Booked

Students at Agape Christian Academy, Plymouth, will not have to travel far to have the world at their fingertips. The World Book Encyclopedia that is.

Seventy-six students at the school staged a fund-raiser where they received pledges for the number of books they read. Money raised would be used to buy a set of the encyclopedias. And the students read 1,063 books earning $4,200 in pledges.

Through a World Book program called "Partners in Excellence," the school also received $2,100 in matching funds from the publisher.

The money raised and donated allowed the school to buy six sets of the encyclopedias, 23 dictionaries and variety of other publications.

Tenor greeting

When opera great Luciano Pavarotti arrived in Detroit last week, he was greeted by some local folks.

Two of the Calhoun clan of Plymouth, Leslie, 9, and Lindsay, 10, were on hand at the airport to welcome the singer to Motown.

The young girls who recently earned their first roles in an upcoming Michigan Opera Theatre production were selected as official greeters. The pair presented the singer with some flowers and offered some words of welcome, according to mom Diane. "They're rapidly becoming opera fans," she said about her daughters.

Chamber change

"We've run out of space," said Mary O'Connell Roehr, executive director of the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce.

So the chamber will be packing its things and move from its rather hidden location on Ann Arbor Trail to Main Street.

The new headquarters will be in the former Detroit Edison office with 600 square feet upstairs and 1,800 square feet downstairs, Roehr said. The chamber will make the move into its new quarters July 1, just in time for the annual July Fourth parade.

"That was the location our board has identified for many years as the ideal location for the chamber," Roehr said. "It will be a terrific location for us."

In its present location with 990 square feet, Roehr said all the chamber committees were meeting all over the place.

"We now have five standing committee plus our board meeting, executive committee, subcommittees. Our smallest is 15 members. They meet at five different locations at five different times.

Now they will all be able to meet at the new headquarters, she said.

Not married

Homeowners interested in selling their houses should keep in mind that potential buyers will not always be couples.

That's the word from the Western Wayne Oakland County Board of Realtors who conducted a survey of buyers this spring.

Nearly one in four buyers were single. Single women accounted for 12 percent of all buyers while single men totaled 11 percent.

"Faced with increasing rental costs, today's singles are discovering that building equity in a home investment mak good sense in planning their futures," said Marjory Pickett, president of Metro Multiple Listing Service.

And both single home buyers and married couples have some bargains in this area. Nationally, the median home price was about $00,000 while the local figure is about $00,000, she said

Board seats, tax increase vote is today

By Doug Funke staff writer

Two seats on the Plymouth-Canton board of education and $3.8 million in property tax revenue are at stake today in the annual school election.

Polls in 14 precincts will remain open until 8 p.m.

Fifteen candidates seeking two four-year terms plus a ballot proposal asking for a tax increase in the form of a Headlee Amendment override are expected to draw a largerthan-usual voter turnout.

Upward of 10,000 voters - 15 percent of those eligible to vote — could participate, projected Richard Egli, community relations director for the schools.

The ballot proposal asks for permission to set the tax rate at $37 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation (half of market value). The schools now are limited to a rate of $34.17 per $1,000 of SEV.

THE DIFFERENCE in taxes to the owner of a $100,000 house is nearly $142. The difference in revenue to the schools is about $3.8 mil-

If the ballot proposal fails, the district will eliminate 49 teaching positions and implement a participation fee for extracurricular activities. Other cuts also have been announced.

This will be Plymouth-Canton's fourth attempt to increase taxes by a Headlee Amendment override or a millage increase since February

"I'm cautiously optimistic people will realize the extent to which it impacts on the school district," said Superintendent John M. Hoben.

"I can appreciate the fact people don't want additional taxes, but we've never been in this position before," he said. "The loss of state aid and Headlee have put us in a precarious situation.

DAVID ARTLEY, board president, said school officials have placed all of their financial cards on the table.

"I think a lot of people are appreciative. . . that at least the issue is clear this time," Artley said. "The board approved the budget, and the implication of cuts are no longer implications. It's what is.

Citizen committees have been formed to both promote and oppose the tax increase

"It is a school system that always spends carefully," said John Lore, a spokesman for the pro-millage group. "We've always run thin."

Diane Daskalakis explained that her group opposes the millage because the school board has not been responsive to its concerns about learning materials in the classroom.

"It's just too much of them to ask of us now when we're worlds apart." she said.

MILLAGE SUPPORTERS believe that a large voter turnout is necessary for the proposal to pass. The district's financial position has received all kinds of publicity in recent months.

"If they're not aware of the issue, they've been on a long vacation," Artley said of the electorate.

Fifteen candidates, including incumbents E.J. McClendon and Lester Walker, will contend for two seats open on the school board. The challengers are Mark Beauchene, Mary Dahn, Janet Drass, Milan Emanuele, Barbara Graham, Kent Jensen, Allen Kinsler, Annette Remsburg, Frank Riley, Mary Roberson, Richard Sumpter, John Thomas and Leon Watkins.

Drought doesn't touch Plymouth

staff writer

Record-setting temperatures and a lack of rain have combined to cause low water pressure and plenty of headaches for Wayne County homeowners.

In Redford Township, pressure dropped so low earlier this month that schools were forced to close. Redford and Livonia residents are permitted to water their lawns just every other day.

Communities in western Wayne County receive their water from Detroit, which also has experienced difficulties with water pressure this spring.

Fortunately for Plymouth and Plymouth Township residents, water pressure hasn't been a big problem; nor is it expected to be, even if hot, dry weather continues

"Detroit was putting out so much water they couldn't keep up with the

Defending against vandalism difficult for schools and police

By Peggy Aulino staff writer

When school windows are boarded up during the summertime, it doesn't mean there's broken glass behind them. It means school personnel are trying to prevent vandals from damaging the property.

That - as well as relying on alarm systems and hoping the fear of getting caught will be a deterrent is about the only defense schools have against broken windows and other forms of vandalism.

"There's really no other choice," said Jack Rychlicki, the Plymouth-Canton school district's supervisor of maintenance and operations.

Rychlicki said broken windows are the most prevalent form of vandalism in the district, but there are occasionally more serious crimes committed in or outside schools.

THE MOST recent act of vandalism reported to police occurred May 18 at Eriksson Elementary School on North Haggerty Road, Canton Township.

Police reports say that someone entered the building between 7 and 10:30 p.m. and threw paint on carpeting, chalkboards and walls. Glue was also poured on carpets. Outside, obscenities were painted on bricks on the south side of the building.

Police have estimated that it will cost $2,500 to repair the damage. Raymond Hoedel, the district's associate superintendent for business, said vandalism is "bad enough to cause us some concern," but he said Please turn to Page 2

Basically, we have our own pump stations, so pressure doesn't affect us. Our fairways and greens are in real good shape. We're doing an awful lot of watering, but we have a fully automated system."

The new water main going in along Joy Road "won't affect things," said Joseph Teramino, Canton assistant DPW director.

"It seems like it possibly will create new water services to the western part of Canton Township. It's hooking onto the existing water main that runs down Joy to Napier, and (that) is going south down Napier along the Canton and Superior Township border."

Farmers in parts of Wayne, Washtenaw and Hillsdale counties were given permission by the U.S. Department of Agriculture to begin emergency haying and grazing "due to on-going drought conditions," according to U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Plym-

Prisons comply with cap

The prison population in Plymouth and Northville townships came back down to legal limits Thursday.

In May, a judge gave corrections officials until June 5 to reduce the number of inmates in the Western Wayne Correctional Facility in Plymouth Township and the Scott Regional and Phoenix Correctional facilities in Northville Township.

"They did not comply by June 5 but they had complied as of yester-Ernest Essad, Northville Township's attorney, said Friday.

Western Wayne now has 500 inmates, while Scott and Phoenix have 528 and 311, respectively.

Charles Farmer had ordered the facilities to adhere to the prison population caps, established in Decmber 1986. On June 2, the state Department of Corrections appealed that ruling, asking that it be overturned and a stay of the order issued.

ESSAD SAID the stay request is now moot because the prisons have complied with the order.

"I don't know if the appeal is going to continue," Essad said. He said he thinks the appeal may still be pursued "so they can re-overcrowd the

The corrections department had also sought to have the state Legislature erase the prison caps, a move that was supported by only one representative.

In mid-May, Western Wayne - a medium-security prison - had 43 more inmates than is allowed by Earlier this year, a corrections official told the Observer intakes at the facilities had reached an all-time high. That influx of prisoners sparked the action on the part of Northville Township.

Few changes predicted with new shoplifting law

By Peggy Aulino staff writer

The ink is barely dry on new laws designed to get tough on shoplifters, so few area law enforcement personnel and merchants know what effect the provisions will have on the prob-

And some have expressed doubt that there will be much difference in how they handle people with sticky fingers.

The laws allow a "private person," such as a store security guard, to arrest a suspected shoplifter. The law also give merchants the right to file a civil suit against a shoplifter and make parents financially liable for offenses committed by juveniles.

"It's a continuous problem. I'm not sure how the law is going to help," said Robert Crocker, owner of the 7-Eleven Food Store in Canton Township.

Crocker said he tells his employees "not to get physical" with shoplifters.

"THE LAST thing we want is for our employees to get hurt," he said. So he doubts giving them the authority to make arrests will have much effect on the shoplifting problem.

And as far as filing a civil suit against a shoplifter, Crocker said: "You can't sue someone over a 40cent candy bar."

Gilbert Borman, director of public relations for Farmer Jack Markets, said the company loses "a lot of money, and I mean a lot of money" to shoplifters each year. So he said the store 'wouldn't hesitate" to sue a shoplifter, "especially if they've got a prior record.'

Judge John Garber of the 35th district court said the effect of the laws on the criminal court system will be 'absolutely minimal.'

Garber said shoplifting, which in legal parlance is called "larceny in a building," is a felony.

Prosecutors have the option of charging shoplifters with a misdemeanor, which is how the cases of first offenders are usually handled in Wayne County, he said.

Seeking a misdemeanor conviction "takes less time to process" than a felony "and the result is probably going to be the same," Garber said.

Stan Wilson, loss prevention manager of the K mart store in Canton, said the laws, which took effect June 1, may have been designed with more metropolitan areas in mind. Big-city police departments give a low priority to shoplifting arrests, he

"IN DETROIT, if it's not a murder, forget it," he said. So it would be helpful in such areas for a store to be able to handle the situation without police assistance.

Police officials in the Plymouth/ Canton area say they can and do respond quickly to such calls. But they say they don't get an inordinate amount of shoplifting complaints.

Plymouth Police Chief Richard Myers said he's surprised there aren't more reports of shoplifting in his jurisdiction.

With a city that has the density of commercial business that we have, I can't believe how few shoplifting complaints we get," Myers said.

Garber said it is unclear how stores will handle the job of issuing a summons to people who have been caught shoplifting. The suspect would be given an appearance ticket and failure to show up in court would result in an arrest warrant being is-

But the judge said appearance tickets are numbered and must be monitored by the court. Distributing them to stores creates a procedural problem that, as far as he knows, has yet to be addressed by the state

Garber said he thinks the law was designed mainly to protect merchants against suits from people who are wrongly accused of shoplifting

Mary O'Connell Roehr, executive director of the Plymouth Area Chamber of Commerce, said store owners often "err on the side of caution" when confronted with a sus. pected shoplifter.

"I THINK after they recognize that they have additional rights they might be more willing to exercise them," Roehr said. Still, she said. merchants may be hesitant to make arrests before there is a legal precedent set.

"Laws may be passed, but some times I think it's good to use a little caution until it's been tested in a court of law," she said.

Roehr said few retailers are familiar with the new law, but she plans to alert chamber members its intricacies in the next issue of the organization's newsletter.

Convicted shoplifters will still face fines and prison terms, but un der the new law, stores can also them to small claims court.

There, the accused can be forced to pay the merchant the amount of the stolen item plus 10 times its val ue up to $100.

Merchant alert helps against shoplifting went into effect. Plymouth area merchants were taking steps to protect themselves against thieves.

The Small Business and Letail Committee of the Plymouth Area Chamber of Commerce began a 'merchant alert" program a few months ago to help shopkeepers combat shoplifters.

A program participant who notices a suspicious person in his or her store sets off a chain of phone calls that tells other merchants to be on the lookout for that person.

Within 10 minutes, 25 stores ar alerted to a potential problem," said Mary O'Connell Roehr, the cham ber's executive director.

Roehr said the person who initi ates the alert gives a description of the suspect and those in the chain are "instructed to watch out" for the culprit.

Nancy Ball, the proprietress of Hands on Leather in Plymouth and chamber member, said the program 'seems to be working out real well

"I know at least one case where couple of older women actually go from store to store." Ball said

Changes in the way Wayne County pays poor people's health care bills will save the county an estimated $13 million this year, county executive Edward McNamara said Fri-Tighter monitoring of indigent pa-

McNamara called the savings the financially strapped county's "greatest step yet toward permanent sol-

Savings estimates are based on records compiled during the first six weeks of a contract with United American Healthcare Corp. The private, Detroit-based firm has administered the county's indigent health care program since April 18.

Under the county's new "prior authorization" system, hospitals must call United American Healthcare before admitting patients they believe

County reports $13 million medical savings are eligible for county aid. The firm then determines whether the patient

> FOR ONCE, the county knows how many patients there are and what kind of services they're receiving," said Vernice Davis-Anthony, county director of health and community services.

In the past, McNamara said, the county frequently wasn't notified until patients were discharged. As a result, he said, the county ended up paying for ineligible patients.

Past bills have been referred to county legal offices, McNamara added, to determine if the county was charged for services in excess of patient needs

The prior authorization program doesn't deny medical services to needy county residents, McNamara

Payments changes occur for postemergency room treatment.

During its first six weeks as county administrator United American Healthcare has rejected roughly onequarter of payment requests filed by area hospitals, while another 25 percent of the claims are still pending.

Rejected patients are referred to Medicare and other health care assistance programs. If patients aren't eligible for any assistance, hospitals provide services without charge. Hospital officials, however, said free services to indigent patients eventually result in higher costs for other United American Healthcare is receiving $490,000 - $98,000 a month over the life of its five-month contract with the county.

The firm will continue to monitor county patients until Oct. 1. By that time, McNamara said, the county hopes to create a health maintenance organization for needy residents, generating even greater health care savings

While saying hospitals were working with the county to bring costs down, hospital industry spokesman said the new health care program hasn't been trouble-free.

"We're working with the county to improve the system, but it's not as if there aren't bugs," said Donald Potter, president of the Southeast Michigan Hospital Council

Determining patient eligibility before providing non-emergency services has been a big adjustment, Potter said

'This is something that's never been done before," he said. In addition, Potter said he didn't believe overcharging was a major

'If it's true it's probably in the big minority of cases - maybe one in 10,000," he said. "There's a danger in making hospitals the bad guy. Hospitals don't determine the level of care, physicians do and most physicians are independent contractors

Markham's legal odyssey revisited

outh at the turn of the century involving Phil Markham, the air rifle king, his wife, Carrie, and his young secretary, Blanche Shortman, that: aused a scandal at the time, is known to most readers of this col-

They know that after Carrie died . in 1910. Phil married Blanche in the following year and moved into the hig white house he had built for her earlier, opposite his own residence on Kellogg Park.

They know the Markhams neighoors still gave the couple the cold shoulder even after the marriage, so they pulled up stakes. Phil sold his ir rifle company, and they moved to California where he made another fortune in Hollywood real estate.

And they know that when Markham died in Glendale in 1930, leavng an estate valued at $2 million, he off only token amounts to his son, Leigh, and his daughter, Maude, They are also aware that Maude tried to break the will and lost, the bulk of Markham's money going to his widow, Blanche, and, after her death, to the four children of the lawyer who drew up the will.

WHAT FEW know, however, are the details of why the court ruled' against Maude and why the children of the lawyer were able to keep their inheritance. I didn't know it myself until I did some research at a law library during a recent winter spent in California.

Then it became clear that the belief of many older residents of Plymouth that the Markham children had been "cheated" out of their inheritance by the lawyer who drew up the will was far off the mark.

The lawver's name was Harlan Palmer, and the Palmers were Holywood neighbors of the Markhams. Both lived in large houses at the corner of Sunset and Vine streets, then its executor. In his will. Markham left lifetime annuities as follows: $250 monthly each to his children, Leigh and Maude: $240 a month to Ben Sprague, "a friend and chum"; $150 a month each to Isa Markham, Ed Jenkins and E.S. Roe. "friend and foreman," and $100 a month to his sister, Louise Markham.

THE BALANCE of the estate went to his widow. Blanche C. Markham. and upon her death on August 4, 1937, to the four children of the Palmers, with their father as the

In September 1930, four months after Phil Markham died, his daughter, Maude, engaged Paul Voorhies, a Plymouth lawyer and later attorney general of the State of Michigan, to go to California and look into the matter for her. Upon his return he advised her that it would not be to her best interest to contest the will.

She let matters rest until January 1937, then began court action, contending that the will was procured by fraud and undue influence exercised upon her father by his attorney, Harlan Palmer.

The court ruled against her, saying their was no evidence of fraud or undue influence. Further, the action was barred by the Statute of Limitations and because she had received and retained money paid to her under the terms of the will.

Maude appealed and the case was tried in the District Courts of Appeal of the State of California from January 27 to March 13, 1940.

DURING THE testimony it was brought out that letters from Markham to his son and to his attorney both before and after the execution of the will appeared to be the work of a clear-minded, vigorous man who

Also introduced was a letter Markham wrote to Palmer a few months before his death giving reasons why he did not intend to leave any of his property to his two chil-

Ben Sprague, Markham's chauffeur and longtime friend, testified that in January, Markham told Sprague he was going to give his property to the Palmer children. If given to his daughter, she would, said Markham, buy a Rolls Royce, and raise hell and kill herself. If given to Leigh he would huild a church on every corner in Hollywood.

"I am going to give them enough so they cannot starve. Let him work a little, I worked. If I leave it to the Palmer children, Judge Palmer will take care of the estate, and if I left it to any other way there would not be any of them have $300 in five years. I want to keep it carefully and give it to somebody that will take care of

A short time before he executed his will, Markham told Sprague the Palmer children should not be disturbed in their play at the Markham home because the place would sometime belong to them.

The appeals court confirmed the judgment of the lower court in denying Maude's plea for a new trial. Unsuccessful in both of her suits, Mrs. Maude Lillian Markham O'Brien died in Detroit four years later, on July 19, 1944. Leigh lived until June 20, 1970, dying at the age of 82.

Flagpole outranks art in eyes of bureaucrats

IF EVER there was a symbol of the suburban past, it has got to be

And if ever there was a symbol of the American farm, it has got to be the farmyard gate.

At least this is what sculptor Michael Hall had in mind when he designed "Covington," an art piece that sits in front of an office building on Northwestern Highway Hall specializes in art that reflects America's past.

But the bureaucratic whiz kids at the Farmington Hills Zoning Board of Appeals have another idea. They call it a structure. Not only is it a structure, they say, it also is a nonconforming structure that has to go.

To add insult to injury, the supervisor of code enforcement says a flagpole or sign would be more suited. But never this structure.

ART AFICIONADO Gilbert Silverman takes umbrage at this slap aimed at artistic expression. He vows to fight the order in court.

So instead of a farmyard gate, we've come up with a farmgate

Go get 'em, Gill. On the one side we have a renowned artist's work being defended by a horde of art lovers and experts. On the other hand, we have the belligerent bureaucracy defaming a piece of legitimate sculpture, digging in its heels and stubbornly refusing to recognize that art comes in many shapes and sizes.

A few weeks back, Creative Living editor Co Abatt caught my ear as she was working on a piece about this mini tempest. We laughed at the idea that a governmental body would actually waste taxpayers' dollars even debating the issue.

BUT AS we've seen of late, city governments seem to delight in miring themselves in trivia. As mentioned last week, in Troy they beef about the Big Boy

And while it is difficult to get up too much of a head of steam about the Big Boy, it is annoying as hell to think a local zoning board would choose a flagpole over a piece of art. Now, it really doesn't matter whether everyone likes it. Most artists' work is maligned at one time or another if it shows even the slightest bit of ingenuity. Remember that the most-visited monument in Washington, D.C., the Vietnam Memorial, was held up to public derision by

Steve Barnaby

WHAT MATTERS is that artists are allowed to express themselves without being held up to scrutiny by common part-time volunteer paper chasers.

To be sure, the '80s have been a time of social mediocrity. Few pieces of great art have been produced in any media, be it print, paint or otherwise. Society has put a great bit of importance on conforming and conspicuous consumption.

And to a great extent it has succeeded in suppressing American creativity.

But "Covington" is a demonstration that art survives and survives very well as part of our environment, despite the naysayers.

Let the gate stay. And may every flagpole be replaced by a piece of art that's just as good.

What's going on at church?

To the editor:

I've been following with mounting interest your numerous articles concerning Our Lady of Good Counsel Catholic parish.

Their latest escapade of having a parishioner arrested because she wanted to attend her parish commission and council meetings goes beyond all understanding let alone Christian charity. How can it be that a family member of a parish can be arrested for "trespassing" on their own property? Mrs. Jean wasn't the only one denied access and threatened with police action that night concerning those meetings.

Are parishioners aware that those meetings are only held every two months, that the Education Commission meeting two months ago was closed to the public, and for them to close this one also, would make it two consecutive meetings closed to the public?

Better still, what might have been going on at those meetings that night that they wanted to keep secret? Was there another deceitful Arthur Street house purchase in the works?

Questions we Christians want answered are: Who is divisive in breaking up the church community? And who is persecuting whom?

Each type has its own pattern of joint involvement, treatment, and long term outcome. Yet, you can have an arthritis that physicians can't recognize. How can that situation occur? How do physicians treat an arthritis if they don't know what it is? Each person has a uniqueness that can show itself when the body reacts against a virus, bacteria or other insulting agent. Even if doctors could identify one thousand different kinds of arthritis, the variety of the human response would outwit them. Therefore, physicians have grown accustomed to dealing with an arthritis which cannot be classified.

Predicting outcome is difficult. However, experience has shown that the longer the arthritis stays without including more joints, the more likely that in time, the arthritis will leave.

Treatment of an arthritis of unknown type includes aspirin and similar drugs, heat, rest, and injection therapy. This regimen is useful for joints whenever inflammation is present, no matter what the cause.

No surprise as U-M appoints Duderstadt

staff writer

James Duderstadt said he will do some fence mending with unhappy University of Michigan students by the time he takes office Sept. 1 as the world-class institution's 11th president

"It's a diverse student body," said the 45-year-old physicist, adding he felt "strong among the broad major-

THE BOARD of Regents Friday went through the motions of interviewing Duderstadt, U-M's chief academic officer for the past two years and previously dean of the engineering school, before voting 6-0 to appoint him president.

The state's Open Meetings Act requires that all finalists for a post must be interviewed in open session - a provision the regents obeyed by interviewing only Duderstadt in public. The Ann Arbor News and Detroit Free Press sued unsuccessfully in Washtenaw Circuit Court to block the regents' closed meetings.

Alzheimer's clinic offers family help

A three-part family caregiver workshop on Alzheimer's Disease will be presented July 8, 15 and 22 at the International Institute of Metropolitan Detroit, 111 E. Kirby.

The workshop is designed to help family members recognize symptoms and understand treatment measures, develop caregiving skills, develop strategies for managing destructive behavior and mood swings and understand changing family roles and relationships brought about by Alzheimer's and related disorders.

Workshops run 1-4 p.m. each day. Registration is 12:30-1 p.m.

The workshops are sponsored by the Southfield-based Alzheimer's Disease and Related Disorders Association Inc.

Regents James Waters and Deane Baker were absent Friday but sent written messages concurring in the choice of Duderstadt, indicating the appointment had been decided on before the meeting.

The Free Press that morning reported Duderstadt would be chosen, citing "sources close to the presidential search process." A 1987 Board of Regents resolution says that "a revelation of a name under consideration will be considered a breach of trust."

Asked how the person who leaked the news to the Free Press would be punished, Duderstadt replied, "I don't know the intent of the regents, and didn't answer the question.

NEWBLATT, ALLOWED by the regents to take part in Friday's open interview - the only open meeting in the 14-month search - asked Duderstadt his view of acting president Robben Fleming's student code of non-academic conduct.

Duderstadt supported it, and that displeased Newblatt, who in an interview deplored the "trend toward regulation of speech, expression and private lives in general.'

He added, "The process he favors lends itself to violating student

cess of "administrative hearings" involving students' "freedom of expression and sit-ins

In his answers to other questions Duderstadt repeatedly used the phrases "listen and learn" in describing his own administrative style and "cherish diversity" in telling his hopes for a 21st-century multicultural campus rather than a 19th-century "melting pot."

BUT IF THE student spokesman was cool, the Board of Regents and area people close to U-M were warm in their praise. Regent Philip H. Power of Ann Arbor, chairman of Suburban Communications Corp., noted Duderstadt grew up in a Missouri town of 3,000 where the tallest structures were the courthouse and grain elevators, that he lettered in four high school sports and married his high school sweetheart, a cheerleader, and that his first job was on a farm.

"Not the background of an international research university,' quipped Power, who then zeroed in on Duderstadt's administrative style and "reputation as a pusher."

"You can't take the farm out of the boy," replied Duderstadt, who

"people are basically genuine, wettintentioned and to be trusted" hadn't changed - not even after his four undergraduate years at Yale

Duderstadt said he "never had an original thought" but could pick good people, "push them to the limits of their ability, then get out of the

CYNTHIA HUDGINS, an aide to U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, called Duderstadt "clearly a mover." She and Pursell, whose district includes the U-M's Ann Arbor campus, recognized since Duderstadt's days as dean of engineering that he would work in the area of economic redevelopment. Hudgins was a Republican candidate for U-M regent in 1986.

Pursell said through a spokesman he was "very, very pleased" at the appointment and found Duderstadt "eminently qualified."

Diet Pills Sweeping U.S.

Doctors Invent Lazy Way' to Lose Weight

New 'Fat-Magnet' Diet Pill Gives You Steady Fat Loss

BEVERLY HILLS, CA (Special)-An amazing new weight loss pill called "fat-magnet" has recently been developed and perfected by two prominent doctors at a world famous hospital in Los Angeles that reportedly "guarantees" to help you steadily lose fat by simply taking their tested and proven new pill.

You Can "Eat Normally"

Best of all, "you can continue to eat all of your favorite foods as long as you don't increase your normal eating habits. You can start losing fat from the very first day, until you achieve the ideal weight you desire.'

It is a totally new major scientific breakthrough for weight loss (worldwide patents pending)

Flushes Fet Out of Body

The new pill is appropriately called the "fat-magnet" pill because it breaks into thousands of particles, each acting like a tiny magnet, "at-tracting" and trapping many times its size in undigested fat particles from food that you have just eaten. Then, the trapped fat is naturally "flushed" right out of your body. Within 2 days you should notice a change in the color of your stool, caused by the fat particles being eliminated.

"Pills Go To Work"

The fat-magnet pills alone, "automatically" help reduce calories by eliminating dietary fat, with no exercising. You simply take the pills with a glass of water before meals. However, you can lose weight "faster" if you choose to follow the fat-magnet diet plan along with the pills.

The fat-magnet pills are already sweeping the country with record sales and glowing reports of weight loss. It's a "lazy way" to lose weight for people who enjoy eating.

Now Available to Public

If you need to lose a large or small amount of weight, you can order your amount of weight, you can order your supply of these new highly successful fat-magnet pills and diet plan (now available from the doctor's exclusive manufacturer by mail or phone order only) by sending $20 for a 90 pill supply (+$2 handling), or $35 for a 180 pill supply (+$3 handling), cash, check or money order to: Pat-Magnet, 9016 Wilshire Bivd., Dept. Tasters try ribs, sauces

Rumor has it that here in the Midwest, Michigan's own Open Pit Barbecue Sauce is the best money can

I can attest to that, having been an Open Pit user since way back when Momma used (and still does) Open Pit. Oh, but watch out, way over yonder on the sauce horizon, the cavalry is forming.

Competitors like K.C. Masterpiece. Kraft and Hunts are forming an advertising campaign that will surely make barbecue sauce the issue regarding outdoor cooking for the summer of '88.

I must attest that being a Michigan boy true and true, the competitors have their work cut out for them. I've seen basting brushes stand straight up when stuck into a jar of barbecue sauce. I've seen labels such as hickory-flavored, mesquite-flavored and original bantered about. But whose is best?

Before we pass along our findings, let me pass along a word about our distinguished panel of judges, the Janes gang. Here we gathered, over Memorial Day, wiping the sweat from our brows while the women drank Fuzzy Navels and the guys chugged Stroh's and Busch.

FIVE SLABS of ribs, two ribs to each taste tester. The ribs were trimmed, parboiled, and slowly roasted for about two hours. Sauces were applied during the last 30 minutes of cooking. Only yours truly knew what sauce was put on what slab. Of course, by the time the tasting was over, just about everyone,

In a very unscientific, sparsely documented and totally unbiased taste test, the winner hands down was the K.C. Masterpiece original barbecue sauce. Between occasional belches and requests for more beer, family members uttered comments like, "It doesn't taste artifical," and, "It has a definite tang."

I'm proud to say that finishing a close second, was Michigan's own Open Pit. The rib raiders all liked the taste, tanginess and flavor but were somewhat turned off by the odd coloring of the sauce. Then again, eye appeal isn't everything, because the Hunts sauce looked the richest, with a dark smoky color, but tastewise, had little oomph (to quote

So a quick call was made to Rich Davis, the inventor of K.C. Masterpiece, who, as it should be, hails from Kansas City. Davis, with his new book "The Great American Barbecue Book" (Vintage Books, June 1988), says that the book and the commercalization of K.C. Masterpiece sauce was a culmination of life interest in barbecueing.

He claims the secret to the sauce is his high quality ingredients and no artificial flavors, colors or thickeners. Tomato concentrate is used in place of ketchup, molasses instead of cane sugar. This guy should know, he also owns one of Kansas City's most popular dining spots, the K.C. Masterpiece Barbecue and Grill.

A RECENT VISIT had yours truly licking his fingers while tapping his heels to the great flavors of barbecue and jazz. All I can tell you is that the Janes Gang agrees with what-ever Davis is doing to barbecue.

Check out his sauce, and if you're into real down-home country barbecue, you will enjoy reading his book that details the livelihood of barbecue throught the country. Davis has shared some of his favorites for your and our files. Bon Appetit!

Perhaps there is no other smell so indicative of summer than that of barbecue.

The aroma of barbecuing hasn't changed much in the last 50 years, though it is now often tinged with scents of mesquite, hickory, pecan and other fruit and nut hardwoods. Is there any other summer smell that so moves us? Probably not.

By now, most of have had our barbecues tuned up. Grills cleaned, tanks filled and charcoal stocked, we await the opportunity to indulge our senses one more time in America's favorite pastime.

With Father's Day approaching, we need no other inspiration to ready the coals.

FOR MANY, barbecuing is a matter of trial and error. We learn by doing. Perhaps you've suffered some of the pitfalls such as food that tastes like lighter fluid, charred morsels that bear no resemblance to the original cut of meat, a "cold fire" that only warms the food, or one that burns uncontrollably, engulfing the barbecue in flames. If you see yourself in this paragraph, read on. Help is on the way.

While there is a certain simplicity to barbecuing that makes it appealing to even the clumsiest indoor cooks, there are also variations on the theme to satisfy the epicure as carcinogens, Page 2

Side burner for the grill is a feature that sizzles

By Robert Strike special writer

Here's what's hot in barbecues and equipment for the grill.

The Cadillac of barbecues is the Weber Genesis III, which features 540 square inches of cooking surface and a side burner that may be used for a wok or for sauteing.

With this extra burner, you won't have to rush inside to use the kitchen stove. This incredible cooking system uses "flavorizer bars" instead of lava rocks to conduct heat and sells for around $500.

W.C. Bradley's Char-Broil division has just introduced a new gas grill briquet that provides the real taste of charcoal, without disintegrating or turning to ash. The briquets are made with pure charcoal, require no starting fluid (say goodbye to the lighter fluid taste) and offer up to 10 hours of charcoal-flavored cooking. After the new briquets expend this flavor, they may be replaced or left in the grill as permanent heat radi-

FOR THOSE of you having trouble getting the fire started, the Charcoal Companion comes to the rescue. Cylindrical in shape, this collapsible piece is designed to draw air through the bottom and up through the coals, which burn quickly. The hot coals are then spread over the bottom of the barbecue with fresh coals interspersed. Flawlessly and easily, your problem is solved.

Also new to the world of barbecue are the assortment of racks available to increase grill space and facilitate cooking. They include hinged grill baskets that will allow you to flip an entire dinner with one motion, rib racks that will hold pieces of meat upright during cooking and a skewer rack that will prevent skewered foods from slipping through the grates.

The growing popularity of cooking "en brochette" with seafood and the food item with the proper technique of preparation and adhering to a few basic barbecuing rules.

Here's how to clean and care for your grill

To verify these rules, one need only consult the man who revolutionized barbecuing in Michigan and introduced the unique taste of mesquite as well - Jim Lark, owner if the West Bloomfield eatery that

LARK BOASTS the only Health-Department-certified outdoor barbecue in Michigan, which began service in 1982 under the kitchen leadership of Chef Heinz Menguser Menguser has since left but the barbecuing continues today under the creative eye of Chef Marcus Haight.

And when it comes to creative grilling. Chef Keith Famie, proprietor and inspiration for Les Auteurs. an American Bistro," in Royal Oak, knows his coals. Chef Famie grills extensively and uses a rotisserie in many of his creations. Famile's insights paralleled those of Jim Lark and Marcus Haight

Safety first - make sure gas valves and lines are clean and sealed. Be prepared for a fire that may get out of hand by keeping baking soda and water handy to douse unwanted flames. Since pouring straight water on a grease fire will cause the fire to accelerate, a mixture of 12 cup of baking soda to 2 cups of water should be kept nearby for dousing.

Wear a bib apron. It is one more laver of protection between you and the fire. Use well-insulated mitts to work near the heat or when opening and closing the barbecue lid

The barbecue area is no place for ling the tiny pores that can release

ing The sides and lid of most barbecues get very hot and are most dangerous. Also, some models have a drip cup in the bottom that can overturn and cause burns. Reduce the possibilities of getting burned by keeping the kids away from all parts

USING HIGH QUALITY tools will add to your confidence in handling foods on the grill. Have the proper tools ready before you begin to barbecue. Buy only sturdy utensils with a heavier gauge of metal to help handle heavier or delicate foods. You don't want your seafoods sliding off a cheap spatula and into the coals and cheap tongs will bend before they pick up a heavy steak.

Good quality utensils should be made of one piece of steel that extends to both ends of the tool. Also, the handle should be held together by two or three rivets for support.

Reduce flare-ups during cooking by drawing excess oils off marinated foods and trimming steaks to 4 inch of fat on the sides before grilling. If Their combined recommendations the fire becomes to strong, there are several measures you can take.

For gas grills first, reduce the gas level to low and take the food off the grill if necessary This will allow the fire to return to a safe cooking temperature and lets the grill reheat. Remember, after putting food on the grill, it has cooled down and requires reheating Next, raise the level of the grate or lower the bottom, depending on the model.

Hot grates - make sure the grate has had enough time to become searing hot the hotter, the better before putting food on it or your foods will likely stick. A hot grate will sear in the runces in meats by instantly clos moisture. Allowing the grill to get tuna, shrimp, lobster and salmon. sufficiently hot will also speed up the cooking process.

For easier cleaning, line the bottom of the barbecue with heavy-duty aluminum foil, shiny side up to reflect heat. After the coals have completely cooled, clean-up is a cinch Placing foil on the grate is not recommended as small amounts of aluminum may cook onto the food.

Barbecuing techniques:

Have all your ingredients on hand before you place the food on the fire. You don't want to have to run for anything This includes seasonings. serving or holding plates and towels. Since you will be cooking the moisture out of foods, try to put more moisture in before cooking by marinating when possible. Resist the temptation to flip the food too soon after placing it on the grill It is necessary to sear any meat that is grilled to reduce moisture loss that can lead to a dry tough product

Use only firm fish for grilling, such as swordfish, mahi-mahi, cobia,

Other fish that are flakier may be cooked in or on the grill through in-direct heat. Chef Famie recommends creating an open aluminum foil pouch in which the fish sits on top of diced carrots, celery and onion. You then place this pouch on or in the grill where the seafood will pick up the barbecue flavor during cooking.

Wipe oil into the hot grates using a clean rag before grilling fish. Do this quickly and carefully so you don't burn the rag or yourself. Also, brush salad or cooking oil on both sides of the fish for less sticking and more even cooking.

Never mash or press meats on the grill (including hamburgers). This will only press out the moisture. leaving the meat dry and tough. The moisture also helps in cooking by creating a "steaming" effect inside the meat. To avoid mashing hamburgers, make them thinner than usual, as they will shrink slightly and thicken during cooking.

of barbecuing.

Very seldom do I get stumped. Especially when it comes to checking out the facts. I have a resource list at least two computer pages long with names, numbers, contacts, book listings and reference material. Still, it has been quite a challenge to bring you up-to-date information oncerning the carcinogenic effects

My findings were, to say the least, surprising

First, let's define barbecuing. Most folks like you and me consider barbecuing a matter of lighting up the grill and cooking a few burgers, tube steaks or, especially on paydays, a nice T-Bone. In all honesty, that's what is formally called grilling.

BARBECUEING IS cooking over a very low fire for an extremely long cooking period. What we do on our weekend Webers comes about as close to authentic barbecuing as sherbert is to real ice cream.

O.K., now that we have the proper definition out in the open, on to cancer and the carcinogenic (cancercausing) effects of grilling. Realizing, of course, that my expertise lies mainly in food and not in medicine. I am relying on numerous medical contacts and medical journals for my facts.

As Sherlock Holmes might say "Mmmmmm verrrry interesting." What it all boils down to is that. contrary to popular belief, it has never been proven that grilling causes cancer. A very réputable source on the subject. Dr., Tom Selznick, D.O., a family practice physician responsible for the James' family wellbeing stated emphatically that the issue of cancer-causing effects in grilling is actually more theory than

Dr. Selznick went into this rather short sermon about the facts that, yes indeed, when animal meat is cooked over hot coals and the drip-

The answer is definitely yes. Remember the cyclymate scare a few years back? What finally trickled down was the fact that, yes, cyclymates are harmful if (and that's a mighty big) you consume bathtubs-

Ditto goes for grilling.

Let's face it. How many of us will down animal protein grilled over hot coals so that the fat drips down and makes an intense smoke 7 days a week, 52 weeks a year for a decade or two?

Dr. Selznick summed up our conversation by stating that families with a high incidence of any kind of cancer are at greater risk, mainly because of their genetic makeup, for contracting cancer from grilled

I felt pretty confident talking to Dr. Selznick about the issue but, in all honesty, it sure was tempting to learn more about what the critics say. I mean, what are the facts, as far as they are concerned?

In "Cancer and Nutrition" by Dr. C.B. Simone, M.D., Simone states: such as smoking and charcoal broiling are known to produce carcinogens The carcinogens which result from charcoal broiling appear to come from fat which drips from the meat and is burned, forming the carcinogens, which then rises up with the smoke, back into the meat. If the fat drippings were eliminated. the carcinogens would be eliminated

AH, THERE'S the catch. What this really boils down to are two basic facts.

Fact A. Do you have a genetic background that lends itself to can-

Fact B. When you grill, having the coals pushed to the side of the grill with a drip pan will virtually eliminate the carcinogenic effects of smoke on your animal protein

So what does this all mean to the folks like you and me" The ad vertisement that says. "We do it like you do it," when it comes to flame broiling, really boils down to the person doing the cooking and even more important, the people eating it Not being a fan of red meat whether it be grilled, baked fried boiled or broiled, this means that we must individually look at our lifestyle and overall immune system

Will it or won't it cause cancer? There is absolutely nothing that states in writing that grilling does cause cancer. Theories abound but the bottom line is you and me We have the final choice. Nobody can make it for us

It's like that pack of cigarettes with a warning label almost as big as the name. We all see it. We all know what it means But the final decision is ours, and ours alone

Chef Larry suggests these for the grill

SAUCY SHORT RIBS 2 pounds short ribs, trimmed 1 medium opinion, chopped

When your teen is talking party

Plan in advance. Check party plans with your teenager and know the guest list. If you agree with who is invited, you can curb the "open party' situation.

Set a time limit. Set a definite start and ending; not too long. Consider daytime parties as an atternative to evening ones or plan an activity such as swimming, skating or renting movies.

Agree to rules ahead of time. These might include:

No drugs, including alcohol

No smoking

No leaving the party and then returning

No gate crashers allowed Lights should be left on

Some rooms in your house are off limits Know your responsibilities. The responsible adult at a teenagers party is visible and AWARE. Remember IT IS ILLEGAL TO SERVE DRUGS, INCLUDING ALCOHOL, TO MINORS. You are legally responsible for anything that may happen to a minor who has been served drugs or alcohol in YOUR home.

(FOR THEM)

Invite another parent or couple over. Other adults are company for you during a long evening and can be of help with problems. Also, if parents have driven teenagers to your house, you might consider inviting them in to meet you, however briefly.

Call the host. Before giving consent that your teenager be allowed to attend a party, make sure of the basic rules, such as parental supervision and that no alcohol will be allowed

Check the party plans beforehand with your teenager. Know where your child is going and with whom. When taking your teenager to a party, wait to see that he or she is inside the house. If you don't know the host parents, introduce yourself

Make it easy for your teenager to leave a party. If there is drinking or drug use or any reason that your teenager wishes to leave a party, make an arrangement that your child can call you (or a designated adult) who will come. Urge your teenager NEVER to ride home with a driver who has been drinking. You might have an understanding that there will be no punishments or restrictions for a call letting you know that things are getting our of hand.

Be up to greet your teenager when he or she comes home from a party.

Q. Are the police ever called to assist parents when their child's party has gotten out of hand?

A. Yes. Most problems arise at parties involving high school age ch dren and usually in situations where parents are absent. The two major problems at these parties are uninvited. guests and the consumption of alcohol

Q. What are parents' responsibilities when their child has a party in their home?

A. Most parents are lanorant of the law in this regard. Many have called the police department to inquire about their responsibilities. Parents should know that there are crimi nal charges that can be brought for serving alcolho to minors and for risking injury to minors. Penalties of up to one year in prison. fines ranging up to $1,000. or both, may result if a parent is caught allowing minors to consume alcohol

Q. What advice should be given to parents who want to allow their child to have a party? A. First there must be parental supervision. Parents are legally responsible for what happens to minors in. their home. Second. do not allow alcoholic beverages to be served. Limit the number of guests and let the party be "by invitation only." A word-ofmouth general invitation brings party crashers.

McNamara endorses Ficano

By Wayne Peal staff writer

ION

Quietly, without the usual fanfare? Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara has endorsed Sheriff Robert Ficano's re-election bid.

McNamara told Ficano of his support last week, after Ficano filed for a second four-year term.

"Mr. McNamara feels Sheriff Ficano is the best person for the job," said McNamara spokeswoman Barbara Rickert. The executive, however, neither called a press conference nor released a statement indicating his support.

Just the same, Ficano was pleased to receive the endorsement.

"WE'RE APPRECIATIVE of it," Ficano said. "I think it shows understanding of what we've accom-plished." Ficano has been sheriff since 1983.

Several months ago, McNamara indicated he would remain neutral in the sheriff's race, though the move was seen as a boost to Ficano.

Richard Novak, former undersheriff and one of Ficano's two opponents in the Aug. 2 primary, said he was only slightly disappointed McNamara's endorsement went elsewhere

Novak said McNamara offered him a job as head of security at Metro Airport but he declined. He said he preferred to stay in the sher-

"I think the fact he offered me a job shows how he feels about my ability," Novak said.

Ficano and Novak, both Livonia residents, will face Grosse Pointe Police Chief Bruce Kennedy in a three-man Democratic Party primary that will determine Wayne County's next sheriff. The winner would run unopposed for the post in November. No Republican candidates filed for the post.

Though rivals in a hotly contested Democratic Party executive's primary two years ago, Ficano and McNamara say they now enjoy a cordial relationship.

"THE STUFF about disagreements was blown way out of proportion," Ficano said. "When we needed to work together, like when the county needed money to balance its budget. we did.

News that McNamara was endorsing Ficano still raised eyebrows. It came on the heels of McNamara's advocacy of privately built and operated jails - a proposal strongly opposed by Ficano. It also came after McNamara's call for a county corrections office to administer the county jail, apparently taking away a chief sheriff's department activity.

McNamara's recent jail expansion proposal, however, made no reference either to privatization or a county corrections office. Both issues would require approval from the state Legislature.

Both men also stood together Tuesday in issuing a call for jail deputies. Some 55 positions called for under the county budget are currently going unfilled. Ficano and McNamara said.

skinny little river. Friends of the Rouge said

From the waters of the Rouge last Saturday volunteer workers pulled seven automobiles, three television sets, two bathtubs and a go-cart.

And that wasn't all Volunteers also pulled out three picnic tables, a dishwasher, refrigerator, air conditioner, and three mattresses, one set of box springs and a headboard.

They also recovered a snow blower, newspaper box and shotgun Not to mention a silo filler. The pulled from the Novi branch of the Rouge Workers also cleared 85 log

"WE WERE pleased with the results," said Carol Scrimger, an administrative assistant with Friends of the Rouge, the volunteer agency that coordinated Saturday's cleanup

Workers cleared some 4,500 cubic yards of debris from the river If placed into three foot square boxes and stood end-to-end, the output would extend for more than 2.5

An estimated 2,500 people worked on the third annual volunteer Rouge Rescue a 25 percent increase from last year Early estimates put the volunteer force at about 2,900 but unusually nice weather may have driven some volunteers away.

We know the rain (last year) drove some people away, but the sun may have driven some away, too." Scrimger said

Cleanup work occurred at 19 sites. including sites in Beverly Hills, Birmingham, Canton Township, Farmington Hills, Livonia, Plymouth Township Southfield and Westland

When Du Pont decided to name an authorized service company for its Stainmaster carpet, we answered the call.

Make cholesterol a subject close to your heart...

Cholesterol and your heart

How much do you know about cholesterol-that fatty substance found in your body tissues and blood? Did you know, for instance, that significant amounts of it come from the foods you eat and the rest is produced by your body? Or that high total cholesterol levels can lead to heart disease and heart attacks?

Cholesterol tests

One thing you should know is your blood cholesterol level. You can get your cholesterol level tested now through June 25 at McAuley Urgent Care in the McAuley Health Building in Canton. It's so easy. It takes just five minutes, and the cost is only $5 ($4 with this ad).

Nutritionists and other health professionals from St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor will be on hand to explain the results of your test and to suggest ways for becoming more "heart healthy." Bring the family

High cholesterol levels tend to run in families, so it's a good idea to have everyone tested. Stop in during any of the dates and times listed below.

Canton captures 'A' crown

Canton's Chris Zawacki, right, and Churchill's Shannon Stacherski fight for possession of the ball in the state championship soccer game

Saturday. The Chiefs, who had never been past the district phase of the tournament, went all the way to the top this year.

Don Smith was smiling. Even after being doused with the now-traditional cooler of ice water.

He had every right to be. His Plymouth Canton team had done an about-face at halftime, pulling itself together to first tie Livonia Churchill, then beat the Chargers in a sudden-death shootout for the Class A state championship Saturday at North Farmington.

Chris Zawacki converted what proved to be the game-winner on the seventh round of the shootout, pushing the ball past Churchill keeper Monia Cervi into the right corner. Canton scored on five shots to four by Churchill. The game ended in a 1-I tie, and remained that way through 30 minutes of overtime.

"I knew I could do it," said Zawacki, a fullback. "We practiced this so hard.

When asked what she was thinking when she approached the ball with victory hanging in the balance, the junior answered, "The pressure's on. was so nervous, so tense.

Yet Zawacki never hesitated. When the official signaled her to kick, she did so quickly. "I knew my spot," she said. "Everytime in practice, that's what I did.'

TITLE CONTESTS are often boring affairs, leaving fans to wonder how the two teams ever got that far. Not this game. Both Canton and Churchill dominated play at times, but defenses were superb on both Canton was boosted by the return of keeper Jenny Saul, which allowed her sub, Michelle Fortier, to return to the midfield. That proved fortuitous - Fortier ended up scoring the game-tying goal in the second half.

But by game's end, the only defense each team had on the field at the end was keepers. This year was the last time a state championship will be decided in this fashion; the Michigan High School Athletic Association has aftered the overtime rules to eliminate the shootout in championship matches. Starting in 1989, if the game isn't decided after two 10-minute extra periods and two five-minute sudden death overtimes, the teams will share the title

The advantage going into the shootout seemed to be with Canton, only because Saul is a senior and Churchill keeper Cervi is a freshman.

THE SHOOTOUT started with both teams making their first two shots, Dawn Gabriel and Kellie Davis for Churchill and Tricia Greenhalge and Jenny Steinhebel for Canton. A diving save by Saul on Churchill's Rosemary Hally allowed Canton to go ahead 3-2 on Renee Rice's kick.

Lori Place pulled the Chargers even by grounding her shot past Saul into the right corner. Cervi then made a superb save on Shannon Meath, diving to her right to knock down a hard drive and keep the scored tied at 3-3.

Shannon Stacherski could not give Churchill the lead, however; hitting a weak shot right at Saul. But the game went to a sudden-death shootout when Julie Stabnick put her shot over the net.

A goal by Churchill's Mandy Mase was offset by a score from Fortier. Neither keeper had a chance on those shots. But Nikki Johnson dribbled her chance right to Saul, giving Canton its third opportunity at victory. Zawacki made good on it.

AT HALFTIME, an overtime shootout seemed a remote possibility. After a slow start, Churchill had gained control and kept it through the final 30 minutes of the half. It seemed, however, it would do the Chargers no good - until the final minute.

With 40 seconds left, Stacherski broke free on the left wing and drilled a sharp crossing pass toward the right side of the net. In swooped Gabriel to deflect it into the net and

The way the Chargers had dominated, Canton seemed to be in trouble. That changed quickly in the second half, however.

Why? "I chewed them out good at halftime," said Smith. "We weren't playing good soccer. I told them we were going to go home with our heads between our tails if we kept playing like that 'They didn't like what I said. They were shaking their heads, but I told them if they don't do what I say we're going to lose.

The Chiefs must have listened. Entering the game, Churchill coach Nick O'Shea had been concerned about Canton's relentless attack. They just keep running at you," was his description.

WHICH IS EXACTLY how the Chiefs started the second half. And it paid dividends almost immediately when a crossing pass reached Fortier, who was standing in the middle of the box. Fortier had time to trap the ball and bounce it past Cervi to knot the score.

After that, it was a battle. Both teams had scoring chances, but neither could cash in. And neither dominated play for long.

"We've had problems maintaining our momentum all year," said O'Shea of the sudden second-half letdown. "I think it's because we're such a young team (four seniors). When things are going well, they do well because they're such talented

"But when things go against them. they tend to let it bother them. I think it's just a lack of experience.

That Churchill letdown - or Canton surge, depending which sideline you view it from - left the Chargers lacking another experience: a state championship, one the Canton players will savor forever, the first such title in school history.

And this from a side that failed to win its division in Western Lakes play, and didn't have a player on the WLAA all-conference team.

Regional champ Kennedy aims for state title

By Dan O'Meara staff writer

If Steve Avery believes he and his Taylor Kennedy teammates can win the Class A baseball championship, nobody will doubt him.

Certainly, nobody who saw the Eagles defeat Redford Catholic Central and Westland John Glenn to capture a regional title Saturday at Plymouth Salem.

He struck out 17 and pitched Kennedy, 24-3, past the defending state champion Shamrocks 4-2 in the first game and belted his second threerun homer of the day as the Eagles downed Glenn 8-4 in the final.

The Rockets, who finished at 21-6, eliminated Salem 3-2 in the other semifinal as Clint Straub won the anticipated pitching duel with the Rocks' Fidell Cashero.

"I thought we had the toughest re-winning it all)," said Avery, who will choose between a pro contract with the Atlanta Braves or a scholarship to play for defending NCAA champion Stanford in the near future.

AVERY, A SENIOR with a 12-0 record, didn't get to pitch against CC in last year's regional and watched as Kennedy lost 1-0. He got a second chance Saturday.

"This makes up for it," he said. "I'd rather win it as a senior than a

The Eagles overcame a 3-0 deficit and were clinging to a 4-3 lead when Avery turned on the first pitch from Bryant Satterlee and broke the ball-

They were throwing me a lot of first-pitch curveballs, and that seemed like a pretty good pitch to hit," he said

Kennedy had runners at first and gional and, if we could get out of this second with two out when Avery, previous at-bat, came up.

"If first base was open, we were going to walk him," Glenn coach Norm Hoenes said. "With two guys on, we decided to take a chance.

AVERY'S HOME run paved the way for teammate Bob Mowery, who scattered seven hits and didn't walk anybody, to pitch a completegame victory. There was no doubt Kennedy coach Wayne Hamilton was going to bring Avery back in relief if the game was close, but the 7-3 cushion eliminated that necessity. "Avery was ready to go whenever we needed him," Hamilton said. "I just wanted to get as much mileage as I could out of Mowery. He kept changing the speed of the ball and kept them on their toes.'

Bob Cleaver would have started the second game for Glenn but attended graduation ceremonies inone, we'd have a real good shot (at who was walked intentionally in his stead. Satterlee, who was relieved by Straub after giving up two more hits following Avery's blast, got the call after catching all seven innings of the first game.

"The other way would have been better," Hoenes said, "but that's a decision the family had to make." Straub, who tossed a four-hitter at Salem, held the potent Eagles hitless over the final 21/2 innings and struck

THE EAGLES nearly self-destructed early, committing six errors in the first three innings, including four in the second when the Rockets scored three times.

Avery filled in superbly for center fielder Chris Bronis, who is out with mononucleosis, but Kennedy also was without shortstop Steve Ebel, who broke a leg in the predistrict qualifying game.

Still, the Eagles were able to overcome that with strong hitting. Steve Stickney, the No. 7 hitter, had a solo third inning, however, when Glenn's only errors allowed two runs to score and a bases-loaded balk made

"Our kids have been hitting like this all year," Hamilton said. "All the notoriety goes to Steve - and he deserves it - but our team is hitting better than any team around right Though the Rockets matched Kennedy's hit total, Glenn had no more than two in any inning and failed to get the damaging blow. Paul Hayes and Eric Stover had RBI singles.

We get the guy out there but don't drive him in," Hoenes said. "(Mowery) wasn't overpowering; he was throwing them high and away, and we chased it. To his credit, he kept it there."

STRAUB WAS the man on the mound and at the plate in the Salem game. Besides going the distance, he homer. Kennedy took the lead in the drove in Glenn's first two runs with a pair of singles and scored the winning run on Chris Scheffer's RBI double.

> Straub, who struck out 10 and walked six, had a bad first inning with two walks, a hit and two wild pitches, the second of which allowed Salem to take a 1-0 lead.

"I just got wild a little bit," said Straub, who also overcame a stomach ache to complete the game. "I had to get used to mound. I hadn't pitched on it since 10th grade.

"There's a big hole there, and it's a long stretch. (Cashero) is 6-foot-3 and it's perfect for him.

Cashero, who beat Glenn the last time the teams played, had only one rough inning, that being the third when the Rockets had three of their seven hits and, aided by an error on a pickoff attempt, went up 3-2. Otherwise, he was as tough as expected, striking out eight and walking two.

Straub takes the victory in regional pitching duel

By Dan O'Meara staff writer

Both pitchers - Clint Straub for Westland John Glenn and Fidell Cashero for Plymouth Salem pitched well enough to win Saturday's regional baseball game between the Western Lakes rivals.

But it was Straub and the Rockets who picked up the victory. Furthermore, Glenn now has won three of the last four meetings with Salem by the same 3-2 score.

"It should have been a shutout," said Salem coach John Gravlin, believing all three Glenn runs to be unearned. "That's the second time Glenn has done that to us.

Todd Marion was the pitching victim, despite a strong outing, when the Rockets edged Salem earlier in the year. Fidell Cashero, who won the previous game against Glenn, was the loser Saturday.

"This is the one that counts," said Glenn's Clint Straub, who was the loser when the Rockets last faced Cashero. "But he pitched pretty well,

"IT WAS A one-run game. That's what it came down to.' Glenn got its one-run advantage when Chris Scheffer, a burly center fielder, drilled a pitch to the centerfield fence, scoring Straub with the go-ahead and final run of the game. 'It was probably the only bad pitch (catcher Chris) Michalek called all day," Gravlin said. "We had just thrown one by him for a strike, and the next one should have been a breaking ball. But we tried to pump the fastball by him again."

Gravlin also gave credit to Straub, whom the Rocks have seen for the last time. He is a senior who will play for Western Michigan next year

"Clint Straub is the toughest pitcher we've faced in my five years of coaching here," he said. "I've never seen anybody who's tougher to beat."

STEVE WOODARD opened the game with a base hit, and he gave the Rocks a 1-0 lead after being sacrificed to second and taking the next two bases on wild pitches.

Straub settled down after the first inning and allowed only three more hits. In the third however, Salem took a 2-1 lead when Mike Howard and Todd Marion drew b ack-to-back walks and Mike Stout hit an RBI sin-

The Rocks finish the year with a 21-9 record. Glenn, 21-6, was beaten by Taylor Kennedy, 24-3, in the championship game 8-4. The Eagles play in the Class A semifinals at 10 a.m. Friday in East Lansing.

John Woodard of Salem dives, head first, back John Glenn. He was eventually forced out at to first base in Saturday's regional game with second base. The Rockets won the game 3-2.

Avery swings mighty bat, too

By Steve Kowalski staff writer

Much has been said of Steve Avery's marvelous pitching arm. But you should see the guy hit.

Avery, the third pick overall in this year's Major League Baseball draft, bailed himself out of trouble Saturday at the plate in Taylor Kennedy's 4-2 regional semifinal win over Redford Catholic Central.

Avery, who allowed three runs the entire year before Saturday fell behind 2-0 after CC's half of the first. But in the bottom of the inning, Avery hit a three-run home run, and he later tripled and scored Kennedy's final run in the fifth.

The defending state champion Shamrocks exited the tourney with a 23-11 record.

AFTER A SLUGGISH start, CC batters were convinced Avery plays at a higher level than everyone else

"I'm looking for him to be in the majors," said catcher Larry Bsharah. "He struck me out three times. The seniors are a bit upset because this was our last game, but we know we got beat by a great

baseball

"If we would have lost to their No. 2 pitcher, then we would have been more upset.'

Avery struggled in the first inning against CC, hitting Chris Tomasi with a pitch and surrenduring a run-scoring double to John Gotts that was misplayed by the Kennedy

Tomasi scored on Gotts' double, and Gotts scored the Shamrocks' second run on a ground out. Gotts had to leave the game, however, after injuring his wrist sliding into home plate.

AVERY'S THREE-RUN homer was all the left-hander needed. He retired the last 14 batters he faced, 12 on strikeouts. He fanned 17 and third, fifth and seventh innings

And he did not walk anyone. Paul Pirronello, who singled in the third, was the only CC batter that reached base after the first. CC starter Leo Hutchinson also pitched well, allowing five hits and striking out four in four innings of work. Hutchinson exited in favor of Mike Dorocak with no outs in the fifth after Avery led off the inning with what could have been another home run.

His towering fly ball hit the top of the center-field fence and came back onto the field, forcing him to settle for a triple

CC coach John Salter knew CC would get few opportunities to score, so he told the Shamrocks to make the most of their chances.

The game went like I thought it would," he said. "I thought we'd get one or two chances to score, and that two-run lead really gave us a lift. I told Leo and the rest of our pitchers before the game to try to keep their run total down."

It's a touchy subject because we're dealing with so-called minors

Our sports staff has taken quite a bit of heat for reporting "bad" things that have occurred at prep games.

When players threatened referees, we reported the perpetrators. When teams have cleared the bench and exchanged blows, we reported it. When coaches have exchanged words, we've quoted the angry parties. When players quit on the eve of biggest game of the season, we've said why

But there's a fine line between what is newsworthy and what is not. Remember, these are kids, 16- and 17-year-olds.

Principals, athletic directors and coaches constantly remind us of the

There have been a number of incidents over the years which I've chosen to ignore.

My basic rule of thumb has always been: Does an incident have a bearing on the game? And does it have ramifications on the sport in gener-

MAYBE THAT'S why I was a little perplexed when I read the account of the Class A tennis finals in the Sunday, June 5, edition of the Detroit Free Press, specifically the alleged lack of sportsmanship and decorum by Birmingham Brother Rice's Mike Herb, who lost his championship match to the formidable Steve Campbell of Redford Catholic Central.

Needless to say, the story Steve Crowe wrote put a black mark on Rice's program. And if you haven't read the story, it certainly didn't put Herb in good standing, either.

It was only a month ago that I caught the tail end of the Catholic League No. 1 singles final between Herb and Campbell at Schoolcraft College

The match went to a third-set tiebreaker with Campbell prevailing.

During the tiebreaker, Herb stewed over a crucial late call that Campbell made and followed up his disgust by heaving his racket onto another court when the match ended.

As I wrote my followup to the Catholic League tournament, I interviewed Rice coach Mike Woody over the phone and quizzed him about Herb's conduct.

WOODY, a first-year coach, told me that Herb had come along way in his conduct this season and that he had been punished accordingly when he got out of line. Woody said he had several heart-to-heart sessions about his talented pupil's behavior.

Having played competitive tennis myself, I could sympathize with guys like Herb. The sport often lends itself to volatility.

I decided that Woody's suggestion about ignoring the racquet-throwing incident was fair.

I decided to take another approach, accenting the quality of play between the two players. I also projected the potential "dream matchup" if the two (Campbell and Herb) should meet again in the state

Frankly, Woody persuaded me to take a positive approach.

Well, the two No. 1s met again on Saturday, June 4, and it was not a smooth finish to an outstanding high school career for Herb, at least by the Free Press account.

And I don't buy the fact that Crowe was trying to rake any muck as some might suggest. I believe he simply reported what he saw. He also decided to run Herb's controversial statements slamming CC and the crowd that supposedly turned against him. It was only fair, since the Rice netter apparently made himself the center of attention.

AND I'M WONDERING myself whether we did Herb and Woody a favor by sweeping it under the rug in the aftermath of the Catholic League

Sometimes what we read in print hits home a little harder. Maybe if I had reported what transpired during the second Campbell-Herb match, it might have deterred future conduct.

Not that we're trying to embarrass anybody, but it certainly didn't bode well to read the negative press in one of the nation's largest morning newspapers.

But some of the blame should go to Woody, who told our Marty Budner on Monday: "Mike's behavior was just fine. There was no controversy like last year."

Obviously, Woody didn't check to see if Budner had read his morning

Archer becomes hit in softball, too staff writer

Irony and sports have long been linked. Goats becoming heroes in a single game is a common enough

Kim Archer has rarely been the goat in her storied athletic career. But she's no stranger to the ironic side of sports.

Five years ago, Archer graduat-ed from Livonia Bentley as the best female athlete in the school's history. She turned both the Bentley basketball and softball teams into powerhouses, but perhaps her versatility was best illustrated during the one season she played volleyball and earned All-Observerland second-team honors.

Archer accepted a scholarship to play basketball at Michigan State. Her talents were obvious, but again it was her versatility that was most prominent - she switched between four positions during her years with the Spartans, from small forward to point guard to shooting guard to power forward.

DESPITE LEADING a young MSU team to a surprisingly successful season (16-12 overall, 12-6 in the Big Ten) in 1987-88 - Archer topped the Spartans in scoring (12.4 points), rebounding (6.4), assists (3.6) and steals (3.0) - she was virtually ignored in All-Big Ten voting. She was honorable mention all-league.

A week after the basketball season ended, Archer was on her way to Florida with the MSU softball team. She hadn't played fast-pitch softball since high school, but decided to give it a try anyway.

Kim Archer Sportswoman of the Year

So what happens? Archer leads the Spartans in just about every offensive category — hitting (.329), hits (53), runs batted in (22), runs scored (25) and home runs (two), and ties for the team lead in doubles (nine) - and this time she is recognized, earning first-team All-Big Ten honors.

"That was pretty strange," Archer said. "I came here for basketball, played it for four seasons and was never better than honorable mention All-Big Ten. Then I play softball for one season and I make first team All-Big Ten."
MSU SALUTED Archer's unique talents again last week by naming her Sportswoman of the Year, an award presented for excellence in both athletics and academics Archer will graduate this weekend with a degree in criminal justice.

While there's no doubting Archer's abilities, her determination was equally impressive. She injured her knee midway through her sophomore basketball season and missed the rest of that campaign The injury also delayed her collegiate softball career.

"I had originally planned on playing softball after my sophomore year (of basketball)," she said. "Then I hurt my knee, and my basketball coach (Karen Langeland) strongly suggested I don't play softball.

Since basketball was paying for her education, Archer had to comply - until her final season. With her basketball eligibility used up. Archer decided to tryout for MSU's softball team

TRYING TO PLAY college softball for the first time after such a long layoff, with very little time to practice, would seem suicidal to most. To Archer it was a challenge.

The hitting was the hardest thing," she said. "In high school I never faced the kind of pitching I did in the Big Ten. I was really surprised (with my success). I hit off the pitching machine a couple of times, but that's not the same as

Archer was not filled with confidence. "I never thought I'd really play that much," she said But when the team made its trip south, shortstop Sally Green stayed in East Lansing, a victim of poor academics Archer was thrust into her position, playing 12 games at short

The rest, as the saying goes, is history Archer was not only entrenched as a starter, she became the team leader. Green returned at shortstop, and Archer moved over to third base, where her fielding was solid (15 errors, 930 average).

IT WAS THE icing to an already superb career. Archer finished in the top eight in just about every MSU career basketball statistic and is the Spartans all-time leader in steals with 224 She is second on the assist list (381)

If she has any regrets, it's that none of the MSU teams she was part of won a title. "With the four of us coming in as freshmen in basketball, we had hopes and talked about winning a Big Ten title." said Archer, who was part of a prized recruiting class that included Kris Emerson, Sue Tucker and Sue Pearsall

"That was kind of a disappoint ment, but I learned a lot I had a lot of fun and, most importantly. I got an education.

This was one arrangement that was mutually beneficial MSU certainly got its money's worth out of Archer a two-sport star

GYMNAST CHOOSES

Angela Sarno of Livonia has made her choice: She has signed a national letter of intent to attend George Washington University in Washington, D.C., this fall.

Competing for the Farmington Gymnastics Center, Sarno has won state gymnastics titles in all-around and individual competitions. Last winter, Sarno was a western national qualifier. At George Washington, she will compete in the all-around and should excel in the uneven bars.

Sarno joins a Lady Colonial team that is coming off its best season ever. They set a school record for wins with 18 and had two team members qualify for the NCAA Division I Southeast Regionals. George Washington is a member of the Atlantic Ten Conference.

Sarno will enroll in the school of education and human development.

ACADEMIC STANDOUTS

The Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference has announced its at-large all-academic mens and womens teams, and several Observerland athletes were honored.

On the 18-member mens team are Rob Martin and Jim Surowiec, both from Oakland University. Martin, a senior from Redford Catholic Central, played tennis at OU and compiled a 3.64 grade-point average in Hills, was an All-American in swimming and posted a 3.26 GPA in histo-

Two others received honorable mention: Kevin Schwanz, a senior and first-year transfers are ineligibaseball player at Wayne State from Redford Union, who has a 3.13 GPA with a major in mechanical engineering, and Tom Zerona, a senior baseball player at OU from Wayne Memorial, who has a 3.08 GPA in other sports are eligible for at-large electrical engineering.

The at-large all-academic teams mechanical engineering. Surowiec, a are selected by the sports informasophomore from CC and Farmington tion directors at GLIAC schools They are not allowed to vote for their own athletes. Nominees must carry at least a 3.0 GPA and be a starter or top reserve. Freshmen

SUMMER Mountain bikes on uphill climb

By Mary Rodrique staff writer

The long popular 10-speed racer, with dropstyle handlebars and skinny tires, is being upstaged. The mountain bicycle - the two-wheel equivalent of a four-wheel-drive vehicle - is changing the profile of the American cyclist.

One hike store manager called the mountain bicycle "the biggest trend to hit the industry.

"They're selling like hotcakes," said Marco Meucci, manager of Jerry's Bicycles in Birmingham.

Magazines like "Outside" and "Cyclist" are full of articles on the mountain bike phenomenon - how to choose the right one and trips suited for serious cyclists over rugged

Why the big surge? Apparently cyclists are going for comfort.

Upright handlebars, a wider seat, fatter tires and 15 to 18 speeds are features of the mountain bicycle, which can be used on flat city pavement as well as hilly dirt trails.

"They're geared differently, they're easier to pedal uphill," said John Reed, owner of the Farmington Bike & Repair Shop.

PRICES RANGE from $350 to 1.500, with most in the $350 to $700. range. So-called city bikes have fewer speeds - usually 10 to 12 - and lower prices, in the $200 to $300 range. Newer models also feature upright handlebars and wider seats and tires

"Another new feature for people who don't understand shifting is index shifting. The shift lever clicks in you can hear it. It's standard on all bikes this year," said Jeff Britton, manager of D&D Bicycles in Berkley. The store also has a Westland

Britton said more men than women are buying mountain bicycles. Stoney Creek and Kensington metro parks, Pontiac Lake recreation area and the Potowatomi Trail near Hell, Mich., with their dirt trails, are popular spots for mountain bikers, he

Regardless of style, serious cyclists and even casual, weekend riders are onling for more "We're selling a lot of computers," Britton said. "They'll give you speed, trip distance, total miles, maximum speed, cadence.'

The more expensive computers have a solar cell to recharge batteries. Some models even include a heart monitor belt to check heart

Cyclists apparently are buying a wardrobe better suited to the sport, too, according to an informal survey of bike shop owners. That includes helmets (a hard outer shell but lightand lycra and spandex shorts. Toe clips can be added to pedals to increase power

"THE PRO shorts have a padded crotch area to prevent chafing and sweating." Meucci said. "The materials bring the sweat away from the skin - not like cotton, which abthe moisture and dryer with the lycra.'

"A water bottle is a good idea even for the casual rider," he said. Models can fit unobtrusively into the bike frame. Other handy items cyclists should consider include a small, streamlined pump and repair Reed cautions customers not to buy a helmet through mail order. Go to a bike shop and get the proper fit," he said.

Helmets run from $40 to $70, he

I've seen pictures of this kind of thing before, and now I'm part of the picture - the Wolverine 200 (mile) Bicycle Marathon on Belle Isle.

Hunched over the curled handlebars of my borrowed 10 speed, I take in the day (partly sunny) and the view (mostly gorgeous), with majestic ships waving foreign flags as they cruise along the Detroit River and the Renaissance Center, standing sentinel over downtown De-

Off we go, all 2,000 riders, round the five-mile route with a constantly changing background. Little Leaguers fill the baseball diamond and each new lap I try to follow the game. Groups of picnickers come and go. A father and his kids in a canoe float lazily on the pond. And then there's the biking crowd. Hundreds of fans and supporters working the marathon. Scores of tents dot the route. I look forward to seeing them because they cheer encouragement even to strangers like me. Some play music for entertainment, important to a biker going round and round in monotonous circles on his way to 200 miles in 24 hours.

The bikers come in all shapes, sizes, ages, levels of fitness and riding ability. Their bikes and other gear varies from the most streamlined and hi-tech, to borrowed and sometimes ill-fitting. No one, however, seems to care.

Bikers yell as they pass me. "Left!" "Right!" "Comin' up the middle, hold your line!" If I'm going to do this well, I'd better not coast. It's keep pedaling and stop daydreaming or look out. "How many miles you got?" Becomes the word of the day. A women falls in middle of the road and immediately a crew of Wolverine racing team members and road marshals move in to help her and to keep traffic moving. It's a two-wheeled jungle out there. Yet everyone is considerate. A guy passes me and yells "Come on, you're doing fine!"?

The start/finish line is an event in itself. Besides the running commentary by the announcer and rock and roll courtesy of WRIF blaring over the loudspeakers, there is a cadre of people passing out lapmarkers each time we complete

At 45 miles I think I've gone 50 and still only count nine tags. I know I didn't lose one so I conclude someone must have accidentally taken it off my bike (because I loaned it to a friend while I took a much-needed break).

My hands hurt, my shoulders hurt, my neck hurts. But most of all, my seat hurts. And I wonder how anyone could sit on these things for 200 miles or more during this 24-hour event.

I figure I'm only going to do 75 miles today but that's OK because this is my first marathon. At 50 miles, just before dusk, I stopped with a large group of friends to eat a huge spaghetti dinner (carbo building, you know). Everyone is donning bike lights, and I painstakingly mount my bike once again. The problem this time though is my legs. They just don't seem to operate as per instructions. I am in shape, I reason, I walk a lot, I've ridden a few times this year, so I should be fine.

Still, I decide this will be my last lap. I marvel at those in my group who are beyond their 100th mile, still walking and talking as though they were out for a casual ride.

I crawl into my tent.

By 8 a.m. Sunday, several in my group - including Jim Goiodlaski, formerly of Livonia, and Anne Marie Garbinski, formerly of Redford Township - have cycled 200 miles. They're proud and tired.

The announcer recognizes 200-milers or other achievers (100 or 75) as the participants wake and slowly come to life.

I slowly attempt to put one foot in front of the other on my way to the bathroom. No more biking for me today, thank you. But I watch others, and I am awed in particular by Kevin, a handicapper, on his three-wheeler still going.

The torture of the last 24 hours has dissuaded few. Each rider has his or her own own goal. Whatever the number of miles completed, whatever the rider's purpose, it's an amazing accomplishment.

Maybe next year I'll do 100.

"Pickup trucks and BMWs, I like said band member Mary McGuire.

The folk rock band's following could be described as a cross-section of dead heads (Grateful Dead fans) and Yuppies, or "duppies" as McGuire calls them. Diverse as they might be, duppies seem to share one thing in common.

Sometimes I think these people are looking for this lost music," said band member Billy Brandt, who grew up in Farmington Hills. "I think most of them are young and they want to hear acoustic guitars and three-part harmonies."

And Ash Can Van Gogh is certainly willing to play it. Weaned on the folk rock fodder of The Byrds, Buffalo Springfield and Neil Young, the group plays its own brand of the music with undaunted passion.

On a given night, the band can be found twanging some tunes at The Midtown Cafe in Birmingham, Alvin's in Detroit or Rick's Cafe in Ann Arbor. The group's repertoire includes a mixed bag of originals and

More than anything, though, Ash Can Van Gogh is trying to create an atmosphere with its sweet acoustic sound. Their music and stage presence is designed to break down barriers - not create them - between

The evidence is there in the band's beginnings. Ash Can Van Gogh formed from the ashes of a band split. J.C. Whitelaw and Brandt were in a group called Voices in the Room. McGuire auditioned for singer with Voices in the Room. Brandt and Whitelaw wanted her in the band, the other two members didn't.

"They wanted a Janice Joplin,

So Brandt, Whitelaw and McGuire staked out on their own as a folk rock trio, Then they nabbed Nino Dmytryszyn as their drummer to complete the current lineup.

The foursome is quick to dispel any notion they are a '60s nostalgia

It's not so much about getting back to the '60s as it is about getting back to basics," Brandt said.

APPARENTLY, with the recent successes of Suzanne Vega and Tracy Chapman, getting back to basics is the in thing to do. The acoustic guitar is finding its way back to mainstream music.

Ash Can Van Gogh obviously would like to capitalize on the acoustic wave. But they want to do it their

Even with covers, like the group's

20-minute version of The Byrds "Eight Miles High," Ash Can Van Gogh puts its own stamp on the music. Original material is the band's true strength.

All four members contribute in the songwriting process. The results are interesting.

One song, "Stars," is about a psychic and her philosophy. "Morning Rain" creates a scenario where a man is driving in the desert sure he will meet that one special person.

"I write a lot of songs about Native Americans," Brandt said. "I guess it's because I grew up in Arizo-

Orange Roughies set to sign record deal

Instead of being torn between two lovers, the Orange Roughies are torn between two labels.

The band is being courted by two independent record labels, Nocturnal Records in Detroit and Giant Records in New York. Nocturnal, which has the Toronto-based band 13 Engines under its belt, has even offered the Roughies a contract

Giant is also interested and debating whether to sign the group, according to band member Dave Feeny

What does it all mean? Hopefully for the Orange Roughies, it means they will be able to put out their first album this summer. The recording is already completed. The minor detail of having the disc pressed and packaged has yet to completed. A recording deal of some kind would make that possible.

One of the advantages of signing with an independent is better promotion. Feeny said.

"A big label is nice. may or may not promote it," Feeny said. "Some companies just put the record out and let the band sink or

"With an indie, you have creative control. You can pretty much do what you want.

Right now, the Orange Roughies want to find a bass player. Don Gierlech is playing with the band until a replacement can be found.

As a result, the band has cut down its number of gigs of late. Still, the Roughies managed to find time to open for a hot band out of Boston. The Pixies, Thursday at Rick's American Cafe

The Hysteric Narcotics recently wrapped up a six-week tour of the wild wild West. The Livonia-based band played gigs in Colorado, Call fornia and Texas. The high point of the excursion came in Boulder, Colo, where the group played before 3,000 people at an anti-nukes rally. The low point Well, there were plenty of those

In Lubbock, Texas, a promoter dumped the band from the bill at the last minute leaving the Hysteric Narcotics to scurry to find another place to play

We went into this bar and asked them if we could play, said Mike Murphy of Livonia, lead singer for the Hysteric Narcotics. They said yes. They were real cool about it. They even gave us money to print up some flyers. We did all these Buddy Holly songs. There were only about 10 people in there, and they were all drunk

Overall, though, Murphy found the trip to be sort of fun. He ran into old friend with an upcoming national act. The Swans, and saw some great bands along the way.

But the Jack Kerouac-like experience has left some members disgruntled in the Hysteric Narcotics camp. Expect some type of shakeup Tanjent Image recently won the "Local Riffs" monthly sweepstakes and will be on the WRIF-FM compact disc featuring local bands at the end of the year. Hippodrome will release another cassette within the next few weeks. LOVESEXY - Prince

Now we know his funk wasn't the only thing the Purple One stripped down. But the nudie cover and provoca-tive title may conceal the fact that this is an album at least as much about God as it is about sex.

It's not as if that road hasn't been traveled before. "Let's Get It On", Marvin Gaye's 1973 masterpiece, approached the same wafer-thin line between religious and sexual ecstasy. It could even be argued that all the best rock and roll is an attempt to reconcile the sacred with the profane. But we digress. What Prince has delivered in Lovesexy (Warner Brothers) is a challenging set of songs that might be lyrically too personal and musically too abstract to find a mass audience. That doesn't mean there aren't pleasures of all kinds tucked within the grooves of Prince's self-styled "New Power Soul". Chief among them is the highly ear-catching percussion work of Shiela E. No mere pop tart pinup she, the aforemen-tioned Miss E.'s hot playing is amply displayed throughout the album.

"Lovesexy" itself is the signpost. As Prince tells it, the concept is close to what Gaye once called sexual healing - a redemptive power as spiritual as it is physical. Much of Prince's lyrics are hot enough to draw fire from PRMC, the parents' group that wants to slap warning labels on rock albums. But what are they to make of his call of

"Save Me, Jesus"? What are they to make of his statement that he'll do anything (including stripping nude?) to get his message across?

And what, indeed, are they, or us, to make of the message? - Wayne Peal

CROSSROADS - Eric Clapton

Talk about voluminous. With Crossroads, Polydor Records clears the vaults of its Eric Clapton material and the result is a multi-album, cassette or CD set that is as mystifying as it is illuminating.

That perhaps is intended. Despite his monumental talent, not to mention consistent popularity, Clapton has always remained a shadowy figure. Blinded by the majesty of his power chords, and his reclusive personality, legions of fans have worshipped Clapton, the guitar deity, and lost sight of the man.

As a career-long retrospective spanning more than two decades, Crossroads corrects the balance.

From amateurish rave ups recorded with the Yardbirds way back in 1963, through today's more sophisticated sound, Crossroads traces the maturation of the finest instrumentalist rock music has ever produced.

other guitar hero. Crossroads also traces Clapton's development from fleet fingered guitarist for hire to an artist of passion and vision. The songs themselves hardly need

Yet Clapton is more than just an-individual comment, from "White Room", to "Layla" to "Lay Down Sally", they should be instantly recognizable to anyone who has lent an ear to rock radio in the last 20 years

But the set also offers a generous amount of "new" material, including songs recorded for the second, never-completed Derek and the Dominos album. Two of Clapton's greatest hits, "After Midnight" and "I Shot the Sheriff" are replaced by an alternate 1970 version and a live performance, respectively.

One could quibble. Clapton's religion-inspired work, a vital part of his body or work has been shortchanged, perhaps for commercial reasons. Likewise, "Forver Man", a strong later-day Clapton hit, has been delet-

But Crossroads establishes Clapton's humanity and artistry better than any other album. We finally get to know him. In the words of an in-cluded hit, it's time to say: "Hello Old Friend".

TO FIND YOU

First off, this is a very professional product from word go. Everything from the liner notes and packing on To Find You (BRAM) is well done. Musically, you say? Well B&R (short for Joe Borkowski & Joe Rosochacki) take full advantage of the

"The Bottom Line" takes a more rootsy route. The fine harmonica play of Pete Madcat Ruth gives this tune a real country rock feel.

By contrast, "Walk Out the Door," has quite a funky bent to to it. Again, credit Bell who pulls out her sax again for a guest appearance. She also appears on Take Me in Your Arms

One can fully appreciate the romantic side of these two Joes on the ballad "Drive In." Like the title suggests, the number is about drive-ins or the lack of. They don't sing about falling in love with someone at a drive-in or even making out with someone at the drive-in for that matter. No B&R sing about, well, about the drive-in itself, like buying hot dogs and watching the stars on the screen. It's different, at least

But most of the songs focus strict ly on love and relationships. And B&R tandem do a swell job singing about the two. But there is a tendency to take a dip in the lake cliche For instance in "Walk Out the Door," we hear this: "Well these boots are made for walkin' And that's just what they'll do/One of these days these boots are going to walk all over you." Geez, that sounds a wee bit familar doesn't it? That aside, B&R comes out on top in this effort.

Just as important, said Cozzi, is the access to Cobo which provides shelter from the elements and a handy restroom.

Cozzi thinks the tickets are great ideas for impressing clients, but he's willing to sell them one or two at a time. (Call 645-5381 for information on the package.)

By Mary Rodrique

Sunday's Detroit Grand Prix is the social event of the season not only for the jet set that whirls into town race weekend but for a bastion of volunteers.

Nearly 1,300 people responsible for everything from keeping the track in perfect condition to pampering corporate chieftans are the real winners behind the internationally acclaimed race. Twenty-two percent (284) come from Observer & Eccentric communities.

They come not only from metro Detroit, but just about every state in the union and Canada. This year, a Michigan couple living in Japan is coming home to lend a hand.

Couples have met. Some have married (including one Mt. Clemens couple who tied the knot a few years ago during race weekend). All in the name of the glitziest car racing event in the world.

Rena Shanaman of Southfield has been on board since day one. District sales manager for Anchor Glass Containers in Southfield, she serves as press officer for the Detroit Grand Prix Association.

"I WAS never a race fan," she said. "I volunteered for the Montreaux Detroit jazz festival and got talked into volunteering for the race.

"Paul Newman and I have run into each other several times and yes, his eyes are as blue as everyone thinks they are."

Shanaman started first as membership chairman, recruiting and assigning volunteers for work in one of several areas.

She has served both as vice president and president of the association, which was conceived in 1983, the second year of the Detroit race.

Some 550 volunteers were corralled the first year and it's been uphill ever since.

While other circuit spots, including Monaco, Australia and Japan.

pay race workers, DGPA actually charges volunteers $20 a year to ensure commitment.

Because the race draws an international crowd, volunteers fluent in languages besides English are placed in strategic jobs throughout the circuit.

The Detroit Grand Prix is one of only 16 such races held throughout the world and the only U.S. circuit in the Formula One world championship series.

It's the only race that relies heavily on volunteer efforts and the cadre of volunteers works virtually year round, Shanaman said.

"YOU CAN'T start in May and expect everything to fall in place by

For their membership fee, workers get meals race weekend (June 17-19), parties, T-shirts with logos, patches and credentials that allow wide access during breaks from assigned posts.

"The early years were tough. This year we're running like a well-oiled machine," Shanaman said.

Seventy percent of all volunteers from last year plan to work Grand Chris and Debbie Dunne of Livonia re typical.

A Ford Motor Co. draftsman, Chris Dunne is a true race fan. He programs his videocassette recorder before leaving home so he won't miss the action while tending to duties as hospitality manager. He knows the circuit drivers on sight and conducts tours of the pit and a prerace tour of the Formula One cars.

His wife, Debbie, enjoys the excitement and glamour. Together the Dunnes have the enviable job of assuring guests enjoy themselves at the winner's circle party hosted by Edsel Ford. They oversee a staff of nine workers.

"As long as the race comes to Detroit, we'll continue to volunteer," she said. "This is our fifth year. The first year we were ushers in the grandstand and the second year we were recommended for the winner's circle."

CHRIS GETS revved up just talking about the race. He took hundreds of pictures his first year. Another time, he drew a poster featuring a race driver in the familiar Uncle Sam pose to draft more volunteers.

Dunne takes pride in keeping the private party exclusive — regardless of the stature of the crasher.

The wife of French driver Rene Arneau tried to sneak into the bash on the Pontchartrain Hotel terrace last year, he said.

"She argued with one of our people. She said 'I am a guest of ze hotel. Why can't I go on ze terrace?' As diplomatically as possible, I told her the terrace was divided — our party was on the left — and she had to go to the right because it was open to the public. She did a quick about face and disappeared. Saturday I saw Arneau in the lobby. (His wife) was displaying clothes from a bag; she'd been shopping. When she saw me, she gave me a dirty look."

On another occasion, Dunne was returning from a pit tour (conducted regularly between races to give VIPs a firsthand view) to discover "a well-built blonde on the arm of someone with a pass.

"This girl sits behind the bench at Pistons games and dances when they score. She's almost as bad as Morga-

"This is a very elite event. She was dressed in skin tight clothes — a short T-shirt and skirt. I told one of our workers to ask her to display her credentials where they could be seen. She feigned looking in her purse, then she left. We never saw her again.

"One of our guests came back with a set of credentials and was really disappointed that she was gone."

BY NO MEANS do all volunteers rub elbows with glitterati. Dan Griwicki of Garden City is more likely to rub fresh filler into a pothole on the track.

As a track services volunteer, he "takes care of distance markers, timing and scoring booths, and track.

When cars crash into a runoff area, Griwicki's team clears the debris.

Ron Turner of Farmington Hills is revving up for his sixth race. He began as an usher captain, then supervisor, and now has 300 ushers under his command.

Two-wheel touring offers excitement

By Mary Rodrique staff writer

Bicyclists yearning to combine their favorite sport with vacation plans have as many choices as spokes on a wheel.

An exotic, 19-day exploration of New Zealand, or maybe just a weekend ride in northern Michigan — tours are available for every taste, budget and level of cycling ability.

Bicycle shops are a good source of Bicycle shops are a good source of information for upcoming tours. American Youth Hostels at 545-0511 also lists tours. AAA Michigan and the Michigan Bicycling Federation has compiled a list of 100 bicycle activities in Michigan. Call the federation at 547-0050 for upcoming events.

Cyclists can find addresses for maps and cycling publications for each state in Bicycle USA's almanac, published annually. Available to Bicycle USA members only (there's a $22 membership fee) write: Bicycle USA, Suite 209, 6707 Whitestone Road, Baltimore, Md. 21207.

Road, Baltimore, Md. 21207.

For the same price, Bikecentennial offers nine issues of its membership magazine, discounts on bike maps, the Cyclists Yellow Pages (a complete trip planning guide) and discounts at KOA campgrounds, motels and car rentals. Write Bikecentennial, P.O. Box 8308, Missoula, Mont. 59807.

IF YOU'RE touring independently, scout university and public library map rooms for topographical maps to avoid surprises.

"Going alone is not recommended," said Tom Kerman, owner of Bob's Bicycle Shop in Redford. "Go with a small group — two or three others. Check topographical maps to avoid surprises.

"Most organized tours have a support vehicle that goes along. You may still want to carry a few tools to fix a flat. (Independent groups) want everything you would take camping — a tent, dry goods, tools for the bike."

The style bike best suited for the cyclist depends on the type of touring being considered. While mountain bikes with their fat tires make sense in a city environment, narrow tires mean more speed. Triathletes and racers will appreciate weight savings.

Fenders add weight and wind resistance but for everyday city riding they are a must.

"For more laid back, casual touring, a mountain bike would be more suitable," Kerman said. "If you're touring across the country, you'd be better off with a 10-speed or standard touring bike for ease of riding. But it can't stand the rougher terrain.

"If you bike a lot, say three to four times a week, 25 miles at a clip on paved roads, you should lean more toward a standard touring bike, like the 10 speed," he said.

THE BEST WAY to get in shape for a bicycle tour is simply by riding. "Try to ride 100 miles a week for at least two months before you go on a serious tour," Kerman said. "The better shape you're in, the better off you are. Riding is the best preparation to get in sync with your bike."

Other tips for bicycle touring: if you're used to 50 miles a day on pavement, expect half that on dirt trails; wear a helmet and carry water; toe clips and straps for mountain bikers dramatically improve pedal power; a horn or bell can come in handy on busy hiking trails.

Night riders should use a light. All bikes come equipped with reflectors by law.

On roads, keep at least three feet from the curb or parked cars to be seen and be able to maneuver in either direction. Obey the rules of the Cyclists can log weekend miles once again during Saturday in the Park, sponsored by the Wayne County Parks. Six miles of Hines Drive from west of Outer Drive to the Nankin Mills Station at Ann Arbor Trail will remain closed Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. through Sept. 24 for bikers, walkers and runners.

BICYCLE CRUISES, a touring company operated by Jeff Boudin of Ann Arbor, offers trips throughout Michigan, Indiana, Vermont and California. A wide-range of two, three, five-day trips are available. For more information on trips call (313) 994-9226.

Vermont Bicycle Touring, which bills itself as "America's original country inn bicycling vacation" provider offers weekend getaways, fiveday vacations and special trips that combine biking and sailing. Free brochures are available at bike shops or write: Vermont Bicycle Touring, Box 711, Bristol, Vt. 05443.

Apple Cider Century, an annual one-day 25, 50, 75 or 100-mile tour of the orchards, forests and wine country in and around Three Oaks is one of the nation's biggest one-day events, with 5,000 cyclists participating last year. It's scheduled for Sunday, Sept. 25. For information, write ACC '88, P.O. Box 5000, Three Oaks, Mi. 49128.

Have helmet, will travel

By Renee Enright special writer

I first heard about the Wolverine 200 through a friend who is an avid bike rider.

I've taken only leisure rides in my Livonia neighborhood, but I was attracted to the idea of being tested on a bike for 200 miles on Belle Isle. So I said yes.

A helmet was required riding gear so I borrowed one along with riding gloves and a 10-speed bicycle — I was told my 5-speed model wouldn't do the trick.

Renee Enright, a Livonia artist, enjoys swimming, golf and any other challenge, even a 200-mile bicycle marathon.

So there I was with a borrowed bike, helmet, gloves and, later, a seat to use. The only thing that wasn't borrowed was the rider — me.

I planned to start practicing for the race as soon as I decided to enter. But before I knew it the weekend of the race was fast approaching.

MY TRAINING consisted of a 27-mile ride along the I-275 bike path with my friend Carol and her family. It was the farthest I had ever biked, and yes, my seat was sore.

When race day arrived it was hard not to be excited.

Everywhere you looked there were bikers, more than participants. I've never seen so many bikers who were dressed and equipped so professionally. It was at this point I knew 200 miles was an awfully long way to pedal.

The race began with a celebrity lan run at a pace

The race began with a celebrity lap, run at a pace that kept everyone at a safe distance from each other. Once this lap was completed, some of the more experienced bikers accelerated to 20 mph, and you didn't want to get in their way.

I never set a goal for 200 miles, I just started out knowing I would accomplish as much as I could.

I didn't get really tired until about the 75-mile mark. As I got off my bike my upper legs and hands were noticeably sore.

I DECIDED it was a good time to take advantage of the massages being given by members of the National Massage Association of Michigan, $5 for 15 minutes. The massage and a dinner break lasted 25 minutes. Then it was back to the bike.

I continued on until the 100-mile mark came up. My practical-person instincts took over, and I decided that was enough.

When you see people dressed and equipped in the best material available and riding at speeds nearly twice your speed and still finishing in 20 hours, well, I just though it was wiser to be practical.

So after 10% hours of biking and 12% hours passing

I decided to stop while I still was enjoying it. I capped my totals at 110 when I completed two additional laps in the morning before the 10 a.m. finish.

I can't say I was ever bored, but I didn't like riding at such a fast pace. It made it feel like work, always trying to keep up.

It would have been nice to accomplish the 200 miles in 24 hours on my first try. But I'm pleased with the 110 miles I completed. After all, what's wrong with doing it on your second, third or fourth attempt?

organizing

Dorothy Lehmkuhl

Q. Months ago you offered your book free to people who hurried to write about their difficulties in organizing. My letter (in part) appeared in your column but, alas, I have never seen your book.

A. Thank you for allowing me to clear up a misunderstanding. Following is a quote from my Jan. 13, 1988, column: "I will send a complimentary copy of my '36 Hot Tips' organizing booklet, which normally sells for $3, to the first 20 readers who send the above information (irritants) with a long self-addressed envelope.

Although you were not among the first 20 people to write, my booklet will be in your hands by the time this appears in the paper, with my compliments.

Fulfilling this offer was an education to me. It was fun reading the answers from you and others who replied quickly in order to win the booklets, and I chuckled over some of the answers. For instance, even though I had not stated that envelopes should be stamped, every envelope I received had postage attached. Some sent irritants but no envelopes; others enclosed envelopes but no irritants. One sent neither.

The ability to read and follow instructions carefully is an important aspect of being well organized. Without reading the fine print, hours can be lost, frustration encountered and tragedies can even occur. Consider the consequences of not following instructions in the following situations:

Saving a file on the computer. Signing contracts. Jumpstarting your car battery. Applying for credit. Doing a special project for your boss. Making a new recipe. Meeting deadlines. Using electric appliances in the bathroom. Filling orders for merchandise. Collecting on coupons and rebates. Using airplane oxygen masks in an emergency. Filling out your income tax return. Driving California freeways. Tailoring a suit. Assembling a Big Wheel after midnight on Christmas Eve.

"A stitch in time saves nine" is an adage which still holds true. Following instructions is a "stitch" we can take to alleviate nine times the consternation of not getting things right at first. All too often, we hurriedly scan information, "assuming" we know what is written. We are unwilling to take the time from our busy lives to patiently assimilate all the details.

Dream home

Survey results show what Americans want

MERICANS TEND to dream. A dream was what our nation was built on Land mark Designs' 1988 Dream Home Survey has captured a small but significant part of that "American Dream.

The Dream Home Survey asked readers of 19 newspapers around the country what they would want if they were building their dream home. Landmark Designs received over 1,500 responses to this year's survey and will use this information for turning America's dream home into a reality

Some believe that Americans dream of massive homes with white sparkling pillars and private tennis courts. Landmark's Dream Home Survey, however, points out that most of America's dreamers are more conservative

AMERICA'S DREAMERS seem to be sleeping with their bank books these days. Sixty percent of the participants preferred a medium-sized house (1,500-2,500 square feet) and the average budget was only $112,128. Past survey respondents have indicated desired space of 2,000 square feet with a less realistic budget of $70,000.

People also seem to be waking from their dreams and actually acting on them. Sixty-seven percent of the participants said they will definitely build their dream home and 24. percent have already done so.

A good setting is always an important aspect of any dream. Most American's seem to be dreaming in color this year as 47 percent say they will build in the country, while only 26 percent would choose the America's dreams are a bit hazy at times, often resembling an out-offocus television flashback. Thirtytwo percent of the participants chose the bold, clean lines of contemporary style when it comes to the exterior style of their homes, while 35 percent favored period architecture.

Sixty-seven percent said they will definitely build their own dream home.

percent of the total vote.

When it comes to where America dreams (the master bedroom) things are more clear. Eighty-two percent want their closet monster to be more comfortable and envision a walk-in closet. Sixty-five percent like the idea of a skylight and 66 percent dream of a private bath with two

MORE COMMON SENSE has also pushed its way into the dreams of Americans as energy conservation has become a factor. Eighty-nine percent of the participants would opt for extra insulation, while 46 percent would go the passive solar route. The garage has always been the monster under the bed for many of America's dreamers. They know it's there but they don't want to deal with it. Eighty-five percent want to avoid the rain with an attached garage and 54 percent want space for storage or a shop.

The kitchen has always been one of the most talked about aspects of Landmark's Dream Home Survey. Concerning shape and style, 47 percent prefer country style, while 34 percent want to work in a U-shaped kitchen. As far as amenities go, 91 percent want a dishwasher, 87 percent the benefits of a pantry and 83 percent a microwave.

There are also many special requests this year. Eighty-five percent of the participants dream about barbecues on the patio and 20 percent want the luxury of a swimming pool. Fireplaces are still popular, getting 87 percent of the vote. Security systems have also become important as 47 percent want to feel more secure as they dream.

Thus are the dreams of the Ameri--can home builder -- for 1988 any-

HE SEASON I love the most is spring. To see the crocus peeking though the snow is a wondrous thing.

Gardening is therapy for me. Putting my hands into the earth puts me at peace with myself and the world.

When we moved from a house to an apartment, the one thing I thought I would miss is the garden. Not so, however. I have dressed the balcony into a veritable garden of flowering and foliage plants.

My balcony is off the breakfast room. This room has a large window that is divided into three sections.

On the outside ledge of each section, I have placed a container with a variety of petunias, pansies and ivy. By placing the containers on the ledge, the outside is

On the balcony ledge, containers are tied to the rail with picture wire. The wind can be very strong at the 18th floor. In these planters, boxes, ivy geraniums and impatiens grow together.

On the floor, large containers are nestled between rose trees that hold my kitchen bouquets of sweet basil, parsley and mint.

Everyone's Candidate

A national dream home is a house designed by a committee of hundreds, each filing a separate proposal, with no chance for discussion among them.

Anyone who has ever built a custom home knows that the final building emerges only after countless discussions, arguments and re-evaluations, ranging from preliminary drawings to the final coat of paint. The national plan, therefore, is everyone's home, and no one's.

Still, it represents the needs and desires of many individuals from all parts of the country.

General features - stories, square footage, number of bedrooms and baths, garage size straight statistical averages. They set quantitative limitations on the design.

The shape and arrangement of the house is more intuitive. This is what was read between the lines of hundreds of survey responses.

THE CANDIDATE is a contemporary home with traditional visual appeal. Dormers break the gable roofs on the front and side eleva-

In an older, one-story home, this would shed some light into a low attic storage area. But there is no attic. Instead, the dormers in the Candidate form high vaults over the entry, living room and master suite.

There are essentially three wings to the house.

The two smaller bedrooms and the family room constitute the children's space at the back. The inside play area is close to the bedrooms, minimizing the clutter of toys throughout the rest of the home. A semi-private bath is shared by the two bedrooms. THE garage/den/utility room wing on the left side of the house is primarily a service area. The utility has room for appliances, sink, and work counter. If the basement and basement stairs are omitted, this could be expanded into a substantial work room or hobby center. With a formal living room, dining room and master suite, the front of the house is the adult sector.

The master suite includes a private bath, a walk-in closet and a sitting area with a bay window looking out on the side patio. The sitting area is designed to be adapted for an octagonal spa tub if desired.

A LARGE, U-shaped kitchen lies at the junction of three wings. The work area includes an island range/ oven, built-in dishwasher and double sink with garden window.

Between the family room fireplace and patio window is an informal eating area.

For a study plan of the Candidate (228-99), send $5 to Landmark Designs, P.O. Box 2832, Eugene, Ore. 97402. (Be sure to specify plan name and number when ordering.)
