MITTEN TREE: The Plymouth Woman's Club annual Mitten Tree is up now at the Detroit Edison branch at Ann Arbor Trail and Main. The tree, containing mittens and scarfs, will remain in place until about Dec. 23 when the Salvation Army will disburse the mittens and scarfs to children and adults in need of assistance.

The mittens and scarfs are donated by Woman's Club members; however, the general public is encouraged to make mitten and scarf contributions to assist the project. Edison donates the artificial tree each year upon which the items are displayed. This is the 15th year the Woman's Club and Detroit Edison has been involved in the project.

LAST CHANCE: The Parents' Last Chance Shopping Spree is being sponsored by the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce on Sunday, Dec. 20, for harried parents who haven't found the time yet to finish their holiday shopping.

Shopping can be done in Plymouth while the children meet "Hello Kitty" and enjoy other forms of entertainment along with a movie, compliments of the Penn Theatre in downtown Plymouth. Showtime is 2:30 p.m. and will last until 5 p.m. Chaperones will be on hand to properly supervise the children. The movie is geared toward children three and older.

CASTING CALL:

Plymouth Theatre Guild is having tryouts for the play "The Sound of Murder" beginning 7 p.m. Monday and Tuesday, Dec. 14, 15, in Central Middle School. There is a need for four men and two SANTA TRAIN: The Chessie System's Santa Train will be in Plymouth from 1-5 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 19, at the Main Street tracks. Santa will greet children inside a decorated caboose, said Chessie spokesman Bob Corliss. There will be a gift for each child and refreshments.

FREE FILL-UP: City of Plymouth residents wanting sand to fill their Christmas Luminaries may get free sand at the Plymouth Public Works Department beginning today.

ADVANCING: A number of residents were among a class of 90 Masons from 11 southeastern Michigan counties who recently received Scottish Rite Freemasonry's 32nd degree at the final session of the 303rd Reunion at the Masonic Temple in Detroit.

Plymouth Masons in the class were George F. Braidwood of Katherine and Thomas Williams of Gloucester. Canton Masons in the class included Thomas H. Boyd of Copeland, Wendell N. Bush of Canton Center, James M. Corson of Morrison, and Patrick J. Ratchford of Palmer.

CUTS PAY: Wayne County Commissioner Susan J. Heintz, whose 10th District includes Plymouth, has voluntarily requested a 4-percent reduction in salary, starting Dec. 1 until further notice. Heintz said she is taking the cut to help the county during its serious financial crisis.

In a resolution adopted by the full board on Nov. 25, all county officials and commissioners were asked to participate in a voluntary salary reduction. Heintz said that until such time as a solvency program to reduce the county deficit was in place, sacrifices must be made by all.

The school board's meeting will begin at 7:30 tonight in the administration building on Harvey just south of Ann Arbor Trail in Plymouth.

IF THE PROPOSAL is approved. Tanger Elementary on Five Mile in Plymouth will close to regular classes starting in the fall of 1988. Student population at Tanger has decreased and today about 170 pupils attend.

Remaining Tanger Elementary pupils, including special education students, would be transferred to Farrand Elementary School on Greenbriar Lane in Plymouth.

Tanger would then house alternative programs like the PLUS Headstart program, IPSEP (Infant and Preschool Special Education Program) and a staff development center. A day care center also is under consideration.

'It's better to run a school of 500 rather than 100.

Cost effectiveness and shortened bus rides are other benefits, she said.

Officials discuss incineration plan

In looking for ways to keep a proposed landfill out of Canton, local government officials are thinking about forming an incineration authority

Among the options being discussed is the condemnation or purchase of land currently owned by Wayne Disposal-Canton Inc.

Wayne Disposal wants to build a landfill at Michigan and Lilley in Canton and has received preliminary approval from the Wayne County Solid Waste Plan Implementation Committee to do so.

BEFORE TUESDAY'S Canton Township Board meeting, supervisors for Canton, Plymouth and Northville townships met with attorneys in closed session to talk about the possibility, which could become reality under auspices of the Western Townships Utilities Authority.

The three townships in 1986 formed the WTUA to acquire and finance a sewage disposal and solid waste management system

"By having your own authority, it ensures you of being able to get rid of your garbage. It also ensures you can control costs," said Canton Supervisor James Poole.

"The supervisors will talk to their boards to see if they're receptive to it. If so, we'll go from there '

Poole anticipates "discussions among communities and with the Wayne County executive about the District sued over credit requirement dispute

staff writer

Plymouth Township trustee James Irvine last Monday filed a lawsuit against Plymouth-Canton Community Schools on behalf of his son, John, a senior at Plymouth Salem High.

The lawsuit, filed in Wayne Circuit Court, says that the district refuses to honor a ninth-grade world history course worth one credit toward graduation requirements.

The confusion stems from three years ago when overcrowding at Centennial Educational Park resulted in students, who would be in CEP graduating classes of 1986-88, attending ninth-grade classes in their middle schools. This was the case when John Irvine attended ninth grade in Central Middle School. Today, there is no ninth-grade class at the school.

JIM IRVINE, a staff attorney for Ford Motor Co., will represent his

Trustee Irvine cites son's counselor's advice

An unnamed counselor at Central Middle School advised Irvine that he could satisfy his high school graduation requirement of one credit in Human Skills by taking world history in the ninth grade, according to John's mother, Mona.

This would leave him free to take more of the courses available at CEP during the three years he would

The lawsuit says that in May 1987, John Irvine, who has attended Plymouth-Canton schools since kindergarten, was informed that the world history class he took in the ninth grade did not satisfy the Human Skills requirement because he did not take

"It's not fair to tell a youngster one thing in eighth grade and then tell him something else in the 12th grade," said Mona Irvine. "Part of the reason you operate in an adversary position is because you feel offended. It's not fun to fight."

The lawsuit does not seek any damages on behalf of Irvine who has a 3.0 grade point average, is ranked

Plymouth Chamber chooses officers

Four incumbents and a newcomer recently were elected to fill five positions on the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors.

Gerald Triplett, a staff engineer at Unisys Corp. (formerly Burroughs) for 28 years, fills the vacancy left by Robert DeMattia of the R.A. DeMattia Co., who served on the board during the past year. Triplett has been involved with the Plymouth Community Fund/United Way for the past three years and was its general chairman in 1980. He is past president of the Plymouth-Canton Junior Basketball Association, and is a member of the alumni association of Michigan

State University and of Beta Theta Pi. Incumbents elected to three-year terms were: Mary Childs, a 10-year member of the Plymouth City Com mission, Saundra Florek, director of institutional advancement at Schoolcraft College, 35th District Judge James Garber; and Cale Schneider, owner and manager of Cale the Printer.

Elected to serve as board officers for 1988 are Garber, president; Russ Hoisington, first vice president; Pam Kosteva, second vice president; Ken Currie, secretary, Tom Bohlander, treasurer, Saundra Florek, ex-of-

Whether it would be wise for WTUA to form an incineration authority depends on many factors, and Preiniczky wants more information before he takes a position. On the surface, it seems like a good idea, he said.

There are sites, namely relatively flat, old landfills in Canton, that would make good sites for incineration. Preniczky says.

And civic responsibility also is on the minds of trustees.

If I live close to it, I don't want it there but maybe it's our responsibility," said Preniczky.

'It seems convenient. We're all located close together. If this authority didn't work out, we could establish another.

We're willing to look into it and find out how clean it can be, and what it would cost to operate an in-

INCINERATION at the Michigan-Lilley site would make sense from a practical standpoint.

Landfills are needed to dispose of ash, unavoidable with incineration. And some items can be recycled. Clay on the site makes the property ideal for landfilling. And a recycling center soon will be operating on township-owned land at Van Born and Lilley

It would take a lot of doing to bring the plan to fruition. Poole says. Politically speaking, who's ready for it? Who's going to do it? Where are you going to put it? Everyone wants an incinerator, but not in their backyard," said Poole.

What makes it worse is politics and the fact that every one of us is involved in it.

Rotary raises $28,000 for polio battle

The Rotary Club of Plymouth earned enough from its first fund-raiser for PolioPlus recently to inoculate more than a quarter of a million children against polio.

The club earned more than $28,000 from its auction which included a special drawing for a side of beef. The Plymouth Rotary Bull Club raised some $5,000 for PolioPlus, while the auction netted more than $23,000 for the worldwide health project.

PolioPlus is a campaign of Rotary International to raise $120 million by the year 2000 to inoculate every child in the world against polio. The cost is only 12 cents to protect one child for life against against polio

For the first time in its history, Plymouth Rotary Club has gone outside its membership for money and is appealing to the community at-large to help in this campaign.

The PolioPlus Auction was the first public appeal as business supporters of Rotary contributed a number of items to be sold off by auctioneer John Whalen of Plymouth in the Mayflower Meet-

Among the bargains for bidders that night were a 1977 Cadillac Eldorado, a full-length mink coat. electric organs, computer equipment, original paintings, motorcycles, antique furniture, vacations, tools, sporting goods, televisions and stereo equipment

THE PLYMOUTH Rotary Bull Club involved the sale of memberships for $10 each with each purchaser getting a certificate of membership. Each member then became eligible for winning a side of beef or $500 cash. The winner was Plymouth Salvation Army Maj. Robert Geddis.

Most Americans are unaware that 750 children fall victim to polio each day," said Bill Robinson, auction chairman. "Of these, 75 will die and about 500 will go through life with parmament paralysis and disfigurement. For only $90 those 75 lives can be saved and 750 children can avoid becoming victims of polio.

Plymouth Rotary is hoping to double the $28,000 from the auction through matching contributions from its membership, said Dr E.J McClendon who chairs the club's PolioPius Committee along with Lou LaRiche. This way, the total contribution of the auction to PolioPlus could be as high as $56,000

Information about the PolioPlus project was distributed to the public last fall at a Plymouth Rotary Information Booth during the Plymouth Fall Festival Another major fund-raiser is being planned for May 1988.

Evidence leads police to robbery suspect

By Diane Gale staff writer

Canton Police detectives traced evidence to an armed robbery suspect who confessed to four cases two in Canton, one in Livonia and one in Inkster.

Richard Leon Burrell, a 39-yearold Romulus man, was arraigned Friday afternoon in 35th District Court before Judge John MacDonald on two counts of armed robbery and one count of felony firearm in connection with the Canton cases.

Judge MacDonald entered a plea of not guilty and set bond at $400,000 cash. Burrell had not posted the bond and was transferred to Wayne County Jail Friday

A Dec. 21 preliminary examination is set to determine if there's enough evidence to hold a trial.

BURRELL WAS arrested by Canton Police Dec. 9 at his job with Michelin Tires in Romulus.

During police interrogation, he confessed to four armed robberies. said Dave Boljesic, Canton Police information officer.

THANK YOU

The Plymouth Rotary Club would like to thank all of the generous people who contributed to our recent PolioPlus Auction. This event raised over $28,000 - enough to save the lives of over 230,000 children!

To those who contributed items to be auctioned, and to those who purchased items, we extend our heartfelt appreciation.

"Come on, make my holiday."

Twelve Oaks quality. It means quality gifts. Quality service. And the overall feeling that you've given your best.

It's what Twelve Oaks is all about—especially this season. So come on in and wrap up your holidays. Like you, we've got a quality all our own.

Arthritis Today

How often you should see your doctor depends on the severity of your arthritis and the therapy you are If your arthritis fluctuates between extremes of flares and remissions, you should be seen once a month. This allows your doctor to intervene before the arthritis gains momentum. Or, you may have only a few joints involved, but they are stubborn and resist therapy. Then repeat aspiration of these joints, on a monthly basis, may lead to control of the inflammation. Often monthly visits are in order because the medication requires such surveillance to monitor for untoward side effects. If you have rheumatoid arthritis and are receiving gold injections, then weekly appointments are necessary for the five months duration required to receive the full course of

Return appointments also are determined by individual circumstances. For instance, consider an elderly individual, dependent on others for transportation, and concerned about the safety of walking out on an ice morning. At this time of year, this person may manage with a return appointment in three or four months, while any problem other than an emergency is handled by phone

We would like local residents to bring their out-of-town guests to see the museum. Our archives and hbrary are marvelous resources for those who want to do historical research. We have lots of genealogical material about local families on microfilm. We also have on microfilm copies of the Plymouth Mail dating back to the first issue in 1887. Those are only a few of the reasons for visiting the museum more than once."

I ASKED Bruce why the museum is open only nine hours a week Thursday, Saturday and Sunday from 1 00 to 4 00 p.m. Was it a mat-

Surprisingly, the answer was no. It is a matter of not having enough volsalaried director, and some parttime help, the museum is maintained and operated entirely by volunteers. If more members would volunteer to greet visitors to the museum, the place could be open more frequently.

And if we were open more frequently, we could get a Triple A to list us in their magazine. If we had more volunteers to spend a few hours in the museum once a week. we could do wonders.

The Historical Society now has more than 400 members, but Bruce says they would like to have more. I asked him what advantages members have. "They can attend the monthly meetings and social potlucks of our society, receive our newsletter, and visit the museum as paying the usual admittance fee And a member gets 10 percent off the price of any item, including local history books, in our gift shop.

Money to keep the museum going comes from admissions fees, membership dues, donations by members and friends, proceeds from the gift shop, and income from a modest trust fund a few small investments. The society and the museum receive no financial support from any government agency

I came away with a good feeling TO BUILD UP the size of the, about what local volunteers men and women of good taste and obvious talent at creating scenes and displaying mementos of the past have done to make the museum a showplace that at least out-of

But it lacks two things before that day arrives (1) more volunteers to greet visitors, and (2) a more generous response from the community to the society's effort to build up the trust fund, the interest from which keeps the place going.

Lansing acts on county debts

By Wayne Peal staff writer

Final action on a package of bills to end Wayne County's debt and balance its budget is expected this

Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara's plan to end the debt was approved Friday afternoon in the state House of Representatives. Plans received another boost late Friday night when the state Senate approved a four-cents-per-pack cigarette tax.

Local Reps. Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia, Justine Barnes, D-Westland, John Bennett, D-Redford, William Keith, D-Garden City, James Kosteva, D-Canton and Gerald Law, R-Plymouth voted yes on all measures. Among provisions passed by the

• A tax of up to 30 percent on parking at Metro Airport. The tax would be levied at airport lots as well as parking lots up to five miles away from the airport. House sources said. Employee parking would be exempted · Technical bonding authority allowing the county to receive a loan covering its $130 million in debt and provisions to pay off that loan.

Of the cigarette tax increase, one cent would go toward health care programs with the goal of capturing more federal Medicaid aid. Three cents would be divided between Wayne County and Michigan's other 82 counties, possibly for jails and youth camps

The tax would raise an estimated $33 million, sources said. Wayne County would receive $16 million a year, other counties would divide the remaining $17 million.

Wayne County's share would shrink as it retired its debt, sources

Cuts threaten toxic waste cleanup

By Wayne Peal staff writer

Future cleanup on waste disposal sites from Rochester Hills to Canton Township is threatened by proposed cuts in state financing, an environmental advocacy group said last

State allocations for toxic waste cleanup programs could be cut by $11.1 million for 1989, said a spokesman for the Public Interest Research Group in Michigan. Cuts would be made from the Act 307 Fund, which directs state spending for waste site cleanup, the spokesman said

"WE THINK this indicates clearly the need for other financing sources. including a public bond issue," said PIRGIM spokesman Andy Buchsbaum. "With new sites being discovered all the time, this is no time to reduce money for cleanup projects."

The $11.1 million cut would jeopardize work on half the state-financed cleanup projects in the tricounty area, Buchsbaum said.

Work wouldn't begin, or wouldn't be completed, on 28 Oakland County sites, including top priority state cleanup sites in Rochester Hills and Farmington Hills, according to a PIRGIM report.

A SPOKESWOMAN for the state Department of Management and Budget acknowledged discussion of the cut but said no decision had been. made. The spokeswoman, however, said more than $10 million remains from last year's allocation. That money could be budgeted toward 1989 cleanup projects, she added.

it makes good fiscal sense, but we'd still like to see the projects continue," he said. Sites in Oakland County's Rose and Springfield townships are on the list for federal Superfund assistance. No sites in communities served by the Observer & Eccentric newspapers are on the Superfund

ing to PIRGIM. Michigan Department of Natural Resources Group One sites:

 Rouge River, from Greenfield Road to the Detroit River, the site ranks 32nd on the state's 435 site top priority list for this year.

. K & J Landfill, Canton Township, the site ranks 316th on the list. Group Two sites:

· Van Born and Lilly Road site, Canton Township.

· Dial Trucking, Westland. National Airport site, West-

 Cooper School site, Livonia. All sites are among the DNR's 1,035 secondary priority sites for fiscal 1988

Hot gifts for giving this year

Just got off the phone with a friend and mentor. Toula Patsalis, who, with husband Chris and kids. Julie and Harry is the busy owner of what is the metropolitan area's finest chain of kitchen stores, Kitchen Glamor Inc.

These guys are the biggies. The Patsalises have been into kitchen stuff just about as long as I've been in the kitchen, and with that kind of expertise, they know what's going to be hot this holiday season. And, for that matter,

Favorites that top this list year after year include the hotter-than-ever microwave oven, the proverbial Kitchen Aid mixer, and granddaddy of them all. the one and only Cuisinart food processor. These are all big-ticket items with boxes to match the size of the price

IF YOUR gourmet gift-giving can afford it - and your recipient doesn't already have the best - this will do it.

Of course, yours truly would never look a gift of Jenn-Air or Zero King under the hood or door. We're talking even bigger bucks here. When it comes to microwaves, the biggest decision a consumer has to make is size and money

Once you know the size you can get by with and the amount of money you can afford, just make sure the power of the unit is at least 650 watts. Anything less and you increase cooking times dramatically.

THIS YEAR, to anticipate the competition from smaller food processors, Cuisinart (the one and only name in food processors) is introducing its "little pro" processor. It is sure to be a hot seller because of its size. But for a few dollars more, a full-sized, fullpowered Cuisinart can be had when you shop around and watch the sales.

The Kitchen Glamor folks are once again on top of yuppie kitchen requests, especially for the need to go digital. In additional to digital magnetic timers, now you can get digital, instant-read-out pocket thermometers. Add those to the digital coffee makers, microwaves and clock radios, God only knows what the yuppie kitchen would do during a power blackout.

RUMOR HAS IT that once again, small electrical kitchen appliances are hot sellers. The Braun Handblender, Donvier Shakemaker and a motorized spice rack will be shuffling for shelf space next to my Crockpot, waffle iron, toaster, electric potato peeler, electric wok and my Seal-a-Meal. I need a fullsized cabinet just to house everything that plugs in.

This year's "must have" for the kitchen includes "professional quality" Cuisinart cookware (just $89.95 for a small saucepan) and improved magnetic cookware to be used exclusively with induction stove-tops. Neat-O. Just what I need, another set of pots and pans.

For all us pudgies who crave those curlicue french fried potatoes that are the latest rage in "mall foods," you can now buy, of course, a Coily-Q potato cutter that makes the real thing out of real potatoes. At just over $35, I don't think Ore-Ida has anything to worry about.

This year, you can give a mini-pocket pepper mill that will fit discr etely in one's purse or pocket for that muchneeded twist of true pepper. Remember that the next time you're munching a McDonald's salad. Stainless at $12.95 but also available in sterling for $59.95.

ONE OF THE neatest little gadgets to come along since the doughnut maker (remember those?) is the Fast Talkin Message Recorder. This gadget has a magnet on the back of a tape recorder that will stick to the fridge and comes complete with a flashing red light.

No more lost notes or misplaced shopping lists! I find something soothing here about listening to Mom's voice on the machine yelling at you to keep your mitts off the freshly baked cookies.

Speaking of cookies, this year's kitchen will enjoy the Cushionare cookie sheets and baking pans. Yeah! No more burned bottoms. Only someone who has baked three dozen cookies for the kindergarten class and spent half the evening scraping off the burnt, overdone bottoms will appreciate the Cushionaire baking pans and cookie sheets. Where were they when I needed them? Every household with kids and cookie bakers should have

JERRY ZOLYNSKY/staff photographer

One of the favorite flavors of Hanukkah, the Festival of Lights, is the taste of Hanukkah latkes (potato pancakes) accompanied by sour cream and apple sauce. Miriam Meyers, teacher at the Beth Hayeled Nursery of Congregation Shaarey Zedek, helped her class for 3-year-olds to make their own from scratch. The children are Tony Gershenson (left), Rachel Kung, Jonathon Walkon, Andrew Hiller and David Goldman.

By Shirlee Rose Iden staff writer

Think your head's spinning from holiday hype?

Well, picture this. You're a dreidel (top) fated to spin in endless Hanukkah games at the whim of little children; or a Hanukkah gift, all decked out in paper and ribbon, destined to have all your clothes torn off with hardly an admiring glance.

Even the stately eight-branched menorah, so symbolic of the holiday, has to put up with candle drippings oozing over its graceful form.

All such possible distractions are outweighed by the special joys and significance of Hanukkah, which continues to be one of the most beloved holidays for Jewish children and parents alike

HANUKKAH, CALLED the Festival of Lights, commemorates the first struggle in recorded history for religious freedom and personal liberty

Nearly two centuries before the birth of Christ, Jewish people already had a tradition and a faith when in 175 B.C. Antiochur IV became king of Syria, the land to which Israel had become annexed. He tried to force the Jews to worship Greek idols and renounce their ancient faith

But the heroes of Hanukkah, the Maccabees, rallied the Jewish people and by 165 B.C. won a series of military victories, opened the road to Jerusalem and made possible the restoration of the Temple.

Preparing to restore and dedicate the Temple, they found only one cruse of purified oil for the eternal light. It should have burned for just one day, but miraculously, it burned for eight days

Along with its religious essence and the miracle of the lights, the customs and foods of the eight-day holiday flavor it as well.

Celebrated primarily in the home, Hanukkah brings the delicious aroma of cookies cut into the shapes of stars, dreidels, rampant lions and menorahs. Nuts and candy are the prizes when Jewish children play spin the dreidel on

CHILDREN IN Congregation Shaarev Zedek's Beth Hayeled Nursery School in Southfield are waiting for the games, the song and the cookies. They also anticipate the crispy, succulent latkes that are part of the holiday tradi-

Potato latkes, served with sour cream, apple sauce or both, will be a featured food in homes and community celebrations during Hanukkah. In Israel the custom of Eastern Jews is to make jelly donuts fried in oil.

Miriam Meyers of Southfield, a teacher at the Beth Hayeled for more than 30 years, helped her class of 3-year-olds make their own latkes one pre-Hanukkah morning.

"A tomato? No, that's a potato," she told one child, and then showed what goes into her holiday pancakes. We need two to three cups of grated potatoes, a grated onion, three eggs, salt and pepper and three cups of allpurpose flour. The vegetable oil has to be very, very hot.' Meyers mixed all the ingredients together, then helped the children drop the batter from a large spoon into an electric frying pan. "You can use a regular pan, of course," she pointed out

THE POTATO PANCAKES come frozen or in a packaged mix, too. Meyers likes to use some Carmel Kosher Potato Pancake Mix with the batter to give it extra sub-

In the home of her mother, Dora Fink of Southfield, Meyers learned it isn't even necessary to peel the potatoes before grating. "My mother told me just to scrub them very well and grate them with the peel. She says it gives the latkes a better taste.

Another hint from Fink, who has been making potato latkes for more than 75 years, is to leave a layer of flour dusted on top of the latke batter until you're ready to fry the pancakes. "It will keep the batter from turning black," said Meyers.

A MIDGET assembly line of 3-year-olds, including Rachel Kung of Detroit, Andrew Hiller of Franklin, Jonathon Walkon of Farmington Hills and Tony Gershenson of Franklin, went through all the latke preparation steps.

Rachel Zilber and Evan Borin of Southfield and Michael Fleischman and David Goldman of West Bloomfield took their turns with the flour, eggs, salt, pepper and oil, and other children joined in.

Then, they all sat down to taste the latkes they had made together.

One boy said he's waiting for the latkes now as much as for his Hanukkah gifts.

This workaday-looking chap is indeed the fabulous Chef Duglass, metropolitan Detroit's celebrated creator of culinary fantasies limited only by the laws of physics and your pocketbook

We caught Doug Grech, aka Chef Duglass, for a few words on the chef's art. If you think it's odd for a celebrity chef to be speckled with dough, think again. Duglass is the owner of Restaurant Duglass in Southfield, "Chef Patron," he corrects.

'A chef who works the house and owns the house is called the Chef Patron and, believe me, when he owns his own restaurant, he will work in the kitchen," said Duglass.

Gingerbread comes in different forms. To use it in these methods. you will need a recipe that produces a thin, crisp cookie, not a soft, spongy cake.

Below is one such recipe, along with several ways to use it.

COOKIES AS CHRISTMAS ORNA-MENTS

You will need to prepare your cookies if you plan to use them as a hanging ornament.

To get really clear windows, with truly bright colors, you will need a very clear candy (such as Brach's Sparklers, available at almost any supermarket).

Crush this candy into small peasized lumps

After rolling your dough, cut it into the shape of a circle, house, staror gingerbread man. Use large cookie cutters, about 3-5 inches. The top of a mayonnaise jar makes the perfect-sized circle.

Cut a piece of aluminum foil large enough to just cover each cookie, and gently pat it in place on the Place the foil and cookies on a cookie sheet, and bake about 3-4

Remove from the oven, and fill the cut-out centers with the broken candy.

Place the cookies back in the oven for the remaining 3-4 minutes. The heat will melt the candy and cause it to adhere to the cookies, forming the pretty window

Experts calls moralizing a foe in fight against AIDS

The strongest message gleaned from a forum on AIDS conducted in Southfield last week is that nobody can afford to moralize while a growing number of victims of the desease are dving

We're a nation of diversity, and if we worry over what's morally right. we can forget about trying to control the spread of AIDS (Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome)," said Judy Lipshutz, coordinator of the Venereal Disease Action Coalition and convener of the AIDS Related Communication Coalition United Community Services of Metropolitan Detroit

Making laws has severe implications," she said. "AIDS hasn't always been in the political arena, and we're faced with many issues. We can't come up with a public policy by relying on old solutions.

Rocks foiled again in bid to reach final

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Coach Fred Thomann lets an official know what he thought about a no-call situation at the opposite end of the court.

Barb Krug blocks the path of Sheronda Mayo and forces the Cass Tech player to pass the ball in Friday's Class A semifinal

staff writer

The dream of a state championship remains an elusive goal for Plymouth Salem's girls basketball

For a second straight year, the Rocks saw a successful season and lengthy tournament run halted by a semifinal loss Friday

The slow-starting Salem quintet suffered from a case of cold shooting, and a powerful inside game carried Cass Tech to a 63-48 victory at Grand Valley State University.

We really had a tough time getting into a rhythm," Salem coach Fred Thomann said. "At times, I thought we'd get it going, but it was one of those games without much flow to it.

While the Rocks, who finished with a 25-2 record, were unable to maintain some consistency and control momentum, Cass Tech's play around the basket was very much in MARTHEA McCLOUD, a husky 6footer, scored 27 points and hauled down 19 rebounds to lead the Technicians, who improved to 24-1 and were to meet defending Class A champion Saginaw for the title Saturday afternoon.

In the finale to an outstanding prep career, Salem's Dena Head ended up with a game-high 29 points. but found it difficult to get on track early in the game. She missed her first nine shots and was 9-of-30 for

'In four years, I don't think she's ever started that slowly," Thomann said. "Part of the game she was great, but it was hard for us early."

The Technicians knew they wouldn't be able to shut down Head, who still managed to exceed her scoring average, but simply wanted to contain her, according to coach Charles Frank.

We felt if we could take off 10 of her points, we'd have a chance to win," he said.

"OUR DEFENSIVE plan was, every time she took a jump shot, to get a hand in her face and challenge

Cass started a front line that included 6-1 Sheronda Mayo and 6-2 Rena Kindred, and the Technicians immediately began packing it inside, getting the ball to McCloud, Mayo and 5-11 LaTonya Tate. Tate added 12 points, Kindred, who was more of a perimeter threat, 10 and Mayo sev-

"There's no question. Their inside game is the best in high school basketball in the state of Michigan," Thomann said. "They have very powerful offensive players around the block.

While the Rocks were 3-of-15 from the floor in the first quarter, Cass scored seven straight points for a 9-2 lead. With that the pattern of Salem fighting to catch up or get over the hump was set.

Stacy Sovine gave the Rocks the lift they desperately needed late in the first quarter, however.

Dena Head tries to rein in a loose ball amid dured a frustrating first half but scored 21 points in the second and finished with 29.

LEFT OPEN at the top of the circle, she sank a pair of 20-foot-plus shots to get Salem within three points. She added four free throws early in the second quarter, and her eight points were very timely.

I thought she played her finest basketball game as a high school player," Thomann said.

They gave her the open shot, and she knocked them down. She made her free throws and did an outstanding (defensive) job on Tate (holding the Cass player to six points below her average).'

Head scored her first points at 6:34 in the second quarter, and the Rocks came on to take leads of 16-15 on a pair of Head free throws and 22-21 when she scored off the fast break with 0:39 remaining.

But, as was the case all night, Cass always had an answer. After the Technicians missed a shot and three ensuing rebound chances, Kindred's putback gave Cass a 23-22 halftime

"WE WERE one point down at the half," Thomann said. "I thought that as we went into the fourth quarter we were right there.

'Any time you play a game that has so much riding on it that's a part of it you have to work through. Overall. I thought (the Rocks) hung in there pretty well."

Salem's shooting improved in the third quarter, and Head scored 12 points to keep the Rocks within two, 37-35. Keri McBride's shot from the corner tied the score for the fourth time in the period, 37-37

But Cass began to break away when it scored the last five points on Lynne McIntosh's three-point play and McCloud's steal/layup for a 45-39 margin entering the final quarter.

Six points by Head, including a coast-to-coast play, kept the Rocks within four, 49-45, but Salem was still fighting an uphill battle with only 31/2 minutes to play.

McCLOUD MADE back-to-back baskets to put Cass on top by eight, 53-45, and trigger a decisive runs of was a positive thing for us, and even McCloud would get the ball in the post and make a sweeping pivot move, resulting in a turnaround jumper or layup. Salem center Barb Krug frustrated her several times. but Tech's combination of inside players was too much to overcome.

> 'McCloud had an awesome game," Thomann said. "She did things tonight I hadn't seen her do

"We stopped her several times, but she stepped right through and made the bucket.

With the Rocks shooting from three-point distance in an attempt to make up the difference quickly, the Technicians broke the game open and went to the free-throw line to turn a close contest into a 15-point difference.

Cass shot an astonishing 71 percent in the second half, making 15 of 21 field goals as its inside power game became the dominant factor. The Technicians shot 53 percent for the game compared to Salem's 30 percent on 16-of-53 shooting.

Farewell to familiar faces

Certainly senior Dena Head will go on to play college ball, undoubtedly at a major university. Some of her teammates might extend their playing days also.

But Friday night the thoughts were of the game just played and the collective mood one of disappoint-

When a team is as successful as the Rocks have been, a setback at such a late stage in the tournament creates an emotional vacuum that lingers for a while afterward.

The occasion, however, also seemed a time to reflect on the end of several careers that have had a huge impact on Salem girls basketball and the sport as a whole in Ob-

AFTER FOUR years on the varsity. Head has played her last game, sad to say, in a Rocks uniform. Teammates Keri McBride and Stacy Sovine, veterans of three varsity seasons, also concluded their careers, as did fellow seniors Shelly Bohlen, Barb Krug, Kelly Craggs and Amy Coker.

"The success of this team the last 3-4 years has been tremendous," coach Fred Thomann said following Salem's 63-48 loss to Detroit Cass Tech in the team's second straight semifinal appearance.

"It's very difficult to get to this game, and we've done a great job

Head, McBride and Sovine have been mainstays in a program that is rated at the top statewide every year. But a new era begins next fall when the Rocks will feature a differ-

"They've had some phenomenal success the last four years," said Thomann, adding that Head has played on teams that won nearly 90 games. "That's a ton of success.

'They've contributed so much to our program with their effort, dedication and skill development. They've been tremendous role models for our program."

AFTER WORKING so closely with a particular group of athletes for so long, a parting of the ways can be difficult, though necessary. It's a melancholic thought, but there is also a need to be realistic.

"I will miss them," Thomann said, "but it's time to move on and get to the next opportunity waiting for

In the maturation process, they've used high school basketball as a vehicle to facilitate their athletic and educational development, Thomann said. He would hope all of them could continue playing the sport, but athletics will nonetheless continue to have an impact, he added. 'If they don't want to play basketball, they can take the things they learned from competition and apply them to life," Thomann said. "The real important thing is the female is now getting the opportunity of competition on the athletic field and can apply that to a quality life just as the male always has."

Stacy Sovine receives the traditional pre-game encouragement from teammates when she is introduced as a member of the Salem starting five. Sovine was one of several longtime varsity players who made her final appearance.

Rocks sink in opener

Plymouth Salem had a near miss Thursday in its first boys swimming dual meet.

The Rocks, expected to have a strong team this year, suffered a one-point loss to an always-tough Dearborn team, 42-41, in the winner's pool John Irvine and Ron Orris won individual events and helped Salem take first place in the 400-yard freestyle

Irvine won the 200 free in 1:58.2 and Orris the 100 free in 48.8. Jeff Musson and Mike Hill were the relay teammates, and the foursome posted a 3:28.5 time in

Salem's Fred Seidelman captured the butterfly in 59.3, and Eric Bunch had a winning time of 5:17.5 in the Dearborn is 1-0, the Rocks 0-1.

MILAN 112, CANTON 60: Plymouth Canton had some good individual performances, but the Chiefs were overpowered by Milan, a Class B team like Dearborn and another perennial power.

The Big Reds were third in the state last year and are considered to be a strong contender for the Class B crown again this season.

We swam well," Canton coach Hooker Wellman said. They just swam much better.'

Canton's medley relay team of Scott Swartzwelter, Jeff Homan, Mike Lustig and Tom Hone posted a good.

Weilman also was pleased by the two-event performances turned in by Bryce Anderson, in the individual medley and butterfly, and Swartzwelter, in the 50 free early-season time of 1:50.2, Wellman said.

Nike Helmstadter and Homan did the same in the 200 free (1:56.5) and 100 breaststroke (1:08.82). Both finished third as Milan went one-two in most events.

The movie revolves around the Henderson family, ditzy mom, befuddled dad, sarcastic teenage daughter and nerdy younger son.

Dad, George Henderson (John Lithgow), works in his father's gun shop and hunts for pleasure. Judging from the number of animals mounted on his walls, George tries for membership in the same Great White Hunter League as Ernest Hemingway and Teddy Roosevelt Coming home from a hunting vacation with the family, George bags his biggest beast. Big Foot Of course, he ties it to the top of the station wagon and hauls it home.

Next thing you know, the Hendersons awake in the night to find the huge, smelly creature rummaging through the kitchen This isn't just a case of the midnight munchies. Harry topples the refrigerator, punches holes in the walls and inflicts major structural damage to the house.

After that, he devotes the remainder of the night to burying George's hunting trophies and Grandma's ratty old mink stole.

and feisty old lady of high energy who turns querulous one moment and vague the next, as she intermittently loses her hold on present reality but never parts with her sense of

The strength of the production lies in expert casting by director Rebecca Smith and in attention to the vibrant details that give characters the roundness of real people rather than stereotypes fleshing out a topical idea. Elizabeth Diggs' play never lets ideas take over from the interFrye clan when they get together at the old family cottage and deal with the untidy business of sorting out their complex lives.

Start by exploring the suite hotels now found in most cities across the country. Your accommodations will not be a hotel room but a two-room suite that separates bedroom from lounge, and there are plenty of good spaces for both meetings and social gatherings The idea of suite hotels began several years ago when a man called Robert Wooley built an apartment building in Phoenix, Ariz., but couldn't fill it. He converted it into an apartment hotel in 1969, gathered a band of loyal followers and eventually added some extras: parties every night, fresh fruit and doughnuts every morning. It was such a popular idea that he created Granada Hotels, which became Granada Royale. Holiday Inns

By Larry O'Connor

Hear Jim sing. Watch Mark play guitar Look at Matt drum

See Dick Run Geez, did someone tell Sally, Jane and Spot about this band? Really, folks, a first grader wouldn't have to consult his Weekly Reader to know See Dick Run is a tight and well-defined rock in roll act.

All it takes is a few minutes watching See Dick Run perform or listening to its demo tape to notice that. Simple melodies coupled with a refreshing on-stage presence makes this four-man band hum-

And it starts right with the frontman, Jim Edwards, who likes to have a little fun when performing Between numbers during a set recently at the 3rd Avenue Cafe in Royal Oak, Edwards broke into a lounge lizard's version of "I Can't Get No. Satisfaction.

BILL MURRAY, would,ve. been proud

But taking a shine to these-guys really isn't difficult, especially the animated Edwards, who joined See Dick Run just a few months ago.

See Dick Run, which was a threeman outfit before, wanted to add a lead singer to lessen the burden vocally on the group's bass player and lead guitarist. Checking the classified ads in the MetroTimes, they found their man.

'His ad really caught my attention," said Mark Campbell, the band's lead guitar player. "It said, Singer available. No speed punks. No headbangers and No art (followers)

You probably won't be into what

But being the open-minded sort of fellow he is, Edwards decided to try out with the band anyway. He was impressed with See Dick Run from the opening note in the first day of rehearsal. They were one of the tightest bands I had ever heard; he

What brings about such continuity is the core of See Dick Run. The three original members. Matt Bucher, Charlie Francuch and Campbell, have known one another since they were junior high school classmates in Royal Oak

See Dick Run plans to head back into the studio soon to record some new material. Members say they're still defining their sound.

Edwards' arrival has meant bass player Francuch and Campbell have been able to concentrate more on their musical end of things instead of fretting about vocals.

As a result, See Dick Run is more at ease on stage. Certainly enhancing that feeling is Edwards.

DOOR TO DOOR — The Cars

To go on a musical ride with The Cars is like driving through San Francisco with no brakes. It's a fun. roller-coaster ride.

'Door to Door," the latest from the Beantown boys on Elektra, is no different in that regard.

The Cars have perfected the art of coming up with catchy lyrics that are hard to shake blended with a unique keyboard pop sound to match. "Door to Door" features that, plus a diversity which doesn't allow it to slip into the doldrums of being one long, drawn-out pop rock album.

Some numbers are soft, some are hard. The title track from the album, "Door to Door," is a very fast, guitar thrash number. This almost sounds like an underground speed punk number. Adding to the sonic feel is the keyboard work of Greg Hawkes.

'Double Trouble" is a rather hard rocker as well. The guitar work on the song is excellent and harks back to the group's debut album in 1978,

Yet in the midst of the roughedged numbers, Ric Ocasek can still thing.

croon a love song with the best of them as "Wound Up on You" would attest. This very slow number has a haunting feel to it and is similar to "All Mixed Up," a previous hit by The Cars. Ditto for "Fine Line," which is a very atmospheric song. "You Are the Girl," a song off the album that has received the most air play thus far, is highlighted by Hawkes' carnival-style keyboard work and Ocasek's distinctive vocals. But it's really not the strongest track on "Door to Door.

One can't but wonder, though, if The Cars are stuck on a one-way street. It's hard to believe it's almost been 10 years since the release of their debut album

And they sound about the same as they did in 1978. The Cars, who were a refreshing surprise then, really haven't broken any new ground since.

Yet, as fans of the band would readily agree, why mess with a good

GET RHYTHM - Ry Cooder

There's a record store owner who doesn't know who Ry Cooder is That's what he said when a customer asked for Ry's new album Well for starters. Ry Cooder played slide guitar on some classic Rolling Stones albums, among many session credits. He's created soundtracks for several movies, including "Crossroads," Streets of Fire, and Blue City, and played elegant, soulful slide gui-tar on the Paris, Texas' sound-

Nobody can touch Cooder when it comes to slipping a glass tube around the little finger of the fretting hand and sliding it up guitar

On a succession of solo albums since the early 70s on Warner Brothers, Cooder has branched out from country blues, where slide guitar originated, to Hawaiian and Tex-Mex music, even some jazz and rhythm and blues. Not that there's any great virtue in traipsing through all that musical territory. But it's Cooder's approach. that's special. His new album "Get Rhythm shows this.

The title track is a classic Johnny Cash rockabilly song from the '50s.

Cooder gives it a gospel feel, with low answering harmonies, and adds a big drum sound

What results is a hybrid, the kind Cooder loves to create. And that signature slide guitar wails in the mid range to flavor the song.

On the instrumental Low-Commotion," Cooder's acoustic and electric slide guitars play with a catchy riff, backed again by the big drum sound that marks the album.

Long-time Cooder fans will dig 13 Question Method, backed by solo slide guitar Singing isn't Cooder's strength, but his voice is at its playful best on this country-blues version of a Chuck Berry song

Low points are "All Shook Up and "Let's Have a Ball." There's just no spark here, as Cooder fails to make the songs his own

"Get Rhythm" is too inconsistent to be called a great Ry Cooder album. Still, it shows a premier guitarist playing with intensity.

went national with the idea and called it Embassy Suites. Guest Quarters got into the act, and then and now every-Residence Inns

If you want to see how the concept works, tour the Embassy Suites Hotel that opened last spring in Southfield or the Guest Quarters Hotel that opened last summer in Troy The idea is similar in both, and is recreated with minor variations across the country.

When you enter your accommodations from the hallway (which in both hotels overlooks an atrium) you enter a regular living room. There are couches and chairs for casual lounging or meetings, a table and chairs to spread papers on and a refrigerator wet bar if you want to serve drinks. There isn't a bed in sight, unless you want to pull out the couch, which usually pulls out into a

Open a closed door and you are in a second room, which looks like most hotel bedrooms. The best accommodations have a bathroom in both rooms, or, if there is only one, it is in the lounge, which means that nobody ever goes through your bedroom. What this means, of course, is that if you want to hold a meeting in your room, you are definitely not sitting on the edge of any bed!

Many suite hotels offer dishes, coffee pots, etc. to guests who ask for them, but another popular feature is free breakfast and free cocktail hour in that busy atrium below. The setting and luxury level of breakfast may vary but we are not talking about coffee and a stale croissant, breakfast means fruit, juice, eggs. bacon, pancakes, the works.

Also included in the price of your room are cocktails in the hotel bar during a particular time period, say five to seven in the evening. Come back after a hectic day and gather there for social hour. You don't have to worry about who pays the bill. No-

There are minor variations on this cocktail hour. It is technically illegalto give away free drinks in Michigan, so in Michigan suite hotels you style. They are basically small apartments where you can cook, but the bed may or may not be separated from the seating area. These are designed for longer stays.

Suite hotels are the fastest grow ing segment of the hotel industry. That's the good news. The bad news is that suite hotels fit a moderate but not a low budget. Embassy Suites say that their rates are always comparable to the single room rate at a local chain hotel of comparable quality, but you are still edging toward $100 a night rack rate, much less of course at corporate rates.

Flirting is not always a laughing matter, although you couldn't prove that by Steve Zavori of Farmington Hills, Gail Storm of Redford Township, Scott Bradley of Farmington Hills and Jeanne Murdock, Farmington Hills.

A look, a smile, eye contact: It's how you play the game

By Carolyn DeMarco staff writer

The subject here is flirting, successful flirting. Not picking up; not "scoring," not long-term commitments. Flirting. Maybe a definition is in order. Webster says flirting is to make love without serious intention . . . to trifle or toy. American Heritage adds to amuse one's self with playful amorousness.

That obviously was written in the good old days before social diseases. To fit today's interpretation of flirting, say Southfield psychologists Ron Fenton and Gary Bernstein. bend those definitions a little to mean superficial, initial social contacts. The object here is to get someone to take enough notice that he or she will want to talk to you. And if something else develops from that flirtation, well, hey, nice going.

"Everybody flirts," said Fenton. "Children flirt. Little old ladies flirt.'

"It's very basic behavior," Bernstein added. "It's the way we initially connect in nonverbal fashion. It spans age groups." The psychologists, who share family counseling offices on Telegraph, recently talked about flirting at the Jewish Community Center in West Bloomfield. "We expected 70 people. We got over 200," Fenton said.

Ages ranged from 20 to 70, with two-thirds of those women. Many of those in attendance were young singles. Others were those who married early and are now divorced. "They feel awkward, rejected, out of practice," Fenton said. "They're terrified to get out there and meet people.'

SUCCESSFUL flirting, defined by Bernstein as "developing social contacts," takes place in three phases: attention, recognition and speech.

Going into it, know who you are and who you relate to in terms of age and socio-economic levels, Bernstein advised. "I wouldn't direct everyone to the Midtown Cafe," he

But while flirting can be practiced anywhere, much of the action is in the singles bars, the psychologists said. "It's certainly more appropriate in some places than others," Fenton said.

Many people are uncomfortable entering singles bars alone. Go with a single friend with similar goals, or a married one who is sympathetic to the cause, they suggested.

Once you've selected the hot spot and ascertained the prime time for action, jump right into phase one, they advised. Get the point across immediately - you're looking. Move about the room, scan, smile. Think pos-

Ready for phase two? Focus in on the quarry. A warm smile, a little eye contact. Not too bold, not too aggressive, not too exaggerated. Any response? Yes? Now it's time for the hard part. You've got to talk to him/her.

You can make it or break it here, Fenton said. The first two phases went quickly. This one requires the slow and steady approach. "Every social behavior either brings people! closer or pushes them away."

FORGET THE outlandish, the gimmicky and the trite phrase, Fenton advised. "Start with a simple, 'Hi, my name is their name and use it. People like to hear their names. It disarms them, but not uncom-

"Let them know you're friendly, safe. Smile. Offer a compliment if it's sincere. You're not out to impress them with your brilliance, or dominate.

Now what? Some tips from the experts and a little interpretation:

• Demonstrate self-confidence. A Peewee Herman clone is likely to get little more than a stony stare.

· Pay attention to dress and body language. If she turns her back on you while you're in mid-sentence, you may want to-

• Tread slowly. Don't penetrate the stranger barrier too quickly. Avoid marriage or other proposals in the first 30 min-

· Use humor and enthusiasm to add fun to the conversation. But magic tricks are probably out.

· Alcohol reduces anxiety and inhibitions. But remember, the only difference between a dog and a fox is four drinks. · Don't criticize or complain. Avoid arauing. Even if she insists that MSU is going to the Rose Bowl on a fluke. THE TRICK here, Bernstein and Fenton agree, is to turn the spotlight on the other person. Make them feel important. Explore topics that interest them. Show respect for their opinions. Be sympathetic to their feelings. Give sincere appreciation and admira-

Above all, said Fenton, "Listen! We get tripped up when we fail to listen. It's demeaning to the other person. This is not a time to win points. You're there to maintain a reasonable flow of conversation.

How can you tell if you're making progress? "You can tell by the quantity and quality of speech," Bernstein said. "Also the hand gestures. And if her eyes are wandering, you're probably not doing well."

"Rejection is as much a part of the process as is acceptance," Fenton added, "but you don't focus on failure. You have to experiment. Somebody will accept you. Rejection can be misinterpreted. It doesn't mean you're inadequate. It means the other person isn't ready to connect."

Often it's a self-fulfilling prophecy, Bernstein said. "You hear or pick up what you expect to hear. There's a missing link between knowing what you want and getting it. Sometimes it gets out of sync because of fears and insecurities.

"A lot of people think of meeting others in the same light as a first date - painful. The best way to approach it is to look on it as fun, harmless, not as an exact or tedious skill. Get out of the same-old-place routine. Look for another place within your comfort zone. You can't meet anyone staying home. Maximize your time and ability."

Phases One and Two are easy, but Paul Zachos is moving in for the critical test: talking.

Advice from psychologists on flirt- ize potential. ing - making initial social contacts is all well and good, but to get some tips from those on the firing line, we attended happy hour at Max and Erma's in Farmington Hills.

What's a good approach? Some re-

"If I could show you a way to reduce your taxes, would you be interested?" That was suggested by Bill Hartsock, a Farmington Hills stock-

"Strip him. Give him a shower and send him to my tent," said Gail. "Make it Smith or Storm. Tell them I'm from Redford."

Steve Zavori suggested the "beg and grovel approach," although he met his girlfriend when a friend of hers intervened and said the girlfriend would like to dance with him. Moira Czechowksi of Pontiac sends over a drink to a likely prospect and waits until they come to thank her. She hands out her travel business card and finds travel talk to be a good opener. Sometimes she sits near the men's restroom to maxim-

Joining a church choir is the best way, Peter Noonan of Birmingham suggested. "People don't assume you're trying to meet women like they do here.'

Paul Zacho of Farmington Hills understood the whole process. "Make it Friday night after work. Establish eye contact. No touching. Then smile. If it's a stiff smile in return, it means 'I'm sorry I looked.' If it shows teeth, you're in like Flynn." Next move for Zacho is phase three. "I say, 'What's life?' Then I sit and wait for an answer. Sometimes I try an off-the-wall approach. I don't like to be normal.

John Godwin suggests waiting for Desperation Hour, after 1 a.m. "The fives instantly become 10s."

JENNIFER MINOR of Cincinnati comes back to West Bloomfield each weekend and goes out with Debra Gordon and Karol Dodt of Farmington Hills. They suggested throwing oyster crackers, buying drinks and butting into conversations. "Find a common bond," Minor suggested, like their MSU button, and start talk

Harold Weintraub of Long Island, N.Y., fired off three lines to the trio. Among them. "Hi, I'm new in town Are you all models? . to see some pictures of my kids?"

"I'm swamped, but don't think I'm conceited," said Tom DiStefano of Novi. "It's my line. It never fails. I say, 'How about these '80s. Kind of rough, eh?"

His second choice, "'Just stop that.' It cuts through everything.' She wouldn't think of using it, but Louise of Clawson likes the line of a friend: "You look like my second husband." It evokes the response, "Oh, you've been married twice?" To which the friend responds, "No. just once."

For a foolproof opener, we suggest, "Hi, my name is Pete. I'm from Observer & Eccentric Newspaper. Would you like to tell me about

HERE ARE design centers in major cities around the country. The Galleria in San Francisco is one that I get to frequently as I have children who live there

The building itself is unusual. It is four stories high with a gallery on each floor that overlooks the main lobby.

There is food service, both buffet and table, on the various floors, and the food is delicious. There are music and cocktails in the main lobby

I have found that the design centers across the county reflect the environment of that area, and each has its own flavor. In California, there is a distinct difference between the San Francisco and the Los Ange-

We see a resurgence of country French here. As I have mentioned in a previous column. I have always enjoyed that period, and today it goes very well with contemporary living, what is called a soft contemporary look

I saw country French in San Francisco five years ago. It has taken us all of this time to catch up to them.

In the Troy Design Center, we have a showroom that makes me think of San Francisco. Gardner Powers is the showroom. They have one-of-a-kind accessories and antiques

Q. My desk is a mess, but every time I start to organize it I find so many action items that I end up making telephone calls and writing letters instead of finishing the

A. You have touched on one of the more difficult aspects of staying organized. It may be of some consolation to know that millions of others are just like you.

Whether you are cleaning out your desk, the garage or cleaning house, the same three simple rules apply

. BE PREPARED. Like the Boy Scouts, bring to your work site everything you'll need to avoid needless supply "trips." For your desk, you may need an oversized wastebasket, extra files and perhaps some storage boxes or containers to move items

 DO ONLY WHAT YOU SET OUT TO DO. (This is obviously where your breakdown occurs.) If you intend to organize your desk, then organize your desk - nothing else. Establish a To Do list and Action files according to priority. You may want to color code these actions files using red, for instance, for "hot" must-do items, blue for "shoulds" and green for "coulds." As you find things to do, list and/or file them accordingly.

Resist the temptation to call or write others until the job at hand is complete. Realize your To Dos haven't been done up to now and waiting just a few minutes longer won't make a significant difference.

• DON'T LEAVE UNTIL YOU ARE DONE. Of course, you will find items that must be delivered somewhere else, but resist the temptation to take them there now. Instead, place them in a file, stack or box even in the doorway of the room - and collect everything there to be delivered elsewhere. Pretend there are bars on your door and only when your desk is completely organized will the gate open. Then make all your deliveries at once.

Choose an organizing time when you will have the fewest interruptions. If you must attend to the needs of others, do so as quickly as possible and then resume focusing on the clean-out immediately.

If the job is momentous, then break it down into units. Do one or two stacks or drawers at a specific time each day until the whole task is complete. Or set aside 15, 30 minutes or an hour each day until you

Allowing distractions is a sure way to fail. As with anything else, organizing your activities around your goals and focusing on them without allowing diversions is the only way to succeed.

NE OF the most interesting design challenges in the new Weight Watchers headquarters building. 28555 Orchard Lake, Farmington Hills, was the lower level.

That's not counting the overall image, which an interior architectural design firm such as Pazzi Inc., working with corporate and professional clients, is always concerned with

The Birmingham firm, headed by Dennis Pazzi worked with Florine Mark, Weight Watchers founder and president, and her staff to turn the 30,000 square feet of office and meeting space into an attractive blend of formal and informal areas, from the business offices to meeting rooms for clients.

Pazzi said, "Florine defined very succinctly what she wanted. It had to be oriented to people.

Pazzi and his entire staff (it's always a team effort) were in on the project from the beginning, doing the space planning and the designs for the interior, setting up budgets and working with the contractor.

One of the "givens" the designers had to contend with with was that there were no windows on the lower level

Michael A. Ostrowski, director of design for Pazzi Inc. said, "Most of the clerical work and offices are on the lower level, so it had to be productive. And they wanted it to have natural light. So we created the illusion of natural light."

A hall on the lower level runs more than 150 feet. Serious, innovative planning turned what might have been a variation on the Detroit to Windsor tunnel into a corridor that feels like a streetscape.

There are skylights with softly diffused light behind them in the layered ceiling to give visual delineation. The walls, covered in gray Zolitone, have a textural quality. They vary from 51/2 to 8 feet in width and follow a pleasantly unpredictable, elongated, shallow, serpentine line. There are insets of glass brick, wider at the top to lead the eye upward.

Sconces in the hall and throughout from the new en the building provide more diffused refined, welcoming and upbeat.

light. Panels of clear glass near the hallway ceiling let light into the offices almost as windows would on an upper level.

An interior stairway, strongly recommended by Pazzi Inc., is not only extremely functional, but provides a vertical corridor of light and involvement between the levels. Glass brick sections in the walls and open railings contribute to the feeling of spaciousness. "Again," said Ostrowski, "we wanted to create the illusion of exterior space with light coming from beyond.

There are no sharp edges or jarring colors obvious anywhere in the building, it is all gentle curves and rounded edges, shades of gray mauve, burgundy, off-white with striking accents.

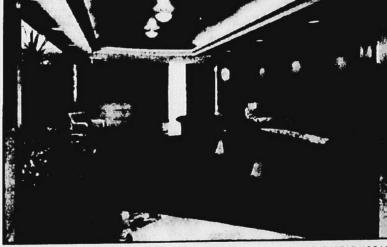

Along the way in many of the halls and offices, the visitor will come upon a, colorful work of art, often by a local artist such as Marilyn Spencer, Bertha Cohen or Barbara Keidan. A large landscape by Richard Kozlow of Birmingham dominates the entry area and a painting from his playful "Zaftig Lady" series hangs in one of the offices.

Mark's large, first floor office, Pazzi said, "Looks feminine, looks executive." It has light marble fireplace in one corner and the floor is part gray carpeting and part marble. The furnishings are in shades of gray, pink, off-white and mauve. Behind her desk is a striking white wall relief by Frank Gallo. Mark's appreciation of art, sculpture and sculptural form is clearly in evidence here and throughout the building This area, too, has the layered ceil-
