Hazard task force to begin training

So often are hazardous materials transported by rail and truck through this area that public safety officials get scared just thinking about what could happen should an accident

Shipped daily through Plymouth and Canton are large amounts of propane and ammonia - substances so toxic that a derailment and fire would "probably devastate Plymouth in at least a one-mile radius and cause severe damage to the rest of the city," said Charles Van Vleck, deputy emergency preparedness officer for Plymouth Township.

And it's not a matter of if. It's when such an incident will happen, added Van Vleck. 'Safety standards are never as tight as they

AREA OFFICIALS admit that they're poorly equipped to adequately respond to hazardous material emergencies.

But like other communities, Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Canton Township have found the prospect of paying for the necessary training and equipment prohibitive.

The communities are among 22 western Wayne County municipalities that are doing something about the situation.

They belong to the Western Wayne County Fire Mutual Aid Association, a consortium that has agreed to establish a hazardous materials emergency team and to buy specialized emergency vehicles and equipment.

It'll cost at least a quarter of a million dollars to finance the effort - a sum translating to three cents per resident.

The city of Plymouth allocated the money several months ago. Canton Township did so Tuesday night, and the matter is upcoming on Plymouth Township's agenda.

Plymouth Fire Chief Al Matthews is serving on a four-member committee charged with organizing the response team in conjunction with Wayne County's emergency management division.

The committee assembled a 48-member team representing 22 area cities and townships. Training begins July 22.

Training will provide guidelines about approaching a hazardous materials incident, evaluating the scene, determining what chemicals are involved, potential evacuation and security," said Matthews.

TWO EMERGENCY vehicles to be based at Detroit's Metropolitan Airport will be equipped with radiation and gas detectors, computers, a synthesized radio system, breathing apparatus, high-powered floodlights and other equipment.

In urging Canton trustees to allocate the $1,080 needed to join the effort, Canton public safety director John Santomauro said, "Presently, the Canton Fire Department is not equipped to adequately respond to a hazardous material chemical spill and or fire.

"It is urgent we participate in this program, as I am sure you are of the frightening day-to-day happenings with hazardous materials throughout the county.'

Matthews agrees the issue deserves immediate attention.

"From my standpoint sitting at the tracks in my car - I carry a condensed hazardous materials book in my car, and looking at the ID numbers and identifying the contents of railroad cars, I just do a big gulp as trains go through," said Matthews.

"Something this important you can't sit back and talk about. You have to do something. It's better to be prepared than to be sorry somewhere down the road.

Ted Jozwiak, roadmaster for CSX transportation, said last Friday that he intends to check out the weeds that block the sight of oncoming trains from southbound motorists at the Holbrook crossing. The railroad is responsible for overgrown vegetation in its right of way but not on private

Inspection asked for RR crossings

Plymouth's city engineer said he has requested an inspection of all railroad grade crossings within the city limits by the state transportation department.

Kenneth West wants a ruling ordering improvements by the rail-

West, who has waged a campaign for several months to get CSX Transportation to make grade improvements throughout the city, said he anticipates the inspection within three weeks.

"They might tell the city to do something. They might tell the railroad to do something."

Tom Frost, resident engineer for CSX, said the city is within its rights to request an inspection. All crossings eventually are rebuilt on regularly scheduled basis, he added.

The railroad intends total rebuilding at only two grade crossings in the Plymouth community this year - at Sheldon road in the township and Ann Arbor Trail in the city, he added.

Traffic will be limited to one lane in each direction on Sheldon beginning July 20, said Ted

West said he believes that railroad grade crossings have deteriorated even more during the last couple of months.

Jozwiak, roadmaster for CSX. He estimated that the grade reconstruction project will take two

"I have to raise tracks to the same elevation. We take everything out . . . lay down a fabric underneath, new stones, new ties, new rails and black top between tracks," Jozwiak said.

Ann Arbor Trail will be closed to traffic near that railroad crossing in the city about Aug. 3, perhaps earlier, he added. That reconstruction work also should take about two weeks.

Plans call for less intensive improvements - replacing defective ties in crossing grades — at Main, Mill and Farmer later this year, Jozwiak added.

Education's the key to safety

By Diane Gale staff writer

Bill Magee tells a funny story to make a serious point about safety. The Wayne County Sheriff marine officer says he stopped a boater for making waves too close to the shoreline, which jostles the docked boats.

Magee asked, "So, what about your wake?" The woman said, "But, officer, I am awake."

THE CANTON RESIDENT says education is the key to safety on the waterways. A lot of boaters don't know the rules and their ignorance leads to accidents and too many

"You don't need a driver's license or anything," Magee says. "People buy a boat and go out and use it and don't know how to operate it."

Youngsters are required to have a license to drive a boat, he adds.

"Driving a car is a privilege given to you by the state of Michigan," Magee says. "Driving a boat is considered a pleasure."

There's no excuse for ignorance of the law, he says, because information pamphlets and boat operating classes are regularly offered by the sheriff's department.

"I would like to see that when you buy a boat you get a packet of information on the rules," Magee says. "Why should property be damaged, or peoples' lives be endangered, because someone didn't take the time to learn the laws.' Last week, Magee stopped a "skipper" - the person operating the boat - for a safety inspection. There were five people on board and only four safety jackets. The 24year-old Westland man got a ticket. Boating violations don't go on driving records.

THERE'S NO EXCUSE for not having the correct safety equipment on board, Magee says.

"I'd write up my dad if he didn't have the safety equipment.'

He sees the same types of offenses "that happen on the streets" occur on the water. He names a few, like drunk driving, breaking and enterings, smuggling and drug possession.

'You don't need a driver's license or anything. People buy a boat and go out and use it and don't know how to operate it.'

- Bill Magee Wayne County Sheriff marine officer

Alcohol is a major cause in accidents, he says.

In life-threatening situations marine officers tow boaters to safer conditions but they can't in all cases because it cuts into the commerical towing services.

There's no denying patrolling the waterway in a 19-foot Aquasport on a beautiful sunny afternoon with the breeze blowing in your face is nice. "I love water - I always did," Magee says. "I love the fresh air and the scenery."

"But there are days when it's not worth it - when everyone wants to suring, because she can relate to his knock your chops off or you see senseless injuries or deaths says, because there are only seven officers patrolling 142 square miles and more than 80,000 registered boats in the county. 'And some of our equipment is beyond being obsolete." The marine division is funded mostly by the state Department of Natural Resources and partly by the Dealing with people who are irate after getting a ticket isn't all that fun, either, he says. And because the marine division operates from May through October the weather can get

Then there's the times when the marine division is called out to make dives - to recover bodies or save accident victims. Using the waterways for suicide is common, Magee

EARLIER THIS YEAR there were five bodies recovered in five days, Magee says. He believes it was a record. Marine officers also dive for evidence, like stolen cars and diving conditions can be "Sometimes it's like diving in black paint," said Magee, 35.

and I had a bad day and she had a bad day and we take turns on who had the worse day," Magee said.

"But it makes you feel good to help someone and that's why I became a sheriff."

Magee signals a boat on the river and asks if they have needed safety equipment.

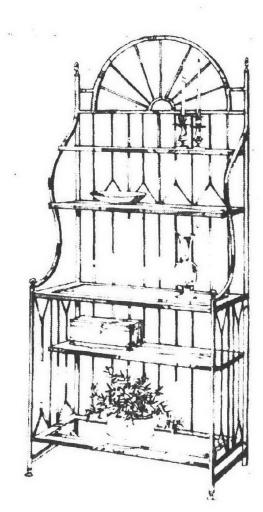

Mages stops a Canadian man on the Detroit River and explains the young man must follow U.S. marine rules.

Wayne County Sheriff deputy Ron Bishop, driving the Marine Safety boat and U.S. custom's inspector Donald Galvin, discuss with Magee the area of the Detroit River they are about to Stamper and another 17-year-old Ypsilanti Township youth. Christopher Machacek, are charged with open murder in the Dec. 30, 1986. death of Mary Anne Hulbert, 13

Machacek and Stamper both 16 when Hulbert was killed, blamed each other for the girl's death in taped interviews with Washtenaw County sheriffs.

Indigent care talks resume

staff writer

A comprehensive plan to revamp Wayne County's indigent health care program could soon surface - one way or another

Several county commissioners called for a July 23 "work session" on the debt during Wednesday's meeting of the health and human services committee The proposed session would bring county executives and county commission members together to draft health care, legislative and financing options

But a county executive's spokesman said an agreement with the state could be hammered out well in advance of that date.

"I wasn't aware of the proposal but it (the work session) isn't going to matter," deputy county executive Michael Duggan said. "An agreement should be reached before then.

THE STATE claims the county owes it $60 million in indigent health care payments. County and state officials have been discussing the debt for the past several weeks. Talks are scheduled to resume today. Duggan said he hoped an agreement could be reached by the end of the week

But commissioner George Cushingberry, D-Detroit, who proposed the workshop, said the county needed to draft a comprehensive program that includes health care. legislative and financing options, before settling with the state. The goal, he said, would be to get state legislators to hold hearings on the plan.

"If we go to Lansing just to talk, we aren't going to get anything done," Cushingberry said. "If we can get some committee hearings, that's a different story."

Cushingberry said he and commission chairman Arthur Carter have already discussed a debt elimination plan. While he declined to be specific, Cushingberry said the plan, "involves some bonding, (but) doesn't involve a tax increase." It's uncertain if the plan would be presented at the proposed work session.

COUNTY OFFICIALS also are considering creating a public private health agency similar to a preferred provider organization (PPO) or health maintenance organization (HMO).

Cushingberry suggested pressing for changes in the state's social welfare act, and a 1979 state act, which took direct hospital payments out of county hands.

Under the current system, the state pays hospitals directly then seeks reimbursement from the coun-

Deputies aid Inkster siege

By Tim Richard staff writer

A host of police agencies went to Inkster's help last week when three of its police officers were killed during an arrest incident.

Our deputies, Michigan State Police, FBI, and officers from Livonia and Dearborn Heights were called to the scene," Wayne County Sheriff Robert A. Ficano said.

While Inkster Chief James Buckley, as ranking local official, was in charge, Ficano said it's common for other agencies to send in specialists when the need arises.

THE NINE-HOUR siege ended in tragedy when four members of a family surrendered at 3:30 a.m. after firing 1,000 rounds of ammunition from the Bungalow Motel on Michigan Avenue.

Apparently the Inkster officers were shot and killed almost immediately Thursday afternoon when they went to make what appeared to be a routine arrest on a bad check passing warrant.

Police believed the officers were heing held hostage, Ficano said, because "when we asked to talk to the officers, we were told they were all right."

'We wouldn't have done anything differently" if police had known the captured officers were dead, Ficano said. "We wanted to avoid shooting. Innocent people could have been hurt. As it was, some cars on Michigan Avenue were hit. Fortunately, no one was injured."

THE SHERIFF, the FBI's Kenneth Walton and other command officials set up a headquarters to , maintain contact with the people in rooms 105-6 of the motel.

Ficano said several agencies have hostage negotiation teams.

"We send five or six of our officers to a school, and they train others in the department," he said.

Usually, the sheriff said, the danger to hostages is reduced "if the captors can be kept talking for an hour or two - unless they happen to be terrorists with plans to kill." Ficano, a Livonia resident, was interviewed during a taping of "Wayne County Impact," an Omnicom local access television program.

ty's federal revenue allotment to pay off the debt

A recent report indicated the county's health care debt will more than double by 1990 unless the current system is changed

By 1990, the county could owe the state $200 million," said commissioner Susan Heintz, R-Northville Township, who prepared the re-

Previous plans. Heintz charged, were designed to keep hospitals affoat rather than to preserve the county budget.

I realize that's a controversial statement, but it's true," said Heintz, whose district includes Livonia and Plymouth

THE COUNTY'S 1984 health care settlement with the state is no longer valid, Heintz added, because key assumptions didn't become reality.

The Lucas Administration settlement didn't reduce the county's liability for past debt, Heintz said, nor did it allow the county to develop innovative cost-cutting programs.

A separate settlement with Detroit Receiving Hospital, which prompted rate increases at the then county administered Westland Medical Center and the lack of Department of Social Service billing data. further hampered the county's ability to reduce costs, Heintz said.

County officials said they have been unable to monitor for unnecessary services or duplicate billings

While a county executive's office report is pending. Heintz said she believed executive's staffers and commissioners are working toward similar goals.

From what I've seen, their recommendations will be similar to what was contained in my report," she said

French students give impressions of U.S.

How do you say, "Sorry, no parle vous French.

No problem, the French kids speak English, some better than others but enough at least to order a cheeseburger at McDonald's and to answer a few questions posed by a curious reporter.

The French students, from the town of Annonay in Southern France, are visiting the area for three weeks as part of a foreign exchange program with Catholic Central High School in Redford Township.

They arrived Tuesday and are staying in Canton, Plymouth, Northville, Redford Township, Livonia, and Farmington Hills with the families of Catholic Central students who previously visited the French kids in their hometown.

The Observer staff caught up to the high school-age French students Thursday morning during a sweltering reception at Redford's townhall. Here is what a few of them had to OFFICER ERIK Mayernik offered another perspective.

The first thing most officers do is reflect on past experiences that were similar . . . and reflect on how comfortable you were and perhaps you shouldn't have been so comfort-

We try to correct that as much as we can. People are people and that's going to occur," Santomauro added.

"Certainly police officers in the Detroit area for the next few days when they respond to calls will have this on their mind," Myers said. "I don't think cops ever forget danger. You become conditioned to it but you never forget it."

SERGEANTS ROBERT Scoggins and Wayne Carroll of the city police department had been taking a management class with one of the Inkster officers.

Because of the fact our sergeants were well-acquainted with officers killed, I'm sure they'll find out more details and bring it back for debriefing for our officers," Myers said.

The community and citizens react, too. People feel they've been hurt as well. The community tends to calm down. I think it makes you realize you're just mortal and not here for good."

County seeks solution to 'debt threat'

By Wayne Peal staff writer

One gropes for words to describe Wayne County's financial situation. County Executive Edward McNamara already had termed it a "crisis" when he took office in January. In April, he said the county "hit bottom.

And matters have worsened since

By whatever name, Wayne County is headed for a financial turning point. Its ability to meet citizen needs, both now and in the future, rests upon an agreement with the state to make the debt-ridden county solvent. As of this week, both parties were still negotiating.

Here is an overview of Wayne County fiscal problems, possible solutions and the commonly asked questions about county debt.

What's the worst that can happen? Receivership, essentially municipal bankruptcy, could occur just as it has in Ecorse.

In receivership, a financial manager would be appointed by the state to put county finances in order.

Receivership would provide a relatively rapid solution without typical political bickering.

While its effect is unknown, county officials aren't willing to find out. They fear receivership would cripple the county's ability to issue bonds for public improvemtns.

At present, the county is still drafting a court-ordered plan to create more jail space.

Despite the sale of Westland Medical Center, the county also is required to provide indigent health care - a big budget drain, according to the recent county audit.

Proposed programs, such as comprehensive efforts to battle youth crime and repair county roads, would be in jeopardy.

And while current state- or charter-mandated programs would continue, they'd probably face severe cutbacks.

Receivership is a sign the county can't manage its own finances. As such, it's hardly an inducement to potential investors.

Is receivership inevitable? No. There are several ways the county can get out of debt. Matters hinge on an agreement with the state on health care debt. Both sides have expressed optimism an agreement can be reached.

Receivership, however, remains a possibility if talks break down.

How big is the county's debt?

A recent audit placed it at more than $102 million. The crisis, howev-

$60 million in health care payments it claims are owed by the county. Indigent health care payments are a particular sticking point.

With a lawsuit filed by former County Executive William Lucas still pending on the indigent health care payment formula, the county is admitting no obligation. But there are indications county officials would settle if the state would agreed to a lesser figure, possibly $40 million.

Thus far, the state has stood firm, impounding the county's most recent $6.3 million federal payment of shared revenue to pay off what it

Yes, but how hig is the debt? Consider this: If every man, woman and child in Wayne County could pitch in roughly $30, it could retire the debt. That, of course, could never happen. Some people would have to pay more, others less.

That sounds as if the county has already decided upon raising taxes.

County officials say they haven't, at least for now. A county millage increase would require a vote of the people and county elections aren't scheduled until 1988.

McNamara has steadfastly opposed a tax increase. Even those county commissioners more amenable to raising taxes have touted a non-permanent single-purpose tax, to combat youth crime, if not retire the debt.

Gov. Blanchard's 1983 state income tax hike is seen as a model. But that was fraught with peril, too.

Is a tax increase the county's only option to paying back the state?

No. There's several other ways the county could raise money. Bonds, fee increases and selling off county property are the three most-discussed options. Individually, each has limitations.

What are those limitations?

The county has reached its short term borrowing limit for bonds. Less than one month ago, it authorized $60 million in tax anticipation notes to avoid "payless paydays" for county workers. And that was before the current crisis broke over revenue sharing and before the audit was re-

Fee increases have McNamara's support. He is expected to announce plans to raise fees for marriage licenses, gun permits, and other county services. But it's doubtful fee increases could cover the debt all by

Right now, commissioners are debating whether to sell 1,040 countyowed acres in Northville Township. While acknowledging the Northville property has never been more valuable, they're not entirely sure it should be sold.

Many commissioners see the land as the last major county asset. As such, they're hesitant to sell. And there's a lawsuit still pending be-tween the state and county involving ownership of a section of the parcel.

Any other options?

They're the only ones on the table at this time. But that doesn't preclude a more creative solution on anyone's part.

What about budget cuts?

The executive proposed $3.3 million in budget cuts in March. The county commission approved. In recent years, the county road commission and drain commissioner's office. were both abolished. Neither the executive's office nor the commission is pushing for further cuts.

Wasn't the county executive promoting economic development as a way out of this mess?

He was and is. The county executive's economic development plan says $1 billion in new investment can be secured by the end of next

The county's Economic Development Corporation - legally a separate entity - has pledged to sell $150 million in bonds to spur growth. But there's a gap between the time a new business breaks ground and the time it goes on the tax rolls.

Plus, the county is locked in wetlands protection disputes with the state Department of Natural Resources which apparently have jeop-ardized several developments. Many projects receive tax breaks from local communities, taking money away from county coffers.

At best, economic development would appear a long-term option. And the state wants cash now.

Why's that? After all Wayne County has apparently owed this money for years.

County officials say the state needs the money to keep its own books balanced.

How did the county get into this mess, anyway?

Someone could probably come up with a master's thesis on that one. For our purposes, we'll limit discussion to indigent health care.

For nearly 150 years, Wayne County has provided some degree of medical care to needy county residents. Obviously, the program was never a revenue-producer. Back when Wayne County was the automotive capital of the world, it hardly mattered.

Shrinking revenue and increased costs produced a county health care debt of $89.5 million by 1984. A plan adopted that year to pay off the debt seemingly ended the crisis.

But agreed-upon costs have far been exceeded, prompting a new agreement. The county audit showed county budget overruns of $19 million for indigent health care and $10 million in state-mandated mental health care programs for 1986 alone. Under terms of the 1984 agree-

Who's to blame for all this. There's enough blame to go around. But the real problem could lie in the continual jostling of our multi-tiered form of government.

For instance, some county officials claim a 1979 state agreement that essentially made Detroit Receiving Hospital and the Wayne State Clinical Center private institu-tions, bailed out both the city and university, but ultimately helped increase the county's share of indigent health care payments.

A state decision that year to have the Department of Social Services pay hospitals directly, then seek reimbursement from the county, gave hopsital prompt payments, but took bill-monitoring out of the coun-which grant tax breaks to new or remodeled businesses, but still isn't sure just how much is being lost.

None of this takes into account charges, including some from those now in county government, that county officials frequently authorized spending with an eye to political expediency rather than long-term county interest.

Wayne County's financial crisis isn't irreversible. For the short term, any one, or any combination, of the revenue-raising options could bal-ance county books.

But while that could be a struggle, the greater struggle could lie in bringing the state, the county and all its communities together to prevent deficits from re-occurring.

30-Year ARM

Before you buy or refinance your home, consider the advantages of our Adjustable Rate Mortgage (ARM).

Many of our ARM loan customers have saved a lot of money in mortgage interest costs over the past few years. And, at present interest rates, borrowers are finding our ARM loans to be an even better bargain. The first-year interest rate on our 15-year ARM is now only 7.25% compared to much higher rates on fixedrate loans. What's more, with the 2% annual and 6% lifetime interest rate caps that we have placed on our ARM loans, you'll pay less interest and have greater principal reduction over at least the first four years of vour loan.

The lower initial interest rates on our ARM loans result in lower initial monthly payments. And, the lower monthly payments mean that it will be easier for you to qualify for the loan that you need to buy or refinance your home. So, come to any Standard Federal branch office and learn more about our ARM loans. We'll help you find the loan that is just right for you. "All annual percentage rates are calculated based on a 2% loan discount fee, a loan amount of $50,000,00, a 20% down payment, and monthly principal and interest payments of $456,43 for the 15-year loan and $349.61 for the 30-year loan. These estimated annual percentage rates are subject to increase or decrease on an annual basis after the loan is ed based on the formula set forth in the loan contract

WORKING AND ARTHRITIS

If you have arthritis, should you work or take early retirement and apply for disability?

If the loss of income isn't crucial, or your limitations are extreme, you should evaluate the following.

First: How physical is the job? Are the hours constant, or are you under pressure to work overtime, Saturdays, or holidays? How much walking, bending and standing is involved in the job? If your answers indicate that the job causes prolonged strain on the joints, then retirement is worth pursuing.

Second: What are the physical conditions under which you work? Are there a number of stairs you must climb to get to your workplace or washrooms? Is your parking place or the cafeteria too distant for your damaged joints to navigate? If such is the case, consider retirement.

Third: Would you qualify for Social Security disability? To do so requires involvement of upper and lower extremetles and documentation by a physician or lack of improvement on appropriate therapy. In most cases, financial need and difficulties posed in meeting the conditions mentioned above, cause most individuals to choose to remain on the job.

Good food celebrates life, family

Good food is a celebration of life! Eating healthy to stay healthy is now a main deciding factor when families plan their menus and dietary needs.

We are constantly being bombarded with commercials on television and radio that implore us to "increase the necessary dietary fiber" in our everyday eating

Now, I take these advertisements with a grain of sodium reduced salt. Let's face it folks, nibbling trees inscribed with Euell Gibbons' eulogy not only is a bit off the beaten path, but up until now, I have been relying on a daily bowl of "Fruit & Fibre" cereal to meet my requirements.

When someone mentioned the fact that I needed to increase my fiber intake, I thought they were referring to the Canadian Club that is mellowed in those big wooden vats. That piqued my interest.

I BEGAN keeping a daily log of everything I ate. Understand now, that I was raised in the '60s and '70s when we were taught that white bread was about as healthy as a swim in the St. Clair River opposite Dow, in Sarnia. Fresh fruit (a great source of fiber) is a luxury in my daily repertoire (although I do try to munch on an apple whenever I can). In addition, my intake of legumes was limited to an occasional bowl of 4 alarm chili that for sure served no benefit to my innards.

Lately, however, I have been experimenting with lentils and garbanzos. ·Pinto beans have taken a front row seat on my shelf since I discovered they can be used other than as refried beans. Does this sound like the ranting and ravings of a vegetarian yuppie? Hardly, although I have significantly curbed my intake of red meat and processed foods over the last few years.

What I am trying to get across is the simple fact that so many of us are stuck on the notion of the same old foods, week in week out. Our shopping lists read like mimeographed copies of a 24 - hour dinner menu. If it's Sunday, this must be roast

WAKE UP! Attemp a meatless meal still rich in dietary fiber and protein. Experiment with legumes and learn that they can taste great even when they're not boiled to death in a soup with a ham bone!

Usually, when planning a meal that will not have something that walked as a main course, people get worried that they might not be getting the necessary protein. Lentils, soybeans and other legumes are on the top of the list of foods most concentrated with protein, not to mention important dietary fiber. Include some eggs, milk or cheese in the recipe and the saucepot will be bursting at the seams with healthy, nutritious eating.

The benefits of healthy eating could take a column in itself. The Cancer Foundation and the North American Heart Association all praise the value of high fiber, low fat diet. Usually when folks mention diet, I tend to look the other way, but I think you will find that the recipes included are both tasty and healthy.

Do you have a favorite recipe that does not use meat, fish or poultry and is healthy and high in fiber? Share it with me and enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope and I'll send you a page of mine. Send your recipe to Chef Larry Janes, c/o Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft Road, Livonia, 48150.

Denise Bartlett-Fanelli, a Westland resident and registered dietitian who volunteers with the American Heart Association, advises against salting food at the table. It's also best to limit use of salt in cooking, she said.

Summer heat can cause poisoning

Wedding receptions, family celebrations, picnics in the park and outdoor grilling are signs of summer and warm weather. It's a chance to get outside after the winter months.

After enjoying one of these get-togethers, have you ever experienced an upset stomach, abdominal pains, diarrhea or a severe headache? You pass it off as a cold or the flu; however, it is possible you have fallen victim to food poisoning from the gathering. Not a pleasant thought!

ing kills salmonella. The dangerous temperature range is from 40 degrees to 140 degrees Fahrenheit. Remember, life begins at 40° for these bacteria. Symptoms of salmonella are flu-like, diarrhea, vomiting and Clostridium perfringes, sometimes called the "cafeteria germ," strikes food served in steam trays or at room temperature. It is most often found in cooked beef, turkey gravy, dressing, stews and casseroles. Dangerous temperatures are between 70 to 120°. Divide buffet foods into several small dishes to serve hot (above 140°) or cool rapidly in the refrigerator (under 40°). Symptoms of Clostridium perfringes are diarrhea and abdominal pains.

STAPHYLOCOCCUS, generally known as Staph, is also a common food poisoning. They usually enter food from humans or animals because of unsanitary conditions. Their ideal growing temperature is 100°. They multiply rapidly and produce a toxin or poison. Keep your hands clean when handling food and stay away if you are sneezing or coughing. Don't let prepared foods, particularly starchy foods, cooked or cured meats, cheese and meat salads sit at room temperature over two hours. Symptoms are nausea, diarrhea and abdominal cramps.

Clostridium botulinum is the fourth food poisoning and the most dangerous. It is usually fatal. Improperly canned foods are the culprits. Pressure canning is an absolute must for low-acid foods such as all vegetables (except tomatoes), all canned combination foods and all meats. This bacteria is only destroved when the temperature of the foods goes above 212°. This, of course, means above boiling water temperature.

TO AVOID serving foods that could be potentially dangerous, remember: KEEP FOOD HOT (above 140°), KEEP FOOD COLD (below 40°), and KEEP FOODS CLEAN (Your hands and work area).

Never thaw frozen food on a kitchen counter at room temperature. Bacteria need food, warmth and moisture to grow. Letting food thaw at room temperature can create this situation. Thaw foods out in the refrigerator; it may take a little longer, but it is safer.

If you are giving a party over à several hour time frame, serve food in smaller dishes and change them halfway through the party. The serving dishes will look fresher and will certainly be safer. Never leave them longer than two hours.

Grand Prix parties a paradise for food lovers

Billed as Detroit's most glamorous week of the year, every night the news media featured local and outof-town celebrities attending glittering dances and lavish balls. During the weekend, hundred of thousands of people braved the heat and long trek to the track area to watch the races and take part in various citywide parties.

As any catering manager would say, the best parties are carefully planned and the Grand Prix is no exception. Due to the efforts of many volunteer and paid workers, city roads were blocked and paved, traffic was rerouted, wanderers kept off the track, and all of those hundreds of thousands of people were fed.

Most of the track-watching crowd bought their favorite foods from long rows of concession stands. Those who were lucky enough to observe the race from the high vantage point of the outdoor tent suites at the Rennaissance Center received round-the-clock service from the workers of Five-Star Catering, a subsididary of the Fred Silber Com-

Wong

"In a word, it was awesome," said first-time Prix worker Ellen Shannon, a culinary arts student at Oakland Community College in Farmington Hills. Working out of a 40-foot refrigerated truck in the Terrace area, located just outside of the hairpin turn, Shannon was one of over 500 employees hired by Five-Star to work the Grand Prix.

SHE ESTIMATES that she made over 80 deli, fruit, cheese and relish trays for the eight suites of the Terrace during the three-day weekend, working, like everyone else, 10- to 12-hour days. During the week at the main commissary kitchen which was set up at Oakkland University in Rochester, she estimated that she helped roll about 300 pounds worth of meatballs to add to the 300 pounds

"The amount of food was unreal I wasn't prepared to see so much food," said Shannon. "I worked myself to death, but I'm ready to go back and do it again next year.

Her sentiments were echoed over and over again by others who worked. Scott Russo, a first-year apprentice at OCC, said, "It's massive production done for so many people." His jobs included slicing 16 beef top rounds for deli trays, making sausage sauce, carving watermelons, and making pheasant puffs.

Luann Whiting, Grand Prix assistant food operation director for Five-Star Catering, explained that the company handles all the food orders for the executive suites that are located at the Rennaissance Center. Each "suite" is actually a large, colorful canopied tent with about a dozen umbrella tables on indoor-outdoor carpeting which provide seats and shelter for approximately 150 persons throughout the day.

SOME OF the companies which have suites are the Ford Company (with five or six), the State of Michiand Concepts, Mobil Oil, Chevrolet, Apple Computers, Michigan Bell and many others. The Formula One suite, which accompanied up to 900 persons, was set up for different companies to entertain individuals rather than one entire company.

All of the executive suites were spread out over five areas - Terrace; Promenade, which was located directly next to the Rennaissance Center at the street level, Riverview, whose suites overlooked the Detroit River on the Miller Parking Garage, Turn One, located inside the hairpin turn, and Veranda, whose suites were located on the waterfront side of the Rennaissance Cen-

To Peltier, trapping, cleaning, cooking and eating the marshland animal is "just our everyday living here" in Monroe.

But to Yvonne Lockwood, who has been researching Michigan "foodways" for the Smithsonian, muskrat is something that makes Monroe

"What has happened is the muskrat has become a symbol of Monroe," said Lockwood, a Michigan folklife specialist.

"The marshlands are important in the development of that culture,"

FROM A folklorist's perspective, the muskrat is to Monroe what pasties are to the Upper Peninsula what smoked fish, morels and cherries are to the cultures of other regions of the state.

In Monroe, Lockwood has found, muskrat trapping is a tradition that almost is "a rite of passage to young boys. Every man I've talked to from that area learned to trap muskrat."

Perhaps not every Monroe man knows how to trap muskrat, but virtually every man of French descent does, according to Peltier. "My father was French and we used to eat a lot of wild game when we were young," he said, recalling that his father taught him to trap. The winter sport can provide 'good pin money" as well as food on the table, he said. 'A lotta kids trap for the fur. I did it a lot when I was a kid. That's money in the pocket," Peltier said. He said he and his friends would sell the pelts to hide shops in Monroe or Blissfield.

GENERALLY, PEOPLE trap in the marshes along the river and lake, he said. But a lot of the farmers trap on the creeks, he added.

Muskrat season in this area of the state generally is from Nov. 10 to

At 74, Peltier hasn't trapped in years, but he remembers that it was

"You just set the traps and hope to get 'em, that's all."

Lockwood has taken notes on every aspect of muskrat trapping, cleaning and cooking.

Her research on Monroe muskrat and the cultural traditions of other aspects of the state was for use at the Smithsonian's Festival of American Folklife, held this month on the institution's grounds in Washington. The festival each year features the heritage of a different state; Michigan's turn coincides with the state's sesquicentennial.

THE EVENT will "present Michigan's culture to those who might not come to Michigan," Lockwood said.

Many of the other Michigan traditions being studied are related to the water: decoy carving, fly tying, commercial fishing and fish netting, for Taxidermy, quilting, woodcarving and rag-rug weaving also are being examined, as are such things as the work and leisure activities of Michigan autoworkers.

Nicholas Spitzer, a folklorist with the Smithsonian's Office of Folklife Programs, was in Monroe last September researching such customs as fiddle-playing and punt boats.

Both Lockwood and Spitzer have been working closely with Dennis Au, assistant director of the Monroe County Historical Museum.

IN ADDITION to introducing the folklorists to Monroe traditions, Au when the dinner had to be canceled is researching old Monroe folk tales, such as a little ditty that speaks of, '40 muskrat eat my father." And he's looking for some old muskrat spears.

Lockwood, whose federally funded work is based at the Michigan State University Museum, spent several days in Monroe this winter. She has observed - and occasionally helped - as the locals cleaned, cooked and

She and her husband joined the Peltier family for their annual New Year's Day muskrat dinner and found the local delicacy to be "a very tasty little critter," Ms Lock-

The Peltiers say they always start the year eating muskrat. "All day we make a party of it," Peltier said.

LOCKWOOD ALSO was in town when members of the Monroe Boat Club prepared for the group's annual stag night muskrat dinner. She was among those most disappointed because a refrigeration problem spoiled the meat.

Peltier has been helping to organize the boat club's muskrat dinners for year. The club and its ladies auxiliary usually hold two a year - a stag night when only muskrat is served and an open dinner when both beef and muskrat are served.

Lockwood said that some of the women don't like muskrat, but most of the men she has met love it

Elda Peltier learned to like it. her husband says. At the boat club, Norbert "Nub Hoffman does a good deal of the cooking, Peltier said. But "it takes quite a few to work on it," he said. THERE IS debate over the best way to prepare muskrat. In Monroe, muskrat basically is served two ways - with corn and without Peltier isn't particular. "We have 'em with corn. but I like 'em fried. too," he said.

Prosecutor targets schools to fight drug

By Wayne Peal

Several members of the Wayne County Prosecutor's office may be going back to school this fall. Prosecutors and law enforcement representatives would attend classes to warn middle school students about the dangers of illegal drug use. We want to show students what could happen to them, from a legal standpoint, if they became involved with drugs," chief assistant prosecutor George Ward said.

Assistant prosecutors would be made available to all county school districts, Ward said. The program would build upon last year's more limited program, which featured federal attornevs.

A companion program for high school students is still being drafted.

"Ultimately, we'd like to develop some kind of incentive program that could be used in all three metropolitan counties," Ward said.

THE PROSECUTOR'S office has applied for financial support under the Federal Drug Abuse Act of 1986.

Earlier this year, prosecutors throughout the state adopted the goal of making schools "drug free"

We realize that's a bit much to ask for, but we still hope to substantially reduce drug use," Ward said.

To do so, classroom education would have to succeed where other deterrents, including family support and incarceration, have failed.

"There's no question that family support is the strongest deterrent we

Ward said. "Increasingly, schools and other agencies are being asked to do this job."

Doubly frustrating, Ward said, is the lack of county jail space and the apparent unwillingness of police agencies to use other alternatives.

'Obviously, you can't lock everybody up in a county with a jail shortage like we have," Ward said. "But there's been a reluctance to use forfeiture law. If someone uses a car to deliver crack they should lose that CRACK, A less-expensive form of cocaine, is among the most commonly used drugs by school-age county residents, Ward said.

"Prosecutors have learned a couple of valuable lessons," Wayne County Prosecutor John O'Hair said at the time. "First, you cannot fight crime without fighting illegal drugs. Second, a strategy limited to attacking only the sources of supply of illegal drugs is grossly inadequate. Far more important is a strategy aimed at the demand for illegal drugs."

Three out of every four robberies are committed by drug users, according to National Institute of Justice statistics. Half of all felony assaults and one-quarter of all homicides are also committed by drug abusers, according to institute stud-

"Many of our teachers received their degrees at a time when drug education really wasn't an issue, Thurston High School principal Stewart Schauder said.

County touts 'privatized' youth camp

By Wayne Peal staff writer

Lead by Chairman Arthur Carter, a group of Wayne County Commissioners is pushing for a new youth camp for "at risk" youngsters 13 and

They hope private industry will pick up part of the tab.

Commissioners who back Carter's proposal are considering using 10 percent of county land sale revenue and 4 percent of the county's annual recreation budget to start and operate the camp, but they're also looking for private support.

We're going to have to move to the private sector," Carter said. "We (county officials) simply don't have

THE COUNTY'S own share isn't guaranteed.

The county executive has made it very clear he would veto any plan that would use land sale revenue for anything but retiring the deficit," deputy county executive Michael Duggan said. "But the youth camp itself is something we would look

County officials are currently negotiating with the state on a pay back plan for $60 million the state says is owed for indigent health care

Under the proposal, a private, non-profit agency would be created to handle corporate, private and governmental grants. Oakland County has already established such an agency to administer Camp Oakland, its 50-bed youth home.

The Wayne County camp would serve 100 youngsters, Carter said. Its annual operating costs would be about $3.4 million, or $34,000 per youngster, according to commission

COMMISSIONERS hope to have the camp operating, at least at partial capacity, by April 30, 1988.

Commissioners hope to tap $200,000 allocated for youth homes in the state's supplemental budget to create the camp.

Carter said youth programs were needed, despite Wayne County's massive deficit. "We realize there's a deficit, but we can't interrupt services to the people of the county," he said.

The youth camp proposal follows last week's state hearing on youth crime. Speakers at the Detroit hearing said that young offenders stand a better chance of become law-abiding adults if they receive social training as early as possible.

The proposal also follows recommendations made earlier this year by the county's Youth at Risk Task

THE CAMP has substantial backing. Eight of the commission's 15 members have co-sponsored Carter's resolution, including Susan Heintz, R-Northville Township, whose district includes Livonia and Plymouth.

"There's a certain point where work release just won't work," Heintz said. "Some of these kids need to be taken out of society for awhile and straightened out."

The commission's health and human services committee recommended creating the camp Thurs-ing.

If commissioners approve, a youth camp trust fund would be established. The fund would receive 10 percent of gross proceeds from any county land and building sales or leases. It would also receive 10 percent of the gross revenue generated by county-owned enterprises and at least 4 percent of county's recreation budget.

Private or public social services agencies would be allowed to provide camp services under contract to

A county youth services division would also be created. Its director, appointed by the county executive with commission concurrance, would oversee fund raising and solicit camp staff from juvenile court, state, local and private child care agencies, mental health, and education employees.

A 13-member advisory board ould supervise camp programs. Members would be appointed by the county executive, chief probate judge and county commission. A Wayne County site is sought. Half of all campers would be re-ferred by mental health, family, youth assistance and related agencies, as well as relatives. Family and individual therapy would be provided, as would as academic and vocational education, work study and recreational pro-

The program would seek to become affili ated with the psychology, human service or social work departments of a major university Community-based youth centers would be developed as needed.

Bicycle rights quiz needed: doctor

By Tim Richard staff writer

Dr. Marc Lindy is tired of motorists who try to run him and other bicyclists off the road. "I bicycle from my home in Southfield to my office in Birmingham," said the podiatrist. "Some drivers tell me to get onto the sidewalk. I try to tell them that I'm a taxpayer and have a legal right to the road, too." He has started a two-pronged campaign to sensitize motorists to the rights and safety of bicyclists. It may take years or even decades to pay off, but he is certain the campaign will save lives.

PART ONE is to get Secretary of State Richard Austin to place five questions concerning motorist-bicytest. Sample questions (answers be-

1. On a four-lane road, a bicyclist is in the curb lane, riding with traffic. As you approach from behind in that lane, you should:

a) Sound your horn so the rider can get out of your way.

b) Change to the outer lane and proceed around the bicyclist. c) Try passing the bicyclist without changing lanes.

d) Shout to the bicyclist that he/ she belongs on a bike path or side-

2. You approach an intersection to make a right turn. A bicyclist is in the right lane ahead of you. You

a) Pass the bicyclist as quickly as possible to make your turn.

b) Proceed behind the bicycle until the bicyclist turns or proceeds through the intersection.

c) Sound your horn and pass the bicyclist as close as safely possible.

3. A bicyclist riding in the streets: a) Has a legal right to be there if he/she follows the same traffic laws as an automobile.

b) Must always yield to an auto-

c) Is really breaking the law because bicyclists have no rights on the

d) Deserve rude gestures, verbal abuse or being endangered for being stupid enough to ride on the road.

PART TWO is to teach respect for bicyclists in driver's education programs. Lindy already has found there will be no "one-stop shopping" in this task

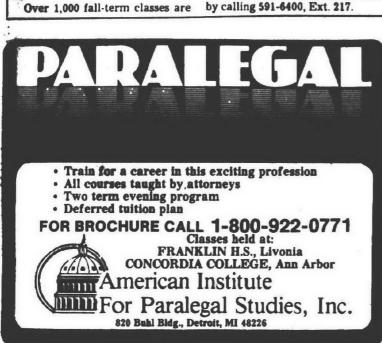

A spokesman for the Michigan Secretary of State told him the Department of Education sets curriculum standards for public schools.

Private driving schools are regulated by the Secretary of State's off-

"Bicylcling is growing in popularity," Lindy said, noting that the Michigan Department of Transportation estimates there are 50 percent as many bicycles as motor vehicles in the state

He invited bicycle fans interested in the campaign to contact him at his office, 559-5959.

"I HATE sitting around," McCarthy said. "I always like to be active."

His selection to play for the Michigan 17-and-under team was another of many achievements, both athletic and academic, McCarthy attained in the last year as he culminated an outstanding career at Plymouth Christian High School.

For his success on the field of competition as well as in the classroom, McCarthy is honored today as the Plymouth-Canton Observer's Athlete of the Year.

But basketball represents only a portion of his sports activities. McCarthy is an accomplished golfer and baseball player, too. His resume also includes some soccer experi-

McCARTHY, WHO earned 11 letters in high school, has been playing golf since his father bought him a set of junior clubs at age 9, but he didn't begin to "really get serious" until he began playing for the Eagles.

McCarthy, who hits the ball a consistent 250 yards off the tee and is on the course three to four mornings every week to practice, earned All-State recognition last fall after placing sixth in the Class D tournament. He also was the 1985 winner of the Observer & Eccentric tournament.

He began his high school athletic career playing soccer. But it was a sport with "too much running" and not well-suited for McCarthy's tastes. Consequently, the first three months of his sophomore year was the only time in four years he was on the sidelines.

"It was a different kind of running," said McCarthy of the open "IF I HAD concentrated on just spaces to be covered on a large one, I might have done really well, soccer field. "I'm not an endurance

WHILE THAT was disappointing, the 6-foot-1, 170-pound McCarthy feels a bit vindicated by having made the AAU team, which includes players from Class A champion and runner-up Detroit Cooley and Southwestern, respectively.

"That's the main thing," he said. 'Most people around here think 'he can't play.' I was glad I made it, because it showed to other people that I can play.'

McCarthy, who once scored a school-record 43 points as a sophomore and 36 on another occasion, had to adjust his style of play to mesh with the talents of his AAU

"I'm more offensive minded when I'm playing on the team at my school, and, in the AAU, I'm out there more for the defense and ball handling," he said.

BUT ATHLETIC success is only half the story in the case of McCarthy, who plans to study business and pre-law at Purdue. His excellence in academic circles makes him the personification of the student-athlete.

Following a college-prep curriculum with tough classes like chemistry, physics and trigonometry, McCarthy compiled a 3.6 gradepoint average, was a three-year member of the National Honor Society and was listed in Who's Who of Michigan High School Students.

akers remain on roll in MSHL

The Lakers remained the top team in the Mid west Summer Hockey League with a 3-0 record Thursday, this time plastering the Bulldogs 13-6.

Trailing the Lakers in the Eagle Conference standings are the Wildcats (2-1), Spartans (1-2) and Bulldogs (0-3).

The Wolverines, 6-1 winners over the Huskies Wednesday, lead the Bakes Conference with a 2-0 mark. The Broncos and Falcons are tied for second at 1-1, and the Huskies are winless at 0-2.

The Bulldogs countered with four goals in the last four minutes of the second period in an attempt to rally, but the Lakers added four more in the finale as several players enjoyed big nights.

Farmington's Jason Tratechuad scored four goals and had three assists, and Tim Olschanski had two goals and four assists.

In addition, the high-scoring affair included a pair of goals and as many assists by Jon Doehr and a goal and three assists from E.J. Sauer.

Paul Tunison and Mike Vellucci had two goals apiece for the losers.

WILDCATS 4, SPARTANS 1: Mike Stahley scored three of the Wildcats' four goals Thursday, including the last two late in the third period to cushion a 2-1 lead.

Craig Mooney turned in a solid performance in goal for the Wildcats, and teammate Chris Nickerson had two assists.

Schoolcraft signs pair of PS players

By C.J. Risak staff writer

Nick O'Shea's soccer experiences have followed a circuitous route. As a player, he's competed for Schoolcraft College, Oakland University, the Oklahoma City Stampede, the Tulsa Tornado, the Kalamazoo Kangaroos, the Toledo Pride, the Shamrock Rovers (of Dublin, Ireland) and a few other select squads.

In his first year of coaching, O'Shea is finding just as much diversity.

For example: He guided Livonia Churchill to the girls state Class A final in June, relying heavily on experience (Churchill captured the state title in '86) and a suffocating defense. The offense usually got just enough goals to win. Now, as O'Shea prepares for his first season of coaching Schoolcraft College's womens team this fall, he's facing a completely different problem. The Lady Ocelots have only one player returning (defender Kelly Churchill), and their strength should be scoring goals, not stopping them.

In fact, O'Shea figures this team's goal-scoring ability could lead it to an NJCAA title.

HIS OPTIMISM is well-founded. Last week, O'Shea got commitments from a pair of local standouts: Mary Kay Hussey, a 1985 Livonia Stevenson graduate, and Jennifer Huegli, an '86 grad of Livonia Churchill.

Both played one year at Barry University in Miami Shores, Florida. Hussey, a two-time prep All-American who collected 99 goals and 66 assists while at Stevenson, left Barry after one year to move

'She's been going to Schoolcraft for a half a year or so," said O'Shea. "I asked her if she wanted to play (soccer), she said sure, and I said, 'Yaaay!' "

Huegli followed a similar path. She tallied a Churchill careerrecord 87 goals (including 35 in 1986), then accepted a scholarship to attend Barry. But she, too, became disillusioned and decided to

"I didn't really ask her why (she transferred)," O'Shea said, adding with a smile, "I didn't really care."

What O'Shea did care about was having two quality scorers to anchor his front line. Hussey netted 19 goals while at Barry; Huegli had

THEY AREN'T the only major talents recruited by O'Shea. He's also received commitments from Plymouth Salem's Lisa Hysko and Jennifer Belhart, Churchill's Shari Acitelli and Jennifer Flowers, and Livonia Franklin's Kelly Holzwart.

With a front line featuring Hussey, Huegli, Flowers and Holzwart and a midfield of Hysko, Belhart and Cheryl Saunders of Sterling Heights Stevenson, O'Shea thinks his team should be strong offensively. It's his back line that concerns him.

"If we can get the defense set, I think we can win the whole thing." he predicted. "With Hussey and Huegli, we can score goals. If we can stop them from going in, we should do well."

At the moment, O'Shea feels confident in only two defenders, Churchill and Acitelli. He isn't familiar enough with the other players he has commitments from to echo the same sentiment.

Contest asks: Do ya love her or hate her?

Do you love Madonna - or hate her?

Would you give her dia ... onds or a dog collar?

Is she beauty or the beast?

Ever since Mador...a scored with her first pop music hit, "Borderline," in 1983, the debate has been raging.

When her name is casually mentioned at school, in the office, at home, wherever, the rock star from Rochester sparks a strong

Some praise the reigning pop queen. Many love her music, men find her sexy and teenage girls emulate her by copying her dress. Others say she can't sing, she's ugly, she's bitchy, she's a tart.

What do you think? This is your chance. Show us how you feel about a woman some compare to Marilyn Monroe, and others to Lassie.

In 50 words or less, tell us why you love Madonna — or hate her. We'll print the best letters and give prizes to first-place winners in

The winner in the "I Love Madonna" category gets two tickets to her Aug. 7 Pontiac Silverdome concert.

The "I Hate Madonna" winner gets two tickets to an upcoming Meadow Brook Music Festival show.

To get you to enter, we offer this warning: If you love Madonna and don't write to tell us, well, we'll just have to print all those Madonna hate-letters unchallenged.

Maybe there'll be a ballgame on TV the night of Aug. 7. There's always a good book to read. Or an decent movie to slip into the VCR. Might be great to hit the old sack early that night.

Anything — and I extend that to mean just about any thing - would be better than hacking my way through the hoards of demented devotees to see Madonna, that pop-culture idol who'll be, ah, performing in the Pontiac Silverdome that Friday.

Madonna? Well, I've looked and I've listened, and it's my considered opinion that Madonna is trash on two legs — and not very good ones at that.

If you find that statement crude, well, I guess I'm picking words

Madonna - she of the belly buttons, fishnet stockings and a hairdo that looks like bleached-blond worms - is trash . . . boring, no-talent trash. Can't sing. Can't act. Shouldn't be on a stage.

It's certainly not worth $21.50 (a ticket!) and aggravation (remember, this is the Silverdome) to see Madonna's bounce and gig-

SO WHY, YOU may ask, bother to write about this woman? Why talk about her? Why not do her the ultimate dishonor - ignore

Good questions. And good advice. In fact, we tried to do just that a few years ago when Michael Jackson, another poor excuse for an entertainer, came to the Silverdome.

Everyone remembers what happened The media barrage over that little punk put to shame even the big booms at Hiroshima and Nagasaki. And everybody knows it'll happen again for Madonna.

Of course, the Madonna groupies'll just be eating it up. They'll be scrambling rump over bosom just to get a crack at her toenail

That's why I'm getting my few cents worth of common sense in right away. Madonna? Ugh! Let's turn on the ballgame.

Tom Baer is the editor of the Rochester and Troy editions

Congratulations, Tom.

By admitting hatred for Madonna, you join the ranks of Tipper Gore, Tammy Bakker and legions of other crabby, repressed Puritans.

Let's face it: People who hate Madonna are prudes. They're old at heart.

Madonna's music is lightweight, they say, while praising some new yuppie-jazz artist, Sousa marches or Jerry Vale.

Madonna's music is fun, clever stuff, and that's plenty. Her songs give a lot of people pleasure. Nobody will put her up there with the Stones, Beatles or Dylan as a rock legend. But neither would she. I started to really like Madonna when she had her hit "Like A Virgin." It was great - pop singer with tart image wears wedding dress and sings song about virginity! How rude! What a laugh! And I always did like white stockings.

MADONNA'S GOT guts. Just when the world was getting familiar with her belly button-crucifixes-mega-necklace-image, she switched to a new style for her first tour in 1985, and now has a Marilyn Monroe look.

Being able to grow is one sign of a successful artist. The 1980s have been marked by pop artists who set an original style, win notice, then fade fast — witness Boy George and Cindy Lauper.

But Madonna has lasted. Her music keeps changing too — from soul to rock to ballads Meanwhile, the hits keep coming: "Borderline," "Into the Groove," "Like A Virgin," "Live To Tell," "Material Girl," "Papa Don't Preach" and more. So whine if you must, Madonna haters. She's here to stay.

Rude co-worker a real nuisance

I work in sales for a data processing company. The sales force comes into the office each morning prior to making calls for the day. The sales staff all have desks in the same open area. There is one person who is obnoxious, to say the least.

Each morning when this sales person arrives we are all aware of an intrusion. That is what this person does, intrudes, both physically and verbally. This person is large, add that to this booming, rude personality, and you have a description of the office nuisance.

I don't know how to handle the annoyance I feel when this person comes in each morning. Is there some general remark I could make that would help them to get the picture?

By early summer adults have mated and females are ready to lay 24-36 eggs a few inches under the soil. In five or six weeks the young will hatch out of their leathery egg. After hatching, young will have to find food such as earthworms and insects by themselves. Adults feed almost exclusively on toads.

In addition to its unique nose, hognose snakes have some interesting behavioral traits. Another common name for the hognose is puff adder. This name is derived from its habit of inflating its body with air to make it look bigger. After it has inhaled a large amount of air, it will expel the air and produce a loud hissing sound.

When disturbed and threatened, a hognose snake will coil up and flatten the area behind its head. This flattening gives the appearance of a cobra. While in the coiled position, it will shake its tail in the dried leaves. To a hiker, this sound closely resembles that of a real rattlesnake.

If these tricks fail, the hognose will flip over onto its back and play dead. Even if you turn it right-side up again, it will flip onto its back.

So even snakes have some very interesting habits worth watching.

To discourage teams from intentionally walking the men and only pitching to the women, most leagues insist that the batting order rotates between male and female batters. If a man walks, the woman following him in the order also receives a walk. Some leagues use a 16-inch softball while others stick to the standard 12-inch ball. Still other leagues rotate the 16- and 12-inch balls between the male and female batters. Most coed leagues insist that of the 10 players on the field a team may have no more than five men at one time. Some leagues require that positions are determined by sex. For example, if a man is playing first base, a woman plays second, a man shortstop and a woman third base. Usually the number of females on the field is unlimited. (But only 10

FARMINGTON HILLS PARKS AND RECREATION accommodates 16 teams in two divisions. Games are played on Fridays and Sundays at Farmington Hills Harrison High School. If enough teams are interested a fall league will be offered. Contact the Farmington Hills Parks and Recreation Department at 474-6115.

Many leagues enforce residency requirements or charge extra for non-residents.

Due to lack of interest there are currently no coed softball programs in Birmingham, Westland and West Bloomfield.

What to drink when working up a sweat

In the heat of the summer, it is extremely important to replenish body fluids lost while sweating. The basic choices are water, fruit juices and sports drinks such as Gatorade, Exceed, Bodyfuel, CarboPlus and Joe Weider's Dynamic Carbo Ener-

Not only what we choose but also when we drink it is also significant. Further, the type of activity you select may determine the drink choice.

FOR THE short-endurance exerciser, one who goes no more than two hours at a time, water is the best bet. First, it is the drink that empties out of the stomach and into the bloodstream the fastest. Drinks containing more than 2.5 percent sugar remain in the stomach longer, delaying necessary hydration. Such drinks also may cause cramps and intestinal discomfort. Sugared drinks include fruit juices. If you prefer juice, dilute it 2:1 with water.

The electrolytes (minerals including sodium, chloride and potassium) added to many sports beverages and powders are not needed for short-endurance workouts and are easily obtained in a normal, healthy diet. Besides, when exercising day after day in hot weather, the body learns how to conserve electrolytes.

Electrolytes, by the way, maintain the fluid balance within the body, aiding in muscle contraction and assisting the nervous system.

Long-endurance exercisers do benefit from liquids that contain more than just water. At this level, electrolytes counter a potential low blood sodium condition. Performances in such events as 50-mile runs, 100-mile bicycle rides and triathlons may be augmented by drinks or powders with carbohydrate addi-

The additional carbs keep the store of glycogen going - the body's major source of energy. Look for those brands made with glucose polymers rather than simple glucose.

Especially in the heat of summer, it is important to drink before, during and after physical activity.

Your friend pops the videocassette into the recorder, and you watch the home movie, only it's too dark and the figures all look as though they're doing the 50-yard dash.

The culprit is that big, hard-to-operate camera with a tripod, lights and shoulder mount, the kind you'd expect to use if you were filming for the news at 6 and 11. You can't imagine lugging all that stuff around just for the sake of home movies.

Too bulky, too expensive and too many gadgets - those have been the complaints from consumers who might otherwise be interested in buying a home video camera.

BUT IF THE size, price or complexity of home video cameras have stopped you cold in the past, now may be the time to go back to your favorite store for another look. Technology is making great strides.

"Pretty much nowadays you just aim and shoot them," said Jerry McCann, sales consultant at Hudson's Westland

"You don't carry lights around anymore and the heaviest (camera) is only six pounds. Minicams weigh three to four pounds.

Hudson's biggest seller is the VHScamcorder, McCann said. It incorporates features that endear it even to the most novice lensman.

The camcorder is a self-contained video camera and VCR combination, operating at light levels as low as 7 lux (the level of light a camera needs to get a clear picture - the lower the rating, the better the video will be in low light) with an automatic focus power zoom lens that lets you go smoothly from telephoto to wide angle or switch to macro for super closeups

In addition, it lets you review the last few seconds of recording through the electronic viewfinder, and automatically adjusts for changing lighting conditions to maintain proper color balance.

PRICES RANGE from $1,000 to $1,600 with ample offerings in the $1,200 range. Some manufacturers offer other incentives.

At Walter's Home Appliance in Livonia, you can buy an RCA camcorder and receive a $100 rebate. At Highland Appliance, buy a Sony video 8 camcorder and get $150 off the price of a ticket on American Airlines. Other models offer attractive. compact carrying cases for free.

"Eight-millimeter (very narrow tape produced by Sony) and Beta are big on the East and West coasts. The Midwest is big on the VHS format," said McCann, adding that he recently sold a camcorder to Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara.

"People may be leery at first but it's money well spent," McCann said.

The color is true, the sound is excellent and (manufacturers) are building stereo into them now. (Video cameras) are getting bigger and better all the time," he said.

Joe Garcia, a salesman at Walter's Home Appliance, agrees.

"The new ones weigh three pounds, the old ones (weigh) 12 pounds. The new camcorders run at "You can put special occasions on two speeds - a standard 20-minute tape - weddings, birthday parties. tape or one hour," Garcia said.

THE BIGGER MACHINES have a two-hour tape capacity. Some videophiles might favor the larger shoulder mount camcorder (weighing 6 pounds) because it holds a full-size cartridge tape that can be popped directly into a VCR. The smaller, lighter models use cassettes that need an adapter (a plastic case) to fit into the VCR for playback. An adapter is included with the camcorder.

Another available option allows the film to be viewed on a regular television screen by plugging the camcorder into the back of the TV set, thus eliminating the need for a

Garcia believes the new handmount models are more practical because they are easier to operate and the viewfinder can accommodate either right- or left-handed users. But Highland Appliance salesman Mitchell Lipton says the shoulder mount and hand-held camcorders are selling at about the same

"It's an individual preference."

Lipton said.

Basically all models carry a limited warranty 90 days on labor and one year for parts Extended warranties are available from most dealers.

"The extended warranty is a good idea." said Garcia, whose store sells a two-year, $200 warranty. "Otherwise, you pay $60 an hour for sercorder, keep these tips in mind while shopping for your camera.

 Check the lux rating, the level of light a camera needs to get a clear picture. This determines how well your camera will record under low light conditions and helps you avoid dark, shadowy figures. At present. 7 is the lowest lux rating available. Anything under 10 is good, according to area salesmen.

• Look for a camera in the $1,000 to $1.400 range. Appliance stores run sales periodically. Watch for other special promotions, such as the current $100 manufacturer's rebate offered by RCA

· Look for automatic white balance. The camcorder will automatically adjust for changing lighting conditions to maintain proper color balance · Test both the heavier, shoulder mount camera and the hand-held VHS models to see which one feels better for you. The bigger camera contains cassettes that pop directly into your VCR The three-pound camera with the smaller cassette tape needs an adapter to fit your VCR. The bigger machine may have longer tape playing capacity, two hours vs. an hour.

 If the proposition still seems expensive, remember that the old super 8 projectors prodúced three minutes of unedited film for about $13, according to salesman Jerry McCann Subtract the initial investment, and the standard two-hour cassette tape redited at the filmmaker's discretion; costs $7

Parties galore surrounded Napa Wine Auction

They really know how to throw a party in California's Napa Valley.

In fact, they threw more than 70 of them over a long weekend recently. The occasion was the seventh annual Napa Wine Auction. The parties were the events that preceded and followed the main event.

From Thursday through Sunday. wineries opened their doors selectively to some 1,500 people who came to sample wine, eat marvelous cheese and pates and bid on gala assortments of special wines in elegant packages. You can read elsewhere the statistics of the event (200 members of the press reporting the auction made its goal of $450,000 for the benefit of three area hospitals). The results were truly gratifying. I elect rather to report some of the miscellany, the impressions of the days. There were ment. Literally hundreds of volunteers participated from all over the Bay Area, well appointed in pink aprons, courteous and helpful all.

They gave of time, service, food and hospitality. Elementary-school art was displayed on the walls of each Port-a-John and each john had a bouquet of Napa flowers. The whole event was a masterpiece of organization and execution.

The numbers. Nearly 400 items were auctioned (in about six hours only), ranging from a barrel of selfblended 1986 Keenan Chardonnay, bringing in a huge $6,000 bid, to a six-pack of wine cooler, a 50-case lot of excellent Martini Red for which the winner could prescribe his/her

There was a 1933 Inglenook/Napanook, methusalahs of Domaine Mumm brut, full barrels of diverse Cabernets and Chardonnays. In all, nearly 100 of Napa's wineries contributed, not only to the auction but to the ancillary events as well.

And private individuals donated. Most impressive was a 129-bottle lot of dessert wines by a couple from Dexter, Mich. The San Diego Wine Competition donated a lot of 80medal-winning wines from its exhi-

The Saturday morning Barrel Tasting showed 43 of the wines that were to be in the auction. A chance to try some really young wines. One press member boasted that he went through the entire field in an hour, before the public crowded in. (And I walked away fairly steadily, too!)

The poignant note was the group of amateurs at the auction who had paid the required $200 for a bidding paddle, hoping for a bargain. There were none. Alas, the pros and semipros took over the scramble. It is al-

In the last century, poet Walt Whitman wrote, "I think I could turn and live with animals, they are so placid and self-contain'd."

More recently, Dr. Dolittle sang in the movies about wanting to "Talk to the Animals," including cheetahs and chimpanzees.

Many Americans feel the same way today. A national survey of 7,500 households by MRCA Information Services of Stamford concluded there were 51 million dogs and 48 million cats in U.S. households in

Since then, cats have gained on dogs and surpassed them in numbers. The numbers changed to 49 million dogs and 50 million cats in 1985, and to 52 million dogs and 56 million cats last year.

Also, 45 million birds, 250 million fish and 125 million other assorted creatures live in American homes, Time Magazine reports.

AREA PET SELLERS said dogs with traditionally friendly dispositions and longhair cats seem to be the most popular breeds. "Cocker spaniels, cockapoos, golden retrievers and dachshunds" are the most popular, said Beverly Grajewski, who is in sales at the AAA Pet'n Plant Center in Livonia.

"Any kind (of cat), just a domestic cat," she said.

Mixed-breed pupples, such as a cockapoo — a combination cocker spaniel and poodle - are among the top sellers, said Deanna Jackson, an employee at the House of Pets in "Any small breed dog," she said.
"Actually, just a regular kitten, no

Golden retrievers are real popular right now," said Zager, whose partner is Nancy Zimmi. "They just have a wonderful temperament. They're just a real nice dog. Poodles

KATHY BLAUET, shelter manager at the Michigan Humane Society Kindness Center in Westland, said cats have become increasingly popular because of current lifestyles.

"More people are working, and cats are easier to leave alone than dogs," Blauet said. "You can leave food and water (for a cat). They don't demand as much attention as a dog.

We had a lady that worked in a circus who brought in an arctic fox."

VETERINARIANS and the Humane Society discourage people from getting such exotic pets as baby animals found in the wild, raccoons or squirrels.

"At this time of year people do tend to bring in a lot of wildlife,"

People think baby animals are orphaned, but they can't know that for sure, Blauet said. Her advice is to 'let nature take care of it" or to call the center.

"These are not pets. They are wild animals," she said. "They don't make good pets. When it grows up it is a wild animal.

REPRESENTATIVE PET owners are Sharon Whitten and Pat Tutton. Whitten likes cats. They're easy to take care of and fun to watch, the Southfield resident says.

Tutton likes dogs. Tutton of Westland finds them good company.

In the past four years, Whitten has cared for 96 kittens, preparing them for the animal shelter. Today she has four cats of her own. She has had up to eight cats at one time. "They're intelligent," Whitten fawning on me.

"I think they're beautiful to watch. They change just like people as they get older. They tend to be more subtle in their (responses). There's a lot of little game-playing that they do.'

TUTTON USED to raise poodles. The dog she has now is a poodle. The family is also tending Tutton's daughter's dog, the breed of which Tutton describes as a "Heinz 57 sort of thing.'

"They're good company," Tutton said of dogs. "My daughter's dog is an extremely good watchdog.

"It's the enjoyment of having somebody when you don't have somebody around. They don't talk

"It's just that added comfort that's what dogs are all about.'

Dogs have different personalities, Tutton said. Poodles might be too high-strung for youngsters, she said.

MATT AND Laura Kinnich of Livonia have two cats.

"To be perfectly honest, I was never much of a cat lover," Matt said. "We got a cat - it must have been five years ago. Prior to that I didn't really like cats."

But his mind has been changed. 'We had a Persian. They're very laid-back animals, very relaxing, he said. "They're just very loving to go on a business trip," Sager said. They just leave their keys with us. That type of thing works out really "(Or) they work from 6 in the morning until 9 at night, (and ask) to just check in on (pets) during the day," she said. We basically do whatever they want us to do - let the dog outside, take it for a walk." One client from Plymouth wasn't feeling well but had to go to work, Sager said. The client called Critter

Sitters to help take care of a pet. "Even if it's only for one day, they don't like the (pet's) routine disrupted," Sager said.

ANIMAL CLINICS have hours to accommodate working people.

One example is the Professional Veterinary Hospitals, with nine clinics in Farmington Hills, Canton and Southfield, among other communi-

The clinics' features may include being open seven days a week. They may open at 7:30 a.m. and close at 6:45 p.m., enabling owners to drop off their pets on the way to work or pick them up on the way home.

"I think that's really beneficial for people who work," said Pam Miller, receptionist at the Professional Veterinary Hospital in Farmington Hills. "I think the (drop-off time) early in the morning really helps."

and Marvin Gaye albums. The Motown sound, which put Detroit on the music map, never really left us.

Only now Madison Avenue has revived some of the '60s soul tunes to sell everything from dried-up grapes to automobiles.

SO WHY should the Spinners be left holding the wheel? The five-member group, which recently appeared at Meadow Brook in Rochester, has its collective hand in the mass commercialization of the Detroit sound.

The Spinners performed the title track for Mel Brooks' latest movie comedy, "Spaceballs." And Pervis Jackson, an original member of the Spinners, doesn't have to carry a briefcase and wear a three-piece suit to know why the music is still popular.

"It was good music. It was good, clean music," said Jackson before the Solid Gold Show at Meadow Brook. "A lot of radio stations are going back to it, and that's why you're hearing it again in television commercials.

"To a child of 20, this is all new. They've never heard this music before."

But it would be hard to imagine anyone, this side of the moon, having never heard of the Spinners.

THE GROUP has been kicking out the hits for nearly 30 years. And as with their Motown cohorts, the Spinners' music is still popular.

Audiences at Spinners' concerts can range anywhere from "kids to grandmas," according to Jackson. Groups such as the Spinners, Four Tops and the O'Jays are in sort of a revival

And that is mainly because the children of the '60s are now adults in the business world and consumers buying things such as raisins and cars.

Yet Jackson would prefer to think the Spinners never left scene, despite a decrease in the popularity of stand-up soul groups during the disco period of the late '70s. "We thought that it was going to be a fad and was only going

And it's not exactly as though people have had to blow the cobwebs off their Stevie Wonder, Diana Ross and the Supremes voice he sings in. "But it stayed around a lot longer than we expected, so it kind of hurt us.

"I THINK music now is going back to what it used to be as

The Spinners, which formed in 1957, have never had to alter their sound. The group formed just as the Detroit sound was really taking off.

Jackson fondly recalls the Christmas Motown Revue shows that the Spinners took part in at the Fox Theater in Detroit along with the Supremes, Marvin Gaye and Temptations.

Ironically, though, it wasn't until the group broke from Motown Records and joined the Atlantic label in 1972 that things really kicked into high gear.

Hits such as "Mighty Love," "Then Came You," "Rubberband Man" and "I'll Be Around," soon followed.

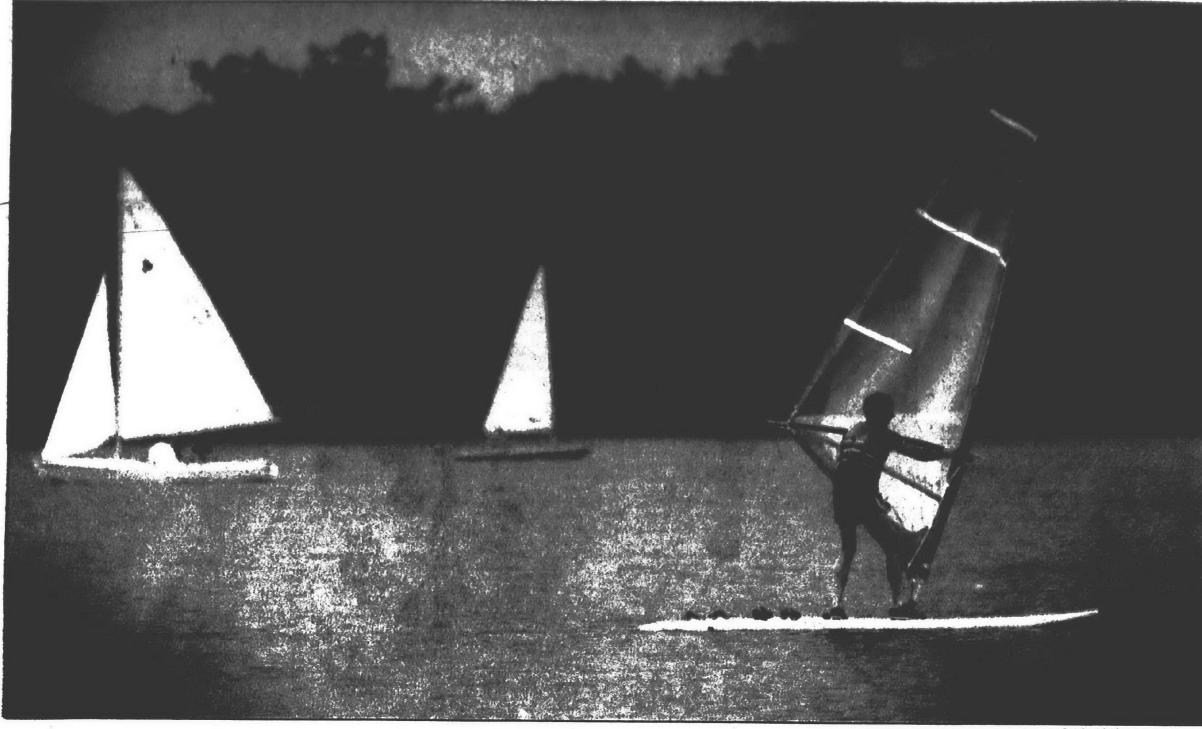

"In Motown there was so much talent and so many things oing on, I guess we just sort of got lost in the shuffle. We decided to leave . . . That was the biggest turning point for us." The turns were not always good, though. Philippe Wynne, the group's lead singer during the string of hits, left the group and He was replaced by John Edwards, who is still with the group. Other than that, the four original members are the same since they formed in the Ferndale/Royal Oak area in the late

"We were little kids with big dreams," Jackson said. No one back then would have dreamed the Spinners' music and Motown in general, would carry the clout it does even today. And if California raisins are able to move to it, the m has to be pretty good.

Dave Prebola of Plymouth sail boards across Kent Lake in Kensington Metropark during a recent SOLAR Club excursion.

By Loraine McClish staff writer

The goal was to get 'em up and sailing.

Sail boarding instructor Denise Crimaldi had been in her wet suit all morning, pacing knee deep in water at Kensington Metropark beach, calling out encouragement to the novice sail boarders.

Her students had already learned how to rig their crafts, put their sails together and tie what knots had to be tied. Now they hit the water for the ultimate test.

By noon Crimaldi and her half dozen fellow SOLAR Club instructors felt confident enough to take a break on the beach. If a high wind came up and pushed the novice sail boarders out to the middle of the lake they would be able to handle it.

"We use the best techniques we know," Crimaldi, a Birmingham resident, said. "We have safety devices on the safety devices. We're all certified sail board instructors. Our students have had two classroom sessions. They know the theory and the terminology.

"This is the first time they've had a chance to put into practice what they learned in class. In a few weeks they'll have a whole weekend in Traverse City to put the polish on and give what they've got a little refinement."

High adventure with a built-in low-risk factor spells out the philosophy of the SOLAR Club. SOLAR stands for the School of Outdoor Leadership Adventure and Recreation, and like any school its members are both teachers and students.

MORE OFTEN than not a former student is now a teacher.

"It runs from seldom to never that we would have to hire a guide or an expert for any of our education classes or seminars," said Maureen Peters, SOLAR's outgoing president.

"Maybe that would happen if we were planning a hiking trip in Alaska or an expedition to Antarctica, and maybe not even then. I think the last expert we hired was for a day of morel mushroom hunting.

"I took the presidency to give back a little of all the club gave to me, and I know I am typical (of the members). We use all of our own member resources for all of trips, our trip leaders, our seminars.

"It's the spirit of the club that keeps it alive," the Southfield resident said. "One member depending on the next as his lifeline when you are rock climbing makes for a lot of camaraderie. One member becoming proficient in scuba diving and then passing on that expertise to the newcomer is what our club is all about.

"We assist and train ourselves," Peters said.

and before you sign up to crawl on your stomach through a Kentucky cave or spend a weekend in the wilderness, you are going to know how to do it."

PEG CAMPBELL describes SO-LAR as "a club onto ourselves."

SOLAR got under way about 12 years ago and now has a mailing list of about 300. It is completely self-governing. It is affiliated with American Youth Hostel for insurance purposes and a trade-off of information and resources.

Anywhere from 50-100 members can be expected to show up at the monthly general meetings in Southfield to have a say in planning something, anything, for the next calendar of classes or outings.

Campbell stresses that SOLAR is not a family club, nor is it a singles club.

"We have people of all ages who come from all different walks of life, but I don't think any of us know what any of the rest of us do for a living. It's a lot more fun listening to the member who has just gotten back from Nepal than it is listening to what's going on in GM, whether he is a vice president or on the line," the Northville resident said.

"What we have in common is that we all enjoy the outdoors. We're all physically active. And I don't think anybody smokes. There is no rule on this. That's just the way it is.

"We have a few competitors in the club, but that is not the general rule. Most of us will sign up for a bike time trial, for example, to beat our last time out. Or maybe just for the company of other members who enjoy cycling, or cycling trips."

Campbell said the members who show up for the meetings will change as the season changes.

"The canoers come out in the spring. The skiers come out in the fall. But many, many times there's a crossover. You might join the club because you want to white-water raft, but it's a pretty sure bet you'll get fascinated by another class that's coming up," Campbell said.

AMONG SOLAR'S roster there is one man who has climbed Mount McKinley. There is another who regularly kayaks in Alaska. There is a woman who placed fifth in the world in a cross country skiing competition last year in Sweden.

"We're all here to give guidance and training to the novice," Peters

Anyone who wants to know more about SOLAR can call the group's hot line at 353-2808. Leave a message on the tape with your name and address, and they'll send you a complimentary copy of their newsletter.

Sail boarding in Holland State Park, rock climbing in Ontario, and a Tiger baseball game are listed on the end-of-July calendar.

For August there is a canoe trip, rock climbing, camping, a bicycle hill climb, a run, a Best Pork-'n'-Beans This Side of the Mississippi Cook-off, sail boarding, and the End-of-the-Summer Awards Banquet.
