Enchanting wedding

Nancy Dorf and Melvin Kalis, both of Plymouth, tied the knot in 35th District Court Monday without the traditional lace and tuxedo donned by most brides and grooms. Since each had been married before, Kalis said, they wanted to do something different. They chose Halloween and special costumes for the big occasion. The bride played Raggedy Ann; the groom was a ghoul; the best man, Gary Myers, was Frankenstein; the maid of honor, Jane Myers, was a mummy; and the flower girl, Sheila Thomas, played Rapunzel. Even the court magistrate, Susan Ewing, got into the "spirit" of the day by dressing as a witch to conduct the ceremony.

Police seek suspect in bank robbery

Plymouth police and the FBI are seeking a 30-year-old white male, about 5 feet 6 and 130 pounds, in connection with Friday's robbery of Heritage Federal Savings on Main Street in downtown Plymouth.

It was the first bank robbery in Plymouth in at least five years, said Plymouth Commander Michael Gardner.

The unarmed robber escaped with an undetermined amount of cash after passing a threatening note to a teller and demanding large bills, said FBI Special Agent John Anthony. The FBI and local police departments share jurisdiction over cases involving federally insured savings institutions.

THE ROBBER was wearing a dark leather jacket, a white pullover shirt and a navy blue baseball cap, said Anthony.

While no weapon was seen, "we are treating him as armed and dangerous," said Anthony.

Anyone with information is asked to call Plymouth police at 453-8800 or the FBI at 966-2323.

The robbery was similar in nature to two recent holdups in Livonia and Westland, said Anthony.

In both robberies, the bandit handed a note to the teller, but didn't show a gun. The notes said the employee would be killed if she didn't

Halloween more treat than trick

Treats abounded much more than tricks earlier this week in Plymouth and Canton and Plymouth townships.

Canton police inspected Halloween candy for more than 250 children at two McDonalds — on Ford Road and Michigan Avenue — "with no unusual substances found," said Dave Boljesic, Canton police spokesman.

However, one woman reported finding a blue pill in her child's bag, Boljesic said. The case is under investigation.

"We had one reported incident of suspicious candy," said Richard Myers, police chief in the city of Plymouth. "We're unable to verify if it was tainted candy or unrelated to trick-or-treating."

Nothing turned up at a candy inspection station at a McDonalds on Ann Arbor Road, Myers said.

"This is the quietest Halloween we've ever had," said Carl Berry, police chief in Plymouth Township. He couldn't provide a reason why.

Vandalism specifically traceable to Halloween — except for a few smashed pumpkins — was virtually nonexistent, Berry and Myers said.

Partnership

Program would help link schools and business

Talk to Paul Pietila, manager at Ford Motor's Sheldon Road plant, and he'll tell you that among his employees are individuals who cannot read their paychecks.

Area business people complain that even high school graduates who were A and B students "really don't understand what business is all about," said Mary O'Connell Roehr, executive director of the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce. "They don't know how to answer phones or how to behave in business."

To help prepare Plymouth-Canton students to enter the workplace, the chamber and Plymouth-Canton Community Schools are teaming up to sponsor a "Partnership-for-Education" program that will sponsor a speakers' bureau, career days, field trips and a jobs bank.

They're seeking a $5,000 grant from the Michigan Department of Education that would pay for a part-time program coordinator.

"The state Board of Education is scheduled to act in mid-December. If they keep to that timeline, it could be Merry Christmas," said Dr. Michael Homes, Plymouth-Canton superintendent for instruction.

Homes, like just about everyone else who's had any involvement with the plan, is enthusiastic.

"What we're trying to get across is that there are specific relationships between what students do in school and what goes on in the world of work," said Homes.

The grant would help "strengthen the relationship between schools and business, because we all share the same expectations of our young people. We want them to be successful," he added.

JIM DANIELSKI, chairman of the Partnership-for-Education effort, said "Rather than just point a finger at the schools, the whole idea is to find a solution."

"We want to create different ways to reach kids and to show them that studying that stuff isn't irrelevant. It has all the relevance in the world."

By participating in the program, a prospective carpenter or beautician may learn that math proficiency is needed to calculate how much material is needed for a job, or how to properly dilute a liquid. A prospective sales rep may learn how an

New chamber president already has a busy life

It's difficult to pin Pam Kosteva down.

And it probably will get even more difficult after the first of the year when she takes over as president of the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce.

Running the Cheese & Wine Barn and a subsidiary specialty food-wine-gift packaging business, consulting with school districts on educational/business issues and spending time with son Andy and husband David already makes for a busy day that will only get busier.

But Kosteva is ready to jump right in.

Her role as president of the chamber?

"To express the needs of the business community, funnel ideas to the board and chamber staff and try to implement those that are good, beneficial," she said.

Kosteva, 40, got into the retail business — and the chamber — by a circuitous route.

SHE TAUGHT language arts at Franklin and Churchill high schools and adult education in Livonia and English at Terra Tech College in Ohio.

She also served as president of a local teacher's union and as an administrator at Wayne State University.

"I obviously think learning can get you where you want to go," Kosteva said. "Everything I've done has led to something else."

"I was pregnant. I needed some flexibility. I needed to call my own shots and be a mommy. Owning your own business gives you more control."

And more stress, she found. Kosteva bought an established retail business — and went back to school, in a manner of speaking.

"I DIDN'T HAVE product knowledge, but believed I could teach myself." So she did.

Why Plymouth?

"I live about eight minutes from here (in Northville)," Kosteva said.

"I wanted to be associated with a small town, comfortable atmosphere. Upper middle class. I felt I could make money, obviously."

"There are few communities left like Plymouth," she said. "If Plymouth didn't have such a sense of community."

Pam Kosteva will soon step in as president of the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce.

Pollack and Pursell at odds over issues

No new ground was plowed yesterday by Carl Pursell and Lana Pollack, candidates for the 2nd Congressional District, during a political forum jointly sponsored by the Plymouth-Livonia-Northville chambers of commerce.

Afterwards, both candidates said they're well positioned less than a week before the Tuesday election.

"I'm very optimistic," said Pursell, the Republican incumbent.

While he declined to be specific, Pursell said polls taken last weekend indicate that he's running at least 10 percentage points ahead of Pollack in the race.

Pollack, a Democratic state senator, said she continues to maintain her enthusiasm down the home-stretch.

"I'm about where I want to be — making him nervous," she said. "I think this is going to be a close race."

DURING THEIR confrontation, Pursell reiterated his concern about the federal debt and pledged that he wouldn't support an increase in corporate or individual income tax rates.

Pollack said the federal government ought to do more for social programs like child care and housing plus protect the environment.

The two frequently interrupted each other and traded barbs after being invited to do so by the moderator.

Pursell said he's offended to be portrayed as an enemy of the environment because he voted not to increase funding for the Clean Water Act due to soaring budget deficits.

"BEHIND ME stands the Clean Water Action, the Sierra Club and Friends of the Earth," Pollack responded. "They have all endorsed me and castigated Carl Pursell."

Pursell vowed to leave personal income tax rates where they are now but stopped short of saying no tax increase period.

"I don't think most people in the 2nd District would be opposed to looking at a nuisance tax, an excise tax or an oil import tax to bring the deficit down," he said.

Pursell chided Pollack for having a role in raising the state income tax several years ago.

Pollack retorted that the action was necessary to get the state back on the firm economic footing that it is on now, then shot back that Pursell, too, has had a part in raising taxes at the federal level.

item's selling price affects commission. A student who excels in math could be exposed to a myriad of satisfying, good-paying jobs in which he or she could capitalize on strong math skills, said Danielski.

THE COMMUNITY stands a good chance to receive the grant, Roehr said.

"We're very optimistic that we'll get the grant. I think what the Department of Education is looking for is the commitment that regardless, we'll go ahead with the program."

Chamber members are dedicated to making the program work, added Roehr.

"We're very encouraged with the response we've received," she said.

"One of the reasons for that is that people from government, the chamber, myself, business and education have all agreed and are talking about it. They've developed a program together. It's a cooperative effort."

Partnerships-for-Education have succeeded elsewhere, she added.

PLYMOUTH'S DANIELSKI, who does career counseling for a living, can't overestimate the importance of the program.

Japanese firms teaming up with American companies, Diamond-Star and Mazda, for example, are spending $13,000 to select and train each of its employees, Danielski said.

"Employers are looking for people who can do the job and who can adapt to a key element, and that is change. The key to surviving, careerwise, is change."

"That amounts to picking people not only with the academics but the interpersonal skills to get ahead."

"We're planting seeds that won't germinate for a long time. Tomorrow they won't act on that, but at some point, they'll remember."

"Goal setting will take your life to places you can't imagine," said Danielski.

When he was in high school, Danielski was able to take advantage of a similar program. Touring an atomic plant convinced Danielski to think about a field other than nuclear engineering.

"I am proof that if your acne medicine doesn't work, your life isn't ruined," said Danielski. "I had pimples and got D's and E's in some subjects. But I realized that I had to pick an area and make a total commitment to that."

"In current medical thinking, it's held that we all have the seeds of disease in us. Emotion activates them."

"In my field, we believe the seeds of success are in all of us, too — regardless of the job you're in. You just have to take unconditional responsibility for your career."

POLLACK CASTIGATED Pursell for not supporting child care to the tune of $2 billion — a drop in the federal budget trough.

Pursell termed that program big spending and said all of Pollack's ideas soon would add up to big money.

"The classic example of big spending is Star Wars — $700 billion — not day care," Pollack shot back.

"I don't support deployment. Let's do research," Pursell responded.

Entitlement programs — not military spending — is driving the federal deficit, Pursell said.

"The biggest part of entitlement programs is Social Security," Pollack responded. "Social Security is not driving the deficit. Social Security has a surplus."

The two also butted heads on housing.

"THE GOVERNMENT has a relatively minor role in affordable housing," Pursell said. "The best way to help younger people is to keep taxes down . . . and let the free market work."

"Everything you say is true, but it's not enough," Pollack responded. "It's the government that has to offer incentives — tax incentives." And make money available, she added.

Pursell cited his 12 years in Congress and leadership positions he's held as big reasons for re-election.

Pollack responded that she would have more power in Congress as a member of the majority party because "the majority party has control of the legislative agenda."

Her life's already a busy one munity pride, a developer could come in and put something up in Kellogg Park besides a fountain."

Kosteva joined the chamber after acquiring her business and gradually rose through the ranks. She called a strong chamber of commerce vital to a community.

"A SUCCESSFUL chamber helps support a successful business community," she said. "A successful business community offers increased property values, a shopping district, increased tax base."

"The chamber steps forward to take the lead in helping to find, I believe, a focus for business," Kosteva said.

"It offers leadership in terms of running a business, answering questions on how to set up a business, keeps the business community informed on changing laws."

Kosteva recognizes there's a problem getting merchants outside of the central business district involved in chamber activities.

"I'M A FIRM believer in you have to keep plugging away," she said. "If Old Village merchants and the chamber keeps working at it, we'll find a way to meet each other's needs."

"Retail owners on Ann Arbor Road have the same frustrations. What's in it for them? Seminars, programs, shared information," she said.

Kosteva also is concerned that downtown Plymouth is oversaturated with gift/boutique specialty shops and that more stores don't stay open after 6 p.m.

"The nature of being a business owner is you're a very independent creature," she said.

Kosteva served on the state board of the National Association of Women Business Owners and was a delegate to Gov. Blanchard's Small Business Conference.

If she had more free time, Kosteva would travel more but said she couldn't live out of a suitcase.

"I have a son. I'm married. In off time, I try to come up with calm time together."

hand over the money. The FBI describes the robber as a white male, about age 25, 5 feet 6 and 130 pounds. He was dressed in a hooded sweatshirt, blue jeans and white gym shoes.

The man fled with $2,000 from Michigan National Bank on Ann Arbor Trail Oct. 14 in Livonia. In the Westland robbery, $500 was taken from Comerica Bank Oct. 24.

BANK ROBBERIES in Michigan are up over the last five years, said Anthony. The number of incidents has climbed from 97 in 1984 to 112 thus far this year, said Anthony.

There are three reasons for the increase, he said.

"About 85 percent of Detroit bank robberies in 1987 were narcotics-related, perpetrated primarily by users of cocaine," said Anthony.

"No. 2 is serial-type robbers. In the past it typically was the case that robberies were committed by individuals. Now we're seeing one individual doing as many as 16 robberies in a period of a year and a half."

"The third reason for the increase is that the holiday season is upon us. The holidays trigger an increase in the number of personal crimes and bank robberies in general."

Robbing banks, though, "isn't very profitable in terms of monies gained by individuals," said Anthony.

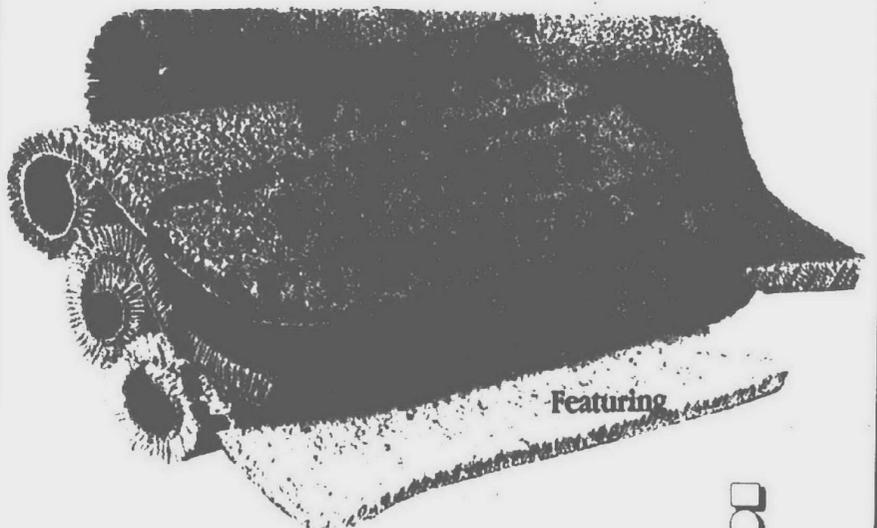

"From our statistics, it's not an occupation you'd want to go into. Our solution rate has been very good. It has been upwards of 80 percent."

Armed robbery is punishable by up to 20 years imprisonment. Unarmed robbery carries a 15-year maximum prison sentence.

Band steps to championship

staff photos by BILL BREBLER/staff photographer

Saxophones and trombones are important to the band's overall sound.

The Centennial Educational Park Marching Band reclaimed the state marching band championship last weekend reportedly with the highest score ever awarded at the state finals.

The CEP band, comprised of students from Canton and Salem high schools, received a rating of 90.5, nearly a full point higher than runner-up Durand.

CEP won the state championship in 1984, '85 and '86, but finished third last year.

"Winning is not an ultimate goal for us," said Glen Adsit, assistant band director. "Entertaining and exciting people who are there to watch us is. If we do those things, chances are we're going to win."

In addition to top band honors, CEP's percussion section was named best percussion section for the third consecutive year at state.

The CEP band also was cited for best color guard and best marching and maneuvering in Flint.

THE CEP BAND, with 162 members, played selections from "Singing in the Rain" and "Music Man" during a 10-minute show.

The band will complete its season Nov. 11-13 by appearing in Bands of America National Championship Competition at the Pontiac Silverdome. About 50 bands are expected to compete.

James R. Griffith, longtime band director here, took ill and couldn't attend the state championship. He hopes to be on hand for the nationals.

"Our goals were to win the state championship and make the finals of the grand nationals in two weeks," said Brad Flowers, one of two CEP band field commanders.

THE CEP BAND has never reached the finals — the best 12 — at the nationals.

Band members worked hard to put last year's third-place finish at state behind them, said Flowers, a senior.

"We just had a bad show," he said. "The field was bad and it was just one of those times if something was going to go wrong, it happened."

"We knew we could do it. We just had to set our minds to it."

The band reworked its show this year and specifically concentrated on improving its marching, said Jay Koupal, a marching instructor.

"I'm the guy that's here every day to make sure the product continues to move forward, clean up drill and reinforce the style of each individual marcher," Koupal said.

THE BAND will continue to practice a couple of hours every weekday and rehearse most of this Saturday to prepare for the nationals.

"The kids learn what excellence is, what precision is — the art of refining," Adsit said. "They learn conditioning. They learn what teamwork is, how to deal with one another."

"We are primarily like golf. You're competing against yourself for the best score. Key phrases we tell them are perform to the best of your ability and sell the show."

Judges on the field and in the press box use a 100-point grading system.

Bands are rated in such categories as music effect, music ensemble, percussion and visual effect.

Jay Koupal critiques the band's marching.

Anti-drug film makes impressive premiere

By Louise Okrutsky
staff writer

Last spring Tom Van Dyke engaged in a search for someone to help him foot a $160,000 bill.

The Plymouth man, who usually writes and produces industrial films, was making a 29-minute video aimed at discouraging high school students from dabbling in alcohol and other drugs.

Van Dyke originally banked on obtaining a government grant for the project. After his grant request was rejected he decided the project meant too much to be discarded.

Support for the script came from the Addiction Research Institute at Wayne State University and Wayne County Sheriff Robert Ficano. The film deals with the effect of drugs and alcohol on family, friends, school and work.

Money for the film proved more difficult to find.

IN THE end, Van Dyke plowed his life's savings into the film "Are You Talking to Me?" Not only that, he essentially quit taking industrial jobs during the past year to devote his time to his film.

This fall, the film premiered in Fordson High School auditorium.

"I'm glad I did it," Van Dyke said. "I have an opportunity to change things."

The premiere was attended by students from 50 metropolitan-area high schools who acted in the film's vignettes. "They were just delighted and real happy about their involvement," Van Dyke said of the cast.

For Van Dyke, who is selling the video for $400 a copy while he searches for a distributor, the film is more than a business venture. He sees it as his contribution to helping keep families together.

"The primary problem is in the social development of society. It's the breakdown of the American family," he said.

WORKING PARENTS, he said, often don't make themselves a part of their child's life. They try to buy gifts to replace all the missed school plays and parent-teacher conferences.

His next project could very well grow out of that concern.

"I'd like to do another film on the rites of passage with kids. It'll deal with keeping their self-esteem," he said.

He hopes the strength of this video attracts a backer for the next project. In the meantime, he's still emotionally and financially entangled in the present film.

"One big thing it did for me, it made me realize this drug takes over your life. It controls your whole life," he said of making the film.

His script emphasizes that young people can make choices that will affect their lives.

"YOU CAN have two kids who grew up together. They may experiment. One may say, 'Hey, I can't do my homework, I can't do sports anymore.' He may quit. But the other may have the chemical makeup to become an addict."

The project also served to knit Van Dyke's own family closer together. "There was a sense of family. It was a family project. I want my kids to know you can effect change. It's your responsibility to say what you have to say."

Marketing "Are You Talking to Me?" has also served up a small dose of dismay to Van Dyke. Until he agrees to allow a company to distribute the film, Van Dyke's doing it himself. "What's key is to get it into your community," he said. But some groups that expressed an interest in the film don't want to pay $400 for it.

"They want it for free," he said. "I can't give it away. When I think about the money I paid to film it, about the money I lost within that year by not working on other things, it hurts when someone wants it for free."

Meijer still interested in building in Plymouth

Meijer Inc. still intends to build a store in Plymouth even though it hasn't moved in that direction since buying 33 acres at Schoolcraft and Haggerty roads last February, a company spokeswoman said.

Since acquiring the Plymouth property, the retail giant has begun constructing a 212,000-square-foot store and gas station at Newburgh and Warren roads in Westland.

That store should open in early 1990, said Jennifer White, a company spokeswoman.

Meijer already operates large stores in Canton at Ford and Canton Center roads and in Northville at Haggerty and Eight Mile roads. Those two stores opened in 1974 and 1985, respectively.

"We feel that by having that many stores in the community, we'll be able to service it better," White said.

"We do have a number of sites in Michigan and Ohio. While we'd like to, we can't build all at the same time. We prioritize," she said.

Plymouth isn't on the construction schedule, but that schedule is constantly re-evaluated, she said.

It was decided that a store in Westland was more important now than Plymouth, which is about halfway between the Canton and Northville stores, White said.

James Anulewicz, planning director in Plymouth, said he's heard "zilch" from Meijer's in recent months.

A PLYMOUTH Meijer would be the fourth within about 10 miles of each other. There are no plans to close any area stores.

"OUR LAST conversation was seven months ago, and they still said it was a viable project," Anulewicz said. "Their indication at least initially to us is that it's not a hot project. I guess I'm not totally surprised.

"All I can say is if it doesn't go, there are some people who wouldn't be totally upset in the LakePointe area," he added.

Those people objected to a large store in their neighborhood and petitioned to place a tax question on last November's ballot that would have provided money to buy the property for a township park.

Meijer, which had an option on the parcel at the time, and Lafrete Construction Co., the land owner, agreed to sell to the township if the proposal passed.

However, it went down to defeat by a large margin.

A Plymouth store of about 212,000 square feet would provide at least 500 jobs, White said.

Meijer, a privately owned corporation, operates 40 stores in Michigan and seven in Ohio.

Students may study abroad

Qualified high school students are offered a chance to spend an academic year or summer holiday in Scandinavia, Germany, France, Spain, Switzerland, Britain, Holland, Australia, New Zealand or Canada (French or English speaking) as part of the ASSE International Student Exchange Program.

Students ages 15-18 qualify on the basis of academic performance, character references and a desire to experience life abroad with a volunteer host family from Europe, Canada, New Zealand or Australia.

Students or families interested in more information about the ASSE program should contact: Paul and Stephanie Satlowski, 42810 Pierce St., Belleville-48111, or call 313-699-1273.

Year students need not have learned a foreign language as they receive language and cultural instruction as part of the ASSE program. ASSE students attend regular high school classes along with their new overseas teenage friends. ASSE exchange students learn by living the language and culture of their new host country.

Area judge runs for state bench

Voters will choose between two incumbents and four challengers, including a Plymouth Township resident, Tuesday, Nov. 8, in filling a pair of Michigan Supreme Court seats.

Plymouth Township resident Marvin Stempien is among four challengers who will face incumbents James Brickley and Charles Levin. Other challengers include Richard Johnston, Jerry Kaufman, and Donald Warmbler.

The race will appear on the non-partisan section of the ballot. Voters may vote for two candidates.

Winners receive eight-year terms. Justices receive $100,000 per year.

Though it is a non-partisan race, Stempien was nominated and independent Levin endorsed during the state Democratic Party convention. Republicans nominated Brickley and Johnston.

Kaufman was nominated by the Tisch Independent Citizens Party. Warmbler was nominated by the Libertarian Party.

Candidates include:

● Brickley, 59, a state Supreme Court justice since 1982. He served two terms as lieutenant governor, the last ending in 1982, and is a former gubernatorial candidate. He has also served as president of Eastern Michigan University, a member of the Detroit Common Council and as a FBI special agent.

He holds a master of laws degree from New York University and law and philosophy degrees from the University of Detroit.

Brickley lives in Traverse City. ● Johnston, 47, a Mount Clemens-based attorney. He is a former Macomb Probate judge and former Shelby Township attorney. He received his law degree from Detroit College of Law.

Johnston lives in Mount Clemens. ● Kaufman, 34, a Southfield-based attorney specializing in taxation, labor and environmental law.

He holds a master of laws degree, law degree and sociology degree from Wayne State University.

He is one of three family members on the Nov. 8 ballot. Kaufman lives in Huntington Woods.

● Levin, 62, a state Supreme Court justice since 1973. He was a Michigan Court of appeals judge from 1966-72.

He received his law degree from the University of Michigan.

Levin lives in Detroit.

● Stempien, 55, a Wayne County circuit judge. He is a former state Representative and two-term majority floor leader of the state House of Representatives. He was one of three judges who reviewed the 1986 controversy involving restrictions on Dearborn park use.

He received his law degree from Detroit College of Law and holds a bachelor's in business administration from the University of Michigan.

Stempien lives in Plymouth Township.

● Warmbler, 41, a senior tax council for General Motors Corp.

James Brickley

Richard Johnston

Jerry Kaufman

He received his law degree from the University of Michigan and holds a bachelor's in economics and accounting from Michigan State.

Warmbler lives in Dearborn.

The seven-member high court administers the state court system and holds the right of review over Michigan court cases, though it chooses which cases to review.

In the past year, it has handed down rulings on topics ranging from use of previous criminal records as trial evidence, to responsibility for solid-waste cleanup payment to the validity of state rules governing school year length.

Candidates were asked by the Observer & Eccentric to submit photos and resumes. Those that responded are featured here.

UF Drive gets boost

United Foundation Torch Drive volunteers reported this week that $41.4 million, or 69.6 percent of this year's $59.5 million goal, has been raised.

The announcement was made at the second report meeting in Detroit by Torch Drive Chair for Labor Tom Turner, secretary-treasurer of the Michigan State AFL-CIO.

Highlighted were contributions totaling $4.3 million from Chrysler Corp. employees in the greater Detroit area. In addition, the Chrysler Corp. Fund made a gift of $650,000, bringing contributions from Chrysler and its employees to nearly $5 million.

Turner praised the United Auto Workers (UAW) headquarters employees for their $87,000 contribution — a 45-percent increase over last year.

Today's report brings the number of organizations receiving Gold Honor Awards for their employee campaign results to 120.

Schools defend Indian symbols

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Spokesman at a pair of area high schools say their schools' Indian nicknames and logos will be dropped, if ordered. But they aren't entirely thrilled by the prospect.

The Birmingham Brother Rice Warriors, Plymouth-Canton Chelms and Lutheran High Westland Warriors are among the high school and college sports teams that face re-naming in the wake of last week's Michigan Civil Rights Commission request.

Calling the nicknames misleading and derogatory, civil rights commission members asked schools to stop using Indian nicknames for sports teams.

The area schools are among more than 100 Michigan high schools, colleges and middle schools that may have to rename teams in the wake of the commission request.

Spokesman at the schools said they would comply, if forced, but weren't taking immediate steps to change their nicknames or logos.

"WE'VE TALKED about it, and if we're forced to change by law, we'll change. But we'd like to keep it," said Mike Popson, Birmingham Brother Rice athletic director.

Change has also been discussed at Plymouth-Canton, though school officials said they weren't sure whether the commission's request would force a change.

"We haven't seen the report. That's the first thing we'd have to do," said district spokesman Richard Egli.

E.J. McClendon, a Plymouth-Canton school board member of Choctaw heritage expressed concern over Indian nicknames during a recent interview.

"We haven't heard any parent or student concerns," Lutheran High principal Ross Stueber said. "We've discussed it but we're looking more at the symbol than at the nickname."

State civil rights commissioners said the nicknamed promoted misleading and derogatory images of Native Americans.

"INDIANS ARE the only people who are singled out to be caricatured," said Beverly Clark, commission vice chairwoman. "No other group of people has been singled out for this kind of derision."

'Indians are a proud people, and the symbol is one of pride and strength.'

athletic director
Brother Rice

Popson, however, said his school chose its Indian nickname and logo out of respect, not animosity.

"Indians are a proud people and the symbol is one of pride and strength. Really, it's a symbol for the school and I don't know anyone who would degrade their mascot," Popson said. "Indians have probably gotten the short end of a long stick, but it's not our purpose to demean anyone."

The commission adopted a report asking schools to study the recommendation and begin programs that would stereotype Native Americans.

If school nicknames and mascots continue negative stereotypes by the next school year, commission members said, they might further investigate their use.

Four Michigan colleges, more than 60 high schools and at least 33 middle and junior high schools use Indian themes in their nicknames, according to a commission study.

Colleges and universities using Indian nicknames and logos include the Central Michigan University Chippewas, Eastern Michigan University Hurons, Lake Michigan Community College's Indians and Michigan Christian College Warriors.

High school nicknames include Arrows, Big Reds, Black Hawks, Braves, Chiefs, Mohawks, Raiders, Redmen and Redskins.

Clark said the civil rights commission wants to "educate people to the problem and get them to cooperate. The ultimate goal would be to have these logos and characters not used any longer."

Firm to develop jail plan

An Illinois firm has been selected to develop plans for the new Wayne County jail.

Moyer Associates of Glencoe, Ill., was selected programming services consultant, county Executive Edward McNamara announced last week.

The company expects to receive a $140,000 professional services contract, including up to $30,000 in reimbursable expenses. The contract is subject to county commission approval.

If the contract is approved, Moyer will deliver a program statement within three months. The statement is expected to include a projection of the county's future inmate population and the space needed to house inmates.

The study would be presented to potential jail construction bidders.

Moyer Associates has helped design jails and prisons in 25 nations, including the United States. McNamara said Company projects included a 1,000-bed facility in Miami and a $150 million correctional plant for Alaska.

Moyer Associates is a member of the Smith Group, Inc. Detroit.

12 candidates campaign for 11 circuit court seats

By M.S. Dillon
staff writer

For the first time in 12 years, judges seeking re-election to Wayne County Circuit Court are facing opposition at the polls. Vying for 11 circuit court seats are 12 nonpartisan candidates.

The challenger is attorney Andrea Ferrara, 36, of Grosse Ile. Defeated in her re-election bid to Trenton's district court in 1986, Ferrara sits as a part-time visiting judge in district court in Dearborn.

Ferrara served as a visiting judge in 36th District Court for 11 months in 1987. Ferrara, a Detroit College of Law graduate, said she is running because "I feel I'm a very good judge. My reputation has been built on my ability to listen and be fair. People have the right to a choice. The only thing that brings about accountability is a challenge."

Ferrara is rated qualified by Civic Searchlight, a nonpartisan organization which interviews candidates and makes recommendations based on qualifications for office.

Incumbents running for six-year terms include:

• William Cahalan, 57, of Grosse Ile, graduated from the University of Notre Dame in 1953, and from the University of Michigan Law School in 1956.

He worked for four years as assistant judge advocate general for the U.S. Army before entering private practice in Detroit, where he practiced for 10 years. Cahalan worked for four years as chief of the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office civil department.

He was elected to circuit court in 1974 and was re-elected in 1982.

Cahalan is rated preferred and well-qualified by Civic Searchlight.

• Robert Colombo, 38, of Grosse Pointe, has been a circuit judge since his election in 1982.

A 1972 graduate of the University of Miami, Fla., Colombo earned his law degree from the Detroit College of Law in 1975.

From 1975-1977, he was a law clerk for Court of Appeals Judge George Bashara Jr. Colombo served as a trial and appellate attorney from 1977-1982. He has served as an adjunct professor at Cooley Law School.

He is rated preferred and well-qualified by Civic Searchlight.

• Michael Connor, 50, of Grosse Pointe Farms, graduated from the University of Notre Dame in 1960, and from the University of Notre Dame Law School in 1962.

From 1963-1970, Connor worked as an assistant prosecutor in the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office. From 1970-1973, he served as chief of the Recorder's Court Division, Wayne County Prosecutor's Office. Connor also worked as a defense attorney in the Public Defenders Office. In 1973, Connor was appointed to the Recorder's Court bench. He was elected to the seat in 1974 and re-elected in 1976. He was appointed in 1976 to the Wayne Circuit bench, and was re-elected in 1982.

He is rated preferred and well-qualified by Civic Searchlight.

• Sharon Tevis Finch, 45, of Detroit, graduated from Wayne State University in 1965 and from the Detroit College of Law in 1968.

She was a partner with Finch & Finch in Detroit from 1968-1975. Finch served as a Michigan Civil Rights Commissioner from 1973-1975.

Finch was appointed to Common Pleas/36th District Court in 1975, where she served through 1982. Finch was elected to Wayne County Circuit Court in 1982.

Finch is rated preferred and well-qualified by Civic Searchlight.

• John Hausner, 55, of Grosse Pointe Park earned his bachelor's, master's and law degrees from the University of Detroit. He is a former chief assistant United States attorney, and served as chief of the Criminal Division for the United States Attorney.

This is Hausner's third re-election bid.

Hausner is rated preferred and well-qualified by Civic Searchlight.

• James Mies, 60, of Livonia, served as Livonia District Judge from 1969-1981. He earned his undergraduate and law degrees from the University of Detroit.

From 1953-1969, Mies was a practicing attorney.

Mies has served on the Wayne Circuit bench since 1981. Mies was chief judge pro tem in Wayne County Circuit Court in 1984-1985.

Mies was a member of the Michigan Judicial Tenure Commission from 1975-1981. He serves on the Cooley Law School Board of Directors.

He is rated preferred and well-qualified by Civic Searchlight.

• Michael Stacey, 66, of Detroit, is completing his 18th year on the Wayne Circuit Court bench. He earned his undergraduate and law degrees from Wayne University in 1950. For 20 years, Stacey had a general law practice in Detroit.

He is rated preferred and well-qualified by Civic Searchlight.

• Cynthia Diane Stephens, 37, of Detroit, earned her bachelor's degree from the University of Michigan in 1971 and her law degree from Emory University in Atlanta, Ga. in 1976.

From 1982-1985, Stephens was a 36th District Court judge. She has worked as an attorney in private practice and in the Michigan Senate as associate general counsel. She was elected in 1982.

• Paul Teranes, 53, of Grosse Pointe, earned his bachelor's degree from Holy Cross in Worcester, Mass. in 1958 and his law degree from the University of Michigan in 1961.

In the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office from 1962-1982, Teranes worked in fraud and special services, organized crime, and the Circuit Court division. Teranes was appointed to his seat in 1982 by then Gov. Milliken.

He is rated preferred and well-qualified by Civic Searchlight.

• Kaye Tertzag, 49, of Allen Park, earned his bachelor's degree from Wayne State University and law degree from the Detroit College of Law in 1969. Tertzag taught school for nine years. He was a practicing attorney for 16 years, specializing in municipal law. He has served on the Circuit Court bench for two and a half years.

He is rated preferred and qualified by Civic Searchlight.

• Helene White, 33, of Detroit, graduated from Barnard College, Columbia University in 1975, and from the University of Pennsylvania Law School in 1978. She served as a law clerk for Michigan Supreme Court Justice Charles Levin from 1978-1980, and as a Common Pleas Court/36th District Court judge from 1981-1983. Since January 1983, White has served as a Wayne Circuit Court judge.

She is rated preferred and well-qualified by Civic Searchlight.

Peace cause still fresh for activist, husband

By Jeff Coombs
staff writer

Mary Greavu gave peace a chance in 1971 when the movement against the Vietnam War was at its height.

Now 17 years later when the song "We are the World" and the anti-war chants have faded, she and her husband, Bill, are carrying on the peace movement in their West Bloomfield home, from which they run the Peace Center.

"Peace just isn't popular now," said Mary, 51. "We need to learn that violence begets violence."

She said the Peace Center serves as a clearing house for information aimed at stopping violence among children and nations.

The center was formed by Quakers in Birmingham in 1971 and is supported by contributions from individuals, fund-raisers and churches. The couple draws a salary for running the center but turns it back to the organization.

ON A RECENT day, Mary was fielding telephone calls about upcoming picketing of toy stores in Oakland County that sell war toys, while Bill, 51, was on another telephone calling people about organizing Oakland Pax Christi, a Catholic peace group.

However, life wasn't always so peacefully hectic for the couple. Although the couple was involved with the Peace Center, it wasn't until 1985 that Bill was able to leave his job as manager of quality control at a Chrysler plant in Detroit to devote his time to the center.

"I inherited some money and quit my job," he said.

Also, at about that time the last of the couple's four children married and left home. They then sold their Bloomfield Hills home and moved to a smaller one.

"We've been trying to simplify our lives so we could work on the peace movement," she said.

FOR HER THE peace movement starts with children. But there's more to it than keeping war toys out of children's hands.

"We should be teaching the four R's," she said, adding that the fourth R is conflict resolution.

"There's so much violence — conflict that's solved by violence," she said. "We have to teach the skills to solve conflict in a non-violent way. Kids just haven't been given those skills."

One way to do that is with a fight form, which is given to children who have been battling it out. She said filling out the form teaches children to resolve their differences through negotiation.

She said that competition causes violence, and that "it brings out the win and lose thing."

"We try to encourage co-operation," she said. "It's been proven in business that co-operation can solve more problems than competition."

SHE SAID SPORTS brings out competition in children, and that parents should monitor the coaches and the sport to ensure that it's not encouraging "killing the other guy."

"We've got games that encourage co-operation," she said, adding that there's a pin the tail on the donkey game that has children helping the blindfolded one.

For adults, the center has a video tape that shows them how to deal with an assault in a non-violent manner.

"It comes from the philosophy of seeing good in other people," she said. "The person who comes at you is a broken person."

She said the best way to deal with an assault is to "relate to that person in a friendly way. That disarms them."

"They expect you to be a victim or fight back," she said.

The couple's goal is to spend the next 20 years working for peace, she said.

"We want to bring up a generation that doesn't respond to conflict with violence," she said.

And the couple has a stake in that future generation — they have one grandchild and another on the way.

Older students now filling college classes

By G.L. Rugenstein
staff writer

The challenges of a changing society, and the efforts of educators to appeal to the market, are contributing factors to a steady increase in the average age of college students, said a University of Cincinnati educator said.

"I think it has a lot to do with the rate of change in American society," said Nina Thomas, senior academic advisor for undergraduate students. "You tend to see people entering education at a time of change in their lives."

She said these include displaced workers, women whose children have grown and left home, and people who have been forced by health changes to adjust by changing their livelihoods

A recent national study predicts that the majority of college students will be 25 or older within a decade.

That trend is reflected in statistics reported by Schoolcraft Community and Madonna colleges in Livonia, the University of Michigan-Dearborn and Wayne County Community College.

THE AVERAGE age now is 27.7 at the 8,330-student Schoolcraft College in Livonia, according to the report. Isabell Pierce, secretary to the vice president of student services, prepares each semester.

"The average age remains consistent," Pierce said, but she had no statistics to explain the older average age.

Thomas noted: "I think it's a continuing trend... I think we're re-

'I think it has a lot to do with the rate of change in American society.'

quiring more education as a society, and people are finding that... to get the kind of jobs they want, they have to get an education."

She said educators are reaching out to those people by offering courses tailored to diverse schedules.

Roma Heaney, a research assistant in the University of Michigan-Dearborn Institutional Research Department concurred.

U-MD has recognized the trend in older, employed people returning to school, and has worked to develop a schedule to accommodate them.

"We're offering more classes in the evening and on weekends," she said. "It makes it more attractive to people who have full-time employment."

The average age of younger students, 23 or 24, hasn't increased dramatically, Heaney pointed out. Instead, "more people over 30 are making up a greater percentage of our student body," she said.

Another trend Heaney has noted is the greater number of the over-30 students returning to the teacher training curriculum.

"They've been returning to obtain their teaching certificates," Heaney said, noting that perhaps they see that there'll be a need for more teachers in the future.

"OUR COLLEGE has always been largely an adult-age commuter college," said Andrea Nodge, director of public relations at Madonna College. Nodge added that the average age of Madonna's 3,969 students is 30, with a median age of 28.

Economics is a large, contributing factor in that number, along with flexibility of scheduling to accommodate older, working students, and an expanded scholarship program.

"We're the most affordable, private liberal arts college in southeastern Michigan," Nodge said.

Madonna's board of trustees recently approved more than $1 million in financial awards to be distributed over the next six years, in its expanded scholarship program.

The campuswide average age is 26 at all of Wayne County Community College's locations, said Paula Peinovich, executive dean of WCCC's western campus.

"Part of that is because we do have programs for senior citizens as well. If we took seniors out of the computation the average age would still be in the high 20s, around 27 or 28," she explained.

The reasons are that the small proportion of college-bound high school seniors generally choose four-year colleges, said Peinovich.

The students who don't go on and get the easier to find, minimum wage jobs, according to Peinovich.

It's these students who come back at a later time "when education seems to become more relevant to them," who account for WCCC's higher average age, Peinovich said.

In her dissertation at the University of Pennsylvania on the subject of adult participation in higher education, Peinovich found that certain variables determined how and when adults go back to school.

"Geographical location, and cost are very important," she said. "Community colleges are a very good economic buy for an adult."

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

Jeanne Stempien for State Representative

WE DESERVE EFFECTIVE LEADERSHIP IN LANSING ... BECAUSE the Incumbent 36th District Representative has failed us:

- FAILS TO TAKE A STAND ... In the last session of the Legislature alone, Mr. Law failed to vote 23 times on tough issues, although he was present!
- WASTE OF TAX DOLLARS ... In the last few weeks, Mr. Law has printed and mailed at taxpayer expense four newsletters to the voters of this District. Although technically legal, the incumbent has campaigned with your tax dollars!
- DISREGARD OF LAW ... Mr. Law's placement of his political signs on public property makes it appear that our laws don't apply to his campaign. His campaign signs litter our roadways in violation of the public right-of-way!

VOTE FOR EFFECTIVE REPRESENTATION FOR OUR COMMUNITY ...
VOTE FOR EFFICIENT USE OF TAX DOLLARS ...
VOTE FOR RESPECT FOR THE LAW ...

Voters to get '92 party cards

(AP) — Seconds after they cast their ballots for president on Nov. 8, Michigan voters will be given a chance to start thinking about the 1992 presidential race.

Bureau of Elections director Chris Thomas said election clerks will be handing party preference forms to voters as they leave the voting booths on Election Day. Voters must declare a party preference by Feb. 17, 1992, if they want to vote in the March 17, 1992, presidential primary.

Established by the Legislature earlier this year, the 1992 primary will be the first presidential primary in Michigan since 1980 and the first "closed" primary since 1947.

DEMOCRATS QUIT using the primary after 1972 because their na-

Clerks have been asked to hand out the cards to voters as they leave the polling places, so voters don't get the impression the cards are related to the Nov. 8 balloting, Thomas said.

tional party rules didn't recognize open primaries.

To select their presidential delegates this year, Republicans used a multi-tiered convention process while Democrats used a caucus system.

"The creation of a closed presidential primary breaks with Michigan's long tradition of having open primaries. We expect many voters are going to question this when they arrive at the polling place and are confronted with this new opportunity on Nov. 8," Thomas said.

The law requires that party preference cards be distributed at each election. Clerks have been asked to hand out the cards to voters as they leave the polling places, so voters don't get the impression the cards are related to the Nov. 8 balloting, Thomas said.

VOTERS MAY fill out the cards on the spot and hand them back to the election workers, reject the cards, or take them with them to be mailed in later.

While voters who don't fill out one of the cards won't be able to vote in the 1992 primary, Thomas said they will be eligible to vote in all primaries for state and local offices.

The party choice can be changed any time until 30 days before the 1992 primary, he said.

Although the cards allow voters to declare "no party preference," Thomas said voters who select that option won't be able to vote in the primary.

Irish topic: restoration

The Irish American Culture Institute will learn about the restoration of a 17th century country estate when it meets at 9 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 8, on the University of Michigan-Dearborn Campus.

Luke Dodd will present a color slide show on his renovation of Strokestown Park House in County Roscommon, Ireland. The house had been slated for demolition until a local businessman bought it and put Dodd in charge of restoration. The house will become a museum commemorating the famine of the 1840s in Ireland.

The meeting will be in the Gabels el Richard Campus Ministry Center of UM-D on Evergreen at Highland.

It is open to the public. Donations is $5. The group is a nonprofit foundation.

Campaign stop over

Hitting hard at his theme of keeping college tuition costs manageable, Tom Lewand, candidate for University of Michigan regent, brought his campaign to the Livonia Senior Citizen Center Tuesday. Lewand stressed the need for strong leadership to control spiraling tuition costs at universities. Lewand was joined by supporters (left) Dan Navarro, Lori Maher-Duggan, Livonia councilwoman Laura Toy (behind Lewand), his wife, Kathy, who is holding 4-month-old Eddie Duggan, and Malcolm S. Carney (with pool stick). Lewand is a senior partner with the Detroit law firm of Jaffe, Snider, Raitt & Heuer.

School enrollment declines in local districts

School enrollment increased only in South Redford. It dropped everywhere else in the area, following a state trend.

School enrollment

School	87-88	88-89	%
Wayne-Westland	16,945	16,408	-3.2%
Garden City	5,826	5,641	-3.2%
Plymouth-Canton	15,543	15,292	-1.6%
Redford Union	6,309	6,212	-1.6%
Livonia	16,068	15,820	-1.5%
Clarenceville	1,932	1,925	-0.3%
South Redford	2,982	3,019	+1.2%

Enrollment in state public schools from kindergarten through 13th grade continues its post-baby boom decline, according to recently released figures. Local districts, with only one exception, reflect the state-wide decline.

Enrollment in South Redford schools actually increased by 37 pupils, from 2,982 to 3,019, a gain of 1.2 percent.

According to state school Superintendent Donald Bemis, the traditional "fourth-Friday" enrollment figures — literally compiled in headcounts of attendance in schools on the fourth Friday of the fall term — show a decline of nine-tenths of a percent, to 1.85 million. That is nearly 14,000 fewer than the 1987-88 total of 1.67 million.

State enrollment has declined every year since 1971-72, when enrollment peaked at 2.2 million.

State school enrollment has declined every year since the peak year of 1971-72, when enrollment was at 2.2 million.

State school officials and U.S. Census officials say that enrollment will increase by the mid-1990s as the children of baby boomers enter the system.

LOCALLY, THE LARGEST decline was in the Wayne-Westland schools, which lost 537 students over a year ago, from 16,945 to 16,408, a decline of 3.2 percent.

Garden City schools were off nearly 3.2 percent, too, from 5,826 to 5,641. Enrollment peaked at 14,000 in 1968.

In Plymouth-Canton, enrollment this year is down 1.6 percent from a year ago, from 15,543 to 15,292. The schools peaked in 1979-80, when enrollment hit 16,913.

Redford Union schools were also off 1.6 percent, from 6,309 to 6,212.

Livonia Public Schools, which saw peak enrollment of 16,068 in 1970-71, saw enrollment decline to 15,820 this year, down 1.5 percent from 16,068 a year ago.

Clarenceville schools were off just three-tenths of a percent, from 1,932 to 1,925.

Enrollment figures are particularly important to in-formula districts, which rely heavily on state aid, which is $3,200 per student. Garden City, Redford Union and Clarenceville are in-formula districts.

South Redford and Livonia are out-of-formula. That means the districts collect enough from local property so they do not qualify for basic state aid.

Local races

Here's recap of endorsements

VOTERS IN THE city of Plymouth and Plymouth Township have a wide variety of election choices to make Tuesday. During the past few weeks we have presented our endorsements in the local races, campaign for state representative and for U.S. Congress.

The candidates running for these seats were interviewed by reporters and editors for either the primary or general election.

AFTER THE interviews, reporters and editors got together to discuss the strengths and weaknesses of the candidates, examine their records and contributions to the community and discuss the races with residents and community leaders.

We also listened to the candidates at forums sponsored by other organizations and studied their literature in order to get a more complete picture.

After sifting through this information and in some cases debating among ourselves, final decisions were made on which candidates should receive our endorsement.

In many cases the decisions were easy. In other instances, when the choices were less obvious, we went back through the same process before we gave the candidates our nod.

The polls are open 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Tuesday. Residents also can vote absentee before Tuesday. Sometimes voters mistakenly believe the option is open only to senior voters. However, absentee ballots are available to voters of all ages.

For more information about absentee voting, call 453-1234 if you live in the city of Plymouth; or 453-3840 if you live in Plymouth Township.

Voters: Study Bush appeal

To the editor:
This is a remarkable presidential campaign! Mr. Bush seems to be capitalizing on a record that represents the most corrupt behavior in American history. Five hundred and seventy-three Reagan appointees have been indicted and 470 convicted of perjury, bribery, conspiracy, racketeering, tax evasion, extortion and mail fraud, among other crimes. The Iran-Contra affair would have resulted in the impeachment of any other president, but The Actor escapes unscathed.

This administration managed to place American flags on foreign ships to the dismay of even many of Mr. Reagan's staunchest partisans. We were promised a balanced budget but found an outgoing deficit of almost $3 trillion, thus effectively mortgaging our children's future.

A Pentagon procurement scandal is beginning to surface, with double dipping, phony record-keeping, exorbitant consultant fees, cost overruns, and outright fraud. There is no coherent energy policy, even though domestic supplies of oil will be depleted by the year 2020 and nuclear waste continues to pile up as scientists ponder a safe disposal method, or whether any containment will prove vulnerable.

In 35 years of voting, I have never witnessed such negative campaigning as masterminded by Roger Ailes for George Bush. His work for Richard Nixon was a mere warm-up for the trickery and lies he has perpetrated in this election.

Gov. Dukakis has been attempting to elevate the dialogue, but Mr. Bush ducks a real debate. On the local scene, Carl Pursell has copied some of the negative tactics of his mentor. Lana Pollack has shown a willingness to tackle the tough issues and has earned our support. There is a clear choice if one looks beyond personalities to the relevant issues. If we really care about our children's future, we must look beyond Mr. Bush and his appeal to apple pie, a thousand points of light, flag-waving and anti-liberal diatribes.

Confusion on Proposal A

To the editor:
In reading recent newspaper articles discussing Proposal A on the Nov. 8 election ballot, I have noticed that we should be very careful in our use of language of words.

Proposal A will end taxpayers financing of welfare abortions in Michigan. In one article, it was said that if Proposal A passes, it will be forcing "compulsory" pregnancy on women. "Compulsory" means "required or coercive." I do not believe that the state in any way has forced welfare mothers to become pregnant, which is what the term "compulsory pregnancy" implies. These women have evidently chosen not to use birth control and have become pregnant under that choice and not through any state action.

Mary Hodge, R.D.,
Plymouth

In another article, someone said they believe in the women's right to choose ("pro-choice"). This compound word, "pro-choice," is very misleading. It means to be in favor of the women making their own choice — but what are the options she may choose? There are only two — to continue the pregnancy (as hard as it may seem to be) and GIVE her baby LIFE or to have an abortion (not so easy either) and to END LIFE for her baby.

People need to think through the words and language used in this question to see what they really mean. Don't vote blindly, but be sure you know the facts.

Lunches get poor grades

To the editor:
Your article on Sept. 26, giving high marks to the Plymouth-Canton School Lunch Program, leads me to believe that children are making healthy, nutritious food choices. As a registered dietitian and a member of the food service advisory committee for two years, I would like to present a different perspective.

1. Salad Bars. An individual elementary school only offers salad bar twice a week, rather than daily as stated in the article. I have observed students as they assemble their salads. I find many of them take small amounts of vegetables, while the bulk of their salad is made of meat, cheese, and croutons. A major concern I have is the amount of dressing children put on their salads. I have seen students drown their greens with several scoops of dressing. This turns a potentially nutritious meal into a high-fat entree. Money could be saved and health promoted with portioned packages of dressing.

2. Variety. "Eat a variety of foods" is one of the seven Dietary Guidelines our children should be taught. My observations show a majority of elementary students take only the entree and beverage, passing by the fruits and vegetables, giving them a lunch low in fiber and short on vitamins A and C. Our district could improve the nutritional quality of their lunches by offering more whole grain bread products and fresh fruits and vegetables.

3. Fast Foods. The fast food industry has had a dramatic effect on children's eating habits, and I don't view it as being positive. The majority of fast food offerings are high in fat and sodium and low on nutritional value. Innovative school districts have found ways to offer fast food items in healthier forms. I have seen some greasy pizzas served in our cafeterias for which a healthier product could be found.

I think there is definitely room for improvement in the nutritional quality of our district's lunch offerings. I would encourage concerned parents to question their children about their lunch selections and not to assume that salad bar equals nutritious lunch.

Unborns need mercy, hope

To the editor:
I nearly weep each time I see the television ad or hear a spokesperson talk about how Proposal A will cause our tax dollars to go up if the children we are aborting are allowed to live! Aren't they saying that we should abort these children to keep our tax dollars down?

What is America coming to? When we put a monetary value on life! I hope these same people don't start disliking other socioeconomic groups. They may start systematically eliminating you and me. Are you next on their "hit" list?

These advocates are admitting that "it" is, in fact, a child with a future that they want to continue aborting. But that the future of this child is not to their liking. What pessimists that think that each and every child born in a disadvantaged family has little or no chance of becoming a person with self-worth, productively contributing to our society. What hopeless thoughts they have!

I personally feel that instead of using a scalpel to deal with this issue we should use text books and a large dose of hope for an America that has a future for each and every child. I pray for these advocates to have mercy and love for these unborns! May God have compassion on us all for allowing this to continue.

Party offers a 'real choice'

To the editor:
A great deal is being said in the media about voter apathy. I attribute that directly to the pathetic choices we are being offered by the two major parties. These people are so carefully packaged by PR people that they even begin to look alike. The platforms are obvious attempts to capture votes by "telling them what they want to hear."

This year I have found a real choice and intend to vote for the first time in 12 years because I want those major party candidates to know I'm not too lazy to vote. Every vote for the Libertarian Party will send a message to the country: "I want freedom of choice and a responsible government." Unless we who have been termed apathetic tell them the truth how will they ever know?

Selma Cronley,

Valuation kills: tax hike need

To the editor:
Because of the increased property valuation in Wayne County, there is no need for a millage increase for the Wayne County Intermediate School District.

The system must learn how to operate more efficiently with the tax money that is now available. Property owners carry a heavy burden in Wayne County.

Martha C. Suchanski,

On election day

Don't overlook ballot issues

These are the countywide candidates and state and county ballot proposal positions endorsed by the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers for the Nov. 8 general election. Don't forget to vote the non-partisan section of the ballot.

CONTESTED COUNTY OFFICES

Clerk: James R. Killeen, Democrat.

The clerk's office must meet a high volume of inquiries while working under budget constraints.

While we believe GOP challenger Lawrence Schweiger is sincere in his quest, we find he offers no major recommendations for making the department more efficient.

Prosecutor: John D. O'Hair, Democrat.

O'Hair strikes us as a tough, no-nonsense type who does his job without self-made controversy or fanfare.

His tough stand against plea bargaining for violent crimes should win him approval among crime-weary county residents. Even O'Hair's GOP opponent, Detroit attorney Donnelly W. Hadden admits "no personal disapproval" of the incumbent.

Sheriff: Robert A. Ficano, Democrat.

We supported him in the August primary and recommend him again to voters. Though not a career lawman, Ficano's depth of knowledge about law enforcement issues and department activities is impressive. He faces only token opposition from Libertarian Robert Gale.

STATE BALLOT PROPOSALS

Proposal A: No.

The proposal would eliminate state Medicaid payments for abortion.

This is a proposal that would wrongfully eliminate guaranteed state payment for a medical procedure that has been sanctioned by the U.S. Supreme Court.

This is not a proposal that would end abortions. Backers of Proposal A concede 80 percent of the 16,000 abortions now funded annually by Medicaid would still take place through other means.

Supporters of Proposal A have sought to define the issue in terms of taxes. It's a false issue. The taxes used for Medicaid abortions amount to less than one dollar a year for every Michigan resident.

Proposal B: No.

The proposal would add a section on crime victim rights to the state Constitution. Of major concern with the proposed amendment is whether it could be enforced. Certainly, victims have rights. The question is: What is the best way to protect them?

The proposal would only clutter the state constitution. The better approach would be to shore up the victims rights act with an educational effort for the judiciary and police officers, stiffer court sentencing and an emphasis on due process for victims.

Proposal C: Yes.

The proposal would issue $660 million in general obligation bonds for environmental cleanup. Pollution has long been a companion of our lifestyles. But we can no longer afford such companionship. Our environment is in danger.

Proposal D: Yes.

The proposal would issue $140 million in general obligation bonds to improve local and state parks and recreation areas.

In urbanized southeast Michigan... booming development and the problems it brings has slowly pushed parks and recreation lower on the scale of priorities.

COUNTY PROPOSALS

One-mill increase for special education programs: Yes.

The increase would provide money for costly regional programs benefitting students with severe handicaps and, potentially, for individual special education in each of the county's 34 public school districts.

More money is needed for special education. And the proposal would also make more money available for general classroom education.

Ban on suburban casinos: Yes.

The issue would ban casinos in suburban Detroit if they were also banned in the city, though individual communities could overturn the ordinance.

We believe casinos would be just as detrimental to Plymouth or Redford Township as they would be to Detroit.

Abortions divide us

Few are lukewarm on this issue

ABORTIONS DIVIDE US. The words are those of former U.S. Congressman Bill Brodhead, an understatement if ever there was one. Throwing light on a murky topic, he once explained that the Supreme Court declared abortions the law of the land, but the Congress has debated ad infinitum that abortion may be bad for poor people.

"This gets around the issue of whether abortion is right or wrong," Brodhead said. "While it's a legal right, it's implied it shouldn't be available to poor people."

It was back in 1977 that Brodhead revealed these thoughts on abortion, but 11 years later, the pros and cons of funding abortions is right on stage center as Proposition A on our Nov. 8 ballot.

IF YOU VOTE "yes," you'll be counted as voting that the law should prevent the state from paying for abortions for women on Medicaid, the pro life position. A "no" vote will mean we shouldn't pass a law preventing paid abortions for women on aid.

Few people are lukewarm about abortion rights.

Those who oppose them orchestrate their opposition with the cry that abortion is murder and should never be permitted. In numbers, they count as a minority, but the voice they raise is shrill and loud.

When Brodhead spoke out on abortion rights, a woman, known only as Marianne, had a legal abortion in a Lathrup Village clinic, then remarked: "I think anything a woman wants to do with her own body should be legal as long as she doesn't hurt anyone else."

"And she shouldn't have to crawl behind a rock to do it."

Presidential candidate George Bush got the attention of millions of television viewers by saying he thought abortion rights should be severely curtailed by law, and that women who broke those laws should be treated as criminals.

THE NEXT DAY his abortion statement was recanted, redrafted and softened.

Michael Dukakis' view is that the abortion decision should be in the mind, in the heart, and in the hands of each woman.

When the Supreme Court declared in Roe vs. Wade in 1973, by a vote of 7-2, that abortion was the legal right of all women, civil libertarians — especially the ACLU — celebrated, believing that a woman's right to an abortion was once and for all assured constitutionally.

Wrong again. This is a fight never relegated to any back burner, but always right up there burning on high. Even in the suburbs, violence over abortion is an unfortunate fact.

Feelings run high. There are the bombings, the pickets, the call of names such as "baby killer."

There's been a lot of heat on the subject. In this state, Michigan lawmakers have approved more than 17 bans on abortion spending, usually by adding a line in the annual budget limiting the expenditure to $1.

EACH OF THESE bills was vetoed by Gov. James Blanchard, a Democrat, and his predecessor, William Milliken, Republican. The vetoes have never been overturned.

A petition drive by pro life forces put the question on the ballot we'll be marking in just over a week.

Remember, that is when you close the curtain and close out the world as you vote your conscience. And that's when you decide if women should retain control of their bodies.

Proud political heritage tarnished

I should care.

Tuesday I will vote for Michael Dukakis. But I am not excited about it. He has betrayed his constituency and allowed the Republicans to tarnish a proud political heritage. In the end he gained nothing from the evasion but the quiet enmity of those who are not ashamed of the L word.

These are strange times. Bush and his ilk quote John Kennedy and Harry Truman and Franklin Roosevelt. You ever notice how they don't quote Cal Coolidge or Dwight Eisenhower or Richard Nixon. Bush pleads eloquently about his devotion to Social Security, a program the Reagan administration seriously considered trying to eliminate, a program that was born in the American socialist movement and enacted by liberal Democrats.

LIBERALISM IS an honorable political heritage. The most distinguished Republicans have been those who advanced liberal causes — Lincoln, Theodore Roosevelt, Robert LaFollette, Wendell Wilkie. The most undistinguished are those who blindly coddled the business community and sold the national soul to the robber barons — Grant, Harding, Nixon.

Dukakis had numerous opportunities to lash back at Bush's attack on liberalism. But he was badly advised to reject "labels" as if any hint of liberalism would turn voters against him. Only now, in the last week of the campaign has he embraced his heritage.

He would have been better advised to use the opportunity to educate voters on the true history of this country, to remind them that without liberal reforms most Americans would be living on substandard incomes, without medical benefits, in poor housing, working at deadend jobs, ingesting dangerous medicines

Your voting IQ

Test your election knowledge

I'M WITH Wm. F. Buckley. A large voter turnout isn't necessarily good when many booths are casting ignorant, uninformed, slogan-driven votes.

That's the minority view.

"Voter turnout is very, very important," national Democratic chairman Paul Kirk said in an interview. "We are deploying, in force, in a key state," said Kirk, who with presidential nominee Michael Dukakis and others has been canvassing the Wolverine State hard.

In a year when two cerebral presidential candidates are failing to stir the emotions of the couch potatoes, the party that can field the biggest percentage of its base will win. "A cardinal rule," said Kirk, "is that you never take your base for granted."

DISTRICT JUDGE Ed Sosnick of Bloomfield Township way talks to a lot of high school classes, even from as far off as Livonia, and likes to test their knowledge of voting laws with a little quiz. See how well you do:

1. Can you vote if you are not registered?
2. Can you register to vote when you renew your driver's license?

Tim Richard

3. Can a person who is not a citizen of the United States vote in Michigan?

4. Can a person who is not at least 18 years old on or before the date of the election vote?

5. If you move within 60 days of an election, but fail to register in your new city or township, can you still vote where you are registered?

6. Do you always have to go to the polls to vote?

7. Must the United States flag be displayed either inside the precinct or on a staff outside the building?

8. Can a) blind voters be assisted in voting? b) disabled voters? c) a person who cannot read or write?

9. Can anyone pass out campaign literature within 100 feet of a poll?

10. Can anyone watch the counting of votes?

ANSWERS:

1. No, you must be registered.

2. Yes, you may register at any Secretary of State office or your local city or township clerk (but not the county clerk).

3. No.

4. No. But you may register at age 17 if you will be 18 by election day.

5. Yes, you may vote in your old precinct for up to 60 days. The precinct workers will fill out a change of address form.

6. You may vote either at your neighborhood precinct or by absentee ballot.

7. Yes, the flag must be displayed in one place or another.

8. a) Yes, the blind person may be assisted by a friend. b) Same with the disabled. c) Yes, but a challenger must watch.

9. No, you must stay at least 100 feet from the polling place to distribute literature.

10. Yes — from a specified distance.

HERE IS MY own quiz:

Q. With all the modern punch cards and computerized voting systems we have, is vote counting by the Secretary of State faster or slower than a generation ago?

A. Slower. Secretary of State Richard Austin and elections director Chris Thomas are doing a terrible job, and it gets worse by the year.

What you hear in the way of statewide results Tuesday night and read in the Nov. 9 daily papers will be exit polling results done by private industry — TV networks. There will be no official numbers from Lansing until the end of the next day — none. For some offices, like state Board of Education, there will be no hard numbers until Nov. 10.

Cleaning out a scrapbook from my school days, before there were exit polls, I found some 1954 clippings reporting that Don Leonard didn't know he won the Republican gubernatorial primary until 3 a.m. Wednesday. Under the Austin-Thom regime, it takes 12 hours longer to get numbers from Lansing.

(But this newspaper will have pretty good unofficial numbers from the county building by midnight and virtually complete results the morning after the election.)

Funny thing: The worse Austin's performance, the bigger his re-election margins.

House effort to cut bureau falls short

Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes in the final days of the 100th Congress.

HOUSE

TO KILL AN AGENCY — By a vote of 247 for and 130 against, the House failed to achieve the two-thirds majority needed to eliminate the Federal Asset Disposition Association. The House tried a parliamentary shortcut to pass a bill (HR 4846) getting rid of FADA, which is preserved.

The three-year-old agency liquidates assets acquired by the government when the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp. (FSLIC) takes over failed thrift institutions.

Critics say FADA pays exorbitant salaries to its executives. Critics also say it does work that FSLIC should do itself.

Sponsor Fernand St. Germain, D-R.I., said the bill would eliminate "a wasteful, costly, unresponsive bureaucracy."

Opponent Chalmers Wylie, R-Ohio, said that after a rocky beginning FADA is now under new leadership and its performance has improved dramatically.

Members voting yes wanted to eliminate the agency. Voting yes: Dennis Hertel, D-Harper Woods, William Ford, D-Taylor and Sander Levin, D-Southfield.

Voting no: Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, and William Broomfield, R-Birmingham.

DRUG BILL — By a vote of 87 for and 3 against, the Senate sent to conference with the House an anti-drug bill (HR 5210).

The bill:

- Authorizes $2.6 billion over two years for a broad attack on the supply and use of illegal drugs in the United States.
- Allows the death penalty for certain drug-related murders.
- Sets civil penalties for casual users.
- Denies many federal benefits to those illegally involved with drugs.
- Begins random drug testing of driver's license applicants in four states.

It omits House-approved language to legitimize certain drug evidence obtained without search warrants.

Along with its punitive measures, the massive bill funds education, prevention and rehabilitation programs, and attacks related problems such as homelessness, juvenile crime, alcohol abuse and AIDS.

Roll Call Report

Senators voting yes supported the bill. Voting yes: Michigan Democrats Carl Levin and Donald Riegle.

TO DENY BENEFITS — By a vote of 78 for and 11 against, the Senate amended the anti-drug bill (above) to deny an array of federal benefits to drug traffickers and users.

This would deny discretionary benefits such as loans, grants, contracts, mortgage assistance and public housing. But it excluded so-called "earned" benefits from veterans' programs, Social Security, Medicare and other federal programs.

Sponsor Phil Gramm, R-Texas, said the amendment was aimed mainly at the demand side of the drug problem, "the market which consists of 23 million people who use drugs on a more or less regular basis."

Opponent Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., said "if strong criminal penalties do not provide a deterrent, I am not convinced the loss of federal benefits will."

Senators voting yes wanted to deny certain federal benefits to those illegally involved with drugs. Riegle voted yes.

Levin voted no.

DRIVER'S LICENSES — By a vote of 77 for and 10 against, the Senate adopted an amendment to the drug bill (above) to begin random drug testing in four states of young people applying for driver's licenses.

Testing would be done in California and three yet-unnamed states. The pilot program could be extended to other states.

Supporter Howell Heflin, D-Ala., said the fear of losing driving privileges would turn many youths away from drugs.

Opponent Ernest Hollings, D-S.C.,

said the program would prove to be unworkable and unconstitutional.

Senators voting yes favored a pilot program of random drug testing of driver's license applicants. Levin and Riegle voted yes.

VETERANS' BENEFITS — By a vote of 15 for and 47 against the Senate failed to table (kill) an amendment enabling veterans to obtain flight training under the GI bill.

This preserved the benefit as part of an overall veterans' bill (HR 4741). The bill was returned to the House.

Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., who voted to table, said Congress in 1981 stopped flight training under the GI bill because too many veterans were using the benefit for recreational purposes.

Sponsor Thomas Daschle, D-S.D., said the provision will make it easier for some veterans to obtain jobs in commercial aviation.

Senators voting no wanted to make flight training costs reimbursable under the GI bill. Riegle voted no.

Levin did not vote.

NICARAGUA AND CHILE — By a vote of 12 for and 84 against, the Senate failed to table (kill) a sense-of-the-Senate resolution aimed at Nicaragua's Marxist government and Chile's right-wing dictatorship. The measure later was approved as part of a Montana wilderness bill (S 2751).

The resolution accused the Sandinista regime in Nicaragua of violating the Central American peace process and urged humanitarian aid for the Contra rebels. And it called upon Chilean strongman Augusto Pinochet to keep his promise to hold competitive presidential elections in 1989.

Jesse Helms, R-N.C., who voted to table, objected to the resolution's criticism of the Pinochet government.

Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, said that after 15 years of Pinochet rule, "it is time for the military of Chile to return to barracks..."

Senators voting no supported the resolution. Levin and Riegle voted no.

Her work offers many rewards

By Julie Brown
staff writer

During her undergraduate days, Dr. Mary Franzen Clark enjoyed the psychology courses she took, but didn't think in terms of a career in that field.

"So I originally directed myself toward education," she said.

Clark didn't see women working in the field of psychology. Later on, she started to see women "being visible in more career areas than before."

Clark earned a bachelor's degree from Wayne State University and a master's degree in counseling from the University of Detroit. She worked for nine years as a guidance counselor in public junior and senior high schools.

She has been a psychotherapist for some eight years now. Clark, who is with Alpha Psychological Services in Livonia, was recently named "Woman of the Year" by the Canton Business and Professional Women.

Clark, who grew up in Detroit, started work on her doctorate in counseling at Wayne State in 1975. She completed her Ed.D. in 1979 and went into private practice.

CLARK DOES individual and group work, mostly with adults and couples. She specializes in women's issues.

"A lot of women call and say, I want to talk to a woman," she said. "It makes it a good time to be in this profession."

She would advise a younger woman entering her field to "get the finest training you can possibly get. Don't go for short-term goals," she said.

Clark would recommend that a young woman earn a Ph.D. in clinical psychology. That "gives you the broadest training possible" to do the best job helping people, she said. Earning a doctorate also gives a psychotherapist more control over where and how she or he will work.

"It gives you the widest range of choices," Clark said.

HER WORK is something Clark enjoys.

"I love it. Seeing people change because of our working together" is fulfilling, she said.

She sees people become stronger, healthier, more productive and self-accepting.

"If I can help people in achieving that, I find that very rewarding," she said.

Clark and her husband run their practice together with one other partner. Her husband, Dr. Thomas R. Clark, Ph.D., is a clinical psychologist.

Although they do some work together, including some with couples, they don't see each other much during the work day. They meet with people throughout the day. She works many evenings.

"I have to work when other people don't," she said.

CLARK, 41, is an active member of organizations in her field. Those include: the American Psychological Association, Division for Women's Studies; International Congress of Psychology; Michigan Association for Professional Psychologists; Christian Association for Psychological Studies

She's found success that you can bank on

By Julie Brown
staff writer

Kristene Rautio is a vice president at the First of America Bank-Plymouth. When she first applied for a job at the bank, however, she wasn't really thinking in terms of a career.

These days, Rautio's work at the bank is anything but 9-to-5; she is likely to have meetings early in the morning, at night and in between. She has been with the bank for almost 11 years.

"It doesn't seem possible," she said.

Rautio is secretary to the board for the bank. She is responsible for personnel and marketing, and serves as branch administrator.

She started at the bank as secretary to the president. The person responsible for personnel then left when her husband was transferred. Rautio was approached about taking over those responsibilities.

"They asked me if I would, and I said I'd be delighted to," she said.

Rautio was later promoted to personnel officer and then to assistant vice president. In January 1987, she was named a vice president.

RAUTIO RECENTLY got some good news. She was chosen by the Plymouth Business and Professional Women as this year's "Woman of the Year."

Receiving the award was an honor for Rautio.

"I was just delighted, of course," she said.

She enjoyed receiving congratulatory notes from other BPW members. Rautio, who lives in Livonia, has been a BPW member for some 10 years.

RAUTIO AND her husband, Roy, met at Michigan State University. She attended MSU for two years and studied education.

Rautio came to MSU from Nebraska, but had lived in other places as well. Her father was in the military, and Rautio lived in such places as southern California and West Germany.

She didn't complete work on her bachelor's degree at that time, but did return to school later on. Rautio attends Madonna College, where she is working on a bachelor's degree in business administration.

HER CAREER in banking started at the National Bank of Detroit.

"And I really, really liked it," she said.

Rautio worked in the commercial loan department at NBD as a secretary. She ended up as administrative assistant to the regional head of the commercial loan department.

She then took a sabbatical from work. After that, she worked for about a year for Kelly Services. She was offered a job at a laser company, a position she found through a Kelly assignment.

WHEN RAUTIO applied for the bank position in Plymouth, she interviewed with the late Chuck Heidt, who was instrumental in setting up the bank. Rautio had worked for Heidt at NBD.

"So it's just sort of the luck of the draw," she said.

Rautio attributes much of her success to being in the right place at the right time.

Her bank has three branches, one in Canton and two in Plymouth. Plans are to add another branch in 1989, she said.

RAUTIO IS pleased opportunities for women in her field have expanded. Some young women today don't fully recognize the advantages they have, she has found.

Common courtesy helps patients cope

By Julie Brown
staff writer

HOSPITAL ETIQUETTE

may not be covered extensively in etiquette books. That doesn't mean courtesy isn't called for when visiting patients.

"People sometimes forget that people are in the hospital because they're sick," said Judy Valdez, patient representative at Oakwood Hospital in Dearborn. These days, patients are sent home if they're well enough.

"So it's not a social event," said Valdez, the liaison between the administration and patients at Oakwood. Visitors should limit the length of visits.

Susan Kheder, a certified social worker, agreed there are things friends and families can do to help patients. She's the associate director of the social work department at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor.

It's best to check first with the family to see if a visit would be appropriate, Kheder said.

"It may not be the right timing in the person's hospitalization."

IT'S IMPORTANT to adhere to visiting hours, they said. Visitors should obey rules limiting the number of people in a patient's room.

Hospitals forbid smoking in patient rooms, although there may be other areas where smoking is allowed. Some hospital units may restrict visits to immediate family; some restrict visits by children.

The time of a visit during the day is a factor, Kheder said. Patients who are receiving many kinds of therapy will be worn out by the end of the day and an evening visit may not be wise.

It may be best not to visit a patient in the hospital at all, Kheder said. Patients may not be healthy enough to have visitors. Some may be self-conscious about their hair not being done or otherwise concerned about their appearance.

A phone call, a card or a visit at home may be better. Visitors who aren't feeling too well themselves shouldn't go to the hospital.

Beyond those basics, there are steps friends and family members can take to make a patient's recovery more pleasant.

Gifts such as books or magazines can help patients pass the time. Providing TV service for a few days in the hospital is helpful, Valdez said.

Flowers, plants and balloons are other gift choices, although some units, such as intensive care, may not allow deliveries.

"Stuffed animals, all those things are popular," Valdez said.

VISITORS NEED to be careful about bringing gifts of food to the hospital because some patients are on restricted diets.

Friends can help by supporting the family, Kheder said. Friends can take care of children.

"Sometimes, they're just too exhausted to go home and have a good meal. It's little things like that. People shouldn't forget about those."

Long-term patients may be inundated with visitors when they first arrive at the hospital. Over time, they may see fewer visitors.

"That's when they need the support," Kheder said. Visits will be appreciated later on during a hospital stay.

Visitors need to respect a patient's privacy, Kheder and Valdez agree. If a patient is being treated by a nurse or is otherwise occupied, it's best for a visitor to step into the hallway.

"I think visitors of the other person have to be sensitive to that too," Valdez said.

Conversation's just fine when visiting hospital patients.

"I think it's very important just to keep the conversation very light," Valdez said. "Cheerful and brief, I guess that would be it in a nutshell."

SOME PATIENTS like to talk about their surgery, she said, although it's best to let the patient set the guidelines. A patient who has gone through a mastectomy, for example, may not want to talk about it.

"Sometimes, it's very therapeutic," Kheder said. "People will talk as much as they really want to."

Visitors should combine a nice, positive attitude with being realistic, Kheder said. They shouldn't tell a patient that she or he looks bad.

"But on the other hand, you don't want to say, oh, you look wonderful." Distractions — funny stories, updates on what's happening at work or elsewhere — can be a welcome relief. For long-term hospitalizations, it's helpful to point out the progress a patient has made.

"Sometimes, the patient loses sight of that," said Kheder, an Ann Arbor resident who grew up in Plymouth.

In discussing a patient's condition with hospital staffers, it's important to talk where the patient can't hear what's being said. Some patient information is confidential and can't be released to the general visitor.

Talking about other people's experiences in surgery can help but also has its dangers, according to Kheder.

"It can be used supportively." Visitors can point out that others have gone through surgery and have done just fine. They also need to remember that one illness won't be like another.

VISITORS SHOULD remember that what they're seeing is just a small part of the person's day, Kheder said.

It's fine to express concerns to hospital staffers, she said, but visitors should remember that not all information can be shared. Hospital staffers are, like visitors, on tight schedules.

"Sometimes they're just too exhausted to go home and have a good meal. It's little things like that."

social worker

Family members need to pace themselves when visiting the hospital, she said. While a patient's in the hospital, around-the-clock nursing care is available, as are other services. That won't be the case after the patient gets home.

"So pacing yourself I think is important." Families shouldn't feel guilty about accepting offers of help, Kheder said.

Valdez and Kheder said that dealing with unruly visitors isn't a major problem at their hospitals.

"Visitors for the most part are very courteous," Valdez said.

Ignorance is their enemy, kindness the cure

By Loraine McClish
staff writer

GARY IS A homosexual, a former intravenous drug user and has been diagnosed as having AIDS Related Complex, sometimes referred to as ARC, which is a fore-runner to what he refers to as full-blown AIDS.

Debbie has a brother who has AIDS who her family expects will die before the year is out.

Kim is a registered nurse who works with AIDS patients on a daily basis in Ford Hospital.

If there was one message the panel of three sent out while telling of their experiences with the acquired immune deficiency syndrome, it was "Be kind."

Debbie, who is watching as her brother goes blind and is simultaneously watching her parents' heart-rending frustrations as their son declines, expressed it best.

"Don't tell me it's the wrath of God. That doesn't help and besides I don't believe it. We're struggling to deal with the worst thing that has ever happened to us, and we know about the family that has turned its back, the stigma that society has put on AIDS. The families and the patients need a little kindness."

"The big enemy here is ignorance."

Gary, Debbie and Kim were brought together to help dispel some of that ignorance by the Peace With Justice Committee of Salem United Church of Christ. The act stemmed from a proposal for action within the United Church of Christ Synod to respond to the pandemic of AIDS in the world.

THE BAD NEWS is that between 600 and 700 people in Michigan now have full-blown AIDS and between 60,000 and 70,000 people in Michigan have been exposed to AIDS.

"That makes a potential for quite a problem," Gary said, who added that only 8 percent of that entire number were female.

The good news comes from Kim who says, "AIDS is a very difficult disease to catch." Kim is well aware of the AIDS stigma, the first of which came to her from her mother who was outraged that her daughter would expose herself to the virus day after day and in turn risk exposing members of her family.

"When we had our first AIDS patients every employee in the hospital would put on a mask and gloves when they came anywhere near that room. The only thing we accomplished with that was to make the patient feel like a leper," she said.

"Now we know better and I have no fear of sitting on a patient's bed because I am not at risk. That virus has got to get directly into your blood stream and you do this through a sex partner, sharing needles or through a blood transfusion.

"The most recent study I read was one taken in the most crowded of Hispanic families living in New York, where the people shared toothbrushes and razor blades and there was no incidence of AIDS at all. You just can't catch AIDS any other way than from one person's blood stream to another person's blood stream."

GARY'S LIFE made a turnaround when he learned he had pre-AIDS four years ago. He stopped using drugs and quit his job. He is now volunteering — "acting as a guinea pig" he said — for an experimental drug through Ford Hospital. And he is counseling and visiting AIDS patients in person or on the Wellness Networks AIDS hotline.

He has watched a lot of people die during those four years. Most of them are young, in the prime of their productive years. Most of them die in pain. And many die alone.

"Most newly diagnosed AIDS patients have to quit their jobs immediately and go on disability. I had no prescription coverage and those were running $200 every 10 days. That doesn't help the stress level. Every time I get a bill now it just makes it worse," he said.

Gary thinks he's held the line from pre-AIDS to AIDS for as long as he has because he was healthy to begin with; he spends "every minute fighting off the negatives" and finds a great deal of satisfaction in his volunteer job.

"If I survive this thing — and I think I will be a survivor — I'll never give up being a volunteer. I have been able to give kindness and every kindness is so valued, so appreciated, because we don't fit into society, we don't fit in anywhere," he said.

Because Gary is a homosexual his family is made up of his nieces and nephews.

"I stopped the hugging and kissing," he said. "I know I can't give them AIDS and so does my sister. But the fear is still there. There's still the feeling lurking there that it's flirting with death."

ONE OF THE ironies that came out in the panel discussion was that the AIDS patient has more to fear from catching a common cold than a healthy person has from his or her chances of catching AIDS.

"That's why so many of us live five minutes from a hospital," Gary said. "When the immune system is shot you're susceptible to everything. There's a lot more running back and forth to a hospital than there is long hospital stays. You just can't be exposed to anything. We're talking about a progressive disease and something that so far has been 100 percent fatal."

Kim said there were now "about 20 drugs on the horizon," including the experimental one that Gary is now using.

"You can't catch AIDS by being in the same room as an AIDS patient and you can't catch it by offering help to his family," Debbie said.

"If you want to help," she said in response to a question from the audience, "ask if you can run an errand. Ask what you can do to give that family a break. Offer a call, a card, an outing. Offer your ear."

Goblins, ghosts gather to enjoy Halloween fun

HALLOWEEN FUN was the order of the day for children attending the Plymouth Parks and Recreation Department's Halloween carnival.

"I know they really had a good time," said Tonya Willette, the department secretary. The party, for city of Plymouth children, was held late Friday afternoon at the Plymouth Cultural Center.

The carnival attracted more kids than expected, she said, with about 100 showing up. The event included children age 4 or so on up through the sixth grade. The festivities were planned with children in mind, although some parents also attended.

Games were part of the day's fun. Cider and doughnuts were served, and a costume contest was held.

"I could not believe some of them," Willette said of the costumes. "They were really darling. They were so cute."

SOME OF THE younger children were dressed as ballerinas or princesses.

"I didn't see too many witches." Children dressed as dinosaurs, Donald Duck, Dracula and Frankenstein were also spotted during the carnival.

"It was really nice." Spooky Halloween music added to the fun.

Tired clown Rachel Broniak and her mom, Lynn, spent part of their Friday afternoon at the carnival. The event was planned with kids in mind and included games, a costume contest and spooky Halloween music.

Jason Rambo, 7, chose a scary Halloween costume this year.

The Plymouth Parks and Recreation Department has sponsored Halloween carnivals in the past, although one wasn't held last year, Willette said. The carnival's also fun for department staffers.

"Everybody was pretty much involved." The department's director, Chuck Skene, was involved, as were Tom Willette, assistant director, and Carol Donnelly, the senior citizens coordinator.

Terry Fields, an Eastern Michigan University student working in the department, did much of the work. She tracked down candy donations, lined up helpers and put the games together.

"She's the one that really organized the whole thing," Willette said.

(CAPS) — International Board of Directors; and the CAPS Midwest Regional Board of Directors.

She has been doing more research, writing and lecturing lately. In Clark's field, it is necessary to keep up with research. One of her specialty areas is eating disorders.

"The research being done in the field is important to keep up with," Clark said.

She is researching the eating disorder of bulimia.

Clark also works with people who have left Fundamentalist churches and are making adjustments. The staff at Alpha Psychological Services is Christian, although they serve more of a public clientele than a Christian one.

"First of all, we're professionals," Clark said. "But we can also be of service to the Christian community as well."

SHE HAS seen changes in her field over the years. Some stigma is still associated with coming in for help; she gets some requests not to call people at home or at work.

"Men have a hard time coming in," Clark said.

Some have difficulty admitting they need help.

"In spite of the stigma, I find that people are reaching for help sooner, before things get severe. So that's a good sign," Clark said.

ANOTHER CHANGE she has seen is the development of closed health systems such as HMOs. That change has required people to choose therapists from a list, rather than on their own.

"In our profession, our services are very personal," Clark said.

People want to see someone they're comfortable with and who has the necessary qualifications.

"It cuts off the choices people have," Clark said.

SHE HAS seen other trends.

"I think a positive trend is that women are putting up with less," she said.

Women put up with less dissatisfaction in marriages. They put up with less harassment at work and with less patronizing by other professionals.

"They're not willing to settle for less than they probably used to 15 years ago in terms of respect, reimbursement, identity, decision-making, etc. I see that as a very healthy trend," Clark said.

She sees men respecting women more for that.

Clark doesn't tire of her work with patients.

"But my friends might get an earful from me," she said. "My friends are my therapists."

In her time away from work, Clark enjoys racquetball, biking, cooking and other activities.

"We entertain a lot at our home," she said. "We like to travel. We enjoy anything dealing with music."

"There are a lot of opportunities for women in banking," she said.

When Rautio, who is in her early 40s, worked with NBD, no women were in management.

"Women really did not have the opportunities," she said.

Even getting credit cards was unheard of for women in those times. In that era, women couldn't go into banks and get loans.

"That was not thought of," Rautio said.

WORKING AT the bank doesn't take all of Rautio's time. She is involved with the Plymouth Community United Way. She has served on that organization's board for several years and is secretary to the board.

Several years ago, Rautio was chairwoman for the annual campaign. She has served as a division worker and has had other Plymouth Community United Way responsibilities. She is on that organization's futures committee, a group looking at long-range planning.

Kristene Rautio's banking career started at the National Bank of Detroit. "And I really, really liked it."

Lazarus-Modson

Pamela Joan Modson of Plymouth and Brian Charles Lazarus of Livonia were married Sept. 9 at St. Thomas the Apostle Church in Ann Arbor. The Rev. Timothy Crowley performed the ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Rudolph and Louise Modson of Plymouth and Herbert and Jane Lazarus of Venice, Fla., formerly of Plymouth.

The bride is a graduate of Mercy High School in Farmington Hills and of the University of Michigan.

Her husband is a graduate of Plymouth Salem High School and of the Lawrence Institute of Technology. He is employed as a project engineer with Chrysler Corp.

Stephanie Hazard was the maid of honor.

Charles Spurlock was the best man. Unkles were brother of the bride Paul Modson and David O'Callaghan.

For her wedding, the bride wore a white gown of white summer satin. It had a bodice overlaid with embroidered organza flowerlets and iridescent pearls. The same flowers bordered the hem and train. She wore a headpiece of miniature pearls and crystals holding a fingertip veil and carried white gardenias, freesia, ice pink roses and green ivy.

A reception was held at the Ann Arbor Inn.

Following a wedding trip to Cable Beach, Bahama Islands, the newlyweds are making their home in Livonia.

Ford-Rogers

Ellen M. Rogers of Flint and Scott R. Ford of Canton were married Aug. 13 at the Church of Christ in Flint. William Rogers, father of the bride, and Phillip Rogers, brother of the bride, conducted the ceremony.

Parents of the couple are William and Poca Rogers of Flint and Jack and Donna Ford of Canton.

The bride is a graduate of David Lipscomb College in Nashville, Tenn.

Her husband is a graduate of Plymouth Canton High School. He is an accounting student at David Lipscomb College, and will graduate in December.

Sister of the bride, Minta Everson, was the matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Leigh Perkins, Kay Parker and Karen Robb.

Brother of the bridegroom, Jack Ford Jr., was the best man. The groomsmen were Paul Rogers, James Johnson and Jodie Wilson.

For her wedding, the bride wore a princess-style gown with long sleeves and a fitted, re-embroidered lace bodice. The skirt was of fitted white satin, trimmed with matching lace. The gown had a cathedral train of white satin, edged in matching lace. She carried a cascade of white roses and white gardenias.

A reception was held at the church fellowship hall.

Following a wedding trip to northern Michigan and Mackinac Island, the newlyweds are making their home in Nashville, Tenn.

Arts association holds its fall show

The fall art show of the Visual Arts Association of Livonia (VAAL) will be on display Nov. 1-18 in the lobby of Livonia City Hall, Five Mile and Farmington roads. Hours will be 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

The opening reception for the show will be held 3-4 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 6. The public may attend.

The VAAL fall exhibit was judged Oct. 13.

Award winners include Audrey Harkins, who won best of show for her watercolor, "Dreams Come True." Dawn Johnson received the Grumbacher Award for best use of color for her watercolor, "Tara's Room."

Irene Kallas won first place in oil for "Brown Chair." Mary Koss won first in watercolor for "Belgonia 1 Silverbowl." Carol Wharton won first in the combined category for "Top of the Dune" (pastel).

OTHER WINNERS include: Edna Eary, second place in oil for "Tables Await"; Helena Lewicki, third place in oil for "Greenwood Park"; Mary Ehler, second place in watercolor for "Blue Pitcher of Flowers"; Shirley Caesar, third place in watercolor for "Hat's Galore"; Norbert Davert, second place in the combined category for "Stools-Deerborn," a photograph; and Margo Masak, third place in the combined category for "Footprints in the Snow," a pastel work.

Honorable mention winners include: Karen Clawson, Dee Blankenship and Dawn Johnson in oil/acrylic; Gladys Beall, Margo Masak and Eileen Bibby in watercolor; and Dawn Johnson, Bladen McClelland and Norbert Davert in the combined category.

Artist Mary Aro judged the show. She received bachelor's and master's degrees in fine arts from Wayne State University and studied at the Art Foundation in LaNapoule, France.

Lowing-Stephens

Robert and Sandra Lowing of Livonia announce the engagement of their daughter, Tracy Ann, to James Connor Stephens, son of Patricia Kingberry of Canton.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Churchill High School. She is a student at Eastern Michigan University and is employed by Manufacturers National Bank of Detroit.

Her fiancé is a graduate of Plymouth South Christian Academy. He is a student at the University of Michigan-Deerborn.

A late September 1989 wedding is planned at the Plymouth Church of Christ in Niles.

Field-Paddon

Mr. and Mrs. David Field of Anderson, S.C., formerly of Plymouth, announce the engagement of their daughter, Jane, to James Wallace Paddon, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Richard Paddon of Carbondale, Ill.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Northville High School and of Kalamazoo College. She received her master's in public affairs from Princeton University. She is enrolled at Union Theological Seminary in New York City, N.Y.

Her fiancé is a graduate of the Webb School of Knoxville in Tennessee and of Princeton University. He is employed with Chemical Bank in New York City.

A mid-March 1989 wedding is planned in the Princeton University Chapel.

Robert A. Eisminger Jr. and Terese M. Eisminger of Canton announce the birth of a daughter, Kristen Marie, Oct. 18 at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Eisminger Sr. of Westland and Mr. and Mrs. William F. Schroeder Sr. of Grosse Pointe Park.

Jim and Krist Held of Clifton, Texas, announce the birth of a daughter, Kelcey Shea, Oct. 24 at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor. Grandparents are Ralph and Nadine Held of Plymouth and Barney and Jan Eary of Clifton, Texas. Dorothy Hammond of Clifton, Texas, is the great-grandmother.

ARE YOU A SHOWTIME KID?

Are you between 6 - 14 years old? Can you be as "natural" in front of a camera as you are with your friends? Then you should audition for SHOWTIME'S 4th Annual Kid Talent Quest.

The audition consists of reading a short script, answering two questions, and doing a short free-style performance in front of a video camera. (Song, dance or jokes - bring accompanying music on cassette tape only.)

SHOWTIME'S judges will select four (4) SHOWTIME Kids nationally. These SHOWTIME Kids win a guest host spot on SHOWTIME'S FAMILYTIME Program, and a trip to New York City with their parents to tape the shows and to see the Big Apple.

You could be a winner! All it takes to audition is to show up at WESTLAND CENTER, corner of Warren & Wayne Roads, on Sunday, November 6th and register in the Central Court at 11:00 am.

Westside Christian celebrates opening

After 10 months of preparation and contact with 14,077 homes in the Canton and Plymouth area, the Westside Christian Church is to be born at 9 a.m. Sunday at the Plymouth Canton High School Little Theater.

An area rally to celebrate the new church will follow at 3 p.m. Sunday in the Plymouth Salem High School auditorium. A 100-voice choir will sing. Some 1,000 people are expected to attend the service.

The new church is sponsored by Memorial Church of Christ, 35475 Five Mile, Livonia. Memorial Church called Robert Girdwood to its staff in January of this year with the mission of bringing to birth Westside Christian.

Some 15 families out of Memorial Church and its leadership have seen the new growth of the Canton and Plymouth areas as reason to mother this new congregation.

In the course of the year, Girdwood has initiated six neighborhood personal growth groups. Some might call them house churches, Girdwood said. These have provided a collection point around which to identify those who might be interested in the new project. Some 60 or 70 have attended these meetings at various times during the year.

THESE HOME groups, with assistance from the mother church, have announced the birth of the new church in Plymouth and Canton communities by dialing phones in 24,162 homes in this area. They talked to 14,077 people.

More than 1,900 families agreed to have fliers introducing the new congregation sent to them. These 1,900 are being phoned again this past week to invite them especially to the birthday service this Sunday.

"Providing we in Canton and Plymouth are average, Sunday should see Plymouth-Canton's Little Theater packed full with 250 people," Girdwood said.

Similar efforts have proved successful by other churches across the United States.

GIRDWOOD SHOULD know. This will be the 19th new church he has helped start since he started in the ministry in 1955. He is a graduate of Great Lakes Bible College and has graduate degrees from Cincinnati Bible Seminary. He is presently pursuing doctoral studies at Fuller Theological Seminary in Pasadena, Calif.

The new church will reflect the midstream of an undenominational movement started in the early 1800s. The concept, being highlighted by more and more denominational fellowships, is to forget denominational differences and simply be free congregations of Christians.

"We like to think we are neither Protestant nor Catholic," Girdwood said, "just Christians."

"With this in mind, we do not have any creeds, catechisms nor official doctrinal statements. We believe the Bible is God's inspired revelation and that God has created man able to understand and apply his revealed wisdom as contained in the Bible. We accept Christ as head of the church, his bride and Lord of our lives. We also accept his Holy Spirit as a vital living power ready to enable a richer quality of life and living."

HOUSE GROUPS will be focus points to address personal, family and neighborhood concerns.

For instance, one of these groups has been studying the programming of Al-Anon in order to become a better support group for those who have problems with alcoholism or other drug addiction.

Another group is looking to address the needs of single parents and the problems of professional and/or working mothers. Another has addressed the financial and family catastrophe of one of its family group friends.

There are some 6,000 congregations of this kind in the country by the names of Christian Churches or Churches of Christ. A recent outreach was started in order to double the number of churches by the year 2000.

Westside Christian Church is one of three churches started in the last year. The others are Ann Arbor Christian Church and West Oaks Christian Church in Wixom.

church bulletin

The church bulletin is published every Thursday in the Observer. Information for the church bulletin must be received in the Livonia office by noon the Monday preceding publication. Send information to the Observer, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

Christian radio station debuts

WUFL-AM 1030 AM signed on the air recently as the area's newest Christian radio station.

WUFL is the seventh station in the Family Life Radio network. The format is inspirational, middle-of-the-road music with evangelical, Biblical teaching programs. This commercial-free, listener-supported station is the first of its kind in the Detroit area.

The 5,000-watt daytime station employs five full-time staff members.

As an affiliate of the Family Life Radio network, WUFL is associated with a 22-year-old ministry founded by the Rev. Warren Bolthouse. Bolthouse was once a minister in the Detroit area. The Family Life Radio network now covers a major portion of Michigan, Arizona and New Mexico with seven stations.

moral perspectives
Rev. David Strong

U.S. religious groups should stand united

The presidential campaign has not been the most enlightening. Yet one thing we have been spared is the harangue of religious radicals. The most fortunate thing about this election is that the candidacy of fundamentalist Pat Robertson died early.

We do not want a battle between the religious groups in America. We do not want a religious faction fighting to take over America and make it in their own image. I hope that we will keep the churches and other religious groups non-partisan.

There are concerns which religious people should have. We should be concerned that the truth of the candidate's life and position be revealed. We should be quick to condemn the slick selling of candidates which becomes simply a sham. Hopefully, the American people will see when they are being fooled.

A week ago a wonderful feature was broadcast on PBS television. Called "Campaign: The Choice," the two-hour program traced the life of George Bush and Michael Dukakis through their parents' story, birth, education and major turning points. The program illuminated rather than hid who these men are. Religious people should seek for the truth, not simply for that which they can agree.

WE ALSO must look merely and justice. A world and a society will only improve when leaders exhibit these qualities. Americans want strong leaders. This is not a quality which must be in conflict with mercy and justice.

Religious people do not want or need people who will be called "Rambo IV" by the world. We cannot do this as a rich country in a sea of poor people. We also need to look to the future when we choose our candidates. Religious people have a high stake in the future of the world. M.I.T. professor Lincoln Bloomfield has written one of the most important essays with the title, "Twilight of Antichry." Changes are moving across the globe which are moving all nations to a new kind of dependence.

The strongest governments are no longer control things once thought to be basic, the freedom to make war, the value of their currency, the ability to stop foreign influence, and the drugs and AIDS. Even the United States can hardly control the flow of illegal immigrants into the country.

These religious groups and people who feel threatened by such changes turn to intervention and fundamentalism. In one sense, they attempt to save the truths which they hold, their roots and identity.

Bloomfield believes that the greatest mutual dependence will develop between the two super powers, America and Russia. They in turn will be challenged by the next super power, Japan and a united Europe. Yet all will be forced to recognize our dependence on others.

REPEATE the virtues the people are shifting. What will religious people have to say about these changes which may well be God directed?

Unity, dependence, justice, mercy and, finally, love of our neighbor, these are qualities of religious faith. I believe that God wants to form one world community, of diversity and unity.

The Rev. David Strong is pastor at St. Matthew United Methodist Church in Livonia.

Perestroika opens doors for FATA

By Tom Henderson
staff writer

Years from now, when historians are writing the final chapter on the success or failure of perestroika, they just may want to include a footnote about people like Anna Migliuolo and places like her small, easy-to-miss, six-person office on Industrial Drive in Livonia.

Restructuring the bureaucratic maze of Soviet society is a grand and daring scheme, involving world leaders and incredible changes of philosophy. But whether it succeeds will likely depend less on political maneuvering and power plays and more on such mundane things like having enough bread on the table and enough refrigeration units to keep the crops from rotting.

"The feeling we get in Europe is that this is the first step toward democracy in the Soviet Union. It will be a long road, but this is the first step," said Migliuolo, who arrived here in September from Torino, Italy.

"But perestroika and glasnost will fall through if they don't get enough food. The food situation (in Russia) has never been this bad. Glasnost will collapse if people don't get food on the table, soon."

Which is where Migliuolo and her company, FATA Automation, come in, riding to the rescue, she hopes, not only of the Soviet food industry, but maybe even of world harmony.

FATA EUROPEAN GROUP is a worldwide, Italian-based company whose ties with the Russians go back to 1959. In 1962, FATA built its first Russian factory in Siberia and since has built several turn-key factories for the Soviets for food processing and producing cardboard boxes and other food packaging.

A turn-key plant is one where the contractor builds the entire plant, then turns over the keys to the owner. FATA specializes in automation procedures and organized material-handling procedures for the mammoth Kamas truck plant, which was finished in 1967.

FATA, in fact, was the first Western firm to establish a joint-venture agreement with the Soviets in 1967. FATA has a 27 percent investment in a plant that will produce commercial refrigeration units, with a target of 250,000 units in the first year of operation in 1990.

"That's an enormous total. Absurd by Western standards. But by Soviet standards, it is just right," said Migliuolo.

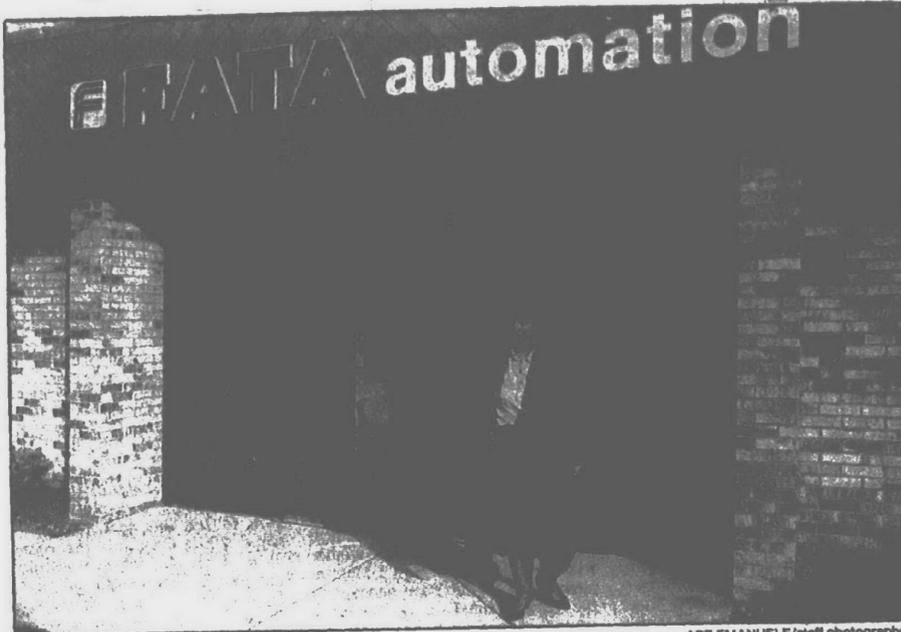

As huge as the plant will be, and as impressive its production, such is the level of automation that just 200 persons will be employed there.

MIGLIUOLO'S OFFICE is modest. It gives no clue to her title: senior manager for U.S.-U.S.S.R. relations. What she has done since her arrival — the office opened in July — is look for American businesses in the food industry who are looking for joint ventures in the Soviet Union.

She said she hopes to announce her first agreement by the end of the year.

She goes back to Italy regularly, is in Moscow once a month, and travels the U.S. looking for partners. No wonder she has yet to unpack her boxes at her Farmington Hills apartment.

Migliuolo is particularly well suited to negotiations involving widely disparate cultures. Her father, Giovanni, is the Italian ambassador to the U.N. and was formerly the ambassador to Russia. While living with her father in Moscow, Migliuolo majored in mathematics at Moscow State University, and later got her master's in public and private management from Yale.

Anna Migliuolo, as FATA's senior manager for U.S.-Soviet relations, says "the Russian market is so big, it's almost unlimited."

She speaks fluent Russian and English, the latter without much trace of an Italian accent.

Migliuolo said there is a big difference between negotiation techniques in the U.S. and those in the U.S.S.R., "a gigantic difference. In the West, you go straight to the company you want to deal with. In the Soviet Union, you go through various entities, and you must know them all very well. Up until 1987, you had to go through the state machinery, too. But now, under perestroika, you talk to the end user straight off."

Where before it might have taken two years of negotiating, and many return trips to Moscow, to agree on details for building a plant, the much more complicated task of setting up the first joint-venture agreement took just eight months, said Migliuolo.

THE YEARS of groundwork, the months of often fruitless negotiations, are well worth it to a company serious about establishing long-term business with the Soviets. "Because once you get in, the Russian market is so big, it's almost unlimited. It's worth having a team there."

And worth, said her company's market studies, opening up a U.S. office to foster more deals with the Russians.

"Our research told us there are fantastic opportunities in the U.S., and the market here is moving toward doing business in the Soviet market," she said. Another factor — there are about 240 million in the U.S. and 270 million in the U.S.S.R., so companies here are used to the production, marketing and distribution problems of serving a vast market.

Having lived in New York and Moscow, having gone to Yale and Moscow State University, how is she adjusting to life in suburban Detroit? Isn't it a bit provincial for her in the hinterlands?

"Why call it the hinterlands? This is a major industrial area," said Migliuolo, explaining that the decision to locate here served two purposes — one, FATA was looking to open a U.S. office to help with its Russian front; two, it got a contract to provide automated guided vehicles for four GM plants and needed to open an office in the Detroit area to service that account.

"Detroit is the Torino of the U.S.," said Migliuolo, referring to her company's headquarters in the car-building center of Italy. "This is a true sister city. And FATA is located in the suburbs of Torino, and Livonia is the suburbs of Detroit. So, I'm used to this. I've found it extremely pleasant here."

Family marks 40 years in business

By Pat Murphy
staff writer

Ken Freeman doesn't work at a job, he works at a family tradition.

Freeman is manager of the Red Wing Shoe Store at 2545 Five Mile, Redford Township, the same store built in 1948 by his grandfather, the late Thea Wells.

The store, then known as the Well's Shoe Store, was the dream of Thea Wells and exists today as possibly the oldest business in Redford.

Earlier this month, Freeman and his family commemorated the store's 40th anniversary with a weeklong sale. It turned out to be more like a customer reunion.

"We saw people we hadn't seen in years," said Mabel Wells, Thea's wife and Ken's grandmother. "Some were the great-grandchildren of our early customers. Others were simply people who saw our ads. Either way they were welcome."

Thea Wells built the store from the ground up while simultaneously working at the Chevrolet Gear and Axle plant in Hamtramck, his wife recalled.

"HE STARTED it as a shoe repair shop and gradually worked into selling shoes," she said. "He worked very hard and treated people like they were special."

Her husband strongly believed quality shoes and reasonable prices were an unbeatable combination, Mrs. Wells said.

"But for years he kept a monkey or two in the shop . . . just to fascinate the kids. He kept some quail too. Some of the customers at our anniversary said they remember seeing the monkeys and the quail."

As business improved, her husband was able to leave the factory and devote full time to the shop, Mrs. Wells said. In 1968, he became a franchise owner for Minnesota-based Red Wing Shoes.

The store ceased being Well's Shoe Store, with several brands of footwear, and became Red Wing Shoes featuring Irish Setter, Pecos and Red Wing shoes and boots exclusively.

"It was the company's first franchise in Michigan and only the second east of the Mississippi River," Mrs. Wells said.

Her husband was active right up until his death, Mrs. Wells said. He returned home after working at the shoe store on Feb. 21, 1974, when he became ill, she said. He suffered an apparent heart attack and died en route to the hospital.

FOR THE next few years the store had professional managers, but its policies and business practices were set by Mrs. Wells, a son, Dale (now a Red Wing factory representative living in North Carolina), and a daughter, Donna Wells Freeman.

"The store kept its family tradition," Mrs. Wells said proudly.

Throughout this transitional period, young Ken Freeman was just a youngster not particularly concerned with the family business.

"I would spend parts of Saturdays at the shop, watching my grandfather work and seeing how he handled customers," said the 1978 graduate of Southfield-Lathrup High School.

Even after enrolling to study business at Michigan State University he said he hadn't given much thought to entering the family business.

"I got some retail experience at Hughes and Hatcher at Northland, but I didn't really think about running the shoe store."

But other members of the family were thinking about it.

"We knew Ken had a business background and that we would be needing a new manager," said his mother, Donna Wells Freeman. "We didn't want to push him, but we knew it would be nice to have somebody in the family as manager again. But it had to be his idea."

Like others at MSU and elsewhere, Ken faced a depressed economy and limited job opportunities when he graduated in 1982. So when the family shoe store needed a manager, he accepted. After all, Ken reasoned, he could apply the business principles and retail skills at the family store as well as anywhere else. Who could tell about the future anyway?

THAT WAS six prosperous years ago, Ken said. "And things have worked out real well. We make a pretty good living here and have some fun doing it."

Ken said he enjoys helping customers who knew his grandfather. "We still have quite a few of them."

But family tradition will only go so far. Ken and other family members are aware that in a competitive market even the most loyal family friend can buy elsewhere. They know the store simply won't last if it doesn't offer price, selection and service along with nostalgia.

Retirees need to adjust to changed lifestyle

Most people fantasize that life after retirement will be a time when you will worry only about whether you should spend the day on the golf course or take a stroll on the beach. In reality, retirement often means adjusting to a fixed income and altering your lifestyle in ways never anticipated.

To understand the way in which retirement can radically change your financial priorities, the Farmington Hills-based Michigan Association of Certified Public Accounts urges you to take a look at what retiring on a fixed income means. You may no longer have to pay commuter costs or maintain a business wardrobe, but your credit card debts, mortgage or rent payments and utility bills are likely to continue unchanged. And your entertainment, travel and medical bills may very well increase.

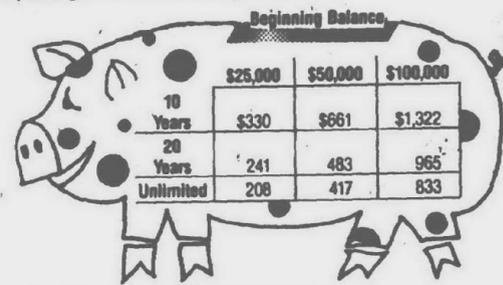

In the past, you may have counted on promotions, salary raises or bonuses to help you beat the race with inflation or credit card balances. But once you retire, your income may grow only by an occasional Social Security cost-of-living increase. Also, the amount of risk you can afford to take in personal investments, such as stocks or mutual funds, generally decreases along with the opportunity for dramatic appreciation of capital.

FOR THE MOST part, living on a fixed income means accepting the limits and possibilities of the funds you have accumulated or earned during your working years. Judging by statistics or recent years, Social Security will probably be the primary source of your retirement income. The remaining funds usually come from an employer pension plan and such savings options as IRAs, Keoghs or 401K plans.

Ultimately, retiring with financial security means handling your fixed income with intelligence and care. Start by examining your income and expenses and formulating a realistic budget. Add up what you and your spouse receive from such sources as Social Security, employer pensions, IRA or Keogh benefits, dividends and annuities. Next, total your fixed and variable expenses, credit card bills and recreation. Try to gauge which expenses may be affected by inflation and make adjustments to your budget accordingly. If you have duplicate credit cards, eliminate at least one.

When you have an accurate picture of your financial capabilities, consider how much your lifestyle works with or against your budget. Some retirees spend lavishly on travel and entertainment without realizing that they may outlive their capital. Others are exceedingly cautious, scrimping and saving whenever possible. These people face another equally serious risk — they may never have the chance to enjoy their hard-earned savings.

Try to avoid either extreme. Remember that while budgets should not be created and revised on a whim, neither should they force you to deny yourself unnecessarily. For additional help in establishing a budget, consult a financial planner. In many cases, he or she will be able to analyze your economic situation and estimate how much money you can withdraw from your various investments each month without depleting your funds prematurely.

IF, AFTER CAREFUL consideration, you decide that your income remains insufficient for your needs, there are still options available. Take a part-time job. You can generally earn several thousand dollars a year without affecting your Social Security payments. If you have a vacation home, consider renting it to others for at least a portion of the year. Alternatively, you can convert a garage into a rental apartment. If you are living in a home or apartment originally designed for a growing family, investigate housing alternatives — a smaller apartment or a condominium in a retirement community.

Although moving may seem a frightening prospect, weigh all the pros and cons before dismissing the idea. After all, moving to another city or state where the cost of living is less expensive can dramatically improve the quality of your retirement life. When contemplating the possibility of relocation, review all the financial implications of such factors as state income tax rates, utility costs, property taxes and cost of living.

Another way to stretch your fixed income is by being aware of — and planning to minimize — your tax liability. Retiring usually results in a substantially lower income and, thus, lower tax rates. But don't forget that pension income and IRA withdrawals are taxable. Take out too much money in one year and you may end up paying more taxes than you anticipated.

IF YOU ARE A middle- or lower-income retiree who does not itemize, you may find some relief in tax reform. The new law has replaced the extra personal exemption for individuals who are 65 or older, or blind, with an extra standard deduction of $750 for single people and $600 for married.

For taxpayers who do not itemize, knowledge of tax laws can mean more spending power. Find out about the deductions allowed under tax reform as well as any restrictions that may affect your particular tax liability. For example, if you are considering selling your home, find out if you are eligible for the once-in-a-lifetime exclusion of $125,000 of gain on the sale.

Being aware of your cash flow, tax benefits and community resources can go a long way in helping you enjoy a financially secure retirement.

Porsche still going it along, but for how long?

A Porsche today may be second only to gold chains as a symbol of quickly made money, a role as distant from Dr. Porsche's dream as the boom box is from the inventor of the printed circuit.

Early Porsches were marvels of automotive technology in an era when sports cars were mainly 1930s designs on a second wind, popularized by American servicemen returning from World War II. The Porsche's rear engine was shared with the Tucker, the Auto Union race cars and the early Fiats, but the execution in a light, air-cooled, sports car had a distinctly aeronautical influence.

Porsche came to power among a galaxy of sports cars produced in the 1950s and 1960s that embodied a highly personal sense of style. But Porsche ultimately outlived them all, and today it's one of the few survivors of that golden age that hasn't been swallowed by a megaconglomerate or quietly expired.

Unpredictably, it did it mainly with the car that emulates the first Porsches — the rear-engined, flat-opposed 911 coupe. More recent efforts at more conventional design, including the V-8 powered, front-engine 928, four-cylinder 944 and the Audi-engined 924 never quite caught the full attention of hard-core Porscheophiles.

THAT PORSCHE has survived as one of a handful of independent auto companies in the world is testimony not only to the strength of the original design, but to some corporate scrambling that has both paid for the development of some new cars and left the company as a potential candidate for a takeover.

auto talk

Without high-volume production to offset the cost of tooling engines and transmissions for its sports cars, Porsche has relied heavily on the sale of some engineering services as a source of income. Outside design work now is in excess of 40 percent of the company's gross revenue and climbing, according to Professor Helmut Bott, recently retired head of research and development.

Porsche was restructured as an Aktiengesellschaft, or public corporation, in 1972, and about four years ago ended a lengthy association with Volkswagen of America and built an independent U.S. distributorship.

But these moves, aimed at building a stable future with the emphasis on U.S. sales, have floundered recently with the slumping U.S. sales shortly after major investments in new plant and facilities. Porsche executives quickly blame the drop in value of U.S. currency, which effectively raises prices in the U.S.

But more to the point may be the status of Porsche ownership as a kind of brief extramarital fling in the lifetime of car ownership. Few Porsche owners repeat the experience, but the cult status of the 911 guarantees a high resale value that doesn't necessarily happen with more current models.

Porsche today is in the midst of a major corporate reshuffling. Bott, who led the development of both the 911 and the racing program, has retired. Heinz Brantzki, the internal financial expert who took over the equivalent of the president's post in Germany early this year, recently named Brian Bowler, a Bloomfield Hills-based account executive at DDB Needham as president, Porsche Cars of North America.

The rapid changes in the three top positions at the company have prompted speculation that another major upheaval is in the works, including a short-lived rumor that Daimler-Benz is on the verge of buying an interest in the company. A rumor Porsche officials deny.

Regardless, a new Porsche more adaptable to the modern corporate environment seems inevitable.

Writing as hobby can grow into your full-time business

Do you have a talent that has yet to be pursued in a professional capacity? Do people often comment or compliment you on some skill that you take for granted?

Achieving professional success through the development of a natural talent or hobby often sounds too good to be true. After all, earning a substantial income from one's love of writing, or cooking, or organizing may sound ludicrous. But it happens all the time. As a newspaper columnist, I am often asked what steps are necessary to pursue either a part- or full-time writing career.

The Detroit Women Writers is an organization that has helped talented and serious writers since 1900 reach their potential and achieve publication. The group recently held its 27th annual writers conference at Oakland University. By bringing together nearly 500 Michigan writers, this group offered the opportunity to meet and mingle with industry experts, peers and others who have finances and you

made the commitment to writing — not just for fun — but for profit.

For those interested in submitting non-fiction articles for publication, the query letter is the most important sales tool. According to Julie Candler, local free-lance writer and author, a query letter should be structured so that editors will be convinced of three things: your subject matter will be of interest to the readership, you have the background and know-how to write the article, and you write well.

Candler's articles on the automotive, travel and boating industries have appeared in Woman's Day, McCall's, Working Woman, Ms., and other publications. She advises would-be writers to "know the language of the writing business and use it. No one offers to make 'photos' available when 'glossies' is the buzzword to use." She adds that queries should be brief and creative. "The first few sentences must capture your reader's attention; if they don't you'll lose their interest almost immediately."

Information on rates paid for articles submitted to specific publications is available through the American Society of Journalists and Authors newsletter. Write the ASJA at 1501 Broadway, Suite 1907, New York, NY 10036.

Invest your money safely until election dust settles

Now that we are coming to the end of a long and often-confusing election year campaign, claims and counter-claims, the question for the safety-conscious investor still is this: What is the best investment strategy regardless of who wins the election.

The answer is simple: Play it safe.

In this column I will develop several relatively unknown strategies which you might find to be of interest.

Safe money market funds

Contrary to the commonly held belief, money market funds are not guaranteed by the FDIC. In fact they are exposed to the same risk of default as any other uninsured funds.

However, you can make your investment safer by buying a fund that invests exclusively in Treasury issues. The yield of government-only funds is about three-tenths of a percentage point lower than that of the average money-market fund.

If the fund is structured as a limited partnership, your income would be exempt from state and local taxes. You would not have this advantage if the fund is organized as a mutual fund.

focus: small business
Mary DiPaolo

Bond fund with shorter maturities

Another attractive strategy is to invest in a high-grade corporate bond fund that limits its maturities to three years. Bond prices fall when interest rates rise, but the decline in bond prices with shorter maturities would be much less than the prices of long-term bonds. Also, the default risk of high-quality corporate bonds is negligible.

Unit investment trusts (UITs)

For those who wish to have both current income and capital appreciation, the best strategy is to invest in a UIT specializing in utility stocks.

Such a company would hold a fixed portfolio of 20-30 utility stocks that are expected to grow after completing construction projects. This UIT would not only distribute current income but would also distribute capital gains upon maturity.

Our Tradition Continues With You

PRESENTING AN INVESTMENT YOUR KIDS CAN RETIRE WITH.

Our CDs have always provided a safe, secure investment. Now, in addition to giving you a competitive rate, you'll also receive a charming stuffed animal. It's all part of Zoolari, going on right now at First of America.

There are eight different cuddly animals to choose from (depending on the amount deposited), and each one would make a perfect holiday or birthday gift for that special child in your life.

All you have to do is open a CD with a qualifying minimum deposit for 12 months or longer.

Plus, by filling out an entry blank, you could win a trip for four to the zoo of your choice. Anywhere in the country.

So stop by any participating First of America bank, or call 1-800-544-6155 for more information. But remember, Zoolari ends on November 18th. So you'll have to hurry.

After all, it's not often you can make an investment that helps the whole family sleep better.

What institutions don't want, you might today's investor

of the National Association of Investors Corp.

With institutions so important, it seems to me that I should look at the stocks they're buying for my own portfolio. In checking the Standard & Poor's Stock Guide, I find the ownership by institutions of stocks I own is fairly small. I've tried to buy stocks with good growth records, but I'm wondering if I wouldn't do better with the institutional favorites.

Your list of stocks is an impressive one, and I don't think you should change your approach to investing. As I look at your stocks, it seems to me that the institutions are not heavy investors in them because you own smaller companies.

They have good records and potential growth. Institutions would call your companies "low" capitalization companies. Capitalization is an accounting term indicating the total value of the various securities issued by a corporation.

MANY INSTITUTIONS have guidelines as to the capitalization of a company. It must be at or above a certain level before they will consider investing in the stock.

If a company continues to grow and increases its outstanding stock, then the institutions may become interested. Institutions are concerned about liquidity, meaning they want to be sure there are enough shares available and enough buyers and sellers to keep the market for the stock active.

Institutions tend to buy in fair-sized amounts, and they like the market for the stock to be big enough so they can buy and sell without changing the price. Generally, there is more liquidity in "large" capitalization stocks.

THERE ARE two things that cause the price of a stock to appreciate. One is the growth of earnings per share, which makes the company worth more and allows dividends to be increased.

The second is an increase in the price-earnings ratio. The price-earnings ratio comes from the increase in value and an increase in demand for the stock.

If you can have both, then the price appreciation will accelerate. If you own stocks that are not widely held by institutions, achieving both advantages is possible once they decide they like the stock and begin to buy it.

SINCE THE price is determined by supply and demand, the more institutions that buy in blocks, the smaller the remaining supply and the greater the chance additional buying will push up the price.

Buying stocks of good growing companies with little institutional ownership is an approach used by many successful investors. As their growth continues, the interest of institutions will be attracted and their buying plus that of the public is likely to give a better than average price increase.

Thomas O'Hara welcomes your questions and comments but will answer them only through this column. Now Providence Hospital gives you more ways to give birth.

More birthing options than any other hospital.

Introducing Providence Hospital's New Life Center. Suburban Detroit's newest, and we think finest, obstetrics facility. Our New Life Center gives you more birthing options, more choices, than any other area hospital.

LDR Suites, a popular choice.

Our ten LDR suites allow mothers to labor, birth and recover in one location. These private suites are a welcome departure from the traditional hospital birth experience. Beautifully decorated, each suite creates the perfect setting for you to spend time with your family and bond with your baby.

Traditional Delivery Suites.

Our new delivery suites are for mothers who wish to have the traditional birth experience or for those who may require a Cesarean delivery. Your husband, or any labor partner who has been through an approved childbirth class, may be with you in the delivery suite during labor, birth and bonding with your baby. Each of our delivery suites is state-of-the-art in every way.

High-Risk Rooms.

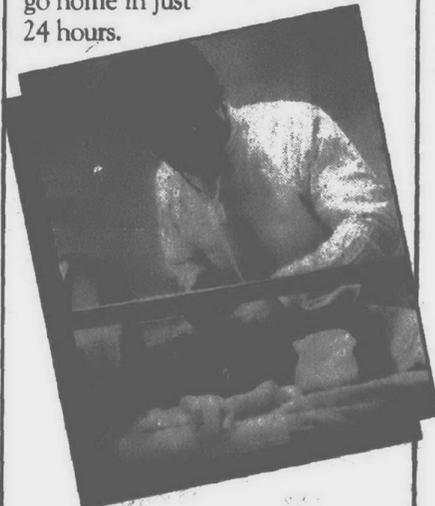

For women with medical problems, we have two high-risk rooms which offer specialized care during labor, birth and the early recovery period. Because we have an obstetrician in-house at all times, we can provide the essential medical attention you need in the critical moments before your physician arrives.

Another option, the Family Birthing Center.

Our freestanding Family Birthing Center offers another alternative in the birthing experience. The only one of its kind in the state of Michigan, the Center provides a home-like setting with a staff of experienced nurses dedicated to natural birthing techniques.

Our Family Birthing Center is accredited by the National Association of Childbearing Centers and offers the advantages of a home birth. Family and friends are welcome and you can go home in just 24 hours.

Should the need arise, Neonatal Intensive Care Unit.

Our NICU has the advanced medical equipment and the sophisticated technology to care for seriously ill newborns. An obstetrician, neonatologist and perinatologist are available 24 hours a day to care for newborns with special problems.

Learn about your options. Set up a tour.

So if you're planning to have a baby, visit Providence Hospital and learn about all your options. Ask your doctor about Providence, or give us a call at 424-3068 for a free brochure and to schedule a tour. If you don't have a physician, call Providence Hospital's physician referral service at 424-3999.

Biggest use of plastics: product packaging

Q. How are plastics made? What are the primary uses of plastic?

A. Plastics are manufactured by two separate industries using two distinct processes:

1. The plastic resin-production industry is composed of some very large chemical companies. It converts industrial organic chemicals into plastic resins.

2. The plastic processing industry is made up of many small companies. These small companies extrude, inject, or blow-mold to form the resins into end products.

Plastic resins are made by linking small groups of molecules or monomers into long chains called polymers. Through polymerization propylene can be made into polypropylene; natural gas and crude oil are made into polyethylene terephthalate (PET); styrene into polystyrene; vinyl chloride into polyvinyl chloride.

Chemical additives at either stage can transform a single resin into finished products bearing no resemblance to any other. The finished products may be flexible or rigid, transparent, opaque or colored, easy to tear or stronger than steel.

THE SINGLE largest use of plastics is in packaging. It accounts for one-quarter of all plastic used today.

There are six resins used to make plastic packaging: low-density polyethylene (LDPE); high-density polyethylene (HDPE); polystyrene (PS); polypropylene (PP); polyethylene terephthalate (PET); polyvinyl chloride (PVC).

Plastic packaging falls into four categories:

Plastic films, which represents 35 percent of all plastic packaging, is made from all six resins. Polyethylene (LPDE and HPDE) are used most frequently because they are strong and can keep out moisture. Examples include trash bags, plastic wrap and grocery bags.

PET is widely used for boil-in-bag pouches because of its ability to withstand high temperatures. Nearly all meat products are wrapped in PVC film that can keep meat from turning brown.

PLASTIC BOTTLES make up 27 percent of all plastic packaging. All six resins are used in their manufacture.

Polyethylene (low- and high-) are used to make tough, sturdy bottles where transparency is not required, such as milk jugs, bleach and detergent bottles and motor oil.

PET is used when transparency is needed. Plastic beverage bottles are made exclusively of PET because of its unique ability to retain carbonation.

Rigid plastic containers, such as cottage cheese or yogurt tubs, are now made with polyethylene, polypropylene and polystyrene, rather than coated paper containers. These rigid containers account for 24 percent of the plastic packaging market. Polystyrene foam (known commonly to consumers as "styrofoam") has virtually replaced paper to make egg cartons, meat trays and insulated cups.

Plastic coatings, 14 percent of all plastic packaging, are used as barriers to protect paper or metal foil from moisture, oils or chemicals. The milk carton that used to have a wax coating now is coated with plastic.

Screw tops and snap-on lids are frequently made from polypropylene and polystyrene.

Next Week: plastic pollution — front end and back.

Juliet Prowse "shows some flesh," as she says — which audiences expect of her — in song and dance number "The Story of Lucy and Jesse" from "Follies."

Juliet Prowse: She's a natural

By Ethel Simmons
staff writer

In "Follies," the Stephen Sondheim musical through Sunday at Detroit's Fisher Theatre, tall, shapely actress-dancer Juliet Prowse looks dazzling under the stagelights, in her Bob Mackie-designed costumes.

She's a sizzler by day, too, in the morning light, emerging from her downtown Detroit apartment hotel. The cast had given a matinee performance the day before, then gone that night to a Michigan Opera Theatre benefit party with the stars of "Follies," which is an MOT production.

But instead of being exhausted, Prowse and some of the cast members ("the young kids in the show") went over to a club in Windsor where they danced until 4 in the morning.

"I needed that," Prowse said, appearing fresh at 11 a.m., on the way to a breakfast shop for a bowl of chili. She wore dark glasses, a bomber jacket, with a pink blouse underneath that complemented her bright red hair, and trousers. The long-legged star walked briskly and seemed quite at home in town, although she's only visited Detroit once before ("About 10 years ago I did a Ford industrial," she said.)

AT THE RESTAURANT, she greeted the waitresses like old friends and was relaxed and unassuming. She talked in an easy, open manner about all sorts of things — keeping few secrets (if any).

She disclosed her age, when mentioning the probably limited length of her career strictly as a dancer ("I'm in my 50s."); mentioned, "My boyfriend," David Chavez, a choreographer who lives in Albuquerque and wants her to move there; and even, when asked, recalled when she was engaged to Frank Sinatra (she broke the engagement — and it was a tough decision — but he wanted her to give up performing). "I was only 24," she said, "and he was a superstar." But she did say no to Sinatra who "wanted to marry me desperately — desperately!"

Her role in "Follies" is Phyllis Rogers Stone, a sophisticated, bitchy former chorus girl of the Weissman (read Ziegfeld) Follies. Nancy Dussault is Sally Durant Plummer, an incredibly naive former chorine who was Phyllis' best friend. Eddie Adams is Carlotte

Star enjoys first day off from rehearsals, show

By Ethel Simmons
staff writer

IT WAS JACK WESTON'S first day off in 2½ weeks, and the casually dressed star of the current Birmingham Theatre production was making the most of it, over a luncheon interview at Birmingham's Panache restaurant.

He ordered a double Beebeater martini on the rocks and the Panache Tower sandwich, enjoying both as he talked about his role as Nat, in the provocative comedy hit "I'm Not Rappaport."

Nat's a man in his 80s, and Weston resembled the shabby, old character he portrays only because of his slightly bearded face. Weston is a cheerful, chubby guy, with an enthusiasm for life, even though he professes to be going through some difficult personal times.

Although his name isn't a household word, he's familiar to stage, movie and TV audiences through the many different roles he has played over a lifetime in show business.

THE PHOTOGRAPHER remembered him fondly for his role in the TV comedy "The Hathaways." He played Mr. Hathaway, co-starring with Peggy Cass. "Three monkeys were our children," he said. "Don't ask me to explain it. It's too early in the morning. The show ran one year (in 1961) and was never rerun, but people keep coming out of the woodwork asking about it."

The waitress, also one of the actor's fans, came over to say, "Everytime I think of you, it's with a feeling of warmth."

Obviously, Weston has been doing something right. As a matter of fact, he said he considers himself very lucky because all these years he has had the opportunity to get lots of work.

Weston also played in another short-lived TV series, "The Four Seasons" based on the Alan Alda movie comedy hit. "It's sad. It ran 12 weeks," he said of the series. "I would have liked doing that. It didn't work as well as the movie."

Weston declares "The Four Seasons" is his favorite of movies he has made. "I loved it. I thought it was wonderful."

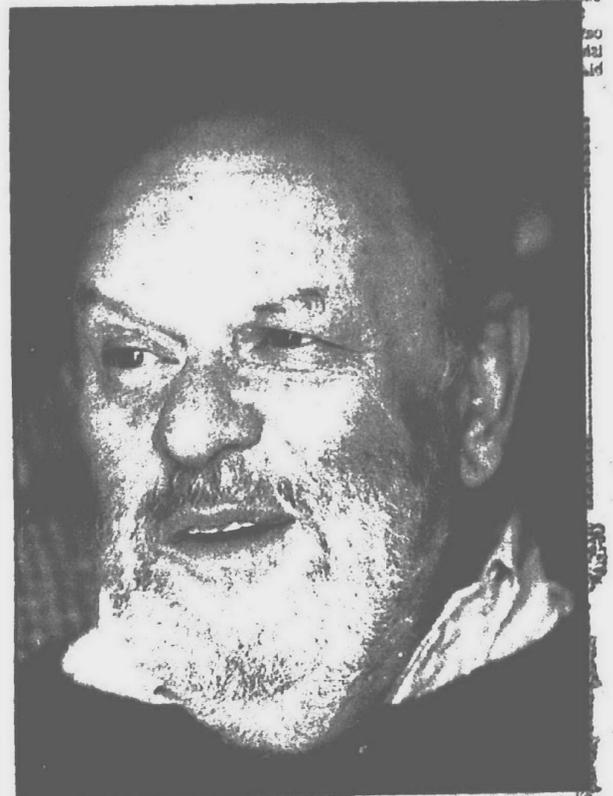

He's looking forward to playing the dentist-hypochondriac again. "With good luck, if Universal give us the go. Alan has written a sequel to 'The Four Seasons.' He's called us (the movie's original cast including such stars as Rita Moreno, Carol Burnett, Len Cariou, Bess Armstrong and Sandy Dennis, along with Alda), and we're all ready to go."

Weston usually does two movies a year. "This is my slowest year," he said. The actor recently finished the sequel "Short Circuit II." Other recent films are "Dirty Dancing" and "Ishtar."

PLAYING IN the Birmingham Theatre production of "I'm Not Rappaport" is the second time Weston has worked in a show written by Herb Gardner. The first was a musical, "One Night Stand," for which Gardner wrote the book and lyrics.

"It closed in previews," he said. The show played at the Nederlander Theatre in New York, in 1979-80. What character did he play then? "The same guy," Weston declared. "The father with a son."

Actors forceful in performances

Performances of "I'm Not Rappaport" by Herb Gardner continue through Sunday, Dec. 18, at the Birmingham Theatre. For ticket information call the box office at 644-3533.

"I'm Not Rappaport" is my favorite kind of play — a very funny comedy that is also warm, touching and thought-provoking. The current production at the Birmingham Theatre offers some strong performers in Herb Gardner's Tony-award-winning show.

Nat (Jack Weston) and Midge (Lawrence James) are two old men with widely divergent outlooks on life. Their friendship miraculously endures repeated verbal clashes on their favorite Central Park bench.

A cantankerous octogenarian, Nat is a Socialist who has done lifelong battle with "the system" and is not ready to quit. Retired, he spends his time spinning tall tales to the gullible Midge and looking for windmills to tilt at.

has "visions of nursing homes dancing in her head."

Though Judd Hirsch originated the role on Broadway with less bluster and more nuances of character, Weston's feistier Nat is till oddly lovable.

James is not given co-star billing because he is not a "name," but this very talented actor more than holds his own with the formidable Weston. Extraordinarily believable in his role, James has been aged better than Weston and emulates the movements of a spry old man very well.

McDonald is very likable and convincing as Clara. Named after a union firebrand her father admired, Clara was raised to be a rebel, not the suburban wife and successful businesswoman she has become. McDonald lets sparks of the younger Clara glow beneath her now mature, sensible countenance.

RICHARD COTTRELL'S egotistical yuppie is amusingly inept when up against the two old foxes. Ken Land is slick as the urban cowboy

He had just explained that Gardner had a wonderful father. "All his plays are about this old revolutionary guy," Weston said that 20 years ago, when he was in his late 20s, he had read for Gardner for a similar role in the playwright's "The Goodbye People." But he didn't get the part. "I was too young," he said. "I had little time to prepare for this starring role in 'I'm Not Rappaport.'" As the outspoken Socialist, whose past and present is both fact and fancy, Weston is onstage and speaking throughout much of the show's two acts.

"I got the part three days before the show went into rehearsal," he said. The sudden job required learning 82 pages of dialogue in 10 days of rehearsal. "I'm marshaling all my techniques as an actor. Each performance I add alterations. I don't have the luxury of having three or four weeks rehearsal. When I leave this town and this show, I hope it's one of the best things I've done."

WESTON HAS ONLY good things to say about the audiences in Birmingham, who come to see this show that's billed as a comedy but has a serious approach to the problems of the aging. "The audiences are wonderful. You don't hear a cough." While he performs, everything is quiet, and then he may hear a gasp from the crowd in response to some dramatic action onstage.

The actor doesn't concern himself with reviews. "I couldn't care less," he said. "My job is to play the show." Working with a director on character development, "I take. I accept, but I censor. I'm screwed up in many ways, but as an actor I'm secure."

Growing up in Cleveland, the son of poor Russian immigrant parents, he went to the movies during the Depression and was transported into paradise. "The movies turned me around. I entered a fantasy world and have been there ever since."

Weston lived in New York City, then in California for 18 years before moving back to New York after he returned to Broadway in 1975 in "The Ritz." This play was followed by several other Broadway shows, including "California Suite" for a year.

Detroit-area audiences saw Weston in Neil Simon's "The Last of the Red Hot Lovers" at the Fisher Theatre in 1971.

Weston, who has split with his wife after being married for 36 years, said, "I live a nomadic existence. It's rough."

whose laid-back speech belies his inherent nastiness. As the punk extorting protection money from Midge, Andy McCutcheon does not seem very menacing, nor is Susan Norman very creditable as a reformed addict.

In between some hilarious witticisms, "I'm Not Rappaport" raises some serious issues about society's treatment of the elderly. Nevertheless, laughter and good feelings predominate.

Barbara Michals teaches high school English in Southfield. A theater critic for the last 14 years, she is an inveterate playgoer who regularly catches up on all the New York productions.

Campion, a gutsy movie queen.

Prowse wears a slithery long Mackie gown in red for most of the show, where she appears as one of the guests at the Follies reunion, just before the old theater is about to be wrecked. In a sequence in which each girl recalls her youth and her dreams, Prowse does a number, again in red, in a brief costume from her own Las Vegas night club act. This one she says Mackie designed for her to be washable because she dances in it and sweats.

Singing, dancing to "The Story of Lucy and Jessie," she performs in a real high point of the show. Incidentally, Prowse, who first studied to be a ballerina, is 6 feet 4 "on points." Because of her height, she said, she was discouraged from pursuing a career in ballet and instead switched to musical theater.

NOW SHE'S LOOKING for parts where she won't need to dance at all. "I'm trying to get away from that, break that image," she explained. "I can't dance forever."

Prowse still does ballet back in Los Angeles, where she lives, but had a couple of knee operations and a back operation. It's hard on me now," she said. She also does yoga.

Prowse previously starred in a production of 'Follies,' which opened last June at Houston's brand-new Northam Opera House.

On the road, however, she prefers gyms. "They're everywhere," she said. "I do a lot of exercise." Along with some other cast members, she joined a gym at Detroit's Omni, where she works all the equipment.

The Michigan Opera Theatre production is Detroit's premiere of "Follies." Prowse previously starred in a production of "Follies" that opened last June at Houston's brand-new Northam Opera House.

The Tony-award-winning musical originally opened on Broadway in 1971 and had both its fans and detractors. Through the years, it has been generally recalled more favorably. The show was rewritten for a London production, which Prowse said she saw. "It's not very good. They've taken the bite out of it, with happy endings."

The musical is about marriages that have lost their luster, and Prowse regrets the London rewrite that doesn't retain the show's "acidic side."

PROWSE WAS BORN in India, and her family moved to South Africa, where she was raised. Her mother and her brother and his family still live in South Africa. She is going to visit them during her Christmas break in December.

She has a son, 18, by the man who was her second husband, actor John McCook, now appearing on TV's soap opera "The Bold and the Beautiful." Her first marriage was to a young man who had a drug problem and she tried to help. "It didn't work."

Prowse came to the United States to do "Can-Can" at 20th Century-Fox. "That's when the studio was starting to fall apart. 'Cleopatra' was being made at the same time," she recalled. That expensive production, among other things, broke the studio.

She was under a seven-year contract and was unhappy when they put her in a bad movie. She got out of her contract and has been independent ever since.

Boyfriend Chavez, the choreographer, has done her night club acts and shows. The two have been together for 12 years now.

Prowse is remodeling her house in Los Angeles, where she has lived about 14 years. The living room decor is being designed around a painting she bought in New Mexico, of Taos Pueblo in a rainstorm. "The colors are blues and purples," she said.

'Foreigner' good from all angles

Performances of "The Foreigner" by Larry Shue continue through Saturday, Nov. 19, at the Farmington Players. For ticket information call 538-1670.

By Barbara Michale
special writer

"The Foreigner" is a delightful farce skillfully performed by the Farmington Players. A talented cast and fine direction result in a very polished, pleasing production.

As with all good farce, the plot is wildly improbable. Charlie Baker (Ralph Rosati) is a retiring Englishman who finds himself deposited at a fishing lodge in rural Georgia by a well-meaning friend who thinks Charlie needs a change.

Because of his low self-esteem Charlie is upset at the idea of having to maintain conversations with strangers at the lodge. To accommodate Charlie's request that he be left alone, his friend "Froggy" (Jim Snideman) passes him off as a mysterious, non-English-speaking foreigner, or "furriner" in the local accent.

When Charlie inadvertently overhears a shady minister (Mike Megerian) plotting to get his girlfriend's inheritance, discredit her slow-witted brother, defraud the lodge owner and establish a stronghold for the Ku Klux Klan, he finds subtle ways to intervene and save the day. In the process he acquires a whole new personality, becoming a well-liked and valuable asset to his new friends.

Rosati is perfect as Charlie, at first so meek he virtually melts into the sofa and then growing in self-assurance until he is the constant center of attention.

When Charlie is down, Rosati's

mustache droops and he assumes the soulful eyes of a basset hound. When Charlie is up, Rosati cavorts with glee, enthraling the lodgers with a hilarious mishmash of invented language. Rosati's comic timing and delivery are always masterful.

AS "FROGGY," Snideman gives a smooth performance with an excellent British accent. Megerian manages to maintain a creditable balance between the glib charmer the Reverend David appears to be and the sleazeball that lurks underneath.

Mary Ellen Quesada is wonderfully funny as Betty, the good-hearted but not-too-sharp lodge owner. Both her comedic skills and rural Southern intonations are faultless. Convinced that the only way to communicate with a foreigner is to shout at him, Quesada's auditory assaults nearly lift Rosati from his seat each time.

Kris Conley is charming and effective as Catherine, the heiress filled with self-doubts. Bob McSweeney is frightfully believable as the menacing Owen Musser, an impatient Klan leader.

Kirk Hanley does a very fine job of making Ellard, Catherine's dullard brother, a sympathetic, believable character rather than a comic caricature of a retard.

Director Ellie Jorgensen has the show well-paced and her cast finely tuned. At Sunday night's performance, one badly mistimed sound effect only served as a reminder of how flawless everything else was. Besides, the audience was already laughing too hard to care.

Performers could be funnier

Performances of the Schoolcraft College Theatre production of "The Government Inspector" continue through Sunday, Nov. 12, on campus in Livonia. For ticket information call 462-4400, Ext. 3427.

Bob Weibel

Now that "glasnost" and "perestroika" have become part of American lexicon, it seems only fitting that Schoolcraft College present Nikolai Gogol's "The Government Inspector," a humorous view of Russian bureaucracy.

Unfortunately, the large cast of mostly first-time performers lacks the experience, aplomb and panache to squeeze all the juices from this delicious farce.

The setting is a small provincial Russian town in 1836. Corrupt officials and general incompetence are the accepted way of life. Word arrives that a government inspector from St. Petersburg has come to town, incognito no less, to check up on things.

A lowly, but glib government clerk, who has lost his money gambling, is incorrectly identified as the inspector. Local officials treat him like royalty. He quickly recognizes what's happened — and sets about to take their money, women and everything else that isn't nailed down. The fun, of course, is watching the cons being conned by a con.

CHIEF CON ARTIST is Gregory Lea, in his stage debut as the crooked mayor, Anton Antonovich. It's a most imposing character. His voice and presence commands the stage in every scene — his hairdo is more outrageous than fight promoter Don King's — and his dumb-as-an-ox mannerisms are consistent, if a bit wooden at times.

Susan Durack is convincing as his supercilious wife, Anna Andreyevna. She moves and speaks with the authority of an experienced performer. Likewise, James Howland (who plays a servant) knows his way around a stage and delivers lines with nice timing.

Rob Rehn makes his debut on stage as the government inspector. He brings excellent energy to the role but often works too hard with unfocused gestures and movement to affect a character. This lack of experience and technique by many of the first-time actors slowed a number of scenes, which were only saved by the inherent comedy of the script.

Nevertheless, the cast and audience had great fun with the play's many alliterations. In addition to names like Anton Antonovich, there were a couple of landowners named Peter Ivanovich Bobchinsky and Peter Ivanovich Dobchinsky (played by Sean Sullivan and Kenneth Garner respectively).

Costumes, makeup and music were generally well done. The lighting is another matter. Please, someone get a ladder and reset the lights so we can see the actors when they're downstage.

Bob Weibel of Westland is a freelance writer, who has spent more than 25 years in community theater as a director, designer and performer.

Cellular towers sprouting up nationwide

By Jeff Counts
Staff Writer

The number of towers to handle capacity telephone conversations in metro Detroit has increased from 11 to 58 over four years, and more are on the way as more people opt to buy cellular phones to either chat with their friends or make business calls.

In the Detroit area, there was a 156 percent increase in cellular use this year compared to 35 percent nationwide, according to Ameritech Mobile, which considers Oakland County as one of the fastest growing areas.

West Bloomfield Township is working on a zoning ordinance to cover the location of cellular telephone towers, while other communities have systems in place to handle their location.

But for the cellular firms, there's a contradiction in the locating of a tower. "It seems like where we get the most demand, we also get the most opposition," said Bob Brown, an Ameritech Mobile manager who oversees the Detroit market.

"I just wish the people that use the service would go to the public hearings," he said.

"WE NEED A lot of support from the people who use the phones to get the towers in," said Tom Adams, of Ameritech's Southfield office.

The number of towers needed depends on the density of use and not just distance, said Brown, who added that each tower can handle only a certain number of calls.

"We're monitoring them all the time," he said. "As we see them getting busy, we start looking for a new site."

He said finding a site usually takes about a year.

Adams said the Detroit Ameritech system covers about 5,000 square miles and is broken down into a grid system, where a tower is needed about every 10 miles.

He said the company splits cells when the demand in an area becomes great. Splitting a cell improves service, and is done in two phases, first by adding capacity to the existing tower and then by building a new tower.

Bloomfield Township has about six towers in place, said Supervisor Fred Korzon, adding that the township's zoning board of appeals has handled the construction and it "has worked out pretty well."

The city of Farmington Hills was approached by Ameritech Mobile about building a tower, but the city asked them to try putting their equipment on an existing tower, said Ed Gardiner, of the planning staff.

"They put it on a tower at 12 Mile and I-696," he said, adding that there was no objection from the community.

He said the township has a 50-foot height limit on towers, and that further requests will be handled by the zoning board of appeals, which will have to rule on requests for higher towers needed by cellular firms. Cellular towers must be at least 120 feet, he said.

"There are only two firms, Ameritech and Cellular One," he said. "We've satisfied Ameritech and we expect to hear from Cellular One."

HE SAID THAT a couple of years ago there were no such requests.

In Birmingham one tower went up about a year ago at Maple and Eton roads, but the 100-foot plus structure didn't generate any community opposition.

Rochester Hills doesn't have any cellular towers yet, and doesn't have any requests for them. "I don't even think they could put them up here," said Jim Schmidt, Rochester Hills community relations officer. "We've got a height limit and we don't even have a two-story building here. It would require a waiver from the zoning board of appeals."

In Troy there are two Ameritech towers, and another being proposed, said Jerry Vanden Bussche, city building inspector.

"They've all come up in the past couple of years," he said.

One tower is located at Maple and Crooks roads, and another is at 14 Mile and Dequindre roads. He said there's a request for another tower at Square Lake and Coolidge roads.

Psychic is handy when looking into future

By Nechama Bakel
special writer

If Jupiter is in your solar ninth house and hits midheaven sometime next spring, on what day, month and year were you born?

Give up? Better cross the palm of Elizabeth. She knows. And this is not knowing like you and I know.

This is the real thing, the sixth sense, the stuff that sends the heebie-jeebies crawling up and down your spine.

BUT GO ahead, ask her. She'll tell you.

Elizabeth, a graduate of Livonia Churchill High, also will tell you what your cycle looks like for a new business venture, career move or romance.

If you have your car keys, driver's license or favorite plaything on you, all the better. Then Elizabeth, using psychometry, can pick up vibrations from the object and tell you more. If you really want to know.

And if you don't believe her, that's great. Elizabeth loves skeptics.

"They're the ones I usually end up flooring," chortles the 32-year-old blonde who declines to give her last name.

Two years ago, Elizabeth, formerly known by the professional name Misty, started a business she calls "The Psychic Connection."

For the right price, she can connect you with palm readers, tarot card readers, regular card readers, crystal ball readers, numerologists and astrologers. Or if you're in the mood, you can order an ordinary psychic.

Elizabeth also provides readers for group parties, conventions, banquets, benefits, lectures and mall fairs.

She even did two bar mitzvahs within the last six months, she said.

ONE LECTURER Elizabeth sent to a party at the University of Michigan had attorneys reading each other's palms by the time they left the party.

The Psychic Connection sponsors psychic and holistic health fairs with up to 30 readers and 45 vendors at the Wayne Ford Civic League at 1041 Wayne Road just south of Ford Road in Westland. The fairs have drawn from 400 to 1,000 people. The next one is planned for November.

For an admission fee of $5, you get a crystal and a day's worth of psychic readings, crystal readings and holistic health readings.

Visitors are free to attend the day-long lectures by health practitioners such as aroma therapists, herbalists and chiropractors.

Elizabeth said she became interested in astrology after reading "Sun Signs" by Linda Goodman when she was 14.

At 19, she could read a plain deck of cards and pick up things "further than just looking at cards."

"When I hold onto an object and close my eyes, I see different words. I tell people what I'm seeing, even though I myself may not understand it."

But there is really nothing to be nervous or frightened about, Elizabeth insists. She says she is fortunate that she never sees anything negative like death or illness.

The key is to "think positive," she said. If you're thinking negative thoughts, "just tell yourself, cancel," and try to direct your thoughts to something positive.

Helping people in a positive way is what her life is all about, Elizabeth said. "I'm so thankful to do what I'm doing. If I can help at least one person a day, then I'm happy."

ELIZABETH, who lives alone with three dogs and a cat, sees herself as "everybody's buddy," a warm person who cares about others and enjoys trying to help them.

She was born in February under the sign of the fish, she said. "I'm a Pisces, sensitive, compassionate, caring and mystical," certainly an apt description of this vibrant woman.

Elizabeth, a 1974 graduate of Livonia Churchill High School, doesn't have a college education, but she says she's got "formal common sense."

She has appeared on Channel 3 and on Dennis Fairchild's radio program "Thank Your Lucky Stars" on WKYT-AM.

She has also been a frequent guest on her good friend Marcello's radio show "Psychically Speaking," on WKSG-FM, a show that recently left the air.

Last November, while a guest on Marcello's show, Elizabeth predicted that big business would "come out even more with the use of astrologers and psychics this year," a prediction Nancy Reagan has fulfilled.

Elizabeth likes to quote J.P. Morgan who said, "Millionaires don't use astrologers - billionaires do."

She's made other predictions that have already come true as well, she said.

She predicted there would be an earthquake in Kentucky, an event that occurred some weeks ago, and she "felt the Tigers would have a good year but not as good as last year."

ELIZABETH IS concerned about the stock market in October again this year; there won't be as big a crash as last year, but some people will be hurting from it, she said.

As far as the presidential elections Elizabeth said she "did feel that George Bush will be our next president somehow, even if he's not elected, even if Reagan steps down somehow." Elizabeth loves music and dancing, but she says the business keeps her so busy she has very little time left for herself.

A reading is $30. To schedule one call Elizabeth at 423-4234. And the way, if Jupiter is in your solar ninth house and is hitting midheaven around April, you were born Sept. 1944. Same as I was.

Canton tourney run halted by Stevenson

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

Don't worry Pete, be happy. Before Wednesday's regional soccer game at Plymouth Canton, Livonia Stevenson coach Pete Scerri predicted the Spartans wouldn't surrender a goal the rest of the state tournament.

That's a lot to ask, even of No. 1-ranked Stevenson, winner of five of the last six Class A crowns.

The Spartans, 15-0-2, gave up one goal Wednesday, but eventually downed Canton 6-1 to advance to Saturday's 11 a.m. regional final against Southfield at Brighton. Canton ended its season at 9-8-4.

Dan Martin's goal with 32 minutes left spoiled Scerri's hopes and cut Stevenson's lead to one, 2-1. The Spartans retaliated, however, scoring three goals in the next 20 minutes to put some distance between themselves and the Chiefs.

YES, PETE, THE Spartans are human.

"I was surprised by the (Canton) goal," Scerri said. "It was a mistake the goalkeeper (Jerry Smolinski) made. He should never go out when the man is marked. We make mistakes, too, sometimes."

Though Canton's season is history, coach Mike Morgan has fond memories, including the Chiefs first district title, which came last Saturday. The Chiefs won five of their last six games.

"We finished strong," he said. "You hate to lose, but all in all it was a fairly successful campaign."

Defender Kurt Will led Stevenson with three goals, bringing his season total to 14. Aaron Brown, Bob Dimitriou and Mark Thomas scored one goal each.

soccer

'When it was 2-1, I said 'Hey we got it rolling.' They came in bunches, didn't they? They're a well-balanced team. We had our chances, but we just didn't finish.'

— Mike Morgan
Canton soccer coach

Canton thought it could make a run at Stevenson after Martin's goal, but the Spartans ability to score quick was the difference.

DIMITRIOU STARTED Stevenson's second-half onslaught, beating Canton goalkeeper Marty Adamian with 20:12 remaining. Less than two minutes later Will scored his second goal to make it 4-1, heading the ball in during a scramble in front of the net.

Will finished his hat trick with 12:45 left when he buried a penalty kick behind a frustrated Adamian. Moments earlier, Adamian bumped Will in the goal crease, and the official awarded the talented Stevenson senior a penalty kick.

Will's final goal was the clincher, according to Morgan.

"What really took a lot out of us was the penalty kick," Morgan said.

"When it was 2-1, I said 'Hey we got it rolling.' They came in bunches, didn't they? They're a well-balanced team. We had our chances, but we just didn't finish."

"Stevenson played its set play well tonight, and they're good in the air."

Earlier this fall Stevenson and Canton were locked in a scoreless tie at halftime before the Spartans eventually prevailed. The Spartans followed a similar script Wednesday.

"I KNEW SOONER or later we were going to score tonight," Scerri said. "That's what I told them on the bus on the way over here. Canton is not a bad team. You have to be pretty good to make it this far."

Scerri again received a strong performance out of his defenders, who accounted for five of the six goals. Thomas, a forward, was the only Stevenson goal-scorer Wednesday that isn't a defender.

Canton managed only seven shots against Smolinski, while Stevenson fired 13 at Adamian. Scerri thinks he has two defensive gems in Will and Derek Williford, another goal-scoring threat.

"Will and Williford are the best defenders I've ever seen in high school," Scerri said. "They're the best two players in the state, the way they cover for each other."

Next for Stevenson is Southfield, a team that knocked the Spartans out of the 1987 Class A tournament in regional play. The loss ended a Stevenson winning streak that spanned more than three years.

Southfield is 13-3-3 overall, defeating Dearborn Fordson 3-0 Wednesday in another regional pairing.

"We owe them something," Scerri said. "We have to pay them back."

So what's in a name? A lot, according to some IMAGES. I HAVE this problem with images.

Maybe it's time I visited a shrink. Ooops... there I go again. What I meant was psychiatrist. Someone out there may have misinterpreted me. They may have figured the circus was in town, and I was off to see a midget.

Uh-oh. Did it again, didn't I? Associating midgets with the circus, I mean. Typical, stupid stereotype. Sorry. Meant no offense to small people.

Or psychiatrists, for that matter. What I meant — or at least what I thought I meant — is that I need to see a shrin — uh, doctor of psychiatry, and play that game they like to play. Word association, it's called.

THE REASON is my images are out of whack. Misconstrued would be a nicer way of putting it, I guess. Or would it?

Don't ask me. I'm all screwed up. See, when someone asks me what I associate with the word "chief," I answer an Indian warrior of yesterday, garbed in full headdress, with a stern — and yet noble — expression.

I guess that's all wrong.

What I wish is that someone had told me I was way off base, somewhere out in left field. But there goes that misassociation of terms again. Now someone will think I think you've gotta be a nutcase to play baseball. Especially left field.

For the record, I don't think that at all. There's nothing wrong with left field. It's catchers I think are crazy.

I ALSO DON'T think there's anything wrong with being associated with chiefs. But people do. According to the Michigan Civil Rights Commission, all those schools that have nicknames associated with Indians are holding them up for ridicule.

Such as the Plymouth Canton Chiefs and Birmingham Brother Rice Warriors. They are two of 62

C.J. Risak

According to the Michigan Civil Rights Commission, all those schools that have nicknames associated with Indians are holding them up for ridicule.

state high schools and three state colleges that use some sort of Indian nickname or logo. The MCRC says Indians are being exploited by such use, that it is demeaning to them, that it prolongs the view of Indians as half-naked, crazed savages.

That description worries me — because I never thought any of those things. In my way of thinking, there are three reasons why a school chooses a certain nickname and/or logo:

- It either possesses or symbolizes some quality worthy of emulating (this is the most popular reason used in choosing a nickname);

- It is unique and, therefore, stands out (the Ann Arbor Huron River Rats, or the Bloomfield Hills Kingswood Aardvarks, or the Wayne Memorial Zebras);

- It has some sort of significance to the school's name or location (Westland John Glenn Rockets, Plymouth Rocks, Redford St. Agatha Aggies, etc.).

In all my years connected with sports, it never occurred to me that some schools chose names as a method of ridicule.

THIS REVELATION — and I must credit and congratulate the MCRC for opening my eyes — forces me to reshape my thinking. For instance, whenever I heard the Notre Dame nickname "Fighting Irish," my thoughts were of a pugnacious boxer of Irish heritage.

Now I have visions of a terrorist tossing molotov cocktails at English soldiers.

Rochester Adams' athletes are known as the Highlanders. Is that a reference to Scottish history, school location or state of mind?

What alarms me is what the MCRC action may initiate. Protecting Indians' rights — something this country never worried about before (did you know the white man never kept a treaty with the red man?) — could get other groups thinking along the same line.

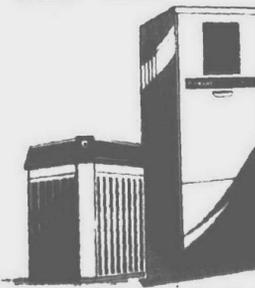

WHAT WOULD happen if the Michigan Humane Society reacted similarly? Imagine a lawsuit pending against the Farmington Harrison Hawks, depending upon the result of Saturday's state playoff football game. Should Harrison lose badly (which isn't really conceivable), the Humane Society might say Harrison defamed and shamed the nickname "Hawks."

Personally, I wouldn't think losing a football game would bring dishonor to hawks everywhere. But I'm the same guy who didn't think chiefs conjured up visions of bloodthirsty savages running rampant through the countryside, butchering helpless white folk.

And I never thought anyone would choose a nickname so they could worship those qualities. Boy, am I glad the MCRC is around. Without such an astute organization to straighten me out, I would have continued through life thinking noble things about chiefs. Thank you, once again.

And please stay in touch. I'd hate to harbor nice feelings about anything you disapproved of.

Canton takes swim title away from Big Reds

Plymouth Canton upset Milan Saturday as champion of the Bellefonte Invitational girls swimming meet.

No point totals were announced but Canton placed first with defending champion Milan second, Dearborn Edsel Ford third and Adrian fourth. Willow Run and Bellefonte, respectively, rounded out the six-team field.

Nicole Drake and Cissie Cummins were double-winners for Canton. Drake's titles came in the 200-yard freestyle (1:59.93) and 500 freestyle (8:18.16). Cummins won the 200 individual medley (3:21.54) and the 100 backstroke (1:06.45).

Lori Engelhuber claimed Canton's only individual second-place finish, clocking 30.34 in the 50 freestyle. Engelhuber combined with Jean McLenaghan, Val Gildhaus and Chris Lang in the 200 medley relay to finish second in 2:02.23.

The 400 freestyle relay of Drake, Cummins, Janet Roberts and Kelly Rische also earned a second-place finish (3:54.99).

Third-place finishes went to Lang, 100 butterfly, 1:06.97; Gildhaus, 100 breaststroke, 1:17.43; Amy Van Buhler, diving, 345.00 points; and Kristy Brugler, 200 IM, 2:37.34.

LAST THURSDAY, Canton swamped Livonia Franklin 131-38 at Canton to improve to 6-2 in dual meets.

The Chiefs won every event. Engelhuber, McLenaghan, Gildhaus and Brugler teamed for a win in the 200 medley relay (2:09.29), and Lang, Jenny Cooper, Renee DeBell and Rische finished on top in the 400 free relay (4:03.72).

Individual wins went to Cooper in the 200 free (2:17.05); Cummins in the 200 IM (2:30.38); Roberts in the 50 free (27.97); Van Buhler in diving (345.00 points); Brugler in the 100 fly (1:07.21); Engelhuber in the 100 free (58.48); Lang in the 500 free (5:56.37); Drake in the 100 back (1:06.11); and Stacy Bellisle in the 100 breast (1:21.63).

Canton swims at Westland John Glenn at 7 p.m. Thursday.

Orris high-point swimmer

Ron Orris captured the Boys Open high-point honors last weekend at the Livonia Spartan Aquatic A-B swim meet held at Oakland Community College.

Six-hundred and ninety swimmers from 38 different teams competed in the meet called the Halloween Fest.

Orris, a student at Plymouth Salem High School, also qualified for the Junior Nationals next March in Pensacola, Fla., by winning the 200-yard individual medley. He also captured the 50, 500 and 1,650 freestyle, along with the 100 butterfly. Orris added a second in the 200 breaststroke and a third in the 100 breaststroke.

Spartan teammate Beth Surowiec took high-point honors in the girls with a victories in the 100 and 200 backstroke. She was second in the 50 freestyle, fourth in the 200 IM and 100 butterfly and sixth in the 100 breaststroke.

JEFF SIEVING of the Clarenceville Swim Club was runner-up and in the Boys 10 and under category. He finished first in the 50 and 100 breaststroke, second in the 100 butterfly, and third in the 100 IM, 50 butterfly and 200 freestyle.

Madonna netters win St. Mary's tournament

All coaches like to have their teams in peak form when tournament time comes up at the end of the season. So Jerry Abraham must be pretty pleased with his Madonna College volleyball squad.

Madonna rolled through five matches last weekend at the St. Mary's (Ind.) College Tournament, capturing the title with a 9-15, 15-7, 15-6 win over University of Michigan-Dearborn Saturday.

The championship gave Madonna 12 wins in its last 15 matches, and an overall 26-10 record, with the NIAA districts scheduled for this weekend.

Highlighting the Madonna triumph was sophomore Marie Cervantes, from Bedford Bishop Borgess. Cervantes had 67 kills in 107 attacks to earn journey MVP and NIAA District 23 player of the week honors.

Madonna opened the tournament by beating St. Mary's 15-4, 15-12 and Dearborn (Ohio) 15-3, 15-6 Friday. On Saturday, its wins came against UM-D 15-15, 15-11, 15-12 and, in the semifinals, Siena Heights 15-11, 15-3.

Junior Wendy Spencer (from Schoolcraft College) added 38 kills in the tournament, sophomore Kristy McFadden (Borgess) had 37 kills and freshman Penny Baker provided steady setting.

Freshman Jenny Bladowski (Livonia Stevenson) and Wendy Wesala and sophomore Rosanne Krach and Joy Pitrome contributed solid defense, while freshmen Lisa Drestl (Borgess) and Kim Blaznak combined for seven blocks against UM-D.

Madonna plays at Henry Ford CC at 7 p.m. Thursday.

SCHOOLCRAFT VOLLEYBALL:

The Lady Ocelots concluded a perfect regular season at home Tuesday by sweeping Macomb CC 15-10, 15-6, 15-5. The win allowed them to remain unbeaten in Eastern Conference matches since 1984 and to finish without losing a game at home this season.

That final accomplishment was tested by Macomb, which finished second in the conference, in the first game. The Lady Monarchs led 6-0 and 8-5 before SC rallied.

"Our passing was just off," said SC coach Tom Teeters. "And we weren't moving well. And I think we were a little lax."

Nikki Stubbs and Maria Evans, both from Garden City, again paced the attack. Stubbs had 15 kills in 30 attacks with two errors (a .433 kill average), 13 assists-to-kills in 34 sets and two service aces. Evans finished with 14 kills in 41 attacks with two errors (.393).

Alisha Love added seven service aces, Chris Paciero (Livonia Churchill) had 23 assists-to-kills in 73 sets and JoAnn Kolnityz (Wayne Memorial) added two solo blocks.

SC finished its conference season at 10-0. The Lady Ocelots are 36-3 overall, 29-2 against JC teams.

Ocelots drop final

By C.J. Rieck staff writer

Maybe it should come as no surprise that — after three weeks without a match — Schoolcraft College's womens soccer team would be a bit rusty.

And it also should be expected that at the end of a four-games-in-two-days tournament, the Lady Ocelots would fade. They did, losing in the final at the Ohio State Tournament to Siena Heights 2-0.

But what hurt more than the loss to the Saints was the loss of midfielder Dawn Gabriel. Gabriel suffered a dislocated shoulder in the tournament semifinals when she collided with the University of Michigan keeper.

HER LOSS "alters our whole style," said SC coach Nick O'Shea. "You get used to having someone there, getting her the ball and knowing what to expect. Now she's not there."

O'Shea is hopeful Gabriel, a Livonia Churchill graduate, will be able to return for the NJCAA tournament Nov. 17-20 in Trenton, N.J. But she won't be able to practice prior to that.

SC opened the OSU tournament with Saturday wins over Miami (Ohio), 3-0, and OSU, 2-0. On Sunday, SC advanced to the finals with an overtime shootout victory over U-M before losing to Siena.

Against the Saints, O'Shea said his team "wasn't tired, they were just flat. We were intimidated by them."

SUCH A PROBLEM didn't surprise O'Shea after the long layoff, caused by three cancelled matches. "I expected us to be flat," he said. "But I thought we'd come out of it. It wasn't a rough game. We just backed off from everything."

The poor finish overshadowed a good start. In the win over Miami, Jennifer Belhart and Joan Arndt netted first-half goals to stake SC to a lead it never relinquished. Gina Corroza iced it with a second-half goal.

Against OSU, Corroza got two goals, both off corner kicks in the first half. Gabriel set up the first and Rosemary Hally the second.

The shootout win over U-M came after a scoreless tie through regulation and two five-minute sudden death periods. Kellie Davis got the game-winner for the Lady Ocelots on the sixth penalty kick. Lori Green (from Livonia Stevenson) took the sixth shot for U-M, but SC keeper Kris Moore clinched the win with a diving save.

SC men's soccer team ends with road victory

At least Schoolcraft College's men's soccer team did something none of its Region 12 rivals could do — win at Cuyahoga Metro CC.

The Ocelots ended their season with six wins and a tie in eight region games by beating CMCC 3-1 Saturday. It was the only home loss of the season for CMCC, which earlier had tied region champ Macomb CC there.

A mistake gave CMCC its only goal 25 minutes into the match. SC keeper Chris Moore called for a clearing pass back to him, but he was beaten to the ball by a CMCC forward, who scored to give his team a 1-0 advantage.

Todd Nichols tied it 10 minutes later for SC, converting a pass from Andy Shiner.

The Ocelots gained control in the second half. With 20 minutes left, Brandon O'Reilly sprung Nichols loose on a breakaway, and Nichols scored for a 2-1 SC lead. Ten minutes later, Joe Messler iced the win with a goal again set up by O'Reilly, this time on a crossing pass.

Three Ocelots were named to the all-Region 12 squad: Nichols, Lee Hunt and Pete Ritsema. Moore, Messler and Chris Speen were chosen to the all-region second team.

SC finished 8-2-2 overall.

Canton girls return to Class A meet

Plymouth Canton's girls cross country runners had been hearing for months how tough the Class A regional at Howell was going to be.

Instead of succumbing to the pressure of competition, the Chiefs became the formidable competition for the rest of the field.

Four other top-ranked teams were entered in the meet, but No. 8 Canton showed itself to be every bit as good, finishing second and qualifying for the state meet Saturday in Flint.

Defending state champion and No. 1-rated Ann Arbor Pioneer won the regional with 51 points last Saturday, the Chiefs totaled 112 and West Bloomfield, another Class A power, also qualified with 117.

"They were really ready to go," said Canton coach George Przygodski of his runners.

"The field carried us along. They really got into it and ran the races of their lives."

THE CHIEFS, WHO have won back-to-back Western Lakes Activities Association titles, were primed mentally and physically for the race.

"So many people were telling us we wouldn't be able to do it," Przygodski said. "But we didn't say anything. We let it go and then let our running do the talking."

Przygodski added the Chiefs finishing ahead of West Bloomfield will be considered an upset but said his team simply did what was necessary to nail down a second straight state-meet appearance.

"People were trying to tell us it was too bad we weren't going anywhere," he said. "I didn't say anything, but I thought the kids would qualify. The kids believed it, and we went out and ran our race."

As was the case throughout the season, the Chiefs had two runners near the top with senior Cindy Spensard taking 13th place and junior Lori Peiland 15th. Spensard ran 20:33 and Peiland 20:44.

As big a key to Canton's success was a pack of runners that included Missy Jasnowski, Adrienne Garrow and Kris Marquard, who finished 27th, 28th and 29th, respectively, with times of 21:33, 21:25 and 21:24.

IN ADDITION, CATHY McCabe was not far off that pace, taking 33rd place in 21:35, and all seven Canton runners were among the top 50 as Lynda Schendel crossed the line in the 48th position at 22:04.

"I told the girls 'All the rankings are just ink on paper,'" Przygodski said. "All that matters is what happens when you get on the course."

"They didn't let the lofty ratings intimidate them. They don't back down from anybody; they just go after it."

The Chiefs were 11th in Class A last year, and their goal this year is to be among the top five.

"Last year the kids were in awe of being there," Przygodski said. "They were glassy-eyed and their knees were knocking."

"This year we're going there to race. The mystique of being at the state race will have worn off."

PRZYGODSKI NOTED the Chiefs are apt to be more confident this year since most of them competed last year. The only exceptions are Marquard, who played basketball a year ago but has been a strong team leader, and Garrow, who was on the JV unit but has made much late-season progress.

"Adrienne has been running phenomenally," he said. "She's miles ahead of where we expected her to be. She is really coming on."

Canton, given its impressive showing in the regional and the solid lineup it has, could realistically finish No. 3 in the state since its regional was considered one of the toughest.

"Anything is possible," Przygodski said. "It's a matter of us running an outstanding race and things falling together. (The Canton runners) are all mentally tough, so I think anything is conceivable."

Shamrocks capture regional title

Redford Catholic Central will be making another run for the state Class A boys cross country title.

The Shamrocks put themselves in position Saturday, winning the Region V meet at Grosse Pointe South. It was CC's sixth regional crown in 10 years under coach Tony Magni.

CC qualified with a team-low 30 points along with Dearborn Fordson (80) and University of Detroit-Jesuit (90). Redford Union was eighth with 193.

Fordson's Dan Kramer was the individual champion with a time of 15:50 (for 5,000 meters). CC's Mike Sheridan placed second in 15:57.

Other CC finishers included Jeff Fedewa, fourth, 16:33; Chris Antczak, seventh, 16:41; Kyle Richard, eighth, 16:44; Dave Galvin, 10th, 16:48; Chris Lutz, 14th, 16:52; and Jay Schemanske, 17th, 17:04. (RU's David Boyd, 22nd overall, qualified for the individual race.)

Magni predicts that Monroe will be the team to beat in Saturday's Class A championships at the IMA Brookwood Golf Course in Flint.

"Monroe is similar to our team in 1984, everybody will be chasing them," said the CC coach, whose team was fourth overall a year ago. "We can go in relaxed since we're not the favorite."

REDFORD UNION'S girls finished second behind Dearborn Edsel Ford in the Region V meet to qualify for the Class A championships.

Edsel Ford won the title with 32 points with RU (74) and Farmington Hills Mercy (78) second and third.

Leading RU's state contingent is sophomore Kelly Murray, who finished fourth in 20:27. She will be joined by freshman Tracey James, fifth, 20:34; sophomore Michelle Daraban, 11th, 21:09; sophomore Melissa Still, 28th, 22:45; and sophomore Deborah McBrien, 37th, 23:31.

Mercy's top two finishers were Brigitte Dery (21:30) and Noelle Gates (21:32). They finished 14th and 15th overall.

LIVONIA FRANKLIN pulled a big surprise in the Region III boys meet Saturday at Willow Metro Park near Gibraltar.

The Patriots will be making their first state meet appearance in 21 years thanks to third place finish.

Top-ranked Monroe, led by first place finisher Tim Pitcher, swept the first four places to capture the crown with 16 points. Wyandotte Roosevelt was second with 135. Other Observerland teams in the top 10 included Wayne Memorial, sixth, 182; Westland John Glenn, seventh, 202; and Garden City, eighth, 209.

Mark Donehue paced Franklin in 22nd place with a time of 17:36. Right behind was teammate Will Dawson, 23rd, 17:41; Jeff Horne, 24th, 17:51; John Shea, 28th, 17:54; and Eric Zitzewitz, 48th, 18:23.

"We were seventh in our league (Western Lakes Activities Association) and I know the first six teams (in the WLAA) didn't qualify, but this is new and exciting for our kids," said Franklin coach Bob Holmes. "It wasn't the toughest regional, but there were 19 teams and our kids did it."

Qualifying individually was Chris Woolley and Dave Richards, both of Wayne. They placed fifth and seventh, respectively.

Glenn also qualified a pair in junior Matt Maybouser (17:06) and senior Jim Zurawski (17:25). They finished 14th and 18th.

WESTLAND GLENN'S Yvonne Waddell, a junior, finished seventh overall in 20:43 in the girls Region III meet to qualify for the state.

Monroe won the girls team crown with 83 points followed by Woodhaven and Trenton at 94 and 116, respectively.

Franklin tied Gibraltar Carison for fifth with 168. Glenn was 10th (237) and Garden City 11th (284). Wayne did not finish.

At the Class A Region IV boys meet Saturday at Howell, Milford (58), Ann Arbor Pioneer (59) and Milford Lakeland (97) all qualified for the state meet.

Observerland teams shut out included Farmington, fourth, 136; Plymouth Canton, fifth, 162; Livonia Stevenson, seventh, 211; Plymouth Salem, 10th, 281; North Farmington, 16th, 420; and Livonia Churchill, 18th, 452.

Walled Lake Western's Brian Grosso took individual honors in 15:34.

Farmington's Ben Goba and Brad Moore also qualified, taking sixth and seventh, respectively in 16:50 and 16:51. Canton's Brian Beach qualified, too, with an 18th in 17:04.

Others qualify for individual races

While their teams didn't qualify for the state meets, a number of area cross country runners will compete as individuals Saturday.

Farmington schools had four athletes place among the top 10 in the boys and girls Class A races at Howell.

North Farmington's Lisa Rives was third in the girls competition, and Jennifer Kiel of Farmington was fourth.

In a near repeat of the Western Lakes Activities Association girls meet, Walled Lake Central's Colleen Yuhn won the race in 19:19, Rives ran 19:41 and Kiel was timed at 19:48.

In the WLAA meet a week ago, Yuhn was first, Rives second and Kiel third in 19:25, 19:30 and 19:52, respectively.

FARMINGTON'S DUO of Ben Goba and Brad Moore will represent the Falcons, who were eighth in the state team race last year, in the individual contest.

Goba was sixth and Moore seventh in the regional with 16:50 and 16:51 times. The top 10 runners not affiliated with one of the three qualifying schools advance to the state individual race.

Canton's Brian Beach will join Goba and Moore in that event after placing 18th in the Howell regional with a 17:04 time.

In the Class B regional in Mount Clemens, the Harrison boys were 12th, but Jeff Barringer qualified for the state meet at Willow Metro Park, finishing among the top eight runners.

Plymouth Christian senior Randy Gauthier continued a school tradition when he qualified a second straight year for the Class D meet, scheduled for Saturday in Frankenth.

Gauthier was 33rd in the regional at Royal Oak Kimball with a 19:06 time. He was 21st in the state last year, running an 18:53 race.

"The (regional) time was sort of slow for him, but it was enough to qualify," Christian coach Steve Bauslaugh said. "We're hoping for a better time next week, and the course makes a difference, too."

This is the fourth consecutive year the Eagles have sent a runner to state. Jeff Bennett did so in 1985 and Chris Suider in 1986.

CC's first test: roster-depleted Ford

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

Detroit Henry Ford's Joe Hoskins is one of the state's most successful football coaches, but he's envious of his Redford Catholic Central counterpart, Tom Mach.

Ford (7-2) and CC (9-0) are scheduled to meet in a first-round Class A playoff game at 1:30 p.m. Saturday at Wiser Stadium in Pontiac. Ford might be able to dress only 13 players because 23 players already have been ruled ineligible to play by the Detroit Public School League.

Forty-seven players dot CC's roster and Mach promises all will show up. That figure alone substantiates Hoskins' jealousy.

"I'm excited about playing CC and Coach Mach," Hoskins said. "I wish I was working with such a class organization."

Said Mach: "We're approaching it like any other game. Everyone is going to be there for us. It's hard to say what's going to happen. They can say 13 are coming and end up playing with 38. We're trying to keep away from the extracurricular stuff and play football."

Actually, the CC-Ford matchup might never come about. Ron Woolfork, an all-state candidate at quarterback, is one of the 13 players who remains eligible, but Hoskins is worried about playing CC for safety reasons.

THIRTEEN PLAYERS would mean Hoskins has only two substitutes in case of injury. Last Saturday, the outmanned Trojans lost to Detroit Martin Luther King in the PSL championship game.

"We don't have enough players," Hoskins said. "But my boys want to play and I want to coach. I'm not a quitter. It's adversity I have to go through. I can't walk away from it."

Hoskins hasn't walked away before from adversity. He lost his coaching job last sum-

NEITHER CLORE nor Porter could be reached for comment at Ford.

Of course, there's still a game to play Saturday, and if Ford shows up, CC will be a heavy favorite. The No. 1-ranked Shamrocks won the Catholic League Prep Bowl title Saturday at the Pontiac Silverdome, beating the University of Detroit Jesuit High 28-7.

CC, which lost to Ann Arbor Pioneer in the Class A final last year, has a more balanced offensive attack this fall with the development of quarterback Scott Hauncher. The senior has rushed for 141 yards and also has become a threat to throw the ball, passing for 896 yards.

"He's the best quarterback we've had in quite awhile in terms of statistics," Mach said. "He can hurt you in a number of ways. His passing has given us a different dimension this year."

Tailback Dave Owens leads the Shamrocks' rushing attack with 611 yards in 164 carries. Fullback Lee Krueger has scored 12 touchdowns and rushed for 400 yards on 118 attempts.

KRUEGER HAS BEEN even more effective on defense as a nose guard. The Class A wrestling champion at 198 pounds last winter, Krueger draws the opponents' attention, enabling his teammates to get more involved. Senior linebacker Kevin Jankowski leads CC defenders with 90 tackles.

"Teams double and triple-team Lee because they know he's the No. 1 guy," Mach said. "That frees up our linebackers to make tackles. I think winning the wrestling title last year has given him more confidence."

Railsplitters battle Glenn

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Bryant Satterlee runs for most of the touchdowns and quarterback Eric Stover throws them to guys like Greg Anderson, Casey Killingbeck or Dale Yanick.

But the unsung heroes for the Westland John Glenn football team are the people who do the blocking.

The supporting cast has gone virtually unnoticed this season, but should determine whether the Rockets (8-1) can get past Lincoln Park (8-1) in the first round of the Class A playoffs, which begins at 1:30 p.m. Saturday at Glenn.

One player, center Darrin Wubbenhorst, a 5-foot-10, 202-pound senior, typifies the Glenn work ethic. He's seldom heard or seen, but he's appreciated for his contributions behind the scenes.

"He's one of those kids that if you looked up the word effort in the dictionary, he's the definition," said Glenn coach Chuck Gordon, whose team is making its third playoff appearance in four years. "Darrin is just a hard-working son of a gun. He's the kind of kid everybody on the team loves. He goes out on every play and gets so much out of what he has."

BUT WUBBENHORST can't do the blocking alone.

He has plenty of help from his fellow linemen Tom Kessler (5-8, 185) and Dan Croft (6-0, 177), the cat-quick guards; Joe Williams (6-1, 255) and Mark Johnston (6-2, 211), the big tackles; and Dereck Tharp (6-4, 201) and Garnett Woody (6-2, 190), the tight ends.

And then there's fullback Andre Dixon, a 6-1, 210-pound senior who has been Satterlee's body guard most of the season.

Dixon carries the ball periodically, but he gives the Rockets another piece to the puzzle with his blocking skills.

As for strategy Saturday, Glenn and Lincoln Park will each try to control the ball and mix in the pass on occasion.

The Railsplitters' offensive attack revolves around Mr. Do It All, 6-4, 190-pound senior Harold Skinner.

THE LINCOLN PARK quarterback has completed 58 of 110 passes for 1,024 yards and 12 touchdowns this season. He is also a three-year starter at strong safety and is called by coach Jim Kalbfleisch as a "great hitter."

Lincoln Park had trouble earlier in the season with its kicking game, but Skinner has taken on those duties as well, hitting six of his last eight extra point attempts.

But as Satterlee is to Glenn, junior Jeff Graff and senior Sean Guriel are to Lincoln Park's ground attack.

Guriel has gained 1,064 yards, while Graff has added 961.

"They have a lot of weapons," Gordon said. "Skinner is very good. He has a strong arm. And both (Guriel and Graff) are hard, powerful guys. They can run the ball."

"We've got to stop their running game. If we get them doing what they normally don't like to do, then we have a better chance of winning."

Kalbfleisch, who guided Lincoln Park to three straight 7-2 seasons before this year, believes his team matches up well with the Rockets.

"THEY MAY BE a little bigger because we have no one else bigger than Tony Ruele (6-2, 260), who plays defensive tackle for us," Kalbfleisch said. "We both like the off-tackle play. We both probably run 70 percent of the time and pass the other 30 percent."

While Ruele poses problems up front defensively, Gordon is concerned about the Railsplitters' "active linebackers and good defensive backs."

Talk about role reversal.

Farmington Harrison's football team is cast as little David one week, and the next it becomes Goliath.

The Hawks, though there were more doubters than believers, billed themselves as giant-killers during the regular season. Harrison got plenty of mileage from the fact it is the smallest school in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

But the shoe is on the other foot now that the Class B playoffs are set to start Saturday. The Hawks, 9-0, entertain Clawson, 7-2, at 1:30 p.m. at Harrison in a first-round regional game.

Harrison only enhanced its reputation as a legitimate power when it destroyed Westland John Glenn, a Class A playoff qualifier, 45-7 in the WLA championship game two weeks ago. The Hawks, with their tradition and No. 1 rating, are seen as the big guys in post-season play.

"I DON'T THINK it worked then either," said Harrison coach John Herrington of his team's heretofore claim to underdog status. "People do know we have the players here. We don't have great size, but we do have good skill players."

While quarterback Mill Coleman and receivers Chad Burgess and Bryan Wauldron have gotten much of the accolades, Harrison has a good many others such as Jeff Skinner, Dale Katz, Scott Nichols and Rob MacDonald to name a few who have made big contributions.

"The West Bloomfield coach said we have 3-4 real good players, but the rest are good high school football players that play well together," Herrington said. "And that's what we like to look at. We have some 170- to 180-pound kids who can really play."

Clawson, champion of the Macomb-Oakland League, has the unenviable task of taking on the division's top-rated team in its first playoff appearance.

"You probably know what I think of that," Trojans coach Dick Moore said. "We might as well get it over with while we've got everybody healthy."

"Being in the same region, if we won this week, we'd have to play them next week."

THE HAWKS, WHO begin their quest for a third state title and fifth Silverdome appearance, rate as a heavy favorite over Clawson, which lost its first and last games to Madison Heights teams Bishop Foley and Lamphere.

While some teams have difficulty being emotionally ready every week, Herrington has never had to worry about his 1988 ballclub's preparedness. A poor performance against Clawson is unlikely.

"This team is unique," he said. "They play as hard as they can every game, so it doesn't matter who we play."

"I worried about it at the beginning of the season, but I really don't anymore."

The Trojans, on the other hand, are the underdog in terms of school size, at least. Clawson has 650 students as opposed to the 900-plus at Harrison.

"I think we're the smallest 'B' school in the county," Moore said. "That's a feather in our cap, to make the playoffs in an A-B league."

IF THERE IS common ground between the teams, it's the fact both depend heavily on their skill players.

Senior Dave Schmalz quarterbacked the Trojans, and he throws to split end Don Peddle, the leading receiver with 17 catches for 364 yards and three TDs, and flanker Matt Highland (10-182-1). Peddle has caught a school-record 38 passes in his two-year varsity career.

"(Schmalz) worked hard in the offseason to develop his skills as a quarterback," Moore said. "He's a sleeper for us, because everybody looks to some of these other guys."

Clawson, however, is probably a running team first and foremost. Joe Mitchell (713 yards, seven TDs) and Rich Carrier (450 yards, six TDs) share the tailback position, and the Trojans use fullback Steve Haney a lot, also.

If passing becomes the deciding factor, Harrison has the advantage with quarterback Mill Coleman and the impressive stats he has compiled. The 5-foot-9 junior completed 71 of 118 passes for 1,406 yards and 20 touchdowns during the regular season. He threw only three interceptions.

Bryan Wauldron caught 33 of those aeriels for 782 yards and 10 TDs, and Chad Burgess was on the receiving end of 19, which netted 364 yards and five TDs.

"IF WE GET a good day, we'd like to throw the ball," said Herrington, adding he's sure Clawson is preparing for that. "I don't know how much they've seen of us, but I know they've heard of Mill and will be working on pass defense."

"We feel the running game has really come on the last few weeks, and we think we can have a balanced offense," he added.

Clawson has a veteran secondary, but the Trojans haven't faced a quarterback as good as Coleman, said Moore, adding nobody else has either.

"Harrison does so many things well," he said. "I think it's as important to stop their running game. We'll try to do that first and see what happens in the passing game."

'I don't know how much they've seen of us, but I know they've heard of Mill and will be working on pass defense.'

Wayne edges past Garden City

By Lynn Gowen
Staff Writer

Half-hour after Wayne Memorial edged Garden City, 54-52, Zebra coach Gary Schwan interrupted an interview to shout something toward Garden City coach Marshall Henry.

"I don't want to play you anymore," Schwan yelled in Henry's direction.

Schwan was joking — or was he? Last year, Garden City defeated Wayne in three overtimes, but on Tuesday the Zebras nearly let a 15-point lead evaporate late in the game before escaping with the win over the underdog Cougars, who fell to 1-1 overall.

Every time these teams meet, Schwan's nerves are tested.

The Zebras improved to 15-2 overall, and the non-conference win was the first for Wayne over Garden City since 1983. The Wayne coach was relieved afterward, but the bad news is the two teams could meet again later this month when Wayne hosts the district tourney.

Doris Bathwell, but Garden City hustled its way back into contention. Wayne's sloppy play by also contributed to the comeback.

Three times down the stretch Wayne missed front-ends of a one-and-one.

Lynn Gowen sparked Garden City's comeback with a three-point shot that cut Wayne's lead to eight, 54-46, with less than two minutes left.

Garden City then scored six straight points, the last two coming by Kim Reith, who stole a pass and made a layup to make the score 54-52 with 19 seconds left.

WAYNE CALLED time out, and Antoinette Hixon finally iced the game for the Zebras, converting two free throws with 26 seconds left.

"We earned a little respect tonight," Henry said. "Our kids played with a lot of heart. If Wayne Memorial was an 0-30 team I would have been sick the way we played, but they're a good team."

Falkowski is Garden City's most physical player and she was a major reason that three Wayne players finished the game with four fouls each and that Hixon eventually fouled out.

Falkowski battled for 10 points by halftime and scored six more in the third quarter to keep the Cougars within reach, 43-34.

"I think of girls basketball being the equivalent to football," Henry said. "I think Kim could probably play football. She's a blue-collar player and was knocked down two or three times in the lane."

"I hope she gets some post-season recognition. She's the best post-up player I've coached, and she's the shortest of them all. Kim is 5-feet-10 in her tennis shoes. She can play facing the basket or with her back to the basket."

BATHWELL, who had been starting of late, came off the bench to lead Wayne in scoring with 20 points, 14 in the first half. She also grabbed 24 rebounds.

Maya Lewis contributed 14 points and was the Zebras biggest threat from outside. Carlatta Dancy also reached double figures, adding 10 points.

Reith tallied 19 points for Garden City before fouling out.

Schwan wasn't pleased with the officiating and showed it midway through the third quarter when an official tagged him with a technical foul. Garden City was in the bonus much of the second half and took seven one-and-ones before Wayne reached a bonus situation.

Flint Powers defeats Salem

Nikki Beaudru scored a school-record 36 points as state-ranked Flint Powers ended Plymouth Salem's 12-game girls basketball winning streak Tuesday night, pasting the Rocks 59-49 at Powers.

Salem, 14-3 overall, never recovered from a 23-15 halftime deficit. Beaudru, a senior center, made 10-of-11 free throws for Powers, 16-1 overall. She also grabbed 16 rebounds.

As a team, Powers converted 14-of-18 free throws, while Salem managed to make just six-of-15.

Jill Estey led Salem with 14 points and Teri King contributed nine. The Rocks scored the first two points of the second half to close to within five, 23-17, but that was as close as they got. Powers went on a tear, outpointing Salem 25-13 in the quarter.

"If we had to play them a second time, we could make some adjustments," Salem coach Fred Thomann said. "Particularly against Beaudru. But we can't even think about those things now. We've got to worry about our next game (tonight at home against Walled Lake Western)."

"THIS IS ALWAYS a great game," Schwan said. "A win's a win, and most people will say, 'Hey, Schwan, enjoy it.' But it's usually hard for me to talk after a game."

"Give Garden City credit. They played spunky, and we didn't do a good job taking care of the ball at the end."

The win offset a courageous effort by Garden City center Kim Falkowski, who finished with 21 points despite injuring her back just before halftime.

Livonia artists Audrey Harkins (left) and Dawn Johnson took top honors in the fall show of the Visual Arts Association of Livonia now under way in the Livonia City Hall. A public reception 2-4 p.m. Sunday will honor all the artists.

Lively show wins praise for artists

By Marie McGee
staff writer

DREAMS CAME true this week for Livonia artist Audrey Harkins in more ways than one.

Her painting was selected for best of show honors in the annual fall exhibit of the Visual Arts Association now in progress in the lobby of Livonia City Hall.

Harkins and 26 VAAL artists will be honored at an opening reception 2-4 p.m. Sunday. The public may attend.

Harkins, a Livonia resident, titled her watercolor "Dreams Come True" basing it on photos she took while on a trip to Hawaii.

"I worked on this painting for a long time. There were several times when it had to be set aside, so overall, it took about two years to complete. No matter how long it was, every time I started to work on it again, the song, 'Blue Hawaii' would run through my mind, always starting with the phrase, 'Dreams come true.'"

HARKINS SAID she will probably do another painting based on photos she took on her Hawaii trip.

"I tend to connect my paintings with songs, I don't know why. I've always enjoyed painting fabric, and this piece was so lovely, I wanted to show the color, pattern and softness of it. The rest of the painting composed itself — I just laid out brochures and photos."

Of Harkins' painting, show judge Mary Aro said: "I liked this combination of still life and landscape. This composition was very good and technical ability and choice of subject matter was unusual and looked like it could have been painted on location. This artist showed technical skill and the feelings about the objects painted reveal the artist's emotions."

Winner of the equally prestigious Grumbacher award — for best use of color — was last year's best-of-show winner and VAAL newcomer, Dawn Johnson.

Again, Johnson used her children as the theme of her watercolor entry. This year's offering was "Tara's Room." A Livonia homemaker, Johnson said she tried to portray her daughter's personality through items in her room, her shoes, etc.

Aro's comments were: "I liked this subject matter, and the technique and softness of the work goes well with it. This is technically very good. Shoes have been painted before but this is an unusual way to present them. It's great to see people paint what's in their homes, the common ordinary things. I particularly like the teddy bear and its angle."

OTHER WINNERS in the show are:

- Dearborn Heights artist Irene Kallas, a first place in oils for "Brown Chair";

- Southfield artist Mary Koss, a first in watercolors for "Belgonia 1 Silverbowl";

- Farmington artist Carol Wharton, a first in the combined category for a pastel, "Top of the Dune."

Second- and third-place winners were:

- Oil — second place, Edna Earp, "Tables Await"; third place, Helena Lewicki, "Greemead Park."

- Watercolor — second place, Mary Ehler, "Blue Pitcher of Flowers"; third place, Shirley Ceasar, "Hats Galore."

- Combined category — second place, Norbert Davert for a photograph, "Stools — Dearborn" and third place, Marge Masek, for a pastel, "Footprints in the Snow."

Aro of Huntington Woods holds art bachelor's and master's degrees from Wayne State University and studied at the Art Foundation in LaNapoule, France. She is also an instructor at the Birmingham-Bloomfield Art Association and Paint Creek Center for the Arts in Rochester.

In July Aro's work in watercolors was featured in American Artist magazine.

Her overall comments on the shows were: "I looked for works that I feel the artists have taken risks with and gone beyond the ordinary. You can tell these artists have had instruction in the basics, and their work shows spontaneity and craftsmanship. This is a beautiful show."

The VAAL exhibit will run through Friday, Nov. 18, and is open to the public during normal City Hall hours of business: 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. Arrangements for the show are coordinated by the Livonia Arts Commission.

DREAM assignment

JERRY ZOLYNSKY/staff photographer

Things are back to normal in the Sherwood Studios of Mark Morganroth, but earlier this year the pace was what you could call a wee bit hectic when the Southfield designer took on a quarter-of-a-million-dollar renovation of a home in Arizona.

By Marie McGee
staff writer

WHEN THE phone call came last May, Mark Morganroth's first inclination was to say no.

"It came at my busiest time," the Southfield interior designer recalled.

But then he had second thoughts.

The offer was almost too good to be true.

It came from a one-time client who wanted Morganroth to completely redo a large portion of his house from top to bottom, including furniture and accessories — the whole shot.

"And don't worry about costs, he told me," Morganroth recalled. "How often do you get a commission like that? It was like a dream come true."

BUT WAIT — there's more to the story with some nightmarish overtones.

The offer came from former Bloomfield Hills resident Bobbie Singer, who now lives outside of Scottsdale, Ariz., and owns a successful video production company, Twin Star Productions Inc.

(Readers may recall that Singer was featured in an O&E Street Seen section story in July on his success as a blackjack player — so successful that he amassed a fortune, which allowed him to retire at age 38. Singer has been asked by casino owners not to play blackjack at their establishments. So he's done the next best thing — he teaches other people how to play via video tapes and seminars.)

"Arizona is where the house was that he wanted me to redo," said Morganroth. And while "money was no object," time was an important factor.

"I had to have the whole thing done by the first of September — in time for the Singers' son's wedding.

Needless to say the project presented a challenge that Morganroth had never faced in all his years in the design business that he literally learned at his father's knee.

HE ACCEPTED the job in June after he flew out to the Singer home and took stock of the 20-year-old three-bedroom ranch that is in an area known as Paradise Valley.

"At first, that name threw me. I wondered what I was getting into," he said with a smile.

The house was colonial in style and furnished in early American.

Morganroth, who owns Sherwood Studios on Telegraph Road, drew up plans, which called for completely changing the look to contemporary and concentrating on "bringing the outside in" through the use of colors and wide expanse of windows.

It was a natural thing to do, Morganroth said, because the Camelback Mountains "are practically in their backyard."

The Singers approved all the changes and cost estimates without exception, Morganroth said. What remained to be done was to get everything done — including getting all the furniture from Detroit to Scottsdale on time.

THE RENOVATION, which cost in excess of

$250,000, consisted of completely redoing everything but two guest bedrooms — moving walls, installing recessed lighting and updating the kitchen and several bathrooms.

Sherwood Studios completely supervised and coordinated all of the labor, including electrical, plumbing, carpenters and painters.

All the furniture was delivered from Detroit to Arizona via trucks Morganroth rented. He personally installed all the custom pieces that were part of the renovation.

"It took us about 50 hours of driving time to make the deliveries," Morganroth said. "And amazingly everything arrived without a nick or a scratch — that doesn't happen when you're delivering locally. But I want to tell you every time we hit a bump, we worried."

Once the deliveries were made, Sherwood and his crew worked 26 hours non-stop to meet the Sept. 1 deadline, "but we made it."

"WE MADE BOBBY and Judy move out while we worked. They left on Friday and came back on Sunday, and we were just sweeping up."

The Singers were so satisfied with Morganroth's work that Bobbie Singer ran a full-page ad in a local newspaper saying just how pleased they were.

The ad was a trifle embarrassing, Morganroth admitted, "because some of my friends thought I had put it in."

But this wasn't the first time the Singers have been pleased with Morganroth's work. He did their former home in the Wabash section of Bloomfield Hills about 18 years ago and was pleased.

"He told me then that if he ever hit the big time, he would have me do his house," said Morganroth. "I guess he meant it."

A Jokey look at our elections

GERALD GARDNER, author of "The Mocking of the President" (Wayne State University Press, hardcover, $17.95) was in town last week to talk about that necessary ingredient in any presidential campaign — humor.

Gardner knows whereof he speaks. In his lifetime, the television producer/writer ("The Monkees," "The Smothers Brothers," "That Was the Week That Was") has also written 25 books, including "All The President's Wits," "The Quotable Mr. Kennedy," "Robert Kennedy in New York," and the perennial favorite, "Who's in Charge Here?" the photo-caption book Bantam brings out during the year preceding the presidential election.

His latest book, subtitled, "A History of Campaign Humor from Ike to Ronnie," covers the funny stuff originated by comedians, humorists, journalists, cartoonists and sometimes the candidates themselves — though with the advent of White House gag writers (yes, all too true), the prospect of a president creating his own one-liners becomes more and more rare.

STILL, GARDNER believes that, "Thanks to the humorists who brighten our election campaigns . . . we can maintain our sanity, even when those who seek our votes seem most crazed with the quest for power. We can keep our senses of humor when the candidates' frailties, follies, and frauds seem most intolerable."

Humor is a most essential element in a democracy, Gardner says. "The one ingredient that totalitarian societies seem to have in common is a lack of humor. In a dictatorship the practice of satire is a jeopardous pastime indeed."

John Kennedy had an ironic outlook on life and could make the connection that creates wit ("Mothers still want their sons to become president, but they don't want them to become politicians in the process."). Kennedy was the last original wit in the White House, Gardner says, though Ronald Reagan's wit seems original because his timing is on target.

Jimmy Carter's humor could be sardonic (to an unusually enthusiastic crowd: "It's a pleasure to see people waving at me with all five fingers"; Gerald Ford's humor could be self-deprecating: "Arnold Palmer has asked me not to wear his slacks, except under an assumed name"; while Richard Nixon's sense of humor was, according to Gardner, non-existent and often hilariously unintentional. At DeGaulle's funeral: "This is a great day for France!" Astoride the Great Wall of China: "This is a great wall."

THE FRIENDS OF the Baldwin Public Library hold their annual book sale this weekend. Saturday hours are 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.; Sunday from 11 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Proceeds from the sale go toward more books, equipment and library programs.

Congratulations to the West Bloomfield Township Library, celebrating its 50th year. And how are they doing it? With "Murder and Mayhem in Michigan." Mystery writer Loren Estleman ("Downriver") began the speaking series Wednesday. (Sorry we didn't get the info sooner). William Keizle ("The Rosary Murders") will be at the Main Library (4600 Walnut Lake Road) Wednesday, Nov. 9, at 8 p.m. Elmore Leonard ("Freaky Deaky") will be at the Westacres Branch (7321 Commerce Road) Thursday, Nov. 17 at 8 p.m. The programs are free, but advance registration is advised. Call 682-2120 (main) or 363-4022 (Westacres).

On Friday, Nov. 11, at 8 p.m., poets Margo LaFattuta, Lawrence Pike, Gay Rubin, M.L. Liebler, Faruq Z. Bey and others will read at a benefit for H.E.A.R.D. (Holistic Education Alternatives Research and Development), a non-profit alternative creative teaching organization. The Program Center is at 29 West Lawrence, Pontiac. Call 334-6716 or 577-7713. Donation is $3 and an open reading follows.

Rita Mae Brown living life on her own terms

By LaVerne Griffin
special writer

review

"I'm one of the lucky ones . . . I think from the womb I knew I would be a writer. The only other profession I considered, when I was a kid, was being president. Now that I'm older, I know I have the better job," quipped author Rita Mae Brown, when she stopped in this area on her one-month book tour.

She appeared at Border's Bookstore in Novi where she autographed copies of her new book, "Bingo."

Commenting on the rigors of a book tour, Brown said, "It's part of the business. I don't think anyone with an IQ above a golf score would like to do it. All you seem to do is pack, unpack, rush, and rush some more. Believe me, it's not fun."

Brown's new book tells the story of the personas people like to create for public view. The reality of life rips away the false face and exposes the characters for what they really are. They are left with either happiness or sadness and under pressure to make adjustments.

She shows what people do to one another. It's comical, but underneath, it's very painful. The book makes the point that prejudice is usually based on a lack of information, but sometimes a person can be well informed and still be prejudiced. The people in her book are bound together by their misconceptions.

Brown feels that as a writer, she should not try to direct her readers. She writes about things that concern her, such as how people treat one another.

"Some writers try to give a message to the reader," Brown said. "A message sounds too much like propaganda to me. I write because I have fun doing it. There's a magic that happens when you sit down and write, at least it is for me."

"I think I'm going to write one book — but it always comes out another way. I just hope that when people read my books, they'll be able to see someone they know or maybe themselves. In other words, I hope what I've written is significant."

She has authored many best sellers including "Rubyfruit Jungle," and "One of Six," which is the antecedent of her new book, "Bingo."

She has had poetry published entitled "The Hand That Cradles the Rock," and shared in Writers Guild of America award for the 1983 television special, "I Love Liberty." She says that her secret vice is books about military history.

"I have another book in the works," Brown said, "I've been researching it for four years. It's about James and Dolly Madison. It focuses on one year in their lives, 1814, when we almost lost America. These two people interested me a lot because they had a good marriage. No one tells a happy heterosexual love story and these two people, at the pinnacle of power, really had one."

Brown has a unique, upbeat outlook on life and living. She enthusiastically said, "Every decade I plan to try something new or I won't be happy with myself. I love getting older, only wimps are afraid to get old. Your years are your real wealth, not material things. I'm so excited about living that some times I have difficulty getting to sleep. I can't wait for the next day to start because there are so many things I want to do."

Brown said she loves country living; that's why she bought a 330-acre farm in Charlottesville, Va. She writes early in the morning and then enjoys working on her farm.

"I often reflect on Molly's words (the main character in "Rubyfruit Jungle") when she said, 'I wish the world would let me be myself.' It's been 15 years since I wrote those words, and today I would tell her the world won't let you be you, but you can still win. I would tell her to fight when you can, run when you must; experience life to the fullest and give back what you can. I'm doing that. I'm living life on my own terms."

Contemporary art is lecture theme

As part of its ongoing campaign that uses "Let There Be Art" as its slogan, the Livonia Arts Commission will present a lecture on art appreciation by Hope Palmer in the Civic Center Library auditorium, 32777 Five Mile Road, Livonia, on Wednesday, Nov. 16.

The lecture, which is open to the public, begins at 7:30 p.m. There is no admission charge.

Palmer has her bachelor of fine arts and her master's as well as a doctorate in art history from the University of Michigan. She has been a faculty member at the Birmingham-Bloomfield Art Association since 1981 and is a professor of art and art history at Henry Ford Community College. She lectures and participates in special projects at the Detroit Institute of Arts and is an adjunct lecturer on art history statewide.

THE PRESENTATION, part of a miniseries being sponsored by the arts commission, will be punctuated by humor and human interest. It will focus on the many questions potential buyers, supporters and just plain "lookers" have when they approach artwork of today.

"Artwork that is terribly engaging or engagingly terrible will stun and edify you; but at least when you leave the lecture, a handle on the art scene will be in your grasp," Palmer said.

BUT THE MOCKING OF the President" dwells mainly on how the media draws on the humor of the presidential campaigns and presidencies. Gardner moves from the "soft" monologues of Johnny Carson and Bob Hope to the harsher cartoons and strips of Garry Trudeau, Jules Feiffer, Pat Olliphant, Jeff MacNelly and others.

He gives wickedly funny examples of how television serves to routinely skewer and deflate the pomposity of the presidency. Our memories are refreshed with replays of skits from "That Was The Week That Was" and "Saturday Night Live." In addition, Gardner lets us on how the presidential "victims" themselves received them. (Gerald Ford cringed at Chevy Chase's imitative pratfalls on SNL — while Ford's own children hooted with laughter.)

Gardner spent this summer hot on the trails of Michael Dukakis and George Bush, collecting campaign humor for inclusion in yet another book. He'd better watch it — this could become a habit.

"The Mocking of the President" is the first in Wayne State Press' "Hu-

Nagel, Plymouth Symphony shine

By Mary Jane Doerr
Special writer

A critic once described Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor as "three-quarters of an hour of screaming dissonance and cacophonous chords with no effective finesse in the passage."

One can only imagine what that critic would have said about Shostakovich's Symphony No. 1 in F minor composed in 1924.

Both melodic numbers were on the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra's program Saturday evening at Plymouth-Salem High School Auditorium. They were anything but dissonant.

The theme of the evening was youth. Shostakovich composed the First Symphony when he was only 19 before Stalin's vicious attack had left him a social outcast with fears of annihilation. It is a light, gay, and highly attractive. Brahms' piano concerto was the composer's first attempt at a symphony. Both composers were pianists first and left distinguishable marks on their works.

UNIVERSITY OF Michigan faculty pianist Louis Nagel, who looks younger than his biography would indicate, performed the endearing Brahms concerto. He is a pianist who plays cleanly, each note is heard and appreciated.

Nagel's expressive ideas were the most outreaching during the second movement. The gentle theme was quietly developed without other distractions. The orchestra quickly picked up on the mood and carried out his intentions.

The concerto is one that has to be interpreted, not just performed otherwise the seemingly disconnected ideas and phrases lose their vibrancy. Nagel gave the first and third movement momentum but during the Robert Schumann description of the middle movement, his concert took on greater meaning.

review

The Plymouth Orchestra's accompaniment was music, not just an exercise in note playing. Here the group seemed to rise above the mechanics to a higher level of expression.

THE SHOSTAKOVICH Symphony No. 1 has always been a popular piece since it was first performed outside the Soviet Union in 1927. Its playful and young exuberant qualities offer the orchestra's principals a number of solos ranging from reg-time to march tunes.

Eve Garvin

For me autumn is the most beautiful season of the year. The sight of leaves changing from green to red and brown and other hues is a splendid thing. It anticipates the coming of the holiday season. With Thanksgiving just weeks away, we begin to think about lists for holiday gift giving.

I've just returned from New York where I've made my annual pilgrimage to Howard Kaplan's French country store. The store publishes a catalogue in full color and descriptive in sufficient detail to enable you to make a selection.

Here are just a few of the practical and fun things I saw: the best wood wax in the world. This is a wax paste formula for restoring the beauty and patina of antique wood pieces. I applied this wax with a paintbrush to an old pine chest. Following directions, I allowed the wax to dry. Then I buffed with a soft cloth and "voila" — beautiful wood.

The wax comes in two tints: pine for pine and other light/bleached wood, and fruitwood for cherry, walnut and other dark finishes. It's a practical gift and one for which you will be remembered.

Passenterie from France — ornamental trimmings made of cord, braid, ribbons, tassels and bows were displayed on curtains and upholstery in the bed chambers of Louis XIV and Louis XV and popularized throughout France. These cords and tassels make wonderful tie-backs for curtains and draperies. The key tassel is a charming accent to an armchair or bureau drawer. Tie the tassel around the neck of a lamp for a special effect.

The Bistro clock is a welcome gift for the kitchen or den. The 16-inch ceramic chocolate clock has a sweep second hand and works on flashlight batteries. The clock is like the advertisement clocks that adorn the walls of every sidewalk cafe in Paris.

A brilliant gold tray with undulating 18th Century shape is an elegant accent when used as a perfume tray in the powder room or an opulent way of serving drinks or hors d'oeuvres when entertaining.

Brass and glass butcher shelves suspended from the ceiling by shiny brass rods were a familiar sight in 19th Century butcher shops and here became a grand showcase for objects d'art or trailing plants.

You can write for the catalogue at Howard Kaplan's French country store, 35 E. 10th St., New York, N.Y.

briefly speaking

LIVONIA SYMPHONY

A "Musical Collage" will be presented at 3 p.m. Sunday by the Livonia Symphony Orchestra in Schmidt Auditorium, Clarenceville High School, Middlebelt between Seven and Eight and Mile roads, Livonia.

Featured soloist will be concert pianist Fedora Horowitz who will present Beethoven's Concerto No. 3. General admission is $8.50 with student and senior citizen tickets at $5. Tickets will be available at the door.

DEARBORN SYMPHONY

The Dearborn Symphony's second concert of the season at 8 p.m. Friday, Nov. 18, will feature international-award-winning Polish emigre pianist Leszek Bartkiewicz in Franz Liszt's bravura First Piano Concerto.

"Coffee, Team and Symphony," a concert preview, will present Bartkiewicz in a more relaxed and informal setting at 9:30 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 17. The event is hosted by the Dearborn Orchestral Society in the Henry Ford Centennial Library and offered to the public free of charge.

Tickets prices for the Friday concert are $10 for adults and $4 for students. The concert will be held in Crestwood High School, 1501 Beech Daly Road, Dearborn Heights.

ANN ARBOR SYMPHONY

The Ann Arbor Symphony Orchestra continues its 60th anniversary season with a concert in the Michigan Theater, Ann Arbor, at 4:30 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 20. The concert will feature Tian Ying, a young Chinese pianist who is the recipient of impressive international awards.

He will perform with the orchestra under the direction of music director Carl St. Clair in Chopin's Piano Concerto No. 2 in F. Minor. Also on the program is Moussorgsky's "Pictures at an Exhibition" and Suzanne Shepherd's "The Divine Call."

Tickets are available at the Michigan Theater box office, 668-8397. Tickets are priced at $12 and $8, with $3 discounts for students and senior citizens, $4 discount for children under 12. For more information, call 994-4801.

ART FACULTY SHOW

Work by Henry Ford Community College art faculty will be on exhibit in Sison Gallery in the MacKenzie Fine Arts Building on the college campus through Nov. 23. Featured will be drawing, painting, photography, ceramics, sculpture and weaving. Gallery hours are 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily with evening hours of 6 to 8 p.m. on Tuesday and Wednesday.

SINGERS NEEDED

Sopranos, tenors, altos, basses are needed to sing in the Christian Community Chorus as it rehearses Handel's "Messiah" for presentation during the forthcoming holiday season. Rehearsals are held from 3-5 p.m. at Our Lady of Sorrows Church, 23615 Power Road, Farmington.

All rehearsals will be held at the same time and location each Sunday through November. For more information, call Timothy Bartlett, director, at 422-0149 or 522-5482.

Who says lake living's just fun in the summer?

Living on Ford Lake's great 365 days a year. In summer, there are all the watersports, tennis and sun-worshipping pleasures. In fall, the color change is spectacular when you take a walk or jog. In winter, the cross-country skiing, snowmobiling, snowman-building, ice-skating and ice-boating are tops. (So are the indoor pleasures of watching the snow fall through your balcony window.) It's active, Year-round on the outside. Quiet and peaceful on the inside. See all that the designer-decorated 1 and 2 bedroom contemporary apartments can offer you. Now.

TELL JACK FROST TO TAKE A HIKE.
"Isn't it something? No two snowflakes are ever the same!" "Oh, look! Everything seems to be covered in an endless blanket of snow." "See the pretty pictures Jack Frost has painted on the windowpane!" That's all well and good, but winter loses some romance when you're trying to scrape a half-inch of frozen slush off your windshield at 7:42 a.m.
At Chimney Hill, your private, attached garage will keep your windshield free of frost and your morning free of misery. You'll step from your warm, cozy apartment into your garage and be on your way. And when you get home, your fireplace will greet you with some more wintertime T.L.C. At Chimney Hill, Old Man Winter doesn't have a lease.

Landau's look witty and definitely upbeat

ADRIENNE Landau's New York workrooms are more like a design laboratory than just a place where furs are cut and sewn together.

There are bits of stenciled calf here; strips of boldly dyed and painted fur there; and bolts of leather pressed into what appears to be crocodile; Klimt-inspired suede printed with gold, and faux reptile; and mounds of luxurious pelts piled on to various work tables.

"I really like to experiment with textures and patterns," said Landau, who made personal appearances recently at several area Jacobson stores. Her unique approach to fur has won her numerous awards, much recognition, and a loyal following in the 10 years she has been in business.

"I never wanted to be a traditional furrier. When I started, I was very inspired by the Fendris, their instructed way of working with fur." If they threw open the doors, Landau walked right through those doors and look off on her own creative path, each season making the way more distinctively her own.

HER JACKETS, COATS, ponchos, vests and accessories are playful, witty, and upbeat (how else can you describe a full-length coat of golden sable tails, which, by the way, retails under $10,000?) and increasingly elegant, sophisticated, and adaptable to both casual and formal clothing.

"I know that many people associate the sable tail coats and jackets, the collage or montage pieces, the bold patterns and bright colors with me," said the American born-European-trained designer. "For fall, I feel that there is a renewed sense of elegance about clothes. For me, that means using fuller or flatter furs — such as Swakara, Kolinsky, sable and fox — or a combination of the two, in warmer, more monochromatic colorations. Colors such as rich mahoganies, lush jewel tones, warm metallics and pale tones.

"I am very excited about my shearing collection. I worked in very light weights, sometimes the surfaces are a combination of shiny and matte finishes. I have done the shearing in colors such as black, tobaccos and pewters. I like working these into very simple, modern shapes such as the oversized, elongated blazer, or a big dolman-sleeve ¾ length coat with a big shawl collar — contemporary, easy but definitely luxurious."

Landau believes that the oversized shawl-collared silhouette with draped sleeves is a very important direction this season. Also important are sheared mink jacket with shoulders and sleeves made of whole silver fox, and a simple Kolinsky (a red-toned mink) walking jacket with pelts worked in several different directions.

"I AM EXPERIMENTING with the idea of fur-lined raincoats and jackets; I have done my first pieces for men; I'm trying to develop a process for putting metallic finishes on furs — I like stretching a bit. I want to try a variety of things with fur. The worst thing to say to me is, 'It can't be done.' I'll want to find a way to do it. I don't want limitations set for me, my customer has come to expect something special from me. When she wears one of my coats, she wants to be noticed, she wants to feel very much the individual, the individual who enjoys and has fun wearing fur."

One of Landau's creations, a collage pattern in Mongolian lamb, is featured on the cover of this special section.

shapely excitement

By C. L. Rugenstein
special writer

NOT TOO long ago there was a radio commercial making the rounds, sung by the inimitable Eartha Kitt, for a Birmingham furrier. (Chudik's, to be exact.)

In it, Kitt extolled the virtues of fur over every other luxury gift: Keep your old diamonds and imported cars, but drape her shoulders in mink.

"I prefer furrrrrr," Kitt purred. Most women still do, in all its lush incarnations.

Hal Dittrich, of Dittrich's Furs, and Steve Chudik, of Chudik's Furs, spoke recently about trends and styles in fur, as well as how to choose and care for one once it becomes part of the wardrobe.

Style and personal preference are the first criteria in making a selection.

"GET WHAT YOU like — what looks best and will serve your needs," advised Chudik. It's important to take into consideration whether the coat will be worn for dress, casual, or both, he noted.

Secondly, Chudik said, look for matched skins and the outstanding characteristic of the particular fur.

For mink, it's "an even, overall hair length, so even it almost looks like velvet," he pointed out. It should have dense guard hairs, which give fur its durability, and thick underhairs to hold the guard hairs up.

It should also feel silky, and have a luster.

"It has to shine," Chudik said, with emphasis.

Fox, beaver, Persian lamb and raccoon may battle it out for the No. 2 spot in popularity, but mink still reigns supreme, both furriers agreed.

"It's over 50 percent of our business," said Hal Dittrich, who has salons in Detroit as well as Bloomfield Hills.

Mink, he said, can come in any Fragrance

delightful thoughtfulness

By Joan Boram
special writer

SINCE THE earliest times, mankind has enjoyed sweet fragrances and has used them to celebrate both life and after-life.

More than 3,000 years ago, the Egyptians burned sweet-smelling fragrances to the sun god, Ra, as he made his daily journey across the sky, and perfumes have been found in tombs of Egyptian pharaohs.

The first known perfume bottle, also Egyptian, dates back to 1,000 B.C. From Egypt, the fashion for perfumes spread to Greece, then to Rome. (The word "perfume" comes from the Latin "per" "fumus," "through smoke.")

The Jews, during their captivity, learned the art of fragrance from the Egyptians, and there are many references in the Bible to the use of perfumes: Judith and the Queen of Sheba each used the power of fragrance to ensnare her victim.

The use of perfumes waned during the dark ages (which have been designated "1,000 years without a bath"), but was reintroduced during the 1200s by the crusaders, who brought back not only sensuous harem perfumes, but also the first atomizer.

When Catherine de Medici came from Florence in 1533 to marry Henry II of France, she brought with her the arts of cooking, astrology, and perfumery. Her perfumer, Renato Bianco, set up a little shop near Notre Dame, where he sold both perfumes and arsenic poisons — Off with the old, and on with the new!

THERE IS NO QUESTION that Napoleon divorced Josephine for political reasons. However, he liked light fragrance, and she insisted on using musk oil, which he detested.

Before leaving the royal apartments for the last time, she doused them with the heavy fragrance, assuring that both the emperor and his new bride would be reminded of her for a long, long time.

While some people have more sensitive "noses" than others, an ordinary untrained nose can smell 0.000,000,000,000,071 ounce of skunk odor!

Fragrance falls into four main categories:

- Orientals (heavy, sultry, rich. Characterized by musk and sandalwood ingredients)
- Classic florals. (blends of lily of the valley, rose, jasmine)
- Modern blend. (Aliphatic aldehydes, considered novel, daring, modern. Synthetic chemicals have been used extensively in perfumes since the late 1800s)
- Woody (forest) blend. (Mossy-leafy or resinous. Often have geranium, fern, herbs, to add earthiness)

In modern times, fragrance has been available in three options: perfume, the most concentrated and the most expensive, eau de toilette, and the weakest, cologne. Recently, a fourth category, eau de parfum, stronger than eau de toilette, but less concentrated than perfume, has been introduced.

"WE CARRY THE fragrances that are too expensive for the big chains," says Annemarie Croinn, owner of the eponymous "Annemarie" in Birmingham. The store carries a few very precious perfumes, as well as investment-quality antique atomizers, flacons and other accessories associated with fragrance.

"Floral scents are new this season," says Croinn. "A scent with 20 floral notes; Ebullience perfume is $450 an ounce and is packaged in a signed and numbered unique art glass bottle. At $150, the dusting powder is the most expensive on the market.

"The puff is made of mink and maribou feathers, and the box can be ordered in a number of custom colors, to match the lady's boudoir, as can the box that the perfume comes in. A 12-ounce bottle of Ebullience toilet water, also in a unique art glass bottle, is available for $1,200."

"Zarolia" comes in a copy of a Tiffany bottle — the gold is blown into the glass, so it won't be scratched off with extensive use. The bottle is secured with sterling-silver twine. A light floral/citrus fragrance, the perfume is $450 an ounce. A large copy of the Tiffany bottle, holding about 20 ounces of perfume, is $10,000.

"We sell about one a year," comments Croinn. For that amount of money, the purchaser can expect more than just to smell good.

"The bottles are an investment, says Croinn. Take this 43-ounce of L'Air du Temps. It's in a Lalique bottle signed and numbered, and is priced at $1,900.

This bottle continues to increase in value every year, and there are a limited number of them around."

With this attitude, can it be long before "Passion" and "Opium" are joined by "Equity?"

THE ANTIQUE PIECES at "Annemarie" are stunning. A signed Tiffany bottle, gold with green hearts, is $2,500. "It's the ultimate in chic," says Croinn, "Your own perfume bottle. The only one like it in the world, and the value is continually going up. I had a Lalique bottle in the store for one year. When I got it, the auction value was $3,500. One year later, the auction value was $7,000.

A monumental three-piece Moser set, carved entirely out of malachite and writhing with sinuous nudes, angels and flowers in bas-relief, is $3,800. There are samples of Victorian glass as well, and lavish Belle Epoch Czechoslovakian pieces.

Jacobson's is introducing "Bejan" for women exclusively in this area. A romantic blend of narcissus, ylang-ylang, orange blossom and jasmine, the perfume is $350 an ounce, and comes in a handblown bottle with an open-circle center. Sixteen ounces of eau de parfum in the same style bottle is $750, and a pendant containing 1/8 ounce of perfume is $65.

Mink is still No. 1 choice

the most prized is the black-brown of Blackglama and Black Willow, the Rolls Royces of the mink world, so to speak.

"Black Willow is a ranch in Coalville, Utah," Dittrich explained. "They raise enough skins for 60 or so coats a year, and they're the finest in the world."

PRICES FOR THE other coats may range from $2,900 and up, depending on the number of skins used, but Black Willow prices are "all about the same — $28,000 for a full-length coat."

Chudik's customers like mink too, but he's given the No. 2 spot to fox. A current Chudik ad hails it as the "fur of the year."

"Fox has really come down in price," Chudik said. "Now, a finer, silver fox coat, which used to sell for $10,000 is going for $6,000."

The reason, he notes, is the lower cost of labor for what he called "off-shore" imports from places like Canada.

Styles and treatments are news in furs, too.

The seven-eighth-length is one Dittrich has noted as popular. So are "cuddle" coats — those are the ones that come below hip level and are gathered in snugly at the bottom by a band of fur.

Epaulettes, half-belts with buttons, and tighter cuffs are some embellishments popping up on the coats, too.

But all the care in choosing a coat will be for naught if it isn't cared for properly. Both salons recommend a yearly cleaning with the furrier's method, and cold storage.

The furrier's method involves tumbling the fur in a large, dryer-like drum with a moistened sawdust-type material (it's actually meal with ground chicken and fish bones). It's put through a second wire-mesh drum to shake out the "sawdust," and all the dirt and oil that adhered to it. After that, the fur is blown out with an air hose, glazed with a special mangle (to restore the sheen) and fluffed.

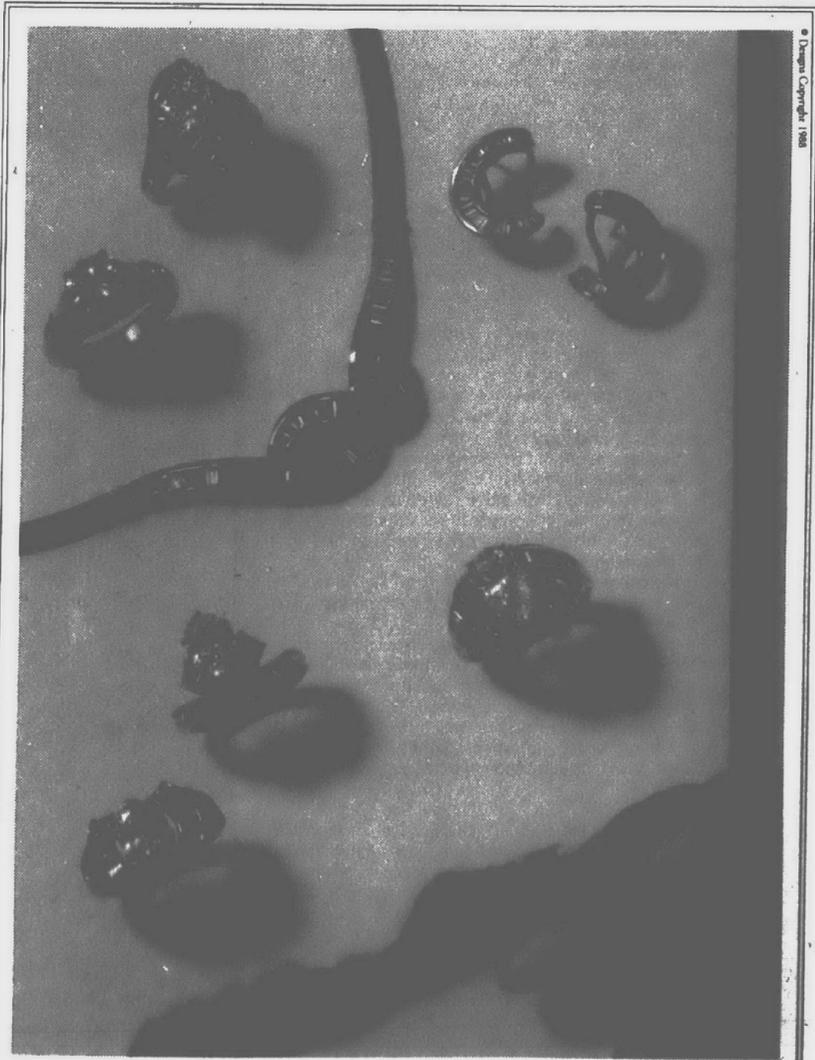

Cold storage is important because it kills insect-type varmints — moths prefer fur, too.

A treasury waiting for discovery

By C. L. Rugenstein
special writer

FOR FINERY of another sort, Arkitektura in Birmingham is a treasury waiting to be discovered.

Arkitektura's main stock in trade is architecturally designed furniture for the corporate and trade market. That accounts for 87 percent of their business, said Arkitektura president Andrew Fisher.

But more and more people are discovering unique items in accessories — lamps, tableware, tea services and lamps — to give as gifts or keep for themselves.

"We experience a lot of people who come in here to shop who say 'Oh my gosh, I'm so glad you're here! I've had to go to New York, or Chicago or Vienna to find the things that you have here!'" Fisher said.

AND WHAT THINGS they are!

Futuristic looking Woka (pronounced "voka") lamps in solid brass, Swid Powell tableware, and reproduction Saarinen sterling silver tea services, are only some of Arkitektura's goodies.

Two Woka lamps in particular could be given as table or desk accessories to some lucky recipient.

One, its umbrella-like brass shade suspended by four struts connecting to a cone-base of brass, sells for $2,962.

Another is like an arc lamp, only desk size. The half-circle dome shade is suspended from the top of the narrow brass arc, which sweeps around to anchor to a circular base. This one is available for $1,554.

The Swid Powell tableware, also designs from the fertile minds of architects, includes the pattern chosen for Detroit's Rattlesnake Club.

Since "architects have a special talent for manipulating form, color and pattern," according to the Swid Powell brochure. They bring a different perspective to other things they design.

The Rattlesnake's pattern, "Tuxedo" (by Charles Gwathmey and Robert Siegel), for example, has clean, non-fussy lines. Four small, evenly spaced black squares in the center of the white plates balance the black line of the inner rim, four larger squares on the quarter hour around the rim, and tiny squares circling the rim's edge.

Michael Graves' "Little Dripper" is a coffee service with a sense of humor.

THE POT IS A white, ceramic globe girded by three wavy black lines. Its spout is a triangle, its handle a half-circle. It comes with a white ceramic cone shaped filter, also with the wavy lines. When the filter is not in use a gold-knobbed white lid graces the top.

Companion sugar and creamer are miniatures of the pot, and all have a ceramic, X-shaped base built-onto their little round bottoms.

Cost for the cheerful service is $135 for the pot and filter, $60 for the sugar and creamer.

The piece de resistance of the tableware, if not the whole showroom, is the Saarinen reproduction metalwork and furniture.

Fisher brought out a sterling silver reproduction of a tea service designed by Eliel Saarinen.

The 14 1/2-inch high globe rested on a slated basket-like grill that surrounds the warming candle below. A tall, thin column of silver rises from the urn's lid like an antenna.

Bracketed by handles that look like small, flat wings, it puts one in mind of the spaceships from the old Flash Gordon movies.

It also comes with a matching sugar and creamer, to rest on an 18-inch silver tray. Price? $28,000.

This particular silver reproduction is the work of an Italian manufacturer, Alessi. The bulk of the Saarinen metal reproductions however, are being done by master metalsmith James Starr, himself a product of Cranbrook's Master of Fine Arts program.

STARR'S REPRODUCTION pieces include two- and four-branch candlesticks by Saarinen's daughter, Pipsen Saarinen Swanson; towering seven- and five-branch candelabras by her husband J. Robert F. Swanson, and a torchiere by Eliel himself.

The prolific Saarinen also designed rugs, reproductions of which Arkitektura will have in the near future (with designs by both Eliel and his wife Loja), as well as furniture from the Saarinen home at Cranbrook.

"The business has been growing at 100 percent for four straight years," Fisher said. "I thought this year it was going to slow down."

Not a chance, as long as he keeps serving up Arkitektura wonders like these.

Cylindrical silver candlesticks by designer Robert A.M. Stern come in a variety of heights to fit any decor.

Carrying the whimsical name of the Little Dripper, this coffee set by designer Michael Graves includes a six-cup coffee pot, filter and lid, sugar bowl and creamer and a spoon.
