Committee may conduct school study

Schools adopt budget measures, 3A

A study/advisory committee to delve into all aspects of the Plymouth-Canton schools has been proposed by Superintendent John M. Hoben.

Annette Remsburg, a Plymouth resident who unsuccessfully sought a seat on the school board in June, has agreed to head a small group to prepare a mission plan for the blue ribbon committee.

The school board, if it concurs with the charge, would appoint upwards of 50 people to take a year-long look at the district.

"I think we're looking for... recommendations for improving the school system. That's the bottom line," Hoben said.

REMSBURG, 34, has been involved in education, primarily as a teacher, since 1976. She earned a bachelor of science degree from Iowa State University and a master of arts degree from Michigan State University.

Rensburg speculated on why she was chosen by Hoben to head such an important committee.

"I think the primary reason is because I'm relatively new to the community and during my campaign for school board, I did a lot of research and digging into the district," she said.

Rensburg has regularly attended school board meetings the past several months.

"That's what this committee will do — look closely at what is and what isn't happening," she said. "Dr. Hoben has spoken about a bubble-up effect, let ideas generate at the community level."

"This has been discussed as a committee of the board, but I can assure you it won't be a puppet of the board or administration," Rensburg said. "The major intent is to set the groundwork for more interaction be-

Maurice Breen, supervisor in Plymouth Township since 1980 and for two years in the early 1970s, says his record of accomplishment merits re-election for another term.

James Irvine, a trustee since 1984 and unhappy with what he claims is a lack of information coming out of township hall, says he could do a better job as chief executive officer for the township.

Jerry Raymor, who has attended board meetings for several months, says he sees a need to restore confidence in local government and reverse what he maintains is low morale among township employees.

THOSE THREE candidates, all Republicans, are battling to woo voters in the Aug. 2 primary. The winner almost certainly will serve as supervisor for the next four years because no Democrats have filed for the position.

The supervisor, who also chairs board meetings, is paid $44,000 per year.

"I want to continue development of services and needs of community we have done over time," Breen said, specifically citing his involvement in establishing a sewage disposal authority.

"Township supervisor has more than one role," Breen said. "The number one role is leadership. The other role is... administrative head of government... to ensure residents are served by township government."

"The other function is to bring to the township board solutions of problems brought to the administration," Breen said.

Democratic congressional hopefuls share many views

Dean Baker and Lana Pollack, dueling in the Democratic primary Aug. 2 for a shot at U.S. Congress in the 2nd District, see most issues the same way.

Both favor increasing the federal tax bite on high wage earners and couples to help reduce the national deficit.

Both favor a gradual increase in the minimum wage, Baker to about $5 per hour, Pollack to $4.50.

Both favor a reduction in military spending.

Both support a federal law requiring advance notice of plant closings to employees and retraining programs for workers who lose their jobs to closings.

Both question the current direction of American foreign policy.

Both even live in Ann Arbor. Pollack, 45, is serving her second term in the state Senate. Baker, 30, recently earned his Ph.D. and completed a teaching stint at the University of Michigan.

THE WINNER of the primary will face incumbent Carl Pursell (R-Plymouth), who has served in Congress for 11½ years.

The 2nd District includes Livonia and Plymouth, Hillsdale County and parts of Washtenaw, Jackson, Lenawee and Branch counties.

Baker collected 41 percent of the vote in the general election against Pursell in 1986.

"I don't see my opponent in the primary or Pursell coming to grips with the deficit... in a real way," Baker said. "What I've proposed is cutting back military spending to a pre-Reagan level."

Baker also would restore marginal tax rates to 70 percent on wage earners making $115,000-120,000 annually.

POLLACK SAID she'd spend less money on such military efforts like the Strategic Defense Initiative (Star Wars) and the MX missile and also take a hard look at spending on conventional forces.

"I believe the tax rate should be broadened with a surtax on the highest levels of income to service the debt," she said.

Pollack couldn't come up with a tax rate, but indicated that her surcharge should apply to individuals earning $100,000 and couples $157,000 per year.

Pollack supports a U.S. military presence keeping the shipping lanes open in the Persian Gulf, but believes we could do a better job relieving tensions between Iran and Iraq.

OTHER COUNTRIES must be encouraged to pay their fair share of defense costs, she added.

"In Latin America and other countries, we have to have a broad view of what American interests are," Pollack said. "I think we've had a very narrow view of what American interests are up to now."

Says Baker: "Foreign policy, I think, has been overly belligerent in the Reagan years. Shooting down of an Iranian airliner is a good example. That's the situation you get into when you have military force all over the world."

United Way

Ex-volunteer now heads organization

Six years ago Marie Morrow answered the Plymouth Community Fund's newspaper ad for a volunteer typist.

Today, she's director of administration for the organization now known as Plymouth Community United Way.

She credits her predecessor in the job with commitment to the organization.

"It sort of grows on you when you work with Clarence DuCharme. There's a sense of satisfaction about being able to help people in the community. People in this community are very, very supportive of the organization," she said.

Morrow was new to the area when she responded to the ad. Her husband Duke Morrow, who works for Multi-Feed Inc., a machinery firm, was transferred to the area from New England.

"I had a baby, my son Chris and I thought, 'this will give me something to do,'" she said. She worked throughout the 1982 fund-raising campaign, then returned to school to earn a bachelor's in social science from the University of Michigan.

BY THE time she graduated, she information goes, especially the spending of township money.

"I don't think very highly the way (Breen) is running the show," Irvine said.

One purpose of the supervisor's office, Irvine said, "is to be a place where people can come for information."

"I've got enough experience," said Irvine, 60, a lawyer. "Essentially, when you are the supervisor, I question whether you can take credit for all good things that happen.

"I don't propose to run the township. I propose to work for the township and involve other people," he said.

RAYMOR SAID many leadership positions elaborated by Breen are the result of his long incumbency. The role of supervisor, Raymor said, "is to influence state and other governments when it will affect the township, to have employee involvement . . . and to deal with issues citizens in the community want to have happen."

Raymor, 41, is a project manager for Ford Motor Co.

"It's difficult to get information at the township," he said. "I'm a good planner, a good organizer. I can deal with people fairly and effectively. I want to act as a servant for the community."

Breen, 55, a lawyer, said information is available if people only bother to ask.

"Obviously I have a record to run on," Breen said. "The community needs experience and leadership I've given in the past. I have a good reputation as an administrator among peers."

These hopefuls agree on issues

Baker believes the U.S. is "overly committed to Israel." He also has nagging concerns about U.S. involvement in Central America.

Both candidates indicated support for more federal aid to education and health care for the elderly.

Pollack stressed environmental protection and cleanup efforts. Baker made a point of holding town meetings at least twice a year in every county in the district if elected.

BAKER HAS never won elective office. Pollack has been elected to the Ann Arbor school board and the Michigan Senate.

The biggest difference between the two candidates might be how they're running their campaigns.

Pollack appeared at the Observer offices for an interview with a couple of aides. Baker came alone.

Baker said he's again using a grass-roots campaign heavy on volunteers and light on money. He suspects he'll spend $12,000-15,000 during the primary.

Pollack said she's already spent more than $100,000 on her campaign.

Candidate for clerk re-enters GOP race

Lorraine Halmekangas' yes-noes candidacy for Plymouth Township clerk has taken a new twist.

Halmekangas, who previously said she was a write-in candidate on the Democratic ticket, now says she's a Republican write-in candidate and will take on her boss, Esther Hulsing, directly in the Aug. 2 primary.

Halmekangas' first major switch occurred when she submitted nominating petitions on the filing deadline in late May, then withdrew a couple of days later after reconsidering a run.

She initially filed as a Republican.

After a groundswell of support moved her to re-enter the race,

"If people are being honest with me, support is out there."

— Lorraine Halmekangas
clerk candidate

Halmekangas said she figured her best political bet was to run as a Democrat, get enough votes in the primary to appear on the November ballot and challenge Hulsing there.

Now, Halmekangas has changed her mind.

Again, her supporters called for the change, she said.

"If I ran as a Democrat, I would have enough votes (to qualify for November), no doubt about it," she said. "But they (supporters) wouldn't be able to vote for any other (Republican) office."

Michigan's state primary is closed, meaning a voter can't pick and choose candidates between parties.

Halmekangas concedes that it would be more difficult to defeat Hulsing in August than in November.

Still, Halmekangas is confident. "I know there's a lot of support out there. If people are being honest with me, support is out there," she said.

Halmekangas, deputy clerk the past three years, currently is on medical leave.

Wheel life

Wanna-be drivers hit the training range road

By Peggy Aulino
staff writer

There's a skateboard propped up against a lightpole in the high school parking lot. Its owner is off experimenting with a bigger set of wheels.

"I guess this is coming of age in America," driver's education teacher Don Francoeur said as his young charges maneuver automobiles around cones in the lot.

The state may say they'll soon be old enough to drive, but some of the students are still hardly able to see over the steering wheel. At 15, though, they are a year or less away from borrowing the family car or getting one of their own.

One may assume that driver's ed represents the first time a young person has been behind the wheel of a car, but that doesn't mean they haven't learned a thing or two about driving.

"THEY PICK up a lot of the habits of their parents," said Bob Wisniewski, another instructor. That means making a right turn at a red light without stopping or neglecting to wear a seatbelt, he said. Another hand-me-down habit is to "step on the gas and try to beat the light" when it turns from green to amber, Wisniewski said.

"They say, 'Well, my mom and dad do that all the time,'" he added.

On the driving range in the parking lot, the students might as well have halos over their heads. They drive slowly and follow the instructions Francoeur yells over the sounds of the purring motors. But the teachers know those halos could be tossed in the back seat at any time.

"You know the old story: When the cat's away, the mice will play," Francoeur said. While most young drivers "are really wonderful, there's always a few who don't obey the rules," he said.

Bill Sharp, a 15-year-old sophomore from Canton, admits he doesn't always follow the rules. For instance, the driver's ed class isn't his first experience behind the wheel.

He said he's driven his sister's car "out in the boonies so I don't get

caught by the law."

AND WHEN a car peels out of the parking lot with its wheels squealing, Sharp said, "That's how you drive, right there."

He also has an opinion about the merits of male vs. female drivers.

"Most of the girls don't know what they're doing," he tells a female reporter. "No offense but it's true."

Amy Girardin, a young woman in a different driving class, takes offense.

"We're just as good drivers as guys," she said. "Guys like to drive fast."

The class meets Monday through Friday for four weeks to prepare students for a written test that will be administered by people from the Secretary of State's office.

In addition to the parking lot practice and some on-road driving sessions, the course includes classroom work — complete with a textbook.

The two teachers interviewed recently had two answers to the question "Are you nervous as a passenger in a car being driven by a 15-year-old?"

Francoeur said yes. "That's what keeps you safe. It keeps you on your toes," he said.

But Wisniewski's nervousness is behind him.

He said he's no longer nervous "because you learn to anticipate what the kids will do wrong."

Curt Perry passes out tests to students Joel Bongard and Kirsten Stager.

Dennis Carney enters a classroom decorated with signs made by his fellow students in driver's ed classes.

School board approves cost-cutting measures

Guidelines for collecting participation fees for sports and other extracurricular activities and for closing elementary schools at 5 p.m. daily and weekends were approved Monday by the Plymouth-Canton school board.

The revenue-producing and cost-cutting measures were adopted by the school board for the 1988-89 academic year.

Students in ninth through 12th grades will be charged $50 per activity not to exceed $100 per student and $150 per family.

Students in seventh and eighth grades will be charged $30 per activity not to exceed $60 per student and $90 per family.

Families with students in both middle school and high school will be charged a maximum annual family fee of $150.

FEES WILL be charged for all interscholastic sports, cheerleading, pompon, drama-fall play, drama-spring musical, marching band, school newspaper, forensics, debate and yearbook.

Deadlines will be set. A student who joins a sport or activity after the deadline will pay the fee when he joins.

In activities where a selection process is used, the fee won't be collected until the squad has been determined.

Payment of the fee in no way guarantees playing time, lead roles in dramatic presentations or a minimum level of participation.

Refunds won't be made for any reason.

The fee will be waived for economic hardship based on whether the student qualifies for the federal free or reduced price lunch program.

BASED ON family size and income, thresholds last year included an annual income of $20,720 for a family of four, $24,235 for a family of five and $27,750 for a family of six.

School administrators project participation fees will raise $94,000 during the upcoming school year.

School study proposed tween the community and the board and administration."

HOBEN SAID the administration would like to see broad community representation on the committee with all factions represented.

Remsburg agrees, but she also wants to see new faces involved.

"I definitely want to make sure ing the upcoming school year.

Closing all elementary schools at 5 p.m. daily and keeping them closed weekends will result in custodial savings of nearly $61,000, school administrators estimate.

Building principals may designate one night per month to remain open until 10 p.m. for such functions as open house, parent-teacher conferences, PTO meetings and musical activities.

A junior basketball program and 10 scout troops will be most affected by the new closing policy, said Larry Masteller, director of community education for the schools.

Alternative arrangements have yet to be made for those groups, he said.

there are people who may have wanted their voices heard but may not have been in a position to speak out," she said.

While the school board will appoint the committee, Remsburg suggested that people who want to serve call her, 451-7337.

"I suspect we'll identify issue areas and task forces for each of those areas," she said.

had acquired a full-time job with the organization. Working with DuCharme for 5 years left her with a good working knowledge of the concern.

"He was very dedicated to the idea of Community Fund. He was a storehouse of information," Morrow said.

When he retired, the board of directors appointed Morrow to head the only independent United Way in Wayne County. This year, the organization changed its name.

The organization plans to visit affiliated agencies to take a look at how they benefit the community. In addition, it will check the community for new human service needs, according to Morrow.

Last Friday, Morrow presided

over another change in the the Plymouth Community United Way.

The organization moved its office to the site formerly occupied by the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce at 960 W. Ann Arbor Trail.

Empty boxes still lined one wall and there wasn't a sign on the door Monday, but Morrow was satisfied they opened the office several days ahead of schedule.

AS SHE finished organizing the new location, her concern turned to this year's fund-raising campaign. Last year the PCUW exceeded its $425,000 goal by $20,000. It's a long way from the 1944 Plymouth Community Fund goal of $2,500.

"Plymouth's been fortunate. We've reached our goal for many years," Morrow said.

A member of the United Way of Michigan, the PCUW acts as an umbrella organization for 16 local agencies and is affiliated with 22 other agencies in the state.

"We have excellent rapport with all of the United Ways," she said. "We receive a lot of funds through designations from other United Ways. On the other hand, Plymouth has a large amount of contributors who designate for other communities. But then, K mart contributions come back to us through the United Way of America," she said.

Gun permit fees, timing varies city-by-city

By Tom Henderson

If you want to buy a handgun legally, you must first apply for a permit to purchase. That's a state law and is the same no matter where you live. But how soon you can get that permit after applying for it, and how much you will pay for it, vary greatly from one community to the next.

A survey of local communities in western Wayne County shows sharp variations in costs and procedures for a permit to purchase a handgun. For example, a permit is free if you live in Plymouth Township, and if the computers are working and you don't have any felony convictions in the last eight years, you usually can get your permit within 15 minutes.

But in the city of Plymouth, the same permit will cost you $22.50 and can take six weeks or more, according to police Chief Richard Myers.

Local police departments must approve the permits but are given wide latitude in deciding whether or not to fingerprint applicants and how much to charge.

Procedures for concealed weapon permits are more uniform, as are the costs (see related story).

PERMITS TO PURCHASE are good for 10 days, and must be acquired whether you are buying a gun or getting one in trade or as a gift. After the permit is issued, you have 10 days to return to the local police station with a weapon, which then must pass a safety check and be registered. You have to be 21 to get a permit to buy from a gun dealer, 18 to buy or trade through private sources.

Here is a community-by-community breakdown on how the permits may be attained. Residency is required by all communities and proof must be furnished:

CITY OF PLYMOUTH: The police department requires fingerprinting, which means a delay of four to six weeks for clearance through the state police in East Lansing. Applicants are first run through the computerized LEIN (Law Enforcement Information Network) system, and if there are no warrants current or felony convictions for the last eight years a resident can purchase a weapon.

The fee is $22.50, which includes $10 to the state, a city fingerprinting fee of $7.50 and $5 for the permit. There were 41 permits granted in 1987 and 14 through May 1988, not counting those given to police officers, federal agents or security guards, for whom the city processes applications without charge.

PLYMOUTH TOWNSHIP: Purchase permits are free and nearly instantaneous, according to police department investigator Erik Mayernik. The township runs applicants through the LEIN system, but doesn't fingerprint.

Since late October 1987, Mayernik has granted 98 of 101 purchase applications. One was denied for living outside the township, another for having a criminal record and a third is appealing in court.

WESTLAND: Westland also processes most applications "in a matter of minutes," according to police Lt. Robbin Crosby. There is a $10 fee and just a thumbprint is taken.

Westland processed 740 permits in 1987 and did 330 through May 1988, vs. 348 for the same period last year.

GARDEN CITY: Garden City doesn't require fingerprints, either. Applicants pay a $5 fee, then are run through the LEIN system. Even if the applicant passes the LEIN check, the police may turn down the applicant if the department has had problems with the applicant involving such things as domestic difficulties.

Applications are kept on file for a year, so applicants don't have to go through the process again if they want another weapon during that period.

The department does not keep records on the number of permits granted.

REDFORD TOWNSHIP: Townships have the option by law of letting the county sheriff's department handle purchase permit applications and applications for concealed weapons. Canton and Plymouth townships process their own applications, while Redford has the county do it. County records don't reflect how many permits were processed for Redford residents.

CANTON TOWNSHIP: Canton does not charge for purchase permits, which take about two days to get. Residents who get permits and then buy guns are requested to call the department of public safety before they return for their safety check and registration. Public safety can then take the information about the gun over the phone and run it through the computers to save a

The Michigan State Police don't break down registrations by county or city. Statewide, 79,594 guns were registered in 1987, about 59,000 of them new weapons — like this Smith

Canton granted 646 purchase permits in 1987 and 356 through May of 1988.

LIVONIA: Livonia charges $10 for the first permit, then $2 for additional permits during a two-year period. Livonia fingerprints applicants, which means a four-six-week wait.

"If there's anything questionable (with the applicant's record), we say no. Let 'em go to court if they want to," said Mary Ann Gorski, the record's clerk with the police department.

Livonia processed 640 permits in 1987, and did 257 through May 1988.

WAYNE COUNTY: The sheriff's department fingerprints applicants and charges $10 for the permit. In 1987, the county processed 845 purchase permits and registered 612 guns. To date in 1988, it has processed 305 permits and registered 257 guns.

Nearly 80,000 guns registered

The Michigan State Police began keeping records on handgun purchases in 1925, when legislation was introduced to require such record keeping. The legislation didn't take effect until 1927, but by then the police were already compiling facts and figures.

Since then, nearly 2 million handguns have been registered in the state, according to Liz Dotts, supervisor of the Michigan State Police's firearms record section.

The police don't break down registrations by county or city. Statewide, 79,594 guns were registered in 1987, about 59,000 of them new weapons "coming into the system," said Dotts.

In 1987, 20,218 concealed-weapons permits were granted, and Dotts estimates that about 70,000 people in the state have licenses to carry concealed weapons. The licenses are good for three years.

ARE LOCAL communities turning into armed camps? Are those weapons being bought for home protection? Those who register the weapons are emphatic that local communities are not armed camps, with nervous homeowners waiting to shoot at things that go bump in the night.

"I don't get the idea so much that they're arming themselves to protect their homes," said Mary Ann Gorski, who handles registrations for Livonia. "The feeling I get from talking to people when they come in is that a lot of them own gun collections, or they want the guns as an investment. They have appreciated in value and continue to appreciate."

"As for protecting their home, I don't get that feeling so much. A lot of our applicants are repeaters. They're connoisseurs. They've been looking for a particular gun and finally they've found it and they're so proud."

Yet, she and others involved in registering guns admit there's no way to determine how many are buying guns out of fear. There is nothing when you fill out the forms for a gun to indicate whether you will use it for target practice, hunting, home protection or to simply put in a glass case.

"They have the right to have a loaded gun in their home for protection, but we really don't recommend it," said Gorski.

"I would say a majority are for home protection, but it's hard to say," said Erik Mayernik of the Plymouth Township police. He said some purchases are obviously by collectors — "they're old antique handguns you wouldn't fire." Others are for sport enthusiasts. "We call them silhouette shooters," said Mayernik. "They just like going to the range and shooting."

Mayernik said that the quality of the handguns he registers is quite high, with cheaper guns and Saturday night specials a rarity.

Inspector Paul Schnarr of the Westland Police Department also guessed that a majority of gun registrations are for home protection. But he said many are used for target practice — "people just like to plink cans" — and hunting. "And you get some collectors."

POLICE agreed about one thing. Buying a handgun for home protection is not the wisest course. For one thing, statistics show that you are more likely to be hurt by your own gun than to hurt an intruder. For another, there are better ways of protecting the house.

"People ask me what gun will do the job. What do I recommend," said Mayernik. "I tell them to get a shotgun. It's easier to get than a pistol and it will serve the purpose better."

"They teach you at gun school that there is no sound in the world like the racking of a shotgun (where the shell is put into the barrel by pulling the pump action). You rack a shotgun and there's a guy hiding behind a wall with a tiny gun? We've been in situation in the field where you rack the gun and they just come out with their hands up."

Concealed weapon permit procedure difficult, lengthy

By Tom Henderson
staff writer

It is relatively easy — if you aren't a felon or wanted by the police — to get a permit to purchase a handgun. To get a license to carry it concealed on your person or in your car is another matter.

There are about 70,000 people licensed to carry concealed weapons in Michigan, though the process is cumbersome and lengthy, taking three months or more to pass FBI clearance and win approval of the local county gun board.

The process begins with the local police or county sheriff's office and involves approval by the local police, the state police, the FBI and a county gun board. If you have a handgun, here's what you have to do to get a license to carry it.

• Have a good reason. "We're really cracking down on granting general licenses," said Wayne County Sheriff Robert Ficano.

"I screen people when they come in. I'll ask them why they want to carry a gun, and they'll tell me 'I want to go to a Tiger game.' Usually, when they find out they have to put up $10 to apply, they don't want it anymore."

There are two kinds of permits for concealed weapons — unrestricted, also known as a general permit, and restricted. The first, according to Liz Dotts of the State Police records department, is granted to retired police, members of the judiciary, prosecutors, attorneys and retired or active politicians. Only 5 percent of the permits are general permits.

I-696 program to inform drivers

By Joanne Maliszewski
staff writer

Motorists driving to work should remember Monday was the official starting day for the two-year, $21.5 million widening project to I-696 in Farmington Hills and Southfield.

"We are really concerned that people know what's going on," said Jack Pyle, Michigan Department of Transportation communications director.

Though MDOT is running the improvement show, the department has hired the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments to conduct a motorist information program similar to last year's "Lodgeability" program.

"It worked so well that we established a new policy for road construction and put the people side into it," said Pyle, who now conducts seminars for "the technical people" in the department so they "consider the human impact" of construction.

Unlike "Lodgeability," however, the I-696 project doesn't have its own individual name. Rather, it is a part of a series of construction projects this year termed "Mobility '88," Pyle said.

The information program will include distribution of brochures and other literature about the improvements. Motorists can keep pace with construction tie-ups and other information by calling a 557-7696 Civic, community or homeowners groups interested in a public presentation of the construction project may call Brigit Hassig at SEMCOG, 961-4266.

MOTORISTS OR residents who have concerns or problems with the construction may call MDOT's ombudsman Bob Tarsi at 548-7351.

Preplanned detours are not part of the motorist information program. It is expected most motorists sooner or later will develop their own routes to avoid the slowed traffic and possible tie-ups.

Both MDOT and SEMCOG officials are urging motorists' patience during the two years of construction that will begin slowly throughout the remainder of 1988 and push into high gear in 1989.

I-696 will be widened from the existing two lanes to four lanes for just less than seven miles from Franklin Road in Southfield to I-275. Completion is targeted for spring 1990. Widening the existing four-lane I-696 will ease potential bottlenecks as traffic along the new eastern leg of I-696 flows into the existing freeway running through Farmington Hills and Southfield.

The project also includes the reconstruction of the Orchard Lake Road interchange. It includes widening the bridge from four to eight lanes and adding loop ramps to the freeway. Freeway bridges over Drake and Inkster also will be widened from the existing two lanes to four lanes in each direction.

"For motorists, there will always be two lanes of traffic open in both directions, but it will probably move slower," MDOT resident engineer Tom Maki said.

CONSTRUCTION WILL be in three phases during the next two years. Motorists will begin to notice and feel the effect of construction beginning Saturday and Sunday, July 16-17, when westbound I-696 will be reduced to one lane while restriping for a temporarily widened westbound I-696 is completed.

Riders sought for van pool groups

Tired of cursing the traffic, headaches and costs associated with driving and parking downtown for work?

The Southeast Michigan Council of Governments has some van pools available for Plymouth and Canton commuters to remove those concerns.

Several van pools from western Wayne County to Detroit, both downtown and the New Center area, are now forming and need additional passengers.

Fares for the van pools vary slightly depending on roundtrip miles, gasoline and number of passengers. But the approximate cost per passenger is $55 per month.

Nine or more passengers are needed to form a van pool and receive a fully insured van from MichiVan, a program sponsored by the Michigan Department of Transportation.

Those interested in learning more about the program may call RideShare, 963-RIDE.

RideShare is a free, computerized car and van pool matching service of SEMCOG.

Local delegates like Kemp for 2nd spot on GOP ticket

By Tom Henderson
staff writer

Jack Kemp is the choice for the vice presidential nomination of area delegates to the Republican national convention in New Orleans in August.

Two of three local delegates named him as their first choice and the third delegate ranked Kemp as his second choice for the number two spot on the ticket with George Bush.

All three delegates are firm in their opposition to Elizabeth Dole, who has been mentioned lately as someone who would balance the ticket and help cut the margin in the polls between Bush and Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis, who will be the Democratic nominee for president.

"My sentimental favorite is Jack Kemp," said Dan Piercecchi of Livonia, a Bush delegate who chairs the of the Wayne 2nd District Republican Committee, which includes the cities of Plymouth and Northville, the townships of Plymouth and Northville and parts of Livonia.

"Kemp is a dynamic individual with strong ties to the conservative element throughout the country, especially in California, where it is essential we win."

"I'm staying with the person I originally supported (for president), and that's Jack Kemp," said Art Sippola of Livonia, a Kemp delegate. "We need to solidify the more conservative wing of the party, and he has the vision this country needs."

Dave Thompson of Saline, a Pat Robertson delegate and chairman of the GOP 15th District, which includes Westland, Garden City, Canton Township and part of Livonia, said that Kemp was his second choice behind William Armstrong, a U.S. senator from Colorado.

THE THREE DELEGATES agreed that Elizabeth Dole, the wife of former presidential candidate Robert Dole, would be an ineffective addition to the ticket.

"Just to put a woman on the ballot for the sake of putting a woman on is absurd," said Piercecchi. "I don't know if I buy the theory of a balanced ticket. Let's just get the two best people."

"I don't know if she would be that effective. She couldn't win her home state (North Carolina) for Bob Dole and she worked hard there. She doesn't have drawing power."

"I think she's very articulate and qualified. There are some people who said the wrong Dole was running for president," said Sippola. "I'm not sure where her support comes from, but I certainly don't have a problem with her. I'd be able to support her."

"There's a lot of talk about Liz Dole, but I think the fact that she didn't deliver North Carolina for her husband — how can she deliver any states to George Bush?" said Thompson. "She'd make a good vice president. She'd make a good president. But I think she's a long-shot candidate."

"Newspapers keep saying Bush doesn't have the women's vote. But what they don't tell you is the women he doesn't have belong to the National Organization of Women or to gay liberation. And he's not going to get those women no matter what he does," said Thompson, the minister of the First Assembly of God Church in Saline.

ANOTHER WOMAN whose name has come up for vice president is Jeanne Kirkpatrick, the former U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

"There's a lot of talk about Jeanne Kirkpatrick. I like her, but she's not my choice. I want someone who is more of a movement conservative," said Thompson.

"There are two people openly seeking the (vice presidential) nomination — Kirkpatrick and Gov. (Thomas) Keane of New Jersey," said Piercecchi. "Somebody is lobbying hard for her. Her staff or somebody. They keep sending stuff out. And Keane even sent me a copy of his book, about all he's done in New Jersey."

"Jeanne Kirkpatrick's campaigning for the job," said Sippola. "Her or somebody for her. They've been campaigning and fund raising, too, urging people to write (to Bush) on her behalf."

But despite the campaigning, Kemp remains their favorite.

"But delegates never make that decision," said Piercecchi. "It'll be whoever Bush wants. They'll tell us at the convention."

It could even be Robert Dole, said Sippola, despite the antagonism he frequently displayed toward Bush during the campaign for the presidential nomination.

"Johnson and Kennedy didn't get along, either, and look what happened. Strange things happen on the way (to the White House)," said Sippola.

Area Dems say vp choice will give balance to ticket

By Tom Henderson and Wayne Peal staff writers

The selection of Texas Sen. Lloyd Bentsen as the Democratic Party's vice presidential nominee surprised area delegates to the party's upcoming Atlanta convention.

But Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis' choice of Bentsen as a running mate didn't necessarily displease area Democrats.

Dukakis, the party's likely presidential nominee tapped the conservative veteran senator Tuesday for the No. 2 spot. The move was seen, in some quarters as bringing regional and political balance to the ticket.

Though supporters of the Rev. Jesse Jackson were openly disappointed their candidate wasn't selected, Jackson alternate Patricia Hough of Westland was philosophical.

"JESSE JACKSON is going to be around a long time," Hough said. "And I hope the movement is going to be around a long time, too. He woke up the people. He called attention to issues that needed attention."

Hough, vice president for state-wide UAW Local 6000, had favored Jackson for vice president but said she was willing to abide by Dukakis' choice even before learning of Bentsen's selection.

"Really, the vice president is the prerogative of the nominee," she said. "It has to be someone he can live with."

'Texas is a big state, and it's an important one. And to go that far back (remembering Bentsen once beat Bush) is a sign Dukakis is doing his homework.'

— Barbara Johnson
Dukakis alternate from Livonia

Bentsen's 1970 U.S. Senate victory over likely GOP presidential nominee George Bush wasn't lost on area Democrats. Neither was the importance of vote-rich Texas on party election strategy.

"TEXAS is a big state and it's an important one," said Dukakis alternate Barbara Johnson of Livonia. "And to go that far back (remembering Bentsen once beat Bush) is a sign Dukakis is doing his homework."

DeHart, Hough and Johnson are first-time delegates, though Johnson was on the national rules committee for the 1976 convention.

Vice presidential positioning will play a "very small role" once the convention begins, Hough predicted. "I think you'll find the discussion will occur on issues, rather than candidates," Hough said. "I'm involved with the women's caucus and, naturally, there are issues like comparable worth and child care that are extremely interesting to me."

"Plus we've already made great strides in coming together on the issues in the pre-convention meetings we've had."

Johnson, who backed Ohio Sen. John Glenn for the vice presidential nomination, said Bentsen's name was scarcely mentioned during Sunday's state delegates meeting.

"He (Bentsen) was hardly mentioned at all," she said. "But his name had come up a few weeks back."

Westland Councilman Ben Dehart, a Dukakis delegate, was unavailable for comment following Bentsen's selection.

Weapons permits vary by community

Restricted permits are for security guards to use at work, for hunting or target practice, or for home, business and bank use.

It isn't enough to say you need a gun because you do a lot of banking. If you own a business, you'll need incorporation papers or an assumed names form. If you carry money as part of your work, you'll need a notarized letter from an employer and proof that you deposit at least $500 a week into a commercial account.

You apply for the permit where you live, not where you do business.

• References — in addition to proof that you need a gun for business, first-time applicants must provide two character references and letters from those references.

• At least $50, $10 of which goes to the state to handle costs of checking fingerprint records, and $40 of which goes to the county. In addition, some communities add on a fee. Livonia, for example, charges $12.50.

• Patience. Approval by local police is quick — usually involving no more than a day or two to clear the LEIN network. But it takes 4-6 weeks to clear the State Police and FBI and another month or two to clear the county gun board.

When the paperwork comes back approved, the local police package up your affidavits, references, application, etc., and forward it to the Wayne County gun board, which is made up of a representative of the county sheriff, the State Police and the county prosecutor.

The board meets the first Tuesday of every month and goes over in detail each request for a concealed weapons permit.

• A gun course. You must pass a four-hour gun course by an approved instructor, which includes firing live ammunition.

THERE WERE 20,218 permits for concealed weapons issued in Michigan in 1987, according to State Police, who do not keep track of permits by city or county.

There are about 70,000 people licensed to carry concealed weapons in Michigan, though the process is cumbersome and lengthy, taking three months or more to pass FBI clearance and win approval of the local county gun board.

The Wayne County figures were unavailable last week. Ficano's office only keeps track of permits that originated in his office. Most originate in local police departments. In 1987, the county issued 60 permits that originated with the county sheriff and had issued another 20 this year to date.

In Livonia, there were 117 concealed weapons permits granted in 1987 and 51 through May of 1988. Figures from 10 years ago show how much tougher it is to get a permit; in 1978, there were 204 permits approved.

Lt. Robbin Crosby of the Westland police guessed that his department gets 6-8 applications a month. The city of Plymouth had about 12 for all of 1987 and six to date for 1988.

Garden City, Canton Township and Plymouth Township don't keep records on concealed weapons. According to Erik Mayernik, an investigator with the Plymouth Township police, "We had two applications this month and that's a busy month for us." Said a spokeswoman in Canton: "They trickle in and out. We don't get that many."

The were no figures available for Redford, whose applications for concealed weapons are processed by the county sheriff's department.

Communities blast waste board

By Amy Rosa
staff writer

Livonia, Westland, Plymouth and other western Wayne communities say they will reject a countywide solid waste disposal plan unless communities gain more say in the plan's development and landfill operators less.

Membership requirements for the county's solid waste implementation committee must be changed to give communities more say in developing the plan, Conference of Western Wayne executive director Ann Bollin said.

The CWW represents all three cities as well as Canton, Plymouth and Redford townships.

Rejection by the 17-member CWW would crush efforts to adopt a countywide solid waste plan. Two-thirds of Wayne County's 43 communities must approve the plan for it to be enacted.

CWW members, however, say communities have too little say in developing and implementing the plan.

In the past, CWW members said, some solid waste committee members have been associated with various commercial solid waste operations.

"THOSE PEOPLE don't have our best interests at heart," said Westland Mayor Charles Griffin, CWW chairman.

Seek more delegates from cities, townships

"The people on that committee should be the people who were elected to represent the communities — they won't have any self-serving interests," Griffin said.

But one local solid waste committee member said industry professionals were welcome members with valuable input.

"We need their input to determine whether our ideas will work," said county commissioner Milton Mack, D-Wayne. "It's like trying to fix a plumbing problem without calling a plumber."

The state Legislature proposed having four of each county's 13-member solid waste planning committees selected from the ranks of industry pros, Mack said.

"I have no problems with that," Mack said. "Instead of focusing on the make-up of the committee, the conference of Western Wayne should be offering suggestions on how the plan should be implemented in western Wayne County. If they have a problem with the committee make up, they should really take that up with the Legislature."

CWW members will present solid waste committee members with a resolution calling for greater community representation, as well as other changes, Bollin said.

Among its recommendations, the CWW is asking the county to dissolve the present committee, and appoint a new 11-member group composed of two representatives from cities, townships; environmental/public health interests; and industrial/commercial waste generators; plus three representatives from intergovernmental entities.

The conference's resolution states, "No member may be actively involved in operating a solid waste facility."

CWW members acknowledge the last recommendation could prove controversial.

"MOST LIKELY they will debate us on that point," Bollin said.

Although the county plan seeks to reduce the dependency on landfills, a county report said additional landfills would still be necessary.

But the bulk of the county's existing and newly-proposed landfills are located in CWW member communities, prompting additional concerns.

CWW members want to ensure that no communities be required to host a landfill without an enforceable agreement between it and the landfill operator, another provision of their resolution.

CWW wants the county to be more specific about the levels of compensation for various types and sizes of landfills. It also wants an assurance that communities may join together to plan waste management reduction.

The plan provides an incentive for communities agreeing to host a landfill, by exempting them from filling an initial reduction plan, and engineering and financing plan to the committee for approval.

This exemption would enable communities to avoid the capital expenditures associated with developing incineration and recycling facilities, county officials maintain. Also, the plan says, compensation would be given.

The 20-year plan calls for reducing landfill waste by 55 percent, while increasing measures to incinerate, recycle and reuse remaining waste.

The new plan is an effort to better manage the county solid waste disposal system, since a 1983 plan saw no significant reduction in the number of landfills — the major concern with the waste system.

The county hopes to have the plan before all 43 Wayne County communities for approval early this fall, Bollin said.

Aging is topic of WSU forum

Wayne State University will hold its first annual "Summer Institute of Issues on Aging," July 18-22.

More than 250,000 adults age 65 and over live in Wayne County, a university spokesman said. The figure represents more than one-quarter of Michigan's senior citizen population.

The institute is designed to provide low-cost training for health and social service professionals from the nearly 2,000 agencies that serve seniors in the tri-county area.

The institute will be held at the McGregor Memorial Campus Center, Detroit. Registration begins 8:30 a.m. each day. Lectures and workshops will be held 9 a.m. to 4:15 p.m.

Programs on each of the five days focus on a specific aging issue. Abuse of the elderly, mental health and aging, lifestyle risks, health problems and family care and health policy are among the subjects to be addressed.

The Oscar-winning film, "Young at Heart," with commentary by film maker Sue Marx, will be presented 1 p.m., Friday, July 22.

Registration is $20 per day, $100 for the five-day institute. Reservations can be made through the WSU Institute of Gerontology, 577-2338.

Congress

Pollack's experience adds up

BOTH OF THE CANDIDATES who want to challenge incumbent U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, have a similar view of the world.

But when it comes down to who stands the best chance of challenging Pursell in November, Lana Pollack has the edge over Dean Baker.

So, we urge voters in the 2nd Congressional District to cast their ballot for Lana Pollack in the Democratic primary Tuesday, Aug. 2.

While both candidates agree on most of the major issues, Pollack has the experience and background to do a better job in Washington, D.C.

Representing this district, which includes Plymouth and Plymouth Township along with part of Livonia, won't be easy.

The 2nd district encompasses a wide geographical area from the University of Michigan to Jackson and farmland in Hillsdale County.

But Pollack has the ability to represent the district well. She is serving her second term in the Michigan Senate and has previously served on the Ann Arbor Board of Education.

THIS ELECTED experience and work for her constituents at the local level will serve her well if her campaign is successful.

This experience is what gives Pollack the edge over Baker, who recently earned a doctorate at the University of Michigan.

Baker has never won an elective office and had his chance two years ago when he lost to Pursell.

Pollack is well-versed on the issues and appears willing to fight for what she believes in.

Two aspects of her campaign are refreshing.

First, Pollack promotes her previous efforts in the state Senate at working with Republicans to pass legislation.

Willingness to work with colleagues from the other party is a fact of life and it is good to see this pragmatic view of the political world.

Secondly, Pollack has put care for the environment high on her list of national priorities.

THE CURRENT administration in Washington has placed the environment on the back burner even though poll after poll indicates residents want cleaner air and water.

And with concern about acid rain and the greenhouse effect, a candidate who has an environmental agenda is a definite plus.

However, we are a little concerned about the lack of specific proposals coming out of the Pollack camp concerning the budget deficit and how to reallocate money for education and retraining programs her campaign favors.

All of this should not take away from Baker. Both he and Pollack are clear on the issues and have a wide range of knowledge and ideas.

But when voters go to the polls Tuesday, Aug. 2, we urged them to support Lana Pollack in the 2nd Congressional District.

A spirited campaign in the fall will be good for the incumbent and residents of the district.

County jail tax

A step in the right direction

ANY SERIOUS effort to curtail crime in Wayne County must begin with an increase in jail space.

That is why we urge voters to support the proposed 1-mill tax increase for jails on the Tuesday, Aug. 2 primary election ballot.

It is clear that available jail space, enough for a mere 1,876 prisoners, is hardly enough to protect Wayne County's more than 2.3 million law-abiding citizens.

The 1-mill tax would go toward creating space for an additional 1,070 prisoners — this in a county where some 4,000 felons have been released early over the past two years to relieve crowded jail conditions.

Chief Wayne County Circuit Judge Richard Kaufman, the man in charge of prisoner releases, represented the voice of reason when he said: "The debate is do I want my property taxes to increase 1 mill or do I want to let Kaufman keep releasing about 1,800 felons a year."

RAISING TAXES is a costly, unpopular choice. But failing to increase jail space is unthinkable. And simply cramming more prisoners into existing jail space, the only other alternative, would prove a disaster.

Adding a third prisoner to county cells would only increase danger to jail guards and, ultimately, to the public at large. It is uncertain whether the Michigan Legislature would ever approve such a proposal. Nor is it likely the courts would.

But if it's clear more jail space is needed — and that "warehousing" prisoners isn't the way to go about it — it's also clear cinderblock and iron alone are not enough to make Wayne County streets safe for Wayne County citizens.

Wisely, the 10-year jail tax is drafted in such a way to allow it to cover operating costs once jail and youth space were constructed — erasing a grievous error in the county's 1976 jail tax.

Remaining money also could be used for a county work camp to house less-violent prisoners, including alimony slackers, welfare cheats and drunken drivers, whose disappearance — generally right before trial — is another vexing crime problem.

STEPS MUST also be taken to speed up dockets in Wayne County Circuit and Detroit Recorder's courtrooms. We urge all involved parties to continue to work together to do so.

Nor do we dismiss out-of-hand such future alternatives as greater use of plea bargaining by the county prosecutor's office, privately constructed and operated jails for misdemeanor offenders, or electronic at-home monitoring of non-dangerous criminals.

Likewise, we urge county officials to come together on a plan for overseeing jail construction. Both the county executive and sheriff have said they would assume responsibility and we would hate to see a squabble delay the much-needed construction.

Wayne County's crime problems are no different from those facing any heavily populated area. But they are serious, requiring not so much one solution as a series of long-term solutions.

The jail tax is only a step. But it is a step in the right direction. And it is one we encourage voters to take on Tuesday, Aug. 2.

Any serious effort to curtail crime in Wayne County must begin with an increase in jail space.

Suburbs learn to live with the new growth

THE DETROIT suburbs have forever changed. No longer are they merely tree-shaded havens for commuters. They have evolved into cities with economic might.

Traditionalists will object. But the suburbs are experiencing one of their most exciting times.

A recent article in "The Detroit" magazine outlines the fascinating facts behind an economic explosion sweeping through the area.

Business within the metro area is expressing its confidence by expanding facilities. Other businesses have politely tipped their hats to other more popular cities, packed their bags and moved here to suburban Detroit.

Hayman Co. vice president Joel Feldman puts it this way:

"Because Greater Detroit has one of the highest occupancy rates, one of the lowest rental rates for office buildings and set new construction and space absorption records, the area has attracted nationwide interest."

The Hayman Co. recent study shows that Southfield and Troy remain the suburban pace setters when it comes to office space. But the once highly-touted "bedroom communities" of Livonia and Farmington Hills are coming on strong in new construction.

Let's take a look.

The big break for Livonia came with the construction of the I-275 expressway.

The Detroit suburbs have forever changed. No longer are they merely tree-shaded havens for commuters. They have evolved into cities with economic might.

Steve Barnaby

Hills experienced its best year in 1987.

Yet to come is the 24-acre, $44 million development which will include three office buildings and a 140-room hotel at Orchard Lake and I-696.

For the fourth consecutive year Troy led all other Michigan cities in the office leasing sweepstakes. Several major office complexes also were constructed in that city including the 65-acre, 900,000-square-foot Timberland Office Park and the 300,000-square-foot Liberty Center.

A crowning achievement was the lease signed by Electronic Data Systems for space in the Northfield Hills Corporate Center.

And while Southfield maintains an 85-percent occupancy rate for its 18-million-square-foot inventory, competition is creeping in from such unsuspecting sources as once lowly Royal Oak where they are planning for as much as $400 million in new development along the newly-constructed portion of I-696.

Now, about Novi...

Students had a good time

To the editor:

This is a letter to Sergi Kavalhuna, father of the young man who was involved in the unfortunate incident at the senior party. First let me say I am going on the Observer article of Monday, July 4.

The doors were indeed open, but the air conditioning had been turned off and that school was very hot indeed. However, when we entered, there were parents checking the door and when we left there also were parents at the door. So "someone was on patrol."

As for there being no adult present in the "auditorium" — it was the gym where they were dancing. There were close to 1,000 students at this party and that adds up to about 1,800 parents who should have been present during the night to chaperone that party.

At no time were there that many adults present, because parents just did not volunteer for this activity. And before you criticize the parents who did show up at this party, I assume that you and your wife donated at least five hours each that night and were there to do your part in being a chaperone.

If not, I really do not think you have the right to sue. This being the first incident in 18 years tells us that all in all this activity is something that can be considered safe.

Being a parent volunteer at this party (and I do have a full-time day-time job), serving on a committee and putting in many hours each month before June 12, showing up at 7 a.m. Saturday, June 11, and being there until 6:30 p.m. and then showing up again at 10:30 p.m. Sunday and staying until 3 a.m. Monday morning gives me the opportunity to say that these young persons had a wonderful time and at all times were just a group of great kids having a good time being together for the last time as a group.

And, in any altercation there has to be a starter and a finisher — in other words, there is two sides to every story.

C.E.T., Parent Volunteer, mother of a graduating senior, decoration committee member

24 students given chance

To the editor:

On behalf of all the students, staff and school administration, we would like to thank all the school and community organizations that contributed to our "scholarship" fund for the Summer Tutorial Program sponsored by Plymouth-Canton Community Education.

This five-week program provides children in grades kindergarten through eighth with small-group instruction in reading, writing and math.

In the past, many children were unable to participate because their parents could not afford the cost of this excellent program. However, thanks to contributions from West Middle School PTO, Bird Elementary PTO, Field Elementary PTO, Special Education Parents Group, the Educational Excellence Foundation/Plymouth-Canton Schools, Canton Rotary and Plymouth Optimist Club, we have been able to raise $1,350 and give 24 children a total of 34 classes free of charge.

This kind of response to the needs of all our children makes us very proud of our community and school-sponsored organizations. Our sincere thanks for your support.

Put brakes on car insurance

To the editor:

Michigan's largest auto insurance company is giving us alternatives: either pass proposed legislation that would restrict the rights of auto accident victims to recover non-economic damages or they will raise rates for bodily injury coverage by 20 percent.

They claim they have losses which justify the rate increase; however, the data they have presented to a house insurance subcommittee was based on reserves set up for eventual damages that might have to be paid, not on actual court decisions or payouts.

I agree with the position of Michigan Citizens Lobby urging a two-year moratorium be put on both insurance rate increases and legislative changes. Let this giant of the insurance industry prove by facts — not projection — it is suffering losses as a result of court decisions in favor of innocent victims of auto accidents.

A Michigan horse in the Michigan Mile?

J.V. (Sandy) Sanders, whose basic livelihood is manufacturing residential vacuum cleaners, hopes it's more than just someone else's dust he sweeps up Saturday.

The prize West Bloomfield Township resident is after is a victory by his horse, De Jeau, in the state's premier thoroughbred race, the $300,000 Michigan Mile (and one-eighth), at Ladbroke DRC in Livonia.

Sanders is board chairman and chief executive officer of Rexair, Inc., which produces vacuums in a plant at Cadillac but which has its executive offices in Troy. However, I sense that Sanders would rather talk about horses than how to clean carpets.

As owner of Sandera Farm on Hosner Road in the Metamora area, he is one of Michigan's best known breeders. The 6-year-old chestnut stallion De Jeau, which was bred at the farm with Private Thoughts the sire and Christie Deedle the dam, has turned out to be one of the top Michigan-breds of all time. Daddy and Mommy both were big winners for Sanders in their own racing days.

Only two Michigan-breds ever have won in the 39 previous runnings of the Michigan Mile. They were Thumbsucker in 1983 and Badwagon Harry in 1985.

To become the third, De Jeau

Fred DeLano

For De Jeau and its owner, the Michigan Mile may represent the right course for the right horse. If all goes well, $180,000 will be theirs.

must out-duel the horse considered by many to be the nation's No. 1 handicap thoroughbred of the season, the 4-year-old Lost Code, who was brought in from the east last week-end just for this one race.

How many others will take up the challenge is uncertain as this is being written. However, inasmuch as after the winning owner takes his 60 percent of the pot, 20 percent goes to second-, 11 to third-, six to fourth- and 3 percent to the fifth-place finisher, some other stables seem sure to take a stab.

In his most recent start, De Jeau went wire to wire on Independence Day to win the Michigan Breeders' Governor's Cup for the second time. Richard DePass was in the saddle, just as he will be Saturday, and it brought the stallion's 1988 record at DRG to three wins in four tries.

Besides victories at such ovals as Hialeah and other Florida tracks, De Jeau has won 15 of his 18 starts in four summers at Livonia. His complete racing record shows earnings of more than $400,000.

What I'm trying to say is that if there are "horses for courses," then this guy is it.

"He's fit and also has the advantage of knowing the track. But we also know that Lost Code is an outstanding horse and has run successfully over many different racing strips. With a week for workouts, he'll know the footing by race time."

There is little doubt but what Lost Code's national reputation will establish him as the favorite. Chances are De Jeau will be the public's second choice. But the Mile also has a history of being a graveyard for favorites and sometimes the long shots have a way of showing up on top. That's what makes horse racing.

Sanders disclosed an interesting personal tidbit when he mentioned how De Jeau was named. It happens that names for all three of the foals produced by Christie Deedle were chosen by Sandy's granddaughter, now 15, Christie Diane Sanders. The other two were King's Row and the filly Kashanti.

When I asked Sanders how many of the family and friends would be in the winner's circle for the traditional picture if De Jeau does capture the Mile, he laughed and answered, "I'd guess about 50."

That will be a cavalry charge by itself, but I won't get to see it. I'll already be in line at a parimutuel window waiting to cash my ticket on his horse. Maybe.

Something smelly about Illinois plea for water

OVER NIGHT, Big Jim Thompson turned himself from one of the flowerers of the Republican Party to a skunk.

Bypassing neighboring governors and the Canadians, the Illinois governor asked the federal government to divert water from the Great Lakes to the trickling Mississippi River because of the middle America drought.

Although the idea may have merit, Thompson's procedure was abominable.

Our Canadian neighbors need a certain flow in the Great Lakes for their hydroelectric power. Many cities take water from the Great Lakes and don't want their intake pipes exposed. Our friends the ducks and fish reproduce in the marshlands of the Great Lakes.

And our shipping industry needs 27 feet of water to carry full loads of taconite pellets, coal, limestone, grain and all those other goodies that couldn't be carried by rail or truck.

Big Jim should ask those folks first before going directly to Uncle Sam.

Michigan's Gov. Jim Blanchard and our U.S. senators are killing Thompson on this issue. If Big Jim had any dreams of being No. 2 on the George Bush ticket, he can forget 'em.

TO THE CASUAL globe gazer, the Great Lakes look like a big pot of water that can be dipped into quite readily. Not so.

The Great Lakes have a tiny drainage area. They have 95,000 square miles of surface and drain only about 200,000 square miles of land.

I'm looking at a map by the International Great Lakes Levels Board. Except for the state of Michigan, the average extent of their drainage basin is about 50 miles. At Chicago and Milwaukee, you need to go inland only a few miles before you're in the Mississippi River watershed.

Canada's Department of the Environment publishes a nifty little pamphlet about the Great Lakes which shows where their water comes from. For every lake except Ontario, precipitation is a more important source of water than inflowing streams.

Tim Richard

The Great Lakes drain about 200,000 square miles of land. The Mississippi drains 1.2 million square miles. Before diverting, let's look at how that water is being used.

In other words, most of the water in the Great Lakes Basin is in the lakes themselves. It drains little land.

THE MISSISSIPPI Basin is immense in comparison.

Remember, the Great Lakes drain about 200,000 square miles of land. The Mississippi drains six times as much — 1.2 million square miles. That includes the basins of the Missouri, Ohio and Upper Mississippi rivers.

The Mississippi basin stretches from the western Montana Rockies to the Appalachians. The water surplus from 31 states and two Canadian provinces swells its current," says Encyclopedia Americana.

The Great Lakes, from Duluth to the headwaters of the St. Lawrence River, extend 1,160 miles. The Missouri-Mississippi connection alone is 4,000 miles long — comparable to the Nile.

WE NOW approach the heart of the question: What are the authorities in that 1.2 million square miles of Mississippi Basin doing with the water they already have?

The Mississippi River Commission was appointed by Congress in 1879 and has dipped frequently into the federal coffers for flood control and navigation aids. There's a giant dam on the Missouri at Fort Peck, and the Tennessee River tributary has more than a score of dams. In fact, the system has so many dams that I can't find a tally of them.

Great Lakes levels are difficult to control. Albert G. Ballert, director of research for the Great Lakes Commission, taught a course on the lakes in which he summarized it beautifully: "The Great Lakes are like a bathtub drained with a soda straw."

Thompson's diversion idea, far from being new, is an old one known as the "Chicago steal." It took U.S. Supreme Court rulings to limit the outflow from Lake Michigan.

Once Thompson and other Midwestern officials have answered the question of what they're doing with the water they've already impounded, then maybe we can do some calculations about how much Great Lakes water can be sacrificed to the Mississippi basin — and whether it will do any good.

Infertility Research and Treatment

How much help will you need to fill these shoes?

A couple trying to overcome a serious fertility problem has basically two options. Seek help from a small fertility clinic associated with a general hospital (a few of these actually attempt fairly advanced procedures like in vitro fertilization). Or choose the Hutzel Fertility Center. The difference is dramatic.

Hutzel's program is medical center- and university-based, encompassing both treatment and research. Unlike general hospitals that mostly apply established technology, a comprehensive clinical and research center like Hutzel actually pioneers and develops new techniques.

Hutzel's century-long leadership in the reproductive sciences includes Michigan's first in vitro fertilization babies, the newest techniques of egg retrieval, and, to date, Michigan's first and only embryo freezing capabilities (which contribute significantly to reducing the risk of multiple births). Hutzel has also pioneered the concept of treating couples rather than individuals. This helps avoid unnecessary delays, expenses and frustration.

Hutzel's extra research and clinical dimension means more hope, every day, for patients with the most complex problems. And, because Hutzel's care costs no more, even couples with less serious problems can afford the extra peace of mind that comes with the Hutzel program.

Infertility programs often require considerable economic and emotional investment by couples. To make the most of that investment, call the Hutzel Fertility Center for more information.

Kids enjoy tales told

By Mary Rodrique

Their motto: anything that gets young people to read good books and stories is a good idea.

So Crossroads Productions, a storytelling troupe specializing in animated expressions and a trunkload of props, came to the Canton library Thursday afternoon to spread that message.

Their audience was a spellbound group of grade school age boys and girls, who escaped the afternoon heat to hear the "Not So Grimm Brothers and Their Sister" tell a variety of tales in spritely fashion.

"It's part of our summer reading club open to all first through eighth graders," said Sheryl Mase-Brookens, children's librarian.

"It's a self-directed motivational reading program for kids but offering incentives, such as a certificate after they've read five books and prizes, like paperback books."

One-hundred-fifty children registered for the program, she said.

About 100 children, mostly first through sixth graders, sat crosslegged on the meeting room floor in the Canton municipal building to hear the short stories, like "The Frog Prince."

That one in particular elicited squeals and giggles at the sight of a 250-pound frog hopping around.

Museum displays ivory and dishes

By Mary Rodrique
staff writer

The colorful combinations, leafy and flowery designs and grainy texture are the traits that give Majolica earthenware its distinctive look.

"You can spot Majolica a mile off; the colorful combinations are fantastic," said Barbara Saunders, director of the Plymouth Historical Museum.

The museum begins a special exhibit of Majolica dishware this month. It will continue through September along with a contemporary display of ivory pieces — part of the museum's permanent collection, which is displayed periodically.

Saunders described Majolica as earthenware with relief decorations under a color glaze. With its beginnings in 1850s England, it enjoyed popularity, then obscurity to the point where "you probably couldn't give it away," to a current revival. Like any other style, its popularity comes and goes, Saunders noted.

"You start with a cane-colored dish dipped in tin enamel glaze, then decorated with clear glaze colored with metallic oxide," said Saunders. "You'd never be able to reproduce it today because of the poisons."

THE MUSEUM'S collection comes from its members. "If a piece were to be reproduced today, it wouldn't be to such great detail," she said.

They are mostly odd pieces — luncheon plates, bowls, pitchers and pedestal dishes. It would be unlikely to find a complete set of Majolica dinnerware, according to Saunders.

"They're decorative enough to jazz up a table," she said.

The museum display includes 20 pieces, including a pitcher with lavender interior and rough-hewn evergreen tree prints on the base and handle. It's not unusual to find touches of a half-dozen colors in a single piece. Such is the case with a tiny candy dish shaped like a curled pink leaf with traces of yellow, green, orange and a hint of blue.

"To see the color together is most important," Saunders said. "When you see it together, it doesn't look bad."

A PEDESTAL DISH has herons with long sloped necks at its base that gives way to a bright green plate shaped like lily pads surrounding a flower.

An autumn leaf lunch plate features green leaves, red tinged and brown.

There are heavy textured grapes on small plates. Pink flowers on a creamer are surrounded by green leaves — all on a motif resembling an old-fashioned barrel.

Strikingly different because of its lack of color — yet nonetheless beautiful — is the ivory exhibit.

The collection was donated years ago by James Davenport, a local man who collected the figurines, over a lifetime, with his wife. Many of the goods were shipped from a relative in China.

"The collection was given to us but it hasn't been out for a year or two," said Saunders.

"The pieces are nicely done, but they're not rare," she said.

INCLUDED ARE a fisherman, a herd of elephants, hand fans with intricate detail, earrings and other jewelry, letter openers, ships, pagodas and a statue of the Virgin Mary. There are about 30 pieces, all produced in the 20th century. They are particularly striking against a black velvet background.

Both exhibits will run concurrently through the end of the Plymouth Fall Festival in September. Museum hours are Thursday, Saturday and Sunday 1-4 p.m.

Admission is $1 for adults, 50 cents for children 12 to 17 years of age, and 25 cents for children 5-11.

The museum is at 155 S. Main St. at Church. It is operated by the Plymouth Historical Society, which counts almost 400 members.

First Step has come a long way

First Step gives kids, moms new peace, life

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Judy Ellis looked out the window of the new domestic violence shelter. A small boy, who came with his mother, was playing happily in a sandbox.

All the hassle of finding a building, raising money and getting furniture were suddenly all worthwhile. The executive director of First Step realized then what the new shelter was all about.

The day before that same boy probably lived in terror, witnessing his mother repeatedly being beaten. This day, though, the boy drove his toy truck through the sand. He was at peace.

THE SHELTER, which opened in April, has a 40-bed capacity. But more important, it provides both a secure and serene environment for victims of domestic violence.

The new shelter is an ideal facility, according to Judy Ellis, First Step executive director.

Tucked in a wooded area, the shelter offers battered women and their children a chance to get their lives together.

"The building is ideally suited for families," Ellis said. "People will have more privacy. You're away from the feeling of chaos."

A family has their own room at the new shelter. At the previous shelter, it was a dormitory setting with everyone in one room.

The new shelter cost $330,000. So far, First Step has raised $225,000 toward paying it off. What the price tag doesn't cover are the contributions of civic organizations and church groups.

For instance, the Garden City Kiwanis built the sandbox along with a play area for children in the backyard of the shelter.

THE SHELTER marks one of many accomplishments in First Step's short, but highly productive 10-year history. The task force was started in January 1978 by a group of professionals concerned about the growing problem of domestic violence.

Since it opened in January 1978, First Step has helped more than 10,000 families in western Wayne County. Last year alone, the agency helped 2,000 families — a 30-percent increase from the previous year.

A 24-hour crisis line, individual counseling, child care and transportation are only some of the support services provided by First Step. More important, the agency has been able to help change some attitudes about spouse abuse.

"There was a philosophy of what happens behind closed doors is nobody's business," Ellis said. "With the support of the community, we're beginning to change some people's minds."

MANY HAVE answered the call. Along with the equivalent of 14 full-time paid staff are some 120 volunteers.

They all come from diverse backgrounds. Some have professional careers, others are homemakers. Yet they all have taken the issue of violence against women and children to heart.

Volunteers do such things as handle crisis lines, transport battered women from police stations to the shelter and assist in fund raising. They hear the stories, often the same ones involving domestic violence.

USUALLY, THEY involve alcohol or there's a history of abuse in the family.

"It's like it's your sister, you really want to help them," said Liz Dougherty of Livonia, who has been a volunteer at First Step for more than two years. "Sometimes you want to take them by the hand and take them home. But you can't."

Volunteers are trained to be empathic, not to become personally involved. Each person goes through extensive training.

Most volunteers read about First Step or hear about it from a friend.

Since an estimated one out of three women are victims of violence, many know of someone who has been beaten.

Once they join, they become fully immersed in helping to end the cycle of domestic violence.

Judy Ellis knows. She started at First Step as a volunteer herself in 1981.

WHEN ELLIS started, there were only three volunteers. The agency didn't have a copier or even its own phone system.

In the meantime, First Step has a copier and its own phone system. Along with the new shelter, the agency has a satellite branch in the downriver area.

First Step receives federal and state funding along with aid from the communities it serves. The United Foundation and the Plymouth

Kids enjoy summer reading

The kids were invited to ask questions after the 45-minute session. And that they did.

How do you become actors? You study in school. How did they come up with the name Crossroads. They were stuck over what to call themselves. Are they really brothers and sister? No. Do they travel all over the country? No, just Michigan, including the Upper Peninsula, and towns along the Ohio and Indiana borders.

Upcoming reading club special events include an afternoon of mime, dance and drama with Patricia Judd, magician Daryl Hurst, and a grand finale concert.

Plymouth's Dunning Hough library has a similar summer reading program for children.

"We try to encourage children to keep up their level of reading during summer," said Ram Rawlinson, head of the children's library section.

Four-hundred grade school children are enrolled in the Plymouth library program and an additional 200 in a preschool "read to me" program.

The Plymouth club meets for special events on Tuesday afternoons.

NEARLY 14 percent of First Step's funding comes from donations and contributions from the public. Community involvement in this area has been tremendous, Ellis said.

Dougherty found that out recently collecting donations from local party stores for the reception at the ground breaking of the new shelter.

"Those who did know us were happy to contribute," Dougherty said. "The ones who didn't know us wanted to hear more. Some even wanted to know how to become volunteers." Credit for that, many say, goes to Ellis. She often can be found speaking before civic groups like the Rotary or Kiwanis, making people aware of the plight of battered women.

The paint on the new shelter is barely dry, but Ellis talks of new goals. One is establishing a program for children who are in homes of domestic violence.

"It's imperative when trying to stop the cycle of violence we begin at the level of children," she said. "What children see, they emulate."

Women bishops are still an issue

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

The General Convention of the Episcopal Church concluded Monday in Detroit. And everyone left happy.

Or, so it would seem. A number of resolutions were approved. The House of Bishops reaffirmed a woman's legal right to abortion. But added it still opposed abortion as a means of birth control, family planning or sex selection.

The bishops shot down a statement condemning homosexual activity, instead opting for a general statement on traditional morality.

Also, a plan by the Diocese of Michigan to spend $24 million during a six-year period to help poor people buy land and start businesses was approved.

"It's the typical Anglican conference," said the Rev. Michael Bedford, rector at St. Elizabeth Episcopal Church in Redford Township. "Standing on one's tippy-toes without falling on either side of the fence."

Yet the issue of women bishops remains a source of debate within the Episcopal Church. In 1976, the church approved the ordination of women as deacons, priests and bishops.

AT THE Detroit conference, it was decided parishes that don't want a woman bishop can ask for a male bishop. Bishops visit parishes to do ritual functions such as confirmations and ordination of priests and deacons.

Currently, there are no women bishops. The Rev. Helen Havens was recently nominated to fill the bishop post for Diocese of Michigan. The Rev. Raymond Stewart Wood Jr. was eventually named to the position.

The nomination of Havens, though, sparked considerable controversy. The resolution for parishes to have a visiting bishop is seen as a move to placate the traditionalists in the church who against women bishops.

"What it does is that it gives those of us who are dumb enough not to accept women bishops nine years to adjust their thinking," Bedford said.

Bedford, like many traditionalists, believes approving the ordination of women bishops was premature. The 2.7-million member Episcopal Church in the United States is an autonomous part of the worldwide Anglican Communion. The Anglican Communion has yet to adopt such a resolution.

"Now here's the U.S. church saying it's OK to have women bishops when the rest of the Anglican Communion hasn't even caught up with the issue of women priests," Bedford said. "It's not a women's rights issue. It's not a justice issue. It's a theological issue." Bedford cites Timothy 13:1-7 to echo his point.

The Rev. Margaret Silk Young, assistant rector at St. John's Episcopal Church in Plymouth, doesn't agree.

"I DON'T THINK (the church) is getting ahead of itself," said Young, who has been assistant rector for six months at St. John Church. "Change is a slow process."

"Do you hold back just because someone else isn't where you are? That's a difficult question."

Young points to the churches in the Anglican Communion that do ordain women to the clergy, such as Canada. And, recently, the Archbishop of Canterbury said he would support the ordination of women in the church.

She said she's been well-received at St. John Episcopal Church. She eventually would like to become a rector at a church. But some obstacles remain.

"I know if there's an equally qualified male and an equally qualified female going for the same position, the male will probably get it," she said. "That hurts, but it's reality."

moral perspectives

Our optimism colors our look at reality

People want a president who will tell them good news. We do not want to hear about our problems. If either George Bush or Michael Dukakis tells about the troubles we face, their chance of being elected diminishes. Americans want to hear optimism.

A reporter who has followed the candidates for the past six months says what people want is optimism. In fact, he finds our nation to be quite pessimistic. "Americans are afraid," Richard Reeves said. "They are afraid that they will lose out in a lean and very mean America."

It has only been 12 years since we celebrated our bicentennial. In those 12 years, we have realized what Vietnam meant, experienced the Beirut bombing, the hostages in Iran, the Iran-Contra affair, Panama, Central America, the Pentagon scandals, trade deficits, a growing national debt and recent shooting down of an Iranian airliner.

From a religious standpoint there is nothing wrong about America becoming more lean. There is something wrong about becoming more fearful and mean.

Is America crumbling? Are we another nation whose greatness is past? What would people of faith say to these things?

THE PROPHETS of old also loved their country. They, however, did not seek for a way to save their nation. Rather, they asked the people to seek God's will in the midst of their difficulties.

Because of their troubles, the people thought that God had deserted them. The prophets said no. God is truly closest to us when we are in trouble. God is near, the prophets said, because God is merciful. God is near both in judgment and in mercy.

Some conservative Christians believe that the present problems call for a government run by the Bible. They would save America by making it into a totally Christian nation. Evidence for this view was seen in the fervent support for Pat Robertson for president.

What would result is a nation in conflict, like Israel today. It would be a nation that would not compromise, bend or acknowledge diversity. Would we want to be in the shoes of Israel today? Would we want a fundamentalist approach that gives no room for debate?

In times of difficulty the prophet Hosea said that what God wants is mercy. Mercy is at the center of our relationship with God. It seems that we only learn this when we are facing trouble.

The Biblical scholar, G. Ernest Wright observes that every change, trouble, disorder opened a new religious question in the Bible. Pain is a message to seek mercy. It takes us directly to the heart of God.

AMERICANS do not want to hear that our pollution is affecting the weather and the health of all. We do not want to face the fact that we cannot spend more than we earn. We do not want to hear G. Ernest Wright observe, "Man cannot thrive in the prosperity he constantly seeks."

We need leaders who will help us face reality. We need hope but not blind optimism. Above all, we need to return to the basic concepts of mercy and justice. In doing so we draw close to God and God draws close to us. In this we look for God's blessing.

The Rev. David Strong is pastor at St. Matthew United Methodist Church in Livonia.

Any food, improperly handled, can sicken you

Q. What foods pose the biggest threat of food poisoning?

A. Any food that is improperly handled is a potential source of food-borne illness.

Some foods — such as tuna, potato or macaroni salad, egg products and meat and dairy items — have always been associated with food poisoning or illness.

But because bacterial microorganisms can be transferred from one food to another in a variety of ways, this "cross-contamination" effect means that any food can become a source of food poisoning.

The FDA estimates that 21 to 81 million cases of diarrhea are caused by food-borne microorganisms yearly. Among the microorganisms that bother us, bacteria are the main culprits.

BACTERIA are everywhere. The human body contains 150 types of bacteria that number in the 100,000 billion. They outnumber body cells by 10 to one.

Only a small number of bacteria are harmful. Unfortunately, all harmful ones are tasteless, odorless and colorless. That makes relying on our senses for protection difficult at best.

To protect your food and, ultimately, yourself from bacteria contamination, here are some suggestions to follow:

SHOPPING:

Don't buy foods in dented, rusty, bulging or leaking cans, or in cracked jars or jars with loose or bulging lids.

Get refrigerated and frozen food items home from the store and into the refrigerator as quickly as possible.

EQUIPMENT:

Cross-contamination occurs most often when equipment is used without thorough washing between uses. All equipment and surfaces must start out clean and stay clean throughout meal preparation. This includes the food preparer - you.

Wash hands thoroughly before starting to handle any food. Repeat washings between handling of different foods, using the bathroom, or smoking.

Remove jewelry - particularly rings and bracelets - before starting to cook. These items can provide a good place for bacteria to accumulate.

Use clean utensils from the start, and wash with soapy water after each use. This includes cutting boards, knives, counter surfaces, even the automatic can opener blade.

Keep the refrigerator clean and occasionally check the temperatures of refrigerator and freezer. Make sure that neither the refrigerator nor freezer is packed so full that the air cannot circulate. Poor circulation causes the temperature to rise.

STORAGE:

The basic rule is keep cold foods cold and hot foods hot. The danger temperature range - the range in which bacteria and other microorganisms grow best - is 40 to 140 degrees F.

Store hot leftovers in small, shallow containers. This will speed up the cooling process and reduce the chances of bacteria growth.

REHEATING, THAWING:

To ensure that any harmful microorganisms in foods are destroyed, always reheat foods to at least 165 degrees F.

Thaw foods as quickly as possible. Never thaw foods at room temperature. Several ways to thaw foods include:

- In the refrigerator or in a bowl of ice water.
- Under cold, running water.
- Never use hot water.
- In a microwave oven.
- As part of the cooking process.

Livonian named women's econ club president

Charlotte Mahoney

By Philip A. Sherman
staff writer

Wayne County's greatest assets are developing industry and recreational resources, while its worst problem continues to be high crime rates, according to the new president of the Women's Economic Club of Southeastern Michigan.

"Michigan is realizing as a whole that its future rests in small businesses (many of which are small industrial companies)," said Charlotte Mahoney, who was elected to a one-year term June 22.

At least a third of the club's 1,300 members are small-business owners, Mahoney estimated.

"The climate is improving but we still need access to funds (to make) small-business startups easier," she said. "It's good doing business in Michigan, but it's bound to get better. It's got to get better."

THE WOMEN'S Economic Club was formed with 23 members in 1962. It is a non-profit organization dedicated "to serving the needs of business and professional leaders through networking and education programming," according to a club fact sheet.

Mahoney of Livonia said the club "tries not to take a stand" on issues such as casino gambling, but instead would prefer to offer a forum for speakers on both sides of the issue.

Recent speakers at club functions included Lee Iacocca, chairman, Chrysler Corp.; Roger Smith, General Motors Corp.; Connie Chung, NBC News; Martha Seger, governor of the Federal Reserve System; and Elizabeth Dole, former transportation secretary.

WHILE REMAINING neutral on issues in her position as club president, Mahoney, an economic development consultant for Detroit Edison, does have opinions about economic and safety issues in Wayne County.

While on leave from Detroit Edison for six months, Mahoney served on County Executive Edward McNamara's economic task force to assemble his economic development program.

"Bringing the budget back into balance" is the most important thing the county needs to do, Mahoney said.

"I think it's a tough job. I think it's possible."

BESIDES THAT, she said the "crime and jail image" is the toughest thing with which the county has to deal.

"It's difficult to sell businesses on Wayne County when we hit number 1," she said, referring to a recent FBI survey that showed Detroit led the nation in homicides.

Mahoney supports building more jails even though she "hates to think of a need for them." But without them, "there's no incentive not to commit a crime."

"I hate to see putting criminals out on the street who have not served their full terms," she said.

IN TERMS of overall importance, Mahoney said the area's growing industrial base is complemented by recreational resources such as the Henry Ford Museum, which Mahoney said few people realize is in Wayne County. She also cited the Huron Metroparks system as an asset.

"I think we are moving ahead — it's being recognized more as a whole county than it's ever been," she said.

That compares with February 1987, when Mahoney said "we've talked with people from outside our area and they don't have any image of Wayne County — positive or negative. No one knows what Wayne County is."

Oakwood Hospital's Joyce Kozma checks the blood pressure of John Caito at Rockwood International in Troy.

Prevention: Cut health care costs on job site

By Philip A. Sherman
staff writer

As a participant in the Health in Business Program at Rockwell International Corp. in Troy, Bill Long was having his blood pressure taken, on site, by Tish McKee, an occupational health safety nurse.

"I looked into Tish's eyes when she took them (the readings) the first time and I knew there was something wrong," said Long, manager of the safety engineering department. At the time he weighed 220 pounds and had no history of hypertension. "But when they talk about the silent killer, they talk right."

"The readings blew the gauge right apart," Long said. "I have no idea what would have happened had I not been in that seminar."

Three years later, Long, 62, now weighs 183, is on hypertension medication and has modified his diet. He credits his continued good health to the Health in Business Program originating at Oakwood Hospital in Dearborn.

McKee, manager of the hospital's Health in Business Worksite Health and Safety Services department, said the program started in November 1984 with "more than $1 million" in grant money from the Southeastern Michigan Program for Affordable Health Care.

"They (grant administrators) were told to divide (the money among) study projects they thought would reduce the cost of health care, but without diminishing quality. Oakwood was one of those selected for the project," McKee said.

OAKWOOD AIMED its resources at driving down health care costs for smaller businesses (less than 1,000 employees) by offering those businesses an advantage traditionally found at large companies such as Ford Motor and Detroit Edison — an on-site nurse.

"It's cheaper to treat employees on site than send them out somewhere," McKee said.

Ten businesses, including Rockwell, Groves Manufacturing Co. in Troy and the Philip R. Seaver Title Co. in Bloomfield Hills, participated in the program, which ran through October 1987.

During the grant period, each company received the free services of an occupational health safety nurse in exchange for data showing how much the businesses saved on health care costs, McKee said.

Results were measured through employee questionnaires and company records, McKee said. Overall, she said the companies' health care savings greatly increased. One test company with annual workers compensation costs of $126,891 cut those costs to $10,767 annually after participating in the three-year program, according to a hospital report.

NOW THAT the program is over, Oakwood, like several other area hospitals, is going public and marketing its services to area businesses, McKee said. Her department just hired its fifth occupational health safety nurse, who is available for on-site duty.

It costs $42 per hour to bring an Oakwood nurse on site, McKee said. She said a company such as Rockwell has a nurse available for employees twice a week.

For that hourly fee, nurses provide health screening services such as blood pressure readings; weight, nutrition and diet information; cholesterol checks with immediate results; a variety of specialized clinics, such as stop-smoking seminars; and, perhaps most important, easy access for an employee to talk with a health care professional, McKee said.

"We get so many questions regarding not only (the employees) themselves but about family members," McKee said.

Doubt surrounds tax-reform effort

By Philip A. Sherman
staff writer

A proposal to repeal Michigan's value-added Single Business Tax and replace it with a flat tax linked to a company's profit margin is receiving mixed reviews from area business leaders.

Some think the proposal, similar versions of which were called for almost simultaneously in May by Gov. James Blanchard and state Sen. Norm Shinkle, R-Lambertville, will relieve some of the tax burden on small businesses. Others think the proposal is little more than a means of getting successful businesses to support their less successful counterparts.

Both the Democratic and Republican versions of the repeal are in the House Taxation Committee. The committee has no meetings scheduled this summer, which means neither proposal will be considered until the fall session.

BASICALLY, THE proposals support repealing the Single Business Tax and replacing it with a flat tax on profits for businesses with less than $7 million in annual gross receipts.

Currently, companies in that category pay taxes under a complicated formula approved when the plan was enacted during the Milliken administration. Opponents of the Single Business Tax say it stifles small-business development.

That's because the tax, the only one of its kind nationwide, places a "value-added" tax on a product as it passes through each stage of development and at the time it's bought by a consumer. The 2.35-percent tax rate is applied to payroll, depreciation and profits.

For example, a small business may be discouraged from increasing its staff because under the Single Business Tax plan, its tax obligation would grow with that additional employee.

THE REPEAL proposals would replace this plan with a flat rate instead of a value-added system. The rate has not been determined; estimates from Blanchard's office range from 3.5 percent to 7.4 percent for businesses with between $40,000 and $6 million in gross receipts.

"It almost seems the governor is trying to lowball people into supporting this," said Richard Headlee, president of the Alexander Hamilton Insurance Co. in Farmington Hills.

"I'm a great proponent of the value-added tax . . . you don't pay it until you buy something," Headlee said.

He would like to see a value-added system nationwide, he said.

"To subsidize businesses that are failing anyway, you're really just putting off the inevitable. You shouldn't penalize the successful business," Headlee said. "In the long run, if a business isn't strong enough to pay for services it requires from the government, then it will fail anyway."

JEAN PALUZZI, an officer of the Small Business Association of Michigan and president of JGP Marketing Group International in Livonia, thinks the "proposed revision addresses a serious imbalance."

Prevention cuts costs on job site

Nurses also use the time to schedule talks with employees, monitor their individual programs and motivate them. Nurses do not rotate among client companies, so the same person gains a familiarity with the employees and company programs, McKee said.

HOSPITALS PRICE similar products differently. Botsford, in Farmington, has a per-participant charge of $15-$30 for on-site care, according to Susan Perry-Nolte, director of marketing and sales support for the hospital's Health Development Network. Perry-Nolte bills the network as a "total wellness provider."

The network plan includes a needs assessment, written or verbal interviews; education, such as workshops to manage blood pressure; and follow-up screenings, she said.

"Businesses can choose all or any one of these steps," Perry-Nolte said.

Rochester's Crittenton Hospital has a similar program under the name Healthbeat; it charges for services by the series, which can range from $10-$90, according to Carol Beckett, department director.

"But I encourage businesses to work with employees," she said about program payment.

A typical breakdown might see a company paying two-thirds of a program's cost with employees paying the remainder, she said.

"It doesn't make sense for smaller businesses that don't make that kind of money to pay those kinds of taxes. Particularly in start-up years, those taxes can be burdensome," Paluzzi said.

"We think they both have merit," said Jill Pollock, another Small Business Association officer and principal of the Arbor Consulting Group in Plymouth. "We'd just like to see them get together."

OAKLAND COUNTY commissioner Larry Pernick said like all citizens, he'd rather not pay any taxes. Pernick runs an independent insurance agency.

He said he sees merit in the Single Business Tax and "would like to stay with it, but make it a little fairer."

"It's simplified and at the same time fair and progressive. If there's a burden to pay, we are all willing to pay our share," he said.

High tech sounds death knell for junkers

Durability may not be everyone's automotive aphrodisiac, but several times I found myself paying cash for a vehicle with so many miles on the odometer that I could watch it blank out like Little Orphan Annie's eyes on the second roll around the clock, with me hoping that good cars, like fine wines, improve with age.

Or at least keep running. In fact, with today's marketing strategists aiming new cars at the upper 10 percent of the American economy, the vast majority will never buy a new car, and instead will wistfully load up on cans of new-car aerosol scent at Murray's Discount Auto Stores before heading off to buy a new set of tires.

One who recognized this was Freddie Bishop, a friend of mine who once ran a junkyard in Inkster. Freddie worked under a marketing strategy that included keeping an eye out for some kid lofting the carburetor from a slant-six Duster over the fence, whereby Freddie ambled outside and intercepted the tight end of the operation, who by then was attempting an exit with the carburetor tucked underneath his arm.

"Nice catch," Freddie would say. "That's 26 bucks."

BUT FREDDIE'S junking days were numbered, as he found himself stuck with a growing mountain of cast-iron engine blocks in a scrap metal market shifting toward aluminum. It was the onset of technological change that hasn't quite reached the beaters — the serviceable old cars that keep at least as many people on wheels as new-car sales. But it will.

auto talk

You can't quite picture tearing out an electronic fuel injection system and tossing it over the fence to your buddy even if Freddie isn't watching. Engine control computers, antilock brakes, even airbags don't age gracefully or lend themselves to the kind of transplant operations carried out by Freddie and his customers who live in a world of cars with three-digit purchase prices.

It hasn't been widely noticed yet, but new technology applied to cars today has little chance of staying workable at the tail end of the average car's life. A whole host of new gadgets are either too sophisticated or too integrated into a car's basic design to be repairable at the corner garage, let alone salvageable from a car pushed in the front gate at Freddie's.

The net result is likely to be a gradual dwindling of "good old car" stock, accompanied by a rising desperation among people relying on patchwork cars for daily transportation. Extended-service intervals, even longer basic car life, don't really alter the equation — the trend today is a lengthy, relatively trouble-free period following the new-car purchase, then an expensive replacement of a "module," an operation that takes specialized equipment.

There was a glimmer of hope a few months ago when the folks at Chevrolet noticed that sophisticated car thieves were capable of installing whole electronic engine control computers so they could get away with a new Corvette. Car thieves are the best example of leading-edge, streetwise, trickle-down technology, but I still would treat this as an aberration.

Another development noted is that in the midst of the new models coming out in 1989 is a new Chrysler pickup truck with an industrial diesel engine rated to run 300,000 miles.

That's roughly 30 years worth of average driving, at least for the engine. It's also about three times as long as you would expect the truck itself to last.

It may be the last engine Freddie and his kin may be able to salvage to keep a good old truck going.

Dan McCosh is the automotive editor of Popular Science magazine.

4 stock-market 'sell signals' have guided investors

This is a repeat of a column that ran before. I feel this is an appropriate time to repeat the analysis.

Over the years, the pundits have developed many stock market sell signals, which have presumably worked for them.

Some of these signals are bizarre, like the length of women's skirts, sun spots and abnormal temperature changes.

Others are more mundane and sensible. Today, we will discuss four signals that appeal to me.

Discount rate vis-a-vis Treasury Bill rate

One of the best-known sell signals is the crossing over of the 90-day Treasury Bill rate over the Federal Reserve's discount rate. Both rates are regularly published in the local newspapers.

The Treasury Bill rate is the best indicator of the tightness or easiness prevailing in the current market, whereas the discount rate is the rate the Fed charges on the loans it makes to its member banks.

Whenever the Treasury Bill rate has risen above the discount rate, stock prices have declined on a monthly basis about 75 percent of the time.

The reason is simple: An increase in the short-term rates signals a tightening of credit conditions finances and you

which, in turn, harms the stock market.

Real corporate profits

Stock prices are a function of corporate profits. The higher the corporate earnings, the higher the potential for an increase in the related stock prices.

Real corporate profits are easy to track, since they are published every quarter by the Department of Commerce in the Wall Street Journal and "Business Week."

Tightening action by Fed

We know that a tightening action by the Fed lowers stock prices.

Three consecutive tightening actions generally signal the end of a bull market.

The tightening action may result from an increase in the discount rate, member bank reserve requirements, or stock market margin requirements. Whenever the Fed decides that inflation is too high or that the dollar needs strengthening, it takes tightening actions as a corrective measure.

Such a measure usually lowers corporate profits. Lower profits lead to lower stock prices.

Leading Indicators. A fall in this index precedes a bear market.

Obviously, it is important to keep a close track of this index.

Personal taxes

An impending increase in personal taxes generally lowers stock prices. Personal taxes have not been raised in recent years, but a cut in taxes less than anticipated also could lower stock prices.

Next week: tax laws

Some small business women are providing on-site day care

By Mary DiPaolo
special writer

For business owners who want their children near them while being cared for during working hours, the concept of on-site day care is one that is quickly catching on.

For many of these business owners, care is being provided by the parent(s) or employees on an ad hoc basis. To make this (and other) on-site day care arrangements mutually beneficial, there are planning factors to consider.

First, is the site being considered large enough to accommodate children without affecting the operation?

"OUR SALON is structured to easily care for our new baby," said Dawn Capaldi, co-owner of Je T'aime Salon in West Bloomfield.

"We have a large kitchen in the back as well as plenty of floor space in and around the reception area. Clients enjoy the baby and have commented on how nice it is to see how well she has adjusted to being in the salon when she's here."

A makeup artist, Capaldi provides

Mary DiPaolo

the majority of care for her baby, although she has several volunteers when things get busy.

"We're all like family here, so the baby has at least five other 'mothers' who keep an eye out for her."

ACCORDING TO the Office of Advocacy of the U.S. Small Business Administration, female business owners have been seeking a more "creative approach" in securing quality day care for their children.

"They understand both sides of the issue as mothers and business owners," said Carol Crockett from the SBA's Washington headquarters.

On-site care is one of several options available to business owners willing to pool their resources, said

Hazel Witte, assistant chief council at the Office of Advocacy.

"The concept of consortiums has been very popular and involves one or more businesses within a particular industry buying and building their own child care center."

IN THIS arrangement, the owners and employees may be approached by an outside organization to buy stock in a proposed center and become the primary shareholders and clients once the center is completed.

For more information on "Small Business Options for Child Care," call Witte at 1 (202) 634-6115 for a copy of the report's executive summary or Victor Rubin at 1 (415) 652-0999 for the full report.

Next week, we will discuss the home-based option for the new or existing business.

Musical hilarity

He sings of the 'fudgies,' raps about the Pistons

By Victor E. Swanson
special writer

YEARS AGO, when Edwin and Joan Riley of Birmingham were blessed with one of their sons, they couldn't have guessed in their wildest dreams he would grow up to write that famous song (sort of), which you might have heard recently while at Mackinac Island.

It's called "We Are the Fudgies" and is a tribute to the thousands and thousands who visit the world-famous resort island. But Shawn Riley did write it. He also grew up to be a local performer who has made a living entertaining people for nearly a decade.

When not on stage, Riley is really a rather laid-back person. During much of a recent interview at the offices of Uniglobe Travel Team in Southfield, where he works during the day, he sat back and often rocked back and forth in his chair. (He's a commercial sales representative for Uniglobe.)

Give him a guitar and an audience, and he's not necessarily so laid-back. That could be the reason management at Cobo Joe's, 422 Congress, Detroit, bills his act as "Outrageous Musical Hilarity."

It's a hard act to describe. Even Riley has difficulty describing it.

"I'VE NEVER really been able to say what I do," he said. "I always

'I don't want to see somebody up there that's really into themselves, self-centered, not worried about the audience. I want to know what the audience wants. And I think that's my strength.'

— Shawn Riley

tell people, 'It's a potpourri of everything.' It's a lot of oldies, some new stuff... a little bit of what Weird Al does, changing the lyrics to songs... some original songs."

Basically, here's what is important to him: "I put myself in the audience's seat," he said casually. "I don't want to see somebody up there that's really into themselves, self-centered, not worried about the audience. I want to know what the audience wants. And I think that's my strength."

"I play an Ovation six-string guitar, which is an acoustic electric, and I use a Roland drum machine."

He talked about his singing and guitar playing. "My voice isn't bad. They're a lot better out there, and there's a lot better guitarists." After struggling to find the right words, he said, "But I think the combination of everything is what — it might sound egotistical — but I think it's what makes me unique from a lot of other acts."

Oh, there is one more instrument he plays. With a smile, he said, "And then I play the 'lip trumpet,' which is just a trumpet noise I play with my mouth."

The music that he plays and sings comes from such artists as Crosby, Stills and Nash, Harry Chapin, James Taylor, Chuck Berry, Bill Haley, Del Shannon, Dion, Buddy Holly and Kenny Loggins. He plays hits of the '50s, '60s, '70s, and sometimes '80s.

SOME OF THE songs he performs are his own. One of his favorites is "Marathon Girl," which was written for his wife, Doreen. The idea of "marathon" comes from their second date, which lasted about 13 hours.

By the way, "We are the Fudgies" is really a takeoff on the song "We Are the World."

"A couple of weeks ago I had the 'Pistons' Rap" that I was doing down at the bar when they (the Detroit Pistons) were involved in the race for the championship."

Neither the rap song nor the song about the "Fudgies" has been recorded. Recording is something he'd like to do in the future. However, as he put it, "I don't want to write songs just to sell songs." Riley is happy doing what he's doing, on stage, mostly as a solo performer.

"Occasionally, I'll have other musicians sit in, a piano player, a bass player. That's rare. It's once every couple months."

More often he's likely to allow a member of the audience on stage with him. "I let anybody up there, unless they're really drunk. That's my only cutoff — if they're really drunk — because I've had people fall on my equipment and knock it over."

The reason for letting some people come up is simple. "Someone gave me a chance to do it 10 years ago, and now I'm making a living at it... so I feel if I can give somebody that same chance, even if it's just to 20 people, just a chance to get up there and do it... I really get a big kick out of it." He added, "But even if they're bad, it's fun to watch."

RILEY GOT his break when attending Central Michigan University, after graduating from Brother Rice High School in Bloomfield Township, in 1976. There was an open-mike night at a local bar. "I did it a couple times. And the guy hired me to do one night a week, and I was making $50 a night, which was great when you're at college."

At Brother Rice, he was in a '50s band. During grade-school years, he had taken lessons for violin, trombone, tuba and guitar. In the summer of 1980, he really got started as a performer by working at such places on Mackinac Island as Horn's Gaslight Bar.

Riley reflected on what his parents had thought about him taking on an entertainment career. "They weren't thrilled when I started. But now they're my biggest fans. I had to prove it to them that I could do it and prove it to myself that I could do it."

Riley will appear at Horn's Gaslight on Wednesday-Saturday, July 20-23, and Thursday-Sunday, Sept. 1-4.

Mostly, though, he entertains regularly at Cobo Joe's, as he has since late February. Usually, he's there Thursday-Saturday evenings.

"It's a lot of fun. When we get the crowds in, they'll stay the whole night... no cover charge, reasonably priced drinks, the coldest beer in town. They serve their beer in — instead of in coolers — it's in a 12-foot iced-down trough."

"At night the only problem is they don't have a full menu. They just have an appetizer menu at night."

Riley said, still leaning back in the chair, "God's given me a talent. And I'm going to keep performing as long as I can and as long as I enjoy it."

That's why Coleman's Residential Heating and Air Conditioning Division didn't have to look far for a namesake, when they built a new air conditioner with quality, efficiency and an affordable price.

The new Coleman® Cooler Air Conditioners* use advanced design and production techniques that give you a lower purchase price, simpler installation and faster service.

Tennis tourney

Chuck Bullock of Plymouth won his first two matches Saturday in the Third Annual Canton Singles Tennis Tournament, but another Plymouth contestant, Tony Spagnoli, stopped him in the third round of the boys 15-19 division. See Page 5D for tournament results.

At the crossroads

Gilles weighs her career options

SHE'LL ALWAYS have the records to be remembered by.

Most career wins in singles, All-Big Ten four straight years, the top winning percentage in doubles and a national ranking in doubles in her last season of competition.

All very impressive. And yet, such talk seems displaced, incongruous with the person in question. A listing of achievements should be prominently mentioned when one retires, and yet it always seems so odd talking about retirement to a 22-year-old.

But it is a stark reality, one that is currently confronting Chris Gilles.

Gilles has proven to be the premier women's tennis player in University of Wisconsin history. Her career singles victory total (97-55) and her 87.1 winning percentage this season at No. 1 doubles (a 27-4 record) are school records. She made the All-Big Ten first team in singles three times, once in doubles.

So now what?

IT SEEMS a cruel, cold question, one that ignores the past and is concerned only with the future. But it cuts directly to the heart — where does she go from here?

The professional tour is an obvious avenue, something Gilles is strongly considering. But not this summer.

major and a marketing minor, but still has 21 credits to complete for her degree — money is a problem. And traveling across the country in pursuit of a pro career can cost plenty.

"I'm not quitting," Gilles insisted from her Plymouth home Tuesday. "I'm practicing really hard, and when I go back to Wisconsin in the fall I'm going to keep working out with the team."

"I was all set to go (on the tour) this summer, but I didn't have a sponsor. And it's very expensive, every week, going from one place to another. If I did that, I would have to get a sponsor."

EVEN WITH a sponsor, life on the pro tour is hard. A relative novice like Gilles must start by accumulating computer points, which determine a player's ranking. The better her performance in a tournament, the more points awarded. And the higher her ranking, the higher her seeding in tournaments.

Success is hard to come by in the early stages, even for a past U.S. Open qualifier like Gilles.

Life on the road is nothing new to Gilles. She and sister Wendy, who's a year younger and has one season of eligibility remaining at Wisconsin, have been traveling from town to town, tournament to tournament, since before their high school days at Plymouth Salem.

"It seemed like we were gone every other week," Chris recalled. "This is the first summer I can remember staying at home. I'm enjoying it. I needed the break."

Chris is keeping "tournament sharp" by playing tournaments close to home.

On June 26, she beat Erica Adams, the No. 1 singles player at Purdue, in the finals of the PDQ Toledo Hardcourt Championships to claim a modest first prize. This weekend, she's entered in the Keating Brothers Outdoor Adult Open in Birmingham.

SHE'S ALSO teaching tennis at the Huron Valley Tennis Club in Ann Arbor. She needs the money to finish her schooling (her scholarship covers only tuition for her fifth year).

Chris is fully aware of the uncertainties of pro tennis and knows how valuable her degree could be. As important as being a success on the pro tour is, she has listed other career "options."

Michigan Mile dream matchup goes awry

By Brad Emons
staff writer

A dream matchup for Saturday's 40th running of the $300,000 Michigan Mile at Ladbroke DRC apparently has fallen through.

A duel between Lost Code, considered one of the country's hottest thoroughbreds, and Cutlass Reality, one of the west coast's top horses, will not come off.

In last week's National Thoroughbred poll, conducted by 45 media representatives from across the country, Lost Code was rated No. 2, while Cutlass Reality was ranked No. 8.

According to DRC officials, the New York-based owners of Cutlass Reality, a 6-year-old Californian, decided that it was not in the horse's best interest to be flown into Detroit on such late notice.

The dream matchup could have been Ladbroke's biggest coup since British-owned casino group took over the Livonia track five years ago.

Some last-minute maneuvering by State Racing Commission, at the request of Ladbroke DRC Vice-President and General Manager Michael Mackey, granted Cutlass Reality a late reprieve after being rebuked last week because he could not adhere to a "technicality" in Michigan rules.

IT APPEARED that Lost Code had no competition available for the Mile until Cutlass Reality was granted the waiver, which allows the use of lasix, an anti-bleeding medication.

Under Michigan law, lasix may be used if the horse bleeds in front of a state veterinarian.

California racing rules carry no such stipulation. The use of lasix does not have to be reported in front of a California state vet.

In effect, Cutlass Reality has bled only before private veterinarians in California.

Thus, the discrepancy in the two states' rules.

But on Tuesday, the Observer learned that Ladbroke officials huddled with officials at the Office of the State Racing Commissioner in Plymouth to work out a "waiver" plan for the California horse.

"We're equally as stringent, but if California thinks it's OK, we should be in compliance," said an official from the State Racing Commission.

"We're doing everything we can to take one last look at our rules. We would like to bring the best horses here, if possible."

With the rule revised, Cutlass Reality was eligible to be flown in, but, at the apparent urging of trainer Craig Lewis, the horse will stay at Hollywood Park (Calif.) and race in a $150,000 event there on Saturday.

Cutlass Reality, has captured two major Grade I starts in California, including the $500,000 Hollywood Gold Cup and the $250,000 Californian Stakes. His last two wins have come over the likes of Alysheba, Ferdinand and Gulch.

DRC FANS, however, will be in for a treat with the running of Lost Code, which is rated only behind Preakness and Belmont stakes winner Risen Star.

Because of the presence of Lost

Code, there were only 24 nominees, the lowest in the history of the Mile. Many ducked away from the 4-year-old, which has captured five of six outings in 1988, including a 7 1/4-length victory in the Massachusetts Handicap over Waquoit, which captured last year's Mile by a record 7 1/2 lengths.

Lost Code has racked up career earnings of $1.9 million. The colt also put the financially-troubled Donovan Family out of the red and comfortably back into the black.

Lost Code was groomed in Wendover Stables in Maryland and has Canton's Stipcak eager to challenge circuit stars

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

When the Ladies Pro Bowlers Tour stops at the Satellite Bowl in Dearborn Heights next week, it will be a homecoming for one touring pro and a unique opportunity for two area amateurs.

For Garden City's Aleta Sill, the all-time leading money winner among women pros, it marks a return to the area where she got her start before achieving professional fame.

For two of Michigan's top amateur bowlers, Cheryl Stipcak of Canton and Janet "Sam" Greaves of Rochester, the Michigan Classic offers the chance to match skills with the best.

The tournament kicks off Sunday with junior and adult pro-ams. Qualifying for the pro portion takes place Monday and Tuesday, and match play among the 24 survivors begins late Tuesday and continues Wednesday.

The tournament culminates with the nationally-televised (ESPN), step-ladder finals at 7 p.m. Thursday.

The 25-year-old Sill, who was in Washington, D.C., for a tournament earlier this week, won her first pro event at age 19, established a LPBT season record with earnings of $81,452 in 1984 and has won career prize money in excess of $300,000.

IF NOT THE best, Sill is "certainly the most successful" woman bowler Michigan has produced, according to Mark Voight, co-proprietor at the Satellite Bowl and tournament director.

"She's been more successful than anyone to come out on the tour," he said. "The fact she's so young and has done what she has just emphasizes her success."

Sill, already in her eighth year on the tour, has 12 career pro titles to her credit, has rolled seven 300 games and has achieved a high series of 815.

She was named Woman Bowler of the Year by the Bowling Writers of America in 1984 and has been an All-American several times. Her average is 215.

"She's a powerful bowler," Voight said, "but the most important thing about her game is that she's developed the mental concentration that you need when you're bowling under the gun in big tournaments."

"She's able to adjust to changing lane conditions. She has the ability to read those changes and adjust to them, probably as quick as anyone on the tour."

Though they have amateur status, bowlers like Stipcak and Greaves can compete with the touring pros. The difference usually lies in the fact amateurs haven't opted for the traveling lifestyle or made the financial commitment that is required of tour members.

"IF I WAS SINGLE, I'd be out there on the tour, but my family and home are more important," said the 33-year Stipcak, a self-described domestic engineer who has two young daughters to care for. "I look forward to it and just wish it would come closer to home more often."

Stipcak has been bowling for 24 years but only in recent years has entered pro events. She made the cut last year at the Satellite Bowl and in another pro tournament in Saginaw.

Stipcak, who averaged 212 and 208 in two winter leagues, won the Michigan State Queens championship and a first-place prize of $4,000 last year before dropping to seventh place this year.

The first time she competed in a big tournament like the Michigan Classic Stipcak was awed by the fact she was competing against the best in the country. With several tournaments behind her, she's more confident.

Doug Smith flips a shot past Spartans goalie Dave Cergunt for one of his four goals in the unbeaten-untied Bulldogs' 9-4 victory Monday in the Metro Summer Hockey League.

Huskies escape with MSHL tie

The Huskies remained unbeaten in the Metro Summer Hockey League, but two minutes stood between them and defeat Tuesday.

Craig Johnson saved the Huskies from that fate, however, as he scored the tying goal with 1:58 left in the game.

That enabled the Huskies, who lead the Eagle Conference with a 3-0-1 mark, to force a 2-2 draw with the Falcons, a team they had beaten 16-3 in the first week of the season.

Johnson was positioned alongside the Falcon net when his shot deflected off the goalie and squeezed inside of the goal. Joe Ahmet's second-period goal had tied the score at 1-1.

The Falcons took 1-0 and 2-1 leads on goals by Link Bessert and Michael Raymond.

LAKERS 6, WOLVERINES 1: The Lakers blew the game wide open with five second-period goals Monday.

David Ward tallied four goals and Dan Phelps four assists for the winners, who are 4-1 and half a game behind the Bulldogs in the Bakes Conference.

Dan Phelps denied the Lakes a shutout when he scored the Wolverines' lone goal with 49 seconds remaining in the third period.

BULLDOGS 9, SPARTANS 4: The first-place Bulldogs, the only unbeaten and untied team in the MSHL at 4-0, came from behind with four straight goals in the second period.

The Spartans held a 4-3 advantage with three minutes left in that period when the Bulldogs erupted.

Doug Smith, who had four goals, and Stash Pientack, who notched three goals and four assists, divided the goal scoring with two apiece in the second period.

Finnish native Tutu Mikkola got one goal and had three assists for the Spartans, and Tony Guzzo also registered three assists.

Pro bowlers visit state

"Now that I've been bowling against them, made the cut and won money, it's just another tournament," she said. "The others have an advantage over me because they bowl every day. I bowl three times a week."

"That's their living. I have a lot of fun at it, but I don't make my living that way. Anybody can make the cut, so that's why I'm out there."

AT ONE TIME, Stipeck might have considered turning pro, but those thoughts are hindsight. So she has no regrets.

"If I knew then what I do now about this game, a few years back I would have tried to make the tour," said Stipeck, adding her mental approach is much sharper and better developed. "I wasn't as serious about the game then."

"I averaged 200-plus this year, but until two years ago, giving it up to make the cut. It's what you do out on the lanes. I've become a much better bowler the last couple years."

Stipeck, who has been named to the All-City team and made the Queens Court the last two years, doesn't even think about winning a tournament of this magnitude before hand.

Her primary objective is to make the cut, which means surviving 18 qualifying games to become one of the top 24. That number is then reduced through match play, leaving five to compete in the step-ladder finals.

Greaves, who has bowled in the Classic the last four years, was determined to do so again despite a case of carpal-tunnel syndrome, an inflammation of the ligaments in her wrist that puts pressure on the nerve. She had been playing well the last three weeks after receiving a shot of cortisone, she said.

GREAVES CARRIED a pro card until two years ago, giving it up to regain her amateur status in hopes of making the U.S. Olympic team and taking advantage of more-lucrative amateur tournaments.

The 40-year-old Greaves didn't start bowling until she was 27, but she progressed to the point of carrying a 198 average this year. She was 25th and missed match play by 11 pins in the '84 Michigan Classic, her best showing.

"I wish I had come up as a junior bowler like a lot of those girls," she said. "But every time you begin to think you're doing poorly, you know there are a lot of women who wish they had a chance to enter (a pro event)."

Greaves credits Bill Srock Sr., proprietor of Northville Lanes in Rochester, for her becoming more than just an average bowler.

"My first average was 119," she said. "I remember that specifically, because it was the lowest in the league."

"He helped me make up my mind. He said: 'Do you want to be a 160 house bowler or something better?'"

been based at Monmouth Park in New Jersey.

The Donovans, who bought the club-footed horse for the bargain price of $30,000, had to borrow money to enter him in his first stakes race in Alabama, but the investment turned out to be a wise one.

Craig Perret, who won the Mile on Tom Tulle in 1974, will ride Lost Code. One of the leading riders in the country, Perret also rode Bet Twice, which lost by a head at the Preakness.

MILE OFFICIALS have conceded that Lost Code, son of former Preakness winner Codex, is the best to invade the Livonia track since Damascus in 1968.

Damascus, the top 3-year-old in 1967, was upset in the '68 Mile by Nodouble.

Elks 3rd in Legion tourney

The Plymouth-Canton Elks entertained the possibility of winning the Ypsilanti American Legion Tournament going into the final day Sunday, but a 12-9 loss to Grand Rapids dashed that hope.

The Elks finished third, with a 3-2 record, in the round-robin tournament behind Wayne, which defeated Grand Rapids later Sunday to finish with a 5-0 mark.

The Furniture City ballclub was second, losing only to Wayne, which is coached by Dr. Gerry Ebmeyer, formerly of Plymouth.

If the Elks had beaten Grand Rapids and the latter knocked off Wayne, all three teams would have been 4-1 and a tiebreaking formula based on total runs scored would have been used to decide the winner.

Plymouth-Canton got off to a good start in its final game as Tom Hill hit a two-run homer in the first inning. Ron Groh produced an RBI double, and Chris Kennedy's two-run double tied the game 5-5 in the fourth inning.

But Grand Rapids scored five runs in the next frame with the help of several Elks errors. Half of the winner's runs were unearned.

JEFF KUGELMAN was 2-for-3, which included a solo homer, for the Elks, and Mikio Tanaka and Kevin Learned had a double and a single each.

Kennedy, noted almost solely for his pitching but swinging an impressive bat in the game, suffered the loss after going five innings.

The tournament didn't have a favorable start for the Elks, who were the victim of Gene Boyce's no-hitter Friday in the opening game, a 5-0 loss to Wayne. Only three Plymouth-Canton batters reached base, two as the result of errors and one via the base-on-balls route.

After pulling through a four-run first inning and allowing a single run in the second, Kugelman settled down to pitch five scoreless innings for the Elks, 13-5 overall.

He was touched for six hits, didn't walk anybody and struck out three while pitching a complete game.

Later that day, the Elks defeated Ypsilanti 8-3 in a game that also counted in the Connie Mack standings. Plymouth-Canton stands at 11-3 in league play.

THE ELKS, HOWEVER, needed six runs in the top of the seventh inning for a come-from-behind effort that made a winner out of Dan Niemiec.

After catching five innings of the first game, Niemiec pitched all seven against Ypsilanti in the 101-degree heat. Niemiec scattered seven hits, walked two and struck out five.

Furthermore, he pitched an inning that night for Hines Park Lincoln Mercury in the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League.

Jeff Allen, Niemiec and Tanaka drove in two runs apiece during the team's seventh-inning rally.

The Elks improved their record to 3-1 on Saturday with back-to-back mercy wins over a pair of Windsor ballclubs.

In an 8-0 defeat of the Crazy Canucks, Allen went the distance in the shortened, five-inning contest. He allowed six hits and two walks, and he notched two strikeouts.

MIKE CULVER, THE hitting hero of the later game, also had the big hit in this one — a bases-loaded double.

Against the Windsor Canadians, Culver smashed two home runs to power Plymouth-Canton to a 15-5 victory.

Culver slammed a two-run shot in the fourth inning, and his three-run blast in the fifth put the Elks over the eight-run, mercy-rule limit.

Scott Browne, doing the reverse of Kennedy, continued to establish his pitching credentials in summer ball.

Browne was known as a hard-hitting outfielder when he played for Canton High School, but he now has three wins and two saves in two pitching appearances for the Elks.

Ruth all-stars miss qualifying for state

The Plymouth-Canton Babe Ruth All-Stars fell one game short of qualifying for the state tournament last weekend.

After losing its opening game in the district tournament at Plymouth Canton High School, the host team fought back only to run out of gas in the championship round, according to league spokesman Bob Ruete.

East Lansing-Okemos won the district crown and is one of eight teams that will advance to the state tournament July 22-27 at Lansing Waverly High School.

Jason Bregni led the Plymouth-Canton offense with seven hits in 12 at-bats and six runs batted in. Jason Crain was 5-for-11 and had five RBI, Frank Learned 5-for-13, Pat Mosher 4-for-7, Eddy Gundry and Kevin Gourieux 4-for-8 and Steve Aumann 4-for-9.

Other all-stars included Jeff Coleman, Ron Hutchinson, Eric Nielson, Charlie Apigian, Scott Kennedy, Don Williams and Tony Pappas. The team was coached by Gary Coleman and Roger Nielson.

"Our reputation speaks for itself"

Little Caesars continued to maintain its grip on first place in the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League, sweeping three games over the weekend at Ford Field.

The wins give Caesars an 18-3 record, three games up on second place Tom Holzer Ford of Farmington Hills (See league statistics.)

On Sunday, Caesars swept a double-header from Hines Park Lincoln-Mercury of Plymouth-Canton.

Rom Jamula fired a no-hitter in the opener, as Caesars scored an 11-0 win in a game shortened to five innings because of the 10-run mercy rule.

Jamula, who played high school baseball at Taylor Center, struck out five and allowed just four base runners (two walks and two hit-batsmen).

Offensively, Jeff Gorman, Derrick Dowling and Art George collected two hits apiece, sending former Westland John Glenn High ace Bill Barber to the showers for an early exit.

In the second game, Thurston High products George and Chris Kloc collected two hits each in a 6-5 triumph. George, who plays for the University of Evansville, tripled twice.

WINNING PITCHER Tony Yandura survived a two-run homer by Joe Bob Wenson (formerly of Farmington High) and a two-run homer by Tony Aiken.

Wenson, Aiken, Chris Sisler and Bob Files each collected two hits in a losing cause. Pitcher Mike Sulak took the loss.

On Friday, Gorman's three-run pinch-hit homer in the fifth inning carried Caesars to a 6-3 triumph over Wendy's of Ann Arbor. Shawn Uzarski added two hits in the victory.

Kloc, a right-hander, scattered seven hits over seven innings to pick up the win.

Timm Kobayashi and Mike Karunas each had two hits in a losing cause.

Meanwhile, Tom Holzer Ford had an equally productive weekend, sweeping three straight including a double-header Sunday against host Wendy's, 8-0 and 10-1. Holzer has now won nine straight.

Former North Farmington High ace Tom Cotter twirled the shutout in the opener. The Central Michigan University student tossed a three-hitter while fanning nine in upping his record to 3-2.

baseball

RICK TAVORMINA, a former Glenn standout now at the University of Detroit, paced the offense, going 3-for-4. Kevin Ritter and Keith Dutkiewicz added two hits apiece, while Andy Fairman drove in a pair of runs. Scott Peterson walked three times.

In the second game, pitcher Dan Hilliard allowed just three hits and walked only two in squaring his record at 2-2. Hilliard struck out eight.

Fairman belted his league-leading sixth homer of the year, a three-run shot in fifth. Ritter had a two-run homer, his fifth of the season, in the third. Steve Rudelic and Dutkiewicz added two hits apiece. Dutkiewicz also drove in two runs.

In a game Friday at Ford Field, Holzer Ford downed Walter's Appliance of Livonia, 9-2, as Eastern Michigan University signee Kevin Knoche scattered six hits, walked two and fanned six in gaining the win.

Offensively, Fairman, Tavormina, Ritter and Bob Tatro contributed two hits apiece. One of Fairman's hits was a two-run homer.

Tavormina, a shortstop, collected three RBI while Fairman added two.

KEN GENDJAR drove in both runs from Walter's, including a solo homer in the seventh.

David Houghtby was the losing pitcher. Walter's bounced back on Sunday at Ford Field, sweeping a twin bill from South Lyon Livonia, 11-1 and 2-1.

In the nightcap outfielder Mike Rudin (formerly of North Farmington High) preserved the victory by gunning down the potential tying run at the plate in the top of the seventh.

Rudin then knocked in game-winning run with a single in the bottom of the seventh.

Ed Shepler started the inning with a single. Houghtby came on as a pinch runner, going to third on John Stoitsiadis's single before racing home on Rudin's hit.

Former Redford Catholic Central stand-out Bob Malleck scored in the second on a

Steve Owens, the winning pitcher, allowed eight hits and two walks in going the distance.

IN THE FIRST GAME, Walter's sent 11 men to the plate, scoring seven times in the second to win going away.

Back-to-back homers by Mickey Katschor, a three-run shot, and Rudin, sparked the uprising.

Shepler collected three hits in four at-bats for the winners, while Rick Karcher contributed a double and two-run homer. Houghtby also collected two hits.

Joe Mackiewicz, a teammate of Malleck's on CC's 1987 state Class A champions, was the winning pitcher. In five innings (game was halted by mercy rule), Mackiewicz (4-1) allowed four hits and three walks. The Kalamazoo College student struck out four.

On Friday, Londo dealt Hines Park an embarrassing 11-3 defeat. It was the first victory of the season for the South Lyon club in 21 starts.

Hines Park has now lost six straight.

Dittmer gets top MUCC post

THE MAN is definitely outspoken.

I was first introduced to him two years ago at a monthly meeting of the Garden City-based Four Seasons Fishing Club. And he had something to say about every topic of discussion.

He wasn't afraid to take center stage either. If he disagreed with someone on an issue, he'd hear their side of the story, then politely tell the person why they were wrong.

Who is this guy, I wondered, almost becoming aggravated with his abundance of knowledge. How does he know everything about everything?

I've run across him a half dozen times over the past couple of years while covering the outdoor beat for the O&E and at every meeting, on almost every issue raised, this man has something to say about it.

But there's something I've noticed about him each time our paths have crossed. If I can steal a phrase, when Art Dittmar speaks, people listen. He is very well educated on the issues surrounding Michigan's natural resources.

Bill Parker

BECAUSE OF THIS knowledge and concern for the outdoors, Dittmar, a Farmington Hills resident and Garden City High School teacher, was recently elected to fill one of the three statewide vice president positions for the Michigan United Conservation Clubs.

MUCC was established 50 years ago when delegates representing 35 conservation and sportsmen's clubs converged on the James Oliver Curwood Clubhouse of the Shiawassee Conservation Association to form a statewide federation of citizen conservationists.

Since that time, MUCC has grown to become the largest nonprofit, statewide association of conservation and outdoor recreation clubs in the nation. The main goals of MUCC are to advance the cause of conservation and the environment, to educate people on the use of our natural resources and to promote the right of sportsmen and women to enjoy outdoor recreation.

"MUCC is a conservation organization and my biggest hobbies are hunting and fishing," said Dittmar. "Because I enjoy the outdoors so much, I want to see the outdoors conserved for kids in the future."

DITTMAR JOINED the forces of the MUCC 20 years ago. With a master's degree from Eastern Michigan University in general science and post-graduate work in fisheries and wildlife biology at Michigan State University, Dittmar has served MUCC in many different capacities. He has been an alternate director, district chairman, director at large, regional vice president and now statewide vice president.

Over the years Dittmar has been involved with MUCC in several battles including the abolition of gill nets for commercial fishing use on the Great Lakes. MUCC also led the forces that caused the passage of the bottle bill, which imposed a deposit on beverage bottles in the state.

MUCC also fought for the recent amendment which, as of June 1, 1989, will include wine coolers and pre-mixed cocktail containers in the bottle law.

MUCC also cooperated with and contributed financial assistance to the Michigan Department of Natural Resources on several wildlife projects including the introduction of Sichuan pheasants, the restoration of the peregrine falcon and the relocation of moose to the Upper Peninsula.

MUCC is also involved at many levels in conservation education ranging from the development of "Tracks," a wildlife reader for elementary children to a Youth Camp, a scholarship fund and leadership training courses and conferences.

BUT WITH ALL the completed projects and battles won, Dittmar points out that MUCC still has a hill to climb.

Jeff Elliott of Canton defeated Tim Shelton of Farmington Hills in the boys 15-19 first round but lost to Plymouth's Chris Harper in his next match.

Gallagher nets city title

Three Observerland cities were represented in the winners circle of the annual Canton Singles Tennis Tournament Saturday.

The lone hometown winner, pending the outcome of two suspended matches, was Jim Gallagher of Canton.

He captured the boys 15-19 title with a three-set, come-from-behind victory over Plymouth's Rich Cundiff, 4-6, 7-6, 6-4.

Jim George of Farmington Hills was the men's over-40 champion, defeating Terrence Bannan of Plymouth in the final, 6-2, 6-2.

The third area winner was Redford's Adrina Garboosian, the girls under-14 winner. She defeated Leanne Gurchak of Plymouth 6-3, 6-3 to claim first place.

THE GIRLS 15-19 and boys under-14 final matches were to be decided this week.

Michelle Sparkman of Plymouth stood opposite Marguerite Mellish of Northville in the girls division, and the boys contest matched North-ville's Brad Telepo against Plymouth's K.C. Kirkpatrick.

Canton's Priscilla Gilliam was runnerup to Ypsilanti's Cindy Hill in the women's over-20 division. John Fitzgerald of Dearborn defeated Chris Harrison of Grosse Pointe in the men's 20-29 final (6-1, 4-6, 6-2) and Detroit's Theo Ulinfun won the men's 30-39 title by default over Southfield's Henri Williams.

In the semifinals, Gallagher defeated Tony Spagnoli (Plymouth), 6-1, 6-0, and Greg Majewski (Plymouth) in the quarterfinals, 6-0, 6-2.

George, who recently resigned as baseball coach at Livonia Stevenson, blanked Jack Marschak (Canton) 6-0, 6-0 in the semis. His toughest match came in the opening round when he beat John Zaretti of Canton 6-2, 4-6, 6-3.

Garboosian advanced to the final by downing Canton's Kathy Marschak, 6-0, 6-3, in the semifinals.

she graduates. Or returning to Wisconsin to pursue a master's degree in marketing.

"I'm planning all my options," she said.

Yet tennis, which has brought her so far, and in which she has accomplished so much, remains entrenched at the top of her career goals. It can be difficult to give up something at which you've worked so hard to excel, particularly if there's still a chance to take it a step further.

"Yeah, I've accomplished a lot of things I'm proud of," Chris said. "I know my record for career wins is going to be hard to break (sister Wendy, 53-32 over three years, is the only active player among Wisconsin's top 10 all-time singles winners).

Landscaping can attract buyers

Attractive landscape design surrounding new buildings can be an effective sales aid, members of the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan learned at a seminar. "Builders and developers," says Herbert Lawson, president of the Farmington Hills-based association, "are beginning to realize that the money they spend on landscaping their properties realizes a quick return in speedier sales or rentals."

Landscape architect David Jackson of Village Green Management, a subsidiary of Holtzman and Silverman, showed BASM members slides of landscaping at their developments. Says Jackson, "Regardless of how small a budget may be, a builder is shortchanging his efforts if he does not pay attention to the surrounding environment."

By starting with a landscape plan, money will be saved in the long run and a property becomes much more saleable. The bottom line, he says, is image and marketing, whether the facility is institutional, commercial or residential. "Recognizing this, builders and developers are realizing that excellent site design and landscaping gives them an edge over the competition," Jackson said.

If a firm wants to create a dramatic landscaping impact but is conscious of budgetary restrictions, Jackson recommends using evergreens and deciduous shrubs for primary color and adding beds of annuals for a brighter note. Using all annuals would add considerably to the cost since they must be replaced yearly. Another cost-cutting device is to plant beds of perennials such as daffodils, crocuses and daylilies which come up yearly, then filling in with annuals.

TO ATTRACT attention to the potential building buyer, the designer must consider whether property is viewed quickly, such as by vehicular traffic, or more slowly.

When a property is viewed primarily from a passing car, such as the facing street of an apartment, for example, landscaping must focus on a more gentle rhythm in the curves, always leading the eye to the primary focus of attention, which is the signage. At this point, a more pronounced area is developed to literally stop the eye.

The landscape architect deals with more elements than just trees, shrubs and flowers. Important design elements such as ornamental lighting, special paving, use of water in fountains or ponds, furnishings, all play an important role in creating "rooms" within the exterior space.

According to Jackson, there are also important functional aspects for choosing to work with a landscape architect. Expert guidance on drainage, grading and irrigation can prevent ongoing future problems for the builder.

"Look at the total picture," Jackson said. "Pay as much attention to the land as you do to the building design. By adding beauty and functional design outside, you'll attract the buyer or tenant you want to the inside."

Tell us about your event

Faced with the prospect of writing your first press release in the near future? Don't despair. Don't disparage your fellow club members for giving you the task.

Great summer reading choices

I LOVE to go into bookstores and ask the staff what books they've read and loved lately. It's like asking a friend, only better, because bookstore people read as if life depends on it. And maybe it does — professionally speaking, that is.

But that is not to say they're not inclined to push their favorites. Of course they do — zealously. That's what makes bookstore visits so much fun. They'll synopsise the entire plot of a favorite novel before you blink an eye, though they never, never tell the ending. They'll introduce you to an author you've never heard of and give you 10 good reasons why you should read that person. If they like a particular book, they'll try to steer you someone who did like it. And, if nobody liked it, they'll tell that too.

They're the Siskels and Eberts of the book world. So this week I asked the staff of several local bookstores to give us their recommendations for some good summer reading. Here's what they had to say:

Birmingham Book Store owner-manager Gere Freedman recommends "Life and Death in Shanghai" by Nien Cheng. "An exceptional book by an exceptional woman," says Freedman, who met the author at a book luncheon. Freedman says to watch for three exceptional books, due out later this summer (she was lucky enough to read advance copies): "Bingo" by Rita Mae Brown; Ann Tyler's latest "Breathing Lessons"; and "Silence the Lambs," a psychological thriller by Thomas Harris.

SADELLE HESSLER recommends her favorite, Michael Dorris' "Yellow Raft on Blue Water" (Gere Freedman says Hessler has probably sold hundreds of copies of this book by convincing everybody they'll love it as much as she does — and so far there are no complaints.) Hessler also loved "Sarum" by Edward Rutherfurd (out in paperback now).

Jeanne Nielson loves "Cold Sassy Tree" by Olive Ann Burns and Clyde Edgerton's "Walking Across Egypt." (Edgerton has a new one coming out soon called "The Float Plain Notebook," and there are whole lot of us who can't wait.)

Everybody at Birmingham Books recommends Scott Turow's "Presumed Innocent" and Pat Conroy's "Prince of Tides." Freedman says people are also buying James Michener's "Alaska" and Stephen King's "The Gunslinger" on cassette to listen to while driving.

BORDERS BOOK STORE (Birmingham) manager Tim Gable can't say enough about "Whose Justice? Whose Rationality?" a philosophical study by Alasdair MacIntyre. Assistant manager Don Powers is pushing "Lion Country" by Frederick Buechner and the "The Philosophy of Schopenhauer" by Bryan Magee.

Rod Miller, also an assistant manager, recommends Jean Cocteau's journal, "Diary of an Unknown" (in hardcover) and "Song for Mumu" by African writer Lindsay Barrett.

Staffer Sylvia Inwood loved "Tales of the City," from Armistead Maupin's "City" series, and "Gloriana" by Michael Moorcock. She also recommends Marge Piercy's "Available Light."

Bill Morrissey stands by "Monsieur" by Lawrence Durrell, "Rebel Angels" by Robertson Davies, and "The Good Apprentice" by Iris Murdoch.

Gregg Heinrichs recommends Lawrence Durrell's "Pope Joan," Tom Robbins' "Another Roadside Attraction," and Graham Greene's "Monsignor Quixote."

New staffer Van Hubner liked "Picasso" by Ariana Stanissopolis Huffington.

Costumer steps up to challenge

By Sherry Kahan
special writer

WHEN HARRIET Kozyn brings fabrics into her Ann Arbor studio, they are just pieces of cotton, taffeta or perhaps rayon. When they leave, they have been turned into a dress of several fabrics, a wedding gown or costumes fit for a dance company.

The latter was the former Livonian's most recent undertaking — costumes for a tribute to artist Georgia O'Keeffe by the J. Parker Copley Dance Company. The event took place recently in Power Center in Ann Arbor.

For Kozyn, this assignment, her third for the organization, has meant a tiny touch of fame. On posters displayed around Ann Arbor announcing the performance were the words "Costumes by Harriet Kozyn."

With the Copley group her job is to design costumes that look great. She must make them so that dancers can do long leaps without fear of the terrible sound of ripping fabric.

"I USUALLY WATCH three or four rehearsals before I put anything on paper," noted the 28-year-old designer who grew up in Livonia. "I have to get a feel for their movements. I have to be sure colors don't clash. Parker (the choreographer and artistic director) leaves it up to me. I show him colors and fabric. Then I'll bring him a basted draft in fabric. He might say he loves it or he might want it changed."

"I went to her studio and saw samples of her past work," said Copley, of Kozyn. "We liked each other's work. That's how I chose her. I found her more compatible with what I am trying to achieve than others. It is very difficult to create work for a whole dance company. There are different measurements for everyone, and decisions about what color works. Most important at all is for the costumes not to restrict the dancers."

Nonetheless Kozyn was faced with a restriction problem not usually confronted by dance designers. She had to alter the costume of Noonie Anderson, who portrayed O'Keeffe. The dancer was five months pregnant.

"Her whole body was different," stated Kozyn. "I had to add eight inches to the waist of her dress. It was a challenge."

BUT WHEN ALL is done and the curtain goes up, how does the designer feel when she sees her handiwork in motion?

"It is a big high. I feel completely overwhelmed. When the costumes move, they become alive," she responded.

It seems a long time ago that she attended Livonia's Riley Junior High School and Bentley High School.

"I taught myself to sew when I was 10. Between 10 and 11 I made my own clothing. In eighth grade I was paid to make a few dresses for girls in the Bentley chorus. That same year a teacher made me Hudson's Teen Sew-In representative for Riley. That meant I had to make an outfit for competition. So I sewed a piece of red and white Dan River checked gingham. It was a battle jacket with an elasticized waist and wide-legged pants with cuffs. I got honorable mention."

"In ninth grade I had a math teacher who helped me. She went on to design for Levi Strauss. She taught me great tricks for sewing," reported the seamstress.

But her father warned her: "You can't make money sewing. Why not go to business school like your sister?"

SO KOZYN ATTENDED Schoolcraft College and then transferred to the University of Michigan to take pre-business and liberal arts courses. She majored in psychology, but then started a sewing business, which with the aid of some waitress jobs, she has maintained ever since.

"I did mostly alterations, custom sewing and restyling vintage clothing," she said. "There are people out there who will pay for sewing. But a lot of them have a hard time giving money to a seamstress. It is regarded as a domestic operation, so they want to pay a low wage."

"A lot of them are women who once sewed for themselves. One even told me, 'I have a psychological block about paying you.' It is not pleasant to work under those circumstances."

One day in 1982 Kozyn phoned Carlye Crisler, supervisor of the costume shop at Power Center, to inquire about work.

"SHE HIRED ME on the phone," explained Kozyn. "She needed people to work on Robert Altman's production on 'Rake's Progress. I remember I had to make a collage of lace to cover huge 12-foot wooden fans."

Later she also worked with Helen King, costumer for the Performance Network.

'Since 1910'

Book captures FTD's 75-year history

By C.L. Rugenstein
special writer

WHEN LIVONIA resident Dan Gilmartin accepted a commission from Florists' Transworld Delivery Association to write a commemorative tome for the Southfield-based company's 75th anniversary, he got more than he bargained for.

For starters, the group's colorful history caught his fancy as he researched for the book.

"It was more like a history of promotion," Gilmartin chuckled, recounting milestones of FTD's history. "They were very conscious of promotion, and always made sure the press was there when they did something big" — like the many successful publicity stunts of the 1920s.

One enterprising New Jersey florist delivered a $50 order to the state's governor by plane and was duly photographed. Another enterprising florist in Minot, Maine, refused to let snow stop him from delivering flowers to Albany, N.Y. He used a dog sled, stopping at every newspaper office along the way, Gilmartin reported in his book.

The first attempted transatlantic floral delivery was not as successful, however. Gilmartin noted that the plane caught fire shortly after take-off. "The pilot and co-pilot survived, barely. The flowers didn't."

Though this is his first experience with writing books, Gilmartin has enjoyed a newswriting career that has spanned 24 years and encompassed such experiences as political appointments, breeding and racing thoroughbreds, and selling real estate.

HE GOT HIS FIRST taste of journalism in the Navy, while waiting to be shipped home from Subic Bay, in the Philippines, after World War II. A radio man (who could type 80 words per minute), he would record the nightly news from the mainland, edit, summarize and mimeograph it. From there it went to all the ships in the bay.

He returned to Michigan and got his journalism degree from the University of Detroit. From there he went on to literally write his way across Michigan working at various times for The Detroit News, the Livonia Observer, the Ann Arbor News and the Grand Rapids Herald, till it folded in 1959.

Before that Gilmartin even tried his hand at scriptwriting. "I quit my job at The Detroit News in 1955, took a handful of scripts I'd written, and went out to Hollywood to knock on doors," he recalled. He was sidetracked by a job at Santa Anita race track and "never sold a script." He came back when he got tired of living on a would-be scriptwriter's diet — "bread, cheese, milk and bologna."

owned and raced several thoroughbreds until after he married and started his family.

Gilmartin's newswriting and horse-racing experience led to another field in his multidimensional life — politics.

WHILE WORKING FOR the Ann Arbor News Gilmartin met then lieutenant governor John Swainson, at a St. Patrick's Day party. "That's when I got out of journalism, in a sense," he recalled. Swainson had decided to run for governor and asked Gilmartin to be his press secretary.

He was present on the memorable whistlestop tour of Michigan by Sen. Patrick McNamara, presidential hopeful John F. Kennedy and Swainson that election year. Gilmartin was appointed official "crowd estimator." One of his fondest reminiscences is of Kennedy kidding him about it. "Kennedy was loose, relaxed," he said. "He'd say, 'How many were at that last stop, now honestly!'" Swainson won and appointed Gilmartin racing commissioner and chief state steward of harness tracks. But when Romney beat Swainson two years later, Gilmartin resumed his journalistic work.

"'Since 1910' has been translated into Japanese and serialized over there, where people are enthusiastic about sending flowers . . . yet nobody in Livonia knows I wrote the book."

— Dan Gilmartin

O'Keefe salute is her showcase

"It has so much body," she claimed. "You can manipulate it around a body. I love to use fabric on the bias. On the bias rayon has the most maneuverability."

Kozyn also has favorites in fabric stores. She shops at Stewart's in Birmingham, Hinkle's in Livonia and Haberman's in Royal Oak. Fabric Gallery in Williamston near Lansing has about everything, in her opinion. She is also looking forward to the arrival in Ann Arbor of a new fabric store to be called Whole Cloth.

"I MIGHT LIKE to teach at that store," she said. "I'd love to teach little kids. As children, we had to learn to sew. I thought everyone had to. I was surprised to discover that many people know very little about it."

While often found at her Kenmore sewing machine, she prefers the relaxation and tranquility of hand sewing.

"A lot of my work is just plain old math," she pointed out. "I find I have a hard time doing simple things. I like detail work. Sometimes I sit and play with stuff for hours. A big part of me is still a closet artist. But the dance work opened a lot for me."

The opening was made the day Copley dancer, Terri Sarris of Plymouth, walked upstairs from a rehearsal on the first floor of the Performance Network complex in Ann Arbor. She browsed around Kozyn's second floor studio.

Sisters of Mercy saga booked next

He served as editor of the Livonia Observer for two years in the late 1960s, he said, "when it was still a little hole-in-the-wall office," on Five Mile across from the City Hall.

Gilmartin's newspaper career ended officially in 1970 when he accepted an appointment as industrial coordinator for Livonia.

"Then Livonia mayor McNamara (now Wayne County executive) felt my promotional background would help attract business to the city," he said. He was also executive director of Livonia's Economic Development Corporation that, during his 14-year tenure, attracted about 900 new businesses to the city.

Gilmartin retired from that job in 1984 but kept up his real estate connection by selling industrial and commercial property. Now he thinks the real estate business may be a good way to launch a new writing habit. Currently he's a Realtor-associate with the Century 21-ROW office in Livonia.

Writing the FTD book whet his appetite for more books.

HE'S ALREADY ACCEPTED a commission for a second book, this one about nuns. The Alabama-based Sisters of Mercy read his FTD book and contacted him about tracing the founding of their order, in 1798, by Irish heiress Catherine Elizabeth McAuley.

Gilmartin remarked that the FTD book, "Since 1910," had been translated into Japanese and serialized over there, where the people are enthusiastic about sending flowers.

"Here I am getting letters from Japan about my book, yet nobody in Livonia knows I wrote one," he laughed.

Now, he says, when the McAuley book is done, he'd like to write something for himself. "I'd like to do fiction, a suspense or intrigue, with politics and racing as background."

condo queries

Robert M. Meisner

Q. Our real estate broker has told us that she can assist us in regard to the purchase of our unit and we don't need a lawyer because they generally foul things up. She says the sellers are very sensitive and will not negotiate on any of the terms. Should we have an attorney?

A. The real estate broker is unethical if she suggests to you that you should not have an attorney. To the contrary, the broker has a legal obligation to advise you that an attorney to represent you, at least at the closing, is a good idea.

Many realtors feel that attorneys "screw up" deals. Many attorneys, on the other hand, feel that realtors do not represent the interests of the purchaser, because, among other things, they are being paid by the seller and are not legally trained.

It is suggested that you find a real estate attorney who is experienced in his area so that he does not have to prove his worth by coming up with unnecessary requirements and stipulations but, on the other hand, can give you sound advice by which you will rely in negotiating with your seller and his broker.

Q. Please clear the air on the law regarding latent defects. I am selling my condo and have had problems with the association in making certain repairs to the common elements. I am basically fed up and want to get out. What do I have to tell the prospective purchaser?

A. You have to tell the prospective purchaser what you know about any defects, patent or latent, concerning your condominium unit. With the context of that obligation, you will have to advise the prospective purchaser of latent defects you know about concerning the common elements that are appurtenant to your unit.

In that regard, you will have to read your condominium documents to ascertain, by way of example, whether the perimeter walls are common elements.

If, for example, you are having problems with a perimeter wall, you should do whatever is necessary to ensure that the association takes care of the problem. But if it has not been taken care of by the time of your completed sale, you must disclose that to your prospective purchaser.

That purchaser should necessarily become concerned about the willingness of the association to correct the problem, which may be a consideration as to whether the purchaser wants to buy into your condominium project.

Liga Karels show opens

Art work by deposed Latvian artist Liga Karels will be on exhibit for three weeks at Sunshine Picture Framing Gallery in Livonia. A reception Friday night 7-10 p.m. honoring the artist is open to the public.

Karels' feral scenes, for which she is noted, are characterized by studied brush strokes, soft colors and impressionistic washes. Anticipation colors the canvas inviting the viewer to come a little closer, explore a little longer. These natural settings show beauty and depth, but they also cloak mystery.

That's what some reviewers have said about Karels, who arrived in the United States from her native Latvia. Bittersweet memories from the land her family fled after the Russian occupation now emerge as the pine and birch forest frequently seen in her work.

She and her husband now live on a quiet lake in southern Indiana where they enjoy the moods and colors of their environment. A painter by avocation, Karels is using her retirement to paint more frequently.

The Sunshine Picture Framing Gallery is at 37279 Six Mile, in Newburgh Plaza Minimall.

Tips on what to do in drought

Drought hangs over gardeners and farmers in parts of the United States this summer. Large areas are reported much drier than last year, even though spring rains brought relief to some sections of the West.

Wilson Scaling, chief of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service, said that "parts of Montana, California, Oregon, Idaho and Washington were very dry."

"It's going to take a lot more than just one good month of precipitation to ease the drought in those areas," Scaling said.

Donald Wilhite of the University of Nebraska Center for Agriculture, Meteorology and Climatology, recently described drought as "a creeping phenomenon" sometimes "taking months or even years to develop."

WHAT CAN you do in the face of drought? Check for auxiliary irrigation sources. If possible, utilize drip irrigation for individual plants instead of general sprinkling. Stop faucet leaks, cut down on lawn watering, toilet flushing and the volume of shower spray.

Revive the rain barrel collection system and conserve household, bath and laundry water. Clean rinses and cooking water may be used in the garden and on trees, window boxes and indoor plants.

Drought-tolerant plants are available including beets, turnips, carrots, radishes, onions, beans, peas, collards and sweet potatoes. Corn, melons and tomatoes need lots of water for their smaller return.

MULCH YOUR garden with moisture-retaining organic material.

The more organic matter you add to condition soil, especially to sandy soil, the more drought-resistant it will be because it will increase soil water-holding capacity.

Such materials include peat moss, leaves, straw, vermiculite and old manure. These materials act like sponges, absorbing water. Clay soils retain more water than sandy soils.

Make trenches or furrows near garden rows and flood them with water that penetrates into the root zones. Use hoses with tiny drip holes to help water sink deep and to reduce overhead sprinkling evaporation.

LARGE GARDENS need more water, so use a smaller, more intensive plot. Use wide rows. Cut down on walkways.

and requires more water. If you use raised beds, recommended for soggy garden lands, add moisture-retaining material and mulch walkways heavily.

Unless you have ample water to irrigate between beds, it might be a good idea to grow on flat land or in the furrow. Trellising, while a space saver, encourages plant water loss (transpiration).

Instead of conventional single rows, grow in wide rows, which produce more crops and reduce watering. Plants grown closely form a screen of vegetation that shades the soil.

Reduced sunshine on plants and soil reduces transpiration, so grow in partial shade, a help in drought. Interplant vegetables with perennial shrubs and flowers around the house to save space and for shade.

Before midsummer sun dries soil, apply a mulch of 3 to 6 inches of organic materials when plants are young. Reapply mulch as it packs down. Mulching also cuts down on weeding between rows as well as around plants.

YOUR YARD, lawn, shrubs and trees are valuable assets. Irrigate when there is the best condition of little wind, low temperature and high humidity. This happens most often just before dawn.

If you have an automatic underground irrigation system, you won't lose sleep, and you'll be using water during the "off peak" period.

NBD's Convertible A.R.M. gives you low interest rates now...

Interest Rate

10.07%*
Annual Percentage Rate

...and the option to convert to a Fixed Rate Mortgage later.

With a Convertible Adjustable Rate Mortgage from NBD, you start with the guaranteed low rates of an Adjustable Rate Mortgage for the first year. Then, any time during the next four years, you can convert to a fixed rate mortgage — quickly, easily.

Take advantage of low rates now...

The NBD Convertible A.R.M. gives you interest rates significantly below current fixed rate mortgages of comparable term. Here's how it works: Your rate is set on the day your completed application is received and it's good for one year from your closing date. Then every 12 months your rate will be adjusted up or down with the market. If interest rates go down, your mortgage payments go down accordingly. If interest rates continue to rise, your payments will increase. However, to protect you from any large changes, NBD guarantees that your A.R.M. will never go up more than two percentage points annually or more than six percentage points over the initial rate for the life of your loan.

...Lock in a fixed rate later for only $100.

If rates go down, or you want the security of a fixed-rate mortgage, just notify our NBD Mortgage Office and they will convert your A.R.M. to a Fixed Rate Mortgage quickly, easily, and at a cost of only $100. You can even do it through the mail! There are no title searches, no waiting, and you can convert any month between the 13th and 60th month of your loan.

Find out more about it.

NBD's Convertible A.R.M. could help you buy more house than you thought. For more information about NBD's Convertible Adjustable Rate Mortgage, or the other loan options we have available, call or visit the NBD Mortgage Company Office nearest you.

*These estimated annual percentage rates are subject to increase or decrease on an annual basis after the first year. Rates are quoted as of 7/11/88 and are subject to change without notice. Rates may vary across the state of Michigan. Contact your local NBD mortgage office. Stated reduced starting interest rate will apply only during the first year. The quoted APR is based on a typical loan; your APR may be different. NBD Mortgage Company also offers other loans with different rates.
