Chief appoints Gardner to commander job

By Dennis Coffman
staff writer

Mike Gardner has been named staff coordinator for the City of Plymouth Police Department.

The newly created position makes Gardner second in command in the department to Chief Richard Myers.

Gardner, 36, has been a member of the Plymouth Police Department for 14 years. Before he arrived here, he was an officer in the Detroit Police Department.

Gardner's promotion to a management position means he will relinquish his job as president of the Plymouth

Police Officers Association (PPOA) — the police officers' union.

In announcing the appointment, Myers said the department has gone from a transitional state to a stability state, as it moved into the "team concept" of police enforcement.

The team concept places a specialist in each field on each of four police platoons.

Gardner joins two other departmental officers — Mike Richardson and Robert Commire — in administrative positions.

Richardson was appointed administrative assistant to the chief of police. He will oversee the management of fiscal resources, including records, scheduling, budgeting and data processing, equipment maintenance and inventory and purchasing.

COMMIRE HAS been appointed investigator.

As investigator, Commire will manage the major investigations conducted by the department, both internal and external.

Commire will work with the investigative specialty team and assist in staff development in investigations.

Myers also appointed Daniel Carpenter chief range officer. He is responsible for the development and implementation of an effective firearms training program.

Carpenter also will serve as juvenile coordinator, processing juvenile cases with platoon level personnel.

Gardner assumes the rank of commander, Commire, lieutenant, Richardson, civilian management, and Carpenter, lieutenant.

"The appointment of Gardner will benefit all of us," said Myers. "It will help me in the decision-making process by providing me with more information. It is to my benefit that we formed this management team."

Myers said the appointment of Gardner was not a new step. The department has had assistant chiefs in previous years (Carl Berry and Rod Cannon in recent years).

Gardner will oversee the management of human resources within the department, including the review of work performed, the facilitation of change, the coordination of training and the development of staff.

Gardner has served in several areas of the department, including crime prevention and investigations. He said his experience as a union president also could be helpful in his new job.

"Working with the union, I saw that side of the operation. It will give me better insight to people, let me know where they're coming from and their needs," said Gardner.

Gardner, a Detroit native, is a Detroit Police Academy graduate. He is married and has two children, one of them attending the University of Michigan.

"These assignments clearly outline areas of responsibility within the department and will allow for the orderly development and implementation of a professional police department," said Myers.

Is witch's talk trick or treat? Church and school divided

By Dennis Coffman
staff writer

"I am a witch."

Not many people can make that claim, but Gundella does.

The Garden City resident will speak to students at Plymouth Salem High School on, appropriately enough, Oct. 30 — the day before Halloween.

But at least one parent has complained that Gundella's appearance is not at all appropriate.

Loren Styes of Canton said Gundella's lecture before 800 students in the Salem auditorium is not "educational."

"They could have gotten a professor, not somebody who claims she is a witch and has Satan's powers," said Styes.

"I don't approve of it," said Styes, who has been trying to mobilize members of her church (First Baptist of Plymouth) and other parents, in an effort to have Gundella's lecture canceled by Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

"I tried to talk to the principal, but he wouldn't listen to me. I talked to the librarian, who is arranging this thing, and she said students don't have to participate — there are alternate activities planned. But I'm sure a lot of parents don't know about it."

"They would not let a pastor of the church come there," said Styes, "because that would cause a problem. Yet they let Gundella come here and tell the kids how to do certain things such as 'will' the phone to ring. I'm a Christian. They should not advocate that type of thing."

GUNDELLA, however, claimed she does not intend to advocate anything.

"It's a talk about witchcraft for Halloween," said Gundella.

"I am not a satanist or a demonologist. I am not a missionary. I will be talking about the history of witchcraft and what it has to do with Halloween. I'll ask for a definition of a witch. I'll talk about cauldrons and black hats and how or how not they are related."

Gundella, formerly a columnist for the Observer Newspapers, originally was a school teacher. She now is a lecturer and writer, after 22 years as a teacher.

"I have talked in schools before," she said. "And I am still welcomed."

"Students will sign up for the talk if they want to. It's primarily for the curious mind. I am an unscary person."

Gundella said she would not speak either for witchcraft or against religion.

"Do they no longer speak about the Inquisition? This is history. I will not be talking about leaving religion. I will be simply explaining something. My own religion is omnist. I am for all religions and searching for God."

Styes, however, said it was wrong to schedule Gundella. "I don't want her to come," she said.

STYES AND other members of First Baptist Church of Plymouth with students attending Plymouth Salem High contacted the Rev. Tom Pals, assistant pastor at the church.

"About a week ago Sunday a youth in our congregation said they were going to have a witch speaking to students at Plymouth Salem," said Pals. "She would be explaining her understanding of the power of positive thinking, black hats, and the dress of witchcraft for psychology students and American literature students studying the Salem Witch Trials."

Pals said Gundella had been scheduled, he believed, as an "authority on witchcraft" and had been intentionally scheduled for Oct. 30, the traditional "devil's night" preceding Halloween.

"My own personal opinion — and I am speaking only for myself — is that the issue is not essentially with this gal Gundella, a self-professed witch, but with the school's propagation of religious beliefs. It's inappropriate for schools, which are not a religious forum, to have someone speaking about abstract paraphernalia because religion is intrinsically, inherently a part of its paraphernalia," said Pals.

WHEN ASKED why he never objected to other appearances, Pals said:

"She has been here in the past, but I didn't know about it. If I had known, I would have raised objections. I understand that last year, she taught magic spells — how to get someone to call you up."

"That's like me teaching someone to pray. That's a discriminatory situation

Scheduled high school talk by Gundella has aroused opposition from church leader and some members of congregation.

Race chief loses stretch drive

State Supreme Court turns down appeal

The Michigan Supreme Court has refused to hear an appeal by former Racing Commissioner William Ballenger.

Ballenger had sought to appeal the decision of the Michigan Court of Appeals. The appellate court said Ballenger was not entitled to serve as racing commissioner and the job rightfully belonged to William Cahalan, appointed to the job by Gov. James Blanchard on Sept. 1.

The high court refused Ballenger's bid for an injunction barring Cahalan from taking the racing chief job. It refused to consider the case of Ballenger.

Until Tuesday, both Cahalan and Ballenger have been occupying offices in the suite located in the Mayflower Meeting House building in Plymouth.

Ballenger claimed he was legally supposed to serve a full four-year term of office after he was appointed by then Gov. William Milliken to replace the deceased commissioner, Frederick Van Tien.

Blanchard, with the backing of Michigan Attorney General Frank Kelley, claimed Ballenger was only serving out the remainder of the term of Van Tien.

Blanchard said Ballenger was entitled to serve only until November 1984. Ballenger said he was entitled to serve until Sept. 23, 1986.

Under the Court of Appeals ruling, which now stands, Cahalan can serve as racing commissioner until Dec. 31, 1988.

Ballenger claimed the appellate decision should not stand because of alleged improprieties of Court of Appeals Judge Richard Maher.

Ballenger claimed Maher had planned to meet with Cahalan and was therefore not qualified to render a decision on Ballenger's case.

Gene Sund

Active senior says he likes the local lifestyle

By Dennis Coffman
staff writer

Gene Sund is the kind of person communities have in mind when they began creating organizations.

Sund, 73, a member of the Plymouth-Canton Civitans, is president of the Plymouth Township Senior Citizens Club, enjoys bowling, traveling with the seniors group and helping mentally retarded children and the Salvation Army.

"I'm real happy we ended up in this area," said the former Massey-Ferguson executive who retired in 1977.

"When I retired I knew 30 people. Today, I could name 1,000," said Sund. "I like the moderate climate, love the area, love the people."

Sund is glad to be settling down after his years as an equipment salesman for Massey-Ferguson. "We moved seven times in 13 years. I once bought a house in Kansas City and never even moved into it."

Sund started his career with Massey-Ferguson in an inauspicious year — 1929 — in Omaha, Neb., then moved to the Perkins Engine Division in Plymouth in 1967.

"I always wanted to keep my finger on sales in some way. If you don't generate sales and profits, you don't amount to much."

SUND WAS parts manager, sales manager and service manager and did a lot of other things for a company that "changed presidents as often as some people changed shirts."

Sund's shirtsleeves were generally rolled up. "They'd say, 'well, you've got the experience and we've got this problem.' You'd have a job title but that didn't have a lot to do with the job."

Because Massey-Ferguson was heavily involved with farm equipment, Sund got to know farmers well. "I've rolled a lot of corn cobs under my feet. When I first started, I saw a lot of horse-drawn equipment. That disappeared around 1937 with the introduction of self-propelled equipment."

In 1929, he earned $24.50 a week. "But they kept cutting back and laying off." Sund was down to $17.50. He was cut back to $14 a month but gradually worked his way up to $90 a month by 1937.

"The war years were really what brought Massey-Ferguson back. It wasn't much money but things were cheap. Pork chops were three cents a pound. Massey made some profits during the war, with its first self-propelled combine."

"When they brought out the rubber-tired tractor, it was said these things would never work because they'd pack the ground. Later, they discovered it was good to pack the ground."

Sund has seen farming go from good times to bad times to good times to bad times.

"When I first became involved, you did not have to be too brilliant or too ambitious to make a good living at farming. You only needed two horses, a planter, a plow and the sunshine of the good Lord. Forty acres could make you a good living."

HE REMEMBERS the red dust in Oklahoma during the Dust Bowl of the 1930s and topsoil drifting over fences like snow.

"Couple that with the Depression and, had it not been for the government programs, I don't know what the farm community would have done."

In 1930 and 1931, Massey-Ferguson and other farm equipment companies had their own financing programs.

"Massey-Ferguson lost $3 million because farmers could not pay for whatever they bought. We had a serious cash-flow problem. I would go to a farm and get them up at 10 p.m. to get the milk check. I got what I could get and sent the money by Western Union to Massey-Ferguson but the company said not to cash my paycheck until it could clear," said Sund.

He said there were not that many bank foreclosures then because FDR declared bank holidays until farmers could work out their financial problems.

"We did not want to foreclose on a farm. What would we do with it?"

Comparing farming then and now, he said, is like comparing apples and oranges.

"It was tough times for farmers but it wasn't the same. Now there are bumper crops and a depressed market due to the strong dol-

Greg Lea of Canton hopes to make modeling a career some day.

By Diane Gale
staff writer

SHOWING OFF sexy legs in swimsuit competitions and flashing sparkling smiles to pageant judges could cause some guys trouble among their friends.

But that wasn't the case for Greg Lea, who varies his residence between Canton and Westland.

Lea's friends didn't laugh or make snide remarks when he decided to hit the runway for a pageant title. In fact, Lea said, they encouraged him every step of the way.

"I had support from everyone, even the guys at work," said Lea, who works at Galaxy Precision Machining in Plymouth.

"It wasn't like you'd expect where people said: 'OK, a beauty contest. Let's call him this or that.' In fact, their attitudes helped me get through it better."

LEA, 22, competed in the first Mr. United States Michigan Men's Pageant in August as a stepping stone for future career ambitions. He thinks of the pageant as a learning experience and something to always remember.

With a smile that reveals deep dimples, Lea said even the other contestants were supportive.

"Everyone rooted for everyone else. Sure everyone wanted to win but there were no cutthroat attitudes around."

Placing fourth and winning an array of prizes also help brighten his memories of the pageant. During the talent segment of the competition, Lea danced to a Gino Vanelli song.

The evening netted Lea a $3,000 scholarship to Ross Business Institute in the Detroit area, a full modeling scholarship to John Casablancas in Troy, gold jewelry, car maintenance offers, hair styling for a month and a trophy.

Lea hopes his looks and talent will take him much farther.

THE 6-1 blonde said photo modeling, acting in a television soap opera and being the subject of a calendar "that isn't sleazy, of course" are some of his plans for the future.

Lea's longtime dream to become a model was sparked by a talent show in May at Somerset Mall sponsored by John Casablancas, a modeling agency in Troy.

Diana Hunt, executive director of the pageant, spotted Lea and asked if he would be interested in entering the pageant, which also was sponsored by John Casablancas.

Lea said he owes a special thanks to his parents, Barbara and Denny Timmerman of Canton. He's also grateful to his pageant sponsors, Dr. Ronald G. Kraynek and Dr. Evans John Farres, both of Canton. The sponsorship fee was $250.

Wayne retail manager

Jack Padley
classified manager

2 ad chiefs named

Two new advertising managers have been appointed by Dick Isham, vice president and general manager of Observer & Eccentric Newspapers.

Mark Lewis is the new retail advertising manager for the Wayne County staff. Lewis, 33, of Plymouth has been with the papers since 1977, first as billing and customer service supervisor and later as classified advertising manager.

A graduate of Garden City West High School, Lewis attended Schoolcraft College and the University of Michigan, studying business and management. He is a member of Adcrafters of Detroit and the Michigan Press Association.

Jack Padley is the new classified advertising manager. A nine-year veteran of Observer & Eccentric, Padley previously had been an outside classified advertising representative.

Raised in Brighton, where he is an elder of the First Presbyterian Church, Padley, 35, earned a bachelor of arts degree in advertising from Michigan State University.

Crime prevention funds approved

The City of Plymouth has obtained a $12,500 Justice Assistance Grant from the state Office of Criminal Justice.

Police Chief Richard Myers said the grant funds will be used to improve crime prevention programs of the city's police department.

"Citizen involvement is an important part of our grant application," said Myers. "I feel that this grant award will allow the city to begin to develop a model program for crime prevention."

The grant may be used for educational and training programs, both in the department and in the community.

One of the better-known projects is the Neighborhood Watch Program which organizes neighbors to provide surveillance and report suspicious activities in the community.

Paul Sincok, assistant to the city manager, said the city's application was one of 41 grants awarded statewide.

"Both state Sen. Robert Geake and state Rep. Gerald Law were very instrumental with their assistance in obtaining this grant," said Sincok.

Work has begun to finalize the grant contract with the state, Sincok said.

Under the provisions of the grant, the city will match the grant with an additional $12,500.

"We feel there is a need for a bigger Neighborhood Watch Program," Sincok said in an earlier interview, when he announced the city would apply for the grant.

He also listed the volunteer (auxiliary police) program as an area where the funds might be used.

"We want to expose all adults and school children to the crime prevention program," Sincok had said.

The funds could be used for multimedia presentations on crime prevention, home security surveys and Operation Identification whereby household items are identified with etched serial numbers.

The Justice Assistance Grant was awarded for a two-year period.

The CEP Marching Band brass section concludes performance of "All That Jazz."

CEP Flag Team members practice in the early evenings.

Strike up the band

THE INSTRUMENTS have been fine tuned, the flag corps' precision is precise, the percussionists are tight as a drum, and the marchers are all in step as hours and weeks of practice are beginning to pay off.

The Plymouth Centennial Educational Park (CEP) Marching Band already has competed in two invitationals (Eisenhower and Bridgeport) in September and now is primed for the two major competitions — Flushing this Sunday and Durand on Oct. 19 — before appearing in the state championship at the CEP stadium on Saturday, Oct. 26.

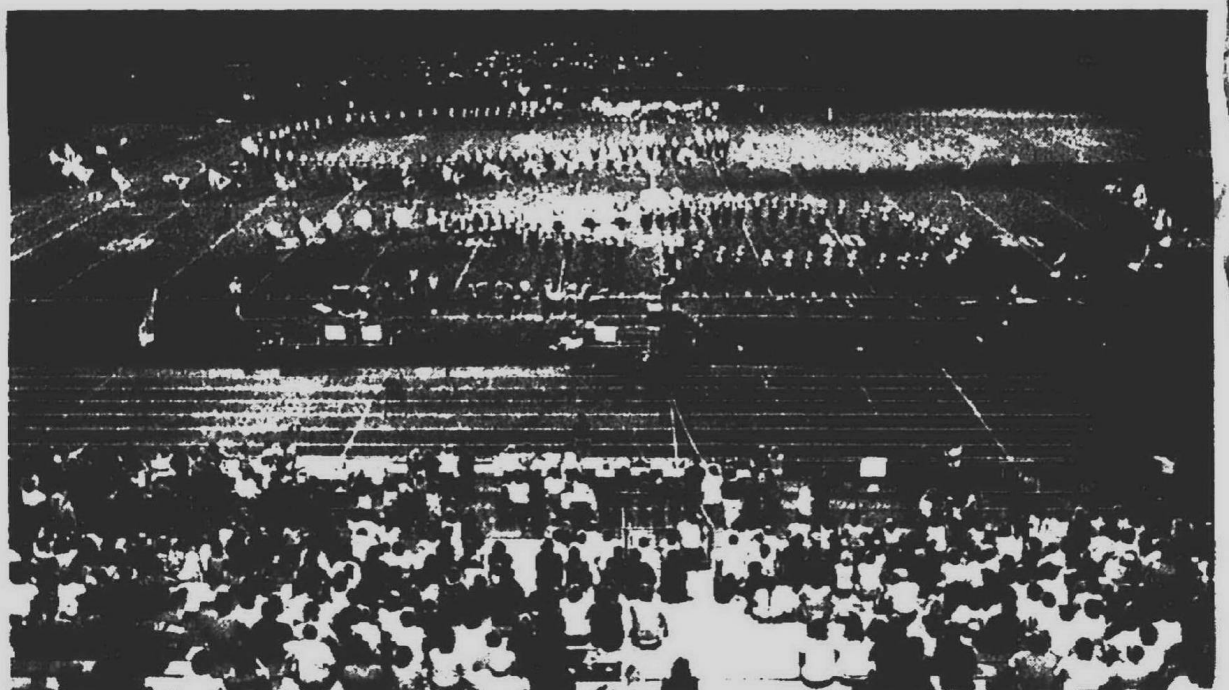

In between, the 1984 state marching band champions, directed by James Griffith, will be driving to Cincinnati on Oct. 12 to appear at the Tropicana Music Bowl.

Canton and Plymouth residents who enjoy local prep football, though, already have gotten a good look at the CEP Marching Band. It has performed halftime shows at home football games of Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton high schools.

After the state championships, the musicians will participate in the "Variety Is . . ." show Jan. 24-25, and then will be marching in the Memorial Day Parade in Plymouth on May 26.

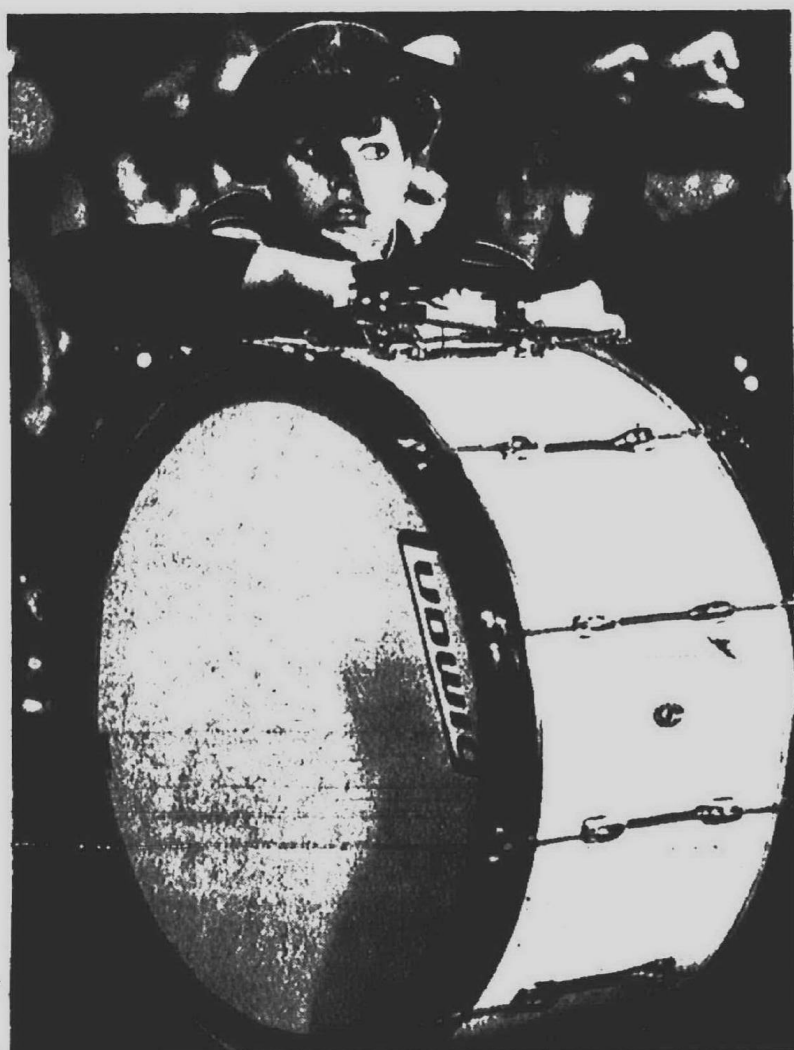

The preparation for the season started with band camp at Camp Kohana Aug. 18-24, but has continued throughout the fall with daily practices after school plus special sectional evening workouts. By now, everyone should be in step.

Auditor to SC: Food service should pay way

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Once again the auditors are telling Schoolcraft College to make up its mind about its deficit-ridden food service: Is it a teaching tool or the campus restaurant?

"You have academicians trying to run a food service operation. They have different goals," said John M. Sirhal of the auditing firm of Plante & Moran.

The college classifies the food service as an "auxiliary" activity — meaning that it's supposed to be self-supporting. But it also uses food prepared in the popular culinary arts program, an educational activity.

EITHER RUN it at a break-even point, Sirhal advised trustees last week, or call it an educational program.

For the seventh consecutive time last year, the food service reported an operating loss — nearly $39,000. That was on top of a 6 percent, $22,000 subsidy from the general fund.

And it's accumulated deficit is more than $84,000, he said.

Sirhal noted the college in July filled a new position of director of the food service with Thomas Savage, formerly with the Marriott hotel chain in Atlanta and Chicago.

Savage is "supposed to be instituting pricing changes and more aggressive marketing strategies," Sirhal said. With the administration's expectation that a profit will be earned in fiscal 1986, the auditor will not require that the food service be reclassified as a general fund teaching activity — this time.

TRUSTEES themselves had mixed views of the food service's function.

"I consider it a teaching function," said trustee Rosina Raymond of Livonia.

"I view it as a business function," said board chairman Michael W. Burley of Canton.

Trustee Harry Greenleaf wondered if there were a way to factor out the instructional part of the food and cover it in the general fund, thus reducing the food service's total costs.

College controller A.H. Raby said an operating problem with the food service is that it is "fully staffed some hours of the day with very few customers." Salaries, he added, are 52 percent of the cost.

Otherwise, the auditor gave Schoolcraft administrators high marks.

"From a fiscal viewpoint and day-to-day operations, we think it's one of the best fiscally managed colleges we audit. You are to be congratulated," said Sirhal.

"We don't think it's loaded with red tape. The college did a good job of managing itself in spite of a tough enrollment situation."

IN OTHER money matters last week, the board:

- Purchased $117,000 in micro computer equipment to complete the automation of the drafting and architectural program. Half the funds will come from federal vocational programs.

- The equipment, low bidders and prices are: 15 personal computers for $80,616 from IBM Corp.; 13 Hitachi Digitizers for $11,500 from Network Computers and four Hewlett Packard Plotters for $25,200 from U.S. Computer Corp.

- Juggled the 1.91-mill property tax levy to shift 0.024 mills (two cents per $1,000 of state equalized valuation) into the bond retirement account. The bond issue of almost $1 million will be used to buy a Burroughs computer, train staff in software use and provide matching funds for energy conservation.

- Heard President Richard McDowell announce a $28,000 grant from the Michigan Department of Education to the Women's Resource Center to aid displaced homemakers.

- Heard the Learning Assistance Center had received a $30,000 grant from the state for Project Success, to aid handicappers.

- Learned that electronics instructor Larry Scharmen would benefit from a state matching grant to participate in a bio-medical technology conference.

Diebel to retire as S'craft dean

Thad (Ted) Diebel, whose Jan. 31 retirement was announced last week by Schoolcraft College, won warm personal praise from college trustees.

"He greeted people with warmth and acceptance," said board chairman Michael W. Burley of the man who has headed the Garden City Center for the past four years.

"Absolute honesty," added trustee Harry Greenleaf.

Diebel is retiring after 27 years in administration, seven in teaching and six in industry. He has been at Schoolcraft since 1973.

After joining Schoolcraft in 1973, Diebel was dean of applied sciences, presiding over much of the growth in the community college's vocational-technical programs.

Earlier this year, he presided over Schoolcraft's move into a new Garden City location that is double the size of the previous center.

Diebel came to Schoolcraft after spending six years as dean of vocational education at Northern Montana College, one year with the U.S. foreign mission in Khartoum, Sudan, and a year as Montana's state director of vocational education.

It's a good year for cider mill

By W.W. Edger
staff writer

According to history, the people from England who landed in America in the 1600s brought with them gallons of apple cider which was the favorite beverage in the home land.

But good as it was, the English folks were surprised if they now had the opportunity to visit the Plymouth Cider Mill and Orchards on Warren Road west of Napier on the edge of Canton Township.

Had they dropped in there for a visit and a taste of American cider they would have been accorded a real treat. And it would have been a surprise to see all the tables filled with parents and children enjoying a treat befitting a holiday.

As these families sat at tables enjoying themselves, Mary Emmett said she and husband David decided to buy the cider mill five years ago while she watched other folks leave with gallons of cider in bottles and bags of donuts. It was almost like midway at the state fair.

"It is like this every day," Mrs. Emmett said, "and it was especially true this year because of the early hot weather. The apples ripened early and we got a head start in making the cider."

THE EMMETTS bought the farm nine years ago. When they saw the trees bearing apples on the farm's orchard, they decided on a cider mill.

"We have 100 acres here," she said, "but we only plant trees on 60 of them. And the trees bear well in this area. So, the decision to go into the cider mill trade has paid off well."

This year with the early hot weather they have been using several types of apples for the cider. First was the McIntosh, then Jonathans and Golden Delicious. And they apparently all have been fine — the customers are well satisfied.

The entire area at the cider mill was like a huge playground. There was horseback riding, riding on small wagons and just standing around enjoying the sights.

Also jammed was the area where people were eating donuts and drinking cider. The mill serves about 1,000 children a year, and it allows customers to pick apples from the extra 40 acres which many people enjoy doing day after day when the apples ripen.

Mrs. Emmett explained, too, that some varieties of apples can be stored. When you do that you can have apples, all year long and they are delicious, she said.

"Of course the donuts we bake right here. And with the cider it makes a delicious combination — mostly in the morning and the afternoons."

The Emmetts, with any of their apples and cider, will be at the Apple Festival in Old Village on Sunday, Oct. 12.

Tempest brewing over witch's talk

I want her not to be allowed to come in." Pals said he had conveyed his thoughts to the library resources coordinator at Salem High.

"She told me they planned to have a minister speak on apartheid. But that, too, is not OK with me, either," said Pals. "It would be offensive if an atheist spoke, too. What place does religion have in the schools? The schools are not for the propagation of religious beliefs."

Pals said Gundella's appearance was unnecessary. "It is not necessary to enhance the knowledge of the Salem Witch Trials. There is no need to bring in a witch. I prefer that a witch not be a participant in any way, shape or form — or any other religious bodies, either."

Pals said he had talked to Salem Principal Bill Brown. Brown said the school would go ahead with the Gundella lecture because it was part of the educational context. He said speakers are brought into the school to amplify issues being studied in school.

Brown said students could pursue alternate activities if they did not want to attend Gundella's talk.

Brown said he had been contacted by Styes and other parents, but indicated the Gundella lecture would proceed as scheduled.

Pals said he intended to take the matter to the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education.

Senior likes community

The government encouraged them to produce more and more. Farmers opened up land that had not been used. But farm prices declined and what was overproduced had to be put into storage. It's a tremendous mess.

"When the farmer goes under, he takes down whole communities." Though price supports cost taxpayers millions of dollars, Sund said they should not be eliminated all at once.

"We need an alternative, and we need to phase it in. If we made drastic cuts in price supports, it would be a catastrophe. But we cannot continue them, we need something new. We need to get our markets back."

"We have helped underdeveloped countries, shown them how to plant and harvest crops, and now they are able to take a big portion of the available market."

Sund said he did not think corporate farms would eliminate the family farm because they have become less attractive either as investments or tax write-offs. But the family farmer, he said, continues to suffer because he has little protection either with bankruptcy laws or unemployment insurance but still is faced with huge capital gains taxes-as his land appreciates.

Sund's occupational traveling has given him an appreciation of the places he visits with the senior citizens group — and of Plymouth-Canton whose remaining farmland faces the pressures of urban sprawl.

State panel pushes Rouge cleanup plan

By Teri Banes
staff writer

An ambitious and comprehensive state-led effort to clean up the Rouge River and once again make it available for "public use" by the year 2005 was launched this week following action by the state Water Resources Commission (WRC).

The seven-member WRC, which has been studying proposals since July, Tuesday approved a two-year action plan.

"We think the Rouge River Basin has a lot of potential. We want it to be a usable resource," said Frank Baldwin, assistant chief of the Department of Natural Resources' Surface Water Quality Division, and the newly named project director.

The WRC vote followed a three-hour morning drive to some of the most heavily polluted and foulest smelling sites along the 125-mile waterway. The sites are in parts of Redford Township, Wayne and Melvindale.

THE WRC PLAN will rely on a combined effort of 36 municipalities and three counties in the Rouge River basin, plus planning assistance from the staffs of the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments and the DNR.

So far, there is no estimate of the cleanup cost or how it will be covered.

Karen Gottlieb, chairman of the Rouge Valley Watershed Council, called the financial question "the fuzziest aspect of the whole plan."

"We hope to work with the executive and legislative branches on this," she said. "Our concern is that things get done, not just studied."

The plan was applauded as a necessary beginning by those who turned out to address the WRC, which met in auto pioneer Henry Ford's Fairlane estate on the University of Michigan-Dearborn campus.

Among nearly two dozen who spoke were representatives of environmental and recreation groups, local officials, and representatives of state officials, including Gov. James Blanchard.

Blanchard sent a letter in which he wrote: "I intend to set Michigan on a course toward restoring all of our waters to desirable uses. I pledge the state's full partnership in providing resources necessary to clean up the Rouge." The statement seems particularly encouraging because of questions over how the ambitious project will be funded.

DRAINING PARTS of three dozen cities, villages and townships in southeast Michigan, the Rouge has long been known as one of the worst rivers in Michigan — virtually an open drain spouting raw sewage and human waste.

Officials note the pollution problem developed because the population in the area has exceeded the capacity of the aging drainage system, which relies on 180 combined sewer overflows (CSO) that pour stormwater and untreated sewage into the river. Systems installed today include separated storm water and sewage sewers.

DNR Director Ronald Skoog said the "costs are going to be very expensive depending on what the final solutions are going to be."

The most expensive — and least likely — option would be to separate the combined sewers into storm drains and sanitary sewers, he said. "First we need to get control over the storm water," Skoog said.

A more viable alternative, however, would be to construct holding basins along the river to capture high levels of water brought on during storms, Skoog said.

Currently, sewage overflows into the river when storm water increases the total water level in drains. Holding basins could serve to contain them.

DEARBORN Mayor John O'Reilly, among the local officials present, gave this testimony: "As someone once said, there's nothing more powerful than an idea whose time has come. The idea for cleaning up the Rouge is now, and I believe you have the support of the communities to do that."

SEMCOG Executive Director John Amberger pledged support also for the long planning work ahead.

"At one time our grandparents were able to swim, canoe in the Rouge River. Perhaps we're now taking the first step for our great-grandchildren to do the same," he said.

Melvindale Mayor Thomas Coogan said a resident died last week, six days after he was submerged "for only a few seconds" in the river. The man died of a liver infection, Coogan said.

BOB McALPINE, president of the $0,000-member Michigan Lake Stream Association, a sportsmen's group, offered encouragement. Pointing out that Lake Erie only 10 years ago was called a dead waterway, "a mess, a disgrace," he said it has been rejuvenated.

"Just last weekend, my friends and I caught four walleye there."

Rose Beaugart, chairwoman of the Wayne County Taxpayers Association, said parents along the river tell their children "it's safer to play in the toilet" than in the Rouge River. There were nods of agreement across the room.

She added, however, that the commission soon will have to address the critical question of funding, urging the members to honestly outline costs to taxpayers and then "justify" those expenses.

Other cities needed in cleaning Rouge

By W.W. Edger
staff writer

While the rescuing of the Rouge has become a popular subject, the time may not be too distant for the job, especially in Observerland, when the work will be underway.

While the Rouge is miles long and cluttered with all sorts of problems, the Plymouth area particularly is interested in having the three lakes — Phoenix, Wilcox, and Newburg — made more fitting for residents.

One of the big problems is that some communities are not represented in the Rouge Basin association which is trying to get the job done.

"We are hopeful that Garden City, Westland and Redford will join with us," said Ken West, City of Plymouth engineer. "We have 21 members who now are working on a plan, but we should have 38. The jobs need to be done and we need all the membership we can get."

One of the main jobs along the way is the combined sewers in the Plymouth-Northville area. "It will take a while to get this condition changed. But membership in the group can bring it about."

Looking at the three lakes, Phoenix is the largest and is a good fishing lake. Wilcox, in the middle, is ideal for skating. Newburgh Lake also has been a popular fishing lake. Wilcox Lake also is a haven for the ducks stopping off on the way north from the South.

RECENTLY THERE has been a lot of discussion about improving the Rouge and there have been proposals that the cities and townships along the Rouge Basin join in raising the money to do the job.

These municipalities are meeting now, hoping that Garden City, Westland and Redford will join in and help get the job done to make the Rouge an outstanding recreation feature in southeastern Michigan.

Average class load continues to decline

A decline in credit hours per student is continuing at Schoolcraft College.

"We're not happy about it," President Richard McDowell told the board of trustees last week. He reported the average student load dropped 4 percent to 7.28 credit hours this fall. A full load is considered to be 12 hours.

The average credit load has been dropping steadily from 7.8 in 1981, to 7.69, then 7.68 and 7.46 hours last year. The college has begun survey work and marketing aimed at retaining students and increasing the hours.

The percentage of full-time students fell to 23 percent, continuing a steady decline from 1981's level of 29 percent.

This fall's enrollment report showed little new in the way of trends. Main findings:

- Head count — 8,374 this fall, down less than 2 percent from last year.

- Nonresidents — 27 percent, "showing creeping up" from 1981's level of 25 percent.

- Sex — women students rose 1 percent to 56 percent, continuing a point-a-year increase.

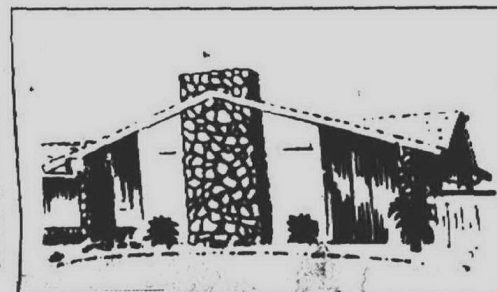

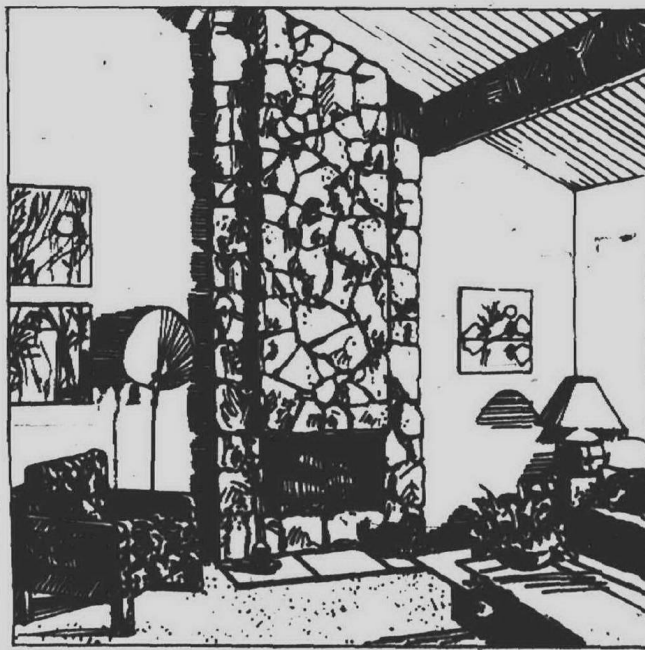

- Curriculum — transfer students — those taking academic programs and planning to earn a bachelor's degree at a four-year college — were 32 percent of the total, 2 percent ahead of last year but still above the levels of earlier years. The other 68 percent are classified as "career" students.

On a happier note, McDowell said 80 of 81 Schoolcraft graduates passed the state's registered nurse examination.

Ancient Art of the American Woodland Indians

The Detroit Institute of Arts
5 September - 10 November 1985

The Woodlands region of North America stretched from the Atlantic coast to the edge of the western prairies, from the Upper Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico. Long before the arrival of the first Europeans, the lush, forested environment nurtured a series of vibrant, creative cultures. This exhibition examines nearly 5,000 years of native American art from the Woodlands region. These masterworks of sculpture, ceramics, copper, and shell work were created by the ancestors of present-day native Americans.

Ancient Art of the American Woodland Indians was organized by the Founders Society Detroit Institute of Arts in association with the National Gallery of Art. The exhibition and tour are made possible by the generous support of the National Endowment for the Arts, a Federal Agency, the Stroh Foundation, Flint Ink Corporation and the Founders Society Detroit Institute of Arts. Admission free.

The broadcasting service of Eastern Michigan University

Joe Slezak, a student broadcaster while attending Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, remains in the radio field as a student at Eastern Michigan University.

Former WSDP staffer broadcasts EMU games

Joe Slezak of Plymouth put the experience he gained at the Plymouth Centennial Educational Park (CEP) student radio station to work in sports reporting at station WEMU as a sports reporter.

Slezak, an Eastern Michigan University junior, always was interested in sports and calls Ernie Harwell, George Kell and Bruce Martin his role models. "I like sports, but I'm not a very good athlete," said Slezak. "I'm not very involved with playing. I'd rather be reporting."

Slezak began his broadcasting career at the 200-watt WSDP radio station at Plymouth Salem High School. "I did a little bit of everything," said Slezak, who not only anchored play-by-plays but also engineered newscasts.

During his senior year in high school, Slezak worked at the CEP Perspective, the student newspaper.

While on the paper staff, he wrote sports features and even sold advertising space. He also worked for the Schoolcraft Globe as an assistant to the sports editor.

SLEZAK IS pursuing a degree in telecommunications and film with a minor in journalism at EMU. He has earned a Journalist Recognition of Uniqueness Scholarship from the EMU Department of Communication and Theatre Arts.

Slezak began working at WEMU in the fall of 1983 as a beat reporter. He also became active at WQBR, the university's student radio station, working at both stations at the same time.

His work at WEMU consists of preparing sportscasts for the noon and 5 p.m. broadcasts and developing local sports features for "Morning Edition."

He said his most difficult assignments deal with people or things with which he is unfamiliar.

"I try to do some research and be patient," said Slezak.

He said he would like to do more sports anchoring and play-by-play but for now he is happy doing sports reporting.

"A lot of people don't realize that reporting is the backbone of anchoring," said Slezak.

Slezak still has time to serve as treasurer of Alpha Epsilon Rho, the EMU chapter of the National Broadcasting Society.

Library board reviews budget

The Plymouth District Library Board of Directors met Monday night to review its budget for the coming fiscal year.

The board determined that its requested millage rate of 0.8 mill would be just sufficient to maintain its present level of services at the Dunning-Hough Library in the city of Plymouth.

The board will seek the millage from library district voters, composed of Plymouth Township and city residents, Nov. 5.

The township and city each had contributed $146,000 toward the operation of the library. But with the establishment of the district in September, the library is permitted to seek its own millage.

The Plymouth Township Board of Trustees last week voted to terminate its contract with the library. Instead of contributing $146,000, the township now will provide only $26,000 to the library for debt retirement as called for in the proposed 1986 budget of Supervisor Maurice Breen.

Plymouth Township also is seeking millage Nov. 5. It wants two mills specifically for police and fire protection.

The city of Plymouth will continue to fund the library through the end of the city fiscal year, which ends in June 1986.

The city has been allocating about one mill for the library.

Cellist Frank at SC for free recital

Cellist Barton Frank will perform a free recital at Schoolcraft College at 8 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 10. It will be in room F-301 of the Forum Building on campus at 18600 Haggerty, Livonia.

Head of the cello faculty at Western Washington University, Frank is a graduate of the Curtis Institute and studied with Gregor Platigorsky, one of the world's greatest cellists.

At 19 Frank was principal cellist with the National Symphony of Washington, D.C. Frank has performed with more than 100 major orchestras in the U.S., Canada and Mexico and also has conducted. His instrument is a 1732 Stradivarius.

He will be accompanied by pianist Joseph Levine. The program is sponsored by a grant from the Louise Thayer Bryan Fund.

On the program are: a sonata by the 18th-century master, Corelli; a 1949 sonata by Serge Prokofiev; Beethoven's second cello sonata; Frank's own variations on a theme of Paganini; "Meditation Hebraique" by Bloch; and themes from Rossini's "Marriage of Figaro" arranged by Castelnuovo-Tedesco.

Lack of busing is a problem

To the editor:

When plans were announced last spring that students of Lowell from Holiday Park would be required to walk to school this year, the back of the subdivision signed petitions and obtained legal counsel because they were over 1 1/2 miles from school. Because the board was not in compliance with the law, they were forced to capitulate and bus these children.

The rest of us received a letter from transportation informing us that we were not eligible for busing and they underlined ineligible.

Now I really have no objections to our children walking while the conditions are good. But as the fall and winter progresses those conditions will markedly deteriorate.

First, it will stay dark longer in the mornings, which means that because there are no street lights along Joy there are areas that are extremely dark, particularly a strip bordering a heavily wooded area.

Secondly, after it snows these sidewalks will be covered with snow and, according to transportation, there are no plans to keep them clear. Where are the kids going to walk? You and I know it will be in the place there is the least snow and that means the road. Let's face it, even an adult will walk there if the only alternative is to mosh through a couple of feet of snow.

Thirdly, because we are dependent on the county for the care of our roads, and they have more than enough to keep them busy, Joy can become a nightmare of ice. Our subdivision roads, after a heavy snow, become almost impassable.

Now the taxpaying residents of Holiday Park seem to be getting a message and that is if you are concerned about the safety of your child, take him to school yourself.

This presents a dilemma. Should you let the child take his chances with the road, ice and traffic, or should you haul them in yourself and take a chance on ending up in an accident or in the ditch?

Cut where the waste really is

To the editor:

I see our "township officials" are using the usual tactics to convince taxpayers to give them what they want with no questions asked — more money to waste.

Over the past few years they have had lots of money to waste on big fancy office buildings, $4,000 desks, new police department complete — new cars, computer, office, gas to keep police cars running while female officer visits with WAYCO-township trustees for 13 or 20 minutes — automobiles for officials to use as they please, etc.

Now because the taxpayers were smart enough not to hand these "cost-conscious officials" a blank check for more waste, we are threatened with the closing of a fire station, curtailed park hours and elimination of road spraying.

If our illustrious leaders will recall, the taxpayers approved millage for fire and rescue protection and are willing to pay for it. We were never given the opportunity to vote for Carl Berry, a new police department, $4,000 desks, new office buildings, etc.

I believe I recall reading in our local papers where the courts placed responsibility for elimination of road dust on the county because of air pollution.

The park is an open area, where lawns must be mowed and rubbish gathered regularly regardless of the number of hours used, so where does that affect dollars?

So, illustrious leaders, let's look for money cuts where there is the most waste and don't be threatening the services you know the people use and want the most, and are willing to pay for. Don't cut our fire and rescue service.

You could cut the excessive use of Uncle Carl's boys and girls new toys.

I swear, Plymouth Township sounds just like Detroit since we got a police department. Sirens constantly. Never had so much noise before, but had just as good service.

Millington says yes to millage

To the editor:

Plymouth Township has stated it must cut personal, police and fire services, etc., for lack of money. I am on record as telling people that they have sufficient funds available to them. Where do we differ?

They are using two mills whereas today they get income from the current four mills. In short: they need two more mills. These two mills are renewals — they are not additional taxes. We have never turned down renewals. They are honest requests.

Supervisor Maurice Breen spoke with me today. He promised that with four mills he will have no problems. He says the Nov. 5 ballot will ask us to approve the two renewals. I believe he referred to them as police and fire millage.

It is hard to understand why they spend so much time and energy on negative thinking instead of saying "can do." Now that we have the simple answer, let us show the board that we will do our part. I urge township residents to vote "yes" on the two renewals on Nov. 5.

Chester Budzynski, our representative with The Senior Alliance which supports the funds for the elderly services in western Wayne County, fully supports the "yes" vote. He has been of great assistance in helping in this conclusion.

A special thanks to each of our league directors for a job well done: Baseball — Mike Wesner, C League; Norm Otto, B League; Gary Pilewski, A League; Dennis Kennedy, AA League; Gary Colman, F League; Skip Heyman, E League. Softball — Donna Meyka, G1 League; Jim Burt, GP League; Bob Denstedt, GJR League; and Ray Knickerbocker, GSR League.

In order for the 1986 season to be equally successful, the Plymouth-Canton Junior Baseball League is in need of parents who are willing to give their time in various board positions which are vacant.

At the Oct. 9 board meeting, a secretary for the board of directors is needed. These are volunteer positions. The meeting will be held in Room 108 at 7:30 p.m. in Plymouth Canton High School. Group homes are gaining acceptance FEAR OF THE unknown is one of the most powerful motivators of mankind.

And in our neighborhoods, homeowners resist change, generating fear of declining property values and threats to our children.

These two fears have been prevalent in the past when people discuss the location of group homes for mentally retarded adults.

Without fail, neighbors object that each proposal will threaten their property values, they'll be unable to sell their homes, and their children's safety will be threatened.

Without fail, when one looks at the neighborhood one to three years later, one finds that property values remain stable or actually increase, and neighborhood children are as safe as they ever had been.

Yet, each time a group home is proposed these same fears will emerge.

ONE SUCCESS story, among many, is the Lexington House in the City of Plymouth.

A city administrator recently reported that in the past six months three homes close to Lexington House sold at a price at market value and higher than the value of homes in that neighborhood a year ago.

As for threats to the safety of children, the first Halloween after six mentally retarded adults moved into Lexington House, more than 100 neighborhood children visited the home for treats. That success story was reported in a recent edition of the Plymouth Observer.

One evident reason for the success is that the retarded adults had made special efforts to be visible in the neighborhood and to introduce themselves to neighbors. They also made a point to get involved, such as volunteering for the Neighborhood Watch program.

Personal contact is a great medicine to allay fears and misgivings among people. Unfortunately, mentally retarded persons do not often come into direct contact with significant numbers of children and adults unless and until they move into a neighborhood by occupying a group home.

ANOTHER SUCCESS story occurred downriver when one family intervened to lead a neighborhood to acceptance of a group home and its residents.

When news of a group home locating in Brownstown Township became known, neighbors immediately began circulating petitions. Edna and Dan King not only refused to sign the petitions, but once the home opened they took deliberate steps to welcome the new neighbors and help them gain acceptance.

A fact which may surprise many readers is that acceptance of group homes is now becoming the rule rather than the exception. An indication of this was that 10 years ago, 85 percent of Gallup Poll respondents said they would not object to a group home containing six or fewer persons on their block.

In a national survey of 611 group homes, one-third reported initial community opposition, but in almost 90 percent of these cases, the initial opposition declined over time.

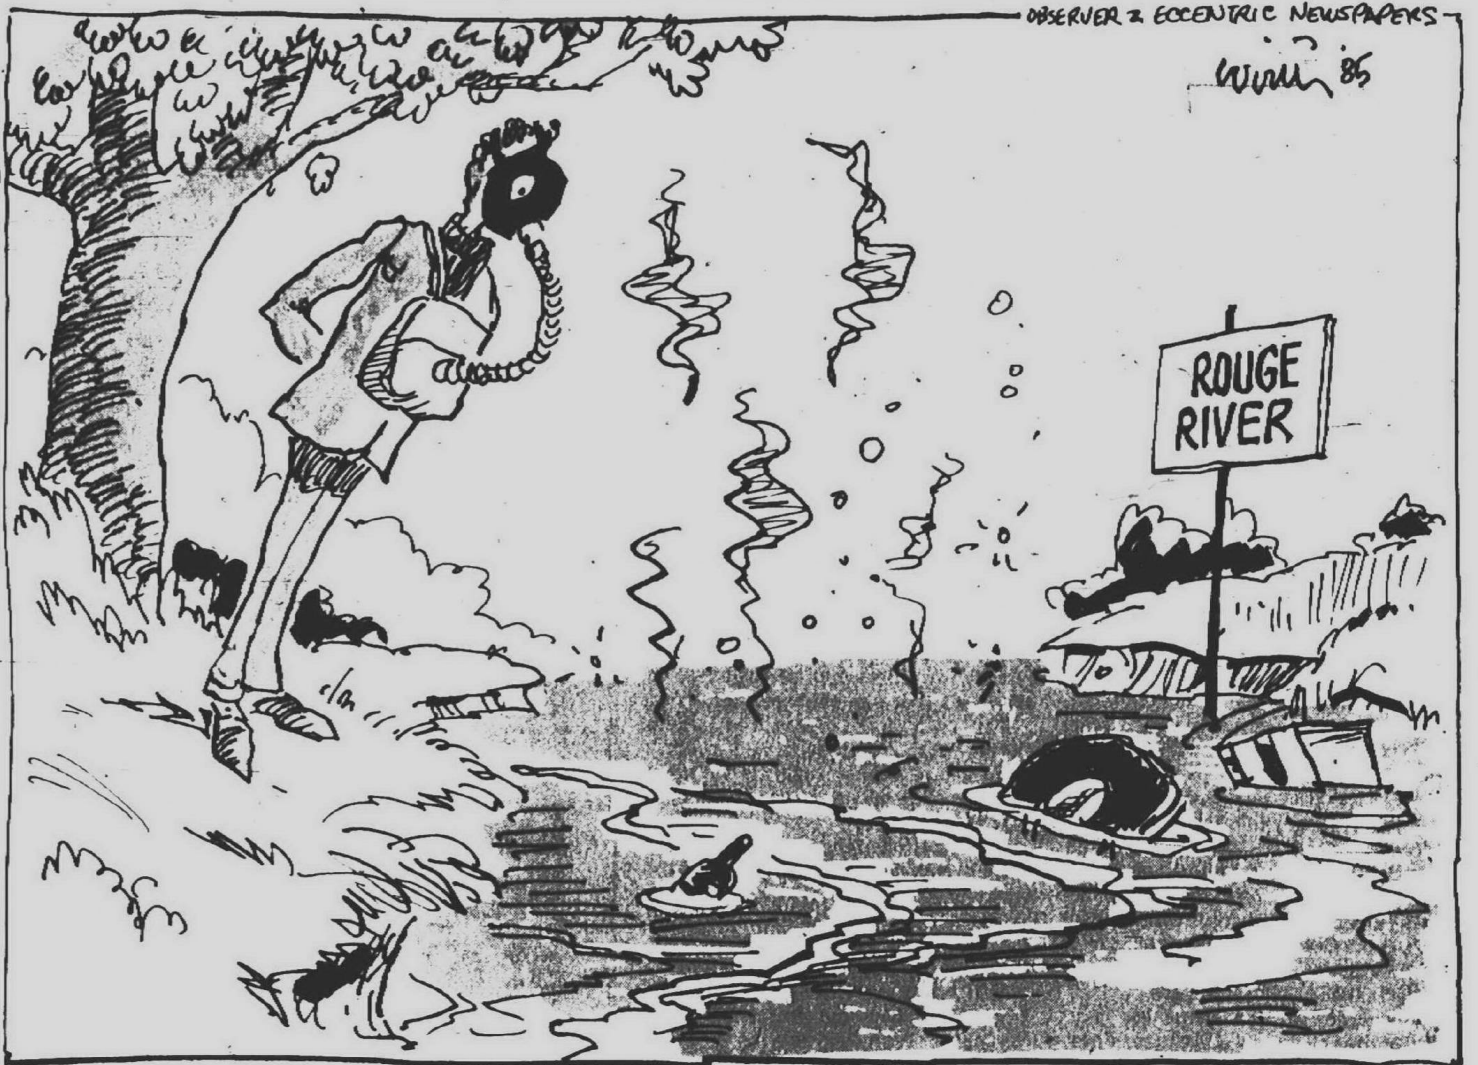

The Michigan Department of Health examined 90 group homes over 18 months and found that only 15 percent encountered formal opposition, which declined after the homes were opened.

In another recent study in Michigan, 41 neighbors of group homes reported in interviews that their attitudes became more positive after the home opened.

In Plymouth that pattern also has been evident. Fears evaporate when we face reality instead of imagining dangers.

Society advances when individuals adapt to change instead of fearing it. There still is hope for us all.

Plymouth Observer

Can Rouge be reclaimed?

THE STATE Water Resources Commission this week paid a visit to the Rouge River, "the dirtiest river in Michigan and perhaps the dirtiest in the Great Lakes Region," in the tough words of WRC Chairman James E. Murray.

Murray, who makes his living as drain commissioner of nearby Washtenaw County and so has some appreciation of rivers, talks of a united effort to reclaim the Rouge, which drains all 12 of the Observer & Eccentric area communities, and then some.

Lots of luck, Jim.

THE ROUGE always has been dirty, at least since I can first remember it in World War II days before suburbs were built.

It's common for a river like the Rouge to be muddy. Look at the Cass River up in the Thumb area. The land rimming Saginaw Bay, like the land of southeastern Michigan, is very flat because of glacial action 12,000 or more years ago.

Even if there were no such thing as pollution, the Rouge would run muddy. No river running across flat land is a clear, babbling brook.

IN THE 1920s, the Middle Rouge in western Wayne County was dammed in at least four spots to form ponds and lakes. The dams were supposed to have generated hydroelectric power for Henry Ford's small-town auto plants.

Those ponds began dying as soon as they were created because they are so shallow. Biologists call the process eutrophication. Sediment fills them in. Weeds die and pile up, fertilizing more weeds.

Two-thirds of Waterford Pond in Northville Township, part of Phoenix and Wilcox lakes in Plymouth and at least half of Newburgh Lake in Livonia have weeds above the water surface. A rootless algae, as slimy as wet-bathroom tissue, floats on the surface.

WHAT MAKES the Rouge even worse than the Cass, or Great Plains rivers like the Platte, is pollution.

WRC Chairman Murray counts 180 combined sewer overflow (CSO) points on the Rouge's four branches. CSOs are combined stormwater and sanitary sewer lines.

When they overflow — which is easy during a storm on flat terrain — the mixture of storm water and sewage runs into the Rouge. In some spots you can smell human waste.

There are other sources of pollution. Salt and oil from our roads — to which environmentalists have given the snazzy term of "non-point pollution" — degrade the water chemically.

A Plymouth Township lady of my acquaintance used to spot oil spills on the Middle Rouge. She would call the WRC and raise hell. Her chief suspect was a nearby auto dealer's garage.

I don't know if anybody ever proved anything, because the WRC inspector wouldn't talk to a newspaper — any newspaper. I complained about him to Lansing and received an insulting letter in reply.

WHO'S RESPONSIBLE for the Rouge's water quality?

The buck starts with the state WRC. The Rouge's branches flow through parts of Oakland, Washtenaw and Wayne counties. Some 36 cities, townships and villages stretch along the Rouge's banks. And because the Rouge flows into the Detroit River, a Great Lakes connecting water, perhaps the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has a share of the responsibility.

Reclaiming the Rouge, at least from pollution and chemical contamination, will be an enormous job with an enormous price tag. Even if the 41 units of government at the federal, state and local levels do it, the Rouge will still run brown.

Vacations — state's neglected industry

THE CRACKERBARREL is going to be keeping an eye on suburban state legislators this session. You'd be wise to do the same. Your economic future could very well depend on it.

Add up the suburban Detroit legislators and you'll find a powerful block of votes. But they need some watching by you and me.

You see, an $11.5 billion industry is out there waiting, just waiting, to be doubled. It's an industry which now provides this state 250,000 jobs and is itching to take on even more employees.

Unfortunately this also is one of state government's stepchild industries.

WE'RE TALKING vacations. To solve its economic woes, Michigan needs to go on vacation.

You heard me right — vacation. All this talk about high tech diversification and reviving the auto industry is just economic bandage talk. Sure, the Wolverine state needs some of these things to get along. But we need to do more than get along.

To be economically born again, we must have a well-developed tourist industry.

A lot of folks up Lansing way take tourism for granted. As a matter of fact, residents all over the state figure that tourism will always just kind of be around — like an old, familiar wart.

And one of those misguided folk could be your state legislator.

But they're wrong, so wrong that if that kind of thinking continues to dominate we will lose one of our most vital industries.

THAT'S WHY the Crackerbarrel is going to keep an eye on area suburban legislators — to see how they vote on a package of bills being introduced by state Sen. Harry DeMaso, R-Battle Creek.

In short, the package would create a department of recreation, tourism and culture.

At present, tourism is an industry without a home. Oh sure, it falls loosely under the control of the Doug Ross Commerce Department. But many of the traditional tourism responsibilities are spread out over a number of commissions and councrackerbarrel debate

Steve Barnaby

DeMaso's bills would effectively put all these tourism responsibilities under one umbrella — if nothing else, certainly a nifty way to consolidate a little of the Lansing bureaucracy.

MICHIGAN IS a tourist Mecca. At present it is the state's second largest industry — a $11.5 billion business. DeMaso believes it could be a $24 billion one, if coordinated under one department.

Somewhere around 250,000 persons depend on tourism for a paycheck each week. That translates to 35,000 businesses and public facilities.

Michigan has more recreational boats, 622,000, than any other state. That's because we have more fresh water coastline than any other state. We also have more snowmobiles, 250,000, than any other — for better or for worse.

That's only the tip of the iceberg when it comes to tourism statistics. Think about business travelers.

Michigan is in a crucial 200-city battle for convention business. While we have 400,000 square feet of convention and exhibit space, our Chicago cousins boast of 1.2 million.

The more travel and convention business we lose, the more money that comes out of our pockets. At present the state only attracts 8.7 percent of the family travel market. Supporters of a tourism department believe we could attract 28 percent.

Keep in mind that for every percent increase in that market, an additional $125 million in direct travel expenditures and $10 million in state tax revenue would be raised. Jobs would increase by 8,000.

Remember these facts, dear legislators, and take our concerns seriously. We'll be watching.

Can the ruler see his clothes?

ONCE UPON a time there was a nation where almost everyone was well fed and had nice places to live. The inhabitants often were told that they were among the richest people in the world — in fact, among the richest people who had ever lived.

An earlier ruler of the country had promised that each family would have a chicken for every pot. That ruler had long since died, and the people were even wealthier than that.

Besides a chicken for every pot, there was a personal travel vehicle and a television set for almost every member of each family and an expectation that every family should have a device to make video-tape recordings of the television programs they watched.

Rulers of the country did not descend from a long line of royalty but were ordained by the people. Rulers came from such humble beginnings as lemon farms and peanut farms and before becoming rulers held such positions as high school teacher, sports announcer and movie actor.

THE RULER at the time we are talking about was a former sports announcer and movie actor. The people revered their ruler for his direct ways and his seeming ability to ensure that most families had a television in every room and a device to make recordings of these programs, as well as the money to buy other goods for the pursuit of happiness.

Alas, the people loved their ruler so much that they could not bear to see, as time passed, that he was being weighted down by a golden cape which grew bigger and bigger every year. The cape somehow was created by an ancient spell, which said that as the richest nation on earth borrowed from the future and went into debt, the cape would become longer and heavier.

THE RULER had always believed that it did not matter how much the nation borrowed from the future. He believed that somehow the total wealth of the nation would grow each year so that at no point would anyone have to pay the debt.

What was important, the ruler used to say, was that he make sure the people's grandchildren didn't get blown up or destroyed in a war. No one suggested that this would mean that the country was saving the grandchildren so that they would have to pay the ever-growing debt.

Occasionally people talked about the growing debt, but no one dared suggest that the debt and cape were growing and that the ruler was becoming weighted down by its bulk. They pretended, not to notice. And as the years went on, the ancient spell began working another magic — the people themselves became weighted with golden capes of future debt.

STILL THE people pretended not to notice and continued to talk among themselves about what goods were necessary for the pursuit of happiness.

Then one day a boy named Stockman said something that no one had dared say before. He said that the nation's future debt was such that the country was in peril, and he pointed out the growing golden capes weighing down the president — and everyone else, for that matter.

Stockman had at one time been in the ruler's court where he had spoken out. At that time, the ruler had taken him to the royal woodshed and lectured him on the necessity of being quiet.

So the people of the nation didn't trust Stockman, and they listened to their ruler who said there were no growing capes. As time went on, the people of the nation were so weighted down by their capes that they couldn't move, and all commerce stopped.

And that is how the richest nation on earth became very poor and how for many years there was no money.

Area reps split on federal milk price supports

Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes between Sept. 19-26.

HOUSE

MILK — By a vote of 166 for and 244 against, the House rejected an amendment to attack the problem of milk over-production by lowering federal price supports for dairy farmers.

The vote occurred during consideration of a new five-year farm bill (HR 2100), which remained in debate.

It was a defeat for the Reagan Administration, which praised the amendment as a cost-cutter that would give free-market forces more of a role in regulating supply and demand.

But it was a victory for farm-state legislators and others who said the farm economy is too fragile to withstand cuts in federal income supports.

The amendment sought to lower the present milk price-support level of $11.60 per hundred weight by 50 cents annually until it reaches $10.10, the estimated price at which it no longer would be profitable for farmers to sell their surpluses to the government.

Left intact by the vote was the House Agriculture Committee plan to control production through the incentive of paying farmers to thin out their herds. Price supports would rise slightly as surpluses are cut.

Backers said the committee plan would "cull cows" while the amendment would "cull farmers."

Sponsor Robert Michel, R-Ill., said his amendment gave members a choice between "intervention through a cartel-like system, or faith in markets and freedom."

Opponent Arlan Strangeland, R-Minn., said the amendment "would drive countless family farmers out of dairying by repeatedly imposing wrenching price support reductions until dairy supply and demand... are in balance."

Members voting yes favored lowering dairy price supports. Voting yes were Republicans Carl Pursell of Plymouth and William Broomfield of Birmingham.

Voting no were Democrats Dennis Hertel of Harper Woods, William Ford of Taylor and Sander Levin of Southfield.

SUGAR — The House rejected, 142 for and 263 against, an amendment to reduce the federal support of raw cane sugar by one cent each year below the present level of 18 cents per pound, to a floor of 15 cents.

Beet sugar supports, which are tied to cane supports, also would have been lowered.

The amendment was backed by the Reagan Administration. It was proposed to the new farm bill (above), which would continue the 18-cent level and allow it to rise but not fall during the life of the legislation.

Supporter Stephen Solarz, D-N.Y., said the existing federal sugar program, which limits imports and subsidizes growers, "is costing consumers $3 billion in order to help 13,000 producers."

Opponent Bill Schuette, R-Mich., called the amendment "quite simply a blueprint for the demolition of the American sugar industry."

Members voting yes wanted to lower sugar price supports.

Voting no: Pursell, Hertel, William Ford, Levin, Broomfield.

SENATE

SUPERFUND — By a vote of 86 for and 13 against, the Senate passed and sent to the House a bill (HR 2005) to extend the Superfund for five more years, at a cost of $7.5 billion.

The money is to be used by the Environmental Protection Agency to clean up some of America's tens of thousands of abandoned toxic dumps. The money is to be raised by taxes on businesses rather than from general revenues.

Some $5.4 billion of the outlay would be raised by a new, broadly applied excise tax on producers and importers of certain raw and manufactured goods. The remainder would come from the tax on chemical raw materials that has financed the Superfund since its inception in 1981.

Senators voting yes wanted to keep the Superfund alive and expand its scope. Michigan Democrats Carl Levin and Donald Riegle voted yes.

VICTIMS — The Senate voted, 49 for and 45 against, to delete a section of the Superfund bill (above) that created a demonstration program of federal compensation for victims of toxic waste poisoning.

Costing up to $30 million annually, the program was to have been tried at up to 10 toxic dumps nationwide. Persons with illnesses linked to the site would have been reimbursed for past and present medical expenses.

Amendment sponsor William Roth, R-Del., said the program at a time when "the Treasury simply cannot afford the potentially very large expenditures..."

Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., a foe of the amendment, called the compensation program "at best a safety net" for the poor people who live near toxic dumps.

Senators voting no wanted to create a demonstration program of compensation to victims of toxic waste poisoning. Voting no: Levin, Riegle.

SUPERFUND CUT — By a vote 15 for and 79 against, the Senate rejected an amendment to cut the five-year cost of the new Superfund legislation (above) from $7.5 billion to $5.7 billion.

bill retains the higher pricetag when it reaches his desk.

In its first five years, 1981-85, the Superfund environmental cleanup budget was $1.6 billion.

Supporter Jesse Helms, R-N.C., quoted the Environmental Protection Agency as saying a $7.5 billion program is too large for it to adequately administer.

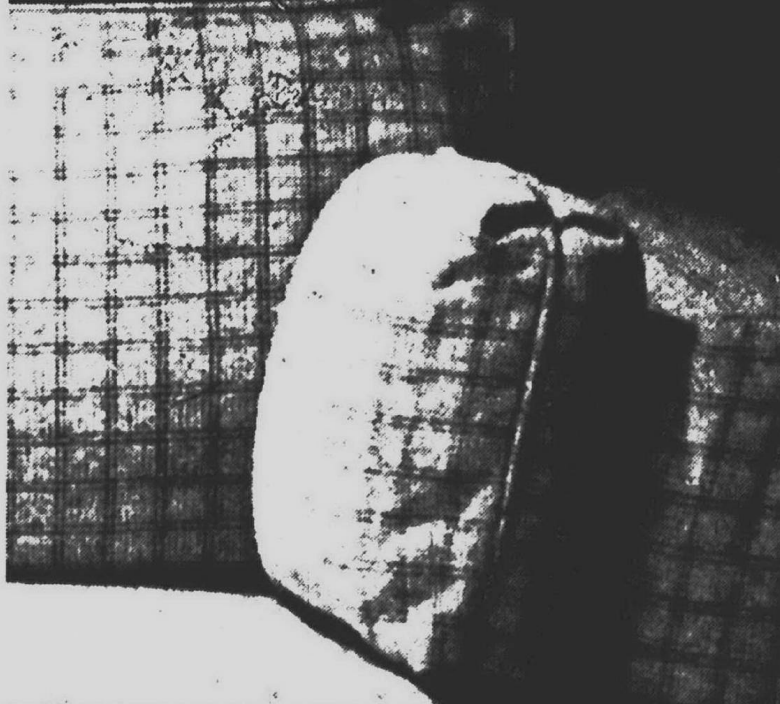

Opponent Max Baucus, D-Mont., called the amendment "a smoke-and-mirrors proposal (that) does not provide the funding needed to address the problem."

Senators voting yes wanted to limit the cost of the new Superfund.

It was a defeat for the Reagan Administration, which praised the amendment as a cost-cutter that would give free-market forces more of a role in regulating supply and demand.

WHAT DO YOU do when the band fails to show up at a wedding reception? You depend on the band for appropriate dinner music, dancing music, and to perform as master of ceremonies for the traditional wedding reception events.

Jean and Al Stanwood found themselves in a no-band situation after the marriage of their daughter, Susan, and Rusty Eubank. The wedding guests were assembled at the Mayflower Meeting House for the reception and the band had failed to put in an appearance.

Wedding guest and fellow Rotarian, Bill Morrison, had a suggestion for Al. Why not call Bob Sparling, Plymouth Rotary Club pianist? Bob saved the day. He came over and played dinner music for about an hour and a half.

In the meantime, the "younger generation" took over. They rounded up a stereo and speakers to provide music for dancing. And when an MC was needed, the Stanwoods' older daughter, Marion Dickel of Chicago, took microphone in hand and filled in. Marion was married in August.

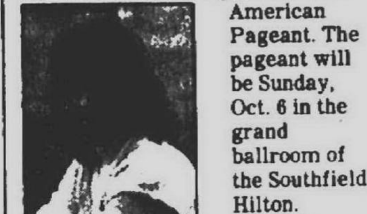

Good old American ingenuity took over and the (older?) guests said they enjoyed it much more than a "noisy" band.

JOHNNIE CROSBY,

Plymouth artist, has a one-woman show in progress at the Ann Arbor Woman's City Club in Ann Arbor. Twenty-two of Johnnie's water colors are on display in the club rooms and in the restaurant.

She also has a water color, "Winter Glade," in Ann Arbor Women Painters Show in the Rackham Gallery on Washtenaw in Ann Arbor.

STACIE HUBBERT has been selected as an entrant in the 1985 Miss Michigan Teen All American Pageant. The pageant will be Sunday, Oct. 6 in the grand ballroom of the Southfield Hilton.

Stacie attends Plymouth Canton High School where she participates in Health Occupations Students of America, holding the office of historian reporter. She says her favorite pastimes are water skiing, traveling and horseback riding. Her parents are Linda Hubbert of Northville and Gordon F. Hubbert Jr. of Tennessee.

ONE OF THE national Civitan fund-raisers is the candy box project. Since it was established in the mid 1970s, more than 700 clubs have joined the project, among them the Plymouth-Canton Civitan Club.

Ever see a box of wrapped red and white mints beside the cash register of an eating place? Ever drop some change into the canister and take a mint? You have contributed to your local Civitan Club and Civitan International. The Brock Candy Co. supplies the mints and the local club maintains the boxes.

Brock Candy Co. honored the top two clubs for 1984-85. Number One was the Plymouth-Canton Civitan Club. Gene Sund, who chaired the project, collected $35,501.42 on 340 cases of candy for a gross average of $104.41. The San Antonio, Texas, club came in second with $11,105.64 on 110 cases for a gross case average of $100.96.

For districts with more than 25 clubs, Michigan was the top district. Those nickels, dimes and quarters really count up.

FOR ALL THOSE men and women, who read about Linda Puryear's Efficiency Management Consultants business and decided they could use her help, here is her telephone number: 451-0655.

TOWNE SAMPLER, the Junior Service League of Ann Arbor's holiday shopping event, will be 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 19 at Applicon, 4251 Plymouth Road, Ann Arbor. All proceeds will be donated to charitable projects by the league.

This year's theme will be "Mostly Michigan," featuring unusual gift items and artworks by primarily Michigan artisans. Admission will be $2.

Symphony selects Kuyvenhoven for endowed chair

Cellist Cora Kuyvenhoven will make her debut with the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra at 4 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 13, in Plymouth Salem High School Auditorium. Kuyvenhoven assumes the only endowed chair in the orchestra as it celebrates its 40th anniversary.

The endowed principal cello chair is a memorial to the late Charles W. Heidt. He was 46 when he died in January 1983 while undergoing open heart surgery. At the time of his death he was chief executive officer of Document Processing Co., organized in Plymouth and then relocated in Farmington. He was a former president of First National Bank of Plymouth and had spent 14 years with National Bank of Detroit.

KUYVENHOVEN was born in Alberta, Canada. As a teen-ager she was a cello instructor at the Mississauga School of Music in Ontario, received a "Stars of Kiwanis" award in Toronto, and went on tour to Hawaii with Symphony Canada.

In the past four years, she has performed with the Canadian Chamber Orchestra in Banff, Alberta; Orchestra London in London, Ontario; Kingston Symphony, Kingston, Ontario; and the ICM Chamber Orchestra and Milwaukee Ballet Orchestra in Wisconsin.

She earned her master of fine arts degree at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee in 1985. Before that, she studied in the Orchestral Training Program and the Royal Conservatory of Music in Toronto, graduate study in the Banff School of Fine Arts, Alberta, and the Institute of Chamber Music in Milwaukee.

She now lives in Ann Arbor where she has a graduate fellowship grant at the University of Michigan.

FUNDING FOR the endowed cello chair came from a special memorial concert in the Little Theater of Plymouth Canton High School.

Heidt's widow, Connie, chose the cello chair as a memorial because of her husband's long "love affair with the cello." She explained, "He discovered the cello as a young boy and seriously pursued his study of the instrument, including majoring in music at Cass Technical High School."

"Although a career in business eventually superseded his musical endeavors, Chuck's love of music, in particular the cello, remained strong."

Connie Heidt was joined by friends in arranging the memorial concert. Joann Hulce, Wilma Newton, Gae McCord, Phyllis Kordick, Jan McKelvey, Carol Stinton, Frankie LaMirand, Judy Moore, Audrey Etienne, Linda West, Fran Lang, Jean Sigmon, Wilma Wagner, Sue Gruebel, Paul Perrot and Joe Kordick helped with the arrangements.

AUDITIONS for the endowed chair were Sept. 7 and Cora Kuyvenhoven, 24, was selected from the field of candidates. The opening concert of the 1985-86 season also marks the debut of Charles Greenwell, interim conductor.

John Mohler, principal clarinetist with the Plymouth Symphony since 1958, will be featured soloist in a tribute to Mozart. He will be soloist in Mozart's Concerto for Clarinet and Orchestra in A.

Seasons tickets still are available and single tickets are $6 for adults and $3.50 for senior citizens and full-time college students. Students 12th grade and under are admitted free.

The auditorium is on Joy Road west of Canton Center.

Flowers, flower pot menu at U-M gardens

Sheila MacQueen, Britain's top floral arranger and designer, will give two lecture-demonstrations next week in the auditorium of the Matthaei Botanical Gardens. The distinguished author and decorator has arranged for many special occasions and notables, including the Royal Family and Westminster Abbey.

Both lectures are sponsored by the gardens Herb Study Group.

"Flower Arranging with a Flair" at 11 a.m. Tuesday, Oct. 8, will include the demonstration and lecture by MacQueen and a Flower Pot Luncheon.

"Flower Arranging for Special Occasions," at 7:30 p.m. will be followed by special refreshments featuring foods with flowers.

Guests will have an opportunity to win one of the arrangements for all those made during the demonstrations will be given away at the end of each event. Admission to the luncheon is $17.50 and to the evening lecture, $7.50. For reservations call 7763-7060, 763-7061, or 769-9414.

SANDY HICKS and the Herb Study Group have planned the flower pot luncheon. Each guest will be served a large flower pot containing smaller pots. To complement the lecture, the menu includes such delicacies as edible chrysanthemum soup, safflower bread, nasturtium leaf butter, potted nasturtium blossom cheese, saffron chicken, salad aux fleurs, rose petal macarons, orange blossom basil snaps, candied flowers such as violets, lavender, borage and roses, and rose-petal punch.

Guests may take home all their flower pots and recipes for dishes will be available.

Because the luncheons are fundraisers for the Gardens, they are tax-deductible to the extent allowable by law.

Westwick, is one of the most-photographed in Britain. She says she is an incurable bargain hunter and seldom returns from flower-judging competitions or lecture tours without some new treasure.

Basically, her flower containers are pretty but muted so they enhance rather than detract from arrangements.

She has found many of them on her bargain-hunting forays — tea caddies (she puts a jam jar inside to hold water), silver bowls and cups, and an assortment of baskets. She says she likes pale alabaster urns, they give importance to an arrangement and take on the colors of flowers.

She never has less than six arrangements in Westwick, which was made of three 400-year-old cottages. In a bedroom, white walls, white Indian carpet, white bed covers, and unimportant pieces of furniture painted white, dramatize the good pieces and make even a simple floral arrangement sing with color.

MacQueen will speak in the auditorium of the University of Michigan Matthaei Botanical Gardens, 1800 N. Dixboro, Ann Arbor.

SHEILA MACQUEEN'S cottage.

Sheila MacQueen, Britain's leading authority on flower arranging, has extensive gardens on the grounds of her home, Westwick Cottage, supplying almost year-round blooms. She will demonstrate her art Tuesday at the Matthaei Botanical Gardens.

O&E to publish charity yule cards

YES, VIRGINIA — and anyone else who has been wondering — the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers will again publish holiday greeting cards of non-profit and non-political organizations.

The annual special promotion will appear in all 12 O&E Suburban Life sections on Thursday, Oct. 24.

Non-profit and non-political organizations are invited to submit to the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers by Thursday, Oct. 17, five copies of each card they will be selling. The newspaper reserves the right to select one sample for publication if more than one style of card is submitted.

EVERY EFFORT will be made to publish all cards received by Oct. 17. Cards received later will be published throughout the holiday season as space permits.

Information pertaining to ordering the cards will appear with photographs of the cards to aid readers in making a selection.

As in the past, organizations are requested to include such information as:

- Price per box and number of cards per box
- Price for larger quantities
- Price for imprinting and deadline for imprinting
- Where cards can be bought
- Telephone number, if more information is needed.

In addition to publishing the cards, the O&E will continue another tradition, that of having display books of charity cards for public viewing at five of our offices: Birmingham, 1235 Bowers; Rochester, 410 Main; Farmington, 33202 Grand River; Livonia, 36251 Schoolcraft; and Plymouth, 489 S. Main.

The display books will be available beginning Monday, Oct. 28.

The holiday greeting card feature was begun by the Observer & Eccentric several years ago as a public service on behalf of the many area charitable organizations that use the sale of holiday cards as a means of fund raising and for residents who want to help them by buying the cards.

Flower-pot luncheon prepared by the Herb Study Group at the Gardens will accompany the noon lecture by Sheila MacQueen.

Substance abuse comes in innocent forms

Fair warning — this is not your basic Canton Chatter.

Several parents brought a couple of items to my attention and asked me to bring to yours. So here goes for a little change of pace a "Canton-Alert-Type-Chatter."

First, we have heard a great deal lately about substance abuse and the more attention paid to this subject the better. For those of you who have not heard, I presented a follow-up program with a suicide hot-line group. The group commended our community's attitude and actions taken regarding substance abuse.

This was in response to our telethon to raise funds to sponsor a training program for key members of our community. Teachers, who have frequent contact with our children, would learn to recognize the substance abusers and to know how to help them — where to direct them for further help.

They applauded the fact that we decided not to throw away these kids and write them off as useless. Rather, we put forth both effort and money to help them deal with the problem and get back into the mainstream of our community on terms they can handle.

We have placed a high value on each and every child and are willing to back it up.

WE HAVE, incidentally, held those clinics and now have a Substance Abuse Task Force. I will keep you posted as they progress. Already they have set up groups at each educational level — elementary, intermediate, and secondary. We will do a program soon on the Sandy Show for a further up-date.

But that wasn't the subject today. As I was saying, we are well aware of the substance abuse problem. For the most part, we are watching for pills, marijuana, cocaine, alcohol and so on.

There is, however, and tragically so, another killer on the scene that most of us are not watching for. It is easy for the children to use, parents don't notice it missing like alcohol. They don't have to spend large sums of money to obtain it, like pills, etc.

The attitude is "I'll use this, my parents can't trace it, I won't get hooked, no one will ever know, and I'll have the same thrill all the kids are having with none of the problems!"

As the old saying goes, "If it sounds too good to be true, it probably is." And such is the case here.

PERHAPS YOU are aware — perhaps not — the danger is probably greater than most others because of its easy access, lack of traceability, and its innocent status in your home.

Nobody is watching for it, yet just two weeks ago it took the life of a young Canton boy without him knowing what happened.

He didn't drink it; he didn't eat it; he didn't swallow it or inject it. It wasn't glue.

He did sniff it, and apparently it does provide a type of a high while it kills your brain cells. But in this case, as you might expect because you know the danger of the substance, the fumes overcame the child and he passed out. He continued to inhale the fumes as he was slumped over the container. And he was gone before anyone could help him.

What was he smelling? Gasoline — no special brand, no exotic formula, just plain gasoline.

Any child can get to the can in the garage, any left in the lawn mower or snowblower. A quick sniff and a quick high, a few brain cells at a time. It can be completely unintentional, an accident, but still, a life is lost.

I KNOW THERE is danger in printing information like this. But the kids already know about it, and the parents don't.

So many parents have been horrified by this tragedy because they never imagined it could actually cause a death. But indeed it did. We can't save this child, but, by golly, ignorance is not bliss. The children already know.

I don't know if you can change the availability of gasoline in your home, but at least you can be more aware of when your child is in the garage. You probably never worried before.

Well, worry now! We lost one child because we just didn't know. Shame on us. But now that you know, and if your child still does it, shame on you.

That is why I wrote this story. Now I know, and if I didn't tell you, shame on me.

ABOUT SCHOOL buses. By golly, I'm ready to name names!

Parents, it is not just the teen-agers breaking the laws. I have been passed up by nmore adults, and I use the term loosely, than I care to count. I have had calls from parents on all sides of town with the same complaint. It's not bad enough to sit in front of an elementary school waiting for your child and have car after car zip through the stop signs like they weren't even there. Or, they give it the old tap-the-brake-and-run trick.

Canton chatter

You can stop behind or in front of a big yellow bus, WITH FLASHING RED LIGHTS, and actually have people drive around you to get past it.

What is wrong with these people? Do they actually value their next appointment more than a child's life? Do they realize that they are one of the idiots you train your child to watch out for?

You want locations? I'll give you locations. I'll name subdivisions. How about Olde Plymouth, Carriage Hills, Windsor Park, Trailwood, Sunflower, Windemere? Do I need to go on?

If you have had someone drive by you, stand up and be counted. Give me a call. I don't know what we can do or what we will do but let's do it now. Let's try doing it BEFORE we lose a child. Wouldn't that be unusual? I'm up for suggestions.

I guess I'll stop before they rename the column "Sound off with Sandy."

NOW ON THE lighter side.

This is the big weekend, the time for fun and frolic. How about the Canton Historical Society's big barn sale?

If you saw an item at the neighborhood garage sale last weekend at Franklin Palmer Sub, but didn't get back to purchase it, there is always hope in Canton.

I couldn't tell you last week, for obvious reasons, but the good people at Franklin Palmer Sub called and offered to donate their leftovers to the Historical Society sale, a message I was happy to relay.

So here it is — the annual Historical Society sale 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 5 and 6. They have everything. Ice skates, roller skates, furniture, small appliances are all there waiting for you.

In case you are a newcomer, the barn sale will be in the barn at the Schultz Farm on Lilley Road between Joy and Warren roads.

There will be a big pile of pumpkins for sale outside the barn. Take your pick. All the proceeds will go to the Historical Society.

MANY GROUPS ask for your time to complete a project, your talent to create a project, or your treasure to finance a project.

Well, the Lions are about to go one better. They are asking for you to show your true colors, and they are hoping you have the courage to show the color red. That's right, they want your blood.

The blood drive is set for 1-7 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 6 at the Canton Recreation Hall. They will be accepting walk-ins, so let your mood be your guide. If you would prefer to have a specific time call Art Winkel, 981-1113, to make an appointment.

In the past this community has made a very poor showing in the blood donation area. I hope we all know by now that AIDS cannot be transmitted during a blood donation, only when received. Please, if you can donate, donate. This is everyone's responsibility and everyone's need.

When you or a loved one needs the blood, suddenly you'll understand. I only hope that someone understood before you so the blood will be there for you.

FINALLY, happy birthday to Li Chun Huo, a real sweet gal and a great friend and neighbor. Li Chun always brings the greatest dishes to our Halloween party. Naturally, her mother Phoenix, cooks it, but Li Chun brings it. Li Chun is only allowed to stay overnight on holidays. You wouldn't believe the holidays my girls have made up to try and coax her parents into letting her spend the night.

I ask you, would you believe a holiday commemorating the "one millionth hot dog eaten within a one-mile radius?"

Happy Birthday, Li Chun!

A sense of drama is very apparent

Dear Ms. Green:

I have for a long time been interested in what my handwriting means. I have noticed a difference in it, according to my moods. Just lately, the last 6-8 months, I have been wondering why I have suddenly been making my capital "M's" like this. I feel a strong urge to do so.

I retired from a very successful career in real estate in 1982. My hubby and I spend 5-6 months of the year in Florida and the rest of the time in Michigan.

Thank you for helping me to better understand what is happening inside of me.

C.U.
Royal Oak

Dear C.U.:

A woman who desires to experience all you can of what life has to offer is revealed by the many long, full lower loops in your handwriting.

You enjoy people of all persuasions. When relating to others you are friendly and a sense of drama is very apparent. Life with you would not be dull.

Some cultural awareness is part of you. Good conversation comes easily. Still you need to be aware of how you can get carried away when telling what you have seen or heard.

A wide left margin confirms the fact you have moved away from a former life style. When this is combined with your long lower loops and wavy baseline, I realize you are probably feeling restless and searching for something new and rewarding.

Retirement may not as yet be furnishing the recognition and positive feedback you previously enjoyed. And you really need this to feel fulfilled.

You also appear to be experiencing mood fluctuations. Often these happen without too much provocation. And you do not understand how they can shift from high to low gear so easily.

Seemingly someone is trying to tell you something, but you do not wish to hear it and are turning a deaf ear.

Ever present is your need for the things that represent love and security to you. Strong determination and vitality are valuable for the realization of your goals. And that capital M you mentioned suggests ambition. Any capital letter that grows larger on the right side can translate to ambition when the other factors in the writing confirm it.

You have been hurt in the past and it is not easy for you to forgive and forget. So you tend to have your guard up with some people.

Lorene Green

Early conditioning may not have helped you feel you were first in your parents' eyes. And you continue to see them as divided in the formative years of your life.

You are an independent woman and often tell yourself you don't really care what others think. Your actions suggest the confident person. Yet underneath you may be experiencing some self-doubt that puzzles you.

If you would like to have your handwriting analyzed through this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist. Please use a full sheet of white, unlined paper writing in the first person singular. Age, signature and handedness are all helpful. Feedback is always welcome.

You Know Our Doctors, Now Get To Know Us

For years the people of this area have known and trusted the more than 300 participating physicians of McAuley Health Plan. They have turned to them for both primary and specialty medical care with confidence. Now, through membership in McAuley Health Plan, you can receive your care in the private offices of these community physicians...close to your home or work.

McAuley Health Plan provides comprehensive coverage without costly deductibles or bothersome claim forms. Our benefits cover preventive as well as medically necessary hospital and outpatient care and can add up to substantial cost savings for you and your family.

Many employers already offer McAuley Health Plan for their employees. In fact, with over 10,000 members, McAuley Health Plan is the largest HMO in Washtenaw County. For more information on how you can enroll, contact your personnel office or call us at 572-4200.

McAuley Health Plan is a non-profit Health Maintenance Organization affiliated with Catherine McAuley Health Center.

CROP hunger walk nets $5,000

ATTEMPTS TO ease the problems of world hunger will benefit to the tune of over $5,000, thanks to the efforts of over 200 persons who took part in the CROP walk in Livonia last weekend.

All the pledges aren't in yet, according to coordinator Carol O'Connor, but early indications are that in excess of $5,000 will be raised as the result of the 9 1/4-mile walk that began and ended at St. Matthew United Church, Livonia.

Twenty-five percent of the funds collected at the Livonia walk will go to support local relief efforts, O'Connor said. As an option, however, contributors can designate their gifts to other agencies.

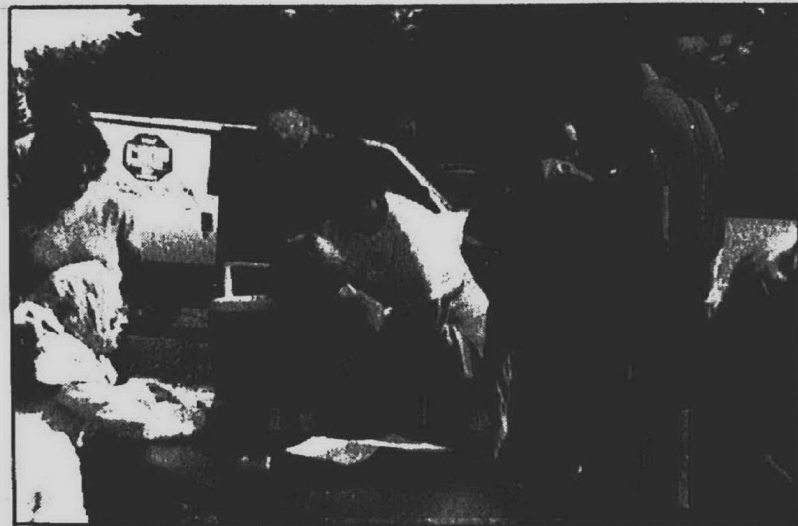

CROP is the name given to local community hunger education and fund-raising events sponsored by the Church World Services, an international relief, development and refugee resettlement agency of more than 30 Protestant and Orthodox church in the United States.

'New beginning'

Characterized as a "new beginning," members of the Church of the Savior, Reformed Church in America, 38100 Five Mile, Livonia, broke ground recently for an expansion of the church building. More than a dozen members of the congregation participated by turning the first shovel of soil. General chairman Charles McCartney (left) called the project "a new beginning" of service and ministry to the community. Pastor Gerald Dykstra (right) noted that the building was a tool to be used in proclaiming the Gospel of Jesus Christ. The expansion program includes an enlarged sanctuary and fellowship hall. New church offices will be constructed, and the restrooms remodeled to make room for use by the handicapped. Also participating in the service was John Mulder (second from left), chairman of the building committee. In the background is Mayor Edward McNamara who brought greetings on behalf of the City of Livonia.

Alicia Holbrook of Livonia, Miss Metropolitan Detroit Pre-Teen, joined the march against hunger and walked the entire distance of the CROP Walk.

Check points along the nine-mile route walkers a chance to take a refreshment break and catch their breath, so to speak.

Rev. Ron Carey (left) and Rob Moore were two participants. Carey was chairperson of the CROP walk.

Hunger an unpalatable political issue moral perspectives

Rev. Robert Schaden

were apparently unable to understand that hunger is a very political issue in more ways than one.

OBVIOUSLY many places in this world are agriculturally undeveloped. They do not have the means to feed even their own. There are also more people than most of us would want to put a number on who simply cannot afford food when it is available.

We may wish to attribute these unfortunate circumstances to chance or to laziness but when one looks more closely it becomes evident that there is more than chance or laziness at work. In one instance it is economically expedient to leave things as they are. In other instances it may not be instantly planned but it is the direct result of other endeavors getting dollar priority. In either instance we are talking politics.

On the bottom line, politics is the process that determines when and where and how this world's resources are going to be used. It is just such a process that determines whether the north winds is given to blowing and the south winds to rest and give a person recreation or to eat and give a person food. It is such a process that determines whether money goes for education or for highways — and the list goes on. It is also the process that determines whether priority, and therefore money, goes to develop food potential or to test weapons. It is politics that determines thinking in South Africa.

One wonders what would happen if this world's hungry people if the efforts and the resources of the entire humanity were matched in endeavors to redistribute food and food technology. Granted we furnished some of the world's food to Ethiopia when the call went out. It is also true that much of it never reached the people in need. That is politics.

The real food question is not how well we respond to crisis but how willing we are to change priorities and thereby eliminate many crises before they happen.

The bottom-line issue is not even food will. We have a lot of that as evidenced by hunger walks and the other efforts people put forth for the welfare of others.

No, the bottom line is becoming aware of the connections between issues such as hunger and arms. It is recognizing in local and world terms why we do not want to see why hunger exists.

It is recognizing that we are all connected and that we are all responsible.

I just want to see Dorn play

DAVID SKLAR SAT at TGIF restaurant in Southfield Saturday afternoon, trying to convince a work colleague, who planned to go grocery shopping, to join him for an afternoon football game.

"C'mon," he said. "The stores are open until 9. Torin Dorn only works from 2 to 4."

Dorn, the standout Southfield High School running back, actually works beyond those hours, he was just on display between 2 and 4 p.m. Saturday when he ran for three touchdowns and led the undefeated Blue Jays past Ferndale, 20-14.

Dorn is more than a football player. He's a drawing card. People come from all areas to watch him play. He was featured in the Detroit News — dressed in a choir boy outfit — and was named Channel 7's Athlete of the Week a while back. Since then, Southfield athletic director Fred Goldberg has been busy answering phones from inquisitive football fans.

"After that interview (on Channel 7), I probably got half a dozen phone calls from people asking about Torin Dorn," Goldberg said. "I had a guy call from Madison Heights wanting to know if he was for real and where the rest of the games were."

"I GET CALLS from people asking if we can send them a copy of our schedule. At our game Saturday, I saw coaches there who weren't scouting because they already played us and Ferndale; they just want to see a good football player," Goldberg explained, then added, "and a good football team."

True, Southfield is a good football team, but Dorn is who they pay to see. You think people dished out $17.50 for the Bruce Springsteen concert just to see Clarence Clemons? Me neither.

For real, you ask? You betcha. He's one of the best I've ever seen at that level. Dorn has piled up 693 yards on 76 carries for a 9.1 rushing average. He's scored 11 rushing touchdowns and returned a punt 82 yards for another score.

"He's the only one we let score," Southfield coach Cal Fletcher quipped.

Actually, Fletcher doesn't prevent other players from scoring. Dorn just doesn't give anyone else much of a chance.

"He can pop 'em from anywhere," Fletcher said. Dorn's touchdown runs total 216 yards. He averages 19.6 per rushing TD, and 24.8 counting the punt return.

Goldberg, who estimated 2,100 fans were in attendance Saturday, added, "I know about 99 percent of the people at Southfield, and I'd say a large percentage of the people at our game Saturday were just interested football people. He's definitely created an interest, and our crowds have been better. I think it's because of him."

AFTER WATCHING Dorn Saturday, and looking around at the crowd, I thought of a Phil Collins song, "The Man With The Horn." It's an import on the flip side of the "One More Night" single.

I hope Phil doesn't mind, but I took the liberty of arranging my own musical parody, and it's entitled, "The Man They Call Dorn." Hit it.

They come from miles around just to see him play he's on the same street corner almost every day

And there's always a crowd wherever he goes and when he runs the ball well everybody knows

I only want to see him play all the girls and boys they want to see him play and he brings a tear to the eye he'll make you laugh or make you cry and nobody asks him why cuz they just want to see him play

They come from everywhere every night he's got the stands so packed there it's out of sight

And the boys in the grandstands rockin' in the aisle the girls up front they want to see him smile

Yeah he's the man they call Dorn I only want to see him play yeah he's the man they call Dorn I only want to see him play

Station to station coast to coast well you can see all his records on Cal's video

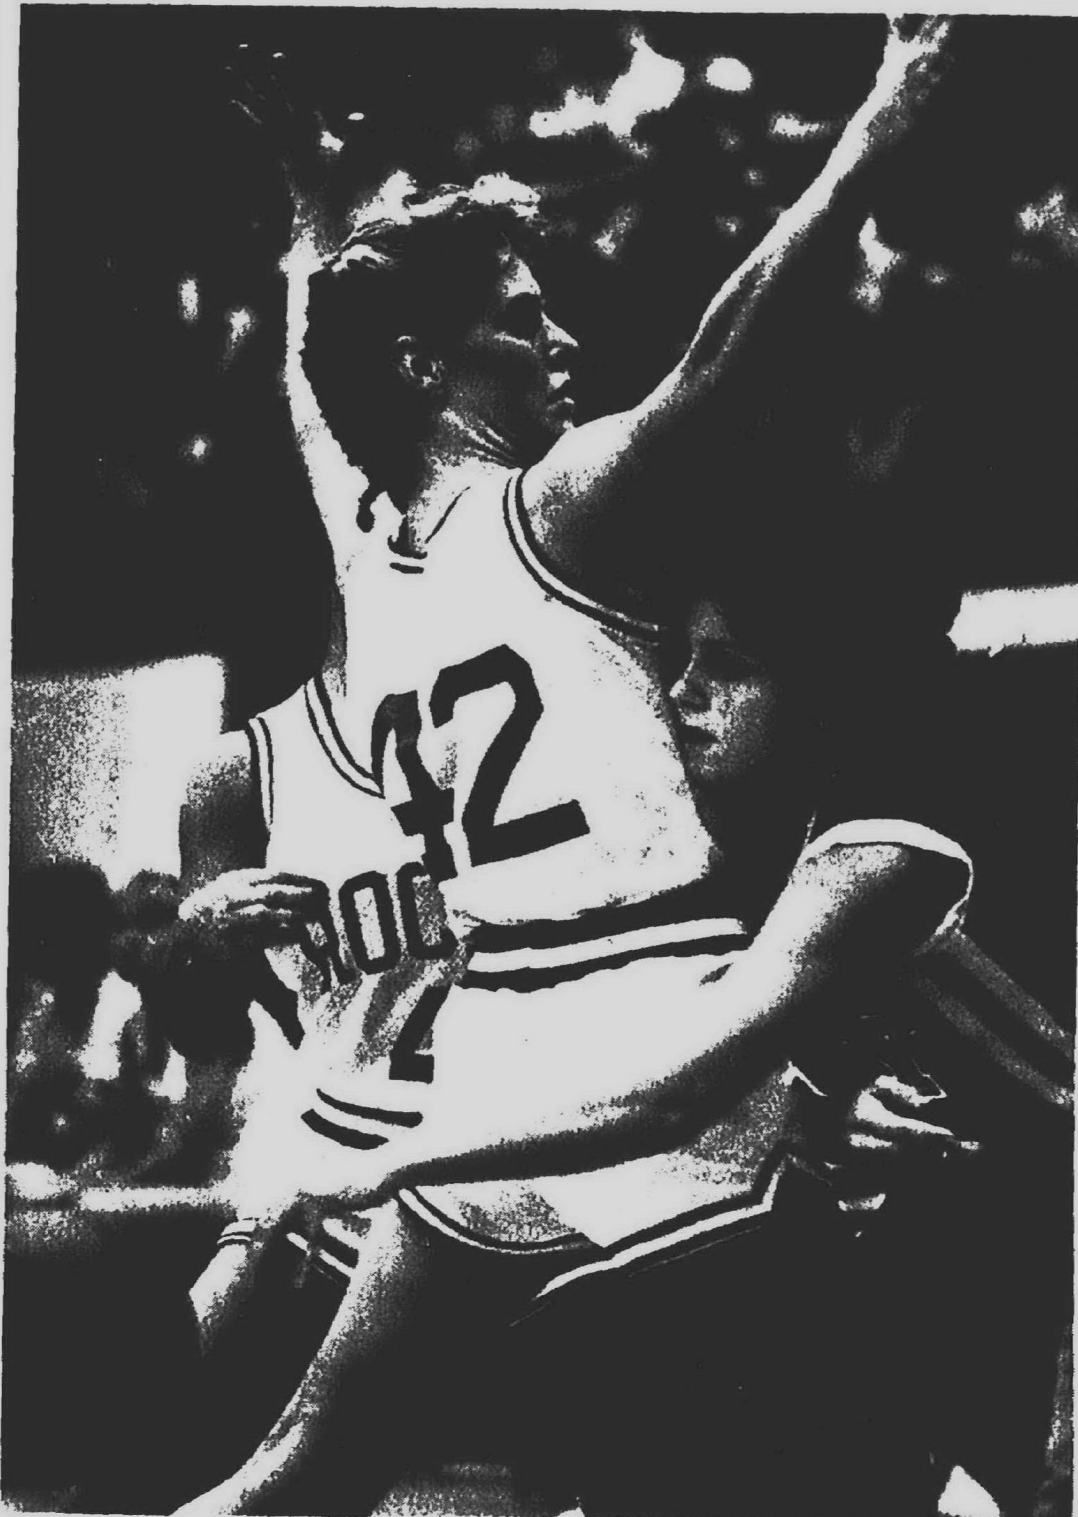

He makes every evening feel like Saturday night and if you're happy or sad he'll make the feeling right

I only want to see him to play.

I think it's going to be a big hit. Well, Dorn will be anyway. I'm not sure Phil's going to give me the release.

In closing, I think I can save you the trouble of calling Goldberg this week. Dorn — I mean Southfield — plays at home 3 p.m. Saturday. I think they're playing Berkley.

Not that it matters.

Mercy got a crash course in dealing with the non-stop Salem defensive pressure Tuesday. Kristen Hostynski (No. 42) closes the gate on Mercy's Michelle Fryatt.

Salem stops Mercy cold

By Chris McCoosky staff writer

Farmington Hills Mercy has ended Plymouth Salem's basketball season the past two years. Both years Salem's season-ending loss came in the regional finals of the state Class A tournament. Both years, Mercy went to Kalamazoo and Salem went home.

"Imagine, then, the unmitigated, unrestrained joy the Rock players must have felt Tuesday night after convincingly defeating Mercy in front of an excited home crowd, 43-38."

"It's not so much because we beat a Catholic League team, that's not what's important," said Salem coach Fred Thomann. "It's that we beat a team that has earned state recognition the past six, seven, eight years, and they are still recognized as one of the top basketball programs in the state."

"This win lends credence to the fact we are a good basketball program, too, and have been for some time. But we haven't always gotten the recognition as such because people say, 'Well, they play in the suburbs' and all that. Well, our kids play hard and they play smart."

AND IF YOU haven't heard by now, Salem plays defense, oppressive man-to-man defense. For four quarters the Rocks hounded and badgered Mercy.

The early sign of Salem's defensive effectiveness was several missed layups by the Marlins. Later it became obvious that Mercy was never really able to get into its offensive flow.

"Plymouth Salem played very intelligent, yet aggressive man-to-man defense and successfully jammed up our offense. I think you saw some tentativeness from us in our half-court offense," said Mercy coach Larry Baker.

Mercy (5-2) made just 14 of 40 shots and turned the ball over 21 times, seven times in the fourth quarter.

The Marlins had only one scorer reach double figures — Terri Ford who scored 12 hard-earned points. She also girls basketball grabbed eight rebounds and virtually kept Mercy in the game single-handedly in the third quarter.

SALEM HELD Mercy scoreless for the first three minutes of the second half and seven-straight points from senior center Laura Clifford put Salem ahead 30-18.

Ford countered that spree with seven points and two steals to pull Mercy within four, 32-28, after three quarters.

Mercy crumbled at the beginning of the fourth quarter. Consecutive steals by Dena Head, Kristen Hostynski and Head again and three long-range jump shots by Jessica Handley and Salem was up 40-30.

Just about time for the celebration to begin.

For the Rocks (6-2), Handley scored 12, Clifford 11 and Head 10. Head also pulled down 12 rebounds and did a solid job defending Ford.

"THERE'S THREE things that you have to do to beat this Mercy team," Thomann said. "You have to stop their transition game. Our kids took away their fast breaks off the defensive rebound. No. 2, Mercy likes to score at the basket inside. So you have to be in a position to take that away and our inside 'D' was good tonight."

Clifford, Keri McBride and Stacy Sovine effectively took Mercy's twin towers Missy Duczynski and Terri Nalodka virtually out of the game. McBride and Sovine are both sophomores.

"No. 3," Thomann continued, "you have to take away their offensive patterns. They run real good offensive sets, and they put you in a situation

Tie games aside, Ocelots improve

By C.J. Risak staff writer

What every coach wants in his program, first of all, is success. His next goal is continued success.

Ed Dudek achieved the first objective in Schoolcraft College's first varsity women's soccer season a year ago. He guided the Ocelots to a 16-4-2 record and into the NJCAA finals.

That's a pretty tough act to follow, but this year's edition, Dudek felt, could be better. Sure, super scorer Sue Ferguson was gone (she scored 39 goals and assisted on 11 others), but Dudek figured the 1985 team to possess better depth and balance.

He also knew that, even though improved, the record probably wouldn't reflect it.

That's because the schedule has been far more difficult. After tying Michigan State and Nassau (N.Y.) Community College over the weekend, the Ocelots are 2-2-3.

THEIR LOSSES have come against NCAA-ranked University of Cincinnati and University of Michigan. Their other tie was to Xavier, another NCAA Division I team.

"It's not what you'd call a really impressive record," admitted Dudek. "But we have played some very tough teams. We're just starting to jell. Both games that we lost came on artificial turf, too, and that's a completely different type of game that we're not used to."

Last weekend was the first of two major confrontations for Schoolcraft, and Dudek couldn't have been much happier with the results. The Ocelots battled back from a 2-0 second-half deficit to tie the MSU 2-2 Saturday on goals by Denise Pivko (her seventh) and Troy Athens' graduate Lori Nicley (her fourth).

On Sunday, Schoolcraft faced the team it lost to in last year's NJCAA finals — Nassau. The two teams fought through two overtimes without either side getting a goal, the contest ending in a scoreless tie.

"Our defense is really starting to play the good, solid defense I expected of them early in the season," said Dudek. "They're communicating much better."

"Now that the defense is solid, the offense will have to start generating more of an attack."

MSU BOASTED a perfect 9-0 record going into Saturday's game. The Spartans whipped Nassau 3-2 Friday with Caroline Trout, from Bloomfield Hills Lahser, whistling in a direct kick from 35 yards out for the game-winner.

Trout repeated that shot against Schoolcraft 11 minutes into the second half, putting MSU up 2-0. The first Spartan goal was notched by Michelle Wise, from Farmington Harrison, with Livonia Stevenson grad Tina Galindo assisting.

But Schoolcraft mounted its comeback, with Pivko scoring 16 minutes into the second half and Nicley tying it three minutes later on an assist from Livonia Bentley grad Sheri Wolfe.

"That could have been a turning point for us, against Michigan State," said Dudek. "We built up a lot of confidence this weekend."

"I've got to give Sheri Wolfe a lot of credit. She had to mark Michigan State's Julie Gnau (from Lahser) and held her scoreless. Then she had to mark Nassau's top scorer, and she held her scoreless."

THE ENTIRE Schoolcraft defense sparkled against Nassau, but goalkeeper Doreen Beagle, from Stevenson, made the play of the game when she stopped a Nassau breakaway with three minutes left in regulation. Wendy Propp was also superb at sweeperback.

Nassau played four games in three days at Schoolcraft, beating U-M 3-0 and pouncing Oakland University 7-0. The defending NJCAA champs are 8-3-1 for the season.

The Ocelots now face another difficult weekend of competition. "There's no break in the schedule," said Dudek, pointing to games against Monroe Community College, another NJCAA tournament qualifier, at 3 p.m. Saturday, followed by Miami (of Ohio) University at 1 p.m. Sunday.

Area influence bolsters Redford icers

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Junior A hockey will return to the Redford Ice Arena after a year's absence.

The Redford Engineers will join Oak Park Compuware, the St. Clair Shores Falcons and the Buffalo (N.Y.) Junior Sabres in the newly formed North American Junior Hockey League (NAHL).

"This has really taken the place of the Great Lakes Junior A League," said Redford assistant coach A.J. Baker. "I really don't know why the league folded in the first place."

In July, the four NAHL teams conducted an entry draft, selecting players primarily from the midget ranks (15-16-year-olds).

Baker believes the Engineers got their fair share of talent.

"I think we'll be very competitive thanks to a successful draft," he said. "What we're lacking is junior hockey experience, but they seem to be confident in themselves."

MANY OF THE PLAYERS have an eye on playing collegiately, but some could be eligible for any of the three Major Junior A leagues in Canada.

According to Baker, defenseman Curtis White of Canton, forward Colin Lancaster and forward James Ballantie were all drafted by the Ontario Hockey League (OHL), but opted to play at home.

"I think our league is a step above the Junior B level in Canada," said the Redford assistant coach. "I think you'll see a good brand of hockey."

Players range anywhere in the NAHL from 16 to 20 years old. John MacDougall of Taylor is the oldest Engineer at 19. He played briefly for the Windsor Spitfires of the OHL.

Windsor (7-4).

"SOME OF THE other teams in our league haven't done as well against the same teams," Baker said. "But our coaching staff is a little perplexed. They're really not sure about the other teams."

One line has been particularly impressive so far.

Ed Shepler, who played high school hockey last year at Livonia Churchill, has helped form a potent forward line along with Kevin Alexander and Lancaster.

Baker is optimistic about the Engineers' chances, especially after exhibition wins over Junior B teams from Chatham (8-5), Windsor (11-2) and Redford's head coach is Bob Daniels of Plymouth. He coached last year with the Irish Raiders, a Junior B team from Lincoln Park. His assistants are Baker and Tony Dobrowski. The team manager is Hugh Melvin.

OTHER AREA PLAYERS expected to contribute are captain Pete Podrasky of Canton, currently out for 10 days with a pulled stomach muscle, and Bill Murner, a defenseman from Southfield. Ticket prices for Redford home games are $2.50 for adults and $1 for students wearing a hockey jacket.

The NAHL rules are similar to college rules. Fighting carries an automatic game misconduct.

Engineers open with 6-6 draw

The Redford Engineers had more leads vanish Sunday than a magician has rabbit.

A two-goal lead Redford enjoyed going into the third period slipped away as the St. Clair Shores Falcons tied the Engineers, 6-6, in the North American Junior Hockey League opener at St. Clair Shores' Wells Arena.

Colin Lancaster scored two goals and Larry Pilut added another in the first period to put Redford up 3-0. The Falcons, aided by Livonian Chris Tancill's two goals, regained their composure and scored three times in the second period and added three goals in the final 20 minutes to earn the tie.

Mike McCracken, Paul Mitter and Pete Podrasky from Canton also scored for the Engineers. John McDougall and Tom Madden each contributed two assists.

The Engineers' netminder, Mike Williams, was peppered with 37 shots.

The Engineers meet the Falcons again at 7:30 Thursday at the Redford Arena.

Canton tankers blast Trenton

Plymouth Canton evened its dual swim meet record to 1-1 Tuesday with an impressive 108-64 victory against Trenton.

Alabama transfer Juli Cox had a big night. She won both the 100-yard butterfly (1:03.91) and the 100 breaststroke (1:05.87). Her breaststroke time established a Canton record, eclipsing Margaret Gilligan's 1984 mark.

Lynn Massey also won two events for the Chiefs, taking the 200 freestyle (2:10.64) and the 100 free (59.58).

Other Canton winners were diver Kellie Daily (194.54), Jean McLenaghan in the 500 free (6:00.18) and Sue Schendel in the 100 backstroke (1:22.23).

Canton won both relays. Kelly Kirk, Schendel, Amy Schmitz and Julie Fisher won the 200 medley (2:10.95) and McLenaghan, Cox, Michelle Stackpole and Massey took the 400 freestyle (4:05.07).

PLYMOUTH SALEM lost at Dearborn's four-lane pool, 51-32.

Kristal Taylor won both the 50 free (26.4) and the 100 free (26.4).

Laura Shaffer won the 100 butterfly (1:05.5), placed second in the 200 individual medley (2:25.0) and swam a leg of Salem's winning 400 free relay. She teamed with Taylor, Shannon Murphy and Tracy Meszaros on a 4:02.0.

Salem is also 1-1 on the season.

Canton golfers on win streak

The Plymouth Canton golf team, runners-up in the Western Lakes Western Division, has won three straight matches including a 222-224 victory against division champ Livonia Franklin Monday.

Last Wednesday, the Chiefs beat Livonia Churchill 206-219 and on Tuesday, they knocked off Tri-River League leader Redford Thurston, 187-168.

Against Franklin, Jeff Gonyea shared medalist honors with the Pats' Ken Kobas. Both fired rounds of 43 at Idyl Wyld.

Jeff Lyle (44), Larry Barkoff (45), Ralph Reeves (45) and Matt Rivard (45) scored for Canton.

Against Tuesday, Barkoff and Reeves fired 41s at Warren Valley. Lyle shot 42 and Gonyea 43.

Gonyea was the medalist against Churchill with a 40 at Brae Burn.

Canton is 7-2 on the season.

Ocelot men get national ranking

Schoolcraft College's men's soccer team has a history of problems playing at Cuyahoga Metro Community College. And for half of Saturday's game anyway, it appeared the Ocelots troubles would continue.

After a terrible start, Schoolcraft got its game together to break a scoreless deadlock at halftime, collecting four second-half goals en route to a 4-0 victory. The win boosted the Ocelots to 5-1-1 for the season and kept them undefeated in Region XII play after three games.

The Ocelots' games are also being recognized nationwide — they are currently ranked 11th in the NJCAA.

Schoolcraft lost 2-1 last year at Cuyahoga before rebounding to win the Region XII bid to the NJCAA regional playoffs. Saturday the Ocelots struggled offensively in the first half, but the defense was superb in keeping Cuyahoga off the board.

"OUR DEFENSE was great," said Schoolcraft coach Van Dimitriou. "We're having a little problem with our offense. I think the problem Saturday was over-anxiety. Our shots were a little wide, our passes were a little long."

John Galmiel, from Livonia Stevenson, ignited Schoolcraft's second-half surge, assisting on the first goal and scoring the second. Dan Ortis collected the first goal. Galmiel turned a Matthew Pace pass into the Ocelots' second score.

"I'm the kind of player who always digs for the ball," said Dimitriou. "He's been bothered by the low defense and he's been starting to dig for the ball. I think you'll see a lot more of that in our scoring."

hockey

The Engineers' regular season opened Sunday against the Falcons, a team that features such area players as Steve Dawson, at Wells Arena in St. Clair Shores. (See related story.) Redford's home opener is Thursday against the Falcons.

Baker is optimistic about the Engineers' chances, especially after exhibition wins over Junior B teams from Chatham (8-5), Windsor (11-2) and

Must-win game set for Harrison

By Chris McCosky
staff writer

Livonia Churchill football coach Herb Osterland made an interesting observation Monday.

"You know, the Western Lakes seems to be a defensive conference," he said. "Every team has a pretty good defense. Nobody has an offense that has just gone crazy and scored a lot of points."

One has only to look at some recent scores to find proof of his assertion: John Glenn 7, North Farmington 0, in overtime; Livonia Franklin 9, Farmington Harrison 7; Churchill 9, Plymouth Canton 6; North 7, Livonia Stevenson 6; Walled Lake Western 6, Canton 0, etc.

The Western Lakes is more or less the black and blue conference of Michigan high school football.

In that vein, we bring you the black and blue Game of the Week — Churchill at Harrison on Saturday afternoon.

THIS GAME has serious ramifications in the Western Lakes Western Division. Churchill, 2-0, is tied for the division lead with Western. Harrison is 1-1 within the division.

"We kind of feel like we're back in it," said Harrison coach John Herrington. "We have a chance to win it or lose it ourselves. We didn't know if that would be the case after losing to Franklin."

Harrison plays Western on Oct. 18. But a close division race isn't necessary to fire up this rivalry. Since 1970, the two teams have battled 14 times, and Harrison has won eight. Most of the games were decided by seven or fewer points.

"It's always a great game when we play Churchill," Herrington said.

What type of game will it be? Both teams have been solid defensively and inconsistent offensively.

HARRISON'S DEFENSE has only given up one TD this season. Only Plymouth Salem has scored more than one TD against Churchill in one game.

Conversely, both teams have struggled offensively. Mistakes, turnovers and penalties have been the major nemesis for both teams.

Seventy points were scored in last year's Harrison-Churchill battle. The defense took the night off. This year, the defense will rule.

"The whole thing scares me," Osterland said. "What's scary is the unpredictability of the teams, including ourselves. You can't be too sure what's going to happen. I guess it's going to come down to who gets things together at the right time."

It may also come down to who on Churchill can stay with Harrison receiver Brian Smolinski.

PICKS — Churchill doesn't score, Hawks soar, says Chris McCosky and Brad Emons.

FRIDAY GAMES

LIVONIA FRANKLIN AT PLYMOUTH CANTON (7:30 p.m.) — Which Franklin team will show up Friday, the Patriots or the Patsies? It was the Patriots who ripped apart Harrison two weeks ago. The Patsies showed up last week and lost to Western. Canton's defense has been coming on with every game, but the Chiefs still haven't discovered how to score points.

PICKS — Franklin is now in a must-win situation, while the Chiefs are playing out the string. Take the Patriots.

JOHN GLENN AT LIVONIA STEVENSON (7:30 p.m.) — Glenn, coming off a stirring win against North Farmington last week, would be well-advised not to take Stevenson lightly. Stevenson, though 1-3 and minus the services of back Don Rososcheck, will give Glenn's one-dimensional attack a stiff test.

PICKS — But a stiff test does not translate into victory. Glenn stays unbeaten.

grid predictions

REDFORD UNION AT GARDEN CITY (7:30 p.m.) — RU coach Jim Gibbons jokingly referred to this game as being for the league title. Truth is, RU and Garden City are independent of a league structure this season and will join a new Northwest Suburban League next. Nevertheless, the game won't lack for intensity. It's Garden City's homecoming.

PICKS — Redford Union stays on its roll.

BELLEVILLE AT WAYNE MEMORIAL (7:30 p.m.) — These two teams are struggling badly. Wayne, clobbered last week by Fordson, 37-7, isn't that bad a team. Belleville may be just the tonic the Zbras need to regain their confidence.

PICKS — Unanimous assessment, Wayne wins.

LUTHERAN NORTH AT CLARENCEVILLE (7:30 p.m.) — Try to figure Clarenceville. The Trojans beat a Hamtramck team one week, then lost to winless Lutheran West the next. The Trojans are making turnovers with a frequency that would make Betty Crocker jealous.

PICKS — Figures, North wins.

CATHOLIC CENTRAL VS. GALLAGHER (7:30 p.m. at St. Clair Shores South Lake) — Huge Catholic League test for unbeaten CC. Bishop Gallagher came within a muffed punt of beating highly touted DeLaSalle last week. CC sophomore Perry Chaney has come out of the woodwork to lend a dimension of speed and power to the Shamrock attack.

PICKS — CC stays in the title chase.

SATURDAY GAMES

PLYMOUTH SALEM AT FARMINGTON (1 p.m.) — Both teams notched victory No. 1 of the season last week and both did so impressively. Key factor: Farmington has the size and the depth, but can it cope with Salem's speed? Farmington quarterback Cecil Bob Wenson had a big day against Central last week. He'll need another. Similarly, the Rocks will need repeat performances from Paul Makara and Brian Tiller, as well as some improved line play. Both teams rely heavily on the big play. Good match-up.

PICKS — Finally, a disagreement. Emons picks Salem. McCosky tosses a coin and it lands Farmington side up.

W.L. CENTRAL AT NORTH FARMINGTON (1 p.m.) — Two bruised and battered teams with somewhat deflated egos. Central lost its first of the season to previously winless Farmington. North played its heart out against Glenn only to fall in OT. North lost more than the game; it lost standing back Marc Brown with a wrist injury. Still, neither team is out of contention for the Lakes Division crown.

PICKS — North wins.

REDFORD THURSTON AT CHERRY HILL (1:30 p.m.) — The battle for the Tri-River League basement. Thurston seems to play well one week and poorly the next. The good news is, they played poorly last week.

PICKS — Go with the Observersland team. Thurston wins.

BORGESS VS. NOTRE DAME (2 p.m. at Garden City Junior High) — Both teams were clubbed by perennial Catholic League powers last week. Bishop Borgess by CC and Notre Dame by Brother Rice. Borgess has been lacking offensively, both in imagination and execution. Opponents haven't had to work too hard to stop them.

PICKS — Emons and McCosky take Notre Dame.

ST. AGATHA VS. MT. CARMEL (7:30 p.m. at RU's Kraft Field) — The Aggies set the Catholic League C-F Division on its ear Sunday with a 10-0 victory against previously unbeaten Ann Arbor Gabriel Richard. Wyandotte Mount Carmel took a beating from Pontiac Catholic. Are the Aggies for real? Stay tuned.

PICKS — Go St. Agatha.

McCosky and Emons were both 9-4 last week. McCosky is 40-14 on the season. Emons is 35-19.

Never throw away old notes

NOW AND THEN I like to go back through my old notebooks. You never know what you might find.

For example: During a closely contested Plymouth Canton-Livonia Churchill girls junior varsity basketball game, Canton coach Bob Blohm got a little excited.

(Blohm had coached in the Plymouth Salem program for 10 years prior to this season, including a five-year stint as the Rocks' head girls coach.)

Blohm, as his young team desperately clung to a two-point lead, raced over to the scorer's table.

"How many timeouts does Salem have?" he asked.

When he realized what he'd said, his face turned Canton-red.

Quipped Canton head coach Rob Neu, a former pupil of Blohm's and coaching his first varsity team: "Bob's coming along real good. He's learning the game. I think he's going to be OK."

Uh huh. Blohm's JV team has yet to lose a game this season.

Chris McCosky

Salem senior has lost but five games. If you total her games, her record is 120-5.

Things will get tougher for Gilles in a couple weeks when the prep teams begin state tournament play.

Speaking of that, keep an eye on both Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton during the state tourney. Salem is currently undefeated, and Canton's lone loss was at the hands of the Rocks.

One more tennis note found among the sheaves: Kelly Davidson, who enjoyed great success while playing No. 1 singles at Farmington Harrison, is the No. 6 singles player at the University of Alabama.

What's this? "I'm glad more public teams are challenging the non-public teams."

THIS YEAR, Salem has challenged Mercy, Ladywood and DePorges in girls basketball. The Canton soccer team has challenged Catholic Central. The Farmington boys cross country team made no secret that their No. 1 target at the Haslett Invitational was CC.

This is tremendous. The only way to stop all the bickering and feuding between the two entities is to put on the gloves and battle — on the playing field.

Maybe (but I doubt it) the swim teams will take heed. Wouldn't it be great to see North Farmington swim Mercy so we can tell who is truly No. 1 in the city? Or, what about Livonia Stevenson vs. Mercy? Well, maybe not this year.

Geez, don't I have any football notes around here? Oh, here's a whole bunch on Bob Wasczenski. Well, I'd better not print these. My mother once said if you can't say something nice about someone, shut your mouth.

Let me just make a comment on Waz: When your athlete days are over and you get a job, you aren't going to be able to just up and transfer to another job if something goes bad one day.

HERE'S A happy note. Mark Mecklenborg, the injured Harrison senior, may return before the end of the season. He won't be able to play half-Wendy Gilles is having an easy time with her high school opponents. In 10 matches, 20 sets, the Salem senior has lost only five games.

back, but he could kick. What's all this? From the Salem-Stevenson football game: "Nice block, No. 24;" "Nice block, No. 24;" "Great hit, No. 24."

No. 24 on your Plymouth Salem program and No. 1 on your defense demolition team, Joe Jouppi. The young man turned Salem's wishbone offense into high gear against Stevenson.

Here's a note regarding the Plymouth Canton football team: "Wonder what the record is for most off-tackle plays attempted in one four-quarter football game?" Whatever it is, the Chiefs own it.

Wonder what this means? "Wish Don Kulick (Farmington head coach) and Forrest Geary (assistant coach) would get together and decide who's running the team."

The Falcon players seem mighty confused.

One last note, this one jotted down by my colleague Brad Emons: "Do you know why the Observersland football teams are having trouble scoring points? Because all the halfbacks are playing soccer."

MORE GIRLS hoops notes: Terri Ford, Farmington Hills Mercy standout, has been outstanding this season in a very quiet manner. After Mercy lost to River Rouge, people were asking coach Larry Baker if he was disappointed in Ford's game.

"Terri did exactly what we asked her to do," Baker said that night. "Her role was to occupy Franthea (Price) and crash the boards. People look at her points (four) and say she played bad. I look at her boards (14) and say she played well."

If Baker needs Ford to score, Ford will do her best to score. If she is needed to play defense and rebound, she'll get that done. No complaints. Terri Ford has matured into a solid, all-around basketball player.

Canton vs. Salem, Tuesday, Oct. 15 — can't wait.

Mercy vs. Ladywood at Schoolcraft Tuesday, Oct. 15 — can't wait.

Wait! Which one do I go to? What rascal scheduled these two beauties on the same night?

I wrote something after the Mercy-Saginaw game, but I can't quite read it. Something about Mercy No. 52. Oh, it says "Man, I like the way No. 52 plays this game."

No. 52 on your program, No. 1 on the boards: Missy Duczynski.

THIS NOTEBOOK has prep tennis written all over it.

Wendy Gilles, a nationally ranked amateur tennis player, has hardly broken a sweat on the high school nets so far this fall. In 10 matches, the

Falcon runners top CC

Stock in the Farmington boys cross country team is on the rise.

The Falcons, unranked in the state despite winning the Schoolcraft Invitational last week, set out to gain some recognition Saturday at the prestigious Haslett Invitational.

Mission accomplished.

Farmington scored 64 points and beat No. 1-ranked Redford Catholic Central (81) and No. 4-ranked Swartz Creek (90) to win the 15-team meet.

"I'm sure those state rankings are going to change," Farmington coach Jerry Young said. "This was just a tremendous win for us. We ran comparable, maybe a little better, than we did at Schoolcraft. CC, and they'll be the first to admit this, aren't as good as they were last year. We felt they were beatable and we took it to them."

TO PUT the win into perspective, Catholic Central hadn't lost an invitational since it placed second at Holly early in the 1983 season.

"Falconland is still buzzing," Young said Monday. "People are coming to school and finding out about it for the first time. It's pretty exciting."

Chris Inch, who trailed by 50 yards with less than a mile to go, rallied to capture individual honors covering the Haslett course in 16:15. His Falcon running mate, Al Stebbins, placed third in 16:21.

John Regan was the first to cross for CC. He placed ninth (16:55).

Farmington's third runner, Bryan Lawton, came in ahead of the other four Shamrocks, placing 11th (16:58).

"Bryan has been outstanding for us this season,"

Young said. "Inch and Stebbins are as good as anybody in the state, and we expect them to be in front. Bryan, though, has come on real strong. He's been very consistent."

The key for Farmington, according to Young, was the efforts of his fourth and fifth runners. Tom Haupt placed 21st (17:27) and Ken Dunneback 28th (17:42).

"If we don't get that kind of effort from those two kids, we don't beat CC," Young said. "They were just super."

FOR CC, Jim Fedewa placed 12th (16:58), Tony Mizzi 15th (17:09), Greg Boller 18th (17:16) and Dominic Siwik 27th (17:42).

The Falcons will face several other state-ranked teams this weekend at the annual Oakland County meet at Marshbank Park. Should they win that meet, their stock will be at a premium.

Haslett was equally kind to the Farmington girls cross country team.

The Falcons finished third (117) behind Hillsdale (51) and East Lansing (99).

Rocks outrun Churchill

Livonia Churchill split a double-header Tuesday against Plymouth Salem in a cross country meet at Cass Benton Park.

The Salem boys won their third meet in five starts, 20-36, as Churchill's Rob Annett crossed the line first in 17:04 (5,000 meters).

But Salem garnered the next five spots: Tony Atwell (17:10), Bill Atwell (17:28), Eric Pahl (17:19), Kevin Jones (17:54) and Neil Bush (18:06).

Churchill settled for the next three spots: Ken Gendjar (18:28), Scott Howard (18:35) and Eric Gilles (18:43).

The Churchill girls took four of the first five places to beat Salem, 20-37, to remain unbeaten in dual meets.

The top Charger runners were Karen Kantor, first, 21:23; Carol Sulick, second, 21:48; Darlene Cooper, fourth, 22:38; Justine Sliwka, fifth, 22:53; Becky Kinczkowski, eighth, 23:05; and Stacey Wolf, ninth, 23:08.

Salem's top runners included Shannon Donnelly, third, 22:08; Heidi Dupret, sixth, 22:56; Denise Buda, seventh, 22:57; and Cris Trapani, 10th, 23:12.

REDFORD BISHOP BORGESS edged Farmington Hills Mercy, 28-29, in a girls dual meet at Cass Benton.

But Borgess lost to Dearborn Divine Child, 26-31, and Mercy was defeated by DC, 23-32, in the round-robin meet.

WLAA race tightens

Livonia Churchill took away the middle in a 3-0 Western Lakes boys soccer victory Tuesday over host Farmington.

The win upped Churchill's overall record 6-2-1, while Farmington slipped to 3-5-1.

Churchill scored all three of its goals in the first half — Chris Speen from Tim Jackson, 9:13; Brad Mase from Brett Murphy, 24:00; and Jim Chendes from Torin Gniewek, 31:00.

"We really controlled the midfield," said Churchill coach John Neff. "Both sets of midfielders played well."

Churchill held the edge in shots, 29-22, as goalie Ted Lukiewski posted the shutout.

"We had plenty of chances, we just couldn't put it in," said Farmington coach Ed Bartram.

STEVENSON 5, NORTHVILLE 0: Livonia Stevenson (9-0-2) continued its winning ways, posting its ninth shutout of the year Tuesday in a Western Lakes win at Northville.

Spartan goal scorers included Jim Kimble, Steve Karfis, John Mikkelsen, Kevin Kurkowski and Christian Amborg.

"They all played well, but Mikkelsen was all over the field," said Stevenson coach Pete Scerri, whose team has outscored the opposition this year 47-3.

N. FARMINGTON 4, FRANKLIN 0: Four different players scored Tuesday as host North Farmington (3-5-1) blanked visiting Livonia Franklin (2-6-1).

Karsten Fetton, Jeff Juliano, Darrel Krause and Monty Najar scored for the winners. Zac Beim added two assists.

"We played very well at midfield," said North coach Cathy Cole, whose team outshot the Patriots, 22-10.

Goalies Dennis McCarthy and Fred Menko combined for the shutout.

CANTON 4, HARRISON 2: Plymouth Canton (8-3) won a Western Lakes encounter Tuesday at Farmington Harrison behind Steve Rudelic's two goals.

The Chiefs led 2-0 at halftime on goals by Rudelic (from Pat Frederick) and Bryan Whiteley (on Steve Morell's free kick).

Harrison cut the margin to 2-1 just 17 minutes in the second half, but Rudelic struck again a minute later from Morell.

Harrison once again made a game of it, scoring at the 18-minute mark, but Canton put the game away on Frederick's goal from Whiteley.

"Harrison played five defenders to try to shut us down," said Canton coach Mike Morgan. "It messed up their continuity."

SPRINGFIELD 3, PLY. CHRISTIAN 2: Dave Presley's two goals were not enough Tuesday as Springfield Christian edged visiting Plymouth Christian, which suffered its first defeat.

Mike Boven notched the game-winner for Springfield. Jim Adams had the other two Springfield goals.

Presley now has 14 on the season.

LUTHERAN NW 1, LUTHERAN EAST 0: Matt Mat's first half goal couldn't stand up Tuesday as Farmington Lutheran Northwest tied Harper Woods Lutheran East.

The loss dropped Northwest to 2-4 overall.

where you have to play them one-on-one. But our kids were able to recognize their sets and take away their patterns."

There you have it — dissection of a victory Salem style.

As hard-fought as the game was and as significant as it was in terms of team pride and state ranking, both coaches stressed that it was only a non-league affair.

"THE GIRLS are embarrassed not to have played a better game," Baker said. "But I think they will keep this in perspective and grow from this. I have confidence in their ability to work things out. What we need is a good victory against a good team. We've played three good teams and have been shaky in pressure situations."

Said Thomann: "I told the kids, it's not all that important who wins this game. It's who wins the second one."

The second one, if it comes, will be in the state regional tournament.

Thurston golfers top Crestwood

Redford Thurston handed Dearborn Heights Crestwood its first golf loss in more than two years Monday with a 153-163 win at Warren Valley Golf Course.

The win draws Thurston into a tie with Crestwood for leadership of the Tri-River League. Both teams are 5-1 in league matches.

Leading the Eagles were Jim McEwen (37), Dan Rokas (38), Howie Schoenfeldt (38) and Dave Bulick (40).

Chiefs cream Dearborn

No contest. Plymouth Canton, winners in all eight of its basketball games this season, had no trouble fending off undermanned Dearborn Tuesday, 55-23.

"The girls really played hard for us," said Canton coach Rob Neu. "It was a good game because everybody got to play."

The Chiefs led 30-8 at the half.

Diana Knickerbocker scored 10 points and pulled in nine rebounds. Penny Piggott also scored 10.

PLYMOUTH CHRISTIAN 42, UNIVERSITY-LIGGETT 16: A 12-1 first quarter took the starch out of University-Liggett.

Becky LeBar led Plymouth (3-3) with 10 points and Kim Seiforth grabbed 14 rebounds.

Zero coupon bond: legitimate investment tool

In recent years, zero coupon bonds have become extremely popular. Today's column deals with the pros and cons in investing in zeros.

What are they?

Zero coupon bonds are a lot like U.S. Savings Bonds. You pay a fraction of the face amount. Upon maturity, you redeem the bond at full face value.

It is called "zero" because you get no current interest income. Instead, the interest (usually compounded semiannually) is paid in a lump sum at redemption.

For instance, if you put down $117 at 11 percent, your money could grow to $1,000 in 20 years.

There is no tax deferral with a zero. The interest credited every year is taxable currently, even though it isn't immediately paid to you in cash.

For this reason, zeros are popular for IRAs, Keoghs and other pension plans that offer tax deferral of their own. They are also given to children, who will owe low or no taxes on the annual income.

The most widely sold zeros are made from U.S. Treasury bonds, but you will also find zero corporates, zero municipals and — the newest entry — zero certificates of deposit.

Simplicity

Two things makes the zeros popular. First is their simplicity. Your semiannual interest is automatically reinvested for you at the rate of interest paid by the bond.

Second, your money grows at a compounded rate of interest. As mentioned, $117 invested today could grow to $1,000 in 20 years.

Will the Yield Stand Up?

One of the greatest disadvantages of zero coupon bonds is that it is difficult for the average investor to figure out what the true yield is.

For example, ABC bank in Maryland promises that if you pay $1,000 into a finances and you

zero CD today, the bank will pay you $3,000 in 11 years. But XYZ savings bank in Wisconsin will return the same amount of money in just 10 years.

The ABC bank customers are earning 10.25 percent compounded annually, while the XYZ customers are getting 11.6 percent. And both would do better over five years by sending their money to PQR bank in California, which is offering 12.3 percent annually on a CD. Such examples could be easily multiplied.

Additional facts about zeros:

- Zeros sold under the acronyms CATS and TIGER are not direct investments in Treasury bonds. They are brokerage-house promises to pay, secured by Treasuries. But the form of zero known as a STRIP is a direct participation in a Treasury itself.

- A large brokerage firm offers zero ABCs — Agency Backed Compounds — invested in securities backed by the Government National Mortgage Association, the Federal National Mortgage Association and the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. It describes all three as "US Government Agencies," but only the first one is; the others are private corporations. ABCs are more complicated than Treasuries but may pay higher yields.

- Zeros are not as safe as they may sound. Their market prices swing more violently than those of regular bonds. You could lose money if you had to sell zeros before maturity.

- Beware of zeros that you receive as a gift. A "free" $1,000 30-year zeros sounds like a bargain, until you learn that its current value might be only $35.

Zero coupon bonds are not for everyone. Consult your financial planner before investing in such bonds.

A SEMINAR designed to help you decide "What To Do Now" will be offered 7-9 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 8, at the Kingsley Inn, 1475 N. Woodward, Bloomfield Hills. The following people will speak: Sid Mittra and Bob Fulton; annuities and taxation. Bill Argeropolis; lure of high write-off tax shelter. Dean Calvert and Sid Mittra; mutual funds (bonds and stock) with timing.

The seminar is free, but registration is required. Call 643-8888 for registration.

Sid Mittra is director, personal financial planning program at Oakland University and president of Coordinated Financial Planning Inc. in Troy.

It is called 'zero' because you get no current interest income. Instead, the interest (usually compounded semiannually) is paid in a lump sum at redemption.

Jeffrey Dougherty of Livonia is the young producer of a horror movie, "The Carrier," to be released next spring.

By Pearl Ahnen
special writer

WHAT GOES ON behind the scenes of a motion picture in-the-making?

Critics like to attribute the success or failure of a movie to the director. But the contributions of a hard-working cast and crew shouldn't be overlooked.

Nathan White is the writer/director of "The Carrier," a horror movie being filmed in Manchester, a few miles southwest of Ann Arbor. The movie is slated for a spring release.

Jeffrey Dougherty of Livonia is producing the movie for Swan Productions. Ruth Jessup of Bloomfield Hills is the production coordinator. Brigitte Alexander of Birmingham is the first camera assistant. Art Brown of Franklin works as key grip (lighting). Lisa Schwartz of Orchard Lake is the production secretary.

The lead role of Jake is played by Gregory Fortescue, a U-M business administration and theater major. The movie, set in a small town in the 1950s, concerns the resulting hysteria when someone begins spreading a rare and deadly disease.

Townpeople seek protection by wrapping themselves in plastic. But they don't know — and even Jake doesn't know — that Jake is the carrier.

WHITE, WHO graduated from the University of Michigan in 1979 with a degree in film and video, said he decided to write a horror movie because "horror is a very viable market." He said he's always liked horror movies, "but not the slash-and-blood kind. I wanted to use a sympathetic, in-depth hero-monster. And I've got a great and talented crew working with me."

Dougherty, the producer, is 25. He's a graduate of the U-M business school and worked for a time at Burroughs. Because of an interest in cameras and photography, he went to work for a camera equipment company and eventually toiled in various capacities in commercials and music videos.

Jessup, the production coordinator, joined the crew in May. She is a graduate of Seaholm High School and U-M.

"I wanted to get involved in film making without having to go to California, and when I heard Swan Productions was looking for people, I applied. And it's turned out to be a major project, and I'm getting lots of experience," she said.

Jessup and others in the crew are under 30 and enthusiastic about movie making. Jessup's duties include handling finances, speaking with investors, hiring production assistants and costume help, and overall planning and coordination. That usually involves 12-hour days and six-day weeks.

"In films, so many jobs overlap," she said. "And we're making an expensive-looking film on a very low budget. Many are deferring part of their salaries until the film comes out. We look for bargains except when it comes to film and equipment."

Brigitte Alexander of Birmingham is camera assistant on the production, filmed on location in Manchester, Mich.

Cast, crew work together

"When it really comes down to it, we are making an expensive film because we have many location sites and use a lot of extras. What I'm saying is, our movie is not just seven people sitting around a living room talking about the past. When the film is distributed, people will be amazed at how low our budget is — $800,000."

ALEXANDER, the camera assistant, is building a knowledge of movie making and building some muscle in her job. Her duties include positioning an 80-pound camera.

"I took up weight lifting so I could lift the camera without hurting myself," she said. She makes sure that the lens is set and, after every shot, she removes the lens and makes sure the gate is clean. The gate is where film revolves behind the lens.

She chose assistant camera work because she wants to acquire a greater working knowledge of the tools of her trade. Alexander, who studied photography and interned at the Detroit Institute of Arts, is a graduate of the Center for Creative Studies, Art and Design, in Detroit.

Peter Deming, a graduate of the American Film Institute in Los Angeles, is director of photography. In 1982, he was director of photography on "The Silence," a short film that was nominated for an Academy Award.

Alexander and Deming work closely together. "It's the only way," Alexander said. "Teamwork and respecting each other's jobs, from the simplest to the more complex."

Often, in a low-budget film, there are people who are not professional, but what I've discovered working for Swan Productions is that we are professional in whatever we do, plus we do it with a sense of humor. We are producing a first-rate film and having a good time doing it."

Credit for that goes to the director.

White is a patient man, and he often injects a bit of humor to release the tension that so often comes before a shooting.

He graduated first in his class at Berkley High School, where he was a math and science award-winner. He said he felt he was "too intelligent" and wanted to get a degree, but everything bored him until he discovered films — then that became his major.

BROWN, THE KEY grip, is in charge of lighting. With his crew, he spends hours adjusting the great beams mounted on huge frames and backed up with glare-proof sheets of metal. Even during a dark, stormy day, he manages to create the proper amount of light for a scene.

Schwartz, the company's production secretary, is based in Swan Production's office on Main Street, Ann Arbor. In addition to her regular secretarial duties, Schwartz also is called upon to process production requests that come in via the constantly ringing telephones.

Barry Waldman, production manager, also is based in Swan Production headquarters, and he's never without a phone.

"You might say my job is like a manager in a store. I'm a direct link between production and crew. I'm a trouble shooter and make sure things are where they are supposed to be."

"I schedule filming and decide which scene is to be shot on which day and how long the scene will take to shoot." He keeps a running daily log and knows just how far along they are in producing the film.

"The production is on schedule — that's good," he said. "With a low-budget film, it's a learning process for everyone. But things are going great, and we are happy with what we've accomplished."

"The Carrier" is Waldman's third film. He recently worked on "Cease Fire," featuring Don Johnson, the star of "Miami Vice," and Lisa Blount of "An Officer and a Gentleman." Waldman calls New York City and Miami home.

ALSO BRINGING experience and professionalism to the film is Bill Shaffer, sound mixer, who attended Los Angeles City College. He's also assisting with film editing.

Lead actress is 14-year-old Kimberly Lee of Manchester. White calls her acting "devastatingly honest."

The term also could apply to members of the behind-the-scenes crew of Swan Productions who plan to go that extra mile to bring in an entertaining movie on schedule and within budget.

Ruth Jessup of Bloomfield Hills is production coordinator with Swan Productions' current project.

Live from Westland

A segment of "Live from Lincoln Center" at 8 p.m. Saturday will focus on Gregory Jbara, a Wayne Memorial High School graduate from Westland. The program, which airs on Channel 56, features students from the Juilliard School's theater program. Jbara, in his final year at Juilliard in New York City, studied theater for two years at the University of Michigan and appeared locally in many productions before moving to New York.

Little mystery, but 'Corpse' is funny

By Barbara Michals special writer

A crazed, down-at-the-heels actor bent on revenge and a bungling, small-time crook team up to produce the murder and mayhem of "Corpse!" Splendid performances by stars Keith Baxter and Milo O'Shea keep the mystery-comedy alive and well despite plot twists that are too heavily foreshadowed to have much impact and comedy that is often too broad.

In a demanding dual role, Baxter plays the Farrant twins. Evelyn, an unemployed actor who likes to study rare poisons, has always been jealous of his brother, Rupert, a snobbish financier and high-society bon vivant. Rupert was always the fair-haired boy, inheriting all of his stepfather's considerable fortune.

As he demonstrates his Oedipus complex by planting wet kisses on the photo of his deceased mother, Evelyn vows to right many family wrongs. He hires expert marksman Major Ambrose Powell (O'Shea) to shoot Rupert, after which Evelyn plans to switch identities with the corpse. Seems simple enough, but twice dead bodies return to life before we find out what the insidious Evelyn is really up to.

"CORPSE!" has ample laughs, but they do not really blend well into the thriller format.

'Corpse!' by Gerald Moon continues at the Birmingham Theatre through Oct. 20. Tickets range from $13 to $21. For more information call 644-9225.

"Honeymooner's Anniversary Celebration," 11:30 p.m. Saturday on Ch. 50. TV time slot: 120 minutes.

OK, so it's not a movie. But this look back at favorite "Honeymooner" TV episodes, starring Jackie Gleason, sparks an interesting debate. One of the episodes to be reviewed has been colorized. That is, the original black-and-white film has been electronically enhanced so that Ralph and Alice Kramden and their best friends, the Nortons, will appear in color. So will the Kramdens' clothes, their apartment and their meager furnishings. The flesh tones will be approximations of Caucasian skin tones; the fashions and decor won't necessarily reflect the true color of the props originally used in the series.

All this is of interest because they're beginning to colorize movies, too. The process, some say, is a

Concert to help dinner theater

Congregational Church of Birmingham will be the setting for a benefit concert for the Pontiac Dinner Theatre at 3 p.m. Sunday.

The performers will be Matt Kell, pianist, and Ed Price, organist, in a program featuring the Emperor Concerto by Beethoven and selections by Dietrich Buxtehude, Frederick Chopin and Henri Mullet.

Kell, too, is a musical director and accompanist. Donation at the door is $5. The church is at 1000 Cranbrook, Bloomfield Hills.

Trio to perform

"Opus 3" will perform at 3 p.m. Sunday in the Edsel and Eleanor Ford House, 1100 Lakeshore Road, Grosse Pointe Shores.

Guests are welcome to tour the house and grounds before the concert. For ticket reservations, $7.50, call 427-2796.

Admission includes concert and reception to meet the artists.

Way of preserving old celluloid films which are literally falling apart. "Becky Sharp" (1935), for instance, is being salvaged and rejuvenated for rerelease. A glimpse of this work in progress during the Academy Award presentations this year revealed a stunning new product that far outshines the best, faded prints of the original.

Portions of Alfred Hitchcock's original television series have been colorized and revamped for the new TV season. Dance numbers featuring Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers have been colorized and are in limited distribution. And they're talking about coloring some Frank Capra classics, too.

MANY FILM aficionados are upset by all this, though. They say it will destroy the character of a work like "It's a Wonderful Life" to splash pretty colors all over it. Capra himself is fighting the action, although earlier he agreed to allow that 1946 classic starring James Stewart and Donna Reed to be colorized.

Others are worried that exquisitely photographed, black-and-white classics like "Citizen Kane" and "Casablanca" will be colorized next, thus destroying the masterful, chiaroscuro effects of top-notch cinematographers. In a way, all the above is true.

If black-and-white classics are colorized, a portion of them will be lost. No one's talking about destroying the originals, of course. But TV stations likely will jump at the opportunity to show a colorized "Casablanca," relegating the original to the back of the station's movie vault, at least for a while.

On the other hand, colorized versions of classic, i.e., old films may awaken a new generation of moviegoers to the delights of pre-"Star Wars" cinematic endeavors. You know this new generation of moviegoer — they're the ones that 90 percent of the new movies — and 100 percent of the junk — is made for. They're also the ones who wouldn't go see a new Woody Allen movie because it was made in (gag me with a spoon!) black and white.

Who knows? Maybe it takes a colorized "Casablanca" to alert cinematic adolescents to the fact that most of what they like is rubbish. They might even become discerning moviegoers as a result. And then we could get back to films that aren't just pretty colors and special effects.

Bed 'n Breakfast — bonanza for travelers

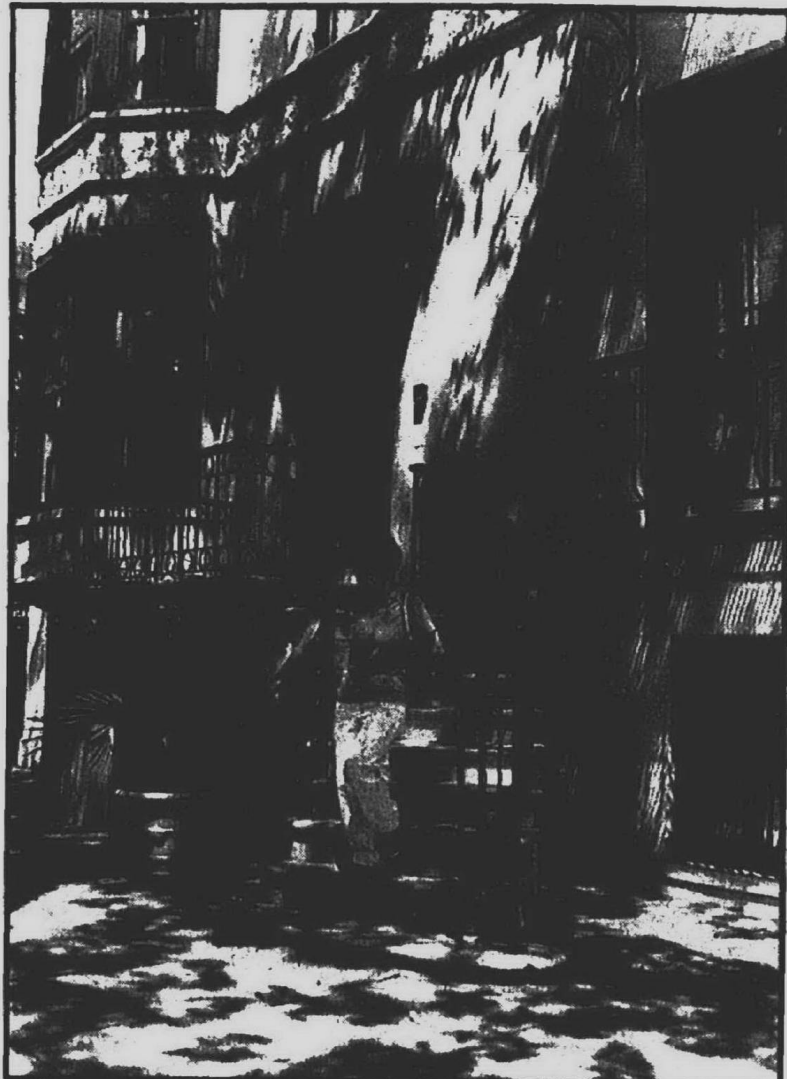

BED AND BREAKFAST travel has come a long way since its genesis — the tourist homes we stayed in when we were kids. Some people say the idea began in Europe and England and was brought back to the States by traveling Americans, but you and I know better.

Remember those vacations when we drove up to a house with a sign on the curb "Tourists — Rooms"? The front porch light would be lit and we'd twist the bell and then stumble upstairs behind a bathrobed host. We'd find, most of the time, beds that smelled like Fels Naptha, the hospitality of small town people plus hot cocoa and cinnamon toast the next morning.

Now, they call these places Bed and Breakfast accommodations and they include country inns, sometimes historic, small hotels and large mansions in their number. The idea has come up in the world. The concept of providing a plain night's lodging has changed. Now luxury, adventure and getting to know all kinds of people has been added to the formula.

Iris Jones
contributing travel writer

Bed and Breakfast accommodations don't have to be in a nook in the road out in the country. Here's an example of one located in a downtown area — the Ballstone Inn in the historic district of Savannah, Georgia. The charming inn has bedrooms designed to impart the flavor of the historic area.

IN ADDITION, travelers no longer must drive up and down dark, unfamiliar streets off the main highway looking for lighted signs and the porch light. There are guidebooks and lists, organizations and reservation agencies to help the tourist come home to bed and breakfast travel.

Bed and Breakfast in the United States, unlike Britain, means more than private homes. Accommodations can run the gamut from a 20 room historic inn on Orcas Island to gracious ante-bellum guest houses in Georgia or a row of Victorian townhouses in Toronto. Here is a list of guidebooks and agencies, newsletters and accommodations to help you find your special place:

- "Bed and Breakfast in Michigan and Surrounding Areas," by Norma Buzan and Bert Howell, published by Betsy Ross Publications, 3057 Betsy Ross Drive, Bloomfield Hills 48013. Betsy Ross is also a reservation service. Their book lists many private homes which they can arrange to reserve for you.

- The book also lists guest houses and small inns in Michigan, Indiana, Wisconsin, Ohio, Illinois and Ontario. The nice thing about this book is that it mentions other reservations services in the area. From The Neahawanta Inn, Traverse City on Old Mission Point where they serve vegetarian meals, family style to the Lost Bowl Farm in Toivola which has a real Finnish cedar wood, hot rock sauna, the listings in this book are varied and interesting.

- Norma Buzan also wrote "Bed and Breakfast: North America," available at the same address. It is filled with names of reservation services to private homes across the U.S. and Canada; small inns and guesthouses in the U.S., Canada and Mexico. There is also an index for help in locating specific places.

- Robert Morris compiled "Country Inns of the Great Lakes," published by 101 Productions, San Francisco. He specializes in historic small inns and hotels in Michigan, Illinois, Ohio, Minnesota, Indiana and Ontario. Nice maps and drawings.

- Another publication about historic accommodations is the "Editor's Reference Guide to American Country Inns and Historic Houses," published annually by McKenzie Communications Inc., 321 Main St., Amherst MA 01002. The booklet lists AAA and Mobil Travel Guide Ratings.

- The "West Coast Bed and Breakfast Guide to California, Washington and Oregon" by Courtia Worth and Terry Berger is published by Simon and Schuster. This book has enticing full-color photographs of charming bed and breakfast places on the west coast from San Diego to Orcas Island. Rates range from a comfortable $30 up to a pricey $300 depending on your needs or desires. This book will make a believer out of you.

In addition to the easily available Fodor Guides which can be highly recommended, here are a few more:

- "New World Bed and Breakfast, Ltd." 150 Fifth Ave., Suite 711, N.Y., N.Y. 10071, (212) 675-5600. Budget guide. Manhattan.

- "Visitor's Guide to New York City," Ron Henry Associates, 3009 Fifth Ave., Beaver Falls, Pa. 15010. A 20 page booklet with 200 telephone numbers to key information centers.

- SAV-ON Hotels Booklet from Travel Tips, P.O. Box 11061, Oakland, Calif. 94611. Mini guide to money saving in 24 countries.

- Bed and Breakfast League, Ltd. is an agency representing accommodations on both coasts. 2855 29th St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20008. 202-232-8718.

- Northwest Bed and Breakfasts listings in California, plus British Columbia, Washington and Oregon. 7707 S.W. Locust St., Tigard, Ore. 97223. 503-246-8366.

- Also on the west coast, Bed and Breakfast, International, 151 Ardmore Road, Kensington, California, 415-525-4569.

- The National Bed and Breakfast Association publishes a directory: "Bed and Breakfast Guide to the U.S. and Canada." Available at most local bookstores for $9.95.

- "Sleep Cheap: A Directory of Tourist Homes and Bed and Breakfast Homes in the U.S. and Canada" is a directory for the budget-minded traveler. Published by McBride, 157 Sisson Ave., Hartford, Conn. 06105.

- Commissioned Host and Toast Inc. is a B and B placement service catering specifically to military officers and their families traveling to or being re-located in Washington, D.C. Contact Pat Zuberbuhler at P.O. Box 2177, Springfield, VA 22152.

- Flatotel International can help you live in an apartment in Paris for a day, a week or a month. Contact Flatotel Coensson Building, 14, rue du Theatre, 75015 Paris; or call 575.62.20.

- Inn Review, a monthly newsletter available from Norman and Janice Strasma, P.O. Box 1789, Kankakee, Ill. 60901 announces seminars for innkeepers about, for instance, how to start a bed and breakfast. It is also a good source for B and B listings, articles on interesting travel destinations and guidebook reviews. Reader's recommendations are featured.

- Three books have come to us from Mobil Travel Guides called "Lodging for Less" (Northwest and Midwest, West and South). In the usual Mobil guidebook format, these books list state park lodges, chain motels and "mom and pop" one only motels.

Easily readable signs let you know if your pet is welcome and how the motel is rated. At the beginning of each state section there is an information page — did you know that New Jersey became a state in 1787? These guides cost $4.95, will fit in most glove compartments and can be found in most bookstores and newstands.

In addition to the guidebooks listed above, here is a selection of inns and guest houses which have come to our attention:

- The Ballstone Inn is only one of two dozen beautiful inns and guest houses in the historic district of Savannah, GA. Dial 912-BED-ROOM for more information.

- Kettle Creek Inn, Main Street, Port Stanley, Ontario, Gary and Jean Vedova innkeepers. 10 guest rooms.

- Elora Mill Inn, Elora, Ontario, north of Guelph, a restored grist-mill.

- Jacobstetzel Guest House, 16 Isabella Street, St. Jacobs, Ontario, 519-664-2208, 12 rooms, swimming and tennis, hiking available.

- Hotel Bedford, 92 on the Square, Goderich, Ontario 519-324-7337 only 145 miles from Detroit. Built in 1896. Lake Huron close by.

- The Ambrose Bierce House, 1515 Main St., St. Helena, Calif. 94574, Kim P. Thomas, Innkeeper. The former home of author Ambrose Bierce who wrote The Devil's Dictionary was built in 1872. Queen-sized antique brass beds, claw-foot tubs.

- Distinctive Inns of the Wine Country, 4350 Barnes Road, Santa Rosa, CA 95401 will send you a "Wine Country" Passport which entitles you to a fifth night free when you stay four nights at one of six inns listed. Send $1.

- The Gordon Beach Inn and the Pebble Beach Inn are two large houses in Union Pier, Mich., where bed and breakfast is available to travelers.

- Raymond House Inn, Pt. Sanilac, Mich. 48469, Shirley Dinson innkeeper, six high-ceilinged rooms with period furniture. Call (313)622-8800.

- The Mendon Country Inn, Jane and Lewis Kaiser, Innkeepers, 440

- West Main Street, Mendon, Mich. 49072, (616)496-8132. Once known as the Western Hotel, the house was built in 1840 and rebuilt in 1873. Nine rooms named the Hired Man, the Barn, the Country Cousin, the Nautical or the Sundance Rooms.

- The Brookside Inn, Beulah, Mich., Kirk Lorenz and Pam Powell, innkeepers/Romanticists. Double showers, waterbeds, hot tub and keys attached to heart-shaped pillows.

- The Golden Lamb in Lebanon, Ohio, just north of Cincinnati. It is the oldest inn in Ohio, and its rooms are reminiscent of those found in historic homes in Greenfield Village.

- The Redstone Inn, Fifth and Bluff Streets, P.O. Box 3257, Dubuque, Iowa 52001, (319)582-1894. Near the Mississippi River and three historic districts in an old river town. 15 rooms.

- Inn on Maritime Bay, 101 Maritime Drive, Manitowoc, Wis., 54200. (608)7000. 172 miles from Chicago on Lake Michigan opened June 1 with 109 rooms.

- Mansion Hill Inn to open Oct. 15 with 10 luxurious suites, is located in Madison, Wis., near the campus of University of Wisconsin. Contact the Alexander Company, 802 Regent St., Madison, Wis. 53715 or call 608-257-7506.

- Pioneer Inn and Marina, P.O. Box 2626, Oshkosh, Wis. 54903, 414-232-1980. Between Sept. 8 and Oct. 31 features an Indian Summer Package of $22.50 per person, double occupancy. Two sightseeing cruises for the price of one on their excursion paddlewheelers are included.

- For information on French Country houses write to International Travel Services Inc., 3347 N.E. 32nd St., Fort Lauderdale, Fla. 33308.

Here are two examples of the kind of facilities that provide Bed and Breakfast in Michigan. Both are in Union Pier. At right is the Gordon Beach Inn which has 13 guest rooms ranging from shared bath to private suite. It is a short walk from Lake Michigan.

The Pebble Beach Inn looks like it might be in California but it is also in Union Pier in Berrien County in the southwestern corner of the state. This is one of hundreds of similar establishments located less than a day's drive from the metropolitan area.

The double front door of the "Galleria," built by Robert R. Jones Associates, opens to two-story, circular foyer with a black and white Italian marble floor and circular stairway which leads to a banistered balcony. The house is 4,500 square feet.

Homearama '86

Builders showcase their best

Talk about a big open house party, "Homearama '86," which opens today, is the most impressive so far in terms of size, price and scope.

This event, third of its kind, sponsored by the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan, features 14 model homes in the $400,000 to $600,000 range. These completely furnished models showcase not only the best efforts of architects and builders, but the latest and most lavish in furnishings, fixtures and technology.

Styles vary from the nine-room "Sun Villa" by James D. Compo Inc. with a passive solar sun room and secluded master suite with loft to Peg Construction's Tudor English, "The Heritage," with paneled oak library and John Richard Development Company's three-floor, 12-room "Kingswood," with an all glass triangle breakfast room and 22 skylights.

Outstanding extras include such things as a two-person indoor whirlpool tub and outdoor jet-pool with jetstreams for swimmers to stroke against in Robert R. Jones Associates' "Galleria"; enclosed morning garden room in Crannie, Inc.'s "Royal Topaz"; and the kitchen with the greenhouse effect window, in Dakota Building's "The Ashley."

HOMEARAMA '86 may have revived the Italian marble business, it's used generously in many of the houses. And gracious stairways never had it so good. Dave Kellett of Kellett Construction Co. has twin stairways in the domed ceiling foyer of his Corinthian-columned "Chesapeake." Great setting for a wedding or a debut.

Elaborate crown, door and window molding can be found in abundance. And glass is etched, stained, leaded, beveled, shaped, curved and, in most instances, is both functional and decorative.

Book sellers will delight in the number and size of the libraries and spa people will smile approvingly, for saunas, exercise areas and whirlpools, rise to a new level of importance.

The master bathrooms are as big as the living rooms of medium priced homes, and the master suites as big as a lot of starter homes.

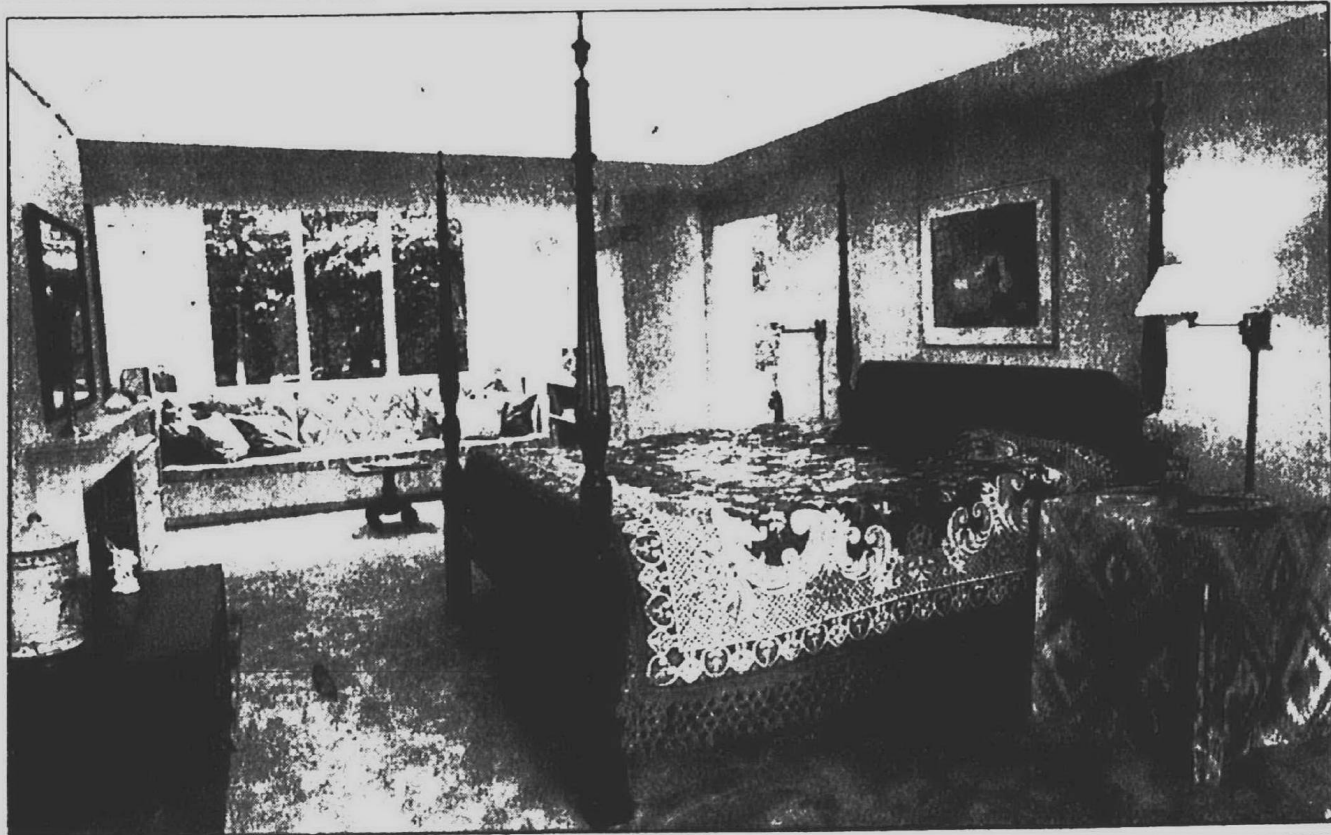

Homearama '86 runs through Oct. 20. Hours are noon to 11 p.m. Monday-Friday and 10 a.m. to 11 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. Admission is $4, but discount coupons are available at First Federal of Michigan offices and Detroit Edison.

A display area with information on home financing, heating and cooling and many aspects of construction, will be set up for visitors.

"Homearama '86" is in Chestnut Run subdivision, north of Hickory Grove between Lahser and Telegraph, Bloomfield Hills. Wear walking shoes.

Palladian windows, deep molding, bright red walls and elegance that crosses centuries to become part of lively red and green chintz give the great room of Kellett Construction Company's "Chesapeake," a sparkling el-

Master bedroom of the "Chesapeake," above, is 18th century in style and 21st century in conveniences. The wool coverlet on the king-size bed is blue and white, the carpet rose and the two colors used throughout the room. The master bathroom at right, one of the most beautiful in the show, is in Peg Construction's "The Heritage." It is done in shades of cream with gold fixtures. It is octagon shape with a beamed ceiling. There is a built-in vanity and mirror on three of the eight sides.

The family room of "Chestnut Manor" by Bing Construction Company has a contemporary look. Basic colors are taupe and black with matching oriental pattern chintz for the drape and straight chairs. The 5,000 square foot house has 10 rooms.

Artists should promote their versatility

By David Messing
Special Writer

I am around home much more than most men are able to be, or perhaps want to be. Being around the house so often has revealed to me how tremendously versatile a wife and mother must be. Of course, with that revelation, I am a big help to Sandy. When it's time to get up with the kids for school I turn off the alarm, roll over and tell Sandy, "honey, honey, it's time to get up."

Sometimes I actually do get up with Sandy for moral support. Sitting in the corner of the kitchen with eyes that look like two bagels, I watch and listen to the sounds of the morning. "Mom, where's my blue socks?" A muffled cry comes from the laundry room. The snap of lunch bags jolts me to semi-consciousness as Sandy packs three lunches.

IT TAKES a psychologist and a minister to get Adam even to want to go to school. So by 9:15 Sandy is mentally and physically exhausted. She has in that short space of time, been a cook, laundry maid, a counselor, a treasure hunter, a cheerleader and sometimes a chauffeur. So versatility is the key element for the successful wife and mother of this day and age.

Versatility is, likewise, a key element for the successful artist. Of course "success" is a very relative term. So let me clarify that by assuming that you wish to earn a living by doing artwork. If that is what you want, ask yourself, "What do I do that people would be willing to pay for?" If you cannot come up with a selection of commercial applications of your abilities then you need to become more versatile.

Without versatility you are like a store that sells only one item. I remember a store that sold only mattresses and box springs. The owner seemed happy as each day he sold a few here and there. But finally the only item he carried wasn't selling and with no other product or service to offer the store was forced out of business.

Artwork is much like a retail store. You, are the store front, your abilities are your services and your artwork is your stock and trade.

FOR EXAMPLE: last week I received a last minute request for a master sculpture of a new toy to come on the market. My original piece was sent immediately to Tokyo for tooling and I thought I was all done. Two days later I received an even more frantic call saying "they're shooting the commercial in three days in California, and I need the full color package design tomorrow." Of course, I didn't like the last minute order, but the job was fun and rewarding. Then I painted some signs, started some sketches for an office plaza logo and etched a few pieces in an art show.

On my "board for next week is a caricature, a rubber mold for a customer sculpture, promotional cartoons for a hospital and airbrush retouching of a photograph. My point, of course, is to show you how open the field of art can be... if you are versatile.

Here is a check list of some of the stock and trade you should carry in your art store. Product illustrations in pen and ink and color. Airbrushing both paintings and photo retouching. Cartooning caricatures and for general purpose is always in demand. Sculpturing is wonderful and often you are the inventors first approach to a three dimension product. Not to mention the purely aesthetic qualities of sculpture.

Sign painting is a must and the financial benefits are immediate. Fashion design or the ability to draw people will always bring you plenty of work as in catalogs, manuals and pamphlets.

Wall graphics are always fun and usually pay well. So don't discouraged if very few of these areas of art seem familiar. You can learn to do anything and even earn as you learn. Don't hesitate to ask questions. Most artists are happy to share their knowledge, and remember your worth is not what you are, but what you can become.
