (Coca-Cola) Cellars used it without permission, and so the battle goes. It has now been released locally, is delightfully dry and clean. At $4.50 the 1.5-liter bottle, it is good summer stuff.

From an undistinguished region of France comes an excellent vin du pays, the 1982 Mas de Daumas Gussac. At $9.99 it is a magnificent wine, made exclusively from cabernet sauvignon grapes (in a Burgundian bottle). The 1983 issue is also due soon and is said to be even more immediately approachable and will cost a dollar or two less.

Finally, Round Hill Vineyards of Napa is returning to our state for local distribution and boasts two excellent everyday wines among its stable. Its Lot 4 cabernet sauvignon and its 1984 chardonnay, at under $5 each, are both well worth seeking out. Called house wines, these both have good varietal character and some complexity. Welcome!

Flingin' Football EMU puts zest into grid camp

By Chris McCosky
staff writer

Football camps do not have to be an exercise in moaning and groaning. Though most are, they do not have to be all blood, sweat and tears.

No. Jim Harkema, head football coach at Eastern Michigan University, has come up with a concept that may revolutionize football camps. Instead of no-pain-no-gain, Harkema's camp stresses fun.

Harkema, along with assistant coach Doug Babcock, has developed a camp primarily for quarterbacks, receivers and defensive backs. Teams gather once a week for six weeks and play seven-on-seven psuedo-football games on a 40-yard field.

HERE'S HOW the camp works. There are 10 seven-on-seven games going on at the same time. The games are played on 40-yard fields.

The offense, which basically consists of a quarterback and six receivers, scores points for every catch (five points) then a point for every yard the catch nets. The 40 yards must be covered in one play for the offense to get credit for a touchdown. Touchdowns are worth 90 points (40 for the yardage and a 50-point bonus).

Quarterbacks have four seconds to throw the ball. Failure to release the ball within four seconds results in a sack for the defense.

The defense, which consists primarily of seven defensive backs, scores points for sacks (15), dropped passes (five), deflected passes (10) and interceptions (35).

A game consists of four 15-minute (running time) quarters. One team will play offense for one full quarter, alternate, and play defense for the full second quarter. You wind up playing two quarters each of offense and defense.

There is no contact. Players wear shorts and T-shirts and the games are very fast-paced. When Livonia Franklin defeated Detroit DePorres last week, the final score was 1,400-1,100.

THE CAMP finished its second year July 16 and was, by all accounts, largely successful. Twenty high school football teams, including Franklin, Garden City and Birmingham Seaholm from the Observer & Eccentric area, took part in the camp on the campus of EMU in Ypsilanti.

Dave Farris, head coach at Wayne State University, liked Harkema's concept so much he held a similar camp of his own this summer and attracted 12 teams.

"The camps are basically a lot of fun," said Livonia Franklin head football coach Armand Vigna, whose Patriots were undefeated going into the final week. "The kids are pretty much on their own, and they have a great time."

"But, at the same time, we learn our basic pass offense and our basic pass defense. We get a chance to work on these things against other teams in a game situation."

The camp is also beneficial to Harkema and his program at EMU. It provides a nice scouting forum and it forms a showcase for both the university and Harkema's program.

"Exposure is the big thing for us," Harkema said. "We want to get as many kids on campus as we can so they can see what a nice university this is."

Said Vigna: "I would like to see this introduced into junior high schools as an intramural program. Because of a lack of competition on the junior high level we have really been suffering at the skill positions over the years. Not enough kids are able to run, throw and catch. This program would allow them to do that on a competitive level."

There was plenty of running, throwing and catching during the past six weeks at EMU. Football camps may never be the same. Kind of makes you feel sad for those poor linemen — what do they do for fun in the summertime? Lift weights?

Franklin players Mark Kerpet (left) and Parenti discuss the last play. At the EMU camp, many plays are ad-libbed from the line of scrimmage.

57-year-old Hatch sets national mark

By C.J. Risek
staff writer

Melba Hatch knew exactly what she wanted.

The Canton resident eyed Tuesday's Redford Senior Olympics with great expectations. Her goal was clear — the national record in her age group in the two-mile run.

As lofty as that might seem, Hatch didn't disappoint. Despite hot, muggy weather and a lack of opposition — Hatch was the only woman competing in Class D (42 and over) — she obliterated the former national record, trimming nearly 40 seconds from the standard.

Hatch finished in 13:46.88. The former 55 and over mark was 14:26.

"That's the reason I went, really," said the 57-year-old Hatch when asked if she knew she had broken a national record. "I thought I had a chance."

"I have trouble finding track meets. I run in a lot of road races, but there aren't many track races for master runners."

WHILE HATCH knew what she was after Tuesday at the Redford Senior Olympics, she wasn't always so certain. She took up jogging at the urging of friends five years ago, but soon gave it up.

"I really didn't like it," she recalled. "I found all sorts of excuses not to run — it was too hot, I was too tired, or it was raining."

An advertisement for the 10-kilometer Emily's Fun Run got her interested again. Hatch figured she'd give it a shot, and that would be it for her racing career.

She trained for a short period for the Emily's run, twice going — and barely finishing — six miles (10 kilometers is 6.2 miles). But she made it through the Emily's run.

"After I finished, I never even thought to check to see if I'd won anything," Hatch said. "A few days later, I happened to be in Emily's store, and the book with the results was open on the counter, so I asked how I had done."

Hatch was astonished to discover she had won her age group (50-55). That was 1981, and she's been on the run ever since.

A TYPICAL training week covers about 40 miles, Hatch said. "I train for road racing actually. I'll go 7½ or eight miles three or four times a week and four miles a couple of times. Then I race on weekends."

"I don't have any strict training guide. If I feel like it, I'll go further. If I don't, I won't."

Hatch's running career took her to the World Masters Track and Field Championships in Puerto Rico in 1983. She ran three races: the 10-kilometer track, the 10-kilometer cross country, and the 800 meters. She finished with silvers in the first two and a bronze in the 800.

"When I first started running, I never thought I'd win anything," said Hatch. "I was just running to keep in shape."

But a modest goal has harvested a major accomplishment for Hatch — a national record.

Middleweight Darnell's fists floor Philly foe in 1st round

By Jim Hughes
staff writer

Steve Darnell spent more time dressed in a tuxedo than he did in his boxing shorts Thursday night, but the evening wasn't a total disappointment for the 21-year-old Livonia middleweight. He made the most of his night in the spotlight.

Darnell, who shared top billing with former Olympic gold medalist Steve McCrory in "Uptown Thursday Night, The Event" at the Birmingham Ice and Sports Arena, made short work of his scheduled six-round bout with Louis Bell. He knocked out the stiff from Philadelphia, then signed autographs, shook hands and conversed with the pro-Darnell crowd.

This was something new for "Stevie D," who ended his bout 1:36 into the first round and raised his professional record to 9-0-1 with six knockouts. He's accustomed to being on the undercard instead of headlining. After Darnell retreated to the locker room and escaped the well-wishers — many of whom were women — he reflected on his night.

"The last show I was in at Wyandotte, it was like that," he said of his new-found celebrity status, "but this time there was definitely more. I don't mind it one bit, to be honest with ya."

DARNELL COULDN'T have picked a better time and place to strut his stuff. The atmosphere of the quaint arena suggested Vegas, complete with valet parking, hot hors d'oeuvres for the $100 ticket-holders, card girls in mini tuxedos, ashtrays from Caesars Palace, a fashion show, and an appearance from former world heavyweight champ Muhammad Ali.

Seizing the opportunity, Darnell impressed the estimated crowd of 1,800 with heavyweight left hands that had ringside observers buzzing. Bell (4-1) was the aggressor at the start of the fight, but his buzzsaw approach to boxing made Darnell get to work early.

Bell tossed a flurry of windmill punches before Darnell realized the fashion show was over. He offset the attack by backing up and jabbing. He then dropped Bell with a combination, although it could have been ruled a slip.

No sooner had the referee waved the two fighters together after the count, Darnell was right back to work. He unloaded a powerful left hand to the unsuspecting Bell and finished it with a left uppercut.

Darnell, who first raised his hands to the ref as if to signal the bout should be stopped, looked disgusted after the brief workout. He said Bell had no business being in the ring.

"I wanted to dance and show my stuff," Darnell said as he ripped the tape off the tools of his trade. "He didn't want to fight. The guy definitely wasn't hurt. He wasn't on queer street, he just didn't want to fight. He shouldn't be called a professional if he doesn't have the heart to fight."

Tankers make big splash at Junior Olympic meet

Troy Shumate and Michele McKenzie of the Livonia Spartan Aquatic Club (LSAC) each won high-point honors in their age groups at the Michigan Junior Olympic Long Course Swim Meet July 19-21 in Midland.

Forty-two teams competed in the meet for A and B division swimmers, including the Clarenceville Swim Club (CSC), which got a meet record from Jennifer Knapp.

Shumate won five events in the 11-12 boys division: the 100-meter, 200-meter and 400-meter freestyle, the 200 individual medley and the 100 butterfly. He was also second in the 100 backstroke and 50 fly and third in the 50 back.

MCKENZIE COLLECTED four firsts in the 15-17 girls group. Her wins were in the 100, 400 and 800 free and the 400 IM. She was second in the 200 IM, the 200 breaststroke and 200 free and third in the 100 breast.

Other first-place finishers for LSAC were Julie Jensen, in the 13-14 girls 100 and 200 back, the 200 free and the 200 fly; Mike Goecke, in the 11-12 boys 50 free; Kathy Sullivan, in the 15-17 girls 200 back; Pat McCarthy, in the 15-17 girls 200 fly; and Ann Bollinger, in the 15-17 girls 100 back.

Jensen was also second in the 200 IM and third in the 400 IM, 800 free and 100 fly. Goecke took seconds in the 100, 200 and 400 free, a third in the 200 IM, a fourth in the 100 breast, a fifth in the 50 back and a sixth in the 100 back.

Sullivan also had seconds in the 400 IM and 100 back, thirds in the 400 and 800 free and the 200 IM, and a fifth in the 200 free. Bollinger was second in the 100 fly, third in the 50 free and 200 back, fourth in the 100 free and sixth in the 200 free, while McCarthy took a sixth in the 100 fly and sevenths in the 800 free and 400 IM.

Here are the other LSAC point-scorers.

10 and under girls: Pam Pritchard, third — 200 IM, fourth — 100 free and 50 fly, sixth — 100 breast.

11-12 girls: Erin Cabadas, second — 200 IM, fifth — 200 and 400 free, 100 breast, seventh —

50 fly, Tara Ditchkoff, fourth — 100 back

13-14 girls: Cassie Cummins, second — 800 free, 400 IM, third — 200 IM, 200 back, fourth — 200 and 400 free, 100 back, Nicole Drake, fifth — 200 IM, sixth — 400 free, Julie Hillinger, seventh — 100 breast

15-17 girls: Kendra James, fifth — 200 back, sixth — 100 back

15-17 boys: Gregg Wolff, third — 800 free, seventh — 200 free, John Jensen, sixth — 400 free, seventh — 800 free, Sean McDermott, fourth — 100 fly, eighth — 400 free

B Division

10 and under girls: Amy Balog, second — 50 fly

10 and under boys: Mike Smith, seventh — 100 breast, 100 free

11-12 girls: Katie Hamman, second — 50 back, fourth — 100 free, Jenny Zabkiewicz, third — 100 free, fifth — 50 back

11-12 boys: Joey Petrillo, third — 50 back, sixth — 50 fly

13-18 girls: Ann Marie Gergely, fifth — 100 fly

13-18 boys: Steve Schwinn, sixth — 100 fly.

KNAPP'S RECORD for CSC came in the 10 and under girls 50 breast. Her time of 40.53 eclipsed the former mark of 41.04 and earned her one of her two firsts.

Knapp's other victory came in the 100 breast (1:30.89). She was also sixth in the 200 IM, seventh in the 100 fly and eighth in the 50 free.

Here are the rest of the CSC point-scorers.

10 and under girls (B Division): A. Palmer, second — 50 breast, third — 100 breast, fourth — 50 fly, sixth — 100 free, 50 free, R. Holdridge, first — 50 back, second — 100 back, third — 50 free, eighth — 400 free; C. Roessler, second — 50 back, third — 100 back, fifth — 50 breast, seventh — 50 free.

5th all-star grid game on tap

The fifth annual Michigan High School East-West All-Star Football game is set for 1:20 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 3, at Michigan State's Spartan Stadium in East Lansing.

The game features 30 of the top high school seniors from last year. Some are highly-touted college freshmen, others are hoping the game will help them garner a scholarship.

As always, the Observer & Eccentric area will be well represented on the East squad.

football

Ken Kaestner of Livonia Churchill is the head coach of the East team. Assisting Kaestner will be veteran Livonia Stevenson mentor Jack Reardon, Churchill's Herb Osterland and Stevenson's Jack Gobel.

NINE PLAYERS from the area are on the squad. They are John Miller, two-time all-American from Farmington Harrison; Fred Owens, Redford Bishop Borgess; Dave Mize, Livonia Churchill; Mike Farr, Birmingham Brother Rice; Craig Morton, Plymouth Salem; Ron Wandzel, Redford Catholic Central; Tony Beaune, Livonia Stevenson; Chuck McSwigan, Bloomfield Hills Lahser; and Chad Darke, Livonia Bentley.

The West squad will feature all-staters Maurice Ware of Albion and Andre Rison from Flint Northwestern.

The East enjoys a 3-1 edge in the previous games, winning last year 24-7. Plymouth Salem's Tom Moshimer is the chairman of the event and former Michigan State football coach Muddy Waters is the game's executive director.

Tickets for the game are $3 and will be available at the MSU gates Saturday.

Plymouth-Canton Ruth 9 places 4th at state tourney

Plymouth-Canton placed fourth last week in the nine-team Babe Ruth (14-15 age group) State Baseball Tournament played in Lansing.

A team of all-stars from the Plymouth-Canton Babe Ruth Baseball League defeated North Farmington 11-8 in eight innings in the tourney opener.

Todd Marion, Scott Browne and Jay Swiecki provided the heroics for Plymouth-Canton. Marion came on in relief to quell a North Farmington rally in the seventh. Swiecki led off the eighth with his third hit of the game. Browne and Marion followed that with back-to-back, 380-foot home runs.

The local team lost to Durand in game, two 5-4, but came back in the losers' bracket to dump Ypsilanti 7-6. Plymouth-Canton had trailed in the game 5-1. Fidell Cashero knocked home the game winner in the sixth.

Grosse Pointe Park, the tournament's champion, sent Plymouth-Canton home with a 9-2 win Monday.

Darnell wins

WHEN ASKED IF it was the left hand that finished Bell, Darnell grinned and answered, "Yeah, a couple of them."

Bell took the left uppercut to the throat and was spitting up in his corner afterward.

"I thought I got him on the button," Darnell said, pointing to his chin. "This was supposed to be a six-round fight, so I thought he'd come out and see what I had. But he came out storming. I stepped back and tried to measure him with a straight left, then I jacked him with the uppercut."

The KO was the third Darnell has recorded in the first round and fifth inside of two rounds.

When it was over, Darnell showered and slipped into his tux to watch McCrory, the other main event, score a unanimous decision over Donnie Parker of Maryland.
