RECOGNIZED: Two
Plymouth residents, Angelo
DiPonio and Nancy Tanger, received 40th anniversary recognition awards from Madonna College, Livonia, at its 40th anniversary celebration

The awards recognized men and women who have contributed their time and energy to Madonna College. DiPonio is a well-known builder in southeastern Michigan while Tanger, after whom Tanger Elementary in Plymouth is named, is a retired educator.

VAN GIFT: Don Massey, owner of Don Massey Cadillac in Plymouth, has donated a 1984 Chevrolet van to Catherine McAuley Health Center.

The van is equipped with an automatic lift and has been modified to accommodate handicapped and wheelchair patients. The Joyce M. Massey Traumatic Brain Injury Day Treatment Service is a component of the McAuley Rehabilitation Program of St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor. The Day Treatment Service facility has been made possible by a gift from Massey in honor of his wife Joyce.

PRESENTS

WHEELCHAIR: Money raised over the past three years by the Ladies Auxiliary of Mayflower-Lt. Gamble Post 6695 VFW in Plymouth will be used to present a wheelchair and two folding walkers to the Ann Arbor Veterans Administration Hospital on Thursday, Dec. 17. Bill Knapp coupons valued at more than $380 were collected during the presidential terms of office of Veneta Hornbeck of Plymouth, Myrtle Hurson of Canton and Carolyn VanGorder of Canton.

The Ladies Auxiliary supports many activities at the VA Hospital, including a monthly Coffee Hour. The Dec. 17 presentation will be part of a patients bingo sponsored jointly with the VFW Post.

NEW PARTNER:

Attorney Jeffrey M. Lipshaw of Plymouth has been named a partner at Dykema, Gossett, Spencer, Goodnow & Trigg, Michigan's largest law firm.

Lipshaw, 33, had been an associate with Dykema, Gossett. The Detroit native joined the firm in 1979, the same year he was admitted to the bar. He works on antitrust and trade regulation, commercial and administrative law cases in the firm's litigation section at the Detroit office. His specialties are antitrust and securities litigation, and insurance regulation.

Lipshaw earned a bachelor's degree in history from the University of Michigan and a law degree from Stanford University.

AT CONFAB: John
Hechlik, a Plymouth psychologist and director of counseling at Wayne State University, recently attended the 26th annual conference of the Michigan Psychological Association. The conference, titled "The Many Facets of Psychology," dealt with group psychotherapy, legal and professional issues of emotional impairment, and perspectives in teaching psychology. A group of

The Plymouth Salem girls basketball took an important step toward a possible title last week with a hard-fought victory over Ladywood — the only team to have beaten them so far this year. The Rocks had no chance for a breather, though, as Salem advanced

Gifted classes sought for lower grades

By Susan Buck staff writer

Canton residents Linda and Arthur Gawronski want to initiate a letter-writing campaign to persuade Plymouth-Canton administrators to offer Talented and Gifted classes at a lower grade.

TAG classes now begin in the third grade and the Gawronskis would like them to start at least in the second grade, preferably in kindergarten as is done in Livonia Public Schools.

LAST MONTH, Gawronski distributed form letters that were signed by 35 parents of young children, asking that the needs of gifted children in the early grades be met by starting the TAG program in the second grade.

"Many people were surprised that the program didn't start earlier," she said. "I talked to people who I knew with little kids. I told them, "It might not affect your child but it might affect your next child." Gifted children in their own schools are not getting challenges that they need." Last year, Gawronski's daughter Jessica, 7, now a first grader at Eriksson Elementary, was diagnosed gifted by Livonia psychologist Dr. Ira Glovinsky.

Jessica scored 139 on the Wechsler Intelligence Scale for Children older than 6. According to her mother, Jessica is "gifted across the board." Reportedly, Jessica was doing advanced puzzles at age 2 and reading early. Gawronski fears that Jessica will lose spontaneity by delayed entry into the TAG program.

Educating the gifted child concerns both parents and schools.

But parents are the ones who fret and worry most once test results reveal their child's potential.

After the proud excitement subsides, choosing the best school or curriculum becomes a quest, with family finances often becoming the determining factor.

Tuition at schools for the gifted costs money — anywhere from $2,500-$7,000 annually

For many middle income parents, the only economic choice is the local school district's program for the

Orchestra has mixed feelings on DSO strike

By Julie Brown staff writer

The Detroit Symphony Orchestra won't be performing its series of Christmas Festival concerts this year. The Plymouth Symphony Orchestra, however, does have a series of December concerts planned.

Plymouth Symphony Orchestra, has mixed feelings about the continuing DSO strike. In some ways, he'd like

Consolidation leads to layoffs at Howmet

'It was totally unexpected. At this time of year, when something like this happens, it's very upsetting.'

— Charles Lee, plant UAW representative

By Doug Funke staff writer

More than a dozen employees, including high-level executives and production workers, were dismissed last week from Howmet Corp. Metal Products Division in Plymouth Township, apparently in a move to cut operating costs.

The dismissals — the general manager, production manager, plant engineer, general foreman and controller — were due to a consolidation of operations at plants here and in Dover, N.J., a corporate spokesman said.

Also let go from the non-union ranks in Plymouth, according to Charles Lee, a UAW representative at the plant, were three employees from the laboratory and one from purchasing.

Six union workers who manned a furnace operation on the afternoon shift were laid off. Five other hourly workers have been assigned temporarily to other jobs with uncertain futures, Lee said.

"Usually when you consolidate operations, you find you have repetitive positions," said Brian Wilson, Howmet's vice president for public affairs.

Howmet is in the business of manufacturing high-tech components, primarily for engines.

THE NON-UNION employees who were dismissed will receive severance pay.

The union employees are eligible for unemployment compensation.

No one from the New Jersey alloy plant has been dismissed as a result of the consolidation and no terminations are anticipated there. Wilson said.

The dismissals, which came within a few weeks of open houses to show off the 120,000-square-foot facility on Ann Arbor Road, stunned employees, Lee said.

"It was totally unexpected. At this time of year, when something like this happens, it's very upsetting

"It's cost-cutting measures we were told," Lee said. "We're going to be controlled by people from Dover."

Procedures for public land sale are debated

By Diane Gale staff writer

Emotions are easily triggered when you're talking about millions of dollars riding on prime land that's publicly owned.

It's a ticklish area, especially when it may appear one land buyer has an inside track or even a slightly better chance at the purchase.

The pot was stirred in Canton recently when Michael P. Horowitz of Selective Development Co. made an offer of $1.4 million ($50,000 per acre) for the Canton Township-owned 28-acre triangular parcel in the coveted Haggerty corridor at Haggerty and Warren roads—across the street from American Yazaki Corp.

OTHER DEVELOPERS in the area were upset by the offer, and the issue raised such questions as: Should publicly owned property compete with the private market? Should the land be publicly posted announcing it's for sale?

Sale?

Currently, Canton is without a written procedure for selling and buying land.

"We should make sure everyone is aware that we're selling that property," said Gerald Brown, Canton treasurer. He suggested advertising the land and posting the property. Trustees recently directed an attorney to outline procedures for buying and selling township-owned land.

Wilson said there never really is a good time to reduce the work force and fire people. No other dismissals loom at the Plymouth plant in the immediate future, he said.

Lee believes that increased competition in the alloy industry prompted management to take a hard look at expenses.

In a meeting with the union last summer, management talked about containing costs, making adjustments and needing flexibility under a new contract, Lee said.

Those negotiations are expected to start this week.

Health cuts for county's poor criticized

By Wayne Pool staff writer

Reductions in Wayne County's indigent health care payments could eventually force hospitals to cut service to needy county residents, according to the president of a regional hospital organization

Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara ordered an overall 50 percent cut in health care payments for needy county residents Friday. Health care cuts were necessary to keep the county from falling further into debt. McNamara said

Beginning Monday, Dec. 21, the county will reduce indigent health care payments to many major hospitals, including Detroit Receiving Hospital and Henry Ford Hospital

Cuts vary among individual hospitals. Locally, St. Mary Hospital,

Generally, cuts don't fall heavily in Western Wayne Westland Medical Center and its new owners, including Annapolis Hospital, Wayne and Garden City Osteopathic Hospital, are exempt from cuts McNamara said, because they provide indigent care under a formal contract with the county.

The move is designed to keep the county from exceeding the $15 million reserved for indigent health care in this year's budget. The county spent an estimated $30 million for indigent health care in the last budget year, which ended Nov. 30, offi-

The county "simply doesn't have the money" to continue that level of payment, McNamara said. The county seeks to eliminate a $130 million

A new indigent health care program could be adopted before the end of the year, Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara said Thursday.

McNamara said he was optimistic an agreement could be reached with state legislators before the Legislature breaks for winter recess.

"I'm very optimistic about indigent care," McNamara said during taping for "Spotlight on the News." The public affairs program was to air this weekend on WXYZ-TV, Channel 7, Detroit.

The county seeks to combine Medicaid and county resident care patients into a health maintenance or-

The HMO, McNamara said, would encourage patients to seek treatment as soon as possible. Health care officials acknowledge indigents generally don't seek medical care until minor ailments become major.

The agreement would go a long way toward preventing county debt from increasing, McNamara said.

Among major health care organizations, the Detroit Medical Center has already endorsed the proposal.

A SPOKESMAN for the Michigan Hospital Association's regional council, however, said the HMO wouldn't ease what he said were growing numbers of patients who are unable to pay their hospital bills.

'It gets into who you define as indigent," said Donald Potter, president of the Southeast Michigan Hospital Council. "The county takes care of about 50,000 people. But we're finding there are 300,000-350,000 county residents without medical in-

Rough conditions marked 1st year of statehood

Part I

To paraphrase Macaulay, every school boy or girl knows this is the year Michigan is observing the sesquicentennial of its admission to the Union. For that reason alone, it is appropriate to consider what Plymouth was like 150 years ago

What later became the village was still part of Plymouth Township in 1837. The township was double its present size because it still included what later became Northville Township. Plymouth was a tiny frontier community whose nucleus was the area now known as Kellogg Park

THE FIRST post office was called Plymouth Corners. Its postmaster. Gideon P. Benton, carried the mail in his hat or tied in a handkerchief.

Eight four-horse stages passed through the village daily on their way from Detroit to Ann Arbor. The few Potawatomi Indians who traversed the area on their way to and from Detroit were generally friendly. The settlers had less to fear from them than from the wolves and bears that killed their sheep and John S. Tibbits, whose father settled on North Territorial just west of Book in 1825, wrote that the area was then abundant in bear, wolf, lynx, deer, wildcat, fox, raccoon, badger porcupine, woodchuck, rabbit mink weasel and fisher. There also were plenty of eagles, hawks, owls, cranes, partridges, ducks, wild geese, ravens, turkeys, turkey buzzards and a variety of smaller birds.

Tibbits said the settlers used turkey and deer meat to augment their food supply. They used traps and deadfalls to catch bears and wolves to prevent them from destroying domestic animals

LUTHER LINCOLN had built a sawmill on the Middle Rouge River, east of the village, in 1826. He added grist mill in 1837. There was a hand-powered mill for grinding corn that had been built by A.B. Markham in 1826. A small store had been opened in 1827 a half mile south of the village.

There were a number of log schoolhouses, the first having been built about 1830 on Shattuck Hill on Plymouth Road, opposite the entrance to what is now Riverside

Sam Hudson

By 1837, when the "Toledo War" was settled and Congress decided that Michigan could finally became a state. Plymouth still had just five stores, a wildcat bank, three taverns, a drug store and the Presbyterian Church, which had 37 members in its congregation. The Methodists had organized as early as 1826 and the Baptists in 1830, but in 1837 the meetings of both denominations were still being held west of the village at Cooper's Corners, at North Territorial and Beck.

PLYMOUTH WAS platted in 1837 by Henry Holbrook, who owned the mill on what was later to be called Wilcox Pond. At that time the area now known as Old Village was called

Although there were private burial grounds on farms, the only public cemetery was behind the Presbyterian Church Established in 1828, before the church was built, the grave-yard remained there until the bodies were removed to Riverside Cemetery in 1915.

There was no railroad service, no paved roads, no sidewalks, no public water system, no fire department, no sewage system. A spirited ox team on level road, all conditions being favorable, could travel just 10 miles a day - and conditions were usually not favorable.

LAND IN this section of Michigan was so marshy that use of planks seemed to be the only solution. But the Plank Road to Detroit was not built until 1850

The few roads were so rough that when the Roswell Root family traveled from Detroit to Plymouth in 1826, one of the family had to walk most of the way carrying 2-monthold daughter Hanna in arms.

When the Roots arrived in the Plymouth area, they decided it was too swampy for them. They moved further west "to get on dry land." They settled at what is now the corner of Joy and Ridge roads.

EBENEZER J. PENNIMAN had not yet arrived here, but William Starkweather and John Kellogg were prominent residents 150 years

Starkweather, who arrived in 1825, built the first house where the Mayflower Hotel now stands. By 1837, he was 41. He had sold his original 240 acres in the heart of what is now the city and had bought property at the north end of town

Kellogg was 46 when he arrived in 1832. He bought 212 acres that had once been Starkweather's. That gave Kellogg the land that included what later became Kellogg Park. In 1835, he built his house on Ann Arbor Trial

where the Christian Science Church

BY JULY 1836, the owners of business lots on Main Street, facing what was then called the Village Green, totaled nine, including Kel-

The Presbyterian Society owned 14 acres of the original Starkweather homestead at the present church location, and the school district had another one-third of an acre of it at the corner of Church and Penniman

There was another man in Plymouth in 1837 who is not as well known as Starkweather and Kellogg but deserves to be. His name was Theodatus T. Lyon.

Lyon was 23 in 1837 and raised fruit on a nearby farm. He went on to become a nationally known pomologist. Pomology is the science of fruit cultivation.

Working for the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Lyon developed the card catal og of fruits that became the basic fruit variety reference list of the U.S. Government.

Loss of Detroit aid led to DSO deficit

By Tim Richard staff writer

Detroit Symphony Orchestra management traced its budget and strike problems to the failure of the city of Detroit to contribute a $1.1 million grant last year.

I guess the people we should ask questions of are in the city of Detroit," said state Sen. Norman Shinlawmakers probed what was happening to its grants to the shut-down orchestra

The outline of DSO's financial misfortunes was made last week to a special Senate committee chaired by Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills. Musicians said they were "locked out" when they refused to take an 11 percent pay cut in September.

ANOTHER DEADLINE came and went Friday as the DSO's executive. committee took no action on the suggestion by chairman Walter J. McCarthy Jr. of Birmingham that the remainder of the 1987-88 season be cancelled.

"No decisions were made," a DSO publicist said after the morning meeting.

Senators told DSO president Oleg Lobanov they were particularly distressed that the 25-concert Christmas season was cancelled and lectured him about the need to reach a new contract agreement.

The Legislature voted DSO a $2.7 million grant this year, paid $1.7 million of it in September but is considering withholding the $1 million December payment.

"I don't think the state should make the next payment unless we get some music," said Sen. Lana Pollack. D-Ann Arbor.

"We would agree," said Lobanov, who was almost drowned out by applause from musicians union members in the audience of the ornate Appropriations Committee room on the third floor of the State Capitol in

LOBANOV GAVE this outline of the DSO's financial troubles

When he was hired as president and chief staff man in 1982, DSO had an accumulated deficit of $2.8 million. "There were no deficits in 1982kle, R-Monroe County, as state 83, 1983-84, 1984-85 and 1985-86," he said. Meanwhile, attendance improved, and musicians' pay was raised.

> In 1986-87, however, DSO spent $14.2 million and took in $12.8 million - a deficit of $1.4 million. "The largest single part, a $1.1 million variance, was from the city of Detroit, which found itself not able to make its grant," Lobanov said.

> After DSO closed its books for the fiscal year, the city came through with $250,000, less than one-quarter of what had been expected, and Lobanov said that was put into the current year's budget.

McCarthy and Lobanov asked the musicians to take a cut from $910 a week to $810 — or 11 percent, roughly the same as the '86-7 deficit. All people paid at the level of musicians or higher were cut 11 percent, and those paid less were cut smaller percentages, Lobanov said.

Musicians - full-time performers, the conducting staff and supplementals - absorb about half the operating budget, according to his figures. Other costs, Lobanov said, are audience development, public relations, guest artists, affirmative action programs and special Detroit programs.

AS OTHER senators drifted in and out of the hearing, Faxon probed the DSO-union collective bargaining pro-

Lobanov said McCarthy and top management told musicians at three July meetings the budget was 11 percent out of balance, using the word "cutbacks."

BICIPITAL TENDINITIS Certain tendons are subject to extreme strain.

The most familiar example is achilles heel tendinitis, a hazard to sprinters, football players and other athletes who must run quickly, suddenly, and A similar problem can be present with the bicep muscles of the arm, the one that you flex when asked to make a muscle. Not only is the bicep liable to a great deal of wear, but one of the muscles' two tendons moves through a groove in the upper arm bone. Constant pulling and retracting through this groove puts the tendon at risk for irritation or possibly rupture. Diagnosis of bicipital tendinitis may be difficult, because the shooting and radiating arm pain that the tendinitis causes, may be imitated by other conditions of the shoulder joint.

Treatment consists of rest, heat, injection therapy, and/or a short course of an aspirin-like drug. Bicipital tendinitis is painful and annoying, but it is never the cause of permanent impairment, even in the rare instance of tendon rupture.

Your own sausages healthful

I can remember eagerly jumping in the car with my folks on Saturday mornings for a 20-minute ride to a strange area littered with boarded-up buildings and vast junk-car cemeteries.

It was the "old" area where Mom and Dad purchased their weekly allotment of luncheon meats, meats and homemade sausages. It was a typical "mom and pop" operation and the butcher would always slip me a bite of my favorite salami. Out behind the old butcher shop was what resembled an outhouse but was really the old smokehouse where hams kielbasa and numerous fish were smoked for the customers who came with nylons rolled down to their ankles and red plaid wool jackets smelling of a brewery or local beergarten.

Saturday night dinner was always a blend of sausages and perfect potatoes that proved to be hearty and, even though I never appreciated it back then, truly extraordinary cuisine.

Potatoes and sausages began their centuric -old alliance when the Swedes united beef, pork and potatoes in a dish called potatiskory. I can recall Mama browning some kielbasa and serving it with steaming scalloped potatoes. At other times, she would incorporate a hot German potato salad with a delectable spicy bratwurst. Saturday nights were special at our house.

ALTHOUGH POTATO dishes accompany store-bought sausages as readily as homemade ones, there are several benefits in turning out your own sausages. If it seems like a lot of work for something that contains the same ingredients as meatloaf, consider that you will know exactly what is in it. And homemade sausage has the added bonus of being preservative and additive-free. This is important with today's news concerning the ill effects of nitrites and preservatives.

Sausages are basic mixtures of meat, fat, spices and liquid. You can use cheaper and tougher cuts such as beet round, chuck or brisket because they will be tenderized by grinding. You have heard me tout the wonders of the great food processor, but when making sausage, I prefer to use a grinder (the old-fashioned type that clamps onto the tabletop) because as the processor chops, it heats up the meat, giving the sausage a pasty texture. No need to go out and purchase a grinder though. Obliging proprietors in small markets will usually perform this task for me at no charge. Depending on the leanness of the meat, an additional 30-50 percent fat pork fatback, lard, beef or lamb suet is added to moisten and tenderize and. most importantly, bind the sausage.

EVERY HERB or spice can find its way into sausages but you will most notably find a blend of white peppercorns, cloves, nutmeg, ginger or cinnamon. To assess the seasonings, sniff the sausage as experts do or saute a sample and taste.

Although it is traditional to stuff the mixture into natural casings, you can roll the blend into lengths of plastic wrap or foil or shape it into patties. Whereas plastic wrap is easy and efficient, I prefer pork casings purchasing "half dolls" (71/2 yards), enough for 10 pounds of sausage. Packed in salt, natural easings last about one year in the fridge. They are easily obtained from most butchers and meat markets, especially in the market areas.

Filling casings is easiest when the sausage is filled through a grinder equipped with a stuffing horn. I have found that a wide-mouth funnel and some elbow grease and the handle of a spoon work but not quite as easily. God only knows where I'd store that stuff.

I've prepared a handout sheet with general directions for making and cooking sausages. If you are interested, send me a self-addressed stamped envelope in care of this newspaper for a speedy reply. Here's a few "favorite" recipes passed down from Grandma Janes' file. Bon Appetit!

5-6 eggs

1 1/2 -pounds ground pork Oil for frying

Allow the packaged wrappers to thaw overnight. Separate the wrapers carefully. storing 25 in the refrigerator under a damp cloth, until ready for use. Store the rest in the freezer.

Soak one package of bean thread (vermicelli) in hot water for 10 minutes and drain. Finely shred the cabbage into long strands with a knife or food processor. Grate carrots, cutting at a sharp angle to make long slivers.

Toss the cabbage, bean thread and carrots together on a large platter, tearing the bead thread into 10-inch strands. Long threads help hold the egg roll together.

Add the salt, Msg seasoning and slightly beaten eggs. The eggs bind the mixture together. Add more if necessary Knead the ground pork into the shreaded vegetables.

Heat a half-inch of corn oil in a skillet over medium heat. Arrange a handful of filling on one wrapper. Tuck in the sides of the wrapper to make a 11/2-inch wide egg roll. If the wrapper tears, add another. You don't have

Place four or five egg rolls, with the loose edge of the wrapper toward the pan, into the skillet and cook for 10-12 minutes or until medium brown.

The recipe makes 25 eggrolls. Serve with sweet-sour peanut dip.

1 cup sugar 112 cup water

Juice of one lemon 1/2 tsp. salt

Egg roll, peanut sauce and cucumber drink are displayed on Hmong stitchery.

2 tsp. fish sauce 3-ounce package unsalted peanuts

Carmelize sugar in a heavy skillet over medium heat. Stir. Add water and stir until all the carmelized sugar dissolves into a syrup. Cool.

Add lemon juice, salt and fish sauce. Grind the peanuts with mortar and pestle or in a blender until coarse. Add to the dip, which should be of thin consistency with small chunks of peanut. It may be used for dunking egg rolls, sticky rice or other foods. Or it may be used as a glaze.

STICKY RICE

Rice

The rice, a special high gluten variety, doubles in size when cooked. Soak half the amount of cooked rice you want in double the amount of water overnight. Rinse and drain the rice. Place in the top of a steamer over a large quantity of water. Vigorously steam the rice, covered, for 50-

60 minutes. The rice may be eaten by hand and dipped into sweet and sour sauce.

Hmong fare is country cooking

By Sharon Dargay staff writer

It looks like other Oriental food

It uses similar ingredients

It cooks the same way

But the difference between foods of the Laotian mountain people and other Asian entrees is as different as steak is from hamburger.

'They don't use as many different spices as other Oriental foods. They tend to rely on fresh meat and fresh produce," said Sue Julian, a former Peace Corps volunteer and consultant to the Hmong Cultural Center in northeast Detroit.

The center sponsored a potluck dinner, stitchery exhibit and lecture at Birmingham Unitarian Church last The celebration coincided with Hmong New Year's celebrations in Detroit, Pontiac, Flint, Lansing and Saginaw, major Hmong communities.

About 2,000 Hmong have arrived in the Detroit area as refugees since 1975.

"Their food is country fare, dependent on garden produce to make it unique," Julian explained. The propagation of meat is low. They eat a lot of rice. There's no baking and they don't eat desserts. It's a stove-top cooking.

"When they butcher animals they use every part of the animal - in the sense that some cultures use pickled pigs' feet. They eat, not only pea pods but the tendrils, and they're, good. They can't believe we'd throw away those parts of the plant.

"In Laos they were basically mountain people without many resources.

CHIA CHANG of Detroit, a member of the center, typically cooks roughly chopped pieces of meat with vegetables, spiced with salt, green and red pepper and coriander for lunch. Squash pieces cooked in water with the water used as a beverage - is eaten as a side Cooking water, added to vegetables and meats, often is used for dipping other vegetables or consumed as a drink along with the meal.

'Since they don't drink much water, they'd use the soup as a drink," said Laurie Stroud of Rochester Hills, a Peace Corps recruiter who is documenting Hmong recipes by observing women cook at home.

"You can estimate when you see them add a pinch of this and a dash of that,"she said.

Stroud spent three years as a volunteer at a health center in Thailand where she occasionally saw Hmong in the refugee camps.

"Sticky rice eaten in Thailand is similar, but there are more vegetables and meat than you'd find in Hmong foods," she said.

More festive Hmong fare includes egg rolls, cucumber drink and peanut sauce. Although rice accompanies most every meal, the special high-gluten variety called "sticky rice" is used for dipping because it sticks and clumps when steamed.

"That's the thing I enjoy about Hmong cooking," Julian said. "They put surprising combinations together and they're so good. That doesn't always make it appetizing to Americans but the combination of fresh vegetables makes it healthy.

TRADITIONAL HMONG cooking uses lard for There's a lot of fat. It's very heavy. Overseas they'd use lard instead of corn oil. Anything you'd stirfry you'd use lard," Stroud said. Many of the greens and vegetables used in Hmong cooking are unavailable in the United States, forcing refugees to grow their own or settle for substitutes. Hmong loose leaf cabbage, for example, looks like a cross between spinach and American-grown versions. Hmong women substitute bok choy.

"They use a lot of dill and coriander. We associate that more with Mexican cooking and not with Oriental cooking," Julian said. "Seafood is used more now since they have been moving out of the mountains and the food has incorporated more of the Laotian and Thai cooking. "Both of them use more fish and fish sauce. Hmong cooking is a lot of greens and vegetables. The temptation here is to eat meat at every meal because they can get everything abundantly. I don't like to see sugar and meat creep into their diet. If they killed one or two pigs a month back home, that was it.

They are much more reliant on greens. The Hmong Cultural Center sells a cookbook with recipes compiled by women in St. Paul, Minn.

Stroud hopes Hmong women in Detroit and Pontiac will produce their own book someday

"There are so many different Asian cultures," said Laurie Stroud of Rochester Hills, a Peace Corps recruiter. "The people in China wouldn't necessarily use the same

What wines go best with bird at Yuletide

The old adage, "red wine with red meat, white wine with fish and fowl," is one of those generalizations best forgotten "No generalization is worth a damn including this one" is a better operating motto, especially when it comes to the sometimes delicate consideration of marrying foods

Because it's December. The bird is the primary consideration here What to serve with that big, brown, roasted fowl when the family gathers?

The answer, and this is the easy part, is that, unlike almost any other entree, nearly any wine seems to go well with it. There is still sufficient gaminess in our domestic turkey that it calls out for a quite substantial companion Champagne, of course (for that goes with anything).

the heartier blush wines usually with varietal designations, chardonnay, sauvignon blanc, cabernet, pinot noir the list goes on.

If the issue were merely to complement the taste of the turkey, my personal choice v ' be the lightly oaked fruit of a chardonnay or the bright cheeriness of a pinot noir. Or one of the nouveaus from France, California or Michigan (both Mawby's Turkey Red and Seven Lakes' Nouveau are excellent this year).

So, for the record, any hearty red or white (or blush) will go nicely with the somewhat subtle charms of turkey meat. Avoid only those wines that are too delicate to stand up to them: generic whites and chenin blanc most notably.

The real challenge in selecting wine for the turkey fest lies in complementing the myriad foods that acccompany the turkey to the typical table. The traditional American holiday feast has us serving oysters in a rich cream sauce, tart cranberries, candied yams, perhaps some rather sour Brussels sprouts, a spicy stuffing and much, much more. A real panoply of taste sensations, some complementary and some sharply contrasting. There is, alas, no universal wine that will accompany well each diverse course.

Given the dilemma, what are the alternatives? There must be wine at least for all who have gotten this far into this column There are, I believe, at least three choices. The first is to say drink what you like regardless - not a wholly bad solution, recognizing there will be some awkward taste processes during parts of the meal:

This is the vigorous "I" solution. There is the universal compromise solution to serve either a champagne or a blush wine with everything. This pleases all circumstances only somewhat (the delicacies of the champagne being lost in the yams and stuffing) but should totally offend

The third solution assumes a reasonable full table of diners, or a few hearty ones, but that isn't a real handicap Place at each setting two, or preferably three, wine glasses and then put three wines on the table. The guests can then sample as they choose and, once acquainted with them, can move their further choices around to match each course

THE PREFERRED choices would involve color differences (for those so attuned), distinctions in sweetness and or spiciness and body boldness. Three choices in this solution might include a chardonnay or a sauvignon blane, a pinot noir blush and a fairly hearty zinfandel or fresh nouveau Each of these comes close to blending in nicely with most of the courses on the table. Of course, if one uses champagne as an aperitif, it may be possible to stay with that for the whole meal, for those so inclined.

Probably more wine per guest would be consumed using this choice not always a happy circumstance There are those who tend to forget the 12 percent alcohol designation on each bottle and get a bit carried away on such a festive occasion, However, the usual overindulging attendant to holiday meals should obviate some of the effects of too much

Finicky children can be controlled

AP - Few things are as frustrating to a parent as a picky eater. Here are some ways to help your children eat more healthful meals. • Make eating a family affair. Encourage friendly conversation at the dinner table, not battles.

• Forcing your children to eat gets you nowhere. When your kids refuse to eat at mealtime, tell them stick to your word.

· Keep new foods simple and serve only one or two bites the first time they try it

 Set a good example for your kids. Don't expect them to eat spinach if you don't.

· Kids are overwhelmed by too much food. It's better to provide small amounts of a variety of foods.

· So that kids are hungry at mealtime, make it a rule that there's no snacking less than 112 hours before a meal. Ask baby sitters and neighbors where your children play for their help with this.

• Clear the house of non-nutritious snacks. Keep fruit, cut-up vegetables and yogurt dip, graham crackers and frozen juice bars on hand.

Metroparks need to market — candidates

By Philip A. Sherman special writer

Increasing marketing for the metroparks was a common goal among three outside applicants interviewed Thursday for the executive director's position of the Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority HCMA operates 13 metroparks, such as Kensington and Stony Creek.

That brings to nine the number of candidates interviewed by the HCMA's board of commissioners to replace outgoing chief James Pompo. Six inside candidates were interviewed last month.

The board will nominate and vote on a new director to fill Pompo's post at its Dec. 17 meeting. Pompo resigned the executive director's job. which pays more than $60,000, and will step down early next year.

Interviewed last Thursday were Eric Reickel, director of parks for Wayne County; Ralph Richard, director of Oakland County's park system: and Gerald Nelson, director of parks and recreation for St. Clair Shores.

"THERE'S GOING to be more and more demand on the authority to be ourselves as a country club regard-of the park system.

For that reason, he told the board. HCMA should be sensitive to the needs of special interest groups, such as the elderly, and it should complete a comprehensive marketing

If offered the position, Reickel said he would observe the HCMA operation for the first six months but wouldn't make any drastic changes during that time. He would, however, establish the practice of formulating short- and long-range plans.

As for his management style, Reickel said he has a strong personality, is a believer in participatory management "with the understanding that sooner or later a decision must be made." He added, "Every employee that you have is as important as the next one.

RICHARD SAID he created an inhouse research team to support marketing when he became the Oakland County director and would consider doing the same thing if named to the HCMA director's post. Richard succeeded Reickel in Oakland County in in the system include making the metroparks the biggest cross-country ski area in Michigan, researching the potential for the system to run a zoo if the money became available. and considering overnight camping At this time, the parks don't offer overnight camping programs.

Richard also was asked what park system improvements he has made since taking over as the Oakland director. He cited installation of a second wave pool, the building of a nature center, the development of sites for the handicapped and an outdoor amphitheater as examples.

NELSON OF St. Clair Shores said one of the most important things he would do as director is "get information to the constituency and pay more attention to special interest groups.

He is working on his certification in gerontology, the study of aging and the elderly, at Wayne State Uni-

When asked if he thought, for example, that people 55 years old and older would use a wave pool. Nelson said yes, if they were properly informed. He added people in Florida go to beaches and pools all the time regardless of age.

Besides marketing. Nelson said the board should consider transportation programs to make the parks more accessible. He said in St. Clair Shores they have a program that makes school buses available to some groups

AFTER THE interviews, the board, representing five counties in the region, agreed to meet in committees, none of which would constitute a quorum, to discuss candidates.

Michigan's Open Meeting Act applies to committees as well as full boards.

At its Dec. 17 meeting, a candidate will be nominated to succeed Pompo. If the nomination is seconded, a vote will be taken.

The Michigan Senate spent more time on amendments than on the basic idea of two bills governing highspeed police chases.

In the end the Senate last week gave all but unanimous approval to companion bills by Sen. Rudy Nichols, R-Waterford, and sent them on to the House.

There's a pride of authorship." said Nichols, the Judiciary Committee chairman who worked 15 months on the bills. They stemmed from controversies in Oakland County in which Prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson brought charges against police officers for deaths resulting from high-speed chases.

T've been involved, too," argued back Sen. Richard Fessler, R-Com-

THE BILLS would

• Stiffen penalties for drivers who flee marked law enforcement or conservation officer vehicles. A jail term could be up to two years instead of the current one year. A second conviction within 10 years could bring a prison sentence up to three years. Causing bodily injury while fleeing could bring a three-year prison sentence. Heavy fines also are provided for

• Prohibit prosecuting an officer for careless or reckless driving where death results unless gross negligence is shown. Conviction would be a misdemeanor, not a felony, limited to a a two-year sentence.

The bills, SB 542 and 543 respec-

FESSLER, AN attorney, sought a written definition for gross negligence as being "so reckless as to indicate lack of concern for injury His amendment was cut.

'A police officer is in a unique position," said Fessler. "A patrol officer has to make choices. He could be held grossly negligent (if a death results from a pursuit) or be fired or suspended for not giving chase. He's caught betwixt and between.

I offer this on behalf of the patrol

Said Nichols: "I asked to excise the gross negligence standard for police officers so as not to get bogged

But after the debate. Nichols said the same kind of amendment might be tacked on in the House at the insistence of the Police Officers Association of Michigan.

SB 542 won 32-1 approval, with only Sen Doug Cruce, R-Troy, dissenting

SB 543 won 27-0 approval with Cruce and William Faust, D-Westland, not voting.

Favoring both bills were Nichols. Fessler, Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, R. Robert Geake, R-Northville, and George Z. Hart, D-Dear-

Rocks beat Mercy, win regional crown

By Dan O'Mears staff writer

For one half of basketball, it looked as if Plymouth Salem would earn a berth in the Class A girls quarterfinals the easy way.

The Rocks dominated the first two quarters of Saturday night's regional final with Farmington Hills Mercy in a way uncharacteristic of the rivalry

But that was just the lull before the storm as the second-half drama soon unfolded.

Salem, nevertheless, moved to the next rung on the tournament ladder, but not before surviving a determined comeback by the Marlins and claiming a 41-34 victory at Southfield High School

I just kept waiting for the buzzer to ring," said Salem coach Fred Thomann, never assured of the victory until the final horn. "And I hoped it would go off when we had the lead.

THE ROCKS, 24-1, return to Southfield High for Wednesday's 7 p.m. quarterfinal contest. They will play Trenton, which defeated Taylor Center in another regional final Saturday and prevented a match-up between Salem and Thomann's alma

The winner advances to the semifinals at Grand Valley State College in Allendale and will play at 8 p.m. Friday. The state finals also will be played at GVSC on Saturday, with the Class A game starting at 2 p.m.

THE MARLINS took their first and only lead when Chapp scored to make it 22-21 with 2:20 left in the third period.

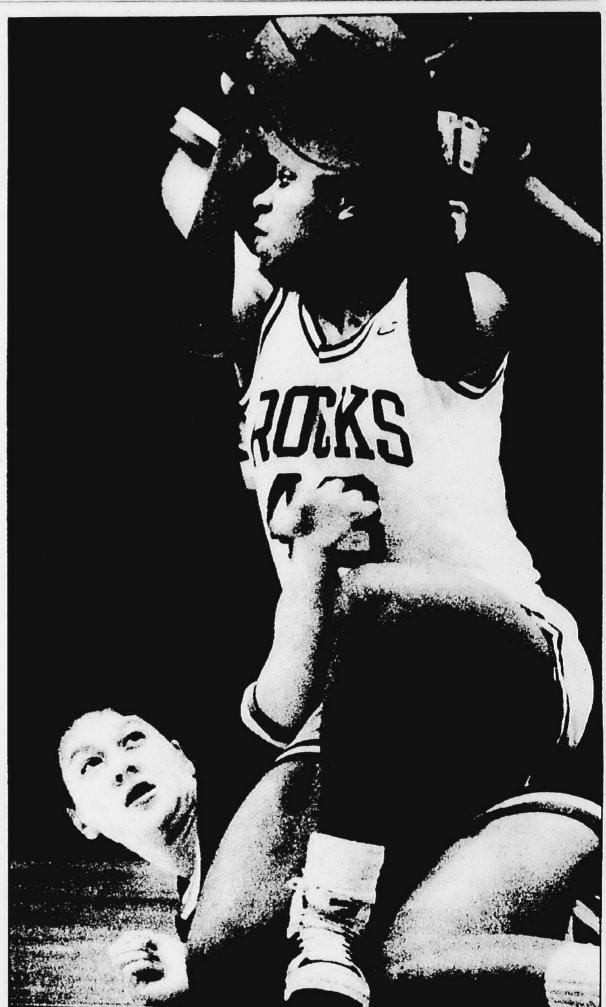

Dena Head, who had a game-high 24 points for the Rocks, countered with five straight, including a threepoint play after rebounding her own shot and laying it in, to give Salem a 25-21 ecge

Herberholz scored the first basket of the fourth quarter, also, to force a 25-25 tie, but the Rocks pulled in front again, 30-25, on Barb Krug's pivoting hook and free throws by Keri McBride and Head

Salem wasn't in the clear, however. Mercy got within a point twice to maintain the suspense. Clark sank a pair of free throws to make it 30-29 with 4:45 to play, and her three-point field goal instantly chopped a 33-29 Salem lead with 2:31 on the clock.

Salem gets revenge, eliminates Ladywood

Dena Head and Katie McNulty were the obvious stars on the basketball court Thursday when Plymouth Salem and Livonia Ladywood squared off in girls regional play.

that's half the battle."

Plymouth Salem did its best imitation of a National Basketball Association franchise in its boys season opener Friday

The Rocks were into the running game the entire night, and they ended up running their Trenton opponent ragged in an 86-59 rout.

"We are an up-and-down team," Salem coach Bob Brodie said. "We're going to be a fast breakpressure team. "I think we're going to have to be, because we don't have the giants inside. "Every player I put in the lineup likes to run," he added. "If you have a team that likes to run,

BEING A season-opener and such a wide-open game, there were times when both teams were on the verge of being out of control, and Brodie wasn't happy with everything, notably the first-half defense. Salem moved out to a 10-point lead when M.J. Ewald sank two technical fouls, but the Trojans roared back with nine straight in a minute's time. The Rocks came life again, however, beginning with another technical free throw by Ewald in a spurt that saw Salem outscore the Trojans 14-2.

Jeff Elliott dropped in a pair of three-point field goals during the streak, and Keith Smith, who led a group of five Rocks in double figures with 18 points, sank a baseline lay-up before Trenton added two late baskets for a 46-36 halftime

"In the first half, I was not happy with our defense," Brodie said. "I calmly made them aware that we had given up 36 points.

"THERE'S BEEN times in Salem history when we've only allowed 36 in a game.'

The Rocks allowed just 23 second-half points while continuing to do an offensive number themselves. Salem won going away as Todd Marion scored 12 points to go with a team-high 11 rebounds, Ewald finished with 11 and Elliott and Pat Rzepecki added 10 apiece.

But the Trojans kept it close for a while. Trenton's Dean Heavrin began the second half with a three-point shot, and Bill Morrow's free throws cut it 46-43

The Rocks came back with a fast-break bucket by Smith and an Elliott free throw, and then Marion made what may have been the biggest play of

A teammate failed to score off the rebounded free throw by Elliott, but Marion grabbed that rebound, drove on the baseline and, arching his back as far as he could without falling, powered his way up for the layup. He was fouled and converted the three-point play for a 52-43 lead. TRENTON GOT back to within six in the final minute. But Bill Anderson and sophomore Ryan Johnson scored before the quarter ended for a 59-49 lead, and the Trojans were never in the game

Trenton went almost three minutes without scoring in the final quarter, and Scott Hale's driving layup boosted Salem's lead to 71-51 with half the period remaining.

The Rocks continued their torrid pace to the end, and the high-percentage shots afforded them by the transition game enabled them to shoot 11of-23 in the final eight minutes.

'We haven't had a total team with this much speed in a while," Brodie said. "As far as the whole team, we are a quick team.

"Salem is known to be a patient, setup team," he added, "and there will be times when we'll get to that more than we did tonight."

BRODIE ADDED some of the decisions his players made in playing such an offense-dominated game will need some work, but he certainly couldn't fault the intensity his team displayed Heavrin, the All-State quarterback who drew a

Salem also demonstrated an ability to capitalize on the new three-point rule as Elliott drilled three from that distance and Marion two. Hale also can shoot the three, Brodie said. 'You've got to stay on top of the score, because the other team can get right back in it," Brodie said. "I think as the season progresses, you'll see who go out at 17-5, were 52-49 winners when the teams played in September.

That made us really want to come back and beat them," said Salem senior Keri McBride. "We've been looking forward to this all year.

If we hadn't lost early in the year, we would have gone for an undefeated season.

HEAD WAS the obvious key to Salem's victory in the much-anticipated rematch, but Krug's well-timed point production, the defensive effort by forward Stacy Sovine and the floor leadership of Estey were among the other reasons for the Rocks staying alive in the post-sea-

Sovine's job was to guard Yvonne Barnett, who scored a team-high 18 points against Salem the first time. Barnett had seven Thursday, and Karen Finnegan, who came off the bench to finish with 11 after hitting a three-pointer with 05 remaining, was the only other Blazer in double figures.

'In the half court, Stacy was in good position, and (Barnett) was not able to make her crossover move,"

Perhaps the biggest key, according to Thomann, was the fact Ladywood's pressure defense didn't force the Rocks into turnovers that cost them at the other end, and that's where Estey came in.

"Jill did a great job against their pressure," he said. "I told the players one of their strengths is that they score easily off the pressure, and we didn't give them but one or two to-break, and Head turned it into a three-point play. Head reciprocated, with Estey on the scoring end of the girls fast break to make it 25-16.

Dena and Jill are a good combi nation out front," Thomann said I'll take them against anybody.

"Jill anticipates the next pass very well. She and Dena work well in tandem out there

Following a Barnett free throw Head's rebound basket, Krug's layup and another Head-Estey connection gave Salem a 15-point lead before Ann Marie Laskowski hit a threepoint field goal at the buzzer.

The second quarter was the key the whole game," Kavanaugh said. "I told my girls a half-court game would be to our advantage. But when they got a few steals and breaks, that really hurt.

THEY HAD A couple spurts, but when we pulled close they were always able to get a couple key baskets.

Kavanaugh added that 5-foot-11 forward Nancy Wagner, who averaged 10.5 points, going to the bench in first-half foul trouble was another "They have a tall team, and it's hard to match up at every position when you don't have one of your tallest girls," he said.

The Rocks took their biggest lead (16 points) at the outset of the third quarter when Krug became a decipasses from Head into layups for the first two baskets of the half, giving Salem a 36-20 lead

Thomann had taken Krug out of the game in the first quarter to set tle her down. But she found her niche in the second half when she had 14 of her 20 points

"I ASKED HER What are you so nervous about?" Thomann said She went back in, and she got it going

Despite making a move in the second quarter, Salem never had a truly safe lead until the final minute.

Ladywood cut it to nine in the third period and got within seven twice in the final quarter. McNulty's basket and free throws made it 47-40 with 5:19 to play, and Wagner and Barnett combined to pull the Blazers within 53-46 at the 2:07 mark.

But an opportunistic Krug scored on a putback and sank a short hook after a Head free throw to put Salem's lead at 58-49. Finnegan made a three-pointer for a 58-53 difference, but there was no longer any doubt about the outcome with only three seconds remaining.

Once we got the first quarter out of the way, we played very well," Thomann said. "Obviously, I'm pleased, real pleased.

The Eagles lost all five starters from a team that finished with an 18-4 record, and PCA has just three players returning from that team.

The notable losses include Pat McCarthy, who was selected Athlete of the Year by the Observer last spring, Steve Windle and Andy Stephens. McCarthy averaged nearly 20 points per game and competed nationally with Michigan's 17-and-under AAU team last summer.

PCA's varsity veterans are Jeff Leach, Scott Burns and Kyle Mavin. Leach and Burns are seniors, Mavin

Leach, a 6-foot guard, scored four points a game last season and was a 41-percent shooter, and Mavin, a 6oot forward, averaged 3½ points and as many rebounds a year ago. The 5-10 Burns can swing between guard and forward.

THE TOP newcomers and players most likely to round out the starting unit are juniors Brian Davies and Sean Paul. Davies is a 5-9 guard, Paul a 6-3 center.

PCA coach Dan Brandel said. "The most important thing is chemistry. which takes a while to develop.'

The Eagles were 12-2 in the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference, but Brandel sees PCA as a "middle of the pack" team to begin the season.

We lost more (to graduation) than anyone else," he said. "We could be pushing it. It depends on the athletes and their implementation of our offensive and defensive concepts. "We have two Class C teams and several that are twice our size on the schedule," he added. The Eagles once again hope to be able to run the fast break and apply defensive pressure "all over the court," Brandel said. "We'll play a man-to-man and use a 2-2-1 press mixed with several half-court

The Chiefs went to a match-up. zone defense and to the boards, two key factors in their 73-59 triumph.

We only had three offensive rebounds in the first half," said Canton coach Tom Niemi. But we ended up outrebounding them 41-28

That was no small task, considering Brighton has two 6-foot-7 starters, including Rober Brando, a transfer student from Indianapolis Brando led Brighton with 24 points. But Canton had some prolific offensive weapons of its own. Mitch Fyke poured in 26 points, Brad Carey came off the bench to net 12 and Roger Trice had 10.

The third quarter is where we turned it around," said Niemi, "Wecreated four turnovers in a row in the third quarter.

The Chiefs outscored Brighton 19-12 in the period to turn a 33-32 halftime deficit into a 51-45 lead. A 22-14 final-quarter blitz by Canton ruined any comeback hopes for David Foxworthy came off the Chief bench to provide a third-quarter defensive spark. He also gathered in eight rebounds. Trice had eight boards, too.

Chiefs return experienced team

By Dan O'Meara staff writer

Plymouth Canton has the makings of another good wrestling team, but success depends on the progress of newcomers and novice matmen, according to coach Rick Menoch.

The Chiefs won the Western Division title with a 5-0 record in dual meets last year, and Canton graduated only two wrestlers from that team. Tony Callaway, who was 25-10 as a heavyweight, and Dan Dewyer, who was 18-11 and a regional qualifier at 167 pounds, must be replaced.

We have a good, solid wrestler available at every weight class," Menoch said. "If the returning wrestlers separate themselves so they're not all at the same weight, we should do well.

Senior Tommy Flores, who will wrestle at 98 or 105, is a four-year varsity wrestler and was second in the league. This "should be his best season yet," Menoch said.

The coach anticipates the same from senior

Can Rocks maintain lock on title?

By Dan O'Meara staff writer

If the Plymouth Salem wrestling outlook is as uncertain as coach Ron Krueger says, the Rocks' hold on the Western Lakes Activities Associa-tion title could be in jeopardy this winter.

Salem is the only school to win the league championship, and the Rocks have only six wrestlers with varsity experience back from a team that won a fifth consecutive crown. "The league has been waiting for us to be down," said Krueger, implying this could be the year the opposition gets it wish. "I think everybody will take a good shot at us.

'We have a lot of teaching to do. The kids are really green.'

Usually, an indicator of potential success comes from returning wrestlers who competed in the previous state meet, Krueger said, but the Rocks are without any such wrestler

"THAT IN itself tells you we'll be working (just) to get someone there,' he said. "If we get someone there, we'll really have come a long way.

Salem's key losses include Shawn May (112 pounds), Dennis Dameron (126), Tim Ott (132), Mark Smith (185) and heavyweight Richard Johnson. May, Dameron and Johnson were either first or second in the WLAA.

Compounding Krueger's predicament is the fact many of the Rocks

'The league has been waiting for us to be down. I think everybody will take a good shot at us.'

Salem wrestling coach who have experience are at the same lower weights.

Captain Jeff Delbeke could wrestle either 98, 105 or 112, Todd Bourlier and Scott Contini 112-19 and Bill Atwell 126 or 132. In addition, Salem has Steve Burlison at 145-55 and Chuck Graczyk at either 198 or heavyweight.

Krueger said it seems like this is the year lady luck picked to endow Salem with a bulge in the 112-19 divisions. Even if the squad had 100 wrestlers this year, he quipped, it seems like they would all be in that division. "Those weights should be tough for us, but we'll have others that are not so tough.

"WE'VE GOT some experienced people who are going to be sitting out. I don't see how we can put all of our experienced guys on the mat at the same time.

Atwell was the victim of just such an excess of talent at particular weights last year. He had to wrestle at 138 because the Rocks had Dameron and Ott at 126 and 132.

"He got tough up there," Krueger

said. "Now he's dropping down, and we're hoping he'll have a real good

Krueger is most disappointed, however, by the lack of ninth graders out for preseason practices.

The kids wait until the 10th grade," he said. "They lose a whole year of experience, and it takes them a year to gain that back.

wrestling

"BY THE TIME they seniors. they're where most kids are when they're juniors," he added.

If Krueger's record is any indication, the Rocks will be in the hunt for league honors once again.

Kreuger, who started the program in 1972, has a career record of 187-69-5. Salem has won six straight league championships and eight of the last 10, including three in the old Suburban 8 League

Michiganians pining for the "perfect tree to spruce up their homes for the Christmas holidays can select and cut their own by visiting a state tree farm, reports AAA Michigan

More than 589 000 evergreens are available for sale at 73 farms listed in AAA Michigan's 1987 Cut-Your-Own Christmas Tree Guide.

Buvers will find tree prices up slightly from last year, with Scotch pines running from $5, $1 more than 1986. Bigger trees, such as a Douglas fir or blue spruce may reach up to $50 At farms charging by height. per-foot prices vary from $2 to $4.

Those who choose to leave their walking shoes and saws at home will find they can still bring home a forest-fresh tree. Thirty farms offer wagon rides throughout the grounds while 47 have pre-cut trees available. Wreathes and other evergreen items are for sale at 34 tree farms. Some farms have gift shops, entertainment and visits with Santa Association has initiated the first Michigan Snowfresh Christmas Tree Program.

Thirteen Snowfresh farms are listed in AAA Michigan's guide, with more expected to join the program next year. The Snowfresh growers recognized by a tag tied to trees guarantee high quality care, including soil management, disease protection and continual trimming and those trees to drop their needles more easily than pines or Douglas, · Bring some twine. Forty-four farms wrap trees, but it is advisable to have some twine for transporting trees home. Secure the tree base to the front of the car to help the tree withstand wind during transport • If the tree is not placed in water immediately and is outside for a few days, be sure to cut an inch or two off the base before putting it into a water stand. With a freshly cut stem, the tree will easily absorb needed water. Check the stand's water level daily

Place the tree in a cool area, preferably away from open flames and heating ducts. Inspect all electrical wires to be placed on the tree for frayed cords, damaged lights or bare spots. Never overload electrical in 1988 will not drop to the lows of last summer, but neither will they climb to the highs of the early 1980s. local mortgage bankers say.

Borrowers next year should find a broader menu of adjustable rate mortgages along with conventional instruments to serve varying market conditions, said Warren Lasko, executive vice president of the Mortgage Bankers Association of America.

Local home prices should continue to rise, but at a slower rate than this year, said Donald A. Maiolatesi, 1988 vice president of the Mortgage Bankers Association of Michigan.

"MOST OF THE pent-up housing demand built up during the early '80s recessionary period has been satisfied," he said

With long-term mortgage rates in the 10.50-percent range, however. there are still a large percentage of prospective buyers qualified to purchase a home.

Buyers will see a softening of the home market accompanied by increasingly intense competition among lenders, he said

'Overall, new home starts next

Interest rates for home mortgages year are expected to be off 5 to 10 percent, with home resales dropping about 10 percent from 1987 levels. Interest rates on a 30-year conventional loan in 1988 will maintain a compact range from 10.25 to 11.25 percent, with the high at year's end."

> LASKO SAID the mortgage banking industry is continuing to support most provisions of a comprehensive housing bill now before Congress.

The bill includes provisions to prohibit new user fees by government-supported housing agencies. provide permanent insuring authority to FHA and increase its maximum insurable amount

Founded in 1914 and headquartered in Washington, D.C., the Mortgate Bankers Association of America has 2,800 members involved in real estate finance. They include mortgage companies, savings and loan associations, saving banks, commerical banks and life insurance companies.

The Mortgage Bankers Association of Michigan is a statewide real estate finance trade association representing more than 200 member Should Highland handle 15,000 campers in July?

By Tim Richard staff writer

Circuit Judge Robert Anderson must decide whether to block a weeklong convention of 15,000 campers at Highland State Recreation area in western Oakland Coun-

The scheduled "campvention" of the National Campers and Hikers Association will turn Highland "into a private recreational vehicle park for a one-week period in July," charges a group of environmentalists banded together as the Highland Recreational Defense Foundation. "A minimal environmental cost," replied William Pierce, a senior park planner for the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, the defendant in last week's trial.

FOUNDATION attorney Jeffrey Haynes of Bloomfield Hills wants

1) Prohibit DNR from doing any more tree cutting, brush- clearing, road preparing and other site work for the private camping group.

2) Rule that DNR exceeded its lawful powers when it in effect leased the area bordering Teeple and Haven Hill lakes to the campers for

Since 1985 the campers group has planned the convention and needs a natural amphitheater, beach and town where it can hold a parade. The village of Milford is to host the pa-

But opponents, including the East Michigan Environmental Action Council, say DNR violates its master plan for Highland, which says:

The primary theme or emphasis for the whole park is environmental education and outdoor nature orientation. The secondary emphasis is general outdoor recreation. The park will be day-use oriented.'

DNR'S PIERCE spent parts of two days as a defense witness, saying the 6,500-acre area not only could accommodate the convention but was the best of 13 southeastern Michigan sites.

The property once was owned by auto magnate Edsel Ford, who was motivated in part to protect his children after the 1927 Lindbergh baby kidnapping - hence the name Haven Hill Lodge. The state acquired it in the 1940s.

'We looked at the size; the number of acres of state ownership, soils, slopes, in some cases woodlots," Pi-

"We looked at buffers, access to the area both highways and public roads in the park. We looked at available utilities, possibilities of an amphitheater, the beach.

'We looked at how much disruption of existing uses would occur; the adjacent overflow area; the beauty: and the availability of a nearby community for a parade."

Highland scored 34 points vs. 25 for Holly State Recreation Area, 21 each for Pontiac Lake and Seven Lakes, 20 for Island Lake and 17 for Maybury State Park.

USING OLD aerial photos, Pierce said the site had accommodated a Boy Scout jamboree for 15,000 in 1957, a Girl Scout Roundup in 1956 and a Boy Scout gathering in 1940. All used cropped fields and former meadows, Pierce said.

But Haynes argued that a convention of 15,000 older adults in motor homes, trailers and campers requiring electricity was far different from 15,000 scouts in tents.

"At two different times of year," replied Pierce, noting the scout jamborees were in May while the RVs were gathering in less rainy July

THE ENVIRONMENTALISTS' attorney said DNR's preparations changed land use patterns, made permanent improvements and cost 26,000 trees. "The natural succession of trees was set back 30 years," Havnes said.

Pierce said the cut trees were onefive inches in diameter and that 19,000 other trees were undisturbed, including 12,600 with diameters of six inches or more.

The canopied forest - that's what we said we would not disturb," Pierce said Pierce acknowledged that Michigan Civilian Conservation Corps workers once made a mistake and cut into a stand of black locust trees. But he said DNR immediately tightened its procedures, and "there were no further incidents.

MUCH OF Haynes' questioning was aimed at showing DNR didn't ask vhether the campvention should be held, but how could it be accommodated.

"We tend to react," said Pierce. "There is no intent to make the campsites permanent," Pierce said, detailing which structures would be dismantled after the campvention.

The environmentalists charged, however, that many changes would be permanent, and that bulldozers and chainsaws had been used to scar

November jobless rate up to 7.7%

Michigan's seasonally adjusted unemployment rate for November climbed by half a percentage point to 7.7 percent, according to Richard Simmons Jr., director of the Michigan Employment Security Commis-

He blamed job losses in the state's construction and service sectors.

According to the labor force estimates prepared by the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, Michigan's jobless total in November rose by 23,000 to 350,000. Nevertheless, it was the lowest November jobless rate since 1978 when the rate was 7.2 percent.

In October, the statewide unemployment rate had been 7.2 percent with 327,000 out of work.

A year earlier, November 1986, Michigan's unemployment rate was 8.3 percent with 373,000 jobless.

As unemployment rose, total employment statewide fell by 28,000 in November to 4,177,000. The labor force total remained virtually unchanged from October to November declining by 5,000 to 4,527,000.

Simmons explained that most of the November job losses occurred in the construction industry and in those tourism-related service industries such as hotels and amusement and recreation facilities.

Michigan's manufacturing sector showed little employment change in November, despite some small declines in the automotive industry. The retail trade sector experienced its normal holiday hiring increases.

Pounds, both the number we have and the way we distribute them, are weighty topics during the calories-rich holiday season. Burning off excess fat and toning flabby physiques are wise goals for both physical and mental well-being. But make sure the cure isn't worse than the ailment. Mannerly guide to being correct

By Dave Varga

Everyone knows the forks go on the right, you curtsy to the Pope and kiss the ring of the queen. Right?

Good. That's etiquette, good manners. Now, let's get to some important everyday situations:

• You're swimming laps and someone is too slow in the same lane and there's no room in the pool. What do you do?

Or you're driving on a dark two-lane roadway and you're blinded by a bright glare of light looking like the Second Coming or a Spielberg movie. What do you do?

Or you amble up to the express checkout line with a quart of milk and pack of Trident only to find a little old lady unloading her second cartload full of cat food cans. Should you say something?

Fear not. Mr. Manners, the real answer man who can really shell it out, has the answers to those tough ques-

PROPER PROCEDURE in the pool is to get out and ask the life guard to deal with it, or "circle swim" around the lane, according to Tora Dunn, a pool instructor at the Livonia Family YMCA.

While you're swimming, don't spit. "They'll quite often spit in the gutter. We very politely ask them to go to the drinking fountain," Dunn said.

And another thing. Don't let your kids in the deep end unless they can swim all the way across on their stomach and back. "Some parents are a little uptight about that," Dunn said. "You have to insist because, hey, it's your neck."

If your neck is pained from those jerko drivers who keep their brights on, don't use blinker signals or just plain flaunt the law, Bloomfield Township Officer Robert Morrow has one answer.

The cops are out there, and they see 'em, too.

"As a matter of etiquette," Officer Morrow said, "you and I both have been driving down the expressway when someone approaching forgets to turn off their brights. We blink the lights. If they fail to respond, all you can do is say, 'You dummy,' or whatever and just keep going. As a police officer, we're attuned to that. We're taught that's a classic sign of someone operating under the influence or impaired."

Lane changers or quick-turn artists who don't use their turn signals probably wont't draw the flashing blue light special from cops but will if they break another law like speeding or if they're driving dangerously, not just annoyingly, Morrow said.

IF YOU'RE unlucky enough to get stopped by Smokey, Mr. Manners says follow these simple rules:

• "Probably the worst thing a motorist can do,"

Morrow said, "is before the officer opens his mouth is to say. 'Why are you stopping me?' It puts the officer on the defensive."

• Don't start telling them about all the policeman's ball tickets you've bought and showing off all your membership cards, i.e. VFW, KFC, Moose and Noose clubs. "You get a lot of that, and I think most police officers are offended by that. They're using a tool to get out of the ticket," Morrow said.

• Last, but not least, don't treat the officer like a Robo-Dodo-Cop. "If they treat you not the way you expect to be treated as a police officer, but as a normal person, most people wouldn't get a ticket," Morrow

IN MORE user-friendly arenas, the customer is always right. At the grocery store, like other retail situations, the problem is when two customers have differing opinions.

At a Farmer Jack store in Farmington, the full grocery cart will sometimes show up parked in an express lane, according to one manager who refused to be named for fear of recrimination. Sometimes workers can open up another lane and move the offending person to a non-express lane.

"It really depends on the situation," she said. "If we're not too busy, we'll grab a packer and let them slide through."

Recordly, a woman with about 35 items was in the 20 or less line and the man behind her raised a fuss.

"By the time he said something, she had her things unloaded. We just kinda apologized to the customer and got a bagger."

AT A RESTAURANT, don't worry about offending the server by asking where your food is Again, the customer is always right. "It's not unusual for someone to ask about an order even if it's within the alloted time. That's not being pushy," said Debbie Schmitz, a manager at Holly's By Golly restaurant in Plymouth.

But restaurant servers don't enjoy hearing too much griping. A manager at a local Charley's restaurant, who also feared for her job, said, "Even in the best laid out restaurant, the cleanest, with the best staff, whatever, mistakes will happen.

"When mistakes do happen we bend over backwards. I would like to see a little more tolerance from our customers. Occasionally a vegetable will be cold. Please

THOSE COLD vegetables would make a perfect replacement for the German-speaking family and their translators you always get stuck next to in the movie theater, eh bunky?

"We don't even want them to whisper," explained Gary Evans, general manager at Northland Theatres in Southfield. "We send in the usher and usually very politely whisper to the customer to stop because it annoys people. If somebody refuses to behave, we give them their money back and ask them to leave."

Folks with little babies get the same treatment. "The moment the baby makes a single peep or noise, the mother has to take it out and the money is refunded," Evans said.

Bottom line is keep the movie enjoyable for everyone else and don't embarrass the offending party. "We always refund the money, even if we have to throw somebody out. We basically don't want to make enemies," he

It's not much different in legitimate theater. Coming in late or leaving early are no-nos, says Shirl Harris of the Birmingham Theatre. But making noise — whether its talking, rustling papers or shopping bags — is the biggest no-no.

biggest no-no.

"It's very bad etiquette," Harris said. "Not only because it's distracting for other patrons, but what makes it worse is, if it's loud enough for the actors to hear. People have become accustomed to watching TV in their living room... and talking loud or rattling gum or candy wrappers."

QUIET IS cherished on the golf course, too, where rules cover nearly everything and etiquette covers just about everything else.

For instance, it's a matter of courtesy to let faster players play through if they're pushing up behind you and the group ahead is at least one hole ahead.

"The unfortunate situation is most slow players don't know they're slow. Maybe it's a pride thing. They don't want to seem inferior," said Glenn Pulice, assistant golf pro at Wabeek Country Club in West Bloomfield.

Obvious things like replacing divots and repairing ball marks on greens are always appropriate. Pulice said.

A tougher situation is when to hit when you're approaching the green but the foursome ahead is still on the green. Generally wait until they leave the green. Even if you're only able to hit to the fringe and roll on the green, Pulice says don't hit yet.

"It's acceptable, believe it or not, on a par five, but inacceptable on a par four or three. You've got a great excuse (on a par five), 'I never thought I could reach the

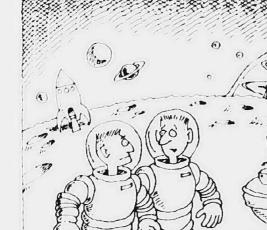

BOWLING ALSO has its etiquette. If two bowlers are approaching the lane at the same time, the one readying to roll his second ball has the right-of-way, according to Rudy Kramer, manager of Garden Lanes in Garden City.

It's more complicated when you try to decide how many alleys away should be clear before you start your approach.

"You get right back to attitude," Kramer said. "One individual thinks he's gotta have the whole bowling alley stop when he gets up. Another person says just one

Don't take forever to bowl either. "Probably if you get any complaints it's about a bowler taking too long on an approach by bowlers on an adjoining alley," Kramer said.

You are indeed a courageous and wise professional to seek help with your drug problem. You know your employer, ask yourself this question: Would he/she understand and encourage you to seek the help you need? If he respects your work and your letter sounds as though he/she does respect you then the chances are he/she will support you.

Naw The main intent of this allwoman outfit is producing a spirited. gritty blend of rock music

Unlike some other all-female bands (Go's Go's, the Bangels), the Vertical Pillows want to be known more for their music than their onstage appearance. The band's lead singer and guitarist obviously subscribes to such a belief.

Clad in jeans and work boots "They're comfortable."), Paula Boufford is waiting before the band's show at the 3rd Avenue Cafe in Royal Oak. Her only jewelry is a modest pair of earrings and a Mickey Mouse

"I DON'T LIKE to be flashy," said Boufford, who lives in Warren. "We could all get our ears pierced 12 times, but na-a-a-a

Of course, concentrating more on the music then image is all fine and dandy. The pressing question of the day is whether this band has the musical talent to compete with the best. On stage, the Vertical Pillows can answer that with an unequivocal yes with a searing guitar riff to boot. It would be hard to explain why else former MC5 front man Rob Typer has taken the hand under his tutelage. Tyner would seem to have better things to do with his time then working with a band that is nothing more than a novelty. "It's a rock 'n' roll band that happens to be female," Tyner said.

Tyner produced the group's foursong tape, "The Vertical Pillows." His influence, and that of the MC5, is evident in their sound. The Pillows have often been called, "The MC4." Their numbers have "Detroit" written all over them, bringing reminisces of '60s rockers, the Detroit Wheels and the MC5.

ONE OF THE highlights on the tape is "Take Back the Night," which Tyner wrote for the group.

In an odd set of circumstances, it was the group that sought out Tyner. They met him at "Guitar Army," a benefit for Vietnam veterans at St. Andrew's Hall.

'We saw him and said, 'There's Rob Tyner!" Boufford said. "We told him, 'We do MC5 stuff better than you do.' He said, 'Well, at least you're fiesty."

That bravado certainly comes across on stage. Boufford doesn't merely sing a song; she attacks it.

REVIEWS

WHERE THE STREETS HAVE NO NAME

What a great idea. Take a hit single from your platinum-selling album, throw in a few numbers that were lying around in the closet and sell it for five bucks. Let it not be said that U2 are a bunch of fiscal knuckleheads.

Where the Streets Have No Name" is the third 12-inch single released by the Irish group from its hot-selling "The Joshua Tree" alburn. And, yes, the group will be putting out a fourth, "In God's Country," any day now as well.

Cynics could make a strong case that U2 is out to cash in big by releasing such singles. After all, $5 is a lot to be paying for three songs (four songs in "With or Without You).

But U2 fans clamoring for anything by the band are more than happy to buy such releases. Indeed, the strongest part of these singles are the songs accompanying them.

Any one of these artistically diverse numbers could've been on 'The Joshua Tree.'

Where the Streets Have No Name" features a rousing version of "Silver and Gold," a number Bono did for the "Sun City" album. He sounds like a Delta blues singer here as he screams about the evils apar-

"Sweetest Thing" is a rather nice piano-laden love number with Bono showing his versatility as a singer. "Race Against Time" is another gem as well, featuring the deft guitar work of The Edge.

Of the three 12-inch singles, "I Still Haven't Found What I'm Looking For," has the strongest previously unreleased material. "Spanish Eyes" should have been on "The Joshua Tree." This number is rich with Edge's piercing guitar and Bono's raucous vocals. "Deep in the Heart" is a very atmospheric, moody number, and very reminiscent of the material on "The Unforgettable Fire" album.

Two out of three isn't bad, though, "Where the Streets Have No Name" and "I Still Haven't Found What I'm Looking For" are 12-inch singles well worth listening to.

That is if you can afford them. - Larry O'Connor

Gray-haired visitors picture the battleships anchored near Ford Island, visible today across a strip of water from the visitor center. Young families ride the navy shuttle across the placid blue harbor to the white memorial built over the sunken U.S.S. Arizona. Navy personnel like David Merkel, Photographer's Mate Third Class from Fort Collins, Colorado, takes his oath of reenlistment aboard the memorial itself. There are many Japanese tourists in the

There are many ways to see Pearl Harbor, an estuary of the Pearl River which forms three large inlets of water approached from the sea through a secure, narrow entrance just west of Honolulu International Airport. Hawaii wasn't part of the United States until 14 years after World War II, but the U.S. Navy recognized the value of Pearl Harbor and secured harbor rights before the turn of the 20th century.

You can pay to ride a tour boat from Honolulu, if you don't want to actually step onto the memorial. The memorial is entirely within the boundaries of the Pearl Harbor Naval Base, designated as a National Historic Landmark, and the only way to visit it is courtesy of the National Park Service and the Navy.

Some people buy city tours that include the memorial. Others buy a tour package that really doesn't do anything but deliver you to the memorial and take you home.

The best way is to either park your car in the limited free parking area or take a #20 bus from Honolulu. A commercial transportation company also provides shuttle service from the city.

It costs nothing to visit the memorial and the visitor center, run by the National Park Service in conjunction with the U.S. Navy. It is a very popular attraction, so it can take a long time unless you know how the system works and use it to your advanthrough the system. Those with tickets marked 2 must wait for the second group and so on through the day.

The memorial is so popular that you could easily wait an hour or two for your turn. You can go away and come back for your designated time, but it is that wait that makes a Pearl Harbor visit a long one.

The problem is solved if you are among the first in line when the visitor center opens at 7:45 a.m. I arrived about 7:15 a.m. in early November and there were already about ten people ahead of me.

At 8 a.m. group 1 entered the theater, where a park ranger and a film will brief you on the economic and military factors that led to the war, the history of the U.S.S. Arizona and the attack on Pearl Harbor, a national disaster for the United States but a brilliant military manouever just

Its a fact of life. We must burn off 3,500 more calories than we consume to drop one pound of fat

One pound It doesn't come off by hopping out of bed and doing 20 pushups before coffee Running the dog for 10 minutes after work is kind, not exercise. Working up a sweat lifting weights makes for nice pictures but isn't considered an aerobic activity, which "conditions the heart and lungs by increasing the efficiency of oxygen intake into the body, according to Webster's.

Even 50 minutes to an hour of aerobics only burns 300-400 calories. or less than an eighth of a pound of fat, says Fred Stransky, director of the Meadow Brooke Health Enhancement Institute at Oakland University in Rochester

So how does one go about losing that pound of fat? Easy. Hoist that larder. Or, in straight talk, get off Stransky, who has a doctorate in exercise science, says lack of activity is the major cause of latent weight gain today in the United States. If the image of a world-class davenport spud, cousin to the couch potato, is starting to materialize. then you're getting the idea.

Stransky's prescription is long-duration, low-intensity exercise building to high-intensity activities. The key is duration.

If people expect substantial loss over the short term, they're really being misled," he says. 'The ultimate goal should be to educate and take a look at the long haul.

Banishing fallacies is the first step in Stransky's program. For example 20 minutes of aerobic activity, the best kind to lose weight, is the minimum standard for cardiovascular fitness, he says. For weight loss, it's a different story and means 45 minutes to an hour of continuous motion. Stransky adds Aerobics classes, racquetball and ignite fat but Stransky doesn't rec- ercise is ideal but every other day ommend them for the beginner. He also isn't fond of bright, shiny gyms one person isn't necessarily good to with lots of glitz, bang and smoke. Exercise salons show all these

CANDACE WEST

The Detroit skyline serves as a background to the lights of a Windsor street by night.

By Larry O'Connor staff writer

OK, OK, we all know what Windsor is known for.

Yeh, yeh, so it would almost be impossible to avoid the naked truth about why people flock over the bridge and through the tunnel with mouths watering to partake in such sinful delights. Those soft and warm beauties why it's the apple muffins of course.

Yes, the muffins. For some reason, the muffins they serve at the numerous coffee shops around Windsor are par excellence.

Grandma's baked goods couldn't hold a candle to these scrumptious morsels of delight. Apple, blueberry, raisin and chocolate chip: you name it, they have it. And nothing goes finer with a cup of coffee after a night on the town than one of these babies.

But baked goods are only one of many things to be experienced in the quaint city of Windsor, our Canadian friend. There's an abundance of restaurants to eat at, stores to shop at, and things to see and do.

Before we go over to Canada, though, there's a little quiz you should take.

Question No. 1: When entering the country the customs guard asks if you're carrying any firearms with you. You tell him with a straight face:

a. "Yeh, Mack, I have a Sherman tank in my trunk, a grenade launcher in my back seat and four M-16s in my glove compartment. What's it to you?"

b. "No, but I hear there's a sale on bazookas at Eaton's. I think I'll bring back a dozen."

c. "No sir."

Question 2. John G. Diefenbaker is:

a. A baker at Tim Horton Doughnuts.

b. A defenseman with the Windsor Spitfires.c. A former Canadian prime minister.

Question 3. A kilometer is:1

a. Someone who goes around destroying parking meters on Ouellette Avenue.

b. A Canadian cousin of the caterpillar.

c. .62 of a mile.

IF YOU answered C to all the above, it's time to see Windsor. If you didn't, well, Toledo, Ohio, is still a great place to spend a day.

First, there are a few tips before you leave. It's wise to get your money exchanged before you head over to get your money exchanged before you head over.

"Most of the charter banks around here don't accept $50 and $100 (U.S.) bills unless you have an account at the branch," said Paul McLean, operations manager at Bank of Commerce in Windsor. "Once in awhile, we do run into a problem where a Michigan resident has large bills and the stores and the banks won't take them."

This process involves going down to the bank and plunking down some hard-earned George Washington dollar bills. In return, you'll receive something colorful resembling Monopoly money. Don't panic. It's real.

The exchange rates vary daily, depending on how the Free Trade talks between the U.S. and Canada are going etro runs a little high in Canada. Plus, they sell gasoline by the litre.

ANOTHER THING, gas up before you go. It seems petro runs a little high in Canada.

"The average fill up is 48 to 60 litres," said Mike Gilligan of Gilligan's Esso Service Station on Huron Street, near the bridge. "If you buy 57.2 litres at 46.3 cents a litre . . . It comes up to $2.10 a gallon Canadian or $1.75 U.S."

Whether you take the bridge or tunnel is a matter of personal preference. If you're claustrophobic, take the bridge. If you're afraid of heights, take the tunnel.

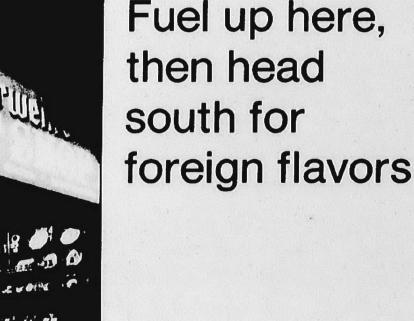

You should carry proper identification such as a birth certificate and a driver's license when entering Canada. And whatever you do, don't smart off to the customs official on the other side. They're not particularly known for their sense of humor.

"We deal with it 24 hours a day, 365 days a year," said Tom Jobin, a supervisor at Canadian Customs at the tunnel entrance in Windsor. "We get some people who think they can come up with a wise crack line.

Restaurants are waiting in Windsor for Michigan visitors.

We've heard it all before."

WHEN DRIVING through Windsor, it's also important to know some of the different traffic laws. Most importantly, the seatbelt laws are strictly enforced there.

Also, the speed limits are posted in kilometers, not miles.

"A lot of times, they see a sign which says 60 and they go 60," said Sergeant Edward Jee of the Windsor Police Traffic Division. "But they're going 60 miles in a 40-mile zone.

"It's even worse on the 401 (Highway) where it's 100 kilometers. Sometimes we wonder if they're going to reach 100 miles because they're going so fast."

Another thing is that the traffic lights are on the opposite end of the intersection. So people who pull right up to the light usually look like dolts parked smack dab in the intersection.

With that out of the way, let's eat. There's so many top-notch eateries to mention them all. Here's only a few suggestions:

 Wong's Eatery, University Drive; is rated one of the top restaurants in Canada, specializing in Cantonese food. For reservations, call (519) 252-8814.

Tunnel Barbeque, near the tunnel, is also rated as one of top restaurants in Windsor.
 Milano, 1520 Tecumseh Road, is one of many fine tealian restaurants in Windsor. They specialize in yeal Italian restaurants in Windsor. They specialize in veal, steak and seafood dishes. For reservations, call 962-9558 (Detroit number).

• Sir William's, 650 Ouellette, serves up both steak and seafood. The specialty of the house is prime rib. They also have a piano bar. For reservations, call (519) 254-5119.

• Tim Horton Doughnuts, various locations in

• Tim Horton Doughnuts, various locations in Windsor. Again, just can't say enough about those muffins. The coffee is pretty good, too.

Want to shop? Here's a few places to go:

 Ouellette Avenue Mall, downtown, is dotted with specialty shops where you can buy furs, linens, woollens, gold jewelry and china.

 Devonshire Mall, Howard Avenue, off EC Row Expressway, is the biggest indoor shopping facility in Windsor with department stores (like Eaton's), fashion stores and specialty shops.

 University Mall, Tecumseh and Huron Church roads, is another indoor mall with a slew a department stores and restaurants.

 Ottawa Street Mall, specialty shops, department stores and restaurants fill this several block-long area in Windsor's oldest shopping district.

Want to see some sights? Here's a few places to see and things to do:

• Hiram Walker Historical Museum, 254 Pitt St., is a former private residence known as the Francois Baby House and features a variety of special exhibits. It is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday and Saturday and from 2.5 p.m. Sunday, Admission is free and from 2-5 p.m. Sunday. Admission is free.

• Art Gallery of Windsor, 455 Riverside Dr., West, has selected works from private Windsor collections.

For more information, call 258-7111.

• Windsor Raceway, on Highway 18, six miles south of Windsor, has harness racing Tuesday nights and Friday through Sunday evenings from October to June. For more information, call 961-9545 (Detroit number) Windsor Compuware Spitfires, Windsor Arena, Wyandotte and McDougall, provide a fast-paced, hard hitting brand of hockey and feature future National Hockey League stars like Adam Graves and Darin Shannon. The Spitfires' season runs from October to March. For ticket information, call 962-8282 (Detroit number).

• University Players, University of Windsor, are in the midst of their 1987/88 season at Essex Hall Theatre. Mark Medoff's "Children of a Lesser God" will be playing Thursday, Dec. 10, through Sunday, Dec. 13. For ticket information, call (519) 253-4665.

Had enough? Remember if you've been in Windsor less than 24 hours, you're only allowed to bring back $25 worth of merchandise into the U.S. For more information, call U.S. Customs at 226-3138 or 226-3157.

HE CARLETON James Gallery at the Troy Design Center is one of the finest for accessories. This showroom has a sophisticated cosmopolitan flavor with vignettes that are absolutely smashing. They have imports from mainland China and crystal from Czechoslovakia and Germany. They also represent a number of fine furniture lines: John Widdecomb, Trouvailles, Tomlinson, Peter Scalia; MGM and Fickes Reed.

The furniture is accented by their wonderful accessories. Serving plates of brass or silver and brass imported from Spain grace a dining table. The stemware on the table adds to the elegance of a table setting. The blanks of crystal are made in Czechoslovakia and then sent to a family of crystal cutters in Austria who finish the stemware. Prices range from $30 to $57 depending on the size of the item.

Among the lamp lines they represent are Frederick Cooper, Hart and Marbro. The Marbro line is costly but it looks it.

Marbro line is costly but it looks it.

Whenever I see Marbro lamps, it brings to mind a time when my daughter, then 10 years old, accompanied me to the Merchandise Mart in Chicago for the first time on a buying trip. She was completely taken with the Marbro Lamp line and remarked, "When I grow up and get married, I will only have Marbro lamps and Baker furniture."

She referred to Baker because it is a high quality line of furniture. They maintain a showroom as well in the Troy Design Center as well as in other design centers in the United States.

Q. We purchased a new house and must live with the carpet that is there. It is not my favorite color but is in excellent condition. The entire house is carpeted in cornflower blue. It is a lot of blue to live with. What can I do with my upholstered pieces to complement this sea of blue?

A. Use vanilla, lots of vanilla and vary the textures in the fabrics. Try using a major wood piece in a bleached or pickled oak finish. A vanilla lacquer finish is another you might try. For color accents, use mauve and mint green.

Q. I have an enormous number of miscellaneous items in my basement. Does everyone keep so much stuff or am I abnormal?

A. You are very normal — but not necessarily content. Having extra storage space can be heaven or a hindrance, depending on you. One woman told the architect designing her Bloomfield Hills home to build in extra storage everywhere. He did, and now she feels that was a mistake. All of her storage areas are full.

Sadly, extra holding areas often turn into "indecision deposits." "What shall we do with this?" we ask. Too often the answer is,"Oh, let's just put in the ————(fill in the blank) for now." Despite good intentions to deal with possessions "later," life is so busy with more important demands that once stuff is allowed to accumulate, they become permanent fixtures. Before long, these locations become overloaded with items we don't want, like or need.

One of the main reasons for indecision is fear of making a mistake. "What if I let that item go and then find out it's valuable?" we ask. Unless it is a true antique, the longer you have it, the less appealing it will be and the less value it will have. Find out by call-

ANOTHER MOST COMMON excuse is, "I may need it sometime." If you haven't used it in six months or a year, chances are you won't need it at all.

If you are going to get rid of 100 items, you will probably make a couple of mistakes. That's OK. Just consider the small cost of those mistakes as the price you've paid for having less clutter and more contentment in your life. (And remember — almost anything you sell at your garage sale can be bought at another garage sale.)

Not knowing where to how to get items repaired is another dilemma. Call a professional for advice and then decide whether to repair it or release it.

Perhaps the easiest guide of all is to ask yourself: "What will happen if I let this item go?" If the anser is "nothing," then you know you don't need it.

Most important, remember that keeping unneeded stuff is a drain on you. It is an eternal "To Do" because you know you need to take time and make decisions about its destiny. This clutters your mind and adds to the ever-present pressures of daily living.

Let's deck the halls

HE HOLIDAYS ARE A TIME for whimsy, for tradition or for splendid simplicity, inspiring searches for the right Christmas tree, a bigger and better welcoming wreath for the front door, the perfect centerpiece, and — by all means — a Christmas train and Santa

We found so many wonderful ideas for decking the hall that it was very difficult to narrow them down to fit in this space. But we did our best and here they are — something for everyone — primitive, traditional, whimsical, nostalgic, welcoming and natural.

With imagination, flair and taste for the primitive, Seglinda Pritchard of Franklin turned four old 2-by-4s and some pesky wild grape vine that was choking hedgerow plantings into a stunning 6½-foot high Christmas tree. The 2-by-4s are anchored with a cross bar into a teepee shape. Grapevine randomly wraps around the tree structure and a stylized steel star brought back from a trip to Halti tops it off. Red chill pepper lights from the southwest combine with gold hearts, handcut tin stars and apples to trim this personal expression of Christ-
