EXTRA MILER: The Plymouth-Canton Community Schools presented the Extra Miler award to Doris Ritchie, retired secretary from East Middle School. Ritchie is a "friend and helper to staff and students," said board of education trustee Marilyn D. Schwinn at a recent board meeting. She explained how Ritchie had started in the district 13 years ago as a library aide and later moved to the position of secretary in the principal's office. Ritchie is a "dedicated, conscientious, well-organized" person who has a "pleasant personality," Schwinn said.

RVs WANTED: George Graff is coming into town this week to write an article on the Plymouth Ice Sculpture Spectacular for the Family Motor Coaching Magazine. As part of the article, the author would like the use of an RV motor coach to pose in front of, behind or next to (but not above or beneath) an ice sculpture. Anyone interested in volunteering an RV for a photographic session can contact Scott Lorenz at 453-1620.

FUND MEETING: The annual meeting of the Plymouth Community Fund/United Way will begin at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 19, in commission chambers of Plymouth City Hall, Church at

During the business meeting, four board members and four officers will be elected and reports will be presented by the president, secretary and treasurer. It will be open to the public. Refreshments will be served.

VACANCY: The Plymouth District Library Board is searching for a resident of the city or township of Plymouth to fill out the term of library trustee Jack Bologna who resigned from the board Dec. 30.

The person appointed to the vacancy will serve until November 1988 when the seat will be up for election. The district library board is a ninemember elected body responsible for operating the Dunning-Hough Library in Plymouth under a 1.17 mill tax levy.

Letters of application may be sent to the board at Dunning-Hough Library, 223 S. Main, Plymouth 48170. Applications will be accepted until Thursday, Jan. 28.

Before the masses descended on Plymouth to ogle the ongoing Ice Sculpture Spectacular, Jim Ryder spent days in the bone-chilling cold of Kellogg Park, overseeing the unloading of ice, assisting the chainsaw sculptors, and running his Detroit plant by phone.

Ryder is owner of Midwest Ice, prime sponsor of this year's ice festival, which runs through Jan. 17.

Midwest supplied $10,000 in donated ice and services, as well as the ice renderings of Walt Disney characters, birds and other figures that line Ann Arbor Trail, Main Street, Forrest and Penniman.

IT'S A WELCOME break from Ryder.

Ryder's daily routine, which entails supplying bagged ice for 1,500 supermarkets, the Big Three auto companies, and most of metropolitan Detroit's hotels and restaurants.

'This is a big kick for me," said Ryder, who helped the Mayflower Hotel's Scott Lorenz plan the first Ice Sculpture Spectacular in 1982.

"Ice carving basically was an art that up to 10 years ago was dying. Ice carvers weren't passing it on to the younger people. The Ice Sculpture Spectacular helped promote it through community colleges," said

"Now it's a part of their culinary arts program. Students coming out of school are going to work for the Westin, Plymouth Hilton and other major hotels. "Ice carvings, if done properly, are a beautiful piece of art created by a person who's able to share a thought in their mind," added Ryder.

"It's something that can't be duplicated, and depending on the temperature, will sit there for many, many people to enjoy."

RYDER'S FAMILY - wife Leslie, and sons Jamie, 15, and Matt, 7 - has enjoyed this sidelight of his business, he said.

"Jamie has worked for me since he was 4, stacking ice and loading

Skyrocketing liability insurance costs have permanently grounded the annual Mayflower Hotel Hot Air Balloon Festival.

"It's history," said balloon festival co-chairman Scott Lorenz, general manager of the Mayflower Hotels, and who worked eight years to develop the festival.

The Mayflower Balloon Festival sponsors took out a separate policy to protect ourselves," he said, "but the costs have gone effectively through the roof.'

The growing number of development projects in Canton and Plymouth townships have left fewer and fewer landing spots for the balloons.

WHEN LIABILITY for landing increased, insurance rates followed

"The insurance last year was several thousands of dollars, and it went up twice to three times that this year. There are cases where passengers are suing event organizers because they called the race, and there's no landing sites down wind," Lorenz said.

The festival served as a promotion for the family-owned Plymouth hotel, as well as a summertime tourist attraction for Canton, Plymouth and Plymouth Township.

For the past couple of years, the launchings have been at the Centennial Educational Park, Joy and Canton Center roads in Canton. Previously it was held in Plymouth Town-

Proceeds from parking went to the schools' athletic booster and the music booster clubs.

Supervisor James Poole said Canton will miss the event.

"I'm very disappointed," Poole said. "It was a tremendous PR factor for Canton Township. It attracted a lot of people out here. I think it's a terrible shame."

But Lorenz isn't ready to slam the door on balloon events.

"I'm disappointed but the bright spot is that we're going to do a gas balloon race," Lorenz said. "But it's up in the air where the gas balloons will launch."

GAS BALLOONS are easier to land than are hot air balloons and congestion doesn't pose as big a problem.

Some cable subscribers were outraged by a rate increase that was as high as 26 percent.

George W. Lucas, a Plymouth subscriber, said he'd consider dropping his service as "a matter of principle. I'm fed up with it."

Subscribers with basic, six pay services and remote in all three communities saw a 2-percent increase, from $72.45 to $73.95.

Plymouth Township rates are lower than Plymouth and Canton rates because Omnicom was denied a rate increase in that community three years ago. The other communities granted the rate increase, said Fred-

City commission plans session to review open meetings policy

Plymouth city commissioners will among city documents, Lowe said. huddle Tuesday to discuss rules concerning public comment and participation in open meetings of the commission and other city boards.

Length of public comment rarely is at issue during city commission meetings. Stated time limits haven't Graper said.

"The purpose is to make sure everyone can speak," Lowe said.

U.S. warns: lead in water and M.B. Dillon staff writers

The federal Environmental Protection Agency will require officials in Plymouth, Canton Township and Plymouth Township to notify all residents that there may be dangerous levels of lead in their drinking wa-

Local and state officials caution that the problem is restricted to water pipes and the connecting lines between houses and the outside water mains. The potential lead contamination is usually easy and inexpensive to correct, the officials added.

Though nearly all houses have copper plumbing, lead often leaches into the water from the lead-based solder used to connect pipes.

IN MOST instances, the danger can be averted simply by running the cold-water tap for a minute or two in the morning to flush out lead deposits that may have built up overnight.

Experts also warn that warm or hot water carries higher levels of lead than cold and should never be used for cooking purposes or to make tea or coffee

The contribution of lead from drinking water is more substantial than they originally thought," said Jim Cleland, deputy chief of the water supply division of the State Department of Health.

'It used to be that everyone thought lead (levels in humans) was from gas furnes or things like kids eating paint, but now we realize a lot of it comes from drinking water.

He said officials are working on language for the notices and that such notices likely will be sent to residents throughout the state by early summer.

EVERY COMMUNITY has to advise its customers that there's probably a potential for their drinking water to contain unacceptable levels of lead, said Jake Dingeldey, Canton Township DPW superintend-

"The EPA probably is getting a lot of complaints about older systems where there are lead joints in the actual water systems. Where we use rubber or O-rings to seal pipes, some of the older systems use lead.

'We don't know exactly what their directive will be, but we will com-

Canton Township has sent employees to seminars on lead in drinking water and has its water tested by the city of Detroit every month, added Dingeldey.

The notices are the result of recent amendments to the federal Safe Drinking Water Act of 1986.

The state construction code has been changed to ban lead solder in new homes. Pipes and joints will not have to be replaced in existing homes, but repairs when needed should be made with tin solder.

LEAD POISONING can result in colic, anemia, constipation, cramps and paralysis by attacking the central and peripheral nervous systems Federal standards require lead levels in water to be lower than 50 parts per billion and may be lowered to 20 parts per billion, said Cleland.

He said lead is also present in flux, material used to evenly distribute solder around pipe joints.

Lead levels can rise in water over night, he said. He recommended running a tap for a minute to flush it in the morning. People coming home from vacations should be particularly careful to let water flush through the taps for several minutes.

The problem is worse in new houses. In older houses, what can leach may already have. And a process known as tuberculation builds up deposits on the inside of pipes, which seals the lead in and prevents leach-

'If the house is less than five years old, you have a problem," said

Plastic pipes don't leach because they use oil-based sealants.

OFFICIALS STRESSED that they don't consider current lead levels in water to be cause for alarm.

Michigan's water isn't very corrosive, according to Cleland, which reduces the risk. State and local officials weren't sure what their responsibilities would be regarding the testing of water in individual homes. Likely, homeowners will have to pay to test their own water for lead if they aren't satisfied with merely flushing

AIDS doesn't have a subtle touch. Those who get it die ugly, painful deaths. To fight the contagious disease, the state Department of Public Health has launched a graphic ad campaign that is nearly as hard hitting as the disease.

The purpose, of course, isn't to kill, but to save lives. At the very her mother's AIDS." least, it intends to grab the public's

The campaign's directors, Brogan Kabot Advertising of Southfield, wanted to use him on the ad, but by the time they filmed it, he was too weak to partici-

This has given us the chance to use our craft to affect a true lifeand-death cause," said Marcie Brogan, president of Brogan Kabot.

THE CAMPAIGN cost $1 million, with area ad people, consultants, musicians and suppliers working at reduced rates, according to Brogan. Television stations around the state have agreed to run the ads without charge, which allowed Brogan Kabot to use the $1 million more effective

The campaign is aimed at blacks. who suffer disproportionately from the disease, intravenous drug users, teenagers, and the general population. Ads aimed at blacks use black actors and street vernacular. Ads aimed at youngsters attempt to avoid patronizing. The ads preach condom use, avoidance shared needles and elimination of myths and misconceptions regarding the spread of the disease.

'There are no euphemisms," said Chabut. "These are the kinds of messages that have to get out.

This makes another critical mile stone in the effort to control AIDS in this state," said Dr. James Harrison deputy director of the state Department of Public Health

"Our success over time will require that we develop a capacity to inform and educate as many of Michigan's 9 million citizens as possible about the way AIDS is contracted and how to prevent the transmission of this disease." he

The ads will run throughout Michigan, but will be targeted toward the southeast part of the state.

'That's where the huge majority of cases are," said Chabut.

There are eight television ads, 12 radio spots, four print ads and posters that will go on walls and buses. Posters and educational material also will be supplied to area high schools.

Whan isita crime turn

Of course turning 18 isn't a crime at all. However, turning 18 without registering with Selective Service is.

That's why we need your help. We need parents to tell their sons to register with Selective Service within a month of turning 18. And we need teachers, friends, employers and others who can. influence these young men to reinforce the message.

Why? Because, for one reason, it's the law. But in addition to risking prosecution by not registering, your son or young friend is disqualifying himself from eligibility for federal student loans, federal employment and job training programs.

A public service message of this publication and Selective Service System.

America's future security depends upon today's young men registering with Selective Service on time. Having a complete registration list saves our country six vital weeks in mobilizing its manpower should Congress ever declare a national emergency.

All of today's 18-year-olds and all of tomorrow's 18-year-olds must be informed about the registration requirement.

You can help. Ask a young man you know if he is registered. Selective Service Registration. It's Quick. It's Easy. And it's the Law.

One convention, called by district chairman Legg, will be held at the Livonia Holidome

Another called by Piercecchi, chairman of the district's Wayne County portion, will be held simultaneously at the Plymouth Township

A FLOOR fight at the state convention, Jan. 29-30 in Grand Rapids. would determine which delegation will get to vote on state party issues.

The Kent County ruling appears to affect the 2nd district more than any other in Michigan. It also appears give the Bush faction a leg up on consideration for seating at the state

Legg, arguing that the 2nd District was a club, not a fully-functioning arm of the party, ordered delegate selection from the district level, a plan believed to favor the conservative coal ition.

Piercecchi and other Bush supporters argued for county-selected delegates, believed to favor the vice

Such maneuvering hasn't taken place in the 15th or 17th Districts

'Really, there aren't too many Bush supporters here," Thompson said "but we have representatives of all presidential candidates and we seem to get along pretty well."

Though he broke with other Kemp leaders. Anuzis said he remains committed to seeing his man nominated for president. We did this to maximize Kemp's delegates," he said.

Local Indians no problem for early settlers

Several early residents of Plymoth have left their impressions of the Indians who traversed the area when the first settlers arrived.

In December 1827, Abraham Markham encountered numerous Indians when he spent three weeks walking from Plymouth to Chicago and back. During the trip, he spent live nights as a guest of Indian Markham said that his stay with the native Americans convinced him that he "was as well treated as wildmen of the forest are capable of treating a human being.

At one location, Markham foundmany wigwams and Indian families. I called at one of the dwellings and found the head one very intelligent. He could speak some English and I could speak some Indian I found that the Indians were not very well pleased with the missionaries

He said it was no benefit to Indians to learn to speak the English language, or to learn the Yankee tricks He said the missionaries made the

Indians clear their lands, make their buildings and their fences, plant and till their corn, without pay

Abraham Markham was 80 years old in 1877 when he wrote his recollections. Some of his comments, however, give one the impression that he had kept a journal in which he recorded his impressions over the preceding 52 years during which he had lived in Plymouth Township.

ANOTHER EARLY settler who recorded his impressions of the local Indians was Henry B. Holbrook, the man who platted Plymouth in 1837

Among the first settlers in Plymouth. Holbrook was the first justice of the peace here, appointed by Stevens T. Mason, the boy Governor of Michigan Holbrok had this to say about the Indians

No Indian village had existed close to Plymouth around 1839. Nor thad there been any there within the memory of the Indians then living They either lived several miles farther east toward the Detroit River. or farther west nearer Orchard Lake and only passed up and down the

Rouge, Raisin or Huron Rivers.

The present highways are outgrowths of old Indian Trials," Holbrook said, and had been in use by the Indians for centuries before the white man came. One such was known as the Grand River Trial which lay north of the site of Plymouth along the Huron and passed through what is today Ypsilanti and Ann Arbor. It was also called the Potawatomie Trial

Holbrook said another well-known trail, lay up the Rouge Valley through the present site of Plymouth and led northwest. Due west was an old Indian Village whose name was believed to have been Tonguish which were 150 years old Arrow heads, flat stones resembling slate, some clamshells containing red paint, were found there. If bones were exposed to the air they crumbled Some skeletons were found on the side of the hill in a sitting posi-

One day, Indians appeared on the hill before a square, black stone some three feet high, resembling an altar. This stone remained always on the hill and was called Bab-O-Quah. They would recite very solemnly some verses or story which appeared to be directed by one of their prophets as though worshipping the Great Spirit They would smoke a pipe, then proceed on their way.

HOLBROOK WROTE: "It was for this reason that I selected the site for a cemetery when laying out the town of Plymouth, believing it should be kept for the future, as it had been in the past, sacred to the memory of those past.

I have never been able to get the full data concerning what went on. The Indians usually said they would not talk because of the 'black robes, meaning the priests, and said their own prophets had forbidden them to

"About 1850, someone removed and joy supreme." the dark, slate-like stone which the Indians had used. By that time, most of the Indians had been removed to their reservations.

When Plymouth was first settled, it was common for Indians to pass through the territory. They would walk right into the cabins. Few of them could talk English Some of them were fine specimens of their race, but there were many who were sickly and weak, troubled with maleria, small-pox, stomach troubles and all ailments imaginable. It must not be imagined that these children of nature were living in bliss

'Although there were bad tribes and bad Indians, vet the average Indian was a good friend and good neighbor.'

Holbrook continued, "Although there were bad tribes and bad Indians, yet the average Indian was a good friend and good neighbor. A starving Indian or a sick Indian might have sometimes stolen something, but the average Indian never touched the white man nor his belongings, nor were the women afraid of them. The only time they might be dangerous was when drunk - and this applies to whites as well as Indi-

Veteran campaigner lends skills to S'craft

By Wayne Peel staff writer -

A four-term state legislator and a recent Livonia mayoral candidate. Jack Kirksey has waged as many campaigns as Caesar.

But there's one more campaign in which he's interested the 1989 Schoolcraft College trustee race.

Right now, I'd definitely have to say I'm running," Kirksey said. "My commitment is here."

Kirksey, 59, was appointed Wednesday to a provisional term on the community college governing board. He would stand election in June 1989, when the term expires

IT'S THE Schoolcraft campaign that now interests him most. While he didn't close the door on any political options, Kirksey said he has Livonia-based community college, more or less ruled out another mayoral try

"I'm very supportive of (new Livo-nia Mayor) Bob Bennett, I think be'll do an excellent job," Kirksey said. "Plus, in four years he'd have the advantage of incumbency. So, I probably won't try again for mayor.

Kirksey endorsed Bennett after narrowly trailing him in the September primary. The narrow primary loss was a frustrating and rare defeat for the veteran campaigner.

'I think the adjusted total was 90 votes and my wife and I have since come up with at least 100 ways we could have gotten those votes," Kirksey said. "Still, that's behind us."

WHAT'S AHEAD of Kirksey is increased responsibilities at Schoolcraft. He's hardly a stranger to the having served in various capacities since its beginnings a quarter-centu-

Most recently, he has headed up the Schoolcraft College Foundation, a non-profit fund-raising group that finances Schoolcraft programs and scholarships.

His campaign expertise was put to use during Schoolcraft's 1986 tax increase campaign.

"I had met with (Schoolcraft President) Dick McDowell to offer my advice," Kirksey said. "And I must say, I've never seen a group that put a package together as well as those people did.

The 0.5-mill tax increase was approved 60-40 by college district vot-

SAYING THE need for "balanced financing" between tuition, taxes and state aid is a top priority, Kirksey said he would be willing to tug at the coatsleeves of his former Lansing colleagues - if asked.

"If the board wants me to go to Lansing on its behalf, I'm more than willing to do so," Kirksey said. "I'm here to serve them.'

He endorsed Schoolcraft's curriculum and its president. McDowell is doing an "excellent" job in the post, according to Kirksey, who has worked with all three Schoolcraft presidents Kirksey represented the Livonia and Northville areas in the state Legislature from 1977-84. A former Livonia elementary school principal, he is currently Livonia Schools' director of community education.

HE SAID he would abstain from voting on issues that appeared to pose a conflict of interest between the Livonia Schools and Schoolcraft, particularly with regard to community education.

'I'm familiar with their program and I can see where there's some things they do better and some things we do better," he said.

Kirksey was selected from a field of 17 applicants. He received a 4-2 majority on the first ballot. Other votes were cast for Garden City resident Nancy Kitzman.

Despite concerns over the lack of Garden City representation on the board, Kirksey said he would represent all six school districts making up the Schoolcraft district.

Partners give out a secret

Here are more comments on Szechuan cooking from Chef Larry Janes, whose column did not appear in its entirety last week due to limited

The Sze-Chuan Restaurant in Canton is one of metropolitan Detroit's premier west-side eateries, specializing in hot, spicy Szechuan cooking.

As with most restaurants of this type. a complete carry-out menu is also available Rumor has it that there are a few upscale west-side domains that have purchased the Sze-Chuan's food and presented it to dinner guests at home Personally speaking, I think it's camp to sit around the coffee table with those cute cardboard containers and chopsticks, passing the different taste treats and watching the tiny beads of sweat begin to form on my friends' foreheads

Although a little hesitant to share their culinary secrets, Pallas and Sonny Wang, who own and operate the Sze-Chuan Restaurant, have provided a recipe for Kung Pao Chicken. This dish bears the moniker of a high-ranking Chinese officer who died during the Ching dynasty

KUNG PAO CHICKEN 2 whole chicken breasts, skinned and

boned 15 tsp. salt 1 egg white

1 tbsp. corn starch 2 cups of oil for frying

4 cup skinless roasted peanuts 10 whole dried red chili peppers 2 green onions, chopped

2 cloves garlic, minced SAUCE

I tsp. chili paste with garlic (can be purchased at Chinese grocery store)

2 thsp. soy sauce 1 tbsp. sherry I tsp. wine vinegar

1 tsp. sugar 4 cup chicken stock ingredients.

" 1 tsp. corn starch 1 tsp. sesame seed oil

1. Cut chicken into 4 -inch cubes.

Combine chicken with salt, egg white and corn starch. Mix well. Set aside. 2. In a small bowl, blend the sauce

3. Heat oil in wok to 400 degrees. Deep-fry chicken until cooked throughout. Remove and drain.

4. Lower heat in wok to 350 degrees. Deep-fry peanuts in a strainer till golden brown. Drain.

5. Remove all but 2 tablespoons of oil in the wok. Heat to 400 degrees and stirfry red chili peppers until they are dark red. Lower the heat to 275 degrees, add green onions and garlic. Stir-fry 1 minute.

6. Pour in chicken, stir-fry 1 minute. 7. Add the sauce, stir-fry till heated and glazed. Add peanuts, toss and serve

Moon Ja Yoon, a Birmingham resident, is author of a new cookbook, "Korean Cooking for You," designed for American cooks. She is a registered dietician at William Beaumont Hospital.

Korean cuisine offers variety

By Flag Frohmen staff writer

Think of bits of fish, meat and vegetables surrounded by vinegared rice and wrapped in sheets of seaweed. That's Japanese sushi, right? Wrong.

Think of a mixture of meats and vegetables, finely chopped and wrapped in a noodle skin for deep frying. That's Chinese wonton, right? Wrong.

Think of beef short ribs marinated in a spice, pungent barbecue sauce and grilled over a charcoal fire. That's good old Texas cooking, right? Wrong.

What looks a bit like sushi is Kim Bob; the fish is cooked, by the way. What looks like wonton is Man Doo. And what could possibly be a Texas barbecue is Gal Bee

The country of origin for all three dishes is not China, not Japan and not the United States. These are examples of Korean cooking, as presented by Moon Ja Yoon in her newly published cookbook, "Korean Cooking for You.'

Yoon, a Birmingham resident, has written a book explaining the ins and outs of the Korean kitchen for the American cook. The instructions are designed to be simple and clear, even if the cook has never attempted

'We use a lot of meat and vegetables mixed. It's not oily at all. There isn't as much gravy (as in Chinese food) and it's a little spicier.'

INGREDIENT LISTS are made up of items that can be obtained easily in the Detroit area. Most are available at the supermarket. A few may require a trip to an Oriental grocery.

"When kids grow up, they may want to cook Korean food," Yoon said. "But they didn't have a cookbook. But the book isn't just for Korean Americans. Many families are adopting Korean children and want to learn more of their culture, and many people have Korean friends."

Yoon, who has lived in the United States for 25 years, is a registered dietician at William Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak. Along with ingredients and instructions, she offers a nutrient analysis of each recipe, showing the several vegetables, a soup, and fresh fruit for protein and carbohydrates.

YOON EMPHASIZES the healthy aspect of Korean cooking.

"We use a lot of meat and vegetables mixed," she said. "It's not oily at all. There isn't as much gravy (as in Chinese food), and it's a little spicier.

'Korean Cooking for You" was a family effort. Yoon's husband, Hak, photographed each dish after she prepared it. There were months of cooking and photographing and typing and proofreading. To create attractive settings for each recipe, Yoon borrowed china serving pieces from many of her friends. "For four months this room (the living room of her Birmingham house) was full of dishes. I was so glad to finish and clean up." Occasionally, it took several tries to get a good picture of a recipe. 'SOME FINE CHINA doesn't take a good picture, so we would have to start over and change dishes," she said. When the book was ready for publication, Yoon decided to combine business with pleasure and took the entire project to Seoul, Korea, for printing. She was able to visit relatives while checking galleys. A traditional Korean meal would include appetizers, several different meat dishes, calories per serving and proportion of fat, dessert, Yoon said. (Yoon has included several sweet dishes in the cookbook to satisfy American tastes for a sweet dessert. Howev er, fruit would be more authentically Kore-

No Korean meal would be complete without a serving of Kim Chee, a hot, spicy pickled vegetable dish.

"The taste is very hard to describe. But once you get used to it, you have to have it. It is a fantastic food."

PREPARATION OF Korean foods is a matter of lots of cutting and chopping and short cooking times, she said.

"The traditional Korean kitchen usually burned wood. Most foods were boiled or stir fried. We don't use the oven."

Because, like the Chinese and Japanese, Koreans use chopsticks, foods must be cut into bite-sized pieces. That means a lot of cutting and chopping.

In addition to working as a dietician, Yoon-teaches Korean culture at the Korean Presbyterian Church at Nine Mile and Beech Dalv roads. She and her husband have two sons, Paul and David.

"Korean Cooking for You" is available by writing to Moon Ja Yoon, P.O. Box 160, Franklin 49025. Send check or money order for $17.50 plus $1.95 for shipping and han-

Vinegars add dash to gourmet recipes

By Rob McCabe special writer

For centuries, people have searched for ways to make bland-tasting foods more palatable by incorporating condiments - with surprising and pleasant results.

The onslaught of cuisine magazines and cookbooks features certain dishes calling for specific ingredients. Gourmet stores in the Detroit area carry a wide assortment of both domestic and European-made vinegars.

Marc Jonna of Birmingham's Merchant of Vino, a discount wine and gourmet food emporium, said anyone can make vinegar, yet what distinguishes a good vinegar from an excellent one is the time it takes to ferment.

"Vinegars are aged like wine," Jonna said. "They become richer the longer they age in their barrels." Almost any unpasteurized juice can be turned into vinegar, depending on the type of bacteria introduced into it. Aside from the usual selections of cider and wine vinegars, there are now a wide variety of herbal and fruit-flavored viengars.

NUTRITIONAL consultant June Godin of the Rocky

Peanut Co., in downtown Detroit's Eastern Market, says, "Many gourmets do a lot of testing with vinegars to see which ones they like to incorporate into their recipes. "People have been using them for centuries. They're also used in preserving foods." One of the most popular vinegar brands on the market appears to be the Balsamic Monari Federsoni from Modena, Different people produce Balsamic vinegars using their own fermentation processes, making each one unique, said John Jonna, owner of the Merchant of Viso in Southfield. Balsalmic vinegars have a sweet, mellow arema and

"VINEGARS HAVE different levels of acidity also," Jonna said has he showed numerous bottles with numbers on their labels. "The higher the number, the more acidity you'll find." The numbers are there to warn the consumer of its

Many people wonder about the difference between vine-gars and vineigrettes. Vinegars are fermented juices and grain. Vineigrettes are wine vinegar, olive oil, sait and pepper and lemon juice.

Many types of vineigrettes may be found in your local grocery store of gournet shop.

CONCERN FOR health also contributes to the rise in popularity of vinegar. Kevin Gawronski, owner of the Cucina di Pasta restaurant in West Bloomfield, said, "I think there has been an increased interest from the health standpoint because obviously there are no calories in vinegars.

"Now that there's so much more diversified use for fla-— you can make a dressing out of it and use it for a fruit dip."

Gawronski's restaurant sells fresh sauces and pastas made on the premises and also has a nice selection of homemade vinegars with fresh fruit and herbs inserted by hand rather than by machinery.

Recipes abound in numerous cookbooks and fine food magazines, so the next time a recipe calls for a certain type of vinegar, experiment a little. It could make for a very

Brutal weather freezes some, warms others' cash registers

I think this is going to be one of our better Januaries If the cold holds we'll have a complete sellthrough this season

Things were going good at Sportsman's Village in Canton Moussies were selling like batteries at Sears. and the anglers were stocking up on gear now that there is eight-10 inches of like on most inland lakes. "Ice fishermen are hearty souls. It's been good the last week." said owner Ken Kruzel

THE AUTOMOBILE ASSOCIA-TION was busy, as were its towtruck drivers. According to Caren Collins, broadcast supervisor, AAA handled 3.834 calls Tuesday in the tri-county area, which was 448 more calls than the busiest day last winter 'Wednesday, the total climbed to 3.985 before easing back to 3,033

Don't blame the weather, though, said Collins "Eighty percent of the cars don't start because of vehicle neglect, not mechanical failure" said Collins, who suggested such common-sense things as keeping the fuel tank filled, replacing batteries periodically if they're self-contained or keeping fluids filled if they aren't; and following manual instructions for cold-weather starting.

Terry Landin, for one, was thankful for those negligent drivers. He's the manager of Westside Towing in Canton, an AAA affiliate.

His phone rang off the book Wednesday and all seven trucks had been out on the road since Tuesday morning "And we're 20 calls behind he said In 24 hours, three of his trucks had made a total of 135 runs, he didn't have the totals for the other four "It's a shot in the arm over the last two winters. When you got a lot of equipment, you need this

Things were perfect for Joe Phillips, owner of Phillips Plumbing and Heating of Livonia - it was cold enough to freeze pipes and get him some work, but not so cold that they broke and he had to crawl under houses soldering in the mud and ice.

It's nothing like it usually is when it's this cold. Two, three years ago, we had a whole week of broken pipes. But once you've had that experience, you'll never let them freeze again." He said you can keep them from freezing by letting a trickle of water run through the lines during the night.

SCHOOL WAS canceled at Redford Bishop Borgess Wednesday when a boiler broke, and students at Lowell Middle School in Westland were sent home early Wednesday when the heat went out.

At St. Agatha, the heat was working fine, but assistant principal Bob Fowden was worried nonetheless "I have a frozen pipe at home and I can't find where it's frozen. It's in a wall and I'll be darned if I'm going to tear the whole wall out."

In Detroit, the plight of the homeless drew much attention. In Plymouth, Major Robert Geddis of the Salvation Army was prepared to help the homeless there.

grams of lead against grains of gold.

The effort of putting on boots and slipping overcoats over the bulk of sweaters and jackets, puts joints under strain. Arthritic fingers become fatigued from astening buttons and tugging on the top of zippers.

Walking over icy streets and up slippery steps places tension on hips, knees and feet. Canes are held tightly and must be placed with considerable force upon slick ground. Having to sit in a car through prolonged traffic snarls adds to joint stiffness and fatigue.

The hazards of movement discourage the ambition to go out. The arthritic person, being housebound, develops boredom and depression which in turn magnify the aches that are always part of arthritis. In winter, the individual with arthritis must plan the day carefully. He or she needs to balance the benefit of rest against the risk associated with activity, doing so with the precision of an alchemist measuring

Chiefs keep poise, defeat rival Salem

By Dan O'Meara staff writer

Plymouth Canton coach Tom Niemi mentioned the word poise a lot after his Chiefs fought off their biggest rival, Plymouth Salem, for a 88-52 basketball victory Friday night.

Winning coaches often use that word to describe their team's performance in a tight game, and it was true, nonetheless, of Canton's play in the Salem gymnasium.

After threatening to run away with the victory early, the unbeaten Chiefs held their ground in the face of a fourth-quarter comeback by the Rocks to record their fifth straight

"Our seniors showed a lot of poise when Salem came back," Niemi said. "This is a tremendous rivalry, and we're 5-0 right now and very pleased to be in that position."

Niemi also emphasized the contribution his bench made to the victory. Canton got 25 points from players in substitute roles, with guard Brad Carey contributing 13.

FURTHERMORE, the Chiefs managed to play over the loss of starting forward Brian Paupore, who left the game in the secondquarter and didn't return. As was the ase in the Brighton game earlier in he season, he is periodically affected by a condition that causes his eyes .o become irritated.

"Our depth was important," Niemi said. "We don't have great size, but we have a lot of players with equal ability."

Canton had three starters in douole figures. Mitch Fyke paced the Chiefs with 14, and center Jeff Anulewicz keyed a solid first half and finished with 12. Matt Littleton had 10. Roger Trice was limited to four Keith Smith scored a game-high 16 to lead Salem, and Todd Marion came off the bench to spark the Rocks with 15 points, which included a pair of three-point field goals.

'Keith was our force inside," said Salem coach Bob Brodie, adding he had a pregame talk with the 6-foot-4

"I SAID 'KEITH, when you were a sophomore and junior, you took the ball to the hole every time you got it. You haven't been doing that.' Tonight he wasn't going to be denied."

The Rocks, 2-3 overall, have lost three in a row, but Brodie was encouraged by his team's play Friday. Believing his team had been too tentative in its two previous games, he promised "to let out the reins" and turn his charges loose in the moments prior to tipoff.

What ensued was 32 minutes of back-and-forth, run-and-gun, roughand-tumble basketball. There was plenty of action, including a good share of physical jostling under the boards, and racing and diving for loose balls.

But as Canton pulled ahead early, the game lacked a certain amount of tension, though the intensity was al-

The contest took on the appearance of a true Canton-Salem battle from his team. He said before the in the fourth quarter when the Rocks rallied, however.

THE CHIEFS, who had been up by 10 or more points most of the night, led 46-34 entering the finale. But Salem got it down to eight on Smith's rebound bucket and again later, 50-42, when Ryan Johnson's free throws followed Anulewicz' layup with 5:42

The Rocks got as close as seven points, and they had a chance to get within six and possibly five.

Marion rebounded a Canton miss and was fouled, sending him to the free throw line to shoot a 1-and-1. He made the first to make it 50-43, but missed the second.

Smith grabbed that rebound, but his putback that would have made it a five-point difference didn't go Fyke sank two free throws, and Littleton and Trice quickly converted a pair of Salem turnovers to boost Canton's lead to 56-43.

BUT ONCE AGAIN momentum swung back to the Rocks, who made another run and cut the margin to six on a flurry of layups by Pat Rzepecki, Craig Marshall and Mar-The Chiefs survived that challenge also and scored the last 10 points to lock up the win. Troy Waldron, another who came off the bench to help out, made four straight free throws, Trice netted a layup and Fyke capped the decisive surge with four

"That's where poise came in," said Niemi of Canton's ability to hang on. The seniors didn't panic, and it's important to have that in stressful situations.

'We had to keep the pressure going, the intensity up," Fyke said. They're a tough team, and you can't count them out.

'I really wanted to beat them," he added, "being a senior and playing my last year. It feels great.'

DESPITE THE defeat, Brodie felt positive about what he had seen

The outcome of Thursday's Canton-Salem wrestling match holds a specific message for each team, according to their coaches.

The Chiefs were celebrating and deservedly so - after defeating their arch rivals 39-27 on the Canton mats. But coach Rick Menoch doesn't want his team to become overconfident after putting away the defending Western Lakes champs.

'We can't let this go to our heads." he said. "If we do and think we're real good, we won't do well in the league.

We have to keep this meet in perspective."

tory should serve as a lesson.

"SALEM HAS lost to us before and still won the league," he said. "Two years ago we were undefeated in duals and came in second."

The Rocks suffered only their second loss in six matches, and coach Ron Krueger said he hopes the setback causes his wrestlers to dig in and work hard.

"I think the team needed this, to lose in a tight situation," he said. "I hope it gets through to our young team and makes them realize what they're fighting for." Canton came from behind in the last three bouts to take the win. With quality wrestlers in the higher weight classes and by keeping the Although the Chiefs continue to score close in the middle stages, the have an impressive season with a Chiefs kept themselves in a favor-

Tony Sayers and Jim Crews scored quick pins in little more than a minute at 185 and 198 pounds, respectively, to tie the score and put the Chiefs in front, 33-27.

AFTER A GOOD showing initially by Salem's Chuck Graczyk, heavyweight Jerry French positioned his opponent for a second-period fall that wrapped up the victory.

Canton won the 98- and 105-pound matches on a technical fall by Tom Flores and a pin by Matt Keeler to jump in front 12-0.

But the Rocks dominated the rest of the lower and middle weights, winning six of eight contests, to take the lead and regain it twice before succumbing under Canton's strong was winning the majority of bouts, the Rocks were having to settle for decisions instead of pins that would have helped balance the Chiefs' anticipated strength at the end. Jeff Delbeke, wrestling up a weight at 112, and 167-pound Brian Burlison had Salem's only pins out of six victories.

"Salem deserves a lot of credit," Menoch said. "They have a young team, but they made it a very close and exciting match."

HE WAS MOST impressed by the performance of his 132-pounder, Liam Rentz, who scored a third-period pin over Mike Shumate for one of two Canton's wins between 112 and

"He's just a freshman, and I didn't

Canton's Larry Pardi also surprised Steve Burlison at 155. Pardi defeated his Salem opponent for the first time in two years by taking a 5-2 decision. He led 3-0 after two periods, and Burlison got within a point before Pardi scored a takedown in the final 15 seconds to assure the Chiefs of another win.

Salem's Ed Barlage helped baiance the ledger for the Rocks, however, when he defeated one of Canton's best wrestlers, Craig Rinke, with a 5-2 decision at 138 pounds.

Possibly the most exciting match occurred at 126 where Salem sophomore Scott Contini edged Tim Nardini 10-9. The match was deadlocked at 4-4 going into the final period, and Contini scored two points in the last 10 seconds to win it.

Kavanaugh takes AD post at S'craft

By C.J. Risak staff writer

Like tumbling dominoes, the end of one successful sports dynasty has felled another.

Last June, Mary Gans stepped aside as athletic director at Schoolcraft College. Gans had been the school's only AD, filling the post since 1964. The position remained vacant, with Dr. Fred Reibling, dean of instruction, assuming Gans' duties — until today. SC has finally found a successor to Gans: Ed Kavanaugh, longtime Livonia Ladywood girls basketball coach and AD, and a former SC womens cage coach.

Kavanaugh's hiring for the part-time AD's position creates another vacancy, this one at Ladywood. In 12 years as the Blazers' coach, Kavanaugh compiled a 245-42 won-lost record, including two Class B state titles (1983 and '85) and a pair of second-place finishes in the Class B state tournament ('80 and '84).

NO SUCCESSOR for Kavanaugh has been announced.

"I'm leaving all positions at Ladywood," Kavanaugh confirmed Thursday. Why? "Basically, it allows me to be at one place," he answered. "Schoolcraft has a lot of potential, and I was interested in getting in-

The Plymouth Canton gymnastics team either won or tied for the title of all four individual events Wednesday in its meet against North Farmington, but the Raiders prevailed in overall points, 126.20 to 123.95.

Canton is 0-1 this season in dual meets. Apryl Mosakowski and Mary Jo Charron won titles outright for Canton in the uneven bars and balance beam, respectively. No other Canton girl placed among the top four in either event, however, as North gathered 62.20 of its points in both events. North scored 39.05 of those points on the

"We lost this meet during the beam event," said Canton coach John Cunningham. "We had way too many falls. It's normally our strong point, but not tonight."

In the floor event, Charron and Nicki Yuskowatz of North tied for the title, each scoring Maureen McLean won the vault with a score of 8.45, followed by Yuskowatz with 8.35. Other high finishers for North Farmington included Ellen Wesselman, who came in third on the balance beam with a score of 7.95. Rita Dunn placed third in the floor exercise, scoring 8.25.

The Rocks, who took their first win against Trenton several years ago when coach Kathi Kin-sella was building the Salem program, upped their record to 2-0 Wednesday while the Trojans alipped to 1-1.

"We're gearing up," Kinselia said. "I think we're going to be peaking at the right time."

Salem was led by Dana Holda, who won the vault (8.6) and uneven bars (8.45) competition and was first for the Rocks, second overall, in the allaround with a 32.45 score.

Amy Pastori won the floor exercise (8.66) and was fourth in both the vault (8.1) and all-around (30.5).

(30.5).

Debbie Popp placed second on the vault (8.56) and floor exercise (8.4), third in the all-around (30.7) and fourth on the balance beam (7.1).

In addition, Salem's Debbie Drabek, in her first action after recovering from a broken foot, was second on the bars (8.15), Jennie Syria was second on the bars (8.15), Jennie Syria was second Trenton's Amy Swearinger took first on the balance beam (8.1) and won the all-around competition, edging out Holda with a 32.75 score.

NORTHVILLE 113.95, FARMINGTON 111.45: Northville edged Farmington 113.95 to 111.45 Wednesday, but Farmington coach Mary Beth Schornhorst can see that verdict changing the next time the two teams meet.

"Northville and Farmington are even abilitywise," she said. "We always have close meets. It's nerve racking, but if we go against each other again, the scores could be reversed."

Farmington won the vault, uneven bars and balance beam events, but Northville placed two gymnasts in the top three positions of each event, providing the difference.

Winning the vault with a score of 8.5 was Farmington's Jackie Daly, edging out Northville's Wendy Beach, who scored 8.0.

Debbie Ford of Farmington placed first on the uneven bars with a score of 7.95, followed by Beach, who scored 7.7.

Northville placed one-two in the floor exercise as Beach scored a 7.96 and Lee LaChance a 7.8. Parmington's Julie Lawton had a 7.3 to win the belance beam competition, followed by La-Chance, who was given a score of 6.9. on the beam (7.6) and Jenny Krieger was fourth in

The tournament begins at 10:30 a.m. and the finals will be held at 7 p.m.

Among those competing in the tourney are defending Class A state champion Lansing Sexton High School, and Lansing Eastern High School, the runners-up in the same class. Grandville High School, the only school to defeat CC this season, is .

Area teams invited to the tournament include: Birmingham Brother Rice, Livonia Churchill and wrestling Plymouth Salem. Rounding out the slate are Grand Ledge, Temperance-Bedford, Warren Woods Tower, Dearborn, Milford Lakeland, Mount Clemens, Holt, Davison and Howell.

CC, 10-0 in dual meets, won a triple dual meet last week, defeating Sexton, 60-11, Warren Cousino, 66-16, and Novi, 55-14.

FOUR OF CC'S eight wrestlers had three falls each on the night. They were: Matt Helm at 132 pounds; Brendan Rock at 138; Ted Rieple at 185: and Toby Heaton in the heavyweight division.

Although CC is the defending champion of Saturday's Wrestling Invitational Tournament, coach Mike Rodriguez remains cautiously optimistic.

"I hope they don't get overconfident," he said. "It's an unusual position for me as a coach knowing they're going to win. It's very comforting, but I still have anxieties. I know this is short-lived, because I know next year we'll be on the other

The fresh start has brightened Donnelly's outlook for 1988.

"I HAVE NO regrets against New York," he said. "It was great playing for an original six (NHL) team, but things were not going well and I did not understand why I wasn't playing. But I guess they had a lot of offensive players already established in the NHL and it was a numbers game. That's the way I look at it."

Donnelly can now sing that old familiar number: "Let old acquaintances be forgot."

. HOCKEY MVP

Ten-year-old Brad Lear of Plymouth was named most valuable player of the 20th Annual Golden Horseshoe Christmas Tournament in Burlington, Canada

Lear's hockey team, Genuine Parts Distributor, is the reigning state champion but was an underdog against its Canadian tournament foes GPD overcame the odds, however, and defeated the Canadian powers to win the championship.

Lear led the scoring, tallying five goals and seven assists in five games from his center position.

He became one of the few Americans in the history of the tournament to capture MVP honors. One American who previously did was Neil Carnes, also of Plymouth, who now plays for the Verdun Canadians in the Junior Division

For being named MVP, Lear received a trophy, a new jacket and a pair of custom-fitted skates.

. SLO-PITCH SOFTBALL

The Ninth Annual Groundhogs Day Classic, a slo-pitch softball tournament, will be played Saturday, Jan. 30, at Griffin Park. Canton Parks and Recreation Department is sponsoring the event.

The tournament will see teams battle the elements in an effort to hit the 16-inch orange softball. The tournament will be cancelled only by good weather, according to a recreation department release.

The fee is $35 per team. Interested teams should call the department at 397-5110 for further information.

The end of the day along the Florida Gulf Coast can mean placidly watching the sunlight fade into dusk while walking along the Sanibel Stoop.

By Iris Sanderson Jones special writer

Monday, January 11, 1988 O&F

getting to me already. I've decided to follow the rest of Michigan to the Gulf Coast of Florida, if only for a week. How do I choose between Sanibel and Marco Island?

H.H.H. Redford

A: Sanibel is a low rise island for people who like to take it easy, go shelling on the beach, enjoy low-key night life, or no night life. Marco is a high-rise island with beach life, bar life and some night life. You can enjoy sun, sea, sand on either place, but you should pick the lifestyle that pleasures you

There are traffic jams even in paradise, but if you don't hit the causeway from Fort Meyers to Sanibel Island at rush hour you will enjoy watching the sailboats bending against the wind, the motor boats knifing white through the water, the water skiers swimming back to the hoat after a fall.

The picnickers and fishermen will be installed on the sand beach that follows the causeway, their fishing poles leaning over beach chairs and sticking out of van doors.

Sanibel daily lives up to its reputation as the best shelling beach in America, third best in the world. If you turn left at the traffic light on the island end of the causeway, you can shell on the public beaches around the historic Sanibel light-house. If you go straight ahead at the traffic light, you will do the Sanibel Stoop in front of two-story motels and condominiums that line the sea. If you turn right through a few blocks of boutiques and shopping centers you can play on the second public beach on the island, near the bridge where Sanibel joins its sister island Captiva.

These are low rise islands, with buildings no higher than the osprey platforms that are built to keep the birds from nesting on house roofs. You can stay in motels or condos, or head across Captiva to South Seas Plantation, a grand resort that dominates one end of the island. South Seas reserves its golf courses, tennis courts and marinas for guests.

Wherever you are at sunset, you can join the islanders in watching for the Green Flash, that elusive streak of color said to accompany the sun into the sea. Otherwise check the J.N. Ding Darling Wildlife Refuge on Sanibel; locals take their cocktails there at sunset when the Roseate Spoonbills are in.

Daytime activities on Sanibel are on the beach or in the shops. Night life is found at the Crow's Nest Pub, in Tween Water Inn , or at Chadwicks in South Seas Plantation.

Florida's islands are cold 'chasers'

Marco Island's high-rise hotels and condominiums are a sharp contrast to Sanibel's low-slung development.

both on Captiva. Also Will's Landing or Sundial on Sanibel.

Contact the Sanibel Island Chamber of Commerce, Causeway Road, Sanibel Island 33957, or call (813)472 1080. Call toll-free 1-800-237-6004 for Sanibel Accomodations, one of three real estate agencies that book condominiums. Rates in high season, through May 1, are $900 to $1500.

IT IS less than an hour's drive down the gulf coast to Naples and the toll bridge to Marco, but the vacation scenario is quite different there. This is the tropical island for those who like miles of sand beaches stitched to the skyline with high-rise hotels and condominiums. The big decision here is whether you will stay in one of the few hotels or rent a condo by the night or the week.

Either way, you will walk early every morning past the swimming pools and flowered patios to the sea, where the seagulls and the early morning joggers are at work. There is another important decision to be made here: should you take off your shoes and risk cutting your feet on the shells or should you leave them on and risk getting your shoes wet?

Half way down the beach on the first morning you will walk your tennis shoes into the sea without a second's hesitation while you do the shellgatherer's stoop: head down, hand outstretchhed in search of the perfect shell. Take a second pair of jogging shoes for touring.

There isn't a lot of touring to do on Marco - that's why you go to an island, to get away from it all - but you can shop, eat and visit the museums just across the bridge in Naples, or drive south an hour down the Tamiami Trail to the attractions around Everglade City.

Insiders go to Sunday brunch at Marco Lodge, in the little island fishing village of Goodland, at the very edge of Marco Island, and get the best seats for the Sunday afternoon jazz that has become famous there. They also go to the shopping center and restaurants in Old Marco, site of the original island settlement.

Wherever they may be during the day, tourists soon learn that Quinn's, beach bar at Marriott's Marco Beach Resort, is the "in" place to watch the sun go down. A sunset cruise on O'Shea's paddle boat isn't bad either.

Contact the Marco Island Chamber of Commerce, 1108 Collier Blvd., Marco Island FL,33937 or call (813) 394-7549. If you can go in January, you can still find condominiums on the beach for $850 a week, $1100 for two weeks, plus tax and a $200 deposit. February and March are heavily booked but cancellations are not uncommon. Call toll-free 1-800-237-

'Mames don't let your bebies glow up to be houseboys."

Staying married

By Philip A. Sherman special writer

Chuck and Di are living the good life in separate castles. Brigitte Nielsen landed Rocky and is divorcing Rambo; it must be confusing. Paula Blanchard governs no longer. Mayor Edward Koch won't marry. Geraldo tries, on network television, to steam meaningful answers about marriage out of prostitutes.

No wonder divorce is so popular. Wreckage is all we hear about. When was the last time anyone heard of a famous duo trying to work out their problems instead of painting bullseyes on each other's tanned

The absence of such news could exist because marriage counseling is not invulnerable to stereotypes. No one wants to walk into a room with a red leather couch, lie down, watch the doctor squint through a curl of smoke and say: "Zo, vhen did you shtart hating your mother?"

There are other myths about marriage counseling. Helen Oesterie says many couples think she'll make decisions or take sides. Oesterle, who's been a marriage counselor for 15 years, has a master's degree in social work and is associated with Schumard Counseling in Livonia.

Some also think that you have to be crazy or less than normal to see someone about marriage problems, Oesterle says. "We'd be very naive to think we can come from different backgrounds and circumstances and live together harmoniously."

PÉTER POLLACK has heard other misconceptions about mar-riage counselors. "All therapists are very non-directive - that's one," says Pollack, who is a psychothera-pist and clinical manager of the Eastwood Community Clinic in Livonia. He agrees with Oesterle (pro-nounced oster-lee) on the other two myths.

Beyond the myths, what Pollack and Oesterie have to say about marriage and marriage counseling is oddly comforting. Both think successful marriages are the result of hard work, not magic. Most of the couples they see stay married. And

For men the most common problem is sex. Not often enough. For women, it's talk. Not enough with their husbands," Pollack says. Osterle says most couples fear close-ness and sharing. Both have been in situations where they ask "What do you think the problem is?" and both point at each other.

These things are discovered in the first few sessions, according to Pollack and Oesterle. They also agree on the first questions a couple is likely to ask: How much, and how long is

Listen to Under Water Rain's Joe Ginis, and you want to draw peace signs

The earth is getting ripped to shreds," said Ginis, lead vocalist and rhythm guitarist with the group. "If you don't stop ripping off the earth, it's not going to be Ginis sings as such in "Theme of a Dying Planet," a raucous environmentalist's anthem.

If this band sounds like it's a throwback to the 1960s and '70s, there's good reason. Perhaps the first tipoff is the incense Ginis includes with the band's demo tape.

UNDER WATER RAIN is a group whose members are concerned about the air they breathe and the water they drink. In short, they're a band with a social

We try not to litter," said Ginis, who lives in Southfield.

Instead, Under Water Rain focuses on producing a brand of music that is rich with echoing guitars and moody lyrics. And while the subject matter sometimes harkens back to the peace and love days of yesteryear, Under Water Rain's music is definitely of the 1980s.

The group can be heard occasionally on Saturday nights at the Community Concert Series near Wayne State University. The group has also played at the Hamtramck Pub and Paycheck's.

THE BAND features Brian Ferriby of Farmington Hills on drums, Bonnie Shanburn of Royal Oak on guitar, Sally Still of Royal Oak on bass and Ginis.

Ginis is the group's songwriter. Issues of the environment are just one source of inspiration for songs. The group's lyrics also take on a sort of what's-bothering-Ginis-today mode.

'Drowning on Land," for example, is a number about feeling sorry for yourself and how it can bring you down. Ginis wrote it when he was moody blue. It could have described the whole band at one point during the summer.

Under Water Rain, which has been together since

'If you don't stop ripping off the earth, it's not going to be there.'

May 1986, was in danger of disbanding. Band members weren't communicating

FERRIBY REMEMBERS how it all nearly came to

We had one last gig (at the Hamtramck Pub) before we were going to break up," Ferriby said, "and everything went really well that night. We thought it would be a shame to throw it all away."

So band members were able to air their feelings and get on with the business of making music - an avenue that, Ginis says, is a great way to express one's views. Sometimes, he admits, he gets carried away.

"I have a tendency to wander off in my lyrics," Ginis said. "I would frustrate (the other band members) in that I would change lyrics and structures in mid-stream and let them fend for themselves. But I've learned to communicate more.'

Everything is fine now and there aren't the creative differences between the two female and two male band members one might expect.

IT WAS the friendship of Shanburn and Still that led to the formation of the band.

They were minus a lead singer. After auditioning several people for the role, they settled on Ginis.

"He was the last one to audition," Shanburn said. "He's just really good with lyrics and melodies, and you need that." Shanburn also says there needs to be more con-, scious-raising efforts today about pollution and other environmental issues. The group says it would be impossible to re-create the atmosphere of the '60s.

"It's different because there's not a Vietnam," Shanburn said. "It's nice to know, though, that some people"

DETROIT BLUES FACTORY VOL.I

— Various artists

Hello Chicago. Detroit is on your

Anyone who thinks the Windy City has cornered the market on the blues ought to lend an ear to this compilation album. When it comes to the blues, Detroit does quite well, thank Featured on "Detroit Blues Factory Vol. 1" is an all-star lineup of Detroit's finest blues artists, including The Butler Twins, Willie D. Warren, Billy Davis, Eddle "Guitar" Davis, Johnny "Yard Dog" Jones, Harmonica Shaw and Robert Noll.

And these blues are the blueist of the blues. None of the numbers on the album are watered down with any rock'n'roll or funk mixes.

What we hear is Harmonica Shaw wait we near is marintoned and work which really shines.

Wait as he tells us about the life and times of a "Detroit Playboy." The But the best part of "Detroit Blues Butler Twins warn the Windy City Factory Vol. I" is it's something shout the Motor City blues in "Hello made right here in Detroit. Chicago (Detroit Is On Your Back)."

For the person who religiously listens to John Lee Hooker to the fellow who thinks the only blues is the hockey team in St. Louis, this album has a lot to offer.

Perhaps the appealing part of this music is that it gets to the heart of

Croons Billy Davis in "Troubled Shoes:" "Went to the river and found it dry/Looked up for sunshine and someone locked up the sky/A thousand times I paid my dues and I'm still walking in troubled shoes."

Let it not be said that the blues have to be depressing. All one has to do is listen to Robert Noll's upbeat instrumental number, "Check-out Time," to know that's not the case. The musicianship, as throughout this album, is something to behold here.

Noll is backed up by Eddie Harsch on piano-and sample horns, Al Pino on drums and Bobbie Haroldson on bass. But it's Nolls' piercing guitar work which really shines.

MALOS COLORES

— The Colors

Someone better call Dan Manion and ask him if he has any fingers

The lead guitarist and vocalist for The Colors worked his fingers to the nubs on The Colors debut album. 'Malos Colores" starts with a gnashing guitar and ends with a gnashing guitar. In fact, hard-driving guitar is the focal point of this album.

The debut disc by this Detroit band is a high-energized piece of work. The numbers zig-zag between-punk and pop, offering the best of both influences.

At the forefront is Manion whose guitar roars from the opening number and never stops. He's backed up by a solid rhythm section, including the ever-pounding drum work of Patrick Pantano.

Remnants of The Who and The Jam are said to be heard in The Colors' music. That's the case here, especially in one number "Who or What I Am."

The band makes a social note in the album's first song, "Poor Get Paid," which is about being unemployed and on the dole. Writes Manion, "I'm in line and I'm getting desperate/My friends say, 'Hey!' and I say 'Yes but . . ./My family says it's not fair of me/But I don't care I'll take charity."

"Erotica" delves into the world of pornography. But thank goodness a lyric sheet is enclosed with the al-

Otherwise we wouldn't know what they are singing about in some cases. Charlie Manion's vocals tend be drowned out by the abundance of thrashing guitar.
Some of the finer moments on the album are when things are slowed down. "Salvation Army" is one such tune that races off and then catches its breath for for a spell. In those quieter moments, one can really appreciate the deft guitar work of Manion.

All in all, "Malos Colores" is a fine offering. This group will definitely be a force to contend with in the fu-Pogues lead singer Shane McGowan wrote two of the album's finest songs, "Rake at the Gates of Hell" and "If I Should Fall From Grace with God," proving he is a better'singer and songwriter than actor. Clark Gable he ain't.

These two numbers present the Irish-English, folk-punk band at their rocking, sneering best.

Strummer has done better work than the two songs recorded here and Grace Jones and Elvis Costello apparently aren't on the album. But Cait O'Riordan, who split from The Pogues to hook up with Elvis, rejoins the band for a so-so version of the classic Irish ballad & Danny Boy."

Some signs of a marriage on the rocks

By Philip A. Sherman

Marriage counselors Helen Oesterle and Peter Pollack believe there are clear warning signals that a relationship could be in trouble if problems aren't addressed. They also think healthy relationships give off unmistakable signs. Here are a few of the warning signs and signals that a relationship is healthy, according to both therapists.

It might be time to consult a ther-

'It's important to remember you can't change your partner.' - Peter Pollack, psychotherapist

You can't base everything on the kids because when they're gone, there's nothing left between you," Oesterle says. She has two teenage boys of her own. When asked how they like having a therapist for a mom, Oesterle smiles and says 'sometimes they'll say 'don't social

What actually goes on during a session depends on why the couple decided to seek counseling (see sidebar). Both counselors believe in holding joint sessions to see how the couple interacts. But sometimes they're seen individually because of damage already done. "I deal with what's going on, how do you feel about what you're learning and then saying these are the issues we need to address," Oesterle says.

"I also encourage them to feel spiritually good about themselves. I encourage them to talk to a minister or priest or rabbi to get in touch with that side of their lives. They also should feel physically good. The sexual relationship must be based on sooner it's addressed, the more pogood feelings the couple has for each tentially good the outcome. "It's important to remember you can't change your partner." Pollack says. "Freud said love is a very narcissistic thing - very self-oriented.

"We typically fall in love with opposites, with the thought that 'I'm half but when I join with this person I'll be whole.' Opposites attracting each other is inevitable because that's how we notice each other. They (opposites) can survive after the sizzle if they gain skills - then the relationship grows," Pollack adds, agreeing that those with similar qualities who marry can be very boring. Both counselors also think it's much more realistic to go through life being madly in like, as opposed to madly in love, with one's spouse.

"People often want marriage counselors to be decision makers, a trap no marriage counselors should fall into," Pollack says. "Instead, we help them gain the skills necessary to solve problems." The answers, Oesterle and Pollack say, are in learning to communicate, negotiate and disagree without fighting.

"It's like any other problem - the ten people come to us as a last-ditch effort. That's often too late," Pollack

Occasionally, the pursuit proves to be as fascinating as its object. Maximilian Schell's persistent pursuit of Marlene Dietrich, a woman obscured by legend, generates almost as much interest as his subject.

Marlene," his 1983 documentary on the actress, remains devoid of the cloying compliments and touchy-feely childhood reminiscences that sweeten similar undertakings. Of course, Schell deals with a woman who deals with the world or at least interviewers with cynicism, aloofness and self-absorption.

PURSUIT OF a more romantic sort reigns in last year's "Roxanne," with Steve Martin in a lighthearted reworking of Edmond Rostand's play "Cyrano de Bergerac." It remains the story of sharp-witted long-nosed Cyrano who helps his dull friend woo the beautiful Roxanne even though he loves her too.

In Martin's screenplay, swash-buckling Cyrano is transformed into C.D. "Charlie" Bales, the fire chief of a ski resort town. It would be too easy to turn this into a parody of the original but Martin obviously likes his character.

He manages to strike a happy medium between the physical comedy Martin is known for and some sharp, funny dialogue. The scene in a bar during which he fires off a series of nose jokes, classifying each one before he recites it, remains SR's nom-

Gulf Stream jaunt tests seamanship

It's a glorious Tuesday morning in the Bahamas. Keema is anchored in the lee of Highborne Cay and although the wind is blowing hard from the east we are well protected and quite comfortable.

Since I last put pen to paper Betsy and I have sailed Keema over 1,300 miles.

From Norfolk, Va., we motor sailed south along the East Coast's busy Intracoastal Water-

The "main" sector of the Intracoastal winds its way from Norfolk to Miami, Fla., 1,100 miles of rivers, lakes, canals and sounds passing through five states. The waterway is operated by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and is a model of efficiency. Today pleasure craft and commercial vessels share the route and numerous coastal communities benefit by the traffic

WE TOOK four weeks to make the passage, about average for a boat our size. Our routine was to leave early in the mornings and run for six or seven hours arriving at our next anchorage by mid-afternoon. By arriving early in the day we had the opportunity to visit many of the waterway towns. Betsy and I both enjoyed our afternoon walks either running errands or just wandering, always keeping an eye out for the local ice cream parlor.

In Belhaven, N.C., Betsy's Mom and Dad, Joe and Jackie Piscitelli of Utica, met up with us. Joe, recently retired from General Motors, had purchased a small motor home/van. For two weeks the Piscitellis drove along as we sailed Keema, meeting most evenings. We spent days in Beaufort and Wrightsville Beach, N.C., as well as Myrtle Beach, S.C.

Sharing time with her parents helped cure the homesickness that had been creeping up on Betsy. We all had a great time and even snuck in a few rounds of golf as my father-in-law gave me a few lessons on the finer points of the game.

IT WAS tough to say good-bye again, but on Halloween we parted. That evening we hung up drawings by our nieces, put out our pumpkins and even found a halloween film on TV. However, no trick or treaters found their way to our isolated anchorage on Duck Creek.

The next two weeks passed quickly, longer days pushing to get to Miami by the 15th of No-

As you travel south on the Intracoastal you can see, hear and feel the changes. Vegetation becomes much more tropical and palm trees start to appear in South Carolina. Even the sounds of the birds tell you you are getting into the deep south, and of course each day a little warmer breeze signals the transition toward the

Through the Carolinas and Georgia much of the waterway is wild or underdeveloped. Bird sanctuaries abound and towns are small and few. Once in Florida the developments begin, slowly in the north but by mid-Florida every inch of waterway is precious and bird sanctuaries give way to condominium complexes.

IN FORT Lauderdale we spent two expensive days at dockside getting last minute marine supplies and replenishing our larder of canned goods and sundries.

We had contemplated sailing directly from Fort Lauderdale to Cat Cay in the Bahamas. However, three days of 30 knot easterlies had us sitting and waiting for the right weather. Al-though the run from the Florida coast to Cat Cay though the run from the Florida coast to Cat Cay is only 50 miles, you must cross the infamous Gulf Stream. It is "sesential" that you select the right weather for this passage. Conditions in the stream can be very difficult and downright dangerous if the wind blows hard out of the North. After waiting three days in Fort Landerdale we decided to head to Key Biscayne in hopes of getting a better angle for the crossing and perhaps teaming up with some other boats for the passage.

No Name Harbor is at the southern end of Key Biscayne and is a common meeting place for boats waiting to cross the stream.

Sharing time with her parents helped cure the homesickness that had been creeping up on Betsy.

We arrived at 15:30 on the 18th of November, and found six sailboats at anchor in the tiny harbor. I took a dinghy ride around the anchorage and talked with all six crews, finding out that five of the six boats were leaving that night. Times of departure varied on the size of the boat, all crews wanted to time their arrival for late morning at Cat Cay. We decided to sail across with "Tamyrand" an Alberg 30 from Ontario with Mario and Danielle aboard. At 18:40 left No Name together winds from the south-east at 15 knots, seas 3-4 feet, not the best conditions but acceptable.

AS WE sailed away from the coast of Florida I found myself deep in thought. In some ways I felt as though my journey was really just beginning. Although we have sailed Keema four thousand miles from Michigan, it all seemed to be a prelude to the real passages. These last five months have served as an apprenticeship to living aboard and becoming self-sufficient. Now with the United States fading from view we were truly beginning! It will be almost two vears before I return to the States, and as we sailed into the darkness of the Atlantic I felt the butterflies take flight in my stomach.

It is difficult to express what I felt that night. I have planned this trip for so long and there were never any doubts at home going over charts and preparing. But that night heading for my first Island landfall I wondered if I was really prepared. I'm not sure what I was afraid of, certainly not dying out here - I somehow can't imagine that. Perhaps fear of failure, or fear of fear, whatever the case my nerves were raw and I was very anxious.

The only comparison I can make in my life is the feeling I had on December 5, 1968. On that winter afternoon I boarded a Seaboard World Airlines flight from Travis Air base in California bound for Vietnam. I was a naive 20-year-old infantryman. My fears then were of failure in combat of somehow lacking at my moment of truth.

Whether on the flight to Vietnam or on the tossing seas of the Atlantic fear of the unknown made me pause and ponder what lay ahead.

· Fortunately, the sea keeps you busy and washes away idle thoughts. A series of squalls brought high winds and heavy seas and preoccupation gave way to hard sailing. It was a relief.

THIS WAS not the best passage for Betsy. After weeks of intracoastal calms, we found ourselves rolling heavily in 8 to 10 foot seas. Betsy retired to her sea berth and fought "mal de mer" for the rest of the passage.

'Keema" fought her way across the stream under double reefed main and staysail, we were lucky to make three knots and carried on for 18

At first light I expected to see the chain of cays appear on the horizon. No such luck. The stream and head winds had slowed us more than I had anticipated. We continued on now alone. Just before dawn we lost sight of Tamyrand and did not see her again for several days.

At 10:46 the outline of land came into view and my spirits were lifted. Two hours later we tied up at the customs wharf at Cat Cay. The sun was shining it was eighty plus degrees, the water was crystal clear and yesterdays butterflies were asleep once again.

Clearing customs was quite simple and the official was most pleasant. There were no charges to obtain a cruising permit, and only $10 for a fishing license.

Tool checklist for do-it-yourselfers

WOULD like to hang the new, custom-made blinds that you just purchased. But you can't find a screwdriver

The pipes underneath the kitchen sink need replacing. You don't want to wait another day, but you might have to - you've turned the house upside down without locating your monkey wrench Sound familiar? It should. It's a problem experienced by all unorganized do-it-yourselfers. But the solution is an easy one: Get a toolbox or organize your tools in an area of the garage.

What tools should a do-it-yourselfer have at her disposal? That's a tough question because it's rare to find any two handymen who will agree on which tools are "musts' for the toolbox.

But following is a list of the most-used tools according to a survey by The Register in Orange County, Calif. While this may not constitute a complete toolbox, the tools included will enable the do-ityourselfer to take on a variety of home improvement projects.

HAND SAW: Most hand saws are designed for specific purposes rip saws cut with the wood grain and crosscut saws cut across it. For general purposes, crosscut saws are best since they also can be used to rip with reasonable suc-

ELECTRIC SABER SAW: Versatility makes this a valuable tool. cut through heavy lumber; with a fine-toothed blade, it cuts light metal. It also can cut fairly straight or freehand curlicues. Although many models are equipped with guides, they are not recommended for finishing work.

ELECTRIC DRILL: Get a reversible, variable-speed model capable of operating at a relatively high speed. A drill with a %-inch chuck (the device that holds the drill bits) and a one-third horsepower motor is adequate for most basic home uses. A set of 13 highspeed drill bits from 1/16-inch to 5/16 inch should cover most home

ELECTRIC PAD SANDERS: Get one that has a back-and-forth motion (as opposed to rotary) since it works best on most kinds of wood. A %-horsepower, 34-by-7inch sander is adequate for most purposes

LEVEL: A 24-inch level is big enough for most jobs and still small enough to store conveniently. It will keep do-it-yourself projects from registering "tilt."

CRESCENT WRENCH SET: A full set of wrenches isn't a necessity, although it wouldn't hurt. In its place, a 10-inch adjustable "crescent" will do for most jobs.

PLIERS: A slip-joint pair (one that can adjust to a variety of widths) is best. If you don't have or don't intend to purchase wire cutters, make sure your pliers have one built in.

HAMMER: There are many types of hammers, but the trusty old claw hammer is best for multipurpose use. It comes in a variety of lengths and weights so pick that one that feels most comfortable to CROWBAR: It's often, but erroneously, called a "prybar." Get one that's at least 10 inches long with an opening for gripping nail SCREWDRIVERS: The kit should include a selection of straight-bladed and Phillips-head screwdrivers, or a combination tool that can use a variety of heads, usually stored in its handle.

PLUMBER'S HELPER: Some people know it better as a good old toilet plunger. For reasons you'll just have to imagine, don't get one with a handle less than 2 feet long.

TAPE MEASURE: It comes in many sizes, but a 16-footer is adequate for most jobs.

PUTTY KNIFE: It also comes in many sizes, but one with a 14. inch-wide blade is good for all-purpose use. A putty knife is handy for spreading a variety of substances (paste and spackle, for instance) but is useful for numerous other jobs, including scraping windows and floors.

FILE/WOOD RASP: One that is flat on one side and rounded on the other is good for most rough jobs.

COMBINATION SQUARE: This is a metal foot-ruler with a movable right-angle and a 45-degree guide. It's a necessity to make corners square and lines straight.

UTILITY KNIFE: This all-handle knife with a tiny triangle blade showing is handy for all types of heavy-duty cutting.

FASTENERS: These include huts and bolts, nails and screws, With a large-toothed blade, it can and your supply should include a wide variety - especially those sizes that are used frequently in your home.

GLUE: The choices are almost endless, but many people swear by plain, white household glue. But two-part epoxies (the slow-curing type) are good for safety's sake and they bond to most materials.

TAPE: Masking tape, plastic electrician's tape and silver duct tape will cover almost every home improvement job imaginable.

PATCHING MATERIAL: There are many varieties available. The best recommendation, at least for beginners: Use canned paste instead of a powder - it's easier to work with. Now that you know what you need, you have to decide where to buy your tools. Hardware and lumber stores probably are the best places to shop because thay consistently offer a wide variety of products. Those looking for bargains may have success in the hardware departments of some allpurpose stores or discount warehouses. But the selection usually is more limited. But regardless of where you shop, make sure to buy quality tools. The adage, "You get what you pay for," certainly applies when it comes to tools. A good hammer, for instance, can cost $15 or more, but is definitely worth it in terms of getting better results and pleasure of use when compared to a $2 special. Where does one store all this equipment? A toolbox is ideal for the smaller items, but obviously can't handle the bigger ones. If space in the garage permits, wall hooks or shelves look good and make it easy to find whatever tool or tools are needed for a particular

No need to scrimp on ideas

REETINGS from Sarasota. Fla, and happy new year to everyone

Shortly before I left, I received a frantic SOS from a former client who knew I would be spending time in Sarasota "We've just purchased a condo and want to move in for the winter season and must work within a budget," she

My client had purchased a twobedroom convertible garden apartment Garden meaning on the ground floor. They inherited lovely carpeting from the previous owner. They were not happy with the color but decided to keep it because of the quality and condition. The carpet color is an azure blue and an irridescent quality - the blue changing depending on the natural or artificial

The carpet covers the foyer, living-dining area and the convertible (bedroom). The previous owner obviously loved any color as long as it was blue. Variations on a theme of blue extended into the kitchen vinvl flooring as well as the tile in the bathrooms.

The living-dining area is 14-by-24 The dining area is off the foyer with living room beyond. The living room opens to a lanai which has a great view of a golf course and canal. The doorwall, which opens to the lanai, was covered with vertical blinds which we decided to keep.

THE WALLS HAD BEEN freshly painted a warm cream color. With that in mind, I decided to carry the cream in the upholstered pieces. We now have an eight-foot camelback contemporary sofa with wide rolled arms and upholstered legs. The fabric is cotton twill.

designing ways Eve Garvin

Sitting in front of the sofa is a mica table in a new texture that resembles the twill of the sofa. The background of the mica is white with the graining in almond. Two tub chairs that swivel face one another on opposite sides of the table. These are covered in a vanilla textured fabric. Facing the sofa are two French Louis IX Bergere pullup chairs. The wood frames are a whitewashed bleached oak. The seats are covered in a stripe tone-ontone again. Vanilla in color. The seat and arms are finished with antique nailheads

Against the wall, opposite the sofa between the living-dining area, I placed two wall units that house a bar and provide storage for whatever. The units are almond lacquer with sleek brass and vanilla lacquer

THE EFFECT OF THE cream on the blue is lovely you have the feeling that this was done with a purpose rather than living with something because it was there.

The sofa is flanked by a square. table on the side. The finish is bleached oak. On the other side sits a cream color lacquer chest with a swing arm lamp mount to the wall over it

With budget in mind, we decided against the conventional dining table. A local cabinet shop made a table by putting a 48-inch particle board top on a block of wood. On this, we placed a natural duck fabric table cloth. A smaller cloth with an insert of lace 16 inches wide was inserted, giving the effect of a runner placed over the full skirted cloth.

We then added a glass top and now we have a table for all occasions. Six chairs surround the table for intimate dining. For larger groups, the table serves a buffet

The base of the lamp that sits on the table next to the sofa provided us with a clue for accent colors. Shades of blue, mauve and green are gently woven into the cream color pottery basket. The shade is coolie shape in natural linen.

I FOUND A NAVY chintz fabric with a ribbon pattern. The colors in the lamp flow through the ribbon design. Two large throw pillows with jumbo welts were made of this crisp fabric to sit with the two pillows overed in the sofa fabric.

Using the room arrangement as described gives an open airy look. One room flows into the other making the room seem larger than it is. There is seating for 11.

The convertible den (bedroom) has a sleep sofa covered in a cream chenille fabric, contemporary in style with wide rolled arms, balloon cushions and upholstered legs. Street lamps facing each other provide the light on either side of the sofa. The effect of the height of the lamps is spectacular. The cocktail table is pickled pine. On opposite walls we have placed a television set and a white formica drop-lid secretary unit. The drawers to the unit provide storage for guests.

LOCAL ART SHOPS were used to find the posters that were framed in brass or chrome depending upon the poster. Accessories for the tables are

The master bedroom has a queensize bed with a brass and painted headboard. The headboard is a replica of an antique. The night stands and dresser are country French and the chair white wicker. Duster and coverlet are quilted white cotton with eyelet trim. Shams are white with throw pillows reflecting colors used in the living room. The look is charming

This project took a total of 112 days. Cities in the "sun belt" are set up for "instant decorating" In most furniture stores whatever is displayed on the floor is in their warehouse

My client has a lovely home in Birmingham and feels as good about their second home. "This takes no back seat to any home" is what they tell me. I loved doing it - they are pleased and it's made my little vacation that much more enjoyable.

Q. Every year I make New Year's resolutions down, set out your time-frame and start with good intentions but rarely fulfill my objectives. How can I do better this year?

A. There are two often overlooked ingredients to New Year's resolutions:

1. A time frame. Too often people decide to do something - say, clean out filing cabinets or lose 10 pounds of weight — but do not set out the cleaning or weight loss into increments nor set a specific deadline. Without much planning, they work on first one file and then another, or go on a starvation diet, instead of systematically cleaning out on a schedule or deciding to lose one or two pounds a week for a number of

A goal or resolution is something that you accomplish; it is an overall result for which you plan. It is important to understand that you don't 'do" a goal. You must first plan to "do" activities to achieve a goal. Therefore, after the resolution is made, you must "do" such activities as figuring out how to limit yourself to X number of calories by doing meal planning and writing down calorie intake.

2. Motivation is also often overlooked in carrying out New Year's resolutions. At the new year, you are highly enthused about your great resolutions, but as time goes on, your fervor ebbs. Motivation is like a meal; as time passes you get hungry again. You must therefore provide yourself with enough continuing incentives to accomplish your objectives.

OUR SON, WHO HAS never been able to hold still for long, was recently hospitalized with a broken leg. How can an active youngster lie flat on his back in traction for six long weeks? The answer is easy: When moving hurts bad enough, anyone can lie very still. That's motivation. Physical therapy was so painful at first that our son insisted he couldn't walk. When he was reminded that he couldn't go home until he did so, he took those painful steps. That's motiva-

It's too bad that sometimes we let situations in life become painful before we finally correct them. Why do we wait until we are threatened with heart disease, loss of a relationship or some dire result before we finally "shape up?" Remember the old cliche, "A stitch in time saves nine;" it's easier to take off three or four pounds now, for instance, than 10 or 15 pounds later. Regardless of what your goals are, write them motivating yourself: read listen to tapes, make bets, set up planning times with either friends or in classes, set aside specific times to work on them, offer yourself rewards (not food, drug or alcohol-related), or think up some other creative way to get yourself going - and stick to it. If your incentives are strong enough, the sky's the limit to what you can accomplish. Good luck
