Group eyes alternatives to landfills

By Doug Funke staff writer

A five-person committee has been appointed by the Plymouth Township Board to study alternatives to how trash is disposed in the township.

"We have to reduce the amount of stuff going into landfills," said Supervisor Maurice Breen. "That's what it's all about.

"The county has a program coming through. It's going to mean we have to change our ways about solid waste disposal. There's more than one way to do it. We need community input," Breen said.

Currently, township residents set out trash in front of their houses for weekly collection. Waste is mixed. Separation like glass in one bag, cans in another and paper in yet another isn't now required of home-

A solid waste disposal plan prepared by the county calls for a 75 percent reduction in waste materials dumped into landfills by 1992, Breen

Serious crime last year decreased 20 percent in Plymouth Township and 13 percent in the city of Plymouth.

That's the good news.

The bad news is that crime still exists and it could happen to you.

"The key to crime prevention is to deny the criminal the opportunity," said Michael Gardner, commander of the city police.

That doesn't necessarily take a lot of money, police officials say. A willingness to get involved and a little time, yes.

"If you see something suspicious, report it," said Carl Berry, police chief in the township. "Call it in. We have the ability to check it

Don't worry if a suspicious incident isn't actually criminal in nature, police say. Better to be safe than sorry

And best to report a suspicious incident immediately, police say, because they can be on the scene in a matter of minutes.

COMMON SENSE, for one reason or another, isn't always so common when it comes to thwarting theft, the most reported crime in the community, police statistics indicate.

"People don't perceive the threat," Gardner said. "Most thefts that occur in this community are committed by people who live in the community.

But sometimes, property owners make it easy for thieves, he said.

"Make sure the kids do put the bicycles away in the evening," Gardner said. "Make sure you do lock the doors of the house when you leave."

Believe it or not, police say, simple crime prevention measures still escape some people, including:

• Get your car off the street. Park it in the driveway, near the house, or better yet, in the garage. Get in the habit of locking cars, even at home.

· Close the garage door at night.

· Leave the porch light on at night.

Local attorney, bartender get spots on 'Fortune'

Carol Levitte of Plymouth Township and Carol Matuszewski have defied the Andy Warhol Principle. You know, the one about each of us being famous for 15 minutes.

Levitte and Matuszewski were celebrities for 30 minutes. Both won cash on "Wheel of Fortune" game shows filmed a few months apart in Matuszewski, who tends bar at Bennigans in Plymouth Township, solved two puzzles and won $1,750. The show she was in aired Dec. 13.

Levitte's hello to Hollywood was filmed earlier this month and will be broadcast at 7 p.m. Monday, Feb. 20, on Channel 4. Levitte won $8,700 and made it to the bonus round, where she went for the "Exotic Dream," a $58,000 Lambourghini. The puzzle stumped Levitte. She is anxious to see whether anyone watching Feb. 20 can solve it.

LEVITTE, A Plymouth attorney, had heard that another area woman was on the show recently, and for weeks was trying to find her. All Levitte knew was that she worked as a local bartender.

Smoking blamed in apartment fire

Careless smoking apparently re-sulted in a fire Saturday morning at the Hillcrest Club Apartments on Risman, according to Larry Groth, Plymouth Township fire

No one was in the unit where the fire broke out when firefighters arrived at about 11:30 a.m. Groth said. The fire started in a couch, spread across the floor and up the walls, he said. Cigarette butts were found in the area.

The fire appeared to onlookers much worse than it actually was, Groth said. Firefighters remained on the scene for a couple of hours.

Some smoke alarms were sounding in the building when the fire broke out, Groth said.

Investigators still haven't pinpointed the cause of a fire that started in an attached garage then spread to a house on Elmhurst Jan. 9, Groth said.

"We're not calling it arson," he said, "We don't have a cause. We have sent some samples to the crime lab to check out."

Structural and property damage was estimated at $65,000, Groth

No one was home when firefighters arrived. The fire was reported at 12:19 p.m. The blaze was contained in about a half hour but firefighters stayed on site about Again, no one was injured, Groth said.

Although the Pride '89 campaign has made a difference in making the hallways less cluttered there's still signs, like this chili bowl, that some people haven't gotten the message.

The Beach Boys are helping out with the trash problem at Plymouth Salem High School.

Their old hit, "Be True to Your School," opens and closes an eightminute video about litter in the Salem cafeteria

'The idea for 'Salem Pride' was generated from the teachers out there," said Richard Egli, administrative assistant for community relations for Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

"The teachers were real concerned because it was pretty trashy out there after the lunch hour.

So far, response has been good. "Teachers have been volunteering to do lunch duty and to be more visible in the hallways. I would think everybody would say the campaign has made a noticeable difference," she said.

Wayne County should seek help from Lansing, if necessary, to obtain more money for sheriff's department road patrols, Sheriff Robert Ficano said last week.

Saying department financing is reaching a crisis point, Ficano called on county commissioners to endorse a plan that would alter the way drunken driving court costs are distributed.

"RIGHT NOW, when a ticket is issued, officers have a choice: whether it should be issued under a state or local ordinance. Most often, they check local so the money goes locally," Ficano said Thursday. "We'd like money to come to the county." Ficano said money was needed for new department cars and vans, as well as to add road patrol deputies. The proposal would also include parking tickets issued at Metro Airport. It would only affect tickets issued by sheriff's deputies assigned to road and airport patrol duties. It wouldn't involve tickets issued by city or township departments.

Though sheriff's department road patrols generally aren't conducted in western Wayne County, deputies issue tickets along Hines Drive in Plymouth Township, Livonia and

'We're helping everybody, and yet we haven't been able to benefit financially."

-Sheriff Robert Ficano

Drunken driving is a misdemeanor. Those found guilty, or who plead guilty, can face fines and court costs totaling as much as $500, court sources said.

Distribution of penalties, however, is complex. Fines generally account for half the total penalty. The rest involves court costs, including cost for processing cases. Additional $5 penalties may also be added. These penalties are used to provide police training and to bolster the state's general fund.

Ficano's proposal involves court costs. These costs are normally returned to the community in which the ticket was issued. Instead, this money would go to the county to, among other things, help finance sheriff's road and park patrols.

"WE'RE HELPING everybody, and yet we haven't been able to benefit financially," Ficano said.

The proposal could add as much as $500,000 to the sheriff's department budget, Ficano said.

There are currently five road patrol deputies. Though county commissioners originally authorized as many as 22 deputies under the new county budget, they scaled that fig-ure back in a compromise with county Executive Edward McNamara.

The road patrol provides back-up police duties in Ecorse, Hamtramck, Highland Park, Inkster and River Rouge.

The sheriff's department needs more than $300,000 to replace vans used to transport prisoners to state prisons, Ficano said.

The sheriff encouraged county commissioners to press legislators for changes in state law allowing the county to receive court costs.

He added, however, that the county may already be able to do so. 'There's some question over whether Wayne County already has this right as a charter county," Ficano said. A spokesman for Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara's office said money would be found for the transport vans. "We think there's a need; obviously safety of the deputies is the top priority," deputy county executive Michael Duggan said. But the executive's office doesn't agree road patrols need to be expanded.

"The funding level was set by the commissioners," Duggan said.

Enhanced 9-1-1 will start June 9

By Wayne Peal staff writer

Enhanced 9-1-1 telephone service will begin here June 9.

The system is touted as a major step toward speeding emergency response times and eliminating confusion over which departments should respond.

Enhanced 9-1-1 automatically routes calls to the nearest police and fire departments. Caller names, addresses and telephone numbers appear on dispatchers' computer terminals, allowing for fast, accurate routing of emergency vehicles.

The service is being established through the Conference of Western Wayne, an intergovernmental group representing 17 communities, and Michigan Bell.

Communities will begin testing the system from March though

CWW executive director Ann Bollin will appear on television, cable and radio programs as the "switch-on" date approaches to discuss the system.

The date coincides with a CWW meeting date.

"WE'LL PROBABLY be popping champagne corks," said Joe Be of Westland, who has helped coordinate Enhanced 9-1-1 services on the agency's behalf. Benyo announced the start up date during Friday's CWW meeting at Northville Township offices.

Enhanced 9-1-1 services recently began throughout Oakland County. Among western Wayne County communities, the service is currently available in Northville Township and parts of Redford Township and Dearborn Heights.

Full 9-1-1 service will begin June 9 in those communities plus Dearborn, Garden City, Inkster, Livonia, Northville, Plymouth, Romulus, Wayne and Westland, as well as Canton, Huron, Plymouth, Sumpter and Van Buren Town-

Enhanced 9-1-1 equipment will be maintained in each community. CWW communities had discussed an Enhanced 9-1-1 system as long ago as 1985.

In math, students scored about the same in 1988-89 as they did the pre-vious year on the so-called MEAP tests, according to results released by the Michigan State Board of Education during a press conference in Lansing Tuesday.

The tests were administered to all public school students in the fourth, seventh and 10th grades as part of what state educators say is an attempt to measure "essential skills" expected of Michigan students.

Students in private schools could pay to take the tests, but their test scores were not released Tuesday.

"I am pleased to see the progress schools have made in improving science achievement," said Cherry H. Jacobus, president of the state board of education. She termed the improvement "gratifying."

The percentage of fourth-grade students who achieved "acceptable" scores on the 1988-89 science test was 45.5 percent, up 6.2 percent from 39.3 percent in 1986-87, the last year the science test was administered to all students. A total of 110,289 forrth graders took the test

Of the 103,825 seventh graders who took the science test last fall. 32.5 percent scored at the "acceptable" level, or about 5.2 percent more than 1986-87, when 27.3 percent did as well.

Students flock to nursing schools, reversing trend

By Wayne Peal staff writer

One year ago, nursing schools were begging for students. But that's no longer the case.

Nursing school enrollments are booming, both locally and nationally, as a five-year decline has suddenly been reversed.

"It's refreshing to see how quickly this problem has been turned around," said Dr. Julieanne Hoff, dean of the Madonna College department of nursing and health. Nursing applications are up slightly at the Livonia college, Hoff said, but the quality of applicants is up

There are currently 779 undergraduate nursing students enrolled at Madonna. Nursing is the four-year college's most popular major. Nursing applications are also up at Schoolcraft College, Livonia.

"There's much more interest than available positions here," Schoolcraft College admissions director John Tomey said. "Our enrollment stays constant, but the demand is growing."

Currently 90 students are enrolled in Schoolcraft College's two-year associate's degree nursing program. Schoolcraft also operates a licensed "WE DIDN'T have the loss other practical nurse program for 30 stu-

The number of students entering U.S. nursing schools rose 11 percent last year, after falling nearly a third from 1983 to 1987, according to a survey of more than 220 schools across the nation. The survey was published this month by the trade magazine Nursingworld Journal.

"THAT NEWS is really exciting," Hoff said. "Especially because there's such a need."

Rising nursing salaries and abundant job opportunities have helped, Hoff said. So has information about the potential nursing shortage.

"We really have to give credit to the media," she said. "Once the word was out, people started coming back

But while Nursingworld Journal found some schools lowering minimum entry level grade point averages to attract more nursing students, Hoff said most new applicants' had higher, not lower, high school grades.

Just how much of the new construction money will go to the state park in western Wayne County park is uncertain until bids are taken, state Department of Natural Resources officials said. But two park improvement projects are planned.

Department of Natural Resources deputy director Jack Bails said the $140 million bond measure, known as Proposal D on the ballot, is the first substantial funding source available for parks in many years. The money will be used to improve facilities that have deteriorated due to a decade of tight budgets and to improve park sewage treatment facilities as required by new anti-pollution standards, Bails said.

The list of projects approved this week by the Natural Resources Commission includes $5 million for 11 parks in northeast Michigan; $2.7 million for 10 parks in west Michigan; $8 million for 16 parks in southeast Michigan; and $3 million for six parks in the Upper Peninsula.

In other parks, picnic areas and playgrounds will be improved.

Recycling is available

Operators of a Canton Township landfill seek western Wayne residents interested in recycling.

Woodland Meadows Recycling & Disposal Facility, 39900 Van Born, between Haggerty and Hannan, Canton, has opened a recycling center to handle newspapers, glass, plastic, aluminum and cardboard items and appliances.

Thus far, Woodland Hills has worked with Canton Township civgroups, promoting recycling fund raisers for non-profit groups.

The recycling center, however, is open to residents throughout western Wayne County. The former Woodland Meadows Landfill, was renamed in recognition of the recycling center.

"RECYCLING FEES would still be reserved for Canton groups," Woodland Meadows spokeswoman Janis Lanyon said. "So while they wouldn't receive any money, they wouldn't be charged, either.'

The facility is one of 250 owned by Waste Management Inc. of Oak Brook, Ill. Recycling centers have begun at Waste Managementowned landfills as part of the company's Recycle America program.

On Thursday, Feb. 16, Denise Il-itch Lites and Lisa Ilitch Murray will host Skate with the Stars, a benefit to raise money for production of an educational booklet to inform children about the dangers of drugs

The benefit marks the first open public skate on Joe Louis Arena ice. Cost is $50 per adult, $25 for children/teens under age 18 or $150 for a family of four. Skaters will be joined by area celebrities and sports figures including Detroit Red Wings owner and chairman of the board of Little Caesar Enterprises Inc. Mike Ilitch, Red Wings coach Jacques Demers and team captain Steve Yzerman and Dick Purtan of WCZY-FM along with a host of other local television and radio personalities.

Live entertainment, food and beverages are also included.

Ilitch Lites, vice president and general counsel for Little Caesar Enterprises, and Ilitch Murray, director of corporate communications and public affairs, said the booklet will be aimed at youngsters from kindergarten through eighth grade.

The booklet and program "Grow Up Smart" will be used by sheriffs visiting elementary schools throughout Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties and features a comic book with an anti-drinking and anti-drug

Get involved School sets a good example

E CAN all learn a lesson from the students at Plymouth-Salem High

They recognized a problem, designed a game plan and worked to make changes. The result was a more livable environment for themselves and everyone else at the school.

Participation is the key. Similar improvements can be made in the quality of life for residents in Canton, Plymouth and Plymouth Town-ship. Residents and business people can take the same initiative by joining chambers of commerce, service organizations and volunteering at hospitals, nursing homes and other worthwhile

Salem teachers, administrators and, most important, students are a perfect example of what

THE SALEM PRIDE campaign was launched after the clutter got so bad that piles of garbage were everywhere. Last spring cockroaches and mice were seen roaming among the litter and debris at both Salem and Plymouth-Canton high schools. The litter was especially bad during lunchtime.

"With 2,200 kids it's difficult to feed them all in two lunch periods," said Sherry Frazier, Salem media specialist. "There's no place to sit and sometimes they leave their food out there."

There's still trash in the halls, but the mounds of junk have shrunk since the Salem Pride campaign got underway last month. The effort started with a group of teachers in the Salem Faculty Senate who decided they had had enough, said

"We tried to make everyone aware," said Fra-

That translated to "Salem Pride" signs, "Pride 89" buttons and a short video interviewing students about the need to keep the halls clear.

'We thought teachers could use it (the video) in classrooms to spark discussion," Frazier said. The theme to the video is the Beach Boys song, "Be True to Your School."

THE GOAL: "Let's care about our surroundings," Frazier said.

There's litter in the halls now, but it's not as bad as it once was. Since it's an ongoing campaign there's no limit to where it can go.

"Maintenance people noticed a big improvement, and we noticed a big improvement in the attitudes and language used in the hallways,

The thrust is to take pride in the school.

"In a big situation, sometimes it's difficult to feel a part," Frazier said. "We are trying to work on that, so that kids feel that they are important, and that we all have to work on our surroundings. If you're proud of your building that's going to show."

Frazier summed it up perfectly: "It has to be a teamwork kind of thing.

The litter problem at Salem is like most problems. Groups and organizations need people pushing together to get the ball rolling.

The Plymouth Chamber of Commerce has 400 members. That's only 29 percent of all potential 1.400 members. The chamber's goal is to add 125 members this year, according to Mary Roehr, executive director.

PARTICIPATION in Canton organizations is no better.

Canton's Chamber of Commerce has about 225 members. There's more than 600 businesses in Canton, said Joan Bolek, executive director.

Service organizations, like Rotary, Jaycees, Business and Professional Women and Lions clubs need more participation to accomplish their goals which include awarding scholarships and providing community service. Yet, Canton has less than 60 members in each of those organ-

Involvement was the key to change in the schools, and it will be the answer to change in our communities.

And the fruits of the work will be as obvious in our neighborhoods as they are in the Salem High

Attitudes need changing in quest for excellence

THE EASY answer — a troubling legacy of the 1980s.

This growing dependency on the simple solution, the no-hassle society could very well be turning us into second-class world citizens. And it all starts right here at home, in mid-dle class suburban America.

For the last couple of months your local newspaper staff has been investigating the growing problem of illiteracy in the schools. After much discussion, we felt that narrowing the investigation to one discipline would best highlight the situation. It did.

And no matter how you interpret the results, one thing is for sure. We - the students, the teachers, the parents - are stepping away from the challenge of tomorrow.

A recent article in the Wall Street Journal highlighted a University of Michigan class that teaches students how to take risks in order to succeed.

Imagine that.

COLLEGE students, the generation that is supposed to bring innovation into our society, have to be taught how to take entrepreneurial

But we shouldn't be surprised. We are rapidly becoming a society that would rather play it safe than risk losing what we have.

And that attitude certainly has eeped into the classroom.

But all districts achieved less than desirable scores.

Tenth-grade students in affluent districts such as Birmingham and Bloomfield Hills scored only 52 per-cent. As scores are kept, this means that only 52 percent of students who took the test answered correctly three-quarters of the concepts. That's pitiful.

But upon further examination, we find that's about as well as you're going to get out of 10th graders these

Farmington students scored only

WAYNE County students fared even worse. Livonia 10th graders hit a high of 32.4 percent. While Westland bottomed out at 14.7 percent.

But none of us, no matter which classroom our children hang their coats in, should gloat. All the scores are terrible.

One feature of our science articles was the blame one expert or another was putting on another for the abysmal situation. Another feature was the apologists who said the scores really didn't mean anything, anyway.

In truth, these science scores reflect an attitude that says it's all right to be less-than-the-best, that being less competitive means a safer existence. If we're mediocre, the rest of the world will leave us alone. After all, no one wants to bother with mediocrity.

Perhaps this is a left-over attitude that haunts us from the trauma of the 1960s. Then we wanted to strive for a better world. We wanted to do it all. Many thought that ideal to be corrupt when they found out that accomplishing it meant risking a lifestyle and sometimes a life.

Changing the curricula would help some, money may help a little, but changing students' attitudes about our role in the world is what will change those scores the most.

It empowers the victims of such hate groups to seize and sell the group's assets - guns, knives, distinctive clothing, cars, clubhouse, etc. - in effect dismantling the group. The court can use the proceeds to compensate the victims.

BUT THE LEGISLATURE deliberately deleted a part of the bill, which included crimes directed at gay men and women among those that deserve added penalty, although gay bashing, too, is on the rise.

One reason given was that gay men and women are already protected by laws currently on the books. But so are the other minorities to whom this bill gives added protection.

Another reason given was that homosexuality is more of a medical problem and should be dealt with in that community.

"The medical and psychological community does not consider homosexuality to be an illsays Dr. Dennis Sugrue, director of Henry Ford Hospital's Center for Human Sexuality. "It's rather unfortunate, archaic thinking."

IT'S OBVIOUS that prejudice and ignorance were hard at work here. Contributing to that were representatives from the Observer & Eccentric area who voted against the House bill with the sexual orientation section in it - or those O&E- area senators who voted specifically to take that provision out before it got to the

By pointedly denying gays the added protec-tion of a recognized minority, the Legislature left a door ajar for gay bashing — making it less offensive to commit a crime against that group.

It's ironic that a bill designed to give added protection to minorities is, in itself, discriminatory. Homosexuals who suffer the same prejudice and bigotry as other minorities are now, in the eyes of Michigan, a little less equal.

TAG program is status quo

To the editor:

There seems to be a lot of concern about a change which is not going to happen in the ninth-grade English program in our school district. Due to the circulation of some incorrect information, a lot of people are needlessly worried.

Simply put, the course which is now informally known as ninth-grade TAG English is NOT going to be eliminated. The content of the course will not change, the way TAG students are scheduled into the course will not change, and the quality of the course will not be reduced.

The course will continue to be taught by the same person who is teaching it today: Nancy Koppin.

In the past, "TAG English" was the result of an informal arrangement between the high school Eng-lish department and the TAG depart-ment to set aside a special section of freshman English. The section never had a name before and was never listed in the catalog of courses dis-tributed to all high school students. On an official level, it was just another section of freshman English.

What is being done now is to simply formalize the informal arrangement. The English course for ninth-grade TAG students will now be a regular course with a regular name, 'Advanced English." I have been assured by everyone involved that this name in no way means that the TAG program is being reduced, attacked or cut back. All that is being done is to place a formal name on the course which the staff feels is most descriptive of its content. Remember, not everyone knows what the acronym TAG stands for.

I have been involved with the TAG program for eight years. I have seen t grow from a very ineffective parttime pullout program to the mag-net/differentiated-course-material system we now have. What we have now is working well; I know that because I have two children in the TAG program who are clearly benefitting from it. The TAG program we now have in the Plymouth-Canton school district serves as an example of excellence in education.

I have spoken with a number of administrators and school board members recently. NO ONE has told me that they favor the elimination of the TAG program. Our school board and the administration are firmly committed to a quality education for ALL students. As long as the TAG program serves this goal, it will be supported.

confirms what you already suspected was true.

Both Govs. G. Mennen Williams (1949-60) and William G. Milliken (1969-82) dealt with Legislatures dominated by the other party. But Democrat Williams was widely regarded to have had a tough time while Republican Milliken was able to win agreements.

A scholar has produced some numbers to back up that conventional hunch. David W. Winder earned a doctorate in political science in 1982 from Michigan State University. He wrote about Williams and Millliken in "Divided Government in Michigan" in the November/December issue of Michigan History magazine.

"WHILE WILLIAMS experienced frustration in dealing with the state Legislature, Milliken enjoyed a reasonable amount of success," Winder wrote, citing these figures:

In 1958 and 1960, Williams saw 10.7 percent and 17.2 percent of the bills he supported become law.

In 1982 and 1980, Milliken saw 32.3 percent and 41.3 percent of the bills he supported become law.

MY OWN impression is that Winder plays down the personality factor. Soapy Williams, a gregarious man socially, would speak in ethnic groups in their native tongues and call square dances. But in talking about lawmakers, he had the bad

AS RONALD Reagan, who had never been a legislator or congressman before reaching the White House, heads into the sunset, lots of Washington pundits are suggesting George Bush will have better dealings with Congress.

Not only does Bush have a less confrontational style, but he has served in Congress, has presided over the Senate and has had broader geographic exposure to America than the Western-oriented Reagan.

Based on the lessons of the Williams and Milliken years in Michigan, I would guess the pundits will be right about Bush.

Sickbed thoughts: subs, germs and pygmy wars

THE LUNCHEON patio of a res-taurant overlooking Long Beach Ma-rina, where the view is enhanced by sailboats slipping quietly by, is not where I expected germ warfare to break out. Nevertheless, despite a warm sun, it's where I was overtaken by a strong case of the flu and not even changing my drink order to hot tea could get rid of the shivers. They lingered for most of a week. It's a rotten trick to play on kindly hosts, whom one hasn't seen in ages, to return from a spin around the block, so to speak, and tumble into bed in mid-afternoon, there to stay until medication and rest bring the body back to par. But how fortunate to be in the position of guest in such friendly surroundings when illness does strike.

THE CONCLUSION was that for about six months I had packed too many activities into too small a time frame, and body chemistry finally rebelled. The rest of the way, including the long journey home, will be conducted at a slower pace.

On the day of the ill-fated luncheon it was the plan of the friends I was with for that occasion to follow the meal with a quick trip to the Naval Base to see if we could catch a glimpse of the USS Michigan, one of our nation's Trident nuclear subma-

The public wasn't being allowed on board anyway, but such statistics as these were available: At 560 feet, it is almost two football fields long. It can move at speeds greater than 30 knots. The crew totals 157, including 15 officers. It carries 24 ballistic missiles, each containing eight nuclear warheads capable of traveling 4,000 miles to reach its target.

The Michigan is 42 feet wide, has four decks and draws about 35 feet below the waterline, nearly as much as the huge battleship USS Missouri. The depth to which the Michigan can dive is classified.

How many human beings could be killed in one fell swoop by 192 nuclear warheads I don't know, and I guess we're supposed to sleep well in realization that the Soviet Union, France and Great Britain are similarly armed. But neither do I know how many flu bugs are crawling through the lungs and chests of our citizens. Yes, they are under attack; the plethora of medicine bottles one sees on the shelves of stores is evidence of that, though it's not particularly evidence that a good job is mands the USS Michigan told inter-viewers, "We are a deterrent against war, and if deterrence works, then we never will have to use the capability of the ship."

Then lying abed later that week I read a Reuters dispatch from Uganda reporting that clashes between pygmies and their neighbors have left 20 dead in the last few weeks. A police report said a pygmy group set up a roadblock and fired arrows at their neighbors, killing five. In retaliation, the adversaries, who were armed with clubs, machetes and spears, stormed back, wiping out 15 lives.

Basic question seems to be which people can settle on what land. But 4 pygmy spokesman also said, "A pygmy cannot go to a bar and have beer. When one's goat gets lost, they claim it is us who stole it."

Whatever their deterrence against war is, apparently it isn't working.
Twenty isn't a very impressive total anyway; Detroit, New York, Los Angeles can do better than that most weekends and probably don't have to steal any goats.

But to the victim, the only import ant number is one. Why don't we stop counting violent deaths right there? That might justify arrows and machetes, but not a boatload of ballistic missiles armed with nuclear warheads. The pygmy way probably is the fun way, besides being a lot

Teachers too generous?

Q: Dr. Doyle, in one of your articles you referred to the generosity error or a teacher giving out high grades because he is just a generous person. My child is a very slow learner or "remedial student" and probably would fail many courses if he had teachers who didn't take his innate ability into consideration.

A: I have had several inquiries in regard to a previous article where I addressed an issue of a teacher who used the "generosity error" in grading; who liked kids and tended to grade higher than may have been warranted.

However, there is nothing inherently wrong with a teacher who has very slow remedial students or students in a special education resource room grading the children based on ability vs. achievement to encourage them to continue striving for suc-

Indeed, in my earlier teaching years prior to special education, I taught a class that had learning disabled children in a remedial math class setting.

At that time, I had one parent who would ground the child for two months if he didn't receive a C. There was some indication that physical abuse may have been involved, although never proven. I taught the child and retaught and retested him until he earned a C, rather than fail the child.

It must be remembered, teachers deal with different ability levels in our mass education system; all our students are not going to be brain surgeons.

Teachers must be granted some judgment in working with and grading slower children. If a child of low ability is working and achieving above his innate ability, a decent grade can be a healthy, nurturing, success experience.

Dr. Kurt Lewin, the late noted social psychologist, said that structuring success for a child breeds further success and allows the teacher to then raise the expectation level for

Horrors of drug abuse hit home

staff writer

Tony Smith was startled to learn that 67 percent of illegal drugs in the world are bought, sold and consumed in the United States. A year ago, he would have considered that frightening, but wouldn't have given it much thought.

Smith, a Lansing resident, viewed drug abuse as "something that you heard about that happened to people down the block, down the street," he

Smith and his 20-year-old son, Tony, met Monday, Jan. 16, with Plymouth Business and Professional Women members and guests. During the meeting at the Mayflower Hotel in Plymouth, they talked about their experiences in handling Tony's drug problem.

They have gone through Straight Inc., a substance abuse treatment program for young people and their families. Straight operates in sever-al U.S. states; its Michigan facility is at 42320 Ann Arbor Road in Plymouth Township. (See related story.)

SMITH AND his wife "are very much in love with each other," he said. They have two daughters and a son, Tony, the youngest.

"We are not the Brady Bunch," Smith said. "I don't know frankly that we had that as a goal."

Smith Jr. always had the necessities of life. He was active in sports and other school activities, and attended church during high school.

Tony was certainly not a perfect kid growing up, but he wasn't a bad ences. kid either," Smith said.

AFTER HIGH school, Smith Jr. headed to Northwood Institute. During his freshman year, he came home one weekend.

Saturday in March 1988. His wife called, asking him to come home right away. Their son said he had a drug problem and told them about the many drugs he had taken with increasing frequency.

"We both tried to deny it. I felt like my heart had been torn out of my body," Smith Sr. said.

He felt guilt, anger and frustration, but came to realize his son's message included bad and good

"The good news in our case is that Tony had the courage to ask for help," he said.

The Smiths embarked on a campaign to find help. They learned about Straight, a private non-profit program for adolescents, and were impressed. They have been in the program since March 1988.

THE PROGRAM includes five phases. Participants move through the phases, coming to terms with their problems and learning to live drug-free. Smith Jr. is in the fifth phase, where he is expected to share his experiences and give to others.

The program requires tremendous family involvement, Smith Sr. said. "We have learned like the back of our hand the road between Plymouth and Lansing.' They attend meetings and educational sessions; the family is working on improving communication. "I'm proud of him," Smith Sr. said. "I'm proud of what he's done."

"I was just covering my rear 24 hours a day," he said.

During high school, Smith wrote a report on drug abuse for a class. That was around the time that Len Bias, a college basketball star, died from cocaine use.

SMITH REMEMBERS going to parties and not knowing how he got home. He would look outside, to be sure the car was there.

"When I look back at that now, it scares me a lot," he said.

As a college freshman, Smith started to use cocaine. He used cocaine daily "From that night on, it was a continuing thing," he said.

HE REMEMBERS that March 1988 weekend when he came home. Smith was scared; he wasn't sure he would live.

That weekend, he asked his mother for some money. She wouldn't give him any; Smith remembers that as the first time she said no to him.

"I called her a lot of things I regret now," he said.

Smith Jr. broke down and asked his family for help. He agreed to go into treatment.

DURING THE first phase, Smith was separated from his family and lived in a host home. He wasn't allowed to drive, smoke or watch TV.

'Probably the hardest thing I ever did in my life was to stay. It was a real humbling experience," he said.

As he moved through the program's phases, Smith returned to his family home. In phase three, he took six credit hours at Oakland Community College and passed with C grades. Smith didn't study as much as he should have.

"I was still in my old habits as far as school went," he said.

IN PHASE four, Smith was allowed to drive again, so he started to make the commute between Lansing and Plymouth.

"It's rough, but it's well worth it to me," he said.

In phase five, he and his parents are helping newer Straight clients, some of whom live at their home.

"It's a really good feeling," Smith Jr. said. "I've come a long way in my life and I have a lot of things to

He plans to return to college. He works at a dog kennel in Livonia; he recently bought a golden retriever puppy and enjoys caring for his dog. Smith regularly attends Alcoholics Anonymous and Narcotics Anonymous meetings, as required by Straight.

PLYMOUTH BPW members learned from the presentation.

"I think they handled this incredi-bly well," said Maria Holmes, the club's first vice president. "It's a very emotional topic."

The club tries to offer varied programs, including some on social issues. Holmes, community affairs and program director for Omnicom of Michigan, was familiar with Straight through cable TV programs

Holmes was shocked when she interviewed teenagers in the program; one teenager rattled off a lengthy list of drugs she had taken.

"Half the drugs I hadn't even heard of," Holmes said.

Holmes and her husband have a 5year-old daughter.

"We talk about what drugs are, we talk about why you shouldn't take them. She's pretty receptive," Holmes said.

It has been three years since Straight Inc. opened its Michigan facility.

"I think the response has been favorable," said LaDonna Jordan, Straight administrator.

The facility in Plymouth Township gets daily calls from families seeking help for a young person who is abusing drugs. Calls come from throughout the Midwest and Canada, and include some from Plymouth-Canton families.

"Primarily, we are a self-help based organization," Jordan said. Staffers deal with families "who have a difficult time expressing their feelings," she said. "We're really dealing with people problems."

Many clients have developed unhealthy means of expressing their feelings. Some engage in crimes; some fight with family members or create problems at school. Straight staffers know it is necessary to treat the entire family. Parents participate in meetings and educational sessions. Group sessions are held for siblings. "It's a preventive effort on our part,"-Jordan said.

Skater dreams of Olympics

Seven years ago, Brian Scherle went to the Plymouth Cultural Center for an open skating session. It was a snowy day, so he didn't have to worry about missing school. He had done some skating before, but "I loved it," he said. "I just wanted to keep doing it."

Scherle, then 9, went back for open skating shortly after that. His mother asked him if he enjoyed skating enough to take lessons.

He's now 16 and has been skating ever since. He recently won a gold medal for first-place honors at the Eastern Great Lakes Regionals, held in early December in Wyandotte.

He received first place in figures and second place in freestyle, for a combined first-place overall in the men's novice division. He competed against skaters from Michigan, Illinois, Ohio, Indiana and Kentuc-Scherle, the son of Robert and Janet Scherle of Canton, is a 10th grader at Catholic Central High School. He puts in many hours practicing.

As a member of the Plymouth Figure Skating Club, he gets to the Plymouth Cultural Center at 6 a.m. Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays for practice sessions. He works on compulsory figures and freestyle skating during those hours before school.

He also practices Wednesdays after school and puts in five hours each Saturday and three each Sunday. He usually skates at the Plymouth Cultural Center, but sometimes goes to Westland to practice if he's preparing for a competition.

Scherle practices about 17 hours week during the school year. That increases to about 25 hours a week during the summer, although he takes summer weekends off.

He finds the time to do his schoolwork, but it takes effort. "After a full day, you don't really want to do homework, but you know you have to."

Scherle is hoping for a skating scholarship to Harvard University. He has considered a number of careers, and is interested in attending medical school or pursuing another scientific field. But he knows he faces the possibility of injury.

"You have to have something, and school's just as good."

He has experience competing, but still gets nervous and works to overcome that. "Sometimes you don't. Sometimes you just have a bad day." At competitions, he tries to concentrate.

"You just go out there and have a good time."

Scherle was about 12 when he started to compete in U.S. Figure Skating Association events. That competition leads to the Olympies.

He had competed several years before in International Skating Institute of America events. Most skaters start there; it's more recreational and not as competitive, Scherle said. His goal: to become an Olympic skater. "I think that's every ath-He hopes to be selected in 1992

SCHERLE HAS a number of favorite skaters. He's particularly impressed with Caryn Cadavy, who skated for the United States in the most recent Olympics. She did her figures, but had to drop out of freestyle competition due to illness.

Scherle met her last summer in Denver, Colo. He trained there for several weeks.

That was his first time training out of state. Scherle, who works with coach Teresa McKendry, has traveled for competitions. He's been as far as Tulsa, Okla., for the Midwesterns competition.

Skate Club in Bloomfield Hills. He placed sixth in figures and fourth in freestyle at that early January 1989 competition, for a combined sixth-place overall in the men's novice division.

"There's a lot more people." That rigorous competition includes top skaters from several regions.

would like to see more community support, not so much just for Straight but for addressing drug problems in general.

Jordan has been with Straight for three years in Michigan, and worked before that for four months in Straight's Washington, D.C., area facility. She has been with the Michigan facility since it opened, as a therapist and then as administrator.

She earned a master's degree in clinical psychology from Southern Illinois University. She is working on her doctorate in clinical psychology at that university and will finish that degree in late 1989.

SOME 75 young people are at the Michigan facility, which can accommodate up to 150, said Don Mac-Leod, who works in resource develParticipants range in age from 12 through their early 20s, with 17 the average age; 60 percent are boys, 40

MOST CLIENTS have used many drugs, and just about all have used alcohol. They have also used marijuana, cocaine, acid and such "junk drugs" as glue and other inhalants.

In the first phase, clients live in host homes of more experienced clients; those are licensed as foster homes by the state of Michigan. They attend school two hours a day

Their schoolwork is a continuation of work done at their home school, Jordan said. Many haven't been attending school regularly, if at all.

New clients are encouraged to focus on themselves and on changes they need to make. They attend regular therapy sessions. "Their day is really full," Jordan

They don't have time to watch TV or listen to the radio. Staffers encourage interaction with others; TV can keep people from interacting.

In phase two, clients return home and work on rebuilding family relationships.

"Learning how to talk honestly with each other and to talk out some of the problems they've had in the past (is emphasized)," Jordan said. Clients continue to attend school at Straight.

IN PHASE three, each returns to his or her own school, and some start working. That can be a difficult adjustment; other students may not encourage a young person to remain drug-free.

"That's why they come here after school, so they can talk about it," Jordan said.

Some transfer to other schools, to make that adjustment easier. Straight staffers work with counselors and other school staff members, to establish a support system.

IN PHASE four, clients have some days off, when they aren't required to come to Straight. They learn to use leisure time productively, including being with peers who don't

"It really just depends on the individual and the family," Jordan said.

The average cost of treatment is $27 a day. Straight is a privately financed non-profit program, with 70 percent of money coming from client fees and 30 percent from fundraising efforts.

Most programs are based on adult treatment models, Jordan said, and aren't suitable for younger people.

"They need guidelines, they need rules, they need limits."

Nationally, Straight has a 70-percent success rate, MacLeod said .-That is based on a two-year followup, done among young people who have graduated and remained straight and sober.

Most works are bought framed; Frame Works in Plymouth does the framing for those that aren't.

Not all of the gallery works are of the serious variety. One Smithsonian Institution poster is popular; it shows a group of African meerkats. At one local business, the poster was hung in the lobby and used for a "caption of the week" contest.

HE'S FOUND that high school students are more mature and take an interest in his skating. That wasn't true so much in middle school; some students didn't understand what skating involves. He said even some adults aren't aware of the work involved.

Theologians ponder God's humorous side

 $\rm AP-$ "It is easier," Jesus Christ once said to the disciples gathered around him, "for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter the kingdom of God."

Like many master humorists, Jesus used exaggeration, even hyperbole, to jolt his listeners, said the Rev. Wes Seeliger, an Episcopal priest, cartoonist and humorist.

"People read that with glum seriousness," Seeliger said, "but that's one of Jesus' funnies. What Jesus did is a Gary Larson job. He acted out on the pious religious trap that people found

Humor pervades Seeliger's life and theology. Sometimes it's blatant; other times, subtly satirical. Like other dry wits, he uses humor two ways — to poke fun at the church's foibles and to unmask its potential

To many Christians, his theology is unorthodox. But others agree with him that humor may be the most neglected element in the chemistry of Chris-

What stumps Christians, Elton Trueblood, the eminent Quaker said, is that they're so sure Jesus is deadly serious. "A misguided piety," he said, "has made us fear that acceptance of his obvious wit and humor would somehow be mildly blasphemous or sacrilegious."

In the middle of a serious story, Trueblood said, Jesus might interrupt himself with an acute, sly insertion. An example: "But know this, that if the householder had known at what hour the thief was coming, he would have been awake and would not have left his house to be broken into." (Luke 12:39)

"ALL OF us know that it is easy to be smart when we are tipped off," Trueblood writes in the 1975 edition of his book "The Humor of Christ," and that "to be forewarned is to be forearmed, but Christ delights us, in this case, by a fresh statement of the obvious."

Jesus, stress the tragedy of Christ's death and passion. In the same spirit, most artists empha-sized the somber when they began to produce speculative portraits of Christ.

Biblical scholars see the Old Testament as a library of jokes, humor, puns, irony and satire. Woven into the Hebrew Scriptures, they say, is a "sense of playfulness" often lost to the modern reader, especially in translation.

"From a literary standpoint, the book of Jonah is a comic masterpiece, delightful, but also devastating in its humor, irony and satire," Conrad Hyers, a religion professor from Minnesota, said in a 1985 article for the short-lived theological jour-nal, LIGHT (Laughter in God, History and Theology, an experimental journal designed to gauge interest in theology and humor).

"When we look at the figure of Jonah," he said, "His self-centeredness and narrow mindedness, his extreme behavior, his inverted sense of values, his self-contradictions, we laugh at him and in the process find that we are laughing at ourselves."

PRESENT-DAY American Protestants inherited their Puritan forebears' suspicion of humor, historians say. Play had little place in Puritan work and spirituality, and it seems humor was

The cumulative result has been a one-sided emphasis on the serious, at the expense of humor, laughter, joy and play," said scholar Fred D. Lay-man. "Taboos have been erected around the sacred which involve the repudiation of comedy

Be ready to receive gifts of love, joy

So toss out that theology and give Scripture another look, said Southern Baptist Tal D. Bonham of Columbus, Ohio.

"It was humor that drew me to Christ," he said. "The more faith I learned, the more humor I acquired," a knack he used in writing many books including "Humor, God's Gift," (Broadman Press, 1988, $12.95.) The word laughter, Bonham said, first shows up in the Bible in a context that would be equally ridiculous today. Turn to Genesis in which God tells Abraham that his wife, Sarah, age 90 plus, will have another child.

"Sarah, listening at the tent door, could not hold back the laughter," Bonham said. "When their baby was born, Abraham and Sarah named him Issac, the Hebrew word for laughter or "he Seeliger believes in using humor to teach theology the same way a parent might make a joke to gently reprimand a child. In his book, "Western Theology," (Pioneer Ventures Publishers, Houston, $6.95,) he uses frontier images of settlers, pioneers, sheriffs and trail bosses to preach an eloquent, sometimes irreverent, sermon on what's right and wrong in church land.

IN ONE section, he describes the Wild West saloon with a different twist. "The Olive Branch is the settlers' favorite hangout," Seeliger writes. "They go there when life gets dull, or when the feel lonely. Miss Dove tickles them under the chin and makes everything OK again."

But settling won't work in a life of faith, Seeliger said. The pioneer mentality — "moving beyond where you are in spite of danger" — is the more creative way to live. Humor points beyond itself to cosmic trust.

What faith in God means is that we always assume that, no matter what situation we're in, that situation is bracketed by a much larger reality," Seeliger said. "One of the sure signs of idolatry is a lack of a sense of humor. Look at the photographs of Adolf Hitler. It's almost impossible to find one of him smiling."

Eleven million people in the U.S. have diabetes. But almost half of them don't know it.

Untreated, diabetes can lead to heart disease, kidney disease, blindness and gangrene.

And for 150,000 people each year, it leads to death.

That's why you should be aware of the symptoms of diabetes: blurred vision, excessive thirst and frequent urination are just some of the warning signs. Because the sooner you find out if you have diabetes, the more likely you are to get it under control, before complications set in.

Finding out you have diabetes can be scary. But not finding out can be fatal.

You can get lots of iodine without table salt

Dear Jo: My doctor has advised me to cut down on salt — no added salt in food preparation or at the table. Although it hasn't been easy, so far, I am managing all right. My question: With decreased salt in my diet, am I getting enough iodine?

Mrs. H.S.

Detroit Dear Mrs. S.: Iodized table salt was first introduced into the North American diet back in the 1920s to counteract a type of goiter (enlarged thyroid gland) which was caused by the lack of iodine in foods in certain regions. Today, with modern food disper-

The daily recommended dietary allowance (RDA) of iodine is 150 micrograms. A cup of yogurt is 104 micrograms. An average serving of oy-

Are the "store bought" magnifying reading glasses any good?

Mr. D. K. Midwest Reader Dear Mr. K.:

Over-the-counter reading glasses are fine if all you need is magnification. They do not correct near-sightedness, astigmatism or any refractive defects.

Most people over the age of 50 need magnifying glasses to read fine print - even those who have good distance vision. This developmental condition, referred to as presbyopia, occurs when the lens of the eye becomes less flexible and is less able to change shape and focus on close objects and fine print. A word of caution: Buying and wearing a pair of ready-made glass-es can't substitute for an eye exam. It is essential that persons over age 50 have their eyes examined by an eye-care specialist regularly (every two to five years) for a glaucoma test and an exam to detect other possible vision problems.

The free-trade treaty offers great opportunities for Michigan companies willing to cross the border and do business in Canada, conference participants stressed.

Free trade: an opportunity for Detroit firms

By Tim Richard staff writer

Michigan, particularly metro Detroit, can be a big winner under the U.S.'s new free-trade agreement with Canada - if local businesses wake up and act.

· Although free trade was an overriding issue in Canada's November election, and has been for decades, U.S. companies are less aware of the trade possibilities, a series of speakers said last week.

"Michigan stands to benefit tre-mendously," said economist David Sowerby of Manufacturers National Bank of Detroit. "Michigan has exports of $8 billion to Canada, and 180,000 workers are dependent on exports. Michigan in the next five years can increase its exports by $1 billion and add 25,000 jobs.

"This (U.S.-Canadian market) is the largest bilateral market in the world," Sowerby told several dozen manufacturers, retailers, lawyers and bankers in a conference sponsored by Ernst & Whinney, an international accounting and business ad-

The prices of Canadian imports in the U.S. will drop 8-9 percent, and the prices of American imports in Canada will fall 4-5 percent, creating more growth on both sides of the border, he said.

CANADA'S unionists and Liberal politicians were adamantly opposed to free trade, speakers said. But its businesspeople welcome it, know more about the treaty and have a more global outlook than Americans even though Americans are seen as formidable competitors.

Essentially, our audience was middle-market, light to medium manufacturers, predominantly privately held and predominantly serving the automotive sector," said Bob Bublitz, who chaired the conference. The Livonia resident is an international tax partner with Ernst & Whinney in Detroit.

"There's a lot of work for lawyers," said Bob Love, E&W marketing expert in Canada, citing branch offices and joint ventures.

"It's at the level of the individual firm that the agreement will succeed or fail," said Sal Badali, E&W's top international trade man from New York.

UNDER LIBERAL premier Pierre Trudeau, Canada in the 1960s and '70s was hostile to foreign investment, Badali said. "There was a fear in Canada that would become the 51st state."

Not only has Brian Mulroney's Progressive-Conservative government reversed that attitude, Badali said, but the "threshold" for reviewing American purchases will be raised from last year's $8 million to $150 million by 1992. It means that smaller American purchases of Canadian business property won't be

The U.S. opted for free trade by quickly rejecting the presidential candidacy of Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., Sowerby said.

ONTARIO trade minister Walter Stothers told the group his office will help American investors.

In Canada, 37 percent of our ross domestic product is exported; 11 percent of yours is exported. You wonder why you have a trade deficit?" he asked.

ney's manufacturing consultant, had some specific suggestions for area manufacturers.

· Companies with plants producing full lines in both the U.S. and Canada should think about specializing their production lines in one country or another.

• Top management should set up committees to study competitor Canadian firms, identifying their of research. Canada's population is stretched out. An American company, particularly in the Detroit area, has a transportation advantage selling just across the border compared to a Canadian competitor in the east or west.

· Canada has a half-dozen nationwide commercial banks. "It's generally better to pick a Canadian bank," said Tom Parnell of Manufacturers Bank'sinternational department

 Canada's population of 27 million is about one-tenth the size of the U.S. population, and the Canadian stock market is one-tenth as large. Smaller companies can get their publicly traded shares listed more easily on the Canadian exchange.

Canadian currency is very stable compared to European and Asian currencies. Therefore, said Matt Plachwan of Manufacturers Bank, "We encourage you to do business, not speculate in currency.'

Highlights of new treaty

Highlights of the new U.S.-Canada Free Trade Agreement:

 Tariff barriers are abolished - some immediately, others over five years or 10 years. Canada's average tariff is 9.5 percent, about twice the average U.S. tariff.

· Exporters must prove the domestic content of their products. There must be a significant valueadded content, and it must have been assembled in the U.S.

• U.S. companies selling machinery that requires servicing will find their service personnel will face less hassle at Canadian Cus-

• Penalties for violating content rules are severe.

Some 75 percent of U.S.-Canada trade already was duty-free. Some major changes: Canada will drop its 17.5 percent tariff on telephone switching equipment. The U.S. will drop its 18 percent tariff on ethanol. Canada will raise the "threshold" level for examination of U.S. business acquisitions.

Eliminated immediately are tariffs on computers, some pork, some unprocessed fish, furs, leather, whiskey, animal feeds, unwrought aluminum, vending machines, skates, railroad airbrakes, needles, ferro alloys, skis and motorcycles.

Going in five years will be tariffs on subway cars, chemicals (including resins), explosives, paints, furniture, paper products, printed matter, hardwood plywood, aftermarket auto parts and some meats.

Gone in 10 years will be tariffs on most agricultural products, beef, steel, textiles, apparel, appliances, softwood plywood, pleasure craft, rail cars, tires and many manufactured goods.

1st Nationwide Banks inside K marts recruit customers as new depositors

By Pat Murphy staff writer

While Janine McGillivary was browsing at the Farmington Hills K mart last November, she opened a savings account

"I really didn't intend to do any banking when I went in," said the 20year-old Southfield resident. "But it (the bank) was there, and the people were friendly. So I opened an account. So did my sister, Colleen.'

The McGillivary sisters now bank with 1st Nationwide Bank, a subsidiary of the Ford Motor Co. It came into the highly competitive Detroit area in 1987 and now has 35 branches, including 1st Dearborn Federal Association and Bloomfield Federal

Six are mini banks inside K mart stores in Farmington, Farmington Hills, Warren and Livonia. They offer a wide range of services includ-ing savings and checking accounts, certificates of deposit, consumer loans and mortgage applications. They are part of a marketing strate-gy initiated in California in 1984 and equently implemented in 12

"It's a natural," said Joseph G. Chupek, vice president and regional sales manager for 1st Nationwide. "There's a lot of traffic in K mart stores, and they're the kind of middle-income people we want."

NOT ONLY DOES 1st Nationwide want those middle-income customers, personnel at the K mart branches are trained to go out and recruit them - as was the case with the McGillivary sisters.

Janine said she and her sister, both employees of Henry Ford Hospital, were not thinking about banking when they went browsing at K mart. But they were approached by Carol L. Eaddy, a financial services supervisor, who solicited their

"She was very friendly and persuasive," Janine said of Eaddy. "My old bank was so nasty, and she was such a contrast. So I started an ac-

Eaddy, a banker for about five years, said her recruiting is an offshoot of bank policy. "Other banks say they are people-oriented. We really are," said Eaddy, who is also a part-time business student at Wayne State University.

Jeffrey P. Sfreddo, financial services counselor at the K mart branch in Livonia, said he got into the banking business almost by accident last fall when he answered an advertisement for a sales position. That sales position turned out to be with 1st Nationwide at the Livonia branch. Sfreddo graduated from Michigan State University in 1986 with a degree in advertising.

Sfreddo and Eaddy said they view their jobs as a combination of banking and sales, with heavy emphasis on friendly involvement with customers. "We want people to know we appreciate their business and we care," said Eaddy.

FIRST NATIONWIDE is going to need that enthusiasm and personalized service - as well as competitive rates — according to observers who say putting branches in K marts is yet to be proven as a marketing strategy.

"The jury is still out,' said Justin L. Moran, an Ann Arbor banking consultant, "It's just too early to say whether that strategy will work out."

tomers don't normally stop at a chain store like K mart or Sears as frequently as they shop at a grocery store or pharmacy.

"When was the last time you went into a K mart?" Moran said. "Compare that with the number of times you go to the supermarket. I personally believe mini banks would be more successful in food markets."

In 1986, D&N (formerly Detroit & Northern) Bank of Hancock opened five K mart branches in Grand Rapids and two in Flint when it was part of the 1st Nationwide Network. They were closed Dec. 31.

"We closed those branches because we disaffiliated with the 1st Nationwide Network," said Steve DuBois, assistant vice president of investor relations and public affairs for D&N. "The closings don't neces-sarily mean the branches failed or were a bad idea."

'If we ever get you started, you'll be a phenomenal country. Don't set that (Canada) as your goal. Set it as your first step.

• Unions - Canada is more heavily unionized, and labor continues "dead set against" free trade. Social benefits are costly.

The average speed on the free-ways in Los Angeles is 17 mph and dropping. Rush "hour" traffic is a subject for nostalgia, since these days there are only five hours left in a 24-hour period during which traffic moves at all, and two of these are between three and five a.m.

Smog lays in the valley in a thick brown cloud, and it's 50 degrees after a week of rain, which is the kind of weather I usually get whenever I get a chance to go to some tepid spot in the middle of a Michigan winter. Which wouldn't seem so bad except that the radio keeps reminding me that it's warmer back home.

Adding to the aggravation is a special section in the Los Angeles Times on what "outsiders" think about Los Angeles. Los Angeles people worzy a lot about what other people think of them, which makes them more or less like Detroit people.

This is mainly because nearly everybody in Los Angeles is from my old high school in Royal Oak. This westward migration started when a kid in my sister's class moved to Los Angeles and married Jane Fonda, without even having a regular job, which established the place firmly in the future fantasies of a generation.

NOW THEY are all stuck in traffic, since they all got a job on the other side of town from their house now worth about a half million with a view of an auto parts store.

Los Angles people feel all the important trends start here, which is why there are special trend-watching posts sponsored by all the auto companies in California. Trendwatching is not a new trend, however. GM Stylist Harley Earl, for example, was recruited from California where he had a hot business customizing cars for Hollywood types, which included putting a sad-dle on the roof of Tom Mix's car.

Actually, the most noticable trend today in California is an overall glut of old trends. Unlike Detroiters, who will build a trampoline center or two, then bulldoze it when it goes out of fashion, Californians hang on to their trends. It's not unusual to see a slightly pot-bellied, middle-aged skateboarder still perfecting his sport, for instance, although the flip turns are getting a little weak.

ALONG WITH a glut of old trends, there is a glut of old cars, since they haven't discovered the economic benefits of putting salt all over the roads to keep the new-car business

This includes the kind of wimpy imports that end up looking like an Upper Peninsula stop sign at the end of deer season after a Michigan win-ter or two, which still gleam until you look inside and discover all that sunlight has turned the interior into

I keep looking for new trends on the road, but there's nothing much I haven't seen before on Telegraph: mainly short pickups and tall four-wheel drives, with the Koreans noticably replacing the Japanese.

Porsches and Mercedes are less in evidence, since I stick mainly to the east side of town, but maybe those house payments are finally taking

I BEGAN to realize it's possible we've made too much of this California thing, after years of worrying about what kind of cars Californians are going to be driving next. With a quarter of the cars sold in the United States on the left coast, and half of those imports, the trend watching is

But now the Japanese are an nouncing their new concentration will be on Midwest markets.

Then comes the announcements that Jim Perkins, who spent 20 years or so at Chevrolet and then moved to California and Toyota, was lured back to GM to become heir apparent to the general manager's slot at Chevrolet Division. Was it money? Did he finally tire of struggling to speak the language Or was he a mole in the heart of Calanese car culture, bringing inside information back to revitalize Chevro-

It may be the start of another trend, which I will look into as soon as my suntan wears off.

Successful finance plan will follow these guidelines

The MIT Enterprise Forum was organized under the direction of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology Alumni Association to provide assistance to emerging growth companies. Its primary activity consists of monthly evening sessions in which company business plans accepted for presentation are evaluated during "no-holds-barred" sessions.

Led by a panel of alumni experts and experienced business executives, the sessions allow entrepreneurs to obtain feedback and advice regarding their plan and their enterprise while being offered suggestions for improvement.

Through their experience, forum members have developed a list of requirements for winning business plans. As the most important tool used to obtain money from outside investors, the plan must be the best that can be written and packaged. The MIT Forum considers the following as essential elements of any successful plan:

• It must be arranged appropriately with an executive summary, a table of contents and its chapters in

• It must be the right length and appearance — neither too long, too short, too plain or too fancy.

 It must give a sense of what the founders and the company expect to accomplish three to seven years into the future.

• It must explain in quantitative and qualitative terms the benefit to the user of the company's products or services.

 It must present hard evidence of the marketability of the products

Neu resigns coaching post at Canton HS

staff writer

Rob Neu said it was the toughest decision he ever had to make. After four successful years as Plymouth Canton varsity girls basketball coach, Neu resigned last week to pursue a career in business

His departure also ends a three-year stint as boys track coach. A replacement for either position has not been named.

Neu, 26, has relocated to northern Michigan and begun working for Computer Haus, a Traverse City-based computer firm owned by his father, Dick

Neu had taught in the business education department at Canton until the end of the 1987-88 school year when he was laid-off when staff cutbacks were

The semester off gave me time to reflect and evaluate what would be best for Rob Neu five, 10, 20 years down the road," he said. "It's a tremendous opportunity for me to work with my dad and in the computer industry. I'd like to make myself as marketable as possible."

NEU, WHO WILL be stationed in Petoskey, will work in the sales and support end of the company's operation. As education director, he will service schools in northern Michigan and the Upper Peninsula that buy computers from his company, instructing teachers and administrators in use of the

'My dad has been after me for quite some time," said Neu, adding he was not leaving with any animosity toward the school district.

'One thing I was fearful of was my education was becoming stagnant, and this opportunity is providing me with that growth. I haven't left education; I'm just in another facet."

Neu, who graduated from Plymouth Salem in 1980 and Eastern Michigan University in 1986, said the decision to leave coaching was difficult because of the bonds that had been established with players and staff members.

Neu coached the Canton girls to a four-year record of 67-18, winning the Western Division championship in the Western Lakes Activities Association

His last ballclub, which finished 19-2 and was ranked No. 5 in Class A, captured the school's first WLAA title. The Chiefs lost to Salem in the district tournament, however.

"I really felt this was the most difficult time to leave the girls basketball program," he said, "especially from an emotional standpoint because the relationships developed in our program were very strong.

"I FEEL WE had just reached a level where we were competitive at the state level. We ended with the shocking loss to Salem, but that made the program that much hungrier and experienced going into 1989. It will be difficult not being a part of that."

Neu attended the team banquet Thursday night but waited until the next day to tell his players about his decision during a team meeting.

Chiefs adjust their strategy to beat WLW

staff writer

The game wasn't two minutes old, and already it seemed easy enough to pick the winner. Plymouth Canton's pressure defense had forced three turnovers and, if the Chiefs had been able to shoot at all (they missed their first four attempts), they would have been up a half-dozen points.

But then someone blew the whistle on Canton's strategy. Actually, it was two guys wearing stripes. By the end of the first quarter of Tuesday's Walled Lake Western-at-Canton boys basketball game, eight fouls had been called on the Chiefs. Which meant trashing the full-court pres-

So Canton coach Tom Niemi adjusted, going to his bench often, using the press only occasionally, and juggling his lineup constantly to keep key players in the game. The result wasn't as lopsided as when the teams' first met at Western Dec. 15 (Canton won by 18), but it was a 57-49 victory nonetheless.

"WE HAD to pull (the press) off when we got so many kids in foul trouble," said Niemi. "We had to play smarter. Everybody who came in (off the bench) did a good job."

Perhaps the most significant performance off the bench was supplied by a starter. Brian Paupore, Canton's 6-foot-5 sharpshooting forward, drew his fourth personal foul with 3:12 left in the third quarter. That put him on the bench and helped Western, which trailed 38-33 when he left, pull to within 40-39 as the final period started.

Paupore left the bench early in the fourth quarter and made an immediate impact. Canton led 42-41 when he got into the game; an 8-0 run put the Chiefs in command. Paupore scored six of those eight.

He added four more points to hispersonal ledger before the quarter. expired to account for 10 of Canton's 17 fourth-quarter points. He finished the game with 28 — nearly half the Chiefs' total.

TROY WALDRON got Canton started in the first quarter, sinking a three-pointer and scoring seven points (Paupore had eight) as the Chiefs led 17-13. Their four-point cushion was maintained at the half (27-23) before Western — behind 6-5 center Wayne Parris' superb post play — closed the gap in the third quarter. Waldron finished with 19.

But the issue is basic philosophy as applied to their shared profession: the coaching of football

Moshimer agrees with the Michigan State coach when he states his personal creed of "work hard, keep your mouth shut and good things will happen."

In fact, the longtime Plymouth Salem mentor might borrow that line Saturday when he accepts the Jim Crowley Award at the Stouffer Hotel in Battle Creek

"I haven't always kept my mouth shut," Moshimer said, "but I think I've worked hard, and good things have happened to me."

On this occasion, he is being honored by his peers, fellow members of the Michigan High School Football Coaches Association, for his many contributions to the prep game, specifically his efforts in planning the annual all-star game.

The MHSFCA considers the Crowley Award the most-prestigious honor it can bestow on a fellow member, because the man for whom the award is named retains a special place in the collective memory of the coaching fraternity.

Crowley was the successful and well-liked coach at Jackson Lumen

Now the organization plans to invoke his memory in recognition of another member it considers spe-

From his perspective, Moshimer can't imagine that others place him in the same company with such past recipients as Dave Driscoll (Jackson), Ron Holland (North Farmington), Jack Castignola (Trenton) and Elmer Engle (Bay City Central).

'They say, 'If you want to run the wishbone, it's better to go over to Plymouth Salem and talk to Moshimer, because he knows more about it.'

Moshimer was surprised and elated when he was voted into the ootball Coaches Hall of Fame in 1985, and being chosen to receive the Crowley Award is proof that hard work is rewarded with good

"The Hall of Fame was a great honor," Moshimer said. "I didn't think anything could top that, and along comes the Crowley Award, which I never thought I would have

Amber Arbuckle won the beam with a score of 8.65, finishing just ahead of freshman teammate Christine Oates (8.55). Salem's Autumn Bunch, who finished with an allaround score of 33.2, was third on the beam (8.2).

Farmington had its best success on the bars, placing a girl in the top three positions. Oates, who won the all-around with 34.2 points, grabbed first on the bars (8.85), Debbie Ford was second (8.5) and Julie Lawton came in third (8.25). The Falcons managed to score more than 30 points on the bars as a team.

"We finally have some depth," Schornhorst said. "We used to have one or two good scores and the rest really dropped down. It's more even now. In the past, we might have had 26 or 27 on the bars."

Bunch helped carry Salem to the respectable finish, as she claimed first place on the vault, scoring 8.7. Teammate Dana Holda placed second (8.3) and Ford was third (8.1).

Oates won the day's final event, the floor exercise (8.8), solidifying her standing as the best all-around performer. Teammate Jennifer Reed took second place with 8.6, and Bunch finished third at 8.45.

Clarenceville, which slipped to 5-3 overall, got two firsts from Lisa Granfeldt on the beam (8.3) and floor exercise (8.5). She was second behind Beach in the all-around, accumulating 31.90 points.

Lois Webb had hoped for a clean sweep, but three out of four isn't too shabby.

And that's just what the volleyball coach for Florida Southern got last week when three stars for Schoolcraft College's national championship team verbally committed to attend Southern and play for Webb.

Setter Chris Paciero, a Livonia Churchill grad, and outside hitters Maria Evans, from Garden City, and Sarah Heddle, from Ypsilanti, visited the Southern campus a week ago and all three decided that's where they'd like to go.

Webb also was after SC's Nikki Stubbs, the player of the year in the National Junior College Athletic Association, but Stubbs has decided to attend Eastern Michigan and play for Nona Richardson.

"I'M VERY happy to have all three of those girls," said Webb. "I watched them for three days (at the NJCAA finals in Miami). That's where I got interested in them. I liked their style of play, and the fact that they did not win easily but they never gave up.
"I went after the best and I got them.

It didn't take long to convince all three to sign. Florida Southern is an NCAA Division II school with an enrollment of 1,800, located in a spot familiar to Detroiters: Lakeland, the Tigers' spring training camp. It is highly-regarded academically and athletically — Webb's teams have been to the NCAA II tournament eight times in her 12 seasons as coach.

Webb is losing three valuable starters to graduation: Trish Gadberry, an All-American middle hitter, and outside hitters Lisa Frisbie and Virginia Huck, both all-region performers. That could open up starting positions for all three, although Webb has also signed Mary Ibaviosa of Jefferson (Mo.) CC, an NJCAA All-American at outside

IT HELPED that all three received full-ride scholarships.

Evans, who boasts a 3.6 gradepoint average and was named to the NJCAA all-tournament team, plans on going into elementary education. Paciero wants to go into secondary education, with a social sciences ma- side hitter for EMU; Stubbs could jor. Heddle is also planning to go into education.

Although Evans and Heddle made up their minds about Southern while visiting the picturesque campus—it's located on Lake Hollingsworth, the school's buildings are all of

"What they decided to do didn't have any bearing on my decision," she said. "They made up their mind down there, but I waited until I got

After considering the offer, Paciero decided to sign. "It's very good academically," she noted. "And they have a reciprocal agreement with this state, so if I get my teacher's certificate down there, it'll be good

"That, and getting a full-ride well, you just can't beat it."

STUBBS, FROM Garden City, gave Southern serious consideration, but she "wanted to go Division I." Several schools contacted her, but those showing the most interest were Central Michigan, Hofstra and EMU.

"I wasn't sure about Centrali" Stubbs said. "The coach, Marcy Westin, was going to become the (assistant) athletic director. Plus, they had five senior starters last year, and I didn't want to be in a rebuilding program."

The Hurons, on the other hand, "are only graduating two people." One of them is Kim Relyea, a Livonia Stevenson grad who also starred at Schoolcraft. Relyea was an outstep in and fill her position.

"That's what they said," she said. 'But nothing's for sure."

Stubbs plans to go into business

Canton volleyball team sweeps past Northville Plymouth Canton had no trouble with Northville Monday, defeating the Mustangs 15-4, 15-7, in a Western Lakes Activities Association volleyball match. The Chiefs improved to 7-3 overall and 2-1 in the Western Division.

Canton scored the last 10 points in Game 1 behind the serving of Alissa Huth and Rhonda Kibilko and scored six straight midway through the second game to decide the nightcap. Melinda Yergin served all six points

Susan Ferko led Canton with seven kills, and Shannon Meath and Karen Keenan had six each. Huth finished with nine assists and Yergin collected six.

'We're starting to establish a good mental approach to the game," coach Allie Suffety said. "We got very good front court play, and we're really starting to understand the mental aspect of the game better."

The Lady Ocelots packed their 18-game win-ning streak (7-9 in the Eastern Conference) and took it on the road to Alpena CC Saturday, a team they had thrashed 83-57 at SC Dec. 7. All factors considered, it seemed a sure bet that come Sunday, SC's streak would have reached 19.

Not so fast. Alpena, which had won just two of seven previous conference games and was .500 overall, got its act together for this game, sinking 20-of-29 first-half shots (mostly from the perimeter), then turning back SC with free throws in the second to upset the conference leaders 95-82.

"We didn't shoot that well in the second half," admitted SC coach Jack Grenan.

That was one basic reason for the loss, but there were others. Like fouls (four Lady Ocelots had four each with five minutes still to play), both called and uncalled. Alpena got the calls; Grenan felt SC didn't.

THE FREE THROWS resulting from those calls played a major role in the win for Alpena, which sank 11-of-18 from the line in the second half to four-of-five for SC.

Everything considered, Grenan's perspective was best: "They played good and we played just Lisa DePlanche was red-hot in the first half, scoring 22 points as SC kept pace with Alpena. The game was tied at 53 at the intermission.

But DePlanche was shut down in the second half, scoring just six points to finish with 28. Darlene Bazner picked up the pace, getting 12 of her 15 points in the second half. Bazner also had six steals in the game.

Michelle Dyksinski netted 13 points and Barb Krug had nine and 10 rebounds. SC is now 18-1 overall and 7-1 in the conference, still clinging to a one-game lead. Alpena is 10-9 overall, 3-5 in the conference.

SC'S MENS TEAM had what has become an alltoo-familar problem at Alpena CC Saturday: too little talent, in a manner of speaking.

The Ocelots may have had enough talent to beat Alpena. But when Al Hudson and Mark Koronka fouled out and there was still 13 minutes left to play, the talent remaining was literally too little to handle an Alpena front line that measured 6-

Still, SC fought gamely with its five-guard lineup before succumbing 83-77. The loss dropped the Ocelots to 5-16 overall, 1-9 in the Eastern Conference; Alpena is 9-12 overall, 3-7 in the conference.

Oddly, SC trailed by 11 when its two tallest players — 6-4 Koronka, who left with eight points and five rebounds, and 6-6 Hudson, who didn't score and had four boards — went to the sidelines. Alpena switched from a zone defense to a man-toman, and the Ocelots answered with six straight

With 1:29 left, the Alpena lead was just three. But SC's Mike Mercer missed a layup and John Moran and Rob Harmon each failed on the front end of one-and-one free throws.

Bernard McGee excelled for SC with 29 points, nine rebounds, five assists and three steals. Ken Fuster added 16 points and Moran had 12. Mark Allen's 27 points led Alpena.

Shamrocks still have what it takes the Bedford grappler a 2-1 season edge over Krueger.

By Brad Emone staff writer

The Redford Catholic Central High wrestling team is back.

The defending state Class A champion Shamrocks, who had slipped third in the state Class A rankings, made it clear Saturday in their 25th annual invitational tournament that they're still the team to beat. The meet, which attracted 16 teams, including the top four rated in Class A, saw the Shamrocks send six to the finals and one other to the consolation

Number one Temperance-Bedford, which has had the best of CC in recent tournaments and dual meets, slipped to third with 167. Birmingham Brother Rice was a close second with 169. (See statistical summary).

It was CC's third straight invitational crown and it put a smile on coach Mike Rodriguez's face. "I'm not astonished with our team strength, but in an invitational like this I was amazed because we were behind all day long," said the CC coach, who has guided the Shamrocks to seven state crowns. "I thought we'd be lucky to be in the top three (teams) and five of our guys didn't score, but we had six guys in the finals.

"And there I saw Bedford with a host of guys in the consolation and we had nobody in the wrestle-backs (consolation rounds). I could see it coming all

CC, HOWEVER, scored well in eight weight divisions, led by champions Jay Helm (145 pounds) and Chris Rodriguez (152) to claim the team title. Helm avenged an earlier loss this season to Arnett Turner of Mount Clemens by scoring an impressive 14-5 victory.

Rodriguez, meanwhile, won in a bizarre manner. After avenging a loss to Bedford's Brian Wingate in the semifinals, a pin in 2:50, the CC senior met the highly volatile Gino Chouinard of Lansing Sexton

And Chouinard erupted like a volcano before the match was even 15 seconds old, throwing an elbow at his opponent and then getting disqualified for tackling the referee, who tried to calm things down.

The other finals involving CC wrestlers were not quite as dramatic, but there were some good matches.

In the heavyweight division, CC's Lee Krueger, last year's state champion at 198 pounds, lost a 3-2 overtime decision to Bedford's Roman Rimmer. It was the third time the two had met. A late reversal move helped give rises came at 145 pounds, where Brian Tulley pinned Tom Bucks of Lansing Eastern in the semifinals before losing to Bedford's Denver Beck in the championship, a pin in 5:15.

CC's other finalist was Lou Yeager (189), who blanked Rick Lowe of Lansing Sexton in the semifinals, 5-0, before being pinned by Warren Lincoln's Ralph Amine. Two other CC wrestlers also placed, including Kevin Rowe, who was fifth at 112 and Mike Gentile, who took third at 125.

"Tulley's performance was a plus," said the CC coach. "Chris (Rodriguez) had a couple of good victories. He met two people who had beaten him before and he pinned them both.

after coming off football.' The meet, which is often a preview to the state Class A finals, had its share of outstanding individuals.

"And Lou (Yeager) is getting better each week. He's getting his legs back

The cook-it-yourself method uses a flat polished granite rock, heated in a 500-degree over and delivered to the table on a large ceramic serving tray with the dinner, ready to cook. The rock remains hot for one hour and the guest may cook his or her meal to individual taste. Dinners combine Maine lobster, fresh fish, shrimp and more. All hot rock entrees are served with pineapple, peapods and peppers, with three sauces for dipping.

Actor excels as 4 characters

Performances of "Sam and Itkeh" continue through Sunday, Jan. 29, at the Jewish Community Center in West Bloomfield. For ticket information, call 661-1000,

By Cathle Breidenbach special writer

In "Sam and Itkeh," Robert Grossman creates character with a simplicity that is nothing short of elegant.

He is mesmerizing to watch as he slips back and forth between the four characters he portrays in Jack LaZebnik's new play at the Aaron DeRoy Studio Theatre of the Jewish Community Center in West Bloomfield. With only the debonair fling of a scarf or the addition of a hat, the chameleon Grossman defines with unerring clarity the characters of Sam and Sam's gentle father, of Jacob and of the romantic Nicholas.

As if four characters weren't chalactor, Grossman also spans Sam's life from his boisterous years as a young man in love to his frustrating years as the septuagenarian husband of Itkeh. When the script calls on Grossman to play the balalaika and sing "Dark Eyes," he reaches into his seemingly bottomless satchel of talents and - voila! - he can really play the tricky triangular instru-ment and sing with a lover's tender-ness. The LaZebnick play showcases his remarkable versatility.

SAM AND ITKEH are an elderly couple living in a retirement apart-ment in Phoenix after spending the bulk of their lives in Jackson (Mich.) where Sam ran a junkyard and Itkeh ran the house and raised their chil-

The play flashes back and forth in time to illuminate climactic moments in their lives, moments that, strung together, shape a lifetime for the pair who emigrated from Russia in the early years of the century.

From the almost claustrophobic set of their cramped apartment, this play about two ordinary elderly people radiates outward in time and space to become more than the story of a marriage.

"Sam and Itkeh" echoes millions lenge enough for the veteran Detroit of immigrant stories as the play recalls the Russian villages they left behind, re-creates Itkeh's shipboard journey to America, remembers her anxiety at Ellis Island, and her panic at navigating in a new land without knowing its language or customs.

Evelyn Orbach holds her own as Itkeh in the two-person play. Despite skillful acting, her stylish brown hair undermines the image of a 75-yearold immigrant woman who, during her lucid moments, harasses Sam about the TV volume and complains non-stop about Wanda, the unseen cook in the kitchen.

When Itkeh slips into reminiscences of her past, she bemoans her unfulfilled love for Nicholas, a Russian gentile she met on the boat that brought her to America. Her senile longings for that lost love still inflame Sam after half a century of marriage. The impassioned jealousies and resentments of their youth smolder in their retirement years.

LaZebnik's lively dialogue never lags as the lovable, cantankerous pair reveal lives awash in vivid memories undiminished by time. Director Paula Kalustian capitalizes on LaZebnik's dialogue with expert pacing and movement on stage. In its utter lack of resolution, the play's ending fails to satisfy yearnings that everything turn out right. Truth triumphs over sentiment in LaZebnik's engaging play.

During the show's run, there have been a lot of unexpected incidents, such as the night "I forgot to put on my corset and couldn't go on stage."

Everyone in the cast tries to keep the show from getting stale. "We play a lot to keep it new. Chita loves the play. She cracks us up during the Beaux Arts Ball."

McMacken said she was going to visit her old high school this week to talk to students. Her drama teacher saw the show last week, with McMacken's family.

After graduating from high school, McMacken attended Point Park College in Pittsburgh, where she took an intense program in dance. She re-turned to her high school one summer to train the Athens High school football team in ballet (she had taught a similar session to the Pittsburgh Steelers). At the request of the Athens theater department, she choreographed "Anything Goes" in 1981-82, before she graduated from college in 1983.

After college, she worked on cruise ships and was line captain and dancer at the Desert Inn Hotel in Las Vegas. She appeared in the show "One of a Kind" for a year. "It was more of a family show for Vegas," she said. She said she never went

Highways paved the way to successful art career

staff writer

LIZABETH Yorgen's career as an artist is a twist on the old "if they give you lemons" adage. In her case, fate gave her highways and roads to look at and she created "The American Road Series."

This artist, now 75, went back to study fine arts at Wayne State University in her 50s. Before that she had been engrossed in raising twin daughters, Jackie and Suzanne, and taking an occassional art course in high school night school.

One night school art teacher in her hometown of Berkley, Cy Wiseman, helped her focus on what she wanted and provided a strong sense of direction.

She and her late husband had always done a lot of traveling by car, both for his business and for plea-

"He liked to do the driving (at least until they hit the big cities when she was asked to take over) so I'm sitting there with nothing to do but take pictures," she said.

She writes in a statement about the series, "The work is not intended to be a record of any specific our road system. It is, in fact, one facet of landscape from urban or wilderness, as we see it today."

While the artist means for her paintings to be generic rather than sale I've ever made.' specific as to place, there is an immediacy to them that puts the viewer at what seems to be a familiar place in the road.

As she plans her paintings and chooses to use geometric perspective, linear perspective and/or at-mospheric perspective, she said, "I always try to make it look as if we're actually on the road."

SHE LIKES TO WORK with acrylic paint in large format and often builds layers of paint to get a translucent quality to bring depth and sort of a glaze she wants for a three dimensional look.

State in the '60s, I just had a fine pression. "That was when people time. That may be why I'm always pushing the canvas

She said the logistics of sculpture (materials, casting, transporting) were the reason she took up acrylic painting. She had done about a half dozen smaller paintings before she did the 5-by 6-foot canvas of the interchange of I-75 and I-696 that won the purchase prize award at times before I paint it. By Mary Jane Doerr special writer

While many students were up north skiing on their three-day weekend, Birmingham Seaholm High School played host to 99 of the best women high school singers in Michigan.

This highly select group, the State Honors Choir, chosen from hundreds who auditioned last fall, was preparing to sing Saturday evening at Hill Auditorium for the final event of the Midwest Conference on Music.

"I heard this was the elite singing group in Michgian and I wanted to sing with them," said Seaholm student Amy Friedman, 17, of Birmingham. The soprano wants to study vocal music in college and eventually opera.

Amy wasn't alone this weekend in the long hours of rehearsals, Staying with her were Sara Stapleton, 17, and Tasha Mayo, 15, of East Lans-ing High School and Melissa Martin, 18, of Coopersville.

'For me this is a chance to sing with a serious

group," said Melissa

For others this is an opportunity to meet new friends also interested in music, Nikki Lumetta, 16, of Chippewa Valley High School, didn't know anyone when she came. Sheetal Bhagat, 16, of Andover High School found out and asked her to join the three others already staying with her.

"This is an honor to sing in this choir," said

Nikki who has sung in the group before. "I received a letter congratulating me from my state senator last year.'

Sheetal, who wants to major in vocal music in college, immediately added, "I received a letter from the vocal department of the University of Michigan. Now if I apply at the University of Michigan they will already know me." The State Honors Choir is sponsored by the Michigan State Vocal Association. Each October, 600 students are chosen and given a packet of music to memorize. In December, the group is narrowed to 300 - 100 each for the mixed choir, womens' choir and mens' choir.

If it is an honor for the young women, it is also an honor for Bruce Synder to direct the ensemble. Synder, director of vocal music at Andover High School and choir director at the West Bloomfield Covenant Baptist Church, was elected to the position by his MSVA colleagues.

Snyder had help from Randy Vanwingerden of Calvin Christian School in Grand Rapids and Tom Weesies, choir director at Seaholm. Ronald Houser, organist at Covenant Baptist, is the group's accompanist.

"We pick singers for their voice quality, sight-reading ability and their ability to memorize parts from the music given to them," said Synder.

It was Synder's job to select the eight numbers in the 25-minute program, a variety of selections

Turning 90 and still in demand

special writer

Every day at 8 a.m., Mischa Kottler, a rosy-cheeked, white-haired man, known to many as Detroit's pianist laureate, drives in his maroon 1983 Riviera to McDonald's on Nine Mile and Woodward in Ferndale for breakfast.

"For $1.09, I can get scrambled eggs, an English muffin and coffee," said Kottler, who always manages to get some food on his Pucci ties.
"Why should I pay $8 for a breakfast I can get at McDonald's for $1.09?"

McDonald's may be his choice for breakfast, but when it comes to lunch and dinner, this energetic, gifted man of 89 years puts on his best Capper & Capper suit and shines his shoes for an afternoon at Peabody's in Birmingham and an evening at Carl's Chop House in Detroit.

"I don't go there all the time, but when I do, I like to enjoy myself,"

THESE DAYS, however, Kottler said his trips to the restaurants are fewer than usual. He will play in the piano festivals at Orchestra Hall on Feb. 5 and 12, give a Cranbrook Music Guild recital on March 13 and perform the Tchaikovsky B-flat minor piano concerto with the Grosse Pointe Symphony Orchestra at Tem-ple Beth El on April 9. Kottler spends most of his days and evenings at the piano.

All four concerts mark Kottler's

He was born Michail Salganik in Kiev, Russia, on Sept. 20, 1899. He looks forward to his concerts enthusiastically, he said. And understandably so, his passion for music goes back a long way.

BACK IN 1919 in New York, when the young pianist was accompanist to the students of the great violinist and teacher Leopold Auer, it was his playing that won him an invitation to play for Rachmaninoff. That helped inspire his career in music, Kottler

"Auer just took me aside one day and told me that I was going to be playing for Rachmaninoff tomorrow," he said.

Kottler played a Bach prelude and fugue, one movement from a Beethoven sonata and a few Chopin pieces for Rachmaninoff, who Kottler said, liked his playing.

"He told me that I have good temperament and then asked if I played anything of his. When I told him that I knew his second piano concerto, he had me play the whole thing."

RACHMANINOFF WAS too busy to take on another student, Kottler said, but he was impressed with his playing and suggested he go to Europe to study.

In Europe, a new dimension opened up for Kottler. He studied with Alfred Cortot in Paris, and then with Emil von Sauer in Vienna.

"Sauer was a pupil of Franz Liszt, who was pupil of Carl Czerny, who studied for three years with Beetho-ven himself," said Kottler, beaming Kottler attributes his knowledge and appreciation of music to those great masters.

"Even though Sauer was a bad composer, he was a great teacher and planist. He gave you fingering that one would never think of," he said. "Liszt wrote great works and played terrifically. Czerny was a foundation master. At times he wrote too much of the same thing, but his finger exercises were an edu-cation. In the old days, finger technique was the schooling."

As for Beethoven, Kottler said he doesn't have enough words to de-scribe how his music has affected his

Every work of his was a masterpiece. The 32 sonatas, the five concertos, the nine symphonies, the trios — they were all great. No one can compare to Beethoven," he said.

KOTTLER HAS applied everything he had learned from the "greats" in his own teaching and much more - sometimes too much, according to some students.

Known as a strict disciplinarian, Kottler's standards for mastery are usually so high that many students often end up in tears because they can't meet his demands in the music they are studying.

"He's pretty demanding, but I'm glad that he's demanding because he forces his students to do their best," said David Strickland, 26, one of Kottler's former star pupils. Strickland, a 1986 Wayne State University graduate and 1985 Grosse Pointe Piano Competition winner, said that Kottler used to intimidate him during his lessons.

"When I first came to study with Mr. Kottler at Wayne State, I almost started crying during a lesson. But I stood up to him, and after that, I no longer felt intimidated," he said.

Kottler almost made him cry about a year ago, Strickland later

"I just wasn't playing well," he said.

"MR. KOTTLER always has some interesting anecdotes about some of the worst students he's had in the past," said Avigdor Zaromp, music critic for The Observer & Eccentric Sometimes he makes me feel like I'm the worst student he's ever had. I've been wanting to study the Rachmaninoff second piano concerto, and he always tells me, 'It's too difficult for you. It's going to take you 50 years to learn that.' I tell him, 'Good, I'm patient. We have a deal.' " Despite Kottler's critical, often sarcastic approach, students flock to him because he is one of the finest piano teachers/concert pianists around. He has helped produce such great names in music as Ruth Laredo, Cynthia Raim, Neil Stulberg, Margaret Barthel and Seymour Lip-

As a performer, he has impressed not only teachers but audiences alike since childhood. "When I was 71/2 years old, I gave a successful piano recital at the Conservatory of Kiev," Kottler said. "At the age of 9, I already had 25-30 concerts in the Ukraine.

WITH THE culmination of his studies in Europe, Kottler came back to America in 1929, In 1932 he made his Detroit Symphony Orchestra debut playing the Tchaikovsky Bflat minor piano concerto. A year later, he became musical director of WWJ Radio.

"Back then, it was all radio. I was responsible for a studio orchestra that performed for as many as eight programs a day," Kottler said.

Along with holding the director's post, Kottler performed live chamber music recitals with musicians such as Joseph Gingold and Mischa Mischakoff, and gave piano recitals.

It was a high-pressured job, but according to Kottler, it still wasn't as difficult as that of DSO's official pianist, a post he had held from 1952-70.

"WHEN SIXTEN Ehrling became conductor, he was very contemporary," Kottler said. "We did a lot of modern works with very complex rhythms. We had to count like hell. I practically played a new instrument each week. I had to play with mal-lets, tool-hammers, nail files. I used to use Coca-Cola bottles for special effects."

Never without an anecdote, Kot-tler said, "Once when I came in with Pepsi-Cola bottles, Ehrling told me that they wouldn't do, that the score called for Coca-Cola bottles."

Playing catch-up with area authors

IME TO catch up on news about a few of our local writers.

Loren Estleman sits up there in Whitmore Lake, listens hard to what Amos Walker tells him, then faithfully writes it down. The two of them just keep getting better and better. Hard to believe that Estleman created his Motor City private eye less than a decade ago.

His latest book, "Downriver," is his eighth full-length novel featuring Amos Walker short stories. The New York Times Book Review said about "Downriver," "The dialogue is crackling, the writing is unpadded, and one can smell and even taste the city of Detroit." Publishers Weekly followed suit with ". . . colorful characters, crackling dialogue, rich plot, authentic Detroit setting and hrowaway humor. . . .

"Downriver," tough, gritty with fronic humor, begins like this: "Superior rolled under a Wedgwood sky, stacking sunlight in long platinum rows and tangling in the broken rocks on the beach. Early in the afternoon a shoreward wind blew passing compact cars across the center-line and teased a pale floating piece of old decking toward land. The plank was worn smooth and poreless and round at the edges like soap. It might have been wandering the lake for 100 years, the lone survivor of a stove ship carrying coal oil and barrels of molasses and bonneted lady's Sunday surrey, rotting below Six Fathom Shoal along with skeletons swaddled in black oilskin. It might have been just a piece of old wood."

Let's hope Amos Walker minds his P's and Q's and goes on to lead a full,

JULIA GRICE, ANOTHER of our prolific resident novelists, has just sold another novel, "Black Tie Only," written with co-author Robert L. Fenton, an entertainment lawyer and television producer. (He produced "Double Standard," last fall's NBC movie based on a certain Detroit Recorder's Court judge who raised two families, unbeknownst to either of them.) Julie says of her latest, to be published this year by Contemporary, "This is a glitz novel, a big, sexy intrigue."

Westland's Rob Kantner ("The Back Door Man," "The Harder They Hit") has a new Ben Perkins novel, "Dirty Work," recently published by Bantam paperbacks. Kantner's character, Ben Perkins, is an ex-union enforcer turned private eye. He lives on a houseboat on Belleville Lake, and in this book he's out to clear the name of Alex Farr, a late-night Detroit disc jockey. Kantner's Perkins describes Farr this way: "His whole bit he calls romance, but it's really sex. Sits there and spins dreamy little ballads and talks sweet and mellow between them and takes phone calls from lonely ladies and stuff." Hmmm. Sound like someone we might have heard before? I'll be talking to Rob about his Perkins series in an upcoming column.

Livonia novelist Sarah Wolf ("Long Chain of Death,") got a belated Christmas present by way of good news from her agent. Her newest novel, "Codename: Cathleen," will be published by Simon and Schuster in the fall. The suspenseful international intrigue will be published in hardcover some time this year.

MARY GAITSKILL GREW up in Livonía and graduated from the University of Michigan where she received a Hopwood Award. Gaitskill, a New Yorker now, says her memories of Livonia are "all bad." She describes the Detroit suburbs as "incredibly neurotic" and recalls that she never seemed to fit in. Small wonder then that "Bad Behavior," her first book, recently published by Poseidon Press, is a collection of nine stories set in New York, but focusing on people who make desperate attempts at establishing emotional connections with devastating results.

On Thursday, Feb. 16, Gaitskill returns to her alma mater to read from "Bad Behavior." The program starts at 5 p.m. in the Kuenzel Room in the Michigan Union, Ann Arbor. Sponsored by the Visiting Writers Series, it is free and open to the pub-

McCord quilts at Ford Museum

in the form of exquisitely crafted quilts now graces the halls of Henry Ford Museum. Created by the talent-ed Susan McCord (1829-1909), the collection of 10 quilts is on exhibit through 1990.

The McCord quilts are prized for their quality workmanship and magnificent original designs. Constructed over four decades, the 10 pieces are a vivid representation of the life's work of a quilter. They include four pieced or patchwork quilts, three applique and three turn-of-thecentury bedcovers known as "crazy quilts.

Knowing the creator of such a large collection adds to the uniqueness of the quilts. According to Nancy Bryk, the museum's curator of domestic life, "Identifying the maker of quilts is nearly impossible since, unlike painters, quilters do not sign their work. For example, we have over 200 quilts in our collection and yet makers of only 20 of them are known," Bryk said. "Half of SUSANNAH NOAKES WAS born Oct. 7, 1829, in Decatur, Ind. Susannah, known as Susan, married school teacher Green McCord in 1849. The young couple took up farming in lowa for a short time, but ultimately settled in McCordsville, a town just east of Indianpolis founded by McCord's distant relatives. County histories portray Green McCord as an early settler and a prominent member of the community.

Susan's life and interests have been gleaned through family remin-iscences. Described as a tiny bundle of energy, Susan gave birth to seven children (four of them survived to adulthood). She was a devoted member of the McCordsville Methodist Episcopal Church. Like most farm wives, Susan was responsible for the homestead's dairy and poultry. She loved gardening and practiced homeopathic medicine using plants, needle. Not only did Susan make at least 12 quilts (two of which are privately owned), she also made clothing for her children and knitted accessories, embroidered bedsheets and produced decorative floral wreaths made of hair.

It is evident that Susan found inspiration for her designs in the vines, leaves and petals of her large garden. Two of her earliest creations, the appliqued "Harrison Rose Urn" (c. 1860) and "Fantasy Floral Urn" (c. 1860), contain stylized flowers of different species. Generally, applique quilts have identical borders along all sides; however, the innovative Susan McCord designed four different borders of trailing vines for each of the urn quilts.

RECOGNIZED AS A masterpiece,

her "Vine" quilt (c. 1890) features the undulated vine motif as its only pattern. The vivid greens and pinks sparkling against a snow-white background consist of unused fabric scraps - pieces that are unfaded and still crisp with sizing and glazes. The quilt has hardly been used and likely never been washed. It appears that this magnificent vine quilt was constructed primarily for aesthetic and activities at the state of the state and artistic, rather than utilitarian Conversely, "Diamond Field" (1870-1900) is particularly well-used and well-washed. This quilt, along with "Ocean Waves" (c. 1875) and "Hexagon Mosaic" (c. 1895), are comprised of hundreds, even thousands, of scraps of cotton. As with her other quilts, they are devoid of any machine stitching.

Cut roses still No. 1 Quilts: a farmwife's legacy

Cut roses for Valentine's Day loved ones will be selling at the rate of about 49,000 per minute across the United States. In all, a record 70 million fresh cut roses will be sold to consumers in retail stores for the Feb. 14 event, according to figures from Floral Index of Chicago.

The rose has long had the reputation as the leading floral conveyer of romance on Valentine's Day. Last year, roses represented 60 per-cent of all flowers bought for Valentine's Day,

Rose production and prices are influenced by various factors, including weather. In addition to Valentine's Day, Easter, Mother's Day and Christmas are special occasions for roses. However, it's virtually impossible biologically for a single plant to produce blooms for all four events, according to Roses Inc., the commercial growers association. The Valentine's Day favorite is the velvety, deep-red rose, which accounts for 85 percent of all roses sold for the event. Pink and yellow blooms are gaining in popularity, each accounting for about 5 percent of total rose sales.

WHEN SELECTING ROSES, look for an appealing bud form that's free of blemishes, bruises and scars. The outer petals should have just begun to unfurl, and foliage should be a deep, fresh green. A bud that's too tight may never open, and one that's too open may not last Roses last longer with proper care. Carefully cut the stems about an inch above the end, under water if possible, cutting on a long, gradual slant with a sharp knife.

Immediately place the newly cut stem in fresh, clear, barely warm water. Add a floral preservative to extend flower life. Follow this routine daily, changing to fresh water each time.

There are many ways to enjoy roses, from a single flower floating in a bowl to several blooms in an attractive container. Try different containers in various locations, changing ar-

weeder's guide

NEW FOR THE GARDEN:

A soil-free growing medium for container plants has been developed by A.E. Hoffman Inc. and is available in garden shops. Container Gar-dening Soil Mix holds water, air and nutrients and is recommended specially for use in the new indoor and outdoor self -- watering containers.

There is a tendency among conventional mixes, when used in self-watering containers with built-in water reservoirs, to draw up too much moisture and compact over time, resulting in an elimination of pore space and the ultimate suffocation of the plants. The new composition mix discourages this tendency.

The Otis Twilley Seed Co. (Trevose, Pa. 19047) has an entirely new 1989 catalog offering "ex-clusive Professional Seed Series" vegetables and vegetable recommendations best for your state, Included among its offerings are 12 Summer Flavor series hybrid sweet corns, five Summer Flavor hybrid tomatoes, three sweet peppers and three new cucumbers.

Flower seed choices also have been expanded.

there's a need,

Susan's originality is again expressed by the unusual border around the traditional pattern "Turkey Tracks" (c. 1870). Bold, contrasting stripes on opposite sides are joined by a third edge bedecked with grape bunches and striped leaves along a rip-pling vine. The fourth side is left without a border.

Around the age of 60, Susan began to sew "crazy quilts." The calico pieced and appliqued quilts may have been viewed by some as "old-fashioned" compared to late 19th-century bedcoverings. Most likely produced between 1885 and 1905, the three "crazy quilts" are made of suiting flannels and dress velvets.

Susan decorated them with fancy crewel and silk embroidery.

Susan Noakes McCord died of pneumonia in 1909 from lying injured on the ground after being kicked by a cow. Through her meticulous quilting, Susan has left Henry Ford Museum visitors a legacy of color and design, and an unbroken thread to the women of the 19th century.

There is no additional charge for the exhibit beyond regular museum admission.
