School reports 150 sick

About 150 elementary students at Allen School in Plymouth were out of class Wednesday due to some type of stomach ailment, school officials said.

The unusual number of absentees began to show up Monday and Tuesday; by Wednesday, school officials decided to call in the Wayne County Health Department to investigate.

Some students showed up to school Wednesday and left sick during the day, but most of the 150 were ill by Wednesday morning and did not come to school.

Principal Tom Workman said the health department was called in because of the large number of students affected. He said health officials were checking out the air, water and food at the school as possible sources of contamination for the gastrointestinal infection.

Last week the school did have a few cases of the 24-hour flu, but Workman did not know if that was related to this week's outbreak.

Paving clears financing hurdle

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

A 1986 Paving Program, funded about 60 percent through special assessments to Plymouth homeowners, has been approved by the Plymouth City Commission.

The commission action at the regular Monday meeting clears the way for awarding bids on the $573,000 project. Construction is scheduled to start June 1 and end Aug. 1, according to the city's timetable.

Commission approval followed a public hearing in which 10 city residents questioned either the fairness of their assessment or a real need for repairs.

IN A LETTER to the commission, Bruce Goodsite of 999 Penniman wrote that the $12.88-per-front-foot assessment was unfair to Penniman homeowners.

"The road damage comes about due to the heavy traffic flow into and out of the downtown section . . . major wear and tear on the roadway is not from Penniman residents."

Mary Kehoe of 932 Penniman told commissioners, "I don't think it's fair that residents of Penniman . . . have to pay for all the damage from trucks."

City Engineer Ken West echoed his response at the commission meeting in an earlier letter to City Manager Henry Graper. "There has been a suggestion that the recommended assessment for Penniman Avenue be lowered because of traffic volume," West wrote.

"The recommended assessment is equivalent to residential streets and is based on the same life span," West maintained. "The actual surface of a heavily traveled street will be enhanced by increased vehicle use that kneads the surface of the pavement and slows the oxidation process."

Graper said the main reason Penniman is in poor shape is the age of the road surface, not heavy traffic expected on a major road artery. "Penniman hasn't been paved since the '60s," he told citizens addressing the commission.

GRAPER ALSO stressed to Penniman homeowners complaining of heavy traffic that the road was designated a major road in the early 1950s under a state act.

Through that act, a city gains road maintenance funds from the state according to the number of streets designated major streets — those with high traffic volume serving a city.

West said Penniman's road base, built stronger than the base of streets carrying less traffic, only requires $500 in repair, "which is less than we anticipate for any of the other streets," he wrote. "Arterial streets (like Penniman) are the top priority for maintenance and snow and ice control."

Violet Faunce of 493 N. Harvey, bordering on Farmer, objected to being assessed for repairs to Farmer, saying there is no drainage problem as the city maintains. "I'll invite you all over for coffee the next time it rains, you can see for yourselves."

West responded that excess water was not running into the storm drain but instead through the street into the ground. He said a south curb had been pushed up as a result, and there is no effective crown in the center of the street, indicating future drainage problems.

Donald Keller was the lone commissioner voting against the resolution approving assessments for Farmer, Penniman and Church.

Bid continues to save house

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

A plan to relocate the historic Wilcox House was outlined to skeptical Plymouth city commissioners Monday, some of whom offered conditional support.

Cheryl Sznyszewski, a Plymouth Township resident and head of the Friends of the Wilcox House group formed earlier this month, informed commissioners of tentative group plans during the "citizens comment" portion of the commission meeting.

Of the group's plan to move the house to an undetermined area site, Mayor William Robinson commented, "It's certainly quite ambitious." He estimated such a project would cost $300,000-$400,000. "All I can do is wish you success," Robinson added.

Commissioner Mark Wehmeyer commented, "It's charming in its present location; it's beautiful in its setting. But the minute you take it away from Kellogg Park, nobody's going to see it."

Wehmeyer said moving the 85-year-old house may not be feasible for several reasons. "I think you should look at this and determine if there's some realism behind it."

"YOU CAN'T put a monetary amount on the community spirit," said Sznyszewski following the meeting. The group seeks volunteer help in both moving the house and renovating it.

Sznyszewski suggested the Wilcox House could serve as headquarters for all community arts-related organizations, and serve as a central reference source for information on Plymouth-Canton cultural events.

She said several arts groups contacted have expressed interest in using space in the house.

Sznyszewski told commissioners that in one week the group collected 1,400 petition signatures in support of moving the house. The Wilcox house, she added, "is part of the quaintness that is one of the selling points used by citizens and businesses in this community."

Sznyszewski said the 40-member group's biggest stumbling block is finding land on which to locate the house before demolition, tentatively set for late May, to make room for 44 condominium units. Owner Jack Wilcox has said he would consider donating the house for public use.

A group meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. today at the Grange Hall.

Consumers avoid hike in water bills

The Plymouth Township Board reversed itself Tuesday and decided to absorb a wholesale water increase from Detroit with surplus township funds rather than pass the increase on to individual consumers.

In January, the board opted to pass along an increase from 87 to 93 cents per 1,000 cubic feet.

A favorable audit report of the township's water and sewer fund prompted the switch, which Supervisor Maurice Breen estimates will cost the township about $80,000.

"We had made a decision basically not to add to the reserve," Breen said. "We had a tremendous amount of activity in the area — tap fees, connection fees. A good portion of that was industrial development."

The township's water and sewer fund had an undesignated surplus of $637,000 as of Dec. 31, Breen said.

Working capital — a combination of designated and undesignated reserves and cash flow — increased to $3.1 million by the end of 1985, auditors reported. Working capital has increased by almost a million dollars in two years.

"We're hoping working capital will stay where it is due to new business in the township," Breen said.

The average township homeowner can expect to continue paying about $55 every three months for water and sewer service.

If Detroit's wholesale rate had been passed on to consumers, quarterly household bills would have increased by about $2.

Evelyn Edgar takes in the beauty of Miller Woods with the last remains of winter at her feet.

Nature devotee welcomes harbingers of spring

By Penny Wright
special writer

For many the spring signals the annual trek to southern climes in search of a warming sun.

But for Evelyn Edgar, a retired Plymouth-Canton school teacher, spring signals the start of her walks through Miller Woods, a 10-acre beech-maple "climax" forest in Plymouth Township.

She searches for wildflowers. Over the next several months, the knowledgeable nature devotee will spend many hours leading groups of adults and school children through the virgin forest. She will walk the flower-lined trails pointing out the plants and wildflowers that mark the woods' transition from winter to summer.

A SPRING WALK through Miller Woods is scheduled for 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, May 3.

Miller Woods is on Powell Road between Beck and Ridge in Plymouth Township.

Her goal: "To instill appreciation

for something that can't be replaced."

In Evelyn Edgar's view, the public's lack of knowledge and respect for natural areas is one of the biggest threats to Miller Woods and other forested areas in Michigan.

"So many people say 'so what?' when you talk about the destruction of wooded areas," she said. "People think the woods are just vacant lots. People from the cities have seen nothing else."

The former English teacher is familiar with such attitudes. In the course of her long affiliation with Plymouth-Canton schools, Girl Scouts and the Detroit Audubon Society, Edgar has helped hundreds of people change their complacent views about wildlife to enthusiastic appreciation.

SINCE RETIRING, she has devoted her time to giving slide-lecture presentations on such topics as "Wildflowers in Your Own Backyard," "Mystery of Migration" and "Michigan Wildflowers."

During her presentations and tours, Edgar observed that youngsters have a natural enthusiasm for wildlife and plants.

"Fourth and fifth graders are my biggest joy. They appreciate what they are seeing."

That natural enthusiasm disappears, however, during high school and young adult years, she finds. "It's so important they keep the childhood enthusiasm for the woods to pass on to their children."

Edgar grew up in Caro in the Thumb area and attributes her own interest in wildlife to her father. "My dad had a lot to do with my feelings about nature. He was raised in northern Michigan and loved the out-of-doors. I inherited that love from him."

Pipe bomb incidents concern police

Two incidents involving unexploded pipe bombs in a Plymouth Township neighborhood — the most recent last weekend — have police baffled.

A five-inch cylinder with a fuse was hurled through the dining room window of a house on Deer Run between 11 p.m. Friday and 7 a.m. Saturday. The fuse, though, apparently wasn't lit, said Police Chief Carl Berry.

A similar cylinder was discovered near a garage on Moonlight Jan. 24.

That device also failed to explode.

Michigan State Police disposed of both cylinders.

"There is no rhyme or reason to this. There is just no common denominator," Berry said. "There doesn't appear to be any connection or reason for these to be happening."

Berry indicated that he feels like he's walking a tightrope discussing the situation.

He said he doesn't want to publicize the person or persons involved and perhaps create panic in the neighborhood, yet he doesn't want to be accused of keeping residents there in the dark.

"THAT WHOLE area is getting a little extra patrol," the chief said. Other steps have been taken, Berry said, but he declined to elaborate.

"Anything that is set off with an explosive device is serious," Berry said. "It's a four-year felony. It's not a kid's crime. It's not a misdemeanor."

The State Police considered the pipes to be explosive devices, he said. "They don't analyze it. They take them out and blow them up."

The Deer Run residents were apparently home but heard nothing when the cylinder was hurled through their window. They discovered several hundred dollars damage to the window, frame, drapes and a table upon awakening.

"We have two dogs. There was no barking," a resident said. "It scared me for a while trying to think who would do it. It looks like kids play. I'm sort of listening to the kids talk."

"Police have been very good about patrolling. They're super."

A resident of the house on Moonlight where the first cylinder was found declined to comment.

Berry said he believes the same person or persons is responsible in both incidents.

"I think it's a kid. Maybe we can alert some parents. Somebody over there has seen something. I would suspect it happened. I don't know why. It's difficult to sort out. We will sort it out."

Westland man killed in car crash

He is listed in stable condition, police said.

According to Westland officers, Sampson apparently was accelerating as he started up the east side of the overpass in the westbound lanes when he hit an icy patch and lost control of his car. The car slid sideways across the center lane into the path of Acevedo's car.

Both drivers, according to Officer Gary Meldrum, were traveling about the 45 miles per hour speed limit.

Meldrum added that Acevedo struck Sampson's car on the driver's side with such force that the bumper of his car ended up almost touching the passenger door of Sampson's car.

MELDRUM reported Sampson had just turned on to Ford Road off of Hix on his way to work when the accident occurred. Sampson has been identified as the driver at fault in the accident because, Meldrum said, he was driving too fast for conditions.

Officers closed the eastbound lanes of Ford road to traffic to investigate the accident and later closed the westbound lanes after officers were almost hit by a gawker who started to lose control of his car because of the icy road.

Traffic was rerouted to the service drives until the area could be salted by the Wayne County Road Commission.

Police started having problems at the overpass about 2:25 a.m., when a police car, enroute to the station, was hit by a motorist who lost control near the crest of the overpass. In all four accidents, including the fatality, were reported on the overpass between 2:25 and 5:50 a.m.

School tax hike returns to ballot

By Sue McDonald
staff writer

Wayne-Westland Community Schools voters will be asked to approve a 2-mill tax increase for two years at the June 9 school board election.

The school board voted 6-1 Monday night, with board vice president Dewey Combs dissenting, on a request which is a modified version of a recommendation made by the Funding Effective Schools Committee a week ago.

The committee had recommended 2-mills for three years for general operations after reassessing school finances and studying why voters rejected an earmarked 2 mills for three years in a Jan. 20 special election.

The proposal represents $2 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation or $50 a year for a $50,000 home.

According to projections by Woody London, associate superintendent for business services, approval of the millage request would permit the district to maintain the current elementary expressive arts program, increase funding for materials and supplies and reinstate seven of more than 14 secondary program staff positions during the 1986-87 school year.

The money would allow the district to increase its minimal ending fund balance to $1.4 million from the current $300,000.

London, however, painted a pessimistic picture for the 1987-88

Wayne-Westland School District

school year. Assuming a continued loss of student enrollment and a moderate increase in the state school aid formula, revenue would barely cover expenditures, without plugging in employees' pay raises.

CARRYING HIS projections into a third year to show why the administration modified the original recommendation, London told the board "expenditures would start to exceed revenues by a substantial amount."

"I don't think there is any way we could maintain the student program as it currently is in 1987-88 and 1988-89," London said. "It's a pretty wild guess to project 2½ years from now, but I don't see how going out for a millage for three years would produce the revenue to preserve basic programs."

The average home in the district has an assessed value of $20,000, so the tax request would cost homeowners an additional $20 per year and generate about $2½ million in new tax revenue.

The board was required to take action on the recommendation this week to make the June 9 ballot deadline, but declined to support a recommendation of Trustee Kenneth Barnhill that voters be given a choice between 2 mills for two years and 1 mill for one year.

Barnhill maintained that by giving the residents a choice one of the millage requests would be approved. If it were the lesser amount, he said, residents could then "decide at the end of the year if the district did what it said it would do with the money."

London, however, pointed out that the 1-mill levy would permit retaining the expressive arts, leaving the district with a balance of $100,000 and facing $3¼ million in budget cuts for the 1987-88 school year.

Why board members sought confirmation that the expressive arts program would continue, if the millage were approved, members of the audience asked how the millage proposal would be presented to voters.

"WILL VOTERS prior to the vote have any idea in any shape or form what will happen if the millage passes and what will happen if it doesn't?" asked William Reese, president of the Wayne-Westland Education Association. "They have to have some idea, maybe not the bottom line, but some idea of what will happen."

School Superintendent Dennis O'Neill told Reese that before promillage campaign literature goes out to voters, discussions on the proposed budget will be concluded.

"In terms of credibility, we feel much more comfortable with addressing things we can say for sure will happen, then what we're not sure about," he said.

O'Neill added that if the millage fails, the district would have to live with the budget currently being worked on by the board, a budget that includes $2½ million in cuts, including the elementary expressive arts program.

"I haven't heard any suggestions that would have an (financial) impact on our recommendations," O'Neill said, a reference to a call by the board last month for suggestions on how to balance the budget.

When questioned if the district would seek concessions from unions, O'Neill said that the two district unions which have contracts showed no interest in reopening negotiations.

"And those we're negotiating with want pay increases," he added.

RESIDENT KATHY Rockwell questioned the administration's use of the phrase "could be" when talking about what might be done with the added revenue, noting that "could be" says a lot.

"Does that mean that these programs might not be continued?" she asked. "I know we can't make everyone happy, but I hate to see anything cut out of the budget."

"The problem is not what's going to happen if the millage passes, but what happens if the millage does pass," Barnhill responded. "If the millage doesn't pass, some of the programs may still be restored. And the crux of the matter is that if it doesn't pass and some of these programs aren't cut, someone may come back and say 'see you didn't need it', not realizing that something else was cut."

Rehearsing for "Everybody Loves Opal" are Andrea Logan of Plymouth in the role of Gloria and Rick Boldman of Plymouth who plays Brad, the crooked chemistry professor.

Theatre Guild does a benefit for M.D.

The Plymouth Theatre Guild is well under way in rehearsals and set productions of the play "Everybody Loves Opal" to be held Sunday in the Rackham Auditorium in Detroit.

The play begins at 2 p.m. with the box office opening at noon.

After the performance, there will be prizes and a complimentary Happy Endings Dessert. All proceeds from this special matinee performance will go the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

To make this MDA benefit a success, the Plymouth Theatre Guild is asking for more public support. "Ticket sales have been slow up to this point," says Sue Suchyta, president of the guild. "We are excited about this performance. "Not only will the audience enjoy the play but will also have a chance at great prizes and walk away with a feeling of satisfaction to know that they have helped Jerry's kids."

Tickets are $10 for adults and $8 for children under age 12 and will be available at all AAA locations and Metropolitan JC Penney ticket outlets. Visa and Mastercard will be accepted.

Tickets also can be obtained by mailing a self-addressed, stamped envelope and a check to: P.O. Box 451, Plymouth, MI 48170. All proceeds are tax deductible and will go to the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

CEP journalists honored

Two staff members of the student newspaper at Plymouth Centennial Educational Park have earned Gold Key awards from the Quill and Scroll International Honor Society.

Karen Sendelbach, a junior at Plymouth Canton High and opinion/commentary editor of the CEP Perspective, earned a first-place Gold Key rating for her editorial "To have or not to have, that is the question." The winning editorial appeared in the Dec. 19 edition of the Perspective.

The Perspective, in trying to encourage open debate on public issues, ran both pro-life and pro-choice columns on abortion with Sendelbach taking a pro-choice stance.

Her winning piece was one of 44 editorials honored out of a total 4,141 entries nationwide.

Curt Pavia, sophomore at Canton and staff artist, earned a third-place rating for his editorial graphic "AIDS," which also ran in the Dec. 19 issue. The graphic compared the treatment of AIDS victims today with blacks in the 1960s.

Pavia's graphic was one of eight honored out of a total of 4,141 entries.

THE PERSPECTIVE also won a first-place rating in the 62nd annual Columbia Scholastic Press Association high school newspaper contest by scoring 869 out of a possible 1,000 points.

Six issues, dating from September 1984 to June 1985, were judged for content, coverage, writing, editing, design, display and creativity.

Mike Zaretti, a junior at Plymouth Salem High and sports editor of the Perspective, earned a first place from the Michigan Press Women's Association for his sports article "New requirements strive for higher standards," which was published in the Dec. 19, 1985, issue.

The association, originally founded for female journalists when they were not allowed to enter journalism contests, this year for the first time awarded all first places to males.

Minal Hajratwala, a sophomore at Canton High and assistant editor of the Perspective, was awarded second place and $500 in the Detroit Free Press Movie Review Contest. The movie reviewed was "The Journey of Natty Gann." There were about 200 entries.

M.S. Welker is the adviser of the student newspaper at the CEP.

She acknowledged that having a husband who shares her interests in nature keeps her dedication alive.

SINCE THE early '60s, the Edgars have travelled to wildlife habitats throughout the United States and abroad.

Husband Bill, a retired Ford Motor Co. analytical chemist, captures the sights with a movie camera while Evelyn takes slides. The results are turned into travelogs, which the couple show to groups around the state.

Edgar said her interest in Miller Woods was sparked when the Plymouth-Canton school district purchased the wooded parcel for a future school site in 1968. The unattended forest became a dumping ground for broken appliances, furniture and vehicles.

She developed a slide presentation entitled "Four Seasons in Miller Woods" in the hope of attracting attention and appreciation for the plight of the forest. She showed it in area schools. Miller Woods has since been restored to a natural state.

"I THINK environmental education in the schools is so important. We won't save such treasures as Miller Woods unless kids appreciate what's out there," she said.

"Children are not getting the knowledge and respect for wildlife from their parents because a lot of the parents grew up away from the woods."

Edgar admitted she is bothered that more teachers aren't taking advantage of the available nature areas to teach lessons on ecology and plant development. "I think a lot of teachers are scared to take kids outside the school."

She offers advice to those who want to enjoy area woods: There's no need to identify every plant — be open to the sights and sounds of a forest.

"Just go in, sit down, and be quiet. Listen to the trees creaking in the wind and the different songbirds. What you are seeing, man can't create."

BEER, WINE OR CHAMPAGNE PACKAGE LIQUOR DEALER

Panel chills cooler-deposit drive

By Tim Richard
staff writer

A state legislative committee stalled an environmentalist drive to require deposits on wine cooler bottles. It voted 9-1 to reject proposed Liquor Control Commission rules requiring 10-cents-a-bottle deposits.

"There's no authorization for this rule," said Sen. Patrick McCollough, D-Deerborn, who voted with the 9-1 majority.

"It's an exact replay of 1976 — only the faces have changed," said an angry Thomas L. Washington. He is executive director of the Michigan United Conservation Clubs (MUCC), the group which 10 years ago won voter approval of a deposit on beer and pop cans and bottles.

Washington charged the Joint House-Senate Administrative Rules Committee "ignored 90 percent of the people" by rejecting the LCC's proposed deposit on wine coolers — mixtures of wine and soft drinks that have made a big hit with young people in the last three years.

THE MUCC spokesman, known as one of the most potent lobbyists in the State Capitol, said he would seek

'This is a ringing endorsement for a part-time Legislature.'

— Thomas L. Washington, executive director
Michigan United Conservation Clubs

the support of the Michigan Farm Bureau in pursuing two courses of action:

First, it will support bills in both the House and Senate to require the deposits.

Second, it will start an initiatory petition drive to place such a law before voters — possibly on Nov. 4 — if the state Legislature fails to act, as it did in 1976.

"We did it (got petition signatures) in 45 days in 1976," Washington said, adding, "This is a ringing endorsement for a part-time Legislature."

The Farm Bureau entered the picture earlier this year after many farmers complained broken wine cooler bottles were harming their livestock and machinery. The groups are scheduled to meet May 2 to plan strategy.

BUT TO SEN. McCollough, the issue wasn't a matter of being for or against litter. It was strictly a question of legal powers.

"Policy is decided by the people or the people's Legislature — not by unelected commissioners," said McCollough.

"We go through this every week. It's not whether we like or dislike a (regulatory agency) rule but whether it's authorized by statute."

McCollough, whose district includes Garden City, said he would vote for wine cooler deposits in a legislative bill. "I think it would pass overwhelmingly once it got out of committee," he predicted.

Such bills have been introduced in the House by H. Lynn Jondahl, D-East Lansing, and in the Senate by Lana Pollack, D-Ann Arbor.

UNDER MICHIGAN'S

Constitution, all regulatory agency rules may be reviewed — and suspended — by a joint legislative committee.

McCollough is among five senators on that panel. Others are Chairman Ed Fredricks, R-Holland, Jack Welborn, R-Kalamazoo, Kirby Holmes, R-Utica, and Michael O'Brien, D-Detroit.

House members are Michael Griffin, D-Jackson, Tom Alley, D-West Branch, Dennis Dutko, D-Warren, Charles Mueller, R-Linden, and Ernest Nash, R-Dimondale.

All but Fredricks voted to reject the rule. Fredricks wanted to hear testimony from MUCC and the beverage industry, whose lobbyists packed the meeting room, before rejecting the rule.

THE HANGUP, according to committee lawyers, was over the 1976 "Bottle Bill" itself. The Constitution allows a law passed by voters to be amended only by the voters or by a three-quarters vote of the Legislature.

The question, said committee counsel, was whether the LCC rule covering wine coolers amounted to an amendment of the 1976 Bottle Bill. If so, LCC couldn't amend the law to include wine coolers.

A spokesman for Attorney General Frank Kelley said the LCC does have legal power to adopt such a rule. But Sen. Welborn denounced Kelley's opinion as "a political statement, not a legal opinion."

O&E names special editor

McGee promoted to new job

Marie McGee has been named assistant managing editor for special projects at the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers.

She replaces Martha Lofstrom who resigned to take a job with a New Hampshire newspaper.

McGee will be in charge of the creative living sections, entertainment pages and all special publications for the 12 editions of the Observer & Eccentric.

"McGee brings to the management team a wealth of experience and ideas which will aid in keeping our newspapers tops among suburban publications around the country," said Observer & Eccentric managing editor Steve Barnaby.

"She is a veteran who truly understands the needs of our suburban audience," he said.

An 18-year employee of the O&E, McGee was editor of the suburban life sections in Livonia, Redford Township, Westland and Garden City for the last four years.

She also has been a news and feature reporter and edited several special sections.

McGee was named O&E Journalist of the Year in 1985. She won three second place awards for for lifestyle sections in 1985 from the National Newspaper Association, Suburban Newspaper Association and the Michigan Press Association.

She has a bachelor's degree in journalism from the University of Toledo. Before coming to the O&E she wrote for the Wyandotte News Herald.

A Livonia resident, McGee is the mother of five children.

She is a member of the Livonia Arts Commission and on the board of directors of the Livonia Cultural League.

Cantonite nabbed in drug raid

By Alice Collins
staff writer

The U.S. Department of Justice went public in Detroit this week announcing federal drug charges against former Birmingham businessman Stephen Hagerman and his brother-in-law accused of heading a massive cocaine smuggling ring for the past five years.

The indictment alleges that Hagerman, 31, and John H. McCann III, 44, of Pittsburgh headed the operation, buying cocaine in several South American countries and smuggling it into Michigan and Pennsylvania.

Among the 22 people indicted along with Hagerman and McCann are their wives, Hagerman's mother and sister who live in Troy, his brother Douglas Hagerman of South Carolina, a Canton resident, and five men who live in the Birmingham-Bloomfield area.

The Canton resident indicted was James Johnston, age 38.

Also included are a Colombian diplomat and others in Michigan and Pennsylvania who allegedly participated in the illegal activities.

BIRMINGHAM POLICE Chief Edward Ostin said that the department wasn't directly involved with the investigation, "but we were aware that it was going on and cooperated with the FBI on it."

A uniformed Birmingham police officer was asked to accompany federal drug enforcement agents early Monday morning when they made arrests at residences in the city.

All of those named in the indictments have not been taken into custody. While some have been arrested and arraigned in Detroit, arrangements have been made with some of the defendants to report in on their own.

Neither the indictment nor federal officials have revealed how and how much, if any, of the cocaine came into the Birmingham-Bloomfield area as well as the rest of the state.

However, during much of the time the operation was allegedly going on, Hagerman operated sporting goods stores in Oakland and Macomb counties, including Hagerman's Warehouse Sporting Goods on Hunter Boulevard which went bankrupt at the time he fled the county in 1984.

Hagerman, also a race car driver, owned a house on Westwood in Birmingham; one on Elmgate in Orchard Lake; the Smoke House Sally's Restaurant in Petoskey as well as cars, boats and a variety of other assets. The government has seized his assets.

HAGERMAN, who was living in Vancouver, Canada, after fleeing U.S. Customs Service agents in the fall of 1984, was arrested Friday by Royal Canadian Mounted Police and is in jail awaiting a hearing on extradition to the United States.

McCann, former mayor of Somers Point, N.J., was arrested in February at the Canadian border at Sumas, Wash., allegedly carrying false identification.

The most serious charge against Hagerman and McCann is that of being federal drug kingpins. The kingpin law carries a maximum penalty of life in prison without possibility of parole.

The case was developed by the Organized Crime Drug Enforcement Task Force which investigates major drug trafficking rings, drug kingpins and money launderers, according to U.S. Attorney Roy C. Hayes.

The drug conspiracy involved bringing the cocaine into the United States by airplane, boat and pickup truck, the indictment said.

In one instance, the indictment alleges that in 1982, Hagerman and McCann were involved in the lease or purchase of a fleet of six jet aircraft to aid in the smuggling.

THE INDICTMENT includes 12 counts, with the 24 defendants named under various counts including conspiracy to possess with intent to distribute cocaine, conspiracy to import cocaine and conspiracy to defraud the United States by obstructing the Internal Revenue Service collection of taxes owed by Hagerman and his wife, Sally, and McCann and his wife, Leah B. McCann.

Sally Hagerman is reported to be in a North Vancouver hospital this week where she gave birth to the couple's second child last Thursday night.

Sally Hagerman and Leah McCann are sisters. Leah McCann's whereabouts have not been disclosed.

According to Hayes, the agencies taking part in the case were the IRS; FBI; Drug Enforcement Administration; Customs Service; U.S. Marshal Service; police departments from Birmingham, Harbor Springs and Petoskey; Grand Traverse Sheriff's Department; Michigan Liquor Control Commission; and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

District may benefit from change in law

Plymouth-Canton Community Schools could gain $25,000-$30,000 from the state, thanks to changes in how the state funds student transportation.

"It appears as if we may come out somewhere in that area," said Dale Goby, Plymouth-Canton director of transportation and safety. His estimate follows the state Board of Education's approval earlier this month of a new transportation funding formula.

Phillip Runkel, state superintendent of public instruction, said: "In some instances, the old reimbursement system did not reward the districts which operated their pupil transportation most efficiently."

"Each district received a fixed percentage of their total costs... whether its system was efficient or not," Runkel said. Under the new formula, some districts can recover a higher percentage of actual costs if a district is efficient in assessing costs.

The new formula bases funding on three major factors: miles traveled per pupil transported, depreciation cost of buses, and regional variations in costs and overhead.

"Some of these factors are controllable which can lead to more efficient districts receiving a higher percentage of their actual costs," Runkel explained.

"We've been using computers to route buses for seven or eight years," Goby said, explaining that efficient planning in Plymouth-Canton should result in increased state funding.

The rules were developed as part of the 1985-86 State Act for Transportation. "Because of the major shift in emphasis in this year's state aid act," said Runkel, "we have been able to simplify pupil transportation accounting and eliminate a number of complex, time consuming reporting activities of the local and intermediate school districts."

Dumas, 2 challengers make for spirited race

By Teri Banas
staff writer

One of the toughest county election battles this year promises to be the contest for the 10th District county commissioner post representing Livonia, Plymouth and Northville.

If incumbent Mary Dumas, R-Livonia, decides to seek her eighth term, she probably faces her toughest re-election test.

Even if Dumas doesn't seek re-election, there will be spirited campaign.

Already stumping and trying to line up support for the race are Northville Township Supervisor Susan Heintz and Livonia City Treasurer Elaine Tuttle, both Republicans.

The job of commissioner, which is considered part-time, pays $26,000 a year.

SOME POLITICAL watchers speculate that Dumas may retire this year.

Tuttle, who has said she plans to keep her job as treasurer if she is elected county commissioner, challenged Dumas in the GOP primary two years ago and lost. This would be Heintz' first venture in a county race.

Heintz has been building support among Republican party leaders statewide, including endorsements from GOP National Committeewoman Ronna Romney and Lorraine Thomas, vice chairwoman of the Michigan Republican Party.

"We're coming out with a letter in the next couple of weeks to show some of the interesting endorsements," Heintz said this week. "It should make a strong point among Republicans."

LOCAL PARTY leaders listed in the campaign letter include former Livonia State Rep. Jack Kirksey and Plymouth Township Clerk Esther Hulsing.

Political observers say Heintz was encouraged by GOP figures to run in the county election after they dissuaded her from taking on a senate race in the district, now represented by Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville.

Tuttle, out-spoken and often controversial, has proven to be a strong vote-getter in Livonia where she has served as treasurer for four terms. Livonia contains the largest single block of votes in the 10th District race.

ONLY ONE Democrat, John H. Kopka of Floral Street in Livonia, has taken out nominating petitions. The district is generally considered a Republican stronghold and "unwinnable" by a Democrat.

Dumas is presently the lone Republican on the Wayne County Board of commissioners.

Candidates may file for office either by paying a $100 fee, or by submitting petition signatures of qualified voters.

June 3 is the deadline to file of office.

IN OTHER western Wayne County commission races, incumbent Richard Manning, D-Redford Township, will run for a ninth term. There were no other requests for petitions or applications made with the Wayne County Election Bureau as of early this week.

Redford Township Supervisor James Kelly said this week that Manning is generally viewed as a strong incumbent and there's been "no rumbling" of a challenger.

Manning faced two Democratic challengers in 1984 and Republican opposition in the November general election that year.

In the 12th District, which includes Westland and Garden City, incumbent Kay Beard said this week she "planned to run again." Serving her fourth two-year term on the commission, Beard said she would wait to see what kind of opposition she faced before getting started on a campaign.

A POTENTIAL challenger for Beard is John Anthony Monge of Glastonbury Street in Westland. Monge, a Democrat, has requested petitions from the clerk's office for that district seat. He could not be reached for comment.

Beard two years ago fought in a tough contest against Garden City Councilwoman Mary Markowicz.

In the 11th District, which includes Canton Township, no challengers have emerged so far against two-term incumbent Milton Mack, D-Wayne. Mack said this week he plans to seek re-election.

A lot of attention will be focused on the east side of Detroit in John Hertel's district. Hertel, D-Harper Woods, has announced he would be a candidate for county executive. Two Democrats, have filed for the seat and two others have requested petitions.

IN THE 6TH District in Detroit, which is currently represented by Samuel Turner, a county executive candidate, three Democrats have filed for the seat and five others have taken out petitions, as of early this week.

In addition to a salary, the commission job also includes the same benefits afforded other county employees, including medical, dental and vision insurance.

Each commissioner has the help of a full-time aide and shares a secretary with one other commissioner.

Some political observers say that local commission candidates will have to work hard to generate interest in a race overshadowed by county executive race, which has six candidates, and a contested GOP gubernatorial race.

McNamara leads exec race — poll

A poll released this week by Edward H. McNamara gives the Livonia mayor an early lead in the primary race for Wayne County executive.

The poll, conducted by the Washington, D.C., firm of Laurer, Lalley and Associates, stated that McNamara is the first choice of 30 percent of the Democratic voters likely to vote in the Aug. 6 primary.

Wayne County Sheriff Robert Ficano was the first choice of 14 percent and Wayne County Commission Chairman John Hertel was the first choice of 13 percent.

County Commissioner Sam

Turner, D-Detroit, received 6 percent and assistant county executive Frank Wilkerson drew 4 percent, according to the poll.

Some 461 people were questioned countywide during the first week of April.

"I am feeling better about the race all the time," stated McNamara is a press release announcing the poll results.

A McNamara campaign aide, Michael Duggan, said: "We couldn't be happier. It doesn't take a math genius to figure out 30 percent is all you're going to need to win it out of a field that size."

Nonetheless, the poll still found 32 percent undecided.

NEITHER FICANO nor Hertel were available for comment by press time.

One Democratic leader, who supports Ficano, downplayed the poll's significance. He said Ficano had commissioned a poll in February that agreed McNamara was leading, "but not by those points."

The new McNamara poll also gave him a high name recognition factor, 74 percent among the likely Democratic voters.

The poll was compiled by telephone interviews and asked only those who said they were registered voters and usually vote in the Democratic primary, Duggan said.

In another McNamara-commissioned poll last summer, McNamara received a 26 percent favorable rating but out of a different field of five candidates. In that poll, Hertel was in second place with 18 percent and Ficano had 14 percent.

Meanwhile, McNamara campaigners received another boost this week. This one from Highland Park Mayor Robert B. Blackwell. Blackwell pledged to help the campaign among black voters where McNamara faces his toughest

Roll Call Report

Reps split by party on contra aid

Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll-call votes during the week ending April 18.

HOUSE

CONTRA AID — By a vote of 212 for and 208 against, the House approved a parliamentary strategy to delay or kill President Reagan's urgent request for $100 million in additional aid to the rebels fighting to destabilize Nicaragua's Marxist Sandinista government.

This put in place a Democratic plan to attach the contra aid to a $1.7 billion appropriations bill (HR 4515) that was headed for a likely presidential veto. But Republicans later sidetracked the plan, leaving the issue of aid to the insurgents, known as contras, unresolved at week's end.

Reagan and GOP leaders had opposed linking the aid to the appropriations bill and wanted separate consideration of the issue, in hopes that the House in an uncluttered up-or-down vote would accept a contra-aid measure already approved by the Senate.

The last time the House took up the matter, in March, it narrowly rejected the president's request for $70 million in military aid and $3 million in non-lethal aid. The issue is unlikely to return to the House floor before mid-May.

Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., supporting the Democratic strategy, said "The contras, even with this aid, have no chance of victory, and a stalemate will not pressure the Sandinistas to make fundamental reforms. Present policy sets us on a course of no win and high risk."

Opponent Henry Hyde, R-Ill., told Democrats their strategy was "trivializing an issue of life or death (and) is a form of blackmail. You are saying, 'Mr. Reagan, if you want your $100 million, it's going to cost you $1.7 billion.'"

Members voting no supported the president's request of $100 million in contra aid.

Voting yes: Democrats Dennis Hertel of Detroit, William Ford of Taylor and Sander Levin of Southfield.

Voting no: Republicans Carl Pursell of Plymouth and William Broomfield of Birmingham.

LABOR LAW — The House passed, 229 for and 173 against, a bill designed to strengthen the position of organized labor in the construction industry.

The measure (HR 281), which was supported by the AFL-CIO and opposed by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, was sent to the Senate. It makes it tougher for employers at construction sites to use non-union subsidiaries and affiliates to circumvent obligations imposed on them by collective bargaining agreements.

For example, it outlaws the practice of "double-breasting," which entails an employer with a collective bargaining agreement parceling out work to an affiliate whose employees are not unionized. To counter this, the bill defines multiple companies as a single employer for collective bargaining purposes, if they are tied together by ownership or certain other links within a given area.

Also, the legislation puts additional time-consuming legal requirements in the way of construction workers seeking to vote to renounce a collective bargaining agreement. Given the comparatively short duration of construction jobs, the work is likely to be completed before the decertification election is held.

Supporters said the bill is needed to counter employers who attempt to evade collective bargaining agreements.

Opponents said existing law already is strong enough to deal with the problems in the construction industry cited by organized labor.

Members voting yes sided with organized labor and supported the bill. Voting yes: Democrats Hertel, Ford and Levin.

Voting no: Republicans Pursell and Broomfield.

SENATE

HYDROELECTRIC DAMS — By a vote of 83 for and 14 against, the Senate passed and sent to the House a bill (S 426) giving investor-owned utilities an edge over public power companies in their competition for federal licenses to operate hydroelectric dams.

Upwards of 800 of these licenses now are in force nationwide, most of them held by investor-owned utilities. More than 200 licenses are to expire over the next seven years, many of which are being eyed by municipal and other public utilities as a cheap means of generating electricity.

Under the bill, public-power applicants for expiring licenses must prove to the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission they would provide better service than existing license-holders. Legislation pending in the House contains no such preference and puts the challenger and license-holder on equal footing at the start of their competition.

Supporter Robert Dole, R-Kans., said the bill is pro-consumer because it allows "those who presently receive the benefits of low-cost hydroelectric power to continue to receive those benefits unless a competing application is proven to be better."

Opponent Edward Zorinsky, D-Neb., said public power companies deserve the competitive edge because "the rivers and streams which drive these hydroelectric projects are public resources which belong to the nation as a whole, not to individual companies."

Senators voting yes favored the bill. Voting yes were Michigan Democrats Carl Levin and Donald Riegle.

Panel recommends state help conserve Greenfield Village

A state Senate panel recommended spending $970,000 to conserve two privately owned cultural institutions — Greenfield Village and Cranbrook.

Chairman Jack Faxon, D-Farmington, said the Select Committee for the Advancement of the Arts and Humanities made its recommendation this week after on-site tours.

Other committee members are Senate Majority Leader John Engler of Mount Pleasant, Sens. Connie Binsfeld, R-Maple City, Patrick McCollough, D-Dearborn, and William Sederburg, R-East Lansing.

ITS RECOMMENDATIONS:

• For Cranbrook, in Bloomfield Hills — $124,100 for restoration of its intricate water system; and $70,425 for preserving some bronze sculpture and statuary — total of $194,525.

• For Greenfield Village, in Dearborn — $275,000 for restoration of Thomas Edison's Menlo Park laboratory and $500,000 to start a sesquicentennial project in the Henry Ford Museum.

Faxon called them "the two most significant privately owned cultural institutions in Michigan."

CRANBROOK, founded in 1922 by publisher George Booth, is a "280-acre architectural and artistic gem... in serious need of repair and restoration," Faxon said. Total estimated restoration cost is $15 million, "well beyond their financial capacity."

Greenfield Village, founded by Henry Ford in 1929, is in the process of renovating five premier buildings for $1.28 million. The Kresge Institute has made a $400,000 "challenge" grant for the Menlo Park lab, where Edison developed the electric light bulb and other inventions.

The Village's sesquicentennial project, observing Michigan's 150th anniversary of statehood, will be a time-line exhibit showing how the automobile has changed American society. Faxon called it "the first major change to the Henry Ford Museum since 1929."

It will cost $6 million — half in time and materials from the museum, half from cash donations.

Senate passes Cruce's bill for MESC reform

State Sen. Doug Cruce, R-Troy, hailed Senate passage of a bill to make the Michigan Employment Security Commission more accountable, both to the Legislature and to government oversight agencies.

"This will undoubtedly translate into better service for Michigan workers and cost savings for Michigan employers," Cruce said as the upper chamber passed his Senate Bill 608 and sent it to the House.

THE VOTE was 23-12 with area legislators following party lines.

Favoring it were Republicans Cruce, Richard Fessler of West Bloomfield, R. Robert Geake of Northville and Rudy Nichols of Waterford.

Opposed were Democrats Jack Faxon of Farmington Hills, William Faust of Westland and Patrick McCollough of Dearborn.

The bill increases MESC membership to six members from four and gives the MESC exclusively policy-making functions.

It moves most of the administrative work from Detroit to Lansing. Democrats tried unsuccessfully to strike that provision.

Cruce said the bill also will "return to negative-balance employers approximately $22 million that would have been used for the plague-ridden automation project."

WANTED: CLERICAL VOLUNTEERS

The Senior Nutrition Program ("Meals On Wheels") needs clerical volunteers at its main office at 15495 Sheldon at Five Mile, Northville Township. The program's need for clerical help has created a backlog in servicing senior nutrition needs in the community. The program provides homebound senior citizens with home-delivered hot meals plus hot meals to sites in Plymouth and Canton. If interested, contact Office Manager Diane Barrett at 453-2525.

VOLUNTEER TRAINING

Turning Point, a non-profit community service of Growth Works Inc., 271 S. Main, Plymouth, is conducting volunteer recruitment and training to prepare volunteers for Crisis Phone intervention and phone line counseling. The training covers communication, empathy listening, building and bonding relationships, brokerage skills, crisis intervention, depression management, loss and grief, alcohol and substance abuse, and problem-solving methods.

Training is open to any interested person; no previous experience is necessary. After the initial training program it is required that volunteers make at least a six-month commitment to three nights per month. For further information and a training schedule, contact Sue Davis at 455-4902 from 9 a.m. to noon Monday through Friday.

VOLUNTEERS SOUGHT

Canton Care Council, an affiliate of the Ann Arbor-based Community Councils Association, is seeking volunteers interested in enhancing the quality of life for nursing home residents. Miller Woods: Spring should remind us of richness we share

THE ARRIVAL OF spring provides an excellent opportunity for residents of Canton and Plymouth to discover or rediscover one of the community's valuable assets — Miller Woods.

Miller Woods is owned and operated by Plymouth-Canton Community Schools under the watchful eye of a committee consisting of Evelyn Edgar, Herb Conant, Charlotte Gaffield, Beverly McAninch, Doris Chatterly, Jean Kee, and Penny Wright.

Miller Woods is a beech-maple climax forest located on Powell Road between N. Territorial and Ridge roads. The forest is open to school groups to tour and to the public at-large on special occasions. One of these times when the public can take in the beauty of the woods is from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, May 3 when tours may be taken.

During May Miller Woods is alive with a succession of wild flowers. First the tiny harbinger-of-spring followed by bloodroot and then yellow and white adder's tongue. Adding to the colorful scene are Dutchmen's breeches, squirrel corn, ginger leaves, and red and white trillium.

WHEN OUR STATE still was a territory much of southeastern Michigan was covered with hardwood forests, many of them beech-maple which for this region would be the natural culmination of growth.

Some 160 years ago the U.S. Government awarded title to 80 acres, containing the present Miller Woods, to Peter Teeple. The forests gave way to fields, and title to the 80 acres changed hands several times but the Miller Woods portion remained virtually untouched.

In 1902 Norman Miller purchased the farm which by now had grown to 120 acres. The Miller family farmed the land at the northeast corner of Ridge and Powell until he died in 1958. A decade later the school district purchased 40 acres of the farm, which included the Miller Woods plot.

THE WOODS HAS been in the hands of the school district since.

In the mid-1970s the forest's future became threatened by littering and vandalism. In 1975 the Miller Woods Committee was formed to help preserve the forest for the education and enjoyment of district residents.

Under the committee's guidance a number of garden club members, Scout groups, students, church groups and others have volunteered time, money and personal effort to maintain the woods. Because of those efforts, the community has a natural resource in which it can take pride.

If you haven't walked through Miller Woods yet, get your camera out, buy some film, and plan on joining the tour on May 3. It's a nice way to convince yourself that despite the weather, spring indeed is here.

The Observer congratulates the school district for maintaining title to the woods so it can be available to the community and to students. We also take advantage of the arrival of spring to thank the Miller Woods Committee and the many volunteers who have worked so hard to preserve the woods for us and for future generations. The Plymouth-Canton community is the benefactor of that effort.

When NRA barks, Congress rolls over

IF THERE WAS any doubt in my mind about what kind of representative national government we have in Washington, it disappeared when Congress approved legislation that will make it easier for people to buy handguns.

Despite the fact that law enforcement representatives almost overwhelmingly opposed the legislation, it sailed through the House of Representatives.

Instead of making it tougher to buy handguns, Congress wants to nullify most of the state laws now on the books that call for such things as a 90-day waiting period to buy a handgun.

The new legislation will supersede any state laws controlling the sale of handguns and make it much easier in most states, including Michigan, to obtain guns.

NOW, YOU would think that congressmen would be impressed by the testimony of law officials who are against making it easier for people to get easily concealed handguns. Maybe they are, but without doubt they are impressed more by the lobbying efforts of the National Rifle Association.

The NRA almost steamrolled the opposition on this one. Amidst all the debate, it came out that the NRA is one of the biggest contributors to the campaign coffers of our U.S. Representatives.

If it comes to a question of what's best for the country and what's best for re-election, the what's best for re-election wins every time.

It's no secret that organized groups who use the stick-and-carrot approach of legislators have a much easier time than the average citizen. But the extent to which Congress will buckle under to a pressure group like the NRA shows the extent to which the national government has gotten away from being truly representative of the people.

THE PRESSURE groups have the sky when it comes to legislation and the bigger the organization and more votes that the organization says it can bring to bear on the re-election of political officials, the more clout it has with the officeholder.

Bob Wisler

The NRA, with its 3-million members, has consistently been opposed to any gun-control legislation. The NRA's main argument is that people should be able to have access to guns because 1) they are good for hunting, and 2) citizens have a right to own guns.

The organization also claims that legislation controlling handguns does not keep criminals from getting handguns. Criminals, the NRA says, will get guns anyway; it will just be the average citizen who will have a difficult time getting a handgun.

IF THAT is the case, so be it. It isn't the career criminals who commit most of the homicides in this country; it is the brother, the boy friend, the girl friend, the pal, the drinking companion, the gambling acquaintance.

The majority of homicides happen during arguments between people who know each other. Alcohol is a frequent companion to homicide. Pistols are the instrument most often used in a conflict that ends in a death.

The availability of the gun is the predominant factor. If there were no gun, the argument could end with a fight, a bruised body, a smashed face. But there would be a chance to try to start again, to forgive, to forget. When the pistol is drawn, there is little chance left.

People delude themselves into thinking that a pistol is good protection. Law enforcement officials generally advise not keeping a gun. There are better ways to deal with a break-in than drawing a pistol from its hiding place.

The perils involved in having handguns in the house outweigh any possible advantage. Keeping a pistol is like keeping a bomb that you hope will never explode.

Lawyers cash in on roads

ONE SIDE calls it a liability insurance problem, blaming "bad management" of the insurers for soaring rates.

The other side calls it a "tort reform" problem, blaming overly generous juries, and a "sue-the-bums" mentality for bashing doctors, governments, bars and businesses.

I'm with the latter group, and as my first witness I call the Michigan Department of Transportation.

MDOT'S EXPERIENCE makes a good case study because it "self-insures." That is, it pays settlements and court judgments out of current revenues rather than buying liability insurance.

"We're not affected by liability insurance premiums," said Diane Davis, MDOT's legislative liaison. "We're not affected by interest rates (which help insurers reduce premiums)."

In 1978, MDOT had 212 cases pending, and there was a steady rise upward until by 1984 it had 439 cases pending. That's more than double, if we're quick at math.

The dollar payout was irregularly upward: $1.4 million in 1979, then $2 million, $5 million, $3.4 million, $15 million, $11 million and finally $9 million last year plus a $7 million judgment on appeal.

Those are just negligence litigation numbers. They are paid out of the roads and bridges construction fund.

NEXT LET US hear from Leonard Esquina, legislative agent for the Michigan Trial Lawyers Association. These fellows represent plaintiffs.

Esquina, in response to my question in a TV interview, blamed "deterioration of the road system" during the late depression for causing damages.

"It is not a result of anything that is happening in the courts," he said.

It isn't? Let's call back MDOT's Diane Davis.

"We attribute it to joint and several liability and comparative negligence," she said, citing a 1979 state Supreme Court opinion dropping the doctrine of contributory negligence in favor of "comparative" negligence.

In street talk, it means that a drunk who falls asleep at the wheel and rams into an obstruction on the highway right-of-way no longer is barred from collecting damages from MDOT.

And under the doctrine of joint-and-several liability, said Davis, "We could be 10 percent at fault and end up paying 100 percent of the claim."

"WE'RE FOR tort reform," Davis said.

Tort reform clearly is needed, despite what the trial lawyers say about leaving it up to the good ol' jury.

Joint-and-several needs to be reformed so that a party 10 percent at fault pays only 10 percent of the claim.

Venue needs to be reformed so that plaintiffs can't flock so easily to Wayne County, where juries have a Huey Long attitude about sharing the wealth.

The "expert witness" rule needs reform so that practicing doctors and medical professors, not professional storytellers with medical degrees, are testifying in our courts.

Some time limits for filing claims are needed in baby delivery cases.

A cap is needed on "pain and suffering" losses, which is a separate issue from fully reimbursing for economic losses.

Instead of suing the state or county road agency the next time we damage a car wheel on an unrepaired pothole, maybe we ought to sue the lawyers. That's where a big bundle of our road construction money is going.

We're raising children in fear

"LOOK DAD, I want to be honest. I'm afraid to go on an airplane trip with all the things that have happened lately."

I was taken aback, for sure. Here was an 11-year-old saying she was afraid because of the bogeyman we've created.

Later on that evening I watched American children who attended school in West Germany voicing similar apprehensions. Moammar Khadafy was out to get them.

What a crime, I thought to myself. We've allowed political paranoia to capture our children.

But on giving it further thought I realized that this paranoia seen in our children today came to the American scene some time before the present occupant of the White House.

Khadafy is the least of the problems when it comes to turning our offspring into children of fear.

I ONLY had to look at one of the editions of our newspapers to see the problem. Hitting me smack, dab in the middle of the face was an image that I've seen many times before, but really never gave much thought.

You've seen it too — a policeman fingerprinting school children. You've seen the other ominous signs — on the side of milk cartons, emblazoned on billboards and flashing across our television screens. These are the images of missing children.

For suburban Detroiters, the fear began when the Oakland County child killer kidnapped and murdered several children back in the 70s.

I recall T-shirts printed with a pair of hands and the warning, "Strangers, keep your hands off."

THE FEAR never has subsided — and not only is it stifling, it has blinded us to several of society's more silent tragedies.

In a recent interview, a Troy police official noted that all 105 children reported missing last year either were returned home or parents were made aware of their whereabouts. None had been abducted by strangers.

True, some children are kidnapped by people with sick minds. But most children are either runaways or have been taken by a parent. That's right, a parent.

We've developed a legal system wherein non-custodial parents are without rights — certainly a cruel penalty to be imposed on a person who is innocent of crime.

AWARDING CUSTODY is the ultimate example of the maxim, possession is nine-tenths of the law. Sure, non-custodial parents have visiting privileges (a strange word considering it is their child). But nothing is built into the system to enforce that "privilege."

Some parents, mostly fathers, become so frustrated, so hurt that they resort to being labeled as kidnappers. Every parent who wants to see their child grow up should have the right to that experience.

So let's quit wasting our time pasting children's pictures on products and start dealing with the real problems — kids and the relationship they do or don't have with their parents.

Washington finally reaches Fort LeBoruf

Sometimes a story can best be told in the actual words of the participants.

The old journals and diaries, letters and ledgers, clarify facts that may have been distorted by malicious gossip or deliberate lies. The political lie was not invented in the 20th century. So we look to the journals of George Washington and Christopher Gist for the truth.

Both gentlemen were keen, perceptive observers — intelligent, clear, coherent thinkers who knew what it was all about. Their journals clarify the issues and lend a meaningful reality to the struggle for control of this continent which began in earnest with Washington's trip to Lake Erie.

THE EXCELLENT graduate library of the University of Michigan has John C. Fitzpatrick's "The Writings of George Washington." The 39 volumes of material carefully edited by Fitzpatrick is a marvelous compendium of the Virginian's important writings. Fitzpatrick also edited Washington's diaries, a four-volume collection.

Christopher Gist's journals have been published by the Pennsylvania Historical Society and may be found at Burton Library in Detroit. The University of Michigan has a copy of Professor Kenneth Bailey's study of Gist. Ann Arbor also has Prof. W.W.

Darlington's "The Journal of Christopher Gist."

"Indians reject Washington's invitation to join the British" (Observer, April 10) continued our account of Washington's mission to the French.

DEC. 4, 1753, found them at Fort Venango where they were cordially received by the commandant, a prominent Frenchman formerly of Fort d'Etoit who had been raised by the Senecas.

Philip Thomas Joncaire, Sieur de Chabert, was the son of a French army officer and a Seneca chief's daughter. This was not the first mesalliance among the French that had not turned out well.

This tall, handsome, swarthy commandant had the unmistakable look of an Indian yet he was equally French. He had great influence and power, had the confidence and respect of the Seneca as well as the French.

Washington stepped rather cautiously beyond the silken fluer-de-lis of Joncaire's fort to observe what he could of their munitions and supplies.

To protect the Indians from the liquor and the wiles of the French Washington had requested that they remain in the woods under the "protection" of the English traders who had been accompanied them on the journey.

Tonquish tales

Joncaire, who called d'Etoit his home base, had the power, or so it was whispered, to take British scalps from Maine to Georgia. As a prince among the Seneca he was most influential in the Iroquois League. No doubt he could have stirred up a lot of trouble.

THE IROQUOIS LEAGUE, sometimes called "The Five Nations," included the Seneca, Ouyoga, Onondaga, Oneida, and Mohawk.

(By the way, Joncaire has a number of prominent descendants in the Detroit and Monroe area today. As a genealogist I am delighted to find these people nearby and at some future date hope to be able to bring you an interview with one of them who has a considerable knowledge of Fort d'Etoit in the early 1700s.)

At the dinner party that evening the wine flowed freely and the French became more than usually ebullient and talkative. Little did the inexperienced Washington sense the bravado and bluster behind their skillful badinage. Washington was 21 years young and a novice in the area of French and Indian diplomacy.

Young Washington remained sober and noted with some pleasure that the French seemed to be giving away their secrets. He did not realize that a continual barrage of threats was a part of French policy. They told him that it was "their absolute design to take possession of the Ohio Valley and by G — they would do it."

Then Joncaire ordered his aide to bring in Half-King and the other tribesmen until nearly noon before he could persuade them to continue the journey. Is this how the French control the Indians, Washington worried.

Nearly a week passed before they reached their final destination, the French headquarters at Fort LeBoeuf. Today there is a marker near the town of Waterford, Pa., about 40 miles from Erie, which marks the site.

Washington wrote in his journal: "At eleven o'clock we set out for the Fort (LeBoeuf) and were prevented from arriving there till the eleventh by excessive rains, snows, and bad travelling, through many mires and swamps. These we were obliged to pass, to avoid crossing the Creek, which was impassable, either by fording or rafting, the water was so high and rapid."

Of this incident Christopher Gist wrote: "All encamped at Sugar Creek, five miles from Venango. The creek being very high we were obliged to carry all our baggage over on trees, and swim our horses. The Major and I went first over, with our boots off."

On the 11th Gist wrote: "We set out, travelled about fifteen miles to the French fort, the sun being set. Our interpreter gave the commandant notice of our being over the creek; upon which he sent several officers to conduct us to the fort, and they received us with a great deal of complaisance."

WHEN HE STEPPED forth as official emissary of George II to Louis XV, Washington was dressed in his best uniform as a major in the Virginia Militia — the travel-rumpled suit had been packed in his duffle bag before he left Mt. Vernon.

Always aware of protocol and appearance, he stood proudly by VanBraan and Gist. As they waited the entry of the French commandant, Washington asked Gist to have some of their traders appear to walk around and admire the fort. They were to count the canoe and the canon very carefully. He was worried about what next spring might bring.

Soon they were ushered into the main room where they were greeted pleasantly by Commandant Legardeur de St. Pierre and his aide. Washington presented his letter from the Governor of Virginia and waited for a response. The French officer retired to translate it. While they were waiting they were permitted to wander through the fort.

Washington wrote: "It is almost surrounded by a creek and a small branch of it which forms a kind of island. Four houses compose the sides. The bastions are made of piles driven into the ground, standing more than twelve feet above it and sharp at the top; with portholes cut for cannon and loopholes for the small arms to fire through. There are six eight-pound pieces mounted in each bastion and one of four pound, before the gate."

Eventually St. Pierre handed a letter to be delivered to the Governor of Virginia in which he plainly stated that no decision could be made at this time but he would forward the Virginian's message to the supreme commander of the French in America, the Marquis Duquesne, who was in Montreal. He added that "as to the summons you send me to retire, I do not think myself obliged to obey it."

While wolves howled and the snow piled outside, a gauntlet was thrown deep in the American wilderness which eventually would plunge the world into the terrible Seven Years' War. Our story will continue next month with the long trip home to Williamsburg.

Thinking flawed, claims Chuhran

To the editor:

This is a response to Charles Zazula's letter and some of his flawed thinking.

The statement by Mr. Moore, that Clerk Linda Chuhran didn't feel the former clerk was doing a good job and this is why she ran for the office, is not misleading at all. The fact that John Flodin died in his term of office is immaterial. He was in office when she decided to run for clerk.

Further, his statement about Ms. Chuhran using township gas after the Board of Trustees gave her $200 in expense money could be considered libelous. She simply understood that is was $200 plus gas, she made no effort to hide her usage and some of the board members admitted that the resolution was unclear. Once the motion was clarified she promptly reimbursed the township for the $68 the very next day.

Mr. Zazula also complained about the litigation expenses. The $4,392 is a drop in the bucket compared to the entire monies spent on litigation by the board on other matters. The board and Supervisor James Poole have brought suits against many people and agencies over similar legal questions.

The difference here is that this time they are the ones being sued. In fact, last year's budget reflected litigation expenses many times over the original budget amounts by several tens of thousands of dollars and this does not include the $4,392 he is so worried about.

It should also be noted that this suit is not the first of its kind. A almost identical suit was filed and won by the clerk of Green Oaks Township, a fact which all the board members are aware. This of course was the reason behind the recall. After all it's easier to change the person who has sworn to uphold the law, rather than the law itself of one doesn't like the laws.

The question is, what if the next person is just as conscientious about unholding the law as Ms. Chuhran is? Do we go through this whole process again and again until the board members finally get someone who will ignore the law as they see fit?

Even more curious is that the clerk in Green Oaks Township is also female and the board predominately male.

tracks to see if they had pushed their way up through the ground.

Funny as it seemed, the dandelion was a good grower along the tracks. But we had to be very careful, so we timed it to play it safe.

It was an easy way to earn pockey money and help Mother with her meals. When we were playing around the yard, she often called, "How about the dandelions?" and off we would go.

BEING OF Pennsylvania Dutch parents, she made a dressing to serve with the mess we would bring asked, "Did you bring some dandelion? I am so hungry for a good mess with mashed potatoes."

The next day for dinner we had dandelions. And Mother just laughed. "I didn't bring it. I found it growing in your yard."

Then we all had a good laugh.

THE PENNSYLVANIA Dutch have many fond dishes that they make from Nature's gifts. But dandelion is at the head of the list.

At this time of year, The Stroller develops hunger not only for dandelion, but he would like to be back along the country roads and pick a few messes himself.

It became so popular that one of the railroads back home — The Chatsauqua and Fogelsville — set up a special train during the dandelion season and it traveled only as fast as the pickers moved. They did the same during the berry season.

What pleasant memories.

Tales of Opal

Actors bring adventures to life

By Julie Brown
staff writer

WHEN THE curtain goes up, Alvin LaCroix is confident the "Everybody Loves Opal" production will be in uptop shape.

"I'm very pleased," LaCroix said, pausing for a break during a recent evening rehearsal session.

LaCroix is director for the Plymouth Theatre Guild production, which will be presented at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, May 2, 3, 9 and 10, at Central Middle School, 650 Church St., Plymouth.

The action of "Everybody Loves Opal" centers on Opal Kronick, a junk collector who lives near the municipal dump.

Gloria, Bradford and Solomon, perfume bootleggers on the lam, appear on the scene. The three come up with a scheme to "bump off" the eccentric but loveable Opal for the insurance money. Their antics provide an abundant supply of laughs.

Several factors accounted for the selection of John Patrick's "Everybody Loves Opal" which LaCroix described as a good show for the entire family.

"A part of it is nostalgia," the group did the show a number of years ago, he said.

"It's kind of a melodrama. That's fun theater," the director said. "People like to do things that are fun in theater. And the audience likes that."

LACROIX HOPES that those attending the Plymouth Theatre Guild production will have a great time.

"Primarily, an evening of fun and laughter," he also hopes those attending will reflect on the play's interpretation of right and wrong as perceived in 1961, the year the play is set in.

Rehearsals for "Everybody Loves Opal" have been held several nights a week, beginning in late February.

"I've had a thoroughly enjoyable relationship with the cast," the director said. "Everybody's been very accommodating. They're all working together."

Karen Wendt of Northville is cast in the title role of Opal. Michael Gresock of Canton was chosen for the comic role of Solomon Bozo.

Rick Boldman of Plymouth will play Professor Bradford Winter, the "brains" behind the bootleg perfume operation. The role of Gloria will be portrayed by Andrea Logan of Plymouth.

Charles Bousquet of Garden City will play the Doctor. John Talaske of Westland was chosen for the role of Opal's buddy, Joe, the Policeman.

Some of the behind-the-scenes people for "Everybody Loves Opal" are: Rosemary Moorehead, assistant director; Holly Hissong, producer; Jay Stock, stage manager; Cheryl Selden, general publicity; Pat Gresock, group publicity; Joe Marsh, set crew; Cynthia Lewandowski, costumes; Audrey Redmann, props; Bob Polkowski, set decoration; Tobin Hissong, sound and makeup; Robin Galick, tickets; and Julie Heuser, house manager.

(For ticket information, call 397-2779. Tickets are $4 for adults, $3 for students and senior citizens. Group discounts are available. For information on group ticket purchase, call Pat Gresock at 455-8148.)

Director Alvin LaCroix works with members of the cast for "Everybody Loves Opal."

Solomon Bozo (Michael Gresock) lifts cash from the Professor's jacket. The Professor lifted the cash from Gloria, who had skimmed it by charging more for the perfume than she was supposed to.

The Doctor (Charles Bousquet) examines Opal (Karen Wendt) for the fraudulent insurance policy.

Solomon Bozo and Gloria (Andrea Logan) begin to realize they must work together in order for their plans to succeed.

Learning not to be a victim

By Julie Brown
staff writer

ONE OUT of three women will be attacked at some point in her lifetime. Of those attacks, an estimated nine out of 10 will never be reported to the police.

Embarrassment keeps many women from reporting sexual assaults to the police. Without those crimes being reported, however, it's difficult for police to do much about the assaults.

"We're not going to be Neanderthals about it, but we've got to get the questions asked and we've got to get the answers," said Officer Wayne Carroll of the Plymouth City Police Department.

CARROLL SPOKE Monday night at a meeting of the Plymouth Business and Professional Women's Club. The meeting was held at the Hillside Inn in Plymouth.

The officer's program included a slide presentation, "An Act of Violence." The slide presentation included information on steps to reduce the likelihood of sexual assault happening, along with information on what to do if an assault does occur.

It's important to remember that rape is an act of violence, Carroll said.

"It's not any kind of crime of passion. It's an idea of power, dominance and control. It's got very little to do with sex."

A number of steps can be taken to reduce the likelihood of a sexual assault occurring. At home, it's important to have good locks installed on all doors and windows — and to use those locks at all times.

Women shouldn't advertise that they live alone by using their full names on the mailbox or in the telephone directory. Those who receive a number of strange phone calls at home shouldn't hesitate to contact the police.

"You pay us a lot of money," Carroll said. "You might as well use it."

AT HOME, exterior lighting can be used to make a break-in less likely. Women should never let strangers who appear at the doorstep into the home; it's always best to ask for the proper identification.

When driving, women need to be aware of what's going on around them. It's a good idea to check the rear-view mirror regularly, the Plymouth officer said.

It's also important to check the back seat of the car before getting in. Doors should be locked at all times and the car's windows rolled up.

The car should be kept in good repair, to make problems on the road less likely. If a breakdown does occur, however, women can take certain steps to make an assault less likely.

If it's necessary to stop the car, women should get out, lift the hood and then get back into the car. If a motorist stops to offer assistance, it's best to crack the car's window just a bit and to ask that motorist to call for help.

If a car's tire goes flat, it may be best to drive the car to a point of safety, Carroll said. Although the tire and the rim may be ruined, it's better to be safe.

WOMEN WHO find they are being followed while driving should immediately head for a police station or other safe location. If trapped in the driveway by an unfamiliar car, it's a good idea to hit the horn.

"If it's not Uncle Fred, he's going to leave and that's what you want to happen," Carroll said.

In parking areas, women should choose spots that are well-lighted. It's also best to avoid walking to and from the car alone, Carroll said.

When walking to the car, a woman should have her keys in her hand, rather than having to fish through her purse in the dark to find them. Held between the fingers and used properly, those keys can become an effective weapon if an attacker does appear.

As with driving, women need to be aware of their surroundings when they are out walking. It's best to avoid dark, deserted areas and to wait for transportation in well-lighted areas. Women should never hitchhike or pick up hitchhikers while driving.

"Fortunately, in Plymouth we don't have a lot of problems," the officer said. Even so, it's best to be careful.

If a woman believes she is being followed, it's a good idea to cross over to the other side of the street and then to check and see if the potential attacker has also crossed the street.

"We have instinct," Carroll said. "Pay attention to yourself. You're your best defense."

If attacked, the first thing to do is to scream — no matter where the attack occurs.

"Number one, scream," Carroll said. "Scream as loudly as you can. That's your first line of defense."

IN RUNNING away from an attacker, it's important not to get trapped in a confined area. Women should look for a place of refuge, such as a convenience store or service station.

There's no consensus on the effectiveness of women fighting back during attacks. That decision depends on the specifics of each attack.

"You have to play it by ear when it happens," Carroll said. "You have to weigh the factors, how badly you're going to get hurt."

If a woman does decide to fight her attacker, a number of items can be used as weapons. Keys, a purse, a comb, a nail file or other items can be used to strike the eyes, throat, groin, kneecaps or other sensitive parts of the body.

Carrying a gun or other weapon isn't a great idea. In an attack, that weapon may be used against the victim.

Mace, which is packaged in an aerosol canister and used to stun a person temporarily, can also present problems.

"We got a lot of complaints on that stuff," Carroll said. "Stay away from the Mace, if you can."

If a woman does decide to fight back, it's important to be forceful, aggressive, and to strike early, the officer said.

Whatever it takes. You're not going to get prosecuted for hurting somebody when they're trying to rape you."

IF A rape does occur, the police should be contacted immediately. The victim should try to remember as much as possible about the attack and the attacker's appearance.

It's important not to bathe, shower or douche following an attack. Clothing worn by the woman during the attack should not be thrown away or laundered. Doing so may destroy needed evidence.

Going to court these days isn't as much of a trauma for rape victims as it once was, Carroll said.

"That's what we were dealing with. Well, that's changed."

Local woman honored

A Wayne State University faculty member from Plymouth has received the 24th annual Probus Club Award for Academic Achievement.

Dr. Marcia D. Andersen of Plymouth, associate professor of nursing, received the award. Dr. Joseph L. Jacobson of Huntington Woods, associate professor of psychology, also received the award.

The awards, given annually to Wayne State faculty in the humanities and natural sciences, offer $1,000, without restriction, and Probus Club plaques of recognition. Presentations will be made Thursday, May 1, at the Furniture Club of Detroit in Southfield.

Andersen is recognized nationally for her research work in the development of "personalized nursing" which led to several studies with drug-dependent women as well as in nursing clinical practice.

The Michigan Department of Corrections recently awarded Andersen a grant to use the personalized nursing approach with chemically dependent women inmates. The project is designed to treat women in prison and in their homes following release.

ANDERSEN WAS recently honored with a Career Development Chair for 1986-87 from Wayne State University. She also received the Michigan Public Health Association's Award in Excellence for Community Health Nursing Practice in 1982. Andersen has received several National Institute of Mental Health Education Awards.

The Plymouth resident joined WSU in 1978 and holds bachelor's, master's and doctorate degrees from the University of Michigan. She was the first person to receive a doctorate in nursing from U-M.

The Probus Club, which is granting the awards, is an organization of Jewish professional businessmen, established in 1939.

In addition to the annual WSU awards, initiated to bring recognition to the achievements of younger faculty, the club contributes gifts and grants to individual Detroit hospitals and charities.

The club has also provided financial assistance for the college education of more than 100 students. The Probus Club is currently sponsoring a Probus Apartment Club for the Jewish Association of Retarded Citizens, providing an opportunity for independent living.

Square dancing offers lots of fun

Today, I'll start with some information on our good friends at the Special Olympics.

As you may know, throughout the year various groups hold all kinds of events to help raise money to support this outstanding cause. This year promises no less in the variety of events or in the spirit in which these events are presented.

The next such event that I have been advised of is the 1986 Wayne County Special Olympics Benefit Dance, presented by Ron Seim's Heel Stompers. The dance is to be held Saturday, May 10, at the Wayne Community Center, Annapolis and Howe roads in Wayne. That's just a hop, skip and jump — or maybe I should say "stomp" — from Canton.

Stomp is just what they'll be doing. The Ron Seim's Heel Stompers are a square dance group, not unlike our own Canton Wheels. They perform at many local festivals and fairs, and are going to raise the roof on May 10 to benefit the Special Olympics.

There will be door prizes, square dance shops and booths for the square dance fanatics, and loads of fun for everyone. The dancing will begin at 1 p.m. and will continue until 11 p.m.

I MUST ADMIT that my square dance expertise ends at the junior high level, but I love it! Although square dancing doesn't come up that often, when the music starts, everybody feels like dancing.

I keep hoping that I'll get invited to a hayride, just so I can participate in the square dancing that usually follows.

At my stage of mobility in life (that's just past roller skates, but not yet in a wheelchair), I find it best not to get involved in any hayride "hay" fights. However, the dancing is just my speed; in fact, it is the only dancing my husband does at all.

For those of us who feel the call, square dancing can be quite a thrill, if we let ourselves enjoy it. So let's do our best to support the Special Olympics in this nothing-but-fun way.

For additional information, and all donations, call Ron Seim at 728-7273. As a final incentive, remember that all donations are tax-deductible. For those of you who have just completed your tax returns, this should hit you at a very good time.

ON ANOTHER SUBJECT, how about that Mike Lang! We have a celebrity among us now that Mike has just captured the elusive 300 game.

For those of you who are not bowling fans, that's a perfect game. That tremendous task was performed at Thunderbowl Lanes in Allen Park.

Mike, I'm proud to know you. Bowling is another one of the many

Program provides assistance

Project HERS (Homemaker's Employment Re-entry System), a special program offered by the Women's Resource Center of Schoolcraft College, provides career planning and guidance for displaced homemakers.

The program is designed to make entry or re-entry into the work force possible and less traumatic for mature women.

Displaced homemakers are people who have worked in the home most of their lives. They have lost their source of income due to death, disability, desertion, divorce or separation from the person on whom they have been dependent.

Financial aid is available to cover the cost of tuition for those who are displaced homemakers, homemakers, or single parents who lack adequate job skills and recent work experience.

Project HERS will meet from 1-3 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday, beginning May 8. For information on registration and financial assistance, call 591-6400. Ext. 430. Schoolcraft College is at 18600 Haggerty, Livonia.

findings, and the methods and information used in reaching our decision, will be available to everyone after we have reported to the township board.

We continue to need and to want all your comments and thoughts; we do rely on you. We also ask you to remember that in no way are our conclusions or findings final.

NOR WILL THEY obligate the township board or you, in any way. No matter what conclusions we reach, either you or the township board can just say "hogwash," and ignore the whole report.

Quite frankly, aside from the small group that showed up at the forum, virtually nobody has told us. We each get occasional comments from our friends and neighbors, but, in general, the citizens have remained silent.

We want your opinions and time is running out. Do you or don't you want us to become a city?

SOUND ADVICE.

There are some very interesting ways you can find a doctor.

You can ask friends, relatives or co-workers for a recommendation. Since there are as many opinions as there are people, you may end up with a confusing collection of names and phone numbers. Without having the slightest idea of who the doctors are or where they're located.

You may also choose to open up your telephone book and, well — good luck.

Or you can call Providence Hospital's Physician Referral Service at 424-3999. It's quick, professional and personal.

When you call the Physician Referral Service, we'll help you find a doctor close to your home or where you work. We'll put you in touch with physicians specializing in all areas of medicine. And if you prefer a male or female doctor, we'll see to it your preference is met. Most importantly, when you call the Physician Referral Service, you'll be put in touch with physicians who have a strong affiliation with one of Michigan's leading hospitals — Providence.

Save yourself from the time-consuming frustration of finding a doctor. Call Providence Hospital's Physician Referral Service at 424-3999 and get the sound, professional advice you need in finding a qualified physician.

The Plymouth Township Seniors meet at the Friendship Station Club

Hall, 42375 Schoolcraft, on the following days: Mondays from 10 a.m. to noon for euchre and pool, Tuesdays from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. for pinochle, Fridays from 11:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. and 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. for bridge and pinochle. Seniors living in Plymouth Township or the city of Plymouth may attend. For additional information, call Helen Krupa at 459-6259.

● DANCERS' COOKBOOK

The Polish Centennial Dancers of Plymouth cookbook, "Secrets from Centennial Cupboards," is available from group members. It features a number of Polish recipes, along with American recipes. The price is $5. For additional information, call Kathy Floied at 459-7255.

● FAMILIES ANONYMOUS

Families Anonymous, a self-help program for relatives and friends concerned with drug abuse or behavioral problems, will meet at 8 p.m. Thursdays in St. John Neumann Catholic Church, 44800 Warren in Canton.

● MOMS/TOTS PLAY

A Morning Play Group for Moms and Tots, sponsored by the Canton Newcomers, will meet on the fourth Friday of each month in members' homes. Sit back and relax over coffee with other mothers of infants and preschoolers while they play. For reservations and more information, call Linda, 981-0727.

● VFW BREAKFAST

Mayflower Lt. Gamble Ladies Auxiliary Veterans of Foreign Wars will have a pancake breakfast the first Sunday of every month at the VFW Hall, 1426 S. Mill, just north of Ann Arbor Road. Menu includes pancakes, sausage, eggs, toast and French toast. Cost is $2 for adults and $1 for children 5 and under.

● ST. JOHN NEUMANN SENIORS

The 50-Up Club meets at 7 p.m. the first Tuesday of each month at the church on Warren Road, west of Sheldon. New members may attend. For information, call Betty Gruchala, president.

Winning writers chosen

Winners of the Plymouth-Canton Civitan Club's Citizenship Essay Contest have been announced.

The winners are: Stacy Lynn Werner, first place; Janet Turner, second place; and Robert Clough, third place. All are students at Plymouth Salem High School.

Werner, the first-place winner, received $125. Turner received $75 and Clough received $50.

The contest was open to high school students in the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools. The students wrote their essays on the subject of whether there is too much sex and violence in the youth-oriented media market.

The winners in the Plymouth-Canton Civitan Club contest were Stacy Lynn Werner (left), Robert Clough, and Janet Turner.

Church has new look

COVENANT Community Church in Redford will celebrate the completion of its building project with a special service at 11 a.m. Sunday.

The service will feature the Rev. John Drummond, who helped found the church in 1938 and served as the church's pastor for 36 years.

The second, and present, pastor, the Rev. Dalton Myers, will preside with other dignitaries at a 3 p.m. dedication, followed by a buffet and a tour of the church. The 6 p.m. service will feature pictures of the progress of the building project and performances by guest musicians.

The yearlong construction project, called "Going on for the Glory of God," added 180 new seats in the sanctuary to give total seating of 600. A total of 5,200 square feet have been added to the basement and sanctuary level. A new library, church offices, choir room, narthex and elevator for the handicapped are included in the recent improvements.

The oldest church in Redford, Covenant had small beginnings in its present location when a church basement was constructed in 1940 to replace a frame building where the congregation had first met for services. Since that time, the congregation has since undergone eight building-enlargement programs, as the congregation has grown to more than 500 members.

Approximately one-third of the church's budget goes toward missions, and 23 members are serving in foreign or home missions.

The church is at 25400 Student, just north of Five Mile at Beech. A nursery and children's ministries are available for all services.

For more information, call 535-3100.

Air attack raises disturbing questions

I LISTENED to the president. I have followed the newspapers and television regarding our bombing of Libya. I have registered Defense Secretary Weinberger's claim that the bombing was "very ethical." I am not convinced. I am still disturbed by our bombing attack upon Libya.

I do not know what we as a nation should have done.

I am in the current minority of Americans who have heard and read all I can and I still feel disturbed and uneasy.

I received a letter which our bishop, Judith Craig, sent to all United Methodist clergy in the state which included her telegram to the president:

"Please in the name of democracy and peacemaking, cease further inflammatory acts and the escalation of violence in Libya. Pursuit of non-violent alternatives to terrorism is in keeping with Christian and democratic principles of this nation."

PEOPLE WHO TALK to me about this issue seem to be in two camps. One group defend the president's decision, saying, "It had to be done." The other group of people are upset, uneasy, confused and less vocal. Those of us who are in this latter group need to sort some sense out of moral perspectives

our confusion. This process must begin.

We are uneasy simply because we are not used to the idea of America attacking another country. We like to think of our nation as one which will defend our freedoms, or respond to attack, not strike out.

We do not normally see ourselves as a people who will bomb out of revenge or state preemptive strikes. Our national image is damaged when we strike first.

Regardless of the rationale given by the president, many will feel that like the Bay of Pigs fiasco and Vietnam, this is not our finest hour. World opinion is against us, and I feel diminished as an American.

A second issue is that this bombing was an escalation in violence. More terrorist acts are expected. More escalation may be suggested by our armed forces.

I have studied conflict resolution and conflict escalation. The present course of action by our nation seems to take little account of this issue. I agree with my bishop, we must not just escalate violence. No solution will be found, and it may get out of control.

WHY DID WE attack Libya and not Iran? Iran has supported much more terrorist action against the Western world than Libya. The answer is that Iran is too strong an opponent. Libya is small, weak, no match for the United States.

We dare not attack Iran or Cuba. I am uneasy with this fact. We will attack those who are too weak to respond, an only after we determine that the Soviet Union will not interfere.

Are we a nation who will attack the smallest guy on the block because we think we can get away with it without a bloody nose?

What about the means, the ends and the results of this action? Time will tell. Our family once considered going to court over an issue which we deemed just. Our decision was that the best possible court outcome would not be worth the costs and anguish.

We felt we were right but we didn't go to court. Arab leaders tell us that the costs of this attack in loss of good will with Arab nations is very high. We shall see.

THEN THERE is the really disturbing issue. Many Americans are Christian. Even our neighbors who are not Christian know our scriptures tell us "Love your enemies and pray for those who persecute you."

This central teaching in the Christian faith will simply not go away. Christians are stuck on the horns of a dilemma: We must pray for Khadafi and the Libyan people.

I believe there must be discussion and debate over this decision of the president to bomb Libya. If there is not a struggle within our souls and debate upon the street corner, then something has died in the soul of America.

It is important that we sort this issue through. This free debate is the most precious of our American freedoms.

● FAITH LUTHERAN

World-renowned organist Paul Manz will play a hymn festival at 7 p.m. Sunday, May 4, at Faith Lutheran Church, 30000 Five Mile, Livonia. "Prelude to Unity" is the theme of a program celebrating the proposed union of Lutheran churches in 1988 and their growing unity with other Christians.

Along with the classic hymns of the church, the festival will feature several new hymns for a new church, including the Kyrie and Hymn of the Day from "Una Sancta: A Mass in Thanksgiving for the Unity of the Body of Christ," being written by Manz in collaboration with the Rev. Walter Wangerin Jr. for the 1988 union.

The event is one of 24 hymn festivals being sponsored throughout the country by Christ Seminary-Seminex, a Chicago-based theological school. Manz is a Christ Seminary-Seminex professor and artist in residence at the Lutheran School of Theology in Chicago.

Sheila Roy, Turf Club receptionist, and Bob Raymond, DRC public relations director, exit from the upscale Turf Club.

Gluckman Designs came up with color schemes for the grandstand bleachers and benches outside the track area. The remodeled and repainted infield tote board will accommodate 12 horses for the first time in a decade.

Flying colors DRC facelift is a winner

By Marie McGee
staff writer

AS INTERIOR designers, Hank Gluckman and his son Kerry welcome a challenge.

One of the biggest they've faced in awhile though came when they were awarded a contract last February to totally redesign Ladbroke Detroit Race Course in Livonia.

Make it attractive and keep it functional was the mandate from the Ladbroke management.

And, oh yes, do it within two months and keep within budgetary restraints.

It sounded simple enough. After all, the Gluckmans were used to working with large areas. The Southfield-based firm, Gluckman Designs Inc., has completed a number of projects throughout the country, including several shopping malls. One of them is nearby Tully Hall. Another is Oakland Mall.

But it still didn't prepare them for the task that lay ahead of them when they took on the DRC facelift.

"Overwhelming" was how Hank Gluckman described his reaction at his first viewing of the cavernous interior of the Ladbroke Detroit Race Course at the corner of Schoolcraft and Middlebelt roads in Livonia.

"AND UGLY," he chuckled, in describing the clubhouse area with its 20-foot high walls with encircling walkways complete with iron railings. "It looked like a prison. The only thing missing were prison guards with machine guns."

Everything, he recalls, was painted yellow—a blah yellow at that.

The main dining room was almost as bad. One of the worst features was the presence of battleship plate—a half-inch thick partially covering the walls.

"Apparently the former owners had purchased stationary manure bins for the outside and were then informed by the city that they had to be movable. So the metal wound up on the dining room walls. You can't imagine how bad the room looked. It took a week to cut through the stuff to get it off," said Kerry Gluckman.

SWIFTLY, BUT surely the Gluckmans artistically swept through the huge property.

Obvious improvements to passersby was the rejuvenation of sagging entry gates which were shored up and repainted. It included all the signage inside as well as outside. Everything was redone to reflect the new ownership of Great Britain's

The Gluckmans used colorful awnings to make interior snack bars more inviting. To go along with the new look, a variety of new concession food items were introduced this season.

Ladbroke Racing Corp. It took something like 7,000 gallons of paint to transform the "yellow submarine" into a red-hot vehicle of fun and excitement.

Every nook and cranny was brightened and all food areas were given new treatment, including colorful awnings to add to a lively atmosphere.

The first thing that hits the eye upon entering the front of the clubhouse area is a mural of horses — each in a different color but in compatible tones.

The fusion of color conveys the feeling of horses in motion, explains Gluckman. It was his answer to the "open railing, prison look" that formerly greeted visitors.

MORE COLOR comes from jockey silks hanging from the suspended (they did that, too) ceiling. The silks reflect those in use at the Kentucky Derby, Gluckman explained.

"Color," Gluckman believes, "is the most versatile and economical design tool that can profoundly affect the way space is used."

Probably the most spectacular change was in the creation — in a scant 23 days — of the upscale members-only turf club with all the friendly warmth and ambience of a country inn.

Ladbroke officials were delighted with the finished product, but the best measurement of the effect of the improvements is the fact that market research has shown that the colorful renovation at the race course is a major factor in improved attendance.

For the Gluckmans, it's the same as being neck and neck in the homestretch — in a tight race against the clock — and coming in first with colors flying.

What's new blends with old look

SHAVE MY beard off?" I exclaimed in horror. "I have had this beard for 14 years! How can I just shave my beard off?"

My overreaction to my wife's suggestion set us both laughing. "Why not shave it off?" she asked. "Adam has never seen his Daddy without his beard."

"But I've forgotten what my chin looks like," I said. "Maybe I've got a cleft in it or worse — a dimple. Then again," I added, "maybe there are two chins by now."

With a protective gesture, I patted my chin and said slowly, "besides, I'd have to have a new photo for my column."

"Well, what's wrong with a new look?" she said. "If you don't like the new look, just grow your beard back again."

I DO LIKE new friends, new art jobs and new art materials, but I don't think I'm ready for a new look. While I try to decide, here are a few products that are relatively new.

Most people who casually enjoy calligraphy probably already know of the Elegant Writer by Speedball. This line of felt-tip markers offers a variety of four tip sizes and six colors. What is new, however, is their "Classic." The Classic is a permanent marker available in the same tip sizes.

Talk about classic, you should see the new quarterly magazine called the "Calligraphy Idea Exchange." This magazine is full of ideas, tips and insight into the fascinating world of calligraphy. At $10, it is not cheap, but then again this is a "classy" magazine.

Speaking of new magazines, if you are at all interested in commercial art you must see "How" magazine. This bimonthly publication lets you look over the shoulders of the best in the business. At $4.50, the January/February issue alone is a real find.

LET ME JUMP back to calligraphy again. The Double Header by Itoya is a great idea. This marker has a small chisel tip on one end and a very wide tip on the other. The ink is very black and the fiber of the tip is hard and sturdy.

I think the Olfa company's theme song is "Anything you can do, I can do better." They take old ideas and make wonderfully new products. A utility knife is certainly nothing new. But Olfa designed one with break-away blades so that one knife offers you 24 blades.

For the same $4.98, other companies offer only four extra blades. Olfa also has a nifty little circle cutter for only $6.98. It cuts up to a six-inch circle and comes with five extra blades hidden in a little compartment.

Did you ever wish you could put a felt tip pen in your compass and ink a circle? Or wish it could hold a tech pen, or a knife or a ballpoint pen? Well, there is now a thing called a universal adapter. It costs about $5 and it will allow your compass to hold just about anything.

Deka has long been my favorite company for fabric dyes. Their colors are brilliant and do not stiffen the materials on which they are painted. I always have my airbrush students think their Deka paint down to a "creamy" consistency. At least I used to. Now my students can use Deka's new "Permair," which is already thinned and ready to be sprayed. This paint is equally brilliant and comes in a host of colors including fluorescents and metallics. A 2½-ounce bottle costs about $2.59.

By the way, the beard is going to stay. I would especially like to take time to thank all of you who have called because you have missed my column. I appreciate your response.

This is another in a series of lessons on art and drawing by special columnist David Messing. He has taught for 10 years and operates two art stores, Art Store and More, 16338 Middlebelt, Livonia, and 265 N. Main, Plymouth. Messing encourages questions and comments from readers. You may call him at 522-6311, write to him at his store or in care of the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, 33203 Grand River, Farmington, Mich. 48024.

Cement floor, open-beamed ceiling, and merchandise in original cartons are part of the no-frills approach taken by the Warehouse Club.

Warehouse draws businesses' business

By Carolyn Smith
special writer

On any weekday, a crowd gathers before noon outside the Warehouse Club on Plymouth west of Telegraph.

When the doors swing open, shoppers fan out to stroll the large shopping carts down the wide aisles of the 100,000-square-foot building.

The club's 47,300 individual members and 3,500 business members come to pare 20-40 percent off retail prices on items ranging from frozen vegetables to office stationery and air compressors.

Strictly a no-frills operation, the building's cement floor and open-beamed ceiling add to its warehouse atmosphere. Merchandise in original cartons is stacked on pallets and moved on beeping fork-lift trucks. The club buys directly from suppliers and stores and sells the goods at the warehouse. There is no advertising; word of mouth is what is relied upon although the club's marketing representatives call on new area business owners.

There are no deliveries. "Everything is strictly cash and carry," manager Paul Miller said. "We have no salesmen, either. Members pick what they want and need."

Business owners are found standing in line with householders. Miller said gas station owners tend to stock up on oil, windshield wiper solvent, anti-freeze, paper and vending products. Landscapers buy garden tools and hoses, fertilizer, sprinklers, seeds and wheelbarrows.

HOTEL AND MOTEL owners buy bedding; party store managers head for candy bars, cigarettes, canned goods. New business owners buy the bulk of the club's typewriters, copy machines and office furniture, Miller said.

"Business owners can keep their inventories down by buying from us in smaller quantities than those required by other suppliers," Miller said.

Tony Bombrisk, owner of the Bourbon Street Gas Light restaurant and lounge on Telegraph is Redford, said he shops at the club once a week. "I buy some good shrimp here, and I don't have to buy cheese in large quantities. It's convenient and cheaper than I can buy from another supplier," Bombrisk said.

Wholesale members pay a $25 annual membership to shop at the Warehouse Club. If dissatisfied within 90 days, fees are refunded.

Pam Ransom is a group member because her husband is a Redford firefighter. "When my husband has to cook for the firemen, he shops here," she said. "Today I'm shopping for ingredients to can some chili. There's a limited selection here, but everything is very high quality."

LIMITED BRAND-NAME merchandise is in keeping with the warehouse's no-frills philosophy, according to Kerri Smith, membership manager.

"Unlike a lot of places, we don't carry six or seven brands of toasters. But we carry one excellent toaster at a very low price," Smith said.

Tuning in to franchising brings order to her life

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

The order for Anne Hart is simply not to take any. Instead, the owner of Precision Tune on Ford and Wayne roads in Westland would rather give them. And judging by Hart's almost instant success as a franchise owner, she's giving excellent directives.

Last summer, Hart had projected owning four Precision Tune centers within two years. Currently, she runs three in Westland, Dearborn Heights and Warren with another to open in June in Ann Arbor.

It only took a year. "I don't like people telling me what to do," said Hart, 44. "I'm an independent type of a person."

"It's not that I can't take orders. It's just that I can't take orders well. I know the difference between what's right and what's wrong."

THERE'S PLENTY right with Hart's business sense, it appears.

For example, to cut the high cost of winter heating bills at her tune-up centers, she recycles the oil that's been changed from cars in the garage and uses it in the furnaces. It's filtered repeatedly before use.

The process must be approved by the county and the city. It also has to meet Environmental Protection Agency standards.

As a result, Hart said the heating bill at the Dearborn Heights outlet dropped from $800 to $40 a month.

Such business smarts is something Hart didn't realize she had until the first purchase of a franchise in March 1984. Before that, she worked as a nurse, a real estate agent and at IBM.

"It's not that I can't take orders. It's just that I can't take orders well. I know the difference between what's right and what's wrong."

— Anne Hart
franchise owner

But taking directions, obviously, wasn't Hart's forte. She wanted her own business.

"I wanted a franchise because Suzanne's Boutique wasn't the way to go," said Hart.

She scoured banks to get the best financing possible. Then she purchased the Precision Tune in Dearborn Heights, which was in the red at the time.

AFTER RE-ESTABLISHING a customer base, the Dearborn Heights Precision Tune was back in good financial standing. In June of last year, she added the Precision Tune in Westland.

To compensate for her lack of knowledge, Hart attended Precision Tune's corporate training seminars in Beaumont, Texas.

"I didn't know enough about the automotive industry. Until I went to Beaumont, I was at the mercy of my employees."

STEVE FECHT/staff photographer

After spending most of her working life in the employment of others, Anne Hart has found her niche in self-employment via franchising.

She will open her fourth Precision Tune within a year come June. That's Steve Stawasz working on the car in the background.

Tourism bolsters state's economy

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Michigan's welcome mat better be dusted off because tourism in the state is the wave of the future.

At least that's the prediction of Beverly Payne-Draper, who spoke before the Livonia Chamber of Commerce Wednesday at the Novi Hilton. Payne-Draper, former newscaster and now spokeswoman for the Michigan Department of Commerce, said state tourism took a turn upward in 1985.

Payne-Draper estimated tourism and travel accounted for $12.6 billion dollars and created 281,000 jobs in the state in 1985. That's a 17 percent increase from 1982.

But people who live and work in Michigan still don't realize its potential, according to Payne-Draper.

The Michigan Department of Commerce is trying to change that with several programs designed to bring tourism into the state. One is a possible grant of $1.2 million to promote regional tourism. Public hearings regarding the program are expected to take place in June or July.

"When it comes to travel and tourism, we have an inferiority complex. We only think of California, Arizona . . . as places of travel."

Plans also are under way for the state's sesquicentennial (the 150-year anniversary of Michigan's admittance into the Union) in January of 1987.

Payne-Draper pointed out that such events like the sesquicentennial, the Grand Prix and World Series, also help business development in the state.

The state Department of Commerce has a federal procurement office and is involved in trade shows abroad in such places as Tokyo, with booths displaying Michigan-made products. China and West Africa are other places where Michigan-made products will be displayed in the future.

"The final element is promotion of pride in our state," said Payne-Draper. "It's one of the most important, and one of the most difficult."

"It's difficult because it's hard to measure. We know when it's there and we know when it isn't."

"WHEN IT COMES to travel and tourism, we have an inferiority complex," said Payne-Draper, the first woman and first black to anchor a prime time television newscast in Detroit. "We only think of California, Arizona . . . as places of travel."

Wage subsidies for youths available

Employers with job openings may qualify to receive up to a 50 percent wage subsidy for each new hire. The subsidies are intended to defer the costs to employers for training new employees.

Offered by Growth Works through a grant from the Wayne County Private Industry Corp., the program provides a recruitment resource for employers to hire and train eligible unemployed youths 16-21 years of age.

Training vouchers are issued to those who qualify under the guidelines for issuing wage subsidies. Vouchers are redeemable by employers who hire qualified youths for up to a 50 percent rebate on wages paid during a prescribed period of training.

GROWTH WORKS will screen new hires at the employer's request.

Eligibility screening must occur prior to the scheduled starting date for employment. Employers may also request an applicant referral from Growth Works' pre-screened pool of job-ready applicants.

Deadline for requesting training subsidies is Saturday, May 31. Employers and job seekers should ask for program director Paul Chamberlain or Paul Grimmer at 455-4090.

Use this list to calculate how well you will retire

Statistics show that 95 percent of Americans reaching age 65 will not be able to maintain their desired standard of living. This is no laughing matter since we live in one of the richest countries in the world. The reason for this catastrophe is simple: People don't plan to fail; they just fail to plan.

The secret of financing retirement successfully is to plan early and control the cash flow over a long period of time.

The accompanying table will help you determine how much you have to save to reach your goal.

Here are some guidelines for filling out the Savings for Retirement Worksheet.

In developing the appropriate numbers presented in Tables 1 and 2, we have assumed that your savings will earn 3 percent after inflation and taxes.

Line 1. Include all sources of income.

Line 2. Unless you strongly feel otherwise, choose 60 percent of your total income as your desired retirement income. This should give you a comfortable retirement income.

Line 3. Use $8,500 for approximation, or call Social Security Administration for a more accurate figure. If you are a married couple with one spouse working, use $12,750.

Line 4. Find this number from the fringe benefit person in your corporation.

Lines 5, 6. Self explanatory.

Line 7. Assume life expectancy after retirement of 10 years and multiply by 10.0. Note that this is simply an approximation.

Line 8. Include all personal investable money as well as savings and qualified plans (IRA, Keogh, pension and profit-sharing, 401(k), ESOP, and so on).

Line 9-11. Self explanatory.

Line 12. Obtain this figure from your corporation.

Line 13. Congratulations. You have just determined the amount you need to save to reach your retirement goal.

Happy retirement planning.

practically speaking

Shopping for the best home financing is almost as important as shopping for the right house because a small difference in the mortgage rate can make a big difference in monthly payments.

When looking for newspaper ads, remember that there are no federal requirements that ads for homes provide information about credit terms.

But the Federal Truth in Lending Act requires that if an ad includes a credit term such as the amount of the monthly payment, the amount or percentage of the down payment or the length of the mortgage, it must also include all of the following information:

- The interest rate expressed as the "annual percentage rate (APR);"
- The amount or the percentage of the down payment;
- The terms of repayment such as the amount of the monthly payment or the length of the mortgage.

If an ad includes an interest rate, such as the simple-interest rate or rates that apply for a limited period of time, the law requires that the annual percentage rate also be advertised.

If an ad says "10 percent financing," "the equivalent of 6 percent," or simply "8 percent," the advertised rate is probably not the annual percentage rate. The actual cost of the credit is likely to be higher. You should ask for the annual percentage rate and compare terms.

Country bands vying for awards

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

FORGET THE BASKETBALL and hockey playoffs — the country music playoffs are in town.

Lucille's Lounge in Canton was the scene last week for semifinal competition featuring 12 area country bands. All were vying for a $5,000 first prize and spot on the bill Saturday, May 3, at Joe Louis Arena with Hank Williams Jr., Merle Haggard and Ricky Skaggs.

The groups, cheered on by their families and all their rowdy friends, showed musical influences ranging from the King to cow-punk, from classic country to country pop.

Responding to advertisements posted earlier this year, more than 200 area country bands sent audition tapes to a New York City-based booking agency. The firm, Entertainment Services Group, judged them for Marlboro, the concert sponsor and organizer of the talent search.

Forty-eight bands were chosen to compete at four Detroit-area country bars. Of these, eight finalists will compete tonight in Pontiac, with the winner joining the Detroit show.

BACK AT LUCILLE'S, it's 7 p.m. — usually a bit early for serious honkey-tonkin' on a weekend, let alone a Wednesday. But the cars, pickups and equipment vans are ringing the packed-dirt parking lot on Michigan Avenue, as "Okie From Muskogee" blasts from the sound system inside.

As musicians set drums, amplifiers and guitars on the rail-lined stage, fans and friends line up three and four deep for free Marlboro T-shirts, baseball hats, and cigarettes. Musicians, some gussied-up in tight jeans, leather belts and cowboy shirts, others in sport coats, string-ties and leather pants, chat with friends.

The last two years, Dan Mead has organized the Marlboro Talent Roundup at various tour stops.

While he admits that bands have started to sound alike, some stick out. "There was a guy one time in Lexington, Ky. He was playing the 'Orange Blossom Special.' They had a fence around the stage. He jumped on the fence and was spinning and bobbing all over the fence. He was playing on tables. That was pretty hot."

Contest judges, Mead explains, rate bands on originality, stage presence, musical ability, audience rapport and choice of material. Each band gets 15 minutes to show its stuff.

A public relations representative promoting the talent roundup, Lisa Brumeloe, talks with Greg Southwell, a bandleader.

SOUTHWELL, 36, says his band's version of a Kenny Rogers/Dolly Parton duet should impress the judges and audience. "I also do originals," he says. As other bands pose for promotional photos near the crowded stage area, Southwell adds, "I only get nervous when the competition is tough."

Ed Bitner, bassist with Jim Patrick and the Grand River Band from Pinckney, sits with family at a rear table, waiting to perform. Asked if he's nervous, Bitner says matter-of-factly, "Oh, yea."

Soon, master of ceremonies Glen Marcos is introducing the first group, Gunshy. The band launches a song called "You Wouldn't Know the Real Thing If It Walked Up and Shook You by the Hand."

Gunshy plays solidly behind lead singer Cass Kalik. Besides long black hair, her other features are hard to make out. That's because she's singing from a dark corner of the stage. The bassist is in the spotlight at center stage.

"Usually," says Brumeloe, an Atlanta, Ga., native, "the first band doesn't stand a chance." This is because it takes a while for the audience to warm up to the performers, she explains.

GUNSHY SWINGS into an original song. A lively country fiddle solo sparks applause from the crowd. But it's not a fiddle: It's the keyboard player simulating the fiddle sound on his string synthesizer. Crashing drums mark the end of the song, amid applause and cries of "Wood-Hooo!" from the audience.

Bitner's group must be next — there he is snaking his way through the crowd, numbering almost 400, toward the stage. He sets up at stage left, in front of a backdrop painting of a lake sunset.

Band members are dressed in black pants, matching vests and white shirts. Waitresses circulate, taking drink orders. Some fans line a back wall; all tables are taken.

Bandleader Jim Patrick is opting for the Neil Diamond/Elvis look: long sideburns, tight black pants, bright red shirt open to about mid-chest, gold chain and rose-tinted glasses. A handful of female Patrick fans whoop it up as the band kicks off "You Can't Keep a Good Man Down."

After "Here I Go Home Drunk Again," Patrick shifts from a straight-forward singing style to an Elvis warble, on the King's "American Trilogy." Bitner belts out backup harmony as Patrick croons, "Look away, look away, look away, Dixieland!" He's backed by a crisp, military drum roll.

NEXT UP IS the Stillwater Band from Ypsilanti, last year's talent roundup winner.

"They're the best," says Barb Haney of Ann Arbor, a loyal fan. "Their harmonies are good and they're nice."

With eyes fixed on the band, Haney and friend Tina mouth the

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Alice Morgan and Greg Southwell of the Greg Southwell Band sing a duet at Lucille's Lounge in Canton words to the first number, "Nothing But True Love Matters." Lead singer Steve McCain, wearing a pale yellow sport coat, leads the group through changes. "Do you think they miss the steel guitar? I don't," Barb tells Tina. Watching from the audience now is Patrick, who takes a long pull from a beer glass.

Next up is Southwell, belting "Islands in the Stream" with perky Alice Morgan. After his set, Southwell complains, "I couldn't hear nothing. The monitors weren't on."

EVOKING IMAGES of the James Gang in vests, cowboy hats, bandannas and beards, the Jim Frost Band from Grand Rapids takes the stage like outlaws boarding a stagecoach.

Along with the usual guitars, the group is packing a mandolin, dobro, fiddle and harmonicas. As it kicks off "Orange Blossom Special," a dark-haired woman at the bar exclaims, "I gotta hear this."

In contrast, the Sagebrush Social Club wears tailored thigh-length purple blazers, string ties and hair styles comparable to Duran Duran. Next is a band from Standish singing about the Louisiana bayou country.

By 12:30 a.m., it's all over. The judges' choice: Derringer, whose members include local residents Kevin Kokko from Farmington Hills Bill Humphres plays lead guitar for Sassy, one of the winning bands.

Kevin McKay from Plymouth and Paul Smith from Livonia, and the band Sassy from Tecumseh.

Both bands will compete in the finals. Other prizes are $1,000 for the second-place winner, $500 for third place.

Doug Slocum fiddles for the Jim Frost Band. The winning bands in the semi-finals go to the finals, and that winner will play on a country music concert starring Hank Williams Jr., Merle Haggard and Ricky Skaggs.

'Beyond Therapy' is fast and funny

Performances of the Theatre Guild of Livonia-Redford production of "Beyond Therapy" continue Fridays-Saturdays, April 25-26 and May 2-3, at the theater in Redford. For ticket information, call 522-8057.

"Beyond Therapy" is another satire from the quill of that outrageous and rebellious wit, Christopher Durang. Having taken shots at the family, movies and religion in the past, he now does a number on psychiatrists.

And the Theatre Guild of Livonia-Redford hardly miss a beat as it romps through this contrived but very funny comedy. Durang also manages to say a serious word or two about relationships. Of course, he makes them something less than conventional.

The plot (the little there is) centers around a young woman who has answered a personal ad. As the play opens, she meets her Mr. Right in a restaurant.

GUESS WHAT. He has a male lover. But he is seeking new vistas with the opposite sex. Both are seeing therapists (she has been to bed with hers). His is a bizarre redhead, who talks a stream-of-consciousness incantation of psychiatric mumbo-jumbo. What follows is a series of dilemmas and therapy sessions that are absurd in nature, and quite amusing.

Our two would-be lovers, Prudence and Bruce, are played by Marybeth Lilburn and John Eastman. Both have a nice flair for comedy. Eastman, with just a hint of gayness in the character of Bruce, gets the evening off on just the right note when he tells Prudence, "I hope I'm not too macho for you."

Although one expects her to have a bigger negative reaction after learning of Bruce's bisexual persuasion, Lilburn carries off the rest of the evening with a frantic desperation that fits her role.

Adding a nice accent is a piano in the background playing "Someone to Watch Over Me."

Vicki Craven plays Bruce's mildly crazy therapist, Mrs. Wallace. She makes Dr. Ruth seem tame. Her office resembles a nursery. She plays ventriloquist with a snoop dog, munches cookies to control her sugar problem and dispenses psychiatric jargon to her patients. It's a boffo performance.

Victoria Diaz

Dull script slows 'No Sex Please'

Performances of the Spotlight Players production of "No Sex Please, We're British!" continue at 8 p.m. Friday-Saturday, April 25-26, at the John Glenn High School Auditorium in Westland. For ticket information call 729-6453.

There are a few good laughs in "No Sex Please, We're British!" as presented by the Spotlight Players of Wayne-Westland. There are some good performances. The brightly lit, almost cartoonish set complements the zany goings-on to a T, and the cast seems confident and comfortable with its material.

But, simply put, this contemporary comedy by Anthony Marriott and Alistair Foot — directed here by Carla Lenhoff — just doesn't ever really get past its stereotypical situations and characters. It's hard to say whether a stepped-up pace might make things work a bit better. Maybe. As is, the first act is fairly entertaining, but much of the second act is just plain tiresome.

Tobin Hissong and Mary Jo Cobello are attractive and appealing as newlyweds Peter and Frances Hunter, caught in the middle of some muddled mixup which keeps them oversupplied with regular shipments of dirty pictures, films and books they haven't asked for.

As the visiting, meddlesome mother-in-law, Helen DeJulio does a good job, as does Marvin Nochman, playing her slightly lecherous boyfriend.

upcoming things to do

MUSICAL HIT

"Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat" will be presented by the Birmingham Theatre as the final production of the 1985-86 season, opening Friday, May 9, and continuing through Sunday, June 8. The show has music and lyrics by Andrew Lloyd Webb and Tim Rice, creators of "Jesus Christ, Superstar" and "Evita." Previews will be given at 8 p.m. Friday-Saturday, May 9-10, and 2 and 7 p.m. Sunday, May 11. For ticket information, call the box office at 644-3533. The 7 p.m. May 11 performance is a benefit for ORT; for benefit tickets call 355-9151.

JAZZ BAND

A concert by the OCC Stage Jazz Band will be given at 8 p.m. Thursday, April 24, at the Oakland Community College Smith Theatre on the Orchard Ridge Campus in Farmington Hills. Craig Strain will conduct the program of contemporary jazz tunes, as well as a handful of traditional hits. Strain, who also leads the Brookside Jazz Ensemble, has invited vocalist Julie Fitzpatrick to accompany the band for a number of songs. For tickets at $3, call the box office at 471-7700.

BONSTELLE CAST

Two Southfield residents, Erit Gill and Rodney Masserman, are appearing in the Bonstelle Theatre production of Tennessee Williams' romantic comedy "Period of Adjustment." Not all changes are for the better RULES, RULES, RULES. Can't live with them and can't live without them. Sports are particularly vulnerable to this paradox. Where else are rules so strictly, so visibly defined?

But it's never enough. People, you see, share a common deficiency. They are never satisfied.

They constantly tinker with long-established standards. Some firmly believe their suggestions for change are for the good of the game; others will recite such rhetoric, but their true incentive, hidden and unspoken, is how the change will benefit them.

Perhaps. But like the rules sometimes are, change isn't always right. It doesn't always mean improvement.

Three changes in sports: One is already on the books, one is currently under strong consideration, a third is in its infancy.

IN THE BOOKS is the NCAA rule regarding three-point field goals in basketball. The college rule awards three points for any shot made from behind an arc 19 feet, nine inches from the basket.

Coaches within the Observer & Eccentric coverage area were split on the change — two in favor (Schoolcraft College coach Rocky Watkins and Orchard Lake St. Mary's coach Tim Domke), and two against (Oakland University coach Greg Kampe and Oakland Community College coach Lynn Reed).

The reasoning of each coach was, well, reasonable. But understand, each also had his own, personal incentive. OU's Kampe, for example, has worked to build a big, strong team capable of dominating in the paint. Now that his goal is within reach, the game is being taken away from the big men and given to the jump shooter.

OLSM and SC are known for strong perimeter shooting. Getting three points for their jumpers instead of two will greatly enhance their victory chances.

LOST IN THE argument is recruiting. Big, strong players are still in demand, but their value has slipped slightly. And the guards most teams sought before were at their best driving to the hoop. No more. Why drive when a 20-footer will earn three?

Note, too, why a player like North Farmington's Rick Anderson remained unsigned for so long. Before the change, Anderson was borderline Division I. But his strengths — namely, 6-foot-5 height coupled with a great outside shot — increased his value. Eastern Michigan finally won a drawn-out battle for Anderson, beating out Kent State, Bowling Green and Western Michigan.

One point all four local coaches did agree on, and I with them: The three-point line is much too close. Moving it back to 21 feet would be more reasonable. There's going to be a lot of Spud Webb-type heroes next year, 5-7 guys hitting from less than 20 feet.

Defenses will suffer, too, and that's a shame. No one can afford to play a zone with a three-point shot available. My feeling is the change takes away part of the attraction of college basketball. What separated the NCAA game from the pros was defense.

CHANGE NO. 2: Look for the Michigan High School Athletic Association (MHSAA) to adopt a revised football playoff format in the next two weeks. The one drawing most favorable attention would keep the expanded version (16 teams per class, instead of eight), with the ninth game as the first round of playoffs.

As you may recall, both last year and this year the calendar had an extra week in the season, so an extra week of playoffs could be added without altering the regular season or the Saturday-after-Thanksgiving date for the finals. That changes in 1987.

The MHSAA has to make a decision for 1987, and the one favored by their playoff committee is fine. The alternatives were opening the season a week earlier — but that's before Labor Day and offtimes prior to the start of school — or going back to the eight-team format.

THE PLAN endorsed by the playoff committee would have teams qualify for the state playoffs after eight games. Whoever they scheduled as their ninth-game opponents would then play each other.

One problem with this plan is its interference with the playoff formats for the Catholic League and Western Lakes Activities Association, which normally play their championships on the ninth week. That can be circumvented by opening league play a week earlier and eliminating an early-season non-league opponent.

I like this change. And in an MHSAA survey of the schools that participated in the expanded playoffs last year, the consensus was strongly (roughly two-to-one) in favor of keeping the 16-team-per-class format.

CHANGE NO. 3: OK, so there isn't a major clamoring among state high school baseball coaches to follow the Catholic League's example and switch to a 3-2 rule. I think there should be.

Arguments against range from it isn't true baseball — the rule allows three balls for a walk and two strikes for a strikeout — to that it wouldn't make any difference.

I have to believe it would. Games certainly would be shorter, and in Michigan's unpredictable weather that would be a blessing. It would be particularly beneficial in after-school double-headers, where darkness sometimes intervenes.

I think the number of walks would decrease, too. Batters would have to be more aggressive.

A 3-2 rule would save pitches, which in turn would reduce the strain on young arms. It's something worth considering.

The Patriots rallied to gain a 4-4 tie with heavily-favored Plymouth Canton Monday night.

"We certainly aren't a Livonia Stevenson-caliber team, but they should take us seriously," Brda said of the Chiefs. "We tied them last year, too."

It didn't look like Canton was taking anyone for granted early. The Chiefs scored the first three goals of the game. Kendra Whiteley, Molly Menarde and Kellie Dailey each scored in the first half.

But after that, Canton cruised and Franklin caught up.

Sophomore Deanne Brda, who scored three goals in the match, and Kelly Holzwart scored before the end of the half to bring Franklin into contention.

Said Brda: "Our defensive team was super strong. This ended up a good game, I'm very happy."

The Patriots are 2-2-1 on the year.

CHURCHILL 13, HARRISON 0: Amy Weber, Jamie Kubacki and Chris Paciero scored two goals each as unbeaten Livonia Churchill had an easy time with winless Farmington Harrison on Monday.

The Chargers (7-0-1) also got goals from Liz Monroe, Jennifer Huegli, Colleen Churchill, Kolleen Allen, Julie Myers, Kathy Kelley and Jennifer Flowers.

The Hawks are 0-3-1.

STEVENSON 19, W.L. CENTRAL 0: While we're on the subject of blowouts...

Mary Pelloni and Karen Carney tallied four goals apiece, Michelle Hussey three and Maureen Sudek two Monday to lead visiting Livonia Stevenson.

Shots on goal for this match: 40-0 in favor of the Spartans. Perhaps the Michigan High School Athletic Association should initiate a mercy rule in soccer.

Salem takes 5th, Canton 6th at Elks Relay meet

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Dearborn High may only be a Class B school, but when it comes to boys track, the Pioneers are Class A all the way.

Facing 10 other schools with bigger enrollments, Dearborn won the Elks Relays Saturday at Plymouth Salem by scoring 60 points, the highest total ever in the 21st running of the event.

Defending champion Redford Bishop Borgess was a distant second with 40, followed by Redford Catholic Central, 33; Livonia Stevenson, 29; and Plymouth Salem, 25. (See complete statistical summary.)

"The difference is that we scored in all 14 events, and Borgess scored in nine," said Dearborn coach Bob Bridges. "We're the only 'B' team in the field, but this is a meet designed so everybody uses all their people."

Dearborn came into the meet a favorite after finishing third at a pair of indoor meets — the Huron and Spartan Relays.

THE PIONEERS grabbed three first-place finishes including the high jump, pole vault and four mile relays.

Borgess won the 440, 880 and mile relays, along with the low hurdles event.

Corey Ivey, Eric Harp, Ivan Cotman and anchorman Marion Pittman were clocked in 44.1 in the 440 and 1:30.2 in the 880.

Brian Kelly was the anchorman for Borgess in the mile and low hurdle relays.

He teamed up with Sean Darkins, Mark Pittman and Jon Tower to win the hurdles in 1:23.5. The Pittman brothers, Cotman and Kelly took the mile relay in 3:28.3.

CC was bolstered by its winning shot put and discus relay teams. Dan Nash, Tom Elfrid, Matt Fras and Perry Pinto hooked up for a combined 185 feet, 5 inches in the shot put. Nash, Elfrid and Fras also won the discus (358-3).

Plymouth Canton, despite finishing sixth in the team standings, captured the long jump relay (Tyrone Reeves, Roger Trice and Geoff Estevez) and the high hurdles relay (Dan Houdek, Larry Allman, Jake Michaelson and Bryan Whiteley).

STEVENSON'S LONE FIRST came in the heavy relay, where shot put/discus throwers Matt Pulick, Kevin Belyk, Don Gutekunst and Nick Petouhoff ran a 48.4 in the 440 relay.

Salem, fifth in the team standings, failed to gain a first place finish.

The Rocks took second in the high jump relay (Tony Moore, Mike Albertson and Doug Soho) and low hurdles (Sean O'Hare, Doug Olender, Keith Smith and Chris Hill).

Salem, running for the first time this season, also chalked up third-place finishes in the 440 relay (Bill Campbell, Dave Anason, Lamar Crayton and Garrett Bowie) and mile relay (Jeff Armstrong, Hill, Brian Tiller and Brian Neuhardt).

One year ago this week the Scouts were out in droves to see Walled Lake Westerns hot pitcher Dan Gabriele. But, what they ended up seeing was an impressive 5-4 victory by Salem.

Salem was the first team to get a hit off Gabriele for the season.

Canton couple named Michigan runners of year

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

There's no known medical treatment for the addiction Melba Hatch and Bill Boyd have.

And the runners from Canton, who were both selected Runners of the Year in 1985 by Michigan Runner magazine, hope one isn't found soon.

Hatch and Boyd just love to run, be it in snow, rain or searing heat. They even have their support group, the Redford Roadrunners, who all have the same compulsion to run.

Each has pretty much the same story on how it started. For Hatch, the love of running started in 1981.

"I started up for health reasons like everyone else," admitted Hatch, 57, who works for Grand Trunk Railroad in Detroit. "One thing led to another and someone suggested that I race."

"It gets in your blood."

"I WAS OVERWEIGHT and I needed some exercise," explained Boyd, 44, an accountant for the Ford Motor Co. "It started as a bet and I ended up in a five-mile road race."

They both appear to be headed for a life term of running.

Michigan Runner, which will honor both at the Old Kent 15½-mile race in Grand Rapids, polled its readers to select the top runners in the state.

Hatch received the most votes and was selected the overall Michigan Runner of the Year. Boyd was runner-up and was tagged Male Michigan Runner of the Year.

The distinction doesn't have family members crying by their windows at night. In fact, they're quite proud.

"My son and husband were very proud of me when I was selected Michigan Runner of the Year," said Hatch. "It kind of caught them by surprise."

"It feels good," said Boyd. "You've got to have a good year as a runner to even be a candidate."

AND A GOOD year is what both Hatch and Boyd had in 1985.

Hatch broke three national records for her age last year. She set the mark in the 10-mile for a 57-year-old at the Bobby Crim Flint with a time of 1:11.43.

In Chicago, she also set the 12-kilometer mark with a time of 52:57. Hatch also set a two-mile mark for her age in a seniors track meet in Redford with a clocking of 13:46.

Boyd was the master of the Masters in 1985. He won the Masters for his age group (40-49) at the Detroit Free Press Marathon and the Old Kent run, along with half marathons in Port Huron and Williamston.

He was 23rd overall at the Free Press Marathon in 1985.

So, it's obvious both have come a long way from the first time they started running.

"IT WAS DIFFICULT at first," said Boyd, who's trimmed down from close to 200 pounds to 160. "The first couple of weeks I hated it. Now I'm hooked on running."

"I didn't like it in the beginning," added Hatch. "I didn't like it until I started training for races."

Both, in a relatively short amount of time, have accumulated plenty of race experience. Hatch, in addition to the Redford Roadrunners, belongs to the Ann Arbor Track Club.

Boyd has been involved in a few Boston Marathons.

Melba Hatch of Canton was voted the state's Runner of the Year by Michigan Runner magazine.

"It's fantastic," said Boyd of the Boston Marathon. "Boston is the one with all the tradition in it. Plus you get a lot of notoriety as a runner since you have to qualify for it."

At the Free Press Marathon, the Redford Roadrunners are well-represented. Members not running in the race usually work as a support group to help runners that are.

After all, birds of a feather run together.

Sue Zatorski, Kim Paterson, Carrie Nemec, Lori Green, Charlene Sudek and Marci Jamrog also scored for the Spartans.

Elaine Zager recorded her fifth shutout. The Spartans are 6-0.

SALEM 5, FARMINGTON 0: Defense won this match for Plymouth Salem on Saturday.

Goalies Ellen Schnackel and Jenny Cebula faced only seven shots, thanks to the outstanding play of defenders Chris Casler, Michelle Cygan, Nikki Stojeba and Maria Wordhouse. Midfielders Lisa Hysko and Tracy Krajewski also played well.

Jill Estey, Suzie Balconi, Julie Tortora, Jennifer Belhart and Missy Smith all scored goals while Belhart, Terri King, Estey and Tortora notched assists.

The Rocks are 3-1-1 on the season.

MERCY 8, GALLAGHER 0: The Marlins had things going their way Tuesday, beating host Harper Woods Bishop Gallagher on a windy and cold day on a muddy field.

Farmington Hills Mercy got a four-goal effort from sophomore center-forward Stacy Nolte.

Karen Baidas, Maribeth Knight, Jenny Kuzma and Kathy Rush also scored for the Marlins, now 2-1-1 on the season.

Canton's Fuller wins Bloomfield

By Marty Budner
staff writer

Just because it was a half-marathon, it doesn't mean the runners gave half the effort.

Quite the contrary. The sixth-annual West Bloomfield Half-Marathon on Sunday attracted 820 registrants with a near-record 744 runners and a few more "bandits" completing the 13.1-mile course. Runners came from more than 100 cities across the state, and the field included athletes from Ohio and Ontario.

"It was a near-perfect day for the race," said race director Sally Pierce of the West Bloomfield Parks and Recreation which co-sponsored the event along with Henry Ford Hospital's West Bloomfield Center.

Under cool temperatures and a light wind, Canton resident Craig Fuller, 30, won the race in a course-record time of 1 hour, 8 minutes and 54 seconds. The previous record of 1:10:21 was set by Orchard Lake St. Mary's High School track coach Larry Fisher in 1984.

Cynthia Poly-Barnett, 23, of Pontiac won the women's race in 1:25:18. Jimbo Boyd, 27 of Farmington Hills, was the first wheelchair athlete entered and finished the winding, hilly course through scenic West Bloomfield residential areas.

"The course isn't perfect as a wheelchair course since it's so hilly, and a small portion of it is over dirt roads," said Pierce. "But we understand that Jimbo even covered the unpaved portion of the course."

FULLER, a substitute teacher for the Plymouth-Canton schools, and West Bloomfield resident John Grabowski ran shoulder-to-shoulder for the first five miles of The Athletic Congress-sanctioned race.

However, Fuller began his move at the 5 1/2-mile mark and Grabowski never caught him.

"I tried to run 5:15 miles and I pretty much maintained that same pace throughout the race," said Fuller, a former track coach at Central Michigan University. "I wanted to run long and hard and (the Half-Marathon) was a nice place to do it."

Fuller, who has participated in four full marathons, said because of his duties as the interim head coach at CMU last year, he hasn't spent much time training over the past year. He indicated he was pleased with his time in the Half-Marathon, which was selected as one of the state's top 50 races by Michigan Runner magazine.

"I liked it. It was a good day. I like a course where there are a lot of turns because it keeps you awake. There wasn't a lot of straightaways... it's hilly and challenging."

"It's different because I don't think I ever ran through a residential area like that before," he said.

GRABOWSKI is a veteran West Bloomfield Half-Marathon participant.

The West Bloomfield High School graduate used the race as sort of a pre-season warmup to the summer season. While Grabowski was aiming for victory — "You always go in hoping to win" — he was satisfied with his overall performance.

"We (Fuller and Grabowski) crossed Farmington Road together, and that's where he seemed to make his move," said Grabowski. "But this was my first race and it's still kind of early. It was a good opening race."

"This was my third Half-Marathon and it's like a homecoming for me because you get to see a lot of friends," he said. "It was a good benchmark to see where I was at this point in the season."

The oldest finisher was James Ramsey, age 78 of Detroit, and the youngest was Matt Welch, age 13 of Ortonville.

Tim Fox of Pleasant Ridge and Laurie Emerson of Southfield were the 1985 men's and women's champions.

Following are initial results (by division) of the annual West Bloomfield race.

Wayne State gets Lectka, Kowalski

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Tracy Lectka and Kelly Kowalski are both heading to Wayne State sans softball gloves.

Both have signed on as basketball recruits at WSU — even though both are accomplished softball players (Lectka an all-state pitcher) and even though Tartar women's basketball coach Gary Bryce doubles as the WSU softball coach.

Kowalski, a second team All-Area forward for Livonia Stevenson, is not sure if she's going to pursue softball at WSU. Lectka, a second team All-Area point guard for Livonia Franklin, is adamant that she isn't.

For some, Lectka's decision might come as a surprise. Currently she's enjoying another fine season for the state-ranked Patriots softball team. Last year, she was 23-4 as a pitcher with a 0.82 earned run average.

Still, no softball for Lectka at WSU.

"I BELIEVE she only wanted to play basketball," said Bryce, whose basketball team finished with a 13-15 record (4-12 in the Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference). "I didn't want to press her on it."

"I try to keep the two sports separate."

"I just have more fun playing basketball," said Lectka, who hit .368 last year as Franklin finished runner-up in state Class A. "I like the challenge."

Also, Lectka is concerned about getting an education. With softball a year-round sport at WSU, playing both sports would make that difficult.

Bryce said he's only had one dual softball/basketball player in his five years at WSU. And she only did it for one season.

For Kowalski, who is a pitcher and first baseman on Stevenson's softball team, playing softball for the Tartars is a remote possibility at best.

"Mr. (Lee) Cagel (Stevenson softball coach) is trying to talk me into it," said Kowalski, who was the Observerland's leading girls basketball scorer. "I'm thinking about it... It would be difficult to play both."

THERE'S DEFINITELY no question about both Lectka and Kowalski playing basketball for the Tartars, especially since Bryce believes in using all of this talent.

"Everybody's going to play," said Bryce. "We hope that both of these girls can step right in for us."

For Lectka, the outlook is especially rosy since the Tartars have only one point guard returning (Sheila Baron). Lectka is also considered a fine playmaker by the Wayne State coach.

Kowalski certainly has a shot at some playing time simply because of her shot, according to Bryce.

"I saw her play last year," said Bryce. "She has a good perimeter shot and she has good basketball sense."

"She's also got good size for the basketball league we play in."

Eastern Michigan and Ferris State also expressed interest in Kowalski, but WSU was the only to come through with a scholarship.

Wolfe, Porter bolster EMU mound staff

By Chris McCosky
staff writer

"Eastern Michigan is a rising power in college baseball, and the trim diamond and attractive little roofed grandstand that Ray Scarborough and I found in Ypsilanti that day were much more inviting than a lot of spring-training ball parks I could recall. We were there for a Mid-American Conference double-header between the Eastern Michigan Hurons and the Falcons, from Bowling Green State University in Ohio."

MUCH HAS changed with the Eastern Michigan University baseball program since celebrated author-baseball writer Roger Angell's visit back in July of 1976. Angell wrote about EMU in his 1978 book "Five Seasons: A Baseball Companion."

The trim diamond and attractive little roofed grandstand are still there. The stadium remains more inviting than many spring-training facilities.

But the program is no longer a rising power in college baseball.

On that Saturday in 1976, Angell and major league baseball scout Ray Scarborough (then with the California Angels) were in Ypsilanti to check out two highly regarded major league pitching prospects: Bob Owchinko and Bob Welch — both went on to pitch in the majors (Owchinko with San Diego, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, Cleveland and currently in the Montreal system; Welch, the No. 2 starter in the Los Angeles Dodgers' rotation).

The EMU team placed second in the nation that year.

SATURDAY APRIL 19, 1986: Bowling Green brought its baseball team to Ypsilanti. There were few scouts and no prize-winning authors in attendance on this cold, rainy day.

The Hurons, after a fast start, are going nowhere this season. Saturday's double-header with BGSU assured them of that. EMU lost both games, sinking its conference record to 4-10, its overall record to 16-16.

college sports

Indeed, much has changed in the 10 years since Angell last saw the Hurons play. But there is one element of Huron baseball that remains.

Head coach Ron Oestrike and pitching coach Roger Coryell, regardless of the win-loss percentages, still send a steady stream of players into professional baseball. At present, there are 15 ex-Hurons in professional baseball, including Welch and Wayne's Pat Sheridan, who helped Kansas City win the world championship last year and is now in the Tigers' organization.

The Hurons have had exceptional success in promoting pitchers into the big time. Welch, Owchinko and John Martin (St. Louis-Detroit) came from the glory days. Bryan Clutterbuck (Milwaukee), Jay Davisson (Philadelphia), Joe Slavik (Detroit), Ken Spratke (Seattle), Mickey Weston (New York Mets) and Mitch Zwolensky (Texas) are from more recent EMU teams.

The 1986 Huron team has a pair of right-handers that may keep EMU-pro baseball shuttle going.

NEITHER LIVONIA Steven-son product Brian Porter nor Westland John Glenn's Donn Wolfe were red-hot candidates for major college baseball, let alone major league baseball, when they graduated high school in 1984.

"No, they were not highly recruited players out of high school," Coryell said. "But we liked their make-up. They were competitors who wanted to improve and whose goal was to play pro ball. They were not afraid for us to push them to the limit. They were totally committed to improving."

It did not take long for Porter and Wolfe to make an impact on the EMU pitching rotation. As freshmen last season, Wolfe posted a 6-1 record and was named second team all-MAC. Porter, after a slow start, was 3-1 with a team-best 3.19 ERA.

Thirty-two games into this season, Wolfe has emerged as the ace of the Huron staff. His is 4-1 with an impressive 2.54 record. He has struck out 36 batters 46 innings.

Porter is 3-2 on the season with a 3.00 ERA.

"Porter can be a pro prospect if he continues to improve," said Coryell in a tone suggesting that he doesn't make such claims routinely. "Same with Wolfe."

From second-drawer recruits to pro prospects, a fairly impressive metamorphosis.

I HAVE been a .500 pitcher all my life and now this," Wolfe said. "I really don't know what has happened."

It's not all that mysterious, really. When Wolfe came to the Hurons, his fastball was clocked in the low-80 mph range. Same with Porter. Now, both throw in the high 80s.

"The mechanics they teach you here are way different," said Porter, a 3.3 student. "Plus, we've been on a weight program. I'm stronger, and I've learned to spot my pitches better. You can't just throw it by these hitters like you could in high school."

Said Wolfe: "The biggest thing for me was getting command of my other pitches. They have taught me a change-up and the cut fastball really helped me last year. Lately, I've been using my curve more — you've got to have that up here. Plus, they really have me concentrating on spots."

Roger Coryell's teaching methods are unique. He puts a great deal of emphasis on distance throwing. When a Huron hurler begins his warm-up tosses, he'll take his first few tosses from beyond the mound. Coryell is also very demanding of his pitchers in practice.

"Pitchers have to extend themselves," he said. "It's like a sprinter. If he's going to run a 6.2 in the 60-yard dash, he's got to first be able to run 6.2 in practice. You can't throw the ball easy in practice and expect to come out and throw hard in the game."

Brian Porter
3-2 at EMU

BOTH WOLFE and Porter have a long way to go before they're ready to take on pro ball.

Wolfe, for example, has had trouble maintaining concentration for seven full innings. He has let two leads slip away in the late innings.

"Basically, my head was just not in the games," Wolfe said. "All of a sudden, I just wasn't throwing hard."

Porter made a grave mistake Friday. It wasn't so much that he was roughed up for four runs in 2½ innings against Bowling Green.

"It was my worst outing of the year," he said. "I was real sick the night before, and I threw up a couple times before the game. But I didn't tell the coaches."

Bad move. Both Coryell and Oestrike were none too pleased with Porter's error of omission.

So, perhaps the two Observerland sophomores aren't the second coming of Welch and Owchinko. But if Wolfe and Porter can continue their rapid rate of improvement, maybe we could convince Roger Angell and a few of his scouting pals to visit Ypsilanti next spring.

Holowicki, Scerri hailed

Pete Scerri and Bernie Holowicki have both been honored by the National High School Athletic Coaches Association (NHSACA).

Scerri, the boys soccer coach at Livonia Stevenson, has been selected Coach of the Year in Region IV by the NHSACA. He has led the Spartans to two Class A championships.

Holowicki, the head basketball coach at Redford Catholic Central, was also named Coach of the Year in Region IV. He reached his 500th victory last season and led CC to the state Class A title in 1976.

Both will receive plaques June 27 at the 21st annual NHSACA National Convention-Clinic National Awards Banquet at the Sheraton Twin Towers Hotel in Orlando, Fla.

Awards will also be announced for the National Athletic Director and National Coach of the Year during the convention in Orlando.

Anglers find new twist, walleye fishing easier

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

The state's walleye are making a comeback and Ned Duke believes he has a product which can keep up with the supply and demand.

The Department of Natural Resources restocking program produced and planted a record four million walleye fingerlings in Michigan last year. Duke's invention, the Platte Bay rod holder, enables fishermen to save time and catch more fish with the use of multiple rods.

Confused? Don't be. Though both the restocking program and rod holders are directly unrelated, both could provide better fishing in the future.

With last year's replantation of walleye fingerlings (which are two to three inches in length), the population level of the species of fish should reach previous levels in the state. A decline, starting in the late 1960s, severely cut into the state's walleye population.

"There's a tremendous demand for walleye in the state," said DNR district fisheries biologist Leo Mrozinski. "Statewide, the walleye stocking has gone from about 10,000 to 20,000 (in the early 1970s) to four million last year."

THE END RESULT of the DNR's work should provide more of the popular game fish for anglers to catch.

The process starts when fertilized eggs are incubated and hatched at two state hatcheries. The small walleye are then placed in rearing ponds that have been stocked with food.

When they reach the fingerling stage, the walleye are released into their natural habitats.

A pair from Michigan State University researchers have launched a study to find out what the restocking program will do for walleye and other sport fish in the state. Charles Liston, an MSU associate professor of fisheries and wildlife, and graduate assistant Bob Day want to study the planted walleye from their juvenile to adult stages.

One of their objectives is to find out whether juvenile walleye compete for food with other sport fish like northern pike, bass yellow perch and sunfish. The study will center in Muskegon Lake, where 1,000 adult walleye were tagged by DNR biologist and MSU researchers recently.

THE TAGGED WALLEYE which return in the spring of 1987 will be weighed and measured to determine growth rates.

Now where does Duke's new rod holder fit in with all this?

Duke, who runs an antique business in Birmingham, invented the Platte Bay holder for himself nearly two years ago. He sought the advice of several fishermen.

As a result, Duke came up with a rod holder which can hold two fishing rods steady for all fishing positions. The Platte Bay rod holder, Duke said, allows fishermen to save time rigging, thus being able to catch more fish.

Many fishermen have their own rod holders and the market is glutted with them, but Duke thinks his has them all beat.

"It's almost like folk art," said Duke, who fishes in Northern Michigan and in Florida. "You walk down the beach with 50 fishermen and 50 of them have different rod holders."

DUKE'S INVENTION has a telescoping feature to allow fishing while sitting, standing or wading, and it's light weight. The tread plate anchor keeps the rod steady while its cutaway feature allows quick reaction when there's a strike. The flip-up rigging hook allows the rod to be rigged in any position.

Duke said the reaction to his invention at fishing shows has been positive.

Duke has just begun to make contact with dealers and hopes to have the Platte Bay in a couple retail outlets soon.

In two years, he hopes to have sold at least 50,000.

Lifter's drug-free plea falls on deaf ears

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Power weightlifter Ralph Galvin bench pressed 551 pounds.

Naturally, Galvin thinks that's a considerable feat. But it's not so much the amount of the weight lifted he's so proud about.

Galvin did it without the use of steroids.

Which is remarkable considering the former policeman estimates steroids inhabit 99 percent of the gyms in this country. Some gyms even sell the stuff, he said.

Galvin, who gave a bench press seminar Saturday at the Wate Room Gym in Canton, preaches drug-free weight training at the beginning of his seminar. But he admits it falls on deaf ears.

"A LOT OF people simply don't want to hear it," said Galvin, whose recent lift of 551 pounds broke the American Drug Free Powerlifting Association bench press record by 60 pounds.

Perhaps, because of the perceived indifference, Galvin keeps his drug-free speech short. But while demonstrating the finer points of the bench press, he refers to steroid users in such unsavory terms as "dope-sucking fiends" or someone who's "pushing juice into their arms."

Steroid use, he believes, ranks up there with sniffing cocaine. "I found as a police officer, adults would chastise young people for the use of recreational drugs," said Galvin, a member of the National Strength Coaches Association. "Yet they would be pushing steroids. What's the difference between the high you get off recreational drugs and the one you get by having a bigger body?"

The physical damage steroids can cause in the long run are just as bad, if not worse in some cases than recreational drugs. Galvin listed numerous side effects of the drug including sterility, kidney damage and personality change.

STERIODS, THOUGH, have a medical purpose, Galvin points out.

But the dosages that are being sold illegally exceed six to 10 times the amount prescribed by physicians.

It's a misdemeanor for the sale of steroids in Michigan. Other groups like the United States Powerlift Association will begin testing for drugs soon.

The obvious reason body builders and weight lifters use steroids is to get quick results. They want to avoid the long hours in the gym.

"They're getting involved (in weight training) for the right reason," said Galvin. "But they're using the wrong methods."

"It takes longer. I've been lifting for 27 years. They don't want to pay their dues."

FOR THOSE who want to pay their dues, Galvin has plenty of weightlifting tips to offer.

Galvin shows the numerous techniques involved when it comes to using the bench press. Such things as grip, position of arms and feet when using the bench press are covered in-depth.

Galvin also gives advice on the number of sets and repetitions a person should do, along with support exercises for muscles directly and indirectly involved with bench pressing. Injuries involved with weight training can also be avoided with some prevention.

"AS YOU GET older, you have to warm up more," cautioned Galvin. "You should at least spend five minutes, and perhaps 10 minutes, warming up. I didn't when I was young and I carried that bad habit with me when I got older, and I had a closet of injuries to show for it."

Galvin also recommends training in cycles, not going at full gear every day to avoid burnout. But burnouts and drugs is something Galvin can't seem to avoid talking about.

"If you're out sticking juice in your arm, you can do a lot of crazy things," said Galvin. "If you're on steroids, you can spend 40 hours a week in a gym. Your body can't take the strain, though."

And don't count on putting in over-

Anderson selects Eastern

By Chris McCosky
staff writer

With one quick, short sentence Rick Anderson removed a tremendous weight off his shoulders and made another man very happy.

"Coach, I'm a Huron."

That was all it took for Anderson, the two-time All-Area basketball star from North Farmington, to make Eastern Michigan University basketball coach Ben Braun's day.

Anderson, the most sought-after basketball player in Observerland, was caught in the middle of an intense but very clean recruiting war between Eastern, Western Michigan, Kent State and Bowling Green — all NCAA Division I Mid-American Conference schools.

"Oh, man, we're very happy," said Braun, who became EMU's head coach on an interim basis after Jim Boyce resigned midway through last season. Braun was given the job outright last month.

"I don't think I'm going out on a limb by saying this: Rick Anderson has the most potential of anyone we've signed, and we've signed some good recruits," he said. "He's a good shooter with tremendous range who can pass the ball. We especially like the fact that he's a team-oriented player. We're impressed with so many things about Rick, you could write a book."

ANOTHER ASPECT of Anderson that will soon impress Braun is the young man's level-headed, mature approach to pressure situations. Braun got a glimpse of that while scouting Anderson throughout the season. Anderson was a marked man throughout his senior year, often drawing two and three defenders. Anderson responded by averaging 19 points and 13 rebounds per game. He shot 49 percent from the floor.

But Anderson showed the full force of his maturity throughout the recruiting war.

"Coach (Tom) Negoshian, my parents and I sat down Wednesday night to talk things out," Anderson said. "We ended up talking for three hours. Basically, what we did was sort everything out into three sections: basketball, academics and social life. Then we talked about the four schools' strengths and weaknesses in those areas."

"The academic portion was equal. Basically, I would get a good education at anyone of those four schools. The social thing, well, I just figure that wherever you go it's up to you to get as much out of it as you can. If I want to have fun, I will."

SO THAT left it up to the basketball programs to win or lose Anderson.

"Basically, I was looking at what type of kids were in the program and what kind were coming in and what kind of coach was there. I figured that this was going to be my family for the next four years. I'll be basically living with those 12 or 15 guys for the next four years."

Anderson hit it off immediately with both the current Huron players and the incoming freshmen.

"Our players took to Rick right away," Braun said. "I've seen many situations where current players shy away from recruits, but these guys really warmed up to Rick."

The two things, though, that may have iced Anderson's decision were the hiring of Braun and the three other EMU recruits.

"When coach Braun got the job, that really helped," Anderson said. "He was the one who recruited me, he was at just about all my games. I really respect him. He's a terrific guy, the kind of guy I could play for."

AND WHEN Braun signed Brad Soucie out of Allen Park Inter City Baptist, David Clum out of Flat Rock and Brian Nolan out of Muskegon Heights, Anderson was ready to sign on.

"Getting those guys might have swayed me more than anything," Anderson said. "I've gotten to know them a little and they are good guys. Brian Nolan is 6-9, 235. I'm ready to go through the program with him. Having a big guy on the floor will make it easier for me."

Thus, Anderson is a Huron. He is both flattered by the recruiting attention and glad it's finally over.

"I feel very lucky to have been in the position I was in — having a choice between schools," he said. "To have four schools interested in me, I mean, a lot of guys don't get anyone looking at them. I'm grateful, but I'm also very relieved it's over. At first it was fun, all the phones calls and letters. But when it got down to the last three weeks, I was getting 20 calls a day. I was actually losing sleep over it. I'd go to bed at 11 p.m. and just lay there staring at the clock."

THE BIDDING for Anderson intensified after the NCAA instituted a three-point shot rule. Anderson is 6-5 with deadly long-range shooting accuracy.

buster. He proved that last year," Braun said.

But it is not likely that Anderson will step right into a starting role at Eastern. Braun graduated just one starter off last year's squad: point guard Percy Cooper.

"How much Rick plays next year is not up to me," Braun said. "I always believe that the players decide how much they play. Strength will be his biggest adjustment. He'll have to improve his strength. But with his work ethic, he should not have a problem making the adjustment."

Anderson will be playing behind two standout MAC players next year in Mike McCaskill (Southfield) and Lewis Scott (Bishop Borgess) — both wing players in Braun's offensive system.

"Those two (Scott and McCaskill) will be among the top players in the league next year. Playing against those guys in practice can only make Rick that much better," Braun said.

SAID ANDERSON: "Coach Braun likes to use a point guard and two wings in his offense and I'm a wing player. With a hard, hard, hard working summer I hope to get in maybe 15 to 20 minutes a game and contribute next year."

Before the hard working summer begins, though, Anderson is going to spend the rest of his senior year doing something he hasn't been able to do for a long time — relax and have fun.

This is a second of two-part travel series on Majorca.

MAJORCA, Spain — Last week we started at the Restaurante Penelope in Palma, Majorca, and ended up eating fresh shrimp on a terrace cafe in Andraix, overlooking the Mediterranean.

This week we'll start by drinking espresso in the coastal village of Soller and having a late lunch on the north coast of the island.

Maybe next week we should talk about dieting on the road.

For those of you who didn't travel with me last week, Majorca (we're giving it the English spelling) is the largest of the five Balearic islands in the Mediterranean Sea off the coast of Spain.

The other four are Ibiza, Formentera, Menorca and Cabrera. They combine to make the Spanish province of Baleares.

Iris Jones

Palma, on the south coast of Majorca, is the capital city of Baleares. The island population is 500,000 and half of those live in Palma. The names of the island is spelled Mallorca by Spanish-speaking people, Majorca by English-speaking people, but either way it is pronounced "ma-yor-ca."

Now that we've got that out of the way, let's get on the road leading west and north through the mountains and along the scenic coastline.

Many famous people have taken these roads before us. George Sand and Frederic Chopin lived in the ancient village of Valldemosa. Visitors can still tour the house where they lived. Poet Robert Graves lived a few miles north in Deyá until he died there a few months ago.

The road to Deyá and Soller winds through the mountains, switchbacking up the slopes of olive trees, with brief glimpses back downhill to postcard views of the sea.

WHEN WE reach the marked viewpoint at the top we can see down past a serpentine road to Soller and the west coast.

Small red and yellow cars, and an occasional truck, climb the snaking highway. If the trucks are even moderately large they must stop and back up to make the 180 degree switchback turns.

A small tram runs regularly from the town of Soller, built a few miles inland, to Puerto Soller on the coast. That is how they built these settlements centuries ago, the port on the sea and the town far enough inland to protect it from invaders.

In the port, we sit in a sidewalk cafe, sipping an espresso grande and savoring a cake from a nearby bakery, while the fishermen sew their nets on the dock like a photograph waiting to happen.

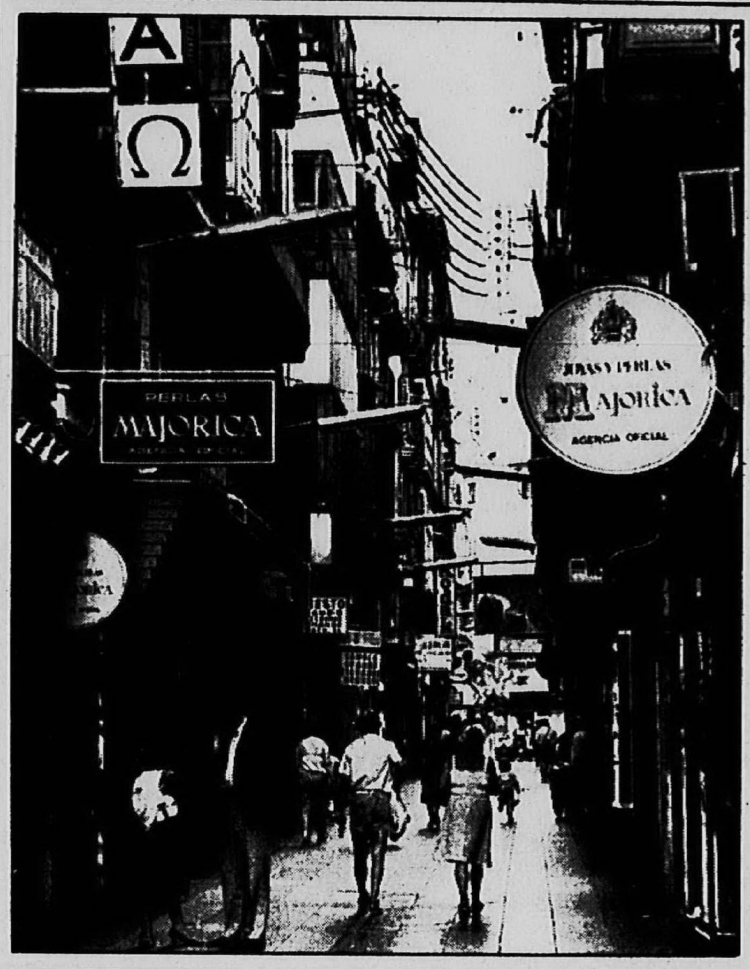

THE HIGH-MASTED sailboats make their own shapes at the end of the docks, and the red roofs of small hotels curve around the bay.

It is mid-morning and the local women go by carrying their baskets of groceries from the bake shop, the butcher and the greengrocer. A German woman, from the next table tells me about the apartment she has rented uphill, with a glorious view of the sea.

European tourists, so plentiful here, stay two or three weeks at seaside villages like Soller. They stay in a small hotel beside the sea, or in an apartment high on a hill above the sea, and spend days in various leisurely ways: having coffee in a sidewalk cafe, hiking the hills, touring the island by car, stretched out in the sun.

AMERICANS ARE considered strange travelers because we are usually seen racing from one place to another on a tour bus or in a car, trying to see the whole island in three or four days.

It was raining by the time we climbed uphill again on our way

The streets of Palma, Majorca, bustle daily with residents and tourists, many from England and Germany. The town itself has 250,000 inhabitants and the total is added to by visitors.

north. Parked on the side of a treed mountain, with pine trees tumbling sharply down rocky slopes, we can still hear the chime of bells ringing up from the village below.

These mountains are not high, they're not the Alps, but they have sheer rockcliffs on every side so the view is often straight downhill into steep valleys, all of them striped with handbuilt stone walls to keep the soil from slipping downhill.

At a corner of the highway, where the black dog sits in front of the little wooden snack stand to mooch from cars that stop, the famous tortured highway called La Calobra winds downhill like a coiled snake.

WE HAVE two planned destinations ahead of us: the popular coastal village of Puerto de Pollensa and the Hotel Formentor on the peninsula beyond.

Planeloads of British and German tourists fly into Mallorca every week to fill the hotels in places like Soller and Puerto de Pollensa.

When we stop to chat with a family fishing from the dock area of Puerto de Pollensa, their northern English accent is so thick we can just barely understand it.

The Hotel Formentor, half an hour drive away along the scenic peninsula, has an entirely different ambience; this is where upscale travelers go for a quiet vacation in a sprawling old inn beside the sea.

WHEREVER YOU stay on this north coast, you will never be able to photograph all the rugged coastline scenes or try all the tiny cafes in the town.

We usually avoid tourist restaurants in favor of those enchanting European restaurants where the locals eat, so we explore down the whitewashed streets until we find Restaurante El Pozo.

In a country courtyard, with green trees and flowers set against a whitewashed wall, I have Sopa Mallorquina, a dry bread and vegetable soup eaten with a fork, and the wonderful cheese of Mahon, capital city of the sister island of Menorca.

The wine of Majorca is too brown and rough for me, but the local beer is good and the white wine from the mainland is perfect for this island setting.

IF YOU ask about the paintings on the restaurant wall, you will learn that they are painted by local artist Miguel Ferrar, who is also the head waiter here at El Pozo.

By dinnertime we are back in Palma, capital city of the island, ready to try a typical country restaurant for dinner.

Whenever we get lost in Palma, which is every time we take our rental car out of the parking lot of the Hotel Son Vida, we end up in Genova, a village on a hill above the sea three miles from downtown Palma.

We would be looking for a broad avenue marked on the map, but the street signs are marked on the map but not on the street, so sooner or later we would find ourselves too far west down the coast, swing uphill behind the Tower of Belveder and end up in Genova.

WHEN WE want to find Genova, of course, we can't find it at all. The young doorman at the Hotel Son Vida has carefully drawn a route on the map so that we can find our way past the military camp and left downhill into the village to Ca'n Pedro.

This small restaurant is exactly what we asked him for, a Spanish eating place where ordinary local people gather and nothing is distorted for tourists.

If you have ever been in a "local" European restaurant where the food and atmosphere is stylized for the tour bus, you know what I mean; you don't get either American or European food, just local food ruined to meet what is imagined to be a North American taste.

WHAT WE are looking for is Ca'n Pedro — the Majorcan way of saying Casa Pedro, or the house of Pedro — recommended to us as one of the two typical kinds of Mallorcan restaurants.

THE FIRST is the popular fish restaurant found along the waterfront, a treasury of fresh fish and sea views. The second is the busy, noisy-but-fun and very Spanish type place, like Ca'n Pedro.

Parking the car is always the first consideration — in fact we agreed that if we can't find Ca'n Pedro we will go downhill to the sea, take the first available parking place and eat in the closest restaurant to be found.

Not necessary. We park uphill and walk through the dark Tuesday night streets; the village is quiet and asleep but we feel absolutely safe and comfortable on these streets alone. When we open the door to

WE HEAR plates being banged against bare wooden tables, voices raised to the hams hung high from the beamed ceiling, the whirring sound of the espresso machine.

The local families and couples and loners are there, with baby carriages tucked into corners and voices rising to all the interesting things hang around the room.

The serving bar that divides the room in two is hung with baskets, gourds, ceramic plates, but the most interesting sights are the people, mostly Spanish, but also German and English and other voices.

Two young men eat bread with oil, tomatoes and ham, plus a plate of snails and another with pork on a stick. I eat once again the wonderful dry Sopa Mallorca and paella of rice and shellfish served in the bowl in which it was cooked.

Places for folks who really want to get away

By Joy Aschenbach
special writer

FOR THOSE who are interested in exploring out-of-the-way spots unvisited by other tourists, there's still plenty of places which are guaranteed to be private.

How about a mountain that has never been climbed? At 24,880 feet, Gangkhar Punsum is one of the highest unclimbed peaks in the Himalayas.

It is located in the "forbidden kingdom" of Bhutan. Other unconquered heights await in neighboring Tibet and Nepal.

"Everest was the 'third pole,'" said Dr. Barry C. Bishop, a member of the first American expedition to reach its 29,028 foot summit, in 1963. After its initial conquest by a British group in 1953, there was no higher place to go except the moon.

THERE ARE places deeper than Mount Everest is high which are virtually unexplored. "Less than one percent of the deep sea has been seen," said oceanographer Robert D. Ballard.

"We are about where Lewis and Clark were when they were ready to shove off up the Missouri, but without their advantage of being able to interview Indians."

Ballard is now developing the next generation of underwater exploration vehicles, capable of being maneuvered at depths of 20,000 feet. "We know more about the backside of the moon than we do about the ocean depths," he said.

What about the land in between? All of it now has been sighted by satellite, but are there any places left unexplored on the ground?

"There's no nice, neat laundry list of the world, such as the 10 'hottest' places to go if you want to go somewhere where nobody's been before," said Jay Headly of the Explorers Club.

BUT NEARLY 500 years after Columbus, there are still some places where man has never set foot.

They are generally places where either the environment or the political climate has been too hostile. Or maybe they have been ignored simply because getting there first would not have broken a record.

By the second half of this century, the definition of exploration had changed from purely geographic inquiry to sophisticated scientific field research, says Bishop, vice chairman of the National Geographic Society's committee for Research and Exploration.

It's no longer enough to stick a flag in new ground, he says. It is important to bring back knowledge of the flora, fauna, fossil record, and geologic history. In the scientific sense, the number of unexplored places could be countless.

For the thrill of being the first to leave a footprint, places to head for include:

ANTARCTICA. "Certainly more than half of the continent has never been walked on," said Guy Guthridge of the National Science Foundation's Division of Polar Programs.

"There are millions of square miles of featureless ice plain in the vast interior where people have not been. Most of the peaks in the Transantarctic Mountains haven't been climbed.

"On the coast, for example, 10,168-foot Mount Siple was first spotted from the air in 1940 and named, but it was 1984 before anyone actually ascended it.

THE ARCTIC. Some mountains that appear to rise from the sea on the east coast of Canada's Ellesmere and Baffin Islands, and extend 50 to 60 miles inland, have not been scaled, says George Van B. Cochran, past president of the Explorers Club.

"I've been up there 10 times," he said. "I have some secret areas of my own. One, on the southeast coast of Ellesmere, I've come close to climbing three times. It's next year's adventure."

Also, says arctic expert John Backstoe, there are bound to be unexplored places in the arctic regions of the Soviet Union.

AUSTRALIA. Thousands of caves — the entrances to perhaps 6,000 are known — underlie northern Queensland, but only about 400 have been mapped, says Brother Nicholas Sullivan, a geology instructor at Manhattan College who has been exploring caves since 1949.

In them, he says he has found previously unknown fossil species as well as new living specimens — among them, cockroaches that live only underground.

Immense uncharted caves are hidden by the jungle on the neighboring island of New Guinea.

"The greatest potential for finding undiscovered caves is in limestone regions of the world with no surface water, where people wouldn't live," said Russell Gurnee, an American who develops caves for parks.

SOUTH AMERICA. A great salt flat in southwestern Bolivia contains huge expanses that have never been crossed, says Loren McIntyre, a veteran photographer of South America. So does an icefield on the border between southern Argentina and Chile.

The Parima Mountains straddling Brazil and Venezuela have been traversed at the eastern and western ends, but many of the peaks in between haven't been, McIntyre says.

Along the Andes in southern Peru and northern Chile, summits not high enough to break records have not been scaled. The once inaccessible Amazon region "has had people traveling all through it," but much of it still has not been studied scientifically, particularly in northern Brazil and southern Colombia, he says.

Elsewhere, there may be a sacred mountain in Iran, a stretch of desert on the Arabian Peninsula, or some steppes in China that have not been trod upon.

The adventuresome may never run out of unexplored places, because, over time, new land continually appears on earth.

In 1963, for example, the rocky island of Surtsey erupted from the volcanic sea bottom off the coast of Iceland. After a 1971 storm in the Bay of Bengal, a muddy spit of land popped up between India and Bangladesh.

And in a few thousand years, the Loihi Seamount will become another Hawaiian island.
