Senior aid

The Senior Alliance, Area Agency on Aging, is a private non-profit organization which coordinates, develops, and administers services for seniors 60 years old or older.

These are some of the services provided by the group: personal care; adult day care; long-term care/ombudsman; help for the hearing and visually impaired; information and referral; legal services; health screening; chore work; telephone reassurance; home delivered meals; and minor home repair.

The Senior Alliance serves 130,000 residents in 34 communities of southern and western Wayne County.

For more information call the Senior Alliance at 722-2830.

Principal honored

A Plymouth-Canton Community Schools principal was honored recently by the Michigan Elementary and Middle School Principals Association (MEMSPA). Joyce Deren, principal of Gallimore Elementary in Canton, was given the Regional Honors Award for 1988.

Deren was chosen to receive the plaque for her service to students, the district, the community and to state and national organizations, according to a statement released.

Deren has worked in the district since 1971 and has been principal of Gallimore for eight years.

Awards were given in 14 regions throughout the state.

Students help

For more than 20 years, students at West Middle School have displayed the true meaning of this holiday season by giving food and money to the Salvation Army. This year, the students did something extra. They made their usual contribution and donated 40 Christmas Cheer boxes. They estimated the value of each box at about $40, or almost $2,000 in total contributions. But that's not all. The West Middle School Student Council also felt the earthquake victims in Armenia needed help and collected $715 through various activities.

And even though rescue efforts in Armenia have been replaced with rebuilding plans, donations are still needed to help victims of the earthquake that hit the area earlier this month.

Those interested in lending a hand should call the Armenia Earthquake Fund, 559-5290. St. John's Armenian Church is coordinating local efforts.

Curtain calls

If you've always wanted to try your skills at acting this might be just the chance you're looking for.

More than 100 singers, musicians and technicians are needed to help entertain 3 million guests this summer at Cedar Point, Sandusky, Ohio. Auditions for live shows at the amusement/theme park will be held in Ann Arbor Monday, Jan. 16 and in Ypsilanti Wednesday, Jan. 18.

Registration for the auditions in Ann Arbor will be held from 2:30-5:30 p.m. in the Anderson Room of the University of Michigan Union at the University of Michigan.

Registration for the Ypsilanti auditions will be held from 2:30-4:30 p.m. in McKenny Union at Eastern Michigan University. Cedar Point also will hold auditions at Central Michigan University on Tuesday, Jan. 17 and at Western Michigan University on Thursday, Jan. 19.

Murder puts Canton on map

Tyburski killing is reported nationwide

Defense attorney says coverage lopsided, 7A

By Peggy Aulino
staff writer

When Dorothy Tyburski's body was discovered in a Canton home last week, a three-year-old mystery that few people even knew about became the case heard 'round the world.

There have been other infamous homicides in Canton, but the Tyburski murder put the township on the media map.

Canton police got inquiries from news organizations as far away as England, while a throng of area journalists flocked to the usually quiet suburb in search of details about the bizarre case.

By now the facts have been repeated so often most area residents could probably recite them by heart. Dorothy Tyburski's body was found Jan. 2 by her daughter, who had pried open a freezer in her basement after having experienced nightmares that featured her mother trapped in an enclosed place.

TYBURSKI'S HUSBAND, Leonard, had reported her missing in October 1985 and told people his wife had deserted the family. He was charged with open murder Tuesday, and police said in court last week that Tyburski admitted having killed his wife during an argument Sept. 28, 1985.

When Ronald Steiger of Canton was charged in the shooting death of his wife last June, the daily newspapers in Detroit devoted just a few short paragraphs to the story.

Stronger sign ordinance set for Plymouth

By Doug Funke
staff writer

A more restrictive sign ordinance proposed by Mayor Karl Gansler II and developed by the planning commission could soon be ready for adoption by the Plymouth City Commission.

The ordinance — designed to reduce clutter along major roads — essentially would outlaw all business pole signs and limit identification ground signs to an area of 32 square feet not to exceed 8 feet in height.

Some fine-tuning still remains to be done. However, the city commission could approve a first reading of the ordinance at its Monday, Jan. 16 meeting and grant final approval two weeks later.

Exactly when all existing signs would have to come into compliance is undetermined.

The planning commission recommends five years. Gansler initially suggested 12 years. A compromise may be in the offing.

"SIGN POLLUTION is becoming a problem in the U.S.," Gansler said. "We're just now starting to catch up a little bit."

"We all know bigger isn't always better. I hope after we work out little teeny, tiny bugs, we can get this passed," he said.

Car accident kills resident

A 52-year-old Plymouth Township resident died Friday morning in the University of Michigan Hospital three hours after a car in which he was a passenger was involved in an accident in the township.

The victim was identified by Plymouth Township Police as Clarence E. Charogoff. He was airlifted to Ann Arbor from Oakwood Canton Center, where he was taken initially.

Few details had emerged from the investigation as of early Friday afternoon, police said.

The collision occurred at about 7:50 a.m. on Ann Arbor Road at Tenynson between McClumpha and Canton Center Road, said Sgt. Robert Antal.

Charogoff was a passenger in a westbound Plymouth. The other vehicle, a Dodge pickup truck, was eastbound, Antal said.

Police declined to release the names of the two drivers.

Both were taken to St. Mary Hospital, Livonia. The driver of the Plymouth sustained serious injuries; the driver of the pickup suffered injuries that appeared to be non-life threatening, Antal said.

All three people involved were wearing seatbelts, Antal said.

"It was three inches of fresh fallen snow, so nothing to determine" who was at fault, said Chip Snider, deputy police chief. "The center line was covered. We have no way of determining fault or speed now."

It's January — be positive, yes?

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

March is because of our "hibernation response," researchers say.

Ralph Nichols wants to cheer us up.

In fact, Nichols — who operates Dale Carnegie and Associates, Inc. in Michigan — wants to lighten the hearts of everyone in Michigan this winter.

He's calling January "Positively Yes" Month. By making an effort to be positive instead of negative, we can all be happier, he said.

After the holidays, the blues and blahs can creep up on us. And it's not just our imagination. The reason we can feel fat, miserable and depressed from October through

FOR MOST of us, it's not possible or practical to escape to sunny climes for the winter. So Nichols is urging businesses, organizations and individuals "to exchange negativity for positivity."

"There are no holidays coming up, the snow is piling up and so are the bills. We just got our 1040 forms, and the driving is treacherous," said Nichols, kicking off his campaign at a Plymouth Chamber of Commerce reception at Adistra Corp.

But that doesn't mean U-M foot-

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Yes, it's January, so let's be positive ball coach Bo Schembechler should be the only one feeling elated, Nichols said.

Several companies, including Detroit Edison, Awrey Bakeries and AT&T, already have launched their own campaigns, using "Positively Yes" slogans on stickers, mailing materials and on the phone. The campaign can take any form, Nichols said. Radio DJ Dick Purtan is creating a "The Positivity Man," a character to join the "Bag Man" and others on his morning show, Nichols said.

"Look around you for wonderful things. In simplicity there is beauty. Opening a door or pulling out a chair for someone gives you a feeling the likes of which you can't get from any alcoholic drink. "Doing something positive can give people a warm, enriching feeling in their lives," Nichols said. "Next time you're drinking coffee in a restaurant and the waitress asks if you'd like some more, I'm hopeful you won't say, 'Yes,' or 'Yes, please.' I hope you say, 'Positively yes!'"

Plymouth is proof that positive thinking can change things, added Nichols.

"January used to be the worst retail month here. Now it's the second best, because of your Plymouth Ice Sculpture Spectacular."

Singer Kim Westin, who Motown fans may remember recorded with the late Marvin Gaye, took a Dale Carnegie course and made a tape celebrating Positivity Month. "Listening to it is how I get myself going in the morning," said Nichols, who is giving away copies of the tape.

A few lines from the lyrics: "Positively yes. It's the perfect statement. It's what you gotta say to make a dream come true."

"It's a tonic for the world. Once you use it, you never want to stop. There's nothing that you cannot do. The future is up to you."

IT DOESN'T MATTER how bad things are. They can be turned around — just look at Chrysler and Ford, said Nichols. Both companies were facing financial disaster when executives "sat down and said, 'We're not going to let this happen,'" said Nichols. Chrysler and Ford are back on their feet, as a result of "someone's thought process and an idea of a positive nature," said Nichols.

"You can talk about problems all day, but if people are in a negative frame of mind, you're not going to solve them. I don't believe in giving people prescriptions, because we all know the best idea is the one you come up with yourself."

"But get yourself in a positive frame of mind. Tap your inner strengths."

"Your attitude definitely is going to affect your productivity and your health," he added.

Bruce Shekeruk of Lathrup Village is a small business owner who attended Nichols' talk out of curiosity.

"I think this could be big. It could be a yearly campaign promotion in the state of Michigan," said Shekeruk, a Dale Carnegie instructor.

"Positively Yes" is short, impactful, he said. "People are down a lot. Why not come up with a statement that not only picks you up, but those around you?"

"This is a wonderfully refreshing idea with the potential to catch on like a small fire in a forest."

Capping the campaign is "Motivation in Motown," concerts featuring the Four Tops at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 3 and 4 at Ford Auditorium. Billed as "an evening filled with the Carnegie spirit" the concerts are open to all, Nichols said. Tickets are $22 each. For more ticket information, call 553-2455. For information on Ralph Nichols' corporation, call 353-7400.

Sign ordinance is set

Most existing signs in the city's business community don't meet the height or size limits of what has been proposed, said Bob Donohue, a planning consultant.

"Good design really doesn't have to cost that much," he said.

Donohue said he doesn't know of any court tests questioning timely compliance with stricter sign ordinances adopted by other municipalities.

"I have talked with five city managers that have stringent sign ordinances and none have been (court) tested yet," said Henry Graper, city manager.

"I think if you give them time enough, most people would adhere to changes," Graper said. "To get as much (compliance) done as quickly as possible — that's our goal."

MARY ROEHR, executive director of the Plymouth Community

Chamber of Commerce, said she isn't aware of any outcry among city business operators about the sign proposal.

Douglas Miller, chairman of the planning commission, said it may take city officials some time to figure out exactly where they want to go with the sign ordinance and to actually get there.

"Whenever you do something like this, you start somewhere," Miller said. "Over time, it will change and people will comply."

Donohue echoed: "Even after it's approved, for the first year or two, there's a certain degree of fine-tuning."

The planning commission has been studying changes to the sign ordinance since last spring.

Health workers needed

When making your New Year's resolutions this year, why not include volunteering to help others?

Volunteers are needed to assist patients and staff at Catherine McAuley Health Center. Interviews for prospective adult and teen volunteers are being scheduled the week of Jan. 9-13. To schedule an appointment, call the volunteer office, 572-4159.

Volunteers help out at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Huron Oaks Chemical Dependency Treatment Facility, Mercywood, Maple and Reichert Health Buildings, all in Ann Arbor, and at Arbor Health Building in Plymouth and McAuley Health Building in Canton.

Volunteers can work directly with patients or in non-patient contact positions. Volunteers deliver flowers, help patients select art prints for their rooms, support distressed families in emergency and critical care waiting rooms, assist patients and staff in occupational and physical therapy and much, much more.

Weekday, evening and weekend hours are available. A six-month commitment is requested. Complete orientation and training are provided for all volunteer programs.

Men, if you're about to turn 18, it's time to register with Selective Service at any U.S. Post Office.

It's quick. It's easy. And it's the law.

Sculptors create frozen works despite ice-melting weather

By Peggy Aulino
staff writer

Having grown up in the Netherlands, Barbara Visschedijk had never heard of, much less seen, ice carving. Her introduction to the art came Saturday, at the Ice Sculpture Spectacular student competition in downtown Plymouth.

"I think it's pretty frustrating. You make the best work of your life, and then the sun comes and melts it away," said Visschedijk, a foreign exchange student who is living in East Detroit.

The warmer-than-usual weather created somewhat of a problem during Saturday's event.

"It's good conditions for our bodies, but not for the ice," said Janet Wafer, a Livonia Franklin High School teacher who accompanied six contestants. "The ice is so soft that if you go the wrong way you'll break a piece."

The event began at 9 a.m., with each student given 440 pounds of ice. The giant ice cubes measured 55 by 20 by 10 inches before students started sawing and chipping away. They had three hours to complete the task.

As the morning wore on, the ice chunks slowly but surely started looking like birds, animals, angels and the like. Some students chose less common subjects. One young man created a large chair upon which he would perch an ice teddy bear. A female student turned her ice into a jack-o-lantern.

"It doesn't have to be perfect because pumpkins aren't perfect," said Heather Hazlett, a Plymouth Salem High School student.

Hazlett said she just entered "for fun" and wasn't concerned about winning, but she came in fifth in the high school division.

The students used chain saws, screw drivers, chisels and tools that looked like metal hair picks to create their masterpieces. Some of the young people wore rubber rain gear, others had soggy knees from kneeling in water. All worked quietly and intently on their projects.

"They were so nervous they looked like they were going to be sick this morning," said Wafer.

Rob Parmenter, a Franklin student from Westland, came in first for the second year in a row. Parmenter had a one-woman cheering section at the sidelines — his girlfriend, Angie Martin.

"He says he doesn't notice all the people around here. He just concentrates on his work," Martin said. "I think he was a little nervous."

Because of the mild temperature, city workers had to put see-through plastic covers on the sculptures displayed in Kellogg Park and on side streets around the square.

The covers "help the statues from being pitted by rain," said Paul Sincok, assistant to the city manager.

Sincok said crowds were "down a little but not significantly" Saturday morning, as fog and drizzle covered the city.

Ice Spectacular organizers decided to consolidate the display sculptures earlier this week, when Mother Nature was suggesting the area was in for a warm spell.

By placing statues only in the immediate vicinity of downtown, they had more spares with which to replace those that melted or were otherwise damaged by the weather.

The first-place winner in the college category was Randy Finch of Oakland Community College. He will receive a trip for two to Montreal, a chain saw and carving tools.

Parmenter will get a scholarship to Schoolcraft College as well as a chainsaw and tools. Besides Parmenter, there were two other students from Livonia schools among the top four winners. James Lucas, also of Franklin, came in second, and Jeff Randall of Stevenson High School placed fourth. The third place winner was Bradford Williams of Breithaupt Vocational School in Detroit. An Oakland Technical Institute student, Brady Carter, came in sixth; and seventh place was captured by Michelle Toles of Plymouth Canton High School.

Ken Nulph of Oakland College College took second in his division and Gary Spence and Brian Tamm, both of Schoolcraft College, placed third and fourth respectively.

The Ice Spectacular runs through Jan. 15.

Heintz named vice chair of county board

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Commissioner Susan Heintz, R-Northville Township, was selected Wednesday as vice chairwoman of Wayne County Commission for the 1989-90 legislative session.

Heintz, whose district includes Livonia, Plymouth and Plymouth Township, will be the county's highest-ranking Republican since former county executive William Lucas, who changed parties prior to his 1986 gubernatorial bid.

She becomes the commission's second highest ranking member, behind only Arthur Carter, D-Detroit, who was unanimously nominated to a second two-year term as chairman.

As vice chairwoman, Heintz will run commission meetings in Carter's absence and can also attend all committee meetings, though as a non-voting member. Due to commission rules, Heintz said she expects to resign her seat as chairwoman of the commission's economic development committee.

The second term commissioner said she believed her party affiliation helped the commission in the past and would continue to do so in the future.

"THE MAIN reason I was nominated is because I am a Republican," Heintz said. "There's the realization that we're going to have to go through a Republican state Senate and we're going to have a Republican president."

Her party affiliation, however, apparently cost her the votes of some other suburban commissioners, including Kay Beard, D-Inkster and Milton Mack, D-Wayne.

While Heintz was the only candidate nominated, and no one directly voted against her nomination, Beard and Mack were among five commissioners who abstained from voting.

"Frankly, I would have liked to have seen a Democrat chosen," Beard said. "I'm a hard working Democrat and so are my constituents."

Mack, who has called for greater suburban representation on the board, also said party politics played a role in his abstention.

"THIS IS such a heavily Democratic body, it only seems right the vice chairman should be a Democrat," Mack said.

Mack said the abstentions weren't a show of preference for former vice chairman Edward Plawewski of Dearborn. "It wasn't a Susie Heintz versus Ed Plawewski vote," he said.

Heintz' nomination was billed as an attempt to strengthen ties between Detroit and suburban commissioners. All eight Detroit-area commissioners supported her nomination, including Richard Manning, D-Redford Township. Commissioner David Cavanaugh, who represents the Grosse Pointe area, also supported Heintz.

The lack of a unanimous ballot didn't faze the gregarious Heintz.

"I think that's all behind us," she said.

Computer ID: A new weapon in fight against crime

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Area police chiefs will meet this week to discuss their latest weapon in the war against crime.

Police chiefs are scheduled to meet Tuesday in Livonia to discuss AFIS, the Automatic Fingerprint Identification System. Area law enforcement professionals say the system will put Wayne County in the forefront when it comes to identifying crime suspects.

The computerized system gives police departments the capability to rapidly match finger prints to potential suspects. More than that, they say, it allows police to make a "blind match" of potential suspects to fingerprints from as little as one print of one finger.

"THIS IS something we've never had before," said Dale Jurcisin, Wayne County Sheriff's Department chief of staff. "We've always had to have an idea who the suspect was before seeking a match. For example, if there's a breaking and entering police can try to match finger prints from other recent break-ins in the area."

"This, however, gives us the ability to search through state police fingerprint files. So there's a broader number of prints we have access to, plus there's the ability for a blind match."

The computerized system can search through as many as 10 sets of prints per minute, reducing a week's worth of work into a matter of hours.

Beyond that, the system isn't expected to cost much.

"There are two types of systems," Jurcisin said. "One costs $300,000 — that's the one the Detroit Police Department is going for. The other costs about $60,000."

The $60,000 system, he said, could be used at regional fingerprint centers to be established throughout the county.

"IT'S LIKE a personal computer," Jurcisin said. "It doesn't have to be a big machine in a big room."

Another plus: The state will pick up three-quarters of the cost. Chiefs are meeting this week to determine user fees.

Livonia has been chosen as one of the four county host sites for AFIS equipment. Livonia has already earmarked $27,250 for the equipment. Other sites include Taylor, Dearborn and the sheriff's department offices in Detroit.

Livonia Police Sgt. Joe Derscha will be responsible for the system once it begins operating in late summer.

"While we'll have the equipment, other departments will also be allowed to use it," he said. "I imagine there will be quite a demand at first. Everybody has a lot of prints on file that they've been unable to match thus far."

A billing system is being devised for other communities.

The system ties in to the main state police computer in Lansing. Up to 24 prints can be scanned for a possible match in a 24-hour period, Derscha said.

"Latent prints (fingerprints left unintentionally at the scene of the crime) are one of the best ways we have in identifying criminals," Derscha said. "The problem until now is that's it's been a slow, uncertain process."

While the new system isn't perfect — matches can't be found for suspects whose prints aren't on file with the state police — police officials said it represents a major improvement over current practices.

"We're already looking at phase two, identifying finger prints of everybody in the county jail," Jurcisin said.

DRUG TOXICITY AND ALLERGY - WHAT IT MEANS TO ARTHRITIS

You may have experienced a bad reaction to a drug and your doctor said: "Stop the drug now and re-start it later." Yet in another instance, your doctor stated: "Never take this drug again."

Such is the difference between drug toxicity and allergy. Toxicity occurs when you have too much of a drug in your system; for example, aspirin. An excess may cause you to develop an upset stomach, ringing in your ears, or become deaf. If you stop taking aspirin for several days, the high blood levels of the medication recede, your stomach feels better, and your hearing returns. As long as the dosage doesn't exceed what your body can handle, you will have no toxicity from aspirin.

Allergy to a drug is different. Then, even a small amount of medication, far less than is therapeutic will cause profound ill effects. Fever, rash, palpitations, and loss of appetite may occur along with damage to your kidneys, liver or lungs. If you stop the medicine, and take it again at a later time, even a minute amount will initiate the previous reaction.

Thus, physicians consider toxic reaction a nuisance while an allergic response represents a threat to your health.

Men, if you're about to turn 18, it's time to register with Selective Service at any U.S. Post Office.

It's quick. It's easy.
And it's the law.

YOUR MONEY AND CHANGING TIMES

A FINANCIAL PLANNING CLINIC FOR PEOPLE OVER 50

In planning for their financial future, there are some key questions which all older Americans need to answer:

- ☐ What investment choices should I make to live comfortably during my retirement years?
- ☐ How does my age affect my tax picture, and what should I do to save on taxes?
- ☐ How can I prevent a major illness from destroying my financial resources?
- ☐ Is my present life insurance right for my later years?
- ☐ What steps can I take now to make things easier for my family in case of my death or disabling illness?
- ☐ How to avoid the added tax burden of the new Catastrophic Medicare Program.

To help you find the right answers to these questions, Waddell & Reed, Inc., one of the nation's leading financial services organizations, invites you to attend a seminar designed specifically for the retired and near-retired.

Find out what a difference my plan makes!

A Difference In Coverage. My old plan used to only cover me when I was sick. But Care Choices HMO covers me when I'm well, as well as when I'm not. That means most of the costs of routine medical care are covered, like doctor's office visits, physicals, immunizations and lab tests. They also cover pre-natal and well-baby care. And of course, hospitalization is covered, even more completely than with my old plan.

A Difference In Paperwork. I used to have to fill out a lot of claim forms with my old health plan. But Care Choices even covers the paperwork!

A Difference In Cost. Unexpected doctor bills used to sneak up on me. But with Care Choices, after a small co-pay, there are no doctor bills. Care Choices HMO even covers emergencies when I'm out of town. So, surprise out-of-pocket costs can't put the bite on me.

A Difference In The Way I Feel. It's no wonder I'm so confident. Some of the best doctors and hospitals in the area are part of Care Choices HMO, over 400 private practice physicians in all. And some of the most respected hospitals are included, like Catherine McAuley Health Center, Chelsea Community Hospital, Saline Community Hospital and McPherson Hospital. Together they work in partnership with Care Choices to keep the costs down and the quality of care up. Find out what a difference my plan can make for you. Ask your employer about Care Choices Health Plans today. Or for more information, call 800-852-9780 or 313-489-6200.

When Charles Fisher, a Canton resident for a short time, killed his wife by wrapping her face with duct tape in 1984, it captured headlines across Michigan. Interest in the Tyburski case hasn't stopped at the border.

"This morning I got a call regarding this situation from London, England," Detective Keith Lazar said Thursday. The British reporter "said he read it over the wire," Lazar said. Earlier in the week officers fielded calls from journalists in Arizona, Florida and Pennsylvania, among other states.

An Associated Press story, headlined "Nightmare Turns Real With Body's Discovery," ran in Thursday's New York Times, and the case got mentioned that day in the "News From Every State" section of USA Today.

Broadcaster Paul Harvey mentioned the Tyburski story on his nationally syndicated radio commentary, and it was carried on the Cable News Network.

AUTHORITIES ALSO got an inquiry from Newsweek magazine. Like other journalists, editors there were attracted by the unusual nature of the case, according to Frank Washington, Detroit correspondent for the weekly newsmagazine.

"You naturally look for cases that stand out, whatever the subject may be," Washington said.

"Since we are dealing with murder, we look for those types of cases that stand out either in terms of numbers — as with a mass murder — or in terms of something ghoulish or something bizarre or strange. I would think that the incident (in Canton) comes under the heading of bizarre or strange."

Police officers said even the Detroit papers don't usually carry crime stories from Canton Township.

"If this was a case where he killed his wife and left her on the floor in the basement, the (Detroit) News and the Free Press wouldn't have any interest in it at all," Canton police Lt. Larry Stewart said.

The fact that Tyburski's body was found in the freezer after three years "makes this case so newsworthy," he said.

AS THE case unfolded early last week, the scramble for information resulted in some misinformation being spread.

"People heard stuff and that became fact," Stewart said.

There was a "misconception" that the body was decapitated, Lazar said.

"I don't know where the media got that," he said.

And it was incorrectly reported that a chain was used to lock the freezer.

"It wasn't," Lazar said. "It was just locked with the built-in lock."

Lazar said he also had to answer "surprising" questions, such as, "Is this the first type of murder like this in Canton?" He said his answer was: "Yes, it is. It's not a common occurrence."

ALL OF last week's events — the discovery of the body by Tyburski's 19-year-old daughter, the suspect's arrest and his subsequent arraignment — occurred while the Canton police department's community relations officer, Dave Boljesic, was on vacation.

That meant police commanders and detectives, inundated with phone calls, were forced to become media representatives.

"We joke about Dave having an easy job, but this is one time where I think his presence could have really been used," said Rick Pomorski, the detective in charge of the Tyburski case.

IN BOLJESIC'S absence, several officers were authorized to handle queries from the media.

"Any time anybody came in or called we took care of them, as opposed to scheduling a press conference," Stewart said.

That meant for some confusion, he said.

"Because Canton is relatively sheltered from a lot of the more serious things, we are just not geared up for that kind of an onslaught," Stewart said.

He said he believes the department did a good job handling the media under the circumstances.

Pomorski said he doesn't think the media attention has ended. He expects the trial to receive a lot of publicity.

"When it's all over, it will make a good book," Pomorski said.

Defense attorney: coverage is lopsided

By Peggy Aulino
staff writer

The attorney representing Leonard Tyburski said Friday media coverage of the death and subsequent freezing of Dorothy Tyburski "has been totally one-sided, and that's very disappointing."

Asked if he would seek a change of venue for the trial, John L. McWilliams said: "We would hope that the community, in listening and hearing about this, will be understanding and recognize that although there have been accusations made . . . the defendant is an innocent man . . . until and unless he's found to be guilty beyond a reasonable doubt of some crime."

Tyburski, who was charged with open murder after the body of his wife was discovered in a freezer in the basement of their Avon Street home, hired McWilliams after his arraignment Tuesday.

THE DEARBORN attorney said he intends to "make an attempt to scale the charge down" so Tyburski will be eligible for bond.

At the arraignment in 35th District Court, Judge James Garber said the "statutes are clear" with regard to capital offense cases and there is "no bond available."

McWilliams said bond "has always been to ensure clients will be at the trial." He said Tyburski "did not leave" in the three years since his wife disappeared.

"My feeling is he should be and would be a good candidate for bond," McWilliams said, in a telephone interview. "He has been a responsible, upstanding citizen in the community — well respected by persons in his employment and from what I read in the media the students that he dealt with at the school liked him."

Tyburski was the attendance center department head at Detroit's Mackenzie High School, where he had been employed since 1984. He had been a science teacher before being promoted to department head, a school district spokeswoman said last week.

"He was at the school since the beginning of his career, so I would assume his record was satisfactory," said Marie Furcon, media relations director for Detroit schools.

GARBER ORDERED a psychiatric examination of the 45-year-old Tyburski. The results are expected to be available in 60 to 90 days, Canton detective Rick Pomorski said last week. Tyburski is being held at the Wayne County jail.

Dorothy Tyburski was reported missing by her husband in October 1985. Tyburski told neighbors his wife had deserted the family.

An autopsy performed last week indicated Dorothy Tyburski died as a result of blows to the head. The victim was not conscious when her body was put into the chest-type freezer, according to Dr. Laning Davidson, an assistant Wayne County medical examiner.

"The lethal blows were severe enough that she was rendered unconscious, and this occurred before she was put into the freezer," Davidson said.

During police questioning after his arrest, Tyburski said he hit his wife's head against a pipe that supports a beam in the basement.

A Canton police report released Friday said Tyburski was read his Miranda rights and then "made a verbal and written confession."

The body of Dorothy Tyburski, who was 37 at the time of her death, was discovered last Monday afternoon by her 19-year-old daughter.

The young woman told police she attempted to get food out of the freezer about three months ago and realized "the key was missing from the nail where it was usually kept," the report said.

SINCE THAT time, she started experiencing nightmares about her mother being confined in a tight space, police said. She found the body after prying open the freezer.

McWilliams said he has seen Tyburski every day since being hired for the defense. The defendant has not seen either of his two daughters since his arrest and is disappointed about that.

"Here's a dad who is in trouble and there certainly would be a hope for some support or some expression of father/daughter feelings, but to the best of my knowledge . . . there has not been any, which is disappointing," McWilliams said.

Tyburski has talked to his parents, McWilliams said, but they live out of state so have "only limited ability to give him some support by telephone calls."

In addition to the 19-year-old daughter, who is a student at Michigan State University, Tyburski has a 16-year-old daughter who attends Plymouth Salem High School.

CBE member says group gathers facts

To the editor:

I am writing in response to the article, "Witchcraft in books, films group states," in the Monday, Nov. 28, Observer. As an active member of CBE (Citizens for Better Education) I would like to comment on some statements made by the school board members and librarians.

Mr. David Arley's comments that "They are saying things as fact when in actuality it is their own religious perception" and "We can't deal with nebulous pieces of mist that float away" don't make sense to me.

It is fact that "Winnie the Witch" has been shown to kindergarten and first grade children. In this film series Winnie the Witch and her black cat, "Lucifer," are sought out for advice to solve the problems of the townspeople.

It is also fact that a film called "What are Friends For?" was shown at East Middle School nearly two years ago. Recent findings also revealed that on the "Gerald" show of Oct. 25, 1988, about Satanism, the same satanic symbol that appeared in the bathroom scene of this movie was seen on the show.

We have also recently learned that the mantra (a special word with spiritual power), "Nam-myoh-renge-kyo," used in the film is daily used by a Japanese occult group called Soka Gokkai or Nichiren Shoshu, which is growing in popularity throughout this country.

It is also fact that the school board approved the use of these films. Regardless of religious perception the vast majority of people do not want to experience the growth of Satanism. There are many more facts that space does not permit.

In my opinion, Mr. E.J. McClendon's remarks reflected only anger and frustration, not sound judgment. To refer to people who follow the beliefs of CBE, and apparently inferring the people who voted for Barbara Graham as "knee-jerk devotees" will not win a popularity contest with these people. Name calling by an elected official does not seem to be the respectable thing to do. I'd like to know what is wrong with people who want to see morality and a drug-free system returned to our schools?

Mr. McClendon claims that CBE has done "irreparable damage to this district." On the contrary — CBE is merely reporting the facts about what has happened in some classrooms as well as by the school board. So who is doing the damage?

He also states that "it's been harder to take action regarding policies on R-rated stuff because they've been so adamant about many other things." Why do you express a concern about taking action? When complaints were filed about certain films the school board voted to continue the use of R-rated movies including "Breakfast Club" and "Excalibur."

Claiming that CBE uses "so many untruths in its arguments" is an untruth in itself. Everything CBE has dealt with has been factual and researched in explicit detail.

Regarding the books at West Middle School — they were found in the school's library this past summer. The quotes taken from the books are accurate. However, at the suggestion of the librarian, Judith Pavitt, these books will be referred to as "human body" books rather than health books, since they are found in the "Human Growth and Development" section of the library.

Also, there were two school board members and two librarians, who apparently have opposing views to CBE, interviewed. Diane Daskalakis was the only person from CBE who commented in this article. I do hope my statements help to "balance the scale" a little.

Voter says problems go unsolved

To the editor:

We in the Plymouth Canton School District are about to face another school election in which we will again be asked to override the Headlee Amendment and allow the school district to collect the full "authorized" millage.

Personally, I plan to vote "no" once again and hope the majority of voters will do likewise.

Little has happened since the last Headlee override turnaround to convince me that a tax increase in this district is necessary. A committee — CREW (Committee Researching Educational Workings) — was formed to "improve communications" with the voters in the district. However, I have found this to be an attempt to brainwash the voters into voting for the Headlee override, with no real attempt to recognize major problem areas and try to solve them.

A survey of "handpicked" problems to be addressed by the committee does not cut into major problem areas. When Mary Dahn, a committee member, tried to bring up the immoral manner in which sex education is being taught in the district, she was admonished because this was not considered a "problem" by the creators of the survey. Yet many parents who live in this district will not send their children to the public schools for this very reason.

Since the last Headlee turnaround, all administrators in this school district were granted pay raises averaging 7 percent. The average principal in this district earns $60,000-$66,000. These large pay increases, for people whom I consider to be way overpaid, were given at a time when pay increases in the private sector averaged about 5 percent. Does this sound like a school district that is hurting financially?

When asked about the large pay increases, the district points out that other school districts are also giving large increases. However, I pay taxes in this district, not in Birmingham or somewhere else. And I expect my elected school board and its administrative staff to represent the taxpayers in this district, not be just another voice for the NEA (National Education Association).

Tom Yack, Canton Township supervisor, was recently given a pay increase to $43,000 per year. Yet school principals in the school district are paid $66,000. Does anyone see something out of touch with reality here?

Gerald N. Wiggins,
Canton

Committee says thanks

To the editor:

On behalf of the Geer School Committee we would like to express our gratitude to the staffs, students and administrators at Hoben Elementary School and East Middle School. Together almost $600 was raised between these two schools to benefit the restoration of Geer through the sale of "Cheer for Geer" pencils.

At Hoben School Mrs. Cathy Sibbert's fourth grade class did an excellent job promoting and managing the pencil sale.

Oliver's Pizza donated a pizza party to the homeroom with the top sales at East. Mrs. Barb Church's eighth grade homeroom won the party by purchasing 251 pencils. Other top classes included Mrs. Debbie Foster's eighth graders and Mrs. Welch's sixth graders.

The exterior restoration of Geer is now in the final stages of completion. We appreciate the community support of this project. Watch for news of further events and fund-raisers.

Safe driving is urged

To the Editor:

This letter to my community carries the all too familiar message "Drive responsibly." Dec. 20 was rainy and dusk-like, and at 3:35 p.m. most drivers had turned on their headlights. I was driving west on Ann Arbor Trail and had just crossed Beck; two vehicles were coming east. A third vehicle was also driving east — but in my lane of the road. Coming from the west a small, cinnamon-colored compact car had turned east on Ann Arbor Trail, and without so much as a pause passed the two vehicles ahead of it.

Since there was no place for me to pull over beyond the paved shoulder I simply stopped the car as far to the right as possible. At an incredible rate of speed, without headlights, the driver of this car crossed over a double yellow line, uphill, in the wrong lane, without regard to me or the other two drivers.

I was able to see a high school-aged male driving, and laughing while he looked at his passenger, not the road. I was unable to distinguish his passenger. Thoughts raced through my mind as I watched a crazed cinnamon-colored compact car. Holiday driving, New Year's Eve, winter weather, and even the approaching spring when high school seniors feel immortal.

Parents please talk to your teenage drivers about responsible driving, poor driving conditions, rules like not passing uphill or crossing over a "double yellow." And don't be afraid to take away the keys — especially if your son was driving a cinnamon-colored compact car one Tuesday afternoon.

To the Editor:

We should all stand a little taller today.

Again this year, the residents of our community have come through for those who are less fortunate. The United Way fund drive for 1988 is now complete, and we have exceeded our goal of $460,000.

This letter is to congratulate and thank those in the community who gave so generously. Without them, a fund drive would not be possible.

It is also to thank the many volunteers who put in endless hours doing the necessary paperwork and asking for the donations. They are people who give of their time and talents so that others might live or live better.

Finally, we thank you, Plymouth Observer, for your support in presenting information and facts about the needs and values of the Plymouth Community United Way during our 1988-89 fund drive.

On behalf of those in need, those who will benefit so greatly from your contribution, a heartfelt thank you.

1988-89 Campaign Chairperson

Holiday party appreciated

To the editor:

During the holiday season much is often heard about the "Christmas spirit." The true meaning of this spirit of giving was seen when many individuals and area businesses donated their time, money and services so that a group of young women from Our Lady of Providence School could have a Christmas dinner party.

On behalf of the students and sisters at the school, we would like to thank the following people and organizations for making the party a memorable occasion: The Mayflower Hotel, Sparr's Flowers, The Plymouth Historical Museum, Graphic Communications, K mart, Quicksilver Photo, Stephen Mardigan, the city of Plymouth.

William Wiercioch and Leon Kennedy

Real beats wimpy

America is being inundated by wimpy food. You know what I'm talking about, wimpy food that has any connection to terms like "lite," "light," "tossed with," "sprinkled with," "married," or the worst — "delicately seasoned."

You've heard me talk many a time about Momma and growing up in a culturally rich German-French Canadian-Polish family. Up until a few years ago, before the introduction of wimpy foods like quiche and chocolate mousse, the foods that warmed my heart and soul were made with names like bacon and eggs and chocolate ice cream.

Real men (and women) drank "real" beer, and if they occasionally overdid it, they certainly wouldn't stock the freezer with Lean Cuisine and Weight Watcher mousse-on-a-stick.

It's time to separate the men from the boys and the women from the girls. You don't have to be a cigar-chompin', big-bellied pork-lover to know that foods like "pasta" (especially those tossed with squash blossoms) should be banned from the "real" food list.

I DON'T KNOW about you, but I was raised on spaghetti. Occasionally, when Momma ran out of spaghetti, we had macaroni and then it was slathered with so much stick-to-your-ribs meat sauce that it was all you could do to use a half loaf of bread just wiping up the leftover sauce on your plate. As of today, say goodbye to pasta primavera, fettuccine Alfredo and shark-tooth-stuffed ravioli. Real men (and women) eat spaghetti with a real meat sauce.

When I was growing up, we ate real cereal. That stuff loaded with germs, buds, bran, apples and honey was made for folks like Euell Gibbons and Mrs. Slatewater, and she had the reputation of having all the lights on but never home.

I want corn flakes with whole milk. Save the 2 percent for the folks at Vic Tanny's. And when the weekend comes, skip the Belgian waffles with strawberries and cream. Give me bacon and eggs and a side of country fries.

Contest calls for comfort

Don't forget to include your phone number when you submit a recipe to the contest on comfort food. Call the Taste department at 591-2300, ext. 305, to add your phone number if you submitted your entry without one.

What's a comfort food? Maybe it's the food that makes you feel like a kid again, that reminds you of home. It probably makes you feel all snugly and happy, even when you're downcast — like on a cold winter's day.

Recipes for the most appealing comfort foods will be published in Taste during February. Try them to pull yourself out of the doldrums.

Letters should be postmarked by Monday, Jan. 16, and addressed to: Comfort Food — Taste, The Observer & Eccentric, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48105. Prizes will be awarded to readers whose recipes are chosen for publication.

NOODLES

Dive into dishes with dough strips

By Wendy Rubin
special writer

NOODLES DATE BACK as early as 5000 B.C., when the Chinese were making a primitive form by grinding wheat into meal and flour. And, in 700 B.C., historians believe that the Etruscans (people who settled the upper Western coast of the Italian peninsula) were preparing pasta similar to gnocchi — little balls of dough cooked in boiling water.

Explorer Marco Polo helped the Italians become the masters of pasta production in 1295 when he brought the Chinese version back home with him to Italy.

A noodle is simply a long strip of dough that is cut into any one of a wide variety of lengths, widths and shapes. The word noodle is derived from the German word "nude," and dough usually consists of flour, eggs and water.

German-style noodles use ordinary wheat flour and must contain 5 percent egg solids.

The Chinese or Asian-style noodles have a large and unusual selection of main ingredients. There are rice, soy and mung bean, potato and seaweed noodles, which are prepared and used in a variety of ways. While many of the varieties are boiled, Asian noodles are often pan or deep fried.

The Italians largely influenced all Western noodles. Pastas are usually made from hard drum wheat flour and water and do not necessarily contain egg.

THE HARD DRUM flour is made from hard winter wheat and contains more protein than the other commonly used flours. Pastas are more firm, have better color and taste better than other noodles. A good hard drum wheat pasta has less ash in it. Ash is the substance that comes off a noodle when it is cooked, turning the water milky white. A good pasta product will leave the water with little or no ash. The clearer the water after cooking, the better-quality product you have.

Pasta use has grown steadily in the years since World War II. Over the last five years, pasta consumption and production in the United States has more than doubled.

Our fascination with weight control and nutrition are largely responsible for the increasing popularity of pasta. For many years pasta or noodles were perceived as a fattening, high-calorie food. Actually, one cup of cooked noodles contains only 220 calories. In addition, you'll find one cup of noodles contains 7.3 grams protein, .7 grams fat, 16 mg calcium and 1.5 mg sodium. Many of the newest pastas on the market today are being made with no egg and contain no cholesterol.

Lining the shelves of grocery stores and gourmet shops you'll find the newest rage, flavored pastas. These are the fastest-growing segment of the noodle industry, according to Peter Maciaszek, plant manager of Schmidt Noodle Co. and Herb's Homestyle Pasta in Detroit.

Flavored pastas come in an exciting and unusual selection of flavors. Maciaszek said the most popular are parsley/garlic, bell pepper/basil, mixed vegetable ribbons and spinach ribbons. For the weight and health conscious, Maciaszek recommends another popular seller — whole wheat pasta. Made without any egg, this type has no cholesterol and has fewer calories than other varieties.

Charles Liu demonstrates making Chinese noodles at his restaurant, the Ching Tao Palace, in Southfield. The restaurant serves the noodles in some special dishes.

JERRY ZOLYNSKY/staff photographer

In the stretch, Chinese noodles emerge

By Janice Brunson
staff writer

Charles Liu can transform a three-pound hunk of dough into 4,000 delicate Chinese noodles in much less time than it takes to heat a can of Campbell's chicken noodle soup.

Using the age-old technique of stretch and throw, Liu is master of a culinary art that originated in ancient China some 3,000 years ago. Marco Polo stumbled onto the long, thin noodles and carried them back to Italy where they were dubbed spaghetti during the 13th century.

Liu, owner of Charles Liu's Ching Tao Palace in Southfield and Clinton Township, first learned the ancient art as a lad of 13 in Shantung Province in China where his parents, Chiang-ki and Yun-tz Liu, owned and operated the very restaurant in which Liu was born in 1948.

It took the young Liu three years to master the craft.

"It's definitely a skill, an art," he said, in flawless English learned after arriving in the United States as a 22-year-old student in 1970.

"It takes a lot of patience. It's almost like meditation. You have to go with the dough, feel how the dough flows and then flow with it," Liu explained, as he stretched and threw a hunk into a series of configurations that moments later produced fine noodles ready for cooking.

THE KEY to a confident success is the flour. Each sack works differently. When Liu encounters a consistency particularly adept for noodle making, he buys a year's supply. This lot is Pillsbury all purpose.

Customers in his Southfield eatery are enraptured as Liu skillfully stretches and throws the dough that he has kneaded earlier.

Liu opened the Southfield palace, the second of two restaurants, in April. He has learned from experience that one way to build a thriving business is by displaying his unique culinary art and then serving the delicate noodles in special entrees. A special menu lists some 25 exotic noodle offerings, including a stir fry soup and noodles with specially spiced jumbo shrimp.

"It's the original pasta. If you like pasta, you'll like these. I like them all," he said, referring to the special menu.

It is this kind of attention to detail that assured Liu success in his first restaurant, opened in Clinton Township in 1982. Liu's father, also a master in noodle making who taught his only son, now manages the first palace where he is the primary chef.

Both eateries feature specialties on the regular menu that are changed annually in January, following trips to the Orient where Liu searches out new and unique Asian fare for inclusion in a menu that features Mandarin, Szechuan and Hunan cuisine.

FAT, JUICY scallops imported from Canada and mixed with vegetables selected for visual appeal, crispy chicken prepared in a flower pepper coating and orange beef featuring succulent slivers of the fruit are among this year's specialties.

The chicken and beef dishes are as good cold as hot, said Liu, referring to them as "finger foods." He has "deli-ized" them. "Most people think Chinese food cannot be deli-ized. But we have developed a whole line."

A mouth-watering hot and sour soup and a unique ice cream feature "Chinese meat" or tofu. The soup is made more spicy by a special sauce prepared by Liu's father who combines 13 ingredients from scratch.

The homemade sauce is also tasty on Liu's pot stickers, fragrant Chinese dumplings fried in a minimum of oil that causes them to stick to the pot in which they are cooking.

In the stretch, noodles emerge

An appetizer — a crab puff sometimes called won ton — features a crab and cheese mixture that Liu said is rare fare in a Chinese restaurant.

His recipes are closely guarded secrets because "other restaurants would love to get them," he said.

WHEN LIU first stepped outside Detroit Metropolitan Airport after arriving in the U.S. in 1970, he was taken aback by the hordes of city police. "I thought criminal control here was very, very good." He had mistaken taxi cabs for police patrol cars.

Judging by his command of English, the young Liu settled in quickly. He and wife, Lili, who now live in Novi, set about learning the restaurant business American-style. By the time they had launched their Clinton Township eatery, combining Chinese technique with new expertise, the elder Liu had already joined them from China.

"I feel I have a (culinary) talent. I was making good dumplings when I was 10," he said, referring to the family restaurant in China where Liu originally learned the restaurant business from his parents.

"I take pride in it. My customers are my friends," he added.

Liu is hopeful son Gerald, 9, will carry on the ancient art of noodle making. If not, "I'll definitely teach someone," because it is a dying craft now practiced by only a very few. "It is very unusual to have three people in one family who can do it." A sister can also throw dough into noodles with considerable expertise, he said.

Ching Tao Palace, in Farrell's Plaza, 29295 Southfield Road north of 12 Mile Road, is open daily, 11:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. Entrees begin at $5.50.

Charles Liu says this is a simple meal or snack very common in Northern China, especially in wintertime.

CHINESE NOODLES IN CHICKEN-BROTH SPINACH SOUP

4 servings

3 quarts cold water
1/4 pound Chinese egg noodles (also called Cantonese noodles), available at any Chinese grocery store
4 cups canned chicken broth
1 package fresh spinach
1/2 pound sliced chicken breast meat
4 cups cold water
2 green onions, chopped

Utensils:
medium-large-size wok or its equivalent, to boil noodles

colander or strainer small saucepot to make the soup measuring cup long-stemmed chopsticks to stir the noodles

Bring 3 quarts cold water to boil. Add noodles, bring to boil for 3-5 minutes, until noodles soften, and drain immediately with colander or strainer. Add chicken broth to saucepot, four cups cold water, and bring to boil. Add washed spinach, sliced chicken breast meat and green onions. Reduce heat to low and simmer for 5 minutes.

Add table salt and black pepper according to your individual taste. Three or four drops of sesame oil optional.

Add cooked noodles into the saucepot and bring to boil. Remove from heat source immediately and serve.

clarification

Lines of type were accidentally dropped from the recipe for GUILT-Free Chocolate Chiffon Cake, published in last Monday's Cook's Books column. Here is the recipe, taken from the book "The Cake Bible" by Rose Levy Beranbaum.

GUILT-FREE CHOCOLATE CHIFFON CAKE

Serves 14
1/2 cup plus 1 tablespoon cocoa unsweetened
1/4 cup boiling water
1 1/4 cups sifted cake flour
1/4 cup sugar
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
6 tablespoons walnut oil
2 tablespoons safflower oil
6 large eggs, separated
4 egg whites
2 teaspoons vanilla
1 1/4 teaspoons cream of tartar

Preheat oven to 325 degrees.

In a medium bowl combine the cocoa and boiling water and whisk until smooth. Cool.

In a large mixing bowl combine the flour, all but 2 tablespoons of the sugar, baking powder and salt and beat 1 minute to mix. Make a well in the center. Add the oils, egg yolks, chocolate mixture and vanilla and beat 1 minute or until smooth.

In another large mixing bowl beat the egg whites until frothy, add the cream of tartar and beat until soft peaks form when the beater is raised. Beat the remaining 2 tablespoons of sugar and beat until stiff peaks form when the beater is raised slowly. Fold 1 heaping cup of egg whites into the chocolate mixture with a large balloon wire whisk, slotted skimmer or angel food cake folder. Gently fold in the remaining egg whites until just blended.

Pour into a 10-inch tube pan (the batter will come to 1 1/4 inches from the top) and bake for 60 minutes or until a cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean and the cake springs back when lightly pressed in the center. Invert the pan, placing the tube opening over the neck of a soda or wine bottle to suspend it well above the counter and cool the cake completely (about 1 1/2 hours).

Loosen the sides with a long metal spatula and remove. Invert onto a greased wire rack and reinvert onto a serving plate. Complementary adornment: A light sprinkling of powdered sugar or cocoa.

Dive into dishes with varieties of noodles

"IT IS GOOD for people with health problems," said Maciaszek. Both Schmidt Noodles and Herb's Homestyle Pastas are sold nationally and are widely available in this area.

Rosemary Squires of Birmingham learned to "fast cook," as she calls it, when her husband was in college and she was working.

"We'd get home and be starving," said Squires.

Squires would put a pot of water on the stove, add a handful of noodles and dream up some flavor for a sauce.

Squires cooks with her imagination.

"I think what I want it to taste like and put things together. Sometimes it works and sometimes it doesn't."

Over the years, Squires' husband has become a taste-testing expert. She likes to buy the low-calorie noodle brands, which are seen more frequently on grocery shelves.

quently on grocery shelves.

One of Squires' favorite fast-cook meals is goulash. In a frying pan she cooks ground beef, onions, canned tomato, salt, pepper, a bit of sugar and macaroni. She then puts the mixture into a casserole and bakes it with Velveeta cheese on top for 30 minutes. (Squires uses frozen onions rather than chopping fresh. "You can't tell the difference.")

PETER MACIASZEK's quick pasta favorite is to cook a bag or part of a bag of Herb's Homestyle Parsley Garlic Fettuccine and toss with some melted butter or margarine, salt, pepper and Romano cheese. For an extra special treat, he suggests adding some shrimp and scallions. Easy and delicious.

And, in case you are wondering what famous people like Mitch Miller grab for a quick diet lunch, try this. Cook pasta, add low fat cottage cheese and sprinkle with parmesan cheese and pepper.

be used for garnishing.

Serving suggestions: Serve with tossed salad (marinated artichoke hearts added to salad are great) and hot bread.

APRICOT NOODLE PUDDING (Recipe from Rosemary Squires)

1 pound wide noodles
1 cup milk
1/2 pound cottage cheese, dry (or small curd cottage cheese)
2 eggs
1/2 cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons vanilla
1/4 pound butter, melted
1 can (13 1/2 ounces) crushed pineapple, drained
1/2 box dried apricots, cut up

Topping: 1 1/2 cups crushed corn flakes, cinnamon and sugar to taste.

Cook noodles and drain. Mix with other ingredients. Place in 13 by 9 by 2 inch Pyrex dish. Top with corn flakes mixed with cinnamon and sugar. Dot with butter. Bake at 350 degrees for one hour, cool 15 minutes before cutting. Serves 12.

1 to 2 cloves garlic crushed (add 2 tablespoons fresh, or 1 tablespoon dried, parsley when onion is almost done)

Stir in:
3 dashes Worcestershire sauce
Remove from heat and just before serving stir in:
1 cup cottage cheese, blended smooth with 1/2 cup yogurt salt and fresh pepper to taste

Serve immediately over hot whole wheat noodles and garnish with more parsley.

HERB'S GARLIC VINAIGRETTE DRESSING AND PARSLEY GARLIC FETTUCCINE

1 teaspoon dry mustard
1 tablespoon water
1 clove garlic, finely minced
1 teaspoon granulated sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup olive oil
3 tablespoons lemon juice or wine vinegar
1 teaspoon freshly grated onion (optional)

Combine the mustard with the water and let it stand for 10 minutes, then add the garlic, sugar, salt and olive oil and let stand for one hour. Add the lemon juice or vinegar and the onion, then pour into a screw-top jar and shake well. Cook 8-ounce bag of Herb's parsley garlic fettuccine according to instructions and pour dressing over fettuccine for a delicious side dish.

DAN DEAN/staff photographer

Rosemary Squires of Birmingham gets ready to put an easy meal on table featuring chicken Caruso, which is a combination of chicken breasts, stewed tomatoes and thin spaghetti.

CHICKEN CARUSO (Recipe from Rosemary Squires)

Lightly dredge two large boneless (split) chicken breasts in flour and brown the four pieces in three or four tablespoons olive oil. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and paprika while browning. Add 1/2 cup water, cover and cook on low for 12-15 minutes. Remove chicken breasts from pan and set aside. After removing browned breasts, make sauce in same skillet.

Sauce
1 can Campbell's tomato soup
1 can (8 ounce) Hunt's tomato sauce
1 can (14 1/2 ounce) Del Monte Italian Style stewed tomatoes
2 teaspoons Kitchen Bouquet
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1/2 teaspoon cumin

2 teaspoon sugar

Cook sauce (uncovered) for 12-15 minutes on low heat. Reserve 1/2 to 3/4 cup sauce to use later.

While sauce is cooking, cook four generous servings Prince Light Thin spaghetti in boiling, salted water with one tablespoon oil added. Stir constantly to prevent sticking. Cook al dente. Drain spaghetti and run cold water over it to separate.

Put spaghetti into Pyrex dish approximately 8 by 11 inches. Pour 3/4 of sauce onto spaghetti, lay the four pieces of browned chicken on top of spaghetti and pour the remainder of sauce on top. Sprinkle generously with grated Parmesan cheese.

Bake, covered with foil, for 40 minutes at 350 degrees. Uncover and bake for five more minutes.

Serves four. Reserved sauce can

HERB'S MUSHROOM STROGANOFF

Start cooking:
1/2 pound Herb's whole wheat flats

Saute:
1 tablespoon butter
1 small onion, finely chopped
1/2 pound mushrooms, halved

Dessert buffet good for change

AP — A more casual alternative to a formal dinner party is the dessert buffet, with coffees and cognac.

Some suggestions:
Plan to serve three to four desserts for 10 to 15 guests, four to five desserts for a group of 20 or 25.

Mix mugs with coffee cups and pull out the extra plates from the cupboard.

A tray of three or four varieties of cognac, French brandy, eases the need for an elaborate bar setup.

Another idea is to add alcohol to the hot coffee and top it with whipped cream and garnish.

For cafe Italiano, add an ounce of amaretto; for Dublin coffee, an ounce of Irish Mist; Caribbean coffee calls for an ounce of Kahlua and half-an-ounce of rum; and Kioki coffee is made with an ounce of Kahlua and an ounce of brandy.

Test vegetables for doneness

AP — I like vegetables such as brussels sprouts cooked crisp-tender. That's the stage of doneness when the vegetables are cooked, but aren't yet soft or mushy. They should be tender but still slightly firm to the bite. To test for doneness, poke vegetables with a fork or, if vegetables are cut up, remove a piece and take a bite.

BRUSSELS SPROUTS ITALIAN
one 10-ounce package (2 cups) frozen brussels sprouts
1 medium onion, cut into 12 wedges
2 tablespoons Italian salad dressing
1/2 cup cherry tomatoes, halved

Hold frozen brussels sprouts under cold running water to separate. Cut large sprouts in half. In a 1-quart casserole combine sprouts, onion wedges and salad dressing. Cook, covered, on 100 percent power (high) for 8 to 10 minutes or until tender, stirring once. Stir in cherry tomato halves. Cook, covered, on high for 30 to 60 seconds more or until tomatoes are heated through. Makes 4 servings.

Weight loss program introduced to area women

Area women are invited to try a new program to help them lose weight through a new method using videotapes at home.

In Control — A Home Video Weight Loss Program is used by the American Heart Association in its health promotion program, Heart at Work.

People interested in using the In Control program in their own home may now call the distributor, MMI Video, toll free at 1-800-225-7580. A Program Director will call you back with information.

Call today, between 9 and 6, to start the program by January 19th.

Real beats wimpy for enjoyable food

And if I find myself in too much of a hurry to eat breakfast, I'll just stick my finger in the peanut butter jar so you won't have to dirty a knife.

Just about as high on my list of wimpy foods as quiche, as of today I am banning the use of anything even remotely associated with sushi. Folks that think raw fish wrapped in seaweed taste good have been hitting the sake bottle too long.

LET'S TAKE THIS idea a step further and include all foods cooked rare and medium rare. If you want to eat meat (and real men and women eat meat), then it should be cooked completely to kill off any micro-organisms and steroids and antibiotics that are present in much of the foods we consume.

I hear the trendy thing is to order swordfish medium rare. If you have done this in the last 90 days, you probably like abalone and oysters baked in champagne. Real men and women, when they're not eating meat, eat perch. You can get added points if you catch the perch yourself, but you get points removed if the fish was caught by the Fermi nuclear power plant. Tarter sauce and french fries are optional and have no bearing on your manliness.

Notice, however, that my war on wimpy foods will never include the need to eat such seemingly hostile foods like hot peppers, anchovies and hot dogs purchased at Tiger stadium. These are foods that are better left to individual tastes and desires and anyone who calls himself a man or woman need only eat food like this when they choose to do harm to their respective bodies.

QUICHE

(points added with bacon, taken away when made with broccoli)

- 1 prepared 9-inch pie crust, pre-baked
- 1 tablespoon dijon-styled mustard
- 3 cups shredded imported Swiss cheese
- 1/2 cup filling of your choice (bacon, broccoli, spinach, ham, green onions)
- 4 eggs, beaten
- 1/2 cup cream or milk
- 3 drops Tabasco

Brush prebaked pie crust with dijon-styled mustard. Place 1 cup shredded Swiss cheese on bottom of crust. Top with filling of your choice, then add remaining 2 cups of shredded Swiss cheese. Mix together eggs, milk and Tabasco and slowly pour over the top of the quiche. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Turn oven off, allow to stand for 5 minutes. Try to enjoy.

CHOCOLATE MOUSSE

- 4 ounce unsweetened chocolate
- 8 eggs, separated
- 1 cup powdered sugar, sifted

Melt chocolate in a double boiler. Beat egg yolks, adding powdered sugar gradually until yolks are a pale yellow. Slowly mix yolks into melted chocolate in a double boiler over low heat, stirring constantly until very smooth. Remove from heat. Beat egg whites till stiff. Fold in egg whites into chocolate mixture until no whites show. Refrigerate covered until set, about 3 hours.

HOMEMADE PASTA

- 4 cups semolina flour
- 4 eggs, lightly beaten
- 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
- 2 teaspoons olive oil
- 2 teaspoons warm water

Make a well with the flour in the center of a pastry board. Add eggs, one at a time, with the salt, and using a fork, mix in small amounts until all is incorporated. Dough should be stiff. Drizzle with olive oil and knead in for 2 minutes. If needed, add a few drops of warm water to make dough pliable. Allow dough to rest for 30 minutes before rolling and slicing. To cook: Bring a large pot of boiling water to a rolling boil. Add 1 teaspoon salt per gallon of water. Add rolled and sliced fresh pasta and cook, stirring occasionally for 4-5 minutes or until cooked "al dente."

Hotline answers food questions

"Food and Nutrition Hotline. May I help you?" Is there a question about food and/or safety that has been bothering you? Today's column is a potpourri of a few questions and the answers collected from the Oakland County Cooperative Extension Service food telephone hotline and my mailbox. Hope this information answers a few of those burning questions.

Q. What is caster sugar and how do I use it?

A. Caster sugar is an English name for granulated sugar. English caster sugar is a slightly finer-grained sugar than our granulated sugar. Ordinary table sugar in the United States is a reasonable approximation.

Q. There are bugs in the cupboard. What can I do to get rid of them?

A. A number of different types of insects can infest kitchens. The first step in eliminating kitchen pests is a thorough cleanup. Inspect all foodstuffs that could be infested. It is better to discard infested foodstuffs than to try to kill the insects found in them. Clean cupboards thoroughly using a vacuum cleaner and a strong soap solution. Place all foodstuffs in home economist, Cooperative Extension Service tightly sealed containers. If after all this, the infestation is found to be widespread, use an insecticide suitable to kill the particular insect. Read the labels.

Lois Thieleke

Q. Can I use dry ice in punch?

A. Yes, provided that certain precautions are taken. Dry ice must be handled with clean gloves (leather or gardening gloves) to prevent blister burns. Do not use mittens. The yarn will stick to the dry ice. Use only small blocks of ice in a punch bowl. Large pieces can sink to the bottom, freeze the contents and crack the punch bowl. Beware that no chips of dry ice are breaking loose in the punch. If ingested these would cause burns in the mouth, esophagus and stomach. It is best if the punch is ladled out by one person rather than a free-for-all to guests. Be careful.

Q. Is there a remedy for fast-melting homemade ice cream?

AP - A package of seasoned Oriental noodles makes this salad doubly good. Toss the noodles in with the vegetable mixture and add the seasoning packet to the dressing.

ORIENTAL CABBAGE SALAD

- one 3-ounce package Oriental noodles with chicken flavor
- 4 cups shredded cabbage
- 4 green onions, sliced (1/4 cup)
- 2 tablespoons sesame seed
- 3 tablespoons vinegar
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 2 tablespoons salad oil
- 1/2 teaspoon ground white pepper
- 1/4 teaspoon salt

A. Add instant pudding or gelatin to the ice cream mix before freezing. The starch in the pudding or gelatin acts as a stabilizer in the frozen product. To achieve the perfect quality you'll need to experiment with your recipe. Start with 1/2 of the small-size package of instant pudding or one teaspoon of unflavored gelatin softened in one tablespoon of hot water. If the product still lacks the smooth, creamy feeling, add a little more for the next batch. (It's fun eating the mistakes.)

Q. Some of my aluminum pans are pitted. Are they still safe to use?

A. If your aluminum pots and pans are pitted, scrub the pan well with steel wool, and rinse thoroughly. When the pan is used in the future, be sure to use a brush to scrub out any food lodged in the pits. Do not store high-acid foods such as tomatoes, fruits or sauerkraut in aluminum pans.

Q. The bones and the meat next to the bones of cooked chicken are dark in color. Can this be eaten?

A. This may be caused by the handling of the chicken prior to cooking. Chicken that has been frozen several weeks or longer may turn dark upon cooking. This is due to the blood moving into the tissues during freezing and thawing. Discoloration does not occur in fresh chicken, which is cooked or older birds where the bones are more dense. This is really a cosmetic problem, not a safety problem.

Q. How do you feel about cooking in the dishwasher?

A. What a waste of water and energy to cook a meal. I do not recommend this cooking technique. It is not safe. The temperatures are too low for safe cooking of potentially hazardous foods such as poultry and fish. Besides, where would you hide dirty dishes if you're going to be cooking in the dishwasher?

Call the Extension Service food hotline, 858-0904, to ask your specific question. We want to help all those questioning minds.

Salem hands Hawks first loss, 65-64

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

If anyone still needed to be convinced about the legitimacy of Plymouth Salem's basketball team, the Rocks supplied the evidence Friday night.

In a game that certainly lived up to expectations, Salem dealt visiting Farmington Harrison, ranked No. 5 in Class B, its first defeat, 65-64. Both teams are 6-1 overall.

The Western Lakes Activities Association crossover game didn't mean anything in the league standings, but that didn't mean anything to the players involved.

It was an exciting, back-and-forth contest that saw the Hawks attempt to salvage a victory in the last minute before Craig Marshall's free throws with 12 seconds left finally decided it.

"WHEN THEY come in our gym, set up a rally and we show people we can play, that's a big confidence builder," said Salem star Jeff Elliott, who poured in a game-high 23 points and also had nine rebounds, eight assists and four steals.

"This was a game people didn't think we could win. We made a couple mistakes near the end, but we'll learn not to make those mistakes in the next game.

"We had a seven-point lead tonight, and we'll be even more confident in the next game, even if we only have a one-point lead," he said.

HARRISON COACH Mike Teachman said the effort was there from his players and, therefore, couldn't be too upset by the outcome.

He did wonder what might have

basketball

transpired had time not expired when it did, given the seesaw nature of the contest. The Hawks battled back from a 13-point deficit in the second quarter and a 63-56 margin with 1:35 remaining in the fourth.

"It seemed like a pendulum type of game," Teachman said. "They seemed to be on top of it when the buzzer sounded. I'd like to see (what would've happened) if we had played a 33-minute game."

SALEM CARRIED the game to the Hawks beginning with Jeff Gold's layup off the opening tip. The Rocks raced to a 19-8 lead on Gold's coast-to-coast play and were up 31-18 midway in the second period.

"They were ready to fly people against our press, and we weren't getting back on defense," Teachman said.

"I told my kids 'Let's just match athletic ability with athletic ability and let the chips fall where they may,'" Salem coach Bob Brodie said.

Elliott and center Jake Baker had nine points apiece in the first half, and the latter was a key to Salem's eventual victory. The 6-foot-5 sophomore added 13 points and pulled down 15 rebounds.

But Harrison ran off 11 unanswered points to make it a two-point ballgame, 31-29, and turn the momentum. After Baker interrupted the streak with five points, the night. Gold had eight points and four assists as the Rocks improved to 5-1 while giving Harrison its first loss.

Chiefs avert upset, edge Farmington

By Larry O'Connor

The hand of fate kindly patted Plymouth Canton on the back, while a win merely slipped through the mitts of Farmington.

The visiting Chiefs erased a nine-point deficit in the final quarter and pulled out a 55-54 victory Friday against the winless Falcons in boys basketball action. The pressure was on as Canton squeezed out its fourth consecutive win.

Things were undecided until the final seconds. Mike Myers sank two free throws with 11 seconds left to bring Farmington to within one.

The Chiefs' Mike Sulak was then fouled but missed the front end of the 1-and-1. On the ensuing play, Farmington's Jason Brown had trouble hanging onto an upcourt pass. Canton scooped up the ball and ran out the clock.

The turnover was one of many forced by the Chiefs in the final eight minutes. Canton (5-2) tightened the vice with a trap defense, and the Falcons popped under pressure.

"We changed our defense," Canton coach Tom Niemi said. "It sparked us. We went to a full-court trap and it worked."

In one span, the Falcons turned over the ball four straight times. Traveling calls were the bane of Farmington throughout the final quarter.

basketball

FARMINGTON, 0-7, couldn't find redemption at the foul line. The Falcons were 7-of-12 on free throw attempts in the final eight minutes.

That didn't go well with a 1-of-6 performance from the floor in the fourth quarter.

"What really hurt us is that we didn't hit the big free throws down the stretch," said Farmington coach Pete Mantyla, who was subbing for Bob Kaump. Kaump was out of town attending his daughter's wedding.

"I feel we played straight up with them except for the missed free throws. We shot enough of them."

Free throws didn't earn Farmington a nine-point lead in the fourth quarter. Some good offensive play underneath the basket did. Dennis Raimi (10 points) and Chris Schmid (nine points) put the Falcons in the right frame, driving to the basket on occasion.

Myers and Brown hit some shots from the outside. Brown connected on a line-drive baseline jump shot in the fourth quarter that kept the Falcons close.

As it turned out, though, the field goal would be the only one Farmington would muster in the final eight minutes.

Canton had a little more composure. At the forefront was Brian Paupore, who found his shooting touch from the outside in the second half.

PAUPORE FINISHED with a game-high 26 points. Troy Waldron fired in 19 points, including a three-point basket in the third quarter.

Mere point totals, though, don't tell the whole story. Plays like Daryl Magreta following up with his second rebound and scoring in the fourth quarter might. Or, Sulak adroitly bouncing an errant pass off a Falcon player for a turnover perhaps sums up the Chiefs' comeback rally best.

Ex-baseball aide new softball boss

Dave Racer will break new ground in his coaching career this spring when he takes over as head of the Plymouth Canton varsity softball team.

A varsity baseball assistant for the past 11 years, Racer replaces Max Sommerville, who retired from teaching and coaching at the end of the last school year.

Racer, 48, who resigned last August as Fred Crissey's right-hand man in the Canton baseball program, looks forward to beginning his new job.

"I really want to get into the teaching of the fundamentals and see if we can't build a strong program," he said. "There's enough good athletes (at Canton) that we should be able to run a strong program."

"It'll be a challenge building a program, but it's a challenge I'm looking forward to."

RACER FIGURES it could take two or three years to establish a consistent, winning program. But he plans to institute a parents club, like the one that has supported the highly successful baseball program so well, and a weight-training program.

One of his first moves was to put Jim Arnold, formerly the freshman coach, in charge of the JV team. Racer said more than 30 girls attended a recent get-acquainted meeting, and he plans to carry 18-19 players on the varsity.

"In March, we'll work with the JV and varsity teams together, so we can see all of the girls in the program," Racer said.

The Chiefs were (11-10) last year and will return nine players from softball

that team, including junior pitcher Stacey Thompson, who had a big impact after moving into the school district. Canton won only three games the previous year.

"I know something about the program because of my daughter (Beth, who will be a senior member of the team this year)," Racer said, "but I haven't been able to see many games because the baseball team usually plays at the same time."

"I haven't seen (Thompson) throw yet, but I'll do that right away. Half the game, in both baseball and softball, is pitching and defense. If you've got a good pitcher who can dominate a game, you're going to win a lot of games."

RACER, THE SELF-employed owner of Westland Tree Service, coached the Hines Park-Lincoln Mercury entry in the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League last summer and the Plymouth-Canton Elks in the Redford Connie Mack League the four previous years, compiling a 95-19 record with the latter outfit.

Racer, who played two seasons in the Baltimore Orioles farm system in the early 1960s, also coached the Plymouth-Canton Mickey Mantle team from 1978-82. His 1979 ballclub was runner-up in the NABF World Series.

Dave Racer will take over the coaching reins of the Canton softball team after 11 years as a baseball assistant.

Novi ace wins battle of stars

There must have been a blue moon out Thursday night. What else can explain a Plymouth Salem swimming meet that doesn't include an individual victory by Ron Orris.

Novi swamped the host Rocks 106-66 Thursday night, and coach Chuck Olson could see what was coming before the meet was over.

"Anytime Orris doesn't win a single event for us, we're in trouble," Olson said.

"It shouldn't have been that bad. But they swam real well. We had some good times, but we also had some real bad ones, too."

Olson isn't too alarmed about Orris' performance, however. He lost to one of the state's best swimmers, Jeff Cohen, in both the 200-yard individual medley and the 500 freestyle.

Cohen clocked 1:53.66 in the IM to edge Orris, who finished the race in 1:54.02.

The 500 freestyle wasn't as close. Cohen, who was second in Class A in the 500 freestyle last winter, swam 4:37.0 compared to 4:43.0 by Orris.

The Rocks, however, took first in four different events, and two of the titles belonged to Fred Seidelman. He qualified for state in the 50 freestyle, clocking 22.59, and he also won the 100 butterfly in 57.1.

Derrick Glencer earned the top honor in diving, gathering 176.7 points. The 400 freestyle relay team of Orris, Seidelman, Rick Steshetz and Mike Hill finished first in 3:21.5.

Salem is 2-1 in dual meets and the Wildcats, who avenged a loss to the Rocks last year, 4-0.

Salem matmen get best of 3 opponents

Plymouth Salem never ceases to amaze the wrestling world.

The Rocks won all three matches Thursday in a triangular meet at Garden City, including an impressive 40-24 victory over perennial power Temperance Bedford.

Salem, which boasts an 11-1 dual record, opened with a 34-29 defeat of Wayne Memorial and concluded by thumping the host team 60-12.

"We were off on vacation all this time, and the conditioning was not real good," coach Ron Krueger said of the close match with Wayne, the Rocks' first action of the New Year.

"We got a little better in the second match. In the third match, our kids beat some kids they had lost to before."

Salem's 112-pound Craig Richardson, 125-pound Julian Sell and 171-pound Brian Burlison scored pins in all three matches. Teammates Ed Barlage and Steve Burlison also won all of their bouts at 140 and 160 pounds, respectively.

Wayne beat Garden City 41-24 but lost to Bedford 45-15. Garden City heavyweight Ken Hamilton was a three-time winner, pinning two opponents.

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Jeff Elliott, with Jason Lichtman and Marcus Mack in pursuit, had another outstanding game as the Rocks topped unbeaten Harrison.

Elliott scored 23 points to maintain his 24-point average and also grabbed nine rebounds.

Hawks climbed within one at half-time, 36-35.

That trend continued at the outset of the second half, Harrison scoring the first 11 points to take its first lead. The Hawks hit three consecutive triples, including two by Chad Burgess, and went from playing catch-up early to having a 10-point lead, 46-36.

"Any time you play a team with the athletes they have, it's hard to spread the game," Brodie said. "I told our players the challenge was to see if they could win the close ones."

BRODIE SAID he emphasized to his team the need to stop Harrison's dribble and penetration, believing Harrison's quickness was the biggest threat. Thus, the Rocks conceded the outside shot, nearly to their regret.

Burgess, who scored 20 points to pace the Hawks, hit four 3-pointers, Bryan Wauldron and Jason Lichtman one each. Wauldron tossed in 15 points and had six rebounds, and Lichtman finished with 10 points.

"You have to make a decision as a coach," Brodie said. "We decided to make them beat us with the perimeter shot, and I'll be darned if they almost did."

basketball

ter shot, and I'll be darned if they almost did."

Elliott, who sank a pair of triples, scored 14 in the second half and led a Salem comeback that pulled the Rocks within 52-50 after three quarters.

It was Salem's turn to surge early in the fourth, and Elliott's drive to the basket returned the advantage to the Rocks, 56-55, and his outside shot gave Salem its 63-56 lead.

But the Hawks came close to turning the tables once more as a series of late turnovers under pressure from Harrison nearly cost Salem.

LICHTMAN'S FREE throws with :37 on the clock made it 63-62. The Hawks had a chance to go ahead, but Mill Coleman missed the front end of a 1-and-1 with :17 to play.

Marshall was fouled while taking an inbounds pass after an exchange of turnovers and sank the crucial free throws.

Wauldron's 3-point attempt bounced off the front of the rim, and Marcus Mack, who added nine points and six caroms, scored a meaningless basket off the rebound with :01 remaining.

"We're a good or bad team, and when we're good we're capable of beating people," Brodie said.

"They're going to play every game like it means a million bucks. They were fully aware that Harrison was ranked. They like a challenge."

Considering it was a tight game, Teachman said two off-balance hook shots by Baker "that might not have been shots at all" were big plays.

But he thought the effort by Salem's Mike Albertson, who added eight points, was particularly significant.

"All of his baskets were second-effort baskets," Teachman said.

Jeff Gold had eight points and four assists for the Rocks.

Teachman said he thought Lichtman, who also had seven assists, played an "amazing" game.

"He was not even confined by the boundaries (of the court)," he said. "He was flying all over the place, diving for the ball and saving the ball out of bounds."

SC too much for Adrian

The seventh-ranked team in the National Junior College Athletic Association's women's basketball rankings — Schoolcraft College — had some problems Wednesday. But the mark of a good team is overcoming adversity, which the Lady Ocelots did in posting a 70-46 homecourt win over Adrian's junior varsity.

SC was without Barb Krug, sidelined with the flu. "A lot of bench folks had to contribute, with our starting center out," said coach Jack Grenan. They did.

There were some shaky moments. Adrian scored the first 10 points of the second half to trim a 39-17 deficit to 11. Grenan called time out and "shook some cages," and his team responded by pushing its lead back to 20 by the 15-minute mark, stealing the ball three straight times and scoring.

Lisa DePlanche hit eight-of-12 floor shots and all four of her free throws to notch 20 points. She also had 11 rebounds and four steals. Michelle Dykinski added 14 points, Darlene Bazner had 11 and Tracy Osborne got 10.

Lori Dutrieux's 17 points was best for Adrian. Beth Oskic contributed 14.

The win boosted SC to 14-0 overall. The Lady Ocelots host Oakland CC at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Canton holds on to beat Falcons

Sulak, a 6-foot forward, was matched up against Myers, who is 6-6. Myers finished with a team-high 16 points but was held scoreless in the fourth quarter.

"We didn't back away from their size," Niemi said. "When you put a (6-6) kid on a 6-foot one, that might shake you up. We showed a lot of character tonight."

Paupore and Waldron displayed the skill. Waldron was 9-of-14 from the floor while Paupore connected on 12 of 22. In the second half, Paupore was 7-of-9 from the floor.

Farmington displayed some grit in the middle quarters, outscoring Canton 37-28. Gene Tokraks, Brian Browne and Raimi hit three consecutive baskets to give the Falcons a 28-25 lead at intermission.

The one-point loss followed a two-point setback to Westland John Glenn on Dec. 22, the last game before the holiday break. At that rate, the Falcons might be able to tie their next opponent.

Wednesday's game at Macomb. That single minute cost the Ocelots six points, a lot of momentum and — ultimately — the game, 73-61.

SC led 32-30 at the intermission after a bizarre first half, in which Macomb sped to a 23-9 lead in the first eight minutes, only to see SC rally to net 23 of the next 30 points.

Neither team led by more than four in the second half until less than six minutes remained. The Monarchs had a four-point lead after a Mike Allen three-pointer. John Moran missed for SC and was called for a foul as he scrambled for the rebound. Moran protested the call and got a technical.

Macomb's Glenn Miller sank all three free throws to put SC behind by seven, and the Monarchs got possession. Miller hit the shot, was fouled and made another free throw, and Macomb went from a one-point lead to 10 in a minute.

"We played them even the rest of the way," said SC coach Dave Bogataj.

It hardly mattered. SC dipped to 1-4 in the Eastern Conference, 5-11 overall.

Bernard McGee's 16 points topped the Ocelots. Al Hudson added 12 and eight rebounds, Ed Hudson had 10 points and Mark Koronka scored eight. Allen's 21 points topped Macomb. Miller finished with 20.

SC plays at OCC at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Helpful hints resolve workout resolutions

Dear Myrna: I am a man who really hates to exercise. Every New Year I promise myself that I will change my attitude and become physically fit. It only lasts a few months. Any helpful hints?

Sounds like you need some "New Year Exercise Motivators."

- On Jan. 1 try standing in front of your mirror without clothing. Take a good look and make a vow to get yourself in shape.
- Don't set your goals too high. If weight loss is a goal, take five pounds at a time. If muscle toning is your goal, think about starting to tone the muscles that react the fastest (abs and biceps) to exercise. The abdominals respond to exercise more quickly than any other muscle group, so this is where you get your first positive feedback. When you see results, you are encouraged to keep plugging away. Your mental attitude will play a big part here.

- Buy some workout clothes that make you feel good. If those old gym shorts make you feel dumpy, don't wear them. Putting on those old rags and telling yourself that "it will do" — won't do. If you think you don't deserve to look good, you won't. Don't punish yourself while waiting to look better. When you decide on your exercise routine, go ahead and splurge a little.

- Make a six-week commitment to yourself. It's not a long time and it is not intimidating to you. It takes at least six weeks to develop a strong pattern of behavior. You know it is a long-term lifestyle change that you are looking at. How about thinking in terms of six weeks, three to four times a week? You will see when you put forth the effort, you will be surprised by how easily you take to self-control. You may even like it.

- Set aside a certain time on your exercise days and stick to it. This will help your self-discipline. Studies show that a person will react more positively to something done regularly and consistently. If you leave your schedule up in the air, you will find many excuses to skip your workout. If working out at home, do it to a certain television program you like. If you go to a health club, find the most convenient. If it is an exercise studio, talk to the instructor and choose the proper class to go to.

- If it is "in home" exercise you want, hire a trainer to come to your home. Call your local health club or exercise studio and let them explain their methods of motivation to you. Don't just assume good quality with all trainers. Call a well-known, reputable place. Don't be afraid to ask a trainer's qualifications. Try paying in advance for your appointments so you won't be tempted to skip. No one likes to waste their money.

- After a month, stand in front of that old mirror again. Find that evidence of stronger muscles and reduced fat. At this point, you can increase your exercise program a day or two. Try four or five times a week if possible. If it is not possible, don't worry. When standing in front of that mirror, allow yourself to admire the improvements, however small they may be.

- Tell your friends and family about your exercise adventure. Talk about it. This will help you stay into it. Nobody wants their friends and family to know they have failed at something so important.

- Reward yourself constantly. Talk to yourself. It might feel strange at first, but that's only because most of us are not accustomed to saying nice things to ourselves. If you continue this self-encouragement, you will continue to exercise. All of us exercisers have acted out positive motivation at one time. Give yourself plenty of congratulations for possessing the character and courage to work out consistently.

Make that choice to shape up and take control of your life and then do the same on every successive day. Some days are easier to keep your promise of exercise than other days. Be prepared for those negative workout days and mentally push yourself. You will be happy that you did.

(Myrna Partrich, co-owner of The Workout Company of Bloomfield Township, is happy to answer any questions readers may have regarding exercises. Please send your letters to: Sports Department, Myrna Partrich, 1225 Bowers, Birmingham 48008.)

Canton young but talented

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

The demographics of the Plymouth Canton gymnastics team have changed drastically since last season.

The Chiefs were a senior-dominated team loaded with proven talent a year ago, but their leading prospects are underclassmen this year.

Therefore, coach John Cunningham must be using that word coaches hate to describe the 1989 outlook: rebuild. Right?

Wrong! Cunningham might not expect instant results due to the youthfulness of his latest squad, but he is no less optimistic than he was a year ago at this time.

Canton, which opens tonight with a home meet against Northville, lost seven seniors from a team that was 10-2, nearly beat North Farmington and won the league championship and finished 11th in the state.

FAMILIAR NAMES such as Maureen McLean, Apryl Mosakowski, Mary Jo Charron, Darcy Gignac, Katie Koch, Sharon Moran and Suzanne Hosking are no longer found on the Canton gymnastics roster.

But an infusion of new talent has softened those losses, and Cunningham expects a foursome consisting of three sophomores and a freshman to make the Chiefs competitive again.

Because of the holiday break and late start, Cunningham hasn't had an opportunity to evaluate his team thoroughly but said he has a "good feeling" about his charges.

"This has the potential to be a fantastic team," he said. "We probably won't be in January, we might be in February or it might be next year."

"The ability level we're looking at is something I haven't had since Linda Beale graduated."

gymnastics

Beale competed for Canton five years ago, earning All-America recognition as an all-around gymnast and finishing fourth on the balance beam in her senior year.

THE CHIEFS will be led by sophomore Heather Murphy, who distinguished herself amidst the veteran talent on last year's team. She was an All-American on the beam, and Canton has three others of comparable ability.

"At the end of last year, she was probably my one of my two best gymnasts," Cunningham said. "With a little more maturity this year, I expect she's going to push for school records on floor (exercise) and beam."

The top-rated newcomers are sophomore Johanna Anderson, freshman Dawn Clifford and sophomore Danielle Miro. All are in their first year of interscholastic competition but are accomplished gymnasts, Cunningham said.

All three learned the sport and have trained at the club level, and all four, including Murphy, are strong all-around gymnasts.

"Three can do handsprings on beam," Cunningham said. "Four do (full twists) on floor, and none of the ones who graduated did fulls on floor."

"We have others coming back who are good in one particular event, but these new girls give us strength in all events."

SINCE ALL FOUR have nearly their entire high school careers still ahead of them, Cunningham believes their potential is virtually unlimited.

Rocks have mix of gymnastic ability

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

Plymouth Salem gymnastics coach Kathi Kinsella says there are two kinds of gymnasts.

"There are some gymnasts who are graceful and elegant," Kinsella said, "and some who are strong and aggressive."

"I'm lucky to have a couple who are both kinds. I have some who have good training in all four events."

Yes, indeed.

The Rocks must replace five gymnasts who graduated from last year's 13-2 group, but at least six girls will compete all-around this winter, led by seniors Dana Holda and Lisa Wetseld.

That's versatility. "We're looking good," Kinsella said. "We'd like to beat Plymouth Canton and North Farmington. I have a hard-working bunch. As hard as they work, I hope they get what they deserve."

The Rocks were third in the Western Lakes Activities Association behind first-place North and Canton last year and just missed qualifying for state. Salem was told it had qualified for state at the regional meet, but a scoring error was later discovered and Ann Arbor Pioneer went instead.

THE BIGGEST graduation loss was Amy Pastori, an all-around performer who scored a season-high 8.95 once in the floor exercise. Also

gymnastics

among the casualties were all-arounders Debbie Popp and Sharon Way.

Kinsella predicts "a tiring year" for Holda, who last year did not compete all-around. Holda's best events are the vault and beam.

If Holda can improve her score on the beam, she could win some all-around competitions this winter, according to her coach.

"Holda is not very consistent right now on the beam," Kinsella said. "You can win an all-around by doing well on the beam, or you can lose it on the beam. It's an important event."

Another senior, Robin Breed, missed much of preseason practice with a broken leg, but Kinsella believes Breed will be healthy enough to produce high scores in the floor exercise.

Wetseld will be another major contributor as an all-around performer, with the rest of the points coming mainly from underclassmen.

JUNIOR JENNY Krieger is an all-around gymnast who is coming off an eight-week absence because of ligament damage in her left ankle. Sophomore Sue Farmer won't compete all-around, but Salem can count on points from her in the floor exercise and the vault.

Salem has a talented freshman group, led by Autumn Bunch, whom Kinsella said eventually "will be one of the more talented Salem gymnasts we've seen in a while."

Other freshmen include Jenny Skylakos and Aimee Wong, both of whom will compete all-around before the end of the year, Kinsella said.

Salem opens the season Wednesday at Westland John Glenn, and Kinsella doubts her troops are ready for the dual. Actually, she doubts if any area teams are quite ready for the season.

"The first meet is going to be tough," she said. "Nobody is ready for the first meet."

"You're only allowed to practice from the middle of November until Christmas break. Then you have to start up right after New Year's and right after that is the first meet."

Out of the ordinary

Looking for films of the edge of mainstream cinema. Street Scene kicks off two new features this week, designed to answer that question and more. Meet Ann Sharp, who will be reporting on what's coming to town in the way of alternative films. You'll find her reviews and a movie listing on Page 2D.

Drums, flutes and a guitar were all the Ann Arbor-based group Majji needed for their recent performance at the Community Concert Series in Detroit.

The fine art of community concerts

By Julie Brown
staff writer

Variety is easy to find at the Community Concert Series. You can find rock, jazz, blues, poetry reading, comedy and other forms of entertainment at the Paradigm Center for the Arts in Detroit.

"We are different," said Charlie Gorevitz of Oak Park, a concert organizer. "The concert series isn't for everybody."

Concerts are held in the third floor of the Paradigm Center, 1437 Randolph (third floor) in Detroit's Harmonie Park. Concerts are held every other weekend, most are held Friday nights.

Many concerts are benefits. Proceeds from one recent Saturday night were used to buy food for a Detroit soup kitchen. Other concerts have raised money for environmental and peace causes.

"It's a cross section," Gorevitz said of those who attend the concerts. "People come from all over, actually."

Those who want to do experimental performances show up; those interested in being part of an alternative scene attend.

THE EVENING starts with an open mike session, usually held from 9-10:30 p.m. The scheduled performers generally start at 10 p.m. on concert nights, said Andy Smith of Detroit, one of the organizers.

The concert series started about three years ago, said Smith, who grew up in Southfield and graduated from Southfield High School in 1986. Concerts were then held in the basement of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church near the Wayne State University campus.

The performances began as an all open mike time, with concerts put together as people showed up to play, Smith said. Groups are now scheduled to perform at different times on concert nights.

The concerts provide a forum for local artists, said Smith, who became involved in the series as a high school senior.

"We just provide a huge variety of entertainment. It's a limitless, censorship-free environment."

The series is run by a group that includes many artists.

Price is $3, payable at the door. A vegetarian kitchen operates during concerts.

"If you want to eat healthy food, that's also an alternative," Smith said.

The concerts are inexpensive and accessible to many people. They provide an alternative to bars, where the emphasis tends to be on the bottom line, Smith said.

"For us, the art and entertainment are the priority."

SMITH PUTS out a self-published magazine, "Babyfish." He did his first poetry reading when the concert series was at St. Andrew's and still reads poetry at the Paradigm Center.

More experienced performers appear at the center. The Orange Roughies have performed there and continue to do so, Smith said.

"It's also definitely there for people just getting their start," he said, adding that a performer doesn't have to be a political artist to appear.

The series is a modern forum that holds on to traditional counterculture values.

No age limits apply for the concert series; alcohol isn't served and smoking isn't allowed in the performance area. People of different ages from different backgrounds attend, Smith said.

"And every time it's different. It's always changing."

Generally, 100 to 200 people attend. Attendance varies, depending on publicity efforts and on the scheduled performers.

"People know that it's here and it's happening every other weekend. It's really the only thing like it going on in the city."

"I'd say we draw quite a bit from the suburbs," Smith said.

FERNDAL RESIDENT John Annesser has been doing the sound at the concerts for about two years.

"Plus I perform here sometimes." A friend of his told him about the concert series.

"Once you break the ice, it's nice," Annesser said. "I'm glad I broke the suburbanitis barrier."

"I'm glad to see people are more interested in seeing innovative talent." The concert series has become more sophisticated since its days at St. Andrew's, he said.

"When there's a good crowd, it's like a professional type show."

Norman Hume's band, Vogue, did its first performance at the concert series. He performed with a poet at the Dec. 3 concert.

"It allows different kinds of arts that wouldn't necessarily be given a chance at clubs," said Hume, a Detroit resident. "It's an extremely diverse crowd."

Gary Martin of Berkley, a member of Vogue, came to the Dec. 3 concert to see Hume perform.

Martin's accustomed to attending the concerts and likes "the food a lot."

"It's nothing new to me. I come downtown a lot."

'Tourist' serves as a showcase for Hurt's talent

RECENT RELEASES:

"The Accidental Tourist" (C+) (PG) 120 minutes.

"The Accidental Tourist" — travel writer Macon Leary (William Hurt) — booked passage, but the flight was delayed and delayed... The photography by John Bailey is haunting and the acting is fine. Kathleen Turner as Mrs. Leary, Geena Davis as Muriel Pritchett, an unusual dog trainer, and there's an excellent supporting cast. But Lawrence Kasdan ("The Bill & Ted Movie," "Silverado" and "Body Heat") has produced and directed a very slow character study that doesn't cover as much territory as its hero does.

Mr. and Mrs. Leary lost their son a year before the film opens and that tragedy seemingly has destroyed their marriage. One of the film's major faults is that Ms. Turner hangs out around the edges, but never really is involved in the physical and psychological action. She just gets dragged in from time to time as plot development requires. Neither her motivation nor that of Leary's publisher, Julian Hedge (Bill Pullman), and the three Leary siblings is well developed. They merely exist in their strange little behavior patterns, waiting to be called upon when Macon needs them.

Kasdan has created an idiosyncratic character study which essentially serves as showcase for Hurt's talents. While those are considerable, the film is not very cinematic. This is the sort of endeavor that works well in the literary world and I think I want to read the book by Anne Tyler upon which the film was based. But as attractive as the film is, I was bored.

SPECIAL PRESENTATION:

"Murmur of the Heart" (B) (Unrated but probably R) 116 minutes.

Film Theatre at the DIA opens its 15th season with the re-release of Louis Malle's 1971 comedy about a teenage boy, Laurent (Benoit Ferreux). Coming of age isn't easy with an essentially disinterested father, a successful gynecologist (Daniel Gelin), two older brothers that mean well, but drink too much and an overly affectionate, attentive mother, Clara (Lea Massari). Malle, best known for the recent success of "Au Revoir Les Enfants" and his earlier "Atlantic City" with Burt Lancaster and Susan Sarandon, paints rich psychological tapestries, but his shot length is too long and the film tends to drag despite Charlie Parker's musical score, excellent acting and interesting family relationships. At 7 and 9:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Jan. 13 and 14, and 1, 4 and 7 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 15, at the Detroit Institute of Arts, Woodward at Kirby.

Don't worry about true love, it takes care of itself and this is a charming comedy.

Lindy and Michael Chamberlin (Meryl Streep and Sam Neill) are camping in Australia's Northern Territory with their three children when the baby is killed by a wild dog. But police mania and public hysteria lead to Lindy's indictment and conviction for the child's murder. It doesn't matter that this story is true because the film fails to convince us that such an incredible story occurred. The police motivation in prosecuting the case and the generative force for public hysteria are poorly depicted and not at all convincing. Some Aussie accents are inaudible and camerawork leaves much to be desired. Despite good acting, the film is unpleasant with no redeeming quality, just a dippy hal-lelujah ending.

There's also a big shipment of drugs, lots of money, the shadowy Carlos, a Mexican policeman, Commandante Escalante (Raul Julia), and an unpleasant, bumbling drug enforcement officer, McGuire (J.T. Reality and fantasy don't mix well in 'Track 29'

By Anne Sharp
special writer

Director Nicholas Roeg specializes in showing people at the end of their tether. One thinks of David Bowie's spaced-out extraterrestrial in "Man Who Fell to Earth" or Art Garfunkel's deranged psychiatrist in "Bad Timing."

Screenwriter Dennis Potter also has a penchant for characters who find reality a bit too much to bear. The protagonists of his best-known works, "Pennies from Heaven" and "The Singing Detective," cope with life's discontents by retreating into their own imaginary worlds.

It's not surprising then that their collaborative effort, "Track 29," is a portrait of a woman living on the edge between fantasy and reality — and a very affecting portrait it is.

And it is a very nasty reality they have devised for their lovely, distressed heroine, Linda (Theresa Russell). Her creepy husband, Dr. Henry Henry (Christopher Lloyd), has all but abandoned her, preferring the company of his elaborate toy train set and his mistress, a nasty nurse (Sandra Bernhard, looking even more noisome than usual).

She longs to adopt a child, but can't. The fact that, at the age of 15, she bore a child out of wedlock makes her an unfit mother in the eyes of the authorities.

WITH NO one to love, no work or interests in life, Linda sits around her shadowy, eerie suburban home, drinking and slipping into a living nightmare in which a handsome young stranger, with a fetching English accent (Gary Oldman), steps into her life, announcing that he is her long lost illegitimate son, and proceeds to slowly drive her mad.

Some storytellers would make it tantalizingly unclear whether Linda's son, Martin, is real or a figment of her depressed, alcohol-clouded imagination. Potter insists he's a hallucination, but Oldman's portrayal is so seductive and lively that, like Linda, you become convinced of his reality.

He manages to combine Martin's natural craving for maternal love and a decidedly unnatural sensual desire — understandable as Russell is voluptuous — with astonishing skill.

Unfortunately, Potter and Roeg can't seem to pull off the blending of fantasy and real life required of their story. The scenes involving Lloyd and Bernhard fall flat, and there's a lot of tiresome, off-the-mark caricaturing of the vulgar, materialistic American bourgeoisie.

The film is best when it concentrates on Linda's psychic perils. When the traumatic events of her youth are revealed at the end of the film, bringing home the true nature of her repressed grief and rage over the loss of her infant son, it's evident this isn't just another messy, tricky postmodernistic art film. It has a heart.

Disappointing to learn that the Royal Oak Cinema Society, one of the finest (not to mention, coolest) film showcases in the metro area, is out of commission this winter. There's a chance, however, it may continue this spring or summer with its popular out-of-doors screening series. Good Luck, ROCS.

Studio spark puts Smithereens on top

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Spontaneity, which makes the Smithereens click onstage, suddenly has drummer Dennis Diken stopping in mid-sentence.

"Wow," said Diken suddenly. "While I'm talking to you, I'm looking out of my hotel room and there's this lake. There's this guy on one of the things with a surfboard and sail and he just wiped out. It was real cool to see."

The Smithereens have become something cool to see and hear. And that's not by accident.

The New Jersey band's "Green Thoughts" (Enigma/Capitol) album was a compilation of sketches from past encounters and experiences. The LP is the guest behind the group's current whirlwind success in the United States.

Produced by noted studio whiz Don Dixon, "Green Thoughts" captures the Smithereens at their hard rocking somewhat murky best. Yet the album wasn't one that required band members to take refuge in a monastery for a year to write.

In four weeks, about the time it takes for college student to do a book report, material for the disc was composed by singer/songwriter Pat DiNizio. The album only took 16 days to record.

But it's all part of the grand plan. The Smithereens wanted to capture that spark which has earned kudos in music circles.

"Our first couple of albums we paid for ourselves as an independent type of thing," Diken said. "In the studio, we had one eye on the clock and one eye on our instruments. That was instilled in us to get the job done quickly and efficiently."

"THE FINANCIAL aspect is not so much the case now because we belong to a record label. We have a pretty straight-ahead approach in the studio. If we don't do it in three takes, we'll put it aside and come back to it later."

The best game plan for the Smithereens in the studio is not to have one. There is to simply play the music and the way it comes is the way it comes out.

The band was formed in 1980 in New Jersey. A series of independent releases quickly turned people's heads in the music industry. "Girls About Town" was their first self-produced EP while "Beauty and Sadness" followed. "Beauty and Sadness" received a thumbs-up review in Rolling Stone (the EP was recently rereleased by Enigma).

Still unsigned, the band took to sending out demo cassettes with only their name and phone number. A few days later, Enigma Records called.

The Smithereens were then teamed with Don Dixon and the album "Especially For You" was released. Dixon also was in the studio for "Green Thoughts."

"He's a team player," Diken said. "He listens to everyone's ideas. He also likes to work quickly and doesn't waste time. He brought out the personality of the band and put it on the record."

THE PERSONALITY of the band was honed in the Big Apple. Members only lived a half-hour from Manhattan and often traveled to clubs like Max's and CBGB's to hear groups like The Dictators and The Ramones.

That raw sound produced by the aforementioned bands found its way into the Smithereens' music. Songs like "Blood and Roses," "Behind the Wall of Sleep," "In a Lonely Place" and "Time and Time Again" off the "Especially For You" LP introduced the band to the radio masses and also reintroduced a sound familiar in the 1960s.

Needless to say, the band has been influenced by a lot of people and things. Diken would agree.

"Beauty and Sadness," a rerelease of the Smithereens' 1983 four-song EP, is on Enigma Records and available at area record stores.

Spontaneity fuels the Smithereens' sound.

Rock 'n' roll has taken The Toll

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

When things are not going well on stage, a band can do a couple of things.

The "Snaggle Puss" method would be to exit, stage left. The General MacArthur solution would be to stick it out and perhaps risk having an empty beer bottle imbedded in the skull.

Brad Circone of The Toll has provided a third option. Just stop the music and began rambling about what's on your mind.

That's exactly what he did one night when boredom struck the Columbus, Ohio-based band. He halted the show in mid-song and started on one long narrative that some will say continues to this day.

"At first he turned around and said, 'Stay right there for a minute,'" said Greg Bartram, recalling the night in an empty Columbus nightclub. "We didn't know what to do. Then Rick (Silk, guitarist) started to play guitar lines following Brad. We kind've built on that."

Built on it like they've built on Manhattan. The Toll has redefined the concert experience on their own terms.

And even those are not etched in stone. For example, one show in Chicago resulted in the Circone imitating a high-wire act along the railing of the balcony in one Chicago venue. The club manager tried to coax him down. Instead, he jumped to the stage 12 feet below. He was fined $50 by the club manager.

THEN THERE was the time in East Lansing when Circone was found dangling from a pipe overhead in one nightclub. He turned around and proceeded to pelt the band with beer bottles, pitchers and ashtrays along with the rest of the audience. The Toll was expelled.

At the core of The Toll creative outbursts is an unwillingness to succumb to boredom. The audifuture. Members were allowed to pick a producer they had felt comfortable with for their latest album, "The Price of Progression."

Other perks of being on a major label include not having to eat fast food every night and added Bartram: "I don't have to look for a place for the band to stay after the show."

MEMBERS OF The Toll are careful not to let the gleam from a record deal blind them.

"People have a distorted concept of what happens when you get signed to a record deal," Circone said. "You can move at a faster pace if you want to, but we're keeping it frugal and as lean as possible."

"I think of us as an underdog," Bartram added. "When people see us for the first time, they have no idea of what we do. When we first start, we raise a few eyebrows and we like that. If you're no longer the underdog, you can lose that excitement."

With such bursts of spontaneity, The Toll has to walk the fine line of being fresh and original without alienating the audience it serves. Three songs on the album are 10 minutes in length and feature narratives ("Jonathan Toledo," "Anna-41-Box," and "Living in the Valley of Pain"). Obviously, they deviate from standard radio formats.

Yet Circone said he's careful not to detach a song from the hooks, melodies or chords that attract listeners when performing those numbers live. Also, the spontaneity of being spontaneous every night can lose its luster.

"It is a load of pressure," Circone said. "But let me ask you this, 'Do you walk into the same room the same way everyday? Every city is different. Every audience is different.'"

The Toll will perform at 10 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 14, at Saint Andrew's Hall, 431 E. Congress, Detroit. Tickets are $7.50 in advance. For more information, call 961-MELT.

REVIEWS

ON OUR BIG FAT MERRY-GO-ROUND — A House

A House is one of the current crop of fledgling Irish bands trying to fight out from under the shadow of (yawn) U2. Very little attention is being focused on the fact they are from Ireland, which is good for two reasons:

Number one, they don't have to invent a tenuous connection to the above mentioned profit-Gods of Irish music to satisfy journalists, and...

Number two, their sound has much closer ties to the likes of independent English bands like The Wedding Present or, possibly, James.

A House has its foundations firmly ensconced in the cliché-ridden guitar/drum/vocal "rock" sound. Their sound is big, macho chunky and aggressive.

This album, "On Our Big Fat Merry-Go-Round" (Sire), kicks off with the loud raucous single "Call Me Blue" which typifies singer David Couse's excitable rally-cry vocal style.

His vocals and lyrics tend to walk the line between Morrissey or Wedding Present's singer David Gedge, as evidenced by some of their song titles, "I Want to Kill Something," "Watch Out, You're Dead," and "I'll Always Be Grateful."

There are not too many who can pull this style off, but A House does relatively convincingly.

A House is upfront, aggressive and energetic. The group presents its catchy songs within its known limitations and the group revels in them. It doesn't try to be what it's not. I like that.

GUITAR SPEAK — various artists

"Unencumbered by vocals" is how this album describes itself on the back cover.

"Guitar Speak" is the brainchild of IRS Records Chairman Miles Copeland. He asked some of the biggest names in rock guitar to contribute an instrumental track to a collection. Twelve did, and this record is the result.

And it is only the beginning. "Guitar Speak, Vol. 2" is already in the works, and many of the artists are producing entire albums under the Guitar Speak moniker.

But sometimes the greatest notions fall short of expectations. The grand scale of this project makes it more disappointing to find that it is only half of a great album.

Side one is the dull half. It contains surprisingly lackluster performances by such guitar heroes as Alvin Lee, Leslie West and Ronnie Montrose. All have produced better material in their day — some of this music is more suitable for car commercials.

Former Yes and Asia guitarist Steve Howe contributes the side's closing song, "Sharp Attack." Howe plays like a parody of his former self, forcing pretentious symphonic tempo and tonal changes where they don't belong.

Side two is a different story. It opens with the album's peak, "Sphinx," by Phil Manzanera, late of Roxy Music. The tone of the tune is set with a spacious synth intro, and then Manzanera tears into an emotionally compelling solo.

Other stellar sounds on the side are made by Rick Derringer, Steve Hunter and British guitar legend Hank Marvin, who was an early influence on such luminaries as Eric Clapton and Jeff Beck. The album ends with a superb, up-tempo jam from ex-Doors guitarist Robby Krieger.

IRS' "Guitar Speak" series is a tremendous undertaking and deserves support. "Vol. 1" is a collection that guitar aficionados should have. The rest of you, only buy side two.

STRIP MUSIC FOR THE SUBURBS — Bootsey X and the Lovemasters

The label reads "Made in Detroit" and that's no lie. Bootsey X, our resident rock'n'roll punster, is really a Motor City music man at heart.

"Strip Music for the Suburbs" (Tremor) is certainly a reflection of that.

But Bootsey doesn't make the mistake of totally sounding like a regurgitation of the MC-5 or Iggy and the Stooges. Sure, those elements can be found in his music, but so can Motown, James Brown and a few other influences as well.

The end result is a very up-tempo, six-song cassette sprinkled heavily with humor. Bootsey X not only gets the feet moving, but gets you to chuckle as well. Mr. X is one of the few local artists to have figured out that its only rock'n'roll, a platform from which to entertain and not educate or pontificate.

That's not to say his music is not the music of these times. The highly charged "I Wanna Be Rich" undoubtedly qualifies for consideration as the anthem for yuppies. Proclaims Bootsey, "This American dream, this American way/I'm going to step on anybody who gets in my way."

Enough social commentary. You want love, right? Bootsey's views on the subject are clearly expressed on the saxophone-laced "Pusherman of Love." The guitar licks on this number will turn your head alone along with the sometimes saucy lyrics.

"Sometimes I think I'm the savior from above," Bootsey sings. "Girls don't call the doctor, call the Pusherman of Love."

Exalted status is perhaps a bit overdoing it, but Bootsey X is underrated and unsung in the Detroit music scene. The bottom line is that he is fun to listen to. This cassette is a document of that.

phrey Bogart-Lauren Bacall movies, you have already seen this island in the movie "Key Largo," and you will recognize the boat used in "African Queen" — it's on display in front of the Holiday Inn.

Many movies have been made on the Keys — "PT-109," the story of John F. Kennedy's war years, and the James Bond movie "License Renewed." They even made a Russian movie there last year.

There are one or two good sand beaches in the Keys, notably at Bahia Honda State Recreation Area, but the Keys aren't known for their beaches. What pleasures travelers find here is often on or under the sea.

The sea supports a hundred little coastal resorts, restaurants, bars, marinas and other facilities found within a few hundred yards of the Overseas Highway. Beyond that, on either side, you are in the sea.

Islamorada, still in the Upper Keys, hosts several of the most popular restaurants, especially the Green Turtle, Mile Marker 88 and the Cheeca Lodge, a great old hunting lodge that is being remodeled and will reopen in April.

The Theater of the Sea is one of several places where you can enjoy sea life, and for an extra $50 you can swim with dolphins. Dolphins Plus lets you do that on Key Largo for $40, but they are primarily interested in working with handicapped children.

Forty bucks also buys you a dolphin swim south at Hawk's Cay Resort in Marathon. The most interesting visit may be to the Dolphin Research Center on Grassy Key near Marathon, where they study dolphins.

You can also take a boat from Islamorada to either Indian Key, a state historic site, or Lignumvitae Key, a virginal tropical forest.

THE TOWN of Marathon, in the Middle Keys, is dominated by Hawks Cay Resort and by the famous Seven Mile Bridge that connects it to Sunshine Key on the south end.

You can rent dive boats anywhere down the whiplash of islands or in Key West. Key Westers have been living from the sea for centuries, ever since the first pirates lured Spanish galleons to a watery grave on the reefs.

Piracy became legal in the early 19th century, when any sea captain who owned a house in Key West became a licensed salvager, a "wrecker," eligible to claim shipwrecked goods as his own.

There were three shipwrecks a week in those days, so it was a good business for Conchs, pronounced "konks" as Key Westers are called — they're named after the famous Conch shell.

The Conchs built a New England style town with Bahamian architecture and an island lifestyle that makes this funky town more like a Caribbean island than a part of the American mainland.

The best way to get an overview is to take either the Conch Tour Train or the Old Town Trolley. Both will show you the restored Conch houses of Old Town, now home to private families, guest houses, restaurants and shops, as well as the highlights of this two-by-four-mile island.

AT DAY'S end, when the touring is done, people begin to drift down Duval Street. They are "going to sunset." A popular first stop is the open air bar atop the Pier House, but everyone eventually gathers around the street theater that goes on every night at Mallory Square Pier.

The town of Marathon, in the Middle Keys, is dominated by Hawks Cay Resort and by the famous Seven Mile Bridge that connects it to Sunshine Key on the south end.

The Cookie Lady is there on her bicycle, selling "warm and chewy brownies and little key lime pies." There's a contortionist, a fire-eater, the mime with the white face, several jugglers and a performer whose finale is walking the tightrope as the sun hits the sea.

The biggest applause is for the sun itself, especially when it delivers a really fine sunset! You've never clapped for the sun before? Then you've never been in Key West.

Trying out

So you think you have what it takes to be an entertainer. Want to test that theory?

Cedar Point amusement park will be holding auditions in Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti Monday, Jan. 16, and Wednesday, Jan. 18, respectively to find some of the more than 100 singers, musicians and technicians needed to entertain some 3 million guests this summer.

Cedar Point presents live entertainment at five theaters, featuring a variety of music styles, including Dixieland, jazz, rock and pop. Comedy bands also play on the midway daily and the Berenstain Bears are featured in a life-size recreation of their storybook home.

The Jan. 16 auditions will be in the Anderson Room of the Michigan Union at the University of Michigan. Registration will be 2:30-5:30 p.m. The Jan. 18 auditions will be held in Eastern Michigan University's McKenny Union, with registration 2:30-4:30 p.m.

Auditions will be held for singers and musicians and will be limited to two minutes. Applicants must be 18 years of age by May 1989 and should bring a single page, typed resume.

Singers must prepare two songs, one up-tempo and one slow ballad. An accompanist will be provided, if needed, but all sheet music must be in the correct key. No pre-recorded music will be permitted in place of an accompanist.

A dance audition may be requested, and singers who specialize in dance should prepare a short combination to a pre-recorded cassette.

Musicians must audition individually — no bands, quartets, duos or the like. They should prepare two selections of contrasting styles, avoiding highly progressive jazz and hard rock. Musicians who can play more than one instrument should be prepared to demonstrate it at the audition. Sight reading may be requested.

Besides entertainers, approximately 20 positions are available for experienced sound and light technicians and projectionists. Resumes should include the names and telephone numbers of three references. Interviews will be held at the start of registration at each of the audition sites.

Cedar Point will be open daily May 8 through Labor Day Sept. 4, plus Bonus Weekends Sept. 9-10, 17, 23-24 and Sept. 30-Oct. 1.

Sharing lands him with 3 top literary works

By LaVerne Griffin
special writer

Paul Pearsall has enjoyed writing since his high school days. But, he admits, he had no idea his first book would be so successful that it would receive book of the year honors in England for its contributions to contemporary medicine.

After all, he'd only set out to share with others what he had learned from his clinical work.

Pearsall is the author of three best selling books, "Super Immunity," his first literary endeavor, "Super Marital Sex," which landed him a spot on the "Oprah Winfrey Show," and his latest release, "Super Joy," an immediate best seller.

Pearsall has a reason for using super in his titles. The emphasis isn't on better or stronger.

"I don't mean better or stronger; I mean to transcend or go beyond," he said. "I'm concerned people who may want to read my books might not because they think super means extraordinary."

"The intent of my three books is not so much how-to-do-it books, but maybe more how-not-to-do-it books."

Pearsall, 46, lives part time in Franklin and part time in Maui, Hawaii, with his wife of 23 years, Celeste, and their two sons, Rodger, 17, and Scott, 16.

People often think of Pearsall as a mystery man. He isn't seen at many social functions.

"I'm a family person; I spend all of my time with my family," he said.

Pearsall credits his parents for who and what he is today. They were less focused on what he would do as a profession. More emphasis was placed on what type of person he would be — good, kind and gentle.

"Thank god for my parents," he said. "I always knew that I wanted to do something that would help and teach. I'm accomplishing that through my books."

Pearsall learned early in his childhood to celebrate life. A sixth grade teacher at McDonald School in Dearborn had a great impact on him, he said.

"Mr. Wescott would talk about what I'd call super-joy people today," he said. "We studied the heroes. We'd sing every morning and after lunch. We'd sing and laugh all day."

"He made me understand the importance of learning. I loved his class. The school day was too short."

As Pearsall sees it, he was a good boy as child, "so good it was pathetic." He worked hard for his family and drew satisfaction from seeing the smiles on his parents' faces. He also enjoyed making them proud of his academic successes, he said.

There was a close family and his father's death 15 years ago was the most eventful thing in Pearsall's life.

"I realized how fleeting life is and every moment we fail to celebrate is a waste," he said. "The arguments, the bickering, the hassles, the fighting and some of the stuff I saw when I ran the PDL (Problems of Daily Living) Clinic, it's a waste of precious time.

Paul Pearsall celebrates life

"WE DON'T take time to celebrate the important things in life anymore."

Pearsall graduated from Fordson High School and earned his undergraduate degree from the University of Michigan at the age of 20. He tackled on a doctoral degree in education and clinical psychology from Wayne State University and had started the Problems of Daily Living Clinic at Sinai Hospital by age 26.

His commitment and dedication to excellence displayed during his childhood have continued throughout his adult life.

Pearsall isn't resting on his laurels after writing three best sellers. His future plans include a lecture series and Edu-Concert, a program that would combine his lectures with the music of the Four Tops.

Through Edu-Concert, Pearsall can spread the message of "Super Joy" to the sounds of the Four Tops, while raising money for charity, he said.

And as Pearsall sees it, he will continue to be successful because success to him means to love other people and be loved by them.

'Super Joy' celebrates life

By LaVerne Griffin
special writer

Every day, there should be an emotional celebration. We are so concerned and meditative about what life means that we forget to enjoy and celebrate the intensity of just being alive."

So says Paul Pearsall, author of the best selling book, "Super Joy" (Doubleday).

Most health care professionals study people who are sick and the effect the illnesses have on their lives. Pearsall's book, however, looks at health and daily life adjustments from a different perspective.

It studies people who are hardly ever sick. It explores how these super well, super healthy people think, behave, run their lives and deal with crisis. From their lessons, we learn how they approach life.

"It fascinated me that some people have a great deal of trouble in their lives and they seem enhanced by it," he said. "I interviewed a woman who was a survivor of the Holocaust and in spite of the most unimaginable horror that human beings have gone through, she wasn't sick and seemed to use that experience to strengthen her very spirit."

"I FOUND it interesting that some people succumb to a cold, are almost debilitated by it for weeks, whereas some people seem to flourish during a crisis."

Pearsall stresses throughout his book that the key to "Super Joy" is the celebration of life and living. He interviewed more than 300 people on their death beds and found that when asked if they had any regrets, the almost universal answer was that they would have taken more risks. They would have opted for a cheaper car, smaller house, less work and more time with their loved ones.

Pearsall's book suggests that being normal is dangerous to your health. cumbing to the addiction of stress, and society says it's OK."

"We're always told to be well adjusted, but adjusted to what?" he said. "The mood, the morale, the pace... what I'm suggesting is the things we fit into today's world by definition makes us sick."

"We are addicted to being efficient oriented. Let's get it done faster, let's do it better. We don't take the time to see the celebration. We are so used to stress that when we go home or on vacation we get depressed."

"I CALL it the sad cycle. How hard you work during the day, how many things you accomplish, people applaud that. We reward the suc-

"Super Joy" appeals to the reader, whether he or she is 18 or 88, to view each day as the best time of their lives. Never lead your life saying later. Later may never come.

"I say in 'Super Joy' that if you should die with the music left in your soul, never having sung your song, it will be a very tragic event," Pearsall said.

Pearsall will be lecturing all over the world in the coming months, but he will be following his own advice. He will also be spending time at his home in Maui, Hawaii.

His new book, "Family Loving: The Miracle of Us," will be in book stores next year.

Off the beaten track

Film buffs track down alternative theaters

By Brian Lysaght
staff writer

Here's an acronym for you:
PWAUTRS.

People Who Are Willing to Read Subtitles.

Subtitles, in this case film subtitles, refer to the wording that appears along the bottom of a frame to interpret dialogue, usually in foreign films.

PWAUTRSs can be seen at the Detroit Film Theatre, Tele-Arts Theatre, Ann Arbor film co-operatives, the Royal Oak Cinema Society, the Redford Theatre and some others — the Detroit area's alternative film houses and film groups. They show foreign, cult, classic and independently produced films — films beyond the typical Hollywood fare.

These theaters are off-beat if not off the beaten track, a haven for film buffs and even casual fans of film.

But are PWAUTRSs becoming more scarce?

Maybe, unfortunately, but there is still plenty of alternative film fare.

This is the era of the mushrooming multiplex, with its $5 tickets, 8, 9, 10 or more screens per building, and endless offerings of mainstream films.

This is also the era of the video cassette. The neighborhood video rental store has replaced the neighborhood movie theater.

THESE TRENDS may be causing some alternative movie theaters to struggle, but they struggle on regardless. There is still plenty of alternative film fare around town.

This was not always true. Several Detroit art film houses shut down in the 1960s and early 1970s, but for other reasons. The Coronet, The Gem, The Variety and The Surf went belly up. The Studio theaters became defunct.

The Detroit Film Theatre was established at the Detroit Institute of Arts in 1973 with seed money from the National Endowment for the Arts.

DFT started because specialized, or art, films "were not getting any exposure at all locally. They weren't being shown in commercial theaters in the Detroit area," said DIA film curator Elliot Wilhelm.

"We believe that the marketplace

Manager Carl Allison shows off the projection room of the Tele-Arts Theatre on Woodward in Detroit, the area's newest art film house.

ART EMANUELE/staff photographer shouldn't be the only place that determines what films should be shown," said Wilhelm, who learned about movies at the old Detroit art film houses.

The DFT has been paying for itself since the beginning, said Wilhelm. Last year was particularly bountiful for both the DFT and specialized films, he said. Highly acclaimed films like "Wings of Desire" and "Au Revoir Les Enfants" helped push up average attendance to 1,000 per night, an increase from 1987, he said.

But things could be better. Several Ann Arbor film co-operatives have struggled in recent years.

The Cinema Guild, founded in 1950, has limited its movies to Friday and Saturday nights because Sunday and Thursdays have become too risky, said Guild president Harry Todd.

"I'M SURE we're going to survive, but everybody has been scaling back," he said.

The Guild and two other co-ops, all non-profit, share headquarters in a U-M building and screen their films in university auditoriums but aren't university supported.

The Michigan Theatre, recently restored and now supported by the Michigan Theatre Foundation, is the only alternative Ann Arbor film house showing films week days.

Todd reckoned the large Michigan Theatre program had cut into the Guild's off-campus market. So too has mainstream theater expansion in the area, and probably the home video rentals, he said. For example, he said he doesn't see many families with children at Guild films anymore.

"It's a helluva lot easier to rent a movie and watch it at home than to take two or three kids out to see it."

To serious film viewers, the theater screen is the proper place for films.

"First run films are still in theaters first. Some people don't want to wait for . . . a film to get on video cassette," said Carl Allison, manager of the Tele-Arts Theatre, the area's newest specialized film theaters.

Still, Allison said the home video market "hurts and that's why classic films don't make it."

An exception may be the Redford Theatre, an old-style movie house that shows only old films. The Royal Oak Cinema Society often shows older foreign and classic films.

THE TELE-ARTS opened April 8 in a refurbished theater on Woodward Avenue in Detroit. Allison said business is increasing.

"We knew we wouldn't make money right away," although crowds are good enough "to get us excited," he said.

Allison said he sees audiences getting larger for specialty films, citing "My Life As A Dog," a Swedish film the Tele-Arts showed last year.

Where to find the alternative films

There's plenty of places to see alternative films. And they're not concentrated in one specific area. Just take a look at these:

ANN ARBOR — Good films show here nightly, between the three major campus groups, Cinema Guild, Cinema Two and Ann Arbor Film Co-op, and the Michigan Theatre, which shows two films per night in the refurbished building.

There is the annual 8mm Film Festival, Tournee of Animation and a variety of other special film events through the year.

A free, monthly entertainment guide, called "Current," has an all-inclusive listing of screenings. Otherwise, call the recorded schedules of the Guild (994-0027), Cinema Two (665-4626), Ann Arbor Film Co-op (769-7787) or The Michigan Theatre (668-8397).

Tickets are $2.50 to $3.50.

DETROIT FILM THEATRE — The DFT celebrates its 15th anniversary with a festival format, showing films that have made a cinematic splash, if you will, at the world film festivals.

The season opened with "Murmur of the Heart" a 1971 Louis Malle film that is showing again this weekend, and includes two Detroit premieres, "Pelle the Conqueror" from Denmark, and "Women on Verge of a Nervous Breakdown" from Spain.

The Detroit Institute of Arts has been showing specialized and avant-garde films for 50 years in its ornate auditorium.

"Film is art and it must be treated that way by someone," said DIA film curator Elliot Wilhelm.

The DIA also has a program called Afternoon Film Theatre, which screens one film Tuesday through Sundays. Each AFT season explores a cinema theme, most recently "Films of the Weimar Republic."

The DIA is at 4829 Woodward. Most tickets are $3. Call 832-7676.

MAPLE THEATRE — The Maple shows quality art films rather than cult, bizarre or underground films, said manager Maryjo Champlin.

"We're classical music rather than New Wave," Champlin said. The Maple also has something of a lock on the art film market in the area. It shows films daily on three screens and is the only chain-owned art film house in the Detroit area. AMC, which bought the theater just over two years ago, has one other art film house, in Texas, she said.

A corporate office in New Jersey decides which films to screen, although the theater also responds to requests from customers, she said.

The audience is probably similar to the DFT's, said Champlin.

"It's really an audience interested in quality films," she said.

Maple is at Maple and Telegraph roads, phone 855-9090.

REDFORD THEATRE — In 1974, the Motor City Theatre Organ Society bought this west side theater, which was built in 1927.

The emphasis is on fun and nostalgia here. Tickets are $2, and shows are preceded by a society member's half hour recital on the house organ, a Barton, three-manual, 10-rank.

The society was founded to save such instruments, which in the 1920s were installed in theaters en masse as a cheaper version of the orchestra. But with the arrival of talkies, the theater organ became obsolete.

The Redford screens films every two weeks, Friday and Saturday nights. The society has a selection committee to pick the films to screen, usually older movies, often musicals. Last month's selection included "Goodbye Mr. Chips" (the 1969 version starring Peter O'Toole) and "Happy Landings" (1939 with Sonja Henie, Don Ameche, Cesar Romero and Ethel Merman).

"Let's not call them old films. Let's call 'em classics," said Society president Robert Duerr.

"It's nostalgia — that's what brings them."

It may also be economics.

"Where can you take a date for under $10 these days?" Duerr asked. Redford Theatre is at 17360 Lahser, just north of Grand River. Call 537-2560.

TELE-ARTS THEATRE — The Tele-Arts dates back to the 1940s, the newsreel days. It reopened this spring showing alternative films.

Manager and part-owner Carl Allison is putting great energy into guiding the theater to survival. He needs to draw suburbanites and urbanites, and is hoping the Fox Theatre and the People Mover, both nearby, will help.

He hopes free parking, promotions like a recent live version of "The Dating Game" and real butter on the popcorn will help.

Allison gave up his job as a financial planner to concentrate on the theater. A casual film fan originally, he said he continues to learn about movies.

Films, including some Detroit premieres, are shown Wednesdays through Sundays, but Allison said he is not interested in competing with the DFT, located further north on Woodward.

Tele-Arts has a nice balcony. It's at 1540 Woodward, near Grand Circus Park. Call 963-8960.

OTHER FILM film houses include the Royal Oak Film Society, which has suspended its film showings this winter, but had shown a variety of films, often classic and cult films, each week at the Studio on Washington, 621 S. Washington, or Oakland Community College auditorium, at Lincoln and Washington. Phone 541-0889.

Windsor has the Park Theatre, 804 Erie St. E. (at Marentette). Films are shown Wednesday through Sunday. Cost is $4 Canadian. Phone (519)971-9983 for information.

Better to set goals

Q. My friends make New Year's resolutions and try to convince me to do the same. This seems like a waste because they never follow through with theirs. Do you think resolutions are important?

A. For generations the New Year has provided a logical time for people to start anew — to rethink their good intentions. To me, New Year's resolutions hold a negative connotation. I've also seen too many people resolve (once again) to improve self-discipline in the form of giving up something — to quit smoking or lose weight, for instance — but without a plan these resolutions quickly fall by the wayside.

In recent years Goal Setting has provided a more positive approach. According to my dictionary, a resolution is a "determination of action," while a goal is "an end that one strives to attain." While this is a fine distinction, there is a difference. A goal is merely a dream set within a timeframe. Since working toward your dreams is so satisfying, self-discipline will often follow naturally as a result of renewed vigor and dissolved anxieties.

Without goals, too many people tend to float through life without ever realizing their potential. They have "meant to" go back to school, write a book or take time for close personal relationships, but these things have never actually happened. Suddenly they realize the years have slipped by, and they have achieved little in the way of personal satisfaction. While others around them have progressed, they haven't. Perhaps they have lived up to the expectations of others but ended up with an empty feeling.

The secret of success is to organize your activities around your goals. If you don't know what you want in life, how do you know what to do next? It is imperative that you have a plan of action and let your brain guide you, rather than just following your nose. Here's how:

1. Write down all the things you would like to achieve.
2. Prioritize — decide which few are most important.
3. List the activities necessary to achieve those goals.
4. Set out a timeframe to accomplish them — then get started.

Tips for growing healthy house plants

By Earl Aronson
special writer

Victims of modern living — and rarely seen anymore — are a group of old-time house plants known nostalgically as "grandmother's plants." The group includes such favorites as Patient Lucy and Marguerite, or Boston Daisy.

There was a time when plants thrived in the higher humidity of houses of bygone days. One contributing factor was the tea kettle grandma had simmering on the kitchen stove. Steam from the kettle kept the air moist.

Most homes today are much drier. And there isn't always the 10- to 15-degree drop in temperature from day to night that most plants are accustomed to under natural conditions, and still prefer.

While many plants are adaptable to modern living, dry air and low humidity are major drawbacks to indoor gardening.

HOWEVER, YOU don't have to keep a tea kettle whistling. Air conditioning devices help solve humidity problems for plants as well as for people.

Water-filled trays set atop radiators help raise humidity. So do evaporating pans connected with heating systems. Plants on saucers placed atop pebbles in trays of water receive moisture.

Occasionally syringing plant foliage with clear, warm water also helps, while ridding dust and dirt and reducing insect infestation. Do this in the morning so the foliage will dry faster.

Many house plants offered by florists today will do well under most conditions, given reasonable care, and will tolerate high temperatures, low light intensity and dry air.

One is sansevieria, properly called the "cast iron" plant.

PHILODENDRON, of which there are many varieties, both large and small-leaved, is popular. Colorful cyclamen likes the air warm and fairly dry and isn't fussy about light.

Cactuses, of which there are many varieties, are good for a sunny, warm window. Geraniums also are good for bright, sunny spots, blooming through winter from plants started in summer or before.

African violets will tolerate even day and night temperatures; they want strong light, but not strong sunshine. They like winter sun, but at any indication of foliage burning, move them to an east or west window. They also can grow in north windows that get some light in summer.

Of course, plants differ in their demand for light. For example:

Plants preferring full sunlight or south windows include azaleas, be-leprone or shrimp plant, cactus, calceolaria, amaryllis, cineraria, tulip and other bulbs, gardenia, geranium and kalanchoe.

SETTLING FOR PARTIAL sunlight or east and west windows are asparagus fern, semperflorens types of begonia, coleus, cyclamen, dracaena, fuchsia, primrose, tolmela and vinca.

Preferring no sunlight, or north windows, are rex and tuberous begonias, erassula, English ivy, ferns and palms, gloxinia, peperomia, philodendron, sansevieria, sedum, sem-pervivum and wandering Jew.

Plants in the latter group will generally succeed in partial sunlight in winter, when light intensity is relatively low. However, they can be seriously damaged by strong sunlight in spring and summer.

Watering is perhaps the most important factor in successful house plant care. Generally, soil should be moist, but not soggy. Moisture requirements are influenced by many things, from the type of pot to temperature. Generally, plants don't grow as vigorously in winter, so less food and water are required. Rest periods also vary among plants.

Apply water that is at or near room temperature. Cold water can suppress root growth or cause damage, particularly to African violets and poinsettias. Top watering keeps nutrients in the soil where they belong, better regulates soil air content, and is the natural way for plants to receive moisture.

Don't splash foliage. Watering from below will pull soluble salts to the soil surface. Keep plants out of drafts.

Wicker is showing up in more and more living rooms. Here it is complemented with carpeting that survives kids. Is that possible? Yes, if it manufactured properly. A free booklet, "Understanding Carpet Quality" explains what to look for when shopping and how to be sure of getting good on-the-floor performance. For a copy, call 1-800-233-3823.

Wicker makes a comeback

Wicker has made a comeback, moving off the porch and into the living room, bedroom and family room of the modern home and apartment.

Collectors of fancy Victorian, crisp Arts and Crafts, colorful Art Deco or carved golden oak furniture are discovering, according to an article in a recent issue of Country Living, that wicker furniture has something to add to each of their collections.

The term "wicker" is used to refer to several different types of materials, including willow, natural rush, fiber rush, rattan cane, rattan reed, sea grass and Danish cord.

Natural rush is most often found on authentic antique chair seats. It has been traced back to the Nile region as early as 4000 B.C. and is highly valued, even in worn condition, on Early American antiques.

FIBER OR paper rush is an early 20th century innovation, with machine-twisted paper strands intended to imitate natural rush. The paper is often produced with a stiff wire core for added strength.

Hand-woven rattan cane chair seats first appeared in China several centuries ago. But since the 1870s, rattan cane has also been available in machine-woven rolls and continues to be used as a wrapping on wicker furniture.

Rattan reed, extracted from the solid center of the rattan palm, is used for various styles of furniture, baskets and accessories.

Sea grass (Hong Kong grass) and Danish cord resemble fine twisted rope and are used in modern furniture to achieve the effect of natural rush at a fraction of the cost.

Neither material is considered appropriate for antiques that would have originally had natural rush seats.

UNLIKE WOOD, many wicker furniture problems can be disguised under a fresh coat of paint. Among the areas to check:

Finish: If the paint is flaking, the piece was probably used outdoors, where rain had a chance to weaken the wrapping and framework.

Framework: Is it made of hardwood such as oak or ash, metal or rattan reed? Rattan reed is the weakest and most apt to break under stress. Metal indicates a piece made after 1920. Hardwood is most desirable.

condo queries

Robert M. Melsner

Q. Our board is concerned about the radon gas problem. I noted a question in your column several months ago regarding the responsibility of the board in that regard. Our board feels that it is a co-owner problem and doesn't seem to want to do anything about it. I am simply fearful of the consequences of inaction. What can I do?

A. As in the case of any other inaction on the part of the board, the first step which should be taken by an interested co-owner is to advise the board in writing, along with the managing agent of the association, if any, of your concerns regarding the operation of the association.

There is some ambiguity as to who is responsible for the radon gas problem in terms of monitoring and/or correcting any unhealthy condition. You should at least ask the board for clarification as to whose responsibility it is to ensure that radon gas does not pose a health hazard at your condominium. You should also demand a legal opinion from the association's attorney advising it of whose responsibility it is to make whatever repairs are necessary to ensure against any radon health problem.

Failing same, you should consult an attorney regarding your legal rights against the association.

Q. We signed a purchase agreement and were ready to close and we discovered that there were serious cracks in the basement which had been hidden by the seller. We refused to close and the seller's attorney is now threatening to sue us. We obtained a house inspection shortly before closing and determined that there were serious construction problems regarding the foundation of the home. What can we do?

A. If you can establish that these defects were known or should have been known by the seller, you have an adequate defense to any claim for specific performance regarding your obligations to close on the home and/or money damages.

On the other hand, you may have a problem in that you did not reserve the right to inspect the premises prior to the time that the purchase agreement became binding. You may also have a proof problem, of course, in regard to establishing the knowledge of a seller regarding the defects which you have now discovered, even though they are prior to closing.

I would consult with a real estate lawyer who could then intercede in your behalf with respect to the seller and/or his attorney to protect your legal rights.

Who says lake living's just fun in the summer?

If you think saving money's fun, you'll love living free at Schooner Cove for 30 days. Plus, you'll love the 365-day pleasures of living on Ford Lake. In winter, the cross-country skiing, snowmobiling, snowman-building, ice-skating and ice-boating are tops. (So is the indoor fun of watching the snow fall through your balcony window.) You'll especially enjoy the totally new interiors from appliances to cabinets to designer decor. So your days will be pleasant, inside or outside. See all that these free contemporary 1 and 2-bedroom apartments can offer you. Now.
