A SADD STORY: Walt Disney Home Video has released "Contract for Life: The S.A.D.D.

Story," a video which now is available in the Plymouth Dunning-Hough Library.

The family film, starring 'Knotts Landing's" Stephen Macht, is based on the true story of high school coach Bob Anastas who joined his students to begin the Students Against Drunk Driving (SADD) organization after two of his top athletes were killed in alcohol-related traffic accidents within one week

Recognizing that alcoholrelated traffic accidents still are a leading cause of death among teenagers, the Plymouth Library will be distributing Contract for Life (a signed agreement between parents and teenagers that both will not drive after drinking) pacts in the library in conjunction with the release of the Contract for Life story on videocassette.

Patricia Thomas, library director, urges families to come to the library and read the S.A.D.D. contract. "It is a tragedy that this country loses so many of its youth in alcohol-related traffic fatalities. That's why we are disributing free Contract for Life agreements to all patrons. We urge families to take one home as they take home this cassette. Perhaps, by promoting greater awareness and communication, we'll be helping to save lives."

BIG HEART: The

Plymouth Community Family YMCA has received a donation of $1,000 from the Livonia Heart Fund - the third year the 'Y' here has received such a

The contribution was made at the request of Dick Scott, member of the Livonia Heart Fund Board of Directors and its president Ron Mardiros. Scott, owner of Dick Scott Buick and Dick Scott Dodge, Plymouth, felt the Plymouth Community Family YMCA with its goals to enrich the community would benefit from the donation.

Besides his involvement with the heart fund. Scott sponsors the high school sport star of the week program in advertisements of the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers and other publications, sponsors the Plymouth summer street dances, and is active in Plymouth Ice Sculpture Festival, Plymouth Fall Festival, Mayflower Hot Air Balloon Festival and similar endeavors. "The Plymouth Community Family YMCA in its quest toward growth is very appreciative of this contribution," says Janet Luce, executive director of the YMCA.

COMPOSER: Robert W. Jones, former Plymouth resident now living in San Diego, has won several prizes for musical composition. The American Guild of Organists, Region IX (California, Arizona, Nevada and Washington) sponsored a contest to be entered anonymously, in four areas: organ, anthem, vocal solo, handbells and hymn. Bob won in four categories. Performances are to be given at the regional conclave July 5-9 with publication to follow. Jones received a grant from the National Foundation for the Arts, San Diego chapter, for a 20minute organ solo. Bob formerly taught at Schoolcraft College and was organist for the First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth. Bob and wife Jean are active in a number of musical areas in San Diego. A 20-year-old Westland woman has been charged with manslaughter in the head-on car accident that killed a Canton woman Dec. 13.

Yvonne Marie Hillier, who appeared in court on crutches with cuts on her upper lip, was arraigned Monday before 35th District Judge James Garber.

recognizance and a plea of not guilty was entered by the court. A preliminary examination date to determine if there's enough evidence to hold a trial is scheduled for Jan. 16.

DORCAS RUTH AUMANN, 67, was dead at the scene of the accident, which took place about 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 13, on Joy Road at the I-275 overpass.

Hillier allegedly drove her car from the parking lot of the Plymouth Rock Saloon on Joy west of Hagger-

Betty Norman of Plymouth tells of her great-grandfather who attended the "Frostbitten Convention" in Ann Arbor where Michigan "traded" Toledo for the U.P.

Resident tells role in history of Michigan

By Susan Buck staff writer

Residents can relay their belated thanks for Michigan's statehood to Plymouth Township resident Betty Norman.

Norman's maternal great-grandfather, Archibald Yard Murray, was one of 72 delegates from 18 counties who attended the "Frostbitten Convention" on a cold Dec. 15, 1836, at the Washtenaw County Courthouse in Ann Arbor to push for statehood.

There are differing accounts about the origin of the term. Some historians attribute it to the several inches of snow that were on the ground during the convention. Others maintain that it was a derisive term for those opposing statehood.

The delegates reluctantly accepted the U.S. government's terms of giving up the "Toledo Strip," a heatedly debated southern boundary that contained land near the Maumee River, to Ohio in exchange for the western Upper Peninsula and state-

Little did the delegates know that the western Upper Peninsula held the largest commercial deposit of native copper in the world and would far exceed the value of the "Toledo

MURRAY SERVED one term in the Michigan Legislature when it was still a territory and one term after statehood.

In honor of the sesquicentennial event that commemorated Michigan's final step to statehood, a celebration was held at the Ford Presidential Library on the University of Michigan campus in Ann Arbor last Betty and husband Louis were present at the celebration.

"There were 10 descendants present. I was the only one from Wayne County. I was given this card and told to rise and say, 'As a descendant of Archibald Murray, I vote 'yes,' she said.

Betty, 74, recalls discussion of geneological history during her childhood but admits she and her sister, Louise Tritten, a Plymouth Township resident active for many years in the Plymouth Grange, didn't always pay much attention.

"Two of my aunts, Mabel Spicer and Fannie Doerr, belonged to the Daughters of the American Revolution, so we were conscious of history. We lived it and it didn't impress us at the time. I can just barely remember my grandfather, Hiram Murray,

"Three generations lived in the Archibald Murray home at Napier and Warren in Canton Township. It was built so that my grandparents had their side of the house and we had ours. There were six fireplaces. The original house was two-stories high and made of logs with five rooms on the lower level

"In 1838, a new house was built using straw and clay brick which were pressed right on the farm. It was the first brick house in the neighborhood and had 10 rooms and the money while she was president.

an attic playroom. In 1900 the old brick house was expanded and it had a total of eight bedrooms and two staircases to the second floor. The house later burned down.'

NORMAN REMEMBERS milking, making maple syrup and driving a team of horses on the hay wagon.

She also remembers taunting her sister, Louise Tritten, who was afraid of chickens by holding one by a leg and chasing her.

Norman's mother and sister organized the Plymouth Branch of the Women's National Farm and Garden Association in May 1936

Norman married Louis, a neighbor, in 1940. They built their home on Ann Arbor Trail and Spicer in 1939. Louis Norman is a former Plymouth Township firefighter who later became an excavator. He later served as a trustee on the Plymouth Township board.

Betty's father, Samuel Spicer, was township treasurer.

After the Normans married, Betty became active in the community as a member of the historical society. 'My parents, Samuel and Alma Spicer, just missed being charter

Betty Norman was president of the society from 1967-69.

"My dad was so taken up with the historical society and wanted to see things preserved."

Norman fostered the idea of building the Plymouth Historical Museum and appointed a committee to raise the late Clarence Moore, president and sheep farmer; Ernie Henry, former Plymouth postmaster; and Norma Cassady, a former Plymouth store owner

The historical society now boasts 200 members, Norman said.

The Normans own two centennial farms, one in Plymouth and one in Canton. The original parehment on the land at Spicer and Ann Arbor Trail where the Normans now reside was signed by President Andrew Jackson on March 6, 1829.

The Normans have two children. Marilyn Norgrove, a Plymouth Township resident and David, who resides near Sault Ste. Marie.

Dec. 25th is a day off . . . for most of us. We spend part of it with family and friends unwrapping Christmas gifts, reducing a turkey to bones or reveling in holiday cheer.

But for many others, Christmas is just another workday.

WCAR-AM radio listeners and advertisers know that a show will go on because the station is on the air seven days a week. Christmas Day is no exception. The station, located in Garden City, will have few staffers but a lot of activity that day.

Canton resident Virginia Janek, host of "Good Time Polkas With Virginia," will spend her third Christmas at the station this year. Janek is on the air 6-8 a.m. five days a week. Christmas Day is as busy as any other, she said.

"We get a lot of calls from people dedicating (songs) to people," said Janek, who isn't paid for her work. "I make a special list and read off a few.'

WCAR engineer Russell Sumner, who has been with the station for almost a year, also will be on hand. Sumner usually works from 5:45 a.m. to noon.

"I've got to come in and turn it all on and get everything ready to roll," he said. "I've gotta make sure the shows stay on schedule."

THE IDEA of going to work on Christmas isn't unusual to Plymouth resident Gladys Gyorke, a cafeteria supervisor at St. Mary Hospital in Livonia. Her son Tom works on that holiday as a Livonia firefighter. Another son, Bob, had the Christmas shift as a Detroit police officer. The family celebrates the holiday on Christ-

"It's not a burden or anything," said Gladys, who will mark her 15th year with the hospital Saturday.

"Since my husband passed away it was a day for me to keep busy. Now I enjoy it

"It's just like magic around there," she said. "Everyone comes in in such a great mood and everything. I enjoy the hospital, the sisters. We work with a great group of Fordyce chooses to work on Christmas. An employee of Michigan Bell for 14 years, this will be her third Christmas at the Livonia office.

"My family has our Christmas on Christmas Eve," Fordyce said.

JOE HINCKLEY of Garden City will show up for work Christmas Day at Checker Drugs, 190 S. Wayne Road in Westland, where he is floor supervisor.

"We're pretty busy," Hinckley said.
"Other people like to have the day off. I celebrate on Christmas Eve with my family. We have our store party Christmas

KEN BUCCI of Garden City is owner of Biscuit Co., a 24-hour restaurant at 6071 Middlebelt in Garden City. The business' previous owner kept it open on Christmas, a policy that Bucci has continued.

'We're definitely busy," he said. "Number one, most wives don't like to make breakfast. We do the bulk of our business at breakfast. They go to church and the first stop is getting something to eat."

Also, many customers come from the Garden Towers senior citizen complex, located across the street, he said.

Biscuit Co. is at full staff (nine workers) in the morning, Bucci said. This number is cut by approximately half in the afternoon. The employees live in Westland, Livonia and other communities.

FOR DENISE KING, live-in administrator at the Livonia Opportunity House for developmentally disabled adults, being on the job on Christmas is a joy. She and the residents, who are mildly to moderately retarded, may open presents and visit other members of her family on Christ-

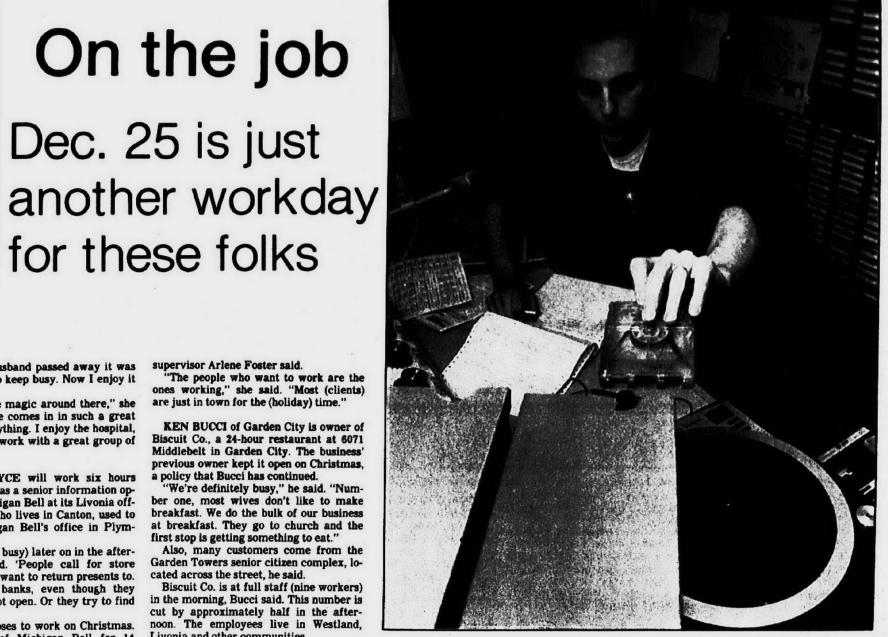

"I've been here nearly seven years and (the residents) are a part of my family," she said. "In a sense, I don't consider it working."

WCAR-AM Radio engineer Russell Sumner sets up the next commercial during an early morning prerecorded show. Sumner doesn't mind working on Christmas Day or other holidays at the Garden City radio station.

EMPLOYEES HAVE ways to avoid feeling lonely on the Christmas shift.

Biscuit Co. is decorated with bright tinsel. Workers don't have a little Christmas party of their own, but they may listen to holiday songs on the jukebox, Bucci said. And besides, working on a holiday has some advantages. "I've worked every holiday since Me-morial Day," Sumner said. "It's not so bad. It's relaxing. It's nice. It's quiet."

"How could it be (lonely)?" Janek said. "There are so many beautiful people out there. A lot of people out there are very lonely. You just say 'hi' to them on the air and it's like a million dollars. That's a payment there."

A lot has happened since then, not the least of which was Lucas' decision to step down, and McNamara's comeback last August.

On Saturday, Jan. 5, the pair will face each other again, this time in official ceremonies turning over the reins of county government.

In a recent interview, McNamara outlined his plans for economic development, his incoming staff, a gettough message to his rivals, and what he expects to accomplish in the next four years.

"In four years, we're either going to have a smooth-running county or we're going to have a shambles," he said.

Following up on his campaign pledge to move development ahead, McNamara has assembled a department staff to be headed by Dewitt Henry, the outgoing director of the Downriver Community Conference.

THE DEPARTMENT will coordinate efforts with the city of Detroit and the state of Michigan to develop strategies for attracting out-of-state industries into Wayne County. He also expects to mobilize efforts in Wayne County's three major steel companies - McClouth, Great Lakes and Ford Motor Co.

In recent weeks, McNamara has met with with Mayor Coleman Young of Detroit and downriver industrialist Heinz Prechter to explore ways to develop the county.

He will direct the county's Office of Public Service to place sewer and drainage extensions in those areas "ripe for economic development."

ON HIS APPOINTMENTS, McNamara is counting on a smooth transition. He has teamed up a group of former Lucas appointees and his own campaign loyalists which include campaign manager Michael Duggan, deputy CEO, administrative assistant David Kats and Livonia Ringer dispoter Lacas finance director Jack Dodge. Lucas appointees who will become part of the McNamara team include parks director Eric Reickel, community services director Vernice Davis-Anthony, and budget director Irvin Morehead.

"We were looking for competence

— that was the number one requirement. . And I really have some excellent people.

"The 'favors' were really to people who did an outstanding job in the campaign and had a particular vocation that fit into what we were going," he added.

McNamara said he is hoping that the 13 positions that require commission confirmation will receive it. Though some have privately questioned Duggan's youth (he is 28) and inexperience for the deputy spot, it's not expected that any controversy will surface over it.

"Mike Duggan is probably the brightest person I've ever run into. He's street smart; he has a good analytical mind. He understands people; he understands the political system and how to get things done," McNamara said.

McNamara said that he'll rely on his appointees to handle "day to day" matters.

"I want to be out there where the work is being done. I want to be working with the commission; I want to be out there working with Coleipe for economic development." man Young, Dan Murphy (Oakland Envisioning a staff of six or eight county executive) and who ever it is that whatever is happening back here, I'm kept informed and it's hap-

TO ENSURE getting off on the right foot with the 15-member board of commissioners, McNamara has met privately with the Detroit black caucus and met individually with suburban representatives.

But if he has made friendly over-tures to commissioners, he's also been stern in his dealings with fellow Livonian Sheriff Robert Ficano, one of his chief rivals in the primary.

Earlier this month Ficano filed suit in circuit court over a funding battle with the county executive and commission. In fighting the suit, Duggan, working as a county attorney detailed criticisms and attacks on the Ficano administration.

"I decided right away that the first guy that goes to court is going to wish he never had. When I get through playing hardball with Rob-ert Ficano for his demand for $6 million in court, there will never be another department head who goes to court," McNamara said.

Livonia Mayor McNamara says he will mobil- when he assumes the job of county executive ize efforts toward economic development next month.

Southwest Trustee Charles Arnold called the other offer "seemingly more beneficial if it comes to fruition. It just isn't in a complete, finalized version - or it may not hap-

According to Arnold, the three area hospitals have discussed forming a separate entity to buy the financially ailing Westland facility. Last year, Southwest lost over $1 million in its operation of Westland

Medical Center. Particularly troublesome has been a low occupancy rate at the 310-bed facility of about 30 percent. In recent years, its 85member physician staff had slipped in numbers from a one-time average of 125 doctors.

For years as a county-operated fa-cility, the center, then called Wayne County General Hospital, recorded annual deficits of $15-$18 million.

Arnold said no action has been taken by the three interested organizations at this time.

The Hong Kong waterfront and central business district presents a picturesque line of buildings as a viewer looks across the legendary Victoria Harbor at Kowloon Peninsula.

Traveler sends her holiday greetings from Hong Kong

Philippine Airlines flight No. 310 arrived in Hong Kong at 6:35 p.m., just as the lights were coming on in

We had seen the whole 411 square miles of the British Crown Colony of Hong Kong as we approached, a jagged peninsula protruding from the mainland into the South China Sea, with hundreds of islands scattered around it. A few of the colony's 235 islands are populated, but most plane lowered for a landing we could see the lights coming on in the highof the 51/2 million people live here in rise buildings on either side of us, the city built on either side of Victo- like silver paper cutouts of a city pasted against dark slopes.

To the right is Kowloon, which miles of mainland farms to the Chinese border. To the left is the city skyline of Hong Kong Island. Kowloon and Hong Kong Island, and the boat-busy harbor between, are what most people think of when they think of Hong Kong.

THIS PART of the world has been trader's paradise ever since the British started hauling opium from India to China in the 17th century in exchange for the silks and teas so popular in England

They created a drug trade that has its 20th century counterpart in America, and were evenually thrown out. The Chinese gave them a 99year lease on Hong Kong Island, Kowloon and the New Territories in 1898; it runs out in 1997.

It is hard to believe that it was only a hundred years ago that a British Foreign Secretary described Hong Kong Island as a "barren island with hardly a house upon it." My window view, from the Regent Hotel, at the very tip of Kowloon, shows a lighted pageantry of ships moving day and night against the skyline of Hong Kong Island.

Car ferries, people ferries, long low barges, fishing boats, battle-of lights shining against the high-rise buildings climbing step by step up the steep mountain slope. Where the main skyline stopped, more lights went on up to the houses that climb to the very top of Victoria Peak.

THE HARBOR DRAMA was still going full blast in the morning when walked past the hotels and new shopping centers along Salisbury Road to the ferry terminal.

The Star Ferry is one of the world's travel bargains: for the equivalent of 10 U.S. pennies it takes you on a fast seven minute ride across the harbor to either the offices and banks of the Central District or the shops and restaurants of Causeway Bay on Hong Kong Island.

You can also cross the harbor on the fast, new subway system or by driving through the undersea tunnel, reminiscent of the Detroit-Windsor Tunnel. All of these tranportations systems get some of the 51/2 million people of Hong Kong back and forth across the harbor, which is a traffic jam itself. I followed the crowds off the ferry on the Island side, past the two rickshow drivers waiting to have their pictures taken.

THEY STILL license a few of these man-pulled carts so that tourists can photograph or even ride them, but it was hard to imagine ships, were all there in a full regalia them braving the modern rush of cars and people going purposefully down Connaught Road

There is talk of banning all automobiles except taxis in this downtown area of Hong Kong Island. People who live in the city, like those who live in New York City, often don't own cars. Those who live in beautiful homes set on mountain slopes on the other side of the island must drive or be driven to work.

The Hong Kong Tourist Association, which is on the 35th floor of the Connaught Center in the Central District, organized a car and driver to take me around the island, and sent Jessie Wong Shui-Kuen to help me get the most out of my limited time. We rode the tram up to Victoria Peak, for a glorious view of the city, then drove completely around the island, with stops at Aberdeen, Repulse Bay and the Stanleyl Market.

Aberdeen is the site of the original fishing settlement on Hong Kong Island, and the place where two of the famous tourist attractions are located: the floating restaurants and the sampans and fishing boats that are home to a floating population.

ONE OF THE MYTHS of Hong Kong is based on all the photos you have seen of people living on fishing boats. As we rode a sampan through the boats and around the floating restaurant, Jessie told me that those teak fishing boats cost about one

Despite new law we can give time to help others

Emory Daniels editor / 459-2700 Susan Rociek assistant managing editor

HE GOVERNMENT — it can tax your wages, tax your savings and even steal away your incentive to donate money to others. But it can't steal away your dedication to others. Not yet, anyhow.

We all should be thinking about that during this holiday season. After these few final days of giving - to your family and friends and to charitable organizations - the feds will be foisting a most surly tax law on Mr. and Mrs. Middle Class America.

It will change the way we treat those in trouble — economic or otherwise.

You may have given it little thought as you signed a check or two to help out the local Goodfellows in your town or some other charitable organization.

Sure you give because you care. But in truth many people give a little more, and sometimes much more, because a tremendous tax write-off is available.

AND THAT'S all right. We all know that tax incentives inspire us to do things we may otherwise have forgotten to do. Good enough.

But the power barons in Washington, in all their collective wisdom, have decided to put the kibosh on a charity system that has worked perfectly well for many years.

It not only has aided the poor, it has been a considerable factor in the development of colleges and universities around the nation. Next time you happen to be on a campus, take a look around and see the number of buildings tagged with a person's name.

Many times you've probably never even heard of the person. Nobody famous, you say.

But fame is in the eyes of the beholder. And when a person donates tens of thousands or even millions of dollars to a university, that person possesses a definite type of fame in the eyes of university trustees. Hence a building, hence a name on that building.

crackerbarrel debate

OTHER CHARITABLE donations foster less ostentatious results. But the impact is the same.

Hardly anyone likes to give more to the government than is necessary to fulfill the requirement. Neither can the government afford to fund all the charitable causes in the nation.

So the charitable write-off has

Next year will be bedlam in the charity business. Not even the tax experts are sure how the system works. You and I, the taxpayers, will be even more confused with all the other new tax regulations we will have to follow.

Northampton vet seeks shipmates

IT'S A SMALL world. And in it may be more survivors of the USS Northampton, a heavy cruiser that was sunk off Guadalcanal late in 1942.

Doug Bowyer, a Livonia contractor, would like to hear from them at 591-3973. He'll invite them to the 1987 anmual reunion of Northampton survivors.

"They formed this organization about 19 years ago," said Bowyer, who learned about it only in recent years. "Each year they have a reunion in a different city.

"The last one was in Atlanta. One guy came all the way from Guam. Does it every year."

· IN WORLD WAR II, the Northampton was in six major Pacific battles and had shelled Japanese-held islands before the night of Nov. 30-Dec. 1.

"I lived in the Seven Mile-Mound area of Detroit. I was 16 years old in May of 1942 and changed my birth certificate so I could volunteer," Bowyer

"I started as a loader on the No. 8 five-inch gun. Two weeks before she went down, I switched because they needed a loader on the starboard side. It was a good thing because when she blowed (was hit), No. 8 went, and there were no survivors there."

Eight enemy destroyers ripped her with torpedoes. Although the Northampton sank, only 49 of the 1,200 crewmen were lost.

A sister ship, the Pensacola, wasn't sunk but lost 250 men.

"MOST OF our survivors were picked up by two destroyers," Bowyer said. "I swam all by myself. It was dark. I swam toward a destroyer — one of survivors were reassigned. Bowver spent 11/2 years landing Marine raiders on places like Tarawa. He spent the rest of the war on a minesweeper near Iwo Jima and Okinawa.

Discharged in November 1945, Bowyer did remodeling work, mainly kitchens, in Southfield and Livonia. One son is in the Navy. A daughter is a paratrooper, and a second daughter married a paratrooper.

HE'S RETICENT about talking about himself — fearful folks would think he's promoting himself when what he really wants to do is locate Northampton vet-

But I thought we should tell his story because it would encourage others to contact him. All he has is a printout with names and ranks of officers at the time of retirement.

"This is almost unbelievable. I count 10 admirals, 10 captains, eight commanders and one (Marine) brigadier general," he penned in the margin.

The ship's biography, in official navalese, says she "took a large part in major naval actions during the early months of World War II. She participated in the battle of Midway, bombarded enemy shore installations, had numerous brushes with enemy aircraft, and took a toll of Japanese shipping before she was sunk off Guadalcanal . . . and earned six battle stars on the Asiatic-Pacific area service medal

That's why the Doug Bowyers would rather talk about their ship's proud record than about themselves.

Unending search for peace

A COLUMN should be many thingsinteresting, informative, funny, provocative - but its message should not be obvious. If it is obvious, that fact should be carefully hidden.

Why? Because if the column has an obvious message, why bother reading

This column is making an obvious point. I cannot hide that fact. The point is this: War is stupid.

No great revelation there. Most of us already have decided that war is atrocious. For those few on the other side, there is nothing I'm about to say that will change their minds.

War is stupid, and most of us are not stupid, yet we keep having wars. You figure it out.

WHEN YOU DO figure it out, tell me about it. Then tell Bill McCullough. He is a Southfield resident who recently arranged a reunion with some of the men he flew with during World War II bombing missions. After risking their lives time after time and beating heavy odds by surviving, the crew disbanded after the war and just recently reunited.

Now that he's lived most of a lifetime, McCullough knows something he may not have fully realized 40 years ago: The bombing crew was not made up of the brave war heroes of the mov-

Oh, they were brave, all right. But they weren't war heroes until after the fact. When they started flying missions, they were not much more than children.

They were innocents. "We were all 20 years old," McCullough said. They were so young that they should have been cruising the main drag of small towns; instead they were dropping bombs on other human beings, some of whom were doing their best to kill them. At 20, you can be young enough to think the world lasts forever; when they were 20, they were old enough that each heartbeat could have been their last.

That's about as old as you can get.

HOW STUPID IS war? If this crew today met the people they were trying to kill (or who were trying to kill them), they would buy each other a drink and compare life stories. Forty years ago, they would have tried to kill each other.

That's really stupid. I have a baby. He's also an innocent. He's just 3 months old. Tomorrow, he'll see his first Christmas, a time when his family celebrates peace on earth, good will toward men. I hope those are words he learns to live by. Someday he'll ask why, in a world where all want peace, he may be asked to kill a stranger, or to be killed by one.

SINCE THE third Saturday in May, I have been carrying $4 that belongs to Karl Hyslop, hoping to bump into him somewhere along the strip because this is what he won on the place horse, Ferdinand, in a Preakness pool I sort of sponsored. But no luck.

What the book claimed was his phone number brought a voice that said they'd never heard of the guy. There was no response at his supposed address. But I kept hoping, because I knew Karl had been sick and would reach me when he

To be honest with you, "sick" is an understatement. The problem really is that this teddy bear-looking man has terminal leukemia. Last January, doctors told Hyslop bluntly, "There's no cure," and gave him nine months to a year to live.

From the Texas Medical Center at Houston I received a postcard last week that said, "still hanging in there. Removed my spleen last week. Finally, Arizona State vs. U of M, I knew it would happen. I'll get there somehow. Got to cheer for both sides."

Maybe I should start at the beginning. In two of the last few college football seasons prior to '86, I joshed occasionally with Karl about how the Big Ten representative would mop up on his alma mater, Arizona State, if the latter made it to the Rose Bowl. Both times the Sun Devils blew it.

CAME '86 when ASU finally did win firm in Novi, he went to a physician for the Pac-10 title and the right to face Michigan at Pasadena on New Year's Day, my line of communication with Hyslop seemed to have disappeared.

A Detroit native who grew up in Port Huron and played high school ball there, Karl went on to Arizona State as a mechanical engineering major graduating in 1958. He starred as a linebacker under Coach Dan Devine when the Sun Devils, then in the old Border Conference, went through three seasons with only three defeats. He happens to be the only Arizona State graduate I know

We first got acquainted when he was vice president of operations for a steel company in the area, having gotten into the steel business following four years as an Air Force pilot. His football playing weight in college was 185. Then he ballooned well over 200, but had shrunk 50 pounds when we last talked in May.

"There's always someone who has things worse, " he added. As a case in point he mentioned the Special Olympics program in which he had become greatly involved while he was able through our mutual friend, Ron "I don't dwell on it, nor will I," he said of his own disease. "I try to put it in the back of my mind. I had a strong Catholic upbringing and what hurts most is that I won't see my son and daughter grow up."

There was a pause, then what passed for a laugh, and finally a true competitor's philosophical conclusion, "Maybe the research they're doing on me will help someone else a long way down the

Just as Christmas itself is special, so does Christmas bring special happenings. That postcard from Houston was: like the sound of sleigh bells, or adding another light to the tree. Holy Grail far easier to find than Victoria

IT HAPPENS many times that when I am standing at the coach stop waiting for my morning bus into the city. I am seeing swarms of younger people passing by in colorful sweatshirts and other exercise gear. They are either jogging along the roadside or huddled over the handlebars of a 10-speed bike.

And I am noting that no matter how great the variety of their outfits, one item of apparel seems to be universal - those neat little two-tone running shoes.

Often as not, the sight of these running shoes is prompting me to glance down in the general direction of my own everyday scuffed-up wing-tips. However, despite my downward gaze, I am not seeing them due to the curvature of the intervening surface, namely my vest.

In addition, as these young joggers and bikers huff and puff their way past me, I am getting the fish-eye from more than a few. Which makes me feel a little like the poster boy for Slobaholics Anonymous.

YET, SOME mornings when said Poster Boy is arrayed in the buff before a full-length mirror, that idea would seem to contain enough grains of truth to slop two or three hogs.

For the reflection that is coming back at me shows bulges where formerly there were not even places. And in those regions of the globe where it is customary to have muscles, I note that there has been considerable erosion of the topography.

Which leads me to thinking once again about this girl with the knock-out proportions. Name of Victoria. The one whose picture has been nagging at me from the pages of the morning newspaper. For weeks she has been begging me to meet her at the health club, to let her help me get in shape.

So one day at breakfast I am laying down before wife a copy of the ad featuring Miss V. "If I do what she asks, how soon could I look like her?"

Wife, however, is stating that she does not wish to be married to a transvestite. And besides, she doubts that even radical surgery would help.

While I do not wish to become a radical, I am not averse to a conservative Lord Arnold of Schwarznegger. So with a hearty "Hiyo Miss V!" I am trotting a reaching the far side and returning. down to join her at the local health and fitness club. However, on my first visit, I am not greeted by Miss V. In fact, for the next several weeks I am putting my body through a substantial amount of torture, and everywhere I am looking

FIRST I AM checking the aerobics class. But all I am finding is that the constant gyrating of the arms and legs quickly become a puzzlement.

No matter how fast I am moving, always I am two or three steps behind everyone else. Several times this is leading to violent collisions with a large bowl of Jello on my left.

Then I am seeking Miss V on the track, puffing my way along behind dozens of persons with olympic builds. Since I am running somewhat slow, the thundering herd of other joggers is passing me many times before I am finishing the first lap. And I am noting that while I do overtake various and sundry other people, mostly they are walking.

And to catch sight of Miss V, I am even going down to the huge pool where all sorts of sleek young Jocks and Jills are cutting through the water. With strokes swift and sure, they are quickly

Through it all I am holding onto a small surf board and kicking. While to the casual observer I might not appear to be moving, at times I am producing ripples of some size.

EVEN SO, during the next several months, while I am energetically using up all this energy, I am getting somewhat exercised about all this exercise. And all I am finding is that Miss V cannot be found.

'Miss V," I am mumbling to myself, "I am putting in all these hours, and you do not so much as put in a single appearance. Not even a married appearance."

Finally, I have had enough. I am deciding to cancel my membership and sue Miss V for breach of fitness. But pants, I am glancing at the mirror and see.

reflecting on what I see. I note that now I am somewhat loose in the caboose. Any my vest - no longer does it suffer from curvature of the buttons.

Suddenly the truth is hitting me. Somewhere between the clavicle and the umbilical there has been a miracle. How could I have been so blind, Miss V! I am owing you a note of gratitude for my loss of pulchritude. It is you who inited me into the club. It is you who helped me begin to exercise. And it is you who made it possible for me to learn that more important than the goal of losing a few inches is the prize of gaaining two feet.

Because now when I am looking down, I am not merely seeing the spot on my vest. For way down in the mists far below, peeking out form the bottom of my trousers, I am catching glimpses back in the lockerroom as I pull on my of my two feet. Hello feet. Long time no

Michigan's 'shield' law still has loopholes hole that saw a television producer jailed for refusing to identify a source, the Michigan Legislature did little to solve the underlying dilemma facing journalists, several experts agree

The House and Senate sent Gov James Blanchard a bill that extended to broadcast journalists the same right to protect confidential sources from state grand juries now held by newspaper reporters. It will become law as soon as the governor signs it, a move expected soon.

Despite the loads of praise offered by broadcast and newspaper associations backing the bill and the sponsor's claim that the law "is a step forward in equality between the broadcast and print media," a closer examination shows reporters in

- In removing a legal loop- Michigan still have less protection than journalists in other states.

> "I'D LIKE to see us go back and deal with the larger issues," admits the bill's sponsor, state Rep. Debbie Stabenow, D-Lansing,

But Stabenow said if the Senate's attempts to weaken the bill during this fall's legislative session are any indication, "I'm not sure we'll be able to broaden it" during the next session.

Some said the Senate weakened the existing shield law by adding a number of provisions that senators said balanced the First Amendment rights of journalists with the Sixth Amendment right of defendants to a

Under one change, electronic and print reporters could, for the first time, be compelled by a grand jury to disclose the identity of a source if the prosecution can convince a judge the source may have information regarding a criminal case that carries a life sentence.

"It opens the door to all kinds of abuses," said Rep. David Gubow, D-Huntington Woods.

REP. ERNEST Nash, R-Dimondale, noted that reporters will no longer be able to guarantee a source complete anonymity.

'No one would know whether the information they obtained would someday be sought for a capital crime," Nash said.

But as Stabenow says, Nash's reservations about the exception underline shortcomings already in the curnewspaper reporters in Michigan have never had the legal right to withhold the name of a confidential source in civil or criminal trials. Although some have successfully used First Amendment guarantees, no protection is included in state law.

So as Stabenow says, "In a strict sense reporters probably shouldn't be promising strict confidentiality right now."

TODD SIMON, director of Michigan State University's Journalism Law Institute, said a much more comprehensive shield law is needed.

"I run into a lot of journalists . who maybe as a result of the Brad Stone case . . . believe we have a shield law in this state until they find out it covers next to nothing," Simon

ALTHOUGH STABENOW introduced her expanded shield law in the aftermath of the Stone case, she now admits it's unclear whether the kept Stone out of jail.

"In Brad Stone's situation, it really would depend on the judge and whether he was satisfied the prose-cution had exhausted all other avenues." Stabenow said.

Journalists gained ground in another of the new law's provisions, which adds editors, news directors, producers and all others involved in gathering the news the same protection previously stipulated only for réporters.

Fun at the libraries

special time for children at the libraries in Plymouth and Canton.

Several fun-filled programs for children were held at the Dunning-Hough Library in Plymouth last

On Tuesday, Dec. 16, 3- to 5-yearolds met at the library for an evening of Christmas and "sleepy time" stories. The youngsters wore their pajamas for the program.

"They were really cute," said Mary Lou Curtin, children's librarian at the Dunning-Hough Library. Approximately 60 children signed up for that program.

Thursday, two programs for older children were held at the library in Plymouth, with approximately 35 to 40 signed up for each.

brary in the afternoon, with the program for 9- to 12-year-olds held in the evening.

The 6- to 8-year-olds listened to holiday stories and watched a film. They also enjoyed a relay race each child racing across the room while balancing a cotton ball on a spoon in his or her mouth - and sang Christmas carols.

MARY FORMAN led the afternoon's musical session, playing her guitar and singing for the young-sters. "Frosty the Snowman" and "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer" were among the carols sung.

Forman, who lives in Central America, is visiting her parents in Northville. She lives in Belize with her husband and three children and will return there in January.

Although life in Belize is quite a bit different from life in the United States, Christmas is also celebrated "They definitely celebrate Christmas," said Forman, a Michigan native and Wayne State University graduate. "Christmas is a big celebration."

Activities for the older group of children at the Dunning-Hough Library were a bit different. They saw a film and worked on a craft project, making key chains suitable for holiday gift-giving.
"Kids are always looking for something to make for their parents," said Curtin, who worked on the programs along with Kathy Petlewski, children's librarian.

At the Canton Public Library, the Marjorie Brown and the Storytellers troupe entertained children during a Dec. 3 program.

"She did a variety of interpretations of different children's stories," said Roberta Reeves, department head for children's services.

MARJORIE BROWN and the three other performers from New York City presented the program to approximately 90 local children kindergarten age and older.

The Dec. 3 program included the use of puppets, creative drama, storytelling and dance. The puppets used by Brown were developed by Jim Henson, creator of The Muppets.

The performers did an excellent job of holding the youngsters' attention, Reeves said.

"It was wonderful. The children really enjoyed it."

Those planning the Canton program decided to hold it in early December, to avoid the holiday crunch.

"It's difficult to get a good attendance" close to the holidays, Reeves said. "That's why we wanted to do it

The word Hanukkah itself means "dedication."

While the holiday is a festival uniquely observed by Jewish families, usually sometime in December, it should not be considered a "Jewish Christmas" since Christmas is a major Christian holy day that celebrates the birth of Christ.

Parties, concerts and plays held in gaily decorated settings celebrate the Festival of Lights along with family observances at home. Many Jewish community or-

In the year 167 BCE, the enforced Hellenization of the Jews reached its apex. Antiochus decreed that Jews observing the Sabbath, possessing the Torah, or maintaining any Jewish customs and not worshipping Greek idols would be killed.

The king also ordered that the central Jewish Temple in Jerusalem was to be polluted and called Zeus Olympus.

In a small town called Modin, northwest of Jerusalem, a man named Mattathias and his five sons, rallied Jews from all over the country to join in opposition to the Syrians and their decrees. "Whoever is for God follow me," he said.

ON HIS DEATHBED Mattathias asked his son, Judah Maccabee, to continue the fight for religious and personal freedom. "Maccabee" is the Hebrew word for hammer.

Judah Maccabee and his followers won a series of brilliant military victories over the more numerous Syrians. In 164 BCE, the fighting culminated with a victory over the Syrians whereby the Maccabees gained control

They began to cleanse the temple, which had been desecrated by the Syrians. They set the date for rededication of the Temple to coincide with the third anniversary of Antiochus' evil decree.

Historic tradition holds that, at the time of rededication, only one oil cruse could be found to burn in the Eternal Light which hung over the Holy Ark containing the Torah scrolls. This container of oil held only enough to burn for one day, but instead the oil lasted miraculously for eight days.

THIS IS the miracle of Hanukkah that children celebrate and sing of to this day. Since the Maccabean victory, Hanukkah candles have been lighted in Jewish homes in all parts of the world.

The candles commemorate the relighting of the Eter-

Rev. Robert Schaden

Yule time can provide rest from world's ills

TRADITION HAS it that Christ-It is a time to rejoice and be glad. Even those who write on such a day should be careful, lest they intrude upon the festivities with matters of moment, matters that miss the

In that frame we could write of sugar plums and reindeer and such. We could dwell on shepherds of old and angels on high. We could speak of Bethlehem town and wisemen and more. We could speak of Joseph, or Jesus, or Mary, or all three. We could muse over the possibility of what might have been had there been room at the inn.

In a more intrusive vein we could point to the lack of peace on earth. We could ask some difficult questions about this Jesus from Bethlehem town. How would he handle the matter of running guns - to anyone? What would he say about military-industrial complexes? What would he say to today's voters, or tomorrow's politicians? Who would he endorse in the international popularity contest? ON THE one hand, celebrating the birth of anyone doesn't seem to make sense without looking at some of those kinds of questions. After all, why rejoice over a birth unless we stand behind the person born? Why glow over a message from long ago and far away unless it contains a truth for here and now?

for us to go with our reflections. it is not a luxurious direction. It is an essential for those who live in a time of turmoil. It is the direction of hope.

But there is still another direction be an insult to the baby born on straw. To not allow ourselves a sad heart in the face of national scandals would be to exhibit a hardness of heart not becoming to a believer.

Yes, we must face the music if we are to ever change the melody. But there is a real difference between ignoring and taking a breather. Regardless of how we frame our faith or what we call our religion we do live in a world much in need of hope and even a breather that will allow us to grasp that hope.

People in despair can't change much of anything for the better. And those who forever live on the fast track are too busy to see beyond the headlines of the day or the matters of the moment. No, hope is not a luxury. Neither does it attempt to pretend away difficulty and pain. But it does provide a way to see through the pain and diminish the difficulty. But all of that only happens when we provide the space for it to be born.

SO, EVEN if it only be for awhile, put the world's ills on the shelf. It personal pain is aching you let it sit, if only for a few hours. Maybe then you'll be able to lift them up again with a different hand and a different

Look at the tree and watch the lights. Listen to a carol and retrieve a pleasant memory. Be aware that the birth celebrated did not take place in a perfect world. It too was world of war and struggle for power. It was a world with broken dreams and shattered relationships not unlike our own. But it was world into which was born one who offered a way through it all.

The baby grew up and showed us a way to overcome the real evil of life. He said to look at Him and learn the way. He said what needed to be said and gave what needed to be had. Many believe that He was right.

So today we take the breather. We enjoy the pause. We hum a hymn. We cry a tear. We smile a warm thought and share a warm word so that tomorrow we can see whatever is there from a different perspective. That is the promise. That is the hope even if on some levels things don't happen a whole lot faster today than they did in long ago Bethlehem. Have a warm holiday in whatever way you celebrate and with whatever you believe.

A Chip comes of age

By Chris McCosky staff writer

Missy Duczynski had felt this way before. She didn't like it.

The first six games as a collegiate basketball player had not gone exactly as she would have liked. After all, Central Michigan University had called Duczynski a "prize" recruit when it lured her from her home in Plymouth and Farmington Hills Mercy High School last winter. In six games Duczynski had averaged 2.7 points. She was getting about nine minutes of court time each game, usually in two- to three-minute seg-

By her own admission, Duczynski was not playing up to her capability. She was playing overly cautious basketball. The CMU coaches recruited her as a scorer, but Duczynski was reluctant to shoot.

"I was starting to feel like it was my junior year in high school all over again," Duczynski said. "I felt like there was someone else there to do it for me; why should I do it?"

If you know Missy Duczynski, you know that to let someone else do her job runs completely against her grain. This is the same person who took charge of the Mercy basketbali team midway through the 1985 season and led it into the state Class A quarterfinals. This was the same unheralded player who came out of nowhere to win All-Area and allstate honors her senior season.

DUCZYNSKI SHOOK the ugly deja vu feeling Friday night. And while she was at it, she sparked CMU's stunning 83-70 victory over heavily favored Brigham Young in the first round of the Felpausch-Michigan State Holiday Classic Women's Basketball Tournament before a record crowd of 4,278 at Jenison Field House

"I broke out tonight," said a delighted Duczynski after the game.

CMU coach Donita Davenport agreed: "This was the first night our native, got her first extensive action of the freshmen didn't play like freshmen It was the first time they looked like they knew what they were doing."

Here's what Duczynski did: She entered the game with 4:12 left in the first half and CMU trailing BYU 28-22. BYU had just run off 10 unanswered points and Central hadn't scored a field goal in more than six minutes. "Coach just said, 'You know how to score. Go in and be a shooter," Duczynski said.

The first time Duczynski touched the ball she knocked down a 15footer from the corner to snap Censeason for Central Michigan last Friday and responded well to the challenge.

was over, Central was leading 36-33.

"IT FELT great to hit that first shot," she said. "It just gave me more confidence. I could feel it kind of lift the team up, too." Duczynski got a surprise at halftime. Davenport said that Duczynski would start the second half.

"I was surprised because I think I have let her down the first part of the year," Duczynski said. "I haven't tral's dry spell. That's all it took to performed up to my ability. It was ignite the Chippewas. Before the half good to get the feeling back I had in the 13 minutes she played, CMU my senior year at high school. My confidence is back."

In the early moments of the second half, Duczynski was all over the court. She grabbed an offensive rebound and a defensive rebound in alternate possessions. She forced a turnover, made a nice assist to Jody Beerman to put the Chips up 41-36. Later she scored on a short jump went from a six-point deficit to a three-point lead and control of the game. She finished with four points, four rebounds, two assists and a much brighter outlook.

When she left, CMU led 47-44. In

'This was the first time I played when it really counted. Usually I play two minutes here, two minutes there just to give the others a breather," she said. "Tonight I needed to perform. The team needed it. I got the good feeling back again."

Allow fans, players to decide 3-pointer

HE 3-POINT SHOT.

It seems you either love it, hate it or want to modify it. But there's no doubt about it, the new semi-circle, 19 feet, 9 inches away from the basket, is causing a lot discussion among basketball afficionados.

If you listen closely, the people squawking about it the most aren't the players or the fans. It's the coaches, particularly the college

Putting it bluntly, Indiana University's Bob Knight reasons: "It's a tragedy for the game."

Villanova's Rollie Massimino, who told the NCAA News that he wants it banned before the season ends, adds: "I think it's ridiculous. It's changed the game mentally and physically. I don't know one coach I've talked to along the way who said he likes it."

Apparently Massimino hasn't talked to one of his Philadelphia colleagues, John Chaney of Temple, who beat Villanova last Saturday night.

"WE NEED INNOVATIONS," Chaney told the Association Press. 'It's no longer a game played in a cage for the coaches. It's an entertainment thing. It (the three-point goal) keeps people in the stands late in the game. The players love

You don't have to poll the players. I'd bet the house on their re-

Other coaches aren't sure. But like Mikey in the cereal commercial, maybe if they try it, they'll

The issue has become a hot one and some day members of the Michigan High School Athletic Association will have to take a stand on the three-pointer. Right now the MHSAA is leaving it up to the individual conferences, foregoing the shot, at least for this season, for state tournament play.

SEVERAL AREA leagues have adopted the shot, including the Tri-River League, Greater Oakland Activities League and Metro Con-

The 12-team Western Lakes Conference has not adopted the shot, although all of its league members have the three-point line painted on their floors.

"I've got mixed feelings about it," said Farmington Harrison coach Mike Teachman. "I don't like it in college because you have everybody shooting all over the place, but it opens up the inside and it will change coaching strategies a lot. It's going to stop the all bounching bodies inside.

'The negative side of it is that, first, you don't have skilled enough people (in high school) to make it worthwhile and you're going to showcase only one or two guys; and secondly, when you're 15 or 16 years old, you haven't developed the strength and you may not be smart enough to know when or when not to shoot it."

Plymouth Salem coach Bob Brodie would like to see it adopted on a "trial basis."

"IT'S GOOD AS far as scoring goes and teams won't be able to pack their zone inside," he said. The negative side is you work so hard to get your kids to get the shots inside. To make those shots worth less than a 20-foot bomb will make the kids think twice about busting to work the ball inside.

'As a coach, defensively we like to force teams to shoot from 21 feet. We may have to change the philosophy if they're going to get three points from that range.'

Brodie also added that 19-9 is too close for college, but perfect for high school.

Like Massimino, Bloomfield Hills Lahser coach Mike Fedio doesn't care for the three-pointer.

"I think the game is fine the way it was," he said. "I don't see it enhancing the game. I've seen in in college and it's the distance I don't like.

"The pros (23 feet, 9 inches) needed something to keep the interest in the game. "I'M NOT A win-at-all-costs coach. It's not my job to entertain the Lahser fans. I teach my team to work hard and make sacrifices, playing to their strengths and weaknesses. In high school athletics, it should be educational. The game is not for the fans, it's for the players in high school. College is different, it's almost like the pros."

As a writer covering games, I'd like to see the preps try the shot on an experimental basis, maybe during the summer, as Teachman sug-

I think it would win over some coaches, who, year after year, don't have the inside people to compete with the big boys.

Spartans chase coveted Joe Louis arena hat-trick

Will Michigan State University get the coveted Joe Louis Arena hat trick this year?

The Spartans will shoot for the first goal this weekend when they compete with Western Michigan, University of Michigan and Michigan Tech in the 22nd annual Great Lakes Invitational Collegiate Hockey Tournament Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 27-28 at Joe Louis.

MSU, the reigning NCAA champ and winners of four straight Great Lakes titles, just missed gaining the hat trick two years ago when it lost in the preliminary round of the NCAA championships. The hat trick consists of the Great Lakes, Central Collegiate Hockey Association and NCAA titles.

A MSU championship this weekend would tie the tournament's consecutive win record. Michigan Tech won the tournament five straight years, from 1976-1980.

ON PAPER, it appears MSU will be the heavy favorite again this year. The Spartans, who will take on Western at 7 p.m. Saturday, have a 16-2-0 record. Western is 10-8. U-M (6-12-0) will play Michigan Tech (4-15-1) at 3 p.m.

But as all four coaches said at a recent press conference, "It's not the team with the best record going into the tournament that will win the GLI, it's the team that plays the best or those two days."

hockey

Each team will have its own motivating force. Herb Boxer and his Tech program are hoping to prove they are still a force in the tournament. Tech teams have won or placed second in all but three of the 21 tournaments. The Huskies have won the title nine times.

Red Berenson, head coach at U-M, is looking for his first GLI title. The Wolverines won the tourney once, in Western, though no stranger to the Joe Louis ice, is making its debut in the tourney. Western beat MSU last March at Joe Louis in the finals of the CCHA tournament.

AS ALWAYS, the Great Lakes tournament will attract a throng of NHL scouts. Although a large percentage of the players in the tournament have been drafted, NHL scouts continue to monitor and evaluate the progress of their players.

'A hockey program with a heavy emphasis on practice is what the NHL wants for their college draftees," said Berenson. "So by having a player remain in school, both sides benefit -y the pro team has their draft pick in a solid program and the player receives an education."

Being drafted does not guarantee any player an NHL contract. Western coach Bill Wilkinson thinks this reality makes his drafted players work harder.

"They know they are still being watched," he said. "If they don't play hard, they don't play at all - drafted or not.'

THE NUMBER of Observer & Eccentric players competing in the tournament is down somewhat this year. Don McSween (Plymouth) is the anchor of MSU's defense. U-M features Alex Roberts (Bloomfield Hills) and Paul Rossi (Birmingham). Dave Bramble (Livonia) and Bob Worden (Canton) play for Western. Tech is devoid of area players. However, the Huskies have picked up an entire western Wayne County university. Wayne State has adopted the Huskies as its hockey team. The Tartars will be out in full force Saturday and Sunday.

The championship game will take place at 7 p.m. Sunday. The consolation game will start at 3 p.m.

Tickets, $9.50 and $8.50, are available at Joe Louis and all TicketWorld outlets. A two-day GLI pass can be purchased for $22. A threeevent, 12-game ticket for the GLI, CCHA and NCAA tournaments can be purchased for $89. Call 567-6000 for morepicket information.

Garden City wrestling team.

The Cougars repeated as champions of their own Christmas Invitational, pulling rank in numerous matches and scoring 40 points on pins alone

Garden City tallied 167 points to outdistance second place Dearborn Heights Annapolis (128) and Dearborn Divine Child (124%). Livonia Churchill took fourth with 116. (See statistical summary).

Coach Phil Freeman, to say the least, was happy with the outcome.
"We placed higher than we were seeded in eight weight classes," he said. "We pulled 11 upsets."

Freeman also watched one of his own wrestlers, 167-pounder Tim Howell, walk off with the Tournament MVP award.

"The 167-pound class was a dogfight," said the Garden City coach.

HOWELL, a state qualifier last year, won a pair of overtime matches, including the final. Trailing 8-2 in the last period, Howell rallied to tie before pinning Chuck Sanom of Berkley (in 57 seconds of OT) for the championship.

"Sanom was a regional qualifier last year and he makes a he-man look like a 98-pounder," said the Garden City coach.

GARDEN CITY'S other weight class winner was Bob Hancox (112), who turned back Mark Stanosciak in the final, 7-2. The Cougars also gained a pair of third place finishes, David Perracciolo (126) and Ken Pichla (132); two fourths, Matt Cyrus (138) and Tony Krause (105); and two fifths, John Fishback (98) and Paul Wacht (185).

Churchill's lone champion was Mike Krause (132), who decisioned Riverview's Brian Hooey 9-4 for the title. The Chargers also got a pair of second place finishes from Casey Krause (98) and Mike Marocco (155).

Livonia Stevenson, sixth in the team standings, was led by second place finishers Dave Wojciechowski (105) and Tom Tokarz (138).

Despite finishing eighth overall, Plymouth Canton boasted one individual champion, heavyweight Tony Callaway, who pinned Gibraltar Carlson's Mike Mayville in 1:33.

But it was the Cougars' day to celebrate. There was even a guy dressed as Santa (Ron McKella) who presented medals to the winners.

she steps onto the court for Michigan State University. It's a fair question. Archer, who started and excelled for the Spartans as a freshman, has been sidelined the last two seasons with a bum knee.

Before Friday night, Archer had started in all five MSU games. She averaged five points and four rebounds in those games. She's played well, the coaches assured. The knee is fine, Archer insists.

But is she still the same Kim Archer? Is she the same hell-bent player who set the standard of excellence for girls athletics in Observerland during her prep career?

The first half ends. Archer has taken one shot. She has grabbed one rebound. She has made two assists.

IF YOU left the field house at that point, you went away thinking Kim Archer couldn't play basketball anymore. But if you stayed, you know without a doubt that she not only can play basketball, but play it well.

Kim Archer put on a clinic in the second half - a clinic on how to play intelligent basketball. Miami probably thought it had a mismatch with Archer defending speedy point guard Rivera. But Miami didn't figure on Archer's court sense. In the opening moments of the second half the taller Archer took Rivera underneath and scored four quick points, helping the Spartans move out to a 15-point lead.

At that point, Archer checked back in. Rivera didn't score a point in the final seven minutes. Archer blocked her shots twice and altered two others. MSU went on to win comfortably. Archer finished with eight points, three assists, two blocks and a steal.

"I KNEW that No. 11 (Rivera) was mostly looking to drive," Archer look of frustration on her face. Oh, said. of smiled when asked to comment on Archer's defensive prowess. "The irony is, defense is not really her specialty. When she first came here, she didn't really play defense well. But she has developed into a good defensive player."

That's really the answer to the lingering question: Is she still the same Kim Archer on the court? No, she isn't. She's a more refined, more intelligent, more team-oriented basketball player.

"I'm a different player now than I was in high school," Archer said. "I'm more under control on the court now. In high school I pretty much did everything. I scored and rebounded and brought the ball up the court. And I was so out of control. But now I know my role and I like it. I'm happy to get the ball to our scorers and play defense."

Said Langeland: "Every game she plays better and better. She keeps getting closer to where she was in her freshman year. With Kim, it's not so much physical, but mental. She has not played for two years and it takes a while to catch up."

AFTER THE game, Archer was at the center of the media attention. The local television cameras were rolling, five or six reporters encircled her - the scene was claustro-Archer loved every minute. She joked with the reporters. She answered the tiring "How's the knee?" question over and over. Kim Archer was in her glory, as happy as a little girl on Christmas morning. Her smile, after two years of painful, lonely rehabilitation, was heartwarming.

"I'm just happy to be playing again," she said.

General Electric's plastics group had considered installing an experimental molding machine at its Application Development Center in Southfield. But company officials decided that having it on use only 30 to 40 percent of the time was impractical. So GE struck a deal with Allmand Associates of Livonia, an advanced prototype house, that allows both companies to use the machine at the Allmand facility at up to 90 percent capacity.

Allmand Associates of Livonia has purchased a 3,000ton press intended solely for experimental or developmental work for large automotive exterior parts.

The press will give Detroit-area automotive engineers a chance to work with all resins and alloys. It will be used to mold bumpers, fenders, fascias, door panels, rear quarter panels, air dams, and rear and front spoilers, said Nick Bogdanos, Allmand's general manause only 30 to 40 percent of the time was impractical. So GE Plastics struck a deal with Allmand, an advanced prototype house, that would allow both companies to use the machine at the Allmand facility at up to 90 percent capacity. To prepare for arrival of the new machine, Allmand expanded its facility by 5,000 square feet, added a machine bay and built private offices for customer use. The cost of the machine, expansion and Allmand general manager Nick Bogdanos with a bumper prototype that is the product of the injection molding press behind him.

The press was manufactured by Krauss Maffei Corp. of Franfort, Ky. A worldwide supplier of injection molding machines, Krauss Maffei entered into a partnership with Allmand and GE Plastics.

IN A RECENT speech announcing the three-company partnership, Herbert Hoedl, general manager of trans-portation marketing and technical development for the Pittsfield, Mass.-based GE Plastics, said: "The largepart injection molded exterior automotive market is growing at a truly explosive rate . . . Detroit is where prototype molding is happening. Yet, ironically, there are very few machines available for development work (in the Detroit area) because most of them are used for production. And of the few available, most are based on old technology."

Hoedl stressed the importance of using the latest in machine technology and of having the prototype house geographically close to automobile manufacturers. Work on drawing to prototype part that once took 10 months will be reduced about 15 weeks, he said. The Application Development Center of GE Plastics in Southfield is considered a world leader in engineering thermoplastics, which, unlike thermoset plastics, can be recycled. Established in 1974, the center has 99 employees and plans to expand its facility next year.

BOGDANOS SAID Allmand Associates is gearing for the 1990s, when the auto industry will be making plastic fenders, doors and hoods. The same dogged determination that helped the company grow from a three-person sales organization into a tool maker, prototype he and maker of customized, low-volume injection-molded parts will contribute to its success, Bogdanos predicted.

Allmand was founded in 1970 by the late John Allmand primarily to provide prototype work for the automotive industry. To supply the products, the company subcontracted everything from tool making to in-

Customers wanted more services under one roof. In 1973, company officials set up a prototype tool building, wood shop, foundry and mold shop. They also bought the company's first injection molding machine to make parts off its own tools.

In 1977, the company started booking a few injectionmold machines for low-volume production. "There was a big demand for low volume that nobody else wanted." Bogdanos said. "We ended up running three shifts six

Fire destroyed most of the facility in 1980, the same year the company's founder died and his son, John Jr., took over. It took most of that year to rebuild. That accomplished, the company sought to diversify from strictly automotive customers. It also pioneered production of zinc alloy molds. "Just a few years ago," Bagdanos explained, "the plastics industry felt that zinc alloy tooling might not be strong enough for large body parts." In 1983, Allmand launched an extensive prototype program with Ford Motor Co. Using materials, processing and technical expertise of GE Plastics, Allmand validated zinc alloy tooling for the bumper of the 1986 Ford Taurus and its counterpart, the Mercury Sable.

TODAY, THE company can build a prototype tool. supply prototype parts, convert the tool to a production tool and run production. From 1981 through 1983 it manufactured more than 10,000 pairs of body moldings for the Cars and Concepts program for the Mustang convertible. And last year and this, it produced 30,000 air dams for the BMW 325 series.

A walk through the facility demonstrates the company hasn't fogotten its mission to diversify. Here is a computer cover. Over there is a Black & Decker advertising display box. Beyond are some fish tank parts, a inet a tractor gear-shift hoot a snare hoat propeller. The company guarantees zinc alloy tooling for 60,000 parts, a commitment Bogdanos said is rare in

The building now occupies 60,000 square feet and can't expand further. But next spring, Bogdanos said. Allmand will occupy a 43,000-square-foot facility just south of its existing building on Levan near Plymouth. The building will house the tooling operation, freeing the present building for manufacturing.

The privately owned company employs 140 people and expects to have $10 million in sales this year. That compares to the $2.5 million it had in sales in 1977.

Bogdanos said. Foreign competition doesn't bother Bogdanos. "Europe and the Far East don't have zinc alloy engineering or the ability to make these parts."

Time is a precious commodity in Detroit's ability to remain globally competitive in the automotive market and aftermarket. Zinc alloy tools require only about a third of the time it takes to make steel tools, he said.

Benefits are numerous for those who delegate

By Bill Parker

ggest problem those in authoritive positions face is in delegating individuals to specific tasks — let-

In general, the manager/boss figure dosen't like to give total responsibility of completing a specific job to another because he or she fears the individual may not complete the assignment correctly. And responsibility for the project usually still lies with the manager/boss.

According to Jane Goodman, associate director of the Continuum Center at Oakland University, the toughest thing to do is to let go and have trust in the individual given the task.

"Managers need to have trust in their subordinate. Lack of trust leads to fear, and fear causes anxiety in both the delegator and the subordinate," said Goodman at a recent "How to Delegate" seminar at OU. "The adage, 'If you want something done right, do it yourself,' causes difficulty and confusion. It won't allow for developing underlevel management, and it often leads to undercutting authority or causing a lack of confidence in the subordinate."

But the advantages of delegating responsibility are numerous.

For the delegator it creates more time for completing job duties and allows him or her to become more effective in performing them. It enables the delegator to leave the work site knowing the work is being done, and it allows more time for innovative planning.

For the subordinate the advantages are even greater. Delegating presents the opportunity for learning, growth and advancement. It creates a feeling of accomplishment and satisfaction, presents a challenge and allows the individual to become better informed.

DELEGATING ALSO promotes growth, efficiency and quality within the company or organization itself.

"Delegation is a kind of motivational tool," said Goodman. "One of the best ways to motivate someone is to give them a challenge. What (delegators) have to do is to find out what motivates people, whether it's recognition, freedom, the opportunity of challenge, whatever. Find out what it is and do it."

Many times managers destroy motivation without realizing it. Such actions as dwelling on weaknesses, expecting perfection or telling someone exactly how to do the job will only lead to a lack of confidence in the

Managers who only care about themselves and their own advancement, don't listen or don't tell the subordinate what they're doing right, also tend to stand in the way of progress. When the need to delegate occurs, the first thing a manager/boss needs to do is find an individual capable of fulfilling the task. The subordinate needs to be equipped with all the personal tools necessary to complete the job. If the individual gets in over his or her head, the result will either be late or it won't meet the standards needed for satisfactory completion. Next, the manager needs to explain why the job is important. If the individual feels he or she is just doing someone else's dirty work - that it isn't a valuable task - the quality of work will usually be low.

DELEGATING SHOULD be done in terms of results wanted. Managers should leave room for the subordinates to decide how they want to meet the needs. If every detail is drawn out for the individual, there will be no challenge or feeling of accomplishment.

Authority should also be defined and never undercut. Give the subordinate enough authority to complete the task without continually having to return to the manager for permission. If the subordinate feels as though his or her hands are tied, the task will become frustrating and the potential for success will be lessened.

A deadline must also be agreed upon as well as check points throughout the project. This will enable the delegator and the subordinate to get together and compare notes. This way, if something is going wrong a solution can be arrived at before a minor hangup turns into a major problem. The manager will have an opportunity to correct or commend the subordinate on the job, and the subordinate will have the opportunity to ask questions and verify his or her progress.

Finally the manager should ask for feedback. Does the subordinate understand the overall picture? Does he or she foresee any problems or setbacks? Questions such as these should be answered before work on the project begins.

The bottom line is that the manager must have confidence in the person delegated to the task.

Once delegated, the task belongs to someone else and that someone needs to complete the task without interference from higher-ups.

ILLING IN on 24-hour notice was no problem at all for Bob Carroll, who replaced Paul Lipson during rehearsals for the Birmingham Theatre production of "Fiddler on the Roof," opening Saturday, Dec. 27.

When Lipson was out of the show due to cellulitis, Carroll was asked to take over the lead role of Tevye. Although Lipson has played Tevye more times than any other actor even the musical's original star, Zero Mostel - Carroll has played the part on a national tour from 1969 to 1972 and appeared twice in the show at Detroit's Fisher Theatre.

Carroll, who joined other members of the cast rehearsing in New York, spoke about the show over the phone from American Theatre Productions there, last week during his lunch break.

Not only does Carroll have lots of experience in the part of Tevye, he has a natural affinity for the role. "Don't let my name fool you," he said. "My real name is Mark Kauf-

CARROLL, recalling his childhood, remembers good times despite humble background. "Basically, the family was laughter-oriented,"

'My grandfather had a teriffic sense of humor about himself. He had a fierce temper when he was upset. He had a red handlebar mustache that used to scrape me when he kissed me."

'He was really a character out of Sholom Aleichem," Carroll continued. Describing his grandfather's appearance, he said, "He looked more like a middleweight fighter than a with his grandfather's temperament. "He worked in a men's clothing factory. After one and a half years, he sent for grandmother and their seven children. This is all relevant to the kind of aspect Tevye has for a better life."

The topper, however, is, "They came from Kiev, where the show is actually set. My family lineage on that side was remarkably akin to Tevye's background."

Is Tevye's tantalizing "If I Were a Rich Man" Carroll's favorite song in the show? He replied, "I still love 'If I Were a Rich Man' but my other favorite song in the show he doesn't sing. It's sung by Tevye's daughter, Hodel, 'Far from the Home I Love.' Hodel sings it when she leaves to join the man she loves, a non-Jew, to whom her father has finally given his approval.

"Tradition is being broken one more time," Carroll said of the show's theme.

The actor-singer has performed in the Detroit area many times, most recently in July when he was guest baritone with the Detroit Symphony and Skitch Henderson and Margaret Whiting at Meadow Brook Music

"I began coming to Detroit in 1960, with 'Fiorello,' " he said. Carroll also played the Fisher in "Shenandoah."

He had just finished with the "La Cage" tour and was home a few weeks ("Now I'm a Long Islander. I live at Port Washington, New York.") when the call came to do "Fiddler." Carroll was planning a vacation, which has been postponed until after the show closes Sunday,

"I think the cast is going to be really super. They're so well chosen. It's a shame we're only going to be working for five weeks," he said.

Carroll's acting career has included roles in TV soap operas, "Edge of Night," "Another World" and "Texas." He also had an exchange of lines with Dudley Moore in "Arthur" and appeared as "a cloak and suiter" with Frank Sinatra in "Seventh Avenue." Both film parts were snipped before the movies' completion.

INING AT Chez Raphael in Novi is elegant enough, but when the celebrated young chef of that prestigious restaurant comes to prepare a meal in your own home, well, that's really

Dr. James Lawson, a plastic surgeon, and his wife, Wendy, of Bloomfield Hills, a registered nurse who manages the office, attended a benefit auction last spring and were the lucky bidders on a dinner for six by chef Keith Famie.

Wendy said they orginally planned to have the dinner served after their new swimming pool was installed this summer, but when the pool wasn't completed until fall, they decided to make the dinner a holiday event instead.

The day after the dinner, she said, "It was five-star, believe me."

Famie had asked her what she wanted to serve, and she replied she would leave it up to him. The only thing she specified was veal for the entree.

"It was the best, most wonderful veal I've every had," she said Monday, about the dinner Sunday.

FAMIE, IN a phone conversation last week, described some of the dishes he had selected for the menu.

"I am doing one of my best veal dishes," he said, "a stuffed veal loin filled with foie gras, sweetbreads and wild mushrooms, and wrapped in spinach mousse. It will be really different.'

The chef took one assistant, Tim Clark, and one waiter, Martin Kithen, to the Lawsons' home to help with the meal.

Asked how much she had bid at the auction, Wendy declined to name the price but said, "There were quite a few bidders. I fought for it."

Famie said, "It would be a very expensive meal," but that he was willing to do it because the money went to a good cause. He also took on the meal, which he called "The Lawson Family Christmas Extravaganza," because he is thinking of starting to do catering in private homes, for six-eight people.

"I find it to be very creative but, most of all, it's very personal," Famie said.

The chef prepared four hors cato d'Oro Robert Mondavi. d'oeuvres to precede dinner. These included lobster and chevre pizza, smoked salmon with Beluga caviar, duck and pheasant pate with gras with toast points.

Whether you're going to ring in the new year watching television, or just turn on the tube to recuperate from the celebration, there are a few movies worth seeing that won't require the kind of intense concentration so difficult for almost any sane person over 25 to sustain after a late night.

For those who insist that this year they're staying home but don't feel duty-bound to watch the lighted ball fall and rise in Times Square, there are a few movies available on the tube. Probably the best of the holiday movies to take you right through the new year is "One Magic Christmas" at 9 p.m. and 3 a.m. Wednesday-Thursday, Dec. 31/Jan. 1 on the Disney Chan-

You say you can't stand the thought of yet another movie about this holiday? Tune in at least to see Harry Dean Stanton turn in a very nice performance as an angel who helps a young mother, Mary Steenburgen, recapture her ability to believe in goodness. Stanton's angel was a 19th century cowboy who died trying to save a boy from drowning. He shows up in a long overcoat and and a cowboy hat, looking like he'd be more at home in a frontier saloon instead of the heavenly choir. He's a laconic sort, a low-key angel on a mission from you-know-who. Steenburgen, as the young woman worn out from caring for her family and worrying about its finances, doesn't convey a Scroogelike meanness. Tired of fighting, she's down and out and just hoping for the count. Just as in her performance in "Cross Creek," she makes you care what happens to her character.

IF YOU'D RATHER laugh than get all teary-eyed, wait until 10:30 a.m. Tuesday, Jan. 1, New Year's Day, when HBO shows "Jewel of the Nile," the 1985 sequel to the sucessful "Romancing the Stone." As a spoof of the adventure/romance genre "Romancing" is a funny, ontarget romp. "Jewel" tackles the absurdities of the same type of tale, only this time we've seen it all before.

Kathleen Turner and Michael Douglas return in the lead roles as the romance novelist and adventurer who try to discover what hap-pens after the first glow of ro-mance fizzles. Danny DeVito, back as a sleazy, chortling bad guy, makes this Jewel sparkle. He's funny when the movie lags but don't expect this one to be as delightfully funny as the first. Not a bad way to wile away a few hours. It's shown on all the premium channels this

ON THE OTHER hand, don't miss "Brief Encounter" if you haven't seen this 1946 story of two married lovers who manage to conduct an affair on a few furtive afternoons. It's featured at 2 p.m., Jan. 1 on Showtime and repeated throughout the month. Directed by David Lean and written by Noel Coward, the film stars Celia Johnson and Trevor Howard. They're neither a young nor glamorous pair of lovers; they're a sympathetic middle-aged couple. Underscoring the doomed-from-the-beginning relationship is the music of Rachmaninoff. If you love "Masterpiece Theater," chances are you'll enjoy this one

"Lost Horizon," based on a novel by James Hilton, proved to be an absolutely horrible 1970s musical. The 1937 version with Ronald Coleman and Jane Wyatt made for a fine film. Stranded in the Himalayas, the survivors of a plane crash are rescued by a lost mystic civilization whose members live forever. Coleman ponders the meaning of life a lot, not a wholly inappropriate theme for a new year.

Joining the trend of showing restored versions of movies, Cinemax includes footage cut after this film's original release, directed by Frank Capra. Throw a bag of popcorn in the microwave, sit back and enjoy this one.

Photojournalism develops

Among the examples of outstanding photojournalism in the exhibit, "Life: The Second Decade" at Detroit Institute of Arts through Feb. 5 is this one of the audience watching "Bwana Devil." It appeared in the Dec. 15, 1952 issue of the magazine and shows the audience wearing Polaroid spectacles to enjoy the three-dimensionnal sequences. The exhibit, in the De Salle Gallery of Photography, is open free of charge during regular museum hours, 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Tuesday-Sunday. Closed Mondays and holidays.

Christmas is time to open artistic gift

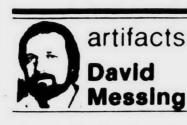

Isn't it comforting to know that by 10 a m Christmas day 98 percent of American homes will be knee deep in gift wrappings? And how about the week before Christmas?

If you have kids you know how hard it is for them to keep those Christmas gift secrets

When Adam, my youngest, was 4 years old he and I were hiding a pair of house slippers, which were to be Adam's gift to his Mom, Sandy, who was out shopping

Taking advantage of her absence showed Adam the slippers and begged him, "Please don't tell Mommy where we are hiding her slippers.

Just at that moment the side door opened and in walked Sandy Quickly I grabbed Adam's little head and whispered, "Now listen honey, don't

QUITE ANNOYED with me, Adam said, "I promise Daddy

Then he bounded down the steps to greet his Mom. Proud of the secret he and I shared, he boasted to her almost instantly, "We're hidin' your ter slippers 'n' I'm not tellin' where '

I couldn't believe what I had just tell Mommy where we hid her heard, so I just kind of lay there on the floor with one arm still under the bed Then in an instant Adam was back upstairs bent over me whispering. "I didn't tell nufin' bout where we hided 'em Dad

> "Good job, Adam" as I patted his head and tried to contain my laugh-

I just got over that one and caught oldest son smelling the little gift of art ability and haven't yet package he had wrapped for me.

Well, I wonder what could be in that package?" I teased my middle son, who right out of the blue sky asked, "Gee Dad wouldn't it be neat if you had a whole set of pliers?"

That Christmas we either knew of, or opened so many premature Christmas gifts that I said, "Boy we better have lots of Christmas spirit that they too carried the unopened because all we're going to have to gift of art ability open on Christmas morning is a carton of egg nog!"

I GUESS there is something much worse than a gift opened prematurely and that is a gift not opened at all. There are many people who have a

even pulled at the ribbon

Perhaps there are those who don't even know thay have a gift. You may have an inclination, interest or merely an appreciation for art and that may be your clue.

Many times a parent to one of my young art students will enroll in art class, and to their amazement find

If you like to doodle, sketch or make patterns on the note pad next to your phone then there may be an art class in your future. Even if you open the gift late there still is time to enjoy art.

Often, retired people tell me, "I've played with art off and on over the years but now I have time and I'm thrilled to fill my days with art " ,

One little lady comes to mind, she has for years thought that because our store name is Art Store & More that my name is "Art" and my partners name is "Morrie.

She will step in and with a big smile and a loud vice ask "Where's Art? I want to show him my latest piece." For a "late bloomer" she is doing terrific! So whether it's early. right on time, or a little bit late, look closely at yourself and see if perhaps you too have an unopened gift shornwhere inside.

P.S. Sandy, Scott, Kevin, Adam and I wish all of you a "Very Merty Christmas."

NOT EVERY DOG HAS HIS DAY.

and starving? Or abused. Or worse,

It's an awful picture. Yet it's one that thousands of animals are forced to live every day.

We at the Michigan Humane Society are putting a stop to that. But we need your help.

We offer more than just shelter to lost and abused animals. We provide them with the medical attention and love they so desperately need. And we have a legal branch that investigates and prosecutes cruelty cases.
