BACK IN TOWN: Wayne

Dunlap, conductor of the Plymouth Symphony Orchester for 28 years before retiring, was back in town this weekend for Saturday night's pops concert, "Fascinating Rhythms," in the cafeteria of Plymouth Canton

Wayne spent the weekend visiting with old friends and took time Saturday night to be guest conductor as the orchestra played selections from Gershwin's "Porgy & Bess." He was presented with a 25-year diamond pin. Another special presentation was a plaque given to Charles Greenwell, interim conductor this year of the symphony.

A mixup in credit for a job well done which occurred during the concert was corrected Monday morning by K.C. Mueller. "It was most gracious of Bob Angus, our supurb tenor soloist, to offer his kind words of appreciation to me and the Plymouth Symphony Board. But those particular words of praise belong to Sharon Pooler and all of the Plymouth Symphony League volunteers who planned, organized, decorated and sold the tickets for this very special concert. Withotu the League the Plymouth Symphony Society and Orchestra would not have been able to remain in existance all these 40 years nor would we be able to continue to serve and enrich our

A tentacle of the state's liability insurance controversy has reached into Plymouth and put the community's Memorial Day Parade in jeop-

"The officers . . . feel that the indemnification agreement is not in the best interest of the members of the post and places the post and members thereof at a financial risk that is completely out of proportion to the purpose and intent of the parade," said Archie Bunch, VFW

City Manager Henry Graper has proposed that the city take over sponsorship of the parade and allow the VFW and American Legion to organize it. That would bring the event under the city's $10 million insurance umbrella. The city, as sponsor, also would have more control.

THE CITY COMMISSION is expected to mull over that possibility and perhaps change its indemnification policy at the May 20 meeting, just six days before the scheduled parade.

All sponsors of special community events - including Fall Festival and the Ice Sculpture Spectacular - now must sign the waiver or buy a special-events insurance policy, said Carol Stone, who manages insurance matters for the city.

"Our self-insurance agent recently developed these guidelines and asked us to abide by them," she said. Liability concerns prompted city officials to get out of sponsorship of special events in the first place.

Paul Sincock, assistant to the city manager, said he doesn't know whether city officials could put a parade together on short notice if the City Commission sticks to its current indemnification policy.

Rain shafts Storm sends people to cover

Tuesday's storm toppled a large tree in downtown Plymouth.

By Kevin Brown staff writer

Contrary to rumors, there was no tornado between noon and 1 p.m. Tuesday in the Plymouth-Canton area.

Rain shafts created during a thunderstorm and sighted near Michigan Avenue southwest of Plymouth were apparently mistaken for a funnel cloud by a citizens band radio operator, said Charles Van Vleck, Plymouth Township deputy emergency preparedness director.

The thunderstorm passed through the area between noon and 12:30 p.m. The Plymouth Police Department reported two downed trees in the city and some downed telephone lines - the most significant reported damage in the Plymouth-Canton area due to the storm.

The storm moved out of the southwest portion of the state, intensifying in the Jackson area on its way to this area, said National Weather Service spokesman Bob Snider.

WHILE THE weather service issued a severe thunderstorm warning for Washtenaw County and counties farther west, Wayne County was not included, Snider said.

Van Vleck said a CB operator informed the Michigan Emergency Patrol that he'd seen a tornado. That agency in turn contacted local police and the weather service, which issued a tornado warning at 12:28 p.m., said Snider.

As emergency sirens sounded in Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Canton, school children were led to shelters. In downtown Plymouth, lunch-goers at the Mayflower Hotel were led to the hotel basement where they were joined by nearly 200 downtown office and service

But spokesmen for area police and the weather service said there were no further reports of a tornado, and no reported damage resulting from a tornado.

Referring to the individual who reported spotting a tornado, Van Vleck commented: "Without taking anything away from this well-meaning public servant, I went outside and what I saw were excellent rain shafts."

Snider said that because rain shafts have an inverted cone shape similar to a funnel cloud, the two separate phenomena can be confused. "Mainly the difference is a tornado rotates and you can see the rotation," he explained.

Defense work rewarding to a nurse turned lawyer

By Kevin Brown staff writer

She's the nurse who became a law-

"When the kids grew up, I started looking to go back to school to do something," said Mary Jane Bevel-heimer, a registered nurse and Plymouth resident since 1968.

Bevelheimer found what she was looking for - a law career. And since last July, she's been trying cases as a public defender in district courts in both Plymouth and Westland.

A Nebraska native, Bevelheimer said she entered nursing after high school, "because my folks encouraged me. I have three sisters who are nurses." But after marrying, she left full-time nursing to raise a fami-

Once her children grew and left home, Bevelheimer's search for something to do took her to Schoolcraft College, then to the University of Michigan where she completed an undergraduate degree.

So why law school? "I had a real interest in politics that drew me into law," said Bevelheimer, also a member of the League of Women Voters. She continued working part time at the Hen-

dry Convalescent Center while attending school.

BEVELHEIMER ATTENDED law classes at the Detroit College of Law. Law school, she says, was "a nightmare. It's an endurance test, especially that first year. I had two teenage boys at home at the time."

Bevelheimer did drop out after three semesters, "but I went back nights and finished," she said.

While attending law school, Bevelheimer said she toyed with the idea of combining both her health-care experience with her legal training, to assume injury cases or medical insurance.

Bevelheimer interned as a clerk with a firm handling medical-related cases.

But after passing the bar in 1984, she joined a law firm dealing in public defender work. Bevelheimer says she took the job because it was available, adding, "I guess it appeals to my sense of civic duty. I like representing the underprivileged.

"On the other hand, there's no other job that provides the experiences it does to a new lawyer," she said. "I've worked 10 or 12 jury trials. Very few first-year lawyers can BEVELHEIMER says her first appearance addressing a jury was unexpected.

"The judge told me I had to pick a jury that afternoon. I did it off the top of my head - I babbled my way through it. It was a nerve-wracking experience."

The greatest similarity Bevelheimer notices between nursing and practicing law is the public service aspect.

Of differences between the two, Bevelheimer says that as a nurse she was "much more physically active. There's a lot of sitting behind a desk you do as a lawyer."

Her knowledge of nursing comes in handy on occasion. "When he (a client) says he's taking Darvoset, I know right away that's a painkiller."

Bevelheimer says she plans to continue building the law practice in Westland.

For now, Bevelheimer says, "To be actually practicing as a lawyer brings me a great deal of satisfaction . . . I had a lot of doubts along

Meanwhile, she still works two nights each week as a nurse.

The resolution Szyniszewski asked for would say that the city agrees move the house to another site so it the Wilcox House is rich in heritage

She also asked the city to send a letter to the Wayne County Parks Division asking that a parcel of land be made available within Plymouth or Plymouth Township for the Wilcox.

We are here today as friends, not as antagonists," said Szyniszewski while addressing the commission. "We are here asking your help and assistance because you are in a position to have the knowledge of red tape cutting, bureaucratic maze walking, and legal jargon. We are convinced that with your assistance this project will go through. Without your assistance the effort may be more difficult but we will succeed."

She added that the group has explored several options, including the property behind Starkweather School, private property, Township Park property, Plymouth-Canton Community Schools property and Wayne County Parks property.

SPECIFICALLY, the group is looking at property in Hines Park across the street from Wilcox Lake just east of Northville Road and north of Edward Hines Drive.

The parcel could be developed not only to provide a setting for the Wilcox House but also could contain a natural amphitheater, says Szyniszewski. The amphitheater area is adjacent to the Wilcox Mill, which could be restored and used for cul-

Drive begins to force wine cooler deposits

By Tim Richard staff writer

By Friday, Michigan United Conservation Clubs expects to be ready with petition forms to require 10cent deposits on wine coolers and mixed drinks.

"Our goal is 243,000 legal petition signatures," said MUCC spokesman Don Stypula. To provide a margin of safety, the conservation group will seek 300,0000 signatures.

MUCC's board acted unanimously last week, three days after a joint legislative rules committee shot mission's proposed rules réquiring deposits on wine coolers.

THE LEGISLATIVE panel held that an appointive agency like the LCC lacked power to pass such a rule; that it could be done only by three-fourths vote of the Legislature or by the voters.

So MUCC is taking it to the voters, executive director Thomas L. Washington said.

MUCC was chief sponsor of the 1976 "bottle bill" requiring 10-cent deposits on cans and 5-cent deposits legislative rules committee shot on bottles of pop and beer. Among down the state Liquor Control Com-MUCC's local affiliates are the Oakland County Sportsmen's Club, the Multi-Lakes Conservation Club, the Western Wayne County Conservation Association and Four Seasons Fish-

Wine coolers, a mixture of wine and fruit juices or soda, have been on the market only about three years. Mixed drinks were introduced this year, the chief example being a canned mixture of Jim Beam whiskey and Coke.

WE'RE PROCEEDING with the idea that July 7 is our deadline to submit signatures," Stypula said. "That's 40 legislative session days before the September deadline to put issues on the Nov. 4 ballot."

The Secretary of State's office, however, calculates the deadline as May 28. Said the MUCC spokesman: "There's not a chance to make the May 28 deadline."

Once the Legislature receives petitions, it must either pass the law requested by signers or else place the proposal on the ballot.

THOSE WHO call MUCC at 517/ 371-1041 will be sent two petition forms, Stypula said.

Each petition form will have space for 10 names instead of the usual 20. "The reason is that if someone gets 4-11 names on a 20-line petition, they won't send it in because they're embarrassed; they feel they nature counts," he said.

Also supporting the measure is the state Natural Resources Commission. MUCC is approaching the Michigan Interfaith Council on Alcohol Problems and the Michigan Farm Bureau for support.

If the drive fails to get enough signatures to force the issue this year, Stypula said, it will have to start over in order to get it on the 1988 ballot. There is no measure from carrying over the petitions from one campaign to the next.

MEANWHILE, three bills are awaiting action in the Senate State Affairs Committee, chaired by Sen. Richard Fessler, R-West Bloomfield. Their sponsors and provisions:

Lansing, would write a new law to cover wine coolers. It would require a simple majority for passage, but a two-thirds majority for immediate · Sen. Lana Pollack. D-Ann Arbor, would amend the 1976 law. Under the state constitution, a law passed by voters can be amended by the Legislature by a 75 percent vote 83 of the 110 votes in the House and 29 of the 38 votes in the Senate. Pollack said her bill, not Sederburg's, is the constitutionally correct way to go.

• Sen. Ed Fredricks, R-Holland, would place the question before voters. His bill would require a simple majority in both houses.

Sewer grants stuck -Blanchard

Federal funds for four suburban water pollution control projects are stuck in a congressional logjam, Gov. James J. Blanchard

In a letter to Michigan congressmen, Blanchard said he prefers the House version of Clean Water Act construction grants because it is more generous, by $87 million over five years, than the Senate formula.

The suburban projects that could proceed if Congress renews the Clean Water Act grants and their amounts are:

- Oakland County Evergreen-Farmington sewer, $29.2 million.
- Wayne County South Huron Valley sewer, $9.1 million. • Ecorse Creek Drain District,
- Lincoln Park, $18.5 million. · Wayne County, upgrading of Wyandotte sewage treatment

Without congressional action, Blanchard said, the only project that can proceed this season will be the $17.7-million Wayne County-North Huron Valley sewer.

The deadlock, he said, threatens to expose 149 Michigan communities to a mid-1988 federal deadline to meet pollution control standards with neither federal nor state aid.

Senate bill would outlaw 'how-to' terrorism lessons

By Tim Richard staff writer

An anti-terrorism bill sailed through the Michigan House and will probably sail through the Senate - but not without an Irish tongue-lashing from Sen. John Patrick Kelly, D-Detroit.

"I'm sure it will pass," said the sponsor, Rep. David Honigman, R-West Bloomfield, after hearing the Senate shout down a Kelly amendment.

"Kelly's worried about IRA (Irish Republican Army) people," said Honigman.

HONIGMAN'S BILL would prohibit teaching or demonstrating the use of firearms, firebombs or explosives to anyone who intends to use them in "a civil disorder." Punishments would be a year in jail and a fine of up to Kelly offered an amendment to confine the scope to domestic disorders - not foreign.

'This country for 200 years has been a gathering place for people to come and express their points of view. They come to resist," said Kelly, citing Irish opponents of British rule and Cuban opponents of Castro.

In an Irish brogue, Kelly ridiculed the bill as being a throwback to the British Parliament's 1775 attempts to put down insurrection in the American colonies.

Kelly argued the bill would give prosecutors "the right to selectively pick out groups (to prosecute) without going into their reasons and causes."

SEN. JACK Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, leaped to attack the Kelly amendment.

What are we to become? A new Libya?" Faxon asked. "This would be an open licensure to train (international) terrorists. That's what Libya does. It's outrageously repugnant."

Honigman sat on the Senate floor as a guest of Judiciary Chairman Alan Cropsey, R-Dewitt, who called Faxon "absolutely correct. They (weapons trainees) could say we're not going to bomb a synagog or mosque or church in Detroit; we're going to do it in Windsor."

THE BILL was moved forward on the Senate agenda to third reading, in a position to be passed next week.

The teamwork between Sens. Faxon, a Democratic civil libertarian, and Cropsey, a conserva-tive fundamentalist, was politically strange.

So was the House backing. Honigman's co-sponsors spanned the spectrum from Republicans Gordon Sparks of Troy, Judith Miller of Birmingham, Lyn Bankes of Livonia and Gerald Law of Plymouth Township; to Democrats Maxine Berman of Southfield and Perry Bullard of Ann Arbor.

The bill passed the House without opposition in June of 1985.

Honigman said the bill was aimed at training camps for Ku Klux Klan and neo-Nazi groups. He cited a Georgia camp where Shi'ite Moslems were trained for an attack on a European airport.

"It doesn't prohibit training in the use of firearms or explosives," he said. "You (prosecutors) have gotta show an intent to ter-

No tax shift say, GOP candidates

By Tim Richard staff writer

Better management, not tax shifts, is the Republican answer to Michigan's high income and property taxes, as the gubernatorial candidates see it.

"The best way is to cut the cost of government," said Oakland County Executive Daniel T. Murphy in a candidates' panel last week.

Murphy, state Rep. Colleen Engler of Mt. Pleasant and automotive engineer John Lauve of Grosse Pointe fielded written questions before several hundred people attending a dinner in Royal Oak of the Active Republican Citizens Club.

Missing were candidates Richard Chrysler, who was late and didn't get to answer the question, and William Lucas, who announced he has dropped all speechmaking to concentrate on money-raising.

ENGLER SAID both property taxes and income taxes could be reduced "if we look at credits and exemptions."

The fourth-term lawmaker said that if exemptions were removed, there could be "an absolute reduction of millage rates."

She added, "It has to be a tradeoff."

"We need effective cost controls," said Lauve, a leader of the Recall Blanchard movement and frequent candidate on the east side.

Lauve blistered Gov. James Blanchard's proposed increases in property tax rebates for homeowners because the price tag includes higher taxes on bank deposits and insurance premiums.

MURPHY, a 30-year veteran of Oakland County Executive Dan Murphy criticized state plans for prisons. 'Locate 'em where people are begging for prisons,' in outstate area, he county government, agreed there's has to be trade-offs but doubted most voters would care to make the

He noted voters rejected a 1980 plan to raise the sales tax and lower school property taxes.

"Our present governor voted against the president's tax cut (as a member of Congress in 1981) and then came back to Michigan and increased your taxes 38 percent," Murphy said.

"Since 1964 your (Oakland County) property taxes have been reduced 22 percent - three times in the last six

"The best way to reduce taxes is to cut the cost of government," said Murphy. "We ought to be able to cut 10 percent out of that state budget."

CANDIDATES were asked about a proposal that the state repair deteriorating roads during a time of falling gasoline prices by applying a fluctuating tax on gasoline that would peg the price at $1.05 a gallon.

Murphy saw no chance of passing it, predicting roads would get worse. "I don't support any new taxes,"

The "Ficano for County Executive" campaign hit the airwaves this week, becoming the first of five camps to begin televising commercials in the Democratic primary

In the 30-second TV spot, shown for the first time Monday, candidate Robert Ficano is portrayed as the man who brought law and order to Hines Park, the once notoriously troubled parkway that runs through western Wayne County. If he could do that, said the announcer's voice, think what he could do for the entire

The paid-political announcement starts out with a park scene and mounted sheriff's deputy, surrounded by children. It then turns the camera inside the county jail. There, a serious-looking Ficano, is shown walking up to a jail cell, and turning face forward.

Showbiz aside, campaign finance director Alan Helmkamp said the advertisement is geared to a select audience, hence the 7-9 a.m. time-

The target group includes voters 22-47 years old. But the commercial is particularly geared to young professionals, the so-called Yuppie generation, as well as "(organized) labor households and actively participating members of the Democratic Party," said Helmkamp.

Democrat Ficano, at 34, is the youngest candidate in the race.

The commercials are slotted to run once per hour on each of the three major local stations during the morning time period. In all, it will run 90 times in the next three weeks, he said.

ted that television advertising will account for the biggest portion of campaign spending in this race.

The Ficano camp got a couple of unexpected visitors at its "Millionnaire's Party" fund-raiser at Livonia's Roma Hall last weekend. Two officers from the Livonia Police Department apparently were dispatched to check whether the organizers had a gambling license for

After being shown a license from the state of Michigan, the officers were offered a glass of pop before returning to report their findings to the station house.

Police Chief William Crayk, whose boss is Livonia Mayor Ed McNamara, another candidate for the countywide post, by the way, said the check was just routine.

"I didn't even know Bob Ficano had a fund-raiser in town last weekend," said Crayk. "It's not unusual for us to check on those things, in fact, we have a special crew that does 24-hour checks, and that's the

Those inside the Ficano camp, though, wondered whether the official visit was a sign that the rivalry between the two Livonia candidates might be heating up. Ficano also lives in Livonia.

Susan Heintz, Northville township supervisor and active candidate for the 10th district county commisssion seat, released her first lineup of supporters this week.

The backers, culled from both inside and outside the Wayne County district, include state Rep. Robert Law, former Livonia state Rep. Jack Kirksey, Plymouth Mayor Bill Robinson, Plymouth Township Clerk Esther Hulsing, outgoing County Executive Bill Lucas, and local businessmen Robert DeMattia and Jim Jabara of Plymouth. Heintz, who's running as a Republican, also listed a few non-residents, such as statewide GOP notable Ronna Romney, Michigan's National Committee-woman, and Larraine Thomas, Michigan Republican vice-chairman.

Birthday celebration plans are underway for Wayne County Commissioner Kay Beard, D-Westland, who plans to seek re-election to the county seat. Beard reill be feted at a "Champagne Birthday brunch" at the new Hawthorne Valley Center in Westland on Sunday, June 1. Tickets

A fund-raiser held Tuesday night for Livonia Mayor Edward H. McNamara at the Gaelic League hall in Detroit raised about $25,000, said campaign aides. The party was sponsored by Wayne County Pro-secutor John O'Hair, Detroit City Councilman Jack Kelley and Detroit lawyer John O'Meara.

A party sponsored by State Sen. William D. Faust, D-Westland, will be held 5 to 7 p.m. Friday at Jimmy's Next Door, 35233 Ford Rd., in Westland. Donations of $50 per person will be taken at the door. For information, (517) 373-7350.

County has a paper-shuffler extraordinaire

By Janice Brunson staff writer

By now everyone has heard about the "people mover," the motorized rail bus in downtown Detroit that is designed to move lots of people in a

But how many Wayne County residents have heard of the "paper mover," designed to move lots of paper in a timely manner?

This particular mover - the paper mover - is human, a self-described workaholic who processes an estimated 1 million sheets of paper or more a year.

paper than anyone else in the entire county," Richard Wolfe, 45, said. The affable Wolfe is clerk of the Wayne County Commission.

Wolfe's job is described in the county charter. "The clerk shall maintain official records of the Commission." Wolfe, who lives in Canton Township, figures this is the easy part of the job.

The challenge is the process leading to "official records." It is a laborious process, generally encompass-ing thousands of written pages and millions of words, much of which must be researched by the clerk and all of which must be carefully rerecommendation to the commission, more likely than not from the Wayne County Executive. Wolfe prepares a meeting agenda. It contains the recommendation, as well as any others that require consideration by commission members.

This is where the real work comes in. All recommendations requiring a vote by commission members must be fully studied. Wolfe expedites the process by preparing comprehensive background information or fact

These fact sheets are exhaustive studies, all condensed for easier understanding by the 15-member commission. They might be based upon previous activity by legal or other groups, documents, letters, information supplied from the Legislative Research Bureau, commission members or the county auditor, as well as a myriad other sources.

Information sheets must be precisely accurate. They must be factual, contain no opinion and must reflect all aspects of the issue.

People who care about such issues as favoritism in contract letting, over-charging for drain cleaning or new jail facilities, also care whether or not the clerk does a good job.

The task is enormous, the responsibility mind-boggling.

Agendas and fact-finding do not complete the job. Once the commission has acted on an issue, Wolfe is charged with summarizing every detail and compiling it into a journal. Until 1976, journals were bound but because of budget shortages, journals are now photocopied.

DOES THE job sound easy? Consider this. A typical pack of paper handed to each commissioner at each meeting is 3-inches thick containing agenda and information sheets. Each summary journal Wolf prepares typically is an inch thick.

It is a process duplicated many times over each month. In addition to the bimonthly commission meetings, each of the commission's six standing committees meet at least once a month. Sub-committees of the standing committees have meetings and special committees also have meetings. Each requires its own packet of information.

Given the millions of words the Clerk's office deals with, are there ever errors? "Never," Wolfe said. How are mistakes avoided? "We read everything five times. It drives my staff nuts."

WOLFE DOES NOT work alone; he has a staff of 15. While he boasts of their efficiency, he also points out staff size is exactly half that of four years ago, prior to approval of the new county charter. Yet Wolfe said work loads have tripled in that same period of time.

Since the cuts he has revised systems, resulting in more efficiency. For the first time since the staff cuts, he said, the job is becoming manageable.

In fact, Wolfe recently took his first Saturday off from work in three years. Wolfe said he normally works 80-90-hour weeks and has taken one vacation during the past five years.

Wolfe's wife, Antge, originally from Germany, and his three daughters Pamela, manager of a Pizza Hut, Heather and Marisa, who both attend school in Canton Township where the family lives, mind the long hours.

But Wolfe feels they have been necessary. "The commissioners trust me. What we produce here reflects not only on me and my staff, but on commission members as well. I know when I leave here at night that everything is right."

Wolfe obviously relishes his job. "I can sink my teeth in substantive issues, contributing my share by working quietly behind the scenes," he said.

But the most important contribu-tion Wolfe feels he makes "is keeping the legislative agenda, the long-range goals on track. If we tempo-rarily lose sight around here, I do the reminding. I keep track of the big picture.

Wolfe is proud of goals that have been achieved since he first began working for the commission in 1972 as an assistant committee clerk -"county reorganization, court reorg-anization and a new jail. I feel good about that."

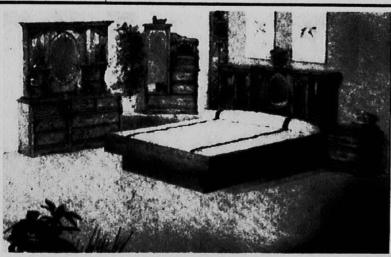

Richard Wolfe, Clerk of the Wayne County Commission and Director of Administration, has a job that is mind-boggling in both size and responsibility. More than a million pieces of written paper pass through his office annually and errors are not allowed.

This supplemental income often comes in the form of speaking honoraria a lawmaker receives from special interests whose economic wellbeing is linked to the lawmaker's committee work. House rules distinguish it from "unearned" income such as interest and dividends, upon which there is no limit.

Lawmakers say they need the extra earned income to offset the high costs and comparatively low pay of congressional existence. But critics such as Common Cause say lawmakers often allow themselves to be compromised by groups that provide honoraria, and that members can always quit Congress if they don't like

This vote came a day after the House - by voice vote and without debate - sparked public outcry by raising the ceiling on earned outside income from $22,530 to $30,400. That is, from 30 to 40 percent of a House member's salary.

French at Fort Le Boeuf reject Virginian's demands

Jacques Legardeur de St. Pierre, commandant at Fort Le Boeuf and an influential strategist in the plan to push the settlers out of the Ohio Valley, looked over the south bastion of his little stronghold and was astonished at what he saw.

Struggling through the snow was a group of tired colonials moving slowly toward the fort. They were dragging along as though they had reached the end of the world. Their tired horses could barely lift hooves laden with huge balls of accumulated mud, and the men seemed ex-

So this is what our Indian observateur told us was out on the trail, St. Pierre thought. "Pas du tout, formidable." he said aloud. (Not at all formidable or dangerous.)

AS THE LITTLE group moved toward the barricaded main gate St. Pierre ordered an aide to open the entry doors. From portculis on each side of the gateway French soldiers were peeking out at the woebegone Merr. They called out to them in derisive, sarcastic terms but the colonials made no reply. At the head of the group was a somber young man in his 20s. Head down, deep in thought, he appeared to be weary but not beaten, a most determined young man with a will of

'Quel dommage!" (What a pity!) St. Pierre exclaimed. "A young man, only 21 on a fool's errand. Ah! we will show him our hospitalite."

He directed a lieutenant to cordially greet Washington and his little mood. company, and to suggest that they might wish to wash before dinner, and he added that perhaps they would like to rest overnight and have their conference in the morning.

Christopher Gist translated St. Pierre's message into Seneca as he spoke with Chief Half-King or Monakaduta, as the English called him, and his two old friends chiefs White Thunder and Jeskakake.

The Indians also welcomed the chance for a good night's rest, and expressed a wish for a little French brandy to soothe their weariness.

MAJOR WASHINGTON and Christopher Gist had been on the trail since Nov. 14. Washington had left Williamsburg on the same day he had received his assignment to carry a message to the French near Lake Erie. He left Mt. Vernon Oct. 29, 1753. Nov. 15. Washington's party had entered the steep divide between the Shenadoah and the Ohio valleys. Every foot of the way on his hazardous trip, they were impeded, as Washington wrote, by "excessive rains and a vast quantity of snow." When they reached the Monongahela, they found it flooded and impassable. And everywhere they went, they were in danger of being slaughtered by pro-French Indians. So it was with considerable relief and pleasure that they found St. Pierre in a hospitable and friendly

Forts of the French:

As Governor of the Province of Virginia, it has come to me to my astonishment that French troops have built forts upon lands so notoriously known to be the property of the Crown of Great Britain. I must desire you to acquaint me by whose authority and instructions you have lately marched from Canada with an armed force, and invaded the King of Great Britain's territories. It becomes my duty to require your peaceable departure; and that you would forebear prosecuting a purpose so disruptive and interruptive of the harmony and good under-standing which His Majesty is desirous to continue and cultivate with the Most Christian King. I persuade myself you will receive and entertain Major Washington with the candor and politeness natural to your nation; and it will give me the greatest satisfaction if you return him with an answer suitable to my wishes for a very long and lasting peace between us.

WASHINGTON WOULD have liked to have had an immediate answer, but none was forthcoming.

> Meanwhile Washington and Gist made good use of their time. Washington's reports show that he memorized the interior of the fort, its content and layout. This is revealed in detail in his journal. He also confessed in his journal that this seemed to him to be the most hazardous time of his trip, and he wasdepressed by the prospects for-

In fact, he and Gist had discovered 200 canoes hidden away in a sheltered cove near the river. They were ready and waiting for the projected war upon the British settlers. This confirmed the story, widely circulated in Williamsburg, that the French were planning a raid in the earlyl spring.

After three days, St. Pierre handed Washington a letter stating that he could not really answer Dinwiddie without first consulting the Mar-

FINALLY, perhaps at Washington's urging, this brief and disappointing reply was made by St. Pierre which stated:

"It is not for me to set forth the Evidence and Reality of the Rights of the King (of France) and to contest the pretensions of the King of Great Britain . . . I would have pre-ferred to have Major Washington proceed to the main French headquarters in Montreal, but since his instructions are to go no farther than here, I will transmit your letter to the Marquis Duquesne, Governor of New France, for his orders. Meanwhile, I will remain at my post, according to the commands of my general . . . Be assured, Sir, that I have made it my particular care to receive Mr. Washington with a distinction suitable to your dignity as well as his own quality and great

The diplomatic game of feint, parry, thrust and delay was in full sway in the 18th century. Perhaps the weary settlers were saying, "As long as they talk, they won't fight."

Dec. 13, 1752, Christopher Gist wrote in his journal: "They took our Indians into private council, and gave them several presents." Washington wrote two days later: St. Pierre "Ordered a plentiful store of Liquor, Provisions, etc. to be put on Board our Canoe; and appeared to be extremely complaisant, though he was exerting every artifice which he could invent to set our our own Indians at Variance with us, to prevent their going till after our Departure, Presents, Rewards, and every thing which could be suggested by him or his Officers - I can't say that ever in my Life I suffered so much anxiety as I did in this Affair."

(The return to Williamsburg, a perilous trip of great hardship, will be described in the next edition of Tonquish Tales.)

There is evidence that diet and cancer are related. Some foods may promote cancer, while others may protect you from it.

Foods related to lowering the risk of cancer of the larynx and esophagus all have high amounts of carotene, a form of Vitamin A which is in cantaloupes, peaches, broccoli, spinach, all dark green leafy vegetables, sweet potatoes, carrots, pumpkin, winter squash and tomatoes, citrus fruits and brussels sprouts.

Foods that may help reduce the risk of gastrointestinal and respiratory tract cancer are cabbage, broccoli, brussels sprouts, kohlrabi, cauliflower.

Be moderate in consumption of alcohol also.

A good rule of thumb is cut down on fat and don't be fat. Weight reduction may lower cancer risk. Our 12-year study of nearly a million Americans uncovered high cancer risks particularly among people 40% or more overweight.

Now, more than ever, we know you can cook up your own defense against cancer. So eat healthy and be healthy.

Rouge too valuable to slough off lightly

Emory Daniels editor/459-2700 Susan Roslek assistant managing editor

OR ELISABETH Geoffrey, walking is the chance to snatch some exercise, fresh air and peace of mind each day.

Idyl Wyld Golf Course is near her Livonia home, and she's often walked along the Bell Creek that traverses the course to take in the "cleaner air and pretty landscape."

Geoffrey's counterparts in Plymouth do the same thing farther down the Rouge tributary. It's a tranquil respite from busy suburban life.

To her dismay, Geoffrey on several occasions has seen and smelled oil floating in the water. To her way of thinking, "there are enough laws and agencies" that pollution should be a problem of the past.

SHE SHOULD be right, but she's not.
A sickened Geoffrey figured someone was dumping engine oil into the river, and called Livonia water officials. They referred her to police. She said the police told her to call the golf course.

"I knew it wasn't their fault, so I didn't call," she said. Geoffrey did call the Michigan Department of Natural

"I think it's disgusting that companies bypass legal disposal methods just because they don't want to pay the cost. We spend money and taxes on our neighborhoods, and I don't want to see any environment polluted. Toxins go into the ground, and we don't know how long they'll stay there," she said.

GEOFFREY'S COMPLAINT wasn't news to the DNR. For years the agency has heard similar complaints from residents.

Some of them are angry, and rightfully so, to see the DNR sit on its hands.

"We don't have the staff to investigate every complaint," William Stone, water quality specialist in the department's water quality division in Northville, told the Observer recently.

"I have been monitoring the pollution complaints on the Rouge system, but we don't usually get that many about the Bell branch, and usually those we do get are reports of a light film of oil floating down the creek.

'That type of pollution is more of a nuisance problem and does not represent a potential public health hazard, making it a low-priority situation.

"It's possible to trace oil through the sewer system, but it's a very difficult, monumental task because you don't know where the sewer goes without a map," Stone said.

We'd have little confidence in a police force whose detectives, after crimes were committed, immediately dismissed them as unsolvable.

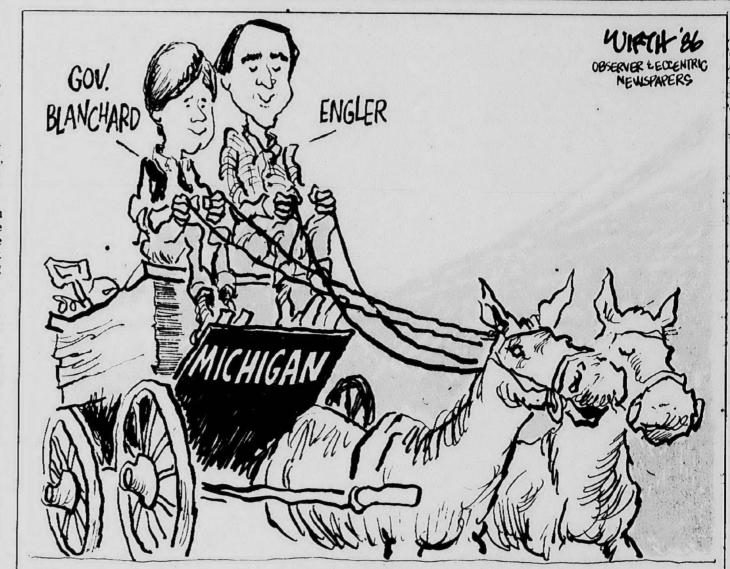

THE DNR DOES admit receiving tips about an industrial firm illegally dumping oil. But it says it's too soon to determine whether criminal charges will be filed.

No doubt, if the problem worsens, the public eventually will identify the polluters and bring enough pressure to bear that, despite bureaucratic inefficiency, the offenders will clean up their

Meanwhile, a natural resource that belongs to us all is sustaining damage that will take years to erase.

You can't argue with Elisabeth Geoffrey. We do deserve better from our environmentally irreverent neighbors and comfortable government officials.

If we're doing our part, we in turn deserve clean air, land and water.

State has 2 fine leaders

TWO KEY figures call the shots in Michigan's state capitol. The state is better off for having both of them.

You already know that one is Gov. James J. Blanchard. A very different kind of figure is Sen. Majority Leader John Engler of Mount Pleasant — different somewhat in politics, far different in style, and far more productive legislatively than his Democratic counterpart, House Speaker Gary Owen.

Shortly after Engler took the reins, Sen. R. Robert Geake of Northville, one of the senior Republicans in Lansing, called Engler the best of three leaders he has worked with — tireless, innovative, grasping a wide variety of issues.

CONSIDER:

The chamber Engler leads spotted the liability insurance/tort reform problem months before Owen and Blanchard and developed its bills.

 Engler's troops responded faster on the Essential Auto Insurance problem and cleanup of voter registration.' (The first issue was compromised; the latter lost.)

Tim Richard

• Engler's troops put so much heat on the governor that the administration settled for a much earlier rollback of the 1983 income tax increase.

 Engler commissioned a forward-looking Hudson Institute study of Michigan's economy, with closeups of several cities.

• Engler, himself, a central farmlands resident, shows up in Detroit and the suburbs for speeches — and sometimes just to learn, as when he visited an inner-city soup kitchen one zero-degree winter day. No other majority leader of either party I've seen has got around so much.

BLANCHARD HAS put most of his eggs into two baskets — the business climate and education. His State of the State messages are a fraction the length of Bill Milliken's.

With middle-class suburban values, a master of business administration degree and congressional experience on the banking committee, Blanchard has little in common with such business-baiters as Sam Fishman of the AFL-CIO, Attorney General Frank Kelley and the Ralph Nader types.

His Commerce director, Doug Ross, recently stole Engler's line — Michigan must become "competitive" again.

"Corporation" is no longer a dirty word in the upper reaches of a Democratic administration. I liken that achievement to President Nixon's opening America's doors to Red Chi-

After taking a public relations beating his first year in office by keeping his nose to the grindstone, Blanchard now tours the state, and develops contacts with community newspapers so assiduously, that he's accused of being a shallow "good news" governor.

Your own ideology likely will put you in one camp or the other. I would say that each camp ought to appreciate its leader.

You could help save a chunk of history

"WHADYA CALL this, Steve?" said the reporter. In her hand was a pamphlet containing information about a medical service that uses helicopters to transport patients. Moving over to my desk, she pointed at the bottom of the aircraft.

"Skids, s-k-i-d-s," I replied auto-

"Skids, s-k-i-d-s," I replied automatically, gazing at the helicopter's landing gear.

It's been a while, 18 years, since I've thought seriously about helicopters, a symbol of a war in which I once participated. But some things never leave you.

For me "skid" was one of those things. It has been packed away in the back of my brain for nearly two decades. In an instant, the brain dusted it off and threw it into my mouth.

As infantrymen, we would stand on the skids as the helicopters came in for a landing. Chopper pilots had an aversion to actually landing, especially when we were getting shot at. So we would jump, sometimes from as high as 10 or 12 feet — usually into knee-high mud.

iud. So skids I remember.

LATER THAT day a colleague caught me in the cafeteria.

"Steve, I've gotta have my B-17 book back. My dentist and I are having anargument about them. Imagine, he's trying to tell me about B-17s."

That was hard to imagine. My colleague, Frank Kinney, spent an appreciable amount of time flying over Europe in the famous World War II bomber known as the "Flying Fortress."

For a World War II history buff like myself, talking with Frank is like meeting a piece of history. A few minutes with him and all those pictures crammed away in dusty history books of B-17 crews standing in front of their airplanes come alive.

Although Frank and I fought in different wars, I realize how precious those symbols of that once-in-a-lifetime experience are for him. And while plenty of helicopters buzz through the air, Frank's symbol is a vanishing breed

And that would be a shame if those artifacts of another time just faded away. We need to remind ourselves how in times of conflict we are able to band together and survive.

WE NEED the symbols to give the children of our children something to touch, to feel and understand when the living symbols are gone.

The Yankee Air Force, a group with a museum at Willow Run, would like to preserve a little piece of that history. But the volunteer organization of aviation buffs is running short on time.

They've got less than 60 days to buy one of these mainstays of World War II airpower. At one time nearly 13,000 lumbered through the skies of Europe and over the Pacific.

But today only 12 remain.

The problem is bucks — $280,000 to be exact. Now that's some bundle of cash for a machine that's more than 40

But just stop and think how it would make history come alive for future generations. Then, if you're so inclined, write a check to Flying Fortress Fund and send to Yankee Air Force, P.O. Box 1100, Ypsilanti, Mich. 48197.

GOP race for guv — ho-hum

THE TROUBLE I have with political campaigns is that I usually have a hard time figuring out where the campaign is. For example, where's the campaign for governor?

Gov. James Blanchard supposedly has a Democratic primary opponent, but I can't remember his name. The Republican primary campaign, which supposedly will come up with an alternative to Blanchard, is moving along like an earthworm hoping it can turn into a butterfly.

Not only is it dull, it is producing little enthusiasm for any of the candidates vying for the distinction of losing to Blanchard in November.

IN STATE elections, it used to be that candidates would criss-cross the state speaking to small groups and talking about what they think the campaign issues should be. Voters would head down to the town hall to see the candidate live. Newspapers would report on what the candidates had to say about the is-

That's all changed. Nowadays, candidates mostly waste their time when they appear before small groups. They have to appeal to voters in big clumps, and the only sure-fire method of getting wide exposure is in television advertis-

Gubernatorial candidates mostly try to buy an image. Bill Lucas, the Wayne County executive who started the GOP campaign as the front runner, has even stopped going to candidates' meetings, saying he will use his time better raising money for advertising.

Ace Observer & Eccentric political reporter Tim Richard has been following the candidates around the metropolitan area hoping to get a picture of what the candidates stand for and how they differ in their views of government and government spending.

WHAT HE HAS found is that Oakland County Executive Dan Murphy and Rep. Colleen Engler have programs to talk about but the other candidates don't. When asked about a subject, most give either off-the-cuff opinions or statements that sound as if they were spit out by some public relations/political consultant.

Newspaper stories talk about the relative standings of the gubernatorial candidates, as measured by the opinions of various Republican Party luminaries. In most of them, Lucas and Chrysler are ranked first and second while those with the programs are down the list.

There is no doubt that the GOP campaign up to now has been influenced primarily by Dick Chrysler's political ads on televesion.

Chrysler was earlier this year a minor Republican figure who was only known for pushing a relatively hopeless program of turning the state Legislature into a part-time body.

THEN HE SPENT almost a half-million on televison advertising, which showed him as the founder of a thriving car industry and the head of nice looking family. Boom. He became a force to be reckoned with even though his advertising said nothing about any issue involving government.

involving government.

But, by the dint of advertising, it is beginning to look like Chrysler, now into his second round of TV ads, will push Murphy so far down in the relative pecking order that Dan won't be able to get up. More than one politician is predicting Chrysler will knock off Lucas in the August GOP primary cas in the August GOP primary.

It's probably far too early to predict that, however, since Lucas has yet to air his televison ads showing how a poor boy from Harlem has been able to work his way up in the political system from New York cop, to FBI agent, to sheriff, to county executive.

THE LEADING candidates aren't likely to talk about any real governmental issues, such as the need for doing something about the state welfare system, how to deal with urban sprawl or whether the tax system will be changed so that there is less reliance on the property tax.

Instead they will conduct advertising campaigns trying to indicate to voters that they are as American as apple pie and that they believe in the old-fashioned virtues of family, hard work and self-sacrifice in rising up the ladder of

They will, in essence, try to use ads that spark the kind of response in voters that set off an emotional reaction. The ideal ad will be something like a successful Coca-Cola ad. Substance matters little if the style is right.

O&E columnist ends self-imposed exile

HATEVER A MILESTONE is, I just sped by three of

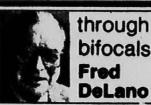

The first was a birthday ending another decade, making me older than you but not as wise. Next came our daughter's delivery of her first child, which meant that henceforth I would share the matrimonial mattress with a grandmother.

Then there was a decision to accept the offer to return to this journalistic font of information, ending a self-imposed seven-year exile after 12 previous years of mostly delightful toil. Reasons for the extended sabbatical are nobody else's business.

Milestones, yes; but none should be confused with a headstone.

IF MY WEEKLY essays provoke an emotion - a chuckle, a moist eye, even anger - from any who enroll as Thursday readers, my mission will be accomplished.

What I have to say will not change the world. Deep thinking I leave to the pundits of the political realm, of whom the O&E has several, all highly skilled. Bifocals will rarely attempt to steer public opinion. There will be no deliberate name dropping to impress the peasants, I will reminisce only occasionally, but today will be one of them.

You see, I prefer to compose paragraphs that entertain, that tell of people and things, now and then relating something you didn't know.

I am a creature of habit. Like day behind yesterday, when Mother Goose tried to catch a few extra winks while I was in the shower. She wondered aloud why I disturbed her by turning on the bedroom light when I came back to put on my socks, humming, "Oh, What A Beautiful Morning."

"Your socks are in the same drawer as always, next to your side of the bed," was her next riposte.

"For most of the 20th century you have put your right sock on before the left. Both feet are where they've always been. My God, do you also have to turn the light on when you go to the bath-

"Only when I shave," said I smirking. I almost broke into "Hail to the Victors," but subtleties don't go over too well in dawn's early light.

SO LET'S GET back to the right to reminisce occasionally. We'll start by pretending it's Thanksgiving Week, 1945. Right here I'll insert that the following was inspired by the luck of the Detroit Lions in being able to make quarterback Chuck Long of the University of Iowa their No. 1 draft pick last Thanksgiving Day, Thursday, Nov. 22, was bitterly cold, but you may have been among the 40,017 humans who filed into what then was called Briggs Stadium to watch the Lions play the then Cleveland Rams in the pivotal game toward determining the Western Division championship of the National Football League.

Chicagoan Fred L. Mandel Jr. owned the Lions. Gus Dorais was head coach, and Lew Cromwell was general manager. I was publicity director. This was so long ago that Nick Kerbawy hadn't even come to Detroit yet.

To emphasize that *point, consider that this also was the season before Russ Thomas made his debut as a rookie tackle with the Lions. Now, of course, he's general manager.

In fact, two days after the Thanksgiving Lions-Ram game in question, Russ was the starting left tackle for Ohio State as the Buckeyes lost in the fourth quarter to Michigan, 7-3, before a frozen crowd of 85,132 at Ann Arbor. You may have been in that throng, too; many of us were. If you're curious, the 1945 Big 10 title was won by unbeaten Indiana.

BACK TO BRIGGS Stadium: At quarterback for the Rams that Thursday was a first-year star out of UCLA named Bob Waterfield, an adroit ball handler and all-around standout who already had married his high school sweetheart, Jane Russell.

This was a fine Lions team, on that day still in the running to meet the Eastern Division titlists, who a week or so later would prove to be the Washington Redskins.

Detroit's roster was dotted with such names as Bob Westfall, Ed Frutig, Johnny Greene, Dave Diehl, Andy Farkas, Bob Keene, Tippy Madarik, Jack Matheson, Bob Cifers, Chuck Fenebock, Elmer Hackney, Bobby Nelson, Cotton Price, Dave Ryan, Frank Szymanski, Bill Radovich, Stan Batinski, Ivan Tre-botich, Emil Uremovich and the inimitable Alexander Francis Wojciechowicz.

Cleveland won the game 28-21 and wrapped up the divisional crown when Waterfield scored late on a bootleg around left and going toward Briggs Stadium's left field seats. He also led the Rams to the league championship with a 15-14 playoff victory over the

To this day, if I'm not mistaken, the late Bob Waterfield stands as the only quarterback to have been chosen the NFL's most valuable player in his rook-

It would be absolutely miraculous if Mr. Long were to match Waterfield's first-year exploits, but he has turned on the light at the end of the tunnel, so to speak. And even if a championship isn't in the immediate offing, 1986 can always be remembered as the 40th anniversary of Russ's first Lions paycheck.

If you think he has taken some lumps in his years as Lions general manager, some day ask Thomas to tell you the saga of '4s . . . 10 defeats against one victory (that by a 27-7 count over Pittsburgh sparked by an 88-yard touchdown pass from Ryan to Greene), travel plans that went awry, and in general an autumn of mass confusion. Al Ackerman could have had a ball.

All the neighborhood news that fits in print

I CAN readily empathize with the Detroit Free Press and News in their decision to combine operations. Running a newspaper is tough. I know. I did it for 10 years when I was a kid.

My newspaper was called the Melville News, later the Wagner News, after the streets I lived on. It came out once a month (when I could manage it) and was sent to my friends who moved away and my cousins. The paper consisted of two news pages, a sports page, a feature page, a magazine (a sheet of typewriter paper folded in half) and two pages of comics, because I loved to draw.

I prided myself on my local coverage, on giving my readers the stories no one else would touch. The April 1963 issue, for instance, carried the banner headline, written in black crayon, across the front page, "Fight Is Deadly - Jackie's Bike Wrecked." In the story, I gave the readers all the facts — at least the ones I knew. "George got mad be-cause they wouldn't fight so he smashed Jackie's bike with a stick. George (I do not know his last name) had to pay probably lots of money for the damaged bike. George is 24 years old and has a job."

Rich Lech

ANOTHER EXCLUSIVE was run in the July 1963 issue. "Poogie Disappear - Lech's Move." Poogie was our family dog, who had run away. I just ran out of room to write the "S" on disappear, and, as for Lech's, well, my punctuation wasn't always too good. The issue featured a fullpage tribute to Poogie, to "clip and save." "Poogie did not know how to do many tricks," said the tribute, "but still there never was as good a

Sometimes the news items would be short and to the point. "People Move In - (April 1963) Last month some people moved into the house where Kathy Fox lived. There is a lot of kids living there."

"Richard's Mom Breaks Leg" said the headline to one story. I made sure the article ended with a point of clarification. "Richard was over his cousin's when it happened."

Yet I didn't shy away from the big national and state stories either. The November 1963 issue featured the lead headline, in 96-point Crayola Black, "Colavito Traded." But then an even bigger story broke in Dallas. Just like a real newspaper, I rushed to make over my paper to get in the breaking news. I taped the headline "Kennedy Dies" over "Colavito Traded" and erased the old stories to get in news of the assassination.

A HELPFUL feature of the News was the "Hints" that ran in a little box on the top of the front page. This feature offered such practical tips as "Put salt on watermelon to make it sweeter" and "Throw snowballs only at people who are playing snow-

Occasionally I asked people to send in money to my publishing company, the Things That Happen Press

(T.T.H.P.), for special Rich-Lechdrawn comic books or other items. Very wisely, no one ever responded to such offers as, "If you would like to invest in T.T.H.P. stocks send in for a free book on how you can easily ten time your money.'

Reproducing my newspaper always was a problem in that pre-photocopier era. At first I would copy each issue by hand, keeping the one that turned out the best for myself.

When my circulation expanded, I started using a hectograph, a primitive system of printing that turned out weak, hard-to-read purple copies. The ink from the purple hectograph pencils would soak into the hectograph, into my hands, into the walls, into just about anything I touched. Toward the end of the run, my dad, a lithographer, was printing the paper for me.

I still have all the old copies of my newspaper, some 60 issues in all. Once in a while I take them out for friends, and we laugh at items written so earnestly 20-some years ago. But if any of you parents out there have a child who puts out his or her own newspaper, be forewarned. He or she could end up working for the real thing someday, just as I did.

Sculptor brings tools to life

Sculptor Peter Rockwell shared his knowledge with area resilents Saturday during a lecture on the use of tools, held at lymouth Township Park

Getting the hang of it didn't take much time for Bart Hogart, one of those who gave sculpturing a try during the Saturday morning program.

A variety of tools are used in sculpture. Among stone workers, the Italians are generally the most technologically advanced,

"Sorry, this is noisy and dusty work," Rockwell told the crowd, which included the young, the old and those in between

The tools and techniques that a sculptor uses vary according to the stone, he said. Soft stones, such as Indiana limestone, require different techniques and tools than do the harder stones.

Indiana limestone is used frequently in the U.S., he said. It is the stone used at the University of Michigan's School of Law and for a number of other buildings throughout the Travertine calls for a combination of the techniques used for limestone and for marble, Rockwell told the crowd at the park.

"You just have to get trickier as you move to a harder stone.

The play sculpture at the Plymouth Township Park will include gargoyles in its design.

The concept is for sculpture to go in the park for people to climb on," Rockwell said. "For some reason, travertine outdoors to me reads

THOSE WHO missed the lecture at the park last Saturday will have another chance to hear Rockwell speak on the use of tools. His lecture will be repeated at 11 a.m. Saturday, May 17, at the park.

That lecture isn't the only opportunity area residents will have to learn more about the play sculpture. An activity day for children — and for the young-at-heart — will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday, at Plymouth Township Park.

During the session for families, children will be able to make badges, color gargoyle designs and create monsters of clay. Rockwell will be available to answer questions about the project.

Admission will be free, but there will be a small charge for materials. The family-fun session is scheduled to run through 2 p.m.; a similar program is planned for those hours Saturday, May 31, at the sculpture site.

Peer group influence is one of the greatest concerns of today's parents. At home, or around the neighborhood, you can monitor the kind of friends that your child spends time with, but school is often a different story

The Temple Christian School is looking for bright, motivated young people who want the best Christ-centered education available. Our time is spent in teaching your child, not in disciplining a few troubled youngsters. If you're ready to give your child a new set of friends, give us a call.

Mom's often underrated

As we approach Mother's Day, I recall the comment of a modern writer, "In America, one day each year is devoted to Mother, and an en-tire week to pickles." Henny Youngman offered his perspective, "There's nothing like the joy of motherhood, especially when all the kids are in bed."

It is unfortnute that Mother's Day has been so commercialized by florists and candymakers. It could and should be a day of true tribute to the one who is responsible for all of us.

To tell the truth, Mother is black and blue. She was placed on a pedestal where her hold was insecure - a little scotch tape and some old library paste were all that kept her from falling off. Slingshots and harsh words quickly knocked her down; a few well-placed kicks added to the bruises. Old behaviorists and new ones, psychologists and novelists all have had their say. Mom is found wanting. Some would like to dispense with her altogether.

STILL, MOTHER IS both tender and tough. She can take it with a smile after she catches her breath and eyes her critics and adversaries. And nobody seems to have found an adequate substitute for her.

Mother has her supporters, too. Thank God for father and the children who express their love less vocally perhaps, but very wonderfully and in ways so tender they cannot be told. There are many different words and actions that say, "We love

Motherhood is more than a matter of bearing children. That is a biological experience. Motherhood is nurturing the growth of children, their approach to life, their values and their ability to cope with the world. Talent, achievement and a fulfilling PSYCHOLOGIST HAVE pointed to the dilema of mother-love. Love usually seeks to hold tight, to embrace closely. The Mother loves her child selfishly and intensely. Without this love, the helpless human infant cannot grow and develop.

Yet this love is doomed from the outset, because the mother cannot expect to grow constantly closer to her child as time goes on. As the years pass, she must encourage in her child his/ her independence, so that he/she can become a self-reliant adult.

Mother's love, which holds tight, must then let go, must help the child grow away in order to grow up. It is extremely difficult to love and to leave, to hold tight and to let go, but this is precisely the artistry and dis-

SEVERAL YEARS AGO, a wellknown actress accepted an Academy Award and declared, "Thank you, Mother, for whatever you did." Mom likes that kind of thanks. She tried her best. She is not so sure what she did either. But the devoted Mother knows one thing — her motherhood never stopped with her own family.

Her concern and devotion for her family was expressed in her sense of responsibility for the welfare of the wider community.

We recognize that Mother provides us with the most valuable and sacred of gifts — love, encouragement, faith and commitment. Our appreciation of these gifts is expressed in bestowing them reciprocally to Mother. In this way do we come to understand the meaning and value of life itself.

We have a pair of black-capped chickadees, which attended our feeder all winter and made our yard part of their territory. The other day I watched as they worked toward building a nest.

Business start-ups: where the action is for women

By Susan Steinmueller staff writer

Women entrepreneurs in Michigan are following a nationwide trend and entering the economic mainstream.

Statistics for the state show that while women owned only 4 percent of businesses in 1970, that figure rose to 28 percent in 1980 and 36 percent in 1985 - with four out of five new businesses statewide started by women

Women are especially making a difference in the service sector, with about 45 percent of the legal, medical and information services owned by women, according to the Michigan Department of Labor.

AS WOMEN buy their own businesses, they find that they have a helping hand from the state.

The Office of Women Business Owners was opened three years ago by the Michigan Department of Commerce. Michigan is the only state so far to form one.

The office works with communities to establish economic development, business and leadership opportunities for women.

The governor recognizes that investing in women owning businesses is absolutely going to give Michigan a competitive edge," says Barbara Gentry, director of the office. "He is taking advantage of a market that no other state does.

We are on the leading edge, and five years from now, it will be absolutely evident that it is a wise invest-

With the number of Michigan businesses owned by women slightly higher than the nationwide average, that investment already seems to be paying off.

THE GROWTH of business startups by women goes hand in hand with a general nationwide trend of growth in new business startups, notes Gentry. "In the last quarter, there have been 23,600 businesses started, the highest number ever. These business startups have mainly been in the area of service and technology - areas where most women are." Elizabeth Howe, Michigan Department of Labor director, says, "The fact is women are responsible for much of the economic upturn in Michigan and the U.S.'

THE STATE co-sponsors an annual, statewide conference for women business owners, now in its third year. To note the growth of women in busines, the conference has changed its name.

"Our first two conferences were titled 'Women: The Emerging Entrepreneurs," Gentry says. "We switched to the past tense - 'Emerged' - this year because women have clearly taken their place in the mainstream of entrepreneurial enterprise in Michigan and throughout the country.

"Women: The Emerged Entrepreneurs," is Friday and Saturday, May 16 and 17, at the Clarion Hotel in Lans-

Co-sponsors are the Wayne State University College of Lifelong Learning, Michigan Department of Commerce Office of Women Business Owners, Michigan Small Business Development Center and the U.S. Small Business Administration.

The two-day program will feature speakers, workshops, leadership "skillshops," roundtables, a marketplace, procurement appointments and a reception honoring women business owners.

Zoe Wilcox, community affairs consultant for Consumers Power, will open and close the conference. Friday's luncheon speaker will be Marlene Johnson, lieutenant governor of Minnesota. Martha Mertz, president of Mayhood Mertz Realtors, will open Saturday's pro-

The ways women attempt to achieve career goals as business owners are as diverse as the businesses they run.

Joan E. Moore and E. Jill Pollock started the Arbor Consulting Group in Plymouth because they wanted to capitalize on their entrepreneurial skills involving risk taking. Both women were previously employed in fast track corporate positions at Ford Motor Co.

Pat Gray, owner of Uniforce of Birmingham, said she decided to invest in a franchise of the New Yorkbased temporary employment agency, Uniforce Temporary Services, because she wanted more control over her destiny.

The companies are examples of the increasing number of businesses started by women in Michigan in the past five years. Both companies have grown from their start to a staff of 13 and continue to grow as their revenues increase - with the Arbor Consulting Group setting its sights on becoming a big business.

GRAY ACQUIRED Uniforce of Birmingham in 1982, when she bought out her partner of two years. Two years later, she opened a Southfield office. Since then, Uniforce of Birmingham has become the largest temporary personnel service owned by a woman in the Detroit area.

It hs also earned recognition in the last two years for having the highest earnings of the 50-plus Uniforce chain nationwide. Clients range from small companies to General Motors, General Electric and IBM.

Gray believes that in order for more women to succeed in business,

Wills ease survivors' burden

Picture this: Joe's widowed mother has just died, leaving him in charge of dividing her estate equally among her three children. Sounds simple enough.

But Joe's two sisters bicker over the value of the inherited items. Susie claims the china is worth less than the television Mary is getting.

And where is the oil painting? Although Mom earmarked it for Mary six years ago, it later ended up in the hands of Aunt Pearl. What's more, Joe can't find the will and doesn't recall his mother's burial wishes or information on how the funeral was to be financed.

The will is in a safe deposit box at a local bank. But Joe doesn't have joint ownership of the box, so he'll have to get a Probate Court order to have it opened.

Estate planning tips

John Landis, vice president and trust officer of Manufacturers Bank, Dearborn, offers these tips on estate

 Diversify your investment portfolio. Don't stick strictly to stocks, bonds or cash. • Use common sense in choosing a financial planner by watching out for slick financial product sales and hidden fees and commissions. Remortgage your home at 10 percent (or less depending on present rates) for 15 years if you are now paying more than 12 percent interest.

JOHN LANDIS, vice president and trust officer of Manufacturers Bank in Dearborn, told a Schoolcraft College audience recently that there are lessons to be learned from Joe's dilemma. Among them, the personal representative (formerly known as the executor) of the estate has a thankless, time-consuming task at a time of great personal loss

Because of changing tax laws and increasing administrative duties, Joe may not have the time and knowledge to carry nut his mother's best intentions. "Nothing for the personal representative is really simple," Landis stressed. "Even the simplest things can become compli-

Landis said Joe's responsibilities - preparation of tax forms, legal consultations, time in court, and appraisal and disposal of property - should allow him 6 percent of the estate's total assets in addition to his share of the inheritance.

There are countless advantages to making a will and naming a personal representative in consultation with an attorney, Landis said, adding that the estate's net worth should be reviewed annually.

IF ASSETS ARE valued at more than $100,000, he suggests the person making the will should consider hiring a bank officer to serve as the personal representative. That takes the burden off a family member or friend who may be ill prepared to deal with complex estate problems, Landis said.

But a will doesn't safeguard the assets. "When your will goes to probate, you become a public figure. Everybody knows what you have, and anyone can file a claim against or contest the will. A trust could replace a will and can save taxes," Landis said. "A trust is also a book of what-ifs. What if you're disabled? What if you die and your spouse remarries?"

A trust, which is frequently managed by a bank trustee, is the surest and safest way to assure assets are split in strict compliance with the benefactor's wishes, Landis said. He cited a case from experience: A widower married trust stipulated that his children were to receive the bulk of his estate after his death. When the man died, he left his second wife a $2,000 monthly allowance. Although she complained bitterly about her inheritance, there was nothing she could do about it. Had the estate gone through probate, it is doubtful it would have been uncontested. When it comes to trusts, Landis warned that what's moral may not be in tune with what's legal. "If a man wants to leave his girlfriend $100,000 and his wife nothing, it's morally questionable but legally OK. We don't make moral judgments," he said. "The most important words in a trust arangement are 'according to his or her

Avon has ended the season with a Neil Simon musical comedy that is two-thirds bang, one-third whimper. riding the swell of the first ones, which are just splendid.

Karen Elliott-Upchurch and Jeff Upchurch are ideally paired, as I thought back in December of 1984 when she was plain Karen Elliott. They met when she was cast as Sister Rita, he as the accused priest, in the players' production of "The Runner Stumbles," an unsatisfying that is nearly equal to their talents. They play words and music people, songwriters, both neurotic, uncertain, vulnerable. We see a little of ourselves in each of them.

Karen is a physical actress, thrusting her whole body into each line, without a hint of overstatement or inappropriateness. We are sorry when her character gains success, poise, maturity and an awful hairdo/ wig. But she turns a few mediocre songs into real treasures with her clear, strong voice and her expressubdued rendering, but he too recognizes the importance of movement, of modified burlesque, in theater. He does not go beyond the bounds of what seems natural to him, however.

His exasperation, frustration, anger and love are conveyed beautifully in his face and voice. His '50sstyle falsetto singing is a special treat.

Their real troubles start in bed This time they found a medium and, strangely enough, so do those with timing and the play in general. The second act just isn't as interesting, perhaps because romantic, sexual tension is replaced by real tension. Still, the audience remembers the earlier belly laughs.

Simon fully compensates for plot lags with the creation of character alter-egos that, rather than be amorphous, take shape and form: Vernon's Voices - Rick Gebbie, Mark Hammell, Anthony Sherman; Sonia's Voices - Melanie Hansen, Kim Renfrew, Debbie Schlutow.

These songster/hoofers provide much of the fun. While staying completely in character, they seem to laugh right along with us.

The players completely immerse themselves, from toes to head tops, in the acting and physical posture, antics, expressions and voice timbre.

Actress charms as a bag lady in 'Everybody Loves Opal'

Performances of the Plymouth Theatre Guild production of "Everybody Loves Opal" continue through Saturday, May 10, at Central Middle School in Plymouth. For ticket information, call 455-263 or 261-2875

The Plymouth Theatre Guild's current offering, "Everybody Loves Opal," is a comedy with a message. Namely, that faith in the basic goodness of mankind will overcome all and even make good guys out of the worst of us.

The play succeeds in no small measure because of the acting talents of Karen Wendt in the lead role the overall acting technique and exof Opal. Supporting players detract from success of 'Matchmaker'

Performances of the Farmington Players produuction of "Matchmaker" by Thornton Wilder continue through Saturday, May 17. For ticket information,

In the age-old battle of the sexes, men only think they're smarter than women, says the Thornton Wilder comedy "The Matchmaker" (betterknown in its musical adaptation as "Hello, Dolly!") The current produc-tion by the Farmington Players achieves only mixed success.

While many of the principals do fine work, overall polish is noticeably lacking. Numerous inexperienced actors in supporting roles have deliveries as flat as the show's spartan, one-dimensional sets.

The title character is Dolly Levi (Ceci Orman), an eminently practical widow who sets her cap for wealthy businessman Horace Vandergelder (Dick Coe) and succeeds in making him think the match is entirely his idea. Along the way, she also patches up a few other affairs of the heart.

Orman only occasionally shows flashes of Dolly's irrepressible spunk. The rest of the time she is pleasant but pedestrian in the role.

COE IS QUITE convincing as the crusty, tight-fisted, chauvinistic Vandergelder who mistreats his clerks, bullies his niece and generally growls at everyone. Coe keeps his bluster understated, and the effect works nicely, increasing credibility that Dolly would consider marrying the old curmudgeon.

Addressing the audience with the self-assurance of the very rich, Coe explains, "Ninety-nine percent of the world are fools, and the rest of us are in great danger of contagion." He also causes quite a stir when he arrogantly confides that marriage is nothing more than making a housekeeper think she's a householder.

Thus pride goeth before a fall.

Mike Brick is engaging as Vandergelder's earnest young clerk, Cornelius Hackl, and Robert Ellmann gives real zest to Hackle's assistant, Barnaby Tucker. The two naively set out for a day of adventure and get far more than they bargained for. Maggie Einhaus is bubbly as Irene Molloy, the widowed millionairess variously courted by Vandergelder and Hackl. In a smaller role, Meg Kaatz makes the most of playing Minnie Fay, Irene's giggly young shop assistant, but her pleasing broad comedy style doesn't quite match with the other players.

Barbara Michals teaches high school English and journalism in Southfield. A theater critic for the last 12 years, she is an inveterate playgoer who regularly catches up on all the New York produc-

Well, awright! It's party time on the TV. Get out your shades, your Coppertone, your beach ball, and your blanket - sprinkle a little sand on the floor and take a trip down memory lane in your dune buggy with Frankie and Annette. Channel 4 is getting down and getting ready for the summer with a whole week of beach party movies.

When Annette grew up and out, she left her fellow Mousketeers and traded her ears for a swimsuit (always a demure one-piece suit, by the way) and joined teen heartthrob Frankie Avalon, whose records had stopped selling by this time, to make movie history, of

The plots were basically the same, the music was basically bad, but these were the ultimate summer at the drive-in movies. The real talent was in the supporting roles, especially Harvey Lembeck who survived on beach movies. Oh how low the mighty fall. This awful attempt at romantic comedy was made by, arguably, the greatest comic director of all time. Charlie Chaplin. But Chaplin's magic is evident only in a silly bit part that he takes as an unsteady ship's steward. Stars Marlon Brando and Sophia Loren look uncomfortable throughout. The comedy doesn't look right, sound right or play right. Castle cruise

2-week cruise has time for seaports, islands, castles

By William Schemmel special writer

DINBURGH, Scotland -After a morning's chilling rain and fog, the sun bathe the heart of Edinburgh in a near-tropical glow. Through the tea room's windows, shoppers push along the sidewalks of Princes Street.

Flanking one side of this noble, northern Champs-Elysees, the emerald carpet of Princes Street Gardens greets the invasion of nannies and prams, elders out for Sea, and its sister ships, Royal Viktheir morning constitutional, purple-haired punkers seeking a place to land.

As the lunchtime mercury soars near 68, bankers and clerks doff coast and loosen ties, and sharpen their putting on a mini-green provide by a thoughtful city council.

The day's first school groups push and shove one another up the 287 winding steps to the top of Sir Walter Scott's monument. High on its rocky ramparts, Edinburgh Castle moves glorious and dignified through another milestone of its millenium

WITH THE creeping warmth of the tea and stout Scottish fare, we realize our too-short time in Edinburgh is fast slipping away. Here by the grace of the Royal Viking Sea and its two-week "Castles, Kings & Golfing Cruise," we've only until twiligh, to explore the Castle, walk the Royal Mile to the chambers of star-crossed Mary Queen of Scots at the Palace of Holyroodhouse, see the shrines of John Knox and Greyfriars Bobby, pick up a tweed sweater or skirt and have a kilt made while-we-

Somehow we'll find a moment for a cup of tea, a ploughman's lunch in a Rose Street pub, or an elegant Behind us on this cruise are Copenhagen and Bergen and the Norwegian fjords. Still ahead are Loch Ness and the Beastie, the Isle has broken through to of Man, Dublin, Cork and journey's end at the old English seaport of Southhampton.

SINCE ITS acquisition a couple of years ago by the Norwegian shipping conglomerate that also owns Norwegian Caribbean Line, Royal Viking Line has upgraded its position among the leaders of the luxury cruise market.

Like a floating country club, the ing Sky and Star, are popular with a predominately older, affluent and sedate clientele, accutomed to the best of everything.

The American/continental food is good to excellent, varied with elaborate buffets and "national nights" highlighting French, Italian and other cuisines.

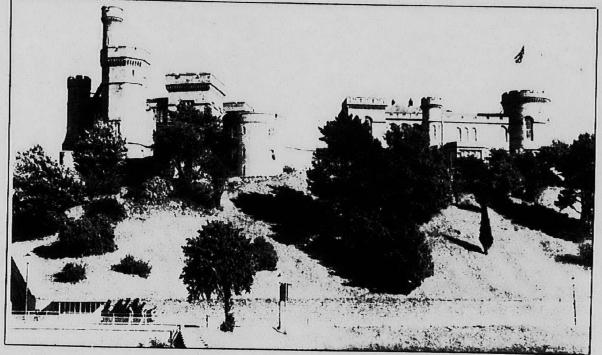

Guest rooms are large and attractively appointed; service is cheerful and professional. Entertainment includes a gaming casino, lavish floor shows, and orchestras.

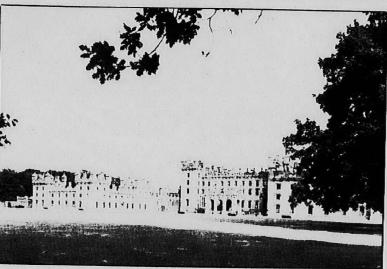

ON IT SAILINGS this spring and summer, "Castles & Kings" offers golfers the opportunity to attend clinics led by Tony Jacklin, Peter Townsend and Peter Alliss at such temples of the game as St. Andrews, Gleneagles and Cork Golf Club.

Like most rational beings, I'd always assumed that Brigadoon was the product of a playwright's fantasies. Now I'm not so certain.

After seeing Edinburgh, Loch Ness, the Shetlands and Orkney Islands, I'm willing, even eager, to believe that any country as mystical, as gloriously green, as rich in legends and lore, kilted pipers and beasties just might conjure a village that magically appears only every 300 years or so.

As we come off the ship at Inverluncheon in the grand dining rooms ness, a question hangs heavy in the Royal Viking Line's "Castles & Kings" cruise affords visits to such places as Inverness Castle (above), originally constructed in 1834, and Floors Castle (left), just outside the town of Kelso. Home to the Duke and Duchess of Roxburghe, Floors was the site of filming for the movie "Greystroke."

Highland air: Is there or isn't there a Beastie lurking 'neath the cold, dark waters of Loch Ness?

MANKIND HAS pondered the mystery since the 6th century when Highland herdsmen were first shocked out of their kilts by a monster which reportedly rose from the Loch like a phantom from the underworld.

Through the centuries, farmers, fishermen and clerics have risked scorn, and worse, by relating their experiences with Nessie. Photos have captured tantalizing glimpses of "something" - a dinosaur-like neck, dragonish humps and scales, unearthly appendages.

All have been inconclusive, and subject to suspicion and derision. Recent scientific explorations, using the most precise sonar and underwater photography, have also located 'something.'

Still, the crafty Nessie remains an enigma, cloaked in myth and illusion in peaty waters nearly 1,000 feet

ON THE SHORES of Loch Ness, the Loch Ness Monster Exhibit gives cruise passengers the chance toj objectively examine all the reported sightings, photos and scientific studies, and decide for themselves. Families often come back to the ship sorely divided.

'Well, I don't care what you say," a woman informs her husband testily. "I think there's something down there." He sighs in here-we-go-again exasperation. "Yeah, and there's a bridge out in San Francisco I'd like to sell you."

Quick now. Name all the independent states of Western Europe. 415-398-8000.

BRITISH, IRISH and continental vacationers come here to hike the green hills, and cart home bargainpriced tweeds and china.

In fact, the shopping has a way of locking the weak in a hopeless thrall. Even with the Sea tooting her whistles and building up steam out in Douglas harbor, and the last tender ready to embark from shore, they stick to their charge cards.

A torrent of furious Norwegian from the ship's bridge orders the first mate on the tender to get those rebellious passengers aboard - a brave lad, his Viking heart quails in terror at the notion of coming between bargain-hunters and their boo-

IN DUBLIN'S fair city, shop-omania reaches a crescendo. The Book of Kells, Trinity College, Dublin Castle, the fabled pubs get only a cursory how-do as passengers eagerly pile up a bounty of Irish linens and Waterford crystal.

Clerks in the big O'Connell Street department store, even cab drivers normally ruffled by little short of all-out war, are frankly flummoxed by the encompassing sweep of this small but surpremely determined army of 700. After two relentless days, shelves lay bare, the assault at an end.

'Aye, you lot have fair plundered the town," our cabbie merrily chirps as we speed back to the Sea for the last leg to Salong your friends."

summer will enjoy the results of a number of new Mackinac Island State Park Commission projects.

According to Commission Director David L. Pamperin, "continued efforts in the historic restoration and interpretation of Fort Mackinac" will "improve and enhance the summer visitor's experience.

There will be a number of new living history programs and exhibits. For the first time the role of women at the fort will be explored.

COSTUMED interpreters will demonstrate the laborious work of the Post laundress and explain the hardships of army life for the wife of a soldier at Fort Mackinac in the Director of Interpretation Phil Porter said he is excited about the new program which he says will "expand the scope of the living history program.'

He said "the presence of women and children in the fort helped create a sense of community in an otherwise formal mililtary environment. fort's human history that we hope to bring to life this summer for our guests.

Visitors will also be able to see the ongoing restoration of Fort Mackinac's Officers' Wooden Quarters. Built in 1816, this log structure served a variety of functions throughout the fort's history. At various times it housed the enlisted men, officers and laundresses, it served as a temporary hospital, a storeroom, a reading room and finally as the post canteen in the 1890's.

THIS MACKINAC Island State Park Commission Sesquicentennial celebration project began in 1985 and will be completed in 1987. During the summer of 1986 archaeologist will conduct an excavation of the deposits beneath the floor of the Officers' Wooden Quarters.

Fort visitors will see how the archaeological process of excavation and discovery helps tell the story of this important building. Improvements in the Mackinac Island State Park will certainly please travelers who enjoy the Island's scenic beauty, fresh air and recreational environment.

A new boardwalk will stretch along the Island's south shore from the Iroquois Hotel to the beach beneath the Grand Hotel.

a panoramic view of the Straits of Mackinac highlighted by the Mackinac Bridge. New nature trails and exhibits will be installed at British Landing and Croghan water. Displays will de-

The Mackinac Island State Park Commission is particularly interested in making sure that visitors are able to find and enjoy these new trails, according to Commission Deputy Director Dr. David Armour.

'As a part of this project we will design and create a Mackinac Island Nature Trail map that will be distributed to our visitors at the State Park Visitor's Center," he said.

IF ONLY THE GOVERNMENT SPENT OUR TAX DOLLARS AS SCRUPULOUSI AS THEY COLLECT THEM.

Last year, the federal government collected over $300 billion in personal income taxes.

Money that was used to take care of the needy. To run the country. And to protect it. But that's not all it was used for.

LAST OF THE BIG-TIME SPENDERS.

Your taxes also went to pay $435 for a $7 hammer. $7,417 for a 1-cent pin. And $511 for a 60-cen light bulb.

In a single year, the government gives away over $5 billion in benefit payments. Totally by mistake. And the government not managing its money properly costs taxpayers over $2 billion every year. These incidents of inefficiency and mismanagement are so vast they could fill a book. (To be exact, they fill over 21,000 pages of documents in the President's Private Sector Survey on Cost Control.)

Yet as wasteful as they are, they're not the problem, just the symptoms.

The problem is a system of inefficient government procedures and practices that allows them to happen. Out-dated policies and controls that are out of control and threatening the interests of all Americans.

IS AMERICA GOING TO WASTE AWAY?

America is staring straight down the barrel of a financial disaster. The federal deficit is closing in on $200 billion a year. The national debt has already reached an unimaginable $1.8 trillion. One of our only chances to head off disaster is to stop wasting our tax dollars.

That's why we formed Citizens

Against Government Waste. WHO AND WHAT IS CITIZENS AGAINST GOVERNMENT WASTE?

Citizens Against Government Waste is a non-profit educational foundation made up of concerned citizens. Democrats, Republicans, Conservatives, Liberals.

Taxpayers just like you, who are extremely concerned with how their tax money is being mismanaged. To that end, we've established a toll-free phone number: 1-800-USA-DEBT. By calling it, you can receive information that will give you a better understanding of the real magnitude and consequences of government waste. And what you can actually do about it.

So call, or write us at 1511 K Street, N.W., Suite 540, Washington, D.C. 20005. Please.

Because our country can't afford this. And neither can you.

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Amy Johnson is expected to be a high point producer for Plymouth Salem Saturday in the Redford Union-Observerland Girls Relays.

Canton, Salem chasing Spartans at RU Relays

By Chris McCosky staff writer

On the surface, the fifth running of the Redford Union-Observerland day looks to be a four- or five-team at 11 a.m., track finals 11:30 a.m.

But Livonia Franklin track coach Steve Dolloway can see only one front-runner

"Livonia Stevenson looks awfully tough," said Dolloway, who charts the fastest area times for the Observer. "They have a lot of depth. dents. They have four tough hurdlers, two excellent long jumpers and any sprint relay Kathy Long is on will be hard to beat. They had a strong cross country team last fall so you know their distance teams will be good. They have four milers who can run under six minutes.

"But it will be a very interesting meet. Farmington Hills Mercy, Bishop Borgess, Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton are all very good. Garden City will score, and nobody knows anything about Ladywood," Dolloway added.

SO THERE you have it: the premeet Observerland synopsis. It could be that Stevenson runs away with it, or, as several area coaches suggested, it could be that enough teams will take bites out of the Spartans' power to make it a close meet.

If the Spartans should win, it will be the first time a non-Farmington area school has won the meet. Mercy won it in 1982 and 1985, Harrison in 1983 and Farmington in 1984.

"As I see it," said Plymouth Canton coach George Pryzgodski, "it's between us, Mercy, Stevenson and Salem. I really see it as a tossup. I hope everybody's sprinters and hurdlers chew each other up and our distance kids come in and clean house - but that's purely speculation on my part."

What makes this type of meet so unpredictable is that it comes in the midst of everyone's league dual meet schedule. Most teams will have run a big meet on Saturday and two duals during the week prior to Satur-

"The Observer meet depends on who performs and who has the opportunity to perform on that day," said Salem coach Fred Thomann. "A lot depends on who has their people

Here is a look at who the frontrunning teams may have available

MERCY: The defending Observerland champs will have to really push it to defend their title.

I can honestly say this, we'll do the best out of all the Farmington schools there," joked Mercy coach Bob Kirkland. The three Farmington public high schools have decided not to compete in the meet this year.

Seriously, Mercy is lacking in two crucial areas: distance runners and overall team depth.

"We just don't have enough strength in those areas this year," he

But the Marlins do have the area's premier sprinter in Terri Ford, another swift sprinter in Tonya Harbin, solid field events competitors in Heather Aemissegger and Caroline Smerjan and a capable middle distance runner in Barb Chaney.

CANTON: The Chiefs' biggest problem coming into this meet will be getting points out of the field events, sprints and hurdles.

The Chiefs have a sensational distance team, led by Marie Jarosz and Rachel Mann.

Tricia Carney and Karen Boluch are capable performers in spints and middle distance. Canton also has a strong high jump relay team with Angie Miller, Marie Jarosz and Janet Armstrong.

SALEM: "If we can't score in the field events, and if we don't have Dena Head, we won't win the meet," said Thomann.

The good news is Salem has a very field events. With Karen Marciniak, Nancy Rekuc, Shelly Bohlan and Keri McBride, Salem has one of the area's strongest shot and discus

Also, Amy Johnson should score for the Rocks in the hurdles and jumping events

The Rocks could also get points out of its sprint teams if sophomore Dena Head is available. An All-Area basketball star, Head may have a conflict with her Michigan AAU basketball team.

BISHOP BORGESS: Never count the Spartans out of this meet. Rumor has it that Borgess is weak in distance events this season, but in a 97-31 dual meet pasting of Mercy Monday. Borgess won every distance

The Spartans' strength is in the field events and hurdles. Sue Naster is the No. 1 thrower (shot and discus) in Observerland, and Cheri Johnson is the top jumper.

Andrea Jackson and Marie Heim are strong hurdlers, and Charisse Edwards gives the Spartans strength in the sprints. Kelly Dooley and Michelle Gayney hold fort on the distance teams.

STEVENSON: As Dolloway suggested, the Spartans are strong in many areas.

In the field, Shawn Snyder, Erica Bavert, Kathy Long and Kim Smith should produce points for the Spartans. Karen Millen is one of the area's fastest hurdlers. Long and Amy Hollman will bolster the sprint teams, while Sheila Taormina, Michele Economou and Karen Kuphal will lead the middle distance and distance teams.

The Spartans did not fare well at the Stafford Relays last weekend, thus casting some doubt on their capabilities as a big meet team. The Observerland Relays should be a tell-tale meet for them.

If you want a sleeper entry, keep an eye on Garden City. The Cougars, led by hurdler Missey Ward and sprinters Debbie Babb, Angle Lankford, Nikki Stubbs and Marcia McKenzie teamed up to set three school records last weekend at the CMU Relays.

The meet will begin at 10 p.m. Saturday. The finals of the running events are slated for 11:30 p.m.

Observer battery igniting Spartans

By Larry O'Connor staff writer

It's a battery that hasn't needed "I don't seem to have good pop in recharging and has lasted a season my arm," said Hanis. "My time for the Michigan State baseball

The pair, pitcher Rick Rozman and catcher Bill Hanis, have been wrapping up fine seasons for the Spartans. Rozman, from Livonia Stevenson, is 3-0 with a 2.08 earned run average after transfering from Eastern Michigan University this Hanis, thanks to a more positive outlook, is hitting .343 with 25 runs batted in. He's been behind the plate in 36 of 43 games this season

Each has their own reasons for their success this season. For Hanis, it's just been a process of bearing down on game day.

"I just try to be ready for every game," said Hanis, a product of Plymouth Canton. "Last year, if I wasn't ready to play, I was tired and maybe I wasn't into the game mentally.'

THIS SEASON, Hanis has been in the game both mentally and physically. The result is more production at the plate, and a few less passed balls behind it.

Which for an everyday catcher sometimes isn't easy. The grind of catching day-in and day-out can take its toll both offensively and defensively.

For Hanis, it comes back to staying alert and not getting down on himself after making a mistake.

Also as a result, he's throwing out more runners despite having less strength in his arm.

getting the ball down there is pret-. Somd of that ty good, though comes with experience.

"In the past, if I was going bad, the mental part of my game would take a turn," said Hanis. "So this year when I go to the plate, I'm thinking I'm going to get my hits."

Rozman, a sophomore, is making it a crusade to make sure opponents don't get their hits. His ERA speaks for itself.

THE LIVONIA Stevenson product is not a strikeout pitcher. Instead he's been able to get hitters to ground out.

An assortment of pitches, including a fast ball, a slider and a fork ball, have kept opposing batters baffled. He's also been known to drop down and throw a side-arm fast ball.

"I'm hitting the spots and I'm feeling pretty confident," said Roz-man. "It's working out really well." At EMU last year, Rozman didn't enjoy the freedom of throwing how and what he wanted to. For instance, with the pitches I had, they (EMU coaches) wouldn't let me throw my curve, and they tried to adjust my motion," said Rozman, who picked up a win against Big-10 rival Michigan during the weekend. "They restricted

THAT IS part of the reason Roz-man sought asylum at MSU, along with other EMU transfers Bill Gavin and Todd Irwin. He made the Spartans as a walk-on transfer, which means he didn't have to sit out a year. Rozman still thought he would be doing some sitting this year as a first-year member. With 47 innings pitched this season, that hasn't been the case.

"To tell you the truth, I didn't expect this much time," said Rozman. 'All I was hoping for was a chance.

While Rozman still has two more seasons to look forward to, Hanis is wrapping up his senior year at MSU. He'll work in an accounting office this summer in Detroit after graduating with a degree in finance.

The numbers Hanis has posted offensively this year are the best to "Overall, academically everything has been fine," said Hanis. Personally, I'd like to have been a little more successful.

ONE THING Hanis has been able to do is cut down on his strikeouts at the plate. MSU assistant coach Rob Ellis has been working with all the Spartan hitters, offering advice and encouragement.

Again, the more relaxed atmosphere at MSU is conducive for both Hanis and Rozman to excel.

"I found that the players who transfer here find that it's more fun to play baseball here," said Hanis.

"There's pressure to do well," said Rozman, "but it's not big."

A PLYMOUTH HIGH SCHOOL FLASHBACK

One year ago Plymouth Canton's girl tracksters did everything humanly possible to break Plymouth Salem's nine year hold on the Mangan Relays. The Chiefs gave it a valiant effort, shattering four school records and posting numerous other personal bests, but it still wasn't enough. The Rocks took the charge out of the Chiefs in the last two events to post a 70-58 victory. Canton's boys could do no better, losing a lopsided 97-41 decision to a talent-laden Salem squad.

BISHOP BORGESS came into the Track and Field Relays meet thinking ahead to Monday's the past two years, the true spirit of Catholic League dual meet with Brother Rice. But by the time the open 100-meter dash was run, the Spartans had redirected their priorities and made a breathtaking run at Five teams - Canton, Borgess, occupying the top-left section of the CC, Churchill and Salem - battled bleachers, screaming, chanting, to the wire for the right to be called the area's best.

Suddenly no one was arguing, no that the Chiefs meant business - the one was claiming the meet was poor-Observerland title was within reach ly run (it was, in fact, efficiently run), no one was complaining about The spirit and determination dis- competing against the same teams played by the Chiefs Saturday quick- all the time, no one was grousing ly spread to the other teams. No sir. All eyes were on the track. All thoughts were on track strategy: who does Borgess have left for the mile relay, is there any way we can pull third in the shuttle hurdles, can we still catch Canton. All energies were spent trying to win the race.

WHEN THE END came and Canton was crowned champion, everyone went away feeling good - if not with the outcome, then certainly with the effort. No alibis were offered by the losers, no excess brava-

"Look at that," exclaimed Canton coach Rob Neu. "That's class, pure

And speaking of class: Jim Gib-bons' Redford Union team didn't have a Libyan's chance in Texas of winning the meet. But that didn't deter the RU people from competing and having a great time.

With Gibby at the helm, RU will never have a morale problem.

First of all, Gibbons found a box of jerseys that were presumably worn team. He outfitted his team with

The schedule of events in the meet program listed the playing of the national anthem along with all the running events. So Gibby, forever the card, entered a Star Spangled Banner relay team (Mario Picano, Randy Picano, Mike Thoms and Steve Droste - America's team).

IN THE SHUTTLE hurdles relay, a speedy event, Gibbons entered four of his hulking RU football players. When some of the Borgess runners snickered, Gibby said: "Those guys just don't understand slapstick comedy.'

After Borgess' Ivan Cotman electrified the crowd with a 48.2 400meter split in the sprint medley relay, Gibby quipped: "I think our 400-by RU's 1969 state championship meter relay team could beat him." They would have, by two-tenths of a second. Cotman was amazing.

Teams that use the "we can't compete" excuse and stay away from the Observerland meet should take note of RU. The Panthers didn't win the meet and never once thought they would. But if you poll the kids, each one will say they were glad they par-

"How many teams really had a chance at winning?" Gibbons said. "Not that many. Only one team is a state champion, only one team is a league champ. What do the others do, drop out because they can't be No. 1? You can't look at it that way. You just try to do the right thing and hope your day will come. We have a lot of fun, and I'll tell you, our day is not that far away."

Lake Central Stafford Relays. Plymouth Canton was the highest area finisher, seventh, with 26 points. Plymouth Salem and Livonia Stevenson tied for eighth place with 24. and Farmington Hills Mercy placed 10th with 22. Livonia Churchill placed 14th out of the 15-team field with seven.

The lone first place was grabbed by Mercy in the 400-meter relay: Adrienne Clark, Adonna Amanze, Michelle Smith and Terri Ford teaming on a 51.9. Canton notched a pair of seconds and a pair of thirds. Angle Miller, Marie Jarosz and Janet Armstrong teamed for a 13-6 high jump total, good for second place. The Chiefs' distance medley team, Tricia Carney, Miller, Jarosz and Rachel Mann, also placed second with a 13:26.3.

The Canton 4-mile team, Mann, Chris Marquard, Tory Barger and Jarosz, set a Canton school record with a third-best 23:56.0. Jarosz (5:32.0) and Mann (5:34.5) placed third and fourth respectively in the open mile run.

SALEM GOT seconds from its discus relay and its running discus relay. Karen Marciniak, Keri Mc-Bride and Shelly Bohlan had a combined toss of 269-7 in the discus. The same three plus Nancy Rekuc ran 58.46 in the running discus.

Marciniak, Rekuc and Bohland took a fourth in the shot put (87-9).

Heather Harwood, Lee Zelek, Jenny Smith and Dena Head placed fourth in the 400 relay (52.46).

Mangan postponed

Thunder storms and high winds forced Plymouth Canton and Plym outh Salem officials to postpone the annual running of the Mangan Track and Field Relays Tuesday night.

The boys meet has been rescheduled for 4 p.m. Saturday. The girls meet has yet to be rescheduled.

N'ville humbles Canton

"You can't have a death wish in this game, and that seems to be what we're engulfed in right now," said Plymouth Canton baseball coach Fred Crissey after his team surrendered a pair of games to Northville Monday.

Northville beat Canton 6-5 in the opener and 8-3 in the second. The Chiefs carried a 5-3 lead into the top of the seventh in game one, but Northville scored three unearned runs to win it.

"We get two outs after they load the bases. Our pitcher (Jeff Lyle) gets their guy to hit a twohopper to third base, and we kick it," Crissey said. "I feel bad for our pitchers. They're laying it on the line, and our other guys don't have the intestinal fortitude to pick up a ground ball. I'm as frustrated right now as I have ever been."

Game two was any better. Northville, with the help of two infield errors, scored six times off losing pitcher Derek Darkowski in the second inning.

On the bright side, Mike Culver had five hits and a pair of RBIs in the double-header. He was recently promoted from the junior varsity team. Lyle also clubbed a home run in game two.

ON SATURDAY, Canton won a

Western Lakes thriller with Lakes Division-leading Westland John Glenn, 4-3 in 10 innings.

Glenn had scored twice in the top of the sixth to send the game into extra innings.

Canton was the beneficiary of four Glenn walks in the 13th. Steve Johnson's free pass scored the game-winner.

Tony Aiken knocked in two runs in the game with a pair of Plymouth Canton continues to stay on the heels of Livonia Franklin in the Western Lakes Western Division softball race.

The Chiefs took a pair of games at Northville Monday, 8-5 and 9-8, to raise their league mark to 8-2. They are 9-4 on the season.

The Chiefs jumped out to a fast 7-0 lead in game one, thanks in part to a rwo-run single in the first by Laura Darby. The Chiefs built up a 9-4 lead after 51/2 innings of game two, then held on while the Mustangs rallied.

The big inning was a six-run third. Darby roped a two-run double and Kelly Lingenfelder drove home two with a single. Laura Flaskamp had a pair of hits for Canton.

Chiefs stay on Pats' heels

Diana 'Knickerbocker hurled both games. She gave up five hits and no walks in the first game, eight hits and five walks in the

SALEM 5-5, W.L. CENTRAL 14-1: The Rocks snapped a threegame losing streak with a 5-1 win in game two, but coach Rob Willette was still mad about game

"They had us down for seven errors, but I know we made at least 10," he said. "I looked up and down the score sheet, and I can't find an earned run. All 14 were unearned. And they were all routine plays. I could see it if the balls were hit hard, but not one ball that was booted was a tough chance."

Pitcher Maggie Meissner was the victim of the shoddy fielding in game one. Marci Walker had three hits.

Kim Berrie pitched the second game and allowed just two hits. Leslie Plichta led the winners with two hits.

The Rocks are 7-2 in the league, still on top of the Lakes Division, and 7-3 overall.

Tick, tick, tick

Bowman closes on NCAA bid

By Larry O'Connor staff writer

A little more than a tick on a watch. That's all that's keeping Livonia's Andrea Bowman from the NCAA outdoor championships.

Only a second. The Eastern Michigan University trackster needs to trim less than a second off her 800meter run time to qualify for the NCAA championships.

Only a second.

But while there's some numbers to be adjusted, the Livonia Churchill grad is already setting some lofty standards of her own at EMU. Just a few weeks ago Bowman was selected Mid-American Conference women's track athlete of the week (April 21-27).

Bowman, a junior, set a school record in the 800 meters with a time of 2:08.04 that week at the Becky Boone Relays in Kentucky. She then eclipsed that mark over the weekend at the Jessie Owens Classic in Columbus, Ohio, with a time of 2:06.69 in the 800.

THE NCAA qualifying time in the 800 meters is 2:05.

"I think she can do it," said EMU women's track coach Bob Maybouer. "I think she can do it at the MAC championships (May 16-17)."

Maybouer has good reason to bet the house, the car and savings on Bowman. She hasn't let him down

And that's something of substance considering Maybouer, who was at Saginaw Valley, heard by word of mouth about Bowman's talents at

PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO THE ZONING OF THE CHARTER TOWNSHIP OF CANTON, WAYNE COUNTY,

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN pursuant to the Zoning Ordinance of the Charter Township of Canton that the Planning Commission of the Charter Township of Canton will hold a Public Hearing on Monday, May 12, 1986, at the Canton Township Administration Building, 1150 S. Canton Center Road at 7:30 p.m. on run in a dual meet," recalled Maybouer. "He told me, 'This girl hasn't ran good times, but you better look for her at the state meet.'"

MAYBOUER DID and brought Bowman to Saginaw Valley. At SVSC, Bowman was a four-time NAIA all-American in the 600 meters, the half mile and 2-mile relay indoors. Outdoors, she was an NAIA all-American in the 2-mile relay.

But running at Saginaw Valley wasn't all bright lights and glamor. Before the NAIA meet, Bowman came down with chicken pox.

"My little sister got them while I was at home on break," said Bowman. "During that whole break I was still broken out."

There was also no indoor track facility at SVSC, which made for brutal training conditions in the winter.

We had this road near the field house, and it was the only road that was plowed off," said Bowman. "It made me a tougher runner . . . running out in below-zero weather."

When Maybouer accepted the position at EMU, Bowman followed. It's closer to home for her and there's a fine indoor track facility at EMU.

IN LITTLE TIME, Bowman has come out of the cold and into the limelight.

But that is after she had to sit out a season after transferring. Team competition was off limits but she still ran in open events.

Maybouer, known as a no-nonsense individual, has wasted little time shaping up the EMU women's track program, and Bowman. Bowman and her teammates are lifting weights and swimming in addition to running in the mornings.

Bowman even ran cross country for the first time last fall. Of course, there's a method in Maybouer's mad-

"As she gets older, probably she'll have to look up toward the 1,500 meters," said Maybouer of his 21-year-old trackster. "She's been running good times in the 800 meters but I feel she could do better in the 1,500

• PEWABIC SHOW

"The Arts and Crafts Movement is Michigan: 1886-1906" is the theme of the exhibit sponsored by the Pewabic Society Inc. at the historic Detroit Pottery, 10125 E. Jefferson, across from Waterworks Park on Detroit's near east side. The public is welcome free of charge. Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesdays through Saturdays. The exhibition is an intimate examination of Michigan's early involvement in the arts and crafts movement that originated in England in the 1860s.

it's fun to weave a basket

F THERE WAS any question about basketmaking being the art form of the '80s, you only had to drop in Community Arts Building at the Michigan State Fair Grounds on Saturday, April 27.

It was wall to wall basketmakers — many of them experienced weavers but a lot of them there to learn the time-honored craft.

"It was an overwhelming success for a first-time event," smiled Nancy Henk, one of three women who were coordinated the show sponsored by the Association of Michigan Basketmakers in cooperation with the Department of Natural Resources.

"THE BOOTHS HAD people lined up three and four deep during the first four hours of the event," said Henk, a Detroiter who co-chaired the show with Louise Feko, also of Detroit, and Laura Harrison of Royal Oak.

"We taught about 40 people in the first two hours," she continued. It took about two hours for beginners to craft a basket under the watchful of expert teachers during the special hands-on session taught by Nancy Gruber. "We made sure everyone finished a basket," Henk added.

But it wasn't all basketmaking

there was plenty of basket selling as well. Booths with baskets for sale reported a brisk business.

Actually, the success of the basketmaker's market shouldn't come as too much of surprise.

Baskets come in itty-bitty sizes too.

The one above is a miniature sweetgrass basket by Theresa Ohno. At the

works on the over and under weave.

"We've been told by importers and wholesalers that Michigan is the state that buys the most basket-making materials," said

Michigan is also the first state to have an association for basket-makers.

Next on the association's agenda is the state convention at the Dearborn Holiday Inn in October when 500 basketmakers will convene for a three-day event that will include a series of intensive workshops.

"It's already filled up," added Henk.

'Oops' not necessarily a mistake

By David Messing special writer

OPS IS DEFINED AS "a typical expression of dismay." I would imagine that there are certain places that you just wouldn't want to hear it. Probably the worst place to hear "oops" would be if you are on the operating table

Of course, you would not want to hear it while you are in the dentist's chair or how about the first time you ever had a perm at a beauty school

As much as we hate to hear the expression, it most often flows freely from the lips of watercolorists. My first watercolor went straight from school to the outdoor trash bin in the backyard. Unfortunately, Mom found it and "oops" from yesteryear is still around to haunt me.

Well, lately. I am discovering, an "oops" in watercolor is relatively easy to fix. One popular mistake in watercolor is when the color washes over some special highlight or detail.

Let's imagine you are painting an animal and the little sparkle of white in its eye was lost. Simply allow the area to dry, then cut a little circle where the "catchlight" should be. Now lower the angle of the blade and gently lift a thin layer from the inside of the cut circle

SANDPAPER IS an excellent tool for lightening an overly dark area. Of course, the grit should be relatively fine. I have used a sandpaper as coarse as No. 150. As you lightly sand, you will first begin to see the texture of your paper showing through. If this is pleasing then, stop and remove any colored dust particles. If you wish to remove all the color, then simply and lightly continue sanding. Remember to erase any embedded dust particles with a kneaded eraser. Then smooth the paper with the back of your fingernail. A synthetic brush dipped in household bleach will effectively lighten or remove most colors. But you must test the paper and the color you wish to remove.

your colors if you paint over the repaired area.

What is good about sandpaper and bleach is that it allows Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

your repairs to be transparent. Transparency is the top criteria for invisible watercolor repairs.

If you are careful you can make some excellent repairs with watercolor pencils. Derwynt watercolor pencils are the richest and most fluid when the area is moistened. Watercolor pencils do tend to be rather opaque so use caution when repairing a transparent watercolor PASTELS ARE somewhat effective when working a large area. To apply pastels in a transparent look, you must rub the color on a wadof paper towel and then rub the towel onto the paper. This technique requires some practice. Now if you feel you are approaching or have arrived at the professional status the, congratulations. That does not, however, remove the possibility of a mistake. It is just that you make a very professional 'oops." if there is such a thing.

The best thing you can buy to fix a mistake of novice or professional quality would be an air eraser. Paasche does make this little dream machine and it will absolutely remove your mistakes and let you try it "one more time." The cost of this little machine is about $85 and it is well worth it, depending on how much your "oops" is worth to you.

Festival heralds 'Liberty' hoopla

Ann Arbor will be one of the more than 100 major U.S. cities to host the 1986 Kodak Liberty Ride Festival, a daylong, history-making celebration for hundreds of thousands of Americans on Sunday, May 18, sponsored by the Eastman Kodak Co. in celebration of the restoration of the Statue of Liberty/Ellis Island National Monument, New York City.

Organizing the event for this area is the Westland Cycling Club, in association with BICYCLE USA - the nation's largest and oldest network of not-for-profit cycling affiliations Janis Doyle and Bill Smith, members of the Westland club, are the area coordinators.

The 1986 Kodak Liberty Ride Festival offers Americans of all ages an opportunity to participate in what promises to be a world record-breaking, historic national event. The festival in Ann Arbor will be held at Hill Auditorium, where residents will have the chance to ride in the largest recreational bicycling event ever organized across the U.S., and will be among thousands of people nationwide to view "America Rocks," a threehour rock concert, broadcast to every site by satellite live from the Louisiana Superdome in New Orleans.

"AMERICA ROCKS," the history-making highlight of the festival, will star Daryl Hall and John Oates in their only appearance together this year, an equally popular Grammy-winning co-headliner to be announced soon, and opening acts by the Festival-goers will also have the chance to submit a photo to 'America's Family Album" - an electronic photo exhibit of Americans being designed for permanent display at the Statue of Liberty

'America's Family Album" is Kodak's program to create a meaningful photo exhibit for Americans at the restored statue, as a founding sponsor of the Liberty Centennial Campaign.

By joining in the liberty ride festival, participants will receive a prepaid entry coupon, which entitles them to send Kodak a photo of themselves and their family. When the photo is received, it will be included in this first-of-a-kind historical electronic picture album at no extra charge.

KODAK ALREADY has transferred thousands of Americans' photographs onto video discs for the display, scheduled to open July 5 at the national monument

Admission to the festival will be $21. Every participant receives admission to the bike ride, picnic, local entertainment and satellite concert, commemorative 1986 festival T-shirt, and the prepaid ($10 value) entry to submit one photo to 'America's Family Album.'

Advance registration is encouraged as seating is limited. For more information, call 722-6280
