Rail work plans in limbo

A rubberized railroad bed on Main Street in downtown Plymouth may not be in the city's immediate future after all.

While some sentiment has been expressed for paying $28,000 for the work, the city commission still hasn't formally voted to do so. And money for the project hasn't been included in the 1988-89 general fund budget, expected to be adopted tonight (Monday) by the commission. "It's a very tight budget," said

Local officials have followed informed the township by letter that through on their threat to ask the courts to stop further admissions at three area prisons.

Northville Township has filed the suit against the Michigan Department of Corrections and Robert Brown, its director.

This time the issue revolves around the number of prisoners being housed at the three prisons located on Five Mile Road: Scott Regional Correctional Facility, which has a court and legislatively mandated cap of 550 prisoners; Phoenix Correctional Facility, which has a cap of 311 prisoners; and Western Wayne Correctional Facility, which has a cap of 500 prisoners.

Scott and Phoenix are in Northville Township and Western Wayne, the former Detroit House of Corrections, is in Plymouth Township. Phoenix Warden Emmett Baylor as of April 4, Phoenix would be housing in excess of the 311 inmates and, on April 21, Lloyd May, warden at Scott also informed the township that his facility would exceed its capacity by some 96 prisoners.

IN PAPERS filed with Wayne County Circuit Court last week, the township is asking the court for an injunction prohibiting corrections from housing the additional prisoners at the three facilities. A hearing has been scheduled before Judge Charles Farmer for 9 a.m. Priday,

May 6. Thirty-five of the additional priseners had arrived at Scott by April 21, ironically the day that state Rep. Michael Nye and the House Republican Task Force on Prison Reform toured the facility.

Livonia performing theater fate unknown

By Marie Chestney staff writer

Ticket holders and Livonia Police are waiting for news today from Omni theater general manager Ed Morelli regarding whether he's been able to save the Livonia performing arts center

If the theater doesn't give refunds for the three canceled Paul Anka shows, scheduled for this past weekend, ticket holders can and should file a complaint with Livonia Police. Lt. Bobby Duren said.

If the box office does not open today to give refunds, Duren urged ticket holders to send a registered letter asking for a refund to the theater at 33330 Plymouth Road, Livonia 48150.

Duren said the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office is investigating the legal ramifications of the situation.

If Anka is rescheduled, there is no problem," Duren said. "If refunds are given, there is no problem. There's also the question of a legitimate business failure. It's a touchy situation.

Duren said Livonia Police also are checking whether any tickets were sold after the Anka concert was can-

"If they were, that would establish intent to defraud," Duren said.

LAST WEEK in a telephone interview, Morelli called the theater stock "worthless."

He said "it took every penny" the Omni corporation had to pay for the Temptations, the last act to perform

Morelli said he was trying to find new investors who would pump more money into the theater to keep it alive and bring in the next two scheduled acts, Joan Rivers and Dionne Warwick.

"If we can reorganize, we will be able to refund the money and pay for the next show," Morelli said. "If we don't, more than likely we'll file for bankruptcy.

Duren said Livonia Police have established that the Warwick concert was canceled.

TICKET HOLDERS are not the only ones owed money by the Omni Corp. Morelli said Omni still owes "lion's share" of the $600,000 spent to turn the old Mai Kai theater into the Omni Star Theatre for the Performing Arts.

Three-fourths of that is still owing," Morelli said. T.J. Lesperance, owner of Detroit

Stool and Chair in Plymouth, said Omni still owes him $8,000 for reupholstery work he did on theater seats. He said he is putting a lien against the theater, which is owned by Louis George and leased to Morelli

'Our association with Morelli has not been a comfortable one," Lesperance said. "We made a delivery of chairs. It was supposed to be C.O.D. They talked us into accepting a check from their accountant by mail. They stopped payment on a $6,200 check. Morelli looked me in the eye and said he knew absolutely. nothing about it, that check writing was not his responsibility."

Roy Bianchini, owner of Empire Tile in East Detroit, said Omni still owes him $6,500 and that he has put a lien against the theater.

Morelli said he has been "meeting with prominent business people in the community who have an interest in the Omni.

"I'm trying to get prominent people willing to step in as investors to reduce the overhead," Morelli said.

TWO PROMINENT Livonia people two weeks ago attended a meeting of the Omni's board of investors. They are city assessor Ron Mardiros and Betty Jean Awrey of Awrey Bakeries Inc.

"We were asked by Morelli to come," Mardiros said. "We went as persons concerned about the Omni. It was not a formal meeting. We asked them to keep us informed so there would be no surprises. It was an informational meeting on their Mardiros said he also sat in on a meeting Tuesday between Morelli and Louis George, owner of the the-

"I attended as a 25-year friend of Louis George," Mardiros said. "They discussed their financial problems.'

Mardiros said George was willing to consider lease concessions if Morelli would get more financing.

GEORGE FAILED to return a telephone call made Thursday.

Awrey said she would work to find new investors for the Omni. ,

"If I put 100 percent of my effort into finding them, I could probably do it," Awrey said. "I don't like to see anyone have problems.'

Another company last week trying to contact Morelli was Ticket Master, which also sold tickets for the Ticket Master general manager Robert Garsh said his company had been contacted by ticket holders asking for refunds. After selling each Omni ticket, Garsh said his company sent some of the money to the theater so it could pay performers and kept some of the money in its own bank account

"WHAT WE'VE had, we've already given out," Garsh said. "We're trying to get the rest of the money from Morelli If we don't, we'll probably have to dip into our own funds to make good the money. One way or another, we have to keep our credi-

Garsh said he had worked "all over the country" in the entertainment business and had "never seen something happen like this before."

"This is new to me," Garsh said. 'It's a gigantic headache.'

Garsh said he believed most of the ticket sales were made at Omni's box office in Livonia. He also said Ticket Master would not be selling tickets for the Joan Rivers or Dionne Warwick show.

A PERSON close to the theater, who asked not to be identified, said he believed there is more than $100,000 wrapped up in tickets for the Anka, Rivers and Warwick concerts. He estimated ticket sales for Anka at $38,000; Rivers at $18,000 and Warwick at $62,000. Morelli said that, as he realized more cash was needed to keep the theater running, he kept going back to the 13 investors for more money. Morelli said the theater was living from "show to show, day to day, hour to hour." "The investors couldn't understand how bad the situation was," Morelli said. "They were not willing to do anything more to help. They criticized me for making $1,500 a week. It was like trying to stop a flood with a cork."

Morelli said he offered to give some of the investors not willing to $150,000 to reopen.

contribute more money a promissory note for their shares. The note, he said, would come due in six months

ONE STOCKHOLDER, who asked not to be identified, said the investors were mostly persons who had extra money and who liked Morelli's vision of a west side theater.

For one reason or another, we all had faith in Morelli," the investor said. "When a call for more cash went out, some couldn't afford to contribute more. Others answered a couple of cash calls. And others went beyond that and gave more.'

The investors include a hair dresser and her son, an advertising executive and his mother (who also handled publicity for the Omni), a restaurant owner and her brother, a limousine service owner, an attorney, an engineer and a manager for two auto companies, two physical therapists and Morelli's wife.

Morelli said he went into the theater business with $100,000 from the investors.

IN A December meeting before the Livonia City Council, Morelli said the theater had to commit $700,000 to the entertainers scheduled to perform at the Omni.

"At best, it's a gamble," Morelli told the council. "What we will do is put more than one big star in the series and hope it will generate sales for the whole series. If it doesn't, we'll be in trouble." At the December meeting, Morelli said he planned $500,000 worth of renovations, including new carpeting, reupholstered seats and a new stage. renovated restrooms and the building of a dressing room for the stars. In Wednesday's telephone conver-

Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara is expected to make his case for private jails today before a county study group

A private jail, built and staffed independently of the county, could provide space for up to 400 misdemeanor prisoners in as little as one year, McNamara said Friday.

But sheriff Robert Ficano, who advocates triple-bunking at the county jail, called privatization talk 'blue smoke and mirrors"

Addition of a private jail, McNamara said, would meet twothirds of the county's need for new prisoner space

A jail monitor, hired on the county's behalf, recently recommended adding space for at least 600 prison-

An estimated 400 of those new prisoners would be misdemeanor offenders that could be placed in a private-jail, McNamara said. The county itself would add space for 200 additional felons, he added.

"I-LOVE the idea," McNamara said of private jails. "I think it has tremendous possibilities.

Building a new county jail. McNamara said, would take too long. "In 1976, voters approved a jail millage but the last addition to the county jail wasn't made until 1984." he said

McNamara is scheduled to appear before the county commission's advisory jail space task force this afternoon, county sources said.

Long an advocate of private jails, McNamara has stepped up his lobbying efforts in the past few days.

On Friday, he appeared at a press conference with state Sen. R. Robert Geake, R-Northville, sponsor of a 16bill package that would establish private jails in Michigan.

The bills, Geake said, would allow counties to authorize construction of private jails, but wouldn't mandate

The bills wouldn't require anyone to do anything," said Geake, who represents Livonia, Plymouth, and Canton, Northville, Redford and Plymouth townships

PRIVATE JAILS have been successfully implemented in nine states. including Texas and Tennessee, said criminologist Charles Logan, who also appeared with McNamara.

Logan, an associate professor of sociology at the University of Connecticut, helped develop recommendations adopted by the President's Commission of Privatization

Logan noted, however, that county sheriffs, as well as deputies unions, have opposed the concept.

'Perhaps it's because they fear competition," Geake said.

Ficano, however, said adding a third prisoner to county jail cells would provide a swifter and more efficient resolution to the county's ongoing jail space woes.

'Let's get through the blue smoke and mirrors about privatization and let's get behind triple bunking." he

An estimated 550 additional prisoners could be detained through triple-bunking, Ficano said, though other have expressed concers about adding that many more prisoners to the estimated 1,700 already housed at the jail during peak times.

'I love the idea.'

Declining state aid to community colleges prompted the move said Schoolcraft president Richard McDowell

'My easiest sales were made in the barroom of the old Plymouth Hotel on the corner of South Main and Ann Arbor Trail The second surefire spot to unload a full tin of candy on Saturday nights was in the large saloon of Charley Miller." It was not until 1890 that the Village of Plymouth passed an ordinance prohibiting the entry of children into a saloon

The local chapter of the Women's Christian Temperance Union was formed in 1877, when Bennett was 15, and the war against the wets commenced. In a short time, the Plymouth WCTU was one of the strongest chapters in the county of

A petition from the WCTU was received by the Village Council in April, 1896. It asked the village to pass an ordinance prohibiting saloons in the village. The council passed a motion "to lay the petitionon the table.

Fred Burch and others petitioned the council, asking for a special election on the wet and dry question in 1916. The petition was granted and the date of the election set for May 11. I have not been able to verify it, but Plymouth may have gone dry on

AT ANY rate, it was only years later that the Federal Prohibition Amendment was passed by Congress, making the entire nation dry. The law went into operation in January, 1920 and from that time until 1933 bootlegging became a big industry. Detroit soon became a center for the smuggling of liquor from Canada into the United States.

Chief of Police George Springer's report for 1930 tells of the confisca-

From 1919 to her death in 1931. local Judge Phoebe Patterson was a strong foe of liquor. An ardent member of the WCTU, Mrs. Patterson was the first woman justice of the peace in the State of Michigan.

WHEN CONGRESS ratified the repeal of the Prohibition Amendment in February, 1933, local communities had the option of going wet again or remaining dry. Plymouth Township chose to get wet; the City of Plymouth to remain dry.

Ralph Lorenz, then manager of the Mayflower Hotel, who led the fight for liquor-by-the-glass attributes its defeat to Ruth Huston Whipple, who became the first woman to sit on the city commission in 1932.

Mrs. Whipple was a strong member of the WCTU and a strong opponent of liquor-by-the-glass. She became the city's first woman mayor in 1940. During her tenure, businessmen who owned stock in the Mayflower Hotel - she called them "the hotel crowd" - wanted Plymouth's semi-dry laws changed to permit a few bars.

When the wets came up with the idea of forming a private club at the hotel, with its own liquor license, the mayor dashed to Lansing and talked turkey to the liquor commission. The Mayflower Club, as it was to be called, did not get its license while Mrs. Whipple was in office.

It was one of the first rules for those of us who trained to be journalists during the Watergate era. People were encouraged to foster a watchdog mentality, looking out for inconsistencies and righting wrongs.

That feeling of community, friendship, fighting for the underdog and old-fashioned neighborly help is captured in the "Milagro Beanfield War" - one of the latest first run, big screen productions.

A variety of personalities, age groups and a bird's eye view of the special culture in a New Mexico town are only a few of the movie's delights. Its true value is how it stimulates the mind.

The movie focuses on one man's decision to fight progress, and how friends and neighbors join in supporting his efforts to maintain the community's last beanfield. Joe's decision to fight came about almost by accident, as the movie leads the viewer into an eye-opening tale of a community's awakening.

years ago, but we react differently. We care more about the faux pas of a White House spokesman, for instance, than about what is actually going on in the Oval Office.

This year, a national election year, will certainly be an indicator of where we stand as a nation and in what direction we are moving. Activity or inactivity in politics is our country's traditional litmus test.

WE HAVE always been a cyclical nation - from the original Revolution that founded our country through a variety of movements from suffrage through civil rights.

Whether individuals or groups will band together to rally for another cause as we approach the turn of the century has yet to be seen.

And just what that cause might be remains a mystery.

The word "milagro" means "miracle." Perhaps it will take just that for us to return to neighborly, caring, community ways.

Column aims to tell readers about hospice

This letter is in response to your recent editorial regarding the life of Ralph Swoveland and the hospice concept of care.

Your lines were filled with your grief at the death of a friend and coworker and your sincere concern for all of the dynamics that surround dying. Please accept my heartfelt sympathy for your sorrow. As fellow members of the Swovelands' church, his name, and those of Janice and the children have been the focus of prayers, pastoral support, and member caring activities over these past months of struggle and heartache. His death is a sorrow to many.

Needless to say, as the director of

Ticket quota effort foolish

In regard to your April 18, 1988, article about police having ticket quotas: I am highly in favor of the Michigan Legislature's efforts to pass the bill that will do away with ticket quotas.

As was stated in the article, I also think that the police department should be spending more time going after criminals of murder, rape, etc. than writing tickets for minor traffic violations.

I do agree that traffic should be controlled but, lately, the ticket writing has been on an upswing.

Even though it is protecting the public well-being, I find it rather foolish to give priority to writing speeding tickets for 5 mph over the speed limit instead of searching for suspects of more serious crimes.

Schoolcraft College graduates now come with a degree - and a guarantee

If the Livonia community college's graduates fail to produce on the job or at another higher education institution, Schoolcraft will take them back and retrain them, at no cost to the student.

Called an "assurance of quality," Schoolcraft's isn't the first statement of its kind. Henry Ford and other community colleges have already drafted student guarantees.

Fresh pasta better than boxed kind

You don't have to be Italian to love pasta. With the onslaught of fresh pastas and pre-packaged "homemade pastas," today's diner doesn't have to settle for the plain old boxed stuff anymore.

If you have yet to visit a fresh pasta shop or store that features homemade pasta, be prepared to face a magnitude of decisions ranging from how thin (or thick) you prefer your pasta to choosing flavors such as tomato, spinach, basil and even chocolate for the ultimate in desserts.

Flavor sensations don't come cheap. Expect to pay anywhere from $1.59 to more than $3 per pound. (That's about double what you can buy in a box.)

Of course, there is no comparing the flavor of boxed pasta to fresh. Even basic egg pasta, made from flour, eggs, salt and water, tastes like something Mama Leone would dish up the little Leones (all 13 of them) on Wednesday and-it wasn't out of a box. Pasta made at home

- by hand or with the help of pasta machines - is a revelation in delicate flavor and tex-

FINE PASTA can be made by hand with no more elaborate equipment than a bowl and a rolling pin. However, a noodle pin and noodle board are helpers worth having if you want to use the time-honored basic method.

Noodle pins are long, and shaped from a single piece of wood. Having no handles, you "palm" the pin, rolling from the center out to the edges. No nonsense equipment here.

Noodle boards are the same as pastry boards and are crafted from hardwood with a turneddown front edge and a turned-up back edge that prevents the board from creeping away as you roll. These boards cost upwards of $30 but are well worth it to the serious pastry and pas-

HAND-CRANKED PASTA machines are prevalent nowadays because a small investment of less than $40 can allow you to prepare spaghetti noodles, fettuccini noodles, lasagna noodles and raviolis.

Some of the better machines, like the Altea. Atlas and Imperia, come with optional attachments (some $20 each) that can make just about anything from angelhair pasta to cappelletini. Look for a chrome-plated, heavy metal machine with a "C" clamp for locking onto tabletop surfaces.

If you would like electricity to take over the rolling and cutting of the dough, be prepared to shell out some $100-plus for a machine that, if not looked after carefully, can overknead and make tough noodles. Cuisinart has a pasta attachment, as does Kitchen Aide and Simac.

All are pretty much equal in comparison, but who needs another plug-in contraption when the basics are so easy and the fun is truly derived from the cranking and cutting? Let's face it, you'd have to eat a heck of a lot of pasta to get your money's worth. When it comes to cooking homemade pasta, a large pot is indispensable for allowing the pasta to "swim" in plenty of boiling water. Without the added water, your pasta will be starchy and gooey and will stick together.

A teaspoon of salt added to the water will flavor it, but did you know that salted water boils faster? Yep, it's heavier and will boil faster, but let's not overdo it.

WHEN IT comes to pasta gadgetry, there's only one true, tested device that has earned its way into my kitchen: my pasta fork. It looks like a large, long-handled wooden spoon with tiny (about one-inch) picks protruding from the

This nifty little 99-cent can't-do-without is just what the doctor ordered for picking up portion-controlled servings of the homemade pasta. A definite plus in any spaghetti lover's domain.

GAWRONSKI'S RESEARCH of pasta consumption has revealed that Americans are eating more of the stuff, although still lagging far behind Italians, who eat an average 60 pounds a year per person.

"In our research we found that 20 years ago the average person consumed six pounds of pasta a year. Now it's up to 13 pounds a year. Our market research give us an indication that the trend shouldn't peak un-

"It's healthy food. Carbohydrates are a mainstay in people's diets. Starches are usually on the dull side - potatoes and rice. With pasta you can create a flavorful side dish. A sauce isn't necessary. You don't have to mask it. Pasta stands on its own."

Gawronski just finished a pasta lecture series at Bonnie's Patisserie in Southfield and a health-care lecture series for the University of Michigan. In addition to cholesterolfree pasta, he creates no salt/no oil

"WE HAVE such a health-conscious market today," he said. "We use all fresh vegetable purees. Pasta - Kevin Gawronski you see in the market is made with vegetable powder, which gives it a duller color and less nutrition.'

Pasta can be dressed with freshcut vegetables or pesto sauce, Gawronski said. Since pesto is made of basil, pine nuts, oil and garlic, those looking for a low-calorie alternative might choose chickpea pesto, which does away with the oil and nuts, he said.

Pasta has great appeal - "for the health-conscious, athletes like it for the energy boost, it's gourmet and it's economical. It's an alternative to starches. And one of the cheapest meals you can put out."

Chocoholic takes honors for her 'Kahlua Bad Boys'

By Ethel Simmons staff writer

Jo Rosen of West Bloomfield came up with a brownie recipe that tasters at the Observer & Eccentric judged to be the best of the many entrees submitted in the newspaper's recent contest.

Rosen, whose letter described herself as an "artist and chocoholic," provided her recipe for Choco-Chip Kahlua Bad Boys. She wrote, "Dear Brownie Tasters. I paint at home nearly every-day. I exist on chocolate treats to motivate my work. These 'Bad Boys' make for creative watercolors'

When reached by telephone, however, to congratulate her and ask her to make a batch of the brownies so she could be photographed snacking on them while she works, she said, "Is it all right if I give them to the photographer? I'm on Weight Watch-

Rosen is the mother of two children, a daughter, 7, and son, 4. 'We're all chocolate lovers in our family," she said. Second favorite recipe of the tasters doesn't look like a traditional brownie because it contains white chocolate. Renee K. Hauser of Canton submitted her recipe for White Chocolate Almond Apricot Brownies. Hauser, 19, attends Schoolcraft College in Livonia, where she is a first-year student in culinary arts. She has been in several food competitions and has won two gold medals, three silver and two bronze.

FOR THE BROWNIE competition, she and her mother tried to think of something different. "I've been working with white chocolate a lot," Hauser said. After creating the recipe, she made a batch, which she took to the office and tried out on co-

RECIPES FOLLOW for all four of the favorite brownies. Chef Larry said the recipe for the "Bad Boys" "didn't state how much kahlua, powdered sugar or cinnamon to use, so I just sprinkled over the top as per recipe." (Rosen said she does it the same way.) For the white chocolate brownie, Janes said he "used real butter and used expensive white chocolate." He called the recipe "real easy." (Hauser said she used inexpensive, white chocolate candy melts that you can buy in the supermarket.)

For the mint-flavored brownies, Janes used Fannie May Chocolate Melt-a-Ways. Aside from the mint, this was a "basic brownie recipe," Janes said. For Nana's Brownies, he said, "I couldn't locate Spry so I used Crisco. The brownies have "a high cocoa amount, which made for a heavy chocolate taste."

The brownie contest began when the Observer & Eccentric issued a

THIS YEAR'S REQUIRED READING FOR 1,000,000 COLLEGE GRADUATES

Welcome to Real World 101.

You'd be surprised how many college students go from highlighting textbooks to highlighting the classifieds. The fact is, a staggering number of graduates are unable to secure a career in their field of study.

That's why there's a nationwide program for college students called Cooperative Education. It allows students to alternate studies at the college of their choice with paid, practical work experience in the career of their choice. So Co-op Education students graduate with more than a degree. They have practical knowledge. And a competitive advantage in a crowded job market. If you're a student, you should seriously consider the Co-op Education Program.

Because after years of studying in college, the last thing you need is another reading assignment. Co-op Education

National Merit test unfair to girls, group says

By Mary Rodrique slaff writer

Are girls getting a fair shake from National Merit Scholarship

FairTest, a group also known as the National Center for Fair and Open Testing, doesn't think so.

Boys generally outscore girls on the qualifying test to become National Merit semifinalists, just as they do on the Scholastic Aptitude Test and other standardized exams.

FairTest said high school grades should count just as much as test scores when the 15,000 National Merit semifinalists are chosen each year because girls perform better in

Sarah Stockwell of FairTest called the National Merit Scholarship's reliance on the Preliminary Scholastic Antitude Test to select semifinalists 'extraordinarily irresponsible" and it costs women "millions of dollars each year

We have no quotas regarding boys or girls or ethnic origin or anything else," she said. "The test is the best method we have found to date o make entry to the program available at a relatively nominal fee."

Last year among the 6.146 who got scholarships, 62 percent were boys and 38 percent girls, according to Roderick.

Local results appear to follow the national trend, but high school counselors surveyed by phone were reluctant to blame test bias as the reason boys seem to outperform girls.

I DON'T THINK we ever looked at it that way," said Richard Morrison, counselor at Thurston High School in South Redford

We're just happy to have the kids get the honor

This year Thurston had two students - both boys - commended by the national scholarship program.

That means they scored slightly lower than the semifinalists, but they are still in the top less than 2 percent of the nation's graduating class," he said.

Four boys from the Wayne-Westland School District advanced to the finalist stage in the National Merit competition this year.

I never recall a year when we had more girls than boys," said Ron Somers, executive director of secondary education for the district.

"More boys take advanced math and science classes," he added, as possible explanation for the predomnantly male showing.

The Cambridge, Mass., based FairTest said the tests multiple choice format seems to favor boys because research suggests they are more adept at guessing, and male characters are featured more often in test questions than females, making the questions more "male-orient-

Salem High School in Plymouth Canton Community Schools bucked the trend with five girls and two boys reaching the semifinalist stage. Laura Porterfield was the single student to advance to the finalist stage, according to Marian Jacobs Even at a girls only high school, a counselor did not blame bias for the modest representation.

We had one semifinalist and she has advanced to a finalist now," said Carol Cummings, a counselor at Ladywood High School in Livonia.

We're not a large school. We have 144 seniors. I think the number of students works against us more than anything else. I don't see anything (prejudicial) in the test but then I only work with girls.'

Central in Redford Township, seven students advanced to the finalist round in National Merit competition.

"At least two will receive monetary awards," said Phil Heyer, a counselor.

Last year, Catholic Central had 14 semifinalists. Next year, there will be 11 semifinalists, based on test scores, Heyer predicted. Currently there are 250 seniors - not even twice the size of Ladywood's class with six times the representation.

I've read something to that effect (regarding test bias) but it's difficult to respond to," Heyer said. "It's like the old saying that boys do better in math That may have something to do with it."

At coeducational St. Agatha Catholic High School in Redford Township, one boy and one girl in the junior class scored well enough to merit special attention. No seniors in the current class were honored, a spokesman said.

At Bishop Borgess, another coed Redford based Catholic high school, two boys who took the National Merit Scholarship test last October were cited for commendation. Currently a girl in the senior class is listed as a finalist in the competition.

At Lutheran High School in West-Meanwhile at all boys Catholic land, Robert Gibson was the sole student to be selected as a National Merit Scholarship winner.

Fred Moreno, a spokesman for the College Board in New York, which sponsors the PSAT and SAT, said that although women "do a little bit better in college" than predicted by their combined SATs and grade, "the difference is very small. There's no proof that the test is biased."

One possibility is that there is not enough joint fluid to lubricate the joint. Bone rubs against bone without the benefit of a layer of fluid that

Rocks on rebound, demolish Western

After a rough start, Plymouth Salem is beginning to build a head of steam as it nears the midway point of the 1988 soccer season.

The Rocks won their third straight game Wednesday, plastering Walled Lake Western 8-1 and improving their record to 4-1-2.

No. 3-rated Salem has compiled a 2-1-1 record against Western Division teams, but more important—it's 2-0 in its own Lakes Division.

Jill Estey figured in nearly all of the Rocks' scores, collecting two goals and three assists. Michelle Minton and Maria Wordhouse had Estey and Minton have accumulated 23 points each. After seven games, Estey has seven goals and nine assists, Minton 11 goals and one

Salem had the game well in hand by halftime, leading 5-0. Estey and Minton scored all of their goals in the first 40 minutes, and defender Jennifer Marshall got her first goal of the season.

Holding a safe lead, the Rocks did a switch and put their defensive players en offense in the second half. Wordhouse moved from fullback to center/forward, and Amy Krajewski, who scored the last goal, played forward instead of her normal halfback position.

Estey had two first-half assists, Sarah Hayes and Teri King one each. Jennifer Degenhardt and Estey assisted on Wordhouse's scores, and senior sweeper Tracy Krajewski got an assist on her sister's goal.

Salem goalkeeper Ellen Schnackel achieved her third shutout, and Hayes, keeping with the prevailing light-hearted spirit of the second half, volunteered to be her relief in

MERCY 2, CANTON 0:The Marlins extended their winning streak to five games Wednesday with a monumental victory in the young program's brief existence

Mercy, 5-2 overall but unranked, knocked off the Chiefs, who had been ranked No. 1 in the state two weeks ago.

"That is probably the biggest victory in five years of Mercy soccer," coach Gene Fogel said. "(The Chiefs) are definitely a super team, and our kids just played the best game of their lives.

"The kids were keyed up for the game and just played their hearts and souls

Though Canton tended to dominate the action by keeping the ball in the Mercy end of the field, the Marlins, who have made stingy defense their trademark, continuously cleared the ball and denied the Chiefe the Chiefs.

The Marlins led 1-0 at halftime following a goal by Colleen Raftery. Stacy Nota's corner kick traveled to the near post where Dana Lehmkuhl flipped the ball back to the hard-charging Raftery, who directed the ball to the far side of the net.

Kelly Beaudry spent the first half in goal for the Marlins, making a fine save on a Canton breakaway. The ball bounced off her, and a defender was able to clear Fogel continued to alternate his goalies, and freshman Renee Larabell was equal to the task in the second half. She tipped a couple shots over the crossbar and made several diving saves.

"(Canton) started like a house afire in the second half," said Fogel of the offensive pressure the Chiefs applied. "They attacked us for about 10 minutes before we could settle down."

The unranked Marlins, who lost their first two games before starting their current hot streak, attempted 22 shots to Canton's 31. The Chiefs, rated No. 2 in the state last week, slipped to 6-2 overall.

"Some wins were against weaker teams, but nobody can deny Canton is a super, super team," Fogel said.

"The win, to me, proves my feeling that on any given day there are about 15 teams in the state that can beat anybody. The difference between being one of the top teams and an also-ran is maintaining consistency."

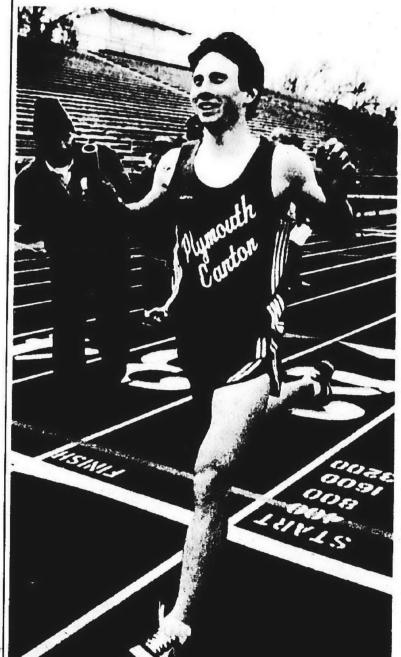

N. FARMINGTON 1, HARRISON 0: Beth Chrisco's first goal of the season was the difference in this intra-city rivalry Wednesday.

She broke the scoreless deadlock midway through the second half with a crossing shot from 10 yards out. North goalkeeper Leanne Adle got her second shutout of the season. The Raiders, 2-5 overall, had 10 shots on goal.

Bob Beebe crosses the finish line after running Canton's anchor leg in the 3,200-meter relay, which the Chiefs won Thursday in their dual meet with Livonia Churchill. The visiting Chargers, however, won the contest by an 82-55 score. Beebe's teammates on the relay team were Al Byrnes, Chris Way and Matt Littleton. Salem defeated Livonia Stevenson 77-60 in boys track. Canton had been lucky in the girls contest as the Chiefs defeated Churchill in a close meet 66-62. But the Salem girls were on the short end of a 10-point difference in their meeting with Stevenson, 69-59. See Page 2C for details of Thursday's track and field compe-

Salem raised its record to 5-2 overall. Stevenson is 3-4 overall, 1-3 in the Lakes.

The Spartans trailed 11-2 after 4½ innings, but scored seven runs in the last three to make it close.

Howie Blanchard came on in relief of Salem winner Dan Boyle, who had allowed three runs in the fifth. Blanchard gave up four more runs in the final two innings.

Mike Dalimonte started for Stevenson and suffered the loss.

Todd Marion led Salem's nine-hit attack with a 2-for-4 outing and three RBI. Steve Woodard had a double and single for the Rocks.

Stevenson collected 14 hits, an attack that was paced by Dalimonte and Dan Piergentili with three hits each. Piergentili and Jason Cotton had three RBI apiece.

One of Dalimonte's hits was a triple.

CANTON 9, CHURCHILL 0:Host Plymouth Canton won the Western Division contest behind the two-hit, shutout pitching of Jeff Kugelman, who lasted six innings.

Falcon alumnus new football coach

By Dan O'Meara staff writer

Rick Milhizer is the new varsity football coach at Farmington High School, but he's certainly no stranger to longtime Falcon fans.

He starred in three sports for Farmington a decade ago and then played four years of football at Michigan State.

Following his college graduation, the 29-year-old Milhizer returned to his alma mater as freshman football coach in 1982 and was a varsity assistant the next year.

He replaces Dave Catherman, who was Milhizer's high school position coach when the Milhizer was an all-state honorable mention defensive back in 1976. Catherman resigned after two seasons as head coach. The Falcons were 3-7 last year.

Milhizer, selected the most outstanding athlete in the Class of '77, returns to Farmington once again after spending the last four years as either a graduate or full-time assistant coach at three universities.

MOST RECENTLY, he was on the coaching staff at Wayne State. Before that, Milhizer served as a graduate assistant at New Mexico State (1984) and Tulane (1985-86).

The majority of his experience—as both a player and coach—has been on the defensive side of the ball, which causes one to assume he will emphasize defense in his new role with the Falcons. But Milhizer points out he worked with the offensive line at New Mexico and the offensive backs at Wayne.

"Right now, I'm more knowledgeable about defense, but I'm working to overcome that," he said. "It's very important to win with defense and kicking; that's what you stress. "There's nothing more frustrating

football

"There's nothing more frustrating than a defensive unit that can't stop somebody."

His experience as a college assistant and exposure to the game at that level will undoubtedly be beneficial in his new position, Milhiser believes. Defensively, he has coached the backs, inside and outside line-backers and special teams.

"PLAYING BIG-TIME football and being what I consider a student of the game, I thought I knew football," he said. "But when you go to college and are around (coaches) who make their living that way, you find out what football is all about.

"I found out how much I didn't know. It really sparked my interest and spurred me to want to know*as much as they did."

Milhizer, who still looks as if he could start in the MSU secondary at 6-foot-2 and 190 pounds, plans to employ the stunt, 4-3 defense at Farmington, the same pro-style system MSU coach George Perles has made popular with the Rose Bowi champion Spartans.

"Everywhere I've been, we've run the 5-2, but I believe MSU proved last year it's a really effective defense," he said.

"The reason I like the stunt 4-3 is because you need one good athlete at middle linebacker. (At other positions), you can get by with average talent if they're coached properly." MILHIZER, WHOSE resume reflects his strength in academic areas as well, took his undergraduate degree in hotel, restaurant and institutional management. But, while serving as a graduate assistant coach, he used that time to earn a master's degree in social studies.

He has been constantly on the go this spring, fulfilling his coaching duties at Wayne State, completing his education requirements as a student teacher at Birmingham Groves High and working part time at the Botsford Inn.

Because there was no teaching position available in the Farmington system, Milhiser will be limited to just coaching for now. Both he and the administration hope to employ him in the classroom also.

"They told me it's a high priority

Chiefs squeeze by with win

Plymouth Canton started off on the right foot in Western Division girls track Thursday, but it was a close call as the Chiefs took a 66-62 victory from Livonia Churchill.

Paced by Susan Ferko, the Chiefs, 1-0 in dual meets, gained the advantage in the field events, winning all four.

Ferko won the shot put (30 feet, 14 inches) and discus (102-9.)

All-stater Angie Miller cleared 4-11 to win the high jump, and Tanya Walaskay's leap of 15% won the long jump.

Miller also won the 400-meter race, crossing the tape at 1.04.3. Teammate Amy Van Buhler's time of 49.9 won the 300 hurdles. Churchill dominated the running events, with

Karen Kantor taking the spotlight, as she won three events. Kantor placed first in the 800, clocking a 2:35.7 time, the 1,600 at 5:54.5 and the 3,200 Gretchen Loyd won the 100 and 200 dashes for

Churchill in times of 12.9 and 27.1, respectively. Jennifer Danner ran a 17.7 to win the 100 hurdles. Churchill and Canton split the four relays, but girls track the Chiefs won the most important one - the last one which decided the outcome of the meet.

Miller, Kristie Brugar, Van Buhler and Tricia Carney won the 1,600 for Canton in 4:15.0. The Chargers were a ways back at 4:18.3. The 3,200 team of Sherry Figurski, Lori Penland, Missy Jasnowski and Marnie Smith won with a time of 10:23.9.

Churchill won the 400, where Nicole Powell, Danner, Alyssa Belaire and Loyd clocked a 53.1. Danner, Belaire and Loyd teamed with Colleen McPhee to win the 800 in 1:52.7.

STEVENSON 69, SALEM 59: The Rocks dropped their Lakes Division dual-meet opener Thursday, falling to 0-2 overall.

Salem placed first in the four field events, led by Shelley Bohlen's twin killing in the shot put and discus. Bohlen tossed the shot 32-8 and the discus

The 800 team of Sherry Reese, Jeanne Magoulick, Jennifer Petree and Hollman clocked a 1:56.9 to win and Reese, Magoulick, Bridget Sauk and Meloche won the 1,600 at 1:33.7.

Relay sweep big boost to Rocks

Plymouth Salem got past Livonia Stevenson Thursday by sweeping all four relays, enabling the Rocks to post a 77-60 boys track victory at Stevenson.

Only four of 13 individual events were captured by Rocks, and two of those were by Mike Park. Park's wins were in the 110-meter (15.3) and 300-meter (41.6) hurdles. Other Salem winners were Denny Reynolds in the 400 (55.1) and Alan Rye in the 800 (2:07.4).

Many of the best young bowlers around compete in the Pro Shoppe Doubles League at Drakeshire Lanes in Farmington.

The league is open to boys and girls, ages 7 to 21, who are into "highly competitive bowling," according to Kurt Suokas, co-proprietor of the Pro Shoppe, located inside the bowling alley. The league consists of 20 doubles teams.

After more than a year of waiting and searching for the right school, Steve Hawley found what he wanted

The Westland John Glenn graduate and Schoolcraft College basketball star signed with Hardin-Simmons University last week.

The small school - 3,500 students - is located in Abilene, Texas, and is hardly well-known in Michigan But it had what Hawley desired

"It has everything I was looking for in a school," the 6-foot-2 guard said. "They have a good schedule, I'll have a chance to play right away, they play the kind of style I like and I really like the people

Oh, yes - one other thing: Hardin-Simmons plays in the NCAA's Division I

THAT WAS Hawley's first requirement from the start. Despite a solid prep career and outstanding season at SC, few Midwestern schools showed any interest. When Hawley signed with Hardin-Simmons, his other planned visits were to University of Vermont and Brooklyn (N.Y.) College. He canceled both after visiting Abilene.

"They play a real good schedule and they're in a good conference," said Hawley. Among next season's non-league opponents are Arkansas, San Diego State, Auburn and Loyola-Marymount. All but San Diego State were in the NCAA tournament last season.

Hardin-Simmons is a member of the Trans-America Conference. Three of its teams played in postseason tournaments in '88. Hardin-Simmons finished fourth and was 18-10 overall.

The team is coached by Dick Danford, who stands 6-10 and played at Florida State. Hawley got the attention of Danford and assistant coach Dennis Harp by leading the Eastern Conference in scoring this season for SC, averaging better than 30 points per game.

Steve Hawley headed for Hardin-Simmons

ALSO IMPRESSIVE was his nearly 50 percent shooting from three-point range while playing for a team that offered little support.

Swing man Eric Adams led the conference in three-point shooting for Hardin-Simmons last season Adams has graduated; Hawley hopes to fill that void.

The team returns just one starter, point guard Cedric Evans, who was a second team all-conference selection. But there is plenty of size, with four players over 6-10 including 7-4 Birmingham Brother Rice grad Mike Lanier, who signed last month

Hawley, a better than 3.0 student who is tentatively planning to go into education, will have three years of eligibility remaining. Before that time is up, he hopes another goal is fulfilled.

"We may, in the future, come up here and play some Midwestern schools," he said. "I'm looking forward to that. I want to prove they made a mistake (by not signing

If Hawley's other goals reach fruition, some local coaches may see him before that - playing in a post-season tournament.

Debbie Smith was the winning pitcher, she surrendered four hits and three walks, striking out eight. Chris Nikkila was the loser for Churchill.

She had two of the Chargers' three hits. Canton improved to 5-1. Churchill is 0-8 overall, 0-5 in the Western Lakes.

SALEM 4. STEVENSON 1:Livonia Stevenson pitcher Trish Kosikowski gave up just two hits to host Plymouth Salem Friday, but issued 10 walks, and that was good enough to keep the Rocks unbeaten in WLAA

Salem scored three runs in the second inning on two hits, a walk and three wild pitches. Sandy Oberliesen singled to start the rally. Kim Berrie followed with a walk. Two wild pitches scored Oberliesen and put Berrie on third. Missy Viele tripled to score Berrie, and then came home on another wild pitch. Kosikowski gave Salem (7-1 overall, 6-0 in the WLAA) another run by walking four straight in the third. Stevenson got its only run in the first on Diane Buska's double. Kim Prokes also had a double, and Lisa Manning and Kosikowski each singled for the Spartans (5-6 over-Berrie was the winning pitcher. She allowed four hits and one walk, striking out three.

On Wednesday, Salem used a four-run rally in the seventh to win 7-5 at John Glenn. Rocket hurler Beth Wilson triggered the rally by walking the bases loaded. Ber-

Poor weather plagued both teams. "It was terrible said Salem coach Rob Willette "It was almost as bad as the Northville game, when it snowed only it rained steadily It's not fair to the players or the coaches. We spent most of the time trying to stay warm. But despite the conditions, we played well enough to win Berrie's pitching was the difference. She gave up six hits but walked just three, compared to Wilson's 12 walks, two hit batsmen and three hits.

N. FARMINGTON 5, W.L. CENTRAL 4:The Raiders collected the first softball win of the season among Farmington public schools behind Debbie Weintraub's solid pitching and strong hitting from Kelly Coulson and Amy Fletcher

Fletcher slashed a two-run single to ignite a three-run rally in the first, and the Raiders (now 1-5) never trailed. Fletcher added a run-scoring single in the third. Coulson went three-for-three at the plate and had an

Beth Wilson was the winning pitcher for Glenn which improved to 6-1 in the WLAA

GARDEN CITY 1, DEARBORN 0: Kristen Wasii turned in another strong pitching performance and sophomore Vicki Cook slashed the game-winning hit as Garden City stayed unbeaten in Northwest Suburban Wasii allowed just three baserunners on two hits and a walk. She struck out 10.

Outfielder Jennifer Perkins aided Wasil's shutout per formance with a superb catch in the fourth inning. Perkins then got the game-winning rally started in the sixth with a double. Denise Biegas' sacrifice bunt moved Perkins to third, and Cook came through with a double to score the game's only run

Incredible edibles

Pickled pig's feet, calves' brains and tripe are delicacies for some people. For others, the names alone are enough to induce bouts of nausea. But what are these incredible edibles? Street Scene takes a look at them on Page 6D.

Die Observer & Eccentric Newspapers

Monday, May 2, 1988 O&E

Yum, yum?

'Connoisseurs' savor their incredible edibles while others turn green

"I think it was swimming in a kind of broth made up of bits of

Author Buck Henry (describing a recent meal of tripe)

By Bill Kole staff writer

Don Bosco was only kidding when he hung a sign in the window of his Farmington Hills meat market that read, "Our tongue sandwich speaks for itself."

But some area diners don't have their tongues in cheek when they say they have a passion for the parts most butchers throw away.

They're connoisseurs who head straight for items with arguably deceptive names like tripe (oxen intestines), sweetbreads (calves' pancreas) and Rocky Mountain Oysters (pig testicles).

And they're undaunted by less adventurous meat-and-potatoes types, who insist that chewing on the likes of pickled pig's feet or smoked frog legs is taking the old maxim, "waste not, want not" a little too far.

TAKE VAHAN Grigorian, an Armenia-born tool maker from Bloomfield Township.

Every year, Grigorian and his male relatives defy their wives to brew a pungent, garlicky concoction they call khash, otherwise known as lamb's feet soup.

"It's not a delicacy, not really. In the old country they eat that," Grigorian said. "We boil it very slowly for several hours. There's a lot of garlic — so much garlic, it's unbelievable. When you walk in the house, it just hits you. It's terrible."

Grigorian said he and his companions eat the dish with vodka, thin pita bread — and gusto.

"We eat it in the morning around 9 a.m.," he said. "After this, you won't be hungry all day because it's hard to digest. It stays with you for two or three days. The mountain people eat it and then go out and plow all day."

The meal makes great leftovers when it congeals and can be cut into small pieces and eaten with hot mustard, Grigorian said.

LAMB'S FEET is just one of the items most shoppers shun on their way to the chip-and-dip aisle.

But jars of pig's knuckles, packages of headcheese and plastic buckets of chitterlings don't just sit there collecting dust.

If they did, large supermarket chains like Farmer Jack wouldn't waste valuable shelf space on them, said Gilbert Borman, spokesman for Borman's Inc., Farmer Jack's parent company.

sweethreads are not sellers. Americans love their hamburgers. Borman said. But we tailor our item list to what our customers want. It's all based on customer demand. If we have a store in a Jewish neighborhood, we'll have product line with a store in an Italian neighborhood, we'll make it a Little Italy."

Other area butchers say they don't sell enough pig snouts and organ meats to stock them regularly, but will wield their cleavers for customers with special requests.

THOSE CUSTOMERS are frequently foreign-born Americans

Fancy 'food': Dogs, squirts, bits of horror

By Bill Kole staff writer

Diners with a penchant for queer cuisine come from all kinds of cultures — and news of their dark desires isn't just found in the food pages.

Last year, newspapers throughout the West ran a tiny Associated Pressstory about the Chinese government's edict on one of that nation's delicacies:

Dogs.

The problem in Peking, the story said, was that increasing numbers of mainland. Chinese were favoring dogs as pets.

"From now on, all dogs, will be banned from private ownership except those bred solely for eating purposes, "the AP story quoted Chinese officials as saying.

THEN, THE Reuters news agency released a story about French President Francois Mitterrand's love for sea squirts, a cucumber-shaped marine creature.

The story said French havai officials allowed divers to gather sea squirts in high-security waters of the coast of Antibes, where Mitterand was attending a Franco-African summit meeting.

The expedition was ordered by the local mayor, who knew Mitterrand's notorious passion for sea squirts sauteed in oil and garlic.

Collecting antiques isn't for everybody, and it's not something only older people enjoy.

I have children that come in." said Ramona Hepfner of Rochester, a dealer of reference books on antiques and collectibles. One teenage girl Hepfner knows is interested in collecting jewelry.

'She's got every one of the jewelry books," said Hepfner, who works full time for the Budd Co. "This girl is really dedicated.

Baseball cards, comic books and other items are popular with the younger collectors

Gay Krug of Birmingham has also found interest in antiques and collectibles among younger people "I think there's an antique interest for everyone," Krug said. "Little kids even find interest. Krug and her husband, Bob, a General Motors employee, have a store, and have to build on it," she said. Hepfner also advised reading books before you start collecting.

"Get a good reference book first,"

Although some collectors may worry about the price of books, those books can pay for themselves by providing valuable information. Specialized newspapers and magazines also provide "background information on various antiques

"People should get into those, too," Hepfner said.

Hepfner agreed it's important to collect what you like. You may have difficulty selling what you've collected, so it's important that you like

"Sometimes it's hard to sell the stuff because you do like it," she Defining just what's an antique is somewhat arbitrary. Antiques are supposed to be 100 years old, but there's a great deal of interest in collecting newer things.

"ANY OF THE space program stuff would be collectible," Hepfner said. "There's also interest in costume jewelry from the 1940s and 1950s

Krug has found that for many people interest in antiques starts with "remembering what our mother had or our grandmother had. The beginning of it is remembering what grandma had."

Krug also advised collectors to keep an open mind. Although they may have a specific interest, it's possible to develop other interests.

And there's no shortage of things to collect, so the dealers advised narrowing your interests a bit.

"There's so much variety out there," said Bob Budrick of Belleville, one of the dealers at the Saline Antiques Show. "You have to pinpoint. It's best to really specialize.

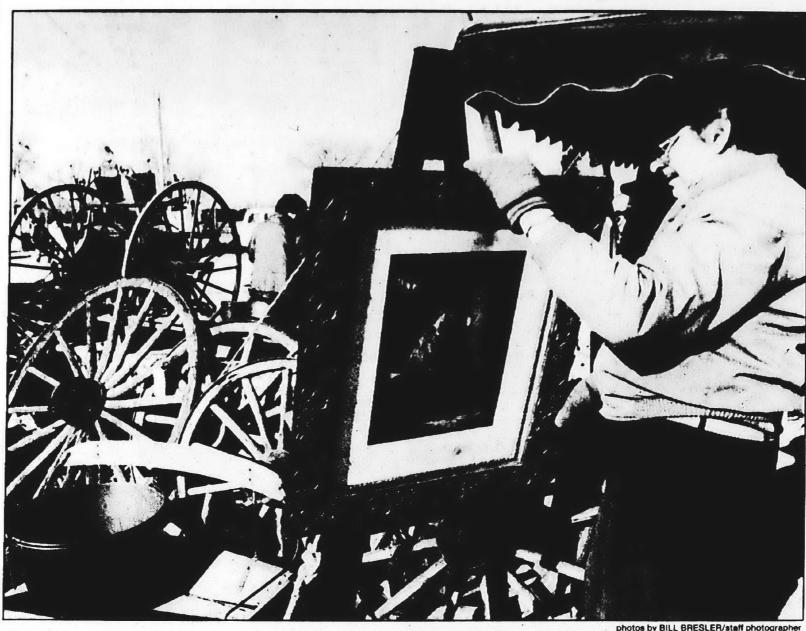

"You've got to pinpoint, so you can know what you're dealing with.

Budrick's wife, Connie, agreed. "Pick one thing and learn everything you can about it," she said.

The Budricks "strictly do shows' and participate in a number of them. "This is what we took up when my

IT'S IMPORTANT to be careful when purchasing antiques and collectibles, Budrick said. There are a number of reproductions out there and it's easy to get burned "So you've really got to watch yourself," he said.

The Budricks have found there's a great deal of interest in collecting antiques. People "really seem to go for the older stuff," often because the workmanship is superior to what's available today.

'You don't find any radios made with a cabinet like that nowadays,' Budrick said, referring to one of their radios on display at the show.

OFTEN, YOUNGER people first get interested in antiques when they receive something from a relative, Johnson said. It gets them started. And that interest in antiques is Bee Smith of Clio, Mich., collects mostly glassware, small primitives, milk bottles, linens and Depression glass. She's been involved in antique collecting for about 20 years.

"There is a lot of interest," Smith said. "People seem to be buying some of the better quality pieces."

LIKE THE other dealers at the show, Smith had some basic advice for novice collectors - look around and know the valuable piece before buying it. Collectors need to check for damage "and pay accordingly." Collectors should buy what they'd like to keep, Smith said, but should also consider the value of an item. Smith also has found that many young married couples collect things to use in decorating their homes. 'They're mixing antiques with the furniture and the other decorations with the country look," she said. "The antiques look nice with it."

Fuji and Kodak wage an academic 'battle'

By Sandy Colton AP Newsfeatures

Two of the largest film suppliers in the United States, Eastman Kodak and Fuji Photo Film USA, seem to be engaged in an economic battle that must be delighting educators.

They're both giving away money to schools.

Fuji, for example, is offering five scholarships to students studying photojournalism at the University of Missouri; other scholarships for outstanding students at the Brooks Institute of Photography in Santa Barbara, Calif., and another for an outstanding student at the School of Photographic Arts and Sciences at the Rochester (N.Y.) Institute of Technology.

In most cases, school faculty will pick the students who receive the scholarships. Each school also gets $1,000 in Fuji professional photo products.

Fuji also has announced that it will help build a laboratory for digital image processing (that's manipulation of photos via computer technology - something that will get more and more common as electronic still photography advances) at the Rochester Institute of Technology.

THE LAB will be part of a new $8.5 million Center for Imaging Science at RIT. When it is completed in the fall of 1989, it will be the largest academic facility in North America devoted to the

It also gave $20,000 in grants to RIT for its magnification laboratory, technical photography program and biomedical photographic communications department.

Kodak also has announced a 10year, $1 million commitment to the United Negro College Fund and has donated 15 Kodak Ektachrome color copiers, worth close to $1 million, to colleges and institutes in California, Illinois, Georgia, Florida, Pennsylvania, Texas, Rhode Island, New York and Michigan.

One of the lucky beneficiaries is Lansing Community College in

"Italians use a lot of tripe and sweetbread, and old-time Germans eat a lot of that stuff," said Greg Klank, owner of Bloomfield Quality

Meats in Bloomfield Township. "Still, I've sold maybe five pounds of that stuff in the last five years." Don Bosco, who runs Bosco's Prime Meats in Farmington Hills,

"We never tried to establish that market," said Bosco, who has tried stocking his shelves with chocolatecovered ants and canned octopus. But Bosco respects anyone who dares to dabble in the unusual.

What might be weird to you or me." he said, "might not be weird to somebody else with a different ethnic or religious background." Borman agrees: "An item that might be considered exotic in a white, middle-class suburb might not be in another place." But die-hard connois seurs are disappearing in an age of low-cholesterol dining, says Jim Gearin, a butcher at Penniman's Delicatessen in downtown Plymouth.

GEARIN SAID most of his customers who come in for fresh chicken or fish wouldn't dream of order-ing a hog's head or calves' brains for homemade headchesse.

'What might be weird to you or me might not be weird to somebody else with a different ethnic or religious background."

> —Don Bosco Bosco's Prime Meats

"The whole trend now has gone to the health foods," said Gearin. Changing meat inspection laws - and increased attention from federal officials — are making it difficult to get some items from the slaughterhouses, according to Denny Torpey of Torpey TJ Meat Market in Troy.

Torpey said he's only permitted to sell hearts, livers and tongues, which come fresh from a Port Huron meatpacking house.

But at $1.19 a pound, tongue is popular among budget-conscious shoppers because it's cheaper than $1.99-per-pound ground beef, said Torpey. And economics - not taste - may be the main reason why meat markets and some supermarkets carry unusual cuts of meat.

"We have a lot of customers who will order a dozen tongues at a time," Torpey said. "It's all meat. Nothing's wasted, and you can't say that for steak.'

It's just a matter of personal taste

accounts of freakish food was by best-selling author Buck Henry, who addressed outlandish hors d'oeuvres while on a recent talk show.

Henry was in Switzerland and dined at a famous restaurant called Jeredez outside Geneva.

"It's worth the drive, if you're in the vicinity — say North Africa," Henry said. "It's an event. The French take their cooking very seriously. Although it's in Switzerland, it's a French restaurant.

According to Henry, it's intimidat-ing to know "a major part of your personal fortune is going to be absorbed in lunch." But it's a theatrical event — the guys come out of the kitchen and shake your hand and cook things that you've never heard of," he said. You eat things you'd never think of eating anywhere else.

The French will cook anything that has ever moved, and they remove from the bodies of animals things that are ordinarily saved for autopsies in this country, and cook them up and give them to you."

Henry also recalled a visit to a Parisian restaurant that specialized in tripe (intestines).

"I was with some Americans and one of the Americans didn't want tripe; I joined him in that desire," Henry said. "He had roast beef, very - and when he cut into his roast beef, there was a Swiss girl who was eating her tripe - which was making us sick - and when she saw him cut into the roast beef, she fainted. So it's all in your point of

HENRY DESCRIBED the tripe as a kind of broth made up of bits of horror

As for getting his money's worth for his meal at the Swiss restaurant, Henry said: "You have to feel you got your money's worth, if you go to another country for a meal. Otherwise you're a big sucker.

"It's a great restaurant. If you're ver near Geneva, I suggest you drop in. Say I told you."

And the bill for Henry's lunch? "Around $250 for two."

Piling becomes filing with folder system

Q. What should I do with all my mail? Where do I go with coupons from the pizza parlor, things I need to photocopy, flyers from my congressman, requests from charitable organizations, etc.?

A. One of the main reasons papers (or other things) are left out is there is no place established to put them. Convert your piling system into a filing system store papers vertically, not horizontally. Stashing papers in a flat drawer or in stacks on your desks is ineffective.

Make files for every category. Be creative One of my most valuable files is labeled "Copies to Make." I carry it with me to do my copying on a regular basis. For voting references, keep campaign flyers in a "Political" file Be honest with yourself and pitch it now if you'll never look at it again, purge after each election.

A "Bills" folder holds anything that requires a check. File catalog orders or charitable contribution requests there and make out those checks while you are paying your

Your labels must have meaning to you. You may rebel against a negative name like "Bills to Pay", but "Financial Follow-Up" might sound better, or "Checks to Write" may call you to action. If it doesn't make sense, you may not use it.

Do not make a "Miscellaneous" file. That will automatically become an indecision catch-all and will soon begin to bulge. It's all right to have "Misc. Article Clippings" or "Misc. Travel Ideas," but be sure each miscellaneous folder is categorized.

Put your pizza coupons ina Restaurant or Fast Food folder and keep it current. Other folders might include: Today's Mail (for others in the house to see); To Do (sale notices, invitations, appointment remindrs, other followup); Personal Letters (to be kept only until answered); Warranties and Service Contracts; Schedules (of things you are involved in). Make other folders for children, church or organizations you belong to, special projects, etc.

If a folder begins to bulge or a drawer is crammed, it is time to clean out. Never add folders or file drawers before organizing your existing space.

Each time you see a collection of five or 10 papers of a category, consider making a separate folder; fewer than that may be combined with another similar topic.

In previous columns you have heard me sing the praises of an upholstered line by Sherrill Manufacturing Co. They will be represented in the Michigan Design Center by Campbell Louis. Sherrill has broadened its line and is now bringing in decorative pieces from the Far East.

The Sherrill Co. is very flexible. You can COM (Customer's Own Material) or use one of their many fabrics. Their upholstery and time delivery is excellent.

If you are working with an interior designer, ask to see the Campbell Louis show-room. The pieces will be on the floor in the next few weeks.

WHILE VISITING NEW York last week, I found a great source for those of you who are considering building a new home or renovating your present one.

Irreplaceable Artifacts on Second Avenue has 12 floors of goodies. These floors are filled with architectural ornaments taken from famous demolished buildings. Their stock is representative of all periods through Art Deco. You will find interior and exterior doors, glass, fireplace mantels, gates, etc.

Let me tell you about an experience I had along these lines. Some 20 years ago, I was working with a client and her architect. We decided the entry doors must be the focal point of the house. The house was to have 10-foot ceilings. With that in mind, I proceeded to shop for interesting doors plus an overdoor.

During this time, Chicago had its spring furniture market. I walked the streets that were known for their fine antiques. When I got to Wells Street, there they were staring at me. The doors and the overdoor were on the entrance of an antique shop. Much pleading and bargaining ensued. I won—the sale was made and for $350, a set of leaded and stained glass doors with matching overdoor went to my client's home in

Five years later, that same house was sold minus the doors. The doors went to a new house in Bloomfield Hills. These same people are now residents of Scottsdale, Ariz. and their present home now has the doors. My client tells me they have been insured and appraised at today's values for $35,000.

Soul food

Stalking rarer flowers on their own ground

OMETIME AFTER the last snows have melted from the cross-country ski trails and before the last day of school, Michigan's forests and fields, dunes, parks, and even roadsides start serving up special treats for anyone who wants to make the effort to enjoy them.

Treats for the eye and the palate and, some would say, the soul.

The state that gave the world the V-8, power steering, and the first stoplight also gives the visitor nearly 19 million acres of forest, 2,100 species of plants - including 50 varieties of orchids - and a mushroom with an almost mystical reputation: the morel.

From now through early June, wildflowers will spread a blanket of color on the førest floor and across the fields and roadsides, moving steadily northward as if smoothing the way for the arrival of summer.

Many of the early spring wildflowers can be spotted easily from a passing car: the large white-flowered trillium, the trout lily, the marsh marigold, the redbud. In fact, one county road running north out of Niles in Berrien County is so well-decorated each May that it is nicknamed the "Redbud Trail." But the greatest pleasure comes to those who get out of the car and stalk the rarer flowers on their own ground.

VIRTUALLY ALL of Michigan's 94 state parks and recreation areas — not to mention its thousands of acreas of state and national forests and national parks and lakeshotes — are ideal stalking grounds.

Wilderness State Park — that finger of land pointed westward into Lake Michigan just south of the Mackinac Bridge is one example. One spring not long ago, a weekend trek through the park (with hand-written notes on a map provided by the park ranger) led visitors to the exotic calypso and goat's beard orchards and other hard-to-find flowers the fringed polygala and several irises.

Similar experiences can be had at most state parks, although the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) remainds that it is illegal to remove plants from the park. All trilliums and orchids and the 200 or so endangered or threatened plants are also protected by law.

ONE STATE PARK, Hoffmaster near Muskegon, celebrates the spring wildflower season with a festival that comes just in time for flowerhunter of another color. The May-7-8 Trillium Festival makes a perfect overture to the Tulip-Time Festival (May 11-14) at nearby Holland.

In addition to such northern orchids as pink, yellow, and showy lady's slippers, you will find such unique flowers as the dwarf lake iris (which grows nowhere else but on the northern shores of Lake Huron and Michigan), the pitcher's thistle and the Lake Huron tansy.

Meanwhile, it has become incresingly easy to look for wildflowers through the windshield of your car since 1975, when the DNR, the Michigan Department of Transportation, and the Federal Highway Administration joined with the Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan, Inc., in "Operation Wildflower," a program to grace Michigan roadsides and major entrances to the state with prairie and meadow species of snowy native wildflowers.

Now is the time to search for another Michgian plant not much to look at, but delightful to eat: the morel mushroom. Books have been written about morels: myths have grown up around their growing habits; families have kept their favorite morel hunting grounds secret for generations; towns plan festivals around them; and gourmet restaurants build whole menus around this strange-looking mushroom. It is shaped like a pitted bishop's mitre, and this peculiarity is a key to distinguishing the morel from other, often inedible, wild mushrooms. The DNR has this to say:

"ALL SPECIES OF Morchella found in Michigan have one characteristic in common: their caps are pitted with little hollows, as if holes had been punched partway through them. (Others) may be ridged, wrinkled, waved or even quite smooth, but in any case they do not have hole-like pits."

They flourish form late April to mid-June, although May is usually regarded as "Morel Month" in Michigan. Legend has it that they grow in the north woods, but the truth is that they can be found almost anywhere in the state. A warm and wet spring is ideal; cold and dry can mean failure of almost the entire crop.

A guidebook to wild mushrooms is a must for novices. The DNR recommends "The Mushroom Hunter's Field Guide" by Alexander H. Smith and Nancy Smith Weber, published by the University of Michigan Press and available from the publisher, in many bookstores, or from the DNR's Michigan Book Central (P.O. Box 30034, Lansing, 48909) at $14.95; or its own 200-page "Morel Hunter's Companion" by Weber, available in June for $14.95 or at the pre-publication price of $11.95 by calling 1-800-292-2525 in Michigan or 1-800-248-5848 out-of-state.

The DNR and Michigan Travel Bureau also have produced a guide to Michigan moels, which says the popular black morel "fruits in early to mid-May under aspen, birch, and balsam fir, and occasionally under maple... The white morel, often called sponge mushroom, fruits in latter half of May. Found in a wide variety of habitats, including old orchards, beech-maple forest, oak woods, burned-over meadows, and occasionally on lawns..."

Arbor Village: Balancing quality, price

By C. L. Rugenstein special writer

IGH QUALITY and low prices are important considerations to buyers of condominiums. Builder S. Roy Johnston has tried to incorporate those ideals into his Arbor Village development in Canton Township, in the path of the westward housing boom.

To keep prices down and quality high, Johnston has eliminated things like the clubhouse and pool common to many condo complexes, and added other features like two skylights per unit as standard items.

"That's what's making our sales so great," Johnston said. With the site still under construction to complete the planned 206 units of the $20 million development by April 1989, four of the condos are already occupied, with about another 15-20 buyers ready to move in soon.

THE TWO- BEDROOM condos come in two styles: the Bristol Ranch with approximately 1,050 square feet and the Cameron two-story townhouse with slightly less footage, according to salesman Dick Hall.

Base price for the Bristol is $69,900. The only options on the model/sales office were the marble-faced fireplace, which comes with a choice of four colors of marble; and the wood deck off the living room sliding doors.

The sliding doors open onto the enclosed courtyard and are standard, as are central air conditioning, Whirlpool appliances in the kitchen and the cathedral ceiling.

Both the ranch and townhouse have bay windows, and full. unfinished basements with lots of headroom for dropped ceilings and recessed wiring for later finishing.

An innovative touch is the two skylights. In the Bristol, the sky lights are located in the bathroom and kitchen, giving the living-dining area an even more open feeling. In the townhouse, the skylights are located in the bathroom and wood-railed open stairwell.

Base price for the townhouse is $67,900 and it comes standard with a half-bath off the kitchen. Kitchen and dining areas are combined, with the dining area carpeted to the edge of the kitchen. The bay window in the dining room gives the feeling of added space.

Sales for the two different models are running even with the townhouse slightly more popular Johnston noted.

Buyers tend to come from opposite ends of the home buying spectrum.

"We're attracting a lot of young people in their 20s who are buying them as starter homes," Johnston said, "and also a lot of retired and semi-retired people who want them as second homes. They like the feeling that they can go away to Florida and know their home will be safe.

Arbor Village is Johnston's first residential condominium project. Prior to this his company, S.R. Johnston had built mainly office buildings and about 25 custom homes a year throughout the metro area.

Johnston's company formerly did the old Federal's Inc. department stores, stepping into the gap when Alfred Taubman stopped building them. Johnston's company was also responsible for the remodling of Federal Hardware at Southfield and 10 Mile Road.

Last year Johnston's company celebrated its 50th year in the construction business. His father Stanley started the business in 1937, and with Johnston's sons Kirk and Ken helping him, it remains a family business.

Johnston is a designer by trade, and is still making changes in his architect's design as building progresses.

"One reason we're so successfull is because we've tried to keep the quality up," Johnston said.

One accommodation he offers to older buyers who have trouble negotiating basement stairs is a first floor laundry in the ranch condo. Johnston can put in a stacking or side-by-side laundry unit. "If the buyer doesn't mind losing some of the linen closet."

The condos are built in groups of eight-two townhouses flanked by two ranches, backing up to the same.

Arbor is also close to I-96 and I-275, and Ford and Haggerty Roads for those who still have to go to work each day. Association fees are $65 per month and include use of the commons area, lawn sprinklers throughout the project, snow removal and grounds maintenance.

"People forget that when they enter a condominium such as ours, they're entering a private community," Dick Hill said. To increase this privacy a six-foot-high simulated brick wall will be built between Arbor Village and the subdivision to the west and south of it. Planting of several varieties of trees are planned, along the wall and throughout the complex.

Arbor Village models are open daily from noon to 6 p.m. Dick Hill is on hand during the week to answer questions, and is assisted on weekends by Candice Cubba. For more information, call 397-8080
