School has no plan to drop Indian logo

By Susan Buck
staff writer

There's no plan to change the Plymouth Canton High school logo and team name — "Canton Chiefs" — in response to recent American Indian civil rights' concerns, said Thomas J. Tattan, principal, Tuesday.

The Michigan Civil Rights Commission is expected to release a report Oct. 24 urging state schools to abandon use of Indian symbols for team logos, many of which they say negatively stereotype Indians in Hollywood style, according to Art Stine, the commission's district executive for the community services bureau.

BUT TATTAN said the image portrayed by his school's logo, which he describes as a dignified Indian's head with a full-feathered headdress, portrays the positive attributes and values of Indian chiefs: leadership and strength of character.

"We have a low-key Indian," said Tattan. "During the mid-'70s students chose the logo, and it has been the logo ever since. We have no intention at this point of getting rid of it. We don't feel it is demeaning. It would be nice if we could solve our educational funding problems rather than dealing with this."

He added the school does not abuse the Indian symbol or negatively portray Indian behavior via an Indian mascot or cheers. The logo is displayed on pennants and some sweatshirts, but basically just the word "Chiefs" is used on items, said Tattan. Football helmets feature an Indian arrowhead.

The red and white logo on the school's stationary, which was provided by Tattan as an example, features the Indian chief with a bit of face paint. The logo on other items does not.

Sixty-two Michigan high schools and three Michigan colleges use Indian nicknames or logos, according to a survey conducted by the Michigan Civil Rights Commission.

Girl dismissed from court wardship

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

A Wayne County juvenile judge has relinquished court wardship of a 5-year-old Plymouth girl.

Judge James Lacey ruled Friday that Erica Francis, who was treated for a vaginal injury last October, may continue living with her parents and two brothers.

Lacey earlier removed the girl from her home and recommended that Larry and Valerie Francis undergo counseling.

Erica was placed with relatives from October 1987 through last April. On April 12, Lacey allowed Erica to return home, because the Francis did seek counseling.

Lacey placed the family under the supervision of the court's Family Treatment Unit. The unit — staffed by social workers and probation officers specializing in child abuse and neglect — made scheduled and surprise visits weekly to the Francis home, monitoring progress and providing counseling.

THE CASE began Oct. 16, 1987, when the Francis took Erica to Oakwood Hospital Canton Center for treatment for vaginal bleeding. The Francis told Oakwood's Dr. Mark Richter that Erica was in the bathroom when she was startled by her father.

The youngster reportedly fell backwards off the sink onto her brother's potty chair, injuring herself on a homemade splash guard fashioned from a margarine tub.

Richter contended the internal injuries could not have been caused in the manner described and referred the case as required under state law to the Department of Social Services.

Plymouth police were notified, but closed their investigation after Larry Francis, a mold injection machinist at a plastics factory, passed several lie detector tests.

"Nurses and doctors are required to report it to us if something looks out of the ordinary and they suspect abuse," said Plymouth Lt. Robert Commire. "If we can substantiate it fine, but in this case we couldn't."

Larry Francis openly took the (polygraph) test and successfully passed it."

Lacey scheduled the case for trial last January. A probate court jury decided Jan. 14 that the court had jurisdiction over the youngster.

LACEY SAID his decision to dismiss wardship concurred with the recommendation of the Family Treatment Unit.

Sandy Mily, owner of Fox Hills Country Club in Salem Township, becomes the first female Plymouth Rotarian.

1st local woman Rotarian grew up on golf course

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

According to radio broadcaster Paul Harvey, it was women who introduced the sport of golf to the United States. So to Harvey, Sandy Mily would be no big deal.

The Plymouth resident owns and manages Fox Hills Country Club in Salem Township, along with her sister, Kathleen Amavorian, and mother, Estelle Dul.

Mily recently became the Plymouth Rotary Club's first woman member.

Last week, Mily announced plans to build a new 18-hole championship golf course and 32,000-square-foot, two-level clubhouse. The existing facility, formerly Plymouth Country Club on North Territorial Road, includes 27 holes and a log clubhouse with several additions. The new clubhouse and course will be built on what used to be the Huff, Cockrum and DiPonio farms immediately west of Fox Hills.

THE EXPANSION will offer golfers more variety and an opportunity for the club to handle more parties, said Mily.

Mily said her dad, who with his family bought Fox Hills in 1974, would have approved of her building plans. Alexander Dul died in March 1986. It was Dul who remodeled Fox Hills, which had fallen into disrepair during the 10 years it was abandoned.

"I think he'd be especially proud of our new clubhouse and course," said Mily, whose mother is pro

Confusion over name concerns owner of township business

By Bob Skler

What's in a name?

Double confusion for a Farmington Hills computer expert, worried that people might confuse him with a murder suspect in California.

David Ira Brown, 39, who founded Data Recovery Inc. of Plymouth Township in 1981, said he hasn't lost any suppliers or clients.

But because a few thought he was the murder suspect, he called his 100 suppliers and clients nationwide to clear up any doubts. "All of the customers I talked with apologized up and down for even thinking it," Brown said.

Until September, David Arnold Brown, 35, of Anaheim, Calif., had been a computer consultant. In early August, he filed to do business as Data Recovery Inc. Now, he's behind bars, charged with masterminding his wife's murder.

David Ira Brown is not about to pass judgment on the other man's guilt or innocence. But he wants everyone to know he's not the man involved in the murder case and their companies are not related.

Ironically, David Ira Brown knew of the California man and his line of work.

When he heard of "David Brown who did recovery of data for a disk maintenance company in California," 4½ years ago, David Ira Brown called him.

"We kind of laughed about it," Brown said, recalling that David Arnold Brown appeared to be "very professional, very polite — the type of person that I would probably do business with."

the 1985 murder case when a business associate called Sept. 28 and asked if he knew who was in jail on a murder charge.

"I just jokingly said, 'I don't know, your brother George?' and he said, 'Sit down.' He says, 'David Brown, owner of Data Recovery.' I said, 'What kind of joke is this?' He said, 'You remember — that guy out in California.'"

When David Ira Brown broke the news to his wife and business partner, Marilyn, 39, he said, "Guess who's arrested for murder?" When he told her who, she replied, joking: "What did he do, murder his wife?" Neither then knew about the murder charge.

The Orange County District Attorney's Office charged David Arnold Brown with conspiracy to murder and murder for financial gain — 3 1/2 years after the slaying that was thought to have been solved. The defendant maintains he is innocent.

Three days after the arrest made the front page of the Bay City Times

David Ira Brown is not about to pass judgment on the other man's guilt or innocence. But he wants everyone to know he's not the man involved in the murder case and their companies are not related.

David Ira Brown, in Bay City installing computer equipment for a client was approached by a data entry worker he knew.

She wanted to ask a question none else in the office had the nerve to ask. "She handed me the front page of the Bay City Times and I read the article that was headed something like, 'Teen takes blame for dad,' Brown recalled. 'When I looked up, she said, 'We want to know if you have anything to do with this.' I said, 'Obviously not. I'm sitting here and the paper says this gentleman is in jail.'"

DAVID ARNOLD Brown's teenage daughter, Cinnamon, was found hours after the March 19, 1985, slaying of 23-year-old Linda Marie Brown. Lying in a backyard doghouse, suffering from a drug overdose, Cinnamon was holding a note that read: 'Dear God, please forgive me. I didn't mean to hurt her.'"

Cinnamon Brown confessed, was convicted and was sentenced to 27 years to life in prison. Because of her age, the sentence meant she would be held by the California Youth Authority until age 25 or until freed for good behavior.

After three years in custody, Cinnamon Brown, now 18, recently came forward, apparently implicating her father. The prosecution maintains that Brown persuaded his daughter to bear the murder rap.

The prosecution says David Arnold Brown has collected $835,000 from $1 million worth of life insurance policies he had taken out on his wife.

Meanwhile, David Ira Brown has considered changing the name of his company, which does $600,000 to $700,000 worth of business a year. But he decided to keep Data Recovery Inc. As he put it: "I've worked very hard for seven years to build a reputation for this company."

Brown has five employees — his wife of 17 years, his parents and his brother. The company will move to Farmington Hills within two months.

The Associated Press contributed to this story.

THE COMMISSION has been concerned about such use for some time, but the views and experiences of an American Indian graduate student who was employed by the commission during the summer proved to be an influence for the survey, Stine said.

Nina McFadden, a native American Indian who has lived in both Newberry and Sault St. Marie, conducted the survey for the commission, Stine said. Her heritage is of the Ottawa tribe in Michigan, one of Michigan's three principal tribes of Indians. The others are Potawatomi and Chippewa.

Another influence for the survey was the stand recently taken by the National Conference of Christians and Jews against the practice, which appears to single out American Indians, said Stine. That group devised a poster with make-believe pennants to illustrate their point, which ran in a February issue of Sports Illustrated, he said.

Those pennants read: "Pittsburgh Negroes, Kansas City Jews, San Diego Caucasians and Cleveland Indians."

"Often team logos feature primitive, inaccurate versions of these people and portray them with animal-like, savage qualities. They provide an inaccurate picture of Indians historically. We don't do that with another group of people," Stine said.

SCHOOL BOARD member E.J.

McClendon, who is a 100-percent Choctaw Indian, said he has been concerned with the use of such logos for a long time.

Of Plymouth Canton High School's logo, McClendon said: "I talked to Kent Buikema (executive director of secondary education), when they chose that thing. Personally, I wish they hadn't. I wasn't real enthused about it."

He does object to the public's general impression that, historically, Indians were warriors and savages. "It can be derogatory. It's kind of touchy. Literature is filled with savage images," said McClendon.

Paul Cummings, Centennial Education Park athletic director: "I don't look at it as a negative or demeaning thing. It has to be positive to generate school spirit."

Brian Callon and Jim Gallagher, Plymouth Canton High School seniors, who both wore letter jackets Tuesday, said they don't object to use of the Indian logos.

"I think the whole thing is kind of stupid," said Callon. "It's not hurting anything. I think they (Indians) should be proud."

Agreed Gallagher: "I think it's more of a compliment."

Dick Egli, community relations director for the Plymouth-Canton Community School district said the district will consider the logo issue when a formal decision is reached. "For me to comment at this time is an impossibility."

Judge dismisses wardship; girl to remain with parents and in the best interest of the child. The family was introduced to all the resources that we had available to us, and I made a decision," Lacey said.

Valerie Francis says the painful ordeal has strengthened her family. "Something like this would tear most families apart. It made us closer and stronger. If someone can survive this, they can survive anything," said Francis, whose sons, Larry and Allen, are 7 and 3, respectively.

Richard Clark, the Francis' attorney, said the family has been through "a very emotional time. They've vented a lot of anger and frustration."

In the "unwieldy" juvenile court system, "we were fortunate in that we were able to leave Erica with a family member," Clark said.

TOM PIOTROWSKI is the attorney who represented the Department of Social Services at trial. Dismissing wardship "as quickly as the court did here usually doesn't happen," he said.

Piotrowski argued in court that the child be removed from the home based on the family practitioner's belief that it was "highly unlikely" that the child was injured in the way her parents described.

"Plus the fact that when she fell, she had corduroy pants on. The jury thought that what she was wearing would have protected her. In order to hurt herself like that, her legs would have had to have been spread out. It's inconceivable to fall with your legs spread out like that," Piotrowski said.

Richter said he didn't want to comment on specifics. But, he said, "I don't feel I need to change anything I did in the case. A physician's responsibility is to just report what he saw. It's up to the DSS to determine whether abuse occurred."

DISMISSING WARDSHIP "is perhaps the most difficult decision we're called up to make," said Lacey. "If you're dealing with a 1-, 2-or 3-year-old, you're dealing with the life of that child.

"It's in your hands. If you make a decision to put a child back in the home under the supervision of the DSS and find out the child is abused again or killed, you say to yourself, 'The child would be alive today' if it weren't for that decision. You can paralyze yourself."

"I think the overriding factor is that as much as possible you want to protect the children," said Richter. "You would like to get a perfect law so that the only people accused are the people involved where abuse occurs. But it's impossible to devise a system like that. I think experience has shown that in the past, laws were too liberal and too many abused children were not being detected," added Richter, who said he refers two to six abuse cases a year to the DSS.

The Francis case "shows the importance of adequate medical help and the roles doctors play with the DSS in protecting children," said Piotrowski.

Local dairy not cool to ice cream production in fall

After the mixture is chilled, the final flavoring is added. In this case it's mint for mint chocolate chip ice cream.

Frost may be on the pumpkins, but that doesn't mean the workers at Cloverdale Farms Dairy have stopped producing that summertime favorite, ice cream. The dairy has been selling hand-packed ice cream from its store on Forest in Plymouth year-round since 1933. Hours of operation are reduced in the chilly months and sales drop a little, but the process of mixing cream, sugar and flavorings then freezing the concoction is still completed once a week.

There are 23 flavors produced during winter, instead of the 35 offered during the prime season.

Ice cream may be easy to eat, but producing it takes a certain knack.

"Each guy's got about four different things to do at one time," said Pat Hoelscher, a Cloverdale employee.

THE ICE cream maker has to be monitored to make sure it's not producing a mixture that is too hard, the fruit filler has to be kept full of goodies and empty half-gallon containers must be kept handy to catch the finished product.

"It can be hectic, but it usually runs pretty well," Hoelscher said.

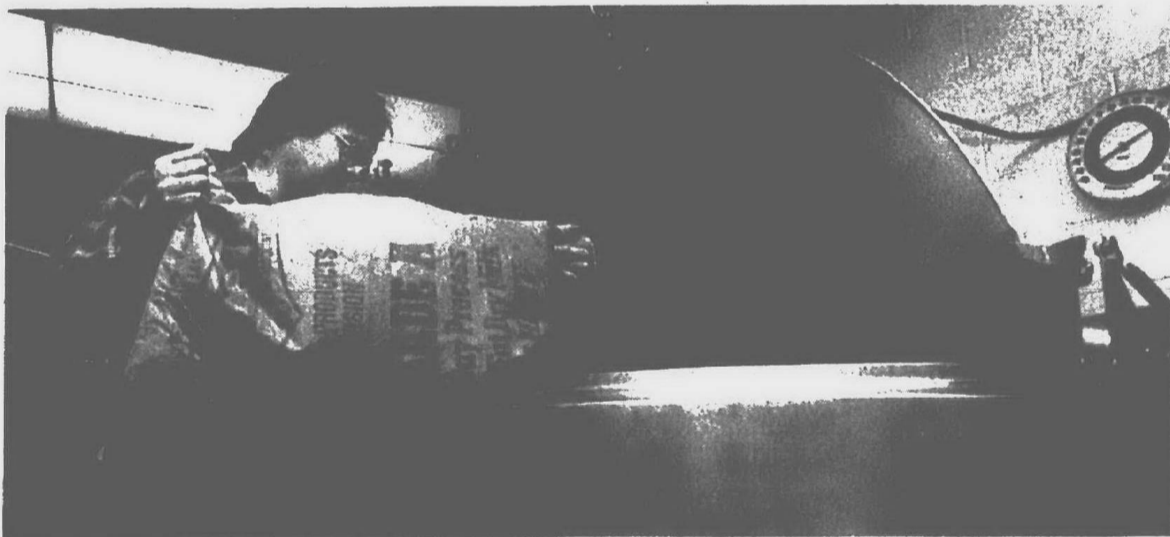

Part of Hoelscher's duties are to put the containers into the "hardening room," a freezer kept at about 40 degrees below zero.

"I think my blood thickens a little," he said. "It prepares me for winter, I'll tell you that."

Hoelscher only stays in the freezer for 20 minutes at a time, and he wears a coat and gloves.

"You just keep moving, that's the secret to it," he said.

Pat Hoelscher bundles himself up to stack the goods in a 40-degree-below-zero freezer.

Jim Tomlinson adds dried milk to a tank full of sugar and flavoring.

Effort to revoke saloon license suffers setback

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

Plymouth Township's efforts to remove the liquor license of the Plymouthrock Saloon suffered a blow in circuit court last week.

Ingham County Circuit Judge Thomas Brown ruled Wednesday the township didn't take the steps it should have in deciding not to renew the Rock's liquor license.

The Michigan Liquor Control Commission ordered in August the license of the Rock, cited several times for serving alcohol to minors, be revoked.

THE ACTION followed a show cause hearing held by the Plymouth Township board and a unanimous vote by township trustees to revoke the license last February.

Norman Farhat, attorney for the Rock, later obtained a restraining order in court prohibiting the LCC from enforcing the revocation.

Brown extended the order Wednesday.

The non-renewal issue is being considered separately.

"We will maintain the status quo until we can review the matter, and until it has been properly heard, briefed and decided," Brown said.

Brown ordered the township "to establish written criteria regarding non-renewal," and to do the non-renewal over again.

"I'm of the opinion that the township has lost the case," said Farhat after the hearing.

"The judge has ruled against them."

A Canton woman was killed in a head-on crash outside the Plymouthrock in December 1986. A then underage Westland woman, who'd been drinking at the bar, is serving a five-to-15-year manslaughter sentence in connection with the case.

Farhat said the township has taken the position that the bar is a public nuisance without defining in its ordinance what a public nuisance consists of.

FARHAT, WHO serves on the Plymouthrock's board of directors, also claims that "we didn't get a fair hearing. Before the township held its hearing, they'd already held meetings and made up their minds."

Arthur D'Hondt, assistant attorney general prosecuting the case for the LCC, maintained that the commission acted properly in upholding the township's decision to revoke.

"The commission conducted an appropriate hearing limited to determining whether Plymouth Township abided the licensee due process as established by the Court of Appeals," said D'Hondt. "It didn't determine whether Plymouth Township did a good job, or acted arbitrarily or capriciously."

Brown scheduled a conference for Oct. 25. John Stewart, who has acted as special prosecutor for Plymouth Township, expects the matter to go to trial.

Peter Eleferio, who with Detroit restaurateur Donald Vargo owns the Plymouthrock, is trying to sell his bar. The LCC will not approve the transfer or sale of a liquor license if violations are pending, said Verna Foote, LCC supervisor of hearings and appeals. If the license is revoked, it becomes worthless.

"The spotlight is on. There's a great deal of motivation to pull the bar's operation back within the law to protect the health and safety of the community," said attorney Ronald Karp.

Karp is taking over for Stewart, who is stepping down because he is running for township trustee.

"The operators of the Plymouthrock Saloon are going to have to behave themselves because their current conduct would prompt the court to take action."

"Because of the history of the Plymouthrock, the wrongful death and the pressure of all this, it's my impression that the owner is trying to get out of the business. This may accelerate his decision that this is not the thing he should be doing in the community," said Karp.

Official builds on work

Charles McIlhargey, Plymouth Township's newly appointed building official, brings a wealth of experience and knowledge to the job.

He owned an industrial/commercial building company for 15 years and built his own house when he moved to the township from the city five years ago.

McIlhargey, 53, will supervise an inspector and two clerks. Most of his time will be spent on field inspections.

"We issue permits, do a lot of plan review to make sure they meet our standards and BOCA (Building Officials and Code Administrators — national building code) standards," he said. "We handle all inspections to make sure they match plans submitted."

"That encompasses a lot of work." McIlhargey came out of a five-year retirement to take the job.

"It will give me something to do," he said. "I enjoy it. You always have different problems. When you solve them, there's a lot of gratitude to it. The individual is happy, the community is happy."

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Charles McIlhargey, on site here at the Jasman Building in Metro West Industrial Park, will spend much time conducting inspections as township building official.

"We're not here to harass people," he said. "I just want to make sure they conform to the law and that we have good building sites. What's most important is that they're all treated the same."

Supervisor Maurice Breen said he named McIlhargey to the position on the recommendation of Paul Jones, director of public services.

"Mr. Jones liked his work, and I found he related very well with people," Breen said. "It seemed he would do a very good job."

McIlhargey and wife Barbara have three adult children — Richard, Laura and Karie.

A sports enthusiast, McIlhargey loves to play golf and watch hockey.

shop manager and purchasing agent. As a kid, Mily was her dad's shadow.

Back then, the Milys owned Shady Hollow Golf Course in Wayne.

"I grew up on the golf course from the time I was 7. I did everything at that age. I cooked, I cleaned — I could serve pop, and hamburgers and coffee," said Mily. "I could sell green fees and merchandise. And I took care of the carts."

"I was very much a daddy's girl. I used to follow my dad around all over the place. If he was working on the carts, I wanted to work on the carts. I was the substitute for a boy."

Mily's is a "seven-day, 17-hour-a-day" job.

She manages 60 employees and accommodates 500 golfers a day on weekends at the public course.

"I have to give my husband credit. He does all the shopping and cooking," said Mily, mother of 3-year-old Alexis. Douglas Mily works full time at Fox Hills, also.

WHEN WINTER arrives, the club closes.

"It's a very difficult time to adjust — it's so opposite from the summer when everything's on a go-go basis," said Mily. "It all stops."

Summers, "when everyone's playing golf, out to the lakes and having a wonderful time, we're back here working."

"I guess I do enjoy it, maybe because I've grown up in it. I enjoy talking with people and being around them. The people who come to a golf course are there on their leisure time, so their attitude is generally good-natured. They're in a good mood, because they're there to have a good time. That's probably what makes it all worth it."

Mily's profession is about as far from her first career goal as the pin on a par five sometimes seems from the tee.

The people who come to a golf course are there on their leisure time, so their attitude is generally good-natured.

—Sandy Mily

Mily graduated in 1974 from Our Lady of Mercy High School in Farmington Hills.

"Way back then, I was going to go into nursing. Then my mom and dad bought the golf course, and that changed all that."

Mily ended up instead at Schoolcraft College and Eastern Michigan University in business management.

BEING A woman and a golf course owner "in certain ways has been an asset. It depends on how you run the business," said Mily, whose sister handles club finances.

"In certain people's minds it makes a difference if a business is owned and operated by a woman."

For the most part, Mily said she's been warmly received by Plymouth Rotarians.

"Most of the men have been very accepting. Some of them have come up, congratulated me, welcomed me and said, 'It's about time we had a woman.'"

Unlike many private clubs, Fox Hills permits women to tee off on weekend mornings.

But Mily still experiences sexism in golf. "My sister and I sometimes get the opportunity to play. But when the outings are stag, we're told, 'You're not welcome.' That doesn't enable us to play the courses men are playing."

But in general, where there are golfers, there's a "friendly, warm atmosphere."

Oh, brother! Family shares winnings

AP — You can call them Bazman or you can call them Bozman or you can simply call them lottery-made millionaires.

That's because the Brother Lottery Club of Plymouth, made up of Leo Bazman and his brother, Raymond Bozman, and their wives, Marguerite and Kathleen, won half of the Sept. 28 Super Lotto jackpot worth $7,009,218. Their share was

The Brother Lottery Club received its first payment of $175,809 ($140,648 after federal tax withholding) at a check presentation at Dimitri's Party Pantry in Plymouth, where they bought their winning ticket.

They will continue to receive annual installments of $175,200 ($140,160 after federal tax withholding) through the year 2007. The winning numbers were 2, 13, 14, 25, 36 and 43.

Bozman said his last name was misspelled on his birth certificate and neither he nor his parents ever had it changed. Bozman said he and his wife, Kathleen, plan to build a new home on property they own in Huron Township. Kathleen also plans to quit her job at First Federal Bank of Michigan.

Bazman, 55, and his wife, Marguerite, 53, plan to share with their two children and make investments. Bazman, who works for the trucking firm, Central Cartage, said he was at work when his wife called with the good news.

He said he was so excited that he broke three lug nuts on the wheel of the tire he was changing.

Proposal A

Restrict use of tax funds for abortions for persons receiving public assistance

Public Act 59 of 1987 is a law that states that tax funds shall not be used to pay for an abortion for a person receiving public assistance unless necessary to save the life of the mother.

Should the law be approved?

Proposal B

Proposal to include crime victims' rights in the constitution

The proposal would amend the constitution to provide:

1- That crime victims shall have certain rights throughout the criminal justice process.

2- That crime victims' rights, as provided by law, shall be the right to be treated with fairness and respect for their dignity and privacy; be reasonably protected from the accused; be notified of court proceedings and attend trials; confer with prosecution and make a statement to court at sentencing; restitution; timely disposition of the case; and information about conviction, sentence, imprisonment and release of accused.

3- That legislature may enact laws to enforce crime victims' rights and provide for assessments against convicted defendants to pay for crime victims' rights.

Should the proposed amendment be adopted?

Proposal C

The proposal would:

1- Authorize the State of Michigan to borrow a sum not to exceed $660 million dollars to finance environmental protection programs that would clean up sites of toxic and other environmental contamination, contribute to a regional Great Lakes protection fund, address solid waste problems, treat sewage and other water quality problems, reuse industrial sites and preserve open space; and

2- Authorize the state to issue general obligation bonds pledging the full faith and credit of the state for payment of principal and interest on the bonds; and

3- Provide for repayment of the bonds from the general fund.

Should this proposal be approved?

Proposal D

Airport seeks federal grant

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Wayne County grabbed a highly placed ear Monday in its efforts to secure federal money to expand Metro Airport.

U.S. Transportation Secretary Jim Burnley met in a closed session with airport and county officials Monday afternoon to learn about airport expansion plans.

While airport officials said no promises were made, they remained optimistic the airport would receive at least a portion of the $166 million being sought.

"NATURALLY, WE want it all," airport director Richard Jamison said. Past practice, he added, would dictate 75 percent federal financing and 25 percent financing by the airport itself, though even that figure isn't guaranteed.

Burnley attended the airport press conference at the request of U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth.

Metro Airport seeks $166 million from the federal government for a number of projects designed to meet the needs of increased passenger traffic.

Expansion is needed, airport officials said, to keep up with growing passenger numbers. Expansion would involve:

- Adding a fourth north/south runway.
- Extending existing runways.
- Constructing a new air traffic control tower.
- Building an east/west or "cross wind" runway.
- Creating a south access road that would tie Eureka Road to Rogell Drive, the airport's main automobile route.

The county is already beginning the land acquisition process for the fourth north/south runway, Jamison said. Some Romulus businesses and homes may have to be relocated for the runway to be built, he added.

Metro Airport wouldn't be expanded with a tax increase, officials said. Airlines would finance expansion bonds.

One year ago this month, the county and Northwest Airlines, the airport's biggest passenger carrier, were at odds over expansion plans. Airport officials, however, said the relationship with the airline had improved since then.

The dispute centered over intended closing of the L.C. Smith (South) terminal for two years for asbestos removal from passenger areas. The Smith terminal serves all domestic flights not provided by Northwest.

Now, airport officials said, the Smith terminal won't be closed until a new, mid-field terminal is open.

AN ESTIMATED 9.9 million passengers flew from Metro Airport last year, more than twice as many as in 1982 according to county statistics. Including arrivals, an estimated 19.7 million passengers used the airport.

Metro is the world's 18th largest airport in terms of total passengers and the 13th largest in the United States.

Though 17 airlines fly out of Metro, Northwest is by far the largest passenger handler. More than 55 percent of all metro passengers this year have flown on Northwest flights.

Brickley, Levin win high ratings

The Detroit Bar Association rated two incumbent state Supreme Court justices "outstanding."

Lesser ratings were given to two other high court candidates, and the final two names on the ballot received "no rating."

Called outstading by the bar's public advisory committee were Justices James H. Brickley, a Republican nominee, and Charles Levin, an independent endorsed by the Democratic Party.

Candidate Marvin R. Stempien, a Wayne Circuit judge from Livonia, was rated well qualified. Stempien is the Democratic Party nominee.

Richard C. Johnston, a former Macomb probate judge and the second GOP nominee, was called qualified.

Jerry J. Kaufman, a Huntington Woods attorney and Tisch Independent Party candidate, received no rating, as did Donald Warmbier.

Outstanding is the highest rating a candidate can receive, followed by well qualified, qualified, not qualified and no rating.

The committee said its ratings were based on information acquired from a questionnaire submitted by each candidate, interviews and the candidate's professional reputation as an attorney or a judge.

"These ratings reflect only the candidate's qualifications for the position of justice of the State Supreme Court," said John J. Ronayne III, co-chair of the committee. The Detroit Bar Association has some 3,800 members.

Four key issues face fall voters

Proposal A

By Tom Henderson
staff writer

Proposal A, the issue of state-funded abortion, has generated more attention and passion than the other three ballot proposals combined.

A vote for A is a vote against tax-funded abortion. It is, say its supporters, a vote for morality, for life and against killing.

A vote for A, say its opponents, discriminates against the poor, imposes one view of morality on those who don't share it, and will result in drastically higher welfare costs when poor mothers are forced to have children they now abort.

According to state figures, about 44,000 abortions were performed in Michigan last year. Between 18,000 and 19,000 of them were paid for by Medicaid, at a cost of about $6.6 million.

Is that a justified expense of tax money? Absolutely not, say proponents of Proposal A. Of course, say opponents.

BARBARA LISTING is president of Right to Life of Michigan, a well-established lobbying group, and chair of The Committee to End Tax-Funded Abortions, a single-issue group formed to get this proposal on the ballot and to get it passed.

"It's a misuse of tax dollars to fund elective Medicaid abortion," said Listing. "The government should not be in the business of funding abortions. When tax money is involved, then the government is no longer neutral. It puts the stamp of approval on it."

Listing said it is simplistic to argue that if poor women can't have abortions, there will be a dramatic increase in births by them and a subsequent increase in welfare costs to care for those babies.

Proposal B

By Tom Henderson
staff writer

Nobody is against victims' rights. But some people feel they shouldn't be addressed as a constitutional amendment under Proposal B. They say the document becomes unwieldy as it grows to solve problems, no matter how worthy they are of solving.

Don Kostyu is all for victims' rights — he just thinks they should be addressed by statute, that changes or additions in laws better solve problems than changes or additions to the Constitution.

"I question whether a constitutional amendment is the way to go to achieve what they're trying to achieve," said Kostyu. "From a strict constitutionalist point of view, it isn't needed."

Kostyu is a Ford Motor engineer and an Allen Park resident who publishes a bimonthly newsletter called "The Constitutionalist," which addresses issues relating to the state and federal constitutions. He also is host of "Town Meeting," a daily radio show 10-11 a.m. on WCAR-AM and WBRB-FM.

"The Constitution loses its integrity if each interest group clutters it up with amendments," said Kostyu. Support in Lansing is widespread, however. Even Margaret O'Connor, R-Ann Arbor, a maverick who was one of two lawmakers to oppose Proposal C, a bond issue that would raise $660 million to clean the environment, said she would go along grudgingly with Proposal B.

Proposals C, D

By Tom Henderson
staff writer

Proposal C is a bond issue that would raise $660 million to clean up the state's environment; Proposal D is a bond issue that would raise $140 million for recreation, half for restoration of state parks and half for local park systems.

In an election year, you might think it would be impossible to find a legislator who opposes either issue. You might think you'd as soon find a presidential candidate who thinks there's too much red and white in the flag.

But Margaret O'Connor, R-Ann Arbor, who is running for re-election to the state House of Representatives, voted against both ballot proposals when they came up for a vote in the Legislature.

Only one other representative, Tim Walberg, R-Tipton, joined her in casting no votes.

O'Connor said she isn't against either the environment or parks; she said she is against borrowing to pay for such items. She believes if the environment needs cleaning and parks need money, it should come out of the general fund.

And, she said, there would be plenty of money in the general budget for such necessities if individual legislators didn't insist on carving out chunks of the budget for what she terms "pork-barrel" projects.

"BY ELIMINATING wastes and pork-barrel items, we could easily fund the added amounts," said

'Cleanup' bonds sought

O'Connor. "It's not that I'm against clean-up. But we shouldn't be borrowing to pay for what we can afford out of the general fund. We shouldn't be indebting our kids. They're the ones who are going to have to pay for it."

As examples of "pork-barrel projects," she cited current state expenses of $2.7 million for operating Belle Isle; $186,000 for a dome covering for a swimming pool in Warren; $800,000 in Silverdome subsidies; $350,000 on the trolley system in Detroit; $139,000 to expand a zoo in Battle Creek; $71,000 to fund a furniture exhibit in Grand Rapids; $31,000 to repair the ski jump at Pine Mountain; $105,000 for furniture for the conference room of the speaker of the House; and $5,000 to fund ragtime piano compositions.

"Don't you love 'em? I've got a million of 'em?" said O'Connor.

She said cutbacks in such projects could make up the difference between what the state currently spends on the environment ($13 million) and what it will spend if the proposal passes.

Why then, she asks, pay more than $700 million in interest over the course of the bond issue to fund $660 million in loans? "We can clean up the environment with the money we have now. All we have to do is make some hard choices."

MOST LEGISLATORS see proposals C and D in a different light. Bond debt that has been or is about to be retired will allow for these proposals without any increase in spending, they say. The proposals will benefit investors; state residents, all of whom breathe the air and drink the water; and park users.

"It's an amount of money the state can reasonably afford," said Rep. James Kosteva, D-Canton, of Proposal C. "As we continue to fill (the equivalent of) Tiger Stadium twice a month with garbage in Wayne County, this gives us an excellent opportunity to address the issue."

"It starts us on the road toward pruning solid waste while maintaining fiscal responsibility."

Thomas Washington, executive director of the Michigan United Conservation Clubs, supports both proposals.

"The Chinese have a saying to the effect that a journey of a thousand miles begins with one step. Michigan can take that step Nov. 8 if its citizens approve Proposal C (which is) one part of the quality-of-life bond issue. The other half (is) Proposal D."

"Taxes will not be increased if the proposals pass. That's because the $40 million to $60 million needed each year to pay off the bonds would come from existing revenues now being used to repay current bonds that will expire in the next few years."

Proposal C will raise through bond sales $660 million to clean up the environment. That figure would break down to:

- $425 million to clean up toxic wastes. The states has about 1,800 known sites that have been contaminated by wastes. This money would be used to begin emergency action at 600 sites, reach final clean up at 300 others and investigate other potential problem sites.
- $150 million in grants and loans to local communities to fight solid waste through recycling programs, expanding markets for recycled material, air-pollution equipment at combustion facilities, research and closing unsound landfills.

- $60 million for wastewater treatment. This allotment will qualify the state for $365 in federal matching funds for building new facilities and upgrading current ones.
- $25 million for a permanent, eight-state endowment to protect the Great Lakes.

- Proposal D will raise $140 million for public recreation.
- $70 million would go to refurbish the 83 state parks. Any leftover money would then be used to expand or upgrade facilities and would be used in matching-fund projects involving fish hatcheries, wildlife nurseries and boating.
- $70 million would go to upgrade and expand local park systems. All of Michigan's largest 86 cities have parks, as well as 89 percent of smaller cities and villages.

The money could not be used for land acquisition, building arenas or sports facilities, commercial theme parks or casino gambling.

poor, young woman, all too often results in an interrupted education and a decline into deeper poverty and hopelessness."

And foes of Proposal A say that even if poor women can raise money for private abortions, the time it takes to raise the money results in a delay that is dangerous to the health of the woman.

Movie car at museum

Star of the screen, the 1948 Tucker automobile is on display at Henry Ford Museum in Dearborn. Developed by industrialist Preston Tucker, currently subject of a hit motion picture, only 51 of the namesake automobiles were produced. The Tucker car is part of a permanent museum exhibit on the automobile and American life.

Proposal A seeks an end to tax-funded abortions

"Thirty-six other states do not fund abortions, and there is no evidence to support the claim that welfare costs go up," said Listing. "Instead, the majority will go ahead and find private funds for their legal abortions. Some put their babies up for adoption. And many simply do not get pregnant; instead of using abortion as birth control, they use contraceptive devices."

But even if banning Medicaid abortions did result in higher welfare costs, Listing said: "You don't put a dollar sign on morals. And you don't solve problems by killing people."

STATE OFFICIALS disagree with Listing's claims that banning tax-funded abortions won't have much of an effect on the number of births or welfare costs.

C. Patrick Babcock, director of state social services, and state Rep. David Hollister, D-Lansing, held a news conference this week to say that if only 20 percent of the women who now qualify for tax-funded abortions give birth rather than pay for private abortion, at least $2.7 million in welfare costs will be added to the state budget over two years.

The state now pays $318 for a Medicaid abortion and $3,153 for a live birth. In addition, said Babcock, the first-year cost of Medicaid, welfare and food stamps for a mother and child is about $5,000.

But Babcock said the issue goes deeper than dollars and cents. He said at the news conference: "An unintended pregnancy, especially for a poor, young woman, all too often results in an interrupted education and a decline into deeper poverty and hopelessness."

And foes of Proposal A say that even if poor women can raise money for private abortions, the time it takes to raise the money results in a delay that is dangerous to the health of the woman.

This was also the third year in a row that the PCEP band won the caption trophies for best percussion and best brass and winds. This year the band was also awarded the Trophy for best marching and maneuvering.

The entire show was video taped by Channel 28, WFUM, and will be rebroadcasted later this fall.

The PCEP Marching Band is directed by James R. Griffith.

By Richard G. Thomas
special writer

A seat in the U.S. House of Representatives has become one of America's most secure jobs, upsetting the democratic notion that voters will regularly throw out rascals.

Nearly 99 percent of House members seeking re-election two years ago were returned to Washington. In recent decades, the return rate for House incumbents seeking another term has been well above 90 percent, notwithstanding poll after poll showing Congress overall to be unpopular among voters.

What accounts for their nearly automatic re-election?

LAWMAKERS LIKE to think voters are merely rewarding them every two years for a job well done.

But more detached observers, citing the uneven quality of the House membership, doubt that individual merit is the main reason.

Incumbents have been able to guarantee job security by amassing large sums of private funding and public appropriations for their political benefit.

Their private money is provided mostly in political action committee (PAC) campaign contributions from special interests, a system conducted partly in the open under sanction of law.

THEIR TAX support comes mainly from the annual legislative branch appropriations bill, which lawmakers in both chambers tap for political as well as official purposes.

This arrangement amounts to public campaign financing for incumbents — but not their challengers.

The bill funds large staffs that under House rules can do political work while on the public payroll, free printing and postage, advanced computer and telecommunications systems, recording studios for preparing "news" for stations back home, and many other politically valuable resources.

The legislative branch budget also pays for:

- Global travel.
- Generous medical and pension plans.
- Attentive Capitol Hill employees to help with logistics from crossing streets to riding elevators.
- Staff-chauffeured rides to, and free parking at, capital airports.
- Low-cost restaurants and hair salons.
- Unlimited free long-distance calling enhanced by WATS lines at home.
- Cellular phones in the car, and much more.

DURING THIS year's floor debate on the congressional budget, U.S. Rep. Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., sought to reduce money for self-promoting newsletters that most House members publish at taxpayer expense and send postage-free to every mailbox back home. "It is wrong for us to take money from the public to brainwash our constituents, which many of us work at systematically, in order to insure we cannot be defeated either in a primary in those districts which are one party or in a general election," said Gingrich.

U.S. Rep. William Ford, D-Mich., said cutting postal patron newsletter mailings would cause spending to rise for members' first-class postage.

A record vote on one of Gingrich's newsletter amendments is included in the accompanying 1988 Comfort Index, which shows how lawmakers stood on key votes relating to the greening of their personal or official existence in Congress. Most of the votes were on the $1.81-billion legislative branch appropriations bill for fiscal 1989.

HERE ARE the 1988 Comfort Index details:

1. To pass congressional budget — By a vote of 277 for and 104 against, the House on May 19 approved a fiscal 1989 budget (HR 4587) of $1.4 billion for legislative branch operations except the Senate, which later added its budget to the bill.

2. To freeze budget — By a vote of 184 for and 211 against, the House on May 19 rejected an attempt to freeze the House's version of the congressional budget at the figure approved a year earlier for fiscal 1988. This was to have been achieved by cutting 1.8 percent, about $23 million, from HR 4587 (above).

3. To block large House staff — The House rejected, 172 for and 234 against, an amendment to HR 4587 to block the proposed hiring of 33 additional committee aides. 4. To limit free postage — By a vote of 190 for and 206 against, the House rejected an amendment by Rep. Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., to HR 4587 to reduce the annual appropriation for House members' mailing costs from $68.9 million to $48.9 million.

5. To block pay hike — The House voted 230 for and 170 against to exempt members of Congress and other top-paid U.S. employees from a proposed four percent federal pay hike. The vote, which occurred June 14 during debate on an appropriations bill (HR 4778), left the salary of House members and senators at $89,500.

6. To fund House committees — By a vote of 303 for and 104 against, the House approved a $49.4 million "investigations and studies" budget for its committees in 1988. This funded about half the House committee cost for the year and represented a 3 percent increase over the comparable 1987 outlay.

7. To pass congressional budget — By a vote of 78 for and 18 against, the Senate on June 15 approved the fiscal 1989 legislative branch budget. After the Senate added its own costs to the House-approved bill (above), the congressional budget for the year totalled about $1.8 billion.

8. To fund Senate committees — By a vote of 84 for and 8 against, the Senate approved a $47.8 million budget for its committees in 1988, a slight increase over the comparable 1987 authorization.

Report it Help the fire department

THE IMPORTANCE of reporting incidents to local fire departments hit hard recently in Plymouth Township.

Earlier this month Ford officials failed to notify the township fire department of a chemical problem at its Sheldon Road Plant. Even though Ford employees were evacuated after a vaporization, the fire department didn't hear about the incident until a local television station telephoned police.

Chuck VanVleck, township deputy emergency preparedness director, said businesses and residents should automatically call the department after a chemical or fire incident, even if it's believed everything is under control.

IN THE FORD case, a liquid cleaning solvent — trichloroethylene — vaporized. It's unclear exactly what danger, if any, the vaporization caused. An investigation is pending.

Ford officials said there were no injuries, no illnesses, no fires and no explosions. They said nothing indicated Ford should call the fire department.

In fact, they weren't required by law to call the fire department.

Regardless, fire officials say it's important to let them decide whether the situation is critical, especially in cases where other people in the community could be affected.

"The fire department has the training and expertise to make those decisions," VanVleck said. "A lot of industries have expertise inhouse and are able to make intelligent decisions," he added. "The point is if it's severe enough for them to activate an emergency plan, it's severe enough to call the fire department."

THE PLYMOUTH Township fire department is expected this week to ask every business for a completed form listing hazardous materials on the premises. In case of an emergency, the local department would know how to respond. The purpose is to give the department more information going into emergencies. Also response plans can be developed ahead of time.

"The worst thing that could happen is they misjudged the magnitude (of the problem) and it got out of hand... and the community was endangered," VanVleck said.

The message should be taken further than businesses and into the households. Residents should take the same precautions.

For instance, if there's a small fire in the kitchen and you think it's under control, it's still important to call the fire department. Firefighters could investigate and ensure there aren't other problems, like electrical fires, that are sometimes difficult to detect.

The point is, don't make critical — potentially dangerous — decisions without contacting the fire department.

Drug dealers winning battle of the suburbs

THE SUBURBAN parking lot was full of cars, nestled together in the early fall chill. Shadowy figures, hunched over in attempts to ward off the unexpected cold, walked between the cars.

They were security guards, armed with night sticks to combat what the nights now bring to our communities.

Their presence didn't make me feel better or worse. Just disappointed.

"A friend's brother was shot in this parking lot a while ago," noted my movie theater partner as we walked to his car.

"He and his wife were sitting in the car, and some guy came up and shot him. Just shot him."

I looked around, realizing that any of the several people in that parking lot could have just as easily been victimized. Security cops don't stop crazed criminals from committing senseless acts.

Police officials will tell you that most violent crimes today are committed by drug-crazed criminals.

Besides, violence happens too quickly for a guy or two with a billy club to do anything. Armed with guns, they do little better. But certainly not good enough.

"The bullet paralyzed him on one side. He's a doctor, and he'll never be able to practice again," said my friend as we drove away.

Steve Barnaby

Although the parking lot was especially well-lit, the night seemed unusually dark. My attitude, I'm sure.

EARLIER THAT DAY newspapers had recorded a series of shootings and violent acts that victimized theater-goers throughout metro Detroit. Sure one of the incidents was in Detroit.

Unfortunately, that hasn't surprised us for a number of years. Another shooting was in Southfield. And again, unfortunately, we are becoming less surprised by that.

The list goes on — Dearborn, Harper Woods, Ann Arbor. All good communities, full of good people, all victims of a society that at times teeters on anarchy.

None of us should be smug. It could be your neighborhood next week.

Some mistakenly blame the Run-DMC movie "Tougher than Leather," for fostering the violence at various movie houses. But a movie isn't the reason for violence. It's just an excuse. God forbid that we use it as an excuse to pardon our obligation to take our society back from the criminals.

A publicist for the movie put it straight when saying, "I'm afraid these incidents say more about Detroit than they do about Run-DMC and their movie."

Publicist Bill Adler ought to know. He's a graduate of Southfield High School.

Drug barons, even more than drug-users, are becoming an increasing danger to our communities. Sometimes they live next door and control some of our banks — the lifeline to our credit-driven society.

It's time to fight back before nothing is left with which to fight. Security guards in parking lots just aren't enough for this battle.

Let moms make choices

To the editor:

In reference to Lon Carlisle's letter (Sept. 29), I believe his viewpoint is unfair to women who choose to work. We are living in a society that our parents created.

These good people chose to send their daughters to college and educate them on an equal basis with their sons. These daughters then chose to use that education to enter and work equally hard to become successful in a profession.

Why is it so greedy and selfish to want to continue in a profession they worked so hard to establish themselves in? Why must only the wife give up everything to nurture the family?

I chose to quit my profession as an accountant when my son was 2 years old and became a day care provider. In that capacity, I have often seen these "selfish" moms cry as they left their children. I have seen them arrive promptly after work to pick up these precious bundles and, although tired, happily take them for walks or to the park.

Because more women are working, husbands are taking a more active role in the development of their children. Would your father discuss diaper brands or discuss being up at 2 a.m. because the baby was having a bad night? Mr. Carlisle, congratulations to you and your wife for being so well suited to each other that you agree on this type of lifestyle. Please, we are in America, give other couples that same right. Quality time does exist and is important. Give day care providers a break. We are not cold and unfeeling. I love my little angels and cuddle, nurture and care for them as much as any of my own children.

A mother's love does not stop because she works no more than a father's love.

Libertarians offer 'change'

To the editor:

I agree with your Sept. 22 Opinion Article "Voter Apathy" that "Voter Turnout is a National Disgrace," however, I believe that eliminating political parties will not improve the situation.

It wasn't too long ago that a voter would generally understand where an individual politician stood on issues by the political party he represented with Republicans leaning toward conservatism (more economic freedom and more restrictions on personal liberties) and Democrats leaning toward the liberal end of the scale (less economic freedom and less restrictions on personal liberties).

Since 1976 we have been through a Democratic and Republican Administration in Washington. The current president was elected by promising to reduce the size and cost of government. Instead we have seen:

- increased budgets;
- increased budget deficits;
- increased subsidies to grow and not to grow crops;

- more complex bureaucracy;
- conflicting subsidies on domestic issues;
- cities/states battling each other via tax breaks for special interests.

The problem is not with a two-party system, the problem is these two parties are really only one party. The individual voter currently believes it doesn't matter which candidate from these parties is elected. Taxes will go up, we will continue to maintain troops outside our boundary, we will continue to subsidize foreign countries with defense, etc.

This year, however, every individual in Michigan has a reason to exercise his/her right to vote. This year the Libertarian Party is offering outstanding candidates in Michigan including Dr. Ron Paul for president and Dick Jacobs for U.S. Senate. I encourage all eligible voters to contact either of these campaigns and get involved.

Proposal C

Say yes to clean environment

IT'S TIME to cut the lip service and commit our votes and pocketbooks to cleaning up our state's environment. Our future depends on it.

We endorse passage of Proposal C on the Nov. 8 ballot. A "yes" vote will authorize the state to issue $660 million in general obligation bonds to clean up our state's environment, the second most polluted in the nation.

Pollution has long been a companion to our lifestyles. But we can no longer afford such companionship. Our environment is in danger.

PASSAGE of Proposal C will ensure $660 million in bonds for environmental cleanup. Its passage will ensure that $445 million is used to clean up 300-400 of the state's worst toxic sites in the next 10-20 years. Low-ranking contamination sites with economic development potential would receive a maximum $45 million for cleanup. Up to $5 million may be used to certify vacant or abandoned manufacturing sites as contamination-free for redevelopment and to encourage the preservation of undeveloped land.

Passage will mean grants and loans to local communities and businesses to reduce solid waste, help close 80 unsafe landfills and provide alternatives to the landfills. Passage will enable the recycling of 25 percent of the current waste and management of another 40 percent with waste-to-energy plants by the next century.

Passage will provide $60 million to allow the state to acquire almost $365 million in federal money for a new wastewater treatment loan program for local communities.

And the passage of Proposal C will provide $25 million for Michigan's share in an eight-state Great Lakes Protection Fund.

Our future is at stake. We can't afford not to say "yes" to Proposal C.

Proposal D

Recreation projects benefit all

IN A state blessed with natural beauty surrounded by the Great Lakes, open areas free from concrete development and family recreation facilities drive right to the heart of our quality of life.

We support passage of Proposal D authorizing the state to issue $140 million in general obligation bonds to continue improving state and local parks and recreation projects.

A "yes" vote Nov. 8 will allow the state to split the $140 million between state and local needs. A "yes" vote will not mean a tax increase to improve our open areas. The bonds will be repaid from the state's general fund.

IN AN AGE where development surrounds us with accompanying traffic and noise, parks and recreational facilities are no longer a luxury. Open, undeveloped areas are a necessity to the quality of life not to mention our tourist industry, one of the largest in the country.

Attention to local needs is particularly important in urbanized southeast Michigan where booming development and the problems it brings has slowly pushed parks and recreation lower on the scale of priorities.

It's difficult for local governments to argue the need for parks and recreation money when so many other problems — roads, solid waste, crime — now demand such immediate and expensive attention. That makes passage of Proposal D all the more important.

We recommend voters say yes to Proposal D on Tuesday, Nov. 8.

My last column about U-M football (maybe)

Honest Injun, this will be the last time I will write about University of Michigan football until after the Wolverines win in the Rose Bowl on Monday, Jan. 2, 1989.

You did know, did you not, that when New Year's Day falls on a Sunday, like the one coming up, all major bowl games are pushed back a day? If not, you know now.

Michigan State rooters should recall that it was in Pasadena on Jan. 2, 1966, that their Spartans defeated UCLA, 17-14. And, if you went to Purdue, it made you happy that the Boilermakers edged USC, 14-13, on Jan. 2, 1967.

Even those funny people from Columbus, somewhere in Ohio, had reason to cheer on Jan. 2, 1950, when their Buckeyes nosed out California, 17-14.

THOSE ARE just a few "for instances," but they came to mind over the weekend in the aftermath of the Michigan win over MSU, not just because of the victory, but more because talk of current Rose Bowl prospects came up among former Wolverine players who had a reunion marking the golden anniversary of the Tom Harmon era, 1938-39-40. The latter was Tom's Heisman Trophy season, and I functioned as press agent for those guys.

When I walked into Crisler Arena Saturday for their pregame luncheon, I was awed by the beauty of the arrangements. Under long white streamers strung high above the basketball court, tables were set with sparkling silverware and china.

Balloons of school colors — yes, green and white as well as yellow and blue — added a festive note. The whole scene reeked of class.

Fred DeLano

The first three gridders I chanced upon happened to be the three I was seeking the most — Harmon, Forest Evashevski and Ed Frutig — and when I began remarking about the grandeur of the setup, Evy pointed to the concourse area behind the upper level of seats and said, "We're in there."

I should have known. The fancy setup downstairs was for the legislative luncheon given annually by the host school on the day of the Michigan-MSU game, an unobtrusive pitch for a bigger appropriation from the Legislature. I escaped before the cops arrived, but I'll bet our buffet was more fun anyway.

HARMON, who was accompanied by his beautiful wife, the former Elyse Knox, mentioned they would be flying back to Los Angeles Saturday evening to be on hand for Sunday's game between the LA Raiders and Miami Dolphins.

"I am doing three TV shows a week for the Raiders as well as two radio shows per week, and it allows me to keep my foot in the door," Tom added. "I enjoy being around the players in the dressing room each week, and it is not too much work, so all is well. Elyse and I now have eight grandchildren and we between the kids and the grandkids, we are kept busy."

He was asked about the strength of the Pacific 10 Conference, whose champion will face the Big 10 team in the Rose Bowl, and quickly warned, "Both USC and UCLA are tremendous ball clubs. It's one of the Coast's best years and whoever comes out from the Big 10 had better be ready."

Evashevski, the quarterback in Coach Fritz Crisler's single-wing system who gained fame as Harmon's principal blocking back, lives half the year in Petoskey and the other half in Florida.

"Fritz told me I was going to move from center to quarterback just a week before that 1938 opener with Michigan State," Evy recalled. "He said he was doing it because the blocking backs we had weren't fast enough to keep up with Tom."

FRUTIG, the All-American end from River Rouge, has lived in Dearborn for quite some years while engaged in motivational advertising sales and said he will retire in another year and also move to the Petoskey area where he can play golf with Evashevski.

That brought a laugh from Harmon who quipped, "That should be a weekly match people would pay to watch. I am still trying to find a way to beat that game myself."

All three decried the two-platoon system now in vogue, Evy having a rather obscure comment about the fact that "in our day we went both ways." But maybe Frutig had the best one-liner.

Looking around at former teammates, and then at me, he said with a straight face, "No one in this room looked old until you came in." I still wonder if he really meant it.

MADD merits thanks

TONIGHT I will be at a Southfield restaurant to accept an award for this newspaper from the Mothers Against Drunk Driving. We don't deserve it.

I am not speaking out of humility. Our paper is being recognized because we do a number of things the MADD group likes, such as running public service advertisements and writing touching stories about the annual candlelight vigil in memory of victims of traffic accidents caused by drinking drivers.

These are all good things, and I am glad that our newspaper does them. But it's our job, after all. We are paid to report stories, write columns and place ads. If we didn't fill our time and space with articles about MADD, we would find some other topic.

That's why receiving recognition for doing our job is sometimes awkward. But I will happily be there because the night is to honor MADD's appreciation for area police officers who fight the battle against drunk drivers. Also it's the least I can do for the MADD people who are really the ones deserving of an award.

MADD has always been one of my favorite groups. Some people think MADD is single-minded, too persistent and sometimes even shrill. Sometimes that is true. More power to MADD.

IN SEPARATE accidents, two people close to my family were killed. The drivers at fault had been drinking. I suspect others in the room tonight will have similar stories. Sadly, the death of a loved one is often the motivating factor for joining MADD.

But I suspect I could be in any room and be near people who have known someone killed by a drinking driver. Some 50,000 people a year die on our nation's roads; half of those deaths are blamed on alcohol.

Think about it. Some 50,000 Americans were killed in Vietnam. The result was a divided country, student riots and a president forced out of office. Drinking drivers kill 50,000 people every two years. The result is a small group of volunteers trying to promote some life-saving sobriety into our social habits.

MADD IS most noted for persuading legislators to pass tough drinking laws and for monitoring courtrooms to see that judges pass harsh sentences. Tough laws alone won't solve the problem, but together with education, maturity and rehabilitation programs they are part of the solution.

When we talk in this country about the drug problem, we are usually referring to heroin, cocaine, marijuana and the like. They are serious problems and deserve attention. But name one of these drugs that causes the damage in a year that alcohol does in a month.

I have a young family — a wife of four years, a son who is 2. It is a good life. So good that I fear more than ever the drunk driver who could destroy it. If that driver stays off the street because he fears the wrath of MADD, then maybe it will be my number that was missed.

For the chance that MADD has saved my life, I will join them tonight — not to accept their award but to thank them.

plains? The Cowboys, of course, conjures up all sorts of negative images of what is actually a pretty progressive state and I, as a transplanted Texan, resent it.

IDAHO'S VANDALS seems to glamorize law-breaking. MSU's Spartans doesn't do much for the image of the residents of that ancient city-state. And Wayne State's Tartars — I've never been sure if the name referred to ancient Mongolian warriors or tooth deposits.

Then there are those lesser-known teams whose nicknames are, perhaps, even more offensive. The Tufts' Jumbos, for instance.

The solution, of course, is simple. Generic names. The University of Michigan football team would become The University of Michigan Football Team.

Then, the only people who could take offense are insensitive bores like me who think that names like Buckeyes, Sooners and Cornhuskers (and, yes, even Redskins and Tar Heels) have more to do with local color and Americans' penchant for tongue-in-cheek sobriquets than they do with stereotypes and bigotry.

Free art lecture launches S'craft promotion of arts

By Mary Rodrigue
staff writer

Call it back to basics. Schoolcraft College has created a committee to promote the arts. To kick things off, the college is hosting a free lecture by a noted art historian next week.

Open to members of the community as well as students, the premiere lecture will focus on an exhibit of 16th Century drawings opening at the Detroit Institute of Arts Oct. 16.

Graham Smith, interim director of the University of Michigan Museum of Art and co-organizer of the 16th Century Tuscan Drawings from the Uffizi exhibition, will speak on "Ways to See Drawings." The program is scheduled for 1:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 20 in the Liberal Arts Theater on the Livonia college campus. A reception will follow the talk.

Smith's talk is designed as a non-technical guide for art patrons.

"It won't be a scholarly talk but a general talk to enhance viewer enjoyment, to learn more about drawings to appreciate them," said

Joanne Stein, an English faculty member and chairman of the committee to promote the arts. The DIA show runs through Jan. 8, 1989.

Stein's intention is to connect events on campus with events happening in the metro area at large. She hopes the committee will produce one major program per semester. Next winter, she is considering an Egyptologist to speak in relation to "Cleopatra's Egypt: Age of the Ptolemies" show that runs Feb. 14 to April 30, 1989 at the DIA. The show features 175 pieces, including 80 sculptures.

"One of the goals (of the committee) is to instill a knowledge and appreciation of the arts for various degree programs. It's part of the general educational requirement," Stein said.

"Schoolcraft is interested in getting back into the arts. There was a swing toward the technical fields over the years and now there is a move back to the arts."

The school has active art and music department programs, she added.

"I tend to get a lot of students from the arts and music programs because I integrate things into English classes," Stein said.

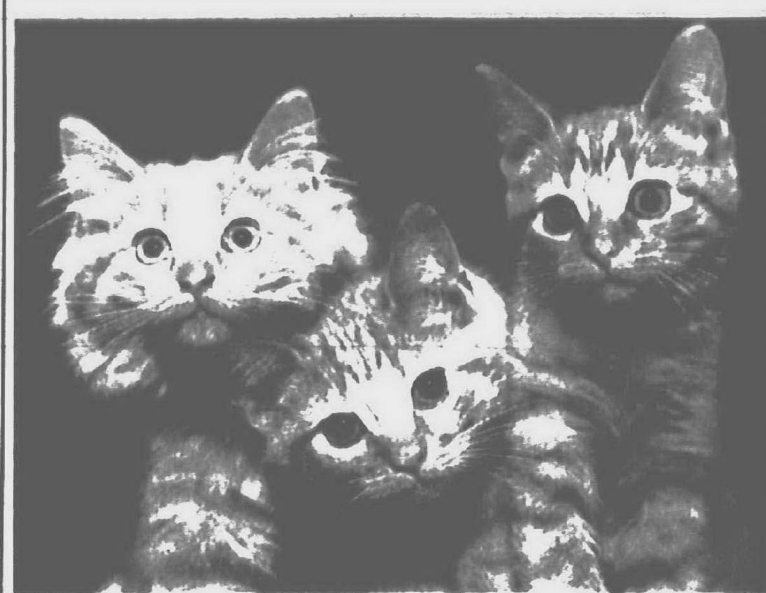

The new committee also plans to emphasize programs the college already has in place to showcase the arts.

"This year there are eight recitals by professionals," she said. "We just had a Brazilian pianist who played at Carnegie Hall perform here. He is the musician in residence at Oakland University. We have accomplished artists with some local connection performing here."

In addition to the recitals, Schoolcraft has poetry readings and several plays produced by the drama department. A lighted board in the liberal arts building will showcase events happening in and around campus.

Stein hopes that next week's lecture draws high interest on the part of students and staff.

"We want to get across the notion that liberal arts is an integral part of education — not something extra," she said.

pets and children and can be adopted individually or as a group. To adopt these pets or others, or to check for lost pets call the Westland Kindness Center of the Michigan Humane Society, 721-7300. The center is at 37255 Marquette, Westland.

S'craft sets holiday drawing

Because of demand, Schoolcraft College is holding a drawing for tickets to its annual Christmas Madrigal Dinner.

The drawing will be held Monday, Oct. 17. The 1988 Madrigal Dinner will be held Dec. 9-10 and 16-17. The event combines the talents of the college's food service staff gourmet club and music department.

Each course is presented with a trumpet fanfare. A court jester, strolling musicians, madrigal singers and the Schoolcraft College Community Choir will perform.

Dinner will feature roast pork stuffed with cranberry dressing, gravy, vegetables, potatoes, Christmas bread, a hot wassail, farmhouse cheddar brick, blue Stilton cheese with walnuts, crackers, a hot apple dumpling with hard sauce and beverages.

Tickets are $25 each and are available by mail. Tickets can be ordered for up to eight people.

Checks or money orders should be made payable to Schoolcraft College. A preference of first and second choice of evenings should accompany ticket orders.

Checks or money orders should include a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Orders should be mailed to: Madrigal Dinner, Schoolcraft College, 18600 Haggerty, Livonia, Mich. 48152-2696. Checks and money orders will be returned to those not selected in the drawing.

Additional information is available by calling the Schoolcraft College Office of Special Events, 591-6400, Ext. 481.

Fashion

Styles make a lengthy statement

THE MINISKIRT seems to be an idea whose time has come and gone. That suits many members of the Woman's Club of Plymouth just fine.

Members and guests enjoyed a Jacobson's fashion show during the Friday, Oct. 7, club meeting, held at the Plymouth Cultural Center. Fashion coordinator Jean Cote presented a variety of fashions for fall and winter.

Woman's Club of Plymouth members were grateful to see hemlines had dropped, said Joyce Roebuck of Plymouth.

"I think it was nice they had a variety of sized models," she said.

The models from Jacobson's weren't all pencil-thin. Some showed fashions suitable for larger women, while others modeled smaller sizes.

Club member Judy Lore was glad to see hemlines had dropped considerably.

"I think that most people are more attractive with skirts below the knees," said Lore, a Plymouth Township resident.

Some teens can wear short skirts, she said, but they're not typical. Lore enjoyed seeing the glittery holiday fashions.

THE FASHION show was held in part to introduce the new Laurel Park store to the community, said Roebuck, who coordinated the event.

This was the first meeting of the season for the Woman's Club of Plymouth, which is starting its 96th year of community service and involvement. Approximately 135 members and guests attended the luncheon.

"We always try to do something interesting (at the start of each year)," Roebuck said. "It's nice to have something everyone will enjoy."

The Jacobson's fashion show featured sportswear, including slacks and skirts, Roebuck said. Daytime wear — including suits and dresses — was presented, as was evening wear.

"Falltime seems like a good time to introduce them to what's new," Roebuck said.

Band members Susan Fanslow, Kit Lindamood, Kerry Rolston, Chris Romanowski and Sandy Miller performed at the meeting.

The band will perform Dec. 31 in the Orange Bowl parade, said Lore, who is also president of the Plymouth-Canton Music Boosters.

Linda Gasparott, a Woman's Club of Plymouth member, has been coordinating community appearances by the band members, Lore said. Gasparott is chairwoman for the Orange Bowl trip.

The Centennial Educational Park students will be all set to perform in the Orange Bowl parade, Lore said.

"Oh, yes. They'll be ready."

Setting goals key to getting organized

By Julie Brown staff writer

When she was first married, Pat Materka thought she should sew her own clothes. She rarely wore her homemade creations, however.

Materka believed having company over meant the house had to be cleaned. She didn't just dust and vacuum; she'd be sure the garage and attic were clean.

"It was part of my image of how the house had to be." She'd decline the help when guests offered to bring dishes to serve.

These days, Materka is happy to have guests bring a dish — particularly if it's the main course. She's learned to shut the doors to her children's bedrooms and has found other shortcuts to make entertaining more enjoyable.

"I do think that it's necessary to clean the house once, maybe twice a year. Cooking is another thing I still think is worth doing now and then, once a week."

MATERKA, AN Ann Arbor resident, is director of development and public relations for the University of Michigan Division of Physical Education. She's the author of "Time In, Time Out, Time Enough: A Time Management Guide for Women" (Prentice-Hall Inc., 1982) and of "Workshops and Seminars: Planning, Promoting and Profiting" (Prentice-Hall Inc., 1985).

Materka conducts workshops and gives presentations to corporations, professional organizations, universities, community colleges and others. She has written articles for many publications.

Friday, Oct. 7, Materka spoke at a brunch meeting of the Preludes of the Plymouth Symphony League, held at the Plymouth Elks Lodge. She discussed ways to dispel the "Superwoman myth" and to achieve realistic goals by getting organized.

Handling different roles — parent, worker, volunteer, homemaker and others — can be tough. Women can be left feeling exhausted, fragmented, overcommitted and stressed.

Being overcommitted isn't without its benefits, however. Having many commitments can force women to step back and decide what's most important.

"People tend to come to this workshop because they have a lot of things they care about." The key is setting priorities and training yourself not to do everything perfectly, she said. Those priorities will change over time.

"Many of these things can be done at various stages of our lives."

CLARIFYING VALUES and setting goals is important.

It's helpful to put goals in writing, she said. In setting goals, it's essential to be specific, to set deadlines and to solicit help. The "divide and conquer" strategy helps.

Materka was accustomed to writing short articles from her newspaper days. When she decided to write her book, she found the idea a bit overwhelming.

She started by writing a letter to publishers and gave herself a two-week deadline. She then wrote a sample chapter and outline, and took it from there.

Setting priorities and planning each day is essential. We're "not adrift in a rowboat on the sea of life. We have oars. We can steer."

A daily "to do" list is a basic planning tool, she said. Some tasks are urgent and important, and must be done.

A second category includes tasks that are important but not urgent. Those can include saving money for a trip or preparing for a meeting two weeks away.

A third category includes tasks that are urgent but not important, "also known as do not need to be done at all," Materka said. "Cooking, cleaning, all manner of housework" often falls into the third category. It's important to figure out what you don't have to do, she said. Some tasks can be delegated. Materka's husband and two teenage children can handle certain household tasks just fine.

IN SOME CASES, it's a good idea to hire someone to do certain tasks.

"We all have to figure out from our own lives what's important."

Using your prime time — hours of the day when your energy level's high — to its best advantage will help, she said. Coming up with solutions to ongoing annoyances is helpful.

"Do create solutions for the things that create problems for you."

Materka, who used to misplace her car keys, started putting them on a nail by the door at home. Having extra keys made helped.

Learning to say "no" without guilt is essential.

"I really know about guilt." Materka has found that guilt is a useless emotion.

Women need to keep in mind what's important to them, think positively and treat themselves as a priority.

"Give yourself a lot of credit for all the things you've done."

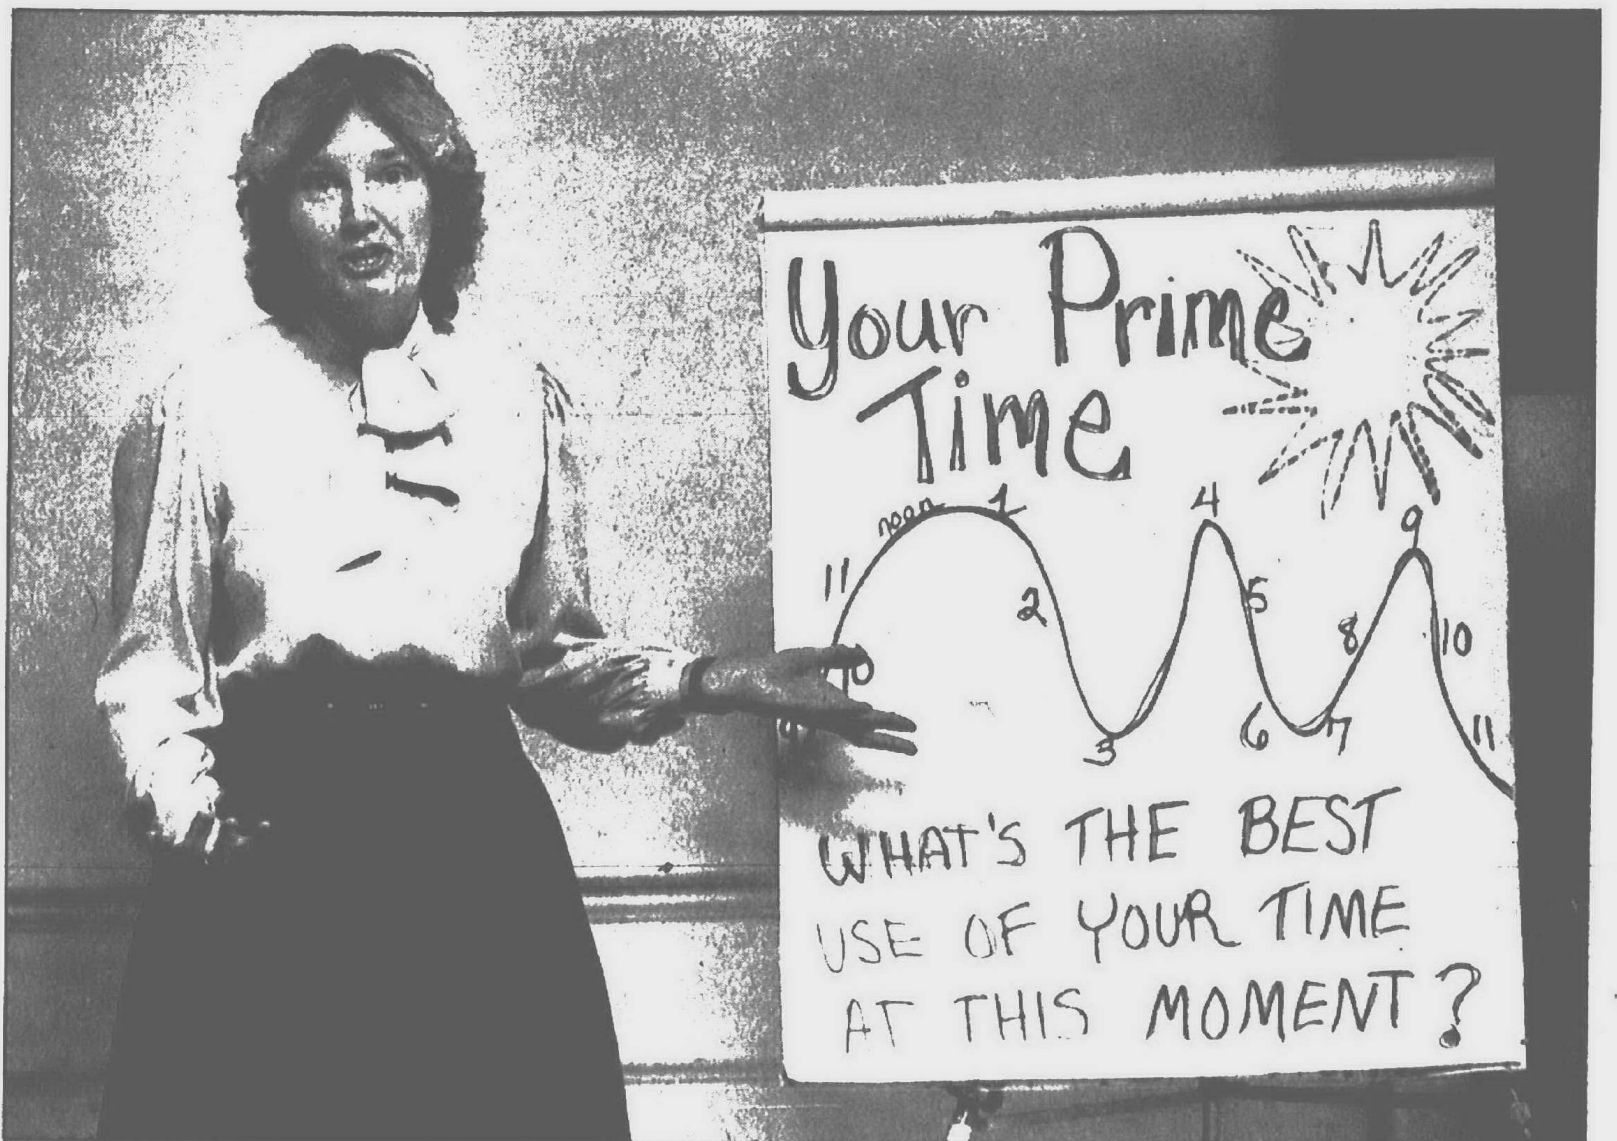

Those at the meeting enjoyed Materka's presentation.

"It was interesting, because I am definitely overcommitted," said

Restoration efforts get a healthy boost

Mary Yurchak of Garden City and Iola Harkness of Livonia pick up a few items for the kitchen at the Geer School yard sale.

THERE WAS no shortage of items at the yard sale sponsored by the Geer School Mothers' Club. "You name it, we had it," said Carol Guregian, who coordinated the sale, held Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 8 and 9, at the school. "We had furniture and we had all kinds of household items." Some antiques were sold. Books, clothes, records, linens and bedspreads were available. Air conditioners, slide projectors, TV sets and other items were sold. "All kinds of appliances," said Guregian, who lives on Ann Arbor Road near Geer School. "Just a wide variety." Proceeds from the two-day sale are being used to support the ongoing restoration of Geer School, a one-room schoolhouse built in the 1880s. A fund-raising yard sale was held at the school last year at this time.

THIS YEAR'S sale was a success, Guregian said, although the weather wasn't quite as cooperative as she and others would have liked. Many volunteers — including parents whose children had attended Geer School — helped out. "Just all kinds of help," Guregian said.

That volunteer assistance made the sale a success, she said. Many people visiting the sale were thrilled to learn the school is being restored to its 1880s condition, said Guregian, who serves on the Geer School restoration committee.

"So I think that was the most exciting thing about the sale," she said.

THE SCHOOL, on Ann Arbor Road at Gotfredson, has been closed since the early 1980s. Those involved in the restoration efforts hope to have the work done by September 1989, Guregian said.

The plan is to bring groups of Plymouth-Canton Community Schools fourth graders to Geer School for one week. During that time, youngsters would learn about life in a one-room schoolhouse. Among other things, they would study the crafts and trades of the 1880s, Guregian said.

She has also recorded "Stories of the Long Christmas" and "The Extraordinary Cat and Other Stories."

Dailey will discuss:

- different ways to tell stories;
- techniques for learning stories;
- the art of skillful questioning following a story;
- activities that improve sequencing and memory skills;
- ways to motivate students to read more;

Orchestra welcomes talented performers

By Julie Brown
staff writer

Musicians Michelle Walquist, Leslie Capozzoli and Suzanne Long aren't household names just yet. It may be a few more years before Alexander Chien, Alicia Rowe and Jennifer Rose see their names in lights.

That's not to say they don't have significant musical contributions to make. As far as Russell Reed is concerned, there's a place for those teenagers in the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra.

Reed is music director and conductor for the PSO. Talented teenagers are among the musicians he works with.

"I'm glad to have them," said Reed, an Ypsilanti resident and professor of music at Eastern Michigan University. "Being a community orchestra, I feel there's a real place for them in the group."

WORKING WITH the high school students isn't all that different from working with college students, he said.

"There's not a lot of difference really, except in college they're all students." The younger musicians blend in with the adults who play with the PSO.

"They make a contribution. It's good for them, I think."

The students must perform in concert after only five rehearsals or so, Reed said. That's different from a school performance in which they would have more rehearsal time.

The students are in sections where they're not the only ones on that part.

"But they're able to stay in there really well," Reed said. The students aren't playing solos, but they're doing just fine.

The high school students are in the strings section. It's hard to find younger wind players with that kind of experience, Reed said. The PSO doesn't have the openings for wind players.

In recent weeks, the high school students have been preparing for the 8 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 22, performance, to be held in the auditorium of Plymouth Salem High School.

Some of the teenagers were among musicians performing in the Saturday, Oct. 1, concert, the first of the PSO's 43rd season.

THE EVENING of Monday, Oct. 3, the students were rehearsing for the upcoming performance. The Saturday, Oct. 22, concert will include Symphony No. 1 (Op. 10) by Shostakovich and the Piano Concerto No. 1 in B minor by Brahms.

The Brahms concerto will feature the talents of Louis Nagel, a pianist from the University of Michigan.

The students took some time during a Monday, Oct. 3, rehearsal break to talk about their experiences. They agreed playing with the orchestra provides opportunities for professional enrichment and personal pleasure.

Violinist Leslie Capozzoli, 17, enjoys performing with the PSO. This is her first year; she's a senior at Plymouth Canton High School.

"It's good because they push you," Capozzoli said. "They're really so much more advanced. It makes you work." This is cellist Alicia Rowe's third year playing with the PSO. She's a 16-year-old junior at Southfield Christian High School.

Playing with the orchestra has been convenient and challenging for Rowe, a Plymouth resident. Her school has no orchestra, so she's pleased the PSO is there.

"I'm glad I have this orchestra to play in," Rowe's accustomed to playing with older musicians; when she started playing in elementary school, she performed with high school students.

ROWE HAS found it beneficial to work with the more seasoned PSO performers.

"You can always find something you can learn from someone else who's more experienced."

Rowe and Capozzoli have found other students are impressed that they play with the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra.

"They're really happy for you and proud," Capozzoli said.

Michelle Walquist, 15, a sophomore at Plymouth Canton High School, is a violinist who plays with the PSO. Alexander Chien, 17, a senior at Canton, plays the viola with the orchestra.

The PSO's "teen talent" also includes Jennifer Rose, a 15-year-old sophomore at Plymouth Salem High School. She plays the string bass.

"This is my first day," Rose said during a rehearsal break Monday, Oct. 3. She was recommended for the PSO by Michael Endres, orchestra director at Salem. Rose was enjoying rehearsing and looking forward to performing.

"I like the music. It has some challenging parts."

For Suzanne Long, playing with the PSO has been a rewarding experience. Long, 17, is a senior at Plymouth Canton High School.

"It's professional," she said. "I like the music."

Long, who plays the viola, has found there's less competition among PSO musicians. She's attended Blue Lake Fine Arts Camp, and has found greater competition among the student musicians there.

PERFORMING AT the Saturday, Oct. 1, concert was enjoyable, Long said.

"It was exciting." Getting paid to perform on stage with the PSO was a new and rewarding experience.

Working with the teenagers is rewarding for the PSO's more seasoned musicians as well. Bill Hulsker, a Detroit resident and music librarian at Wayne State University, has been playing with the PSO for about 25 years.

"I think it's a great opportunity both for the orchestra and the students to grow," said Hulsker, a bassoonist who started playing with the PSO during his student days at the University of Michigan.

The orchestra needs string players to replace those who have retired or moved, said Hulsker, who serves as the PSO's personnel manager.

The high school students do some of the more standard repertoire, he said. They're also exposed to more unusual works they otherwise wouldn't see until after college. Students have the experience of work-

weddings and engagements

Weeks-Reuschle

Beth Marie Reuschle of Plymouth and Kenneth Vernon Weeks of Goodella, Mich., were married June 25 at the Risen Christ Lutheran Church in Plymouth. The Rev. K.M. Mehri performed the ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Dean and Kathy Reuschle of Plymouth, Sue Weeks of Goodella, Mich., and the late Ken Weeks.

The bride is a graduate of Plymouth Canton High School and of Bethel College in Mishawaka, Ind., where she received an associate's degree in secretarial studies. She is employed as a secretary at Bendix Corp. in South Bend, Ind.

Her husband, a graduate of Port Huron High School, is a student at Bethel College. He will graduate in May 1989 with a degree in music ministry and youth ministry.

The maid of honor was Kim Smith. The bridesmaids were Joynn Hunsberger, Tammy Cummins, Lisa Ramage, and sisters of the bridegroom Karin Weeks and Kristie Gross.

David Langolf was the best man. The groomsmen were brother of the bride David Reuschle, Ken Hackler, Craig Weldy, Dave Fry and Robert Gross.

Horie-Murphy

Paul Horie and Judy Stall of Canton announce the engagement of their daughter, Marcy, to Gregory Murphy, son of Terry and Isabelle Murphy of Lockport, N.Y.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Eastern Michigan University. She is employed by Spinneybeck of Amherst as an outside sales representative in Michigan.

Her fiancé is a graduate of Canisius College and will graduate from the University of Michigan School of Law this year. He has accepted a federal court clerkship in 1989.

For her wedding, the bride wore a white drop waist dress with long sleeves and a touch of lace. The floor-length dress had a train. She carried a bouquet of baby white carnations, baby's breath, white and mauve roses.

A reception was held at the Risen Christ fellowship hall and grounds.

Following a wedding trip to Toronto, Canada, the newlyweds are making their home in Mishawaka, Ind., on the Bethel College campus.

ing with more seasoned performers. "So I think it's an excellent opportunity for the kids. It's a good experience on both sides, for both of us."

The PSO has a broad spectrum of ages, Hulsker said. It has musicians with plenty of experience and vitality. "People want to play and they're excited."

Area women enjoy challenge of the ministry

By Sue Mason
staff writer

After 25 years as a tennis coach, Barbara Koch decided to hang up her tennis racket and open a book. Carol Gregg was in her senior year of college when she decided to forego a career in the sciences and open the same book.

Katie Thoresen was an teacher, wife and mother. With children ranging in ages from 5 to 12 years, she decided to also open that book. The book the three women picked up was the Bible and it became an integral part of their lives. They are among a growing number of women who are being "called" to become ordained ministers in the Presbyterian, Methodist, Lutheran and Episcopal churches.

THEY DON'T see themselves as pioneers or role models for young women. It is, they say, a case of being called by God to the ministry.

"We're all called by God to do something and it's a case of what are you going to do with that calling," said Gregg, 30, pastor of Village Presbyterian Church in Redford. "I don't focus on it (the ministry) as being male dominated, but rather I focus on having colleagues of all sorts."

"When I started out, I was as competitive as any new pastor would be, but now I know my authority comes from the word of God not from being a male or female," said Koch, 40, associate pastor at Good Shepherd Lutheran Church in Redford. "I'm a minister that happens to be female, not a female that happens to be a minister."

FOR THORESEN, 42, associate pastor at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church in Livonia, her life in the ministry has been filled with surprises and serendipity.

The church community was an important part of her and her family's lives. She had wondered what it would be like to have a woman pastor, but didn't consider the ministry until two pastors at a church she attended mentioned it.

"I said 'What?' I just couldn't imagine myself in a black robe," she said. "One of hesitations at entering the seminary was how I would balance things. I asked my 12-year-old daughter and she told me that sometimes people need to do what they need to do and not think about what others will think."

Thoresen took the chance. When she completed her studies, her congregation gave her a white robe, and when she was ordained, her father gave her a blue robe.

GREGG FULLY expected to have a career in the sciences. A senior at Bucknell University, she began to feel that such a career didn't fit in with the plan God had for her. So, after 1½ years of searching and praying, she decided to become a minister.

"I remember looking at the chancelery of my church and wondering what if and then saying no, no way," she said.

Koch had been a physical education instructor for 25 years in high schools and at colleges when a friend asked if she had ever considered becoming a minister.

"He kept bringing it up and three years later I left the university to become a minister," she said. "I told my first congregation that I was a server, but not your typical kind. After 25 years in tennis, I guess you could say I served in the courts of the Lord."

THE THREE women have found their work rewarding and fun. Two weeks ago, Gregg's congregation surprised her with a birthday cake on her 30th birthday, shared by church members after Sunday worship.

"Part of the joy of being a pastor

The Rev. Barbara Koch of Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, the Rev. Katie Thoresen of St. Paul Presbyterian and the Rev. Carol is the sense of joy in sharing God with people," Thoresen said. "There's a sense of privilege in being able to share this with other people." "People open up to ministers; people are willing to share their lives with you," Gregg said. "It's a good experience seeing people change."

Gregg of Village Presbyterian Church discuss the challenges of being women in the ministry.

THEY PLAY down the fact that they are in a profession that has for the most part been male dominated. They also play down the idea that they are role models for young women. They are, they said, human and the only example they set is in leading Christian lives.

"I think (being a role model) is a part of my ministry whether I want it to be or not," Gregg said. "But there have been many more foremothers before us." "I don't think I'm a role model because that would emphasize my being a woman and I'm more of a minister," Koch said. "As I get more and more into my ministry, I see it as a calling, not a career." "The female leadership in the church is there and my being a minister affirms their ability to lead," Thoresen said. "This helps show that there's another option."

Interpersonal affairs are difficult to read

Affairs of life are inter-personal. Our relationships are with people, not with functions or machines. Functions and machines have prescribed responsibilities and boundaries.

Functions and machines work or they don't work. Functions and machines are right or wrong. With people, the issues are never so clearly composed. Inter-personal affairs are always more inclusive than we first think. The rich texture of life is unfolded.

For many years, my father lived with the judgment that the attorney had attended to all matters of estate and had drawn up a proper will. When we began attending to the matters of estate after my father's death, we learned that several matters had not been completed. There were several technical issues left incomplete, the attorney said they are not consequential.

I had never met my father's attorney, but I know how my father respected him. I had every reason to hold him in high esteem, and had been grateful through the years, for the counsel he had given to my father. The oversight or neglect of these several features of the will shattered my time-honored regard. I began to doubt everything he had prepared for my father.

MY RELATIONSHIP with the lawyer for my father's estate has changed. No longer is he the representative presence of that full observance of matters legal. No longer is he a function in my father's life. He is a human being willing to serve our family with his special skills and training. I should have realized that the moment we entered his office. A lawyer with an office filled with pictures of his grandchildren, and an inquiry regarding my father's grandchildren does not misrepresent his true nature. No longer is a visit devoted entirely to legal issues. There are other affairs of life to attend to as well.

In some affairs of life, we deliberately exclude this inter-personal dimension. Some experiences of life are never placed in their true light, or understood in their true nature. We continue to use the word "affair" to describe an adulterous relationship. But an adulterous relationship can hardly be the experience of two human beings, fully conscious and responsible to their relationships of life. Such an affair is the highest form of selfish activity, and the most destructive of human community.

The affairs of life abound in ever-increasing numbers. Denying or disregarding the human features of all these affairs is to deny our fundamental being. It is our humanity which makes affairs of life possible, and it is our humanity which makes our affairs so complex and challenging. Turning the affairs of life into something less than human is to cheapen life and to destroy the essence of love and care.

The Rev. Lloyd Buss is pastor at Abiding Presence Lutheran Church in Rochester Hills.

Quayle draws hundreds to OCC

By Joanne Malozewski
staff writer

Fifteen-year-old Chris Dunham of Farmington Hills is hoping he can one day say he saw the vice president of the United States in person.

"I think this is really neat. You get to see him in real life," said the Harrison High School student said Monday during Republican vice presidential candidate Dan Quayle's visit to Farmington Hills.

Dunham's beaming smile was one among several hundred as Republicans of all ages squeezed into the Oakland Community College Orchard Ridge Campus gymnasium to get a peek at the Indiana senator.

Posters and signs — "Quayle Great for '88" and "Pro-Life. Pro-Quayle" — dotted the horizon. Girl Scouts, students and adults of varying ages were ushered into the OCC gymnasium by security personnel, who occasionally asked for a peek into participants' bags and satchels.

"I like what he's saying. I like what he's doing. I think he's been terribly maligned," said Bloomfield Township resident Helen Wolfe, who with husband, Bob, held a large placard declaring, "Retirees for Quayle."

Michael Bouchard, unsuccessful Republican candidate for the 69th state House district, was equally supportive and eager to get a glimpse of Quayle, 41, a senator for 12 years.

"I want to hear the next vice president," the Beverly Hills Village Council president said. "I think he's an unknown. It's important to show who and what he is."

NOT ALL was roses and smiles at the quickly planned rally at OCC, which followed Quayle's noon speech before the Economic Club of Detroit.

About 75 young supporters of Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis, the Democratic presidential candidate, gathered outside the OCC gymnasium, jeering as Quayle made his exit. Their signs were clear: "Quayle go home," "Bentsen bagged a Quayle" and "Quayle is a quack."

Some Republican supporters were on hand to see if Quayle could try again to convince them of his qualifications and leadership.

"I'm trying to be objective and unbiased," said Farmington Hills councilman Terry Sever. "I think he's somewhat of a liability. But I'm not so sure he will be by election day."

For all the hoopla, Quayle said nothing new to the cheering crowd, which waited for more than 1½ hours. Leaders and representatives of the Michigan and Oakland County Republican organizations tried to rouse the sign-carrying participants as the Harrison High marching band and cheerleaders entertained the crowd.

"We're stretching the program. We haven't any idea where the senator is. But I think he's pretty close," said Ronna Romney, Republican National Committee chairwoman for Michigan.

MUCH OF what Quayle said during his 10-minute speech criticized Dukakis and his platform. Quayle said the gymnasium, used for basketball, reminded him of a Michael Dukakis defense strategy. "A lot of dribbling and no points on the board."

Quayle promised the crowd that if elected, he and George Bush would continue President Ronald Reagan's economic prosperity plans. He called the current administration's economic plans "the longest peacetime recovery in history."

Electing Dukakis, he said, would put the economic recovery at risk. "Do you want to go back to the era of 21-percent interest rates, the worst inflation since World War II, unemployment lines, higher taxes

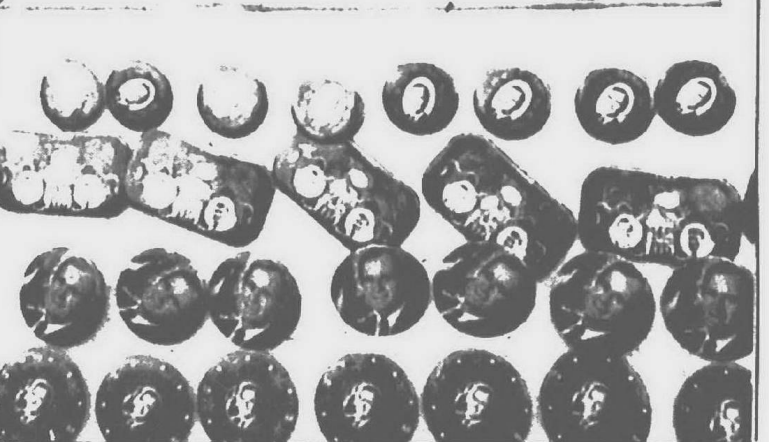

Looking at students gathered near the makeshift stage, Quayle asked them if they wanted their future shaped "by Gloomy Gus from Massachusetts."

Calling Dukakis "Mr. Weak," Quayle said to the cheering crowd: "There is one thing the American people will never call the man from Massachusetts and that's Mr. President."

As the crowd slowly edged toward the exits, supporters commented on Quayle's personality and sense of humor.

"I think his warmth and personality came across in an intimate setting like this," said Novi resident Nancy Bates, campaign director for Jan Dolan, Republican state House candidate in the 69th district.

"I think it was neat that so many high school and college kids are involved in this. That shows he has an appeal to the young and old," Bates said.

Ladywood High School soars with new wing

Ladywood High School's new $1.5 million Marian Wing, dedicated in September Friday, is "great," say students of the Catholic high school for girls in Livonia.

"It's so nice to see something new, it's refreshing," commented senior Heather Plummer, while walking down a freshly painted hallway between classes.

"It's very modern, isn't it," comments Sister Mary Cordia, school business manager. "It isn't anything like traditional."

'It's so nice to see something new, it's refreshing.'

senior

WHAT IS non-traditional about the new 11,000-square-foot wing are the color combinations and modern touches.

Blackboards and lockers are blue, and cinder block walls are white.

"This was the Marian year," explains Sister Mary Alexander, Ladywood principal. "We tried to honor her by remembering her colors."

A third color — the dark orange of student's chairs and lab stool covers — is a fitting complement.

The new lockers also feature recessed combination locks.

The wing includes two offices for school administrators and a physical plant room equipped with a shiny new boiler and air-conditioning unit.

A 100-seat lecture hall, the type usually seen on college campuses, is at the end of the east portion of the L-shaped wing, completed this summer.

"If we want to show a movie to one (class) level, or bring in all the biology students, we can," Cordia explained.

Again, blue carpeting complements dark orange chairs. The teaching station at the front of the room is lit by overhead track lighting.

THE NEW biology lab is far bigger than the former one, said Sister Mary Stephanie, science department head. The lab also has a large prep room where specimens can be prepared before class.

The wing — paid for through contributions from the Felician Sisters, school savings and private contributions — has allowed the high school to admit students who previously were put on a waiting list, due to limited space, said Alexander.

"We can accommodate 125 new students because of the wing," said Cordia, adding "We could stretch it up to 200." The school's enrollment is 530.

Ladywood High, built in 1950, is on Newburgh Road just north of Schoolcraft. Ninety-eight percent of its students go on to college, school officials say.

A Catholic school sponsored by the Felician Sisters, its student body also includes girls of Protestant, Muslim and Hindu faiths, from 14 communities.

Laser treatments help diabetics save eyesight

To the average observer, Cecelia Gallagher, 43, of Redford, and Viola Gilmore, 72, of Detroit, may not appear to have much in common.

Gallagher has a busy career as an executive secretary to the physical medicine director of Mount Carmel Hospital. She loves to read, paint, swim, and make Christmas ornaments in her spare time.

Gilmore's days, on the other hand, are spent taking care of her husband who is a stroke victim.

as it is, I just figured 'why bother with one more appointment.'"

Diabetes weakens the blood vessels in the retina at the back of the eye. Often, eyesight is not affected until these blood vessels have become very diseased.

According to Dr. Mark Haimann, the retina specialist who treated Gallagher, sudden loss of sight is not unusual. "We see many diabetics who literally lose their sight overnight from bleeding into the eye from diseased blood vessels. This is unfortunate because diabetic eye disease is usually very advanced when bleeding occurs."

they patched my right eye, I learned first hand what it was like to be blind. You realize how quickly you take things for granted."

"I know now that anybody with diabetes can have eye problems — not just the insulin-dependent diabetic," said Gilmore. "I've controlled my disease for 20 years by diet alone, but I still almost lost my sight. Those long days of darkness were the spariest times of my life."

A year. Going blind is a steep price to pay for not taking the time to see a doctor."

be used. However, we often can perform microsurgery to restore vision in diabetics whose disease has progressed beyond the point where laser is useful."

YET BOTH women have faced — and overcome — a major setback in their lives. Both have nearly lost their eyesight to diabetes, the leading cause of blindness among people age 25-65.

And as frightful as it might seem, both women did not know that their eyes were in danger.

"I lost complete sight in my left eye almost overnight," said Gallagher. "I had no symptoms and since I was feeling good, I had no reason to think I needed to see an eye doctor. I go to the doctor so often FORTUNATELY FOR both Gallagher and Gilmore, treatment was successful in restoring sight.

Gilmore required three laser treatments, according to her retina specialist, Dr. Harold Weiss. "We were very lucky with Viola," Weiss said, "because we caught the diabetic eye disease just in time. She had been having trouble reading fine print but thought it was just due to age. Then when she couldn't see well enough to drive, she knew something more must be wrong."

Gallagher cautions diabetics on medications to be particularly aware of their eyes. "I thought that the occasional double vision I was having was a side effect of the many medications I was taking when I broke my leg, and I was having trouble regulating my blood sugars."

BOTH WEISS and Haimann stress that Gallagher and Gilmore were fortunate that the disease had not progressed to an untreatable stage.

"Laser surgery," said Haimann, "is not a miracle worker. It has its limits and in some cases, it cannot

To Gallagher, the prospect of laser treatment was frightening. "But then again, I had nothing to lose. If I wanted to regain my sight, I was willing to try anything."

Use of natural flavorings is lightly regulated by FDA

Q. Many foods have the term "natural flavors" on the label. What exactly does that mean?

A. According to the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, the term "natural flavors" means that the source of the flavor used in that food is a spice, fruit, vegetable, yeast, herb, bark, bud, root or leaf. Other sources of natural flavor are dairy foods, meat, poultry and fish. "Artificial flavors," on the other hand, are manufactured by chemists in laboratories.

Because relatively small amounts of flavorings are used in most foods, natural and artificial flavors are regulated more leniently than most other food additives.

However, flavorings are one of the most important classes of additives consumer mailbag

because they can be used to replace or hide the absence of expensive natural products. They also improve the taste of manufactured foods.

Q. I use a product called "Fruit-Fresh" frequently because my children prefer their fruit peeled and cut — but not brown. Is this safe to use frequently?

A. Yes. Fruit-Fresh is made primarily of ascorbic acid (vitamin C) and a small amount of dextrose (sugar). It's the vitamin C that prevents cut fruit from turning brown when exposed to air.

If you want to eliminate the small amount of sugar from Fruit-Fresh and possibly save some money at the same time, try squeezing a wedge of fresh lemon or lime over the cut fruit. It's just as effective.

Q. I buy large quantities of eggs when they're on sale and store them in the refrigerator until I need them. Is this practice a good idea?

A. Due to normal jostling during shipping and handling, eggs stored in the refrigerator more than five weeks sometimes develop microscopic cracks in the shell. These cracks can increase the risk of microbial contamination.

Older eggs should not be used for quickly cooked foods, such as omelets, scrambled or fried eggs. Frequently, these dishes are not cooked long enough to destroy any bacteria that may be present.

Older eggs are also inferior to fresh ones when baking because they have flatter yolks and less cohesive whites. The egg whites are less stable in structure and volume in meringues and angel food cakes.

Older eggs are fine in foods that are fully cooked. They make good hard-boiled eggs. They're also easier to peel than fresh eggs.

Remember, however, hard-boiled eggs are much more perishable than fresh eggs. Do NOT store hard-boiled eggs longer than one week after cooking.

CROWLEY MILNER & COMPANY

By Carolyn DeMarco
staff writer

Some entrepreneurs start on a shoestring. Rick Sebastian had less than that.

Sebastian is owner of Sun Air, a West Bloomfield-based charter travel broker. He started with no capital. Now entering its fourth year of operation, Sebastian says this year's gross receipts already top $500,000 and if everything "flies," they could well go over $3 million.

Sebastian, a 1969 graduate of Southfield High School, spent several years as a property manager for a real estate developer before being bitten by the entrepreneurial bug.

HE WAS vacationing in Hawaii in 1981 when he discovered he paid $599 for his charter travel package while a person in the same hotel paid $1,000 for an identical trip. The margin of profit excited him.

When the trip was over he contacted Tradewinds Tours, a tour operator, and volunteered his services.

"They thought I was flaky but they gave me their brochures on Mexico and Hawaii charters to push," he said. "I put three lines in the personal section of the Lansing Journal and outsold all my competitors in the area."

"I started to figure out where they get the planes since it's not regular air (scheduled airlines). It seemed too big to play with."

SEBASTIAN SOON changed his mind. He was visiting the Lansing airport when he spotted a small, eight-to-10-passenger turbo prop sitting dust-covered in a hangar. He was told the plane was owned by Provincial House and was used only three times the previous year.

Sebastian found that Provincial paid $25,000-30,000 annually just to maintain the sitting plane and made the company an offer it couldn't refuse.

"I told them I'd bring them to a zero on costs if they weren't looking for an income."

SUN AIR WAS started with that concept in mind — locating the un-

Flying high Broker charters available planes

Rick Sebastian and wife Trisha Smothers have access to 2,000 airplanes from a three-passenger to a 344-passenger.

derused airplanes and setting up small groups to charter them for leisure and corporate travel.

While Sebastian has yearly contracts with small plane owners, he pays for the use on an hourly basis. The owner of the plane takes care of all maintenance costs.

As the concept grew, so did Sebastian's knowledge of the charter brokerage business.

"It was a year and a half before I made any money," Sebastian said. "I knew it was a workable idea. People were paying three times as much as I could give them (as a price) for the service."

"For the first six months I spent 100 hours of study with people, books, airlines. People put up with a lot of dumb questions. I wanted to know everything I could about it. If you can make someone understand why you're trying to learn, that it will be an advantage to them in the long run, they'll open up."

THE SIZE of the planes chartered grew with the size of the business. Today Sebastian arranges charters from established chartered airlines, including American Trans Air.

Sebastian has arranged transportation for the Detroit Red Wings and Edmonton Oilers during last season's playoffs, and flits across the country for Mary Hart of Entertainment Tonight. Last January Sun Air arranged for an 344-passenger L-1011 to take Spartan fans to the Rose Bowl in Pasadena. Corporate clients include Michigan State University, Michigan National Bank, AAA and Ford Motor Co.

DESPITE HIS success, Sebastian still employs a down-home operation. He and his wife, Trish, operate the business from a modest West Bloomfield site. His only pieces of equipment are the telephone, his briefcase and his contacts.

"People are always skeptical if there is no investment involved. I believe with enough effort you can make up for a lack of money."

Sebastian believes as a travel broker his low overhead and hard-earned knowledge of the industry gives him a distinct pricing advantage over tour operators. To his knowledge there are only three major travel brokers in the United States.

"I can negotiate a far better rate. They'd (airlines) rather deal with a travel broker than the unknowledgeable. If someone doesn't understand aircraft the airlines don't want to lead every window shopper through the process. If I bring them someone, they know it will 'fly.'"

Sebastian now has access to 2,000 airplanes, from a three-passenger to a 344-passenger.

SEBASTIAN ALSO has two other relatively new businesses. Marcfax offers delivered in-office fax service at $4.95 per page in Lansing and is now targeting Southfield. He also operates Dial-a-Meal in Lansing, a weekend delivery service for restaurants in the area at $1.49 per person.

"They're making money," he said. "Why others have failed is they wanted to offer blanket coverage. We select small (geographic) areas."

Sebastian has wised up since his real estate days when he offered his ideas on maintenance warranties to a major real estate firm, he said.

"I came in and explained the idea to all their sales people. They thanked me and then stole the idea and I didn't get a dime. I'm still not the brightest boy in town, but I won't let that happen again."

How to safeguard savings in wake of Black Monday

A Monday in mid-October. If those words make your heart beat just a little faster, you are probably one of the millions of investors who watched the stock market crash 508.32 points almost a year ago, on Oct. 19.

Black Monday, as the fateful day was subsequently dubbed, sent people charging out of the stock market. Many of the first to jump were small investors who panicked at the thought of losing their savings. By pulling out too soon, many turned their paper losses into actual losses. Just six days later, the market recovered a record-breaking 186 points.

For the small investor still reeling from last year's plunge, the Farmington Hills-based Michigan Association of CPAs offers nine tips that can help safeguard your savings.

- Build a strong foundation.

practically speaking

Don't put a single dime in any moderately risky investment until you have built a solid savings foundation. Most financial experts recommend that you keep enough funds in an insured money market account to cover at least three to six months of living expenses. Remember that your savings base must be able to cushion the blow from a sudden recession, unexpected unemployment or other personal crisis.

- Choose investments that match your needs and resources. If your life savings amounts to $1,000, investing in the stock market is about as wise as betting on the weather. How you invest what you have is one of the most important financial decisions you can make. Assess your situation honestly. If your savings is small, risk terrifies you and security ranks as one of your most important objectives, you should probably stay clear of the stock market.

The risk-shy investor should investigate safer options, such as Treasury Bills, which are backed by the U.S. government and are virtually free from the possibility of default.

- Choose investment advisers you can trust. Most people shop around for a doctor or lawyer. Do the same for your financial adviser. If you have a stockbroker, make sure that he or she is readily available and is willing to listen to and understand your financial goals.

• Diversify. No matter how much money you have, avoid putting all your eggs into one basket — they become too easy to trample. Spread your savings among different types of investments. The reason why this strategy works is simple. In general, when one segment of the financial world suffers, another prospers. For instance, when interest rates fall sharply, bonds soar.

How you diversify your portfolio again depends on such factors as your age, your ability to sustain risk and your financial position. In today's volatile market, most individuals should maintain at least a portion of their funds in insured CDs, money market accounts or government securities.

- Buy what you know. Capitalize

College loan called 'last resort'

By Janice Brunson
staff writer

Government-sponsored PLUS loans, often called loans of last resort, are growing in use as parents turn to them to pay college bills.

The loans — Parent Loans for Dependent Undergraduate and Graduate Students — are available to creditworthy parents who may borrow up to $4,000 annually to a total of $20,000 for each child younger than 24 who is attending college.

While PLUS loans represent one of the fastest-growing types of educational loans, many parents are still unaware they exist, according to the Student Loan Marketing Association.

Still, "with what's been happening to financial aid in recent years — the many regulatory changes negatively affecting eligibility — there are definitely more and more parents interested in PLUS loans," said Cheryl Powell, senior financial aid officer for the University of Michigan-Dearborn.

Of 7,600 students attending UM-D, 2,300 receive some form of financial assistance, according to Powell.

Joan Knudsen, a financial aid counselor at Livonia's Madonna College said interest in PLUS loans has increased in direct proportion to publicity surrounding them.

"Many more parents are resorting to PLUS as an alternative when their assets are tied up, and they don't want to dip into the principal," Knudsen said. An estimated 25 percent of Madonna students receive financial aid.

THE NUMBER of applicants for PLUS loans in Michigan nearly doubled this fiscal year, from 1,100 in 1987 to 1,800 in 1988, according to Neal Clark of the Michigan Higher Education Assistance Authority. The authority processes the loans and guarantees funding for them.

The amount of money available for PLUS loans doubled in the same period of time, from $2.4 million $4.8 million. Nationally, more than $431 million was disbursed in 1987.

Applicants and money are "up close to 800 percent," Clark said because of tightening eligibility requirements that have made money for guaranteed student loans "very tight."

The PLUS program was launched four years ago, in response to tightening eligibility requirements and reduced funding. Fewer students were eligible for a shrinking supply of money.

In contrast, PLUS loans have no income requirements, and no collateral is required. Students who have failed to qualify for other forms of financial assistance are eligible for PLUS loans, provided their parents apply.

Hence, the designation of last resort, according to Powell who said, "It's the true meaning of the word." The last-resort designation is also applied by students who are reluctant to involve parents in the financing of their education.

PARENTS RECEIVE the money and are expected to repay it, but students often assume the debt, according to Knudsen. "PLUS doesn't care who pays, just so long as someone does."

Repayment must begin within 60 days after receipt of the loan but payments can be spread over 10 years. A minimum monthly payment of $50 is required.

Creditworthy parents can apply regardless if children are receiving other forms of financial assistance. The loans require no collateral and have no origination or service fees. The interest rate, which can never on your own expertise when choosing stocks. If, for example, you work for an airline and part of your job is staying on top of the industry's problems and opportunities, you are in an excellent position to select securities in that market segment.

Follow these guidelines to safeguard your savings

• Look for reasonable gains. We all dream of the million-dollar investment, the one smart tip that makes a fortune overnight. Keep dreaming. In reality, look for investments that yield reasonable gains — say, a few percentage points above the current inflation rate.

Accounts paying 8 percent will double your savings in approximately nine years. An 11 percent yield will double your money in 6 1/2 years. To figure out how long it will take for your money to double, use the financial advisor's "rule of 72." Divide 72 by the rate of interest on your savings.

• Take the long view. The worst victims of Black Monday were the ones who couldn't see past the day's closing price. If you do invest in the market, you have to be willing to ride out the roller-coaster days. In general, the longer you hold onto an investment, the more likely you will be able to minimize your overall losses.

But some people follow this advice a little too closely. They become attached to a favorite stock and won't sell it — even when it has become a clear loser. Remember that if a stock loses half its value, its price will have to double for you to break even.

• Try dollar-cost averaging. One often-recommended plan for people interested in making long-term market investments is called "dollar-cost averaging." According to this strategy, you invest a set amount of money in a security or a mutual fund every two months. As a general rule, you will end up buying more shares at a lower price and fewer shares when the price is high. The primary advantage of dollar-cost averaging is that it tends to smooth out the devastating lows of stock-market investments. But you may also miss the spectacular highs.

• Stay involved. A frightening number of people fail to monitor their investments regularly. Imagine buying a house, walking away it and then waiting some 15 years to check on its condition. You would undoubtedly return to find your house a weather-worn shambles. The same can happen to financial investments. When you make an investment, you make a commitment to your financial future — and your success or failure will depend in part, on the degree of your involvement.

Stay in touch with your broker or financial advisor, track the performance of your investment and keep attuned to major economic events. CPAs advise investors to pay especially close attention to such facts as the rate of inflation, consumer spending and the federal deficit.

This new one attracts even the casual eye

When a guy rolls his window down to talk to you about your car, you ought to be flattered. But this guy was driving on the expressway and seemed to have forgotten the basics, such as looking ahead or steering. He was on my left, stretched across the passenger seat when he rolled down the passenger window and yelled something like, "What kind of car is that?"

It was the second time it had happened in two days: along with another guy driving an armored car, yelling through the wire mesh; an industrial design student on foot; and innumerable carloads of kids giving me the thumbs up as they passed.

Head-turning is one of those significant features of a new car that is difficult to quantify. But as Sean Fitzpatrick, the advertising guru who brought us the "heartbeat of America" theme says, "Image isn't the main thing. It's the only thing."

In the course of my work, I end up driving about 50 different cars a year on the street as well as the test track — an enterprise that on occasion has the neighbors muttering about the drug business. Regardless, the experience can sensitize you to which cars draw glances and which don't.

BMW's, for example, aren't a sure thing, even when they hit $70,000 a copy. Money sort of blends in when it is black and German. Without a star on the hood, any BMW is less recognized than the Real German Car.

IRONICALLY, PICKUP truck owners tend to gather around anything recognizably new from GM or Ford. If you have a truck, it's sort of like having an old cat. Since the manufacturers only change the things every 20 years, you've got to amble over and look at the latest.

auto talk

Corvettes always get looks from single-looking blondes. I think this is because so many guys who just got divorced run out and buy a Corvette. It's something like wearing those gold chains even if you aren't Catholic or in the Army. Women with dark hair carrying books seem to notice Volkswagens.

A few muscle cars have this effect — something like a 350 Camaro.

This is because driving one of these things is like being a bull elk in spring. If somebody looks at you, you've got to race. So if you don't want to look like you want to race, you look away.

In fact, depending on your car to leave a favorable impression is a dangerous game. I still remember a friend in college who spent his tuition money on the down payment on a Porsche — selling at the time for nearly four grand — and hastened over to give his lady friend a ride.

She like it all right, and all was right with the world until he pulled up next to a battered MG. Whereupon his friend began bouncing up and down on his new seat, pointing out the window and yelling, "Look, it's a sports car."

Remember what I said about German cars.

But status-hardened as I've become over the years, this latest commotion came as a big surprise to me, conditioned as I was to more recognizable symbols of automotive prestige.

In fact, what I was driving was barely a car at all, more like a demented baby buggy. Chevy is selling the thing as the Tracker, under its new GEO franchise, while Suzuki, who designed it and will soon begin manufacturing in Canada, calls it the Sidekick.

It's a miniature four-wheel-drive utility vehicle that somehow conjures up memories of the African Veldt and the beach at Santa Monica at the same time.

It gives my wife a headache and barely keeps up with traffic. Top flapping, it would feel at home with Roger Rabbit. But it is leading-edge image, probably the first time in 20 years or so GM has put a genuine innovation on the market.

Not that it reflects some advanced wisdom or newfound sense of popular trends on GM's part. Driving this self-made trendmobile, you can almost hear some young person leaning out the window of an advanced planning session and yelling, "Look, a real sports car."

Tax changes may hamper life-insurance investments

Part I

"I am totally confused about investment products marketed by insurance companies," lamented John Jones, one of my prospective clients.

Jones is not alone. Although single-premium whole life (SPWL), single-premium universal life (SPUL), single-premium deferred annuity (SPDA), and single-premium immediate annuity (SPIA) are buzz words, the similarities and differences among them are not always understood. In a three-part article, we will discuss these investments.

Single-premium whole life

As its name clearly suggests SPWL is an insurance policy that is guaranteed to be paid up for life if no withdrawals are made.

The single premium, or lump sum, is paid in the beginning, and no further premiums are paid during the life of the contract. The single premium buys life insurance that remains in force until the insured reaches the age of 95, at which time the policy matures and the money is distributed.

The investment features of the SPWL are interesting. The single premium earns an attractive rate of interest (say 8 percent), which is usually guaranteed for one or three years.

AFTER THAT, the interest rate is declared annually. The interest grows tax-deferred and can be withdrawn as a loan, usually around every anniversary date.

Another feature of this policy is that usually there are no specific charges for mortality; the cost of life finances and you

insurance is absorbed into the next interest credited to the account. Thus, SPWL is an interest-sensitive policy.

The most attractive feature of an SPWL is that loans can be obtained from the policy, tax free and at zero interest cost.

Taken as a whole, the investor not only receives an attractive interest rate completely tax free but also has no obligation or need to repay the loan.

ANOTHER advantage is that this interest is not included in the Social Security tax calculation, as would be the case with municipal bond interest.

In addition to taking out accumulated interest as a loan, the insured can withdraw a part of the principal as well without disturbing the life insurance coverage. In this case, however, the insured would have to pay an interest cost that may run anywhere from 2-3 percent.

An important caveat: Recently the House Ways and Means Committee has adopted a proposal to change the taxation of loans. The proposed change would apply to all policies issued on or after June 21, 1988.

If this proposed change is enacted into law — and there is a good possibility that it will — then loans would be taxed as ordinary income, although interest will continue to accumulate tax deferred. Incidentally, what the final grandfathering date will be is not yet known.

Single-premium universal life

Defined by Congress as "flexible premium life," SPUL appears to be a mirror reflection of SPWL, but it is not.

Universal life is interest sensitive, and, within limitations, premiums can vary as to the amount and timing. Some universal policies have minimum "target" or initial premiums, but no specific requirements for subsequent premiums.

In most instances, universal life policies are sold to people who intend to make periodic premium payments. When the premium paid is one lump sum, the policy is called SPUL.

Next week: More on insurance-related investment products.

Co-worker's divorce calls for tact, support

Dear Joan:
A fellow executive within the corporation has undergone a difficult divorce. I know it has been a painful time and continues to be. What is within the realm of good taste for his/her colleagues' behavior at such a time?

P.N., Northville

This is certainly a situation encountered frequently in the business world of today. The colleagues and business associates of the person being divorced should remember that he or she will need extra emotional support during this difficult time. But one should not treat the person as though he or she were terminally ill.

One should not ask prying, overly personal questions, such as "Did you get custody of the children?" "How much alimony will you have to pay?" or "How much alimony did you get?"

One should not try to be a match-maker for a colleague until after the divorce is final and until he or she is ready to date once again. The nicest way of handling this is to invite the divorced person to dinner and ask, "Would you like us to invite someone for you?" "Would you like us to introduce you to someone nice?"
Even in an attempt to cheer up someone, one should always avoid tasteless remarks at work, such as "You're free now; would I ever like you to be in your shoes!"

Dear Joan:
A colleague was recently widowed, and I'm not sure how to handle the situation. I don't know if I'm being too solicitous or not enough. How does one judge these things?
N.G., Royal Oak

When a colleague loses a spouse, business etiquette

Joan K. Dietch

you should show your strong support not only at the time of the funeral but long afterward. The real grief of losing a spouse often hits hardest several months after death, at a time when most friends and associates have concluded that the bereaved "is doing OK now" and lessened their attention. The bereaved may not be doing OK.
A mark of compassion and real friendship is to invite that person through the year to family occasions such as dinners on holidays and weekend outings that fit in with his or her sport or cultural pursuits.

You can almost always tell when a widow or widower is ready to date again by being sensitive to signals in their conversations in the office. It may be time to have a few people to dinner and to invite someone you think your widowed colleague might enjoy meeting or at least talking to for one evening. It's up to you to find someone who is suitable, eligible and has a pleasing personality.
Make the evening a relaxed one, with just a few good guests and good conversation, so that the two who have been paired off won't feel any pressure. Do not treat them as potential love mates but rather as two members of your group. Even if they never see each other again after your party, they will have enjoyed being there, and that is satisfaction enough.

Try inviting someone else the next time if the first time was not a great success as far as their personal relationship was concerned. Gradually your friend will become accustomed to "getting around" again and to coping with the social aspects of dating and the single life, which he or she may have forgotten. After several years of marriage, dating is a learning experience all over again.

Dear Joan:
I find giving compliments difficult. I know this is a drawback in the business world. What is the best way to break through this wall of reserve?

J.L. Northville

The mission of a compliment is to please in some manner. If you are a naturally reserved person, then keep your compliments in proportion. Make a sincere statement that reflects a sincere sentiment without hyperbole.
"Your promotion makes everyone in this office feel proud. I am pleased and happy for you."
Leave the rah-rah statements to the extroverts, i.e., "Congratulations on a first-rate job. I am ready to fire off cables to Congress."

DEC is good investment, but reader paid too much

I bought shares of Digital Equipment just about a year ago, a few weeks before the big drop in stocks. I paid $195 a share. Today the stock is $95. Could you tell me where I went wrong?

Digital, or DEC as it is referred to on Wall Street, is the third-largest manufacturer of data processing equipment according to Standard and Poor's. It seems to be a very well-managed company and has an excellent record of sales and earnings growth.

You probably went wrong by buying the stock at the wrong time. You paid too high a price for it. In August of 1987 when you made your purchase, the previous year's earnings per share were $4.81, which means you paid 40-times earnings for the stock.

The earnings estimate for 1987 was $8.50 and for those earnings you paid 23 times earnings. The earnings for 1987 turned out to be $ 8.53.

The anticipation of that big increase in earnings, from $4.81 to $8.53 or 77 percent, is probably a principal reason why the stock was selling as high as it was when you bought it. Another year's increase in earnings like that and the stock would be worth the price you paid for it.

today's investor
Thomas E. O'Hara

of the National Association of Investors Corp.

But earnings in fiscal 1988 (the company has a June 30 fiscal year) were $9.90. That was just a 16 percent increase in earnings per share. That is really very good, but earnings growth decreased to 1.7 percent in the March quarter of 1988. Earnings per share for the 1989 fiscal year are being estimated at $11.30.

While those figures are very good, they represent a substantial decline in rate of increase from 77 percent of 1987. That decrease in rate of growth and the change in market psychology that took place with the October 1987 market break would, in my belief, account for the severe drop in price.

In my opinion that drop in price does not in any way change the quality of the company. DEC seems likely to continue to grow and produce greater earnings in the years ahead.

While the company is not worth 40 times earnings, it certainly would seem to be worth 15-18 times earnings. Fifteen times last year's $9.90 is $148. And that suggests to me that the current $95 may be a bargain.

If you have more money to invest, my guess is that you would not be making a mistake by buying more of the stock in the area of $95 a share.

Bad rap?

Theater cancels movie after violence

By Jackie Klein
staff writer

A Southfield movie theater canceled the film "Tougher Than Leather" and closed for business Monday after a shooting and a disturbance there over the weekend.

The movie stars the rap music group Run-DMC.

On Friday night, 19-year-old Lomax Lagrand III of Detroit was shot in the parking lot of the AMC Northland on J.L. Hudson Drive and Northwestern when he returned to his car with three friends at 11:40 p.m.

According to Southfield police spokesman Gary Conat, the group was going to see "Tougher Than Leather" but it was sold out. A passenger in a Ford Escort, occupied by four men, drove by and fired at least three shots at the victim, Conat said. One bullet lodged just underneath the skin of the victim's chest.

Lagrand was taken to Providence Hospital by his friends and is reported in good condition.

CONAT SAID police haven't determined if the shooting was related to the movie. A man was fatally shot at the Adams Theater in downtown Detroit on Friday night and other theaters that showed the film reported acts of violence. Five theaters have dropped the movie.

An 18-year-old Detroit man was arrested at the AMC Northland Sunday night for malicious destruction of property and resisting and obstructing a police officer.

Kelsey Lang Baker was arraigned on the charges Monday by 46th District Magistrate A. Kay Stanfield-Brown. Baker stood mute to the charges and Stanfield-Brown entered a plea of not guilty on his behalf.

Bond was set at $2,500, 10 percent, pending an Oct. 21 preliminary examination in the district court.

A 17-year-old youth also was arrested at the theater and was released pending the issuance of a warrant.

In the incident at 7:50 p.m. Sunday, Southfield police officers were called to the AMC Northland where fighting and other disturbances were reported. Three plate-glass windows were broken, Conat said.

THE NORTHLAND Theater was closed Monday evening while workers replaced "Tougher Than Leather" on the marquee with the movies "Nightmare on Elm Street" and "Night of the Demons."

Both the theater manager and its company, American Multi-Cinema Inc., declined to comment on the incidents.

The film company, New Line Cinema, said it regretted the Detroit incident and pointed out that there have been "thousands of incident-free showings."

In a statement to the media, the company said the music rap group carries anti-violence, anti-drug and pro-education messages in its work.

"Tougher Than Leather," according to a movie synopsis, is a story about corruption, murder and retribution in the music world.

Tim Smith and Sandra Armbruster contributed to this story.

Anti-freeze a danger for children, animals

Winterizing the family car this fall can pose a serious threat to pets, wildlife and children.

The task of changing the anti-freeze in a car's radiator can be deadly, if you don't take special handling precautions.

The main ingredient of permanent type anti-freeze is ethylene glycol, a toxic substance with a "sweet" taste. If the used product is left in an open container, its appealing taste can attract animals and children.

Ethylene glycol is so highly toxic that even a small amount can be fatal to both dogs and cats. The Michigan Humane Society annually treats up to a dozen cases of anti-freeze poisoning at its clinics. Such tragedies can be preventable.

If you suspect your pet has ingested anti-freeze, it is imperative to contact your veterinarian immediately, as time is of the essence.

Protect unsuspecting children and pets from harm by disposing of used anti-freeze in leakproof containers with childproof tops. Hose down spills, too.

IMAGINE DYING FROM A DISEASE YOU NEVER KNEW YOU HAD.

Eleven million people in the U.S. have diabetes. But almost half of them don't know it.

Untreated, diabetes can lead to heart disease, kidney disease, blindness and gangrene.

And for 150,000 people each year, it leads to death.

That's why you should be aware of the symptoms of diabetes: blurred vision, excessive thirst and frequent urination are just some of the warning signs.

Because the sooner you find out if you have diabetes, the more likely you are to get it under control, before complications set in.

Finding out you have diabetes can be scary. But not finding out can be fatal.

Charities' cards spread yule cheer

The American Cancer Society is doing it. So is the American Heart Association of Michigan. Ditto for the Myasthenia Gravis Foundation, Michigan Humane Society and a whole lot more. The "it" is taking Christmas card orders. Yep, the first snow flake has yet to fall, and it's already time to start thinking about Christmas. Just a few more weeks and area shopping malls will begin decking the halls in anticipation of Santa Claus' arrival. Whether you like to mail your cards weeks before Christmas or you leave it to the last minute, dropping your cards off at the post office on Christmas Eve, now is the time to order your supply of holiday greetings from your favorite charity. The cards are just one way the non-profit organizations raise money for their many activities like research, public education programs and patient services. The card selection is as varied as the causes the charities work for — nostalgic holiday scenes, Currier and Ives reproductions, whimsical Santa scenes, cards adorned with a multitude of musical instruments. Many of the cards can be imprinted, but like most things, there's a deadline for ordering them. That's why now is the time to get your order in. So why not spread your holiday cheer this year while helping charitable groups keep up their good work.

The Spina Bifida Association of Southeastern Michigan has two designs available this year. They cards cost $8 per box of 25 and their is a mailing charge of $1.75 for the first box and $1 for each additional box. To place an order, call Vincetta Nicosia at 689-9858.

The American Heart Association statewide holiday greeting card program features six nostalgic, religious and humorous card selections with matching envelopes. Prices range from $12 to $17 per box of 25, a $2 delivery charge for the first box and 50 cents for each additional box. Cards are available at AHA offices or by mail order (allow two to three weeks for delivery.) The cards are available at the AHA Western Wayne Office in the Whitman Center, 32235 W. Chicago, Livonia (425-2333), and at the Southeast Region Office, 16310 W. 12 Mile Road, Lathrup Village (557-9500).

"Wishing You a Purrfect Christmas" is one of two cards available from the Michigan Animal Rescue League. The cards sell for $10.40 (including postage) per box of 25. Rocks roll past WLC for 9th win

Plymouth Salem kept rolling in Lakes Division girls basketball action Tuesday, pasting host Walled Lake Central 53-40.

The Rocks, 9-2 overall, improved to 6-0 in the Lakes and have an important division game tonight at home against North Farmington. Central fell to 7-5 overall, 4-2 in the division.

Salem led 22-20 at halftime but built a 43-28 lead over Central, holding the Vikings scoreless for four minutes of the third quarter.

"Our defensive intensity went up, and we got some great shots," Salem coach Fred Thomann said. "That put them in the hole."

Point guard Jill Estey led Salem with 16 points and eight assists. Wendy Bailey and Sarah Ruete had eight points each for Salem.

The two teams were tied at eight after one quarter, but the Rocks forged ahead by nine midway through the second quarter.

A late first-half scoring spurt by Central, however, made it a two-point game at halftime.

The odds, to begin with, were stacked against Walled Lake Western in Tuesday's girls basketball game with division-leading Plymouth Canton.

And when 6-foot-3 center Michelle Hall didn't start the game, they became even worse.

The host Chiefs, 6-0 in the Western Division and 11-1 overall, coasted to their ninth straight victory with a 44-27 victory over the Warriors.

Hall, who eventually led Western with nine points, stayed on the bench until late in the second quarter for disciplinary reasons after she was late for a practice, according to first-year coach Bill St. John.

He thought Hall would have made a difference had she played the whole game, but he wanted to give the Chiefs their due, also.

"DON'T TAKE anything away from them," he said. "They're outstanding and deserve to be ranked (No. 6 in Class A) where they are."

"They're the class of this league. I haven't seen Salem, but (Canton) must have an outstanding team to beat them."

It's doubtful Hall would have changed the final outcome by playing a full game since it appears nobody is capable of stopping the Chiefs from winning the division title a fourth straight year.

Nonetheless, the Warriors showed Canton some things that enabled it to derive some benefit from the game despite the lopsided score, coach Rob Neu said.

"They ran a triangle-and-two (defense) on us, and they tried to slow it down," he said. "That's the first time

we've seen either, and it's great to work against that.

"What we are doing now, while we are superior, is making practices extremely challenging and using games to work on specific areas. That's why tonight's game was so valuable to us."

WESTERN'S ATTEMPT at slowing the pace didn't last long once the Chiefs forced some turnovers and gained the lead. Canton scored the last 12 points of the first half — during a stretch that saw Hall make her first appearance — and led 28-7 at halftime.

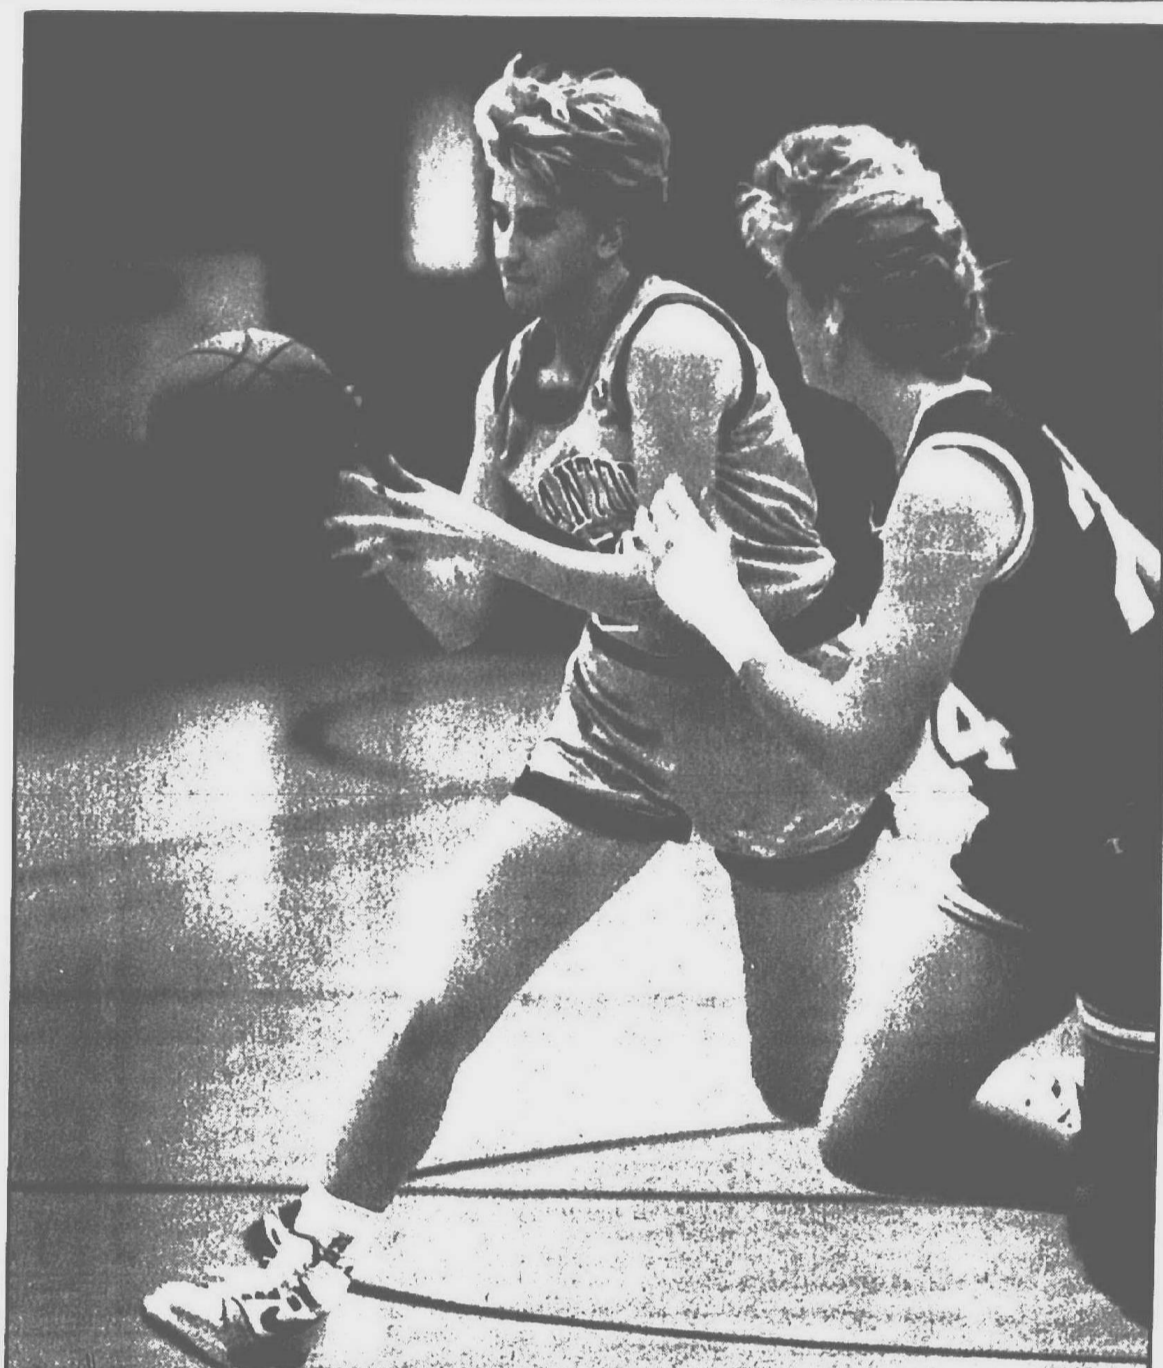

With center Susan Ferko on the bench a good part of the first half, the Chiefs appeared content to shoot the outside shot. The Chiefs had double the number of shots and made enough to begin pulling away.

Amanda Bell, the team's top 3-point shooter, and forward Candi Jones had eight of their 10 and 14 points, respectively, in the first half.

"Usually, in high school, you can get away with two players who can shoot and a good post player," St. John said. "But all eight (Canton players) can shoot. They've got a starting lineup in there with every rotation."

Canton guard Michelle Fortier was hitting the outside jumper in the fourth quarter and finished with six points, as did Ferko and Jennie Clark, who played well in place of Ferko in the first half.

Candi Jones gives the ball up on this play, but the senior forward was the game's leading scorer with 14 points. The No. 6-ranked Chiefs rolled over Walled Lake Western for their 11th victory in 12 games.

Salem soccer squad starts afresh, 3-1

The Rocks put a forgettable week behind them and enjoyed more familiar results Monday night in beating North Farmington 3-1.

The victory came two days after losing 2-0 to Portage Central, ranked No. 2 in Class A in the latest poll. The teams played to a scoreless tie at halftime, but Central, 10-0-2, pulled away in the second half.

That ended a difficult week for the Rocks, who also tied Walled Lake Western and lost to No. 1-ranked Livonia Stevenson, halting Salem's streak of eight wins and five shutouts.

The Rocks had beaten four top 10 teams during that stretch, including Plymouth Canton, Troy, Birmingham Brother Rice and Livonia Churchill.

"I think the Stevenson game knocked something out of them," Salem coach Ken Johnson said. "They were kinda flat for Portage Central."

"It brings them down to earth. But we still have a good season going."

The Rocks got a scare from North but managed to improve their season record to 10-4-1. The Raiders led 1-0 but Marc Lipke tied the score before halftime on an assist from Joe Tippman.

FARMINGTON 3, CANTON 2: Farmington coach Cathy Cole believes this week's Class A rankings should include the Falcons.

Farmington, 10-2-1 overall, added further testimony to Cole's stance Monday by defeating Plymouth Canton.

"Since our only losses have been to the No. 1 and No. 2 teams in the state (Livonia Stevenson and Plymouth Salem based on last week's poll) and we've beaten everyone else we've played, we deserve to be ranked," said Cole, who added she isn't bent upon being ranked.

"It would be nice to be ranked, but if it doesn't go our way then we can't let it bother us."

The Falcons, who were excluded from the top 10 this week, trailed 2-1 at halftime Monday, but goals by Joe Crow and Matt Giese gave Farmington its winning margin. Giese's game-winner came with six minutes left from about 18 yards out.

Canton took its 2-1 halftime lead, scoring on goals by John Cortese and Rick Menary (penalty shot). Scott Phillips accounted for Farmington's first-half goal, which momentarily tied the score. Mike Gammerath had three assists for the Falcons.

Greg Bjedov played the entire way in goal for Farmington, making five saves. The Falcons had 17 shots on goal.

HARRISON 2, FRANKLIN 2: The visiting Hawks, 4-6-3 overall, saw a third straight game end in a draw Monday.

Harrison fell behind 1-0 but took a 2-1 lead on a pair of Thierry Bersot goals. Mark Lebovitz had two assists and Todd Whittemore one.

Bob Hayes and Craig Overaidis scored for the Patriots, 2-6-3. Tom Stiehl had assists on both goals.

"We've had the early lead (in all three games) but haven't been able to hold it," Harrison coach Glenn Bruehan said.

"I think the Stevenson game knocked something out of (the Salem players). They were kinda flat for Portage Central. It brings them down to earth. But we still have a good season going."

Lee Krueger of Plymouth scored all three Catholic Central touchdowns Sunday as the Shamrocks won the annual Boys Bowl game and extended their mastery of arch-rival Brother Rice to five games, 21-7.

Shamrocks defeat Rice again, 21-7

By Brad Emons

Corrati's kids proved to be the difference again Sunday, as Redford Catholic Central continued its mastery over Boys Bowl rival Birmingham Brother Rice, 21-7, in a battle of state-ranked football teams before nearly 9,000 fans at Pontiac's Wisner Stadium.

It was CC's sixth straight victory without a loss and the fifth straight triumph over the Warriors dating back to 1985.

Head coach Tom Mach of CC was quick to give the credit to his defensive coordinator Rick Coratti, who designed a gimmick defense to stop Rice's potent passing attack.

"We've always taken great pride in our defense," said Mach, who is an amazing 9-6 against Rice head coach Al Fracassa. "And Rick has been with me every step of the way. We both started together 13 years ago, and I don't know what I'd do without him."

CC wasn't bad offensively, either, as quarterback Scott Haucher completed seven of 14 passes for 139 yards. Fullback Lee Krueger slammed in for three touchdowns, including a pair in the decisive fourth quarter.

KRUEGER, HOWEVER, was the catalyst defensively, playing four different positions to confuse Rice's offensive scheme. The 6-foot-2, 205-

Mercy finishes 2nd to Marian

Farmington Mercy was runner-up to rival Birmingham Marian a second straight year in Catholic League tennis, but the Marlins can't say they didn't have a shot at the Mustangs.

In five of the eight finals at Detroit's Farwell Field, Mercy was beaten by Marian players Saturday.

The Mustangs finished with 56 team points, the Marlins 48. Livonia Ladywood was third in the 10-team tournament with 36 points.

"They're rated in the top 10 in the state, and they have good depth," said Mercy coach Jim Kerwin of Marian. "As the scores indicate, we give them a good game but come up a little short."

"Our girls play well against them, but at this point, we don't have enough experience to take enough from them."

MERCY, HOWEVER, can claim to have the best player in the Catholic League after junior Nicole Transou captured the No. 1 singles title.

She defeated Alexandra Loew of Regina in the final, 6-2, 6-3. In earlier matches, Transou trounced Star of the Sea's Chris DeFour (6-0, 6-0) and Ladywood's Beth Zimmerman (6-0, 6-1).

"If somebody takes two or three games from her, they've taken a lot," Kerwin said.

Transou is 14-3 — all three losses being to Sue Sommerville of Dearborn, including one by default — and Kerwin expects her to be seeded No. 1 in the Northville regional. Marian goes to the regional at Southfield.

She has received all-state honors and advanced to the state quarterfinals the last two years.

"Some of the hot shots from last year are not in the tournament," Kerwin said. "She should be able to move up to the semifinals and possibly the finals."

LADYWOOD HAD a singles champion in Lisa Bielenda, who knocked off Marian's Carol Remdie-

Mark Bodley of Salem lines up a putt during the annual WLAA golf meet Monday. Canton finished fourth in the 12-team event while the Rocks were seventh.

Chargers state bound

Having already made six straight trips to the state Class A golf tournament, Livonia Churchill is hoping the seventh is its luckiest.

Churchill shot 325 Friday, tying Northville in the Class A regional at Brighton's Oak Pointe Golf Club. But Northville won the team title in a tiebreaker. Churchill, meanwhile, is making a record seventh consecutive entry at the Class A meet.

The Class A meet is Saturday at Michigan State University's Forest Acres.

At the Regional, sophomore Bill Durham had Churchill's best score, finishing sixth overall with 77. Kevin Wallin (80), Frank Sakowski (83), and Alex Bedaway (84) contributed to Churchill's first-place finish.

Walled Lake Western's Jason Sobieck shot a 2-over par 73 for medalist honors. Northville's Bill Nordbeck was second, scoring 76.

Canton's Jesena is league medalist

Northville, with two of the top individual scores and superior team balance, captured the Western Lakes Activities Association boys golf title Monday.

The Mustangs, who lived up to their pre-meet billing as the favorite, recorded a 408 team score at Huron Meadows Golf Course and fought off a challenge from runner-up Livonia Churchill.

The Chargers had four golfers among the top 13, and all five who scored were in the top 20. Churchill was just six strokes back at 414.

Northville, however, placed all six of its golfers in the top 18. Ken Telepo and Chris Lemmon paced the winners with second- and fourth-place totals of 77 and 79.

Medalist honors went to Plymouth Canton sophomore Rod Jesena, who shot a 4-over-par 76 despite the poor weather conditions that included a cold drizzle and low temperatures.

JESENA, WHO averaged 39 strokes for a nine-hole round throughout the season, shot 37 on the front nine and 39 on the back, but Canton coach Fred Libbing wasn't surprised by his performance.

"Not after he shot the same kind of round the other day," said Libbing of the 75 Jesena carded Friday in the Class A boys regional at Oak Pointe. That second-place score qualified him for the state meet on Saturday, Oct. 15, at Michigan State University.

"He's pretty steady," Libbing said. "(Shooting 76) is good play considering the weather."

Northville got a big boost from Telepo and Lemmon, and the other three who scored for the Mustangs shot 84 apiece.

"We're very close to them," Churchill coach Ken Timmons said. "Our first four were even with them, but they had a little more depth."

"I thought we had an excellent chance in that we tied them in the regional. In the regional, we played five and counted four; in the league, we played six and counted five."

KEVIN WALLON paced the Chargers with a third-place score of 78. Bill Durham and Alex Bedaway tied for 10th at 83 and Frank Sa-

Plymouth Salem finished fourth in the Class A golf regional at Oak Pointe last Friday, but the Rocks were five strokes short of qualifying for the state meet.

Northville and Livonia Churchill tied for first at 325, Howell was third at 329 and Salem finished fourth at 333.

Dennis Alcock paced the Rocks with an 18-hole score of 82 on the par-71 course. Dan Alcock shot 84 and Eric Matthews 86.

Salem enjoyed a fine season overall, ending with an 8-3 record in dual meets. The Rocks were seventh in the 12-team Western Lakes Activities Association meet Monday at Huron Meadows.

Canton, led by sophomore Rod Jesena's medalist score of 76, was fourth in the league. Geoff Allen shot 85, Sean McFarlane 86, Mike Kostik 88 and Kevin Holmes 99.

kowski was one of five tied for 12th with 84. Churchill's fifth man, Jeff Fournier, was just two strokes behind at 86 but a shade off the pace set by Northville.

"(The Churchill golfers) kept the ball out of trouble and played for the bogey when they had to instead of trying to pull out a spectacular shot to save par," Timmons said. "They played the course well and stayed away from the big numbers."

"I've had these boys for four years," he added. "They're pretty hard-nosed players; they don't give up. In a war, I'd want them on my side."

Walled Lake Western was third, Canton fourth and Livonia Stevenson fifth. North Farmington, by virtue of its sixth-place finish, won the Lakes Division title over Farmington, which placed ninth.

Both teams were tied at 4-1 in division duals, and the league finish was the tiebreaker. Stevenson was 3-2 in the Lakes.

Ocelots break even against tough foes

Call it a mid-term exam. And, although the marks weren't high, the pivotal New York trip Schoolcraft College's women's soccer team took last weekend ended with passing grades.

Which is important, in terms of the NJCAA tournament. SC, the defending national champion, plays few matches against quality junior college teams. The reason: There aren't that many to play.

Last weekend was different. The Lady Ocelots went against three of the best JC teams in the country. Problem was, they had to play them back-to-back-to-back, facing Monroe CC Friday, Nassau CC Saturday and Farmingdale CC Sunday in Monroe, N.Y.

The official result dead-even: a win, a loss and a tie. Monroe won 3-1 Friday when SC keeper Kris Moore committed two costly errors that resulted in goals. The first came after she mis-hit a goal kick; the ball went right to a Monroe forward, who knocked it into the open net.

THE SECOND Monroe goal was scored on a 35-yard free kick that lofted in over Moore's head. Monroe, which led 1-0 at the half, built its advantage to 3-0 before SC got a goal from Lori Hodges, with an assist from Dawn Gabriel.

Against Nassau Saturday, the Lady Ocelots bounced back for a 1-0 win over Nassau CC. "We dominated," said SC coach Nick O'Shea. "We just couldn't score."

The game's only goal came after just 15 minutes of play. Lisa Hysko got it, drilling the ball into the net after taking a pass at the corner of the penalty box area from Gabriel.

Moore was in the goal for the shut-out.

Sunday's game with Farmingdale ended in a 1-1 tie. The two teams went to a shootout to determine a winner, although the official result will be a tie. Farmingdale won the shootout 2-0 as the Lady Ocelots missed on all four of its penalty kicks.

JOAN ARNDT accounted for SC's only goal, converting a pass from Wendy Howell with five minutes left in the first half that tied the score.

There were reasons for optimism among the Lady Ocelots. First, they performed well despite finishing the tournament with just 13 players. Forward Deann Brda is lost for the season with a knee ligament tear, and defender Shari Acitelli did not make the trip because of a broken nose, suffered against Siena Heights. She should return next week.

In the first minutes of Saturday's match, Hodges went what with what was feared to be a broken bone in her foot. X-rays were being taken Monday.

Still, the Lady Ocelots showed they could play with the best in spite of a depleted roster.

"I THINK we're as good as Monroe," estimated O'Shea. "I don't think we could dominate them like we did last year, but we showed we could play with them."

are confident. After the game, the girls knew they could have won."

The 1-1 weekend left SC with a 6-1-2 record and an assurance that an NJCAA tournament bid should be forthcoming. "I would hope so," said O'Shea. "I thought we proved we could play with these teams. It shouldn't be a problem getting a bid."

Of course, getting there is only half the battle. Repeating as NJCAA champions is something else. O'Shea admits he has yet to practice his team much on its greatest deficiency — scoring.

"We've been working on keeping possession and passing it around," he said. "We haven't worked hard on scoring and goalkeeping. It's not like we haven't had chances, we just didn't finish them."

"I think we're as good as Monroe (Junior College). I don't think we could dominate them like we did last year, but we showed we could play with them. The important thing is the girls are confident. After the game, the girls knew they could have won."

SC netters to face tough competition

This weekend should answer a lot of questions about Schoolcraft College's volleyball team. Like, just how good are they?

SC prepared for its trip to the Jefferson (Mo.) College Tournament by ripping Eastern Conference foe Macomb CC 15-3, 15-2, 15-8 Tuesday at Macomb. The win kept alive coach Tom Teeters' conference winning record. Now in his fourth season at SC, Teeters has yet to lose a conference match.

Against Macomb, Nikki Stubbs was outstanding. The Garden City grad had 17 kills in 22 errorless attacks, a remarkable .773 kill percentage. She also had 13 digs and seven assists-to-kills in 30 sets, with no errors.

Marla Evans, also from Garden City, had seven kills in 15 attacks with three errors (.266) and two aces in 11 serves; Chris Paciero (Livonia Churchill) collected seven kills in 15 attacks with one error (.400) and had 33 assists-to-kills in 56 sets, with one error; and Alisha Love contributed 12 aces in 27 serves, with three errors.

THE WIN ran SC's record to 20-1 overall, 13-0 against junior college teams and 5-0 in the conference.

This weekend won't be as easy. The Lady Ocelots are the tournament's defending champions, having surprised the always-impressive field a year ago. That won't happen this weekend; SC goes in ranked fourth nationally.

There are others in the all-JC tournament with impressive credentials. The host team is ranked third in the NJCAA, Southwestern (Mich.) CC is eighth, Miami-Dade CC is ninth and Barton (Kan.) CC is 10th. Other tournament foes are Lake Michigan CC, Illinois Central CC and Johnson (Kan.) CC.

SC's chances to repeat are difficult for Teeters to gauge because most of the opposition is "a total unknown. We're playing well right now, but we haven't really been pushed in two weeks. We need to get that intensity against better teams."

The Lady Ocelots open against Southwestern at 2 p.m. Friday. At 3:30 p.m., they meet Illinois Central and at 6:30 p.m. they face Miami-Dade. On Saturday, SC goes against Jefferson at 9 a.m., Johnson at 10:30 a.m., Barton at 3 p.m. and Lake Michigan at 6 p.m.

All seven matches are best-of-three games. The team that emerges with the top record is the tournament champion.

A quick start was enough to carry Schoolcraft College's men's soccer team to a 5-2 win Saturday at Delta CC, setting the stage for this Saturday's showdown with Macomb CC.

The Macomb match is the biggest of the season for SC. A victory almost assures the winner of a Region 12 title.

The Ocelots are 4-0-1 in the region and 6-1-2 overall. Macomb is 3-0-2 in the region. The two teams tied 2-2 in their first meeting at Macomb. Game time is 1 p.m. Saturday at SC.

"Based on our first game experience, I respect them highly," said Ocelot coach Van Dimitriou of the Monarchs. "I guarantee there won't be a dull moment on that field."

SC bolted to a 3-0 halftime lead against Delta (0-5) before letting up. All three goals were scored by Bill Cashin, who was substituting for the injured Todd Nichols. Nichols suffered damaged knee ligaments and a deep leg bruise in practice.

Joe Messler assisted on two of Cashin's goals and Pete Ritsema assisted on the other. Goals from SC's Messler (from Brian Thomas) and Steve Eichbauer (from Chris Speen) offset Delta's two second-half goals.

CC stays unbeaten in football

ponder, primarily a middle guard, also put in stints at linebacker, strong tackle and strong-side end.

"We thought the most important thing was to put pressure on the quarterback (Rice's Bob Utter), and we didn't want to give him room because he's a good scrambler," Krueger said. "It was coach Coratti's idea to switch me around. I kind of loved it. I was able to blitz a lot."

The strategy was born out of an NFL video called "Crunch Time," which Coratti and Mach watched three weeks ago.

"It had Howie Long in it (the All-Pro nose guard of the LA Raiders)," said Mach. "It was Rick's idea all the way."

Utter was intercepted three times in the first half — one each by Mike Mathis, Steve Szerlag and Greg Paler.

IT WAS PALER'S pickoff with 2:34 left in the first half which led to CC's first touchdown. Hauncher directed an 81-yard drive in eight plays, capped by Krueger's 1-yard TD plunge with 13 seconds left. Pete Elezovic added the extra point to make it 7-0.

Utter, who was only five of 16 for 37 yards in the first half, began to connect in the third quarter, hitting nine of 12 passes.

Rice scored its only TD with 2:05 left in the period on a 3-yard run by Jon Burtraw. Bob Fekete's extra point knotted the count at 7-all.

"It wasn't anything our quarterback was doing wrong, but we wanted to come out and throw shorter in the second half to settle us down," said Fracassa, the Rice coach. "But remember, they're a good defense."

Rice held CC on its next two possessions, but the Shamrocks got a big play with 5:21 remaining in the game when Hauncher hooked up with Chris Johnston out of the backfield for a 46-yard pass, setting up what proved to be the game-winning TD, a 2-yard plunge by Krueger with 3:47 left.

"We knew he (Hauncher) was a good passer, but a couple of big passes hurt us," said Fracassa, the Rice coach. "That long pass to No. 22 (Johnston) was the key to the game."

HAUNCHER who is maturing into a solid quarterback, is using a variety of targets.

"We have a bunch of good receiver, but Chris (Johnston) is my favorite," he said. "Chris ran a post and he was the main receiver all the way (on the 46-yarder). He found a big seam and ran it through."

Trailing 14-7, Rice's chance for victory was all but nixed with 3:17 remaining.

Hemmed in at their own 13 and faced with a fourth-and-10 situation, the Warriors lined up in punt formation and tried a desperation move.

Tony Paesano took the snap and ran for daylight, but CC's defense smelled it out, stopping him well short of the first down marker.

"The fake punt was supposed to be an option play," Fracassa said. "The ball wasn't pitched, but he tried to run it instead. At that point you've got to go for it. You've got to take chances."

Taking no chances, CC made it a 14-point cushion on a 5-yard TD run by Krueger with 1:10 to play. The score was set up when Rice jumped offside, giving the Shamrocks a first down as Elezovic was lining up for a 29-yard field goal attempt.

"WHEN WE GET the ball down there we're going to give it to Krueger because he can get it in there," said Mach.

But it was Krueger and his defensive mates who made life more miserable for Utter, who finished 16 of 35 for 174 yards (48 of those yards came as a result of a "Hall Mary" pass on the final play of the game).

"Krueger is one of the best nose guards around and we wanted more pressure on the quarterback so Rick Coratti came up with the idea of moving him around to different positions so their blockers couldn't double-team him," Mach explained. "It was the first time we tried it and it brought out the best in our secondary."

And what did Coratti have to say about the new defensive strategy? "It wasn't that big a deal," the assistant coach said, smiling like a kid.

'Krueger is one of the best nose guards around, and we wanted more pressure on the quarterback, so Rick Coratti came up with the idea of moving him around to different positions so their blockers couldn't double-team him.'

Glenn, North will decide Lakes Division grid title

By Brad Emons and Dan O'Meara staff writers

ALL EYES WILL BE focused on one football game Friday, the Western Lakes Activities Association-Lakes Division showdown between two unbeaten, North Farmington (6-0) at Westland John Glenn (6-0).

The winner will more than likely face Farmington Harrison the following week. The unbeaten Hawks, rated No. 1 in Class B, should wrap up yet another WLA Western Division crown this week at Livonia Churchill.

There have been some epic North Glenn struggles over the years. Glenn won last year's battle at North.

Two years ago at Glenn, Scott Selzer, now a sophomore running back at Michigan State, ran for 203 yards in a 9-7 North victory.

When Tony Boles, now a starting tailback at Michigan, was a senior at Glenn, the Rockets prevailed. That was three years ago.

The homefield advantage hasn't meant much of late.

BUT THE MOST memorable game between the two occurred in 1978 when both teams went into the clash unbeaten. North won the game, 9-7, and went on to reach the state Class A championship game before losing to Traverse City.

It was unfortunate that Glenn, which finished 8-1, could not obtain enough playoff points to qualify for the then eight-team state tournament.

The two may have met again. Meanwhile, two other crowns are up for stake, including the Northwest Suburban League title, where Redford Union travels Friday to Woodhaven; and the Catholic League's C-Section Division, where Redford St. Agatha goes Sunday to Center Line St. Clement.

Changing subjects, your expert prognosticators Dan O'Meara and Brad Emons went 12-2 and 11-3, respectively. O'Meara increased his lead, sporting an overall mark of 70-18, while Emons is 64-24.

Here goes our picks for Week No. 7:

grid predictions

FRIDAY'S GAMES (all 7:30 p.m. unless noted)

Liv. Clarenceville at Hamtramck (4 p.m.); The Trojans (4-2, 3-2) earned a satisfying Metro Conference win last week over Bloomfield Hills Cranbrook. Tailback Andy Weighill should have another big day against the host Cosmos, who are bringing up the rear in the Metro at 0-5. Picks: The long ride is worth it for Clarenceville.

Redford Thurston at Taylor Kennedy (4 p.m.): Winless Thurston has lacked the big play all season. Kennedy (3-3, 2-2) was blanked last week against Taylor Truman. Don't expect many points to be scored in this one. Picks: The winning touch still eludes the Eagles.

Farm. Harrison at Liv. Churchill: The last time Churchill beat Harrison was when John Stoitsiadis, now a starting defensive back at Eastern Michigan, was the Chargers' quarterback. What's the possibility of deja vu? Churchill's secondary could be in for a long night. Picks: The Hawks will prey on another WLA foe.

Liv. Franklin at Ply. Canton: Franklin (4-2, 3-1) could clinch second place in the Western Division against the Chiefs (1-5, 1-3). The Patriots got their running game going last week against Northville in a 22-6 win. Franklin linebacker Greg Panzi is leading an improved Pats' defense. Picks: Don't bet the mortgage on Franklin, but put in a down payment.

Liv. Stevenson at Walled Lake Central: The Spartans (2-4, 1-3) are now aiming for a 5-4 season after snapping a four-game losing streak last week against Farmington. The return of two-way All-Observer back Rob Chanko, coming off a shoulder injury, should give Stevenson the edge over Central (1-5, 1-3). Picks: Stevenson makes it two straight against the Vikings.

N. Farmington at Westland Glenn: A lot is at stake in this one, including a berth in the WLA championship, a boost in the state playoff ratings and a spotless record. The team with the better passing game may have the edge. Picks: Take Glenn at home.

Redford Union at Woodhaven: The Panthers (4-2, 2-1) have a shot at the Northwest Suburban League crown, but must do it on the road. Woodhaven (3-3, 3-0) is coming off a disappointing 20-6 loss to Pinckney. Picks: RU gains a share of the NSL crown.

Trenton at Wayne Memorial: Trenton (3-3, 3-2) posted an impressive 20-0 win last week over Dearborn Fordag as backs Joe Surowiec and Jerry Meppes each went over 100 yards. Wayne (3-3, 2-3) is explosive, but inconsistent. The Zebras are hoping things don't come down to the kicking game, which has been a season-long sore spot. Picks: Trenton escapes with a win, according to Emons, but the Zebras pull a surprise, O'Meara says.

SATURDAY'S GAMES (all games at 1 p.m. unless noted)

Ply. Salem at Farmington: It's been a disappointing two weeks for the Rocks (4-2, 2-2), who lost a tough one in overtime to North before last week's 32-6 trouncing at the hands of John Glenn. Winless Farmington could make first-year coach Rick Mihizer a happy man with a victory. Picks: No upset here as Salem regroup.

Bishop Borgess vs. Warren DeLaSalle (1 p.m. at GC Junior High): The Pilots (4-2, 1-2) fly into town with a 10-6 win the previous week over Harper Woods Notre Dame. Meanwhile, the Spartans (1-5, 1-2) hope their offense can get untracked, having scored only 30 points all season. Picks: DeLaSalle keeps its Catholic League wild card chances alive.

Garden City at Dearborn (1:30 p.m.): Each team is trying to avoid the basement in the NSL. GC (1-5, 0-3) and Dearborn (1-5, 0-3) appear to be evenly matched. A coin toss may be in order. Picks: The host Pioneers have the edge.

Redford CC vs. Harper Woods ND (7:30 p.m. at GC Junior High): It was 1985 and Redford Catholic Central had come off a big win over Brother Rice in the Boys Bowl. The next week the Shamrocks were stunned by underdog Notre Dame, 7-6. The same scenario exists leading up to this one. CC is unbeaten and looking better every week. Notre Dame (1-2, 2-4) has a deceiving record. Picks: A little deja vu for the Irish? Not this time.

SUNDAY'S GAME

Redford St. Agatha vs. C.L. St. Clement (2:30 p.m. at Center Line Memorial): This is a big one for both teams. A trip to the Catholic League's C-D Division final is on the line, not to mention a trip to the Pontiac Silverdome as well. The scouting report says St. Clement (5-1, 3-0) likes to throw the ball. Agatha (4-2, 3-0) must be prepared for the aerial assault. Picks: It's a close shave, but Emons likes (Matt) Schick and the Aggies. O'Meara gives the edge to the Crusaders.

Sideline incident caused by misunderstanding

IN THE HEAT OF THE battle, especially on the football field, coaches and players often get away with things that normal citizens wouldn't think of doing anywhere else.

The nature of the game lends itself to such things as name-calling, swearing, blind-siding, clipping, finger-poking, holding, spearing, kicking and biting. If you interpret the rule book literally, these are merely infractions. If caught, the perpetrators usually get 15 yards, not jail terms or life sentences.

During Friday night's Redford Union-Garden City game, RU assistant coach Shawn McGowan was given 15 yards for unprofessional conduct, but the ramifications have lingered. The issue of sideline ethics came into question.

After reviewing the films at both schools, I came to the conclusion that McGowan deserved a 15-yard penalty and nothing more. It was simply a part of football. No further action should be taken.

Yes, McGowan did shove Garden City tackle Jim Marszalak, who came flying into the sidelines after the Panthers' Mike Bianchi had intercepted a pass. (The play occurring with less than five minutes to go in the game in which RU won, 28-14.)

IN MCGOWAN'S DEFENSE, I might have reacted the same way after having been blindsided. The coach never saw the unintentional hit coming.

This incident is in no way similar to the scene a few years back when Ohio State coach Woody Hayes ended his career unceremoniously after giving a stiff upper-cut to a Clemson linebacker.

At the time of the foul and immediately after the game, GC first-year coach Bob Eisiminger became upset because he thought McGowan had thrown a punch. Eisiminger confronted RU head coach Jim Gibbons about the incident after the game, but the two left the field amicably after cooler heads prevailed.

According to head referee Joe Kavulich, he interpreted McGowan's reaction as "negative act," nothing more.

"I only caught a quick glimpse, but my immediate reaction was that it was not the right thing," Kavulich said. "But there was no punch thrown."

Brad Emons

What Kavulich did not see and what the films later revealed is that Marszalak was also pushed from behind by an injured RU player standing on the sidelines in street clothes. (That player has since been disciplined, according to Gibbons.)

BUT IN THE non-uniformed player's defense, he did try to catch Marszalak, who came crashing into the bench. But in the heat of the battle, words were exchanged.

Gibbons was somewhat upset with Monday's Observer story that reported only Garden City's side of the story. We agree. That was not totally right.

The RU coach is correct in saying that "this thing has been blown way out of proportion."

Administrators at both schools told me, after reviewing and exchanging the game films, that the issue is dead.

When I talked with Eisiminger on Monday, his only wish was to have a meeting with Gibbons, preferably before the season ends, to clear up the matter once and for all. (Gibbons did, in fact, propose to meet last Sunday, but Eisiminger said he was unable to attend.)

"I thought we both handled it good after the game," Eisiminger said. "A couple of my players told me that he (Marszalak) got punched in the stomach, and my first reaction is to protect our players. But I'm not going to file any charges or call Lansing (the Michigan High School Athletic Association). It's not that serious as we thought."

AND FROM GIBBONS' point of view, his initial reaction was to protect a member of his coaching staff. He did not want his assistant's reputation tarnished.

"Shawn McGowan is not a bad guy," Gibbons said. "Shawn said that when he got hit (by Marszalak), it shocked him. Anybody might have reacted the same way."

I guess what disturbed me more than the pushing and shoving incident was the report Kavulich gave me about what transpired during the final minutes of the game.

"Nothing appeared to be brewing, but all the sudden the game got chippy, and I can't tell you why," said the referee. "I told the coaches that I came close to terminating the game with 1:40 to go."

But you have to remember that football is a contact sport, often violent in nature. These things happen, although we wish they wouldn't.

It was simply a misunderstanding in this case, something that occurred in the heat of the battle.

AND AFTER REVIEWING the films, McGowan was to be commended for his reaction to the penalty call.

He stood calmly, accepting the charge. He did not react as Woody did on that fateful night. We all remember the scene when Hayes was carried off kicking and screaming.

Let's also remember that McGowan was just given a penalty. He was not ejected from the game.

Fifteen yards is all this deserves.

Jenny Russell of Canton is dwarfed by 6-foot-3 Michelle Hall of Western. The Chiefs, however, had no trouble overcoming the Warriors, who posed no real obstacle.

Canton cagers roll to 9th straight win

"One thing I wanted to avoid was (Fenko) getting in foul trouble and having Western come with Hall," Neu said. "But Jennie was doing a wonderful job in the post, and I was comfortable with that lineup on the floor."

"ONCE WE HAVE a lineup that has some cohesion and is getting things accomplished, we'll stay with it. The key is that we were getting good play from Clark and Jones."

Actually, the Chiefs had just seven players Tuesday since junior Stacey Thompson is sidelined with a low back injury. Neu hopes to have her available by the time the league playoffs start later this month.

"With seven, I'm a little concerned about having foul problems," Neu said. "You just hope you don't have to end up playing with four."

"We don't want to dip down into the JV level, because those people need the developmental time."

Canton had such a commanding lead at halftime the fact it scored only four third-quarter points went virtually unnoticed.

Hall scored all of her points in the second half, including a 3-pointer to end the third period. She scored off an inbound pass with six minutes left to make the score 38-20, but Western was still too far behind for there to be much cause for alarm.

"WHEN (HALL) WAS in the game, (Clark and Jones) did a good job defending her," Neu said. "Seven of her nine points were scored from the perimeter, so we forced her to shoot the ball from the outside. So credit our kids who were guarding her."

April Blanton, who started in place of Hall, added seven points for the Warriors, 2-4 in the division and 4-7 overall.

"The last thing I want to do is judge another team," Neu said, "but, with Blanton on the floor, I thought they worked exceptionally well and forced us a little bit out of our game."

Grid playoff berth at stake

Besides the Lakes Division football title, a possible playoff berth will be up for grabs Friday night when North Farmington and Westland John Glenn collide on the latter's turf.

Both teams are 4-0 in the division and 6-0 overall. North Farmington is second and Glenn third in Class A Region III of the state computer-point ratings. The top four teams qualify.

Catholic Central, a 21-7 winner over Brother Rice in the annual Boys Bowl game, is first (100), followed by the Raiders (94.67), the Rockets (93.33) and Rice (88.83).

Harrison, rated No. 1 in the opinion polls, is atop Class B Region IV. The Hawks (97.33) are followed by another top-10 team, Riverview (84), and a pair of once-beaten teams, Clawson (73.67) and Monroe Jefferson (71.50).

Steeler varsity successful

The Plymouth Canton Steelers Junior Football League club had a homecoming Sunday for its three teams, and the varsity went home victorious.

The varsity defeated the Garden City Chargers 30-20 behind the running of Jason Krueger, who scored on touchdown runs of 5 and 29 yards. He also returned an interception 60 yards for a score.

Joe Herman kicked three extra points, accounting for the rest of the varsity's scoring.

The junior varsity fell to the Chargers 13-7, getting its only score on a 7-yard gallop by Andy Coburn.

Hairy escapades for cast's wigmaker

Professional wig designer Diane Weise places her creation on the head of actress Elizabeth J. Brooks of Birmingham, who plays Baroness Waldstatten in the Meadow Brook Theatre production of "Amadeus."

By Helen Zucker
special writer

DIANE WEISE NEVER planned to spend her life as a breathless wigmaker. She grew up wanting to be a hairdresser. As a citizen of Milwaukee, she owned two beauty salons, and the notion of flying to Rochester to create 28 wigs for the Citizens of Vienna in a Meadow Brook Theatre production of "Amadeus" would have sounded unbelievable.

But Weise dreamed of doing something different and more exciting than working in her salons. She got the chance when a friend who was singing in a production of "Rigoletto" introduced her to Charles Elsen.

Elsen Associates is one of the country's leading company's for wigs and makeup for productions. Interns train at a base in Cooperstown, N.Y., Tova Rockoff, Weise's assistant at Meadow Brook, is training at Cooperstown.

Elsen keeps his main supply studio on Riverside Drive on the Upper West Side of Manhattan. Elsen asked Weise to join his company as a designer. Weise gave up her salons and has been with Elsen Associates for the last nine years. She's been a major designer for the company for the last five years.

WEISE LOVES traveling. She enjoys meeting opera singers, actors and stage managers. Most of all she loves the challenge of creating new wigs from the ground up. For Meadow Brook's "Amadeus," she styled and created, strand by strand, 28 wigs for the major players in the cast.

She made all of them from human hair, which she got from shops in New York and from the main studio. Each hair is hand tied, and it takes 30 to 40 hours to make a single wig. Weise, a thorough professional, can tell how many hours are involved in making each wig, depending upon the complexity of the job. The wigs are meticulously made and beautiful, embellished with curls, ribbons, bows, powder, whatever the part calls for.

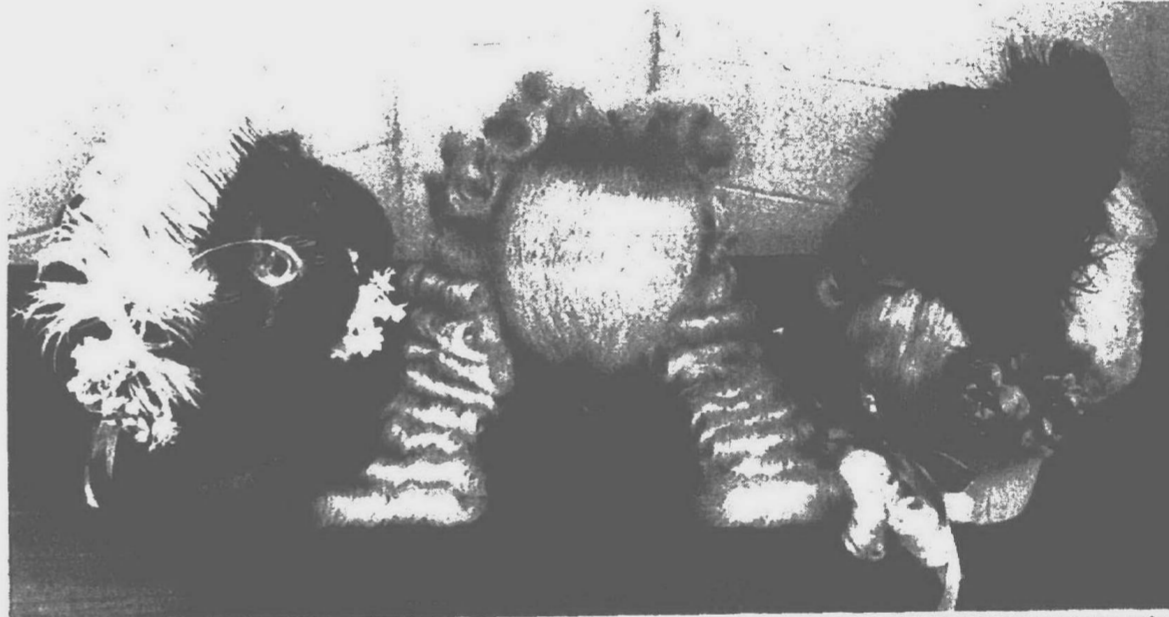

Meadow Brook actors do their own makeup, which is fortunate, since wigmakers called in to do a production are extraordinarily busy. Wig designers and handlers are expected to stay through the run of the show, be at every performance and take direction from the stage manager about whether to be at stage right or stage left to change a wig, comb one out, take one off, put another one on, throw a mob cap over someone's head or glue on a wig that's slipping off. Rockoff, the intern, dashed in, crying wildly, "God, I'm supposed to be stage left to do a mustache!" "Take the underpass," Weise said calmly. Rockoff ran off, calling, "I'm only allowed to do facial hair so far. The Baron will have to go on without it if I don't make stage left." The only time Weise stands still is when she's attending to the placement or removal of a wig. Geoffrey Beauchamp, who plays Joseph II, Emperor of Austria, came into the wig room to have his powdered wig removed, during the interview. Weise insisted on silence while she painstakingly freed Beauchamp from his heavy wig.

BEAUCHAMP BREATHED, "Thank you," and sighed with relief as he left. (His dark hair was starting, and he looked 35 years younger sans wig.)

It's clear Weise still loves everything about her work, and believes that Elsen's is "the best firm in the country." She wears a blue, longsleeved sweatshirt with a logo stamped "Elsen" on the back while she carefully unglues wigs from sweating actors, puts them on stands marked with each actor's name and dashes out of the wig room to attend to an actress in the wings.

A petite, dark-haired, rosy-faced woman who wears her own hair in careless curls, Weise is a meticulous worker. She demanded silence in the wig room during every change, while a dress rehearsal of "Amadeus" boomed into the room through a speaker attached to the wall.

Lizabeth J. Brooks of Birmingham, who plays Baroness Waldstatten, hurried in for a quick fix. Weise placed her before one of the six, lit mirrors, removed a complicated wig, and fixing it firmly in place on Lizabeth's pretty head, made a few quick, deft motions, a few licks with a comb and sent the actress out looking like a magnificent patron of the arts, circa 18th century.

THE FINALE of Mozart's "Don Giovanni" was playing when Weise came back with Rober B. Jordan, a Citizen of Vienna. He sat down to have his wig removed, and Weise said breathlessly, "We must have quiet around here." That concluded the interview in the wig room in the basement of Wilson Hall.

Eric Tavares delivers stand-out performance

Performances of "Amadeus" at Meadow Brook Theatre continue through Sunday, Oct. 30, on the Oakland University campus in Rochester Hills. For ticket information call the box office at 377-3300.

Meadow Brook's splendid production of Peter Shaffer's "Amadeus" percolates with wit and seethes with intellectual passion.

The play offers something for everyone — the glittering grandeur of Joseph II's resplendent Vienna court in the late 1700s, the fawning silliness of courtly kowtowing, tantalizing décolletage and boisterous hanky-panky in a flurry of petticoats, plus Mozart's soaring, imitable music and the biting intelligence of Antonio Salleri's moral dilemma.

Eric Tavares brings mastery to the role of Salleri. Much of his power in the part comes from the bass voice that he keeps intense and never lets languish in its own resonance.

The depth of Salleri's frustration at his own mediocre music comes through in his voice. His fury at a God who would bestow genius on Mozart, a ludicrous, infantile, joke of a man given to scatological conversations, smolders in Tavares' voice.

SALERI'S INTELLIGENCE comes through in Tavares' intense delivery style, barbed with bitter humor and aflame with his passionate dedication to music. As a high-ranking court lackey to Joseph II, Salleri plays politics with outward charm, but he treats the audience to what he's really thinking in satiric asides that bristle with wit.

Even when the decrepit, broken old musician rises haltingly from his wheelchair and minces across the floor, he speaks rapidly, like a much younger man, in a voice charged with passion. One expects a rickety old voice to match the rickety old body.

The incongruity unsettles. Is this bad acting? No. Director Charles Nolte wisely chooses to drive home the power of Salleri's obsession with Mozart's genius, an obsession that destroys the man's pleasure at his own worldly success, poisons his moral principles and haunts him to his dying day.

Young Simon Brooking, who plays opposite Tavares, balances superbly the ambivalence of Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart. He acts the braying clown, the egocentric schlemiel, the bigoted, womanizing wastrel. Despite the arsenal of derogatory adjectives that apply to him, Brooking's Mozart comes across as a playful, lovable misfit passionately dedicated to music. He wins hearts and when he dies young, we grieve at the injustices of history as much as Salleri rails at the injustices of heaven.

Liz Zweifler shines as Mozart's pretty wife, and she plays Constance as a woman only silly on the surface, unlike the lower-class dizz-brain portrayed by Elizabeth Berridge in the movie version of Peter Shaffer's play. Geoffrey Beauchamp as Joseph II brings out with understated skill the comedy of the Austrian emperor who hides his limited intellect behind an equally limited vocabulary.

PAUL HOPPER and Thomas Mahard, as the effete, gossipy Venticelli, synchronize their patter to amplify every innuendo. When words flounder, they bring home their jokes with deftly placed fans. The two especially deserved the standing ovation the cast earned opening night.

Meadow Brook Theatre's attractive "Amadeus" spares no expense to make the costumes elegant and to complete the period costumes with wigs that Charles Elson Associated pouffed, powdered, rolled and curled in the style of the day.

The sound system heightens the play's drama so that seats seem to tremble when thunder rolls, and strains of the "Requiem" pulse like heartbeats over the speakers.

If only the shadow ghost of Leopold Mozart, Wolfgang's father, projected on the backdrop screen, could be bigger, more imposing, more frighteningly ominous. It ought to tower over the action and dramatize dead Leopold's hold over his son. The small matter of a shadow can't darken an otherwise bright and balanced production.

Musical 'Sweet Charity' hums along nicely

By Barbara Michals
special writer

Full of bounce and brass, "Sweet Charity" at the Birmingham Theatre is a joyous musical that guarantees the audience will be humming as it exits.

With a book by Neil Simon, music by Cy Coleman and lyrics by Dorothy Fields, "Sweet Charity" is a paean to optimism presented as a modern fable. Charity Hope Valentine (Georgia Engel) is a dance-hall hostess who refuses to be daunted by her grimy surroundings or poor track record with boyfriends. For her, hope springs eternal for finding true love and a better life.

As Charity, Engel is just as bubbly, just as ingenuous, and even more attractive than when she gained fame as the bubble-headed Georgette on "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" more than a decade ago. Her distinctive little-girl voice is ideally suited to Charity's naivete and tenderness, though Engel's Charity lacks the thin veneer of toughness that have marked her predecessors in the role.

While Engel has a pleasant singing voice and dancing proficiency, this production is missing the dazzling show-stopping choreography performed by other "Charity" stars. No matter, for Engel is a strong stage presence. Radiating purity of heart, she pulls it off with sheer pluck and adorability.

PATRICK HAMILTON does a fine job as Oscar Lindquist, the Nice

Young Man on whom rides all Charity's hopes and dreams. While not particularly strong vocally, Hamilton has an expressive face and an engaging comic flair, best exemplified when claustrophobia plagues him in a stuck elevator.

Engel receives excellent back-up from Sharon Lawrence and Amelia Marshall, playing dance-hall hostesses Helene and Nickie, respectively. Their vocal skills excel in "There's Gotta Be Something Better Than This" and "Baby Dream Your Dream."

Other memorable numbers are the dance-hall hostesses' rendition of "Big Spender" and Charity's very upbeat "If My Friends Could See Me Now," "I'm the Bravest Individual" and "I'm a Brass Band." Two clever satiric numbers are "Rhythm of Life," poking fun at the flower children of the '60s, and "Rich Man's Frug," parodying popular '80s dance steps.

Originally conceived, staged and choreographed by Bob Fosse, this production's more subdued choreography by Susan Stroman still reflects Fosse's trademark of angular jazz dancing.

At Friday night's preview performance, timing was creaky on the signboards, and a large scenery flat hung perilously close to the dancers' heads for a long time before it finally lifted out of sight.

Overall, director Jack Allman's "Sweet Charity" is a joyous, tuneful show worth seeing just for the fun of it.

Performances of the Birmingham Theatre production of "Sweet Charity" continue through Sunday, Oct. 16. For ticket information, call the box office at 664-3533.

Musician keeps his life free of distractions

By Corinne Abatt
staff writer

IT'S HARD TO DECIDE whether Thomas M. Kuras is out of step with the rest of the world or whether the rest of the world is out of step with him.

Somehow it's more inspiring to believe that his way is more natural — certainly it's more individual.

Kuras, a composer of serious music, performer on the organ and harpsichord, piano and voice teacher and choral director, is artistic director of Chamberworks, a chamber music series that debuted last year and consistently drew sellout crowds. All but one of the concerts were held at Belian Art Center of Troy.

"The music of the 18th century is a big part of what we're doing," Kuras said.

AS IMPORTANT to many of the concertgoers are the comments Kuras makes about the composers and their music.

He is opinionated and well-informed on a wide range of subjects. He is adamant about the importance of keeping classical music in the proper perspective — to perform it essentially as the composer wished to have it done.

"People have a responsibility to the composer," he said. To illustrate his point, he voiced strong objections to singing "The Star-Spangled Banner" in the style of a rock or contemporary folk song.

KURAS BEMOANS the news that there is a McDonald's on the Champs Elysees. He complains about piped-in music and pop music, which he never listened to even as a youngster, and Americans who think that what's good for them must be good for the whole world.

He doesn't drive and doesn't own a radio. He recently moved to Birmingham and likes living where he can walk to shop and do errands. When he wants to hear music, he turns to his collection of more than 10,000 recordings.

Since there are no recordings of Vivaldi, Handel, Bach or Mozart conducting their own works, clues about how they intended their music is to be performed must be gathered from other sources. Consequently Kuras in his quest for musical veracity has become a student of culture, customs and languages of the 18th century.

"In the 18th century there were smaller groups of musicians than now and the rooms they played in were smaller," he said.

THE KING or a nobleman would hire the musicians — anywhere from a few to 20 or 30, but not nearly as many as the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, for instance, Kuras said.

"They didn't rehearse in general as we do today," Kuras said. They might even have sight-read for a performance, he said.

But musicians of that era had a sense of how the music was to be played without being told, he said. While very little of Bach's music was published during his lifetime, it was circulated by students who had learned from the composer.

Since actual directions were minimal in the scores of some of the masters, Kuras has become something of a linguist to understand the true meaning of the terms that were used, he said. Eighteenth century musicians, once they had read through the score, probably used it as an "improvisation chart," he said.

MUSIC, LIKE other art forms, needs to be stripped of the veneers that have gradually covered and changed it as it comes down through time, Kuras said.

He used Rembrandt's painting, "The Nightwatch," as an example. It is actually a painting of a figure in the street during the day, but the as layers of varnish built up and darkened it, it was assumed to be a nighttime scene.

Kuras compared the recordings of works by Schumann and Bach orchestrated by Mahler to serving broccoli always with hollandaise sauce.

"It's too thick for more than once a year."

In defense of Schumann, who is often criticized for not being able to orchestrate, Kuras said the composer was writing for instruments that were far different from modern day ones and for a much smaller orchestra. Once these things are taken into consideration, the criticism warrants reconsideration.

KURAS' ENTHUSIASM for his work and interest in 18th century music is contagious.

"We have very few ways of making culture come to life other than through music. . . . Why are we still talking about Vivaldi 300 years later? Why are we still talking about Bach 300 years later? What really makes music exciting to me is that these people are not dead — they are alive."

"All art — music, fine art, literature — in some way reflects life experience. It is a microcosm of life experience."

And that helps explain Kuras' objection to pop music, which he said doesn't have the incredible high points and low points of emotion found in great classical music.

"I will do a lot of 18th century Italian music," he said. "The Italians were not afraid to be extremely quixotic. In their music around 1740-1760, there is a wild juxtaposition of moods. In French and German music (of that time), that did not exist."

He will be talking more about such matters in his narration during each of the Chamberworks concerts. The season starts at 8 p.m. Friday, Oct. 21, at Belian Art Center, 5980 Rochester Road, corner of Square Lake, Troy.

Successful exec likes the mix of business, art and 'Our Town'

By Corinne Abatt
staff writer

C. Robert Carson, president and CEO of Carson Business Interiors of Southfield always tops off his well-dressed look with a ready smile. Life appears to agree with him.

The company he founded in 1982 as Computer Products recently moved into a new headquarters complex at 29355 Northwestern (just north of 12 Mile), Southfield. The 20,000-square-foot facility is not only a working office housing a 70-plus member staff with state-of-the-art furnishings and equipment, but it serves as a functioning showcase for clients who come for meetings and seminars. The neutral grays of the walls, carpeting and some accessories form a pleasing background for the introduction of a constantly changing group of color accents such as teal, red, mauve, wine and deep green. Everything is from lines which the firm represents.

IN HIS PANELED OFFICE with the rich oriental rug, Carson is as happy to talk about the "Our Town" art exhibition, Oct. 19-23 at the Community House of Birmingham, which Carson Business Interiors sponsors, as he is about the wonders of the "access flooring," the only application in the state. All heating and cooling elements are housed in a 12-inch space below the floor along with electronic and communication cables. The use of attractive Panel Mate carpet tile allows immediate access at any time and at any location.

Carson has been sponsor for "Our Town" for all three years of its history. It is a fund-raiser for The Community House and he is strongly committed keeping it an integral part of the community.

"I just think the Community House is a great place to do something like this," he said. "We made $35,000 last year and the purpose initially was for a capital budget, which they did not have."

JERRY ZOLYNSKY/staff photographer

C. Robert Carson paused for a moment in the employee lunchroom of the new building. It is of color in the painting behind him. A view of the woods is a bonus. done in shades of gray with brilliant splashes

'I just think the Community House is a great place to do something like this.'

C. Robert Carson

He said he thinks there will be a larger sum for The Community House this year. He said at the time this year when they had sold 170 tickets ($125, $175) for the Wednesday evening preview, they had only sold 10 last year. Bev and Bill Hognlund, capital campaign chairmen, will be honored at the preview and this is certainly to draw a crowd of people who admire them.

In the three years of sponsorship, Carson has been in on every aspect of the planning. He attends committee meetings, is always ready to help and will host one tomorrow in so the committee members can see his new building.

HE LIKES TO GET to know the artists and occasionally buys a painting — from past exhibits he now has works by Karen Carter of Birmingham and David McCall Johnston of Franklin.

Carson started professional life as a music teacher in the Southfield school system. When he returned home from service after the Korean War, he decided to go into business, initially supplying data processing accessories to small businesses — a smart move at an auspicious time.

Carson sees that the people who set up the show at The Community House have the proper equipment for exhibiting. He takes a personal interest in every aspect of the planning. He is the kind of busy business executive who always has time to listen and help.

One Carson employee said unsolicited, "This is a wonderful environment."

"Bourbon Street," a 5-by-6-foot painting by Audrey DiMarco of Livonia, is one of the works of art selected for the 'Our Town' exhibit.

'Our Town' loaded with special events

The third "Our Town" statewide art exhibit and sale at The Community House, 380 S. Bates, Birmingham, opens with a 6:30 p.m. reception Wednesday, Oct. 19.

During the four days the exhibit is open to the public, a special presentation and lunch, "The Juror's Perspective," with Ray Frost Fleming, juror, will take place at noon Thursday, Oct. 20, and a luncheon and talk, "Purchasing Art for the Corporate World" with Gertrude Kasle, an authority on contemporary art, will be held at noon Friday, Oct. 21.

An evening of "Art and Music" with Norma Jean Bell and the All-stars will start at 8:30 p.m. Friday, Oct. 21.

The final day of the exhibit, Sunday, Oct. 23, will begin with an 11 a.m. continental breakfast and gallery tour. It will culminate with a 3-5 p.m. artists' tea and awards ceremony.

THE EXHIBIT is open to the public free of charge from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Thursday-Saturday and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday. For tickets to the special events, call The Community House, 644-5832.

All of the art is two-dimensional. There will be 242 works in the show by 117 artists from throughout Michigan. The theme is open to varied interpretations of hometown and its meaning to artists.

Fleming is director of the Robert L. Kidd Gallery of Birmingham.

Photograph of a Chicago, Ill. scene was taken by David Griffith of Pontiac in 1988. He won a Merit Award in the 1988 "Our Town" exhibit.

Series starts Oct. 21

Chamberworks opens its second season at 8 p.m. Friday, Oct. 21, at the Belian Art Center with "Music of the Italian Baroque."

The musicians are Thomas M. Kuras, artistic director and harpsichord; Maria Smith and Gretchen Woods, violins; Paul Willington, violin; with Mark Dubois, oboe and Larua Larson, flute.

For the first concert they will perform works by Corelli, Geminiani, Marcello, Frescobaldi and Handel.

The programs will continue at 8 p.m. Friday, Nov. 4, "Music for Court and King," Varner Hall, Oakland University, 8 p.m. Friday, Dec. 2, "Program Music of the Baroque," Belian Art Center; 8 p.m. Friday, Jan. 13, "The Viennese Connection," Belian Art Center; 8 p.m. Friday, Feb. 10, "Music of Antonio Vivaldi," Belian Art Center; 8 p.m. Friday, March 10, "Music of Johann Sebastian Bach," Belian Art Center; and 8 p.m. Friday, April 14, "A Nineteenth Century Program," Belian Art Center.

Tickets are $6 and $ for seniors and students. Because of the limited space, reservations are necessary, call 828-1001 or 546-6187.

Check used equipment carefully

Each year, millions of new cameras, lenses and photo accessories are sold. An almost equal number of used items is either exchanged, sold privately, buried in a drawer or discarded.

Much of this old equipment is obsolete or damaged beyond repair. But some of it can be found hardly used and in excellent condition. Substantial savings can be made and a worthy piece of equipment added to your photo gear if you can distinguish between bargains and junk.

The best sources for locating used equipment are photo stores, classified ads and local photo flea markets.

With basic items such as tripods, flash units and darkroom accessories (trays, measuring cups and tongs) very little can go wrong, so buying them is a pretty safe bet. But with cameras and lenses, you need to be more cautious and check them closely. Here's how.

First, carefully inspect the exterior of that used camera you're interested in. A lot can be learned from its general condition. Some wear and tear is normal, such as worn corners and marks from neckstrap fittings. Just be sure the wear isn't excessive.

Be wary of dents, large scratches and especially distortion of the camera body. These indicate a dropped or abused camera and serious damage could be concealed inside.

Look through the viewfinder to ensure that focusing devices, readouts and so on are all clearly visible.

Be sure to check the battery compartment for any damage from old, corroded batteries. Wind the advance lever and snap the shutter at all speeds. It should operate smoothly down the scale.

Open the camera back and check for cleanliness. Then set the shutter at "B" and watch through the opened camera back as the shutter closes. There should be no sluggishness.

At different ASA settings, check the meter out by using a spare or friend's camera as a reference. Readings should be within one-half stop.

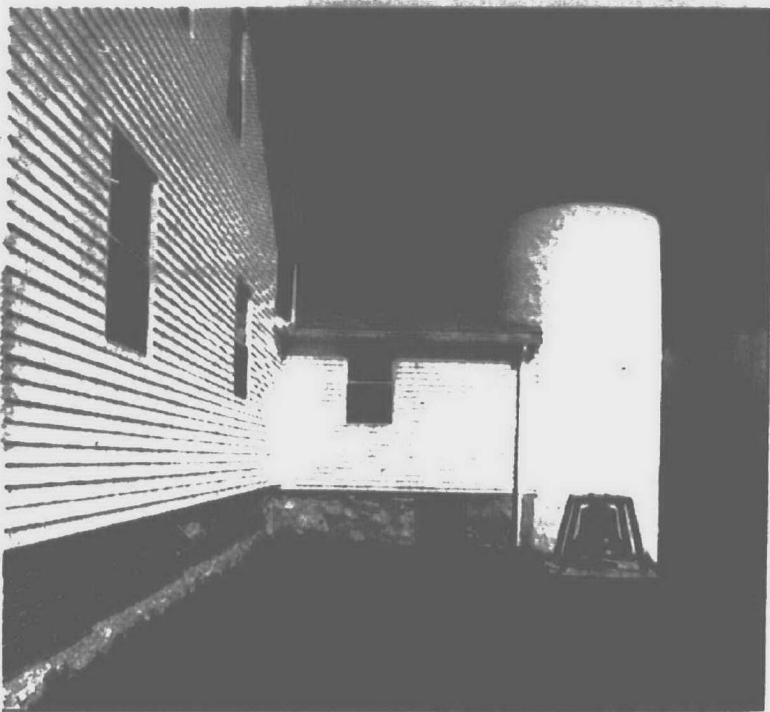

Finally, focus at infinity and look through the viewfinder. Distant objects should be clearly in focus. If not, the lens mount, mirror or focusing screen may be out of alignment.

Good lenses can be terrific bargains. You may be able to pick up a top quality used lens at the same price (or lower) as a new, but inferior model. Even at the same price, you're better off with the used lens. Everything should operate smoothly on the lens. It should focus easily and the glass should be free from scratches. Buying from a distant seller when you can't check out the equipment can be risky indeed.

Two principals from the Eastman School of Music will open the 1988-89 season of the Fair Lane Music Guild at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 30. George Taylor, violinist and chairman of the string department at the Eastman School, will be accompanied on the piano by Eastman director Robert Freeman. The concert will be held in the Pool Room at the Henry Ford Estate-Fair Lane, located on the campus of the University of Michigan-Dearborn.

Tickets may be purchased at the door, $10 general admission, $8 for senior citizens and $6 for students with identification.

Season ticket holders will be guests of UM-D chancellor Dr. Blenda J. Wilson and her husband, Dr. Louis Fair Jr., at a post-concert reception.

The University of Michigan-Dearborn is on Evergreen Road, opposite the Fairlane Town Center.

Ghoulish ideas for Halloween

OH, I LOVE this weather — sunny and cool. I set out on the front porch with a steaming hot coffee and a fresh doughnut in my hand and listen to the acorns fall and hit the road. Often with a loud "crack" they hit a neighbor's roof, roll down the shingles, rattle across their metal awnings, then finally hit the driveway and roll down towards the sidewalk. There they sit until they pop as kids run over them with their shoes or a carefully aimed bicycle tire. Sounds like an exciting life doesn't it? Sittin' on the porch listening to acorns!

Of course, there is so much I love about this time of year. I love the food, the colorful trees, the food, the stormy dark clouds, the food, the cool weather, Halloween and probably the food.

Halloween brings out the artist in every Mom and Dad as the little face in the family asks the very important question, "What am I going to be this Halloween?" My boys have "had it made" as their father stands poised ready to take a creative leap into whatever character they decide to be. It doesn't matter how difficult it is or how gory, whatever is required they know Dad kind of flips his lid at Halloween time.

I REMEMBER ONE terrible Halloween years ago. I was so depressed. The boys were little and they both wanted a Snoopy outfit they saw at K mart. Well, that was years ago and since then my wife and I have made many outfits for the boys. So here are a few tips:

If you have to paint on clothing for a costume, there are several options. Deka makes a wonderful fabric paint that stains the material and is never stiff. Deka is best painted on light colored materials.

You can buy Perm-Air which is prethinned for air brushing or sprinkling colors out of a squirt gun. If you need to paint white bones (for example) on a black outfit, just use white acrylic tube paint as it is the most opaque. Palmer paint makes a neat glow-in-the-dark paint. It is slightly greenish and really works. I love to see that display when we turn off the lights at night.

If you want to make teeth or bones, use Friendly plastic. It is a non-toxic with a low melting temperature. It can be brought to a moldable state simply by immersing it in hot water. I made a set of teeth that even impressed my dentist.

Now if you really get into the spirit and want to make your own masks, you need pure latex. For masks, I think it's best to use the white latex which dries to a yellowish color. You can color liquid latex with acrylic paint. When you paint it out and it dries the color will darken considerably. Now let's see what kind of costume you can create.

BUT WHEN IT comes to decorating your pumpkin you can leave that up to us. We're going to be having a lot of fun air-brushing pumpkins at the Art Store and More in Livonia. We'll be painting anything you want, ugly, gross, funny and cute faces on little pumpkins, medium and big pumpkins.

So come on over Oct. 15, 22, and 29.
