Parking lot may cause lawsuit

Plymouth will seek a court order to close a parking lot unlawfully in use at Stahl Manufacturing on Junction unless the company submits site plans for the lot by Friday, according to city manager Henry Graper.

City officials say they're tired of Stahl's foot-dragging on the issue and dealing with complaints from residential neighbors about noise, traffic, litter and drainage problems. A Stahl executive said Tuesday he's been assured by a consultant working on the project that site plans will be submitted to the city engineering department by Friday. "A completed site plan will be done," said Roland R. Lartigue, executive vice president and general manager for Stahl.

An inattentive management, since replaced, and confusion with a contractor were cited by Lartigue as reasons why the parking lot went in without site plan approval.

THAT APPROVAL process strives to preserve the rights of surrounding property owners plus community building standards and aesthetics.

Mayor Karl Gansler II defended the patience of city administrators in giving Stahl more than 21/2

Monument for veterans is approved

The city commission has approved the placing of a memorial to local veterans of the Korean and Vietnam conflicts, especially those killed in action, next to the Plymouth Rock memorial near Kellogg Park.

A non-profit group of veterans, relatives of soldiers killed in combat and community residents proposed the memorial and now will work toward raising the $6,000 needed to construct the 6-by-11 foot granite structure.

"We're very, very pleased. We knew the city was reasonable and very caring of its people," said Cindy O'Day, a spokeswoman for Plymouth Vietnam Veterans Association.

The city commission authorized a separate Vietnam/Korean memorial even though a couple of residents urged consolidation with other war memorials in the city.

The PVVA has filed its incorporation papers and soon will secure a post office box to receive donations, O'Day said.

The major fund-raising thrust will be a '50s dance and a banquet featuring a nationally prominent speaker on successive nights to be determined.

The PVVA is trying to line up Jan Scruggs, a force behind the national Vietnam memorial in Washington, D.C., O'Day said.

Schools concerned about tax breaks

By Diane Gale staff writer

Tax abatements affect Plymouth-Canton's school budget, and board members want local governments to exercise caution before granting tax breaks.

They recognize government officials are acting legally. But they don't like what the tax advantage does to the district's bottom line.

Debate surfaced when Ford Motor Co. asked Plymouth Township for a tax abatement on $4.7 million in improvements on machinery and equipment at its Sheldon Road plant. The township awarded an abatement on $6.6 million for the same project 21/2 years ago.

PLYMOUTH-CANTON is an in-formula school district. That means it receives state membership aid and shouldn't be directly affected by tax abatements, which allow a 50-

"The theory was it (tax abatements) wouldn't penalize an in-formula school district, because it's not counted (in the formula)," said Raymond Hoedel, associate superintendent for business.

The district is losing $5 million in state aid this year, he said.

"They took away most of the state membership aid this year, and next year we receive zero," said Hoedel, adding that in the future the district will rely "almost entirely" on local

"Our real issue is with the law itself and how governments still have the power to say OK," said Swartzwelter.

Earlier this week a letter was being drafted for Plymouth Township officials by Artley. He was unsure if it would be sent to Canton Township and the city of Plymouth, which are included in the district.

"Tax abatements are theorized as being good for the community by bringing business to the communities," said Artley. "It's not an anti-business stance, we're very months to submit site plans

"I think we've tried to do this in a reasonable manner," Gansler said. "We're pretty fair in our dealings with everybody in Plymouth. This is one of those instances our normal fairness is being taken advantage of.'

Gansler was a little more blunt in his assessment of Stahl to several neighbors of Stahl who showed up at Monday's city commission meeting with their usual litany of complaints.

'They're stomping on people,' Gansler said.

STAHL SUBMITTED plans earli- By Doug Funke er this week for interior renovations under way inside the factory also without benefit of permit. The city quickly rejected those plans because they didn't show enough detail.

City attorney Ron Lowe conceded that it may be difficult proving irreparable harm to neighboring property owners in seeking an injunction against Stahl.

Stahl has operated a plant in Plymouth for more than 40 years, city officials said. The business was sold last year to Columbus Auto Parts.

Since the sale, the number of employees in Plymouth has nearly doubled to about 400 with a consolidation of operations.

The plant manufactures automotive components like muffler hanger brackets, shift levers and turn indicators.

Stahl has paid property taxes of nearly $65,500 during the past year ranking it eighth among all business entities in the city.

It's a philosophical stance, because the reality is that they will probably continue (to award abatements)," said David Artley, board president.

Commissioner Kenyon grew up with public service

staff writer

His name is Ralph J. Kenyon, but everyone calls him by his middle name, Jack.

Kenyon, who grew up in the Plymouth community, earned two degrees from the University of Michigan, made several stops around the country during a career with Ford Motor Co., returned to his hometown and won election to two terms on the city commission, recently was appointed to fill a vacancy on the commission. Community involvement is nothing new for Kenyon, 63, who retired from Ford earlier this spring. He's served on the Plymouth District Library Board and on the city's Zoning Board of Appeals and Economic Development Corporation.

YEARS AGO, in the 1940s, one of the things the high school civics class did was, in quotes, run the city for a day. I was city manager for the day," Kenyon said.

"My folks were always interested in the community and church and instilled in us the importance of if not contributing at least don't diminish the community.'

The princely sum of $10 per meeting isn't what drew Kenyon back to the commission table when nominated by Mayor Karl Gansler II.

Kenyon likened his interest in public service to a slogan used by the University of Michigan during a recent fund-raising drive.

"I've drunk from a lot of wells I haven't dug . . . but I can dig my own well and let people drink from that," he said. "My well is the city."

AWARENESS OF the inner workings of government and direct participation in the decision-making process are especially rewarding aspects of serving on the commission, Kenyon said.

But things aren't always rosy.

'Compromise is a little hard for me, which means I'm probably not a true politician," he said. "The ability to boil complex questions into black/ white, yes/no is hard."

It isn't always easy dealing with everyone who shows up at a commission meeting either, Kenyon added.

'One has to have a certain amount of thickness to the hide," he said.

And understanding.

"This person has the right, even the responsibility . . . to come up and sound off," he said.

KENYON'S FRIENDS and admirers believe he has the perfect temperament for the job. Jack Wilcox used such words as trustworthy, conscientious and forthright to describe Kenyon. Gansler cited Kenyon's experience in naming him to the commission earlier this month.

The biggest challenge facing Plymouth, in Kenyon's view, is providing current levels of services in a city that has grown virtually to its limits.

"Because we're a mature community and the tax base isn't increasing physically like it is in the township and because the tax base is substantially residential rather than industrial, we're in the beginning stages of facing a real financial pinch," he said.

The last of the slide-rule generation met high tech in the classroom last week when Centennial Educational Park held its annual open house for parents of high school students.

Parents attended six 15-minute sessions of the classes in which their offspring are enrolled. The consensus among those interviewed was that high school isn't what it used to be. "The subjects are more progressive because the world is more progressive," said Kathy Page, who has two children at CEP. "Students are more worldly than we ever

THERE WAS general agreement that CEP students get a high-quality education, though some people expressed surprise over the content of some of the classes.

"I just came from human relations. We didn't have classes like that," Sandi Hogue said. The class covers "everything from siblings to sex." she said.

A man who Canton police believe tried to rob the same clerk in the same gas station for the third time within three days was arrested Wednesday afternoon.

According to Dave Boljesic, Canton police spokesman, the man may be responsible for three additional robberies reported in 48 hours early this week. A total of $600 was taken in five of the robberies.

The latest attempt to rob the Clark station at Ford and Sheldon occurred shortly after 3 p.m. Wednesday when a man with his hands in his pockets entered the station and approached the clerk.

"Let's do it again," the man said, according to Boljesic.

The clerk told police the man was the same person who robbed the station twice on Monday. The cashier managed to stall the man until another employee came out of the station's back room. The man fled in a rusty, white, two-door Lincoln.

One mile from the gas station, at Warren and Lilly, a Canton patrol officer spotted a car matching the description of the older model Lincoln. He arrested its passenger, a 26-yearold Canton man, and driver, a 27year-old Livonia woman.

Police said the man matches the description from three additional Kool Milds.

the woman's role in the other robberies, according to Boljesic. Police expect the pair will be arraigned later this week

In four of the cases, the robber said he had a gun, but one was never seen. A knife was brandished in another robbery, according to a Clark station cashier

For that cashier, Wednesday's incident was almost a replay of Monday's incidents

AT 3 P.M Monday, a man walked into the Clark station, approached the counter and asked for a pack of Kool Milds cigarettes. He said he had a gun and ordered the cashier to open the register.

'The victim said: 'I want to see the gun.'" Boljesic said. "The suspect's tone became more serious and the victim opened the register and gave the money to the suspect."

However, a weapon was not seen by the cashier. The man fled with $92

Six hours later, at 9:45 p.m., the same station was hit by the same man.

"He pulled out a knife and said, 'The same routine as last time,' ' Boljesic said.

The cashier opened the drawer and turned over the $101. Before the man left, he demanded a pack of walked into the Quik Pik at Joy near I-275, picked up a 12-pack of beer and waited at the counter until other customers left the store, Boljesic said

When the store cleared, he kept his hand in his pocket, approached the clerk, said he had a gun in his pocket and kept his hand there as though he were holding a weapon.

He ordered the cashier to hand over the cash register money. Taking some $200, he left through the front door carrying two 12 packs of beer.

Seven hours later, at 4:15 a.m. the Union 76 station at Haggerty and Ford was robbed by a man fitting basically the same description as the man who committed the first robbery, police said.

The man entered the station through the side door, walked to the counter with his hand in his pocket and announced he had a gun. The robber ordered the cashier and a customer into the back room and left with between $120 and $150.

At 5:12 p.m. Tuesday, a man robbed the clerk at the Sheldon Mini Mart, Sheldon at Warren, of $100. At first he asked for change, then put his hand in his pocket, indicated that he had a gun and demanded money, Boljesic said.

Pursell listed as environment foe gan is one of the "most dangerous anti-environmental legislators' seeking re-election this year, according to a lobbying group pushing environmental issues

4A(P)

Pursell, however, said the action was "a politically motivated cheap shot designed to grab headlines.

Environmental Action named Pursell, R-Plymouth, to its "Dirty Dozen" list of members of the Senate and House whose votes, the organization said, were detrimental to the cleanliness of the air, land and water

"Time and again, the Dirty Dozen have shown that their priority is to protect industry, rather than to protect our air, our water and our land." said Ruth Calan, executive director of Environmental Action. "Their actions against the environment represent a real and present danger to the nation's health and our very survival.

Environmental Action PAC has endorsed state Sen. Lana Pollack, D- the nuclear industry liable for nucle-

AP - Rep. Carl Pursell of Michi- Ann Arbor. in her bid to unseat Pursell

> "I have an outstanding record in terms of protecting our environment and I resent inaccurate attempts to paint it any other way." Pursell said, n a prepared statement

The organization used 14 votes in the House and 14 votes in the Senate as a basis for selecting lawmakers for the list.

It also considered leadership in anti-environmental fights, power in the members' house of Congress, the extent of environmental problems in the members' district and acceptance of campaign contributions from organizations Environmental Action believes are anti-environment.

'Carl Pursell's district around Ann Arbor has plenty of environmental problems, but throughout his six terms in Congress, Pursell has voted wrongly on critical issues," Environmental Action said.

The organization cited Pursell's votes in this session of Congress against measures that would "hold ar accidents.

Environmental Action criticized Pursell for votes on clean water funding and for not co-sponsoring a bill that would strengthen controls on vehicle emissions.

Pursell, however, called the ranking system "extremely subjective and suspect.

"While in Congress, I have voted in favor of the Clean Water Act five times and would have voted in favor of it a sixth time if the funding level wasn't $2 billion out of line during a budget crisis.

Pursell received $12,600 from January 1987 through March 1988 from political action committees associated with companies and industries opposing strengthening the Clean Air Act, which sets standards regarding pollution of the atmosphere

Pursell also was criticized by the organization for sending a newsletter asking his constituents to rank public issues but leaving out the environment as one of the options. They have gone beyond a strict voting analysis, to include questions of whether a member of congress signed certain letters or co-sponsored certain pieces of legislation."

Pursell said his environmental record included co-sponsorship of the Michigan Wilderness Bill, support for wilderness protection in other states, co-chairmanship of the Conference of Great Lakes Congressmen and support for Superfund toxic waste cleanup efforts. As a state senator, Pursell authored Michigan's Resource Recovery Act, cleaning state lakes and earning the Environmental Legislator of the Year Award from the Environmental Protection Agency in 1976.

2nd Hulbert murder trial begins

By Peggy Aulino staff writer

Steven Stamper is a non-violent person who was betrayed by his best friend. Christopher Machacek, as both were questioned about the shooting death of a 13-year-old Canton Township girl in January of 1987. That's the theory defense attorney Jeffrey Strouss offered the jury at the opening of Stamper's first-degree murder trial in circuit court Monday.

Stamper. 18, faces life imprisonment if convicted of the murder of Mary Anne Hulbert, 13, whose body was found by hunters in a Superior Township woods on Jan. 7, 1987. Machacek, who was tried separately, was found guilty of first-degree murder in the same Ann Arbor courtroom last week.

The defendants have each admitted being at the scene but accused the other of firing the fatal shots. The youths, both of whom lived in Ypsilanti Township, were 16 at the time of Hulbert's death but are being tried as adults

Strouss said he is "not challenging the fact that Steve Stamper was there." but he said it was Machacek who had the motive for the killing. Hulbert's mother and two of her friends testified Tuesday that the victim believed she was pregnant by Machacek

IN A TAPED statement to investigators. Stamper said he thought Machacek was going to fire shots in hopes of scaring Hulbert into having a miscarriage. An autopsy showed Hulbert was mistaken in her belief that she was pregnant.

Assistant Washtenaw County Prosecutor Robert Cooper said "there's nothing inconsistent" with charging Stamper with murder even though Cooper contended during the first trial that Machacek had the motive for the shooting.

'That doesn't mean that Steven Stamper did not shoot her," Cooper said. "We can't prove who absolutely shot her. All we have is the benefit of there. We are left with the task of examining how she was shot and by whom she was shot." He said even if Stamper did not do the shooting, he is responsible because he provided the weapon and ammunition as well as the transportation when the two picked up Hulbert on Dec. 30, 1986 and brought her to the site near Berry and Ford roads where she was killed.

THE VICTIM'S mother, Deborah Hulbert, cried intermittently as she testified on Tuesday and Wednesday. She described being "panicked" when she found out her daughter was last seen with the two defendants because, she said, "I didn't trust Steve and Chris." Mary Anne Hulbert had dated both boys at different times in 1986

Several law enforcement officials were called to testify, as they had been earlier this month during Machacek's trial. A firearms expert said Stamper's .22-caliber semiautomatic rifle could have been "and probably was" the weapon used in the Hulbert shooting. A county deputy medical examiner listed the points of entry of Hulbert's seven bullet wounds and said the bullet that went through both of her lungs and her heart is the one that caused her death.

Area schools fighting war against illiteracy

By Mary Rodrique staff writer

An estimated 20 percent of all adults in Michigan read below the fifth-grade level, which makes them functionally illiterate.

Consider that by 1990, three out of every four jobs will require training beyond the high school level, and the scope of the problem begins to emerge.

Amidst this educational crisis, several school districts and agencies are developing strategies to attack the dropout problem. Extensive programs are in place in many western Wayne County school districts.

'People are very sensitive about illiteracy. We do everything we can to not make this a labeled program," said John Avolio, assistant superintendent of community services for Redford Union Schools, which offers a comprehensive adult education program in tandem with Livonia and South Redford schools.

classes in the system, he said.

The biggest problem is that they think they're going to learn to read in two months. To keep them enthusiastic and patient, we do everything we possibly can," said Avolio.

That includes offering the classes free, both day and evening, and providing free child care where possi-

"WE OFFER a tremendous number of reading and math classes," he said.

Avolio considers a person functionally illiterate if he or she is unable to read well enough to obtain a job. Programs are offered for every reading level, and vocational and academic counseling is offered.

Other community education programs include preparation for a GED high school equivalency diploma, English for the foreign born, vocational training and high school completion.

We have cluster age groups, The program does everything it somewhere around 18 to 24, then it can to attract new adult students clusters from about 27 to 35. From and keep those already enrolled in 18 to 40, they need a job and they need the skills necessary to keep it," he said.

Classes are held at Pearson, Redford Union High, Thurston High in the South Redford district and the Whitman Center in Livonia.

"We have what we call Academic Personal and Career Assessment program where we give every adult personal counseling to see where skills are and get them enrolled in appropriate classes," said James Newman, principal of the Whitman Center, on West Chicago between Merriman and Farmington roads.

Vocational training includes classes in the allied health, business, computer, cosmetology and automotive fields.

Those eligible to attend free include anyone over 16 years of age without a high school diploma, anyone with a GED certificate, and recent high school graduates under age 20. For all others, there is tuition.

"Our main emphasis is to maintain strong academic and literacy skills," said Newman. "We have 2,000 students annually - we proba-bly see 800 to 900 in the high school completion program, another 500 to 800 in the adult basic education program and English as a second language, and probably 200 to 250 GED students.

THE WHITMAN Center follows up on students progress one year after completion of the GED and high school diploma programs.

'We're still making calls on the figures for 1987 but the results are rather impressive," he said. "A number are employed or at a community college or business school. Once they become comfortable and successful here they go on to other things."

Although several districts are members of the Southeast Michigan Adult and Community Education Marketing Committee; a regional group formed to fight illiteracy, each district uses its own marketing tools.

We do our own advertising and recruiting on cable TV, by mail and by phone calls," Newman said.

Garden City Schools adult education program deals with 40 students per semester who read below an Cheryl Houser, spokeswoman for the district's community education program.

"We have quite a large recruitment staff who try different approaches, including going door to door and (placing) announcements on cable television," she said.

Classes are held in the Cambridge Center, behind Garden City High School off Middlebelt between Warren and Ford roads.

"We also offer classes at the senior centers - Garden Towers, Berwyn Center and Maplewood. The seniors are so proud of what they accomplish.

Plymouth Canton Community Schools distribute community education pamphlets to 30,000 homes in the district.

"I'm hesitant to call it a program for dropouts," said Sharon Strean. assistant director of the program. 'It's really a combination - for dropouts and just those who want to learn.

In one school year, the district registers 2,500 to 3,000 classes. Some eighth grade level, according to students may take a single class, others a full academic load, she said.

Strean said one of the program's proudest points is its adult basic education program, which operates with over 70 adult volunteer reading tutors, ensuring students both class and private tutor time.

THE DISTRICT recently trained volunteer tutors to work with foreign-born students enrolled in the English-as-a-second-language classes. "It's extremely successful.

Strean said.

Wayne Westland Schools promotes two basic programs to fight drop outs and illiteracy, according to district spokesman Tom Svitkovich. "Our alternative education program is geared toward junior high and high school students identified at risk," he said

The adult education program puts those students in smaller classrooms, with teachers in constant contact with parents

They could continue in the alternative program or return to regular education." said Svitkovich of the program created in 1963.

The other emphasis is our vocational program at the William D Ford Vocation Technical Center which offers 21 programs from culinary arts to welding geared to adult learners," he said

Classes run from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. weekdays and Saturday Approximately 1,700 students attend classes at the center

The district also has its own build ing, the Cherry Hill Adult Center, for high school completion. GED courses and adult basic education courses

"Our philosophy is to offer some thing for every age group. Svitkovich said "We have an extensive program for senior citizens and an extensive preschool program at the Wilson Center There isn't much we don't provide.

A regional campaign to stamp out illiteracy dubbed Discover Yourself" features a phone hotline staffed by professionals who will refer callers to appropriate school districts. The number is 1-800-537-2836. The campaign continues through the end of September.

It used to be called a brontosaurus. Nowadays we know it as apatosaurus.

Except perhaps for the approximately 60 million adults nationwide who are functionally illiterate. There is a good chance they have never heard of either.

On Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Briarwod Mall, along with the Washtenaw Literacy Council will present Literacy Day at Briarwood, as part of Michigan Literacy Action Month.

"Our goal is to help make illiteracy as extinct as the brontosaurus. Or the apatosaurus. Or whatever," said Karen Fox, marketing director of Briarwood Mall.

To help make the point, the sponsors have invited Baby Dino to participate in the event. Baby Dino is a 10-foot-long replica of a baby apatosaurus. Specially designed, simulated skin make him appear lifelike. Baby Dino is on loan from the Im-

Trash burning plans criticized

By Wayne Peal staff writer

Incineration is a major part of Wayne County's newly-proposed master plan for solid waste disposal. But one area group is calling trash burning a major health hazard.

Detroit-area members of the National Lawyers Guild will hold a daylong seminar on incinerator dangers Saturday at the Wayne County Intermediate Schools auditorium.

While the lawyers' guild seeks to stop development of the controversial Detroit incinerator, group mem-

'It's not just Detroit. We find that Detroit and Wayne County aren't doing enough upstream — to reduce waste - before it even gets to the incinerator.' - Tom Stephens National Lawyers Guild

While state Rep. James Kosteva, pers also express concerns over the possibility of new trash burners in other Wayne County communities.

"It's not just Detroit," guild spokesman Tom Stephens said. "We find that Detroit and Wayne County aren't doing enough upstream - to reduce waste - before it even gets to the incinerator."

Many kinds of common household waste, including batteries and other products, endanger the environment by releasing dangerous chemicals into the atmosphere as they are burned, Stephens said.

"THERE'S A concern about the kind of waste being burned," he said. "We definitely don't want to see batteries going in there.'

Because county landfill space is growing scarce, area communities could begin to rely more heavily on incinerators - burning waste materials before sending them to landfills to save space.

Those who drafted the county master plan said that while incinerators were part of the plan, other elements were equally important.

"What we have is a three-legged process," Mack said. "It includes (limited use of) landfills, incineration and recycling."

The plan leaves it to communities to develop their own waste reduction and disposal systems, including incinerators. It would ban county landfill use to any community that fails to develop a local plan.

That restriction, Mack said, puts pressure on communities to reduce the amount of "upstream" waste described by Stephens.

"We are doing something about re-ducing waste," Mack said.

THE COUNTY master plan also calls for a new state law providing for safe disposal of batteries and other dangerous household items.

D-Canton Township, has drafted legislation he said it would be difficult to pass, at least at this point.

'Education is the key," Kosteva said. "I'm not sure how much support I'd get if I ran it up the flag pole right now. But, with education, I'm sure it would have a good chance of passing.

Kosteva toured European waste disposal plants last fall. Incineration, he said, is a viable option as long as hazardous waste is removed from the system.

"Incinceration is imperfect but it's one of a number of necessary steps," he said

Westland and Garden City currently burn waste. Both communities are members of the Central Wayne County Sanitation Authority. The five-community group operates an incinerator in Dearborn Heights.

That incinerator recently reopened after being shut due to federal Environmental Protetion Agency concerns.

To the north, the South Oakland County Incincerator Authority (SO-CIA) incinerator in Madison Heights was recently shut down by the state. Oakland County Commissioners are debating whether to take control of the incinerator .

Control remains a key-issue for Stephens and other members of the lawyers guild. Experience with the Detroit incinerator has left them skeptical of government safety assurances.

"The question is, is the public really being served here?" he said.

The seminar will be held 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday at the Wayne Intermediate Schools Auditori-um, 33500 Van Born, Wayne. There is no admission charge. Events will be held throughout the day. Information is available by calling Stephens at 567-6165.

Consumer group endorses bonds

A consumer advocacy group has endorsed Michigan's two proposed environmental bonds.

The Public Interest Research Group in Michigan announced it would conduct a door-to-door and telephone campaign on the bond issue's behalf.

Members of the Ann Arbor-based rency also said they would be visitg the worst toxic waste site in each of the state's 83 counties on the bond issue's behalf.

Voters will be asked to approve voters will be asked to approve $660 million in environmental pro-tection bonds on the Nov. 8 election ballot. The issue will appear as state Proposal C. At least $425 million of that figure would be used to clean Michigan's 1,778 toxic waste sites, a PIRGIM spokesman said.

Libertarians: Don't need state university system

KEY State aid would end. Tuition would rise. U-M probably would be smaller, with lower quality departments being shut down. 'My view would be to push the issue of autonomy," said Salvette, a U-M graduate with a bachelor's degree in economics. "It's very important for the universities to do their own thing. The university has to be nimble enough to react to the market. To do that it has to be autonomous.'

SALVETTE OF Bloomfield Hills is chief financial officer of Stahl Manufacturing Co., an automotive firm in Detroit. He is one of several Oakland County residents fighting uphill battles against Republicans and Democrats for seats on three state university boards and the state Board of Education.

In an interview, Salvette came down hard on Gov. James J. Blanchard's "Big Brother strong-arm tactics" in forcing university boards to reduce tuition hikes below 10 percent Like liberals, Libertarians resist governmental intrusion in human rights, advocating repeal of laws restricting drug, alcohol, gambling and "victimless" sex activities.

Like conservatives, they advocate repeal of the income tax, the draft, the Federal Reserve System, the Federal Aviation Administration, the Food and Drug Administration virtually all regulatory agencies. Libertarians were on parade this week as the presidential candidate, former Texas Congressman Ron Paul, addressed the Economic Club of Detroit. "Prohibition did not work for alcohol. It can't work and is not working for drugs," said Paul, a Houston obstetrician.

"TUITION IS a user fee," hence good to Libertarians, said Virginia Cropsey, attorney from Sterling Heights and state Board of Education nominee.

If elected, she would challenge the "assumption that every middle class child shall complete college . . . Col-lege is too much 'something for everybody.' "You'll see a lot more training by corporations," Cropsey predicted. That would leave universities free to educate "generic thinkers" and drop 'computer tech-y kinds of things."

Cropsey would use the state board Riverside High teacher who earned as a forum to sell legislators the voucher idea - sending a check to parents and letting them send their kids to any school - government or private - they choose.

Said Salvette: "I'm saying you don't need a state university system. A basic Libertarian premise is that it's not the function of government to operate schools."

'My view would be to push the issue of autonomy. It's very important for the universities to do their own thing. The university has to be nimble enough to react to the market. To do that it has to be autonomous.'

"Right now," he said, "Wayne has a 'speak' test for all foreign instructors to demonstrate they can speak English. I'd go a step further and have a 'teach' test - to evaluate their teaching."

IF ELECTED, Szabla probably would have to leave his WSU job for conflict-of-interest reasons and is willing to do so.

But Libertarians have no illusions about toppling Democrats and Republicans from office - just making a dent in public thinking and building a base for the future.

In 1982 Dick Jacobs gathered some 15,000 votes - half of 1 percent of the 3 million cast - for governor. Jacobs this year is running for the U.S. Senate.

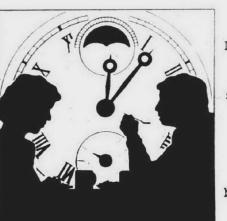

The party didn't have a 1986 gubernatorial candidate.

Dynamic lakes always changing

Michigan is indeed a water wond erland, not only because of the surrounding Great Lakes, but because of many inland lakes that dot the landscape.

Ten thousand years ago, Michigan was covered by a mile-thick layer of ice known as a glacier. Although there were three prior glaciers, the last one was most influential in shaping our landscape today.

As the glacier grew and moved south, it brought rocks and debris from farther north. When the ice melted and the glacier receded, this collected debris was deposited and sculpted into the hills, valleys, plains and lakes of Michigan.

or lakes because it was at one time the bottom of a large lake. This ancient glacial lake extended westward and northward into southeastern Oakland County, northwestern Wayne County and surrounding areas

The rolling land north and west of this lake bottom lake evolved natu-DETROIT PROPER has few hills rally. Many lakes were formed in the valleys - far more than we see today. A lake is not stagnant; it is a dynamic area.

Plants and animals adapt to live in special areas where they can find food and shelter on land. The same principle is true in a lake.

Certain plants, like the cattail, grow only around the edge of a lake where the water is shallow. Other plants, like the water lily, can take root in deeper water and extend their leaves and flowers to the surface.

LIGHT IS a critical factor in the distribution of aquatic plants. Deep areas have no plant growth and thus do not harbor certain kinds of animals. Most aquatic animals will be found where plants are because that is where they can find food.

Through the years, plants and animals in lakes die and fall to the bottom

Leaves from surrounding trees fall into the lake and eventually to the bottom. Over a long period of time, the bottom of the lake begins to rise. More plants can grow because they are closer to the light.

More plants growing means that more are dying and building up the bottom. In time, the entire lake is filled in

It will be a wet meadow area for a while. But when enough soil has been produced, shrubs, trees and eventually a forest will grow where once was a lake.

Rep. Bill Van Regenmorter, R-Jenison, launched a statewide campaign to increase public awareness of Proposal B, which has to compete for attention with more controversial issues on the election ballot. Proposal A would ban statefunded abortions for poor women. Proposals C and D two propose selling a total of $800 million in bonds for environmental cleanup and recreation, respectively. The constitution currently includes a number of rights for criminal defendants, and I think that's appropriate. But it provides absolutely no rights for the people probably most impacted by crimes victims," Van Regenmorter said.

If the issue is approved by the public Nov. 8, the constitution would provide victims with rights such as protection from the accused during the criminal justice process; notification of court proceedings; information about the conviction, sentencing, imprisonment and release of the suspect; and restitution.

The proposition also asks that convicted criminals be fined to help finance victims' rights. Van Regenmorter said if the proposal passes, he will introduce legislation. detailing the fines, which he hasn't determined but may be $5 for misdemeanors per conviction and $10 for felonies.

Bill seeks substance-free roommates for students

- University administrators say a bill requiring them to accommodate student requests for roommates who don't smoke, drink or use drugs may not work begause of students' reluctance to admit their habits.

The legislation would require universities to provide application forms that allow students to indicate whether they want roommates who also prefer drugtree, alcohol-free and smoke-free rooms.

The schools would base housing assignments on those preferences under the bill announced Friday by Rep. David Honigman, R-West Bloomfield.

STUDENTS WHO want to smoke or drink beer in their dorm rooms will still be able to do so," Honigman said "This is freedom of choice legislation.

Honigman said he believes many students feel pressured into drinking or taking drugs if their immediate

This presents a real problem, not only for impressionable young people who can too easily get caught up in the alcohol and drug scene, but especially for recovering alcoholics and drug addicts, who need to have a refuge from those temptations," he said.

If the bill becomes law, students who failed to comply with their statements could be transferred to another room

The bill also would require colleges and universities to make substance abuse programs available to students and employees and to offer orientation programs to help educate students and employees about substance abuse

Many state schools already ask students who will be living in residence halls if they smoke and if they would object to living with a smoker, but some administrators questioned whether the measure would be enforceable if passed by the Legislature.

Housing applications at Northern Michigan University ask students if they would mind living with someone who smokes or drinks alcoholic beverages.

"THOSE ARE our main two considerations when determining roommates," said Debbie Rice, assistant to the housing clerk at the Marquette school. "And if we receive an application from a non-smoker who drinks, we try to find another person who is a non-smoker who drinks

At Saginaw Valley State University, students are asked about smoking, but not drinking or drugs, said Brian Gano, assistant director of housing.

'(Using drugs) is illegal, so I don't think they'd admit That's like saying 'Do you go out and rob stores periodically?" he said. "It's incriminating information.

"My kid using drugs? No way. . .

At Catherine McAuley Health Center's Chemical Dependency Program we've heard it over and over again. Alcohol and drug abuse only happens to someone else's kid. Well, it's time you heard the truth: no one is immune.

We suggest you take the following test to help you see if your child may have a problem. While it isn't always easy to separate typical adolescent behavior from chemically induced behavior, most teenager alcoholics and drug abusers exhibit many of the following signs.

Check the symptoms you see in your child. Remember. these can develop over a period of many months. If you observe some of the following or if you know something isn't right with your child, we recommend you take action.

School

-] Skips classes, whole days or drops out
- Drop in grades
- Drug-related graffiti on notebooks, papers

Behavior

- Has money but no job
- Extreme mood swings (euphoria, depression, hostility, oversensitivity)
-] Talks about suicide, spirit world, devil
- Loses interest in hobbies or sports
- Drastic change of friends

Physical Evidence

- Displays obvious drunkenness or red eyes, drooping lids, "thick" voice
- Paraphernalia among belongings such as pipes, roach clips, cigarette papers, glass vials, film containers or seeds. □ Increased or frequent use of eye drops

Family Impact

-] Parents argue more about child's behavior
- □ Home situation becomes increasingly angry and volatile
- Child's moods determine the mood of the family Doesn't keep curfews

There is hope. You may have taken the first step already by recognizing there is a problem. Call 572-4308 now for an adolescent assessment. Let's work together to beat drug abuse.

Abortion foes place money before emotion

AP - Do Michigan voters really Tax-Funded Abortions, said the top care about money above all else?

Is the phrase "tax dollars" so emotion-packed that voters will remember that argument above all others when they cast their Nov. 8 ballots on Proposal A?

Leaders of the anti-abortion movement are counting on it.

They surprised some campaignwatchers recently by unveiling mild, undramatic television commercials, the first of the referendum drive. They include no footage of aborted fetuses, no lectures on the sanctity of life, nothing that could arouse charges of extremism.

The campaign clearly has decided it doesn't have to preach to the converted, since people who believe all abortions should be stopped are sure to vote to stop Medicaid-paid abortions.

Barbara Listing, the president of priorities are to convert the undecided and make sure the converted know to vote "yes" to trigger a new law ending welfare abortions unless the mother's life is in danger.

The committee's ad campaign is directed at people who may agree with or have mixed feelings about a woman's right to an abortion but who feel frustrated by a lack of control over their tax dollars - a segment of the electorate that may be as large as "10 to 15 to 18 percent," according to Listing.

WE DON'T get many chances to decide how our tax money's spent," says a character in one of the ads.

The strategy seems be supported by results of a poll conducted in July for the Detroit Free Press and WXYZ-TV.

It showed voters contacted wanted Right to Life of Michigan who's to scrap the Medicaid abortion subsiheading the ballot campaign signifi- dies by a margin of roughly 2-to-1. cantly named Committee To End And some respondents elaborated, telling the pollsters they think their taxes are too high.

"We're really looking at who should pay for elective abortions," Listing said.

The people running the other side of the campaign now have to counter that argument by convincing voters their decision is not as simple as that and criticize the opposition's strategy as deceptive.

The People's Campaign for Choice said it's likely that if Proposal A passes Michigan will spend more money on welfare recipients, not less.

Currently, state government picks up the tab for about 18,600 abortions year, at a cost of roughly $5.8 mil-

A poor woman's abortion usually costs the state a little more than $300.

Department of Social Services Director C. Patrick Babcock, who is pro-choice, has estimated the state spends about $7,070 on the first two years of care for each baby born to a welfare mother

THERE'S NO way to predict whether women on welfare would be more careful about getting pregnant, or give up more children to adoption or find other ways to pay for abortions or find back-alley abortions scenarios offered by various sides of the dispute.

But Babcock said if voters end abortion benefits and just 20 percent of those fetuses are carried to term by welfare mothers who choose to keep and raise their offspring, taxpayers' bill for a hospital delivery and two years of care for the additional children born in 1989 will be $27.7 million.

Compare that to roughly $58 million, the department's budget for all medical services.

As the campaign began its nineweek countdown, the strongest rhetoric came from the pro-choice camp.

They warned that some indigent women would be forced to choose between paying for an abortion and buying food for their families. They labeled their opposition the "forced childbirth people," and said a vote on whether to pay for abortions for the poor is as ridiculous as a vote on whether to pay for glaucoma treatments for the poor.

And they sounded some long-term alarms.

If Proposal A passes, the prochoice campaign leaders said, Michigan won't just become the 38th state to stop paying for poor women's abortions - it will be the state that provides momentum to the drive to reverse Roe vs. Wade, the 1972 Supreme Court decision legalizing abortion

"Michigan is the first line of de fense for women all over America." said Ben Goddard, a consultant for People's Campaign for Choice who called the referendum critical to "a nationwide battle by the religious right against abortions for all worn-

"MICHIGAN WILL defend the rights women have worked so hard to win." he said.

13A

The challenge for him and the other campaign strategists is to convince Michigan voters, or rather the fraction of undecided on-the-margin voters, to defend the rights of those who rely on government for their medical care, to have abortions included as part of those medical benefits.

And they must convince voters able to pay for their own medical care to vote "no" on Proposal A, that preserving free abortions for the poor will in the long run protect the abortion option for themselves and their daughters.

That's a lot to squeeze into a 30second commercial and not as simple a message as "Not with my tax money

Fall Festival Event needs some fine tuning

HE COMPETITION IS tremendous. Communities are pulling out all the

They are doing everything in their attract - not large auto plants or lean, high tech industries - tourists.

That's right, tourists. Plymouth is just one of many communities throughout southeastern Michigan looking at bringing tourists to the area.

One of the big draws is the Plymouth Fall Festival held earlier this month.

If Fall Festival organizers want to continue this popular event, they may wish to fine tune the festival to make sure it remains an attractive event

The weather for this year's fest was wonderful. The crowds were large and well-fed. Perhaps too well-fed.

SOME PARTICIPANTS went so far as to refer to the event as the Fast Food Festival.

While meals, such as the chicken barbecue and fish fry, are the main attractions, it appears the whole city is overrun with hot dogs, pop and other similar food groups.

In an effort to create some variety, Fall Festival organizers should look at placing some limits on the amount of food sold at the annual event. Working with local groups to come up with some alternatives is in order.

Entertainment also needs an upgrade.

For example, to bring younger people to the festival, a battle of the bands could be conducted on Thursday, one of the slower nights for the festival.

Bigger name entertainment also could be booked to bring in more people and provide participants with some additional activities.

Other suggestions include a full-scale carnival, beer tent or rodeo. Some have even suggested making the fest smaller by returning it to its more picnic-like origins.

Organizers can try a number of appraoches to improve the festival. A tour of other communities' festivals also could provide some options that could be brought back to Plymouth.

The Fall Festival is an important part of the community. And the only way to retain that success is to continually freshen up the festival so it doesn't become stale.

Voter apathy

Electoral system needs a boost

Time will tell if lawmaker keeps faith with history

I WANT YOU to sit down and put your faith cap on. That's right, put it on and make sure it fits real tight. Got it adjusted?Great.

Cause I want you to believe along with me today. I want you to believe along with me that what a congressional press aide told me, indeed, is the truth.

Only time will tell.

But I'm going to go with the peo-ple on this one. I'm going to believe. For a few years now, we've been hearing a public outcry that the media are unfair to those with whom they disagree, that many in the media make up their minds before a story is even written and then twist the facts to suit their "liberal" bias.

Even though I have a tough time seeing much liberalism in today's newsrooms, most of the letters and phone calls I get from the public are chock full of the feeling that the press unfairly expressed that bias.

I heard a lot of that after writing the column about Dan Quayle's nonwar record. Many of those writing or calling were sure I was somehow in collusion with the Kremlin. I never mentioned in the column 'I don't see why he would oppose it.'

> - Paul Russinoff aide to U.S. Rep. Bill Broomfield

RECENTLY, I received a letter accusing U.S. Rep. Bill Broomfield, R-Birmingham, of opposing the construction of a memorial statue commemorating the service of women who served in Vietnam.

Now, I'll admit right out front that Bill Broomfield isn't one of my favorite congressmen. Frankly, I think he should have retired a long time ago. If anything he proves the longheld contention that it's more difficult for a challenger to win a congressional seat than it is to get a seat on the Soviet Politburo.

But the American public generally holds on to incumbent congressmen like babies to mothers. We just won't let go.

But no sooner had I walked to the coffee machine and back than Paul was on the line.

No, the congressman isn't opposed to the statue, he said. A vote was taken in the Senate that passed, with only one vote in opposition. A vote in the House will be coming shortly.

"I don't see why he would oppose it," said Paul.

OTER TURNOUT is a national disgrace. But while we applaud the many groups working to boost voter turnout this election year, we also believe changes need to be made in our electoral system for turnout to increase substantially.

What can be done? For starters, limits should at least be considered for incumbents' terms. Let's face it, unless a major scandal erupts, most incumbents are almost assured near-lifetime return to office if they make it through their first re-election bid.

But why stop there? There's merit in removing party labels, at least for some state and local elections Most of election districts are one-party districts. George Washington probably couldn't get elected as a Democrat in most Oakland County communities - the same holds true for Wayne County and Republicans. Removing party labels would assure voters that the two strongest candidates would square off in the fall, while know-nothing, do-nothing types wouldn't be allowed to slide through just because they carried the "right" party designation.

We encourage all eligible voters to go to the polls this year. And we also encourage them to go home and think about what it would take to keep them coming back.

SHORTENING the increasingly lengthy and costly - election season, could also be beneficial. In this high-tech media age, candidates often spend more time fund raising than debating the issues. Shortening the time between the primary and general election is an idea whose time may also have come.

We're not saying these are the best, or only, answers. But they are a start.

It's time for all of us to begin paying more than lip service to boosting voter turnout.

Turnout for national elections is grim. Two out of every five registered voters failed to cast ballots in the 1984 general election. That same year, one in 10 eligible Michigan voters didn't even bother to register.

And that was for a presidential election. Those figures don't begin to take into account the many local council and school board elections where only one in 10 voters even goes to the polls.

We're not the only ones who see voter apathy as a threat.

Groups as diverse as the American Bar Association, Holiday Inns Inc. and MTV, the cable music video channel, are promoting voter education and registration.

That's fine, as far as it goes. Increasingly, however, we're beginning to believe the problem lies as not as much with the voting public as with our electoral system.

People will take the time to vote, we believe, if they're given something to vote for.

VIBRANT, vigorously contested elections are that reason. They are the life blood of any democratic system. They are the best assurance issues will be fully debated, incumbents' records will be fully scrutinized and challengers will fully provide us with their plans for change.

For too long, however, that life blood has been drained from our electoral system.

Most elections are over even before the balloting begins. Entrenched incumbents too often face only token challengers, if any at all.

We encourage all eligible voters to go to the polls this year. And we also encourage them to go home and think about what it would take to keep them coming back.

Home care not new

To the editor:

Your article on dental care for the homebound was very interesting and will give hope to many who can't get to the office.

The service is not a new one as we have been providing comprehensive, quality care for homebound individuals for over 20 years. Many other dentists do the same for there own patients.

Those seeking care should first talk with their family dentist, then contact the Detroit District Dental Society at 871-3500 or the Michigan Dental Association at (517) 372-9070 for refunds.

Thanks for rail crossing

To the editor:

On behalf of the 100 citizens of Plymouth who petitioned the city commission for prompt action con-cerning the Main Street CSX crossing, a hearty thank you is in order. It is gratifying to see how citizens in action can accomplish even what might initially appear as an impossible task - especially when elected officials too often value gaining personal glory above performing public service to which they are committed Heartfelt thanks are also due to Michael Donohue who on behalf of the CSX has accepted rightful responsibility for the safe maintenance of the Main Street crossing.

Thank you to all citizens who understand America's ideals for a working democracy, that how well the elective process succeeds and how well elected leaders perform their assumed duties depends on the active involvement of every citizen in the community.

Godspeed to all who earnestly strive to keep Plymouth the finest city anywhere in the U.S.A. Paul Nastoff,

Is a moat coming soon?

To the editor:

Boy, it seems to me it's pretty bad when Mr. Sincock has to use the Fall Festival to try and control the cruisers and to have the city officials looking forward to the festival for this reason and not as a promotional event for the city to show itself off. Maybe we should make the Tonquish Creek run through the city so we can use it as a moat to detour the cruisers.

Media unfairly dogs Quayle

To the editor:

The article by Steve Barnaby on Dan Quayle's military service was a classic liberal hatchet job.

No where in the article is there any mention of Jesse Jackson, Andrew Young, James Blanchard, or Tom Hayden, all Democratic politicians who avoided military service during the Vietnam War.

No mention of Lloyd Bentsen's son who joined the National Guard in 1968. The article was so biased as to be unbelievable.

I would remind Mr. Barnaby that it was the National Guard that was called to duty to put down the riots in the late '60s when his "liberal" friends were looting and burning cities. We were happy to see the National Guard then, weren't we?

As one who served two years in the U.S. Army during the Korean War (one year in Korea itself), I can find no fault with Sen. Quayle's military service.

points of view The Heisman hype Wolverine sole winner hits 69th year

IT IS APPROPRIATE today to discuss co-called "Heisman Hype," but not solely because the football season is upon us. Significantly, the only player from a Michigan university who ever was awarded the coveted Heisman award as the year's No. 1 collegiate gridder will observe his 69th birthday Wednesday, Sept. 28. So let's ask, who was this guy, what did he do that was so great and who was this Heisman follow?

Maybe we should dispense with the slang expression "hype" first. My dictionary tells me it means "to stimulate artifically, as if with a hypodermic injection.

Well, let me tell you, in 1940, the year Thomas Dudley Harmon of the University of Michigan overwhelmingly was chosen the outstanding football player in the United States in the annual voting conducted by the Downtown Athletic Club of New York City, there was no "artificial" stimulation of pro-Harmon propaganda. It required nothing more than recitation of the facts, a statement I can make as an on-site observer.

It was in 1935 that the John W. Heisman Memorial Trophy Award was created in New York. The first winners were Jay Berwanger of the University of Chicago for '35, Larry Kelley of Yale in '36, Yale's Clint Frank in '37, Davey O'Brien of Texas Christian in '38, and Iowa's Nile Kinnick in 1939. Then came Harmon.

HEISMAN had been one of the greats of the early days. He won varsity football letters both at Brown and Pennsylvania, then coached at Oberlin, Akron, Auburn, Clemson, Georgia Tech, Penn, Washington and Jefferson, and Rice, retiring after the 1927 season.

Dr. L.H. Baker, in his 1945 book, "Football: Facts and Figures," wrote that Heisman "was instrumental, by his insistence, for the legal-the division of the game into quarter periods. He was the originator and prime mover in organizing the American Football Coaches Association

Harmon came to Michigan from Horace Mann High School in Gary, Ind., where he was the national high school scoring leader as a running back. In his first game in a varsity uniform on Oct. 1, 1938, against Michigan State he played only 16 minutes, carried the ball only four times and gained only 27 yards, although the Wolverines beat the Saprtans, 14-0. Best halfback in the state that autumn was All-American John Pingel of MSU.

Those statistics don't give Michigan's athletic department much reason to celebrate the 50th anniversary of Harmon's debut, but a birthday greeting next week might be in order

Harmon moved on stage nationally as a junior in '39 when he shared All-American backfield honors with Kinnick, George Cafego of Tennessee and Bill Kimbrough of Texas A&M. The turning point came in the second game of the season when Tom scored all of Michigan's points in a 27-7 romp over Kinnick's Iowa team. Rushing for 206 yards and scoring 21 points before the critical eastern press in a similar 27-7 win over Yale didn't hurt either.

In fact, fortuitous advance scheduization of the forward pass and also ling - arranged several years earlier - let Michigan showcase Harmon to the eastern press three times in his career against Penn, twice against Yale and once versus Harvard. Michigan won all six by a combined score of 120-50, the Hoosier Hammer personally accounting for Tom's junior year successes made the task of Michigan's sports information director in 1940 a cakewalk, a pleasant turn of events because much of the latter's time was taken up by planning retirement fetes for athletic director Fielding H. Yost.

HARMON MADE it even easier on the day of his 21st birthday, Sept. 28, 1940. Coach Fritz Crisler, ever the innovator, had taken Michigan literally to the air that week by flying the squad to Berkeley for the opener against California. Sure, date of the game was Sept. 28.

Not only did Tom start the season by returning the opening kickoff 96 yards for a touchdown, he scored three more times on runs of 82, 62 and seven yards, kicked four extra points, and passed to Davey Nelson for still another score as Michigan won, 41-0.

Before the season was over, he would break Red Grange's Big 10 scoring record and cap his career with a 22-point performance in the 40-0 finale over Ohio State at Columbus

Maybe it's hard for oldtimers to realize Tom will be 69 Wednesday. He certainly brought us more than 69 thrills. And he won the Heisman on facts, not artificial hypodermic injection. Happy birthday, Ace. May you and Elyse share many more.

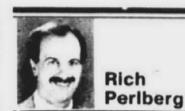

The early taste of fall marks the arrival of the football season, which reminds columnist Rich Perlberg of kicking - the lack of it by the Wolverines and Lions - and columnist Fred Delano of the Heisman and Michigan's only winner of the coveted trophy.

Who really gets a kick out of autumn weather?

OKAY. SO maybe it's the weather Maybe it's stormy skies and dank forecasts that have given me such a sodden outlook. Maybe a good dose of fall color in the trees will revive my spirits and let me tackle the autumn season with great gusto.

After all, there is a lot to be excited about. This is the most sporting time of the year what with the World Series, the Olympics, the football season, and the presidential campaign. But the dark cloud over my head must be responsible for my less than enthusiastic response to these happenings. To wit:

• The World Series. It's not just that the Tigers won't be there, or that they didn't just collapse but also dangled there twisting slowly, slowly in the wind. What's much worse is who is going to be there: Two teams from California and one from New York. Yuck. That means any rational person who objects in principle to the media attention given such teams must root for the Boston Red Sox which is in itself a recipe for disappointment. The last time Boston won the World Series, Babe Ruth was a pitcher.

wonderful and before it is over I will be lured into too many hours in front of the television. But how glorious can this competition be when a young boxer from Michigan loses out on a lifetime dream because he is five minutes late for a boxing match? And with the millions spent for the U.S. Olympics team, couldn't someone have purchased a watch or a calendar or a remedial reading class for the coach?

Also, remember this: When you see a pitch for money to help our athletes, keep in mind that in many sports only pennies of every dollar go to the participants. Much of the rest helps keep the pompous and the hangers-on living high on the hog.

• The football season. I can't kick, but neither can the Michigan football team. And the Lions won't • The Olympics. The athletes are kick, or punt. But I shouldn't complain How many teams have plays so secret that their coach doesn't even know them?

· The presidential race. It's the political version of Super Sunday when the Great Debates begin in three days. The suspense is endless. Who will wave the brightest flag? Who will tell the best-rehearsed ad lib? Who will promise to provide the most programs while spending the least money? I don't know. I only know that it's not over until it's over, politics is a game of inches, and the election isn't over until the fat image adviser sings.

So, sports fans, the fall season is off to a less than roaring start. But things always look darkest before the dawn. Maybe the Yankees and the Dodgers will both lose. Maybe the Olympics will soar to greater heights with no more controversy. Maybe someone will give Darryl Rogers a playbook.

And maybe George Bush and Michael Dukakis will be good sports' and stick to substantive issues for the rest of the campaign. If that happens, there might even be reason to hope that Michigan can win a Rose Bowl

Rouge needs federal supervision — report

AP - Cleaning Michigan's Rouge River has proven too big a task for the Michigan Department of Natural Resources to undertake without increased federal supervision, a congressional report said.

The report by the General Accounting Office, Congress' investigative agency, said the 474 known sources of pollution in the river have been ineffectively regulated. The report was released Monday.

Area officials involved with the Rouge cleanup, however, expressed disappointment with the report, especially because it doesn't guarantee federal money to the project.

'As we see it, the issue isn't control, it's money," said James Rogers of the southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG). The intergovernmental agency has coordinated area Rouge cleanup efforts, though the Michigan DNR is responsible for the river.

THE DNR "has not always taken enforcement actions to bring about compliance by these sources of pollution, and when taken, the actions were not always timely or effective in bringing about quick compliance," said the report, released Friday by Reps. John Dingell, D-Trenton and William Ford, D-Taylor. Ford's district includes « southern Livonia, Westland, Garden City and Canton Township

The Rouge, which runs through the most populous region of southeastern Michigan, "is considered a threat to the health and safety of Michigan citizens who live in its proximity, as well as a threat to the environmental integrity of Lake Erie," the report said.

The state has undertaken an ambitious program to clean up the Rouge. but the effort has fallen short of what is needed to bring the river into compliance with federal standards.

The state Department of Natural Resources has failed to enforce provisions of existing combined sewer permits because the permit lan-tions for reporting violations, or taken them long after the violations occurred," the report said.

Also, when the department has sought to enforce the permits, "its actions were not always successful in bringing permittees into compliance," the report said.

The department's director of surface water quality, Paul Zugger, said he had not seen the report, but only an accompanying news release.

"FROM WHAT we can tell from the press release, it is consistent with what we've done the last two years on the Rouge," Zugger said. "It has been a major effort for the past couple of years."

"The issues they identified, we identified earlier and have been reacting to," he said.

"We feel we're making strong progress in the very areas identified by the report," Zugger said.

The GAO (Government Accounting Office) recommended the Environmental Protection Agency, through its Chicago regional office, establish controls to oversee the Michigan department's enforcement of discharge permits into the Rouge. The EPA should review the Michigan department's progress in correcting its permit programs, the report said. If progress is unsatisfacto-ry, the federal agency should develop remedies in consultation with the state, the report said.

The environmental agency, which is responsible for ensuring compliance with clean-water laws, has conducted statewide oversight of Michigan's discharge-permit program rather than focusing on specific rivers, the report said.

You name it. I think they had just about everything," said Betty Gruchala of Canton, vice president of the Pioneers. The sale was held Thursday through Saturday, Sept. 15-17, at the Geddes Road home of a Pioneers member

'It was a success," Gruchala said. 'It was better than anticipated

"They came and went. I think they could have used a few more."

The crowds were a bit smaller Saturday, "probably because there's so many other things to do."

Sunny skies and relatively warm temperatures helped to boost attendance at the sale. This is the first time the Canton Pioneers have held such an event, Gruchala said. Another fund-raising sale may be held next year.

Making choices key to success

By Julie Brown staff writer

Dorothy E. Jones decided years ago she didn't want to spend the rest of her life working in a factory.

Working in the plant was not my forte," said Jones, assistant director of the United Auto Workers' Women's Department. "I believe that all work is honorable, but for me, no

Jones decided to pursue other options. In addition to working for the UAW, she's chairwoman of the Michigan Women's Commission. She spoke Monday night at a meeting of the Plymouth Business and Professional Women.

Her work involves making presentations throughout the U.S. on women's issues, including racism and sexism, sexual harassment, women workers and the history of black women

JONES, WHO has been a UAW member since 1966, is a former member of the Michigan Task Force on Sexual Harassment. A member of the Michigan Women's Commission since 1984, she was chairwoman of the commission's Task Force on Older Women's Issues, which produced a report to the Michigan Legislature.

'I have no intentions of being a loser," she told those attending the Monday night meeting of the Plym-outh Business and Professional Women, held at the Pied Piper Restaurant in Livonia.

Jones, a 44-year-old Ypsilanti resident, discussed "How to have it all or is that a myth?" The women at that meeting are among those who've been pioneers,

Jones said. "Our foremothers had no idea that one day we would own our own businesses." Those foremothers laid the groundwork that made many things possible for women today.

"And we're in a position to make change.

Having it all depends on each individual, Jones said. It's a mistake to allow others - friends, family or the media - to define that.

Jones said she suffered from the "superwoman syndrome," feeling that she had to do it all and do it well

"I'm working on it, but I lived it."

THAT SYNDROME occurs in phases and begins with wanting to do it all and making all sorts of commitments. Women feel they must do things faster, better and smarter than everyone else.

"And we work our tails off, and expect others to say, 'Thank you, you did a great job.'

Women suffering from the "Superwoman syndrome" feel they can't ask for help; they let personal time go. Burnout – defined by Jones as "when your sizzle fizzles" – is the result.

Women suffering from burnout are left mentally, physically, emotionally and spiritually exhausted.

Physical signs of burnout can include feeling drained, listless and fa-too much, or an appetite change, are also indicators.

(P C)18

Sometimes, women may tend to become "weekend hermits," shutting themselves off from human contact. That can happen to those with demanding jobs, "because you just don't want to talk to another human being.

Inability to concentrate, feelings of hostility or excessive dependency are also signs of burnout.

"Stress is a fact of life. You have to have stress to do what you do. But burnout can be prevented."

GETTING ORGANIZED - in-cluding making lists and establishing priorities - is helpful.

"Life is about choices, because we choose to do these things," Jones said. "In deciding what your all is, be realistic.

Women need to remember to take care of themselves physically, she said. They need to know their limitations and learn to say no.

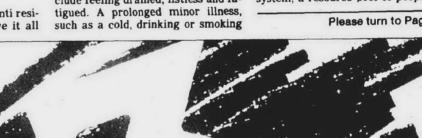

It's also fine to say "I'll get back to you" later with a decision, Jones said

"I think the bottom line for me is to be honest and to be firm."

A lot of women carry around excess baggage in the form of past failures or negative experiences. That impedes their progress, Jones said. It's best to view those experiences as ones you can learn from.

"Don't be afraid to ask for help." Women, and men, need a support system, a resource pool of people to friends and make yourself feel needed," she said.

Speaker offers hints

Pat Materka hopes that people who attend her Friday, Oct. 7, presentation in Plymouth leave with some good ideas on getting organized. She wants them to see her presentation "as something enjoyable and entertaining" but also useful Materka, an Ann Arbor resident, is the author of "Time In, Time Out, Time Enough: A Time Management Guide for Women" (Prentice-Hall Inc., 1982). She will speak at a brunch at the Plymouth Elks Lodge, 41700 E. Ann Arbor Road.

The meeting, scheduled for 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., is sponsored by the Preludes of the Plymouth Symphony League. Tickets for the brunch, $12, are available at Armbruster's Bootery, on Main Street across from Kellogg Park in downtown Plymouth.

At the meeting, Materka will discuss ways for women to dispel the "Superwoman myth" and achieve realistic goals by getting organized. She'll talk about the importance of delegating, setting goals, "and not putting absolutely everybody's needs ahead of their own.'

THE PROGRAM Materka plans to present is one she described as "light-hearted but also substantive."

At the meeting, she'll hand out takehome materials.

Learning to be organized, and to manage your time, can help make it a "thumbs up" kind of day.

She works as director of development and public relations for the University of Michigan's Division of Physical Education. Materka is also the author of "Workshops and Seminars: Planning, Promoting and Profiting" (Prentice-Hall Inc., 1985).

Materka has written articles for a number of publications. She has conducted workshops and given presentations to corporations, professional organizations, universities, community colleges and others.

Materka and her husband have two children, an 18-year-old daughter who is a college sophomore and a 15-year-old son.

These days, women face pressures as they try to meet the demands of multiple roles. Many women were brought up to believe their main role is managing a home and family; at the same time, more women are working outside of the home.

Many women tend to put too much emphasis on perfection, Materka said. Some, for example, feel they must have home-baked cookies made from scratch - to take to meetings. Buying cookies, or baking them from a mix, just won't do for many women.

Materka also plans to talk about the importance of buying certain services to help buy time. It's often worthwhile to pay people to do things you can't logistically handle, she said.

be selectively called on for support. Those people can help clarify what you want and need. The important thing is to "make sure you have people in the right places.

That feedback is essential, Jones said

'Feedback is very different, because it's non-judgmental." Criticism, however, isn't quite the same.

You can defuse a lot of unnecessary stress simply by telling a critic. "You're absolutely right." Agreeing with that person will end that conversation.

It's also helpful - in situations where you don't agree with criticism to ask for more specific details of just what's bothering that person.

THE EASIEST way to resolve a conflict is with a win/win situation. she said. That involves negotiation and compromise.

'But having it all does have a price.

Jones talked about the guilt she still experiences when she's traveling and is away from her family. She and her husband have a 9-year-old daughter.

"But then I realized a lot of women go through this."

There are four choices in a rela- it, and you will have it all.

tionship Those include giving up your dreams and goals and becoming a non-person, turning into 'Superwoman' and trying without success to do it all, ending a relationship; or negotiating change.

That's like negotiating a contract, she said, and requires a neutral setting

'I wrote my demands down." Her husband did the same thing.

"I didn't realize I was contributing to this mess." She'd gone through a growth process. Many things that had once suited her no longer did.

Jones and her husband made compromises. She doesn't take him to functions where she's working; he no longer takes her on fishing trips. They schedule time for themselves religiously, she said, "because I still deal with the guilt trip.

It's important to have your priorities in order, Jones said.

"Could you be standing in your own way without even knowing it?" Women need to learn not to fear success and must understand that positive changes will mean living up to higher standards.

Women also need to give themselves at least three positive strokes each week. Jones added.

Billings-Johnson

Lisa Beth Johnson of Canton and Robert Frederick Billings of Canton were married July 9 at the First United Methodist Church of Northville. The Rev. James Kummer, the bridegroom's uncle, performed the double-ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Bill L. Johnson of Canton, Mr. and Mrs. David Kummer of Canton, and the late Mr. Frederick F. Billings

The bride is a graduate of John Glenn High School and of the University of Michigan-Dearborn, where she received a degree in electrical engineering. She is employed at Delco Electronics of Kokomo, Ind.

Her husband is a graduate of Plymouth Canton High School and of the University of Michigan-Dearborn, where he received a degree in electrical engineering. He is employed with Delco Electronics of Kokomo.

Sherry Gerth was the maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Cathy Schlamb, Barbie McKenzie, Diane Orr, sister of the bride Cathy MacDiarmid and Kerri MacDiarmid.

For her wedding, the bride wore a white satin gown with a cathedrallength train, appliqued with pearls and set in Chantilly lace. The gown had a fitted bodice, Queen Anne neckline, and long fitted sleeves extending in a V over her hands. She wore a white silk flowered headpiece with a fingertip-length veil, and carried a bouquet of white gardenias, roses, stephanotis and ivy.

A reception was held at the Hellenic Cultural Center in Westland.

Following a wedding trip to northern Michigan, the newlyweds are making their home in Noblesville. Ind

Lawrence and Patricia Hartz of Plymouth announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Michele, to Brett Edward Butler, son of Leslie Butler of Northville.

The bride-elect, a graduate of Plymouth Canton High School, is employed by the K mart Corp. in Plymouth. She has been with K mart for nine years.

Her fiance, a graduate of Plymouth Canton High School, served in the U.S. Marine Corps for nine years. He is a college student, working on his bachelor's degree in business, and has been doing masonry work for four years.

The wedding will take place at Our Lady of Good Counsel Church in Plymouth. No date has been set.

Lana Pollack hits the campaign trail running

In late May 1982, Lana Pollack was asked by a friend if she would run his campaign for the Michigan Senate

That friend cited Pollack's credibility with women, with teachers and with the state's Democratic Party. Pollack gave that some thought and decided she might as-well run for state office herself.

Today, Pollack, a state senator from Ann Arbor, is a Democratic candidate for U.S. Congress from the 2nd District. The district includes northern Livonia, Plymouth and Plymouth Township.

Pollack spoke during the Thursday, Sept. 15, meeting of the Plymouth branch, American Association of University Women, held in the Sunflower Clubhouse in Canton.

During the evening meeting, Pollack questioned the effectiveness of her children were younger.

her opponent, U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth. She criticized the incumbent's record on environmental issues, and pointed out areas in which her priorities differ from Pursell's POLLACK ALSO talked about her own experiences in politics and state government.

"I didn't start out to be a politician," she said.

She and her husband were married in the early 1960s, and had two children in the next few years. At that time, Pollack's goals included graduating from college and staying married. She also wanted "to be a good community volunteer, which I have been," she said.

Pollack received a bachelor's degree in political science and a master's degree in education from the University of Michigan. She worked outside of the home part time when

Board of Education, deciding to do so because she wanted to improve the schools. That school district had gone through a population loss; those schools also suffered from a disparity of achievement related to race.

Pollack found she was able to make a difference by serving on the board.

"And it is worth making the effort to address the real problems, the hard problems," she said.

When Pollack finished serving on the school board, she decided her volunteering days were behind her. In 1982, she opted to run for the Michigan Senate.

Pollack, who was nearly 40 at the time, won the primary with 52 percent of the vote and the general election with 51 percent.

WHILE CAMPAIGNING, she talked about issues she cared about, including the environment, educa-she had a difficult time talking about money, or pointing out weaknesses or differences of her opponents.

Unwillingness to compete is a barrier to women in politics, she said.

"And one of the hardest things for us to do is to compete. We're not good competitors," Pollack said.

Much of that has to do with the ways in which women are socialized. Girls often don't play sports, and don't learn how to compete or to interact on a team.

"My sister and I had ballet lessons," Pollack said.

Although those lessons were helpful, they didn't teach her skills she needed as a politician.

POLLACK MAKES an effort to speak to women's and girls' groups because I do believe role models are important," she said.

Only 23 women serve in the U.S. Congress, a number that hasn't

SHE SERVED on the Ann Arbor tion and health care. Pollack found changed significantly in the last 15 years or so, Pollack said.

We have to help our daughters have a head start.

Women also need to give themselves credit for their abilities and achievements, she said

"A little humility, yes, but a lot of pride.

Pollack told the AAUW members and guests that her mother was active in that organization's Ludington. Mich., branch. Pollack benefited from knowing that her mother had a role out in the community.

"I was impressed and influenced." Pollack said.

THOSE ATTENDING the meeting enjoyed hearing Pollack's comments

"I thought they were excellent, I really did," said Sylvia Stetz of Plymouth Township, an AAUW member. Stetz believes Pollack has a chance to win the November elec-

Television can serve as a valuable learning tool

Not all local students who watch TV this fall will be goofing off.

Plymouth-Canton Community Education students are among those who will benefit from the "GED on TV" program this fall.

A total of 24 area school districts, including the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, are using the WTVS/Channel 56 program.

"We do use the tapes, and we work closely with Channel 56," said Sharon Strean, assistant director of Plymouth-Canton Community Education.

Plymouth-Canton Community Education offers a GED, General Education Development, program. The GED certificate is recognized by many employers, educational institutions and others as the equivalent of a high school diploma, Strean said.

To receive a GED, students must take an exam that covers reading, writing, basic math, science and social studies. As part of that exam, GED students must write an essay.

PLYMOUTH-CANTON students use the videotapes in classrooms, she said. Students also view the Channel p.m. Monday, on Channel 56. This is the second year Plymouth-Canton Community Education has been involved. The district was among those involved in the pilot project for 'GED on TV.'

Strean has found that the combination of classroom work with a teacher and TV viewing is effective. Television can be a helpful learning tool, but can't do the job alone.

You need human contact to learn." Television, however, also has something to offer adult students.

"They can produce such exciting visual effects. I just see tremendous resources for us."

In the classroom, teachers are able to stop the videotapes to discuss certain points. At home, students have the opportunity to watch "GED on TV" programs at their convenience.

The programs on Channel 56 aren't adult versions of "Sesame Street," she said. The programs use realistic situations designed to help adult students learn.

"And of course we're all used to watching TV."

'They can produce such exciting visual effects. I just see tremendous resources for us.'

math. Tips for test-taking will be offered during the final three sessions. Strean recommends that potential GED students call Mary Jo Workman at the Starkweather Center, 451-6555. After making an appointment, students can come in for an assessment. Doing so will allow staffers to see just what's best for each student.

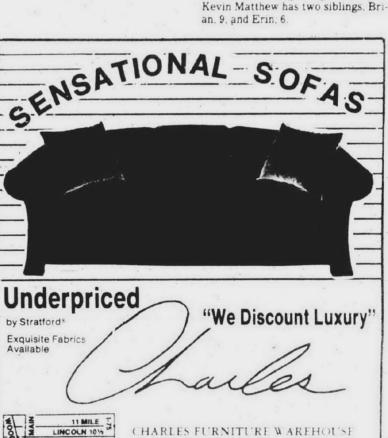

There's also a pre-GED program offered through Plymouth-Canton Community Education. "It may take a little longer." That program allows many students to progress at a more comfortable pace, Strean said.

When the Rosedale Gardens Presbyterian Church was chartered in 1928 with 16 members, it wasn't dismayed by the fact that there were only 30 homes in the area.

On Sunday, when the church celebrates its 60th anniversary, it will take pride in the stability of both its congregation, which now numbers 700, and the well-populated Livonia community from which it operates.

And members from the Hurd Valrance and Robert Barnes Sr. families, which span four generations of membership, will be at the church celebration.

'I remember when church members sat on folding camp chairs," said Genevieve Valrance, 89.

Valrance and her deceased husband, Hurd, joined the church in 1942 and raised sons George and James in the church.

Now members of George's family, including wife Mary Lou and oldest daughter Ginna Williams and her husband, Dan, and three children participate. George is an elder in the church

TRAVELING for the first time this year, they accompanied a group of the church's 20 high school-age youth to Pasadena, Calif., where they worked at the U.S. Center for World Missions. There they helped to refurbish the area.

The mission caravan, which was started in 1963, travels annually to different parts of the country helping out by roofing churches, clearing brush and working with the poor. In the past, they have also traveled to Mexico.

Grandson Steven who is 5 months old is the youngest Barnes member; great-grandmother, Bessie, who is in her 80s, is the oldest.

The original charch building was a gift of the Detroit Presbytery. Seats for the sanctuary were bought from Detroit theater, according to a church history.

Church dinners were a group ef-

"Hams were baked by Mr. Burke, a local baker. Beatrice Weinert and Oda Cooper often cooked chickens at home. Rheo McKinney, Lena Metsger, Bina Hodson and others doWolfes, with a produce farm, offered potatoes and other vegetables free for the digging or planting," according to the church history.

By 1933, the church had grown to 71 members, with 97 enrolled in the Sunday school.

Formality was the order of the day when ladies of the church went stumping for new members during the early 1930s. Hats, gloves and two-piece knitted dresses were worn even on 90-degree days. MEN DIRECTED shuffleboard and target practice for boys in the church basement because there was no civic association clubhouse.

The anniversary celebration will begin with a worship service at 10:30 a.m., with the Rev. Edward D. Gehres, executive presbyter of the Detroit Presbytery, as guest speak-er. Officiating will be interim pastor the Rev. Larry Martin and interim associate pastor the Rev. James J. Beates.

The service will be followed by a catered dinner at noon, topped off by a birthday cake and a short program.

Anniversary plates with a sketch of the church done by Northville artist and church member Caroline Dunphy will be available as a keepsake at Sunday's celebration.

Goals for a moral life

This is the season in the calendar of the Jewish faith devoted to introspection, self-scrutiny and repentance. I share with all the readers of the Observer & Eccentric this perspective on the goals of a moral life.

(I) A GROWING MIND: Never have people been as conscious as today of the importance of good health. The feats of medical science are reported daily in the press, celebrated in the mass media and eagerly discussed in our informal conversations.

But in our concern for our physical well-being, we ought not to neglect the cultivation of our spiritual resources, the aspiration to wisdom and knowledge that is the hallmark of the growing mind.

Knowledge is one of the best guarantees we can acquire against the constriction of the habitual and the familiar. To learn something we have never known before is to enter the domain of surprise and wonderment. It is to savor an experience of adventure.

To be truly educated means to be open to a new challenge of thought all the time. A knowledgeable person is not someone who once read a book and never got over it. A knowledgeable person is one who continues to learn and to seek knowledge.

(II) THE HELPING HAND: Implanted deep within the human spirit is the capacity to seek out the needs of others and to know the delight that comes from the act of service itself.

Has a child ever slipped a hand into yours, just because he wanted to walk beside you? Have you ever seen your gift or your word evoke on a face darkened by distress, a transforming smile of joy? Then you have experienced the delight that is truly the enlargement of life itself.

So many of us strike bargains with our conscience and "give charity" as if it were a kind of transaction arranged with an eye to the balance sheet. The highest form of charity isn't a gift, but a righteous deed. It is not done mechanically. It is accompanied by an experience of helpfulness and sense of humanity.

Charity involves imagination and insight. Some people refuse to participate in philanthropy, for, as they put it, they ask for nothing from anyone and, therefore, need give nothing in return. But they are profoundly mistaken.

Each of us has come into the world, into a community, into a country built by the labor and sacrifice of untold generations. The greatest benefactor cannot give to society as much as society has given to him.

(III) A BRAVE HEART: Of enormous importance to our world is the virtue known as moral courage. This is the readiness to expose oneself to sacrifice, sometimes even to suffering, in order to uphold and advance a moral principle. The greatest heroes of history are those who were ready to endure moral disapproval, contempt, rejection or even worse, rather than depart from what they saw as the right course

The quality of moral courage is asked of each of us. In the pressure of our collective lives, we accept without questions the standards of our group and the questionable practices of our day.

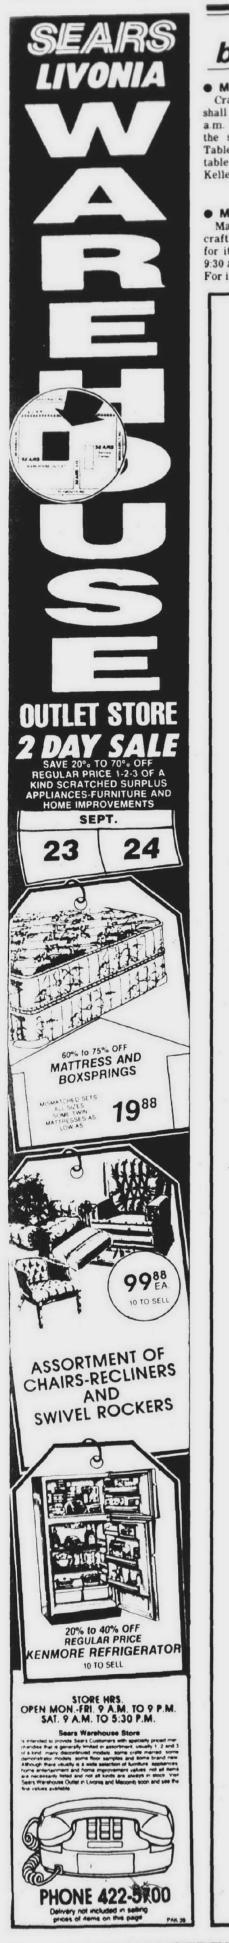

We encounter an increasing number of little compromises that circumstances urge us to make. They are petty, seemingly insignificant yieldings of a higher motive to a lower impulse. Sometimes the good is identified with what is accepted and prevalent.

Many a teenager has tried to convince his dubious parents by the logic of "everyone is doing it" as though numbers determine values. Or else we say, "Go fight city hall."

A wise man said, "You can determine a man's character by what he stands for, but even more accurately by what he won't stand for."

The person of moral courage will declare: "This is what I choose as right. I will not surrender to the great god of conformity. I seek to impart to my children independence of will and judgment that will enable them to be different from others, when the principles of truth and in-tegrity are at stake."

The 'right' mix of investments

By Alan Ferrara and Dan Boyce special writers

Local financial planning experts reviewed the data of the family profiled here and made general recommendations based on the participant's resources and goals. Someone once said that "retirement is the time when you never do all the things you intended to do when you'd have the time." We may not be able to find all the time or energy to do all of the things we had planned for our retirement years, but with proper planning we can provide the financial wherewithal.

This month's family profile centers on Dave and Jane Prescott. Dave, 62, has retired from one of the auto companies and has accepted a position with another employer at a salary of $38,000 per year. Jane, 49, is not employed. With earnings from rental property and Dave's pension from his former employer they are able to live comfortably and set aside $1,500-$2,000 each month for savings.

Dave and Jane are in good financial shape in planning for their retirement, but they still have some questions and concerns.

"Do we have the right mix of investments for our current and future needs? Should we sell our rental property and invest the proceeds elsewhere? Is there any aspect of planning that we have overlooked?"

Dave and Jane are in an enviable position. The combination of pension benefits from both of Dave's employers and Social Security will provide them with their desired amount of retirement income of $40,000 per year, allowing them the luxury of reinvesting their entire investment income. We think it is generally desirable to have some growth of assets early in retirement, and the

Prescotts should achieve substantial growth

BECAUSE THEY are in good financial shape, they should remain with investments that are primarily. conservative. Dave and Jane do not need to take risks in order to achieve extraordinary returns, nor is it an appropriate strategy at this time in their lives.

Almost half of the Prescotts' portfolio is invested in long-term municipal bonds. Because they do not need to maximize their current income at retirement, we would suggest that they adjust their portfolio so that the bonds are shorter term (generally under 10 years), of high quality, and have staggered maturities. This will provide greater stability of principal and, if interest rates rise, their income should increase when matured bonds are reinvested. With the exception of an oil and gas investment that has not performed well, the remaining investments are of a high quality and no changes would be recommended at this time. The Prescotts are sufficiently invested in tax-exempt bonds, so no additional investment in that area is suggested. They own a rental property in Florida, which was bought primarily as an income tax shelter. We think it may be advisable to sell it. Being an absentee landlord is difficult under the best of circumstances, and income tax losses alone are not a sufficient reason to retain property. Unless there are other considerations for holding the property, such as significant opportunity for appreciation, Dave and Jane may want to sell the Florida real estate and use the proceeds to buy the retirement home in Arizona they have been contemplating.

IN GENERAL, Dave and Jane are substantial assets to protect; the modest cost of an umbrella liability policy would be well worth the piece of mind it can create. An umbrella liability policy is designed to cover the insured against catastrophic liabilities that exceed coverage provided by a homeowners or auto policy. Without the coverage provided by an umbrella policy, a judgment against the Prescotts as a result of some accident could wipe out years of hard work

Dave and Jane may also want to consider the purchase of one of the long-term convalescent care policies now available. At their current ages, the cost of such care is not overly expensive. These policies pay a certain dollar amount for each day the insured is in a facility, regardless of whether skilled or custodial care is needed

Finally, the Prescotts have indicated that they are in the process of updating their estate planning. Serious consideration should be given to the use of a living or revocable trust in addition to wills for Dave and Jane. Proper planning and asset allocation can minimize or eliminate probate and estate taxes on the first to die and possibly do the same on the second death. More assets would then be available for distribution to their heirs.

Proper positioning and periodic review of their assets will provide Dave and Jane with sufficient income to enjoy their retirement years. We leave it to them to find the time to do all those things they have been promising themselves.

Illegal immigrants tracked at local businesseses

By Janice Brunson staff writer

For the first time, U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Services is striking at the "magnet" credited with attracting the most illegal aliens to this area - employment.

An estimated 12 million people currently live illegally in the United States, and employers who hire them are now subject to stiff fines. Since June, four area companies have been fined for hiring illegal workers; others have been cited for improper recordkeeping.

The Immigration Reform and Control Act passed by the U.S. Congress in 1986 holds employers responsible for verifying the employment eligibility of employees and maintaining those records.

On June 1, a new phase of the law kicked into action. This permits immigration agents to levy fines for the first time against employers who hire people living here illegally and who are not in possession of proper employment visas.

The U.S. is an economic magnet to most people of the world. They come here hoping to become a part of it. If their incentive for coming employment - is removed, they're apt to think twice about it," said James Montgomery, district director of immigration in Detroit. NATIONWIDE, 3,000 immigration agents and border patrol officers attempt to combat illegal immigration with limited success. The new law "is a tool to help them perform their jobs more effectively," Montgomery

Recently, a garden nursery in southwestern Wayne County within the Observer & Eccentric circulation area was charged with employing seven illegal workers from Poland who now face deportation hearings.

The nursery owner will be fined but the amount remains uncertain, according to Frank Falkowski, who directs immigration investigations in Detroit. It will be reviewed later this year at a hearing by an administrative law judge from Chicago who also conducts deportation hearings for the immigration service.

INVESTIGATING AGENTS recommend imposing fines and the amount. The recommendations are then approved by the regional immigration director in Minnesota. Since the process is new and precedents are few, the amount is nearly always from Poland who have since been reviewed, according to Falkowski.

Two of three remaining cases are also under review, including a fine in the amount of $3,900 that has been levied against an Ann Arbor firm charged with employing a British citizen.

To date, only Oaza Bakery in Hamtramck has paid a fine, $750, for employing two illegal workers scheduled for deportation hearings.

Net Worth

"THE MORE that is done to circumvent the law, the stiffer the penalty," Montgomery said.

The fines follow an 18-month grace period during which employers were supplied with information about the new law. Those found violating it during the grace period were cited but not fined, providing they were first-time offenders.

$529,200

The Szechuan Canton Restaurant in Canton was cited during the grace period for employing two illegals from Hong Kong, according to Fal-kowski. The illegal workers were scheduled for deportation hearings.

An underground existence TO:

By Janice Brunson staff writer

Without the "Irish connection" in metropolitan Detroit, life for one young man from Ireland would be difficult.

But because the connection here is relatively small compared to Irish enclaves in New York, Boston, Chicago and San Francisco, life is considerably easier.

A resident of Westland, he is an illegal alien who came to the United States several years ago. For purposes of this interview, he called himself Sean O'Brien, "a good Irish name," he said, in a lilting brogue.

Life is easier here for O'Brien because "Irish people came before me," forming the connection.

And because the number of newly arrived Irish choosing to settle here remains low, friends and employers seldom think to ask O'Brien if he is 'legal.'

"Ninety-nine percent of the people I meet don't know I'm illegal. And I don't go around broadcasting it," he said

O'BRIEN IS ONE of an estimated 150,000 young people who in recent years have fled southern Ireland because of desperate economic conditions. They enter the United States on tourist visas. Once the visa expires, they stay on illegally.

Dan O'Kennedy of Livonia, a naturalized U.S. citizen who is active in immigration reform, calls the exodus of youth from Ireland a "tragic brain drain" but a potential "talent bonanza" for U.S. business.

Many of the illegals are well educated. "As soon as they come out of college (in Ireland), they can't get jobs so they go back to school. They not only have B.A. (bachelor's) degrees. They have M.A. (master's) degrees," O'Kennedy said. If granted U.S. citizenship, they could fill jobs in medicine, law and computer analysis that the U.S. Department of Labor predicts will go unfilled in the next decade because of a lack of skilled help, according to O'Kennedy.

"These kids could be a real talent asset for the U.S. economy," he said. O'Brien headed for work in the U.S. shortly after completing university studies in laboratory science. Unable to find work in his major area of study, he "took the best available job at the best rate" with a local construction firm for $9 an hour.

In his experience, most U.S. em-ployers "don't mind paying full rates" to illegal employees.

O'BRIEN SAID illegals who are working in construction are more vulnerable during winter months when jobs are scarce.

But "where we're totally vulnerable is if we get sick or injured. That's our biggest fear," he said. O'Brien would not receive worker's compensation and other benefits normally enjoyed by legal workers.

His employer is also vulnerable, subject to fines imposed since June under the 1986 Immigration Peform and Control Act. The penalties are expected to make it increasingly difficult for illegal aliens to work. (See accompanying story.)

Obtaining legal residency is also difficult. Last year, 1,800 Irish were granted visas.

O'Brien's chances are better than most because a brother in Westland is a naturalized citizen, qualifying O'Brien for consideration under family unification provisions. Still, the process is slow.

"Day to day, it's OK (living here illegally). But in the long term, it isn't very promising," O'Brien said.

O'Kennedy and others who are legal are organizing a Livonia chapter of the Irish Immigration Reform movement because "we are very concerned about those who are illegal."

In the meantime, their numbers percease. Since O'Brien settled in ncrease. others from home have Westland, joined him.

LOAN OFFICER EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES AT FIREMAN'S FUND RE:

As the nation's third largest mortgage banker, we are embarking on an imaginative campaign to recruit and train Loan Officer candidates.

Mortgage banking offers a long-term career opportunity for hard working individuals with superior skills and motivation. On one hand it offers unlimited commission income based on personal achievement. On the other, Loan Officers are true "employees" of the corporation for tax purposes and participate fully in our industry-leading employee benefit package.

Saturday morning, October 1, we'll be conducting two "LOAN OFFICER CAREER SEMINARS" ... at 9:00 and 10:30 a.m... at our Farmington Hills headquarters. Our goal will be to acquaint you with the challenges and rewards of a Loan Officer career with FIREMAN'S FUND.

We anticipate that more will want to attend than we can accommodate. To reserve your space, please telephone 553-0772 no later than Monday, September 26!

Fireman's Fund is an equal opportunity employer...M/F/H.

Here's how to figure out tax cost of stock

Eleven years ago I bought lowa Resources, and I entered into its dividend reinvestment program Although I only bought 100 shares. through a split of 100 shares and the reinvestment of the dividends. I now have a total of 720 shares.

Here is my question. How is the tax figured on the capital gains on the shares I received through the split and how is it figured on the shares I bought with dividends? Will I have to pay more tax on these shares after having paid all these years because the income of the shares was reported on my 1099s to the IRS?

When you buy stock through a company's dividend reinvestment program, you are paying for it just as if you bought it on the installment plan. The dividends you are paid by the company are income and are reported to the government by the company as taxable income and as you state, you have paid a tax on these dividends each year

While you have not received these dividends as a check, the result is the same as if you have received a dividend check each year and then endorsed it and sent it back to the company to buy stock

The cost of the stock you have received in the dividend reinvestment plan is the total of the dividends that you have reinvested. The company gave you a statement each time it paid you a dividend showing how much your dividend was and how many shares of stock the dividend bought and at what cost per share

YOU HAVE a complex situation because in the last 11 years you will have been paid 44 dividends. That means you have bought stock 44 times and probably paid a different price and received a different number of shares each time. Hopefully you will have retained these statements or recorded the information they gave you.

shares at one time, you would add up what you paid for all of the shares you bought directly plus all of the dividends that you have reinvested and paid tax on. That sum would be your total and what you receive when you sell them would be your capital gain and the amount on which you would pay a tax.

IF YOU want to sell just a part of your shares, you can select specific purchases and tell your broker, or the dividend reinvestment agent if you sell through one, which purchases you want sold. In such a case your cost would be the cost of those specific purchases.

In the case of the stock dividend, if the cost of your 100 shares was $2.375, the cost of the 200 you now have is the same figure, $2,375. While you paid $23.75 for the first 100, you now have 200 shares and the cost of each is $2,375 divided by 200 or $11.875 each

During that time period that you have owned that stock, there was a special tax credit allowed for a few years, and your tax base may be subject to further adjustment depending on how you may or may not have used that credit.

UNDER THE new law, employers must also complete employment eligibility forms on employees, verifying their residency through birth certificates, naturalization papers, passports or other documents.

Immigration agent John Kalabus said that 50 percent of the time it is obvious when paperwork has been intentionally done wrong or left incomplete.

Employers who do not comply with this part of the law are also subject to fines.

But in an effort to nurture employer cooperation, immigration agents are so far only issuing warnings.

This is a cooperative effort on our part. We only fine those employers who intentionally are not com-plying with the law," Montgomery said.

Half of all companies that are inspected come to the attention of immigration agents through tips supplied by either the Department of Labor or the public, reporting what is believed to be instances of illegal employment.

Such a tip alerted agents to Ralph's Deli in Bloomfield Hills last month. The caller reported illegal workers. But Kalabus, the investigating agent, said no illegal aliens were employed by the deli. He issued a warning about incomplete records.

KALABUS IS one of 25 criminal investigators in the Detroit immigration office. He inspects some 15 companies a month.

Many companies are inspected on a random basis, chosen by computer from a list of area firms.

Livonia Cut Stone, a firm that carves stones for graves and other uses, and Mink's Kitchen in Garden City were randomly inspected. Both were issued warnings for incomplete records.

The new law and the resulting crackdown on employers is "the will of the people," according to Montgomery.

"They elect representatives who make the rules. We enforce them.'

Jacket etiquette still the same

Thursday, September 22, 1988 O&E

P.G., Birmingham

Of course you may invite a client

Dear Joan:

The office staff I work with recently had a discussion on jacket etiquette in business. Some say all the rules of when to wear a jacket have relaxed; I say they haven't. Who is right?

T.M. Royal Oak

You are.

Here's how it works: If you are working without your jacket in the office, and you go to see the big boss, put on your jacket. The same goes, of course, if an outside client or customer comes into your office or anyone of importance from the outside. It's a sign of deference.

A women who has doffed her jacket in the office should put it on again in the very same circumstances that govern when a man should put his on again.

An additional tip on short sleeves for men: A man who often works without his jacket in an office should never wear short-sleeved shirts. The latter are meant never to be seen. Long-sleeved shirts look much better, even when they are rolled up to the elbows in the heat.

Dear Joan:

Don't be sulky or negative every time they see you in the halls during I have recently been let go from my job. This is embarrassing and the steps you are taking to find another position and ask your colleagues for tips, they will consider you the noble one and the company the ignoble one.

But there are some rules to be followed here too. Your guest deserves a proper meal. This is no time for a pizza or a frozen dinner.

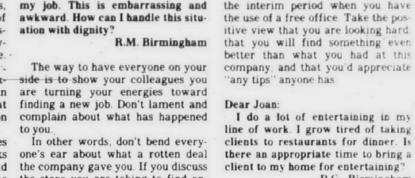

The table should be set for a guest. this means no paper napkins and plastic mats.

The bar should contain the kind of alcoholic (or soft) drink your guest prefers

Although he will probably ask to help, the guest should not be allowed in the kitchen.

The small children of the house should not be running under foot. It is fine to have them greet the guest and stay for a short while.

Natural gas storing nearly completed

With autumn activities nearing full swing and an extra snap in the weather, Consumers Power is putting finishing touches on one of its most important tasks - storing natural gas for the coming winter.

Beginning in the early 1960s, Consumers Power began storing natural gas in large, porous-rock underground fields in Macomb and St. Clair counties. These areas had been owned by Panhandle Eastern Corp.

The use of these fields increased until today the 13 fields operated by Consumers or a subsidiary have a total working gas storage capacity of 160 billion cubic feet - about 60 percent of the total volume used by the utility's gas customers in the course of an average year.

The storage fields help keep bills from rising faster. Because the fields store gas year round, the utility can buy gas at lower prices in the spring and summer when market demand for gas is lower "Michigan has one of the more ideal natural gas storage operations in the country." said Bill Beaudua. area field supervisor for Consumers Power's St. Clair gas storage and production fields.

"Because of the geological structure of our fields, more pressure can be exerted, meaning more gas can be stored and recovered more quickly," Beaudua said.

is as important as putting in large volumes during the off-season. On a cold winter's day, 65 percent of all gas delivered to the utility's customers can be supplied from storage.

In coming weeks, the utility will stop storing gas for this year. In early spring, after the fields are depleted from gas demand during the winter. gas from pipeline suppliers is pumped back in The injection process continues until mid-October or later, depending on weather and customer demand.

Recently, reciprocating engines were installed for the Ray Field in Macomb County, the largest single Consumers Power field, with a total cyclic storage capacity of 44 billion cubic feet.

The new engines use less fuel to operate while pumping more gas than former turbine units.

"One of the primary benefits of our fields is that we can respond rapidly to the need for gas, due to the superior physical makeup of this area." said Tim Zobl, supervisor of the compressor station at St. Clair.

This quality makes the St. Clair storage fields a prime candidate for storing part of the natural gas supply required for the Midland Cogeneration Venture, scheduled for operation in early 1990. Injection of gas in warm months and recovery of gas in cold months is coordinated by Getting gas out of storage quickly Consumers Power's gas control center in Jackson.

Demand charts guide pricing

Economics was probably one of my least-favorite subjects in school, especially when it came to discussing the "laws" governing supply and demand. It wasn't until years later that I began to understand how demand and supply analysis actually works.

This week's column explains how changes in price and quantity demanded assists business owners in identifying how target customers view a company's product or ser-

This information may then be used to help set the price customers are willing to pay, where it should be made available, and how enthusiastic customers are to obtain it - if at

Economists believe that customers cannot buy everything they want. Because most customers have a set income, they are forced to choose among alternatives in meeting their specific product or service needs. Customers are assumed to analyze how each choice will make them feel (better or worse) or how each will in some way improve (or change) their buying situation.

One relationship between price and quantity is known as the "law of diminishing demand," which says that if the price of a product goes up, a smaller quantity will be demanded. If the price of the product is lowered, a greater quantity will be demanded.

A "demand curve" graphs the relationship between price and quantity for a given product market, assuming that all other things stay the same. Most demand curves are downward-sloping because they show how a drop in price correlates with the associated increase in customer demand. Business owners are interested in how the prices set influence total revenue for the product or service. Their goal is to find a price that encourages customers to buy enough products to increase total revenue. A company's demand curve will typically show how a drop in price means an increase in demand.

But it may also show an associated decrease in total revenue as pricgo down. As a result, the curve may be quite steep.

A steep demand curve means that customer demand is not "stretching" enough to avoid a decrease in total revenue for the product. This phenomenon suggests that the product has an "inelastic demand."

In contrast, "elastic demand" means that if prices dropped, the quantity demanded would stretch enough to increase total revenue.

Elasticity of demand can then be defined in terms of changes in total revenue. If total revenue would increase as the price is lowered, then demand is elastic.

If total revenue would decrease as the price is lowered, then demand is inelastic.

Now is the time to clear out those closets, attics, basements and garages and make some quick cash in the process.

How do you plan a garage sale?

It's easy!

Just follow these simple guidelines:

1. Gather together the items you have for sale. Sort them into appropriate categories and price them fairly.

2. Place a classified advertisement in The Observer & Eccentric by calling one of the numbers below.

3. Hang signs throughout your neighborhood alerting residents to the upcoming sale.

4. Decide what to do with all the money you'll have after your sale!

Writing a classified ad that gets results-whether it be for real estate, employment, the personals, transportation, or merchandise- is easy if you follow the guidelines below.

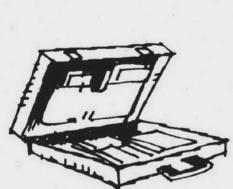

3

1. Give the reader specific information. Pretend you are someone reading the classifieds. what would you like to know about the item, service or job you are advertising? Be sure to add details such as color, size, condition, brand name, age, features and benefits. Be accurate! Don't embellish your ad with misleading information. Stick to the facts and reap the rewards!

2. Include the price. Don't waste your time or a potential buyer's time. If you advertise the price of the item or service you offer, the people who respond to your ad will be those who are genuinely interested. Surveys show that readers are more interested in those items and services they know are within their price range.

3. Avoid abbreviations. Don't make a potential customer work too hard! Although you may be tempted to cut down on the cost of your ad by using abbreviations, surveys indicate that many people don't understand such abbreviations as EIK (eat-in kitchen) or WSW (white side wall) tires and won't take the time to figure them out. A confused reader is a disinterested reader. Get the most for your money and use complete words.

4. Include phone number and specify hours. Be sure to let potential customers know when and where to call. Surveys show that even if a person is very interested in your item or service, he or she will not call back after the first attempt. Stay near the phone during the hours you indicate you will be available. Don't risk missing a sale!

5. Run on consecutive days. Your ad will not get results if people don t see it! Therefore, it is important to set up a consistent and consecutive ad schedule with your telephone salesperson or outside sales representative.

Relay winner Canton looms as favorite

Balanced lineup key to victory

sda, September 22 1988 O&F

By Dan O'Meara staff writer

As an aspiring champion in girls swimming. Plymouth Canton has more than just talent going for it.

The Chiefs also have history on their side after winning the annual Western Lakes Activities Association Swimming and Diving Relays Saturday

Since the league was organized in the early '80s, the winner of this early-season meet has never failed to capture the WLAA crown in Novem-

"I'd like it if it works out that way," said Canton coach Hooker Wellman, who obviously was thrilled to win the relays but not ready to assume anything else.

Northville was fifth, and they have as good a shot at the league meet as anybody. You look at Churchill's lineup, and you don't see how they can lose the league meet."

THE CHIEFS, placing no lower than fourth in any event, rolled up 242 points to hold off Churchill, which made an impressive showing with a 221 total.

Defending champion North Farmington was third (218), Plymouth Salem, which was eighth in the final tally last year, looks like a true challenger with its fourth-place finish (210)

Northville, rated No. 9 in the state, followed with 208 points, and perennial power Livonia Stevenson was sixth (152)

"I was surprised with some of our swims," said Churchill coach Lawrence Hein after watching the ing, and it's taken this long to learn Chargers set a meet record in the how to set up a lineup for that kind 200-yard freestyle. "Our goal was to

erts and Cassie Cummins finishing relay lineups 10 seconds ahead of Salem's team at 4:31.86

EVEN BEFORE that, the Chiefs were well on their way. They opened with a third in the 400 medley and, with remarkable consistency, had five straight seconds in the 400 freestyle, 200 breaststroke, 200 backstroke, 200 butterfly and diving.

'I wanted to make the relays fast, but I wanted to make all of them fast." Wellman said. "I didn't want to have one weak relay.

This is my eighth year of coachof meet.

The Chiefs used 22 athletes, including a handful of the team's 15 freshmen, and nobody competed in more than two events.

When I got there and looked at the times, I saw we were sitting in the best position, because we were seeded no lower than fifth," Wellman said

"THEN WE STARTED moving up, and I realized the times I had turned in were legitimate times and we were going to hold our own."

Among the key contributors were Lori Engelhuber, Brugar and junior standouts Nicole Drake and Cummins. Engelhuber swam a 251/2-second split in the 200 free and also was Association Swimming and Diving Relays. Cummins helped the Chiefs to their only first-place finish in the individual medley.

Brugar also was part of the breaststroke foursome, Cummins the 400 medley team. Drake's contributions were made in the 400 free and crescendo.

"(Brugar) has come into her own, and she's become more versatile than I ever thought she would," Wellman said. "When we need a depth person, I can count on her to be there.

"I can count on (Cummins and Drake) to do anything, and it's nice to have people like that on the team."

SENIOR CAPTAINS Sarah Schmitz and McLenaghan swam two events as did Kelly Rische, Val Gildhaus, Renee DeBell, Cheri Woodward, Kristin Moore, Nichole Montresor, Roberts, Erica Carson, Beth had to deal with when the Chiefs assumed the role of frontrunners.

'Half way through I was my usual, nervous self," Wellman said. "After the diving I calmed down.

"I told one of the coaches I liked it before when we were the underdog and were challenging the guys up front. I could let loose, run around, get the kids going and upset people.

'We've been in positions before to do good things, and I was afraid something might go wrong," he added. "But I realized that was ridiculous. Once I calmed down and let myself enjoy it, it was a real thrill."

Despite winning four events, Northville couldn't match Canton's balance. North won two events, the 400 medley and crescendo, Stevenson and Farmington one each.

O&E playoff fortunes shift to favor Hedges

By C.J. Risak staff writer

Evaluating the three golfers teeing up at Whispering Willows' first hole for a championship flight playoff in the Observer & Eccentric mens tournament Sunday, the favorite had to be John Van Vleck of Farmington Hills.

He was a three-time former champion (1976, '77 and '83); he was playing in his final O&E tournament (he is moving to Brighton), so he had added incentive; and he had displayed a knack for the remarkable this summer, surviving four previous playoffs to qualify for the U.S. Amateur, the Golf Association of Michigan tournament, the Michigan Amateur and the U.S. Open.

It had been a season of miracles for Van Vleck. Even after a poor second round of 76 - he shot 70 Saturday to tie John Smith of Plymouth and Craig Henriksen of Farmigton for the tournament lead -Van Vleck was still in the running.

Smith also had a 76, and Jim Hedges of Birmingham had the day's best round, a 74, to tie at five-overpar 146.

BUT ALL STREAKS come to an end. Van Vleck seemingly had the tournament wrapped up on both the first and second holes, but it was his opponents who pulled off astounding shots to stay alive. Then on the third hole - the easiest of the three bad fortune descended upon Van Vleck like the sudden storm that swept toward the course.

And Hedges took full advantage, playing his steadiest golf of the overtime to claim his first O&E championship.

"I thought the party was over," said Van Vleck after the first overtime hole. "These guys came up with a couple of great shots

STEVE FECHT/staff photograph

John Smith of Plymouth missed this putt on the final playoff hole.

They did just that. But there's need for an asterisk here; for now. Hedges is the "provisional champi-on." Moments after completing the playoff, the storm came, forcing a wash-out of the afternoon session.

THE WINNERS of the first and second flights must still be decided. and at least two members of the afternoon session - Murray Brooks of Westland and Joe Borkowski of

Troy, who had 75s on Saturday had a shot at the championship flight title

Those who were in the running for prizes will play their entire 18-hole round Sunday at Whispering Willows (tee times start at noon; call 476-4493 for times)

Hedges' victory surprised him as much as anyone else. The Birmingham Groves graduate started the playoff in trouble and stayed there on each of the first two holes.

"I was up against the wall," he said afterward. "My wedge saved me. To be honest with you, I thought I was out of it on the second hole.'

IT TOOK a near-perfect shot to get Hedges — and Smith, for that matter - to the second playoff hole. Hedges left his second shot on the par-five, 475-yard first hole sitting in the deep rough just past the bunker, 15 yards short of the green. Van Vleck was on the green 20 feet from an eagle.

Hedges' chip was perfect, rolling to within six inches of the almostimpossibly placed pin (on a mound, three feet inside the right fringe). Smith also had a big problem; his second shot was right of the green, with a bunker lying between. He had no room for error, and he made none, pitching to within 21/2 feet.

Van Vleck two-putted, giving all three birdies and taking them to hole No. 2.

AGAIN. TROUBLE loomed for Hedges and Smith. Van Vleck's tee

Winners — for a while Borgess dropout costs PC boys title

By Brad Emons staff writer

The Olympic Games in Seoul isn't the only place where results can change and a new winner declared.

Meet officials had to do some refiguring in boys team standings after a runner from Redford Bishop Borgess dropped out of the 3,000-meter race during Saturday's 23rd running of the Schoolcraft College Invitation-.al

As it ended, Farmington captured its fifth straight boys crown after it appeared Plymouth Canton had won the meet by a point.

But on the girls side there was no such confusion as Canton ran away with the title, outdistancing Livonia Stevenson and RU (See statistical summary.

'Congratulations, Jim, it looks like you got us by a point," said Farmington coach Jerry Young prematurely to Canton's Jim Hayes before the final boys point totals were announced.

/Originally, Canton scored 91 points and Farmington 92, but since one of the five Borgess runners quit, its places and point totals were thrown out, moving up all the other teams' runners.

recounted, both Canton and Farmington each had 87, but the tie was runner, Matt Langdon, who finished it," said the Canton coach.

36th overall, beat out Canton's sixth man. Jason Napolitano, who was 40th

'I feel bad for Canton, but I'll take it." Young said "We ran well, but the times were a little inflated because the course was short

We wanted our guys to run in a little tighter group, but the humidity was tough

Farmington's five finishers included Brad Moore (ninth), Ben Goba (13th), Greg Endres (15th), Mark Mitchell (23rd) and Paul Brandt (32nd)

"Our kids are not experienced running up front because of some of the kids we've had in the past," Young said. "But this meet will give us confidence

Knowing the rules beforehand, Hayes was not at all upset with the outcome.

We lost three good kids to graduation, including Jay Swiecki (an All-Area harrier)," he said. "I told our team we'd be in there. I can't be anything but happy. It's a nice group of kids

CANTON WAS LED by Brian Beach, who finished fifth overall. He WHEN THE STANDINGS were had made great strides since taking ninth in last year's JV race.

'He (Beach) just asked me what he broken when Farmington's sixth had to do to improve and he's done

The Chiefs also got a 16th from sophomore Mike Ream, a 19th from Brian Callon, a 24th from Jim Gallagher and a 27th from Matt Hall.

"I'm happy because a guy like Ream has just come out of nowhere," Hayes said.

While there was recalculating of the team standings, it was no contest because the meet's best individual is one of the state's premier long-distanc runners: Brian Grosso of Walled Lake Western. He burned up the course with a time of 15:09.6, finishing comfortably ahead of Walled Lake Central's Mark Kwiatkowski (16:06.9), Novi's Rob Rasmussen (16:19.0) and Wayne Memorial's Dave Richards (16:23.2).

Also named to the All-SC Invitational team (the top 10) was Borgess's Jim Handel, sixth overall, 16:27.0, North Farmington's Jason Kacembo, seventh in 16:28.0, and Farmington Harrison's Jeff Barringer, eighth in 16:28.5.

CANTON'S GIRLS, meanwhile, captured their second straight title as expected, scoring 39 points to Stevenson's 70. Redford Union edged out Farmington for third, 94-96. The Chiefs demonstrated their vast depth, showing they could overcome of the loss of Lori Penland, who dropped out because of an asthmatic condition.

Although Walled Lake Central's Colleen Yuhn won the race in 19:44.9, Canton had four girls finish in the top 10 including Cindy Spessard, sixth, 20:21.6; Lynda Schendel, seventh, 20:24.1; Kris Marquard, 20:25.2; and Cathy McCabe, 10th, 20:26.2. Canton's fifth runner, Missy Jasnowski, took 13th.

"It's something when your top runner drops out and everybody else picks up the slack," said Canton girls coach George Przygodski, who guided his team to an 11th-place finish in last year's state Class A meet. "We don't have anybody that can break away from the top five, but they all run within 20 seconds of each other. They're a very close-knit group. chelle Gayney, third in 20:06.4.

They've done a lot to improve themselves. They ran most of the summer together. They went to camp together

STEVENSON MAY provide Canton's biggest challenge in the Western Lakes Activities Association this fall

The second-place Spartans ran impressively, despite one of its top runners dropping out because of the flu, Tracey Clark.

Karen Kuphal paced Stevenson with a fourth-place finish in 20:08.9. Rounding out the Spartan contingent was Suzanne Moore (11th), Pat Bagley (19th), Carrie Creehan (24th) and Julie Eiserman (25th).

"It shows we have more than one runner," said Stevenson coach Paul Holmberg. "We hope to narrow the gap, but we're not there yet. Julie Eiserman did a heck of a job. That saved us.

And another team to watch this fall, RU, where coach Bob Ouellette's team has taken giant steps.

The Panthers recorded their best finish since 1983 as Liza Mockeridge was fifth, followed Michelle Daraban (12th), Kelly Murray (21st), Tracey James (22nd) and Kim Lazarz (48th).

Other Observerland runners making the top 10 (All-Invitational team) were Farmington's Jennifer Kiel, who was second to Yuhn with a time of 19:51.5, and Bishop Borgess's Mi-

Rocks entering WLAA season perfect in duals

Plymouth Salem, riding the crest of its early-season momentum, trounced Brighton for its second dual-meet victory without a loss Tuesday, 106-66.

The Rocks, swimming in their own pool, avenged a 30-point loss to the Lady Bulldogs last year.

"It was a good win," Salem coach Chuck Olson said. "I was very pleased with the way the girls swam.

The victory came on the heels of Salem's fourth-place showing Saturday in the Western Lakes Activities Association Relays. Plymouth Canton won the annual meet.

"Even though they swim red

NICOLE BOSSE won two freestyle races against Brighton and anchored the winning freestyle relay team. In fact, all of Salem's individual winners had a hand in one of the relay victories.

Bosse was timed at 27.2 in the 50-yard free and 1:001 for 100 relay members Trish Hill and Erin Olson prevailed in the backstroke and breaststroke, respectively, with times of 1:11.3 and 1:12.9.

Hill and Olson also swam the first half of the medley relay, turning the event over to teammates Julie Hickey and Jodi Thomas to finish in 2:04.7.

Salem's Carrie Vanderweele, Tina Brogan, Candi Bosse and Andrea Alex were second in the medley at 2:08.1.

'In the past, (Livonia) Stevenson has always been so much better than everybody else," said Olson of the upcoming WLAA race.

"North Farmington was kinda superior to the rest of the conference last year. There are some

In its first four games, Plymouth Salem served notice it intends to be a factor in the Lakes Division girls basketball race once again.

The Rocks made that official Tuesday night when they opened defense of their title by whipping Walled Lake Central 61-46 at home.

Salem, 5-2 overall, defeated Trenton and Farmington Mercy and played well in losses to state-ranked Okemos and Plymouth Canton previously

"Everybody thinks our team is going nowhere without (former All-American) Dena (Head), but I think we're going to surprise a lot of people," senior Jill Estey said.

As they did in the Mercy game, the Rocks prospered without a lot of points from Estey, who had nine. It was assumed she would have to shoulder much of the scoring load this year, but that hasn't always been necessary.

"We've got other people who are looking to score, but Jill is going to have her big games," Salem coach Fred Thomann said. "If you go back and check, I'm sure she had 10-12 assists (Tuesday)."

The Rocks, in fact, had their most balanced scoring in any of their five games. Wendy Bailey led with 13 points, and senior Teri King scored 12. Sarah Ruete and Chris Simpson 'added eight apiece and Lydia White

"That's the good thing about our team," Estey said. "When my shots aren't on, others come through. We all complement each other."

Salem, winner of the last three Lakes titles, simply overpowered everybody in its division last year, but Central, 3-3, was still one of the better teams.

The Vikings were tied with Salem at halftime Tuesday, 26-26, but the Rocks took control in the third quar-

With seven players scoring, Salem outpointed Central 24-9 and carried a 15-point lead into the finale. The Rocks forced Central into some halfcourt turnovers and converted while the Vikings were out of position defensively.

Central went to the free-throw line plenty in the last period, but it got no closer than 15 points. Kelly O'Hanlon and Tania Smith scored 15 points apiece for the losers, and the latter also pulled down 15 rebounds. Thomann was pleased to see Sa-win going away without Estey having to do a disproportional share of the work.

"I've said all along this team would have to get some experience, so we're not known as a one-player team," he said. "I think that's coming about."

Salem's game at North Farmington on Thursday night will be an important division contest. The Raiders come in 4-1 overall.

"If we're going to contend, North is a team that has to be dealt with," Thomann said. "They've got a fairly quick team, the kind of team that could give us trouble, I think."

Estey is confident but thinks the Rocks need to be more methodical in their approach this season.

"Last year, our natural talent would pull us through," she said. "This year, we have to play our hardest; we can't take anybody light-

"We've got a young team, and we've just got to take one team at a time.

CANTON 57, W.L. WESTERN 45: The guard play of Jenny Russell, Amanda Bell and Michelle Fortier gave Plymouth Canton a boost Tuesday at Walled Lake Western.

The trio combined for 34 points in Canton's division-opening win. The Chiefs raised their record to 5-1 overall. Western fell to 1-4.

Canton, the defending Western Division champ, was down 9-4 and trailed by one point after one quarter. But it outscored the Warriros 24-7 in the second quarter and led 32-16 at halftime.

Bell scored 13 points, making two 3-pointers, and Fortier added 12, eight in the second half. Russell scored nine for the winners.

"The key to the game was our guard play," coach Rob Neu said. 'They led us in scoring and did a job handling the ball."

Canton captured the Farmington Mercy Hoops Classic last Saturday, and Neu thought the Chiefs may have been sluggish because of it Tuesday.

"This is a veteran team coming off a big weekend," Neu said. "It took a while to get focused. But once they did we put it away. It wasn't Jenny Adkins scored 12 of her 14 points, sparking a 23-8 run in the final quarter to propel Belleville to a 64-49 non-league girls basketball victory Tuesday at Garden City.

The loss drops GC to 3-3 overall, while Belleville upped its mark to 3-2.

The host Cougars led 41-33 midway through the third period, but unraveled after the Tigers successfully orchestrated a zone press.

Senior guard Christy Garrett paced the victors with 16 points.

Senior guard Kim Reith notched 15 for GC. while senior center Kim Falkowski collected 12 points and 11 rebounds.

Junior forward Kari Jones, making her first start, added 11, hitting seven of eight free throws.

The Cougars, who normally shoot 39 percent from the field, made only 15 of 50 shots for 30 percent. Belleville, meanwhile, was 28 of 52.

RU 26, CLARENCEVILLE 17: In a low scoring game Tuesday, host Redford Union was able to notch its first win in three starts

Senior Janine Sorel paced the winners with 12 points and eight rebounds, while freshman center Shannon Morris hauled down 16 rebounds.

Kelly Anspach tallied nine points for the Trojans, who dropped to 2-2 overall shot on the green, 30 feet to the left of the cup. But his try for birdie was a foot short, and he settled for par.

But Hedges saw his roll into the thick woods on the right. With 180 yards and a pond to negotiate, it seemed impossible. But he hit his four-iron hard and the ball carried to within 20 feet of the green.

Vleck's luck changed. No. 3 (parfour, 443 yards) is wide open, with a slight bend to the right but with few obstacles. But Van Vleck found one, hitting a small tree on the right with his drive. Then, compounding his problems, he hit another tree of equal stature with his second shot.

third shot was excellent - stopping six feet from the pin.

Hedges' tee shot was dead-center in the fairway and his second reached the green, 35-feet short of the pin. Smith had the farthest drive down the right side, but his second shot ended up in the rough 20 feet from the green. From there he chipped to within six feet.

THE WEATHER was deteriorating quickly, and tournament director Gary Whitener informed all three this would be the last playoff hole until the storm cleared. It was all they needed. Hedges left his birdie

He was lying three and was still try seven feet short; Smith's par-putt first this year. Hedges tied for fifth 150 yards from the pin. But that rolled past. When Hedges made par, Smith was out of the running for first.

Which left Van Vleck, who had to sink his six-footer to tie. He hit it well, but the ball circled the cup and stayed out, giving Hedges the win. The scrambling style he needed to claim the win cemented Hedges' self-chosen nickname: "master of disaster." He needed to be just that to survive, and not just in the overtime. "I three-putted four times," he said of his Sunday round. "My iron play was halfway decent. In what may have been one of the most stirring football comebacks in the school's history, Redford Catholic Central erased an 18-point halftime deficit Saturday, rallying for a 22-18 victory over Ann Arbor Pioneer before a large crowd at Livonia Clarenceville.

By Brad Emons

staff writer

Chris Johnston fired a 71-yard halfbackoption pass to Mike Mathis with only 3:26 remaining to give CC the victory in a rematch of last year's state Class A championship game.

Coach Tom Mach of the Shamrocks was nearly beside himself after orchestrating the comeback. The win also broke Pioneer's three-game hex against CC dating back to 1986

"It's got to be one of our greatest victories ever," said Mach, whose team is now 3-0. "It was a great example of believing and never giving up. To come back like that is utterly fantastic."

CC football rally stuns Pioneers

Faced with a third-and-1 situation on their own 29, Mach, with the help of his assistants in the press box, called the game-winning play.

"THERE WAS a feeling we had to do something because we were so deep in our own territory," explained the CC coach. "We didn't think we could drive the ball at that stage because they (Pioneer) had been so physical. And we figured we had done 'run sweep' enough.

Johnston laid the ball perfectly into the hands of Mathis, who had cheated nearly 15 yards on the stunned Pioneer cornerback by the time he caught up with the ball. Mathis then took it the rest of the way unmolested.

"It's a 100-percent pass play and something we work on once in awhile," said Johnston. "We came out to fake the run and I just saw him (Mathis) open.

Pioneer had two more cracks to regain the lead, but one drive was thwarted by a Greg Paler interception with 3:14 left, while the other, with less than a minute remaining, was sealed by a Ryan Bell sack.

But Pioneer was a different team in the first half, outgaining CC in total yardage, 276-64.

Ann Arbor scored on the third play from scrimmage, a 68-yard run by sophomore Damon Jacobs.

In the second quarter, Rob Ferrari hit Aaron Bailey with a 58-yard pass and with 4:55 left in the half, Bailey scored again on a 35-yard run.

PIONEER WAS ALSO knocking on the door at the CC 1 as the halftime clock expired, but came up empty.

"The coaches were befuddled at halftime and didn't know what to say," Mach said. "They (Pioneer) were blowing holes wide open through our line.

"I think we played so poorly because we were over-hyped up. We just told them to just play football, have fun and don't worry about making mistakes."

CC made an about-face in the second half. getting on the board midway through the third quarter on a '38-yard pass from quarterback Scott Hauncher to Sean O'Keefe. (Pete Elezovic kicked the extra point to make it 18-7.)

The Shamrocks struck again early in the fourth quarter, going 54 yards in 11 plays, capped by David Owens' 1-yard sweep on fourth down. A Hauncher keeper on the twopoint conversion made it 18-15

After Elezovic's 41-yard field goal try missed with 7:27 left, CC's awakened defense stiffened to set up Johnston's game-winning

"I've never had such a tremendous feeling as a coach," Mach said. "And I've never felt the lows and highs of a game like this one. It was so dramatic.

Will top-ranked Harrison football be pressed by Franklin?

By Dan O'Meara and Brad Emons staff writers

In terms of preseason favorites, three weeks of high school football have produced the expected results, with a few surprises.

Farmington Harrison, Redford Catholic Central, Westland John Glenn and North Farmington were considered the teams to watch back in August. To no one's surprise, all four are undefeated as Observerland ballclubs gear for Round No. 4.

As for this week's action, Harrison expects to be tested by Livonia Franklin, and CC begins defense of its Central Division title against a potentially dangerous Redford Bishop Borgess squad.

North tackles defending Lakes Division tri-champion Livonia Stevenson, which could still live up to preseason billing despite its current injury problems.

The biggest surprise has been Plymouth Salem, which also boasts a 3-0 record. The Rocks began the year with a young, untested team, but they appear to be gaining confidence each week.

The prognosticators also came through last weekend's action in good shape. Brad Emons went 13-2 and gained a game on Dan O'Meara. who was 12-3. The season totals reflect a close contest, too. O'Meara is 35-10 and Emons 32-13.

Here are the predictions for the next slate of games:

FRIDAY'S GAMES (all 7:30 p.m. unless noted)

Redford Union at Edsel Ford, 3:30 p.m.:RU has won two straight, and Edsel Ford has lost two straight. So what gives? Are the Panthers really on the prowl? Have the tradition-rich Thunderbirds lost their clout? PICK - O'Meara says the Dearbornites still have the required muscle, but Emons disagrees.

Lutheran Westland at Liggett, 4:15 p.m.: The Warriors come into the game at 2-1 and fresh from a 42-28 shootout victory over Lutheran Northwest. Liggett is 0-3 and has yet to score a point So it looks like an easy game to pick, right? Well, it might not be the one-sided affair it appears to be. PICK - Liggett ekes out its first victory.

Liv. Churchill at Northville: Churchill boasts a 2-1 record, and the Mustangs are 1-2. But one wonders if that 35-14 loss Northville suffered at the hands of Farmington Harrison shouldn't be thrown out when picking this game. Otherwise, the Mustangs look pretty tough on paper. PICK - Northville is a team on the rebound this week

grid predictions

N. Farmington at Liv. Stevenson: A little history is in order here. We recall one year ago the host Spartans also were 1-2 at this point. But they started a sixgame winning streak that lasted for the duration of the '87 season when they surprised unbeaten John Glenn. And the Raiders come into the game with a 3-0 record. The question is whether Stevenson can do it again despite injuries. PICK - A strong defense wins for North.

Ply. Canton at W.L. Western: There's always one game that is more difficult than the rest in which to pick a winner. This is that game. Both teams are 0-3, and Canton coach Bob Khoenle must wonder what the Chiefs have to do for a victory. His team has lost two games by six points, including one to unbeaten Monroe. The bad news is Canton traditionally has trouble with Western. PICK Recent history is on the side of the Warriors, according to O'Meara. Emons thinks it's time to change that.

W.L. Central at Ply. Salem:The Rocks, 3-0, have served notice they intend to be a factor in the Lakes Division race. Their opponent is winless in three games. Salem's wishbone is more potent than in recent years with junior Ryan Johnson at quarterback. He called his own number on two TD runs last week in the Stevenson game and threw for another TD. PICK - It's yet another remake of Beau Geste. The Rocks give Walled Lake Central a Viking funeral.

Garden City at Woodhaven: Garden City, 1-2, blanked winless Inkster in its last game, but the host Warriors could be headed for a Northwest Suburban League title. Woodhaven is 2-1 and fresh from a win over Edsel Ford. PICK - The visiting Cougars are not ready to contend

Thurston at Melvindale: The Eagles still haven't gotten off the ground this season, losing their first three games. Melvindale, 1-2, has lost to Lincoln Park, one of the Downriver area's best teams, and Crestwood, 3-0. Here's a clue: the Cardinals beat Taylor Truman by two TDs, Thurston lost by three to Truman. PICK Melvindale keeps the Eagles out of the win column

Wayne Memorial at Lincoln Park: This is a key Wolverine A game for both squads, because each needs a win to stay in the race with Fordson and Monroe Both teams are 2-1 and have lost to Monroe. Emotion will be a factor here. Wayne roared back to slaughter Southgate 51-0 last week. But can the Zebras stay hot? Lincoln Park will be eager to regain its pride. But will the Railsplitters be hot enough? PICK - Wayne wins the coin toss.

DON'T GET CAUGHT

SATURDAY'S GAMES (all 1 p.m. unless noted)

Harrison at Liv. Franklin: This game should provide a test for the Hawks, but the same was supposedly true of last week's game with Northville. Harrison won that one 35-14. If the Hawks, rated No. 1 in Class B, prevail over the Patriots, they could have clear sailing to another Western Division title. On the other hand, Harrison struggled to beat Northville last year and pounded Franklin. Will it be just the opposite in '88? PICKS - O'Meara believes the Hawks are too explosive and too aggressive on defense. Emons is the only sportswriter in the state picking the Pats

John Glenn at Farmington: The Falcons just never get a break. Or so it seems in the first half of the season, Farmington has played undefeated opponents the last two weeks and faces another in John Glenn. While the visiting Rockets have won their last two games by shutout, winless Farmington is still looking for its first point. PICK - The schedule - not to mention John Glenn - deals the Falcons another cruel blow.

Clarenceville at Lutheran North: The prognosticators are disappointed in the Trojans, who were picked to win the last two weeks and lost each time. So what about this one? Well, the Mustangs are 1-2 but have lost to decent teams in St. Clair and Cranbrook. PICK - Maybe a change of pace will alter Clarenceville's fortunes. O'Meara favors Lutheran North. but Emons remains loyal to the Trojans.

St. Agatha vs. Ann Arbor Richard at Kraft Field, 7:30 p.m.: The Aggies have some momentum heading into division play after winning their first game last Saturday, 21-0 over Liggett. Gabriel Richard was 2-1 against non-league teams and usually fields a strong team. PICK -Look for the Fighting Irish to win this bat-

Bishop Borgess vs. Catholic Central at Garden City Junior High, 7:30 p.m.: The Spartans also got their first win last week, but it's unlikely the streak will continue. Not with Catholic Central up next. The Shamrocks, 3-0, will have to avoid a letdown, however, after their come-from-behind win over defending Class A champion Ann Arbor Pioneer. CC has to be riding an emotional high after avenging its 3-0 loss in last year's state final. PICK - The Shamrocks find continued success in their division open-

Agatha scored one touchdown in each the first, second and third quarters. Schick scored on runs of 41 and 15 yards Agatha's second quarter score came on a 15-yard pass to Ken Kroll, capping a 72yard drive

TRUMAN 20, THURSTON 0: Mar lin McKinney ran for one touchdown and threw for another Friday night, leading host Taylor Truman to a convincing 20-0 win over Redford Thurston.

The loss leaves Thurston winless in three games, 0-2 in the Tri-River League. Truman improved to 2-1 overall, 1-1 in the Tri-River.

The Cougars scored all their points in the opening half.

Several breakdowns, both offensively and defensively, contributed to the outcome, Thurston coach Bob Snell said.

"It looks like we saved our big mistakes for Friday." said Snell. "I'm proud of the way we hit, but our big breakdowns led to scores.

Thurston, held to 112 yards in total offense, missed an opportunity to score first when placekicker Eric Palmer's 20yard field goal attempt was wide. Defensive tackle Shane Berns set up the fieldgoal try by recovering a Truman fumble on its first possession at the 38-yard line McKinney scored Truman's first touchdown, scrambling 35 yards for the score in the first quarter. "We must have missed five or six tackles on that run, after we had him hemmed in," said Snell.

A Thurston fumble in the second quarter at its own 10-yard line led to Truman's second score three plays later. The Cougars last TD came on a 25-yard pass from McKinney to tight end, who was wide open in the secondary OMMUNITY THEATERS in Western Wayne County will treat audiences to interesting and varied venues during the 1988-89 season. Curtain time for all shows is 8 p.m.

The Theatre Guild of Livonia-Redford generally offers well-produced pieces of theatrical merit rather than the latest commercial hit. Theatergoers will have more of the same as the group begins its 35th season. President Maggie Lamb advises that there is a new number for ticket reservations and group information. It's 427-1905. Ticket prices are $6 regular shows, $8 for the musical.

TGLR begin with David Story's 'Home," a touching drama of elderly people and how they cope with their situations. The show opens a week later than originally scheduled. New performance dates are Fridays-Saturdays, Oct. 14-15, 21-22 and 28-29.

Next up is the delightful musical spoof, "Olympus on My Mind," in which we learn what happens when Jupiter comes to Earth in human form to seduce the beautiful Alcmene, wife of Amphitryon. Auditions are 2 p.m. Sunday and 7:30 p.m. Monday at the guild playhouse, 15138 Beech Daly one block south of Five Mile in Redford. Director Jim Posante asks that you come prepared with a song and bring the sheet music. Show dates are Friday-Saturday, Nov. 25-26, and Fridays-Sundays, Dec. 2-4, 9-11.

Plymouth Theatre Guild has a new home. It will stage the 1988-89 season at the Plymouth Hilton Inn, 14707 Northville Road.

TGLR closes its season with Hy Gardner's rambunctious little comedy, "I'm Not Rappaport," on April 14-15, 21-22 and 28-29.

Trinity House Theatre works out of its own theater at 38840 W. Six Mile, Livonia. Tickets are $5, and the phone number is 464-6302. Most of its productions stress moral or ethical values.

Timma Peterman reports that Trinity will open the season with "Sentence to Life," by British playwrights Malcom Muggeridge and Alan Thornhill. Auditions are at 7:30 p.m. Monday-Tuesday at the theater. Show dates are Fridays-Saturdays, Nov. 11-12, 18-19, 25-26 and Dec. 2-3.

An evening of readings and workshop productions of original works is scheduled for the winter.

Trinity will present something very different from the usual community theater fare, T.S. Eliot's verse play, "The Cocktail Party," on April 28-29, and May 5-6, 12-13 and 19-20. On the surface it's a comedy of manners, the silly party, trivial chatter of life. At another level, however. Eliot examines the conflict of Christian values with the negatives of our culture.

THE PLYMOUTH Theatre Guild has a new home. It will stage the 1988-89 season at the Plymouth Hilton Inn, 14707 Northville Road. Ticket price for all shows is $5. For information, call 420-2161.

Oakland County is rich in community theater, and the 1988-89 season is already underway. Ticket prices range from $5 to no higher than $8, and the players are often experienced enough and talented enough to give_out-of-town companies and professional theaters stiff competition.

The Birmingham Village Players kicks off its 66th season with Neil Simon's "The Odd Couple." Directed by Bernie Greenberg, the cast includes Tom D'Agostino as Oscar Madison, Kim Fox as Felix Ungar, Paul Becker as Murray, Keri Sterns and Laurie Shea as the Pigeons, and John Miller, Phil Whelan and Jerry Weiner as Roy, Vinnie and Speed. 'Soul of Mexico' springs from life experiences

By Corinne Abatt staff writer

It takes a while to sink in. These colorful oil paintings, filled with people, fantasy and imagery, at Rubiner Gallery of West Bloomfield are indeed by Richard Kozlow, one of the Midwest's most respected landscape painters.

This is not to say he hasn't painted other things before. He has - everything from zoftig women to stark black and white paintings of the bullfights of Spain and unforgettable scenes of terror and anguish.

The Kozlows have spent a lot of time in Mexico. They lived there when their four daughters (now grown) were very young. The Kozlows have been back many times since, but until this series, "The Soul of Mexico," Richard Kozlow hasn't used it as a full-blown series subject.

HE DIDN'T even set out to do that this time; it just happened. At this point in his career, Kozlow is a great one for letting things evolve at their own speed without too much conscious planning and steering.

He remembered that when he and his wife, Lois, were vacationing in Guadalajara last year, he sat down outside to do a landscape. But a Mexican caretaker sat beside him the whole time he painted, so close it wasn't easy for Kozlow to continue working.

"I finally ended up painting him," Kozlow said with an air of "if you can't beat 'em, join 'em."

This portrait of the man with a mask became the first of this series.

"I really love the people of Mexico," Kozlow said. "I love their acceptance of life, their humor. Their lot in life isn't the greatest, but they have a way of handling it

"I did three while we were in Mexico. The rest were done here. There's a good two years' work here," he said.

THE REST, about religious feasts and holy days, life and death, temptation and survival, just flowed forth.

"For me, they've been a great revelation," Kozlow said. "The landscapes are so pristine. These are so complex. This is my first oil show. Everything has always been acrylic. There are a lot of masks and there's imagery all through.

'I collect masks," he said after a pause. He was standing in front of a painting titled "Semana Santa" ("Holy Week"). It is filled with costumed figures in a mass celebration. "These things get so complex," he said. "I get such a kick out of it. I just love what you can do with the paint. I really find the things you can do with paint just a delight."

KOZLOW HAD rounded the corner in the gallery and was in another section where a large portrait of a woman in a green dress was placed. Earlier he had mentioned how much he admired several Mexican muralists, among them Diego Rivera.

This painting, "Pandora," particularly has something of a Rivera quality to it. She is a peasant woman with a wonderful dignity about her. On shelves behind her are different kinds of masks, representing the ills of man that were kept in Pandora's box. This, like many of the paintings in the series, is highly allegorical, which is also part of the Mexican approach to life.

Kozlow had been asking himself for years why he didn't paint in oils, he said. Finally, some four years ago, a friend brought him some to try.

say, 'God, who painted these?'

KOZLOW NEVER thought about color when he worked on this series and didn't plan the paintings ahead of time, he said.

A lot of the skills that have served him so well "Oil opened up a whole new world. I can take over the years have come together now to make my drawing into the painting. For me, it filled a these paintings the culmination of many years of void. I'd look at the paintings in the studio and work. To the works, Kozlow brings his love of color, his talents as an illustrator, his narrative abilities and his highly tuned powers of observation.

> Combine these with a familiarity with cubism, a romantic nature and a deep respect of the material, and suddenly a completely different body of said he was as work emerges. In the works, Kozlow keeps all of surprised by these these things in balance with no apparent effort paintings as his and paints for the sheer joy of it.

The show continues through Wednesday, Oct. 19. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Tuesday-Friday, until 5 p.m. Saturday, 7001 Orchard Lake, the Mexican peo-West Bloomfield.

The name of a show of jewelry and works in clay, "In Unison," by Richard and Hannelore Fascizewski, is most appropriate. The opening reception is 2-5:30 p.m. Saturday at Troy Art Gallery, 755 W. Big Beaver, Troy. They not only share a home, a family and studio space in a picturesque location on the Clinton River in Mt. Clemens, they share a sense of humor and a love of art and sailing.

As of June, Fascizewski joined his wife as a full-time artist - he the jeweler who prefers fabricating to working with molds, and she the ceramist who likes to work in porcelain and raku.

"My preference is the two extremes - the low-fire raku and the high-fire porcelain," she said.

She said it was her husband who is responsible for introducing her to ceramics. They met when he was stationed in Germany during the Korean War. She was a fashion model in Frankfort and he had attended the University of Michigan, architecture and design, for two years.

While she had been interested in art in Germany, she didn't really get going with it until she came here and then not until 1973 when their two daughters were pretty well grown.

"I started with metal enameling and then I went into pottery. It was instant love. The clay really worked for me. What I had in my head, I could recreate in clay," she said. She studied at the art center in Mt. Clemens, at the Center for Creative Studies and then for four years at Pewabic Pottery. She now has four kilns in her studio, raku, salt and two electric.

"I am influenced by the ocean seashells and rock formations," she said. She picked up a porcelain bowl made of thin tubes to look like a plant from the ocean floor. "I got the idea for this from watching Jacque Cousteau . . . I was so impressed, I worked until 2 a.m. The tube bowls take a whole day - Richard has to cook

Now, both are successful studio artists.

She smiled and said, "We're not afraid to say yuck. Everybody you ask outside is always complimentaгу.'

He nodded in agreement and said, "I'm always asking her what she thinks of something and she does the same thing to me.'

The show at Troy Art Gallery will be their third joint show. Their first was in Heidelberg, Germany in 1983 and the second in Mt. Hope, Pa. last year. Some of the pieces are also a joint effort. He made the sterling silver stands for some of her raku pieces - a combination that is very striking.

The exhibit will continue through Oct. 15. Hours are 11 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Tuesday-Friday and until 4 p.m. Saturday.

Sullivan's creation, "Harry Moon," is also a swimmer - and a teacher, Moon's classroom methods are similar to his own, Sullivan admits, though acted out much more unconventionally. "He does what I only think about doing. Unlike Harry, I've always gotten along very well with the administrators."

tation writing short stories for Omni, Ellery Queen, Twilight Zone and other top magazines publishing genre fiction. But he admits that initially it wasn't his own marketing savvy that caused his stories to be published.

"Someone had to tell me that there were labels I might fit under," Sullivan said. "I just wrote. But having a mind full of mice and traps and things, I wrote quirky pieces that got called science fiction, even though I never read science fiction. I wrote what got called horror stories. I wrote western, romances, mainstream - though I never saw them as anything but my own brand of fiction.'

Sullivan says that though he was a classicist he'd always had an interest in science. "I would take crazy premises and social extrapolations and wed them, not really aware that there was a literature for this stuff. I guess I thought science fiction was monsters leaping across galaxies and the like. I didn't see where my stuff fit in."

FINALLY, AN EDITOR, on rejecting one of his stories, took the time to tell him, "This is science fiction. Send it along to Analog." He did and "Lo and behold," Sullivan said, "back comes a check for $337.50."

An editor of both westerns and horror stories invited Sullivan, through Sullivan's friend, western and mystery writer Loren Estleman, to submit a story for a "Best of the West" collection. To Sullivan's surprise, his submission, a story about a gunfighter and an 8-year-old boy, was subsequently nominated for a Golden Spur Award.

Maybe I added something new." Sullivan, 47, counts among his credits some 45 short story publica-tions, including several reprints. He

'Harry Moon' You just had to be there

HOMAS SULLIVAN'S novel, "The Phas es of Harry Moon" (E.P. Dutton, hardbound. $18.95) strikes me like this, even after a second reading. I want to tell you about the book but I don't want to tell you anything Does that make sense? No. Good. 'Harry Moon" is about love and hate and disappointment and redemption and all those good things that other books are about.

'The Phases of Harry Moon'' is a misnomer, just as "The World According to Garp" was not exactly so. In "Garp" we saw the world according to a lot of people. And in Sullivan's almost first novel. Harry Moon isn't the only one going through phases. There is a cast of seeming thousands, each character with a special place, each one with memorable words to speak. So why am I so reluctant to give out a line? Maybe because well, maybe because you just had to be there.

Harry Moon" is funny. Sometimes hysterically funny Sometimes so punfully funny it is your duty to groan out loud, reluctantly turning the page, knowing there's another pun, another double meaning in there somewhere -- and after that (afraid so) another one

"HARRY MOON" is aggravating, exasperating - and totally winsome, though I haven't the got the slightest idea why that is.

'Harry Moon'' made me want to cry. Not for Harry - never for Harry - but for the "victims:" for Winslow, Nino, Raymond.

But I'm rambling. Here's the story, in a nutshell. Four brothers, 16th century Cotswold nogoods, are banished by their father and choose the colonies as their stopping-off place. Drunken Jonathon, obsessed by water; clubfooted Samuel, the peeping Tom: Benjamin, the sneak-thief; and Alexander, the simple-minded. They each, in their own way, have disgraced the name of Moon Advance now to modern days, where we meet another generation of Moons. Thre are four brothers and a hapless though well-meaning father. Alice, their mother, having the strength of her own venerable ancestors, the Stanners, sees her sons like this "Nicki had become a thief. Stu a pervert. Stanley an addict, and Harry a manic depressive.

Only Harry becomes something else. Harry became a swimmer, a husband, a father and finally a teacher

Harry the swimmer is obsessed by water, as was his ancestor Jonathan before him, and by book's end. Harry's attempts to swim the English Channel bring the four contemporary brothers together, where they find themselves in attendance at the Bicentennial of the Moon Festival in the hills of Gloucestershire celebrating the death of Eramus Moon father of the early brothers four and no angel himself. He had been responsible for a "typhoid epidemic in 1769, the accidental poisoning of Bourke-on-the-Wold's water table in 1771, and the unintentional destruction by fire of the town cathedral in 1773,

The 27th Annual Writer's Conference sponsored by Oakland University and Detroit Women Writers fills the weekend of Oct. 14-15. Elmore Leonard will speak on Friday evening and conduct a workshop during the Saturday sessions. Award-winning poet and novelist Brad Leithauser gives the Saturday keynote speech. Thirty-two 70-minute sessions offer writing and marketing tips for both beginners and published writers by top agents, editors and writers. Call the Division of Continuing Education at Oakland, 370-3120 for more information.

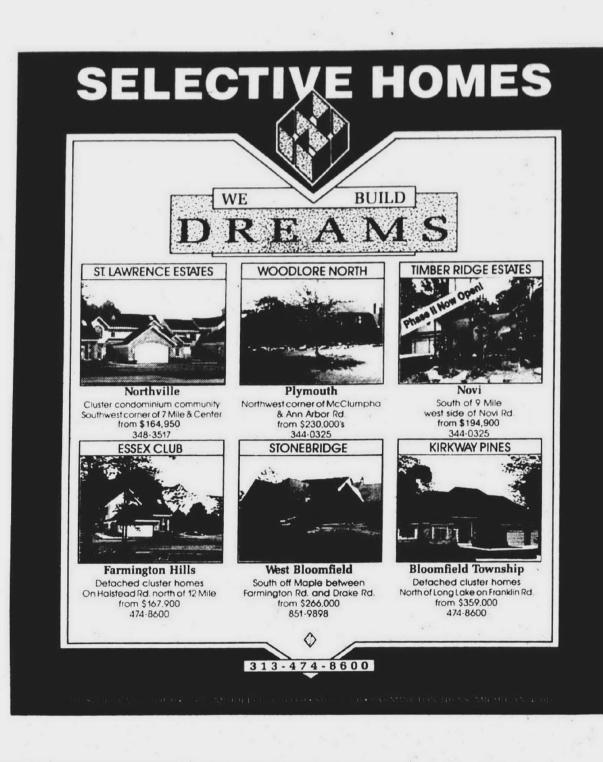

Feminist art public lectures are offered

Mariam Schapiro, a leader of the feminist art movement, will begin a series of public lectures, "Reviewing Feminist Art: A Look at Women's Visual Culture from Early Times to the Present," at the University of Michigan.

Schapiro's lectures are scheduled for 8:30 p.m. in Angell Hall Auditorium D on Friday, Sept. 23, Monday, Sept. 26, Tuesday, Sept. 27 and Wednesday, Sept. 28.

Schapiro is one of the pioneering figures in contemporary women's art," says Prof. Diane M. Kirkpatrick, who chairs the U-M Department of History of Art. "She began painting in the early 1950s, moving from abstract expressionism through hardedged symbolism and into what has been called 'decorative extravagance' in her current works. Along the way she created. with Judy Chicago, the nation's first major feminist art program at California Institute of the Arts and helped launch what would be called pattern and decorative art."

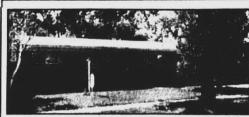

Kirkpatrick says that although Schapiro is best known for paintings and "femmage" - collages of painting and decorative items such as fabric and paper - she recently translated two figures from one of her paintings, "Pas de Deux," into a 40foot-high sculpture for the front of a Washington, D.C., area office building and is working on other sculpture commissions.

Until now, the original paintings, on loan from the General Electric Lighting Division, could only be seen hanging on the wall at the company's headquarters in Nela Park, Cleveland. The images, however, were seen across the nation during the first half of the century on product packaging, point-of-purchase displays, advertisements and calendars.

SOUP TUREENS EXHIBIT

Samples of European, American and Chinese porcelain, earthenware and silver will be on display at the tableware exhibit relating to the serving of soup, which will be on exhibit through Sunday, Oct. 9, at the Edsel and Eleanor Ford House in Grosse Pointe Shores.

The 100-piece "Kings, Queens and Soup Tureens" exhibit consists of artistic treasures made in over 18 countries. These objects are on loan from the permanent collection of the Campbell Soup Co. museum in Camden, N.J. Items included are soup tureens, bowls, plates and spoons from some of the world's most famous manufacturers.

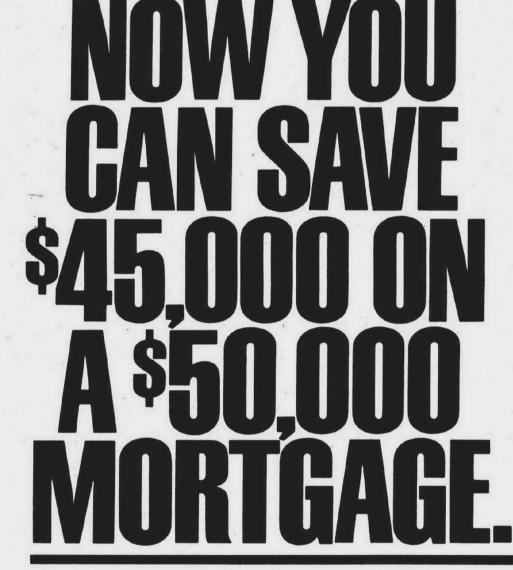

The exhibit may be viewed at the Ford House Wednesday through Sunday from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Guided tours are available at 11:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. on the same days. Admission is $1 for adults with no charge for children

It's as easy as coming to Comerica. Our low interest rate on our 20 year fixed rate mortgage makes it an affordable alternative to a 30 year mortgage. The result can be a savings of thousands of dollars. On a $50,000 mortgage alone, you could save $45,000* in interest. And even more on larger loans.

The interest saved reduces the total amount owed. So as you pay on your loan, the interest amount goes down and your equity goes up at a much faster rate.

Plus, when you have your payments automatically deducted, we'll give you a checking account free of monthly service charges for the life of your loan. That's an additional savings averaging $100 per year.

It's all part of our lending spirit at Comerica. Helping you to save wherever we can.

Find out how much you can save. Call 370-6072 for the name of the nearest Comerica mortgage representative. Or, just stop in any Comerica branch office. And ask for the 20 year mortgage that'll save you thousands.

Chidren's games party part of Ford celebration

The Henry Ford Estate-Fair Lane is making it easier to visit the auto magnate's home this fall during the 125th anniversary year of his birth. Located on the campus of the University of Michigan-Dearborn, the estate will offer guided, interpretive dours daily along with a once-amonth series of children's programs. The 1890s Party is a 90-minute program of games, activities, snacks and party favors for children. The party will be held at the miniature farmhouse on the Estate grounds beginning at 10 a.m., 12 and 2:30 p.m. on Saturdays, Sept. 24, Oct. 15 and Nov. 19.

a Reservations are required, and the activity is open only to groups of five-10 children. The cost is $6 per child with a $12-per-group deposit required.

In addition to the 1890s Party, daily tours of the estate will be offered during the fall months for the first time. Tours begin on the hour from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., except the noon hour, Monday through Saturday. On Sunday, tours begin continuously between 1 and 4:30 p.m. The tour fee is $5 for adults and $4 for seniors and By C.L. Rugenstein students. Children under 5 are admitted free. Pleasure loving Sybaris Gallery lives up to its name

special writer

YBARIS, THAT pleasure loving city in ancient Greece, gave us the word "Sybarite" to describe those who love to Also, three outdoor estate walks, surround themselves with luxury.

Sybaris Gallery in Huntington Woods, a new showplace for works of craft art, was begun with a similar idea.

"To surround yourself with art is luxury" explained Linda Ross, partner with Arlene Selik in the new ven-

But the artwork Sybaris Gallery brings to the area is not in the usual open weekdays for lunch from 11 vein - paintings or sculpture, or 'cutesy' gift - type offerings. The works displayed at Sybaris, the Gallery are part of a new wave called craft art - traditional handcraft pieces like bowls and urns, baskets and furniture that have transcended the functional to become fine art in their own right.

THE DEBATE ABOUT whether craft art is fine art still rages, however, with price being one determining factor.

When you can demand $25,000 for a piece (as controversial ceramicist Robert Arneson, father of 'funk' art can) it's no longer second class -

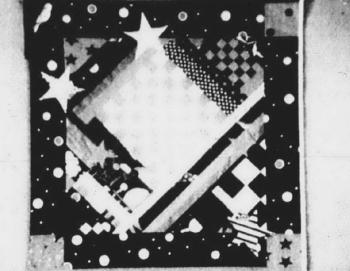

it's fine art," said Ross. "Craft art world

VISGIRDA IN HIS person and works illustrates also the blurring of two other distinctives between fine arts and craft art. Craft art utilizes the media of clay, glass, wood and metal. Oil-on-canvas, and marble bronze sculpture were the traditional media of fine art. VisGirdia is also university trained, (with a master of fine arts degree) as are a great many artists who chose to express them selves through craft art forms and media

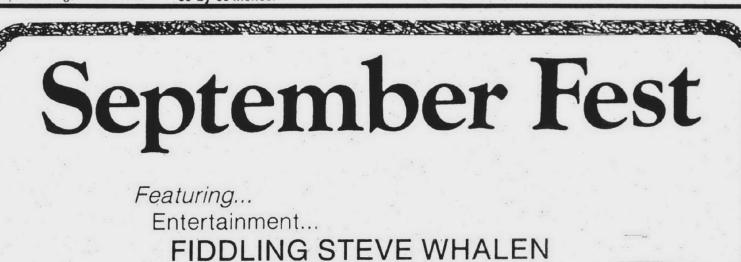

Mike Chipperfield is another artist represented at Sybaris. His works show a fascination with texture a fragile-looking small bowl was done in a Japanese method called Rakei

"It's taken from the kiln while red hot and put into combustible material (like sawdust), which burns to create a black smoke to burnish the pot and make it very porous," Selik explained.

Craft artists are experimenting with their media, she added 'They're pushing the boundaries of their particular media to see how far they can go - creating works very much out of the mainstream."

After years of dabbling in short stories, the best seller's list beckons to Lathrup Village's Tom Sullivan, who has finally broken into the hardcover market with DAN DEAN/staff photographer

"The Phases of Harry Moon." His story about the irreverent Moon family has garnered some interest from Hollywood film makers, he said.

tric ancestors - and one who ultimately re deems the family.

But to Sullivan the plot is secondary. "Plots are like vitamins; you get the nutrients, but nev-er savor the flavor," he says. Instead, he sees "Harry Moon" as the dumping ground for all the eccentricities in his head.

When you take away the boundaries and the rules, you can do anything. In 'Harry,' I've exorcised a lot of things and played with the themes I like to play with - namely contemporary relationships and social hypocrisy. But best of all, I got to play with the language - with puns and triple meanings - and I have to say I had a lot of fun with it. I hated to put it to rest."

The first draft of "The Phases of Harry Moon" took about 11 months to write. Sullivan made some changes over the next four years and finally sold it in 1986.

"I sold it largely because of the support from writers in this area," Sullivan said. "I've never felt I deserved the friends I've found among the people who sat through it and literally cried or laughed, or both.'

In his acknowledgements, Sullivan gives credit to the Bloomfield-based writers workshop/ salon he affectionately calls "The Society of the Black Bull" in honor of a long-overdue novel one of the members is writing.

It was there that Sullivan read "Harry Moon" from start to finish. When the book was finally done, "my friends who had listened to it, threw me a champagne party. Maybe they were just godawful happy to have it done, but it was incredible.

One of those writers recommended the editor Sullivan has now. After a few changes and a "pruning" that amounted to scrapping more than a quarter of the book, "Harry Moon" was born

"MY EDITOR (AT Dutton) believes in me," Sullivan said, "and I couldn't feel luckier. These days patrons are essential. If you're a mainstream writer, and you don't fit under a label, you're death to an editor.'

That same editor also purchased Sullivan's next novel, a horror story Sullivan was sure the mainstream publishers wouldn't want. "My agent sent it as a courtesy, really, but a week later they bought it," Sullivan said.

The book, "Born Burning," about a young boy and a mysterious chair made from a 2,000-yearold teak tree, will be released by Dutton in about a year.

Meanwhile, Sullivan is back to the mainstream, working on a new novel called "H.E.R.S & H.I.M.S" "It has a lot to say about relationships without passing judgment," Sullivan said. "It ought to offend everybody.

Nobody is suggesting that we should solve the problems of the world at the expense of our own families.

But, when we give less to charitable causes than we spend on frozen dinners and designer jeans, something is out of balance.

Suppose that, instead of the one or two percent most of us are giving now, we all raised our contribution level to five percent. Based on current income figures, we'd generate more than $175 billion for the causes we say we care about. The homeless. The environment. Religion. And the arts. Just to name a few.

So look at your own giving. And see if you can't find a way to do just a little more.

That minor change in your family budget could be the start of some major changes in your family's world.

Spectre collection was show highlight Gallery elevates crafts to fine art

Michigan Design Center's annual market last week was spec-tacular. The theme was SPECTRUM: Designer Preview XVII. There was an array of special speakers, seminars, demonstrations and of course the latest and best in interior fashions for home and commercial use.

More than 2,500 designers, architects, trade and industry professionals attended this exciting market.

Highlighting the day was internationally renowned furniture and fabric designer Jay Spectre. At the luncheon that afternoon: Spectre made his presentation, "Designing for the 20th Century

The presentation featured the Jay Spectre Collection, a 75piece collection of furnishings designed for Century Furniture Co. Spectre incorporates 86 years of this century's most exciting designs dating from World War I when Art Deco was the rage through the elegant '80s.

His work is influenced by the environment. Soft lines act as a cushion against the harsh reality that exists in the world and provide comfort and security. The B. Berger showroom in the center has a setting of his work consisting of upholstered furniture as well as dining room and occasional pieces.

Another point of interest was the Carlton-James showroom. The theme was Beauty - and it was beautiful. Kae Loni Rafko, Miss America 1988, was hostess for the evening.

The Carlton-James showroom has expanded and now there's room for an additional 300 pieces, Trouvailles, Ficks Reed, Widdicomb, Marbro and Frederick Cooper Lamps. The accessory items in this showroom are always special.

I was very taken with a screen I saw there. It is seven feet high with eight panels that make a mural in soft pastel tones. A column sits on either side of the screen and completes this dramatic setting. When I asked about its origin, I was surprised to learn this was made in Mainland China. Wonderful, wonderful pillows and wallhangings in handpainted fabric by Jessica Ramsey are a "must see" in the showroom.

As I approached the Gioia Showroom, my eye was immediately caught by streams of silk banners coming from the ceiling and spilling onto the floor. The banners are made of Dupione silk with black and gold metallic leaves running through the fabric. The handsome Bielecky Wicker furniture in the same setting is upholstered in contrasting tones of the same fabric Decorator's Walk showroom is a delight. Not only can you find fine upholstered furniture and case pieces, but the one-ofa-kind accessory items that make the room.

Every showroom is unique - I could go on forever - but these are things you should not just read about. Make a date with your designer to spend the day at the Center. You won't have to leave the building for lunch for there is now a small but delightful restaurant in the building

Like Yvonne Porcella. One wouldn't ordinarily rank quilts as fine art, but Porcella creates modernistic fabric paintings with narrative themes. Scenes in brilliant red, yellow, and black/white checks reminiscent of Purina critter chow bags adjure viewers to "Share the Milkbones of Life." Another quilt-tapestry in yellow, green, purple and the black/white checks muses profoundly, "It's About Beets and Perfume.

Would-be Sybarites will have a chance to see how well they've succeeded when they open the gallery for their first exhibit, titled "A Celebration of American Crafts: An Exhibit of Art in the Media of Clay, Wood, Fiber, Glass and Metal" The exhibit will run from Sept. 24 through Oct. 18, and Hope Palmer of the Birmingham Bloomfield Art Association will be the featured speaker. An opening reception will be held from 1-5 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 24.
