Water board puts snag in sewer plan

By Anita Crone Diane Gale staff writers

There is another roadblock for Canton and Plymouth townships to clear before hooking up with a new sewer system.

The Michigan Water Resource Commission denied plans June 18 to send excess flows from the Western Utility Authority involving Plymouth, Canton and Northville townships - to the Ypsilanti Community Utility Authority sewage treatment plant.

The action will delay efforts by the communities to hook up to a new sewer system, which is reminiscent of the long-stalled Supersewer plans.

We've said we won't spend money on engineering studies until we're assured we can go to the plant," said Maurice Breen, Plymouth Township supervisor.

"We're still putting together the mechan-

THE SEVEN MEMBER commission rejected the plan and requested a study on the impact of increased flows of the lower Huron River and on Belleville Lake.

"The commission was reluctant to authorize the new level even on a study basis since it might be construed as approval for expansion," said Thomas Hoogerhyde, commissioner representing the Michigan Department of Public Health. Plant expansion was needed by a preliminary agreement between YCUA and Plymouth, Canton and Northville townships. Currently, YCUA is running at 50 percent of its capacity, said Roy Schrameck, Department of Natural Resource district su-

"My understanding is there's not sufficient capacity in YCUA to serve the Western Wayne Utility to ultimate flow (which includes a 20-year plan)," Schrameck said.

THE COMMISSION'S ACTION caught WATA and YCUA officials by surprise.

Outgoing Water Resources Commission Chairman James Murray said he believed YCUA expansion is possible.

"I favor expansion of the plant. I'm not sure I favor doubling the capacity but I think some expansion would be acceptable." Murray said studies performed by DNR and YCUA engineers have shown YCUA's outflow of effluent has usually been well below allowable levels. YCUA empties into Willow Creek, a shallow, slow-flowing river, and eventually ends up in the Huron. Studies have shown that YCUA is not a contributor to pollution in either the Huron River or Willow Creek," Murray said.

The seven member water resources commission rejected the plan and requested a study on the impact of increased flows of the lower Huron River and on Believille Lake.

On golden quest

Senior Olympics lures 62-year-old

By Diane Gale staff writer

When Joan Jasin was 40 her sister suggested she was getting too old to be on a baseball team.

But she didn't stop then and she has no plans to slow down now.

At 62 the Canton resident has been accepted to compete in the swimming events in the first National Senior Olympics, which will be held in St. Louis, Mo., late this month and early next month.

Just because she's over 60 'doesn't mean I have to sit in a rocking chair," she says.

people

JASIN IS A long way from that with a rigorous routine of jogging 2.5 miles four times weekly, playing on three baseball teams, swimming three or four times weekly and playing volleyball with the Canton's senior citizen's sports programs. Somehow she finds time to help with her husband's businesses in Garden City.

"I'm up at 6 a.m. and go to bed at 10 p.m. - so there's no time to sit around," says Jasin, tilting her head back and laughing with her entire body. "You can feel down and go out and exercise and feel 100 percent better - it's a shame people just don't investigate that. I just want to keep active to stay fit. I don't want to be a burden to my family." The mother of four says her children always have been "very supportive" of her athletic interests. "I remember about 10 years ago saying I shouldn't be playing softball," she says. "And they said 'Go on, get your glove and play mom.'

Jasin has a youthful spirit that emanates from her relaxed posture and optimistic attitude. "I try to look for the best. It's a waste to get angry about something you can't change, so you turn your thoughts to something else."

City eases controls on cruisers

By Doug Funke staff writer

City of Plymouth officials this weekend will begin to ease up a bit on traffic controls they gradually implemented this spring to deal with downtown cruisers.

Barriers that have been placed in the driveways of business along Main Street after closing hours won't be installed this Friday, at least initially, said Paul Sincock, assistant to the city manager.

"We think people have an understanding of the overall program. We're in a position we can remove barricades and use signage that is in place or will be in place.

We will still enforce no-trespassing in those parking lots," Sincock said. "If things get out of hand, we will put them back in place."

PLANS NOW call for continuing to limit traffic to one lane in each direction on Main and prohibiting right turns from westbound Ann Arbor Road to northbound Main and Harvey, Sincock said.

The middle two lanes of Main again would be limited to emergency weeks, Sincock said. "If they continue to downsize, we're moving in the right direction. Every step we make is evaluated.

We'll see how things go." Police issued 97 tickets last weekend, not including parking citations, Sincock said. Eighty were for traffic offenses, 17 for ordinance violations.

"I think additional officers have had a tremendous impact on the overall situation.

"I think additional police presence has a calming effect on people who visit the community. The tendency is not to knowingly violate laws in the presence of police officers."

A DOZEN officers worked Friday and Saturday nights, Sincock said.

Preliminary returns of a survey of residents and business people directly involved in programs to deal with cruising problems indicate that they're satisfied with steps taken by the city, Sincock said.

Eighty-six of 239 questionnaires 36 percent — had been returned as of Tuesday.

Among the findings, according to Sincock:

 Ninety-seven percent indicated they believe that the resident-only lems on side streets

 Ninety-four percent indicated they believe that the no-trespassing program has reduced problems in private parking lots.

 Ninety percent indicated they believe that the designation of an emergency-vehicle-only lane on Main Street is appropriate.

 Eighty-two percent indicated they believe that placing additional trash containers on Main has reduced cruise-related litter.

 Seventy-two percent indicated that they believe the city is doing everything in its power to decrease cruising problems.

School construction projects all on time

Construction work is under way at Plymouth Canton Community Schools sites as residents see progress generated by voter approval of a $4.5 million school bond issue last

School board members Monday approved a $58,273 contract to R.J. Taylor Corp. for renovation of five portable classrooms at Allen, Bird. Fiegel and Ericksson elementary

The 15-year-old classrooms were bought from the Gibraltar School District last spring for $3,000 each and were in need of some repairs along with adding restroom facilities for two of the classrooms.

ELEMENTARY school standards include a bathroom, sink, fountain, two chalkboards, an attractive exterior and a well-lit interior, with color schemes to match the main build-

'Use of the buildings will vary in each building. Some will be used for basic classroom instruction; others will be used for support services," said Michael Homes, assistant superintendent for instruction.

The total cost per unit, which includes installation, renovation, utility hookup and window coverings, will be about $28,110 per unit. School officials say that the cost of a new unit would have been $43,200 each. This represents a 48 percent savings by purchasing used units.

The McFadden Corporation, the only other company specializing in portable classroom renovation, could not complete the work before the school opening in fall and declined to bid for that reason.

According to Homes, projected 1987-88 enrollment at the four schools are: Bird, 650; Allen, 600; Eriksson, 780; and Fiegel, 625. Yearend enrollment was: Bird, 582; Allen, 606; Eriksson, 794; and Fiegel, 605.

The board also approved $45,490.50 for the Van Buren Electric Co. to supply utilities to the five portable classrooms.

Portable classrooms have been used since 1977, said Homes. "Locations have changed and the district has added some."

"Pupil enrollment went down in the lower 1980s. Balloon mortgages came due and people faced layoffs and increased mobility. We went from a high of 17,269 in 1981-82 (including continuing education) to a low of about 15,000 in about four years. We grew about 170 kids last year," Homes said.

Projected enrollment for next year, including adult education, is lb,uuu, ne said.

are in use in the district. These include one at Bird, two at Erikkson, three at Field, two at Isbister, two at East Middle, four at West Middle and one at Central Middle that houses the clothing bank, said Homes.

IN OTHER board business, Barton-Malow, project managers for the district's 1986 bond issue program, presented this update:

• Gallimore Elementary addition will be completed by the third week of July. Interior painting has started as well as the final site work.

• All classroom overhead piping at Pioneer Middle School has been completed two weeks ahead of schedule. The total project is 45 percent complete.

• Grading operations at Hoben Elementary was expected to be completed this month.

• The Central Middle School Renovation project is on schedule.

All projects are within budget. Total awards and anticipated expenditures as of May 4 were $4,039,885.

Teen fights for his life after mishap

A 17-year-old Canton youth is fighting for his life after being crushed Tuesday by shelves that apparently collapsed in the stockroom of a Livonia business.

Mark Shilakes, 43637 Hanover, is in critical condition at St. Mary Hospital. Police said he was pinned against a wall by the shelves while doing stockroom work at Continental Transmission, 27950 Five Mile.

He was alone at the time of the incident, which was reported at 8:59

Police, noting the teen's "grave" condition when they arrived on the scene, said Shilakes' air supply might have been cut off when he was pinned against the wall.

Police said Shilakes was alone for about 10 minutes before the accident. He was taking parts off a shelf when the shelf apparently collapsed, pinning him against the wall.

Other employees discovered the accident when they went into the

It may not have been a miracle, ut it sure brought a lot of spirit to nery on the coment in front homes A'Becket Catholic ing the Hash flood Sunday.

Some people thought the phenomenon might have been a sign or a miracle, but parish pastor, the Rév. Ernest Porcari, who "didn't look upon it as a miracle," has a "natural explanation"

THE PAPER underneath the design got wet and acted as an artificial glue and the wind lifted the ends of the paper, which also helped pre-

"The amazing thing that happened was the Mass celebration," Porcari said. "When people saw what was done they came to church and there was an extra joy in the participation and singing of the hymns. There was a friendly spirit."

The multi-colored floral picture — made from 52 funeral arrangements, clippings from parishioners' gardens and flowers that were purchased — was in the design of a lamb, victory flag, the word PEACE, chalice with host and dove.

"That night we had the thunder storm and not one leaf or flower moved," he said. "It stayed intact."

A minority of the petals were placed together with glue.

A Michigan Catholic photographer took pictures of the collage Monday and shortly after he took his shots, the wind picked up and "the design began to decompose," Porcari said."

The design was made in celebration of the feast of Corpus Christi, the body and blood of Christ.

Its presence also commemorated the 10th anniversary of the parish. Porcari has been with St. Thomas A'Becket since the start.

The custom is common in many European countries and it was wel-comed by parishioners — even the 13 church members who arrived at 5 a.m. to construct the 30-feet by 10-feet picture in time for the first Mass at 8:30 a.m.

LABOR ISSUE - By a vote of 227 for and 197 against, the House passed and sent to the Senate a bill (HR 281) promoted by organized la-bor to outlaw "double-breasting" by employers in the construction indus-

The term refers to the growing practice of employers' circumventing collective bargaining agreements by setting up new operations to do similar work without union contracts.

Supporter William Clay, D-Mo., said that by undermining existing labor-management pacts "doublebreasting . . . distorts the bargaining process and denies workers a working conditions."

nt Marge Roukema, R-N.J., said "double-breasting simply represents a desire to compete in non-union marketplace where union shops cannot compete."

Members voting yes agreed with organized labor that the bill should the department in fiscal 1988-89, a bill that remained in debate.

Sponsor Clay Shaw, R-Pla., said "if we do not identify those within our diplomatic community who abuse narcotics, sooner or later our enemies will."

Opponent Steny Hoyer, D-Md., said "we are not in the Soviet Union. we are in America, and it may be inconvenient sometimes to have constitutional rights which prevent the state from doing certain things."

Members voting yes favored drug testing of diplomats with top security clearances. Voting yes: Republicans Pursell and Broomfield. Voting no: Democrats Hertel, Ford and Levin.

THE CONTRAS - By a vote of 103 for and 257 against, the House rejected an amendment to the State Department authorization bill (HR 1777; above) characterizing the American-backed contra rebels as legitimate insurgents waging civil war in their homeland against the Sandinista rulers of Nicaragua.

This would have expressed the sense of Congress that President Reagan recognize a "state of belli-gerency" in Nicaragua under international law. Any territory controlled by the contras would have international standing as a state.

Sponsor Robert Dornan, R-Calif., said the contras "are Nicaraguans dying on Nicaraguan soil" whereas the multi-national Marxist Sandinista forces "resemble the bar scene in 'Star Wars.'

Opponent Barney Frank, D-Mass., said the message of the amendment know how to conduct foreign policy ... in Nicaragua, and therefore Congress has got to intervene."

Members voting yes wanted the president to declare a state of belligerency in Nicaragua.

Voting yes: Broomfield.

Voting no: Puruell, Hertel, Ford and Levin.

The measure (S 2) would make public campaign funding available in the general election to Congressional candidates who volunteered to

HIS YEAR the Plymouth Mail will observe its 100th anniversary — a century in the Plym-

While bicentennials and sesquicentennials may be more in vogue, we still are proud of being able to serve the needs of our readers in Plymouth since 1887. A centennial, like a golden wedding anniversary, is nothing to take lightly.

Thinking about how to announce the centennial year of the Plymouth Mail, it we considered the idea of a herald of trumpets. So it seemed only natural to be first our centennial year with the help of the Plymouth Community Band and the Thursday night Concerts in the Park summer series.

no in recognition of the Mail's years of service to Plymouth, the Community Band tonight will dedicate its opening Econcert to the Mail and will perform music appropriately titled for the media in general, i.e., Sousa's "Washington Post March."

DURING INTERMISSION of tonight's concert, a special Plymouth Mail centennial issue will be distributed to members in the audience at Kellogg Park. The issue contains a number of articles that will provoke memories for many residents — names such as J.H. Steers, F.W. Samsen, Elton Eaton, Sterling Eaton, Mike Kiley, Dave Wiley, Bill Sliger, Paul Chandler, Russell Strick-land, Tommy Thompson, W.W. Edgar and Philip H. Power.

Also included is a special story, never heard before by most residents, told by Russell Kirk of his boyhood days growing up in Old Village. The editor hopes most readers will find the issue worth

dose of money

The concert will begin at 8 p.m. Reg-ar concert-goers will bring their own lankets and lawn chairs and be prepared for a relaxing and most enjoyable evening of music in the park. We hope you have made plans to be in the park

THE ACTUAL first issue of the Plymouth Mail was Sept. 16, 1887, so an observance will be planned for mider. But we wanted to announce mial this week to properly recognize the many contributions the Mail had made to the Plymouth community for 80 years.

Plymouth has grown from a village to a town to a suburban community. As an important railroad center and an industrial center in its own right, Plymouth was slower than other communities in joining the ranks of suburbs, but now is part of the western suburbs. Plymouth's geographic isolation has been broken; our remoteness is a thing

Likewise, the Plymouth Mail has changed — from a country weekly to a suburban newspaper. The Plymouth Observer, successor to the Mail, is part of that evolutionary process — from hot type to offset, from eight columns to six, from rural to suburban, from typewriter to computer.

What we realize, in 1987, is that we continue to be part of that evolutionary process. Plymouth and the Observer continue to grow and change. Neither of us is even close to the final chapter. The story continues to be told. We are proud to serve Plymouth readers in 1987 and look forward to sharing the future.

Really wish you could've been there. You would have been touched, too.

Actually, it's been a whole lot of years since I ve been to a church s per. Some things never change, thank God. The chicken was crisp, the vegetables just right. And it was hot.

But everyone had a genuine smile, despite the humidity. It was a real piece of Americana. Sure, sounds almost too good to be true. But it was, believe me it was. It was an evening of celebration for what I find to be an incredible group

NOW THESE are folks whose only reward is the time they put into a job for which they don't get paid. And it's a job most people just wouldn't do. You see these are the people who volunteer their time to take care of the dying. Not much glory there. Not like working for some charity that fights to keep scrub-faced kids alive or that combats a disease. Hope and glory always beckon at the end of a brightly lit tunnel for those causes.

BUT THOSE who work at the Hospice of Southeastern Michigan produce a shining light that not even the brightest of artificial beams could ever hope

They have taken on a job that others would fear and transformed it into a celebration. They give back dignity and joy to the dying who often have been rejected by the rest of society - sometimes even their families. Last week the volunteers had their awards dinner as they huddled in the little church. Corporate executives sat next to blue collar workers who sat next to housewives who sat next to physicians and nurses.

But the rank you hold in life makes little difference when you're a hospice volunteer. What counts is your compassion and how hard you are willing to work to bring joy into a family's heart.

Winning the fight for equality: Progress at a dinosaur's pace

DINOSAURS ARE getting a bum rap. That's the word from Richard Redding, curator of collections at the Cranbrook Institute of Science where lifelike dinosaurs are stomping, roaring and otherwise putting on a gigantic and spectacular show through Sept. 6.

When you say something went the way of the dinosaur, explains Redding, you are implying something failed to keep pace with the times and became obsolete, probably through shortsight-but only after ruling the planet for 130 million years. Humans still have a few millenniums to go to match that record. Still, during our short time on earth, unions have created their own dino-ture, which leads me to the topic of a. Don't hurl stones at me yet;

SO WHEN I equate dinosaurs with feminists, I am not trying to be insulting. I'm talking about two groups not used to getting the proper credit.

This all reminds me of a stewardess in the early '70s who explained that she was not a feminist because the women's movement had done nothing to help her. She was married and a mother, something that would have grounded her career had feminists not made a ruckus. Pilots, by the way, were always allowed to be husbands and fathers. Pilots were also men. WASHINGTON (AP) — Michigan's Democratic state treasurer, Robert Bowman, is keeping his own counsel on whether he'll seek election to the U.S. House of Representatives but he's already talking like a candidate.

And Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, the incumbent in the 2nd District (which includes Livonia) on which Bowman has his eye, already is willing to accept the possibility that the treasurer will be his opponent in November 1988.

Bowman is not the only possible opponent. Dean Baker, a University of Michigan professor who challenged Pursell last year, says he will run again. State Sen. Lana Pollack, D-Ann Arbor, also has been mentioned as a potential Bowman, though, may be best known of the three, and if he decides to run and survives the primary hurdles to win the Democratic nomination, the voters of Ann Arbor, Jackson and other cities in the district could find themselves amid · 1988's hottest U.S. House race in Michi-

like that is a commitment not just for '88 and '89 but a commitment, obviously, for the remainder of this year and 1988 through November."

A Bowman-Pursell contest would pit two men as different in background as they are in political affiliation.

Bowman, 32, is a former Wall Street investment banker with a master's degree from Wharton. Pursell, 54, owned an office supply store in Plymouth before his election to Congress and has a master's from Eastern Michigan University. Bowman, as an appointed public official in state government, made his reputation during the dark days of the last recession by working to restore fiscal balance to the state's finances. Pursell, since his election to Congress in 1976, has played a solid, behind-thescenes role in the appropriations and budgeting process as a moderate. The race would determine if the Wall Street wunderkind can unseat the local finance against solid experience and seniority, in the national financial pro-

Bowman says this: "I think the day is coming where we can no longer fiddle at the national level. State government is where the agenda was set for the last 10 years in this country, and I think the federal government is, by necessity, going to become the agenda-setting government in the '90s."

He says the United States has become the laughingstock of its allies as a result of fiscal mismanagement:

'You're now in Washington. You know what it's like there . . . When we owe the world more debt than Brazil and Argentina and Mexico combined, when we're the subject of jokes instead of praise in the world and national communities, it's time to come to grips with

Pursell says this:

"Tell him the Democratic Party controls the House and Senate, and the state Democratic machine with Bob Bowman increased the state income taxes of Michigan and that's where they got their revenue."

He says much of the credit for the success of Michigan's economy under Gov. Blanchard and Bowman's tutelage belongs elsewhere than in Lansing: "He has taken credit for investing state money that all the other states have invested also. It's nice to be on the bandwagon but that was a national product of tax cuts here and not tax increases. He's part of the tax-and-spend Lots can happen between not decided to run. Purpell may decide not to the Bowman, despite his high visibility could fore in the primary. So could fine sell, despite his incumbency.

There is no guarantee that a Pursell Bowman contest will ever take place. But if it does, it is sure to be a classic.

(An open letter to city of Plymouth Police Chief).

On May 15, 1987, an emergency situation arose regarding a guest in our home that necessitated immedi-ate attention. We placed a call to "911" and a rescue squad arrived at our house on Penniman Avenue within five minutes. Our guest was given oxygen and rushed to the hospital. We are happy to report that he is now doing very well. We are so very grateful to have received such prompt attention and are proud to live in a town such as Plymouth, knowing its citizens are secure in the care of such a fine police and fire department.

Thank you again so much for being the fine and dedicated people that you are.

First-, second- and third-place ribbons were also presented for the most colorful pet, the most talented pet, the best-dressed pet and the best-groomed pet. The final category of competition, the pet with the longest tail, required the careful use of a measuring tape.

Each pet-and-owner team was

"I was overwhelmingly impressed," said Smith, who is parks supervisor for Canton Township. The pet show was sponsored by the Canton Country Festival and the Canton Parks and Recreation Department.

Smith had worried about turnout at the pet show; the event wasn't included in last year's festival and he thought perhaps the crowd this year would be small.

"I was really pleased."

The talent portion of the show was a crowd favorite. Pets that performed particularly impressive tricks got an appreciative round of applause from the crowd; even those animals that didn't do as well still got their share of applause.

Some pets in the talent competition didn't do quite what they were told to do by their owners; some pets, in fact, seemed to prefer socializing with the other animals or simply exploring their surroundings. That lack of obedience is particularly difficult for children who participate in the show with their pets, Smith said.

THE TRIP to downtown Detroit was among the memories class members and their spouses shared during the reunion. Class members held a 25th reunion and have held reunions every five years since then. "We were cheapskates," said Jim Stimpson, a class member now living in Estero, Pla., south of Fort Myers. "We took it and spent it on ourselves. And the school never forgave us for it."

None of the class members at the reunion, however, seemed to feel any guilt over the way he'd spent the

"In fact, the teachers afterward thought it was great," Mary Gilles said. No stern school administrator appeared on the scene at Saturday's reunion, demanding a gift from the class members.

Battles against evil are not easily seen

He wasn't always so sloven in ap-pearance. I remember him from earlier years when he hitchhiked to attend university classes. He was neatly dressed, and carefully neatly dressed, and carefully grouned. He exemplified young adulthood making a worthy contribution to the well-being of life.

I do not know what happened to him in those years between yesterday and today. I can guess that he is addicted to something destructive to body and spirit. Human beings ordinarily take better care of themselves. He is losing a battle with an evil and destructive power.

EVERY TIME I see him, I grieve for him. His span of life for the cultivation of his God-given gifts was

I think of Robert Frost's cryptic escription of the span of life: "The old dog barks backward without getting up. I can remember when he was a pup." I cannot forget this person's purposeful stride, which has now turned into aimless transience.

Do others mourn this loss of human potential? Surely. Too many try too hard to make something of

The bettle between good and evil is often less dramatic than we esp-pore. Some say that the road to bell is paved with good deeds. Perhaps the road to heaven is paved with bad

The Judeo-Christian heritage has always challenged the ultimate pur-pose of benevolent charity. Saving one's own life can also be losing

THERE ARE many ways to fight the evil in our world. No one can ever know the full experience of that struggle within another. No one can every fully measure the success of evil's power, nor the extent of good's restraint in the life of any other per-

I do not want to forget the trace this one person has left in my life. And I hope it is for the right reasons. To remember that the span of life unfolds one moment after the other is also to remember that the purpose of life must always be nurtured by the hope for its ultimate victory over evil. To remember what has happened in community is also to remember it . . . hopefully for good.

membership still is growing gradually, almost at the same rate as the population, with a similarly growing bloc on the outside.

Both groups, slowly expanding, are staying about the same share of the citizenry.

About 60 percent of Americans are active members of churches or synagogues, a proportion that has prevailed in recent years, while the other 40 percent has remained unaf-

The statistics were issued this week in the new Yearbook of American and Canadian Churches 1987," compiled by the research department of the National Council of Churches, and published by Abingdon Press of Nashville, Tenn.

Overall, U.S. churches are neither gaining nor losing membership," says yearbook editor Constant H. Jacquet Jr. of the council's research and evaluation office.

Mainline church losses have slowed, and growth in even the fastest-growing church bodies has tended to slow down a bit," he adds.

THE FIGURES, covering 218 religious bodies, show U.S. total membership at 143,926,363, a gain of 754,225, or .53 percent for 1985, the latest year for consolidated totals.

At the same time, government statistics indicate the population grew by almost 1 percent.

While the data collected from the church bodies themselves, which regularly cleans their rolls to remove dropouts, show about 60 per-cent of Americans affiliated, polls regularly show more than 70 percent claim involvement.

The yearbook also gives other church data, including financial statistics showing the average U.S. church member gave $322, up from $300 the year before, the increase outstripping the inflation rate of 3.8 percent

That per capita giving has increased 366 percent since 1961 when it was only $60, but when the figures are adjusted for inflation amounts to only 29.7 percent in real terms.

IN CANADA, overall religious membership increased by .31 percent for the year, slightly less than in the United States, growing to 16,526,723, or 49,857 more than the year before.

Seminary enrollment stayed about steady at 56,355, slightly down in the United States and slightly up in Canada, the proportion growing for 13 years and now at 26.4 percent of the

AN UPTURN in the value of church construction, begun in 1983, continued in the new figures, with U.S. Department of Commerce fig-ures showing the total reached $2,409 billion compared to $2.232 billion the year before.

Some relatively small denominations reported some of the largest percentage gains in membership, among them the Presbyterian Church in America, a break-away denomination from the now-merged 3-million-member Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), up 5.75 percent to 177,917; the Assemblies of God, the denomination of such TV evangelists as Jimmy Swaggart and Jim Bakker, up 2.28 percent to 2,082,878; and the Seventh-day Adventists, up 2,04 percent to 651,954.

Among larger denominations with net increases were the Roman Catholic Church, up .71 percent to $3.6 million; the Southern Baptist Comvention, up .95 percent to 14.5 million, and the Lutheran Church-Mileouri Synod, up .38 percent to 2,63 million

Retail spurt

When the going gets tough, the tough will have a lot more places to go shopping

staff writer

Detroit's retail market isn't splitting at the seams, but it is growing. From strip malls to new anchor stores in the malls, much of the activity is in the burgeoning northwest suburbs.

Major retailers like Mainstreet, Mervyns and Target are moving into the Detroit market. Mainstreet will have anchor stores in several malls, including Northland, Westland and Livonia Mall.

Developers are split on whether the growth will continue. Some say the market is on the upswing; others say it's nearly saturated.

Doug Glaza, executive vice president of Frankel and Associates, said his company is trying to bring new names into the Detroit retail game. Frankel, developers of Somerset Mall in Troy, said the market continues to grow.

"We've never had more interest in Somerset," Glaza said. "That means people are interested in Detroit."

Douglas Mossman, an owner of Oakland Mall Ltd., has developed the nearly complete Oakland Square in Troy. He said the market is nearly saturated

"I personally feel we're getting to the point where the pie is only so large," Mossman said.

Milt Blumberg of Ramco-Gershenson said the Detroit retail market has been very strong the last few years. Ramco-Gershenson developed West Oaks and West Oaks II in Novi. Blumberg said new chains "are coming in and bringing new retail techniques with them.'

Here's a review of new shopping areas expected to open this year.

· One of the largest new developments in western Wayne County is Laurel Park West in Livonia featuring Jacobson's and a host of other stores. The complex has been planned for more than a decade. Jacobson's is expected to open Aug. 15 with remaining stores opening later this year at Six Mile and Newburgh roads. Livonia Mall will also get a MainStreet store, one of several Chicago-based Federated Department Stores has built or will build in the Detroit area.

• In Westland, MainStreet is also moving in. The Westland store of 70,000 square feet is being built at the southeast section of Westland Center. It is expected to open by Nov. 1.

On Warren west of Wayne Road is West Ridge, a 375,000-square-foot development to include Target and Mervyns. It is expected to open this summer. The city's planning director, George Willhelmi, said "we're filling up fast but we've still got a fairly good amount of retail acreage left."

· Garden City officials envision a long-vacant six-acre parcel of land near Ford and Middlebelt will become a 60,000-100,000-square-foot retail center. A real estate broker recently of the plans, but the city hasn't yet seen a site plan or firm commitment. There were once three supermarkets in the Ford-Middlebelt area; all closed in the last 20 years.

 Canton economic development director Dave Nicholson says several projects are planned and several more are under construction. Coventry Commons, a 115,000-square-foot project at Morton Taylor and Joy roads will open this summer. An A&P supermarket will join Arbor Drugs and ACO hardware.

Canton officials have approved plans for Canton Corners at Ford and Lilley roads. The strip center will be 144,000 square feet and will open next year.

AMC Theatres is building an eighttheater complex on Haggerty south of Ford. Another 100,000 square feet of retail space is expected to be built eventually. Some 80,000 square feet will be under construction this year. "We have as much commercial space available as is presently developed," Nicholson said.

• Redford is renovating and revamping. A former auto care center at Joy and Beech Daly became a 24,000-square-foot strip center last

An old Korvettes store at West Chicago and Telegraph was renovated into a 12,000-square-foot center featuring TJ Maxx, Chatham and Hallmark. Another 20,000 square feet is to be built this summer.

• In Oakland County, Southfield has two new major retailers moving in. Syms, an upscale discount store, renovated an old tire warehouse on Telegraph north of Eight Mile. Syms, which opened recently, has about 48,000 square feet of retail, and 12,700 square feet of office space.

MainStreet is moving into Northland, renovating and building 80,471 square feet. It will open next spring.

• In Farmington Hills, two strip malls are being built, one at 14 Mile and Northwestern totaling 15,000 told the city's chamber of commerce square feet. Another, Country Ridge Commons, at 40,000 square feet, is at 14 Mile and Haggerty.

In the city of Farmington, Village Commons, a retail and office development of 48,000 square feet, is onethird occupied.

A photography studio is renovating 8,000 square feet of what was a metal shop. The building, on Grand River east of Farmington Road, is to be occupied this summer.

• Rochester Hills is one of the fastest growing suburban communities. The developments include University Square, 106,000 square feet of stores built on a 13-acre parcel at Walton and Adams roads.

Another is Auburn Place, built on six-acre parcel near Crooks and Auburn roads.

The city has plenty of available commercial land, including a 90acre parcel on Rochester and Uburn roads, and 14 acres behind the K mart store on Avon and Rochester

• Troy, by contrast, reduced by 165 acres the amount of land available for development, said Troy planner Larry Keisling.

"We tried to end up with the amount of commercial land that the city's population could support," Keisling said.

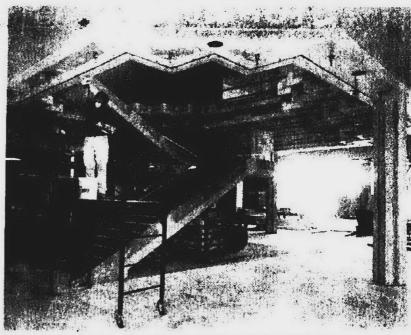

The now open Oakland Square Center featuring Children's Palace, MainStreet and Service Merchandise is the largest of the new developments at 183,000 square feet.

Frankel and Associates has been unable to get the city's approval for its massive Somerset North project. But Somerset Mall is expanding. Frankel's executive vice president, Doug Glaza, said there is a list of retailers waiting to get into the mall. • Birmingham has a couple of new developments. One is The Plaza, å two-story mini mall planned ffear Merrill and Woodward.

Another is Picadilly Square, which opened late last year. It is a two-story with a total 73,000 square feet.

Don Martin of Pontiac Ceiling & Partitions finishes a ceiling near a stairwell inside Jacobson's.

Employee motivation costs little, worth a lot

The word motivation comes from the Latin term meaning "to move."

The concept of motivation has been studied throughout the ages with experts searching for answers to the question, "What motivates

Social psychologists tell us that much of what we learn is based on our interaction with other people. As a result, we are motivated to behave one way or another as a result of the things we are taught either consciously or unconsciously by others.

According to Mike Wickett, owner of Mike Wickett Enterprises of Birmingham and speaker, trainer and business when it comes to problems with employee motivation

Everyone is motivated to some degree. It is up to the employer to serve as a coach and cheerleader, rather than simply a boss, when attempting to motivate employees in a positive way "Wickett adds that recognition is the greatest motivator affecting successful employee performance

RECOGNIZING AND encouraging employees to perform well takes many forms.

Beyond the owner or manager's responsibility in this regard, many firms have implemented programs to recognize outstanding achievement of employee staff. Examples within the small business include employee recognition days, sales contests, bonus incentives and customer feedback programs.

Others offer employee suggestion plans or quality circle programs. These programs encourage employees to submit their ideas to improve

Ford Motor Co. is well known for its employee suggestion plans; both have resulted in an annual gross savings of $50 million with rewards ranging from a minimum of $28 to a maximum of $6,000 and an automo-

ACCORDING TO Jim Emanuel, corporate suggestion program coordinator at Ford, more than 300 maximum awards are distributed each year from the nearly 6,000 suggestions that are adopoted.

Developing in-house libraries that provide employees with tape cassettes and workbooks on the topics of motivation and personal development is an additional option. Recommended tape series include "The Excellence Challenge" by Tom Peters, 'Blueprint for Success" by Joel Weldon, "Psychology of Achievement" by Brian Tracy and Wickett's "Keys to Success.

Business owners expect sales, earnings to improve

Results of an annual statewide greater than $1 million. Survey resurvey of Michigan business owners sponses were tabulated by Marketindicate that although the owners are not particularly optimistic about the state of the national economy, a majority expects both sales and starts, it is encouraging to note the earnings to improve over 1986 levels optimism and health of a number of (64 percent and 54 percent of the other sectors of the Michigan econorespondents, respectively). and taxes were cited as the two top problems facing companies in the state.

These are some of the findings of the fifth annual survey of Michigan businesses conducted by the accounting, tax and management consulting firm of Touche Ross in conjunction with Crain's Detroit Business. Businesses were polled through a survey questionnaire mailed in May, and the majority (93 percent) of those completing the survey were the president, CEO or chairman of their com-

Having identified the high cost of doing business in the state as a major concern, respondents favor several legislative reforms to address these issues. Reduction in the cost of unemployment compensation insurance (59 percent) and further improvement in workers' compensation laws (48 percent) remain high on the list of respondents' priorities, as they have consistently for the past three years.

The 1987 survey responses show a substantial increase - from 19 percent in 1986 to 60 percent in 1987 - in concern over improving the state's university system, and a decrease in concern over environmental standards and promoting the

By a ratio of two-one, the 1987 respondents feel the business climate in Michigan under Gov. Blanchard has improved. This is a drop from the three-one ratio of the previous year - an election year - but it is the same favorable ratio expressed by 1985 respondents.

AMONG THOSE responding to the survey, 85 percent favor testing workers for the use of illegal drugs and nearly two-thirds (66 percent) favor legislation banning smoking in the workplace. Among those respondents who have put workplace regulations into effect, 40 percent of the non-automotive manufacturers are administering drug tests and 43 percent of the service companies have banned smoking in the workplace.

When asked in May who they would vote for in the presidential primary, respondents favored Chrysler Board Chairman Lee Iacocca as the Democratic candidate (36 percent) and equally preferred George Bush and Howard Baker in the Republican column (29 percent and 28 percent, respectively).

Nearly two-thirds (62 percent) of the respondents anticipate a downturn in the United States' economy within the next 12 to 18 months. Over the past three years, survey responses have indicated a steady erosion in optimism about the national economy, with smaller companies being the most pessimistic.

Although the majority (80 percent) of last year's respondents favored the Gramm-Rudman Balanced Budget Act, the overwhelming majority (91 percent) of this year's respondents indicated little faith in the ability of Congress to control the federal deficit through the provisions of Gramm-Rudman.

Respondents favor reducing government spending (57 percent) over increasing taxes (1 percent) - or a combination of both alternatives (41 percent) - as a method to reduce the federal deficit.

RESPONDENTS expect balancing the budget (58 percent) and reducing the trade deficit (41 percent) to be the major economic issues of the 1988 presidential campaign. A slight majority (54 percent) of the respondents favor the use of tariffs and trade barriers to protect American

Although the supply-side oriented 1986 Tax Reform Act was touted as a method of encouraging increased spending and thereby increasing individual company sales, 70 percent of the respondents do not believe this is happening. A majority (61 percent) still favors the 1986 Act, although the larger companies tend to favor it more than the smaller ones.

Two-thirds (67 percent) of the respondents believe business taxes will increase during the next 12 months. Nearly three-fourths (70 percent) of them expect, at the very least, a back-door increase in taxes as a result of a congressional delay in phasing in the tax-cut portions of the 1986 act.

Because of changes in the depreciation rules, more than one-half (54 percent) of the respondents plan to invest less in 1987 in depreciable assets. This decision is prevalent among more small companies than large ones.

As a result, 59 percent of the respondents are planning to make fewer, or defer, capital equipment expenditures during 1987 and 61 percent (principally younger, smaller firms) are considering leasing capital equipment as an alternative.

THE ONCE-HOT topic of controling health benefits costs seems to have cooled. Two out of five (44 percent) of the respondents have taken no steps to contain costs. Of the respondents that have instituted cost-cutting procedures, more than one-quarter (27 percent) increased medical deductibles.

Most (82 percent) of the respondents have taken no action to contain overall employee benefits costs. Of those which have, 5 percent have implemented a flexible or cafeteriastyle benefits plan.

As mentioned, the Tax Reform Act classifies income and losses in three categories: active, passive and portfolio

This means you can no longer use losses from passive tax shelters to offset active income from salary, etc. So the people searched for and found passive income that the taxshelter losses could offset.

Today we will discuss the remaining two categories: passive and port-

Rental activity losses and income:

tate, however, some relief has been provided. If you are actively managing the real estate, the law allows you to use up to $25,000 in losses from rental real estate to offset $25,000 active income. The $25,000 exemption is reduced by 50% of your adjusted gross income in excess of $100,00.

Here is an example. Suppose you have $35,000 of losses from a rental real estate activity in which you actively participate. You also participate in another rental activity in which you have $20,000 income.

Your real estate income is a $15,000 loss. You may use that Rental activities are treated as $15,000 loss ($35,000-$20,000) to repassive. In the case of rental real es- duce your other taxable income.

Portfolio Income and Losses:

Portfolio income consists of (1) interest, (2) dividend, (3) annuities and (4) royalties. Portfolio losses consist of (1) expenses, (2) interest expense and (3) gains or losses resulting from the disposition of property.

Portfolio losses can offset only portfolio income. Interestingly, portfolio income, when it is generated within a limited partnership, can only be offset by passive losses

So What's the Bottom Line?

It's simple. If you keep your eyes open, you will find a large number of passive income generating partneracross partnerships converting rent-al apartments into condominiums, subdividing and selling lots, developing office/condo property, and acquiring other businesses.

Many of these partnerships argue convincingly that you should be getting into these partnerships early in the year so you can get the best

Oakwood's Women & Children's Health Care Center

Babies have a special place at Oakwood

The most special place for a new baby is in the loving arms of its parents. We can't replace the personal care given by a mother and father. But we can give babies very special attention at Oakwood Hospital's Women and Children's Health Care Center.

Our expert group of physicians and nurses is specially trained in the care of expectant mothers and newborns, delivering more than 4,000 babies a year.

And, for high-risk babies and mothers who need much closer attention, highly skilled neonatologists and obstetricians are on duty 24 hours a day.

In addition, we offer a range of services for expectant mothers - from prenatal testing and exercise classes to a birthing room that feels like home. And we haven't forgotten the little things, either - like classes for fathers in the fine art of changing diapers and gourmet dinners for brand new parents who want to celebrate in a special way.

Our care extends to women of other ages, too. We're concerned about general wellness - whether you're a grandmother, a teenager or anywhere in between.

For more information about our services — including tours, brochures or classes - call Oakwood Hospital's Women and Children's Health Care Center, 593-7694. We'd like to show you what special care is all about.

For a physician specializing in women and children's health care, call our physician referral service at 1-800-543-WELL.

Senate eases school rules

AP — An uncertain future in the state House is awaiting a controversial bill to relax regulations on private schools in Michigan, following its approval in the Republican-controlled Senate.

But while one supporter said he believed it passed because some members assume the House will kill it, its sponsor said he thinks it has a chance to win approval in the Democrat-run house.

"I think it's a reasonable bill," he said. "This is a national trend all across the country."

BUT SEN. John Schwarz, R-Battle Creek, said the Senate "spent entirely too much time on the bill . . . The bill is imperfect, to say the least."

"You could make the argument that the way to kill the bill was to send it to the House," said Schwarz, who voted for the measure.

THE BILL was amended to apply to all private schools and not just religous schools. It would permit school officials to declare their institutions free of state supervision. But children would have to be taught by a state-certified or otherwise qualified teacher, or take periodic tests to demonstrate they were learning. Such schools now have to report such information as the number of children enrolled, who teaches them and the schools' curricula.

Teachers must be certified.

Under the bill, parents still would have to furnish certain information, such as the name and address of a school in which the child was enrolled. But since some religious groups oppose reporting to the state, the parents could submit the information to an intermediate school district or a third party which agrees to accept it. to accept it.

The bill was opposed by Sen. William Sederburg, R-East Lansing, who said it doesn't require that private-school teachers understand child development, know how to teach, have any training or know how to spot special problems in chil-

"We are saying that they can have teachers who have none of these skills," Sederburg said. "That adds up to a giant mistake."

According to Schwarz, chairman of the committee which approved the bill, about 30,000 children in church-based schools in Michigan would be affected by the bill. He said about 205,000 children attend private schools in Michigan.

Loophole just might revive O&E classic

proaching the problem from the wrong angle.

This is what I get for studying journalism in college instead of law. You can bet Tammy Faye's last $37,000 I'd be a better journalist today if jurisprudence had been my field of study.

Journalists, you see, attack a problem head-on. And honestly - no shortcuts, no sleaziness. After all, how can the public trust and believe a journalist who's dishonest?

A lawyer, on the other hand, is granted a certain latitude in his pursuit of - ahem - justice. His character is expected to be somewhat tarnished, he's supposed to find a differ ent angle.

The basic difference between the two is, if a journalist tricks someone, he's dirtier than the scum on a toilet bowl; if a lawyer tricks someone, he's clever and resourceful - and

Which is why a lawyer would be better suited to handle the Michigan High School Athletic Association (MHSAA) and its current rule against all-star games. Or at least the girls soccer all-star game the Observer & Eccentric sponsored before this year.

IT WAS JUST over a year ago that we last had that pleasure. As we've reported so many times, the MHSAA banned it by expanding its all-star rule to cover all sports (it used to include just football, basketball and hockey) and all 12 months (it used to be in force just during the school

Any underclassman who violates this mandate is banished from competition for one year. Without underclassmen, the O&E girls soccer classic just wouldn't be the same.

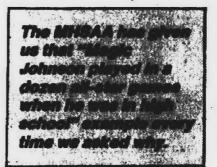

OK, you've heard all this stuff before. What you haven't heard are adequate reasons why. Neither have

we. The MHSAA has given us that "Magic Johnson played in a dozen all-star games when he was in high school" example every time we asked why. To prevent the exploitation of prep athletes is the high-minded explanation. Yeah, right - and Gary Hart and Donna Rice were merely pen pals.

Sorry, but I can't buy it. We were not exploiting athletes with an allstar game meant to boost our circulation. If we were, we're pretty poor businessmen; basketball or hockey would attract far greater attention. No, we weren't being exploitive.

And the MHSAA knows it. "The rule does not apply to all sports with equal effectiveness," admitted Bill Bupp, an executive director with the MHSAA.

NOW, MAYBE you understand why a lawyer would be better suited to handle this mess. Lawyers are trained at deciphering regulationese, the language practiced by rulesmakers.

But more importantly — where we simple-minded journalists attempted to deal with the MHSAA and its guidelines with a written proposal asking to allow us to host the all-star classic - a lawyer simply would have plotted a course circumventing the rule.

Silly, isn't it? It amends the adage 'laws are meant to be broken" by adding "and lawyers are meant to find loopholes."

Mind you, we've followed the intent of the all-star rule. If we didn't, the game would have been played by now. As I asked Bupp, "If we had tryouts for all Observer-area girls 18 and under interested in playing a soccer match against a team chosen by the same method from our Eccentric coverage area, would the MHSAA ban it?'

His answer: "Probably not, since they wouldn't be representing their high schools. If an underclassman is representing her high school in an all-star game, she would lose eligibility."

So we could still have the classic. you see. A few cosmetic changes no mention of high schools and refer to practices as tryouts - and we could put the exact same players on the field as we would have anyway.

WOULD THAT be right and proper? Before answering, consider that the MHSAA's representatives never gave me a clear reason why summer games are included in its ban.

Then remember what sport is the greatest offender of the all-star rule basketball. Do you think for a moment the ban has had any effect on high school all-star basketball games? Think again; McDonald's still sponsors its team, the Dapper Dan Classic is still in existence even the state's coaches association sponsors all-star games.

Waite wants a first-year shot at starter's role with Hurons

By Dan O'Meara staff writer

Steve Waite will be in an Eastern Michigan baseball uniform next spring. That much is fact.

But Waite also hopes to be in the team's starting lineup - at shortstop — when he begins his freshman season with the Hurons.

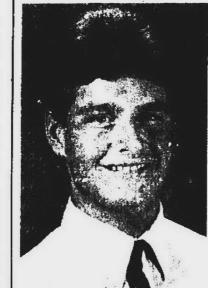

The prospects for playing a key role immediately was a major reason Waite, a senior at Plymouth Canton, accepted a baseball scholarship from EMU. "They almost guaranteed me I'd start for the team next year," said Waite, who led the Chiefs to a 19-8 season and share of the Western Division title in the Western Lakes. "That was a major concern for me, to play my freshman year.

"I DIDN'T WANT to hang it up after my senior year," he added. "I definitely wanted to go on and play, and having the chance to play all four years is just great.'

Roger Coryell, a longtime assistant under former coach Ron Oestrike, said there are four things he likes about Waite: his arm strength, his ability to hit with power, his academic standing and his potential for playing another position.

Because of Waite's arm strength,

'They almost quaranteed me I'd start for the team next year. That was a major concern for me, to play my freshman year.'

- Steve Waite EMU baseball recruit

Coryell believes he has the raw ability to become a pitcher if such a transition was ever attempted.

Jim Trahey, a member of West Bloomfield's state championship team in 1983 and an infielder at EMU, was drafted as a pitcher recently by the Toronto Blue Jays simply because of his potential at that position.

"THAT'S ALWAYS been in the back of my mind," Coryell said, "but we want to give him a chance to play shortstop first.

"With Scott Willis graduating, the position is wide open. We're hopeful (Waite) can come in and do it, but we also realize it's a big step. But he is coming from a good program. Fall baseball will be a key for him.'

CMU has what Dowd wants

By C.J. Risak staff writer

What can Central Michigan University provide for Tim Dowd? Just about

Dowd signed a letter of intent to attend CMU and play baseball for the Chippewas. His reasons for choosing CMU — Dowd was also recruited by Eastern Michigan, Western Michigan and University of Detroit - included

"I like their (baseball) program; basically," the Plymouth Salem standout said. "They've won the MAC (Mid-American Conference) four years in a row, they went to the regionals and this year almost made it to the (college)

"I liked the campus, too, and it has a real good business school, which is what I want to go into."

IS THAT IT? Well . .

"I wanted to go away to school, but not too far away," Dowd continued. "I wanted to be close enough so my parents could still come up and see me

The Striders' Lynn Costanza grabbed third. Riverside will try to defend its 1986 U.S. National Championship in August in Lincoln, Neb.

Miller is also very interested in signing fourth RU product; catcher Mike Stefanski.

YOU CAN'T argue with success, and Miller has enjoyed his share. He's coached U-D through 23 seasons and compiled a $75-440 record. The Titans were 36-29 last year and finished third in the Midwestern Collegiate Conference (MCC) tournament.

A glance at the team's statistics — the top two pitchers (Chris Czarnik and Gary Peters) had earned run averages of 4.45 and 4.77 — would lead one to think the pitching was weak. Not so, said Miller.

"Our defense is what hurt us," the Titan coach said. "We lost Bushart after only 10 games and that really hurt us. We made something like 133 errors in 50 games."

That made infielders a recruiting priority. And, with Peters gone to pursue a pro carreer and Most Valuable Pitcher Eric Ross graduated, pitching also became a need.

When shortstop Bushart was hurt, Miller was forced to move second baseman Tom

WHICH MEANS Tavormina could be U-D's key recruit, or at least one that could have an immediate impact. At Glenn, Ta-vormina hit 377 in his senior campaign with four homers and 32 runs batted in. He had a career batting average of .386.

"He can play short for us," said Miller, who is thinking about a shakeup in his infield, with Bushart going to second and Di-Mambro to third in place of graduated Phil Biggs. "He's a tough kid. He's going to be a

Was it was Tavormina's offensive or defensive capabilities that attracted Miller? "He can help us in both. He can hit with power. But the first thing I liked about him was his glove and arm."

The Titan mound corps was considerably shaken last season. Leading lefthander Joe Taraskavage (from Garden City) came in with a sore elbow and overweight and didn't play. John Rogers (from Redford Catholic-Central), another lefty, left the team. Miller had no lefthanders to call on.

"We needed lefthanded pitching," he admitted. "When I had a chance to get Coburn and Liss, I jumped at the opportunity."

"And it should be real good for me to play there. They graduated three senior outfielders. Four are coming back, but one of them is injured and they're not sure he'll make it back. I have all the tools to be a starter."

"The seniors on the team usually get full scholarships," he said. "I like that. It shows that if you work hard, you'll earn it."

CMU is indeed the team to beat in the MAC, and Dowd could be a big help.

"THEY LIKED my speed in the outfield, and they thought my arm was above average," he said. "I think I'm a better defensive player than offensive. I pride myself on my defense. If the other team doesn't score any runs, you can't lose."

He batted .493 as a senior, with seven homers and 39 runs batted in. He also was perfect in 16 steal attempts. As a junior,

"You either have to be a banger or a speedster to be an outfielder," said Dowd, who considers himself to be the latter — but not entirely.

"I think my home run power came around this year," he said. "I didn't get any last year and I hit seven this year. The weights helped a lot."

Dowd started weight training twice a week in January. It is a practice he intends to continue.

He woul d also like to continue both his own and CMU's baseball success for the next four years.

Oestrike announced his retirement last spring, and, while the university has yet to name a new coach, Coryell, whom Oestrike endorsed as his successor, is thought to be a leading candidate for the job.

Regardless, the coaching change hasn't affected Waite's decision, especially since Coryell was the one who recruited him.

"(OESTRIKE) CALLED and told me he was retiring and not to lean toward another school because Corvell is a good coach," Waite said. Waite, the shortstop on the All-Observer team, batted .356 last season, and his 30 hits included 12 for extra bases (four homers, four triples and four doubles). He also was successful at stealing bases 14 out of 15 times.

Elks battle back for win

Canton Elks rallied from a 4-0 deficit to defeat Redford Union 6-4 and stretch its record to 4-1 in the Livonia Adray-Connie Mack Baseball League Saturday.

Redford Union did all of its scoring in the fourth and fifth innings, but the Elks came up with five runs in the sixth to take the lead. Mike Culver started the rally with a two-run single, and Steve Waite and Kevin Learned followed with run-scoring hits. Todd Kenyon's grounder to shortstop brought in the go-ahead run when it was misplayed

CANTON ADDED another run in the seventh when Steve Johnson tripled and scored on Kenyon's squeeze bunt.

Culver and Kenyon had two RBI apiece for the winners, and Mike Stefanski was 2-for-4 and scored two runs for Redford Union.

Adam Kocik was the winning pitcher, working the last 2% innings in relief of Mike Sulak, who started and had Redford Union's four runs charged to him.

Mark Thierry pitched six innings and suffered the loss. Daryl Guest worked the final inning.

Other EMU signees from Ob-serverland include Redford Catholic Central pitcher Doug Martin and Westland John Glenn catcher Mike Hammontree, who also plans to play football as does Pontiac Northern quarterback-pitcher Shane Jackson.

The Hurons also have landed two players who were instrumental in Ypsilanti winning the Class A championship in 1986: pitcher Todd Hendricks and catcher Aaron Metaj. Corvell sees Hendricks, who also boasts power at the plate, as a possible two-position player, too.

Coburn was 7-2 and Liss was 5-2 at Kansas City CC. Both are southpaws, both will be juniors and both are currently pitching for Little Caesars in the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League. But that's where the similarities end.

"I LIKED LISS in high school," Miller said, "and I was impressed with him in the Livonia Collegiate league. He was the best pitcher in that league last year. He's a good power pitcher, has good velocity on his breaking ball and has a good change-up. He's a big, strong kid, too.'

baskets available during the concert season are $24.95 per person.

"We give a basket with linen cloth and napkins, real plates, sliverware and wine glasses," he said. Mostly, baskets have been made up for two, but each basket may be done up for as many as four picnickers.

The basket includes a choice of entree, salad, dessert and bottle of

The cost varies with what goes in the basket," said Rik Halberg, describing the offerings of Rik's Total Cuisine Center at 6646 Telegraph, Bloomfield Township. "It can be as little as a piece of cheese and fruit, or pate, caviar and champagne." Food alone, or filled baskets, could range from $2 to $200, he said.

"We have beautiful imported cheeses," he pointed out. Halberg said that all the prepared food, available daily from the shop's dis-play cases, may be selected for a picnic.

A spiced roast cold tenderloin, a rolled chicken breast or Spanish paella salad are among choices to take in a basket to an outdoor concert. Special dishes may be ordered

SELECTIONS FROM the display case are wide.

"We usually have about 20 different dishes in our case," Halberg said. "Every day we have pasta dishes, salads, rice dishes, lot of different entrees - hot and cold."

The box lunch at $5.95 includes 'All-American" fried chicken, potato salad, baked beans, fruit kabob, nuts and mints, and biscuits. It can be ordered the same day, or ahead of that, and picked up at the Picnic Box or Trumbull Terrace at Meadow Brook.

The Bach Lunch may be eaten at a table on the terrace, at one of the picnic tables provided by Meadow Brook, or brought back to the lawn and your own blanket.

"The Picnic Box is the concer sion line," Johanssen explained, talking about on-site food services. "We improvise. That's one of our strong points," she said. "People may ask for an apple, or a split of champagne.'

She and her husband loaded up a basket for themselves, to go to the Paul Anka concert, which opened Meadow Brook Music Festival last

The regular box lunches include one with a meat or cheese sandwich of your choice, or with one half of a fried chicken. Each box also includes a salad, brownie, mint, eating utensils and pre-moistened paper handcloth

For those who want to make their own selections for a picnic basket, there are sandwiches ranging from hamburger to tuna and Alban's "four famous sandwiches." There are 15 The variety is endless, DeCapite

FOR MORE information about ordering, call Alban's at 258-5788.

The Community House in Birmingham is another place that provides picnic food. Gale Colwell, director, said, "We can prepare any kind of carryout food." Box lunches are available, with selections basically offered from the catering or cafe menu.

Both the Community House's Bates Street Catering Company or its summer outdoor Bates Street Cafe feature such dishes as pasta salad, chicken salad on melon slices, ham and cheese croissants, and gazpacho or any cold soup.

Colwell said a picnicker recently requested sandwiches on small rolls, one beef tenderloin with horseradish sauce and the other smoked turkey breast with chutney - each guest to receive two sandwiches. Each picnic meal was served along with a small container of pasta salad.

Other popular choices are fresh fruit and sandwich, or a basket (picnickers must provide their own) with brie, fresh fruit and french bread. Tomato stuffed with crab, shrimp and rice salad, or a crab and shrimp seafood salad are more favorites, and may be ordered on a croissant, if preferred.

The food is packed in covered plastic containers.

TO ORDER, call the Community House at 644-5832 and ask for food services. A copy of the catering or Bates Street Cafe menu may be requested, if there is time, or the customer may just ask for suggestions. Colwell suggests calling early in the week if you are planning a picnic for a weekend concert. The meal may be picked up, or it will be delivered for a service charge.

The Community House is open until 6 p.m. weekdays for food-order pickups. Saturday, it's open later, for stopping on the way to the concert.

They may not get medals, but everyone's going for the gold as Stagecrafters community theater group in Royal Oak hosts participants in the fourth International Pestival of Theatre "Olympiad

Theater companies from as far away as Nigeria, Japan and the USSR will give presentations ranging from drama and dance to pantomime and satire Thursday-Saturday at Stagecrafters Baldwin The-

Performers appeared Saturday at Wayne State University in Detroit, where the festival opened

Why do they call it the Olympi-ad? "We hold it every four years," explained Bill Hogg, one of the participants in the first theater festival and a volunteer for this year's event. "And like the Olympics, there's an element of competition."

A very small element. Actually the event is a multi-day celebration of international theater, with troupes as diverse as dancers from Japan, actors from Africa and mime artists from Latvia.

A PERFORMANCE of good ole down-home "Annie," offered during a run of the musical, was presented by Stagecrafters as part of the festival.

Performances at the Baldwin Theatre, 415 S. Lafayette, begin at 1 p.m. Thursday, 1:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday, with five groups appearing each day. Ticket prices are $2 per performance, or $5 for a block of three performances on the same date. Tickets may be bought at the box office (541-6430) no later than one hour prior to the perfor-

For further information, call the Southeast Michigan Arts Forum at 898-6430.

Hogg calls the Olympiad "the only festival of its kind in North America." It is the brainchild of Detroit Recreation Department employee Shirley Harbin. "She's the instigator of the whole thing," said Hogg.

Its purpose, in the wastagecrafters' Stan News derstanding. You know, to get peo-ple with similar interest together regardless of political backgrounds. Two, to showcase their particular talents and culture."

FESTIVAL participants are brought together under the auspices of the International Amateur Theatre Association and the Southeast Michigan Arts Forum.

"We're pretty excited about the acts," Hogg said. "Some of them have been here before and been superb. We're particularly excited about the Japanese dance group. Last time in 1963, they were stun-

In keeping with the "international understanding" aspect of the program, each national group is hosted by an area sponsor, and the visitors stay at individual homes.

Fair-tastic

NONIA'S ARTS AND Crafts Festival had its ups and downs last weekend in its two-day run at Greenmead.

Most of them had to do with attendance which was way up on Saturday over last year's to ares but down Sunday, mainly because of the tene that spoiled things in the afternoon.

But all in all, the festival sponsor, the Livonia Acts Commission, was pleased at how smoothly things things ran both days. Comments from the general public and the vendors indicated they agreed.

Last year—the first time the gigantic art fair was held at the historical site—traffic snarls caused some grumbling. That was eased considerably this year with the establishment of new traffic patterns, particularly for the 220 vendors who participated

"People were also appreciative of the shuttle service we set up this year." said arts commission president Dan Kachnewski. We defintely hope to expand on that service next year. The public also seemed to appreciate the addition of more concession stands on the festival grounds. We think we will add to those too," Kachnowski added

Further good news as that every me was off the site and well on the way home when the rains and devistating winds but the area.

The information booth on the back porch of Hill House Museum (left) was a beehive of activity most of the time. That's where registration by fairgoers for the hourly drawings of gifts donated by the participating artists took place. (Below) One of the vendors, Frank Rostar of Charlevoix, shows off one of his old-fashioned Appalachian toys, "The Dancing Man."

Victoria Hollister, 4, (above) of Farmington Hills, gets a little brotherly advice from her brother, Sean, 9, on how an Alaska show worm works. Stroking the furry animal makes its head jump up in a friendly greeting. (Upper left) Michele Bendell of Livonia considers buying a handcrafted hanging wooden plant holder that proved to be a popular item at the fair. (Left) Livonian Carl Gundersen takes the heat off with a cool drink while Dick Massingill rotates the hot dogs that the Livonia Historical Society sold at the main refreshment booth. Proceeds from the booth are earmarked for the restoration of the Alexander Blue House recently moved to the historical site in a community effort spearheaded by Gundersen's wife, Alice. "Thanks" banners, hung from the Blue House, acknowledged the community support that resulted in the relocation of the 1841-vintage farmhouse from its original Middlebelt Road location to the historical site.

AY, DID anyone happen to notice that school is out? How could you not notice a million kids, all of a sudden walkin', cruisin' and milling around.

Of course, there are subtle clues at home that tell you, "It's that time of year." Like you can't always get into the bathroom, you can't watch the morning news because cartoons are on television. And, as a parent, you find yourself seeking out strange and quiet places. I, for example, am writing this article sitting out by our wood pile. The only problem is, I can hear the 12 children in our swimming pool, five, of which, we haven't the slightest idea who they

Then there are those little things that a bored kid does - like shoot a plunger gun at the ceiling fan and skylight. For five days, a fluorescent orange plunger has been whirling around on our brass ceiling fan in the family room.

The ceiling is 16 feet high so retrieving a plunger is a little difficult. The plunger stuck to the skylight has also been up there a week now, so Adam decided it was time to get it down. Well . what would you throw up there to unstick a stuck plunger? A little pillow from off the couch, right? Wrong! Adam threw his boomerang! Yes, you guessed it, the boomerang went right through the skylight. So now there is a five-inch hole in the glass and about an inch from the hole is a fluorescent orange plunger still holding on. IT'S ALL PART of a too-familiar pattern. After the first week or two of summer vacation, kids get a little bored and parents need to get away. An art or craft class can help the "summertime blues." Many colleges, schools and churches offer a variety of short term classes. Some run a few weeks, some a day or two and I have even seen a single three-hour class

Our store has always run on a pay-as-youcome individual instruction basis. And this summer we are adding new lessons, like mirror and glass etching, scrimshaw, full color scratchboard, etc. If you have an indoor boomerang thrower, you might want them to try their hand at watercolor, oil painting or sculpture for children. It's a five-week class.

If you would like them to try their hand at drawing, bring them for a few weeks or the whole summer.

But what if it's you who needs to get away? Often mothers and fathers, attorneys, nurses or hi-lo drivers come into my art class and say, "I need a lesson." Why? Because nothing takes you away from it all like drawing, painting or sculpture. Sure, a movie can relax you but you take little out of the theater but sticky soles on your shoes and memories.

In art, the "get away from it all" produces something of value that will last well beyond the life of the artist

There's another point. So many art teachers have so much to offer. I love to talk to other art teachers. Private art teachers often harbor a wealth of knowledge that you may enjoy in the privacy of their home, but private art teachers often need more room than their homes can of-

THE HOMEFINDING CENTER

"Because of the brisk business, the company has moved/to new headquarters in the American Center Building in Southfield. It features a 2,000-square foot showroom...

to our counselors, use the Apartment Finder's Service, Temporary Housing, or purchase devoted to information about the area." -Detroit Free Press

So we would like to offer our student areas at the Art Store & More for a token fee to other art teachers who are feeling a bit cramped. We have between 400 and 500 students weekly but there are many daytime hours when the 40 stools are empty. So if you "need" art classes or "need" room for your classes, feel free to call 532-6311. We're willing to help you or your child plunge into some activities that could make summer a lot more interesting.

condo queries Robert M. Melsner

Could you please explain the use of a land contract as opposed to a mortgage for purposes of financing

A land contract is typically used for obtaining beneficial terms by the buyer when he cannot obtain a mortgage or when the seller is willing to sell the property without receiving all the sales proceeds at the closing.

A land contract basically is an agreement whereby the buyer agrees to pay for the property on installments, receiving a deed for the property when the final installment of the purchase price has been paid. Until that time, the seller (land contractor vendor) retains title to the property, although the buyer may obtain possession to the property.

When a mortgage is used, typically, the seller has conveyed title to the buyer subject to the lien of the mortgage company on the property. In most instances, the seller will receive the full purchase price unless the seller gives a mortgage to the buyer himself.
