Spell check

Even though cruising season is now past, some reminders of that activity remain in the community.

Unfortunately, the reminders contain some interesting spellings.

For example, Gloria Hopfer of Plymouth Township reported on a sign at Dairy's supermarket on Main: "No following. Violators will be prosecuted." Our dictionary does not have a definition for prosecuted but does define a prosecutor as someone skilled in dissection. That may be an extreme penalty for following.

Another sign on a flower box on Main under the Mayflower Meeting House warns: "No trespassing on wall." That's not how we spell trespassing.

Art attack

Now that cool autumn days are here and remodeling and home maintenance efforts are under way, it also may be time to spruce up those walls.

Not with paint, but with art. Original art work is available for rent from the art gallery sponsored by the Plymouth Community Arts Council.

The gallery is on the second floor of the Deanning House Library. The gallery is open 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Wednesdays.

Rental fees are $5 per picture and money raised goes for new paintings for the gallery or to the arts council for grants and scholarships.

For more information about rental art, call 489-5110 Wednesdays.

In sight

Hunters can get ready for hunting season by checking in with the Western Wayne County Conservation Association. The group has scheduled its annual "Sighting in Days" at its range at 6700 Naples, between North Territorial and Five Mile.

Starting Monday, Oct. 17 and continuing through Monday, Nov. 14, the range will be open to the public. Hours will be 10 a.m. until 4 p.m.

A $5 fee is required to cover the costs of targets, benches, seed bags, spotting scopes and general upkeep. In return, shooters will receive assistance in adjusting their sights and scopes and preparing for the firearm season.

Rifles and shotguns can be sighted all week while handguns will only be worked on weekends. For more information, call 489-1844.

Money pledge

The Plymouth Jaycees have decided to concentrate some fund-raising efforts on St. Jude Children's Research Hospital.

The hospital conducts basic and clinical research on childhood diseases.

The local chapter has pledged $500 for St. Jude's. Fund-raising efforts start Sunday, Oct. 9, at the Skatin' Station.

A skating party is scheduled 8-11 p.m. with admission by donation. Participants will pay for their skate rental and concession items.

Money also can be donated to any members of the Jaycees.

Over coffee

English curriculum, college testing and the use of parent volunteers are on the agenda for the second parent coffee at Plymouth Center and Salem High schools.

The two principals of the schools will conduct the coffee. Cops will be filled starting at 8:30 a.m. Thursday, Oct. 14.

Hollywood in Plymouth

Steve Guttenberg waves outside the Mayflower Meeting House Friday before saying "I do" to Westland native and model Denise Bixler, a 1983 John Glenn graduate. A rabbi and priest officiated and a reception immediately followed. Young girls occasionally walked by hoping for a glimpse of the star made famous in "Three Men and a Cradle," "Police Academy," "Diner" and "Cocoon." Despite the tuxedo, Guttenberg, 30, known for his antics, walked into the Meeting House holding a pair of tennis shoes.

Businesses split on liquor license

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

A Plymouth banquet house and catering business opening without a liquor license has raised concerns among area restaurant and bar owners and at least one city official.

In November, Nick Ristich, operator of the Cozy Cafe, plans to open The Plymouth House in what used to be the Agape Christian Center at Main and Amelia.

People renting the 14,500-square-foot banquet hall for corporate parties, weddings, showers and dinners are being told that they will be allowed to bring in their own liquor, beer and wine.

Ristich has not yet applied for a liquor license and won't divulge his plans. But, he said, "We're making a very substantial investment that warrants some type of liquor license. We're not talking about opening up a little nothing here."

Ralph Lorenz, Plymouth developer and property owner, says he'd have no trouble with Ristich's business, if it's licensed.

"If he gets a license, fine," Lorenz said. "I don't think anyone would object."

"But if you're operating without a license and there's an accident, who's responsible? If he gets a license, God bless him. We'll send flowers to him," said Lorenz, whose family owns the Mayflower Hotel and Meeting House. "It's like driving a car without a license. If I have to have a license to drive, I want my neighbor to have one."

Lorenz said he fought for 32 years to make liquor by the glass legal in Plymouth. Voters finally approved the measure in 1966, he said.

JOHN STORA, deputy director in charge of licensing with the Michigan Liquor Control Commission, said banquet halls "don't come under the jurisdiction of our staff. If the man (Ristich) is going to lease out a banquet facility for weddings and furnish food, determining whether there's any violation of the law would be up to the city's prosecuting attorney."

It's OK as long as "the chief law enforcement officer has no objections to that type of operation," Stora said.

Ron Lowe, Plymouth's prosecuting attorney, couldn't be reached for comment.

'It's like driving a car without a license. If I have to have a license to drive, I want my neighbor to have one.'

— Ralph Lorenz

No conventional liquor licenses — allotted based on population — are available in Plymouth. But a city and the LCC may grant "resort" liquor licenses, even if in doing so the allotment is surpassed.

Lorenz recently learned that the Legislature declared the entire state of Michigan a resort, and that potentially, an unlimited number of resort licenses could be granted in Plymouth.

Lorenz and other liquor license holders met to discuss the issue. They then wrote city commissioners, asking them about the city's policy regarding resort licenses.

"It is our desire that this matter be placed (on a meeting agenda) for open discussion . . . so that we and

Stahl submits plans to build a 325-car lot

Stahl Manufacturing finally has submitted site plans for a parking lot unlawfully in use on its property that's annoying to neighbors and Plymouth city officials.

A public hearing on the plans has been scheduled Wednesday, Oct. 12, before the city planning commission.

Homeowners within 300 feet of the factory on Junction will be notified of the hearing by mail.

Stahl consolidated operations to Plymouth earlier this year, nearly doubling the work force to 400.

Stahl carved out a gravel parking lot a few months ago to accommodate its employees, without going through a site plan approval process designed to maintain building standards and property values.

A Stahl executive attributed that situation to an inattentive management and confusion with a contractor.

SEVERAL PEOPLE have appeared at recent city commission meetings to complain about traffic, parking, litter, drainage and noise at Stahl.

One of those complainants, William Dolinski, has sold his house to Stahl so that the company can expand the parking lot.

Stahl proposes an L-shaped, asphalt lot with a capacity of 325 cars, said Jim Penn, city engineering aide.

A 4½-foot screening wall must be erected along the property line of adjacent homes, he said.

Stahl's engineering consultant said the work can be done this construction season if the planning commission grants site plan approval next week.

"If Stahl says go, there's a time window that allows us to get it done," said Richard Hartigan, vice president of Schonscheck Inc.

That assumes a dry fall, he added. City officials have been on Stahl's case for several weeks and finally said they would seek a court order closing the parking lot if Stahl didn't submit site plans.

No injuries in plant evacuation

Several hundred Ford Motor Co. employees were evacuated from the Sheldon Road Plant Friday morning after a cleaning solvent in a machine vaporized and escaped into the factory.

No one was injured, said Larry Groth, Plymouth Township fire chief, and Ed Waddell, security supervisor for the plant.

A liquid solvent, trichloroethylene, used to degrease radiator cores, vaporized after a filter was removed from the machine for cleaning, Waddell said.

"It just whizzes, fixes and goes out by itself," he said.

"They closed the center doors in the factory to create negative pressure and turned on roof vents to draw the cloud outside," said Groth.

"I DON'T know what caused the reaction," Waddell said. "Not knowing exactly what it contained or caused it, you get people out until we find out."

"They clean this (machine) three times a day and this doesn't happen," he said.

The machine has been used for several years, Waddell added. A similar incident occurred in February 1987, Groth said.

An industrial hygienist from corporate headquarters investigated shortly after Friday's incident, Waddell said.

The entire plant was evacuated at about 11:20 a.m. Some workers on the day shift were later sent home.

The afternoon shift was to report as scheduled, Waddell said. He expected that the machine would be used later in the day.

"When we arrived, everything was normal," Groth said. "We sent out everything and called back all personnel. That's a life safety situation."

78-year-old leads home beautiful list

Anita Scappaticci probably isn't typical of people recently recognized for landscaping efforts that contribute to the beautification of Plymouth.

First off, she's nearly 78 years old. Second, she spent several hundred dollars on flowers and plants. Third, she devoted three to four hours every day during the hot summer tending to her begonias, impatiens, roses and mums.

Not to mention the vegetable garden and fruit trees.

But Scappaticci probably is typical in that she considers the exercise a labor of love.

"I did a lot of work," she said. "I like work. I don't care what I spend. My son says, 'Ma, it looks nice. Keep it going.'"

ABOUT 70 residents and business people will receive a formal thank you from the city with certificates of appreciation.

"Plymouth pride — they say you can't buy it or legislate it," said Mary Childs, chairwoman of the city beautification committee. "It's been a contagious thing we've noticed."

There's no limit to the number of people who win honors, Childs said. What's important is the effort — not the size of a property or the magnitude of a display, she said.

Many current honorees have earned certificates previously.

the general public can give our input in assisting the commission to formulate guidelines," the letter said.

HENRY GRAPER, Plymouth city manager, said the commission hasn't responded to the letter.

"I'm not too sure there will be a response," said Graper. "I don't know whether the commission is in a spot where they want to take a position prior to being asked by someone making a license application."

Traditionally, requests have been handled on a case-by-case basis, Graper said.

Plymouth Mayor Karl Gansler II said the commission received the letter, "and we washed our hands of it." It was referred to the legal department.

"It's a very touchy situation when people bring in their own liquor," said Gansler. "When someone gets hurt, people sue. And they go after whoever has the deepest pocket — the city. You can't stop it, but I don't look on it favorably."

Commissioner Mary Childs is all for The Plymouth House.

There's a need for another banquet facility, "and knowing Nick, he'll do it up first rate. You have to be careful no one over-indulges. But Nick will watch things as closely as we do," she said.

RISTICH CONSIDERS the letter an affront.

"I am opening up a banquet facility, and there's an individual that's having problems with that," he said. "It isn't people with licenses per se. When these people start something, it's a big nothing. I think competitors only feel intimidated if they feel like what they're doing is not adequate."

"We're booked into next year already. They city has been very, very good, from top to bottom," he added. "We get comments all the time, people saying 'Good. We're finally getting a nice catering business into town."

Ristich will be able to seat 300 in his main ballroom, and about 110 in each of two smaller rooms. He said he plans to exercise an option to buy the one-story building owned by James and Kal Jabara.

A parking lot will accommodate more than 200 cars.

Accident victim was over limit: coroner

A Plymouth man killed Sept. 16 in a one-car accident had a blood alcohol level three times higher than what state law considers drunk driving, according to the county coroner.

Kim R. Jewell, who died at the scene, had a level of .31, said Dr. L.J. Dragovic, acting county medical examiner. A level of .10 is considered driving while intoxicated.

Police said Jewell was westbound on Schoolcraft when his car left the road about 100 yards east of Wilcox, struck a road sign, rolled over and came to rest on the north side of Schoolcraft.

The incident occurred at about 11:15 a.m.

He wasn't wearing a seat belt, police said.

The medical examiner's office attributed death to multiple injuries.

Stamper found guilty of 2nd-degree murder

By Peggy Aulino
staff writer

Steven Stamper was convicted of second-degree murder Friday in the 1986 shooting death of 13-year-old Mary Anne Hulbert. The jury deliberated for seven hours over a two-day period before reaching the verdict, which carries a sentence of up to life in prison.

Both defense attorney Jeffrey Strouss and the defendant's mother, Tude Braddam, expressed relief that the jury did not find Stamper guilty of first-degree murder. That crime carries a mandatory life sentence with no chance of parole.

Second-degree murder is "still a substantial crime," Strouss said. "It's not like he's just going to get his hand slapped." Those convicted of second-degree murder typically get sentences of 10 to 20 years in prison, he said.

Stamper is to be sentenced Friday, Oct. 21, by Judge Henry T. Conlin, who presided over the two-week circuit court trial.

The 18-year-old defendant, who stands 6 feet, 7 inches tall and has shoulder-length brown hair, was expressionless upon learning the result of the jury's deliberation. Braddam, who is his natural grandmother and adoptive mother, cried as the verdict was read.

"I'M JUST relieved," she said later. "It's been almost 21 months, and it's been awful."

Debbie Hulbert, the victim's mother, rushed from the courtroom without comment after the verdict was announced. She said earlier she would be disappointed if Stamper was convicted of the lesser crime.

Mary Anne Hulbert of Canton Township was shot seven times Dec. 30, 1986, in a Superior Township field. Her body was found eight days later. Stamper and Machacek were arrested that night. Both defendants, who were 16 at the time, admitted being at the scene but blamed the other for doing the shooting.

On the day she was killed, Hulbert called the defendants and told them she was pregnant by Machacek and wanted to discuss the matter. An autopsy indicated she was mistaken in that belief.

Stamper, in a statement taped by Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department detectives at the time of his arrest and played for the jury last week, said Machacek wanted to shoot at Hulbert to scare her into having a miscarriage.

"HE WAS too worried about her being pregnant and ruining his life," Stamper said in his statement.

Stamper, whose semi-automatic rifle was identified as the probable murder weapon, drove Machacek to pick up Hulbert on the day she was murdered. He told investigators Machacek "said we were going to scare her. That's all I knew."

The verdict indicates the jury may have believed the defense's contention that Machacek did the shooting and Stamper was ignorant of his in-attention to commit murder. To be guilty of first-degree murder, there must be proof of premeditation on the part of the defendant.

"I absolutely believe that Steven Stamper never knew this little girl was going to be murdered," Strouss said.

Several witnesses testified that Stamper told them he was going with Machacek to pick up Hulbert and that he waved to the friend who drove the victim to meet the young men. In his closing argument, Strouss said that if Stamper was planning to commit murder, he would have tried to hide the fact that he was picking up Hulbert.

PROSECUTOR ROBERT Cooper argued that Stamper and Machacek were "equally engaged in . . . the shooting . . . of Mary Anne Hulbert."

Early in the trial, Cooper said Machacek probably pulled the trigger, but in his closing argument he said, "We are not suggesting . . . that Steven Stamper did not shoot Mary Anne Hulbert. Evidence as to who did the shooting is equivocal at best."

Cooper would not comment on the verdict Friday.

Strouss said the conviction will be appealed on the grounds that Stamper's statement should not have been admitted as evidence. Machacek's lawyer also said he will appeal the conviction of his client, who was found guilty of first degree murder in a trial that concluded in mid-September. He will be sentenced Friday.

Robust octogenarian enjoys renewed interest in rowing

By Carolyn DeMarco
staff writer

Emil Nielsen has rekindled an old passion, one that goes back to his youth in Svendborg, Denmark.

At 87 years of age, Nielsen has rediscovered rowing. And if the octogenarian let 60 years pass before taking up the oars again, not to worry.

The robust Nielsen looks and feels decades younger than his chronological age. "He didn't have to get back into shape," says his coach, Jack LeBlanc. "He never got out of shape."

Nielsen left Denmark at the age of 22 and settled in Detroit. A scalemaker and locksmith in the old country, he was a self-employed pipefitter until his retirement in 1967.

In Denmark he left behind two loves — his family of nine brothers and sisters and rowing. There he was a member of Svendborg Roklub, a community rowing club.

A year ago he resumed rowing after a chance meeting of LeBlanc at a social event. LeBlanc is a coach of the St. Mary's Preparatory school rowing team. When Nielsen learned there were rowers in the area, he was ecstatic. "I wish I would've found them 10 years ago," Nielsen said.

TODAY HE'S TRAINING under LeBlanc on Sylvan Lake three times a week for the September 1989 World's Veteran Club Tournament in Copenhagen in the 80 years and up category. The two have become fast friends.

"In the U.S. there's no one his age to row against," LeBlanc said, "but over there all they've got is water." LeBlanc, who competes in national and international events, said he knows of no one Nielsen's age competing in the U.S.

The equipment may have changed in 68 years but the technique has remained the same and Nielsen has lost none of it.

Emil Nielsen rows on Sylvan Lake aiming toward the September 1989 World's Veteran Club Tournament in Copenhagen.

"He doesn't do much wrong," LeBlanc said. "And the enthusiasm of his youth is still there. 'Last time out he didn't want to come in . . . If my kids had his enthusiasm, they'd be champions,'" LeBlanc said. "He doesn't let cobwebs form on his backside." While Nielsen gave up rowing of the water in the '30s, the rowing machine was always in use.

Rouge gains federal help

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Rouge River restoration turned a major corner late Friday with authorization of a $34.7 million federal grant to help divert waste from the heavily polluted river.

Wayne County should receive the first $8.4 million installment on the Federal Environmental Protection Agency grant this week, sources said.

Grant money will go to the North Huron Valley/Rouge River "super sewer." The 15-mile sewer interceptor is expected to be completed by mid-1993.

County residents could begin canoeing in parts of the Rouge by that date, McNamara said, although that assessment is considered optimistic.

The grant's authorization came after 17 years of negotiations between the county and federal government.

"NEXT TO the county equity package (approved by the state Legislature in December to repay county debt), this is the second miracle of our time," County Executive Edward McNamara said.

The federal grant will reduce substantially local payments on the super sewer project for communities including Livonia, Westland, Garden City, Plymouth and Redford Township. Those communities and seven others, however, will still have to provide nearly $43 million for the super sewer and related sewer projects.

Without the federal grant, area communities may have had to pick up the full cost.

U.S. Rep. William Ford, D-Taylor, who lobbied for the money, said the grant was authorized around 8:30 p.m. Friday, just beating the federal fiscal year's midnight deadline.

"SOME OTHER communities might not have received grants," said Ford.

Projected local shares are: Garden City, $424,000; Livonia, $9.46 million; Plymouth, $372,000; Redford Township, $2.64 million; Westland, $3.82 million.

The super sewer will transport waste to the Detroit Treatment Plant. Canton and Plymouth townships, planning to ship waste to Ypsilanti, won't directly benefit from the grant.

The Rouge's restoration faces a long, costly future but the volunteers that turned out in June for the annual cleanup cast their own votes on the future of the river.

Facing the big enemy is toughest challenge

LIVONIA'S KATHY Nettle dropped a note the other day and shared a few of her feelings about a subject that has literally thrown our society into a frenzy.

In her own words: "It seems to me the smokers are always deferred to. Does a smoker ever go to a no-smoking area even if he's the only smoker?"

Kathy set the scene by recalling one that all of us have experienced over and over again. Four people go into a restaurant. The hostess asks "smoking or no smoking." The three non-smokers give way to the lone smoker.

Sounds familiar, that's for sure. She concludes: "I wish I could be less wishy-washy and more assertive about my environment and my wishes. Guess I need assertiveness therapy."

Now wait. Before we continue, I just want to set the record straight. This isn't going to be one of those messianic lectures, berating smokers for their ways.

JUST THE opposite, as a matter of fact.

The problem goes far beyond that. You see, most of us are in the same boat as Kathy, smokers and non-smokers, alike. We just don't seem to have the intestinal fortitude to face the opposition.

The opposition, by the way, isn't the smoker. If anything, the smoker is the ultimate victim.

For all the noise that's made about the dangers of passive smoke, you've got to know that someone who is smoking 30-50-plus cigarettes a day is really the person at risk of developing all sorts of diseases — heart, lung and otherwise.

The real opposition is the marketers of the multibillion-dollar industry that for decades has successfully convinced millions that smoking is more than OK — it's the thing to do.

It's just another example of special-interest influence, the tall that wags the dog of our society. It is an industry that is so powerful and influential that it receives subsidies from the government to make it even more profitable.

SMOKERS, FOR the most part, really can't help themselves. Now, if you've never smoked, you probably don't believe that. But it's true. Smoking is an addiction. Smokers are like alcoholics. Just one cigarette and they are once again hooked — even if they haven't smoked for 20 years.

Steve Barnaby

Certainly, society has made some strides. Businesses are beginning to see the light — that smoking costs them money in health-care payments and time lost at work.

Restaurants, in particular, are bending to the pressure of a society that is fed up with being victimized.

Now, I realize that Kathy Nettle had something else in mind when she dropped us her note.

But my advice, Kathy, is to fight the real enemy. Forge an alliance with that smoker at the next table in the restaurant. Numbers, in bodies and bucks, count in politics.

And the fight to make us a smoke-free society is one of the biggest of all political battles.

Values. I've heard all about values. The word is beginning to wear thin from overuse and has taken on a meaningless quality, like "awesome."

The values that matter to me, as a resident of a western Wayne County suburb, have nothing to do with the things plopped into the values' category, by one candidate and several commentators, during Sunday's presidential debate.

While watching the debate analyses, in 10 languages on three networks with 50 experts of the first-order proclaiming George Bush or Michael Dukakis the winner, were you thinking:

• About Dukakis' claim that Bush's tax plan would benefit only that 1 percent of the population making more than $200,000 annually? Many of the on-screen commentators later said Bush was the better debater and "had command." Many of those commentators are making more than $200,000 annually.

• The media panel was not subtly biased against Bush? Two of three panelists weren't biased — they were just pressing for answers to questions Bush has ignored. Which brings us to Peter Jennings, ABC national anchor, who might as well have been wearing a Dukakis lapel pin. Regardless of his preference, he, and we, are expected to maintain at least a modicum of objectivity. Except in columns.

• That Bush was rubbing the same salve on a multitude of ailments? Traipsing out the Sousa band for repeated romps around the stage only stretches so far these days. If I stand up and say I believe in great American values, the flag, outsmarting the Russians on defense and making this great land of ours greater, everyone will think I'm wonderful, a hell of a guy and an earthly delight. But no one will make me president based on that. However, based on those thoughts alone and the fact that Bush is about five inches taller than I am, there is no difference between us.

• Dukakis was attacking Bush? That's his job.

• Dukakis could have called Bush a no-good, thieving cattle-rustler who rides sidesaddle in pink chaps and Bush wouldn't have debated the issue? You're right. Bush isn't skilled enough to debate Dukakis on fact or fiction, so what makes him qualified to negotiate with those pesky Russians?

• That Bush sees things we don't? Right again. He has selective vision, which enables him to peer deeply into the fur-clad land of the well-to-do, where schools are just great, business is just great, the proposal for fornic abortions is just great, minorities have all the just-great minimum wage jobs they can handle and there's no weirdo down the street waving an ACLU card. The deficit?

Phillip Sherman

Must be those damn congressmen again.

• President Quayle? The thought runs parallel to shaving your own head with a cheese grater.

• That just because Bush says something, it's so? Remember the opening statement of his closing remarks — "I thought this was going to be a friendly exchange." It was a friendly exchange. You want discord? Listen to Morton Downey. You want friendly? Then don't imply someone's unpatriotic because they carry an ACLU card. But Bush implies the debate wasn't friendly, and the commentators line up, lockstep: "It wasn't a very friendly debate there, Peter..." The debate took on a decidedly unfriendly tone, John... They were at each other's throats, Dan..." Which debate were they listening to?

• Bush is going to charge like a wounded rhino in October's debate? You bet.

Workers' taxes destroy their jobs

To the editor:

Laid off autoworkers. Have your hard-earned tax dollars been used by the Blanchard administration to subsidize Mazda Assembly in Flat Rock at the expense of your jobs? Burl C. Adkins, Republican candidate for Congress in the 15th District, has asked this question. I would also like to know the answer.

According to a study by Candice Howes of the UAW research department and Donald Hilty of Chrysler Corp., a typical transplant (Japanese auto assembly plant) creates 5,450 jobs based on an annual assembly of 250,000 cars. An American plant using domestic suppliers with the same assembly provides employment for 21,800 workers. This represents a loss of more than 16,000 jobs.

The primary reason for this is major components like engines, transmissions and brake assemblies are now designed, engineered and manufactured in Japan. Hilty said 320,000 domestic jobs will be lost by 1990 due to transplants and the use of foreign-made components.

Numerous auto assembly plants in Michigan have closed and many more are threatened with closing due to unfair competition. At the same time, the Blanchard administration has donated more than $29 million Michigan taxpayer dollars to subsidize Mazda.

We have only begun. Michigan tax dollars are continuing to subsidize Flat Rock's fire and police protection and insurance costs. For every job created in Flat Rock, four American auto jobs are eliminated, according to the Hilty and Howes reports. The use of Michigan auto-worker tax dollars for this purpose is in total disregard of the general welfare. Serious attention is a necessity now.

Legislature considering libel law

(AP) — Legislation to repair a hole punched in Michigan's libel-law protection by a 1986 Supreme Court ruling is on its way to the state Senate following unanimous committee approval.

The bill was approved 5-0 Thursday by the Senate Judiciary Committee. It has passed the House, but would have to return there for consideration of minor Senate changes.

Under the bill, Michigan reporters and news outlets would regain stronger legal protection they lost under the ruling. The bill would restore a legal standard struck down in the decision and make it harder for plaintiffs to collect damages for erroneous stories.

Committee action came after several news officials and attorneys warned the Supreme Court ruling had damaged the media's ability to report the news.

"The effects are more pronounced with smaller newspapers," said Hershel Fink, attorney for the Detroit

County group recommends wetland swap

By Wayne Post staff writer

It's a common story, according to developers.

Schoolcraft College would like to break ground for a 735-acre commercial development near Six Mile. But the Livonia-based community college has a problem. The Michigan Department of Natural Resources said 4.3 acres of the site are wetlands and cannot be developed.

Schoolcraft and its development partner, Duke Associates, are wrangling with the DNR over changes that would have to be made to accommodate the wetlands, delaying the ground breaking.

Under a new program proposed by a Wayne County task force, however, there would be neither wrangling nor delays.

Schoolcraft could be allowed to develop the entire parcel in exchange for 4.3 acres of man-made wetlands that would be built either in Livonia or any other Wayne County community.

CREATION OF a countywide land bank is the most important — and controversial — of the county task force's recommendations.

As envisioned, the land bank would include county land holdings. But task force members said it could include private land as well. A county Land Bank Authority would be created to administer the property.

Economic development has been a key McNamara Administration goal, but task force members denied the recommendation would allow developers free reign over environmentally sensitive areas of the county.

"In a county like this, it's easy to say we should have economic development at all costs, but that's not the case," task force chairman Don Juchartz said.

Land bank holdings would be flooded and converted to man-made wetlands equal in size to the wetlands destroyed by commercial or industrial projects.

County executive Edward McNamara made task force recommendations public Thursday. Task force members were appointed in January, to strike a balance between developers and the DNR.

Wetlands squabbles have cost the county "at least one major development" and could jeopardize others, McNamara said.

Environmentalists, however, say wetlands are vital to preserving the ecological balance. Wetlands are home to various animals, birds and fish and also filter ground water. Their destruction, environmentalists say, not only threatens plant and animal life but also endangers water quality.

THE DNR has no official position on the task force recommendations as yet, a spokeswoman said. But

FILE PHOTO

Wetlands areas could be developed if man-made wetlands were created elsewhere, under a recently released county task force proposal.

even McNamara acknowledged the DNR has been less-than-receptive to off-site wetlands creation in the past.

"They've said wetlands mitigation hasn't worked in other states, but there are some differences here," he said.

Task force members recommended McNamara begin talks with Gov. James Blanchard and the DNR to give the county greater development options under proposed "urban county" status. That status would be conferred through a letter of understanding between the county, state and DNR.

Wayne County wetlands would then be ranked under three proposed headings.

Those deemed "most significant," including those along rivers and streams, couldn't be exchanged for land bank wetlands.

Wetlands deemed "significant" could be eligible for exchange, depending upon circumstances.

Those deemed "least significant" would be eligible for exchange in all circumstances.

Rankings would be based upon water storage capacity, water quality protection, stream bank protection, wildlife present, size and potential for recreational use.

TASK FORCE recommendations met with approval from one knowledgeable source. Former state representative Thomas Anderson, whose name graces the state's 1979 wetlands protection law, said suggestions "kept the spirit" of the law.

"The overall goal is to protect wetlands, and that's in keeping with the spirit of the law," Anderson said.

"But they have some more work to do with regard to setting up a land bank, and there could be some problems with the Level One classification. If you're telling somebody he can't touch that property forever, there could be trouble."

Ceremony honors new U-M president

James J. Duderstadt will be officially inaugurated the University of Michigan's 11th president during ceremonies Thursday, Oct. 6.

Duderstadt, former U-M provost and vice president for academic affairs became president Sept. 1.

Duderstadt, 45, joined the U-M faculty in 1969. He holds a bachelor's degree in electrical engineering from Yale University and a master's and doctorate in engineering science and physics from the California Institute of Technology.

Inauguration ceremonies begin at 10:30 a.m. at Hill Auditorium.

State treasurer Robert Bowman and Michigan State University president John D'Biaggio are among those who will appear at the ceremonies.

A reception for the new president, his family and those who attended the inauguration will be held 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the adjacent Ingalls Mall.

Duderstadt will also speak at a student picnic later that afternoon.

Ceremonies conclude with a public reception 3-4:30 p.m. in the Power Center for the Performing Arts lobby.

Exec raises $400,000

Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara's fund-raiser breakfast last Friday raised $400,000 for the county executive's campaign fund, an executive's department spokeswoman said.

An estimated 2,000 supporters attended the breakfast at the Westin Hotel, Detroit.

Those honored by McNamara included Sister Mary Franciene Van De Vyver, president of Madonna College, Livonia, Teamsters 2nd vice president Robert Holmes and U.S. Appellate Judge Damon J. Keith.

All were named to McNamara's "winner's circle" for contributions to the county.

SC faculty to get 17.3% pay raise over 3 years

Full-time Schoolcraft College instructors will receive a combined 17.3 percent increase over the life of a new three-year contract.

College trustees unanimously approved the contract Wednesday night.

Schoolcraft's 135 full-time instructors will receive a 5.9 percent increase for the current school year, a matching increase in 1989-90 and a 5.5 percent increase in 1990-91.

The average salary for full-time instructors is $40,664.

Average increases for the college's 150 part-time instructors will be 6.25 percent in the first year, 5.67 percent in the second and 5.9 percent in the third.

Instructors ratified the contract 103-49, according to the Schoolcraft Faculty forum. Union representatives said bargaining was tough, but they were pleased with the results.

"We made it through without blood-letting and that says a lot," faculty forum president Lowell Cook told trustees.

Park trail named for naturalist

A portion of the William P. Holliday Forest and Wildlife Preserve has been rededicated in honor of Mary Catherine Ellsworth, the county park system's pioneering naturalist.

Ellsworth Trail was dedicated Sept. 17 by county executive Edward McNamara. The former Acorn Trail was renamed in memory of Ell-worth, who served 1955-86 caring for injured wildlife and promoting environmental information for children.

Ellsworth developed the Nankin Mills Nature Center and established the Holliday Preserve trails.

Additional park system information is available by calling 261-1990.

SC offers family relations class

Raising children's self-esteem and helping them deal with stress is the focus of a Schoolcraft College family relations course.

The two-week course will be offered 7-9 p.m. Mondays, beginning Oct. 10. The cost is $25.

Additional information is available by calling 591-6400, Ext. 409.

IT HURTS WHEN I CHEW

The temporomandibular joint, or the TMJ as the jaw joint is called in anatomy, lies in the under surface of the skull, just below, and slightly in front of, the ear. You feel pain from temporomandibular arthritis not only in the jaw, but in the ear, up into the scalp and even posterior into the throat and mouth. In addition, arthritis of the temporomandibular joint places strain on the muscles that move the jaw and brings on misalignment of the teeth. As a result, eating becomes unpleasant and even painful.

Another condition, called the TMJ syndrome, resembles the type of jaw problems facing a patient with arthritis. However TMJ syndrome is different since the individual has no joint swelling or pain in the hands, wrists, shoulders, knees, or feet.

In both rheumatoid arthritis and TMJ syndrome, therapy consists of heat, aspirin-like medication and occasionally steroid injection into the jaw joint. Such treatment generally works well for people with arthritis, but individuals with TMJ syndrome respond poorly to such measures, and may have pain lasting months to years.

SEASONABLE SEASONINGS

Windowsill herbs ready in kitchen

By Marty Figley
special writer

ALTHOUGH SUMMER is past, your herb garden can still be a wonderful source of seasonings and surprises until old Jack Frost really does it in for the year.

The tender annuals such as basil will be the first to go, but others seem to be quite vigorous and can withstand some pretty cold temperatures. Dill, fennel and summer savory will probably be fine to use for awhile yet, while sweet marjoram, winter savory, sage, thyme, French tarragon and chives may be used a little longer.

The perennials may seem to be dead, but their root systems are still thriving and getting ready for next year's growth. Many of the perennials can be divided and/or newly planted in the fall to give them a good start for the spring season.

For those of you who would like an indoor herb garden, now is the time to take cuttings and pot up herbs for winter use. They can be grown in hanging pots, marching along a windowsill or among houseplants.

One favorite herb can become a focal point on a kitchen table or counter if adequate light is provided. A sunny window, preferably facing south, is the ideal indoor location. Grow lights will give an even more robust harvest.

IF YOU DON'T wish to bring herbs in from the garden or bother with seeds, or if this is a first time undertaking, there are a number of herb centers from which plants for indoor gardening can be ordered.

If plants are mail-ordered, keep them in the small pots in which they arrive for two or three weeks so they can become acclimated to the home environment. Transfer to the next largest size pot when necessary. Keep the plants trimmed by frequent use, and they will live happily for the winter in the home and not outgrow their pots. Most herbs thrive best indoors when they are somewhat potbound, so choose the container size according to the plant.

Overwatering may be the biggest cause of failure, and if fertilizer is used, 1/4 solution of the recommended amount is quite sufficient. Watering needs differ for specific herbs, so those requirements are given with each description.

When taking root cuttings, trim the roots and branches back by about a third to lessen transplant shock. Exceptions are chives, parsley and basil.

A sterile potting soil with perlite added for good drainage (1 part perlite to 4 parts soil) makes a good medium for the plants. Equal parts of sphagnum peat moss, perlite and vermiculite is a recommended soilless mix.

It may be wise to begin with one or two favorite herbs and then expand as you gain confidence and your success and interest grow along with the herbs. Following are a few suggestions to get you started on a new growing experience.

THYME

Lemon and common thyme are both easily propagated by removing some of the plants with a good root system. A soilless mix works well. Keep the plant moderately moist, but not soaked.

SWEET MARJORAM

Root cuttings made by pulling the clump apart will prolong the life of this annual. Pick the leaves a few at a time from around the plant so that it will keep its nice shape. Add some sand to the potting soil. Keep moderately moist.

BASIL

Best started from seed or purchased plants. Keep the seeds well-watered but not soaked. Nip the plants back when they are 2-3 inches tall so that the side shoots will develop for a more compact plant. You may bring in a plant from the garden and use it while the seeds sprout. Do not let this plant go to seed.

CHIVES

Pot this up from a clump for winter use. Keep it well watered and harvest the leaves by snipping them as needed. They can be frozen in a plastic bag quite easily for a special treat for a friend.

PARSLEY

If care is taken to dig up the long tap root, parsley can be lifted from the outdoor garden. It is preferable to sow seeds (after soaking them overnight). Place the pot in a plastic bag until seedlings appear. Remove the covering gradually, then thin so that three or four husky plants remain. Mist occasionally and water well. These plants grow from the center, so harvest the outside leaves so the inner ones continue to develop.

ROSEMARY

MARJORAM

Slow-Oven Beef Stew
2 pounds beef stew meat (1 1/2 inch cubes)

3 celery stalks, cut 1-inch diagonal slices
4 medium carrots, pared, cut half crosswise and lengthwise
3 cups tomato juice (or vegetable juice cocktail)
1/2 cup quick-cooking tapioca
1 tablespoon sugar

Put all ingredients except potatoes and marjoram into 3-quart casserole. Bake, covered, 300 degrees for 2 1/2 hours. Remove bay leaf and add potatoes. Bake an additional 1 hour or until vegetables are tender. Twenty minutes before done, add marjoram, then remove before serving. Serves 8.

long will produce a new plant. Strip off the bottom leaves and use a potting mix as described previously with 1/2 cup of sand and 1 tablespoon limestone added to each quart of soil. Set the pot in a plastic bag and keep it well watered. After the cutting has rooted, gradually remove the plastic covering. The roots should never be allowed to dry out; therefore a plastic container is recommended for this herb. Keep the soil moist, but not soggy ... mist often.

FRENCH TARRAGON

Stem cuttings should be taken as with rosemary. Water regularly and harvest after the plant is well established. A root cutting can be

Frog legs delicious despite tadpoles

I can remember growing up in Wyandotte and after school, hiking down to the tracks with a few buddies, searching for stagnant ponds and armed with Mason jars that would hold what-seemed-to-be giant tadpoles.

Jimmy Millstein (whose father had all sorts of fishing equipment and nets) would sneak a long-handled seine net out of his garage so we wouldn't get our sneakers too muddy.

We used to call them pollywogs, and everyday I would venture to the basement and check the progress of my catch, only to begin noticing little legs sprouting and tails shrinking. Within a week or two, I'd have a mess of baby frogs.

I can't ever remember keeping them around for long, usually because Momma would smell the stagnant water and order them removed. It was then we discovered shoeboxes make great frog castles and brought to school a shoebox full of frogs that would always make the girls scream.

Of course, in addition to making the girls scream, it also riled the nuns who, in turn, would make us set them free in the field behind the school. Those were the days. We wouldn't dare think of eating something like that. Ah, but times, they are a-changin'. Now, whenever I visit a restaurant and notice frog legs on the menu, my mind is made up. I love frog legs.

taste buds

chef Larry Janes

SO WHAT'S HAPPENING to the frog leg industry in Michigan? A call to Kevin Dean, manager of Superior Fish and Seafood in beautiful downtown Royal Oak, shed a little light on where the frogs come from, and where they're going.

There are presently three major exporters of frog legs to the United States — Bangladesh, Indonesia and the State of India. However, that will soon change as Bangladesh has just imposed a ban on production.

Seems that the did frogs love bugs. With growing measures to increase productivity of farm yields, Bangladesh is using more pesticides to control the bug population and, in turn, is lowering the bug population, making it just too darn expensive to feed the frogs. Dean says not to worry, however, as Indonesia and the State of India will surely increase their exports to counteract any depletion of supply.

Presently, Superior Fish and Seafood sells about 30 pounds over the counter in retail sales per week, but a whopping 2,000 pounds wholesale. Apparently folks like me would rather eat in greenouille at a restaurant than at home.

Frog legs are sweet and very mild, and most who have tried them say they taste very close to chicken. I agree with the sweet and mild part, but frog legs can't come close to chicken in flavor because, in my opinion, they are tender and succulent with a far more delicate taste than plain old chicken.

In all honesty, they do look a little like chicken, especially because the meat turns a pale white when cooked, but at between $5-$6 per pound, retail, I want more flavor and texture than plain chicken.

Dean says the best way to prepare frog legs is to pan fry or saute over high heat, using a small amount of garlic butter. Six to eight minutes of cooking like this is enough for a skillet of the succulent game.

Herbs brought indoors ready on windowsill taken if enough root system is obtained. The roots grow deep. Since this herb needs a 40-60-day dormant period, leave it outside in the pot for three frosts in the fall or until late December. It may be put in the refrigerator for three months instead. When it begins to grow, a light liquid fertilizer can be applied.

Two herbs to plant now for future use are ginger and garlic.

GINGER

For this you will need to purchase a piece of ginger root from the market. Plant a plump root just below the surface in moist soil in a 6-8-inch container. The tuber can be cut into pieces, each having three or four eyes and then left to dry a couple of days before planting. Keep the mix damp until shoots appear, then increase watering and give a high-phosphorus fertilizer monthly. The time until harvest will be about eight months, but the wait will be worth it. The foliage is not very attractive — an interesting plant to grow.

GARLIC

A garlic bulb from the market (firm and free of brown spots) can be planted outside a month before the first hard frost. Plant each clove (leaving the skin surrounding it), pointed end up, in rich well-drained soil. Find a sunny spot in the garden. Plant each clove about 4 inches apart, pushing it into the soil until the tip is just barely covered. Next August will be harvest time for this well-loved herb.

Herbs have a way of making our culinary endeavors seem a little more special — especially if we use the fresh ones. If a recipe calls for an herb that is not growing on your windowsill, a dried one will do.

A general rule: When replacing a fresh herb with a dried one, the amount of the dried herb is 1/4 that of the fresh, because the oils are usually more concentrated in dried herbs. When using the more pungent ones such as rosemary, savory or thyme, you may wish to use 1/2 teaspoon of the fresh herb.

That is the pleasure of herbs, each cook can adjust amounts to suit his or her own taste.

If you use the right spice, everything will taste nice

1/4 cup olive oil
1-1/2 tablespoons lemon juice
1/2 cup chives, chopped
6 whole basil leaves for garnish

1/2 cup mayonnaise
1/4 cup sour cream
1/2 cup fresh basil leaves, chopped fine
salt and pepper to taste

Cut off ends of tomatoes, remove seeds and pulp. Drain upside down while preparing pasta. Cook pasta, drain and toss with oil and lemon juice. Cool, then toss with chives, mayonnaise, sour cream and basil. Season with salt and pepper. Spoon into tomatoes and garnish with whole basil leaves.

CHIVES

Creamy Cheese Potatoes
1 1/2 cup milk
1 8-ounce package cream cheese, softened
1 tablespoon snipped chives (or more)
4 cups cubed cooked potatoes
1/2 teaspoon minced instant onions
1/4 teaspoon salt
paprika

Blend milk, cream cheese over low heat. Stir in chives, onion and salt. Add potatoes — stir to coat. Turn mixture into 1-1/2 quart casserole, sprinkle with paprika and bake 350 degrees 30 minutes. Serves 4-6

PARSLEY Parsley Biscuits
2 cups flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter or shortening
1 small bunch parsley
1/2 cup grated American cheese
3/4 cup milk
1 tablespoon melted butter, extra

Wash and drain parsley well. Chop fine. Sift flour, baking powder and salt in large bowl. Cut in 2 tablespoons butter. Blend in cheese, then parsley. Gradually add enough milk to make soft dough, kneading gently. Roll on lightly floured board until 1/2-inch thick. Cut with round cutter 2 inches in diameter. Place on baking sheet and brush tops with reserved melted butter. Bake 450 degrees 15 minutes. Serve hot. Yield 14-16.
Chopped fresh rosemary can be substituted for parsley.

ROSEMARY

Autumn Bisque
1 pound butternut squash (halved, seeds removed)
2 green apples (peeled and cored)
1 medium onion (chopped)
4 cups chicken stock
2 slices white bread (trimmed and cubed)

1 teaspoon rosemary (fresh)
1 teaspoon marjoram (fresh) salt and fresh ground pepper to taste
2 egg yolks
1/2 cup milk or cream

In heavy 3-quart saucepan combine first 8 ingredients. Bring to boil and simmer uncovered until squash is tender (40-50 minutes). Remove squash, scoop out pulp, discard skins and return pulp to soup. Puree soup in batches in blender until smooth and return to pan. In small bowl, beat together egg yolks and milk. Whip in a little hot soup, then stir mixture back into pan. Preheat but do not allow to boil. Can freeze for later use.

GINGER

Microwave Fish Chinese-Style
1 pound fish fillets
1/2 teaspoon salt (optional)
1 teaspoon grated fresh ginger root
1 green onion
1 tablespoon salad oil
2 teaspoon soy sauce
1 teaspoon dry sherry
1 tablespoon chopped green onion

Place fish in glass baking dish. Sprinkle with ginger and salt. Lay onion sliced lengthwise on top of fish. Microwave on high for 3 minutes, turn plate around and microwave for 3-4 minutes (depending upon thickness of fish). It should flake readily in thickest portion. Discard onion. Combine oil, soy and sherry. Pour over fish and garnish with chopped onion. Serves 2 or 3.

GARLIC

1/2 cup freshly grated Parmesan cheese
2 tablespoons minced fresh parsley
1 teaspoon dried oregano
1 clove garlic, minced
1/2 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
2 whole chicken breasts, boned and skinned

Combine first five ingredients. Dip chicken in melted butter, then in cheese mixture. Place in shallow baking dish. Drizzle remaining butter over chicken. Bake 375 degrees 25 minutes or until tender. Serves 4.

clarification

The recipe for Apple Drop Cookies that appeared with the article should have said 1/4 cup apple juice or milk instead of 1/2. The 2 cups pre-sifted flour is the correct measurement, but the flour should be added gradually.

A related story listed U-pick orchards in the Detroit area. Another nearby apple orchard that has a U-pick operation and 26 acres of apple trees is Obstbaum Orchards at 9252 Currie, north of Seven Mile Road, in Salem. For more information, phone 349-5569.

Untreated, diabetes can lead to heart disease, kidney disease, blindness and gangrene.

And for 150,000 people each year, it leads to death.

That's why you should be aware of the symptoms of diabetes: blurred vision, excessive thirst and frequent urination are just some of the warning signs. Because the sooner you find out if you have diabetes, the more likely you are to get it under control, before complications set in.

Rocks rally but lose to Raiders in OT

North wins showdown on gridiron

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Joe Sturtz needed a few more minutes than he originally planned to put the lock on North Farmington's biggest football victory of the season Saturday.

Sturtz, who could have secured a 7-0 victory by picking up a first down late in regulation play, eventually scored the winning touchdown in overtime as the Raiders turned back Plymouth Salem 13-7.

"It seemed like a long time," said Sturtz of the 10-minute wait before he capped a thrilling conclusion with a 1-yard plunge, "but we stuck together and didn't get down on ourselves."

In winning the battle of unbeaten teams, North goes to 3-0 in the Lakes Division and 5-0 overall. The Raiders are co-leaders with Westland John Glenn, which plays Salem and North the next two Fridays. The Rocks drop to 2-1 and 4-1.

Having led since the late second quarter, it appeared North, in possession of the ball with 1 1/2 minutes left, had the game in hand.

On third-and-one at their 29-yard line, the Raiders needed just one first down and undoubtedly would have run out the clock. But Sturtz slipped in the backfield, and North, now 2 yards shy, had to punt.

"I GOT THE ball, and (quarterback) Mike (Filipovich) hit the back of my leg as he was completing the handoff and I just tumbled," said Sturtz, who rushed for 125 yards on 26 carries.

Furthermore, the Raiders were penalized for interfering with the Salem receiver on the punt, and the Rocks had the ball at North's 35 with 1:17 left in the game.

Salem, apparently out of it and facing a desperate situation, suddenly had new life, and the Rocks were right back in it when halfback Ed Wilson threw a first-down pass to a diving Bryan Schultz for a TD.

Donovan Nichols, whose booming punts gave the Rocks a lift all afternoon, kicked the crucial extra point.

North won the coin toss and elected to play defense first in overtime. The Raiders, who held Salem to 61 yards rushing, stopped three running plays, and a 22-yard field goal attempt by Nichols on fourth down was wide left.

"We needed to go on defense first," Salem coach Tom Moshimer said. "We went for the field goal, because if we stopped them on three I thought they'd try for three points, too.

"I DIDN'T THINK they'd run it on fourth down. I'll always play for the overtime, because you always get another chance."

The Raiders didn't have to make that decision, however, as they needed three plays to reach the end zone. Sturtz picked up 5 and 4 yards before scoring the game-winner.

"I didn't know I'd get the ball, but I had a pretty good idea," Sturtz said.

"We just said 'Hey, give it to your best back on your best play, and if they stop it then you worry about doing something else,'" said North coach Jim O'Leary, who said he wasn't motivated by sentiment in allowing Sturtz to atone for the earlier fourth-down slip.

"Joe happens to be our tailback, and the tailback is going to get the ball in our offense."

"We wanted to go on defense first," he added. "We said 'They're not going to run on us,' and I didn't think they were going to stop us."

THE STATS SHOW the Raiders were more effective on offense, but it was a classic defensive struggle until the final 1 1/2 minutes. Salem punted 11 times, North 10; both teams committed two turnovers.

The only sustained drive resulted in North's first TD. The Raiders started at their 20 and finished with Filipovich's 30-yard pass to Chris White, who caught the ball on a slant in and turned up field after several defenders overpursued.

"They made up their mind they were going to keep (swingback Jerry) Hakala away from the ball," O'Leary said, "so we put Hakala in motion and threw the other way to White."

Salem surrendered more yards per play, but its defense was just as tough, stopping the Raiders far short of the goal with the one exception. North's defense played its usual stingy game, holding the Rocks to 118 net yards. The Raiders rushed for 208 of their 266.

Penalties also were commonplace and helped stunt the offenses. North was penalized for 95 yards and the Rocks, who had one opportunity so ruined, 50.

Filipovich, in the process of being sacked early in the fourth quarter, got hit from behind by Scott Sauter, and the ball popped loose. It landed in the arms of Salem's Craig Power, who carried to the North 24.

INSTEAD OF THE Rocks capitalizing, penalties for holding and offensive pass interference put them in a fourth-and-35 hole at the North 46.

"We had field position and our kicking game was keeping us in it, and then we turn around and turn the ball over," Moshimer said.

"They're a much more mature football team than us. Most of our guys at the skill positions are juniors. But they beat us, and they're a great football team."

Chiefs get 1st victory of season

With a new quarterback at the controls, Plymouth Canton recorded its first football victory Friday night by beating Northville 21-15.

The Chiefs, after opening the season with four losses, are 1-4 overall and 1-2 in the Western Division. The Mustangs fell to 1-2 and 2-3.

"It was good for our kids to win, and I know they feel real good about it," Canton coach Bob Khoenle said.

"They could easily have said the hell with it all. But they played it tough and hung in there. I think that's a good sign, and Northville is a good ballclub."

Sophomore Karl Wukie, replacing junior Jason Demby at quarterback, engineered the victory as he completed six of 11 passes for 199 yards and two touchdowns.

"Karl gives us another dimension," Khoenle said. "He's a very good runner; he has good foot speed."

"It's one more thing we can do with our quarterback. We thought it might help us kick it in a little bit."

Northville scored first and led 8-0; turning Wukie's only interception into a 2-yard scoring run by Mike Karfis, who also added the two-point conversion.

Wukie atoned by throwing a 60-yard TD strike to Mark Barrette, who caught four passes for 120 yards, late in the first quarter, but Canton failed to get the two points and trailed 8-6.

Jim Young, who rushed for 63 yards and caught the game-winning pass, gave the Chiefs a 12-8 halftime lead with an 8-yard run. That followed a Canton fumble recovery at the Northville 27.

Karfis capped a long drive as the Mustangs regained the lead in the third quarter, but Canton's Mike Krejcar booted a 23-yard field goal to tie, 15-15.

Then, with 3 1/2 minutes left in the game, Young turned a screen pass from Wukie into a 30-yard TD and a 21-15 score.

The Chiefs were forced to punt again, but Northville, guilty of unsportsmanlike conduct on the play, returned the ball to Canton and didn't get another chance to score.

"Karl did a very good job," Khoenle said. "The surprising thing is he's only a sophomore, and he does so many things instinctively."

Khoenle also attributed the victory to his team's ability to avoid the "big mistakes in crucial situations" that have hurt the Chiefs in other games.

Rocks take division lead by whipping John Glenn

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

No basketball team goes 7-2 with just two dependable players, so you know Plymouth Salem has more going for it than Jill Estey and Teri King.

The Rocks are one of the area's hottest teams, and Wendy Bailey, one of the juniors helping to keep the Salem girls among the best, has been a major contributor.

Bailey, a 5-foot-9 post, played her finest varsity game Thursday night as the Rocks destroyed Westland John Glenn, scoring a season- and career-high 21 points.

The game was supposed to be a battle for supremacy in the Lakes Division, but it ceased to be a contest when Salem doubled the score at halftime, 32-16. The victory makes the Rocks the division frontrunner at 3-0, while Glenn drops to 2-1 and 5-2.

"John Glenn and us are big rivals, and all of us got hyped up for this game — and we put it away," Bailey said.

"Personally, we all play a big role. It's not just one player. It takes a team, and that's what we've become this year."

ESTEY AND KING, the only seniors and the only players back from the Salem team that went to the state semifinals in 1987, were their usual steady selves. Estey complimented Bailey's inside scoring with 19 points, and King added 13.

The Rocks used superior shooting and quickness to take command of the game in the first half.

Salem attempted 13 shots more than Glenn in the first half and, while its percentage wasn't great, held a 13-5 advantage in field-goals made over the cold-shooting Rockets.

Furthermore, the Rocks prevented Glenn from getting into a rhythm with their defense, causing the Rockets to make plenty of first-quarter turnovers.

"I thought we played awfully quick tonight," Salem coach Fred Thomann said. "That was as good a team game as we've played."

"Our floor game was excellent. We got the ball in and out of people's hands very fast."

GLENN'S SHOOTING, both from the field and at the free-throw line, picked up late in the game, but it was definitely a case of too-little, too-late.

The game was all but over after the Rocks extended their lead to 45-18 in the third period. Salem was 31-of-71 from the floor overall, Glenn 15-of-53.

"In the fourth period, we started doing the things we wanted to start the game off with," Rockets coach Pat Bennett said. "I asked the girls 'Where was that early in the game?'"

"If we had done that earlier, we probably would have made it a much better game, because I know our kids are capable of playing much better."

The Rocks wasted no time, streaking to an early lead. Besides its ability to cut off the passing lanes on defense, Salem's court speed and quickness showed on offense, too, as Estey drove for layups and King stepped into the lane to pop the short jumper.

And, of course, Bailey was the recipient of many assists, taking the pass in the low post for an easy two. That was especially true of the second half when Salem used its fast break to put the game out of reach.

"THEY WERE trying to front her and we just read it," Thomann said. "All she had to do was catch it and score. That was nice."

Bailey has scored in double figures four times and been a scoring factor in six of the nine games. The Rocks need that kind of play in support of Estey and King.

"It looks as if she's going to become a consistent scorer in our overall game," Thomann said. "It was really important that somebody step

Salem stifles Chargers without top two players

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

Even with its two best players only able to pace the sidelines in street clothes Wednesday night, Plymouth Salem surprised Livonia Churchill 2-0 in Western Lakes Activities Association boys soccer.

Salem played without leading scorer Donovan Nichols, who was serving a one-game suspension, and junior midfielder Jeff Gold, who has yet to play this year because of a broken leg. Nichols received a red card in Monday's 2-0 win over Farmington.

Being shorthanded didn't matter to the Rocks, who improved to 7-2 overall. The Chargers, 5-1-1, suffered their first loss.

"I thought it would be tough without them," Salem coach Ken Johnson said. "But sometimes adversity pumps up the rest of the team. I've seen it happen in the pros, and we proved it tonight."

"They have a lot of determination. I don't have any prima donnas on my team. Most teams have one or two, but I don't have any."

CHURCHILL OUTSHOT Salem 15-12, but the Rocks took more advantage of their fewer opportunities. Salem scored once in each half, getting a goal midway through the first half from junior forward Chris Olson.

The Rocks finished the scoring with 13 minutes left in the game when Jason Santos headed the ball by Churchill goalkeeper Yovann Trapovski.

Churchill is the fourth state-ranked team to lose to Salem.

"Before the game, we tried to get the younger kids pumped up," said senior co-captain Marc Lipke. "Donovan's one of our powerhouses, and we again had to fill in for Jeff (Gold)."

"Besides, we always got pumped up for the state-ranked teams."

The Rocks received another strong outing from goalkeeper Matt Tudor, who earned his fifth consecutive shutout. Salem has outscored its opponents 12-0 in the last five games.

Tudor's biggest save came in the first half, when he deflected a shot from Churchill's Khaled Zeidan over the crossbar. Zeidan was trying to re-direct a free kick by Brady Ericson.

Whenever the ball bounced loose in front of Tudor, one of Johnson's three sophomore defenders (Ryan Fitzpatrick, Jake Baker or Brad Fisch) was usually there to kick it away.

"I GOT LUCKY a couple of times tonight," Tudor said. "I guess I was in the right place at the right time. But it's the defense that deserves the credit."

Churchill coach John Neff didn't have much to say afterward. In fact, Neff said he wasn't aware Salem played shorthanded.

"I never pay much attention to who the other team has," he said. "I have enough trouble keeping track of my own players."

"We played a good game. They capitalized when they had to and we didn't, especially in the first half."

Though Salem was impressive without its two best players, Johnson knows the outcome could be different if the two teams meet in the state playoffs.

"If we played them again next week, it could be 2-0, then," he said. "They're every bit as good as us. I know they'd be trouble today, because they've got two very good forwards (John Gentile and Zeidan)."

Chiefs skip past Harrison

Plymouth Canton's defense improved after allowing four first-quarter points Thursday in its girls basketball game with Farmington Harrison.

The Chiefs, who led 13-4 at the end of the quarter, shutout the Hawks in the next two periods while cruising to their eighth win in nine games, 73-13. They are 3-0 in the Western Division.

Canton got 16 points and five steals from Amanda Bell, 15 points and seven rebounds from Susan Perko, 11 points from Marilee Smith, nine points from Jennie Clark and eight points and seven assists from Michelle Fortier.

The Chiefs blanked the Hawks, 0-0 overall, 0-3 in the Western Division, 25-0 in the second quarter and 15-0 in the third.

FARMINGTON 33, STEVENSON 32: The Falcons survived on a fourth-quarter diet of free throws to edge Livonia Stevenson and prevail 33-32 in an exciting conclusion to Thursday's girls basketball game.

Melissa Tidale sank two free throws with 34 seconds left, giving the Falcons the Lakes Division victory at Stevenson. Farmington is 2-6 overall and 1-3 in the Lakes. Stevenson fell to 1-7 and is winless in three division contests.

"It got pretty scary at the end, but we managed to pull it off," Farmington coach Diana Fair said.

The game was tied at 26 after three quarters, and Farmington scored all seven of its fourth-quarter points at the free-throw line. Jennifer McGlinch, who had four points, was 4-of-4 at the line in the final period.

The Spartans went ahead 30-26, but forward (this season) and say 'Hey, I'm ready.'

"Her contributions show up more in scoring, but others have done a nice job of stepping out and helping, too."

Those include junior Sarah Ruets, who had eight points. Janet Ternes paced the Rockets with 15 points, and Christina Hoffman and Yvette Lawrence had 11 apiece.

Despite the poor start, Glenn threatened to get back in the game when Hoffman and Ternes hit 3-point shots late in the second quarter. That cut Salem's lead to 26-18, but Estey answered for the Rocks.

SHE HIT THREE straight perimeter shots — one from each wing and the last from the top of the circle at the buzzer — to boost the host team into a 16-point halftime lead.

The Rocks maintained their edge with a fast start in the third quarter and, leading 49-29 at the end, had the game well in hand with another period still to play.

"I was very definitely surprised at the outcome," said Thomann, referring to the lopsided score. "In the past we've had little scoring runs, but we never sustained it like we did tonight."

"It was a fast-tempo game, and we handled it very well. It was unquestionably an excellent game for us."

McGlinch's free throws tied it. Maria Ferrari made the second of a two-shot foul to give Farmington a 32-31 lead after Stevenson had regained the advantage on Jessam Martin's basket.

Ferrari led Farmington with 12 points and Tidale contributed six. Martin and Jeanne Magoulick shared scoring honors for Stevenson with 12. The Falcons were 9-of-13 at the line, the Spartans 10-of-25.

W.L. CENTRAL 65, N. FARMINGTON 57: The Raiders had a chance Thursday against the visiting Vikings — until North lost what little size it had.

Once that occurred early in the fourth quarter, the tide turned quickly in favor of Central.

The game was tied at 11 after one quarter and at 24 at the half. By the end of three quarters, Central had a narrow 40-38 lead. But entering the fourth, senior captain Donna O'Brien had already fouled out after scoring seven points and grabbing 13 rebounds.

And early in the final period, junior Vikki Seamons — at 5-foot-10 North's tallest starter — had joined O'Brien on the bench with five fouls.

"They're my board people," said North coach Greg Capling. "As soon as they went out, Central went up by 12. They're just big and physical. They pounded the ball in on us after that and got two or three shots every time down."

The loss dropped North to 5-3 overall. Central is 5-4.

Junior guard Kim Gurech topped the Raiders with 17 points. Sophomore forward Eve Clear added 12. Central got 19 from Tonya Smith, 18 from Kelly O'Hanlon and 13 from Heather Bell.

Smith, a post player, had nine points and O'Hanlon, a guard, had seven in the fourth quarter when the Vikings outscored North 15-19.

MARIAN 62, MERCY 36: Jennifer Shasky connected on 11 of 12 floor shots, scoring 22 points, and grabbed six rebounds in pacing Birmingham Marian's rout at Farmington Hills Mercy Thursday.

The top-ranked Mustangs, 6-0 overall and 2-0 in the Catholic League's Central Division, led this victory early with a 20-4 first-quarter surge. Their lead was 30-17 at the half and 51-29 after three quarters.

"So far, I'm pleased," said Marian coach Mary Lillis. "It's nice to have an easy game once in a while so I can relax and get the subs in."

"They couldn't get into any kind of offense because of our defensive pressure." Mercy got 11 points from Amy Edwards. Point guard Jenny Clinton was held to just two points. For Marian, Hazel Olden got nine points and eight steals and Patty Boyle dished out eight assists.

The loss dropped Mercy to 1-7 overall, 1-1 in the Central Division.

Jean Fryzinger is earning a reputation as a hard hitter, and last week she proved she deserved it.

Fryzinger, a junior at Northwood Institute from Livonia Stevenson, plays middle-hitter on the Northwood women's volleyball team. She led them to a pair of NAIA District 23 victories over Spring Arbor (15-18, 15-7, 15-6) and Michigan Tech (15-7, 15-11, 15-1) and, in the process, earned district player-of-the-week honors.

In the six games, Fryzinger had 24 kills in 43 attacks with six errors, a .429 kill average. She also had nine blocks — six of which were solos, giving her a school-record 174 in her career — and six service aces.

HUEGLI A HIT: Jennifer Huegli, a junior at Michigan State from Livonia Churchill and Scholcraft College, scored two goals to lead the Spartans' women's soccer team to a 3-2 upset of 14th-ranked Cincinnati in what MSU coach Joe Baum called the biggest win in the program's history. Kim Owings, from Livonia Franklin, was in goal. Huegli leads MSU in goals (four) and is tied for the team-lead in points (nine). Owings has a 1.24 goals-against average.

MAZZONI ON TARGET: Pete Mazzoni was the biggest question for Adrian's football team entering the season. The sophomore from Livonia Stevenson has seemingly answered all the questions, leading the Bulldogs to wins in his first three starts. Mazzoni is the third-ranked passer in the NCAA Division III and leads the Michigan Independent Athletic Association. He has hit 28 of 50 passes for 406 yards, with six touchdowns and one interception.

A WALTON WALLOP: Tim Walton, a senior linebacker for Ball State's football team from Redford Bishop Bor-

gen, continues to pile up the tackles for the surprising 3-0 Cardinals. Walton is tied for fourth in the Mid-American Conference in tackles, averaging 12.3 per game, and is fourth in tackles for losses with four for minus-13 yards. He also has an interception and has forced a fumble.

BOLES, MESSNER LEAD: University of Michigan's football team continues to get standout performances from Tony Boles, a sophomore tailback from Westland John Glenn, and Mark Messner, a senior defensive tackle from Redford Catholic Central. Boles has rushed for 431 yards (a 4.7 average) and two touchdowns, caught six passes for 33 yards and returned six kicks for a 29.5 average. Messner has 18 tackles in three games, seven for losses, including one quarterback sack. He has 51 tackles for loss in his career, a U-M record, and is the Wolverines' all-time sack leader with 29.

NO BLOCKING FRIER: Steve Frier, a senior linebacker for Albion College's football team from Garden City, continued to display his nose for the football by making 16 tackles in the Britons' 24-22 win over Depauw. Frier leads his team with 45 tackles; he also has one interception. Albion is 2-1.

MCDONALD LAUDED: Debbie McDonald, a junior on Purdue's volleyball team from Redford Bishop Borgess, has reaped some early honors. She was named to both the all-tournament teams at the First Tier Invitational, hosted by Nebraska, and at the Purdue Invitational.

SVALUTO SALUTED: Tony Svaluto, a sophomore placekicker for Ferris State's football team from Westland John Glenn, is a perfect four-for-four on field goals and is second on the team in scoring with 18 points. Three of his field goals came in a 24-21 win over Michigan Tech. Svaluto connected from 41, 32 and 40 yards to earn Bulldog of the Week honors. FSU is 2-2.

Salem girls edge Vikes in Lakes Division meet

Yes, Walled Lake Central's Colleen Yuhn, the defending Western Lakes girls cross country champion, was again untouchable in Thursday's dual meet with Plymouth Salem at Cass Benton.

Yuhn finished first in 19:57, more than two minutes ahead of the next best runner.

But it's also true that cross country is a team sport. So, while Yuhn won the race, Salem took second — Shannon Donnelly, in 22:15 — and third — Traci Thomas, in 22:30.

And more importantly, the Rocks benefitted from Jenny Harris' late spurt that carried her to a sixth-place finish in 23:23. That was just enough to give Salem a 28-29 victory.

"She made up 200 yards in the last mile," said Salem coach John Gravlin of Harris' performance. "That's hard to do in cross country. She had a long way to go. With three of our runners injured (Beth Cunningham, Sara Hayes and Holly Fody), we needed her."

The victory evened Salem's record at 2-2 overall, 1-1 in the WLAA's Lakes Division.

PLYMOUTH CANTON had an easier time in its meet with Walled Lake Western Thursday at Willis Park. The unbeaten Chiefs rolled to a 15-47 triumph, capturing the top five places.

"We ran in a real tight pack the whole way," Canton coach George Przygodski said.

The Chiefs' times reflected it: Lori Penland won in 21:23, followed by Lynda Schendel (21:30), Cathy McCabe (21:32), Missy Jasnowski (21:44) and Kris Marquard (21:57).

The win lifted Canton's dual-meet record to 3-0 overall, 2-0 in the WLAA's Western Division.

Rock runners take easy win over WL Central's Vikings

Plymouth Salem raced by Walled Lake Central Thursday in a boys cross country dual meet at Cass Benton Park, 22-37.

The Rocks are 2-1 overall, 2-0 in the Lakes Division.

Central's Mark Kwiatkowski won the race in 16:55, but Salem filled the next three positions.

Scott Stryker was second at 17:16, Dave Hamway finished third in 17:28 and fourth place belonged to Sean Speakman (17:48).

Brendon Masterson came in fifth for Salem at 17:53, and Samir Bhavsar finished eighth in 18:21.

PLYMOUTH CANTON, meanwhile, didn't fare as well, losing its first dual meet Thursday by a 26-30 count to host Walled Lake Western.

The Warriors' Brian Grosso was the individual winner, finishing first in 15:54.

Mike Ream had Canton's best time, placing third at 17:49. He was followed by teammates Jim Gallagher (18:12), Brian Beach (18:24) and Matt Hall (18:28) in the Nos. 5-7 positions.

Brad Hibner came in ninth at 18:44 to round out the Canton scoring. The Chiefs are 1-1 in the Western Division and 2-1 overall.

North next for Rocks

Plymouth Salem helped set the stage for a Lakes Division showdown in girls swimming Thursday, dunking Walled Lake Central 137-35 to remain unbeaten in dual meets.

The Rocks, 2-0 in the division and 4-0 overall, will meet defending Western Lakes Activities Association champion North Farmington in the latter's pool at 7 p.m. Thursday. The Raiders, 2-0 and 3-0, defeated Livonia Stevenson 101-71 Thursday.

"We've got North Farmington next, and then we'll really see how things are," Salem coach Chuck Olson said.

In the meantime, the Rocks won all 11 events to dominate the Vikings in the Salem pool, and plenty of swimmers got into the action as nine different girls won the individual events.

In the freestyle races, it was Stacie Anderson winning the 200-yard contest in 2:13.1, Julie Hickey the 50 in 27.6, Tammy Hickey the 100 in 1:01.6 and Dawn Shiek the 500 in 6:03.5.

Candi Bosse won the individual medley with a 2:33.1 time, Sarah Andrews the butterfly at 1:09.3, Kari Laderach the backstroke in 1:16.1 and Amy Austin the breaststroke with a 1:22.4 showing.

Jenny Syria compiled 189.1 points to take the diving competition. Bosse and Julie Hickey also helped in the relays. In the medley, it was Trish Hill, Nicole Gillig, Bosse and Nicole Bosse swimming 2:09.3, and Megan Andrews, Laura Maciag, Jane Seidelman and Hickey put together a 4:18.3 effort in the freestyle.

Livonia's Whitener honored as golf professional of year

By C.J. Niesk
Staff writer

One of the benefits of being the head man in any organization is that you reap the accolades. Gary Whitener, the golf director for the city of Livonia, knows this too well.

He also knows who deserves to share the credit with him when an award as prestigious as the Michigan PGA Golf Professional of the Year is presented to him.

Whitener, a Farmington Hills resident, was chosen from 550 eligible golf pros in the state. His selection makes him Michigan's candidate for national Golf Professional of the Year honors, an award that will be presented at the national PGA meeting in November in New Orleans.

THE LETTER announcing Whitener's selection says the award is presented as an annual tribute for "a wide range of services including the promotion of junior golf, service to his club, devotion to the game and service to the community."

golf

"Mr. Whitener certainly fulfills all these credentials and even more as he has served the Michigan PGA as Treasurer, Secretary and oversaw the greatest growth period in Michigan golf during his term as President.

"Mr. Whitener's devotion to the game through his service of junior golfers, (and) the promotion of ladies and senior play, serves as a prime example of the PGA's primary objective — the promotion of the game of golf."

Whitener has certainly been directly involved in golf's growth locally. While other courses are being sold for commercial development, the city of Livonia is expanding its involvement in the game. Fox Creek, a new 18-hole championship course, opened this spring, the city's third public course (Whispering Willows and Idyl Wyld are the others).

AND YET, Whitener knows why he was able to reap such an honor — time. "The award is really for giving back as much as you can," he said. "There are a lot of talented people out there, but they aren't able to give back as much because they don't have the time, and that's because they don't have the help."

"It's hard to find good help." That's something Whitener figures he has an abundance of. Tom Welsh, his longtime assistant at Whispering Willows, is the golf pro at Fox Creek. Paul Worley and Ken Johnston are Whitener's assistant pros; he also values staff members Dennis Archer, Pat Bowman, Sally Herring and Karen Worley.

"I have some awfully good staff people who have helped a lot," said Whitener. "Their work helps free me up for the other things."

And doing all those "other things" is what landed this award for Whitener — and his staff.

Ocelots beat DCB in soccer

Detroit College of Business needed all the help it could get Wednesday in its mass soccer game at Schoolcraft College. Unfortunately, DCB showed up a man short, which was one reason why it left SC a 3-3 loser.

Another element in DCB's defeat was the Ocelots' improved play. "The kids passed the ball around well," said SC coach Van Dimitriou. "We showed we can be a very aggressive team, especially in the opponents' defensive end."

The Ocelots led 3-0 at the half and were never in trouble, maintaining at least a two-goal advantage throughout the second half. Joe Messler, Todd Nichols, Steve Eichbauer, Brian Thomas and Andy Shiner scored SC's goals.

The win improved the Ocelots' overall record to 4-2-2. "They're getting cocky," said Dimitriou of his team. "But with the proper direction, I think that cockiness can be put to a positive use."

SC'S WOMEN'S team may also have to battle cockiness. The Lady Ocelots are unbeaten and unscored upon in their last four games, including a 2-0 win over University of Michigan Wednesday at SC and a 4-0 blanking of Hope College Sept. 24. But their 3-0-1 record is only part of the reason to be cocky.

"John Gross (from Channel 7 sports) was out here and did a story on us," said SC coach Nick O'Shea. The women's national title of a year ago finally drew some attention, apparently. "Now as long as they keep playing and don't get too cocky," O'Shea added.

The story is tentatively scheduled to be broadcast on the 6 p.m. news Thursday.

Against U-M, the Lady Ocelots got goals in each half. Jennifer Belhart got the first, with Joan Arndt assisting, and Dawn Gabriel got the second, assisted by Rosemary Hally. Kris Moore was in goal to register her fourth consecutive shutout.

In the win over Hope, Gabriel got two goals and Belhart one as SC rolled to a 4-0 halftime lead and coasted.

S'craft netters prevail

After an overpowering start, Schoolcraft College's volleyball team found itself in a battle in the second game of its match at Mott CC Thursday.

Still, it wasn't much of a challenge. The Lady Ocelots still prevailed, 15-0, 16-14, 15-9.

Solid net play sparked the Lady Ocelots. JoAnn Kolnitys (from Wayne Memorial) had seven kills in 15 attacks without an error (.467 kill average), Maria Evans (Garden City) had six kills in 18 attacks with one error (.278), Nikki Stubbs (Garden City) had six kills in 17 attacks with two errors (.336) and nine digs, and Sarah Heddle had four kills in 14 attacks with one error (.214) and one solo block.

Setter Chris Paciore (Livonia Churchill) had 14 kill assists in 49 sets with two errors and three aces in 15 serves without an error, and Alisha Love collected nine aces in 26 serves with two errors and added 13 digs.

Mott CC (1-1 in the Eastern Conference) had SC on the ropes in game No. 2, taking leads of 12-8 and 14-13 — and in the latter, Mott was serving for game point.

"We intimidated them in the first game," said SC coach Tom Teeters. "In the second game we had a letdown, but we came back to win."

SC, now 15-1 overall and 2-0 in the conference, hosts Oakland CC at 7 p.m. Tuesday.

Golfers at their peak

Plymouth Salem recorded its lowest team total of the season as it defeated Livonia Stevenson 195-208 in boys golf at Braeburn Golf course Wednesday.

The Rocks, 3-2 in the Lakes Division and 7-3 overall, were led by Dennis Alcock, who shot 1-under-par 34 for his best round of the '88 campaign.

His brother, Dan Alcock, was next with 38, Eric Matthews used just 40 strokes, Gregg Speaks shot 41 and Mark Bodley finished with 42.

"In the two matches we lost, we played well," Salem coach Rick Wilson said. "We shot 199 against North Farmington and lost. But any time you shoot 200, that means your kids are averaging 40."

Brian Overby carded a 1-over 36 to lead the Spartans, who received scores of 41 from Brian Ransom, 42 from Dave Beaty, 44 from Mike Rose and 45 from Bob Baumblck.

● MEN'S BASKETBALL

A men's recreational basketball league, sponsored by the Canton Parks and Recreation Department, begins its fall season Wednesday, Oct. 5, at Pioneer Middle School.

The fee is $10 per person. Games will be played every Wednesday 6:45-9:45 p.m. for 10 weeks. Call 397-5110 for details.

● FISHING DERBY

Canton Parks and Recreation Department is sponsoring its First Fishing Derby for Canton Township residents only on Saturday, Oct. 22.

Boys and girls, age 15 and under, will fish the pond behind the Canton Township Administration Building for Rainbow Trout.

There will be six sessions, one every hour from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Participants should check-in 15 minutes prior to any of these times, but advanced registration is required. Call 397-5110 to sign up.

Parents may assist their children, but no adults will be allowed to fish. Participants must supply their own gear and bait.

First prize is a $100 savings bond for the largest fish caught.

● CAGE PROSPECT

Plymouth Salem graduate M.J. Ewald passed up basketball offers in favor of an academic scholarship, but he still has a desire to play the hardwood game.

Ewald, who is studying pre-law at the University of Detroit, is planning to try out for the Titans ballclub as a walk-on player.

After graduating from Salem last spring with a 3.6 grade-point average, Ewald passed up offers from Nazareth, Kalamazoo and Manchester (Ind.) colleges to play basketball.

Pat Cunningham, a former Plymouth High School player, is the Manchester head coach, and Andy Mellon, a former Salem assistant coach, is Cunningham's assistant. The 6-foot-6, 200-pound Ewald played center for the Rocks last season.

● GOLF HONOR

Dolly Vettese of Plymouth tied with two others for low-net honors in the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association's outing on Sept. 28. Vettese, Pauline Cody and Peg Foster, both of Detroit, had rounds of 72 in the second flight.

● SOCCER MEETING

Canton Soccer Club will have a coaches meeting at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 5, in the Canton Township Hall.

A midseason report will be available, and requirements for spring registration will be discussed. All coaches are asked to attend or send a representative.

● SOCCER REGISTRATION

Canton Soccerdome is accepting team registrations for youth (boys and girls), adult (19-over and 30-over) and co-ed divisions.

Select, competitive and recreational classifications are available. The eight-game session costs $575. The session starts Saturday, Oct. 29. Practice times are available beginning Monday, Oct. 24. For team and individual registration information call 483-5624.

● SOFTBALL TOURNEY

Canton Softball Center will sponsor its First Fall Tavern Tournament on Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 15-16. The tournament is open to all tavern- and restaurant-sponsored teams.

The entry fee of $95 is due Thursday, Oct. 13. There will be men's and women's divisions. Call 483-5600 between noon and 8 p.m. to register.

Quarter mile quest: Doing it at 300 mph

By Bill Parker
staff writer

Dave Bieneman and Jeffry Neal have been acquaintances for 18 years. They've been teammates for three. And now they're on a mission.

Their quest?

To do what no man has done before.

To reach 300 miles per hour in a dragster.

To break that magical barrier, the Race/QP Team, which includes Bieneman, driver/mechanic; his son Matt, crew member; Neal, designer/crew member; Ed Van Horn, crew chief; and Paul King, crew member, is redesigning its dragster.

The body of the vehicle will become longer and more streamlined. The engine will have more horsepower. These changes are geared to produce a new force in drag racing's premiere class, Top Fuel.

"They have tried to make changes in dragsters in the past, but haven't been able to adapt," explained Bieneman, who owns Transmission Specialists in Troy. "When you get into a specific type of racing, a lot of times you get stuck in that technology. We're using a variety of technology to make these changes."

MOST OF THE technical changes are designed by Neal, who has held both technical and managerial positions with General Motors, Bricklin, Ford Motor Co. and Triathlon Corp.

The new design will produce a car close to 50 inches longer than the standard dragster which has a 258-inch wheel base. The new body will be produced from a carbon fiber which is lighter and stronger than aluminum, the material from which most dragster bodies are currently made.

There also will be modifications to the wing at the rear of the car, which should help improve traction, and to "other body parts" as well as internal changes in the engine.

Race/QP is looking at the possibility of using a dual overhead cam engine — the same type of engine used in Indy and Formula 1 cars. This change would increase the power of the dragster from 3,500 horsepower to between 9,000 and 11,000 horsepower.

The new car should be ready for the track by January of 1989. The first goal of Race/QP will be to break the current quarter-mile dragster speed record of 288 miles per hour, set last spring by Eddie Hill of Texas. Then comes the task of breaking the 300 miles per hour barrier.

"We'd definitely like to be the first (to break the 300 miles per hour barrier)," said Bieneman. "But to do that you have to have everything perfect. The weather has to be perfect."

Amelia, Biscayne: Islands to delight 'offbeat' traveler

By Iris Sanderson Jones
contributing travel editor

Q: I want to go to Florida before high season raises the prices too much. I've seen both the Gulf coast and Orlando. I would like to spend a day touring Miami and a few days a little off the beaten track.

A: There are two interesting islands on the Atlantic side of Florida that you may not have thought about. Amelia Island, near Jacksonville, and Key Biscayne, an island just across the Rickenbacker Causeway from Miami.

Amelia Island is a place of marsh grass and shrimp boats, separated from the rest of the Golden Isles by the Georgia-Florida border. You can choose between two quite different vacation styles.

One resort — Amelia Island Plantation — dominates the island. It is reminiscent of South Seas Plantation on Captiva Island, on the gulf coast — condominiums, golf courses, tennis courts and other resort facilities.

A new definition of luxury may be renting a pool villa at the Plantation, where you can skinny-dip quite privately in a full-sized pool at the foot of your bed!

From the pool you can look through a screened wall to the birds skimming across a green marsh and the boats going by a mile away on the intracoastal waterway. Nobody can get close enough on that marsh to see you through the screen.

The secret to enjoying an island like this is to know what gives you the best kick as a traveler. If big resorts don't do it, stay in a motel, seaside apartment or tiny bed-and-breakfast inn near the historic town of Fernandina Beach at the other end of the small island.

STREET BEATS

'Sonic' host lets the new tunes roll

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

The time was 1978. Mainstream music had become sterilized and desensitized.

Then came punk. The technical sound gave way to snarling guitars, gnarly haircuts with nasty lyrics to match.

Music had taken a turn. Steve Kostan was standing on the corner to see it.

Kostan, fresh out of Western Michigan University, was getting his start in radio when the punk explosion took place. He was working part time at WABX-FM when records from bands like the Sex Pistols, the Buzzcocks, and Patti Smith came rolling in.

"A lot of these bands had shorter hair and shorter tunes," said Kostan, 34, who lives in Farmington Hills, "and they wanted to get back to having fun."

Some 10 years later, Kostan seeks to capture the spirit of those times on "Sonic Rendezvous" on WRIF-FM. The show, which is aired 8-10 p.m. Sundays, features the music of many of the up-and-coming bands and Kostan pays homage to the innovators of modern music like David Bowie, Iggy and the Stooges and Talking Heads.

"Sonic Rendezvous" has been an entity on Sunday nights since 1982 on WRIF. Bands like U2, Echo & the Bunnymen, The Cure and The Smiths were receiving airplay on the show when their records were obscure products in import bins.

THOSE GROUPS have obviously gone on to bigger things. Then again, Kostan has had a way of searching out a good thing.

When he was at WWWW-FM, the station was No. 1 in the Detroit market. He then went back to WABX-FM where he served the dual role of program director and disc jockey.

Kostan then jumped ship to WRIF

'You get to play a lot of music that deserves exposure in the proper place on an AOR station.'

— Steve Kostan
host of WRIF's
'Sonic Rendezvous'

in 1982. WWWW turned country and WABX has since faded into oblivion.

"I've been fortunate," Kostan said. "I've been able to sniff out a terminal patient well in advance."

During his second stint at WABX, Kostan started a new music show "Dangerous Exposure." He brought the idea with him to WRIF and started "Sonic Rendezvous."

Both shows have provided one of the few outlets for new music on commercial radio. Detroit AOR stations are often criticized for not playing enough of it.

"You get to play a lot of music that deserves exposure in the proper place on an AOR station," he said.

"At WRIF, a place is like 'Sonic Rendezvous' — not 3 p.m. on a Wednesday afternoon."

Kostan is the quintessential team player. He fully supported the idea of playing four Led Zeppelin songs in a row on his regular 6-10 p.m. shift.

HE ALSO likes the request hour, which has become a regular feature on his show. Both ideas came from program directors.

"If you sit there and undermine the program director, it's really not fair," he said. "You can debate certain things, but you shouldn't carry on a guerrilla war against the program director. It's not good for the station."

What Kostan thinks is good for the station is a good variety of music with some humor and rock'n'roll facts thrown in. That's his trademark as a disc jockey.

BOB ALFORD

He fell into the radio business by accident. He started in college radio at WDR-FM.

His interest in music piqued early. He grew up on the westside of Detroit, only a mile from where "Motor City Madman" Ted Nugent lived.

The local scene was healthy. Iggy and the Stooges, MC-5 and Bob Seger were filling the airwaves at the time.

Kostan took his knowledge of Detroit rock'n'roll with him to college radio. He left after two semesters, looking for a job. He landed a week-end job at WABX.

Some 11 years later, he still enjoys the career path he took.

"It's a cool business," he said. "It's a good way to make a living."

AT WRIF, he's firmly entrenched. Disc jockeys at the station have enjoyed longevity, unusual in the tumultuous business of radio. Arthur Penhallow, Ken Calvert and Karen Savelly have been at WRIF for a number of years.

During his career, Kostan has seen quite a few changes. The latest fad of classic rock he believes is beginning to burn out. What will replace it remains to be seen.

"I don't think we'll see a full-service new music station in Detroit," he said. "They've tried it a couple of times (WLBS-FM and WDTX-FM). They've had some good ideas, but they haven't presented it as a complete package."

New music fans will have to remain content to be spooned from shows like "Sonic Rendezvous."

Directory puts local music at your fingertips

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Want to call a radio station for a request? Or how about getting in touch with a local rock band to play at your next save-the-dandelions benefit?

Well, let your fingers do the walking through the Musician's Directory.

This 24-page publication is chock-full of phone numbers and addresses of local rock bands, radio stations, record stores, music equipment outlets, area music bars and major record labels.

Need the postal code for Lambertville or the telephone exchange for Flat Rock, well those are included also.

The Musician's Directory is the ambitious undertaking of Tom Ness, publisher of the Jam Rag. The Jam Rag is a weekly publication devoted to local rock'n'roll.

The directory is designed to be an easy reference source for those connected with the local rock scene. Band listings are one of the more interesting features.

"We want to cover the whole diversity of rock'n'roll. Whatever that means," said Ness, who spent three months putting the Musician's Directory together.

NO KIDDING. Bands were asked to describe their music. Some answers were clear, others were left up for interpretation.

For instance the group Shouting Club said their's was "thinking music for sex people." Steel Soldier described their sound as "powerdriv-ing, explosive theatrical rock'n'roll regiment, thundering across the universe."

Slaughterhouse simply responded, "If you need to know what we sound like, you don't need to know."

Anyone close to Ness and his wife, Sue, know there have been plenty of sleepless nights putting the Musician's Directory together.

This is their first major product with the Jam Rag's new printing press. Several Jam Rag benefits were held to replace the old tabletop printer, which broke down constantly.

"Every 10th sheet would misfeed and go flying around the room," Ness said. "It was a toy, really very primitive."

The Jam Rag started out in a primitive way. Ness was booking bands at the Falcon/Mystery Lounge in Detroit. He began printing fliers for upcoming shows as a way for cheap advertisement.

The bar eventually quit hosting new music, but the Jam Rag lived on. The Nesses began printing them in their Ferndale home. Virtually every room in the house was used to get the publication out.

THEY HAVE been able to move the operation to their garage with the new press. Only 75 people subscribe to the Jam Rag. But 5,000 copies are distributed to more than 85 record stores and local music bars.

Local bands are featured along with concert listings and record reviews.

"We've received a lot of support from people, maybe more than we deserved in the beginning," Ness said. "Some people have complained about our journalistic content, but they don't understand that we're a business first."

"Now maybe we can pick and choose between articles instead of having to run every trashy one we get."

The Jam Rag has increased from a digest-size to a magazine-size format. The editorial staff has grown to six people.

Ness said he plans to update the Musician's Directory every three months.

Copies of the Musician's Directory are $3 and are available at record stores and local music venues. For more information, call the Jam Rag at 542-8090 or 542-9826.

WHAT UP, DOG? — Was (Not Was)

This is the third and certainly the finest offering from Brother Was Inc. But more than that, "What Up, Dog?" (Chrysalis) is such a good album that radio stations should be climbing over one another to play it.

So far, they haven't. But, geez, let Bon Jovi release songs from the shower and they are all butting heads to play it.

Listen to "What Up, Dog?" and you'll soon realize what is totally lacking on commercial radio.

"What Up, Dog?" abounds with creativity, diversity, irony and a freshness that is certainly amiss in much of today's formulated pabulum music offerings. Was (Not Was) knows the score, dealing with such current topics as pit bulls ("What Up, Dog?"), attorneys named Maggot ("Out Come the Freaks") and women whose virtue is questioned ("Anytime Lisa").

The creative collaboration between former Detroiters Don Was (Fagenson) and David Was (Weiss) produces a brand of music not heard this side of Mars.

That's not to say this stuff is unaccessible. Quite the contrary with the rough-and-tumble rhythm and blues singing of Sweet Pea Atkinson and the sweetly melodic vocals of Sir Harry Bowers (former member of the O'Jays).

One can hear textures of jazz in the slightly optimistic "Somewhere in America There's a Street Named After My Dad." Funk abounds in "Out Come the Freaks" and hard-edged rhythm and blues dominate in "House of Love."

The way Was (Not Was) takes the standard pop form and shapes it into their own somewhat ironic look at life is something to behold. Was (Not Was) is not without humor. All one has to do is listen to Frank Sinatra Jr. croon "Wedding Vows in Las Vegas." And all one has to do is listen to "What Up, Dog?" to realize these guys are nothing short of pop geniuses.

RANK — The Smiths

Maybe it was for the best when The Smiths broke up last year. The musical collaboration between singer/writer Morrissey and guitarist Johnny Marr wasn't allowed to grow stale and trite. Or worse, become parodies of themselves.

Indeed, let it be said The Smiths went out on top. They will be one of the few great bands in the 1980s we'll have to look back on.

"Rank" (Sire) captures the British pop group at the pinnacle of their short, but sweet stab at success. Recorded live in October 1986 in London (a month after the band performed at the Fox Theater in Detroit), this generous 50-minute offering shows The Smiths in their full glory.

"The Queen is Dead" is a raucous opening number, a kind that really comes to life with the buzzing and crackling of Marr's electric guitar. "Rhesus Monkey" and "What She Said" follow in the guitar gusto tradition of Marr. People who can't take a joke, can't take The Smiths. The lyrical wit of Morrissey is showcased with the peppy "Vicar in a Tutu" and the rigidly rhythmic "Is It So Strange?"

When he isn't moaning and groaning, Morrissey actually displays some rather fine vocal work. His majesty of self-pity sounds like a member of the Vienna Choir in "A Boy With a Thorn in His Side."

All the songs here burst with energy because, unlike some of the studio versions, Marr's guitar really comes to the forefront. Without a doubt, he is certainly in the company of U2's Mr. Edge as one of the greatest guitarists of his decade.

"Rank" is an excellent testament to The Smiths' ability to manipulate pop music.

PEOPLE

— Hothouse Flowers

Thunder, lightning, trumpets blaring. The Second Coming? No, just Hothouse Flowers.

Hothouse Flowers, if you listen to some people, are the next big thing. On "People," their beachhead LP, Hothouse Flowers blares with a rich combination of soul, rock'n'roll and Celtic rhythms.

Except this Irish band really wants to let you know they are sincere and passionate about the music. In fact, they go to great lengths to pound it into your head that their music is full of feeling, full of life. More than anything, though, the music tends to be just full of it.

Does this mean Hothouse Flowers music is guilty of being a bit overblown? Heck, yes. Look it up and throw away the hay.

Any talent — musical, mystical or otherwise — this band possesses is put in the way it blazes across the stage on "People." Certainly adding to the almost chaotic charge here is the overbright vocals of Liam O'Maolain, who wails at times as if he were walking on hot coals. For example, "Yes, I Was," opens with a sweet acoustic guitar line only to break into a wild, gospel-like frenzy. The end result is disjointed. And, what at first sounds to be enjoyable turns sour.

The idea of a horn section in a band is to provide texture to the music. Here, especially in the stirring "Ballad of Katie," they only provide noise. The Waterboys, a band that Hothouse Inc. lists as an influence, use trumpets and other horns in their music quite well.

Perhaps there is the problem with Hothouse Flowers. Maybe they're trying to be too many things to too many people. Are they a little bit like Van Morrison? Or the Waterboys? Or U2? Or Bruce Springsteen?

As a result, they try to be all of them in one lump sum. And it doesn't add up to much.

Team seeks record breaking ride

Duane Burleson/staff photographer

Dave Bieneman adjusts the linkage on the intake of his Top Fuel dragster that he hopes will one day break the 300 miles per hour record.

"IT HAS to be hot enough to put heat in the track (for ultimate traction), but cool enough to make the air dense (so there will be more air in the engine and in turn more fuel which will give the engine maximum horse power). Then everything has to be perfect on the car."

Another problem confronting Race/QP is money. Drag racing is not a poor man's sport.

For starters, in the Top Fuel Class, the dragsters run on nitro methane, which costs about $30 per gallon. Between the race and the warm up, the normal dragster burns 10 to 12 gallons of nitro methane each race.

Then there's the price of the chassis ($22,000) and the drive train ($50,000). Throw in the cost of travel, lodging and food and the bill becomes even higher.

According to Bieneman, the average cost is $2,000 every time the Race/QP car runs down the track.

"It's gotten so complicated that a top car can win every race and still lose money," Bieneman explained. "You really need a sponsor. We're making a major sponsor push right now."

Credibility is everything when looking for a sponsor, and Race/QP just increased its credibility with a win recently at the Popular Hot Rodding Magazine Championships in Martin, Mich.

Bieneman piloted the car to first place in 5.70 seconds. His top speed was 248 miles per hour.

"THAT FINALLY gave us some credentials," Bieneman said. "The car started reacting to some of the changes we've been making. Now we can go out with some real credibility for picking up a major sponsor."

"The $10,000 (first-place prize money) wasn't bad either."

In mid-September, Race/QP qualified for the final field of 16 cars in the Keystone Nationals, a race in which "all the big guys were there," Bieneman said.

In their opening run, Race/QP beat the legendary Shirley Muldowney. They were defeated in the second round, but dropped their time to 5.4 seconds and increased their speed to 260 miles per hour.

With improvements like these, and all the major modifications to the car still to come, the future of Race/QP is looking brighter and brighter.

On display will be an untitled pastel, painted around 1916 - by James Scripps Booth and from the collection of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Booth.

The "Saarinen in Finland" exhibition includes the artist's Hvittrask 1901.

Museum displays works of Saarinen and James Booth

If you're looking for variety in contemporary art, then the Cranbrook Academy of Art Museum is the place to visit.

Now through Oct. 30, the museum is hosting an exhibition of works by Eiel Saarinen, entitled "Saarinen at Cranbrook: Designs for Cranbrook and Kingswood Schools." The museum also is exhibiting the works of James Scripps Booth through Dec. 11.

The Saarinen exhibition explores the fundamental change which occurred in the architect's designs between the start of the Cranbrook School for boys in 1925 and the completion of the Kingswood School for girls six years later.

The exhibition reflects the Finnish-born architect's shift from European sensibility, exemplified by Finnish National Romanticism, to a more American design philosophy.

Highlight of the exhibition are six works that have never been on public display, "Drawings for Gates No. 1, 2 and 3." They were designed by Saarinen and drafted by his 19-year-old son Eero. The works demonstrate seemingly Nordic references which Saarinen incorporated into details of the school for boys.

There also are two watercolors and a pencil rendering from the collection of Cranbrook Schools, examples of Saarinen's perspective renderings for Kingswood School.

ALSO INCLUDED are two large models of the schools, created for an exhibition, "Design in America: The Cranbrook Vision, 1925-1950," which were displayed at the Detroit Institute of Arts, the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the Suomen Taideteollisuusyhdistys in Helsinki.

Already a leading architect in his native Finland, Saarinen (1873-1950) traveled to the United States in 1923 as the result of his second-place prize entry for the Chicago Tribune Tower competition.

In 1925, he was commissioned by George G. Booth to develop plans for The Cranbrook Educational Community, including Cranbrook School.

With its references to medieval architecture and borrowings from numerous European sources, the school for boys must be viewed within the context of Saarinen's Finnish National Romantic architecture, an architecture which sought to create a national identity through indigenous architectural forms.

Since the English Arts and Crafts Movement was a primary source for both national romanticism and the aesthetics of Booth, the resulting form of Cranbrook School was an important achievement in the careers of both architect and patron.

With the Kingswood School, Saarinen searched for a new architectural vocabulary, one that would express his newly adopted American heritage. He found a new source in the "prairie houses" of Frank Lloyd Wright, an architectural style which was in communion with nature and looked to indigenous American forms.

THE SCHOOL for girls, with its horizontal emphasis, broad hip roofs and overhanging eaves, is nestled into the slope of a hill overlooking Kingswood Lake. Even the columns and light fixtures now take on an organic form, rather than the more medievally inspired details of the school for boys. Saarinen's change in philosophy also can be seen in the site and floor plans of the two schools. Whereas Cranbrook is a pedestrian-oriented campus with a pedestrian gate and an open courtyard for circulation, Kingswood's main entrance is approached by a grand auto-court with all the spaces connected internally through grand hallways.

The "James Scripps Booth: Artist and Engineer" exhibition is in the museum's deSalle Gallery. It features 25 works that highlight the artistic and automotive design achievements of Booth.

Booth, the eldest son of Cranbrook's founders, George and Ellen Scripps Booth, was a multi-talented man who moved easily from pastel drawings to highly innovative designs for automobiles.

His formal artistic training consisted primarily of a brief stay at the Ecole Des Beaux Arts in Paris, in addition to time spent with Michigan-born artist Myron Barlow in Etaples, France.

Barlow taught Booth the fundamentals of working with pastels and they quickly became his favorite medium.

Between 1912 and his death in 1954, Booth produced hundreds of pastel landscapes, portraits and figure studies. Constantly experimenting, his working styles included academic, caricature and impressionist.

A SMALL pastel, entitled "Scene at Cannes, France," featured in the exhibit, is a riot of gestural line and color. A large untitled piece of a nude woman swimming illustrates Booth's predilection for an impressionistic style.

Also included in the exhibition are eight works from two of Booth's most important commissions. One of these commissions resulted in an important series of pastel drawings of the early Detroit News Shelby Street plant. The second commission features a variety of early scenes at Cranbrook.

Concurrent with his artistic pursuits, Booth was an impassioned and highly original automotive designer. Included within the exhibition are a number of his designs for automobiles, many of which were either privately built as prototypes or mass-produced by the Scripps-Booth Co.

The Cranbrook Academy of Art Museum is open 1-5 p.m. Tuesday through Sunday. Docent guided tours are available by advance notice. For tour, information, call 645-3312.

Cranbrook is at 500 Lone Pine Road, Bloomfield Hills.

Saarinen used ink and water color for his "Parliament House, Finland 1908."

Art in the midst of the roar of engines

By Todd Schneider
staff writer

Looking through the dirt, grease and grime of auto racing they see art.

Yea, art.
For Ken Coles and Jim Bisignano nothing is quite so poetic — or as much of an artistic challenge — as a Formula 1 racer twisting its way through the curves of Detroit's annual Grand Prix.

Coles, of Garden City, has been reworking photographs of dirt track sprint racers, Indianapolis 500 winners, even hydroplane drivers into paintings for more than 30 years.

"If it moves, I'll paint it," said Coles.

Bisignano, a Birmingham freelance artist, has been painting racing vignettes as part of a varied portfolio since the mid-1960s.

"I happen to like the sport, and I think it lends itself well as subject matter," Bisignano said. "There's a drama there just waiting to be captured."

Bisignano has worked the Grand Prix circuit from Detroit to Monaco. His paintings are done on commission, usually for the race team's sponsor or the driver himself.

The 49-year-old former General Motors employee will start with a photograph and go from there. But Bisignano doesn't always paint it the way the lens sees it.

HE'LL OFTEN paint the pictured car and driver with exacting detail and then add to the background using nearby (but unpictured) landmarks or his imagination.

For example, for a painting done at this year's Brazilian Grand Prix, Bisignano "moved" a mountain a quarter mile in order to get it into the background.

"The environment can be just as visually interesting as the car itself," he said. "Painting is a matter of interpretation, it doesn't have to be identical to the photograph."

His love of cars comes from a stint in automotive design at General Motors, Bisignano said. He has a bachelor's degree in fine arts from Ken Coles begins oil work on a sprint car photograph in his basement workshop.

Notre Dame University.
Coles' work is an offshoot of his friendships with drivers and a never realized desire to race himself (He has poor vision in one eye).

"I had been taking all these black and white photos when I began to hang around the dirt track circuit in the 1950s," Coles said. "I started adding color, though oils, and came up with this kind of old-fashioned, tinted look."

Coles, a retired industrial artist, also will sell his photographs to any of a dozen racing magazines.

The 57-year-old Detroit native has lived through racing's evolution from a "small-town, Saturday night diversion in the cornfield" into a high-tech, corporate sport. And along the way he has made friends with some of the world's top drivers.

HE POINTS to a Christmas card from Mario Andretti and can tell you stories about A.J. Foyt and Al Unser that will make your head spin.

"When you first meet them (drivers), you think 'boy, these guys really have big egos,'"

Coles said. "But then you realize that it's a survival sport and it probably takes a big ego just to come out alive."

Testimony for that theory is provided in the person of the late Ronnie Duman, Coles said.

Coles and Duman, a nationally known sprint car driver from Dearborn, became good friends in the 1960s. Duman was killed during a Milwaukee race in the summer of 1968.

"Since then, I decided I would work with the drivers and respect the drivers but not really get close to the drivers," Coles said.

Both Coles and Bisignano have had close shaves while at the track.

Coles was nearby when the driver of a Porsche lost control and the car flipped over, missing his head by a few feet.

Bisignano said a car ran over his foot once while he was taking photographs at Monaco.

"That was before there were guard rails for us to stand behind," he said.

Jim Bisignano painted this Ferrari going through the tunnel in Monaco six years ago.

Amelia's quiet contrasts with Biscayne's fast pace

YOU CAN fish, sun, swim on the beautiful uncombed public beach or around the great fishing dock at Fort Clinch State Park, with side trips into the 30-square block historic district.

The 1735 House is one of several kinds of overnight accommodations available through inn owners Gary and Emily Grable, who run Amelia Island Lodging Systems.

Either way, you'll want to join the crowds that gather around the shrimp boats at sunset, or watch the sun go down from one of the wooden walkways that traverse the marsh at Amelia Island Plantation.

Amelia Island rates went down at Labor Day and go up again in February or March, depending on the property. Amelia Island Plantation rates for two people off season are $153 a night for an ocean-view room in the hotel, $194 for a one-bedroom condominium. If you plan to play golf or tennis, ask for the two-night package plans, which give you unlimited recreation. Call (904) 261-0101.

If you reserve through Amelia Island Lodging Systems, you will find that a one-bedroom condo at Amelia Surf and Racquet Club is $65 a night. A bedroom at the 1735 House is $65 year-round. They also manage a few units at Amelia Island Plantation: $85 to $95 for an ocean-front room. Call (904) 261-4148.

For more information, contact the Amelia Island-Fernandina Beach Chamber of Commerce, Center St., Fernandina Beach, Fla., or telephone (904) 261-3248.

IF AMELIA is too low-key for you, consider the slightly faster pace of Key Biscayne. The Indians called it the "island in the path of the rising moon." Explorer John Cabot, who landed on the island in 1497, called it "the Cape at the End of April." I call it a miracle, an island of sand, sea and pine trees 16 minutes' drive from downtown Miami.

This playground, set in a sea as green as any Caribbean water, is roughly divided into four parts, all available down the single main street of the island.

The entrance area, across the Rickenbacker Causeway, is where boaters park in marinas and locals, tourists and Miamiites meet at bars and restaurants clustered around the marina. The Miami Seaquarium, Planet Ocean, Museum of Science and Space Transit Planetarium are some of the major attractions here.

Another attraction, Crandon Park makes a great green patch across the causeway end of the island. Picnic under coconut trees or swim at the 2 1/2-mile long public beach.

The village of Key Biscayne comes next, with a busy area of hotels, restaurants and sand beaches on the Atlantic side.

Finally, there's Bill Baggs Florida State Recreation Area and the lighthouse that marks the "Cape at the End of April," known around here as Cape Florida.

Tourists come to this park when it is too hot to stay for another sun-burned moment on their hotel beach or around the pool. Families drive in from Miami, children crowding the golden sand of the public beach, families speaking Spanish or playing dominoes at the picnic tables under the Australian pines.

THE SALT bush, seagrass and buttonwood are native here, as they are in most of Florida, but the Australian pines planted late in the 19th century have long ago taken over the park, making fringed green canopies over the roads and shaded groves beside the sea.

One of the attractions along Amelia Island's Fernandina Beach is meeting the local shrimp boats when they come in from a day of fishing.

It is usually cool under the trees, within sight of both the public beach and the Cape Florida Lighthouse.

Low season rates on Key Biscayne are from Labor Day until Dec. 1. There are two hotels and a motel side by side on the beach. Off season rates are: Silver Sands Motel, $72, the high-rise Sheraton Royal Biscayne Beach Resort, $86 to $153, and the high-rise Sonesta Beach Hotel and Tennis Club, $140 to $216.

For more information on Key Biscayne, contact the Key Biscayne Chamber of Commerce, 95 West McIntyre, Key Biscayne, Fla. 33149, or call (904) 261-3207. Or you can contact the Greater Miami Convention and Visitors Bureau, 4770 Biscayne Blvd., Miami, Fla. 33137, or call (904) 576-4366.

Q. I notice many people carry calendars with them and wonder if I should too? Also, is it a good idea to keep more than one?

A. Calendar systems are a matter of preference. Some people carry heavy cumbersome calendar books, treating them almost like security blankets. Others maintain duplicate schedules for home, work and their car. Different needs and preferences will dictate the right system for you.

I am often amused when people ask if I maintain separate calendars for my business life and my personal life. Since I have only one life and can be in only one place at a time, I need only one calendar. If you actually work in an office from 9 to 5, it is, of course, natural to keep your 9-5 calendar at work and a separate master calendar for after hours, so long as they don't overlap.

Experience has taught me one hard lesson: It is too easy to record conflicting appointments in different calendars for the same time. It's all right to maintain other reference schedules, but maintain only one master calendar to rely on.

If you have a sales job where you work out of your car, you probably do need to carry a full calendar at all times because making sales appointments on the spot is essential. However, when your career does not depend upon your diary, you may be wise not to carry one.

One advantage of not carrying a calendar involves your ability (or inability) to say No. If saying No is difficult for you, don't carry your schedule. If someone sees an open slot on your calendar, they immediately think they own that time. It is then difficult to say No and robs you of the opportunity to make a thoughtful decision. Instead, carry a 3x5 inch scratch pad. When someone asks you to help with a volunteer project, for instance, make a note (including their phone number) and say you will check your calendar and call them later with your answer.

After checking your master calendar and your To Do List, evaluate if this matter is worthy of your time. If you decide you want to be involved (and I certainly do encourage community service) call your confirmation. However, if you are already over-committed or need to catch up on work, call and say you are sorry but you have a conflict. It is not necessary to explain what the conflict is.

In summary, not carrying a calendar allows you to "sleep on it," avoid hasty decisions, and say no gracefully.

Breaking the rules

Whimsy is designer's trademark

JEFF FONTANA wants you to have a home. "How presumptuous," you say, "I already have a home. After all, everything I own is au courant, de rigueur, or, at the very least, Eurostyle. I even have grandma's sewing cabinet for a touch of tradition!"

Ah, but do you have white ceilings? "We've all been raised to believe that certain things are carved in stone," believes interior designer Jeff Fontana. "We have to finish our vegetables before we can have dessert; all sofas have to face the fireplace (even though we only have fires twice a year), and all ceilings have to be white."

"I'm famous for my pink ceilings, they give a great glow. Not the same pink, mind you. Sometimes it's a rosy pink, sometimes a peachy pink, and sometimes a mauvy pink."

"I just did, the offices for a TV station in New York," he continues, "I gave them pink ceilings; and they just hated them. I said, please be patient, wait until the wallpaper is up, wait until the carpeting is in, you'll love it. They just called me and said it's gorgeous, everybody who walk through is just fainting it's so great."

FONTANA EXPLAINS his design philosophy this way: "I expect a client to understand maybe 60 to 70 percent of what I'm doing, the rest is a learning experience: they'll grow into it. If I give them what they understand right now, a year from now, they're going to say, something needs to be done. That's not a good way for me to spend their money. I tell them what they can understand and then stretch it a little so they can grow into it."

"A client showing me her house wailed, 'I just hate this room. I got all my grandmother's furniture and it's so crummy.' Actually, the furniture was great. Part of the problem was that she was following all the so-called rules. The ceilings were white, and that makes you look straight up, away from what should be the focus of attention, the room itself."

"She had a pair of endtables, one at either end of the sofa, because we all know you need a pair of endtables. And all the furniture faced the fireplace. It was like being at a drive-in movie waiting for the feature to start," Fontana said.

"Her husband and I moved the furniture so that everything didn't look clumsy and austere. We turned the sofa away from the fireplace, at an angle. 'I don't know if I can stand that,' she said, 'It's just not allowable.' I said 'Live with it, it's only a sofa, we didn't nail it to the floor. Give it a chance.'"

It took awhile, but now she loves it, Fontana said.

"She thought she needed furniture: all she needed was a little table and to have the sofa recovered. We're not an order store, we're here to try to create something that is yours."

FONTANA GOT his first recognition in the field when he was 16 years old. A bedroom he had decorated for a client's daughter was featured in Better Homes and Gardens, where it was labeled "whimsical."

Whimsy is Fontana's trademark, although he insists he doesn't understand it. "I put an Anita Flory papier mache facing itself in a mirror, and everybody said it was whimsy," he said. "I wasn't thinking of whimsy at all. This is a small shop. By putting a rabbit in front of a mirror propped up on a stack of books both the front and the back of the rabbit was visible, and it was easy for our sales staff to reach it. I guess it was whimsical, but it wasn't contrived whimsy, it just came naturally."

Fontana says he's very conscious of people's needs and their lifestyle.

"Sometimes they're traveling at a speed that they don't see. Some people say they don't entertain, but I see, because they are professionally or socially ambitious, or very out-going, that in a year or two, they'll be entertaining."

"Sometimes," he said, "I see that they're evolving faster than even they realize, so I see that the house has more potential for entertaining or whatever. I try to evaluate things. I interview people, and they, in turn, interview me."

Most of the houses Fontana does are eclectic. "I love a country this, an English that, a Manhattan-looking plexiglass coffee table. I see beauty in everything. A carved wood thing, a funny old stuffed pheasant, an old Chinese pot," he explains.

"I don't like to be labeled, but I guess the way I decorate is classical because I'm very European in my furniture groupings, in my drapery treatments, in the overall look of my room."

A very well traveled European, though. His groupings could include a table from China or a piece of Eskimo sculpture.

"If a person tells me they want one style throughout the house, or even one room, I won't work for them. There are designers who have a

DAN DEAN/staff photographer

Jeff Fontana sits in one of his "finds" surrounded by his acquisitions — many of them found in Europe — in his shop, Vieille Provence. Most of the houses he does are eclectic, Fontana says. "I see beauty in everything," and he will not take on an assignment if the client wants one style throughout the house or even a room.

Wall space in Fontana's shop is all but used up for displaying unusual objects he collects. His philosophy is: You never know what you're going to need, so you snap up things as they become available.

Shop resembles well-dusted attic

'I expect a client to understand maybe 60 or 70 percent of what I'm doing, the rest is a learning experience: they'll grow into it. If I give them what they understand right now, a year from now, they're going to say something needs to be done.'

— Jeff Fontana

feel for that sort of thing who can do the best job for them. I do what I think people are all about, which is multi-faceted.

"I just did a dining room. We found a cabinet in England that fits almost wall-to-wall and we used a marble dining room table, with carved high-style country chairs. We added a Chinese stand and base, and a chandelier that came from California, very high-tech verdigris-green iron with gaslight-type volcanic glass shades. Then, for added elegance, lush, formal draperies."

FONTANA'S SHOP, Vieille Provence, reflects his philosophy. It has the look of a well-dusted attic in an English manor, with the taste of generations of collectors randomly placed. None of it says "decorator." You might have chanced across any of it on New York's Third Avenue or London's Portobello Road.

"You never know what you're going to need, so you snap up things as they become available," Fontana said, caressing some huge gold tassels that came from Detroit's Fisher Building.

"I bought these tassels because they had such a wonderful look to them, but I had no immediate use for them. But then, two years ago, I did a summer home on the Nile for a Saudi sheikh. His wife wanted an Arab sitting room next to the dining room where they could go after dinner.

"We hung yards and yards of fabric between the dining room and the Arab sitting room, ballooned it and used the huge gold tassels. It worked better than a partial wall: you could walk right into the sitting room, but you couldn't see it while you were dining."

FONTANA'S PROJECTS have ranged from senior citizen housing to "Sunset Boulevard"-style mansions in southern California. All his projects have one thing in common: "I guess if you could sum me up, it would be to say that I like to make a house a home and make it usable. People are comfortable in my rooms. They can walk in, sit down and put their feet up. Not just stand in the doorway and say, 'These rooms are lovely, just lovely.'"

Vieille Provence is located at 45235 N. Woodward, at 14 Mile Road. The phone number is 549-4926.

condo queries

Robert M. Meisner

Q. I am interested in buying a condominium which is being referred to as a conversion by the sales person. Can you give me some idea as to what that means?

A. A conversion is a type of a condominium development where the physical structure was formally occupied as another type of legal entity before it was turned into a condominium. For example, typically conversions in the residential context refer to apartment buildings which have been turned into a condominium development. The apartment building may be six months old or 60 years old but may be classified as a conversion if, in fact, it was occupied by residents.

The condominium statute prescribes additional obligations on the converter, particularly in the area of disclosure. Additional caution on the part of the buyer is generally a good idea in a conversion because of the tendency of the buildings to have been used and purportedly sold without the same warranties which would attach to new construction depending on the circumstances.

Q. The developer in his disclosure statement has indicated in our conversion that he did not know of the extent of the condition of the premises prior to the conversion but has not provided any type of engineering report concerning the premises. This is a Detroit condominium. Do you have any suggestions as to what we should do?

A. Developers in Detroit who convert condominiums must, under a city ordinance, provide an engineering report to the prospective purchasers. That engineering report should be comprehensive, that is, an engineer's responsibility to adequately advise the prospective purchaser as to the physical condition of the major component parts of the condominium project as well as any other material and known defects about which the prospective purchaser should know in analyzing whether or not he or she should buy the condominium.

Keep in mind that when you buy a condominium you are not only buying your particular unit but an undivided interest in the common elements which may include the other buildings, roofs, etc., and amenities. Make sure that you have a full grasp of the physical condition of the entire condominium project before you consider purchasing that condominium, particularly in the case of a conversion. If the developer is not complying with the applicable laws, you may want to reconsider whether or not you are interested in even getting involved in that particular condominium project.

Filling tank not wise idea

Do you try to "fill 'er up" to even money at the gas pump, causing the automatic nozzle to shut off several times before you're satisfied the tank is full?

Break the habit, urges the Car Care Council. Overfilling can waste fuel and cause engine problems as well. Further, it pollutes the air.

The reason for this, says the Council, is that raw gasoline at the top of the tank enters a

Why October will help you be a smarter motorist

"If it ain't broke, don't fix it" — that seems to be the adage followed by American car owners. With the amount of money that people invest in a car today, it's surprising that a large percentage of American motorists ignore necessary maintenance. This could enable their cars to run more efficiently and economically, adding more years to the life of their vehicle and protecting their "investment."

Automotive technicians say a major reason for owners' failure to maintain their cars properly is because they do not understand the basics of car care.

Although most people know how to pump their own gas, many do not know how to find their way around a car, and are unable to spot minor problems before they turn into major repair bills. Intensified efforts are needed to ensure that consumers take proper care of their cars.

To alleviate this situation, October has been designated as National Car Care Month (NCCM).

National Car Care Month was developed to educate American motorists about preventive maintenance for their cars. Its purpose is to improve air quality, highway safety and fuel consumption. National Car Care Month is staunchly supported by federal, state and local governments, public interest groups such as the American Lung Association and the American Automobile Association, and the media.

During National Car Care Month, communities will offer free safety and emissions check lanes. In keeping with the goals of NCCM, these programs are designed to encourage owners to get their vehicles in shape and to keep them that way.

Whether or not your community offers free testing, October (or NCCM) is an excellent opportunity for motorists to learn about preventive maintenance. Car owners are encouraged to take advantage of NCCM and have all necessary maintenance checks done. It not only improves car performance, but extends the life of the vehicle as well. After all, buying a car is a big investment, so why not make it pay off!

Car needs protective winter coat

Just like you, your car's body needs a good "coat" for winter-time, protecting it from ice, snow, salt and grime.

A basic step in preparing a car for winter weather is to wash and wax it thoroughly. However, many people risk ruining the car's shine because all they are determined to use for winter prep is a "durable" car wax.

Many car waxes that are dubbed "durable" also may be those that contain harsh abrasives that will damage the "clear coat" finishes of today's cars. They end up doing more harm than good.

Since the 1980s, most cars have been painted with a clear coat finish that is actually a non-pigment layer of paint that adds depth and durability to the shine.

One problem with clear coats is that waxing them with highly abrasive wax will cause white "swirl" marks or hazing — resulting in a lackluster shine and damaged finish.

"Ideally, a wax should be durable, deliver a great shine, be easy to apply and not scratch your car," said Dr. Jim Latty, Armor All Product Corp.'s vice president of research and development. "That's what we set out to do in our development of Armor All's first car wax product."

To locate ingredients that would be safe for clear coat paints, yet deliver a durable high shine, Armor All went to the jewelry industry to acquire the very same grade of polishing agents used by jewelers to shine crystal and gold. These polishing agents are five times finer than traditional automotive wax polishing agents.

"Super-fine polishing agents provide less surface resistance, allowing consumers to wax their cars in less time, while the superior silicones and waxes provide an incredible shine and outstanding durability," said Latty.

"In fact, tests show Armor All Car Wax significantly outlasts the current leading waxes," he said.

Consumer reactions seem to support Latty's contention that Armor All has developed an ideal wax formula for today's cars. According to a recent study by a leading marketing research firm, in just four months on retail shelves, Armor All Car Wax virtually has tied for the number-two sales spot and is already closing in on the category leader, Turtle Wax Hard Shell.

One of the most important steps in prepping a car for winter is to add a "coat" of wax. But make sure that the wax used is not too abrasive or it will end up leaving "swirl" marks on your car's painted finish. Choose one designed for today's "clear coat" finishes.

Installing clean air filter wise autumn investment

If you've planned on holding off until the nice weather to open your car's hood and put in a clean air filter, you may not want to wait that long. According to Car Care Council, you could already be wasting gas and polluting the air.

Vehicle checks have disclosed that more than one out of three cars are running with air filters dirty enough to be affecting the vehicles' performance and causing excessively high exhaust emissions.

Most cars use up to 14 gallons of air per gallon; that ratio increases to nearly 15 to 1 on newer cars with fuel injection.

When insufficient air is available to the engine the car acts as if the "choke" were on, sometimes spewing black smoke from the tail pipe. This condition also can cause fouling of spark plugs and damage to the catalytic converter.

Most manufacturers recommend changing air filters at about 7,500 miles. If you drive in dusty areas such as on unpaved roads, the filter should be changed more frequently.

Prices, sizes and shapes of air filters vary from vehicle to vehicle and from model year to model year. Changing them is relatively easy on older models. Often it is necessary only to remove a thumb screw at the top of the air filter housing.

On many newer models the procedure still is easy, says the Council, but there are some engines equipped with fuel injection and other components which make the filter less accessible. To cope with various vacuum hoses, ducts, wires and breather lines it may be necessary to have a mechanic do the installation.

For an informative pamphlet on your car's various filters, send 25 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to FILTERS, c/o Car Care Council, 600 Renaissance Center, Detroit 48243.

Tune up may improve slowness in shifting of car's transmission

If your car's automatic transmission seems to be taking longer than usual to shift through its gears, you may need a tune-up rather than transmission service.

A "sick" engine can cause a transmission to hesitate in lower gears and downshift.

The reason is that when the engine needs a tune-up, having lost some of its pep and performance, it will have to work harder to climb a hill, accelerate or otherwise operate under load.

The driver, subconsciously compensating for the poor performance, depresses the accelerator pedal a little further.

This extra demand on the engine causes a decrease in engine vacuum. Vacuum is one of the main factors in transmission shifting control. The transmission responds by remaining in a lower gear longer or, sometimes, downshifting to lighten the engine's burden.

This sensitive interrelationship between the engine and transmission requires that both be functioning properly for efficient performance.

NOTE: High under-hood temperatures can cause deterioration of vacuum hose with resultant leaks. This can affect other components including cruise control, heater/air conditioner controls, retracting headlamp doors and the various mechanisms that affect engine operation.

Check periodically for cracked or brittle hoses and replace as needed.

Dirty air filters, which limit the amount of fresh air needed by an auto engine, causes wasted fuel and air pollution. Replacing the air filter is one of the easiest do-it-yourself auto maintenance tasks, and can be extremely beneficial, prior to winter, for dependable and efficient operation.

Sure you and your car are ready for winter?

As the mercury drops to levels far below freezing, medical experts issue warnings about the potential health dangers. While we heed the advice to take necessary precautions, we realize how vulnerable man really is.

We also need to realize that machine is vulnerable as well. This is evidenced by the tens of thousands of people whose cars fail them on that first cold morning.

Most of these emergencies should not be attributed to the weather but, instead, to neglected mechanical maintenance.

Most car failure can be avoided by basic preventive measures, says Car Care Council, who offer this check list for cold weather dependability.

1. BATTERY: Is it fully charged? If not, either the battery or charging system may need attention.

2. COOLING SYSTEM: Is your anti-freeze still strong enough to provide protection against freezing? Are belts and hoses OK? Are thermostat and pressure cap functioning like they should?

3. ENGINE: Time for a tune up? The best battery cannot start an engine that needs maintenance. Malfunctioning emission controls are found to be a cause of erratic engine operation in cold weather.

4. OIL AND FILTER: An engine with dirty oil won't turn over as easily on a cold morning. Oil and filter should be changed as part of seasonal service.

5. TIRES: Avoid trouble by going into winter with good tires, properly balanced and aligned.

6. BRAKES: For safe, smooth stopping, check brakes before ice and snow cover roads.

7. LIGHTS: All lights, including flashers, should be checked; burned out bulbs replaced.

8. WINDSHIELD WIPERS: Replace worn blades, ideally with winter blades that repel ice and snow. Keep a spare jug of windshield washer fluid in the trunk.

9. INSIDE THE TRUNK: How's your spare? Do you have a jack? A windshield scraper?

Car Care Council emphasizes that any car should start and run dependably in even the coldest of temperatures (sometimes with the help of auxiliary heaters for frigid starting) but the decisive factor between "go" and "no go" usually is preventive maintenance.

For more information on cold weather car operation, write for the booklet: Are You Sure You And Your Car Are Ready For Winter. Send 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed No. 10 envelope to: WINTER, Car Care Council, 600 Renaissance Center, Detroit 48243.

Brown to be a hot color for 1991 cars

Brown, a color that was not even included in the 12 most popular 1986 car colors, is predicted to be among the hottest colors of the 1991 model year, according to Robert Daily, color marketing manager at Du Pont Automotive Products' Finishes Division.

Car buyers will show preferences for bolder browns, more vivid reds and more fully saturated blues in the early years of the next decade, the expert said.

In 1991, customer preference will diminish somewhat from the now-popular medium grays toward other color groups — most probably brown, red and blue — while grays will remain a staple color group, Daily added.

In a recent published annual report by Du Pont on car color preferences for 1986, the five most popular colors for full and intermediate size U.S. cars were: medium gray (14.9 percent); white (13.2 percent); medium red (12 percent); dark blue (11.2 percent), and silver (10 percent). Red was the most popular choice for 1986 U.S. compacts, followed by white, medium gray metallic, black and silver metallic.

Moisture in tank brings fuel-line woes

Changes in temperature and humidity associated with winter weather result in condensation of water in the fuel tank.

This can lead to fuel-line freeze-up, corrosion of fuel tanks, poor engine performance, and starting problems.

Gas treatment additive, found in several brands on most automotive chemical shelves, is a ready answer to the problem.

Most gas treatment contains non-alcoholic water dispersal agents that help remove the water from the tank. This type of additive is also an aid in keeping the carburetor clean, thus leading to fuel savings.

Lighten up

As the cold weather approaches, lighten up a little!

That is, consider a lighter weight oil in your car. If you haven't had your oil changed for several thousand miles, now may be the time.

Ask for a lighter, winter-weight oil, to ease starting strain on your engine on cold mornings.

Also, if the oil is being changed, don't forget to have the oil filter replaced at the same time.

Underneath it all: Tires

Tire and related automotive care is extremely important to motorists concerned about the safe and economical operation of their cars.

For more than 65 years, the National Tire Dealers and Retreaders Association has shared that concern for the well-being of the nation's motoring public and now as a supporter of National Car Care Month/October, offers these important care tips.

● TIRE INFLATION — Proper inflation extends tire life and saves fuel. You can't tell when tires are underinflated just by looking at them. Since air pumps are not always accurate, NTDRA recommends that you either stop by a tire dealer for an inflation check or carry an air gauge in the glove compartment. Tires should be checked at least once a month and before any long trip. Underinflation creates excessive heat, which seriously reduces tire life and can cause tire failure. Also, underinflation can increase rolling resistance and lower miles per gallon.

● TIRES — Don't go bald early. At least once a month, inspect tires closely for signs of uneven wear. Uneven wear patterns may be caused by improper inflation pressures, misalignment, improper balance, or suspension neglect. If caught in time, the cause may be corrected. When the tread is worn down to 2/32nds of an inch, or wear bars, which look like thin strips of smooth rubber across the tread, appear on the tire, it's time to replace the tire. Don't wait.

● SUSPENSION — Suspension systems in need of repairs send out warning signals — excessive bounce at front or rear end when you push down on the bumper — rough, uncomfortable ride — leaking seals or deteriorating rubber bushings in shock absorbers. If any of these problems are noticed, motorists could avoid excessive and expensive damage to their cars and tires by having the suspension system checked.

● BRAKES — Squeaky not always bad, but be careful. All brakes are susceptible to slight occasional squeal or grinding. This occurs after the vehicle has been idle overnight or in unusual damp weather conditions. This noise will dissipate quickly, and has no effect on brake operation. However, if the noise continues, or brake linings haven't been changed for 20,000 miles, a professional check could be in order.

● ALIGNMENT — Keep it going straight. If the car seems to pull to one side or appears to be traveling at an angle while all four wheels are straight, and the tire tread is wearing unevenly, the car is probably out of alignment. This could happen to either a new or older car. To avoid permanent damage and the risk associated with driving a vehicle in this condition, NTDRA suggests a professional opinion.

The pressure's on

Engineers at the Kelly-Springfield Tire Co. contest the popular belief that decreasing tire pressure allows for better traction on snow and ice. In fact, they believe it to be detrimental to traction, stability and durability. To obtain the optimum cold weather performance from your tires, Kelly-Springfield engineers recommend maintaining the vehicle manufacturer's specified air pressure plus two to three pounds when lading the vehicle with winter gear.

ABCs of finding a good mechanic

October has been declared National Car Care Month by the nation's governors, and with good reason. Fall is an ideal time to get our car or light truck ready for winter driving. Autumn's weather is usually temperate enough to let you work on your vehicle in relative comfort, and parts stores and repair facilities often run specials.

But if you are not inclined to do-it-yourself repairs, take heart. Finding a good, competent auto technician need not be a guessing game. Here are some hints:

Ask a number of friends, co-workers, or business associates if they can recommend someone; a consensus is usually more reliable than counting on one person's judgment.

Be sure to call the local Better Business Bureau or consumer organization and ask about the reputation of the place(s) of business in question. Any business may have a few complaints, but be wary if the shop in question has a high number of unresolved complaints lodged against it.

Check around for auto technicians certified by the non-profit National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence. ASE determines the competence of technicians by means of written tests designed to correlate to real-world repair problems.

THE VOLUNTARY exams are administered twice a year at over 350 sites throughout the country. Technicians take tests in from one to eight automobile specialties, such as engine repair or brakes. Those who pass one or more tests and have at least two years' hands-on work experience are awarded ASE certification. Moreover, ASE technicians must recertify every five years in order to keep current.

Once certified, ASE technicians are eligible to wear the blue and white ASE shoulder patch. They also often carry pocket credentials and give their employers special ASE-issued wall certificates to display in the customer service area. Not only are these credentials meaningful to the technicians, they are reassuring to his employer, and important to you. They are the extra assurance that your job will be done right the first time.

With over 200,000 ASE technicians at work nationwide, finding one right for your car shouldn't be difficult. ASE technicians are employed at new car dealerships, service stations, independent garages, tire dealerships, and volume retailers.

The easiest way to find these professionals is to look for establishments that display the ASE "Blue Seal of Excellence" outdoor sign. It means one or more ASE-certified technicians are employed there. The sign features a blue seal with white "ASE" letters and a slogan: "We employ technicians certi-

Keeping car cozy in cold weather

Do you hear a chirping or screeching sound when you turn on your car heater? This noise, most prevalent in cold weather, usually comes from a worn bearing in the fan motor. It's an indication of pending failure.

This is just one of many parts we take for granted until, usually too late, we discover they were calling for attention. That's when the cold ride to work becomes misery.

Most of this discomfort and inconvenience can be avoided by being more aware of pending failure of a heating system component, says Car Care Council. In addition to the fan or blower motor, other components of the system which may give warning signals of failure are as follows:

- The heater control valve, which may become sticky or totally inoperative. You're likely to notice stiffness in the panel control lever.

- The heater core, a miniature radiator which, like its big brother at the front of engine, eventually may seep or leak. Your first tip-off will be an accumulation of moisture inside the car, where even defrosters won't help.

- Heater and defroster duct hoses carry fresh air into the system and warmed air to locations beyond the heater core. When they're leaking, you'll lose heating/defrosting efficiency.

- Heater hoses are the smaller hoses in the cooling system that direct the hot coolant from the engine to the heater core. A leaking heater hose goes beyond simple discomfort and can ultimately leave you stranded on the side of the road.

Because of the safety aspects of driving comfort and clear vision, the heating/defroster system is a vitally important part of the vehicle, emphasizes the council, and should be taken seriously when failure is indicated. Be alert to early warning signs such as inefficient heating or defrosting, unusual noises or smells. It's quicker, more convenient and usually less expensive to have these malfunctions taken care of while they are only minor problems.

HOW TO MAKE YOUR AUTOMATIC TRANSMISSION LAST & LAST...

TIPS FROM TRANSMISSION SPECIALISTS:

- AFTER STARTING THE ENGINE, ALLOW IDLE SPEED TO SLOW TO NORMAL BEFORE SHIFTING.
- AVOID HOLDING ONE FOOT ON THE BRAKE, THE OTHER ON THE ACCELERATOR.

NEVER ROCK YOUR CAR MORE THAN A FEW TIMES WHEN STUCK IN SNOW. ROCKING OVERHEATS THE TRANSMISSION.

- CHECK TRANSMISSION FLUID REGULARLY.
- IF FLUID HAS TURNED BROWN OR SMELLS BURNT, CHANGE FLUID AND FILTER.
- IF YOU NEED TO ADD FLUID, CHECK FOR LEAKAGE.

NOTE: IF YOU ARE A "SEVERE SERVICE" DRIVER (TRAILER TOWING OR OTHER ABNORMAL LOADS) CHECK YOUR OWNER'S MANUAL FOR SPECIAL SERVICE REQUIREMENTS. CONSIDER INSTALLING AN AUXILIARY TRANSMISSION COOLER.

1 MASTER CYLINDER
THE MASTER CYLINDER, HEART OF THE BRAKE SYSTEM, CONTAINS A RESERVOIR FOR BRAKE FLUID. IT IS LOCATED ON THE FIREWALL AND SHOULD BE CHECKED PERIODICALLY TO ENSURE THE PROPER FLUID LEVEL.

2 BRAKE LINES
ATTACHED TO THE MASTER CYLINDER, STEEL BRAKE TUBING RUNS TO ALL FOUR WHEELS. BRAKE LINES SHOULD BE INSPECTED FOR RUST, WHICH CAN LEAD TO LEAKS; IF THE LINES ARE DAMAGED THEY SHOULD BE REPLACED.

3 BRAKE HOSES
RUBBER BRAKE HOSES RUN FROM THE BRAKE LINES TO THE BRAKE CALIPERS AND WHEEL CYLINDERS. CONSTANT EXPOSURE TO ROAD GRIME, DIRT, SALT AND OTHER ELEMENTS CAN CAUSE THE RUBBER TO BECOME BRITTLE AND CRACK, LEADING TO BRAKE FAILURE.

6 BEARINGS AND SEALS
WHEEL BEARINGS SHOULD BE INSPECTED AND LUBRICATED PERIODICALLY. WORN WHEEL BEARINGS, WHICH CAN CAUSE FAULTY STEERING, AS WELL AS ERRATIC BRAKING, SHOULD BE REPLACED.

7 PARKING BRAKE THE PARKING BRAKE SHOULD BE ADJUSTED PERIODICALLY.

4 LININGS AND PADS
THE PADS AND BRAKE SHOE LININGS SHOULD BE CHECKED PERIODICALLY FOR UNEVEN OR EXCESSIVE WEAR, GLAZING, OR SATURATION FROM BRAKE FLUID OR GREASE.

5 CALIPERS AND WHEEL CYLINDERS
BRAKES ARE ACTIVATED BY BRAKE FLUID PRESSURE FROM THE MASTER CYLINDER PUSHING A PISTON LOCATED IN THE CALIPER OR WHEEL CYLINDER AGAINST THE PAD OR SHOE. A LEAK CAN CAUSE ERRATIC BRAKING OR BRAKE FAILURE.

Brakes deserve special attention

Brake failure is the leading cause of motor accidents due to mechanical deficiencies. The vast majority of these failures can be traced to neglected maintenance. Car Care Council offers this basic information to help owners better understand their vehicles' braking system.

When you step on the brake pedal, you create friction that resists the wheels from turning. Eventually, friction causes the brake parts to wear out and require replacement. You can make your brakes wear better and keep repair costs down by using good driving habits.

When you stop, let the vehicle slow gradually instead of stopping suddenly. Never ride the brakes on long hills.

For maintenance, check the fluid level in the master cylinder once a month and add heavy duty brake fluid if the level is low.

Be aware of the symptoms of brake trouble and seek the advice of a qualified technician when brakes act erratically. You cannot put a price tag on the security of knowing you have a good braking system under your foot.

In order to take care of your car's braking system, you should understand it. Use the accompanying diagram to familiarize yourself with its major components.

For further information, send 25 cents along with a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Brakes, Care Care Council, 600 Renaissance Center, Detroit 48243.

tube leading to a vapor recovery container under the hood. The charcoal filled canister is supposed to send gas vapors to the engine where they are burned off, but the raw gas presents a problem. It creates an over-rich mixture and causes poor combustion in the engine.

The result: poor gas mileage, rough running and possibly hard starting. You may also notice a gas odor in the car.
