Downtown area tested for oil fumes

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

Amoco Corp. has hired an engineering firm to determine to what extent fuel oil from a leaky tank has contaminated groundwater and soil in downtown Plymouth.

Doug's Plymouth Standard at Ann Arbor Trail and Main Street is leased from Amoco.

Neyer, Tiseo & Hinds Ltd. of Farmington Hills recently drilled about a dozen 15-foot wells at the gas station, in the Mayflower Hotel parking lot across Main Street and near the office building and Mayflower Meeting House next to the station.

Test results will be available after the first of the year, said David LeClerc, Neyer, Tiseo & Hinds geologist.

Amoco's underground tank, used to store heating oil, was removed several years ago. However the escaped No. 2 fuel oil was left untouched.

request of Ralph Lorenz, owner of the office building and Mayflower Meeting House.

Lorenz's tenants over the years have complained about fuel oil odors and health problems they suspected were associated with breathing the fumes.

The Observer is among Lorenz's tenants. In the early 1980s, the Wayne County Health Department took air samples at the newspaper's request. The department said inhaling the fumes could cause headaches and nausea, but that they did not present a health hazard.

Lorenz said several thousand dollars have been spent "just piddling around. We haven't even scratched the surface."

"We've had to replace several sump pumps (underneath the office building)," said Lorenz, who installed fans in the basement to get rid of the odor. "The problem is that that's the point of entry. The oil would mix with the water, and then the pump would break down. Pumps

Plant gets clean report on noise

Howmet Corp. on Ann Arbor Road is no worse a noise polluter than other sources in the area — contrary to what some people who live nearby may believe.

"That conclusion was related to the Plymouth Township Board Tuesday by the engineer who conducted a study there at the board's request."

"If the plant weren't there, noise level wouldn't change appreciably," Richard Kolano told the Observer in a separate interview.

"The plant produces no more significant contribution in noise than do other noise contributors in the area such as CSX Railroad, Spartan truck warehouse or traffic noise on Ann Arbor Road," Kolano said.

COMPLAINTS from people who live east of Howmet prompted the study. Howmet manufactures jet engine parts. The township and Howmet split the cost of the study.

Three noise analyzers were placed several hundred feet apart along Howmet's east property line.

Measurements were taken July 26 through Aug. 5. During that time, the plant was in full operation and down for scheduled maintenance work.

One woman who lives in the area alleged that the data wasn't valid because Howmet operations were gearing down when data was collected. Kolano said glitches were factored out.

Miami bound

CEP band will participate in Orange Bowl parade

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

Drum major Jason Smigell says he doesn't even care if his marching band's performance at the Orange Bowl parade — to be televised New Year's Eve night from Miami — gets bumped by a Coors commercial.

"I'm sure it'll be an ultimate blast. We're really looking forward to it," said Smigell, assistant field general for the Centennial Educational Park Marching Band. "This is something everyone will remember for the rest of their lives."

Edging out all of its Michigan competitors, the Plymouth-Canton marching band was among just 10 selected from 250 nationwide by the Orange Bowl Committee to partake in pregame hoopla. The band and color guard, 161 strong, will perform a show featuring the Mickey Mouse March and hits from the "Music Man."

The Orange Bowl will be played Jan. 2. By that time, the Plymouth-Canton contingent will be back home. But no one involved seems to care about missing the game. They're not even sure who's playing.

"I'm a Michigan fan. I don't follow who's going to the Orange Bowl," said Smigell.

Judy Lore, president of the music boosters, said Nebraska is one of the bowl teams. She's not sure, nor does she particularly care, who they're playing (Miami).

FUND RAISING HAS been uppermost in her mind. The five-day trip will cost about $530 per student. So far, only about half the money has been raised.

Band members and boosters have collected returnable bottles, washed cars, and sold candy bars, pizza coupons and decals.

They've performed for donations on downtown corners, and even marched down the street and up to the door of a Plymouth Township man whose wife hired the band for his surprise birthday party.

"We've played everywhere from old folks homes to Unisys and Rotary," said Smigell.

Lore helped out on the bottle detail.

"The band room is filled with bottles. It's a messy job. We've learned to wear rubber gloves when sorting them," said Lore. "The worst are the beer bottles. The smell of stale beer is unbelievable."

Donors will receive Orange Bowl T-shirts, compliments of the band. Anyone interested in supporting the cause may send a tax-deductible contribution to the Plymouth-Canton Music Boosters, c/o the Orange Bowl Fund, Canton High School, 8415 Canton Center Road, Canton 48187.

They want YOU:

By Doug Funke
staff writer

Richard Hopson and Ron Shaffer are two polite, soft-spoken guys who have a simple goal in their workaday world: to average about four recruits per month.

Hopson, a staff sergeant, and Shaffer, a sergeant, tend to recruiting duties for the U.S. Army in Plymouth and Canton.

The two, fairly new to the community, apparently do good work.

They received a plaque for operating the most productive small recruiting station among 10 in south-east Michigan for the three-month period ending Sept. 30.

They signed up 10 when seven were expected.

Hopson, 30, a seven-year veteran, has been a recruiter for 2 1/4 years and expects to make recruiting/counseling his career in the Army.

He worked in radio/teletype communications before becoming a recruiter.

Shaffer, 24, most recently a tank commander, just started recruiting in July. You can tell his heart still longs for an armor division in which he served for six years.

WHEN YOU'RE in the military and exceptionally good at what you do, you tend to get moved into people-contact jobs, the non-commissioned officers said.

"They go through all the military fields and they tell us they take the top 10 percent and if there isn't a job shortage, they snatch you up for drill sergeant or recruiter," Hopson said.

The Army isn't a hard sell in Plymouth and Canton, the two agree. They visit Canton, Salem and Plymouth Christian high schools several times a week just to let students know they're interested.

Shaffer said he likes to attend high school athletic events.

"Basically, our job is to find people who are interested and prequalify them," Hopson said. "I turn down more people than are put in."

INVOLVEMENT in a single misdemeanor incident like trespassing or disorderly conduct — even though it never shows up on a state criminal history due to an advisement plea — could disqualify an applicant, Hopson said.

Amoco testing for oil contamination

aren't made to pump a combination of oil and water. They'd give way in six months instead of five years."

"It's been a 30-year problem," added Lorenz, who estimates that the fuel oil has spread to an area 25,000 to 30,000 square feet in size.

A federal law effective Dec. 23 mandates stepped-up monitoring of underground tanks. But Lorenz and Amoco say that's not the reason for the drilling. Nor is poor air or water quality, said Lorenz.

"It's a good time to take charge, now that E.F. Hutton is out of there," said Lorenz. Hutton moved into the Observer office after the newspaper moved to another office without a basement elsewhere in the building.

"Hutton had computers that would have been upset" by drilling or otherwise attacking the problem, Lorenz said.

AMOCO SPOKESMAN Chuck Mason said, "People should have no new concerns. This is part of a thorough investigation to make sure all the information is available. This situation stems from a years-ago practice of storing heating oil underground. We don't do it any more. This material is years old. No more has been contributed, so it's not something that's a worsening kind of situation."

"If a situation hasn't caused a problem in 10 years, generally speaking that's the experience you would find in the next 10 years," added Mason.

How much Amoco will spend, and what the company will do to clean up the contaminated soil and water Amoco can't yet say, said Mason.

"It'll depend on the detailed information contained in the report," he said.

LeClerc, who hopes to have results in January, said options for cleaning up a contaminated site range from chemical processes to leveling a building to remove soil.

Mason doesn't see much wisdom in the latter solution.

"In moving contaminated earth from one place to another, you risk environmental problems," he said. "People say it's easy, but how much do you gain by moving a problem from one place to another?"

"I don't think it'll get that complicated, but (having to level the building) could easily happen," said Lorenz, who covered the floor of the E.F. Hutton office with plastic before Hutton remodeled and moved in.

"Certainly I'm not going to do anything that drastic" unless it's absolutely necessary, said Lorenz.

ACCORDING TO Mason, "There's experience to show that this is not a threat to the public. What I am talking about is fuel stations. We have refineries that have been operating for years."

"Obviously we're very sensitive to that, and if there were a problem, there would be a great accumulation of medical studies and data that would go along with it. There just isn't any significant correlation of serious problems."

"If fumes are introduced into a small space and people aren't used to it, it would be irritating," Mason added.

"What we'll almost always say when this comes up is that people should seek their own medical attention. What may affect one person wouldn't necessarily affect the next."

Dr. Donald Lawrence, medical director for the Wayne County Health Department, said fuel oil No. 2 contains benzene, a known carcinogen.

"Over the long term and the short-term, especially for people with chronic respiratory conditions, individuals can be thrown into a health condition they ordinarily wouldn't have," said Lawrence.

"The good news is a taste or odor problem will originate before it reaches toxic levels. People don't have to worry about being exposed to this unknowingly. We are concerned about this and will follow up on it to the best of our ability."

Recruiters honored for operation

Waivers routinely are granted to get people into the Army, but those who plead responsible for misdemeanors can never serve in military intelligence or as military police, Hopson said.

Recruits must be high school graduates and can't have any serious health problems.

"Once we get 'em in and interview, we can pretty much tell how they (prospects) are going to do by questions they ask," Shaffer said.

"EVERYBODY'S motives are different — training, educational incentives, adventure, cash bonus, serve their country. In my case, it was a $5,000 bonus," he said.

Of those who enlist, about half initiate contact with Hopson or Shaffer, while the recruiters reach the prospect first the rest of the time, they said.

Infantry still is a popular choice even though much of the Army's advertising promotes technical jobs, Shaffer said. Infantry recruits want to move into airborne ranger and military police.

"I show 'em programs, call 'em up every couple weeks and if they decide, they decide," Shaffer said of his low-key approach.

Both Hopson and Shaffer took a six-week recruiting course at Fort Benjamin Harrison in Indianapolis before they were assigned a territory they requested.

"IT MOSTLY deals with sales techniques, talking over the phone, high school programs," Hopson said. "They really harp on recruiting imperatives. They don't want us to mess up because it will make the papers."

The two admitted to getting pep talks from higher-ups, but if a recruiter just has a devil of a time, he'll be taken out of the field after a year with no negative career ramifications, they said.

Hopson, a native Detroit, lives in Plymouth with his wife and two children. He loves to hunt and escape to the Upper Peninsula whenever he gets the chance.

Shaffer, single, grew up in Albion and still makes a 150-mile daily commute while waiting for paperwork to be completed so he can rent in the Plymouth community.

He's a sports enthusiast. Both often work into the early evening hours and sometimes on weekends.

"I like being in a job where you have a direct impact on what goes on," Hopson said. "What we do here matters. You can actually see it here."

Shaffer said he most enjoys finding quality people.

The adjustment to recruiting hasn't been so easy, he conceded.

"Going from a tank commander and no paperwork to just paperwork, this is really rough," Shaffer said.

Robert Schumacher, production manager at Howmet, said some complaints are seasonal, arising when people spend more time outdoors and open windows in spring.

OTHER COMPLAINTS have surfaced recently.

"We have outside storage. We tried to organize that before the snow falls," Schumacher said. "We've erected a few sound barriers. We understand we've got to work and co-exist."

Howmet is operating an outside storage area without necessary approvals, said James Anulewicz, township planning director.

"It's not appropriate adjacent to residents," Anulewicz said. "We'll work with them on outside uses."

The plant encompasses about 120,000 square feet.

Both Anulewicz and Clint Stroebel, the township's code enforcement officer, said they've received few complaints about noise at Howmet recently.

ANULEWICZ SAID he didn't know without further research whether the houses or Howmet were first on the scene.

While some residents may be bothered by noises coming from Howmet near their yards at specific times — a forklift, a truck going by, clanging — the effect of that noise activity "is no more significant statistically than a horn from a train or a jet passing overhead," Kolano said.

"Annoyance of sound is subjective," he added. Kolano will work with other township administrators to try to develop a measurable, enforceable noise ordinance.

When Plymouth and Canton rode the rails

By Susan Buck
staff writer

The clank and clamor of the interurban going down Main Street is but a memory out of Plymouth's past.

Riding the "electrics" was both fun and necessary.

In tracking the history of Michigan's interurban rail system, three metropolitan Detroit men recently completed a series of books detailing train, interurban, boat and bus operations in Michigan.

"When Eastern Michigan Rode the Rails - Volume 3" published by Interurban Press and selling for $39.95, has 350 rare illustrations spread over 224 pages plus a narrative on early travel in Eastern Michigan. A portion of the book covers the Plymouth-Northville area.

The book is available at Plymouth Yard Hobbies and Gifts, Bookstall on the Main in Northville and B. Dalton Bookseller in Westland.

"WE TALK about the transportation corridor from Detroit west. Our series covers the complete history of the transportation lines radiating out of Detroit," said William Henning, a professor at Macomb County Com-

'The interurban would stop right in front of your house. They ran from six in the morning and ran until eight or nine at night.'

— William Henning

munity College. "We got together because there was an interest and need to write books about public transportation."

Henning, a Fraser resident researched and wrote the series with Jack Schramm of Detroit, a retired superintendent of payroll with the DSR. They were assisted by Richard Andrews, a Westland resident, who is a retired AAA Michigan Automobile Club travel and map department staffer and map specialist.

These transit historians received an Award of Merit from the Historical Society of Michigan for their 14-year extensive research. The books feature previously unpublished maps, old transfers and photos of electric and steam trains, buses and lake boats.

The authors also helped to established the Michigan Transit Museum in 1973 west of downtown Mt. Clemens. The museum is a non-profit corporation built to compile and record historical data on mass transportation systems and equipment which also collects, preserves, displays and operates this equipment.

THE BOOK series is an outgrowth of both the museum and the friendship of the three men.

"The series has been mentioned on the Johnny Carson show," said Henning.

"Ninety percent of the information, especially photos, was gleaned from scrapbooks," said Henning.

He estimates that interurban cars last ran through Plymouth near the end of the 1920s.

"It's the old story," he said. "As the roads were paved in the late Interurban 29 stands in front of the depot at Main and Penniman.

1920s, the buses started going down the road. As the buses went down the road, people left the interurbans because the interurbans did not go directly into Detroit.

"You had to go down to Wayne to go into Detroit. Now you had buses going straight from Detroit and you had automobiles coming in," said Henning.

The first cars which ran through this area had a top speed of 30 mph. By the end of the 1920s, the cars were capable of doing 60 and 70 mph, said Henning.

"THE TRACKS were on the roadway right of way. Because they were so quiet, there were many accidents," he said.

Greenmead, in Livonia, has the last station which is actually a waiting room.

"People used the interurbans to go anywhere and everywhere," said Henning. "The interurban would stop right in front of your house. They ran from six in the morning and ran until eight or nine at night."

Schoolchildren and factory workers also depended on them, added Schramm.

By 1900, Detroit boasted more extensive interurban mileage than any other city in the United States, a position it held until 1903 when Indianapolis surpassed it, according to "Detroit - Its Trolleys and Interurbans," a book published by the Michigan Transit Museum.

Book recounts probe of Oakland child killer

By Dave Varga
staff writer

Police haven't given up on finding who killed Mark Stebbins, Jill Robinson, Kristine Mihelich and Timothy King.

Although the Oakland County Task Force closed its doors at the former Valley Woods School in Beverly Hills exactly 10 years ago today, local police say they're still following up on tips to find the so-called Oakland County child killer.

A new book, "Wolf in Sheep's Clothing" by Tommy McIntyre, details the story of the investigation into the abductions and murders that shocked the entire county. And police officials who were involved in the task force say they can only hope readers may be spurred to remember some detail or tip to help them solve the cases.

"In all honesty," said Jerry Tobias, Franklin's deputy police chief, "I don't think a day goes by that I don't think about it. It's there. It's still open. It's unfinished business. It won't be (closed) until there's an answer."

The investigation is continuing "in greater depth than people realize," Tobias said. He regularly checks out tips on the cases from the Michigan State Police office in Northville.

ANOTHER TASK FORCE member, Rollin G. "Jerry" Tobin, was Birmingham's police chief then and now heads Southfield's public safety department. Tobin wants the book to stir up some information. "I hope someone out there will somehow realize they're sitting on a fact. Somebody has to know who the killer is."

Some task force members "get together for a few beers every now and then," Tobin said, "and we get a little sick to our stomachs about it."

Author McIntyre interviewed both Tobias and Tobin at length before writing the book. Tobin called it "extremely factual." Tobias said, "It's factual, but it's been embellished to make it more interesting to the reader and to add to the intrigue."

McIntyre, who lives in Southfield, has been a broadcast journalist and investigative reporter for more than 30 years. He's spent the last 12 at WWJ-AM in Detroit where he currently does a once-a-day radio commentary.

As one of the reporters covering the story, McIntyre said he became close friends with many officers, including state police Capt. Robert Robertson, who headed up the task force. Now retired, Robertson asked McIntyre to write the book.

MCINTYRE STARTED with six cardboard file boxes filled with memos, newspaper clippings and other information that Robertson gave him. The reporter then taped 30 hours of interviews with officers involved in the case. Robertson served as technical adviser, reviewing the chapters as they were finished for accuracy or probable accuracy, since much of the dialogue had to be re-created.

"It was a real help knowing these people as well as I did because I knew how they thought. And Robertson said I was right on," McIntyre said from his home office.

The book is a compelling tale. Its 231 pages are condensed from the original 576 pages that took McIntyre five years to complete.

He's quick to point out that the book isn't too detailed about the victims, only the investigation. McIntyre said he contacted Timothy King's parents. "They declined to be interviewed. They weren't that happy that we were even resurrecting this thing," McIntyre said.

Despite the bitter memories, the book reveals several heretofore unpublicized details about the investigation.

ONE OF THE most interesting is the fact that while King was still listed as missing, chief assistant county prosecutor Richard Thompson signed a memo authorizing police to stop and search cars on the road after midnight. Although the searches were illegal, it was a risk the police took and a secret the media kept, McIntyre said.

"Everybody pulled out all the stops. I've never seen so much cooperation with the media. Nobody violated that," McIntyre said.

The media, which crawled all over the investigation, also caused problems, McIntyre said. For instance, one main suspect was a Farmington Hills priest who was convicted of molesting two young boys. He passed a lie-detector test supposedly proving he wasn't involved in the child killings.

"We made him more of a suspect than he was," McIntyre recalled. "You have to remember at that time the community was in a hanging mood."

As for theories about who did it, McIntyre disagrees with the common belief that the killer is either dead, in prison or cloistered away in a rest home somewhere.

"I THINK THE guy just stopped killing, and he's still out there someplace. He was able to stop killing kids the way some people stop smoking. I also think the guy is smart enough to know that if he did it again, he'd be caught," McIntyre said.

Although some would say the task force and its investigation was a failure, McIntyre doesn't agree.

"The task force at that point in time did everything they could have done to try to catch the child killer, but what they did is bust two child porn rings and ferret out a lot of child molesters," he said.

Investigators started from scratch to set up the task force, a concept of meshing different police jurisdictions that hadn't been attempted before, McIntyre said. Task force members even helped other communities, like Atlanta, set up their investigative teams, he said.

When Shawn Moore of Livingston County was murdered, a former Oakland task force member, state police detective Joe Kresse, helped organize that task force. "They learned a lot of things, and that was why they caught Shawn Moore's killer so quickly," McIntyre said.

The book is selling at Border's Bookstore, among other locations. Anyone with information regarding the child killer may call the state police at 348-1505.

No, you're not seeing double. You're witnessing activities at Plymouth-Canton Mother of Twins Club annual family Christmas party Friday evening at Pioneer Middle School.

The club has 25 moms including one mother with triplets.

"The main purpose is a support group for mothers of multiples," said Jan Kelm, president of the group.

Speakers and activities, like auctions and garage sales, are regularly planned throughout the year.

Members talk about questions and problems they share.

"The first six months is just a matter of keeping up with them," she said.

"The first thing when they're in school is should you separate them or not?" said Kelm, who is facing that question with her 8-year-old identical girls.

Most of the members have young children, because by the time the children are grown many of the questions are answered, she said.

The Plymouth-Canton Mothers of Twins Club meets the third Thursday of each month in members' homes.

The group is "small enough" that we can still do that, said Kelm, adding that the home atmosphere keeps it personal and allows more comfort.

For more information about the club, call Kelm, 397-1926.

THE ORANGE BOWL PARADE won't mark the only time the CEP band will suit up while in the sunshine state.

It's performing in the Light Parade at Disneyworld's Magic Kingdom Dec. 30.

There'll be time for fun too — dining in the Old English tradition at King Henry's Feast in Orlando, an evening at Epcot Center, a day of sunbathing on the beach, and a New Year's Eve party replete with a deejay and dancing.

Regardless of how much money is raised, every band member will be entitled to make the trip, said Lore — even if it means borrowing from the band treasury.

"Last year we built character," she said. "This year it was fun to win. The band has never had a more exciting year. They achieved more than they even set their goal for. Marching has always been our weak point. This year we really improved on marching. Everything just clicked."

Smigell couldn't agree more.

"I'M PROUD of my band," said the Canton junior. "We've been waiting for this since April, and now it's just a couple weeks away. People are getting all excited."

From a distance, parade watchers spotting Smigell may be reminded of "Music Man" Robert Preston. While directing the band's rendition of "76 Trombones," the field commander will be wearing a costume his mom sewed "to accentuate my role," he said.

If you want to spot it, look for someone in "white pants, an ornately decorated, but not gaudy, red top with white bars across the front, and gold epaulets," he said.

Smigell's hat, replete with a white plume and gold eagle plate, is 23 inches tall. His baton is 44 inches, with a "big silver ball at one end and a spike at the other end."

Lawrence Institute of Technology will change its name to Lawrence Technological University, effective Jan. 1, according to the university's president, Dr. Richard E. Marburger.

"Our new name more accurately describes the institution as it is today," Marburger said.

"We are implementing a name change to provide greater recognition of this. The new name ends the confusion that some people have professed about an 'institute's' mission and range of activities."

Lawrence Tech is one of Michigan's largest independent universities. It enrolls nearly 5,500 students and offers 30 degree programs or course concentrations in architecture, arts and science, engineering, management and technology. Programs are offered at the graduate, baccalaureate and associate degree level and are accredited by the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools and various professional agencies.

Lawrence Technological University was founded in 1932 and moved to its 100-acre campus to Southfield in 1955.

Area students gain new interest in languages

By Tom Henderson
staff writer

Foreign language study, which suffered a dramatic decline after the campus unrest of the '60s and early '70s, appears to be making a comeback, according to local university and college officials, as well as a national survey. The state, however, still lags behind the rest of the country. (See related story).

Just one in eight of the nation's four-year schools of higher education requires some language study of all degree students, according to the American Council on Education.

Nearly 10 percent of the 400 universities surveyed had increased language requirements between 1982-1987.

Local school officials agree that language study is increasing. They say the increase is because educators have toughened core requirements and because of business sector demands for employees who can speak foreign languages while on overseas tours of duty.

Here is a status report of language study at local colleges and universities:

MADONNA COLLEGE: Madonna, which has about 4,000 undergraduate students, does not require language study either for admission or for graduation. But Sister Martinez, who heads the Livonia-based college's foreign language department, said the school has put together a task force to study toughening core requirements, including more language study.

"I really think foreign languages will be on the upswing. I really do," said Sister Martinez. "Not knowing foreign languages is a deficiency."

Madonna offers Spanish, French, Polish, American sign language and Japanese, the latter a new offering in its third term. Martinez said that about 100 students are taking foreign languages in the fall term, about half of those in Japanese.

"We had a language requirement years ago, but Madonna followed the trend of larger universities and dropped the requirement in the late seventies," said Sister Martinez. "Now a lot of people realize that wasn't the best thing to do."

SCHOOLCRAFT COLLEGE: According to associate dean Lawrence Ordowski, who heads overseas language study at the school, there is no language requirement at the Livonia-based community college.

"But we have experienced a growth in language study. It's been a dramatic turnaround," said Ordowski.

In 1985-86, 202 students took language courses. The next year it was 271. And in 1987-88, the figure climbed to 314, an increase of 55 percent in two years.

The school offers classes in French, German and Spanish, with the largest growth coming in Spanish.

There are about 8,500 full- or part-time students at the school.

Ordowski credited increased dealings between American firms and overseas businesses for much of the resurgence in language study. "People investing time in foreign languages now will have a step up in business. They will be immediately employable."

U-M DEARBORN: The school just put into effect a tougher language requirement for more than half of its 6,600 undergraduates. All students in the university's College of Arts, Sciences and Letters, about 3,570 students, will be required to take two courses in a language or pass a proficiency exam in a language.

"We're getting back to what it was in the mid-'70s," said Karen Wittkopf, director of student advising. "The message at some level is to send back to the high schools that we support the study of language."

The school offers German, French, Spanish, Latin and Armenian.

WAYNE STATE: According to Barry Becker, an academic adviser at the Detroit-based university, language requirements are "up slightly more." Some fields of study that did not previously require a language now do, he said, including psychology.

Of the 10,716 undergraduates in the fall term, about 2,600 have declared a major in liberal arts. All must take three semesters of a language.

Another 4,000 students have yet to declare majors; those who go into liberal arts will be required to study a language, choosing among French, German, Spanish, Latin, Greek, Hebrew, Polish, Russian, Slavic languages, Arabic, Armenian and Swahili.

UNIVERSITY OF DETROIT: U-D has no language requirements for either admission or graduation. Of its 3,900 undergraduate students, only 120 are enrolled in either French, Latin or Spanish classes. (The school will offer Greek next semester.)

John Dwyer, dean of the College of Liberal Arts, said the decline in language grew out of Vietnam-era student protests for student-directed curricula. He said another factor is constant supply of schools vying for a declining pool of students, with the result that schools that have tougher requirements may suffer enrollment declines.

Language study is up dramatically in the school's department of continuing education, primarily adults who need to learn a language for business.

Lloyd Wedberg, the head of the continuing education department and formerly the head of the language department, said old methods of instruction were to blame for turning students off to foreign languages.

"It was just conjugating verbs

State lags in foreign language study

AP — A larger percentage of Michigan's junior and senior high school students are studying foreign languages than two years ago, but the state still lags behind the rest of the country, a new report shows.

A report given to the Michigan Board of Education last month said 19.4 percent of Michigan high school students were enrolled in language classes in the 1986-87 school year, up from 17.5 percent two years earlier.

"I wouldn't take the report and say we're doing great. That isn't the case. There is an increase, but we are far from where we should be, far below the national average, far below the states around us," said George Mansour, author of the report and chairman of the Romance and classical languages department at Michigan State University.

Michigan's role in international trade means the state's students should have a higher rate of language study than other states, he said.

MANSOUR SURVEYED Michigan's 566 school districts on foreign language instruction in 1984-85 for the state Board of Education and then repeated the survey two years later to see if the picture had improved.

In 1984-85, 23 percent of students nationwide were taking foreign languages compared to 17.5 percent in Michigan, he said. In 1986-87, the national average had risen to 24.8 percent compared to 19.4 percent in Michigan, he said.

Mansour said while the percentages increased, the number of students in grades 7 through 12 taking a foreign language fell from 120,404 in 1984-85 to 114,828 two years later.

Elementary school enrollment in foreign language classes increased from 9,789 students to 10,970 during the same period, he said.

Spanish is the most popular foreign language and is offered in 350 districts, followed by French, German and Latin, but Mansour said a few others also are offered, including Arabic, classical Greek, Hebrew, Italian, Japanese, and Russian.

Michigan Superintendent of Public Instruction Donald L. Bemis said increasing foreign language study was one of the goals of the state board and its members were pleased with the increase.

BUT MANSOUR said Michigan might fall farther behind the national average.

"A lot of things are happening nationwide and we're sitting behind without state leadership," he said.

For example, he said George Mansour made foreign language study an entrance requirement for new students at all state colleges and community colleges.

"No such thing exists in Michigan," he said.

New York has embarked on an eight-year program to begin foreign language classes in middle school, along with a testing program to ensure students are learning, he added.

Mansour said individual districts that want to try such programs in Michigan are hampered by a lack of funds.

Senate dilutes libel defense bill

The Michigan Senate, in a series of unrecorded votes, diluted a House bill strengthening newspapers' defenses in libel suits.

Senate changes came during a "committee of the whole" session in which roll calls are unrecorded.

Action came during the Legislature's final days as a floodtide of legislation was passed.

"We're ahead of where we were," said Robert H. Giles, vice president and executive editor of the Detroit News. But neither he nor Herschel Fink, attorney for the Detroit Free Press and WXYZ-TV, was entirely happy with the outcome.

"A weak compromise," said David Maurer, president of the Michigan Associated Press Broadcasters Association.

HOUSE BILL 4392, sponsored by Rep. William Bryant, R-Grosse Pointe Farms, was written to restore Michigan law to where it was before a 1986 state Supreme Court ruling in the case of David Rouch vs. the Battle Creek Enquirer.

Pre-1986 law used the "malice" rule: An untruth must have been published with the knowledge that the information was false, or with reckless disregard as to whether it was false.

But the Supreme Court applied a new standard: Rouch could collect merely by showing negligence, not malice, when the Enquirer reported his arrest. (Rouch was released and never arraigned on a rape charge.)

Sen. Rudy Nichols, R-Waterford, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, supported Bryant's bill restoring the "malice" standard. His committee reported it to the full Senate. It was fought by Sen. Richard Fessler, R-Commerce, returned to Nichols' panel and reported out again.

THE SENATE, in committee of the whole, adopted an amendment by Sen. Vern Ehlers, R-Grand Rapids, to give the press half a loaf:

• Public figures would have to prove "malice."

• Private individuals like Rouch would only have to prove "negligence."

(Ehlers' amendment was a revision of an earlier amendment offered by Fessler.)

Next the Senate gave the press a quarter-loaf back, adopting an amendment by Senate majority leader John Engler, R-Mount Pleasant. Engler's amendment allowed private individuals to sue only for such "economic" damages as loss of business, loss of wages and attorney fees. It would not allow such "actual" damages as loss of reputation, humiliation and emotional distress.

Fink, the Free Press attorney, called the Engler amendment "helpful in that it limits damages strictly to economic ones."

MORE CRITICAL of the measure was Mike Lloyd, Grand Rapids Press editor.

Lloyd said some newspapers omit the names of people arrested for crimes until they have been arraigned in court. This leaves readers to wonder whether their friends or neighbors were the ones charged.

"The function of the press in rumor control would be lost," said Lloyd.

After the Supreme Court ruling in 1986, the Rouch case was re-tried in Calhoun County Circuit Court, where a jury awarded him $1 million in non-economic damages. Gannett Co., owner of the Enquirer, has taken the decision to the state Court of Appeals.

The Associated Press contributed to this story.

Abortion groups end campaigns in red ink

AP — The two groups that waged a fierce battle over state-funded abortions for poor women were awash in red ink when the campaign ended Nov. 8, documents filed with the Secretary of State show.

Reports filed Dec. 8 show the Committee to End Tax-Funded Abortions had $445,131 in unpaid bills as of Nov. 28. The People's Campaign for Choice said it owed $174,044 as of the same date.

"I think it will take some time, but we are determined it is going to be paid off," said Barbara Listing, chairwoman of the Committee to End Tax-Funded Abortions.

TOGETHER, THE two groups said they spent $4,483,537 on the abortion battle since the beginning of 1987.

The Committee to End Tax-Funded Abortions won a 57 percent to 43 percent victory on Nov. 8 banning state-paid abortions and outspent the pro-choice group by more than 3-1.

The reports filed Thursday showed the committee's total spending to be more than $3.3 million, compared with more than $1.3 million for the People's Campaign for Choice.

Although both groups ended up owing large sums, both managed to gain a little ground in the period around the election.

The Committee to End Tax-Funded Abortions said it began the reporting period on Oct. 24 with $6,964, collected $655,459 and spent $655,516, leaving it with $6,907 on Nov. 28, the end of the period. It also had $5,770 in non-cash contributions.

THE PEOPLE'S Campaign for Choice said it began the period with $473,870, collected $23,273, and spent $476,200, leaving it with $20,963 cash on hand at the end of the period. It also listed $1,073 in non-cash contributions.

Judith Frey, spokeswoman for People's Campaign for Choice, was unavailable for comment last Thursday, but earlier she said the organization formed to fight the abortion ban was dissolving.

The ballot issue approved by voters stops the state's expenditure of nearly $6 million a year for some 18,500 abortions for poor women.

The ban took effect Monday.

Fessler hails truck, boat firefighter laws

Truck safety, boat safety, firefighter training safety — Sen. Richard Fessler says he had a pretty productive year in 1988.

Gov. James Blanchard signed a 13-bill truck safety package that was sponsored in part by Fessler, R-Commerce, who chairs the Senate State Affairs, Tourism and Transportation Committee.

"This is the most comprehensive package of truck safety bills ever enacted in Michigan," said Blanchard at the signing ceremony, "and one of the strongest in the country."

Fessler's boating safety measure was passed 102-0 by the House of Representatives and awaits the governor's signature.

A firefighter measure also passed the House by a similar margin.

Sen. Richard Fessler's boating safety measure was passed 102-0 by the House of Representatives and awaits the governor's signature. A firefighter measure also passed the House by a similar margin.

"SOMETHING HAD to be done to control the rise in truck-related accidents," Fessler said. AAA Michigan generated 165,000 pieces of mail to lawmakers in a 2 1/2-year effort.

A key bill sets up a truck driver safety fund to train drivers in basic driving and inspection skills, the senator said.

- Other bills in the package call for:
 - Covers on truck loads.
 - Operating brakes on all wheels.
 - Trucks bumpers that extend to within 22 inches of the ground (when federal legislation is enacted with such a requirement).
 - Annual state police inspections of vehicles hauling flammable materials.

- Fines of up to $300 of truck owners each time they allow a driver to operate equipment with a safety defect.

- An expanded truck accident form.

- Allowing the Public Safety Commission to fine carriers for PSC violations — expected to yield up to $2.1 million a year for the truck safety fund.

- Restricting trucks to the two right lanes on highways having three or more lanes in each direction.

- Requiring truck owners to place a logo or identification on the side of each vehicle.

- Increasing truck registration fees by $15 for the truck safety fund.

Other area sponsors of the package are Reps. Gerald Law, R-Plymouth, and James Kosteva, D-Canton.

A NEW MARINE Safety Commission will be set up under a bill sponsored by Fessler.

He said the 15-member commission, under the Department of Natural Resources recreational division, will be able to review boating accidents and study marine safety education programs.

"Boating is a favorite summer activity of many Michigan residents," said Fessler, whose district includes the lakes area of western Oakland County. "Unfortunately, our lakes are not as safe as they could be, and deaths and severe injuries occur every summer."

He said marine safety is further complicated by the growing popularity of jet skis and sail boards on lake traffic.

A THREE-BILL package to improve firefighting safety was prompted by the death of three Milford-area firefighters during a training session in an old house.

Fessler and Sen. Michael O'Brien, D-Detroit, co-sponsored the bills, which have passed the House. The measures will:

- Direct the Fire Fighter Training Council to review state and federal standards on live fire training exercises in structures. That council then would make recommendations to the General Industry Safety Standards Commission.

- Deal with liability for instructors. Instructors certified by the Michigan Fire Fighters Training Council won't be held liable for mishaps occurring during standard training procedures.

- Provide the same protection for training centers, such as colleges and universities.

County clerk gets new top deputy

By Tom Henderson
staff writer

Steven Kelley, a 31-year-old attorney from Allen Park, has been appointed chief deputy clerk of Wayne County. He replaces Bryan Amann, who was recently named assistant county executive under Edward McNamara.

Kelley's appointment, by county clerk James Killeen, officially began Dec. 14, but he said he was on the job more than a week before that date.

Previously, Kelley had specialized in maritime and labor law for the Detroit law firm of Victor Hanson. Before that, he was a lawyer with Wayne County Friend of the Court.

Kelley, whose salary is $61,000 a year, said his job duties will entail policy formation, giving Killeen legal advice, preparing the department budget, serving as a witness before legislative bodies, day-to-day operation of the office and fund raising for Killeen's re-election.

WAYNE COUNTY was the fourth largest county in the nation in 1980. According to U.S. census projections recently released, the county has suffered a population decline and is now the seventh largest in the U.S.

The clerk's office is responsible for registering gun permits, marriages, births, tabulating election results and gathering election expenses forms.

Kelley has been the head softball coach at St. Francis Cabrini High School in Allen Park since 1979, winning eight Catholic division titles and six Catholic C-D championships.

His 1983 team advanced to the state semifinals and, according to Kelley, his teams won more than 100 games and lost just 11 from 1982 through 1985.

He has also been an assistant varsity football coach at Cabrini.

"I hope to stay active in coaching," he said.

Kelley received his undergraduate degree from the University of Michigan and his law degree from Detroit College of Law.

Grant means mute children can say 'Wolf'

By Tom Henderson
Staff writer

Greg Turner of the Wayne County Intermediate School District has come up with a way so that kids who can't talk can cry "wolf!"

"Wolf" is the name of an inexpensive portable talking computer that Turner has designed, which gives a vocabulary of about 1,300 words to the formerly speechless.

On Monday, the intermediate school district announced a grant of $25,000 from the Sidney J. Dowling Trust to buy about 80 of the computers for local students and adults.

The district is looking for handicapped children and adults who can use such a computer, free of charge. Call Joyce Fouts at 467-1435 for information.

The computers cost $275-$375, depending on the user's needs. Turner, director of adaptive-device communications for the district, said similar computers sold by for-profit companies cost $2,000-$3,000.

"At those kinds of costs, no one could rationalize getting them for the severely handicapped," said Turner. "It was frustrating. The technology was there, but they were just so damn expensive, the handicapped were being disenfranchised."

"Now, there is no reason why you can't look at a child and say, 'We're going to get you one.' And, man, all of a sudden the universe changes for them."

TURNER, WHO worked at the artificial language lab at Michigan State University before coming to the intermediate district 10 years ago, said he designed the first version of the Wolf computer four years ago.

He gave it that name because of the role of the wolf as a child protector in mythology, including Indian folk tales and stories by Rudyard Kipling, and because of the strong image the wolf has.

"These kids are very powerless," said Turner. "One of the things we try to give them are feelings of self-worth and power. And the kids kind of like that image."

The Wolf, produced by local contractors and sold on a non-profit basis by the school district, has gone through several generations of modifications.

The most recent, in July, expanded the capacity and gave the user the ability to program about 800 words to suit his/her needs or abilities.

Before that, the machine had a fixed vocabulary for all users.

The Wolf has a touch panel with pictures to represent concepts, and a voice synthesizer. It can say such complete sentences as "I want to eat," "I want to go to the bathroom," or "I want a hug."

Or the user can construct words and sentences from basic sounds.

TURNER SAID there are about 2,500 Wolfs in use worldwide, with about 1,000 in Michigan and 350 in Wayne County.

Hebrew and Arabic, and there are Japanese versions.

Users include those with cerebral palsy, autism, mental retardation or who have suffered strokes.

The 80-some computers that will be bought with the Dowling grant will be available free to both adults and children. Those who may know someone who could use such a device should call Fouts, executive director of the Foundation for Educational Opportunities.

The foundation is affiliated with the Wayne County Intermediate School District.

Foreign languages gain new interest endlessly. Teachers weren't making it exciting," he said.

U-D uses what is called the Rassi-as Method, after John Rassi-as of Dartmouth, in language instruction, where the emphasis is on student involvement and intense drill sessions instead of rote work.

The school offers non-credit language instruction at night at four sites, including the Berkshire Middle School in Birmingham. The 13-week, 24-class sessions cost $395.

In the night program, 156 students are studying Japanese, Arabic, Chinese, French, German, Spanish, Portuguese, Russian and Italian. About 60 percent are studying Japanese.

"God knows we need more than a mono-lingual culture in this country, but we need to motivate the students," said Wedberg. "The answer isn't to go back to language requirements."

State lags behind country in foreign language study

sue and you've got to decide between sports or an academic subject, you know what the decision is going to be on that," he said.

THE STATE should fill a foreign language specialist position that has been vacant in the Department of Education so someone can spearhead foreign language study, he said.

Bemis said the state already encourages foreign language instruction by devoting part of its federal block grant funds to districts that want to improve in that area.

But he said it's impractical to expect foreign language to be available throughout the state.

"It's a tough call. If you get into an area where you have a limited population, it gets very difficult to offer a fourth year of a language or a third year or any language at all," he said.

U-M wins nursing research grant

A $927,000 research grant has been awarded to the University of Michigan School of Nursing.

The award, from the National Center for Nursing Research, was announced recently by U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth.

"This grant is another indication of the national recognition and esteem held for the nursing research work conducted at the University of Michigan," Pursell said in a press release.

The money will be used to fund a study titled "Certified Nurse Midwives and Physicians: A Study of Comparisons." It will be a joint effort by the school of nursing and the departments of obstetrics and gynecology. Some 1,360 subjects will be studied at three of the university's women's health care facilities.

Men, if you're about to turn 18, it's time to register with Selective Service at any U.S. Post Office.

It's quick. It's easy. And it's the law.

Graduating engineers can expect big bucks

By Mary Rodrigue
staff writer

College graduates entering the job market can look for better employment opportunities and bigger bucks in 1990.

That's the word from John Crusoe, director of placement services at Wayne State University.

"It's good news on all fronts. A definite improvement over last year in terms of the job market and what employers pay," said Crusoe, who just completed a fall survey on recruitment and salary offers.

Leading the job pack is the field of engineering, where recruiting activity has jumped a whopping 85 percent over last year. Areas in hottest demand are: mechanical, industrial, chemical and engineering technology.

"We're seeing a bit of rebirth on the demand side. If the upsurge continues, we could possibly see a shortage of engineers in the future," Crusoe said.

He attributes the engineering renaissance to good automotive sales and a resurgence of the smokestack industries — with steel in the forefront.

Growth in the manufacturing sector has helped spur employment opportunities in the growing service sector of the economy.

Other winners in the employment market are: accounting, finance, marketing, nursing, pharmacy and allied health jobs.

There is one loser in the otherwise upbeat job picture — computer science. Crusoe feels that declining employment in that field represents a breathing spell in what has been a torrid pace of growth during the past several years.

"Market demand has shifted from large scale systems to many smaller personal computers utilizing standardized commercial programs that don't require program expertise — thus triggering a temporary reduction in the hiring of computer science personnel."

Annual starting salary for engineers hovers around $30,000. For pharmacists, starting salaries begin at a healthy $33,600. At the low end of Crusoe's survey, radio/tv/film

'It's good news on all fronts. A definite improvement over last year.'

—John Crusoe,
Wayne State

graduates can expect to begin jobs in the $14,000 range. Graduates in the humanities and social sciences also fall on the low end of the pay scale, with beginning salaries averaging around $20,000.

For financial reward and job security, Crusoe would recommend college bound students consider getting into highly technical fields.

"Most job demand is in the highly technical fields — engineering, finance, allied health, accounting — they are the strongest in financial reward but the hardest academically."

Crusoe thinks parents of high school and even elementary school students should push their children into science and math classes instead of letting them opt for easier courses.

"If parents don't push their children to take math and science, they wind up shortchanging their options. If they haven't had it by college, it's hard to recover."

Teaching as a career option remains a mixed bag, according to Crusoe.

"Graduates with education degrees are seeing better opportunity than in the past couple of years, but the problem is, jobs available in southeastern Michigan are primarily in the private and parochial schools, where pay is about half the annual salary a public school teacher earns," Crusoe said.

Some graduates with education degrees choose to substitute teaching in public schools until a steadier job comes along, he added.

Another job field rising in demand after a period of dormancy is secretarial positions, according to Dr. Jean Pike, career planning and placement director for Schoolcraft Community College in Livonia.

The two-year college offers programs in secretarial skills, accounting and computer information services — all in demand by employers.

"The economy is in better shape, employers have to look harder to find people to fill jobs now," Pike said.

Schoolcraft graduates in the culinary arts field and drafting programs also have excellent job opportunities, according to Pike.

"The culinary program has always been a hot field because of our excellent program," she said. "Drafting has opened up with computer aided design equipment."

Schoolcraft's placement service currently has 600 jobs posted, probably the highest number ever, Pike said. And while wages vary, none begins at the minimum wage, which was sometimes the case in the past.

Schoolcraft also has a strong allied health field, Pike said. It includes degree programs in practical nursing, medical records, medical laboratories and occupational therapy assistance.

Madonna College of Livonia has strong nursing and business programs.

"Most nurses are placed before graduation," said Christine Brant, director of cooperative education and placement.

Madonna doesn't have an engineering program, but graduates who major in accounting, legal assistance or computer information systems are placed easily in their chosen field, Brant said.

"Business is the biggest division, followed by nursing," she said. "There are probably more (nursing) jobs than students, and it's been that way for the four years I've been here."

Another major job-clinching degree is fashion merchandising.

"There are several jobs available in retail management," she said.

Madonna recruits in consortium with the University of Detroit and other Catholic colleges.

Car brokers get House reprieve

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Auto brokers will still be in business next year in Michigan.

An amended bill to ban the practice of auto brokering passed the Senate, 23-13, but the House rejected the amendment, which then died.

"I think it's really absurd to have us legislate people out of business," Sen. Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, in voting against the measure.

But Sen. R. Robert Geake, R-Northville, called auto brokering "a form of unfair competition. Brokers don't have to maintain the same financial bases — outlays for a dealership and service facilities. The can have nothing but a desk and a telephone."

BROKERING is the work of 140 small firms which handle 2,000 to 3,000 of the 700,000 cars sold in Michigan in a year. Acting on behalf of a group such as a credit union, the broker negotiates with an auto dealer for a lower price than members of the group could get individually.

The dealer picks up sales volume but sees his profit margin reduced. An amendment to ban brokering was inserted in House Bill 4930, a bill to outlaw tampering with odometers that bill had passed the House 94-0 in mid-1987.

The Senate version with that amendment was supported by Geake and William Faust, D-Westland.

Faxon was the only area senator opposed. He accused auto dealers of "greed" (five times), "larceny" and "avaricious ugliness." Sen. Lana Pollack, D-Ann Arbor, concurred in his greed remarks.

One of the Senate's most conservative voices, Jack Welborn, R-Kalamazoo, said the anti-broker amendment violated the Michigan Constitution because it wasn't germane to the odometer bill.

Welborn added that auto dealers might be in unfair competition themselves. "Auto dealers are also in the area of financing, which is in direct competition with credit unions and banks. And, again, they do not necessarily have to meet the regulations of the banks and credit unions," he said.

GEAKE SAID he would send a letter of reply to constituents who had written about his vote.

"Their (brokers) real purpose was to intimidate the House members. It probably worked."

Judgeships aren't all relative

If you want to be elected a judge, it helps to have a relative on the state Supreme Court.

But if you want to be appointed to fill a judicial vacancy, send a letter of application and your resume to Gov. James J. Blanchard. He will fill eight vacancies statewide as a result of the Nov. 8 elections.

Here are some deadlines:

- Dec. 22 for two vacancies on the Wayne Circuit Court bench. Voters elevated Judges Maureen Reilly and Thomas Brennan to the Court of Appeals in November.
- Dec. 29 for the Oakland Circuit Court. Judge Norman Lippitt, himself an appointee, is resigning.
- Dec. 29 for the 48th District Court, which serves the cities of Birmingham, Bloomfield Hills, Sylvan Lake, Keego Harbor and Orchard Lake Village, and the townships of Bloomfield and West Bloomfield. Judge Edward Sosnick will vacate the post because he was elected to the circuit court.

An applicant must have received a juris doctor degree and be a member in good standing of the State Bar of Michigan. Applicants are screened by the judicial qualifications committee of the State Bar.

Applications should be addressed to: Gov. James J. Blanchard, Personnel Office, 116 W. Allegan, Lansing 48909.

PATRICIA AND Terrance Boyle debate legal matters all day on the bench, and then go home to each other and argue law some more. Both said they are able to make decisions independent of each other.

But Pat Boyle, the Supreme Court justice, said she takes extra precautions to guard against the perception of conflict when she acts on cases her husband heard as a trial judge. Terry Boyle is a Detroit Recorder's Court judge.

Boyle is one of three Supreme Court justices who have relatives on a lower Michigan court.

With the November election of Traverse City attorney Richard Griffin to the Appeals Court, he and Supreme Court Justice Robert Griffin become the first father-son team to serve simultaneously on Michigan appellate panels. The Court of Appeals was instituted in 1945.

Mark Cavanagh, a Rochester Hills attorney elected this November to the Michigan Court of Appeals, will serve one step below his uncle, Michael Cavanagh, who serves on the state's high court.

MICHIGAN JUDGES must disqualify themselves if they:

- Previously served as an attorney in a case before the bench.
- Worked within the previous two years in the same law firm representing a party to the case.

Have a financial interest in a corporation that is a party to the case.

Have personally been involved with an attorney or party to the case.

The Michigan Rules of Court indicate judges should be disqualified when they cannot impartially hear a case. The Rules of Professional and Judicial Conduct say a judge should not allow family to influence judicial conduct or judgment, and should be disqualified in cases of impropriety or the appearance of impropriety.

BUT NO rule specifically addresses whether appellate judges should disqualify themselves in cases that relatives also have ruled on as judges.

Justice Boyle said she won't rule on cases that originated in her husband's courtroom if her vote would make a difference in the final ruling, or if she was privy to information because it was mentioned at home.

"If my vote is needed one way or another, I will disqualify myself — which has happened very frequently — except when he is serving as an acting judge on the Court of Appeals," she said. "Then you're not reviewing anything but the question of law, not how he called the facts."

"I know I can decide questions independently, but my ultimate concern is about the appearance to the public on whether I can act independently. The important thing is that the public have confidence in the judicial system."

Terry Boyle said he doesn't think his wife should step aside from handling cases he heard.

"I would probably work harder to turn over a case if she worked on it — I tend to be a little puckish. My wife and I argue law all of the time," he said. "I guess the layman's approach would be, 'Hey, he sleeps with that woman every night — how can it not affect the decisions he makes?'"

"I don't think it does. But the easiest thing to do is avoid it."

JUSTICES Griffin and Cavanagh agree with Pat Boyle's distinction between cases that have come from the appeals courts and trial courts. Neither intends to routinely disqualify himself from a case on which a relative ruled.

"Both (appellate) courts are really reviewing what the trial court did," Griffin said.

"I've corrected my son quite a few times through the years and I wouldn't hesitate to do it again."

Zoo gets $55,000 donation for lion art

The Detroit Zoological Society has received a commitment from an anonymous local donor for a $55,000 contribution toward purchase of a 4,000-pound, life-size lion sculpture that children will be able to touch.

The sculpture will be an original work of art, said the society, a pri-ivate group that aids the city-owned zoo. The society is seeking donations to match the anonymous donor's gift.

Artist Dennis Anderson was commissioned to design nine original animal sculptures. One of his works, "Genesis," is currently on display at the front entrance of the Detroit Zoo through Dec. 7.

Anderson's intent was for the experience to be tactile as well as visual. The lion's tongue is rough and its skin has imperfections like those found on lions in the wild. Various footprints of African animals are found in the ground surrounding the lion and his watering hole.

The sculptures are educational tools for children, allowing them to feel the artwork in order to get a better understanding of the animal's physique.

Only 9 hours of sun, thanks to earth's tilt

Dec. 20 is the last official day of autumn, and winter begins on the following day.

Winter officially arrives on Wednesday, Dec. 21, at 10:28 a.m. Eastern Standard Time. On this day the sun will be rising at its farthest point south of east (at 7:58 a.m.), have its lowest altitude in the sky, and set at its farthest point south of west (at 5:03 p.m.) for the entire year. There will be only nine hours and five minutes of sunshine.

The sun appears in different parts of the sky at different times of the year. Remember where the sun was rising back in June? It was rising at its farthest north of east and setting north of west.

The days were long and warm, and we had summer. The difference in the sun's position is not due to any movement on the part of the sun. Instead it's due to the tilt of Earth's axis of rotation.

WE ORBIT around the sun, but our axis is tilted 23.5 degrees. It just happens to be pointing toward a star named Polaris, the North Star.

In summer, when the North Pole of the earth is pointed toward Polaris, it is tilted 23.5 degrees toward the sun as well. Six months later, the earth is on the opposite side of the sun.

The North Pole is still aimed toward Polaris, but now it tilts 23.5 degrees away from the sun. Therefore the sun appears in a different part of the sky.

The moment when the earth reaches the point in its orbit, where the North Pole is at the greatest tilt away from the sun, is the exact moment of winter — at least for the Northern Hemisphere.

When the North Pole is tilted

away from the sun, the South Pole is tilted toward it. We may be facing the start of winter, but for people south of the equator it's the start of summer.

IF IT WERE not for the tilt of Earth, there would be no change of seasons. If the earth's axis were straight up and down, everyone would have March-type weather year-round. That may not be bad if you live in the tropics, but it would be awful in Michigan!

The month's second meteor shower reaches its maximum on the 22nd. This is the Ursid meteor shower. This shower is nowhere near as impressive as the Geminid shower. An average of only 15 meteors per hour can be expected.

Full moon occurs at 12:29 a.m. on Dec. 23. It is located opposite the sun, as seen from the earth, and is fully lighted. The moon will rise in the northeast on the evening of Dec. 22 as the sun sets in the southwest, be visible all night, and set in the northwest as the sun rises in the southeast on Dec. 23.

The December full moon will be the "highest" in the sky for the entire year. Because the sun is low in the sky in December and the full moon is always opposite the sun, the full moon will be high in the sky around midnight in the constellation Gemini.

TO THE NORTH (left) of the moon, on the evening of Dec. 23, are the "twin" stars Castor and Pollux. Each one represents a "head" of one twin. On the next night, two hours after sunset, Castor (the upper star), Pollux and the moon form a straight line.

If you are up before sunrise on Dec. 25, look in the southeast for Venus. It passes about six degrees above and to the north (left) of Antares (an TAR ees), the "heart" of Scorpius.

Saturn is in conjunction with the sun on Dec. 26. It is located behind the sun, as seen from the earth, and is not visible.

Face the east-northeast around 10:15 p.m. on Dec. 26 and look for the moon. It is making its second pass through Leo this month. The star Regulus is about five degrees below the moon.

On the next night, at about the same time, you'll find the moon five degrees below Regulus. The movement of the moon, from just one night to the next, is very obvious when compared to the position of a bright star.

The moon is at last quarter phase at 11:57 p.m. on Dec. 31. It is in Virgo, approaching Spica.

An excellent aid for learning constellations and keeping up to date with the sky is the monthly "Sky Calendar." A one-year subscription is $6 and is available from Abrams Planetarium, Michigan State University, East Lansing, 48824.

Check house for radon before sealing windows

AP — Homeowners who prepare for winter by caulking around windows may unknowingly increase levels of invisible radon, a radioactive gas that seeps into homes from the ground, a University of Michigan official warns.

"There are some people who are living in a cloud of radon and don't know it yet," said A.P. Jacobson, director of the school's Radon Resource and Training Center. Alex Johnson, executive assistant of the American Lung Association of Southeast Michigan, said before sealing their homes, homeowners should use an inexpensive testing device to determine if radon is present.

The Environmental Protection Agency estimates the gas may cause up to 20,000 lung cancer deaths a year and has recommended that all homeowners test their homes for radon.

An incomplete Michigan Department of Health study suggests the state has less of a problem than nearby states, but some homes were found to have levels of radon far higher than what the EPA considers acceptable.

Wilcox House

Start plans to develop property

IT APPEARS THAT an impasse that blocked development of a prime downtown Plymouth location has been lifted.

Now plans to spruce up the 3 1/2-acre Wilcox property overlooking Kellogg Park can proceed.

That's good news for residents or business people in the community who have had to live with complaints about the dilapidated Victorian house at Penniman and Union.

Let's hope the property owner, Jack Wilcox, moves quickly with plans to develop the site into something residents of the community can look to with pride.

THE HOUSE, built in 1901, has a long history but the years have not been kind and its appearance has faded.

Wilcox announced recently that a partnership formed three years ago to build condominiums on the site has been dissolved.

The condominiums were never built and litigation has tied up the parcel since mid-1987.

With the agreement, the longtime Plymouth resident can move forward with some type of development at the site.

The property is zoned commercial but we would not like to see a strip mall or video store sprout up on this valuable and visible piece of downtown.

We would prefer some sort of residential development even though the previous efforts for a condominium project were unsuccessful.

A design that incorporates the new development with existing buildings would go a long way in preserving the small-town atmosphere that exists downtown.

School finance

Fair funding is key to reform

IT SHOULD come as no surprise that Gov. James Blanchard's last-minute school reform proposal crashed and burned during the waning hours of the legislative session. After all, the last 20 years have produced no solutions to one of the state's most pressing problems.

But that doesn't reduce the crisis, nor the serious ramifications in store for the entire state if state government leaders continue to flounder in their sometimes half-hearted attempts to square the way in which public schools are funded.

The need for a solution should be obvious for many reasons, but here are the main two:

● One, the quality of a child's education is too dependent on his or her address, or rather the wealth of property in that child's school district. Some districts can spend almost $7,000 per child, others barely $2,000. That inequity is not necessarily reflective of the willingness of district residents to tax themselves. Many districts in affluent areas with more money per pupil actually have a lower school tax rate than do poorer districts.

● Two, in the face of such glaring unfairness, it is only a matter of time before courts are asked to intervene where the state legislature has failed. Such observers as Bloomfield Hills Superintendent Robert Docking and state Rep Judith Miller, R-Birmingham, have predicted that the matter will ultimately be settled in the courts. State Sen. Daniel DeGrow, R-Port Huron, says he expects a number of state school districts to soon file a federal court lawsuit to challenge the school finance plan as a violation of equal protection. The danger here is that the court may order a dramatic, ham-handed approach that could equalize spending at the expense of wealthier districts, thus lowering the overall state of public education in Michigan.

The solution isn't easy, but it is imperative that a fair, reasoned, effective plan be adopted before the courts are forced into the game. Here's how such a solution can be reached.

● Stop the finger pointing. Some blame the

It's necessary that lawmakers recognize the importance of having a strong public education system and the fairness of equalizing educational opportunities for all our children.

Michigan Education Association for the inaction, others say it is the state chamber of commerce that puts up the roadblocks. It is high time that leaders of political parties quit trying to win political points (and gubernatorial elections) and instead show their cooperative leadership abilities by emphasizing to all interested parties the importance of a fair, reasonable solution.

● Quit confusing property tax reform with school aid funding. The two are definitely related, but it is inviting disaster to sell one as the solution to the other. Gov. Blanchard's proposal did move a longstanding issue off dead center, but it seemed far too concerned with reducing property taxes with a shift to sales tax and far too vague on reducing the spending disparity among schools.

● Admit publicly that an increase in revenue for schools is an inevitable part of a meaningful solution. Maybe that includes a shift from property taxes, which are relatively high in Michigan, to the regressive sales tax, which is relatively low but likely to be palatable, especially since it will nick non-Michigan tourists. But the solution also must include a net gain in revenue, not just a shift. Blanchard's plan depended too much on a healthy Michigan economy continuing its unprecedented expansion. His wariness of proposing a flat-out tax hike is understandable considering the multitude of Republican politicians waiting to hang a tax-and-spend collar on the governor. Such action by Republicans would be reprehensible and would kill reform; it is also evidence of the continuing paralysis in Lansing because of the state senate recalls earlier this decade.

This is such a complex and difficult issue that it is not easy or worthwhile to pinpoint the villains. What is necessary is that lawmakers recognize the importance of having a strong public education system and the fairness of equalizing educational opportunities for all our children.

A fair funding system is only a start — accountability and higher standards from our schools are also needed. But little can happen until the funding gap is closed, and that must be done now by the legislature before it is done later by the courts.

Ethnic pride healthy path to our survival

THE CONTRAST was striking.

As I leaned back in my chair to read this Monday's issues of the Observer & Eccentric, I noted with some real heartfelt warmth the stories that chronicle how residents have come to the aid of the thousands of families devastated by the earthquake in Soviet Armenia.

And then the warmth melted as I read the story about the skinheads over at Birmingham Groves High School.

Skinheads are teens who shave their heads and obnoxiously proclaim the rights of "white people," whoever that is supposed to include or exclude.

Seems the school authorities tired of the racist behavior and now are transferring two skinheads to neighboring Seaholm which, too, has its share of skinheads.

But Birmingham School Superintendent Roger Garvelink maintains this gives these teens a second chance in a new environment. That's fair. After all, they are just kids.

THE PROBLEM of racist attitudes is nothing new. Seaholm skinheads maintain that many other students privately feel the same way, but are reluctant to be as demonstrative.

Unfortunately, that is probably true.

And while school officials should

The skinheads, and many others, have to learn that ethnic and racial pride is more than just a downtown festival.

Steve Barnaby

be commended for taking action, transferring a couple of students really won't solve the problem.

School districts throughout suburban Detroit have been reluctant to face racism head on. For many years, it was an easy issue to avoid. After all, most of those districts were nearly lily white.

In the last two decades the racial and ethnic scene has changed in most districts. Students from various cultural backgrounds are being thrown together with little or no preparation.

Halls once filled primarily with Anglos are now teeming with Jews, blacks, Armenians, Chaldeans, Orientals, Armenians and just about any other group that comes to mind.

And that's good. But we've got to help out. Parents, teachers, administrators and the rest of us have to pitch in and teach these kids that different doesn't mean bad, that diversity makes for a stronger society.

AND THE best place to accomplish this mission is in the classroom. But few, if any districts, have comprehensive programs to teach our children about other children's cultural heritage.

We have children who sit together everyday but who know almost nothing about each other. It's a recipe for disaster — guaranteed.

The skinheads, and many others, have to learn that ethnic and racial pride is more than just a downtown festival. It is an important element of basic survival.

After all, when the publicity dies down and everybody goes home, it will be the Armenians who will take care of themselves.

The president of this corporation, Richard Aginian, an Armenian, put it this way, "that's what we've got, our people, our religion, our ethnicity."

These are traits to be admired, not to be scorned. These are qualities to be taught, not to be hidden.

Students need all information

To the editor:

It is with a great deal of confusion that I read another article accusing the Plymouth-Canton school system of teaching and promoting Satanism and witchcraft and "directing our youth to seek abortions outside the family's knowledge or consent."

The public school system has the job of educating our youth in all areas of language arts, math, history, science and all other related academic studies. The public school system has the job of educating our youth in all areas that will enable the youth to become adults who are capable of earning a living for themselves. The public school system has the job of educating our youth in all areas necessary to enable them to become adults with some knowledge of right and wrong and the ability to make the right choices in life.

I am confused. How can anyone be expected to make wise decisions in life without proper knowledge and understanding about his choices? In order to have adequate knowledge, you must have adequate guidance and teaching of facts from a source of information. The public school system must provide this information to our youth in the form of all the facts, not just what I want them to learn or what you want them to learn.

One can never be exposed to too much information, or have too much knowledge. This includes all religions and beliefs, all areas related to sex education, all the skills needed for daily living, as well as all the usual academic subjects. The presentation of these facts does not imply that the school system, or any of its employees, encourages the student to adopt any of these beliefs; whether it be Satanism, witchcraft, Buddhism, communism, Christianity, racism, homosexuality, abortion, adoption, marriage, divorce, etc.

Do parents only teach their children about the "good" things in life and pretend the "bad" doesn't exist — so let's not talk about it? I hope both the "good" and the "bad" are openly discussed, and guidance given about how to tell the difference.

As a voting, taxpaying citizen of the Plymouth-Canton school system, with three children in the schools, I want and encourage the school to teach all viewpoints of all subjects and current issues, so the youth have the knowledge necessary to make their own decisions and choices in life.

Don't steal from dead

To the editor:

The decorations in the urn on my husband's grave (Carl H. Wilson) didn't last a week at the Riverside Cemetery in Plymouth.

We checked Sunday, Nov. 27, to see how the urn looked. The pine cone tree my daughter had made with tiny pine cones and ornaments was gone. The roping and poinsettias lay on the ground. The pine cone tree was anchored with a steel rod and set in the dirt 2 or 3 inches deep. The roping was anchored also.

It was a lovely Christmas decoration and especially meaningful because the pine cone tree was made by hand by a daughter who still loves and cares about a father gone these 20 years.

My husband was a Quaker — they have a saying "If you want or need something I have, ask for it. If I can spare it, you can have it. Steal it from me, if only a dime, I will prosecute you to the full extent of the law."

You don't steal from the dead.

On the road, again — Hot tub and hot teeth

IT SEEMS TO me that any time a motorist steers his vehicle toward the setting sun, there's never really a sensation of going "west" until crossing the Mississippi River. But, if one is traveling alone, that isn't necessarily where problems begin.

Here I am, all by myself, a car loaded with suit cases, brief cases et al, and no sooner had I escaped into Indiana for my first night's rest than habit brought a new taste into my Pacific Coast journey. Please realize, I am a creature of habit, a man dedicated to the philosophy of everything in its place, and a place for everything.

But in the first dawn's early light, I mistook a tube of Ben Gay for toothpaste and proceeded to use it as such until the sudden sharpness told me I had gone asunder. Not that it was that bad, if you're a Ben Gay stockholder, but it's hardly the way to start a day.

Living out of a suitcase, a different stopover every night going cross country offers geographic variety, but certain patterns seem to form as the miles flow by. For instance, over the years that Mother Goose and I wandered to various vacation destinations, we conducted an unscientific but correct survey on the best highway potty stops.

WHEN THE kids were little, their preference was for the Golden Arches. But later, we realized that in state after state you can't go wrong on a Holiday Inn. The rest rooms always are on the ground floor, always are just off the lobby, and always are clean. If the Nation's Innkeeper wants a testimonial, I'll be happy to oblige.

In traveling as one man against the elements, a new fear has developed. It is the fear of motel showers and the possibility of slippery bathtubs. I'll tell you why.

This was after the misdirected toothpaste episode. I had hardly broken into a chorus of the "Victors" when my foot slipped. I grabbed for the overhead rod, but it was not securely bolted and came tumbling down complete with the shower curtain and as we tangled in the tub I inadvertently hit the hot water spigot, turning it on high. The sensation on my midriff was scalding.

In the scramble for safety, there flashed through my mind a possible obituary headline, "Michigan Guest Scalds to Death in Motel Tub," but by the time I realized the unit count wasn't correct I already was on the floor screaming for help. By the way, I didn't have to pay the bill.

My inclinations to get into such crazy incidents are being logged on this trip, but not in writing. I talk into a tape recorder on the front seat of my car. In a sense, it's my "black box" and in case of tragedy might turn into a best seller.

EARLY ON, after crossing the Mississippi, I drove southwest through the Ozarks and would like to tell certain friends who were stationed at Fort Leonard Wood during the big shoot of the '40s that the loving hills where they conditioned their legs are just as steep now as they were then. Those must have been fun days.

Shortly before I embarked on this expedition, I had dinner with two of my finest and oldest friends, man and wife. A few days later there was a note from the lovely lady with a comment that touched me deeply, and we go back half a century together.

She wrote, "You're revealing more the Fred you have always been — an optimist, a lover of life, and an adventurer. I know it has always been there, and perhaps it has not always been shown to its true advantage. Now, and for the past couple of years, it has truly surfaced and is providing you with the ability to continue to enjoy being alive — and to become an inspiration to others."

When the final day ultimately arrives — and it's a hell of a long way off — I can't imagine a finer epitaph.

keeping up with government

Looking for information about state government? The League of Women Voters has a toll-free telephone service (1-800-292-5823) that may be helpful.

The league's Citizen Information Center in Lansing offers to help people find out about such things as pending legislation, the state constitution, election laws, voting regulations or tax information.

The telephone is answered from 10:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. weekdays.

The telephone service is paid for by the league's education fund. The League of Women Voters is a non-profit organization that works to keep voters interested and informed about governmental issues.

Rules stomp on freedom

THERE'S A saying, "America doesn't have the best medical treatment in the world — only the most expensive."

You know it if you are involved in watching health care costs rise faster than inflation. You know it if you've seen the statistics on lawsuit payouts. You know how it takes years longer to get a new medical technique approved in the United States than elsewhere.

By coincidence, I had studied some frightening health cost numbers just before picking up an essay Dick Jacobs gave me during the last election campaign.

JACOBS, 49, of Holland was the Libertarian candidate for U.S. Senate. Libertarians got only 1 to 1.5 percent of the vote in these parts, but for a newsman they're fun to cover because they can't afford pollsters to tell them which code words will appeal to your race or gender; Libertarians discuss issues.

JACOBS IN 1986-7 had a nasty bout with cancer — a seven-inch tumor wrapped around his aorta.

I'll skip the medical details. Appalled at the prospect of chemotherapy and drugs with unknown side effects, Jacobs went to his local friendly public library, devoured all he could on cancer — and came up with the name of Dr. Lawrence Burton, formerly of New York University, now of Freeport, the Bahamas. It's outside the boundaries of the United States but only a short plane hop away.

Burton's notion is that "cancers develop because of a breakdown in the immune system." Bolster the immune system with injections of plasma protein fractions, and many patients can destroy cancer cells or control development of the disease, he says.

To a political writer, the point is that Dr. Burton is on the outs with the U.S. medical establishment. Jacobs' own physician practically threw a fit when the patient said he planned to go to Burton's clinic.

JACOBS took six weeks of treatment. At his local hospital 3½ months later, he was told "my tumor was not growing, and the cancer had not spread."

By 1988 Jacobs was well enough to campaign for the Senate and looked pretty good when I saw him at the Detroit Press Club.

HIS COMMERCIAL is political, not medical.

"We supposedly live in a free country, but I had to leave my country to exercise my freedom of choice regarding the medical therapy I wanted and not what Big Brother Government says is acceptable," Jacobs said.

"Cancer patients need to know about alternative types of therapy, but not one medical doctor at my local hospital or at Mayo Clinic shared with me the option offered by Dr. Burton's therapy, or any other type of therapy."

JACOBS is a stauncher Libertarian than ever.

HIS THEME pops up in other news stories.

Last year's report on education by the Metropolitan Affairs Corp. of southeastern Michigan had the message: Don't force kids to go to the monopolistic local government school; let them or their parents choose.

A recent news broadcast reported on the flak the Guardian Angels were getting as they offered to patrol London's streets. Even a Conservative politician argued public safety should be a government monopoly. Down with this talk about people protecting themselves.

Recall the trouble a New Yorker named Goetz got into when he had the effrontery to protect himself from four young thugs instead of waiting for the government public safety officer.

It was 22 years ago this month that I chatted with a politician whose avocation was raising champion scotties. Our household had just acquired poodle No. 1.

"Your dog," he said, "will get better medical care than you do because the government won't let your doctor use the medicines on you that the vet can use on your dog."

Dick Jacobs may or may not campaign again. But it sure is refreshing to have him around. I wish him many more happy Christmases.

Splits can be beneficial

Q: My child, a third grader, is in a three/four split, half are third-grade students and half are fourth-grade students, and I'm angry. I want my child in a third grade with third-grade students.

Doc Doyle

A: First of all, there is no such thing as a third-grade child. In any third grade you can have variations, for example, reading from second- to fifth-grade level depending on class composition. It should be understood that students in split classes are usually carefully selected to minimize their learning range within the class. The selection is also based on motivation, work habits and interests. In some cases, being selected for a split could be perceived as an honor.

The biggest problem is parents accepting that a split is not an inherent evil. In your particular case, your third-grade child is most likely reading at the fourth-grade level or above and therefore could be benefiting from the experience by being with children who are at the higher level... assuming the teacher is competent. In any case, the bottom line is the competence of the teacher and the instructional program presented, regardless of being a regular or split class. Indeed, it may be more difficult for the teacher who has a regular fourth-grade class with ability spreads from first grade to sixth grade.

The answers provided here are the opinions of Dr. James Doyle and not the Troy School District. Questions for this column should be sent to Doc Doyle c/o the Observer & Eccentric Newspaper, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia, Mich. 48150.

Area residents send aid, prayers to Armenia

By Tim Smith
Staff writer

Southeast Michigan is putting together a care package for Soviet Armenia.

That help for the earthquake-stricken Soviet republic is coming in many different forms: Some are pledging money, for essential medical supplies; others are carting over-stuffed plastic bags of used or new clothing to various relief stations in Southfield.

The public's generosity since last week's disaster, which reportedly left 80,000 dead and 600,000 homeless, has buoyed leaders of Southfield's two Armenian churches.

"We're gratified to both churches and synagogues for mentioning us (at services), praying for us and encouraging their congregations to help," said the Rev. Paren Avedikian of St. John's. "We're already seeing the results of that."

ARMENIAN CONGREGATION- AL Church pastor Vahan Tootikian said he is "touched to see so many people respond."

The church is linking up with Channel 7 and Lawrence Institute of Technology in relief efforts. LIT president Richard Marburger and his wife, Mary, are members of Tootikian's congregation.

"The Armenian people are very proud people," Tootikian said. "They are givers, not receivers. But this is one time I would appeal to the world to be generous — and they are."

It was hoped that the generosity would be stretched over the long term, said LIT's Marburger. "I'd like to think this is more than the Christmas spirit."

U.S. Rep Sander Levin, D-Southfield, whose district includes Redford, was among those calling for Americans to "reach out to our brothers and sisters in Soviet Armenia and help them in this time of terrible need."

"The devastation caused by the earthquake in Soviet Armenia is so monstrous that it will be days, perhaps weeks, before we know the full extent of the disaster," Levin said in a statement.

"But we already know that the death toll will be in the tens of thousands, and that the survivors are in desperate need of shelter, medical supplies, clothing and blood. As our hearts go out to the victims, let us also join in the worldwide effort to ease their pain."

PLENTY WAS being done in the short term for the earthquake-rocked mountainous region of the Soviet Union, and it was evident at St. John's.

Monday afternoon, volunteers there were preparing letters for 2,700 metropolitan Detroit Armenians asking for donations, whether members of St. John's or not.

Meanwhile, goods continued to pour into the Northwestern Highway church, which includes 1,300 families in its parish.

Workers separated new and used clothing; tables were covered with teddy bears and men's suits; blankets, still cloaked in plastic wrap, were stacked on the cement floor.

ONE PARISHIONER, who knows someone who runs a South Carolina

— U.S. Rep Sander Levin

Agreeing is Tootikian, who said people will be in need long after the holiday season ends. "Long term relief is something that's needed, too. I hope it isn't forgotten," Tootikian said.

AVEDIKIAN, WHO is coordinator of Armenia Earthquake Fund, is making an appeal to the medical community.

Through the fund, money will be directly deposited for medical supplies.

"There will be a need for medical equipment for months, even years. Many people have lost their kidneys," said Avedikian, adding that Soviet Armenia now has only one dialysis machine. "We will even accept used ones."

Meanwhile, Tootikian said he knows of "non-Armenian doctors who are ready to drop everything and go" to the Soviet republic.

On a much smaller level, similar sacrifices are being made by non-Armenian metro Detroiters, said St. John's volunteer Papelian.

Dragging two kids along, a woman brought a bag of children's clothing to the church Monday morning, Papelian said.

And a 13-year-old girl donated $150 from money she received at her own bat mitzvah, the volunteer added.

clothing business, notified Avedikian Monday about the donation of 3,000 pairs of socks, which soon will be shipped overseas.

Although goods are welcome, St. John's volunteer Anoush Papelian said cash donations are the quickest and simplest way to help Soviet Armenia, which had three cities damaged or destroyed in the quake.

To rectify that destruction, Avedikian estimated it would cost at least $30 billion.

"Cash is easier," Papelian said. "They'll be able to buy in quantity what they need, in terms of medical supplies and building equipment."

Six telephones were installed Monday at St. John's, to take public pledges.

"Money can reach overnight, and we can also mail medical supplies," said the Congregational Church's Tootikian, who said his phone has been constantly ringing since the disaster.

THOUGH GOODS and pledges were also rolling in at LIT, Marburger said the college's main involvement is to give people information about how they can give whatever they can.

Marburger also said LIT students are caught up in the relief effort, making individual pleas for donations in their classrooms and churches.

The donations should "add up to something wonderful," Marburger said. But he emphasized that the giving should not be a one-shot deal.

"We need to carry this campaign on for a while," said Marburger, whose wife is of Armenian descent. "The immediate response is to keep people alive. But we need continuing response to help rebuild."

Resident spends 6 weeks in Japan

Laura Barnes, a journalism/public relations junior at Madonna College, went to the land of the rising sun for six weeks during the summer as a member of the Campus Crusade for Christ mission.

The Plymouth resident spent five weeks in Okinawa, a small island off the coast of Japan, and a week in the capital city of Tokyo.

"I was prepared for the culture shock of being in a different country — my big surprise was finding, in some aspects, the Japanese were more similar to us than I expected," Barnes said.

She spent most of her time getting to know the people and made many acquaintances.

When Barnes had a free day, she took to the beaches of Okinawa, as do the natives of the island.

"OKINAWA WAS like the Hawaii of Japan," she said. "The people seemed to be very accommodating to Westerners. Since I could not understand Japanese, restaurants would have plastic replicas of the menu in the window and you point to what you want," Barnes explained.

Eating in Japan is where Barnes ran into some trouble.

"I had to eat a six-inch smoked fish, whole. That really didn't go down too well."

The best experience came when

she visited the Shinto Shrines.

"It was really interesting to watch the Japanese people worship, there is a lot of ritual and symbolism," she said.

Upon returning to Michigan, Barnes decided to enroll in the Japanese Language and Culture class at Madonna.

"I missed my friends and I wanted to learn to converse with them in their own language."

Will she return to Japan?

"Yes, once I have learned the language."

Celebrating yuletide

NO HOLIDAY get-together would be complete without a few songs of the season.

Members of the 60-Plus Club met Monday, Dec. 5, for a holiday program, held at the First United Methodist Church of Plymouth. Musical entertainment was part of the afternoon's fun.

"We had an excellent lunch," said Gladys Gotts of Plymouth, treasurer of the senior citizens group. "We also had a real nice sing-along afterward."

About 75 seniors participated in the holiday gathering. Linda Holtsberry, director of Christian education at the Methodist church, and Nancy Smith, a church secretary, provided the music.

"She played the piano and we both sang," Holtsberry said. "It was just a good fun afternoon."

Linda Holtsberry (standing) and Nancy Smith lead the way during the sing-along.

They started with a medley of Christmas carols and sang duets. Holtsberry did a solo of "Chestnuts Roasting on an Open Fire."

MEETINGS OF the 60-Plus Club are held at noon the first Monday of each month at the First United Methodist Church of Plymouth, 45201 N. Territorial Road. Area senior citizens may attend meetings of the non-denominational group.

Gladys Gotts has been a member for a number of years.

"I heard about it being such a nice social group, which it is," The group has about 100 members, Gotts said, although some head for Florida during the winter.

In addition to an annual holiday celebration, club members celebrate the year's birthdays at the May meeting.

"We do have a wonderful program lady, Marion Matthews," Gotts said. "She keeps this thing going constantly." Esther Bloodworth is club president.

Speakers are featured at many 60-Plus meetings. Linda Holtsberry's husband, an attorney, discussed estate planning at one meeting.

Church staffers visit with club members whenever possible, said Holtsberry, a Farmington Hills resident.

"And then we do things now and then like this Christmas program. We just have a lot of fun with them. We enjoy being a part of their program as well."

Eating lunch with the seniors, or just visiting with them, is enjoyable for the church staff. Such visits are helpful, "just to let them know how important they are," Holtsberry said.

"They're great, no doubt. They enjoy having fun."

High self-esteem helps kids learn

By Julie Brown
staff writer

Children who feel good about themselves are likely to do better in the classroom and at home.

"Obviously, we want kids to have high self-esteem or good feelings about themselves," said Dr. Marjorie Kostelnik, associate professor of family and child ecology at Michigan State University.

Such feelings are strongly tied to children's sense of happiness and their ability to relate to others, she said.

Researchers know there's a relationship between high self-esteem and academic achievement, although they're not sure just how that relationship works.

They know the way people function in society is strongly related to self-esteem. People with high self-esteem tend to be more objective and to deal more effectively with their strengths and weaknesses.

THOSE WITH low self-esteem don't do so well. They tend to expect the worst from life, said Kostelnik, who is also program supervisor for the Child Development Laboratories at MSU.

Kostelnik received her doctorate in human development and family studies from Penn State. The afternoon of Tuesday, Dec. 6, Kostelnik met with preschool and early elementary teachers and administrators from the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

During the workshop, held at Hulsing Elementary School in Canton, Kostelnik talked about ways to build self-esteem in children.

Part of an educator's role is to help children develop social contacts and to train them in the rules and values of society. At one time, schools had a more limited role.

"That isn't so true any more," Kostelnik said. "Now we in education are included much more in that process."

Those two roles can conflict, in the classroom and at home. On the one hand, teachers and parents want children to feel like they're good

Educators and parents can work well together

Local educators know children with high self-esteem do better in school — and in life.

"I see that kids with good self-esteem are risk takers," said Sharon Belobraidich, who teaches first and second grade at Hoben Elementary School in Canton. Those children know that what they do doesn't determine who they are.

Belobraidich makes it clear to her students that she may at times not like their behavior, but that doesn't mean she doesn't like them. She has also raised her own children with that in mind.

Belobraidich was among educators from the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools at a recent workshop, held at Hulsing Elementary School in Canton. Teachers and administrators learned about ways to boost children's self-esteem.

"Giving responsibility as children grow" is one way parents can help build self-esteem, Belobraidich said.

PRE-SCHOOLERS CAN, for example, pour the milk for their cereal; as children grow, they can handle increased responsibilities, helping them feel more independent.

"That's why riding a two-wheeler is so important." Mastering that task helps children; increased mobility means their world expands.

In her classroom, students must put their things away each day; children don't have assigned desks.

"That's their responsibility." Children are also responsible for the work they do in class, Belobraidich said.

She and other educators have seen the impacts of negative reinforcement on children. Children who only hear negative comments can become emotionally impaired. Some children hear the word "but" too often; adults give them the message that nothing they do is ever good enough.

"What kind of self-esteem can you have?"

BELOBRAIDICH found the Tuesday, Dec. 6, workshop with Michigan State University's Dr. Marjorie Kostelnik useful.

"This is probably the most valuable one we've had so far. I think she's got some very practical things to say to teachers that help us in the classroom."

Mary Fritz also found the workshop useful. She's director of Chapter I and Head Start for the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

"It's really the basis" for learning," Fritz said of self-esteem. "This is what we work on all the time."

Parents also need to feel good about themselves, she added.

"We work on that a lot in our Head Start program."

Talking to children — and letting them know what they say is important — is helpful. Reading to them, and sharing other activities, helps build a positive self-image, Fritz said.

SKATING IN "A Christmas Musical on Ice" was a lot of fun for members of the Plymouth Figure Skating Club. "They seemed quite excited," said Alice Bohr of Plymouth, producer of the show. "I think they really did enjoy it."

The ice show was held the evening of Friday, Dec. 9, at the Plymouth Cultural Center. About 40 skaters of all ages participated.

Skating club members also compete, Bohr said. The holiday ice show was more relaxed than competitive skating events are.

"It was a fun thing for the kids." A party was held after the show for participants, families and friends. Santa Claus, who skated in the show, visited with those at the party.

Snowman.
"I had to keep my head down in order to make the costume look right."

BOHR IS accustomed to skating with her head up; during the show, she looked out of the costume's mouth section, to see where she was going.

"It was kind of warm in there." Bohr took off the costume's hat in between numbers, giving her a chance to cool off.

The skaters only had two on-ice rehearsals before their Dec. 9 performance. She and others were pleased with the show.

"It was really a nice combined effort." Parents of skaters, despite their busy schedules, found time to help with the show.

"So I'm really pleased with our members."

Members of the Centennial Educational Park Singings performed during the show. About 30 preschoolers from Academic Gardens in Plymouth performed songs of the season before and during the show. The musical performers contributed to the show's success, Bohr said.

THIS WAS the first year the Plymouth Figure Skating Club held a Christmas show. Bohr and the others hope to make it an annual event.

"I have the whole show planned for next year already." Bohr was excited about this year's show, so she sat down on Saturday and planned next year's performance.

"They seemed quite excited. I think they really enjoyed it."

— Alice Bohr show producer

She'd like to have this year's musical performers return. She'd like to invite middle school band students to participate. Drama class narrators from CEP may also participate.

Bohr would also like more elaborate scenery and lighting for next year's performance.

"I just need the manpower to do it."

Friendship: It's cause to celebrate

THE CANTON Historical Society's holiday gathering wasn't the most formal of occasions.

Historical society members and guests met the evening of Thursday, Dec. 8, at the Canton Historical Museum. The annual celebration, an informal affair, has been held "as long as I can remember," said Tille Schultz, president of the Canton Historical Society.

Historical society members hold a holiday party each December on their regular meeting night. Last week's celebration included a sing-along, featuring songs of the season.

The gathering helps people start the holiday season right, said Schultz, a Canton resident.

"And especially getting in the Christmas mood, the Christmas spirit." Festive decorations at the museum, including a Christmas tree, helped make the occasion a special one.

PIANIST FOR the evening was Cheryl Beauchamp of Plymouth.

Beauchamp, who's been playing the piano since she was 5, also plays for weddings and other special occasions. She came to the historical society gathering with a friend of hers, Melissa McLaughlin, secretary of the Canton Historical Society.

Spotlight's on seasonal story

An enriching holiday experience awaits those who plan to attend the dramatic production of "Amahl and the Night Visitors."

The Plymouth Symphony Orchestra has invited the Opera Lite company to perform the classic seasonal story at 8 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 17, at the Plymouth Salem High School auditorium, 46181 Joy, Canton.

The vocal and orchestral presentation, designed for those of school age, will combine the talents of the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra and the Opera Lite company. The story involves a poor boy and his mother who are unexpectedly visited by three kings following the Star of the East.

"Amahl and the Night Visitors" portrays the inner riches each person possesses. Through the use of costuming, scenery, lighting effects and dance, as well as vocal and orchestral elements, the story is told.

THE PERFORMANCE has been a sellout in the past; theater-goers should plan on buying tickets in advance. Ticket prices are $10 for adults, $5 for students in kindergarten through the 12th grade.

Tickets are available at: Beitner's Jewelry, 904 W. Ann Arbor Trail in Plymouth; Arnoldt Williams Music, 5701 N. Canton Center Road in Canton; and at the Plymouth Symphony Society office, 9430 S. Main, Plymouth. For more information, call 451-2112.

Opera Lite was founded in 1986 by David Pulice. Its primary purpose is to give professional entertainers based in Detroit another outlet for cultivating and displaying their talents.

Company members have appeared with major U.S. symphonies and opera companies and with professional regional, summer stock and dinner theaters. They have appeared in feature and industrial films, concerts, trade shows, TV commercials and radio jingles.

Opera Lite members have performed at the Top of the Pontiac and at Trapper's Alley, where they competed against 52 performance groups to win the 1987 Christmas Choral Competition. Members have provided seasonal music for Christmas visitors at Greenfield Village for three years.

THE COMPANY has also performed outside of the Detroit area and was chosen to provide the entertainment for Gov. James Blanchard at the 1988 Michigan Legislative Conference on Mackinac Island.

The production of "Amahl and the Night Visitors" will include the talents of David Pulice as director, Beverly Labuta as musical director and Annette Bergasse as choreographer.

Cast members are: Chris Wehrli (Amahl), Barbara Youngerman (Amahl's mother), Karl Schmidt (King Kaspar), Frank Hull (King Melchior), Carl Clendenning (King Balthazar), Tim Hamman (the page), Joshua Bergasse and Tina Kogan (the dancers). The production will also include a chorus of shepherds and villagers.

Kids need some help in learning

people; at the same time, it's necessary to teach children how to behave.

As a beginning teacher, Kostelnik tended to judge her days by how well children listened to her. She learned that discipline or child guidance isn't really a matter of tricks; instead, it involves a set of principles that are easy to learn but hard to carry out consistently.

CHILDREN ARE born amoral. As they grow, they reach the adherence level, in which children follow rules to get a reward or to avoid punishment.

"It means you have to be on top of them all the time. And we all know what that's like."

Children progress to the identification stage, in which they follow rules because someone they admire thinks those rules are good. The drawback is that control still comes from the outside, through a psychological presence.

That's followed by internalization, in which rules become an extension of the child. Children follow rules because it's the right thing to do.

"That's really what we're working toward with children, self-control."

Adults exhibit all levels of behavior, depending on the situation, she said. What teachers and parents want is more internalization in children.

Preschoolers think of themselves in terms of physical characteristics and possessions; they don't think of the future or past. Children age 5 or 6 also define themselves by what they do, "so their activities become very important to them."

BEYOND THAT, children start to view themselves in comparison to other youngsters. At age 10 or 12, they start to define themselves as a function of personality. Those youngsters think in terms of the past and future.

Self-esteem includes two components: competence and worth.

Competence is related to judgments children make about whether they can influence events around them. Worth is related to whether they feel valuable as human beings.

"Many children do not have good feelings in either of those areas." Children may feel they are loved for their abilities or even for their appearance.

As with self-esteem, self-awareness develops in stages. Children who have many negative experiences in life tend to have low self-esteem.

"That sense of self-esteem often stays with them until adulthood." After age 8 or 9, it takes a more concentrated effort to change that.

Often, teachers are so busy managing the day they may feel there's no time for children.

"We are asked to do so much in a classroom." Even so, it's possible to find ways to make children feel special.

Friends meet for celebration

"She just gave me the music and I learned them," Beauchamp said of the seasonal songs.

Music wasn't the only entertainment provided that evening; an auction was also part of the fun. The talents of Canton resident and historical society member Mary Sidick as auctioneer helped get things started.

The fund-raising auction had an unusual twist; participants bid on wrapped "mystery packages," containing a pound of some unknown commodity. Macaroni, baked beans, toilet paper and raisins were among the mystery items.

Those attending the gathering enjoyed refreshments, and had a chance to buy handmade gifts from the museum's gift shop.

Historical society members held a Christmas craft bazaar over the weekend. Victorian and country Christmas items are among those sold at the museum.

Introducing The GUARDIAN PLAN program

I'd like to tell you why so many caring people have said "Yes" to this funeral prearrangement program.

I once asked John, our GUARDIAN PLAN representative, why he chose his calling. He answered, "Because I believe in it. Because I know first hand, how it helps families."

I found out that John is not alone. He is one of hundreds of compassionate and dedicated men and women who represent the GUARDIAN PLAN program throughout the United States and Canada.

I'd like to tell you more about a funeral prearrangement program that attracts people of the caliber of John and his associates to serve you.

The full title of the program is the GUARDIAN PLAN prearranged funeral program. It's funded by life insurance policies and annuity contracts. Unlike trust funded funeral prearrangement plans, the GUARDIAN PLAN program is backed by insurance. That's a big difference. It means once you pay the first premium, you're covered for the full cost of the funeral services you select. And the insurance proceeds from the GUARDIAN PLAN program are tax-free.

Another feature of the GUARDIAN PLAN program that you won't find in any other prearranged funeral plan is something the GUARDIAN PLAN people call Transferability. Let's say you make your GUARDIAN PLAN funeral prearrangement where you live now and later move to another part of the country. No problem. You are guaranteed that services equal in every way to those you selected in the first place will be provided through the GUARDIAN PLAN program wherever you move, and at no increase in the original cost. Now, I think that's a very important benefit.

There's a lot more to learn. And if what I said makes sense to you: Talk to your heart, why not do this: Call for the free, informative booklet, CARING. Call toll free, 1-800-922-7464. The GUARDIAN PLAN people have worked out an easier way to remember that number: 1-800-9-CARING.

THE GUARDIAN PLAN® is a registered service mark of Service Corporation International (SCI). The GUARDIAN PLAN prearranged funeral program is offered by Guardian Plans, Inc., a subsidiary of SCI. Guardian Plans, Inc. is an independent contractor acting on behalf of the funeral home offering to provide funeral arrangements and services. The funeral home selected by independently owned or owned by SCI. The prearranged funeral services and contributions are funded in the form of need by life insurance policies and annuity contracts issued by Family Service Life Insurance Co. (FSLIC), the FSLIC Life Insurance Co. (FSLIC), also a subsidiary of SCI. There are a number of life insurance companies which have the word guardian in their name. The prearranged funeral program is not affiliated with or sponsored by any of these companies.

Gold mining stock may mine your pocket

I just bought 20,000 shares of a new Canadian gold mine at $1.00 a share. I have read all the reports; the area has been gone over carefully, and there is enough new material to keep the mine operating for 12-15 years.

Operations are going to start any day. Excellent profits are going to be made if gold sells for $440 an ounce. I know gold is selling for less than that now, but I'm sure that is only temporary.

The company needs more money to start operations and is offering me 10,000 more shares at $2 each. They say the next offering will be $4. At that price, my shares would be worth $120,000. Do you think I ought to go ahead?

It sounds to me like you are preparing for a voyage to the poor house.

I am always amazed at the sales ability of those Canadian (and American) salesmen of mining stocks. With the amount of money you've invested, I'd take a trip to the site and see if a shaft has been built and if any equipment is on hand.

I'm told very few of these ventures ever get beyond the stage of transferring investors' money into the pockets of the promoter. If the mine can't make money at the price gold is selling at now, I wouldn't consider it.

If the company has to raise more capital now to get started and is already talking to you about coming back a third time, it sounds like the need for capital hasn't been very well thought out. When they come back and ask you to buy more at $4, remember they are asking you for more money, not offering to buy your shares back at a handsome profit.

Would you please comment on Prudential-Bache High Yield Fund? We invested $45,000 in it and are now having second thoughts.

Why are you having second thoughts? If you bought the fund for yield, then you should be looking at the income you are getting, not the fluctuation in the price of the shares.

I just learned that redemptions are exceeding sales for the fund I own. That sounds dangerous, and I'm selling my shares. Do you agree?

A number of funds are experiencing more redemptions than sales. However, high redemptions by mutual funds is a sign of the times and the public's tendency to reduce its holding of mutual funds.

Look at the fund's record and its current position before concluding the redemption problem is really negative.

Car survey indicates worst insurance bets

Allstate Insurance Co.'s annual look at auto models that cost less to insure indicates American-made auto models are discounted more often than their foreign-made counterparts.

The cost of insuring a particular model will generally depend on its price new. However, the amount the insurance company has paid out in claims for that model may be different than anticipated for vehicles of the same price. Many factors contribute to losses being different than expected, including how easily the car is damaged, how expensive the vehicle is to repair, and how often it is stolen.

This year, American-made automobiles are predominant among the models being charged below standard levels. "This is important information for consumers," said Fred Cripe of Allstate's pricing department. "Those cars which are less susceptible to serious damage in minor accidents and cost less to repair when they are damaged cost less to insure.

Chrysler could, if it wanted, build sleek cars

I'm convinced that there are two kinds of work for auto executives: what's on their desk and a neat project over in the corner.

The boss keeps checking on the work on the desk because that's usually what's going into production at the moment. But the stuff of the future, the project the guy is really interested in, is over in the corner behind a chair or even under it.

Auto designers (don't call them stylists) are particularly prone to this phenomenon and will unfold tales of frustration worthy of Van Gogh if you get them going about how someday they are going to build the car they really want to make.

It's a complaint that's peculiar to the domestic industry, as the rest of the world's car companies don't even try to design cars but rent Italians instead. Except for the Japanese, who end up hiring synthetic Italians — mainly former GM designers who moved to California and learned to keep the top of their shirts unbuttoned.

Over the years, I've noticed that one of the most crowded corners is in Tom Gale's office. He's now Chrysler vice president for product design.

IN A DESIGN world dominated by guys who learned to wear blue blazers at the University of Michigan and who were schooled at California's Art Center, Gale is a closet gearhead from Flint who started drawing cars at Michigan State's school of industrial design. For years, he has sponsored major design projects at Detroit's Center for Creative Studies so he can get the students to work for free — a tactic eventually imitated by Ford's Jack Teinack and others. He also spent a number of years as a working engineer before he took to the drawing board full time.

But mainly, Gale has been responsible for a series of Chrysler designs on his desk that sold well enough to pull Chrysler back from the brink of disaster, but as styling — or, design — exercises were as memorable as a New York taxi.

After the Omni and K car boxes, Chrysler design scored a minor victory with the LeBaron coupe, then ground down through the practicality of the Dynasty and New Yorker, bringing back memories of the days when old Walter himself insisted a car could be downright frumpy as long as it was tall enough to wear a hat inside.

All would have been redeemed by the new Plymouth Laser, probably the best-balanced sporty car to interpret the aero theme. Unfortunately, accolades were somewhat diminished by sharing credit with Mitsubishi, which did the chassis, although its design roots clearly are in Highland Park.

Through it all, that corner of Gale's office was always crammed with some of the freshest ideas I've seen. A few years ago, as a prelude to the utility boom the industry now is experiencing, there was something called the Hotshot, a kind of offroad sports car. Then the Slingshot, unveiled at last year's auto shows. More recently, there is the Speedster, to be unveiled at the upcoming Detroit auto show.

Step No.	Action	Reason
1.	Put $100,000 each in 3-month CDs in 10 separate accounts	Up to $100,000 in each account is insured by the FDIC. This will give the Joneses some breathing space and bring them peace of mind.
2.	Find a professional you can trust.	Assuming that the Joneses will never have the expertise to decide where they should invest the money, it is best to direct their energies toward picking a trustworthy planner.
3.	goals and objectives interview	The planner should conduct an in-depth interview, which should result in the articulation of the Joneses' short- and long-term goals, their risk tolerance level, and a clear identification of their fears, anxieties and prior knowledge of investment alternatives. The results of this interview should be presented in a typewritten form to the Joneses for approval.
4.	development of a generic investment portfolio	This portfolio should indicate an ideal distribution of the funds in five categories: liquid, fixed income, equity, growth, tax advantaged/enhanced growth. The planner should explain to the Joneses how this portfolio would help them achieve their objectives.
5.	the educational process	The planner should educate the Joneses on each of the investment products included in the portfolio. The Joneses must learn about the advantages and disadvantages of the selected products and must ultimately make the final decision decision to invest in them.
6.	specific recommendations	The planner should present to the Joneses the final investment portfolio containing the specific investment products already approved by the Joneses. After the Joneses have perused how their portfolio would look like if they accepted the recommendations, they should authorize the planner to implement them.

Financial advisers see many different solutions

Bob and Betty Jones, both 27, recently came to us, confused and aggravated. The Joneses have always been of ordinary means and have had no financial concerns.

However, Bob just received $1 million as a settlement for an accident he suffered some time ago. According to Bob, visits with several financial planners, bankers, stock brokers, and insurance salesmen left him more confused and aggravated.

The main reason: Each person has a different solution, and Jones has neither the background nor the temperament to decide what's best for him.

But he knows he has to act, and that leaves him cold.

The amount in this case may be more than what most people will ever deal with, but the story remains pretty much the same: The financial professionals can always be blamed for all the confusion that exists in the marketplace.

However, that is simply not the case. The banker, the financial planner, the stockbroker, or the insurance salesman cannot be blamed for this confusing situation.

The real culprit is the way the problem is usually approached by the people.

Let me share with you the steps I recommended the Joneses take to solve their problem (see the accompanying chart).

Michigan Bell helps small businesses

The economic environment under which all firms operate has a significant impact on their ability to achieve long-term success and growth. Described as one of five external environments beyond the business owner's control to modify, economic conditions basically influence the way companies use resources.

One company that serves to assist local communities in taking control over their own economic growth and development is Michigan Bell. Since 1984 its economic development staff has worked with local companies, community groups and government agencies throughout the state based on the approach that "success grows best at home."

Michigan Bell's Business Retention and Expansion program is one of seven initiatives that has been developed to support existing businesses while attracting new companies to a given community. By encouraging growth among local companies and enhancing new-business attraction efforts, everyone stands to benefit.

According to Robert L. Morris, director of economic development at Michigan Bell, these benefits include providing the assistance necessary to resolve issues and problems before they pose serious economic threats — as well as bringing in new dollars and new jobs. Using Michigan's manufacturing sector as a focus for this program, Morris referred to a recent U.S. Chamber of Commerce study showing how 100 new manufacturing jobs stimulates its surrounding community: 100 new retail jobs and 102 families added to the community, the creation of 64 new non-manufacturing jobs, $1.5 million added to annual retail sales, $1.9 million added to annual personal income, and 202 more people attracted to the community.

focus: small business

Through the implementation of this program around the state, small- to medium-sized manufacturing companies have helped themselves and their communities to experience solid economic growth. For more detailed information about the business retention and expansion program, Morris suggests readers contact his office at 223-5246 to obtain a copy of "Success Grows Best at Home." This handbook provides a comprehensive step-by-step guide to starting a business retention and expansion program in your community.

Among other initiatives are Jobs 2000, international attraction program, entrepreneurial building program, community growth alliance grant, and the tourism program. Next week, we will discuss how these programs work in conjunction with Michigan Bell's educational relations effort.

Mary DiPaolo is the owner of MarkeTrends, a Farmington Hills-based business consulting firm. She is also producer and host of the cable television series, "Chamber Perspectives."

New trimmings for the turkey

Q. Do you have some suggestions for giving my traditional holiday menu — turkey and trimmings — a new look?

A. If your family won't recognize Christmas without the traditional turkey, you might want to try some new side dishes. The following recipes give traditional favorites a new look and can be used in place of "standard" selections, such as salad or potatoes, without forfeiting good nutrition.

CRANBERRY-PINEAPPLE RELISH
 1 cup fresh cranberries
 1 small apple
 1/2 cup unsweetened crushed pineapple
 1/4 cup honey

Drain canned pineapple and set aside. Place pineapple juice in blender. Wash berries. Core and slice apple. Add to juice in blender and using "coarse chop" setting, mix until finely chopped. Add pineapple and honey. Chill before serving. Makes 2-3 servings. Can be made ahead and stored for several days before serving.

Terry Gibb

CARROT CRUNCH
 4 small carrots
 1/2 cup raisins
 6-8 tablespoons orange juice

Wash carrot and grate very fine. Add raisins and orange juice. Mix well. Makes 4 servings. Can be made ahead (except orange juice) and stored in covered container.

EASY VEGETABLE SOUFFLE
 (side dish or meatless main dish)
 3 tablespoons flour
 3 tablespoons butter
 1 cup milk
 3 eggs
 1/2 cup mayonnaise
 5 green onions and tops
 1/2 teaspoon curry powder salt and pepper to taste 12 ounces, cooked, of one of the following: cauliflower, corn, broccoli, spinach

 In a saucepan, melt butter, until foamy. Sprinkle with flour and cook, stirring, for 2-3 minutes. Gradually add milk and continue to stir and cook until thickened. Cool slightly. In a blender or food processor, puree vegetable, eggs, mayonnaise, green onions, seasonings and white sauce. Pour into a one-quart baking dish with straight sides. Bake at 350 degrees for one hour. Makes four servings.

CHEESE NOODLE KUGEL
 (side dish or meatless main dish)
 3 eggs, separated
 1/2 cup butter melted
 2 tablespoons honey
 1/2 pound medium wide noodles, cooked
 1/2 cup whole grain bread crumbs
 1 pound cottage cheese

1 cup yogurt

Beat egg yolks. Add melted butter, honey, cottage cheese, yogurt then the cooked noodles. Pour into a two-quart buttered casserole. Top with bread crumbs and dot with butter. Bake at 375 degrees for 45 minutes. Makes four servings. Variations: Add one cup chopped apple and 1/4 cup raisins. Top with ground walnuts.

ECO-TIP: The starred recipes are from "I Am Not A Vegetarian" — Meatless Main Dishes for Meateaters from Concern Detroit, Inc. Bill bans police ticket quotas in evaluation

A bill to prohibit police department ticket quotas is on its way to Gov. James Blanchard's desk after overwhelming House of Representatives acceptance.

"It was a compromise," said the sponsor, Rep. Perry Bullard, D-Ann Arbor. "But it maintains the principle that ticket quotas are barred in the evaluation of a police officer's performance." Bullard said serious crime — not traffic tickets — should top the agendas of police agencies. The House voted 93-0 to concur in Senate amendments Thursday. The bill initially had been opposed by suburban police agencies, particularly Livonia and Bloomfield Township, and the 17-community Conference of Western Wayne County. Police unions backed it. Bullard said their differences had been resolved. All area representatives supported House Bill 4538 except Democrats William Keith of Garden City and James Kosteva of Canton. Both were absent for the roll call.

Kidnapping won't panic hospitals

By Peggy Annino
staff writer

News of last month's abduction of a baby from an Ann Arbor maternity ward sent chills up the spines of officials from local hospitals, but it hasn't sparked changes in security measures.

"How tragic," said Julie Sproul, community relations director at St. Mary Hospital in Livonia. "We are all sitting here wondering how could that happen."

In the last two years, three children have been kidnapped from Michigan hospitals, according to the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children. There have been at least 10 such abductions nationwide this year alone, a spokesman for the Washington, D.C.-based center told the Associated Press.

But Sproul and officials from other local hospitals said they have confidence in the security measures currently in place in their respective facilities. The reports of a 3½-month-old girl being kidnapped from C.S. Mott Children's Hospital in Ann Arbor, while disturbing, haven't caused hospitals to make any security or procedural changes.

"I haven't heard any repercussions of that here at all," said Sproul. "We haven't had any problems with it."

A spokeswoman at Annapolis Hospital in Wayne said officials there are "very concerned about security, especially in the maternity unit."

"The system they have now has been working well," added Mary Tenniswood, a community relations specialist at Annapolis who said she was speaking on behalf of associate administrator Bill Sherman.

But Tenniswood said she is not authorized to give out detailed information about the hospital's security "because that could jeopardize security."

Annapolis officials "constantly review and test" the security system, but no changes were made after the Ann Arbor incident, Tenniswood said.

To test the system, officials occasionally send in bogus visitors to see if employees follow security measures, she said.

Officials at Garden City Osteopathic Hospital reviewed their maternity ward security after hearing about the Ann Arbor abduction, but no changes were made, said Mitchell Nimmoor, the facility's vice president of personnel and community relations.

"We have for a long time had all kinds of precautions," Nimmoor said.

Those precautions include having a security guard outside the entrance to the maternity ward and an alarm on a door that provides an alternate exit. Maternity ward visitors must pass a nursing station, and Nimmoor said nurses "are told to keep their eyes open in every unit, not just O.B. (obstetrics)."

"We have had people challenged if they are in here in off hours," he said. But Garden City Osteopathic, like other area hospitals, never has had a kidnapping.

All area hospitals require visitors to get a pass before visiting patients; the number of visitors allowed in a room at one time is usually limited. Rules are sometimes expanded in the maternity wards so children can visit their newborn siblings, and fathers are also given special privileges, officials said.

Special passes and special visiting hours are features of St. Mary's maternity unit, but they must be prearranged, Sproul said.

"We've been here 25 years and so far it's been an efficient procedure," she said of the rules that apply to visitors.

Tenniswood said security, while necessary, must be "tempered to make sure the hospital stays hospitable."

"It's imperative that there are security measures, yet you don't want to prevent people from seeing their loved ones," she said. That dilemma, Tenniswood said, is something all hospitals are struggling with.

In the last three abduction cases in Michigan, all of the children were recovered unharmed. A 36-year-old Howell woman is being held in the Ann Arbor case.

In March 1987, a baby was taken at gunpoint from her mother's arms in Lansing's St. Lawrence Hospital. Another child was taken from its mother's room in Flint's Hurley Medical Center in May 1986.

Wayne County to run seniors' meal program

Wayne County will administer the senior citizen food program in western Wayne County and downriver, including Meals on Wheels for the homebound, county Executive Edward McNamara said Wednesday.

The program previously had been administered by Out-Wayne County Human Services, a non-profit agency that officials say has decided to focus on youth-assistance programs.

The program, which runs on yearly cash grants of $1.5 million and in-kind contributions of $1 million by 34 area communities, will be administered by the county's Department of Health and Community Services.

Since assuming control of the program, the county has added one site, which officials say serves the Arab community in Dearborn. The program serves about 900,000 hot meals a year, which are prepared in Northville and delivered to 46 luncheon centers and 1,800 homebound participants.

The county also is looking for grants to expand the liquid nutrition program, which is for those, primarily cancer patients, who can't digest solid food.

Student comics learn to punch up their lines

Watching a student hone an act are (left) Jonathon Round of the Laugh Academy and Gilda Houser of Southfield. The course concentrates on the basics of guffaw getting.

down and follow. That's what it is we want to give people here, a realist view about... sense of humor."

Since the school began in April, a vice president of Merrill Lynch, lawyers, doctors, teachers, toastmasters and even psychologists have gone through the course. Not everyone who takes the course is bent on being a comedian.

"I get some really intense young kids who really want to be comics, real bad. And a lot of them don't like what it is that I'm telling them... They object to the idea that it's going to be work. They insist that there's another way, they insist that there's a way to be discovered."

"They insist that they can have their parties... and do their mood elevating substances and still get on with what it is that's going on — no such luck, that's not going to happen."

"You've got to have your head together. You have to have a clear head to work it up and a clearer head to do it."

"They have to look at this as another job. They have to understand that it's going to take the same kind of attention that it's going to take to hold your regular job."

"We keep the class count down to 15 students per session, which allows (me) to give that degree of individual attention. I leave my telephone number open to students not only during the novice and intermediate sessions but afterwards. I want to hear from them, I want to find out what they're doing."

The Laugh Academy has no placement service. However, in the next session, students are already expected to vie for "open mike" time at the better clubs in the area, such as the Comedy Castle.

"Out of the 90 who've graduated, I've felt comfortable... referring 15 of them along to different sessions."

The reason more weren't referred is that Round is trying to set a standard and gain a reputation. And he wants to give the Comedy Club in the Detroit area a reputation for developing good talent.

"We're looking to have people come and develop a way of doing their comedy that is going to be unique, that's going to innovate, that's not going to be something that's flash in the pan... We're looking to create some people that are going to think about their comedy and their humor."

The holidays should be a happy time for a five-year-old.

Last year, Sadie had her best Christmas ever. She spent it in the warm, familiar home of the family that raised her since she was a puppy.
But this year things are different.
Two weeks ago, her family moved away. They packed up everything but an old couch that they dropped off at a neighbor's house. And Sadie, whom they dropped off at the Michigan Humane Society.
Now she's without a home.
But Sadie's got another problem. She's not a pup anymore. Though well-mannered and housebroken, to a prospective owner she's not as desirable. At five, she's already considered an older dog.
Unfortunately, Sadie's case isn't unique. Every year, the MHS takes in over 40,000 homeless animals just like her. But, despite that fact, we refuse to treat her as a statistic. Statistics don't like to have their bellies rubbed or chase tennis balls. And statistics don't whimper at night from being lonely in a strange place. But dogs like Sadie do.
The hard truth is that the number of animals, young or old, waiting for adoption continues to be greater than the number of people waiting to adopt them.
And that's where you come in.
We need people like you to give Sadie and animals like her what they really need this Christmas—a warm and caring home.
Or you can do the next best thing. Make a generous holiday donation to the MHS. Because it's only through your support that we can shelter and care for the countless animals that come to us every year. Your support helps us find them the homes they desperately need.
The holidays should be a happy time for a five-year-old. And with your help, they can be.

Thousands of animals are cared for lovingly each year by the Michigan Humane Society. This holiday season, won't you help us help them?

Salem stuns Monroe

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

Craig Marshall might not finish every game for Plymouth Salem, but he usually helps get things started for the Rocks.

The scrappy senior guard fouled out midway through the fourth quarter of Salem's surprisingly easy 79-58 non-conference win over visiting Monroe. By then, Marshall already had scored a season-high nine points, collected seven assists, made seven steals and grabbed seven rebounds.

The next thing Marshall grabbed was a seat next to coach Bob Brodie near the end of the rout. That's OK with Brodie, who knows this won't be the last time Marshall experiences foul trouble.

If he played the entire game, Marshall might have recorded a quadruple double. Top that, Magic Johnson.

"WHEN YOU play as aggressively as he does, you're going to get in foul trouble," Brodie said. "I call him our slasher. He takes it to the glass, and he can jump out of the gym."

Said Marshall: "I know coach doesn't want me to foul out. He just wants me to give a good effort. We're confident with the young guys we've got. Everyone can come off the bench and contribute."

Salem's offensive show included 19 points from senior forward Jeff Elliott and 12 each from Jeff Gold and Jake Baker. Jeff Jagacki was the other Salem player in double figures, pouring in 10 points.

The win raises Salem's overall record to 3-0, with the Lakes Division opener one day away at home against Walled Lake Central. Monroe, a 66-50 winner last week over Wayne Memorial, fell to 2-1.

Brodie scouted Monroe's win over Wayne and didn't expect such a lopsided count. Salem led 23-13 after one quarter and 46-29 at halftime. Monroe made only eight of 28 field goal attempts in the first half, which is a paltry 28 percent.

"I KNEW THEY had a quick team that comes at you," Brodie said. "We played with intensity and got off to the quick lead that I think caught them napping. Defensively, we said we were going to make them shoot the jump shot and if they beat us with that, so be it."

Coby Dickerson and Jason Hunter led Monroe's effort with 16 and 15 points, respectively. Guard Willie Jones, who scored 12 in the win over Wayne, was held to seven points.

"We played two great games (including a win over Temperance Bedford), and I think their heads swelled a little," Monroe coach Joe Keifer said. "They thought they could just put their pants on, come out on the court and win."

"Salem's got a nice club and No. 4 (Elliott) is a very good high school player. But we just waltzed around on defense. Good teams shouldn't play this way. We shouldn't even have showed up."

Salem didn't let up after the first half, outscoring Monroe 10-4 in the first 3 1/2 minutes of the third quarter to lead 56-33. Marshall's basket completed the run before Keifer called a timeout to help Monroe regroup.

"I TOLD THEM at halftime 'We've got a nice lead, and I want to see if you guys have the killer's instinct,'" Brodie said. "I issued a challenge, and they did a nice job of answering it."

"The key was we did things we asked them to do. Defensively, we wanted to force them to shoot from the perimeter, offensively, we asked them to beat the trapping defense so we could get the ball down low. We had effective execution."

Next for Salem is the defending Lakes Division champion. The Vikings lost some players to graduation but Brodie expects a challenge.

"Central always seems to get extra adrenalin flowing for Salem," Brodie said. "We'll be ready. We've got a nice base. We're ready to step into the league and see what we can do."

Tim Noonan pulls up on the break during Plymouth Salem's 79-58 rout of Monroe. The surprisingly easy victory over a traditionally strong ballclub was another feather in the cap of unbeaten Salem, 3-0.

Michelle Fortier, after three years of playing point guard for Canton's basketball team, will direct the Western Michigan offense next year.

Chiefs' Fortier picks WMU

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

Plymouth Canton guard Michelle Fortier wants to wear No. 23 next year when she plays basketball for Western Michigan University.

Fortier wore No. 10 for Canton, so why the change of heart?

"Coach (Bob) Blohm (Canton athletic director) wore 23 when he played basketball at Western, and I told him I might take his number," Fortier said. "He was happy about it."

Blohm was co-captain during his senior year at Western in 1966 and averaged about 10 points per game. He predicts even better things out of Fortier.

"I'm sure she'll be a lot better in No. 23 than I was," said Blohm, who also coaches Canton's junior varsity team. "Her goal always was to play Division I, and her play last summer at the camps cemented that dream for her. She caught a lot of people's eyes."

INCLUDING THE eyes of Western coach Jim Hess, who offered Fortier a scholarship after watching her play at the Traverse City All-State camp last July. Fortier signed a national letter-of-intent in November during the early signing period.

The Broncos finished second in the Mid-American

basketball

Conference last season and are expected to contend again this winter. Western is led by point guard Marti Davis, who graduates after this season.

Fortier averaged about 10 points per game at point guard last fall for Canton, ranked as high as No. 4 in Class A. Hess didn't recruit the 5-foot-3 Fortier to have her sit on the bench.

"We look at her with the possibility of playing right away," Hess said. "One thing we never promise is a starting position because then the players come in and don't work hard enough."

"But I've seen Michelle play the last couple years and, during her senior year, she really emerged as a floor leader. She can run the team, she's a good penetrator, a good defender, and she can shoot. She's also been very well coached. Rob's (Neu) done a good job with her."

FORTIER, WHO spent her freshman year in high school at Livonia Ladywood, was a three-year varsity performer at Canton. She didn't think about playing Division I basketball until last year when Salem sensation Dena Head signed with the University of Tennessee. Fortier also considered the University of Idaho, but the school did not offer a scholarship.

"It was my goal to play Division I, but I didn't think I'd ever reach it," she said. "At the end of my junior year, I started thinking about Division I when I heard about all the offers Dena had gotten. I started thinking about what kind of offers I'd get."

Fortier can't wait to play for Hess, one of the MAC's most successful coaches.

"I SAW A lot of things in him that I saw in Rob (Neu)," she said. "They play the type of game I like. They like to run and that's what I like to do. He's (Hess) a very nice guy. Sometimes I think he's too nice."

Fortier said she is considering math, graphic arts or accounting as a major at WMU. She'd also like to start a coaching career after college.

"My main goal is to get into coaching," Fortier said. "I look up to Rob Neu and Bob Blohm. Blohm's been around the game so long, and every thing he says I take as correct. He's been a help to me."

"The only downfall in my three years at Canton was I wish we would have went a lot further this year in the (Class A) playoffs."

"Besides that, I've loved it here. Since Day One I've improved so much both physically and mentally. That's what I liked. Everyone's like a family here."

Plymouth Salem caused its stock in Observeland wrestling circles to surge upward Saturday when the Rocks toppled Westland John Glenn to win the North Farmington Invitational.

Instead of the traditional tournament format, North conducted the event as a series of dual meets, and Salem defeated the Rockets 33-28 in the final.

"A lot of people were surprised," said Salem coach Ron Krueger, who received his 200th win by beating Glenn. "We were pleased to get to the finals, and our kids went out and wrestled really well."

"We're real young behind the front lines," he added. "But nobody got hurt, and the way (his charges) wrestled they deserved to win."

The host Raiders were third followed by Millford, Walled Lake Western, Farmington, Lincoln Park and Farmington Harrison.

THE ROCKS, who defeated Western 39-31 and Millford 37-29 in earlier matches, jumped in front of Glenn by winning four of the first five bouts.

Matt Konenski (103) and Craig Richardson (112) decisioned Scott Lefler and Tony Pictrayk by 8-3 and 24-10 margins, respectively, before

Glenn's Karl Pace (119) pinned Jeff Shumate in 40 seconds.

The Rocks, however, came back with victories by Julian Cell (125) and Mike Shumate (130) to build their lead. Both wins came on points, Cell taking a 21-15 decision from Eric Ewing and Shumate beating Nate Kemppainen 8-2.

Glenn's Rob Matigian (135) defeated Ron Miller 12-0, but Salem again won four of the next five weight classes, losing only at 145 on a void.

Ed Barlage (140) and Pete Israel (152) pinned their opponents, and brothers Steve and Brian Burlison won by decision in back-to-back bouts at 160 and 171. In one of the key matches, Steve edged Kraig Kuban 10-9, and Brian outpointed Garnett Woody 17-2.

The Rockets made up ground in the last two weights, with Derek Sharp and Joe Williams scoring pins. Both wrestlers missed their team's first two matches, because they were taking college entrance exams earlier Saturday. They arrived at North in time for the most important match, but the contest, ironically, was decided by the time their names were called.

KRUEGER ADDED the season is still in the infant stages, and the Rocks can't stop striving for improvement despite their latest success.

"The one that counts is in the league," he said. "I'm sure the next time we wrestle John Glenn they'll be ready."

Six wrestlers went unbeaten for the Rocks — Craig Richardson, Julian Cell, Mike Shumate, Ed Barlage, Pete Israel and Steve Burlison — but it was actually seven in Krueger's eyes.

Brian Burlison would have won all of his bouts, but he was cited for an illegal slam in the Western match. Krueger said he thought the controversial call was unjustified, but WLW was awarded the points when its wrestler didn't return to the mat. Burlison was ahead on points at the time.

"He wasn't undefeated, but he was in my mind," Krueger said. He also credited Israel as being "a key factor in getting us all the way through."

Borgess blasts Falcons

It didn't take Redford Bishop Borgess long to forget its season-opening loss to Detroit Cass Tech. Less than eight minutes, to be exact.

The Spartans, who last Saturday lost 61-51 at home to Cass Tech, rebounded Tuesday with a convincing 65-48 win over host Dearborn Divina Child.

Borgess jumped out to a 16-5 lead over the Falcons before the game was eight minutes old. The Spartans took a 33-26 lead into the locker room at halftime and breezed through the second half of the Catholic-League game.

Both teams are 1-1. Junior forward Kareem Carpenter led Borgess with 14 points and teammates Shawn Hupert and Charles North contributed 13 points apiece. Senior forward Bill Bannan earned game-high scoring honors for DC with 21 points.

In last Saturday's loss to Detroit Public School League member Cass Tech, Borgess led 23-25 at halftime but was outscored 20-8 in the third quarter and fell behind 45-36.

Senior forward Maurice Davis led three Cass players in double figures with 15 points. LaJuan Bell and Glyn McCarty scored 14 apiece.

Respect paced Borgess' effort with 20 points, five rebounds and four assists but no other Spartan managed double figures.

Borgess pulled to within six, 57-51 late in the game, but a 3-point shot by North that would have closed the gap further missed the mark. Cass scored the final four points to put the game away.

Deluge of free throws ruins Chiefs' chances

The free-throw line helped decide Plymouth Canton's fate Tuesday as the Chiefs went on the road to Dearborn, losing the non-league basketball game 78-55.

Host Dearborn made 35 of 43 free throws, including 24-of-27 accuracy in the fourth quarter. Canton went to the line only 12 times and made six.

Sophomore forward Mohammed Abdrabbon led Dearborn with 22 points and nine rebounds. Rickey Gostenik added 17 points for Dearborn. Tim Nalodka had 12 and Rob Sekulich scored 11 for the Falcons.

Borgess made only 11 of 22 shots at the free throw line, and Cass' front line included three players taller than 6-feet-5. Both situations presented problems for Borgess.

"The free throws make the difference right there," Borgess coach Mike Fusco said. "They also were a big team. They were very physical and we couldn't match up with them."

HARRISON 73, REDFORD UNION 69: Chad Burgess catches footballs during the fall for Farmington Harrison but no Hawk player releases a basketball any better than the 6-2 senior.

Burgess scored 29 points Tuesday for the undefeated Hawks (4-0) against host Redford Union (2-2), including eight in the decisive third quarter. Burgess sank two 3-point shots during the third quarter, when Harrison outscored RU 23-14 and turned a 7-point halftime deficit into a 59-47 lead after three quarters.

Mill Coleman scored six of his 10 points during the third quarter. Jason Lichtman scored 13 points and dished out eight assists for the Hawks and Bryan Wauldron added 11 points.

"The two (Burgess and Coleman) turned the game around," RU coach Tip Smathers said. "Burgess did some things we didn't expect after seeing the scouting report. We didn't expect 3-pointers from him and he drove the lane often instead of the base line."

Kevin Whitman led four RU players in double figures with 20 points and nine rebounds. Joe Delfgauw scored 14 and Chris Warzecha and Steve Nowak added 11 and 10, respectively.

CLARKSTON 58, FARMINGTON 41: Senior forward Kevin McCormick scored 35 points Tuesday for visiting Clarkston, which improved to 3-1 overall.

Farmington hasn't won in four games. Mike Meyers, a senior forward, led Farmington with 16 points and seven rebounds, but no other Falcon finished in double figures. Jason Brown also had seven rebounds for Farmington.

Farmington fell behind 16-6 after one quarter. If there was any consolation in basketball

defeat for the Falcons it's that they held the high-scoring Clarkston bunch to a reasonable 58-point total.

"We haven't been scoring a lot, but we feel good about holding them low," Farmington coach Bob Kaump said. "They have beaten some good teams this year."

JOHN GLENN 72, SOUTH LYON 48: Westland John Glenn ran away with the non-conference win Tuesday at South Lyon behind the 20-point effort of junior guard Bobby Lawrence.

Greg Anderson added 14 points for the Rockets, who won their first game against three losses.

Glenn coach Bob Killingbeck will take the win but he wasn't pleased the way he got it. The Rockets 29-19 at halftime and 49-30 after three, but didn't put the game away for good until both teams entered their benches.

"We emptied our bench and our bench was better than theirs (so that's why the score's so lopsided)," he said. "We didn't play very well at all."

GARDEN CITY 68, SOUTHGATE 42: Three Garden City players scored in double figures Tuesday, leading the host Cougars to their first win in four games.

Anderson remains winless, also in four games.

Jason Wynn led three GC players in double figures with 17 points. Juniors Jim Marazolik and Rick Mortons had 16 and 10 points, respectively.

The Cougars led 34-27 at halftime and opened up a comfortable 44-33 lead after three quarters. Wynn made 11 of 15 free throws helping GC secure the win late.

"Wynn did a nice job at the free throw line and he directed the offense well," Garden City coach Bob Dropp said.

Jeff Jagacki tossed in 10 points to support Salem's victory over Monroe, the team's third straight without a loss.

Confident Spartans stage a comeback

By Brad Emons staff writer

It was a little sleight of hand. Stevenson pulled a rabbit out of the hat Tuesday, beating boys basketball rival Churchill in a battle of Livonia teams, 72-65.

The Spartans, who were outplayed and trailed most of the way, came up with an 8-2 rally in the final two minutes to gain the victory.

"The first two games we busted fanny, but we were nowhere near that tonight," admitted Stevenson coach Jim McIntyre, whose team is 2-1 overall. "But the difference this year is that these kids believe they can win even when they're behind. They've come together nicely as a unit, and they believe in each other. We have everybody back from last year and that makes a big difference. They have more confidence."

Churchill, which slipped to 1-3, came out of the blocks impressively, leading by as many as nine points before taking a 23-18 first quarter advantage.

But Stevenson put on a spurt midway through the second quarter as Mike Vrooman, the Spartans' hulking 6-foot-6, 275-pound center, converted a three-point play to make it 30-all.

THE TEAMS PLAYED evenly the rest of the half before Stevenson forged ahead, 39-38, when Vrooman's backup, 6-8 junior Glenn Szeman, added a three-point play of his own with 57 seconds to go.

In the third quarter, Churchill led by as many as six, 51-45, but the Spartans came back again to tie it on a pair of free throws by Ron Baran with six seconds left.

Churchill, however, behind the inside scoring of 6-3, 215-pound center Mike Juodawlakis, regained its six-point spread, 61-55 early in the fourth period.

The much-improved Vrooman, who shared team-high scoring honors with teammate Chris Nazelli (18 points apiece), took advantage of Juodawlakis' absence by scoring inside.

He was fouled on the play, notching the subsequent free throw as the Spartans inched to within one, 63-62, with two minutes left. Nazelli then made a pair of free throws to put the Spartans on top, 64-63.

JASON BELAIRE, the Chargers' top scorer who was held scoreless after netting seven in the opening quarter, sank a jumper with 1:26 to play, but it was short-lived Churchill advantage.

Ocelots hold on for win

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

All Schoolcraft College's mens basketball team had to show after two Eastern Conference games with two disappointing losses. Not against the league's best, either; these came against teams the Ocelots could have — indeed, should have — beaten.

But in both, SC displayed all the traits common to a young team — which the Ocelots are. Turnovers, poor judgment and inconsistency on the boards, in their shooting and on defense — basically, they showed they really didn't understand how to win.

They didn't reverse all of those trends Tuesday against Henry Ford CC. But the Ocelots did take one giant step forward, failing to surrender down the stretch and holding on for a 65-63 triumph at SC.

Bernard McGee went from goat to hero in a 42-second span. SC had a 63-61 lead and the ball with 50 seconds left, and coach Dave Bogataj wanted to run some of the clock. Instead, McGee drove down the lane and put up an off-balance jumper.

NOT ONLY did McGee's shot miss badly, but he was whistled for a foul. John Baker was awarded two free throws, and he made both to tie the score with 44 seconds left.

"He was supposed to spread it out," said Bogataj of McGee's decision. "He was only supposed to shoot it if it was a layup or if he was going to go to the line. We wanted him to penetrate, but we didn't want him to leave his feet."

After Baker's free throws tied it, the Ocelots called time out — twice. The last came with 10 seconds left to set up a final shot. On the inbound, McGee got the ball, went toward the corner, turned and put up an eight-footer that dropped through with two seconds left for the game-winning points.

"He had a few options there," said Bogataj, explaining that McGee was either supposed to shoot the open jumper, dump it to Mark Koronka in the low post or pass it back to Ed Hudson near the free throw line.

"He picked the right one, I guess," a smiling Bogataj added. "We won."

THAT WAS never assured, not until the final buzzer. Neither team had more than a six-point lead in the game. Henry Ford led 36-33 at the half, but it should have been more; poor free-throw shooting (six-of-14 in the first half) kept the game tight.

In the final minutes, SC's defense made the difference. Dameon Smith was a demon inside, blocking one shot and intimidating two others. Henry Ford's last basket came with 4:51 left. It's only other points were on three free throws by Baker.

"They did, at the end of the game, the things they had to do to win," said Bogataj of his team's effort. "In the second half, our guards rebounded, they played good defense and they didn't turn the ball over."

Hudson finished with a game-high 22 points. He also had eight rebounds. Smith had 11 points; McGee netted seven. Koronka led the rebounders with nine.

FOR HENRY FORD, Baker had 15 points and Bill Anderson scored 10.

As impressive as SC's victory was, a few sobering thoughts need attention. For one, Henry Ford — now winless in three conference games — is hardly a powerhouse. Secondly, SC is just 1-2 in the league and 5-8 overall, nothing to gloat about. And third, many of those attributes that led to victory Tuesday were lacking in Saturday's 97-95 overtime loss to St. Clair CC at SC.

The Ocelots trailed 49-37 at the half against St. Clair before rallying to tie it at 77 at the end of regulation. Thirty turnovers ruined any Ocelot hopes for victory.

Hudson again topped SC with 23 points. Smith had 18, Ken Fuster scored 16, McGee netted 13 and Al Hudson got 10. Robert Biebuyek's 28 points was best for St. Clair, with Tom Belt adding 23.

SC travels to Delta CC Saturday.

SC WOMEN: The Lady Ocelots were supposed to play at St. Clair CC Saturday, but a mix-up in the game's starting time resulted in no officials. The game will be rescheduled.

There was good news, however. In the most recent NJCAA poll, the unbeaten Lady Ocelots (8-0) were ranked 15th in the nation. They also have the No. 1 defense in the NJCAA, surrendering just 52 points a game.

SC is idle until Dec. 27-28, when it plays in the Moraine Valley (Ill.) CC tournament.

Spartans get pounded

By Brad Emone
staff writer

Despite a 2-0 record in the Suburban Prep Hockey League, defending champion Livonia Stevenson is off to one of its slowest starts ever.

The Spartans have suffered four losses outside the league including a 7-2 pounding last week at the hands of state-ranked Southgate Anderson.

Stevenson coach Matt Mulcahy figures his young team, sporting nine junior forwards, will be a decided underdog Friday against upstart Livonia Franklin (4-1), which hasn't beaten the Spartans in five years. (The two teams will meet at 6 p.m. at Edgar Arena.)

"Franklin is not a surprise because I know all those kids because they live in my neighborhood and I coached some of them," said the Stevenson coach. "They're for real. They have two solid lines and that's all you need to win."

The play of the Patriots' Dan McKay, Matt Sharkey and Brian Stover — forming one line — gives Mulcahy reason for concern.

"THEY ALSO have guys like Charlie Olschanski and Rob Ingersoll who are proven scorers and Mike Zajdel is a leader on defense," said the Stevenson coach. "And Danny Murray is a stopper in the nets. Three of the top five goalies in the state live in Livonia and Danny is one of them."

"We have to be considered a darkhorse."

Last week at Southgate, the Spartans trailed only 2-1 after the first period before the Titans exploded for three unanswered goals in the second to win going away.

"Anderson is a good team, one of the top two or three in the state," Mulcahy said. "But we did not play disciplined hockey the whole game and that's why we got behind."

Kevin Kubitskey scored a goal and assisted on another (by Craig Aitken) to account for the Spartans' scoring.

On Wednesday, Stevenson bounced back from a 1-0 first-period deficit to crush Southfield-Lathrup, 10-2, in an SPHL game at Edgar.

Coach puts Marian on top

By Marty Budner
staff writer

Mary Lillie-Cicerone took over the Birmingham Marian girls basketball program in the fall of 1983. At the time, Farmington Hills Our Lady of Mercy was the defending Class A state champion, Livonia Ladywood was on its way to the Class B state championship, and the Mustangs were rolling around as Catholic League fodder.

How times have changed. Marian is the state's No. 1 team now. Mercy and Ladywood, simply, are looking up. This season proved to be the culmination of six years of progress under Lillie-Cicerone.

The Mustangs left Grand Rapids over the weekend with the coveted Class A state championship trophy. Marian defeated Detroit Murray Wright in an emotional state semifinal game Friday, 60-50, then bounced back a few hours later to capture the state crown with a rather easy 71-49 dismantling of a decent Flint Powers Catholic Central squad.

The season — which, besides the state title, included a school record 26 wins plus Catholic League, district and regional championships — was extremely gratifying for coach Lillie-Cicerone and the Mustang players.

"SIX YEARS ago we were in the gutter and now we're on top. It says a lot for our basketball program," said Lillie-Cicerone.

"You look back and say all this hard work and time is not wasted. You feel pretty good about yourself, and you're proud for the kids. They found a little success the past few years, and they just wanted to win more and more. Their hard work during the summer really paid off.

"But I know these young kids (in the program) aren't going to come in with the attitude that hey, we have to do this again," she said. "I think they'll see the success in it and the enjoyment of winning, and they'll just work on it in the summer. And then the program just builds and builds."

Lillie-Cicerone knew the Mustangs were on an upbeat course right from the first tip-off this year.

Even without graduated stars Kathy Phillips and Mary Rogers, Marian got past three of the state's most formidable foes in non-league action. The Mustangs fought past nemesis Saginaw, Class C powerhouse Detroit St. Martin de Porres and Plymouth Canton.

"We figured we would start off on a very tough road... either we get our act together fast or we could go 0-3 to start the season," said Lillie-Cicerone. "After those first three games we had an indication of what we could do. We knew we beat three pretty strong teams."

The victories snowballed after that.

Marian coasted through the Catholic League schedule, capturing the Catholic League title over eventual Class B state semifinalist Dearborn Divine Child.

MARIAN ROARED undefeated through its first 19 games, teetering on the brink of a perfect regular season. Then Detroit Murray Wright intervened. The Pilots, led by All-Stater Laurie Aaron, defeated Marian in the Operation Friendship by 10 points.

In retrospect, the loss turned out to be the best thing to happen to Marian all season. Lillie-Cicerone admitted the pressure of a perfect season was beginning to have an adverse effect on the Mustangs.

"I told the kids I blamed myself for that loss. I was putting too much pressure on them, and they were putting too much pressure on themselves," she said. "We were getting to the point where we were getting down on ourselves. We were trying to be perfect and not make mistakes."

"We had to regroup after that loss, start having fun and not worry about being No. 1," she said. "It was like a whole new attitude for us."

The Mustangs took that new attitude all the way to the state title.

Marian won its district with a pair of easy wins by a combined 66 points over Birmingham Seaholm and Bloomfield Hills Lahser. In the regionals, the Mustangs knocked off Walled Lake Western and defending state champion Detroit Cass Tech.

Then it was on to the quarterfinals where the Mustangs seasons have ended the past two years with losses to Saginaw. This time it was different. Marian stopped Livonia Ladywood for the third time this fall and advanced for the first time ever into the prestigious Final Four.

And they made that first trip a memorable experience. The Mustangs avenged their only defeat of the season against Murray Wright in the semifinals and basked in the ecstasy of triumph over Powers on Saturday.

"I told the kids that we came this far, and we were going to win it all," said Lillie-Cicerone. "I told them that, but deep inside I felt even if we didn't win it still was a tremendous season for us."

"I was a little more relaxed up there (at the finals), and I think maybe that helped the kids to be more relaxed and show that they could do it. We were real low-key about the whole thing. We felt positive about it, and we were confident."

"The whole thing was just great," she said. "It was extremely satisfying."

There's no doubt the turning point of Saturday's Class A state championship girls basketball game at Grand Valley State University was the opening five minutes.

Flint Powers Catholic Central ran into a Mustang buzzsaw and never recovered. Powers, a team noted for its tough defensive style, still may be reeling from the onslaught.

The Chargers scored the game's first basket right after the opening tip-off. It was all Marian after that.

The Mustangs scored the next 18 points. Powers did not score its next basket until the 3:06 mark of the quarter. Marian had assumed a 24-10 lead by the end of the first quarter and eventually won by 22 points, 71-49.

Marian shot a sizzling 64 percent (11-17), and its aggressive 1-3-1 zone defense caused 10 Powers turnovers in that opening quarter. The 18-point Marian streak included six points by Patty Boyle and four points each by Jennifer Shasky, Hazel Olden and Trina Govan.

Press-box workers seemed to have fun with the streak. Following is their description of each basket in the official press notes given to every reporter covering the game.

- Shasky hits the long jumper from the side (2-2).
- Olden grabs the rebound and puts it back (4-2).
- Govan, (makes basket, fouled, misses free throw, 6-2). TIME OUT POWERS.

- Boyle finds a seam, drives, pulls up, swishes (8-2).
- Boyle swishes again, this time from 18 feet (10-2).
- Shasky shoots the smooth jumper from 18 feet (12-2).
- Olden keeps the outside game alive (14-2). TIME OUT POWERS.
- Govan gets the alley-oop and lay-up (16-2).
- Boyle drives right for the lay-up (18-2).

WHAT THEY SAID: Patty Boyle, Marian's senior guard, about winning the state title and the near-perfect first quarter shooting performance: "It was great watching the whole team play and get into it. Just knowing we were No. 1, the best team in the state and we could beat anyone we want to, that was a great feeling. We went out there and could see it in everyone's face. Everytime they took a shot you could see it in their face. Everyone was so high and it was so intense."

Kathy McGee, Flint Powers coach, on Marian's stunning 18-0 streak: "It was an outstanding shooting performance by Marian. They were hot. They moved the ball around so well and they just did an excellent job. When you dig yourself a hole like that in this tournament it's hard to get out."

Virginia Lawrence, Murray Wright coach, after her team started taking 3-point shots with three minutes left and the Pilots down by four points: "Our hands were tied to a point. The kids got a little tight and there was nothing working for us in the fourth quarter."

Matigian, who wrestled against all three opponents as the Rockets beat Farmington 55-9 and North 45-23, also was undefeated. In addition, the host Raiders had four wrestlers with perfect records: Jack Beal (119), Jeff Jacobs (171), Neal Budman (189) and heavyweight Zaim Cunmulaj.

CUNMULAJ WON all of his matches by pin, running his career total to 69. The 220-pound senior has an 81-25 career record and is on track to surpass the school record of 113 career victories set by Craig Gow from 1970-74.

"Zaim is the strongest heavyweight in the state regardless of weight and probably the quickest," North coach Dick Cook said.

Cook, however, is faced with a dilemma in the Western Lakes Activities Association. He has one of his best teams this year, but the Raiders have to contend with teams like Salem and Glenn.

"We'll one of the better teams in the (Oakland) county (meet Saturday), and we can't do better than third in our own invitational," he said. "A few years ago we went to a quad downriver and beat three league champions, and we were sixth in our league."

Orris paces Rocks to invitational crown

As long as Belleville High School continues to extend an invitation to participate in its boys swimming invitational, you can be sure Plymouth Salem will accept.

It's easy to see why the Rocks like to be included. Salem has made two straight appearances and won back-to-back titles.

The Rocks won four events and set meet records in each one Saturday, besting four other teams with a 326-point total. Redford Catholic Central was a distant second with 272 followed by the host team (271), Northville (248) and Woodhaven (81).

Junior Ron Orris set records in two events, breaking the standard he set a year ago in the individual medley. He repeated his first-place performance with a 2:01.66 time, topping the previous 2:02.46 mark.

He also won the 500-yard freestyle in 4:52.56, shattering former Northville swimmer Eric Newton's record of 5:04.36. Salem teammate Mike Hill did likewise in the 200 freestyle, bettering the mark of 1:54.82, also held by Newton, with a 1:53.45 showing.

Boys swim list to start

Boys swimming coaches should report their best times to Plymouth Salem coach Chuck Olson, who once again will compile the weekly Observerland list. Olson can be reached at 451-8600, Ext. 296, between 1:30 and 4 p.m. or 451-6447 between 4 and 5:30 p.m. each weekday. Only coaches or designated persons are asked to call.

THEN, ORRIS and Hill teamed up with Fred Seidelman and Rick Steshetz to win the freestyle relay in 3:24.91. Catholic Central had the old record of 3:26.65.

Salem backed up its impressive first-place feats with its share of seconds and thirds.

Seidelman made a big contribution as runner-up in the 50 freestyle and butterfly with 22.83 and 57.70 times, respectively. Hill added a second in the 100 freestyle (50.78), and Mark Erickson was second in the breaststroke (1:10.51).

Salem's medley relay team of Sean Fitzgerald, Erickson, Rob Shimmel and Chris Coloia was third with a 1:51.70 time, and Fitzgerald added a third-place effort in the backstroke (1:02.86).

Mike Axford scored the same in the 200 freestyle when he stopped the watch at 1:59.07. The Rocks also received a pair of fourths from Eric Bunch in the IM (2:16.73) and Steshetz in the 100 freestyle (54.16).

Catholic Central had three first places and was led by Andy Jacobs, who had two solo victories and helped the Shamrocks capture the medley relay.

Jacobs posted winning times in the butterfly (57.62) and breaststroke (1:06.08) and, swimming the third leg of the relay, was joined by teammates Randy Teeters, Jim Kovach and Troy Shumate in posting a 1:49.93 time.

Kovach and Shumate also scored points in other areas, the latter taking second in the 500 freestyle (4:57.76) and third in the IM (2:08.63). Kovach was runner-up in the backstroke at 1:02.28.

Elk hunters perfect 8-for-8

OBSERVER & ECCENTRIC area hunters had a perfect elk hunt with eight hunters taking eight elk in the 1988 hunt, which ran December 6-13.

Overall, 145 hunters received elk permits and 143 hunters returned home with an elk.

Livonia's Wally Stupi wasted little time in filling his hunters-choice permit. Hunting on the Canada Creek Ranch, north of Atlanta in Montmorency County, Stupi dropped a 6 x 5 bull at 8:30 a.m. on opening day.

"I was in the woods about an hour," explained Stupi. "I was with a guide, and he was going to post me (in a stand). Then he got a call on his radio from another guide who had two cow hunters with him. They had spotted a couple bulls and wanted to know if we were interested. We went to the area and went into the woods. He (the bull) ran in front of me and just like the DNR said, he stopped to look back at me."

The bull dressed out at 500 pounds and was estimated to be three years old.

This wasn't the first elk Stupi has shot. In 1986 he dropped a 5 x 5 bull while hunting in Wyoming.

"The antlers on that one (in 1986) weren't as big or as perfect as the (antlers) on this bull, but the animals were about the same size," Stupi said.

Bill Parker

A COUPLE OTHER area hunters also celebrated opening day success.

Birmingham's David Lowrie took a 5x5 bull in Otsego County on opening day. Lowrie's trophy dressed out at 500 pounds and was estimated to be 3 1/2 years old.

Marion Walker, of Orchard Lake, took a cow on opening day in Montmorency County. The elk dressed out at 350 pounds and was estimated to be one year old.

Farmington resident Dennis Jelley took a 4 x 3 bull on Dec. 7, the second day of the season. Jelley was hunting in Otsego County and the bull was estimated to be four years old.

Dennis Smith of Plymouth and Charles Gordon of Redford Township each shot a cow on the second day of the season in Montmorency County. Both animals were a year old and dressed out at close to 300 pounds.

Farmington's William Lindbert also bagged a cow on Dec. 7. Lindbert's elk was taken from Otsego County, dressed out at 390 pounds and was estimated to be six years old.

Richard Lystila of Troy waited until Dec. 11 to take his elk. Lystila dropped a one-year-old cow in Montmorency County that dressed out at 250 pounds.

DESPITE ANNOYING rain showers in most of the Lower Peninsula throughout much of the firearm deer season, preliminary indications show that the 1988 firearms season set a new harvest record of 289,000 deer. The old record was 257,360, set in 1987.

Hunting pressure was lighter than last year on public lands but about the same as last year on private lands. Antler development was very good, with many 1 1/2-year-olds sporting six and eight-point racks.

Overall, 197,000 bucks were harvested compared to 92,000 antlerless deer.

Region II, the northern Lower Peninsula, produced 85,000 bucks and 43,000 antlerless deer while Region III, the southern Lower Peninsula, produced 87,000 bucks and 38,000 antlerless deer. In Region I, the Upper Peninsula, hunters took 55,000 bucks and 11,000 antlerless deer.

Of the 4,157 deer examined by the Michigan Department of Public Health at the highway deer biological stations, none were found to have "Ixodes ticks" (lyme disease spread by ticks).

"This confirms our belief that there is little, if any, danger of contacting lyme disease during the deer hunting season," said Dr. Stephen M. Schmitt, DNR Wildlife Veterinarian.

college sports

It's awards time, and a number of athletes with Observerland roots are getting their due.

Like University of Michigan stars Mark Messner, the senior defensive tackle from Redford Catholic Central, and Tony Bolez, the sophomore running back from Westland John Glenn. Messner was named to the Associated Press All-America football first team. Bolez was a third-team selection.

Both are busy with final exams this week, but it won't be long until they're basking in the Pasadena sunshine while preparing for the Rose Bowl.

SPIKE STARS: Debbie McDonald, a junior at Purdue from Redford (Bishop Borgess), was selected to the All-Big Ten volleyball first team. The 6-foot-1 outside hitter/middle blocker accounted for 489 kills (a .294 hitting percentage), 128 blocks and 38 service aces. She was fifth in the Big Ten in hitting percentage, sixth in blocks-per-game (1.25) and ninth in kills-per-game (3.93). Purdue finished tied for fifth in the conference at 9-9, 19-15 overall.

TOP LINEMAN: At Saginaw Valley State, senior offensive guard Doug Mac — a Wayne Memorial graduate — was co-winner of the team's outstanding offensive lineman award. Mac shared the honor with junior tackle Ken Arnold. The pair anchored a line that opened holes for Kevin Mitchell and Robb Cook, who gained more than 1,000 yards rushing apiece, the first time two Cardinals accomplished such a feat in the same season.

TEAM LEADER: Brian Cox, a senior wing on Army's hockey team, was named team captain prior to the season, and so far he has displayed noteworthy leadership qualities. Cox, from Livonia Stevenson, has six goals and seven assists in 10 games for the Cadets. His 13 points is second-best on the team, which is 3-6-1 overall thus far.

SHARPSHOOTER: Ken George, a junior guard on Albion College's basketball team from Farmington Harrison, has displayed a keen eye for the basket. George is averaging 17.6 points per game, sixth best in the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association. George scored a season-high 23 in a 58-54 win over Lake Erie in the consolation final of the Malone College Pioneer Classic in Canton, Ohio, Dec. 3. He had 16 in an 81-64 loss to Shawnee State (Ohio) in the opener and was named to the all-tournament team. George is third in the MIAA in three-point shooting (15-of-28, .556 percent), fifth in free-throw shooting (.850) and sixth in assists (4.4). Albion is 4-1.

ALL-TOURNAMENT: Cathy Schram, a junior forward on Northwood Institute's women's basketball team from Livonia (Ladywood), was named to the all-Grand Rapids Press tournament team after leading the Northwomen to a second-place finish. The 5-8 Schram is NI's top scorer, averaging 12.5 points per game. She netted a career-high 24 points in an 84-74 tourney-opening triumph over Ferris State, then scored 13 in an 85-58 loss to Aquinas.

HOT ICERS: Northern Michigan climbed into second place in the Western Collegiate Hockey Association standings by sweeping Colorado College, 6-2 and 9-3, Dec. 2-3. Playing a pivotal role in the wins, which improved the Wildcats to 10-6-1 overall, were Canton residents Bill Pye and Pete Podrasky. Pye, a sophomore goalie, was in the nets for both wins. He had 26 saves in game one and 23 while playing two periods of game two. Pye has a 2.99 goals-against average and a .911 save percentage. Podrasky, a junior defenseman, scored a goal in game one and picked up an assist in game two. He has two goals and 11 assists this season.

NMU CAGERS: Junior Gerald Clark, from Westland, scored 13 points, dished out four assists and grabbed three rebounds in Northern Michigan's 94-66 loss at North Dakota State. Clark is averaging 8.4 points and 2.4 assists per game for the 1-4 Wildcats. On the women's side, sophomore Jennifer Okon from Westland (John Glenn) has hit 59.3 percent of her floor shots and is averaging seven points and 5.6 rebounds for unbeaten NMU (5-0).

SOLID SUPPORT: Mary Rosowski, a senior center for University of Michigan's women's basketball team from Farmington Hills (Mercy), has contributed some solid minutes off the bench. Rosowski, plagued by injuries throughout her collegiate career, netted 14 points and nine rebounds in U-M's first two games, including 12 points and six rebounds in an 85-75 win over Toledo. She is averaging seven points and 4.5 rebounds, and has hit 66.7 percent of her floor shots for the 1-1 Lady Wolves.

SWIMMING STANDOUTS: At NMU, sophomore Ann Bollinger, from Livonia Stevenson, placed third in the 200-yard backstroke, fourth in the 100 back, second in the 400 medley relay, second in the 200 freestyle relay, third in the 400 free relay and fourth in the 800 free relay at the eight-team Wheaton Invitational Dec. 2-3 in Wheaton, Ill. Teammate Lynne Zielski (Farmington Hills Mercy) was 10th in the 100 back, 11th in the 200 back, 16th in the 200 free, eighth in the 800 free relay and ninth in the 400 free relay. The Wildcats placed second.

Aerobic exercise does improve fitness

Dear Myrna: I'm a serious tennis player, male and 28 years old. I've been told that if I improve my aerobic fitness, I will improve my game. How do I improve my aerobic fitness? I would try aerobic classes!

Many athletes improve their performance greatly by improving aerobic fitness.

The more fit you are, the more easily your body distributes oxygen to working muscles. Therefore, your muscles will work much more efficiently. This efficiency is a result of improvement in your heart, lungs, circulatory system and overall chemical makeup.

Let's start you from the beginning and assume you want to improve your aerobic capacity quickly.

You want to improve your "VO2 max" — the maximum level at which your body can utilize oxygen efficiently to meet energy requirements during exercise. Start with short, easy workouts (beginner and low-impact classes) six times per week. This may sound easy, but it will increase your VO2 to around 43 percent. Once you do 25 to 30 minutes of straight aerobic exercise (low-impact and intermediate — two classes) you should reduce your training to five days per week.

Once you have mastered 35 to 40 minutes of straight aerobics (fat burner and advanced-type classes like cardio power pump and par courses), you can almost triple the increase in your aerobic capacity by working four days per week.

It may sound odd to reduce the frequency of your training as you get more fit, but studies do show that four training sessions per week are ideal for improving VO2 max. This is one of the ingredients you are needing to perfect your tennis game.

If you exercise at 50 to 70 percent of your maximum heart rate, you will have a "good conditioning base" after 10 to 11 weeks. If you work out 80 to 85 percent of your max heart rate, you will achieve your goal by eight weeks.

Remember, you want to feel comfortable when you work out. Give yourself three full months to achieve your goal. You should be able to increase your VO2 max 1 1/2 times greater working out 35 to 45 minutes at around 80 percent of your maximum heart rate.

I hope all this makes good sense to you. If you have any further questions about max heart rates, please come and see me at my studio or write to me again.

(Myrna Partrich, co-owner of The Workout Company of Bloomfield Township, is happy to answer any questions readers may have regarding exercise. Please send your questions to: Sports Department, Myrna Partrich, 1225 Bowers, Birmingham 48012.)

With Detroit Symphony Her 'fun job' can get dicey

By Corinne Abatt
staff writer

Local Brandeis University alumni who work all year long to raise money for the university's library on the campus in Waltham, Mass., got a shot of adrenalin last week.

Willa Rouder, the Detroit Symphony Orchestra's new artistic administrator, was the speaker at a meeting of the Greater Detroit Chapter of the University's Women's Committee.

Gladys Bernstein introduced her as "one of the few women to hold such a post." Rouder was a teaching assistant at Brandeis while working on a graduate degree in music and she said, "I spent more time in the Brandeis music library than I did in my own home."

That statement brought smiles of approval as did many of her comments such as, "I've always held the fun jobs — I'm the one who's gotten to work most closely with the musicians . . . planning the season."

IN KEEPING with her topic "The Jubilee Year of the DSO: A Back Stage View," she passed on a few tidbits, either relayed to her or actually experienced, about the conductors such as "Ehrling (Sixton) was known among the musicians for his biting witticisms during rehearsals."

She described Gunther Herbig, the current music director, as "kind, gracious, reasonable, considerate — all the things an administrator might hope for."

During the Brahms Festival last month she had to get a substitute for a sick soloist. But the substitute had a chance for a European engagement and begged off, so a few days before the rehearsal Rouder still didn't have a soloist. When she called a Canadian musician, his wife said he was on the beach in Florida and couldn't be reached. Rouder could wait until he came in to talk to him — whenever that might be. Back from the beach, he consented to do the concert and arrived just in time for rehearsal the next day.

Rouder has a repertoire of European tour stories, so little that happens on the Detroit Symphony Orchestra's 3½ week tour in January and February will come as a surprise.

There will be a special send-off concert Thursday, Jan. 19, and a Homecoming concert Friday, Feb. 17. She called the DSO "a first-rate orchestra" and said it is the first major orchestra to have a woman concertmaster. Emanuelle Boisvert, 25, appointed earlier this year.

She said her job of program planning several years ahead is a "balancing act" — getting the proper mix of super stars and new talent, standard repertoire and less familiar selections, music that challenges the musicians and appeals to audiences.

Rouder, born in 1950 in New York City, plays piano and flute. She has a degree in music from New York University and did graduate work at Brandeis. She was manager of the Buffalo Philharmonic Orchestra and before that assistant to the artistic director at Carnegie Hall.

She told her audience, "I can't think of a better preparation (for a career in arts management) than I received at Brandeis."

After her speech she showed a video of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra with pianist Mischa Kottler performing for the musicians, answering their questions about the early days of the orchestra and he, in turn, questioning some of them.

KOTTLER CAME to Detroit as a young artist and in 1932 made his debut with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra under conductor Osip Gabrilowitsch.

He was WWJ music director for 33 years and was the orchestra's official pianist for 20 seasons. He has taught at Wayne State and privately. His recollections of past conductors and musicians are vivid.

TV newsman Jim Harrington does some of the narration and TV newscaster Mort Crimm talks about the importance of the orchestra from a personal viewpoint. It gave the audience an appreciation for the orchestra's heritage as well as its music.

In answer to a question about the search for a permanent conductor, she said, "One of the keys to its success will be its confidentiality."

13 shades of gray, but only the designer knows for sure

By Corinne Abatt
staff writer

It would be difficult to argue with Sheldon Scott when he says he used 13 shades of gray in the apartment of a client in North Park Towers of Southfield.

The grays are so intricately interwoven that without the trained eye of an interior designer such as Scott, they wouldn't separate into different shades. However, the overall effect is both warm and sophisticated. Scott used black with the grays "to set boundaries" and black in the light fixtures "to keep the eye level lower."

Since this is the second time he has done this apartment for the same clients, he had furniture that he respected to work with. He saved two matching case pieces with a glass doors above and drawers but had them done in a faux granite finish and replaced the plain glass door panes with sand blasted ones with a border design of the client's initials.

SCOTT INTRODUCED colors into his neutral ambience with skill. The gray raw silk on the Beidermeier chairs at the olivewood game table, on the pull-up benches and the dining room chairs, is flecked with blues, toast, melon, aqua and green.

Against the darker gray finish of the painted bamboo dining table chairs, the silk looks almost monochromatic from a distance, but Scott repeats the flecks of color around the rooms in subtle ways.

The back wall of the dining area is covered with a wonderful oriental print Clarence House paper that has gold over the gray background and soft pastels in the flowers.

The only other fabric in the living dining area is a fine gray on off-white Egyptian cotton from Jack Lenor Larsen used on the upholstered chairs and sofas. There is a repetition of the soft rose and jade green in the wooden Thai sculptures of fat children on the coffee table.

The dining room with the gray lacquer bamboo furniture has a pleasant oriental look that seems conducive to leisurely dining.

Subtle color is introduced in other oriental accessories — a small folding screen hung on a wall, ceramics on the floor by a group of live plants and porcelain bowls.

"There's lots of Oriental and Oriental influence. My client likes it and I love to work with Oriental — it fits into any period."

The off-white blinds in the living and dining area are horizontal blinds, used vertically on a traverse rod.

IN THE master bedroom with a continuing selection of grays, there are vertical shutters at the windows because Scott said, "I wanted a fresh look." The same gray carpeting, which Scott called "the color link" is used throughout.

Still there's no impression of overdoing the grays. The entry hall wall which faces the door is done in a copper brick herringbone pattern. For a wall shelf against the copper to hold two lovely antique candlesticks,

His concern is total. From the beveled edge of the black marble top made for a cabinet in dining room to the double pleat of the twin bed skirts to a plum size netsuke in a living room cabinet, Scott knows what he wants and how it should look.

Scott said his clients gave him free reign with the apartment when they went south. It was completely finished when they returned. He had consulted with them on color, the rest was left up to him.

Christmas programs fill DSO's calendar

The Detroit Symphony Orchestra's 1988 Christmas Festival begins at 8 p.m. this evening at Orchestra Hall with the first of four performances of Mozart's arrangement of Handel's "Messiah." The others are at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 3:30 p.m. Sunday.

German conductor, composer and organist, Ernst-Ulrich von Kameke will direct the Detroit Symphony Chorale and a quartet of soloists.

There will be holiday pops concerts at Ford Auditorium at 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 3:30 p.m. Sunday with the King's Singers. DSO resident conductor Stephen Stein will be on the podium.

There will be nine performances of Tchaikovsky's Nutcracker ballet with the orchestra Dec. 20-31. Dancers from Dance Detroit, New York City Ballet and Dance Theatre of Harlem will be on stage for various performances. For dates, times and tickets, call 567-1400.

Prokofiev's beloved "Peter and the Wolf" will given at the Young People's Concerts at 11:30 a.m. and 2 p.m. Saturday at Ford Auditorium. Mime Company artists Maggie Petersen and Douglas MacIntyre will bring excitement to the story of the vicious wolf and Peter.

The vertical louvered window treatment gives this bedroom of soft grays, natural woods and a dramatic splash of white in the wall covering, a fresh look.

REDFORD SYMPHONY

The Redford Symphony, under the direction of John Gajda, and the Detroit Edison Choir will perform in a public concert at 3 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 18, in Redford Union High School, 17711 Kinloch, Redford Township.

SISSON GALLERY

"To Draw" is the theme of the visual art statements to be on exhibit in the Sisson Gallery at Henry Ford Community College, featuring work by artists John Hegarty, Jim Nawara and Peter Williams.

The show will close Jan. 13.

Hegarty treats the figure as a metaphor for man's confrontation with himself. The figures are nude, which strips them of their source of camouflage. Hegarty chooses to present the figures straight on and almost life-size.

Nawara explores the nuances of the landscape, which seem to hold the mystery of nature for him. The landscape is sometimes viewed from above and sometimes straight on.

Williams, through the flight of his imagination, conveys in robust drawings a dialogue about his experiences as a black, as an artist and as a person in the urban environment of Detroit and his responsibilities to this environment.

All three teach at Wayne State University.

The gallery is on the campus of Henry Ford Community College, 5101 Evergreen. Gallery hours are 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily with additional hours 6-8 p.m. Tuesdays.

STARRY NIGHT

POTTERY SALE

The Birmingham Bloomfield Art Association is having its winter pottery sale beginning Thursday, Dec. 15, and continuing through Sunday, Dec. 18. The sale will be held at the BBAA, 1516 Cranbrook Road, Birmingham, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

FENTON GLASS

The Fenton Finders of Michigan, a glass study group, has the welcome sign out for new members. The group meets the fourth Tuesday of each month (except December and June) in Riley Middle School on Henry Ruff in Livonia. For more information, call 464-0747 or 545-1405.

CARILLON CHRISTMAS

The University of Michigan School of Music will have Christmas Carillon Carolling 8 p.m. Friday, Dec. 16, at the Burton Tower in Ann Arbor. For more information, call 763-4726.

RACKHAM CHOIR

The Rackham Symphony Choir will present two performances of George Fredric Handel's oratorio "The Messiah" on Friday and Saturday, Dec. 16 and 17, 8 p.m. at St. Mary's Catholic Church. The church is located at St. Antoine and Monroe, in the Greektown area of downtown Detroit. The performance will include the Choir, full orchestra, and vocal soloists. For tickets and information contact the Rackham Symphony Choir at 822-4385.

A touch of black adds drama

The combination of black and white is dramatic. These ultimate opposites with all the gray in between give liveliness, subtlety, and an excellent background for judicious splashes of color. The combination of black, soft gray and pastels is effective.

Every room needs some black accent. A touch of black does for a room what a punctuation mark does for writing. Black added to a design or painting in primary colors puts the work in sharper focus. Touches of black in the form of a black lacquered chair or table will give substance and elegance to a room.

Unlike the extremes of black and white, grays blend beautifully with most any color. An interesting combination is a soft dove gray with lilac and white. Charcoal gray walls are a great backdrop for pale yellows in fabrics, giving the yellow the luminous quality of sunlight. A wall enameled in charcoal gray and then antiqued with yellow gives a lovely, mellow effect.

Because light colors don't assert themselves, they tend to open up space and make that particular space seem larger. For that reason it is nice to keep that feeling of lightness from floor to wall to ceiling.

Eve Garvin

Pale colors are natural life savers in rooms where there isn't enough light from windows or other sources such as door walls or French doors. Here too the ceiling should be light, preferably a tone lighter than the wall.

Personally, I like to see a border or crown molding separating the ceiling and the wall. There are always exceptions to every rule and in a very large room with a high ceiling, a darker color will work on the ceiling. It brings the ceiling down and in turn gives the room a warmer, cozier feeling.

Furnishings respond to colors, so if your room is small and your sofa and chair oversized, doing all in one color will push the walls out and visibly give more space to the room and its surroundings.

Mona and friends pick a batch of winners

Be forewarned that this, my first annual Books Worth Giving List, is based on nothing more than my own admittedly narrow view of what's good out there. (In some instances, I enlisted the aid of friends whose views are similar and who have read the books I want to read but haven't yet. Is that clear?)

I haven't been careful to include something for everyone. I didn't take reading levels, sex or age into consideration. I don't guarantee happiness, fulfillment or enlightenment, though they were there for those of us who read the following. So, that said, here are Mona's Picks (with a little help from her friends):

- "Breathing Lessons" by Anne Tyler, Knopf, $18.95. Her latest and most glorious. You'll laugh yourself silly at the antics of Maggie and Ira Moran, two more in Tyler's long line of Baltimore eccentrics, and then they'll break your heart.

- "Spence and Lila" by Bobbie Ann Mason, Harper and Row, $12.95. An old married couple face up to mortality and the pain of love. I simply will never forget them. I want to go now, down to their farm. I want to make sure they're all right.

- "TRACKS" BY LOUISE ERDRICH, Henry Holt, $18.95. This book introduces the lineage of the characters later populating "Love Medicine" and "The Beet Queen." Rich, compelling, and, again, unforgettable.

- "Love in the Time of Cholera" by Gabriel Garcia Marquez (Knopf, $18.95). Love, obsessive and unrequited, dominates this latest effort by the master. This funny, quirky, sad tale takes place on the Caribbean coast of South America from the late 1800s to the early 1900s.

- "Bingo" by Rita Mae Brown, Bantam, $18.95. Rita Mae full blown and funny in the touching story of two elderly widows vying for the love of the new man in Runnymede, a town divided by the Mason-Dixon line.

- "The Floatplane Notebooks" by Clyde Edgerton, Algonquin Books of Chapel Hill, $16.95. I love Clyde Edgerton ("Walking Across Egypt"). I want this book for Christmas — and I want it bad. How do I know? Because it's about the Copelands of Lister, N. C., according to family records kept by Albert, the Patriarch, in a log originally intended to record the flights of his home-built floatplane built in 1956.

It never flies, but the log fills to bulging with Polaroid snapshots, newspaper stories, records of heights and weights and even a graveyard diagram, that's why. And because I sat in the bookstore and read the first four pages, and if I hadn't been in there buying gifts for other people, it would have been mine. That's why.

- "THE SEARCH FOR SIGNS of Intelligent Life in the Universe" by Jane Wagner, Perennial Library, $7.95. Based on the Broadway play starring Lily Tomlin. Because I saw this play at the Fisher a week ago (on the night a patron fell in the second balcony during a particularly powerful, silent scene and Lily Tomlin showed us why she is a star of the first magnitude).

Because it is filled with photos of Lily playing her funny and complex characters. But mainly because Jane Wagner's text is inspired and glorious and well able to tell the story on its own.

- "Peachtree Road" by Anne Rivers Siddons, Harper and Row, $18.95. The story of two star-crossed cousins takes place in Atlanta from the 1940s through the 1960s. Paul Hemphill says, "Researched like journalism, written like poetry and . . . teeming with matters of substance." Recommended to me by my own cousin, Margaret Pulham of Redford.

- "Touch" by Elmore Leonard, Arbor House,

$17.95. I know "Freaky Danky" is Leonard's hit of the year and "Touch" is old news, but I love everything about this book. I want to make sure it gets every chance before it finally goes away. It's on the stands in paperback now without the original hard-bound cover — a shame, but the innards are still there, untouched.

- "The Phases of Harry Moon" by Thomas Sullivan, Dutton, $18.95. Great fun, great characters — deserving of the care the Lathrup author takes as he brings them full circle to right the ancestral wrongs.

- "The Great Divide" by Studs Terkel, Pantheon, $18.95. Terkel talks to the people of the 80s — the Wall Streeters, the yuppies, the Reaganites, the right-wingers, the left-wingers, the 60s activists, the have-nots, the teachers, the backers of the sanctuary movement — and they illustrate why Terkel is having "second thoughts on the American Dream."

- "Polar Express" by Chris Van Allsburg, Houghton Mifflin, $16.95. An incredibly lovely illustrated Christmas story for all ages. Well deserving of the awards given and the seemingly permanent station of the December best-seller book lists.

- "RIVER REFLECTIONS" edited by Verne Huser, Globe Pequot Press, $12.95. This anthology includes nearly 50 writings about rivers by luminaries like Mark Twain, John Steinbeck, John McPhee, Ernie Pyle, Sigurd F. Olson, Edward Abbey and Tom Brokaw (Tom Brokaw??). What a way to spend a winter afternoon.

- "Odyssey, The Art of Photography at National Geographic," National Geographic, $65. Yes, it's a big price, but the photos inside this huge book are spellbinding.

It's all there — from the early sepia-tones of the 20s and 30s as the fledgling magazine spared no expense to send its writers and photographers to strange and exotic lands; to the dustbowl days, to microscopic photography, to outer space, to new discoveries about mankind and our ancestors — in one magnificent package.

- For just plain fun, don't forget Bill Watterson's "The Essential Calvin and Hobbes" and Gary Larson's "Far Side" will be no more until he decides it's time again. Enjoy them while you can.

There are other books on my lists, but I'm out of space. A suggestion, though, watch for discounts on many of these books. "Odyssey" is discounted 30 percent at Border's, as are all the New York Times Best Sellers (including "Breathing Lessons," "Love in the Time of Cholera" and "Polar Express").

Remember that most stores discount the hard-cover best-sellers and some of them, like Border's, discount their own favorites. It pays to check around.

Happy Holidays.

Christmas past lives at Greenfield Village

The month of December at Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village is marked by the gaiety of a circus, the kaleidoscope colors of quilts and the unmistakable sights and sounds of the year's most joyous season.

Through Jan. 1 (except for Christmas Day), visitors to the indoor/outdoor historical complex can enjoy holiday activities for young and old, as well as relive a variety of Christmas traditions from past generations.

The centerpiece for the Henry Ford Museum celebration is a towering Christmas tree in the concourse, decorated with cookies, candy, small toys and circus characters in keeping with a special Christmas gift: a final month of the Howard Brothers Circus.

Billed as "the greatest little show on earth," the Howard Brothers Circus offers all the thrills and chills of a 1930s traveling circus — in miniature. From the midway menagerie, from the big top to the back lot, the entire production can be seen at a scale of 3/4-inch to the foot, including tiny performers, animals, roustabouts and audiences.

After a standing-room-only year in the museum, however, the Howard Brothers Circus will be pulling up stakes and moving on to another city at the end of this Christmas season.

Likewise, the month of December marks the debut of another temporary exhibit, the eagerly awaited McCord Quilt Collection. Ten colorful works of art, all hand-stitched by Susan McCord during the mid-to-late 1800s, reflect quality workmanship and magnificent original designs. The quilts will remain on display for a full year through Jan. 2, 1990.

YOUNGER VISITORS to the museum will particularly enjoy watching cartoons in the Plaza Theater or a holiday puppet show, "Twas the Night Before Christmas." And little eyes are sure to grow bigger upon seeing various toy trains, all donated by Lionel Trains Inc., traversing a fantasy village. The latest addition to the setup is a locomotive that is fitted with a minicam so visitors can watch an "engineer's-eye view" of the scenery on video monitors nearby.

Other museum activities include storytelling, carolers and stations where visitors can construct their own Christmas cards or decorations. Presiding over the merriment is a fat, jolly Santa, ready to listen to each and every Christmas wish.

For a final touch of holiday cheer, the Henry Ford Museum Theater is presenting the 1904 musical version of "The Wizard of Oz." The two-hour play, written by Frank L. Baum, features familiar songs, dazzling costumes, lavish sets and classic characters — whom the audience is invited to meet after each performance.

The production runs through Dec. 30, and reservations are required. Additional information on ticket prices and performance schedules can be had by calling the Reservations Center at (313) 271-1620.

Dozens of Christmas activities abound in the historic buildings of Greenfield Village, where traditional customs and trimmings from past decades of America's history are being presented. Ranging from a rural English yuletide in the 17th century Cotswold Cottage, to a more modern turn-of-the-century Christmas celebration at the Wright Brothers' Home, visitors can experience the changing manner in which Americans have observed that most special time of year.

COSTUMED STAFF in various homes throughout the village create decorations and gifts, and demonstrate cooking and food preparation using recipes, utensils and techniques from the past. The Firestone Farm offers one such domestic scene with the preparation of a hearty Christmas dinner in the style of the 1880s.

Other holiday settings and activities to be enjoyed include an 1890s millinery shop where ladies busily fashion winter bonnets; storytelling and ornament making at Town Hall; and the General Store, where visitors can see a sampling of yesteryear's toys and gifts.

Nighttime weaves a special kind of Christmas spell around the museum and village, so the public is invited to participate in the after-hours program, a "1920s Holiday Gala in Lovett Hall." Guests are transported back to the "high society" scene of the Roaring Twenties, complete with elegantly dressed role players, a sumptuous dinner, dancing to the Hotel Savarine Society Orchestra and a bit of the bubbly. (An alternate after-hours program, an "1850s Christmas at Eagle Tavern" is sold out.) Advance reservations are required.

Musical programs set for Sunday

Christ Church Cranbrook will be the setting for two musical programs on Sunday. The annual Christmas carillon concert at 4 p.m. with Don Cook, the permanent carillonneur will be followed at 5 p.m. with the second "Glory of Christmas at Christ Church Cranbrook" concert with the choir, music ensembles and instrumentalists of Christ Church.

The public is invited at no charge. The carillon program can be enjoyed inside the church of outside, weather permitting. Cook will play favorites such as "Jingle Bells," "Silent Night,"

"Greensleeves," "O Come All Ye Faithful" and "We Three Kings" as well as familiar carols from many lands on the 50-bell carillon.

In the second "Glory of Christmas," there will be an audience sing-along including "Silent Night" with only the handbell choir for accompaniment. Performing will be the Parish Choir, the Boy and Girl choirs, instrumentalists and the St. Dunstan Ringers, a handbell choir. Charles Raines, director of music, will conduct the choir.

2 days added to 'Helga'

Two more days have been added to see "Andrew Wyeth: The Helga Pictures" at Detroit Institute of Arts.

The added days are Saturday, Dec. 24 and Saturday, Dec. 31. Normally the museum is closed holiday eves. Both the Wyeth show and "16th Century Tuscan Drawings from the Uffizi" will be open from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. as well as food service and the Museum Shop. A paid admission ticket is required for the Wyeth exhibition. Advance purchase is recommended. Admission is free to the Uffizi exhibition.

WRITE IT AND REAP!

Writing a classified ad that gets results—whether it be for real estate, employment, the personals, transportation, or merchandise—is easy if you follow the guidelines below.

1. Give the reader specific information. Pretend you are someone reading the classifieds. What would you like to know about the item, service or job you are advertising? Be sure to add details such as color, size, condition, brand name, age, features and benefits. Be accurate! Don't embellish your ad with misleading information. Stick to the facts and reap the rewards!

2. Include the price. Don't waste your time or a potential buyer's time. If you advertise the price of the item or service you offer, the people who respond to your ad will be those who are genuinely interested. Surveys show that readers are more interested in those items and services they know are within their price range.

3. Avoid abbreviations. Don't make a potential customer work too hard! Although you may be tempted to cut down on the cost of your ad by using abbreviations, surveys indicate that many people don't understand such abbreviations as EIK (eat-in kitchen) or WSW (white side wall) tires and won't take the time to figure them out. A confused reader is a disinterested reader. Get the most for your money and use complete words.

4. Include phone number and specify hours. Be sure to let potential customers know when and where to call. Surveys show that even if a person is very interested in your item or service, he or she will not call back after the first attempt. Stay near the phone during the hours you indicate you will be available. Don't risk missing a sale!

5. Run on consecutive days. Your ad will not get results if people don't see it! Therefore, it is important to set up a consistent and consecutive ad schedule with your telephone salesperson or outside sales representative.
