Now it's unanimous: board to seek 2 mills

By Dennis Coffman staff writer

The Plymouth Township Board of Trustees, in a special meeting at 8 a.m. Thursday, made it unanimous - all seven trustees favor seeking voter approval Nov. 5 to levy two additional mills for police and fire protection.

In an earlier regular meeting Tuesday night, the board had approved going for the two mills Nov. 5 but the vote was not unanimous.

Township Supervisor Maurice Breen and Trustee James Irvine voted against the resolution during the long Tuesday meeting.

Both Breen and Irvine rescinded their negative votes during the Thursday meeting, so that the resolution bassed 7-0 instead of the original 5-2.

Irvine said he originally voted against seeking millage because he felt that earmarking the millage for police and fire might have jeopardized the township's obtaining state revenue sharing funds (which happened in Canton)

When Irvine was satisfied that would not be the case in Plymouth Township, he voted in favor of seeking specific police-fire millage in November.

Breen said he had not originally voted for seeking millage because the vote had not been unanimous. But because Irvine changed his vote and all that was needed to make the outcome unanimous was for Breen to vote yes, Breen changed his vote, too.

Esther Hulsing Thursday said notices have been posted, advertising the Nov. 5 election.

City of Plymouth and Plymouth Township residents will face two millage decisions on Nov. 5.

The Plymouth Library District also will seek operating millage to make up for the withdrawal of funding by the city and township governments. The library will ask voters to allow it to levy 0.8 mill in the city and township to support the library. The Plymouth Library District was formed in a special election in September. Nine directors were elected to the library board in the same election.

Last Monday, the board decided to seek 0.8 mill Nov. 5.

Jack Kenyon, the library board chairman, Tuesday had urged the Plymouth Township Board to postpone its election until after the Nov. 5 library millage election, but the township board refused.

The township could have asked for millage until Dec. 13, if it so chose. But township board Trustee Abe Munfakh moved a resolution to hold the town-ship millage vote Nov. 5, resulting in the 5-2 approval by the township board.

Also during the Tuesday township board meeting, Kenyon urged the township not to terminate its agreement to provide 50 percent of the library's operating funds, matching those of the City of Plymouth. But the township board voted to ter-

PLYMOUTH TOWNSHIP Clerk minate its library agreement, as the city had done earlier, leaving the library to fend for itself in raising funds.

> FOR THE LIBRARY to continue its present method of operation, it must get approval of the Nov. 5 millage request.

> Though there is a possibility that passage of the township millage request might encourage the township board to rethink its denial of library funds, that is remote because most members of the board have indicated they would give the highest priority to funding the police and fire departments rather than the library.

> Voters in the library district, which includes the city and the township, will receive two ballots when they go to the polls Nov. 5, one for each millage request.

> Wayne County will canvass the library district vote, while the township will canvass its own millage request.

> The township will receive the support of at least two citizen organizations when it seeks millage.

The Citizens Safety Committee, composed largely of public service employees, has indicated it will campaign for millage.

Another group, called "Decision 85," a lobbying committee, also will be activated to work toward the passage of the township millage request.

2 local police chiefs to push for enhanced 911

By Dennis Coffman staff writer

Funding a problem, but Myers and Berry like system

Plymouth Township does not have its own 911 system, but calls that come into the City of Plymouth 911 system are transferred to the township police

It happens all too often.

A resident hears a noise in another foom and suspects someone is burglarzing his home. He dials the emergency humber, 911, to notify the police that his life and property are in danger.

The 911 operator comes on the line. But the resident must speak softly in order not to alert the burglar. Before he can give the operator his address, however, he is discovered by the burglar who shoots him.

Police don't know the caller's address and can't trace the call because the assailant has ripped the telephone off the wall or placed the receiver back on the hook.

Even if the call were traced there wouldn't be enough time to apprehend the burglar at the scene of the crime.

But under a new "enhanced" 911 system when a resident calls for help, his address is automatically fed into a police computer as soon as the call gets through to the police department's 911 number.

Even if the victim only says "help," the police department will have all the information it needs to send a patrol car to the home or business under seige.

Enhanced 911 provides the police department with a printout of each incoming call, showing the caller's telephone number, the time the call was received, when it was ended or transferred, if the system includes "call detail recording."

With "selective routing," the system recognizes the caller's telephone number, pinpoints the telephone's geographical location and automatically routes the call to the appropriate jurisdiction.

That means that, if Plymouth gets a call from a Canton resident, the information can be quickly transferred to Canton for emergency handling.

'Automatic number identification" displays the caller's telephone number on the emergency team dispatcher's console so the dispatcher can re-establish contact if necessary. This discourages false alarms.

"Automatic location identification" displays the caller's exact location, even if the caller is unable to give the address

Fifty municipalities in the United States now have enhanced, or E911 service. Versions of the system are in service in Alameda County, Calif., Chicago, Minneapolis, St. Louis and New Orleans.

IF WESTERN Wayne County police ready have."

and fire chiefs have their way, Plymouth and Plymouth Township could be a part of the system in two years.

Police and fire chiefs from Plymouth Township, the City of Plymouth, Westland, Wayne, Van Buren, Belleville, Ypsilanti and Taylor met in Plymouth Township Hall Thursday morning to hear an enhanced 911 presentation by Michigan Bell representatives.

Harry Demeshko, Bell market administrator for business network sales, said: "We would take out the basic 911 system and put in the enhanced 911 and deduct the costs of the lines you al-

Bell has estimated that it would cost the City of Plymouth $9,433 to install a complete enchanced system that would identify an incoming telephone number and pinpoint the address of all emergency police and fire calls coming from city residents.

It would cost Plymouth Township $15,722 to install the E911 system.

In addition, there is a monthly service charge which for the city would be $687 and for the township, $1,145.

Security tightened after escape from prison

By Dennis Coffman staff writer

Steps are being taken to prevent another escape from the Western Wayne Correctional Facility in Plymouth Township. Last week, three prisoners escaped from the facility, formerly called DeHoCo.

Three inmates at the medlum-security prison, which is being renovated, were still being sought Friday after they escaped through underground passageways leading to manhole covers beyond the prison's new fence.

The fence had been completed just days before the three men escaped, said Emmett Baylor, superintendent at the facility.

Michigan State Police were notified immediately after the escape was discovered and are the primary law enforcement unit working on the case, Baylor said.

But state Rep. Gerald Law, R-Plymouth, was critical of the notification procedures.

'I'm upset about how it was handled." Law said Friday. "I am trying to find out why the Plymouth Township Police were not notified. We want to get them to proceed to notify the local police as well as the county sheriff and State Police. But the local police must be notified, too, and allowed to know what's going on."

PART OF the problem at the Western Wayne Correctional Facility is its age (more than 50 years), Law said.

The underground steam tunnels leading to the manhole covers and freedom were being bricked up, Law said.

"The problem is that there is not yet enough room to lock up each prisoner individually," Law said.

Law, who serves on the House Corrections Committee, said he was told miliar with the prison, and, if there is a way to escape, they find it.

By 1987, about $13 million will be spent to provide individual cells for what will then be a prison population of 500 men.

The facility is at Five Mile and Beck, across from the Phoenix Correctional Facility and the Scott Facility, which is being built. Scott and Phoenix are in Northville Township.

chiefs and judges and the prison super- lor said.

the facility has an adequate staff. But intendent," Law said, "so they can go prisoners, he said, quickly become fa-miliar with the prison, and, if there is a place at other state prisons."

Western Wayne Correctional Facility has been a state prison just a few months. Before that, it was operated by the city of Detroit as DeHoCo.

THE THREE men who escaped last week were serving time for arson, receiving stolen property, and for armed robbery.

Plymouth and Northville police and Michigan State troopers were alerted "I'm in favor of setting up a commu-to the escapes, which took place be-tween 7 and 8 p.m. last Tuesday, Bay-

The C&O Railroad also had been notified, he said.

"We've bricked up several tunnels," Baylor said. "They apparently escaped on foot, although it's possible someone was there to meet them. Escapees usually make a beeline to get out of the area as fast as they can.

"These inmates are not like those in Jackson State Prison. They're mostly parole violators or from halfway hous-

Cable television will cost Plymouth Township residents more, but where the increase will show up is not known. Last week the Plymouth Township Board of Trustees denied a request from Omnicom Cablevision for a $1.70 increase in the basic rate.

Increases in the basic rate. That same proposal is being made tomorryw night to the Canton Board of Trustees, which also is expected to deny the request. Prederick Collman, Omsteom gener-al manager, and if the firm doesn't get the $1.70 increase it will have to inwas allowed to increase the basic rate 5 percent at the beginning of 1985.

RATE INCREASES are stemming from Omnicom's push to get out of red ink and into the black. The company has yet to see a profit, Coliman said. Omnicom makes more money from basic rates than premium rates. Cable companies share the premi-mum rate fees with the servicing com-pany, such is Home Box Office (HDO). "One of the issues that happened this year is that we were denied a basic rate increase, and so we increased our pay rates to the detriment of Omnicom and our subscribers," Coliman said.

"We don't make as much money from our pay rates and the customer ends up paying more," Coliman said. "What happens when the pay rate goes up and the basic rate doesn't is that the pay rate people have to subsidize the basic." Local municipalities only govern ba-sic rates because other cable charges have been deregulated. In January 1987 basic rates will be deregulated and local governmissin will be stripped of their control over table costs. "While hothing is fluid on what will take place in January 1987, I would envision Omnicom's rates changing and perhaps our channel lineups changing," Collman said.

OVERALL RATES probably wouldn't increase, he said.

The company would charge more in areas like basic rates where it makes more profits. Collman blames high premium rates on the regulation of the sic rates.

"I would love to see something like our ability to lower our premimum rates and the lower our premimum rates and the lower down't take a bit day of the lower down't take ative packing the "Water poll our work out out, and we are trying to figure out what to do once it's deregulated," he said.

High court may rule who's boss

By Dennis Coffman staff writer

The controversy over who is the real Michigan Racing Commissioner has finally reached the Michigan Supreme Court.

Not unexpectedly, William Ballenger, the commissioner appointed in 1982 by then-Gov. William Milliken, Thursday appealed to the state Supreme Court to resolve the debate over who is entitled to the race chief job -Ballenger or William Cahalan.

Cahalan was sworn into the office Sept. 1, after being appointed by Gov. James Blanchard. Blanchard claimed he had authority to name Cahalan to the post because Michigan Attorney General Frank Kelley had determined Ballenger was entitled to serve only the remainder of the term of Frederick Van Tiem, who died in office in 1982.

Ballenger, who maintains he is entitled to a full four-year term ending Sept. 23, 1986, claimed there was newfound evidence that a Court of Appeals decision two weeks ago that said he should vacate the office - may have been "tainted."

THE DETROIT Free Press claimed in Thursday's edition that it had received a copy of a letter supposedly written by Appellate Court Judge Richard M. Maher on Aug. 28 to Cahalan, while Ballenger's lawsuit challenging Cahalan's appointment was pending before the court of which Maher is a member.

Ballenger claimed the letter was written "ex parte," meaning that is showed Maher had heard only one side of the dispute and was not considering both parties.

"Maher in his letter allegedly reminded Cahalan that he had 'promised' to 'get together' with race track lobbyist James Karoub, Maher, and an attorney for a standardbred trainer who has been suspended for drugging horses so that Cahalan might receive 'suggestions' about how to perform as commissioner," wrote Ballenger in a news release he issued Thursday.

ness horse owner, also claimed in the letter that Ballenger needed psychiatric help because of his resistance to efforts by Blanchard, Karoub and Attorney General Kelley to replace him.

'No wonder the Court of Appeals decision appeared to have been prefabricated. We've been stiffed," said Ballenger. "I'll be filing a complaint with the Judicial Tenure Commission, the Supreme Court, and the state Senate."

The 'Neal Fink' referred to in the Maher letter is counsel for Joseph Berry, who was suspended from racing for training drugged horses in 1981. Berry and Fink fought Ballenger's order barring Berry from the premises of Michigan race tracks all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court - and lost.

ATTORNEYS IN Karoub's firm represent a race track suspended by Ballenger for presiding over a race in which the official owned the winning horse, but had hidden his ownership under his mother's name.

'Cahalan appears to be a compromised nominee who should not have been named at this time," Ballenger said. "He will not be able to function as racing commissioner without being suspect

This is not a job for a plea bargainer. The racing commissioner must act decisively to expel undesirables from the tracks - including anyone responsible for drugging horses as well as '10 percenters' and any racing officials involved in conflict-of-interest situations.

Ballenger said that if he wins his appeal to the Supreme Court, he will resign as racing commissioner next year before the end of the term to which he was appointed by Milliken.

"THE PURPOSE of my legal challenge has never been to hang on to this job. I've got other things to do," said Ballenger. "The object of my protest has been to stop meddling by the governor and the attorney general in racing's regulatory process for purely political purposes.

Ballenger and Cahalan both were scheduled to appear at a hearing in the Plymouth Hilton Inn Friday concerning the granting of 1986 racing dates.

The legality of the dates, which were granted by Ballenger before Cahalan was appointed, are in question because the Court of Appeals twice has ruled that Ballenger is not entitled to the racing commissioner's office.

Opponents of Ballenger have claimed that the dates are not favorable to tracks represented by Karoub.

The letter received by the Free "Judge Maher, who is a licensed har- Press was left by Cahalan in a folder on his desk in his Plymouth office. Ballenger has an office in the same suite.

Cahalan, quoted by the Free Press, said the letter was merely a "congratulatory" one and that there is a "sneak" in the Plymouth office.

The Supreme Court is expected to act quickly in deciding if the appellate court ruled correctly in ruling Cahalan commissioner because the validity of the racing dates and all business conducted since Sept. 1 by the two commissioners is in doubt.

Out of formula

Districts without aid join together about concerns

By Mary Klemic and Neal Haldane staff writers

When it comes to the question of working in Lansing to maintain state aid, area school districts spell relief in different ways.

In western Wayne County, it's spelled MAISL. That stands for Metropolitan Association to Improve School Legislation, the name of an organization that has been in operation since the 1950s.

Ten districts from western Wayne County belong to MAISL, which has its own full-time lobbyist. Besides Livonia, other members are the school districts of Garden City, Wayne-Westland, Plymouth-Canton, Redford Union, Dearborn, Inkster, Northville, Romulus and Taylor. They pay annual fees, based on a per child basis, and meet once a month. Livonia's fee this year is about $15,000. said George Garver, Livonia's superintendent.

Seven of these are in-formula and three (Livonia, South Redford and Dearborn) out-of-formula.

In Oakland County and Ann Arbor, several school districts seek state aid relief through MOFDA or the Michigan Out-of-Formula District Association

This association began five years ago when four districts - Southfield, Birmingham, Troy and Ann Arbor decided to band together to fight for those districts which do not receive state aid, according to Ronald Rohlman, associate superintendent for Southfield Public Schools.

Since then, the organization has grown to include 91 school districts, including Bloomfield Hills, Farmington and West Bloomfield. The 91 represent about half of all out-of-formula districts in Michigan.

USING A MATHEMATICAL formula, the Michigan Department of Education determines if a local school district should receive money from the state and how much it should be given.

The Livonia Public School District, which is out of formula, receives 'very, very little" state aid, Garver said. Out of its budget of around $64 million, only some $1 million is from the state, he said. This money goes for transportation, special education and vocationa' '-aining.

Plymouth-Canton Community Schools came close to "going out of formula" to receive state aid some four years ago, but was able to avoid that.

"Our lobbying needs are met through the organization," Garver said

"MAISL offers a complete ap proach to school needs. It serves all school districts. A very poor district like Inkster and some wealthy districts (are members)."

MAISL has a budget of about $108,000, including a full-time lobbyist and secretary, MAISL executive secretary Jerry Dunn said. About 100,000 students are served by the organization

THE PLYMOUTH-CANTON district reached the point a few years ago where the general state aid received was about 5 percent of total revenues. Projections showed the district would go out of formula and receive no state aid the next year.

But at the same time, the city of Plymouth, Canton Township and Plymouth Township hired tax valuation firms to do a complete reassessment of their residential property. The tax base declined substantially in all three communities, and the district went back into formula as a result. Present projections don't show the district going out of formula in the near future.

TWO-THIRDS OF the 528 kindergarten-12 school districts receive state aid, according to Bloomfield Hills Superintendent W. Robert Docking, MOFDA chairman.

Even the small amount of money that out-of-formula districts receive, in the form of categorical grants, has been cut in recent years, Docking said.

One concern of MOFDA involves tax abatements. General Motors' efforts to cut back property tax payments attack out-of-formula districts because almost all funding comes from property taxes, Docking said.

In these appeals, school districts don't have the same representation as the city or county, even though the schools receive more property taxes than those governmental units.

Pending legislation, sponsored by state Rep. Maxine Berman, D-Southfield, would give districts more voice in the appeal process. MOFDA is actively backing that of money in education under the Blanchard administration, but virtually none of that money has come into out-of-formula districts," he said. "In fact, things have gone the other way."

As the Michigan economy improves, more money is funneled into education, Docking said.

Notions to remove excess funding from out-of-formula districts to give to in-formula districts would give all districts the same amount of money to spend on education, Rohlman said. "But then you'd have total mediocrity," he said.

How state calculates aid

The state aid per pupil formula in the 1985-86 school year is $300 plus $68.50 for each mill levied by the district, according to Douglas Roberts, deputy superintendent for the state.

In addition, if the district adopts certain graduation requirements or provides a certain number of classes, it is entitled to another $28 per student. It could receive another $8.35 per pupil if its average class size in kindergarten and first grade has a student-teacher ratio of 25 or less to inte

So if the district qualifies for the additional $36.35, the formula is $336.35 plus $68.50 for each mill.

The average millage levied around Michigan is 32 mills ($32 per $1,000 of State Equalized Value). Based on the formula, a district levying 32 mills receives $336.35 plus $2,192 (32 mills multiplied by $68.50), for a total of $2,528.35 per pupil.

If the district has $50,000 of SEV behind each student, it generates

$1,600 in local property taxes (32 mills multiplied by $50,000). That is $928.35 less than the $2,528.35 that the state aid formula allows. So the state will guarantee $928.35 per pe-pil. That district is considered in-formula.

(P)SA

If the district has $100,000 of SEV for each pupil, it generates $3,500 in local property taxes. That figure is more than the $2,528.35 amount, so the district is considered out-of-formula.

Out of formula school districts have joined together to find funding sources.

legislation, Docking said.

There has been a massive infusion to get inter-community cooperation. For Canton Township, the installation fee would be $26,728 and the monthly charge would be $1,947.

EACH COMMUNITY could go it alone but Plymouth Township Police Chief Carl Berry, who chaired the meeting last Thursday, has been trying

"This is a valuable system that can is funding." Berry is hoping that communities such as Plymouth and Canton will approve joining the E911 system and then seek funding from Wayne County.

The communities could appeal to Wayne County through their inter-community organization, the Conference of Western Wayne of which Plymouth Township Supervisor Maurice Breen is chairman.

"It will take two years from the time work," said Berry. "The only problem of approval to actuality," said Berry. We have to have something off the ground in six to eight months." Richard Myers, police chief for the City of Plymouth, also backs the E911 system.

"It's unbelievable," said Myers. "It eliminates false calls and wasted manpower - that's a side effect. But we have to take a look at the cost difference between the basic 911 and enhanced 911 systems. That's the problem - funding

Myers pointed out that phony emergency calls can be quickly discouraged because the caller's address would be known and he would be visited by the police and charged. In effect, the dialer of a false alarm would be giving himself away simply by dialing the enhanced 911 number.

THERE ARE several avenues open for financing the system.

Each community could pay for its own system; the state could help pay for systems; or each county could provide financing.

Oakland County is close to providing financing for the installation and 50 percent of the monthly fees for its communities. Genessee and Saginaw counties also are studying the system.

Farmington Hills and Novi have indicated they favor joining a 911 system.

The Michigan Legislature is considering a proposal to add 2 percent to telephone bills to finance the system.

Several members of the Plymouth Township Board of Trustees attended the E911 meeting in township hall Thursday, including Supervisor Breen, Treasurer Mary Brooks, Clerk Esther Hulsing and trustees Abe Munfakh and Andy Pruner.

"Get your political people involved," Breen urged the police and fire chiefs. Berry urged the chiefs to contact elected officials who then would take the matter to the Conference of Western Wayne where an E911 coordinating committee could be established.

IF THE township millage request passes, it will provide two additional mills which, when combined with the existing two mills, will equal a total of four mills.

Last July, the township had sought authorization to levy up to four mills, but voters turned down that request.

Several residents, during the Tuesday meeting, criticized the township board for not earmarking the failed July millage request specifically for the use of funding the police and fire departments.

Those critics claimed voters did not want to see the township allocate millage, as it saw fit, for general expenditures. Breen has said that two mills is low and would have preferred seeking a higher amount.

As a charter township, Plymouth Township is qualified to levy up to an additional five mills.

Breen has pointed out that many neighboring communities levy far higher millage rates than does the township.

The City of Plymouth, for example, levies about 18 mills.

Breen also has pointed out that residents tend to forget that the lion's share of their tax bills goes toward the operation of schools.

In Plymouth Township, two mills (one mill is equal to $1 of tax levied per $1,000 of state equalized value) out of a total of more than 50 mills goes to the township. The rest goes to the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools (39 mills), Wayne County (seven mills), the Schoolcraft College district and special education millage.

"I know prison officials are very concerned about publicity. But you don't just put a high fence around the place. You have to keep a check on the men.

About $500,000 had been spent on the new fence, Law said. The complete renovation will cost $20 million.

Plymouth Township gets no revenue from the state prison. Although the new facilities are expected to need 120 additional employees, the persons hired need not be from the Plymouth area, Law said.

1895 Plymouth grad achieved national recognition

(Part 23)

The president's address at Class Day exercises of the Plymouth High School class of 1905 was delivered by Leigh Markham. He was the son of W. F. Markham, the local air rifle manufacturer who revolutionized the sale of air rifles in America in 1885 when he began to produce a rifle priced within the means of young boys.

On the day Leigh graduated from Plymouth High he had no way of knowing that the future would include a marital split of his parents, and that his father, whose second wife was his secretary at the air rifle plant, would leave Plymouth for Hollywood where he was to make a fortune in real estate.

Leigh and his two sisters, who sided with their mother in the marital dispute, were cut out of their father's will. When Phil Markham died in 1930, his millions went to his second wife, and upon her death, to the children of her lawyer

The Markham children sued to have the will set aside, charging undue influence by the lawyer, but without success. A full account of the Markham story can be found in chapter three of my book "The Story of Plymouth, Michigan," published in 1976.

DIPLOMAS WERE presented at Commencement Day by Paul W. Voorhies, treasurer of the Board of Education.

The other members of the board were Edward C. Hough, its president, V. E. Hill, H. B. Jolliffe and Mrs. Ella Chaffee Voorhies, a local attorney, went on to become attorney general of the State of Michigan (1931-33). Hough was later president of the Daisy Manufacturing

The superintendent of schools in 1905 was W. N. Isbell. Mary Fuller Howes was principal and Helen G. Hunter assistant.

The 1905 Class Yell was a rather contrived ditty not destined to rank among the top 10 of its genre. It may have sounded well when done in unison, but it loses something when set in cold Recitations and the reading of papers at public gatherings were popular in the early 1900s. At a Pioneer Day program held at Plymouth High in 1902, the audience listened to four papers, four recitations, an address, a response and two declamations and was entertained by seven musical selections. Not an event for the fidgety.

Superintendent J. E. Meally gave the introduction. George A. Starkweather had a few words to say. Bertha Shattuck read a paper on the "Founding of Michigan." Carroll Adams declaimed on "Johnny's Opinion." Iva Chappell re-cited "The Old Clock in the Hall." Ernest Robinson recited "Out of the Old House, Nancy."

Edgar Jolliffe did "The Last Leaf." Una Gunsolly recited "Fifty Years Ago." Eva Adams read a paper on "The History of the School District." Flora

Corwin lectured at many other universities throughout the United States and, during 1928 and 1929, was Carnegie Professor at Yenching University at Peiping and other Chinese institutions.

Corwin wrote more than 20 books. He became an authority on the U.S. Constitution and on the Presidency. Among his most influential books were "The President, Office and Powers" (1940), "A Constitution of Powers in a Secular State" (1951), and "The Constitution and What It Means Today" (first published in 1920, it went through 12 editions and was translated in five languages).

Corwin's political impact, during the administration of Franklin Delano Roosevelt, is described in the "U.S. Encyclopedia of History:"

"Frequently involved in political controversies, he first supported President Franklin D. Roosevelt's plan to

In 1948, he criticized President Roosevelt's Cabinet as an "administrative anachronism" and proposed that it be replaced by a legislative council "whose daily salt does not come from the President.'

Corwin later opposed the Bricker Amendment and also informed the Supreme Court that it should have Its 'nose well tweaked" for interfering with legislative and executive authority in several 1956-57 decisions.

When he graduated from Plymouth High, in a class that included only four students, Corwin's Commencement Day oration was entitled "An Apostle of Liberty." It could well have been the foundation on which he built the many books he wrote and his lifelong preoccupation with the fundamental principles according to which our country is governed. # uck can produce success

Quite a few years ago when the colleges and many universities around the country sponsored special programs with the newspaper writers, Michigan State sponsored a program with Jimmy Gheen as the main speaker.

For more than a half hour he spoke and called attention to the students and others in the room that knowledge was needed on any job.

Then he, knowing he had the listeners pleased, gave this closing bid: "Your studies and your ratings will be quite necessary, but there is another thing to remember - you have to be damned lucky to succeed as you would like to."

THE STROLLER just sat there and felt that Jimmy had known him for he was "damned lucky" to be on a major newspaper and a guest of one of the country's best state colleges.

He had reason to smile a bit for it was the mere changing of a time for football banquet that paved the way for him to be accepted for the Detroit Free Press sports staff.

In those days he had worked on a paper in Allen-town and had covered the athletic activities at Muhlenberg College. The football team was coached by Johnny Siegel of Detroit, who had been an All American at Washington and Jefferson. Over the years we had become good friends and we always sat side by side at the annual banquet.

This year the banquet was set and he looked forward to another enjoyable evening with a close friend. Then, without warning, the words came that the stroller W.W. Edgar

Guest's poems, but he also wanted to be with his friend, Spiegel. What to do? That was the question.

He decided to be with his friend. Then two days before the banquet the word was passed along that the banquet time had been changed to give folks a chance to hear Edgar Guest.

That settled it. The Stroller went to the banquet and then to the high school auditorium to hear Guest. He was so pleased with the poet that he asked to meet him. Guest was kind enough to race up the aisle and shake hands.

WE CHATTED for about an hour. The poet asked many questions from the younger newspaper editor. Then Guest, seriously, said: "There are any number of papers in this country that would gobble up a fellow like you."

"Do you know one now?," he was asked.

Guests smiled and suggested that The Stroller write a letter and he would do the best he could after he got back to his desk at the Free Press.

It is satisfying to know that the following week

Edgar A. Guest, the famed poet of the Free Press, was going to speak on the same night.

The Stroller was in a quandary. He enjoyed he was invited to join the Free Press sports staff. He accepted and was there for a quarter of a century and became known in the sports world.

3/4 teaspoon saft 1 egg, well beaten 1 cup milk

3 tablespoons shortening, melted

Mix flour with sugar, baking powder and salt. Combine egg, milk and shortening; add to flour mixture, mixing just until flour is moistened. (Batter will be lumpy.) Lightly grease inside of gingerbread man cookie cutter. For each pancake, place cutter on hot griddle, pour thin layer of bat-ter into mold and bake until bubbles form on surface. Carefully remove cutter; turn griddle cake to brown other side. Decorate with raisins or other fruit, if desired, and serve with Log Cabin syrup.

To freeze, brown lightly, stack with waxed paper between and wrap in aluminum foil. To reheat, unwrap and arrange on baking sheet; bake at 300° for about 10 minutes (or reheat in a toaster or toaster oven). To reheat in microwave oven, stack 2 frozen cakes on a nonmetal plate and heat 1 or 2 minutes.

In Hangtown, eggs and oysters made the most expensive meal

chefs can rival the ingenuity of the anonymous cook of the Cary House Hotel in Hangtown, Calif., whose sole claim to fame is an oyster dish with the unlikely name of Hangtown Fry. (Hangtown, now Placerville, got its name because the town's judge had a short temper and an excess of rope, it appears.)

The clever chef, so the story goes, was asked by a lucky miner who had just found a bonanza at Shirttail Bend to fix the most expensive meal on the menu. It was an unusual request, but not a difficult one to fill. During the Gold Rush food prices in mining towns rose to unbelieveable heights - usually 1/4 tsp salt

When it comes to creating an expen-sive yet simple meal in a hurry few gold available in the area. A piece of watermelon might sell for $4 to $6, while whiskey was $1,500 a barrel. At $1 each, eggs cost only slightly less than ovsters. Combining the two resulted not only in a high-priced meal, but also in a tasty recipe which today is quite affordable. HANGTOWN FRY 12 medium-sized shucked oysters

3 thsp all-purpose flour 1/2 tsp salt Dash pepper 1 beaten egg 2 tbsp butter or margarine 6 eggs 1/3 cup milk

Pat oysters dry with paper toweling. Combine flour, the 1/2 tsp. salt and the pepper. Dip oysters into the 1 beaten egg, then into the flour mixture. In 10inch skillet melt the butter or margarine over medium heat. Cook oysters in butter till edges curl, about 2 minutes on each side. Beat the 6 eggs with the milk and the ¼ tsp. salt. Pour into skillet with oysters. As egg mixture begins to set on bottom and sides, lift and fold over with wide spatula. Continue cooking and folding for 4 to 5 minutes or till eggs are cooked throughout. Remove from heat. Makes 3 or 4 servings.

Hangtown Fry - and the story surrounding its creation — is the stuff from which the cookbook "A Taste of the West from Coors" is made. The anecdotes from the old West are as much fun to read as the recipes are to prepare and eat.

"A Taste of the West from Coors" is a hard-cover 100-page cookbook, lavishly illustrated with full color food and scenic photography. # Mexican pizza blends proteins in a completely meatless and tasty dish seeds and brown rice have in common? All are sources of protein - a nutrient you might think comes only from red meats, fish or poultry. Actually, beans, seeds, nuts and whole grain cereals can be combined in many ways to create family-pleasing meatless main dishes for mere pennies.

The key to creating main dishes minus the meat is in selecting the right combinations of protein sources. There are two primary ways you can do this.

One way is to combine a plant protein food with an animal protein food. For example, cheese, yogurt, milk and seeds or nuts. If macaroni and cheese,

What do kidney beans, sunflower pizza are favorite main dishes, you've already been enjoying the great taste and economy of grains and legumes paired with dairy products.

You can also combine two different plant protein foods. When you combine two different plant proteins, they complement each other to form a more complete protein source. For example, a legume can be combined with whole grains, seeds or nuts but not with another legume. Red beans and rice, baked beans and brown bread, blackeyed peas and corn bread, split pea soup and a peanut butter sandwich on whole wheat bread and kedney bean-contain little if any fat. As research into the relationship of certain fats in the diet to coronary heart disease continues, medical authorities are telling us to eat fewer foods which are high in fat, and to increase the fiber in our diets. So, meatless meals are a healthy as well as easy-on-the-budget menu alternative.

Of all the non-meat protein sources, beans are one of the most economical and versatile. One cup of cooked beans provides one-fourth of the U.S. Recommended Daily Allowance of protein and costs just pennies. However, beans do require soaking and lengthy cooking before they can be used in favorite recipes. Cooked beans, readily available in convenient cans, are just as nutritious and are ready to use when inspi-

Although I often follow the Army axiom — never volunteer stepped into the front line when plans for a going-away party for a friend teetered.

I collected money for a parting gift and bought two pieces or luggage, purchased some drinks and ice and delivered them to the host's house and prepared two appetizers.

Many guests brought something dips, cakes, wine and beer while we sent out for crispy chicken that was kept warm on the outdoor barbecue.

I even carted over one of those folding tables and helped set up the buffet. I received compliments for my walnut-cucumber dip, but failed to advise that the pot cheese spread needed to be put on crackers.

"It is sort of hard for a dip," one woman observed. "But it's good, it's good."

I decided to run a little taste test on the dips.

"Which one do you like?" I asked a man trying them all.

"That one," he said, pointing to the dip that I knew was storebought.

THE ROLES OF rescuers on the high seas are new ones for Andrea DeZell and Judy Gibbs. members of the Three Cities Art Club.

Andrea and her husband, Al DeZell, had invited Judy and her husband, Neil McCluskey, to go for a Sunday evening cruise on the Detroit River. The foursome was enjoying the ride in the DeZell's 37footpower boat, when a boat roared past them, made a sharp turn, flipped on its side, righted itself, then began to settle down, down in the water.

Andrea said they were just east of the RenCen when the boat passed them. There were other boats in the area but they were the ones who went to the rescue. The boat was sinking fast and the three people in the boat were thrashing around in the water, one with a serious shoulder injury.

It was windy and the water was choppy, making it difficult to get close to the sinking boat.

Andrea was hand-holding the rope, trying to secure their boat alongside the other one, while Neil and Al transferred the injured man to the DeZell boat. They had all three on board when a Coast Guardboat arrived in response to the DeZells' call for help on their radio.

In the meantime, another Plymouth resident jumped out of his boat and swam to the DeZell boat. Joe and Barbara Lanzon of Plymouth saw what was happening and decided they needed some help with the seriously injured occupant of sinking boat.

When he saw they had things under control, he swam back to his own boat.

"The off-shore patrol heard our radio call, too, and they came. The boat was sinking fast when we got to it. It sank within five minutes," Andrea said.

The Coast Guard took the two men and the woman aboard and called an ambulance. Both the DeZell and Coast Guard boats went alongside the RenCen to await the ambulance. The injured man was placed on a stretcher and all three of the rescued were taken to the hospital. The woman had cut her ear

RNs learn about malpractice suits

By Elinor Graham staff writer

Sharon Spencer Lutz, registered nurse turned lawyer, warned her audience that she could now be considered the enemy, "although I have never named a nurse in a suit. Nurses are sued infrequently."

Her audience was the Plymouth Registered Nurses Association and her topic was the Good Samaritan Act.

Lutz was a working RN for 12 years - surgery, public health and school nurse. She received her law degree in 1974 from the Detroit College of Law. Her practice is devoted to clients who feel they have been victims of gross medical negligence.

"The role of nurses has expanded. The days are long gone when nurses simply followed doctors' orders. They are charged with having more knowledge and more responsibility," Lutz said.

She did tell the nurses how to protect themselves from gross negligence lawsuits.

THE "GOOD Samaritan Act" states: "A physician or registered nurse who in good faith renders emergency care at the scene of an emergency, where a physician-patient or registered-nurse patient relationship did not exist prior to the advent of such emergency, shall not be liable for any civil damages as a result of acts or omissions by the physician or registered nurse in rendering the emergency care, except acts or omissions amounting to gross negligence or wilful and wanton misconduct."

Lutz said, "You can't be sued for negligence - just gross negligence. And what is gross negligence?" Physicians and nurses still are being sued.

WHAT IF YOU are driving down the road and see a bad accident? What happens if you stop?

"A nurse or physician owes no duty . to stop at the accident. Until you declare yourself you can drive away. As soon as you say you are a nurse, you are preventing others from taking charge.

"If you give aid in good faith, you can't be sued for negligence, just gross negligence," she said, adding that the law's definition of gross negligence has been referred to as "gibberish."

"If you have knowledge of peril, know what to do but fail to do it, it is also known as wilful and wanton misconduct."

She said the Good Samaritan Act can be applied to a large immunization program, "but if your group has volun-teered for the Plymouth Fall Festival, for example, you can't take advantage of the Good Samaritan Act."

LUTZ SAID the recent case, Ross vs. Consumers, prevents lawsuits against government entities, but allows lawsuits against individuals.

She said a group such as the Plymouth Registered Nurses Association, which volunteers its services, should know if their sponsoring agency is covered by insurance.

"Premiums are between $25 and $75 a year if you buy your own insurance."

She cited some examples. An emergency room nurse on her way to lunch walks through the medical floor. Someone calls for help.

"You go in to render aid, you can be sued. You go back to the hospital at 8 p.m., you're off duty and the same thing happens. You can use the act."

An RN in the audience asked, "What if you're at Vic Tanny and someone is in trouble. They call you over because they know you're a nurse?"

'A physician or registered nurse who in good faith renders emergency care at the scene of an emergency, where a physician-patient or registered nurse patient did not exist prior to the advent of such an emergency, shall not be liable for any civil damages as a result of acts or omissions by the physician or registered nurse in rendering emergency care, except acts or omissions amounting to gross negligence or wilful and wanton misconduct.'

- Good Samaritan Statute

"No one has the duty to go help a some injury while in the hospital, less fellow human being. If you go to their aid you are taking over," was the reply. The nurse explained that she had assisted and everything had turned out

"WHAT IF A neighbor calls for help with a sick or injured child?" Lutz replied, "You could be charged for advising neighbors. You could tell them to take the child to emergency. It depends on the circumstances, you could render first aid until an ambu-

"I believe nurses are held to a higher She was asked if gross negligence lawsuits are on the upswing. "About one-third of the patients have than 5 percent of them sue. It is expected that DRGs (Diagnosis Related Group) will increase malpractice suits," was the answer.

THE ATTORNEY was asked how a nurse can protect herself when a pa-tient is in trouble and she does not get the assistance she has requested.

By going up the corporate ladder. Call the resident. Put it on the chart, have the nurse document and the resident document it. Call the doctor and put it on the chart. Chart when the doctor comes in. If it isn't on the chart, it can be assumed he did not come in."

She said long form was better on a chart and suggested written words on a 'Flow sheet.' An RN asked if it was normal to have a court reporter take depositions from everyone who had their name on a chart.

"Yes," Lutz said. "Something that happens in September 1985 probably won't come to trial until 1988. It is best to get depositions when the incident is fresh in everyone's minds. Each side takes 'expert witnesses.' They may de-cide to mediate three months before the case comes to trail. If they cannot settle through mediation, the case is assigned to trial."

LUTZ EXPLAINED arbitration.

"If a patient signs an arbitration agreement, they give up up the right to sue and have jury trial. A panel of three arbitrators makes the decision usually a physician or hospital perso-nage, an attorney and a public personage.

She also told the nurses that patients had the right to their records. The contents belong to the patients, she emphasized.

"Even at the nurses station?" she was asked.

"You can stall, but they have the right to review their records. Parents have the right to records of children up to 17 years of age."

Is there a time limit on filing a malpractice suit?

Lutz answered, "Yes. Two years from the time of last treatment or six months after they knew, or should have known of their complaint."

The Plymouth RNs thanked their speaker and one of the longtime members added, "I'm so glad I have retired."

THE ARROWCRAFT sale Sunday at Marilyn Carl's has an interesting background.

The sale of mountain crafts is being sponsored by the Detroit West Suburban Alumnae Club of Pi Beta Phi.

The Pi Beta Phi Fraternity established a settlement school in Gatlinburg, Tenn., in 1912 in the foothills of the Great Smoky Mountains. It brought educational and health facilities to the region and by 1925 provided the Arrowcraft Shop, an outlet for the craftsmen producing in their homes. Arrowcraft, one of the first cottage industries in the United States, grew and expanded. Today some 60 weavers and many other craftsmen, market their work through the efforts of Pi Beta Phi.

The local sale will be 1-6 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 6, at 1754 Old Salem, in the New England Village section of Plymouth.

Sylvester Stallone stars in "Rambo: First Blood Part II," an entertaining yet regrettably over-simplified movied that's cleared $150 million at the box office.

What makes Rambo tick?

"What megabuck miracle hath Stallone wrought?" I asked myself as I motored somewhat apprehensively off to see "Rambo: First Blood Part

Having studiously avoided "Rambo" during the many months in which it grossed $150 million, I decided it was time to pay my dues and join the legions who had already queued up. In spite of my distaste for violence and my disregard for Stallone, I was curious why the film was so successful

As it turns out, "Rambo" isn't as gross as one might expect; the violence has a detached, unreal quality and the film has a couple of things to say that people want to hear.

Johnny Rambo (Sylvester Stallone), a highly decorated, well-trained combat veteran of the Vietnam War, is released from prison on the condition he undertake a dangerous scouting mission. Special Forces Col. Trautman (Richard Crenna) collects Johnny from the chain gang and takes him to meet Marshall Murdock (Charles Napier) who is in charge of the mission.

Murdock's position is never clearly described but it quickly becomes evident that he is a conglomerate character representative of everything negative that might be said about politicians, the CIA and other clandestine types.

RAMBO'S MISSION is to parachute into Vietnam and search for American MIAs but not rescue them, merely take pictures. On jumping out of the plane, he is faced with the first of many incredible obstacles. His chute harness hangs up on the plane and he loses all his equipment, except a terrific knife and a bow with a quiver full of arrows that magically remains full no matter how many enemy soldiers Rambo pins to trees with his expert marksmanship.

A toast to wine distributors

It seems to me that a great many of these col-umns make reference to a special, almost-unknown group of people in the world of wines, the distributors.

Often neglected, they are the ones who make available to the stores and restaurants which we patronize the wines that we select. It is their ambition, zeal, palate, sense of adventure and risk that are involved. What they feel we want to drink determines what we do indeed drink.

Every state in our nation has its own system of distribution, most of them highly regulated. The regulations are part morality, part business, part history and part politics.

IN MICHIGAN, the flow of all spirits is governed vigorously by a state agency, the Michigan Liquor Control Commission. They authorize all wine brought in and license all purveyors.

There are three kinds of licenses: importer, distributor and merchandiser. One can be both an importer and a distributor but the same person cannot also be a merchant. The first two acquire wine from abroad and from within this country and sell it to those who sell it to us.

The price of a bottle of wine may not be less than it was purchased for (all sales costs are "posted" with the LCC and only under certain conditions may discounting occur), thus protecting the mom and pop operations which cannot buy in the volume some of our larger merchants can.

I have no way of knowing how many licensed distributors there are in the state, though you can be sure that the LCC does. As in all businesses, today's success becomes tomorrow's failure; they come and go.

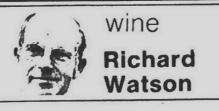

Some serve only regional areas, some are statewide in their scope. Some deal in beer as well, some in hard spirits. Some are true wine enthusiasts, some are businessmen (only). Some are highly dependable and ethical, some are less so. In short, they are probably a good cross-section of our business community and society in general.

I RECENTLY had occasion to view 15 of them at the same event, gathered in a semi-competitive environment. To their credit, they can be decently civil to one another, probably more so than some other competitive groups would be under like circumstances

It is they who contact a winemaker, or a national sales representative, and enter into a contract to bring in this wine and not another. They select. It is a highly competitive matter, full of risk.

The financial conditions under which they operate are informative and go a long way toward determining what you and I pay for a bottle of wine. Remember, some of these conditions are determined by law, some by custom and some by the law of the marketplace.

We will use as an example a case of California wine because it is a somewhat less complex situation than obtains with imported wines. However, whatever the wine's origin, the conditions of distribution are essentially the same. THE CASE is made to be sold from the winery for $60 wholesale to a national or local distributor. Most wineries, desirous of getting their merchandize into the national pipeline, will discount that case for an out-of-state sale by about one-third, making it $40.

That wine is shipped to Michigan by a distributor where he must pay for it on delivery and absorb the costs of shipping (about $3 or $4 a case). He will then sell it to a merchant or restaurant for about $60, or about the same price for which it can be purchased in its home state.

This means that wines can, and usually do, cont the same here as they do in California. This is important to us all. (If the winemaker does not discount, as some do not, then that original, $60 case arrives here at about $90. The margin begins to spread.)

The merchant then adds his one-third profit to the case and the $60 item now sells to you and me for $90, or $7.50 a bottle. Most merchants give a 10 percent case discount to help us out a bit, cutting into their 33 percent profit. A restaurateur, on the other hand, doubles his cost for the case when he sells it, so his $60 investment goes on his wine list for $10 a bottle.

So we pay $7.50 for a bottle of Zinfandel which the winemaker sold originally for $3.33. Further, he had to make the wine, bottle and label it, put in a cork and foil and package it and in some way promote it as well.

Stockton's Wing, a seven-piece band from ireland appears in concert at 8 p.m. Friday in McAuley Auditori-um at Mercy College. Tickets are $8.50. For more information, call 537-

> DATE: Tuesday, Oct. 1st TIME: Noon to 4 pm

Since this is a very basic war story, the guerrilla contact Rambo meets is a lovely girl, Co Bao (Julia Nickson), with whom Rambo falls in love.

From "Death Race 2000" through all the "Rocky" successes, there has been considerable question as to whether Stallone can act or whether he just happens to make films that meet filmgoers' simple emotional needs.

"Rambo" settles that argument as Stallone expresses the emotions of war, love, hate, espionage and betrayal with all the finese of the valedic-torian from the Flex-'N-Grunt School of Acting. He's got great biceps, but muscles don't make an actor.

The story, such as it is, is well-told, well-staged and well-photographed - convincing jungle tracking shots, lots of colorful explosions and bodies flying in all directions, courtesy of the stunt department.

The prop department has supplied endless rounds of ammunition for guns that never jam and quivers always filled with arrows.

BUT THE LACK of realism dilutes the endless, unconvincing violence. It becomes ridiculous, detached and unreal. With arrows both steel and explosive-tipped, machine guns, rockets, grenades, knife, bare fists and a stolen helicopter, Stallone single-handedly destroys large units of Russian and Vietnamese troops

It may be incredible, but we all love to run up the score.

And that, my friends, is what $150 million dollars has been paid to see:

victory for our side, 'running up the scores and "Bringing America Back." There's also a sly quality in "Rambo's" favor. It serves as a simplistic statement explating national guilt over Vietnam, the abandoned MIAs/

POWs and the rotten treatment returning veterans received. "Rambo" changes all that — if only for 90 minutes — and the POWs are saved, large units of Vietnamese soldiers finally are defeated and the loss of the war in Vietnam is explained as the work of venal bureaucrats who didn't have the will to win; they lacked good ol' American gumption.

All that makes for successful movie entertainment but an overly simplified explanation of great tragedy. "Rambo" is Hollywood's dream world at its best: easy fantasy and wish-fulfillment that avoids the real world we need to face.

New Japanese 'Super Pill' Insures Rapid Weight-Loss

No Dieting — Eat All You Want, Pill Does All The Work

(Japanese Medical Association) has just been approved for distribution in the United States. Reportedly, it can guarantee that you will lose more than a pound a day without dieting, from the very first day until you reach your ideal weight and figure. News of this "Super-Pill" is literally sweeping the country. It's called Amitol and there has never been anything quite like it before.

"Flushes Calories Right Out Of Your Body'

What makes Amitol so thrilling and unique is its reported ability to flush calories right out of your body. Amitol is completely safe. it contains no drugs whatsoever. Its ingredients are derived solely from the Konjac root which grows primarily in Northern Japan.

Why the Konjac root? It has been used in Japan for over 1600 years to produce rapid and natural weight-loss!

Japanese studies verify that Konjac root actually prevents fat producing cal-ories from being absorbed into your system. They say it does this by surrounding much of the fats, proteins and carbohydrates you have eaten with a protective viscous coating which is then intly flushed out of your system. And according to Japanese research this produces absolutely amazing results."

And, who can disagree! Amitol (al-though brand new to this country) is already being called by many people, "the most exciting weight-lost break-dirough of the century." In fact, every-

Chiefs bust WLAA's unbeaten

By Chris McCosky staff writer

When the spotlight is on and pressure mounts for an important game, funny things happen to the players. Some freeze under the pressure. Others get fired up by it. The latter was true for the Plymouth Canton girls basketball team Thursday night. The Chiefs remained undefeated and on top of the Western Lakes Western Division with an impressive 46-35 victory against previously unbeaten league foe Livonia Franklin.

"These girls know they can play," said Canton coach Rob Neu. "They want to show others that they can play. When I told them before the game that the Observer was here, the (Detroit) Free Press was here, and cable television was here, they just got charged up. They want to be recognized."

THE GAME, despite the 11-point differential on the scoreboard, was never dull. The two coaches, Neu and Franklin's Tim Neuman, have much more in common than the first three letters of their last names.

Both have flamboyant and aggressive personalities that are reflected by their teams on the court.

The result was a non-stop, scrappy, last-one-standing-wins basketball game.

Franklin's high-scoring Tracy Lectka. That challenge was put to pesty Beth Frigge

"You have to give her credit," Neuman said of Frigge. "She bothered Tra-cy and forced her to miss shots she hadn't been missing the last few games.'

Frigge set the tone in the first few minutes of the game by stealing the ball clean from Lectka at half court.

Lectka finished with eight points, hitting four of 21 shots from the floor. But Neuman wasn't about to make Lectka the scapegoat. "Our inside ballgame wasn't good to-CANTON, BEHIND 11 points from 13), built up a 21-6 lead early in the second quarter.

But then something or somebody lit a fuse under Gayle Cheadle, and for the Canton encounter. next 12 minutes the Franklin junior wreaked havoc on the Chiefs.

The key for Canton was stopping three-point plays), four steals and two great feeling."

assists helped bring Franklin back into contention - trailing 26-21 at half.

"They managed to get us out of our game and into theirs," Neu said. "We just had to play through it. We managed to escape with a five-point lead." Another Cheadle steal and two Laura Walling baskets at the beginning of the third quarter made it a 28-25 game.

At that point, Franklin breathed its last gasp and Frigge and company took over for good.

Frigge scored six unanswered points to build the Chiefs' lead back to 11 points. She finished with 10 for the night.

"Our mistake was that we sat back early and tried to ease into the flow, Neuman said. "Canton's just too good a team to do that. We have to go at them hard for four quarters. I just hope the kids get something out of this game.

"HOPEFULLY when we get them at and we'll be in second so we can play for something."

Lightning hits, Rocks win

wed forth was a pair of lightning bolts that struck Stevenson suddenly in the second half and led to Salem's 20-16 victory.

It was the Rocks' first win of the season and Salem's fourth win in four tries against Stevenson.

"I'll tell you what, our skill people did a heck of a job for us tonight," said Salem coach Tom Moshimer. "Our outside speed really did it for US.

He'll get no argument from Stevenson coach Jack Reardon.

"I thought we played a nice first half, but we had trouble containing the pitch," the veteran Stevenson coach said.

STEVENSON HELD a 10-7 lead at halftime and had dominated Salem in virtually every aspect of the game.

But one play late in the third quarter, one lightning bolt, changed the entire complexion of the game.

Brian Tiller, who had scored Salem's first touchdown of the game on a 1-yard run, busted free around left end and streaked past a one-step-tooslow Stevenson secondary. The TD run covered 73 yards and suddenly, Salem was holding the cards.

On Salem's next offensive posses-sion, quarterback Paul Makara scored on a Houdini-like 40-yard run. He was sandwiched by several Stevenson linemen at the line of scrimmage. He somehow escaped, shrugged off two other would-be tacklers, and raced into the end zone.

Salem gained 306 total yards in the game, all on the ground. Tiller rushed for 110 yards and Makara 109.

"We tried to lull them into things," Moshimer said. "We'd run the option both ways and give different looks but they weren't adjusting too much. We just went Tiller left and Makara right. That's a lot of speed."

ers and coach Reardon somewhat in a state of shock - unable to deal with so sudden a defeat.

On its first possession of the game, Stevenson drove 65 yards in 11 brilliantly mixed plays and scored on Don Rosochacki's 2-yard run.

Stevenson had two other scoring chances in the first half terminated deep in Salem territory.

But Salem's defense shut down the Spartan attack in the second half. Stevenson rushed for 108 yards in the first half and just 41 in the second.

Salem's lone first-half score was keyed by a 40-yard punt return by Chris Hill which set the Rocks up on the Stevenson 25. Makara ran to the 1 and then Tiller punched it in.

Stevenson scored before the end of the half after Pete Genot picked off a John Storm pass. Dave Rosochacki (14 of 21 for 151 yards and two interceptions) completed two passes to Paul Miller which set up Mark Wolter's 33-yard field goal.

ROSOCHACKI ALSO engineered Stevenson's final score, a 34-yard TD pass to Miller. That came with 5:50 left in the game and made the score 20-16.

Salem ate up over four minutes. Stevenson got the ball back with 1:14 left at their own 26 but Salem's Rick Cummings picked off Rosochacki's first pass attempt to ice the win.

"This win out to really give us a lift," Moshimer said. "It had better give us a lift."

Salem is 1-3 overall, 1-3 in the Western Lakes. Stevenson is also 1-3, THE LOSS left the Stevenson play- but 0-3 in the conference.

He scored on a 55-yard run in the first quarter and then had his extra-point attempt blocked. In the third quarter, Naif added a 36-yard field goal after he had a 20-yard TD run nullified on a clipping penalty. Naif also had one of his game-total seven punts blocked, which set up the Chiefs' lone touchdown in the fourth quarter. Canton's Todd Woods betted down the ball inside the Chargers' 5 and quarterback Stove Tenyk went in on a 1-yard run on the next play. The extra point failed. Winless Canton (0-4) later missed a

"You've got to play all four quarters to win," she said.

Salem took control of the game with a 22-2 third-quarter burst. The vaunted Rock defense limited Farmington to just five points in the second half.

WE PICKED up their offensive sets in the third quarter, and the kids started to defense it better," said Salem coach Fred Thomann. "Offensively, we got good recognition. We got the opportunities, and we scored on them."

Kristen Hostynski led the attack with 15 points. Dena Head added 13 and Jessica Handley 12.

Mary Kay Orrico led the Falcons (0-6) with eight.

After losing a pair of non-league games at the start of the season, Salem has won five straight.

The Rocks, who already faced stateranked Detroit St. Martin DePorres and Livonia Ladywood, will take another shot at a perennial state power. On Tuesday, the Rocks will host Farmington Hills Mercy.

No losers tagged in CEP pool battle

Plymouth Salem, for the second straight season, will rule the roost in the Centennial Educational Park pool war.

The Rocks (3-0) earned bragging rights with a close 99-73 victory against Plymouth Canton Thursday night.

But after the meet, both teams were claiming victories.

"We lost the battle, but we won the war," said Canton coach Hooker Wellman. "We won more events than they did. I feel real good about this meet."

Said Salem coach Chuck Olson: "We had to swim real well to beat them. We had a couple kids out sick, but junior Shannon Murphy really came through. We look for that kind of effort from

Dawson ready to skate his way through college

By Chris McCosky staff writer

A young man of lesser character might have just quit.

Steve Dawson first began playing organized hockey at the age of 5. He moved up the ladder quickly. From age 12 through 15 he played in Pee Wee leagues for the prestigious Compuware hockey empire.

At 16, Dawson was abruptly cut from the Compuware Midget League team. A hurt and confused young man had to do some serious soul-searching. Steve Dawson didn't need to play bockey. He was a good baseball player, a good football player. He could have easily quenched his athletic appetite in those arenas. But the Plymouth resident wasn't ready to hang up his skates.

"Oh, (getting cut) hurt me. It hurt me a lot," said Dawson, now a senior at Plymouth Salem. "But in the long run it really helped me."

DAWSON PACKED up his sticks and skates, patched his bruised ego, and took his act to Fraser where he played for a then-fledgling Fraser Highlanders Midget Major team.

"At Fraser, the team wasn't all that good. I got to play all of the time," Dawson said. "I mean, me and a couple other guys sort of carried the team. We were on the ice constantly so we got a lot of exposure."

With the playing time came the confidence Dawson needed to become what he is today: a top college hockey prospect.

"I guess I started to realize how college hockey prospect much better I was than I had thought," he said

The Highlanders' experience helped solve some other problems for Dawson as well All through Pee Wee and Midget hockey, Dawson was torn between playing baseball and playing hockey. To better understand the intensity of his dilemma it's neccessary to explore

Dawson's family. STEVE'S OLDER brother Scott was a standout pitcher at Plymouth Canton and then at the University of Michigan before an arm injury put him on the shelf. The name Dawson is virtually synonymous with baseball in the Plymouth-Canton community. Steve Dawson established himself early on as a solid baseball player in his own right. Last year he was the Rocks' starting catcher and hit .304.

But the more his hockey career advanced, the more his two loves got in each other's way. He missed much of Salem's pre-season baseball practices last spring because he was in Boston playing for Team Michigan in the National Junior Olympic Hockey Tournament.

Since his Highlanders' experience, Dawson has had little trouble setting his atheltic priorities.

"I still like baseball, but hockey is my No. 1 sport," Dawson said.

All things considered, he made the right choice.

LAST SEASON, playing Midget AAA hockey for the St. Clair Shores Falcons, Dawson caught the attention of college and pro scouts while scoring 20 goals and dishing out 89 assists in 70 games. Oh yeah, Dawson is a defenseman.

He was the No. 4 draft pick of the Falcons' Tier II Junior A team this year after turning down two offers to play Tier I Junior A. "If you play Tier I you can't play college. I want to go to college," he said.

So far, Dawson has received letters from 15 Division I colleges including Michigan State, Wisconsin, Harvard, Yale and Colgate.

Things have turned around nicely for Dawson since being cut by Compuware. In fact, the circle was complete last week when Dawson led his Falcons' Junior A team to a 5-0 zipping of Compuware. "That was great," he said. "I hadn't beaten Compuware since they cut me." Ah, the rewards of perseverance.

Chief kickers best Churchill

Plymouth Canton's Steve Morell and the net have been seeing a lot of each other lately.

And it's an affair that's paid instant dividends for the Chiefs as Morell scored a three-goal hat trick to lead Canton to a 5-4 triumph over visiting Livonia Churchill Thursday in a Western Lakes soccer match.

Morell, who also had a three-goal performance in the Chiefs' win over Plymouth Salem last week, has totaled nine goals in the last four games. His third tally Thursday, midway in the second half, turned out to be the game winner for Canton (5-2 in the league, 7-3 overall).

"Morell's on a scoring tear," noted Canton coach

Mike Morgan. "He's been sticking them in."

MORELL'S THREE tallies were Canton's last three in the hard-fought match. Pat Frederick and Brad Neville had goals in the first half. Morell's first goal came just before the end of the half to Inst goal came just before the end of the half to give Canton a 3-2 edge. Brian O'Leary and Chris Steen had both of Churchill's first-half goals. Canton's last two goals in the second half were quickly matched by the Chargers.

Churchill's Steve Michaelian scored on penalty kick a minute after Morell's second goal and Torin Gniewek followed up on the Chiefs' fifth goal to cut the lead to one goal with 14 minutes left.

"The game was up and down all the time," said Morgan. "Neither side could ease up any. The midfielders earned their pay today." Churchill (4-2-1 in the league) outshot Cantes 15-12, but Churchill coach John Neff didn't take any a solace in the statistic.

"It wasn't one of our better defensive games," said Neff. "You can't let that many goals in and expect to win in this league." Karl Early was relieved in the Chargers' geal 20 minutes into the match by Mike Heiner. Dean Barberio, subbing for the injured Brian Gavigan, was Canton's netminder.

The Falcons outshot the Patriots, 21-14, as Farmington goalkeeper Andy Krause picked up the shut-

North battles weary Rocks to draw

In an upset of sorts, North Farmington battled to a 1-1 draw Thursday with visiting Plymouth Salem in a Western Lakes boys soccer match.

The tie left Salem at 4-0-4 in league play and 6-1-4 overall. North is now 1-4-2 in the league and 2-6-1 overall.

George Lopez scored the Raiders lone goal eight minutes into the match off a cross from Jeff Juliano. The Rocks' Ebon Nash, taking a long through pass from Mike Tanner, responded with an unassisted goal at the 18-minute mark to tie the game.

Thursday's draw with Salem is part of an overall improvement made recently by the Raiders, coach Cathy Cole said.

"In the last three or four games, we've played our opponents more equal," Cole said. "We're utiliz-ing the midfield more and playing together. We didn't have that in the first five games. We're sewing together the gap we had before."

For Salem, it was the end of a long 11 games in an 18-day stretch of its schedule.

"We're very tired," Salem coach Ken Johnson said. "The legs are just dead. I don't know what it is, but North, just like Farmington and Northville
