Oh Joy

Feathers were ruffled last spring when workers descended on Joy Road to install a water main without giving Plymouth-Canton Community School officials warning. The thoroughfare is used by many people who go to Centennial Educational Park each day, and school administrators were concerned about safety and snarled traffic on the road to the district's high schools.

County and Detroit Water and Sewerage Department officials assured them the project would be completed by the time school reopens at the end of August. But with less than a month to go before the end of summer vacation, traffic is still limited to one lane on Joy between Sheldon and Canton Center roads.

But one county official said Joy Road will be opened before the first bell rings.

"They are in replacing pavement now, working west right on through," said Tom O'Connor, a county engineer.

Asbestos blues

Just when Plymouth-Canton Community School officials thought Central Middle School was in tiptop shape, an old problem surfaced again.

Workers who were doing remodeling in the building this summer found more asbestoscontaining material. The district spent more than $150,000 on the second phase of the remodeling project this summer. It included carpentry, electrical work and carpet installation. Removing the asbestos is going to cost the district about $10,000.

Superintendent John Hoben said there's been "probably $300,000 worth of asbestos' removed from the building in the last few years.

"It just keeps reappearing, that's the problem," he said. The asbestos removal, as well as the remodeling work, is expected to be done before school opens in the fall.

'We just hope that that's done it." Hoben said of the extra $10,000 the district had to spend unexpectedly on the removal project.

Achievers

The students over at Sellers Corner at Plymouth Salem High School are the best achievers in this area.

The group was selected as the Junior Achievement of Detroit and Southeast Michigan Company of the Year for 1987-

The company was sponsored by Michigan Bell. Judging looked at organization, accuracy of records, selection of products, manufacture and sale, participation and company sales results and profitability.

Sellers Corner developed, manufactured and sold wood napkin holders, telephone magnet message holders, marble tic tac toe games, candy cups and candy cane reindeer.

Who will chart the municipal course in Plymouth Township during the next four years?

What of the race between Democrats Dean Baker and Lana Pollack for the right to challenge Congressman Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, in November?

Will property tax increases fly for new jail facilities and special education programs in Wayne County?

Voters here will help answer those questions Tuesday when they participate in the state's biennial primary election.

Polls will be open 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. People uncertain about where they vote should contact township clerk Esther Hulsing, 453-3840, or deputy city clerk Linda Langmesser, 453-

ALL ELECTIVE positions in Plymouth Township - supervisor, clerk, treasurer and four trustees are up for grabs. Only Republicans have filed

Three candidates, including incumbent Maurice Breen, want the job of supervisor, the full-time chief executive officer for the township.

Breen, 55, is a lawyer. James Irvine, 60, a lawyer and trustee the past four years, and Jerry Raymor, 41, a project manager for an automotive manufacturer, are challenging Breen.

Patricia Pashukewich, 47, president of a property management company, is trying to unseat Mary Brooks, 57, as treasurer. That fulltime job involves collecting and investing money owed the township. Hulsing, incumbent clerk, has no opposition on the ballot.

HOWEVER, Lorraine Halmekangas, 45, deputy clerk now on a leave tive executive of absence, is waging a write-in campaign to defeat Hulsing.

(Township voters must place the name, office and party of any writein candidate on the sleeve of the envelope in which the computer ballot is turned in to poll workers.)

The clerk is responsible for maintaining all township records and supervising elections.

Eight candidates are vying for four trustee seats:

Summer parks program's A-OK

By Doug Funke staff writer

Kids say they like it.

So it's probably good, right? Plymouth's free summer playground program will continue at five neighborhood parks through Aug. 19. 'It's a drop-in program," said Bob Lawson, parks supervisor. Table games, active games, story hours and arts and crafts are available. Two play leaders are assigned to each location. Activities are offered 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday at Garden Club Park, Sutherland and Forest; Jaycee Park, Hamilton and Joy; and Kiwanis Park, Auburn and Junction. Firehouse No. 2 at Spring and Holbrook hosts activities 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Monday through Thursday and Optimist Park, Evergreen and Elm, 1:30-4:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

SPECIAL EVENTS and trips are scheduled Fridays.

We do ask for registration so we have an idea how many are participating and a number for emergencies," Lawson said.

He emphasized that the program isn't designed as a child-care or baby-sitting service. "We can't be responsible without parents being somewhat available," Lawson said.

Maple trees are fine, DPW director says

Despite some appearances to the contrary, maple trees in downtown Plymouth along Main, Penniman, Ann Arbor Trail and Harvey aren't dying, said Ken Vogras, city DPW

"They're not really in sad shape sun scorched is all," he said. 'The trees aren't going to die. They'll come back next spring."

A string of unusually high temperatures and lack of rain have hit plant life like a one-two punch. Heat reflecting off cars and concrete further compounds the problem, Vogras said.

The distressed maples will lose their leaves earlier this year, perhaps as soon as Fall Festival in early September, Vogras said.

DPW crews have been watering trees downtown every other day in an effort to save them, Vogras said. No special root nozzles are used, he said. "We just soak 'em down good."

The city is replacing maples with locust trees downtown as the need arises, Vogras said. "They can withstand heat a little better, and they have smaller leaves so they're easier to pick up.'

Opinion split on school finance plan

By M.B. Dillon staff writer

A school refinancing plan that's gaining momentum in the Michigan Legislature despite having neared death is receiving mixed reviews.

The proposal, which Michigan voters may be asked to approve in March or June, would raise the sales tax from four cents to six cents, cut property taxes by about $1 billion a year, and provide about $516 million more for schools.

Some Plymouth-Canton school officials are cautiously optimistic. Others are unenthusiastic. Chambers of commerce are taking a lukewarm stance. Teachers' unions support the reforms.

The financing plan is expected to be voted on by legislators in September, but not in time for the issue to be placed on the November ballot. A House-Senate conference committee chaired by state Sen. Dan DeGrow, R-Port Huron, is hammering out the bill's details during the Legislature's summer recess The proposal would:

• Place a 28-mill limit on school taxes, with the state reimbursing local school districts for the reduction for three years. After a three-year moratorium, districts could vote two additional mills, which could be renewed.

• Provide every home with a $7,500 school property tax exemption from its state equalized valuation, which is 50 percent of its cash

 Provide for emergency millage above the tax limit if a district, through no fault of its own, got into fiscal trouble. It would have to be approved by a special state board, and by district voters. Fiscal trouble is defined as a 15 percent loss in revenue in one year.

• Exempt all households from the 6-percent sales tax on utility • Expand the homestead tax credit for renters and the elderly. Accompanying legislation is intended to enhance the quality of edu-

The conference committee wants to require schools to offer a "core curriculum" of basic courses, to draft an annual report and devise school improvement plans. Still being haggled over is a basic employability skills test for students.

The quality items are important," said DeGrow. "We can't just throw money at voters. We have to show them there will be changes.'

RAYMOND HOEDEL, associate superintendent for business for Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, said it's difficult to take a stand on the proposal because "so many different potential state aid formulas are attached to it."

"A lot of them are kind of questionable for the kind of benefit the district might receive. So it's hard for us to react in total. I'm very cautiously optimistic on the thing," said

Plymouth-Canton Superintendent

John Hoben said the plan is flawed.

"The problem I have with it (is that) it's a foundation grant, essentially," said Hoben. "The equity issue is not being addressed.

WHILE THE Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce, like the state chamber of commerce, favors parts of the legislation, the muchamended bill "still falls short of our expectations," said Mary O'Connell Roehr, executive director of the Plymouth chamber.

We would support the reduction of property taxes in our state, as long as it was permanent and substantial relief," she said. "The increase in state sales tax should be revenue neutral and should not be extended to utilities or any service-related business. "The only thing we're afraid of is that there'll be an additional millage creep," said Roehr.

We approve of money being used to improve the educational core curriculum and drop-out prevention and achievement incentives," she added. Canton's chamber hasn't taken an official position, said Joan Bolek, executive director. "WE WERE ALL for the package that was going to come out last May," said Carole Rundio, president of the Plymouth-Canton Educational Association, which represents 819 teachers. "And the MEA (Michigan Education Association) fully en-

Voters in the city and township also face two ballot proposals.

A property tax increase of $1 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation (half of market value) has been proposed for county jail facilities and special education programs.

If both pass, the owner of a $100,000 house in the city and township would pay an additional $100 a year in property taxes

Non-partisan court of appeal candidates also are on the ballot.

Local election officials forecast a 25 percent turnout Tuesday. The township has about 15,500 registered voters, the city 6,800.

clarification

A story in the July 18 issue of the Observer, "Needy Senior Citizens Face Long Wait for Housing," should have identified The Plymouth Inn, at 205 Haggerty Road, between Plymouth and Hines Drive, as a new building constructed about a year ago. It is a supervised residential care facility for seniors, offering 50 rooms.

The Plymouth Inn is owned by John Hendry. On the grounds are two other buildings: the former Hendry Convalescent Center, now called Plymouth Court - a nursing home. There is also the Plymouth Town Apartments, a private 70-unit development for seniors.

Pam Pinta, mother of David, 6, said her son seemed to really connect with the program this year.

Lou Johnson, another mother, also endorsed the program. "They do a nice job," she said.

RE-ELECT MARY A. BROOKS TOWNSHIP TREASURER TO THE VOTERS OF PLYMOUTH TOWNSHIP

YOU HAVE RECEIVED REPEATED COMMUNICATIONS FROM A CANDIDATE FOR TREASURER, WHICH IMPLY THAT I HAVE NOT PERFORMED THE DUTIES OF TOWNSHIP TREASURER WITH CARE OR ABILITY.

YOU HAVE MOST RECENTLY RECEIVED A MAILING THAT ACCUSES ME OF DISHONESTY, INCOMPETENCY OR BOTH.

THE FACTS ARE:

- * AN ERRONEOUS DOUBLE REMITTANCE OF SCHOOL TAX MONEY ($106,711.67) WAS MADE AFTER THE COMPUTER WAS DOWN FOR 3 WEEKS. WHEN I DISCOVERED THE ERROR I REPORTED IT PROMPTLY TO THE SUPERVISOR. I ALSO BROUGHT THE MATTER TO THE ATTENTION OF THE TOWNSHIP'S AUDITORS, PLANTE & MORAN. WHO ADVISED ME NOT TO WITHHOLD THE AMOUNT OVERPAID FROM SUBSEQUENT SCHOOL TAX COLLECTIONS, BUT TO WORK WITH THE SCHOOL DISTRICT'S TREASURER AND AUDITORS TO OBTAIN A CHECK IN REPAYMENT. THAT HAS BEEN SUCCESSFUL!
- * OTHER ACCUSATIONS ARE SIMPLY UNTRUE! WRITTEN FINANCIAL REPORTS HAVE BEEN MADE TO THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES MONTHLY. RECEIPTS HAVE ALWAYS BEEN DEPOSITED DAILY. INVESTMENTS HAVE BEEN IN ACCORDANCE WITH POLICIES ADOPTED BY THE BOARD. THE TREASURER HAS NO RESPONSIBILITY FOR OR CONTROL OVER THE ACCOUNTING DEPARTMENT. PLANTE & MORAN'S MOST RECENT AUDIT REPORT FOUND NO DEFICIENCIES IN MY OFFICE.

THE VENOMOUS AND UNTRUE ATTACK ON ME IS DELIVERED BY A CANDIDATE FOR MY OFFICE. YOU HAVE SEEN THE REPEATED (AND EXPENSIVE) MAILINGS. YOU HAVE SEEN THE VERY LARGE BREEN AND PASHUKEWICH SIGNS IN PAIRS ALL OVER THE TOWNSHIP, USUALLY ON LANDS BELONGING TO COMMERCIAL ENTERPRISES, DEVELOPERS, BUILDERS AND OTHER LARGE LAND HOLDERS. DO YOU BELIEVE HER CAMPAIGN IS FUNDED BY HER OWN RESOURCES? DO YOU BELIEVE FINANCIAL CONTRIBUTIONS WERE BASED ON HER MERIT?

I AM THE TARGET OF THE RECENT ATTACKS BECAUSE:

- * I AM KNOWN AND LIKED THROUGHOUT THE PLYMOUTH COMMUNITY. INDEED, IN NOV. 1984 AS A POLITICAL NOVIATE, I RECEIVED MORE VOTES THAN BREEN, AND HAVE WON MANY NEW FRIENDS SINCE THEN.
- * I HAVE OPENLY SUPPORTED JIM IRVINE FOR SUPERVISOR.

An uneasy truce over wetlands protection could be broken this fall. And western Wayne County is likely to become the battleground.

Developers and environmentalists have enjoyed a summer of relative peace on wetlands issues, after June publication of Michigan Department of Natural Resources guidelines on how to interpret the state's 9-yearold wetlands protection act.

Wayne County government and an area state legislator, however, are proposing changes in the act itself.

A county task force is expected to call for a number of changes, including greater use of mitigation - almade wetlands to replace wetlands damaged or destroyed in the course of development:

Kosteva, D-Canton, is proposing a community leaders. wetlands bank - allowing developers to give the state money to buy wetlands near, though not necessarily adjacent to, their property, Under the plan, Kosteva said, newly-acquired state wetlands would be used to offset more marginal wetlands sacrificed to development.

WETLANDS PROTECTION has been a big issue locally, pitting the development-hungry county and its communities against the protectionminded DNR.

Too often, community leaders said, DNR insistence on maintaining borderline wetlands has threatened job and tax growth.

"We feel strongly there should be some kind of graded system for wetlands," said Ann Bollin of the Conference of Western Wayne, a group lowing developers to create man-representing the interest of 17 communities.

Last year, the CWW organized a face-to-face meeting between then-At the same, time Rep. James DNR director Gordon Guyer and

One year ago, I'd say yes, there were a lot of troubles over wetlands," Bollin said. "Now, it seems that a lot of projects are going ahead.

Area development experts bear out that assessment. One of the problems is the DNR has been enforcing the law for wetlands areas that were really marginal," Canton Township development director David Nicholson said. "But in my recent experience with the DNR, they've been very coopera-

Westland development director Timothy Schroeder agreed conflict over wetlands has diminished, but wasn't fully sure the new guidelines were responsible.

"THERE WERE a lot more problems last year and there is greater understanding with the DNR," Schroeder said. "But why we're having fewer problems this year, I don't really know.

Both communities lost, or nearly lost development in recent years due to wetlands issues, both men said.

In Canton, development along I-275 has been stymied, Nicholson said, ironically over man-made wetlands

Three years ago, he added, Canton saw developers pull up stakes for a 28-acre industrial park after a wetlands dispute erupted.

In Westland, an apartment-condominium development was delayed for similar reasons, Schroeder said. "They basically had to redesign

Our choices in Tuesday primary

ESIDENTS OF Plymouth Township can have a direct say in the future of their township while both township and city residents can help determine if their property taxes should increase

A number of candidates and issues are on the primary ballot. Here's a recap of our selections.

Two property tax hike proposals are on the ballot. We endorsed both requests - 1 mill for iail expansion and 1 mill for special education programs

The owner of a $100,000 house could pay an additional $100 a year in property taxes if both

In the race for the 2nd Congressional District. we endorsed Lana Pollack, currently a state senator, over challenger Dean Baker. Pollack has the experience and background to do a better job it elected.

The winner of the Democratic primary will tace U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, in Noember

IN THE TOWNSHIP, all elected positions are up for grabs. And since there is no Democratic opposition, those elected Tuesday are almost assured of a seat on the governing board.

For supervisor, we like Maurice Breen, the incumbent. Breen has demonstrated his ability to get the job done and deserves four more years as the top township official.

For treasurer, challenger Patricia Pashukewich has some ideas to improve investment practices for the township. Her more aggressive attitude earns her the nod over incumbent Mary Brooks.

In the race for trustee, two incumbents and two challengers should be elected.

Incumbents Smith Horton and Abe Munfakh have worked well on the board and deserve to continue setting policy.

Newcomers Gregory Williams and John Stewart are well-informed and have experience with local government and the community.

Resident witnesses burial at sea

Crossing Panama in 1850 on his way to California, Plymouth resident Collins Kellogg described Panamanians as having "no energy or enterprise, no industry or intelligence, the only care being to eat and sleep, with no attention paid to dress. Many wear no clothes except on extraordinary occasions. The climate favors habits of indolence and inaction."

Kellogg noted that the products of the Isthmus included yams, cocoa, bananas, plantains, oranges, lemons, limes, pineapples and peaches. At the time he made his trip, a railroad across the Isthmus from Colon to Panama was being built. It was not completed until 1855

The day before Kellogg left Panama, the steamship "California" arrived in port with 300 passengers and a reported $1.5 million in gold dust. "Various accounts in relation to the prospects are given, some most discouraging. But nevertheless, I have no hesitation whether to continue onward or return as many do," wrote Kellogg in his diary,

AFTER THREE weeks on the Isthmus, Kellogg left Panama April 24, sailing on the barque Clarissa with about 140 passengers. "I had determined to go ahead and nothing but the choice of death to disgracefully returning could have induced me to persevere." The young man had burned his bridges behind him.

During the voyage on the Pacific, Kellogg was present at two burials at sea, a new experience for a landlubber from Michigan. The first was a woman who died on May 1.

"Scarcely an hour had elapsed after life was extinct when the body was sewed up in canvas and placed on a plank with stones attached to the feet. After the reading of the Episcopal burial service, the plank was raised and it was plunged into the mysterious deep.

from our readers

The passengers stood around contemplating the dreadful scene and perhaps reflecting who would be the next victim as most everyone was more or less affected by fevers or diarrheas occasioned by excessive heat and bad water. The water on board had become ropy accompanied with a bad smell and taste."

THE SECOND BURIAL, a month and a half later, occurred June 17. A member of the crew died. "The summary manner in which the last rites at sea are performed brings to mind to one unaccustomed to such scenes the lines: "O bury me not in the deep blue sea. But reason asks what matter it where the body lies when the vital spark has fled.'

After the first burial, the ship put in at Cocos Island to get fresh water. About 500 miles from Panama, the small island was used by whalers to stock up on water. "Eggs are abundant here being laid by sea fowls in such profusion as to be collected in boat loads. These are truly luxuries to those who have been confined to the use of salt provisions.

"All hands picked up duds and prepared to go ashore where a general scrubbing took place. Fresh water was duly appreciated. I noticed here the names of vessels and the different times which they touched here inscribed on stone. They were numerous and some of them of old date, one in particular in 1768.'

waters of the Pacific. "The calm of this ocean are but an index of its name. We have indeed found it Pacific as during our voyage I have not seen the elements so violent that a small boat would not be secure from danger "Canoes, skiffs, whale boats, etc.

are frequently employed to run hundreds of miles on the open water. Can there be any mystery in regard to the origin of aborigines of America or the natives of the numerous islands? Reading Kellogg's account of life aboard the ships on which he sailed, prompts one to wonder whether the young adventurer had ever read Richard Henry Dana's "Two Years Before the Mast.'

Dana's classic and Kellogs' diary notes both portray the physical hardships of sea travel in the early 19th century and the monotony of existence at sea. While Dana told the story from the viewpoint of the seaman, Kellogg saw it through the eyes of a passenger.

The steamer Telegraph that Kellogg took from New Orleans to the Isthmus of Panama was a relic that had to be condemned at the end of the voyage. The ship he boarded in Panama on April 24 for the voyage to San Francisco was not much bet-

After reading the article in the Plymouth Observer (July 18) about Susan Loftus, who was hit by a train on July 13, I am compelled to write. Susan is my sister. She is lucky to be alive. She will be paying for this tragedy for months, probably years, with broken bones, pain and rehabili-

I didn't know the Observer is in the practice of editorializing outside of the editorial page. Let me quote Dave Boljesic, community relations officer for the Canton township police, as he was quoted in the article describing the accident. "On occasion some people think they can outdistance the train. It's a very dangerous move, obviously." I have seen many people run train gates, especially in the Plymouth and Canton areas. I have done this myself; I'll bet you have, too. The gates go down, and people wait and wait, often without seeing a train for 10 minutes or more. Going through train gates seems to be a necessary evil in this

I feel the officer thinks he has made some kind of example of my sister, and I think his insensitive viewpoint expresses his obvious disregard for the hell my sister and my family have been put through since this accident.

Just reporting the facts of the accident would have been quite sufficient for the purposes of the article about Susan.

Perhaps Officer Boljesic should write a public interest article on train safety in the Plymouth and Canton areas. Perhaps he should aim his comments at the railroads who are the cause of so many accidents and close calls on the train tracks. Perhaps he should make a plea that the railroad companies conduct their business more responsibly.

I hope Officer Boljesic learns that his tactless commentary is uncalled for and not appreciated and I hope, in the future, the Observer keeps its editorials where they belong.

DNR officials say the problem isn't their agency's unwillingness to compromise on the concept of mitigation. It's that wetlands are so vital to the environment, in terms of providing a home for fish, birds and other wildlife and filtering pollution out of ground water, that they should be altered only in the rarest instances and with the greatest care.

Prepaid tuition plan: How it works

By Mary Rodrique staff writer

D-Day has arrived for Michigan parents who want to guarantee a college education for their child.

The new Michigan Education Trust is being launched this week. Anyone who can afford to make the initial payment will be enrolled in the program, provided they apply between Aug. 1-5.

One million applications are being distributed through government offices, financial institutions, libraries, day care centers and hospital maternity wards. Returned applications must be postmarked Aug. 1-5 and only with the form provided by the state Treasury Department or a photocopy of the official form.

"For parents, it's peace of mind, it's insurance. For children it's hope and opportunity," said Robert Bowman, state treasurer.

THE TRUST will pool invested that by the time the children are money and pay it off in installments.

ready for college, there will be money to cover tuition costs. No matter how steep costs climb, the state will guarantee that the tuition of students enrolled in the MET program is paid in advance

"Instead of a first come, first served basis, we'll take everyone who enrolls Aug. 1-5," said Richard McDowell, president of Schoolcraft College and part of the nine-member MET board.

'Next year, we might have limited enrollment. In the long term, we hope people will be able to apply any

ALREADY, 55,000 applications are in the mail to citizens who attended special town meetings or called the MET hot line to inquire about the program.

Following the application process, which includes a $25 fee, parents, grandparents or philanthropists interested in paying college tuition in advance will decide whether to pay money and try to make it grow so the tab in a lump sum or borrow the

Since the trust's finances are being deposited with state savings and loans institutions, McDowell said savings and loans across Michigan will be able to set up installment plans, "or you can use your own bank or however you want to make payment."

INVESTORS WILL have between 30 and 60 days to figure out how they're going to pay the tab. Prices will vary, according to the age of the prospective student. Parents can buy for one or more years, at a community college or four-year university. Costs vary accordingly.

For a present newborn entering college in the year 2006, a four-year guaranteed tuition contract will cost $6,816. A single year of university paid tuition for the newborn would cost $1,749; a year of community college $1,164.

Parents of a current 10-year-old would have to pay $8,280, either in a lump sum or spread out in payments, to finance four years of education beginning in 1996.

Officials are sure prices will be higher the next time the program is

DURING 18 months of board meetings, the MET governing body tried to work out every conceivable glitch "but I'm sure a couple of things will pop up that we haven't thought of," McDowell said.

"If the student is not interested in college, the money will be refunded or transferred to another child. If the student doesn't use it all, he will get a refund for the unused portion."

Only children who are residents of Michigan are eligible for the program. The adult or organization that buys a pre-paid tuition contract will get a state income tax deduction equal to the payment.

If the student decides not to attend a Michigan college, money in the account will be sent to an out-of-state school. If the sum doesn't cover the out-of-state school's costs, the student would have to pay the differ-

SC avoids big tuition hikes — McDowell

By Wayne Peal staff writer

Gov. James Blanchard's call for reduced tuition increases at Michigan's public universities didn't extend to the community college level.

But Schoolcraft College president Richard McDowell said his school raised tuition for at least one of the reasons cited by the larger schools: declining state aid.

"I understand their dilemma," McDowell said of the state's 15 universities. "This year, we're expecting an increase of about 1 percent. In past years, it's been very good - 6-7 increase approved for Wayne State percent. That's what you need (to keep tuition down)."

I understand where the governor's position. We all want to make education affordable," he said. 'Hopefully, the economy will show a little more growth." Schoolcraft's 3 percent increase could be considered a drop in the bucket compared with a 19.3 percent increase recently approved by Oakland University trustees and an 18.6 percent increase approved at Michigan Technological University,

University, the lowest percentage increase among Michigan's 15 public universities

'We've tried to avoid big increases," McDowell said. "We believe it's better to adopt a slight increase each year than a big one a few years down the road.'

Schoolcraft tuition will rise $1 for students living within its community college district, $1.50 for those living elsewhere in Michigan and $4 for out-of-state students in the coming school year.

One year ago, Schoolcraft tuition rose by 2.5 percent. Though declining state aid was the biggest reason cited for School-if an orthopedic surgeon tells you that you need a replacement knee or hip, you consider it reasonable to see another orthopedist to confirm the first physician's evaluation.

You should feel the same freedom to seek a second opinion in the medical diagnosis of your arthritic condition. Since you may require a lifetime of therapy, you are exercising good sense to substantiate the diagnosis and treatment presented by the initial doctor.

If you obtain a second opinion, you should, in fairness to the first doctor, find a second physician of equal training and experience. You should provide the second doctor with as much information as possible: x-rays, blood tests, and medical records of your past treatment. Finally, you should be ready to give the second doctor a complete and orderly account should be ready to give the second doctor a complete and orderly account of your condition.

Obtaining a second opinion can be a satisfying experience. Either you gain confidence to carry on the program previously outlined, or, you have reason to seek medical care more appropriate for your needs.

Putting the fizz in soda

Traditionally, Michigan residents traveling out of state can be recognized by their insistence on calling carbonated beverages "pop" instead of "soft drinks." In most states. 'pop" refers to someone's father.

State idiosyncrasies aside, North Americans love their carbonated beverages, whether they call them pop, soda or soft drinks, whether they chug them from bottles, cans, cartons, boxes or pouches. The soft drink industry experienced a growth that in the early '80s had every man, woman and child annually guzzling some 620 eight-ounce servings of soft drinks. That works out to an average of some 13 ounces

NOW, I'LL be the first to admit that one of my favorite potables is a 7-Eleven Big Gulp with just a smattering of ice and filled to the brim with Diet Pepsi. I've got so many empty 7-Eleven Big Gulp cups in the front seat of my car that it usually takes a garbage bag to get rid of them.

I'm a soft drink junkie. I'll even admit that the only reason I watched the Tyson-Spinks boxing match was to view "the fight before the fight." In a commercial that was almost longer than the main event, Pepsi supposedly beat out Coke, according to Pepsi.

Soft drinks are generally, but not always, carbonated, and contain a sweetening agent, edible acids and natural or artificial flavors. Today, everywhere people work or play, soft drinks are available. Consumption reflects their availability and advertising budgets.

SO WHERE did it all begin? In 1772, Englishman Joseph Priestley described a pleasant tasting, sparkling drink he produced by introducing carbon dioxide into the water. Thus, carbonated beverages were

In 1806, the real business of selling soft drinks was started by Benjamin Silliman, a chemistry professor at Yale. He started bottling carbonated water and selling it. Sometime after 1830, flavored soda water became popular, and by 1860, the census reported 123 plants producing carbonated drinks.

In 1886, a druggist and former Confederate soldier named John Styth Pemberton created a drink that lives on in the hearts and bellies of many today, cola. He added an extract from the African kola nut to the extract from cocoa. Sound familiar? (Coca cola.) It wasn't until 1893 that a famed Detroit druggist with the last name of Hires introduced bottled root beer. Currently, the most popular flavors of soft drinks, are, in order: cola, lemon lime, orange, ginger ale, root beer and grape.

NOW FOR the bad news.

Soda pop now provides some 8 percent of the calories consumed daily by the average person, with virtually all the calories coming from sugar. Soda pop also accounts for approximately 25 percent of our refined sugar consumption. Our yearly consumption of soft drinks surpasses milk, beer and coffee.

The precise formula of most soft drinks isn't well known. However, certain soft drinks are governed by the standards of identity enforced by the Food and Drug Administration.

HOW DOES all the so-called good stuff end up in the bottle? First off, the water used is subject to processing including chlorination, treatment with lime, coagulation, sedimentation and sand filtration. Then it is. treated with activated carbon. The syrup is the complete mixture of all the ingredients necessary to make the carbonated water.

Carbonation is accomplished by a premix process where a measured amount of syrup is placed in a washed bottle and a carbonated water is added. A constant counterpressure prevents the loss of carbo-

F YOU'VE EVER VISITED South Florida, the Caribbean Islands or the Bahamas, you know how good seafood fresh from the ocean can taste. Lobster, shrimp, oyster and clam dishes spiced with seasonings prevalent in the region are favorites of most travelers.

Although most of us can't hop on a plane and head south every time we yearn for tropical cuisine, we now can savor the flavor of the tropics right here in Michigan.

With seafood markets and seafood sections in grocery stores increasing in popularity, a taste of the Caribbean is only as far as your local supermarket. Or, if you prefer to let the experts do the cooking, at least one local restaurant specializes in food from the islands.

Key Largo, on the shore of Walled Lake, brings the Florida Keys a little closer to home. A gray-tip shark hangs from the ceiling and mahimahi, sailfish, barracuda and tarpon adorn the walls. Wait staff sport tropical shirts with khaki shorts and large windows overlook the open air deck and Walled Lake Tropical cuisine, as described by the restaurant's executive chef Frank Christian, blends foods prevalent in coastal Florida. the Caribbean and surrounding islands.

Although there isn't one single cooking style, all tropical cuisine uses the fresh ingredients that abound in the warm climate, such as citrus fruit, shrimp, oysters, clams, conch and other saltwater fish, avocado, papaya, corn, eggplant and an assortment of fresh vegetables. Spices, introduced to the region by ats various settlers, are what make the cuisine unique to the area. African, British, Dutch, French, Indian and Spanish influences are found in the cooking processes and choice of spices.

The first known settlers in the Caribbean were the Arawak Indians, who brought garlic, sweet potatoes, papaya and allspice to the islands. With the arrival of Seminole Indians, came the process of cooking food on wood grates they called babacoa. Today we call this cooking form barbecue.

French settlers introduced Cajun cooking to the area. Although Cajun cuisine has been popular in the south for centuries, its hot spices and charred cooking technique have become a national favorite only within the past five years.

With African slaves brought over to work on sugar plantations came peas, beans, peanuts and okra. Another prominent spice, curry, made it's way to our Southern coastal states when slavery was abolished and plantation owners looked to the Chinese and East Indians for labor.

Today the predominance of these cultures, plus the influences of Cubans, Haitians, Puerto Ricans, inhabitants of Barbados, Jamaica and Trinadad, can all be tasted in Florida and its trop-

To try a sample of these treats, we ventured to Key Largo Restaurant. Opened in May 1987, the restaurant offers fare that's "serious food but fun to eat," according to co-owner Roger Kazanowski

Christian incorporates the restaurant's tropical theme into dishes not usually found north of the Mason-Dixon line. Cajun popcorn (Louisiana crawfish tails fried in a spicy Cajun batter), Key West conch fritters, almond batter shrimp, Cajun barbecue shrimp, Tahiti stir-fry and, of course, Key lime pie, are just some of the treats found on Key Largo's menu.

As an accompaniment to the tropical cuisine, Christian suggests one of the popular rum and fruit drinks for which the Islands are noted, such as a Bahama Mama, Goombay Smash or Yellow Bird. If sweet drinks aren't to your liking, the chef says

To bring a little Caribbean cooking into your home, Christian provided us with a few recipes. Key Largo bartender Karla Bradshaw added instructions for her Goombay Smash and Bahama Mama.

So, whether you're on a Caribbean Island overlooking the ocean or sitting in your backyard gazing out over the barbecue grill and swing set, you can savor the flavor of the tropics.

Picking the best of the melon patch

By Anne Lehmann special writer

It's that time of year again, when the fruit bins strain with the weight of juicy, fragrant melons.

Cantaloupes, honeydews, crenshaws, casabas, persian, Juan and Canaries are low in calories, rich in vitamins A and C and can add a touch of elegance to the simplest of meals. Colorful and flavorful, they make wonderful decorative centerpieces and are light and refreshing whether eaten for breakfast or des-

Christopher Columbus was such a fan of these succulent fruits, Joe Carcione notes in his book "The Greengrocer," that he planted them in the New World March 29, 1494.

"We know the date," he writes, because he considered it important enough to note in his record of expe-

The most popular and easily found variety of melons are cantaloupes and honeydews. The most reliable and least costly of these fruits, the cantaloupe, has a relatively long season spanning six months from June to November.

Grown mainly in California and the Southwest, these fruits are best bought when they are firm and unbruised, bearing in mind that they will continue to ripen at room temperature.

The melon should give slightly when pressed and be fragrant. Also. a general rule of thumb about melon buying is to avoid ones that slosh when shaken. Generally they will be mushy and may have already started to sour. Also, avoid soft melons.

Honeydews, which are the sweetest melons, if not the sweetest fruit, should be ripe at the time of purchase and refrigerated immediately. Once the fruit is picked, it will not continue to ripen. This oval smooth skinned melon with light green flesh is grown mainly in Cali-fornia as well as Texas and Arizona. Though imports sometimes makes it possible to enjoy these fruits year round, their peak season is from June to October.

How do you choose the best of the crop? According to Jack Murdich in his book "Buying Produce," "choose one that smells like a flower, is the color of butter, has a slight give at the blossom end and feels like a baby's bottom."

Crenshaw melons are a hybrid between persian and casaba melons, and are all-around winners. Large in size (weighing up to 10 pounds per melon), the golden skin is smooth and velvety with no netting, rather lengthwise ribbing; and is flat-bot-tomed with a pointed end stem.

The salmon colored thick-meated flesh has a rich aroma and a juicy spicy flavor, but will taste like squash it if isn't fully matured. Like cantaloupe, crenshaws will ripen at room temperature. Supplies of these melons peak from August through October.

Persian melons look like large cantaloupes that are rounder and have finer, flatter netting. The pink orange meat is mildly sweet in taste and has a distinctive musky aroma. Availability is best between August and September, with California again being the major supplier of these fruits. The sweet and juicy Juan Canary melons look like lemon-cold honeydews , but are extremely delicate. They tend to be too firm or too

Arrange fish fillets in a microwave-safe 8- by 8- by 2-inch baking dish. Turn under any thin portions to obtain a uniform thickness. Cover with clear microwave-safe plastic wrap; vent by leaving a small area unsealed at edge of dish. Cook on 100 percent power (high) for 4 to 7 minutes or until fish just flakes with a fork, giving the dish a half-turn after 4 minutes. Cover to keep warm.

In a 2-cup, microwave-safe measure, stir together orange peel, orange juice, carrot, salt and cornstarch. Cook, uncovered, on high 3 to 5 minutes or until thickened and bubbly, stirring after every minute. Cook on high 30 seconds more. Stir in chopped cucumber. Place cucumber slices on serving platter. Spoon sauce over all.

Makes 4 servings.

Turn backyard parties into picnics for the host

In a recent column, I discussed romantic picnics for two. These are, indeed, lovely. But one reader who called expressed a need for suggestions to help with larger picnics and backyard parties.

Potlucks, where everybody brings food to share, are great, but sometimes it becomes necessary for you to be host or hostess and provide food for a large party.

I have had backyard gatherings varying in size from 15-20 people to more than 300 hungry guests.

It took me many years to learn that it is possible to prepare all the food for such a party, and still have time to socialize and enjoy your

Sometimes, for a very large party. I may have one dish, such as a round of beef or a birthday cake, prepared

But I really prefer to cook every-thing myself. I'm just conceited enough to feel that it tastes better --

I once knew a very wealthy woman who was an excellent cook, and enjoyed doing all the food preparation for her own dinner parties. Many people never knew this, because she always hired a maid and butler to serve the food and clean the kitchen. This, of course, is the best plan, but few of us can afford it.

Here are five rules for cooking, serving and entertaining at a large backyard party, and making it look

- Make lists and follow them. Work ahead of time
- 3. Program the music.
- Ask for help.
- 5. Enjoy now, clean later.

Make lists and follow them

. A. First of all, make a guest list, and plan to accommodate all your guests. If you have a guest who is diabetic, or one with severe allergies, try to serve at least one or two things he can have. You don't have to plan a sugar or milk-free meal, but just include something just right for

Plan seating enough for everyone. Blankets on the ground are great, but do have a few chairs for people who, because of age, back problems, recent surgeries, etc., can sit comfortably. Then see that they get to sit

Don't worry about the children present. They will find each other, and make their own fun.

If there are people coming with small children, plan ahead for a playpen or nap space. One lady I knew set up a temporary nursery in her garage when she had her niece's wedding shower in her yard.

The best backyard parties are those that include people of all ages. You must be ready for them at any real family or neighborhood party.

. B. List the foods you plan to serve. If you make any changes along the way, such as adding relishes, or deciding against potatoes, make a note for these changes.

Have a checklist ready so you won't forget the butter and rolls, or anything else.

I once spent several hours making ham rolls for a large party, only to find them still in the refrigerator when the party was over. I had forgotten to serve them. Another time, I did the same with a really special frozen slaw I had made a few days earlier and put in the freezer. A good list that you can check over again and again will prevent this.

· C. List the things you need to assemble: plates, serving spoons, ta-, blecloths, cups, ice, etc. Don't get caught at the last minute without napkins.

Work ahead of time

Prepare all the food you possibly can well ahead of time. Unless you have someone in your family who really enjoys standing over a smoking grill, cooking steaks or hamburgers for all the other people, prepare kitchen witch

Gundella

these ahead. (Yes, even the steak! See the recipe below.)

Program the music

Provide appropriate music. Don't just turn the radio on and hope for something you like. Use live music, if you can. If not, use tapes, carefully planned, with selections to suit your

If you're serving tacos, try some mariachi music. For a real barbecue, try country western or square dance music. Dixieland banjos, marching bands, or other novelty type music is great for picnics. Sing-alongs are fun. Don't be afraid to try something different. I had a real German band and "oompa-pa" music at a backyard party this summer, and everyone loved it.

Ask for help

Use your guests to help you. There is nothing wrong with asking company to carry out the salad, or get the baked potatoes out of the oven. Fancy watermelon baskets are lovely. but a lot of work. Instead, try taking a whole watermelon out of an ice chest, place it on a tray and asking a guest to cut and serve it for you. Everyone will love it, and it's no work

Enjoy now, clean later

Don't spoil your party worrying about the cleanup. When people are through eating, put away the perishable foods. Throw away paper plates, etc., and let everything go until tomorrow.

It won't run away, and you can enjoy remembering how successful your party was when you clean up at your leisure.

Don't throw away the leftovers Either freeze them for use a week or so later, or allow your friends to take home doggie bags. Most people really like to do that, and the doggies seldom, if ever, get to see the food.

Then, the next day, when your guests are eating a piece of your cake, or a bit of your salad, they, too, are reliving the great time they had the day before at your party.

Oven Steaks

Start with any cut of steak. New York strip steaks work very well. Trim off the excess fat, and cut into nice serving pieces

Pat steaks dry, and wrap in fresh bread crumbs that have been seasoned with salt, pepper, marjoram, and garlie.

Brown all sides nicely with oil in a frying pan. Put about one inch of water in the bottom of a roaster. (The old portable electric ovens are great for this.) Place steaks on a rack above the water. You may layer them, but dribble a small bit of liguid margarine or light liquid oil between each layer. Cover tightly, and refrigerate until 45 minutes before serving time.

Cook in a 350-degree oven about 45 minutes, and serve.

Hamburger Turnovers

Hamburger or cheeseburger turnovers are a favorite of kids, teenagers and older people alike.

You can make them man-sized, or little dainty appetizers. My daughter makes over-sized ones that raise up in strange shapes, and calls them monster rolls.

Man needs nature to grow, thrive

When I was single, a buddy and I looked at the same girl and commented about her beauty.

He thought she was a goddess. I thought she was nice but not extraordinary.

Weather forecasters look at the same maps but predict different outcomes. Different people obviously see things in different ways

Along my route to work, there is "for sale" sign on some land. What struck me was the word "vacant" describing this piece of prop-

Numerous insects inhabit the upper canopy of tree leaves, the annuals and perennials below, and even underground.

So to my eye the land does not fit Webster's definition of "vacant" because it is occupied and it is put to use. But the implication is that it is not occupied by man or used by man. In fact, many people must ascribe a utilitarian value to an object before it is considered worthy.

Individual plants and animals inhabiting the land are facinating subjects in shape, physiology, and adaptation and deserve to live. Even if those features are not justification for their preservation, let us think how they can help man.

THINK OF the revenue selling Grand Central Park could bring to New York City, yet no one is thinking of selling this prime land. It has value in its natural state

PLYMOUTH DISTRICT LIBRARY COUNTY OF WAYNE, MICHIGAN

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON INCREASING PROPERTY TAXES

The Board of Trustees of the Plymouth District Library, County of Wayne, Michigan, will hold a public hearing at 7 p.m., Eastern Daylight Savings Time, on August 8, 1988, in the Meeting Room of the Plymouth District Library, Plymouth, Michigan on the proposed district library tax levy for the 1988 fiscal year.

Due to anticipated operating costs and in order to fund the District Library's proposed operating budget and maintain services, the District Library finds it necessary to restore its operating millage levy reduction as permitted by law. Because of an estimated increase in the state equalized value of existing property in the District Library, state law (Act 5 of 1982) provides that the base tax rate for 1988 District Library operating taxes be reduced by .0399 mills ($0.0399 per $1,000 SEV) from the 1987 operating tax rate.

Within its authorized millage rate, and as allowed by state law (Act 5 of 1982), the District Library proposes to levy an additional millage rate of .0399 mills ($0.0399 per $1,000 SEV). This will provide an estimated 3.7% increase in District Library operating tax revenues. The total number of mills to be levied, including the proposed additional millage rate, would remain within the voter approved and previously authorized millage rate and is the same as the operating millage levied for 1987. The District Library has complete authority under state law to establish the number of mills to be levied within its authorized millage rate.

Public comments, oral or written, are welcome at the hearing on the proposed additional millage rate.

Huskies dealt hockey defeat

There are no unbeaten teams in rendered the distinction of having the Metro Summer Hockey League after the Huskies were tripped up by the Wildcats last week.

The Huskies, who were assured of the Eagle Conference's top seed for the start of the playoffs this week, suffered their first defeat Thursday in a 9-7 loss to the Wildcats.

The winners, the third-place outfit in the Bakes Conference, poured on the coal in the second period when they erupted for seven goals and a 9-4 lead.

Jim Hubenschmidt, who paced the Wildcats with three goals and two assists, netted two of his scores in that decisive period.

The Huskies attempted to rally, outscoring the Wildcats 3-0 in the finale, but it was a case of too little,

Ex-area golfer just glad to be on Tour

By Brad Emons staff writer

With no job and no place to go, Bob Proben's only alternative was to try to get back on the Professional Golfers Tour.

But all golfers know that cracking the PGA Tour is no easy task.

It's like swimming the English Channel or scaling the Himalaya Mountains. It's not impossible, but often improbable.

Buoyed by his faith in God, the Thurston High product regained his card and is back on the tour after finishing 12th at the PGA's Tour

School last winter in Florida. There are no guarantees he'll remain there. Proben missed his first nine cuts in 1988, 14 all together including last weekend's Buick Open at Warwick Hills in Grand Blanc.

But the lack of success hasn't soured his desire or optimism.

"I've been enjoying myself, getting a little better, making some cuts and having a good time," said Proben, who has won $25,000 on the tour so far this year. Despite the disappointment of Friday's round of 73 after shooting a 1under 71 on Thursday (he missed the cut by two), the Redford native was glad to be in familiar territory

AMONG THE GALLERY Thursday was his mother and his younger brother. His girlfriend, whom he met at his church in Rochester, N.Y., where he now makes his home, was also on hand, watching him play for the first time.

Outspoken in his religious beliefs, Proben belongs to the Assembly of God denomination and is a regular

But Proben admitted his "bornagain Christian" beliefs may have member of the PGA's bible study triggered a falling out with Craig

Open. (His best finish this season is a tie for 15th at the Independent Insurance Open at the Tournament Players Club at the Woodlands in Houston, Texas, where he won $10,500, his biggest payday on the tour.)

Proben left the tour to become an assistant pro at Grosse Ile Country Club where he spent two years under Steve Horvat.

He then made the move to upstate New York.

"I THOUGHT at the time that I needed to go to a bigger club so I went to Oak Hill because it looked good on my resume," Proben explained. "For five years I didn't really play much golf. I was like any other club pro, teaching and giving lessons, and doing what club pros

By finishing 12th at the PGA School, Proben was among 50 newcomers to the tour in 1988.

But with the tour already past the halfway mark, Proben is trying to find the right touch, particularly on the greens, to keep himself above water

"I'm really not his mentor, but we're working with Bob's concentration, his putting and his overall strokes," said Mike Jeffrey of Libertyville, Ill., a PGA tour caddy who has worked with Proben the last three stops. "I think things have been working out better lately. He's learning to have more patience and we've tried to avoid him getting down on

Walter's stuns Holzer Ford

It didn't take long for an upset to take place in the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League playoffs.

In Friday's opener, the first game of a doubleheader at Ford Field, third place Walter's Appliance (15-14-1) of Livonia surprised second place Tom Holzer Ford (23-7) of Farmington Hills. 6-5

In the second game, regular season champion Livonia Little Caesars (25-5) hammered out a sixinning 15-5 mercy rule victory over Hines Park Lincoln-Mercury of Plymouth-Canton

Play continued Sunday at Ford Field with three games slated in the double-elimination tournament The championship is scheduled for 5:30 p.m. Tuesday and 8 p.m (if necessary). The playoff champion advances to the All-American Amateur Baseball Tournament Aug 15 in Johnstown. Pa More playoff LCBL results will appear in Thursday's Observer

A fired-up Walter's team got some sterling relief help from Dave Houghtby, a senior left-hander who just graduated from Livonia Stevenson High to beat Tom Holzer Ford

HOUGHTBY, who came on for starter Joe Mackiewicz in the fifth inning, set down eight of the final batters he faced to preserve the win The by a Walter's infield error only baserunner he allowed was a walk in the fi-

Mackiewicz got credit for the victory, while Holzer starter Tom Cotter, the North Farmington High product, took the loss.

Holzer jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the top of the first on a two-run single by Andy Fairman. Walter's got a run back in the bottom of the inning on Rick Karcher's RBI double. Ironically, Karcher and Cotter were teammates at North In the third, Walter's tied it up when John Knit-tel (Livonia Churchill High and Kalamazoo College) triples and came home on Karcher's single. Both Knittel and Karcher, each going 3-for-4 on the night, weren't finished

In the next inning, the fourth, Walter's exploded for four runs after Steve Rudelic's solo homer had given Holzer a short-lived 3-2 advantage.

KNITTEL KNOCKED another run with a single to tie it up and Karcher followed with the big blow of the game, a three-run double.

But Holzer would not quit, scoring twice in the fifth thanks to an RBI single by Fairman followed

But Houghtby slammed the door to get the final out and then relied on his defense as third base-

Caesars, meanwhile, broke away from a 6-5 advantage in the fourth, scoring three times followed by five more in the fifth and one in the sixth as Shawn Uzarski, who went 3-for-4 and knocked in four runs, drove home the final run off Hines Park reliever Jeff Lyle (Canton High and Kent State) to end the game.

Caesars out-hit Hines Park, 12-10.

Second baseman Art George (Redford Thurston High and the University of Evansville) added three hits and scored three runs, while Steve Looney chipped in with three hits and Ken Wandzel (Redford Catholic Central High and MSU) added

ROB ADAMS went 4-for-4 in a losing cause, catcher Dwayne Bennett (Canton High and the University of Detroit) added two hits and three RBI Second baseman Kevin Learned (Canton High) also had two hits.

Rob Jamula, the 6-foot-4 right-hander from Taylor, worked five innings to pick up the win. He struck out 10 before giving way to Tony Yandura.

Todd Marion, who went to Salem High and is bound for the University of Michigan, was the losing pitcher. He worked the first four innings.

Salem advanced to the Final Four in the state tournament the last two years, a team achievement Head cites as one of her most memorable.

Head concentrated solely on basketball as a senior, but she was a promising soccer player as a freshman and ran track the next two years. Basketball, however, was always No. 1.

Ironically, Salem won the state championship in soccer in 1987, the goal that eluded Head and her teammates in basketball.

"I ENJOYED soccer as a sport to play," she said, adding she gave up the "contact sport" to avoid the possibility of an injury that might have jeopardized her cage career. Though we never won the state title (in basket-

Exploring Serengeti Papa style

By Roberta Schwartz special writer

O&F: Monday, August 1, 1988

Today Ernest Hemingway wouldn't recognize the East Africa that he saw on safari in 1933 and 1953. But the novelist is well remembered for his "Green Hills of Africa" and "Snows of Kilimanjaro" stories, which popularized tourism in Kenya.

When Hemingway first arrived in Nairobi with his second wife. Pauline, the country was still new and the city a collection of mismatched buildings. Pauline's uncle, Gus Pfeifer, had given the couple $25,000 which Hemingway used to hire the famed white hunter Philip Percival as a guide.

The Hemingways and their Key West friend Charles Thompson set off for the Serengeti Plain in a car. Two trucks, loaded with camping gear, followed. The party also included two gunbearers and Percival's assistant Hemingway, Thompson and Pauline soon shot four lions, two big leopards, 35 hyenas, the limit on cheetah, antelope, eland, waterbuck and gazelles.

The exultant novelist wrote that nothing he had read in Theodore Roosevelt's "African Game Trails" gave him a clear idea of the beauty of Africa or the abundance of its game.

When a bout with amoebic dysentery sent Hemingway back to Nairobi's New Stanley Hotel to recuperate, he was cheered by news that "Winner Take Nothing" had sold 12,500 copies two months after being published in

Today, the hotel's Thorn Tree Cafe, where he loved to drink and mingle, looks out on a city of 1 million people, a city made of concrete and skyscrapers.

Hemingway wrote of his frustration over the superior beasts which his friend Thompson consistently shot and of his preoccupation with artistic integrity and death in

TODAY, every Kenyan school child reads his work, and the books are displayed at the home of Hemingway's friend Baron Bror von Blixen, husband of novelist Isak Dinesen

The Blixen plantation, which the novelist sometimes visited, appears in the opening scenes of the film, "Out of Africa," and tourists enjoy seeing the beautifully preserved estate at the foot of the Ngong (Knuckles) Hills.

Although Hemingway's private safari would be too expensive for many travelers today, it's still possible. Most visitors prefer to ride in 12-seat minibuses or Land Rovers and admire game from their retractable roofs.

Hunting is forbidden in the great national game parks of Kenya, and the guides say poachers are hanged.

Many animals have been placed on the endangered list, and the seemingly endless herds of which Hemingway wrote have disappeared. In the Masai Mara Game Reserve, one can still see great herds as they migrate to other parks, but they do not appear in the abundance of Travelers are well advised to take malaria pills and get the proper vaccinations to avoid the illness which put Hemingway out of action. But the flavor and excitement of his positive experiences in Africa are still avail-

The Serena and Sarova Hotels offer five star lodging in the national parks and are competitive with the finest accommodations in the world. Barbecues in a roaring pit under the stars of Africa can not be duplicated elsewhere, and the romance and loneliness of African nights make the safari an unmatchable experience.

A TREE full of baboons that keeps hotel guests awake by running on the roof all night. The scratching and screaming of a large cat at the door that the manager claims was a pet bush baby. Signs that read, "do not leave your shoes outside the door or the hyenas will car-

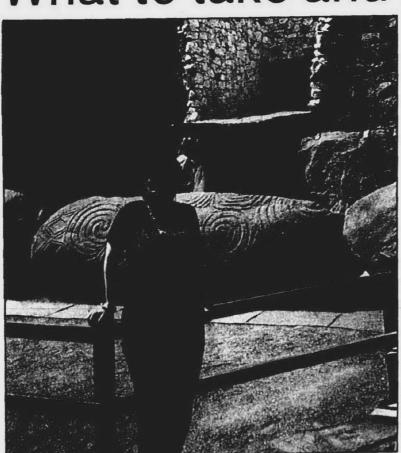

African visitors carry these images home with them.

The enormous herds of wild animals that Ernest Hemingway saw on the Serengeti Plain during his safaris have been thinned out over the years through poaching.

What to take and not take on safari

Roberta Schwartz is a free-lance writer and a professor of journalism at Oakland University. She received her doctoral degree from Wayne State University and has often taught courses on Hemingway's stories. She is exhibiting a collection of Hemingway memorabilia at the Rochester Hills Public Library this month.

There are a few things to take into consideration, when pondering and African safari. It's not like tossing a few things in a suitcase and heading off for a week in Orlando or on the beaches in the Bahamas.

are some travel tips and information about the "Dark Conti-

Climate: The rain comes in short and heavy downpours. The long rains fall between March and June and the short rains in November. December through March can be sunny and hot and July quite cool.

Visitors should bring summer cottons, but a lined jacket and jeans will be best for early morning safaris and evenings. Good sunglasses, sun screens with at least a 15 factor, and a protective hat are essential.

Currency: Kenya shillings break down into 100 cents. The dollar is doing well in East Africa and brings about 17 shillings.

Health: Although vaccinations are not required for East Africa, travelers know that anti-malarial pills are a must. Best bet is to go to clinics, such as Interhealth at Royal Oak's Beaumont Hospital, for immunizations and information on this high risk country. Polio, yellow fever, tetanus and other innoculations should be updated.

Getting there: British Airways offers regular service to Nairobi and service is excellent in all classes. First and business class provide room to stretch out and sleep during the nine-hour flight from London and the splendid cabin service includes hot fish and beef hors d'oeuvres and a five-course meal of excellent qual-

Kenya Airways has upgraded its service, but food is sparse compared to the lavish spread British Airways puts on. The first-class compartment seems cramped and passengers have only limited space for reclining on the long flight to Nairobi.

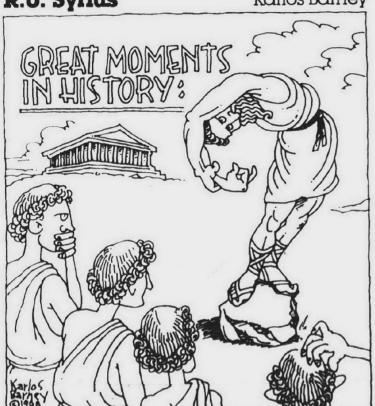

Food and drink: Kenya rum is of excellent quality and quite inexpensive. Tusk beer consistently wins medals internationally. Nairobi boasts good Italian, Indian, and English food, but the Wimpy Burger on Kenyata Avenue is the pits. The locals say it serves hyena burgers, but they eat there anyway.

Overland travel: Kenya Wildlife Trails Ltd. in the Kimathi House opposite the New Stanley Hotel, P.O. Box 44687, Nairobi, offers comfortable minibus transportation to the

Petoskey: Penchant for historic hotels

By Iris Sanderson Jones contributing travel editor

Q: My wife and I would like to stay in one of those historic old hotels in the Petoskey area. She's not really into bed-andbreakfast, or sharing a bathroom. What do you suggest? We've never been to the area before.

I.M., Westland

A: A lot of things are going on up there in the historic hotel business. The Perry Hotel, a national historic landmark in the heart of downtown, has been renovated to the tune of $3.5 million. The whole adjacent "village" of Bay View, site of the Terrace Inn, was designated a national historic landmark in July

The highly rated Stafford's Bay View Inn, overlooking Little Traverse Bay across US-31 from Bay View, remains the jewel of northern Michigan. Stafford "Duff" Smith has spent the last two years as president of Country Inns and Back Roads Association, known to most people by a guide book of that name.

The rooms in all three places have contemporary beds and private bathrooms. Only the decor and the ambiance hail back to the 19th century.

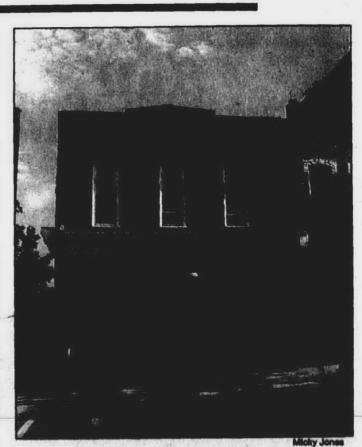

Your view of a town is often determined by where you stay and what you can do from there. If you have never been to Petoskey, let's walk out on the breakwater together and look at the town.

The lake steamers came into Little Traverse Bay at the turn-of-the-century, bringing travelers to Petoskey and to Harbor Springs on the north side of the bay, but especially to the expensive, twoand three-story Victorian cottages built on the outskirts of both cities.

Sightseers still can't pass through the gate to the point at Harbor Springs, where famous families once brought their children and their maids for the summer. However, the roads throughout Bay View, immediately adjacent to Petoskey, are open to visitors.

THE TOWN of Petoskey, across shimmering strip of water from the breakwater and the lighthouse, was

That spirit is what Anderson want-

'Sound Alarm' was recorded in Memphis, Tenn., because "we didn't any record company people hanging around." The studio where Anderson worked was in the producer's living

Anderson found the surroundings quite inspirational, listening to the endless stream of blues, black gospel and rock and roll on the radio. The back-to-basics sessions made him realize why he got into the rock and roll business to begin with.

Grand Rapids was not exactly a haven for rock music. Anderson tuned into the Detroit music of Bob Seger, MC-5 and Mitch Ryder. He came to Detroit for a while before departing for Los Angeles.

IN L.A., he played in some rather non-descript bands — The Strangers, The Edge and King Street Dukes, He. joined drummer/vocalist Phil Seymour for awhile. Then he left the

Song to yield help for state farmers By Larry O'Connor staff writer

Jonathon Skyhawk doesn't wear coveralls. He has never plowed a field or planted a seed of corn.

But the plight of today's farmer is an issue that hits home to the country and western singer. Skyhawk recently released a single about those who try to make a living from farm-

Part of the proceeds from the single, "A Farmer's Life," will be donated to the Michigan Farm Unity Coalition.

"I don't know anything about farming," said Skyhawk, a Blackfeet Indian. "But I know what it is like to come from a poor family. We had 12 in our family, so I know what it is like to have to stretch things.

The tune is not standard knee slapping country and western fare. The song is more of the easy-listen-

Already "A Farmer's Life" is on the playlists at country and western stations WWWW-FM and WCXI-AM Jacqueline Kozara, Skyhawk's manager, has approached WOMC-FM about playing the song as well.

THE CROSSOVER potential is obviously there. Whether one wears cowboy boots, motorcyle boots or designer dress shoes, the message is clear. Simply put in one of the lyrics: 'If he don't work, we don't eat.'

With this summer's drought in the state, the song even has more of an impact. Skyhawk, though, wrote the song three years ago.

The rough life of a farmer is one of a few conscious-raising numbers he has written during the last few years. AIDS and child abuse are other things he's touched on in song. They're not exactly typical country and western song topics.

But then again, Skyhawk is not exactly the typical country and western singer. His Indian heritage makes him unique as does his songwriting and performing style.

"I do have your typical, 'crying-inyour-beer' songs," he said. "I also write happy songs about nature. When I see something that gets my looking at it . . . To me it's about Americans helping Americans."

Skyhawk is committed by more than just recording a single. He and his manager raised the money for the project on their own.

Skyhawk, also a graphic artist, designed sweatshirts with teddy bears on them that he and his manager sold. The money from the sweatshirt sales went into the record.

Jonathon Skyhawk helps farmers

BUT TRYING to get airplay for the single will be more difficult than selling sweatshirts. Skyhawk and his manager are confident they can accomplish that.

Also, getting a record company to pick up the single for distribution is not out of the question either. The single is already at Harmony House

All of which will give a boost to Skyhawk's fledging music career.

'I'm not trying to fool anybody.' he said. "When you put a record out like this, you expect to get something. All the way, though, we just want to help out the farmers. When people buy the record, they're helping the farmers. When a radio station plays it, they're helping the

"How much is in it for them?" People are always going to say

By listening to the song, people will have little doubts about his sincerity. His manager, Kozara, left her bank job to devote her energy into making the record a success.

THE GAME PLAN includes marketing "A Farmer's Life" statewide. Then going to another farming state in the Midwest. The end result of the state-by-state approach would have the single receiving national atten-

Another avenue for that would be a chance to perform at the next 'Farm Aid' benefit, which is in the works for sometime in the fall

CATCH THE WIND — Donovan

There's a lot more to '60s folkrocker Donovan than his cute and catchy hits "Mellow Yellow" and "Sunshine Superman." The just-released CD compilation,

"Catch The Wind," makes this case, as it features the best recordings from Donovan's ramblin' folksinger days, which predated his psychedelic '60s years of pop stardom.

The songs are taken from his first two British albums, recorded in 1965. The young Donovan is again revealed as a tasteful, expressive singer-songwriter and solid guitarist. His best early songs are here, including "Colors," "Catch the Wind," "Sunny Goodge Street" and "To Sing for You." Also included are some written by British folky Bert Jansch, which suit Donovan's voice and gui-

Oddly, there is only one other Donovan title out on CD, his greatest hits on Columbia. Just two CDs it's a number that pales in comparison to the number of CD releases by other '60s legends.

But Donovan deserves his due. And while he may not get it from music critics, Donovan was called back for several encores at a recent sold-out show at the Royal Oak Music Theater. As he played his 1968 hit "Hurdy Gurdy Man" in Royal Oak, Donovan recalled writing it while hanging out in India with the Beatles. Telling the audience that George Harrison had written a verse, he asked, "Would you like to hear George's words?" The lyric was vintage peace-love Harrison. After singing it, Donovan said, "Well spoken, George." It was a thrilling moment, as people responded with enthusiastic applause. Ole' George Harrison has still got it, and so does Donovan. And on the CD compilation "Catch the Wind," one can sample the best early material of a singer who's offered more than many give him credit for.

EDEN ALLEY - Timbuk 3

Some musical acts are so easy to label. Sometimes they just beg for labels, trying to catch the ride with the next big thing.

For every R.E.M., U2, The Smiths and Replacements, there are 10 clones In Timbuk 3, however, we have a group that escapes labels like the Roadrunner dodges Wyle E. Coyote.

We have a group here that is refreshingly original. And better yet, enjoy-"EDEN ALLEY" (I.R.S.) is an album that somehow manages to be soothing, infectious and yet challenging. Satire is the forte of this two-person Austin, Texas, based group. The husband-wife team of Pat McDonald and Barbara K. have a way of laughing at sex, religion and politics, using a rather eclectic, slow, melodic sound.

There's blues to be heard in "Hey, Reckless Driver." There's a bit of reggae in "A Sinful Life" and ska in "Too Much Sex, Not Enough Affec-BUT THE song subjects are seriously amusing. In the slice-of-life-in-Johnny can't read, Sally can't write/the board of education rumbles in the night."

The yuppie-come-down-to-earth tune, "Welcome to the Human Race," smacks with sarcasm. Of course, lest we forget the enjoyable, bluesy "The Jack and his Roamin" Cadillac Church." A sense of humor is not a lacking commodity here.

Neither is teamwork. Pat McDonald and Barbara K. not only have quite a knack for writing quirky songs, but they really click well as a singing duo. Some of the many highlights on this album are the numbers where they sing in harmo-

"Easy" really showcases Barbara K.'s vocal ability as "Sample the Dog" does for McDonald. In fact, after sampling "Eden Alley," Timbuk 3 is very easy to like.

AWAKEN AT TWILIGHT

— It's Raining

One member of the eclectic musical group, the Volebeats, is doing quite well, thank you. Matthew Smith is making his own music in fine style as "Awakened at Twilight" (Certain Records) would attest.

And unlike the raw, backwoods beat of the Volebeats, Smith is going to town with a more uptempo contemporary sound. He hits full throttle with guitar lashing numbers and hits the brakes with pastoral piano pieces. Kinda like R.E.M. meets

Bruce Hornsby. Many of the songs here have an appeal and hooks are plentiful. The writing is fresh, another credit to

Smith.

Some of the songs deal with the often maligned topic of lost love. Except Smith uses strong metaphors to highlight the anguish of it all. In 'Upstairs," there are lines like these: 'The sheets are strangling me again/Stretching in every direction/ Dragging me into this nightmare/I can feel her presence up above."

It packs more of an emotional wallop then say, "Betty Jean left me for some dude with a Corvette."

"Christine Is Not Herself Today" uses an upbeat melody to tell the story of a tortured soul. "She said I shouldn't laugh at her/I felt bad/I felt ashamed/She didn't have the courage to take a stand/I watched happiness slip through her hands.' Again, Smith uses imagery well. But while "Awaken at Twilight" is quite an ambitious project lyrically, there really doesn't seem to be any new ground broken here musically. The shades of piano are a nice touch. So is the trumpet in the song, "In Empty Harbors.

The guitar riffs, too, are well done. But they sound too familiar. And guitar is what we hear throughout this album.

Many of the songs on "Awaken at Twilight" score well. What this alburn needs, however, is a knockout punch.

always influenced by those summer' visitors. They came in by train to the long gray and white building, now a historical museum, on the waterfront near the marina and to a second station, now a small shopping center, across the street from the Perry Hotel.

The Perry was built in 1899 and was once one of 21 resort hotels in the area, their porches and lounges alive with music and dancing. The Perry is the only one left.

The hotel was sold to the Reycraft brothers in 1919, to new owners in the 1960s and to Curry Development Inc. of Chicago in 1985. Both Kristine and Arthur Curry had spent childhood summers in northern Michigan. Kristine now writes a wine column for the Chicago Tribune; Arthur is president of Singer and Co. Securities in Chicago.

The first thing they did was to apply for national historic landmark status, which they received. It took several million dollars to bring the old hotel into the 1980s. The reception desk was moved to the back to be accessible to the parking lot. You can still walk in via the old entrance, across the big porch and into the public rooms.

The original tin ceilings are restored. A great mahogany bar was moved from a Fort Wayne hotel into the area outside the Perry dining room. There is an outdoor summer cafe, red checked table cloths and all, on the porch with its great white

An elevator takes you very slowly up to the rooms on the upper floors. The wide recarpeted hallways still slant slightly as they do in most of these old places, but the decor is well done and the rooms are attractive and comfortable. You will find your television set inside a Queen Anne armoire.

THE NORTH wing, added in the 1920s, has the same kind of rooms, many of them smaller, all renovated. These were originally built for summer travelers who came for the beach and didn't spend much time in their rooms. A second wing, still decorated in

A tip on prices: All the renovated rooms in the main building are considered streetside and rent for $69 single and $79 double. You'll pay $75 and $85 for the bayview rooms and some small suites, unrenovated.

The cruise weekend package through Oct. 16 includes Friday and Saturday lodging, Saturday lunch on the Star Cruise Ship, Saturday dinner and Sunday brunch at the Perry and costs $155.95 single and $130.95 per person double, plus state and local tax. Nixon used her for private working sessions, negotiations with foreign leaders, including Leonid Brezhnev, Prince Charles and Emperor Hirohito, and to announce his historic decision to resign because of the Watergate scandal.

In 1977 President Jimmy Carter directed the Secretary of Defense to dispose of the Sequoia through public sale. Although Carter proclaimed her the most patriotic and symbolic piece of government property ever to be owned privately, it was later sold for $286,000.

A Rhode Island businessman bought the Sequoia and planned to make a lot of money opening the yacht as a historical tourist attrac-tion. He kept the yacht four months before selling it for $325,000 to a South Carolina man who continued to operate the yacht as a tourist at-

Thirty-seven years to the day after being designated the presidential yacht, the Sequoia was bought by the Ocean Learning Institute in Palm Beach, Fla., for $750,000. Fifteen months later, after the creation of the Presidential Yacht Trust, she was acquired for $1.065 million, placed in service with the trust and returned to Washington for preservation as a historical vessel.

It took six months and $3.5 million to completely restore every inch of the yacht and she was rededicated at public ceremonies June 21, 1986, before she set sail for New York City and the Statue of Liberty centennial

Changing is success for the Pointer Sisters

By Larry O'Connor

Come one, come all to the Pointer Sisters show at the Meadow Brook Music Festival Tuesday those of you with just two legs.

"We have phobias about insects," said June Pointer, the oldest sister of perhaps the most successful sister singing group ever.

'We don't like bugs at all, so we tend to stay indoors. Outdoors is nice as long as the bugs stay away."

Fans of the non-bug variety haven't stayed away. Neither have the multitude of hit records and awards the Pointer Sisters have collected over the years. The sisters just released their 16th album, and they have no plans to slow down.

JUNE POINTER IS working on a solo album. Plus there's talk of movies and other solo projects as well.

Even with a truck load of awards and accolades, the challenge is still

"I think it's gotten more competitive," Pointer said. "I think you have to be original. We've never stuck with one sound.' And that, perhaps, has been the root of the Pointer Sisters success. The group has placed No. 1 hits on contempary black charts, pop charts, dance charts and even on the country charts. "Fairy Tale," a country single, mation, call 377-2010.

received a Grammy for Best Country Group Performance. As a result, they became the first female black group to play at the Grand Ole Opry. Other hits, such as "Fire," "I'm So Excited," "Jump," "He's So Shy," and "Slow Hand," have become pop classics in their own time.

THE POINTER Sisters burst on the scene in the early 1970s, using a combination of jazz, scat, rhythm and blues and pop. Their first two albums went gold.

But it wasn't until 1978 when they met up with producer Richard Perry that the hit string really started.

Perry has stayed with the group to date, producing their latest album. The group took a different approach this time, Pointer said.

'We changed a little bit to be more funky. We don't want to get totally stuck in the pop area. We took on more dance rhythms, upbeat tempos and added some raplike lyrics. We were just trying to make good dance music.

"Our shows are put together well," Pointer said. "We entertain our audiences. If you have all those elements, you don't have to worry about the competition.'

The Pointer Sisters will perthe Meadow Brook Music Festival in Rochester. For ticket infor-form at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 2, at The Pointer Sisters will perform Tuesday at the Meadow Brook Music Festival.

Seeing Hemingway's Africa: Expensive, but possible

Cheetahs spend a lazy day in the shade of a tree on the Serengeti Plain, unperturbed by the tourists and the clicks of cameras.

There's the Mt. Kenya Safari Club, with its lavish appointments and recessed tile baths, along with the game refuge for orphaned animals, established by actor William Holden. The famed Tree Tops Lodge in Abedares National Park is where Princess Elizabeth spent her honeymoon and emerged a queen.

It's much more fun to pursue game on the plain than be awakened at 3 a.m. to see animals through the glass windows of Tree Tops Lodge. The huge South African, who guides you to this famous hotel and bears an elephant gun on his shoulder, gives somber warning not to leave the hotel. Visitors don't venture out among the wild game frequenting this remote watering hole.

Most travelers like to shoot game just as Hemingway did, but today they do it with 35mm and video cameras, but there's still plenty of danger.

When the bus stalls on a 6:30 a.m. game hunt, it's fun to push it until an elephant on the roadside decides to charge the vehicle.

Rhinos can also be unpredictable and dangerous. It's marvelous to see them close up, but when one rhino turns out to have two agitated companions, it's time to swing the bus into a quick retreat. The Kikuyu guide, Patrick, loves to tell stories. Like many Africans, he has attended Catholic school and speaks good English. He knows all the animals on sight and carries a field guide with photos of mammals and

HE SAYS the animals are so used to seeing human beings they rarely attack. When a sun hat blows through the roof of the bus and almost lands on the head of a male lion, resting near the tire, Patrick jumps out to retrieve it.

"The lions were sleepy; they've just eaten," he said with a smile.

Patrick tells of the female tourist who was leaning out of a van when a lion raked her face with his paws to show that one never knows what to expect of these beasts. He enjoys describing how elephants sometimes pick up tents with campers still inside to steal their

"An elephant will kill you for your oranges, but he'll go away if you throw them out."

Patrick has a young family to support and unlike so many residents of Nairobi, he has a good job, even if it isn't so easy to please international tourists. He and his fellow drivers converse easily in Swahili and pass on tips about where game is to be found in the bush.

The guides think the tourists are soft, but they give them credit for going on safari.

Hemingway never mentions if he had uncomfortable ights in Africa. A magnificent leopard, which the Samouru Serena manager calls the biggest he has ever seen, nibbles on a stake, diced with raw meat, and curls his tail contentedly just 500 feet from the hotel. This traveler can only get to sleep by pretending she's camping out in Port Austin. When the leopard begins to roar, the fiction doesn't work

SOME tourists know no fear. A group of Swiss advance on a huge, tail thumping alligator lying by a river near the camp and throw him some fruit,

Some dangers are more abstruse. A tsetse fly, carrier of the sleeping sickness, lands on Patrick's hand in the tall grass of the Serengeti. He swats the insect immedi-

Later, a group of Masai hold a huge python aloft on a stick as they tend their cows. When a tourist from Rome takes their picture, they chase the bus because they believe the camera steals their souls. They throw stones and the bus accelerates. Many Africans have never seen a camera, Patric plained. He tells how a Masai began to choke one of his clients until Patrick offered to pay for the photo. The government of Kenya, the most stable in Africa, doesn't allow tourists to photograph shanty towns and poor people in the countryside. Searching out shy hippos who hide in a river and only blow bubbles and show their noses. Watching a solitary and gorgeous reticulated giraffe as he keeps cool in a tiny patch of shade on the scorching African afternoon. Observing a Superb Starling as he hops along the muddy track dug by the bus in the rain soaked plain. These impressions and the memory of the friendly Africans stay with the traveler to be tucked away in the imagination just as a handful of splendidly carved wooden beasts are packed in the silk lining of the suitcase.

FOR HEMINGWAY, Africa was not the lucky country because he died there long before he pulled the trigger in 1961. His legacy to the country was substantial, for it included his books and stories.

Although Africa has changed greatly since the novelist visited it, the mystery, beauty and danger that lured Hemingway still await those with the stamina and courage to undertake the trip. The splendor of Kilimanjaro, the majesty of Mt. Kenya, and the grandeur of the countryside make this arduous jaunt worth the effort many times over.

Most travelers like to shoot game just as Hemingway did, but today they do it with 35mm and video cameras, but there's still plenty of national parks and guides who, for the most part, make their own roads as the drive. They love their work and the running commentary on the country makes the trip a real winner.

In the United States, Abercrombie & Kent, 1420 Kensington Road, Suite 111, Oakbrook, Ill. 60521, offers luxurious, upscale safaris. The company is named for Ernest Hemingway's favorite sporting goods store, but there is no Abercrombie — just a Kent.

Travel documents: Valid passport and a visa, obtainable for $10 from the Kenya Embassy, 2249 R St., NW, Washington, D.C. 20008. Include two black and white passport photos and allow at least a month to receive the Customs: Bring cameras, extra batteries and plenty of film. It's a good idea to get a form from U.S. customs in the International Terminal of Detroit Metropolitan Airport and list video cameras, tripods, 35mm and other equipment, so you can show where you bought your

For double protection, if you still have sales receipts for these items, pack them. Otherwise, prepare for the possibility that you will have to leave this equipment in bond until departure from Kenya.

Make sure to keep receipts for all currency transactions as these must be shown upon departure. Exchange any leftover Kenyan currency at the bank in Nairobi because many times travelers must run from airport terminal to terminal seeking a bank with enough U.S. dollars to exchange for Kenyan. Never, never exchange currency on the blackmarket. Keep a $10 U.S. bill in your wallet for departure tax.

Photography: Many airport authorities will not allow hand inspection of film and cameras and the X- rays are super strong, so it's a good idea to buy a lead laminated bag in

For 35 mm cameras, ASA 100 and 65 film are quite good, and it's wise to invest in a filter. For video cameras, be sure to get a transformer at Radio Shack and purchase a plug to fit Kenyan wall sockets. Electricity fluctuates around 220 volts and 50 cycles, and one never knows about the power generators in game

Finally, carry plastic bags to protect cameras from thick dust on safari.

Safari hazards: Campers should sleep inside a tent and under a mosquito net. Larger game will usually walk miles out of the way to avoid human contact.

Water: Although many travelers rave about the tap water in Nairobi, it flows out of the faucet complete with sand. For safety, it's best to drink bottled water.

Insect repellant: Repellant should have a DEET factor of at least 30 percent, and lotions are superior to Shopping: The Africans are warm, friendly people and they love to bargain with their customers at tiny markets strewn all over the country. Hand carved animals and a string of malachite beads are must buys.

Reading: "Fodor's Kenya" and the "Insights Guide to Kenya" are indis-pensable companions. Pack a copy of the "Field Guide to the National Parks of Africa" and carry the wonderful illustrations of birds and animals along on safari as companion to really good binoculars.

A Word to the wise: Do not wear flashy jewelry in Nairobi or show credit cards and cash freely. Street crime has risen as the unemployment rate climbs. Although thiefs are sometimes stoned by the crowd, many still take a chance.

Never venture forth alone after dark because even during daylight hours on main streets, necklace grabbing is a favorite occupation.

Get a system, then stick to it

Q. I have so many things to do that I sometimes wake up in the middle of the night, fearing I'll forget something important. I try making lists but then lose my lists. How can I remember everything?

A. People who rely on their memory for details tend to suffer anxieties over the fear of forgetting. Writing down your tasks on paper removes the responsibility of remembering everything in your mind. It literally lightens your load.

There are various types of reminder systems but an important factor is to create and stick to one single kind so it is utilized consistently and located readily. Don't use a napkin in your pocket today and the back of an envelope on your desk tomorrow. You can purchase tablets, secretarial notebooks or long, narrow pads of paper in a bright color, making them more visible.

Many people prefer a calendar reminder system. There are numerous calendar books on the market that consolidate calendars with list making ability. The disadvantage of using large calendar books is that they are cumbersome to carry with you. I recommend they be carried only by people who spend a good deal of their time working away from home or office.

I prefer a simple Week At A Glance Professional Appointments calendar. This 8½-by-11-inch book spreads one week across two facing pages, providing lines for 15 minute increments. I incorporate my appointments together with my To Do's according to what time of a certain day I intend to work on a given task. By scheduling my work for specific times I am more likely to accomplish what needs doing. The book fits easily into my attache, desk filing drawer or on a book shelf.

Rather than making lists, the 3-by-5 system also works well alone or in conjunction with a calendar book. This reminder system uses 3-by-5 inch scratch sheets carried with you and stored by your bed and each telephone. As tasks are remembered, write each one on a separate sheet immediately, then file in a card file box. These reminders can be categorized by dividers according to your needs, or made into a tickler file (this date reminder file will be described in a separate column.)

Regardless of which system you use, it is imperative that you write down tasks immediately upon thinking of them and that you establish one single place to keep them.

Color schemes lend personality

T IS interesting to see the various room arrangements and styles in apartments and condos that are identical to the other units. An expression of your personal taste helps to give your place distinction and original appearance.

Most apartments and condos do not have a fireplace. Lacking that as a focal point, take the largest wall and use that for your central interest.

Your focal point should be of the correct size, scaled to the room. For example, a large room with a high ceiling and grand proportions needs a dominant focal point. A small room should not have a massive center of visual interest, since that would overwhelm the room.

THERE ARE numerous focal points. I recall a particular house I did some years ago for clients who were avid art collectors.

For architectural interest, I placed a chair rail around the room. I placed a tall display cabinet in the center of the wall, which served as the fireplace wall. The unit was flanked by love seats on either side. The wall was covered with their art works. This was the first thing you saw as you entered the room.

A sofa with a dominant painting is another way. Or you may try art works of varied sizes that are in diverse frames.

When you hang your paintings, graphics or whatever you are using, hang them at different levels so that you have a sense of movement.

THE IMAGINATIVE use of color does much to a standard room. Color is a very effective decorating tool. I have used navy walls with white ceiling and woodwork in a large living room. The walls, stained wood floor and Oriental rug were perfect foils for a wonderful art collection.

Unusual color schemes give a room great personality. For a striking combination, try milk chocolate with mauve and celadon; navy and white with splashes of yellow and mint green; banana with lavender, white and mauve; charcoal gray and white with mustard and terra cotta.

Home buyers want more amenities

MERICANS are spending more time at home, and as a result, home buyers are seeking a greater number of amenities in new homes, according to a nationally known real estate sales, design and marketing

Among the features buyers want are additional storage space, kitchen suites rather than four-walled kitchens, larger rooms, center-island kitchen arrangements, built-in appliances, master bedroom suites, walk-in closets, media walls in the family room, security systems and quality wood floors.

"Today's home buyer wants more amenities as standard offerings, not options," said Kristelle Petersen, president of Petersen Communications, a Dallas-based public relations and advertising firm.

A former editor for Better Homes and Gardens and real estate editor for the Dallas Times Herald, Petersen conducted a recent seminar for the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan.

"IN THE HOME building industry, demographic and sociologic trends are critically important," noted Herbert Lawson, BASM president. "Kristelle Petersen is extremely well qualified to discuss them.

"We know that changing lifestyles are affecting the market," he said. "People seem to be rediscovering the home as the center of their lives. This often means they will want more features in their home."

Petersen, who follows real estate trends closely and speaks throughout the country, cited surveys by Newsweek magazine and Professional Builder magazine that reported Americans are spending more time at home.

"This trend translates into a desire for more amenities in the home," she pointed out. "Features such as home offices, saunas, fitness rooms, central vacuum systems and home entertainment centers are gaining in popularity."

The real estate marketing consultant advised builders to keep those trends in mind when designing and marketing new homes.

"Today's home should be built for comfort, not for speed," she said. "The trend is for amenities like fireplaces, bookcases, in-home spas—things traditionally considered options—to become standard."

REFERRING TO THE survey taken by Professional Builder, she said 64 percent of Detroitarea respondents were looking for larger homes with more amenities in better locations. And 48 percent had $10,000-$30,000 available for a down payment. Security, privacy and lifestyle were among the main reasons given for seeking a new home.

Demand for entry-level homes is softening across the country, according to Petersen, with the majority of buyers looking to trade up. This is largely because baby boomers are becoming well established in middle age, and there are 5.9 million fewer teenagers than there were a decade ago.

However, many empty nesters are seeking smaller dwelling places that require less time for upkeep. And while baby boomers represent the highest proportion of potential home buyers, people over 55 tend to be more financially se-

Effective merchandising is becoming more important than ever, Petersen believes.

"In its highest form, home merchandising might be referred to as the seduction of the buyer," she told seminar attendees. "You want the buyer to aspire to the lifestyle and amenities that your homes offer."

The "curb appeal" of a home is an important factor in attracting prospective buyers, she said, noting that half the people who stop at model homes do so on impulse as they are driving by. Architecture, landscaping, colors and location all have a bearing on curb appeal.

"ONCE A PERSON steps inside a model home, you have 11 to 15 seconds to attract and hold their attention," Petersen explained. "That's one reason it is so critically important to identify your target market and know what they are likely to be looking for in a home."

She encouraged builders to do their own market research.

"At the very least," she emphasized, "sales staffs should be using prospect cards to track where buyers are coming from and for referrals."

Sales personnel need to be more skilled than ever, she said, not only in relating how the special feature of a particular home would fit with the buyer's lifestyle, but also in making clear the investment advantages of owning a home in today's uncertain economy.

'People seem to be rediscovering the home as the center of their lives. This often means they will want more features in their home.'

- Kristelle Petersen

Finishing touches

Doors to 18 idea homes featured in Homearama-Summer will swing open at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Autumn Ridge subdivision on Orchard Lake Road just north of Walnut Lake Road in West Bloomfield. Herbert Lawson (left), president of the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan, discusses final preparations with Dennis Dickstein, chairman of the event, in front of the Woodridge model by Kay Building Corp. of Farmington Hills. To mark the event, a special section with all the details will be part of all editions of the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers on Thursday.
