Township turns thumbs down on millage

By Gary M. Cates staff writer

With a 15-percent turnout, Plymouth Township voters sent an important millage question to defeat Monday.

The request to authorize up to four mills for township operation was defeated by a slightly more than 2-to-1 margin - 1,636 no to 688 yes. Township officials were looking for a yes vote as an indication of support for the

As a result of the defeat, the township faces paying for 1986 operations with two mills ($2 for every $1,000 of state equalized valuation or SEV). Had the proposal passed, five mills would have been available for operation and 3.88 would have been levied.

"If we do not have our own police department, it is not cheaper to contract for that service. The loss of the millage has nothing to do with it."

The election was called because of recently expired special-voted police and fire millages.

Township officials decided to seek authorization for a total of five mills the charter limit - rather than seeking special voted millages earmarked for police and/or fire.

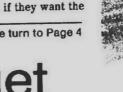

Monday's request marked the first time in township history a lump sum millage - exceeding the amount immediately needed - has been sought. Officials said the charter limit needed to be authorized because of increasing demands for service as the township

Society speeds up Stone School restoration

Plymouth and Canton area residents will be able to experience what it was like to attend a one-room schoolhouse, if the Salem Historical Society completes its goal of refurbishing a historic structure on North Territorial Road at Curtis Road.

The old building, called South Salem Stone School, was built nearly 130 years ago to replace an original oneroom schoolhouse made of logs at the same intersection. The log schoolhouse erty was to revert back to the district. was built in 1829.

No one knows exactly why the school was named "Stone." The only explanation, offered by Plymouth area historian Sam Hudson, was that the school was made of field stones gathered from the surrounding area.

Hudson said he knew of no one named Stone who would have figured in the area's history to the extent that a schoolhouse would have been named after him or her. The school, which stands on a parcel of land 74 feet by 74 feet, was annexed by the Plymouth-Canton Community School District Sept. 13, 1965, but, because the lot was too small, the parcel was of no future use to the district.

The last class was held in the school in 1967. Class sizes ran 18-35 students. The district deeded the property over to the Salem Historical Society Dec. 11, 1978, with the stipulation that the society restore the school to its former appearance. If it didn't, the prop-

We intend to put up a big sign, saying we are restoring the schoolhouse, said Irene Lyke, president of the society. "We are trying to find people who attended that school, to see if they have photos showing how it looked."

THE SOCIETY is hoping much of the restoration can be accomplished with the use of donated labor and materials, such as drywall, insulation and interior

The schoolhouse has been severely vandalized.

"They broke the 24 panes of glass in each of five windows," said Lyke. "Birds were flying in and out. The grass was head-high. We mowed the lawn and put a metal door on the build-safety department.

"Let's keep them the way they are," he said. "They are professional, trained to be what they are. There could not possibly be enough cost savings worth endangering the lives of the citizens. Money cannot buy a life."

Duston said he was running for the office of commissioner "because I want the job."

A budget battle seems imminent. The commission is controlled 14-1 by Democrats, and Lucas is a newly declared Republican eyeing higher office. The county's fiscal year begins Dec. 1.

Despite the reduction in employees, Lucas said services would not be affected. Cuts would be made through attrition, he said.

The county payroll was 4,665 fulltime employees as of January. That's down 13 percent from the 5,365 when Lucas took office in 1983.

"I never saw anything so beautiful in all my life. It was about 6 o'clock on Sunday afternoon and we had been racing out on Lake Huron since noon on Saturday. "Sure we noticed the waves start in roll toward us, but my boat is 10 years old and can stand the rough going, so I just enjoyed the scenery.

These were the words of Dr. Gary Hall, the Plymouth dentist, who has been sailing the Port Huron-Mackinac race for a decade.

It seemed strange to hear this from a sailor who was in the middle of a storm that forced more than 70 boats out of the race - the largest number in histo-

But at no time was he scared or afraid of the nightfall that was supposed to be a terrible storm.

"Sure those 70 boats gave up," he said, "there is a reason for that. This race, as far as boats are concerned, is much like the Indianapolis 500-mile auto race. They have turned away from heavy cars and now race light ones that can't stand a real test.

'The boats are much like that now and I'd bet that there won't be too many light boats next year."

HALL WAS still smiling about the thrill he enjoyed with his crew of nine people, one of whom was his 16-year old son, Bart, along with Bill Stirtiron, of Plymouth.

"Sure we saw the waves develop as we reached Cove Island," Hall explained," and the wind was blowing rather hard. We started to get uncomfortable - that is, cold and wet. But when the wind blows as it did a sailor puts up all three sails at his command.

"Sure, we were uncomfortable and six of our crew (were) down below. So, when you are reduced from nine to three crew members, it is rather tough going. But at no time were we afraid.

The 10-foot waves we could handle with the heavy boat, but we lost speed. But, unlike the wind in most years, this lasted all night instead of the three or four hours to which we had been accus-

THEN HE smiled a bit, as the thoughts came back to him. But with all that trouble, the scenery never changed.

"We saw the Northern Stars and Northern Lights. The scenery helped some, but it isn't comfortable in wet clothes and cold winds. But the old boat stood the test of 10-foot waves."

Asked if that experience would give him any idea of retiring from the race and be a spectator next year, he chuckled, "No chance. It is too much fun if you have a boat that can stand the usual waves on Lake Huron.' Hall feels certain that there will be a change in the boats.

"Don't forget," he emphasized, "there was a time when the race lasted three and four days. Then the desire for speed caused a switch to light boats and they can't stand rough going.

"But there always will be a race and a good one - if the boats are built to suit the water and not expect the lake to be kind to your boat.

Ernie Harwell 'tunes in' to first love

Tiger announcer pens national best seller in first at-bat

By Richard Lech staff writer

Ernie Harwell has made it to baseball's Hall of Fame for his broadcasting prowess. But it was sportswriting, not sports announcing, that was his first love. "I really wanted to be a newspaperman," said

Harwell, who has been broadcasting Detroit Tiger games on radio for 26 years.

"If I'd have been able to get a job I would have been one. But when I got out of school there were no newspaper job openings. So I got into radio."l

HARWELL has put his old sportswriting skills back into use, though, in a new book called "Tuned to Baseball." Now in its second printing, the book is an account of Harwell's experiences in 45 years of broadcasting.

"It's basically about people I have met in baseball," the 67-year-old Farmington Hills resident said. "It's not autobiographical in the sense of I was born here and did this.'

Harwell, who comes across as friendly and relaxed in person as he does on the air, visited several local bookstores last week to autograph copies of his book. He appeared Wednesday at the Paper Tiger bookstore in Livonia and Saturday at Waldenbooks in the Westland Shopping Center.

He drew adoring fans, both young and old, for whom Tiger baseball and Ernie Harwell have become almost synonymous. "I've been listening to Tiger baseball for 60 years," one man said. "I grew up with Ty Tyson, but I'd have to say I like you better."

One woman had Harwell sign a cookbook for her husband because she is "usually in the kitchen when he's listening to you."

"TUNED to Baseball" has chapters on the owners, the managers, the players, the early days of sports broadcasting, the art of conducting interviews and other baseball topics.

Harwell said this is the first full-fledged book he has written, although he has previously written magazine articles, chapters of books and "Tiger Trivia" compilations with Fred Smith.

He said clarity of expression is his goal, whether he's behind the typewiter or the microphone.

"I've never been a guy who admired someone who didn't write clearly. Some writers are supposed to be so great and write these long, complicated sentences that are hard to understand, but to me if you don't understand it, that's missing the

Harwell was born in 1918 in Washington, Ga., which is about 40 miles from Royston, where another Tiger Hall of Famer, Ty Cobb, was born.

'Ty Cobb was one of my early heroes, and since he's from my home state, I read a lot about him and heard about him. Later on I got to meet him."

AS HARWELL recounts in "Tuned to Baseball," their first meeting came in 1941, when Harwell was just starting out in the broadcasting business. He went to Royston to interview Cobb for WSB radio in Atlanta, but had been forewarned that Cobb was a "bitter, mean old man" who would never talk to

"I found out differently," Harwell wrote. . . . he was most cordial. A drink or two had already warmed him up for me. And he talked. The problem was not getting him to start talking, but getting him to stop talking."

Harwell had started working for WSB when his plans for a newspaper career had fizzled. He had worked as correspondent for the Sporting News at age 16 and served as a fill-in employee at the Atlanta Constitution while going to high school and Emory University in Atlanta. But he couldn't find a full-time newspaper job.

"I'd been in speech class at Emory with a fellow who was a program director at WSB," Harwell said. "He knew I was interested in speech and sports, and it was his idea to combine the two."

Harwell made it to the big leagues as a broadcaster in 1948 with the Brooklyn Dodgers. Following stints with the New York Giants and Baltimore Orioles, Harwell joined the Tiger announcing crew volved, even though it means 26 road trips during the regular season.

"Most people hate the travel and that sends them into retirement," Harwell said. "But I have people I know in each town. We go to a town twice each season, and I get to see people I otherwise wouldn't see. I get to visit with them, have some fun, and somebody else pays for it.

"I enjoy living out of a motel, eating in restaurants. I look upon it as an adventure."

He and radio partner Paul Carey could have some unplanned time off if the players go on strike this season. A strike might turn off the fans temporarily, but not for long, Harwell said.

"When I think of what happened before," he said, referring to the 1981 baseball strike, "the fans get a little bit disgusted at first and say they won't come back. But when the pennant race gets hot, they come back. It's forgotten."

HE IS AGAINST the plan to play all of this year's World Series games at night, saying it is a "strictly commercial" move to accommodate television

As he does every year, he will be covering the American League playoffs for CBS radio this fall. He favors this year's expansion of the divisional playoffs to seven games.

"I like that because I get paid by the game," he said with a smile. "In 1963 I did my first World Series - and it went only four games.

Harwell and his wife, Lulu, have been married for 44 years. She wrote his book's introduction, where she points out that baseball is only one side

He also is a songwriter who has had 46 of his songs recorded, by such artists as B.J. Thomas, Mitch Ryder and Homer and Jethro. And he is an inventor, holding a U.S. patent on a bottle-can opener and having invented a World Series Fact Wheel.

'Ernie's idea of a roaring good time is relaxing at home with a few close friends and family," Lulu

Family includes sons Bill and Gray and seven granchildren. Bill is an insurance salesman in Farmington Hills; Gray runs a Christian ministry called Family Restoration in Fort Mill, S.C.

DEVOUTLY RELIGIOUS himself, Harwell has spoken to the baseball chapels of various major league teams and devoted a chapter of his book to the chapel movement. He sees the informal clubhouse worship services as a way of changing lives.

"Tiger pitcher Frank Tanana is a good example. He just won the Danny Thompson Award for the fellow showing the best Christian attitude. In the past, he always was sort of wild and didn't know what direction he was going in, and he changed because of the chapel."

Although Harwell is still going strong behind the microphone, he knows one day he'll have to retire from the broadcast booth.

"I foresee it, but I don't look forward to it. As long as I'm healthy and as long as they want me I'm going to keep working. I've been blessed by the Lord with good health, and you have everything

When it gets to the point where I can't do it, I don't want to hang around. But it's a great blessing to have your health and have a job that you really

Detroit Tiger Announcer Ernie Harwell's book "Tuned to Baseball" is to bookstores what the 1984 season was to the World Champion Bengals. It's become a national best seller.

'What's been fun is being able to see these people one-to-one. There are people I've talked to but who've never seen me. It's gratifying to me, because they can come up and say hello and we can have a little bit of a conversation and sign a book in the meantime,' says Ernie Harwell.

staff writer

If the closest you've even gotten to major league baseball is a Tiger Stadi-um box seat and that's not close enough, you'll devour "Tuned to Base-ball" by Ernie Harwell.

In his own readable way, the Detroit Tiger announcer guides a thoroughly entertaining, personalized tour through baseball history.

You'll laugh at Mark 'the Bird' Fidrych telling his teammates after Mickey Stanley is picked off third ("All right team, now let's capitalize on that!"); gain insights into the quirks and faux pas of colorful players, managers, umpires and broadcasters, and relive the feats of Ty Cobb, Bobby Thomson and Willie Mays. You'll be sorry it ends, yet glad to be in on some of the most humorous and memorable moments only a lifelong lover of base-ball could recount. ("Lifelong" isn't stretching it. Ernie first tuned in to the sport at age 8, listening to the 1926 World Series on a crystal set in the basement of his parents' Atlanta

"Writing the book was always in the back of my mind. I'd been procrastinating, mainly," said Harwell from his Tiger Stadium office Tuesday. "Right after the (last) World Series, I just sat down at the old typewriter and kept going. I didn't want to write anything much that I had to look up. I didn't want to write a lot of play-by-play, detail or a lot of statistics. I wanted to sound as human as I could and offer little insights people might not get otherwise. I wanted to let them see through my eyes.

"I just kept hacking away in my little study on my Underwood manual typewriter," added the Baseball Hall of Famer who completed his national bestseller the first week of December.

FOLKS YET to meet Harwell who suspect he's a pretty nice guy are con-vinced of it by the time they finish his 221-page hardcover. The vignettes he spins in a conversational style are akin to tales he might tell a golf partner while sauntering down a fairway.

The broadcaster, who aspired to be a pro baseball player and a newspaper writer, shares nuggets of knowledge re-lated to him during morning walks by "that silver-gray mop and that rugged wrinkled face," Detroit Tiger Manager Sparky Anderson.

"Most of all I learned that Sparky Anderson is a master psychologist," writes Harwell. "He had to light a fire under some of the Tigers (in 1984). He had to stroke others. Sometimes he goaded them, sometimes cajoled and sometimes babied them. . . He's the best of all the managers I have known. Not only because of that great record, but because he is an outstanding human

Mostly, Ernie entertains the reader. He takes you to Memorial Stadium for the Baltimore-Cincinnati 1970 World Series; has you eyeball-to-eyeball with a livid Leo Durocher; cringing in a broadcast booth wracked with technical difficulties as they tape and re-taping a Nellie Fox interview; and pouring over pictures of a toothpick-wide Ted Williams; nattily-attired Ty Cobb and baseball patriarch Connie Mack.

He recalls 19-game losing streaks and introduces you to one-time Tiger President Bill DeWitt, also "known as 'Old Bubble Eyes' because some felt that he looked like a fat frog within a business suit."

You're sitting with Harwell in a hotel lobby at annual winter baseball meetings where "three potted plants will die from smoke inhalation and alcohol poisoning" and at sports banquets, dining on "cardboard beef or rubber chicken, bullet peas, and brick ice cream."

In the Tigers', Giants', and Dodgers' clubhouses, you're given a taste of Baseball Chapel and how it's turned guys' lives around. You meet the sleepwalking Atlanta Cracker pitcher Van Lingle Mungo under his bed. You'll be at Clint "Scrap Iron" Courtney's funer-al after he ironically dies of a heart attack sustained while playing ping pong.

You're on the Tigers' team bus in downtown Chicago hearing the players talk about the art institute's King Tut exhibit when the Bird asks, "King Tut. What's that, a new rock group?"

You'll hear about the bean ball baptisms of Gates Brown, Willie Horton and Don Wert, the illicit exploits of Babe Ruth, and the Achilles heels of baseball's hellions.

Police have strange week

Plymouth police might well ask themselves if there has been a full moon in the city, after a week of strange happenings. On Sunday, for example, a man shot himself with his own gun. Michael Richard Kar, 23, of Plymouth told police his handgun fell out of his pocket, hit the ground and discharged one bullet.

The bullet, fired from a derringer 9mm two-shot, hit him in the right forearm. He was treated by the Plymouth Fire Department and taken to St. Mary Hospital, Livonia.

Two Schoolcraft College professors have scholarships this summer to work on master's degrees in occupational education.

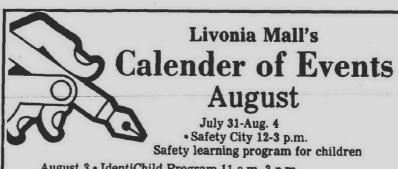

Donald W. Waldenmayer, associate professor of electronics, and Raymond L. Anderson, professor of related instruction, have full tuition and housing stipends to attend Ferris State College at Big Rapids.

"It's another opportunity we think is fantastic," said Schoolcraft President Richard McDowell, who has worked to strengthen the skills of more senior faculty members.

McDOWELL SAID Ferris offered 29 scholarships - one to every community college in the state.

Mon., Tues., Wed., Fri. 8-5 Thurs. 8-7

Saturday 9-2

ON FRIDAY, a woman whose car was standing on the C&O Railroad tracks at the crossing on South Mill Street observed the crossing gates descending upon her car

As the gate came down, she backed up her vehicle to avoid the gate - and struck another car be-

Total gas station on Mill Street and Wilcox. Yes, you guessed it. The gearshift apparently slipped out of park, rolled back and hit another car behind it, damaging the left front quarter panel. At least that's what the driver claimed.

Two Schoolcraft College professors have scholarships this summer to work on master's degrees in occupational education.

Donald W. Waldenmayer, associate professor of electronics, and Raymond L. Anderson, professor of related instruction, have full tuition and housing stipends to attend Ferris State College at Big Rapids.

"It's another opportunity we think is fantastic," said Schoolcraft President Richard McDowell, who has worked to strengthen the skills of more senior faculty members.

McDOWELL SAID Ferris offered 29 scholarships - one to every community college in the state.

GOP unhappy with comp plan

staff writer

A backlog of workers compensation appeals should be speeded up by a compromise bill which sailed through the Michigan Legislature Tuesday, but some Republicans say it fails to constitute reform.

"It's fluff — a charade," said state Rep. Gordon Sparks, R-Troy, the only area lawmaker to vote against the lengthy and complex bill (see outline on this page).

The Senate's overwhelming 27-4 vote, after an hour of caucuses and debate, and the House's 78-16 vote. which took a bare two minutes, obscured the fact that there were many hard feelings on the issue.

Gov. James J. Blanchard said the bill would "streamline procedures," saving business money. He pledged to sign it promptly.

SPARKS VOTED no to protest the Legislature's failure to change the definition of disability.

"The current Michigan definition is that if you can't do an identical job, you're disabled. In 37 or 38 other states, they say you're disabled only if you can't do the job or aren't trained for a comparable job.

"Workers comp in Michigan costs three times as much as it does in Tennessee," the second-term lawmaker said, referring to this week's announcement that General Motors will build its too, except W.V. Brotherton, R-Farm-futuristic Saturn auto plant in the hills ington, who was absent, and Sparks. of the Volunteer State.

Lawmakers intend to address the touchy question, which divides labor and management, after the 1986 election, but that wasn't soon enough for

"I protested. We hear all the time in Lansing, 'It's time to bite the bullet and vote for something you don't like.' Well, I decided to draw the line today," he said in an interview after the session.

THE MORE conventional view was expressed by Sen. Doug Cruce, R-Troy, who wrote the original bill that was subject of a lengthy conference com-mittee review. "I applaud the compromise," the vice chairman of the Senate Labor Committee said on the Senate

"There were numerous hours of work. I know the turmoil Sen. DeGrow went through," he said, praising the work of Sen. Dan DeGrow, R-Port Huron, who chaired the joint House-Senate conference committee. "He took my place with my blessing. I applaud

DeGrow summed up the compromise with this question: "The issue is, are we better off with this bill than without

THERE WAS no debate over what is sure to be a court issue - taking civilservice status away from hearing referees and replacing them with 30 magistrates appointed by the governor.

Instead, Republican senators used the session to blister Democrat Blanchard on the eligibility-definition issue, suggesting Michigan's liberal definition was costing the state jobs.

"This is a fraction of a step in the right direction," said Sen. Norman Shinkle, R-Lambertville. "The issue is to redefine eligibility as not an identical job but a comparable job." The freshman Monroe County senator charged Blanchard with "lack of leadership" and bending to "the prevailing influence of organized labor.

"The issue is the business climate," said Sen. Richard Poshumus, R-Lowell. "Look at what's happened with Saturn, Goodyear, Stroh's. How workers comp is changed

Senate Bill 7, as approved Tuesday by the Michigan Legislature, is aimed at speeding up workers compensation appeals procedures. The bill takes effect as soon as Gov. James Blanchard signs it. Here are major provisions, as outlined by the House Legislative Analysis Section:

• The present act expired June 30. SB 7 postpones the expiration date to Jan. 1, 1987, meaning the Legislature must readdress the issue before the end

• The present act sets up a system of civil service hearing referees. SB 7 abolishes their jobs as of March 31, 1987, and replaces them with 30 magistrates, an autonomous unit within the Department of Labor. Magistrates must be members of the State Bar and are limited to 12 years service. A chairperson would assign cases, schedule work and establish productivity

Appeals Board has 15 members representing labor, management and the public. SB 7 sets up a new seven-member appeals board, all representing the public. Appeals would be assigned to panels of two members (rather than the present three).

• Mediation would be required for some claims.

• SB 7 creates a small claims division for cases involving $2,000 or less. No attorneys would be used. The magistrate's decision would be final. (An estimated 15-25 percent of cases are

• SB 7 sets up a system of voluntary arbitration, with cases handled by professional arbitrators.

• In the event of an appeal after • The present Workers Comp March 31, 1986, the worker would be entitled to medical benefits from the date of the award until final determination of the appeal.

• Attorney fees would be capped at two-thirds of the state average wage at the time of the worker's injury.

• Two conflicting definitions of disability would be reconciled to say: 'limitation of an employee's wage earning capacity in the employee's general field of employment resulting from a personal injury or work-related disease · Employer's liability is limited in the case of an injured person already certified as vocationally handicapped to 52 weeks (instead of 104 weeks).

• SB 7 allows employer contributions to a profit-sharing plan to be coordinated with benefits under workers

• SB 7 reduces the interest rate on lump-sum benefits to 10 percent from

Journalist chief dies of cancer

Lawrence A. Laurain, city editor of the Oakland Press in Pontiac and president of the Detroit chapter of the Society of Professional Journalists, died of cancer Thursday in St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Pontiac. He was 36.

Mr. Laurain had held positions at three suburban dailies, three weeklies and the United Press International in his 17 years in the newspaper business.

He entered the hospital for surgery in June after an eight-month battle with cancer. He was elected to head the Detroit journalists society, a group he had long served as a member and officer, last spring. He was also a member of the Detroit Press

Experience key to commission choice

HIS TUESDAY City of Plymouth residents will be going to the polls to vote for four candidates for the Plymouth City Commis-

The top eight vote-getters of Tuesday's primary will then square off in November for four city commission seats.

Of the four seats, only one is held by an incumbent (the one occupied by William Robinson). Incumbents Jack Kenyon, Ron Loiselle and Dave Pugh are barred by city charter from running again as they have served their two successive terms.

Commissioner Mary Ellen McKercher recently resigned which means the commission must appoint a person to fill that seat. That leaves Mary Childs and Bud Martin as the remaining commission members.

WHEN RESIDENTS go the polls Tuesday, they actually will be able to vote for only four candidates. On the ballot will appear these 10 names:

Anthony Anason, William Bingley, Lloyd Duston, Karl Gansler II, Gregory Green, Robert Jones, Don Keller, Robert Kroeger, Jean Morrow, and William Rob-

Out of this field of 10, at least six are worthy of serious consideration by voters.

• Robinson: An incumbent who has demonstrated he has the ability to be a contributing member on the Plymouth City Commission. Robinson, active in civic affairs as a Kiwanian, has a previous record of service on the Municipal Housing Commission. Schooled in finances and accounting, his methodical, probing mind has been an asset on the commission.

• Gansler: A former city commissioner, Gansler stepped aside from city government service at a time when his business was growing and needed more attention. During that absence, however, he has kept in touch and is well informed on the issues facing the city.

A former Jaycee, he is active in Plymouth Rotary and on the retail committee of the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce. Also a clear thinker, although sometimes too opinionated.

• Green: Never elected, Green has run for city commission unsucces past and learned from each experience. He returns as a serious candidate informed of city problems and opportunities. Green has served on the planning commission and is an articulate spokesman for Old Village, particularly for those who believe that area should be preserved as a blend of residential and commercial

• Jones: A relative newcomer compared to Gansler, Robinson and Green, Jones nevertheless has made himself a viable candidate. First Jones began attending commission meetings on a regular basis, asking questions to find out what was happening and why.

He then began to search for answers on his own. Jones' interest resulted in his appointment to the planning commission where his knowledge of the functioning of local government expanded. He may be the best of the bunch.

• Keller: The key element in recommending Keller is leadership. Keller has served his tenure as president of the Plymouth Jaycees, where he developed leadership skills. He then got to put them into practice on the planning commission, which he now serves as chairman. Young and outspoken, Keller offers some variety to the more staid personalities of a Robinson or Jones.

· Bingley: A newcomer to local politics, Bingley has the advantage of being a longtime resident of the Plymouth-Northville community with a long record of involvement in Northville government. Born in Plymouth, he has lived here for some 15-17 years.

While living in Northville, Bingley served on the Zoning Board of Appeals for 21 years - 14 as chairman. He was on Northville's recreation commission for seven years and the Housing Board of Appeals for five years. That kind of experience would be an asset to the Plymouth City Commission which is undergoing turnover.

The Plymouth Observer will continue to evaluate the candidates as it prepares to endorse four candidates for the city commission in the upcoming general election in November. To aid residents in voting in Tuesday's run-off we can with comfort recommend the candidacies of Karl Gansler II, William Robinson, Robert Jones, Gregory Green, William Bingley and Don

We hope city residents will exercise whom they believe to be the four best qualified to represent all interests in the

HAZARDOUS

Trash returns to haunt us

WE'VE COME to be known as the disposable society.

No longer do we hang on to our possessions, much less our parents' or grandparents.' We've swallowed the Madison Avenue credo that new is better. And if it's cheap enough that we can throw it away after a few uses only to buy another when the need arises, all the better.

Business has responded to our whims by offering disposable razors and butane lighters; cameras, flashlights and watches that are useless once the non-replaceable battery dies. We have escaped the trap of our possessions by disposing of them.

THE MENTION of hazardous waste conjures images of giant chemical companies, Love Canal or New Jersey. We don't associate hazardous waste with ourselves, Swartz Creek or Michigan.

We don't know to be concerned about what happens to the mercury in a dead battery or the butane residue in a cigarette lighter or a few drops of lye left in the aerosol can of oven cleaner or the toxic PCBs in an old television.

Landfills were the panacea for our waste. We took them for granted because until recently we've always had enough

Marilyn Fitchett land where nobody lived. We didn't know then we were poisoning our land and our water. But even if we did know, we probawas living there. But yesterday's hinterlands are becomng today's suburbs, and all of a sudden we have people fighting landfill expansion. We haven't stopped producing waste; we just don't want it piled in our back yards.

bly wouldn't have cared. After all, nobody

Americans have disposed of an estimated six billion tons of hazardous waste since 1950. In 1981, the 264 million metric tons regulated by the U.S. Environmental Protection Society would have filled 1,500 New Orleans Superdomes, according to National Geographic Society.

It notes that the buildup of waste has steadily increased our exposure to chemicals that can cause cancer, birth defects, miscarriages, nervous disorders, blood diseases and damage to liver, kidneys or

WE CAN TAKE small comfort in the fact that the EPA has designated or proposed 786 waste sites for a cleanup list when the congressional Office of Technology Assessment estimates that 10,000 or more dumps will end up on the list at an eventual cleanup cost of more than $100

It may be odd to think that the problem of waste disposal should be blamed on ordinary citizens when we consider the amount of pollution that our industries new. But the attitude of buying a consumer good today only to dispose of it tomorrow reflects the attitude that got us into this mess in the first place.

Perhaps if we had been more diligent about reducing household waste, we would have held industry accountable for proper disposal of its own. Maybe we would have stunted the manufacture of throwaway items, and legislation like the bottle bill would have been passed years ago in eve-

To paraphrase an old axiom, save the land; they aren't making it anymore.

Old-time newsmen ballooned the story

MANY YOUNG folks just leaving school and preparing to start a career turn to journalism because of the excite-

"Just imagine," one of the young fellows said the other day, "be on hand at big fires, courtroom scenes. And if you're in the sports department, you can see many of the big events without paying admission."

That's the picture they have. But interesting and exciting as journalism is today, it doesn't compare with the old days before radio, television and other means of communication.

The Stroller had to smile when the young lad spoke, for his memory took him back to the days when he was assigned to cover the Port Huron to Mackinac sailing

WHEN HE was told to cover the big race, the first thing The Stroller thought about was how to get his reports to the paper to meet the edition schedule.

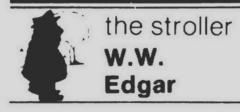

"You will have to figure that out yourself," the sports editor said, with a halfsmile. "So let's see what kind of a plan you'll come up with."

It wasn't easy, and there were days of study of just what could be done.

The Stroller checked everything he could think of, but there was no way to get the stories from the middle of the lake to the newspaper office on time.

Then a good friend and rival, the late Harry LeDuc of the Detroit News, discovered an answer. "I called the Coast Guard and asked if they ever left their stations to watch the race. They said they did. So I got an idea.

"If we get balloons, write our stories, insert them in the balloons and toss them overboard, the Coast Guards will pick them up and get them to the telegraph,' LeDuc said.

IT SEEMED rather silly at first thought. But it would be a good scheme if it worked.

So off to the race we went. It was simple enough at the start, in Port Huron. We could see the start, head for the telegraph office, and then come back to the race. The big question was what to do on Sunday afternoon when the morning paper had a copy deadline of 5 o'clock. The balloon plan was worth a try. The stories were written on the boat, rolled up, placed in the balloons and tossed overboard, with a wave to the Coast Guard. It was done with a silent prayer.

It worked.

BECAUSE OF the interest the Coast Guard showed, The Stroller didn't miss an edition. That was back in the 1920s, and he was complimented on meeting every schedule.

And in those far-away days, the boats that started on Saturday didn't arrive at the finish line in port until Monday night or some time Tuesday. But thanks to the Coast Guard and LeDuc's idea of balloons, we made a success of a puzzling assign-

Today there is ship-to-shore communication, and some of the radio stations send a man up over the lake in a plane with enough time to get back to his office and go on the air with regular news.

Talk about excitement. We had it in what folks now call "the good old days."

How low will some people go?

HIRTY PIECES of silver, $24 worth of trinkets and $75.20 a

It's said that every person has their price. A walk through the pages of history will bear out that point, time after

I'm not amazed by the mere fact that some people will disregard their values or ethics for a set price. I'm also not amazed that some people will part with priceless possessions for a given figure.

What does amaze me is the low amount for which some people will sell themselves or their holdings - 30 pieces of silver, $24 worth of trinkets and $75.20 a

Years ago, Judas Iscariot set his price at 30 pieces of silver. For that amount he betrayed Christ - the man he had followed and fashioned his life after for

It's recorded in the Bible that Judas, after realizing what he had done, went out and hung himself.

In 1625, a group of American Indians set their price at $24 worth of trinkets. It was for that amount the Indians sold Manhattan Island to Peter Minuit.

Trinkets in hand, the Indians probably left their island home laughing about the dumb white man who bought their island. Today, with Manhattan worth untold millions, the deal doesn't appear as funny.

EQUALLY UNAMUSING is the price for which Plymouth Township residents

- an average of $75.20 a year.

For a mere 20 cents a day savings, Plymouth Township residents have decided to cut government service and stifle economic growth.

Actually, the majority of residents allowed their community's future to be sold for that amount.

Most residents didn't bother to vote in Monday's millage election and their inaction was as effective as the overriding

Residents were asked to authorize up to four mills for general operation. Coupled with a special mill voted for fire, the township would have had a maximum of five mills available for general, police and fire operations.

Even though five mills would have been available, township officials promised to levy only 3.88 mills for 1986 operations (December 1985 tax bill). That was the amount needed to maintain operations at the current level.

With Monday's no vote, township residents have lowered their taxes to two mills for operation. The savings from 3.88 to two mills, for the average township home ($80,000), is $75.20 a year.

The bottom line is voters decided to cut police, fire and other municipal services in order to save 20 cents per day - less than the price of a stamp.

LIKE THE Indians who sold Manhattan, there undoubtedly are those who are

have sold the future of their community laughing about Monday's vote - laughing about how they stuck it to the "white men" of Township Hall.

In their minds, these laughing few have equated their no vote with a statement on the current administration or police department. They will boast of sending a message to Township Hall.

But how can voters take pride in telling young police officers they don't appreciate their dedication, in telling firefighters they don't appreciate the risks they take, or telling all township staff members they don't appreciate the work they do?

If anything, the township is understaffed. Minus the police department, which came on line last month, the town ship has the same number of employees in the late 1970s. Going to 3.88 mills wouldn't have increased the number on

Instead, the no voters have cut their own throats. Less police, less fire, planning for development, less prudent management and less service all around means a less desirable place to live in the Budget freeze fails — 1st time

Here's how area members of Congress were reeorded on major roll call votes from July 18-24.

HOUSE

BUDGET FREEZE - By a vote of 207 for and 219 against, the House rejected an amendment to freeze the fiscal 1986 authorization for clean water programs at the 1985 level of $2.6 billion.

The House went on to approve 1986 spending of more than $4.6 billion under the legislation (HR 8), which was sent to the Senate.

This marked the House's first failure in eight attempts this year to freeze a major 1986 spending bill, giving it an .875 batting average in the budget-cutting venture. Freeze advocates say their approach is necessary because the House is too undisciplined to reduce the deficit through the normal budget process. The bill's chief mission is to provide federal grants to communities for sewage treatment construction. Also, it combats pollution caused by urban and agricultural water runoffs, and seeks to cleanse rivers and lakes of stationary toxic "hot spots," among other provisions. Supporter Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, said, "The nation is looking at us each day, looking at our recorded votes" on federal spending.

Opponent Robert Roe, D-N.J., said the amendment "is not a freeze. This is cutting the program in half. Literally and figuratively in half."

Members voting yes wanted to freeze fiscal 1986 clean water spending at the 1985 level. Voting yes: Pursell, Hertel, Levin, Broomfield. Voting no: William Ford.

PLAYBOY - The House voted 216 for and 193 against to exclude Playboy magazine from a Library of Congress program that reproduces some three dozen magazines in Braille for the benefit of

The vote deleted $103,000 for the Playboy translation from the library's fiscal 1986 budget. It occurred during debate on the 1986 legislative branch appropriatioons bill (HR 2942) that was passed and sent to the Senate.

Sponsor Chalmers Wylie, R-Ohio, said, "Reproducing Playboy in Braille does not have literary merit and is not a good use of the taxpayers' money Opponent Jerry Lewis, R-Calif., said, "We are really talking about censorship here in a very basic WATER STANDARDS - The House rejected, 167 for and 257 against, an amendment exempting up to 40 communities nationwide from federal clean water standards that govern pre-treatment of industrial discharges into public sewage systems.

After selection by the Environmental Protection Agency, each of the municipalities was to have conducted a five-year pilot program to show that locally set pre-treatment standards for industry can be preferable to rigid national standards.

The amendment was offered to the HR 8 (above). Sponsor Arlan Stangeland, R-Minn., said, "Locally developed programs can be every bit as effective as Washington's if not more so."

Opponent Bob Edgar, D-Pa., said the exemption from federal standards could "pit city against city in an effort to attract industries by promising less stringent environmental amendment.

Senators voting no were opposed to giving a president line-item veto power over spending bills. Voting no: Michigan Democrats Carl Levin and Donald Historically, presidents have had to veto all or none of an appropriations bill. Reagan says the "line-item veto" would enable him to better control

Opponents say it would give the executive branch too much power over the legislative branch, and could cause increased spending in cases where a president threatens to veto certain expenditures if lawmakers fail to approve other expenditures.

AMUSEMENT PARKS — By a vote of 52 for and 41 against, the Senate opted for the more lenient of two proposed federal approaches to the issue of amusement park safety.

Senators voting yes were opposed to broadening federal power to enforce amusement park safety. Voting no: Levin, Riegle.

The vote created a commission to conduct an 18month study of whether the federal government should enforce the safety of rides and other attractions or leave the task to state and local authorities.

It killed language giving the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) strong powers to oversee the nation's 500 amusement parks

It occurred during debate on a fiscal 1986 fund-ing bill for the CPSC (S 1077) that was passed and sent to the House.

John Danforth, R-Mo., who sponsored the proposal for an 18-month study, questioned "how ready we in Washington should be to dispatch inspectors from a federal agency throughout the countryside."

Opponent Paul Simon, D-Ill., said, "We need another commission like we need a hole in the head."

U-M prexy seeks new tuition freeze

University of Michigan president Harold T. Shapiro said he will ask the university's board of regents to freeze tuition for the second straight

Shapiro reacted to Gov. James J. Blanchard's threat to veto part of the colleges and universities appropriations bill unless the tuition line is held. Oakland University last week rescinded a tuition increase

"This recommendation is being made, after very careful consideration of its impact, in order to dem-onstrate support for the continuing efforts of Gov. Blanchard and the state Legislature in regaining the ground we have lost in state funding for higher education in Michigan

He praised "the significant increases in state funding for the University of Michigan's general fund budget during the past two years and major new commitments by the state in support of the university's facilities projects."

He also warned that "despite the generous increases in state support over the last two years, we have not yet restored state appropriations for the University of Michigan to previous levels. Such a restoration is essential if we are to maintain this quality and play a re-creative role in our state's future."

Township turns thumbs down on millage

By Gary M. Cates

With a 15-percent turnout, Plymouth Township voters sent an important millage question to defeat Monday.

The request to authorize up to four mills for township operation was defeated by a slightly more than 2-to-1 margin - 1,636 no to 688 yes. Township officials were looking for a yes vote as an indication of support for the

"If we do not have our own police department, it is not cheaper to contract for that service. The loss of the millage has nothing to do with it."

Society speeds up Stone School restoration

staff writer

Plymouth and Canton area residents will be able to experience what it was like to attend a one-room schoolhouse, if the Salem Historical Society completes its goal of refurbishing a historic structure on North Territorial Road at Curtis Road.

The old building, called South Salem Stone School, was built nearly 130 years ago to replace an original oneroom schoolhouse made of logs at the same intersection. The log schoolhouse was built in 1829.

No one knows exactly why the school tion, offered by Plymouth area historian Sam Hudson, was that the school was made of field stones gathered from the surrounding area.

Hudson said he knew of no one named Stone who would have figured in the area's history to the extent that a schoolhouse would have been named after him or her.

The school, which stands on a parcel of land 74 feet by 74 feet, was annexed by the Plymouth-Canton Community School District Sept. 13, 1965, but, because the lot was too small, the parcel was of no future use to the district.

The last class was held in the school in 1967. Class sizes ran 18-35 students.

The district deeded the property over to the Salem Historical Society Dec. 11, 1978, with the stipulation that the society restore the school to its former appearance. If it didn't, the prop-

"We are trying to find people who attended that school, to see if they have photos showing how it looked."

> THE SOCIETY is hoping much of the restoration can be accomplished with the use of donated labor and materials, such as drywall, insulation and interior fixtures.

The schoolhouse has been severely vandalized.

"They broke the 24 panes of glass in each of five windows," said Lyke. "Birds were flying in and out. The grass was head-high. We mowed the lawn and put a metal door on the building so we could close it up.'

Most of the plaster, ceiling tile and lathing has been torn off by society members preliminary to restoration.

Built in 1857, the schoolhouse used kerosene lamps and an outhouse. Later, a cement block extension was constructed to provide restrooms and a tiny lunchroom where meals could be served in 1941.

'The original desks are long gone. But we don't want so many that we can't hold our (society) meetings in the schoolhouse.

"The exterior of the schoolhouse is very good," said Lyke. Members of the society recently "pointed" the stones; that is, they added mortar.

The society, which has 35 members, will hold an auction Oct. 5 to raise funds for the restoration.

Eight of 10 commission candidates were at the forum; Duston and candidate Greg Green did not attend, but for entirely different reasons.

Green had sent a letter to all candidates urging them to stay away from the forum, as a protest against low vo-

Duston was critical of the way commission meetings were run. "They cut

Duston, 36, a machine setter at Ford Motor Co., said, "It would take a damn fool to split the police and fire departments up," when asked if he favored combining them into a single, public safety department.

"Let's keep them the way they are," he said. "They are professional, trained to be what they are. There could not possibly be enough cost savings worth endangering the lives of the citizens.

Money cannot buy a life." Duston said he was running for the office of commissioner "because I want the job.'

Commission takes hard look at Lucas' budget

staff writer

Wayne County Executive William Lucas has proposed a $201-million budget calling for $6 million more money and 200 less jobs.

Lucas blamed property tax losses, reduced federal shared revenue, and labor settlements in the courts for cutting into the proposed 1986 operating budget.

A budget battle seems imminent. The commission is controlled 14-1 by Democrats, and Lucas is a newly declared Republican eyeing higher office. The county's fiscal year begins Dec. 1.

Despite the reduction in employees, Lucas said services would not be affected. Cuts would be made through attrition, he said.

The county payroll was 4,665 fulltime employees as of January. That's down 13 percent from the 5,365 when Lucas took office in 1983.

LUCAS' PRINTED message said his 1986 budget "actually" represents a 9 percent decrease in spending for operations from 1985. Though the total is shown as $200.9 million, only $185.6 million will be used for operations.

He said the $15.3 million difference will be used to pay for such one-time

• $3.4 million for probate court cost-of-living adjustments (COLA).

The proposed budget was met with skepticism from at least one county commissioner, board chairman John Hertel, D-Harper Woods.

Lucas put a "very good face on a very bad situation," said Hertel, who is eyeing the 1986 county executive race.

"I don't place a great deal of accuracy on these figures," he said. "I want to have our auditor general look at them.

HERTEL CRITICIZED Lucas for playing "partisan politics" by downplaying the Reagan Administration's role in reducing revenues to Wayne County and by minimizing help from Michigan's Democratic Gov. James

"Sure, we were uncomfortable and six of our crew (were) down below. So, when you are reduced from nine to three crew members, it is rather tough going. But at no time were we afraid.

Ernie Harwell 'tunes in' to first love

Tiger announcer pens national best seller in first at-bat

By Richard Lech staff writer

Ernie Harwell has made it to baseball's Hall of Fame for his broadcasting prowess.

But it was sportswriting, not sports announcing, that was his first love.

"I really wanted to be a newspaperman," said Harwell, who has been broadcasting Detroit Tiger games on radio for 26 years.

"If I'd have been able to get a job I would have been one. But when I got out of school there were no newspaper job openings. So I got into radio."

HARWELL has put his old sportswriting skills back into use, though, in a new book called "Tuned to Baseball." Now in its second printing, the book is an account of Harwell's experiences in 45 years of broadcasting.

"It's basically about people I have met in baseball," the 67-year-old Farmington Hills resident said. "It's not autobiographical in the sense of I was born here and did this."

Harwell, who comes across as friendly and relaxed in person as he does on the air, visited several local bookstores last week to autograph copies of his book. He appeared Wednesday at the Paper Tiger bookstore in Livonia and Saturday at Waldenbooks in the Westland Shopping Center.

He drew adoring fans, both young and old, for whom Tiger baseball and Ernie Harwell have become almost synonymous.

"I've been listening to Tiger baseball for 60 years," one man said. "I grew up with Ty Tyson, but I'd have to say I like you better."

One woman had Harwell sign a cookbook for her husband because she is "usually in the kitchen when he's listening to you."

"TUNED to Baseball" has chapters on the owners, the managers, the players, the early days of sports broadcasting, the art of conducting interviews and other baseball topics.

Harwell said this is the first full-fledged book he has written, although he has previously written magazine articles, chapters of books and "Tiger Trivia" compilations with Fred Smith.

He said clarity of expression is his goal, whether he's behind the typewiter or the microphone.

"I've never been a guy who admired someone who didn't write clearly. Some writers are supposed to be so great and write these long, complicated sentences that are hard to understand, but to me if you don't understand it, that's missing the first priority."

Harwell was born in 1918 in Washington, Ga., which is about 40 miles from Royston, where another Tiger Hall of Famer, Ty Cobb, was born.

"Ty Cobb was one of my early heroes, and since he's from my home state, I read a lot about him and heard about him. Later on I got to meet him."

AS HARWELL recounts in "Tuned to Baseball," their first meeting came in 1941, when Harwell was just starting out in the broadcasting business. He went to Royston to interview Cobb for WSB radio in Atlanta, but had been forewarned that Cobb was a "bitter, mean old man" who would never talk to him.

"I found out differently," Harwell wrote. . . . he was most cordial. A drink or two had already warmed him up for me. And he talked. The problem was not getting him to start talking, but getting him to stop talking."

Harwell had started working for WSB when his plans for a newspaper career had fizzled. He had worked as correspondent for the Sporting News at age 16 and served as a fill-in employee at the Atlanta Constitution while going to high school and Emory University in Atlanta. But he couldn't find a full-time newspaper job.

"I'd been in speech class at Emory with a fellow who was a program director at WSB," Harwell said. "He knew I was interested in speech and sports, and it was his idea to combine the two."

Harwell made it to the big leagues as a broadcaster in 1948 with the Brooklyn Dodgers. Following stints with the New York Giants and Baltimore Orioles, Harwell joined the Tiger announcing crew in 1960 HARWELL SAID he never tires of the travel involved, even though it means 26 road trips during the regular season.

"Most people hate the travel and that sends them into retirement," Harwell said. "But I have people I know in each town. We go to a town twice each season, and I get to see people I otherwise wouldn't see. I get to visit with them, have some fun, and somebody else pays for it.

"I enjoy living out of a motel, eating in restaurants. I look upon it as an adventure."

He and radio partner Paul Carey could have some unplanned time off if the players go on strike this season. A strike might turn off the fans temporarily, but not for long, Harwell said.

"When I think of what happened before," he said, referring to the 1981 baseball strike, "the fans get a little bit disgusted at first and say they won't come back. But when the pennant race gets hot, they come back. It's forgotten."

HE IS AGAINST the plan to play all of this year's World Series games at night, saying it is a "strictly commercial" move to accommodate television sponsors.

As he does every year, he will be covering the American League playoffs for CBS radio this fall. He favors this year's expansion of the divisional playoffs to seven games.

"I like that because I get paid by the game," he said with a smile. "In 1963 I did my first World Series — and it went only four games."

Harwell and his wife, Lulu, have been married for 44 years. She wrote his book's introduction, where she points out that baseball is only one side of Ernie Harwell.

He also is a songwriter who has had 46 of his songs recorded, by such artists as B.J. Thomas, Mitch Ryder and Homer and Jethro. And he is an inventor, holding a U.S. patent on a bottle-can opener and having invented a World Series Fact Wheel.

"Ernie's idea of a roaring good time is relaxing at home with a few close friends and family," Lulu Harwell wrote.

Family includes sons Bill and Gray and seven granchildren. Bill is an insurance salesman in Farmington Hills; Gray runs a Christian ministry called Family Restoration in Fort Mill, S.C.

DEVOUTLY RELIGIOUS himself, Harwell has spoken to the baseball chapels of various major league teams and devoted a chapter of his book to the chapel movement. He sees the informal clubhouse worship services as a way of changing lives.

"Tiger pitcher Frank Tanana is a good example. He just won the Danny Thompson Award for the fellow showing the best Christian attitude. In the past, he always was sort of wild and didn't know what direction he was going in, and he changed because of the chapel."

Although Harwell is still going strong behind the microphone, he knows one day he'll have to retire from the broadcast booth.

"I foresee it, but I don't look forward to it. As long as I'm healthy and as long as they want me I'm going to keep working. I've been blessed by the Lord with good health, and you have everything when you have that.

"When it gets to the point where I can't do it, I don't want to hang around. But it's a great blessing to have your health and have a job that you really enjoy."

Detroit Tiger Announcer Ernie Harwell's book "Tuned to Baseball" is to bookstores what the 1984 season was to the World Champion Bengals. It's become a national best seller.

'What's been fun is being able to see these people one-to-one. There are people I've talked to but who've never seen me. It's gratifying to me, because they can come up and say hello and we can have a little bit of a conversation and sign a book in the meantime,' says Ernie Harwell.

By M.B. Dillon Ward staff writer

If the closest you've even gotten to major league baseball is a Tiger Stadium box seat and that's not close enough, you'll devour "Tuned to Baseball" by Ernie Harwell.

In his own readable way, the Detroit Tiger announcer guides a thoroughly entertaining, personalized tour through baseball history.

You'll laugh at Mark 'the Bird' Fidrych telling his teammates after Mickey Stanley is picked off third ("All right team, now let's capitalize on that!"); gain insights into the quirks and faux pas of colortul players, managers, umpires and broadcasters, and relive the feats of Ty Cobb, Bobby Thomson and Willie Mays. You'll be sorry it ends, yet glad to be in on some of the most humorous and memorable moments only a lifelong lover of base-ball could recount. ("Lifelong" isn't stretching it. Ernie first tuned in to the sport at age 8, listening to the 1926 World Series on a crystal set in the basement of his parents' Atlanta

"Writing the book was always in the back of my mind. I'd been procrastinating, mainly," said Harwell from his Tiger Stadium office Tuesday. "Right after the (last) World Series, I just sat down at the old typewriter and kept going. I didn't want to write anything much that I had to look up. I didn't want to write a lot of play-by-play, detail or a lot of statistics. I wanted to sound as human as I could and offer little insights people might not get otherwise. I wanted to let them see through my eyes.

"I just kept hacking away in my little study on my Underwood manual typewriter," added the Baseball Hall of Famer who completed his national bestseller the first week of December.

FOLKS YET to meet Harwell who suspect he's a pretty nice guy are convinced of it by the time they finish his 221-page hardcover. The vignettes he spins in a conversational style are akin to tales he might tell a golf partner while sauntering down a fairway.

The broadcaster, who aspired to be a pro baseball player and a newspaper writer, shares nuggets of knowledge related to him during morning walks by "that silver-gray mop and that rugged wrinkled face," Detroit Tiger Manager Sparky Anderson.

review

"Most of all I learned that Sparky Anderson is a master psychologist," writes Harwell. "He had to light a fire under some of the Tigers (in 1984). He had to stroke others. Sometimes he goaded them, sometimes cajoled and sometimes babied them. . . He's the best of all the managers I have known. Not only because of that great record, but because he is an outstanding human being."

Mostly, Ernie entertains the reader. He takes you to Memorial Stadium for the Baltimore-Cincinnati 1970 World Series; has you eyeball-to-eyeball with a livid Leo Durocher; cringing in a broadcast booth wracked with technical difficulties as they tape and re-taping a Nellie Fox interview; and pouring over pictures of a toothpick-wide Ted Williams; nattily-attired Ty Cobb and baseball patriarch Connie Mack.

He recalls 19-game losing streaks and introduces you to one-time Tiger President Bill DeWitt, also "known as 'Old Bubble Eyes' because some felt that he looked like a fat frog within a business suit."

You're sitting with Harwell in a hotel lobby at annual winter baseball meetings where "three potted plants will die from smoke inhalation and alcohol poisoning" and at sports banquets, dining on "cardboard beef or rubber chicken, bullet peas, and brick ice cream."

In the Tigers', Giants', and Dodgers' clubhouses, you're given a taste of Baseball Chapel and how it's turned guys' lives around. You meet the sleep-walking Atlanta Cracker pitcher Van Lingle Mungo under his bed. You'll be at Clint "Scrap Iron" Courtney's funeral after he ironically dies of a heart attack sustained while playing ping pong. You're on the Tigers' team bus in downtown Chicago hearing the players talk about the art institute's King Tut exhibit when the Bird asks, "King Tut. What's that, a new rock group?" You'll hear about the bean ball baptisms of Gates Brown, Willie Horton tisms of Gates Brown, Willie Horton and Don Wert, the illicit exploits of Babe Ruth, and the Achilles heels of baseball's hellions. Read his book, and you'll see

Read his book, and you'll see Harwell is worth much more than the "$25 per game and all the Wheaties I could eat" he once earned.

THE ODD twist to Monday's results was the absentee vote. Unlike the precinct voters, absentee voters narrowly defeated the millage proposal - 293 no to 243 yes.

Neither Breen or Clerk Esther Hulsing could offer explanations for why the absentee vote was closer than the precinct vote. Both expected the strong no vote to come from the absentee vot-

Absentee ballots traditionally represent the senior citizen vote as older residents are permitted to vote by absentee ballot regardless of where they will be on election day.

Breen did mail a letter explaining the millage proposal to everyone who requested an absentee ballot.

"I would like to go back to the old fashioned idea of the board of trustees going to line-entry budgeting," he said, adding that department heads would be tied to the amount the board authorizes for each line item.

Another board member who has expressed "distrust" of the administration, according to Breen, is Treasurer Mary Brooks.

Brooks publicly has critized the administration for not providing board members with a list of bills each month, even though the treasurer is responsible for paying the bills.

'I don't know what the next step would be," Brooks said Tuesday. "I guess we could go back and ask for a ballot question written differently."

WHERE DOES Brooks believe the cuts should be made if there isn't another election?

"It would be very difficult to make any cuts in the treasurer's office," she

"I guess we should talk with the department heads and look at the budget for the forthcoming year," Brooks said.

'We should ask people to take a reduction in salary that are making the high dollars."

Which people, in Brooks' estimation, are making the top dollars?

There are some personnel, some people making top dollars for secretarial and clerical duties," she said.

"We should take each thing step by step and see where we are."

According to Breen, making cuts will be difficult because the $700,000 shortfall is equal to the largest departmental item in the general fund - the fire department.

"The board will have to make the decisions and I, personally, am looking to the element on the board which didn't support the millage to provide some of the answers," he said.

Police have strange week

By Dennis Coffman

THE WAITING IS OVER!

staff writer

Plymouth police might well ask themselves if there has been a full moon in the city, after a week of strange happenings. On Sunday, for example, a man shot himself with his own gun. Michael Richard Kar, 23, of Plymouth told police his handgun fell out of his pocket, hit the ground and discharged one bullet. The bullet, fired from a derringer 9mm two-shot, hit him in the right forearm. He was treated by the Plymouth Fire Department and taken to St. Mary Hospital, Livonia.

On Saturday, the city may have had its first "seat belt" accident.

A woman, wearing her seat belt as required by the new Michigan law, was trying to adjust the belt and did not see a vehicle driven by another woman pulling out of a parking space at William and Arthur Streets.

Her car struck the other car because she apparently was distracted as she was adjusting her belt, or so she told police.

ON FRIDAY, a woman whose car was standing on the C&O Railroad tracks at the crossing on South Mill Street observed the crossing gates descending upon her car.

As the gate came down, she backed up her vehicle to avoid the gate - and struck another car be-

behind it, damaging the left front quarter panel.

At least that's what the driver claimed.

GOP unhappy with comp plan

By Tim Richard staff writer

A backlog of workers compensation appeals should be speeded up by a compromise bill which sailed through the Michigan Legislature Tuesday, but some Republicans say it fails to constitute reform.

"It's fluff - a charade," said state Rep. Gordon Sparks, R-Troy, the only area lawmaker to vote against the lengthy and complex bill (see outline on

The Senate's overwhelming 27-4 vote, after an hour of caucuses and debate, and the House's 78-16 vote, which took a bare two minutes, obscured the fact that there were many hard feelings on the issue.

Gov. James J. Blanchard said the bill would "streamline procedures," saving business money. He pledged to sign it promptly.

SPARKS VOTED no to protest the Legislature's failure to change the definition of disability.

"The current Michigan definition is that if you can't do an identical job, you're disabled. In 37 or 38 other states, they say you're disabled only if you can't do the job or aren't trained for a comparable job.

"Workers comp in Michigan costs three times as much as it does in Tennessee," the second-term lawmaker said, referring to this week's announcement that General Motors will build its futuristic Saturn auto plant in the hills ington, who was absent, and Sparks. of the Volunteer State.

Lawmakers intend to address the touchy question, which divides labor and management, after the 1986 election, but that wasn't soon enough for

"I protested. We hear all the time in Lansing, 'It's time to bite the bullet and vote for something you don't like.' Well, I decided to draw the line today," he said in an interview after the session.

THE MORE conventional view was expressed by Sen. Doug Cruce, R-Troy, who wrote the original bill that was subject of a lengthy conference committee review. "I applaud the compromise," the vice chairman of the Senate Labor Committee said on the Senate

"There were numerous hours of work. I know the turmoil Sen. DeGrow went through," he said, praising the work of Sen. Dan DeGrow, R-Port Huron, who chaired the joint House-Senate conference committee. "He took my place with my blessing. I applaud his work."

DeGrow summed up the compromise with this question: "The issue is, are we better off with this bill than without

All area senators supported the bill except R. Robert Geake, R-Northville, who was absent.

All area representatives backed it, too, except W.V. Brotherton, R-Farm-

SEN. BASIL Brown, D-Highland Park, raised a procedural objection to the entire special one-day session. Brown argued that Senate rules require a leadership committee to call the ses-

"The committee didn't follow the Open Meetings Act in calling the session. There never was a meeting," said Brown, who charged that Senate Majority Leader John Engler simply polled the members by telephone.

Engler, R-Mt. Pleasant, scoffed, "If Sen. Brown's right, then we're not Lt. Gov. Martha Griffiths, presiding officer in the Senate, upheld Engler, saying, "The Senate is legitimately in sure to be a court issue - taking civilservice status away from hearing referees and replacing them with 30 magistrates appointed by the governor.

Instead, Republican senators used the session to blister Democrat Blanchard on the eligibility-definition issue, suggesting Michigan's liberal definition was costing the state jobs.

This is a fraction of a step in the right direction," said Sen. Norman Shinkle, R-Lambertville. "The issue is to redefine eligibility as not an identical job but a comparable job." The freshman Monroe County senator charged Blanchard with "lack of lead-influence of organized labor."

"The issue is the business climate," said Sen. Richard Poshumus, R-Lowell. "Look at what's happened with Saturn, Goodyear, Stroh's. In my district, the manager of the Red Flannel factory at Cedar Springs received a letter from Indiana which listed the cost savings of moving two hours south. The most significant cost factor was workers com-

"This bill deals with the cuts and bruises, but doesn't deal with the hemorrhages," Posthumus said.

"Congratulations, Tennessee, on your new Saturn plant," said a bitter Sen. Nick Smith, R-Hillsdale County.

REPLIED DEMOCRAT Lana Pollack of Ann Arbor:

"The truth is that businesses are THERE WAS no debate over what is leaving Michigan at about the same rate as they're leaving Indiana.

"The truth is that capital chases opportunity, and a lot of it is being chased

"This nonsense about Indiana being a mecca for opportunity is just that.

"The truth is that workers compensation is not the biggest cost (after wages). Health care is - by about 10 to Added Sen. Joe Conroy, D-Flint: "This state has produced 300,000 new jobs in the last two years. The issue is the 6,000 or 8,000 cases that need to be

How workers comp is changed

Senate Bill 7, as approved Tuesday by the Michigan Legislature, is aimed at speeding up workers compensation appeals procedures. The bill takes effect as soon as Gov. James Blanchard signs it. Here are major provisions, as outlined by the House Legislative Analysis Section:

- The present act expired June 30. SB 7 postpones the expiration date to Jan. 1, 1987, meaning the Legislature must readdress the issue before the end
- The present act sets up a system of civil service hearing referees. SB 7 abolishes their jobs as of March 31, 1987, and replaces them with 30 magistrates, an autonomous unit within the Department of Labor. Magistrates must be members of the State Bar and small claims.) are limited to 12 years service. A chairperson would assign cases, schedule work and establish productivity fessional arbitrators. standards.

- Appeals Board has 15 members representing labor, management and the public. SB 7 sets up a new seven-member appeals board, all representing the public. Appeals would be assigned to panels of two members (rather than the present three).
- some claims.
- SB 7 creates a small claims division for cases involving $2,000 or less. No attorneys would be used. The magistrate's decision would be final. (An estimated 15-25 percent of cases are

Journalist chief dies of cancer

Lawrence A. Laurain, city editor of the Oakland Press in Pontiac and president of the Detroit chapter of the Society of Professional Journalists, died of cancer Thursday in St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Pontiac. He was 36.

Mr. Laurain had held positions at three suburban dailies, three weeklies and the United Press International in his 17 years in the newspaper business.

He entered the hospital for surgery in June after an eight-month battle with cancer. He was elected to head the Detroit journalists society, a group he had long served as a member and officer, last spring. He was also a member of the Detroit Press

Experience key to commission choice

HIS TUESDAY City of Plymouth residents will be going to the polls to vote for four candidates for the Plymouth City Commis-

The top eight vote-getters of Tuesday's primary will then square off in November for four city commission seats.

Of the four seats, only one is held by an incumbent (the one occupied by William Robinson). Incumbents Jack Kenyon, Ron Loiselle and Dave Pugh are barred by city charter from running again as they have served their two successive terms.

Commissioner Mary Ellen McKercher recently resigned which means the commission must appoint a person to fill that seat. That leaves Mary Childs and Bud Martin as the remaining commission

WHEN RESIDENTS go the polls Tuesday, they actually will be able to vote for only four candidates. On the ballot will appear these 10 names:

Anthony Anason, William Bingley, Lloyd Duston, Karl Gansler II, Gregory Green, Robert Jones, Don Keller, Robert Kroeger, Jean Morrow, and William Robinson

Out of this field of 10, at least six are worthy of serious consideration by voters.

• Robinson: An incumbent who has demonstrated he has the ability to be a contributing member on the Plymouth City Commission. Robinson, active in civic affairs as a Kiwanian, has a previous record of service on the Municipal Housing Commission. Schooled in finances and accounting, his methodical, probing mind has been an asset on the commission.

· Gansler: A former city commissioner, Gansler stepped aside from city government service at a time when his business was growing and needed more attention. During that absence, however, he has kept in touch and is well informed on the issues facing the city.

A former Jaycee, he is active in Plymouth Rotary and on the retail committee of the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce. Also a clear thinker, although sometimes too opinionated.

• Green: Never elected, Green has run for city commission unsuccessiumy in the past and learned from each experience. He returns as a serious candidate informed of city problems and opportunities. Green has served on the planning commission and is an articulate spokesman for Old Village, particularly for those who believe that area should be preserved as a blend of residential and commercial

• Jones: A relative newcomer compared to Gansler, Robinson and Green, Jones nevertheless has made himself a viable candidate. First Jones began attending commission meetings on a regular basis, asking questions to find out what was happening and why.

He then began to search for answers on his own. Jones' interest resulted in his appointment to the planning commission where his knowledge of the functioning of local government expanded. He may be the best of the bunch.

• Keller: The key element in recommending Keller is leadership. Keller has served his tenure as president of the Plymouth Jaycees, where he developed leadership skills. He then got to put them into practice on the planning commission, which he now serves as chairman. Young and outspoken, Keller offers some variety to the more staid personalities of a Robinson or Jones.

· Bingley: A newcomer to local politics, Bingley has the advantage of being a longtime resident of the Plymouth-Northville community with a long record of involvement in Northville government. Born in Plymouth, he has lived here for some 15-17 years.

While living in Northville, Bingley served on the Zoning Board of Appeals for 21 years - 14 as chairman. He was on Northville's recreation commission for seven years and the Housing Board of Appeals for five years. That kind of experience would be an asset to the Plymouth City Commission which is undergoing turnover.

The Plymouth Observer will continue to evaluate the candidates as it prepares to endorse four candidates for the city commission in the upcoming general election in November. To aid residents in voting in Tuesday's run-off we can with comfort recommend the candidacies of Karl Gansler II, William Robinson, Robert Jones, Gregory Green, William Bingley and Don

We hope city residents will exercise their franchise Tuesday and vote for whom they believe to be the four best qualified to represent all interests in the

Old-time newsmen ballooned the story

MANY YOUNG folks just leaving school and preparing to start a career turn to journalism because of the excite-

"Just imagine," one of the young fellows said the other day, "be on hand at big fires, courtroom scenes. And if you're in the sports department, you can see many of the big events without paying admission."

That's the picture they have. But interesting and exciting as journalism is today, it doesn't compare with the old days before radio, television and other means of communication.

The Stroller had to smile when the young lad spoke, for his memory took him back to the days when he was assigned to cover the Port Huron to Mackinac sailing

WHEN HE was told to cover the big race, the first thing The Stroller thought about was how to get his reports to the paper to meet the edition schedule.

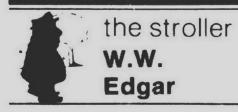

"You will have to figure that out yourself," the sports editor said, with a halfsmile. "So let's see what kind of a plan you'll come up with."

It wasn't easy, and there were days of study of just what could be done.

The Stroller checked everything he could think of, but there was no way to get the stories from the middle of the lake to the newspaper office on time.

Then a good friend and rival, the late Harry LeDuc of the Detroit News, discovered an answer. "I called the Coast Guard and asked if they ever left their stations to watch the race. They said they did. So I got an idea.

"If we get balloons, write our stories, insert them in the balloons and toss them overboard, the Coast Guards will pick them up and get them to the telegraph," LeDuc said.

IT SEEMED rather silly at first thought. But it would be a good scheme if it worked.

So off to the race we went. It was simple enough at the start, in Port Huron. We could see the start, head for the telegraph office, and then come back to the race.

The big question was what to do on Sunday afternoon when the morning paper had a copy deadline of 5 o'clock.

The balloon plan was worth a try. The stories were written on the boat, rolled up, placed in the balloons and tossed overboard, with a wave to the Coast Guard. It was done with a silent prayer.

It worked.

BECAUSE OF the interest the Coast Guard showed, The Stroller didn't miss an edition. That was back in the 1920s, and he was complimented on meeting every schedule.

And in those far-away days, the boats that started on Saturday didn't arrive at the finish line in port until Monday night or some time Tuesday. But thanks to the Coast Guard and LeDuc's idea of balloons. we made a success of a puzzling assign-

Today there is ship-to-shore communication, and some of the radio stations send a man up over the lake in a plane with enough time to get back to his office and go on the air with regular news.

Talk about excitement. We had it in what folks now call "the good old days."

" THE PRESENCE "

Trash returns to haunt us

WE'VE COME to be known as the disposable society.

No longer do we hang on to our possessions, much less our parents' or grandparents.' We've swallowed the Madison Avenue credo that new is better. And if it's cheap enough that we can throw it away after a few uses only to buy another when the need arises, all the better.

Business has responded to our whims by offering disposable razors and butane lighters: cameras, flashlights and watches that are useless once the non-replaceable battery dies. We have escaped the trap of our possessions by disposing of them.

THE MENTION of hazardous waste conjures images of giant chemical companies, Love Canal or New Jersey. We don't associate hazardous waste with ourselves, Swartz Creek or Michigan.

We don't know to be concerned about what happens to the mercury in a dead battery or the butane residue in a cigarette lighter or a few drops of lye left in the aerosol can of oven cleaner or the toxic PCBs in an old television.

Landfills were the panacea for our waste. We took them for granted because until recently we've always had enough land where nobody lived. We didn't know then we were poisoning our land and our water. But even if we did know, we probably wouldn't have cared. After all, nobody was living there.

But yesterday's hinterlands are becoming today's suburbs, and all of a sudden we have people fighting landfill expansion. We haven't stopped producing waste; we just don't want it piled in our back yards.

Americans have disposed of an estimated six billion tons of hazardous waste since 1950. In 1981, the 264 million metric tons regulated by the U.S. Environmental Protection Society would have filled 1,500 New Orleans Superdomes, according to National Geographic Society.

It notes that the buildup of waste has steadily increased our exposure to chemicals that can cause cancer, birth defects, miscarriages, nervous disorders, blood diseases and damage to liver, kidneys or

WE CAN TAKE small comfort in the fact that the EPA has designated or proposed 786 waste sites for a cleanup list when the congressional Office of Technology Assessment estimates that 10,000 or more dumps will end up on the list at an eventual cleanup cost of more than $100

It may be odd to think that the problem of waste disposal should be blamed on ordinary citizens when we consider the amount of pollution that our industries spew. But the attitude of buying a consumer good today only to dispose of it tomorrow reflects the attitude that got us into this mess in the first place.

Perhaps if we had been more diligent about reducing household waste, we would have held industry accountable for proper disposal of its own. Maybe we would have stunted the manufacture of throwaway items, and legislation like the bottle bill would have been passed years ago in eve-

To paraphrase an old axiom, save the land; they aren't making it anymore.

How low will some people go?

HIRTY PIECES of silver, $24 worth of trinkets and $75.20 a

It's said that every person has their price. A walk through the pages of history will bear out that point, time after

I'm not amazed by the mere fact that some people will disregard their values or ethics for a set price. I'm also not amazed that some people will part with priceless possessions for a given figure.

What does amaze me is the low amount for which some people will sell themselves or their holdings — 30 pieces of silver, $24 worth of trinkets and $75.20 a

Years ago, Judas Iscariot set his price at 30 pieces of silver. For that amount he betrayed Christ - the man he had followed and fashioned his life after for

It's recorded in the Bible that Judas, after realizing what he had done, went out and hung himself.

In 1625, a group of American Indians set their price at $24 worth of trinkets. It was for that amount the Indians sold Manhattan Island to Peter Minuit.

Trinkets in hand, the Indians probably left their island home laughing about the dumb white man who bought their island. Today, with Manhattan worth untold millions, the deal doesn't appear as funny.

EQUALLY UNAMUSING is the price for which Plymouth Township residents

- an average of $75.20 a year.

For a mere 20 cents a day savings, Plymouth Township residents have decided to cut government service and stifle economic growth.

Actually, the majority of residents allowed their community's future to be sold for that amount.

Most residents didn't bother to vote in Monday's millage election and their inaction was as effective as the overriding "no" votes.

Residents were asked to authorize up to four mills for general operation. Coupled with a special mill voted for fire, the township would have had a maximum of five mills available for general, police and fire operations.

Even though five mills would have been available, township officials promised to levy only 3.88 mills for 1986 operations (December 1985 tax bill). That was the amount needed to maintain operations at the current level.

With Monday's no vote, township residents have lowered their taxes to two mills for operation. The savings from 3.88 to two mills, for the average township home ($80,000), is $75.20 a year.

The bottom line is voters decided to cut police, fire and other municipal services in order to save 20 cents per day — less than the price of a stamp. LIKE THE Indians who sold Manhattan, there undoubtedly are those who are

have sold the future of their community laughing about Monday's vote - laughing about how they stuck it to the "white men" of Township Hall.

In their minds, these laughing few have equated their no vote with a statement on the current administration or police department. They will boast of sending a message to Township Hall.

But how can voters take pride in telling young police officers they don't appreciate their dedication, in telling firefighters they don't appreciate the risks they take or telling all township staff members they don't appreciate the work they do?

If anything, the township is under staffed. Minus the police department which came on line last month, the township has the same number of employees as in the late 1970s. Going to 3.88 miles wouldn't have increased the number pin payroll.

Instead, the no voters have cut their own throats. Less police, less fire, f planning for development, less pruder management and less service all around means a less desirable place to live in the

The results of this action will surface down the road as development slows, I surance rates increase and property va ues fail to keep pace.

Township voters have opted for up front savings at the expense of long-term goals. The message may have been a but the postage is due.

BUDGET FREEZE - By a vote of 207 for and 219 against, the House rejected an amendment to freeze the fiscal 1986 authorization for clean water programs at the 1985 level of $2.6 billion.

The House went on to approve 1986 spending of more than $4.6 billion under the legislation (HR 8), which was sent to the Senate.

This marked the House's first failure in eight attempts this year to freeze a major 1986 spending bill, giving it an .875 batting average in the budget-cutting venture. Freeze advocates say their approach is necessary because the House is too undisciplined to reduce the deficit through the normal budget process. The bill's chief mission is to provide federal grants to communities for sewage treatment construction. Also, it combats pollution caused by urban and agricultural water runoffs, and seeks to cleanse rivers and lakes of stationary toxic "hot spots," among other provisions. Supporter Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, said, "The nation is looking at us each day, looking at our recorded votes" on federal spending.

Opponent Robert Roe, D-N.J., said the amendment "is not a freeze. This is cutting the program in half. Literally and figuratively in half.'

Members voting yes wanted to freeze fiscal 1986 clean water spending at the 1985 level. Voting yes: Pursell, Hertel, Levin, Broomfield. Voting no: William Ford.

PLAYBOY - The House voted 216 for and 193 against to exclude Playboy magazine from a Library of Congress program that reproduces some three dozen magazines in Braille for the benefit of

The vote deleted $103,000 for the Playboy translation from the library's fiscal 1986 budget. It occurred during debate on the 1986 legislative branch appropriatioons bill (HR 2942) that was passed and sent to the Senate. Sponsor Chalmers Wylie, R-Ohio, said, "Reproducing Playboy in Braille does not have literary merit and is not a good use of the taxpayers' money Opponent Bob Edgar, D-Pa., said the exemption from federal standards could "pit city against city in an effort to attract industries by promising less stringent environmental amendment. Voting no: Pursell, Hertel, Ford, Levin, Broom-as Washington's if not more so."

FILIBUSTER - By a vote of 58 for and 40 against, the Senate failed to achieve the three-fifths majority needed to end a filibuster against legislation giving a president power to veto only part of a spending measure.

SENATE

President Reagan had personally lobbied senators in search of the 60 votes required to bring the measure to the floor.

Senators voting no were opposed to giving a president line-item veto power over spending bills. Voting no: Michigan Democrats Carl Levin and Donald

Historically, presidents have had to veto all or none of an appropriations bill. Reagan says the "line-item veto" would enable him to better control

Opponents say it would give the executive branch too much power over the legislative branch, and could cause increased spending in cases where a president threatens to veto certain expenditures if lawmakers fail to approve other expenditures.

AMUSEMENT PARKS - By a vote of 52 for and 41 against, the Senate opted for the more lenient of two proposed federal approaches to the issue of amusement park safety.

Senators voting yes were opposed to broadening federal power to enforce amusement park safety. Voting no: Levin, Riegle.

The vote created a commission to conduct an 18month study of whether the federal government should enforce the safety of rides and other attrac-tions or leave the task to state and local authorities.

It killed language giving the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) strong powers to oversee the nation's 500 amusement parks.

It occurred during debate on a fiscal 1986 funding bill for the CPSC (S 1077) that was passed and sent to the House.

John Danforth, R-Mo., who sponsored the proposal for an 18-month study, questioned "how ready we in Washington should be to dispatch inspectors from a federal agency throughout the countryside."

Opponent Paul Simon, D-Ill., said, "We need another commission like we need a hole in the head."

U-M prexy seeks new tuition freeze

University of Michigan president Harold T. Shapiro said he will ask the university's board of regents to freeze tuition for the second straight

Shapiro reacted to Gov. James J. Blanchard's threat to veto part of the colleges and universities appropriations bill unless the tuition line is held. Oakland University last week rescinded a tuition increase.

"This recommendation is being made, after very careful consideration of its impact, in order to demonstrate support for the continuing efforts of Gov. Blanchard and the state Legislature in regaining the ground we have lost in state funding for higher education in Michigan

during the past 25 years," Shapiro

He praised "the significant increases in state funding for the University of Michigan's general fund budget during the past two years and major new commitments by the state in support of the university's facilities projects."

He also warned that "despite the generous increases in state support over the last two years, we have not yet restored state appropriations for the University of Michigan to previous levels. Such a restoration is essential if we are to maintain this quality and play a re-creative role in our state's future."

GLORIA HOPFNER is back home in Plymouth Township after a monthlong tour of Europe. This time, the well-traveled Gloria flew to London, crossed over to the continent and headed east by bus through Belgium, the Netherlands. Germany and Poland to Russia. After a week in Russia she returned to London via Finland, Sweden and Denmark.

The week in Russia was a highlight of the trip for Gloria.

They tried to buy the clothes off our backs, especially jeans, men's shoes and watches," she said.

They spent three days in Moscow and as no special entertainment was planned for the first evening, they went for a walk after dinner. Gloria said she was glad they did because at 9:30 there were many people out walking and "that's when we met the young people with the exchanges.'

It seems all the Russian cities had special lapel pins made to commemorate the 40th anniversary of the "victory over Fascism." A young person would approach the tourists, give them a lapel pin, and say, "Present." Then they would say, "Exchange - gum, pen, lighter?" The visitors collected lapel pin souvenirs in exchange for gum or ballpoint pens.

IN MOSCOW, they went to the circus one night and to a Verdi opera at the Pushkin Theater another night. After the opera they snacked on apple juice and mounds of caviar on rounds of pumpernickel bread.

Three meals a day were included in the Russian tour. Breakfast in Moscow included sliced cold sausage, French and pumpernickel bread, boiled eggs, tea, coffee and cucumbers.

"We had a lot of cucumbers and roast pork in Russia," she said. Breakfast in Minsk was rye bread, sliced cheese, plum jam, an omelet with ham and coffee or tea. "We had tomato juice one morning

For lunch in Smolensk they had sliced tomatoes and green onions, salad dressing, sour rye bread, vegetable beef soup in enormous cups, beer, sliced beef and rice, lettuce and sliced pickles with a charlotte rousse for dessert. A dinner in Moscow included beer, tomato and cucumber with salad dressing, beef chunks and kasha (like rice), huge shortbread cookies topped with slivered almonds (thick and about as big a a saucer), a flaky pastry and Turkish coffee served demitasse

THEY ATTENDED a Balalaika Folklore evening in Leningrad.

'The meal lasted for three hours with beverages, entertainment, music, song and dance. The costumes were colorful. Each guest was given a split of champagne, 500 cc of vodka plus red wine. I gave mine away and stuck with the lemonade and Pepsi."

Gloria noted the menu in her journal: liver pate, roast pork and gravy, beets, tomato and cucumber salad, sturgeon, bread, caviar, potato pancakes topped with sour cream, beef and potato soup served in a large pottery crock.

While in Leningrad they toured the Hermitage. "We couldn't take our handbags and raincoats into the museum because of sabotage. Someone had thrown acid on a Rembrandt."

Gloria said they ate well and usually large amounts because it could be six to eight hours before the next meal.

USUALLY THEY dined in hotels with white tablecloths and sometimes fresh flowers on the Ice cream social is Sunday at Manor

Tonquish Creek Manor will celebrate its 15th birthday from 2-5 p.m. Sunday Aug. 11 with an ice cream social. The party in the garden room of the manor is open to all area senior citizens and their guests.

Admission is 50 cents and tickets may be purchased in advance at the manor or in the office the day of the party. Guests must be accompanied by senior citizen to attend.

The Plymouth Rotary Club and the Plymouth Housing Commission are cosponsoring the celebration.

Tonquish Creek Manor is a joint etfort of the city of Plymouth and the Department of Housing and Urban Development. It provides 108 units of subsidized housing for men and women over

WHEN IT WAS built 15 years ago, there were 60 units. The extra 48 units were added in 1981.

The manor backs up to the meandering Tonquish Creek and its landscaped grounds and colonial facade reflect the gracious living of its residents.

Each apartment features a full bath and shower with a vanity and emergency pull-cord system. Each has individually controlled heat, master television antenna and cable TV hook-up, kitchen appliances, and ample kitchen cupboard space Each has a living room, bedroom, kitchen and closets.

THERE ARE TWO apartments designed for the fully handicapped and five for semi-handicapped seniors.

Those who drive have assigned parking spaces for their cars. Those who do not drive may be transported by the manor van for medical appointments, grocery or clothing shopping or to K mart. The van operates within the boundaries of the city and Plymouth Township.

The nutrition program at the manor is for all seniors 62 years of age and over in the Plymouth area. A hot nutritious meal is served Monday through Friday and charge is by donation. Homebound seniors may have the meal delivered by van by calling 453-9703 at least a day in advance. Non-residents also are asked to make reservations by calling the same number.

Fun for all ages at Newcomers' family picnic

Look, over in the park. Is it a fundraiser? Is it a project planning session? No! It's the Canton Newcomers picnic. Right, the third annual family picnic at Independence Lake Park in Washtenaw

For one lovely afternoon, they didn't make one speech, plan one project, or even try to coerce anyone to join a committee. Instead, they played games, ate a picnic lunch, and in general had fun, fun, fun.

The party was open to members and prospective members alike and well supported by our neighborhood stores and businesses. There was plenty to do free style as well as organized games. The day began at 7:45 a.m. when the first crew was on duty to grab a good

This important task was handled by the organizer of the bash, Sharleen Immonen and her trusty sidekick, Dale, followed immediately by Newcomers president, Ann Colwell, and her constant companion, Bill.

Slowly but surely, the rest of the ready-for-a-party crowd arrived.

REGINA AND Paul Adams, Nancy and Jim Worthley, Sharon and Chet Szgiel, Carleen and Ray Vanderbok, Nancy and Mike Anderson, Karen Wilson, Kathy and Bob Mei, Kathy and Ray Brown, Arlene and John Caron, Jean and Ken Hedden, Carol and Bill Bollman, Marge and John Mogelnicki, Karen and Ted Leas, Elaine and Terry Savola, Lynn and Jack Walterschied and Diana and John Oatley. They all arrived, not necessarily in that order. Once the group was assembled, it was on to the games.

First was a little something for the youngest set, ages 1-5. This was a beanbag toss with the clown's face crafted by the clever hands of Dale Immonen. Lindsey Morris out-tossed all contenders to take first prize and win a Big Boy Bank donated by the Canton Big Boy Restaurant. The Morris family was there as prospective Newcomers.

AS THE AGE of the children increased, so did the difficulty of the game. The 6-10 age group had to perform the ancient ritual of running down a field to a pile of shoes, finding theirs, putting them on, and running back. Paulette Adams proved a worthy adversary. She ran away with first prize, a two-liter bottle of pop donatec by the Country Deli and Wine Shop.

Now on to big trouble - the 11- to 16-year-olds. For this group, it must not only be fun, but somewhat destructive, without being damaging. They are, after all, a rowdy but more sophis ticated age group. What would be more fitting than a good old-fashioned water balloon fight.

So it was splish-splash and everyone had a bath as Candi Colwell and Rosanne Mogelnicki proved to be the winning team with the magic gentle touch Each received a two-liter bottle of por from Country Deli and Wine Shop.

SOON CAME THE time for the youknow-who's turn to get into trouble excuse me, have some fun.

That's right, the moms and dads must now demonstrate their well-tuned skills at tossing a wee balloon, filled with a wee bit of water. This went or until almost everyone had their Sunday bath without paying the high price of Canton water.

When all was said and thrown, it was just Paul and Regina Adams left ir need of their Sunday bath. But it was not a bad trade. For the cost of their Canton water bath, they received a beautiful bottle of wine, donated by the Country Deli and Wine shop. Not a bac deal at all.

But that's not all, folks. You know

Cantonites. They proved once again that here ir Canton, we don't take ourselves too seriously. We can have a good time and retain our self respect, while indicating to observers that we might not have both oars in the water, or that we might not be playing with a full deck.

These fun-loving folks proceeded to wrap their spouses in toilet paper. The object was to achieve the mummy effect. Although it made some eyes por out while watching said activity, they had a ball, and that's what it was al about. A harmless activity, loads of laughs and no damage to property.

Jim and Nancy Worthley were wel rewarded for their efforts with another bottle of wine donated again by the generous folks at the Country Deli and

ON TO THE eating .

The club brought along a keg of beer Everyone brought their own main dist and a dish to pass. There was a $5 charge per family which also helpec purchase the chips, pretzels, and so on.

I think it's important that you know the generosity of our local businesses as they gave so many items: balloons and comic books from Big Boy, balloons and Care Bear story cards from Pizza Hut, French fry coupons from Burger King, free dessert coupons from McDonalds, slurpie coupons from 7-11, stickers from Oakwood Hospital Pink Lemonaid from Arbys, suckers from Hardies, and a case of license plates by Ralph Luddecke from General Foods Corp. and watermelons from the Bordine Farms.

It's that type of kindness that makes Canton one of the best. The $5 charge also helped purchase some toys. All these were packaged into goody bags which were distributed to the children later in the day.

ALL IN ALL, not a bad price for a day of fun and excitement. Add also the pure enjoyment of conversation and sharing of information. Just to hear another parent say their child does this or that, too! Sometimes it can be frightening to think your child is the only one that does the famous this or that.

hear another parent has a child as seemingly strange as yours is turning out to be. Which is one reason Newcomers would be a good group for your

It really is a terrific group, if you don't have a particular association or cause to be part of, like Parents without Partners, or PTO, or Kiwanians Lions, etc. Maybe you are too old for Jaycees. Well Newcomers is your

They have all kinds of activities all year. But you don't have to join any of them. You still get the therapeutic camaraderie you can't always get in a busy office or a kindergarten home setting where the children speak only two or less syllables.

So if you are looking for somewhere to go without a cause, try Newcomers New officers are president, Anr. Colwell, 453-6552; first vice president Kathy Mei, 981-1697; second vice president, Lynn Walterschied, 397-0854; secretary, Jean Hedden, 981-6097; treasurer, Terri Goodall, 459-2260. Call any of them and they'll be happy to answer your questions.

BY THE WAY, a really nice touch was added when Sharleen Immonen. who organized this all by herself this year, including getting the prizes, was given a coupon for dinner at her favorite place, the Mayflower Hotel. The task wasn't new to her, but this was the first year she did it alone. What a special treat this was for her.

Sharleen and her husband, Dale, enjoyed themselves immensely and are thrilled that the group thought of them.

And if the picnic wasn't enough to keep her busy, Sharleen is getting We all know how therapeutic it is to ready for the arrival of her in-laws from Florida next week. Of course she meal at the Mayflower for the birthday won't worry about that until after the party she organized. Probably not, you birthday party she is giving this week

The Chippewa or Ojibway, the Ottawa and the Potawatomi were the major tribes although many smaller ones were known to be in the area.

A little to the south, a tribe of Huron Indians, the Wyandots, established a camp in the vicinity of present-day Wyandotte. These Indians were peaceful, agricultural, friendly to the early French settlers.

For patients on very restrictive diets, she relies on what she refers to as a dietitian's bag of tricks serving smaller portions, substituting cold food for hot if the aroma of the food is too strong, and offering lots of encouragement.

Langkabel also has taken the lead in helping gastroplasty patients, obese people who have their stomachs "stapled," reducing the amount of food they can consume at one time.

THESE ARE OFTEN desperate people, turning to surgery as a last resort to control their food intake. But they often don't anticipate the drastic effect of the surgery itself, she explained.

"I show them how they'll have to eat after surgery, that they have to chew even apple sauce before they can swallow it. I explain they'll be on a liquid diet for two months.

"Kathy's family needed hope."

A young mother with a serious illness. Her family in crisis. They came to Harper Hospital and found new hope. They learned that Harper is a university-based research and teaching hospital. A place where scientists work alongside physicians, transforming discovery into treatment. They found that Harper concentrates on the tough adult cases in cancer, heart disease and serious vision disorders. Patients like Kathy come to

Harper Hospital at the Medical Center with confidence. They come because Harper is a major participant, together with the Sloan-Kettering Institute in New York and the M.D. Anderson Tumor Institute in Houston, in America's network of only twenty Comprehensive Cancer Centers. Patients know that if the diagnosis is cancer, there is no better place to be than Harper Hospital. And they come with confidence because the Kresge Eye Institute is at Harper Hospital. This important Medical Center resource is devoted exclusively to the problems of vision. And through its research and clinical work, the Kresge Eye Institute gives new hope to millions with impaired vision throughout the world.

Harper is hope for heart patients, too. Its large scale, nationally recognized program brings together research, teaching, surgery and medicine. More open heart surgeries are performed each year at Harper than are performed at any other hospital in Michigan. But of more significance is the growing number of heart patients Harper is able to treat successfully each year without surgery. For Kathy and her family.

For you and your family. Harper Hospital is Science. Research. Hope and Healing.

Media failed public in hostage crisis in Beirut any elements of the past hostage crisis of Beirut are familiar to us by now: the lax security in many airports; the outrageous conduct of hijackers for whom all crimes against the innocent are legitimized by appeal to some higher cause; the frustration of government leaders who cannot attempt to retaliate for risk of jeopardizing the lives of the hostages.

But this was no ordinary hijacking, for it was a planned attack on an American plane. The purpose was to send a message to the world that the United States is vulnerable, a major power without sufficient strength and resolve to protect its people, defend its interests and support its allies.

Ever since the state of Israel was declared, it has suffered from the scourge of terrorist attacks. Every time these atrocities occurred, Israel called upon the nations of the West to take strong collective action.

The western democracies while offering words of sympathy, averted their gaze and considered these crimes as Israel's problem.

We now see a bitter harvest of these seeds of destruction that were never extirpated from the soil of the international community.

THE TIME HAS come for America to realize that terrorism is a serious political challenge, it is a war against the American people and her allies. Strong, effective, and coherent anti-terrorist policies need to be adopted by the U.S. and all countries who care for the welfare of their citizens.

One of the most disturbing aspects of the hostage episode was the way in which the media aided and abetted the anti-American forces of the Middle East.

The hijackers called a press conference together with five of their hostages to exploit the desperate condition of their victims; to send messages to the President of the United States and to the American people; to manipulate the coverage of the news; and to cast blame on

Upon the announcement of a press conference, hundreds of media people attended in a veritable stampede. Bedlam ensued, and the terrorists, brandishing their weapons, threat-ened the newsmen. After this shameful spectacle, one of the hostages, under mortal danger, read a prepared statement designed to further the aims of the hijackers.

All of this was solemnly reported on the evening news as though this were a press conference called at the State Department or the foreign office of a responsible government.

WHAT SHOULD have happened? The international press should have designated four or five newsmen as a sign of protest that they would not dignify this "press conference" by the physical presence of more than the bare

The media representatives, after having received the statement of the hostages, should have offered a message of their own on behalf of the most fundamental principles of decency, justice and compassion protesting these attacks on innocent people and calling on the captors to release their captives.

That act of moral courage would have articulated the values upon which civilization itself depends. What we saw instead was how the media fed on the misery and fear of their tormentors. From a moral point of view, the tele-vision professionals had become accessories to the crime, and not merely observers of it.

The television coverage often provided no context of meaning to the images appearing on the screen. Hostages were depicted in conditions of well-being and courteous treatment while the opposite was true. The statements of hostages were presented without editing, commentary, or interpretation.

REGULAR BROADCASTING was interrupted whenever the hijackers decided to invite TV crews for interviews or briefings. Indeed, the moral outrage of the entire espisode was blunted by the media who exploited these painful events for increasing their audience

When the media are criticized, they repsond by charging "censorship." However, the concerns raised by the hostage crisis now require thoughtful and objective assessment in terms of the rights and the responsibilities of the media. If the television networks cannot undertake this self-judgement, then it should be done by the American people through its elected representatives.

This issue and other related questions must be addressed vigorously and courageously. We face a critical question: Will the forces of terrorism overcome the western democracies or will we subdue the lawlessness, cruelty and perversity that has spewed forth in our time?

State's unseen grid showcase

American wide receiver from Albion, was in uniform sitting along the sidelines at Michigan State's Spartan Stadium with the rest of the West All-Star "Hey man, this is supposed to be a press day.

Where's the press?" he wondered out loud. It was last Friday, a pleasant sunny day. At Spartan Stadium, Don Lessner was busy organizing 80 of this state's top football players. He was trying to line the athletes up for photographs in geographic groups - this group for the Lansing Journal, this group for the Grand Rapids Press, this group, this large group, for the Observer & Eccentric. Lessner is one of the driving forces behind the Michigan High School East-West All-Star Football Game. For no pay and little thanks, Lessner tries to make sure the media are as well informed about this game as possible. He knows that without media exposure, the game will not be successful. SO EACH year, this being the fifth annual game, he organizes a press day. He gathers all 80 players and the coaches into the stadium. The players are uniformed, a photographer is hired, and the media are free to get their stories. Lessner, to further entice the media, caps the day with a nice lunch. What does this man get for his troubles? Heartache, mostly.

Every daily and weekly newspaper was invited to the press day last Friday. Every radio and TV station was invited. At final count, their were 12 members of the media on hand Friday - none from the state's major metropolitan daily newspapers or radio-TV stations. There was talk of canceling the luncheon.

Indeed, Maurice Ware, where was the press? No doubt on Saturday, game day, the press will be asking, "Where are all the fans?"

An ugly cloud has hung over this all-star game since its start in 1981. The play has been spectacular. Over the years it has spawned some scintillating performances - the game has been the showcase of the state's football talent the organizers had hoped it would be.

But a showcase is a waste if it's left unseen.

DESPITE SMALL crowds, the game has managed to break even financially because of various sponsors like McDonald's and the Shriners. This year, the game has no sponsors

"We are very worried," said Lessner. "McDonald's asked us last year if they could take over the game. We sent them a proposal and then didn't hear from them again.'

The Michigan High School Football Coaches Association, the originators of the game, brought in Muddy Waters to try to drum up some business for the game. It was figured that Waters, the former Michigan State coach who helped make the Cherry Bowl a reality, could use his contacts to produce sponsorship.

It didn't work out that way. Waters was brought in too late. Auto companies and other large corporations, some of Waters' major contacts, had already set their budgets and money was not available for the game.

"WE BROUGHT in Muddy to promote the game," said Plymouth Salem coach Tom Moshimer, who is the game's chairman. "His deal was to go out and raise money to make the game solvent. That didn't work out. Now, we have to put people in the stands. Muddy has gone out and sold blocks of tickets, so maybe it'll work out."

And maybe it won't. The coaches' association asked its members to buy five tickets each for the game. Only 20 percent responded.

You can see what's happening. Here we have this tremendous football game - tremendous for both the fans and the players - being tainted by various extraneous elements.

No. 1, the media Catch-22. A large percentage of the media ignores the game because it doesn't attract many fans. The game doesn't attract many fans because the media fail to give it proper exposure. No. 2, apathy among the coaches. This is the hardest to comprehend. For every Moshimer or Lessner, there are three other coaches who could care less about this game. If every coach in the state buys five tickets, the game has no worries.

NO. 3, the time and location of the game. The oldest theory on why the game doesn't attract fans is that people can't get fired up for football in August and that MSU is too far away. These two factors do keep some people away, although the suspicion here is that only a small percentage

The people at MSU do a fine job of running the all-star week at minimal cost - the coaches association could not get a better deal.

The good news in all of this is that the coaches remain committed to presenting this game every year - for better or worse. We, those who have an interest in high school athletics, are fortunate to have that commitment. It's just too bad this cloud has to hang around. It takes some of the shine off the stars.

As for me, this is the last I will write about the poor attendance at the all-star game. It has taken up enough space. Oh, you'll know how many people showed up Saturday, but in next Thursday's Observer & Eccentric sports sections (where details of Saturday's game will be featured), the plays and the players will make the East vs. West duel intensifies

By Chris McCosky staff writer

Just another all-star game, right?

So what if you bring together 80 of the state's best high school senior football players from last year - 40 from the east and 40 from the west spend a week whipping them into shape, and then throw them out on the astro-turf at Michigan State's Spartan Stadium to have at it?

So what? You think it means anything to these guys? You think they care?

Nah, not at all. That's why on the very first practice session - a light, padless workout with players wearing shorts and T-shirts - several East defensive players took their best shots at their All-American tailback John Miller.

"Yeah, they knocked me down a couple of times," said Miller, a Farmington Harrison grad and one of MSU's top recruits. "I guess they were trying to prove something. I told them, wait till we get the pads on. Then let me see what you've got."

Just another all-star game? Right, and Khomeini is just another benevolent dictator.

THE FACT is, these players care very much about this game, this fifth annual Michigan High School East-West All-Star Game, which will be played at 1:30 p.m. Saturday at Spartan Stadium.

For some players, those highly recruited, the game offers a chance to put on a show for their new college coaches. To other players, those who weren't recruited, the game is perhaps their last shot at obtaining the elusive scholarship, or at least an invitation to walk-on.

But, for all the players, there is the desire to represent their high school, their community and their region one last time on the gridiron. And do not underestimate the intensity of an East-West rivalry - especially since the East has pummelled the West in three of the four meetings.

"This is only the second day we've been here," said Miller Friday. "Already you can feel the tension starting to build. I can't wait to see what it will be like on Saturday."

The Observer & Eccentric area has a huge contingent on the East squad, including head coach Ken Kaestner (Livonia Churchill) and assistants Jack Reardon (Livonia Stevenson), Herb Osterland (Churchill) and Jack Gabel (Stevenson).

"I'VE ALWAYS said there isn't ever a loser in this game," Kaestner said. "But, you can tell the West really wants to win this game. And we do, too. We plan to work very hard this week."

The game is special to the coaches and the fans of high school football in Michigan, even though few have turned out for the four previous contests (that's another story, see related column). But, for the most part, the game is for the players. Here's what the O&E area players have to say about it:

The fifth annual East-West all-star football game promises to be a knock down, drag out affair as the West looks to avenge three losses in previous games. Livonia Churchill grad Dave Mize and the eight other O&E area players hope to be ready for the challenge Saturday at Spartan Stadium.

John Miller, Farmington Harrison-MSU: "It makes you feel proud to be playing with the best players in the state. I think it's more prestigious to be in this game than it was to be chosen on the Dream Team. This is the best.'

Chuck McSwigan, Bloomfield Hills Lahser-MSU: "This gives me the chance to meet with some of the guys I played with and against and it gives me a chance to get some of the kinks out before the college season starts. This is special because it'll give me experience of playing against college-level tal-

Gilles captures national crown

By Chris McCosky staff writer

A milestone was reached in the amateur tennis career of Plymouth's Chris Gilles last weekend.

Gilles, a highly-ranked amateur and an all-Big 10 No. 1 singles player at the University of Wisconsin, won the Womens USTA National Amateur Hardcourt Championship in Cleveland.

Gilles and her University of Wisconsin teammate Cathy Van Pelt also teamed to win the doubles champion-

It was the first national title for Gilles.

"The funny thing is that I didn't really play that well," Gilles said. "I played just good enough to win in every match. I was not really impressed with myself at all."

IN FRONT of a crowd of nearly 3,000 and a regional television audience, Gilles knocked off Libby Brendee of Dallas, 3-6, 6-2, 6-1 in the finals.

"I'll tell you what I was proud of," said Gilles' father Brian. "The place was packed, and the match was on TV and Chris didn't let any of that bother her. She didn't seem nervous at all."

If there has been a flaw in Gilles' tennis game in recent years, it was a tendency to get overly-nervous before tennis

"I wasn't nervous at all," Gilles said. I just blocked everything out of mind, the crowd, the TV. I knew that I had more experience than my opponent did. I just concentrated on my game."

Some added maturity was afforded Gilles in July when she placed second in the USTA Womens National Claycourt Championships in Pittsburgh. She lost in the finals to NCAA champion Gretchen Rush, 6-3, 6-1.

"I thought that in Pittsburgh I was a lot more nervous than I was this weekend (in Cleveland)," Gilles said.

GILLES MAY have felt like she wasn't on top of her game, but her opponents wouldn't believe it.

She defeated Sandra Meiser in the first round, 6-1, 6-0. Amy Tarkleson was her second victim, 6-3, 6-0. Gilles dropped Pennsylvania's Kelly Erven in the quarterfinals, 6-4, 6-1.

Gilles beat Van Pelt, her doubles partner, in the semifinal round 6-3, 6-0.

Gilles, along with her sister Wendy, left Sunday for Atlanta to compete in the U.S. Team Intersectional Cham-

Craig Morton, Plymouth Salem-Dartmouth: "I didn't get picked on an all-state team, not even honorable mention. To be selected to this game without those types of credentials makes me feel real Dave Mize, Livonia Churchill-Eastern Michigan: "This is truly an honor. I felt I should have made all-state and I didn't. This kind of makes up for it. Also, it's great to be able to play for coach Kaestner again. It brought back memories. It rained during my first practice as a freshman at Churchill and it rained in our first practice here. I told him that it seemed like old times - he Fred Owens, Bishop Borgess-Wisconsin: "This means I'm regarded as one of the top 80 football players in the state. That's special I didn't really expect to be picked (after an injury kept him out most his senior season) This is going to be a good

Ron Wandzel, Catholic Central-Northwood: "I'm real excited to play in this game. I feel real good about it. I felt I had a good enough season to get here. I think we should beat them (the West). We are a lot bigger than they are."

Tony Beaune, Livonia Stevenson-Wayne State: "I was very surprised to be picked. But, I think this game will help me get my confidence up. It'll show that I can perform on the college level."

Chad Darke, Livonia Bentley-Central Michian: "I was shocked (that I got picked). I'm walking on at Central. Maybe because I don't have a scholarship I feel a bit more pressure to do well here. I've never kicked on astro-turf before, either. But I know I can kick. It's time to go all out."

Mike Farr, Brother Rice-UCLA: "I've been an all-star at every level, but this is special. I'm happy to be here. This is more like the college experience staying in a dorm and playing against collegelevel players. This is special."

Bottom line: The fifth annual Michigan High School East-West All-Star Football game is anything but "just another all-star game.

Adray, Walter's survive 1st round battles

By Robert McElhaney special writer

Livonia Adray and Walter's Appliance had sizzling bats in winning first round Livonia Collegiate Baseball League (LCBL) playoff games Sunday at Livonia's Ford Field.

A 15-hit attack led Adray to a 14-5 rout over Garden City in the first matchup. In the second showdown, Walter's collected nine hits in defeating Redford Little Caesars, 7-3.

Practically all of Adray's lineup featured hot bats, with seven players picking up two hits each.

Dave Austin, who doubled, tripled and drove in three runs, joined teammate Todd Krumm, who singled tripled and knocked in two runs, as the hitting

"Austin and Krumm have been keys to our ballclub," said Adray manager Ron Hellier. "Austin is really hitting the ball and Krumm is doing his part, too.

Austin, who lifted his batting average from .260 to .425 in a month, says he's confident at the plate.

"I MADE a couple of changes in my mechanics at the plate and it really paid off," said the Michigan State University sophomore. "Once you start hitting the ball, it's fun, and the ball appears much bigger."

Austin and Krumm helped the defending LCBL playoff champs score five quick runs in the first two innings.

Austin smacked a ground rule double in the opening inning, followed by Krumm's single down the right field line, bringing home Austin.

In the second inning, Dennis Bushart and Mike Johnson led off with walks. Austin promptly drove both runners home with a long triple to center field. Krumm then delivered another triple and later scored on a Pete Rose single.

Garden City, which clinched the fourth and final playoff berth with a victory Friday over Northville in a special playoff, refused to give up.

GC ultimately got to Krumm, who didn't enjoy the same success on the mound that he experienced at the plate, scoring two runs in the third and one each in the fourth and fifth innings to cut Adray's lead to 5-4.

JOE WINNICKI, who singled scored GC's first run on a ground out by Chris Caza. Then, Mike Patton brought Don Fish home with a single. Fish later knocked in Craig Matthews with a single in the fourth and Patton homered off Krumm in the fifth. But four more Adray runs in the bottom half of the fifth put the game out for Walter's after a mid-season slump, of reach.

Rose walked to start the rally, followed by a Bill Ulle single to left field. Greg Kuzia scored Rose with a single to right field. Bushart, who will be a senior this fall at Redford Union, then drove Ulle and Kuzia in with a ground rule double. Tim Collins scored Bushart on a groundout.

In the second game, "Wallyball" came back to life.

Dave Donigian, stroking a single, double and triple to go along with three RBI, was the hitting star for Walter's, which finished third in the regular season behind Caesars (second place) and Adray (first).

Other red-hot Walter's batters included John Stoitsiadis, who drove in two runs, and Leo Lanigan, who tripled and scored twice. Walter's also received superb pitching from lefty Doug Doyle, who allowed just two hits in 7% innings of work. Doyle, in fact, toyed with a nohitter through five innings.

"I'VE HAD good luck against Caesars," said Doyle, who will be a sophomore this fall at Hillsdale College. "I stuck with my fastball and the curveball worked as well."

The pieces are falling in place again

according to manager Mike Keller.

"It's good to see the bats come alive again," he said. "We are getting the pitching and the defense, plus poise and

A triple by Lanigan, scoring Chuck Morgan, gave Walter's a 1-0 lead in the first inning.

In the sixth, Walter's increased the lead to 3-0 on back-to-back doubles by Bob Foust and Donigian, followed by Stoitsiadis' two-run single.

Caesars cut the lead to 3-1 in their half of the sixth when Tyrone Gaines, who reached base on an error, scored on a Mike Betz sacrifice fly.

REDFORD, however, never got within striking distance as pitcher John Rogers took the loss.

Second round LCBL action continued last night with Adray and Walter's colliding, preceded by the Redford-Garden City battle.

The double-elimination tournament continues Friday at Ford Field with a pair of games (beginning at 5:30 p.m.) and Sunday (if necessary).

At stake is a automatic berth in the All-American Amateur Baseball Association (AAABA) tournament which begins Aug. 12 in Johnstown, Pa.

Livonia-Plymouth duo roller-dance for title

By Brad Emons staff writer

Like All State, the roller skating duo Phil Fisher and Kim Davis feel they're in good hands.

This insurance policy is comprehensive. They're being covered by the people who coach them, the people who design their costumes and the people who pray for them at their church. Fisher, a 21-year-old cook from Plymouth, and Davis, a 20-year-old bookkeeper from Livonia, will attempt to win the Junior Artistic Dance title this weekend at the National Roller Skating Association Championships in Lincoln, Neb.

The pair, who began skating together on Valentine's Day 1983, hope to earn a gold, silver or bronze medal so they can achieve their longterm goal - a spot in the senior ranks.

Fisher and Davis qualified for the Danner nationals by finishing second at the state meet (June 12 at the Troy Skateland) and second at five-state region meet (July 6-7 in Cincinnati, Ohio).

"OUR GOAL is just to win and move on to senior," said Fisher. "I thought we skated well at both meets. Everything we practiced we did."

Davis agrees with the plan.

"There's always room for improvement and I always want to be better than I am," she said. "But we're both working for nationals and we'll just have to wait and see how we do."

sets of coaches.

Locally, they train under Ralph and Judy Young out of Riverside Roller Arena in Livonia. They also travel during the middle of each week to Cincinnati, learning their trade under the expert coaching of 72-year-old Warren

"Ralph and Judy referred us to him (Danner)," explained Davis. "He's coached 18 world class teams. We've worked with him for three months now and he's been very influential on us."

Costumes, and how you present yourself, are also a big factor in the pair's quest for national recognition.

KIM'S MOTHER, Lisa, along with Maggie Green, the owners of a new store in Livonia (Costumes Plus), design and sew all of the team's outfits.

"It gets real expensive the higher you The Fisher-Davis team relies on two go up," Kim said. "I'm glad that my mother does this for us." The team also receives spiritual support as well. "Our church (the Agape Christian Center in Plymouth) has been a big help," said Phil. "They pray for us and I don't think we'd be where we are without them. We've been given a lot of God-given talent."

Because of the support, Davis and Fisher feel confident about their upcoming performance.

"I know we have a good chance," said Kim. "But we never plan on anything." Adds Phil: "We're stronger than a year ago and our basic pattern and skating are better."

THE SACRIFICE, however, has claimed some frustrating moments.

"It's hard always to be happy with somebody you see every day," Kim said. "But we don't fight. If we don't get along, we just don't talk."

"You just grin and bear it, and come back the next day," Fisher adds.

Although the success is not guaranteed for this skating duo, the support and dedication they've made is good policy to keep.

Britisher wins Roadrunner

In his second race of the day, Englishman Malcolm East, 31, breezed to victory in Saturday evening's 2nd Annual Roadrunner Classic in Livonia, outlegging Westland's Tobin Jones with a time of 24:10.

The Chestnut Hill, Mass. resident who placed fifth (2:11) in the 1981 Boston Marathon was runner-up to former Boston Marathon winner Greg Meyer in Jackson's Cascade run with a 30:05 10-kilometer clocking Saturday morning. Meyer ran a 29:55.

Jones, winner of last year's Roadrunner Classic, completed the eight-kilometer course in 24:25.

Michigan Woman Runner of the Year Ella Willis captured the glory for the women, placing 37th overall in 28:41. Like East, she competed earlier in the day in Jackson and was crowned with a laurel wreath after running to victory in her evening bid.

Willis, East, and the top three finishers in male and female age divisions were given handcrafted, engraved wooden plaques during a post-race awards ceremony and party on the grounds of the Livonia Family Y at Stark and Lyndon roads.

"I FELT a little tired after Jackson, so I ran with Tobin Jones through three by the Redford Roadrunners and area miles and then took off," said East, a who races on a full-time, international basis for New Balance racing club.

"I'm glad it was a fast and accurate course after running an inaccurately long course in the morning," added the Englishman.

Former Free Press International Marathon winner Cindy Barber was the women's runner-up. Rebounding from injury, Barber clocked a 31:34 on the flat, paved route. Wheelers Rich McAvoy and Russ

Monroe took first place honors in each of their wheelchair classifications, while Pat Ford was the overall winner among the women wheelers. Tippy the Clown made the event magically memorable for many of the young non-runners present, while older Stroh's served after the race. Runners and non-runners alike took part in a prerace Vic Tanny aerobic "warm up" and in the post-race outdoor dance and party.

Schoolcraft tiptoes toward 1986 tax request

staff writer

It makes them uncomfortable, but Schoolcraft College trustees know they must talk about a tax increase.

"There's obviously a need for additional millage. I move we set a date for a millage election." said trustee Mary Breen, pointing to March 24 and 31 on her 1986 calendar.

"I'm uncomfortable," said trustee Sharon Sarris of Livonia. She wanted to touch bases first with trustees in K-12 - Clarenceville, Livonia, Garden City, Northville and Plymouth-

"I'm uncomfortable at the way this process is taking shape," added trustee hour session last week devoted to a Paul Kadish of Livonia. "When we set five-year plan. Comptroller A.H. Raby, the date, that's the time we come out swinging."

Breen's motion died for lack of a second though she insisted "there's a need to nail down the date." No Schoolcraft trustees are up for election in 1986 and there is no college election.

TRUSTEES DECIDED only to hold a special board meeting at 8 p.m. Wedneday, Aug. 14, to discuss revenue needs.

Trustees and administrators were careful not to say how much of an increase in the 1.77-mill property tax ($1.77 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation) they might need, what they might use it for and how for many years it would be levied.

The discussion arose during a three-pinch-hitting for business Vice Presi-

In an outline of financial plans, Raby said the two-year college needed "stable tuition rates - no growth above consumer price index" and "successful tax increase - general opera-

But in the text of an earlier version of the plan, a tax increase was discussed in the context of "repair, maintenance or replacement of campus infracstructure elements - roofs, sewer, water, communications, electric, etc.," and a new computer.

During the 1970s, the college failed four times to persuade voters to authorize more resources, both through RABY SAID the college is "reaching dent W. Kenneth Lindner, tiptoed into the end of the line" in holding down costs. These have included purchasingsupply controls, more automation and energy conservation.

Statistical models show expenses will grow faster than revenues, Raby said.

He underscored the need to refurbish roofs, parking lots, walkways, building entrances, boilers and transformers by saying, "If the hallways are dirty, people assume an institution is not up to par. The airlines have found that if the silver is dirty, the public thinks the engines are not well maintained."

Raby also cited a need for consolidation of the business division, a conference center, small theater and specialized service space for word processing and central duplicating.

A committee studying physical plant needs also saw a need to develop a campus security plan against fire, theft and destruction through surveillance monitoring and extinguishing systems.

"With more traffic in the I-275 corridor, there are more potential security problems," the comptroller said.

CONWAY JEFFRESS, vice president for instruction, recommended nine programs be introduced in the next five years. They included: • 1986 — Laser technician, culinary

• 1987 — Automobile mechanic diagnostician, software technician, recreation technician.

• 1988 - Corrective personnel, optician technician. • 1989 - Accounting technician.

Jeffress saw a need for introducing competency standards into many programs.

Among trends he noted were fewer transfer students (taking first two years of a four-year degree), more career education, fewer students in the traditional 18-21 age group, a "proliferation of state and federal legislation affecting faculty and staff, the lessening of financial support from the state, employee desire to become part of the decision-making process and aging employee groups.'

PLAYBOY - The House voted, 216 for and 193 against, to exclude Playboy magazine from a Library of Congress program that reproduces some three dozen magazines in Braille for the benefit of the blind. The vote deleted $103,000 for the Playboy translation from the library's fiscal 1986 budget. It occurred during Hertel, Levin, Broomfield. debate on the 1986 legislative branch appropratioons bill (HR 2942) that was passed and sent to the Senate.

Sponsor Chalmers Wylie, R-Ohio, said. "Reproducing Playboy in Braille does not have literary merit and is not a good use of the taxpayers' money

Members voting yes wanted to exclude Playboy magazine from the Library of Conbgress' Books for the Blind program. Voting yes: Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, William Broomfield, R-Birmingham.

Voting no: Dennis Hertel, D-Harper Woods, William Ford, D-Taylor, Sander Levin, D-Southfield.

FREEZE - By a vote of 207 for and 219 against, the House rejected an amendment to freeze the fiscal 1986 authorization for clean water programs at the 1985 level of $2.6 billion.

The House went on to approve 1986 spending of more than $4.6 billion under the legislation (HR 8), which was sent to the Senate.

This marked the House's first failure in eight attempts this year to freeze a major 1986 spending bill, giving it an .875 batting average in the budget-cut-

Freeze advocates say their approach is necessary because the House is too undisciplined to reduce the deficit through the normal budget process. The bill's chief mission is to provide federal grants to communities for sewage treatment construction. Also, it combats pollution caused by urban and agricultural water runoffs, and seeks

The amendment was offered to the HR 8 (above).

Sponsor Arlan Stangeland, R-Minn., said, "Locally developed programs can be every bit as effective as Washington's if not more so."

FILIBUSTER — By a vote of 58 for and 40 against, the Senate failed to achieve the three-fifths majority needed to end a filibuster against legislation giving a president power to veto only part of a spending measure.

President Reagan had personally lobbied senators in search of the 60 votes required to bring the measure to the floor.

Senators voting no were opposed to giving a president line-item veto power over spending bills. Voting no: Michigan Democrats Carl Levin and Donald

AMUSEMENT PARKS - By a vote of 52 for and 41 against, the Senate opted for the more lenient of two proposed federal approaches to the issue of amusement park safety.

Senators voting yes were opposed to broadening federal power to enforce amusement park safety.

Voting no: Levin, Riegle.

The vote created a commission to conduct an 18-month study of whether the federal government should enforce the safety of rides and other attractions or leave the task to state and local authorities.

It killed language giving the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) strong powers to oversee the nation's 500 amusement parks.

It occurred during debate on a fiscal 1986 funding bill for the CPSC (S 1077) that was passed and sent to the House.

John Danforth, R-Mo., who sponsored the proposal for an 18-month study, questioned "how ready we in Washington should be to dispatch inspectors from a federal agency throughout the countryside."

Thursday, August 1, 1985 O.C.F.

Joseph Haynes of Belleville and Linda Kruz of Redford appear in a scene from the Livonia-Redford Theatre Guild production of the play "Friends in Dark Places."

Guild premieres new play at its summer workshop

By Victoria Diaz special writer

N ORIGINAL PLAY, "Friends in Dark Places" by 26-yearold Ann Arbor playwright Janet Mackie Hackel, will premiere Friday at the Theatre Guild of Livonia-Redford

We wanted to do an original play,' said workshop coordinator Lois Tobin, when asked what prompted the group to do Hackel's play. "Also, since this was to be a summer workshop, we were looking for light material, not heavy drama. And, since this was to be a teaching situation, we wanted something less complex than drama. This is really quite a good

A two-act farce, "Friends in Dark Places" was part of a manuscript which won a University of Michigan Hopwood Award for Hackel earlier this year. Hopwoods are awarded annually to U-M students for best writing entries in the fields of poetry, fiction, essay and drama.

The play will be the culminating event of a six-week theater workshop conducted by TGLR. Approximately 20 students took part in the workshop, funded chiefly by a grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts.

PARTICIPANTS ATTENDED sessions on stage lighting, makeup, costuming, props and sound, plus set construction, painting and design, approximately three times a week.

"Friends in Dark Places" will be presented at 8 p.m. Fridays-Saturdays through Aug. 10 at the TGLR auditorium, 15138 Beech-Daly in Redford. Admission is $3, and tickets will be sold at the door only. For further information, call 425-5942.

Tobin said the play was recommended to the group earlier this summer by Attic Theatre playwright-inresidence Simone Press.

"I admire Janet's work very much," Press said. "I think she's simply a wonderful writer, and I thought she's written a lovely farce that was well-suited for the summer workshop." The two playwrights met as fellow students at U-M and this year worked together at the Attic where Hackel served as assistant coordinator of the New Playwrights Forum.

In a recent telephone interview, playwright Hackel said, "Two days after I'd dropped off the play with Lois Tobin, she called me and said six people on the workshop committee had read it, and that the guild would like to do the play. They said they'd like to pay me — and asked it that would be all right."

The recent U-M graduate never had a play produced before although several received staged readings in U-M's Theater Department. "I had to fight the urge to say, 'Pay me?' I'll pay you!"

HACKEL STARTED out writing short fiction during her high school days in East Lansing and changed to playwriting on the advice of fellow writing students at U-M, who noted that her fiction was made up almost entirely of dialogue.

Her first playwriting class at U-M, taken two years ago as a graduate student in the MFA program, was taught by playwright Milan Stitt (author of "The Runner Stumbles"). It left a lasting impression.

"That first week in class, Milan Stitt just absolutely mesmerized me," Hackel said. "He was simply incredible. I walked out of that classroom after four hours and said, "This is what I want to do, until I can't do it anymore."

Hackel wrote the first draft of "Friends in Dark Places" in about eight hours last summer.

"I started out trying to write a deep, meaningful play about death," she explained. "My mom died about six years ago, and I think I was trying to write the great American drama on dealing with death.

"But it was a horrible play. I kept putting in these ditzy little lines that you just can't have in a serious play."

EVENTUALLY, HACKEL decided to keep the "ditzy little lines" and make the play into a comedy. The result was "Friends in Dark Places."

"(The play) has changed completely from that first draft," Hackel said. 'Now, it's just one laugh after another - hopefully.'

Guild premieres play

Set in a contemporary Midwestern town, the play revolves around four young single women who live together. As the play opens, one of them is hosting a party.

As in all farces, confusion is heaped on confusion. At the center of this is a "dead" body (which keeps getting "misplaced"), a couple of cases of mistaken identity and a lot of befuddled characters.

There are a lot of women I've lived with who, if they see this play, will probably never speak to me again, because I've put so much of them into the play," Hackel said with a laugh, when asked about the sources for her characters.

"Really, though," she said a bit more seriously, "all of the characters are me, too. Each one has a major quirk - each is just an exaggerated part of me."

Hackel added that since she has lived in group situations for several years, she was not surprised when she found herself writing a play centered around this kind of situation.

There's frantic, frenzied, overreacting Alice, hosting the party. A little around-the-bend on cleanliness, as the play opens, she's recleaning an already spotlessly clean house.

BLUE SPENDS ALL her time being everybody's mother. "Basically, she clamps down on anything that ny, see clamps down on anything that might be trouble and also clamps down on herself," Hackel said. Third member of the quarter is Tedi — very rich and very pretty, and sort of based on the Loni Anderson character in "WKRP." "Everyone thinks she's a dumb blonde, but she's not dumb at all."

Finally, there's Luther Martin, who, trying to explain her rather unusual name, simply says, "My mother was very religious." She's not married, is pregnant and is looking forward very much to having her baby.

She wanders around on stage, singing a lot and also has a persistent Scrabble fixation, often playing Scrabble in her head and spelling the words aloud at rather unexpected moments.

"The only trouble is," Hackel said, "she's a horrible speller."

COMMUNITY THEATER veteran Bob Weibel is directing the play. In the cast are Kathleen Lietz as Alice, Sue Reno as Luther, Patti Jones as Blue and Linda Kruz as Tedi. Also in the play are Joe Haynes, Daniel Taylor, Mark Willett, Bob Pici, Scott Duglos and Mark Tucker.

Actors auditioned for each role and are not direct participants in the summer workshop. Producers are Judy Pierson, and Maggie and Jerry Lamb.

Everyone I've worked with at TGLR has been just wonderfully supportive," said Hackel, who participated in several of the workshop sessions and sat in on auditions. "I think I was very lucky. These actors are creating these roles. There's nothing there, except the words. It's exciting!

Hackel confided she had only one very large regret. Because of a teaching commitment with U-M's Summer School Abroad program, she'll be in England in August and won't be able to see her first play performed.

"Big Jake" (1971), 8 p.m. today on Ch. 50. Originally 109 minutes. TV time slot: 120 minutes. John Wayne's last, best western is "Big Jake." (His last movie, "The Shootist," may be a better picture, but it's too introspective to be a genuine western.) "Big Jake" is a real western of the quest variety. Duke and clan set out cross-country to find his kidnapped grandson (played by Wayne's son, Ethan). Another son, Patrick, co-stars, along with other members of Wayne's show-biz "family" — Maureen O'Hara, Harry Carey Jr., Hank Worden and Bruce Cabot. Richard Boone, John Agar, Chris Mitchum and Bobby Vinton also co-star; the movie is directed by George Sherman, who worked on westerns with Wayne at Republic Studios in the 1930s. "Big Jake" is probably Wayne's most violent western — having been influenced, no doubt, by such blood-and-guts films of director Sam Peckinpah as "The Wild Bunch" (1969). It's also an ironic, occasionally funny and tense film. Rating: $3.30.

"The Blues Brothers" (1980), 8 p.m. Sunday on Ch. 7. Originally 133 minutes. TV time slot: 165 minutes. If you've seen "The Blues Brothers," you probably either love it or hate it. If you haven't seen "The Blues Brothers," by all means see it. Even if you wind up hating the movie for all its excesses (which include breakneck pacing, destruction of property and loudness), you'll love the music. Musical performers who make cameo appearances include James Brown, Ray Charles and Aretha Franklin, while John Belushi and Dan Aykroyd head up a great blues band. Cab Calloway, Carrie Fisher, John Candy and Henry Gibson also costar, and look for additional cameos by Twiggy, Steve Lawrence and wunderkind director Steven Spielberg. Rating: $3.40.

"On the Road Again" (1980), 9 p.m. Sunday on Ch. 4. Originally 119 minutes. TV time slot: 120 minutes.

Take your pick: blues or country western. "On the Road Again" - opportunistically retitled from "Honeysuckle Rose" to capitalize on star Willie Nelson's hit tune - is an entertaining mishmash of a movie with little ney" and "Space, the Final Frontier" were the musical topics. The "Adventures" seemed excessively brash, too blaring, and plagued with poor dynamic and total control, but from there on out, things made a complete recovery, and it was a breeze of a program.

A trip down memory lane: "The Mickey Mouse March." Who could forget that? Ah, such memories! "Zip-A-Dee-Doo-Dah," "Who's Afraid of the Big Bad Wolf?" and other Disney classics made up, what was for me, the best part of the program.

Kojian's entertaining announcements of the pieces, with his charming accent clearly enunciating "Zip-A-Dee-Doo-Dah" was amusing but also quite heartwarming. How kind of this fine conductor and musician to take the time to speak to his audience and tell them about the music they're going to hear. That's a real plus!

The finale portion of the concert featured music almost everyone is familiar with. "Space, the Final Frontier" included music from "Star Trek" and "Star Wars," so that both Trekkies and Darth Vader followers would be musically satisfied.

Even the ubiquitous "Star Wars" theme was played smoothly with festivity. The concert was entitled "Laser Lights and the DSO Pops," and this is where our lasers came in. The light show presented during this section of the concert was a skilled production and coordination of radiation. The luminosity and clarity was stunning and made the music really come alive. What a way to end!

There were many empty seats in the pavilion on that Thursday, but these were unexpectedly filled during the last portion of the Prokofiev suite. The reason for the rush to the pavilion was the onset of a heavy rain storm, which also caused a long pause before the last rewarding on the Sunday program, in which Levi demonstrated good command and understanding of the profound orchestral combinations of this descriptive suite.

Sunday's weather was more obliging and the first protion of that program contained selections of the lighter variety. The short Copland work, "Quiet City," featured two more DSO musicians as soloists, Ramon Parcells, trumpet, and Treva Womble, English horn. The London Symphony Orchestra is among the most prestigious. Founded in 1904 as a self-governing organization, it has performed around the world ever since under the most distinguished conductors.

The London Symphony Orchestra's special program at Meadow Brook was part of this season's Internatinal Series. Guest conductor Neville Marriner is a familiar figure here. While his name is primarily associated with the Academy of St. Martin-in-the-Fields, he was artistic director of the Meadow Brook Music Festival 1979-1983.

The three works on the program represented three different forms and styles, ranging from light to heavy and complicated. These consisted of the "Cockaigne" Overture by Elgar, the Piano Concerto No. 17, K.453 by Mozart and the Symphony No. 2 by Rachmani-

Both orchestra and conductor felt comfortable with the music of their countryman Elgar, as could be expected. The music, which isn't very profound, sounded nevertheless authentic and convincing. The high standard continued, however, through the more serious works.

JOHN BROWNING, distinguished American pianist, was the soloist in the Mozart concerto. He is known for his great versatility in his approaches to different composers and styles. His approach to this work was impressive in terms of authority and artistic insight.

known during Mozart's time. However, Browning's subtle and delicate touch brought it as close as possible to the authentic sound

The intensity of the sound was very seldom above mezzo-forte, yet all the dynamic nuances were adequately represented within this smaller range. The tempo in the last movement could have been a little faster, even though it would have made the variations with the triplets less comfortable.

That, in my opinion, is preferable to making the slower variations sound undernourished. But there was no compromise in terms of expressive richness. The peak of that richness was achieved in the slow movement, which is technically very easy, but which was very challenging with Browning's refined and resourceful interpretation.

Rachmaninoff's Second Symphony is among the most frequently performed works in the symphonic repertoire, surpassing even Beethoven's Fifth which tends to be shunned by many conductors these days.

THIS Rachmaninoff work was performed here last season under Walter Weller, who also appeared here as guest at the beginning of this season.

If the symphony appeared somewhat shorter this time around, it was because Marriner took some of the cuts to this work, which were sanctioned and approved by the composer at the especially in the second and final movements. The brass parts in these were very accurate and well coordinated, with some edginess which was within reasonable bounds.

Transitions between the various groups of instruments were smooth and natural. The third, slow movement was nostalgic, yet not monotonous.

The loud, crashing ending of the work inspired the large audience to applaud with unmitigated enthusiasm. Marriner and the orchestra obliged with an encore, a custom which is rare among orchestras. The encore piece was the familiar Rakoczy March from "The Damnation of Faust" by Berlioz.

Minneapolis combines commerce, culture

Mall is people place

ICOLLET MALL in Minneapolis, Minn., is a people experience," the kind that every city in America is trying to create, mostly

This 14-block artery is not a city renewal project, nor the bright idea of some city developer; it has been here for decades, tying the hotels, restaurants and shopping areas to office buildings and theaters.

Nicollet Mall is where the people of Minneapolis work and shop and play, picnicking around the fountains beside Orchestra Hall and littering the streets with plastic beer cups during the annual block party that launches Aquatennial and Sommerfest.

From one end of the mall you can walk the Loring Greenway past condominiums and office buildings to Loring Park, and on to the Guthrie Theater and the Walker Art Center.

From the other end you can cross the Mississippi River to Riverplace and St. Anthony Main, two restored shopping and eating complexes. In between, on Nicollet Mall, you can ride the bus for a dime or walk from building to building along miles of skyways.

THE TWIN cities of Minneapolis and St. Paul have been competing for "skyway firsts" for years:

"Minneapolis had the first skyway in the United States;" "St. Paul has the longest skyway system in the world;" "Minneapolis has the longest single skyway in the world," etc.

These skyway systems allow you to "walk the streets" comfortably on the coldest winter day or when the summer sun is burning the sidewalks one story below.

The best way to tour the downtown area is to pick up a map

1-of-a-kind traveler Iris Jones contributing travel editor

Music, theater and people-at-play -that's what makes you enjoy life in Minneapolis. Nowhere is this more evident than at Nicollet Mall.

at the tourist information booth in the IDS building, the tall glass building in the heart of Nicollet Mall, between Seventh and Eighth streets, where one of the busiest skyways connects the IDS tower to Dayton's department store in what is probably the center of town. Dayton is the other half of the Dayton Hudson Co., which owns the J.L. Hudson Co. stores in metro

MY TOUR of Nicollet Mall began at the Thirteenth St. end, where the Hyatt Regency Minneapolis and the Holiday Inn Downtown bracket the street.

The city's convention center is only a block from that end of the mall, and many an eager outdoors fan walks or cross-country skis from the contemporary fountain that marks the beginning of the Loring Greenway to the fountains

It was a bright summer day to walk past the bronze sculpture by Paul T. Granlund at the historic Westminister Presbyterian Church and on to the fountains and pools of Peavey Plaza, which is the setting for Orchestra Hall.

Music, theater and people-atplay, thats what makes you enjoy life in Minneapolis; nowhere is that more visible than in this block of Nicollet Mall that fronts the Hall.

PEOPLE EAT lunch amid the flowers and fountains around a pond, listening to the music that often seems to be playing on the stage under the trees at Peavey Plaza. On summer weekends, parents bring the kids to frolic in the waterfalls and ponds.

If there is a single figure associated with music in Minneapolis in the summer, it is Leonard Slatkin, the playful and highly respected conductor who is artistic director of the Minnesota Orchestra during the festival of Sommerfest.

In one day during the recent festival I saw him lead the Minnesota Orchestra through musical Vienna, play a piano duet with pianist Jeffrey Siegel and introduce an outdoor film festival on Peavey Plaza.

Slatkin also has been known to announce the baseball scores during a classical concert and to make guest appearances as the play-by-play announcer when the Minnesota Twins play the St. Louis Cardinals.

THIS COMFORTABLE association between the everyday life of Minnesota and the world of theater and music is much more obvious in the Twin Cities than it is in almost any other city I have visited in America, excluding possibly New York. People throng the Guthrie Theater, which does both innovative and traditional stage presentations. They go to the Old

Log Theater in the suburbs and to the new Ordway Theater in St.

classes and theater classes to students from around the country.

The Children's Theater Company and School provides regular professional entertainment for children and families, but it does more; it teaches both academic

All of the many summer and winter festivals in the Twin Cities are somehow wrapped around the musical and theatrical life of the area, but there is no place that is more of a people place than this 14-block downtown street called Nicollet Mall.

THERE ARE lots of little shops along the Mall. Between 11th and Seventh streets, which is between Orchestra Hall and Dayton's, you find a UNICEF gift shop, a Viennese cafe called Mitterhausen, a Scandinavian restaurant called Mrs. Skandia's, Anderson's China shop, and Hunt and Peck, the outlet store for Peck and Peck.

All of these places have local connotations — historic Scandinavian food, annual collectors plates about Minnesota and on one corner, Bjorkman Furs, the last reminder of the fur trade that discovered this part of the Mississippi River in the first place.

The economic history of Minneapolis is, of course, in its flour mills; the fortunes made in that industry are visible in the high-rise buildings that form the downtown skyline.

If you would like to walk or take a dime bus ride down Nicollet Mall or play in the fountains around Orchestra Hall, contact the Minneapolis Convention and Visitors Commission, 15 South Fifth St., Minneapolis, Minn.,

Lake closings rare; Belleville a problem

Despite the recent swimming ban at While they are not disease producers, Belleville Lake in western Wayne county, State Department of Natural Resources (DNR) and public health officials say most area lakes are safe for swimming.

"Generally speaking water quality in southeastern Michigan lakes and rivers has improved a lot," said Jack Patel, DNR surface water quality expert.

The reason, Patel said, is tightening of regulations and better compliance with standards set in the 1972 federal Clean Water ACT. Under the act, lakes and waterways are protected for minimum designated uses

'They are protected for at least partial body (wading) contact," said Patel. He cautioned that some rivers and lakes may not be safe, "It depends where in the river or lake we are talking about," he said.

THE BIGGEST health hazard to swimmers is the presence of raw sewage in thw water.

High fecal coliform readings are an indication of such conditions. When fecal coliform counts exceed 200 organisims per 100 milliliters ow water sample, the lake or stream is judged unsafe for total body contact (swim-great numbers of the bacteria indicate unsanitary conditions where diseasecausing bacteria may also be present.

"The concern is the ingestive danger," said John Schmidt, a Wayne county public health official. "Swimmers who would happen to swallow contaminated water could get very sick. Some people are affected more than others."

Schmidt said the county's Environmental Health Division closely monitors Highland Lake near Northville. Crescent Beach in Grosse Pointe and Belleville Lake during the summer bathing season.

"HISTORICALLY, Belleville Lake has had problems with waste discharge and storm run-offs from Washtenaw County which cause drains carrying sanitary waste to overflow," said Belleville Lake was closed for swimming in 1977 due to such conditions. We haven't had to close the lake since 1977, and we thought we had the problem licked," explained Schmidt.

Temporary closings of public beach areas are not unusual. A 1984 DNR water quality and pollution control report indicated, in a sample of 45 Michigan counties, a total of 11 public beaches were closed during the summers of 1982 and 1983.

Cresent Sail Club Beach in Wayne

County was closed for almost a month due to an unknown source of high fecal coliform count. Civic Center Beach and Memorial Park Beach in Macomb County were briefly closed due to sanitary sewer discharges.

DNR AND local health officials suggest swimmers avoid the Rouge River, citing sewer overflows.

The Huron River, which flows through Oakland, Washtenaw and Wayne counties, is deemed safer. Waters in the upper reaches of the Huron around Kent Lake are considered of good quality.

At present, industrial chemical discharges are thought to pose less threat to swimmers. DNR officials say most chemicals are treated before being discharged into waterways.

Though an occasional accident could result in the release of untreated chemicals. DNR's Jack Patel said. "Sixty percent of the time, we know the cause and have been informed by the company, and we are taking remedial ac-

Patel suggests persons sighting an unusual discharge in area waters call:

In part two, DNR officials say a bigger threat to the water quality of Michigan lakes and rivers is high nutrient loading.

Township wins — lake is reopened

staff writer

Swimmers and water skiiers were allowed back on Belleville Lake in Van Buren Township last week after Wayne County officials re-opened it.

New tests found pollution levels substantially lower than county officials had earlier believed.

While county results again showed high levels of human or animal waste contamination, samples taken by local and state officials contradicted them.

"The results were completely out of line," said Commissioner Milton Mack, D-Wayne, whose district includes the lake area. "The discrepancies were substantial."

At the urging of local officials, members of the county health department lake was closed, township Supervisor tested lake waters for five days beginning July 19 accompanied by officials from the state Health Department and contradicted county findings. Van Buren Township.

AS A RESULT, the county acted to reopen the lake to swimmers and skiiers last week based on Van Burean Township and state results.

Mack said that in the future the county won't rely on its reports alone "for that kind of decision."

Van Burean officials had complained about the initial decision to close the lake the weekend prior to July 4 because they weren't informed ahead of

He was unable to comment last week as was Glenn Brown of the county's Enviromental Health Division.

ACCORDING to Mack, the latest results show that there is a problem in testing on the same date at the same location.

While local officials found the contamination count was 10 fecal coliform organisms per 100 milliliters of water (the standard is 200), the state found it was four fecal coliform organisms per 100 milliliters of water, but the county

"We asked Mr. Brown for an explanation, but he was unable to offer one," Mack said.

"This demonstrates why you have to involve local communities in decisions of this nature because you might make a mistake if you don't," Mack said.

He said Belleville Lake, the county's principal inland lake, has had a problem with discharges over time and that will still be investigated. Two weeks ago, county commissioners approved a $60,000 study requested by County Executive William Lucas to identify the sources of that contamination.

'85 may be last year for best tax planning

rounding President Ronald Reagan's tax proposal, many investors have abandoned the idea of tax planning for

This is a wrong decision. While we must caution against rushing into investments or other transactions without forethought, this could be the last year for excellent tax planning. Here are some planning tips.

Large Write-Offs

This could be the last year for shelters with big first-year write-offs. Here are two illustrations.

Both are attractive candidates for

Because of the uncertainties sur- tax planning. The real estate shelter becomes especially attractive when we recognize that the new tax law would lengthen the depreciation schedules, thereby reducing the write-offs even

Some of the most difficult tax-strategy decisions will involve real estate particularly second homes and leveraged real-estate tax shelters.

The Reagan proposal would reduce the tax advantages of second homes by limiting personal-interest deductions, excluding those related to principal residences, to $5,000 above net investment income. Here are some examples 1985. An investor putting $20,000 in it of what can be done to reduce the im-

People who rent their vacation homes to others for much of the year would still be able to deduct a proportional amount of their mortgage interest and real-estate taxes as business expenses, which are not subject to the interest limit.

If the steps suggested above aren't sufficient, you may take special steps to increase your investment income by putting your money in high-interest savings and high-dividend stocks. The more investment income you had, the more you could borrow and tax-deduct to finance more investments.

Another interesting idea is to apply for a home-equity loan, which is a revolving line of credit secured by a mortgage against your house. When you charge consumer purchases to this account, the interest would become fully deductible.

With other shelters crumbling and effective state tax rising, long-term municipals are one of the best tax deals

An important element existing in the bond market is the persistence of historically hefty interest rates.

With inflation running at only about 3.5 percent a year, an A-rated municipal bond paying 9.5 percent earns approximately 6 percent in real terms after taxes — and attractive payoff.

We've Cut the Interest Rates!

The Michigan State Housing Development Authority (MSHDA) has reduced the interest rates on its Home Improvement Loans effective May 6, 1985.

The old rates were 3 to 10 percent, based on your annual adjusted income.

The NEW RATES are now 1 to 9 PERCENT, based on adjusted annual income.

Eligible homeowners can borrow up to $15,000, with 15 years to repay, for most kinds of permanent improvements: insulation, roofing, plumbing, room additions, electrical systems, painting, siding, handicapper access, and many others.

This 1948 Pontiac Convertible Coupe is slated to be shown at the Councours d'Elegance Sunday, Aug. 4, on the grounds of Meadow Brook Hall, Oakland University, near Rochester. The car is owned by Theodore R. Cram of Rochester Hills.

Fascinating rhythm: Hum of horsepower

Ray and Liz Lawson of Troy found their 1936 Buick four-door convertible in the eastern United States. Lawson's hobby keeps classic Buicks in the family. His father owned a Buick dealership in Royal

By Louise Okrutsky staff writer

OR MOST it's a fascination begun in childhood. Memories of cars that captivated them as youngsters are now welded into a grown-up's hobby.

Every year, these men and women display the bounty of their garages during the Concours d'Elegance on the grounds of Meadow Brook Hall, Oakand University, near Rochester. Now in its seventh year, the show of classic and memorable cars is set

For John Sullivan of Livonia, the event is another chance to show the car he drives nearly every day, a 1934 Packard Club Sedan V-12. He found the car, meant to be a formal, chauffer-driven vehicle in 1974 in Connecticut. "It was all black and I used to drive it to Lansing before I worked on it," Sullivan

With its chassis now painted butterscotch gold and terra cotta and the wheel wells a striking pumpkin color, Sullivan calls his vehicle "very exotic." At the 1982 Concours, the judges agreed and awarded it first-place honors. Sullivan's car has picked up first-place trophies in such categories as best of show and best restored in shows throughout the United States and Canada, including the prestigious Grand Classic sponsored by the Antique Car Club of America

From its driving lights that turn with the steering wheel to its automatic booster breaking system, this 1934 Packard was a pacesetter. Every 25 miles, its chassis was automatically lubricated. Its passengers were entertained by a radio built into the dashboard, another first.

An imposing mix of chrome and metal, the 1934 Packard Club Sedan was the heaviest model put out by the company. With its 150 horsepower engine and 18-inch wheels clad in white wall tires, the car weighs in at 6,500 pounds. A driver could find himself gliding along in this behemoth from Detroit at 100 miles per hour, expending one gallon of gasoline for every 13.9 miles. On the narrow lanes of early highways, the car's performance improved to 15 miles per gallon.

About eight years after that Packard model was introduced to the world its engine became entrenched in the war effort, according to Sullivan. Pilots in the cockpit of B-51 bombers and at the wheel of PT boats felt the power of the Packard's

But for Sullivan, the old cars recall his childhood in Upper Michigan's copper country. He came from a big car family. In 1931, his family drove from the Upper Pennisula to Detroit in a LaSalle Victoria coupe. He owns a 1955 Thunderbird, a 1931 Buick and a 1966 Cadillac and a 1978 Eldorado. That Cadillac, with its tan chassis and gold trim is one of only 1,700 made.

And Sullivan drives them all, even on winter roads that most classic car owners would avoid. 'You get over it after a while," he said about any owner's tendency to be wary of putting a dent in a favorite car. In fact, it doesn't make much sense to Sullivan to have a car and not to drive it. "I have a friend with a car that has two miles on it. He takes if everywhere in a trailer. I call those guys fanatcoveted, a 1936 Buick four-door convertible, in New Haven, Conn., he and his wife, Liz, spent three days driving it home to Michigan. "It's maybe not the smartest move we've ever made, but we made it,"Lawson said.

"I knew exactly what style I wanted, a '36 Phaeton. It was the largest Phaeton they made that year." Priced at $2,349, it was the most expensive car Buick brought out in that Depression year.

It was an all new body style. Buick dropped out of the market in 1935. Then they came out with this style." It was the same body Cadillac used at that time with Buick adding "its on doodads on it."

In the three years he's owned it, he's replaced some of the wood in the body and put on a new roof. Then he spruced up the car's chassis. "It looked like - a lump of coal, that what it looked like with a black chassis and a black interior.'

He had it painted pale yellow and tan with discreet red pinstripes. "It's mostly our taste. Buick didn't two tone a car like that to my knowledge. The colors are fairly close to Buick colors. They had primitive paint in those days. They didn't recommend pastels at all. There was no body to the paint," said Lawson.

His father was a Buick dealer in Royal Oak. In 1936, his father felt lucky if "he sold two cars a

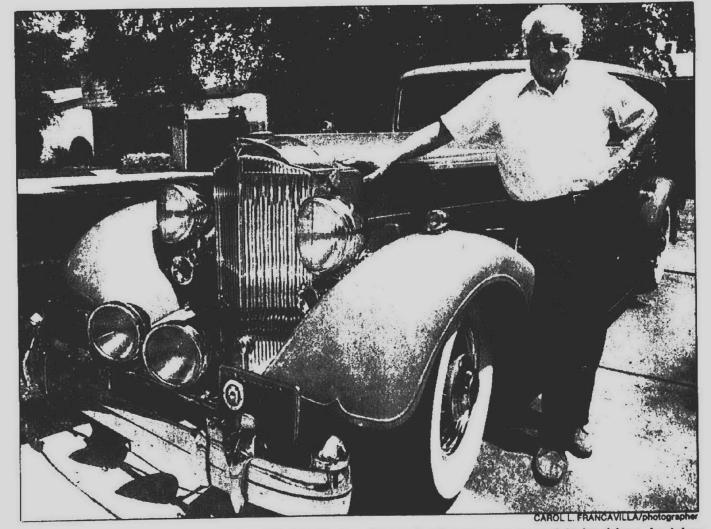

Every January his father reluctantly accepted the one 90 series limousine that Buick required its dealers to sell. At $2,295, it was considered to be very expensive and usually took the best part of a

It represented luxury incarnate, and when Lawson saw a half rusted 1938 Buick limo parked in a barn, he bought it. It was combined with the parts from two more Buick limos to create the navy blue 1938 four-door limo sedan now parked in his garage. The car took first place honors at last year's

THE ECONOMY was more optimistic in 1929 when Jerry Gray's 1929 four-door Franklin Sport Sedan first hit the road. Gray of Rochester Hills bought the car last winter because he was searching for a hobby in which his entire family could participate. He and his wife Chris have three children ages 11, 13 and 15. They found the car in Pennsylvania during a family trip expressly to purchase a classic auto. "It looked neat," Gray said. "It has a certain class. it looks just old and elegant." It also has four-wheel hydraulic brakes, "important to us

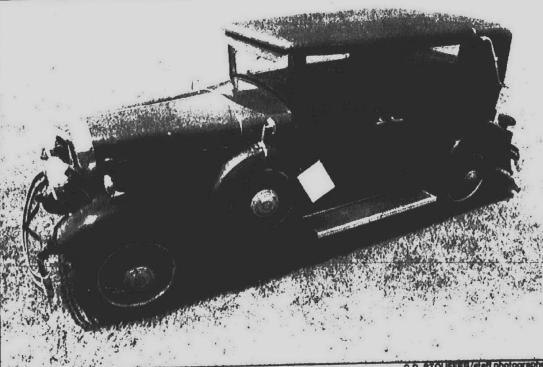

Rebuilt in 1972 as the last project of an ailing car fancier, the Gray family's Franklin didn't require extensive work. "There are little things you have to keep tweeking," he said. "You realize they were pretty smart way back when. It;s been educational for me. It's been educational for the kids, I think."

The family's car took third place at the Roches ter Heritage Festival's car classic last Memorial Day. To show off their prize, the Grays appeared in vintage costumes that Mrs. Gray has found and re-

John Sullivan of Livonia says he drives his 1934 Pack- lieves classic cars were meant to be driven, he takes ard Club Sedan V-12 every other day. A man who be-his Packard out during the winter as well.

Jerry Gray of Rochester Hills purchased his 1929 Franklin Sport Sedan to give his family a hobby everyone could enjoy.

By David Messing special writer

My diet was going just fine. I could even imagine Lorraine, (my weight watcher instructor) patting me on the back. Sandy went to the art store to work so that I could spend the day at home with the boys. When lunch time arrived it was "no problem."

I just toasted two slices of Trim Line bread (bread exchange) measured out 4 oz of tuna fish (protein exchange) and quartered a cucumber (vegetable exchange). Then with a Diet Coke in hand I stepped back, looked at the plate and said to myself, "I've been dieting for three days straight and I'm still alive." But before I could take the first bite of my healthy-legal-lo-cal lunch, my three boys came in from the pool in their usual condition; dripping wet and starved.

Since all three love peanut butter and jelly sandwiches I thought "no problem" so I quickly got out all the stuff for their unhealthy-illegal-high-cal lunch. The "problem" began when I unscrewed the lid from off of the Jiff peanut butter, every sensory nerve in my whole head came alive. Oh! The smell of peanut butter. Oh! The feel of moist high calorie bread. Listen! The unmistakable sound of the knife as it clinks against the inside of the peanut butter jar. "Oh wow," I said aloud, "look how the bread kind of sticks together where the sandwich is cut in

OH, BY the way my wife makes all the jam and jellies at our house. Do you know what homemade strawberry jam tastes like? Finally with tears in my eyes and a lump in my throat I yelled in desperation "Here . . . take 'em . . . get them out of here. I can't stand to be in the same room with 'em." Of course my own lunch had, by now, lost it's color. The bread seemed dry, the tuna bland and the cucumber . . . well I guess it was just . . . cu-

Finally with one hedonistic stroke I grabbed the knife with peanut butter and jelly still on it and licked it clean. Then, as my own reflection on the knife became clear, I looked and said to myself "Lorraine would be ashamed of you." So Thursday I will confess my sins and ask her how many cerery stalks must I consume to undo my error.

Well, for the last few weeks, I have talked about painting on location and on vacation. Of course on vacation you must travel light and that is why I recommend one color media like pencil and pen and ink. But for many artists one color media are, well, like a diet lunch if you know what I mean. So here are a few easy to tote, full color recipes for the full-color appetite.

If the smell of turps stirs you artistic juices and you are the type that has to have a brush in your hand, then travel with oil pastels. Oil pastels are very inexpensive; a set of 24 will run you about $7.05. They come in a very easy to carry, long, thin and flat box. As a studio media, oil pastels are often overlooked, but as a traveling media they can't be

First, however, I recommend you take along a few canvas boards which are flat and usually cost around $1 or carry a pad of "canvasette" (imitation canvas) or preferably a "canvas pad" which has individual sheets of canvas.

NOW WHEN and if you get time to paint on your vacation, simply block in the colors with your oil pastels. It is kind of like drawing with tubes of libstick. When you are finished blocking in color get out your little jar of turpentine and moisten your brushes. Turpentine will melt and blend all your colors to approach the look of an oil painting. The work will dry quickly and can even be painted over with oils when you return home.

If you are a watercolor lover, then travel with an assortment of cakes or "pans." These are the hard little circles or squares that most people associate with children's watercolors. Grumbacher makes a variety of sizes, colors and prices. Of course, you should use a watercolor block and you need only to carry three or four brushes. Another one of my favorite travlin' mediums is colored pencils. Now I hate to brag, but if you want to see how beautiful color pencil can be, stop by either the Livonia or Plymouth store. I am so proud of the beautiful work my students have done with this most overlooked medium. Now when you go on vacation you often treat yourself to some of the better things in life. So why not treat yourself to the best pad of paper for your colored pencils.

The canson "mi tientes" line of colored paper has always been a standard of excellence. A full sheet is 90 cents but too large for traveling. So treat yourself to their colored paper assortment pad which is only $2.70. The rich colors of berol prismacolors truely come alive against the beautiful colors and delightful tooth of Mi Tientes paper. Colored pencil do not smear or fade, but when you return from your vacation the work should, however, be sprayed with fixatif as colored pencils drawings tend to "fog." I have to end now, as I have run out of room and I must get this peanut butter off my breath before my weight watchers meeting.
