Trustees face tough choices on budget cuts

By Dennis Coffman
staff writer

The Plymouth Township Board of Trustees met Tuesday, but failed to agree on whether to hold a special millage election before the end of this year.

Trustee Andrew Pruner proposed that the board seek three mills, possibly on Nov. 5, but the motion died for lack of support.

"I feel three mills is not unreasonable," said Pruner.

Trustee Smith Horton said, "I was thinking of holding an election other than Nov. 5. I'd like to see it this year, but not Nov. 5."

Horton pointed out that the recent voter-approved Plymouth District Library probably would hold its millage election Nov. 5. "It's better that the library go on its own, as originally planned," he said.

Trustee Abe Munfakh said, "If we try for millage first and are successful, that would be an insurance certificate for the library."

The Plymouth District Library, which operates the Dunning-Hough Library for both Plymouth and Plymouth Township, is no longer funded by the township and the city.

It was expected that the township would be able to use the library funds, which amount to $146,000, or about 0.3 mill, for other purposes, following the July defeat of the township's attempt to levy four mills.

SEVERAL MEMBERS of the newly established Plymouth District Library Board of Trustees were present during the meeting.

Library Board Trustee Jack Kenyon told the township board, "You have existing obligations to the library."

Township Supervisor Maurice Breen replied, "We don't know how far that library agreement goes." Breen said the township may have a "moral obligation."

But Kenyon said the township had a "legal obligation."

Breen said he prepared a balanced budget based on existing millage. "But it's not something we should operate under," he said.

"The board has to decide between police, fire and the library," said Munfakh. "I am hoping we have a good budget that will treat everybody fairly."

"I believe we should go for another millage election of three mills," said Pruner. "We are a growing community. The millage defeat put us back in the 1950s."

"It depends on what you consider primary obligations — police, fire or the library," said Breen.

Budget-reducing possibilities include curtailed parks hours, the closing of a fire station, the elimination of dirt road spraying and not buying new voting equipment.

The board meets again Tuesday.

Jack Wilcox

Mayor to appoint Wilcox to commission

Plymouth Mayor David Pugh has announced his intentions to appoint Jack Wilcox to the Plymouth City Commission.

Pugh said he will appoint Wilcox at the Monday, Oct. 7, City Commission meeting and seek commission approval at that time.

Wilcox will fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Jack Kenyon. Kenyon resigned from the city commission after he was elected to the Plymouth Community Library Board. The city attorney ruled it would be incompatible to hold both offices.

Kenyon, who submitted his resignation Monday night and made it effective at the end of Monday's meeting, has served on the city commission since 1979. He also is a member of the Community Block Grant Advisory Council and is a member of the Plymouth Economic Development Commission (EDC).

He will continue as an EDC member while on the library board.

Monday night, Mayor Pugh presented Kenyon with a bronze plaque and expressed the commission's appreciation for his years of community service and contribution to city government.

WILCOX, OWNER of the "Wilcox House" at the apex of Kellogg Park at Union and Penniman Avenue, was born in Plymouth, graduated from Plymouth High School in 1935 and earned his bachelor of arts degree from University of Michigan in 1939.

He spent five years as assistant director of Greenfield Village and was employed for 10 years with Lincoln-Mercury Division of Ford Motor Co. He was manager of the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce in 1958-59.

Wilcox served during World War II with the Navy as ensign on the admiral's staff in Norfolk and in Hawaii and in the supply office in Philadelphia.

He entered the Naval Reserve in 1946 at the Naval Air Station in Grosse Ile, then at Selfridge Air Base, Detroit, as commanding officer of an air wing staff. He retired as a captain in 1973.

WILCOX IS a charter member of the Plymouth Theatre Guild and served as its president in 1958. He is a member of the Plymouth Historical Society and was its president in 1980. He was an organizer and board member of the Plymouth Community Council on Aging and was vice chairman of the Plymouth Economic Development Corp.

He also is a member of the Dunning-Hough Library Board, a trustee of Riverside Cemetery since 1976, member of the Municipal Tree Board, and the Block Grant Citizens' Advisory Committee. Wilcox was a member of the citizens' cable advisory committee in 1980, a member of the WSDP Advisory Committee in 1984 and a member of the Bicentennial Committee in 1976.

For many years, as a private citizen, Wilcox has attended almost every pre-commission and regular city commission meeting.

Wilcox was active on the campaign staff of Kenyon when he first was elected to the City Commission.

An extensive traveler, Wilcox has been to the Philippines five times, to Hong Kong twice, to continental Europe three times, to England 12 times, Jamaica twice, and to Singapore, Kuala Lumpur and to Bangkok, Thailand.

Second thoughts

Former commander regrets leaving township job

By Dennis Coffman
staff writer

Larry Hall, who served as Plymouth Township police commander for two months, said he regretted leaving the township and would gladly go back.

"I made a mistake," said Hall in a telephone interview. "I'd love to come back."

But Hall said he could not realistically expect the township to offer him the job he resigned on Aug. 1, two days after a millage proposal was defeated.

Hall said the connection between his resignation and the millage defeat was "overplayed." However, part of the millage was earmarked for the operation of the Plymouth Township Police Department, which was created shortly before Hall was hired to serve as its first commander.

Hall said he had "nothing but respect" for the township and that he wanted to "tie up some loose ends" regarding his decision to leave the department.

Hall said he had received telephone calls from anonymous callers. The calls, he said, were not abusive or threatening. But they apparently were enough to convince him that there was friction between the township police department and the City of Plymouth Police Department and between Plymouth Township Police Chief Carl Berry and township government officials.

Hall, who said he was hired by Plymouth Township Supervisor Maurice Breen, indicated his "communication with Berry was not that great."

THAT MAY not be surprising, in light of comments by Hall, who said, "I am not a traditional police officer. I don't believe in the brotherhood of blue."

Hall apparently was working in two jobs at the same time. A Southgate resident, Hall had been on leave from his job as a Southgate patrol officer when he accepted the position of Plymouth Township police commander — second in rank only to Chief Berry.

Unlike the City of Southgate, Plymouth Township does not require that its police officers be residents of the city where they work.

Hall's wife, Sue, is a member of the Southgate City Council and is employed by the City of Melvindale. According to Hall, he received phone calls from Southgate residents who mistakenly thought he was leaving Southgate to take the township post. Those callers, he said, urged his wife to remain on the council.

Other calls came apparently from township residents. "Some of the callers said that so-and-so said that the biggest mistake ever made was recommending that I be hired or that is typical of such-and-such."

"The question you begin to ask after awhile is, is it true or do you begin to read things into it?"

Hall said some of the callers said certain people in the township wanted Hall to leave. "I got the impression they were all well-versed."

HALL SAID he may have acted hastily in leaving his township job.

"Sometimes you make an emotional decision from a gut feeling. There were not enough facts and I had to make a decision quickly. But knowing what I know now, I would have stayed. I would have laughed off the phone calls."

"I'm sorry for the personal and professional embarrassment I might have caused. I'm sorry for that. Words like that don't come easy. I would like to come back if feasible."

But Hall's return to the township, at least in the job he once held, is unlikely because he has been replaced by Plymouth Township resident Marvin "Chip" Snider.

Snider, 34, is being paid $14,500 in a six-month contract with the township to serve as police commander. Snider's salary, which amounts to $29,000 a year, is more than the amount offered Hall, who said he was earning $26,000 a year.

Hall, 31, said he took a pay cut when he became police commander. He said he was making more as a patrol officer in Southgate.

Hall left his township job and returned to the Southgate Police Department, but he actually had never quit the Southgate job because he was still on leave.

"Sometimes we say we'd wish we had never done that or said that. But we learn more from our mistakes than our successes."

Owners still seek Omnicom buyer

By Dennis Coffman
staff writer

Capital Cities Communication Inc. is still trying to sell Omnicom Cablevision, which provides cable television to Plymouth and Canton.

"There's been a lot of interest," said Rick Collman, general manager of the cable station. "We'll know in the next couple of months."

Capital Cities must divest itself of Omnicom by Jan. 6, when a merger between Capital Cities and the American Broadcasting Co. takes place.

THE CABLE facility was offered for sale when its parent company, Capital Cities, was required to abide by Federal Communication Commission regulations that forbid dual ownership of a cable and commercial station in the same market.

Under the merger, Capital Cities will gain a commercial television station, WXYZ-TV, and other properties that would conflict with FCC rules.

"We want to make sure that whoever buys it has the ability to operate it," said Collman. "Capital Cities wants qualified people to operate Omnicom, not just the top dollar."

Collman said Omnicom has been providing tours of its facilities in Canton for prospective buyers. "Some of them have cable stations; some want to own a cable station," he said.

Goldman, Sachs and Co. is the brokerage house retained by Capital Cities to screen proposals from interested buyers.

OMNICOM provides cable service to Plymouth, Canton, Northville, Belleville and Hamtramck.

The company has yet to earn a profit because it still is paying off capital investments. Collman said Omnicom probably won't turn a profit for three to five years, though it has a positive cash flow.

A buyer of Omnicom would realize tax advantages and probable good long-range returns on investment, as the cable industry moves toward deregulation.

"I feel good about 45 percent (the percentage of residents signed up for cable). I'd feel great about 50 percent. And I'd be ecstatic about 55-60 percent," said Collman.

The cable industry is partially deregulated. Cable operators, such as Om-nicom, can raise rates to subscribers for premium movie channels, such as HBO, Showtime, Cinemax and The Movie Channel. But they are restricted in the amount they can raise rates on the basic cable package, which includes Cable News Network (CNN), The Weather Channel, the Entertainment and Sports Programming Network (ESPN), the USA Channel and WTBS.

For the basic package, Omnicom is allowed a 5 percent yearly rate increase without the approval of local governments such as Canton, Plymouth and Plymouth Township.

But beginning in 1987, the industry will completely deregulate. That means Omnicom will be able to charge whatever rate they consider reasonable, profitable or both—on every cable service, including the basic package.

No approval will be needed from local governments.

THE CABLE industry recently won another victory when the Supreme Court ruled that it did not have to provide its subscribers with local commercial television service.

Collman said the ruling will have no effect on Omnicom, which provides its subscribers with local Channels 2, 4, 7, 9, 50 and 20.

But the ruling could be important to smaller cable operators, which have fewer channels at their disposal and cannot afford to occupy them with local commercial transmissions.

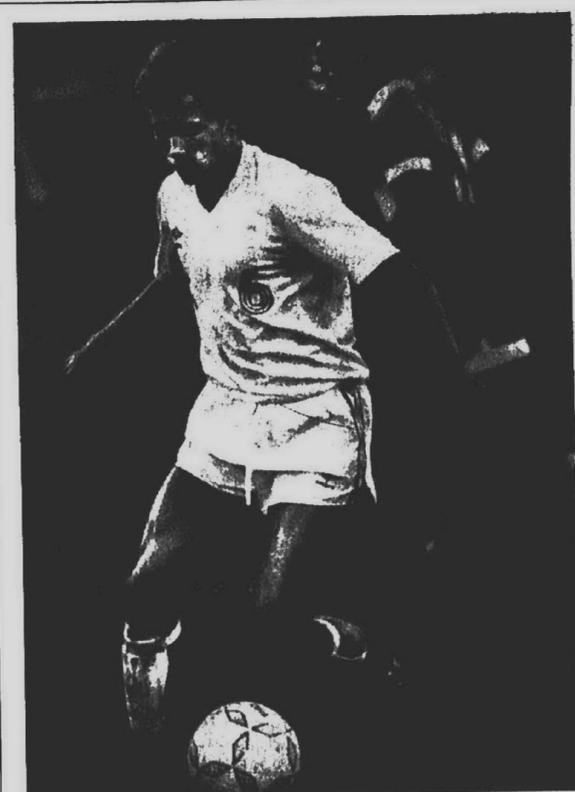

Collman said recent additions to the Omnicom lineup include N-Star, and an expanded Nickelodeon with more mature programming in its basic service.

He predicted changes beginning Jan. 1, 1987, when deregulation takes effect. "The whole lineup is subject to change," he said. "The pricing structure will have to be rearranged. It should help, rather than hurt us."

He said the sale of Omnicom will have little or no effect on programming. However, the sale would have to be approved by each of the communities with Omnicom service.

The sale of Omnicom will be combined with the sale of Clear Cablevision (Dundee, Manchester, Chelsea, Milan, Saline, Clinton, Dexter).

Capital Cities has sold most of its cable systems to the Washington Post Co. But the Post owns Detroit Television Station WDIV and is not eligible to own a local cable company.

Big sting

Living with hornets can be peaceful, but beware if you bump into their nest

By Jonathan S. Schechter
special writer

THE DOG days of summer are upon us. Time to relax, time to cool off, and perhaps time to explore your yard and find the unexpected.

You may discover a strange grey hanging object, bigger than a grapefruit, smaller than a watermelon and alive with activity — buzzing activity that will end your relaxing day and send shivers down your spine.

No, they aren't the newly arrived "killer bees" that our California friends (who must have everything first) now have. The warm weather has produced a bumper crop of Michigan's own bald-faced hornets.

What are bald-faced hornets? The hornets are the largest member of the Vespidae family, which includes most of our common wasps and yellow jackets. The vespidae family members are all very capable of stinging and are more likely to sting us than the usually docile honey bee. Before you run for the spray can, or search the yellow pages for an exterminator, you would be best off knowing a little about hornets, their life style and the dangers and delights of co-existence.

HORNETS ARE not bees any more than cows are horses, or cats are dogs. Hornets are hornets. They are heavy bodied insects, just over one-inch long, primarily black in color with white markings on the head. Thus the name "bald-faced."

They build large and conspicuous nests above ground. The nests are grey and made of simple "hornet-made" paper. The hornets chew or masticate wood fibers they strip from backyard decks, wood chips and tree bark. The pulpy product is then formed into a high quality, symmetrical and partitioned nest. Their paper-producing skills should be the envy of International Paper Co., while their interior design ability is more sophisticated than most interior designers could come up with for space efficiency.

The nest is used to raise the young larvae and as a shelter from weather. It does not store honey because hornets do not make honey. Hornets are carnivores (meat eaters) and hunt all sorts of insects on daily sorties with bees included as part of the varied diet.

A HORNET away from the nest is generally docile and pays little attention to sun bathers and picnickers. However, if someone bumps into the nest, watch out.

Hornets can be very aggressive and launch a frightening attack if the colony feels threatened. Unlike a honey bee, a hornet does not lose its stinger and can sting repeatedly. A sting from a hornet is painful, produces almost instant swelling and burning, and for the allergic, multiple stings can be a dire medical emergency.

Now for the good news.

The nests are usually above our reach and because of their large size it is hard to stumble into one by mistake. A hornet nest in your yard is good news, if the nest is up high and you are a gardener or have flower beds. The hornets will work throughout the daylight hours patrolling for insects to fill their insatiable appetites.

If you find a nest in your yard consider leaving it there, but give it a wide berth on humid days, don't run a power mower under it and don't let your kids see if they can hit it with a rock! They will not be able to run fast enough and your yard will look like the filming ground for a B-rated movie on a killer bee attack.

IF YOU opt to leave the nest alone, their life cycle has some interesting aspects.

If you are careful, you can outlast the hornets because about the time the tomato plants succumb to the frost, the hornets will be gone. The cold weather kills them all, except for the queens, which hibernate underground all winter.

The nest is never used again. (If you want to save the nest be very sure it is really empty. The warmth of a house would stir sluggish hornets into activity. Keep the nest for a few days in a sealed plastic bag in a warm place to make sure no stragglers were left inside.)

With the arrival of spring the queen emerges from hibernation and starts to function as an egg-laying machine. Once the first workers develop, the massive nest-building project starts over again.

IF THE sight of the nests makes you tremble or you are sensitive to stings, the nests can be removed.

The most expensive way is to call an exterminating company. They will usually do a good job, but may charge over $100. Be sure the company knows you have hornets, not bees, and find out what they will do.

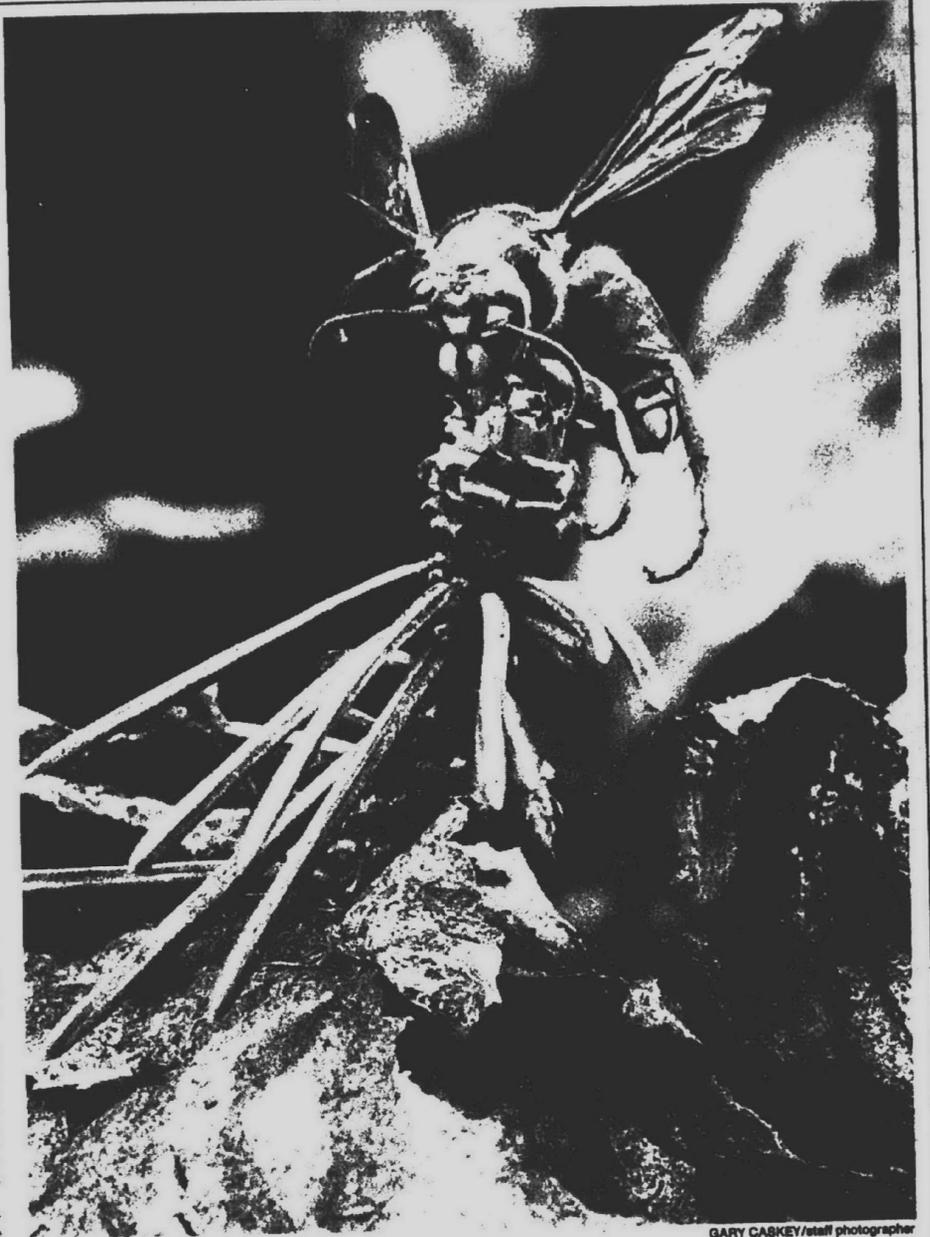

If you want to do the job yourself, it can be done if you use caution and lots of common sense. Over the counter sprays are available but the instructions MUST be followed exactly if the spraying is to be effective.

The work must be done after dark when all the hornets are back in the nest. Keep in mind that hornets are attracted to light so unless you are trying for a speedy divorce, don't have your spouse hold the flashlight as you work. Any escaping hornet will head straight for the light.

After hitting the opening (hopefully) with the jet stream, back off quickly and check the nest in the morning. It may take two treatments to get the spray where it will be most effective.

If hiring someone to get rid of the nest remember, hornets are not bees, so do not expect bee keepers to come running to your rescue.

Robbery suspect held

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Canton Township police recovered $400 following an armed robbery Sunday at the Total gas station on Ford Road.

At about 10:54 a.m. a man entered the gas station, 45350 Ford Road, and began talking with the cashier, according to Canton Police Lt. Alex Wilson.

The man suddenly produced a weapon, described by the clerk as a knife or pipe, and demanded money from the cash register, Wilson said.

Taking the cash, the robber ran down Ford Road, Wilson said. A patron who was pumping gas saw the man leaving the station. He was the only witness, Wilson said.

POLICE ARRESTED Mark Charles Borg, a 30-year-old Canton resident, who was spotted a quarter mile east of the gas station near Taco Bell on Ford Road. The Canton officer found $400 cash and a knife in Borg's back pocket.

Borg, who lives on Buckingham Road, was arraigned Monday afternoon on one count of armed robbery in 35th District Court before Judge James Garber. A plea of not guilty was entered.

Judge Garber set bond at $50,000 or 10 percent. Borg failed to post the money and was taken to the Wayne County Jail. He remained in jail Tuesday afternoon.

THE MAXIMUM penalty for armed robbery is life imprisonment.

Persons convicted of armed robbery, like first-degree murder, must serve a full sentence and are denied probation, Judge Garber said.

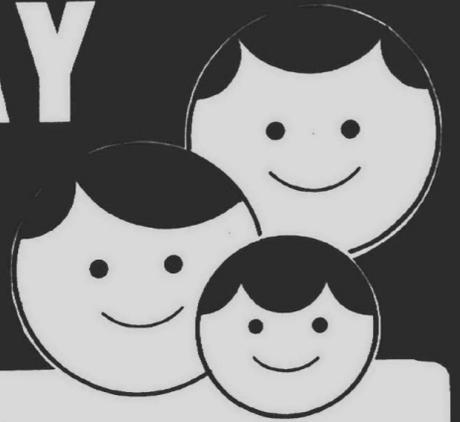

The type of weapon a robber uses is irrelevant to the seriousness of the crime, Judge Garber said. Even when robbers fake having a weapon, and victims believe they are being threatened, the act is considered an armed robbery, he added.

A preliminary examination, to determine if there is enough evidence linking Borg to the gas station robbery, is scheduled for 1:30 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 26, in 36th District Court before Garber.

CEP's marching band to compete

Thursday, September 10, 1985 O&E

P.08A

The Plymouth Centennial Educational Park (CEP) Marching Band opens its competitive season Saturday at the Eisenhower Open in Washington, Mich. The band, directed by James Griffith, will compete at Eisenhower High School, which is a meet of the Michigan Competing Band Directors Association (MCBDA). The 1985-86 marching band, percussion and color guard units have been meeting periodically throughout the summer to prepare this year's routine. On Aug. 18 the entire 180-plus members boarded buses for its annual trip to Camp Kahona, about 26 miles north of Traverse City, for a week of intensive marching and music sessions. It is during band camp that the year's routine is learned. The drill takes many hours to orchestrate and choreograph as long sessions are held each day on instrumental sectionals, marching and maneuvering, and overall musical content. COLOR GUARD members, directed by Nancy Hoffman and Chris Seippel, spend hours learning their dance routine, flag and rifle movements. Last year the CEP Marching Band and Color Guard won the MCBDA State Championships and are looking to repeat this year. This year's performance includes themes from "Perry Mason," "Mission Impossible," a concert piece entitled "First Circle" and three selections from "All That Jazz" with features by: Kristen Van Buhler, flute; Roger Moore, piccolo; Brice Cranston, guitar; and a vocal performer to be announced.

The PCEP Band Boosters will host the MCBDA State Championships on Saturday, Oct. 26, for the fourth straight year. Other competitions this year include the Bridgeport Invitational on Sept. 28, the Flushing Open Oct. 6, Tropicana Bowl in Cincinnati Oct. 12, and the Durand Invitational Oct. 19. The marching band also will entertain at halftime of all home football games of Plymouth Salem High and Plymouth Canton High.

Hypnosis clinic attacks smoking, weight loss

Are you literally allowing your life to go up in smoke and are you enjoying life less than you could with a smaller, healthier body?

If so, the opportunity is being offered to stop smoking or lose weight with hypnosis as your helper.

The Plymouth Community Family YMCA is offering seminars designed by Jim Hoke, author and behavior counselor who has specialized in hypnosis for 14 years.

The stop smoking seminar will begin at 6 p.m. and the weight control seminar at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 25, at Plymouth Township Hall, Mill at Ann Arbor Road.

The seminars will be conducted by Pat Carroll who was trained by Hoke.

The $30 fee is refundable halfway through the seminar if participants are not satisfied. Registrations are being taken by the YMCA by phone at 453-2904.

"Smokers wanting to give up cigarettes won't try because they fear being grouchy, nervous, irritable and mean," says Hoke. "Overweight people wanting to slim down get angry just thinking about a diet, expecting they'll feel hungry, deprived, tense and unhappy."

No matter what the problem, he said, people are programmed to look upon the solution as painful — but it doesn't have to be that way.

"Hypnosis makes changes like stopping smoking and losing weight feel good, instead of miserable."

An on-going survey, adds Hoke, shows that four of five smokers who complete the Self Psych program become non-smokers and eight clients have lost as much as 259 pounds.

Hoke is president of Self Psych Inc.

State Jaycees back balanced budget drive

The 9,000-member Michigan Jaycees organization will join the effort for a balanced-budget amendment to the U.S. Constitution, President Rick Young said.

Young, 31, of Rochester, announced at a news conference in Detroit that the Jaycees adopted the balanced-budget initiative as a "major emphasis" project for this fall. The group has more than 200 chapters.

Young said the group will conduct door-to-door canvassing for signatures on advisory petitions which will be turned in to state legislators in late October.

At present, 32 of the required 34 states have petitioned the U.S. Congress for a constitutional convention to achieve a balanced budget. The effort actually is aimed at prompting Congress to pre-empt the issue by advancing its own balanced-budget amendment without a constitutional convention.

Besides the Jaycees, the coalition for the balanced-budget amendment includes the Michigan Association of Realtors, the State Chamber of Commerce, the Farm Bureau, Michigan Bankers Association, Michigan Homebuilders Association, Michigan Manufacturers Association and National Federation of Independent Business.

Hall regrets leaving police post

Hall said that about the time he resigned he was experiencing personal pressures as his mother was ill.

BUT HALL'S resignation might be more accurately traced to a difference in styles.

Hall, who has been teaching a class in criminal justice for nine years at Henry Ford Community College, said he does not consider himself a wallflower.

"I don't consider myself a typical police officer," he said. "My intention is not to show but to share. What attracted me to the Plymouth Township Police Department was not the title or the pay. What attracted me was the philosophy, the conceptual idea of participative management."

Hall said participative management was a method whereby the lower echelons of the department are brought into decisions.

"Police departments are like a pyramid. Everything comes from the top to the bottom. The new concept is the inverted pyramid, from bottom to top. It gives an individual the opportunity to be a part of the system."

Hall said he has sent written communications to the township about creating an intermediary position, "between the top and the bottom."

He said he expressed in writing the direction the department should be taking. "I wish I could go back, because I'd be better because I have learned so much, and I expressed that in my letter."

Hall offered his suggestions for obtaining passage of millage, if the township tries again. He said the millage request should be more specific about the use to which the levy would be put.

And why did Hall apply for the Plymouth Township job in the first place? "You have to be promoted in Southgate according to time on the job. There was no avenue for promotion," said Hall.

"I took a cut in pay and benefits to come to the township. They were willing to test an unknown quantity. I was honored to be considered for the position. I was very grateful.

"I would love to come back. It would be good for the township. We have all made mistakes. I'm sorry I left. You don't slam doors. I want to leave the door open," said Hall.

OCC to hear Patterson on death penalty

Oakland Community College's distinguished speaker series will feature Oakland Prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson discussing the death penalty Tuesday, Oct. 1.

The free public lecture will begin at 9:30 a.m. in the Smith Performing Arts Theatre on the Orchard Ridge campus, Orchard Lake Road at I-696 in Farmington Hills.

Patterson is leading another petition drive to place the issue on the 1986 ballot.

An opposing view will be presented at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 21, by Howard Simon, executive director of the American Civil Liberties Union of Michigan.

Enrollment rising again

Enrollment in Plymouth-Canton Community Schools is again on the increase, following several years of decline.

Although the figures are not official until the fourth Friday of classes, Sept. 27, there is a preliminary indication that enrollment is up by 226 students for the 1985-86 school year.

Enrollment spurts have taken place at the upper and lower ends of the school system. For 1985-86, there is an increase in elementary and high school students of more than 100 each and a decrease in middle school of more than 100.

The average class size for the district is 30 students; for kindergarten, 25 students per class.

The student count for 1985-86 is 15,900. For 1984-85, it was 15,752. However, the district can include only 400 fulltime adult education equivalents at the Detroit House of Correction (DeHoCo) this year, compared to 588 last year.

The drop in eligible enrollment at DeHoCo was made up by an increase in non-adult education enrollment.

The seven-year enrollment trend: 1979, 16,873 (327 adult education); 1980, 17,269 (366); 1981, 16,887 (455); 1982, 16,297 (474); 1983, 15,750 (538); 1984, 15,752 (588); and 1985, 15,900 (400).

State aid to education is tied to enrollment. Projected state aid for the district for the coming year is $7.3 million, an increase of $130,000.

French from d'Etroit face loss of Ohio Valley

Today, Sept. 19, 1749, we have reached a place where the great Miami River meets the Ohio. Here we buried our lead plates. (For the story of France's effort to hold Michigan and the Ohio Territory, read this column in the Observer for June 27, July 17, Aug. 8, 29).

Tomorrow we head north again to our homes at Fort Ponchartraine, d'Etroit, and to Montreal and Quebec. I long to see my little cabin on the beautiful river at d'Etroit. What an adventure this has been! Just a few weeks ago we were nearly scalped. We were lucky to escape. Let me tell you about that experience.

Last Aug. 22, on a miserable, grey, rainy day, we approached an Indian settlement and French trading post we call St. Yotoc. (Today this place on the Scioto River is called Portsmouth, Ohio).

High on the embankment overhead we saw about a hundred Shawnees whooping and yelling about a bonfire. They had on their war paint and fighting eagle feathers and seemed to be trying to work themselves up for something. They looked like demons from hell cavorting in a sea of angry smoke.

CAPTAIN CELORON sent our guide, Chabert Joincaire, and his aide up the steep embankment with about 20 pounds of beads and some other trinkets and a message for their chief.

For this kindness, they grabbed the beads, and shot the fleur-de-lis out of the flag of France Joincaire was carrying. They also sent a few arrows toward us. Chabert Joincaire showed great courage, never flinching. He appeared to be undaunted by their hostility and proceeded along a well-worn path toward their chief's long house.

All the while this was going on, some of the Shawnees kept prancing around their bonfire, while others brandished knives of a sharp steel-like substance that the British could make so well. This signalled to us that the Anglials had taken over.

At this point, there was nothing we could do except to fill our powder horns and wait it out. We could not run away, or retreat one inch without provoking a slaughter. There was no place to run to, and counter action would be suicide.

So we waited, and we waited. OUR 23 canoes were strung out, single file, along the river like sitting ducks. And as we waited, we watched.

Some of us who could remember our prayers called upon bon Dieu again and again. I noticed that the good Father Bonnacamp, who was our chaplain on this expedition, was particularly fervent in his whispered invocation.

And so we waited. And what was only about 10 minutes seemed to be like 10 hours when Chabert finally emerged from the long house with their chief.

Their leader was a light-skinned Indian, perhaps a half-breed like Chabert. They seemed to be talking freely in a dialect they both understood.

I could not fathom this because I know that the Shawnee dialect is related to the Algonquin from whom they originally came, while Chabert Joincaire was the son of a French officer and a Seneca princess and spoke fluent Iroquoian. Perhaps Chabert knew more than I gave him credit for.

Anyhow, the threats ended, the raucous racket ceased, and Joincaire and his aide returned safely to the waiting boats.

In accord with whatever agreement was made, the aide climbed the cliff one more time with two more jugs of brandy and two more boxes of beads. This seemed to satisfy them, and we pushed safely ahead, intending to put as much distance as we could between us before nightfall.

OF THIS incident at Portsmouth, Celoron wrote in his journal, "I knew the weakness of my party, two-thirds of which were young men who had never left home before, and would have all run at the sight of ten hostile Indians. Still, there was nothing for me but to keep on; for I was short of provisions, my canoes were badly damaged, and I had no pitch or bark to mend them. So I embarked again, ready for whatever might happen. I had good officers, and about 50 men who could be trusted."

(Celoron's Journal as well as Father Bonnacamp's may be found in a translated edition in New York Colonial Documents, Vol 5; and it is also excerpted in the Colonial Records of Pennsylvania as well as in Francis Parkman's "Montcalm and Wolfe.")

WHEN WE WERE in Pennsylvania, we came across several places where oil bubbled right out of the ground.

We used this stuff with some asphalt-like dirt to try to patch our boats, but we did not have time to let them dry properly, so they were in sad shape by the time we reached the Shawnee territory.

After a few weeks, we came to a place we thought might still be ours. It was a great trading post that France had long controlled. Imagine our disappointment to find it full of British traders and soldiers.

This was the Indian village of an old chief we had thought of as a friend. In fact, he was so soft we called him La Demoiselle. He was the chief of the Miami Confederacy, and his headquarters was at Pickawillany (Piqua, Ohio).

The Miami swarmed to the shore and greeted us with a salute of musketry. Celoron said, "they fired full a thousand shots, for the English gave them powder for nothing."

(The interview with LaDemoiselle, and the long trip back to d'Etroit will have to wait for another time. In truth, we were beaten down to our heels at this point. Our boats were taking on water, our rations were exhausted, and we were trying to live off the land, and with the help of friendly Indians. We were shocked to find that our old friends, the Miami, joined the British camp.)

UNWASHED, UNKEMPT, half-starved, punished by our erstwhile friends among the Indians and shot at by the British, we now knew that we must retreat to Fort Ponchartraine as soon as possible.

The governor general, the Marquis La Galissoniere, was so right when he said, "The only way we can make use of the Ohio Valley is to fill it with 10,000 French peasants."

He had advertised all over France for emigrants to d'Etroit and this valley. He promised that these families would be carried across the sea at the king's expense, and every settler would receive a free gift of a gun, a hoe, an axe, a ploughshare, a scythe, two augers, large and small, a saw, six hens, a cock, six pounds of powder, and 12 pounds of lead. And to these favors were added many others.

In 1749, there were only 49 emigrants to Detroit, and half of these ran away after they had acquired the king's largesse. And this is life in 1749 and here we are trying to find our way home again.

(Our next chapter of Tonquish Tales will tell us of La Demoiselle and of George Washington's interest in the Ohio Valley and the fort at d'Etroit.)

County eyes state fund for trash cleanup

The state Department of Natural Resources last week unveiled for Wayne County officials a $10 million "consolation" prize. It's called the Clean Michigan Fund Program.

"The program is a good first step," said Fred Clinton of the DNR. "It's the start of a trend toward looking seriously at the state's garbage disposal problems."

Clinton, supervisor of DNR's recycling and recovery unit, met with members of the Wayne County Solid Waste Implementation Committee to describe the funding program. "It will be the most comprehensive program of any state in the nation," he predicted.

ESTABLISHED BY the Michigan Legislature in July, the fund's aim is to lessen state-wide dependence on landfills. The program will provide direct and matching grants to public, private and non-profit organizations for projects that emphasize resource recovery and de-emphasize landfill usage.

"The bottom line is a safe-useful end for a variety of materials," said Clinton.

The new program became a "consolation" prize because it was born when a multi-million dollar incinerator-recycling bonding proposal failed to reach last November's ballot.

At the time a $350 million bond proposal was scrapped by a legislative committee. Gov. James Blanchard, along with several special-interest groups, was said to favor spending a smaller sum — $10 million to $15 million — on resource recovery and associated solid waste projects.

"I FELT the way to go back then was the bond proposal," said Solid Waste Implementation Committee Chairman Milton Mack. "The issue was dropped because the legislature feared voter reprisal.

"They didn't give enough credit to the voters. The voters will support tax increases if they feel there is a genuine need," said Mack, a county commissioner from Wayne whose district includes Canton Township.

According to Mack, the need to solve the state's solid waste problems is urgent because "we are losing valuable time."

Current estimates are that Wayne County will run out of landfill capacity in about seven years despite the planned construction of an incinerator in Detroit and the re-opening of the Central Wayne Sanitation Authority's (CWCSA) incinerator, Mack said.

"The five CWCSA communities — Dearborn Heights, Garden City, Inkster, Wayne and Westland along with Detroit — will be in good shape. Everywhere else will be in trouble," he said. "Where will these other people take their garbage?"

Mack echoed DNR supervisor Clinton's words about the Clean Michigan Fund. "This is the first time the state is going to do something substantive about the solid waste problem." He said the action will be felt at the local level and will demonstrate the interest of the public in safe garbage disposal.

THE $10 MILLION dollar fund will be allocated to a variety of projects:

- Waste stream assessments.
- Recycling and composting feasibility studies.
- Waste-to-energy feasibility studies.
- Recycling/composting capital and operations.
- Market development, education and publicity.

- Closure of municipal landfills and dumps.
- Transfer station construction.
- Household hazardous waste collection.

APPLICANTS for the grants must meet two main requirements:

1. The proposed site or activity must be in a county with an approved solid waste management plan. (Wayne and Oakland counties both have DNR approved plans.)
2. The project must have a show of commitment from the local unit of government.

Nov. 15 is the deadline for completed applications. Requests for appropriate application materials should be addressed to: Department of Natural Resources, Community Assistance Division, Resource Recovery Section, PO Box 30028, Lansing 48908.

Chief thanks fest helpers

To the editor:
The Plymouth Fall Festival is history for 1985, and was successful because of the hard work of everyone associated with the event.

I would like to give recognition to three volunteer groups whose contributions assured an orderly, safe weekend for all our visitors.

The Plymouth REACT group had a base station established on the grounds, and patrolled the festival area to monitor activity.

The Plymouth Area Citizens Team

(FACT) assisted the officers in their booth, and provided an important security function at our police impound lot.

Finally, the Plymouth Police Auxiliary worked its first event and demonstrated the value and effectiveness of a trained volunteer unit. The combination of the auxiliary's support and the police officers' experience and direction made for a teamwork approach to successful crowd management.

On behalf of the hard-working officers of the Plymouth Police, we thank all these and the many other volunteers who make Fall Festival a rich Plymouth tradition.

Why hawks soar at Amherstburg

By Timothy Nowicki
special writer

AUTUMN is the time when nature begins making preparations for winter.

Insects lay eggs or develop into larva that will rest all winter long. Frogs will soon bury themselves in the soft mud of a pond to await the spring. Monarch butterflies and many species of birds leave the harsh northern climate and migrate south to spend the winter.

Thousands of birds follow the Great Lakes shorelines as they make their way to South America. En route, they pass over Holiday Provincial Park, south of Amherstburg, Ontario, on the nature

Detroit River.

ONE BIRD, the broad-winged hawk, migrates through our area from northern Canada in impressive numbers.

Starting in mid-September and continuing into mid-October, thousands of broad-winged hawks congregate overhead. Despite their three-foot wingspan; it is difficult to see them without binoculars.

High in the sky are large, swirling circles of hawks called "kettles." Birds form kettles in order to gain altitude by rising on the upward currents of air formed by changes in the earth's surface. Several hundred birds can be seen in each kettle, and several kettles can be seen in the sky.

They gain altitude at Amherstburg so they can soar across Lake Erie by gradually losing altitude as they move toward Ohio.

MORNING IS the best time to see large numbers of birds moving through. I remember one morning several years ago when I saw about 13,000 hawks go by within three hours.

In addition to the high kettles, there are smaller hawks that migrate closer to the ground. Sharp-shinned hawks and kestrels can be seen regularly.

During fall months, especially, hawk watchers around the U.S. congregated several places where birds have been migrating for several thousand years. Last year 8,000 people visited Hawk Mountain near Kempton, Pa., one weekend to watch these magnificent birds soar by.

It's amazing that such a phenomenon involving such large numbers of such large birds has been going on for years, yet most people are unaware of the spectacle.

County offers flu shots in suburbs

Older persons and those with chronic conditions may receive influenza shots from the Wayne County Health Department at several suburban locations.

At risk, according to Health Department Director Donald Lawrenchuk, M.D., are persons with:

- Chronic underlying disorders of the cardiovascular, pulmonary or renal systems.
- Metabolic diseases such as diabetes mellitus or severe anemia.
- Impaired immune functions.

"WE STRONGLY urge anyone in those categories to consult their physicians about the need for obtaining this year's vaccine," Dr. Lawrenchuk said.

AMONG LOCATIONS where shots will be administered are:
• Westland Health Center (former county general hospital), Merriman north of Michigan Avenue — 8:30-11:30 and 1-3:30 weekdays; 3:30-7 p.m. Wednesdays.

• Livonia Senior Citizens, 10800 Farmington Road — Oct. 17 from 9-11:30 and 1-3:30 by appointment only (call 422-5010).

National Merit scholars announced

Seven seniors from Plymouth and Canton have been named scholarship semifinalists this week by the National Merit Scholarship Corp. Among 15,000 students nationwide to achieve semifinalist standing were: (foreground, from left) Maley Mody of Plymouth Salem High (left) and Gale Tang of Plymouth Canton High; (sitting, from left) Marjorie McClennen of Canton High, Peter Q. Zeiler of Canton High and Wendy Burleson of Salem High; and Matt Moran (standing) of Canton High. Semifinalists have completed the first step in the competition for about 5,800 Merit Scholarships, worth nearly $21 million, to be awarded this spring. More than 1 million juniors entered the competition by taking a qualifying test, the PSAT/NMSQT, in October 1984. The top scorers in each state, representing less than half of 1 percent, are included in the semifinalists.

'Urban U' reaches to suburbs, taps pride

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Wayne State University was part of Detroit Public Schools until the 1950s, when it was taken over by the state. Since then, it has been referred to as an "urban university."

But WSU President David Adamany is giving the 29,000-student state university a high profile in suburbia, too. Moreover, he is systematically welding together a "higher education community" in the tri-county area.

If Adamany has his way, WSU alumni, even without a nationally televised football team to boast, will be "willing to stick their heads up and say, 'Hey, I'm from Wayne.'"

"We didn't seize our role when we became a state university," said Adamany, who in three years has made himself one of the most visible college presidents in Michigan.

ADAMANY (pronounced "Adam-annie"), a 47-year-old lawyer and political scientist, related in a recent interview how he has "a somewhat different view of Wayne State than has been traditional." Once Wisconsin's secretary of revenue, Adamany was academic vice president of the University of Maryland when WSU tapped him to be its eighth president.

He was asked about:
● A series of dinner meetings he has held with the presidents of both two-year and four-year colleges in southeastern Michigan.

● A half-dozen full-page ads in Observer & Eccentric Newspapers touting WSU programs both on the main Detroit campus and in suburban extension centers.

● WSU's hiring of a new high-powered dean of the College of Lifelong Learning, which operates "week-end college" degree programs, non-credit offerings and community education programs.

● His three-year effort to avoid a student tuition increased — an effort that has won him warm applause in the Michigan Legislature but less popularity among other college presidents.

THE ADVERTISING, he said, is aimed at more than merely recruiting students as higher education enrollments slump. It's aimed at building "alumni pride."

That can translate into dollars as Wayne, like many public institutions, knocks on alumni and corporate doors for donations. "We have 50-60 percent (employee) participation rates in some corporations," Adamany said.

Wayne graduates are particularly prominent in Detroit Edison Co., Ford Motor Co. (one-third of the degree-holders), Michigan Bell Telephone Co. and Chrysler Corp.

"We're seeing much more pulling together," he said, pointing to "networks" of Wayne alumni in major companies.

"We have very large numbers of alumni in the suburbs," Adamany said. "And 60 percent of our students commute 10 miles or more."

ADAMANY SEES Wayne emerging as a major source of professional talent in the region. Items:

● Wayne is the "principal law school for preparing people to practice in Michigan." The last State Bar exam was taken by 210 WSU Law School graduates and 90 from the University of Michigan. WSU's "pass rate" was 1 percent higher than U-M's "to our enormous pride and joy."

What it means, Adamany said, is that "U-M's best are being siphoned off to the East Coast, West Coast and Chicago while our best are remaining here to become leaders of the bar." He won't say WSU is better — just that "Wayne is as good a choice as U-M."

● Statewide, there are "nearly as many school superintendents from Wayne as from U-M."

● Wayne is the greatest producer of medical doctors.

"I HAVE TRIED to get the presidents of all the two-year and four-year colleges in southeastern Michigan together to share problems and develop more of a higher education community," Adamany said.

"We want to offer programs throughout the metropolitan area in a way that will not compete with community colleges. Our Sterling Heights center, for example, doesn't compete with Macomb Community College.

"We have to be careful not to stir up tensions and not duplicate."

Richard McDowell, president of Schoolcraft College, has praise for those dinner meetings and the efforts at "articulating" programs between the two-year community college and four-year university.

Wayne has five extension centers. Last month Adamany hired Lawrence Murphy of Central Michigan University to direct Wayne's Weekend College, non-credit operations, continuing education and community program for inner city minority students. Central considered Murphy, a historian by background, "one of the nation's foremost leaders in non-traditional education."

"I see the metropolitan area as a single area," said Adamany. "We intend to serve it all."

WHERE ACADEMIA and industry once were strictly separated, Michigan has gone heavily into university-industry partnerships. Adamany expects the change and points to areas where Wayne is moving.

"K mart has endowed a chair in marketing in our business school. With Ford, we have a master's and certificate programs for engineers in automation."

"We are in a consortium to do research on unmanned vehicles with KMS Fusion, Lear Siegler and Continental Teledyne."

As Wayne graduates move up corporate ladders and become more visible, Adamany expects their pride will translate into fund-raising efforts. Wayne raised $2.4 million in 1982-3, the year Adamany became president, and this year it set a $4.3 million goal. After 10 months, the university raised $5.04 million, and expects to raise $5.3 million.

SOME MONEY goes to scholarships, a matter of great concern to Adamany because of high tuitions.

Arriving here in 1982, Adamany found Wayne had the unhappy distinction of ranking third highest in the nation in tuition rates among public universities.

Three years of holding the line on tuition have brought Wayne down to sixth.

"Some schools such as medicine raise a lot, and some don't," Adamany said. "We are still fighting a war about pride in our institution. We have a long way to go."

Dealers fear sales now, slump later

By W.W. Edgar
staff writer

There are mixed emotions along the automobile rows in the Plymouth community.

All of the dealers are delighted with business. They claim sales are greater at the moment than they had any reason to expect.

But behind these smiles is the thought that they are selling their future.

"That 7 per cent interest rate and other aids has boosted business almost to the hilt," one of them said.

"Sure business is good," he said, "but while we are getting rid of the 1985 models, I hate to think about the lack of sales that may hinder us with the new models when they come out."

ANOTHER EXPLAINED, "I'd rather see a poorer sales month or two right now and then be able to get a full share of profit when the new models arrive. As it is now, people are buying 1985 models, and I know they won't be in the market for the 1986. But they won't be if the 1985 sales keep as they are."

The feeling of the Plymouth dealers was in keeping with General Motors Chairman Roger Smith, who told the members of the Detroit Economic Club that there might be a great slump next year unless some idea can brace the market.

He reported that this is only the second time in automobile history that 15 million vehicles have been sold. But, he added, there may be a falling off when the new models come out — unless help comes in some way or other.

Take closer look at Fall Festival

BEFORE THE end of the month, the Plymouth Fall Festival Board of Directors will meet to critique the 1985 Fall Festival and to consider how to improve next year's edition.

This may be the year that the board takes a real hard look at the festival's past and future.

In recent years, there has been an increasing volume of dissent about the festival's taking on a "carnival" atmosphere. The criticism has been aimed more at the collection of food booths along Main Street than at the kiddie rides and games.

A couple of years ago, there were rumblings in one major service club about pulling out of the Fall Festival and scheduling its fund-raising meal at another time. This year, rumblings have been heard from another service club that it might drop its "main meal" and pull out of the Fall Festival.

THE PROBLEM of the service clubs (Rotary, Kiwanis, Lions, Jaycees) is that the food booths take away customers from the pavillion area where the "main meals" are served.

Instead of buying pancakes, a ham, fish, spaghetti or chicken dinner, many festivalgoers will opt for a hot dog, shish-kebob, taco or pita-burger at the booths.

As long as the booths are present, the choice rests with the consumer. If the food booths are removed, however, then festivalgoers have the choice of eating at one of the main meals or driving out of town to a fast food restaurant (if cheaper fare is desired).

Some major service clubs which depend on the Fall Festival as their major fund raiser argue that the food booths subtract from their sales and reduce their community service funds for scholarships, park renovations, senior citizen services, and other projects. (Some of the service club funds also go to groups which run the booths.)

BOOTH OPERATORS also depend on the Fall Festival for fund raising. The difference is that many organizations which run booths hold other fund raisers during the year or have other funding sources. And other arrangements could be made, if the decision were made to clear the booths off Main Street.

Just this summer, for instance, the athletic and band boosters at the high schools had a successful fund raiser by running the parking lots for the balloon festival. Or other fund-raising ventures could be incorporated into the fall festival.

The point is that the Fall Festival originated, in part, to be the prime fund raiser for major service clubs who return that money to the community.

If that purpose is threatened, then the Fall Festival Board needs to decide if it wants either to return to its original purpose or to become a fund-raising avenue for everyone at the risk of losing one or more "main meals."

THE OTHER POINT to consider is that originally the Fall Festival also was to be a cultural event.

We still have such cultural highlights as the Antique Mart, Artist and Craftsman Show, Three Cities Art Exhibit, historical exhibits and craft demonstrations, antique cars, and the entertainment at the bandshell.

Many argue that more cultural attractions could be incorporated into the festival if Main Street were emptied of the booths and that space made available. That argument also is worthy of consideration by the Fall Festival Board.

The issue needs to be addressed — not to cause a split between worthy community groups or to create dissension among participants — but for the future of the Fall Festival. Some communities nearby with similar events (e.g., Farmington Founders Festival) have lost their festivals because the main purpose of the event was forgotten.

AS A COMMUNITY, we need to consider what is best for the Fall Festival.

If the present arrangements are best, service clubs need to adapt to the new conditions and go from there.

But if the festival is too much of a carnival and a decision is made to reduce or eliminate the booths, then the community needs to find an alternative fund-raising project for those groups. Finding such an alternative is not only possible, but quite probable.

But first the Fall Festival Board must decide 1) what need it wants the festival to fulfill and 2) how well that goal is being met.

— Plymouth Observer

Feud in a pasture

EVERY YEAR when the football season gets under way, it has been customary to take a trip down Memory Lane to recall one of the most bitter and ferocious games every played.

It wasn't a feature game in a stadium. It wasn't played in a ball park. It was played in what we called the creek field back home in the Pennsylvania Dutch country.

It was a rather odd display as we had to wait until the cows were through grazing before we could paint lines on the field and clear sufficient ground for the spectators.

THE GAME CAME about when a feud broke out in our high school. It just so happened that none of the fellows who could not complete the four-year curriculum was invited to try out for the school varsity. Only the offspring of the well-to-do were asked, and there were bitter feelings among the dropouts.

Right then, we fellows who were facing rather hard times at home and felt we couldn't finish the term decided we would have our own team.

To gain some sort of recognition, we called ourselves the Boy Scouts, and we practiced under the arc light on the edge of town where traffic wasn't heavy.

Once we got organized, we challenged the high school team for a game on Thanksgiving Day. In fact, we dared them to play us.

The challenge was accepted, but it caused a bit of debate all around town. We Scouts were looked upon as a band of traitors who would dare to upset the official school. Even the teachers preached about it in the morning classes.

FINALLY CAME Thanksgiving Day morning. The creek field was cleared. The goal posts were put in place, and the lines were set to guide the spectators.

the stroller
W.W. Edgar

drew moans or cheers from the crowd, and there were quite a few parents on hand to cheer their boys.

Over night, it had rained a bit, and the field was soggy. But the game went on without a score during the first half. We were a sorry looking sight, all covered with mud — at least we thought it was mud.

There were shouts to score. No one wanted a tie game or one without any scoring.

THE BREAK came with only a few minutes to play. Our Scouts recovered a fumble deep in the school's end of the field. It was the sort of break we had been waiting for.

There was a quick huddle, and it was decided that we would fake a drop kick field goal. In the maneuvering, our fullback dropped back as if to kick.

As the "rich boys" team lined up to spoil a field goal attempt, our fullback, a lad named Tom Harleg, wrapped his arms around the ball, bowed his head and crashed through the line for a touchdown. We missed the extra point, but our "poor fellows" won the game, 6-0.

It was a game that never will be forgotten — a game between rivals played in a cow pasture after the field had been cleared.

It resulted in one final rule: The school team no longer was allowed to take on an independent team, whether the boys had ever gone to the school or not.

A compromise on smoking

THE IMAGE — it's tough to change. If you've seen it once, you've seen it a hundred times: harried reporters pounding out deadline stories, cigarettes dangling from their mouths, a blue haze of smoke swirling through the dimly lit newsroom.

You've seen it in the movies. I've seen it in the newsroom. There is a lot of truth about journalists' love for smoking on deadlines. And although the image sticks with journalists, you've probably seen the same deadline-type smokers in your office.

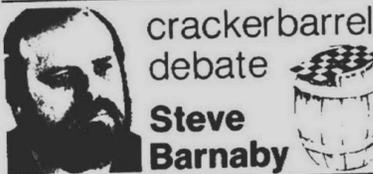

I know because I'm a smoker. Oh, sure, I quit smoking nearly five years ago, but I'm a smoker nevertheless. Most smokers are like alcoholics, you know. They just don't have an occasional cigarette. Most veer around the two pack-a-day habit.

UNFORTUNATELY FOR those of us who manage to break the habit, we never really leave it behind.

The urge to smoke is never-ending. That's because most people who smoke enjoy it. That's right, they love stoking up the smokes.

It's tough for those who have never smoked to understand that smoking can be a pleasure — just as tough as it is for smokers to understand why others deprive themselves.

And smoking in the workplace is becoming a serious problem in today's business world.

PROBLEMS ARISE when working out a compromise between smokers and non-smokers in the workplace. They have little understanding of one another.

Instead, the debate has become one of the most divisive issues among employees. Friendships are broken and efficiency thwarted. Workers refuse to speak to one another.

Sounds silly, I know. But it's true.

So it's time we came to our senses. State Sen. Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, has been attempting to etch out a compromise for years. In the past he has received little support from his colleagues.

But this year is different. He has 20 co-sponsors — enough votes to pass the bill through the Senate.

On the House side, state Rep. Justine Barns, D-Westland, is touting the identical legislation. The bills, if passed, would be a big step toward compromising on the clean-air-in-the-workplace issue.

BOTH SMOKERS and non-smokers should feel comfortable in supporting the measure. In short, the bill would allow smoking in all places except in "a public place or at a meeting of a public body, except in designated smoking areas."

Pretty liberal wording, if you ask me. Business is in a quandary over this smoking issue. More and more employees are demanding that something be done to extinguish the blue haze around their desks.

But smoking has tradition on its side. And tradition, we all know, is a potent force in American life.

AT A RECENT legislative hearing, one clean-air activist blamed companies saying they were practicing "marshmallow management," leaving it up to employees to police one another.

Maybe that's true. But everyone seems stymied by this issue. After all, the smoking issue isn't a biggie at the bargaining table. But that's because some people like to smoke, and other people would rather let them be, if only not to be bothered by their smoke.

So this is the year to get on the Faxon-Barns bandwagon and support an agreement with which we all can live.

Two very different execs

THIS IS about two county executives.

Both are Republicans. Both profess to believe in "privatization" — hiring private contractors, where feasible, to do jobs for government. Both are eyeing higher office.

There the similarity ends.

THE LESS sensational story concerns Oakland's Daniel T. Murphy, who has talked in general terms about using a private contractor to run new jail facilities.

Last week a Democratic county commissioner raised some questions during a discussion of jail renovations. The commissioner wanted to know if there was any money in the 1985 budget for a study of privatization of the jail. He also requested status reports on progress toward a privately run jail.

Given the floor by board Chairman Richard Wilcox, Murphy responded that there was no special study as such, that the administration was holding conversations with interested parties, and that a member of the board's planning and building committee, Richard Kuhn Jr. of Waterford, was sitting in on the conversations.

"Rich Kuhn will watch for you," the executive said. Notice three things:

Tim
Richard

- 1) Murphy was at the board meeting.
- 2) He responded factually and politely to the pointed but polite inquiry from the commissioner.
- 3) He had no qualms about having a member of the legislative branch watchdog the process.

THE OTHER story concerns Wayne County Executive William Lucas and his complicated plan to sell the Old County Building to a private firm, which would hire a contractor to renovate the 83-year-old structure and then rent it back to the county, or sell it back, or something.

It turns out there are all sorts of pals of Lucas in both corporations, including his chief of staff, Dennis Nystrom. There are questions of conflict of interest.

After lengthy debate, the county commission set up a committee to hire an investigative "factfinder" who would subpoena people and documents.

That evening, our reporter found Lucas at an Oakland County GOP fundraiser. After his usual bland, calm assurances,

Lucas said it was unfortunate the commission was conducting its own investigation because he was having the prosecutor check things over, and "one individual would avoid duplication."

NOTE THREE things:

- 1) Lucas hadn't attended the county commission meeting. He never does.
- 2) Lucas has an attitude of contempt toward the legislative branch. The first time I met Lucas was in Canton Township during his 1982 campaign at one of the very few debates in which he participated. In conversation afterwards, he referred to the county commissioners as "ass—."

This was not an unguarded comment in a barracks-type bull session. He knew he was talking to a newsmen.

3) Last year Lucas promoted a ballot petition to strip the county commission of its power to approve contracts. I wrote an editorial opposing the scheme. I received a chewing out over the telephone from chief of staff Nystrom, who referred to the commissioners using the same term.

For the life of me, I cannot understand why grown men and women in the Republican Party are promoting Lucas for governor. The man has a character flaw — and it's not earthy language. Lucas' flaw is that he can't deal with legislators. That flaw has hampered his progress as county executive. It would be fatal to him as governor.

rollcall report

Amtrak funding survives House effort to cut

Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes Sept. 5-11.

HOUSE

AMTRAK — By a vote of 173 for and 245 against, the House rejected an amendment to cut the fiscal 1986 appropriation for Amtrak by 3.7 percent, from $603.5 million to $581.4 million.

This was the first test of whether the House is serious about obeying the 1986 budget resolution it approved on Aug. 1.

The resolution set a target of $55.5 billion in 1986 deficit reductions, including a 15 percent cut in spending for Amtrak, the rail passenger agency.

When coupled with reductions made in committee, this amendment would have deepened the Amtrak cut to the 15-percent target level.

The vote occurred during debate on the 1986 Department of Transportation appropriations bill (HR 3244), which was headed for passage and the Senate.

Supporter Dan Coats, R-Ind., said members should support the amendment because "we declared victory on the budget — we went home and told our constituents that we have enacted meaningful budget reductions."

Opponent William Lehman, D-Fla., said: "I want Amtrak to survive. It has already taken its fair share of cuts."

Members voting yes favored the 3.7 percent cut in Amtrak spending. Voting yes: William Broomfield, R-Birmingham.

Voting no: Dennis Hertel, D-Harper Woods, William Ford, D-Taylor, Sander Levin, D-Southfield.

Not voting: Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth.

WESTWAY — The House passed, 287 for and 132 against, an amendment to delete money in HR 3244 (above) that was earmarked for the Westway federal highway project in New York City.

Estimates are that the 4.2-mile highway on the west side of Manhattan would cost between $2.3 billion and $6 billion. Federal court decisions have made it virtually impossible for work to begin any time in the foreseeable future, if ever.

This amendment prohibited federal funding of the Hudson River landfill that would be built to hold the highway. Supporter Ted Weiss, D-N.Y., in whose district the road would be built, called the Westway "a real estate boondoggle . . . posing as a highway project."

Calling Westway "a sound investment of the federal dollar," Mario Biaggi, D-N.Y., who opposed the amendment, said "the construction industry will be working on that Westway for some 10 years."

Members voting yes: Hertel, Broomfield.

Voting no: William Ford, Levin. Not voting: Pursell.

SENATE

SOUTH AFRICA — By a vote of 57 for and 41 against, the Senate fell short of the three-fifths majority needed to silence a filibuster in behalf of President Reagan's South Africa policy.

Senators voting yes preferred congressional sanctions against South Africa to the softer executive sanctions. Michigan Democrats Carl Levin and Donald Riegle both voted yes.

The talkathon blocked likely Senate passage of legislation (HR 1460) that would impose economic sanctions against South Africa that are slightly tougher than those Reagan has ordered by executive decree.

The sanctions bill has passed the House. It goes beyond Reagan's order, primarily by adding new sanctions if, after a year, Pretoria has not significantly liberalized its apartheid policies against non-whites.

Both the congressional and presidential sanctions ban most new bank loans to the South African government and prohibit the export of U.S. computer technology to agencies that operate the apartheid system.

Alan Cranston, D-Calif., who voted to silence the filibuster, said Reagan's executive order was tainted by "the sweeping endorsement of (it) by Jerry Falwell, an apologist for the racist South African regime."

David Durenberger, R-Minn., said the president "has taken a very distinct position against apartheid . . . he is committed to changing the internal policy of the South African government."

SCHOOL PRAYER — By a vote of 62 for and 36 against, the Senate tabled (killed) a bill to strip the U.S. Supreme Court of its authority to outlaw organized prayer in public schools.

The legislation (S 47) sought to give state and local officials the final word on school prayer. Senators voting yes were opposed to Helms' school prayer bill. Levin and Riegle both voted yes.

Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., who voted to kill the measure, said the bill would "outlaw the Supreme Court" and that he would be "ashamed" to have authored such legislation.

Jesse Helms, R-N.C., who sponsored the bill, said "I certainly am not ashamed of it." Helms added that Article III of the Constitution "bestows upon Congress the right and authority to limit the appellate jurisdiction of the Supreme Court. . . ."

Season opens with Guarneri Quartet sound

By Avigdor Zaromp
special writer

Musical groups are springing back to life after a summer slump in activity.

The first event of a major classical series took place Saturday at Orchestra Hall. The Chamber Music Society of Detroit opened its 42nd season with the Guarneri String Quartet.

The high acclaim of the "Guarneri" goes without saying. It is one of the few ensembles in existence for more than 20 years (since 1964) with its original members still going strong.

Stylistic variety was evident in this program, consisting of quartets by Mozart, Frank Bridge and Dvorak. Among these works, the only one performed with some regularity is Mozart's Quartet No. 21 in D major, K 575. Of the other two, English composer Frank Bridge (1879-1941) seems to be gaining in recognition in this country. Having been primarily credited as the teacher of the more famous Britten, Bridge is now emerging as a gifted composer in his own right.

His first string quartet, written in 1906 when the composer was 27 years old, is a highly romantic work, featuring styles reminiscent of Tchaikovsky and Borodin, among others.

This work, in the middle of the program, failed to evoke an enthusiastic audience response. While the music seems to be well written, its derivative nature is clearly noticeable.

The second movement seems too lengthy to hold the listener's continuous attention. The attractive aspects are prominent roles for the cello and viola, performed convincingly by cellist David Soyer and violist Michael Tree.

WHILE the full merit of the work might not be evident from a limited exposure, there is little doubt that scheduling a Beethoven string quartet instead would have made the overall program more appealing.

The Mozart work proved to be the most attractive in terms of musical content. The performing style featured robust and intricate lines, far from the naive and cautious approach frequently associated with the composer.

The performers were digging into the music, opting for vitality instead of caution. While this would occasionally result in some strained quality and roughness around the edges, the rich texture of the sound was well worth the few flaws.

THE COMPLICATED contrapuntal writing in the final movement was especially effective, creating the impact of a much larger ensemble. All of this was achieved without compromise in accurate phrasing.

The Dvorak Quartet No. 11, Op. 61 isn't as prominent as some of his other chamber music. However, it does feature his captivating melodies with the characteristic Slavic style. Violinists Arnold Steihaed and John Dally presented their dominant roles with flair and vigor.

The intensity of feeling in the second movement might have proved to be too much for Dally's instrument, which snapped a string, causing a temporary halt in the performance.

During the intense applause following the Dvorak work, the musicians came back four times before obliging with an encore consisting of a slow movement from a Mendelssohn quartet, the score of which was already on the music stands.

That indicates that in order to have the benefit of an encore, the audience should be willing to work hard to earn it.

The gabled roof lines, fieldstone trim and bleached lap cedar siding Robert L. Ziegelman Inc. give the community a pristine, timeless look. The ranch is at left, the two-story at right.

Architecture Design follows historic theme

The 100 year old fieldstone farmhouse at the corner of Lahser and 14 Mile, Bloomfield Township, was a strong influence on the architecture of Pinehurst, a community of 12 townhouses on its western border.

Architects Carl Luckenbach/Robert Ziegelman Inc. and developer J.C. Shekerjian saw the need to establish a relationship between the old Bassett house on the corner, long a subject of controversy, and the 12 townhouses set on the nine acre site.

With that in mind, the architects came up with steep gabled cedar shake roofs which reflect that of the farmhouse, fieldstone trim and planters and aggregate stone driveways and sidewalks.

Shekerjian's desire to save the old house was realized when it was sold to a buyer who wished to restore it to its original beauty. That makes the Luckenbach/Ziegelman design just that much more relevant.

IN the development, the single loop road helped preserve a stand of century old Austrian pine trees and the bleached lap cedar siding gives the new structures a sun-washed, timeless, New England look.

There are two styles. The "Pines" is a 2,300-square-foot one-and-a-half story and the "Cedars" is a 2,100-square-foot contemporary ranch.

"Pines" has a 20-by-28-foot great room, master bedroom suite, kitchen, dinette and sitting room on the first floor and a bedroom, study, bath and large storage area on the second.

The stairway in the foyer of "The Pines" is designed to give a feeling of openness with the skylight a strong contributor.

In the "Cedars" there's a 29-by-19-square-foot great room, a large master bedroom suite, library, second bedroom, kitchen and breakfast nook on one floor.

Each has its own two car attached garage, basement, elaborate decking, terrace and courtyard.

The model is open 1-6 p.m. every day, but Thursday. Prices range from $207,000 for the ranch to $214,000 for the two-story. John Richards Development Corp. headed by Richard Cherkasky is the builder.

The view from the dining room to the great room of the two-story house gives an interesting perspective. The great room has a cathedral ceiling, but above the dining area is the study. There's also a second bedroom and large storage area on the second floor.

Art, like home, calls you back

By David Messing
special writer

Twenty-two little tennis shoes marched to an unheard cadence as 11 boys, all friends, marched to school. Most of them were first graders that were eager to show their independence but didn't object too much to having their moms lag behind.

I was leaving to work at the art store, but when I passed this group of boys I slowed the car down to a crawl. They all turned, glanced at the car and gave a quick wave, hello. Then all eyes were back looking for sticks or rocks or other "neat stuff" that boys look for on their way to school. All except one little boy... Adam. His eyes were fixed on me, and in turn I saw only him. In that time, space and distance I believe we said much to each other without uttering a word.

At the first second of Adam's extended stare a piece of my heart tore away and lodged in my throat. I believe Adam's look said "I'm doin' it, Dad... it's hard but I'm goin' to school all day, see ya later, today."

I pray that my eyes didn't betray my heart. I wanted to say, "I'm proud of you, Adam. You are so big now. Have fun and I'll see you later... I love you." But to be honest my heart was saying, "come on honey, jump in the car. Let's go home and watch cartoons or go for a bicycle ride. I won't even yell if you leave your bike in the driveway."

THANK GOODNESS Adam had the strength to look away, as he broke my blurry eyed stare, I drove around the artifacts

block and returned home to regroup. My only consolation is that Adam is not leaving home, just temporarily leaving his house. Scott, 15, and Kevin, 13, go to school, do their paper route and even work a few days at the store and they also never leave home. Just temporarily leave the house.

My point, of course, is that our home is not incased in the frame work of our house. Our home is the love that binds us together even when we are apart. Usually artists have no qualms about using the term love in relation to their art.

"I love watercolors," "I love the texture of this paper," or "these are lovely pencils." Even non-artists often use terms like, "I love this piece of art" or "look at this lovely painting." Just as my family never really leaves "home," artists never really leave their "art," even though they may be away from it for many, many years.

What a pleasant surprise it is to find that after years of being "away," your art welcomes you like a mom at the door with a plate full of cookies. I have probably mentioned this fact too many times in too many articles, but I see it and hear it almost everyday that I teach. With two of my teachers, Donna and Carol, 15 or 20 years passed while their art waited for its' fullest expression.

I have the pleasure of teaching many adults who are finding that after the children and after 30 years of work, their art is new and exciting and expressive.

I THINK OF Georgan, a retired nurse, who is very talented. It is fun for me to direct her talent and introduce her to new media. Then there is Chris (who's daughter, Eileen, secretly placed her on our waiting list). Chris was very surprised when we called and even further surprised to find that she (like her daughter) could draw. Don, who just retired, is also talented, intergetic and what a blessing to have the time to enjoy his art and woodcarving.

June is also retired and now is able to enjoy her painting. She can paint anything. She patiently steps into "the ring" and goes a few rounds with every other medium. June always wins but right now she is in the 13th round with watercolor and is afraid it will be a close decision. Art is close to retirement and he wants to be an artist by the time his best years arrive.

I could tell you many wonderful stories of how art has helped and inspired the lives of many of our students. I love the word "inspired," it literally means, "the breath of life" and so often it is just that.

To many the breath of life comes later in life, to others it comes midway and again to others it is the way of life. Some day I would like to write those stories of how "art" like "home" was always there when students needed it or took the time to enjoy it. But even in those years away from the doing of art, true artists never ceased from being artist.

Perhaps they read about art or merely observed art. With many, the mental creative process never stopped even though the physical creative part was forced to wait on the shelf.

Art is like an expression of love that must in some way find fulfillment. Whether in appreciation, watching or hopefully doing, artists must in time "come home" to their art.

Speaking of homecomings, Adam and I both made it through the day. Even though it was only a mental promise, I am not going to yell at him for leaving his bike in the driveway where it presently lays — but it better not be there tomorrow.

This is another lesson on art and drawing by special columnist David Messing. He has taught for ten years and operates an art store, Art Store and More, 16338 Middlebelt, Livonia, 522-6311, 265 N. Main Street, Plymouth, 455-1222. Messing encourages questions and comments from readers. You may write him at his store or c/o Observer Newspapers, 23352 Farmington Road, Farmington, MI 48024.

Restoration — little things set the scene

The kitchen door of a Eastlake, Victorian home in Plymouth, built in the 1880s, says a lot about the couple who restored it. From the bull's-eye corners of the door molding to the carpenter gothic trim around the pane, to the door knob and plate, they gave each detail, no matter how small, careful attention. All of the screens and storm doors had to be custom made because none was standard size. The house, on Plymouth's picturesque and historic Union Street, once had a dumb waiter in the kitchen.

In the living room of Patty Stevens home, the candlesticks, wine glasses, vases, baskets and lamps all look as though they were made for exactly that location. The Chinese screen with designs of precious and semi-precious stones has many colors which she has used for accent throughout her home. She designed the butternut bar, mantle and coffee table and had them made to her specifications.

Accessories — details make the difference

HER FELLOW interior designers may call it "controlled clutter," but Patty Stevens, owner of Details Inc., thinks of it as accessorizing.

And with this talent and blessed with an extraordinary eye for color, she can blend periods and styles — oriental, early American, turn-of-the-century and traditional — with a flair that makes them completely compatible.

Stevens, a full-scale designer who started as a specialist in the final touches, still loves to assemble the small items that give a room its personality and identity.

And in her own 4,000-square-foot, traditional home, Stevens let her talent for accessorizing have full sway. Her heirloom christening dress hangs from the door of a turn-of-the-century-style oak cupboard in the breakfast room.

She uses round antique linen and lace cloths over printed chintz on her dining room tables when she entertains. She is lavish in her use of candlesticks, flowers, baskets, dried herbs, antiques and folk art.

Yet, the myriad of things become an important, natural part of this home environment.

STEVENS loves color, uses it lavishly, but, like the accessories, never lets it get out of control. And she moves colors around as successfully as she does everything else, avoiding repetition, maintaining continuity and control.

The dining room, one of the first to be seen upon stepping into the foyer, is magnetic. The silk string wall covering is a rich cinnabar. The chintz used for the full length cloth on the round dining table, the built-in banquette and the drapes is a black background with shades of aqua, apricot, golds, greens and pinks in the print. The mirror on the wall behind the banquette is a touch that adds space and sparkle.

The colors in this group keep popping up in other rooms, but not necessarily in the same proportion. For instance, the living room is essentially neutrals, taupe to cream. The silk pillows on the sofa are a bright sea jade.

Stevens found the coromandel screen by accident in the storeroom of a store that was going out of business.

"I knew I had to have it," she said. That's understandable. The semi-precious stones worked into flower designs against the black are her colors — shades of jade green, rose, apricot and pinks. The edging is mother of pearl. It is mounted on a specially built ledge behind the sofa.

Stevens designed the semi-circular butternut bar and the oriental style black and cream coffee table and had them custom made.

GREEN and pink resurface to play dominant roles in the kitchen and breakfast room where Stevens has used turn of the century oak furniture and gleaming oak kitchen cabinets.

Black is dominant in the guest powder room with an eye-catching display of antique mesh and beaded handbags.

Shades of pink and mauve, play against a camel carpet and walls with an ultra light pink tint in the study. Stevens designed the early American style chest in the center of the cozy room.

Still, for the younger set, few rooms can match the truck bedroom belonging to one of the Stevens' sons.

The gray truck twin beds with the blue trim were designed by Stevens and custom made by Vogue Furniture of Livonia. The running lights on the hood work and there's a great toy storage area under the hood.

Patsy Price made the cotton blinds with the hand painted gas pumps which follow the red, white and blue color scheme of the room. In fact, Price did all of the window treatments in the home, each of which is unusual.

Stevens likes to use local craftsmen for her custom pieces and buys much of her art and furnishings locally.

The dining room wallcovering is cinnabar. The Queen Anne chairs are black lacquer and the chintz is a black background with shades of aqua, apricot, greens, golds and pinks. Patsy Price did the window treatments throughout the house.

Bedroom for a young son has reds and blues sparking the neutral gray background. The truck bed, made by Vogue Furniture of Livonia, has space for toy storage under the hood and plenty more in the drawers under the beds themselves.

There's a different piece of gas station equipment pictured on each canvas blind which Patsy Price designed. The painting, from Gallery 22, is by Mark Rutkowski.

Patty Stevens (center) and fellow interior designer Linda Golden relax in the study in Stevens' home done in pinks and mauves. The cushions on the chairs are actually slip-covered; the rest which Stevens had to a big hint of the colors is simply a touch of black. The blinds are also used in the window treatments.

Celebrity's home given glamour treatment

IT TOOK a little courage to give the informal suburban home of TV personality, psychologist and writer, Sonya Friedman, a fresh sophisticated look.

Interior designer Barbara Kopitz of Gorman's Southfield said she debated whether to paint the natural wood ceiling beams in the living room and dining room. Quickly she knew it had to be done to achieve the look she and her famous client wanted.

It took even less time to decide to redo the fireplace area in the living room. The wood paneling on the angled wall, the natural red brick and the fieldstone hearth have all disappeared.

In their place is a mirrored wall and mantle, designed and executed by Tim Gillingham of Farmington Hills and a black marble hearth.

The rough beams needed some serious filling and finishing before they could be painted white along with the ceiling. The walls and carpeting are a rich gray.

Because, as Kopitz said of her client, "She likes soft colors," the two rooms are done in pastels.

The large, curved sectional in a mauve, textured fabric establishes the importance of that grayish-pink shade.

The seats of the black lacquer dining room chairs are almost the same shade, but in a different fabric as are the two chairs by the fireplace which, surprisingly, are rockers.

The hand-painted print, a soft blue and mauve abstract on white silk, on the pull-up chair in the living room and the toss pillows on the sectional were done by Mythra Inc. of Troy.

In contrast to the glass and porcelain family heirlooms displayed on the mantle and in a glass case, the custom, sleek sculptural coffee table is a mauve lacquer with brass trim. The neo-classic column by the fireplace which holds a porcelain bust, is the same color.

Because the dimensions of these two rooms are modest, Kopitz made a concerted effort to achieve a light, airy look. The glass-top dining table is one example of that and the suspended, black, glass buffet is another.

The brass Mylar verticals and the generous number of brass accessories, including the brass torchiers with the quartz halogen light, add a dash of glitter and glamor that contrasts pleasantly with the subtle color scheme.

"It's definitely Art Deco," said Kopitz. It's eclectic — hopefully, it's a pleasant blend. The rooms are meant to be comfortable and inviting — it's a very family-oriented home.

And like the title of Friedman's latest book, "Smart Cookies Don't Crumble," neither she nor her decorator faded even the slightest as they replaced the old look with a bright, sharp new one.

Pieces from the family's glass collection make an exciting centerpiece for the new glass dining room table. Mauve and black are the dominant colors.

The coolness of the greens and teals in the dining room is warmed by the natural oak of the built-in buffet and the splashes of red in the stained glass windows designed by Linda Golden and made by Tiffany Art Glass of Northville.

The feeling of flow begins in the entry area and continues through the great room and dining room. Interior designer Linda Golden said the use of a limited number of natural materials contributes to that. The Frank Farmer sculpture on the wall of the great room and the custom rug bring drama and excitement to the environment.

Sculptural qualities

Finding beauty in line, form and function

LINDA GOLDEN'S strengths in fine arts and interior design were a winning combination for a home she recently completed.

Her clients, both professionals with one child, wanted more than a nice home in good taste; they wanted a one-of-a-kind contemporary environment that would create, at the least, a mild sensation.

They wanted to keep some of the furniture from their former traditional home, add some outstanding contemporary art and make the new home as automated as possible.

This is the sort of challenge that Golden finds refreshing.

The immediate-attention grabber on the two-story wall of the living room, easily seen from the foyer as well as the upstairs balcony, is a colorful metal sculpture by Florida artist Frank Farmer.

Farmer himself came to install the work, which is thin aluminum strips in a variety of shapes and colors, all painted a luminescent orange on the underside to produce a glow.

Since this is the piece de resistance, Golden had her clients' traditional furniture recovered in cream of varying textures — nice idea if you can get them all to match, which she did.

The large area rug, an abstract design with brush strokes of burgandy, teal black and pink on a creamy gray background, is an exciting floor treatment.

On the fireplace wall opposite the Farmer sculpture is a large family portrait by Beverly Neumann. Nothing in the room competes with the Farmer sculpture, yet the whole effect is upbeat and contemporary.

Teal is the boss color in the dining room. Under the bank of windows was the only logical location for the custom made 14-foot oak and stainless steel built-in buffet. The question then became what to do with the three windows.

Golden solved the problem by designing two stained glass windows. Tiffany Art Glass of Northville did the work. The colors are shades of teal, bright red, light green, taupe and turquoise.

"What we wanted to do was treat each window as a canvas," said Golden. The beveled glass dining room table top rests on dyed teal leather wedges which have their own sculptural quality.

"The most comments we get are about the rug," said Golden standing in the dining room.

It was custom made by Stark Carpet. The flat woven wool center rectangle is teal. The wide border is small squares of cream wool in different textures woven to give a three-dimensional, fluffy look.

The Lucite chairs are covered in three different fabrics in sea foam green, teal and natural. Like the rug, they have a wonderful sculptural quality and still are totally functional.

Golden designed an outstanding table for the breakfast room, using 49 square handpainted tiles of different designs, all reminiscent of plates designed by Picasso. These were mounted into the top of a natural wood table. The light orange metal chairs with upholstered seats by Thosoma are delightful companions to the lively patterns of the table top.

Each room has a distinct personality and each has its share of decorative and functional art. It's an exciting atmosphere that starts the creative juices flowing.

One of Luckenbach's innovative changes in the old house was to cut an opening from the kitchen to the stairway. Her white cat finds it a wonderful viewing spot, and she likes the light and space she discovered. The living room fireplace wall was extended to the ceiling and the mantle removed to give a sleeker appearance. The built-in bookshelves are new. The change was planned with small Sunday afternoon salons in mind.

Space, light, imagination

By Corinne Abatt
staff writer

BMINOR Luckenbach said she took her new, old house to the "edge of sanity." A professional designer — interior as well as exterior — she has been working with a team of friends and professionals to refurbish an historic home in Birmingham with 1,300 square feet of living space for more than a year. She approached that "edge of sanity" as she strove to maintain the integrity of the charming, historic farmhouse while incorporating a dazzling collection of modern paintings and sculpture. With these, she integrates antiques, handmade baskets and textiles for a completely eclectic environment which crosses periods and countries to make a clear statement of Luckenbach's taste and personality. The exterior of the two-story frame house is a soft taupe with white trim and black accents. The walks to the house and along the north side are red brick as is a new patio area in back.

MARIAH FINICUM, landscape architect, did the brick work and a number of friends, including Steve Ballard and Paul Michaels, helped with planting and landscaping projects.

"Everybody's kind of pitched in somewhere along the line," Luckenbach said.

On the south side of the house where there is a close neighbor, a new arbor with latticed and slatted side panels filters the light leaving dramatic shadows on the patio's stone surface.

In a corner of the arbor is a large hibiscus with brilliant red blossoms and on a stone ledge are large clay pots of red geraniums.

Next year, Luckenbach promised, the arbor "will be dripping with white wisteria."

The drama of the arbor is repeated in the dining room which adjoins it. Luckenbach said this many-windowed room, with the red brick floor, was added to the original farm house. There's another hibiscus there along with other large plants.

The fireplace in the living room was one of a few elements in the house which were changed. The mantel was removed and the brickwork extended to the ceiling. This change opened up the room, giving it a more spacious feeling. Open bookshelves were added at one end.

The hand hewn ceiling beams and white plaster walls of the living room make an interesting, unobtrusive background for a grand piano, art collection, antique artifacts and family treasures.

TWO STEEL cubes with a bronze finish serve as coffee tables in front of the fireplace. They were made by William McKee, 1984 Cranbrook Academy of Art graduate, who also did a contemporary sculpture for the new patio. He is also working on one for the front yard.

The large kitchen window above the sink which looks out to the back yard is new. The cabinets on each side were removed to make way for open shelves which Luckenbach said she has had in each house she's lived in for about 20 years.

A kitchen close which backed up to the stairway to the second floor was removed to be replaced by a shelf leaving a view of the stairway and an interesting space for Luckenbach to work with.

"Architecture is my first master," she said, "Each space has its own personality."

The dominant color in the kitchen is Luckenbach's own mix which she appropriately named "Georgia clay." The large flower print wall covering has that shade in it along with pinks and blues.

All of the floors in the house are either wood or brick. The geometric pattern, handmade texture and soft pastels of the kilim (flat-weave rug) in the kitchen compliment the dark, natural wood floor.

LUCKENBACH'S involvement with natural materials, light and space brings out the beauty of this home. The ax marks on the beams in the kitchen, the exposed brick, chimney column in the kitchen, the shaft of light which trails down the wooden stairway, all serve to link the house to its past and maintain its integrity.

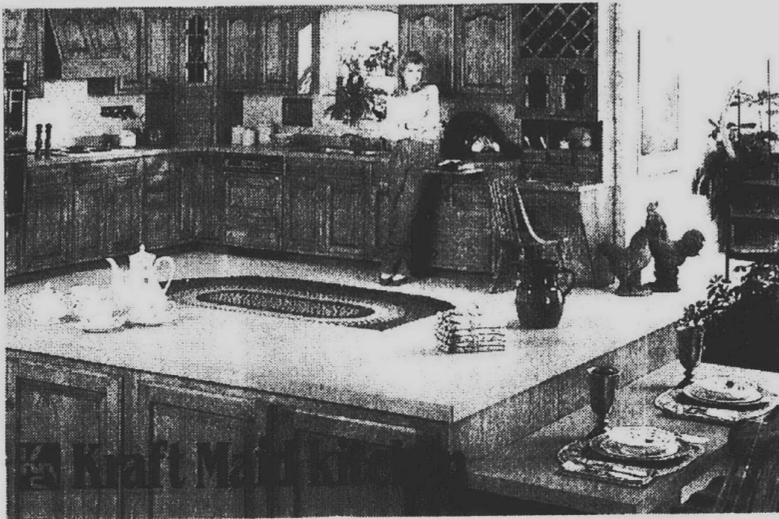

Because as Luckenbach said, "Lighting is my thing," the wiring has been updated to handle the new track lights in the living room, new fixtures in other rooms and the extensive lighting of the exterior landscaping including the mature trees.

"If I could only live with lighting, plants and art, I could be happy," she said.

"I had known this house in the '60s. I literally feel I was meant to have this house."

And in the more than a year that she has been working on it, space by space, color by color, accessory by accessory and plant by plant, it has become totally hers.

THE GLORIOUS colors of autumn are there for admiring every Saturday morning. The place is the Plymouth Farmers Market in The Gathering on Penniman Avenue.

Long before the hard maples, beeches and oaks paint the countryside for fall, the harvest colors are gathered for the market.

The first of the bittersweet was in last Saturday, pale green leaves beginning to wither and bright orange shells still covering the red berries. Bouquets of statice in every color, baby's breath, strawflowers and other dried plants for winter arrangements vie for attention with buckets of the last of the season's zinnias and pots of chrysanthemums.

Indian corn, enormous shiny green peppers (five for $1), piles of squash in a myriad of colors, blue-green home-grown broccoli and crisp red apples are on display.

Jugs of murky fresh cider, potatoes, onions and home-baked bread and muffins add to the tapestry of colors.

It's the place to be on a Saturday morning, a gathering place for friends and neighbors to stock up on the produce and flowers their own gardens couldn't produce.

Adults as well as youngsters surround the animal pen. Last week, a litter of puppies were the center of attention.

The Farmers Market will continue through September and into October — as long as the weather permits, according to the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce. "We'll just kind of play it by ear in October," a chamber spokesman said.

PLYMOUTH newcomers take note: Starting time for the couples' road rally Saturday has been changed to 6:30 p.m. If you have any questions call Deanna Miller, 455-7189.

BARBARA SIEMASZ of Amelia Street, Plymouth won a weekend trip to Mackinac Island to participate in the Governor's Labor Day bridge walk.

As a winner, she received a night's lodging at the Lakeview Hotel on Mackinac Island, dinner the evening before the walk and breakfast the morning of the walk, a Walk Michigan windbreaker and a travel subsidy. Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Michigan provided the trip packages for the five winners. Each winner was allowed to take along a guest. Barbara was the only Wayne County winner.

THE 1985-86 SEASON marks the 40th anniversary of the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra. The occasion will be celebrated with a birthday party for members of the symphony and patrons after the Sunday, Oct. 13, concert.

The party will begin at 6 p.m. in the Mayflower Meeting House. Refreshments will include hors d'oeuvres, a vegetable bar, cheese bar, fruit and bread sticks. Members of the Plymouth Symphony Society Board will make signature birthday cakes for the celebration. There will be a cash bar.

Admission for the evening will be $6 for season ticket holders and $10 for non-season ticket holders. The $10 includes a ticket to the first concert. Members of the orchestra will be honored guests.

For more information about the party, call Marcia Barker, 455-3448, who is chairwoman of the event. Her committee members are Clara Camp, K.C. Mueller, Mary Kehoe, Kris Krivick, Janet Holt, Myrna Schneider and Judy Lore.

It has the makings of a wonderful party — would be nice to see many of the old-timers at the 40-year anniversary party.

FIVE AREA residents were winners in the recent ManuWaycash sweepstakes sponsored by Manufacturers National Bank of Detroit.

Annette Garener of Canton won $80. Plymouth winners were Sally Bailey, $50; Sam Chellan, $100; Rader O. Hale, $100; and Paul A. Rexin, $100.

Service helps women delegate responsibilities

By Richard Lech staff writer

LINDA PURYEAR is in the business of minding other people's business.

Her Efficiency Management Consultants (EMC) firm does many of the personal chores busy professionals don't have the time — or the inclination — to do, she said.

EMC offers such services as laundry, meals, shopping, housecleaning, household budget planning, and pet sitting. The company even will send cards and shop for gifts for customers' friends, relatives and employees.

"There's not much we don't do," said Puryear, who operates the firm from her apartment in Westland.

Puryear provides some of the services herself but hires subcontractors to do most of the actual work. She started the firm in April after deciding there is a demand for a company that does the necessary, but tiresome tasks of daily living.

"I saw the need," she said. "I heard a lot of people say they could use something like that and saw the need from my own experience as a single parent who is working. It just becomes a pull on your time, between the things you have to do and the things you want to do. You end up spending your non-working time doing the things that are absolutely essential."

"So I started thinking of all the things I'd like to have done for me, and my friends did too. I have a lot of friends who are very professionally oriented, who work anywhere from 60 to 75 hours per week."

MANY WORKING moms feel guilty when they can't cook for their families and end up bringing home fast food, Puryear said. But her firm's Traveling Wheels program will deliver frozen entrees that can be thawed and cooked quickly at home.

Her laundry service will pick up and deliver laundry so the customer doesn't have to visit the laundromat, or will even do the laundry in the customer's own home.

Puryear said she had expected harried bachelors to be her biggest customers. But surprisingly, most of her customers are women — many of them, like Puryear, single moms who are operating their own businesses. Most of her subcontracted firms are also small businesses owned and operated by women.

One happy customer who has left some of the home decision-making to Puryear is Joenne McCoy of Canton.

McCoy hired Puryear to take care of such chores as housecleaning and shopping. When McCoy took a flight to England on a Concord jet last month, Puryear arranged to have her transported to the airport in a limousine, took care of her house and car while she was gone, and did her laundry when she returned.

THAT KIND of service frees McCoy to devote more of her energies to her family and to Personal Development Centers Inc., the outpatient psychiatric clinic she owns and operates in Plymouth.

"One thing that really impresses me the most," McCoy said, "is that she's offering a service to women that says we don't have to be superwomen if we can learn to delegate some responsibility. Women are socialized to feel they have to do all of it."

"The goal of my business is to teach women not to feel guilty. I'd like to see more women pass on that responsibility and get on to something that's more important."

McCoy's practice is devoted mainly to families and children, so she counsels a lot of "overwhelmed mothers." She said it is a long, difficult process convincing women they don't have to have a career, take care of their family — and still do every little task that needs to be done around the home.

"As they grow they reach the point where they will give up some of that, and I give them one of Linda's cards," McCoy said.

PURYEAR BROUGHT to her business 15 years of business management, including stints working for Arway and running a small catering firm, and 10 years of volunteer experience, including work with the developmentally disabled. She said she uses her business management skills to help her choose the subcontractor that will best meet her customer's needs.

"For the customer, it means not having to make so many phone calls or make so many contacts," she said. "They can call me, and they can get all of those. And they only have to make out one check each week."

Linda Puryear (left) of Westland, owner of Efficiency Management Consultants, discusses ser-VICES she will be providing for customer Joenne McCoy of Canton.

'I saw the need. I heard a lot of people say they could use something like that and saw the need from my own experience as a single parent who is working. It just becomes a pull on your time, between the things you have to do and the things you want to do.'

— Linda Puryear

Efficiency Management Consultants

She subcontracts with three housecleaning firms, Beck 'N Call, Budget Maid and Clean-Aid. Mary Jonas of Westland prepares the Traveling Meals.

Since Puryear will refer her subcontractors to various customers, and her subcontractors will refer Puryear's service to some of their customers, Puryear sees a kind of women's referral network being built.

When McCoy's house is being cleaned, three woman-owned businesses are involved — Puryear's, McCoy's, and Beck 'N Call, owned by Florence Martin of Livonia and Chris Biddle of Northville. That in itself smashes the stereotype that women can't work together without bickering, Biddle said.

"We have three women companies right here that can get along," she said. "We'd like everyone to know that women can get along."

PURYEAR SAID she prides herself on giving her customers individualized service, whether they contract for many of her services or just one. She likes her subcontractors to add a personal touch, such as leaving flowers when a housecleaning job is done or home-baked bread or cookies with the meals.

"I find that especially with my full-service clients a personal relationship is formed," Puryear said. "By being in the home so often, I really get to know them quite well."

EMC will be expanding its services to do more work with senior citizens and the disabled, Puryear said. Seniors could use the services to help them stay longer in their own homes or make it easier to handle their apartment in a senior citizen complex, she said.

Puryear said she is excited about her recent teaming with Empa Care IV Inc., a Plymouth firm that provides individualized personal care and home support services for the disabled. Her firm will supplement Empa Care's service by providing services the latter doesn't provide, such as extensive housecleaning, transportation, pet sitting and wakeup calls.

EMC's prices vary, depending on the number and kind of services a customer takes. Full-service customers (four or more services) get a discount. The average full-service customer pays anywhere from $80 to $100 a week, Puryear said.

But for some busy professionals, the cost is worth it.

"If a woman were to pay herself the minimum wage to do that, she couldn't do it for that," McCoy said.

Stars and Stripes span 2 generations

Arch Bunch is offering some old issues of Stars and Stripes to the Archives Department of the Plymouth Historical Museum.

The Jan. 31, 1919, copy belonged to Arch's father, who was in France, waiting to be shipped home at the time. He left France Feb. 4, 1919, and arrived in New York on Feb. 18. The senior Bunch was a member of the 1st Infantry Division, "The Big Red One."

His son says there is a monument at Chicamauga to the Big Red One, which fought under Sherman in the Civil War.

The Stars and Stripes was full news sheet size during "The Great War," and the Jan. 31, 1919, issue was the 52nd to be published. It was one year old. Editorials in that edition praised the formation of the League of Nations "to end forever the hazarding of Right to the blind fortunes of the legions of Might."

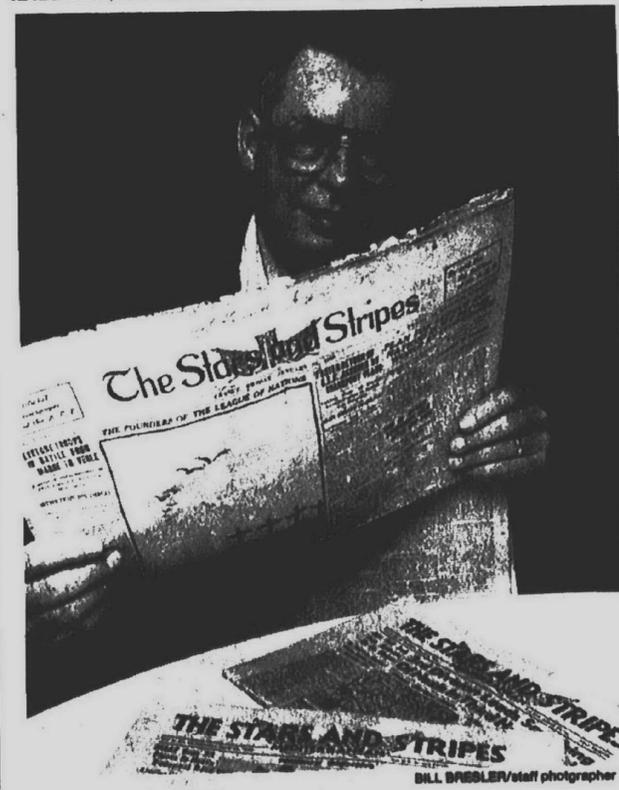

ARCH BUNCH was with the 15th Air Force 11th Air Depot Repair Squadron in Italy when the April 15, 1944, Stars and Stripes was published. His outfit had landed in Africa at Oran in 1942 and in 1944 were stationed in Bari on the Adriatic Sea.

In World War II, the U.S. government underwrote the cost of publishing Stars and Stripes and it was reduced to its present tabloid size.

Servicemen in both wars wrote poetry and some of it appeared in Stars and Stripes. They wrote of girls, battles and new worlds. In 1944, 1st Lt. Rose C. Craig, wrote:

ACCUSTOMED

*I think that I am getting stronger
For my ugly steel chapeau
Once was much too heavy
But now I wear it to and fro.
Could it be perhaps the climate
On the beach at Anzio?*

Phil Dingeldey honored on 75th birthday

Happy half-a-sesquicentennial birthday, Phil Dingeldey!

This may seem the long way around to send a birthday wish, but Phil is the father-in-law of the chairman of our Sesquicentennial Committee, Mary Dingeldey, and now he has reached his 75th birthday. I thought the two sort of blended together.

Actually, many of you probably know Phil, if not personally, then possibly by reputation. He is a former Canton Township supervisor and the gentleman for whom our beautiful soccer fields were named.

Looking as though he had just completed an easy nine holes of golf and ready for a quick swim and a hearty meal, Phil and his lovely wife, Eva, greeted the friends and relatives assembled to celebrate his 75th birthday. The weather was perfect and the final opportunity this year to enjoy a Dingeldey barbecue.

As it turned out, 75 was the number of the day. Close to 75 guests polished off nearly 75 pounds of chicken. They started with 50 pounds, but as the day wore on, a quick trip to the store brought in reinforcements. You see, we are talking about good chicken.

AS IS ALWAYS the custom at a Dingeldey party, the regulars readied the entire affair.

Carol, the artist, once again made the invitations. This time a picture of her grandfather Phil was on the front with the caption, "It's my birthday."

Theresa once again came through with a 20-pound cake. All the other needs, from balloon blowing to streamer hanging to grounds clearing and cleaning, were handled by Doug and his lovely friend, Monique Zurek, along with Jimmy and his fiancée, Cheryl Jahoda, and Mike, who is getting taller and taller every time I see him!

During his time as a resident of Canton — all of his 75 years — Phil Dingeldey has served Canton in many ways. He is a long-standing property owner and has served on several commissions, as treasurer of our township and eight years as our supervisor.

During those eight years, he was proud to have seen the beginning of Meijers and K mart in Canton and the creation of our Recreation Department and the Chamber of Commerce. He is a very proud Cantonite whose family roots reach back to the 1800s in Canton. The Dingeldey name can be found on many area maps created in those days bearing each landowner's name.

It was worth his time to be involved in country politics. After all, he was raising eight children in this community, and how it grew was important to him.

Naturally, as all good fathers do, Phil said to his children, "Go forth and be fruitful." Being from a farming background, I'm sure he also was speaking of corn, apples, etc. But kids will be kids, and kids will beget kids, so he now has 21 grandchildren.

STILL VERY interested in Canton and her future, he and Eva travel back and forth to Florida. (Oh, the trials some men must bear!) They will be here until November, then it's off to Florida for the season, you know.

Back again for the Christmas holidays, naturally, then back to the land of palm trees and winter golf, until about May, when it's safe to return to Michigan.

However, if something special is happening in Canton, they manage to make it back. Like the year of the Sesquicentennial. Boy, that really messed up the old commuting schedule.

Five of his eight children were able to make it in for the birthday celebration — Bud, George, Dick, Karen and Mary's husband, Jake. Sure, big deal, Jake, it was at your house. Unfortunately Jim, Diane and Bill could not attend, but there was a crowd anyway.

Guests ranged in age from 3 to 95 with Andy Smith, another longtime Cantonite, winning top honors there. Phil received many gifts and well wishes, and was able to catch up with many old friends. Bob Padgett and Jim Poole were unable to attend, but sent cards of congratulations and warm wishes. It means a great deal to a former board member to know the present board still thinks highly of you and remembers your part in Canton's growth.

Canton chatter

Sandy Preblich

PROBABLY the neatest gift was a donation made to the Historical Society in his name, which made him very proud.

The celebration began at 2 p.m., and when I spoke to Mary at 10:30 p.m. she was still saying goodbye to guests. Parties at the Dingeldeys' do tend to go on and on. With so much to do and so many incredible people to visit with, you never have enough time. But I suppose that's what makes their parties so unusual. All age levels get involved in the preparations of each party and attend them, so there are all sorts of things for all ages to do.

After three bags of sweet corn, more brownies than you have ever seen, salads and loads of delicious chicken and friends everywhere, the party had to end as all good things do. But the warmth and the memory of another great gathering at the Dingeldeys' will live on.

Phil, you really have started something special. As my mother always told me, "You may not be able to take care of the whole world, but just put all you've got into your little corner and do your best."

I guess that's all any of us can do, and your little corner is just fine.

To Phil Dingeldey, I can only say that anyone who is willing to stand up and put in the time, the heartbreak, to accept the insults, the disappointments, the disruption in your life that public service demands... I salute you and all others like you.

I may not always agree with everything said or done by the board members, or every decision they make, but I will always respect and appreciate the fact that they are trying. They are making a commitment and standing up to be counted. I, like so many others, sit back and take the position of the famous armchair quarterback and watch it all on cable, read the results in the paper and then decide how right or wrong they all are.

There you have it. It's a disgrace that our thanks come so few and far between. But for now, congratulations and thank you for all you've done to help Canton and her residents. Happy birthday, Phil Dingeldey.

SPEAKING OF courageous, interested, dedicated Cantonites, let us not forget one of our most esteemed historians, Charles Zazula.

I recently received a letter from him that included a "little bitty ditty" he composed in praise of our Canton Newcomers.

He has dedicated it to another Canton booster and past president of the Canton Newcomers, Sharleen Immonen, who is in the hospital.

For Sharleen, for Canton, for you, here it is:

THE NEWCOMER'S SONG

(to the tune of "The Marines' Hymn")

From the land of sky blue waters,

From the shores of Michigan,

From the hilltops and the valleys

To the new land of Canton!

From New York and California

And from Texas and from Maine,

We have come to be your neighbors

Here is our hand - God bless Canton!

We have come as the newcomers,

We are with you heart and soul

We will help you build a township

You will help us reach our goal.

We'll be with you in fair weather

Also in sleet, storm and rain.

Here's our hand - God bless you, neighbor,

Here's our heart - God bless Canton!

Female execs like makeup

Women have broken the boardroom barrier. And they have done it not by adopting their male counterpart's image, but by creating and enhancing their own.

That's what a recent survey conducted by the Cosmetic, Toiletry and Fragrance Association (CTFA) and SAVVY magazine shows — the vast majority of women would not think of going out in the morning without makeup and believe cosmetics are an important step in their personal grooming for work.

"Appearance and grooming are more important to the executive woman than we thought before going into the survey," according to CTFA President E. Edward Kavanaugh. "Almost nine out of 10 respondents consider a vast array of cosmetic, toiletry and fragrance items from almost every product category essential to their grooming for work."

SAVVY Marketing Director Perry Grayson notes, executive women want to project a professional image and the survey results indicate that a polished individual style projects the confidence these successful women have on the job. Cosmetic, toiletry and fragrance products are very much a part of this image.

For example, four out of five executive women surveyed report that they regularly wear fragrances in the office and include moisturizers as a regular part of their skin-care routine. In addition, over one-third of these women report that they use professional services by visiting salons for manicures, make-up consultations and hair colorings.

The survey respondents also revealed that while they are primarily brand-loyal, they are open to experimentation with new products. But this does not mean they are impulsive when choosing and buying makeup.

pumpkins and carving tools, and youngsters will have 45 minutes to carve their pumpkins. Parents must accompany children during the entire 45 minutes. They will be judged Wednesday, Oct. 30, and prizes will be awarded. Entry forms are available in local stores.

In recital

Beverly Snowden Ratcliffe, Canton Township resident, will appear in an organ recital at 3:30 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 29, at First United Methodist Church of Ferndale. An updated parable RALLY DAY in most Protestant churches signals the start of the church year, but at Mt. Hope Congregational Church in Livonia it is also the beginning of an experiment in stewardship that won't reach fruition until a year from now.

It all began with all parishioners over 6 years of age receiving a sealed envelope at the beginning of Sunday services last week with the instruction not to open it until told to do so.

It was labeled a special "Message from God." At the end of the sermon, which was based on Jesus' parable in Matthew 25 about the faithful stewards, the congregation was asked to open their envelopes and read the message.

EVERYONE FOUND, to their surprise, seven dollars in crisp new bills. The note enclosed explained the money was "God's money" and that it was theirs to use creatively for the next year. They were then instructed to return whatever remains next Rally Day.

The idea came Rev. Steven Schafer, Mt. Hope's pastor for the past three years. Schafer said the $1,000 distributed was given by three families with whom he had been discussing the idea.

SCHAFFER SAID that the purpose of the "experiment" is to help people see that "they can be creative and can do some amazing things when they consciously recognize that all they have — not just money — comes from God."

To help the idea along, Schafer said Mt. Hope will sponsor a fair in the spring and offer other opportunities as possible outlets for craft and creative items which have made which could then be sold.

Schafer already has next the Rally Day service planned.

Reach out to escape loneliness

THE SUBJECT of loneliness is one that few of us discuss with anyone besides a psychiatrist, and then only when we feel we are in deep trouble.

As Suzanne Gordon noted: "What was once a philosophical problem, spoken of mainly by poets and prophets, has now become an almost permanent condition for millions of Americans, not only for the old and divorced, but also for the men and women filling singles bars and encounter groups, the adolescents running away from home, the corporate transients who move every two or three years and the people calling suicide and crisis hot-lines in search of someone to talk to."

Why are there so many lonely people in our midst? Among the primary causes are family instability, high mobility, the increasing divorce rate, and the striving for independence and personal success.

Consider the effect of divorce on the family. There are an estimated eight million children under eighteen who are the products of divorced homes. What impact do you imagine this has on the emotional integration of these children?

divorced parents put her feelings down on paper: "I got lonely because I miss my mom. I live with my aunt. My mom left me here while she was looking for a job. And then she got this boyfriend and she never came for me. I guess I could never talk to my mom when I felt lonely because she was lonely, too."

Psychologists believe that this increasing stress in the family may be one of the factors for the growing rates of both alcoholism and suicide among young people.

Indeed, the latter is the second leading cause of death for those between 15 and 24. What we are witnessing in white middle-class America is the kind of instability that used to be only peculiar to poor and black families.

Interpersonal relationships have not been known to have an accommodation. Complex can be stranger, friends can be remote, neighbors can be uninvited. In the absence of communication and sharing, the loneliness of modern life is the stark of the world. "Dialogue is the ethic of the 21st century," writes James Lynch.

SOME LONELY people withdraw from human contact because they lack trust in the human race, or because of a lack of skills. We can help them by providing them with the skills and confidence to reach out to others.

speed and graciously accept the hand of caring. And, if there is no hand to grasp, then we must initiate the reaching out.

We must become activists and become involved in our community and in helping others. He who builds walls about himself or himself will, in turn, become isolated from the mainstream of human kind.

DR. HENNEY Jourd' is "The Transparent Self," tells us that we make ourselves opaque and unapproachable in order to protect our fragile ego, but at the cost of our physical, emotional, and spiritual health. The more we hide, the more we isolate ourselves.

It is not enough to be a good person. We must be a good person who reaches out to others. We must be a good person who is not afraid to be vulnerable. We must be a good person who is not afraid to be lonely.

Fame is fine as long as it's limited to $5

DEAN KOBANE wasn't upset, vindictive or vengeful. He was just confused. Kobane had finished playing his first Observer & Eccentric/Whispering Willows Golf Classic. He had done exceptionally well, firing a 73 Saturday and a 75 Sunday. His 148 total missed the outright championship by one measly stroke — Jerry Thomas won with a 147. Kobane's outing was reason for joy, but there he stood, bewildered. Which goes to prove that excellence can be dangerous, particularly when the Michigan High School Athletic Association (MHSAA) is somehow involved. Kobane is a member of Livonia Churchill's golf team. He would do nothing to endanger either his own or his team's standing.

AND YET, on Sunday he held something that could threaten both. It was a plaque. A blank, brass-colored rectangle was pasted below the figure of a golfer, frozen in mid-swing. On the bottom of the plaque was inscribed, "Second Place, Championship Flight." All that was lacking was a name to fill the brass-colored plate. Kobane's rightly deserved to be there. A 16-year-old kid, still a junior in high school, had bettered all but one of them. No one could argue — except the MHSAA, of course. Rules, rules. That's all the MHSAA is, really. It's an association that governs 800-plus junior and senior high schools — by the rules, for the rules, nothing but the rules. Kobane's dilemma was whether to accept the plaque. Why? Because the MHSAA has rules regarding prizes, trophies, medals, etc., etc.

HE WAS worried it would jeopardize his high school eligibility. And he was determined to do the right thing as defined by the MHSAA. "Anything worth more than $5 — not including the engraving — cannot be accepted," was assistant MHSAA director Warren McKenzie defined the association's rule. Why? "If we don't hold it to a bare minimum, it becomes a contest between sponsoring agencies," McKenzie explained. "We want to keep the budget on trophies down. They can cost big bucks." In other words, the MHSAA is fearful that high-priced, shiny trophies or awards will crop up everywhere. Expense will be disregarded as unsavory promoters compete to entice naive high school youth to partake in their tournament, bribing them. Good heavens — our whole amateur athletic code is in danger! Pardon the sarcasm. But this belief seems pretty hollow.

FIRST, I DON'T believe a financially-profitable market exists in high school athletics. Few (if any) high school athletes are a big enough draw to be worth investing large sums of money in promotion. Second, the rule's cost limit is ridiculous. I mean, $5? You've got to be kidding! Most high school kids spend more than that on burgers at McDonald's — two hours after dinner. And third, the MHSAA has left so many loopholes in its rule that bypassing it is child's play. Deciding which route to take would be a more difficult decision. For one thing, one sponsor's $5 trophy can be a helluva lot bigger than someone else's. Who's to say they didn't get a great buy? Heck, the kid can even come back to pick up his trophy after his high school season. But — and this is just between you and me — if he sneaked it home before I'll bet no one would know. A third alternative is even provided by — of all sources — the MHSAA. "It is possible that an award (worth more than $5) can be given," said McKenzie, "but it has to be given to the school and put on display in the school's trophy case. If it goes to the school, it can be half as big as the Empire State Building."

SO, CONCEIVABLY, Kobane could take his plaque to Livonia Churchill to be displayed in the trophy case, then reclaim it after graduation. Kobane was offered other alternatives Sunday. One passer-by claimed that an acquaintance of his once won a golf tournament while in high school and, so he could claim his prize, his coach suspended him from the team on Friday and reinstated him Monday. That seemed pretty chancy to Kobane. He didn't want to risk his eligibility. He didn't want to be a court case. He didn't want to change any rules. He just wanted to obey them so he could play golf. Which, when all was said and done, made his decision simple. Play it safe and above board, follow the MHSAA's decree — whatever it might be — to the letter. If the plaque is worth more than $5 (it isn't), don't accept it.

CONSIDERING HIS ultimate goal (to continue playing for Churchill), that was the smartest move. The MHSAA has redefined inflexibility. There is no room for exceptions. The only colors visible to the MHSAA are black and white. All rules must be interpreted the same way for everyone. No bending allowed. Such rigidity, though, can result in structural cracks. And a lot can fall through those cracks. The rule regarding acceptable prizes is laden with holes. Some, like Kobane, will try to obey. But for practical purposes, it's unenforceable.

Hanosh hat trick hurts Chiefs

By Chris McCosky staff writer

While the huge crowd at Centennial Educational Park roared and chanted, while the Salem and Plymouth Canton players battled to the last of their strength, Ken Johnson stood behind the Salem bench with his arms folded across his chest quietly observing the contest.

Only once did he move. That was to walk over to the Canton bench and ask the Chief players to back away from the sideline so he could see the field.

But when the final gun sounded and the scoreboard read Salem 3, Canton 1, Johnson jumped into the air, gave a yell and bolted onto the field to join his players in celebration at midfield.

"I'm just so proud," Johnson said, catching his breath afterward. "I couldn't be happier with the way we played."

IT ISN'T unusual for sparks to fly when Canton and Salem hook up in any sport. But things seemed a bit more intense on the soccer field only because the team's are so alike in talent and style of play.

The basic difference in Monday night's match was Salem's junior forward Ted Hanosh. He scored all three Salem goals and all three were beauties.

Goal No. 1 broke a scoreless tie midway through the first half. Mike Tanner sent a perfect corner kick across the goal mouth and Hanosh headed it past Canton goalie Dan Douglas who was subbing for an injured Brian Gavigan.

Goal No. 2, the eventual game winner, occurred four minutes into the second half. Dave Dameron's corner kick was batted about in front of Douglas.

Hanosh took possession at the side of the goal. It didn't appear possible to kick it into the goal from that angle, but Hanosh did it, hitting the ball just inside the far goal post.

The final goal came with 21 minutes left in the game. Mike Zarretti worked the ball away from Canton at midfield and found Hanosh streaking down the right sideline.

Hanosh controlled the ball on the run and was breaking in alone on Douglas. Douglas came out to intercept him. Hanosh stopped, froze Douglas, then lifted a little lob over the goalie into the net — a fantastic shot.

"I THINK what gave us the edge was our early start this season," Johnson said. "We got a jump on conditioning. We seemed to get to the ball quicker tonight. It's as if we had more will to win. We have good chemistry on this team. I mean, if you look at the game, there was not that much difference territorially."

In fact, the game was quite even. Up and down action, almost non-stop. But Salem was able to sustain its attack offensively; Canton was not.

"Our control has been bad, very sub-standard," Canton coach Mike Morgan said. "We took shots prematurely and we passed up shots we should have taken."

Canton is suffering through a goal-scoring drought. The Chiefs scored just two goals in each of its first two games, then were blanked last week at Livonia Stevenson.

"WE'LL COME back," Morgan said. "This is a strong team, and it's a long season. It's just taken longer for this team to develop than I thought — a lot longer."

Canton was not without scoring chances. Early on, Brad Neville and Steve Morell were dangerous. But Sa-

Birdie run nets Thomas O&E title

By C.J. Risak staff writer

Jerry Thomas followed a short, pop-fly drive with a hooked iron that curved well right of the green, far enough off course to prompt him to hit a second ball in case his first landed over the fence and out of play.

Not exactly the best way to finish a tournament, particularly for the leader. Thomas fired an outstanding 69 in Saturday's opening round of the Observer & Eccentric/Whispering Willows Golf Classic to forge a three-stroke lead. But on Sunday, he struggled.

"Everything that was going in yesterday stayed out today," said the Livonia resident and 1976 Plymouth Salem graduate after he finished Sunday's round with a 78 for a 147 total. "We'll just have to see how it stands up."

With that Thomas took a seat on a bench at Whispering Willows' clubhouse patio, nervously awaiting other championship flight scores. Thomas had faltered badly Sunday and he knew it. What he didn't know was whether his three-stroke lead constructed in Saturday's brilliant round would be enough.

IT WAS — barely. Thomas' second shot on 18 did stay in bounds, coming to a halt between two bunkers. He chipped to within 14 feet of the cup and two-putted for a bogey five. His 147 earned him a one-stroke victory over Dean Kobane, a junior at Livonia Churchill. Jim Heriford of Farmington Hills finished third at 148.

It was Thomas' second O&E title. His first was in 1979, a victory he said was very similar.

"When I won (in '79), I did the same thing," Thomas said. "I made a lot of birdies. Usually I don't do that."

What won it for Thomas was a hot streak midway through Saturday's 18 holes. He chipped in at No. 9 for a birdie, reached the 10th green in two and two-putted for another birdie and knocked in a 10-foot putt at 11 for his third straight sub-par hole. After a par at 12, Thomas collected another birdie at 13.

"That stretch got me going," he said. "That string made it for me."

THOMAS' 69 was the only round to break par Saturday, despite excellent playing conditions and a field packed with past champions. Four other former O&E winners joined Thomas and 191 other golfers to vie for honors.

But none provided a challenge. The defending champion, Nunzio Marino of Plymouth, fired an opening-round 79 and failed to show Sunday; John Van Vleck of Farmington, who set a tournament-record 139 to win in 1983, was never a factor with rounds of 83 and 81 for a 164.

Matt Wiley of Canton (1982) and Billy Himm of Livonia also never threatened. Wiley shot 156, while Himm finished with a 154. Despite the talent-laden field, Sunday's best round was Bob Urbat's 71.

"It's hard playing with the lead," said Thomas. "I don't think anyone will tell you any differently. You know it's yours to win or lose."

But it proved more difficult to come from behind. Heriford shot a 72 Saturday and trailed the leader by three strokes, but he couldn't mount a charge Sunday. He ended with a 77 and the knowledge that just two strokes separated him from the title.

But Heriford made no excuses. "Everybody can say that," he said. "Everything I got I deserved."

WHILE SATURDAY'S string of birdies put Thomas in control, it was his chipping that saved him Sunday. After driving into the woods on the par-three 15th, Thomas pitched to within four feet of the cup and salvaged a bogey.

Two shots into the par-five 16th Thomas was 20 yards to the right of the green, with a sand trap perched in between. His chip again stopped four feet from the cup. He missed his birdie attempt, two-putting for par.

On the par-three 17th, Thomas again left his tee shot right of the green with a sand trap in between. But once again his chip was near-perfect, rolling to within four feet of the cup. He two-putted for a four.

OTHER TROPHY winners in the championship flight were John Smith, who took third in low gross (76-74 — 150); Bill Orrick of Redford, fourth low gross (77-75 — 152); and Urbats of Livonia, fifth low gross (82-71 — 153). Heriford claimed top low net honors (139), with Bill Paul of Farmington Hills second low net (140).

In first flight, Craig Oliver of Westland emerged from a tight race to claim the low gross championship with a 79-79 — 158. A stroke behind was Cordell Krol of Westland (78-81 — 159), with three others tied at 160: Dale Kimball, Rick Van Tiem and Tom Mudry. Mudry, from Livonia, was first in low net (136), with Bob Dates of Canton second low net (140).

The second flight title went to Richard Ostyn of Livonia (84-84 — 170). Ken Kary of Birmingham and Jay Harris of Redford tied for second at 173, with Steven Bright of West Bloomfield capturing the low net title (184). Thomas Hughes of Canton and Ed Burr of Redford tied for second low net (144).

Chiefs jolt Central, Rocks roll

Mark it down. The Plymouth Canton Chiefs are for real.

Rob Neu's girls basketball team cruised through three relatively easy opponents early, so its perfect record was suspicious.

But after Tuesday night's 47-31 destruction of a decent Walled Lake Central team, it's safe to call Canton a force to be dealt with in the Western Lakes.

"We really opened it up tonight," said Neu. "We stepped up the pressure and forced the mistakes to get easy baskets."

The score was 32-14 at the half. Diana Knickerbocker, who missed girls basketball

last Thursday's game with an ankle injury, made up for lost time with a 17-point performance. Laura Darby contributed 10 rebounds and Beth Frigge ignited things with six steals and six assists.

PLYMOUTH SALEM 70, W.L. WESTERN 26: You knew it was only a matter of time before the Salem offense would get into the groove. A 44-point second half explosion buried the home team Warriors from Walled Lake Tuesday.

Dena Head triggered the blast with 18 points. Jessica Handley and Kristen Hostynski each netted 10.

"We passed the ball really well and got into a nice flow offensively," said

Salem coach Fred Thomann. "We hit the offensive boards well and we hit the open shot. It was a good game."

Salem connected on 31 field goals on the night. Defensively, Salem (2-2) held Western under 10 points in each quarter.

PLYMOUTH CHRISTIAN 24, SOUTHFIELD CHRISTIAN 22: The game wasn't as close as the final score might indicate. Plymouth led 22-12 in the final quarter. The two-point margin of defeat was as close as Southfield ever got.

Kim Seiferth scored eight points to lead Plymouth (2-0).

Dynamic duo keeps Eagles undefeated

On the strength of Rod Windle and Dave Presley, the Plymouth Christian soccer team remains undefeated after three games.

Saturday, the Eagles defeated Toledo St. John's junior varsity team 4-2. Windle scored three goals, Presley one.

Tuesday, Plymouth Christian whipped Inkster United Christian 7-2. Windle and Presley each scored three goals.

In three games, Windle has scored eight goals and Presley six.

CROSS COUNTRY

The Eagles' boys cross country team opened its season with a 22-33 win over Detroit Bethesda on Tuesday.

Jim McCarthy (18:50), Jeff Bennett (20:01) and Chris Snider (20:35) went 2-3-4 respectively for the Eagles on the 5K course.

Jim Davis (21:00) and Andy Allmand (21:28) placed sixth and seventh.

Spartans keep relay crown

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Another opening, another girls swim meet?

Hardly. As expected, Livonia Stevenson won the Western Lakes Relays Saturday at Plymouth Salem, but the meet, sponsored by the Plymouth-Canton Rotary Clubs, was more than just a showcase for the power-laden Spartans.

"This league (the Western Lakes Activities Association) is going to be very tough," said Stevenson coach Lois McDonald. "We're going to get good competition and that will help everybody in the long run."

Stevenson, picked by many to win this year's state Class A crown, racked up 97 first-place points.

But the surprise of the meet was Livonia Churchill, which finished second with 74. Host Salem was third with 50, followed by WLA new-comer North Farmington with 46. Westland John Glenn, yet another newcomer to the WLA, took fifth with 41. (See complete results.)

"This league is high caliber," said Salem coach Chuck Olson. "North Farmington was fifth at the state last year and was fourth in this meet? What's that tell you?"

CHURCHILL COACH Manse Tian was excited over his team's performance.

"They really surprised me," he said. "I didn't expect to finish that high."

"We do have the depth. We're not strapped like we have been before. We can swim them around. With 44 girls, that helps. The more you have, the more competition you have. And that's good."

Stevenson took three firsts in the all-relay event.

All-Staters Sheila Taormina and Sherrie Sudek hooked up with Amy Harrison and Ann Bollinger, a transfer from Dearborn, to win the 200-yard backstroke relay in 1:57.87. Taormina and Sudek also teamed up with Audra Jackson and Maureen Sudek to gain first in the crescendo relay (4:55.2).

The Spartans' Nancy Detmer, Robin Greshaw, Patty Skaisgr and Michele McKenzie won the 200 breaststroke relay in 2:25.33.

"We had some good performances," McDonald said. "Most cut down their times."

"They weren't all in their best events because we swam a lot of people. This is a very big team compared to the teams I've had in the past."

CHURCHILL was bolstered by freshman Audra Martin, who figured in two firsts along with Kendra James and Carol Baker.

Martin, swimming a 1:07.7 100 breaststroke split, joined Beth Marcy, James and Baker to win the 400 medley in 4:19.9. The team of Angie Neville, Martin, James and Baker took the 200 medley in 1:57.66.

ning the 200 freestyle relay in 1:50.24. North Farmington, led by the Cramer sisters, Marge and Cindy, took the 200 butterfly relay in 1:58.31 and the 400 individual medley in 4:23.87.

"Taking second was nice," Tian said. "But overtaking Stevenson is not possible. And North can swim better. The league is going to be a shootout." Salem's lone first came in the 400 freestyle relay as Kristal Taylor, Cindy Elliott, Laura Shaffer and Tracy Meszaros were clocked in 3:51.01.

"In the 400 medley we were disqualified and we had to score some points there," Olson said. "Basically we swam well, but we've got a lot of work to do."

The work has already begun.

Bartkowiak rolls with punches

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Darrel Bartkowiak knows the feeling well. He's been in this position before.

The sturdy Saginaw Valley State College senior linebacker agonized with his teammates Saturday over last-minute 23-20 loss at home to Franklin College of Indiana.

Franklin pulled out the victory when quarterback Kevin O'Shea, facing fourth and 10 at the Cardinals' 24, eluded the grasp of two Saginaw tacklers, flipping a 24-yard sidarm pass to Brad Quakenbush for the winning touchdown with 33 seconds left.

O'Shea, a Doug Flutie look-alike, picked apart an inexperienced Saginaw secondary for 412 yards.

The defeat left Saginaw Valley, finalists in last year's NAIA Champion Bowl, at 0-2. Next week's schedule doesn't get any easier as the Cardinals face Division I-AA foe Eastern Illinois, which is coming off an impressive 39-7 win over Indiana State.

"LAST YEAR we were 1-2 with our backs to the wall and came up fighting," said Bartkowiak, a fourth-year starter from Plymouth Salem. "I know that whatever happens from here on out, we're going to do it as one."

Bartkowiak, a muscular 5-foot-11, 215-pound senior, had 10 tackles against Franklin, second only to teammate D.J. Holland, another linebacker.

But Bartkowiak was far from satisfied with his performance.

"I had a good game against the run and did nothing against the pass," Bartkowiak said. "I was blitzing (on the winning TD). We needed a big play with a minute to go. I don't know what happened. I'm sure we'll see it on the films."

Bartkowiak draws similarities to last year's start.

"No matter where we were lacking, somebody was always picking up the slack," he said. "Usually we've been able to play over that. So far it's been a little thing here and there. Early in the season a couple of breaks have gone against us."

WITH NON-LEAGUE losses to Indiana Central (24-17) and Franklin (23-20), Bartkowiak and company can still salvage the season by defending their Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Association (GLIAC) championship.

"You can't say we have a lock on it (the Great Lakes title)," Bartkowiak said. "Right now we're only looking at the next game. But I know I'll be fired up for Jeff Hubert at Hillsdale (Sept. 28)."

Hubert, a defensive back who was named Great Lakes Player of the Week for his performance last week against Wisconsin-Whitewater, was a teammate of Bartkowiak's at Salem High School.

The two went their separate ways, but the road to Saginaw for Bartkowiak was more difficult.

He encountered some personal problems his senior year and admitted his grades were not the best.

"If it hadn't been for football, I don't know where I would be," Bartkowiak said. "It's been a vehicle for me."

He credits Salem assistant coach Gary Temple, who stood in his corner his senior year, and Salem head coach Tom Moshimer as major influences in his development as a person and player.

"I OWE A LOT to Gary," he said. "And Tom Moshimer runs such a good program. The discipline prepared me well and it carries over to everyday life."

Bartkowiak will not graduate on time but vows he'll return an additional semester to obtain a degree in criminal justice.

"Sometimes people just look at you as a football player and not a student," Bartkowiak said. "They don't see the whole picture. We're just not one-dimensional."

Despite Saginaw's current plight on the gridiron, Bartkowiak has enjoyed his four-year stay on campus at University Center.

The Cardinals have been successful, going to the playoffs twice and winning the league title in 1984.

Individually, Bartkowiak has started 34 of 35 games at linebacker and is one of the league's toughest players. "It's great being here on a football scholarship," he said. "It's been a good experience. I can't think of anything better or ask for anything else."

Darrel Bartkowiak ex-Rock at SVSC

The only thing that Bartkowiak could imagine being better would be a win Saturday over heavily favored Eastern Illinois.

Salem kickers bounce Chiefs in showdown

lem goalie Joe Knoerl was equal to the task. Three times Neville broke in alone on Knoerl. Three times Knoerl came out of the goal to intercept the rush before Neville could take his shot.

Canton finally broke through with 5:22 left in the first half. Morell buried a shot past Knoerl after taking a nice feed from Scott Morgan.

In the second half, Morell fired a shot off the crossbar that would have tied the score at 2.

Both teams played well defensively. For Salem, Eldon Nash, Randy Balconi, Andy Orr and Doug Faure were the standouts. Faure was cut from the Salem team last year and now is an integral part of the Rock defense.

For Canton, as always, All-Area defenseman Rob Opatry played a solid game as did Morgan at midfield.

Falcons: Glenn's next victim?

By Chris McCosky staff writer

HOW, YOU ask, can a contest pitting an undefeated team against a winless team be classified as The Game of the Week in Observerland?

Good question. Farmington, winless so far in 1985, will travel to Westland John Glenn Friday to open league play in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

Granted, Farmington's inauspicious start — losing by a combined score of 76-7 to Southfield and Farmington Harrison — has taken a bit of the luster from this game.

John Glenn has lived up to its pre-season billing as the area's top team with wins against Belleville (35-6) and Pontiac Central (23-0).

But looking at it from Farmington's point of view, the season officially begins Friday. The two previous games mean nothing to the Falcons. The division title and the league title are no more within reach than had they won their first two games.

"The first two were just preseason," said a hopeful Farmington coach Don Kuick after last Saturday's shellacking from Harrison.

TWO THINGS have gone poorly for the Falcons: They have sustained injuries to key personnel, namely lineman Craig Petersmark and quarterback Joe Bob Wenson, and they opened their schedule with two of the best teams in the area.

Conversely, very little has gone wrong for coach Chuck Gordon and his Glenn team. The Rocket defense has yet to be scored upon (Belleville scored six points on a fumble return) while the offense has scored 58 points.

But here's why Friday night's contest should be interesting: John Glenn is predominantly a running team. Farmington is outstanding defensively against the run.

In both losses Farmington was burned by the pass, not the run, although Southfield's Torin Dorn wasn't exactly contained.

Are we forecasting a Farmington win here? Not exactly. The Falcons' offense remains highly suspect and there are no soft spots in the Glenn defense. Also, Tony Boles will test the Falcon line as much or more than Dorn did two weeks ago.

The forecast is for a close, hard-hitting, three yards and a cloud of dust style football game reminiscent of the old Big 10 battles between Michigan and Ohio State.

Pick — Both McCosky and Brad Emons like the Rockets at home.

grid predictions

FRIDAY'S GAMES

HAMTRAMCK AT CLARENCEVILLE (7:30 p.m.) — Livonia Clarenceville may want to start the season all over again after a pair of lopsided defeats to Redford St. Mary and Cranbrook. Injuries have cut a swath through the Trojan roster. Hamtramck (1-1) is coming off a 7-6 win last week against Algonac. Picks — Coach Ralph Weddle's team 0-3? McCosky and Emons say yes.

LIVONIA CHURCHILL AT NORTHVILLE (7:30 p.m.) — This was the game many local experts felt may help decide the winner in the Western Lakes' Western Division. It still could, but Northville (1-1), like so many teams this year, has been hit hard by injuries. Churchill (2-0) is riding a crest at the moment. The defense has been stingy and the offense opportunistic. Most importantly, the team is playing enthusiastic football. Picks — McCosky and Emons don't figure Northville to be able to score against the Charger defense.

N. FARMINGTON AT LIVONIA STEVENSON (7:30 p.m.) — The tendency for Stevenson might be to cringe at the thought of having to play North this week. The Raiders were humiliated by lowly Walled Lake Western last week and were in for an unpleasant week of practice. Stevenson (1-1) barely got past Livonia Franklin last week and is still looking for consistent offense. Picks — North gets back to form.

PLYMOUTH SALEM AT W.L. CENTRAL (7:30 p.m.) — With Paul Makera running the attack, Salem's wishbone finally hit stride in the second half against Churchill last week. Still, the Rocks' second loss of the year could have taken some fight out of them. Central (0-2), on the other hand, seems to be getting stronger by the week. As always, these two teams will go at each other with a vengeance. Picks — Central's size is too much for Salem, say the experts.

W.L. WESTERN AT PLYMOUTH CANTON (7:30 p.m.) — Can Western come back to earth before Friday night? Western (1-1), led by sophomore back Mike Hall, stunned North Farmington last week. Canton (0-2) is hurting. Senior quarterback Tony Aiken is out for at least four more weeks with a stress fracture in his leg. Picks — Warriors out-Indian the Chiefs.

BISHOP GALLAGHER AT GARDEN CITY (7:30 p.m.) — Garden City is 0-2 and Gallagher 1-1. The Lancers edged Jackson Lumen Christi, 10-7, Saturday night. GC, meanwhile, is in the midst of a murderous schedule — Wayne, Warren Woods Tower and now Gallagher. Pick — Gallagher wins.

ROMULUS AT REDFORD UNION (7:30 p.m.) — Led by a big, strong and aggressive defense, Jim Gibbons' RU team (1-1) may be the Observerland sleeper this year. That defense will have to deal with a speedy but small Romulus (0-2) squad. Picks — RU survives, both agree.

LINCOLN PARK AT WAYNE MEMORIAL (7:30 p.m.) — Lincoln Park (2-0) has registered impressive wins over Melvindale and Monroe and will pose a stiff test for Wayne (1-1). Darren Tatum has emerged as one of the area's premier running backs rushing for nearly 300 yards in two games for Wayne. Picks — McCosky likes Lincoln Park to remain undefeated; Emons concurs.

SATURDAY'S GAMES

FARMINGTON HARRISON AT LIVONIA FRANKLIN (1 p.m.) — Franklin (0-2) has not been able to unleash its potentially potent offense. It will be doubly tough to do so against a formidable Harrison defense that has allowed just seven points this season. And then there's Harrison's Brian Smolinski for the Pats to contend with. The all-starer caught eight passes for 128 yards last week. Picks — Harrison goes 3-0.

CRESTWOOD AT REDFORD THURSTON (1 p.m.) — Dearborn Heights Crestwood, 1-1, is coming off an impressive win against Annapolis last week while Thurston (1-1) was hammered by Allen Park 20-0. Still, this should be an even match. Picks — Thurston gets its first Tri-River League victory.

BISHOP BORGESS VS. DIVINE CHILD (2 p.m.) — The high-powered Borgess offense against one of the best defensive groups in the state — nice match-up here. DC is 2-0 with wins against Gallagher and Willow Run, while Borgess is 1-1 in losing to Edsel Ford and barely edging RU. Picks — We agree, it's DC.

CATHOLIC CENTRAL VS. DET. KETTERING (7:30 p.m. at Clarenceville) — A battle of unbeatens and another battle of strength and size (CC) against speed (Kettering). Kettering plays a wild and woolly brand of ball while CC is very controlled. Picks — Discipline wins out, so does CC.

ST. AGATHA VS. RED. ST. MARY (7:30 p.m. at RU's Kraft Field) — The Aggies were battered by state-ranked Traverse City St. Francis last week, 34-12. Redford St. Mary is 1-1 after losing to Kalkaska last week, 20-18. This is a big game for Agatha. Picks — Agatha wins a thriller.

McCosky was 12-1 last week and is 21-6 on the season. Emons (16-11) was 8-5 last week.

Garden City gridgers face tough sledding

The schedule makers certainly were not kind to Garden City first-year football coach Bob Lusk.

The Cougars, who dropped their second straight game Saturday against highly touted Warren Woods Tower, 28-6, now face Catholic League Central Division member Harper Woods Bishop Gallagher (1-1) Friday at home.

"Tower was a mostly senior team with a good quarterback," said Lusk. "They shut us down. I think they'll be a good ballclub."

Tower signal caller Tom Brown hit 10 of 19 passes and figured in three of the Titans' four touchdowns.

Garden City, held to 150 total yards, got its only TD in the third quarter on a pass from Terry Bonner to Audie Wheeler. The TD was set up by Jeff Fowler's 30-yard run.

Tight end Glen Chickering was GC's top receiver with four catches for 56 yards.

Gallagher will be another stern test for the Cougars. The Lancers beat Jackson Lumen Christi last week, 10-7, and lost their opener to heralded Dearborn Divine Child, 6-0.

"Gallagher has excellent balance," Lusk said. "and they have a good pass defense, and they'll be hard to run against. They're very aggressive."

ST. FRANCIS 34, ST. AGATHA 12: Traverse City St. Francis (2-0), one of the state's top-ranked teams in Class C, turned back visiting Redford St. Agatha (1-1) Saturday.

Quarterback Jim Knittel, making his first start, stood out despite the loss, hitting eight of 18 passes for 186 yards. He threw a 72-yard TD pass to Kevin Foulks in the third quarter and tossed an 80-yard strike to Ron Rychlinski in the fourth quarter.

"Jim can throw the ball, and he was sacked only one time," said Agatha coach John Goddard. "He has good movement, too. We'll change things up offensively."

St. Francis running backs Joe Conley and Rick Schmukle accounted for a bulk of the Gladiators' 333 yards rushing.

"They're an excellent football team," Goddard said. "They have a couple of good running backs. They're one of the top three teams in Class C."

Tales of travail, pain and frustration

HEROES MAKE headlines. Tales of success and accomplishment fill out the text of the story.

That's the way this local newspaper game is played.

The disappointment and the heart-break of the defeated aren't emphasized although they are part of the same story.

But it was unusually tough to play down the losing side of the action I witnessed last weekend.

FRIDAY NIGHT: The site is Livonia Churchill High School. Churchill and Plymouth Salem renew an old gridiron rivalry.

The subject is Brian Storm, Salem's sophomore kicker.

Salem fought back from a 20-7 third-quarter deficit to pull even in the final quarter and needed an extra point from Storm to go ahead.

Churchill's Joe Payne spoiled Storm's bid by bursting through the Rock line and smothering the kick about the time it left his toe.

But that was the least of Storm's misfortune this night.

The game went into overtime. Churchill managed a field goal on its first possession. So Salem needed to match that to keep the game going.

Predictably, it came down to Storm.

The sophomore got his kick away and raised his arms in jubilation. It looked to him, and to nearly everyone else on the Salem sideline, as though the ball split the uprights.

Imagine, then, the dismay on Storm's face when the referee ruled the kick no good.

It was a crushing moment for the young man and only those insensitive to human distress didn't share his pain as he walked off the field weeping, arm and arm with his older brother, John, Salem's quarterback.

SATURDAY AFTERNOON: The site is Farmington High. Again a pair of old friends meet on the gridiron — Farmington and Farmington Harrison.

Farmington, as has been the case four times in the last three years, got clobbered by Harrison.

But it wasn't supposed to happen like that this year. Farmington is an improved team. But injuries to key people have dogged the Falcons, and their frustration was apparent.

Assistant coach Forrest Geary heaped a steady stream of abuse on the officials that eventually cost the team 15 yards and nearly cost head coach Don Kulick an ejection from the game. (When a bench penalty is called, the head coach pays the price.)

Quarterback-defensive back Joe Bob Wenson, hampered by a bad ankle, heard jeers not only from the Harrison rooters but from the Falcon faithful as well.

Late in the third quarter, Harrison quarterback Mike Mack darted around left end. Only Wenson stood between Mack and the end zone.

Mack made a move, Wenson matched it. Mack switched directions. Wenson couldn't. Mack went into the end zone untouched. Wenson put his head down and tried to block out the jeers.

Craig Petersmark is 6-2 and a strong 240 pounds. He is one of the best linemen in the area, but a foot injury has forced him to play at about 70 percent of his ability.

After being pushed around by the smaller but quicker Harrison linemen, Petersmark came off the field. The frustration overwhelmed him.

"I can't run," he cried and ripped his helmet off in disgust.

Chris McCosky

Things weren't too cheery on the Harrison side, either.

Mark Mecklenborg, a senior two-way back and kicker, was on the bench crying, his knee heavily wrapped. His father hugged him. Stunned and speechless, the Harrison players milled around him.

For the last two years Mecklenborg played behind two-time All-American John Miller. With Miller at Michigan State, this was to be Mecklenborg's year.

Mecklenborg's year ended on the final play of the third quarter of the second game of the season.

A Farmington defender crashed into Mecklenborg following his extra point kick that put Harrison ahead 36-0. The defender hit him while his leg was in the air. Mecklenborg's knee buckled, torn both inside and out. Damn.

SATURDAY NIGHT: The site is Farmington Hills Mercy High School. It is the finals of the prestigious Mercy Hoops Classic.

Mercy is trailing the state's No. 1-ranked team, River Rouge, by one point. There are eight seconds left and Mercy has the ball.

During the timeout, Mercy coach Larry Baker diagrams a play. Either Michelle Fryatt or Yvette Maison is to receive the inbound pass. Their job will be to either get the ball inside to Missy Duczynski or Terri Nalodka, or take the open shot if it's there.

Try to imagine what Fryatt might be thinking as she walks back onto the court.

Last year she served an apprenticeship for the role of Mercy's point guard playing behind Annette Ruggiero.

Fryatt is 5-2 with good but not great basketball skills. Her greatest asset is her heart. Through hard work and dedication, she made herself into a darn good basketball player.

When this season started, she knew she was ready to run the Mercy offense.

But things began poorly. She sprained her ankle during warm-ups prior to the season opener. Replacement Yvette Maison scored 23 points in Fryatt's absence.

Since then, Fryatt has been sharing time at point guard. She didn't start against Rouge.

But she had made a key shot, a pretty reverse layup, to help Mercy's comeback, and now she had a shot to help her team win the game.

The inbound pass came to Fryatt. She caught it off-balance and nearly traveled before she regained her balance.

She drove to the left side of the free-throw line and let her shot go — a bit too soon and a bit too wide.

As the Rouge players streamed onto the court in celebration, Fryatt fought off the tears for a moment, then her reserve let her down. Her No. 1 asset had been broken.

Sure, the heroes get the headlines. But long after the game, long after the headlines and the stories are written, the trauma and travail of the losing side remain etched in my memory.

Ocelots tame an old nemesis

Schoolcraft College men's soccer coach Van Dimitriou knew his team was solid. There was only one factor he was concerned about, a key element in any championship team's makeup. And there was no way for Dimitriou to tell if his team possessed it or not, other than by a test by fire.

Saturday, Dimitriou got his answer. The Ocelots visited bitter rival Macomb CC and came away with a come-from-behind 5-3 victory in both team's Region XII opener.

Opening the Region XII season with such a game concerned Dimitriou, but so did his team. He needed to know how they would react to adversity.

He found out. After John Gelmisi gave the Ocelots a 1-0 lead on a penalty kick early in the game, Macomb scored three straight goals, two by Dan Yovanovski.

DIMITRIOU KNEW about Yovanovski, so early in the game he had Rick Hamers mark him. But taking Hamers out of his normal midfield position hurt the team's offense, so Dimitriou switched back to the Ocelots' normal defense.

The move backfired when Yovanovski scored twice in the next 10 minutes and assisted on a third as Macomb took a 3-1 lead at halftime.

Dimitriou was unconcerned. "We regrouped at the half," he said. "I could see our confidence growing."

Hamers went back to shadowing Yovanovski, and Abe Yaffai filled in at midfield in the second half. The move paid off quickly when Yaffai converted a Gelmisi pass to cut the deficit to 3-2.

Yaffai then popped a perfect chip-shot pass to Joe Novak, who buried it to knot the score at 3-all. Matt Pace did the rest of the damage for Schoolcraft, blistering in a direct kick from 19 yards out for a 4-3 lead, then hammering home a crossing pass from Novak.

"Needless to say, it was a very convincing come-from-behind win at their place," said Dimitriou. "It really helped our confidence to know that we could come back like that and win."

The victory improved the Ocelots record to 3-0-1. Lakeland CC visits Schoolcraft at 1 p.m. Saturday.

O&E run Saturday

A party complete with pizza, hot dogs, fruit, drink, music, raffle prizes, and a long-sleeve shirt to commemorate the occasion — what more can a person ask for?

Well, how about a challenging run? Or even a choice of three runs? That's what Schoolcraft College has going Sunday with its first Ocelot Run, co-sponsored by the Observer & Eccentric newspapers.

There will be races of one mile, five kilometers and 10 kilometers. Trophies will be presented to the top three overall male and female finishers, as well as the top two in each of nine age groups for each race. Other prizes, such as gift certificates for dinner, will be drawn at random after the races.

Late registration will be 7:30-9 a.m. Sunday. Cost is $12 and includes a long-sleeve shirt (if available). The one mile and 5K races start at 9:15 a.m., with the 10K race following at 9:30 a.m.

All proceeds go to the Schoolcraft College Athletic Scholarship Fund.

Lower interest rate goes with greater safety

Bonds can be classified into two groups: those for investment and those for speculation.

The investment grades include the bonds that individual and institutional investors seeking stable income and safety ordinarily buy.

BBB/BBaa is the lowest rating that qualifies for commercial bank investments, but it's a borderline group for which, in Standard & Poor's words,

"adverse economic conditions or changing circumstances are more likely to lead to a weakened capacity to pay interest and repay a principal than for bonds in higher-rated categories."

Below BBB/BBaa you are in speculative territory. Bonds in the C and D ranks are in or near default.

Moody's and S&P's don't always agree on a bond's rank. It is not unusual to find an issue rated one grade apart.

The price of quality

Credit ratings play a big role in determining the relative levels of bond prices. Normally, you pay a higher price for bonds with each notch you move up the quality scale.

A triple A usually costs more than a double A with comparable characteristics (maturity, coupon interest rate, etc.). A double A costs more than an A, and so on.

Looked at another way, the higher the quality, the lower the yield. The risk premium — the extra yield on lower-rates issues — tends to increase during extended stock market declines and business recessions.

Presumably, unsettled economic conditions encourage investors to concentrate on top-quality bonds. Riskier issues can be sold in those periods only if they offer an extra-high yield.

designed to protect investors. Municipal bond issuers may advertise their ratings if they like. Corporate issuers may not.

Investments companies (municipal funds and unit investment trusts) may use ratings to describe their investments. They might for example say a portfolio consists of A or higher bonds.

The National Association of Securities Dealers says there are no prohibitions on advertising ratings for secondary sales — that is, when an already issued bond has been bought by a dealer and is being reoffered for sale to the public.

Coming up is a year-end investment and tax planning seminar designed to help you decide what to do now. The following people will speak: Sid Mittra and Bob Fulton: annuities and taxation. Bill Argeropolis: lure of high-write-off tax shelter. Dean Calvert and Sid Mittra: mutual funds (bonds and stock) with timing. The seminar will be held 7-9:30 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 8, at the Kingsley Inn, 1475 N. Woodward, Bloomfield Hills.

The seminar is free, but registration is required. Call 643-8888 for registration.

Sid Mittra is director, personal financial planning program at Oakland University and president of Coordinated Financial Planning Inc. in Troy.

Remember When A 9.75%^(APR) Auto Loan Was Still In Fashion?

Ten years ago, two things were all the rage. Extra-wide ties. And extra-low auto loan rates. Today, First of America reintroduces 9.75% variable interest rate auto loans. Auto loans that are good for any new make or model car or light truck. With whatever options or special features you want.

Loans that are available at First of America offices all over Metro Detroit. And at our new Pontiac locations (formerly Community National Bank of Pontiac). Call your nearest First of America bank to find out how to get a 9.75% variable interest rate auto loan.* Because it may be another ten years before auto loans are this fashionable again.

*Rates may vary outside the Metropolitan Detroit area. Offer not available at all First of America banks. Annual Percentage Rate subject to change after loan closing.

Actors revamp, reopen theater

By Susan Thygerson-Aktry
special writer

I ADMIRE THE PEOPLE of the Stagecrafters for the major task they have undertaken in renovating the Baldwin Theater, which will be a state-of-the-art theater upon its completion this fall," said Patrick Lynch of Birmingham.

Lynch is cast in the title role of Harold Hill in Meredith Willson's classic musical, "The Music Man," which will premiere Friday in the Stagecrafter's newly revitalized Baldwin Theater, 415 S. Lafayette, Royal Oak.

"The members have poured their time, talents, financial resources and energy into this project, and it shows," Lynch said.

"The Baldwin Theater, which was until recently the Washington Theater in downtown Royal Oak, is another example of a theater which was used for a time as a movie theater (like the Birmingham in downtown Birmingham), and is being converted back into a legitimate stage theater," he said.

LYNCH, WHO IS a funeral director with the family owned Lynch Funeral Directors in Clawson, is married to professional actress Mary Callaghan Lynch, who appeared recently at the Birmingham Theater in "Hello, Dolly!" This is her husband's first appearance with the Stagecrafters.

"It's been very interesting to perform the part (the lead in "The Music Man") for two different, very capable directors, Isabel Himelhoch at St. Dunstan's last year, and now Hal Robinson in Royal Oak," Lynch said. "It's all fresh and new with Hal's direction."

Jean Stopke, who will play opposite Lynch as Marian the Librarian, in the upcoming show, also appeared in the St. Dunstan's production, but in another role.

"Pat (Lynch) makes me feel pretty. I think we have a very good rapport. I have a lot of respect for his talent," she said. Stopke explained that it was at Lynch's suggestion she decided to audition for the current production. This will be her first appearance with Stagecrafters since 1976, when she appeared in the Bicentennial production of "Yankee Doodle."

Stopke has demonstrated her penchant for learning as an alumna of Eastern Michigan University in speech and drama, a June graduate of the Detroit College of Law, and a new employee of the office of the Oakland County Prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson.

DIRECTOR Harold J. Robinson has more than 16 years with Stagecrafters, during which he has directed "Visit to a Small Planet," which toured England in 1983; "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest," which won the Furry Festival award for best production, and a number of other plays. Robinson's wife Rosemary is co-producing the current work with Stagecrafter Beverly Lloyd.

In addition to directing "the Music Man," Robinson has been co-chairman of the Baldwin Restoration Committee with Al McMillan of Royal Oak, who is a manufacturer's representative for Trans-World Electronics in Livonia.

McMillan and his wife Jean have been working at all hours of the day and night coordinating volunteer efforts.

GARY CASKEY/staff photographer

The Baldwin Theatre, which for a time was the Washington Theatre movie house in Royal Oak, returns to its original name and again offers live theater, after renovation by the Stagecrafters. The community theater group has taken over the Baldwin, opening the first show of its new season, "The Music Man," on Friday. For ticket information, call the box office at 541-8430.

"We purchased the theater in November of 1984 from the Royal Oak Downtown Development Authority and proceeded to renovate and alter the theater to seat 348, and provide new facilities for intermission reception and for the handicapped," McMillan said.

"Essentially, we cut down the seating capacity from 755 to 348. About 80-90 percent of the work has been done by our own volunteers. We've had to hire an architect, a builder, a licensed electrician, plumber and professional plasterer, but we did everything else that didn't require a licensed tradesman.

"IT'S ENORMOUSLY expensive, but we'll have a million-dollar restoration for under $300,000, because of the work we've done ourselves. We've been told by those who've seen lots of theaters that this is the most beautiful one," he said.

"I'd like to stress we resurrected this 1921 building from a fate worse than death. If your readers can identify with saving an old building and they want to support these efforts, they could buy season tickets that are only $40 for six shows," said McMillan.

lan, who was the Stagecrafters' president when the group took on the Baldwin project.

President of the Stagecrafters since March, and a 13-year veteran of the group is Laura Camp of Troy.

"I think that one of the special things about this group is that it attracts people from so many walks of life, bound by a common interest in theater," she said.

Campo, who is an account supervisor for Vucom, a computer graphics company in Troy, said, "I wasn't looking for a group to join — just a chance to dance." She said she found more than she had sought.

Because of the responsibility of being president of a group involved in such an ambitious undertaking as the move from the Bowers Street playhouse in Clawson to the Baldwin, and the restoration — all while proceeding through a successful fall season of shows — Campo has put her personal interests on hold to concentrate on the group's goals.

In addition to directing "The Music Man," Harold J. Robinson has been co-chairman of the Baldwin Restoration Committee with Al McMillan of Royal Oak, who is a manufacturer's representative for Trans-World Electronics in Livonia.

Menu accents French, Italian

By Ethel Simmons
staff writer

One of Livonia's most charming restaurants is Le Bordeaux, which celebrated its first anniversary this year.

The restaurant at 30325 W. Six Mile Road between Merriman and Middlebelt roads specializes in an interesting combination — French and Italian cuisine. The sophisticated decor complements the food which, although varied and including many special entrees, is available in a price range offering something that everyone can afford.

The setting is enhanced by music played by Billy Rose and his group, who do Top 40 tunes but also songs that appeals to older customers. Rose, on guitar, strolls from table to table during the evening, adding another facet to a diner's meal.

The restaurant's three owners are Andre Hindo, Telly Shaheen and Bona Stoyanovich. "We like the personal touch," said Hindo at lunchtime recently. "One of the owners is always here."

TALKING ABOUT the restaurant's success rate so far, he said the Italian food goes over better than the French. "People here are more familiar with Italian than French," he explained. "I don't think there's any food more common than Italian."

Asked if the restaurant has a special chef, he replied, "I don't believe there's a 'chef.' There's good cooks. There's bad cooks."

"At dinner, mostly the veal dishes go very good," Hindo said. Nine veal dishes are on the menu and priced from $11.95 to $14.95. He commented on the Steak Diane, the house specialty, as another of the most popular entrees. The steak, served with cognac mushroom sauce, is $14.95.

The restaurant serves some 350 dinners over a six-hour period. Seating is about 300, including a banquet room of 100. "We do a lot of banquets, at lunch and dinner," Hindo said. A smaller dining room, for 20, is also available at lunch or dinner.

"Everything is made from scratch," he said. Dinner per person ranges from $7 to $38, with the average price of an entree $12-$13.

"SPECIALTIES" on the menu include Sweet Breads ala Marsalla at $11.95, Canadian Baby Back Ribs at $12.95, and Chicken Piccata, Eggplant Parmigiana and Chicken Parmigiana, all at $8.95.

There are many seafood and pasta dishes, along with other entrees featuring steak, steak and lobster combinations and prime rib.

Appetizers are such favorites as Coquilles St. Jacques, Escargot and Oysters Rockefeller. The Le Bordeaux Sausage Brioche is the restaurant's own homemade sausage baked in pastry and topped with dijon mustard.

SOUPS ARE French onion and minestrone, plus a special of the day.

Francesco Di Biasi is music director of the Oakway Symphony Orchestra, which begins its 13th concert season with "Spanish Spectacular" on Sunday, Sept. 29.

Oakway announces new concert season

Five subscription concerts will be presented at 3 p.m. Sundays during the 1985-86 season by the Oakway Symphony Orchestra.

Viva Vivaldi," with duo violinists Emily Austin and David Cereone, will be featured during a "Salute to American Music Week," Nov. 10 at Southfield High School. "The Nutcracker Ballet," presented by the Contemporary Civic Ballet directed by Rose Marie Floyd, will be at 8 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 7, as well as 3 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 8, at Harrison High School in Farmington Hills.

Artists of Tomorrow," with winners of the Oakway Competition, will be presented Feb. 23 at Harrison High School. Final subscription concert of the season will be "Rachmaninoff with (Mischa) Kottler," in Piano Concerto No. 2, April 27 at Harrison High School.

Francesco DiBiasi is Oakway's music director and conductor.

Tom Panzenhagen

"Thursday's Game" (1971), 12:30 tonight on Ch. 7. Originally 100 minutes. TV time slot: 125 minutes.

"Thursday's Game" stars Gene Wilder, Bob Newhart, Ellen Burstyn, Cloris Leachman, Rob Reiner, Valerie Harper and Nancy Walker. They're all fairly good in it, but they've all done better work and been in better productions, too. That's why "Thursday's Game" is a disappointment. Wilder and Newhart are poker-playing buddies with adulterous tendencies — roles in which Wilder is miscast and which Wilder would perfect years later in "The Woman in Red." Their misadventures are too-well plotted, and most of the laughs stem from situations rather than the untapped talents of the cast. The best thing to do is ignore the film's burdensome framework and try to enjoy the performances of the principals. Or go see "The Woman in Red."

Rating: $2.30.
"A Fine Madness," (1966), 1 tonight on Ch. 50. Originally 104 minutes. TV time slot: 121 minutes.

Or, for a change of pace, try "A Fine Madness," which casts the original James Bond, debonair Sean Connery, as a beatnik artist opposite Joanne Woodward in a role more suited for a less-cerebral actress. Both are effective, though — as far as one can tell. Like the movie, Connery and Woodward seldom know which direction to take next. But it all adds up to a rather fine madness and very pleasing performance. Jean Seaberg, Colleen Dewhurst and Patrick O'Neal co-star.

Rating: $2.95.
"The Buster Keaton Story" (1957), 3:23 Friday night on Ch. 50. Original daily 90 minutes. TV time slot: 100 minutes.

Wouldn't you think there'd be a few laughs in "The Buster Keaton Story"? Well, there are — a very few. Donald O'Connor is convincing as the silent film star, but the movie bogs down in tragic, "real-life" elements of the comedian's career. Most of those elements are made up, or melodramatized, while Keaton's true genius is unexplored. A misdirected supporting cast adds weight to this dinosaur; Rhonda Fleming, Ann Blyth and Peter Lorre co-star.

Rating: $2.20.
"The Enemy Below" (1957), 9:30 a.m. Sunday on Ch. 4. Originally 98 minutes. TV time slot: 120 minutes.

"The Enemy Below" is one of those taut, little, submarine dramas. Put a sweating, suffocating crew in a claustrophobic, crippled sub and suspense flows as assuredly as those forward bulkheads are gonna bust. This time out, though, there's a twist. The dymned submariners are Germans and it's the Americans trying to knock them out of business. No matter. We're accustomed for the Germans as we would be if we were trapped in the boots of GI Joe. Robert Mitchum, Curt Jurgens and Theodore Bikel head the cast.

Rating: $3.35.

Reminders of a bygone era

Updated inn unmatched in sunrises

The Portage Point Inn is a rambling expanse of white clapboard, great pillars, porches and bright red geranium window boxes. The inn was built for wealthy turn-of-the-century passengers who came by steamship and played croquet in long skirts and white flannel trousers on the lawns. Overlooking Portage Lake, the inn is a five-minute walk from Lake Michigan.

ONEKEMA, MICH. — The sun comes up in a late September mist over Portage Lake, backlighting the fishing boats and the docks in front of the Portage Point Inn.

The slap of water against the docks and the mutter of motors are the only sounds on the lake, except for an occasional exclamation from a fisherman as the coho salmon strike.

It has been too dark to see more than the outline of the turn-of-the-century buildings spread broadly across the shore and up the hill, but the sun is above the horizon now, spotlighting the white clapboard ramble of wood, the great pillars of the original hotel, the porches and rooftops of the Inn and Terrace, and the bright red geranium window boxes that decorate it all.

Most of the guests are still asleep, although a few have done their morning walk along the lake and up the road between Portage Point Inn cottages to Lake Michigan, five-minutes walk away.

All of these buildings were built for wealthy turn-of-the-century passengers who came by steamship and played croquet in long skirts and white flannel trousers on these lawns. The steamships have long gone and you must now detour off state Highways 22 or 31 as we did in our drive down the west coast of Michigan.

We left Traverse City with about a dozen people on a bus and another dozen in cars, all of us part of the 30th annual convention of the Society of American Travel Writers here in Michigan. Ten such groups left Traverse City the same day, to write stories about Michigan from sailboats and buses, campers and resort porches on both the upper and lower peninsulas. These writers have come to Michigan from all over the U.S. and Canada.

NO SENSIBLE vacationer would consider packing this much into four days, visiting artists and resorts up and down the Lake Michigan Coast, cruising around Saugatuck, visiting White Pine Village and the Gilmore Car Museum, fishing the Grand River and more. However, there is no other way to see even a small part of a big state like this.

I've been on convention with fellow members of SATW in many parts of the world — Poland, India, Hawaii, Bahamas — so it was a particular pleasure to hear them exclaim over a 1982 Chardonnay from the Chateau Grand Traverse winery, to watch the attentiveness and respect with which they met artist Gwen Frostic of Beulah.

Frostic is one of three remarkable women I met on that short stretch of Michigan coastline between the Leelanau Peninsula and Onekema. Mary Ann O'Neill of Birmingham, owner and chef of a wonderful tiny restaurant called La Becasse, in Burdickville, needs an entire story of her own, as does Michigan's own Gwen Frostic.

Today I would like you to meet Marilyn Luckman, the Director of Operations and the daily driving force behind the great white sprawl of wood known as the Portage Point Inn.

Marilyn and her husband, sculptor Stewart Luckman, have owned the Inn for the last two years. She has a love affair with the Portage Point Inn which is near where she lived for a year in nearby Manistee as a school girl. For many years she came back to work in the Inn for the summer, holding every job available on the premises at one time or another.

Luckman had earned several degrees and was a school principal in Minneapolis, Minn., when her brother telephoned one day from his home in North Dakota.

"THE INN is for sale," he said. "Let's buy it!"

It was a preposterous idea of course. She had a good job in the city school system. Stewart was an established professor at a Minneapolis university, as well as an established sculptor.

What do a school teacher and a sculptor know about running a rambling old inn, restoring sagging roofs and rusted plumbing, or attracting visitors to a white elephant of a place in the woods of western Michigan?

It was an old Irishman, full of old Irish legends, who encouraged Luckman to do it by telling her the story of the brass ring. "The brass ring is a golden opportunity," Luckman said. "If it sounds like a wonderful idea but it's for somebody else and not for you, pass it by. But if it's something you'd like to do, except the timing is wrong, change your thinking. Opportunity always comes at the wrong time."

THE LUCKMANS started the 1984 season as owners of this 17-acre wonderland — scenic and full of problems. Marilyn and Stu had worked the kitchen, waited on tables and tended the boats, but this was no job for starry-eyed youngsters. It was a couple full of horse-sense and good business practices that closed the screen door behind them and set to work.

Part of the Inn has been renovated. The original hotel, where you had to wait 20 minutes for the hot water to arrive, is at this very moment having its new plumbing installed. The building behind the hotel and the inn is having its walls knocked out to double the size of the rooms; next season it will hold corporate meetings.

ALL OF THIS has a time-capsule feeling to the Luckmans. One or other of them worked at the inn from 1954 to 1971. Their son Sean was born at the close of the 1965 season. Another son, Nils, is a bus boy these days in the dining room. The family is always walking in and out of another age.

Marilyn Luckman often sees what she thinks is a guest from the long-ago days, only to realize that it is the son or daughter of a former guest, bringing children and grandchildren back to the inn.

A few things are new to her, like fighting state and local bureaucracy for permission to build docks, or filling out the forms needed for a place on the National Historic Register. A Michigan Department of Commerce Community Development Block Grant was the up side of all that; that money is at work right now restoring the inn.

THERE ARE lots of things to do on this little lake or along the shore of Lake Michigan. You can windsurf or sail, fish and swim, play tennis or stretch out around the pool, tour the restored downtown streets of nearby Manistee.

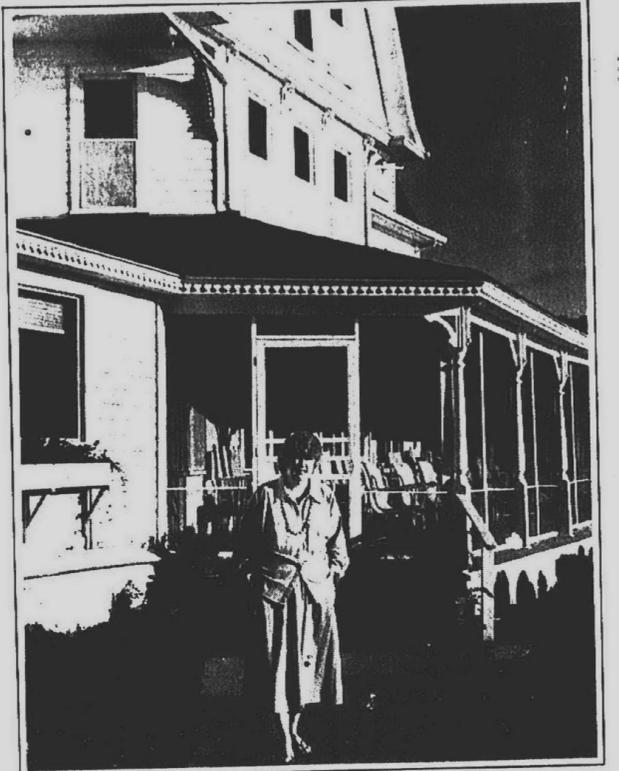

But the nicest part of staying in an old inn like this is just sitting on the porch and watching the sun come up over the lake. It turns the sky to jeweled pink, backlighting the boats muttering along in search of salmon, while a fall mist rises and shapes itself around the scene.

These writers have photographed the Taj Mahal and the skyline of Bangkok, but they've never seen a sunrise quite like that.

The Portage Point Inn is open through October. The Luckman's hope to keep it open most or all of the year in future. Rates are $80 a day per person double occupancy, including all three meals, in the Beech Lodge, Terrace, Main Hotel or Doll Houses; the same for a minimum of three or four people in the cottages. Bed and Breakfast rate is $70 for two.

Discounts are available by the week ($410 per person double occupancy) and for groups. For information, write to Portage Point Inn, P.O. Box 248, Onekema, Michigan 49675 or telephone (616)889-4222.

Marilyn Luckman worked every job at the Portage Point Inn as a girl. Years later she left a job as school principal in Minneapolis when her brother said, "The inn is for sale. Let's buy it."

Fall color show to debut

The curtain is going up on Michigan's fall color extravaganza for a six-week run staged for hikers, bikers, boaters, festival goers and, of course, motorists, reports AAA Michigan.

This year's autumn showcase begins in mid-September and early October in the Upper Peninsula and northern tip of lower Michigan. Trees should wear brilliant hues of magenta, gold and orange from late September to mid-October south of Mackinaw City to north of a line from Ludington to Standish.

The best time for color viewing should be early and mid-October in the lower peninsula's midsection, south of a line from Ludington to Standish and north of a line from Holland to Port Huron. Fall color should peak in southern Michigan in mid- and late October.

FALL COLOR enthusiasts can choose traditional or off-beat ways to see the state's autumn beauty.

Among the most favored pastimes is touring the state by car. Motorists and bikers may wander through more than 3 million acres of state and national forest land to see vivid fall displays. Sugar maples turn brilliant golds and red maples are noted for bright red leaves. Aspens are drenched in brilliant yellow while oaks become light brown to russet and sumac trees glow nearly iridescent red.

Local parks and several scenic gardens in the state, such as Midland's Dow Gardens and Kalamazoo's Nature Center, also are choice spots for color viewing.
