Man to face trial on murder charge

Patrick Dennis, a 22-year-old Plymouth Township man, was ordered to stand trial on a first-degree murder charge after preliminary examination Monday in 35th District Court.

Dennis is accused of stabbing Kevin Kinney in a garage on Corinne Street Oct. 4, then dragging the body behind a laundry on Ann Arbor Road.

Kinney also lived in the township. During Monday's hearing, Plymouth Township police investigator Erik Mayernik read a statement he testified was written by Dennis Oct. 5 after his arrest in which Dennis admitted stabbing Kinney.

The statement indicated that Kinney had grabbed at Dennis' crotch three times during the early-morning hours of Oct. 4 after the two arrived at the house on Corinne where Dennis lived.

The two had gone out to the garage to look at a bicycle, according to the statement read by Mayernik.

Dennis wrote that he met Kinney at the Plymouthrock Saloon at about 1:30 a.m. Oct. 4, Mayernik said.

Dennis asked his brother to take him to a mental hospital after the stabbing, according to the statement read by Mayernik.

Dennis was arrested at home. ANOTHER WITNESS, Deborah Youmans, a friend of Dennis, testified that Dennis came into the Dun-kin' Donuts shop on Ann Arbor Road at about 3 a.m. Oct. 4 and said, "I have a faggot in my car, and I'm going to kill him."

Youmans testified that she looked out the window and clearly saw another man in the vehicle who later was identified as Kinney.

Youmans testified that Dennis was drunk and loud in the doughnut shop. "I've never really seen him that drunk," she said.

Youmans also testified on cross examination that she didn't take Dennis' threat to kill seriously.

DENNIS' LAWYER, Anthony E. Walton, said in an interview after the hearing he believes that his client's drunken state will be pivotal at trial.

Grant to pay for 90% of changes at crossing

There's good news and bad news as far as financing flashing signals, gongs and a fancier railroad crossing sign at Holbrook Street in Plymouth is concerned.

The good news is a federal grant will pay for 90 percent of the project estimated to cost nearly $154,000.

The bad news is city coffers will be tapped for some $15,400 to make up the difference.

The city commission approved the local expenditure Monday.

"This is one of those situations where we have little choice," city manager Henry Graper told commissioners during their premeeting study session.

"BETTER TO get off with 10 percent of the cost than 50 percent since it was dictated by the state," Graper said.

The city would have had to foot half the tab had the federal grant not come through.

Work will begin next spring or perhaps even during the upcoming winter months, said Ken West, city engineer.

"It depends on how fast we get our money up there and it getting on the railroad's schedule. They need at least 90 days to schedule."

West estimates it will take six weeks to finish the project once it begins. Sensitive detection equipment that coordinates with other crossings in the area is the major reason for the high cost of the job, he added.

Traffic shouldn't be affected as work goes on, West said.

Now on Holbrook, several signs warn of the railroad crossing including a stop sign right at the tracks.

Pollack mission: to defeat Pursell

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Lana Pollack is a woman on a mission in her 2nd District U.S. House race against incumbent Carl Pursell.

The district, including northern Livonia, Plymouth and Plymouth Township, has been described as one of only two in Michigan — and a handful nationwide — where a challenger has more than an outside chance of unseating the incumbent.

Pollack, a state senator since 1982, relishes that prospect. There's no doubt in her mind as to who is best for the job.

"I ARGUE by disposition I have more energy. I'm intelligent, pragmatic, a problem-solver. I'm outspoken. I stand up for what I believe in. In addition, I know how to work within a system," the Ann Arbor resident said.

Pursell is running on his experience

U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell believes that six good terms deserve another.

He cites his leadership positions — member of the appropriations committee, one of four Republican deputy whips, a member of a bi-partisan group of lawmakers promoting the interests of northern states — as reasons to return him to the House of Representatives.

Pursell said he stays in touch with constituents by returning to the Second District every weekend.

Suspension date set for Plymouthrock

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

The liquor license of the Plymouthrock Saloon will be suspended unless it is transferred by Jan. 1, according to an order signed by Michigan Liquor Control Commissioner Alex Laggis.

The Plymouth Township bar also was hit with fines totaling $3,400 for serving alcohol to minors and purchasing liquor from other than a state store, said Verna Foote, LCC supervisor of hearings and appeals.

"If the suspension is not waived, the license will be revoked on May 1, 1989," said Foote. A letter detailing the above was mailed Oct. 13 to Peter Eleferio and Donald Vargo, who own the saloon, Foote said.

Norman Farhat, attorney for Var-Ken Inc., holder of the Rock's liquor license, said he thinks he will appeal the ruling.

"I JUST got it today, and I haven't read it entirely. But I'm sure from what I've read so far we'll be filing an appeal," Farhat said Monday. Farhat serves on Var-Ken's board of directors.

An appeal would be heard by a three-member LCC administrative board. The fines are due Nov. 14.

Eleferio is trying to sell his liquor license, valued at $75,000 to $100,000, Farhat said. So far, the bar has received a few inquiries, but no serious offers. The building is leased, not owned, by Eleferio.

Individual counts and fines were as follows:

- Alcohol sale to minor, $300.
- Purchasing liquor from other than a state-authorized store from January 1987 through October 1987, $200.
- Two counts of alcohol sales to minors, $1,300.
- Alcohol sale to a minor, $1,000.
- One count each on selling to a minor and allowing a person under age 21 to consume, $600.

The violations were filed by Plymouth Township in February. Local government officials have tried to revoke the saloon's liquor license in the aftermath of a drunk driving fatality outside the Plymouthrock.

A Canton woman was killed in a head-on crash by a then-underage Westland woman who'd been drinking at the bar in December 1986.

The woman's widower, Bruce Aumann, has filed a civil suit against the bar owners and the driver, who was sentenced to five-to-15 years for manslaughter.

Attorney John Stewart has handled the Plymouthrock case for Plymouth Township.

"I am glad the LCC found violations in regard to the serving of minors. Hopefully this will result in the closer regulating of certain liquor establishments," said Stewart.

Board lets students ride bus again

By M.S. Olson
staff writer

Boys and girls who live near Five Mile and Northville roads are back on the school bus, but their parents had to hire an attorney to make it happen.

At last week's Plymouth-Canton school board meeting, irate parents asked trustees why their children were suddenly told they could no longer ride the bus.

Board members said they weren't prepared to respond to their questions, and suggested the six parents take their concerns to the next safety committee meeting Oct. 26.

Bus service for the youngsters was discontinued Oct. 5. A letter postmarked Sept. 30 informed parents of the change.

IT READ, in part, "a recent check of student eligibility for transportation in your area indicates your address is within one mile of Farrand Elementary School, and, consequently, your child is not eligible for bus transportation to and from Farrand School."

"The Board of Education policy clearly states that students in grades K-3 must live one mile or more from their school of attendance to be eligible for transportation, and students in grades three through five must live one and a half miles or more from their school. Your residence does not meet those requirements."

Superintendent John Hoben sub-

"It's 5,299 feet to the door my son goes in. Several parents, myself included, are upset about the elimination of the stop. We feel it is unsafe to walk to Farrand, and we're afraid of abduction and injury."

—William Brown

sequently ordered that the children be bused, at least temporarily.

Annette Patyna, whose 11-year-old son, Chris, was among the students affected, told trustees that she and another parent went to transportation director Dale Goby and asked why the change was being made, as phone calls to administrators hadn't been returned.

"HE BLEW us off and told us it was none of our business," said Patyna.

Patyna later told Goby that "if there was a safety committee ruling that my son is ineligible, fine. But show me. That was none of my business, either," she said.

The parents asked "to see our computer to do an eligibility check. I told them that was not possible," said Goby in an interview after the meeting. (Goby wasn't present at the board meeting.)

"Once Mrs. Patyna demanded materials under the Freedom of Information Act we were no longer

at a point where Mrs. Patyna or I could discuss the matter. It's incredible that an attorney has to be involved," said Goby.

Goby said Patyna's child was among 40 or 50 children for whom busing was being discontinued.

ATTORNEY DAN Penning, representing the parents, requested documentation outlining the reasons bus service was being discontinued under the Freedom of Information Act. They were given to Annette Patyna at the school board meeting.

"I don't think they complied with my request," said Penning. "The only materials provided to us that were relevant included an eligibility report for Farrand. The Hammill Lane we're concerned with is west of Bradner. If you look at the report, the numbers they have are for Hammill Lane east of Bradner."

"The only other relevant piece of paper... was a copy of the rule," he said. "It does not provide me with any documentation as to what evidence they have that this rule applies. It's like giving me the conclusion without the reason for it." Other materials provided concerned field trips and bus suspensions involving student conduct and discipline.

Penning also requested "documents regarding the Transportation and Safety Department of the Plymouth-Canton Schools."

The response Penning received, a letter from Richard Egli, administrative assistant for community relations, said in part, "There is no Transportation and Safety Board."

"Technically, they were correct," said Penning. "But they certainly knew what information I was requesting."

William Brown, whose 6-year-old was told by the bus driver he could no longer ride, said he measured the route with a wheel.

"It's 5,299 feet to the door my son goes in," said Brown. "Several parents, myself included, are upset about the elimination of the stop. We feel it is unsafe to walk to Farrand and we're afraid of abduction and injury."

"I can't see where picking up six or seven kids would cost any more," he said. "Talking to Dale Goby I may as well have been talking to this wall. He irritated me."

PLYMOUTH-CANTON Community Schools comprise the fourth largest district in Michigan based upon the numbers of students transported, said Goby.

The prosecution must prove premeditated intent to get a first-degree murder conviction.

Other evidence, about which Walton declined to elaborate, also will be presented, he said.

"At this particular hearing (preliminary exam), evidence is one-sided," Walton said. "There is evidence in his behalf we intend to show at trial."

Mayernik is confident about the prosecution's case. "There's other witnesses, other statements," he said. "It's all there."

JUDGE JAMES GARBER determined that a crime had been committed and probable cause that Dennis was responsible in ordering Dennis to trial.

Dennis was returned to the Wayne County Jail after the hearing. He's being held without bond.

"Clearly, he (Dennis) is concerned, upset," Walton said. "He's doing about as well as could be expected."

Dennis will be formally charged with first-degree murder in Detroit Recorder's Court Monday, Oct. 31.

'I've been dressing different from other kids for the last three years, and now I'm used to it.'

—Jamie Levitte

Folded and rolled cuffs are the trend, as John Ormsby demonstrates with his pants and Diora athletic shoes.

School clothes

Students make fashion statements

By Peggy Aulino
staff writer

Baggie is in. So is rolling up the cuffs on pants. Three-quarter high-top sneakers are passe, and only "squids" can get away with spiking their hair until it stands straight up.

Welcome to the world of high-fashion high school, where clothes seem to be as important as passing grades — at least as far as some students are concerned.

"It's a fashion war," junior Nichole Vogel said in describing the start of the school year. Freshmen especially like to put on their best when they make their first appearance at Salem and Canton high schools, she said.

"They all try to start new fashion trends," Vogel said. "They look through all the new magazines and try to wear what's in them."

Freshman Jim Hanna was sporting a red coat with black leather sleeves as he strutted along the hall of Salem one day last week. It had the words "Contagious Fashion" printed across the back.

"YOU EITHER have a fashion coat or a jeans jacket," Hanna said, with all the authority of a young Armani. The $160 coat was actually his second choice.

"I was going to get a Troop jacket, but those were $300," he said.

The rest of Hanna's ensemble included slacks that had the mandatory cuff roll-up and a pair of $70 sneakers that feature a patch of snake skin.

Leather jackets are a perennial favorite among young people, several students said. But it is necessary to have the correct-type leather jacket.

Hanna said a squid — whom he defined as "a dude who shaves part of his head" — might wear "those cheap, tight leather jackets that say things like 'Teen idol.'"

Levitte's head isn't shaved — quite the opposite, in fact. Her blonde hair sticks up about six inches on top and frames her heavily made-up face.

Levitte favors black, and the short black skirt she wore one day recently matched her pointy boots. The $90 boots, imported from England, had rows of silver skulls around the eyelets.

Yes, Levitte said, she does get odd looks from her fellow students.

"I'VE BEEN dressing different from other kids for the last three years, and now I'm used to it," she said.

Most students prefer to blend in with the crowd. That usually means wearing blue jeans, baggie sweaters and low- or high-top sneakers. In some cases, it is convenience, rather than fashion sense, that determines what a student will wear.

"I don't think about it much, that's why I generally just wear a sweater and jeans," said Bill Jacobsen, a junior.

The opposite is true of junior Katrina Hannah.

City gets mixed response to no-parking sign plans

The maxim "You can't please all of the people all of the time" hit home in Plymouth recently as residents near Stahl Manufacturing on Junction said yes and nay to the city's plan to post no-parking signs on their streets.

People on Ann said they'd welcome signs.

People on Blunk said don't do it. City manager Henry Graper said no-parking signs will be put up on Junction and probably on Ann from Junction several hundred feet south.

After that, time will tell. Residents have told city officials they don't like Stahl employees parking on their streets and truckers idling their rigs on streets near the factory.

The city started installing sign poles and no-parking signs on several streets in the area.

LAST WEEK, the phones started ringing off the hook at city hall. Not everyone was happy. So some of the signs came down.

Several people brought their concerns to Monday's city commission meeting.

"We don't want any no-parking signs on our street," said Elgin Sauls, who presented a petition to the commission with some 30 signatures from neighbors on Blunk.

His reasoning? No parking problems on the street.

Francis Krupa said an informal survey on Ann indicated that more than 20 wanted no-parking signs.

"We're going to look at options to see which takes care of the situation on each street," Graper said.

SOME POSSIBILITIES brought up to deal with the parking problem and trucks backing onto Ann include:

- Allowing on-street parking only for residents and their guests if a majority so petition.

- Limiting on-street parking for everyone to specific hours of the day.
- Making Ann a one-way street.

All of those options have drawbacks and could inconvenience people who live there now.

"Residents only — that becomes a real policing hassle," Graper said.

Barricading streets is out, he added. "You can't stop traffic from going up and down the street because we accept gas and weight tax money."

"We're not going to please every citizen . . . when a final decision comes down," said Mayor Karl Gansler II.

Complaints arose this summer after Stahl consolidated operations and expanded its work force in Plymouth.

Victim's mother to address judge

By M.S. Dillon
staff writer

Before two young men are sentenced for murdering her daughter, Deborah Hulbert of Canton plans to take the stand and tell Washtenaw Circuit Judge Henry Conlin "how many lives they've destroyed by taking one life."

The Victims' Rights Act provides that, among other things, victims or their relatives may make pleas at sentencing to impress upon the court that a crime has caused suffering and pain.

Steven Stamper, 18, of Ypsilanti Township will be sentenced Friday for second-degree murder in Washtenaw Circuit Court in connection with the shooting death of Mary Anne Hulbert, 13.

A jury found Stamper guilty of murdering Hulbert after a weeklong trial last month. Hulbert's body was found in a Superior Township field in Washtenaw County in January 1987. Stamper could be sentenced to life in prison.

CHRISTOPHER MACHACEK,

also an Ypsilanti Township 18-year-old, will be sentenced in connection with the same crime Oct. 28.

Machacek was tried separately and found guilty of first-degree murder in an earlier trial. Machacek's sentencing, originally scheduled for Oct. 14, was adjourned for a two weeks at the request of his attorney.

First-degree, or premeditated murder, is punishable by mandatory life in prison with no chance of parole.

DEBBIE HULBERT said she wants her statement on record so that when appeals and paroles are being considered, "the court will know about the torment they've caused. I can't go down a road or see a field without thinking about it. I see Mary running, and I hear her screaming."

According to testimony, Hulbert thought she was pregnant by Machacek. Machacek and Stamper took her to a field where they intended to induce a miscarriage by shooting rifles into the air. An autopsy showed Mary was shot seven times, and that she was not pregnant.

Debbie Hulbert has distributed thousands of fliers to businesses and homes in Plymouth, Canton, Westland and Wayne, urging residents to write Conlin before the sentencing.

On the flier is a picture of Mary and this message: "On Oct. 14th and 21st, Judge Henry T. Conlin decides how long Chris Machacek and Steven Stamper serve for murdering 13-year-old Mary Anne Hulbert of Canton. Do you want murderers on your children's streets? Do you know if the judge gives 10 years to life they can be paroled and on our streets in five years? Please help the judge make his decision. Tell him your feelings."

Hulbert said the flier isn't intended to imply that the judge "doesn't know his job. I have tremendous faith in Judge Conlin. I just want him to be aware that people do care and are concerned about this. A lot of us weren't in court during the trials because we work or go to school. But we don't like this happening on our streets."

Some of those signs may be removed and some on-street parking may open up on Holbrook as a result of improved warning devices. The state transportation department initially ordered crossing gates at Holbrook, West said, but that edict was overturned by an administrative hearing officer on appeal from the railroad.

Pursell running on his 6 terms in Congress

"I'm moderate to somewhat conservative on fiscal affairs," he said. "I think I reflect a majority. I think people here are happy with the economy. They're working. We have good educational opportunities here."

- Favors no immediate changes in federal income tax rates for individuals.
- Maintains that he's a friend of the environment and that his opponent, Lana Pollack, distorts his record on the issue.
- Proposes to reduce the national debt with spending freezes and perhaps an oil import tax.

"The responsibility of a congressman is to represent the people of the district," Pursell said. "They're concerned about high taxes. I'm not a tax-and-spender like my opponent."

"That doesn't mean we shouldn't apply an oil import tax to abolish the deficit," he subsequently added if that's exclusively how it would be used.

Pursell said he's showed fiscal integrity by proposing federal budgets that not only balance, but chip away at the deficit with spending freezes.

But the 12-year veteran of the Congress said he's only too aware of port-barrel legislation and the tendency for lawmakers to spend more on programs when more money becomes available than reduce a deficit.

"I can't fault the administration any more than I fault Congress for the debt," he said.

Portraying him as an enemy of the environment because of a vote on the Clean Water Act of 1985 isn't fair, Pursell said.

"In the face of a continuing budget deficit, I offered an amendment to freeze the funding level rather than almost doubling it in one year as the bill called for."

Pursell said he testified 5-6 years ago that the U.S. continued to provide military defense to Japan while engaging in a trade fight with that same country.

"I think broader (defense) sharing time has come," he said.

"I think the defense budget is basically in a freeze mode and has been for a couple of years," Pursell said.

Pursell promotes a five-point drug plan that includes better coordination between enforcement agencies, expansion of the military's role in eradication efforts and strengthening drug prevention, education and treatment programs.

He also supports the death penalty for those involved with murder in trafficking.

Estimated price tag: $2.1 billion — nearly twice as much as was spent this year. "I'm hopeful most will be in the prevention area," he said.

Pursell said he's co-sponsored child care legislation that calls for establishing a $250 million block grant to increase the supply of licensed child care facilities, provide financial assistance to low-income families and loans to employers to start up after-school care programs. "My polling shows a majority of taxpayers (62 percent) aren't looking for a government-funded, federally regulated day-care centers."

Pursell said he supported the catastrophic health care program for the elderly that recently became law even though "it wasn't the best of all worlds."

That's because users will pay much of the cost through increased Medicare premium payments, he said.

There is no good answer for health care for working people.

"You can't take money out of the general fund you don't have," he said. "You've got to face the deficit."

Pollack's mission is to defeat incumbent

Pollack has stalked Pursell for months. Even during last August's primary, Pollack turned her attention to Pursell, rather than Dean Baker, her Democratic Party challenger.

Thus far, she's fired her biggest salvos against Pursell's environmental record.

At every opportunity, Pollack has castigated Pursell's 1985 vote against renewing the nation's clean water act. Pollack's own environmental program includes penalties for polluters.

"MAKE THE polluters pay, not the taxpayer," she said. "We keep passing Superfund, but I'm really exasperated and tired of borrowing money to clean up."

More money isn't needed, she said, what is needed is a better enforcement effort from the Environmental Protection Agency.

"Laws aren't efficient and enforcement isn't good enough. I believe the federal government is going to have to use some of its resources to get the job done and set standards."

As a state legislator, Pollack introduced a series of bills in the past year that would have increased water pollution penalties, increased liability for hazardous substances and made release of hazardous substances a felony. None of the bills, however, have become law.

On other environmental issues, Pollack supported Senate bills calling for state surpluses to be invested for solid waste disposal and creating a state hazardous waste treatment plan.

Though the environment is a major campaign issue, the candidates also differ on such vital issues as child care, health care and drug abuse prevention, as well as ways to reduce the federal deficit.

Pollack advocates the federal government work in partnership with local social service agencies and individuals to finance child care programs.

"The federal government should set minimum standards for day care," Pollack said. "I think government should invest in day care in partnership with parents, private industry and local government."

That same thread, partial government support, also runs through her position on health care.

"Everybody would be covered by a health program, not necessarily a national health program, it would be a private program," she said "But for people who couldn't afford a private program, I think that the federal government has a role to play in subsidizing an insurance program."

"I THINK the federal government should partially pay," she said.

Pollack also called for the government to encourage employers to provide health care coverage and to better regulate insurance companies.

The drug problem must be dealt with on two fronts, Pollack said.

She favors more customs inspections rather than expenditures for things like radar systems to snare suppliers.

"Once somebody's convicted, you do punishment and do rehabilitation, if possible," Pollack said.

"You do prevention. We need adults working with kids in a supervised situation."

Individuals would pay for those programs, with government stepping in to help out financially where individual efforts fall short. Ditto for child care.

Her price tag on care: $2.2 billion.

To reduce the deficit, she would support a tax increase on individuals earning more than $100,000 and couples making more than more than $157,000.

Money to improve social programs should come from cutbacks in military spending, Pollack said.

"I don't see the American people willing to cut back on anything except military," she said.

Specifically, Pollack advocates billing our allies for a more equitable share of their defense provided by the United States.

"We spend $150 billion a year on European security," Pollack said. "There is absolutely no reason why that shouldn't be a shared responsibility. They're no longer war torn or unable to provide for themselves."

Judges vie for new seats on appeals bench

Four compete here

By Mary Rodrigue
staff writer

Six judges will be elected to the Michigan Court of Appeals Tuesday, Nov. 8 increasing the number of judges on the appellate court from 18 to 24.

The top two finalists in each of the state's three judicial districts will serve eight- and six-year terms respectively.

In the first district, which includes Wayne County in addition to Washenaw, Livingston, Monroe, Lenawee and Jackson counties, all four candidates for the new seats hail from Wayne County and are currently judges.

They are Y. Gladys Barsamian of Plymouth Township, Thomas J. Brennan of Dearborn, Richard P. Hathaway of Grosse Pointe Park and Maureen P. Reilly of Grosse Pointe Park. Reilly and Brennan, both circuit judges, received the most votes in the Aug. 2 primary. Hathaway is also a circuit judge. Barsamian is a probate judge.

Appeals court judges earn an annual salary of $98,000.

The court considers criminal convictions and cases that have an automatic right of appeal. The docket includes civil cases seeking review. The breakdown is 52 percent civil and 48 percent criminal, according to a court spokesman.

In 1975, each of 18 judges handled 246 filings annually. Today each handles 455.

"Certain probate cases had to be appealed to circuit court, but now can be appealed directly to the court of appeals," said Donald Byerlein, court administrator. "This includes custody, termination of parental rights — the divorce issue."

Michigan Public Service Commission cases go directly to the appeals court.

Last year the state Legislature created the new judgeships to help ease the expanding caseload.

"The main reason is that each year the court has to request from the (Michigan) Supreme Court assignments for visiting judges," said Byerlein. But, he added, the new appointments will not eliminate totally the need for visiting judges.

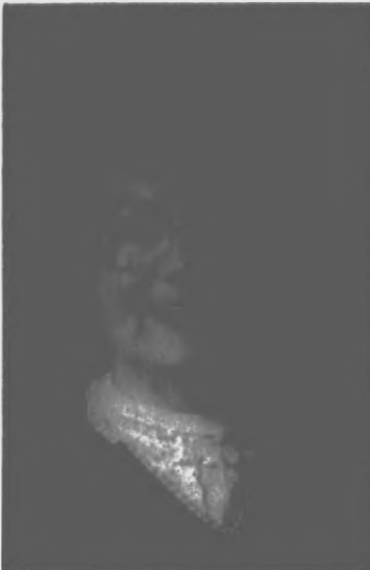

"Last year over 70 judges from circuit court, Detroit Recorder's Court and retired judges served."

Appeals court judges hear cases on panels of three. Last year there was a total of 8,186 filings, and 7,502 cases were disposed of, according to Byerlein.

By using visiting judges, the court can stretch its number of panels from six (made up of the 18 judges) to nine (one visiting judge on each three judge panel). Each panel hears 42 cases per month.

"The visiting judges have their own work which slows (rendering) their opinions," Byerlein said.

After Jan. 1, 1989, there will be 24 judges, which means the court can immediately begin operating nine three-judge panels.

Y. Gladys Barsamian

Here are thumbnail sketches of the four candidates from the first district:

Y. Gladys Barsamian, 56, has been assigned to the Wayne County probate juvenile division since January 1975. She has been presiding judge of that division for six years and chief judge pro tempore for two years.

A resident of Plymouth Township, Barsamian is chair of the Juvenile Law Committee, State Bar of Michigan, and on the board of directors of the Metropolitan Detroit Youth Foundation, Downtown YMCA (where she was honored as a "Woman in Perspective" in 1981) and Michigan Association for Emotionally Disturbed Children. She received both her bachelor's and law degrees from Wayne State University.

Thomas J. Brennan

Barsamian said a primary reason for her candidacy is that probate judges have been excluded from acting as visiting judges in the appeals court.

"Historically probate judges have not been allowed to sit, yet (probate issues) are expanding rapidly at the review level," she said.

"Those sitting have little expertise in that area. The decisions are not too reflective of what the suit is about."

Thomas J. Brennan, 66, has been a circuit judge for the past 16 years.

Prior to his election to the Wayne County Circuit Court, Brennan served on the state Board of Education for eight years, was in private practice for 10 years served on the

Richard P. Hathaway

Michigan Employment Security Board (appointed by then-governor John Swainson), and was an officer of the Detroit local of the Communication Workers of America for eight years.

He is a member of several boards of directors, including the Rehabilitation Institute and Catholic Social Services of Wayne County. He served as president of Catholic Big Brothers of Wayne County. He is a graduate of the University of Detroit and Detroit College of Law.

Richard P. Hathaway, 39, has been on the circuit bench since January 1984. Previously he served as a Detroit Recorder's Court judge 1980-84. He was a trial attorney in the Wayne County Prosecutor's office.

Maureen P. Reilly

Hathaway, who lives in Grosse Pointe Park, also served as administrator of the Victim/Witness program for the prosecutor's office. He is a member of several professional organizations. He is a graduate of Detroit College of Law.

Maureen P. Reilly, 53, has served on the circuit bench for 10 years. She was a judge of the Common Pleas Court (now 36th District Court) for a year. She has also served as a visiting judge on the appeals court.

Reilly of Grosse Pointe Park was an assistant attorney for the city of Detroit in the 1970s and also served in private practice in Washington, D.C., New York and Detroit.

A graduate of the University of Detroit, she is a member of several professional organizations.

College board seats contested

Voters will consider candidates for Wayne State University, University of Michigan and Michigan State University governing boards in the Nov. 8 general election.

Two seats are open on each university's governing board. Incumbents from each major party face challenges in each race.

At Wayne State, Democratic incumbent Murray Jackson and GOP incumbent Richard Van Dusen face challengers. Democrat Vicki Kream and Republican Hattie Massey also seek seats.

At U-M, Democrat incumbent Nellie Varner and GOP incumbent Deane Baker face challengers. Democrat Thomas Lewand and Republican Clifford Taylor also seek seats.

At MSU, incumbent Republican Thomas Reed seeks re-election. Fellow Republican Edward Liebler and Democrats Barbara Rom and Edward Weiss also seek seats.

Major party nominees were nominated during recent state party conventions. Third party candidates are also on the ballot in each race. Winners will receive eight-year terms.

U-M regents candidates

Here's a brief look at the candidates for the University of Michigan Board of Regents:

• Incumbent Nellie Varner, D-Detroit, is vice president and associate broker of Strather & Varner Inc., a Detroit-based real estate firm. She has been a regent since 1981 and is a former associate dean of the U-M graduate school. She holds bachelor's and master's degrees from Wayne State University and a doctorate from the U-M. She is vice president and a member of the executive board of the Northwest Detroit Business Council.

• Incumbent Deane Baker, R-Ann Arbor, is president of a land development company. He has been a member of the U-M board for 10 years. He is a director of the Detroit Area Council, Boy Scouts of America and the Laymen's National Bible Committee. He is a member of the Economic Club of Detroit and has served as a director of the Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce. He holds bachelor's degree from the University of Wisconsin and a master's degree from Harvard, both in business administration. He served as a pilot in the U.S. Air Force from 1943-1945 and against between 1951-1953.

• Thomas Lewand, Democrat of Birmingham, is a senior partner in a Detroit law firm of Jaffe, Snider, Raitt & Heuer. He managed Gov. James Blanchard's 1982 statewide campaign and served as director of the transition team and chief of staff for Blanchard from 1982-83. He served as the 1978 campaign director for U.S. Sen. Carl Levin. Lewand is a former Oakland County Commissioner. He holds a bachelor's from the University of Detroit and received his law degree from Wayne State University.

• Clifford Taylor, Republican of East Lansing, is a partner in the Lansing-based law firm of Denfield, Timmer & Taylor. He was a district chairman for the 1984 Reagan-Bush campaign and a delegate to the 1984 Republican National Convention. He holds a bachelor's degree from the U-M and received his law degree from George Washington University, Washington, D.C. He previously worked as an assistant prosecutor in Ingham County.

• Other candidates are John Salvette of Bloomfield Hills, chief financial officer of Stahl Manufacturing, and James Hudler of Chelsea, both Libertarians.

All-night skate set for Saturday

Bill Heiney will tie on his magic shoes to entertain participants of the "Great All Night Skate" Saturday, Oct. 23.

Heiney is the marketing and special events coordinator for the American Lung Association of Southeast Michigan.

He will tie himself in a bag, climb into a chained and padlocked packaging crate and attempt to free himself in three seconds. Other performances include vanishing and reappearing live birds and a ghost-containing silver sphere floating mysteriously on its own.

Magic and illusions, free food, refreshments and prizes are just a few of the items that will be made available to skateathon participants.

A MINIMUM $25 pledge is all it will take to get in the door. By collecting more, rollerskaters become eligible for prizes such as a personal stereo unit, a year's worth of free skating, dual cassette player or two tickets to see Michael Jackson Tuesday at the Palace.

All pledges will help the lung association in its fight against children's lung disease and to serve the more than 40,000 asthmatic children in southeast Michigan.

The "Great All Night Skate" will take place at the Skatin' Station in Canton. Action starts rolling at 11:30 p.m. Saturday, concluding at 10 a.m. Sunday. Doors open just after 11 p.m. However, minors wishing to exit the rink during the night will find the door guarded and closed until the next morning.

Pledge sheets are available at the Skatin' Station in Canton or by calling the association, 559-5100.

Ramp closed after wreck

Drivers who used I-275 to commute to work Wednesday morning may have been affected by a traffic accident Tuesday night.

The entrance ramp to southbound I-275 at Ann Arbor Road in Plymouth Township was closed for 14 hours after a tractor-trailer overturned there.

The driver, identified by police as Carmello Tosto, 59, of Dearborn Heights, was reported to be in stable condition Wednesday at St. Mary Hospital, Livonia. He suffered a concussion and multiple injuries.

The incident occurred at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday.

The truck driven by Tosto was loaded with transmissions, said Sgt. Harry Broadbent, of the Michigan State Police.

The load shifted when Tosto attempted to enter the freeway causing the rig to tip over on its side, Broadbent said.

"When wreckers righted the trailer, the trailer buckled," Broadbent said. "They had to (take) off each transmission and cart them away and then cart the trailer away."

The wreckage was cleared and the ramp opened at 8:20 a.m. Wednesday.

New programs to aid troubled youths

By Anne Brunson
Staff Writer

Youth Assistance, a model counseling program for youth in trouble and their families, will be launched in five new area communities with funding provided by the Michigan Department of Social Services.

The Out-Wayne County Human Services Inc., the non-profit organization that maintains the Youth Assistance program and training center, has received a $300,000 state grant to establish programs in Wayne, Wyandotte, Lincoln Park and two other downriver communities yet to be named.

The program currently operates in more than 20 communities, including Livonia, where it was founded in 1983 by the city's Community Resources Department, Garden City and Redford Township.

Aimed at helping teens who are in trouble at home, in school or in the community by stressing goals, decision-making and personal responsibility, the program utilizes volunteer counselors who work with the entire family, according to Joan Duggan, coordinator of the program's training center. Duggan was director of Livonia's Community Resources when the program was first implemented.

"IT IS VERY difficult to find funding for such programs in this day and age. Thanks to the (state) Department of Social Services and Sen. Geake, we have the go-ahead to initiate new programs. Prevention and diversion is regaining priority in government," Duggan said.

State Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, whose district includes Livonia, Redford, Canton, Plymouth and Plymouth Township, is a strong supporter of the program.

The typical youth is referred to the program by local police, because he or she has broken a minor law. School authorities also make referrals because a student has been disruptive at school.

If from Livonia, the youth is likely a 14-year-old boy who lives with both parents. He is either the youngest or one of the younger children in the family and is not doing well in school. He has low self-esteem and probably abuses alcohol or drugs.

Last year, the Livonia program provided services for 115 youths. Based on program records, 80 percent "turned troubled behavior around and replaced it with good behavior. They've learned good behavior pays off. Otherwise, they just get in deeper and deeper," Duggan said.

Youth assistance originally evolved in response to requests by Livonia police who, as early as 1980, said they needed an alternative service for troubled youth who otherwise might be headed for incarceration.

Redford Township adopted the program in May 1984, followed by Garden City in August 1984. Approximately 65 youths in each community received services last year.

"I'VE SEEN SOME really good results, families where communication has totally broken down, who have gotten back on track. They need a third person to help them sort it out," said Garden City program director Joe Goodrid.

It costs Garden City approximately $23,000 a year to maintain the program. Costs include Goodrid's salary and office supplies. He is the only paid employee.

The dozen or so volunteer counselors are unpaid. They are parents, psychology majors and others who are interested in contributing to their community and feel they have a knack for working with youth and families. Volunteers undergo a series of interviews and 4-5 weeks training before assuming counseling responsibilities.

Cost effectiveness is an essential ingredient in the program, according to Duggan who said, "It is important that after a program is up and running, it not cost the government more and more money."

That is precisely what happened to a federally financed program in Westland, one of the first youth assistance programs in Wayne County between 1976-79, according to Lt. Mike Frayer of the Westland Police. Frayer oversees delinquent youth and crime prevention in the city.

When federal funding dried up in 1979, the program was discontinued. In the years since, Westland has not launched a similar program.

"It would be a definite asset. We have a need for it. We in the police department would be interested in another resource for our troubled youth. We don't have anything that involves counseling," Frayer said.

Presently, the only family counseling available in the community is private counseling that is expensive, according to Frayer.

Youth assistance is provided to Plymouth and Canton families by Growth Works, originally Youth Incorporated which was founded in 1971. Growth Works, supported by public funds and private donations, also offers job referral and after care for youth recovering from alcohol and drug addictions.

Last year, 160 family members received counseling. Volunteers are used in the program only as mentors.

Men, if you're about to turn 18, it's time to register with Selective Service at any U.S. Post Office.

It's quick. It's easy. And it's the law.

Little school help predicted in '89

By Tim Richard
staff writer

The next president, despite campaign talk, will be able to do little about Michigan public schools, two candidates for the State Board of Education agree.

And some form of school financing "reform" — a sales tax hike and property tax cut — is still in the cards, they added.

"National platforms bear very little relationship to the states," said Republican candidate Barbara Dumouchelle, who read the GOP platform and George Bush's speeches before speaking to Phi Delta Kappa last week.

"The next president will inherit a fiscal mess," said Democrat Steve Economy. "Michael Dukakis recognizes the time has come for educational excellence," said Economy, predicting his candidate will focus on adult illiteracy and recruiting more teachers.

Addressing a group of educators in Birmingham, they found themselves agreeing often on questions of finance, state standards and the desirability of foreign language instruction.

"MICHIGAN IS a leader," said Dumouchelle. "Many programs discussed on the national level have been a reality in Michigan for years."

The GOP spokesperson said Bush proposed a college savings bond plan for college pre-paid tuition, enacted by Congress, that has the same principles as the Michigan Education Trust, proposed by Gov. James Blanchard.

With the federal government

fostering experimentation, Dumouchelle said, a Republican administration would operate under these principles:

• "Reward success" — grants to individual schools (not school districts) which succeed in raising performance.

• "Greater choice" — allow parents to choose between schools within a district. She saw many problems in attempting cross-district school choice.

• "Teacher evaluation models" — "The vice president will focus on building level programs. Everything is to be referred to the states for setting standards."

SCHOOL-BUSINESS partnerships were constantly stressed by Economy, executive assistant to the president of Michigan Bell in charge of government relations.

"There are 25 million adult Americans who are illiterate. We have the highest drug usage in the world," he said, advocating reaching at-risk children while they're young through Head Start programs.

"We don't have anybody who can speak a foreign language," he said, telling of a business trip to Japan in which only the Japanese were bilingual. "When you ask them a hard question, they would lapse into Japanese," he said.

Asked if the State Board of Education should mandate the teaching of foreign languages, Economy said it would be difficult to require language proficiency of every child because the state would be constitutionally obliged to pick up any mandated cost.

Added Dumouchelle: "It's difficult to mandate the students take it (language courses) . . . We could mandate that every high school and junior high offer it. And I don't know who you would find to teach it."

Dumouchelle blamed the decline in high school language study on universities, which have cut their language requirements for incoming freshmen.

STATE SCHOOL finance reform, though it didn't get on this year's ballot, was supported by both candidates.

"I support the present reform proposals," said Dumouchelle. "They're not perfect, but they're the only avenue. We will fail if we attempt to increase the income tax."

"I'd go along with two cents (increase in the 4 percent sales tax)," said Economy. He advocated a cap on property taxes, maintaining levels of school funds and "more funds from the federal government without strings."

Here is how the candidates answered other questions:

CORE CURRICULUM — Should a set of core courses be mandated by the state?

Economy: "You've gotta set standards. There are differences between the districts. But you should cajole — be diplomatic — push. It works better than a mandate."

Dumouchelle: "I support a core curriculum . . . Gov. Blanchard's program supports a core curriculum. It says, 'The standards are to be set by the State Board of Education — they have the expertise.' The core will be the least common denominator. It will leave ample room for flexibility at the local level."

VOUCHERS — should government cease aiding public schools and issue vouchers to parents, who could use them to pay for education at any public, private or parochial school?

Dumouchelle: "It's not a proposal." Bush favors choice within the school system.

Economy: "No." It would be better to "bring all schools up to standard."

SCIENCE TEACHERS — They're difficult to find. What can we do?

Economy: "The marketplace will put pressure on salaries. Publicize the problem. Raise a little hell."

Dumouchelle: "That's a negotiated item (in faculty union contracts). If you need physics teachers, can you pay more?"

Faxon bills curb local day-care zoning

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Licensed day-care homes would have to be considered as "residential" use in local zoning ordinances under controversial bills passed recently by the state Senate.

Sen. Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, was sponsor of the three hotly debated bills, which amend the zoning laws for municipalities, rural townships and counties.

"Local units claim they (day-care operators) are running a business out of a house," said Faxon. "Under these bills, they can't treat day-care homes as businesses and disallow them."

Some opponents charged Faxon's bills "usurp local control." Others objected that group day-care facilities are indeed businesses and should be treated as such.

DAY-CARE providers find themselves in a no-win situation, Faxon said. If they obtain state licenses, they find themselves classified as businesses.

"A woman who has been baby-sitting in her home for years may register with the state and then discover that she is breaking the zoning law in her own city. This is a situation that needs to be remedied," Faxon said.

He said it's desirable that day-care homes be licensed so they can be inspected under safety and health codes.

His Senate Bills 687, 688 and 689 passed by votes of 22-12, 24-11 and 23-12.

In the Observer & Eccentric area, supporters were Faxon; Richard Fessler, R-Union Lake; and R. Robert Geake, R-Northville.

Opposed were William Faust, D-Westland; George Hart, D-Dearborn; and Rudy Nichols, R-Waterford.

The bills go next to the House, which will have only a few days in November and December to take them up.

FAUST AND Nichols joined a dissenting speech by Sen. William Sederburg, R-East Lansing.

Partly sympathetic to the bills, Sederburg told how his wife agreed to care for a neighbor child after school and found she had to have a state license.

"So we went through through this entire process where my wife had to go through training — even though she had a master's degree in child psychology and taught school, she had to go through their day of training for people taking care of children."

"Our house has been inspected by their people. We got on their mailing list, which was a real treat, and for the last three years we've been getting phone calls from people wanting to know whether we take care of children for a business within our home."

"We made a mistake in trying to fulfill the intent of the law, I guess. Most people would have just taken care of this child and not paid any attention to the law."

Sederburg said, "We really should be treating family day-care homes slightly different(ly) in the law and not have them go through the same zoning requirements as other facilities."

BUT SEDERBURG criticized the sections covering group day-care centers as inconsistent.

Such homes must "maintain the property consistent with the visible characteristics of the neighborhood, but at the same time require adequate off-street parking for employees."

"That seems to me in most neighborhoods would automatically mean you could not be consistent with the general characteristics of the neighborhood."

"I do not have any problem in requiring a group home — a business facility — having to seek zoning approval by the local city or the local township."

Sen. Harry Gast, R-St. Joseph, said the bills "usurp local zoning, local planning. Maybe Sen. Faxon feels he has the wisdom that is far superior to those in the local units of government. (Faxon) has been trying to make the issue the kids. That's not the issue here; it's usurping local planning."

Board lets students ride bus again

By M.S. Dillon
Staff writer

Boys and girls who live near Five Mile and Northville roads are back on the school bus, but their parents had to hire an attorney to make it happen.

At last week's Plymouth-Canton school board meeting, irate parents asked trustees why their children were suddenly told they could no longer ride the bus.

Board members said they weren't prepared to respond to their questions, and suggested the six parents take their concerns to the next safety committee meeting Oct. 28.

Bus service for the youngsters was discontinued Oct. 5. A letter postmarked Sept. 30 informed parents of the change.

IT READ, in part, "a recent check of student eligibility for transportation in your area indicates your address is within one mile of Farrand Elementary School, and, consequently, your child is not eligible for bus transportation to and from Farrand School."

"The Board of Education policy clearly states that students in grades K-3 must live one mile or more from their school of attendance to be eligible for transportation, and students in grades three through five must live one and a half miles or more from their school. Your residence does not meet those requirements."

Superintendent John Hoben sub-

"It's 5,299 feet to the door my son goes in. Several parents, myself included, are upset about the elimination of the stop. We feel it is unsafe to walk to Farrand, and we're afraid of abduction and injury."

—William Brown

sequently ordered that the children be bused, at least temporarily.

Annette Patyna, whose 11-year-old son, Chris, was among the students affected, told trustees that she and another parent went to transportation director Dale Goby and asked why the change was being made, as phone calls to administrators hadn't been returned.

"HE BLEW us off and told us it was none of our business," said Patyna.

Patyna later told Goby that "if there was a safety committee ruling that my son is ineligible, fine. But show me. That was none of my business, either," she said.

The parents asked "to see our computer to do an eligibility check. I told them that was not possible," said Goby in an interview after the meeting. (Goby wasn't present at the board meeting.)

"Once Mrs. Patyna demanded materials under the Freedom of Information Act we were no longer

at a point where Mrs. Patyna or I could discuss the matter. It's incredible that an attorney has to be involved," said Goby.

Goby said Patyna's child was among 40 or 50 children for whom busing was being discontinued.

ATTORNEY DAN Penning, representing the parents, requested documentation outlining the reasons bus service was being discontinued under the Freedom of Information Act. They were given to Annette Patyna at the school board meeting.

"I don't think they complied with my request," said Penning. "The only materials provided to us that were relevant included an eligibility report for Farrand. The Hammill Lane were concerned with its west of Bradner. If you look at the report, the numbers they have are for Hammill Lane east of Bradner."

"The only other relevant piece of paper... was a copy of the rule," he said. "It does not provide me with any documentation as to what evidence they have that this rule applies. It's like giving me the conclusion without the reason for it." Other materials provided concerned field trips and bus suspensions involving student conduct and discipline.

Penning also requested "documents regarding the Transportation and Safety Department of the Plymouth-Canton Schools."

The response Penning received, a letter from Richard Egli, administrative assistant for community relations, said in part, "There is no Transportation and Safety Board."

"Technically, they were correct," said Penning. "But they certainly knew what information I was requesting."

William Brown, whose 6-year-old was told by the bus driver he could no longer ride, said he measured the route with a wheel.

"It's 5,299 feet to the door my son goes in," said Brown. "Several parents, myself included, are upset about the elimination of the stop. We feel it is unsafe to walk to Farrand and we're afraid of abduction and injury."

"I can't see where picking up six or seven kids would cost any more," he said. "Talking to Dale Goby I may as well have been talking to this wall. He irritated me."

PLYMOUTH-CANTON Community Schools comprise the fourth largest district in Michigan based upon the numbers of students transported, said Goby.

The prosecution must prove premeditated intent to get a first-degree murder conviction.

Other evidence, about which Walton declined to elaborate, also will be presented, he said.

"At this particular hearing (preliminary exam), evidence is one-sided," Walton said. "There is evidence in his behalf we intend to show at trial."

Mayernik is confident about the prosecution's case. "There's other witnesses, other statements," he said. "It's all there."

JUDGE JAMES GARBER determined that a crime had been committed and probable cause that Dennis was responsible in ordering Dennis to trial.

Dennis was returned to the Wayne County Jail after the hearing. He's being held without bond.

"Clearly, he (Dennis) is concerned, upset," Walton said. "He's doing about as well as could be expected."

Dennis will be formally charged with first-degree murder in Detroit Recorder's Court Monday, Oct. 31.

'I've been dressing different from other kids for the last three years, and now I'm used to it.'

—Jamie Levitte senior

Folded and rolled cuffs are the trend, as John Ormsby demonstrates with his pants and Diora athletic shoes.

KaTina Hannah likes to dress a little differently than her classmates.

School clothes

Students make fashion statements

By Peggy Aulino
staff writer

Baggie is in. So is rolling up the cuffs on pants. Three-quarter high-top sneakers are passe, and only "squids" can get away with spiking their hair until it stands straight up.

Welcome to the world of high-fashion high school, where clothes seem to be as important as passing grades — at least as far as some students are concerned.

"It's a fashion war," junior Nichole Vogel said in describing the start of the school year. Freshmen especially like to put on their best when they make their first appearance at Salem and Canton high schools, she said.

"They all try to start new fashion trends," Vogel said. "They look through all the new magazines and try to wear what's in them."

Freshman Jim Hanna was sporting a red coat with black leather sleeves as he strutted along the hall of Salem one day last week. It had the words "Contagious Fashion" printed across the back.

"YOU EITHER have a fashion coat or a jeans jacket," Hanna said, with all the authority of a young Armani. The $160 coat was actually his second choice.

"I was going to get a Troop jacket, but those were $300," he said.

The rest of Hanna's ensemble included slacks that had the mandatory cuff roll-up and a pair of $70 sneakers that feature a patch of snake skin.

Leather jackets are a perennial favorite among young people, several students said. But it is necessary to have the correct-type leather jacket.

Hanna said a squid — whom he defined as "a dude who shaves part of his head" — might wear "those cheap, tight leather jackets that say things like 'Teen idol.'"

Levitte's head isn't shaved — quite the opposite, in fact. Her blonde hair sticks up about six inches on top and frames her heavily made-up face.

Levitte favors black, and the short black skirt she wore one day recently matched her pointy boots. The $90 boots, imported from England, had rows of silver skulls around the eyelets.

Yes, Levitte said, she does get odd looks from her fellow students.

"I'VE BEEN dressing different from other kids for the last three years, and now I'm used to it," she said.

Most students prefer to blend in with the crowd. That usually means wearing blue jeans, baggie sweaters and low- or high-top sneakers. In some cases, it is convenience, rather than fashion sense, that determines what a student will wear.

"I don't think about it much, that's why I generally just wear a sweater and jeans," said Bill Jacobsen, a junior.

The opposite is true of junior KaTina Hannah.

City gets mixed response to no-parking sign plans

The maxim "You can't please all of the people all of the time" hit home in Plymouth recently as residents near Stahl Manufacturing on Junction said yes and may to the city's plan to post no-parking signs on their streets.

People on Ann said they'd welcome signs.

People on Blunk said don't do it. City manager Henry Graper said no-parking signs will be put up on Junction and probably on Ann from Junction several hundred feet south.

After that, time will tell. Residents have told city officials they don't like Stahl employees parking on their streets and truckers idling their rigs on streets near the factory.

The city started installing sign poles and no-parking signs on several streets in the area.

LAST WEEK, the phones started ringing off the hook at city hall. Not everyone was happy. So some of the signs came down.

Several people brought their concerns to Monday's city commission meeting.

"We don't want any no-parking signs on our street," said Elgin Sauls, who presented a petition to the commission with some 30 signatures from neighbors on Blunk.

His reasoning? No parking problems on the street.

Francis Krupa said an informal survey on Ann indicated that more than 20 wanted no-parking signs.

"We're going to look at options to see which takes care of the situation on each street," Graper said.

SOME POSSIBILITIES brought up to deal with the parking problem and trucks backing onto Ann include:

- Allowing on-street parking only for residents and their guests if a majority so petition.

- Limiting on-street parking for everyone to specific hours of the day.
- Making Ann a one-way street.

All of those options have drawbacks and could inconvenience people who live there now.

"Residents only — that becomes a real policing hassle," Graper said.

Barricading streets is out, he added. "You can't stop traffic from going up and down the street because we accept gas and weight tax money."

"We're not going to please every citizen . . . when a final decision comes down," said Mayor Karl Gansler II.

Complaints arose this summer after Stahl consolidated operations and expanded its work force in Plymouth.

Victim's mother to address judge

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

Before two young men are sentenced for murdering her daughter, Deborah Hulbert of Canton plans to take the stand and tell Washtenaw Circuit Judge Henry Conlin "how many lives they've destroyed by taking one life."

The Victims' Rights Act provides that, among other things, victims or their relatives may make pleas at sentencing to impress upon the court that a crime has caused suffering and pain.

Steven Stamper, 18, of Ypsilanti Township will be sentenced Friday for second-degree murder in Washtenaw Circuit Court in connection with the shooting death of Mary Anne Hulbert, 13.

A jury found Stamper guilty of murdering Hulbert after a weeklong trial last month. Hulbert's body was found in a Superior Township field in Washtenaw County in January 1987.

Stamper could be sentenced to life in prison.

CHRISTOPHER MACHACEK,

also an Ypsilanti Township 18-year-old, will be sentenced in connection with the same crime Oct. 28.

Machacek was tried separately and found guilty of first-degree murder in an earlier trial. Machacek's sentencing, originally scheduled for Oct. 14, was adjourned for a two weeks at the request of his attorney.

First-degree, or premeditated murder, is punishable by mandatory life in prison with no chance of parole.

DEBBIE HULBERT said she wants her statement on record so that when appeals and paroles are being considered, "the court will know about the torment they've caused. I can't go down a road or see a field without thinking about it. I see Mary running, and I hear her screaming."

According to testimony, Hulbert thought she was pregnant by Machacek. Machacek and Stamper took her to a field where they intended to induce a miscarriage by shooting rifles into the air. An autopsy showed Mary was shot seven times, and that she was not pregnant.

Debbie Hulbert has distributed thousands of fliers to businesses and homes in Plymouth, Canton, Westland and Wayne, urging residents to write Conlin before the sentencing.

On the flier is a picture of Mary and this message: "On Oct. 14th and 21st, Judge Henry T. Conlin decides how long Chris Machacek and Steven Stamper serve for murdering 13-year-old Mary Anne Hulbert of Canton. Do you want murderers on your children's streets? Do you know if the judge gives 10 years to life they can be paroled and on our streets in five years? Please help the judge make his decision. Tell him your feelings."

Hulbert said the flier isn't intended to imply that the judge "doesn't know his job. I have tremendous faith in Judge Conlin. I just want him to be aware that people do care and are concerned about this. A lot of us weren't in court during the trials because we work or go to school. But we don't like this happening on our streets."

Railroad crossing to get signal

Some of those signs may be removed and some on-street parking may open up on Holbrook as a result of improved warning devices.

The state transportation department initially ordered crossing gates at Holbrook, West said, but that edict was overturned by an administrative hearing officer on appeal from the railroad.

"I'm moderate to somewhat conservative on fiscal affairs," he said. "I think I reflect a majority. I think people here are happy with the economy. They're working. We have good educational opportunities here."

Pursell:

- Favors no immediate changes in federal income tax rates for individuals.
- Maintains that he's a friend of the environment and that his opponent, Lana Pollack, distorts his record on the issue.
- Proposes to reduce the national debt with spending freezes and perhaps an oil import tax.

"The responsibility of a congressman is to represent the people of the district," Pursell said. "They're concerned about high taxes. I'm not a tax-and-spenders like my opponent."

"That doesn't mean we shouldn't apply an oil import tax to abolish the deficit," he subsequently added if that's exclusively how it would be used.

Pursell said he's showed fiscal integrity by proposing federal budgets that not only balance, but chip away at the deficit with spending freezes.

But the 12-year veteran of the Congress said he's only too aware of port-barrel legislation and the tendency for lawmakers to spend more on programs when more money becomes available than reduce a deficit.

"I can't fault the administration any more than I fault Congress for the debt," he said.

Portraying him as an enemy of the environment because of a vote on the Clean Water Act of 1985 isn't fair, Pursell said.

"In the face of a continuing budget deficit, I offered an amendment to freeze the funding level rather than almost doubling it in one year as the bill called for."

Pursell said he testified 3-4 years ago that the U.S. continued to provide military defense to Japan while engaging in a trade fight with that same country.

"I think broader (defense) sharing time has come," he said.

"I think the defense budget is basically in a freeze mode and has been for a couple of years," Pursell said.

Pursell promotes a five-point drug plan that includes better coordination between enforcement agencies, expansion of the military's role in eradication efforts and strengthening drug prevention, education and treatment programs.

He also supports the death penalty for those involved with murder in trafficking.

Estimated price tag: $2.1 billion — nearly twice as much as was spent this year. "I'm hopeful most will be in the prevention area," he said.

Pursell said he's co-sponsored child care legislation that calls for establishing a $250 million block grant to increase the supply of licensed child care facilities, provide financial assistance to low-income families and loans to employers to start up after-school care programs.

"My polling shows a majority of taxpayers (62 percent) aren't looking for a government-funded, federally regulated day-care centers."

Pursell said he supported the catastrophic health care program for the elderly that recently became law even though "it wasn't the best of all worlds."

That's because users will pay much of the cost through increased Medicare premium payments, he said.

There is no good answer for health care for working people.

"You can't take money out of the general fund you don't have," he said. "You've got to face the deficit."

Pollack has stalked Pursell for months. Even during last August's primary, Pollack turned her attention to Pursell, rather than Dean Baker, her Democratic Party challenger.

Thus far, she's fired her biggest salvos against Pursell's environmental record.

At every opportunity, Pollack has castigated Pursell's 1985 vote against renewing the nation's clean water act. Pollack's own environmental program includes penalties for polluters.

"MAKE THE polluters pay, not the taxpayer," she said. "We keep passing Superfund, but I'm really exasperated and tired of borrowing money to clean up."

More money isn't needed, she said, what is needed is a better enforcement effort from the Environmental Protection Agency.

"Laws aren't efficient and enforcement isn't good enough. I believe the federal government is going to have to use some of its resources to get the job done and set standards."

As a state legislator, Pollack introduced a series of bills in the past year that would have increased water pollution penalties, increased liability for hazardous substances and made release of hazardous substances a felony. None of the bills, however, have become law.

On other environmental issues, Pollack supported Senate bills calling for state surpluses to be invested for solid waste disposal and creating a state hazardous waste treatment plan.

Though the environment is a major campaign issue, the candidates also differ on such vital issues as child care, health care and drug abuse prevention, as well as ways to reduce the federal deficit.

Pollack advocates the federal government work in partnership with local social service agencies and individuals to finance child care programs.

"The federal government should set minimum standards for day care," Pollack said. "I think government should invest in day care in partnership with parents, private industry and local government."

That same thread, partial government support, also runs through her position on health care.

"Everybody would be covered by a health program, not necessarily a national health program, it would be a private program," she said. "But for people who couldn't afford a private program, I think that the federal government has a role to play in subsidizing an insurance program."

"I THINK the federal government should partially pay," she said.

Pollack also called for the government to encourage employers to provide health care coverage and to better regulate insurance companies.

The drug problem must be dealt with on two fronts, Pollack said.

She favors more customs inspections rather than expenditures for things like radar systems to snare suppliers.

"Once somebody's convicted, you do punishment and do rehabilitation, if possible," Pollack said.

"You do prevention. We need adults working with kids in a supervised situation."

Individuals would pay for those programs, with government stepping in to help out financially where individual efforts fall short. Ditto for child care.

Her price tag on care: $2.2 billion.

To reduce the deficit, she would support a tax increase on individuals earning more than $100,000 and couples making more than more than $157,000.

Money to improve social programs should come from cutbacks in military spending, Pollack said.

"I don't see the American people willing to cut back on anything except military," she said.

Specifically, Pollack advocates billing our allies for a more equitable share of their defense provided by the United States.

"We spend $150 billion a year on European security," Pollack said.

"There is absolutely no reason why that shouldn't be a shared responsibility. They're no longer war torn or unable to provide for themselves."

Doug Funke contributed to this report.

Judges vie for new seats on appeals bench

Four compete here

By Mary Rodrigue
staff writer

Six judges will be elected to the Michigan Court of Appeals Tuesday, Nov. 8 increasing the number of judges on the appellate court from 18 to 24.

The top two finalists in each of the state's three judicial districts will serve eight- and six-year terms respectively.

In the first district, which includes Wayne County in addition to Washenaw, Livingston, Monroe, Lenawee and Jackson counties, all four candidates for the new seats hail from Wayne County and are currently judges.

They are Y. Gladys Barsamian of Plymouth Township, Thomas J. Brennan of Dearborn, Richard P. Hathaway of Grosse Pointe Park and Maureen P. Reilly of Grosse Pointe Park. Reilly and Brennan, both circuit judges, received the most votes in the Aug. 2 primary. Hathaway is also a circuit judge. Barsamian is a probate judge.

Appeals court judges earn an annual salary of $98,000.

The court considers criminal convictions and cases that have an automatic right of appeal. The docket includes civil cases seeking review. The breakdown is 52 percent civil and 48 percent criminal, according to a court spokesman.

In 1975, each of 18 judges handled 246 filings annually. Today each handles 455.

"Certain probate cases had to be appealed to circuit court, but now can be appealed directly to the court of appeals," said Donald Byerlein, court administrator. "This includes custody, termination of parental rights — the divorce issue."

Michigan Public Service Commission cases go directly to the appeals court.

Last year the state Legislature created the new judgeships to help ease the expanding caseload.

"The main reason is that each year the court has to request from the (Michigan) Supreme Court assignments for visiting judges," said Byerlein. But, he added, the new appointments will not eliminate totally the need for visiting judges.

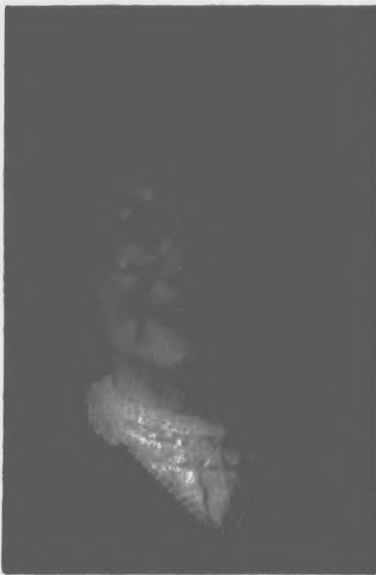

"Last year over 70 judges from circuit court, Detroit Recorder's Court and retired judges served."

Appeals court judges hear cases on panels of three. Last year there was a total of 8,186 filings, and 7,502 cases were disposed of, according to Byerlein.

By using visiting judges, the court can stretch its number of panels from six (made up of the 18 judges) to nine (one visiting judge on each three judge panel). Each panel hears 42 cases per month.

"The visiting judges have their own work which slows (rendering) their opinions," Byerlein said.

After Jan. 1, 1989, there will be 24 judges, which means the court can immediately begin operating nine three-judge panels.

Y. Gladys Barsamian

Richard P. Hathaway

Maureen P. Reilly

Here are thumbnail sketches of the four candidates from the first district:

Y. Gladys Barsamian, 56, has been assigned to the Wayne County probate juvenile division since January 1975. She has been presiding judge of that division for six years and chief judge pro tempore for two years.

A resident of Plymouth Township, Barsamian is chair of the Juvenile Law Committee, State Bar of Michigan, and on the board of directors of the Metropolitan Detroit Youth Foundation, Downtown YMCA (where she was honored as a "Woman in Perspective" in 1981) and Michigan Association for Emotionally Disturbed Children. She received both her bachelor's and law degrees from Wayne State University.

Barsamian said a primary reason for her candidacy is that probate judges have been excluded from acting as visiting judges in the appeals court.

"Historically probate judges have not been allowed to sit, yet (probate issues) are expanding rapidly at the review level," she said.

"Those sitting have little expertise in that area. The decisions are not too reflective of what the suit is about."

Thomas J. Brennan, 66, has been a circuit judge for the past 16 years.

Prior to his election to the Wayne County Circuit Court, Brennan served on the state Board of Education for eight years, was in private practice for 10 years served on the Michigan Employment Security Board (appointed by then-governor John Swainson), and was an officer of the Detroit local of the Communication Workers of America for eight years.

He is a member of several boards of directors, including the Rehabilitation Institute and Catholic Social Services of Wayne County. He served as president of Catholic Big Brothers of Wayne County. He is a graduate of the University of Detroit and Detroit College of Law.

Richard P. Hathaway, 39, has been on the circuit bench since January 1984. Previously he served as a Detroit Recorder's Court judge 1980-84. He was a trial attorney in the Wayne County Prosecutor's office.

Hathaway, who lives in Grosse Pointe Park, also served as administrator of the Victim/Witness program for the prosecutor's office. He is a member of several professional organizations. He is a graduate of Detroit College of Law.

Maureen P. Reilly, 53, has served on the circuit bench for 10 years. She was a judge of the Common Pleas Court (now 36th District Court) for a year. She has also served as a visiting judge on the appeals court.

Reilly of Grosse Pointe Park was an assistant attorney for the city of Detroit in the 1970s and also served in private practice in Washington, D.C., New York and Detroit.

A graduate of the University of Detroit, she is a member of several professional organizations.

College board seats contested

Voters will consider candidates for Wayne State University, University of Michigan and Michigan State University governing boards in the Nov. 8 general election.

At U-M, Democrat incumbent Nellie Varner and GOP incumbent Deane Baker face challengers. Democrat Thomas Lewand and Republican Clifford Taylor also seek seats.

All-night skate set for Saturday

Bill Heiney will tie on his magic shoes to entertain participants of the "Great All Night Skate" Saturday, Oct. 22.

Heiney is the marketing and special events coordinator for the American Lung Association of Southeast Michigan.

He will tie himself in a bag, climb into a chained and padlocked packaging crate and attempt to free himself in three seconds. Other performances include vanishing and reappearing live birds and a ghost-containing silver sphere floating mysteriously on its own.

Magic and illusions, free food, refreshments and prizes are just a few of the items that will be made available to skateathon participants.

A MINIMUM $25 pledge is all it will take to get in the door. By collecting more, rollerskaters become eligible for prizes such as a personal stereo unit, a year's worth of free skating, dual cassette player or two tickets to see Michael Jackson Tuesday at the Palace.

All pledges will help the lung association in its fight against children's lung disease and to serve the more than 40,000 asthmatic children in southeast Michigan.

The "Great All Night Skate" will take place at the Skatin' Station in Canton. Action starts rolling at 11:30 p.m. Saturday, concluding at 10 a.m. Sunday. Doors open just after 11 p.m. However, minors wishing to exit the rink during the night will find the door guarded and closed until the next morning.

Pledge sheets are available at the Skatin' Station in Canton or by calling the association, 559-5100.

Ramp closed after wreck

Drivers who used I-275 to commute to work Wednesday morning may have been affected by a traffic accident Tuesday night.

The entrance ramp to southbound I-275 at Ann Arbor Road in Plymouth Township was closed for 14 hours after a tractor-trailer overturned there.

The driver, identified by police as Carmello Tosto, 59, of Dearborn Heights, was reported to be in stable condition Wednesday at St. Mary Hospital, Livonia. He suffered a concussion and multiple injuries.

The incident occurred at 6:15 p.m. Tuesday.

The truck driven by Tosto was loaded with transmissions, said Sgt. Harry Broadbent, of the Michigan State Police.

The load shifted when Tosto attempted to enter the freeway causing the rig to tip over on its side, Broadbent said.

"When wreckers righted the trailer, the trailer buckled," Broadbent said. "They had to (take) off each transmission and cart them away and then cart the trailer away."

The wreckage was cleared and the ramp opened at 8:20 a.m. Wednesday.

Haunted houses open in area

Halloween is less than two weeks away and the season's festivities are in full swing.

And a good way to get in the mood is to visit one of the area's haunted houses.

Region 14 chapters of the Michigan Jaycees have prepared their haunted houses for frights and fun.

Thousands of people, young and old, will visit these area haunted houses. Last year more than $75,000 was raised in the region by haunted house projects and was invested in community service projects.

Some of these chapters have been running haunted houses for more than 10 years and have given back to their communities tens of thousands of dollars in the form of food baskets for the needy, shopping sprees for youth, senior citizen outings and dances, park improvements and other projects.

The haunted house locations and

New programs to aid troubled youths

By Janice Brunson
Staff Writer

Youth Assistance, a model counseling program for youth in trouble and their families, will be launched in five new area communities with funding provided by the Michigan Department of Social Services.

The Out-Wayne County Human Services Inc., the non-profit organization that maintains the Youth Assistance program and training center, has received a $300,000 state grant to establish programs in Wayne, Wyandotte, Lincoln Park and two other downriver communities yet to be named.

The program currently operates in more than 20 communities, including Livonia, where it was founded in 1983 by the city's Community Resources Department, Garden City and Redford Township.

Aimed at helping teens who are in trouble at home, in school or the community by stressing goals, decision-making and personal responsibility, the program utilizes volunteer counselors who work with the entire family, according to Joan Duggan, coordinator of the program's training center. Duggan was director of Livonia's Community Resources when the program was first implemented.

"IT IS VERY difficult to find funding for such programs in this day and age. Thanks to the (state) Department of Social Services and Sen. Geake, we have the go-ahead to initiate new programs. Prevention and diversion is regaining priority in government," Duggan said.

State Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, whose district includes Livonia, Redford, Canton, Plymouth and Plymouth Township, is a strong supporter of the program.

The typical youth is referred to the program by local police, because he or she has broken a minor law. School authorities also make referrals because a student has been disruptive at school.

If from Livonia, the youth is likely a 14-year-old boy who lives with both parents. He is either the youngest or one of the younger children in the family and is not doing well in school. He has low self-esteem and probably abuses alcohol or drugs.

Last year, the Livonia program provided services for 115 youths. Based on program records, 80 percent "turned troubled behavior around and replaced it with good behavior. They've learned good behavior pays off. Otherwise, they just get in deeper and deeper," Duggan said.

Youth assistance originally evolved in response to requests by Livonia police who, as early as 1980, said they needed an alternative service for troubled youth who otherwise might be headed for incarceration.

Redford Township adopted the program in May 1984, followed by Garden City in August 1984. Approximately 65 youths in each community received services last year.

"I'VE SEEN SOME really good results, families where communication has totally broken down, who have gotten back on track. They need a third person to help them sort it out," said Garden City program director Joe Goodrid.

It costs Garden City approximately $23,000 a year to maintain the program. Costs include Goodrid's salary and office supplies. He is the only paid employee.

The dozen or so volunteer counselors are unpaid. They are parents, psychology majors and others who are interested in contributing to their community and feel they have a knack for working with youth and families. Volunteers undergo a series of interviews and 4-5 weeks training before assuming counseling responsibilities.

Cost effectiveness is an essential ingredient in the program, according to Duggan who said, "It is important that after a program is up and running, it not cost the government more and more money."

That is precisely what happened to a federally financed program in Westland, one of the first youth assistance programs in Wayne County between 1976-79, according to Lt. Mike Frayer of the Westland Police. Frayer oversees delinquent youth and crime prevention in the city.

When federal funding dried up in 1979, the program was discontinued. In the years since, Westland has not launched a similar program.

"It would be a definite asset. We have a need for it. We in the police department would be interested in another resource for our troubled youth. We don't have anything that involves counseling," Frayer said.

Presently, the only family counseling available in the community is private counseling that is expensive, according to Frayer. Youth assistance is provided to Plymouth and Canton families by Growth Works, originally Youth Incorporated which was founded in 1971. Growth Works, supported by public funds and private donations, also offers job referral and after care for youth recovering from alcohol and drug addictions.

Men, if you're about to turn 18, it's time to register with Selective Service at any U.S. Post Office.

It's quick. It's easy. And it's the law.

Little school help predicted in '89

By Tim Richard
staff writer

The next president, despite campaign talk, will be able to do little about Michigan public schools, two candidates for the State Board of Education agree.

And some form of school financing "reform" — a sales tax hike and property tax cut — is still in the cards, they added.

"National platforms bear very little relationship to the states," said Republican candidate Barbara Dumouchelle, who read the GOP platform and George Bush's speeches before speaking to Phi Delta Kappa last week.

"The next president will inherit a fiscal mess," said Democrat Steve Economy. "Michael Dukakis recognizes the time has come for educational excellence," said Economy, predicting his candidate will focus on adult illiteracy and recruiting more teachers.

Addressing a group of educators in Birmingham, they found themselves agreeing often on questions of finance, state standards and the desirability of foreign language instruction.

"MICHIGAN IS a leader," said Dumouchelle. "Many programs discussed on the national level have been a reality in Michigan for years."

The GOP spokesperson said Bush proposed a college savings bond plan for college pre-paid tuition, enacted by Congress, that has the same principles as the Michigan Education Trust, proposed by Gov. James Blanchard.

With the federal government

fostering experimentation, Dumouchelle said, a Republican administration would operate under these principles:

- "Reward success" — grants to individual schools (not school districts) which succeed in raising performance.

- "Greater choice" — allow parents to choose between schools within a district. She saw many problems in attempting cross-district school choice.

- "Teacher evaluation models" — "The vice president will focus on building level programs. Everything is to be referred to the states for setting standards."

SCHOOL-BUSINESS partnerships were constantly stressed by Economy, executive assistant to the president of Michigan Bell in charge of government relations.

"There are 25 million adult Americans who are illiterate. We have the highest drug usage in the world," he said, advocating reaching at-risk children while they're young through Head Start programs.

"We don't have anybody who can speak a foreign language," he said, telling of a business trip to Japan in which only the Japanese were bilingual. "When you ask them a hard question, they would lapse into Japanese," he said.

Asked if the State Board of Education should mandate the teaching of foreign languages, Economy said it would be difficult to require language proficiency of every child because the state would be constitutionally obliged to pick up any mandated cost.

Added Dumouchelle: "It's difficult to mandate the students take it (lan-

Dumouchelle blamed the decline in high school language study on universalities, which have cut their language requirements for incoming freshmen.

STATE SCHOOL finance reform, though it didn't get on this year's ballot, was supported by both candidates.

"I support the present reform proposals," said Dumouchelle. "They're not perfect, but they're the only avenue. We will fail if we attempt to increase the income tax."

"I'd go along with two cents (increase in the 4 percent sales tax)," said Economy. He advocated a cap on property taxes, maintaining levels of school funds and "more funds from the federal government without strings."

Here is how the candidates answered other questions:

CORE CURRICULUM — Should a set of core courses be mandated by the state?

Economy: "You've gotta set standards. There are differences between the districts. But you should cajole — be diplomatic — push. It works better than a mandate."

Dumouchelle: "I support a core curriculum . . . Gov. Blanchard's program supports a core curriculum. It says, 'The standards are set by the State Board of Education — they have the expertise.' The core will be the least common denominator. It will leave ample room for flexibility at the local level."

VOUCHERS — should government cease aiding public schools and issue vouchers to parents, who could use them to pay for education at any public, private or parochial school?

Dumouchelle: "It's not a proposal." Bush favors choice within the school system.

Economy: "No." It would be better to "bring all schools up to standard."

SCIENCE TEACHERS — They're difficult to find. What can we do?

Economy: "The marketplace will put pressure on salaries. Publicize the problem. Raise a little hell."

Dumouchelle: "That's a negotiated item (in faculty union contracts). If you need physics teachers, can you pay more?"

Faxon bills curb local day-care zoning

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Licensed day-care homes would have to be considered as "residential" use in local zoning ordinances under controversial bills passed recently by the state Senate.

Sen. Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, was sponsor of the three hotly debated bills, which amend the zoning laws for municipalities, rural townships and counties.

"Local units claim they (day-care operators) are running a business out of a house," said Faxon. "Under these bills, they can't treat day-care homes as businesses and disallow them."

Some opponents charged Faxon's bills "usurp local control." Others objected that group day-care facilities are indeed businesses and should be treated as such.

DAY-CARE providers find themselves in a no-win situation, Faxon said. If they obtain state licenses, they find themselves classified as businesses.

"A woman who has been baby-sitting in her home for years may register with the state and then discover that she is breaking the zoning law in her own city. This is a situation that needs to be remedied," Faxon said.

He said it's desirable that day-care homes be licensed so they can be inspected under safety and health codes.

His Senate Bills 687, 688 and 689 passed by votes of 22-12, 24-11 and 23-12.

In the Observer & Eccentric area, supporters were Faxon; Richard Fessler, R-Union Lake; and R. Robert Geake, R-Northville.

Opposed were William Faust, D-Westland; George Hart, D-Deerborn; and Rudy Nichols, R-Waterford.

The bills go next to the House, which will have only a few days in November and December to take them up.

FAUST AND Nichols joined a dissenting speech by Sen. William Sederburg, R-East Lansing.

Partly sympathetic to the bills, Sederburg told how his wife agreed to care for a neighbor child after school and found she had to have a state license.

"So we went through through this entire process where my wife had to go through training - even though she had a master's degree in child psychology and taught school, she had to go through their day of training for people taking care of children."

"Our house has been inspected by their people. We got on their mailing list, which was a real treat, and for the last three years we've been getting phone calls from people wanting to know whether we take care of children for a business within our home."

"We made a mistake in trying to fulfill the intent of the law, I guess. Most people would have just taken care of this child and not paid any attention to the law."

Sederburg said, "We really should be treating family day-care homes slightly different(ly) in the law and not have them go through the same zoning requirements as other facilities."

BUT SEDERBURG criticized the sections covering group day-care centers as inconsistent.

Such homes must "maintain the property consistent with the visible characteristics of the neighborhood, but at the same time require adequate off-street parking for employees."

"That seems to me in most neighborhoods would automatically mean you could not be consistent with the general characteristics of the neighborhood."

"I do not have any problem in requiring a group home - a business facility - having to seek zoning approval by the local city or the local township."

Sen. Harry Gast, R-St. Joseph, said the bills "usurp local zoning, local planning. Maybe Sen. Faxon feels he has the wisdom that is far superior to those in the local units of government. (Faxon) has been trying to make the issue the kids. That's not the issue here; it's usurping local planning."

Congress

Pollack offers reason for change

ASK LANA Pollack a question and you'll get a straight answer. We like that about the two-term state senator. Pollack, D-Ann Arbor, is running for the 2nd District U.S. Congressional seat now occupied by Republican Carl Pursell of Plymouth.

In the past, we've endorsed Pursell for the seat. But Pollack is clearly the best candidate the six-term incumbent has ever faced. And she offers good reasons for change.

For starters, Pollack carries a strong commitment to the environment. That's important because the polluted Rouge and Huron rivers bring environmental concerns right to the doorstep of many 2nd District voters. Major environmental action groups have endorsed Pollack, which draw attention to this issue.

Pursell, however, considerably weakened his own environmental record by voting against renewal of the nation's Clean Water Act. His vote is unforgivable. His rationale — that the proposed program would be too costly — should, to coin a phrase, carry little water with district voters.

There's been an attempt to brand Pollack an "Ann Arbor liberal," carrying with it the implication her policies are too far out of line for most district residents. But upon examination of her legislative record in Lansing, we find the phrase doesn't ring true.

Pollack's concerns — environment, affordable day care for children, health care for seniors and all uninsured Americans — are mainstream concerns. Her recommendations for achieving affordable child care and health care by creating a partnership where the biggest responsibility would fall to private providers, are mainstream as well.

Pollack carries a strong commitment to the environment. That's important because the polluted Rouge and Huron rivers bring environmental concerns right to the doorstep of many 2nd District voters.

The best reason to vote for Pollack, however, has less to do with ideology than with personal style.

While we, in the past, have supported many of Pursell's initiatives, we find the incumbent suffering from a common Washington disease: the inability to take a decisive position on critical issues of the day. The charge Pursell "blows with the political wind" carries some merit.

In 1982, when Ronald Reagan's popularity still hadn't coalesced Pursell was a member of the "Gypsy Moths" — a band of northern GOP congressmen who broke from Reagan on key economic issues. But two years later, when Reagan invincibly rolled to re-election, Pursell's rhetoric drifted considerably rightward. Now, Pursell is back talking like a moderate.

With Pollack, however, there's little reason to believe she'll soften her views, or rhetoric, to bend with prevailing political fashion.

She's tough-minded, intelligent and hardworking. And she's committed to serving residents of the 2nd District.

That's why we urge voters to support Lana Pollack in the Tuesday, Nov. 8, election.

Proposal A

Vote 'no' on abortion issue

ANO VOTE on Proposal A will preserve the right of low-income women to obtain a legal abortion. That is the issue. That is why we endorse a no vote.

Supporters of Proposal A have sought to turn attention away from the fairness of Medicaid-funded abortions and have instead tried to define the issue in terms of taxes.

It's a false issue. The taxes used for Medicaid abortions amount to less than a dollar a year for every Michigan resident.

It's also a mean-spirited approach. Although proclaiming to oppose the use of taxpayers' money for abortions, Proposal A backers zero in only on the most defenseless women, those on public assistance.

Conveniently ignored by both Right-to-Lifers and hypocritical lawmakers are all of the state, county, municipal and school employees whose taxpayer-funded health programs pay for abortions. To meddle with these programs would have raised an outcry that is unfortunately not heard when it is only the low income who are affected.

This is not a proposal that would end abortions. Backers of Proposal A concede that 80 percent of the 18,000 abortions now funded annually by Medicaid would still take place.

THIS IS a proposal that would wrongfully eliminate guaranteed state payment for a medical procedure that has been sanctioned by the U.S. Supreme Court.

It is also true that the Supreme Court allows states to ban the use of Medicaid money for abortions. Thirty-six states have chosen that route, balancing their budgets on the backs of those least able to afford it.

Michigan should not be one of those states. Vote no on Proposal A.

Victims rights

Proposal B is not the answer

NO ONE CAN ARGUE with the claim that individuals have rights. Our country was founded on that premise. It is a policy guaranteed in the U.S. and Michigan constitutions and left up to interpretation through legislation and the courts.

The problem comes when officials try to quantify those rights by cluttering the state constitution with amendments like Proposal B which is on the Nov. 8 ballot.

Proposal B addresses the rights of crime victims, an area now covered under legislative statute. If approved, the Crime Victims Rights Act would place in the constitution a litany of rights that would include the right to fairness and respect, protection, notification of legal proceedings, restitution, an assessment against convicted defendants and enforcement of the act.

AT BEST THE proposal is a Band-Aid approach to a much larger problem. Proponents of the proposal claim the constitutional amendment would remove the statute's vulnerability to weakening by the courts and the Legislature. They add that the proposal would form a basis for legal action, if necessary.

The better approach would be to shore up the victims rights act with an educational effort for the judiciary and police officers, stiffer court sentencing and an emphasis on due process for victims.

Of major concern with the proposed amendment is whether it could be enforced. What would happen if it wasn't? Furthermore, what assets does a criminal in prison have to assess?

Certainly, victims have rights. The question is: What is the best way to protect them?

A constitutional amendment is not the answer.

TRICKS

NEWS ITEM: MICHIGAN CIVIL RIGHTS COMMISSION CHARGES USE OF CERTAIN NICKNAMES PERPETUATES STEREOTYPES.

White man's trail of lies exploits Indian culture

STRIVING to understand other cultures should be a primary goal of education.

Naming sports teams with derisive names does nothing to enhance that understanding.

That's the thought that went through my mind as I reflected over stories in two of our newspapers, the Plymouth Observer and the Birmingham Eccentric. Plymouth Canton High School's team name is the Canton Chiefs. The Birmingham Brother Rice High School teams call themselves the Warriors.

Each team is festooned with a rather surly looking portraiture that is somebody's idea of what an Indian looks like — even though most people in suburban Detroit know very little about the multi-dimensional American Indian culture or its colorful history.

It would be easy to scoff at the controversy that has grown around the recommendation by an expected report from the Michigan Civil Rights Commission urging schools to abandon Indian symbols for team emblems.

But to truly understand the issue you've got to look beneath the surface.

IN TRUTH, what happened to the many American Indian tribes and continues to happen to the remaining tribes is one of the sorriest marks of shame on American history.

The destruction of these cultures is America's contribution to world genocide.

If anyone could be labeled as the warriors in the battle between the American Indian and the Caucasian, honors would have to go to the white man.

Steve Barnaby

To mask this as a reasonable act, American opinion makers wove a tale of lies to show that American Indians were vicious, blood-thirsty killers, warriors by nature, who should be wiped from the face of the earth.

In reality, American Indians never were — nor have they ever been — that way. They certainly weren't saints. But if anyone could be labeled as the warriors in the battle between the American Indian and the Caucasian, honors would have to go to the white man.

MANY TRIBES hunted wild animals as a way to survive. But it was the white man who nearly wiped out the bison. Other American Indians fished but were driven from their streams and lakes by white men who wanted to use their land for their own profit.

Others farmed but lost their land to real estate and railroad developers.

Still others, the Mayans and Incas, in particular, had great cultures that had mastered the arts and sciences long before many Caucasian cultures.

Yet any time these groups resisted the encroachment of the white man's greed, overwhelming violent force was brought against them. They were destroyed by the thousands, sometimes shot, other times frozen and starved into submission.

IN THE 1800s, wild stories were written to portray Indians as reckless savages. In the 20th century, dozens of movies were cranked out of Hollywood to justify the destruction of these cultures.

Unlike other cultural groups in America, Indians are easy to dismiss, to exploit. After all, there are so few American Indians left that they have little or no voice. And the truly weak in America have few friends.

The least we can do is leave them in peace and insist that our educational system cease profiting from their exploitation.

from our readers

Police have helped a lot

To the editor:

The Plymouth Police Department has been so much help with my 14-year-old daughter, who was getting into trouble and then running away from home. They really do deserve a lot of credit.

The Plymouth Police Department has come under a lot of negative fire lately, and I would like people to know that whenever needed, they are really there for us.

I know of no other way to thank them. For without them we would still be living in a nightmare.

Thank you.

Judy L. Urbanski

Hats off to local police

To the editor:

I would like to personally commend and thank the entire Plymouth Police force for acting so quickly, and for all their time and understanding.

I think we have one of the best police forces around. It's comforting to know you can count on each and everyone of them, day or night, for their help and support.

You are all a credit to the Plymouth Community. Keep up the great work.

J. Urbanski

Thanks for approval

To the editor:

On behalf of the Plymouth Vietnam Veterans Association Inc. (PVVA), I would like to publicly thank the Plymouth city commissioners for their unanimous approval of our proposed Korea/Vietnam Memorial.

We would like to thank the Vietnam Veterans of America (VVA), Detroit, chapter No. 9 for their support. We would also like to thank the Plymouth Jaycees for their early involvement, and who are planning major fund-raisers and promotional campaigns.

Funding for this $6,000 memorial will be by donations from private citizens, local and corporate businesses, and planned fund-raisers. Donations can be presented in honor of, or in memory of, anyone presently in the Armed Forces, or who served in the Armed forces during peace time.

The names of all donors and the names of those in whose honor or memory the donation is made will appear in the dedication program.

Donations can be made payable to the P.V.V.A., P.O. Box 292, Plymouth, Michigan 48170.

Your concern and support of this project is greatly appreciated. Thank you.

John Pappas, PVVA president

We owe it to the elderly

To the editor:

I've talked to you just briefly this morning about nursing homes and your article about it in the Observer in just recent days.

I'll agree that prisons can be more inviting than nursing homes. Criminals deserve to go to prison while it seems that people who work all their lives shouldn't have to go to nursing homes.

I've been involved in nursing homes ministries now for two years with my church. I attended Fairlane Assembly of God and we've attended the church since 1981.

We visit Fairlane Convalescent Center in Detroit, 15750 Joy Road.

I can't say it's easy for me to go every week, but the church and our younger generation owe it to the older generation.

Mark O'Ren, Redford

Court costs

Group wants state to cover tab

MEMORIZE THIS bit of folk wisdom about Michigan politics:

Whenever the Legislature passes a law, it passes two — one for Wayne County (or Detroit, as appropriate) and one for the rest of the state.

Case in point: Four counties — Saginaw, Ottawa, Newaygo and Wexford — have filed a class action suit in the Court of Claims against the state for a half-million dollars in court costs.

It seems that in 1979 the Legislature decided to pick up the entire bill for Wayne Circuit Court, Detroit Recorder's and Detroit's 36th District Court.

THE PROMISE was that the tab for the Wayne suburbs and the other 82 counties would be picked up later. So their courts get part of their operating money from the state, the rest from local jurisdictions.

During the recession — more like a depression in Michigan — the state couldn't make school aid and college payments, let alone take over full funding of the courts.

Robert W. White, attorney for the four plaintiff counties, explained, "As judicial costs increase, your ability to fund them comes at the expense of other programs such as road patrols, mental health services, homes for the aged and agricultural services."

Gov. James J. Blanchard, in 1983, won an increase of 1.75 percent in the state personal income tax. But that was to take care of past deficits and education — nothing for the courts.

G. Mennen Williams, the late chief justice of the state Supreme Court, spent the final months of his 50-year career in government campaigning for full state funding of the courts.

IN 1987 I heard Milt Zaagman, lobbyist for the Michigan Judges Association, hint strongly that the natives in the 82½ other counties were restless and wanted the same thing Wayne and Detroit were getting.

Zaagman put the cost of full state funding at $175 million to $225 million, as I recall. Usually it's impossible to find such megabucks in the state budget without a tax increase.

Actually, the Legislature blew a chance to complete the full court funding program. Remember that "windfall" Michigan was to get in 1987 after the federal government broadened the definition of taxable income? That windfall would have been $180 million.

The state could have pocketed the windfall, picked up the court bills, then told the counties and local units to pass on the savings from their budgets as property tax relief.

But our lawmakers acted like politicians. They cut the state income tax rate from 4.6 to 4.4 percent and left the double standard for court funding in place.

G. Mennen Williams, the late chief justice of the state Supreme Court, spent the final months of his 50-year career in government campaigning for full state funding of the courts.

Tim Richard

And now four counties, on behalf of all of us, want the state to do justice.

NEVERTHELESS, I for one am unconvinced that full state funding — for one county or 83 counties — is the answer. There is a lot to be said for a "mixed" system of state-local funding.

Judges frequently are economic illiterates. The economic fact of life is that the cost of living outstate is 23 percent lower than in metropolitan Detroit.

We in metro Detroit pay 19 percent more for dental work, 23 percent more for education, 22 percent more for housing, 32 percent more for auto insurance, 44 percent more for rent and 55 percent more for home insurance.

We have places like Oakland County, Ann Arbor, Grand Rapids and Traverse City that are going great guns, and other places like Detroit, Flint, Saginaw and Benton Harbor that are sinking.

But whether we have a mixed system, as we did prior to 1980, or full state funding, as Williams advocated, clearly the present system — one law for Wayne-Detroit, another law for everyone else — is wrong.

Good luck, Saginaw, Ottawa, Newaygo and Wexford counties!

Keep those letters coming

Perry Como used to get letters. So do we. Some examples:

• We pricked the all-American hides of some people with an editorial that opposed the mandatory recitation of the Pledge of Allegiance in classrooms. Our stand struck some as unpatriotic and defamatory to the flag.

Not so, but I'm not going to defend the stand here. I am merely going to ask some questions. How many of our critics start the day out with the Pledge? George Bush started this fuss when he said he would have found a way to make the Pledge mandatory in Massachusetts classrooms. Why, then, didn't he insist that the U.S. Senate begin each session with the Pledge? How many businesses start each day out with the Pledge? Are these people unpatriotic for not saying the Pledge daily? Or is this, as some of the best conservative writers in the nation have suggested, an embarrassing political much-ado-about-nothing?

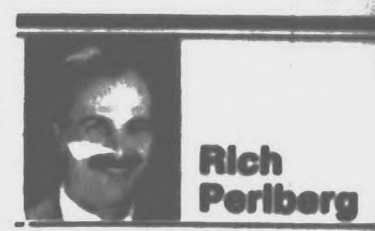

• Another letter writer suggested I was immature by inviting day care critics to stick their head in my child's diaper basket. He's right, of course. It was a juvenile thing to write. I blame it on an angered frenzy brought on by incessant columns and articles that say parents who drop their children off at day care are uncaring, money-hungry bores who put their personal success above the welfare of their child.

It makes me feel better to know that the anti-day-care people are really concerned about the well-being of the child. That's why I've started a hunt to find similar articles decrying the kids left behind without parental care when their mothers leave the city to perform maid duties in the suburbs.

I'll let you know when I find some.

• We have a literate readership that keeps us on our toes. One sharp-eyed reader suggested we meant "camaraderie" rather than "comradery" in a headline. Ever quick to defend our honor, we noted in an Editor's Note that "comradery" was accepted as an Americanism version of "camaraderie" in Webster's New World Dictionary. Another writer then gently chided us for that note. It could be an Americanism, or it could be an American version, but it couldn't be an Americanism version, he correctly said, adding it was a small nit he was picking. He got us, but we got him back. A small nit can best be found in the Department of Redundancy Department, unless our letter writer knows of any large nit.

• My favorite correction comes from a Birmingham writer who noted that a sign on a city park assertively said, "No motor vehicles allowed." Weeks later, the writer gleefully noted that the sign had been changed. Now it reads, "No motor vehicles allowed."

I think the next sign will say, "Keep your cars off!"

• Lest you get the idea that we think you are above criticism (the thought does pass our minds), take note of a recent headline that said, "103-year-old woman enjoys long life." That's from the Tell Us Something We Didn't Know Department.

Did you start your day with the Pledge of Allegiance?

More students are learning Japanese here

By Mary Rodrigue
staff writer

Japan's increasing international influence is inspiring more and more Americans to learn the language.

Although high school foreign language programs are still rooted in Romance languages like French and Spanish, a few districts, including Birmingham, are offering Japanese at the high school level with plans to expand at the middle school level.

Japanese language and culture classes are more common at the community college and university levels. At Schoolcraft and Madonna colleges in Livonia, at Henry Ford Community College in Dearborn and at Oakland University in Rochester, students are filling classes in Japanese.

And at places like Wayne State University and the University of Michigan Dearborn campus, requests for Japanese courses have officials considering adding it to the curriculum.

"The Japanese presence is becoming more visible. Japanese is becoming the second most important language as we move toward the 21st century," said Frank Hubbard, who teaches classes in beginning, intermediate and advanced Japanese at HFCC.

HUBBARD, WHO holds a black belt in Judo and was one of five members of the American Judo team at the 1983 Pan American Games in Havana, Cuba, has a lifelong admiration of the Japanese culture.

A 1957 graduate of Jochi University in Tokyo, he studied history and Japanese language at the Jesuit university.

He started to teach Japanese in 1985 and draws students from Flat Rock to Ann Arbor, he said. Journalists, businessmen and women, educators, attorneys, accountants, doctors — even employees of Japanese restaurants are among his students.

"I taught one entire family of four," he said.

Currently Hubbard, who is also Dearborn city treasurer, is working with the Dearborn Public Schools to create a Japanese course for gifted high school students.

At Madonna College, Robert Rann teaches beginning, intermediate and advanced Japanese.

"He has two company presidents in his current beginning class," said Sister Martinez, department chairman.

"Japanese usually attracts two types of students: business undergraduates and those who already have degrees and are dealing with Japanese companies," she said.

'Our Japanese enrollment has tripled. We began in 1986 with seven. Now we have 26 students in the beginning class.'

— Carol Wilson, foreign language chairman Birmingham Schools

Two Japanese auto companies, Nissan and Mazda, are referring Madonna's program to their workers, she added.

Eastern Michigan University has started a teacher education major in Japanese.

Schoolcraft College offers both beginning and intermediate Japanese, taught by Yoshiko Gingerich.

Her day job is with the Farmington Public Schools where she helps Japanese students learn English.

"What I do at Schoolcraft is just the opposite," she said.

She has been teaching at the Livonia college for three years.

SOUTHFIELD'S TWO public high schools offered Japanese last year. And foreign language department chairs for the Redford Union and Plymouth Canton school districts have been trying to implement Japanese classes in their programs.

"I'm very interested in Japanese — finding qualified teachers is a problem," said Alex Mestas, RU foreign language chairman.

"Also personally I'd like to learn Japanese," said Mestas, who has long been attracted to the Japanese culture.

"I grew up in California and lived near a (Japanese) detention camp during World War II. I sneaked in a couple of times and was very taken with the beauty they made with small places and not a lot of things," he said.

Jerry Morris, who oversees Plymouth Canton's foreign language program, said a proposal will be brought to the school board to add Japanese to Latin, Italian, Spanish, German and French currently being taught.

Carol Wilson, foreign language chairman for the Birmingham Schools, has watched the Japanese program grow at Seaholm and Groves high schools.

"Our Japanese enrollment has tripled," she said. "We began in 1986 with seven. Now we have 26 students in the beginning class."

Currently there are beginning, intermediate and advanced Japanese classes. Plans are under way for fourth-year-level Japanese. The district also offers a beginning Chinese class.

THIS YEAR the district applied to the state of Michigan for a grant to fund an Asian studies program at the middle school level, which includes sixth, seventh and eighth grades. If approved, students could begin learning Japanese in sixth grade and continue through senior year of high school.

This past summer, the district operated a weeklong Japanese immersion day camp for elementary school students. It plans to make the camp an annual event to introduce children to the Japanese culture and language study, according to Wilson.

America's fascination with Japan is evident across the country.

About 200 school systems nationwide offer Japanese, including some in predominantly black suburbs of Chicago, Hispanic neighborhoods in San Antonio, Texas, and blue collar areas such as Danville, Ill., according to Carol Bond of the Illinois-based Center for the Improvement of Teaching of Japanese Language and Culture in High School.

"In the economic world, if you know only English, you can't deal with the Japanese on the level you want," said Tram Nguyen, a Wakefield student who said she wants to pursue a career as an international corporate lawyer.

"Speaking another language helps you understand people on their level."

Nancy White of Plymouth Township believes Medicaid funding of abortions should continue. The president of the League of Women Voters of Michigan says her group opposes a ballot proposal prohibiting the use of tax money to fund abortions.

By Julie Brown
staff writer

NANCY WHITE BELIEVES state funding of Medicaid abortions should continue.

As a result, she's campaigning against Proposal A on the Nov. 8 election ballot.

"We're working to oppose Proposal A," said White, a Plymouth Township resident and president of the League of Women Voters of Michigan.

In 1987, the Michigan Legislature approved a petition presented by opponents of Medicaid abortions that prohibits use of tax money to pay for an abortion for a woman receiving public assistance. Such an abortion would be allowed only if needed to save the mother's life.

Proposal A asks if this law should be approved. A "yes" vote would stop Medicaid-funded abortions. A "no" vote would continue Medicaid funding of abortions.

The League of Women Voters of Michigan has joined the People's Campaign for Choice, a coalition campaigning for a continuation of funding for Medicaid abortions.

White, who's pro-choice as an individual, sees the ballot proposal as a question of fairness.

"It's an equity issue dealing with the funding of abortions," said White, a homemaker and community volunteer. "We see it as an injustice."

Medicaid was set up to help equalize the health care system in the United States. Low-income families are entitled to the same health care as others are, and shouldn't be denied care, she said, adding that Proposal A doesn't affect the health insurance of public employees, she said.

"YOU HAVE to wonder about the unfairness," White said. "It looks like an attempt to chip away at that (abortion), doesn't it?"

White has worked on Proposal A, although she's not as active as some others are. As state League of Women Voters president, she's working on other issues as well.

White's not sure what the outcome will be on Nov. 8, but expects it will be close.

"I think we'll have to wait to see."

Livonia resident Elaine Donnelly, who's working with the Committee to End Tax-Funded Abortions, believes her side will prevail at the polls.

"I'm confident of that," said Donnelly, a political activist and freelance writer. "The majority is with us and with the legislature."

Public support of a ban on Medicaid funding for abortion cuts across income and other lines and even many voters who favor freedom of choice will vote yes "because they're troubled about the use of tax money," she said.

Donnelly is legislative chairwoman for the Republican Women's Federation of Michigan and state issues committee chairwoman for the Michigan Republican Party. She recently signed on as a speaker with the Committee to End Tax-Funded Abortions.

Donnelly views the ballot proposal issue in narrow terms. A total of 36 other states do not use tax money to pay for abortions, and the overwhelming majority of Medicaid abortions done in Michigan are not medically necessary, she said.

"It's going for people who are coming back more than once," she said, adding that many poor women are using abortion as a form of birth control.

'We need to work toward correcting the societal problem.' Many women live in conditions much different from those of the middle class. Poverty, lack of education and lack of opportunity take their toll. I think we have to deal with that.'

— Kay Baldrice
president, Canton BPW

DONNELLY also is opposed to legalized abortion. "It's a violent act; it's a tragedy," and the procedure is "contrary to everything medicine is supposed to do," she said.

Donnelly also objects to claims that Medicaid abortion funding reduces welfare costs. She questions both the validity and the intent of those claims.

"It doesn't say much about our society or how we care for children," she said.

Other area residents aren't as involved in working on Proposal A issues, but have thought about their own beliefs.

"It's just a personal choice sort of thing," said Johnson, a homemaker and former teacher. "But I do believe in the rights of women."

Johnson is president of the Plymouth branch, American Association of University Women, and "pro-choice has been AAUW's stance for a long time."

The AAUW has, at the national level, favored freedom of choice, and while the Michigan Division supports continued Medicaid funding of abortions, the Plymouth branch chose not to take a position, she said.

"That is such a hotly debated issue," Johnson said. "Individuals have the right, of course, to speak out in any way they see fit."

Even though she's concerned about there being more unwanted children in the world, Johnson said abortion shouldn't be used as a form of birth control.

Canton resident Al Mickus sees the issue differently. He's opposed to Medicaid funding for abortion and believes abortion should be illegal.

"ABORTION is wrong," said Mickus, a lifelong Catholic and member of St. Thomas A Becket Church in Canton.

A district manager for the Detroit Free Press who plans to retire soon, Mickus believes abortion is contrary to the word of God. People should

Yes or no?

Answer's not so simple for 'A'

Coverage of elections tends to focus on prominent people and issues, while grassroots efforts get little or no recognition. The following stories look at Proposal A, which will be on the Nov. 8 ballot, and the local people who are working for and against it.

By Sue Mason
staff writer

Yes or no?
On the surface, it will be a simple answer for a not-so-simple question... a simple answer for a dispute that has spanned almost two decades... a simple answer that may be felt across the United States.

On Tuesday, Nov. 8, voters will be asked whether or not they approve of Public Act 59 of 1987, a state law that prohibits the use of state tax money for Medicaid abortions.

If the answer is yes, Michigan will become the 38th state to stop paying for Medicaid abortions.

If the answer is no, Michigan will remain one of nine states paying for Medicaid abortions.

The referendum issue, Proposal A, is yet another skirmish between pro-life advocates and their pro-choice counterparts. But this is a skirmish that some, including the likes of feminist Gloria Steinem, believe could set the stage for a challenge of Roe vs. Wade, the 1972 U.S. Supreme Court decision legalizing abortion.

The battle isn't a new one for either side, but the focus is.

The Committee to End Tax-Funded Abortions isn't arguing about choice. It is taking direct aim at another hotly contested issue in Michigan — taxes.

Its message is clear to voters: "not with my money you don't." And it not only is attracting pro-lifers, but also pro-choicers who are tired of high taxes. A statewide TV-newspaper survey this summer showed that residents wanted to scrap the Medicaid abortion program by a 2-1 margin.

IN 1985, Michigan picked up a tab of $5.8 million for 18,500 abortions. The committee argues that money could be better used to help the state's poor and that many women use the procedure as a form a birth control.

They also point to doctors who have found a lucrative business in performing Medicaid abortions, especially one doctor who collected $483,440 from the state in 1985.

On Tuesday, Nov. 8, voters will be asked whether or not they approve of Public Act 59 of 1987, a state law that prohibits the use of state tax money for Medicaid abortions. If the answer is yes, Michigan will become the 38th state to stop paying for Medicaid abortions.

"We're really looking at who should pay for elective abortions," said Barbara Listing, who chairs the Committee to End Tax-Funded Abortions. "Since 1977, the Michigan legislature has voted 18 times to end this use of taxpayer dollars, but 17 times a veto by the governor has allowed tax funding to continue."

"Michigan voters now have a unique opportunity to decide this tax issue, and we are encouraging an end to this policy. We know the consequences of these abortions, and unfortunately, when we win, it will not end abortions, but it will take Michigan out of the abortion business."

While the committee is focusing on the tax issue, the People's Campaign for Choice, a statewide coalition campaigning against Proposal A, and its new-found ally, the State League of Women Voters, are crying foul.

They claim their opponent's "sophisticated" and simplistic approach to the abortion issue is a disguise for their long-term goals — an end to abortions.

They contend that the proposal would penalize poor women by denying them access to a medical procedure because of their financial status. A lot more than $6 million is at stake in the election, they say.

PEOPLE'S Choice contends that the state will end up spending more money on welfare recipients, not less, if Proposal A passes. The state's social services director agrees.

Patrick Babcock, who is pro-choice, estimates the state spends about $7,070 on the first two years of care for each baby born to a welfare mother. If voters end Medicaid abortion benefits and just 20 percent of the mothers carry their babies to term and keep and raise them, the taxpayer's bill for hospital delivery and two years of care would be $27.7 million in 1989, he said.

"Proposal A goes too far," he said. "If it is adopted, Michigan law will prohibit Medicaid funding for for abortions, even in the case of rape or incest... That would not only be unfair, it would be cruel."

"As a nurse who remembers the tragedy of desperate women frantically seeking abortions, I refuse to return to a two-tier health care system," said Pam Dooley of the People's Campaign for Choice. "The opposition is portraying this as a tax issue. But the cost of compulsory pregnancy goes far beyond birth costs for many years."

Pro-lifers say that just the opposite is true, pointing to a study done in Ohio and Georgia in 1978, after federal and state support of Medicaid abortions was terminated.

The study showed a decline in the number of births among Medicaid-eligible women in those two states, a sharp contrast to Michigan that same year. The study also showed that even with Medicaid abortions, births among welfare recipients increased slightly in Michigan, the committee said.

PRO-LIFERS say that study shows poor women either found the money through private sources for an abortion, had the baby and either kept it or put it up for adoption, or used some form of birth control.

Will the pro-lifers be victorious Nov. 8 or will the pro-choice forces keep Michigan from being a "bellwether" for the rest of the country?

The success of one or the other may well be determined not by the well-known supporters they parade before voters, but instead by their grassroots efforts.

know what they're doing before they find themselves in the situation of considering an abortion, he said.

"This is becoming a disposable age; life should have greater value than that," said Mickus, who has six grown children. "Who gives birth to a baby? God does. Are you going to tell God what to do?"

Another Canton resident, Kay Baldrice, is "in full support of freedom of choice." She believes Medicaid funding for abortions should continue.

Baldrice, a junior high school teacher in the Wayne-Westland Community Schools, is president of the Canton Business and Professional Women.

BPW supports pro-choice legislation nationally, and the organization works on legislation to support women's rights in general, she said. The Canton BPW invited representatives from both sides of Proposal A to its recent legislative forum.

"We try to present both sides. We certainly don't close our ears," she said.

BALDRICA IS concerned about taking the ultimate choice out of a woman's hands. At the same time, she believes women should be encouraged to be more responsible for their actions. Women have to be empowered with decision-making, she added.

"The question of abortion is a much bigger issue," she said. "We need to work toward correcting the societal problem — many women live in conditions much different from those of the middle class. Poverty, lack of education and lack of opportunity take their toll."

"I think we have to deal with that."

Museum offers old-time toys to a new generation

By Julie Brown
staff writer

It's not too soon to start searching for holiday gifts and stocking stuffers.

And the gift shop at the Plymouth Historical Museum can help busy shoppers find that just-right item. Gifts for children, teenagers and adults are easy to find.

"We have reproductions of early American toys," said Ruth Jacobs, a Plymouth Historical Society member who's in charge of the gift shop.

Toys, games and puzzles are popular with school children who visit the museum, 155 S. Main, Plymouth. Jacks, miniature bottles and dishes appeal to some young shoppers.

"Each group is different," said Jacobs, a Northville resident who used to live in Plymouth. "If one buys something, they all do."

Small paint sets, priced at 65 cents, sell well. The gliders, priced at 80 cents each, are popular with youngsters. Some children buy marbles or other small toys.

"It depends on how much money they have to spend," she said. "A lot of times they don't even think of candy."

OFTEN, CHILDREN'S gift choices will be based on what they've learned during their museum visit. If they've learned about Indians, those gift shop items will sell well.

Gender is no indicator of what youngsters will buy. Girls will buy marbles and boys will buy jacks, Jacobs said.

The clothespins dolls created by folk artist Barbara Kingsbury are popular with shoppers.

The Plymouth Historical Museum is the only place to buy Barbara Kingsbury's dolls, other than arts and crafts shows the artist attends, Jacobs said. The dolls include a Raggedy Ann and Andy set, Victorian dolls, clowns and others.

Christmas tree ornaments and decorated Victorian boxes are sold at the museum gift shop as well as handmade tinware items and handmade baskets.

Plymouth souvenirs, such as a $7.50 tile depicting the Wilcox house, are available. The shop carries a few greeting cards and has a collection of postcards.

JACOBS SELLS quite a few American flags, priced at $1.25, and Michigan flags, priced at $2. Flag stands are available for $1 each.

"I've sold a lot of them to people going to Europe. They're always surprised to find them." The flags are nice gifts for European friends and relatives of travelers.

Not all the school children visiting the museum buy toys and games for themselves. Some are thinking of others.

"They buy for mothers, and quite often for a sister or brother at home," said Jacobs, who's been in charge of the gift shop for about 10 years.

"There's something really for most everybody," Jacobs said.

And while the museum is well stocked with a variety of items, it is careful not to compete with area retailers. Such competition wouldn't be fair, she said.

The museum gift shop is open during the museum's regular hours, 1-4 p.m. Thursday, Saturday and Sunday, as well as from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Wednesdays and Thursdays.

Admission is free for those coming to the museum just to shop. For more information, call 455-8940.

Money from the gift shop supports the efforts of the Plymouth Historical Society.

The historical society is dependent on gift shop proceeds and other support, Jacobs said. It's not affiliated with the city of Plymouth government, although some residents believe that's so.

"Everything we do here just helps to keep the museum open, really."

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Small bisque dolls nestle in a basket-weave pram at the Plymouth Historical Museum gift shop. The dolls, small enough to be stocking stuffers, are $1.50 each. The pram is $2.40.

Ruth Jacobs of the Plymouth Historical Museum tries her hand at an old-fashioned toy, a ball and socket. She's trying to maneuver the ball into the socket with the version the museum sells for $3. There's another model for $5.

Folk artist Barbara Kingsbury fashions her clown doll with a saucy bow in its hair and an ear-to-ear clown smile. The clown's available at the Plymouth Historical Museum gift shop for $15. Its chair is priced at $5.

Episcopal Church ordains bishop

The Rev. R. Stewart Wood, Jr., 44, was ordained and consecrated as bishop co-adjutor of the Episcopal Diocese of Michigan Saturday in an ancient and colorful ceremony at Cathedral Church of St. Paul in Detroit.

Wood was elected to the position May 7. He was rector of St. John Episcopal Church in Memphis, Tenn., at the time of his election. He will follow The Right Rev. H. Coleman McGehee Jr. as chief bishop of the diocese when McGehee retires. McGehee has not announced his retirement.

The Diocese of Michigan includes the eastern half of the state's Lower Peninsula. Area Episcopal churches include Church of the Holy Spirit in Livonia, St. Andrew Church in Livonia, St. David Church in Garden City, St. Elizabeth Church in Redford Township, St. John Church in Plymouth and St. John Church in Westland.

Catholic school grads plan reunion

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

A grand reunion is being planned in Livonia for graduates of West Side Detroit Catholic schools and anyone else who's interested with proceeds benefitting an inner city school.

The fund-raising reunion, scheduled for 6 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 27 at the Monaghan Knights of Columbus at 19801 Farmington Road in Livonia, will benefit St. Theresa Visitation elementary school in Detroit.

"The reunion is not just for graduates of St. Theresa and Visitation, but all west side Catholic schools. Anyone who wants to come is welcome," said Mary Kay Galvin, chairwoman of the event. "We're encouraging people to come and see their old friends."

Proceeds will be used to help defray tuition costs — now $1,320 a year per student — at St. Theresa Visitation. Tickets, $25 per person, will be available at the door. Sandwiches, snacks and refreshments will be served.

"This is a school that offers so much that people really struggle — they go without a lot of things to provide their children with a positive experience so they can grow up, be successful and have a good life," said Galvin. "This might make it possible for children to attend who otherwise wouldn't be able to."

ST. THERESA Visitation (formed at St. Theresa when nearby Visitation closed) is battling tough inner-city problems, added Galvin. All teachers are trained as substance abuse counselors. The gym is open after school for students and their families.

Family counseling is available. The school is open both before and after classes to accommodate students whose parents work.

St. Theresa Visitation's Montessori program has received "the highest commendation from the regional supervisor for the American Montessori Association," said Galvin.

If the event is a success, it will have drawn heavily from communities throughout western Wayne and Oakland counties.

"There was a real network of people throughout the Catholic schools who came to know one another mainly by competing against each other in sports activities and attending parties together. It was a very rich, warm and supportive environment," said Galvin.

"There was a real sense of belonging. There are a lot of graduates in Farmington, Northville, Plymouth, Livonia, Bloomfield, Birmingham and the Rochester area — really all of the western and northern suburbs."

IF GRADUATES returned to their schools today, "some of them would find their school closed," said Galvin. "But where they still have schools, they'd find the same heart and spirit that were there when they were there, only in a much different framework because certainly, the financial support for the schools isn't the way it was. It didn't use to cost as much. The sisters worked for nothing practically.

"The same rootedness that we felt, in a very spirited way, is still a part of it. It allows the people of that community to belong to something very stable, very strong and very positive. The schools have been very successful in the whole approach to non-violence and conflict resolution."

"In a city where we have a deplorable homicide rate among children under 17, it's gratifying to know there are places that are successfully combatting it."

"It's amazing what they're doing in the city, dealing with the same kinds of problems the rest of the schools are dealing with. And they're not in some type of Utopia. They're right there, with the same problems, but successfully dealing with them."

St. Theresa Visitation is on Quincly, a block north of Grand River between Joy and W. Grand Boulevard. For more information, call 652-9159 or 361-1065.

moral perspectives
Rabbi Irwin Groner

We all are special in this world of ours

The most important definition is not "Who is God?" but rather "What is man?"

The way we answer this question affects the society in which we live, the nature of our conduct, the moral choices we make and the development of our character.

The sages of old ask a fundamental question about the creation story. Why was only one man, Adam, created? God created swarms of living creatures, the creatures of the sea and the beasts and the animals and all that move across the earth. God took dust and created one man. Why not an entire race?

They offer several interpretations, each of which conveys an enduring moral truth.

First, the act teaches the significance and sanctity of human life. Every human being is a world in himself. Thus, when a person destroys one soul, it is as though he caused the world to perish. Conversely, he who saves a single soul is credited with saving the whole world.

TOLTALITARIAN states make their citizens slaves of the political order. Man is a tool of the dictator or a victim of the tyrant, or a sub-human species subject to extermination.

But the Bible declares that each person is born with a dignity that cannot be denied or rejected. No power on earth, no organization or movement has the right to deprive any human being of the dignity and the holiness that inheres in him.

Secondly, the sages declare that the creation of Adam and Eve convey the truth that each human being is unique. Each of us is God's unrepeatable experiment, his unduplicated creative event. Our differences and uniqueness is part of that divine gift that resides in every person.

Judaism argues that there is "no common man" or "average person." Each of us knows in the depth of his or her being that he or she is not average. Each person is someone special and distinctive, who knows his own secrets, who bears his own hopes and dreams, his own fears and desires.

THIRD, THE human race began with a single individual for the sake of peace among all men, so that no man might say, "My ancestor is greater than yours."

The sages taught that there are no superior or inferior races, that we are all equal in the sight of God, that every person has the rights of life, liberty and the enjoyment of God's world, rights that are inalienable having been conferred upon him by the Creator who loves his children without distinction.

Finally, the sages say that every person should have a measure of pride, should recognize his own worth, and should be able to say as did Adam on the first day of his existence: "For my sake, the world was created."

Food, Drug Act: Alive, well

Throughout the course of the year, the Consumer Mailbag column refers many times to the FDA (Food & Drug Administration) in answering your questions or in passing along information.

It seems appropriate to highlight the many consumer protections the FDA and the Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act (FD&C Act) offers us on its 50th anniversary.

In 1938, President Roosevelt signed the federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act into law. There is "no law with more practical benefits in our daily lives than the FD & C Act," said Dr. Frank Young, commissioner of food and drugs.

This law surpassed the 1906 Act by giving the FDA the responsibility of insuring the safety of products that command one quarter of every dollar we as consumers spend.

Despite warnings of the 1906 law's lack of consumer protection, most consumers assumed they were well protected.

Little did they know they were eating apples sprayed with arsenic-laden pesticides or using a weight-reduction product, Marmola, that contained enough desiccated thyroid to cause serious health problems or applying untested cosmetics, including an eyelash dye that caused one death and 18 cases of permanent blindness.

Terry Glbb

DESPITE these tragedies, it took the Elixir Sulfanilamide tragedy in 1937 — in which a new liquid form of the drug sulfanilamide, which was tested for taste, appearance and color but not safety, killed more than 100 people — to force the FD & C Act into law.

The FD & C Act of 1938 is significant because, rather than outline punitive measures, it stressed hazard and consumer protection.

New drugs could not be marketed without adequate testing to insure safety. False or misleading statements on drug labels were now illegal. Warnings of the potential hazards of drugs were required.

And for the first time medical devices and cosmetics were included under the FDA's authority.

By requiring pre-market product testing for safety, the new law promoted consumer protection. It tried to prevent injury and deception rather than just punishing guilty manufacturers after the damage had been done.

Another significant benefit of the FD & C Act is that it has served as a basis for later laws and regulations to deal with public health concerns. The 1906 Act took 25 years to get passed. The FD & C Act took five years and a tragedy to win passage.

The FD & C Act has focused on the need for consumer protection and fueled a new national consensus of the consumers' right to protection.

Passage of later amendments to the FD & C Act, while not totally free from debate, have reflected a greater spirit of responsibility among government, health professionals, manufacturers and the consumer.

What can she say to the dying?

Dear Jo:

My mother-in-law, who is also a good friend, is dying of cancer. I am unable to talk to her. I wish I could — but I can't. Is there anything I could read that would help me — before it's too late?

Mrs. Y.M.,
Western Reader

Dear Mrs. M.:

The helpless feelings that you are experiencing are usually due to a combination of fear, embarrassment, guilt and sadness. For so many of us, dying is so far removed from everyday experience that we just don't know what to do.

Dr. Robert Buckman, a cancer specialist and assistant professor at the Toronto Bayview Regional Cancer Centre at Sunnybrook Hospital, University of Toronto, has written a book on this distressing subject.

Appropriately titled, "I Don't Know What to Say: How to Help and Support Someone Who Is Dying"

gerontology
A. Jolayne Farrell

(Key Porter books), it deals frankly and in plain language with many of the real concerns around this sad and troublesome topic.

This is the first book written specifically for the friends and family of a dying person. It explains not only how to talk to a dying person, but also how to listen to what the dying person is saying.

Other difficult issues that Buckman deals with are how to talk to doctors and nurses; when to seek guidance from other professionals; how to approach spiritual questions; why it's important to know what's going on medically, and how to find out; what are some of the unorthodox treatments, and why you might feel guilty, and how to deal with feelings of guilt.

Mrs. M., you really must talk to your mother-in-law about her death. By talking and listening you will be a great support to her at this important time — for both of you.

You will profit from reading Dr. Buckman's book. You can find it in most bookstores or at your local library.

Readers can write to Jolayne Farrell at 11 Cynthia Crescent, Richmond Hill, Ontario L4E 2P8.

Newlywed struggle: spending vs. saving

By Alan Ferrara and Dan Boyce special writers

Local financial planning experts reviewed the data of the family profiled here and made general recommendations based on the participants' resources and goals. The information is for educational purposes only; references are not intended as discrimination or endorsements by Observer & Eccentric Newspapers or the advisers interviewed.

To receive a free financial planning brochure or to obtain a questionnaire to have your finances reviewed in this column, contact the Center for Financial Planning, Dept. 100, 877 S. Adams, Suite 202, Birmingham 48009 or call 642-4000.

Most people have aspirations to reach certain financial goals. At the same time, their desire to live the "good life" often pre-empts the ability to reach those goals. Achieving the appropriate balance between current needs and future goals is a central objective of financial planning. Finding that balance is the focus of our discussion with this month's profiled couple, Alan and Terri Miller.

Alan and Terri were married four months ago and rent an apartment in the Plymouth area. Alan, 26, works as a draftsman in a small architectural firm; Terri, 28, works in the accounting department of a local hospital. Their salaries are $24,000 and $32,000 respectively.

In our brief discussions with them, there is a clear lack of agreement on their financial priorities. For Alan, financial security is represented by having a home and building a solid base of savings. For Terri, security means surrounding herself with nice possessions and enjoying the fruits of their labors. We think there is probably room for both objectives, but it will require flexibility and a willingness to compromise.

Alan has seen to it that they have a solid foundation for their financial planning. Their insurances are adequate in each of the major areas (life, health, disability, auto and renters' insurance). Also, due to recommendations in this column, Alan has insisted that they draft simple wills shortly after they were married. Another plus for them is they both have steady incomes and fairly secure jobs, although Alan realizes the fortunes of architectural firms can change suddenly.

THEY AGREE THAT they would like to own a house in two years. But John is concerned that their savings balance has not increased since they were married. He is frustrated after only four months. He had insisted that Terri pay off all of her charge accounts shortly before they were married. Recently they bought some furniture and found themselves with an $1,800 balance. John finds this disturbing.

Terri, in contrast, wants to upgrade their dining room furniture and wants to plan a major vacation next summer. She believes that with a combined income of $56,000, they should be able to afford these expenditures.

In reviewing their finances, we suggest that Alan be more patient in the accumulation of their assets. Terri needs to understand that she can't have everything at once. We suggest they pay close attention to prioritizing their desires.

Although they have not made progress toward building a nest egg to purchase their house, it is not unusual to have a number of one-time expenses after a wedding. If there is still no progress after a year, then Alan's concern would be better founded.

Terri needs to understand that there will never be a shortage of consumer goods on which to spend their money, no matter what their income level. The key here is to prioritize their goals, begin setting aside some savings to reach their highest priority long-term goals and then live within the bounds of their remaining income.

WE RECOMMEND that they track their expenditures during the last months of 1988. In December or early January, they should sit down together to review their income expectations for 1989 and then create a month-by-month spending plan that reflects their combined priorities.

At the end of each month in 1989, they should examine their actual ex-

The Bottom Line

Financial strengths

- Steady incomes and employment.
- Adequate insurances: life, health, disability, property.
- Have drafted wills.
- Plenty of time to assess and reach goals.

Financial weaknesses

- Lack of agreement on how to handle finances.
- Lack of spending controls or budget.
- Poor pension plans at work.
- "House down payment" account is not growing.

FAMILY FINANCES

penses and compare them with their earlier projections. It may not be practical to keep track of each penny spent, but certainly any major expenditures should be noted. Because they plan to pay most items by check, this should make the job easier.

They should not be concerned if there are minor variances in their projected and actual expenditures. But if there are major expenses that crop up unexpectedly, they should carefully examine the impact of those expenditures on their other goals.

Alan wonders about saving for retirement. He asks, "Should I be putting money into my company-sponsored 401K plan for my retirement?" We suggest that he should allocate a small portion of his income into this tax-deductible plan. Perhaps $1,000 per year is a realistic target at this time. This helps establish the habit of saving regularly for retirement.

Because their more immediate goals include the purchase of a house and establishing emergency reserves, any additional savings should be put toward those goals. By the time he reaches 30, he should target at least 10 percent of his income toward retirement. This is extremely important because neither Alan nor Terri has a generous pension plan at work. Thus, the majority of their financial security at retirement will be provided by their own savings.

Alan was considering a proposal to buy $100,000 of life insurance for a premium of $1,800 per year. He believes that the build-up of cash values in the policy would be another good means of saving for retirement. At this time, we would recommend against the purchase. He has adequate life insurance without the additional coverage, the proposed policy is quite expensive, and any retirement savings are more appropriately done at this point through his 401K plan.

If Alan and Terri can agree to spend the time to assess their most important goals, prioritize them and allocate their resources to their most important priorities, they should be able to reach a comfortable balance between their current standard of living and their future financial security. Though this task is not always easy, it is highly rewarding. It is time well spent.

Dan Boyce, a certified financial planner, is a past president of the Metropolitan Detroit Society of the Institute for Certified Financial Planners whose practice is in Birmingham. Alan Ferrara is a partner in the Farmington Hills law firm of Couzens, Lansky, Feak, Ellis, Roeder & Lazar. He is immediate past president and current board member of the southeast Michigan chapter of the International Association for Financial Planning.

Neither has a generous pension plan at work. Thus, the majority of their financial security at retirement will be provided by their own savings.

Add K mart to sporting goods roster

By Anne Fracassa special writer

Troy-based K mart Corp. officials are banking on the increased demand for sporting and leisure-time equipment to make their Sports Giant sporting goods "super stores" household words.

Analysts last year cited $32 billion annual sales in the sporting equipment industry, and they predict a doubling of those sales by the end of this year.

The first two Sports Giant stores will be in the Woodland Square Shopping Center (on Plymouth Road across from Wonderland in Livonia) and in the Madison Commons Shopping Center (on John R, south of 14 Mile, Madison Heights).

"The Detroit area and especially all of Michigan has every kind of recreational activity available to residents," explained Charles White, general manager and chief executive officer of Sports Giant, a division of Builders Square, K mart's Texas-based subsidiary.

"There isn't very much a Michigan resident can't do in this state, and that's why we've chosen this as our test market."

Spring openings are scheduled for the 50,000-square-foot stores whose primary competitors will be Dunham's, MC Sporting Goods and Herman's Sporting Goods, according to White.

"Our competition can mostly be classified as specialty stores, catering to a common sports enthusiast," he said. "Sports Giant will be a lot more, catering to competitive and non-competitive consumers."

THE STORES WILL offer "market-competitive" pricing, but all customers will be offered discount pricing ranging from 5 to 10 percent for in-store merchandise through a membership program. Although the membership dues have not been established, White said they will be "nominal."

"We also plan to provide the service needs of all our customers. Each store will have services such as racket stringing and bicycle repair, team clinics and members-only special promotions."

Sports Giant will offer boat and swimming accessories, scuba, fishing, camping, lawn toy, skiing, golf, tennis, hunting and exercise equipment. Athletic and sports apparel and athletic and sport footwear will be sold.

Team equipment for baseball, softball, soccer, football and bowling, including special order equipment and supplies, will be sold.

"There will be an even mixture of products that will appeal to the general public as well as the sports enthusiast," White said. "Sports Giant will actually be centered around 12-14 specialty shops, each with its own experts in the field available for consultation. Our ski shop will be 10,000 square feet alone."

White said success of the store hinges on knowledgeable employees available for personalized service. Each Sports Giant will employ nearly 100.

"Pricing will also be a factor in our success. The size of our stores will allow full-service needs to our customers in an industry that has been basically self-serve until now. With all that in mind, plus providing quality, brand-name merchandise, we see expansion to other areas of the country possible within 10 months of our grand opening."

"We've tailored the stores carefully. None of them will compete with our present K mart facilities; rather, Sports Giant will enhance them."

2 Brink's play name game

By Pat Murphy staff writer

How important is the company name?

"Worth fighting over," say two area home security firms contesting for the right to use the name "Brink's" in their company logo.

Brink's Alarm of Livonia has been using the name for 12 years and should be allowed to continue, said founder Ronald G. Handloser.

"I didn't have any link with Brink's when I founded the company," he said. "I just picked that name because it seemed to denote money and security. But I had the name first, and I should be allowed to keep it."

But Brink's Home Security said it should have exclusive rights to the name because it is a subsidiary of the Pittston Co. of Darien, Conn., which also owns Brink's Inc.

"We have a legitimate right to use the name," said Timothy P. Sass, branch manager of the the company that opened in Livonia two years ago and subsequently moved to Farmington Hills as business blossomed.

Hoping to clear up any confusion — as well as to solidify its claim on the name — Sass contacted the Michigan State Police about Handloser using the name.

"We are involved because the Burglar Alarm Contractor Act of 1978 requires us to monitor home security systems and their installers," explained Lt. James L. Baird, commander of the Private Security and Investigator Section of the Michigan State Police. "We're not on anybody's side. Our concern is that installers are properly licensed and comply with the law."

BAIRD SAID records show that officials connected with Brink's Home Security have a valid license while there is some question about Brink's Alarm.

The home security business is a growth industry in the Detroit area and other metropolitan centers, according to a spokesman for the Burglar and Fire Alarm Association of Michigan.

Within the last 15 years the percentage of homes with burglar/fire alarm systems has increased from 2 to about 10 percent nationally, said Carl Romano, president of Audio Sentry in Fraser.

"More people are concerned about crime and personal safety," Romano said, and they are increasingly willing to invest in a home system that generally cost between $600 to $2,100.

Handloser said he realized the potential 12 years ago when he founded Brink's Alarm and subsequently turned the business over to his daughter, Marilyn. "There's a good living in that business if you're good and you work hard," he said.

Handloser said he and his daughter have worked hard to establish a customer base as well as a good reputation. "We should keep the Brink's name. We've had it all these years, and now they want us to change. It's the big company against the little guy."

BUT THE STATE police say it's a matter of complying with the law. "So far, we have tried to resolve the matter administratively," said Baird. "But if that doesn't work, there are criminal sanctions."

'I just picked that name because it seemed to denote money and security.'

Brink's vs. Brink's

"Hopefully it won't go that far. Handloser could clear this matter up quickly if he'd just change the name of his company and go through the proper license procedure," Baird said.

Handloser said he and his daughter have already taken steps in that direction. "We also have 'Apex Alarm' (with the same address in Livonia)," he said.

His daughter balks at the thought of being forced to change the name. "We've been incorporated all these years, and it just doesn't seem right to have to change just because this other company wants to keep the name," said Marilyn, a 1986 graduate of Bentley High School who attended Schoolcraft College.

Both Brink's companies claim to install a quality home security system at reasonable prices. Besides having the same name, they have little in common.

Brink's Alarm is basically operated by Marilyn Handloser, with occasional help from her dad, from the family home at 32825 Summers. "We have a lot of satisfied customers," Marilyn said.

Brink's Home Security has about 20 employees, said Sasa, and occupies about 2,000 square feet of space in Technology Park at 27360 Haggerty Road in Farmington Hills. "We offer a fine product, and we're in business to stay," said Sasa.

Growth stocks shield retiree from inflation

As I plan for retirement, it looks to me like it would be a good idea to have an income that went up somewhere's 5-6 percent a year. Inflation has been modest in recent years, but it looks like around 5 percent this year.

I see friends who retire after seven or eight years begin to be pinched as their income stays the same but their expenses keep moving up every year. As I figure it, just a 5 percent increase in costs a year means your expenses have doubled in 15 years.

The only answer I see to that is building a retirement income that will do the same. The answer seems to me to be in building a holding of stocks where the income can be counted on to do that for me.

Would you start me off with a few stocks that I could count on to increase dividends at 5 percent or more?

from stocks in businesses with a good record of growing income and dividends is a good way to provide for the future. The one drawback is that you have to accept less income from the same amount of capital in the early years.

Exxon Corp. is one company you could use for this purpose. It is the world's biggest petroleum company. It has increased its dividend every year but one in the last 11 years.

The dividend has gone from 8.82 cents a share in 1976 to a current rate of $2.20. Earnings per share were $1.55 in 1978, over $3.43 in 1987 and are estimated to be $4.25 in 1988.

THERE IS never any guarantee such growth will continue, but if you spread your money over 10 or 12 stocks with a record like this, your average should be good and help you weather any disappointments if one or two of the companies don't work out.

International Business Machines is not the rapid grower it used to be, but still seems capable of providing a moderate increase in dividends from time to time. In 1978, its dividend was $2.86 and currently it is $4.40. It earned $5.33 a share in 1978 and is expected to report about $9.50 this year.

has really been in its present corporate form since 1980, and its dividend that year was $2.60. Currently, it is $2.04.

We all must keep in mind that there is a risk in every business, but it is not difficult to reduce the risk in stock ownership to a level that most of us can be comfortable with. Stock ownership in a business, and business represents the economic life of the entire nation. Most businesses have problems from time to time, but they are worked out and progress continues.

I don't have room to list more, but any good broker will be able to suggest dozens of companies with similar records for your consideration.

GENERAL ELECTRIC is another company that is a major part of a major industry and has continued to make progress over the lifetime of even senior citizens. Its dividend in 1978 was $1.63. In the present year, it is $1.40.

A smaller but equally vigorous company is Emerson Electric. Many banks are soundly managed and have excellent records. NBD Bankorp has increased dividends from $1.54 in 1978 to $1.48 currently, while earnings per share have grown from $1.89 a decade ago to an estimated $4.45 this year.

Financial Planning is Important

The third annual Financial Independence Week, focusing on the achievement of financial independence by the American public, will be celebrated nationwide from October 23-29. Leading professional and educational organizations in the financial services industry will participate.

"Your Financial Bill of Rights" is the theme of the 1988 Financial Independence week. State and community events surrounding Financial Independence Week will be sponsored by local and state financial planning chapters and societies.

Inaugurated in 1986, this observance is dedicated to letting the public know that through sound and thoughtful planning and the use of basic fi-ancial techniques, such as saving and investing, one can achieve a level of financial security that will improve the quality of life.

Financial planning practitioners play a key role in helping consumers who seek assistance with their finances. Through a logical, step-by-step process, planners and their clients can achieve financial goals such as comfortable retirement, sending children to college, purchasing a home and reducing tax liabilities.

Sponsors of Financial Independence Week include leading professional and educational organizations in the financial planning industry—the Institute of Certified Financial Planners, the College for Financial Planning, the American Society of CLU and ChFC, The American College, and the Foundation for Financial Planning.

What does a financial planner do?

With the increased interest by Americans in achieving economic security, financial planning has gained respect among consumers.

Many people at all income levels are identifying a need to plan their future and are seeking advice from a financial planning professional.

Financial planners are trained professionals who will analyze your financial circumstances and develop a comprehensive plan. Planners employ a series of objective strategies and make specific recommendations to help you achieve your short-range and long-range financial goals.

"Financial planners work for people of all income levels"

Qualified planners are financial generalists who can provide you with information on a variety of financial products and alternatives appropriate to your personal situation. Other professionals, specializing in areas such as stocks or tax shelters, also are available to you, but financial planners are best equipped to help you understand the "big picture."

The planner you choose may work independently, with an association, in a small firm or with a large financial services industry.

Regardless of their business situation, planners are trained in all areas of financial planning and can provide you with sound professional advice.

The first step in developing a financial plan requires the planner to examine your financial situation by conducting personal interviews and lengthy questionnaire.

Among the areas the planner will review are your assets, liabilities, sources of income, real estate, net worth, cash flow, investments, family status, tax bracket—anything that will affect your financial future. The entire plan is based on these responses.

The planner then identifies your career and financial goals, which can include saving for your children's college education, preserving your family estate, building equity in your home, making investments, minimizing your taxes and providing for a comfortable retirement.

With these goals in mind, the planner also evaluates other factors, such as whether you have too much or too little insurance, if there are tax-saving strategies you can consider and what your best alternatives are for investments.

From all the information collected, the planner will develop a comprehensive long-term personal financial plan, taking into account changes in the inflation rate and interest rates, changes in tax laws and new investment opportunities.

From this point, planners can take varying roles. Some advisors, known as fee-only planners, will present you with the information, leaving specific investments, savings plans, and tax strategies to be implemented by specialists. Commission-only planners, who do not charge for the development of a plan, make their income from your purchase of financial products recommended in the plan. Others combine a fee with commissions from products.

Whatever type of planner you choose, your financial advisor should review and update your financial plan at least once a year.

Changes in your job situation or family status, as well as the overall economy, could make a difference in how your financial plan works.

Do I need a financial planner?

Virtually everyone needs some form of organized budget, or a list of priorities for their earnings and expenses. While the affluent generally have more money-related decisions to make because of their higher discretionary income, people with middle and lower incomes actually may have a greater need for financial planning because they must be more careful about how they manage their money.

Financial planners work with people of all income levels to help them achieve financial independence by tailoring a financial plan to "custom fit" their specific goals and personal interests.

You may have questions about your personal money management and whether or not you should seek the advice of a financial planner. The following statements can serve as a guideline.

You should consider hiring a financial planner if:

- You want to save or invest a portion of your income to achieve one or more specific goals, such as funding your child's education, buying a house, or setting aside money for retirement.
- You seek methods to minimize the amount you pay in income taxes.
- You want to identify investment opportunities that make sense for your financial situation.
- You want to be certain of adequate insurance coverage.
- You have a sum of money deposited in a low-interest-bearing account and need advice on how to maximize its earnings potential.
- You want to secure your assets for your personal estate.
- You have a general idea about what to do with your money, but you lack the knowledge needed to organize a plan geared toward financial security.

"Qualified planners are financial generalists"

How do I select a financial planner?

Because any planner you choose will help you make important decisions about your financial future, you have the right to expect certain standards of performance from your financial planning professional.

There are literally thousands of people who can serve your financial planning needs, but which one is best for you and your particular needs?

The following suggestions offer some guidance to help you find a planner that is right for you:

• Interview at least three financial planners before selecting one. Start by asking for recommendations from your friends or business associates who have used a financial planner.

• Examine the planner's background. Look for a degree in accounting, economics, business administration, or finance. For added assurance, choose someone with a financial planning designation, which means that the practitioner has met certain educational and expertise requirements, passed a series of exams, agreed to adhere to a code of ethics, and make a commitment to ongoing professional development.

• Many planners specialize. Learn what areas the planner is particularly knowledgeable in and whether he or she concentrates on a particular type of client.

• Check for regular involvement in continuing education activities and membership in professional financial planning organizations.

• Evaluate the planner's experience. Has he or she entered the financial services industry only recently?

Line's anniversary shows how times change

Ford held a 75th birthday party a couple of weeks ago for the moving assembly line out in Wayne, where they still build cars, rather than in Highland Park, where the original Ford plant now stands empty, decorated with a sign that promises someday it will be turned into boutiques and office buildings.

Not that I blame Edsel the Deuce for not wanting to stage a media event in front of an abandoned factory. The brief ceremony Ford and a few historians held at Wayne commemorated something that still dominates the way we live today — one of those pieces of history that you tuck alongside the dates of foreign wars and when the Wright brothers flew and then probably forget about.

Ford also picked Wayne so that it could contrast the gleaming, modern, automated facility where they make Escorts with the primitive efforts at Highland Park, illustrated in pictures of that factory when it was new.

You quickly notice that workers used to wear hats to work; now they wear safety glasses.

ONE SHOT OF the original Model T plant shows workers bolting an engine into place after lowering it on a chain fall — the kind you buy for $29.95 at the discount store. At today's Wayne plant, a complex, automated "moon buggy" likely costing millions does the same job for the same two workers. It's easy to see why they're getting richer in Silicon Valley than were are in Detroit.

In search of progress, I tried fiddling with a calculator with the $8-a-

day pay those guys earned while wearing hats, and discover they could buy a $360 Model T with about 75 days' wages. It takes the guys with the safety glasses a little over 110 days worth of take-home pay to buy the Escort. Oddly enough, the difference isn't in the hourly wages paid, which seem to work out roughly the same in days worked per car after 75 years. The loss in buying power comes from the federal taxes paid in today's high tax brackets. I try again with productivity. The Model T eventually came to be assembled in 93 worker minutes. The Escort plant is slightly worse, despite the hundreds of millions invested in automation. Of course, the Model T was a simpler machine, and fewer steps taken to put it together.

Auto history is largely abandoned in Detroit, sometimes to be found in weird corners. Nikki's Greek Pizza downtown was once an automotive machine shop. The huge wooden pillars that seem a bit overkill for pepperoni were needed to support second-floor operations. The huge pillars also were a block to long assembly lines until Albert Kahn developed long-span roofs that quickly allowed a mile-long line at the Rouge.

THE STAGGERING wealth that accumulated so quickly made it seem reasonable for the Fisher brothers to commission the Fisher building from the same Kahn less than 20 years after the Rouge start-up. The Fisher Building, an ode to Italian marble, also recently celebrated its 60th birthday. The yacht Donald Trump recently paid $28 million for looks tacky besides Dodge's Delphine, now used as a maritime academy on the East Coast.

Commuting also is considerably slower today that it was then. The concrete arches that stand across the rail tracks in east Dearborn are all that is left of an interurban electric rail system that ran town-to-town at better than 60 mph while Ford was fiddling with his new assembly line.

"History is bunk" was something Henry Ford I was supposed to have said, although I had a college professor who claimed he was misquoted. The line actually went: "History is bunk; it's nothing but the story of popes and kings."

Then Ford went on to build Greenfield Village, so we could see how it used to be for the rest of us. It's something worth doing now and then.

Single-premium immediate versus deferred annuity

Part II
Last week we discussed SPWL and SPUL. This week we will analyze Single Premium Deferred Annuity (SPDA) and Single Premium Immediate Annuity (SPIA).

An annuity refers to an investment on which a person receives fixed payments for a certain number of years or for lifetime. Annuity bought with a lump sum is called single-premium annuity.

SPDA is an investment program in which the lump sum grows for a number of years (hence the name deferred) before the amount is distributed to the investor. Here is an example:

Assume John Client, age 62, bought an SPDA for $20,000. The guaranteed interest for three years is 9 percent. At age 65 he would have a $25,900 policy.

IF HE wants to convert it into a lifetime annuity, he will receive a monthly income of $239.93. Also 42.4 percent of this amount would be considered a return of principal and would be received tax-free.

If John wants to add other constraints, such as payment for joint life, or a minimum payment for 20 years, the monthly payment would be reduced.

finances and you

During the accumulation period, the money grows tax-deferred. Also, as mentioned, at the time of distribution, a significant portion of the monthly income is assumed to be a return of capital and is received tax-free.

SPIA is very similar to the SPDA, except that the investor begins receiving monthly payments immediately. Using the $20,000 figure, John Client, age 62, would receive a lifetime income of $205.11 as compared to the life-time income of $293.93 received under SPDA.

AN INTERESTING variant, known as AUTO 5, combines the SPDA and SPIA concepts.

Here the $20,000 lump sum investment is split in two parts. $13,548.82 is diverted to the growth or accumulation sector; this amount will grow to $20,000 in five years.

SPDA and SPIA are attractive investments, but they are not for everyone. Consult your planner.

Leisure time can be used to direct career

Before opening MarkeTrends, I spent years working within the corporate environment. Starting out as a bank secretary after high school graduation, I eventually worked my way up through various positions in the legal, chemical, automotive and floriculture industries.

During those years I learned a lot about knowing when to stay and when to leave a particular business or industry. This week's column is directed to those interested in pursuing a more satisfying and profitable career while minimizing the risks involved.

"The golden ties that bind" is a common reason used to explain why people remain in otherwise monotonous occupations. "I'll never earn as much money anywhere else." "I can't quit now when I have only one more year before becoming vested." Or "I need the benefits."

Along with this rationale, many may add that their job does not require much thought or effort. "My responsibilities are limited, but at least I can come in, do my thing, and leave when I want."

If you're in a similar position, perhaps the question to ask is: "If I were required, would I stay here for the next five years?" If not, there's focus: small business

no time like the present to put the wheels in motion that will lead you in another, more positive direction.

No one needs to quit a full-time position in order to focus time and attention more productively elsewhere. As a bank secretary, I had no idea what I wanted to do over the long term, but I did know that my free time could initially be used to attend seminars, classes and professional events.

The motivation behind my decision was simple: By taking a passive approach toward my own career growth, I would lose control as to what I wanted, when I wanted it. It was equally important that I develop a strong "support" network with others outside of the banking industry. Although several of my co-workers were good friends, the subject of "doing something else" was never encouraged or discussed.

After 18 months, I had turned a favorite hobby into a part-time career and had left the bank for a higher-paying position in the legal field. Seven years, two more jobs, and about 60 college credits later, I deecided to finish school to pursue a career in marketing. It has been a somewhat long and winding road but one that was well worth traveling.

It's now been nearly three years since I made the final transition from corporate player to independent business owner. For information on career strategies, readers may contact my office at 474-1149.

Businessman can send a gift if occasion calls for it

By Joan K. Dietch special writer

Dear Joan: I like to send gifts to clients from time to time. Lately this is more of a problem because of bad publicity concerning bribery and so on. How can I indulge this pleasure of mine in giving gifts without any suggestion of bribery or impropriety?
V.B., Bloomfield Township

If there is a reason to send a gift, do it at that moment, not later. Send a sample of your new product before its launch, send a client your wedding gift within a month of the wedding, not a year later.

If there is a natural, proper reason for sending a gift, the act will not look contrived and suspicious. Never send a substantial gift to a businessman or businesswoman with whom you are trying to negotiate a deal.

Some reasons for sending gifts to business colleagues: to say thank you for lunch or dinner in your honor, to encourage someone who is starting a new job, to apologize for having put someone to a great deal of trouble, to wish good luck for a birthday, an anniversary, to move to another city, a retirement, earning a promotion, having a baby, performing well in public, giving a good speech. These are all legitimate and courteous ways of showing friendship.

Dear Joan: I'm a junior executive in the firm and new. With Christmas coming up, what is reasonable in the cost of a present to a client?

M.M., Rochester

Gifts presented by junior executives and mid-managers to clients should cost between $10 and $25 on the average. The gift should be presented in person if possible. Voice, expression and handshake all add to the impact of your gift.

Dear Joan: With Christmas coming up I am desperate for client gift ideas. Please make some suggestions for small but thoughtful gifts.
T.W., Utica

The best advice ever given on this subject was "think before you act." Do your homework, be aware of the person's hobbies, sports, and special interests.

Two good sources of information are the client's secretary and/or spouse. Consider the person's lifestyle and needs, does he/she spend a lot of time in the car, perhaps an accessory for this kind of travel would be good. Visit your favorite bookstore, look through leading mail-order catalogs, watch newspapers and magazines, use personal shoppers at the department stores. Look around your local gourmet food shop.

These suggestions should get you started in the right direction.

Courageous Movie retells colonel's adventure

By Dan Greenberg
special writer

WHEN ALL the rhetoric about Vietnam has faded, the individual human sacrifices will remain and stories of great human courage will endure as testimony to mankind's very best qualities.

One such testament is Air Force Col. Icael Hambleton (Ret.) whose harrowing story behind enemy lines in Vietnam is the subject of Gene Hackman's latest film, "Bat 21."

Hambleton was in town recently with producer Gary Neill, promoting the movie. Always concerned with the difference between illusions on the screen and what happens in real life, I asked how accurate the film is.

Neill responded, "That's where we've got you. Everything you see happened."

AND IT IS a remarkable happening, this story of a 53-year-old combat veteran of World War II and Korea, an electronics specialist who was shot down because the enemy changed its firing system.

"Never," Hambleton said, "never underestimate your enemy. They had a new computer and fired their missile optically — that took away our five-second reaction time, and 16 minutes later I'm down where it ain't so good."

Lt. Col. Icael Hambleton (left) was shot down in Vietnam and his story became the movie "Bat 21" produced by Gary Neill.

The colonel was on the ground behind enemy lines for 12 days and lost 40 pounds.

"I came out weighing 128 pounds. All I had to eat was four little ears of corn I found in someone's garden. But food was no problem. I was hungry, I guess, but I didn't realize it because of the tension. The big problem was getting water, but luckily it rained the third day. I never slept more than five minutes at a time."

The film does alter some of the colonel's experience. Neill said, "We don't show everything because he was on the ground 12 days. We show three to four days because so much of his experience was all the same."

The colonel noted, "The first six days I was in a little area, not moving at all, an area about twice the size of this table (luncheon table set for eight), that was the hole I had gotten myself into."

"You see, on my way down, parachuting down, I contacted 'Bird-dog' (an Air Force rescue pilot played by Danny Glover). He was circling in the area where I went down, and he followed me to the ground so he knew where I was going to hide."

"THE AIR FORCE'S directions to me were, 'Stay right there, and we'll be in to get you.'" But the colonel was not so lucky. His story continues, "The combination of heavy ground fire and weather all going bad at the same time — so they couldn't get in to pick me up at first light. That went on for six days. It would be tedious on the film to show me in a hole for six days when the big action came on the seventh day after I started to move."

Neill remarked that the story is incredible. "The first thing that came to me when I read the script: How could this all happen to a guy, and he's still alive?"

There are no snakes or animals in the film, a departure from the usual Hollywood jungle picture. The colonel, who doesn't like snakes, said, "I didn't run into any wild animals, which that country is famous for. I saw two great big snakes just as I got to the river, and I threw a little stick at them and they took off. Mosquitoes were the only problem I had."

Producer Neill recounted a "snake story," which occurred during filming on the island of Borneo in Malaysia. "We were the first to film there, and there were a tremendous number of problems in getting permission, accommodating local customs and so on. One of our trucks ran over the village's pet snake, and we had the entire village up in arms, so we paid compensation."

"How much, Mr. Neill?"

"Whatever they asked."

Hambleton now lives in retirement in Arizona, a quiet and unassuming man given to understatement, someone who did the job he Canadian new music group Skinny Puppy plays Saturday at Saint Andrew's Hall in Detroit.

Skinny Puppy: Canadian trio leads dog's life

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Dwayne Goettel of Skinny Puppy is trying explain his band's place in the dog-eat-dog world of rock 'n' roll.

"A lot of Skinny Puppy's attitude comes from seeing life through a dog's eyes," said Goettel, keyboard player with the Canadian new music group. "It's sort of slow and in the corner. It's not able to react with a bite back or a snarl back, but yap back where the dog would open his mouth and all this weird stuff would come out like, Arrrrrrckkph (demonstrates the sound)."

Meet Skinny Puppy. No, better yet, let's examine Skinny Puppy. The Canadian trio plays a mind-bending music with apocalyptic images, which can give you the heebie jeebies at times. Topics covered on its present LP, "Vivi Sect VI" (Capitol), include nerve gas attacks and hospital waste. Needless to say, Skinny Puppy isn't asked to play at weddings.

Animal rights is the focal point of its Head Trauma Tour (which stops Saturday at Saint Andrew's Hall in Detroit).

Skinny Puppy's live show includes film from laboratories that use animals for experiments. The footage was smuggled out by the Animal Liberation Front. A local animal rights chapter also will set up a booth at the concert.

Movie retells colonel's story

was assigned. "In my opinion, the anti-Vietnam feeling we had was because the war was fought over the breakfast table — they (the media) were right out in the field with their cameras."

HAMBLETON BELIEVES it was a political war: "I'm a lieutenant-colonel and pretty far down on the list. It was a political war, and the politics were in the oval office. I was over there just like everybody else. I was assigned to do a job, and I went and did the job."

Hambleton learned something from doing his job, and that lesson is everywhere apparent in "Bat 21." It is the movie's unique and most important characteristic. Unlike most war movies, Hambleton's enemy is human, and their suffering becomes his.

"This whole episode changed my opinion," he said, "I've been in three wars, flew in combat in two of them. When I went to work, flying on missions, I'm sitting there just about like this in clean flying suits, cup of coffee, sandwiches, 30,000 feet in the air, nice clean, air-conditioned cabin. No mess, no sweat, you know. Never, ever thinking that somebody's going to shoot you down.

"Something like this always happens to the other guy. Can't happen to me. Nope, can't happen to me. Suddenly you become the other guy and it kinda shakes you up."

"Sixteen minutes after you punch out of this airplane, you're down there in all this mud and muck and grime. People are shooting over you and shooting at you and around you and at each other. Big guns blasting off, people hollering, people screaming."

HAMBLETON DISCOVERED a great deal about humanity during his 12 days on the ground behind enemy lines. It is to his credit that he learned to suffer with his enemy. And it is the colonel's good fortune that that lesson was not lost on producer Neill.

"Bat 21" is suspenseful and well-acted but most of all, it teaches us that human strength, courage and sacrifice — the very best human characteristics — know no national borders. Even your worst enemy is kind to someone.

Hambleton learned that the hard way. We can learn it at the movies.

'Something like this always happens to the other guy. Can't happen to me. Nope, Can't happen to me.'

— Colonel Icael Hambleton

'Home' done with perception

Performances of the Theatre Guild of Livonia-Redford production of "Home" by David Storey continue through Saturday, Oct. 29, at the playhouse in Redford. For ticket information, call 427-1905.

Bob Weibel

By Bob Weibel
special writer

Theatre Guild of Livonia-Redford's 35th season is off to a delightful beginning with British playwright David Storey's incisive and well-crafted "Home." On the surface, it's a comedy. But its theme is the tragedy of the mentally ill.

There is little or no plot. The success of the play depends on characterizations. And they are first rate. Director Rebecca Smith has molded her cast of exceptional performers into a marvelous evening of theater.

The title "Home" is really a double entendre. It's not the home of warmth, family, happy memories and contentment but rather a home for the insane where sadness, loneliness and melancholy prevail.

The setting is an English garden with a wrought iron table and two chairs. We first meet two elderly gentlemen (Harry and Jack) played by Howard Egan and Tom Hinks.

They banter back and forth about boarding school, military life, politics, the weather and related subjects that have filled their British upper class lives. It's rather jolly good stuff. Hinks at times loses his British accent but more than compensates with his attitude and observations about the world. Egan is superb with his mannerisms and timing of his responses: "Oh, dear," "Ah, yes," "Really," "My Word."

SLOWLY WE REALIZE that something is not right. We continue to laugh at their antics, but it's not with compassion. These two old men are living empty lives in an insane asylum. They are psychotic personalities with acute depression and melancholy.

Soon they are joined by Marjorie and Kathleen, two lower class ladies, with whom our upper class gentlemen pair off as they compromise their illusions of elegance.

Diane Kremser as Kathleen creates a dazzling nymphomaniac whose loose sex behavior and non-stop talking and laughing are almost more than poor Harry can take.

Peggy Joyce as Marjorie has fashioned a caustic and believable paranoid personality, who clutches her parasol to her bosom and trusts nobody — especially men.

David Rago establishes a very effective persona as childlike gorilla Alfred, who has had a prefrontal lobotomy.

These characters interact in bizarre ways. Nothing is forced, however. And yes, we laugh. But there is something human and poignant about their attempts to reach out to one another, however clumsy and conflicted it may be. They recognize their plight, that they are "not right in the head." Still, they attempt to cope with their situations. Perhaps that's the point of it all. For as one character says, "If one can't be what one is, what's the use of being."

THE SQUEAMISH might avoid the front row. The pictures are not pretty. Goettel said the band is only presenting reality.

"I can't even look at it and it's right behind me on stage," Goettel said. "I'm sure there is going to be somebody who doesn't understand what we're trying to do."

"Then we'll go on an airplane with stuff (about animal rights) on our jackets and people will give us compliments, which makes us feel real good."

The live show is set in a laboratory and begins with the band's lead singer, Nivek Ogre, as a man who is ignorant about the plight of animals. He becomes a vivisectionist and, eventually, a torture test subject himself.

Goettel said animal rights has always been a concern of band members, but only recently has it evolved into music. The band's name is merely a coincidence.

Some cynics might doubt Skinny Puppy's sincerity, saying the band is only going for the shock appeal. Goettel said he has yet to hear any complaints.

"I'm expecting it, obviously," he said. "I'm curious to see when and how it happens and how it manifests itself."

"The last thing we want to do is divide people on this where you have people saying, 'Oh, well, I'm a vegetarian,' or, 'I don't eat foods cooked in animal fats,' or, 'I don't wear a leather jacket.'"

"It's horrible when it gets to that point. We're not trying to preach any type of lifestyle."

THE ONLY preaching the band does is by making diverse, twisted music. Critics have lauded Skinny Puppy for its ability to repel and seduce. The band formed in 1983 with Cevin Key and Ogre discovered a mutual taste for mutated music.

Goettel joined the band in 1986, replacing Wilhelm Schroeder, who went on to a solo career.

Skinny Puppy has released four albums. Goettel said "Vivi Sect VI" is the darkest one of the lot.

"It wasn't like we were on the musical hot seat," Goettel said. "If you can write from more than the mean experience... I'm really happy with this album is what I'm trying to say."

Skinny Puppy will perform Saturday at Saint Andrew's Hall, 431 E. Congress, Detroit. Tickets are $14.50 in advance ($17 at the door). For more information, call 961-MELT.

Belinda Biggs of Redford (left) and Wendy Flynn perform in the comedy "Noises Off" at Eastern Michigan University in Ypsilanti.

Eat In Only. Specials of the Night Only

Which of these meals does your heart the most good?

We're more concerned than ever about what we're eating these days. But a lot of people in metro Detroit don't have that problem. They're just trying to figure out where their next meal is coming from. Which is one reason the United Foundation supports 154 different agencies, including local food assistance programs such as the Salvation Army and the Gleaners Food Bank. And programs that help counsel troubled families, assist the unemployed, fight infant mortality and just give some people a new start in life. So, give generously to the Torch Drive campaign and fill out your pledge card now. It could be somebody's meal ticket.

Give, for all the good you can do.

WRITE IT AND REAP!

Writing a classified ad that gets results—whether it be for real estate, employment, the personals, transportation, or merchandise—is easy if you follow the guidelines below.

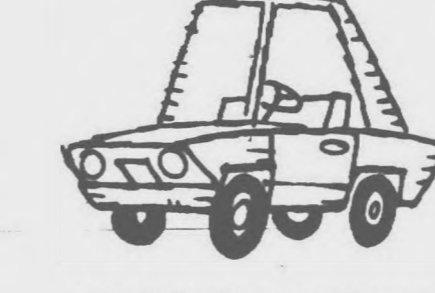

1. Give the reader specific information. Pretend you are someone reading the classifieds. What would you like to know about the item, service or job you are advertising? Be sure to add details such as color, size, condition, brand name, age, features and benefits. Be accurate! Don't embellish your ad with misleading information. Stick to the facts and reap the rewards!

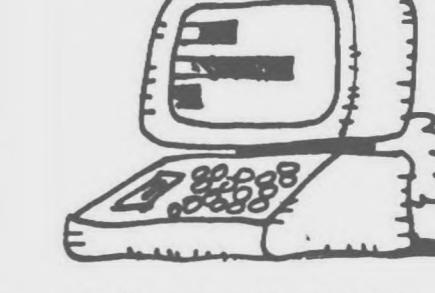

2. Include the price. Don't waste your time or a potential buyer's time. If you advertise the price of the item or service you offer, the people who respond to your ad will be those who are genuinely interested. Surveys show that readers are more interested in those items and services they know are within their price range.

3. Avoid abbreviations. Don't make a potential customer work too hard! Although you may be tempted to cut down on the cost of your ad by using abbreviations, surveys indicate that many people don't understand such abbreviations as EIK (eat-in kitchen) or WSW (white side wall) tires and won't take the time to figure them out. A confused reader is a disinterested reader. Get the most for your money and use complete words.

4. Include phone number and specify hours. Be sure to let potential customers know when and where to call. Surveys show that even if a person is very interested in your item or service, he or she will not call back after the first attempt. Stay near the phone during the hours you indicate you will be available. Don't risk missing a sale!

5. Run on consecutive days. Your ad will not get results if people don't see it! Therefore, it is important to set up a consistent and consecutive ad schedule with your telephone salesperson or outside sales representative.

Erin Olson of Salem was second in the breaststroke and a member of the medley relay team Tuesday in the dual meet with Dearborn. The Rocks lost a close one to the state-ranked Pioneers, 92-80.

Team depth takes Salem to 1st place

Plymouth Salem sent a message to other area girls swimming teams Saturday by winning the Belleville Invitational.

Salem beat out defending champion and Western Lakes Activities Association power Livonia Churchill to capture first place.

The Rocks scored 386 points, the Charges 345. The host Tigers were next (178) followed by Dearborn Fordson (136), Westland John Glenn (94) and Livonia Franklin (51).

"We were a little surprised, pleasantly surprised," Salem coach Chuck Olson said. "I'm not quite sure how Churchill approached the meet, but we wanted to do well."

"I KNOW THERE was a homecoming dance that night at Churchill, and they swam some of their kids early in the meet. But they all swam. We didn't swim our strongest lineup, either."

The Chargers had a lot more first places, but Salem won the meet with excellent depth. Jenny Ezzo had the Rocks' lone first, scoring 325.75 points to win the diving.

swimming

Salem placed three girls among the top 12 in every event and, in some cases, had three in the top six.

"We went in with the idea we wanted to experiment and see how the girls performed under those conditions," Olson said.

"We didn't think too much about winning the meet, to tell you the truth, but it's an indication we're definitely progressing."

Salem's depth showed in diving, in which it also captured third, fifth and ninth places.

THE ROCKS WERE second in both relays, too. Sarah Andrews, Andrea Alex, Erin Olson and Jodi Thomas swam 2:04.83 in the medley relay, and Nicole Bosse, Dawn Shiek, Tammy Hickey and Stacie Anderson finished the freestyle relay in 4:06.99.

Three of the relay swimmers helped with runner-up finishes in solo events: Anderson in the butterfly (1:08.47), Anderson in the 500 freestyle (5:46.9) and Olson in the breaststroke (1:13.17).

Megan Andrews contributed a pair of third-place swims in the individual medley (2:33.99) and breaststroke (1:15.4). Jennifer Syria was third in diving with 299.15 points, and Trish Hill was third in the backstroke (1:11.26).

Salem's No. 2 unit of Julie Hickey, Jane Seidelman, Thomas and Katie Vesnaugh contributed a third place in the freestyle relay (4:09.01).

The victory also gave the Rocks an emotional lift, coming just two days after losing a dual meet, 109-63, to rival Plymouth Canton.

"Coming off the loss to Canton on Thursday, it was hard to tell how they were going to react," Olson said.

"THEY DIDN'T LET that bother them, and they went out and swam another good meet. The meet with Canton wasn't disappointing — the score was — but we came back Saturday and swam very well."

Plymouth Canton coach Rob Neu gave thanks to Amanda Bell and the clock Tuesday night after the Chiefs edged Westland John Glenn, 44-42, in a girls basketball thriller.

Bell scored 12 of her 14 points in the fourth quarter for state-ranked Canton, which improved its overall record to 13-1.

Glenn (7-5) had the last possession and a chance to tie the game or win with a three-point basket, but the ball went out of bounds off a Canton player as time expired.

Glenn coach Pat Bennett was unable to convince game officials that one second still remained.

"Thank God we won," Neu said. "They're always tough at home. I don't think anyone expected it to be that close, but on behalf of Glenn, they kept coming. We needed a (close) game like this."

Canton led 20-16 at halftime and took a 34-30 lead into the fourth quarter. Bell made six of 14 field goals in the fourth quarter, all coming from the outside.

Susan Ferko paced Canton with 16 points and eight rebounds. Candi Jones added eight points and 10 rebounds.

Glenn stayed close behind the shooting of Christina Hoffman, who finished with 12 points. Yvette Lawrence added 11 and Sarah Morey contributed 10 points and 14 rebounds.

FRANKLIN 57, W.L. CENTRAL 56: The Patriots ran their record to 9-3 Tuesday with a non-divisional win at Walled Lake Central.

Freshman guard Dawn Warner of Livonia Franklin scored a game-high 26 points, hitting all eight of her free throws. She also tallied the game-winning basket with 13 seconds remaining.

Junior forward Cheryl Hintz came off the bench to add 16 more.

After Warner's hoop, Central closed the gap to 57-56 on a free throw and then forced a Franklin turnover.

Central's Kelly O'Hanlon, who led the Vikings with 20 points, rimmed out a five-footer as the buzzer sounded.

Tonya Smith added 16 points as Central fell to 8-6 overall.

SALEM 56, CHURCHILL 18: Host Plymouth Salem led, 28-7, at halftime Tuesday, coasting to its 11th win in 13 outings.

Salem increased its lead to 41-7 after three quarters, outscoring Churchill 13-0 in the first eight minutes of the second half. Still, both coaches had nice things to say about Churchill, a team that is 4-9 overall.

"Athletically, they were pretty good."

Salem coach Fred Thomann said. "They did a lot of nice things defensively. We never were able to get on a roll against them — and we've been scoring a lot of points lately."

Said Churchill coach Dave VanWagoner: "We played with a lot of intensity. And we never quit. We just got beat by a better team."

Jill Estey sparked Salem with 18 points and Teri King added 15. Sarah Ruete contributed eight points and Lydia White grabbed 13 rebounds for the Rocks. Carrie Blanchard scored nine to lead Churchill.

Sophomore guard Erin Harvey made her first start for Salem, contributing six points.

"She handled the ball well," said Thomann. "And her real good quickness made a difference in the team defense."

W.L. WESTERN 55, STEVENSON 35: Michelle Hall led visiting Walled Lake Western with 26 points Tuesday, including 20 in the decisive second half.

Western moved to 6-7 overall, and Livonia Stevenson fell to 1-12. The game was a crossover in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

The two teams were tied at 20 at halftime, but Hall, a 6-foot-4 center, scored 16 of Western's 18 third-quarter points, and the Warriors opened a commanding 38-26 lead.

"We had three centers in there, and while they were rested we could stay with her (Hall)," Stevenson coach said. "As they got tired, we weren't able to box her out. It was a matter of her hitting a

Harrison, Glenn to decide '88 title

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Like all football coaches, Westland John Glenn's Chuck Gordon and Farmington Harrison's John Herrington talk about the need for a balanced offense.

In the case of their undefeated teams, that hasn't always been necessary during the first seven weeks of the 1988 season.

But you get the impression they're quite serious — and even concerned — about it this time.

In the biggest game of the year between two Observerland teams, defending champion Glenn visits Harrison for a rematch of last year's Western Lakes Activities Association final, won by the Rockets 14-6.

The Hawks are ranked No. 1 in Class B, the Rockets No. 5 in Class A. Both teams are 7-0. Kickoff is at 1 p.m. Saturday.

THE CONTEST will match Glenn's ground-oriented offense and Harrison's high-powered passing attack against a pair of stone-wall defenses.

The Rockets prefer to give the ball to tailback Bryant Satterlee, who has rushed for 942 yards and 15 touchdowns. He needs just three more TDs to break the school record set in 1985 by Tony Boles, now the star running back for the University of Michigan.

But Glenn threw the ball successfully last Friday to beat North Farmington 30-6 and win the Lakes Division championship. The Rockets may have to do that again.

"I don't see us pounding the ball on Harrison," Gordon said. "They're too good. That's why I think we'll have to mix it up."

When the Raiders ganged up to stop the run, quarterback Eric Stover completed nine of 14 passes, throwing for 118 yards and all three of his team's TDs.

"They're an excellent running team, but now we know they can throw the ball real well," Herrington said. "We were glad when (former

Brandon Hartke of Plymouth is No. 1 in Michigan.

The 16-year-old received a No. 1 Michigan bicycle plate for winning the Novice Division in the 1988 Michigan National Bicycle League State Championship Race last month in Davison.

The top 10 riders in each category receive such an award, as well as an invitation to compete as part of the state team in the President's Cup in Columbus, Ohio, later this year.

Hartke, ranked 13th nationally in the novice age group, has been racing bicycle moto cross (BMX) for 3 1/2 years. His home track is the Waterford Oaks BMX in Pontiac, but he also has competed in Lansing, Grand Rapids and Richfield.

Racing has taken Hartke to competition in Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky this year. His most recent out-of-state race was in Louisville, Ky., when he earned his No. 13 national ranking last month.

Hartke hopes to attain the rank of expert soon and would like to continue racing into adulthood. Furthermore, his ambition is to own his own bicycle shop one day.

Bicycle moto cross has been in existence since the late 1960s and became very popular in the '70s. Many tracks, however, have closed due to high costs of insurance and upkeep, but interest in the sport is on the upswing again.

There are four classes of BMX riders, and they include the beginner level, novice, expert and pro. There are age classes for those 4-years-old and up, and there riders nationwide in their 50s. Some of the best are female, too.

A Super Expert class may be added in the future since so many young riders are becoming so good before turning professional.

There also has been talk of adding BMX to the Olympic Games as an exhibition sport. The sport has international appeal, with some Michigan riders having competed in Belgium last August.

The riders must have proper BMX bikes, helmets, padded shirts and pants and non-slip shoes. Most tracks are 1,100 to 1,200 feet long with turns and jumps dotting the course.

The majority of tracks are supported by volunteer groups who keep up the tracks, register riders, score races, marshal the contestants for proper riding, equipment and trophying.

Shamrock golfers 4th in Class A

Redford Catholic Central capped its golf season Saturday, placing fourth at the state Class A meet held at Michigan State University's Forest Akers (West) Golf Course in East Lansing.

The Shamrocks, 10-1 during the regular season and champions of the Catholic League, scored 324. Grandville and Grand Blanc tied for the title at 320, but the championship went to Grandville because its No. 5 man had a better score than Grand Blanc's. It was Grandville's first state title since 1976.

Third place went to East Lansing, which finished at 321.

Senior Mark Stephens, who led CC's second-place finish with a 79 a week earlier at the Pontiac Country Club regional, tied teammate Scott Krueger for CC's best round. Each carded 80's, good enough for 11th in the field. Bill Piercey chipped in with an 81 and sophomore Joe Sullivan added an 83 for the Shamrocks.

"WE MATCHED our average for the season," said CC coach Jeff Bean, whose team ironically went into the meet ranked No. 4. "Of course, you can always do better, but we were very consistent throughout the season. We weren't as up and down as last year."

"I'm real proud of the way we played, and I think we can do as well next year. Three of our top six are back."

Jason Fournier, a junior, was Churchill's low scorer, tying Stevens and Krueger at 80. Sophomore Bill Durham and junior Alex Bedaway each shot 83, while senior Kevin Wallon scored an 85.

Churchill coach Ken Timmons was pleased with the Chargers' performance and is excited about the prospects for next season.

"For having three underclassmen and one senior, we did excellent," he said. "The people at Forest Akers didn't make the grass unusually rough. They could have made it much harder to score."

"The course was extremely fair. Of the four kids, Fournier shot better than you might expect, and the other three did very well."

Plymouth Canton sophomore Rod Jesena shot a round of 88 as the Chiefs' only individual qualifier.

IN THE CATHOLIC LEAGUE meet held last week at Riverview Highlands, CC scored 319 to unseat defending champion Rice.

Sullivan, second overall, shot a 77 followed by Stephens (79), Piercey (84), Johnson (85) and Jeff Brown (86).

Canton driver invited to rally

Stanton Thornbury of Canton and Michael Conner of Rochester have been invited to compete in the Press on Regardless professional road rally on Friday and Saturday, Oct. 28-29, in Houghton.

The POR is one of eight professional rallies sponsored by the Sports Club of America to help determine the national PRO Rally champion.

Conner, 25, and Thornbury, 24, will drive a 1980 VW Scirocco, special built for the PRO Rally circuit.

The Press On Regardless Rally is the most popular of its kind in countries outside of Europe and Africa, Conner said.

"All the big-name rallyists will be there, and it will be a thrill to compete against them," Conner said.

Added Thornbury: "This is the World Series of rallying, the big one. We've been working toward this goal for a long time."

Conner and Thornbury are graduates of Michigan Tech University. Conner is the driver. He has rally experience as a crew chief for other teams and a driver in division rallies, but this will be his first National PRO Rally.

Thornbury is the co-driver, having been both a control and service worker on the POR in the past.

Conner and Thornbury were invited to the POR after an impressive showing at the Georgian Trails Rally in Georgian Bay, Canada, in August.

Jon Davis, former two-time national PRO Rally champion and chairman of this year's POR, said the two were selected because of their previous experience.

"Mike and Stan are the kind of young talent we need in this sport," Davis said. "They have proven to us they have the skills necessary to compete with the big guys."

The POR covers more than 175 competitive stage miles. The course is set over rugged, backwoods roads near Houghton, and competitors will reach speeds in excess of 100 miles per hour.

mer Glenn quarterback Clint Straub graduated, but it looks like this Stover is every bit as good."

THOUGH GLENN has emphasized the run, the 6-foot Stover, a 155-pound junior, has completed 38 of 71 passes for 566 yards and eight TDs.

"We've felt confident with Eric Stover all year," Gordon said. "We've been able to move the ball on the ground against teams and just stayed with it."

"He's getting better each week. Before his career at Glenn is done, he'll end up being a pretty good quarterback."

Gordon also has another junior quarterback on his mind this week — Mill Coleman of Harrison.

The 5-foot-9, 166-pound Coleman is a bonafide all-stater and is the catalyst for an offense averaging 40 1/2 points a game.

Coleman, who has passed for nearly 5,000 yards in less than three years as a varsity player, has completed 59 of 102 attempts for 1,195 yards this season. He also has thrown 16 passes for TDs, and only three have been intercepted.

"Mill Coleman is as good a quarterback as we've ever faced," Gordon said, "and they have tremendous receivers. You can't key on one; you have to defend a pack of them."

COLEMAN'S FAVORITE target has been Bryan Wauldron, who has 27 receptions for 595 yards and seven TDs. But Chad Burgess (17-309-5) on the other side is just as dangerous, and there's also swing-backs Steve Hill and Tim Horton.

The Hawks haven't had to worry about running that much. In most cases, Harrison gained large first-half leads by passing, and the first team usually played only three quarters.

But the Rockets defended Harrison well last year, and Herrington, while he plans to "go with what got you there," isn't betting all on the passing game.

"We have to mix it up," he said. "They play a solid 3-deep, and it's hard to beat them with the pass. That's why (Joe) George and (Matt) Conley will be an important part of our game."

Conley, who started the season at tailback, got hurt in the first game against Southfield, but he is recovered and ran hard last week against Livonia Churchill. George, who took his place, is the team's leading rusher with 212 yards.

"I think Matt is back to full speed," Herrington said. "Joe is running well, and I think we can run both of them and keep them fresh. They have different styles, so they're hard to defend."

SATTERLEE HAS a bruised shoulder, but that shouldn't prevent the 6-foot-2, 210-pound senior from slamming into the line, according to Gordon.

"When you get to this point, a lot of players are nicked up, but he'll be fine," he said. "He's been banged up for a while."

Coleman, who has rushed for 188 yards and three TDs, adds another dimension to Harrison's offense since he's an effective scrambler and runs off the play-action pass.

"They contained him last year but, hopefully, he'll break loose," Herrington said. "All teams work on containing Mill, but sometimes his natural ability takes over."

"It all starts with him because of his escape ability, tremendous arm and foot speed," Gordon said. "He can take a play that you've defended pretty well and turn it into a big gainer because he's such a fine athlete."

The defenses will have just as big a role in determining the outcome. The Rockets have allowed only 26 points, Harrison 40. Both have four shutouts, and neither has given up more than 14 points in one game.

"THEIR DEFENSIVE line is as quick as the one they had last year," Herrington said. The Hawks outgained Glenn 274-253 last year but were stopped at the Rocket 16-yard line late in the game when Coleman was sacked twice. "Defensively, they're every bit as good."

"Everyone talks about Coleman and the offense, but their defense and kicking game are excellent," Gordon said. "It's not like they're a one-faceted team."

WLAA offers top game

By Dan O'Meara and Brad Emons staff writers

OBSERVERLAND HAS waited all season for this football game.

The championship of the Western Lakes Activities Association will be decided at 1 p.m. Saturday, and it should be a dandy.

For some time, it's been obvious that Farmington Harrison would be the Western Division representative for the seventh consecutive year. The Hawks, with the passing of quarterback Mill Coleman, are rated No. 1 in Class B.

Any one of three Lakes Division teams could have made this an appealing game, but the fact Westland John Glenn provides the opposition makes it an even greater match-up.

The Rockets, the No. 5-ranked team in Class A, are the defending champions and have beaten Harrison in two of the last three WLAA finals. Glenn won 14-6 last year.

The Hawks won three straight titles from 1982 to 1984 and again in 1986 when they turned back North Farmington.

For the prognosticators last week, Emons was 9-4 and O'Meara 7-6. A mere four games separates them in the season tally. O'Meara stands at 77-24, Emons 73-28.

FRIDAY'S GAMES (all 7:30 p.m. unless noted)

Clarenceville at Avondale: Clarenceville can play the role of spoiler by upsetting its host Friday night, and the Trojans are capable of it. Avondale leads the conference with a 5-0 record and is 7-0 overall. Third-place Clarenceville, 4-2 and 5-2, can deny the Yellow Jackets an outright title and force Avondale into a tie with Harper Woods Lutheran East. PICKS: The Trojans own a four-game winning streak, but Avondale is the class of the league once again.

Garden City at Bay City John Glenn: The Bobcats are 5-2 overall, their only losses being to a pair of Class A playoff hopefuls, Saginaw and South Lyon. John Glenn won the White Pine Conference title with a 5-0 record. The Bobcats are led by running back Bryce Sturtz, who has scored eight TDs. Garden City went 0-4 in the Northwest Suburban League and is 1-6 overall. PICKS: The guests won't like what's on the menu.

Waterford Mott at Redford Union: The Panthers can have a strong finish with victories in their last two games, and the prospects are favorable. RU is 4-3 overall after losing to Woodhaven in last week's NSL showdown, but it plays Mott, a 1-6 ballclub, this week and closes out against winless Farmington next Friday. PICKS: The Panthers pounce on their prey.

Wayne Memorial at Wyandotte: Wayne has struggled this year and stands at 3-4 after losing to Trenton last week. But the Bears have had it even rougher, losing their last six games. The Zebras can complete an 8-7 league season for Wyandotte, which hasn't won since beating Taylor Kennedy in the opener. PICKS: Wayne keeps the Bears at the bottom.

Plymouth Salem at Northville: The Rocks are 5-2 and aiming to improve on last year's 6-3 finish. Salem got back on track last week, beating Farmington 27-0 after losses to North Farmington and John Glenn. Northville, 3-4, has been up and down. PICKS: The Rocks go into next week's finale against Canton with the chance to reach their goal.

W.L. Central at Plymouth Canton: Both teams were surprising winners last week. Central edging Stevenson 3-0 and Canton tripping Franklin 17-14. Both teams have won two of their last three games, and each is 2-3 overall. PICKS: A toss-up? You bet! The coin, please. The visiting Vikings are victorious, says O'Meara. Emons likes Canton to build on its modest one-game streak.

Farmington at Liv. Churchill: Farmington played well before, giving up three fourth-quarter touchdowns to Salem last week, but the Falcons are 0-7 and have scored only 10 points. Churchill has lost four straight and is 2-4. But throw out the 45-0 loss to Harrison, and the other three games were decided by a TD or less. PICKS: Churchill gets charged up for a victory.

Liv. Stevenson vs. W.L. Western (at W.L. Central): The Spartans and the Warriors bring 2-5 records into this WLAA crossover game. In most years, Stevenson would be the automatic favorite, but it's been a tough year for coach Jack Reardon's crew. After beating RU in the opener, the Spartans have beaten only Farmington in their last six games. PICKS: Western wiggles free for a win, according to O'Meara. Emons favors Stevenson.

SATURDAY'S GAMES (all 1 p.m. unless noted)

Wald, John Glenn at Farm. Harrison: This is what it's all about. A great championship game is waiting to be played. Harrison already has qualified for post-season play, and John Glenn could probably still qualify for the Class A playoffs should it lose. But you can bet neither team is thinking beyond Saturday. Both teams have their strengths, but each has proved capable in areas that were questionable. Primarily, the Hawks have rebuilt their line and can protect quarterback Mill Coleman. Glenn can throw the football if unable to run over opponents. PICKS: Since the defense is more than adequate and the return of Matt Conley has rejuvenated the rushing attack, Harrison has the edge with its outstanding passing game, O'Meara believes. Emons said three weeks ago that he would never pick against Harrison, even if it's against Cincinnati Moeller. A change of heart, however; the Rockets could beat Moeller (and Harrison) this year.

country. If the Warriors don't get lethargic due to the lengthy trek, they should come home with a victory.

Bishop Burgess vs. Brother Rice (7:30 p.m. at St. Joseph High School): The visiting Spartans got a needed shot in the arm when they beat DeLaSalle in three overtimes Saturday, but Burgess will be fighting an uphill battle this week. Besides playoff aspirations, Rice can still claim a share of the Central Division crown if it wins and CC loses. PICKS: Regardles, the Warriors are headed for the Class A playoffs.

Red. Catholic Central vs. Warren DeLaSalle (7:30 p.m. at Roseville Memorial Field): The host Pilots, 4-3, have lost three of their last four games after starting out with three straight wins. Catholic Central has beaten those same teams — Bishop Gallagher, Brother Rice and Bishop Burgess — by convincing margins. The total was 64-13. PICKS: The Shamrocks must guard against a letdown in the always-tough Central Division, but it appears they have little to worry about.

Red. St. Agatha vs. Oakland Catholic (7:30 p.m. at Pontiac Warner Stadium): The Aggies have already secured a place in the annual Prep Bowl lineup on Saturday, Oct. 29, in the Pontiac Silverdome, but they can make a clean sweep of the Catholic League's C-Section with a win here. St. Agatha destroyed co-leader Center Line St. Clement 25-6 on Sunday to win its fifth straight and improve to 5-2. PICKS: St. Agatha topples the Titans.

N. Farmington at Liv. Franklin: This is the WLAA's consolation game, matching the runners-up in the two divisions. The Raiders are 6-1 and look tougher on paper, but the Patriots, aside from being upset by Canton last week, have lost to the likes of Lansing Sexton and Farmington Harrison. Franklin is 4-3. PICKS: North grounded out a narrow victory on a rain-soaked field last season, and this game should provide a similar outcome.

Taylor Center at Red. Thurston: Time is running out on the Eagles, but they have a good shot at getting that first victory this week. Thurston is 0-7 but the Rams are only slightly better at 2-5. Center has beaten Tri-River foes Annapolis and Crestwood. PICKS: The Eagles have scored only 20 points this season, and O'Meara thinks a lack of offense tips the scales in favor of the Rams. Thurston gets its first win; bet on it, states Emons.

Lutheran Wald. at N. Branch Wesleyan: The North Branch school has a 1-5 record, and one of those losses was inflicted by Rochester Lutheran Northwest. The visiting Warriors might be only 2-4, but they beat RLNW 42-28. PICKS: The only thing working against Lutheran Westland is the long bus ride to the north

Lion freshmen prevail

The Canton Lions Junior Football Club celebrated homecoming Saturday night against the Livonia Orioles, and the freshman team enjoyed the most success.

The freshmen defeated the Orioles 13-6 as Romeo Cairo accounted for both touchdowns, scoring on runs of 5 and 22 yards. Bill Styles made one of the extra points.

The Lions junior varsity and varsity teams, however, both lost by scores of 19-12 and 14-12, respectively. Touchdowns by Eric Arnold and Josh Lee weren't enough to save the JV from suffering a seven-point loss.

The Lions varsity fell behind 14-0 at halftime but managed to score twice in the second half to make it close.

Pat Martinez and Agron Ujkaj scored for the varsity, but neither extra-point conversion was successful.

Steelers post 2 wins

The Plymouth-Canton Steelers traveled to Ann Arbor Sunday and came home victorious in two of the three football games.

The Steelers varsity remained unbeaten, defeating the Ann Arbor Eagles 20-6. The junior varsity tied its opponent 6-6, and the freshmen prevailed 13-0.

Scoring touchdowns for the varsity were Jason Krueger, Joe Herman and Eathen Rentz. Rob McKinnon scored two extra points. The junior varsity got its lone TD on a run by Ted Barker.

Mike Brannan starred for the freshmen, scoring on runs of 45 and 50 yards. Jeff Hayes converted one extra point.

perennial power Dearborn, ranked No. 2 in Class B. Salem slipped to 4-3 in dual meets.

Esso, with 204.05 points, won the diving again, but the Rocks were shut out in the swimming events.

"If we had a first, we could have won the meet," said Olson, noting Salem swimmers were touched out in the medley relay, 100 freestyle and butterfly.

"It was a good meet, though; I'm not displeased. We made them nervous. They're a very good team, and we hung in there."

The Rocks got second place in eight events, including two by Bosse, who swam 27.4 in the 50 freestyle and 1:00.1 in the 100 freestyle. She also led off the freestyle relay team that included Julie and Tammy Hickey and Anderson and cut a 4:00.6 time.

OTHER INDIVIDUAL seconds came from Syria in diving with 168.5 points, Sarah Andrews in the butterfly (1:06.7), Stacie Anderson in the 500 freestyle (5:44.8) and Olson in the breaststroke (1:12.6).

Salem's team of Hill, Olson, Candi Bosse and Julie Hickey finished the medley relay in 2:03.9.

Dearborn's Megan Gillam was a double winner in the short freestyle swims with 25.8 and 59.5 times, and teammate Debbie Wigner won the individual medley (2:18.5) and the backstroke (1:07.1).

few shots and getting her confidence." Sophomore guard Jenny Audet, playing her first varsity game for Stevenson, tied center Jessann Martin for scoring honors with eight points each. Freshman Teresa Sarno grabbed seven rebounds for the Spartans.

REGINA 76, BISHOP BORGESS 73: Redford Bishop Borgess led by three with 40 seconds left Monday at Harper Woods Regina, but that's when Regina center Polly Williams put an exclamation point on this victory.

Williams scored five of Regina's last six points and finished with a game-high 37 points. Borgess committed two turnovers in the final minute, both turning into easy field goals for the 6-foot-2 Williams. Mary Campana added 24 points for Regina, but her performance was easily overshadowed by Williams.

"She's the best center in our (Catholic) league and one of the best in the state," Borgess coach said. "She's a heck of a player. We tried to deny her the ball and drop people in on her and she still scored because she's the tallest player on the court. I have 5-10 and 5-11 players, but I don't have anyone six-foot tall."

Borgess is 7-5 overall, 2-5 in the Central Division of the Catholic League. Regina improved to 8-5 overall, 4-3 in the Central.

Borgess received fine performances from both Pat Hines and Kyra Woodard.

Hines, a senior forward, scored 24 points and Woodard, a senior guard, collected 21 points and six steals.

LADYWOOD 76, BISHOP GALLAGHER 39: Senior guard Jenny Kennedy was a perfect seven of seven from the field Tuesday, leading visiting Livonia Ladywood (9-4, 5-2) to the Catholic League Central Division at Harper Woods Bishop Gallagher (0-11, 0-7).

Coach Ken Bechard substituted freely as the Blazers roared out to a 21-4 first-quarter advantage.

Junior guard Janice Konczal and senior guard Sherri Adams contributed 14 and 11, respectively.

WAYNE 53, MONROE 33: Carliatta Dancy scored 15 points and Shontel Spires added 12 points and 18 rebounds Tuesday as Wayne Memorial (10-2, 6-2) scored an impressive Wolverine A League victory against the host Trojans (3-9, 3-5).

The Zebras led 21-8 at the half and 37-16 after three quarters.

Spartans top Churchill for title

By Brad Emens
staff writer

Livonia Stevenson played opportunist again Wednesday, capitalizing on a late Livonia Churchill mistake to repeat as Western Lakes Activities Association boys soccer champions, 2-1.

The Spartans continued their mastery over Churchill when Eric Schwedt punched in a shot off indirect free kick from Derek Williford with just over eight minutes left in the match pitting the state's No. 1 and No. 3 ranked teams in Class A.

The score resulted from an untimely foul by a Churchill defender only eight yards away in front of his own goal.

With ball angled slightly to the side of the net, Williford lofted a pass to the right of the Churchill wall, finding Schwedt wide open. The Stevenson senior popped a header past keeper Jovann Trapovski, who got caught out of position.

"They (Churchill) were on us in the second half, but we have that heart," said Stevenson coach Pete Scerri, whose team will take a 12-0-2 record into the state districts. "You can play good defense, do well in the midfield and make great saves, but the only thing that counts is putting the ball in the net."

CHURCHILL'S John Gentile, who made a sensational play on a breakaway only to have the goal disallowed by a handball violation in the first half, put the Chargers in position to win it when he scored on a drive down the right side with 16 minutes to play.

But the Chargers seemed to go into a shell after tying the count at 1-1.

"We started playing defensively and that's always a real danger for some reason after you score," said Churchill coach John Neff. "I don't care what sport it is, it always seems to be that way after you score and we were guilty of it."

During the regular season, when the two teams battled to a 1-1 tie, the play was wide open.

The second meeting was no different.

Churchill appeared to carry the play early, but its momentum was stopped when Gentile's goal, after a discussion between the head referee and the linesman, was nullified.

That seemed to ignite the Spartans, who took a 1-0 lead with a little over nine minutes left in the half when Williford, moving up from his defensive position, drilled home a 20-yarder after a throw-in.

"THEY'RE A GREAT stoppage of play team," said Neff of Stevenson. "That's where they excel. Both of their goals came after stoppages of play."

But despite the loss, only the second in 12 games for the Chargers, Neff was not disappointed in his team's effort. The Churchill coach also realizes his team could get another crack at the Spartans next Wednesday if his team gets past Northville in Monday's district opener.

"We had as many good scoring opportunities as they did, maybe not as many as we had against them the first time we played, but I thought we played them straight up tonight," said Neff, whose team fell to 9-2-1 overall. "We're not going to change anything against them the next time. It was a good game and they (Stevenson) are a darn good team."

Scerri credited the defense, consisting of Williford, Kurt Will, Aaron Brown and Mark Thomas (replacing the injured Bob Dimitriou), as a stabilizing force.

Macomb whips SC

By C.J. Fleak
staff writer

The showdown for bragging rights in Region 13 soccer was a no-show.

Schoolcraft College hosted Macomb CC Saturday in a game that annually determines the regional representative in the preliminary round of the NJCAA tournament. The two teams tied 2-2 in their first meeting this season at Macomb, so this game figured to be for all the marbles.

If it was, the Ocelots needn't plan on any playoff trips. They were routed 5-0 in a match that started rough and ended with body counts more important than goals.

Macomb won it with simple strategy — they outthrusted, outfought and outplayed SC. Three good reasons why they outscored the Ocelots, but there's more: The Monarchs showed more composure. As the goal count mounted, SC's frustration grew.

"WE'VE NEVER been dominated the way we were today," said Ocelots coach Van Dimitriou.

The game was 10 minutes old when the mistakes started to take their toll against SC. Macomb's Jeff Janisch got the ball in the left corner and keeper Chris Moore came out to challenge him — but he missed the ball. Janisch put it into the open net and it was 1-0.

The second goal deflated SC further. Attributed to Joe Riesterer, it was scored by Ocelot defender Doug Sobolak, who was trying to punch the ball back to Moore. That was difficult enough to swallow; the third goal changed the complexion of the match.

Eight minutes into the second half, a throw-in from the right side ended up on Riesterer's foot in front of the SC net — but not for long. 3-0, Monarchs. That's when play really began to degenerate.

SC's attack never did get on track. The Monarchs got two more goals, one an easy score by Marc Mattia after a centering pass from Jim Kazanowski, the second a penalty kick by Mike Ross, called when SC defender Phil Neumaier deliberately deflected a Mattia shot with his hand to save a goal.

The win gives Macomb CC a 9-1-2 overall record, 4-0-2 in the region. SC slipped to 4-1-1 in the region, 6-2-2 overall.

CC clinches share of title

Redford Catholic Central clinched at least a tie for the Catholic League's Central Division title and berth in the Prep Bowl (Oct. 29 against UD-Jesuit) with a 26-7 football win Saturday over Harper Woods Notre Dame in a game played at Livonia Clarenceville.

The unbeaten Shamrocks (7-0, 4-0) can win the Central outright Saturday night against Warren DeLaSalle in a game at Roseville Memorial Field.

CC quarterback Scott Haucher was on target against Notre Dame, completing 12 of 17 passes for 136 yards. He opened the scoring with a 7-yard TD toss to tight end Lou Yeager in the first quarter, capping a 13-play, 64-yard drive.

Haucher later added a 1-yard TD run in the third quarter, capping a 35-yard, 17-play march.

Senior fullback Lee Krueger scored CC's other two TDs, each on a 1-yard run, in the second and third quarters. The second quarter score was set up by a Chris Johnston interception.

Notre Dame averted the shutout when DesJuan Reynolds scored on a 1-yard run with 6:21 to play.

But it wasn't enough as the Irish fell to 2-5 overall and 1-3 in the Central.

CC dominated statistically, outgaining the Irish in total yardage, 371-60.

Dave Owens led the Shamrock rushers with 45 yards.

BISHOP BORGESS 27, DeLaSALLE 24 (3 OT): Jimmy Charters helped make it a better homecoming Saturday for Redford Bishop Borgess, nailing a pair of overtime field goals.

Charters cleared a 17-yard field goal in the first overtime drive and a 20-yarder in the third drive to win the Catholic League-Central Division encounter.

In between drives, the Spartans' Kareem Carpenter caught an 8-yard pass from quarterback Ebbie Herbert to tie the game at 24. Cory Turner intercepted a De La Salle pass to end the Pilots' hopes in the third overtime drive.

"Homecoming had something to do with it," Borgess coach Dan Henry said. "The kids were fired up."

The win improved Borgess to 2-5 overall, 1-3 in the Central. De La Salle fell to 4-3 and 1-3 in the Central.

The Spartans and Pilots finished regulation tied at 14. Herbert scored Borgess' first TD on a 1-yard quarterback sneak and he also found Turner for a 40-yard score. Charters converted both extra point attempts.

The Spartans finished with 167 yards in total offense. Mario Araquil gained 72 of Borgess' 89 yards on the ground and Herbert completed eight of 18 passes for 68 yards.

DEARBORN 14, GARDEN CITY 7 (OT): Host Dearborn made sure Garden City finished its Northwest Suburban League slate without a win, defeating the Cougars in overtime.

Garden City finished the NSL portion of its schedule at 0-4, 1-6 overall. Dearborn moved a game ahead of GC at 1-3 in the NSL, 2-5 overall.

"We told our players before the game that if we got a win in our last conference game, it would be something to hang our hats on," Garden City coach Bob Eisiminger said. "If the game went into overtime, I thought we'd win it."

Dearborn clinched the win in overtime, scoring on a 1-yard, fourth-down plunge by fullback Mark Rueh. Garden City had a chance to tie the score, but on its first offensive play in overtime, Brad Armstrong's pass intended for tight end Dave Marihugh was intercepted by Ron Menard.

"Giving credit to Brad (Armstrong), that was the first real bad decision he's made this year," Eisiminger said.

With the scored tied at 7, both teams had a chance to win in regulation. Dearborn reached Garden City's 5-yard line in the fourth quarter, but the Cougars stopped the Falcons on four downs. Garden City got to Dearborn's 11-yard line but two Garden City penalties and a missed field goal sent the game into overtime.

Dearborn took a 7-0 lead on a 1-yard run by Rob Sekulich with 2:02 left in the first quarter. Garden City tied the game on a 10-yard pass from Armstrong to Marihugh.

The Cougars picked up 11 first downs, to Dearborn's nine. Garden City had 175 yards in total offense, gaining 133 through the air. Armstrong was 12 of 18 passing, completing four to Ray Sells for 81 yards. Dearborn had 208 yards in total offense, all of it coming on the ground.

CEP marching band is third in music bowl competition

The Plymouth Centennial Educational Park Marching Band placed third overall at the recent 11th Annual Music Bowl in Cincinnati.

The competition featured 15 of the top nationally ranked bands from Indiana, Kentucky and Ohio. The PCEP Band was the only band representing Michigan.

The percussion section under the direction of Jerry Hotchkin Jr. was awarded the Outstanding Achievement Trophy for Best Musical Group. Included in the 27-member percussion section are: seven snare drummers, three quad drummers, five bass drummers, five cymbal players, six keyboard front line people, and one guitarist.

The PCEP Percussion Section was awarded the Trophy for the Best Percussion in the State of Michigan in 1986 and 1987. This season they also won the trophy for Best Percussion at the Michigan Invitational.

Among the 15 bands participating in the Music Bowl competition were the 1987 Kentucky State Marching Band Champion, the 1987 Ohio Music Bowl Champion Band, the 1987 Mid-East Regional Grand Champion Band, and the 1987 Indiana State Champion Band.

Glen Adsit, assistant band director, said, "We are very pleased with the third-place trophy. This competition included some of the best bands in the country. Our music, marching and color guard were in top form Saturday. We're constantly improving, and the entire band is looking forward to the state championship on Oct. 29 in Flint and the Grand National Championship on Nov. 12 at the Pontiac Silverdome."

The band also placed second overall at the Westland John Glenn Invitational Saturday. The percussion section, for the third straight year, took top honors.

The band will compete in the Durand High School Invitational Saturday.

Polishing a gem of a concert hall

By Brian Lysaght
staff writer

A BRIGHT FUTURE for Detroit's venerable Orchestra Hall may be waiting in the wings just offstage. Workers were busy last summer on refurbishing projects. A major fund-raising campaign for a major addition is under way.

The ceiling and cornice were painted original colors — rose-pink and bronze-gold, the marble floors were polished and the mahogany paneling replaced. These are relatively small efforts in a very large improvement project for the building, which turns 60 next year and which will become the home base for the Detroit Symphony Orchestra again.

Upstairs, in artistic director Gail Rector's office, is an architect's rendering of the building with a strikingly new entrance and a new building to the north, the $14 million project that supporters say will equip Orchestra Hall for its future and then some.

"We're doing it so Orchestra Hall will be here forever and ever," said Paul Ganson, Orchestra Hall president and Detroit Symphony bassoonist. The ceiling paint in the lobby, he noted, is archival quality and "need never be replaced."

The price tag includes $4 million for improvements to the hall, $6 million for a new "service pod" and $4 million for a new grand entrance.

Besides the restoration work in the lobby, a new heating and cooling system will make summer concerts more practical as well as comfortable.

THE PROJECT is admittedly large, requiring an equally large fund-raising effort. Organizers have raised just over $5 million, a third of their goal.

These efforts should be aided in part by the Detroit Symphony Orchestra's commitment to move back to Orchestra Hall from Ford Auditorium for the 1989-90 season.

The move should mean stability for this building, which in spite of its outstanding acoustics, came perilously close to falling to the wrecking ball 18 years ago.

The symphony's classical series, which will be staged there, is worth about 80 dates beginning next fall.

"It will provide a great deal of usage for the hall from the state's premier performing group," Ganson said.

Thus more security, stability and esteem, he said. It will also link the two institutions, as Ganson said, "The hall is for the symphony and the symphony is for the hall."

In 1971 this hall, which was built for the symphony, had neither security nor stability. It had been empty for more than 10 years except for pigeons.

Its last tenant had been the Church of Our Prayers. One day a security guard at a bank across the street alerted a developer, Richard Magon, about the workers seen inspecting the building.

The workers were from the water department. They carried a shutoff notice, and said the building was to be razed.

Magon called Ganson, and the Committee to Save Orchestra Hall was quickly formed.

THE COMMITTEE accomplished its objective and then some. The Detroit Symphony, with Antal Dorati, conductor, returned to the stage of Orchestra Hall in 1976-77.

Ganson said the committee has had many goals — first to save the building, then to stabilize and restore it, now to improve it.

Orchestra Hall was built in four months and 23 days when then-conductor Ossip Gabrilowitsch demanded a concert hall for the burgeoning Detroit Symphony. Considering the speed with which it was constructed, the hall's notable sound is more amazing.

With the planned additions, Orchestra Hall could become a landmark performance center as shown in this architect's rendering.

"It's kind of a mystery. Nobody has been able to put their finger on what it is," said Jeffrey Montgomery of the Orchestra Hall staff of the building's acoustics.

The symphony left in 1939, and the hall reopened as The Paradise Theatre in 1941. The Paradise gained fame as one of the finest jazz venues in the country, but closed in 1951.

By chance, three of the most popular bands from the Paradise will play Orchestra Hall in a special series this year — Cab Calloway and His Orchestra, Oct. 29; the Duke Ellington Orchestra, Jan. 7; and Count Basie Orchestra, March 11.

THE PLANNED ADDITION will double lobby space, triple restroom space, increase musician and box office space, and add an elevator. None of the improvements will affect the auditorium's acoustics, Montgomery said.

The auditorium, which seats 2,018, lacks the space for a crowd to mingle comfortably before or after concerts or during intermissions, Montgomery said.

The Campaign for Orchestra Hall fund-raising effort, chaired by Samuel Frankel, Richard Kuhn and Jean Shaper, includes an impressive list of community, political and business leaders.

Hall officials say they are hopeful the money can be raised.

"I always dreamed of a bright future for Orchestra Hall," Ganson said.

Paul Ganson climbed a ladder to call attention to the look of the newly restored cornice.

Paul Ganson, left, the force behind the successful Save Orchestra Hall campaign stops outside the building with Gail Rector, artistic director.

Take your pick, jazz or classics

If you have never been to Orchestra Hall, or haven't been there lately, what follows may be . . . um . . . of note. It is an admittedly selective list of concerts and shows to be performed in the building with the best acoustics in town.

• Detroit Symphony, which will make Orchestra Hall its permanent home next season, is scheduled to play 24 concerts this 1988-89 season.

• Moscow State Symphony, Tuesday, Oct. 25, a program of Tchaikovsky and Rachmaninoff.

• Cab Calloway leading his orchestra, Saturday, Oct. 29, the first show of the Michigan Bell Jazz Series.

• Shanghai Acrobats and Magicians, Friday, Nov. 4.

• Vienna Symphony, Thursday, Nov. 10, a program of Brahms, Ravel and Mahler.

• Pianist Rudolph Serkin, Saturday, Dec. 3, all Schubert program.

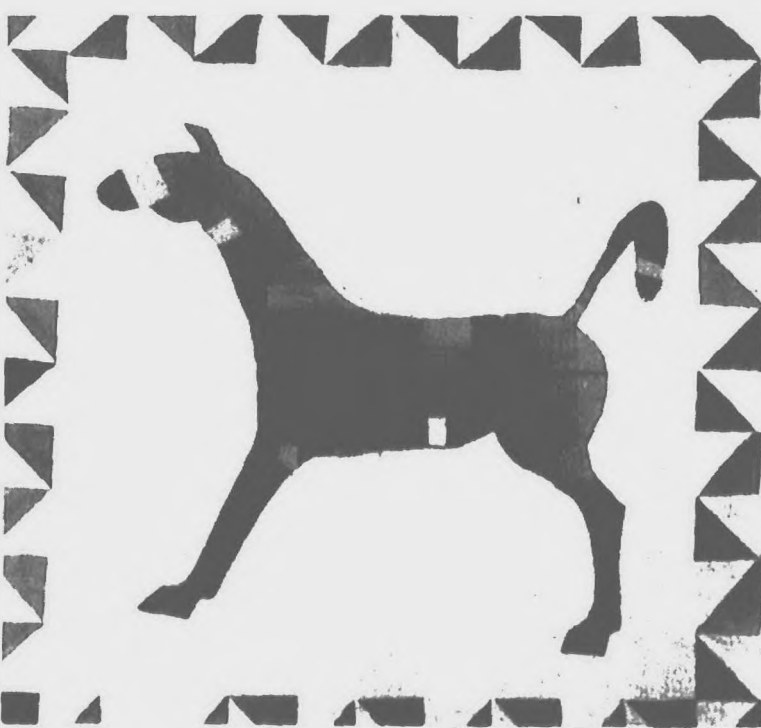

• Duke Ellington Orchestra, Saturday, Jan. 7, Mercer Ellington director.

• Osipov Balalaika Orchestra and Stars of the Bolshoi, Saturday, Feb. 4, singers and folk musicians of the Soviet Union.

• Teatro de Danza Espanola, Saturday, March 4, Spanish dancers in a 1989 American debut.

• Budapest Symphony Orchestra, Tuesday, March 7, a program of Kodaly, Khatchaturian, Bartok and Mendelssohn.

• Count Basie Orchestra, Saturday, March 11, with a vocalist.

The 24-by-24-inch doll quilt was designed by Merry Silber of Birmingham and made by Michigan quilters Marsden and Cunningham. It was inspired by the metal sculpture of the horse in front of the Children's Museum of Detroit.

Quilts shown for Children's Museum

"Rock-A-Bye-Baby," a one-day exhibit and sale of crib and doll quilts, will be held 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Wednesday at Somerset Mall of Troy. The exhibit, featuring the collection of Merry Silber of Birmingham and those of other nationally known collectors, is sponsored by the Children's Museum Friends as a fund-raiser for the facility in Detroit's Cultural Center.

As a special tribute for the event, Silber designed a quilt to be given as a prize. It was made by Marsden and Cunningham, nationally known Michigan quiltmakers. The theme is the horse in front of the Children's Museum.

"When I saw the horse, I thought, we must have a quilt to make some more money for them," Silber said. She also designed and donated quilts for an Orchestra Hall benefit and for Birmingham Temple's 25th anniversary celebration.

The entire event is being orchestrated by Eva Boicourt of Southfield, who also curated the "World of Textiles" exhibit currently on display at the County Galleria. This is the third of her fund raising events this year for the benefit of the Children's Museum. The first two drew large crowds.

Silber said that her quilts (25) that are in the "Rock-A-Bye-Baby" exhibit that aren't sold will be given to the Children's Museum for its permanent collection.

Other quilts on display will be from the Esprit collection (Amish quilts), Mary Stickler, Kempf Hogan, State Senator Jack Faxon and Sandra Mitchell.

The hour-long, award-winning film, "Hearts and Hands," about quilters and quilt making, will be shown at 1 p.m. and 7 p.m. And Silber will give free appraisals of doll and baby quilts which are brought in during the show.

The Children's Museum, a division of Detroit Public Schools, dates to 1917, making it the third oldest museum in the country. Workshops for school children are held on Saturdays during the school year. Programs are held regularly in the Museum's planetarium. Loan collections of dolls from various periods and cultures, birds of North America, toys, ethnic costumes and children's art are available to Detroit schools free of charge and to suburban schools for a minimum charge.

The Children's Museum Friends is a volunteer group which provides services and raises money to support programs. A new museum facility in the Cultural Center is being planned.

Giving poetry a good name

MY THANKS to my friend and fellow writer, Sarah Wolf, for her guest column on libraries. This area seems to be especially blessed with good libraries (and librarians). We all have our favorites, and we all take libraries for granted. But that's something we shouldn't do.

A good library system needs strong community support. In some cases, that support has been in the form of additional millage the community passed, earmarked specifically for library usage. Probably it's a case of you get what you pay for.

Moving on, they filled the place at the Oakland Writers' Conference last weekend with 490 paid admissions — 30 less than the absolute maximum capacity, and the attendees definitely got what they paid for.

Elmore Leonard started things off on Friday night with his vivid, funny images of the Hollywood know-nothings he runs into when he's forced to "take meetings" concerning movie adaptations of his novels. The novel he's about to begin will be set in Hollywood — and if you thought revenge was a major theme in his other novels.

On Saturday, conferees chose from 33 70-minute sessions, where agents, editors and writers passed along publishing information and tips on writing.

Our own Corinne Abatt, Creative Living editor for the Eccentric newspapers, talked about the "unforgettable article" and passed along a "writer's clean-up list." How useful was it? It said, "Remove the clutter. Be ruthless, be brutal, be a slasher." So already in this column I've removed two "maybes" and a "tend to." I left in a "probably," though it, too, probably could have been eliminated.

MILFORD POET Thomas Lynch was there to help writers "free their imagination to rummage through their word hoard."

Lynch is often (and unfortunately) billed as Milford's undertaker poet. It's true that he is one of the "sons" who run the Lynch & Sons Funeral Homes. It's also true that many of the poems in Lynch's first poetry collection, "Skating with Heather Grace," (Alfred A. Knopf, soft-bound, $9.95) deal with death. But life swells throughout this slim, lusty volume and demands equal if not top billing.

In Lynch's poems, life is ironic, embarrassing, inconvenient, laughable and infinitely sad. So is death.

"It's the Irish in me, I'm afraid," Lynch says. The townland of Moveen, the Lynch ancestral home on the west coast of Ireland in County Clare, is the setting for many of these poems. Argyle the sin-eater appears now and gain and our sympathies are with him as he goes about his business — namely taking care of the sins of the deceased by eating them away.

"Argyle eased the warm loaf right and left and downed swift gulps of beer and venial sin then lit into the bread now leavened with the corpse's cardinal mischiefs; then he said

'Six pence, I'm sorry.' And the widow paid him."

"For the Ex-Wife on the Occasion of her Birthday is a wickedly innocent laundry list of the sins and afflictions the narrator swears he doesn't wish upon her: "... I pray you only/laughter in the face of your mortality/and freedom from the ravages of middle age;/bummers, boredom, cellulite, toxic shock and pregnancies/... I no longer want your mother committed/your friends banished, your donkey lovers taken out and shot/or spayed or dragged behind some Chevrolet of doom. ..."

IN "THE GRANDMOTHERS," Lynch turns to the processes of growing old: "A hundred sixty years of lucid memory/sit under a plump umbrella on the patio — /two widows nursing whiskey sours argue politics/my grandmothers./When they turned eighty, we began/ to mark their changes as might a child's/in terms of sight, mobility and appetite,/teeth and toilet habits, clarity of speech,/a thousand calibers of round flight/ by which my children make their distance now from me."

And family life goes on. Lynch is a single parent, immersed for the moment in raising his four children.

And places like the Poetry Resource Center serve to do the same thing. PRC begins the Third Annual Downtown Poetry Series tonight, continuing through Thursday, Nov. 10.

At 8 tonight, John Sinclair and the Blues Scholars start things off at the Union Street Bar, 4145 Woodward, near Wayne State campus; Oct. 27, Mitch Vranich and Nubia Kai and Flint writers Jan Worth and Danny Rendleman; Nov. 10, Errol Anthony Henderson and Mildred Hunt. For more information, call the PRC at 399-6163.

Imaginative designers exhibit works

IN ACCESSORIZING your home or shopping for a gift for the home, the Ilona Gallery in Farmington Hills is a stop in the right direction.

Let me list a few of the most imaginative designers and their work:

Laura Breitman designs in trapunto, hand and machine applied fabric, machine quilting, textile paint and caran d'ache. You must see these pillows in her design or create your own design and she will do the work. Breitman's work is exhibited in many fine galleries in New York.

Don Doak works in stained or fused stained glass. Each piece has been designed, cut then assembled, approved signed and numbered by the artist.

Claudia Hoffberg, a potter, works in white clay. She makes cups and plates, teapots, vases and wall pieces with thin rolled pieces of clay. Her work has a whimsical feel with its polka dots, raspberry and green stripes, and hearts.

Louise Hopson, potter, specializes in one-of-a-kind objects in clay. The materials employed are earthenware, underglaze pencils and crayons. Hopson has exhibited widely throughout the Great Lakes states and currently has work on display in Minneapolis, Flint, Chicago, Cleveland and Petoskey.

Sherry Loehr, potter, focuses on the tabletop, which becomes a whimsical world with casseroles, tea sets, sugar bowls and butter dishes. This world is inhabited by lovestruck birds and plump hippopotami.

Mother-daughter artists to exhibit

By Shirlee Rose Iden
staff writer

Edee Joppich can paint, but she can't sew; her daughter, J.J. Brown can't paint but combines embroidery with fabric and beads to make original, wearable art.

For the mother and daughter who make their imprints in the world of art, but in media are worlds apart, the realization of their need for creative expression is a special bond. In a two-woman show called "Mother Daughter," Joppich and Brown will exhibit their versatility and artistry as parent and child as well as collaborating artists.

The show is now under way in the Southfield Parks and Recreation lobby gallery, and will continue through Oct. 28. An opening reception will take place tomorrow from 6-9 p.m.

FOR J.J. BROWN, whose family knows her as Janet, hers is a rare kind of anticipation in waiting for this opening. "First, it's my first one

(two) person show, and secondly, my third child is expected any moment," she said. "I may just be absent from my own exhibition."

Brown, who resides in Redford with her husband and children, will show about 20 pieces of her textured jewelry, composed of beads, ultra seude and embroidery.

"I've been experimenting for the past 14 years in the areas of embroidery, rug hooking, macrame and various other forms of stitchery," she said. "About four years ago, I began developing the idea of embroidered jewelry, concentrating on neckwear and now have integrated beads, birds, and various animals into the pieces."

Brown didn't study art formally, instead earned a bachelor's degree in psychology from Marygrove College.

"I've always done rug hooking and embroidery," she said.

Presently, her work is done in a small studio in the basement of her home. "I have a baby sitter come in and watch my girls while I work. I look forward to when I work. With kids, it's sanity time."

BROWN USES A sketchbook to work out the designs and colors of her wearable art pieces, working out the combination of beads, ultra seude and a various-shaped embroidery.

Brown said the time necessary to complete a piece varies from a week to much longer.

In a sense, watching her daughter develop as a fine craftsman and designer is deja vu for Joppich, as she watches the saga of an artist carving out time from domestic demands to fulfill herself.

"Most of my time has been spent on commissions and building my clientele," Brown said.

She has exhibited her work locally in the Troy and Nawara Galleries as well as the Craftsman Gallery in Beaufort, South Carolina, and Joppich's Bay Street Gallery, a family business in Northport, Mich.

"Art to wear becomes a fine art when each piece is original and has its own feeling," said Joppich, proud mother, painter and collagist.

Born in Windsor, she was brought up in Detroit and attended Marygrove College and Wayne State University. "Acting was a family activity for me since I was about 7 years old and art always an interest."

MARRIED TO Ed Joppich, she is the mother of five, all living close by. The Joppiches enjoy their two young granddaughters, and eagerly anticipate the birth of another.

"While the kids were young I taught classes at the University of Detroit and Marygrove and did architectural renderings," she said. "I worked from a home studio where I started out doing oil paintings."

Joppich said she is one of the few painters who became allergic to the oil paints and subsequently decided to go into water colors. "For me, watercolor is exciting and adventurous," she said. "I began to evolve a collage and watercolor combination."

Both realistic and abstract works are part of her portfolio and Joppich finds a connection between them. "Art is the constant," she said.

Ed Joppich, her husband, is a practicing architect and a partner in the Northport art gallery. Edee's children, she says, "all have an interest in art, all collect, and all have the sensitivity necessary to appreciate art."

IN HER WORK can be found all sorts of whimsy: a unicorn, an antique note on parchment and more. "Fantasy continually shows up in my work," she explained.

Presently, Joppich teaches painting classes and workshops, jurys art exhibits, and lectures extensively.

Incidentally, she and her daughter will teach a mother-daughter painting and drawing class for the Visual Arts Association of Livonia (VAAL) beginning Thursday, Nov. 3. Joppich has been on the VAAL staff for several years.

Summers, she spends in Northport where she conducts painting seminars, and reigns as the resident artist in the Joppich Gallery. She is co-owner of Wall-Art, a corporate consulting firm.

Joppich has had 16 one-woman shows and in 1978 received a grant from the Farmington Art Commission and the Michigan Council for the Arts naming her Artist in Residence in Farmington and Farmington Hills. Her paintings are included in corporate and private collections all over the United States.

Twenty-three Joppich works will be exhibited in the Southfield exhibition. "Showing together with my daughter is very special," she said, "and certainly a first."

The mother-daughter combination of J.J. Brown, jewelry maker, and her mother, Edee Joppich, painter and collagist, are being featured in a two-person show in Southfield. Brown lives in Redford, Joppich in Farmington.
