Memorial service

A memorial service for Sam Hudson, noted Plymouth historian and author, is scheduled 10 a.m. Friday at First Presbyterian Church, 701 W. Church, Plymouth.

The service will be conducted by the Rev. Philip Rodgers Magee, senior minister at the church.

A gathering will follow the services at the church. Refreshments will be served.

Mr. Hudson died Monday, Aug. 8. While Mr. Hudson made his living in advertising and public relations, history was his avocation. Among his works were "The Story of Plymouth, Michigan: A Midwest Microcosm," "Reaching Out... A History of Schoolcraft College" and "Michigan's 10th Largest — A History of the Plymouth-Canton Community School District, 1830-1986."

Library search

The Plymouth District Library Board is looking for one good resident from the city or township of Plymouth.

The reason? They need someone to finish the term of board member Jack Kenyon who resigned from the board Sept. 12.

The replacement would serve out the term that ends Dec. 31, 1990.

The library board is a nine-member elected body responsible for operation of the Dunning-Hough Library in Plymouth. The library has a tax levy of slightly more than 1 mill. Letters of application may be sent to the board at the Dunning-Hough Library, 333 S. Main, Plymouth 48170. Applications will be accepted until Saturday, Oct. 15.

At your service

Senior citizens should mark Tuesday, Oct. 4, and Tuesday, Oct. 18, on their calendar.

On those dates, residents can take advantage of some free legal and medical assistance in the community room of the Township Civic Center, 1100 Sheridan. The hours are 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The legal assistance has been arranged by the Plymouth Jaycee. The Michigan Eye Center will handle the blood pressure and eye screening.

For more information about the program, call 482-3774. The program is arranged by 482-7074. And lunch can be provided by calling 482-3774.

Resident killed in accident

A 41-year-old resident of the city of Plymouth died Friday morning in a one-car accident on Schoolcraft in Plymouth Township.

Kim Richard Jewell, 536 Kellogg, the driver of the car, was pronounced dead at the scene, according to Plymouth Township Police Chief Carl Berry.

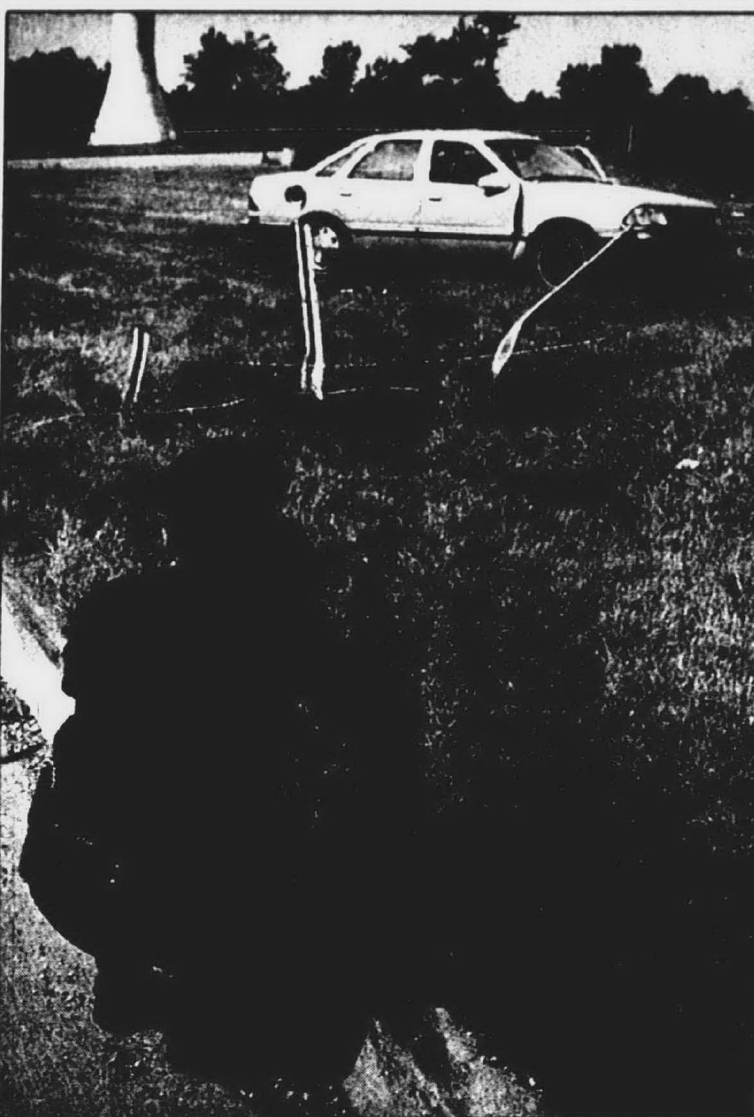

The accident occurred at 11:18 a.m. on westbound Schoolcraft east of Wilcox.

According to police, the car left the road about 100 yards east of Wilcox, struck a road sign, rolled over and came to rest on the north side of Schoolcraft.

The driver was not wearing a seat belt at the time of the accident, Berry said. He suffered head injuries as a result of the impact with the interior of the car, the chief said.

The street was closed to traffic for 90 minutes while the accident investigation team looked for clues as to what caused the accident.

"We don't have a lot of information," Berry said Friday afternoon. "We have to take a look at the skid marks, road conditions, his physical condition, his medical condition or see if it was an automobile problem."

be off the drawing board about Dec. 1.

Street lights approved by the Plymouth Township Board last March and ordered from Detroit Edison in May probably won't be installed until after the first of next year.

"Quite frankly, because of the tremendous number of lights for Plymouth and other cities and other work we're doing, we're that far behind now," said Jim Clark, a marketing administrator for the electric utility.

The township ordered 84 lights for major roads at subdivision entrances. The township also requested that Edison replace all existing mercury vapor lights with high-pressure sodium bulbs for better illumination.

Edison has received so many requests for street lights — much of it prompted by residential housing construction — that an outside consultant has been hired to help deal with the backlog, Clark said. He said Plymouth's project should WORK CAN proceed through the winter months because virtually all of the new lights in the township will be supplied with overhead rather than underground wiring, Clark said. The bulb replacement phase of the work, 94 conversions, probably will coincide with installation of new poles, he added.

"I think we'll get it in one package," Clark said. "We may start some conversion before we set the new stuff but it depends on what crews are available. I can almost bet it won't come this year."

Edison will pay for the new poles, the township for the conversion to high-pressure sodium bulbs and for electricity to illuminate all street lights.

It now costs the township about $200 annually to illuminate one light.

Lights will be put up along such major roads as Joy, North Territorial, Sheldon and McClumpha.

Convicted killer is engaged again

Charles (Charlie) Fisher, convicted of first-degree murder in the duct tape suffocation death of his wife, is engaged to be married while serving a life sentence without parole in Jackson Prison.

Fisher was sentenced April 1, 1988, for the 1984 death of his wife, Ella (Ria) Mercado-Fisher, 30. The jury believed the Wayne County prosecutor's argument that a 1984 burglary in the couple's Canton home was staged.

The Fulbright scholar and microbiologist, now 48, said burglars got into the house July 15, 1984, when Mercado-Fisher returned from her nursing job. They bound the couple, Fisher said, but he freed himself and tried to save his wife, whose entire face was wrapped with duct tape.

She lost too much oxygen, and died five days later after life support units were removed.

TWO JURIES didn't believe Fisher's story. The first conviction, two years ago, was nullified when Wayne Circuit Judge Claudia House Morcom cited misconduct by the prosecuting attorney and ruled a mistrial.

Earlier this year, a second jury, before Wayne Circuit Judge Thomas Foley, found Fisher guilty on the same charges.

He was free on bond between trials and was working in an Oklahoma university laboratory, according to his attorney, R. Steven Whalen, who was hired by Fisher's family. He said he believed it was during that time Fisher met his fiancée.

"SHE'S AWARE of all that's gone on (with the murder conviction)," he said.

The wedding "would be put on hold" until after the appeal, Whalen said. The basis of appeal won't be established until after Whalen reviews transcripts from the second trial, he said.

"It looks to me like there are significant legal errors," Whalen said, referring to conversations with one of Fisher's previous court-appointed attorneys, Rick Neaton.

Whalen said he would seek an appeal bond, but doesn't expect the request to be heard before the end of the year. A decision would take at least one or 1½ years.

"It would be nice if he were out for Christmas — wouldn't it?" Whalen said.

"IF HE has grounds for an appeal, I think the state ought to listen to him, but if there is no grounds, it's up to the state to say the trial was proper and there is no grounds and no evidence to give you reason for the appeal," said the victim's father, Manuel Mercado, now living in Florida.

Medical waste Clinics are striving for safe disposal

Medical waste turning up on beaches along the Atlantic Ocean, Lake Erie and Lake Michigan may have raised some questions about where needles, laboratory samples and secondary supplies like cotton swabs are disposed of locally.

Well, the fact is, most aren't. Medical waste from the Catherine McAuley Health Center in Plymouth, Oakwood Canton Health Center and Henry Ford Plymouth Medical Center are hauled to affiliated major hospitals in Ypsilanti, Dearborn and Detroit, respectively.

There, the waste is treated — sterilized and/or burned — and the residue transported to landfills.

Kirby Cox, medical technologist in charge of the laboratory at McAuley, and William Brauker, a spokesman for St. Joseph Mercy Hospital with which McAuley is affiliated, outlined their process.

AT THE BEGINNING of the chain in the McAuley lab and the adjacent urgent care center, used needles are disposed in small bright red plastic boxes.

"The top is constructed in such a way that something will go in, but won't come out," Brauker said. It's virtually impossible to reach inside the box to get poked, Cox said.

Bloods samples, after they've been analyzed, cups that contained urine samples, swabs and other ancillary supplies are put in bio-hazard bags. "They're harder plastic, more puncture resistant," Cox said.

Urine samples are poured down a drain that ultimately leads to the Detroit sewage plant.

The bio-hazard bags are taken to St. Joseph Hospital.

"When it gets here . . . everything is incinerated," Brauker said. "We're talking very extreme heat. Everything melts or becomes ash."

"It's placed in a dumpster where a truck comes along, picks up the whole dumpster and takes it to a landfill," he said.

Oakwood Hospital apparently has a slightly different procedure.

"BY-PRODUCTS of lab work are sterilized (by steam treatment) and taken to a landfill," said Pat O'Dowd, hospital spokeswoman.

"Liquid waste goes down the drain — unless it's hazardous waste. Then it's packaged and taken to a designated landfill," she said.

Needles and syringes are burned, but at a site away from the hospital.

Sterilization and incineration take place at the main campus of Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit, said Charlene Spitz, manager of the medical branch in Plymouth.

School board tries for closer community ties

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

In the wake of three failed millage proposals, Plymouth-Canton school board members are concluding that the community "somehow isn't in harmony with, or perhaps in support of, what the school board has been doing," trustee E.J. McClendon said.

So the board drafted objectives Monday it unanimously adopted these goals:

Millage requests may have been defeated because voters don't know where we are trying to go, McClendon said.

To remedy the situation, the board adopted the mission statement, "All students can learn," a year and a half ago.

That's so broad and general we've thought. That lacks specifics. Gosh, maybe people need to know what our own goals, and our collective goals are," McClendon said.

THE OBJECTIVES adopted Monday include:

- Improving communications.
- Monitoring the 1988-89 budget with an eye toward the pilot programs created to compensate for cutbacks.
- Working with administration to begin the 1989-90 budgeting process as soon as possible.
- Creating "a broad-based representative committee of citizens that will study strengths and weaknesses" of the district (Community Researching Educational Workings already has been formed).
- Working with administration to do a thorough and comprehensive districtwide administrative review.
- Long-range projects include examining land use needs and potential, and completion of the 1986 bond project. With bond monies, the district hopes to expand the board office or construct a new facility, and to finish renovating several buildings.

"One of the reasons we felt we had to be so specific was because of the nature of the school year as affected by the cuts," said David Artley, school board president.

IT'S ARTLEY'S hope that more people, even those without school-aged children, get involved with the schools.

"Only 25 to 26 percent of the voting universe has children in school. People without kids in school tend to forget they're part of the school district.

"They should care if people get a good education so that young people further their education, get involved in government, become productive in jobs and support the economy as a whole so the whole system continues to work. If they don't have a good education, then the system has to support them," Artley said.

Senior citizens should be informed and active in schools to protect their property investments, Artley said.

"If a senior citizen wants an investment in a house or condo to be good, you need a continuum of government," he said. "And you don't get that without good education."

To accomplish its goals, the board plans to do studies and reports, to do surveys of PTO groups, and to conduct workshops and meetings. Board members will be available to speak to service clubs and civic groups.

Trustees also hope to get the word out about the activities and goals through the news media, Artley said.

Board patches $200,000 spending deficit

Expenditures that exceeded the 1988 municipal spending plan by some $200,000 were formally recognized by the Plymouth Township Board last week with a budget amendment.

General fund expenditures projected at $4.4 million last fall now are anticipated to rise to about $4.6 million by the end of the budget year Dec. 31.

Revenues are expected to remain at $4.4 million.

The board covered the deficit by tapping into its on-going unallocated fund balance.

The township would be left with about $2.1 million in fund balance at the end of the year even by going that route, according to municipal financial projections.

More manhours and the purchase of two cars for the township's building department ($48,500) and increases in the cost of providing medical benefits for all employees ($40,000) boosted the expenditure side of the ledger, according to Supervisor Maurice Breen and township accountants.

Other expenditure increases identified by township officials were:

- Billing for a sidewalk completed along Sheldon Road last year — $34,000.
- Landfill dumping costs passed on by the township's trash hauler — $25,000.
- Maintenance work at Hilltop Golf Course — $22,000.
- Production and mailing of township calendars and newsletters — $18,000.
- Legal fees for codifying all township ordinances — $18,000.
- Ann Arbor Road study and Howmet noise study — $16,000.
- Assessing consultant — $9,000.

"These are added items the board came up with in the course of the year or things from last year," Breen said. "Over-budgeted items were very minimal."

Vacant nightclub could be sold to local ministry

The vacant Urban Cowboy nightclub, which hasn't kicked up its spurs in more than five years, could see new life as headquarters for a local religious outreach group.

The Rev. Bob Herriman, head of Bob Herriman Ministries, confirmed Thursday he has made a preliminary offer to buy the building, on the northwest corner of Ford and Hix, from current owner Alice Sassak of Las Cruces, New Mexico.

But the two sides apparently are far apart in price at this stage, according to an attorney representing Sassak.

A legal dispute between Sassak and her ex-husband, John Sassak, over who has control of the property, will also have to be resolved before any sale, the attorney, who asked not to be identified, said.

John Sassak, who owns the Livonia-based entertainment company, Saker One Corp., turned over the building to his former wife as part of a divorce settlement in December 1984.

He has been acting as a representative for the property though, and as recently as last February he tried unsuccessfully to get the Westland City Council to issue a new Class C liquor license, which would allow sale of liquor by the glass.

THE BUILDING meanwhile, which Westland officials and residents consider an eyesore, continues to deteriorate.

"You've got people who drive into this city from the west over Ford Road," said Joseph Benyo, chairman of the city's Economic Development Advisory Commission. "And when they get across the bridge (over the Michitech Industrial Park) that monstrosity is the first thing they see."

A check of the property last week by the Observer found that the building was unsecured and the parking lot was filled with weeds, concrete debris and a few rusting cars parts.

Broken glass was strewn across the covered wooden entranceway, which runs the length of the building's west side.

The attorney representing Alice Sassak said he has received several inquiries regarding the property and at least one firm offer. He said the highest bid on the property was $200,000, but declined disclose the source of that bid.

"She (Alice Sassak) is definitely serious about selling under the right terms," the attorney said.

Herriman, whose religious outreach group is based in his Westland home and uses a Taylor church, has been searching for local headquarters for a couple of years, the pastor said.

THE 9-YEAR-OLD, non-denominational organization holds revivals at area churches and conducts services in prisons, nursing homes and other institutions where people cannot travel to attend services.

"We know the building would need extensive repairs and renovation," Herriman said. "But we feel it would be an ideal site for us."

Herriman said the nonprofit organization would use the building for offices and publishing several periodicals, including Bible study guides and a bimonthly magazine. An auditorium for Sunday evening services and other events may also be part of the headquarters building, he said.

"We're currently using the Faith Christian Center in Taylor but that doesn't have as much room as we'd like," Herriman said.

Should he buy the property, Herriman would have to petition the Westland City Council for a zoning change to institutional use. The property is currently zoned for commercial use.

Fun Runners step out for United Way

Speed had nothing to do with the Fred Hill Haberdasher Fun Run last week.

It had more to do with creativity, absurdity and a lot of enthusiasm.

If you weren't there, you can only guess about the mayhem and fun had by the observers and 130 contestants.

Runners started at Kellogg Park, traveled a tad over a half-mile and returned to the park. Participants were required to wear a coat, shirt and tie in addition to running shorts and tennis shoes. Fast running was frowned upon.

The event raised about $2,500 for the Plymouth Community United Way, said race organizer Fred Hill.

"It was incredible," Hill said.

Most creative individual award went to Dr. Sidney Disbrow — who dressed as "the backwards running man."

He wore a tuxedo put on backwards and a clown face also worn backwards. To top it off, he carried a suitcase with jockey shorts stretched over it. Presto: he had a "brief case." Disbrow said he didn't even have to explain the innuendo. "Everyone knew what it was."

"I am a runner and Fred is something special to the town, and we like to help out with the community fund," Disbrow said. "It's a lot of fun, and we like having a lot of fun."

Most creative team award was presented to National Bank of Detroit.

First-, second- and third-place raffle winners were Maria Holmes, Omnicon, Richard Myers, Plymouth police chief, and Nicole Shamey of Sideways.

Area residents opposed to casinos, survey says

Most area residents are opposed to casino gambling in the city of Detroit.

That was one of the findings of the annual legislative questionnaire taken by state Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, whose 6th District includes Plymouth and Canton.

Besides opposition to casino gambling in Detroit (78 percent against), the poll also shows strong support for minimum sentences for drug dealers, required AIDS testing for all couples applying for a marriage license, and for the banning of all smoking (by students and faculty) in the schools and at day care centers.

THE QUESTIONNAIRE was delivered to every household in Livonia, Plymouth, Northville, Canton and Redford, said Geake, and more than 5,000 responses were received.

"While this poll certainly is not scientific, I believe that it is a good representation of the ideals and views that the people of the 6th Senate District hold.

"The feedback I receive from constituents is very important, as I believe that communication between citizens and their elected officials is the key to good government."

Geake added that copies of the 1988 questionnaire results have been sent to government teachers throughout the district for use in current event discussions.

The greatest agreement (85 percent "yes") was when respondents were asked whether couples applying for marriage licenses should be tested for AIDS. Some 80 percent wanted a ban on all smoking in schools and day care centers. And 79 percent favored mandatory sentences for drug dealers.

RESPONDENTS WERE divided on the banning of radar detectors as 53 percent were in favor and 41 percent opposed. District residents were evenly split on reducing property tax and raising the sales tax — 48 percent in favor, 46 percent opposed.

Some 63 percent were opposed to the Legislature banning corporal punishment in all public schools, and 53 percent were against the state requiring certain school districts in deprived areas to establish pre-kindergarten programs. And 50 percent were opposed, 41 percent in favor, of requiring high school students to perform some form of volunteer work to graduate.

Most residents, 56 percent, also were against requiring voters to register their party preference to vote in the presidential primary.

The majority of residents favored private corporations building and operating jails (61 percent), a ballot proposal to borrow $800 million for toxic and hazardous waste cleanup (54 percent), prohibit regional collective bargaining groups from vetoing agreements made between local teacher unions and their school boards (56 percent), fund research and treatment of Alzheimer's disease (64 percent), ban the sale of alcohol at all places that sell gasoline (68 percent).

Band aid sought for Bowl trip

The Plymouth Centennial Educational Park Marching Band has been selected to participate in the Dec. 31 Orange Bowl Parade in Miami.

The PCEP band will be one of only 10 high school bands in the parade and the only band representing Michigan.

In addition to the Orange Bowl Parade appearance, the 165-member band will also perform at Disney World.

Band members and chaperones will leave Detroit Metropolitan Airport Wednesday, Dec. 28. Thursday and Friday, Dec. 29 and 30, will be spent at Walt Disney World. The band will then travel by bus to Miami to prepare for the Orange Bowl Parade on Saturday evening. The group will return Sunday, Jan 1.

The cost for each band member for this trip will be $520. Band members and the Plymouth-Canton Music boosters will be involved in fund-raisers between now and December to raise money to reduce the amount each student must pay.

Because no student will be denied the trip for financial reasons, "scholarship" money must be raised through fund-raisers and donations.

The PCEP band won the state of Michigan Marching Band Championship in 1984, 1985 and 1986. The band hopes to reclaim that title in competition this fall.

Band members are available to provide small ensemble groups to perform at meetings throughout the fall. If your group is interested in such a presentation, call Judy Lore, booster president, 453-5181.

IMAGINE DYING FROM A DISEASE YOU NEVER KNEW YOU HAD.

Eleven million people in the U.S. have diabetes. But almost half of them don't know it.

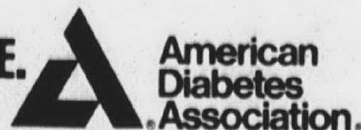

Untreated, diabetes can lead to heart disease, kidney disease, blindness and gangrene.

And for 150,000 people each year, it leads to death.

That's why you should be aware of the symptoms of diabetes: blurred vision, excessive thirst and frequent urination are just some of the warning signs. Because the sooner you find out if you have diabetes, the more likely you are to get it under control, before complications set in.

Finding out you have diabetes can be scary. But not finding out can be fatal.

Holiday Preserve concerns resurface

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Concern over potential development near the William P. Holliday Forest and Wildlife Preserve resurfaced Thursday during a public hearing on the county park system.

Members of the Holliday Nature Preserve Association Thursday told county officials they support and would even campaign for a proposed 0.5-mill park tax during a public hearing on the proposed park master plan.

But they told county officials they didn't want to sell off or develop a portion of the preserve to boost the park system budget.

"IF YOU turn it over to developers, they'll develop every corner," association member Lynn Early said. "They'll encroach on what we have."

Early, a teacher in the Wayne Westland public schools, urged county officials to emphasize "passive parks."

The 150-member association formed earlier this year to block golf course development.

Holiday Nature Preserve, 550 acres straddling the Westland-Canton border made headlines earlier this year after plans surfaced for a municipal golf course on the site. County park land would have to be leased or sold to Westland for the course to be developed. Golf course plans, promoted by Westland Mayor Charles Griffin, have yet to receive endorsement from the city council.

None of the dozen speakers at Thursday's hearing opposed park renovation and few had any negative comment about the 0.5-mill tax increase proposed to clean and resupply the parks.

There were concerns, however, about where the money would go.

"I want an assurance this money would be used for parks, not go anywhere else," said Cris Seldon of Canton Township, also an association member.

About 45 people attended the meeting at the Wayne Intermediate Schools Auditorium, Wayne.

The master plan was released to the public Monday.

The plan said more money is needed to keep the county park system functioning.

PARK FINANCING peaked at $3.5 million 1978, but was cut to zero in a 1980 budget crunch, parks director R. Eric Reickel said. Since then, the county park budget has risen to $2.28 million. A return to 1978 staffing and equipment levels would require at least $5 million a year, Reickel said, because of inflation.

The 0.5-mill tax proposal has been endorsed by Reickel and county Executive Edward McNamara, though it isn't likely to face voters until 1990 at the earliest.

One local official, however, said he'd like to see the issue placed on the ballot as soon as possible.

"This study is very good, but we should have been doing these things years ago," said Westland councilman Thomas Brown, a former state representative.

Brown said he'd be willing to circulate petitions calling for a 1989 vote on the proposed tax.

Friends of the Rouge director William Jakeway said members of his environmentally conscious group would probably support a park tax.

"I think Friends of the Rouge would support a proposal," Jakeway said.

The parks plan considered alternatives ranging from closing all county parks to building "the finest park system in the nation," county officials said.

Instead, a middle ground was adopted. The plan calls for county parks to support local parks, providing services too great for locals. It also calls for greater cooperation between local, county and the Huron-Clinton Metro Parks. Suggestions include linking area parks through a trail system.

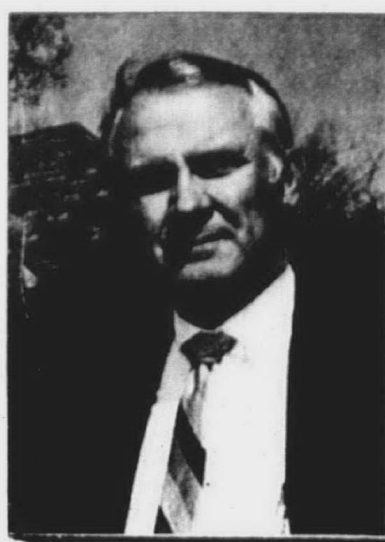

Private financing sources and development are also suggested. A privately built and operated wave pool, similar to one in Oakland County, is among the ideas being considered.

One area that apparently won't go private is Warren Valley. The 36-hole golf course will remain in county hands, Reickel said.

Turnout at the public hearing was small, an estimated 45 people attended even though Reickel said "everyone who we could identify as a park user" was invited. About 30 people attended an earlier hearing in downtown Detroit.

Despite the small turnout, Reickel said he was pleased with audience members' comments.

"It shows people care about the parks," he said.

Wayne County Parks Director R. Eric Reickel and county executive Edward McNamara have suggested a 0.5-mill county park tax to rebuild and expand county parks, though it isn't certain when the issue would appear before voters.

Lansing fiddles, beat goes on

YOU DON'T NEED to know much about arithmetic to know that there is something screwy in the way Michigan funds its public schools.

Look at the difference between Garden City and Troy, two school districts that faced teacher unrest about salary and other contract negotiations this year.

Garden City teachers went on strike rather than accept a pay freeze offered by the school board. In Troy, where the district faces a much larger bill for each student, teachers agreed to a raise of 6½ percent although they thought the school board could have afforded to pay more.

They were right. A week ago, the Troy board voted to build a new high school.

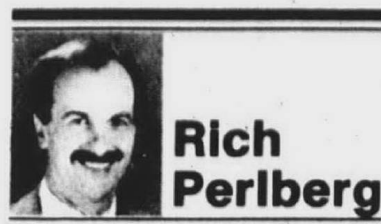

They are going to pay for it over a number of years from cash-on-hand after paying the regular bills. Normally, debt-retirement taxes are assessed to build new high schools but voters twice denied the district authority to issue such bonds. The Troy tax base is so high the board can foot the cost anyway.

school districts that Troy has such financial strength that it can afford such a move.

Troy is not alone. The same night the Troy board approved the new high school, businessman Richard Headlee was chastising the Farmington school board for borrowing to build a new elementary school and to renovate other buildings.

Headlee, whose home and business are in the Farmington school district, did not object to the spending but to the financing. "You should avoid debt like the plague," said Headlee whose name graces Michigan's only successful tax limitation law. "The more you can do on a cash basis, the stronger and the healthier you are."

How can this be? How can schools a scant few miles apart have such different bottom lines? Although there may be fine financial minds at each school, their good or bad fortune has little to do with astute cash management. Both Troy and Farmington are blessed with attractively large property tax bases; Garden City is not as lucky.

Rich Perlberg

Districts that have more to spend generally provide better programs; the better programs attract parents who can afford the higher-priced homes; the demand further pushes up the tax base and the school treasury further swells. (Of course a strong industrial, office and retail base doesn't hurt either.)

SO WHO'S to blame? Larry Chunovich points at the Legislature which has talked about reform but which has done nothing. Chunovich is a former Southfield teacher who is president of the Michigan Education Association, the state's largest teacher union.

Some partially blame the MEA for the gridlock in Lansing because it's an influential lobby that wants more money for higher salaries but which is hesitant about some so-called teacher accountability issues.

In the Legislature, the Republicans blame the Democrats and the Democrats blame the Republicans. Neither side is eager to deal with the hard truth: Equalizing the disparity among schools either means playing Robin Hood with the rich schools or implementing a new tax. Many lawmakers would rather miss a photo opportunity than advocate either position.

In the impasse, Lansing is fiddling. Garden City, in the meantime, may not be burning, but its teachers are in the classroom only because of a court order.

Reality a bit much

OH, TO GET back to the reality of life in the metropolitan suburbs. Michigan's north woods isn't reality.

I mean that apparition I saw one morning while trolling the shore of a Montmorency County lake. Its flapping wings were in a V shape, and its head was pure, gleaming white in the early September sun — a bald eagle in flight. It landed on a dead tree, then a half-hour later drifted back across the lake to another dead tree. It looked across me as if I didn't exist.

That couldn't have been reality, even though I slowed to trolling speed and drifted within 100 feet of our national symbol. No, I should have seen pigeons — that's reality.

I looked in the blue water and saw stones on the bottom. Six feet deep, I guess. The anchor line told me I was in 14 feet of water. The lake turned out to be home for schools of small-mouth bass — scrappy bronze creatures that stand on their tails and spit out your lures.

No, I should have seen floating, green algae, like at Newburgh Lake, and mud. That's reality.

AT NIGHT, when I arose at 3 a.m. to recycle some of the beer consumed around the camp fire — that sound. Several yips and a lo-o-o-ong howl. A coyote.

But coyotes exist in old Randolph

Scott movies. I should have heard a kid with his car windows rolled down, graciously sharing rock music with a square mile of neighbors. That's reality.

At dusk a waterbird swam low in an Upper Peninsula lake. The bird dived deep, stayed under a long time, reappeared a great distance away. Checked the picture in the Audubon book. It was a loon, unless I was hallucinating.

The state park guy affirmed that a pair of this rare species nested on a neighboring cranberry bog of a lake, but an ordinary mortal doesn't get to see loons. So what was I doing watching a loon for three-quarters of an hour? I should have seen gulls over the back end of a supermarket. That's reality.

THE LITTLE weekly paper told of Queen Sheila who will reign over the Posen Potato Festival. Well, that I can understand.

But what was this further in the story? Three young women tie for the Miss Congeniality title! Aw, come on, that's not reality. Reality is filing suit against the Detroit cops for beating you up during a drug raid and causing a miscarriage.

The dog and I visited a gravel pit along an obscure highway, and my store-bought hiker's guide said fossils are in the rocks. Fossils? Lucky farmers find them once in a blue moon.

But there in a large, angular rock were little things that looked like snails and ripped-apart shellfish. Fossils, just like the college lab specimens, and I found them.

It couldn't be. When you look on the ground, you should see cigarette butts, broken wine cooler bottles, empty gumdrop boxes, plastic cups and more cigarette butts. That's reality.

Well, I glanced to the side of the pit as the dog terrorized small game and saw the red and silver of empty Bud Light cans. Eight of 'em, good for 80 cents, not counting the ones shot full of .22 holes. That would almost pay for a block of ice to keep the eggs and smallmouth bass fresh.

Whew, that was better. That was a little more like my hometown in the high-tech belt. Those discarded beer cans kept me from going bonkers in the unreality of Michigan's north woods.

IT MUST grate lesser-blessed

The rich have been getting richer.

The rich have been getting richer. Districts that have more to spend generally provide better programs; the better programs attract parents who can afford the higher-priced homes; the demand further pushes up the tax base and the school treasury further swells.

Neighbor not neighborly

To the editor:

I live in a special home for people who have been hospitalized. Professionals have "OK'd" all who lived in the home. Everyone seems to say, "We accept you."

But an incident occurred last week that shows we don't have total consensus. A man, a neighbor, stood outside the music room window and looked in. His look was hostile and confrontative. Nonetheless, I smiled back and uttered friendly words to him. He continued to glare and finally went in.

The local police said he broke no laws and added that they wouldn't talk to him. They suggested I drop by next door myself. I shall, but I shall not go alone. A staff person here at the home has agreed to go with me.

Liberal media dogs Quayle

To the Editor:

As a Republican, I strongly disagree with Steve Barnaby's article calling vice president candidate Dan Quayle a "hypocrite and an embarrassment" to the Republican party.

Both allegations that the liberal media keep badgering the American people about have been totally cleared. He was not granted any favors by anyone when he served his country in the National Guard. He was also not involved with any Playboy bunny.

I am getting tired of the liberal media turning this very important election into the "Enquirer."

Why not report Michael Dukakis' is a card-carrying ACLU member. Now that's news worth reporting.

Red Cross: Local blood supply safe

The American Red Cross said its Southeastern Michigan regional blood service has complied with safety procedures to prevent release of contaminated blood.

An internal review by the national organization showed compliance with safety procedures.

The nationwide review of all 56 Red Cross blood regions was undertaken after internal reviews at the Washington, D.C., and Nashville, Tenn., regions discovered serious procedural errors.

But 26 Red Cross blood regions, including Southeastern Michigan, reported no errors involving the release of quarantined blood or blood components.

"THE MOST important finding of the review," said Dr. A. William Shafer, regional Red Cross executive director, "is that none of the errors identified by the review resulted in the transfusion of blood that was infected with the AIDS or hepatitis B viruses."

"However, we cannot afford to boast or be complacent."

The total number of tests performed by the Red Cross for infectious diseases has increased 150 percent since 1980, Shafer said.

At the same time, there has been a 20-fold increase in the number of units of blood that have to be quarantined and destroyed in order to provide the widest possible margin of safety for the recipients of blood and blood components.

"WE MUST have a renewed and expanded commitment from healthy blood donors and from the businesses and organizations upon whom we depend to schedule regular blood drives," Shafer said.

"The most effective way to ensure a safe and adequate blood supply is for every healthy donor to donate one more time every year and for businesses and organizations to conduct two or more on-site blood drives every year."

UAW says check fuel of 'outsourced' cars

The United Auto Workers says the U.S. Department of Transportation should weigh the risk of possible U.S. job losses along with the need for continued progress in fuel conservation as it prepares to set the Corporate Average Fuel Economy (CAFE) standards for model years 1989 and 1990.

In a filing with the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, which is holding hearings on the matter, UAW president Owen Bieber said the union has long supported the 1975 Energy Act, which established the standards. And it actively supports requiring auto companies to compute fuel economy separately for domestically built vehicles and foreign-sourced "captive" imports.

The latter requirement was intended to prevent the Big Three from using foreign sources for small cars as a strategy to improve fleet-wide fuel economy, Bieber said.

The UAW is acutely "concerned about the job implications" of stricter standards in the wake of company declarations that large-car production in the United States could be curtailed as a consequence of the stricter standards, he said.

Jail battle could be nearing end

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Wayne County's jail control battle may be nearing an end.

Chief Wayne County Circuit Judge Richard Kaufman on Friday cleared the way for a final ruling on jail inmates' request to have a court-appointed receiver temporarily manage the county jail.

The ruling potentially could bring a 17-year-old inmate lawsuit to a close by mid-October. Inmates filed suit in 1971 against overcrowding and other alleged abuses at the jail. Kaufman requested all sides file final motions by Sept. 23. Attorneys speculate a ruling could be issued as soon as two weeks after that date.

WHILE CLEARING the way for a ruling on the inmates' motion, however, Kaufman rejected another motion to have himself disqualified from hearing the case. Sheriff Robert Ficano filed that motion last week, alleging a conflict of interest because of Kaufman's involvement in hearing other jail issues.

Another attempt will be made to have Kaufman disqualified by refiling the motion before another judge outside the Wayne County Circuit, Ficano said.

"It's an automatic procedure," Ficano said.

Another ruling on the motion, however, could delay matters beyond the tentative mid-October deadline.

KAUFMAN HAS been overseeing changes at the jail under terms of the inmate lawsuit. Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara and the sheriff had been ordered to expand jail space and implement changes in inmate treatment.

The case recently grew more complex when McNamara filed a motion requesting full control of the jail, lifting control from Ficano.

That motion was withdrawn earlier last week.

"Part of the problem we see — and this was heightened by some of Ficano's statements — is that they're pointing fingers at each other — trying to show who's responsible for non-compliance at the jail rather than trying to do something about non-compliance," said Richard Skutt, the inmates' attorney.

INMATES SEEK to have a court-appointed receiver temporarily take jail-operating powers out of McNamara and Ficano's hands.

"We seek someone who would be responsible for presenting a jail budget to the county commission, like the county executive and also be responsible for operation, like the sheriff," Skutt said. "It would probably be a 1-1/2-year procedure. Then, the powers would return to the people who originally had them."

McNamara's decision to withdraw his motion was made "to clear the way for a ruling on the inmates' motion," said deputy county executive Michael Duggan, who is representing the executive in court.

"Once we saw what the inmates were seeking — and what it would cost us to continue — we decided to withdraw," Duggan said. "But reports this thing is settled are exaggerated. We would still want input into who is appointed receiver."

THE INMATE lawsuit was a driving force behind the new county jail tax, approved by voters in August. County residents approved a 1-mill tax to expand the current jail, build a new jail and add space at the county youth home.

A report by Toledo-based jail monitor Vincent Nathan, issued earlier this year, alleged jail abuses still continued.

Alleged abuses ranged from misclassification, having first-time offenders placed with hardened criminals, to lack of gym shoes for prisoner recreation.

Ficano, however, said the allegations were based on "gross inaccuracies" and said substantial progress had been made to curb jail abuses.

In the original 1971 filing, Ficano said, reference was made to:

- three prisoners in one-man cells, with one having to sleep on the floor without a blanket.
- one-third of cell toilets not working.
- some prisoner areas being rat-infested.
- high rates of assault, sexual assault and suicide.
- lack of an adequate recreation area.

"But we're not talking about that today. Now, we're talking about things like providing gym shoes for prisoners to play basketball and providing chess and checkers," Ficano said.

HEREDITY AND ARTHRITIS

People often ask: "Will my children get my arthritis?" In certain types, heredity plays a prominent role, in other forms, its place is uncertain. For example, osteoarthritis of the hands with its swelling of the last knuckles has an inheritance pattern of mother-to-daughter. Ankylosing spondylitis, a condition of the back, often is inherited father to son. Certain forms of gout, involving defects in the way the body generates uric acid, follow established patterns of the inheritance of recessive traits.

Other forms of arthritis occur when a predisposition combines with an environmental exposure; an example is lupus arthritis. This condition arises if an irritant which triggers a prolonged response from lymphocytes inherently overresponsive. Neither the irritant alone, or the potentially exaggerated response of the lymphocytes by themselves suffices. It is the interaction of both elements that results in lupus arthritis.

If you are a parent, you should not be concerned that your arthritis will be visited upon your children. With few exceptions, it remains to be proved that joint conditions are inherited.

Jesse Jackson will address McNamara fund-raiser Friday

The Rev. Jesse Jackson will be the keynote speaker at Wayne County Executive Edward H. McNamara's Sept. 23 fund-raiser breakfast in Detroit's Westin Hotel.

Jackson is president of the Rainbow Coalition and a former Democratic presidential candidate. Jackson's appearance was officially confirmed Friday. For ticket information, contact Irma Clark or Barbara Rickert, 224-0286, in the executive's office.

More than spaghetti on shelves

Anyone who has walked down the aisle of a supermarket lately probably wouldn't notice offhand, but it's a fact that the macaroni and noodle department has expanded more than three times compared to what it used to be 10 years ago.

In addition to fighting for shelf space, basic spaghetti noodles are being crowded out with new "lite" varieties; alternative tastes like spinach, tomato and basil pastas; even products that require no cooking, just a simple "rinse" under hot water. What will the manufacturers think of next?

Little did the ancient Chinese know more than 5,000 years ago that the invention of noodles would lead to this. For that matter, Marco Polo would turn over in his grave if he knew in 1295, when he first brought pasta to Italy from China, what today's pasta market would be like.

But where did it all come from and how did pasta (which includes both macaroni and noodle products) get to where it is today? Having just finished a big plate of spaghetti with homemade noodles and a Bolognese sauce, I encourage you to read on . . .

PERHAPS THE EARLIEST types of pasta were similar to the present types called Gnocchi — little balls of dough that are cooked in boiling water. The next stage of refinement might have been the rolling of the dough into sheets, which were then cut into strips.

Whatever the origin of pasta, the southern Italians became the masters of its production in Europe, because the northern Italians ate rice with their soups and sauces. Of course, the warm, dry climate of southern Italy favored the drying of freshly made pasta in the sun. It was the Southern Italians, too, who invented the al dente cooking method (firm to the bite) whereas the northern Italians, when exposed to the first pasta, cooked it until it was much more tender.

It is believed that Thomas Jefferson brought pasta to North America from France, where he had served as an ambassador. Later, immigrants from northern Europe brought their own noodle dishes and for a long time thereafter imported their own pasta from Italy.

It is noteworthy that the production of good pasta requires the use of hard wheat with a high gluten content. The Italians obtained their hard wheat from Russia until the Crimean War (1854-1856) cut off their supplies. Shortly thereafter, hard wheats were produced in Canada and the United States.

Hence, North America soon became the major source of durum wheat for the pasta industry around the world. However, there was not much production of spaghetti and macaroni in North America until World War I cut off the supply from Italy.

FAYE DUCKWORTH'S weekend would be incomplete without a visit to the farmer's market in Plymouth.

After breakfast at a local restaurant, Duckworth and her husband, Jack, head for the market to buy fresh vegetables, fruit and flowers.

"It's a nice way to start the weekend," said Duckworth, a homemaker who lived many years in Livonia and now is a Northville resident. "I like being around people who are interested in fresh produce."

For customers such as Duckworth, the lure is buying green beans, corn and tomatoes directly from the farmers who planted and harvested them.

"I INUNDATE my family with vegetables," Duckworth said, laughing.

For part-time farmer Hans Neuroth of Canton, the market is a place where he can sell the several varieties of apples he grows in orchards west of Plymouth. And baker Lisa Carey of Farmington Hills is financing her college education with fresh, baked goods she sells at the Plymouth market.

Although the Eastern Market in Detroit is considered to be the granddaddy of farmer's markets, shoppers can find plenty of fresh produce at smaller markets in the suburbs. In addition to the Plymouth market, there are others in Royal Oak, Northville, Livonia, Canton, Ypsilanti and Ann Arbor.

Only a few markets have weekday hours. The Plymouth market, in "The Gathering," a partially enclosed area on Pennington across from Kellogg Park, is typical in that it's open only on Saturdays. With the late summer harvest peaking, this market will close for the year Oct. 22.

Fresh choices Plenty crops up at farmer's market

The air is filled with the fragrance of sweet, jumbo Michigan honeyrock melons and tart, juicy, homegrown apples. The mood is friendly. Babies in strollers chew on warm bagels while their shopper parents munch on oat bran muffins.

"IS THIS A good one?" inquired a woman, grabbing a huge honeyrock.

The vendor, Kathryn Prielipp of Britton, near Dundee, advised the customer to sniff the melon to discern its ripe aroma, and to run her hand over the thick, webbed skin.

"It's all in the smell and the webbing," Prielipp said.

While Duckworth eyed a basket of sleek, deep-purple eggplants, her husband, an engineer with offices in Plymouth, stepped up with a fistful of fresh gladiolus he had just bought from a vendor.

Where to go shopping

Following is a partial list of local farmer's markets and tips for easier shopping.

If you're buying large quantity, it's a good idea to bring a wagon, shopping cart or large tote in which the various purchases can be tucked for easier handling.

Farmers and vendors set their own prices. Most markets strongly discourage price haggling unless it is an exceptionally large order.

Best selection is available in the earlier hours. Always check to make sure of the market's hours. Some change their hours, or close entirely, due to weather or availability of produce during the late fall and winter months.

DETROIT EASTERN MARKET. This 11-acre market is at Gratiot and Russell, east of downtown. Wide variety of produce. Year-round. Open from 4 a.m. to 6 p.m., Saturdays. Closed Sunday, except for special spring flower days. Many adjacent stores, which sell meats, nuts, cheeses and other specialty items, are open during the week.

Please turn to Page 4

Gail Kubek of Dearborn Heights likes to have an abundance of fresh veggies on hand when her grown son Paul, a vegetarian, comes home from art school in Chicago.

Kubek used fresh cabbage, carrots, celery and onions for her quick and easy cabbage soup. It's patterned after the popular Weight Watchers soup that's available in local Elias Brothers restaurants.

"IT CAN BE different every time I make it because I throw in whatever vegetables I have on hand," said Kubek, co-owner of a photography studio.

Ripe, homegrown tomatoes find their way into Kubek's late grandmother's recipe for cold tomato relish. The recipe makes a large quantity, which can be stored in the refrigerator and used to season sliced meat.

Serious marketgoers like to get out early. This day's crowd at the Plymouth market has been thinned by a steady downpour. However, the market area is enclosed, so shoppers fortified with raincoats and umbrellas are managing nicely.

Everywhere is the evidence of harvest. Baskets are filled with cucumbers and sweet corn. Pots of dried flowers and fresh herbs lend a pungent aroma. Vendors sell fresh eggs; silky, golden honey and plump blueberries.

Prices are not necessarily cheap. But quality is high.

FOR EXAMPLE, a pint of blueberries cost $2. But all were firm, with no signs of mildew. A small box of tomatoes, at $2, was filled with ripe, juicy, red tomatoes picked at ripeness. A $1.50 loaf of sourdough bread was soft, chewy and delicious.

Uncle Vic Tonon, 80, tends the vegetable garden behind the Cafe Cortina in Farmington Hills.

Restaurant adds flavor from vegetable garden

By Michele MacWilliams
staff writer

For those who have never sampled a taste of Italy's North, Cafe Cortina, a Farmington Hills restaurant, brings the flavors of the region to metropolitan Detroit.

In fact, owners Rina and Andriano Tonon have not only imported recipes from the old country, they also brought their vegetable garden and Andriano's 80-year-old uncle to tend it.

Zucchini, tomatoes, eggplant, basil, radicchio, arugula, peppers and Italian parsley grown in the backyard garden is picked daily for use in the restaurant's dishes.

Many of Cafe Cortina's most popular recipes center around meat, seafood and poultry such as rabbit, squid and quail — items Americans don't usually associate with Italian cuisine.

Favorites include calamari fritti, a squid appetizer dish; fresh bread brushed with tomato, basil, olive oil, garlic and Parmesan cheese; and veal capricciosa — medallions of veal sauteed with fresh tomatoes, capers, black olives, mushrooms, white wine and garlic.

IN CONTRAST with the traditional order of courses we are accustomed to in America, Cafe Cortina often serves salad after the main dish. Leaves of radicchio and arugula lettuce from the restaurant's backyard garden are tossed with an oil and vinegar dressing. One reason given by Italians for serving salad last is that the dressing soothes and coats the stomach, helping digestion.

Cafe Cortina's 30-by-50-foot garden behind the restaurant is more a labor of love than a cost-control venture. Rina explains that the hours involved and the price of irrigation more than offset any food price savings.

Moreover, they maintain a garden to provide the species of Italian parsley, plum tomatoes and arugula lettuce prevalent to the cuisine they serve. As Rina puts it, "the garden is a matter of pride."

When winter comes, Cafe Cortina must rely on produce from the Eastern Market terminal, which the Tonons visit frequently.

Pizza and tomato sauce heavy in olive oil, garlic and oregano are products traditionally made in Southern Italy. Influenced by Austria and France, Northern Italian cuisine makes use of lighter cream sauces and fresh produce.

THE TONONS actually call the food they serve "Northern Italian cuisine with a Southern accent." Because Rina's family is from Southern Italy and she grew up preparing the traditional Italian dishes in her parents' restaurants, the couple has been able to combine some Southern favorites into their Northern Italian menu.

Named Cafe Cortina after the largest town near the area where Andriano was raised, the restaurant has been serving metro Detroiters for almost 12 years. On 10 Mile Road east of Orchard Lake Road, the full-service restaurant has a steady clientele of displaced Italians as well as customers from all nationalities who simply enjoy the healthy Northern Italian cuisine.

White linen tablecloths and fresh flowers bring a bright, fresh appearance to the interior, which is otherwise quite dark and intimate.

Although both lunch and dinner menus are written in Italian, the Tonons and their wait staff are accustomed to explaining menu items to their non-Italian speaking customers. For those who want a real traditional Northern Italian meal, from antipasti to alla griglia, the Tonons will select a series of courses, eliminating the need for menus altogether.

For those who like to experiment with Northern Italian cuisine at home, Cafe Cortina has provided a few recipes made primarily with fresh garden vegetables large enough to serve as a main course instead of side dish. And the Cafe Cortina green tomatoes is a sauteed vegetable dish with a traditional Northern Italian accent.

presses were developed around the mid-1800s. Before that, most macaroni was produced in small shops and neighborhoods, which utilized hand-operated equipment. Nowadays, there must be careful control in each manufacturing stage in order to make sure the product holds up well in handling and cooking.

First off, the milling of durum wheat into semolina is performed. This milling procedure is different from that of making regular flours in that a more granular product is desired, with a minimum amount of flour. Therefore, certain aspects are altered in the production of semolina. The durum wheat is moistened before milling to toughen the outer kernel so that the outer kernel can be easily removed, leaving the inner portion (the endosperm) which, in turn, yields the semolina.

Then the wheat is broken into coarse particles by corrugated rollers. Other rollers then crush the grain further and scrape the bran material from the endosperm. The particles are then sifted to separate the endosperm from the bran by a stream of air, which lifts away the smaller flakes of bran. (And you wonder why noodles are so pricy, eh?)

After all the milling takes place, the flour can be mixed with other flours and combined with water and/or eggs, then mixed into a dough. A vacuum is applied to remove any air that might have been mixed in the dough because air bubbles weaken the pasta.

Then the extrusion process begins. The process forces the dough through a die made from bronze or Teflon. An auger is used to push the dough through a cylinder leading to the die. The motion of the auger also helps knead the dough so that it is strengthened by the strands of gluten that are formed by kneading.

WHEN RESEARCHING this story, I found it interesting that with today's high speed machinery, the cylinder through which the dough is forced must be cooled with a water jacket to prevent overheating that might damage the dough. The shaped raw pasta, which emerges from the die is then cut to the proper lengths.

The newly shaped pieces of pasta are carefully dried under strictly controlled conditions to bring the moisture content down to between 12-13 percent. Usually, this involves the passage of the product through several chambers of varying temperatures and humidity so that drying proceeds gradually and both checking and cracking are avoided.

Of course, nowadays you can buy freshly made pasta in just about any supermarket, thanks to vacuum packaging that will keep the product fresher, without drying. In all honesty, I do love the convenience of opening up a box, but tastewise you just can't beat freshly made (and cooked) homemade pasta.

All you really need is some good wheat and a rolling pin, but the neat little stainless-steel hand rollers available at most local gourmet shops make the process fun and tasty. If your busy schedule can't fit in the time (or energy) to make homemade pasta, you can buy homemade (fresh) pasta at many locations including my favorite, Cucina de Pasta in West Bloomfield and at Hudson's lower-level Marketplace in Northland. Also, many delis will soon be stocking fresh-made pasta products, as once again the pasta boom hits the metropolitan area.

If you're really interested in learning all there is to know about pasta and how to use it, check out "The New, Complete Book of Pasta," by Maria Luisa Scott and Jack Denton Scoot, published by William Morrow. If you enjoy making homemade pasta, try these recipes, guaranteed to bring Mama Leone to her knees!

BASIC PASTA DOUGH
Almost as important as the ingredients, it's the technique that makes it so-o-o-o good.
4 cups semolina flour
4 fresh eggs, lightly beaten
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
2 teaspoons olive oil
2 teaspoons warm water

Sift the flour onto a large surface. Make a well and add eggs, salt, olive oil and warm water. Slowly use your fingers and get the ingredients mixed into the flour to make a dough. Remove dough, wipe the surface clean, lightly flour the surface and begin kneading for about 10 minutes. Allow the dough to rest for 10 minutes, then roll out using a broom handle, rolling pin or pasta machine. Cut into desired shapes.

HOMEMADE PASTA VERDE
(Spinach Pasta)
3/4 pound cleaned, fresh spinach
4 cups semolina flour
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1 teaspoon salt

Cook spinach without water, well covered until tender. Drain well, pressing out all the water. Force through a sieve or food mill. (Can be chopped in processor.) Sift the flour onto a board and make a well. Add the beaten eggs, salt and spinach. If too wet, add a little more flour, if too dry, a little more water. Allow to rest for 10 minutes, then roll into thin strips. Cut and use as desired.

PASTA FOR RAVIOLI OR TORTELLINI
3 1/2 cups semolina flour
1 teaspoon salt
2 eggs, lightly beaten

1 tablespoon olive oil and/or 2 tablespoons warm water

Sift the flour onto a board. Make a well and add salt, beaten eggs and oil/water. Knead well, then knead for 10 minutes or until smooth and elastic. Cover in bowl for 30 minutes, roll out on a cleaned, flour surface, shape dough into ravioli or tortellini as desired.

PASTA FRESCA
(without eggs)
3 cups semolina flour
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons olive oil
1 cup warm water

Sift the flour onto a board and make a well in the center. Add salt, olive oil and a small amount of water. Slowly mix, bringing flour around the edges, kneading together, adding more water if needed. Knead until smooth. Allow to rest, covered for 15 minutes, then roll out and cut and cook as desired.

TOMATO PASTA
1 cup fresh tomato puree
4 cups semolina flour
2 eggs
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons olive oil

Sift flour onto a large board. Make a well in the center and add beaten eggs, salt 1/2 of the oil and the tomato puree, fresh of course. Using fingers, work around the edges of the well, incorporating all the mixture until a ball of dough is formed. Knead for 5 minutes, allow to rest for 15 minutes, covered. Roll, cut and cook as desired.

Plenty crops up at market

 Most of the farmers come from the rural areas west and Ann Arbor, including Dexter, Chelsea and Erie, said marketmaster Joe Bida.
 "We don't allow bargaining," said Bida, a former Plymouth mayor who now lives in Canton. Bida said farmers, who set their own prices, have no trouble selling their goods.
 Maureen and Kelly Brown of Plymouth, mother and daughter, are hooked on the muffins and cheese-cakes on sale at the market.

 "Everything is fresh and the prices are good," Maureen Brown said.
 Caryl Basel of Plymouth, a learning consultant with the Wayne-Westland Community Schools, is a regular customer. She already has taken her load of tomatoes, cucumbers and eggplants to her car. She's also purchased loaves of fresh baked bread and an armful of zucchini, banana and wheat bran tea breads.

"I LIVE IN a condo so I can't have a garden," Basel said. "I appreciate all the nice things from the farm."
 Faye Duckworth has stopped to chat with the apple farmer Neuroth, with whom she attended grade school years ago in Livonia. Neuroth's full-time employment is with the Livonia Public Schools, where he is a learning specialist.
 Mrs. Muffin, a.k.a. Mary Carey of Farmington Hills, smiled and joked with customers lining up for large bran muffins at 60 cents each.

 "If you're on a diet, these are great," Carey said, popping a muffin into a shopper's bag.
 Carey helps her daughter Lisa, a 19-year-old sophomore at the University of Michigan. Their family business, C&M Food Services, was the brainchild of Lisa, to earn money for college.
 "I do the baking," Lisa Carey said. "I put myself through school with it. It pays the tuition."

Group to tour toxic sites, advocating Proposal C

AP — Aiming to generate voter support for borrowing $660 million for environmental cleanup, a citizens group will tour some of the state's worst toxic waste sites and push for passage of the ballot proposal.

The Public Interest Research Group in Michigan said its "toxic stop tour" will begin near the Indiana border, work its way up the west side of the Lower Peninsula, cross the Upper Peninsula and conclude Nov. 3 in Detroit.

In each county, organizers will photograph the local contamination site, conduct interviews with people who live nearby and contact community groups about the bond issue.

PIRGIM called the ballot issue "the most important environmental legislation in a decade."

"We need to win, and we need to win by a large margin, to send a message to Lansing that the environment is a priority issue for voters," said Andrew Buchsbaum, program director for PIRGIM.

THE GROUP said it would visit the worst toxic contamination site in each county — as listed by the Department of Natural Resources.

As two PIRGIM organizers — also skilled in strumming a guitar and singing about Michigan's pollution problems — travel the state, the group also will conduct door-to-door canvasses, telephone campaigns and voter registration and get-out-the-vote drives by student volunteers to push the bond issue.

"We don't have the money to buy television spots and newspaper ads," said Corey Dolgon, a graduate student at the University of Michigan. "The only way we can get the word out is by talking to people wherever and whenever we can."

THE BOARD of State Canvassers assigned the letter "C" to the bond issue.

The board also assigned letter "D" to a proposed $140 million bond proposal for parks and recreation programs, and spelled out the language that will appear on the Nov. 8 ballot.

Buchsbaum said he informed the Department of Natural Resources about the campaign, and said other groups are also expected to help seek votes.

"We hope to tie into the other campaigns as they get started," he said. He said PIRGIM is spending less than $13,000 in its effort.

Of the $660 million in the bond issue, up to $425 million would be used for the cleanup of toxic waste sites. Up to $150 million would be targeted for solid waste management, up to $60 million would go to a clean water revolving fund to provide grants to local municipalities, and up to $25 million would go to a Great Lakes protection fund.

UAW seeking campus influence

(AP) — United Auto Workers organizers are trying to become big men on campus as they attempt to spread the union's influence at universities and colleges.

The UAW represents some 10,000 clerical, administrative and service personnel at 21 colleges, universities and public school districts nationwide.

Barbara Rahke, organizing coordinator for the UAW Technical, Office and Professional Department, said the union is now trying to organize 500 clerical workers at Ohio University in Athens, Ohio.

The union also has petitioned to represent a group of some 3,000 graduate students and teaching assistants at the University of California's Berkeley campus, she said. They would be the first teaching personnel represented by the union, Rahke said.

CAMPUS WORKERS represented by the UAW make up the union's academic council, a division of its Technical, Office and Professional Department.

The latest addition to the academic council in Michigan came May 31, when the 320-member Central Michigan University Staff Association voted to affiliate with the union.

The organization was looking for a new bargaining representative after a former consultant retired, said Rosie Nedry, president of the clerical employees group at the Mount Pleasant school.

UAW bargainers helped the staff group win a 5.28-percent increase in wages and benefits in a one-year economic agreement reached July 13, she said.

Local 2071, representing 950 clerical, secretarial and technical employees at Wayne State University in Detroit, has been on strike since Aug. 25 in a contract dispute.

ALSO ON strike at Wayne State is the American Association of University Professors, representing some 630 faculty members.

The AAUP is not a union but negotiates contracts for some 50,000 members in collective bargaining units nationally.

The UAW and AAUP are not coordinating their strikes at Wayne State. But "We are in solidarity with them, and they with us," AAUP representative Arthur Antisdal said.

Rocks romp past Spartans, 42-14

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Plymouth Salem not only remained unbeaten but no doubt gained added respect with its latest football victory Friday night.

The Rocks are 3-0 after beginning Lakes Division play by crushing Livonia Stevenson, a team expected to contend for the league crown, 42-14.

"I think we're a little better than people think we are," said Salem coach Tom Moshimer, who watched his ballclub convert a pair of early turnovers into touchdowns and pull away before halftime.

He acknowledged the fact Stevenson, 1-2, was without three injured players, including Rob Chanko, who was hurt in the season-opening win over Redford Union.

"It's very difficult to say" how big a factor those losses were against the Rocks, Spartans coach Jack Reardon said. "They play five positions for us.

"(SALEM) KINDA overpowered us, and it's very difficult to think you can put people here and there and expect them to do what you want them to do."

With one exception, the Rocks achieved their victory on the ground, rushing for 300 yards and exploiting an apparent weakness at the corners of Stevenson's defense.

football

Junior quarterback Ryan Johnson, electing to keep the ball on the option, skirted the end for two first-half TDs. He also passed 52 yards to Brian Burlison for another as Salem took a 28-6 halftime lead.

But there was some question whether the Rocks had paid a heavy price for win No. 3 when Johnson injured his left ankle late in the first half and didn't return.

The injury didn't appear to be serious, however, and Moshimer said he expects Johnson to play Friday when Salem hosts Walled Lake Central.

In Johnson's place, Rob Kowalski supported Moshimer's preseason contention that he would be comfortable with either one at quarterback. He had the same success running as Johnson, rushing for 58 yards and a TD while directing the Rocks to a pair of second-half scores.

"ONCE HE GOT rid of the first-series nervousness, he was fine," Moshimer said. "He read the defense well and made the right decisions, so we feel good about that."

Salem struck for an early 14-0 lead, turning a pair of Mike Dalimonte interceptions into points.

Stevenson's interior defense, led by 223-pound Eric Ruth, shut down the middle of the line at the start, so Johnson, with Salem facing third-and-10, winged a 52-yard scoring pass to a wide-open Burlison.

"I'm sure they didn't think we'd throw it," Moshimer said. "I didn't think we would either. I just decided to call it."

The Spartans' ability to bottle up Salem's wishbone attack changed for good when Johnson, who finished with 46 yards, slipped outside and went 20 yards for a 14-0 lead following the second pass theft.

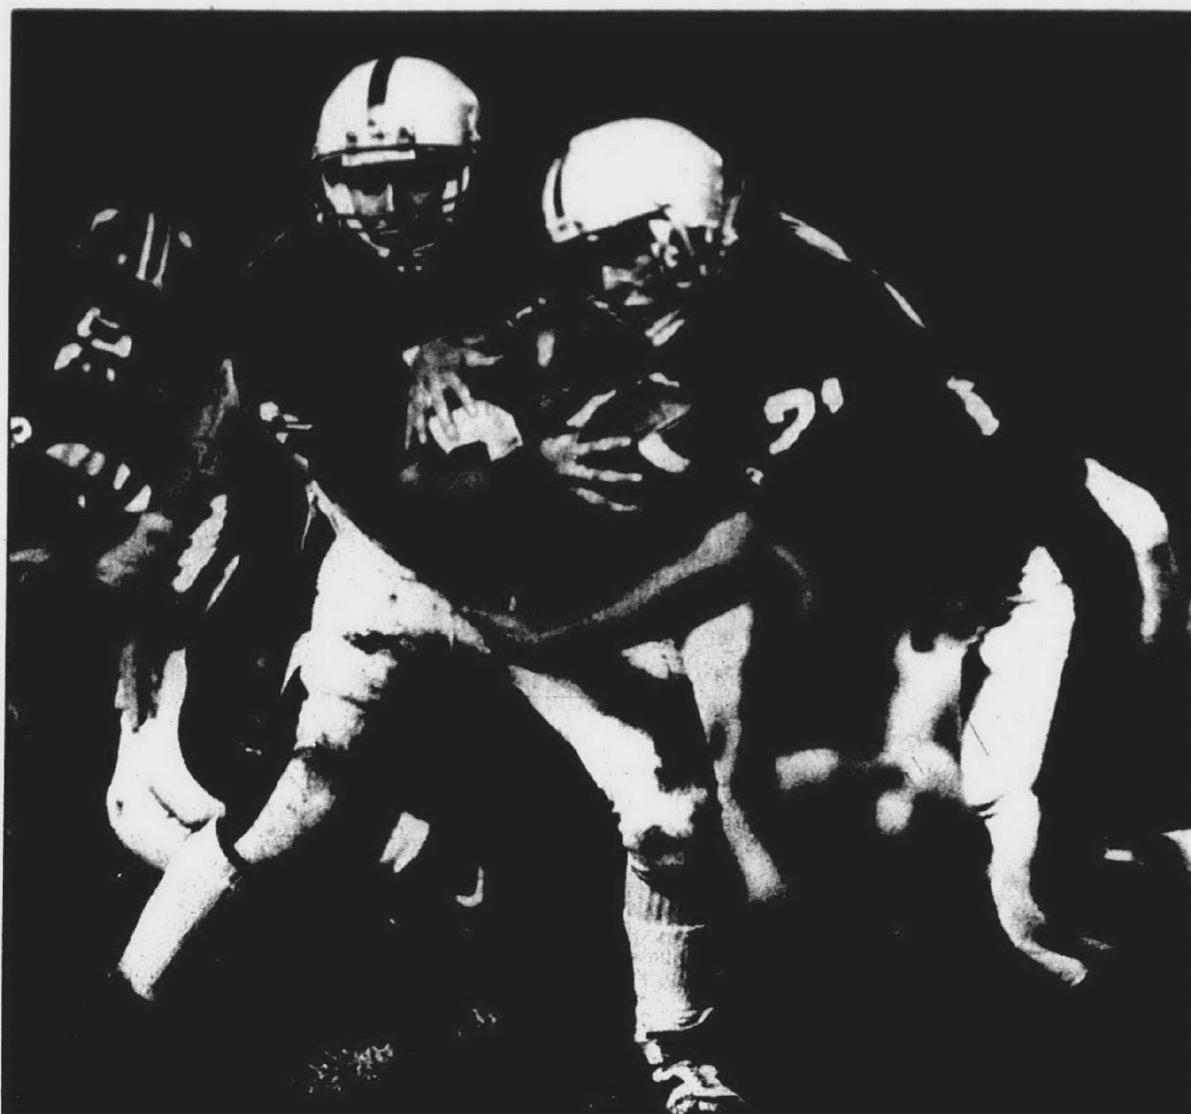

"That's part of the triple option," Moshimer said. "The tackles are coming down hard, and you're hammering the fullback in there."

"THEY GET USED to taking him (the fullback), and Johnson is an athlete. He gets outside and it's tough to stop him."

But the Rocks weren't able to settle into a comfortable situation just yet. Stevenson's offense came to life on its next possession and assembled an impressive drive.

Salem's defense was completely fooled by Dalimonte's deceptive fake, and Ryan Myers dashed 26 yards up the middle to close the first

Canton drops tight game

Livonia Churchill opened its Western Division season in the Western Lakes Activities Association Friday with a hard-fought 17-14 football win over Plymouth Canton in a game played at old Bentley High School.

"It was a good football game, a wide open game," said Churchill coach Herb Osterland, whose team is 2-1 overall. "We moved the ball well at times. We had a control ground game and they hit some long passes."

Churchill led 3-0 at half on a 30-yard field goal by Jeff Zawislak.

The Chargers made it 10-0 in the third period on a 1-yard touchdown run by Zawislak followed by Mike Spaccarotella's extra point.

Canton cut the deficit to 10-7 at the end of the quarter on a 19-yard pass from Jason Dembny to Mark Barrette. (Bob Quinn kicked both extra points on the night.)

Churchill then scored the game-winning TD on a fake field goal as Spaccarotella hit Jim Stoitsiades on a 4-yard pass.

Canton made a game of it with six minutes to go, Dembny to Barrette again on a 22-yard TD pass, but the Chiefs couldn't score the go-ahead points as they were left stranded on the Churchill 35 as time expired.

The Chargers held a slight edge in total yards, 240-237. They also won the battle of first downs, 15-10.

Churchill rushed for 229 yards paced by Zawislak, who carried 18 times for 82 yards.

Jim Young gained for 82 of Canton's 103 yards on the ground, while Dembny completed six of 16 passes for 134 yards.

The loss drops Canton to 0-3.

GARDEN CITY 13, INKSTER 0: Senior quarterback Brad Armstrong hit 12 of 25 passes for 205 yards Friday, leading GC to a 13-0 non-league victory over visiting Inkster.

The Cougars, 1-2 on the year, gave rookie coach Bob Eisminger his first win against the winless Vikings.

Armstrong tossed a 34-yard touchdown pass to junior tight end John Samborski with 8:35 left in the fourth quarter to put the game away.

Samborski finished the night with six catches for 100 yards.

JOHN STORMZAND/staff photographer

GC had 285 yards total offense to Inkster's 10. The Cougars hurt themselves with six turnovers. They fumbled twice inside the Vikings' 10 and one of Armstrong's passes was intercepted in the end zone.

"We played well enough to win," said Eisminger said. "We had too many turnovers and we gave them two first downs with penalties."

Defensively, GC standouts included linebacker Eric McCloud and free safety Brett Slotka, both with interceptions, along with nose guard Matt Risha and short halfback Jim Marszalek.

JOHN GLENN 22, W.L. CENTRAL 0: Senior Bryant Satterlee was the workhorse Friday night, leading Westland John Glenn (3-0) to a WLAA Lakes Division win over visiting Walled Lake Central (0-3).

football

Satterlee, a 6-foot-2, 210-pound tailback, rushed for 234 yards in 36 carries. He scored on TD runs of 2, 3 and 7 yards. (The previous week he carried the ball 30 times.)

The Rockets, who led 10-0 at halftime, also got a 24-yard field goal from Wes Taylor with 6:14 left in the second period.

Glenn also dominated statistically, outgaining Central in total yardage, 301-104. The Rockets held the Vikings to 43 yards on the ground and 61 yards passing (5 of 17). Glenn also had more first downs, 15-7.

"I thought our defense was fairly sound," said Glenn coach Chuck Gordon. "But we're still making mistakes. We've got some improving to do. Time is running out, though."

HARPER WOODS 24, CLARENCEVILLE 14: Andy Weighill's 217 yards rushing (in 16 carries) and two touchdowns were wasted Friday, as visiting Livonia Clarenceville fell in a Metro Conference test.

Harper Woods led 12-0 at halftime before Weighill, a junior tailback, put the Trojans on top, 14-12, on TD runs of 69 and 3 yards in the third quarter. (Eric Conkright added both PATs.)

But the Pioneers struck twice in the final quarter to raise their record to 2-1 overall and 1-1 in the Metro. (Clarenceville is 1-2 and 1-1.)

Despite the loss, Clarenceville had 407 total yards (342 on the ground) and 17 first downs, but Trojans were intercepted twice and fumbled three times.

Defensive back Chris Foss (15 tackles, three assists), teamed up with linebackers Jay Larson (12 tackles, three assists) and Paul Phillips (15 tackles, three assists) for a majority of the defensive stops for the Trojans.

WAYNE 51, SOUTHGATE 0: Senior flanker Tom Faison ran wild Friday, leading the Zebras (2-1, 1-1) to the Wolverine A League win at Southgate Anderson (1-2, 1-1).

Faison opened the game with an 8-yard TD run and added three TDs in the second half on a 3-yard run, followed by a pair of punt returns of 68 and 85 yards. He had 200 total yards on the night.

basketball

Plymouth Canton girls basketball coach Rob Neu had more in common with Detroit Pistons counterpart Chuck Daly than just the sharp-looking threads Saturday night.

Besides being candidates for the Best Dressed Coach Award, both have molded championship teams, also.

Neu, sporting a black pin-stripe suit for the final of the Farmington Mercy Hoops Classic, must have felt like a million bucks, too, after watching his ballclub hand Waterford Kettering its first loss, 54-47.

"This was an important night for our program," Neu said. "Last year we played for the consolation and tonight we play for the championship."

"I wanted to show the kids this game was important and meant a lot to us."

The Chiefs will no doubt move up from No. 9 in the Class A rankings after beating the team that upset top-ranked Traverse City in the first round of the tournament.

"Rankings aren't a concern, but what is important is that we came out of a very difficult five-game stretch at 4-1," Neu said. "Most important is how much we're improving."

Canton got better as the championship game wore on, overcoming a height disadvantage and turning the tables defensively on the Captains, 4-1.

At first, it looked as if Kettering's front line of 5-foot-11 center Missy Davis and 5-10 forwards Julie Schmitt and Nicole Leigh would dominate. The Captains took the ball inside, got repeated second shots and lived at the free-throw line in the first quarter.

Furthermore, the Chiefs lost their only truly big player when 5-11 center Susan Ferko went to the bench with two early fouls. Jennie Clark played well in her place, however.

But the game began to change when Michelle Fortier hit two 3-pointers and teammate Amanda Bell dropped some outside shots to bring Canton from behind before the first period was done.

"That's my career high," said Fortier, who scored 13 points, was named the most valuable player and was voted to the all-tournament along with Ferko. "That forced the defense to challenge the wings more and allowed us to get the ball to Susan."

After the excellent first-half shooting loosened up the Kettering defense, Ferko returned to score 11 of her game-high 15 points in the second half.

Canton was shaken by the Captains' press at the outset, but the Chiefs soon used their quickness to their advantage, with guards Fortier, Jenny Russell and Bell pushing the ball and catching the defenders out of position.

"We struggled at the start, but we came back," Fortier said. "The whole team came back."

Only a late surge and some key buckets from Schmitt enabled Kettering to force a 28-28 halftime tie, but the Chiefs made a decisive move in the third period.

Another factor was the weather. The hot, humid temperature on the late September evening made the gym very stuffy and seemed to take a greater toll on the bigger Captains.

By then, Canton's defense was the one doing the harassing. Fortier and Russell made a lot of steals in the third quarter, which fired up the transition game and helped to wear down Kettering. "Rob said we got them tired, and they looked tired," Fortier said. "We pushed our defense out to make them work harder."

"They were getting tired and made some bad passes, but I think our defense had something to do with that."

The Chiefs ran off 13 unanswered points, holding the Captains scoreless for nearly six minutes and turning a 31-30 deficit into a 43-31 lead.

Kettering, forced to press but totally ineffective against the slick ball handlers from Canton, got close in the finale when the Chiefs stumbled briefly, but Canton had more than enough third-quarter points in reserve.

Bell also had 13 points. Leigh, who had 14 to lead Kettering, was an all-tournament selection as was teammate Mikki Bryce and Traverse City's Wendy Merriman.

Chiefs take impressive win

Look out for Plymouth Canton!

If first-meet results are a true indication, the Chiefs have a powerhouse swimming team.

Canton opened its season Thursday with an impressive victory, and the Chiefs didn't beat just anybody.

Coach Hooker Wellman's squad trounced perennial Class B power Milan, 96-76, in the Canton pool.

It marked the first time the Chiefs have defeated the Big Reds, who finished second in the state last year.

"I was real pleased," Wellman said. "We beat a good, quality team. They ripped us apart last year. It was nice."

Canton was led by Nicole Drake, who not only won two freestyle events but met the state-meet qualifying standards in both right off the bat. She touched out at 1:59.37 in the 200 freestyle and 5:17.99 in the 500.

Teammates Cassie Cummins and Lori Engelhuber also were instrumental, each claiming a solo victory and helping the Chiefs capture the medley relay.

Cummins won the individual medley in 2:22.49, and Engelhuber was the 100 freestyle winner with a time of 59.7.

Cummins led off the relay, Val Gildhaus and Kelly Rische swam the middle portions and Engelhuber anchored it. Their combined effort was 2:01.46.

That wasn't the whole story, either. The Chiefs received another first-place finish from Jean McLenaghan, who won the backstroke in 1:59.59.

Drake also contributed with an anchor-leg effort in the freestyle relay. Canton's unit, which included Sarah Schmitts, Kris Lang and Kristy Brugar, was second at 3:57.16.

Susan Ferko braces herself for an attempt to go over the top of Mercy's interior defense. She had 16 points as Canton won 48-41.

Chiefs bump Mercy

By Dan O'Meara staff writer

The strategy, as envisioned by Plymouth Canton girls basketball coach Rob Neu, was simple.

The Chiefs had to play good defense, especially in trying to neutralize Farmington Mercy point guard Jenny Clinton.

Canton defended against the Marlins well enough to defeat the host team 48-41 Thursday in the opening round of the Eighth Annual Mercy Hoops Classic.

"The key was making everything difficult for Clinton," Neu said, "and not letting the other kids get easy scores. Defensively, we've improved a lot."

Canton, 3-1, needed a boost from the defensive end when it found itself trailing early in the second period, 13-8.

THE MARLINS, who saw their record slip to 0-3, seemed to have solved the shooting problems that plagued them in the first two games when they shot 5-of-8 in the first quarter.

But the Chiefs, with some crisp passing in the half-court offense, picked up the pace before halftime and fashioned a 22-16 lead behind center Susan Ferko, who had half of her game-high 16 points in the first half.

"We lived off our defense to get us back in the game," said Neu, citing the effectiveness of Canton's half-court trap. "The defense allowed us to get some easy scores but, more importantly, got us into the flow."

Mercy, following Lee Albrecht's basket that gave her team a 15-14 edge, failed to score a field goal in the final 5:10 of the half. But the Marlins shot a much-improved 40 percent for the game and were in it until the final minute.

"I felt very strongly we needed to drive the ball to the basket and utilize Lee inside, and we didn't do that during that duration," Mercy coach Larry Baker said.

"We had longer droughts during our first two games that buried us. We weren't out of this one with 40-50 seconds (to play)."

THE MARLINS closed to within 24-20 early in the third period when Amy Edward converted a three-point play. But Canton got its offense rolling by the end of the basketball

quarter, extending its lead to 36-26 on Jenny Russell's fast-break basket.

Senior guard Michelle Fortier complemented Ferko's inside play with 10 points, but forwards Candi Jones and Stacey Thompson also were active around the hoop.

"You can't key on those two (Fortier and Ferko), because Jones and Thompson can put it off the glass," Neu said.

"When anybody goes man on us straight up, it's easy to go inside. The key was getting Jones and Thompson into the offense off Ferko."

Baskets by Jones and Thompson boosted Canton's lead to 42-30 in the finale, but the Marlins managed to keep suspense in the game with big buckets by Joanne Stephens and Clinton that made it 44-38 with 2:57 to play.

"I did not enjoy losing, but I see a significantly improved team over Game 1," Baker said. "We were playing some ugly basketball in the first two games, and tonight we looked like challengers."

ALBRECHT SANK a leaning one-hander and made it a three-point play, bringing the Marlins within 46-41 with more than two minutes to play.

Clinton missed a 1-on-1 opportunity and Mercy committed a turnover at the offensive end, however, as several chances to cut the lead further were unproductive.

"That's what I mean," Baker said. "There was a possibility, and we created that possibility against a top-10 team. I think they know they were in a ballgame."

With the Marlins pressing, Jones broke through for coast-to-coast layup that all but wrapped up the win with just over a minute remaining.

Stephens had 13 points to pace Mercy's scoring, and Albrecht notched 12. Edward chipped in nine and Clinton added five. Canton was 0-for-6 at the free-throw line but shot more than 50 percent from the field (24-of-46).

SC netters prevail in opener

It took two games before the University of Michigan-Dearborn could figure out how to handle this smaller, but quicker, volleyball team from Schoolcraft College Thursday at SC.

And by then, it was too late. The Lady Ocelots humbled UM-D in the first two games of their best-of-five match, 15-4, 15-3, and were ahead 7-0 in game No. 3 before the Lady Wolves rallied for a 15-11 triumph.

But any hopes for a comeback were quickly doused in game No. 4, this time with the Lady Ocelots rallying to overcome a 5-0 deficit and post a 15-8 match-clinching victory in their season-opener. Nikki Stubbs and Marla Evans, both from Garden City, triggered the SC offense. Stubbs powered her way to 14 kills in 25 attacks with just two errors (a .480 attack average) and added three solo blocks and two block assists. Evans added a dozen kills in 25 attacks with three errors (.360).

Canton girls trounce Vikes

Plymouth Canton probably expected a tougher test than the one it received Thursday in girls cross country from Walled Lake Central.

But then again, how much competition can two girls provide? Canton defeated a depleted Central team 15-50 in a Western Lakes Activities Association dual meet.

Because of injuries, only two Central runners, Colleen Yuhn and Sheri

Howard, competed. Yuhn, one of the best runners in the state, won the meet in 19:21, but Canton claimed the next five spots en route to the victory. Lynda Schendel edged teammate Cathy McCabe by one second for the No. 2 spot at 20:28. Cindy Spessard finished fourth at 20:32, followed by Canton's Missy Jasnowski in fifth at 20:54. Sixth-place went to the Chiefs'

Kris Marquard, who clocked 20:57. Coach George Przygodski is excited about his team's early-season results, which include a first-place finish Sept. 8 at the six-team Ypsilanti Early-Bird Invitational. "It's a great start for us," Przygodski said. "Having five girls under 21 minutes is real good at this time of the year. I'm real pleased with the progress they're making."

Chiefs charge past Central

Plymouth Canton won its first boys cross country dual meet Thursday, defeating Walled Lake Central 20-37.

Central's Mark Kiniatowski placed first in 16:26, but Canton grabbed the next five spots to quickly sew up the victory.

Bryan Beach had Canton's best time at 16:37, followed by Matt Hall in third at 17:06. Brian Callon finished fourth, clocking 17:08. Placing fifth was Mike Ream at 17:10, and sixth place belonged to Canton's Jim Gallagher in 17:11.

quarter with the Spartans down 14-6. "We had a bit of a mental letdown after scoring two quick touchdowns," Moshimer said. "That happens no matter how much you harp against it."

"After that happened, we came back and took charge again and didn't let up the rest of the game. We eliminated a lot of the crazy things that might have happened to us."

The Rocks responded with a sustained drive of their own to go up 21-6 early in the second quarter.

THE BIG PLAY was a 52-yard run by fullback Pat Bowie, the team's leading rusher with 87 yards on 16 carries. That set up another end run by Johnson, covering the final 19 yards, for the score.

"It was nothing we didn't see," said Reardon of Salem's ability to turn the corner. "We just didn't get there."

The Rocks drove for a fourth TD before halftime — the possession on which Johnson got hurt — and Bowie scored the first of his two TDs. He

'88 Churchill team grade better

By Brad Emons
staff writer

There was something different about Wednesday night's Livonia Churchill-Stevenson boys soccer match, which incidentally ended in a 1-1 tie.

For starters, the game was played on a neutral field, old Bentley High School. It was Churchill's home game, but the Chargers' field, recently resodded, was not playable, thus the site change.

Secondly, the two state-ranked powers met earlier in the season. It was only the third regular season game for both. Normally the two teams play much later. Both coaches, John Neff of Churchill and Pete Scerri at Stevenson, said they preferred playing each other later in the season.

Thirdly, each team has a different look about them, although it may appear only subtle to the average fan.

One big difference for Stevenson, which has appeared in five of six state Class A finals, is the goaltending.

The Spartans have had strong goaltenders before, but never had they started a take charge guy like junior Jerry Smolenski, who came up big several times on the night to stymie the Chargers.

"THAT GOALIE (Smolenski) saved our life," admitted Scerri. "He talks our players and keeps everybody on their toes."

In the first half, Churchill missed five golden scoring chances.

The Chargers' Mike Gentile headed one off the crossbar. On another play, Churchill received an indirect free kick in the box, so close that it was just five yards from the net.

But with all 10 Stevenson players forming a wall in front of the net, Smolenski rushed out and cut off Khaled Zeidan's attempt before he could even get off a shot.

In the second half, Smolenski came to the rescue again, making a diving stop on a bullet shot by Zeidan.

But Smolenski proved he was human, too, as Churchill tied the match midway through the second half when Darin Bodin's low drive squirted by the Spartans' goaltender. The play was set up when junior John Gentile sent a long pinpoint pass through the Spartans' vaunted brick wall foursome of Derek Williford, Bob Dimitriou, Aaron Brown and Kurt Will.

STEVENSON'S STRONG suit may be its veteran defense. But the difference this season against Stevenson is that the Chargers now have four players of equal caliber that can offset that wall.

Rocks top improved WLC

The gap is narrowing. So says Plymouth Salem boys soccer coach Ken Johnson of the difference between the elite teams in the Western Lakes Activities Association and those considered also-rans.

Host Walled Lake Central gave Salem a scare Wednesday before losing to the Rocks 2-0.

Salem scored both goals in the second half after a scoreless first half. The Rocks remain undefeated in the WLAA at 3-0 and are 5-2 overall.

Salem routed Central 15-0 at home last fall.

But "They were tougher than I thought they'd be," Johnson said. "It wasn't easy. It's parity, I guess."

"The youth leagues are spreading to the outlying areas," he added. "They're still behind us in talent, but they're coming. It's not a walk-around anymore."

Ryan Fitzpatrick and Donovan Nichols scored the goals for Salem. Greg Christensen and Joe Nunez collected the assists.

Nichols plays defense, but he has become a goal-scoring threat, recording his fifth Wednesday. Junior Matt Tudor made eight saves in net for Salem, recording his first career shutout on the varsity.

After the game, Scerri admitted that Will, who often plays up front, was kept back on defense specifically to keep an eye on Gentile.

Churchill, meanwhile, traditionally known for its defensive posture, ala Bo Schembechler style, now have a few Anthony Carters in their arsenal.

Zeidan, a four-year veteran, is joined up front by Gentile, Bodin and Phil Todino to give the Chargers a dangerous foursome.

And coming up for support from the midfield is another gem of an athlete, junior Brady Ericson, who set up a number of good Churchill scoring chances on the night.

Neff, the usually reserved coach of the Chargers, can't hide his enthusiasm for this team.

"We have more offense than before with at least three good scorers," he said. "Tonight I thought we had some real opportunities to score. We missed them, but overall I thought we played very well."

"THIS IS STILL a young team and we've got a long ways to go. We've shuffled positions, but once everybody gets comfortable with each other we'll get better as the season goes along. This is a good team and with a good attitude. They're working very hard."

During Wednesday's city showdown, Stevenson had trouble penetrating Churchill territory with the exception of an occasional mad dash by right winger Pete Galea, the Spartans' top returning scorer.

The Spartans scored their lone goal midway through the first half on a restart — Eric Schwedt on a throw-in from Dimitriou.

"Sometimes people expect too much of him (Galea)," Scerri said. "We have other scorers besides Schwedt and Galea, but our new midfield was not coming up and giving support. We have some holes to fill, but we'll fill them."

Neff said his team had no special defense designed to stop Galea.

"We played straight up and we virtually never concentrate on one player," said the Churchill coach. "But he (Galea) is great. He gave me heart failure every time he went down our side. He's just got great moves."

ALTHOUGH STEVENSON has enjoyed the upper hand against their city rival over the years, particularly during tournament time, Churchill simply won't go away.

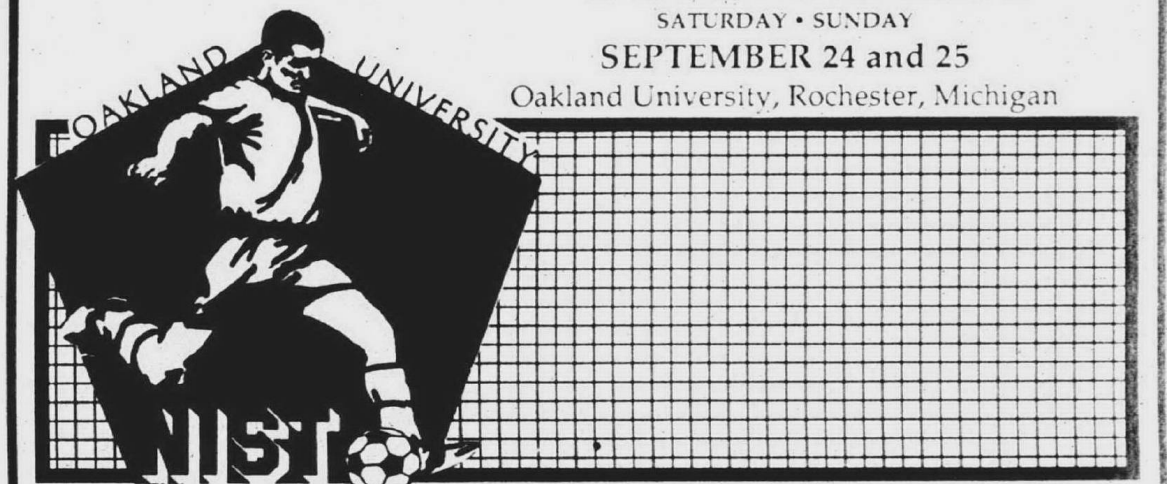

And after evaluating Wednesday's game, the Chargers appear to be a more serious threat than ever.

For the ultimate in Northern Italian cuisine, dine at La Guardia Restaurant, downtown on Pitt Street.

For dance, theater, or music, it's Cleary Auditorium downtown—showplace of Canadian culture.

They say the best view of Detroit is from the Art Gallery of Windsor Restaurant. Enjoy its fine Belgian cuisine.

To look good, see Freed's. It's Windsor Detroit's largest Men's Store with exclusive Canadian and European fashions.

The beautiful bridge that goes to a beautiful place. All for only $1.25.

Windsor.
The more you look, the more you like.

Windsor is the kind of place that improves with familiarity. For one thing, you'll never run out of great restaurants. A few? Elliott's on the Avenue, Wong's Eatery, Louie Linguini's, Traiteur's Casa Bianca, La Notte, The Royal Bengal Indian Curry House, Stoney Point Tavern, Sunnyside Tavern, Duffy's Tavern, Dan Flannagan's. The list goes on.

And, no matter what you're shopping for, you can find it in Windsor. Hockey equipment? You've come to the right place: Johnson Sports, on Wyandotte east of Ouellette. With selection—and prices—you'll find hard to match anywhere.

Up for a little sightseeing? Take Route 18 to Colasanti's Tropical Gardens in Ruthven. You'll see quaint farmhouses, boats on the river and waves on the lake.

If you plan to stay the weekend, remember that Detroit's most affordable mini-vacation is in Windsor, at Relax Plaza Hotel. It's on the waterfront, right in the heart of Windsor's bustling downtown. It's so easy to get to, just say...

Jumpmaster Winn Alexis of Parachute Services in Tecumseh shows Larry O'Connor the final procedure before jumping from the plane . . . except they are on the ground, not 2,800 feet in the air as they will be later.

'Look, Mom, no hands'

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

To the news dude covering the Persian Gulf Mining Sweepstakes: Can we talk?

Perhaps we could switch jobs, if only for a day. See, I'm up here in this plane 2,800 feet above Tecumseh, and they have just opened the door. And, get this, I'm supposed to jump out.

If my parachute opens, they tell me I'll slowly descend back to the earth in 2 1/2 minutes. If not, they say it will only take 17 seconds.

Imagine that. In the same time it takes someone to get up from his/her desk and reach the coffee machine, a person can fall 2,800 feet and lay a big wet kiss on mother earth for the very last time. Think about it.

Because I haven't, until now that is. Negotiations begin. Beirut for a year? Sure. Siberia doesn't sound too bad right at the moment either.

"Exit the plane," barks Winn Alexis, jumpmaster on this, my maiden parachute jump.

OK, this is the final offer. How about 20 percent of the income? Not enough? Don't even insult you with such a paltry sum. Then I'll throw in the IRA. Still no go. All right, I'll include the CIA, KGB and PLO, too.

"Go!" yells the jumpmaster.

You sign your name more times than Henry Kissinger did on the Paris Peace Accord. You start to think, 'Hey, this might be serious.'

But before my clenched hands leave the wing strut of this airplane, I would like to retrace the steps of this mess.

FIRST, THERE was a meeting when it was mentioned skydiving might make for a good story. Guess who suggested it? And guess who also volunteered to do it?

But what the job entailed really didn't sink in until a month later when photographer and reporter walked through the door of Parachute Services Inc., at Al Meyers Airport in Tecumseh.

"This is the sucker, huh?" joked Judie Lange, who runs the Parachute Service with her husband Harold Lange.

Please turn to Page 5

Everything goes well on this jump. The problem is tuning out the guy trying to order an Egg McMuffin on the McDonald's drive-thru radio.

Going for gold — Michigan style

By Iris Sanderson Jones
contributing travel editor

We may not make it to the summer Olympics in Seoul, Korea, but travelers are going for the gold all over Michigan this month.

The opening ceremonies have been held in a blazing panorama of leaves on the Keewenaw Peninsula, 100 miles of autumn leaves protruding into Lake Superior at the northwest corner of the Upper Peninsula.

The color runs like a relay race across Mackinac Island, and down the Lower Peninsula until it makes its final bow on our own stage here in the southern counties.

If you have lived in Michigan all your life, you may not realize that this glorious blaze of autumn is not found all over the world. Michigan has 19 million acres of forest, with 65 species of deciduous trees, all changing color in their own way. That's more than any other state, more than you would find in all of Europe.

ing, get up and stretch. If leaves don't turn you on, how about fruit, vegetables, wine, hunting and festivals?

MICKY JONES

Pick a color from gold to the brightest of red or yellow and you're bound to find it lurking on trees throughout the state this fall.

You can color tour from a boat, train, bicycle, hot air balloon, airplane, car or, if you want to do it the old-fashioned way, and earn your pleasure, on foot.

Training seems like a good word to associate with the "Color Olympics," and a lot of our color tours are available by train. Coe Rail of Walled Lake, which focuses on freight during the week, runs color tours on weekends, especially to state wetlands and bird sanctuaries.

The Kalamazoo, Lakeshore and Chicago Railroad does weekend color tours from Paw Paw to Lawrence or Hartford. The Michigan Railroad Club Inc. is also into color.

The Southern Michigan Railroad Society schedules excursions through the season between Tecumseh and Clinton. Tours run Oct. 1-3, 8-9, 15-16 and 22-23 from Tecumseh. Full-size trains with open-sided cars carry you through the scenery to the Raisin Center. Cider and doughnuts are served along the way.

Living Colour is challenging music industry stereotyping

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

OK, here's the facts. Living Colour is a highly touted hard rock band. They have a critically acclaimed LP "Vivid" and they are in the midst of a U.S. tour.

Ah, but if it were all as simple as that. All four members of Living Colour are also black, which leaves them up for constant scrutinization and analysis by the music industry.

If black folk artist Tracy Chapman and black bluesman Robert Cray have thrown AOR radio a curve, then Living Colour is a knuckleball they're not sure how to handle.

On the one hand, Living Colour is an anomaly to white-dominated, album-oriented rock radio stations. Black radio tends to shun them because their music isn't along the lines of rap, rhythm and blues or soul. So, on the surface, the problem would appear to be two-fold. "Our problem is 10-fold," said bass player Muzz Skillings, taking time from a video shoot in New York for a telephone interview.

Skillings is not exaggerating. "Vivid" (Epic) is a high powered, hard-edge rock and roll document on vinyl. But if it doesn't bullet to the top of the charts, the record industry folk can simply say, "See, I told you. Stick to black music. It sells."

EXCEPT Living Colour doesn't buy into that. They didn't emerge from the New York City rock scene to be different. The group wants to break those stereotypes, which say contemporary black artists should perform rap, R&B or gospel.

"Yeah, simply put, it's the segregation of radio," Skillings said. "But it's also lumping black people into archetypes. People in the media feel safe portraying blacks separate from themselves. They listen to their own music. They eat their own food."

"And while most people are intelligent enough not to believe the obvious stereotypes, there are the subtle ones they still hold on to."

Part of the problem can be blamed with the record industry going corporate. Music analysts began dictating what sells and what won't. Black hard rock, they figured, began and ended with Jimi Hendrix.

Skillings begs to differ. He points out that Funkadelic fused funk with hard rock elements and the Isley Brothers took the hard-guitar route (anybody remember that "Twist and Shout" was their song).

"The bands are out there," Skillings said, "but the marketplace doesn't want anything to do with them."

Black Rock Coalition seeks to change that. Founded by Living Colour guitarist Vernon Reid, the group's goal is to break down stereotypes and provide black artists on the cutting edge an opportunity to be discovered.

LIVING COLOUR is the first band of the coalition to be signed to a major record deal (Epic).

Where others merely go through the motions, Living Colour brings a spark to hard rock that adds a fresh perspective to an often-cliched genre of music. The group combines a raw mix of blues, funk and jazz elements and funnels that into the steady stream of a potent hard rock. Reid's guitar virtuosity hallmarks the Living Colour sound.

Lead vocalist Corey Glover, who also had a role in the movie "Platoon," sings of urban discord in numbers like "Open Letter (to a Landlord)" and "Which Way to America."

As with rap, Living Colour uses hard rock to express the struggles of living in an urban setting. "Hard rock is a different expression about the same thing," said Skillings, who is a graduate of City College of New York and lives in Queens. "Rap lends itself to expressing-discord with society. It's your own story, your own words, your own culture. Hard rock is the same thing."

Mick Jagger was impressed with the group when he caught their act at CBGBs in New York. He helped produce "Vivid" along with Ed Stasium (Ramones, Talking Heads and Gladys Knight & the Pips).

Jagger played harmonica on "Broken Hearts" and provided the background vocals on the Caribbean-flavored "Glamour Boys."

"IT WAS great," Skillings said. "He didn't change us musically. He didn't try to take control or anything. He just recorded what he heard at CBGBs."

In support of the album, the band recently played a show in London. Radio in the UK has been playing cuts from "Vivid" regularly.

In this country, support is also beginning to swell. Their audience is quite diverse, anywhere from skinheads to B-boys can be found at their shows. Skillings said they seem to attract the fringe section of many groups.

"We're saying, 'Hey listen to us,'" Skillings said.

Living Colour will perform with Soul Asylum tonight at the Nectarine Ballroom in Ann Arbor. For more information, call 961-MELT.

Anti-Fashion lead singer Traci is backed up by Jeff Bell on drums and Larry Beaty on bass.

Anti-Fashion fuses '60s and '80s rock

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Traci sounds more like a politician than a musician.

"We're individuals and we're honest," said the lead singer for the group Anti-Fashion. "I think people like that I do."

The platform from which Anti-Fashion sings is a fusion of 1960s acid rock and 1970s progressive rock. There is a policy of new music formulated by a committee of three people. All three come from different backgrounds, but somehow they click musically.

Traci is the amiable, yet hard-driven chair of the trio. The note stops here with her. She dominates the band's presence with an ethereal voice, sounding somewhat like Bjork of the Sugarcubes. She is backed up by Jeff Bell on drums and Larry Beaty on bass.

The name of the band conjures up an image of a left-of-center musical act. Not the case, Traci said.

"We're not really radical," she said. "The reason that we chose that name is that it is a little rebellious. We're not trendies, but we're not radicals either."

"We're kind of an alternative to alternative."

TO EXPOUND further, Anti-Fashion wants to make good music. Falling into the crowd of alleged trend setters is not the top priority on their agenda.

That in itself puts Anti-Fashion on the Detroit band ballot in its own category. Too many local groups can be found guilty of following trends instead of setting them.

Anti-Fashion believes strong, well-written songs will tell the story. Traci is the chief songwriter of the group.

"When I go to write a song, we're not catering to anyone's tastes," she said. "We're writing them from the heart."

Also, according to Belt, the band isn't stuck on one particular sound or genre of music.

Responsible for the hard-edge rock sound of Living Colour are Muzz Skillings (from left), bass, Corey Glover, vocals, Vernon Reid, guitar, and William Calhoun, drums.

REVIEWS

BUENAS NOCHES FROM A LONELY ROOM — Dwight Yoakam

When a guy like Dwight Yoakam puts out a new album, you want to love it.

That's because Yoakam has good taste. He plays honky-tonk country music, a style made popular in the '50s and '60s by Lefty Frizzell, Buck Owens and Merle Haggard.

It's a swinging, gutsy kind of country, marked by stinging guitars and playful steel guitar and fiddle sounds.

The style is well suited to Yoakam. He's got that nasal country twang and can put a great big ole teardrop in his voice. And he's got a hot band — essential to a good honky-tonk sound.

But because Yoakam's songwriting is not up to the standard set by his mentors, his new album "Buena Noches from a Lonely Room," is just so-so.

Still, there is one track on the LP worth shouting about. Yoakam had the good taste to cover the Buck Owens classic "Streets of Bakersfield." And ole Buck, the No. 1 country artist of the '60s, joins him on vocals.

The tempo on "Streets" is turned up to a swift polka beat, complete with Ry Cooder sideman Flaco Jimenez on accordion.

Maria McKee, the excellent lead singer of the group Lone Justice, joins Yoakam on the classic "Send Me the Pillow."

But her voice is low in the mix. They should have turned her up and let the pair cut loose on one of those spunky old Porter and Dolly songs.

Best to pass on this album and pick up "Streets of Bakersfield," available on 45.

SUBSTANCE — Joy Division

Joy Division achieved mythical status around 1978 and this status was only consolidated by the hanging suicide of their intense lead singer Ian Curtis in 1980. It is said that his death, at 23, was influenced by his worsening epilepsy and the disintegration of his marriage.

At this time, the rest of the band continued on as New Order. The suicide provided the infinite gap between Joy Division, their name coming from the slang for the prostitutes' wing of a Nazi concentration camp, and New Order. At the same time it was the ultimate symbol of Joy Division itself.

Those who may already be familiar with Joy Division's music know what I mean when I say that Ian Curtis' intensity gave Joy Division a disturbing and powerful aura. To quote Charles Sharr Murray of the New Musical Express: "If Joy Division did anything, it was to center their music around a refusal to pretend that everything was all right."

"Substance" is a collection of songs tracing their career from 1977 to 1980. It is interesting to hear the progress and development made in this short period by the band as Ian Curtis realizes the power of his voice and Peter Hook develops his characteristic bass riffs.

We are first given a taste of early Joy Division with the almost Ramonesque "Warsaw." It then moves from strength to strength as each new song exemplifies the progress made through the frantic, pent-up power of "Transmission," the frightening "She's Lost Control" to the exhilarating "Atmosphere" and their only so-called hit, the heart-breaking "Love Will Tear Us Apart."

New Order fans picking up this LP and expecting another dance party will be surprised by Joy Division's stark power and austere beauty. Joy Division fans should enjoy hearing the band coming to terms with their unique sound through a number of favorite songs. And it is a substantial introductory taste for those who fall into neither of the above categories.

TEMPLE OF LOW MEN — Crowded House

This House is looking for a home on the airwaves these days, unfairly ignored by album rock stations and deemed too contemporary to garner classic rock airplay. Top 40 is the only format that has given them a house warming of any kind.

That's a shame, because the versatile Australian pop-rockers have come up with another Capitol gem in "Temple of Low Men," which features haunting arrangements, lush harmonies and exquisite production. Unfortunately, although none of Neil Finn's songs are an embarrassment, none are quite as compelling as "Don't Dream It's Over," from the Beatleque group's 1986 debut.

But "Temple of Low Men" delivers — if only radio programmers would notice.

Speaking of the Beatles, "Kill Eye" and "Into Temptation" showcase elements of the Fab Four. On the former, Finn's raw vocals and guitar remind one of John Lennon on "Yer Blues" and "Glass Onion;" parts of "Into Temptation" mirrors "Eleanor Rigby" musically.

Lyrics on the quirky "Sister Madly" also suggest Finn spent many hours studying Lennon's work. "Sister madly waking up the dead/systematically stepping on my head."

But Crowded House is developing a personality of its own. Finn's talents are well-complemented by Paul Hester and Nick Seymour, who play drums and bass respectively.

It's main trait over two albums is a knack for knocking out rock, pop and ballad tracks which have individual freshness. The optimistic tone of the lilting "Love This Life" is followed by "In the Lowlands," which is neatly framed by sounds of the Australian outback.

The group isn't perfect, though. Sometimes, "Temple of Low Men" suffers from a tired vocal delivery ("When You Come") or ridiculous lyrics ("I'd much rather have a trampoline in my front room than an isolation tank.")

Already achieving top-of-chart success outside the United States, it seems that Crowded House should be the star of everybody's block before long. Judging by the way radio stonewalled the melodic first single, "Better Be Home Soon," that block may unjustifiably wind up being a dead end.

Yep, that's right. You can enjoy a weekend at the resort and rub elbows with Kim Zimmer and Robert Newman, also known as Reva Shayne and Josh Lewis respectively of the CBS soap, "The Guiding Light."

The weekend will be highlighted by a dinner theater-in-the-round with performances by the stars, a question-and-answer session and an opportunity to act out a scene with your heartthrob.

It also includes a luncheon fashion show, Sunday brunch and use of the resort's state-of-the-art health club facilities. The weekend costs $150 (hotel), $145 (studio or two-bedroom condo) or $175 (tower or one-bedroom condo) per person. For reservations, call 1-800-678-1308 or (616) 938-2100.

Super supper

Speaking of stars, well-known area witch Gundella has a way for people to enjoy Halloween.

She's planning a mystery bus trip to a local old mansion, now housing a fine restaurant, which is reportedly haunted by the ghosts of the original owners.

"Trippers" will be served a five-course meal, hear Gundella relate the history of the mansion — the heart-breaking story of its first occupants and the ghostly experiences that have followed their demise — and sit in on a seance in which one of the participants may become a medium through which the spirits of the dead reach out to the living.

Reservations are on a first come, first served basis and are limited. Tickets cost $55 per person and can be ordered by calling 427-1027.

Seeing red

Mars, the enigmatic planet, evoking a sense of awe, mystery and bizarre visions of possible inhabitants, is the featured subject during Cranbrook Institute of Science planetarium demonstrations through Thanksgiving weekend.

When Mars approaches Earth this month it will be the red planet's closest encounter in 17 years, making the event a hot astronomical topic.

This special planetarium program, narrated by Patrick Stewart, Captain Jean Luc Picard of TV's

"Star Trek: The Next Generation" traces the man's expanding knowledge of Mars from speculation by early astronomers through modern findings by robotic spacecraft exploration.

Concluding the program will be a look into the future when manned exploration will be reality and when in the decades to come, we will be the Martians.

The Mars show is being shown at 1:30 and 2:15 p.m. Saturday and Sunday and again at 7:30 p.m. Saturday. Cranbrook Institute of Science is at 500 Lone Pine Road, Bloomfield Hills.

Cider run

Closer to home, athletic types might be interested in the fifth annual Ciderfest Run that will be held at the Diehl's Cider Mill in Holly Saturday, Sept. 24.

A 9 a.m. one-mile run/walk will precede a four-mile run at 9:30 a.m. The races will be through the apple orchards and surrounding country. Fifty-two plaques and awards will be given to the top finishers and the top three finishers in all 16 age divisions.

It just part of the activities taking place at the cider mill, at 1478 Ranch Road between Highland and Holly. There will be an arts and crafts tent, free wagon rides and cider making demonstrations.

Advance entries of $5 for the one-mile and $8 for the four-mile include a T-shirt and refreshments after the race. Entries taken the day of the race will cost an extra $1.

For information, call 634-8981 or 887-3921.

Gallery shows off Inuit sculptures

The Four Winds Gallery in Birmingham and Tutavik are presenting a first in the state of Michigan — a major exhibition of contemporary Inuit sculpture.

"Legacy in Stone" will be at the gallery from Sept. 23 through Oct. 16 and will open with a 7-10 p.m. reception Friday. Inuit expert Lauren Venchiarutti will be at the opening.

The survival of the Inuit, also known as Eskimos, depended on their ability to make the necessities for everyday existence with their own hands. That led to the making of carved objects for decoration, religion and toys — and later for trade.

During the past 30 years, people have shown an increasing interest in Inuit art and culture, leading the Inuit across the Arctic to produce in quantity carvings representative of their traditional camp life.

The carvers reveal individual preferences for both subject matter and material — from hunting animals to their world of spirits to their igloo homes. Stone is the most frequently used material, but antler, bone and ivory also are used by the carvers.

As the artists have settled in permanent communities, carving has become an important means of expressing their memories of the traditional Inuit way of life.

Inuit sculpture is now recognized around the world, but because it is a sought-after and uniquely Canadian form of artistic expression, it has led to a proliferation of mass-produced imitations.

To protect the consumer and the Inuit carvers, the Canadian government has registered the symbol of the igloos as a trademark to certify that the sculpture is handmade by the Inuit.

The Four Winds Gallery is at 340 E. Maple Road in downtown Birmingham. For more information on the exhibition, call the gallery at 644-2150.

Michigan autumns are rainbow of colors

If you prefer water events, how about going to Grand Haven for a color tour on their harbor steamer. If anybody in the family gets seasick on inland waterways, send them on the harbor trolley. The color is just as great from a vehicle that looks like a San Francisco cable car.

The Au Sable River Queen is one of the stars of the color season, plying the Au Sable out of Oscoda. It also offers boat/train combinations to Tahquamenon Falls.

IF COLORS pall after a short time, try a little "festival-ing" along with it. Grand Ledge is offering a color cruise and Island Festival the weekend of Oct. 7-9, so plan ahead. Whitehall has its Octoberfest Oct. 1. Rockford sponsors a Harvest Festival Oct. 1-2 and 8-9.

The Belding Apple Festival is on Oct. 2. And at least three festivals go on the entire Oct. 1-2 weekend — Crystal Lake Ciderfest in Beulah, Harvest Happenings in Charlotte and the Sorghum Festival in Three Oaks.

Pumpkins will be in their full autumn glory by then, so consider the Pumpkin Harvest Festival in Bessemer, or the Pumpkinfest in South Lyon, all held Oct. 7-8. That weekend also features Octoberfest in either Huron or South Haven.

If you are heading for the Leelanau, there is a Fall Festival in Suttons Bay Oct. 8. On Oct. 8-9, you'll find the Applefest in Armada, the Apple Festival in Charlevoix, an Autumn Harvest Festival in Ludington and the Pumpkin Festival in Alpena. An Apple Festival is also scheduled for Oct. 14-15 in Bangor.

Not all festivals are color-oriented. Port Huron and Sarnia, its Canadian neighbor, are celebrating the 50th anniversary of the Blue Water Bridge Oct. 1-2.

Geese like autumn too, and they make a lot of happy noises about geese during the fourth annual Goose Festival Oct. 15-16 in Fennville. The geese are on their way south from Canada, so the bands play, the dancers have contests and they bring out the parades.

AND IF ALL of that fails to excite you, hold your breath until the leaves have all fallen and go to the Ann Arbor Winter Art Fair Oct. 29-30.

You should also explore the wineries that are harvesting their grapes this month and next. Or do a little picking yourself, at places like the Tree-Mendus Fruit Farm near Benton Harbor.

Or stay home and walk in the woods. Nearly half of all travel dollars spent in Michigan are spent in Wayne, Oakland, Macomb and Washtenaw counties, right in your own backyard.

They're heading up the corporate ladder

By Amy Ross
staff writer

Rupert Russoniello, who wears one of this year's hottest hair styles for men, said his "brush cut" gets him noticed by his customers. "And that's really important in sales," he said.

"Her hair! Her hair!" the prince thought with excitement. "I'll climb her beautiful tresses to reach my fair maiden!"

Then he shouted, "Rapunzel, Rapunzel let down your golden hair!" And his voice echoed from below the great stone tower, where high above the maiden was being kept under lock and key.

Suddenly her lovely face appeared in the tower's window. "I can't," she sobbed. "The King's hairdresser gave me an anti-head shaped cut just this very morning."

And as she moved her head farther into view, he knew it was true. Gone were the long golden locks he had admired from afar, and instead appeared a head full of spikey pointed appendages, much resembling a porcupine.

"Uhhmmmm . . . well . . . never mind," mumbled the prince, as he jumped back onto his horse. "I'll go see what Snow is up to these days."

Well, it may not have happened that way, but if Rapunzel had said to a 20th century hairdresser "give me a new look," it could have. Sure, spikes were shocking to the shallow-minded prince and his scissor-victim maiden. But afterward, that was during the Middle Ages and spikes weren't in.

My how things have changed. That's not to say spikes are in for everyone now, but it's a fact that America is getting a little more modern with its hair — especially the corporate types.

FINALLY, IT seems, the male and female stuffed shirts of the corporate world are catching up with their artist, designer and hairdresser counterparts, who by tradition, have usually kept "more advanced" hair styles.

As one Birmingham hair stylist put it, "You can't put on an Armani suit and Gucci shoes and go to work with a 1970's haircut."

Patti Barreault has been a hair stylist for 17 years, most recently at Birmingham's chic Justin Parish salon. She has witnessed all the trends in hair styles over the years and says lately executives and business people seem to be paying more attention to their locks, opting for that modern cut.

"Most of them (execs) are afraid at first to take the initial plunge, to go for the new look," she said. "But really, they're dying to do it. That's why they come here."

Rupert Russoniello, a 23-year-old sales engineer for a Fortune 500 company in Southfield, has recently gone to his most avant-garde hair style. "It's called a 'brush cut,'" he said of the dark top of his head that looks and feels like a brush when running a hand across it. The sides are cropped above the ears and shaved very close to his head.

"I like it, I really do," he said. "I waited until summer to do it because it's so short."

Because he interacts with the suit-and-tie types all day, Russoniello said some people think his hair doesn't necessarily fit the job — like his boss.

"HE'S A LITTLE conservative, but he would never tell me to get rid of it," he explained. "Besides, it's what's inside that counts."

Russoniello said his haircut actually works for him in his job, because it gets him noticed — "It makes people remember me, and that's really important in sales."

Another person who's getting noticed these days because of his hair is 30-year-old Colin McCoy, a Rochester Hills resident who is manager of design for an automotive supplier.

McCoy wears what is popularly referred to this season as an anti-head shaped cut, meaning, it goes away from the head. He said his short, somewhat spikey style is a mere "fashion accessory," to his usual suit and tie.

"I have always been conscious of my hair, trying to find the cut that suits me best — I think this is it."

Because McCoy is a native of England, he thinks he's "allowed to be slightly wierd" when it comes to his hair.

"I don't know, I guess people expect us to do wierd things to our hair — but I've never heard any negative remarks," he said.

NOT ALL business people who want to be up on hair fashions go to such lengths (no pun intended) with their hair. Instead, they are finding styles that are still different, yet slightly more conservative.

For women, this season's trend is a straighter, wisper look, with not as much volume on top, said Barreault.

An example of such a style belongs to West Bloomfield's Sharon Rapp, a 33-year-old attorney for Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital. Although her long brown hair may not seem at all unusual, it is definitely out of the ordinary for a female attorney, she said.

"Lawyers don't traditionally wear hair like mine. Usually, you think of them as having it short or tied up in a severe bun or something," she said, saying she's worn her style for about five years now. "But I've never had any complaints."

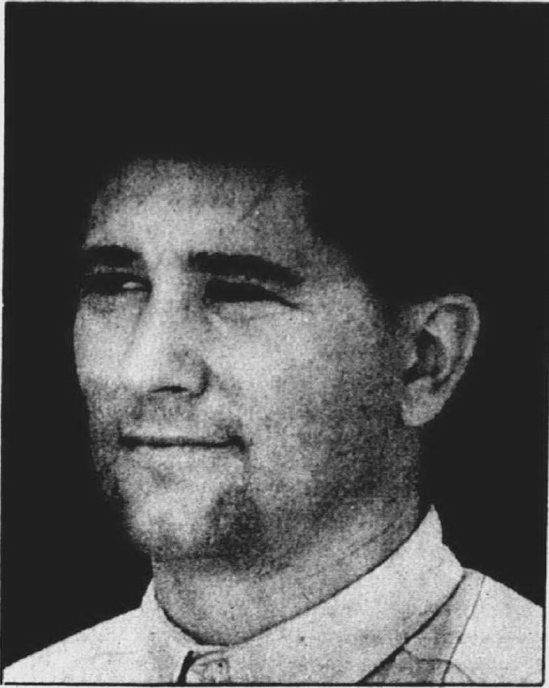

AND, OF course, the days are gone when only women fret over their tresses.

"I'm fussy about it," admitted Greg Tysowski, a 32-year-old architect designer in Birmingham. "It's as important as the clothes you wear, only the hair stays with you for a little bit longer."

Tysowski, who wears a "Bobby Kennedy" short style, said he never thought of himself as a trend-setting person, but looks for "a little bit of flair" in his cuts. He always goes to the same hair salon every month, but said he doesn't always get the same style.

Sharon Rapp has opted for the wispy straighter look that's currently in for women. Although it's not a "far-out style," she feels her hair is slightly less conservative than what most other female lawyers wear.

Greg Tysowski said his conservative "Bobby Kennedy" haircut adds the right amount of flair to his overall style. "I'm just trying to be me," he said.

Colin McCoy, who sports this year's popular "anti-head" shaped cut, feels his short swept-up hair is a mere fashion accessory to his usual suit and tie.

'About skydiving . . . Listen, can we talk?'

Forget formalities. Time to sign your life away.

"Assume all risk of injury and death, initial here."

"Waive all liability of the parachute company, sign there."

You sign your name more times than Henry Kissinger did on the Paris Peace Accord. You start to think, "Hey, this might be serious."

Then it's to the classroom. At the head of the classroom is someone who looks like something the U.S. Army left behind when they pulled out of Iwo Jima.

He has a square jaw and a stern look that is enhanced by contorted facial muscles, conditioned at endless boot camps. He stands with pointer at his side. Meet Harold Lange, who will teach us how to skydive in a mere six hours.

Lange served in the 82nd Airborne Division during the 1940s, '50s and early '60s. He's 60, but would pass for 35. Perhaps thus validating the theory that with skydiving if you don't die young, you'll look young.

FIRST-TIME skydivers don't look young, though. They look nervous. A mix of men and women, mostly in their 20s, are in the classroom. Some are college students, maybe the victims of a cruel fraternity pledge prank. (So, you want to join Alpha Balpha Boo Boo? Well, see, first you have to go for this little plane ride in Tecumseh . . .)

Lange, who really is quite a comedian, pulls out the slide projector. Oh, great. Time to nod off just like you used to in Prehistoric Art 101. Except you don't.

"He who hesitates inherits the earth," Lange says.

You don't need Western Union to get the message.

Lange then takes you outside. His gentle demeanor turns to a scowl. From Bill Cosby, he turns into Sergeant Carter.

By continually falling on the ground, we learn how to land properly. We go inside another building to jump off a ledge, simulating the landing technique again.

We also learned how to cut away from the main chute in case of a malfunction and, of course, where the reserve chute is.

Lange tells us there is roughly five to seven seconds to decide whether or not to get rid of the main chute, if there is a snafu (and this is a person who can spend 10 minutes in front of the candy machine trying to decide between plain or peanut M&Ms).

We go over a few more procedures, then we are ready to go. As it turned out (fortunately), the winds were too strong to jump that day.

Jumpmaster Winn Alexis does a last-minute equipment check. A static line connected to the plane will open the chute automatically.

Training is thorough. Lange has not lost a first-timer ever in more than 20 years of instruction.

Harold Lange goes explains how the reserve parachute is used. If the rate of descent is too fast, a mechanism opens the reserve chute automatically.

BUT NEXT morning, the sky was blue, the sun was warm and the winds were calm. Your gear includes coveralls, boots, helmet, goggles and two parachutes. The entire package weighs about 30 pounds, matching the weight of the lump in your throat.

The main parachute in the back and the reserve in the front are strapped so tightly underneath the legs that even Mr. T could sing Michael Jackson's greatest hits.

Once in the plane, the heart beats like a bass drum on a Monsters of Rock show. You start to perspire, even your eyeballs sweat.

"I know you're scared, but it's going to be fun," said jumpmaster Winn Alexis, who has 715 jumps to his credit in eight years of skydiving. "Just think, you could be out on the road dodging cars." (Is that an option? I thought.)

The plane lifts off, and you're psyching yourself. Your mind is saying, "Let's do it. I've been on the Blue Streak at Cedar Point twice. This ain't nothin'."

But when the door opens, fresh air greets panic. Nothing you've learned in six hours of instruction or countless gulps from a bottle of Jack Daniels can prepare you when the jumpmaster looks you square in the eye and says, "Out."

Once outside, the 65-mile-per-hour wind rushes your body and the roar of the plane engine drowns out the jumpmaster's commands. You grasp the strut of the wing with all your life. You realize there's no going back now.

WHEN HE gives the signal, you let go. But not because you want to.

Did you ever have a dream about falling down an elevator shaft or taking a wrong turn off a 26-story window ledge? For about four seconds, you freefall. It's just you and the sky, and the ground is the big catcher's mitt (Hopefully, it's not Bob Uecker's).

The moment is both terrifying and yet exhilarating. You don't have time to think or yell.

The "poof" of the chute opening slaps you back to reality. You catch your breath and check your pants.

The problem now is finding the target. Only farm land and a church with a big, pointy steeple are below (Sorry, this is one church service I don't wish to sit in on.) You're floating, but you don't know where you are and you almost don't care. What was a scary jolt only seconds ago is now a very tranquil moment.

Then you hear a voice. No, not from heaven (though it might as well be), but from Judie Lange who's guiding you in on the radio attached to the reserve chute.

"Turn to left," she tells you. So, you pull down the steering toggle on the left.

The airport and the landing target suddenly appear. Then there's more static on the radio.

"Yeh, I'd like to order two Egg McMuffins, a hash brown and a large orange juice (Sqawk)."

(Sqawk)"I'm sorry, sir. We quit serving breakfast at 11 a.m."

APPARENTLY, this peaceful 2,800-foot journey to earth is sometimes shared with some bozo who can't get up in time for breakfast. The local McDonald's drive-thru radio is on the same frequency.

The target begins to loom larger. Time to land. When nearing the ground it's important NOT to pull the steering toggles down. That causes what is known as the Demon-Drop effect, actually accelerating your rate of descent.

Guess who did just that? What was supposed to be a light tumble turned into a crash landing (I thought I was going to come out feet first in someone's garden in Peking).

After the shock of landing wore off (it took about 10 minutes), I gathered up the parachute. I was met halfway by the photographer recording this event.

"Ready to go up again?" he asked. "I'm not sure I got a good shot of you coming down."

organizing

Dorothy Lehmkuhl

Q. I work hard but have a friend who runs circles around me accomplishing things. Why do some people get so much done while others have such a hard time?

A. Without knowing specifics, I can only guess about the differences between you and your friend.

Someone once said, "An organized person is one who has already done what you are thinking of doing." Perhaps your friend is a Doer while you are a Thinker. Doers are the ones who have already lost 10 pounds while Thinkers are planning to get around to dieting. Doers run three miles while Thinkers think exercising is a good idea.

The lesson to be learned is that Doers take advantage of time while Thinkers let time slip through their fingers.

An example stems from one of my own disquieting memories. Before I was married I had a roommate who was a Doer. We worked and carpooled together, so our hours were identical. Gayle was an accomplished seamstress, and so was I.

THERE WAS ONE big difference, however. After work, while I was wiggling my toes and unwinding with a coke, Gayle would hop in the car and whiz off to the fabric shop. On her return, while she was laying out a pattern and cutting pieces, I would be on the phone making plans with friends.

After dinner, as I left for yet another boring evening killing time with friends, Gayle was stitching together her garment. By the time I returned, Gayle was hemming her skirt, then carefully pressing her finished product.

The next morning, as I wrestled with choices from the same old dreary wardrobe, Gayle donned her new outfit and went off to work looking great and feeling a sense of accomplishment.

Another example is our son, Gregg, who with his friend Fred, has an after school lawn mowing business. Although Gregg is a highly social teenager, he recently explained his simple time management philosophy: When he doesn't have anything else to do, he mows a lawn. This has worked well for him, earning considerable income while not missing social events. (And I have enjoyed the silent TV.)

I am answering this particular question because just before writing this column, as I relaxed with a snack, our older son announced he was starting his regular hourlong workout. I must admit that tweaked my conscience — as he huffed and puffed while I ate. Maybe I should take my own advice.

condo queries

Robert M. Meisner

Q. My husband and I are going through a divorce and I have possession of the home. My husband is obligated, under the temporary court order, to pay the condo association assessments. He has failed to do so and the association has begun foreclosure proceedings. Do I need to hire a lawyer against the association and what do you recommend I do?

A. I would first contact your divorce lawyer to ensure that he or she has taken all reasonable steps to ensure that the terms of the temporary order regarding the payment of the association assessments are met. Presumably, your ex-husband should be compelled to pay the back assessments to avoid the incurrance of additional costs and attorney fees by way of the foreclosure.

If that does not occur timely, to the extent that you have the financial means, you should attempt to settle with the association and pursue your husband through the divorce proceedings. Make sure your divorce lawyer has an appreciation of the real estate ramifications of a foreclosure suit and what defenses, if any, you may have with regard to same. You may also wish to consult with a condominium attorney to assist you and your divorce lawyer in this matter.

Robert M. Meisner is a Birmingham attorney specializing in condominiums, real estate and corporate law.

Fixtures to faucets

Elegant accessories for every room

A HOME would not be complete without personalized finishing touches that complement your lifestyle.

Do you prefer an American contemporary style — where soft lines, rounded shapes and tender pastel colors are characteristics of comfortable and clever furnishings — or a rough-hewn, decorative Southwestern style? Today, there are fixtures to satisfy every furnishing fancy.

Today's lamps are more than reading lights, end-table accessories and picture-window beacons. Many illuminating ideas are available at the flip of a switch and lighting is central in creating a room's style statement.

Lamps by Thomasville ruggedly jut out of lively copper, vivid purple and fiery yellow Indian pots. Bauer's lamps stand erect as torchieres and floor lamps with a granite finish. Fine Arts and Ainsley hand-decorates pickled wood bases in country florals. Harris Lamps unorthodoxly mounts a swirled brass stem to a sculptured base.

GENERAL ELECTRIC offers decorative lighting tips that will spruce up your home in a flash.

"A change in lighting can give almost every room in the house a different look," explains GE's Nancy Christensen.

Track lighting, for instance, usually consisting of one or more wired tracks, can be mounted, suspended or recessed into the wall or ceiling.

"You can create a gallery effect in a hallway by showcasing your favorite art with light," Christensen says. "Mount tracks on the ceiling 2 to 3 feet from the wall at a 30-degree angle from the object you are accenting."

Other ideas include "up-lighting" provided by canister lamps that sit on the floor and create shadows on walls and plants for a theater effect.

Wall washer lamps use reflector bulbs to highlight texture in brick, drapery and stone.

Small, precise lamps rival candles in their ability to shoot out narrow beams that create a pool of light on a place setting or floral arrangement.

FLUORESCENT VALENCE lighting exudes "up and down" light that washes walls and highlights cathedral ceilings.

Another often overlooked but important accessory is the door knob. Baldwin and Valli Columbo specialize in traditional brass doorknobs — hardware that reminds you of its cool elegance every time you enter a room.

If it's more than brass you want, Geurin fits your palm with everything from cherubs to dolphin heads.

Gainsborough's old-fashioned porcelain knobs remind you of coming home to Grandma's, while Hewi satisfied your wild side with brightly colored, plastic hardware, such as doorknobs, coat hooks and towel bars.

If you get turned on by faucets, consider Auburn Brass, specialists in hand-painted sinks and faucets. Or, coordinate your entire bathroom with Cheryl Wayne, from the faucet atop the carved marble pedestal sink to the door hardware. American Olean and Kohler are full-line manufacturers who offer contemporary plumbing accessories.

People are really going back to clear, basic styles. White is a very popular color for fixtures.

It's part of a lighter color scheme that tends to open up a room, plus its versatility affords consumers the ability to easily change a room's furnishings and style without having to worry about changing the fixtures.

OLD-FASHIONED, WHITE lever and cross handles are a popular style, available from manufacturers like Chicago, Eljer and Epic.

Epic also offers a fantastic five-year warranty on its merchandise and is a source for colored fixtures, including reds, yellows and almonds.

Grohe specializes in shower hardware, from personal showers (the ones that have the hand-held nozzles) to body showers.

With help from your neighborhood plumber, you can customize your own shower system by installing multiple nozzles from the floor, wall and ceiling. Try waking up every morning under two big champagne shower heads and side body sprays!

Everyone loves a fireplace, but when it's not in use, it can turn into a dark hole in the middle of your room.

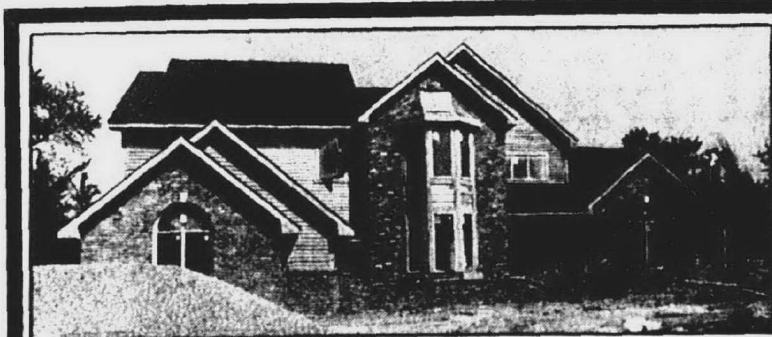

Try stretching a fabric fire-guard or one with a brass frame in front of the opening (remember to remove any flammable materials when the fireplace is in use).

Or frame the fireplace with panels of mirrors, marble tiles or terracotta, depending on your decor.

Now that you have framed your opening, place a piece of fine art there.

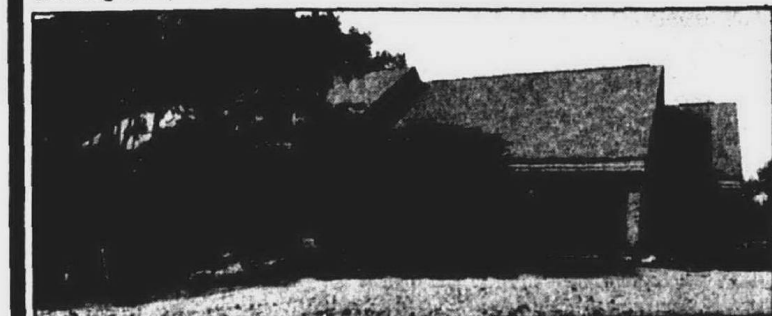

A somewhat unconventional, definitely off-season idea is to create a mini wine cellar. Raised panel fireplace facades can be softened with a bouquet of wild flowers in a solid-color ceramic container, then complemented with stenciling around the facade.

Paying special attention to fixtures will definitely bring a smile to the corners of your room.

Sable Pointe's exterior materials, color selections and rich detailing complement the community's forest green backdrop.

Sable Pointe nestles in woody setting

"Spectacular" is how many guests described the premiere of Sable Pointe's homes at its gala opening party. The community of 19-single-family homes located west of Orchard Lake Road on Green Road in West Bloomfield reflects the developer's meticulous attention to detail.

"Nothing was left to chance," noted Larry Cohen, partner of Nosan/Cohen Associates. "We spent months in planning to insure that the site plan and architecture work in harmony to take full advantage of the heavily wooded and naturally sloping site. In fact, more than half of the homesites offer an additional walk-out level to the woods and park area."

Sable Pointe's elegant, contemporary exterior seems a natural extension of the wooded site. Distinctive circular shaped windows, textured hip roofs and very crisp detailing are expected to draw affluent moveup buyers, especially those seeking more privacy and exclusivity than larger developments.

THE OPEN INTERIORS were also designed to bring the spectacular views inside by the use of dramatic volume vaulted ceilings, loft balconies and plenty of glass.

"We really focused on the first floor master-bedroom suites," said Cohen. "Today's home buyers want glamour and enchantment in their master suite. It's the place in which they seek refuge from the stresses of modern life. When luxury buyers are realizing the castle of their dreams, they want to live beautifully. These buyers will fulfill their fantasies at Sable Pointe."

Three ranch and two-story models from 2,400 to 3,200 square feet are available from $269,500. Custom finished walk-out levels are also available. Furnished models are open daily and weekends from noon to 6 p.m. Closed Thursday. Call 682-6080 for information.
