third consecutive four-year term because no Democratic candidates have filed to challenge in the November general election.

'It's like fighting a phantom out there when there aren't any issues,' Breen said.

Irvine, who mounted a strong challenge to Breen with door-to-door campaigning, obviously was disappointed with the outcome.

"I lost - what else is there to say?" Irvine said. "Who knows (what the election turned on). I think a larger turnout may have helped. Who knows?"

NEARLY 28 percent of registered voters in the township -4,605 to be exact - cast ballots. However, 573 were spoiled, most presumably for crossing party lines, said a spokeswoman in the clerk's office.

Raymor also said he was stunned by the low turnout

Mary Brooks, incumbent treasurer in Plymouth Township, won a resounding endorsement from voters Tuesday in the Republican primary battle against Patricia Pashukewich.

Brooks, deputy treasurer for 12 years before winning election to the post in 1984, unofficially tallied 2,006 votes to 1,163 for Pashukewich. Brooks swept to victory in 12 of the 13 precincts.

The margin was especially surprising to some in that Pashukewich waged a hard-hitting campaign claiming that she could earn more money for the township with more aggressive investments

Brooks has no formal Democratic opposition in November.

"I'M VERY pleased and very excited." Brooks said. "I'm very appreciative of all the support I've had. It's very overwhelming.

Brooks speculated that conservative Plymouth voters just weren't know what her future holds there.

willing to buy her opponent's investment proposals.

Some also may have been turned off by Pashukewich's style.

"I stuck with the truth. I stuck with the issues," Pashukewich said. "I did the best I could. I do plan on remaining active in the community, and I'm not going away.'

ESTHER HULSING, unopposed on the ballot for re-election to clerk, picked up 2,471 votes

Lorraine Halmekangas, deputy clerk, mustered 209 votes as a writein candidate against her boss. 'I didn't think it would be so over-

Incumbents Abe Munfakh and Smith Horton finished first and second in Tuesday's Republican primary with 1,904 and 1,762 votes, respectively.

Newcomers Ron Griffith, a dean at Schoolcraft College, drew 1,517 votes to place third, and John Stewart, a lawyer in private practice, attracted 1,443 to land fourth.

Those four candidates won the right to have their names on the November general election ballot. Because no Democrats have filed, their election is all but a formality.

If anyone would have told Mary Kehoe a dozen years ago that she would become the consummate fire gear collector, she never would have believed it.

But eight fire engines and countless trade shows later, Kehoe has turned her husband's hobby into a major business. "It started 13 years ago when we moved to this house in Plymouth," said Kehoe, a former Birmingham antiques dealer.

"That's when my husband bought his first fire engine."

Fulfilling a lifetime dream, her husband, Charles, employed by General Motors, bought a stripped down 1921 Model T. That eventually led to seven more fire trucks; four have since been sold.

They still own the Model T in addition to a 1954 American LaFrance No.1, 1957 American LaFrance No. 2 (their latest acquisition from the Plymouth Fire

He certainly doesn't hold himself out as a crackerjack student. Here's Arul Chinnaiyan on his last semester

But, "I managed to make it," the recent graduate said.

'Managed to make it" is an under-

Plymouth July 4th parade watchers saw the Kehoes trucks (minus the Model T, which doesn't run well). Neighbors along Penniman pitched in to wash and spruce up the trucks, then rode them during the parade, which also coincided with a neighborhood block party.

BUT IT doesn't end with trucks. The Kehoes have fire boxes, helmets, fire trumpets and related gear, old and new

'We began buying used equipment to outfit each truck," Kehoe explained. "But the departments wouldn't sell just one or two pieces - we had to buy it all."

Ending up with far more used fire gear than they needed to authentically dress their trucks, the Kehoes turned to selling the leftover apparatus.

Over the years, Mary Kehoe has expanded the business to include gift items, like toys, sweatshirts, official fire dog Dalmation figures, lanterns, Currier & Ives prints and more.

"We are strictly a mail order business," she said. Some 200,000 copies of the 1989 catalog, currently being compiled, will be mailed worldwide in September.

Calling it the Tonquish Creek Fire Company, after nearby Tonquish Creek, which early Plymouth firefighters used to put out fires when the water level was far higher, the current catalogue has 48 pages.

"WE DO major firefighting conventions across the country, Kehoe added. Her husband, Charles, spends all his GM vacation time traveling with her from east to west coast. Their two sons, very interested but "they tolerate

In fact the Kehoes have a room full of fire paraphernalia in their home as their own personal collection. Among the stuff is a prized speaking trumpet, silver over brass.

'Fire chiefs used these at the turn of the century to talk to their men. It was really like a megaphone, nct a musical instrument. Good quality ones are very scarce," she said.

Mary Kehoe thinks she is the only such dealer in Michigan, and only one of a handful across the

"WE THEORIZE there are over a million firefighters out there," she said. Maybe that explains why business has boomed.

"We grew 30 percent last year. For the first six months this year, we are already up 25 percent over last year.'

But with the success comes long hours. Kehoe said it is definitely a full-time job. And it involves a great deal of travel to trade shows that are very lucrative. On a recent weekend, Kehoe was off to a Lansing trade show while her husband was traveling to North Dakota to buy fire boxes.

The Kehoes bought whole systems of fire boxes from Pittsburgh, Washington D.C., Lansing, Toledo, and parts of Detroit.

Arbor, said that while her war chest lack. may be smaller than that of U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, she has the enthusiasm and determination to wrest the 2nd Congressional District seat from the incumbent in November Pollack defeated Democratic challenger Dean Baker by about a 2-1 margin in Tuesday's Democratic primary. Pursell, seeking his seventh term, ran unopposed.

Complete totals weren't in as of late Wednesday morning. But locally Pollack outdistanced Baker in Plymouth Township 377 to 157, and in Plymouth, 355 to 150.

Pursell received 2,648 votes in Plymouth Township, and 611 votes in Plymouth.

POLLACK PLANS to spend more than half a million dollars to win the congressional seat. She spent $246,000 in the primary.

Pursell's camp estimates they'll spend $750,000 to $1 million, but is prepared to spend "whatever it takes" to win the general election.

The 2nd Congressional District encompasses Plymouth and Plymouth Township, northern Livonia and communities in Wayne, Washtenaw, Lenawee, Jackson, Hillsdale and Branch counties.

The war with Pursell will come down to a battle in Wayne County, said Pollack, surrounded by support-

"CLEARLY THE greatest challenge of the campaign will be in Wayne County. It is Carl Pursell's State Sen. Lana Pollack, D-Ann base. I can't concede it," said Pol-

> "I'm willing to work very hard. No one has ever outworked me," added the senator, who's serving her second term in Lansing.

> Wayne County voters will be hearing from Pollack, said the candidate.

'I still have to work very hard to come to know more people in Wayne County," she said. "I've been working for years in Washtenaw, but only for months in Wayne County. I respect (voters there) enough to know that if they don't know me, they can't trust me. This means I'll be working hard."

PURSELL IS vulnerable because of his record and priorities, said Pol-

"I think his vulnerability is a combination of his weaknesses and my strengths," she said. "He has aligned himself with the Bush-Reagan policies. Those policies haven't been popular. Reagan and Bush have. Now he'll have to explain himself.

"I plan to bring Carl Pursell's record home to his constituency so that they know he has voted against the Clean Water Act, which could clean up the Rouge River.

"He voted against the Worker's Right to Know Act. He voted against long-term health care for senior citizens just recently," said Pollack. "I want to tell people how often he flip flops on whether he supports the ers at her-noisy victory party in Ann MX, chemical warfare, the B-1 bomber, and support for poor people

'I still have to work very hard to come to know more people in Wayne County. I've been working for years in Washtenaw, but only for months in Wayne County. I respect (voters there) enough to know that if they don't know me, they can't trust me. This means I'll be working hard.'

getting legal assistance. One begins to question what he believes in.'

Pollack is encouraged by the fact that in 1986, Baker garnered 41 percent of the vote in his race against Pursell.

'About 63,000 fewer people voted for Pursell in 1986 than in 1984," she said. "Some of that is explained because it was a non-presidential race. But not all of it.'

GARY CATES, press secretary for Pursell, said, "We plan to run on our record also. So it looks like we'll be running on the same platform if that's what Pollack wants to do. Carl has a real solid record.

"If she is not willing to run on her record, perhaps the reason why is that she is considered the most liber- said Cates.

al member of the Michigan senate. I don't think her liberal record is in line with the district," said Cates, adding that Pursell wasn't surprised at the primary results given the amount Pollack spent and voter turnout.

Pursell, a member of the House Appropriations Committee and two of its subcommittees, plans to campaign by "continuing to do a lot of things we've been doing," said Cates.

Pursell comes home from Washington almost every weekend and plans to keep his high profile in the communities, he said.

We will be talking about things he's done for the district and his solid record of success and service,' more than 350 votes behind Stewart. Munfakh first won election to the board in 1984. Horton was appointed to fill a vacancy in 1982, then was elected to a full term in '84. Andrew R. Pruner, a trustee since 1980, was the only incumbent trustee not to survive the primary. Pruner attributed his loss, in great part, to voters taking out frustrations on the incumbent trustee with the most seniority - himself. When I was going around, people were concerned with the amount of construction, growth in the township. They thought their taxes were too high," he said.

PRUNER ALSO attributed some backlash to his vocal support of Supervisor Maurice Breen.

Still, Pruner was gracious in defeat, especially toward Griffith and Stewart. "I have nothing bad to say about either one. They have good credentials and they're great people."

Munfakh said he will work to improve relations between the community and township officials.

"I think we put our message across," he said. "My record is my ness and save the taxpayer every platform. I believe people have responded to me.

Horton attributed his success to hard work: "It was kind of a family campaign

, based mainly on door-to-door personal contact. We didn't spend a lot of money."

GRIFFITH SAID the election turned out just about as he pro-

Stewart described his apparent election to the board as one of the biggest highlights of his life.

Special education tax trailing

By Janice Brunson staff writer

Wayne County voters appeared to say no Tuesday to a tax increase requested by the county intermediate school district for special education. At deadline Wednesday the 1-mill property tax increase was failing 110,376-103,355.

No decision has been made on whether to bring the issue before voters in November elections, according to Associate Superintendent James Greiner of the county's Intermediate District. "Predictions for the future are really horrible. It's a really tough issue," said Superintendent Jan Jacobs of South Redford schools following the election.

The increase primarily would have benefitted severely handicapped students who attend classes at regional centers. The existing 1 mill county special education tax was supposed to cover regional centers' cost, but had fallen short in recent years. Individual districts were billed for services rendered and the "bill backs" stretched some district budgets to the limit. Bill backs will continue without the millage increase, intermediate schools officials said.

Wayne County Sheriff Robert Ficano appears well on his way to another term as the county's chief law enforcement officer.

As of deadline Wednesday, Ficano had received 102,292 votes. In second place with 30,365 votes was Bruce Kennedy, Grosse Pointe public safety director. In third place with 21,064 votes was Richard Novak, former undersheriff.

Area judge winning in appeals primary

A Wayne County probate judge who lives in Plymouth Township and three Wayne County circuit court judges moved one step closer to sitting on the Michigan Court of Appeals by edging out five other candidates in Tuesday's 1st District primary.

Y. Gladys Barsamian of Plymouth Township was the final candidate to qualify for a spot on the November ballot by finishing fourth with a total of 42,216 votes.

"I'm honored," Barsamian said early Wednesday. "My work is cut out for me. I'm going to work hard between now and November." She finished well behind three other candidates in her home county of Wayne, where she received 35,322

Gov continues tuition fight

By Tim Richard staff writer

Gov. James Blanchard will try to 'deprogram" university trustees who pass double-digit tuition hikes rather than retaliate against them politically.

"I'll be meeting with the boards of all 15 universities tomorrow (Tuesday) evening to talk, not just about this year's tuition costs but the fu-Blanchard said Monday. He was in Redford Township to promote the Michigan Education Trust investment plan.

Asked if he would reappoint two Oakland University trustees who voted last week for a second round of tuition hikes totalling 19.3 percent in one year, Blanchard replied:

"I'm not going to get specific on people. I don't even know who you're talking about. I don't even want to be university-specific," he said.

OU TRUSTEES split 4-1 as they passed the second increase. Two who voted yes were David

Handleman of Bloomfield Hills and Howard F. Sims of Detroit. Their terms expire Aug. 11.

Tom Scott, the governor's press secretary, didn't know the status of their reappointments.

The University of Michigan Board of Regents last month passed a 12 percent tuition hike on a 5-3 vote.

Regent Nellie M. Varner, D-Detroit, who faces renomination at the Democratic State Convention Aug. 28, voted yes along with four other Democrats.

Regent Deane Baker, R-Ann Arbor, who faces the GOP State Convention Sept. 10, was joined by two other Republicans in voting no.

Blanchard's conciliatory tone appears to rule out opposing Varner's renomination.

BLANCHARD LAST week was more combative when he said some college trustees have been "misled or so indoctrinated that we're going to have them deprogrammed." Also last week, he noted that he had appointed some trustees voting for those increases

But Monday Blanchard was pleased fact that Michigan State University hiked tuition 9.8 percent

'I'll be meeting with the boards of all 15 universities. . .

after President John DiBiaggio recommended 12 percent, and a Grand Valley committee retreated from 14 percent to 9.9 percent.

"That's an encouraging sign," the governor said.

"Just because they have the power to raise tuition without anybody stopping them, it doesn't mean they ought to do that. It's the kind of power that ought to be used judiciously. I think they'll be very responsive," he

STATE TREASURER Robert Bowman, architect of the MET plan, said it's based on tuitions rising 9 percent this year and 7.5 percent thereafter.

MET will work because invested funds would earn more: 9.4 percent 'conservatively," Bowman said.

Blanchard said, "It's when they're at 20 (percent tuition increase) and

The state "absolutely" would make up any difference from the general fund, Blanchard said. That's why we have to make sure this is managed properly.

This is a tuition guarantee. It is a contract. Under the constitution and laws, once we sign it and the people pay their money, we cannot break that contract.'

But Blanchard and Bowman said that dipping into the general fund is highly unlikely. Reasons: The fund would be audited annually, enrollment would be limited at the beginning, and price adjustments would be made for future enrollees.

Blanchard: Reporter 'inaccurate'

Gov. James Blanchard Monday said he strongly praised a speech by Jesse Jackson at the Democratic National Convention and that an Observer & Eccentric story that attributed to him critical remarks of the speech was "inaccurate."

Tim Richard, the O&E reporter who quoted Blanchard, stood by his story, saying Blanchard's remarks were the type that "sear in your memory." He also produced a copy of the hand-written notes that he said were written within a minute after talking with Blanchard in Atlanta the day after Jackson's speech.

In a July 21 story that appeared in all 12 O&E newspapers, Blanchard was quoted as saying Jackson's stand on issues was "left-wing baloney" and "warmed-over George McGovern."

"He was best talking about his own constituency and their aspirations," the governor was quoted as saying. "When he was talking about all the issues, it was the same old left-wing baloney, warmed-over George McGovern but not as good."

BLANCHARD SAID Monday that he has never read the O&E article but that he was referring to a July 23 Detroit Free Press article that re-

Tax breaks

Abatements need close scrutiny

→ OME CALL THEM a necessary evil. Others say it's all part of doing business in Michigan. Still others say half a loaf is better than none at all.

A variety of rationales have been used to explain the necessity of granting tax abatements.

Plymouth Township, for example, has never said no to a tax abatement request But it looks like elected officials are taking a closer look at this inducement tool, Last month, two tax abatement requests squeaked by on 3-2 votes. That's a good sign. Rubber stamping abatement requests just to expand the tax base does not always serve the best interests of the com-This new policy, if it represents a definite shift in view, should send a message to business that it will have to prove a tax break is an integral part of its location decision.

CONSIDER FORD Motor Co. The automaker received a 50-percent property tax break for 12 years at its Sheldon Road plant.

Ford Motor is posting record profits. At the same time, the township is trying to keep taxes low and provide services for business, commercial and residential areas.

You could logically argue that Ford would have installed those 10 new presses even without that tax break.

And local governments would have found a way to spend the $28,000 in extra tax revenues generated the first year.

Is this law working to help business expand in Michigan or is it pitting community against community? The Michigan Department of Commerce provides a clue.

The department conducted a plant location survey and discovered that more than half of the industries granted abatement did not consider moving to another state.

That seems to indicate this program is basically being used to lure firms from one community in Michigan to another.

AND WE are talking about some significant mounts. Since 1974, 6,000 abatement certifi-

If the township has the right location, raw materials, access to transportation and quality of life, a tax abatment should not make that much difference.

An example of shifting a company from one community to another occurred last month at the same time Ford requested its tax abatement.

Caremark Homecare of Livonia gained approval for a township tax abatement of $14,000 for the first year.

One elected official brought up a good point. Did Plymouth Township owe this company any-

We have witnessed firms using tax breaks to move out of older, more urban communities to newer suburban locations.

This outward migration has been going on for years. Who is to say today's local companies will not look for greener pastures and tax breaks farther west in the next decade?

You can't blame the business. After all, they are just taking advantage of current laws.

But instead of granting abatements on a hitand-miss basis, some fundamental changes should be made in the property tax system in

That requires Legislative action in Lansing and a likely vote of Michigan residents.

Until that occurs, Plymouth Township should continue to take a closer look at firms requesting tax breaks.

If Plymouth Township has the right location, raw materials, access to transportation and quality of life firms are looking for, a tax abatement should not make that much difference.

A delegate's choice will be no bad vice

LET THE delegates do it, George. There will be 2,277 delegates to the Republican National Convention in New Orleans Aug. 15-18. In the old days, they actually picked candidates, and the nation did well.

Delegates will give up a week's vacation. Michiganians will pay $600 a couple for plane fare and $925 for a mandatory five nights in the posh Fairmont Hotel, Huey Long's favorite, plus taxes. That's $1,600 before anyone has taken a bite of jambalaya or a snort of Napoleon bran-

THE DELEGATES are our neighbors, people we know and trust.

One who lives near me is Dan Piercecchi. 2nd District-Wayne chairman. I know Dan. I know some of the other delegates and alternates, like Harry Greenleaf, Brooks Patterson, Ed Haroutunian, Donn Wolf, Bob Fredericks, Al May, U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell, Sen. Doug Cruce and Larry Dickerson.

These folks have worked in th political trenches and won support from other party workers.

Who is Robert Kimmitt, the "Washington attorney" reportedly doing background checks on Bush's short list? Is he a straight guy, or will he turn out to be like Bert Lance or John Mitchell?

PIERCECCHI THINKS mine is "a great idea - splendid. The delegates have a better handle on it than a few top advisers. Collectively, they could make a good choice.'

president selection to the experts has resulted in some troubling choices in recent campaigns; better to let the delegates do it.

Leaving the vice

He's right. Local politicians frequently know the kind of dirt that big shots don't.

Recall 1972 when George McGovern handpicked Tom Eagleton as his running mate. If the convention had been consulted, the Missouri delegates would have quietly passed the word that Eagleton had some nervous problems and might be an embarrassing choice.

In 1968 the Maryland delegates might have whispered that some of Gov. Spiro Agnew's contract dealings were suspect, and in 1984 the known that Geraldine Ferraro's family closet had some skeletons.

The loyal Michigan Democrats in Atlanta praised Lloyd-Bentsen, as I reported. What I couldn't put in the news columns were their hesitations and their curled noses. Given a chance, they would have nominated somebody better.

It's OK for a president to appoint cabinet officers and ambassadors, but the vice president is a constitutional officer who ought to be picked by a democratic process.

Let Bush supply everyone his 'short list" of three to five favorites, eliminating anyone truly objectionable to him, and let the delegates decide from there.

Adlai Stevenson let the delegates do it in 1956. We got a dandy cliffhanger between Sens. Estes Kefauver and John Kennedy. It was America's introduction to Kennedy, so the honest tussle did a lot of good.

PSYCHOLOGICALLY, politicians like fights. They need fights.

I've covered 50 or 60 state conventions of three parties and five nationals, and it's a fact that if politicians don't have something to fight about, they'll invent something, like screwball platform amendments.

Besides, there will be 12,000 to 15,000 of us media people there. We need a good story.

STATE SENATE committee is expected to consider a bill that would restore to the news media much-needed protection from libel lawsuits when reporting on public documents and proceedings.

We hope state Sen. Rudy Nichols' Senate Judiciary Committee moves promptly on the bill, named HB4932, which easily passed the state House of Representatives last month. The bill's real benefits would go not to reporters or editors, but to ordinary people across the

The press already has the protection of the malice standard in covering some public records, such as trials or court documents. Until recently, reporters thought they had the same protection when accurately reporting information derived from police reports.

That all changed in a libel suit that resulted in a $1 million award against a Battle Creek news-

The court opined that the Battle Creek paper had libeled a man when the paper reported his arrest in a criminal sexual conduct case. The arrest occurred but the man was never charged

The court changed the libel standard to negligence, which is easier to prove than malice, and narrowed the types of government documents the media could report on with impunity.

The ruling put reporters in the untenable position of having to vouch for the accuracy of government documents they might use in news stoThe need to free the press from unwarranted fear of libel suits is not just a protection for reporters and their employers, but also a protection of the free flow of information for the public.

As a result, news gatherers backed off and became more cautious. And readers, listeners and viewers were shortchanged.

"A free press must be able to report on what government does, or we are all in jeopardy,' Bryant wrote.

Indeed. Reporting on government activities is probably the most important of media functions. The press needs reasonable protection when writing about government — especially police -

To withhold that protection is to abridge a free press, a foundation of our democratic society.

SOME SCENARIOS come to mind: Given the court's recent decision, newspapers or broadcasters could be unwilling to report on a false arrest or an allegation of government misdeed or corruption. That's called a chilling effect.

To the editor:

From time to time I intend to write letters to the editors of both local papers to explain processes that the board of education uses to make decisions and to explain my personal position on educational issues of concern to our community. This week I'm going to explain the process used for the superintendent's evaluation, contract extension and pay increase as well as my personal position on these issues.

The process the board of education has used (at least for the six years I've been on the board) is that during the April-May period, each board member evaluates the superintendent's performance for the past

A three boardmember evaluation committee summarizes the individual board members' evaluations into a concensus evaluation. Based on the consensus evaluation, the committee recommends to the board as a whole whether the superintendent's contract should be extended.

Once the evaluation has been voted on, it is made available for public scrutiny only if the superintendent wishes to have it released (recent change in the law about three years ago). At the same meeting, the board also uses the evaluation of the superintendent to determine the amount of his pay increase.

Generally, our board of education has given our non-affiliated administrators, including the superintendent, the same percent increase all affiliated employees receive if the superintendent's performance meets expectations.

Don't let universities be just 'for the privileged'

LOOKING BACK a few years into the 1950s, I can recall breaking ground for the Ritz family.

When I collected my bachelor of arts degree from Wayne State University in 1956, I was the first Ritz to receive a college degree since the family emigrated to the United States from Austria-Hungary early this century

Through scholarships and help from my father and brothers, who worked in Detroit's auto plants, I was able to make it through WSU.

My wife and I never had a doubt that all of our children would attend college. Jennifer and Michael consider it a foregone conclusion; they're both doing well in school.

BUT A chart depicting the proposed tuition increases at the state's leading universities certainly raises some serious questions about the funding of the college educations of the Ritz offspring. And of course, we are not alone in this dilemma.

The figures show that 14 of 15 Michigan universities have announced tuition increases for the fall. The other one is considering such a move.

And if you're counting pennies, the impact is dollar-size since only one of the 12 tuition increases already approved was less than 10 percent the 7.9-percent increase approved by my old alma mater, WSU.

The new annual tuition figures for the 15 universities range from $1,789 100 Jim Ritz

STATE REP. Morris Hood, a Detroit Democrat, is the one who used the word "outrageous" to describe the tuition increases at the state-supported universities. Hood thinks the state Legislature should threaten to cut state aid for the state universities if they don't roll back the tuition.

Universities get between 35-60 percent of their budgets from state appropriations, some 40 percent from tuition, and the rest from other sources such as endowments.

University officials say faculty salaries and operating costs are rising fast, but state aid isn't keeping up, and that lower interest from endowments has forced them to turn to tuition to meet the rising costs.

GOV. BLANCHARD is urging the universities to reconsider the tuition increases. Blanchard's chief educational adviser. Thomas Baldini, said the cost increases at universities are out of line with other sectors of soci-

"Oakland keeps growing, but gets the same amount as other schools there are other universities whose enrollment is dropping and they're still getting the same money." Of spokesman Jim Llewellyn said.

THE ARGUMENTS can be befud dling to an outsider. Whom do you believe? Who's right? The colleges accuse the state of penny-pinching on education, the Legislature accuses the colleges of letting costs run out of hand

Safety is what this town teaches

It'll be a few years before children participating in the Safety Town program are eligible for driver's licenses. Even so, they're getting a head start in learning the rules of the road.

Safety Town is a nationwide program offered locally through Plymouth-Canton Community Education. Safety Town sessions are held in the cafeteria of Plymouth Canton High School.

Traffic/pedestrian safety is one of many areas covered. Children spend part of each day at Safety Town riding their Big Wheels through the miniature city. They watch the traffic light, pavement markings and traffic signs to make sure they're obeying the rules of

"They just have done a really good job working with the kids," Pederson said of the helpers. "They do a lot of the reinforcement of the skills that we talk about."

The program runs from mid-June through mid-August. This summer, there are eight Safety Town sessions. Sessions are for two weeks; children participate either in the morning session or in the afternoon session, each lasting two

"Much longer really wouldn't be too profitable," she said.

There are about 40 youngsters in each Safety Town session, with a total of approximately 320 participating. The program, offered locally since 1977, is popular with parents, Pederson said.

At Steppingstone Center in Northville Township, staffers send out a list of school supplies needed for the year. Parents and children usually shop together for those supplies, helping them get ready for a new school year, said Kiyo Morse, director of Steppingstone Center.

Steppingstone is an independent school for first-through-eighth graders, serving children who are gifted or who have that potential. Morse, a Plymouth resident, has been director there for seven years.

Parents of Steppingstone students also receive an orientation letter in early August. That letter includes a child's class assignment and a brief outline of what the child should be prepared for that first day.

FOR THE NEW students at Steppingstone, there's also an individual appointment with the teacher before school starts, allowing students to establish a relationship with the teacher. The teacher will take the child through the school, and will do a little pretesting to see where the child is academically.

"Usually, there's not a big adjustment problem," Morse said.

At Steppingstone, parents are required to come in for an interview before a child is accepted. That interview includes explanations of the school's curriculum.

"We don't want them to come in with false expectations." Educators at Steppingstone want to be sure their educational philosophies match those parents are looking for.

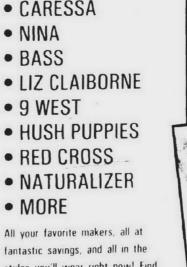

The most important skill students develop in their elementary school years is reading, Morse said. Reading skills affect their academic performance in all other areas as they continue through school.

Volunteers: backbone of hospice care

This month we will feature the hospice volunteer.

Volunteers are often said to be the 'heart" of hospice. But volunteers are more than the heart, they also are the mind - they are the driving force behind most hospice programs.

Without volunteers, any hospice program could not exist. In fact, the importance of the volunteer is so clear that the federal government has mandated that a hospice have a volunteer program in order to be licensed and certified under Medi-

Neither volunteers or paid staff can run a hospice program independently of the other. Both are critical to the overall success and development of the program.

Hospice volunteers also are sustainers. Most hospice programs were created by volunteers, and from those developmental stages, they have remained the backbone of those programs.

Volunteers originally were drawn to hospice because they wanted to provide compassionate care for the dying. Because of their dedication to the hospice concept of care, many have remained with the programs to implement appropriate care for those individuals living with dying and for their families.

QUALIFICATIONS that are important for a volunteer to possess include emotional maturity, good listening skills, sensitivity to the needs of patients and families in stressful situations, willingness to accept people where they are and being non-judgmental of others' life styles, being comfortable with dying people, ability to function as a team member and a respect for confidence concerning patient and family information

Certain qualities are common among successful hospice volunteers. These include:

(1) The ability to affirm life and enjoy living.

(2) The ability to like people and to help them without considering this an extraordinary task. (3) The ability to bear the joys, sorrows and tensions of life, especially as it nears death. To summarize, prospective volunteers have a positive attitude toward life, their fellow human beings and themselves.

The functions of a volunteer are varied and are limited only by the needs of the family and the imagination of an innovative volunteer. Volunteers often assist with physical care as required and provide a much needed respite for stressed family members. Volunteers listen to the concerns and allow both patient and family to express their concerns and their feelings.

Volunteers can also run errands, provide transportation, help with household chores as well as function as members of a committee

Volunteers also provide bereavement care to family members for 13 months after the death of a loved one. Many times it is not what the volunteer does, but their very presence that is important to the patient and the family.

An intensive training period is required for volunteers entering a hospice program. Most hospice programs require approximately 30 hours of initial training. Bereavement volunteers are usually given additional training.

IT'S MISLEADING to think that the majority of campers suffer significantly from homesickness, LeMonn said.

"Homesickness is, first of all, very normal."

LeMonn recently returned from a four-week trip. He missed his norand was anxious to look through his

IT'S ALWAYS a good idea to ask a camp director how that camp staff handles homesickness, LeMonn said. Camp staffers may offer a homesick child a little extra tender loving care. They may pair a child up with a special friend or find that child an adventure to enjoy.

'All sorts of things like that. It's really common-sensical.'

In preparing a child to go away to camp, it's important to make sure that child has some experience being mal surroundings during that trip, away from home. Day camp is a good way to provide that.

"You get that whole experience of going away."

Day campers participate in a variety of activities, such as hiking, swimming, boating and arts and crafts. The major difference is that children come home to familiar surroundings at the end of the day. "That's very reassuring to a SHORT TRIPS away from home to stay with a relative or a friend can also help children get used to being away. Those short trips offer children the experience of going away from home and then returning. 'Many kids like to do that.

"It's very reassuring for a child to go away, come back and see that everything's still there."

CAMPS, GIVEN their family-type structure, can play a supportive role for children, including those who come from single-parent families, LeMonn said. Attending camp can give a child an opportunity to form a

LeMonn offered basic tips for parents, including:

· Never tell a child how much you will miss him or her during

· Don't play up what the family is doing without the child, or mention how much the family pet misses

· Write to children at camp regularly. In those letters and postcards, focus on what the child is doing at camp; ask about camp activities, new friends and counselors. Write a letter to a child ahead of time, so that letter will be waiting for the child at camp.

 If you'd like, address postcards to be sent home - for the child before he or she leaves for camp. The child can then fill out those postcards and drop them in the mail.

· Ask a child to complete a diary about camp, including photos. That's not only a wonderful memento; it also gives the child something to do at camp

· Send a child to camp with a farelationship with an adult or with a vorite poster, stuffed animal or even a musical instrument. A familiar and much-loved object, preferably one that's easy to transport, can help a child feel more at home · Food packages can be mailed to camp, although camps may have certain restrictions on what can be sent. Children may be expected to share those goodies with other camp-

VISITS TO camp by parents are generally discouraged, LeMonn said. Even longer-term camps, those lasting six, seven or eight weeks, generally will have only one parent's day during the middle of a camp session. Parents are also usually advised not to call camp, particularly during the first few days, LeMonn said

Calls can be made in emergencies, but aren't recommended in more normal circumstances. Those phone calls tend to be disruptive.

If the family has recently experienced a loss, such as the death of a grandparent, it's a good idea to let camp staffers know that. LeMonn said. If a parent feels comfortable with a camp director, he or she can let that director know about the family's circumstances.

'A good camp director can play a very helpful role.

Parents entrust their children to camp staffers. If a traumatic situation occurs either just before or during a child's time at camp, staffers need to know about that.

Father George Charnley, Pastor MASSES

Saturday 4:30 & 6:30 P.M. (No 6:30 P.M. Mass During July & August)

It's known as the Salem Bible Church, but in the 1930s, when this picture was taken, it was the Salem Federated Church, representing the merger of the Baptist Church of Salem and the Lapham Methodist Church.

100th B-Day

Salem Church to mark centennial

Saturday, Aug. 6, will mark the beginning of a special four days for the Salem Federated Church

The congregation will be gathering with its current and former pastors to observe the centennial of the church building at Six Mile and Curtis.

The celebration will include a get together at the church from 4-6:30 p.m. A meal will be provided on a free will offering basis and will be followed by a speech by former pastor Elwood Chipchase at 7 p.m.

Other former pastors who will speak during the celebration are Doug Couch at 11 a.m. and Richard Burgess at 7 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 7, Richard Denig and current pastor Russell Cutler at 7 p.m. Monday, Aug. 8, and Ivan Speight and Wayne Giauque at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 10.

THE CONGREGATION marked the centennial of the dedication of the red brick church building in the village of Salem Feb. 8. It was erected by First Baptist Church of Salem and was known later as the Salem Federated Church.

The traditional date celebrated for the first meeting of the Baptist Church of Salem is Jan. 17, 1831. It is the earliest church to be recorded in Salem Township history and the only early township church still active today.

The church met for some years in a schoolhouse and in several homes. The first church building and large multi-purpose room.

was erected in 1852 on the Eliphalet Lewis farm on Six Mile, about a mile west of Salem village.

That building was moved to the village of Salem in 1873, then moved across McFadden Street in 1887 to make room for the construction of the brick church that is celebrating its centennial of

W.H. BETTYS was pastor in 1887 when the church was built at the cost of $8,000. It was dedicated, debt free, Feb. 8, 1888.

The new building consisted of the sanctuary with baptistry, dressing rooms and a church parlor that could be separated from the main seating area by "glass window" partitions. The partitions were removed from the building in 1965.

The building also contained two entries - one with the belfry above, and another that was converted to a counseling room and hallway with the addition of the west wing in 1965.

Today, the building is essentially laid out in the same manner as when it was first constructed in 1887. The first major addition to the building was constructed in 1956. The new wing housed classrooms on the ground floor and a pastor's study. nursery and church office on the upper floor.

By 1964, a new educational wing was added to the west of the sanctuary. The addition consisted of 10 classrooms on the lower level; storage room

Dec. 20, 1920, the Baptist Church Church of Salem made the decision to merge with the Lapham Methodist Church, forming the Salem Federated

The Lapham Church had been organized as a Wesleyan Methodist Church in 1841 and its reason for merging with the Baptist church in 1920 was that as the older members passed on and others moved to cities, the handful who remained found themselves too weak to maintain the church and support an active ministry.

IT WAS during the tenure (1931-52) of the Rev. Cora Pennell that the Salem Federated Church became in actuality a Bible church. She encouraged the people to study and memorize the Bible and gave many Scofield Reference Bibles

In 1938, the congregation voted to change the church's name to Salem Bible Church. Some of the old-timers were reluctant to see the change made. feeling that the church was losing a tangible reminder of its early history.

However, a majority of the members felt the new name more accurately represented the true emphasis of the church's teachings.

And while the Salem Bible Church is celebrating its centennial, it also is preparing for another milestone in its more than 100-year history - a search for a new pastor. Cutler announced June 12 he would resign, effective Dec. 31.

moral perspectives

Rev. Robert Schaden

Drought magnifies concerns, problems at the Livonia Newman Center were all excited. It looked as if it was going to rain.

I really can't remember when I've seen so much glee over the possibility of rain on a Sunday. That prospect is more likely to bring a groan, but this year things are different: Even a few months ago the word drought was hardly a part of everyday suburban vocabulary. A drought was something that happened in long ago or far away places

We have heard of the dust bowls of the 1930s, but that was long ago. Only last summer farmers in the southeast pocket of our nation watched helplessly as their crops died on the vine, but that was far

This year, in this place, the story has changed. The backyard gardens of most in this newspaper area aren't of the magnitude of the outstate or out-of-state farm families. However, the drought has certainly slowed down the progress of our six or eight tomato plants to say nothing of the green disappearing in the lawns around town.

We may not have it within our power to make it rain enough in August to make up for what we didn't get in June. If you tend to be a fix-it person that isn't a pleasant realization. On the other hand, something more serious than the drought is in need of fixing.

IF ANYTHING becomes clear from out burned out lawns, our low water pressure and our parched petunias, it is the fact that we are forever dependent on the environment. This is a truth known at the deepest level to the natives who inhabited this continent before we discovered it. It also has been, and continues to be, written into the hearts of those who make their living directly from the land, those who grow the food we

The same truth, however, has gradually escaped the consciousness of an AstroTurf society. As we have become more enamored with the

A couple of Sundays ago the folks marvels of technology we have, it would seem, become equally forget ful of our impact on the environ-

> As one of my neighbors remarked, Who needs rain when we have hoses?" I wish he had been speaking in jest, but he wasn't.

> A number of years ago Joni Mitchell sang of paving paradise and putting up a parking lot. That isn't by way of condemning the builders of parking lots, but we do need to become more aware of our impact on the earth on which our grandchildren will set their feet, the air they will breathe and the water they will give to their children. In the literal sense, those children will be made of the air and water their mothers are > breathing and drinking today It has been said that man, the socalled intelligent species on this planet is the only species which has contributed to the destruction of that

> It has become easy for us to disregard our little bit of pollution. Just another few gallons of toxic waste is looked upon in legal terms while the long term effect is passed over.

> MOST OF us get more excited over a long line in a supermarket than we do over the report of another company dumping its waste in waters more than a few blocks from our own neighborhood.

> Yes, the drought is causing its problems and those problems can't be minimized. But there have been droughts in the past and there will be more in the future.

What really needs fixing is the level of our awareness of the interconnection between ourselves and our world. Such cannot be only the concern of Carl Sagan or a handful of folks known as environmentalists.

The fact is we are all dependent on the environment. It is equally true that most of what we do affects its course and its quality. If this dry summer can raise that awareness even a little bit, then perhaps the drought of '88 can be considered a blessing.

Olson's study was conducted on Ann Arbor area roads and measured the distance at which subjects could detect and identify the color of 30inch square signs in real traffic environments of varying complexity. Subjects were divided into ages groupings of 20-46 and 58-75.

Although the signs varied in color and reflectivity, the older group consistently identified them at significantly shorter distances than the

FUNDED WITH A grant from the 3M Co., Olson's study was intended as a source of information for highway engineers when choosing among various types of sign materials.

The first road signs were painted wooden boards - adequate for daytime driving but difficult, if not impossible, to see at night. Cat's eye reflectors - beads the size of marbles embedded in signs - improved visibility when they were introduced in the 1920s

Gradually, the reflecting beads became smaller and today, most signs are made of tiny reflective particles embedded in plastic.

"The problem is that sign material deteriorates, becoming less and less bright. Eventually signs reach a point where they are no longer bright enough to catch the attention of passing motorists. The question is, when should they be replaced," Olson said.

Often, there are warning signs before stop signs.

Most stop signs need to be three times more reflective than materials commonly used to be noticed by a motorist traveling at 40 miles per hour in time to gradually stop over the course of 215 feet, Olson said.

Stop signs in rural areas where the speed limit is 55 miles per hour or higher pose a special risk of being disregarded by drivers of all ages because "people don't expect to encounter that type of traffic control device out in the country and on a wide open highway," he said.

Headlee to step aside at Hamilton

Richard Headlee, the Republican candidate for governor in 1982, has announced that he is interviewing candidates to replace him as presi-dent and chief executive officer of the Alexander Hamilton Life insurance company in Farmington Hills.

Headlee said he hopes to select the next president within 60 days. Headlee will remain as chairman of the board of Alexander Hamilton and will continue to serve as director of two committees for its parent company, Household International.

He said the next president likely will be someone from outside both Alexander Hamilton and Household who has a banking and investment sales growth for 15 consecutive background.

HEADLEE SAID his decision was influenced by his heart transplant last October and a subsequent bout of hepatitis, which nearly killed him.

'I had always aimed toward my early 60s for stepping out into a new career in public service (see related story). Now, I'll just do it a little sooner," said Headlee, who is 58.

'I will continue to have an interest in Alexander Hamilton and its direction," said Headlee, "but I will not be working 12-14 hours a day. I want to make the transition in such a way that it is of the least concern - so that we can preserve the culture and momentum of the company.

'I'll be regarded as a spokesman in the community and the insurance industry . . . I'll do whatever is necessary to see that the company is successful in going forward. I will maintain a day-to-day presence

HEADLEE ALSO announced that the company is seeking permission from Household to expand its current facilities by building a 75,000square-foot structure on 31/2 acres adjacent to its current colonial-style office building along I-696 between

Farmington and Orchard Lake

The new building, which Headlee hopes can be approved by corporate and city officials and built within 18 months, would house the company's data processing department.

The current facility, built to house up to 650 employees, currently accommodates nearly 700, he said.

UNDER HEADLEE'S leadership Alexander Hamilton grew from a small, troubled company to the 94th largest of more than 2,000 life insurance companies in the United States. For nine straight years, it has received an A-plus superior rating by the A.M. Best Co., the highest possible. And the firm has had record

Headlee, former president of the U.S. Jaycees, was a salesman for Burroughs for 10 years and then president of a Michigan lumber company, Morbark Industries, prior to joining the Alexander Hamilton board of directors in 1969. He was named a vice president in 1970 and president and CEO in 1972, when the company was losing money and plagued by scandal.

The company's founder, Keith Owen, had resigned amid lawsuits and allegations of improper spending of company money and improper stock transactions. The company settled lawsuits out of court.

In 1972, Hamilton assets were less than $150 million. By the end of 1987, they were $2.2 billion, up 22 percent over 1986, and Headlee predicts they will top $3 billion by the end of 1988.

During 1987, Hamilton increased its insurance-in-force portfolio to $17.2 billion, an increase of 11 percent and a total that placed it among the top 5 percent of life insurance companies in the United States and

He'll devote more time to issues and politics

Richard Headlee doesn't wear his religion on his sleeve - it is woven into the fabric of his life. Having recovered from a heart transplant and an attack of hepatitis that nearly killed him, Headlee feels it is time to step down as chief executive officer of Alexander Hamilton and devote his efforts toward moral causes such as fighting abortion and casino gambling and political issues such as limiting legislators' terms of office.

Headlee is witty and charming, opinionated and dogmatic but not ascerbic; there is a gentle edge to his thoughts. Here are excerpts on a variety of subjects from an interview with Headlee last week:

· On his life expectancy following his heart transplant last October: "First-year survival rates are 90 percent. For three years, it's 82 percent. They told me I could live a normal life, so (laughing) I expect to live longer than most of you folks. But you do walk a fine line between rejection and infection.'

· On his reaction to finding out he needed an immediate heart transplant: "It was lunch time and I hadn't eaten. So I asked if I could go to Taco Bell first. The doctor said, 'No, you need a new heart more than you need a Bur-

End 'skewed' rates — CP

Consumers want parity with cost of services

By Tim Richard staff writer

A residential customer's gas bill would rise $2.50 in a cold winter month, but Michigan would be more competitive in luring industry under a rate change proposed by Consumers Power Co.

"In this state, the large industrial customer has paid 132 percent of the cost to serve him," said Raynard C. (Rann) Lincoln Jr., "while residential customers pay 92 percent.

"We propose to make the rates closer to the cost of service. Historically the rates have been skewed as long as I can remember," said Lincoln, 53. He is a senior vice president of the utility that sells natural gas in most Oakland and half of Wayne County suburbs.

Lincoln spoke to employees last week in the company's Royal Oak regional office.

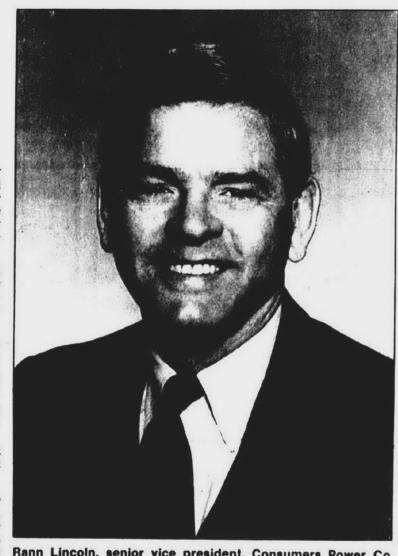

IN A RATE proposal, which CP chairman William T. McCormick Jr. said is revenue neutral, the utility last November asked the Michigan Public Service Commmission to end skewing.

The case is in the hearing stage, and Lincoln expects a decision late this year or early in 1989. During the energy crunch of the 1970s, environmentalists encouraged high rates for large users as part of the "conservation ethic." "A few years ago, they talked of a gas shortage. Now there is a gas bubble," Lincoln said. "Decreases (in costs) in the last couple years have reduced the cost to (residential) customers more than this. There would still be a net reduction to the residential customer,"

Lincoln said. CP spokesmen say residential rates have dropped 19 percent in two years as gas prices have fallen.

Rann Lincoln, senior vice president, Consumers Power Co. Lincoln said Consumers wants to bring rates closer to the actual cost of services, adding rates have been 'skewed' for as long as he can remember.

Another reason, he said, is that CP operates with one employee per 271 customers while the industry aver-ees and increases our efficiency," he said. "It's a cultural phenomenon of this company.

Lincoln said the utility promotes safety through work rules, methods and procedures, safe equipment, training in use of tools, and drug and alcohol programs for workers who may need them. Edgar L. Doss, Rochester Hills, manager of the metro division, said four million hours are the equivalent of one person working 2,000 years without a lost-time injury. The

Headlee to step down as president

WHAT WAS particularly noteworthy is that the company performed well the last three months of 1987 and early in 1988 without its CEO.

Headlee was told while in Salt Lake City for a charity golf outing the company sponsored that he needed a heart transplant, which was done in early October. A resulting hepatitis infection nearly killed him them their head and encouragement, and sidelined him from November then if you're not there, it makes lit-

through January

(He is on drugs to suppress his immune system, which leaves him prone to infection And several times daily he must monitor his blood pressure and temperature.)

"I LEARNED one thing while I was gone, though I'd known it before "Headlee said. "If you surround yourself with good people and give

tle or no difference.

Not so, said his executive secretary, Mary Sawyer.

When he was gone, you could see morale go right down. The employees around here just adore him. We were so glad to have him back. It's true, they do adore him. He's like a god around here. It was good to get him back.

We have really practiced participatory management," Headlee said. Senior management have truly worked together as a team. People talk about a family environment, a team environment — we really do work as a team here."

Part of that family team includes two long-time friends, Vernon Lunn, senior vice president of personnel and corporate services, who is retiring next month, and Bob Young, executive vice president and a fellow Mormon who first met Headlee in Utah 30 years ago.

Young ran Headlee's successful campaign in 1963 to lead the U.S. Jaycees. He was running a machinery manufacturing company in Oregon when Headlee hired him at Alexander Hamilton in 1972.

In 1977, Alexander Hamilton was acquired by Household, parent company of Household Finance Corp. With assets of $17 billion, Household is one of the top 100 U.S. corpora-

· On his future political involvement (the Headlee Amendment was a state constitutional amendment passed in 1978 that limited increases in local taxation without voter approval, and he ran unsuccessfully for governor in 1982): "I'd love to get involved in another constitutional effort (to limit the terms of office by state legislators). Changing constitutions is more productive than running for office.

That (the Headlee Amendment) was a worthwhile effort. It continues to unnerve the big spenders, and the legislators can't do anything about it. All the rhetoric of all the politicians in the last 20 years hasn't had nearly the impact of Taxpayers' operation - working the Ziploc with United and the amendment of 1978. They talk about Headlee overrides as if they were defeats for me. They're not overrides at all. It's the people's choice. That was what it was all about: giving them a say in their taxation. If they want higher taxes, that's fine, it's their choice.'

> • On why he wants constitutional amendments passed at the state and federal level limiting legislators in their terms of office. "The founding fathers never imagined that people would make careers out of public office. It was supposed to be public service, not a bureaucracy. Pay them sufficiently to live four or eight years in office, and then they go back to their professions and live under the laws they passed. Jefferson and Washington didn't particu

• On benefits for those in public office: "To let elected officials set their own pension benefits turns logic on its head."

· Of being unable to test insurance applicants for AIDS: "It's the biggest threat we have in the industry. We have always tested for diseases. We have to be able to classify risks; otherwise you're just coming in and taking our assets away. We have to be actuarially sound. If someone is going to die in six months, you don't sell 'em life insurance. Life insurance doesn't work that way.'

 On social welfare: "It's not just the responsibility of government to help the poor, the afflicted and the downtrodden - it's the responsibility of all of us . .n And you know what else bothers me? Seeing little kids going hungry on one side of a fence in Tijuana, and on the other side our enormous stores of food and grain. We should be delivering megatons of wheat instead of megatons of explosives."

Set a few goals to be a success

"A survey of high achievers reveals that it's good to close your eyes and visualize your goals.

"Did it work for you?

"I'll say! I went right to sleep."

Setting goals may sound like the perfect solution for all the insomniacs out there, but it is not intended as a new form of sleep therapy. Goal setting is a crucial activity for those people and organizations serious about success.

Every day, whether we realize it, we set goals. More often than not, our goals are short-term in nature and are set relative to the new few hours, the next day, or the coming week. This is especially true for persons who juggle several roles that might include business owner, spouse, parent, friend and community activist.

WHILE FOCUSING on getting through the daily demands on your time, setting longer range goals may seem a lot like daydreaming. Tve always wanted to become a better speaker in business; but I'm just too shy in front of groups." Rather than viewing a particular goal as an impossible dream, experts suggest that goals be set realistically and include specific objec-

Remember that a goal is the desired end result, while an objective impossible to enjoy speaking in front of a group next week or next month, but it is not impossible to now start reading books on the subject, enroll in a speech class or join a support group. It may take six months or more to accomplish such a goal, but it can happen.

IT IS also important to put your goal in order of importance. I can't think of a quicker way to stop progress than having too many goals that are perceived as requiring equal priority. No one can be everywhere or do everything in order to accomplish several different goals at the same time without being affected in the process.

If your plans for next month include quitting smoking, losing 10 pounds, conducting the annual inventory and being keynote speaker at a charity event, good luck. You may get through this goal crunch time after time, but stress doesn't have to be the great motivator.

Next week's column will describe how one community has worked together to accomplish a specific set of goals relating to a single event first held 25 years ago.

Music could profit from auto expertise

The great Chrysler bailout has been getting a little boring these days. It's been five years now since the federally backed loans were either paid off or converted to more conventional corporate debt. Even American Motors, acquired a year ago, now is a credit to Chrysler's bottom line; according to Bennett E. Bidwell, Chrysler Motors' president of product and marketing.

So it shouldn't have been too surprising that R. Steven Miller. Chrysler vice chairman, one of those behind-the-scenes financial whizzes who helped orchestrate Chrysler's bailout, decided to take on the bailout of a real orchestra.

THE DETROIT Symphony board recently recruited Miller as chairman, with the hope his financial expertise would be applied to eliminating a $4.5 million debt - something like stamp money in automotive terms, but a bit more than could be raised with a cookie sale.

Miller may be the first major auto executive to attempt to apply on-thejob principles learned in the auto industry to a major symphony orchestra. Uncomfortable at first with the

Dan McCosh job - since his musical taste someplaying a note - even ambling outtimes waffles between WRIF and WDET, he was reportedly taken by the similarities between Chrysler's Jefferson Avenue assembly plant and Orchestra Hill - both of which are in rough areas where getting to your car is like taking a trek on the Ho Chi Minh trail. DISCOVERING THE orchestra had moved from someplace called

Ford Auditorium apparently clinched the deal. It also was obvious that the inefficiencies of the orchestra were glaringly similar to problems at

Chrysler when Miller et al took-over. There is surplus capacity, for ex-side for a smoke during a performance. Not to mention the string of short-lived deals with foreign conductors' that left the audience wondering who was going to do the next Nutcracker.

Cost-cytting in the Chrsler mode means streamlining, eliminating low-volume options (how often do you need a triangle player, for example?) Or the violas - does the average guy really need to hear a vio-

PERHAPS MILLER'S most radical move is a proposal to develop a single, multi-purpose instrument to play all the parts. Codenamed the K-a-phone," it features 18 strings on the main body but can be quickly ample, with musicians sitting around converted to become a tuba. The through whole movements without cost-saving potential is enormous.

Likely the most controversial move is to take care of future expansion with a major acquisition of the Toledo Philharmonic. There is considerable union opposition to the move, which would leave Toledo without a major orchestra. Miller apparently thinks that it would be a quick way to expand the oboe section without the expense of training musicians, although it would also mean getting a lot of unnecessary instruments in the package.

THERE ALSO are unconfirmed rumors that Chrysler wasn't the only auto manufacturer contacted in the orchestra bailout

GM's solution was to go ahead and buy out New York and let Bernstein run the show. Ford, on the other hand, was anxious to develop a new avante-garde series of instruments to bring in younger ticket-holders. Honda's plan was to build a series of minor regional orchestra halls outstate. Volkswagen, on the other hand, wanted to lock the door and go

Bob McGrath is longtime 'Sesame Street' favorite

By Louise Okrutsky

'Sesame Street" 's Bob McGrath cheerfully ignores W.C. Field's bit of advice to avoid sharing the stage with children and animals.

"They've saved my life. They got me a job," said the man who has spent 20 years sharing a stage with children and Big Bird.

Children almost literally gave McGrath his place on "Sesame of arriving in New York into two Street." Audition tapes were shown to test groups of children to gauge their reaction to adult players and various Muppet characters.

When he performs at 11 a.m. Saturday at the Meadow Brook Music Festival's children's concert, he will be accompanied by 50 youngsters chosen from area dancing classes. They will be dressed as everything from people in the neighborhood to miniature Fred Astaires and Ginger Rogerses.

After a selection of show tunes, the finale is a rendition of "New York, New York.

"It adds a nice touch of production broadens the show. It's a complete family show. There's always as many parents there as children."

IT'S THE same sort of broad appeal that has helped "Sesame Street" endure. Broadcast in nearly 80 countries, the show reaches adults as well as the children at whom it's specifically aimed.

"Sesame Street" 's writers throw in a few gags to keep the adults interested, too.

'If you don't have adults you lose the children. The adults have control over the television sets," McGrath said.

Thus the program has aired such song parodies as "Hey, Food" to the tune of "Hey, Jude," and "Letter B" sung to "Let It Be." Coy character names include Meryl Sheep and Placido Flamingo.

After earning a bachelor's degree in music from the University of Michigan, McGrath served two years in the Army, stationed in Germany.

On his discharge, he decided to head for New York, even though he didn't know a soul there. A friend gave him the name of a

> AFTER McGRATH hemmed and hawed his way through some preliminary conversation at St. David's, the headmaster got down to brass tacks.

"So you're looking for a free sack? he asked. McGrath not only ended up with a place to stay, but with a second job teaching music in the boy's school

'The headmaster said, 'You can talk cook into all the food you can eat.' Well, that was sort of a Charles Addams joke. It was a boy's school. There were 20 burners on this huge industrial stove, and there I'd be at night making my hamburger with 19 empty burners," McGrath said.

Among the staff members he met that first day in New York was Ann When McGrath takes to the road Sperry, a preschool teacher. After a couple of years of meeting in the were married June 14, 1958.

Early days of poster recalled

The American art poster, born in 1893, was designed to promote magazine sales. The poster immediately became a "hot" item among collec-

This is the period surveyed in 'American Posters of the "Gay Nineties" at Detroit Institute of Arts. Approximately 90 original posters and magazine covers from the museum's permanent collection are on display through Sunday, Sept. 18, in the Schwartz Graphic Arts Galleries.

In 1893, Harper & Brothers pub-lishers made the momentous decision to promote Harper's Monthly Magazine with monthly placards. Edward Penfield, the young director of Harper's art department, designed this first popular poster.

THE BOLD SIMPLICITY of Penfield's design revolutionized the art of the poster and commercial design in America. Soon other publishers were employing young artists to design posters and covers for their periodicals. In addition to Penfield's work, the images of Will H. Bradley were particularly influential.

Referred to as the American Beardsley, Bradley distilled the current artistic styles of England, most notably the work of the Arts and Crafts Movement. Penfield, on the other hand, drew from the French humor and design sensibility of Bonnard, Vuillard, and Toulouse-Lau-

To accommodate public demand, publishers announced that the posters could be purchased directly from the firm or would be included as a bonus to subscribers. As early as 1895, exhibitions of the new American art posters took place - including one in Detroit's Hotel Cadillac organized by the Women's Exchange and Decorative Arts Society of Detroit.

Commerical lithograph by Edward Penfield issue of Harper's. It belongs to the collection of (American, 1866-1925), is from the March 1897 the Detroit Institute of Arts.

By 1899, the craze was over. Many small publishing houses went out of business as economical photomechanical processes replaced the commercial relief and lithographic techniques for the production of posters and covers.

Penfield continued to produce monthly posters for Harper's until August of 1899.

fad dissipated as quickly as it had begun, but the artists' work had endured. Their innovative designs set new standards for future decades.

Along with Bradley and Penfield, artists represented in the exhibition include Elisha Brown Bird, Claude Fayette Bragdon, William L. Carqueville, Joseph Christian Leyendecker, Florence Lundborg, Blanche Reed, Louis John Rhead, Henry Mortika Rosenberg, Rob Wagner and Charles Herbert Woodbury.

The exhibit is open during regular museum hours, 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Tuesday-Sunday

David Kiehl, associate curator of prints and photographs, the Metropolitan Museum of Art, will discuss the exhibition in a lecture at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 14.

Courtney Hawkins of Flint Beecher heads up Stadium. Five ex-Observerland players perfield for the West All-Stars in the annual high formed for the East, which suffered a 17-10 deschool showcase event Saturday in Spartan feat.

Prep all-stars slug it out in heated battle

By C.J. Risak staff writer

It was hot - so what's new? and the artificial carpet that serves as the focal point of Spartan Stadium amplified it, like turning the oven knob from bake to broil.

The 80 players who volunteered to sizzle themselves on this skillet of a football field had been going at it for over two hours. Temperatures were in the mid-90s outside Michigan State's stadium; inside, it was well

Anyone in their right mind would have just rolled over and said, "Let's just play it out and survive. This game doesn't mean anything." They would have been more than sensible; they would have been quite correct. All-star games, like Saturday's eighth annual Michigan High School All-star Football Game, don't make a bit of difference.

But as time ran down in the final quarter, emotions were running high. And it seemed the East team, which lost for the second-straight year, this time by a 17-10 margin, would have liked nothing more than to (gulp) play one more quarter.

IT WAS PROBABLY the best game of the series. The big-name stars, guys like Birmingham Brother Rice's Jason Wolf (11 carries, 65 yards rushing) and Flint Beecher's Courtney Hawkins (12 rushes, 40 vards) and Grand Rapids Catholic's Perry Foster (10 attempts, 52 yards), came through with dazzling perfor-

football

The defenses had their moments, too. For the East, Livonia Stevenson defensive tackle Mike Nettie was in on five tackles and Redford Catholic Central middle guard Eric Knuth and Farmington Harrison linebacker Chris Cox each finished with four.

As Plymouth Salem offensive guard Jay Blaylock described it, "It was a great game. It was the hardest hitting I've ever experienced. I knew it would be a tough time out there. You could see it would be intense before the game even started."

BOTH OFFENSES moved the ball well, but neither could finish a drive for the first three quarters. The game was scoreless until Dennis Nicholl of Utica Eisenhower booted a 37-yard field with 8:13 left in the third quarter to put the East on top,

The West tied it on their next possession when Portage Northern's John Albertson converted a 27-yard field goal with just 47 seconds remaining in the third period.

To that point, the play had been good, but frustrating - at least offensively. The West changed that by scoring again when they regained possession. It didn't come easy; a nine-play, 54-yard drive culminated when Saginaw Arthur Hill fullback Martin Buchanan bullied his way into the end zone from a yard out. It took Buchanan three carries from two yards away to score, but he did, and the West was ahead 10-3.

THAT'S WHEN things got spicy. There are certain restrictions in allstar games, like no blitzing linebackers, but the West apparently forgot

"They blitzed like three times in a row," said Cox, "and you're not supposed to do that. Then we blitz once and get beat for a touchdown.'

That was the back-breaker. After some curious officiating - when West linebacker Kirk Carruthers tossed East running back Ray Jurecki for an 8-yard loss on a thirdand-19 play, then was called for an illegal blitz, no penalty was assessed; instead, the East took the play over, this time third-and-21 - the East faced a fourth-down-and-21.

A Dennis Hamilton pass was incomplete, giving the West the ball at the East's 38. On the first play, West quarterback Matt Hufnagel beat the East's blitz by sweeping left end and racing into the end zone to give his team a 17-3 lead with just 2:27 left.

MAC champ counts on ex-area stars

By C.J. Risak staff writer

A year ago, Eastern Michigan University was attempting to do something no Huron football team had done before - win a Mid-American Conference title

This year, EMU will attempt to do something no MAC team has managed since 1980 - repeat.

Huron coach Jim Harkema knows it won't be an easy task. "We didn't have a lot of great players," he said at Tuesday's MAC football media meeting in Toledo. "We had a lot of average players who played to the top of their ability. That's all I'm going to say about 1987. It's over.

'The 1988 football team did not win the Mid-American Conference title. They haven't won anything. This team has to establish its own identity.

Harkema has his strategy, a step-by-step plan to repeat, and it's rather simple.

"NO. 1, WE have to blend the new kids in with the older players," he said. "That has to happen. If it does, we'll be a good football team. Now, to take it another step to where we can compete for the title, we have to have some separators - guys who step forward and stand apart." EMU's success a year ago was due, in large part, to "separators" Gary Patton and Ron Adams. Both are gone, leaving gaping holes at running back and quarterback.

Harkema thinks he has able replacements. The news media, which predicted Kent State to win the MAC title this year, football didn't think the replacements would be good

And yet, EMU could have its share of "separators." One prominent candidate is senior tight end Bill Kupp of Bloomfield Hills (Lahser). Kupp won a starting role last year and finished with 12 catches for 155 yards. Harkema thinks those numbers will increase. At 6-foot-4 and 240-pounds, and with 4.8 speed in the 40-yard dash, Kupp has the potential.

"I THINK KUPP has a chance (to be a separator), you bet," said Harkema. "One of the best teams I had (at Grand Valley State) was with Rob Rubick (now with the Detroit Lions) at tight end, a guy who can block at the point of attack and catch the football. Billy's ready for that."

Kupp's blocking will be needed while the Hurons break in a new tailback. But the guy providing the leadership on the offensive line will be senior center Jim Colosimo (6-1, 250) of Southfield (Birmingham Brother

"He's a great leader," said Harkema of Colosimo, "and he's a very steady influence. He has a chance to be the best center I've

On defense, Harkema will stick with the rotating formula the Hurons have used with success. Senior inside linebacker Scott Jurek

(6-1½, 225), from Plymouth (Salem), will shuttle with Scott Wyka and Keith Bertram, junior roverback John Stoitsiadis (5-10, 187), of Livonia (Churchill), will share time with Jerry Smith, and sophomore defensive tackle Craig Petersmark (6-3, 253), of Farmington, will rotate with Herman Baine

OF COURSE, several other MAC teams have their sights set on the MAC title. Eight of the nine conference teams received firstplace votes in Tuesday's media balloting.

Another potential "separator" is Ball State senior inside linebacker Tim Walton (5-11, 230), from Redford Bishop Borgess. Walton ranked fifth in the conference in both tackles (138) and tackles for loss (14, including seven quarterback sacks). Against

Little Caesars earns return trip to national

By Steve Kowalski staff writer

With all the new faces in Redford Caesars lineup, folks in Johnstown, Pa. might not recognize the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League champion when it arrives next week for the AAABA tournament.

And if Caesars first baseman Ken Wandzel has his way, neither will the players' parents.

"We're all getting flat tops (to celebrate)," said Wandzel after Caesars assured itself of a second-consecutive appearance in Johnstown with a 7-6 win Tuesday night over Tom Holzer Ford at Ford Field. The LCBL playoff champion gets an automatic bid to the Johnstown tour-

Caesars' coach John Moraitis might not approve of Wandzel's idea "I'm conservative, like (Tigers president) Jim Campbell when it comes to haircuts" - but he can't wait to take this group east. Caesars fought back from a 6-2 fourth-inning deficit, and won on an RBI single in the sixth inning by right fielder Chuck Hammontree

The season doesn't end for Holzer's either, which fell to 22-8. Holzer's and Walter's Appliance, which finished third in the LCBL, will play in the National Amateur Baseball Federation College Division regional that begins today at Ford Field.

AND FOR CAESARS, Tuesday's LCBL finale was only the beginning. "I like the NABF too, but it doesn't have the national atmosphere like Johnstown," said Moraitis. "Johnstown has got the parades, queens, all sorts of people come in for this tournament. The girls there love this because all the boys leave Johnstown when they're 18 and 19 to go work in the coal mines.'

baseball

Last year, Caesars was 2-2 at the 16-team tournament, defeating host Johnstown for one of its victories. Only three current Caesars players made the trip to Johnstown last year, so for the rest of the team, this is a new experience.

"I was there once as a bat boy when my brother (Scott) played for Adray in the early '80s," said Jeff Gorman, who delivered a run-scoring single in the fourth and a crucial sacrifice bunt against Holzer's in the sixth inning. "I feel privileged to go as a player.

Holzer's needed to defeat the regular-season champion Caesars twice Tuesday to earn a trip to Johnstown, and for four innings it looked as though they might do it.

HOLZER'S LED 6-2 after scoring three unearned runs in the top of the fourth off Caesars' starter Anthony

But Gorman started Caesars comeback with a single in the bottom of the fourth that scored Steve Looney with the third run. Hammontree led off the fifth with a walk and scored on a single by Steve Malgay to cut the margin to 6-4, and Caesars tied the score with one out when Andy Fairman's throwing error allowed both Malgay and Derick Dowling to cross the plate.

Hammontree's one-out single in the bottom of the sixth scored Bob Kochie - who was on second after Gorman's sacrifice - with the win-

Moraitis pulled Yandura after the fifth inning and inserted Steve Witt, who retired six of Holzer's final seven batters to earn the win.

Yandura surrendured seven hits in his five innings of work, but showed signs of tiring in the 90 degree heat.

"He got dizzy, and the heat got to him," said Moraitis. "We had Witt all ready to go anyway. He was throwing in the bullpen for awhile." CAESARS ADVANCED to the playoff final, shutting out Walters Appliance, 4-0, at Ford Field Sunday. Kochie drove in two runs, and Malgay had two hits and one RBI for Caesars, which scored all its runs in the sixth

Holzer's got to the playoff final against Caesars after defeating both Hines Park Lincoln Mercury and Walter's Appliance Sunday at Ford Holzer's blanked Hines Park 10-0 behind the three-hit pitching of Dan Hilliard, who departed after the sixth inning. Bob Tatro, Rick Tavormina and Paul Newitt each drove in two runs for Holzer's. Tavormina hit a solo home run in the second In Holzer's 11-4 win over Walter's, Steve Rudelic singled three times and scored three runs. Scott Peterson had three singles and four RBI, and Fairman and Newitt collected Mike Salach earned the win, allowing seven hits in six innings.

Tutu Mikkola tallied two goals and two assists for the winners, and Tony Guzzo chipped in a pair of goals.

'Our goalie played very well and theirs not nearly so well," said Spartans coach A.J. Baker of his netminder, Brian Guillery. "Even though he let in seven goals, he had some key saves at crucial moments."

Stash Pientack and Dennis Ephlin had three points apiece (two goals and one assist) for the Bulldogs.

WILDCATS 9, LAKERS 5: In the regular-season finale Monday, Tim Olschanski slapped in three goals and assisted on three others to lead the Wildcats.

HIS IS A STORY of charac-

Or maybe out of character Or lack of character Or even all three.

The character in question is an acronym Four mighty letters these are in the world of sports: NCAA National Collegiate Athletic Association If the NCAA carried a business card it would list under its title Rules-makers and enforcers extraordinaire

Now. This character's character is what's in question. There must've been a switch in character somewhere, because the character displayed by the character in question was a complete reversal from its familiar pattern of behavior.

In other words, it acted out of character

Who acted out of character? Why the NCAA, of course. Normally a bureaucratic snail, the NCAA responded to seasons which seem to stretch from one June to the next in one bold, lightning-like stroke. They voted to ban coaches from coaching their own players for more than 26 weeks a year.

THE RULE covers all coaches, all sports, all NCAA divisions (I, II and III). It was adopted so quickly — college baseball coaches first heard about the 26-week rule at their association's meeting in January, one week before it became law - that it caught just about everybody by surprise.

How smug they must've felt, those NCAA members. They acted quickly. They acted confidently. And, best of all, they acted out of character.

In so doing, they proved something important: This slow-moving giant, which usually recruits everyone and anyone's opinion before ruling, then forms committees and sub-committees to study the issue further, can show an equal lack of character in making a quick decision as it does when proceeding slowly and cau-

"HOPEFULLY, IT'LL get overturned," said Rodger George, baseball coach of the Detroit Adray League's Westland Hawks and newly appointed head baseball coach at Wayne State. "I think it's unfortunate and short-sighted."

George was nearly a mid-season casualty of the 26-week rule. Without the special exemption he was granted, he would have had to quit coaching the Hawks once he was hired by WSU.

Summer league baseball and softball are the two sports that have the most to lose from this new rule. Indeed, the consequences the 26-week rule carries with it are dire enough to evoke prophesies of doom from George and another soon-to-be-casualty, Bob Atkins, an assistant baseball coach at University of Detroit and head coach of Adray League member Adray Appliance.

If the rule stands up, I think it will be the end of the Adray League," predicted George. Atkins - a Farmington Hills resident who also serves as Redford Union's athletic director - agreed, calling the rule's effects "devastating. I don't think they were thinking about baseball when they passed it.'

WHAT WERE the NCAA officials thinking about when it was passed? The individual athlete's well-being? Probably. Putting an end to yearround training programs? Surely.

'He didn't catch the ball well at tight end,"

But as Atkins said, they certainly weren't thinking about baseball, which happens to be a summertime sport. Since the college season starts in the fall and lasts through spring, it leaves no time for summer league

Remember, premier leagues like Detroit Adray consist of teams of college players. University of Michigan players make up one team, Michigan State's are another, U-D's are a third and Eastern Michigan's a fourth. Does it make sense to struggle to put all these players on the same roster, only to be coached by someone outside the program?

BY THE SAME token, guys like George and Atkins can continue coaching summer league ball - but not their own teams. Nor can they recruit any of the players on the rosters of the teams they're coaching. No more than three of their college players can play for them in the summer.

The rule has not yet gone into effect for the NCAA's Divisions I and III. It will later this month. It is in effect for Division II, Surprisingly, the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League could actually benefit since none of its members are college teams. If the Adray League disperses, an influx of quality players will undoubtedly fill LCBL rosters.

PROBLEM IS, there would be far fewer teams to play for in metro Detroit. Positions would be available only to the very elite player. And it would cause another gap, too.

"Summer leagues are also a good laboratory for teaching assistants how to coach," said Atkins. "It's a good training ground for them. It gives them experience."

The 26-week rule was meant to put a limit on a sport season's length, but by acting hastily and not considering each sport separately the NCAA struck out. The rule is being reconsidered and could be altered at the NCAA meetings next January, in time to save summer baseball and softball leagues.

Will it be changed? Who can say? True, it takes character to admit a mistake, but the NCAA has surprised us before by acting out of character. Maybe it will again.

And yet, it could have been better. "He had a good year," said Cardinal coach Paul Schudel, "but again, it was up-and-down. That's the way our season went - up-and-down. Now our defense is back to where I think it should be "Tim played really hard this

AT CENTRAL MICHIGAN, coach Herb Deromedi is counting on pair of local products: junior defensive tackle Dave Deletka (6-3, 255), from Farmington Hills (Harrison), and junior offensive guard Dave Basirico (6-2, 255), from Birmingham Brother Rice

"Dave's made excellent progress," said Deromedi. "He's turning into a great player. He's very smart and he's built himself up. He's a bona fide part of our program.'

Deletka had 28 tackles as a starter a year ago, including one sack.

Basirico played center last season before switching to guard. Deromedi likes his "quickness and size think he can play." But the player Deromedi lavished with praise was sophomore center Brett Naumcheff (6-3, 220), of Livonia (Dearborn Divine Child). Naumcheff serves solely as long snapper on the special teams, but he has turned his part-time job into a scientific study. "He could start some kind of coaching clinic for long snaps," said Deromedi. "He has all sorts of theories on it - how to snap on wet grass, how to snap on certain kinds of artificial turf, how to snap on the washed-out yard lines . . . he's really made a study of it. And he's very important to our football team."

Tough training spurs Taormina

By C.J. Risak staff writer

Listen to Sheila Taormina for about a second or two, and it's plainly evident she enjoys her life - even if she spends half of it following a black line at the bottom of the pool.

"I like swimming a lot right now." professed the Livonia Stevenson graduate who swam for University of Georgia last year. "I'm really en-

And why not? Taormina just com-pleted a fantastic first year at Georgia. She reached the NCAA consolation finals in two events, the 200yard individual medley (she finished 12th) and the 200 butterfly (placed 15th), and would have been in three had she not be disqualified in the 400

Her time in the 200 IM qualified her for the U.S. Olympic Trials. Then on Memorial Day at the Sundown to Seoul meet in Boca Raton, Fla., Taormina went 4:57.32 to qualify for the Trials in the 400-meter IM, easily beating the cut (5:00.79).

BUT TAORMINA'S pleasure seems a little, well, weird. It's kind of like those people who relish going to a Friday the 13th (part five), Halloween (part six) and House on Elm Street (part four) triple-feature.

'I swim my best when I'm pushed, when I'm challenged. I need a strong-willed coach.'

Sheila Taormina · Olympic swim hopeful

In essence, Taormina figures she swims her best when frightened. Here's her description of Georgia coach Jack Bauerle:

"I like his training program. He intimidated me. He's really tough, and he scared me a lot. I was always afraid he'd single me out during practice and yell at me."

Taormina, though, is no dummy. Far from it. She was an academic All-American at Georgia, finishing with a 3.77 grade point. She was a perfect 4.0 for winter semester.

So she understands the motivational psychology. "I swim my best when I'm pushed, when I'm challenged. I need a strong-willed

TAORMINA'S OWN will shouldn't be underestimated. Neither should her ability and endurance. During Christmas training at Georgia, she and her teammates swam 17,000 yards in the morning and 4,000 meters at night (nearly 10 miles in the morning, 21/2 at night).

She is currently training with the Clarenceville Swim Club, under the supervision of Greg Phill, her coach during high school. During heavy. training, her workouts would last 21/2 hours in the morning and one hour at night, totalling 12,000 meters. Also, every week would include three days of weight training and three days of half-hour runs.

Taormina is starting to taper for the Trials, which are Aug. 8-13 in Austin, Texas. She's down to 7,000 meters swimming a day, and has stopped running and weight training.

OF COURSE, there's still a ways to go if she is to gain a berth on the U.S. team. Taormina figures her best chance is in the 400 IM, where her stamina will be more evident. Olympic events are in long-course pools (50 meters in length, compared to the NCAA's 25-yard pools), which means fewer turns.

swimming

In short course, power usually prevails; in long course, the better technicians win. Taormina isn't built for power - she stands just 5-foot-3.

"I'm short. I get beat on the turns," she said. "But I think I've got the endurance.

It will be tested by a strong field of competitors. Taormina estimated she would have to drop another 10to-12 seconds to make the team, and perhaps eight seconds to reach the finals in the 400 IM.

'I've dropped 12 seconds before,' she said. "At the Junior National meet in 1985, I did. Greg tapered me WHICH EXPLAINS why she returned home to train. "He's been coaching me for eight years. He knows how to taper me.

Taormina is also buoyed by her performance at the Boca Raton meet. She finished fifth in the 400 IM, behind three Australians and Michelle Griglione, one of the favorites to win a spot on the team (the top two in each event qualify). The Aussies all tapered for the meet; Taormina didn't

Classic lives up to speedy billing

As the weather rumbles, records are humbled by the elite running field

By Tom Henderson staff writer

Whether it was the lightning that spurred the runners on, or because the race served as an interesting indication of how things might go on their college cross country teams this fall, the Redford Roadrunning Classic in Livonia Saturday night lived up to its reputation as flat and Especially fast.

Three women and one man broke course records, with the men's race turning into a rematch of high school rivals who have now gone on to Divison I careers.

Todd Williams of Monroe showed why the University of Tennessee has a tight race with Chris Inch, the former All-Stater from Farmington who now runs for Illinois.

Stride for stride at 2 11/4 miles, 22 seconds separated them at the end, with Williams taking off on a surge during a squall to win in 24:24, breaking the record by 18 seconds.

Kathy Hadler of Ann Arbor, who just two weeks before had run in the 10,000-meter U.S. Olympic Trials in mile and a half. It was tough. When Indianapolis, shattered the women's record of 29:15 with a 27:57.

Ella Willis of Detroit, mended from an early-season car accident that broke her arm, finished second in 28:37, and Kayla Skelly, a former All-America at Western Michigan who is a medical student at Wayne State, finished in 28:50.

Four women averaged under six minutes a mile in the five-mile sprint that looped out from Veterans Park, and five men averaged under five minutes a mile.

A sixth, Paul Coburn of Livonia, just missed at 25:01.

The races drew a record crowd of more than 1,200, with about 900 entering the five-miler and about 400 doing the mile, which was won for the second straight year by Wally Poupore, 29, of Hamtramck (5:10), who also ran the longer race in just over 31 minutes. FOR WILLIAMS, it was more of the same - he and Inch, the Farmington star who was an All-American as a prep in cross country, were natural rivals their senior year, with Williams beating him out for state championships in cross country. Williams holds the state two-mile record (9:01) and missed by just two cross country as a freshman at Ten-

We ran all through high school together. And last year we ran a dual meet with each other's schools.

We're good friends," said Williams. Williams, Inch and two others were in a pack of four halfway through the race. Williams threw in a surge and "I looked back at three and I felt they were fading.

"It was my first race of the summer," said Williams. "I just wanted to see what kind of shape I was in going into cross country. I just wanted to hang with the leaders. Hadler didn't have to worry about anyone hanging with her Saturday. She was alone from start to finish, showing why she is a frequent winner in Detroit-area races. 'The rain didn't bother me at all." him on scholarship, as he broke open said Willis. "I was hoping it would rain more. It gives me an advan-

> Bob Fitch, 37, of East Lansing, was the top wheelchair finisher. Nearly two dozen entered as part of the MUSCLES series of wheelchair races, where wheelers race against others in groupings based on the severity of their spinal injuries.

> We battled a head wind the first we got out of the wind, it started raining," said Fitch, who did 23:51, faster than any of the runners.

Said wheeler Walt Runchey of Garden City: "The rain helped me. I went down curbside and for the first time I didn't have to worry about runners." The runners avoided the curb area, which filled ankle deep Pat Ford of Linden (30:44) was the sole woman wheeler.

Pete Bolos of St. Clair Shores was one of the oldest runners in the course, at 75. But that didn't stop him from running his best time ever, 40:10, or from beating 300 other

"I almost broke an eight-minute pace for the first time ever," said the former pro boxer, who was in his 67th race of the season.

TERRY ELSEY of Farmington Hills is a frequent winner of area runs. The field was so fast here that he could do no better than 12th, though his time of 25:36 won the 35-39 age group.

Larry Olszewski of Detroit (25:36) topped those 40-49, and Bob Paklaian of Troy topped the 50-andovers (28:37).

Mary Ellen Hyde of Dearborn seconds of making All-America in Heights (36:17) led the women 40-49, and Sandra Studebaker of Fraser (41:28) beat the 50-and-overs.

Reduce stress with a big game of tennis

Mental fatigue makes you physically fatigued.

I see stress every day in individuals who bring different levels of anxiety to the tennis courts. One of the great advantages of vigorous exercise is that it usually reduces stress.

Tennis is a fantastic way to relieve tension, pressure and stress. Tennis allows you to hit the ball as hard and as far as necessary (sometimes farther than necessary). As a tennis professional, I try to decide during my initial greeting with the student how much warm-up time is needed. Players taking lessons frequently are not ready to listen to instruction until after they have had a vigorous warm-up period. Let's share some ideas which might work on the tennis courts when tennis stress occurs

- Smile when you feel tense
- Move your feet more when you feel nervous.
- When nervous, hit out firmly when stroking.
- Shake-out your hands and shoulders. · Take more time between points.
- · Walk more and establish routines before hitting.
- · Focus on each point.
- · Set up a good game plan. If it doesn't work, change your patterns and tempo.
 - Realize that anxiety causes you to rush your shots.
 - Remember to be your best friend on the court.
 - · The key words are: easy, forward, reach Enjoy the game and be positive. Act, don't react.
 Work on deep, normal breathing.

 - · Forget the 'gross,' think 'net'.

You don't have to be a judge to deal with court stress.

No changes for '88 hunting season by Craig Calderone, has been disqualified. ERISHING POTHOLES, streams and small swamps has depleted the water supply resident wildlife in Michigan depend on during the hot, dry summer months. But contrary to popular rumors there won't be any drastic changes in the season lengths or bag limits of the upcoming 1988 hunting sea-

"At this point there won't be any changes with the resident wildlife (seasons)," explained Ed Mikula, assistant chief of the Wildlife Division of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources. "The drought conditions have abated so far. Our only concern now is with the migratory waterfowl.'

The waterfowl population has been hit hard over the central flyway, which includes the prairie/pothole areas of the central and eastern United States. With the diminished water supply in this area the duck population is already down more than 16 percent, which means production will also be drastically reduced.

To compensate for the lower numbers of waterfowl the Flyway Council met recently in Louisiana and looked at several options. Among proposed changes are reducing the duck season to 30 days and eliminating special seasons such as the scaup only hunt.

The early (September) experimental Canada goose season in Michigan is still on, however, according to DNR officials.

WOODCOCK HAVE also been affected by the drought. Approximately 60-80 percent of the woodcock's diet consists of earth worms, and anyone who's been fishing this summer knows there is a shortage of worms and crawlers. (Prices of $1.75 a dozen and higher seem to underscore

With many woodland pot holes already dried up, woodcock have had to move from their traditional woodland nesting areas to areas closer to large river systems and lakes.

Since these birds nest as early as April, most chicks were strong enough to make the move by mous 14-pointer taken in Jackson County in 1986 mid-May. But woodcock hunters should be alerted to the fact that they may not find the birds in the traditional areas.

There has been a noticeable decrease in the mast crop (acorns and nuts) in the northern Lower Peninsula which could have an effect on deer and turkey as the winter approaches, but so far it's not major concern.

'At this point we don't have a lot of data. We're waiting to see what happens with mother nature,' explained DNR gamebird specialist John Urbain. 'All in all it looks like the woodland birds had a pretty good nesting season. The woodcock have moved around but it looks like they're in good shape and the turkey seem to have very good brood sizes. Pheasant, quail and grouse are doing just fine.'

DEER HUNTERS who hunt private farmland during the firearm season may be able to bring home some extra venison this year.

In an effort to help reduce crop damage, the DNR is looking at the possibility of allowing landowners and guests who receive an antierless deer permit the opportunity to bag two deer on their first license. The only catch is that the second deer must be antlerless.

"We're trying to enhance the harvest of deer in areas of extreme crop damage," Mikula said.

Deer hunters should also be aware that there is a new Michigan record for a typical buck. Actually it's an old record.

The state record of 191%, scored on an an enor-

The overall record reverts to Mark Ritchie of Dexter for his buck taken in 1984 which scored 186 %. The archery record goes back to Traverse City's Mitch Rompola for the buck he took in 1985 which scored 181%. Commemerative Bucks of Michigan, a nonprofit organization formed in 1981 for the purpose of recognizing and recording Michigan's trophy whitetails, disqualified Calderone's buck after learning that Calderone had been cited for game

law violations. He was ticketed in 1981 and again in 1987 for using artificial light during restricted

"It's too bad it happened, but we have to go by the book," said CBM's Joe Newmyer. "We're after habitual offenders. It has to be a convicted offense, too. We don't just go by stories someone

BEAR SEASON has reopened on Drummond Is-

The season was closed on the island after the 1983 hunt when locals became concerned about the bear population and over harvest. Since that time the population has continued to expand. Although no accurate records of the total population were available, it was noted that over 60 black bear have been captured, marked, weighed and examined through a DNR study over the last two

The hunt will be offered in two periods. There will be 30 permits issued for the Sept. 10-16 hunt and another 40 permits issued for the Sept. 24-30

All successful hunters must register their bear before leaving the island and there is a 20 bear quota for each hunt. The hunt will end when 20 bear have been harvested in each period.

Interested hunters must apply for a permit by Aug. 15. To apply, send your name, address, passbook number and bear license number to: Drummond Island Bear Hunt, P.O. Box 30030, Lansing

Bug-eating swift 'a flying cigar'

NE OF THE most unusual descriptive comparisons for birds that I know of is "a flying cigar." Roger Tory Peterson makes this analogy when talking about the chimney switt.

These small, seldom noticed birds are dark gray all over with no remarkable plumage patterns. Their straight, stout bodies with squaredoff tails give the illusion of a cigar.

Connected to each "cigar" is a pair of long, thin, tapered, arched wings. Such wings are adept at rapid movements when coupled with shallow, quick wingbeats. As you watch a bird flash by overhead, it will dart from side to side in efforts to catch insects with its wide mouth.

THEY ROOST and build their nests inside chimneys.

A special saliva is secreted from the mouth which is used to adhere small sticks to the vertical surface of the enimney. Birds-nest-soup is made from an Asian swift's nest made entirely of saliva.

Four to five small white eggs are laid in the nest and are incubated by both adults. Once the eggs have hatched, both adults feed the young. In some nests, sons and daughters of also help feed the young.

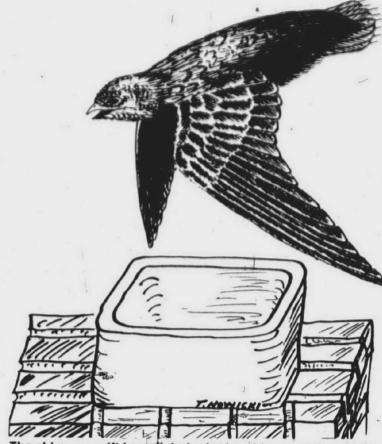

Because chimney swifts have very small feet and legs, they spend most of their time flying. In the evening, however, large groups of birds will gather and enter a chimney to roost for the night. One group of 10,000 birds took only 37 minutes to settle down in their favorite chimney

THEIR SMALL feet allow them to cling to coarse brick and mortar. Occasionally they fly to the center of the chimney, flutter for a moment and then return to the side.

One observer was curious to discover what they were doing, but could not see well from above. So he went to the bottom of the chimpey to look up toward the opening.

Shortly after he stuck his head in the chimney and saw a bird flutter to the center, he discovered what the birds were doing. He then had to wipe it off his face.

Listen for a rapid, high pitched chatter next time you're walking downtown, then look up and see if you can spot a "flying cigar."

The chimney swift has a tubular body, wide mouth for catching insects and slender wings for quick movement.

Bug population growing

Higher than usual numbers of young box elder bugs are being reported throughout the metropolitan area this summer, according to the Wayne County Cooperative Extension Service.

While it isn't a threat to human safety, the box elder bug can bite. It also carries an unpleasant odor and can stain clothing and house siding. Young box elder bugs are bright red. Adults, about one-half-inch long, are dark brown-black with three red stripes and wings. They feed on female flowers, fruit, foilage and twigs. Despite its name, the bug also feeds on maple, ash and various fruit trees.

Trees should be sprayed now to avoid large box elder bug populations this fall, when the bugs traditionally reach maturity.

If spraying isn't done, the county CES suggests treating tree trunks and foundations with residual insecticides of 2 percent malathion, 2 percent sevin (carbaryl) or 1 percent diazinon according to label directions.

Indoors, bugs may be controlled by vacuuming, by using a bug bomb containing pyrethrin or rotenone or contact residuals of 2 percent malathion or 1 percent diazinon, according to label directions.

a dream comes true

NITED STATES Sen. Carl Levin said it all in his remarks at the dedication Sunday of the Livonia Civic Center Library attended by over 300 people.

"This is a great day whether you live in Livonia or not," he said, commenting on the opening of the 60,000-square-foot library that is the direct result of a grass-roots campaign spearheaded by a small group of residents who banded together as the Friends of the Library and conducted a successful millage campaign when many savvy politicos said it couldn't be done.

In that regard, in his remarks Sunday, Mayor Robert Bennett, an ardent supporter of the library dating back to his day as a council member, paid high tribute to the citizens group with a quotation from Ecclesiastes:

Ecclesiastes:
"Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might; for there is no work nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom in the grave whether thou goest."

Try using a starburst filter

Become a photographer of the stars. Not movie stars or constellations, but stars added to your photographs - by means of a star filter

A star filter is an inexpensive addition to your photo equipment that can add a special burst of excitement to your shots, whether color or black and white

A close inspection of a star filter will reveal a miniature window screen acts on any highlight to produce a starburst effect in the finished picture. And because you always see directly through the lens on your single lens reflex camera, you'll be able to preview and adjust the starburst before you snap the

Star fifters come in four, six, and eight point designs depending on how screen imbedded in the glass. This much of a burst you want. I prefer the simplicity of the four-point star which is easily adjusted to any angle. Here are some subject ideas that work well with star filters.

> Sparklers in the lake or ocean caused by a descending sun will produce dazzling photos with a star filter, especially if you place a silhouetted subject in the foreground such as a seagull perched on a piling or some scraggly tree branches.

Reflections in shiny objects such as chrome will give that added flare to your pictures. Street lamps at night will generate a certain ambiance not attainable in any other way. And, of course, the sun itself photographed through a star filter will result in a breathtaking shot.

Remember, a star filter can be used in combinations with other filters if, for example, you want to darken a blue sky with a polarizer or use many of the filters designed for black-and-white film. Just attach the star filter directly over the other filter you're using and you're certain to be pleasantly surprised.

Always reach for the stars in your photographic growth. And to help along the way, use a starburst filter. *1988, Monte Nagler

O GESTURE in the art world means to suggest casually with little effort. I guess that would be a good term for the ways youngsters clean their room or the way I diet. But gesturing in your art is the best way to learn to draw.

Did you ever draw a beautiful head of a deer and then grimace when you realize there is not enough room on the paper for the antlers? You're not alone. All drawings tend to grow. The more the detail, the bigger they grow.

Much of the time it doesn't matter if the drawing grows more than you intended. Simply transfer it to or trace it on a larger sheet of paper. If, however, you do wish to maintain a certain size, then you can become frustrated trying to contain your sketch.

"GESTURE DRAWING" will cure your sketch's growing pains. As the name "gesture" implies, you simply suggest lines and shapes.

Lightly suggest the outline shape in the size you want the drawing to be. Then go back and suggest the features inside the outlining gesture. This should be free and easy sketching.

I like my students to stand at this point and loosely hold onto their pencils. This discourages the natural tendency to detail. After laying in all the internal features or shapes, simply adjust the outline to your satisfaction.

Line gesturing helps you fit your drawing on the paper or canvas. It also helps you keep your drawing proportionate. Remember, the more features or shapes an object has, the greater tendency for growth.

Imagine you are drawing the figure of a man. The head, because of its busyness, tends to grow and the body, because of its simplicity, tends not to grow, so you end up with a man with a big head! Remember: before you commit to any details, build a proportionate gesture to support

LINE GESTURE is a term I heard in college. Have you ever heard the term, "value gesture"? I never did until Tuesday morning. I was teaching a student and friend, Bob Young. Bob was drawing a portrait of an old gentleman from a very small photo.

I usually tell students drawing portraits to sketch the features in values instead of lines. Many times you can lay tracing paper over the picture from which you are working, and to your surprise even the tracing doesn't look like the person you are trying to draw.

Why is this? Values. We don't see faces in lines, we see them in values. So instead of gesturing only lines when drawing a face, gesture value. As soon as I said it, I stopped and said, "I gotta write that down.

Wayne State chorus. akes 2nd place in in international event

cial writer

The Wayne State University Camber Singers and Men's Glee Cob took part in a whirlwind musifest leading them from Germany and climaxing with an International Musical Eisteddfod in Llangollen,

"We took Wales by storm," said legrid Poole, 19, of Detroit, which was the common feeling among the group despite having to settle for a cond-place spot behind a well-maed choir from Bulgaria.

The Eisteddfod was started in 1947 following World War II by W.S. Gwynne Williams in an effort to bring the countries of the world toether in harmony with the idea of Wayne's first trip to the Eis-teddfod was in 1957. At that time, the trip was in conjunction with the USO tours and was funded by the Department of Defense.

SINCE 1965 THE GROUP had traveled independently. This year they had to raise $110,000. The majority of the money was raised through fund-raisers and a small portion was given by private donors and WSU alumni.

It took nearly two years for the students to get the money needed. Each of the 55 singers had to pay $600 toward his or her expenses. In addition, they still had to maintain full-time class and work schedules.

Although they were the youngest chorus present at the competition, the Men's Glee Club felt that they proved their level of experience by their second place finish, missing first place by one point,

IT WAS NECESSARY for each participating group to compete in four different areas, including folk and classical music.

According to several singers, the audience's response and the feedback received from the judges did not reflect the score that the singers receive in any of the four areas.

"It was very disappointing because we knew that we did the best that we could," said Curt Peters, 22, and English major from Livonia.

When we left that place we felt as if we were doing something important," Peters said. "All we can take away is the experience of being

In all, there is a positive outlook regarding their experiences while traveling. For most of the trip, they stayed in homesteads.

There was deep gratitude to the families throughout the smaller sections of Germany and Switzerland who opened their homes and their hearts to the strangers from Detroit.

One student described the hosting families as being the warmest that anyone could possibly expect. A few of the families attended concerts and offered their support.

YET ACCORDING TO Freya Katkowsky of Detroit, a few people had a hard time understanding the closeness shared by the young vocalists.

When the singers did their preperformance meditation for strength and support, an elderly English gentleman recognized it as being rude and excluding.

"We have a great closeness," Peters added. "There is a kind of camaraderie when you are trying to accomplish' something important like Eisteddfod."

Some of the students will continue on throughout Europe to see what they missed due to their tight travel

For others, the fabulous impressions of the trip do not offset the homesickness and they will head for Detroit following their final performance in London's St. Martin-inthe-Field church.

"THE FIRST THING that I'm going to do when I get home is fry some chicken," said Poole.

A sad part of ending the trip is saying goodbye to mentor Dr. Harry Langsford, professor music.

Langsford, whom the students affectionately refer to as "Doc," will relinquish his part-time position with the university and enter into retire-

The university is seeking a replacement for Langsford, who has worked with the program for 43 some money. And some good advice. From people who know what they're talking about.

That's why more people have financed their homes at First Federal of Michigan than at any other financial institution in the state. We know how to put money to work for you.

You'll find First Federal people are more than courteous. They're true professionals. Keenly aware of the latest trends in mortgage financing. Like early ownership, graduated payments and adjustable loans. All of which they'll be happy to explain in detail. And, if

First Federal can also arrange mortgage plans you may be more familiar with. Conventional fixed-rate loans. FHA and VA. Plus refinancing to pay off a land contract or balloon note coming due.

We can also provide construction financing with an easy, straightforward program.

So when you find the house you'd be proud to call your home, come see us. Whether you're building or buying, First Federal of Michigan can lend you something besides money.

We can lend you years of experience, too.

Idea homes tout interior trends

HE LATEST in nome interior design and decor can be seen in the 18 homes of Homearama — Summer, the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan's sixth annual showcase of 'idea" homes. Aug. 4-28, in Autumn Ridge subdivision on Orchard Lake road just north of Walnut Lake Road.

High ceilings — a full 10 feet — and 8-foot doors are a noticeable trend among the homes. like the "Woodridge" by Kay Building Corp. of Farmington Hills, which uses them extensively on the first floor.

Development Co. of West Bloomfield also uses them on the first floor. including library, laundry and kitchen where higher ceilings allow use of extra tall kitchen cabinets for added storage

Another innovation in ceilings and door openings is "stepped" construction. "The Bradley" model by Armstrong Development Co. of West Bloomfield makes extensive use of the concept in its fover, with triple steps or soffits around the ceiling and door openings. The step-down effect is carried out with double soffits in the

"THE BRADLEY'S" dining room ceiling also exhibits another strong trend toward use of more recessed lighting, with 11 of them in that room

Slanted "studio" ceilings are now prolific in many HOMEARAMA homes. They are used in the kitchen as well as the great room — which incorporates 10 recessed lights - in "The Michael Anthony" model by G. Alan Associates Ltd. of West Bloomfield.

The great room of "The Michael Anthony," with its three-story ceiling, and the dining room are "sunken, another very popular trend in HOMEARAMA homes

In walls, a popular twist is curved or 'radius' walls, like those in "The American Living" by Center Building Co. of Farmington Hills and Kalabat Construction Inc. of Southfield. Among many are the curved glass brick wall that separates the dining room from the great room — with its circular bar, and a curved stairwell to the second floor.

IT'S IN THE EDGES of the walls that one finds a very practical innovation in the "Looking Glass" by Koch Development of Bloomfield Township. The edges are formed by a new product, a quarter-round aluminum corner that promises to keep these exposed edges from. chipping Another new material usage is found in stainless steel front doors and the stainless steel. L-shapd stairway of 'The Devin' model by S.S.R. Building Co. of Farmington Hills.

Kitchens are larger and more efficient these days, and Detroit Edison's "Bright Idea Home." the Menlo Park" by Burdge Inc. of W. Bloomfield, has added the adjective sumptuous," by making theirs circular, with curved glass block, aluminum wall panels and black granite counter tops and furnishing it with top-of-the-line imported cabinets.

In bathrooms, among many notable attractions is the semi-round, corner whirlpool tub of marble in the 'Arlington II' by Benivegna Building Co. of Farmington Hills and Roux & Associates of Northville.

"MORE BATHROOMS ARE better." is a current axiom, and the four-bedroom "Garlinghouse" model by Burley Associates Inc. of Canton, has three, each with its own bath and dressing area, in addition to the luxurious master suite bath with its step-up whirlpool tub and double Spacious, two-person showers have been "in" for a couple of years, but S.S.R. Bulding Co. of Farmington Hills makes theirs in "The Devin" model very functional as well as fun by providing two separate shower heads.

The sun room is making a comeback at Homearama - Summer. in the "Garlinghouse," where it is situated between the breakfast room and the living room. Whoops! Did they say "living room"? There's another one trying to make a comeback.

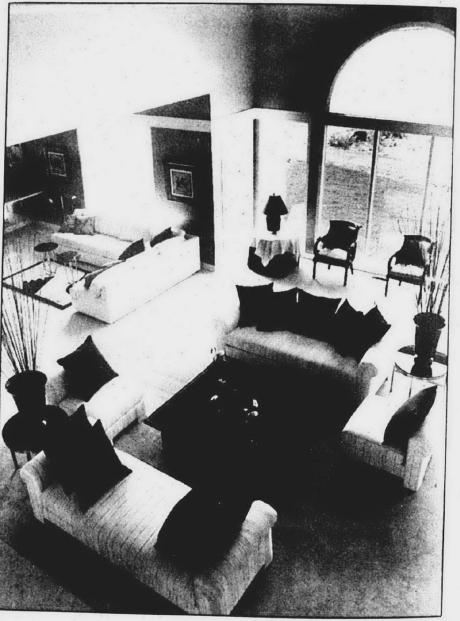

If there is such a thing as trends in traditional interiors, it's toward more fine wood moldings and panelling. Bonadeo Builders feature custom moldings, including extensive crown modeling, throughout its "Fairhill" model, and an elegant, open oak staircase with railings from the foyer to the second floor.

THE OTHER COLONIAL, the 'Windsor'' by Rembrandt Construction Inc. of Detroit, has custom designed, raised oak panels in the den, with built-in bookcases and boxed-beam ceiling.

Although beautiful, there are security "brains" behind the facades of the HOMEARAMA homes. The one installed by Kay Building Corp. of Farmington Hills in its "Woodridge" model even has a TV-monitored entry Homearama — Summer is open to the public 7-11 p.m. Mondays through Fridays, and 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays.

When it comes to getting a home mortgage, some banks give you the feeling that everybody is buying the same house.

They sit you down. They show you the same mortgage they show everybody else. They have you fill out the same forms. And then they let you leave.

Well, that's not the way we work at Comerica. We understand that everyone has different financial needs, so we give you a choice.

For instance, if you're looking for a simple, convenient way to pay for your home, we might show you our popular 15 and 30 year fixed rate mortgages.

If you need a lower rate to start, we might show you our I year adjustable rate mortgage. Or our 5 year balloon mortgage.

There's even a jumbo-sized loan for those of you who are planning on buying a jumbo-sized house. With it, you can borrow up to $500,000. That's $150,000 more than most other places offer.

And no matter which type of mortgage you choose, you'll have a Comerica representative helping you all the way, offering advice, and making sure you choose the best mortgage for your needs.

So stop in soon at Comerica, or call 1-800-292-1300 (222-5585 in Detroit) for the name of your nearest Comerica Mortgage Representative.

Unless, of course, you really do want the same house everyone else has.

Consumers should select home insurance with care

→ ONSUMERS should choose insurance coverage for their home and personal belongings with care.

"A home and the possessions it contains are very-special. Insurance for those items should be tailored to meet each individual's needs," according to Terry Buckles, president of Michigan Association of Insurance Companies

One type of home insurance policy is the "broad form," otherwise known as HO 2. This covers damage to the dwelling and possessions from perils such as explosion, fire or lightning, windstorm or hail, riot or civil commotion, theft, vandalism, falling objects, building collapse and damage from a vehicle or aircraft.

Another, perhaps more common type of policy is the HO 3, often referred to as the "special form." This policy covers the dwelling against additional perils and, accordingly, is priced somewhat higher. There are also special policies to fit the needs of renters and condominium owners.

Most homeowners policies also cover a policyholder's legal liabilities if someone is injured on the premises, or if the insured damages someone else's property. "Personal liability insurance includes protection in the form of legal defense and payment of damages, if the insured is found to be at fault," Buckles said.

Policies usually provide a minimum of $25,000 to $100,000 in coverage for personal liability; however, consumers may wish to purchase higher limits for an additional premium.

REPLACEMENT COST coverage is the traditional type of home insurance. It pays for replacing, rebuilding or repairing the property to its original condition with materials of the like kind and quality.

Another option offered by many insurers is the repair cost policy. This type of policy pays to replace, repair or rebuild damaged property to a similar condition using contemporary

Many Michigan homes are dangerously underinsured, the insurance official noted. Inflation has doubled and tripled their value in recent years; but property owners have neglected to increase insurance coverage levels accordingly.

THE AMOUNT OF RECOVERY for property loss is limited to amounts specified in the policy. So, even if a home is worth $60,000 and insured for $40,000, the owner would receive only the latter in case of total loss.

Most property losses, of course, aren't "total." Even with partial losses. however, many homeowners could have financial difficulties if underinsured. Replacement cost policies generally require the insured to maintain coverage levels equal to at least 80 percent of replacement cost.

If the insured does not, the company won't pay the full cost of repairing, replacing or rebuilding for such partial losses.

Many companies offer a special policy endorsement or provision that increases dwelling coverage levels automatically to keep pace with

A homeowners policy will cover a family's personal belongings, such as furniture, appliances, rugs, clothing. jewelry, etc., as well as the home itself The amount of insurance protection for personal property on the premises is usually 50 percent of the amount of coverage on the dwelling.

For example, if a policy provides $60,000 insurance on a home, the contents would be insured for $30,000

Policies generally provide only limited amounts of coverage for certain types of personal property that are especially susceptible to loss, such as cash, securities, jewelry, furs, firearms, and stamp and coin

Coverage for cash has a $200 limit. while coverage for other valuables varies between $1,000 and $2,500. For an additional premium, the consumer can purchase a policy endorsement in which the items are described specifically and each is given a dollar value

Buckles noted that home insurance premiums are based on the following criteria: territory (geographic location), amount and type of coverage, safety and security devices structural defects, fire protection, construction, prior claims, use of smoking materials and availability of law enforcement.

Understated elegance

The dining room in the "Arlington II," by Benivegna Building Co., has a quiet elegance. Off the kitchen at one end, it opens onto the great room.

This 'Bright Idea Home' glows with innovations

A dramatically lighted suspended staircase and an electrically controlled closet, along with other lighting innovations, state-of-the-art appliances, a high-tech security system and the latest electric heating and cooling units will be featured in the Menlo Park Home — Detroit Edison's "Bright Idea Home" — at this summer's Homearama.

The summer Homearama, a public showing of homes built in Autumn Ridge subdivision by members of the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan, is now open. Detroit Edison is co-sponsor of Homearama, along with First Federal.

The custom-built Bright Idea Home has an interior lighting plan that accents the home throughout. For example, the home has a three-story stairwell featuring a suspended staircase lighted by low-angle light strips concealed below to emphasize the architectural detail and create an inviting effect.

In addition, "up-lighting" is used to highlight the master bedroom and kitchen cabinets and "back-lighting" complements a glass-block wall in the study. Proper lighting serves a practical and aesthetic purpose helps to make tasks easier and increases the comfort level in a home.

A Detroit Edison lighting expert designed the lighting layout and recommended appropriate fixtures for security lighting and decorative interior lighting for the home. Exterior fixtures are controlled by automatic timers or photocells to maximize safety and convenience.

For added safety in the subdivision, a street-lighting system has been installed featuring contemporary-style fixtures that use 100-watt high-pressure sodium lamps.

Detroit Edison's "Bright Idea Home." built by Burdge Inc., also will have the latest in heating and cooling systems. Air-to-air heat pumps are used as add-on features to conventional furnaces to provide efficient, economical heating in the winter and air conditioning in the summer.

Discount coupons, good for one dollar off the Homearama admission price Monday through Friday, will be available at Detroit Edison customer offices prior to and during Homearama.

Contemporary in design, the 2,700-square-foot Arlington has three bedcoms, 21/2 baths and a rough sawn board and batten exterior. Entrance stairway has dramatic, crystal clear balusters and oak railing overlooking great room. The kitchen adjoins an informal, sun-filled dining room with studio ceiling and a six-foot window wall opening to the great room. An nformal dining room with six-foot windows also opens to the great room. The great room itself features a 20-foot vaulted ceiling with loft rail overlooking dramatic two-story windows. Trends, innovations are apparent PPROACHING the 18 homes of 1988 Homearama -Summer, down a winding culde-sac in Autumn Ridge subdivision in West Bloomfield, many trends and innovations in home building are apparent.

With an average price tag of over $350,000, the builders, architects, interior designers and landscapers had budget room to incorporate the latest and greatest features available.

It is apparent that white has become a very popular exterior color, as seen on seven of the homes. The "Saturn" model by C & O Construction & Investment Co. of Farmington Hills combines white brick and whitepainted horizontal cedar siding and shows an arresting triple-offset design in incorporating a triple garage into the attractive front elevation.

Walking into the basement of the 'Saturn," the visitor will find that the walls have 20 different planes, in order to support the intricate, free-form architectural design.

Multiplaned and peaked roof lines are becoming more prevalent. The front view of "The Sheffield" by Dakota Building Co. of West Bloomfield shows five separate roof levels, and the "Tri-Star" by Northbrook Asociates of Rochester Hills show six peaks.

INSULATION HAS BEEN around for a long time. Now comes 'outsultation," a new exterior finishing system on walls of "The Biscayne" by L.K. Development Co. of West Bloomfield. Touted as maintenancefree, it consists of a troweled-on acrylic finish over insulation blocks.

With the size of lots in Autumn Ridge, there is plenty of room for inviting courtyards as preambles to the house's main entrance. Rembrandt Construction Inc. of Detroit effectively uses a large, brick-walled courtyard to carry out the French colonial theme of its "Windsor" model Around back, the deck's the thing, these days. Benivegna Building Co. Inc. of Farmington Hills and Roux & Associates of Northville have stretched a deck the entire length of the rear elevation of their "Arlington II" model. It is accessible through window walls from the great room, dining room and kitchen/dining nook. It's also apparent from a stroll through 1988 HOMEARAMA -Summer that lots of windows and huge windows are more "in" than ever. Walking up to Detroit Edison's 'Bright Idea Home," the "Menlo Park" model by Burdge Inc. of W. Bloomfield, the visitor is impressed by a huge, 20-foot-by-22-foot entrance window wall composed of 18 large square panes, around the two towering 10-foot-by-4-foot glasspaneled entrance doors.

HUGE WINDOWS MELD into sheer glass walls in the aptly named 'Looking Glass'' model by Koch Development of Bloomfield Township.

Nine-foot-high glass walls in the multistepped-out design of the rear walls open up huge vistas of the treed area behind the home

Not every home in Homearama is trendy. The colonial "Fairhill" model by Bonadeo Builders of Plymouth is staunchly traditional and exhibits fine workmanship and detail. Painstakingly done brick and stone lintels top all of the windows in the front elevation of the solid brick exterior.

The houses will be open to the public from Aug. 4 through Aug. 28, in the new Autumn Ridge subdivision on Orchard Lake Road just north of Walnut Lake Road.

18 homes: a study in one-upmanship

LARRY ALLEN PEPLIN

One of the hottest trends in interior design is the Southwestern look. In the Garlinghouse, by Burley Associates of Canton, Decorating Den's Mary Bahar chose five-legged wooden chairs with leather-wrapped corners and a casual stain. The furnishings are in a sunroom adjaent to the living room and breakfast nook. French doors lead out to a deck.

and in the prime Orchard ake Road corridor just north of Walnut Lake Road in West Bloomfield, from Aug. 4 through Aug. 28, the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan is presenting 18 new houses that are a study in oneupmanship called "HOMEARAMA -

In the embryo Autumn Ridge Subdivision and priced $250,000-$525,000, the houses will show the public many things they have never seen before, in the builders' battle to get "one up" on competitors. For

- A fireplace in the master bedroom suite has been the ideal. Now, Northbrook Associates of Rochester Hills has brought in a "seethrough" fireplace for their "Tri-Star" model, so that one can also enjoy the flames from the relaxed perspective of the whirlpool tub in the master bath. Champagne, anyone?
- Separate master bedroom suites have been the rage for the last few years. Now, a number of HOMEARAMA models have "stepup" master bedroom suites. Four full steps are required to ascend to that suite in "The Elite" model by Grand Homes Inc. of West Bloomfield, raising it well above the level of mediocrity and the children.
- Second-floor decks are found on quite a few HOMEARAMA houses, but Dakota Building Co. of West Bloomfield has put a 6-foot wall around half of the one on "The Sheffield" so that sun bathing "au naturel" is possible.

- Guest rooms are great, but "The Sheffield" model goes one-up with an entire guest suite, featuring a molded acrylic tub and shower with molded-in seat and clear "bubble" door.
- Large walk-in closets have been in vogue, but "The Elite" carries the idea to great lengths; 17 feet to be exact, and large, separate "his" and 'hers' closets can be found in the master bedroom suites of several models like "The Avalon" by West End Construction Co. of Fenton, and 'The Grove' by Nosan/Cohen Associates Inc. of West Bloomfield.
- Many moms and dads have luxurious whirlpool tubs in their master baths, but Center Building Co./ Kalabat Construction Inc., of Farmington Hills and Southfield goes one-up by putting one in for the kids too, in "The American Living" model.
- Space and openness have been the trend in interiors, and it is stressed in many HOMEARAMA houses, but possibly carried to the maximum and most impressive in "The Grove." The visitor walking through the double entrance doors is greeted by a tremendous breadth of open interior living space 45 feet wide. incorporating the great room, dining room and library.
- Grand and soaring foyers have been popular, and many examples are found at HOMEARAMA, but "The Avalon" one-ups with a foyer that gathers spaciousness from the barrelvaulted great room and vaults upward to a skylight three full stories above.

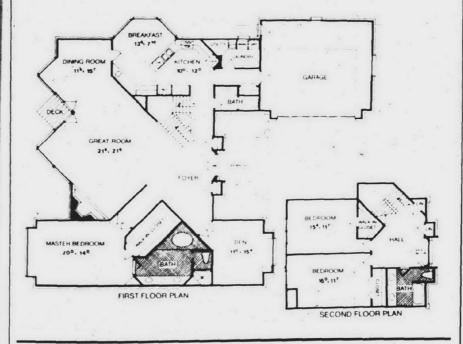

In one of the few baby rooms in Homearama-Summer in West Bloomfield, decorator Mary Bahar featured pastels and ribbons in a fanciful setting that includes wicker furnishings and a wrought iron crib and some very plush pals to keep baby company. It's a darling room in the Garlinghouse.

The Windsor

A 4,000-square-foot French colonial, the Windsor has a traditional exterior in white-washed brick with hipped roof. Raised paneled double door leads to foyer with hardwood flooring. There is custom woodwork throughout. French doors in the dining room lead to a balcony. There is also recessed lighting in the room. The den has custom-designed raised oak panels with built-in bookcases, and a boxed beam ceiling. The great room boasts state of the art media equipment, a contemporary fireplace, and atrium doors. The living room has a beamed ninefoot ceiling, French doors to a deck, and custom raised panel fireplace. The master bath has marble floor and counter, whirlpool tub, large shower with seat. Three bedrooms with 31/2 baths, the home is priced at $325,000-$400,000. Interior design by Kennedy and Co.

Adult Communities

Sharing a common bond is cornerstone n COLONIAL Acres adult community in South Lyon, Centaur Contractors Inc. have what they believe is the wave of the future for housing. We're going after the adult market," said Edward S. Tompkins, a partner with Jim Pelky, in Centaur: "People over 50 with no children, or children over 17. Part of what we're selling is the lifestyle - the community itself."

People at Colonial Acres share a common bond. They've moved out of houses they've lived in for 20 or 30 years. Some of them even lived in the same Livonia or Farmington Hills neighborhoods, or thereabouts, or worked at the same companies, but never had the time or the opportunity to develop any friendships.

"What we've found," said Tompkins, "is that they're rediscovering each other since moving there."

This well developed sense of community with neighbors looking out for one another has helped make the initial phase of Colonial Acres sell-outs. Pelky and Tompkins have already begun building more units at the $100-million project in the Pontiac Trail - Ten Mile Road area.

COLONIAL NOW HAS ABOUT 600 units on 52 acres in phases one through four. Phase five will add another 500 units on 87 additional acres for a total of 1,100 with a projected completion date of 1993.

The acreage is wooded and has several man-made ponds that tapped into natural underground springs. One of the ponds will be stocked for fishing, and another will have a beach for swimming. There are two clubhouses, the newest one in phase 5 with a swimming pool. One and two bedroom units are attached in groups of six or eight. The newer units have lower level walk-out patios.

Enclosing a wood deck into a porch is one of the buyer's many options. It adds another 120 square feet to the overall 1,800 square feet of the unit. Base price for the walkouts is $67,900.

The units have California style walled courtyard entrances. A good-sized dining area is at the far end of the living room. The kitchens feature a breakfast bar pass-through to the living-dining room.

One of the standard features at Colonial Acres is hot water baseboard heating systems. "It's more expensive, but more effective," Tompkins said.

Centaur has an in-house service department to handle all maintenance problems. The fee at Colonial Acres is $125 per month and includes insurance, boiler, hot water heater repair and/or replacement, land lease costs as well as snow removal, exterior painting, lawn and shrub care. "Unlike other developers, we don't leave the development when it's finished,' Pelky said. "We're here and very accessible." For more information about the development, call 437-8193.

Kitchens in Colonial Acres have a breakfast bar pass-through to the living-dining room area. End units have windows, but inner units feature skylights to compensate for the lost window. Enjoying a coffee break is Rosalie Webb, Gov. James Blanchard's mother, with her husband, Baxter. The couple have been residents since 1984.

Moving out to Colonial Acres was like Old Home Week for Frank Ross (right) and Peter Schmidt. Both retired about 10 years ago from the same tool and engineering company in Southfield. They hadn't seen each other again until recently when they discovered they each lived in the same development and were now neighbors. With them are their wives, Amy Ross (left) and
