Swartzwelter, Thomas re-elected

By Doug Funke staff writer

School Superintendent John M. Hoben said he probably will recommend tapping into surplus funds and delaying maintenance work after Plymouth-Canton voters turned thumbs down Monday on a request to override the Headlee Amendment.

The measure, which lost by a 3 to 2 margin, will cost the district $1.2 million in revenue, Hoben said.

Both school board incumbents whose terms were expiring, Dean Swartzwelter and Roland Thomas, won re-election by wide margins over a field of seven chal-

The Headlee override - which requires direct voter approval to levy the full tax rate if property values increase faster than inflation — also was defeated last winter.

"IT'S EXACTLY the same margin of February," Hoben said. "You have to ask why. Northville passed it. They used the same material as we did. I don't know. I guess we've been spoken to and we'll have to adjust to it."

Hoben said he doubted that he would recommend teacher layoffs or cuts in extracurricular activities.

"We're going to go to areas of delayed maintenance," he said. "What it means is some things aren't going to get done that need to be done. Some repairs will be put on the back burner.

"I want to maintain integrity of instruction as long as possible," Hoben said. "I think there will be very limited (additional) hiring - probably less than 10.'

The school board must make all final decisions on expenditures, he emphasized.

Hoben said he doubts that he'd recommend another special election soon to ask for a tax increase in view of the Headlee override failure.

"PEOPLE HAVE spoken twice," Hoben said. "Now it's time to suck it up and make cuts where available.'

Voters approved the Headlee override in only two of 14 precincts - 193-155 at Hulsing Elementary School and 77-69 at Field Elementary School. The final tally was 3,017-2,071 against the Swartzwelter and Thomas won four-year terms on the board with 2,710 and 2,535 votes, respectively. The incumbents finished one-two in every precinct.

Robert E. Anderson, endorsed by a group concerned about teaching materials in the district, finished a distant third with 1,184

A total of 5,168 voters - 11 percent of those registered in the district - participated in the election.

Employees may choose: cash or health insurance

By Doug Funke staff writer

Municipal employees in Plymouth Township can give themselves a pay raise in August.

But there's one big catch. They would have to give up their health insurance coverage.

The township board has endorsed a plan that would pay employees a "bonus" of $50 biweekly for doing just that.

"Supervisor (Maurice) Breen and I have been reviewing how to contain health insurance costs and this is one idea we came up with," said Catherine Broadbent, Breen's administrative assistant.

"More couples are two-career couples than in the past, so it does affect more people now."

Participants would have to demonstrate that they have other health insurance coverage before they could sign off, Broadbent said.

Taxpayers now foot the health insurance bill for township employees. Premiums can approach $250 per month per employee.

EVEN IF only two employees accept the offer, the township would save about $3,000 yearly in benefit costs, Broadbent said.

Forty-two township employees now have either family or spousal health insurance coverage, Broadbent said.

What happens if a township employee were to opt for cash instead of health insurance and the spouse somehow were to lose company-paid benefits?

Federal law requires an employer to make health insurance coverage available to employees who leave at group rates on an individual pay basis - for a minimum of 18 month

The couple could pay for coverage on its own until the township's annual enrollment period comes around at which time the municipal employee could elect township-paid health coverage instead of cash.

THE CHOICE could be a gamble, Broadbent conceded.

similar option since 1982, but no one on the payroll has taken the city up on it, said Carol Stone, personnel director.

The city offers employees half of the premium cost for choosing cash instead of medical insurance.

At current rates, that "bonus" could add up to $1,800 annually.

Stone said she expects that the cash alternative will be promoted Canton's experience since last aggressively to employees in the weeks ahead.

Memories

Resident, 91, writing book for family

By M.B. Dillon staff writer

"The empty pages are there for one reason only - laziness. But that is a big part of upper middle age, 91."

So reads the inscription in the "Grandparent's Book" William Buswinka is writing for his family.

Lazy is the last word to describe Buswinka — a Plymouth Township resident who campaigns for Plymouth-Canton school board candidates, sings in Our Lady of Good Counsel's choir, and drives to his voice lessons and to visit his 68year-old girlfriend.

Buswinka says "every person over 80 has a book in them that would be doggone interesting. It's one of the nice things about old age."

Buswinka, a Worcester, Mass. native, figures if his handwritten memoirs had more sex in them. he'd be a published author.

In 1921, he wrote 70,000 words about "the hobo trip" he took with two buddies to St. Louis, New Orleans, Shreveport, San Francisco, Los Angeles and Mexico.

Pencilled into a notebook that long ago lost its binding is an account of an early success at hopping freight trains: "We all jumped, and made it together, and just about in time. The caboose was only three or four cars back. We sat on a pile of steel forms in a gondola and enjoyed it. The scenery was great, so we thought although it was flat as could be."

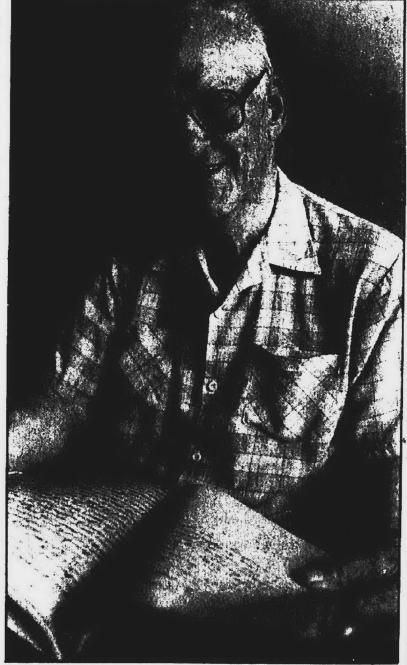

"Every day was an adventure," said Buswinka of the three months he spent travelling 8,100 miles on $70. "The worst was looking into the wrong end of a revolver held by a railroad detective in Ash Forks,

"The fellow was so nervous that the gun was going around in cir-

This time, Buswinka had made good on his intention to travel.

Once before, "I walked 30 miles in eight hours to Boston from Worcester. I was going to run away with a buddy and get a job on a cattle boat and go to England. Well my buddy didn't show up. He got homesick, and I got homesick too, and we didn't go."

Shortly afterwards, Buswinka went to enlist in the Army as World War I was under way.

"I was turned down because I had flat feet. It was just two weeks after the walk, and I always wondered if that was why," he said. The Army eventually accepted Buswinka, who directly upon en-

Assessors assess themselves

By Diane Gale staff writer

Officials have different opinions on whether assessors should assess major parcels of property they own.

"It's a very sensitive situation there's no question about it," said Bob Vandermark, chairman of the state tax commission. But most seem to agree there are enough safeguards in the system to prevent wrongdoing. The law says it's all right and people who study assessing policies don't object. However, the president of the Michigan Assessor's Association, a professional organization, says the policy looks bad.

Glenn Shaw Jr., who contracts as assessor for Canton and Plymouth townships, is a principal owner in a 97-acre industrial-commercial park in Canton. Wayne County Appraisals, which is owned by Shaw, assessed the property.

He said it would be unfair to require assessors to hire outside appraisers when others don't have to.

GARY WOLFRAM, senior economist for the Michigan Senate Republican policy staff, said the situation was "perfectly ethical." It would be unethical if the assessor placed the value of the land lower than its worth, he said.

The records are public and appeals may be made to the local board of review, he said.

"It seems like there are a lot of people who would have an incentive for checking on this," Wolfram said.

Properties that are underassessed would cause the rate to be higher for other taxpayers. "There's no statute against an assessor assessing his own property for tax purposes," Wolfram said. "It would be interesting to consider whether the Legislature might wish to make changes. "I wouldn't say it's illegal or unethical to own and assess it and there are safeguards in that other industrial property owners can go to the board of review and say the property is not assessed right," Wolfram said.

"The county board of equalization is checking on the total value of industrial property, and it would probably come to their attention if there was a large difference in what was assessed and the value of the proper-

Cruising tickets go down again

Cruisers and pedestrians in downtown Plymouth this weekend can expect to see greater police emphasis on traffic flow and foot patrol.

That's the word from Police Chief Richard Myers.

Seven temporary police hires will have completed orientation this week and will be out in force Friday and Saturday nights, Myers said. An eighth hire should be available in about a week.

He declined to specify what additional traffic measures will be tak-

Motorists last weekend again weren't allowed to turn right off Ann Arbor Road onto Main and Harvey ways of many nesses along Main were barricaded after closing.

Police issued only 53 tickets last weekend — the fewest since cruising started again this spring.

Myers attributed that to fewer people in town and fewer officers on duty.

"I believe that the parking lot program has been effective to the extent people understand the program, and they're not trespassing as much," he said.

"With graduation weekend, there may have been more parties at home keeping people from coming

OTHER CHECKS are the state assessor's board and the state tax commission.

However, the Michigan Assessor's Association president, Larry Howe, disagrees.

"We have a code of ethics that says we'll try to uphold the law, and we'll try to treat ourselves in a professional manner and try to stay away from situations that would lend themselves to improprieties.

But we have no real enforcement of the code of ethics."

Howe said he would expect the appraiser to hire an outside appraiser to set the value.

Those opposing the situation should approach the local board of trustees or council, who ultimately hire the assessor, Howe said.

Shaw said it would be unfair to expect an assessor to hire an outside 'If you're suggesting a guy who's an assessor can't own property, what a sad state of affairs that is," Shaw Shaw said he wouldn't actually set the value of the property, because that would be his employees' job. "The board of review can review that, and I will make them aware that I own it." Shaw said.

Vandermark said "almost all" assessors own a home they assess.

"The process is totally open," Vandermark said. "Any person in a community can come in and look at the assessor's assessment and bring it up before the board of review.

"We haven't found it to be a serious problem," Vandermark said. "I'm not saying it hasn't been a prob-

Township board loses on gamble with census

The Plymouth Township Board took a $15,000 crapshoot and lost.

That's how much it budgeted for a special census this spring to determine whether the local population had grown by at least 15 percent from the 23,028 recorded during the 1980 federal census.

A gain of 3,454 residents would have qualified the township for supplemental state revenue sharing payments through 1990.

The count came up well short. In fact, it shrank to 22,544.

"I'm surprised with the diminution," said Supervisor Maurice Breen. He maintained it was worth the gamble.

is demographics on the spread of population," Breen said. "I believe we gained in adult population and lost youngsters."

Breen's comment about the school population is interesting from at least one perspective.

AFL-CIO - the labor federation in 1986 gave Riegle 80 percent favorable rating, the same as Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich. But suburban U.S. representatives such as Dennis Hertel, William Ford and Sander Levin all scored 100. National Education Association the teachers group gave Riegle 100 compared to 83 for Carl Levin, 83 for Hertel, 100 for Ford and 75 for Sander Levin.

Americans for Democratic Action - the group that virtually defines liberal Democrats scored Riegle 95 vs. 100 for Carl Levin, 80 for Hertel and Ford and 85 for Sander Levin. U.S. Chamber of Commerce - 24 for Riegle, 31 for Carl Levin, 27 for Hertel, 20 for Ford, 32 for Sander IEGLE STARTED his career as a Republican in Gov. George Romney's landslide year of 1966.

Riegle was elected to Congress in a Flint district, toppling Rep. John C. Mackie, better known as a former highway commissioner. Among the 'class of '66" Republican freshmen were Marvin Esch, whom Riegle later would defeat for the Senate in 1976, and Philip Ruppe, whom Riegle would beat in 1982.

In his Republican years, Riegle's voting record was virtually indistinguishable from Esch's and only a bit to the right of Ruppe's.

But Riegle's party behavior was different. In 1972, Richard Nixon's presidential re-election year, Riegle jumped the traces to campaign for Pete McCloskey, an anti-war California congressman. It was an uphill, hopeless, purely symbolic race, but it gave an indication of things to corhe.

MEANWHILE, at home Riegle was one of two Michigan Republicans getting any help from organized labor. And blacks were coming to him with problems.

In his book "O Congress," Riegle wrote of a November 1971 conversation with Bill McLaughlin, then state GOP chairman. McLaughlin was asked how much of the party's $1.575 million budget would be allocated to the 12 Republican congress-

'None,' McLaughlin replied; we'd be better off trying to raise our own funds. This really irritated me . . . I registered a strong objection and argued that some money ought to go into the congressional races."

Left to run an independent race, Riegle felt he owed little allegiance to the Nixon-led party. Less than a year later, in February of 1973, Riegle became a Democrat.

"THE ALMANAC of American Politics," co-authored by Michael Barone, a former Michiganian who knows the state personally as well as from research, is a reference book for political pros and writers. It paints a picture of what Abraham (See story above) is up against: In the 1976 U.S. Senate election,

The Detroit News attempted to beat Riegle by printing, shortly before election day, intimate conversations between Democratic nominee Riegle and a young woman. To political insiders, it was old stuff.

And it backfired. The invasion of Riegle's privacy got him public sympathy, Barone wrote. Riegle won his first U.S. Senate term.

Barone in 1982 wrote that Riegle "can be counted on to oppose moves to weaken labor legislation . . . " "He was the Senate's leading advocate of reducing clean air standards, a move suported both by the auto companies and the UAW.

"As chairman of the consumer affairs subcommittee of Banking, he managed two significant pieces of legislation, one on debt collection and the other safeguarding consumers' rights in electronic banking and funds transfers.

"And he was the leader of the successful fight in the Senate to get the federal government to issue loan guarantees for Chrysler." (The House champion: Rep. Jim Blanchard, now governor.)

"Riegle is indeed an appropriate person to lead these fights in which Michigan's leading business and union figures are on the same side. Riegle's initial career was in business, with IBM, and he can still talk business school language. But he also has one of the most solid pro-labor records in the Senate."

Already the 49-year-old Flint native has accumulated more than $1 million in campaign funds, some of it from business.

THAT MAY BE the key - Riegle leaps on an issue where both business and labor agree.

And the one issue most labor leaders and many industrialists agree on is the danger of Japanese imports.

Indeed, Riegle, announcing his reelection effort in February, almost ignored the Republicans and Spence Abraham. He's running against Japanese imports.

Asked how he will counter that strategy, Abraham replied that Riegle is "a big tax, big spend Demo-

The Riegle record

GOP paints him as tax-spend liberal

By Tim Richard staff writer

To hear state Republican chair-man Spencer Abraham tell it, U.S. Sen. Donald Riegie is "a big tax, big spend Democrat."

Since he was elected in 1976 and particularly in the past five years, Riegie carved out one of the most liberal voting records in Washigton said Ahraham.

So last week the top GOP spokes-man picked Oakland County to start an information program publicizing Riegie's record.

The going will be tough for Republicans as Riegle seeks a third term next year. Despite his warm relations with the United Auto Workers Union, Riegle enjoys a reputation as a moderate with a Harvard Business School education (see related story).

Just how liberal is Don Riegle?

"TOO LIBERAL for mainstream Michigan," answered Abraham, cit-

"Don Riegle votes against Ronald Reagan more than any other senator," added Larry Dickerson, Oakland County GOP chairman tapped

Dickerson, a Farmington Hills resident who sells for a Livonia firm, had no details on target groups would be reached, other than through existing newsletters.

THE TWO leaders had few answers to the barrage of questions from newpaper and radio reporters.

Q. Why isn't the state party doing the program instead of delegating it to Oakland?

Abraham: It needs to be a "grass roots program." Riegle creates a moderate image in Michigan but votes liberal in Washington.

Dickerson: It will be a "labor-intensive, volunteer effort." Unspoken answer: The Republican State Committee has been captured by adherents to Rep. Jack Kemp and

Rev. Pat Robertson; Oakland is still

IN SUM, Abraham wants:

• An issue-oriented campaign rather than one centered on Riegle's love life (as in '76) or rumored health

A 1%-year campaign rather than one patched together in Sep-tember of 1998 by the desperate survivor of a primary.

• A mainstream Republican pet of anti-Riegle issues that any candidate can run on, rather than the per-sonal axes of whoever captures the Abraham, a 34-year-old Lansing lawyer and polister, is himself a Senate prospect who admits "I have not shut the door." But he concentrated his effort on acting like a party leader whose work will help any Republican candidate.

The state House of Representa-tives last week unanimously passed hills to prevent mortgage frauds in hills to prevent mortgage frauds in Michigan advocated both by his boss, Gov. James Blanchard, and their predecessor, Gov. William Milliken.

The votes were 101-0 and 102-0. The bills go to the Senate.

INSTEAD, KUTHY, who heads the state's Financial Institutions Bureau, held his tongue. The West Bloomfield lawyer praised the sponsor, state Rep. John Bennett, D-Redford, and his House Corporations and Finance Committee for changing the Legislature's mind about the "regulatory gap" in state laws.

"This and the previous administration said it (regulations) was inadequate, fragmented and incomplete. "The Mortgage Bankers Association repeatedly said there was adequate coverage. . .that the problem was inaccurately portrayed. "It's up to the Legislature to decide which position to believe." Bennett's committee believed Kuthy, 18-0, and recommended passage of three bills to avoid future A.J. Obie/Diamond mortgage scams.

All 18 of the 22 members attending the hearing voted their support including Reps. Mat Dunaskiss, R-Lake Orion, and Lyn Bankes, R-Livo-

BENNETT SAID the bills are designed "to prevent mortgage lender abuses." House bills 4701-3 will:

• "Give the Financial Institutions Bureau authority to license first mortgage companies.

· "Give the FIB authority to penalize violators - suspend licenses, order restitutioni, levy fines and issue cease and desist orders. . . to put companies like A.J. Obie, Diamond and Salem out of

• "Avoid overlapping regula-

Two Mortgage Bankers Association spokesmen supported the bills, but pointed out the now-bankrupt offendrs "were never members of MBA." And MBA President Ron Sinclair insisted, "There were sufficient laws to prosecute them," pointing to the real estate brokerage act, fraud and consumer protection laws.

finding borrowers. Kuthy said the "unscrupulous practices" of the "miscreants" bilked investors of $50 million. Specifically, Carl Tyson, director of the Corporation and Securities Bureau said 2,946 investors and 2,707 borrowers were victims of the scam.

County fighting receivership

By Wayne Peal staff writer

Details on a plan designed to save Wayne County from "municipal bankruptcy" could be released as early as today.

County and state officials continued meeting this week, attempting to reach a pay-back agreement for county health care debt estimated at Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara said the county faces financial collapse unless it can pay off state-mandated health programs.

"If we were a private business, we'd file for Chapter 11. We would go into bankruptcy," McNamara

A rescue plan could be drafted by next week if negotiations succeed. McNamara said he seeks a time line for paying back the debt. He is also proposing fee increases for marriage licenses, gun permits and other county services.

Layoffs, budget cuts and a tax increase won't be proposed, he added.

THE RESCUE plan would attempt to avoid receivership - the municipal equivalent to bankruptcy. Should that occur, an appointed financial manager would direct county financial affairs, possibly enacting massive budget cuts and damaging the county's credit rating for years to come.

'If we were a private business, we'd file for Chapter 11. We would go into bankruptcy.'

> - Ed McNamara, county executive

"The simple way would be to say to the governor to put us into receivership, but we're not going to do that," McNamara said.

Plans are subject to county commission approval. Noting the county recently borrowed $60 million to meet its payroll, one local commissioner said county finances have "touched bottom."

'We'll have to borrow more money to pay back the money we've already borrowed," Commissioner Milton Mack, D-Wayne, said. "If we're unable to work out indigent health care, receivership is inevita-

Audit figures released Monday showed Wayne County ran up a $67 million debt during 1986 - nearly doubling county debt for all previous years combined. The county spent $30 more than it took in for every county resident.

An additional $23 million debt is projected this year, county finance director Jack Dodge said.

State officials recently impounded a $6.3 million federal sharing payment to pay off what they said was $60 million in cumulative health care debt owed by the county.

Though not mentioned by McNamara at Monday's press conference to discuss the debt, the county is considering selling 1,040 of county-owned property in Northville. The county commission's Econmic Development Committee was expected to discuss selling the property Wednesday.

McNamara said he discussed the county's financial situation May 29 in a nine-hour meeting with Gov. James Blanchard.

"The governor is very concerned about Wayne County's financial situation and the state will help where it can but the governor isn't going to put the state's own solvency at risk," Blanchard spokesman Thomas Scott

Toy and Smith defeated two challengers, earning six-year seats on the community college board.

Jeanne Stempien ran unopposed for a fouryear seat.

It will be the first full term for Smith and Stempien. Both were appointed to the board last October to fill vacancies. All three winners will take office Monday, July 6.

Toy, 35, is a Livonia resident and has been a trustee since 1981. She is co-owner of Cardwell Florist, Township resident. She is a partner in the Wendell Sn law firm of Stempien & Stempien, Challengers Robert Sadler and Jeanne Stemplen the other three Charles Grieg were unsuccessful in their first attempts for a Schoolcraft board seat.

Unofficial vote totals for the contested race were:

● Toy - 6,335.

Smith — 4,430.
Sadler — 3,743. • Greig - 2,681.

Stempien received 8,660 votes in the uncontested race.

"I would like to think it's a vote of confidence even though I was running unopposed," she said.
Sadler, 49, lives in Livonia and is a product design engineer with Ford Motor Co. Greig, 66, lives in to the Downriver Retired Superintendent's Association.

Voters in the Livonia, Garden City, Plymouth-C a n t o n , Clarenceville Northville and rtions of the Novi public school districts cast ballots. Toy outpolled candidates in all five communities. Smith's 706-vote margin over Sadler in Plymouth-Canton proved decisive, overcoming slight advan-tages for Sadler among Garden City and Clarenceville voters. The two ran neck-and-neck in Livonia. with Smith posting a 922-910 advantage. Greig trailed everywhere but Novi, where he outpolled Sadler 21-8.

Trustees direct educational program's for Schoolcraft's 12,000 students and oversee its $21.9 million operating budget. The seven-member board serves without pay.

interest could aid schools

The state school aid fund will be fattened by $10 million a year - interest earned on state lottery revenues — under bills sponsored by Sen. Rudy Nichols, R-Waterford.

At present, lottery proceeds go into the treasury for distribution to schools. But while they're in the treasury, the interest they earn goes into the general fund.

"I believe lottery interest should follow lottery revenue and be credited to the state's school aid fund. If this had been done over the last two years, at least $10 million in interest would have been available for education each year,"said Nichols.

Less than one-third of the $6 billion general fund is used for education, while all of the school fund goes

The Senate recently passed two of Nichols' bills to accomplish the goal and sent them to the House

Senate Bill 61, approved 31-1, accomplished the interest transfer.

Senate Bill 295, approved 33-0, assured the interest would be fully added to school aid and not used to offset the general fund contribution to school aid.

Teenagers accounted for one-quarter of all county births in 1985, the last year for which figures are available. Compromise is sought on speed limit

A second conference committee is rying to seek compromise on efforts to raise the speed limit to 65 mph on 720 miles of rural Michigan interstate freeways. Leaders appointed a new sixmember House-Senate panel after the House of Representatives rejected a Senate-approved bill that would raise speed limits but ban use of radar detectors to break the law. The vote was 20 for, 82 against and eight absent.

Reappointed to the new conferce committee was sen. Richard essler, R-West Bloomfield, author f the speed limit bill and opponent d banning "Fuzz Busters."

Other members are Sens. Vern Ehlers, R-Grand Rapids, who chaired the first conference commitee, and Michael O'Brien, D-Detroit; and Reps. Curtis Hertel, D-Detroit, ewis Dodak, D-Flint, and Donald Van Singel, R-Grant.

THE HOUSE vote on the first conference report was:

Yes: Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia. No: Justine Barns, D-Westland, hn Bennett, D-Redford, William Keith, D-Garden City, James Kos-

THE SENATE last week approved the bill on a 22-15 vote. The roll call: Yes — William Faust, D-West-land; George Z. Hart, D-Dearborn; Robert Geake, R-Northville.

House Speaker Gary Owen, D-Yp-silanti, and Senate Majority Leader John Engler, R-Mount Pleasant, agreed lawmakers wouldn't approve a speed limit increase tied to a radar ctor ban. They said the proposals will have to be addressed sepa-

Reviving Rouge will cost

HIS PAST weekend thousands of persons lined the banks of the Rouge to help clean the river of logjams and other obstruc-

The effort was an important step in the Save the Rouge campaign. Pulling obstructions from the Rouge speeds up water flow, allowing the river to cleanse itself.

Ridding a river of stagnant pools is almost like resuscitating someone. It's a life-saving step. Afterwards, there still may be a need for surgery. Life must be restored before surgeons can take over. Saturday's effort was a life-saving resuscitation. Now for the surgery. The Rouge is being contaminated by ome pretty heavy pollutants.

There are two major sources: industrial/commercial pollutants and people like you and me.

The state Department of Natural Resolirces knows where the pollutants are elitering the river and, in many cases, Miéws the sources.

The list of approved discharge points (sanitary, combined sanitary and storm water, and industrial) into the Rouge River in Oakland and Wayne counties is five pages, single-spaced.

LISTED are some 41 sites in Birmingham, four in Bloomfield Hills, 153 in Dearborn (18 from the Rouge Plant alone), 13 in Farmington, two in Garden City, nine in Livonia, five for the Oakland County DPW, six in the city of Plymouth, six in Plymouth Township, 10 in Redford Township, 10 to the Wayne County DPW, two in Westland, seven in the city of Wayne.

Permitted to discharge are the Birmingham Country Club, Marathon Oil, Rouge Plant, GMC Detroit Diesel, Peerless Cement, Detroit Coke Corp., GMC Fisher Body, Chevrolet Division, Hygrade Food, McLaren Engines, Michigan Consolidated Gas, Norfolk & Western Railway, Associated Spring, Unisys (Burroughs), Shell Oil, Amoco Oil, Salem Elementary School, Eaton Corp., and Ford Truck Plant in Wayne.

That information isn't a secret. It has been shared by the surface water quality divison of the DNR with Wayne County Executive Ed McNamara, state Sen. Robert Geake, DNR Director Gordon Guyer, and state Reps. Gerald Law and James Kosteva, to name a few.

Of course, the solution is not easy. Finding alternative ways of dumping the pollutants would cost billions of dollars and swell the ranks of the unem-

That's why surgery is required.

THE OTHER MAJOR pollutant is human waste.

Waste doesn't go directly from the life; now shall we call in the surgeons?

bathroom into the river. For the most part, the waste enters "combined" sanitary and storm systems. During heavy rains, storm water backs up and takes human waste with it - into the Rouge.

During periods of flooding, water from downriver communities backs up and causes sanitary sewer systems to overflow into the Rouge. Flooding causes storm sewers in the city of Wayne to back up into Canton, causing its sanitary system to overflow.

Water flows downhill, so the problem of storm water involves upstream communities as well as those to the south where backups occur. With development in Livonia, Farmington Hills and Novi, the volume of water running downstream is increasing rapidly.

WHEN storm sewers cannot handle the flow, there's danger of human waste entering our river.

In this case, the solution is very costly. Millions of dollars would have to be invested to enlarge the north-to-south storm drain system and to separate the old combined sanitary/storm sewers. That means large bonded debts which translates to millage increases for all communities along the Rouge.

Do we want to save the Rouge? Do we want to pay the price? We have given the Rouge a breath of

is the saddest crisis of all. Community crises do come in many Often it's crime. At other times it's housing, taxes or roads.

But when a city is faced with looking in the mirror of social conscience and baring its malice and fear, the scars last forever.

That's the crisis faced by your neighbors in Southfield. You should care about this crisis because the way it's resolved will have a telling impact on suburban Detroit, your community, for many years to come.

Southfield, one of Detroit's most cosmopolitan suburbs, is a city in transformation. It suffers many of the problems that growing cities do — including being the victim of a monumental whispering campaign among the lesser lights of suburbia.

YOU SEE, Southfield is an integrated community. For many who live in fear and/or ignorance, that's a negative aspect over which to gloat with some amount of glee.

Let's face it, we've all been at gatherings where people from other communities snicker, shake their heads and say something like, "better not buy a house in Southfield. Property values won't be worth a damn in 10 years."

And indeed, vultures seeking to make a profit off fear and prejudice, do sweep down on integrated cities to make some quick money.

That's why Southfield civic leaders find themselves in a terribly awkward situation. A group hopes that Southfield will become the home base for a traveling exhibition and sculpture in memory Steve Barnaby

Lots of excuses are being bandied about concerning storage space and travel logistics. But all that rings pretty

THE TRUTH is that many in Southfield fear their city is already labeled a black city, even though its black population still is a minority of the total population. To become the home of a memorial to the most famous black; civil rights leader in our history, they fear, would foster the impression.

Southfield, much to its credit, has worked hard at being an integrated, rather than a racially changing community. And in many ways it has succeeded where other communities have

Because of its successes, Southfield should be considered a jewel for othersuburbs around the nation to look at and say, "see integration does work.

And those of us living in other Detroit: suburban communities should join in on that pride. Frankly, any city should be proud to house a memorial to a man who deserves everyone's admiration. How about your city? Sure would? take the heat off Southfield.

Weighty matter

Could parents be bringing up a generation of 'butterballs?'

BUTTERBALLS.

That's what type of children we are

Butterballs.

Guy Reiff says so. He hails from lakeside property northwest of Ann Arbor where he toils for the University of Michigan Fitness Research Center. Recently, he has been spending time in West Bloomfield schools, one of 16 in the state that has adopted a Fitness for Youth program, paid for by a $262,000 grant from Blue Cross Blue Shield.

Reiff helped develop the program. Its premise is simple. Traditional physical education classes fall short in both the "physical" and "education" depart-

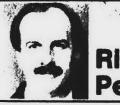

TOO MANY classes, at least when you and I were young, consisted of a football coach tossing a dodge ball into the court and saying, "Have at it, boys, I've got films to watch." And that's for only one year out of four.

In earlier grades, students had a hodgepodge of gym sessions, often consisting of one or two 15-minute sessions

One result is that the kids likely to get the most out of gym classes need it the least: they are already proficient in the skill sports.

Reiff has nothing against the skill sports, except they benefit the few, not the masses. Even for the few, it's hard for a 35-year-old to rustle up 10 other guys to play a little tackle football after

THAT'S WHY people like Reiff decry the lack of education in the little physical training that youngsters receive. Instead of learning to make exercise as regular a part of their lives as brushing their teeth, youngsters are barely touched by exertion or, if they are, they, are taught that it is drudgery. You gooff up on the playing field, you run two laps as punishment.

Those lessons stick. Neither are such attitudes helped by a fast-food lifestyle. A quarter of today's kids have at least two of the big three cardiac threats obesity, high blood pressure and high; cholesterol - says Reiff. Forty percent have at least one.

THE NATION'S billion-dollar-a-day health care costs are only going higher. if we are raising a generation pro-Blue Cross has entered the picture. "We can't turn back the clock on health care costs," says Blue Cross spokesman Rude Difazio, "but we can try to contain them."

The nourishment problems faced by our youth that are traced to poverty are difficult and expensive to solve. But it's ironic that in a world where many children hurt from their hunger, our affluent, image-conscious nation is raising butterballs. For those children, the solution isn't expensive. It does require restructuring and emphasizing the socalled phsyical education programs now

He's waiting for someone to call him.

Phoning is getting tougher

THE FIRST of 5 million or so telephone calls I ever made was to my grandmother, who is now with the anrels. I was about 6.

It was fairly easy: You tucked the earpiece to your ear, dialed OL (for Dlive) 9529 and said, "Hello, Grandma" when she answered.

As time went on, telephone dialing ecame more complicated. First, Ma Bell added an extra digit between OLive and 9529. Next, they dropped the two etters and went to seven numbers. Afer that, they added an area code. About same time, they added the numeral "1" for long-distance calls within the

a full page of instructions about something called "access codes."

"What," I asked the lady conducting the briefing, "is an access code?"

She glared back: "Read your pamphlets, Tim." So I read them. Both. A second time.

Nowhere did AT&T tell me what an 'access code" is. All I found out is that the person conducting the briefing is not a lady but our System Administrator. Guess I should have genuflected.

WHEN I WAS a kid, our phone was black and had a circular dial; otherwise it's little different from the new instrument staring at me from my work sta-

But today's AT&T hardware consists of a base with dial pad and modular jack, a handset, a handset cord and a line cord. Sounds impressive.

And the darned thing doesn't just ring. It possesses a call waiting tone, a confirmation tone, a coverage tone, an intercept tone, a recall dial tone, a reorder tone, a ringback tone and a ringback-tone-call-waiting tone.

abbreviated dialing." Last year when I called you, I punched out seven or eight numbers. Now it can be simpler, according to the booklet:

"Abbreviated Dialing creates a list of selected phone numbers, each of which can be programmed and stored as one or two digits for simpler dialing. There are three types of lists (personal, group, system) and you can have a total of up to three of them. One or more may be a personal list, programmable by you.

For each of the 10 items on such a list (digits 1-9, and 0), you can program and store a complete or partial phone number, an extension number, a trunk code, or even another feature code. Once programmed, a number can be accessed by dialing the list item digit under which it is Nuts. It was easier when I was 6 ears old: Just dial OL 9529 and say, Hello, Grandma."

"Cardiac disease is not an adult disease," he says.

It's easy to do. Just ask Guy Reiff.

Imagine that, a lobster expert, right here

THERE I WAS, minding my own business at the soda fountain but with hearing aid tuned to eavesdrop, when this guy sitting on a a stool downwind said something about having checked out his lobster pots when he went home for Mother's Day.

Thinking of traditional floral expressions of maternal love, naturally I butted in and asked, "Don't you mean geranium pots?"

It was thus that I became acquainted with Lionel H. (Nel) Rouleau. For plebian financial reasons he has chosen to advance his professional career here as advance his professional career here as midwestern regional manager of The Mortgage Exchange, headquartered at Falls Church, Va., instead of staying in his native Maine where the family homestead is almost within spitting distance of the Atlantic Ocean.

If the thought of having fresh Maine lobater on your plate any day your manager.

A TIMELY article in the current issue of Reader's Digest calls this "one of the world's most coveted and most prestigious foods." The magazine only echoes a decision I made the first time I ever went "Down East" many years

So now I was almost rubbing ellows with the son of an 36-year-old Maine lobster veteran. Then I found that the younger Rouleau keeps 17 traps of his own dangling in the Atlantic waters off Wiscasset, not far from where the Kennebeck River flows into the ocean.

He has the gall to say, "Oh, yes, I have friends who gather the lobsters a couple of times a week and ship a few to me for personal use."

That's better than having an entire school of coho salmon jump into your Rouleau joins me in cheering these added Reader's Digest statements: "The unquestioned aristocrat of the species, with a worldwide reputation, is our Maine lobster" . . . adding, as to relatives, "another is the smaller, clawless spiny lobster, found mostly in tropical and subtropical seas. Probably the most famous spiny is the South African rock lobster, known for its tasty tail."

THOSE ARE what so many restaurants serve around here, which is treason to devotees of the real thing.

At the moment I invaded his conversational domain, Rouleau was telling an associate about the hors d'oeuvres he and thrée friends had been served at Happy Jack's in Lewiston, Maine.

"We were given four full Maine lob-sters just like you might get a bowl of popcorn here," he said pityingly.

"Lobster rolls are served at every bar on a hot dog bun for no more than $1.50, and anywhere in Maine, you can get a full course dinner with two lobsters per

About now this 1950 graduate of Georgetown University in Washington, D.C., was leaving me entranced with tales of having gone lobster fishing as soon as he was old enough to stand up in his father's rowboat, plus intricacles like knowing whether a lobster is left-handed or right-handed.

Why is this man in Michigan, I won-

"Michigan is a good market and a good base for all the midwest: Cleve-land, Chicago, Cincinnati, Milwaukee, St. Louis, Toronto, Buffale and others. Our business is based on the premise that securing the best possible financing for a home or an investment should be a clear, straight path from application through closing. We're here to see that the process is a smooth one." the process is a smooth one."

I HOPE his optimism is infectious. Meanwhile, back at the lobster traps, I learned that each of such non-commercial fishermen as Rouleau identify their traps - call 'em pots if you wish through the large end the lobster cast' find his or her way out the small call, just like real life, ch, guyet.

I think I heard someone in the sunfigence ask about that left-handed, right-handed aspect. The thing is, true Maine lobster has a crushing claw with molar-like teeth and a secondary, smaller claw that is a pointed picker.

Crush a clam with one, pick your teeth with the other, that's the game, The smaller picking claw is used just like a fork (honest to God, he did tell me this) and whether it's on the left or right side determines the label.

Rouleau didn't say whether he ever had pulled any switch hitters out of the ocean, but he did say the female is more.

ocean, but he did say the female is more tender. Hell, I didn't need an immigrant from Maine to tell me the obvious!

It's our sesquicentennial — time to grab Toledo

IT'S MICHIGAN'S Sesquicentennial year, but what have we to celebrate? One hundred and fifty years, 15 decades passed, and we have not improved one iota on the most pressing issue which faced us then and faces us now: freeing

For those of you who came in with EDS or otherwise recently immigrated, Michigan owns Toledo. No, we are not in current occupation, but the city rightfully belongs to us. It is no more Ohioan than Paris was Nazi, and Toledo too awaits liberation.

In 1787 Congress passed the Northwest Ordinance, the legal foundation of all states carved out of the Northwest Territory acquired from the British after the Revolutionary War. It establishes three states and their boundaries: Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois. It then states that one or two states may be formed from the territory lying north of "an east-west line drawn through the southerly bend of Lake Michigan."

What does this mean? It means, good and loyal Michiganders that the Great Lake State's true boundaries stretch down to Gary, and east to Lake Erie. It means that not only Toledo, but Elkhart, Gary and South Bend are rightfully ours. The steel mills of Gary are ours. It means that noble Notre Dame is a Michigan institution.

WHAT HAPPENED? How were we robbed? Well, we fought a war with Ohio, a small and not-quite bloodless war, but a war just the same. Michigan won this war, but the fruits of victory won on the field of battle were betrayed in shabby politics.

Andrew Jackson sold us out. Needing the million votes of Ohio to put his successor, Martin Van Buren, into the White House, Old Hickory forced us to give up our claims to southern Michigan before we could be admitted to the union. Thus our 150th birthday is also a date of bereavement.

Still, we made out sort of OK. We had politan Chicago.

Think of poor Wisconsin. Now a bustling, prosperous little dairy state, Wisconsin was the last state to enter the Union and she was raided by everybody. The rightful boundaries of Wisconsin include everything north of the Lake Michigan line that isn't Michigan.

To this end we are forming a Toledo Liberation Front, Headquarters are 96% Madison in Birmingham, Free Michigan, 48008. The TLF is not your typical bunch of suburban guerillas. We are outfitted by Banana Republic. Our manifesto is simple: the liberation of Toledo and the rest of Occupied Michigan. The TLF are freedom fighters. We will take aid from all sources. VISA and MASTERCARD accepted. But if Oliver North is listening, we really do need re-

A day to be proud

Graduation ceremonies are traditionally a time to remember the past and to celebrate the future. Whether the brand-new graduate is 18 or 80, the day's one that calls for hugs and handshakes.

Things were no different last week for a group of Plymouth-Canton Community Education students. The Wednesday, June 3, graduation and awards ceremony was held in the auditorium of Plymouth Salem High School; for the graduates, "Pomp and Circumstance" never sounded sweeter. Diplomas were presented to the high school graduates during that evening's ceremony. The class of 1987 was represented by graduation speakers Terry Gawlinski and Marie Breach.

Awards and certificates were presented to health occupations students and to GED recipients during the ceremony. Several special awards were also presented.

but attendance picked up on Satur-day and Sunday, Willette said. Those involved in planning the show may go to a two-day, Saturday and Sun-

The summer show featured the work of more than 60 craftspeople. "Overall, I think it was a pretty successful show."

THE TWO Christmas shows are planned for late November and early December. It won't be too much longer before the application forms go out for those shows.

Willette was pleased with the attendance at last weekend's show. It's difficult to estimate attendance, he said, because there's no admission

The craftspeople who filled out evaluation forms for the recent show suggested a two-day format might be better than a three-day one, Willette said.

This was the second year the summer arts and crafts show was held. "Each year, it'll just become more established."

Crothers said:

The noise from the bowling alley isn't all that had in the nursery, the paster has found.

"It's kind of fun."

THE LOCATION allows wor shipers to hear God's word in com-fortable surroundings; bowling a few frames, however, isn't a part of their worshiping.

Crothers, a Redford Township resident, grew up worshiping in the Church of the Nazarene. He attended Mt. Vernon Bible College in Ohio and the Nazarene The Seminary in Kansas City, Mo.

The Pennsylvania native worked on the staff of a Nazarene church in Flint. He then came to a Nazarene church in Dearborn.

Crothers, 30, resigned from his position at that church earlier this

"That was difficult, but we just really believe the Lord is leading us. We feel like we've had God tell us to build a church in Canton."

Crothers sees the role of the Life Design Christian Fellowship as doing the work of Jesus, being God's extension of love and mercy.

"That's a pretty big job." Crothers and his wife, Teresa, have one child, 4-year-old Christy. Jim Crothers works at the Good News Shop, a Christian bookstore in Dearborn.

In addition to Sunday worship services, the Life Design Christian Fellowship has kinship groups that meet in people's homes. walking.

THE FELLOWSHIP members believe in what Crothers described as a charismatic, low-key ap-

"We really believe God is as big as the Bible says he is. When you get in touch with God, there's something dramatic that happens."

Just a few weeks after Crothers left the church in Dearborn, he began services at the Super Bowl. It was about six months ago that he began to develop a vision for estab-

be geared primarily to young

"That's where our heart is."
The fellowship's approach will be to use available money for missions rather than for a pe church building, he said.

"There are lots of people hungry. They just need people like us, I think, to love them."

Establishing an independent church is challenging, Crothers has found. The lack of a denominational affiliation means that potential worshipers are less familiar with the work of a church; they may feel less secure attending services

Crothers doesn't think the Life Design Christian Fellowship will continue to meet at the Super Bowl in years to come.

Eventually, we'll probably move out of that and go to something a little larger as we grow. We just want to become visible to our community." Those of all Christian faiths may attend services of the Life Design Christian Fellowship, Fellowship members hope to grow and to plant other churches in the surrounding

"We really believe that God has called us to do the works of Jesus," Crothers said. He'd like to see the fellowship grow, not only by in-creasing its ranks but also by reaching the community in a larger

"Time will tell whether you were really sent or not. We believe we've been sent."

Graduates need more than just a handshake

THIS MORNING I went to the card shop. It is graduation time and some of my relatives and friends are among the graduates. As I perused the messages to America's graduating class I wondered: What would really be the best thing to say to those preparing to pick up the baton directing the drumbeat of the world?

Most of the cards, in my estimation, came up short. Oh, they were nice. They spoke of dream fulfillment. They spoke of getting what the graduate wanted out of life. They spoke of success. They spoke of following the stars. All nice stuff. But as a group they come up short.

GRANTED, GRADUATION cards are not the place for sermons. Parties for the graduate are not for the purpose of advice giving. But at the same time I would hope that our congratulatory messages go beyond a picture of someone cruising in a convertible as a symbol of what the successful graduate should become. I would hope that just because they have mastered some science and learned their letters we do not presume that we have nothing else to give them.

These are the women and men who are going to run our world. They are the ones whose votes and whose decisions are going to determine the quality of life for us as we head into our later years. These are the people who will be grappling with the hunger problems of the '90s brought on in part by our confused priorities in the '80s and the '70s.

We give them many assets along with their diplomas. But we also leave them a few debits. Perhaps the greatest disservice we could saddle them with is to not let them know that we realize that both of these are true. We need to show them what has brought on true happiness and at the same time be humble enough to admit that we have discovered the hard way that success and personal satisfaction are not always mea! sured by bank accounts and toys on the patio.

We do not need to preach at them at their parties or slip little sermonettes into their gift boxes. But we do need to give them what we learned from our own real successes and even our failures.

WHAT IF they were to hear us talking among ourselves about hunger problems or ways of stopping arms races with as much concern as they hear us discuss our property taxes? What if they were to eavesdrop on our office conversations and discover that we can be as excited over improving the plight of the elderly as we are over looking for the new stereo.

Don't try to get it all onto a card. And don't use the party for a plat-form to speak of how the world should change. But let's not sell ourselves short either. Let's know that they will continue to listen to us as they determine the priorities that will drive their world and ours.

Dear graduate, may your dreams continue to grow and may your success be measured both by the way in which you enjoy this world and in which you improve it. Most of all may you know love.

The Rev. Robert Schaden is with the Newman House at Schoolcraft College in Livonia.

Growing herbs can spice up your life

HIS information is from a Flint publication called Natural Notes" published by Steve and Raenette

Years ago, a household wouldn't have been without at least a small herb patch to see it through the year These precious plants were used as teas medicines, seasonings, refreshers and a host of other things.

Today herbs are no less important just because we can go to any market and buy a small tin of whatever strikes our fancy. These facts might entice you to grow some herbs in pots, add them to your garden or start an herb gar-

- Fresh herbs taste much better. • Herbs make great fillers in gardens, wonderful groundcover and
- decorations for fences. • Herb gardens are pretty and smell good
- · Herbs are easy to grow in con-
- tainers both indoors and out. · Herbs can be used in sachets,

- potpourris, bouquets and wreaths. · Herbs are easy to dry and
- Herbs require little care.
- · Herbs can be planted in rows like a vegetable garden or in a formal design.
- · Concrete blocks can be buried on their sides to make small berb
- · Recycled plastic jugs (with the tops cut off), hanging containers, barrels, old tires, wood sandboxes filled with dirt make creative planters.
- The oil released from the leaves of herbs makes most herbs fairly resistant to disease and insects. Yellow naptha soap and water is safe to use on culinary herbs to rid any plants of pests.
- · Eight to 10 plants of each variety are enough to dry and, if used moderately, will last a year.
- If you buy herb seeds in packets that contain mixed seeds, the seedlings will be hard to tell apart as they grown and may choke each

- Both perennials and annuals grow well from seed.

Work needn't end with retirement

In three years I will be eligible for retirement. My plan is to retire from my present job to something else - and that something else is not the rocking chair.

Could you suggest some reading on this?

Mr. S. Mc., Detroit

Dear Mr. Mc.:

"Success Over Sixty," by Albert Myers and Christopher Andersen (Summit Books, New York), is just the book you need. It is an invaluable resource for active older people who wish to remain (as you do) productive members of society.

It tells you how to match your experience to a new career, set up business on your own, become a lifelong learner, make a rewarding contribution through volunteer work - and how to stay physically and sexually fit.

It contains 50 pages of sources, including ideas for entrepreneurs, franchises, volunteer opportunities, schools and sports. It has some practical tools to help you plan your future, such as tests for selfassessment and charts and graphs to keep you on target.

I wish you the best of luck in your retirement career. Because of your planning and positive attitude, I doubt if you will ever be a candidate for the rocking chair.

Now's the time to find out how you stack up against Wall Street by testing your IQ.

The National Association of Investors Corp., in cooperation with Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, is giving readers the chance to rate their bullishness by sponsoring a stock market contest called Investor's Quotient. Winners will be those whose fictional $1,000 portfolios show the greatest growth (exclusive of dividends) over the contest period.

First prize is a weekend for two to New York City including round-trip airfare, hotel accommodations for a Friday and Saturday and a tour of the New York Stock Exchange. Three second prizes of a weekend (two nights' lodging) at the Westin Hotel in downtown Detroit will be

The five third-place winners will receive one-year subscriptions to Better Investing magazine, the NAIC monthly publication. Five fourthplace prizes of one-year subscriptions to your local Observer & Eccentric newspaper will be given.

Contestants will have three weeks to enter the contest. Tracking of the portfolios will be done by NAIC and begins with the date listed on the entry. Entries will be received up to midnight Friday, June 28.

Contestants may select as many as five stocks from any of the three approved stock exchanges, NYSE, AMEX or NASDAQ. Stock listings are available in most daily newspapers. Contest results will be based on the published closing quotes of the stocks on Sept. 25. (See accompanying rules and entry blank.)

Prizes will be awarded at the NAIC national convention Oct. 14-17 at the Westin Hotel. Although most of the convention is open only to NAIC members, non-members have the chance to participate in the Investors Gallery, which brings together representatives of more than 75 publicly held companies who provide investment information free of

"Look for an undervalued stock, a company that has had an earnings problem in the last two years, but which is undergoing a turnaround,"

"In a good market, a stock can move up quickly."

He also suggested ignoring the recent volatility of the market.

"You should wash the highs and lows out of your mind. The volatility in the market is caused by institutions doing the trading. A 40-50-point drop can make headlines, but on a percentage basis, this is not as high as a 15-point drop a few years ago."

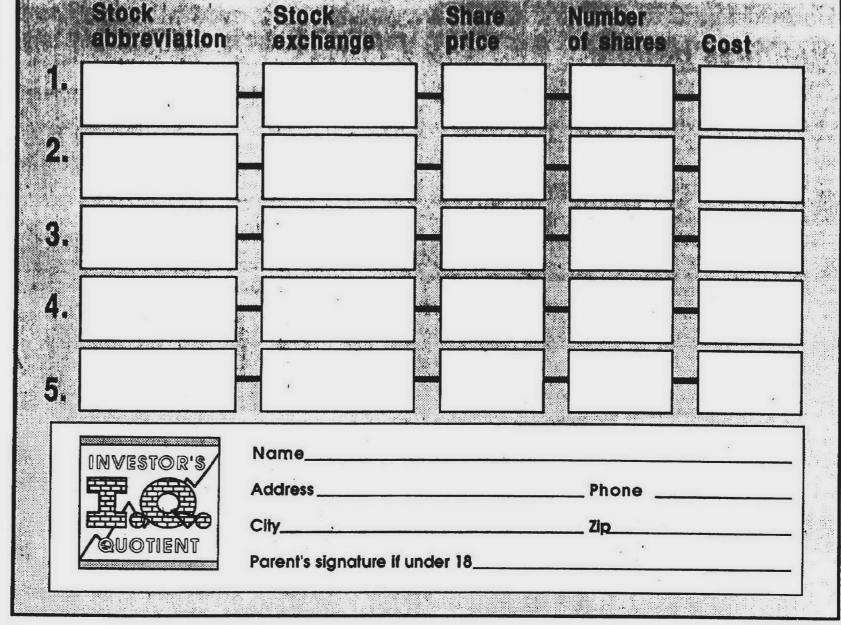

NAIC MEMBERS reflect a philosophy that runs contrary to Wall Street professionals and is reflected by a "people's choice" list of stocks, the "cause of Main Street and Wall Street intersecting rather than running parallel." In its annual membership survey of the year's 100 most-widely held common stocks, AT&T took the top spot followed by

But perhaps the most-evident inconsistency between these Main Streeters and Wall Street was NAIC members' faith in restaurant stocks. Wendy's ranked third, Shoney's sixth, McDonald's 21st and Bob Evans Farms 62nd. Better Investing, the NAIC monthly magazine, quoted Value Line as recently ranking restaurants at 84 out of 91 on its industry timeliness scale.

NAIC has three classes of membership: individual, investment club and corporate. There are about 15,000 individuals, 7,000 investment clubs with 100,000 members and about 75 corporate members.

Membership profiles show individual and club members are almost evenly divided between the sexes; 87 percent have a college education with 32 percent having done ad-"Professionals (in investment) like vanced college work; 90 percent have a family income that exceeds $25,000; 32 percent are under 40 years old, 52 percent are between 40 and 60 and 16 percent are over 60. Strategic fund board names entrepreneur

By Tim Richard staff writer

Craig A. Smith thinks he'll bring something different to the board of the Michigan Strategic Fund.

MSF is the state's public-private tool for leveraging investments in start-up businesses that promise growth opportunities.

"There are a lot of con agents in America. California and Florida are notorious for them. A successful entrepreneur is much more versatile at spotting those people than a banker," said Smith, 60, of Bloomfield Town-

Smith knows entrepreneurs. A 40-year veteran of real estate development, he is executive vice president of Berger-Lewiston-Smith, a Southfield real estate development and management firm.

BEING ON the MSF is like being in the banking business — to a point. It involves investments and loan ap-

But MSF wants to deal with entrepreneurs - new firms, with new ideas, new technologies, but lacking big balance sheets. Bankers are unble to deal with them.

"The problem with banks in Michigan is ultraconservatism — the most conservative in America," said Smith, echoing a years-long and widespread complaint. "I find no fault with them, but it doesn't help the growth of the economy.

"I deal with 200 small contractors. I do not come from a huge corporate

"You have to know how entrepreneurs think. It's entirely different from the corporate sector."

It's a recurring theme as Smith talks: Big corporations are restrictive, and they're providing few new jobs. State government and other institutions need to help small entrepreneurs - if they can tell the worthy ones from the "con" men.

"FOUR BIG auto companies have dominated this state. Higher education has been big supporters of the corporate giants; that's where they got their money.

'We've not had an entrepreneurial culture in this state. That's beginning to change.

"I've seen surveys of business school students. Eighty percent want to go into business for themselves. They don't want the restrictions of "Michigan is a very competitive state. We've got some sharp entrepreneurs in Michigan. If they're great in Michigan, they're geniuses in the rest of the country.'

SMITH JOINED the nine-member board May 21. A conservative Democrat, he was the nominee of House Speaker Gary Owen, D-Ypsilanti. His appointment by Gov. James J. Blanchard is subject to Senate confirmation.

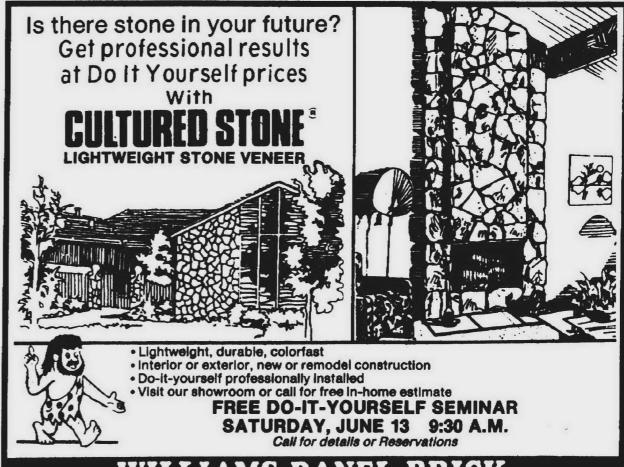

"We have extensive staff reports," said Smith, after attending his first meeting. "We have specialists, and they are very capable. Information is sent to us weeks ahead of time.

"But I go beyond staff reports. I research some of these things

"At our meeting we had 30 or 40 people. There were people from the attorney general's office and Commerce Department. There were bond counsel."

Smith will serve on MSF's loan committee but hasn't attended one of its meetings yet.

He's one of four new members of a board that's barely a year old. He re-places Michael Staebler, a corporate attorney in Ann Arbor.

The company sold more stock about that time, and while total earnings went up, the larger number of shares resulted in lower earnings per share. That and a shift in stock market attention resulted in a decline in the price of the stock.

I don't see anything wrong with the company. In fact, it looks like it could continue to grow. The company has acquired the assets of JSM Corp. It is a premium truckbed liner distributor in the largest pickup truck market in the United States.

In addition the company increased its manufacturing capacity by 50 percent and plans to add 50 percent more before the end of this year.

The company has also developed a new distribution plan with Sears. That giant retailer could add tremendously to sales.

NTHUSIASM, conviction, commitment, passion, tenacity and some good luck. That's the basic inventory for a would-be filmmaker.

Add a twinkle in the eye and 28 years of hard work and you have a description of William Dear, director, co-writer and co-producer of "Harry and the Hendersons," which opened nationwide Friday.

'Harry and the Hendersons" is a refreshing comedy about a very typical American family (John Lithgow, Melinda Dillon, Margaret Langrick and Joshua Rudoy) who, literally, run into a Bigfoot on their annual camping trip. Harry, the Bigfoot, winds up in their house and that's a very funny thought.

Unlike so many stereotypical American families on film, the Hendersons are appealing, multidimensional folks; in fact, just like real people with all the good and bad qualities everyone possesses.

THE HENDERSON family's appeal represents something very special in William Dear's character, a quality he expressed when he was in town recently for a special preview screening of "Harry and the Hender-

"I'm going to do pictures that I feel a closeness to . . . about comedy and humans . . . what we have as people is rendered very funny or touching. Because of the situation you have to define something in yourself that you didn't think you had," he said.

Dear's warm humanism renders the Henderson family as funny, touching people who discover more in themselves than they knew they had - when they need to discover it.

Dear is well-regarded in the Detroit area where his film career began. The standing ovation at the re-Southfield clearly demonstrated the

The son of Dorothy and Bob Dear, he was born in Toronto 43 years ago. With his family, he moved to Dearborn in 1955 where his mother managed the Uptown Theater. His parents still live in Dearborn.

WHEN HE WAS 12 years old, Dear and his friend, Robert Dyke, made home movies with an 8mm cent screening at the Americana in camera. In 1969, with Dyke, he cowrote and co-directed a short film, affectionate regard of his friends "Mr. Grey," which won a Special, Jury Award Gold Medal at the first Atlanta Film Festival.

> After that, Dear continued to work in any and all capacities, honing his film skills. He wrote, directed and photographed commercials, documentaries, industrial films and independent projects - any film work is good work.

In 1979 Dear moved his ramily to California. Asked, "How do you get there from here?" he replied: "That's a big move that everybody has to make for themselves if they really feel they are willing to take the risk. When we (his wife and son) moved nine years ago, there was a f lot of sacrifice." DEAR RECOUNTED that he had to give up the comforts of an estabplunge.

"There was a bigger opportunity for me in California. So I had to leave a financially secure environlished local career for the big ment and, basically, start over."

"There's no real way to get into the film business. People come out and they say, 'Could you make a call and get me a job?' It's very innocent but naive. It doesn't happen that way. You've got to have something they want, and you have to attach a way that they yourself to it in such a way that they can't separate you from it.

"I did that with Harry, and when a studio says, 'OR, we're going to buy your screenplay but we're going to have so-and-so direct it,' you say, 'No,' and go on to the next place."

"First of all you have to do stuff, you have to constantly work. Not that you have to have a wonderful portfolio, but for your own learning process, you have to constantly do some film, do some video, do whatever you can.

"That lets you know if you have the strength and ability to be a film-maker. You're going to know whether you're going to get better, whether you're able to do this.

"IT'S A STRANGE business. It looks easy and when you watch a movie shoot it doesn't look like people are struggling to accomplish what they are accomplishing. But there is a lot of effort, and it does to be its all. take its toll. This ("Harry and the Hendersons") was the hardest job I've ever done in my life.

"But the only way to do it is to keep on doing it and doing it and con-vince yourself that you really want

Dear's opportunity "to do it" came when cinematographer Allen Daviau recommended him to Steven Spielberg to direct the "Mummy, Daddy" episode in the "Amazing Stories" TV series.

That turned out well and Spielberg told Dear, "You should be doing a movie. Do you have anything you

Dear was writing "Harry" because you have to "constantly do stuff" if you want to be a filmmaker. He did and his passion, commitment, tenacity and enthusiasm are evident in "Harry and the Hendersons." So's the twinkle in his eye.

Director has a twinkle in his eye 'Porgy and Bess' wrinkle-free show

By Mary Jane Doors special writer

Michigan Opera Theatre's final spring offering, a fast moving, energy packed "Porgy and Bess," moved into Masonic Temple last week. It was a superb show, but not any better than MOT's 1982 production.

This "Porgy and Bess," the third by MOT, is a collaboration of 13 opera companies two of which are un.

era companies, two of which are un-der the DiChiera management. It has played in some 18 cities since Dec. 29 and moves on this week to Colorado and the San Francisco Opera. Just as in the MOT 1982 production this one stars Donnie Ray Albert and Gregg Baker as Porgy and Crown who also sang the roles recently at the Metropolitan Opera.

Nineteen weeks on the road has smoothed out any wrinkles, resulting in a slick 1980s version of this Gershwin masterpiece, complete with the music left out of the Broadway

Conductor and music director for this production, John DeMain, director for the Houston Grand Opera and conductor of Placido Domingo's stadium concerts, had the MOT orchestra at top level even for opening

"Porgy and Bess" is the story of a ne paralyzed man living on Catfish Row in Charleston, S.C. along the Atlantic ud Ocean. The depression-ridden community exists on the brink of disaster caught between the social pressures of urban life and the devastat-...(ing weather.

There could hardly be a more talented, better prepared group than this 52-member cast. Forty-six were educated at our top music schools. Eleven hold master's degrees.

Since this "road show" plays nightly, there is double and triple casting. The opening night cast, oh headed by Albert, was the more experienced group, but the livelier second cast was quick to establish audience rapport.

Bay area. We teach music, clowning, dancing and singing and we always produce an original script every year."

Getting the part in "Harry and the Hendersons" started when the director, William Dear, dropped King a line, suggesting three parts he might audition for in the movie. King had kept in touch with Dear through the years. The two knew each other in Detroit, where they were both involved in doing commercials and "I had to audition for the part because it was a Spielberg production - something every actor would give his right arm to audition for," King said. A week later he learned he had the part of the Bicyle Man.

They asked him to keep his schedule open for the next six weeks. Then he got the call. "They were shooting in Seattle. I flew up and did the scene. It took from 9 in the morning till 4 in the afternoon, which was typical. To do a minute of film takes many hours."

King said he is a big fan of John Lithgow, and that the well-known actor was very helpful to him during their scene together. Lithgow could have returned to his trailer until he was needed but instead, "He was right there the whole time, feeding me lines.

King never got to work with the monstrous-looking but mild Bigfoot creature. "He wasn't required to be on the set. But I did get to meet the guy who plays him, at a party."

A GREAT ADMIRER of director William Dear, King predicts that "Harry and the Hendersons" is the first of many great comedies from him. King loved "Harry," just as the critics have, and has seen it four times already. "This is a classic movie," he said.

One of these days King's two brothers may be heading for California. King is encouraging Steve to come out and get in the movies. Jerry also has been trying to start an acting career.

"My uncle and aunt were in show business. My mother used to direct community theater and has had many music students over the years. The apple doesn't fall too far from the tree," King said.

"It's a lot more personal outdoors," he said.

His concert will include a filmslide show and a light show. In the alide show, the pictures show the Ottawa-born singer and his family back to the 1950s.

Talking by phone from Las Vegas last week, Anka said he was just winding up an engagement there. Then he was on his way to Europe to meet his producer in Germany and finish a new album, coming out in Afterwards, Anka and his wife will fly to Venice, where he begins a vacation. One of his daughters - he has five - will meet them in London, as part of the trip.

It's been nearly 30 years since he catapulted to stardom at the age of 16 with the smash record hit "Dia"My Way," "The Tonight Show na," a song he wrote. The singer has Theme," "The Longest Day," "Put

Holding a garage sale is a fun way to do a little business on your own . . . but it takes a bit of planning.

Like you'll want to decide what to sell and how much to charge for each item ... and then you'll need price tags so other people will know what you're charging.

And you'll have to be able to make change for all your customers . . . so that means you should have lots of one dollar bills and an assortment of coins.

Then you'll want to advertise your sale to attract that crowd. You can do it with a sign or signs in your neighborhood . . . but you'll want a bigger crowd than that . . . so you'll run an ad in Classified which tells the time and place of your sale to a host of potential buyers.

Have fun with your little business adventure!

Stebbins tops All-Area boys track/field unit

By Brad Emons staff writer

HE 1987 ALL-AREA boys track team is a combination of power, speed and endurance.

The newest squad, selected recently by the coaches, is led by Farmington's middle distance star Al Stebbins, who was voted Observerland's Trackman of the Year.

Stebbins, a veteran on the tracks and cross country trails, was a member of the Falcons' state record-setting 3,200 relay team. He also finished third in the 800 run at the state Class A meet May 30 at Alma.

He is one of four Falcons selected to the first team (including a relay). The rest of the squad is dominated by Wayne Memorial, which landed four individuals and one relay on the first team, along with Redford Bishop Borgess, which garnered three first-team berths and two relays.

Redford Catholic Central's baseball team is doing this week? The Shamrocks meet Lansing Everett in a Class A semifinal at 3 p.m. Friday at Lansing's Municipal Field. A win puts them into the state final against the Grosse Pointe South-Midland Dow victor at 5:30 p.m. Saturday at Michigan State University.

By now, Everett has been dissected and analyzed, with every strength and weakness scrutinized. The 27-10 Vikings will be studied in detail so every contingency can be planned That's right, isn't it? Isn't that how you prepare for a pivotal game? We're going in kind of blind," admitted CC coach John Salter.

HOW BLIND is kind of blind? "Mainly, I'd like to know if (Everett) is throwing a righthander or lefthander," Salter said. "We hit righthanders better. We faced lefthanders twice during the year, against Notre Dame, and we lost twice. And I'd like to know who their best hitters are."

In other words, real blind. But that's the kind of season it's been for CC - nothing's followed form, so why plot strategy?

The Shamrocks were 13-7 in the Catholic League but 11-1 outside it (24-8 overall). They got hammered in the league playoffs by Riverview Gabriel Richard 11-4, but beat highly touted Westland John Glenn 9-8 in the state tournament. They followed the Glenn win with victories over Taylor Kennedy (1-0) and Livonia Franklin (4-2) in last weekend's re-

"It's been a funny season," said Salter. "In a way, we're finally playing the way we should have been playing earlier."

Volleyball club debuts. in tourney

Boys volleyball made its debut in the Plymouth-Canton area. when the Victors Volleyball Club participated in an AAU Junior Olympic tournament May 30.

The Victors is a 17-and-under team whose members are students at Plymouth Canton and Salem high schools.

Salem varsity volleyball coach Betty Smith directs the team and was quite pleased by its secondplace finish.

"We've had a hard time getting together as an entire team to practice because of other sports and jobs," she said. "The tournament proved to be very rewarding in that we were able to work out some technical aspects on offense and defense that can't be done in practice."

IN POOL play, the Victors defeated Eagles V, a team from the Milford area, 15-12, 15-7, and Eagles VI 15-3, 17-15. The Plymgles VI 15-3, 17-15. The Plym- outh-Canton group split games 21 with Lapeer 15-10, 12-15.

The only other losses in pool play came at the hands of SVP. an experienced team from the Saginaw-Lansing area, 15-17, 11-15. The Victors failed to avenge that defeat when they lost to SVP again in the final 7-15, 14-16. "The best part of the day was our matches against SVP," Smith said. "They've been playing together for three years, and we've been playing together for less than three months. We're looking forward to playing them again soon." Members of the Victors include

Kurt Zelman, Chris DePoy, Pete Wong, Steve Walker, Dave Dahlberg, Bob Anzivino, Mike Vlaseck, Jerry Sumner, Steve Rudelic and Dean Blanchard.

The Victors compete June 20 in a Dearborn tournament and will travel to Chicago for a national | tournament June 26 to July 1.

"As couch of the year this year I was oldhir forward to participating in it looking forward to participating in it again," said Ruddy, who coached The Ecceptric team in that lopaided (7-1) loss to the Observer stars four years ago at Livonia Stevenson High School. Ruddy, as president of the Michigan High School Soccer Coaches Association, says he will approach the MHSAA board and recommend the game be reinstated.

I hope he's successful. The 'Classic' is more than just a game. It is a great reward for our area stars. Let's try to get it back.

Cougars' coach had foresight to scout foe

Barry Patterson, the first-year parties City softball coach, hopes some advance scouting will give his earn an edge when his unbeaten Cougars (29-0) take on East Detroit in the state Class A semifinals begin-hing at 5:30 p.m. Friday at Michigan State University.

"I've seen them twice because I figured I'd see them sooner or later." sald Patterson, who watched the Shamrocks (35-3) play in a pair of invitational tournaments back in April. "They have very good pitching and their shortstop hits the ball real well. They're solid everywhere, even at catcher, and defensively they're just as good."

Patterson's club must contend with a hot pitcher, junior right-hander Stephanie Hayes, who ran her scoreless innings string to 26 in a pair of regional wins last Saturday over Romeo and Fraser, Hayes has tossed 14 shutouts this season.

"She's good, but not overpowering," Patterson said. "But she hasn't given up a run in the state tournament and that should tell you some-

Part of Malone's success can be attributed to the work behind the

The two alternated most of the the slightly better defensive player, caught both games while Eby, the slightly better hitter, was used as a ted hitter.

Patterson said he is undecided about who will start behind the plate

"They're both pretty equal," Patterson said. "Jeny is quick and she smothers the dirt balls. And she gave us a big lift when she threw a runner out (at second base).

"IF TRACY STARTS she'll also bat. Both have developed into fine catchers. Next year both will be Another unsung player has been left fielder Kim Reith, a sophomore, who worked herself into the starting lineup shortly after the season be-

"She's been very steady and has gained a lot of composure," Patterson said. "I believe our team plays well in pressure situations. She was the one who drew the walk with the bases loaded against Bedford to win the game for us."

The Cougars, who got some clutch hitting last week, hope to get some timely bunting as well.

"We spent an the entire practice (Monday) working on sacrifice bunting," Patterson said. "We had two

SO EVERETT ISN'T the only mystery facing Salter as he readles CC for the final weekend of the season. The Shamrock coach can't be certain what he'll get from his own players.

Greg Haeger has been the steadi-ast performer. He shut out Kennedy in the regional last Saturday. The Shamrock lefthander is 8-4 with a 2.06 earned run average and 133 strikeouts in 74% innings. He will be on the mound against Everett Fridey.

"If Haeger's on like he was against Kennedy — he only walked three guys and gave up three hits -we've got a good chance," estimated Salter.

For Everett, righthander Charles Thomas is the scheduled starter. Thomas was 8-2 this year with a 2.50 ERA. Should he falter, righthander Tom Beard (8-2, 1.66 ERA) will likely relieve.

1 The Vikings started the season slowly, splitting their first 14 games before winning 20 of their last 23. Center fielder Mark Collett (.400, 24 RBI) and lead-off man Dan Dubois (.342) lead the hitters.

CC will need more than a great pitching performance by Haeger to survive. And that's where the uncerfainty creeps in. Entering last Saturday's regional, Salter had praised his team's resurgent hitting as the key reason for their tournament success.

SO WHAT happened? The Shamrocks got just one hit against Kennedy and five against Franklin.

Haeger leads the team with a .344 Gil Garcia has been CC's hottest Salter.

Members of Catholic Central's baseball team celebrate their victory in Saturday's Class A baseball regional at Wyandotte. Coach John Salter's ballclub plays Lansing Everett in the state semifinals Friday in Lansing. CC takes a 24-8 record into the game, the Vikings are 27-10.

hitter recently. In the two district wins, he was five-for-seven with eight runs batted in. For the season, he's hitting .333 with 27 RBI.

"When the game's on the line, he's average and 28 runs batted in, but the guy I want up there," praised

Another question mark for CC is righthander Doug Martin, the team's No. 2 pitcher who's been bothered by a bad back. Martin has a 6-2 record with a 1.46 ERA and 70 strikeouts in 52% innings.

The CC coach has no secret plan devised to guide his Shamrocks to the title. His strategy is simple: "Just play hard. Every team left is good. We're going in blind; we haven't seen them, but they haven't seen us, either."

Prep pitcher a Tiger pick

y Dan O'Meara Haff writer

Greg Haeger thought it was "pret-ty neat" being drafted by the Detroit Tigers, but his selection by the hometown team is apt to become a mere footnote to his baseball career. Catholic Central's pitching ace was selected in the 35th round of the amateur draft last week. But Haeger will more than likely honor his acceptance of another offer - to pitch for the University of Michigan.

Haeger, who will lead the Shamrocks into the Class A semifinals Friday, had already signed a national letter of intent to play for the Wolverines and therefore didn't anticipate being a high draft choice.

"I was expecting something kinda late because I'd made it pretty clear I was going to college," he said. "It was kinda neat, especially being the Tigers; I didn't expect it to happen."

IT ALSO WILL take a lucrative offer for Haeger, a Livonia resident, to pass up a scholarship to a prestigious school like U-M. But he has no illusions of that happening, considering the late round in which he was drafted.

"It is pretty much set," he said. "If the money is there, I'll do it, but I don't expect it to be unless something wonderful happens.

"I'm pretty much sure of going to college. They would have to come up with a lot of money to keep me from going to school. I've got a chance for a good education, and I want to take Haeger said he hadn't thought about how much money it would take for him to sign a pro contract now, but he figures he can improve himself and increase his stock with some experience and maturing at the college level.

Despite declaring his intentions to continue his education, the Tigers probably used a low draft choice to take a chance on acquiring a lefthanded pitcher, Haeger believes.

baseball

"AND SOME (scouts) like the way I swing (the bat) for some reason," he added.

Haeger is a dual threat for CC. Not only has he been a standout on the mound, compiling an 8-4 record with a 2.06 earned run average, but he is CC's leading hitter among the team's regulars. Haeger is hitting .344 and leads the Shamrocks in hits (32), runs batted in (28) and stolen bases (12).

"The thing he's got going for him is that he's not only a good pitcher, but he runs well and can play in the field." CC coach John Salter said. "He's got a quick bat, and collège scouts like that." ,

But it is Haeger's pitching that has raised the most eyebrows this spring, and he has developed into a true talent in his senior year.

Haeger was 3-4 as a sophomore and 0-3 last year when control proflems reduced his effectiveness and number of appearances. He has walked 54 in 74% innings this season, but he has established a strikeout-walk ratio of nearly $-to-1

HAEGER, WHOSE pitches have been clocked at 82-83 mph, fanned 10 batters in CC's 1-0 victory over Taylor Kennedy in the opening gama of Saturday's regional tournament at Wyandotte, raising his season total to 133.

"The potential was always ther& and when he got a little more control this year that was the difference. Salter said.

"He was 3-7 on the varsity after his junior year, and now he's going to get a scholarship to Michigan.

"Playing 4-3 in the state tournament (the Catholic League uses a three-ball, two-strike format), he's maintained his strikeout level and hasn't walked many," he added

CAMILLE MCCOY/staff photographer Director Rhoda Levine and composer Stanley Hollingsworth discuss some stage action at a rehearsal.

Barbara Windham, below, as Mother in the opera, "The Mother," and Jan Albright rehearse a scene from Stanley Hollingsworth's opera.

3 operas break the age barrier

By Carolyn DeMarco staff writer

Yes, the casts are made up primarily of children. And yes, it's based on two fairy tales and a contemporary children's book. But don't think "Opera Trilogy: Two Fantasies and a Farce" is strictly child's play, says Oakland University professor and composer-in-residence Stanley Hollingsworth.

Hollingsworth wrote the three musical tales, which will be performed at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 3 p.m. Sunday in the Meadow Brook Theatre. Rhoda Levine of New York is director. David Daniels, chairman of OU's department of music and dance, is musical director.

"If I had consciously written for children I would have used different restraints, I think," Hollingsworth said. "But it is appropriate. It's quickly moving, paced. In that sense it works for children. It's been picked up for children."

"The Selfish Giant," a story by Oscar Wilde, is the first of the three 30-minute performances. "Harrison Loved His Umbrella," an adaptation of a children's book written by Levine follows. "The Mother," a reworking of a Hans Christian Andersen tale, rounds out the evening.

"THE SELFISH GIANT" is the story of a giant who brought on perpetual winter when he forbade children from playing in his garden. Spring returns when a child slips unnoticed into the garden and begins singing. The opera stars John Paul White as the giant and Jan Albright as Linnet.

Both are associated with OU's department of music. A number of children 9-13 also appear.

"The first time I heard it perrmed," Hollingsworth "the curtain opened and in the dead silence I heard (in a lisp), 'Is that the selfish giant?' I knew it was not for children.

The "Giant" was written 15 years ago while Hollingworth was in Vienna. His teacher, Gian Carlo Menotti, suggested it as a complement to "The Mother," which he wrote at the age of 28, then, too, as a student of Menotti.

"Mother," says Hollingsworth, is a little known Andersen work and "a little sad." It tells the story of a mother (Barabara Windham of Bloomfield Hills) whose child is peacefully dying at an early age. She appeals for help and is shown the terrible life the child would live if he were saved. The revelation allows her to accept his death.

"Harrison," a buffer between the two more serious tales is what Levine calls "a musical cartoon." The musical uses the operatically untrained voices of a number of local children 12 and older.

THE RELATIONSHIP OF LEV-INE and Hollingsworth began at the Festival of Two Worlds 20 years ago in Spoleto, Italy. Their paths have crossed several times since. Levine, a New Yorker, has an international reputation in the musical theater, and has taught at the Aaron Copeland School of Music and Juilliard School of Music.

Of working with children, she says, "There must be honor and respect on both sides. Sometimes I think the only difference is that they're shorter and less experienced. They must be listened to given the freedom to trust Problems in directing children are "problems of circumstance," she said. "They're in school all day before they come to rehearsal. They have to be patient with us and we with them. Concentration is scattered. It's hard to rehearse and go back again and again. Repetition is hard on all of us. But it's only an ensemble that creates a viable piece. That includes the stage manager and the guy playing the Levine believes no delineation is needed between theater and children's theater. "Almost all theater is good theater for children, if by good theater we mean thought-provoking, interesting. Some things that are called children's theater are exceedingly good."

The well-trained singers repeatedfell short of any humor or impact because of poor stage directions. Their timing was way off.

The show's star, Stephen Bryant, as Figaro, showed potential as a singer. It was not until the fourth act that he was able to make his audiever. Philip Pierson, as Count Almaviva, found himself in much the same position. His voice was solid enough, but he had little idea of what to do on stage.

JULIE WRIGHT displayed wonderful stage presence and had an understanding of the regality of the role of Countess Almaviva. Unexplainably, she slowed the tempo of her "Dove sono," making the aria even more difficult. Wright has an exquisite natural sounding voice.

Ann Arbor festival focus on sesquicentennial

HE ANN Arbor Summer Festival, presenter of summertime cultural events, has announced its lineup for the 1987 season, which will run from June 20 through July 18, focusing on the state's sesquicentennial.

Headlining the 1987 festival will be New York's Circle Repertory Company with its acclaimed production of Sam Shepard's "Fool for Love."

The company, which does not normally appear outside of New York, will make its festival debut this season. One of the country's most respected theater troupes, Circle Rep has claimed numerous honors, including 39 Obie awards, 13 Drama Desk awards, two Tony awards, and a Pulitzer Prize.

In the old-world tradition of miniature theater, the Colla Family Marionettes from Milan, Italy, make their U.S. debut this summer with only two stops - Spoleto Festival USA and the Ann Arbor Summer Festival

A HAND-CARVED cast of over 200 puppets appear in "Excelsior," a miniature spectacle of breathtaking detail and imagina-

Other theatrical offerings include performance artists Michael Morchen and Bob Berky in "The Alchemedians," a vaudvillian evening combining comedy, illusion, clowning and magical virtuosity.

Ann Arbor's Michigan Theater continues its festival tradition with a silent film extravaganza, "The Three Musketeers," starring Douglas Fairbanks. Playing the original movie score, the Ann Arbor Chamber Orchestra will accompany the film and a alive onstage vaudeville prologue.

Ann Arbor Civic Theater's annual festival offering will be "A Romantic Comedy," the fastpaced modern romance by Bernard Slade. The Brecht Company will make its festival debut with "Baal," Bertolt Brecht's first maior work

FOLLOWING ITS successful production of Bernstein's "Mass," Ann Arbor's Peninsula Productions is slated to present "Nightingale," Charles Strouse's charming musical for children and young-at-heart adults.

A special matinee performance of "Nightingale" serves as the focal point of the festival's annual children's day. Also for young people, Ann Arbor's Wild Swan Theater performs its heartwarming production of "Hawk I'm Your Brother," performed in English and sign language.

Overtones of color recipe swapping

Y SISTER-IN-law, Sue Velthoven, thinks that I make the world's best barbecued chicken. So when she had a party at her lake property recently, she asked if I would grill the chicken for everyone.

Apparently she bragged on my BBQ chicken because as soon as I lit up the grill, several women came over and watched every move I made. Blushing, I asked them, "What's going on here?" They said they had heard all about my famous BBQ chicken and asked me all kinds of cooking questions.

Knowing it was going to be a big letdown, I broke my silence and said, easoning salt." After a moment of silence, they all said, "And? What else?" they queried. "Just seasoning salt and well, BBQ sauce. I guess you must have some BBQ sauce. Actually, it's all in how you hold the bottle of seasoning salt. I hold it about 60 degrees and shake the bottle slightly up wind at about eight inches from the meat . .

ONE BY ONE, they each politely excused themselves and the famous chef was left alone.

It's true, my chicken recipe was disappointing, but that's not true regarding my color recipes. Since I started featuring favorite color recipes from teachers, artists and students, I have received many exciting color combinations.

Carmen Enriquez is one waterco-lorist whom I greatly admire. Her olors are, to me, state of the art. I asked Carman if she wouldn't mind sharing some of her favorite color combinations and this is what "I generally don't like the green pigments (as they come from a tube) unless they have been modified. I have never seen a tree that was actually viridian or thalo green. Of the green available, I prefer terre verte and chromium oxide green. (Also listed as oxide of chromium green, depending on the manufacturer).

"Terre verte is a very delicate almost grey-green. Chromium oxide is a more intense green; closer to foliage greens but still usually needs some modification. Actually, any of the greens available can be used if you accept the fact that you are going to have to do some work mix-

"If you have viridian or thalo green, by all means use it, but try mixing it with a little raw sienna or burnt sienna and see what happens.

"This is where a color wheel can be very useful. Remember that you can make a color less intense by mixing in a little of the complementary color. (The color directly across from it on your color wheel.) Now, if you see that viridian is sort of bluegreen, look directly across the color wheel from blue and you will find red-orange. Burnt sienna is really just a dull red-orange. Add a little burnt sienna and it will make your viridian much less intense. Be careful, though, add too much and you will end up with something looking more like a polluted river than a tree. Just a touch is usually all that

"WHAT CAN YOU do if you already have the viridian or thalo green on your paper and then discover it simply won't work? Let it dry and then put a wash (lots of water!) of the complement over it. Because of the transparency of watercolor, they should combine usually and the second color should tone down the

"I usually like to mix my own greens from scratch using Payne's grey as a base, then adding different yellows, depending on the desired result. I keep in mind that a cool yellow (such as cadmium yellow light or cadmium lemon) will create more intense greens than a warm yellow (like cadmium yellow deep or new gamborge).

"Other suggestions: I love soft greys, Nothing is more beautiful to me than a soft violet-grey or a soft rose-grey. One of my all-time favor-ites is (Winsor & Newton's) neutral tint. It is a beautiful violet-grey and very soft and delicate when diluted with a lot of water.

"Sometimes I use it pure and sometimes I will mix other colors with it. A touch of Indian red can create a wonderful rose-grey. A touch of French ultamarine can make a blue-violet grey. I highly recommend this pigment.

I also use Paynes grey alone and in mixtures. One thing to be aware of, however, is that this pigment can vary according to manufacturer. Made by one company, it might have a violet undertone, similar to neutral

 When a light ray hits a non-metallic surface such as glass or water, part of it is reflected completely in one direction. This is called "polarized light." Light from a blue sky is polarized because it is reflected off particles in the atmosphere.

 A polarizing filter consists of two pieces of glass which rotates relative to one another. When the rotation is 90 degrees, the polarizer will block the "polarized light" in the sky. Becuase less light now strikes the film, the result in the final picture will be a darker blue sky.

 A polarizing filter works for both color and black and white film. To obtain the maximum darkening effect, try to take your shot at a right angle to the sun.

 And in black and white photography, use a polarizer in combination with a red filter for an absolutely black sky effect. Further, because you're always looking directly through the lens of your single lens reflex cameras, you can see the darkening effect happening as you rotate the filter. Remember a polarizer will not darken an rid of unwanted reflections on a lake or disturbing glare from a store window.

The degree of control of removing reflections depends on the camera-to-subject angle and the amount of rotation of the filter. Often, an unwanted reflection can be completely eliminated.

As in darkening a blue sky, what you see is what you'll get with your SLR camera. Looking through the viewfinder, you can actually watch reflections being eliminated.

 Color saturation can be increased with a polarizer. There are two types of light reflected by most surfaces, specular and diffuse. Specular re-flections are neutral (no color) and tend to dilute the diffuse reflections (those that give objects their color). But a polarizer absorbs the specular reflections, allowing the diffuse, colored light through to the film. The result is an increase in color saturation.

As with most filters, you need to be aware that a polarizer has a filter factor. It reduces the amount of light reaching the film. You will need to increase your exposure by about 11/2 stops. But because your SLR has through-the-lens metering, the exposure adjustment is automatic, so you'll be A polarizing filter will reduce reflections on better able to concentrate on improving your pho-

The show's best acting came from Chris Jones Wehrill as Cherubino. Although her voice was not as secure in her two arias "Non so piu" and "Voi che sapete," she understood her character and gave life to otherwise dull scenes.

Aaron Hunt also managed to elicit some reaction to his portrayal of the lawyer Don Curzio.

Choohye Lee, as Susanna, did not have the depth in her middle range to project the sound in either her recitatives or her arias. Her acting was quite delightful. Unfortunately, it was difficult to understand her diction or that of the oth-

NICE RANCH near Pembroke Park.

3 bedrooms, 2½ baths, 2 ear garage, appliances. Excellent condition. $111,900. By owner. 643-9833 SPLENDID LOCATION

If you're country folks - please read on. The location is a helf hour north of Rochester and a mile west of Rochester Road. The site is reached by winding, tree lined country roads. The setting is truly magnificant; over 20 acres of mature oats, maples, charries and pinus rooted on severely ravined terrain. Literally hundreds of acres of litte natural beauty completely surrounds and obscures the house area from outside view. Deer, grouse, fox, wood duots – even bluebirds are in residence or transient, and are seen regularly. There is no lewn; the adjoining grounds remain in the natural state.

The house is 4 years old, its style is country chales; custom designed, shed and built by Dick Hamili of Grand Ledge, in the style of his Schues Mountain designs. Perched on a ridge, it has great views from all sides – a wet land (great pond site) from one angle, and dense woods from all others. The exterior is coder in its entirity; board and betten siding and hand split roof shakes. The three car detached garage is of identical construction.

detached garage is of identical construction.

The home interior is truly ruetic. Walts are solid wood peneled and rough plastered. Doors are custom built of solid ceder with unique wooden hardware. All cellings are bearred, about helf with T&G plants supported by massive solid ceder beams, posts and steped bracing. The great room has a searing cathedral celling, with open stairway to the second tevel beloony. It opens onto a screened poroh which is also accessible by French doors from the dining room. The other side crise out for a multi-level dealt, which has not yet been designed. The future dealt can be reached by French doors from the master bedroom. The kitchen is decidely country. On the upper level is a large beth and two bedrooms, one with its own beloony. The lower family room opens on one side to a covered brick patio and has unrestricted visibility from the other. The workshop area, completely exposed, is ideally situated for a 4th bedroom or large office.

The catch to all this is the price, as you might expect. The efte preparation, wide drive, in ground power and phone lines and the house itself was expensive. Still, the asking price of $230,000 is researable, considering land and building costs today and the quality Dick Hamill built into the house itself. If you're interested further in this one-of-a-kind home, please call 1-628-6949 for additional information or an appointment. We love the please and would be pleased to show you around. Thanks.
