Newest school will be named for Hoben

John M. Hoben

By Doug Funke staff writer

Plymouth-Canton's newest elementary school, expected to open in the fall of 1988, will be named in honor of Superintendent

The school board unanimously agreed to the naming Monday after awarding bids for construction of the facility on Saltz Road.

E.J. McClendon, board president, said a major reason Hoben was selected was his instructional leadership - giving the classroom top emphasis in the district.

"We really want our kids to learn," said McClendon. "Someone needs to be the sparkplug. That's Mike's gut-level commitment the learning process."

The decision to name the school for Hoben apparently breaks tradition.

'I can't remember any other time they named it for someone still working there," said Sam Hudson, a historian who has written a book about the school district - "Michigan's 10th Largest."

HOBEN SAID he was overwhelmed by the board's decision.

"I'm very fortunate to be in a terrific school district, to work with fine people, to have excellent administrators and a fine teaching staff. I'm very thankful to them."

Hoben was hired as a math teacher and football coach for Plymouth High School in

He later worked as counselor, principal, assistant superintendent for secondary education and assistant superintendent for insruction. He became superintendent in 1971.

HOBEN, WHO also has taught at Eastern Michigan University and Schoolcraft College, earned an education specialist degree from Wayne State University and obtained a doctorate degree in 1979 from WSU.

He has served as consultant across the U.S. on time management, strategic planning and mastery learning.

In the community, Hoben has served on the board of Growth Works, as president of the Plymouth Education Association, as president of Plymouth Rotary, and as director of the Plymouth YMCA.

He has combat experience as an artillery commander in the Korean War.

HOBEN, 63, has two more years remaining on his contract. A further extension is likely. He said he has no intention of retiring in the immediate future. "I'm having too much fun. I enjoy my work. The things we do have an effect on kids. That's what we're here for."

Flossie Tonda of Canton, a former school board member, sparked a drive to name the new school after Hoben.

"He's been more or less married to the school district," she said. "No one knows how many hours he's spent at the office. He's always put the school district above his needs. He's deserving. He loves this district. He

THE BOARD Monday accepted construction bids for the new school in 27 categories totaling nearly $3 million.

Based on those bids, the final cost to build the facility could come in $300,000-400,000 below the estimate of $4.5 million, said Raymond Hoedel, associate superintendent for Hoedel suggested that the savings resulted from bidding out the project in parcels rather than as a single entity.

Money saved on the school construction will be diverted to other projects, Hoedel said. 'We always need roofs, asphalt, replacement of equipment," he said.

(TMP "agreed to do this on a contingency basis out of pure interest on their part," said Shirley Spaniel, district executive director of elementary education. "Their offices are in a restored one-room school in Bloomfield Hills.")

The committee set out to plan a renovation of Geer, so that groups of the district's 1,000-plus fifth-graders could, for one week, see what it was like to be a schoolkid in the 1880s.

The two-room building on Ann Arbor Road at Gotfredson is in need of room school, closed in 1982 by Plym- a new roof, furnishings, plumbing and electrical wiring.

"When we met to explore how we dent life, with perhaps the exception might use the building and the type of programs we might have, we realized we're in Michigan's sesquicentennial year. It's a beautiful school in terms of the outside, the detail of stored it to its 1880 condition," said

It's expected that trustees on Monday will OK a resolution granting the committee permission to embark on a $300,000 fundraising and restoration campaign.

EXCITEMENT BEGAN snowballing when Howard Walker, a 1916 Geer graduate, volunteered to draw floor plan of the school for the to actually restore it," she said. We're working hard on developing fundraising strategy. We'll be going to the community as soon as the board approves the resolution."

Committee members hope to obtain grant money from foundations and from the state, as well as from

Thus far, $6,000 has been raised. That sum was donated by Blackwell Ford Inc. of Plymouth.

Thankfully, these folks haven't gone to extremes in planning the recreation of bygone schooldays. ### Cruise control

Officials ponder how to deal with problem

By Diane Gale staff writer

Problem: Main Street cruising. Solution: Proceed with caution no matter what road you take.

Plymouth officials are taking a number of steps to deal with the swarms of young people who jam into the downtown area on weekends. But every action will cause a reaction, warned Paul J. Sincock, assistant to the Plymouth city manager.

"It's like squeezing a bag of Jello."

Squeeze the top and it comes out the bottom, he said. Squeeze the bottom and it comes out the top. For example, blocking off Main Street could have an adverse effect, Sincock said. "That could turn Main Street into a pedestrian mall," said Sincock adding there is a potential for liability if emergency units can't get through the area and if people break the barricades. ABOUT 30 RESIDENTS and business people showed up for Monday's commission meeting to talk about the cruising problem - some offered suggestions and others wanted to know more about the city's plan of action.

"We have to stay up until 3 o'clock in the morning to make sure they don't come back, and they have come back," according to a resident who asked not to be named.

'We have to guard our own property," he said. His wife, who also asked to remain anonymous, said: "We can't even enjoy the town anymore. It seems like the kids are running the town. The police are trying, but we need more of them."

Starting this weekend, city officials plan to enforce a permit-parking-only policy from 7 p.m. to 3 a.m. on Dewey Street and Hartsough. Cars without permits will be ticketed and/or towed, Sincock said. Residents were issued permits.

Dewey and Hartsough residents collected petition signatures from more than 60 percent of the homeowners agreeing to the program.

Other streets are expected to be included in the permit-only parking program, Sincock said.

SIGNS ALSO WILL be erected at businesses allowing only permit parking this weekend. Some business owners have beefed up lighting and resorted to hiring security guards to patrol their properties. Judges in 35th District Court have indicated violators of city ordinances and traffic laws will face higher fines and court costs this year

But hefty fines aren't a deterrent to offenders unaffected by parting with the cost.

We had a young guy walk into the court and plunk down $410 - for a ticket given to him and his girlfriend - he smiled and walked out the door," said Henry Graper, city manager.

"Unfortunately, we're not dealing totally with real young people," Graper said. "We're dealing with people in higher income brackets and they can pay the fines.'

THE FIRST major batch of arraignment dates for ordinance and traffic offenders during cruises is May 8 before Judge James Garber.

The city also is looking at the possibility of hiring part-time police officers to help write tickets and patrol the area during the cruises, Graper

This idea is dependent on police union negotiations and financial restraints.

One resident said: "Plymouth has been a small town for quite a few years. Unfortunately now we're surrounded by a lot of other cities and the small town is gone."

The real solution to the cruising problem will be for residents, business people, police officers, city officials and young people to work together to "down size" the crowds, Sincock said.

The city of Plymouth's tax rate market value of $80,000 has a is down, but property owners will pay more in taxes. The Plymouth City Commission unanimously approved an 18-mill rate Monday, down from the 18.17 mills now levied. Even though the tax rate decreased slightly, property owners will be paying more because property values increased 6 percent last spring.

Taxes are figured by taking half of the market value of the property, the State Equalized Value or SEV, and multiplying the tax rate by the SEV.

For example, a house with a

Firefighters worked to contain flames at the Westchester

Fire will delay shop opening

The alarm was called in at 9:40 a.m. No one was reported injured. The fire accidentally ignited during soldering on an air conditioning unit at the two-story structure, said Pire Chief Al Matthews.

There was some exterior fire at the outer wall and a whole lot of interior - fire walls and partitions," he said.

Several inches of water drained from the lower level of the 5,000square-foot building when firefighters fought the fire.

MORE THAN a dozen firefighters, regulars and volunteers, responded with two pumper trucks, an aerial ladder truck, the emergency response unit and several rescue vehicles.

Just a few shops in the building were open or nearly ready to open. "We were in here working when it happened," said Jack Linden, who is establishing an art glass

How had is Wayne County's eco-mic crisis?

So had that county executive Ed-ard McNamara said he considered this revenue-raising suggestion:

"The suggestion was I hire Jim and Tammy Bakker to do some fund raising. Then, I would go up into the airport tower and not come down until, the fund-raising goal was reached," McNamara joked Wednes-day to a Livonia Chamber of Commerce audience.

WAYNE COUNTY'S reported

$292 million deficit is no laughing matter, but recently released assessment figures could give the beleagured county executive reason to smile.

Assessments are going up all over the county, County officials consider the $752 billion in new construction and increased property values a sign of good things to come. Western Wayne is pointing the way. Livonia topped all county com-munities with a $121 billion increase in state equalized value (SEV). Plymouth Township posted the largest percentage increase, 12.53 per-

"These things cut both ways," said county commissioner Susan Heintz, R-Northville, who represents both communities. "As a taxpayer, you don't want to see your assessments rise. But it's good news for the coun-

No new tax under GOP's school plan

By Tim Richard staff writer

The trick to state Sen. Rudy Nichols' property tax cut plan is prying $800 million more in school aid out of the budget.

We'll have to tighten our belt at the state level," said Nichols, R-Waterford, as he unveiled the plan at news conferences in Grand Rapids. Landing and Southfield.

With the "nodding approval" of Majority Leader John Engler, Nichols' plan may be characterized as the Senate Republican entry in the property tax cut sweepstakes.

It's the unofficial rival to the mills to keep same level; decrease House Democratic plan (Rep. James, Kosteva, D-Canton) and Gov. James J. Blanchard's. (See other story on this page.) The assumption in the state Capitol is that a compromise will result.

IF NICHOLS' plan is adopted by voters as a constitutional amendment in 1988, here will be the three results:

• The school property tax will become 20 mills statewide, about 60 percent of the current average of 34 mills. It would yield $2.4 billion, or 48 percent of all school operating (Individual districts would be free to vote 4 additional mills for enrichmeht because 'it would be political suicide not to provide that.")

 The complex state aid formula, under which many well-off suburban districts get nothing, would be scrapped. State spending per pupil would be set at $3,000. Currently, school districts spend from $1,800 to nearly $5,900 per pupil, which Nichols called "inequitable."

• To make up for lost property tax revenue, the state would increase its school aid by $800 million - from the current $1.7 billion to

Districts would be "grandfathered" - that is, they could levy whatever millage rate necessary to maintain their per-pupil spending despite the new statewide levy of 20

HERE IS how western Wayne County school districts would fare under Nichols' propsal:

Clarenceville — now 37.9 mills; spends $3,083; needs 21.3 mills to keep same level; overall decrease

Garden City — 39.5 mills; spends amendment to the state Constitution. $3,199; needs 25.4 mills to keep same level; down 14.1 mills.

Livonia - now 35.2 mills; spends $3,773; needs 27.2 mills to keep same level; overall decrease of 8 mills.

Plymouth-Canton — now 37 mills; spends $3,019; needs 20.3 mills to keep same level; voters would have to approve 0.3 mills above constitu-tional limit to keep same level; overall decrease is still 16.7 mills.

Redford Union — now 36.9 mills; spends $3,011 per pupil; needs 20.3 mills to keep same level; decrease 166 mills.

South Redford — now 33.15 mills; spends $4,026 per pupil; needs 28.45

Districts would be 'grandfathered' - that is, they could levy whatever millage rate necessary to maintain their per-pupil spending — despite the new statewide levy of 20 mills.

Wayne-Westland - now 40.65 mills; spends $3,281 per pupil; needs 26.44 mills to keep same level; decrease 14.21 mills.

IN CONTRAST to the Kosteva and other plans which call for a sales tax increase to replace lost property tax revenue, Nichols has nine sources in mind to make up that $800 million.

First, he would earmark half of all growth in general state revenues for schools. That would bring in $209

Second, the state Treasury would recover much of the income tax rebate money that is given back to households whose property taxes exceed 3.5 percent of their incomes. Currently, those income tax rebates total $600 million. With lower property taxes, the state would save $327 million of those rebates, by Nichols' calculations.

Third, he would tax State Lottery winnings, as would Gov. Blanchard.

NICHOLS' PLAN goes to the Senate Finance Committee chaired by Norman Shinkle, R-Monroe County.

One thrust of Nichols' plan is to increase the portion of school budgets provided by the state from the current 35 percent average, with wide variations, to a fairly level 52

"My plan cutting the rate to 20 mills and below offers an immediate one-third reduction in school property taxes to homeowners. Further, that millage is guaranteed to continually ratchet down in the years ahead as property values increase," he said, referring to the Headlee

Asked if it's fair to have the same school aid level in metro districts, large outstate districts and rural districts, Nichols replied that the current $1,800-$5,000 range of spending is even more unfair, adding, "$3,000 is a pretty good estimate of what it costs to educate a pupil."

He doubted it would lead to an effort toward statewide bargaining by the Michigan Education Association because local autonomy would be re-

Among school districts, he said, there would be "a few losers" the first year, and they would be ahead two or three years into the program.

A customer at Vic Tanny on Ann Arbor Road told police that his wal-let containing $800 cash, credit cards and identification was stolen from a locker Sunday.

The victim speculated that the thief watched him open the combination lock, then re-opened the lock while he exercised.

A Passport radar detector valued at $250 and a 40-channel CB radio worth $200 were reported stolen from a vehicle at PIC Holding Co. on Eckles. A window had been pried to

A stereo valued at $300 was reported stolen from a vehicle in the Spartan Warehouse parking lot on Haggerty. A door had been punched.

Fifteen roof vents were ripped from Farrand Elementary School on Greenbriar Friday night or early Saturday morning. Damage was estimated at $200.

Two tires were slashed at a car parked on Powell. Damage was estimated at $200. All four tires of another vehicle at the home were discovered to be flat, but it wasn't immediately determined if they, too, had been vandalized.

Ice show features medalist

Micki McMahon will be a featured performer at "Celebration On Ice" May 15-17 in the ice arena of the Plymouth Cultural Center.

In addition, some 235 Plymouth area iceskaters will be featured in the 5th ice skating spectacular sponsored by the city of Plymouth Parks and Recreation Department.

The performances will be at 7:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 3 p.m.

Show co-directors are Theresa McKendry and Barb Miller.

McMAHON participated in the World University Games in Czechoslovakia.

She is a regional gold medalist, Midwestern bronze medalist and senior ladies national competitor.

McMahon, a resident of Garden City, will be the guest skater for all three performances. "She's a great skater and we are fortunate to have her in our show," says McKendry. The show also will feature skating by young people in the parks and recreation basic skills classes.

The show will be split into halves

— the first half featuring music from the "Wiz" and the second half will be full of the "Motown" sound.

Tickets are $3 for adults and $1.50 for senior citizens and ages younger than 12. Tickets may be obtained from Plymouth Parks and Recreation in the Plymouth Cultural Center or from Sunshine Honda on Ann Arbor Road. Tickets also will be available at the door.

Medical center sale to be decided today

y Wayne Peal

Wayne County commissioners will decide today whether to sell West fand Medical Center.

But no matter how they vote, commissioners will be charting the fujure of county health care for years to come.

If they approve the sale, as ex-the first step toward turning th county's charter-imposed healt care responsibility over to the prvate sector.

But sale opponents say they'll continue fighting to re-establish Westland as a county-administered hospi-

"Where's there's life, there's tope," said commissioner Kay Beard, D-Inkster. Beard has been an outspoken critic of the sale. Her district includes the hospital site.

Health care is among the county

The sale was unanimously recommended Tuesday by the commission's ways and means committee. It has also been recommended by the health and human services committee, though Beard and fellow committee-member Richard Manning, D-Redford Township, voted against the recommendation.

Manning unsuccessfully urged ways and means committee members to delay their recommendation while sitting in on Tuesday's meeting.

Manning said the sale should be delayed at least two weeks to determine other options.

The county is considering selling Westland, the former Wayne County General Hospital, to a private consortium including Garden City Or teopathic Hospital, Onkwood Hospi tal and the five-member People' Community Hospital Authority.

The hospital is currently leased to Southwest Detroit Hospital Corp While Seputhwest is also a councrium member, it wasn't a part of the countr's negotiations.

Sale terms include a four-year emmitment for indigent health are from the new owners, county every property belongs of the wild common to the common to the common to the common to provide the two health care.

"Certainly, so HMO (health maintenance organization) is among the ideas considered," said commissioner Susan Heints, R-Northville, the report's author.

County will seek loan S'craft is site of Finnfest USA to meet June payroll

Wayne Peal

Wayne County Commissioners are expected to approve a $60 million loan today to help the financially strapped county meet its payroll.

But concerns linger over the loan's cost and an alleged conflict of interest involving the county's bond coun-

County executive Edward McNamara said payless paydays would begin in June unless the county issues $60 million in tax anticipation notes. The notes, short-term, tax-free municipal bonds, would be repaid after county taxes were collected in February.

BUT McNAMARA'S recommendation to issue the notes through the state-supported Michigan Municipal Bond Bank received a cool reception Tuesday from the commission's Ways and Means Committee.

Committee members questioned whether the county would receive as much money as expected. They also questioned whether a conflict of interest existed because Miller, Can-Colistra disqualifed his company's bid before speaking.

"I THINK it's probably wise for the county to deal with the state, but they should be sure they're going to get what they expect," he said.

The Bond Bank is allowed to invest holdings for one month longer than private institutions under a loophole in state and federal tax law, Duggan said. The additional investment period produces the additional

TO RETALIATE - By a vote of 218 for and 214 against, the House amended its trade bill (above) to require the government to force 10 percent annual reductions in U.S. trade deficits with nations judged to have used unfair tactics to build trade surpluses over America.

Roll Call Report

The internationally provocative Gephardt amendment was denounced as protectionist by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and lauded by the AFL-CIO as a strike for fair

It would be triggered against countries such as Japan, South Korean and Taiwan if the intermediate steps of negotiation and limited retaliation failed to remove the countries' large surpluses or unfair practices. It replaced a less severe provision in the bill that stopped short of mandatory 10 percent reductions.

Sponsor Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., said "the bottom line is pressure" in dealing with formidable trading partners.

Opponent Dan Rostenkowski, D-

Ill, called the amendment "too draconian to be effective."

Members voting yes wanted presidents to be able to force 10 percent annual cuts in the American trade deficit with certain countries. Voting yes: Democrats Hertel, Ford and Voting no: Republicans Pursell and Broomfield.

GOP SUBSTITUTE - The House rejected, 156 for and 268 against, the Republican alternative to the Democratic-drafted trade bill (above).

The GOP endorsed the thrust of the bill but sought to strip it of specifics such as the Gephardt amendment requiring mandatory retaliation, "Buy American" language, new disclosure requirements for foreign investors, provisions setting favorable exchange rates for the dollar and language creating new agencies to spur American competitiveness and ease the Third World debt repayment problem.

Members voting yes supported the

The work is hard. But the rewards are infinite.

The Archdiocese of Detroit has a job to do.

We know some people who are facing tough choices in life who need good advice. We know some people who are facing no choices who still need hope. We know a lot of great kids who need a place to be kids, and maybe someone to bring the ball or the music. We know a few older people who are going to die whether or not someone is there to bring them peace. All over the Archdiocese there are people who need a place to count their blessings and share their sorrows-people who need a hand, or a shoulder to lean on, or sometimes just an ear.

At Sacred Heart Seminary we're teaching young men to use the hands and shoulders and ears and hearts God gave them. It's a great education. A college degree. Graduate work. We'll give you up to eight years to decide you really want to be a priest before we ask you to do it for good.

Sure, the hours are long. But they're flexible. And if you come to work here, you'll get rich in ways few people can imagine.

Not everyone can do the job. If you think you can, call us. We

Kresge challenges zoo group

The Kresge Foundation of Troy, Prince of the nation's largest private of foundations, announced a $600,000 challenge grant this week toward the campaign for a new $7 million chimee exhibit at the Detroit Zoo.

To collect the "challenge" grant, the Detroit Zoological Society — an independent, non-profit membership organization, licensed to raise funds to support zoo programs — must raise some $4.8 million in private funds by the end of 1987.

The Zoological Society is independent of the city of Detroit, which owns and operates the zoo.

Plans for the new chimpanzee exhibit were started last summer by the zoo's staff and several experts on chimpanzees. The four-acre exhibit will feature 25 chimpanzees on an island surrounded by a moat.

The chimpanzees' habitat will be the most realistic ever developed, with termite mounds, drumming logs and fallen trees to occupy the animals and simulate the tropical rain forest of Central Africa.

The Kresge Foundation is an independent, private foundation created by the personal gifts of founder Sebastian S. Kresge.

To date, the zoo's Chimpanzee Exhibit Campaign has raised more than $3.7 million from private sources, including recent gifts from the Skillman Foundation ($500,000), Unisys Corp. ($150,000) and Chrysler Corp.

($100,000). An additional $2.25 million has been committed by the City of Detroit, through a $2 million bond revenue ballot issue approved in November and another $250,000 appropriation to the 200's capital budget.

In the three weeks leading up to the House transportation committee's vote last Wednesday to lift the Senate-passed ban on radar detectors, The Associated Press asked 109 of the 116 House members if they owned the devices.

Twenty said they own radar detec-tors, 38 said they don't and one rep-resentative refused to answer.

"THE POINT IS, fuzz busters are legal. I'm not going to apologize for having one," said Rep. William Keith, D-Garden City, who added that he'll vote to ban the devices.

"If they can detect me, I should be able to detect them. This is still a free country," said Rep. Ralph Ostling, R-Roscommon.

Rep. Vic Krause, R-Rockford, called the AP before the survey was complete to say he had decided to get rid of a radar detector his wife

State Rep. Justine Barns, D-West-land, said the radar ban issue should not be tied to a speed limit bill.

And while many lawmakers said they hadn't made up their minds, a majority of those interviewed said the constituents they've heard from are asking the Legislature to keep the devices legal.

The House transportation committee rejected 11-3 last week a ban on radar detectors.

PPEALS ARE being made to parents in Plymouth and Canton to contribute to solving a growing problem in downtown Plym-

The problem is rowdyism — abuse of alcohol by minors, reckless driving, some drugs, some fighting and some

The vocabulary of the day has labeled the problem as "cruising," but that attaches a label of innocence on what is becoming a very destructive activity.

Parents first need to know that "cruising" in downtown Plymouth Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights is not simply a recreation of a phenomenon of the 1950s when teens "cruised" drive-ins or Woodward Avenue.

Parents need to understand that an explosive situation exists that contains the ingredients for unwanted violence. Mob psychology quickly can produce unwanted behavior when you have large numbers of teens concentrated in one area in autos and roaming the sidewalks and parking lots. Mix with this consumption of alcohol by minors, some drugs here and there, and a carnival atmosphere and a "good time" can quickly sour.

@ MANG

With spring still young, there have been some ugly incidents — a stabbing in Kellogg Park, a brawl with racial overtones and deliberate destruction of an automobile.

Police, of course, cannot allow such destructive behavior to occur without reacting firmly and quickly. Unfortunately, when an element of lawlessness enters a mob, innocent bystanders sometimes are victimized.

PARENTS DO NOT want their young people arrested or victimized.

Yet that potential exists not because parents are unconcerned but uninformed. Many adults in Plymouth-Canton just don't realize the severity of the problem downtown. Informed parents would not allow their middle school and high school students to be anywhere near acts of vandalism, violence, unbridled emotions, or illegal use of alcohol/

That's why the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce is making a special appeal to parents. The business community has faith in Canton and Plymouth parents that they will react responsibly once they become informed of what is happening downtown.

So the chamber will be informing parents of the scope and extent of what is happening.

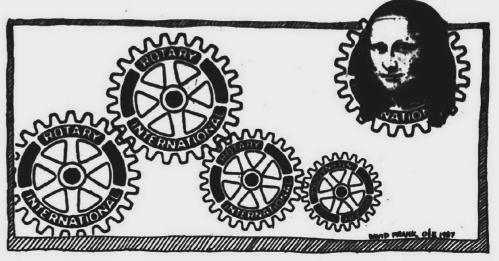

First, parents will be asked to make a concerned effort this spring and summer to know where there sons and daughters are. Second, all parents will be asked to consider implementing an age-appropriate curfew during the week and on weekends. And they will be asked to remind their young people what the con-sequences are for violation of rules.

The chamber's aim is to remove innocent bystanders seeking a good time so they don't end up being victimized. With the assistance of moderate, responsible parents, there will be fewer middle school-age students on the streets at 1 a.m. or 2 a.m. on weekends.

If reasonable people enforce reasonning will be realized in removing the good kids from a bad situation to give police a better crack at dealing with the lawless element.

Plymouth-Canton is a good community because it has a corps of responsible parents who are willing to work together to solve problems. With this resource tapped, let's put the "cruising" problem behind us and start looking forward to a safe, fun summer.

Closing the gap

Small town and suburban service clubs have done much to perpetuate the division between men and women.

But salvation comes in surprising

This week the Rotary was saved from itself by the U.S. Supreme Court. A few years ago, the Jaycee organization was equally blessed by a court decision that mandated that women could be members if they so choose.

Lord it is frustrating to think we are fighting this same old hackneyed battle in 1987.

But still more groups exist that want to exclude women for no other reason than that they are born with a different combination of genes. And even though the most recent court decision was welcome, the court did say each service organization would have to be considered on a case-by-case basis.

It's sort of like tearing down a wall brick by brick.

Let's hope the rest of these organizations that discriminate come around on their own. The consequences of more delay are legion.

Women have a right to equality and they deserve it now.

State tax plan: here we go again

MICHIGAN POLITICIANS are at it

Republicans in charge of the state senate are proposing a major cut in local school property taxes.

On the surface, it sounds great but there are a few financial and political problems that have to be figured out first.

The plan is to have voters approve a constitutional amendment that would eliminate local school property taxes and replace them with a statewide school tax of 20 mills, or $20 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation.

For districts like ours, it would be equivalent to cutting the school tax rate in half. For homeowners with a $50,000 home and an SEV of $25,000, the proposal would mean cutting school taxes from $1,000 to $500.

But the senate tax-cutters have yet to address a major problem — the plan ultimately reduces the amount of dollars available for public schools through property taxes.

THE GOAL of the senate Republicans is admirable.

They want to reduce, if not eliminate, the peaks and valleys of the per-pupil spending disparities between rich and poor school districts.

Some districts with a modest property tax base spend as little as $2,000 per student while their rich cousins spend more than double that figure.

On the surface, there should be more equal opportunity built into the state aid formula for public schools.

In the early 1970s, then-senator Gilbert Bursley suggested a fair and sensible formula, aimed at providing more state dollars for low-SEV districts. But the formula was flawed because it assumed there would be a constant student enrollment from year to year, that teachers in all sections of the state earn the same salaries, and that the cost of doing business is the same for all Michigan school districts.

He was wrong on all three.

FIRST THE baby boom ended and the bottom fell out of enrollments. While the stated boosted per-pupil payments, this was offset by the tremendous decline in student numbers.

At the same time, a soaring inflation rate resulted in teacher salary increases going up faster than state aid pay-

Finally, the cost of operating schools in the Detroit area is much higher than in the Upper Peninsula.

And what senate Republicans may have forgotten in their planning for the constitutional amendment is the busing furor of the early 1970s.

William Milliken, then governor, proposed an identical 20-mill statewide property tax for public schools.

But it was overwhelmingly rejected by voters who felt it was a giant step toward eliminating local school districts and reorganizing them into metropolitan districts to achieve racial integration of public schools.

The debate on the senate proposal has just started.

We'll be interested in seeing how legislators and educational leaders relate to past history and current political re-

This is merely an attempt by the administration to downplay the severity of the total breakdown within the department. Actually the written response to Graper's request for a detailed problem accounting was signed by all union members, except the probationary officers. The memo was a unified attempt on the part of the union to address the problems and their effect on operations.

To state, as Graper did, that, "we have people who won't accept the fact that we have people in command," is a simplistic attempt at skirting the real issue, which is exactly the opposite. We

Experts keep fixin' what works

I OFTEN THINK I was born in the wrong century. If this is the right one, how come so few things are done the way I'd like them to be?

This thought occurred to me recently as I walked into another of those indoor metropolis that passes for grocery stores these days.

Speaking from experience, it's quite traumatic when your regular store closes. I had shopped at the same store for more than 10 years. I knew most of the clerks by name. We discussed diets, child rearing and our aches and pains over the years. If I missed a week, they'd ask where I had been.

When my husband had to shop for me while I was recovering from surgery, I drew a map of the store for him - I knew where everything was! *

BUT NOW, due to the permanent closing of my good ol' Chatam. I feel like a stranger in a strange land cast out in search of a new store that I can feel comfortable in.

It's not just a matter of memorizing a new store. The difficulty lies in finding Nancy Smith the kind of store that I'm used to - one that sells groceries.

I don't like it when I'm in search of food and the first section I walk into is completely devoted to garden supplies. I'm looking for ketchup and all I see is fertilizer. "Tis disconcerting.

Whose idea was it, anyway, to combine a simple grocery store into a hardware store, gift shop, book store, deli, bakery, salad bar, liquor store with 3,000 what-nots thrown in for good

I just want to buy some simple groceries — you know, the stuff you use to make meals for your family. I hate wading through gardening tools when I'm looking for salad dressing.

GUESS MY major problem with this new "state of the art shopping" lies with the fact that these new stores are humungous, I mean really BIG!

They have to be to accomodate the cornucopia of goods housed in one

"The bigger the store, the more un leasant the chore," I always say. Well, I don't always say it but I may start.

I'm one of those shoppers who like to run into the store, grab all that I need, get through the checkout quickly and back to my car before it's even had time to realize it's been turned off.

I don't like feeling like I've made a commitment to spend a few hours as soon as the automatic door closes behind me. Makes me what to turn immediately to the "out" door.

As I was saying, I've just been born in the wrong era, I long for those little Ma & Pa groceries of yesteryear. Can't you just imagine ringing up the grocer and having his errand boy drop off the days

Elephant reconstruction is labor of love

staff writer

The remains of an elephant named Iki have drawn a number of area residents to a course on museum techniques and reconstruction at Wayne State University.

Busy cleaning and reassembling Iki's skeleton, they are unanimous in their sentiments about the pachyderm-sized project.

"It's a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity," said Anita Schwartz of Farmington Hills and Sherri Stewart of Bloomfield Hills, as they scraped, sanded and scrubbed backbone vertebrae.

They and some 30 or so others have been laboring one night a week since January, cleaning Iki's bones and preparing to assemble the huge skeleton for permanent display in the foyer of a stately old building on campus called Old Main.

The project is the brain child of Dr. Jeheskal "Hezy" Shoshani, a mammologist at Wayne State who is teaching the class.

FOR SCHWARTZ, a former geology major in college, and Stewart, a docent at the Cranbrook Institute of Science, the opportunity to participate in the project was "too good to this past winter. They also plan to enroll in the spring course scheduled for May and June.

Shoshani is hopeful the cleaning of Iki's bones will be completed by then but unless 25 or more students enroll in the course, it will be cancelled.

If all goes as planned, however,

Shoshani expects to assemble the skeleton next fall. The entire project will have required an estimated 4-5,000 man hours, he said. IKI. ORIGINALLY from Sri Lanka, performed with Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus for 40 years before dying in Florida in Shoshani and other volunteers brought Iki's body to Detroit in a rented truck just days after the elephant died.

Sue Berdenchuk was one of those volunteers. Now she and a friend, Craig Justice who is a chef, are taking Shoshani's course because "we like elephants."

Once at Wayne State, the right side of the skeleton was embalmed for anatomical study at the school and elsewhere. The trunk, for example, has been at Duke University in North Carolina until recently.

The left side of the skeleton was placed in the tightly sealed "beetle room" at the university where dermestio beetles attacked flesh, eating the bones nearly clean.

Now students are removing remaining bits of tissue, a job they said is tedious and difficult, particularly from embalmed bones where tissue has frozen rock-hard.

Since the beginning of the course, Ellie Slovis of Bloomfield Township and Carol DeFord of Southfield have been attacking one of Iki's enormous femurs. The bone had been embalmed, requiring the women to use electric drills, knives and steel wool in their efforts.

"We soaked it to soften the tissue, then the tissue rotted and started to stink. So we soaked it in Biz Detergent. It didn't make it any easier to clean but at least it smells hetter," they said.

Slovis and DeFord are museum educators at Cranbrook Institute.

"The arrangement of their blood vessels and their large rib cage (20 ribs) are primitive. Yet their trunk is one of the most specialized features in any mammal," Shoshani said.

The Plymouth Theatre Guild will present Herb Gardner's "A Thousand Clowns" Friday and Saturday, May 8-9 and May 15-16. Performances will be at 8 p.m. at Central Middle School, Church and Main streets in Plymouth.

The cast for the three-act play includes Tobin Alan Hissong appearing as Murray. Murray, a former writer for the "Chuckles the Chipmunk" show, is now unemployed.

Nick, Murray's young nephew, has come to live with his unemployed uncle.

The Plymouth Theatre Guild cast includes Karen M. Mosti as Sandy and Tobin Alan Hissong as Murray. Sean Sullivan, 10, appears as Nick In "A Thousand Clowns."

"The show opens with Nick telling Murray the child welfare board is coming to look in on the home environment," Reid said. "Mur-ray's quite a character, so he has a lot of fun with them."

THE REPRESENTATIVES from the child welfare board, Sandy (played by Karen M. Mosti) and Albert (Matt Greenough), come to Murray's apartment to check on Nick's surroundings. Sandy and Albert are engaged.

Constitution's heritage is a proud one

By Julio Brown staff writer

"It's a beautiful document," said Wayne Circuit Judge Maureen Reilly "It's short and it's to the point."

Questions about the Constitution's interpretation, however, have multiplied in the last 200 years. Writing the Constitution in the late 1700s took many compromises on the part amendments the Bill of Rights of the 55 men representing 12 of the colonies

In the late 1700s, that right was a narrowly defined one. It was based on British law and said that the accused in cases of treason could pick his or her own lawyer.

"Subsequently, our courts have expanded on that," Reilly said. "It has developed over the years by judicial interpretation."

THE CONSTITUTION'S 14th Amendment, ratified in 1868, said in part that "no state shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; nor shall any state deprive any person of life, liberty or property without due pro-

"When I was in law school, I thought that meant anybody." Reilly said. The amendment, however, didn't include women or blacks.

The 15th Amendment, ratified in 1870, extended voting rights to people regardless of race, color or previous condition of servitude. The 19th Amendment, ratified in 1920, extended voting rights to women.

The First Amendment guarantees freedom of expression rights, including freedom of speech and of the press. In the late 1700s, however, there was no sexually explicit material or cable television. Questions remain about whether First Amendment protection should be extended to those materials.

In the 1970s, while working for the city of Detroit, Reilly drafted several city ordinances regulating the location and operation of "adult" businesses. She defended those measures against constitutional challenges up to the U.S. Supreme Court and was upheld in the "Young vs. American Mini Theatres" decision.

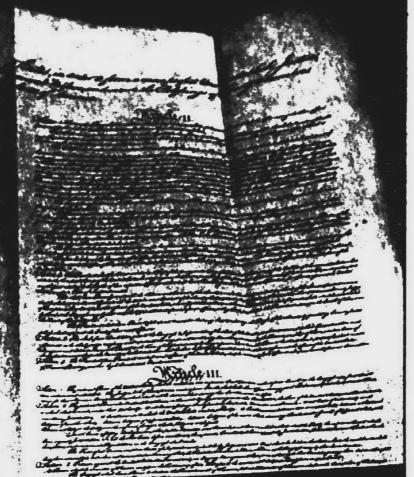

REILLY WAS appointed by Gov. William Milliken to the Common Pleas Court in 1977. In 1978, Milliken appointed Reilly to the Wayne Circuit bench.

Those attending Friday's meeting enjoyed the judge's presentation on constitutional law.

"I thought that she gave you things to think about," said Barbara Saun-good-natured roast, courtesy of his colleagues and friends.

Jim Courtney from Coldwell Banker got the roast going. "If bald is beautiful, Jeffrey is gorgeous," Courtney told those at the luncheon.

Several other friends and colleagues of Bruce's continued the roast. The final touches were applied by John Kelly and Marilyn Turner from "Kelly and Company."

EVERYTHING FROM his appearance to his eating habits was fair game during the roast. Bruce took the teasing in stride.

"This is very touching," he said. "I'm not terribly humble as a rule, but something like this does tend to humble you.

"I've loved working in Michigan for obvious reasons. The people I work with are the best." His association with the popular TV show has also been a good one for Bruce.

New mass 'Una Sancta' to debut at Faith Lutheran

A new mass, written for use by congregations to celebrate church unity, will receive its Detroit-area premiere at 7 p.m. Sunday, May 31, at Faith Lutheran Church, 30000 Five Mile, Livonia.

"Una Sancta: A Mass of Thanksgiving for the Unity of the Body of Christ" is the new mass.

The mass premiere is being sponsored by Detroit area Lutheran congregations together with Christ Seminary — Seminex, a Chi-cago-based theological school which has published the mass.

Presiding at the service will be Martin Seltz, pastor of Faith Church in Livonia. He will be assisted by Jeannette Bauermeister, vice president of Christ Seminary - Seminex and by Cherlyne Beck Purdy, associate pastor of Faith

The preacher for the service will be John Tietjen, president of Christ Seminary — Seminex.

THE MASS provides a new text and new music for the church's traditional eucharist liturgy, including five new hymns. It can be done with presiding and assisting ministers, cantor, organ, hand bells and adult and children's choirs. Imagery in the service features mountains and smoke, fire and cross to

Noted author Walter Wangerin wrote the text for the mass, Re-nowned organist Paul Mans wrote the music. Mans will be present for the mass premiere as organist. Wangerin and Manz have offered the mass as a gift to the church for use in ecumenical celebrations of Christian unity and by their own Lutheran denomination in connection with the unity of three Lutheran churches into one church on January 1, 1988.

The decision to form a new Lutheran church was made last August in conventions of the American Lutheran Church, the Association of Evangelical Lutheran Churches and the Lutheran Church of Amerigarbage in our social and cultural and moral life cannot be dropped at television's door, to be sure. But I agree with a TV critic who said some time ago: "Television has within its power to decide what kind of people we become." I shudder as I contemplate the implications of that

Its defenders say that television does not create social emptiness cultural chaos, and moral decline but merely reports what it finds Mass communication portrays itself as the efficient conduit of social information. Also, some argue that it is not the fault of television that people prefer fantasy to fact and - it is not television's problem, but theirs, if they prefer entertainment and titillation to information.

THESE ARE SPURIOUS arguments. Television is increasingly more influential than the family, the school, the church, the synagogue, and the community in shaping and influencing attitudes, values and conduct. We have indeed become a "global school" by the electronic revolution. The lessons depicted on the TV screen become the "life-curriculum" for millions of viewers.

If we want to find ways to reduce the crime on our streets, the violence in our schools, the ever increasing rate of teenage pregnancy, and the host of other violations of the principles of decency and integrity, we should direct our attention to that powerful educational force which has produced the malaise of America. The Rev. Bakker is not really the most serious problem. He is the symptom of that corruption which the medium of television has broughtinto our homes.

The time has come for our society to determine that mass communica-tion shall not pander to the worst in the American people.

'Romance' with airwaves leads to station purchase

By Tom Henderson staff writer

Dale Rands, the chief executive officer of Federal Enterprises, may be a budding media mogul but not because of a lifelong desire to own and operate TV and radio stations.

In fact, Federal began operation as Federal Asphalt Products Co. The firm went from selling shingles to selling jingles in 1985 only because WWJ radio came up for sale at a time when Federal was looking to convert cash into more concrete as-Hermelin - made the bid was their belief that area stations were undervalued. That has subsequently been shown to be true in the sale of other stations at ever-escalating prices.

Another reason for the bid had to do with a more romantic reason than bottom lines.

"We were all Detroiters, and WWJ was really synonymous with Detroit," said Rands. "When we made the decision to buy WWJ, one of the big factors was it was so identified with the Detroit community. There certainly was a lot more romance to buying a prominent property in Detroit than there was in buying a property somewhere else.'

RANDS, 44, a Southfield resident, grew up in Detroit. He remembers listening to Bob Reynolds' sports show on the bus home from Cranbrook each night. When asked to "We had been looking to expand name others he listened to, Rands quickly reels off the names of such dity as a vehicle to acquire one or legendary disc jockeys as Ed McKenzie, Tom Clay and Mickey Shorr. we have a lot more competent people to run the radio stations than me," he says. "At WWJ we have the best sounding all-news station anywhere, and we think the FM station is equally good in its format, which is easy listening."

RANDS IS ON leave from the Southfield law firm of Schlussel, Lifton, Simon, Rands, Galvin and Jackier, where he had specialized in ac-

"Federal is no longer in any other business," he says. Federal, a privately held company of about 250 stockholders, has acquired WMCA-AM in New York and is negotiating to buy two TV stations in the U.S.

"We have no present plans to go public at this time, but it's certainly not out of the question. If the opportunity presented itself, we would for about 175 emotionally disturbed consider it," said Rands. "It's a means of raising capital. When making acquisitions, it's an option to con-

For three years, Rands and his wife, Nanci, have co-chaired the annual Night for Sight benefit for the Eye Research Institute in Boston. Last December's benefit at the Hyatt Regency in Dearborn raised about $100,000, according to Rands.

Nanci owns Nanci J. Rands Realty in Orchard Lake. Their daughter, Meredith, attends the University of Wisconsin.

Hawthorne leaves PIC

The Private Industry Corporation -(PIC) of Wayne County has announced the resignation of executive director, Barry T. Hawthorne, to allow him to explore new business opportunities.

Hawthorne's position will be filled on an interim basis, according to PIC's John Castle who said that appointment will be made within the next week.

"Mr. Hawthorne has elevated the corporation from the basement of an abandoned hospital (Eloise) to national prominence in less than 31/2 years, and he and his leadership will be sorely missed by me personally and by our board of directors," said PIC President Charlotte S. Mahoney.

The 35-year-old administrator said he is leaving the Livonia-based job training and placement organization to pursue other interests.

"I have achieved my personal administrative goals by raising our program performance well above national standards and developing the Private Industry Corporation into a private-sector business enterprise that has received national recognition as the best PIC among 660 similar organizations throughout the nation," Hawthorne said.

"So I feel it's time to move on and pursue fresh administrative challenges and explore new business-oriented career opportunities."

Under Barry Hawthrone's direction, PIC was recognized as 'Best in the Nation' and received four national awards for administrative excellence, overall program performance and outstanding special programs.

Right to Know Law called confusing but necessary

By Tom Henderson staff writer

As of Feb. 25, all employers in Michigan were required by the state's Right to Know Law to provide their workers with detailed information on all hazardous chemicals in the workplace.

The law has been a mixed blessing for area fire departments, which under the law are required to gather information from businesses in their communities on the types and amounts of chemicals they use, make or store.

Firefighters have more information than ever on what to expect in fighting a fire at a specific location, but gathering the information has been confusing and time consuming. The state law leaves it up to individual departments to determine how much information to gather, in what detail and how to gather it. And the law has often been a nightmare of paperwork for many area businesses. "This is worse than the IRS' W-4 forms," said Donna Barlow, secretary treasurer of Product-Sol Inc., a manufacturer of industrial solvents and chemicals that has spent 2,000 person hours filling out the forms for the Birmingham fire department.

Barlow estimates that her company has so far filled out 500 forms, each complete with the name of a product and detailed information on its chemical properties and potential for damage.

Birmingham fire chief Gary Whitmer said the information from Product-Sol so far fills a pair of twoinch thick notebooks.

THE PAPERWORK consists of what is known as anaterial safety data sheets (MSDS). Some communi ties like Garden City have sent out relatively few requests for the sheets. Others, like Livonia, are blanketing the business community. Frank Felts, Garden City's deputy fire chief, said he has made personal appearances at about 15 businesses to explain the nature of the forms in person and plans on visiting another 20-30. "I'm not going to go to gas stations, because even though they're storing hazardous chemicals, we already know what's there. You've got to use some common

Yet, the MSDS forms filled out by his own fire station indicate how complex the reporting can be. Felts and fire chief Keith Sims believed that their first priority was to do as nplete a reporting on the sub-nces in their stations so as to be above reproach when making appeals to their community's busi-

The fire station's bulletin board lists 109 potentially hazardous items found in the station, including anti-freeze, engine cleaner, Windex, brake fluid and deodorant blocks.

LIVONIA HAS been sending out about 10 form letters a week to businesses since November, according to fire marshal Alden Sawyer. He said the letters include a cover letter explaining the project, MSDS forms and notice that they have 10 days to

"They can get additional time if they ask for it," said Alden. "Some are pretty complex, and they can't draw the information together in that short of a time. But, for the most part, the co-operation is excel-

Birmingham's fire marshal, Jeff Slv. said that the lack of heavy industry in Birmingham has limited him to contact with about 15 businesses so far. Even with a limited involvement, lack of direction from the state has made things difficult,

The law was written before there was training in how to enforce it. he said. "Now, they are coming out with guidelines and interpretations.

We're plodding along.
"Some industries have hundreds of data sheets on file. Some are reporting how many bottles of White Out they have in the building and how many felt-tip pens they have, and we've taken that with a grain of salt (in collating the information).

"I've been to I don't know how many seminars and conferences on the law and everybody is saying the same thing: I just don't know.' Everyone is saying they don't know the scope of the law.

"You talk to 15 different cities and you'll get 15 different answers about what they should do. We all want to do what's right."

RICH STUDLEY, vice president of government relations with the state Chamber of Commerce, said that disorganzition extends to the state and federal levels of govern-

Stop-loss order can limit loss in unexpected

The rule makers of the stock exchange realize that no one - not even an astute broker — can moni-tor the fluctuations in any given stock all the time. Consequently, it is possible for your stocks to nose dive without your realizing it in which case you would lose a bundle.

To help you prevent such a calamity, the market rule allows you to put in a stop-loss order. As the name implies, your losses would be stopped as soon as your stock reaches the low level specified by you.

When that happens, your stop-loss order becomes a market order, and your stock is sold at that price. So when you establish a stop-loss order, you pick the level that establishes

2 share role of monster plant

By Ethel Simmons staff writer

Audrey II, the monstrous, peopleeating plant in "Little Shop of Horrors," requires two actors — one for the voice and one to manipulate it.

James Stovall, in an offstage booth, speaks and sings when the plant talks to Seymour who has raised it. Audrey II demands food in two musical numbers, "Feed Me (Git It)" and "Suppertime."

Jonas Cole is a wiry, 6 foot 2 actor who gets inside the plant, which eventually grows to enormous height, and its viny arms overflow the stage. He moves its huge mouth when it talks and eats. He makes the plant gyrate wildly, too.

"It's very hot in there," said Cole. "There no air in there. The trick is trying to get something lifeless like that is to look like it's talking and synchronized with the voice.' Cole has an amused twinkle in his eye as he talks about this offbeat role he plays. This is the second production in which he operated Audrey II. He did the show for more than a year in Boston, working with the same director as the Birmingham

"THIS IS A pliable plant. It has an aluminum frame and foam," he said, contrasting Audrey II in the current show with the one in Boston. "The other was one-quarter-inch fiberglass. You have to be very agile and very strong. You have to lift it at parts."

He also makes the little plant move, in its first of four stages, but he won't reveal how.

Jonas has studied yoga for years and also runs, does Nautilus and workouts. He points out, "This is a workout in itself."

What makes it especially tough, "Most of the times you can't see out.

HE MARSHA WATER-BURY you meet backstage at the Birmingham Theatre doesn't look at all like Audrey, the wispy-voiced blonde with mincing steps who stars in "Little Shop of Horrors" at the theater.

She does look like the Marsha Scaggs who appeared in "They're Playing Our Song" at Detroit's Fisher Theatre with Victor Garber and later at the Birmingham Theatre with Larry Kert. Scaggs was her married name that used to be her stage name until she got divorced and then starred on Broadway in "Smile."

"I just love this town," said the tall, brunette actress, after greeting a reporter and photographer team.

She stayed in Birmingham during both runs of "They're Playing Our Song" and is back again for the new Waterbury needed just a few minutes to touch up her fluffy coiffure. She had been out shopping for a wig to wear as Audrey and had mussed up her hair.

"This one looks just like straw," she said, showing the original wig. "This is more ash," she said, holding a smoothly styled, blonde wig. "I've been cutting it."

THE PRETTY performer spoke easily, in a refreshing manner, about her family, her early stage career, her Broadway and Off-Broadway shows and tours.

"It's real nice to be back, and here starring in the Midwest," she said.

Waterbury's family lives outside Cleveland, in North Olmsted. Her dad will be driving up a family car for her to use during the run of the Birmingham Theatre production, which continues through Sunday, May 31.

DAN DEAN/staff photographer

Marsha Waterbury, formerly Marsha Scaggs, is the star of "Little Shop of Horrors" at the Birmingham Theatre. She plays Audrey, for whom the plant is named, in the musical she says is "a satire, a parody of a bad B movie. I just think it's hysteri-Hamlisch spent seven years getting "Smile" to Broadway.

"I worked two years on the thing," Waterbury said. "I had to audition for it six times."

'Smile" is by Howard Ashman, who wrote the book and lyrics and directed the show. He's also the author of "Little Shop of Horrors."
"He did all three with 'Little Shop," Waterbury said.

Victor Valentine directs the Birmingham production.

Although Waterbury was unhappy with the character she played in "Smile," she said of the ill-fated show, "I felt there was an audience for it. The audience loved it."

BASED ON the cult movie, "Smile," which starred Barbara Felton, Broadway's version cast Waterbury as a beauty contestant who didn't win the pageant at 17 but went back to compete, at age 35, for the job of pageant spokeswoman. "Smile" went through a lot of

"They kept changing, cutting and fixing it," Waterbury said. "I thought they took the bite out of it. "The drama of the play was, What will this woman do? What is suc-

from her character to accent the beauty contestants instead, the show and Waterbury's role suffered, she "I love the idea of portraying

"I just love this character. She's so sweet. She just wants the least. She's got this beautiful spirit. She's not real bright. She doesn't believe she can have what she wants."

Many people talk to their plants but few plants talk back. The star of "Little Shop of Horrors" is a maneating plant that not only talks jive but also sings and dances, in the delightfully whimsical musical now at the Birmingham Theatre.

A spoof of '50s monster movies and pop music, "Little Shop" succeeds in its own right with a bouncy score and engaging characters, human and otherwise. The Birmingham production has a top-notch cast and plenty of spirit.

Mushnik's Flower Shop, in the heart of Skid Row, is in desperate financial straits until an employee displays the strange new plant he recently discovered under mysterious circumstances. Magically, business blossoms, and Seymour, the plant's nurturer, becomes an instant celeb-

Stuart Zagnit's Seymour is a lovable nerd who quickly succumbs to the lure of fame, fortune and romance and sells his soul to the plant. By the time he awakens to the horror of it all, it is too late for redemption. His fate is sealed.

WITH HIS WOEBEGONE appearance and expressive face and voice, Zagnit is a charmer with real comedic flair. Musically he excels with the plaintive "Grow for Me" and "Suddenly Seymour."

Marsha Waterbury is wonderful as Audrey, the good-hearted dumb blond who has been slapped around ao much by life that she easily accepts the bruises from her sadistic boyfriend. Waterbury's vocal intonations are perfect, and she belts out all her songs with great aplomb. In "Somewhere That's Green," an amusing commentary on the Great American Dream of the '50s, she turns touchingly wistful.

Marvin Einhorn is pleasing as Mushnik, full of fatherly advice to Seymour and Audrey but not above some machinations of his own to ensure Seymour's loyalty. His skillful comedic delivery never flags.

Peter Edmund Haydu gets plenty of laughs as Audrey's boyfriend, the sadistic dentist who delights in his patients' pain and prides himself on how dull his drill is. Haydu also apnears as myriad other characters and does a nice job of changing voices to suit the persona. LaTonya Sue Welch, Angela Hall and Kimberly Harris form the spirited chorus of Chiffon, Crystal and Ronnette, the neighborhood teenage drop-outs who lend an ever-present "do-whop" to the action. Too bad the winsome trio are sometimes left unlighted while giving musical support to the principals.

JONAS COLE DOES the manipulation and James Stovall the voice for Audrey II, the charismatic plant affectionately known as Twoey. Twoey gets a duet ("Feed Me" with Seymour) and a solo ("Suppertime") and leads a very funny conga. Not your average houseplant, nor even your average villain.

Victor Valentine's direction seems faultless, and his choreography works fine. At the front of the theater, both the orchestra and miking are too loud, drowning out some of the very clever lyrics Howard Ash-

Andy is the editor and publisher; Norman, the drone who, using end-less noms de plume grinds out eve-ry paragraph on his own. Needless to say, these two are not exactly bring-ing in the big bucks, and their social life is definitely not wonderful, ei-

Michael Megerian is a delightful Norman Cornell. ("It's the way she smells," he says, trying to explain the attraction.)

With his boundless energy and enthusiasm, a super sense of timing and a real naturalness onstage, he goes a long way toward saving this version of "The Star Spangled Girl" from real failure.

Vicki L. Cravens is also to be highly commended. As Sophie, she some-how manages to imbue her trite character with a surprising amount of appeal. Attractive, sure of herself, lively and possessing a terrific sense of timing, she also does a first-rate job with Sophie's syrupy Southern drawl from start to finish.

Kevin Kozlowski as Andy Hobart doesn't fare quite so well. He has his moments as the slightly starchy edi-tor and publisher of Pallout (espe-cially during a scene where he seems to be suffering a terminal case of sunburn), but he displays a poculiar tendency to speak with such rapidity that (easily) one fourth of his lines are unintelligible.

AS THE PLAY proceeds, the words seem to come out faster and faster, until you begin to wonder if he doesn't have something better to do after the play and is trying to get through his performance as quickly as possible.

It's a serious distraction from a production already struggling with strikes against it.

Makeup, costumes and lighting are nicely done. Many of the smaller props on the busily decorated set seem rather mystifying in a theater as large as that at the Norman O. Stockmeyer Center for the Performing Arts, however.

The only thing better than a dinner at The Carriage Cafe, is a free dinner at The Carriage Cafe.

Start with our juicy Prime Rib, our delectable Swordfish Steak, or our choice Batter-fried Gulf Shrimp. Add a fresh tossed salad, potato or rice pilaf, and seasonal vegetables—and you're halfway finished.

The other half is the free entree that's all yours to enjoy, on us.

You see, proving that the two of you really can dine as inexpensively as one is our way of introducing you to our generous portions, our small prices, and our comfortable atmosphere.

You'd have a hard time finding a better meal—or a better deal—anywhere. So bring this coupon to The Carriage Cafe tonight.

A lot has been made of the late Arthur Rubinstein's Polish roots to explain his outstanding Chopin performances.

While national origin may motivate some artists, there are those who repeatedly demonstrate that the finer aspects of art are accessible to all people with artisite talent, regardless of national origin. It does require, of course, the best possible guidance and training.

The members of the Tokyo String Quartet are among the most highly qualified artists. They are violinists Peter Oundjian and Kikuel Ikeda, violist Kazuhide Isomura and cellist Sadao Harada. With the exception of Oundjian, the newest member, all were born in Japan and studied in the Toho Conservatory prior to their studies at Julliard. Premiere's Monday, May 18, 1987!!

"LUV SCENE," an exciting new service, will debut Monday, May 18, as part of our STREET SCENE section. If you are looking for a special someone who will enrich your life, LUV SCENE is the place to begin. Here is an example of a typical Luv message:

> Young woman, 24, with interests in sports, dancing, fireside conversations, good wine gournet cooking, and long walks in the twilight, wishes to meet gentlemen who shares similar interests. Nature to be serviced of the service of t ternan who shares similar inter-ests. Must be between 25-30 years old. Please send photo, phone number and address to Box 0000 Observer & Eccen-tric Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft Road, Livonia, MI 48150

We will keep your name and telephone number confidential; the box number will allow us to identify your replies. Studies have shown that our readers are high income, educated professionals. So if you are searching for a bit of "luv" in your life, why not try "LUV SCENE?"

PREMIERE OFFER--During the first four weeks of LUV SCENE we will offer a second free LUV message when you purchase your but hurry, deadline is Tuesday, May 12, 5 p.m.

Plymouth Canton's Heather Miller crosses the finish line to win the 100-yard dash in Tuesday's annual Mangan Meet at Centennial Educational Park. Miller won the race in 12.1 seconds and helped the Chiefs take their first dual-meet victory from Plymouth Salem.

Canton Chiefs win Mangan Meet trophy

Plymouth Canton defeated rival Plymouth Salem for the first time in the 11 years the schools' girls track teams have been competing for the annual Mangan Meet trophy Tues-

The Chiefs swept the relays and won four of six running events to defeat the Rocks 80-48 at Centennial Educational Park.

Canton's Amy VanBuhler, Heather Miller, Tricia Carney, Sherry Figurski and Lori Penland won an individual event and participated in at least one relay victory. In addition, Kristi Brugar was on three Canton relay teams, Sherri Emery, Carney and Yolanda Horton girls track

The Chiefs had the edge in the running events with Miller winning the 100-yard dash in 12.1, Carney the 440 in 1:03.6, Figurski the 880 in 2:35.9 and Penland the two-mile in 12:41.7.

VanBuhler's victory came in the 330 hurdles (52.2), and Spencer had Canton's lone victory in the field events, winning the high jump (4-11). Emery, Brugar, Miller and Carney gave the Chiefs first place in the mile relay (4:25.3), and Brugar, Emery, Miller and Horton won the 440 at 1-0-1, while Salem fell to 0-3.

The winning two-mile relay team consisted of Penland, Cindy Spessard, Sherry Figurski and Karen Boluch (10:48.3), and the foursome of Horton, Brugar, VanBuhler and Carney crossed the finish line first in the 880 relay (1:54.5).

Salem won three field events, Shelley Bohlen taking the shot put (31-101/2) and the discus (103-91/2). Kristen Hostynski won the long jump (15-1/a) and followed that up with a first place in the 110 hurdles (17.7). -The Rocks' Lee Zelek won the 220 (28.7) and Kim Mishler the mile (5:50.0).

Chiefs 10th in Stafford meet

Plymouth Canton's girls track team won the high jump relay and finished 10th in the Stafford Relays at Walled Lake Central Saturday.

The Chiefs also scored in four other events, and Plymouth Salem was 11th in the team competition after earning points in four relays.

Canton's Angie Miller, Janet Armstrong and Jennifer Tellier won the high jump at 14-7, and Miller broke her own school record 5-4, set by jumping 5-5. She jumped 5-4 earlier this season.

Sherry Figurski, Tonya Walaskay and Heather Miller set a school record by finishing fourth in the long jump relay with a combined distance of 41-111. The old mark was 41-6.

THE CHIEFS' Kristy Brugar, Sherri Emery, Heather Miller and Yolanda Horton were second in the 400-meter relay (53.3), and Susan Ferko, Vicky Minar and Kara Haarala were fourth in the shot put (88-5) and Ferko, Minar, Haarala and Keturah Reid were sixth in the discus-400 relay (59.3).

Salem's performance was highlighted by a fourth-place finish in the discus-400 relay in Keri Mc-Bride, Shelley Bohlen, Tara Murphy and Kim Armstrong posted a 58.7

Shannon Donnelly, Jenny Sample, Amy Hobgood and Brenda Boyd were fifth in the four-mile relay, Bohlen, McBride and Murphy were sixth in the discus (250-9) and Traci Thomas, Lee Zelek, Jenny Smith and Kristen Hostynski were sixth in the 1,600 relay (4:22.6).

Working overtime

Chiefs get extra work after easy victory

By Dan O'Meara staff writer

Plymouth Canton coasted to a 12-3 baseball victory over Walled Lake Western, but that was part of the problem Monday, according to coach Fred

While the Chiefs' easy victory may have looked impressive, Crissey was displeased by what he saw as his team's lack of hustle.

Afterward, as a defeated and demoralized WLW team headed for its bus, Crissey had his Canton squad — split into two groups — sprinting onto the field, making three imaginary outs and then sprinting back to the dugout.

"We slept-walked through the ballgame," Crissey said. "We've been playing real well, and it's just irritating when the kids don't come to the ballpark fully prepared to play. "After 29 years of doing this, nothing bothers baseball you more. So we're going to practice hustling on and off the field."

THE FACT was, however, the Chiefs improved their season record to 7-2 and crushed WLW's chance to tie Canton for first place in the Western Division of the Western Lakes Activities Associa-

The Chiefs improved their division record to 4while the Warriors fell to 2-3 and 6-7 overall. Canton is in the midst of a winning streak, having won its last four games. The Chiefs followed up a 21-5 victory over Livonia Churchill a week ago with a double-header sweep of Walled Lake Central (10-2 and 16-2) Friday. Crissey attributes the surge to hard work during spring break. Canton scrimmaged Birmingham Brother Rice and Redford Union, and the coaching staff had more time to give individual instruction, he said.

On Monday, WLW batters were stymied by the excellent pitching of senior Derek Darkowski, who one-hit the Warriors for the five innings he worked.

The left-handed Darkowski allowed only a twoout single by Brent Beshears in the third inning, and he struck out six and walked five to improve his record to 3-1.

"HE DOES a good job," Crissey said. "He didn't have the kind of control he normally does; he ushally doesn't walk that many."

only wanted a little respect. They wanted to be mentioned in the same sentence as Churchill, Troy and Troy

The fifth-ranked Rocks (7-1-2) gained some of that respect Monday night with a 2-2 tie on the road against top-ranked Livonia Churchill (9-1-2).

Salem sophomore Jill Estey notched her 17th goal of the season, putting the Rocks ahead after 10 minutes of play, when she took a pass from Lisa Hysko and beat Churchill goalie Liz Monroe. The half ended with Salem leading 1-0.

But the game was far from over. Churchill's Kris Schultz evened the game at 1-1 early in the second half. Kim Montgomery was credited with the assist.

And, late in the game, it looked as if Churchill would rack up win No. 10 when Rosemary Hally fed Dawn Gabriel for the go-ahead goal with just seven minutes remaining on the Salem answered, however, on a goal from Tracy Krajewski with four minutes left in the game. Teri King got the assist.

"Shari Acitelli had an outstanding game for us on defense," said Churchill coach Nick O'Shea. "Dawn Gabriel usually plays on the left and we moved her to center and she responded well. Liz Montgomery and Dana Dugan also did well attacking from the outside."

Prior to the Salem game the Chargers hosted Farmington Harrison and crushed the Hawks 7-0. Christy Clark led the offense with two goals and Mandy Mase added three assists. The Chargers improved to 10-1-2 on Wednesday with a 2-1 win at Walled Lake Western.

After the Warriors took a 1-0 lead midway through the first half, Dugan evened the game with a goal off a pass from Hally. The half ended in a 1-1 deadlock.

Chris Paciero scored the winning goal midway through the second half. Gabriel was credited with the assist.

Monroe and Dana Keller split the goaltending duties.

CANTON 8, HARRISON 0: Behind a three-goal effort from Shannon Meath, Plymouth Canton picked up win No. 6 Tuesday with a win at Farmington Harrison.

Julie Stabnick tallied a pair of goals and Michelle Lonigro, Sonya Malkhassian and Kim Blanche scored one goal each. Candi Jones finished with three assists, and Jenny Steinhebel had two.

With the win, the Chiefs improved to 6-2-2 overall.

tory in the Observerland Reyei by winning the annual boys langan Meet from Plymouth Canton 88-40 Tuesday at Centennial Edncational Park.

In winning the meet, the Rocks re-claimed the trophy they lost last year when Canton defeated Salem for the first time.

We're very pleased the Mangan trophy has returned to Salem," Rocks coach Gary Balconi said. "Salem-Canton dual meets, as in every other sport, are very competitive, aggressive events, and the kids on both sides really went after it."

The Rocks' triumph included a strong showing in the field events, victories in both flurdles races and first place in three relays.

Salem's Jay Blaylock was a double winner in the shot put (43-6) and discus (141-91/s), and teammate Mike Albertson won the high jump (6-2).

Top honors in the hurdles went to

Keith Smith in the 120-yard highs with a time of 15.73 and Chris Hill in the 330 lows at 39.92.

The teams split the six running events with Salem's Brian Neuhardt winning the 440 dash (52.0), J.P. LaRoche the 880 run (2:04.38) and Kevin Jones the two-mile (10:17.3).

Shawn Simms, Hill and Garrett Bowie paced the Rocks' relay suc-

Canton dominates WLW in baseball

The Chiefs, leading 3-0, shut the door on WLW with a six-run fourth inning, collecting four hits and all of their runs after the first two batters were retired.

Joel Riggs walked to begin the rally, stole second base and scored on the second of Kevin Learned's three RBI singles.

A passed ball and one of WLW's two errors in the inning led to the next two runs before Ron Balog slammed a two-run double to deep center field. Balog scored on Scott Brown's RBI single to cap the inning and put Canton on top 9-0.

We hit the ball when we had to hit it," said Crissey, whose team order.

clobbered WLW pitching for 13 hits. Brown was three-for-four and Learned three-for-three to pace

Mike LaSota scored the Chiefs first run with the help of three Warrior errors in the first inning. He reached base when the WLW third baseman bobbled his ground ball, and, when the Warrior fielder threw wide of first base, LaSota went to second. An error by the first baseman on Balog's grounder allowed LaSota to take third, and he then scored on a wild pitch.

Chris Kennedy relieved Dar-kowski at the start of the sixth inning and picked up where Darkowski left off, retiring the side in

Rocks romp to 20-1 win over North Farmington

Bonnie Waller hit two home runs and Kim Berrie pitched a threehitter Monday as Plymouth Salem whipped North Farmington 20-1 in softball.

Waller, who had three hits in five at-bats, smashed a three-run homer in the fourth inning and added a tworun blast in the sixth. Her hits included a double.

Teammate Denice Tackett also had five RBI, collecting three hits in four trips to the plate. She gave the Rocks a 2-0 lead with a two-run homer in the first inning and also scored four runs.

Salem's Ann Mundinger contributed to her team's 17-hit attack, going three-for-four and scoring four runs, and Sandy Oberliesen was three-for- of the Western Lakes Activities As-marked the 1967 U.S. Natio

Among those who returned after long layoffs were Cuban defector Roberto "Tony" Urrutia, who won the 75 kilogram class (165% pounds);
Derrick Crass, a member of the 1984
U.S. Olympic team, who captured the 82.5 kg division; and Jeff Michels of Chicago, holder of four U.S. records, who took second in the 110 kg division.

The 29-year-old Urrutia, now a U.S. citizen living in Hollywood, Fla., was a three-time world champion who defected to Miami seven years ago. It was the first time he had competed in a major meet since 1980. Despite a lack of preparation, Urrutia was the class of the 75 kg competitors.

He opened with a lift of 130 kg (286% pounds), while his closest competitor, Gary Savage of Kansas City, Mo., went out at 127.5.

Another threat for the title, Michael Jacques of Warner Robins, Ga., could not make his opening lift of 130 in the snatch, putting him out of the competition.

URRUTIA EVENTUALLY lifted 135 in the snatch and 165 in the clean & jerk for a total of 300 kg, well below the standards he set in the 1970s, but it was good enough to beat Savage by 10 kg.

"I've been training alone and I need somebody to push me," said Urrutia, who works in a warehouse for a chain of Florida supermarkets. "I also weigh too little (73 kg) right now. I need to weigh 75.

"I make sure to get my first attempt. I think he (Jacques) started a little high and maybe he changed a bit because of me, but we've never competed against each other be-Urrutia said he wanted to win the competition first before setting any U.S. records. He believes he can reach his goals if he incorporates the proper training regimen.

"I think we need more cooperation ' (among the lifters) and we need more help from the government," Urrutia said. "I have to go to work and by the time I get back I'm too tired to train. In the other countries all they do is lifting, lifting. Tell President Reagan we need help from our own people. We need money."

fish reproduced naturally and the lake now supports a healthy fishery of sport fish.

The only fish that doesn't foster a healthy reproduction rate in Bellevuille Lake are the tiger muskie, and the DNR stocks about 4,000 of them into the lake every other year.

A THREE-ACRE parcel of land on the east side of the lake off Belleville Road was purchased by the DNR. Plans are currently in the works to develop that land into a small park with shore fishing access. The DNR also purchased several acres of lakefront property near the Rawsonville Road bridge on the west end of the lake. Hopes are to develop that property into another park with shore fishing and possibly a small boat launch.

"The dam has deteriorated badly, that's for sure." said Spitler. "But that's just the way things go. I guess the heavy rainfall we had last year took its toll."

According to Partridge, Van Buen Township has a contractual agreement to produce hydro-power at the dam for Adirondack Power in New York. The only holdup is a license from the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission. Hopefully, Adirondack Power will provide some of the financial support needed for the dam

'We are looking at several options," said Partridge. "We (Van Buren Township) take pride in Belleville Lake. It's a very, very valuable part of the township and the county, and we want to do everything possible for the good of the lake."

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON INCREASING

PROPERTY TAXES

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that on May 13, 1987, at 7:45 o'clock p.m. DST at the Board Room the Board of Trustees of Schoolcraft College will hold a public hearing on the levying in 1987 of an estimated additional proposed millage rate of 0.227 mills for operating purposes pursuant to Act 5, Public Acts of Michigan, 1982.

The Board of Trustees has the complete authority to establish that 2.27 mills be levied in 1987 from within its present authorized millage rate.

The maximum additional proposed millage rate would increase revenues for operating purposes from ad valorem property tax levies in 1987 otherwise permitted by Act 5, Public Acts of Michigan, 1982, by an estimated ten percent (10%).

The figure for increase in revenue for operating purposes is based on the latest estimate of state equalized valuation of property located within the College District. In the event that state equalized valuation as finalized is for any reason higher than the estimate used for this hearing, the Board of Trustees must hold another public hearing before levying millage on any higher valuation.

The purpose of the hearing is to receive testimony and discuss the levy of an additional millage rate. Not less than seven (7) days following the public hearing, the Board of Trustees may approve all or any portion the proposed additional millage rate.

This notice is given by the Board of Trustees.

watching the blossoming of spring. The dogwood made a blizzard of white and pink blossoms through the tall trunks of the long leaf pines. The azaleas rioted in deep pink around the gracious old houses of Pinehurst and around the rocking chair porches of Pinehurst Hotel and Country Club.

The famous Pinehurst golf courses vere businesslike and brilliant green, but even they were not immune to the color of spring. The pink and white dogwood framed the edges of Number Two and wisteria climbed the trees on either side in a glory of purple blooms.

white clapboard style of his native New England, planting 250,000 trees and shrubs and building a trolley to carry his guests to and from the train station at Southern Pines, six miles away.

They played croquet in long skirts on the lawn of the Holly Inn, which still stands in the center of town. When the Carolina Hotel, now the Pinehurst, was built in 1901 it rivaled grand hotels like those at Hot Springs, White Sulpher Springs and Palm Beach. Easteners swarmed to the sandhills to relax, play tennis and breathe the clear healthy air.

ONE DAY a group of young roustabouts began banging a small white ball around a cow pasture, and the cattle manager complained that they were hitting his cows. Tufts built a nine-hole golf course and the rest is history.

Most of the people who came to Pinehurst today, as visitors or residents, come to play golf, especially in the spring, when it's not quite warm enough to play in the north, and in the fall, when the first snow flakes are blowing at home.

There are 36 golf courses in the Pinehurst area now, most of them excellent courses. The most famous are the seven courses at the Pinehurst Hotel and Country Club, where golfers play 250,000 rounds a year. The courses are known simply by numbers given in the order in which the courses were built.

The first nine holes of Number

One were created in 1897 and the 18 holes of Number Seven are just opening up around a brand new club-house, but the most famous stretch of green is Number Two, one of about 600 North American golf courses built or redesigned by a Scotsman called Donald Ross (including Michigan's Oakland Hills). Most golfers end up with a beer at the "19th hole," but the bar at Pi-nehurst Country Club is called the "91st hole" because five of their 18hole courses start and end there.

Pinehurst is different from any village most of us have ever seen. The Tufts family owned the hotel, golf courses and the entire village of Pinehurst for three generations, selling off parcels of land for private homes but keeping title to all the charming white wood and brick public and commercial buildings that still cluster around the village cen-

It was a fiefdom, a benevolent dictatorship, with the Tufts running the town and providing the services until the whole empire was sold to Diamondhead Corporation in 1971. The Tufts must have done something right because there is no record of any cry for democracy until Diamondhead began building condomin-iums and otherwise changing the look of the town for profit. It took several court battles but the village became a municipality in 1980.

DIAMONDHEAD PUT the whole village up for collateral on a loan to the local banks, and never paid off the loan, so the banks suddenly found themselves owning a whole village, including a major golf resort, in Club Corporation of America, which owns the Renaissance Club in Detroit and Shanty Creek/Schuss Mountain resorts in Mancelona, bought the Pinehurst Hotel and. Country Club, with its golf courses, riding stables, tennis courts and the gun club where Annie Oakley was the first instructor.

What is left of undeveloped land within the 10,000 acres of the old Tufts empire can be purchased from Pinehurst Inc., the corporate vehicle of the banking consortium, head-quartered in a collonaded white building in the Village, across from the Holly Inn.

Most tourists come to Pinehurst to play golf. Most residents are retirees, northerners who left cold winters and industrial cities for gentler climes. The average age is probably 60, although younger golfers can also be seen, after a hard day on the fairways, eating dinner and sing-ing around Bob Israel's piano at the Pine Crest Inn. Pine Crest was built by Mrs. E.C. Bliss in 1913 and bought by Donald Ross and golf pro Jimmy McNabb in the 1930s. It's an institution in Pinehurst, run for the last quarter century by the Barrett family. Jack Nicklaus, who is building a golf resort in Pinehurst, stays at the Pine Crest when he comes to town. Peter Green lived there while he was building his house in Pinehurst.

WHEN MRS. Bliss sold Pine Crest to Ross she moved up the street to build the Manor Inn, which is coming back to life as a bed-and-breakfast hotel in June. The Magnolia, a smaller B&B, rounds out the list of accommodations inside the village. Although you must, strictly speaking, be a guest at Pinehurst Hotel, or a member of their country club, to play the seven courses, all of the hotels within the village have a limited number of starting times allotted to their guests.

An antique shop, department store and rectaurant form the center of the village of Pinehurst, N.C.

Pinehurst is a very photogenic village. During the day, when most visi-tors are on the golf course, you find activity in the village shops, the deli, the ice cream parlor and the Holly Inn, all in the village center, a mile away the Pinehurst Hotel, and down

Linden Road at Pinehurst Place. The Holly Inn is a great place for Sunday brunch. The beef and brie sandwich at the Market Place is worth the drive out Midland Road. You drive to Southern Pines or Aberdeen for any real shopping or night-life. In Pinehurst, itself, most of the nighttime activity is in the Coves Restaurant or the hotels.

The village hotels rent rooms on the Modified American Plan, which means breakfast and dinner included in the room rate. In high season, mid-March to mid-June and mid-September to mid-November, that rate, based on two people in a room, is about $35 per person for the Pinehurst, $65 for the Holly Inn.

There are several good golf re-sorts outside the village, especially in, or on the way to, Southern Pines. The Tufts family was involved in some way in many of them, including Mid Pines and Pine Needles, both of which have highly reputed golf courses. Pine Needles is a highly regarded family operation with cha-lets and villas overlooking the golf

You can also rent attached villas at Knollwood, the nine-hole course that attracts less serious golfers.

Next week: Seven Lakes and other developments outside of Pinehurst.

Dear Mrs. L:

For almost 20 years, research studies have demonstrated that regular physical exercise can aid body maintenance, repair and performance. It has taken years to dispel the myth that the need for exercise decreases as one grows older.

TARTING AND developing a collection in the beginning of a new art form has been a rewarding experience," according to area resident Jean Sosin.

The Hilbert and Jean Sosin collection provides a unique opportunity to observe the growth that has taken place within the studio art glass genre from its early stages to its current manifestations. The collectin will form the core of "25 Years of Studio Glass" on display through June 15 at the University of Michigan-Dearborn library.

The Sosins became interested in studio art glass during what may be described as epiphanic moments. Jean Sosin was at what she describes as a "low point in her life." Suffering from myasthenia gravis, a visit to Habatat art galleries in Southfield lit the studio art glass fire within her.

"WHEN WE WALKED in, I was overwhelmed by the beauty of the glass around me. That evening filled me with excitement."

Mark Peiser's "A Rainy Day in Waikiki" is among the 76 pieces of studio art glass on Hilbert Sosin was drawn in after watching a glass-blowing demonstration by Herb Babcock at the Center for Creative Studios. He describes that experience as "like watching a ballet dancer." Entranced by the work of skilled artisans, Sosin joined his wife in her enthusiastic advocacy of the developing art form.

The Sosins began collecting art glass in 1971 when the movement was still in its relatively early

"During the early years of the studio glass movement while artists were developing their talents and reputations, the price of glass was not exorbitant," Jean Sosin re-

"Thus, my huband and I were able to acquire a representation of the majority of artists involved in the movement. Since the number of artists were few, we were able to collect important artists in depth, and we continue to do this."

In the immature stages of the studio glass movement, artists strove to solve technical problems that inhibited the reach of their creative visions. Many of the earliest pieces are simple, functional forms such as vases and paper weights.

As their technical mastery grew, artists' work became increasingly more daring. Sculptural forms supplanted functional forms. The earliest pieces make use of a single technique such as hot blowing while the most recent works employ the simultaneous use of multiple techniques such as etching, sandblasting, assembly, casting and slumping.

THE SHOW IS ORGANIZED in such a manner as to highlight this impressive development.

Computer scare prompts 'dream' gallery

By Mona Grigg special writer

When Elmer Kapp, founder of the Livonia-based Kapp Companies, was blinded at age 18 by ammonia while working in a blueprint company, he could have retreated into the shadowy world of the blind and stayed there. Instead, he simply switched Encouraged by a friend, he began selling drafting supplies to engineers and architects, traveling by bus with a guide dog at his side. He still had the two qualities any good salesman needed to get ahead - he could talk and he could listen.

He went around to the small job shops connected with the auto industry, and if he had one frustration. it was that he and his dog were not able to traverse the difficult corridors of the Big Four auto factories.

"THAT'S WHERE I came in," said Kapp's oldest son Dennis, 39. "Actually, I started working for Dad when I was seven, reading the mail and doing office chores — and I would have started sooner if Dad had let Seated in his modern, art-lined office above the showroom of Northwest Blueprint, the headquarters of the Kapp Companies on Farmington Road in Livonia, Dennis Kapp, president of the "15 or so" companies his family now own, laughs as he recounts his actual entry into the business: "When I was 11 years old, Dad had to give up his last guide dog and he always told people, 'I don't need another dog. I've got Dennis.'"

By the time the younger Kapp was 14 he had acquired a driver's license and his first briefcase, and was knocking on the Big Four engineering department doors.

Kapp credits Jerry Larsen ("A nice fellow at General Motors") with opening the door for him at GM's Tech Center. "Jerry took this young kid and helped him - I don't know what he saw there, but he introduced me around to many others, and it was like they all wanted to help this young kid." Kapp said he would always ask each of them if they knew of any others who might want his service. "So they'd call up their friends and say, 'I'm sending over this kid, Dennis the Menace, to see you."

Kapp said his father taught him to "build a territory, hire a salesman; build a territory, hire a salesman and when you have enough salesmen, you hire a sales manager.'

HE DID EXACTLY that, he said, "And each time I'd hire someone to do my job, I'd have to find a new job for me. That's how we got into artist materials."

The jump from drafting to artist materials seem a natural step to Kapp. In the mid-'70s, Northwest Blueprint was already a leader in sales, import and export of drafting

"But computers were getting big," Kapp noted, "and though we didn't know how, we knew it would radically change the drafting business. So we began looking at related things to insulate ourselves from computers."

Art materials seemed to be the answer, Kapp said. "We thought fine art wouldn't likely be changed much by computers, so we added the related materials and Northwest Blueprint became an art store as well."

'Bellsong' has auspicious Young Adult class debut

od? There may be as many ways as there are books. Ideas can come ly, from now Bettie Camou's first sovel, "A Bellioug for Sarah Raines" (Charles Scribner's Sons, hardbound, $12.95), started out as a collection of personal experiences.

"I wanted to write down what I remembered about my girthood," the West Bloomfield writer said, "but as I wrote, I wondered if I was seeing it the way it really was or the way my grown up mind wanted to

She wrote to a friend she had grown up with in Detroit. "I asked her, What are your memories? What dld we do? and she wrote back page after page of things I had either nearly or completely forgotten. My mind was just churning with all those thoughts and fiction seemed the only to go with it."

"BELLSONG" MOVES from Detroit to the coal mining region of southeastern Kestucky, an area Cannon knows well. "We spent summers there with my mother's family and I was always envious of my cousins. I always wanted to be 'from there.' Their lifestyles were so far removed from anything I had known up north Sarah, the main character, comes out of a book Cannon says she wrote when she was in her early teens. "A sort of 'Gone With the Wind ' revisited, as I recall."

"Bellsong" takes place during the Great Depression, and the precipitating event - the father's suicide - comes from an experience in Can-

"I knew the story had to focus on that suicide and how it affects a family, and when I first wrote it, it was the mother's story. But several comments came back saying essentially the same thing - "Strong characters, rich locales, but this book should be written as a Young Adult.' I put it away for an entire year before I finally had the energy 40 go back and rewrite it from Sarah's point of view." The language is rich in Cannon's book, the characters memorable from Sarah's father, sick with shame over a final layoff and haunted by the war deaths of his two brothers, to her mother, grieving, angry, and forced to return to the hills, to the very people who had forewarned her marriage would end in disaster.

From Uncle Marsh, scarred both inside and out and afraid to love for long to Keziah, the strong, feisty black woman who cares for them all, to "crazy" Aunt Wanda Raines, who can stop bleeding with spider webs and incantations "from God" and can "draw fire" from body burns.

THEN, OF COURSE, there's Sarah, displaced and now among queer people with odd ways, who loved her father too much to let the terrible, shameful way he died become the only memory of his life.

Here's Sarah, on her first morning in the unfamiliar house in Kentucky, a house with a swinging kitchen door similar to the one at home in Detroit.

"She stood there in the dark remembering how Daddy would throw open the swinging door and blunder into Mama's steamy kitchen, taking up all the room. He'd kiss Mama and Sarah, too. He'd gather them up in his blue-shirted arms, hunch over them, and Sarah knew then that the sour breath and the sweet songs and the kissing were somehow connected. He never kissed them otherwise and certainly did not talk so much.

Sarah loved him oven though he had the cril drink inside him. She loved him but she was afraid. She never knew what to believe, love or four.

'Now, Sarah,' he'd say, 'you don't know it, but my grandpap came from Virginny back in the 1700s. Owned a whole valley in them days. A land-ownin' educated man be was too. Bet ye didn't know that, now did " Nomir.' But she did.

"And then, 'Of course, now there's your Mama. Now she has a real education. She can sing, opera, even. He'd giggle. 'Miss Mourie's PEEmale Academy.'

"His voice would keen off into laughter about fee-males at school until Mama would march herself into the bathroom and lock the door against him and then he'd lean - no. it was more that he would sag into the door, jiggle the knob and beg Mama through the closed door to come on out. Finally, Mama would edge herself out of the bathroom, feeling the knot of hair on her neck and smelling of "Evening in Paris" and Sarah would be sent off to the store for a pint of Miller's ice

THE CONCLUSION OF the novel, powerful and inevitable, was the hardest to write, Cannon said. "I wrote it and rewrote it and rewrote it and it just wouldn't come," she said. "Finally I gave up and went to ing down on me and the good earth working into my fingern plete — like a gift." The Kirkus Review, a trade magazine whose pre-publication reviews are important to libraries and booksellers making purchasing decisions, gave "Bellsong" a star — one of five out of the 40 YA novels reviewed in the April 1 issue - and a more-thanfavorable review. They called the book an "auspicious debut for a fit Young Adult novelist." Cannon is the author of "All Abo

F. Weber artist paints were major sellers at Northwest. "Our artists lived them and we recommended them all the time," Kapp said. When the Philadelphia company went bankrupt, Kapp, with some trepidation, hought them out. "The quality of the haints was excellent - we knew that," said Kapp, "so it had to be the marketing that was at fault (for the firm's failure)."

KAPP CHANGED THE name to Martin/F. Weber to include the name of their import and distribution subsidiary, Martin Instrument Co., and used his father's "build a territory, add a salesman" tech-

"So far, it's been successful," Kapp said, adding that the company also publishes "how-to" books, in-chaling those by tole and decorative artist Priscilla Hauser, and produces cowboy painter Gary Jenkins and landscape artist Rob Ross.

From hobby art, the natural next step seemed to be a fine art gallery. Less than a year ago, Kapp opened Norgrafic Gallery in the small but glitzy LaMirage Center on Northwestern Highway in South-

Norgrafic is the artist's dream center - part display gallery, part art and graphic design supply store, part sophisticated, state-of-the-art reproduction center.

The new Ilford Cibachrome camera is capable of producing brilliant color photographs in almost any size of anything from glat art to written copy to three-dimensional objects like jewelry, small antiques, or even mother-watering sizzling hamburgers - while you wait.

And Poulet has been busy. Last month Norgrafic hosted workshops and receptions to announce the 1987 Life Painting Competition featuring Erma Starks, for 25 years the doyenne of Detroit nude life modeling.

And recently Norgrafic and Mecanorma, a leading lettering company, co-sponsored what will likely be an annual letterhead contest under Poulet's direction. Poulet also maintains a kiosk of artist information at the gallery and publishes an artist's calendar and newsletter.

"It's exciting to see what's happening around here," Poulet said recently as she fluttered around her "office." a cluttered corner in full view of the showroom.

"Dennis has become a patron of fine arts, and there is almost no limit to what we might accomplish here, We can even combine standard art and the computer-generated graphics department and open up a whole world of fine art applications."

With their new "Creative World" stores, the Kapp Companies have recently begun to franchise what Kapp calls "46 years of expertise."

Five "Creative World" franchises selling art, drafting and craft supplies have recently opened, including one in Briarwood Mall in Ann Arbor, the prototype, Rainy Days/Creative World in Grosse Pointe.

And while Dennis Kapp is the president, he is quick to say he doesn't run the operation alone. Elmer Kapp is still active - "We don't do anything without asking Dad for advice first," said Dennis Kapp and his brother Douglas, who is the administrative vice president. His sister, Marianne Kapp Lewis is treasurer-secretary, and another brother. Joe, lives in California and runs a related business.

A remarkable absence of gigantic works, doodling, spray paint, metal-lic debris and other media used so often in the 1980s distinguishes the 5th Livonia Purchase Award Invitational Art Show. Oils, watercolors, acrylics, collage, pencil and plain old India Ink used by people who know how to use traditional media add up to a refreshing show.

Competence, often of a very high degree, is the hallmark of the 43 artists whose works hang in the lobby of the Livonia City Hall through May 15. I could live happily with most of the 75 works on view through the aegis of the Livonia Cultural League and the Livonia Arts Commission.

My only quibble with judges Elaine Godfrey and John Loree of Eastern Michigan University is their choice of Yorika Cronin's "Still Life" for first prize. Cronin's semi-abstraction of bottles and a table whose perspective and placement make little sense seems to have been chosen because it's the only painting in the 75 that borders on the avantreview

THE PAINTING BEARS traces of THE PAINTING BEARS traces of the influence of Jules Olitsky and the many artists who melded pinks and greens into shapes the viewer must make out. Cronin's painting is hazy, the colors are muddy and the objects are too clearly defined for the paint-ing to have the desired dreamlike ef-fect.

Donna Volgelheim's treatment of flowers in the second prize winner, "Outside My Window," is meticulous and indicative of the quality of the show. Jodie E. Stein, who plays reds and oranges against russet and blues, got third prize for "Threat" and an honorable mention for "Saturday Afternoon." Stein has a way of using bits of harsh color to create tension. Her off-center head of a child sitting on a rumpled bed, her sense of where to leave the canvas bare and her sudden slashes of dark color work well.

Joan E. Bonnette's sense of free-

I would have given an honorable mention to Jane L. Coates for "Wick-er Garden," a lush, ordered, intricate oil that captures the profusion of dark and light blooms among a low table and chair. Even the wallpaper plays into the leaves that seem to be growing everywhere.

And a nod for originality goes to Johanna Haas. Haas uses brilliant colors with the vibrancy of the Gercolors with the vibrancy of the German Expressionists and combined her blazing palette with the playful shapes of Disney's best films. "Hill-top Village" gives one the sense of watching the seven dwarfs tromp home at eventide. The house in Hass' "Roof Tops" bump benignly into each other. each other.

John Scheurer's "Morning Room" is a lovely, peaceful study of an open watercolor scrapbook, a blue cup, a puzzle cube, a white chair and a plant. Linda B. Ord's painting of a child, "After the Bath," is profoundly sweet. Carol Peligian's "Deserted Taxi Cab Stand" captures the louliness of blowing leaves and paper outside locked, darkened places. Peligian's poetic brand of New Realism has been done often, but her use of unexpected peach stucce walls and an ordinary sky give the painting a prignant quality.

GWEN TOMEOU'S watercolor, "Blowing Fields," succeeds because Tomkow's decorative gifts are evident in the thin wash of color in the foreground that moves into rich fields and a deep blue lake. Tomkow knows how to move the viewer into Gayle Leece does intricate, interesting patterns in blue and orange in "Little Grey Wolf" and "Big Grey Wolf," a series she seems to be making the most of. Linda Zalla works with textures on thin surfaces and manages to suggest forms and colors in "Organic Growth" and "Sea

All the artists deserve mention for the obvious concern for craft and the quality of work exhibited.
