3 injured in 2 fires in Old Village area

staff writer

Three people were injured in two apparently unrelated fires that broke out just a few blocks from each other in Plymouth's Old Village late Friday.

The first occurred about 4:10 p.m. at the Heritage Square Apartments at 300 N. Mill near Main.

Resident Guy Zukowski, 25, was burned over half his body in an explosion and fire apparently resulting from a gas leak. Zukowski was taken to the University of Michigan Burn Center, where he was listed in fair condition Monday morning. Witnesses said he was burned on his arms, back, face and head.

Other residents of the one-story, 18-unit building escaped without injury, but several dogs and cats died in the fire, said Paul Sincock, assistant city manager.

FEW DETAILS were available about the second fire, which gutted a "garage-type structure" behind Plymouth Cab Co. at 454 N. Main after the fire began at about 11:15 p.m., Sincock said. Two firelighters were treated for smoke inhalation in that fire. The building was occupied by an older man, who was not injured, Sincock said.

All of Heritage Square's approximately 30 residents were evacuated. Five were given rooms at the Mayflower Hotel Friday night. The other

The funeral of Sue Ann Eberline, a prominent Plymouth Realtor, was just a few hours old. A wake was in progress at a Mill Street condomini-um Friday afternoon, when next door, in the Heritage Square Apartments, an explosion sounded that shook the neighborhood.

For one day of the 1988 presidential campaign, the "L-word" was Livonia.

We need that mainstream mandate," candidate George Bush told cheering area supporters who filled

'We want Bush!" they answered, holding aloft blue and white Bush-Quayle signs while behind the vice president, area Rebublican candidates took up the cheer.

Bush's appearance at 4:55 p.m. -20 minutes earlier than scheduled followed brief addresses by L. Brooks Patterson, Rep. Carl Pursell, weicome Back Kotter Gabe Kaplan.

SOME WAITED nearly an hour in light rain for the gym doors to open.

Once inside, they took seats on risers or chose to stand and face the stage where "Bush '88" was spelled out with hundreds of balloons.

Holding a Bush-Quayle sign, Livonia Buchanan sixth-grader Rodney Peters said he liked Bush because "we'll probably be safer with him."

Tom Sprader of Livonia, a furniture mover, said he liked Bush because he is pro-life and for a strong defense. "He steered out of the wimp image; he's beating Dukakis hands down," Sprader said.

Bush campaign volunteer Rita Michel, 26, a Detroit nurse, observed that the vice president had attracted mostly an under-30 crowd. "The economy's good; they're all in school," she explained.

In his 15-minute address, Bush emphasized his usual campaign themes - no new taxes, a cut in federal spending and a reduction of poverty by creating private sector jobs. He heralded new unemployment figures released Friday, 5.3 percent, "the lowest in 14 years," Bush said, his voice rising in volume.

"I do represent the mainstream family, faith, neighborhood . . ." he added, cheers drowning out his voice on the public address system.

Because some organizers only found out the day before that Bush was coming to Schoolcraft, a flurry of activity preceded the event.

Starting Wednesday, when the visit became official, former Republican state Rep. Jack Kirksey, now-community education director with the Livonia Public Schools, was recruited to suggest area sites where the rally could be scheduled.

The official causes of the fires were undetermined. Personnel from Consumers Power, the Plymouth Pire Department and Michigan State Police were still investigating Monday morning.

Witnesses of the Heritage Square fire said Zukowski had pulled a stove away from the wall to retrieve a fallen sait shaker. Sometime later, he lighted a cigarette, causing the explosion.

HERITAGE SQUARE RESI-DENT Robbie Perrin, who lived in a unit across from Zukowski's, was eating dinner on his couch when the blast occurred. "It blew me a good 10, 12 feet in the air. I thought it was thunder and lightning," said Perrin, 33. "I landed on my face. I got up, and I seen flashes through the curtain. I heard screaming and I saw my neighbor on fire.

"He was diving right through the picture window. The skin on his arms was all peeled back and his hair was gone.

"Me and another guy threw him down on the ground and rolled him to get the flames out. It was like a Channel 20 movie," said Perrin, standing in wet stocking feet without a coat in the cold and drizzle outside his smoking apartment building.

PERRIN SAID he and others reentered the apartment building and made sure everyone was out. Dense smoke and flames shooting 40 feet into the air prevented them from rescuing all the residents' pets, he said.

He said he and saw a badlyhirned man sitting outside the 30unit apartment building while the fire was still raging.

."I busted through a window and climbed through," said Foley, who received treatment at the scene for a deep gash to his arm. "I chased a dog and got him out from under the bed.

"I went back to try to get a cat from another apartment, until a police officer told me to get out."

Robbie Perrin, a 33-year-old Heritage Square resident, also was searching for people and animals.

Perrin said Guy Zukowski, a rescued resident who was badly burned, told him someone was still trapped inside.

was among those watching firefighters at the scene in Old Village.

"My sister lives in those apartments," Shisler said, pointing to a building kitty corner from Heritage Square. "She called me and told me it sounded like the explosion had happened right outside her back door. It was terrible.

"You couldn't see down this road, the smoke was so bad, and flames were coming out of the windows.

"We saw one woman crying. She said she was losing everything she had," Shisler said.

Barbara Moore was standing on Mill Street without a coat in wet stocking feet, her kittens, Ace and Pricsilla, in her arms.

"I live in the center building," she told a reporter, referring to the middle of the E-shaped apartment.

"All of a sudden there was a tremendous explosion. The whole building rocked. Everyone ran out to see what the problem was. Flames were shooting out of the roof."

Moore said the explosion caused the wall of one apartment to collapse into the neighboring apartment, which was occupied by a young girl and her mother. She said both escaped injury.

Community plans benefit for Eberline, a 'great inspiration'

staff writer

The Plymouth community is mourning the loss of Sue Ann Eberline, described by her many friends and associates as "a woman you couldn't help but like."

Eberline, 49, of Plymouth died Oct. 31 at Harper Hospital in Detroit. She was diagnosed with cancer last Thanksgiving.

"Everyone knew Sue Ann. Walking down the streets in Plymouth with her, people would come out of the shops to say hello to her," said Darlene Shemanski, associate broker and sales manager of Schweitzer Real Estate/Better Homes and Gardens in Plymouth.

"Once you met her, you fell in love with her. She was just that kind of person."

Eberline was an associate broker and assistant manager with Schweitzer's Plymouth office. For five consecutive years, she was the firm's top sales person. Eberline's sales totaled more than $44 million over 10 years.

"I THINK she was a great inspiration not only to the people she touched in her business life, but with all she reached," said Paul Schweitzer, company owner and president.

"She had a real knack of determining what people's needs were and fulfilling their needs. Overall she was just an outstanding person, both professionally and personally."

Of Eberline's sales records, Schweitzer said, "We've never had anyone with that long of a record for achievement that high."

achievement that high."
Eberline sold $1.7 million the first seven months on the job, Shemanski

"Now that's becoming more prevalent. But in 1981-1982 when the market was so bad, doing multiple millions of real estate with one year in the business was phenomenal," Shemanski said.

"She was a beautiful lady. People loved her. Sue Ann didn't go around and speak all over the United States, yet Realtors from all over the country called referrals to her directly," she said.

A BENEFIT FOR Eberline's family is planned for 8 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 16, at the Plymouth Cultural Center, 525 Farmer.

Featured will be entertainment by the singing Mercyaires from Mercy High School, a cash bar and hors d'oeuvres. The Plymouth Business and Professional Women, of which Eberline was a member, is raffling a mink jacket, a color TV and a weekend at the St. Clair Inn or Thomas Edison Inn. For ticket information, call 453-6800.

Eberline was the single parent of four children.

"Sue was off work for a year and bills accumulated that are still there," Shemanski said. "On top of the medical bills were living expenses and everything else."

Area Realtors are putting competition aside and are donating their time and money to help with the benefit and a memorial lunch, Shemanski said.

Students passed Proposal B, which would include crime victims' rights in the Constitution, by 774 to 519.

Proposal C, which would authorize bonds for environmental protection programs, passed 947 to 346. And students also approved Proposal D, a plan to authorize bonds for state and local recreation projects. The vote was 763 to 530.

A 1.2-mill tax increase to pay for a community center in Canton was defeated, 675 to 618.

A Wayne County proposal to prohibit gambling failed, 617 to 676 while a 1-mill tax increase for special education in Wayne County passed, 764 to 529.

voting in mock elections nationwide, elected Bush by a landslide.

If the past is any indication, students have once again predicted who our next president will be.

'Since 1964, students have predicted the winner correctly in every election," said Sollett Icia, Good Morning America computer researcher

Neither the winners nor the low voter turnout surprised folks at

"I think a lot of people don't like Michael Dukakis," said John Ormsby, a Canton ninth-grader. "A lot of my friends like Bush. He's done a lot of stuff for our country. And he's been vice president, so he knows how to handle things."

'MOST STUDENTS really didn't care. They didn't think much about it. A lot of people didn't know about it (the mock election)," said Traci Orrys, a Canton senior.

Salem senior Meridith Stream worked the election as a voting di-

"I think that probably, most people voted for Bush because their parents are voting for Bush," she said.

Andy Lesko, a Salem senior, didn't expect Proposal A to pass. "I was surprised. I thought A would be a big deal " he said Christina Trout, a Canton senior, and Bridgett Kane, a Salem senior, agreed that Bush won because he's the candidate most of their parents 'I voted for Bush because the Democrats we've had in office I don't like. Plus, my dad's job goes down every time the Democrats are in office," said Kane. MIKE McCAULEY and Bill Gretzinger, who team teach a government class called Close Up, said students do a good job of reflecting their parents' viewpoints. "I think the results reflect the leanings of students' families," said Gretzinger. "In a Republican area such as this district, I think we basi-

The wording of Proposal A is such that many students probably voted "just the opposite of the way they wanted to vote," added McCauley. "It's a classic trick that's been played on the public."

The ballot proposals take more time to read than students and registered voters want to spend, added McCauley.

"I don't think the average voter will wait three hours while their compatriot votes," he said. Name recognition also played a big part in the choices student voters made, McCauley added.

Ballot's a breeze thanks to Close Up

For many of the students who voted in last week's mock election at Centennial Educational Park, the ballot presented no problems, thanks to a class called Close Up.

Mike McCauley and Bill Gretzinger, who team-teach the hands-on government class to sophomores, juniors and seniors, scheduled presidential debates, visits from candidates and panel discussions on ballot the Bush camp. "It's murder. Dukakis wants to kill innocent babies, but have prisoners go free on the streets. Isn't pro-choice giving them the right to kill?"

cial security for their grandparents, help for the homeless, Medicare, and federal roads. Yet in the same gasp, they want a balanced budget and no tax hikes. Bush and Dukakis reflect that contradiction," he added.

CLOSE UP, a program subsidized by the federal government, emphasizes hands-on learning experiences, said Gretzinger.

'Our purpose is to inform people about the problems we have," he said. "We have all the candidates from all the political parties come in. We go down to the courthouse, to Canton Township Hall, to the dumps, soup kitchens and the Rouge River. We went to the University of Michigan to meet with a professor who works on the unclassified part of Star Wars.

"Two hundred students are going to Washington to meet their senators and congressmen in March."

In Washington, students visit Congress and federal agencies. They attend seminars and quiz government officials, lobbyists, policy makers and reporters. In small workshops, students meet their counterparts from states across the country.
"It's a terrific program," McCauley said. "It's open to students with all levels of ability."

Board focus on public relations

If community relations and Plymouth-Canton Community Schools is a topic that interests you, you may want to attend tonight's school board workshop at the administration building, 454 S. Harvey.

"We will be looking at the internal and external publics the schools are working with. We will analyze the relative importances of them," said Richard Egli, administrative assistant for community relations.

A recent survey of PTO groups showed a majority of respondi parents think communication between school administrators and PTOs needs to improve.

The workshop will start at about 8 p.m., following a 7:30 p.m. special meeting on employee grievances,

Prior to hearing comments from the audience, the board will "consider the activities we're presently doing - such things as board members speaking with PTOs, newsletter materials and that kind of thing,"

"We will be looking at the materi-

Jail conditions better; question is, how much?

By Wayne Peel staff writer

Wayne County Sheriff Robert Ficano repeatedly has said conditions at the county jail are improving; on Thursday he showed a group of reporters and elected officials why.

The sheriff led reporters and a group of elected officials from Belleville, Detroit and Harper Woods on a tour of the original county jail and four-year-old Andrew C. Baird Detention Facility.

Though the sheriff's department routinely conducts jail tours, the visits have taken on new meaning in light of an attempt to wrest the jail from Ficano's control and put it into the hands of a court-appointed moni-

Attorneys representing prisoners in a 1971 lawsuit against the county recently requested the change.

Ficano wasted little time in drawing comparisons to conditions detailed in the still-unsettled 1971 pris-

"CONDITIONS AREN'T the same," Ficano said. "Then, we were arguing about unsanitary conditions; now, we're arguing about whether inmates have sneakers to play bas-

Key changes, according to Ficano: • Inmates are no longer housed three-to-a cell. A 1971 Wayne County Circuit Court finding stated one in-mate in many cells slept on the floor, often without a mattress or blanket.

· The jail suicide rate has decreased substantially. In 1971, the court found the jail's suicide rate 'substantially higher" than that of Jackson Prison. Since 1985, Ficano said, there have only been three suicides in the 1,700-inmate jail - substantially lower than the rate for the general population, Ficano said. Improved psychiatric care for inmates is one of the reasons, sheriff's department officials said.

· Sanitary conditions have improved. In 1971, the court found cells infested with rats and cockroaches. Now, Ficano said, the jail routinely receives pest control services.

Conditions at the Wayne County Jail have improved, Sheriff Robert Ficano said. Critics, however, say more improvements need to be made.

• Recreational opportunities have improved. Newly-purchased weight training equipment gives inmates their best recreational opporments have been made, the inmates attorney said the county and sheriff still had a long way to go in eliminating jail problems.

"THERE ARE a number of issues least of which involves classification," said Richard Skutt, the Detroit attorney representing inmates in the 17-year-old suit.

Sheriff's department officials said prisoners are separated for a number of factors, including age, violent tendencies and nature of crime. They acknowledged, however, that safeguards breakdown when the jail is pushed beyond prisoner capacity.

Skutt, however, charged violent and non-violent prisoners are com-monly housed together, even on women's floors, where crowding is less of an issue

Jail psychiatric care is inadequate, Skutt charged, because of understaffing.

Temperatures in 60-year-old wings of the old jail are also a point of contention.

While freezing temperatures re-ported in the 1971 court findings are no longer accurate, Skutt said inadequate heat and ventilation remains a problem in the old jail.

Sheriff's department officials said "transitional" weather periods are troublesome. Temperatures in parts of the old jail are kept high during the day during this time of year, they said, to assure the building stays warm at night.

While cell conditions have improved, Skutt said mice and cockroaches still turn up throughout the jail, including in the kitchen and in tunnels that transport prisoners.to and from courts. While he said prisoner recreation has also improved, Skutt added weight training machines weren't what inmates sought. "We want active recreation, but the machines and video games aren't it " Skutt said.

Despite other acknowledged improvements, including elimination of disciplinary cells once known as "the hole," Skutt said he will continue to press for a monitor.

"I don't think there's a will on the part of the county to improve jail conditions," he said

Area streets, landmarks are shown at a glance in new book

New residents of the metro area and old residents who sometimes have a hard time finding their way around town will appreciate the new Rand McNally StreetFinder.

This spiral-bound street guide holds maps of every area of Oakland, Wayne and Macomb counties. It also includes in depth reference guides for special buildings and attractions, golf courses, government offices, post offices, hospitals, libraries, parks, schools, shopping centers, zip codes and more.

"Going to this new technology will reduce the time it takes us to update these maps," said Michael Dobson. director of cartographic services at Rand McNally. "Every year we have to recheck the streets and zip codes and everything else we include in our guides and doing this manually is

The guide is the first done by Rand very difficult. Now we'll be able to make changes much more quickly."

> Dobson said Rand McNally is in contact with hundreds of people to gather the information needed to produce the StreetFinders, which have already been done for several other major U.S. cities. A large datagathering operation is set into place, including aerial photography and maps acquired from city engineers' offices. A great deal of cross-referencing is done to be sure the road names and suffixes are correct.

"We decided to go with a book format as opposed to the folding map because we think it's easier to handle," Dobson said. "It took about a year and a half to put this together. Sometimes we have to actually go out and drive the streets if we aren't sure about information we get from our sources."

The new Detroit-area StreetFinder includes more than 2,000 square miles of roads and 22,000 actual streets. Cost for the large, threecounty book is $24.95. Separate books showing just one of the three counties run $14.95.

The StreetFinder is available at Waldenbooks, B. Dalton Booksellers and many other stores where Rand McNally atlases are available.

The guide is the first done by Rand McNally . for the Detroit area.

Oakland water line to end Wayne drought

Sewer lines stretching from eastern Oakland County to western Wayne County could eliminate water bans during future hot, dry sum-mers, a Detroit Water and Sewerage Department official said Thursday. But that is strictly in the future.

Bans on lawn watering and other water restrictions could return if next summer is as parched as summer 1988.

LOW WATER pressure forced water restrictions in Livonia, Redford

mer, when rain was scarce and 100 degree temperatures plentiful

A new water line, stretching across Troy, Bloomfield Township and eventually heading south toward western Wayne, will permanently increase pressure in the area, reducin the need for future restrictions, said A.C. Davanzo, assistant director of operations for the Detroit system.

That line, however, is at least three years away. Until then, residents in western Wayne County and other low pressure areas may continue to face water bans.

State health department officials have notified the Detroit Water sys-tem they would seek restrictions, possibly an areawide water-use han. if last summer's conditions return.

The Detroit system, Davanso said, is opposed to widespread water-use "Cutting water use in Grosse Pointe won't get water to Novi," Davanzo said. "The problem is a lack of water mains." Toward that end, the system will soon be laying lines in both Oakland and Wayne counties.

The new Oakland County main would extend down Adams Road in Troy and east/west across Bloom-

"WE'VE GOT all the property we need, except for a piece near Franklin Village," Davanzo said. Work has already begun on a west-ern Wayne line that will eventually extend from the Joy/Napier area of western Plymouth Township south to the Napier/Cherry Hill section of western Canton Township.

Western Wayne's water pressure problems, Davanzo said, are caused by the area pump station at Telegraph and Eight Mile. That station, known as the west service center, diverts water northward to Oakland County, simultaneously reducing pressure levels in western Wayne. "Communities in western Wayne aren't getting as much pressure as they should," Davanzo said.

Davanzo discussed water iss before the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments last Thursday. SEMCOG is an intergovernmental agency representing communities in Wayne, Oakland, Macomb, Livingston, Monroe, St. Clair and Washtenaw counties.

ON OTHER water-related issues: The Detroit sewer system will clean up up its own leaks and spillDavasso said, but the system shouldn't be considered the river's thing that will require more action than we're doing now. At some point we're going to have to look at off-line (waste) storage," he said. "But one of the ways it's not going to ber solved is to beat up on Detroit."

Davanzo told listeners he had at personal interest in the rivering

"I'm one of only a few people who've canoed the Rouge, fell in and survived," he said.

Campaign won't divide Congress — Levin

By Wayne Peal staff writer

This year's bitter presidential election need not produce a bitter division between the next president and Congress, U.S. Sen. Carl Levin said recently.

Even though Levin called the contest between fellow Democrat Michael Dukakis and Republican Vice President George Bush "the most negative campaign I've ever seen," the two-term senator said ill feelings should subside once Congress recon-

ON OTHER issues, Levin said he hoped the next Congress would pass a bill sponsored by fellow Michigan Sen. Donald Riegle that would give states broader discretion in accepting out-of-state waste.

Interstate commerce laws cur-gan from failing to accept garbage from other states. Michigan, and particularly Wayne County, has been a popular dump site for New York, New Jersey and other eastern states, local officials said. Though Wayne County hasn't proposed banning out-of-state garbage, its newly proposed solid waste master plan would open county landfills only to those communities that promise to substantially reduce their solid waste output.

Solid and toxic waste issues are among the most pressing facing America, Levin said.

Levin is backing state Sen. Lana Pollack in the area's most hotly contested Congressional race. Pollack, D-Ann Arbor, is challenging GOP incumbent Carl Pursell for the seat.

"The difference is a difference in priorities for domestic concerns vs. defense," he said.

T.S. Ellet Imagining the eye of the soul works of the late T.S. Ellot, recipient of the Nobel Prize for Literature in 1948, it's a pity you weren't among the audience on a recent Sunday morning to hear one of America's finest scholars, Plymouth-born Rus-sell Amos Kirk, discuss from a church pulpit "The Christian Imagi-nation" of this noted poet, play-wright, literary critic and essayist. Kirk came down from his home at Mecosta in the stump-country of mid-Michigan to appear as guest speaker at First United Methodist Church of Plymouth.

I didn't know in advance what his topic would be, but having heard him in several settings, I was interested in learning what such a strong convert to Catholicism might say to a Methodist audience.

NO DOUBT a few acquaintances of my own who were in the congregation were shocked to find me in their midst with tape recorder in

But in retrospect, they would have to agree that on this day the man who leaped onto the national scene with his book, "The Conservative Mind," in 1953 — the seventh revised edition of which is now in publication — wore his ecumenical hat, and wore it well.

It was three days before Kirk's 70th birthday. In his typical scholarly way, our "American Cicero" even provided listeners with an insight into the musical hit, "Cats." The musical was based on Eliot's 1939 work, "Old Possum's Book of Practical

"More than any other man of letters in this century, T.S. Eliot succeeded in persuading a good many educated and discerning people that the Christian religion might be regarded as a credible body of doctrines," Kirk said.

"IT IS not that Eliot fancied poetry could do duty for religion, but rather that his religious imagination opened the eyes and comforted the souls of many who had been seeking for images of truth.

"The reason why Eliot's poetry moves us to think deeply on the claims of Christianity is that Eliot possessed imagination in the highest degree, dreaming the high dream. It should be understood that when I speak of Eliot's imagination, I do not mean that slippery word 'intuition,'. for Eliot was upeasy with the claims for intuition, and his own creative imagination did not spring from private revelation of prophetic seizure.

"There was no so-called inner voice, no computer-like private conscience. In large part his imagination amounted to the jigsaw puzzlelike capabilities of the intellect, a multitude of little evidences falling into place gradually so that in the end one discovers powerful and concurrent reasons for belief even though one cannot consciously tract the intricate process by which con-viction was brought about."

LATER, KIRK said Eliot held imagination to be "the eye of the soul." His critics, the speaker said, have been overwhelmed during the past decade by feline dance and song in the music of "Cats."

"How is it," Kirk asked, "that these comical persons have risen to such high estate? It never could have been Eliot's expectation that his cat poems, dramatized, would reach audiences larger by far than the combined total of persons who ever attended performances of his own plays? Indeed, that more people would pay for costly tickets for ... 'Cats' than ever had bought his books : during his lifetime?

"I suggest, in short, that the united audiences of 'Cats' on either side of ... the ocean have sensed the moral imagination of Eliot in the frenzied swirl of the cats. He was a man eminently sane, a man of vision. In his words, 'Men have forgotten all gods except usury, lust and power.' I can or truthfully say his communication is ... tongued with fire beyond the language of the living."

No less a publication than the Wall Street Journal once said of Russell Kirk that his "wide erudition enriches the fruits of his imagination." I wonder where next I'll encounter a sample of the fruit? Wherever, it will be a pleasure.

CEP Marching Band joins competition

The Plymouth Centennial Educa-tional Park Marching Band will join more than 50 bands participating in the 1988 Bands of America ing in the 1988 Bands of America Grand National Championship Competition at the Pontiac Silver-dome Friday and Saturday, Competing bands will represent Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Illipois, Pennsylvania, New York Tennes-see, Mississippi, Wisconsin, Ken-tucky, North Carolina, and Oklaho-ma.

The PCEP Marching Band is scheduled to perform in prelimi-nary competition at 9:45 a.m. Sat-urday. This is the fourth year the band has competed in the national championship. The past two years it has placed in the top 15 bands.

Preliminary competition is scheduled from noon until 8:30 p.m. Friday. Twenty-eight bands will compete Friday and the remaining bands' preliminary competition will take place Saturday. Finalist bands will be announced at 4:30 p.m. and the finals competition begins at 7 p.m.

The 15-member judging panel is represented by people from New York to California. Among the judges is Michale Cesario. He serves on the faculty of State University of New York and has been the visual coordinator and design consultant for several drum corps. Cesario also designed the uniform worn by the Plymouth Centennial Educational Park Marching Band.

State school chief calls for district 'equity'

By Tom Henderson Haff writer

New state school Superintendent maid Bernis gave an impassioned plea last week for school tax reform before a gathering of area educators at an annual conference sponsored by U.S. Rep. William Ford and John Bemis said that current spending inequities between have and havenot districts must be eliminated through a restructuring of the property tax system that now finances School districts.

"I'm not saying we should take money from rich districts . . . but I am saying I want to see some of the poor districts catch up. Why should tails he tied up with whether there's a Detroit Edison plant a mile away? That's ludicrous. There has to be some equity," Bemis told the administrators during the afternoon session last Monday at the Airport

Bemis, the former superintendent of the Utica district, has been state superintendent since July 1.

Current proposals in the state leg-islature on school tax reform call for an increase in the state sales tax from 4 to 6 percent and a reduction in property tax. The proposals also call for an increase in funding to have-not districts.

BEMIS CRITICIZED opponents of State Superintendent Donald Bemis said that current spending inequities between have and have-not districts must be eliminated.

tax reform. "I'm tired of going to local Rotaries and hearing 50- and 60year-old white males telling me that nobody did it for them, that they earned what they have. When people tell you that all you have to do is pull yourself up by your bootstraps, I say that's baloney!

"I'm here to tell you that Don Bemis didn't pull himself up his own bootstraps. Don Bemis wouldn't have graduated from college and neither would a lot of us if it hadn't been for the federal government and the GI Bill. They got federal loans for their homes and all sorts of entitlements, and then they tell you people should pull themselves up by their bootstraps.

"We didn't make it by ourselves in an example of where the system has broken down. The state limits homeowner school-tax assessments to 50 mills. Pontiac residents are already at the limit, but because of a drastically reduced industrial tax base, the district can spend just $3,500 a stu-dent a year, while surrounding districts spend $5,000 and more.

"That isn't fair. That isn't equitable," said Bemis. "We have to look at school financing in terms broader than 'how does it affect me?' or Michigan and this nation won't survive . . . We must have a new spirit of cooperation among school districts and superintendents. We have this country. We made it in this country by helping each other."

Bemis used the city of Pontiac as to have a new spirit of cooperation among the government units that serve the people.

'We can't continue with one third of our students being educated in sub-standard conditions. It's that clear. It's that direct. The kid who is being undereducated in Carrell, Michigan today is going to come and live in Romulus, and he's going to take from society."

Bemis said that last year, 15,000 high school students in Michigan graduated from districts that offered no advanced language instruction and no advanced math or sci-

"We can't afford that as a state and we can't afford it as a nation,"

No increase predicted for federal school spending by Tom Henderson staff writer

Local educators received two messages last week at an annual conference with Washington officials and education experts.

One they were already aware of - federal spending on education dropped dramatically during the Reagan years. The other came as no surprise, either - no matter who the next president is, don't expect much of an increase in support from Wash-ton in Romulus, with discussions on such issues as education and the federal budget; the changing role of the computer in education; and current federal legislative and regulatory issues involving elementary, secondary, post-secondary and vocational education. More than 100 educators from throughout the 15th (Canton, Garden City, Westland and part of Livonia) and 16th (Dearborn, Trenton and downriver) attended the meeting.

The next day, Ford and Dingell held a conference for area municipal leaders. The conferences, which have been going on annually for more than 20 years, are held in Michigan during election years and in Washington in alternate years.

The highlights of the education conference:

• In his opening remarks, Ford praised today's students. "I've been talking in schools for years, and the kids today are as attentive and polite an audience as I've met in schools in a long time. I don't know why that is - maybe bigger bats in the principal's office."

• U.S. Sen. Paul Simon, D-Illinois, dropped by the conference and made a stirring speech in support of more federal aid for education. He said that the federal government currently spends 10% times more on interest on loans than it does on public education. "No one can tell me that's rational." he said.

He said there are more school districts in the U.S. than there are physics teachers, and that "fourth graders in Botswana have more foreign language training than the average U.S. college grad. As H.L. Mencken said: "'If English was good enough for Jesus Christ, it's good enough for me."

• Andrea Bolling, assistant vice president of the American Association of Community and Junior Colleges, said that while payment on in-terest on the national debt increased six-fold under Reagan, spending on education declined. In 1981, defense spending was 23.2 percent of the federal budget and spending on education was 2.5 percent. In 1988, defense spending had grown more than spending on education had declined by more than 30 percent, to just 1.7 percent of the budget.

Of Reagan's eight budgets, six had decreases in spending on education. The two increases came during national election years.

Speaking of the gap between defense spending and education spending, Bolling quoted Thucydides, the Greek historian: "'A nation that draws too broad a difference between its warriors and its scholars will have its thinking done by cowards and its fighting done by fools.' If that's the case, we're in big trou-

• Gordon Raley, assistant executive director of the American Vocational Association, told the educators that it was time to examine the emphasis placed on academic education. He said the American system should mimic the European and Asian systems, which funnel more students into vocational training earlier in their academic careers.

• Don Bemis, the new state superintendent of education, told the group that he will be more communicative with local educators than has the state superintendent in the past.

"You aren't going to like everything I'm going-to have to say . . . but you will know what I know," he said. "In the past, there was a dearth of information from Lansing to give local administrators a basis on which to make decisions."

Council looks for members

The State Department of Mental Health is accepting nominations for membership on the Citizens Adviory Council of Walter Reuther Psychiatric Hospital.

The council is a voluntary group empowered to meet no less than quarterly to advise Reuther director John Reynolds on administrative policy and programs and to monitor programs, recipient rights issues and the hospital's operating budget.

To be considered, people should forward a letter of interest and biographical information by Wednesday, Nov. 23 to: Lois Brennan, staff liaison, Mental Health Advisory Council, Michigan Department of Mental Health, Lewis Cass Building, Lansing 48913. For more information, call (517) 373-6590.

Forget about 'cute'

School has been back in session now for a few short weeks and already screams of despair can be heard coming from the kitchen. "What do you want me to pack for your school lunch?'

A few of the major newspapers have recently published stories about how to be creative when packing a school lunchbox. Gimme a break. Just how creative can you be with peanut butter and jelly?

Yea, sure, these publications will, give you paragraphs upon paragraphs about how to turn these brown paper bags into a Jewish deli, but check out the recipes. One of the major discrepancies I picked up on was that the recipes called for using Dijon mustard, homemade herbed mayonnaisse and those cute little mini-corns.

My kids would trade a sliced turkey on sourdough with French mustard for a PB&J (peanut butter and jelly) on Wonder and would throw in a free milk. Let's face it, no matter how creative you try to be with kids' lunches, most kids are just as happy to settle for a slice of cold pizza and an apple.

"So what am I supposed to do?" you ask.

FIRST OFF, put yourself on the same culinary plane as your kids. No sense cooking first class when something from a super-saver coach fare will suffice.

Kids aren't interested in opening a plastic Alf lunchbox and having a half pound of pastrami leak out of half-apita. Plastic Tupperware-type containers were made for creating sand castles in the sandbox, not for holding a jambalya. Anything that remotely resembles carrot or celery sticks will be hidden by any fourth-grader, only to be tossed out on the way home or fed to the rabbits in Mr. Roberts' science class.

Beware of any recipe that calls itself ants-on-a-log. Who in the heck would even dare eat an ant, let alone on a green log? (For those of you who haven't yet read anything that resembles a kids' cookbook, ants-on-a-log is a strip of cel-ery stuffed with cream cheese and sprinkled with raisins.) Speaking of raisins — they belong in oatmeal cookies or in bags of trail mix, not in those nerdy little boxes that you can never get your fingers into.

So what's a lunch packer supposed to do? It gets pretty expensive passing along three bucks everyday for Mickey D's (McDonald's), and you know the little guys won't eat a salad. They'll just pig out on burgers and fries.

Yours truly wishes he could hire someone like June Cleaver (Beaver's mom). You never heard Wally and the Beeve complain about their lunch. Of course, nowadays, people like June Cleaver charge more than three bucks a day and I don't own this paper - yet.

SIT DOWN with the little boppers and plan out a weekly lunch menu. Incorporate the kids in preparation as much as possible. Today, folks are content to keep the kids quiet in front of the boob tube, but how about spending 15 minutes together in the kitchen? Not outside stimuli, no music, no interruptions. Heck, even if you just make a few PB&J's together, you can share some stories about the garbage your mom used to fix you when you were a kid and had to walk to school in snowdrifts three feet

Meal that came from the Indians

By Larry Janes special writer

LL THIS HOOPLA about polenta being the trend food of the '80s, not to mention the resurgence of cornbread as a true comfort food, really wouldn't be happening right now if the Indians had not introduced plain old-fashioned cornmeal to the early settlers.

As a matter of fact, the corn that the Indians taught the early settlers to grow was flint corn and not, contrary to popular belief, sweet corn on the cob.

The kernels of flint corn are comprised of small amounts of a soft starch, which is completely surrounded by a large quantity of hard starch. The kernels are very hard and lend themselves well to grinding, hence the making of cornmeal. So where would chefs like Guiliano Bugialli and Jimmy Schmidt be without commeal? They certainly wouldn't be cutting crescent shapes of polenta, helping resurrect the cornmeal industry. Up until last year, the cornmeal industry was relatively content with an occasional hype on the use of cornmeal, especially concerning its "natural" status and enriched varieties, which some flower children of the '60s would sneak into muffins to help make them more nutritious for children.

Now, however, with the rush to make polenta - and, as Momma used to call it, johnnycake - cornmeal sales have risen dramatically.

SO WHAT else can be said about something as basic as cornmeal?

Well, for beginners, did you know that cornmeal comes in four basic colors?

The major grocery chains will stock basic yellow and white commeal. But as you venture into the Southwest, you will notice more of an availability of cornmeal in not just yellow and white but also in such colors as blue and red. These all hail from the same kind of flint corn. However, some of the kernels are different in color, with the nutritional makeup staying pretty much the same.

TWO DIFFERENT processes are used to make cornmeal, one called a wet milling and the other called dry milling. Both processes are used extensive-

The wet milling process involves taking cleaned kernels of corn and soaking them in water. The water is drawn off and the corn germ is separated from the

After the germ has been removed, the remainder of the corn kernel containing starch, gluten and bran is screened, and the bran is removed.

Italy's polenta popular in past and present lenta. Her mother was born just north of Venice, Italy, where polenta is an everyday dish; she prepared polen-ta often for her family when Marie Maszacco was growing up in Warren, Mich.

Now, Marie has two children of her own, Robert, 2, and Domenique, 6, and a third child arriving in February. She and John enjoy entertaining in their lovely suburban home and find polenta an easy, yet unusual dish to prepare for guests. The stew can be made in advance but the Osbornes prefer to make it fresh and bring it to the table directly after cooking.

John and Marie prepare and cook most of their dinners together, when he is not busy with his work as publisher of "Auto Swappers Magazine." Cooking the polenta, the Osbornes use a deep, unlined copper lettie called a "paiuolo" which was given to them by her mother. Marie said, "It's not easy to find a paiuolo these days and it's not necessary for making good po-

First, the Osbornes begin preparing the stew, be-cause it takes about two hours to cook. After the stew has cooked for an hour, the water and salt for the polenta is brought to a boil. When the water boils rapidly, the cornmeal is poured directly from the container in a slow steady stream.

Marie said, "Each time I prepare the polenta I use varying amounts of cornmeal. I stop adding the cornmeal when it looks like a very thick pudding.

affects how much cornmeal will be absorbed on any given day. While the cornmeal is cooking, you need to stir constantly with a wire whisk.

Marie said, "The secret of a good polenta is to cook the commeal for a long time." One of the signs of a sufficiently cooked polenta is the crunchy crust, which builds up on the sides of the pot. She also mentioned that her family would argue over who got to eat the crust. "It's considered a real treat." Marie warned that cooks should be careful while stirring the bubbling polenta and watch out for hot splashes. She said the pot of bubbling polenta resembles Mount St. Helen's when it comes out of the pot.

After an hour of cooking, the polenta is poured as a cutting board in a mound to cook at the dinner tab The polenta can be cut with a knife when it is no low or steaming. "It's much easier to cut with a long pie

Often the Oubornes will begin their dinner ps with an Italian antipasto plate or individual servi of cooked meat toricilini, which have been tossed olive oil, garlic and chopped parsley. This is usually garnished with julienne slices of reasted red pepper.

After the polenta and veal stew, the Osbornes serve slices of panetione, a sweet yeast cake specialty of their guests a platter of fresh fruit and che

2 teaspoons salt 1 container of yellow corn meal (%

Bring water and salt to boil in a large heavy saucepan. In a slow steady stream, pour cornmeal into boiling pot, stirring constantly with a wire whisk. Be careful that the mixture remains boiling (take care not to get burned from hot, splashing polenta). The mixture should have the consistency of a thick pudding. Stir often with a wooden spoon and continue to cook for 45-60 minutes. As it cooks, a crunchy layer will form on the sides of the pot. Stir from the bottom to prevent burning. Pour out onto a dry wooden board at least 10x12 inches. Allow to cool on the board. Serve on the board and slice at the table, cutting the polenta into thick slices along a piece of cotton string. If you prefer, the polenta can also be poured into a buttered baking dish and cut with a spatula.

BAKED SEMOLINA AND POLENTA GNOCCHI Gnocchi alla Romana con Polenta Serves 4-6 (Recipe from 'Pasta Fresca" by Viana La Place and Evan Kleiman, William Morrow, $19.95) These baked gnocchi are in the Roman style. The addition of polenta is not traditional but adds a delicious taste and beautiful yellow color. Be sure to use coarse-grained semolina, not the finely ground flour used for making pasta.

8 tablespoons (1 stick) unsalted butter, plus 3 tablespoons, divided salt and freshly ground black pepper

ninch of nutmeg % cup polenta or coarse-grained cornmeal

% cup coarse semolina 2 cups freshly grated Parmesan cheese, divided 2 large egg yolks

Heat the milk in a medium saucepan with 8 tablespoons butter, salt, pepper and nutmeg. When the butter is completely melted and the milk just comes to the boil, lower heat and slowly add the polenta and semolina in a continuous rain of grains while you stir constantly. Always stir in the same direction. Cook over low heat for approximately five minutes or until the mass begins to pull away from the sides of the pan as you stir. Remove the saucepan from the heat and stir vigorously. Add one cup Parmesan cheese and continue stirring. Add egg yolks and

Rinse a jelly roll pan with cold water and shake it to remove most of the water droplets. You want the baking pan to be moist, so don't dry it. Using a rubber spatula, remove the gnocchi mixture from the saucepan and spread it evenly onto the jelly roll pan to a thickness of approximately 1/2 inch. Set the gnocchi mixture aside. Melt the remaining butter in a small pan. Using a pastry brush, spread the melted butter evenly onto the gnocchi mixture. Sprinkle the remaining Parmesan gnocchi mixture. Lightly cover the gnocchi mixture with plastic wrap and refrigerate for at least one hour.

Lightly butter a Pyrex baking dish. Remove the gnocchi mixture from the refrigerator and cut out rounds using a two-inch biscuit cutter. Place the rounds in the buttered baking dish in rows, over-cheese evenly on top of the buttered lapping them slightly. Take the bits of gnocchi mixture that remain after cutting out the rounds, cut them into diamond shapes and bake them sepa-rately in another pan. They are fun to use as a garnish for simple grilled or roasted meats. Place the gnocchi in a preheated 400-degree oven for approximately 25 minutes or until they are golden brown and bubbling.

Then the starch and gluten are re-moved by centrifugal force. In addition to making cornmeal, the wet milling process also produces corn starch, corn sweeteners and corn oil.

THE DRY milling of corn is gen-erally less involved than the wet milling. Two basic processes are used, degerming and nondegerming

In the degerming process, the hull, germ and endosperm are separated, and this process is used for making corn flakes, corn grits, corn flour

In the nondegerminating process, the entire kernel is ground, with the resulting product being an oily flour that is subsequently used in the mass production of baking products.

I've had polenta, and, to tell the truth, it doesn't knock my socks off. I'd much rather have a fresh hot slice of Momma's johnnycake right from the cast-iron skillet, topped with a hunk of sweet butter.

Forget 'cute' lunches

rot cake made with natural ingredients, honey and eggs can literally be a meal in itself. Check out some great "natural" cookbooks such as the "Vegetarian Epicure" or "Whole Foods for the Whole Family." Both are excellent sources for healthyfor-you recipes that utilize protein, vegetables and dairy products in a tasty alternative.

Something I remember that Momma did was always overcook and end up with mucho leftovers. Make a simple meatloaf sandwich or wrap a chunk of roast beef together with a few breadsticks. Kids don't want soggy sandwiches, so toss in a few of those little squeeze packets of ketchup and mustard that you inadvertantly picked up at the burger kids wants nowadays are those mini-boxed juice drinks. If you're concerned about quality, look for 100 percent pure juice products. Preeze them and toss into a lunchbox with everything else. By the time the bell rings, the juice will be defrosted and your kids will be drinking their fruit allotment instead of sitting there all embarassed while peeling a banana or, god forbid, eating applesauce.

I'll be the first to admit that lunchboxes are not my favorite things to stuff but, with a little ingenuity and imagination, you can at least make a nasty chore into something somewhat enjoyable. Try these recipes, and if you have something that your kids like, pass it along. I'll print the best. Bon Appetit!

Health care costs danger to companies

SAVE ON EVERY LEES CARPET

Many companies in the United States could fail within three years if the rapidly escalating costs of health care are not controlled, according to a health care expert.

Michael Samuelson, president of the Ann Arbor-based National Center for Health Promotion, gave that message to 250 business executives attending a health symposium at Memorial Medical Center in Long Beach, Calif.

Samuelson is an expert on health care cost containment and the cost benefits of improving employees' health and lifestyles.

"During 1988, premiums for many health care plans increased from 10 to 30 percent and the outlook for 1989 is no better," said Samuelson. "In some industries, health care costs account for as much as 65 percent of the average payroll.

"EVERYBODY HAS heard horror stories about how much of the cost of a car is attributable to health benefits and employee absenteeism," said Samuelson. "These horror stories are now occurring in virtually every industry.

According to Samuelson, American businesses have become very sophisticated about health care costs during the past five years.

'Companies have aggressively promoted outpatient services, alternatives to fee-for-service arrangements such as health maintenance organizations and shifting some costs to employees," he said. "Unfortunately, all of these efforts are falling far short of the expected costreduction goals."

Samuelson encourages companies to take a pro-active approach to health care costs by improving the overall health and lifestyles of employees. "Even small reductions in alcohol use, smoking and obesity can have a significant impact on the bottom line," he said.

Chiefs easy winners in playoff opener

staff writer

Coach Rob Neu didn't have to remind his team what nearly happened the last time Plymouth Canton played a girls basketball game at Westland John Glenn.

The Chiefs, who escaped with a 44-42 victory two weeks ago, were determined to avoid another close call Thursday night in the opening round of the Western Lakes Activities Association playoffs.

Canton, led by 5-foot-11 Susan Ferko's 24-point performance, started fast and breezed to a 64-33 victory over the Rockets in the rematch.

"I think our group has done a nice job of refocusing," Neu said. "It's tournament time, and you don't have to tell them. It's time to play.'

The Chiefs, ranked No. 5 in Class A, improved to 17-1 overall and will play Walled Lake Central in the second round Tuesday at Canton. Glenn, 8-9, plays at Northville, a 63-60 loser to WLC, in the consolation round.

"I DON'T THINK we underestimated them the first time around," Neu said. "I think we were going through a little mid-season slump.

"The middle of the season tends to be a time when it's tough to come in the gym every day. But it's the teams that come back rejuvenated that are ready for the tournament, and I like where we're at right now."

Canton was definitely ready to play. The Chiefs had the game well in hand after streaking to 6-0, 11-1 and 19-4 leads in the first quarter. The game was never in doubt after Canton scored the first nine points of the second period to lead 28-6.

Glenn coach Pat Bennett was disappointed his Rockets, who suffered from cold shooting and never had the chance to create any momentum, didn't have the same drive the Chiefs demonstrated.

"We were definitely a little lax," he said. "Our philosophy was used more by them. We wanted to come out fired up, scrap on defense and play with enthusiasm.

"But they did it to us. That's one reason they're ranked in the state and champions of the Western Divi-WHILE FERKO and guard Mi-

The Rocks outscored Western by four in the third period, but the big quarter that would turn the game around eluded Salem. The Warriors held on in the fourth, making six of eight free throws — they were 13-of-17 for the game — to maintain a 14-13 edge in the finale.

"We made a number of runs at them, but we couldn't get the lead," Thomann said. "They're playing real well down the stretch like they did

'We did force them to play out of position tonight," Neu said. Canton's defense also was responsible for setting the tone. "We're talking about a team, every time I look in the paper, they're scoring 60 points, and we held them to 33."

Bennett substituted early and played everybody in an attempt to instill new life into the Rockets, but the Chiefs, as far as the outcome was concerned, were unstoppable. Canton's Candi Jones had a good second half and finished with 16 points, Fortier 13. The Chiefs, holding a safe, 49-31 lead midway in the final quarter, posted 14 unanswered points to turn the game into a rout.

Glenn had no one in double figures, and center Yvette Lawrence was the team's leading scorer with eight points. Janet Ternes scored seven and Tracy Martin six.

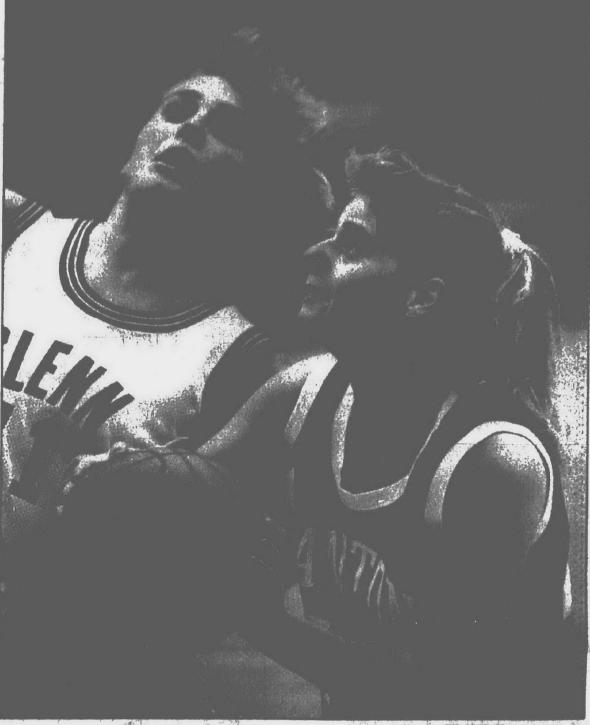

"I was pleased with the bench," said Bennett, adding his reserves had an "eye-of-the-tiger" attitude.

"I KNOW THE kids had the desire to win, but on the court they didn't have that enthusiasm they had the first time we played them.

The Trojans couldn't have had much fun Saturday in the rain and mud at Pontiac's Wisner Stadium, losing 28-0 to Redford Catholic Central in the opening round of the Class A playoffs. The win sends No. 1ranked CC (10-0) into the quarterfinal round Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at Westland John Ford considered forfeiting the game when 16 of its 36 players were ruled ineligible earlier last week by the Detroit Public School League because of academic woes. No doubt Saturday's weather didn't encourage Hoskins or the Trojans. There was more mud on the field than grass.

CC'S DEFENSE forced eight fumbles and held Ford to 56 yards in total offense, zero through the air. All-PSL quarterback Ron Woolfork had his only pass intercepted by CC linebacker Kevin Jankowski, and he fumbled several snaps from a sophomore center playing his first game.

"Every time we called a pass play today we fumbled away the ball," Hoskins said. CC took advantage of good field position early, scoring three of the first four times it had the ball. The Shamrocks led 21-0 at halftime, scoring on runs of 4 and 3 yards by fullback Lee Krueger and on a 28-yard pass from quarterback Scott Hauncher to Sean

An impired comeback Thursday by Livonia anklin fell short in a Western Lakes girls bas-thell playoff opener at North Farmington, won the Haiders 45-45 in overtime.

Patriots trailed by eight, 30-22, after three quarters, but 10 Dawn Warner points helped them core North 20-13 in the final period and force overtime tied at 42.

Franklin wasn't able to maintain its momentum, however, mainly because Leelie Szaflarski and Jenny Rettig fouled out in the fourth quarter and Warner was saddled with four personal fouls.

The best chance the Patriots had to win escaped them when North staged a rally of its own to put the game into OT. With a minute left, the Raiders trailed by four but a 12-footer by Eve Claar and a jumper by Kim Gurecki tied it.

North went on to score the first seven points of the extra session before Warner hit a threepointer in the final seconds for Franklin.

"I'VE GOT to give Franklin a lot of credit," said North coach Greg Capling. "They play great defense. They're a tough team. They pressured us and made us play a fast-paced game, and we didn't shoot well tonight. I know we didn't shoot our free throws well."

Free throw shooting was a touchy topic for both coaches. Capling was upset that his team hit barely more than 50 percent from the line, but Franklin coach Dan Freeman was angry at North's advantage in attempts. The Raiders were 22-of-43: Franklin shot just 21 free throws, making 12.

"We outscored them by six points from the field and lost," said Freeman. "I felt we outplayed them, but the referees took us right out of the game. I hate to cry about referees, but they took us out of it.

This is one of the worst hosings I've ever had And I don't mean to take anything away from North - they're a fine team.'

CAPLING KNEW fouls made the difference. His team made just two first-half baskets, but led 15-13 at the intermission thanks to 11 free throws. And when Szaflarski and Rettig fouled out, the Raiders defensive concerns melte

"With those two out, we could concentrate on Warner, which we did," said Capling

Claar and Gurecki provided the points for North, scoring 18 and 17 respectively. Franklin got 18 from Warner, 10 from Julie Stesiak and eight from Cheryl Hintz.

Both teams are 11-6. North advances to Tuesday's WLAA semifinals, playing at Walled Lake Western, a 51-47 upset winner over Plymouth Salem. Franklin plays at Salem Tuesday.

FARMINGTON 48, HARRISON 34: Farmington Harrison moved a step closer to a winless campaign Tuesday at Farmington. The Hawks are 0-17 and Farmington is 5-12.

A 7-0 first quarter put the Falcons ahead to stay. They increased their lead to 12 at the half (26-14) and led by 17 after three quarters (36-19).

"We wanted to get the lead and maintain it," said Farmington coach Diana Fair. "We pressed full-court and executed it, but (Darcy) Pinal is real hard to stop.

Pinzl finished with 23 of Harrison's 34 points. Marisa Ferrari topped the Falcons with 14 points. Erika Hatcher had 10 and Melissa Tisdale contributed seven points, six steals and four blocked shots.

Livonia Stevenson plays at Harrison Tuesday. Farmington travels to Livonia Churchill.

Cariatta Dancy and Maya Lowis each notted 16 points for Wayne. Antionette Hixon added 15. Barb Kulfan led Fordson with 21 points.

STEVENSON 46, CHURCHILL 37: Livonia Stevenson coach Chuck Hebestreit had said his young team was playing better and better, even though the losses kept mounting. Thursday against visiting Livonia Churchill, the Spartans put their improvement on display at Churchill's expense.

The win snapped a 15-game Stevenson losing streak, lifting the Spartans to 2-16. Churchill is 4-14.

After a slow start - the Chargers led 8-3 after one quarter — Stevenson took control, outscoring Churchill 16-7 in the second quarter and 12-5 in the third to grab a commanding 31-20 lead entering the last quarter.

"We were controlling the defensive boards, something we haven't been doing," said Hebestreit.

Leading the Spartan rebounders were freshman Teresa Sarno with 16 boards to go with 13 points and Jessann Martin with 10 rebounds. Jenny Audet, a sophomore point guard, finished with 12 points.

Churchill got nine points from JoAnn Atkin, eight from Jenny Willens and seven from Lori Place. The Chargers play at Farmington Tuesday, while Stevenson travels to Farmington Harrison.

GARDEN CITY 67, RU 38: Kim Falkowski canned 12-of-14 free throws for the Cougars and sparked a 17-4 first-quarter Garden City surge Thursday against visiting Redford Union.

The Cougars (9-9 overall, 5-2 in the Northwest Suburban League) were never threatened after the initial quarter, leading 30-17 at the half and 49-29 after three Falkowski finished with 16 points and 10 rebounds.

Carolyn Shanks had 13 points, six steals and four assists. Kim Reith finished with 12 points, eight coming in the Janine Sorel scored 13 points to lead RU (6-11 overall, Candi Jones scored 16 points for the Chiefs, who play host to Walled Lake Central in the second round Tuesday night.

No wonder the Livonia Ladywood defense stayed away from her.

Bannon scored 17 points, leading DC's 41-39 overtime win over Ladywood in a Catholic League semifinal playoff game at University of Detroit's Calihan Hall.

-Either the Blazers were afraid of catching something from Bannon, or they didn't want to advance badly enough to the final round against the state's No. 1 ranked team, Birmingham Marian. Ladywood fell to 12-6 overall.

"I COUNTED ONE time when she (Bannon) had five seconds to shoot the ball before one of our players pressured her," Ladywood coach Ken Bechard said. "Without pressure on defense or fast-break points, our ofe doesn't run well."

Of course, give Bannon credit. Ladywood led 23-14 at halftime, but she scored 11 third-quarter points, making two shots from 3-point range, and DC managed to tie the game at 29 entering the fourth quarter.

The 5-foot-6 junior guard also made two crucial free throws for the Falcons during the extra session. DC's Christy Canavan sent the game into overtime tied at 37 when she rebounded a missed free throw by teammate Michelle Krashovetz and scored with less than 10 sec-

The cat-quick Bannon had only four points at halftime, but surprisingly got stronger as the game progressed. Kathy O'Connor was the only other Falcon to reach double figures, scoring 10 points.

"BRONCHITIS HAS been tough on Bannon the last week-and-a-half," DC coach Nancy Sullivan said. "She tried to do too much in the first half. She was shooting with one leg, with her eyes closed, she was out of control. I told her to relax and get her feet underneath her.

We've been down in big games before this year but have come back. With our quickness I don't ever feel out of a game."

Yvonne Barnett led Ladywood with 18 points, scoring eight of the Blazers last 10 points. Chris Laliberte finished with nine points, all coming in the first half.

Sabo natural on Letterman Show

Fame and fortune may not have changed Chris Sabo much - if at all but they have landed him a few perks. Like a spot on the David Letterman show.

Sabo, a Redford Catholic Central graduate and star third baseman for the Cincinnati Reds, was the late night TV show host's final guest Thursday. He seemed a perfect choice for the oftimes wacky and alwavs unusual show.

Why? For one, Sabo has sold himself to Cincinnati as a blue collartype player, an on-the-field extension, if you will, of Reds manager Pete Rose. Rose was well-known for his hard-nosed play. Sabo is the same.

He looked the blue-collar part on the Letterman show. He wore blue jeans and a blue-jean jacket with leather trim. And, of course, he was sporting his trademark crewcut

THERE WAS good reason for his guest spot. Sabo was named the National League's rookie of the year. He batted .271 with 11 home runs and 44 runs batted in. His 40 doubles was third best in the NL. But there's more. Sabo has a reputation as being a genuine article, a down-to-earth type who drives a Ford Escort - even though he can obviously afford something better. Why drive anything else, he has been quoted as saying. A car is a tool, that's all, and an Escort gets him to and from work.

"I could own 10 Escorts for what these guys pay for one car," he has

Gems like that got him on Letterman. And Sabo delivered. Here are a few of his remarks:

On his crewcut: "It's a nice landing place for paper airplanes."

• On the difference between minor league ball in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and major league ball in Cincinnati: "The paychecks are bigger."

On his off-season workouts, which in addition to tennis and weightlifting includes aerobic dancing: "It's rhythym-type of stuff. I'm pretty clumsy.'

• On the pennant chances for the 1989 Reds: "We'll win it. There's no doubt in my mind. I wish (the season) would start right now. I'm pumped."

• On his feelings regarding females: "Hey, I'm normal."

The crowd loved it. Sabo's reaction? He seemed bewildered by the

The Shamrocks' third score was set up by another poor snap combined with a heavy CC rush, resulting in a punt of minus-5 yards that was downed at the Ford 10-yard line. Krueger scored from the 4 with 11:21 left and Elezovic's kick made it 21-0.

MACH PULLED Hauncher in the fourth quarter. The Shamrock coach was impressed by what he had seen.

(Hauncher) laid the first one up there nice," Mach said. "He's improved quite a bit this year. He's been laying the ball on the money more and our receivers have been catching the ball."

OC gained 260 yards in total offense, with 163 coming on the ground. Reserve sophomore tailback Brian Chaney was the second-leading rusher behind Krueger with 52 yards on 11 carries. Dave Owens had 26 yards on six carries. The Shamrocks picked up 14 first downs and limited the Trojans to Lincoln Park controlled the line of scrimmage in the first half. John Glenn was forced to vary it's attack in the second half. "I think we were a little too conservative in the first half," Gordon said. "But keep in mind those same plays they were stuffing on us in the first half were the same ones we went over on in the second half."

The Rocket defense earned kudos in the second half, stopping the Railsplitters on several key plays. Kraig Kuban and Dixon managed to sack Lincoln Park quarterback Harold Skinner for an 11-yard loss on one play in the third quarter, leaving the Railsplitters at their 1-yard line.

Running back Jeff Graff collected 55 yards in the first half, but was held to only seven in the second. Skinner had to go to the air and was stopped on the Railsplitters' drive deep in Rocket territory.

Our defense had to answer the challenge on that one," Gordon said.

Michigan among leaders in RV use gan and throughout America. In fact, according to statistics released by the Livonia-based Michigan Association of Recreational Vehicles and Campgrounds (MARVAC), only fishing and swimming outrank camping as the most popular participation sports in America.

MARVAC statistics also reveal that there are more recreational vehicles (RV's) per capita - one for every 30 residents - in Michigan than any state other than California — one for every 29.6 residents; Michigan ranks third nationally in the number of RV manufacturers with more than 50, behind only Indiana and California, and the Detroit market area leads the way nationally in sales per capita of travel trailers and pop-up camping trailers.

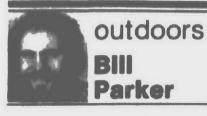

roads of Michigan, but not all of those are privately owned. Many are rented for weekend vacations or longer.

Since 1980, RV rental has increased any ally by 50 percent. There are more than 300 dealerships and 400 national chain outlets that now offer RV rental.

IF YOU'VE ever thought about owning or renting an RV, the 22nd Annual Detroit Camper and RV Show is a good place to look for answers to your questions.

The show opens at noon Saturday at the newly renovated Cobo Center in Detroit and runs through Nov. 16.

Sponsored by MARVAC, the show will feature more than 400 1989 model RV's and campers in all price ranges.

"People can see anything from a pop-up camper in the price range of about $2,000 to a luxury coach costing in excess of $30,000," said MARVAC show director Lyn Wellhausen. "We also have buying seminars, which consist of a 12-minute video followed by a question and answer session, for people interested in getting into the RV lifestyle. The seminars went over very well last year and will be repeated several times throughout the show."

Show hours are 12-6 p.m. Nov. 6, 3-10 p.m. Nov. 7-11, 12-10 p.m. Nov. 13 and 12-6 p.m.

Admission is $5 adult and $2 for children ages 6-12. Children under 5 will be admitted WELLHAUSEN pointed out that interest on an RV loan is still a legal deduction on your federal income tax form.

In 1986 Congress passed legislation that would . . . make second homes that are mobile homes or on a transient basis . . . ineligible for the mortgage interest for debts incurred after Oct. 13, 1987.

That legislation was repealed in 1987.

"They had taken away the deduction in 1986," Wellhausen explained. "But they preversed the ruling early in 1987 after we (RV). and camping organizations throughout the country) showed how big an impact we had. Now, that interest can once again be used as a federal deduction. You don't have to pay. tax on the interest of a loan for an RV."

Myrna Partrich

Watch food intake on exercise nights

Dear Myrna: I take an advanced-type aerobic class at 7:30 at night. On those nights, I eat a light dinner around 5 p.m. Lately, I've been getting a stomach ache during class. Am I eating the wrong food? Should I take class on an empty stomach?

Not a good situation. You can't continue to exercise this way. The rate of digestion is affected by many factors.

You forgot to mention what type of foods you are eating. One general digestion rule is foods higher in fat stay in your stomach longer. For example, french fried potatoes would be in your stomach 21/2 hours after you eat them. They also could be there the next day.

Through my discussions with doctors, I've learned that digestion in the stomach mixes food with secretions to form a thin, watery mixture that moves to the small intestine where absorption begins. Some foods, especially fatty foods, require more stomach digestion.

Low-fat foods like vegetables, fruits, grains, bread and pasta digest easily and leave the stomach quickly. Actually, a cold, soft or liquid meal would leave your stomach in a shorter period of time than a hot,

On the average, the stomach empties about three hours after a meal. But we are all different. You may need more time for digestion. Consider what you are eating and allow more time for digestion.

If you are eating nervously, fast food also may digest slower. You might consider a larger breakfast and a later lunch during the days you exercise at night. A light snack after exercise will probably be ample food intake for your late exercise days.

A good idea for the weekends would be to change your exercise routine to mornings or early afternoons. If your stomach ache continues, please don't avoid seeing a doctor.

(Myrna Partrich, co-owner of The Workout Company. of Bloomfield Township, is happy to answer any questions readers may have regarding exercise. Please send your letters to: Sports Department, Myrna Partrich, 1225 Bowers, Birmingham

Weight loss program introduced to area women

Area women are invited to try a weight through a new method using videotapes at home.

In Control - A Home Video Weight Loss Program is used by the American Heart Association in its health promotion program, Heart at Work.

People interested in using new program to help them lose the In Control program in their own home may now call the distributor, MMI Video, toll free at 1-800-225-7580. A Program Director will call you back with information.

Call today, between 9 and 6, to start the program by November 17th.

The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers

Have a dream? Why not build it

By Shirlee Rose iden

Sometimes its three strikes and you're out, but for Orma Lee Robins. Building an airplane from a third-hand kit turned out to be a grand slam homerun.

"Actually, I was looking for a car kit to build so I wouldn't be bored," said the Southfield aircraft mechanic. "I couldn't find a magazine for that, but I did find one for airplanes. I thought I'd try it."

Robins bought the kit from someone who failed with it and sold it to another guy, making it a third-hand kit.

Robins bought the kit in 1982 when he and his wife, Greta, were living in Maine and he was taking flying lessons. He had been thinking about what to fly.

By 1983, they were back in Michigan and living in Southfield. Robins took three years to construct his plane, mostly in the garage, but sometimes it spilled over into other areas in and out of the house.

"Once I astonished the neighbors when I rolled it outside to assemble the 22-foot wings," he said. "When I was done, I hoisted it up on the nose and sawed the wings off to get it back inside."

Not quite astonished but certainly shocked, Greta Robins was surprised at her husband's new project.

"He was on Air Force assignment as a recruiter then and just looking to build a car. I was taken aback.

"And then there was some fiber glass work done in winter, which deposited dust everywhere."

THE WHOLE family became involved her 23-year-old daughter, Michele, their 4year-old daughter, Camille, and Robins' son by a former marriage.

Lee spent three years building the plane so he wouldn't be bored," she said.

Born and raised in Trinidad, Robins her husband in England where she had worked for 20 years. She is a registered nurse now employed by Care Mark Health Care in Southfield.

Flying lessons and airplane building left little time for boredom for Robins, determined to get the maximum out of putting intricate parts together to make a flyable, airplane.

Now certified by the FAA, and after putting in all these years, I still have the plane and I fly it," he said. The plane is about the size of a small Cessna, small but adequate, he added.

Potawatomi Inn is 'in' for holidays

By Iris Sanderson Jones contributing travel editor

Q: When I was a kid in the West, we used to spend family holidays like Thanksgiving at resorts instead of at home, with parts of the family traveling from all over the area to be part of it.

Now that I have a family of my own, I would like to explore that idea. My neighbor recommended a state park in northeastern Indiana, just south of the Michigan border. What do you think?

> "Madame Sousatzka" (A) (PG-13) 122 minutes.

Lush, sensuous photography, inspired music and brilliant acting plus John Schlesinger's fine direction equal an excellent film. This touching portrait of Madame Sousatzka (Shirley MacLaine) and her obsessive piano-teaching techniques also tells the story of a young genius, Manek Sen (Navin Chowdhry). His desire to please his mother (Shabana Azmi) and his teacher, Madame Sousatzka, tears at him as does his desire for success and his awakening Elvin Bishop and Bobby Thompson have one thing in common: They're both only known for one hit.

Of course, Thompson's hit won the pennant for the New York Giants in 1951 and landed him in baseball immortality. Blues guitarist Bishop would soon forget his.

"Fooled Around and Fell in Love" shot up to No. 2 on the pop charts in 1976, earning Bishop a gold record and a slew of national television appearances. Problem is that's what most non-blues folk recall when hearing the name Elvin Bishop, even though it was Mickey Thomas of Jefferson Starship fame who actually sang the tune.

"No sense in fighting it, really," said Bishop, who will appear tonight at the Blind Pig in Ann Arbor. 'That's just the way the pop music structure is."

Music aficionadoes remember Bishop jamming with the late Mike Bloomfield in The Paul Butterfield Band, which was at the forefront of the blues rock'n'roll revival of the Bishop then set out on his own, gaining a reputation as one of the premiere guitarists of that era. He was considered in the same class as Jimi Hendrix and Eric Clapton as a young up-and-coming guitarist.

In fact, Bishop used to jam with Clapton and Hendrix along with B.B. King in legendary sessions at the Fillmore in San Francisco.

CLAPTON AND Hendrix went on to bigger things. Bishop continued down the less-revered path.

"I don't have a good memory," said Bishop about those times. "I try not to live in the past."

Those guitar slinging sessions with Hendrix and Clapton are a blip in the memory bank. And so is Bishop's distasteful foray into commercial music, which included his record company folding and owing him money.

Bishop is setting his sights on his current tour. The Tulsa, Okla., na-tive recently released his first album in seven years, "Big Fun," on Alliga-

Creating 'dreams' from a kit

Presently, Robins works for Northwest Airlines in Minnesota. After completing a six-month probationary period there, he looks forward to coming home to his family.

"One weekend I flew home, but got weathered in by thunderstorms and had to fly commercially to get back to work," he said.

Robins said his plane makes life

"It's the topic of discussion wherever you go. They all think you're nuts, especially when they find it has a Volkswagon engine." he said. "Navigation is a lot easier now. I just purchased a special radio for this and it tells you everything you need to know."

A MAJOR event in Robin's life was attending an air show in Oshkosh, Wisc. The show is considered a mecca for plane owners.

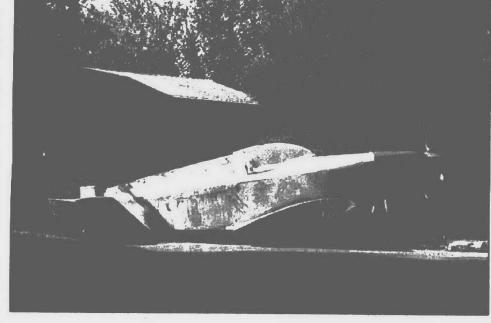

"It's always a good show and this time they even had the Concorde there," he said. "There also were hundreds of home builts (kit airplanes)." Oshkosh also was a trip for Kenneth Schuman as well. Since February 1987, when he soared in a 36minute flight above the Oakland-Pontiac Airport, the Westland pilot has hardly come down to earth.

Newly certified by the Federal Aviation Administration, he had put in 14 years building the BD-5, an experimental one-seater plane.

"It was thrilling," said Schuman, 43. His smiling wife, Suzanne, recalls that he looked "like a kid on Christmas morning" when he came down. Schuman, who was taken with the Schuman has been flying for 10 years and is a member of the Backyard Eagles, a chapter of the Experimental Airplane Association. He and Robins are acquainted through membership in flying clubs.

"After 97 hours of flying time, I'm still making modifications to the plane," he said. "You always have to improve them, though they are pretty flyable.

'MY FAMILY helped me a lot in building my plane. A lot of people might start and give up because it takes years, but I'm a private pilot and I've always been interested.'

A tale of a car that ate the garage

By Shirlee Rose Iden staff writer

Cars burn oil and eat gasoline, but one car simply ate the garage.

Our new condominium in West Bloomfield came with a two-car garage, armed with a magic device to open and close the doors, an open sesame fantasy. On frigid winter nights, just a squeeze of a button inside your car and in one magic moment, you're warm and safe in your own garage. A comfort, coveted and appreciated, and guarded, too, it seems. Six months after our move in, my hobby happy hubby moved in on the garage with plans to build a 1929 Mercedes

When it was duly delivered and a Volkswagen chassis chosen for the "guts," Jack's own wheels were summarily ousted, his faithful Audi left out in the cold. Maybe he deserved

But when parts and frame are laid out next to the chassis for work purposes, the car eats up the total garage space. So far my little blue sports car has sizzled in the sun for the summer season. If autumn's here, who knows what comes next.

A lot more elbow grease and head scratching loom ahead before the cream-colored, brown-trimmed Mercedes will be ready to gas up and go. Right now December and January's ice storms seem dangerously near.

When I met Jack 41 years ago, he already had more than 10 years of doing hand-builts behind him, and he was only 17.

With three brothers in service during World War II and one a Marine Corps pilot, Jack built just about every balsa wood model airplane he could find and afford and dreamed of flying himself someday.

JUST FOR fun, he constructed kites as a young teen. When our three kids were halfgrown, about 20 years ago, Jack heard the hum of ham radio and went through a phase, which for him meant building his own radio and transmitter. Somehow, once he put these intricate mechanisms together, he seemed to lose interest and look for another challenge.

The Mercedes came into our lives last September when upon returning from an overseas trip we whiled away several hours at John F. Kennedy Airport in New York.

There, on display, was the very Mercedes Jack later opted to build. An automotive designer's delight, it was something to gaze and wonder

Shirlee Iden

Jack speculated only about its buildability, and shortly after returning home, he ordered the kit. Its arrival was akin to a feeling that we were once again expectant, except the baby was here and needed more than a few finishing touches. Jack set out to find a suitable chassis so he could begin. After he found Recycled Bugs - The Parts Place, out near the Silverdome, a chassis was delivered. And when Jack got Don Waters, whose knowledge of cars and their innards is vast, things started to move.

For my hobby happy hubby, it's exciting.

"It's dealing with things you've always left to a mechanic," he says. Working from the bare 1968 pan and frame, you can really learn about every part of a car."

SO FAR, Don and Jack have replaced or rebuilt the hydraulic brakes and the transmission, redone the brake linings, disassembled the wheel housings and put in new rear brakes, master cyclinder, starter, distributor and carburetor.

The kit car is designed for a Volkswagen chassis, and we're marrying the chassis to the frame in a way to make repairs practical," Jack explains.

There's still a long ride to the finish line and an infinite amount that I don't understand at all. The day they started the engine was a real red letter day, with sparks literally flying.

But tasks loom ahead. Every possible afternoon, the work goes on, making it a treacherous trek through the garage, over parts large and small and the clutter that has devoured every inch of the garage

Curious friends and neighbors come by from time to time, often with generous offers to help. But most of these garage gazers stand back and watch, stay for a rundown of what's going on and disappear.

Since 1929 is the year of Jack's birth, I'm cheering for him to get the car on the road by next April for the 60th birthday celebration of himself and his kit car.

But what really worries me is what Jack's next project will be.

Jigsaw puzzles date to 1760s printmaker

(AP) — Scatter the pieces of a jig-saw puzzle on a table and few people can resist the challenge.

Collector Anne D. Williams was entranced by the compelling nature of picture puzzles at an early age and those early hours spent around a table littered with puzzle pieces sparked a love of puzzles that has continued to grow. Today, Williams has a collection of warm than 1 800. has a collection of more than 1,800 jigsaw puzzles and related exam-

According to Williams, the first known jigsaw puzzles were made by London printmaker John Spilsbury during the 1760s. Hand-colored maps, engraved and printed at Spilsbury's shop, were mounted on thin mahogany boards to be cut with a coping-type saw into large, non-in-terlocking pieces along the bounda-ries of the countries.

Envious of Spilsbury's success, other printmakers soon began to copy and profit from his innovation. But it was the mid-1780s before anyone made the leap from maps, which seemed so logically divisible, to making puzzles of other subjects.

AS THE subject matter changed, so did the cutting style. Expensive hardwoods were still the preferred material, but unlike Spilsbury's pro-totypes, these puzzles were laboriously cut with large interlocking border pieces that framed a series of simply cut interior shapes. It was a style that would persist for an entire century.

Although a few purely frivolous puzzles entertained children in the late 1700s and early 1800s, most of these early puzzles were made with a child's education foremost in mind. Maps were a mainstay, but puzzles taught math, grammar, natural history, religion, politics and geogra-

By the 1850s, however, pleasure puzzles had surpassed their more pedantic predecessors in popularity. Puzzle makers in England, France and Germany began to dissect a huge variety of non-educational pictures, and soon America joined in.

During the last 30 years of the 19th century, American manufacturers also began to use cardboard as a backing for their puzzles, another innovation that assured their success. Puzzles had always been child's play, but during the late 1800s new technical developments, such as the power scroll saw (later know as the jigsaw) and the invention of plywood, made increasingly difficult puzzles feasible.

By 1908, the puzzle craze was on. A wooden jigsaw puzzle or two became a required element of every society house party.

AS THE public's expertise grew, manufacturers and individual puzzle makers increased the difficulty of their puzzles. Manufacturers developed intricate new styles of interlocking cuts that included special figural pieces. Other makers cut puzzles without interlocking pieces at Puzzle mania swept America again during the dark years of the Great Depression, as people sought distraction from their troubles. Amateur puzzle makers abounded as out-of-work men and women turned their skills to the jigsaw in hopes of making a meager living.

With the advent of television and

But in many ways, the art of the jigsaw puzzle didn't reach its frustrating pinnacle until 1960, with the production of Jackson Pollock's abstract painting "Convergence" in puzzle form. This measurerising puzzle, manufactured by Springhok, sold more than 100,000 copies in a few months and continues to be known as one of the most maddening nuzzles. one of the most maddening puzzles Wooden puzzies also have made a comeback. A few dozen artists are currently crafting stock and customordered wooden puzzles that rival the finest old puzzles in difficulty. Prices start at around $75 and rise to several thousand dollars.

According to Williams, a puzzle's value is largely determined by its age, rarity and graphic appeal. The quality of the craftsmanship, both in the picture and the cutting, and the number of pieces may have a bear-ing on the puzzle's value, as will its condition, completeness and presence of the original box. Puzzles by known makers are preferred.

PRICES VARY widely, although most available examples fall into the $5 to $100 range. Cardboard puz-zies for adults dating from the 1930s on usually sell for less than $10, but children's puzzles from this period will be a bit more.

Children's puzzles from the 1800s may sell for $50 to $400, while a complete 18th-century puzzle in its original box may fetch $200 to $600. A rare example such as a Spilsbury, of which only a handful are known to exist, may cost $1,500 to $3,000 or Missing pieces or boxes, poor condition or lack of visual appeal would lower these estimates.

It's always risky buying a puzzle in an unassembled state, Williams said. Missing pieces are the most common puzzle flaw. As with most collectibles, however, it's often worth buying a less than perfect puzzle, if it's an unusual or rare exam-

ALVIN Toffler, the futurist who for a decade has been predicting the rise of the "electronic cottage" as a combined home and workplace, said he's pleasantly surprised to find the times are catching up.

The author of "Future Shock," "The Third Wave" and the new "Previews and Premises" noted in a recent interview that just a few years ago, he considered estimates that the home work force would top 15 million by 1990 optimistic, yet they already have been surpassed. The futurist was in town to speak to an audience of the converted — a conference for businesses which sell electronic gear to those who work at home. That itself is a measure of changing times, he said. Home workers tend to be entrepreneurs, consultants and otherwise independent types, because many of those who run big organizations are reluctant to give up control over their employees, Toffier said. But traditional corporate accounting fails to note tremendous savings home work could bring society by cutting the time spent commuting and the amount government spends on roads and public transit.

"What we're discovering is that the major institutions in our society - hospitals, prisons, corporate bureaucracies — are very expensive ways to get anything done," said Toffler. ". . . A small investment in en-couraging the creation of decentralized workplace would be a far more effective way of cutting down the cost of the transportation than any amount of mass transit."

THE GOVERNMENT data from 1985 show about 54 percent of those who work at home hold managerial and professional jobs, while 28 percent are in technical, sales and support occupations. A variety of other categories, including crafts, service and manufacturing, account for the

The government found only about 7 percent of those who worked at home in 1985 did so full-time. The Link survey found 21 percent of the home workers were full-time in 1987 and 24 percent, or 6 million, considered themselves full-time home workers this year.

Seeing the light Cranbrook style

By Dave Varge

It's fireworks for the MTV generation.

Every weekend teenagers and yuppies, handholding couples and entire families pack into the Cranbrook Institute of Science planetarium to gaze up at the indoor dome for a laser light show.

The 45-minute show features brilliant, cooh-inducing lines of color in ever-changing, 3-D shapes that flow and pulse to a rock-and-roll beat. Results can be breathtaking or overwhelming, depending on how long your eyes can hold out. Unlike fireworks, the dazzling display only pauses between songs. Video thrills, no waiting.

There is waiting to get in, though. Crowds line up on any given weekend for the three Friday and two Saturday night shows. On a recent visit to Cranbrook, the Saturday night shows were both sold out, with lines of visitors waiting among the m use um's rows of encased quarts and other minerals.

It's generally a younger crowd, just the folks the laser shows are supposed to bring into the prestigous Bloomfield Hills science museum. "Most (shows) are rock and roll, designed for high school and collegeage students. It's an age that people don't always come out to a museum, so this brings them out," says Doug Goudie, coordinator of the laser show.

This night featured the "Genesis" show, with nine tunes from the British rock group varying from the days when Peter Gabriel fronted them to the more successful Phil Collins days. It continues through Dec. 10 and will be followed by "The British Invasion." Saturday and Sunday afternoon shows, meanwhile, feature "The History of Rock and Roll." (Call 645-3200 for details.)

FOR MOST visitors, the music didn't matter. Young Bridget Schultz of Bloomfield Hills said she liked the show, but she wasn't a Genesis fan.

Adult Frank Saluk of Royal Oak, though, is a Phil Collins fan. "I enjoy this type of music," he said. But, his son, Cliff, and Cliff's friend, Dan Doctor, don't. "They didn't tell us the music until after we got here," Cliff said. Their preference? "Iron Maiden," Doctor said.

David Alioa of Canton said he had seen a similar laser show in California, while his date, Shelley Rothenberg of Oak Park, hadn't. "But I enjoyed what I saw," she said. Alioa said he did too. "The only thing is I wish he'd make it louder and keep it wider." he said.

The six loudspeakers in the 33-seat planetarium provided ample volume for most listeners. It doesn't reach the decibel level of a Poison concert, but Goudie said some folks treat it as a concert and sing along.

As for the width of the laser lights, Mark Green of Bloomfield Hills also noticed they were kept in the middle of the rounded ceiling. "It wasn't wide enough. It was really narrow," he said.

The laser lights — which dance and play among stars, planets and other heavenly bodies projected on the ceiling — are kept in the middle of the ceiling for good reason, Goudie said, "If someone was tall enough and jumped high enough and caught a laser in the eye, they could be in big trouble"

THE PIERCING clarity of the lights can be tiring. At times people closed their eyes. The slower songs and correspondingly slower lights were relieving. "My eyes got really tired and started twitching," Green said. "It's almost like looking at a strobe light."

Goudle or other light operators keep the lights throbbing to the music. "It's a live show really," Goudle said. A Boston firm called Image Engineering Inc. creates shapes and designs that seem to fit the songs and matches them on digital quality video. Shapes on that tape can then be manipulated during each show on a control board, which adds the special effects and different colors.

"We listen closely to what the audience seems to like, whether they clap or cheer. That's where the showmanship comes in. It's a very important live aspect that makes every show different," Goudle said.

In fact, the show operators that night, Ray Koltys and Jon Barth, both kept their eyes trained on the ceiling during the performance, breaking into smiles several times at their executions.

Those creations can leave the viewer speechless, while at other times it forces some kind of vocal response. Very impressive.

ALTHOUGH THE light images can look still, the beam actually is continually retracing each an image it projects about 30 times per second, Goudie said.

The system is worth about $500,000, Goudie said. But, since it was built from scratch, Cranbrook turns a profit on most shows, he said. Charge for the light shows is $1.50 per person over regular museum admission of $3 for adults, $2 for students and senior citizens.

"Our most popular were the Wall (by Pink Floyd). We added extra shows consistently for five months," Goudie said. That show may return because it was so popular.

force the restrictions contained within the Declaration of Covenants. What can I do? A. Find out who the directors and/or of the association are and write them a letter reminding them of their responsibilities. Tell them that you expect them to adhere to their responsibilities in enforcing the homeowners association restrictions and bylaws and otherwise collecting assessments from all members timely. Tell them that you expect that everyone in the community will adhere to the restrictions and rules and regulations that they have a fidu-

Kitchens key in new h

EW HOME shoppers enter the marketplace with a vast and varied list of criteria ranging from the number of bedrooms to the dimensions of the family room. When it comes to the kitchen, many people are more impressed by appearances than good design. Flaws are not obvious until after the purchase, when the new owners actually use the

"It's ironic that kitchens and baths are the rooms that sell homes, yet many novice home buyers are unaware of what constitutes good kitchen design," said Francis Jones, CKD. executive director of the National Kitchen and Bath Association. "People tend to evaluate a kitchen on looks and newness, as they would a living room or a deck. The big difference is that the kitchen is actually a workshop, where meals are pre-pared and entertaining is done. A good floor plan is critical to the success of both activities," Jones said.

To help new home buyers evaluate the quality of their kitchens, Jones identified seven key areas that de-· COUNTER SPACE - The basic requirement is at least 24 inches of space on either side of the sink and 12 to 18 inches on each side of the range. Avoid an isolated refrigerator with no adjacent counter space. The need for "landing space" next to the handle side of the refrigerator is especially important because we usually remove more than one item at a time. Fifteen inches is the minimum recommended amount of counter space.

• STORAGE - What's inside a cabinet is as important as what's outside, storage aids such as slideout pantries, roll-out drawers, cutlery dividers, tilt-out sink fronts and roll-out trash bins enhance efficien-

PROPER LIGHTING - The move toward multipurpose kitchens is accompanied by more sophisticated lighting needs. In addition to general overhead lighting is a need for task lighting over the sink and count-prevents smoke, grease and odors from circulating through the house. Range hoods maybe sufficient to do the job, or additional fans and blowers may be necessary.

• SAFETY — Traffic patterns should not interfere with the work triangle. The fewer people who intersect the cook's path, the less chance for an accident to occur. When cross traffic is inevitable, at least the range-to-sink path should be uninterrupted by household traffic, as this is where grease spills, steaming pots and others hazards are most likely to occur.

Other safety considerations should include avoidance of sharp corners on islands, which are usually eyelevel with children and hip level with adults. Microwave ovens should be placed no higher than eye level. Any ADEQUATE CLEARANCE SPACE - For safety, comfort and efficiency, it's imperative that clearance spaces be allowed for opening the oven, refrigerator, dishwasher and cabinet doors, using the appliances, passing behind seated diners and passing other family members in the kitchen.

For example, for easy access, a dishwasher requires 42 inches from the front of the unit to the surface opposite it. An additional 20 inches space next to the dishwasher is required for loading and unloading.

A common mistake is to install the unit adjacent to a corner-angled sink or at a right angle to the sink, ignoring the 20-inch requirement. The user cannot stand at the sink or near dish storage to load and unload.

'It's ironic that kitchens and baths are rooms that sell homes, yet many novice buyers are unaware of what constitutes good kitchen design.'

Who says lake living's just fun in the summer?

Living on Ford Lake's great 365 days a year. In summer, there are all the watersports, tennis and sunworshipping pleasures. In fall, the color change is spectacular when you take a walk or jog. In winter, the cross-country skiing, snowmobiling, snowman-building, ice-skating and ice-boating are tops. (So are the indoor pleasures of watching the snow fall through your balcony window.) It's active, Year-round on the outside. Quiet and peaceful on the inside. See all that the designer-decorated 1 and 2 bedroom contemporary apartments can offer you. Now.
