Police back chase ruling

By M.B. Dillon staff writer

Local police and judges generally agree with a U.S. Supreme Court ruling that permits police officers to chase a person who starts running at the sight of them, even if they have no reason to suspect criminal con-

The unanimous decision, the product of a Detroit drug case, also said Michigan prosecutors may use as evidence the drugs dropped by a man who began running when he spotted a police cruiser on a Detroit street.

Writing for the court, Justice Harry A. Blackmun said the Detroit officers' pursuit of Michael Mose Chesternut did not amount to seizure as outlined in the Constitution's Fourth Amendment

The amendment generally requires police to have a warrant or probable cause to suspect a crime before conducting any search or

The court held in 1980 that a person is seized -- as opposed to arrested - when, "in view of all of the circumstances surrounding the incident, a reasonable person would have believed that he was not free to leave." Adhering to that principle, Blackmun said Chesternut unlawfully seized during the initial police pursuit."

WHILE AREA LAW enforcement officials and judges doubt the decision will result in more police chases, they predict it will mean an increase in the amount of evidence seized by police and admitted in

"It clearly would allow more evidence in, by the very nature of the case," said 35th District Judge James Garber, who views this as another in a series of recent Supreme Court decisions relaxing the rules applying to search and seizure and self-incrimination.

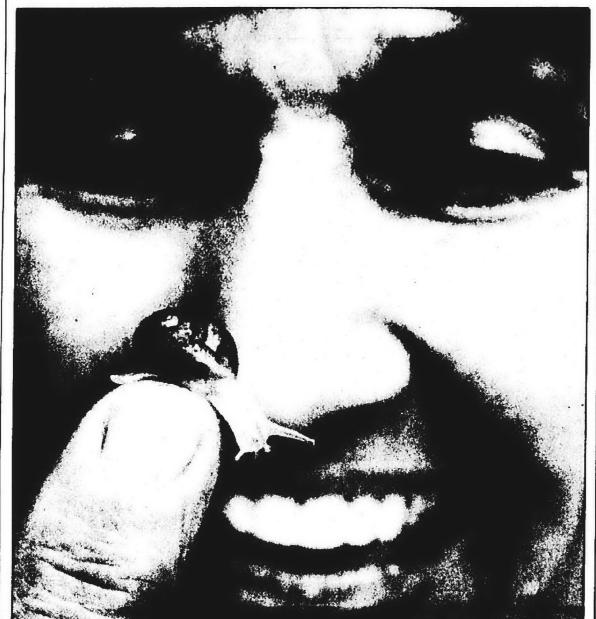

The local court serves the townships of Plymouth, Canton and Northville, and the cities of Plymouth and Northville.

Teacher is 'adoption agent' for snails

By Peggy Aulino

staff writer

Sally DeRoo is responsible for a small population explosion in the Plymouth-Canton school district.

It all began a few years ago in the cafeteria of the Ford Motor Co. It was there that a parent of a West Middle School student found a snail in a shipment of lettuce. The tiny invertebrate was sent, via the student, to science teacher DeRoo.

And it was in DeRoo's classroom that that snail became a mother, then a grandmother, and so on. Not only does DeRoo use the snails as a teaching tool, she has taken on duties as an adoption agent.

Snails have been sent to classrooms throughout the district, and DeRoo estimates that she's given away at

"THESE SNAILS have turned out to be an interesting, low-cost, living thing to have in your classroom," DeRoo said. She also said they make for "an easy-care pet - just feed them nice, fresh lettuce and keep them

The tiny invertebrates, called land or Helix snails, are "very simple organisms" made up mostly of water, DeRoo said. But she said they are remarkable in that they respond to human beings.

"I don't know if it's light, touch or just being in the presence of another living thing," she said. "Even the tiny ones respond right away. They come right out of their shell and look around."

City trying to sell land

For about 16 years the city of Plymouth has been unsuccessful in its efforts to sell some property it owns on Beck Road in Northville Township, but it's going to try, try

The city commission Monday voted to advertise for bids on a 48acre plot of land that was a well field until the early 1970s.

"They closed the well field down in 1972 after they started buying Detroit water," said city manager Henry E. Graper Jr.

Sale of the land, between Five and Six Mile, has been hampered by matters over which the city has no control, Graper said.

"It all depends on what's happening in the real estate market," he said. "Every time we seemed to get a good bidder . . . interest rates shot Graper also placed some blame on the shoulders of city commission members, saying the officials "couldn't make up their mind how much they wanted for it.'

EARLIER THIS year, two bidders who were turned down sued the city land Friday, July 29.

over the rejection. That matter is still pending, but Mayor Karl Gansler said the judge handling the case gave the city permission to continue eeking bids.

The city did manage to sell the property a few years ago, but the deal fell through when the buyer failed to maintain payments, Gan-

"It's genuinely my hope that we can sell this piece of land once and for all and be done with it," he said.

The well site provided water for all businesses and residences in the city until the commission voted in 1972 to tap into the Detroit water system. The well water left much to be desired, Gansler recalled.

"It was full of iron," he said. "Everybody had water softeners at that

The bid specifications say that the minimum price to be considered is $412,000. Income from the sale would go into the water fund and be used for maintenance and repair of water and sewer lines

Gansler said the property is "trees and brush." It has 1,000 feet of frontage on Beck Road and goes back about 1,000 feet, said Graper.

Man files suit against police

By M.B. Dillon staff writer

A Plymouth man filed suit in Oakland County Circuit Court last week, charging that police in Wolverine Lake and Walled Lake subjected him "to repeated blows with an electric cattle prod."

Michael Slentz, 1600 N. Territoridamages, claiming he "still suffers, and will continue to suffer, pain, humiliation, mental anguish, embarrassment, gross indignity and inconvenience" as a result.

Wolverine Police Chief Jim Davis said Slentz was arrested for operating under the influence of liquor and resisting arrest around 3 a.m. April 11. 1987.

Walled Lake District Court records show Slentz pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of impaired driving. He was fined $500 and sentenced to serve 30 days in Oakland County Jail, or to attend an in-patient alcohol abuse program.

Sientz also pleaded guilty to resisting arrest. That charge was to be dropped if Slentz paid $100 and committed no more violations in six months' time.

Slentz also was ordered to reimburse the Wolverine Police Department $162 for damaging a squad car.

THE INCIDENT began when a Walled Lake resident called police, saying a man in a car was ramming another vehicle in a parking lot, Davis said.

Davis denied that police used a cattle prod.

"I would certainly hope not," he al, is seeking more than $10,000 in said. "At this point we have a written policy prohibiting the use of any cattle prod or any other such type of equipment," he said.

Davis declined to say anything more about the case, because he hadn't been able to consult with legal counsel.

Walled Lake police also declined comment.

Slentz' attorney, Leonard Miller, filed a four-count complaint against the cities and police departments of Walled Lake and Wolverine Lake. charging that officers falsely arrested and imprisoned Slentz

Due to the "unprovoked attack" of four police officers, two from each community, Slentz "sustained a severe and brutal physical beating and suffered injuries to his face, nose, abdomen, genitals and teeth," according to the complaint.

Resident recalls 50 years of serving public

staff writer

In the Roaring '20's, Kenneth Swain was a young man who went east. At age 79, the robust Iowan is still here, enjoying his 50th year of self-employment.

The owner of Kenneth G. Swain Realty in Plymouth, Swain shares his downtown office with Merle Hamlin, his son-in-law and office manager. The two, along with Swain's son Jerry, took time out recently to reminisce about earlier days. It was 1938 when Swain, who graduated from Cass Technical High School "where Charles Lindbergh's mother was a teacher," opened a radio service store in Plym-Finding accommodations wasn't easy. We soon discovered that there was nothing to rent for housing or business, except an old rundown commercial building at the corner of Wing Street and S. Main, recalled Swain, who lives in Plymouth Township. "I rented the building from Mr. Edward Hough, then president of the Daisy Air

"IT WAS a gem. The entrance faced Wing Street, which was unpaved at the time. There were a few stepping stones to keep customers out of the mud during inclement weather. There was no furnace

"A coal stove was provided. There was no plumbing or water supply. We had a pail back of the counter. I imagine you know what it was used for."

Rent was $15 a month.

Swain, and Marie Mickelsen, his young, Minnesota-born bride, rolled up their

"With not much sense but a lot of zeal, we cleaned, painted, did some carpenter work, installed signs and opened the shop for business," he said. "We had not yet found a new place to live."

Swain, a skilled crystal set maker, contacted automobile dealers, auto parts stores and appliance stores.

"I remember thinking if I make $50 a week, I'll have it made," said Swain.

"In a matter of a few months, I had the automobile radio installation and repair business pretty well sewed up in Plym-

His success surprised the locals.

"IT HAD been rumored up and down the street that Swain would not last six months in Plymouth. But I remained in that location some three years until Uncle Sam gave me the option of going into the armed forces or working for a defense contractor with World War II getting started.

"Having three young children, I closed up shop and chose the defense work," said Swain, who lost his wife 10 years ago after 49 years of marriage.

The Swains, who, owing to "our limited knowledge of economics", built a home in Detroit in 1929 at the onset of the Great Depression, happened on Plymouth after learning that Burroughs was building a new plant in the Plymouth area.

THE SWAINS passed their entrepreneurial know-how along to their children.

Police support high court ruling on chases

Canton Public Safety director John Santomauro said, "I don't think we'll be chasing people any more than in the past. The difference I see is that those things that are seized as a result of that probable cause will be admitted.

Plymouth Township Police Chief Carl Berry said the ruling "won't have any effects as far as we're con-you want. You still have to have probable cause to arrest someone. But when a subject is apprehended more evidence, more than likely, will be admissible whereas before it might have been questionable.

Plymouth Police Chief Richard Myers views the ruling as "more an affirmation of the responsibility and duty of the police to investigate pos-who's running. "In chasing someone and apprehending them, what you do in the process may be of concern to people," he said. "They might raise the question. Was the person really fleeing?' I think police officers by the nature of their work can tell the difference between a person who's fleeing and a jogger." Years have taken their toll on to suspect something is afoot when Garber was more hesitant about the merits of the ruling, saying, "I don't get to pass judgment on Supreme Court justices. They're my bosses. I just follow what they tell me, good, bad or indifferent. Sometimes I even agree with them," he

> SO FAR, few civil rights advocates have expressed opposition to the ruling.

> This is not a case that bothers the American Civil Liberties Union as much as other Fourth Amendment cases do. We don't see this as an attempt to chip away at the Fourth Amendment, which they have done in past years," said Paul Denenfeld, ACLU legal director.

"It would if this simply were a case of police officers essentially hounding someone, hoping to get them to react to them under pressure," he said.

"But this involved a police cruiser on routine patrol, observing a man get out of a car. When the defendant saw the scout car, he started running. Police officers began to follow the man, who was on foot, in their cruiser.

"They started driving alongside him for a short distance, and saw him discard a number of packets. Only after they picked up the packets did they begin to make an arrest.

"Because the facts are fairly narrow, we don't have a serious concern that this will encourage police to begin essentially harassing people by following them, and I think that's the biggest concern," he added.

WAYNE COUNTY assistant prosecutor Andrea Solak tried the case before the U.S. Supreme Court, an experience she called "thrilling, exhilirating and intimidating.

"I know some commentators have said this is a chipping away of the Fourth Amendment," she said. "We don't feel this is a chipping away. and we don't feel citizens' Constitutional rights have been diminished in any respect. I jog and walk the streets, and I don't feel jeopardized at all by today's decision," said So-Solak was happy to see "it was a 9-0 opinion, indicating unanimity from the court. It's an endorsement of the police to continue in responsible investigatory practices.

To the extent that it gives guidance to the court, that's appropriate because Michigan authority did not provide what we believed to be the proper rule," she said.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

Group tries to drum up support for new outfits

The Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps still needs to raise money to buy new uniforms in time to wear on the Fourth of July.

By Peggy Aulino

In George Washington's day, there was no polyester Still, the synthetic uniforms of the Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps look like the ones worn by the first president's soldiers.

Trouble is, the suits are starting to enter the antique stage.

The uniforms have been handed down from member to member and dragged across the country on tours since the group purchased them in 1976. It bought them with a federal grant, which was available as part of the country's bicentennial celebra-

Last year, the corps started a drive to raise money for new ones Delivery is expected in time for July 4 parades in Plymouth and Northville. The only problem left to solve is how to come up with the balance due on the outfits.

"A lot of people think that we raised enough money We haven't." said Ron Loiselle, chairman of the uniform fund-raiser

Between $6,000 and $7,000 was donated by service clubs and individuals last year, Loiselle said. That was added to the corps' performance fees to come up with a $20,000 down payment. The total cost for 43 uniforms is $30,000

THE NEW suits will look much like those they are replacing. The pants will be off-white, rather than the current buff. The red vests and blue coats sporting brass buttons will remain. But this time they will be wool, not polyester.

We are trying to go for more authenticity," said Loiselle. He pointed out that wool is more "breathable" than synthetic fibers and therefore keeps its wearer cooler.

Donations may be mailed to the Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps at P.O. Box 176, Plymouth 48170.

Loiselle, who is a Plymouth city commissioner said the corps members are "really excited" about the prospect of getting new uniforms They are also "kind of at a panis stage he said

Loiselle shrugged his shoulders when asked what will be done if the $10,000 isn't raised by the time the uniforms are delivered

We'll probably have to borrow it," he said. "We hope we don't have to do that because we have never had to go into debt before.

MEMBERS OF the corps, most of whom are from the Plymouth, Canton and Northville areas, will hold a fund-raising car wash from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 21. They will set up shop at two locations in the Michigan Bank parking lot at Sheldon and Ann Arbor road and at Colonial Cleaners on Main Street in Plymouth

The cost of having one's car washed is "a donation, hopefully a big donation, said Loiselle.

He said he sees the Corps as a asset to the community because it's one of the few groups that really does a lot for the community as far as promoting the name throughout Michigan

Residents cope with high temperatures

By Susan Buck staff writer

It's a sizzler out there. The weather has always been a conversational icebreaker for some folks but in this succession of 90-plus degree days, the topic has taken on larger dimensions.

Plymouth and Canton people are coping with the heat in various ways. One thing is clear They aren't curtailing activities.

Senior citizens are as active as ever In Canton, none of the senior softball games have been cancelled.

There's been complaints about the heat, but that's all," said Louise Spigarelli, assistant coordinator of putting wet towels around their necks when they play to keep cool." Seniors are urged to come down to the air-conditioned center to beat the heat, said coordinator Diane Neihen-At Oakwood Hospital and the

McCauley Health Building, Canton, and the Arbor Health Building. Plymouth, there have been no reported cases of heat exhaustion. Betty Zentz, a nurse at the McCauley Urgent Care Center on Ann Arbor Trail in Plymouth, urges residents to drink plenty of fluids and take frequent rest breaks.

Just as people must take better care of their bodies during the summer, some extra TLC is in order for outside plants, shrubs and trees

According to Jeff Jones of the Plymouth Nursery and Garden Center, homeowners frequently douse their lawns but neglect to water their shade trees.

"This area is plagued with hard, clay soil," he said. "It's difficult to tell people how to water. It depends on the weather."

When making a private call to inspect failing shade trees, Jones first grabs a trowel and digs four to six inches into the soil. The aim is moist, not dry or wet soil.

Sometimes when I dig, the ground is rock hard and dry; other times, I find mud. A shade tree takes one to two years to become established and must be properly wa-

People tend to pay more attention to their lawn, which is much more resilient, than to their evergreens and shrubs, which can hide a lot of damage. By the time damage is noted, it's usually too late.'

Methods of watering vary too. A hot item at the Frank's Nursery on Ford Road in Canton is the walking sprinkler that travels and winds the hose up as it goes, said Rao Ravipati, assistant manager.

Supporters have six weeks to convince Wayne County voters a tax increase is needed to benefit programs for mentally and physically impaired students.

But they admit it won't be easy. The 1-mill tax increase request. doubling the current county special education tax, will face votes during the Aug. 2 primary. (For more information on the request, see related story.) To succeed, however, the measure needs to overcome several obstacles, including:

· A similar, though better-publicized 1-mill tax increase proposed for Wayne County jails.

 Voter uncertainty over proposals being debated in the state Legislature that would shift the burden of school support from property to sales taxes

• Anti-tax sentiment exhibited in some school districts, like Plymouth-Canton where a recent Headlee override proposal was rejected by

• Lack of public enthusiasm from superintendents in the district's 34 public school districts

• A short campaign season. The Wayne County Intermediate School District only decided to seek the tax increase in March, giving supporters who know where the positive voters less than five months to sell the proposal to voters.

Supporters, however, believe they can overcome all obstacles if they could forge a network of special education parents.

"Parents are going to have to do it," millage supporter Robert Redden said. "They're the ones who are interested in this more than anything

Redden, a Plymouth resident and Lincoln Park elementary school principal, is also the parent of a special education student in Plymouth Canton Community Schools.

A strong emotional appeal will be used.

"The campaign calls for people who will emotionally buy in to the special education program," said Jerry Montecillo, Taylor superintendent of schools, another member of the millage support task force.

The Wayne County Intermediate School District, which proposed the tax increase, is targeting parents and special education teachers.

'We're dealing with the directors of special ed and the parents and handicapped groups within those communities," intermediate schools spokeswoman Katherine Mathey said. "Those seem to be the people

Supporters also say local schools will face severe budget cuts, some even to the point of bankruptcy, if the proposal isn't passed.

Currently, they said, school districts are forced to divert money from their general operating budgets to support regional special education programs because state grants and taxes aren't covering program costs.

One-fifth of all operating costs are accounted for by "charge backs" to individual school districts, Mathey

The 1-mill increase would double taxes currently paid for special education. The initial 1-mill special education tax was approved by county voters in 1974.

Under federal law, public school districts are responsible to provide programming for mentally and physically impaired students from birth through age 26.

Wayne County's special education population includes 6,000 "low incidence" students - students with severe retardation or severe physical handicaps or a combination of dis-

Programs for some of these students are provided in their homes. but most are buses, often at great expense, to regional centers.

Programs can't be cut, supporters

"There's no option to look at these programs and cut them back," special education consultant David Soebbing said. "You're going to be paying for it one way or another.'

Nor can programs be consolidat-

We did a very exhaustive study of all the center programs (between 1982-84) and we looked at each and every one of the center programs," Mathey said. "As a result of that we did consolidate some center programs. But we're now to a point where we feel we've done as much as we can do."

The 36 centers are operated within 14 districts, including Livonia, Wayne-Westland, Garden City, Redford Union and South Redford.

As to the obstacles, supporters are being optimistic.

'We don't know whether the jail millage is to our advantage or disadvantage," Mathey said. "It may be that people would vote no on the jail and yes for special ed but who

"I think we can demonstrate there is a need and I think we can demonstrate we've done all we can. We've got our facts and figures I think our rationale is a sound one.

One of the center-based programs that would benefit from the increased millage is the oral program for the hearing impaired in the Redford Union School District. The RU program is one of various regional center in which students are bused from throughout western Wayne County to attend. The RU program was one of four selected in 1987 for honors by the Michigan-Speech-Language Hearing Association. Pictured are teacher Cheryl McCullough with elementary student Daniela Pesce.

Tax proposal's details in brief:

Wayne County voters are being asked to raise taxes to support special education programs. Here is vital information of the special education tax increase proposal.

Who is seeking the tax increase?

The increase is sought by the Wayne County Intermediate School District. The intermediate district oversees special education and other programs in the county's 34 public school districts.

What is being sought?

The county intermediate schools seeks a 1-mill tax increase, doubling a county special education millage approved by voters in 1974. The increase translates to an additional $37.50 in taxes for homeowners living in houses with a market value of Every public school district holds dents, as well as for students with common disabilities. The proposed increase would primarily benefit programs for students with "low incidence" disabilities, including profound mental retardation, autism and severe physical disabilities. These students are educated at regional centers. Various regional centers are conducted in space provided within local school districts. Observer area districts that host centerbased program are Livonia, Wayne-Westland, Garden City, Redford Union and South Redford.

When will voters decide the issue? The tax increase will appear on the Tuesday, Aug. 2 primary ballot.

How much money will the tax increase raise and how will it be distributed?

Approval of the tax increase will raise an estimated $22 million, including $2 million in matching state money, the first year it's levied, according to an intermediate school district spokeswoman. Of that, $7 million would relieve "charge-backs" to individual school districts for the specialized "low incidence" special education programs provided students living within district boundaries. The remaining $15 million would either be used to supplement each district's standard special education programs or be held in escrow to offset future increases in low incidence program costs.

Why is the tax increase needed? It's needed to prevent school districts from going broke, the spokes-

Charge backs are paid from school districts' general operating budgets, preventing the money from being used for other educational programs. Charge backs run into several hundred thousand dollars each year for many school districts, the spokeswoman said, hampering districts' ability to balance their budgets.

Costs for "low incidence" special education programs have been increasing by an average eight percent per year, the spokeswoman said.

Increases have outstripped the state aid and tax revenue used to support special education programs prompting the intermediate schools to charge individual district for services rendered.

While the raw number of students has remained constant since the late 1970s, the spokeswoman said the severity of student disabilities and cost of specialized equipment to educate these students has increased dramatically since the first millage was ap-

Cities can forget about rent-control ordinances under a legislative bill awaiting Gov. James Blanchard's signature.

Rent controls have done nothing to help housing," said Sen. Richard Fessler, R-Commerce, sponsor of the

"It has been tried in other states. New York City did it. Their hope is protect lower income people. The goal is laudatory

"What happens is that there is very little new construction. Where it (new construction) happens, it is luxury housing, not lower-income and middle-income housing. In older are high, the owner decreases his maintenance." Fessler said.

THE HOUSE last week gave 75-24 approval to the bill, with all Republicans and more than half the Democrats voting yes.

Western Wayne County Democrats voting yes were Justine Barns of Westland, John Bennett of Redford and James Kosteva of Canton. Not voting was William Keith of Garden City

Rep. Maxine Berman, D-Southfield, voted no. She also tried to win an amendment tie-barring the antirent control bill to her bill to require that landlords give more adequate structures, where maintenance costs Berman amendment failed on a 39-54 roll call

Two years ago Berman produced a package of tenant-protection bills. but the rent-control bill never made it through committee.

Rep Perry Bullard, D-Ann Arbor, sought an amendment allowing voters to approve rent-control ordinances, but it lost on a voice vote.

Both houses voted to give the bill immediate effect, which means it would become law 10 days after the governor signs it.

Blanchard is expected to sign the bill because he rarely attempts to veto measures that are passed by heavy margins.

ECONOMISTS, even liberals, generally oppose any kind of price and rent controls

They cite the case of New York City, as Fessler did, and France, where new construction stopped when rent contols were imposed

Even the threat of rent control in Detroit has chilled plans for three major riverfront developments, according to Rep. Michael Bennane, a Democrat. He and half the Detroit delegation supported Fessler's bill

One reason Fessler sought a uniform state law was to avoid a hodgepodge of rent control ordinances. There had been support for Berman's rent-control bill from Detroit. Southfield, Westland, Ann Arbor and many college towns

Earlier this year, Ann Arbor voters rejected a rent-control ordinance by a 2-1 margin

SOME DEMOCRATS argued that Fessier's bill violated the rights of home-rule cities

I do not support rent control." said Rep. David Gubow, D-Huntington Woods, but I believe this issue is one of local concern, and the state should not prevent a local community's right to decide an issue which addresses local housing problems

Rep. Mary Brown, D-Kalamazoo, added another argument. "Such a Machiavellian subjugation of local autonomy leaves local units with fewer ways to respond to housing problems.

This legislation pushes local governments toward public ownership of housing if they are to meet the needs of citizens, especially low-income families." Brown said.

FESSLER SAID West Bloomfield in his district has seen a problem with older tenants unable to afford jacked-up rents when a new landlord bought a building

But there are more workable solutions to the problem, he said, citing competition between builders and federally subsidized rents

"Subsidized rents are far cheaper than putting people in retirement homes. And under federal guidelines. you get a good mix of people," he

County plan seeks to retire debt

By Wayne Pool staff writer

Wayne County is seeking a state loan of up to $120 million plus authorization to issue up to $100 million in bonds in an effort to put its massive debt to rest - once and for

County commissioners agreed Tuesday to seek the loan and bond issue, continuing a process that began in December

Then, the state Legislature approved a series of measures, most notably a cigarette tax increase, designed to help the debt-ridden county balance its budget and pay off past debts.

County debts are listed at $217 million.

The county's cigarette tax allotment will be used to pay off the bonds, while the loan could be inter-

"IT COULD be interest free if the county shows financial responsibility," said F. Thomas Lewand of Jaffe, Snider, Raitt and Heuer, the private firm hired by the county to assist with the application process.

Financial responsibility, Lewand said, includes demonstrated ability to produce a series of balanced county budgets.

The emergency loan program has been used by debt-ridden communities, including Highland Park and Benton Harbor, though the county loan is believed to be one of the largest in state history.

The county is petitioning the state's emergency financial assistance loan board for the loan. The three-member board includes state treasurer Robert Bowman, budget director Shelby Soloman and commerce department director Douglas

The bonds will be part of a massive state bond bank July issue. The county is using the bond bank, instead of a private firm, to save interest costs.

Wayne County's once-shaky financial reputation is improving, Lewand said, in part because of a five-year solvency program that was also presented to the commission Tuesday.

Selling the bonds should prove no trouble, county officials said. Bonds are set to be issued July 22.

Area commissioners Kay Beard. D-Inkster, Susan Heintz, R-Northville Township, and Milton Mack, D-Wayne voted to approve seeking the bonds and the loan. Though commissioners also approved the solvency plan, they noted rising health care costs doomed the 1984 agreement and warned they could do so again.

'That's the single most frightening aspect," said commission chairman Arthur Carter, D-Detroit.

Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara recently announced the county expects to save $13 million in health care costs this year - especially with the expected Oct. 1 introduction of a health maintenance organization (HMO) for needy county residents.

While they applauded the HMO concept, commissioners said they were skeptical $13 million could be

"We're praying for that," commissioner George Cushingberry, D-Detroit, said.

Boat safety bills House bans polygraphs in business

Here's how area House members were recorded on major roll call votes in the week ending June 3. The Senate was not in session.

POLYGRAPH TESTING - By a vote of 251 for and 120 against, the House approved the conference report on legislation (HR 1212) prohibiting most private employers from administering polygraph tests to employees and job applicants.

Among the few categories of employers exempted from the ban are those that handle controlled drugs, do intelligence work for the government and operate private security services.

The bill puts no restrictions on lie detector testing by governments. Supporter James Jeffords, R-Vt., said, "You can't just plug a person into a machine and determine whether or not he or she is lying." Opponent George Darden, D-Ga.

Pact represents best approach

OVERNMENT AGENCIES are big into using initials to describe projects and

But whatever initials they use, the agreement between the YCUA and the WTUA is OK for area residents.

The agreement should settle once and for all the issue of how to dispose of and treat sewage generated in Plymouth and Canton townships.

This pact will be expensive for residents but the environmental benefits and other advantages far outweigh the costs associated with this large sewer project

For those unfamiliar with the project, YCUA stands for Ypsilanti Community Utility Authoriv. And WTUA is the Western Townships Utilities Authority, a group comprised of Canton, Plymouth and Northville townships.

DISCUSSION ABOUT a Supersewer project dates back two decades when plans were first drafted to improve sewer capacity in the western Wayne County suburbs.

After 20 years of discussion without much progress, an agreement has been reached that will settle the issue.

Concerned about costs, Plymouth, Canton and Northville dropped out of the larger Wayne County project a few years ago to join with Ypsi-

Fortunately, their withdrawal did not kill the Supersewer project, which also is moving for-

It has taken more than a year to hammer out the agreement with YCUA but the hard work has

So far, Canton and Northville have approved the agreement and Plymouth Township should OK the pact next week.

All that is missing is final approval of a discharge permit from the state. That action is expected later this summer.

This pact will be expensive for residents but the environmental benefits and other advantages far outweigh the costs associated with this large sewer project.

After that approval, the project will be sent to engineers and designers.

THERE IS no doubt this is going to be expensive. Maurice Breen, Plymouth Township supervisor and chairman of the WTUA, estimates costs could hit $100 million Residents of the Plymouth, Canton and Northville townships will be expected to pay their share of the project, possibly through a surcharge on water bills.

Under the plan, the three townships will tie into the Ypsilanti plant, currently operating at less than half of capacity, by 1993.

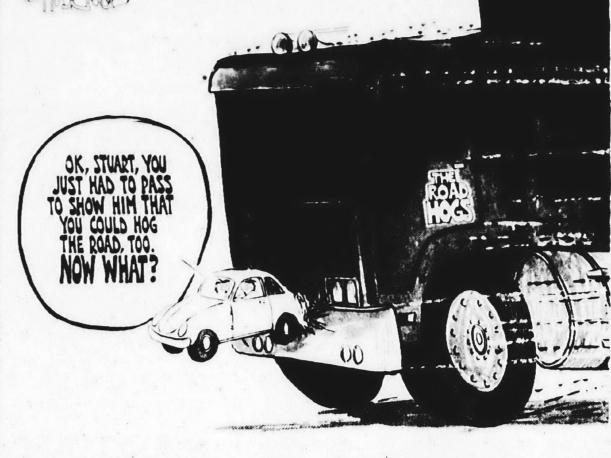

The townships now use the Detroit system. which is overcapacity and often dumps untreated wastes into the Rouge River.

Environmentally, a new sewage system will benefit area waterways like the Rouge because sewage will be treated before it's returned to the

And the Ypsilant plant provides a more thorough treatment process.

The modern plant also should mean more stable sewage rates in the future because the plant is state-of-the-art and meets all environmental regulations.

It has taken 20 years to get to this point, and it will take several more for the project to be completed. Too much time has ticked away making this project a reality but the delays shouldn't diminish the importance of this agreement.

Good and bad news about college tuition

THESE DAYS, more than ever, folks are sitting around and scratching their heads, wondering how the heck they are going to pay those heavy-duty tuitions for university.

Somehow, no matter how hard you try, saving enough money seems almost impossible.

Today we have both some bad news and some great news for those contemplating sending children to college. And the federal government, in all its unrestrained insensitivity, isn't making it any easier for a kid to get an education. In short, the sages who haunt the halls of Congress have found another way to cheat us out of a fairly earned buck.

As we know from reading recent reports, Congress is great for giving specially sculpted tax breaks to friends of legislators, whether they be individuals or corporations. A few years back, individual legislative initiatives gave tax breaks amounting to $10.5 billion.

We here in middle America, far from the inner-circle of the beltway, made up the difference.

Now, in another stroke of legislative inequity, our natinal leaders are picking on high school seniors who want to do, of all things, earn some money to go to college. Not surprisingly, the work ethic in Congress is For college tuition relief, call 1-800-638-not the most admired of attributes. In the past, the amount students were expected to contribute toward tuition and fees was based on their parents' assets and income during the previous year.

Also included, was the students' estimate of how much money they would earn during the coming school Forget that rather fair formula.

Now students' contributions will be figured on the students' earnings

the year before. One educator notes the new rule will "penalize you for trying to at least partially make it on your own." Because of the new formula, students are likely to receive less financial aid this fall than they did last

FORTUNATELY, relief is on the horizon. So please pay attention. This news could save you a bundle. The state of Michigan is about to launch its Education Trust program.

Steve Barnaby

Under its rules you will have to pay a specified amount and the state will pick up the rest of the tab for tuition at a state univeristy or community

For instance, if you have a child who is 13-years-old entering the eighth grade, you'll have to pay $2,204 for each year your child will be attending univeristy. You could pay as little as $1,100 if you are sending a child off to community

Better yet if your child was born this year, you'll only have to pay $1,689 for each year. Even if your child is a high school senior, you can get into the program by paying out $3,145 for the next couple of years.

If you want more information on this program, call 1-800-638-4543.

Bond proposal

Make toxic cleanup priority

CROSS THIS STATE, as across the nation, there are hundreds of ennvironmental time bombs in the form of landfills and dumpsites that, through malice or ignorance, are now the home of improperly stored

These pose a threat to our quality of life as well as to the safety and well-being of our children and their children.

Many of these sites have been identified but their threat still languishes in the absence of corrective action. The cost of cleanup is stunning but the cost of further inaction is more dear. In a state whose livelihood, economics and recreation are so inextricably tied to clean water, it is intolerable to leave untended these threats to both ground and surface water.

This is why with some qualifications we support Gov. James Blanchard's proposal to sell $800 million in bonds to pay for the cleanup of toxic waste sites.

The proposal will likely be on the November ballot, and if the House and Senate can agree on acceptable provisions it deserves your vote. The cost to your pocket is negligible. The state has bond issues that are retiring so that money can pay back the bond sales. Establishing no new bond issue could leave the state debt free by the Eyear 2000, but state finance officials say that is not necessarily a good thing: Wall Street might get nervous because the state is not investing in

And the future is certainly at stake. As Sen. Connie Binsfeld, R-Maple City, said, "We're burying our waste, but we're not burying our problems. If we don't act to do something quickly, we'll be leaving our children a legacy of contaminated ground water and land that's unsafe for homes or farming.'

In his state of the state message, Gov. Blanchard cited the "hundreds of millions of dollars" needed to clean up the state's worst toxic sites and the "scores of toxic compounds in the Great Lakes.

We agree with him, which is why we worry about parts of his proposal, included in the House version of the environmental bond issue, and the Senate version, which is being debated this week. Blanchard has included in his proposal that some of the money be earmarked for recreational purposes and for economic development. These are both worthy causes but they threaten to take away some of the immense amount of money needed for environmental cleanup. They also could become tools for playing the pork barrel game and for trading business projects for votes in the future. The issue is much too important for such gamesmanship.

The $800 million is only a start, especially since the federal government has proven inept at dealing with the crisis. The cleanup must be the only priority in the bond issue.

The compromise bill that the legislature presents to voters should include these characteris-

· A far larger portion of the $800 million should be dedicated to cleanup of toxic sites. The $450 million now set aside is not enough. The true cost of cleanup has been estimated as high

• The Senate attempt to split the issue into two proposals — one for cleanup and the other for recreational purposes - would only confuse the issue. Either eliminate the recreational request entirely or make it a small part of the package. In any case, money from the bond issue should not be used for land purchases but rather for infrastructure improvements to the state park system.

• Improving the state's business climate is a fine idea but it has no place in a bond issue to remove toxic wastes that, in many cases, are the result of negligent and uncaring business practices. Instead, the state should aggressively try to recover cleanup costs from offending businesses whenever possible.

 A $25 million revolving loan fund to help communities construct wastewater treatment plants is also a good idea. But that seed money can come from elsewhere in the state budget and need not be part of the bond proposal.

In truth, there is no reason that the entire $800 million should not be earmarked for the cleanup. The state Legislature has a frightening tradition of raiding environmental funds when it is unable to balance its own budget. Putting recreation and business labels on the cleanup fund could only encourage similar forays in the future.

That is just not acceptable. The $800 million is only a start, especially since the federal government has proven inept at dealing with the crisis. The cleanup must be the only priority in the bond issue. After all, what good are recreational and business sites if there is no clean water?

Swim rule sinks student

I would like to comment on the swimming credit for graduating. I feel that learning how to swim is important, but if you already know how to do this, then you shouldn't waste your time on it when you could be taking a more beneficial course.

I think that if you have an "Advanced Swimmers" card from the American Red Cross, you shouldn't take the beginners course at all. I myself have obtained a certified advanced card from the Red Cross from a gym class at Central Middle School. Many people will say that it's not fair that the people who go to Central have the advantage of a pool (which, by the way, is being closed because of budget cuts) but I think that's a cop out. You can take classes at most pools such as the YMCA. I don't think that I should be punished for other people's lack of effort and time to see what's available.

In fact, this summer I am taking a swimming class at Canton. This is because after all of my academic classes, language, and intro to art class, I have no room for the swim/ fit class that would usually fit into my freshman year.

Since I'm taking the class this summer, I am missing out on a chance to work as an intern as the Omnicom Cable Co. This is not possible with my extremely pointless swimming class.

I suggest that the school board work out an idea that would be beneficial to the students who go to their schools. People who don't take the swimming class this summer, take it during the school year. This means that even if they are fully certified as an advanced swimmer, they are forced to take swimming in the place of a course that would be beneficial to going to college. I just think that there has to be better way of going about this whole ordeal.

Pencil sale helped school

On behalf of the Geer School Restoration Committee, we would like to thank and acknowledge the students, staff and administration of West Middle School. They raised over $325 through a Geer School pencil sale.

A special thanks to the Junior National Honor Society students and their sponsor, Mrs. Porterfield, for organizing the sale. Domino's Pizza, 1069 Main St., and managed by Donna Watson, donated a pizza party for the homeroom with the highest sales. Miss Ontko's sixth graders were the

Over $2,600 worth of pencils have been purchased by elementary and middle school students and others interested in the Geer project. These proceeds will support the restoration of the one-room school. Pencils are available at the board of education

The sales at Field, Fiegel, Gallimore, Hulsing, Isbister, Miller, Smith and Tanger were especially successful this year. The Allen students also sponsored a used toy salé and donated the proceeds for Geer School.

The community support of our project is greatly appreciated.

points of view A Real concept comes into play

NEVER DID I suspect that in my declining years I would become the object of a tug of war between the Lord and the Devil. Yet, the mailbag indicates this is exactly what has happened Recently I wrote of receiving a promotional letter from a dating service for single people. In light of the fact that I had been widowed only three months, I thought this a bit crass.

However, even that sales pitch didn't gall me to the degree this week's porno letter did, telling of "a new concept in adult entertainment that has never been offered through the mail before, until now."

Sexually explicit pictures in promoting a $25 "membership drive" were backed up by the statement, We may have been a bit presumptious in sending you this invitation, but we know you will not regret it; we guarantee it!"

INTERESTINGLY, THE same day's mail also brought delivery of a dispatch from a Rev. James Thompson, who included a copy of one of

It's starting to seem that somehow my name and address have landed on every computerized mailing list under the sun.

I guess there's no doubt about the porno business being at an all-time high. For instance, in a party store a few days ago I noticed that the magazine rack held at least three dozen publications of varying titles that fit that category.

But the owner of the store must be a real killjoy, for above the rack there was a sign reading, "3-minute Maximum for Reading and Looking at the Magazines." (Or maybe he teaches a speed reading course on the side!)

I'll admit to being more appreciative of Thompson's subtlety than the high-powered effort to extract 25 bucks from my wallet for the concept of "the hottest, most in-demand type of sexual video in Europe."

THOMPSON DIDN'T ask me to buy a membership, or even mail him a donation. He simply requested that I read the copy of his sermon. It was built around a children's story by Marjorie Williams, "The Velveteen Rabbit." The subtitle is "How Toys much to him.

In the story, a little boy who has many, many expensive mechanical toys is given a velveteen rabbit that is relegated to the nursery for a long,

The only toy nice to the rabbit is an old rocking horse, who has the look of wisdom that comes with experience. One day the rabbit asks the horse, "What is Real, anyway?"

He asks if it means looking fancy, having things that buzz, and being expensive like the mechanical toys; to which the horse replies, "Real isn't how you are made. It's a thing that happens to you. If a child loves you for a long, long time, not just to play with, but really loves you, then vou become Real.

"Does it happen all at once, like being wound up?" asks the rabbit, and is told, "It takes a long time. That is why it doesn't happen to people who break easily, or have sharp edges, or have to be carefully kept.

"Generally by the time you are Real, most of your hair has been loved off, your eyes drop out, you get loose in the joints and are very shabby. But these things don't matter at all, because once you are Real, you can't be ugly ever, except to people who don't understand."

WELL, EVENTUALLY the little boy takes the rabbit to be his very own, sleeps and plays with him, and takes him everywhere for all his

The rabbit is so happy he doesn't notice his fur becoming shabby or that all the pink has been rubbed off his nose where the boy had kissed him so often.

One day the nurse tries to throw the bunny away because it is so old, but the boy yells out, "You can't do that. He isn't a toy. He's Real." In that moment the little rabbit tingles all over with joy because he finally has heard the words that mean so

Trapped fox pups howl for life

By Jonethan Schechter staff writer

NOT FAR FROM the bustling intersection of Long Lake and Woodward Avenue a pair of wild "canids" was in deep, deep trouble. Six feet deep, with no way out, a most unusual wildlife-human interaction slowly unfolded.

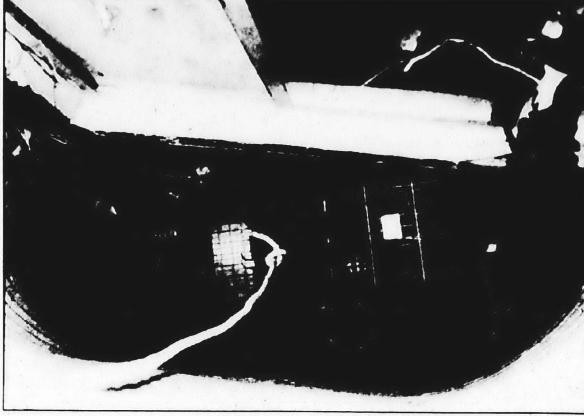

All night, a homeowner had been puzzled by a persistent almost doglike yapping. Crows called to announce the first light of dawn, yet that coarse bark continued. Sunlight clearly showed who was conducting the off-key serenade. An adult red fox paced and yapped just a few feet from the house while deep down in the adjacent steel window well, two pairs of anxious fox pups gazed skyward. Mom slowly retreated to the woods, and the pups curled back into a single ball of soft red fluff and waited, again.

Foxes in suburbia? You better believe it, and it's time that the prejudice against this predator gave way to appreciation of this sleek, beautiful and highly successful member of the wild dog family. Vulpes vulpes, the red fox, is here to stay . . . hope-

Red foxes have learned the rules of suburban survival well. Their mere existence and breeding success among our homes and highways and never-ending developments is vivid testimony to their ability to co-exist

THE FOX IS an opportunistic forger and avid hunter, using techniques ranging from a slow and methodical stalk to a mad dash and grab. (Yes, I really have sat out all night to watch foxes near one of the four "local" dens I am aware of.) Menu items include such diverse delicacies as worms, mice, snakes, rabbits, eggs, ducks, young raccoons, muskrats and the occasional groundhog that stayed out too late. As spring gives way to sultry summer nights, new items such as raspberries, strawberries, apples and fat juicy beetles add variety.

Foxes do not eat, threaten, molest or in any way harm people. Dogs and cats do not make the top 10 list of appetizers either, but if you have pet gerbils, hamsters or rabbits the fox wouldn't mind having that for dessert. The fox survives because it takes advantage of opportunity and can adapt quickly to most environmental changes.

Fishing foxes out of a window is a challenge. It took a box-cage, a snare pole, rope, heavy gloves and a cooperative homeowner along with gentle words and poking and prodding.

Fox habitat is as diverse as the lo- others and plays host to two persiscal landscape. Den entrances are usually hidden on a hillside, but are sometimes on level ground. Hedge rows, stream bank, highway berms and railroad rights of way provide relatively safe travel corridors. Feeding areas include shallow marshes, grassy fields and your large, secluded back yard. Unfortunately some area residents have not adapted to the acceptance of the presence of the foxes of suburbia. More than a few have expressed concern to local agencies, "A fox was on my property.'

IF YOU STILL don't like foxes keep in mind that it is illegal to hunt or trap foxes in all local communities. Granted, if you are a mouse, a red fox is the last thing you will want to, or might ever see. Sniff . . . listen . . . leap, leap, leap and Crunch, The local fox population is known by few, loved by some and feared by tent fables. Fable No. 1. All foxes carry rabies. No. Foxes, like all mammals can carry rabies, but a rabid fox has never been found in the local communities. (Never feed or catch a wild animal.) Fable No. 2. Foxes stalk people. No. Foxes are curious, intelligent and inquisitive, and you are something strange and a bit odd-behaving to "check out." But wait, what about those pups back in the window well? How did they get there? Perhaps the same way your car once got in a ditch. By mistake. Perhaps one pup leaped after a flying beetle, and whoosh, down it went. Pup number two nosed in for a closer look and took the big tumble. Mom then stood vigil and yapped until their plight became known. Operation "fox hoist" was under way.

FISHING A FOX out of a window is a challenge. It took a box-cage, a snare pole, rope, heavy gloves and a time fox rescuer.

cooperative homeowner along with gentle words and poking and prodding. In 10 minutes both pups were hauled up to the surface and temporarily caged without so much as a whimper, yelp or any serious attempts at biting. Their cat-like eyes (vertically elliptical pupils) so reflective at night now just looked warm and tired

The tired look disappeared as the cage was set down a few hundred feet from the den It was time to be a wild fox again. The moment the door opened the pair dashed across the closely cropped lawn, zig-zagged around the pool and dove into the raspberry thicket guarding the den entrance. "We're home, Mom, sorry

'Tis the season for garage sales

HEY PROVIDE the perfect opportunity to pick up those little odds and ends that come in handy.

Garage sales also serve a purpose for those looking to lighten their load. By holding a sale, it's possible to clean out some storage space in the garage, attic or basement. That space can then be used to store the new treasures found at other garage

Garage sales are easy to spot these days in the Plymouth-Canton community. Signs posted at street corners and on front lawns point the way to the sales. The telltale sign of parked cars in front of a house is another indicator that there may be treasure to be found.

Plymouth Township resident Jackie Binder can attest to the fact that a garage sale serves a purpose. "It makes you clean out what you don't use," she said.

When your teen is talking party

Plan in advance. Check party plans with your teenager and know the guest list. If you agree with who is invited, you can curb the "open party" situation.

Set a time limit. Set a definite start and ending; not too long. Consider daytime parties as an alternative to evening ones or plan an activity such as swimming, skating or renting movies.

Agree to rules ahead of time. These might include:

No drugs, including alcohol

No smoking

No leaving the party and then returning allowed Lights should be left on

No gate crashers

Some rooms in your house are off limits

Know your responsibilities. The responsible adult at a teenagers party is visible and AWARE. Remember IT IS ILLEGAL TO SERVE DRUGS, INCLUDING ALCOHOL, TO MINORS. You are legally responsible for anything that may happen to a minor who has been served drugs or alcohol in YOUR home.

invite another parent or couple over. Other adults are company for you during a long evening and can be of help with problems. Also, if parents have driven teenagers to your house, you might consider inviting them in to meet you, however briefly.

Call the host. Before giving consent that your teenager be allowed to attend a party, make sure of the basic rules, such as parental supervision and that no alcohol will be allowed.

Check the party plans beforehand with your teenager. Know where your child is going and with whom. When taking your teenager to a party, wait to see that he or she is inside the house. If you don't know the host parents, introduce yourself.

Make it easy for your teenager to leave a party. If there is drinking or drug use or any reason that your teenager wishes to leave a party, make an arrangement that your child can call you (or a designated adult) who will come. Urge your teenager NEVER to ride home with a driver who has been drinking. You might have an understanding that there will be no punishments or restrictions for a call letting you know that things are getting our of hand.

Be up to greet your teenager when he or she comes home from a party.

Q. Are the police ever catted to assist parents when their child's party has gotten out of hand?

A. Yes. Most problems arise at parties involving high school age children and usually in situations where parents are absent. The two major problems at these parties are uninvited guests and the consumption of alcohol.

Q. What are parents' responsibilities when their child has a party in their home?

A. Most parents are ignorant of the law in this regard. Many have called the police department to inquire about their responsibilities. Parents should know that there are criminal charges that can be brought for serving alcolho to minors and for risking injury to minors. Penalties of up to one year in prison, fines ranging up to $1,000. or both, may result if a parent is caught allowing minors to consume alco-

Q. What advice should be given to parents who want to allow their child to have a party?

A. First there must be parental supervision. Parents are legally responsible for what happens to minors in their home. Second, do not allow alcoholic beverages to be served. Limit the number of guests and let the party be "by invitation only." A word-ofmouth general Invitation brings party crashers.

Clergy happiness is focus of study

AP - Most Episcopal priests and their spouses are happy in the minis try, although three of five say they have at least one serious family problem, according to a study to be presented to the Episcopal Church's General Convention in Detroit next

An overall index of the emotional, physical and spiritual health of a parish priest showed that 56 percent find "joy and satisfaction" in their work and that another third said the ministry was fulfilling though not always pleasant.

"If there are any great surprises, it is in the good health of the clergy, said Roberta Walmsley, a social worker, wife of Bishop Arthur E. Walmsley of Connecticut and one of the project coordinators.

The three-year study, designed by Adair Lummis, a Hartford Seminary sociologist, was conducted in Connecticut and five other dioceses in the Northeast and Southeast to find out what makes clergy families hap-

One of the key findings was that spouses who find ways to balance conflicting demands of the church and the family are the healthiest.

Spouses who do sacrifice time alone for themselves do so at a rather heavy cost to their overall health and ability to function well in their families or in their congregations." the study said.

In the six dioceses, 613 parish clery and 424 spouses responded to the survey, representing a 71 percent response, which the coorindators said was an unusually high return. The survey was designed to ensure the respondents' anonymity.

The study began three years ago in the dioceses of Alabama, Central Florida and Tennessee. It was extended in January 1987 into the dioceses of Connecticut, Massachusetts and Maryland.

WALMSLEY SAID the study showed that parishioners must learn to respect their priests' need to have time for their families.

"That's a hard thing to say, to articulate," she said. "How do you tell people, 'I am your pastor, but don't call me except between the hours of such and such'?

The study found that priests in the Southeast feel a higher level of trust and communicate better with their bishops than do priests in the Northeast, where the number of priests is where in the country.

much greater

In Connecticut, the report said, There is an overriding sense of functioning in a somewhat impersonal bureaucracy with little access to its leadership or connectedness to its members "

Connecticut, with more than 300 active clergy and 182 parishes, is one of the largest dioceses in the Frequent feelings of stress topped the list of problems cited by clergy and their spouses, according to the 145-page report, "Episcopal Clergy Families in the '80s." Least cited were "physical abuse" and "marital Financial difficulties were reported mostly by clergy with families who were struggling to get by an what they made in small and poor parishes, Lummis said.

Those in the middle range of salaries - $25,000 to $50,000 per year were more likely to be satisfied with their pay if they were happy in their work, Lummis said.

The study also found that single women who are priests had the lowest total family income. Married women priests reported the highest family income, higher than that for families with male priests.

Walmsley and Lummis said they believe some problems were underreported, possibly because some respondents feared being identified somehow and jeopardizing their careers, or were denying problems to themselves.

"DIOCESAN COMMITTEE members involved in counseling clergy, or with a wide knowledge of resident priests, believed that alcoholism and drug abuse, physical, sexual and emotional abuse, severe problems with children, and marital infidelity were quite possibly underreported,' the report said.

The study was conducted by the Episcopal Family Network, a church organization led by the Rev. William Winterrowd of Scarsdale, N.Y.

Walmsley coordinated the project in the Northeast. Christine Folwell, wife of Bishop William Hopkins, coordinated the effort in the Southeast.

Walmsley said the church's triennial General Convention, which meets July 2-11 in Detroit, will be asked to contribute $200,000 to $300,000 to extend the project else-

We need to be aware of our wastefulness

My wife and I picked strawberries last week. It was one of those beautiful spring mornings. The air was fresh. The morning was bright the strawberries were plentiful, large and tasty. It was a morning experience of grace and delight

There was one disappointment Much of that bountiful crop of strawberries will be left to spoil on the vine. Many pickers were choosing only the largest ones, and leaving the smaller ones on the vine. It was a sickening experience of wastefulsimple. Pick the ripes ones. Nothing was said about size or shape. I remember nothing being said to encourage the practice of selecting only the largest strawberries IN SOME supermarkets selling strawberries, I have seen signs encouraging each shopper to select the best fruit. Each shopper is encouraged to pick the best from among all those available until the supply is exhausted This is an acceptable practice of marketing. But strawberry bins in ened for picking. Our practice of stewardship has added taste and delight to life's flow There was no abundance encouraging waste. There was only that abundance which created an extra measure of taste and delight. Few rural homesteads maintain strawberry patches today, and even fewer suburban residents include them in their yards. The idea that humans are the stewards of earth and accountable to God for the provisioning of the earth is foreign to STORIES FROM ancient Biblical times remind us how difficult it is to practice justice and righteousness (good stewardship), in the midst of life's ebb and flow. The story of Ruth gleaning in the fields of Boaz with her mother-in-law is a touching story of love. But it is hardly a model for the exercise of stewardship today.

No program or practice of stewardship can ever be designed to replace the individual responsibility each person has to exercise care and regard for this creation. The owner of the strawberry patch is not responsible for the waste generated by the careless picker, and neither can we insist that they be more forceful in their instructions to pickers. In the final sense, it is the strawberry picker who must exercise that discipline of self-control and responsibility for this creation that will not allow any part of it to be wasted. The signs are not encouraging. Too many strawberries were left on the vines to spoil. The Rev. Lloyd Buss is pastor at Abiding Presence Lutheran Church in Rochester Hills.

Old tires are tough to recycle

Q. I followed your series on solid waste and was particularly interested in recycling. However, there was no mention of what can be done with old tires. Can these tires be recycled or must they just be thrown away?

A Discarded tires are a special problem in the solid waste area. Currently "disposing" of used tires can be done in two ways.

One is to landfill them, but this has many drawbacks. Old tires do not remain buried in landfills, but rise to the surface. They also take up a lot of space in landfills. Many landfill operators refuse to take tires or charge an extra fee because of these additional problems.

The second "disposal" method is to stockpile them. Nearly 60 percent of all discarded tires go this route. This method, however, can cause such environmental problems as air pollution, if the pile should catch excellent breeding grounds for disease-carrying mosquitoes.

Despite these disposal problems with tires, it is extimated that 240 million tires - one for each person in the United States - are discarded this tire material are currently being tested around the country.

In Modesto, Calif., Oxford Energy Co. got approval to burn the 42 million tire stockpile in a controlled environment to generate electricity for

This tire-burning facility is the first of its kind in the country. The system is designed to burn the tires at approximately 2,000 degrees, which is hot enough to destroy any potentially hazardous hydrocarbons. dioxins and furans.

This tire incineration plant began fire, and disease. These piles make operation last August. It runs 24 hours a day and uses up an estimated 4 million tires a year.

A tire recycling alternative is being developed by Rubber Re-search Elastomerics (RRE) in Minnesota. RRE has developed a method where finely ground-up tires are SEVERAL METHODS to reclaim actively cross-linked with other rub-

> RRE hopes newly recycled rubber, called Tirecylce, will expand from its current limited market into markets now dominated by "virgin" rubber and plastic. The Minnesota facility has the capacity to process 4 million tires. However, current demand will only result in the recycling of 600,000 tires.

TIRE RECOVERY is plagued by

They are expensive to transport to these recovery facilities and to shred for reuse. Because of these high initial costs, they are not presently cost-competitive with established, low-priced methods.

However, if the predictions are accurate, this cost imbalance could change. Experts predict that another energy crisis by the late 1990s will drive up the cost of petroleum, the key ingredient in synthetic rubber used in tires today.

Ironically, the biggest potential market for recycled tires could be the industry that produces them tire manufacturers

Recycling old tires to make new would use less energy and reduce the amount of petroleum required for virgin synthetic rubber.

Recovering their own material may be just the way to remain competitive in the marketplace. Let's hope it's soon.

Engineer John Jaye with Detroit Diesel's largest methanol-powered engine.

A diesel engine fuel primer

By Tom Henderson staff writer

When is a diesel engine not a diesel engine? When it burns methanol instead of diesel fuel? Wrong. A diesel engine is a diesel engine even after it has been modified to burn non-diesel fuels.

A few words of explanation:

The standard car engine is not only an auto engine, but an Otto engine, invented by German engineer Nikolaus Otto and first shown in Paris in 1867. It was loud and ungainly, the object of ridicule, but it was the best internal combustion engine available when cars went into production at the turn of the century.

Otto refined the engine into its modern, four-stroke format in 1876. It used gasoline and a spark-ignition gas was mixed with air and ignited by a spark from a spark plug. The resultant explosion drives the pistons, which drive the cam, which drives the car.

THE DIESEL was an invention of another German, Rudolf Diesel, in 1896. It eliminated the need for a carburetor to mix fuel and air as well as the need for a spark-plug system. Air is compressed by the piston to up to one-twentieth of its original volume, such compression increases the temperature of the air tremendously. When fuel is added at the end of the piston stroke, the air and fuel combust spontaneously.

The diesel engine commonly burns what is now referred to as diesel fuel, a petroleum fuel that is far less volatile than gasoline. Heavier than kerosene and lighter than heating oil, it burns unevenly and is hard to ignite when the engine is cold.

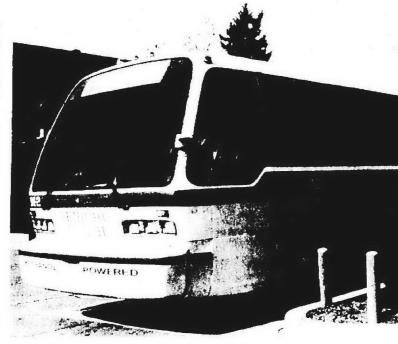

It also runs much hotter, because of the increased compression. While it burns fuel more efficiently than a four-stroke gasoline engine, it requires a much heavier engine, offsetting the efficiency.

Though the methanol-burning truck and bus engines of the future will not burn standard diesel fuel, they will still be diesel engines because they will operate on Rudolf's principles.

In fact, at Detroit Diesel, standard engines are converted to methanol with such a minimum of modification, that to the untrained eye they look identical as they come down the assembly line.

ETHANOL IS a volatile liquid refined from grain. Some 8 percent of the nation's gasoline supply currently contains a mixture of 10 percent ethanol and 90 percent gasoline.

Ethanol is more corrosive than gasoline, a problem for older cars. According to Jeff Alson of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency office in Ann Arbor, newer cars (since 1984) have fuel line systems capable of storing and using ethanol, also known as gasohol.

The United States is reliant upon the Middle East for petroleum products. It isn't reliant on anyone for grain. Since ethanol is refined from grain products such as corn, the move to ethanol is a way of reducing independence on sometimes fragile sources of petroleum.

Alson said U.S. car companies at one time resisted ethanol use but have re-engineered sensitive parts in the fuel storage and plumbing systems. He said that despite warning signs at some gas stations that their gas does not include ethanol, the product is completely compatible with new cars.

METHANOL IS refined from natural gas and coal. Because the United States has an abundance of coal, particularly dirty coal that cannot be used in other ways because of pollution laws, it makes sense to limit reliance on Middle East fuel by increasing our use of domestic fuel. The United States has enough readily available natural gas to supply methanol engines for the near term, though unlike the one for ethanol products, no pipeline system is in place to get the methanol widely distributed.

On a longer-term basis, methanol fuel will come from the gasification of coal. Coal gasification is costly and requires some improvement in current technology to overcome pollution laws, but neither Detroit Diesel engineers nor EPA officials see that as a major problem.

WHILE METHANOL is less volatile than gasoline, it is more volatile than diesel fuel. David Merrion, the senior vice president of engineering at Detroit Diesel, said that modest engineering changes can eliminate volatility as a drawback, with better seals and such things as bladders on

"If you had to convince people to out gasoline in cars today, it would never get done," he said, referring to the dangerous nature of gasoline.

Another problem with methanol as a fuel is that it burns without a flame, as evidenced by mechanics or drivers at Indianapolis who have been captured on film beating out flames on their bodies that no one can see. Merrion said a simple additive would make flames visible.

A more serious drawback to methanol is that it is far more corrosive than gasoline or ethanol. In fact, diesel fuel is actually a lubricant that extends parts' lives. Methanol requires stainless steel fuel tanks and higher priced plumbing components, but Merrion termed the extra cost as minimal.

A standard new bus costs some $140,000, he said. Modifications to the engine to allow it to burn methanol and the substitution of higher priced, sturdier components would add no more than $5,000 to the cost

THE ADVANTAGES of methanol are twofold. One - and the reason Detroit Diesel got into methanol technology - is that it replaces Middle East fuel with domestic fuel.

Two - and the reason for optimism at Detroit Diesel now that the oil scare of the late '70s is over and diesel-fuel prices never came close to company projections of $3 a galis that methanol is much cleaner than diesel fuel. That wasn't an issue when the methanol project began at Detroit Diesel seven years ago, but it is the reason the project still exists today.

Methanol creates virtually no particulant matter and one-half to onethird of the nitrous oxide. Diesel is rich in particulant matter - witness the black smoke billowing from diesel trucks and buses.

White-collar woe: red

Bill and Sandie have two daughters, two jobs and too much debt. Like a growing number of Americans, they traveled the plastic road to Affluency, using credit cards as a passport.

With monthly income of $1,820, they are still $98 short of meeting their monthly obligations. Figure in $2,141 in past-due balances and $50,000 in outstanding debt, and the situation becomes more ominous. Sound familiar? The answer increasingly is yes for hundreds of thousands of debtors only now awakening from an economic dream turned nightmare.

Today, the debtors are more likely to be white-collar, not blue. Analysts say that a second income in these families often leads them into a false sense of buying power, which can exacerbate their debt.

"Most people's debts lie in their credit cards," said Michael LeVon, a certified public accountant with

Detroit Diesellooks to methanol to fuel buses

By Tom Henderson staff writer

The more some things change, the more others stay the same.

The first engine that rolled off the assembly line at Detroit Diesel in March 1938 was a rugged, six-cylinder engine that a few years later powered the landing craft that delivered GIs to foreign shores in the European and Pacific theaters. Fifty years later, the engine is still coming down the line by the thousands a year, practically unchanged, and still is being installed in trucks and

But that doesn't mean the company is standing still. A $25 million project involving researching, engineering and building methanol-burning engines will have big payoffs in the early 1990s, company officials

THOSE HOPES have been given a big boost by the U.S. Environmental Agency, which has ordered tough clean-air standards for bus engines beginning in 1991 and for truck engines beginning in 1994.

The series 92 engine, the largest the company makes, can be converted to methanol with minor modifications. The company plans to convert its original engine, the 71 series, to methanol, also. (Those numbers refer to the cubic-inch displacement of each cylinder.)

The methanol engines easily meet the tougher standards, and both EPA and Detroit Diesel officials think problems of fuel supply can be met without major difficulty.

WHILE THINGS seem to be going along smoothly for Detroit Diesel in the search for a viable methanol burning engine - and, more import- million a year. Other backers were ant, a viable market for it - the project has not gone as smoothly as the end result might indicate.

The genesis for the project came in the oil embargoes and fuel shortages of the late 1970s. Detroit Diesel officials projected that by now, 1988, diesel fuel would be some $3 a gallon. It would, they thought, be in their interest to convert their diesel engines to a fuel source that would be cheaper and domestic.

But a funny thing happened during the course of the project - the market became glutted with cheap oil. Diesel fuel continues to sell for well under $1 a gallon at bulk rates.

'We missed it by a mile," said Dave Merrion, senior vice president of engineering at Detroit Diesel.

THAT'S WHERE luck comes in, in several forms. One, the project that began as a way to keep fuel prices down ended up as a project fueled by the EPA's desire for cleaner air. Detroit Diesel was experimenting with methanol, and methanol burns so cleanly it easily meets ever-tightening EPA standards for nitrous oxide and particulant emissions.

More luck: GM was caught selling cars in California that couldn't pass California emission standards, and Pontiac sold cars that weren't meeting emission standards for nitrous oxide. By way of consent and punishment, GM promised to finance research projects involving methanol and to provide methanol buses to California.

GM, which has a 40-percent equity osition in Detroit Diesel (Roger Penske has the other 60 percent), thus became a major backer of Detroit Diesel's research program, which was costing upwards of $3 the U.S. Department of Energy and the Department of Transportation.

THE RESULT is that Detroit Diesel now has methanol engines in 20 buses in pilot programs in New York City, Jacksonville, Fla., suburban San Francisco, Riverside, Calif. Medicine Hat, Alberta, and Winnipeg, Manitoba

And production soon will begin at Detroit Diesel on 37 more methanol engines, 30 for southern California. five for Denver and two for Phoenix.

We're seeing a real flurry of ac tivity prior to 1991," said Jeff Alson, assistant to the director of the emissions control and technology division of the EPA, which is based in Ann

HOW MUCH that flurry of activity translates into engine sales for Detroit Diesel, which is located partially in Detroit and partially in Redford Township, is anyone's guess.

Short term, it means the hiring of five new engineers at Detroit Diesel. 'and we haven't been hiring in a long time," Merrion said. Long term. it should mean more profits and even an increase in the nearly 2,000 production employees at the plant.

But a lot of questions remain to be answered. Buses are built by just a handful of American firms. Engines are built by just three - Caterpillar in Peoria, Ill., Cummins in Columbus, Ind., and Detroit Diesel. Only Detroit Diesel is experimenting with methanol diesel engines, with Caterpillar playing wait and see and Cummins only recently beginning to experiment with natural gas engines.

Calculating the interest rates for T bills is difficult

Second of two parts

Many of our clients routinely buy T bills for safety and high yield, but frequently they have difficulty figuring out what they are really getting. this article explains how the "true" veild is calculated on T bills.

Confusion with discount issues

Last week we mentioned that T bills are discount issues. However, a T bill discount does not operate like a retail discount. Furthermore, the discount, or refund, you recieve at the time of nurchase is merely a refund of the excess price you paid initially, and not a return on your investment. And yet, this "discount" is the basis for the calculation of the "true yield" you receive on a T bill.

True yield on 3- or 6-month maturity

Bills are sold at a discount. Prices

For example, a 9.76-percent discount, 91-day, $10,000 bill that is $9,753.30. However, since you do not cide to buy the bill, you send a check for $10,000 to the Federal Reserve

After the auction, the bank sends you a check for $246.70 ($10.000 minus $9,753.30) representing the price refund. Upon maturity, you will receive a check for $10,000 investment over 91 days. What, then, is your annualized yield?

In order to calculate your true annualized yield, you must use the following simple equation:

annualized yield = (DxY) (PxM) x 100

P = the price per $100 D = $100 - P

M = days to maturity;

Summer Cottage? Second Home? Retirement Plans? Come Out and See the Park

Model Suited to Your Lifestyle.

However, if the 9.76-percent discount was on a 180-day bill, the yield would be just 5.13 percent.

annualized yield = [(100 97.533) x 3651 + 97.533 x 180 5.13%

Twelve-month bills

The above formula can't be used for T bills maturing in more than six months. The reason is that T bills pay simple interest, and there is no compounding.

In contrast, government and corporate bonds pay interest semiannually, and the coupon payments are compounded.

Fortunately, the Treasury reports the annualized yields with the auctioned results, so you don't have to do the compounding yourself.

The good news

The Wall Street Journal and the business section of local newspapers routinely publish annualized yields on T bills. For instance, on May 16. 1988, the following quotation appeared in the Wall Street Journal:

Thus, if you had received a dis count rate of 6.25 percent for the Sept. 8 bills, the annualized yield from this investment would have been 6.47 percent

Female, male consumers are thinking more alike

Current demographic trends can help us understand who today's woman is. But we still need to analyze what additional factors influence her decisions to buy particular goods and services.

This can be done by identifying the attitude and lifestyle characteristics that affect where today's woman shops and when, what she shops for and how she shops for it and most important - the reasons why

Probably the most important characteristic among today's female consumers is that many women and men are thinking more alike. This is seen through their equally strong commitment to work, marriage and family as well as similar buying behaviors for certain consumer goods and services.

The increased role of women in the labor force and the higher value placed on work and careers are not a substitution of work commitment for family commitment. This convergence of attitudes has occurred more so on the part of women as compared to men.

As women have become more like" men in ther relationships to the family and the economy, they have also become more like men in ther attitudes toward their roles involving these two social institutions.

THE MOST important implication here is the lessening importance of focus: small business Mary DiPaolo

treating female consumers as a separate market for many products and services. In many cases, women are buying for many of the same reasons men do

Decisisons relating to child care and education, food preparation, transportation, and clothing and personal care are just some of the areas where customer needs are becoming increasingly alike among both men

In terms of the female lifestyle, the Cosmopolitan Magazine study, The Changing Life Course of American Women.

indicated that today's female consumer spends a larger part of her life as a student, a smaller part as a wife and mother, and a much larger part employed outside of the home

The key in understanding her individual buying behaviors is directly linked to the various roles she will take on during her lifetime.

Equally important is when she will assume those roles, how long she will be in any given role, and how many she will juggle simultaneously. Just as products can be classified into their appropriate lifecycle stages, so can the women's market in terms of the individuals life course phases.

With this information, business owners and managers can then match relevant demographic, attitude and life course trends to purchasing and consumption patterns for various goods and services.

Investing in real estate requires patience

By Thomas O'Hara special writer

I started investing early in 1983 and now have a portfolio of 11 stocks. Since October's break, my stocks have been in the doldrums and not much has been happening to I am wondering what you would think about switching my investment to real estate. I have not done any real estate investing, but in my daily work I travel over the area where I live up to a radius of about 50 miles, and I feel I know it very well and am able to make a good judgment about the value of different locations.

My portfolio is worth about $30,000, and if I switched to real estate investment, I would probably buy a piece of property where I would put 30-40 percent down.

Please advise what you think of

It certainly is possible to be successful either in stock or real estate investments. I would like to answer your question in two ways

First, I would like to comment on your investment record, then I would like to comment on some of the differences you should consider between investing in stock and in real

Regarding your stock investing. you say that you have been investing regularly since 1983, yet you do not show one stock that was bought in 1983 or 1985.

Does this mean that you already sold the stocks you bought before 1986? If my guess is right, then you have a problem of patience.

You have done a reasonably good job of picking stocks and of buying at a fair price. You must recognize, however, that stock prices often sit still or even decline for fairly long periods of time.

Also, when you buy stock in a company, and management is building value, it takes time for value to develop. Sometimes stock prices advance quickly, and you have a quick profit But that is more the exception than the rule. The really big gains actually come from holding the stock of a growing company over a longer period of

As you consider switching to real estate investing, it will be important to keep in mind that the time frame for profiting from a real estate purchase can also be considerable. If you are borrowing to make your purchase, you should make sure you can carry the interest and principle payment for an indefinite period, for it may be necessary to wait a while for the right buyer to come along. Many real estate investors get caught in the trap of not being able to cover the expenses of carrying their investment until a profitable sale can be made.

Leonard B. Smith and the Detroit Concert Band return to Meadow Brook Music Festival at 8 p.m. Saturday. July 2. at Baldwin Pavilion on the Oakland University campus in Rochester Hills.

The program will be narrated by CKLW's Mike Whorf (award-winning producer of "Kaleidoscope"), with an array of instrumental and vocal artists (Imogene Bird, soprano, James B. Underwood, cornetist, and Dr. Earle L. Louder, euphoniumist).

Topping off the evening will be a a special guest appearance by the grandson of "America's March King." John Philip Sousa III, who will relate circumstance prompting his grandfather to write "The Stars and Stripes Forever." The march recently was adopted by the United States Congress as the nation's offical march.

One of Smith's own marches, "Let's Celebrate." will have its first performance in Michigan, in salute to Meadow Brook's "Silver Summer"

Basically, Rachel goes from being an average suburban housewife to being a psychoanalyst living in Alas-

To discover how she comes to be in Alaska, a person has to see the play. It's quite a story.

Rachel runs across all sorts of characters. There's Lloyd and Pooty, husband and wife, who take her in. Rachel sort of adopts them as her family when they appear on a game show, which nearly has deadly consequences. Tom Jr. almost kills Rachel, not knowing that she's his

It must be realized that the play evolves over about a 15-year period - 15 years during which little Tom can forget what his mother looks

During those years, Rachel comes across or has six different psychiatrists (all of whom are played by the same actress in the play). She goes through primal-scream therapy and must flee a "possible murder rap."

Berezin said, "She gets a job in an office where she deals with corruption and espionage." The shady company is called Hands Across the Sea.

"RECKLESS" IS presented in two acts and is made up of about 25 parts. "There will be music, but whether, it will be original or not original, we're not sure," she said.

Robin Bartlett is playing Rachel John Dossett is playing Lloyd (His) wife's name is Pooty. And she's played by Welker White. Tim Timko, the game-show host, is played by Kelly Connell

For this production, Norman Rene is the director and Lov Arcenas is the set designer.

'Norman Rene and Craig Lucas have been working together in collaboration for quite some time. Norman directs all of Craig's plays," Berezin said.

Rene has directed such Lucas plays as "Marry Me a Little," "Missing Persons," "Prelude to a Kiss.". "Three Postcards" and "Blue Windows." And Rene directed a version of "Blue Windows," featuring Randy Danson and Brad O'Hare, for 'American Playhouse" which was shown on PBS during the 1986-87 season

In 1985, an early version of "Reckless" was presented by South Coast Repertory in California. Since then, the play has been changed and has matured, mainly because the author has matured. But as Berezin said with force, "This will be the premiere of this play. This is 'Reckless.'

And that's good for the Ann Arbor Summer Festival and Michiganians. It is the first time the festival has had the opportunity to premiere a major new artistic work written by a nationally renowned playwright. It's a collaboration between the festival and Circle Repertory Company.

THE FIRST collaboration was last year, when Circle Rep presented

Sam Shepard's "Fool for Love which had gone over well in New York before it was brought to Ann "And we hope Ann Arbor and Circle Rep will have a continuous collaboration through the years. Berezin said. After being presented in Ann Ar-bor, "Reckless" will be performed by Circle Repertory Company in New York, as the first of five plays for the 20th-anniversary season Circle Repertory Company has received 27 Obie Awards, two Tony Awards and one Pulitzer Prize

Berezin, a co-founder of Circle Rep, said, "I think you'd want to see 'Reckless' because it's an extraord. narily positive adventure, a journey through a woman's life as an adult

Now is the time to clear out those closets, attics, basements and garages and make some quick cash in the process. How do you plan a garage sale?

It's easy!

Just follow these simple guidelines: 1. Gather together the items you have for sale. Sort them into appropriate categories and price them fairly.

2. Place a classified advertisement in The Observer & Eccentric by calling one of the numbers below. 3. Hang signs throughout your neighborhood alerting residents to the upcoming sale. 4. Decide what to do with all the money you'll have after your sale! Or, if you love to bargain-hunt and would rather shop then sell, be sure to look for our special garage sale listings every Monday and Thursday in your hometown newspaper. Observer & Eccentric classifieds make it easy to earn money and save money. Discover for yourself, today! In Wayne County Call 591-0500, In Oakland County Call 644-1070

TATE CHAMPIONSHIP CAL-IBER is the only way to describe the latest edition of the All-Area Girls Soccer

Observerland schools have dominated state tournament play since it began six years ago and 1988 was no exception with Plymouth Canton winning its first-ever title with a victory in the Class A finals over Livonia Churchill.

Canton finished the season 17-2-1 with coach Don Smith reaping Observerland Coach-of-the-Year hon-

The Chiefs placed three members on the first team and two on the second team.

Those repeating All-Area honors this year include strikers Jill Estey of Plymouth Salem and Carrie Maier of Farmington.

Four others have graduated from second team to first team ranks of a year ago. They include Shannon Meath of Canton, Dawn Gabriel and Kellie Davis of Churchill and Ellen Schnackel of Salem.

Coaches gathered recently to select the area's top players and here are the results of the voting.

FIRST TEAM GOALIE

Ellen Schnackel, Ply. Salem: The senior posted seven shutouts and a goalsagainst average of just 0.85 en route to All-State honors this season. She was also an All-Western Lakes Activities Association pick

In three years, Schnackel recorded 25 shutouts.

"Ellen made herself the best goalie in the state with three years of hard work practice and determination," said Salem coach Ken Johnson. "She has all the tools to become a college goalie height, speed, anticipation and, above all.

FORWARDS Jill Estey, Ply. Salem: Just a junior. Estey was voted the state's top player a year ago, leading the Rocks to the 1987

state Class A crown.

This season she scored 22 goals and 14 assists, increasing her three-year totals to 79 goals and 56 assists. The All-WLAA choice holds eight school records.

This season she was voted No. 2 player the state behind Bloomfield Hills. Lahser's Margaret Kopmeyer.

"Jill is one of the most skillful players I've ever coached in soccer," Johnson said. "And regardless of all the accolades, she's still a very quiet, steady and dedicated person who is really appreciated by her teammates."

Carrie Maier, Farmington: The two-time All-Stater still has two years of high school remaining.

The Falcons' scoring ace tallied 16 goals and five assists in 1988, raising her two-year totals to 46 goals and 23 assists

The All-WLAA pick and team MVP will be travelling this summer to Colorado Springs, Colo. to participate at the U.S. Olympic Training Center.

Maier also ran track and made the All

Area team in the 800 relay. She is a member of the National Honor Society.

Shannon Meath, Ply. Canton: The junior forward was highly instrumental in the Chiefs' state championship drive. She finished the season with 13 goals and 11 assists after scoring 11 goals and 10 assists in 1987

The Canton MVP was described by coach Don Smith as "a hard-working, dedicated team player who gives 125 per-Meath, a two-time All-Western Division pick in the WLAA, added: "All through the season we proved to people that it was a team effort and not just one individual. Our team is so well balanced that anyone could have received this honor.

MIDFIELDERS

Dawn Gabriel, Liv. Churchill: Although short in stature, the Churchill senior played big down the stretch for the state runners-up.

Although she scored only six goals and three assists, Gabriel's value at the midfield position did not go unnoticed by opposing teams.

This season she was a first-team All-Stater and first-team All-WLAA choice She also won the Chargers' Coaches

Area basketball players selected all-star MVPs

By Dan O'Meara staff writer

In a star-studded event designed to showcase Michigan's top basketball talent, a pair of Observerland players shined the brightest Saturday in the annual high school all-star games.

Plymouth Salem's Dena Head, as might be expected of the player named Miss Basketball, was voted the most valuable player of the girls Class A contest in Eastern Michigan University's Bowen Field House.

Observerland was 2-for-2 in MVP honors after Parish Hickman of Redford Bishop Borgess put his skills on display in the following game for Class B-C-D boys.

Head, who helped the West team to a 71-61 victory with her early playmaking and late scoring, finished with a game-high 18 points, seven rebounds and four

"This is one more trophy I can set aside from my high school years," said the widely recruited Head, who eventually decided on Tennessee. "I will always believe good things continue to come to you with hard work."

JAN HERBERHOLZ of Farmington Hills Mercy and

Kathy Phillips of Birmingham Marian joined Head on the winning side, while Livonia Ladywood's Katie McNulty played for the opposing East squad.

Hickman, the 6-foot-7 center for the runner-up in the Class B state tournament last March, was a dominant force in the East's 111-91 rout of the West.

He was an obvious standout en route to posting gamehigh totals of 19 points and 13 rebounds. His four assists matched the West's Joe Middleton (East Grand Rapids) for high number, to boot.

"It makes me feel good, that all the hard work I've been doing is showing," said Hickman, who was one of five Michigan State recruits playing in either the boys Class B-C-D or A games.

In fact, he could have excelled - and undoubtedly in terms of talent belonged - in the A game. Having played in the Catholic League's rugged Central Division, Hickman was a cut above most of the others on the

HICKMAN, THE biggest player in the B-C-D game, hooked up with future MSU teammate Mark Montgomery of Southgate Aquinas for some dazzling plays

'It was like an open-gym type of situation," Hickman said. "I was just having fun.

My size had a lot to do with it I don't think most of those guys are used to playing against someone as big as me or someone who moves

In the Class A boys game, Redford Catholic Central's Bill Vitti scored 12 points, cleared seven rebounds and blocked three shots as the East won a shootout, 128-106.

Head, who played in the same starting unit with Herberholz and Phillips, led the A-West girls to a come-from-behind victory.

McNulty scored all five of her points early as the East raced to a 15-2 lead. A pair of Herberholz free throws was all the West had in the first 642 minutes, and the team didn't score a field goal until nearly eight minutes had elapsed.

"WE WATCHED THE Pistons the other night (in Game 5 of the NBA Championship Series) and thought that's the way you're supposed to start a game, get behind 0-12 and play from there," said Salem coach Fred Thomann, the Class A coach of the year and an assistant with the West all-stars

The Head-Phillips-Herberholz unit, which included Denise Kirby (Detroit King) and Stacey Warren (Kalamazoo Central), pulled the West within 27-23 before the other quintet -- everybody had to play a minimum of 16 minutes - forged a 33-31 halftime lead.

In keeping with the all-star theme. it was Head's passing that was most instrumental in the West staving on top in the second half. She hit both Herberholz and Phillips with nice feeds as they went to the basket for

There's a time when you have to think of yourself and scoring opportunities and a time when you have to think about your teammates," Head said. "If a teammate is open, you have to think about the team first and yourself second."

"She's been such a team player for so long she tried to get everybody involved," Thomann said, "and didn't look to score as much as she should."

In fact, it was Head's assist to Herberholz that gave the West a 57-51 lead and started a 10-4 run that boosted the blue-clad squad to a 65-55 advantage.

THE EAST CUT it to 65-61 with a basket from Marthea McCloud of state champion Detroit Cass Tech with 21/2 minutes left.

"Getting behind early comes from and grabbed 12 rebounds in a losing not playing together (previously), cause, Everybody was the top player on her (high school) team, and it took a couple minutes to blend together.

Everybody likes the idea of winning," she added, addressing the significance of winning an all-star game. "This game was for fun, but winning the game does make you feel a little better about yourself.'

Phillips, who will play college ball at Penn State, finished with nine points and seven rebounds and Herberholz, who hopes to make Michigan State's team as a walk-on, six points and five rebounds

"(HERBERHOLZ) DID a lot of little things to contribute to the victory." Mercy coach Larry Baker said. 'She showed what I think is her strength - her versatility. She played the point for a while, she blocked out and she got out to set the screen.

Hines Park sweeps pair

Derek Darkowski continued to shoulder a substantial part of the pitching burden for Hines Park Lincoln-Mercury in Livonia Collegiate Baseball League action Sunday.

Furthermore, Todd Marion's welltimed return to health was an added plus for an otherwise depleted pitch-

Darkowski and Marion turned in complete games as Hines Park swept a doubleheader from Walter's Appliance at Ford Field, 13-7 and 7-

Marion, who was sidelined by a sore arm the final three weeks of his high school career at Plymouth Salem, made his first start in nearly a month in the first game.

He gave up 12 hits; however, he walked just three and his teammates backed him with 13 hits. Marion, who had pitched two innings in relief last week as a prelude to Sunday's outing, struck out two. DARKOWSKI, THE former Canton pitcher who "has been the ace on the staff for us," according to coach Dave Racer, went seven innings in the nightcap, too, and scattered five

In improving his record to 4-0, Darkowski struck 11 and raised his strikeout total to 39 in 30% innings. The opposition has managed just seven earned runs off him.

Racer had lined up plenty of pitching to begin the season, but injuries have taken a toll.

Bill Barber, the former Westland John Glenn ace, suffered a cut finger, and might return this week. Matt Clark pitched two games and then broke a hand, Bob Files sprained an ankle and Dan Niemiec injured his pitching hand at work when several fingers got caught in a conveyor Hines Park had plenty of hitting in the first game, and nine hits was more than Darkowski needed to win the second go-round.

homers. He scored a total of five runs and had three RBI

TIM DOWD'S two-run double keyed a five-run third inning that boosted Hines Park into a 7-1 lead in the opener. He ended up with three hits and two runs in that game.

Rob Adams slugged a two-run homer, and Dwayne Bennett, who collected three RBI, and Chris Sisler had two hits apiece.

Aiken hit the first pitch of the second game out of the park, and Hines Park was never behind, leading 7-0 before Walter's scored in the bottom of the sixth.

Adams also had two hits, and Dowd and Sisler chipped in RBI singles as Hines Park improved its season record to 9-4.

Brian Smolinski had three hits, including a double and a home run, for Walter's in the first game, and John Stoitsiadis had two hits, two RBI and three runs.

CAESARS 7-2, HOLZER FORD 4-14: Livonia Little Caesars (11-2) maintained its first place grip by taking two of three games over the weekend.

Caesars and Tom Holzer Ford split a doubleheader Sunday at Ford Field.

In the opener, Derrick Dowling, Steve Malgay and Ken Wandzel collected two hits apiece as Caesars took the opener, 7-4.

Tony Yandura, the winning pitcher, scattered seven hits, walked one and struck out four. He survived a solo homer by Andy Fairman and two hits apiece from Bob Tatro and George Hampton.

Mike Weinczak added an RBI double for Caesars as Holzer starter Charlie Weaver suffered the loss.

In the second game, Kevin Ritter went 3-for-3 and knocked in three runs, while former John Glenn standout Rick Tavormina added two hits and three RBI as Holzer romped to an easy 14-2 victory in the nightcap

Keith Dutkiewicz, Steve Rudelic and Tatro contributed two hits apiece in a game shortened five innings because of the LCBL's 10-run mercy rule. Chris Willerer, the winning pitcher, struck out four. Steve Witt took the loss.

ON FRIDAY, Caesars' hurler Rob Jamula tossed a one-hitter in a 4-0 triumph over Ann Arbor Wendy's in a game played at Ford Field.

Jamula, the Taylor Center product, struck out 12 and walked two to gain his second win.

Bob Kochie knocked in two of Caesars' four runs.

Meanwhile, Walter's scored 19 runs in the fifth and sixth innings. sending 28 batters to the plate in a 21-3 triumph over Holzer Ford in the second game of a twin bill Friday at Ford Field.

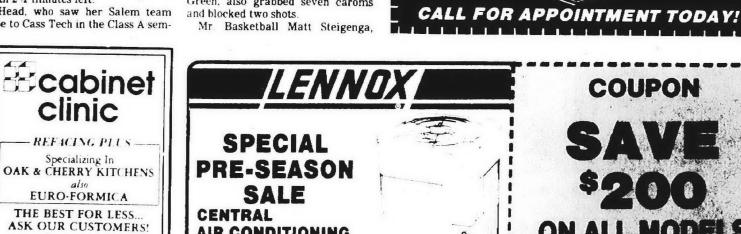

Rick Karcher, a North Farmington High product now attending Indiana University, went 5-for-5. Dave Houghtby (Livonia Stevenson High) added three hits. Mike Rudin, also from North, belted a three-run homer and Ed Shepler contributed a solo round tripper.

Pitcher Joe Mackiewicz, an ex-Redford Catholic Central High standout, was the winning pitcher He went six innings, fanning four and walking just one.

On Wednesday, Holzer rallied to defeat Wendy's, 6-3, as Brett Loomis raised his record to 3-0 with a sevenhitter. Loomis struck out five and walked two.

Tatro and Ritter each clubbed two-run homers for the winners. Dan Hilliard singled home Scott Peterson with the game-winning RBI in the

By Marty Budner staff writer

Don Brown says novice tennis players are the future of tennis. So, with the help of The Observer and Eccentric Newspapers, he's investing in them.

Brown, head coach of the state champion Bloomfield Hills Cranbrook tennis team and a certified USPTA instructor, is helping to spearhead the Inaugural Cranbrook Tennis Club-Observer and Eccentric Novice Tennis Tournament.

The tournament is set for three days starting July 11. The unique format will allow all entrants to play at least two matches.

Novice tennis players are the sized Brown. "If we can come up with new players and get them excit- to play in the novice tourney, they ed about what's happening, I think may decide they want to branch out we can help the sport to grow."

Novice tennis players are defined to play in another tournament some-as those who do not have any national or regional rankings and who have have not won any high school letters. The idea is to help them learn the game without pressure and give them a chance to enjoy a positive experience so that they can continue to improve their games.

"I remember the old Harvey Barcus novice tournament The Detroit News used to run became one of the biggest tournaments in the state of Michigan and the Midwest," he said. "It was for novice players giving them a start and giving them a good opportunity to learn the game without pressure.

Craiger ups baseball lead

Craiger, seeking its fifth straight Babe Ruth League championship, has stretched its lead to three games over second-place Dairy Junction Express.

Craiger, 6-1, knocked Twist 'N Shake out of second with a 7-5 victory, which saw the Craiger defense pull off triple and double plays to end Dairy Junction threats in the late innings.

Scott Kapla led the offense, going 3-for-3 with four RBI.

On Saturday, Craiger beat the Grosse Pointe Farm Tigers 7-5 behind the four-hit, 11-strikeout pitching of Jason Bregni. He helped his own cause when he drove in two runs with his fifth home run of the season. Craiger's Steve Aumann was 2-for-3 and Kapla got the game-winning RBI on a suicide squeeze. Dairy Junction moved into second place by splitting a pair of games, beating Georgetown Realty 8-1 and losing to the Grosse Pointe Blue Jays

Ron Hutchinson led the Express past Georgetown by going 4-for-4 with two triples. Winning pitcher Jeff Coleman worked five innings and struck out nine.

Seaholm upsets favored Kennedy in final state baseball championship. Heck

staff writer

Good day Birmingham Seaholm baseball fans! Have you hugged your state champions today? Yep. That's right.

Birmingham Seaholm, that confident, pugnacious, determined band of ball players who were only good enough to finish second in their league (Southeastern Michigan Association) this spring to Royal Oak Kimball, did it. The 'Miracle Maples' marched to the coveted Michigan High School Athletic Association Class A baseball championship Saturday at Michigan State University's Kobs Field

When senior left fielder Jeff Milius clutched onto a fly ball, sealing Seaholm's pulsating 11-9 triumph over Taylor Kennedy, the Maples united jubilantly in the middle of the diamond to celebrate their first ever

Seaholm had never won a district title until this season.

It just shows how surprisingly far the underdog Maples went this spring Seaholm may have been an unlikely selection as state champion when tournament play began three weeks ago, but the Maples are now the crowned kings. No one can ever take that honor away from them.

This is unbelievable ... it just completes my coaching career," said Seaholm's 25-year veteran coach Don Sackett. "This makes it all worthwhile. I was just fortunate to have a super bunch of kids who helped each other along the way."

But we got a big break and the kids knew it," said Sackettt. "We also knew we needed to score a lot of runs to the win the game and that's what we did.'

THE BREAK Sackett referred to was not having to hit against KenneAtlanta Braves draft choice - Mark Avery The fire-balling senior southpaw, who struck out 19 of the 30 batters he faced in Friday's 3-2, 10inning semifinal victory over East Kentwood, pitched his maximum 10 innings in that game and thus played all of Saturday's state championship game far away from the mound in centerfield And Seaholm, batting first for only the second time in seven tournament games, jumped on that advantage and pounded Kennedy starter Rob Mowery right away Todd Siefken, the eventual winning pitcher, and Todd Glandt led off the game with back-to-back singles.

Milius brought them both home with a clutch two-strike ground single into left field, which gave Seaholm the early edge. Although Kennedy came dangerously close to taking the lead in the later innings.

The Maples were lifted by a trio of three-run innings, which gave them an 11-7 lead heading into the bottom of the seventh Seaholm's No 1 hurler - junior Matt Newton, who registered Friday's easy 7-2 semifinal triumph over Port Huron - relieved Siefken with one out in the sixth inning Newton got the first out of the final inning on an easy grounder to short-stop Rob Kaye. Seaholm's hitting hero with a 4-for-5 performance for the day

THEN THE TROUBLE started

Newton allowed a single and walk. and after a wild pitch, two Kennedy runners scored on a two-strike single by pinch hitter Mike Meade, which not only made it 11-9, but brought up the potential tying run to the plate Leadoff batter Chris Donahey lifted out. Newton next faced Chris Bonis dence to the very end ternoon - with the realization the next batter was the dangerous Av ery who's just as fearsome at the plate as he is on the mound.

However, Bonis lifted a 2-2 pitch high into the air and Milius simply waited for it to fall in his glove for the critical final out.

When the top of the order came up with one out everybody (Seaholm infielders and Sackett) came up to me on the mound and told me what the situation was said Newton who had five victories and a save in Seaholm's seven tournament games "I told (my teammates) I'd get them out before Avery came up

I wasn't throwing as hard today (as against Port Huron), he said But I still had confidence I could get them out

Newton epitomized Seaholm's a lazy fly ball to right for the second state championship team - confi-

Time in the natural world is a constant, yet dynamic, force that shapes everything around us. This concept became very evident as I walked through a beautiful beech-maple forest of Rotary Park in Livonia

The grape vine looked like a sailor strapped to yard-arms because its original host tree had died and crumbled.

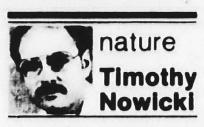

cleared in colonial times and then abandoned, it would have taken about 350 years to become a beechmaple forest. Just the presence of these trees expressed the feeling of time. Their silver trunks towered skyward to form a canopy that dwarfed my presence.

THIS MAJESTIC forest - filled with the songs of wood thrush, redeyed vireos and scarlet tanagers would, by itself, have cemented the concept of time. But along the trail I saw another anomaly that could only be explained by time.

Rooted in the ground was a grape vine suspended by two arms clinging to trees 10 and 20 feet away. Several years ago this young grape vine began growing up the side of a tree.

At the end of each grape vine branch were tentrils that searched for a support to cling to. Once it found a support, the tentril twisted tightly and tenaciously.

Through the years, new tentrils reached higher and higher following trunk, branches and twigs. As the grape vine extended to the branches of surrounding trees, time continued to edge on. The original supporting tree, which may have been old to begin with, was aging even more.

EVENTUALLY THE supporting tree died and slowly crumbled to the forest floor

But not before the grape vine had extended its grip to the neighboring

Now that the original supporting tree is gone, the grape vine looks like a sailor strapped to the yard arms.

Simply looking at this suspended vine is interesting in itself, but reviewing its history through time adds an even greater appreciation for this and other phenomena of na-

HEN people normally think of high fashion. places like Paris and New York City come

But there is a designer in the metropolitan Detroit area with the creative touch of an Yves St. Laurent or a Coco Chanel - and it's a light, feathery touch at that.

His name is James Cape and for a number of years he has been designing one-of-a-kind evening creations for a selected clientele. Pictures of his creations have appeared in the fashion sections oth Detroit dailies as well as the Toronto Sun and the prestigious WW - Women's Wear Daily, the fashion trade publication.

Some of his clients over the years have included actresses Gloria Swanson and Margaret Hamilton, entertainer Sally Rand and Detroit's own Aretha Frank-

WHAT I DO FOR Aretha are the flambovant things showy stuff." Cape.said. "Things like her feather coats. I don't do her entire wardrobe, but I did design her wardrobe for her 'Showtime' special.

Because he uses feathers a lot in his creations, designing for Rand was a natural, he said.

Sally Rand was doing her famous fan dances way into her 70s," Cape said. "After the show, she would come out on stage and talk to the audience. I designed those gowns for her.

One of his current clients is Marge Monaghan, wife of pizza king and Detroit Tigers owner Tom Monaghan. The infamous Drummond Island costume party had Marge Monaghan in a Capedesigned "red devil" creation of swishy georgette material. "It was very dramatic," Cape said. He also designed her dress for the couple's recent 25th wedding an-

Cape was born and raised in Dearborn and still lives there in a comfortable house he shares with his sister. After training at New York's American Academy of Dramatic Art, Cape tried his hand at acting but decided that a career in fashion design was what he wanted most. He has lived in Los Angeles, New York and has traveled extensively around the

ASIDE FROM A successful career in fashion design specializing in evening wear, Cape, for the past four years, has also been heavily involved with his partner, Ron Deihl, in producing top-quality theatrical productions through their nonprofit company, Alexander Productions.

Their latest endeavor is about to take place. It will star singer Eartha Kitt in a musical extravaganza. "A Night in Paris" will open tomorrow night and continue through Sunday in the Music Hall in Detroit. Backing up Kitt will be a 24-member chorus composed of area dancers chosen through auditions.

"A Night in Paris" has been in the planning stages since last year and Cape's enthusiasm is quite apparent. As executive producer for this show, he is responsible for everything the audience will see worn by the chorus plus Kitt. And judging on past performances, it promises to be a dazzling sight.

"For her opening number." Cape said, "Eartha will be wearing a full-length beaded dress made out of 24-K bugle beads."

For the show's can-can number, the skirts will be made from 800 yards of hand-ruffled fabric.

One of the show's highlights ill he a production nu the style of the Paris' Follies Bergere. The costumes for this number are elaborate to say the

"ALL THE FEATHERS in the costumes for this number are ordered by the pound and handwired onto the headdresses and costumes. More than 400 giant Chinese black pheasant feathers and hundreds of Chinese coquil feathers have been used on each costume - and there are 16 costumes designed for that number."

Working with a talented woman like Eartha Kitt is a joy, Cape

"She's a complete professional. She's flying back into Detroit from London just to do this show. She's currently in rehearsal for the London production of Stephen Sondheim's musical, "Follies," and our show will be the last time that she'll appear in the U.S. for a year," Cape said.

Another costume Cape has designed for Kitt consists of iridescent beads sewn onto black velvet. She will probably wear it during "The Heel" number. against a black backdrop in full spotlight.

"Can't you just see it?" Cape asks excitedly.

Although Cape declined to say exactly how much was spent on the production, he said that each chorus costume in the Follies Bergere number is worth $2-4,000 each. Kitt will be wearing about $30,000 worth of clothing.

"Eartha will also be wearing over a million dollars worth of jewelry from Sidney Krandall and Sons Jewelers in Troy," he Tickets for the opening night carry a special "benefit" provision to help the production company. The opening night $50 price includes an afterglow with Kitt and the entire company at the popular 1940 Chop House restaurant on East Jefferson.

"If you go to a fine restaurant to have dinner, you could expect to pay at least $50, so it doesn't seem bad to to me if you get to meet Eartha and eat too," said

In addition to three evening performances, there will be 2 p.m. matinees on Saturday and Sunday. For ticket information, call the Music Hall box office at 963-7680. For group groups and afterglow information, call Alexander Productions at 561-1472.

Friends star in supporting roles

By Marie McGee staff writer

There are a number of people all over the metropolitan Detroit area who are - in one way or another - pulling for the success of the show this weekend at the Music Hall starring Eartha Kitt.

You could call them a supporting cast of sorts.

There are folks like restaurateurs Don and Pat Vargo. Former Livonians, they have offered their 1940 Chop House for an afterglow benefiting the non-profit Alexander Productions headed by a volunteer board of directors, which includes production director Ronald Deihl and designer James

"They're putting on the whole thing," said Cape of the afterglow, which will allow firstnighters an opportunity to meet

All the flowers involved on and off stage have been donated by Detroit florist Edgar Brazelton, and all the formalwear is from Randazzo's of Livonia.

BUT PROBABLY THE most unusual twist came from those people who responded to the call to adopt a dancer.

Because of their generosity, the chorus boasts 24 dancers instead of the 14 the production company could afford to pay and costume. "And you hardly see 24 dancers anymore," Cape noted, "because it's gotten so expensive. The adopt-a-dancer idea is one major ballet companies use to help make ends meet.' Some of those folks include Birmingham resident Lorraine Schultz, who along with her husband, played a key role in the benefit fashion show last February at Fairlane Manor in which several of Cape's creations were showcased. Others are Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Schneidewind and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Mularoni.

We are dedicated to providing a showcase for local metro-Detroit talent in a professional atmosphere," Deihl said. Past productions have included "Encore at the Old Majestic," (an original revue) and "My Fair Lady" in which Cape's costuming talents were highly visible. They have also produced several shows in a dinner theater setting, including "Cole" and "Butterflies are Free." Anyone who has seen a Cape creation knows he likes to work with feathers. This weekend he's hoping to add yet another plume to his cap of dazzling achieve-

I decided to eat a pastry and sip on some coffee while writing this artile. So I took my new Dodge Caravan to the bakery and parked right in front of the door. After a minute so in line at the counter, I realized that I had left my keys in the ignition I went out and retrieved them. After purchasing my high-caloried goodie, I went out and sat in the van. I was horrified when I went to put my change in the ash try. Someone had seen it was full of change and stolen all the coins right out of my van.

'Man!' I exclaimed out loud. "Am glad I took the time to come out nd get my keys." I sat there for about a minute asking myself those plestions that we all ask when something is stolen You know like, What's this world coming to?" "Of all the nerve," etc.

Noticing crumbs on the carpet and eat. I began brushing the passenger's seat with my hand. "The guy who stole my ashtray full of money." I thought to myself, "must have been smoking. In fact, the whole van smells like cigarettes!"

Finally in disgust, I tilted the steering wheel and jammed the key into the ignition. But — you guessed it — the key didn't work! Why? Because I was in the wrong van! This van was just like mine. A little dirtier and missing an ashtray but just

So much for embarrassing moments

I have, for years, defined the attempt of art as a personal statement colored with the artist's style and ability or a physical representation of an emotion or inspiration

I have also defined the piece of art as an individual production restating the often stated or re-presenting the very present that is often an uncommon look at the common place.

I, for one, am always inspired by the exotic animal or far-away oddity. But when the paint hits the canvas I am, once again, painting from a photograph in a magazine. And my painting when done is ineligible for most art shows and certainly ineligible for art competition. The definition, "uncommon look at the common place," seems to be the answer when originality is the priority.

Artists of past centuries have understandably drawn and painted what was around them. With the wonder of photography, artists are, however. tempted to borrow a little here and there. And, in fact, an artist's stack of ripped-out magazine pages is affectionately called a "swipe file." I, myself, have an extensive swipe file. But for originality, nothing beats onlocation art. Now that summer is here, we should all be outside painting and drawing

IF THERE IS A particular lighting effect that you admire, I recommend you take a photo to freeze the highlights and shadows. For me, the best way to do location art is to execute a quick color rendering, take some photos for details or lighting and then redraw or clean up the painting when I get home.

I am usually not that comfortable out on location. My back is usually sore, I always need the brush I left at home and a host of other reasons. But the uncommon look at the common place or thing is fascinating. Imagine a post with a couple of rusty nails sticking out. Who would paint that? But look closer, there is a bent-up rusty wire fence nailed to the post casting beautiful shadow patterns across the ground. The cold wire and nails make a wonderful contrast against the warm and weathered wood grain of the post.

It's true that the grass is burned to yellow hues around the post but all the colors of the wood, wire and nails are browns. But look, around a little tree is a delicate green vine winding its way up the trunk. Why not paint the vine around the post. On and on it goes as you look closer and closer. The seemingly simple reveals, with a closer look, a maze of complexity and a greater beauty of the beautiful.

So, folks, it's summer, go out and paint.

condo queries Robert M. Meisner

Q. I have performed services for a condominium association by way of management consultation services and have not been paid. The president of the board of directors indicates that he was not satisfied with our services and that, in any event, the board is changing in composition. What recourse do I have?

A Advise the president of the association that you have a valid and enforceable contract against the association and that you will avail yourself of the legal remedies should the matter not be resolved amicably.

Assuming that your consulting services were reasonable and necessary and that you had an enforceable contract for same, you have a right to be paid. The fact that the composition of the board of directors has changed has no bearing on the obligation of the association to pay the indebtedness

The president of the association may be best advised to get some legal advice before he and the association find themselves personally on the other end of a lawsuit.

A. There are very few mixed use condominiums in the Detroit metropolitan area. They have generally been successful on the West Coast as well as Washington, D.C. Properly planned, mixed-use condominiums can be very beneficial both to the residents and to the prospective commercial tenants.

Obviously, the documents must be carefully drafted in order to define the mixed-use characteristics of the project and to ensure adequate restrictions to protect the interests of the residents as well as the commercial tenant.

As far as the marina condominium is con-

Now is the time to clear out those closets, attics, basements and garages and make some quick cash in the process.

How do you plan a garage sale?

It's easy!

Just follow these simple guidelines: 1. Gather together the Items you have for sale. Sort them into appropriate categories and price them fairly.

2. Place a classified advertisement in The Observer & Eccentric by calling one of the numbers below.

3. Hang signs throughout your neighborhood alerting residents to the upcoming sale.

4. Decide what to do with all the money you'll have after your sale! Or, if you love to bargain-hunt and would rather shop then sell, be sure to look for our special garage sale littings every Monday and Thursday in your hometown newspaper. Observer & Eccentric classifieds make it easy to earn money and save money. Discover for yourself, today!

West Bloomfield's Best

Enter Aldingbrooke through a private gate and you've entered a world that abounds with "more" of everything.

More Space...Up to 2,800 Square Feet.

Note the spaciousness of each of Aldingbrooke's 9 floor plans. The full living space, the generous storage space, the private patio or balcony, attached garages and the lush rolling terrain. Aldingbrooke residents demand spaciousness—so each Aldingbrooke unit is designed with their needs in mind.

More Community...130 Acres.

Aldingbrooke is more than an apartment—it's a community. A clubhouse with pool, tennis courts, walking/jogging trials, library, billiards and other activities galore. Aldingbrooke residents demand more than just a place to live, they demand a lifestyle—and Aldingbrooke provides it.

1, 2 and 3 Bedroom Terrace Homes. From $650-1525. 661-0770

We're located on Drake Road between Maple and Walnut Lake Roads.

Open Daily 9-6 • Saturday 10-6 • Sunday 11-6 Furnished Executive Rentals available.
