Michael P. Grogg, who described himself as a self-employed jack-ofall trades, has been charged with one count of possession of less than 50 grams of cocaine with intent to deliver. Personal bond of $25,000 was continued.

The purpose of a preliminary exam is to show that a crime was committed and probable cause that the defendant was responsible.

By waiving the exam, Grogg was automatically moved along in the le-

Grogg has no criminal history and has been cooperative with police, said Erik Mayernik, township police

"WE'RE GOING TO have to attack the search warrant," said Nicholas J. Vendittelli, Grogg's court-appointed lawyer. "We'll do that downtown (in Recorders Court). The whole thing hinges on the search."

Township police responded to a domestic dispute call to a house rented by Grogg on Northville Road at about 8 a.m. Wednesday, April 5.
A small boy initially invited officers into the house, police reported. After finding drug paraphernalia during a cursory check of the house, police obtained a warrant to do a more thorough search, Mayernik

THE STATE POLICE crime lab has determined that 13 minipackets in one large package confiscated from the house contained just over 20 grams of cocaine, Mayernik said.

Police also confiscated four guns, drug paraphernalia - including measuring spoons, funnels, grinders and scales — ledger books and nearly $700 cash, Mayernik said.

"There were a lot of people that stayed at the house," Vendittelli said. "It was his residence, but to say all that stuff belonged to him is a little over-reaching.'

Grogg could face a prison term of up to 20 years and a fine of up to $25,000 if convicted of the drug

Plymouth Amoco given cleanup plan deadline

By M.B. Dillon

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources has given Amoco Oil Co. until May 1 to submit a work plan regarding the underground fuel oil contamination at the corner of Ann Arbor Trail and Main Street in Plymouth.

By May 17, Amoco must furnish the DNR with "a conceptual design of a corrective action plan to address all the remaining contamina-tion," said David Rymph, DNR environmental quality manager.

"It's a pretty tight schedule, but we're committed to a 30-day deadline. We're prepared to do whatever is necessary to resolve this matter. This has gone on too long," said Rymph. The deadlines were agreed upon by DNR and Amoco officials at a meeting Monday

The contamination is the result of a leak from an underground heating oil tank at the Amoco service station on the southeast corner of Ann Arbor Trail and Main, according to a study done by Neyer, Tiseo & Hindo Ltd., an Amoco consultant.

The leaking began sometime before Doug Swatosh leased the Amoco station in 1979. Amoco studies and cleanup efforts date to 1970.

So much fuel oil is present in the soil and groundwater around and beneath the service station, Mayflower Meeting House and Box Bar and Grill that the DNR is adding the area to its list of contaminated sites.

AMOCO SPOKESMAN. Walt Brown said the company plans to comply with the DNR.

"I would say that we have ample evidence of being responsible corporate citizens, especially in these kinds of matters. Our policy is to address these things as promptly as possible.

"I think in this case the main thing that has caused the delay is that the person who was working on this originally left our employment and had to be replaced," said Brown. "That took a good bit of time. There aren't many hydrologists around."

Amoco could be fined tens of thousands of dollars under "multiple statutes as well as multiple court decisions" that require oil companies to maintain sites, and to restore sites to their original uncontaminated condition, Rymph said. Fines will be set after a civil action is filed by the state attorney general's office.

The DNR has ordered Amoco to take steps to more closely "deter-mine the vertical and horizontal extent of contamination," said Rymph. "We have concerns particularly to the west, toward the Box Bar, and to the northwest, toward Ann Arbor

If the spirits of Plymouth-Canton school board members were sagging over the district's financial situation, they were soaring by the end of a citizen's group presentation at Monday's workshop.

District voters will be asked in a June 12 election to approve 4 new mills for two years, and to renew 8 mills. School officials say $3.1 million in cuts will be necessary if the millages don't pass. Layoff notices have already gone out to 119 teachers to meet time lines mandated by

The I CARE Citizens Election Committee was conceived in November to help pass the millage requests, said Dick Egli, administrative assistant for community relations and millage manager. Monday, committee members outlined their strategy, updated the board on their activities and reported that feedback from the community has been positive.

Committee co-chairman Jack Farrow said subcommittees are working on promotion, publicity and voter registration. Residents and school employees have offered to work election day, to staff a speakers bureau and operate a phone bank.

"The promotion committee is distributing 'I CARE' buttons and stickers. Later it will be brochures," said

So far, "the speakers bureau has received 27 requests," he added. Voter registration volunteers are

Suburban students address racism on college campus

See related editorial

Racial tensions are increasing on state college campuses. Not since the 1960s have our state universities been faced with such a volatile issue. Suburban students, black and white, find themselves surrounded by, and involved in, this controversy. It rages from Wayne State, where a sit-in by black students continued through the week, to the University of Michigan, where debate rages over a pro-posed anti-racism class, to Michi-gan State, where black student and parent groups have demand-ed a list of changes.

Though circumstances differ universities, the challenge remains the same: black and white students struggling to learn in harmony while their parents live in a society which remains overwhelmingly segregated.

About a dozen monitoring wells al-ready are in place. Last fall, 1,000 gallons of oil were removed from a dwater collection system Amoco installed in July. Air samples taken from an office in the Mayflower Meeting House and soil taken from borings in the Meeting House basement showed concentrations of benzene, toluene, ethylbenzene and xylene, all hydrocarbon contaminants.

The corrective action plan due May 17 is "to address all the remaining contamination," said Rymph. We have ordered Amoco to immediately begin free product (fuel oil) removal, and they will do that by bailing the wells. They will submit to us as part of their conceptual design. by May 17, more effective measures to complete the free product remov-

"They can't present to me a design they haven't already at least run by the adjacent property owners," said

Swatosh, Ralph Lorenz of the Mayflower Meeting House and Chip Falcusan, owner of the Box Bar, declined comment until they have more information.

AMOCO ISN'T sure yet what cleanup method it will recommend, said Brown. Neither Brown nor Rymph could say whether it will be necessary to evacuate the buildings while the contamination is being re-

There are several cleanup options, none of which necessitate leveling all or part of any of the involved buildings, said Rymph and Brown.

You can essentially leave the earth in place, and clean up what's there by means of pumping from the wells to where the underground hydrocarbons are, and bringing them up," Brown said.

"The other way is to remove the soil that has the hydrocarbons in it. A third possibility would be a combination, where we in effect remove some of the soil, and leave soil intact in other places," said Brown. "We will present them with a variety of options, and see which one is the Rymph, who has 10 years' experience in environmental enforcement with the DNR and the private sector, said more information is needed before he can advocate a particular cleanup method.

The Plymouth site was on a 1979 DNR list of contaminated areas. The DNR hasn't acted on the case in part due to "a severe staffing problem in this district that is just now being addressed," said Rymph.

The car wash parking lot is a popular gathering spot for young people. Many cars were at the do-it-yourself car wash at the time, Myers said.

Plymouth police, assisted by Plymouth Township police and fire department personnel from both communities, needed 45 minutes to extricate Morrison from the car.

Wet pavement may have played a part in the accident.

"It had rained prior to the acci-

Myers called the accident "one of the more serious we have had in a long time. We're very concerned for the young lady.

The last fatal accident in Plymouth occurred in the 1970s.

Area U.S. Postal Service employees said business was booming Monday. And most of the people scurrying to send in their forms said they were there by choice.

Jim Otto, also of Plymouth, said he, too, puts off making the payment until the last minute.

"This time I got fooled - I'm getting money back, which didn't disappoint me," Otto said.

The unidentified woman, who had just left the post office on Penniman Avenue, reported that the line inside

"moved real fast." Outside, cars lined up waiting to deposit mail in the curbside boxes across the street.

Postmaster John Mulligan said the volume was "just a little heavier than a normal Monday," which is traditionally a heavy mailing day.

The last day for mailing tax returns is usually April 15, but since that came on a weekend this year, the government gave taxpayers until Monday at midnight to have their paperwork postmarked.

Some last-minute filers said it simply took them a long time to do all the paperwork.

"It's because of the complication of doing things," said Otto. "I took our stuff to the CPA about two months ago, but they don't rush."

Bob Emerson, who got his forms in the mail shortly before the post office was to close Monday, was philosophical about the whole ordeal.

"There's really not much you can do except pay your taxes and be thankful you live in a country that's free," said Emerson of Northville. "I think that it's a tough time of the year, and . . . everybody's a little short tempered."

Mulligan's assessment of his customers' dispositions was this: "They seem more aggressive, probably because they're paying money out they don't want to pay."

"It seems to be a very popular event with all age groups," said Liz Barker, site coordinator for Project Health-O-Rama at Starkweather Center in Plymouth.

The annual project is sponsored locally by Blue Cross/Blue Shield of Michigan, WXYZ-TV Channel 7, the United Health Organization, Oakwood Hospital and Plymouth-Canton Community Education. The all-day event was held Tuesday, April 18, at Starkweather Center.

A number of free tests were offered, including those for blood pressure, pulmonary function (lung capacity), vision, glaucoma, hearing, height and weight. Skin cancer screening, oral cancer screening and medical/nutrition counseling were offered as well.

'We have a podiatrist checking feet," said Barker, a Plymouth Township resident who works as job placement coordinator for Plymouth-Canton Community Education.

A BLOOD chemistry test was offered for $10, and colorectal cancer screening kits sold for $3.

The crowds at Project Health-O-Rama were keeping M.J. Essen-macher busy. Essenmacher, clinical coordinator at Oakwood Canton Health Center, worked with Barker as a site coordinator for the event.

"Last year, we had about 400 peo ple," said Essenmacher, a Cant resident. This year's event was likely to attract at least that many. Essenmacher also was planning to go through the tests.

"The blood tests are always a big draw," she said. The skin cancer screening, offered for the first time this year, was also popular.

"What Health-O-Rama is is a screening," said Essenmacher, a registered nurse.

AN INFUSION of $500,000 to $750,000 could be available for the general fund if the bonds can be paid well in advance of their 20-year maturity, Graham said.

"There are several things we want to accomplish with the new crypts," he said. "Number one, pay for renovations to the old crypts. Number two, to build up the (cemetery) perpetual care fund.

"Also, we're looking at ways of creating new revenue sources in general and that's one way," Graham said. "The cemetery is about the only earning asset the city has."

ton Simmons of Southfield, is talking about racism on campus and how hard campus life can be for a black student from the suburbs. "They (fellow blacks) isolated me.

I came in with open arms, but they came off, 'You're from Southfield, you don't understand where I'm coming from.' "he said.

"Living in the suburbs doesn't exclude you from what's going on. Sure, I've always had a roof over my head, and clothes on my back, but I'd come up against racism in the sub-urbs. We've had shared experiences," the 1985 Southfield High gradu-

THAT SAME day, three University of Michigan students sit in their apartment discussing the proposed, controversial requirement that would have all U-M students take a class designed to combat racism.

"I'm not sure whether there should be one required course," said Jeniser Yorke. "I think it should go down to the middle school or high school level." Most racial views and stereotypes are set long before college agrees Erin Flaharty. "If you reach this stage it's going to take a lot more than a class to change you."

Roommate Lisa Williams disagrees. "Definitely, there should be a class, especially at a campus that's known for its racist attitudes. Education is the key to breaking down all the barriers.'

Yorke and Flaharty, both of West Bloomfield, are white. Williams, of Chicago, is black.

Flaharty said her other friends, before they knew Williams' name. would consciously not refer to her as the "black one" like they might refer to Yorke as the "blonde one."

"I am aware that no one will say that. It's another indication that there is racism here, if people will not use a generic term like that without fear of offending her."

BRIAN BARON is comfortably seated in the center of the Michigan State Student Union building.

"If you go someplace around here, 90 percent of the time you'll find whites sitting with whites and blacks sitting with blacks," the white, Rochester Hills student said, his eyes fixed on his questioner.

Simmons said he hasn't experienced much overt racism at Wayne State, though he hears "racial slurs now and then."

It (racism on campus) is worse than I first perceived it . . . People here think all blacks here are on a free ride. They think we get things handed to us (but) I've had to work for everything I've earned here."

Simmons transferred to Wayne State because of its Journalism Institute for Minorities, which director Ruth Seymour describes as a "fasttrack, honors" program for talented blacks. "It (the institute) helps with phone numbers or contacts, it open some doors for you, but you've still got to do it yourself."

Yorke and Flaharty said the University of Michigan is probably no more or no less racist than their hometowns.

It's there, not in the universities where solutions may lie.

"It has to start at home," said Dina Khoury of Beverly Hills and a graduate of Birmingham Groves High School, president of the American-Arab Anti-Discrimination Committee at U-M. "But if people come from small towns in northern Michigan and have never seen a black person and never met a Jew, they come here with these set ideas. And education is the key to everything."

Staff reporters Tom Henderson and Dave Varga contributed to this report. It was written by Wayne Peal.

Tracey Klinect of Livonia chose to live with a black roommate at Michigan State University but acknowledged that while they were friendly, they rarely socialized together outside the dorm.

Officials report 'quiet' progress at 3 campuses

By Tim Richard staff writer

State universities say they are quietly doing a lot of work to recruit black faculty and students that hasn't caught public attention.

University of Michigan president James Duderstadt is on record with repeated speeches on "cherishing diversity" rather than being an ethnic

"melting pot." Although the College of Literature, Science and Arts received much coverage of a faculty vote against specific courses on racism and sexism, Duderstadt's office has produced "Michigan Mandate," a strategic plan for diversity now being circulated to U-M colleges. U-M hired 19 black faculty last summer compared to a previous high of nine new black hires. The "Mandate" contains 14 specific recommendations for improving numbers of black faculty, students and

In U-M's School of Social Work, every course specifically addresses race and ethnicity. Entire courses in the School of Education address ethnic questions, Duderstadt's office

IN ADDITION, the university is using grants to improve the "eduction pipeline" - the K-12 schools which provide future college students, specifically, computer science study labs in Ann Arbor and Detroit public schools.

U-M boasts its Center for Afro American and African Studies is one of the top such programs in the country. Duderstadt was in Washington, D.C., and unavailable for direct com-

Wayne State University spokesmen said the $163,000 budget for the Center for Black Studies understates what the Detroit-based number three school spends to help blacks. Overlooked items, according to the university:

• Fringe benefits, utilities and maintenance, which are separately budgeted in other WSU accounts.

 Extensive library collections on African-American subjects. Courses on African-American subjects in other departments. · A five-year increase of 36 percent in numbers of black faculty from 73 in 1983 to 99 last fall.

 A faculty that is 7.5 percent black in a nation where only 3.1 percent of the pool of people with appropriate degrees are black. Wayne boasts a higher percentage of black faculty than any Big 10 or any Urban 13 institution.

 More black deans and vice presidents than any major university in the nation outside of "historically black universities." But it acknowledged WSU is short of black department chairs, despite "repeated efforts to change."

· A set-aside of $150,000 a year for to make "attractive financial offers to black and Hispanic candidates for faculty positions."

What students are seeking

Students at the state's three mafor public universities are speaking out against racism and what they view as a growing tolerance of it on and off college campuses.

Some students believe one solution to the problem may lie in the classroom. Here's a look at what student protesters at Wayne State University, University of Michigan and Michigan State University are

Students seek more space for the black studies center and its designation as a separate department and heavier recruitment of black students. In addition, they want all faculty to teach a course on Africana and recognize Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday and the date of Malcolm X's assassination as holi-

The United Coalition Against Racism at U-M has been demanding a mandatory course on racism and other forms of discrimination since a series of racial incidents began triggering protests two years ago.

The proposals by a group of U-M faculty members, would have required students in U-M's College of Literature, Science and the Arts to take one of 40 or 50 classes that would explore issues of race, ethnicity and discrimination. Faculty rejected the proposal by a 140-120 vote two weeks ago.

Nearly a year ago, the university ruled that all students take a course that emphasized international and multicultural experiences and explore issues such as racism, sexism and ethnic bias.

A spokesman for the Black Student Alliance at MSU, said he is encouraged by the university's re-cial aid each time it increases tuition; it also seeks private gifts for scholarships.

Michigan State University president John DiBiaggio said administrators will meet personally with every student group that has expressed concern about racism on

Tribute set for Canadian Vietnam vets

It's a new twist on the Vietnam War: a war that was undeclared but took the lives of 58,000 Ameri-can soldiers.

Seventy Canadian citizens, who voluntarily enlisted and fought as soldiers in the American armed forces, also died in that war.

Plans are under way in July to honor all Canadian citizens who voluntarily enlisted in the Vietnam

Their enlistment is an irony of opposites. Some American men who were U.S. residents chose to go the other way and take up residence in Canada to resist the draft because Canada chose uninvolvement in the Vietnam War.

"Canadians who served in Vietnam with the U.S. military are considered mercenaries and traitors by their government and have never received a word of thanks for their sacrifices in Southeast Asia," said Ed Johnson, a Vietnam combat veteran.

A native of Livonia, Johnson now is living in Farmington Hills.

Johnson is chairing the "Welcome Home Canadian Vietnam Veterans" event, sponsored by nine veteran groups, which will be held at the Michigan State Fairgrounds in Detroit June 30 to July 4.

The public event is expected to draw Vietnam vets from as far away as Australia and New Zealand

Before he left the armed services, Johnson earned a graduate equivalency diploma. Johnson, who grew up in Livonia, later attended Madonna College in Livonia and studied psychology.

Johnson has lived in Farmington Hills for 14 years. His wife, Kathy, is a nurse at Botsford General Hospital, Farmington Hills.

PROCEEDS FROM donations will be used to help build a monument in honor of Canadian Vietnam vets in their country.

Johnson, 40, served in the 19th Division, U.S. Army, for almost 15 months during 1969 and 1970. He is a social work technician at New Horizons, Farmington Hills, which provides vocational training for the physically and mentally handicapped, ages 18-50.

Johnson has participated in fund-raising events for veterans and has helped with job placement for vet-

A mercenary, by definition, is a professional soldier hired by a foreign country.

According to unofficial reports, mainly from veterans groups, as many as 30,000 Canadians voluntarily enlisted in the U.S. armed services during the Vietnam War.

"Many of the Canadians I talked to said they felt so bad when they returned. They were trying to fight a war against the Communists. With all the draft dodgers, they replaced them. Many suffer the same ill effects as U.S. Vietnam veterans from Agent Orange, wounds and post-combat trauma," said John-

"They fought a war that a lot of Canadians thought was illegal. I had one Canadian in my unit, but I never realized so many had volunteered. Neither does 90 percent of the Canadian population.

Johnson was drafted into the war in 1969, a victim of a numbered lottery, which determined a man's draft priority through chance.

He had dropped out of Livonia Franklin High. "I was just kicking around in some fly-by-night job, just making enough money to par-

"I came home and my mom was crying. My dad just sort of smiled and handed me the letter. It said, 'Greetings.'

Johnson saw active duty in the Mekong Delta and later Cambodia. "In April 1970, we went into Cambodia with a reinforced company of 200 and when we came back in June 1970, we had 68 people."

$10,000 antique violin returned day after theft

staff writer

John Gajec, long-time leader of the Redford Civic Symphony Orches-tra, is no longer playing the blues af-ter his $10,000 antique violin, which was stolen Sunday, was returned Monday.

"For a while I thought I'd never see it again, and I felt a lot of anxiety," said Gajec, who has been the orchestra's leader for 33 years. "I had a name tag on it and I was hoping that someone who knew me would return it."

THE VIOLIN and its $1,500 bow were taken from Gajec's car sometime after 5 p.m. following the orchestra's season-ending concert Sunday in Thurston High School, Schoolcraft west of Beech Daly in Redford.

"My brother and I were loading our instruments in our station wagons, which were the only two cars in the parking lot, after the concert," said Gajec, 71, an instrumental music teacher and band leader for 28 years at Redford Union High before retiring in 1979.

"The cars were left unattended for only a matter of minutes, but that was time enough for someone to take the violin and bow that were in a protective case.

Saginaw man heads county park system

Wayne County's new parks direc-tor is Hurley Coleman, former recre-ation administrator for the City of Saginaw.

Coleman, 36, was introduced to county staff Wednesday morning.

County Executive Edward McNamara said Colemen's "positive energy" made him the top choice of the seven candidates interviewed for

The county executive also praised Coleman for keeping Saginaw parks operating last year despite a 52 percent budget reduction. To do so, Coleman tapped outside financing sources and instituted user fees for selected parks activities. User fees could be implemented for planned Wayne County parks activities, including paddle boats, a water slide and wave pool. Coleman implemented a wave pool and water slide during his tenure in Saginaw.

COLEMAN REPLACES Eric Reickel in the post. Reickel, county parks director since 1904, resigned last month to become parks director for the City of Lansing, Reickel and McNamara had differed over the need for a county parks millage, with McNamara preferring user fees and outside revenue sources to a new

With Wayne County nearing a site announcement for its new jail, a western Wayne County legislator has re-introduced a set of bills that would allow the facility to be privately built and operated. State Sen. R. Robert Geake, R-Northville, recently re-introduced the series of bills that would allow Wayne County and Michigan's other 82 counties to hire private contractors to construct and staff new jail

A two-day hearing on the bills is expected to conclude this morning in

Although the bills died before coming to a floor vote last year, Geake said two modifications should increase their chances for approval this time around.

"Private jails could only be used to house misdemenants and they couldn't replace a current jail," Geake said. "We feel that overcomes two major objections."

Privatization would allow the new county jail to be built more rapidly, Geake said.

"We've seen information that indicates a private jail could be built could take up to three years," he

The modifications haven't lessened the opposition of jail deputies

"We consider this (private jails) a step backward," said Don Cox, leader of the union representing Wayne County deputies. "We've worked hard to improve our standards and this tells our people they're not important. It tells them that anyone can do the job." AFSCME LOCAL 502, the county deputies' union, is banding together with unions representing Oakalnd and Macomb county deputies to block the legislation.

"The problem is that there isn't enough jail space, but labor costs didn't create the problem," Cox said. "The space problem wasn't sparked because we have public jails, the problem came because the politicians were afraid to tell the public just how much new jails would cost."
Sheriff Robert Ficano said he wouldn't object to a privately built jail, but drew the line at private

"There's all kinds of problems," Ficano said. "What if they go on last year, said the modifications weren't improvements

"I can show you individuals who are in for misdemeanors who have a long felony record," he said.

Wayne County voters approved a new one-mill tax last summer to build the new jail. Site selection has narrowed to Hamtramck or Highland Park, though county officials are discounting a proposal that would build a smaller jail in each community. The new jail is intended to hold misdemeanor suspects, those involved in drunken driving and pet-

ALTHOUGH OVERTIME for jail deputies has been a key issue in budget battles between Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara and Sheriff Robert Ficano, Cox said the issue has been greatly exaggerated.

Of the unions' 500 jail deputies, 250 receive annual wages of about $18,000, Cox said. The rest receive wages of between $15,000 and

'McNamara has made a great deal about the $80,000 deputies, but that was about 10 guys working a lot of overtime when we had shortages,"

? Youth agency eyes former Inkster school

Youth Living Centers, a private agency that helps abused and runschool in Inkster by next January.

The non-profit agency is buying the vacant school building, south of Cherry Hill a block west of Middle belt, to expand its services.

Youth Living Centers plans to spend $1.3 million on acquiring, re-novating and equipping the building, and needs another $400,000 to start the renovation. Agency leaders hope to raise that amount by Sept. 1.

Youth Living Centers runs a variety of programs including counseling to youth and their families, shelters for runaway youngsters, and foster and group homes for abused and neglected children.

Ouida Cash, YLC executive director, led a tour of the former Harrison School. The center is purchasing the school and adjacent nine acres on a land contract from Wayne-Westland Community Schools.

THE BUILDING, formerly part of the Cherry Hill school district that was annexed by Wayne-Westland nearly three years ago, is boarded up and deteriorating.

The only group now using the former school is a neighborhood crime prevention group which occupies one

Cash said. "It will be a place that turn to. It will be a home that will be forever open to them and will wel-come them back, whether for a reunion visit or for help and counsel-

The center recently received a fi-nancial shot in the arm from the Skillman Foundation, a private organization, which donated $140,000 for a new roof at the former school and another $72,000 for fund-raising efforts. Another grant helped YLC develop a volunteer program.

Youth Living Centers has completed all the projects funded by the Skillman grants, the first major monies received in the current fund

YOUTH LIVING Centers is based in several buildings near St. Norbert Catholic Church on Inkster Road at

Cash said moving into the old school will put all the administrative offices, now spread out in Westland, Wayne, and Inkster, under one roof. Only the residential programs, such as groups homes, would not be affected by the move.

The new center would provide more private and secure therapy rooms and allow Counterpoint, which provides temporary shelter

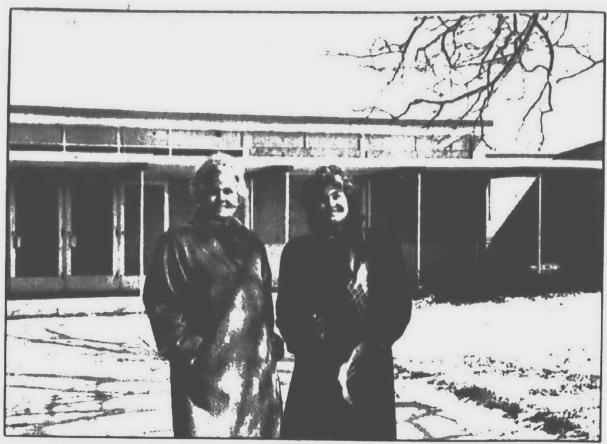

The planned move also would imhe fester care program for treating sexually and physically abused children, allowing YLC to boost its service 30 percent and provide foster care homes for at least 20 new children in the first year of operation, Cash said.

THE ADOPTION program can be expanded 25 percent because the move will allow YLC to hire more staffers and have more space.

While residential group homes in Westland will remain, the additional space at the Harrison building willallow the organization to include a house-parent recruitment and improved training for couples who must live, work, and counsel youths 24 hours a day, seven days a week,

When the renovation is completed, the new gym and auditorium will make it possible to offer recreation and leisure time activities not only to youths in YLC group homes, but to all children served by the agency,

The center also can use the nine acres of undeveloped land surrounding the building for athletic and organized physical activities for voungsters. Children in the neighborhood will also be allowed to use the playground.

Anti-racketeering bill: threat to business

By Tim Richard staff writer

A state Senate committee is drafting an anti-racketeering bill to plug whole in Michigan's criminal code.

But civil libertarians are warning senators against writing a law that local prosecutors can easily abuse. Traditional law enforcement looked at one crime, one trial, one defendant. It can't deal with this (a business racket)," said supporter George Best II, an assistant U.S. attorney and former assistant Wayne County prosecutor.

"This allows tracing of assets," Best told Chairman Rudy Nichols of the Senate Judiciary Commmittee

Best said Nichols' Senate Bill 124 is needed because a single conviction of one person fails to put a continuing racket out of business.

But one committee member, Richard Fessler, R-Commerce, said in an interview he has "a problem" with the bill. "It's too broad. It can be used to go after anybody for anything - a utility; a businessman who's a potential political opponent.

"It's modeled after the federal (racketeering) statute. But except for Ivan Boesky, they've never had a conviction under it," said Fessler, an attorney who has done criminal de-business assets can be seized. Among the cases he cited:

• A gambler took in $700,000 a week. But law enforcers could seize only the $2,000 they found on his premises. "His illegal gambling money stayed in his bank accounts."

• A section defining "enterprise" covers "everyone and every organization. It's not confined to organized crime. Even anti-abortion protestors have found themselves in the net." · A "pattern" of racketeering acyears — or in 25 years, if a pridit sentence occurred. Denefeld called

• The bill's seizure provisions are so broad that it looks as if a defendant couldn't even pay his attorney. "We put a premium on the Sixth Amendment right of the best defense they're able to pay for," said Denen-

 Among "horror stories" of anti-racketeering laws in other states, he cited a Seattle prosecutor who used the law to prosecute people illegally digging clams.

Bookstores can be put out of business for two convictions for two books. It (the statute) is not intended for that, but it can be used that way.

This bill puts a great deal of discretion in a local prosecutor's hands; You should consider some kind of control (over use of the law) in the attorney general's hands," he said.

Censorship

We all suffer when it happens

HE TROOPS manned their battle stations last week when a school board member allied with Citizens for Better Education visited Plymouth-Canton High

And just as with any war, the innocent civilians were caught in no man's land of trying to decided who is right.

But just as in a war, both sides are to blame, and the result could well be that we are all losers because of the assault on academic freedom and the controversy that could erupt in a year when two school millages and a school board seat are

What happened was that Barbara Graham, a school board member elected with the help of CBE, decided to check out the English department because in her terms, "That's where some of our controversy comes from."

CBE contends that the school system encourages devil worship through some of the materials used in schools. CBE opposes the 8-mill renewal and 4 additional mills on the June 12

On her jaunt, Graham found paintings she said were depressing, and a weekly newspaper she found objectionable. She demanded to know the names of the students who had read the paper.

There was also an exchange between Graham and a student over Satanism in the classroom. After Graham looked at the paintings, a student said, as a joke, "None of the paintings are Satan-

Graham replied, "Why? Is that important in teachers what and how to teach. this class?"

Finding Satanism in the classroom is like finding human faces in cloud formations. If you look hard enough, you'll see one. You'll see it in the classroom, too, especially if you take everything a kid says seriously.

We object to the baiting of kids. The kid takes it as a joke, and the adult takes it as a sign that Satan is holding his own in the classroom.

Incidents like this allow CBE to perpetuate the myth that Satanism is being taught in the classroom. CBE's claim is a cheap trick to put God on their side and a ploy to attract voters to their

While we disagree with CBE, its tactics and goals, we think school board members and the millages.

While we disagree with CBE, its tactics and goals, we think school board members and the public have a right to look at materials used in classrooms.

public have a right to look at materials used in

However, we think Graham overstepped the bounds of good taste, manners and professionalism by questioning materials used by a teacher in front of her students.

The school board meeting is the place to question teachers' materials.

Graham's actions smack of censorship. When ideas are banned, children suffer. They have to enter a complex world where the fairy tales of kindergarten don't suffice. Sheltering them now doesn't help.

The incident gives those opposed to CBE the argument that if more CBE members or fellow travelers are elected to the school board, they will be walking into classrooms and telling

That's a powerful argument for those who believe in freedom in the classroom. We count ourselves as members of that group.

However, we just hope that those opposed to CBE and Graham's actions don't become too shrill when Graham's visit is discussed at an April 24 school board meeting.

Teachers have the right to use acceptable materials in classrooms and display whatever art they think is appropriate.

But teachers should realize that a school board member also has the right to see firsthand what's going on in the classroom.

Let's just hope this issue gets put to rest so school officials and voters can look at school

A contrast in styles tells a political tale

POWERBROKERS exist at every turn - school boards, city hall, state legislature and, of course, those distant political cousins who play the power game inside what has commonly become known as the beltway Washington, D.C.

Close to home we have the opportunity to examine a study in contrast - two political figures. Their differences serve as a grim lesson on how we, as a political society, have changed over the decade.

CASE STUDY ONE: Barbara Graham is a first-term school board member whose recent actions are to be less-than-admired.

Every community has such leaders - people whose ideology gets in the way of their common sense. Political pitch matters not. They come from the left, right and center. Often times their ardor actually harms the cause they seek to perpetuate. his. Graham happens to ply her tactics in Plymouth/Canton.

Ms. Graham belongs to a group whose name seeks to describe its intent - Citizens for a Better Education. Certainly an admirable goal. But as our system of government allows, not everyone interprets better education as ridding schools of teaching materials which supposedly promote witchcraft and the occult.

Apparently Ms. Graham includes that number a Detroit area newspaper - Metro Times.

Not everyone interprets better education as ridding schools of teaching materials which supposedly promote witchcraft and the occult.

Now most people familiar with that publication would think it a silly notion to describe the weekly tabloid in that way. In truth it's a rather avant garde publication, covering entertainment and politics in what is commonly known as an "alternative" slant.

In other words, it's a paper that is read mostly by younger adults, those interested in blues and jazz and/or left-thinking politics.
Recently Ms. Graham launched a one-person classroom invasion, removing a copy of the paper during her sweep, announcing she thought the publication inappropriate for the

As a lesson for students in the democratic process, Ms. Graham's actions fall far short. Really Ms. Graham, in a democracy we follow process to air our grievances. We don't use jackboot tactics to intimidate teachers and students.

CASE STUDY TWO: One of the first school board members I ever covered was Southfield's Leonard Teicher. Back in the early 1970s Teicher was one of the first school board members in the state to fight for equal funding in women's sports not a popular subject with school administrators who, many times, were old jocks and former coaches.

But Leonard cared in a way which made most everyone feel they should listen. Ardent, yes, but never abusive of the system. Rather, he learned the political system and used it to meet his goal. Gradually, he won more and more advocates over to his side...

Because of people like Leonard, women, and consequently society, have prospered.

Leonard died this week at a tooyoung 54. Too bad. Ms. Graham could have learned a lot from him. I know I did.

Battling racism

Tolerance must be taught early

TUDENTS CALLING FOR mandatory studies addressing racism, sexism and discrimination at Michigan's three largest public universities are playing catch-up. Racial tensions at the University of Michigan,

Michigan State University and Wayne State University have students suggesting and educators considering whether part of the solution lies in the classroom.

And it may be so.

But the classrooms we should be looking to, in the long run, are those that these college students . came from - the high schools, middle schools and elementary schools across this state and oth-

For although political activism historically has begun on the college campus, students' views are shaped, and sometimes cemented, well before then — in the families, communities and schools where they spend their growing up years.

In fact, as the populations in our suburbs grow more diverse, our high schools more and more have become backdrops for the testing of values. In most cases, the tensions are seen and dealt with within the school walls before a public disturbance erupts.

EXAMPLES INCLUDE:

 West Bloomfield High School in past years took the leaders of diverse student groups at that school on weekend retreats to help them learn to know and trust one another.

• Bloomfield Hills Schools have held workshops to educate their administrators and teachers about the backgrounds of the growing minorities moving into a district which only a few years ago was nearly 100 percent white.

 Birmingham Schools, prompted by an incident between skinheads and blacks, is working on solutions to address its growing minority popula-

 Southfield Schools, which has been dealing with minorities for much longer, puts a major emphasis on Black History Month and for years has been calling off school for the major Jewish holidays.

• Wayne-Westland Community Schools last fail formed a Human Relations Task Force in response to the increasing minority enrollment there. That group's ion includes examining staff development opportunities, reviewing curriculum and textbooks and reviewing school recognises of marin Lather King Day.

The classrooms we should be looking to, in the long run, are those college students came from - the high schools, middle schools and elementary schools.

THESE WELL-INTENTIONED solutions are only stopgaps.

It's becoming increasingly obvious that a more long-range, in-depth, statewide solution to the problem is needed.

And that is what the U-M, MSU and WSU activists are calling for: required courses, but in the public schools, particularly the high schools, as adult attitudes are forming.

"It has to start at home," said U-M student Dina Khoury of Beverly Hills who is president of the American-Arab Anti-Discrimination Committee at U-M and a member of the university's United Coalition Against Racism.

"But if people come from small towns in northern Michigan and have never seen a black person and never met a Jew, they come here with these set ideas. And education is the key to Most racial views and stereotypes are set long before college echoed another U-M student, Erin Flaharty of West Bloomfield.

"If you reach this stage it's going to take a lot more than a class to change you."

NO, THE STUDENT protesters aren't wrong. They're trying to remedy a situation, where they can - on the college campuses where they see the results of intolerance and bigotry bred in the hometowns across Michigan and across America. The true solution lies in attacking the problem right there, in those hometowns.

Michigan public schools should institute a K-12 curriculum which teaches students in meaningful ways about racial and ethnic issues and shows that the social contributions of minorities are respected and valued.

It should climax at the high school level with a class required to graduate.

It's hard to imagine a more important course of study than to learn to live with and respect our fellow Americans

CBE trying to trash schools

Finally, it becomes clear, as the Committee to Bash Education (Committee for Better Education) moves back into the spotlight, that its goal is the destruction of our public schools. They do not seek to improve except by tearing down. Working from the same philosophical base as the extreme religious right (surely their alleged 2,800 supporters are not local, and likely from out of state), their stand on the millage renewal and desperately needed additional mills shows that they would first destroy, before they forced their Ayatollah-like approach to edu-cation (or non-education) on our chil-

To the editor:

It is unfortunate that our children's education is again dependent upon an upcoming election. I am concerned that time, energy and front page coverage continue to be expended on the millage.

> I view the Observer's front page coverage of this "news" with mixed feelings. Yes, our children need wha the ballot can yield. True, if our chil dren suffer, our neighborhoods will suffer from turned off kids and low ered property values. However, this is not news. Front page coverage a this time will cause your readers to tire of it long before June 12. Fron page articles on Citizens Bitter toward Education further discourage readers from helping to better public education.

The Observer reports on many fine programs in our community However, the front page would no encourage me to move into the neighborhood. Your articles on good positive educational opportunities have a positive effect on community pride, reinforce education's social value and encourage our talented youth to pursue education as an honorable profession.

Please do not bury them all inside the paper. Could you please spend the front page space to praise programs we now have and the honorable people who make us proud.

The one about never losing an election was more than a rationalization. Her point was that a candidate learns and grows from electioneering. In her case, I'm sure it made her a better Schoolcraft trustee.

IN THE EARLY days, the college district elected three trustees at large and one from each of the member districts - Clarenceville, Garden City, Livonia, Northville and Plymouth - regardless of popula-

The late Sam Hudson, a pioneer Schoolcraft trustee and author of the college history, recalled that Raymond was his rival for a 1965 atlarge seat. While she carried her home base of Livonia, voters in the smaller districts ganged up and gave a majority to Hudson, of Plymouth. With that political pattern, little

Plymouth, then with just 20 percent of the college district's population, wound up with four of the eight board seats.

It sensitized Raymond to the four smaller school districts.

After someone discovered the U.S. Constitution and ruled that all Schoolcraft trustees should be elected at large, Raymond won a seat in 1971. Soon the board had six Livonians in seven seats.

Her next Rosinaism was to advocate a nine-member board. Hardly anyone else could understand why, but she was right if you studied election results. With a larger board, candidates from smaller districts stood a better chance of winning by running second or third.

"Now you have to find out where your problem is," said Bob Evans, production manager for Cycle-Tec, a Focus: HOPE company. "Things are changing so much, you've got to be educated in order to get into the workforce."

Evans is among 35 Cycle-Tec employees who recently completed training in statistical process control (SPC) and quality problem solving.
Graduation ceremonies were held Monday, April 10, in the plant, on Oakman Boulevard in Detroit.

Cycle-Tec remanufactures transmissions for General Motors dealers through contracts with GM's Hydramatic Division. Cycle-Tec Remanufacturing Inc. was formed in 1982 as a subsidiary of the F. Joseph

In 1984, Lamb transferred ownership of Cycle-Tec to Focus: HOPE. Focus: HOPE, a civil and human rights organization, is operating the company during a transition period; Cycle-Tec will eventually be converted to minority ownership.

THE PLANT employs about 60 people, including salaried personnel, Evans said. It operates from 7 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

sions are completely disassembled

while others have been updated.

Inspection is a critical part of the process. Transmissions are tested on the road in test trucks daily. Only a few of the workers have worked in the auto plants, said Evans, who has been with Cycle-Tec since 1982.

"These are mostly people from the neighborhood within this community." Cycle-Tec provides workers with opportunities for training and ongoing employment.

"They can learn a lot in here," Evans said.

The workforce includes both men and women, most in their early 20s to mid-30s. They aren't required to join a union.

Some employees attended classes at Marygrove College to upgrade their math and reading skills. Those skills are to be brought to about a 10th-grade level, Evans said; some workers are continuing their educa-

The training was funded by a grant from the Michigan Job Opportunity Bank-Upgrade, a part of the Governor's Office for Job Training.

ATI coordinated and conducted the training program. Instructional material used was from Tech Center Courseware, based in Southfield.

For most workers, the 40-hour course was completed during work time. Evans said.

"I had to do mine after work."

Some employees took less time to complete the training. Statistical process control is a way of controlling production through the use of statistical methods. The goal is to eliminate products that don't meet design stand-

The employees worked on computers during training. Employees from different areas of the plant were chosen for the training.

Those workers will be able to share what they've learned with the others, Evans said. Four workers left the plant for additional training.

ATI was involved in the training right from the start. Debra Broad, owner of ATI, used to work for American Financial Consulting Co. WHILE WITH AFCC, Broad led that company's quality control efforts. Cycle-Tec was among customers AFCC had contracts with. AFCC subsequently decided to focus on a different area, and Broad took over ATI's customer base and product lines. Broad, a Plymouth resident, has more than 10 years experience in sales and marketing.

ATI representatives oversaw the program and made sure that it ran smoothly, she said. They're putting together another phase of the program, to train the remaining Cycle-Tec employees.

Those employees will be trained over the next six months or so, Broad said. It's best to stagger the training schedule, so production isn't slowed significantly.

Such training is essential these days, according to Broad. Some 98 percent of the companies ATI works with already have made some training efforts, she said.

The Rev. William Cunningham, director of Focus: HOPE, spoke during Monday's graduation ceremonies.

Local students are among mem-bers of the 1989 Fashion Board at Wonderland Mall in Livonia.

Latina Williams and Dayna Mal-lad of Canton and Ida Mollett of Plymouth were recently selected out of a group of 50 young men and women to serve on the board.

Ida Mollett's interests include dancing and modeling. Latina Williams is interested in jazz dancing and modeling, and would like to pursue a career as a professional model. Dayna Mallad is interested in modeling and fashion design.

The Fashion Board includes 30 people ages 16 to 23. Preliminary tryouts were recently held and 50 semifinalists were called back for the final competition.

Semifinalists were judged on poise, appearance, modeling abilities and personality on stage.

Board members meet monthly to attend workshops and seminars on modeling techniques, grooming habits, fashion, retail topics and marketing. Seminars will be conducted by professionals in those fields.

The young people participate on a volunteer basis in fashion shows, retail promotions, photo shoots and

Three weeks ago my husband offered to help me with my grocery shopping. We needed just a few items and he knows how I hate this chore. Just as we rounded the end of the very last aisle, we noticed the special section of Passover foods.

Each of us gave the other the high sign, and excitedly, yes, even knowingly, we wheeled our cart to the appropriate aisle. First, we came across the Passover candies - our favorite chocolate-covered marshmallows, chocolate mint, jelly candies, sweet and bitter-sweet chocolate bars and tempting Barton's candy selections. We took several boxes of each.

Next, confronted by the tins of Passover macaroons, we helped ourselves to a few of each flavor - chocolate, vanilla, even a pina colada flavor. Then, moving on, we filled our basket to the brim with other Passover necessities, such as matzo meal, cake meal, jams, spices, tuna, condiments and, of course, 10 pounds of matzo.

Now, well into our second shopping cart, we returned to the housewares aisle to purchase some knives. In observant homes, all the everyday kitchen dishes and implements are put away and special Passover

So, just to be sure we were well-equipped, we bought a baster, some measuring spoons, a can opener and a potato peeler.

IT'S VERY possible that after I unpack my Passover bundles, I'll find myself with four basters, two dozen measuring spoons, several potato peelers and at least six can

At this point, my husband got very nervous. I assumed it was because we were nearing the cashier with three carts overflowing with Passover goodles. But no, he was concerned about getting all the food into the car. His golf clubs were in the

Some $400 poorer, we tackled the task of scientifically squeezing a multitude of shopping bags into the car. We succeeded and, going home, began to pray that our four sons would be there to unload the cache of

Only one of our boys was home, and after my husband promised a generous tip, he enthusiastically did the entire job.

The scene I've just described isn't unusual. In fact, in the past few weeks, it has been repeated in Jewish homes across the globe. The more observant the family, the more extensive their preparations and provisions. The weeks before the holiday are housecleaning time. Again, fastidiousness varies, but often the entire house is thoroughly cleaned, washed, accurred and sweet.

oughly cleaned, washed, scoured and swept. The Passover holiday celebrates the Jewish people's freedom from slavery in ancient Egypt. The most familiar symbol of Passover is matzo, which causes us to remember our ancestors, who in their haste to leave Egypt, threw their unbaked loaves of bread on their backs, not allowing it to rise and resulting in a flat, unleavened bread.

TODAY A mainstay of most Passover diets, wonderful things can be done with mat-20. Buttered with sweet butter, it's delicious. From it, we also make stuffing, kugels or puddings, pizza and lasagna. In Jewish nursery schools, kindergartens, Sunday Schools and day schools, the last several weeks have been filled with the telling of the Passover Story. The children have also been working on adornments for the Seder table, and they have also been diligently rehearsing the Four Questions, which are to be recited by the youngest capable child at the Seder table.

On the first two nights of Penach (Hebrew for Passover), the head of the family con-ducts the Seder meal, at which time he reads from the Hagaddah. The Hagaddah retells the story of our trials and tribulations in Pharoh's Egypt, how God showed his might by visiting terrible plagues upon the Egyptians, and finally, when the Pharach relinquished and agreed to "let my people go," the exodus of the Jews out of the land of Egypt.

Every Jew is enjoined to recall the story as if he, personally, had journeyed with

The Seder table is artfully prepared. Beautiful silver wine glasses are set out and magnificent ritual objects, such as Seder plates and matzo covers occupy places of honor. The children's handiwork from school is always included on the table.

A special goblet of wine is placed out for the Prophet Elijah, who is eagerly awaited year after year in Jewish homes.

In the midst of the pre-Pasach excitement, there are many families who are simply packing their bags and escaping to the Catskills, Florida, California and countless other vacation spots where "Kosher-for-Passover" resorts will cater to their every

Recognizing, too, that cet all Jewish fine-ilies can afford the special and quite expen-sive accontrements for Pamerer, made sive accourrements for Passover, special funds are in place — a centuries old tradition - and the money is dispersed to the needy.

This year, in an interesting turnaround,
Jews have been asked to donate their notkosher-for-Passover food items to the needy and homeless of Detroit.

Passover is steeped in history, tradition and ritual. It is a wonderful time for families to come together, for the grandfather to relate the Passover story to his grandchildren, for the parent to gather his or her children near so that they can feel the closeness and warmth of family and tradition.

This is, undoubtedly, a picture that will be firmly imprinted in the heart and soul and mind of the children . . . and because of the holiday's very indelibility, the ritual and tradition of Passover has endured year after year, from generation to generation

And so may it continue. Happy Passover.

He follows convictions by working for hospice

Lots of people take early retire-ment. And lots of them move to Florida afterward.

So why do people think former Plymouth resident Joseph Kordick is a little whacky for doing just that?

"I think the thing that captures everyone's attention is that I was a vice president at Ford Motor Company and I walked away from a lot of money," said Kordick, 57.

What he walked toward was a new career as a volunteer at a hospice program, where he counsels dying natients. Kordick's story will be featured this week on "Catch the Spirit," a cable television show produced by the United Methodist Church. Kordick was a member of First United Methodist Church in Plymouth for 30 years before moving to Florida last December.

Taking early retirement is "something that God and I talked about for some time," said Kordick, who assed up between $10 million and $20 million in salary and benefits over the next 10 years.

James Kordick

HIS SALARY now is "about zero except the satisfaction's so enormous," but there's no need to send food baskets his way.

We are living here in anything but abject poverty - on the 13th fairway of Arnold Palmer's newest golf course." Kordick said.

He said he's "a veteran" around the hospice now that two of his patients have died.

something everybody wants do to or can do," Kordick said.

Kordick's story has been told in the Wall Street Journal and on "The Today Show," but he said those interviews focused more on his retirement than his religious convictions.

"I achieved everything I wanted to achieve at the Ford Motor Company, so it was time for me to go on to other things," he said. "It seemed logical to me, but it's illogical to oth-

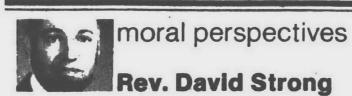

"I'm fully convinced that I'm doing what God wants me to do, and I can't explain that to anybody."

The "Catch the Spirit" interviewer "asked the kind of questions that turn on a Christian," he said. "I'm pleased that I was able to give that kind of testimony."

"CATCH THE Spirit" will be broadcast on the following stations: • Vision Interfaith Satellite Network (VISN) at 11:30 a.m. Thursday. • Black Entertainment Television (BET), 4:30 p.m. Sundays.

 American Christian Television Systems (ACTS), 11 a.m. Sunday.

We can't ignore problems

We have all been following the results of the oil spill in Alaska. We are moved by the fate of the wild life trapped in the oil. We are worried about the destruction of the salmon fishery and the beauty of the place.

Some have also noted the sudden rise of the price of gasoline at the pump. We wonder if the two events are connected.

We are less aware of the spills in every community. The spills are the trash, garbage and discards of our life style. What will we do with our

Like the Alaskan oil spill, we ignore the signs of danger. We continue to believe that we can bury and burn all of our trash. The air is ever more polluted. Still we will not address the problem.

It is a matter of attitude and habit. Trash is someone else's problem. We have never had to worry about our discards, why begin now.

Recently, my wife and I visited the Grand Canyon. As we looked over this magnificent scene, I glanced down. There below us one the canyon wall were papers, bottles and containers.

Who would ever be able to remove this trash from below us? How much worse will it become? Someone should do something about this. It is not my problem.

We discount the significance of the problem until it stares us in the face. If our garbage is not picked up on time, we are disturbed. But what will become of it all?

EACH COMMUNITY in Michigan must begin to plan for their own trash disposal. Discussions are currently being held in Livonia and other communities. The decision is largely being influenced by those who make the money hauling it rather than by thoughts of the fu-

How will putting it into the air or into landfills affect our lives? We citizens are largely indifferent.

We cannot continue to bury and! burn it. We must begin to change our habits such that paper, glass, metal, even plastics can be recycled.

We still believe that the resources of the earth are unlimited. We still believe that we cannot take care of our own discards. Others do. Our attitudes must change.

I am proud that Michigan has a bottle return law. Next we need to adopt curbside pickup of items that, can be recycled.

We may have to change our atti-tudes, but we can derive satisfaction in practicing stewardship. We can reduce the wastefulness of our consumption. We can hope that by our efforts we have helped the human race to sustain itself just a little

Youth buoys fur industry

By Janice Brunson staff writer

The introduction of a boutique line of furs to appeal to the younger set and the arrival of professional women as customers are two reasons why area furriers are optimistic about their industry.

For many who gathered recently at the American International Fur Fair in Las Vegas, attention centered on stimulating business for next season after a second year of flat sales following a decade of unparalleled growth.

Sales at Onyx Furs in Plymouth reflect international trends, according to owner Archie Karatzios. Karatzios, a furrier for 40 years, opened the Plymouth shop in 1985.

Business has been tough, with this season's sales "a little tight. I didn't see a strong market," he

But other area furriers say business has been good, with sales higher than in 1987 when the stock market crash in October put a damper on all luxury sales.

Carolyn Ress of Dittrich Furs in Bloomfield Hills said business this past season has been "very good, with pre-Christmas sales especially strong. There is peak interest in fur. It's really there," Ress said.

SALES AT Ceresnie & Offen Furs in Birmingham were also up 'quite a bit," according to coowner Michael Ceresnie. John Tunis of Bricker-Tunis in West Bloomfield said he had "the biggest season ever," and fur sales at Hudson's in Westland "went very well," according to the manager of the fur salon.

Broader affordability is one rea-

Bricker-Tunis, for example, carries two price lines, a furrier line and a boutique line, displayed in a single showroom. The difference in merchandise between the two lines is unmistakable. Furrier garments are customized from the finest mink, sable and lynx and cost upward to $30,000 or more. Boutique garments are fashioned of quality mink, raccoon and beaver, and range in price from $299 to $3,500.

There is no question fur is more affordable than ever," said John Tunis whose family has been furriers for 73 years.

To provide more affordable garments. Bricker-Tunis manufactures merchandise at its plant in Greece, paying substantially less in labor, according to Tunis. He estimated savings on a ready-made, full length mink coat at $1,000.

Karatzios also imports from Europe and Canada, "getting better quality pelts and cutting costs by 30 percent," he said. His motto is "elegance at affordable prices."

In 1988, the United States imported $423.9 million in finished fur garments, made primarily from Scandinavian, Russian and Chinese pelts, according to figures supplied by the Commerce Depart-

NEARLY THREE-FOURTHS of all mink coats now sold in America cost less than $5,000, according to Fur World, a weekly trade publication. Jindo, the KoreJohn Tunis of Bricker-Tunis models his merchandise. Furriers found that jackets appealed to young men as well as women. enjoying renewed popularity.

This year's bomber jacket craze has introduced fur to a new market, the teen or very young adult, both female and male.

DAN DEAN/staff photographs

Cheryl Fell of Furs by Robert in Troy has been involved in the industry for six years. During that time, she said the number of men who are buying and wearing furs has increased substantially.

"WE DO A very large business in men's furs, bigger than ever," Fell said. Men are buying everything from mink to coyote, for wear on the slopes at Aspen or out to dinner at the Whitney, according to Fell.

Animal-rights activists who publicly protest the use of animal fur for fashion has affected the industry. But the extent of the impact is uncertain, according to Riley.

"We are certainly seriously concerned over the escalation of violence by the movement, but we feel their targets are so broad zoos, circuses, animal research, McDonald's - that we wonder just how much impact they are having," he said.

Tunis also expresses concern about the movement. "Sure, we're all concerned." but he is confident the movement will have little impact on the upcoming season. Women will always love fur. There's magic there," he said, adding after a pause, "Thank good-

"The hardest thing about making money last is making it first."

Our financial profile this month examines the situation of Joe Millet, a divorced father of two who lives in Farmington Hills with his youngest child, a 15-year-old son. He is finding it difficult to add to his financial base given his current business situ-

Millet owns a small insurance agency. After business expenses, his disposable income has been between $20,000 and $25,000 for the past several years. As a result, he says he has not been able to save any money. He is considering selling his business or pursuing a merger with another agency. This would leave him time to devote to other business pursuits.

A month ago, Millet inherited approximately $100,000. "I am considering paying off my mortgage and investing in another business with this money, but I need advice," Millet said. "Can you give me some direction?"

A major upcoming expense involves his son, who will be entering college in two years. So far, nothing has been set aside for this purpose. This expense and his expected retirement in 10 years are Millet's biggest concerns.

ONE POSSIBLE means of financing the college costs is to earmark a portion of his recent inheritance, perhaps $20,000, for this purpose. He may want to retain full control over this money by keeping it in his name rather than making an outright gift

Our biggest concern in Millet's situation is his inability to make progress toward additional retirement savings. Because he is self-employed, he will be relying on his own savings to maintain his current standard of living at retirement. A little more than one-fourth of this will be provided from his expected Social Security benefit.

As a self-employed person, he wisely started a money purchase pension plan that is accumulating for his retirement needs. But even with further contributions, this plan will provide only another one-fourth of his retirement income needs, meaning that almost half of his retirement income needs must be met with investments outside of the pen-

The Bottom Line

Financial strengths

- Solid sayings and reserves established
- · Excellent auto and homeowners insurance
- Owns home with modest mortgage insurance Pension plan in place at work

Financial weaknesses

- · Retirement funding not yet adequate
- · Inability to add to investments recently
  - · No wills or trusts in place
  - No disability insurance

Mile of particular and the control of the control o

We believe this may be a workable plan, providing that he chooses the business carefully, that it is not overly capital intensive, and that he is willing to devote the time and energy developing this business. Opportunity gy developing this business. Opportunity in the small-business world is ed as hard work and long

He should also realize that taking this course of action is not without risk. His current income from the insurance agency will decline or it will be eliminated if he sells the agency. Having the experience of running another small business, even in an unrelated field, will be helpful to

WE STRONGLY urge that he not ise some of his inheritance to pay off his mortgage for several reasons.
First, if he is considering going into another business, he will need to have substantial reserves to carry aim through the initial phases of the business. One of the primary reasons small businesses fail is lack of adeuate capital. The $42,000 in cash rould help establish a cushion for his working capital and personal needs during the transition. Also, he has a mortgage that is well below current market interest ates. So he would be better off keepng his money in the money market fund even if he withdraws the interest generated to help defray his mortgage expenses. Another benefit is that the interest on the mortgage is fully deductible.

AS MIGHT be expected, Millet has excellent insurance coverage on his hutomobile and home. He also has adequate medical insurance.

He is concerned that his life insurince coverage, which totals $30,000, may not be adequate. Because his as-sets are sufficient to provide for his children's needs until they become self-sufficient, we don't see a major problem here

A more important area to review is his lack of disability insurance. Should he become unable to work due to health problems or an accident, he would be unable to meet his long-term financial goals. His current income and standard of living would also be significantly reduced.

We suggest that he buy a long-term disability coverage that would corry him to age 65. At his age, such coverage will be quite costly, but the risk of going without such coverage is far greater.

WE ALSO note his lack of an estate plan. He needs to see an attorney to establish plans for the proper disposal of his assets at death. It is especially critical that he make arrangements for the disposal of his business if premature death occurs. Otherrwise, this asset could become virtually worthless.

In the investment area, he faces two decisions: whether to keep his inheritance in money markets and CDs, and how to invest his pension plan assets.

We recommend that he keep the inheritance in money market funds and banks until he decides what direction to take regarding the purchase of another business. Committing this money to investments in stocks and bonds would not be prudent. Such investments should generally be made as longer term com-

His pension plan assets now are heavily oriented toward a group of mutual funds, mostly in stocks. Millet is wondering whether to move these funds into deferred annuities or the guaranteed investments. Because he has 10 years to go until his anticipated retirement, we would like to see a balance between such fixed return investments and growth assets. Historically, stocks provide a higher return than fixed rate investments, though they do so with more volatility.

Thus, while he should be moving toward a more conservative position as time progresses, he should not completely eliminate the more aggressive funds in his portfolio and aim for a 50/50 split between stocks and fixed return assets.

With a lot of hard effort and a little bit of luck, Millet should be able to meet his twin goals of educating his youngest son and retiring comfortably in 10 years.

GM's Spring Hill is the acme of something

try building cars on an old Civil War battlefield near Spring Hill, Tenn., u couple years ago, it set off one of these media blitzkriegs that tend to swamp the brain cells with misinformation overload before it mercifully

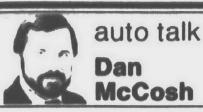

Saturn headquarters now sits near a forklift rental operation on Stephenson Highway. The plant in Spring Hill is approximately 75 percent complete; the first Saturn automobile is about a year and a half away, and there is a kind of ominous silence as the car business waits to see what hath Roger wrought.

Saturn as first described in an unusually early press conference four years ago (roughly six years before the project was to produce a car) was going to be an all-out technological assault on car manufacturing and, secondly, a new way of doing

Last week, I got a quick peek at the project, which at this point is mainly a couple of million square feet of roofed-over concrete and a handful of operating machines.

THE SHEER SIZE of the place is overwhelming, even to me after tramping through more car plants than most people. One reporter called it "Roger's Rouge," which is as good a way as any to describe what happens when you put an en-gine, transmission, sheet metal and final assembly plant all on one site.

There wasn't much in the way of breakthrough technology. The casting technique demonstrated has been running for several years in Saginaw, and the automated stamping presses likewise are already in service elsewhere in GM. What's unusual these days is how Saturn intends to build all the major components of a car on a single site.

Hopefully, this will make it easier to control quality and ensure that all the pieces work together. The car that results will likely be the only completely new vehicle produced in the last half of the 20th century, since all previous "new" cars in fact carry at least some old baggage such as an old-model engine or transmis-

But the reason there's never been a totally new car for the last 30 or 40 years is because no single company has been willing to risk the extraordinary capital investment on a single model or car line.

EVEN WITH the scaled-back investment of approximately $3 bil-lion, Saturn is based on the quick ac-ceptance of a new car in a glutted market. It will have to be more successful than any GM effort in the last 25 years just to break even. The profitability scenario for Sa-turn is, in fact, a throwback to the postwar auto boom when a hot-selling model could approach a half million sales a year. Today, there are only a handful of companies that sell those volumes in total.

The overall impression of Saturn, standing amid the half-finished plumbing, is that it is the pinnacle of manufacturing technology that dom-inated the early half of the century.

It is the best expression of highvolume, high-speed, high-cost hard tooling churning out low-cost parts to do — and did throws how to do this better than anybody. It's a westime operation, the bind of process that churned out sirylanes and tanks, and once fed a nation hungry for anything on wheels. CAN IT SURVIVE in today's complex, international car but when 100,000 cars a year can sud-denly pop up on the docks from any one of a dozen countries?

Is Saturn a turning point for the domestic industry, or a kind of Stonehenge marking the pinnacle of an obsolete industrial enterprise? It was something to think about on the plane back to Detroit.

Dan McCosh is the automotive editor of Popular Science.

If you want to sell a fad, you must promote it well

But the Wacky Wall Walker was such an item. It allowed Ken Hakuta, a Harvard MBA, to become America's Dr. Fad. The wall walker was nothing more than a "small blob of rubber," shaped liked a spider that "walked" its way down a wall when thrown against it. Since its introduction in the U.S., Hakuta has sold more than 200 million at an average price of $2 each.

Capitalizing on a fad is something that everyone seems to dream about, but very few actually experience it. I remember all too well the Volkswagen oven mitt that a diehard Volkswagen enthusiast once sent to my office. Especially "interesting" was the fact that its creator had drawn the underside of the car on the top side of the mitt to give a better view of the Beetle's chassis.

THEN THERE was the unicorn paperweight and pen holder that I had been told would sell "thousands" because when the pen was removed from its holder, the paperweight was focus: small business Mary DiPaolo

"magically" transformed into a horse.

On the other hand, who would have ever guessed that putting a rock in a box and offering it as a "pet" would find its way into millions of American households?

As with any fad item that makes it, timing and proper planning is everything. Too often, several months are devoted to product and package development rather than focusing on the equally important promotion and distribution strategies.

Since so many fads are shortlived, introduction of these items typically requires an intense sales and marketing effort. Without sufficiently planning the "who, when, where, how and why" aspects of the purchase decision well beforehand. most of these items end up collecting dust in their inventors' basements.

Lump-sum payments

Lump-sum payment is by far the most popular life insurance settlement option. A cash settlement may enable the beneficiary to pay outstanding debts, administrative and funeral costs, federal and inheritance estate taxes, and still provide an emergency fund.

A lump-sum payment also can provide money to create an investment portfolio.

The fixed annuity settlement option is desirable for those who do not want their beneficiaries to have to manage investments. This option offers three choices.

Fixed-Period Option — Under this option, the period of payment is se-lected, and the amount of each pay-ment is so calculated that both the principal and interest will have been paid by the end of the period. This form provides income for such purposes as raising children or buying time before the surviving spouse can join the labor force.

Fixed-Income Option - Under this form, the installment amount is selected, and then payments are made until the principal and interest are exhausted. This is more appropriate when the objective is to provide a temporary readjustment in-

"Acting needs a passionate commitment, a passionate desire to explore emotion and thought on the set." - Alice Krige

Such commitment typifies Krige's career and personality. Her lumionstration of dedication to excellence with style and grace. She works very hard to discover emotion and meaning in language and action on stage, on screen, everywhere.

Seldom is one privileged to meet such talented, graceful performers. Hence it was a real delight to interview Krige when she visited the Detroit area promoting "See You in the Morning."

N HIS FEATURE film directorial debut for "Intruder," Scott Spiegel has come a long way from one of his first productions at age 10: "Inspector Klutz Saves the Day."

More than faithful to the horror/ suspense/action/splatter genre in film, "Intruder" is a flick that might make you think twice about eating before the show. The movie was released Wednesday on videocassette by Paramount Pictures for distribution in the United States, the United Kingdom, Japan, Taiwan, Germany and Australia.

The film introduces horror fans to Renee Estevez, daughter of actor Martin Sheen and sister of actors Charlie Sheen and Emilio Es-

"She's really terrific," said Spiegel. "Very talented. I look forward to working with her in the fu-Asked why the film won't appear in theaters, Spiegel replied, "The home VCR is the drive-in of the '90s. Many horror films will bypass theaters and go right to cassette

"INTRUDER" WAS shot on a budget of $500,000, small by moviemaking standards, but has the look and feel of a larger produc-tion. "We're quite proud of what we've accomplished on such a tight budget," said Spiegel.

"Intruder," previously titled "Night Crew: the Final Checkout," is a story that takes place in the Walnut Lake Supermarket in Southern California. The night crew is preparing for a final goingout-of-business sale. An ex-boyfriend, who has just been released from prison, pays a visit to the market and his old girlfriend who works there. She tells him to take a long walk on a short pier. A fight ensues and the night crew unceremoniously ejects the old boyfriend from the premises. Then, as the night wears on - one by one, the workers disappear with more than

"There is a real Walnut Lake Market in West Bloomfield," said Spiegel. "I used to work there. In the script there is also a Nine Mile and Shiawassee road, Middlebelt and Farmington roads, and some of my old bosses' first names appear in the movie too." According to Spiegel, a gruesome anecdote in the movie, concerning sandwiches and auto accidents, actually occurred in Farmington.

Spiegel grew up in West Bloom-field and attended West Maple Junior High School and Groves High School. He became interested in horror films during what he calls

It's One23

Many types of materials, including Pewabic tile made in Detroit, enhance the new One23 restaurant in Grosse Pointe. On the walls, just below eye level, a double-row frieze of Pewabic tiles gives a unifying theme to the seating areas, the bar and the two entries. Booths and banquettes are divided by cherry wood grills with panels of sand-blasted seeded glass arranged to resemble a city skyline.

AS A BACKYARD moviemaking youngster, he met Sam Raimi, Bruce Campbell and Rob Tapert, who were making their own movies a few blocks away. These men now form the core of what could be called the "Fright Pack," ex-Detroit-area filmmakers writing, directing, producing and acting in

Some of these films include "The Evil Dead" (1983), "Evil Dead II" (1988) and "Thou Shalt Not Kill . Except" (1987). "The Evil Dead" was the Fright Pack's first film to impact the horror market. Written and directed by Raimi, produced by Tapert and starring Campbell, "Evil Dead" is considered by some critics a masterpiece of recent American horror. In 1983, it was the best-selling video in the U.K. and was a favorite at the Cannes film festival in France.

'Evil Dead II' was written by Spiegel and Raimi and starred Campbell. Produced by Tapert and Campbell, this film was very successful commercially and was a on cable soon. "Thou Shalt . . ."
was written and produced by Spiegel, starped Raimi and was directed by Josh Becker. It was filmed entirely in the Detroit area and was released in 15 countries and was released in 15 countries

Fright Packers Raimi, his brother Ted and Campbell all star in "Intruder." Danny Hicks, also from Michigan, has a role in the film. Hicks is recognizable to many Detroit-area television viewers as Don Foss from the auto dealership

Emil Sitka, the only actor in filmdom to co-star with all the different versions of the Three Stooges over the years, makes an appearance in the film. Alvy Moore, who played Mr. Kimbell on "Green Acres" and appeared re-cently in "Hill Street Blues," takes a role also. Spiegel played a bread deliveryman in "Intruder," but his performance ended up on the edit-ing room floor.

SPIEGEL IS already busy with multiple new projects. He is working on a new movie, "Witches," with fellow Fright Packers Raimi and Tapert. And actor Charlie Sheen has committed to "The Rookie," a cop movie written by Spiegel and Boaz Yakin.

"Sean Connery is reading the script now — for the role of the older cop. He most likely will pass, but it's cool he'd consider looking at it," said Spiegel.

two families caught up in the confusion of divorce and remarriage.

Krige was born in South Africa, on the edge of the Kalahari Desert. She moved- around in her youth when her father decided a large general practice was too strenuous. After living in Johannesburg, Cape Town and Port Elizabeth, she received a bachelor's degree in psychology. Her mother is a psychologist and her two brothers followed their father into medicine, one a surgeon, the other a physician, all in South Africa.

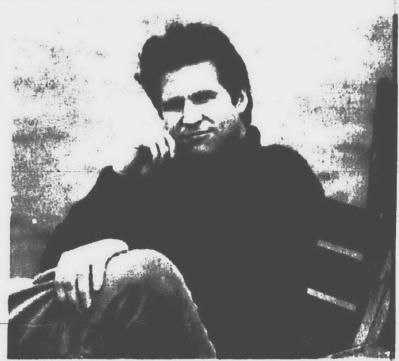

Despite this scientific, medical background, "It became clear to me that acting was what I wanted to do," she said. Krige spent three years studying acting at London's Central School of Speech and Drama. "I had no idea how tough it was. All I thought about was how fascinating . . . I was so entranced by the process of exploration that goes on. How nothing is ever the same, always changing, the challenge always new. I was utterly absorbed with SUMMING UP her dedication to the profession, "Acting is an absolutely fascinating and privileged way to spend your life," she said.

But it's no bed of roses, and over the years she learned just "how tough it was."

After the Royal Shakespeare Company and a small role in a BBC play, Krige made her film debut as the op-era singer in "Chariots of Fire." American television roles, the film "Ghost Story" and Shaw's "Arms and the Man" on London's West End stage were followed by roles in the film "King David" with Richard Gere, "Barfly" with Mickey Rourke, and a film yet to be released in this market, "Haunted Summer."

Jeff Bridges co-stars with Krige in the romantic comedy "See You in the Morning."

Loon rangers arm with information

Paddling his trusty silver cance, a loon ranger on one of Michigan's northern lakes greets a newcomer to the area. He does not wear a mask or carry' silver bullets, but a loon ranger is determined to do what he can to save the common loons in Loon rangers in many states, including Michigan, are arming them-selves with information to teach lake users and lake shore residents about how they can co-exist with a declin-ing symbol of wilderness.

Loon rangers are not lone rangers, they are organized by the Michigan Loon Preservation Association c/o Michigan Audubon Society, 409 E Avenue, Kalamazoo, Mich. 49007. They are coordinating efforts and providing information that cottage owners can use to help loons.

Common loons once nested in Oakland and Barry counties in southern Michigan, but their nesting is now restricted to northern Michigan. When island lakes thaw in spring it is only a matter of days before loons will arrive. Open water is necessary for them to find fish and crayfish, their primary foods.

In order to ensure enough food to feed themselves and their young, loon pairs will establish and defend a territory against other loons. Small lakes with an area from 50 to 135

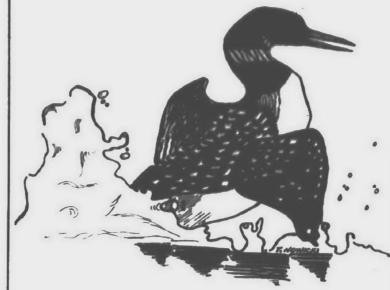

Territories on large lakes, that can accommodate more than one pair, average about 190 acres.

Lake shore residents are asked by the loon ranger to be on the look out for loons nesting on their lake. They are identified by their black plummage with square white spots, a white necklace, and stately appearance. Their penetrating yodel and tremelo calls also announce their arrival.

Some loon rangers have constructed artifical floating nest platforms to supplement the loss of natural nesting habitat. But more important they inform those around the lake to minimize any disturbance during the critical nest selection-constuctionearly incubation period. If conditions are not right during this period, the pair likely will abandon their nesting

Once the pair incubates, or cares for young, disturbance to the adults and young should be minimized too.

Loons are identified by their black plummage with square white spots, a white necklace, and stately appearance.

the nest, or young, more vulnerable to predators. There are probably several reasons why loon populations are declining in many areas, but at least

Unnecessary disturbance will make informed lake users can help to minimize one factor.

Participating A & W Restaurants franchises will donate 10 cents to the Arthritis Foundation for every mug of root beer sold in May.

Money will be used to support foundation research and local programs, including the Arthritis Self Help course and Help Line. A & W projects its donations will top $75,000. Facts about arthritis will be available at participating restau-

Arthritis, a chronic, debilitating disease for which there is no cure.

can strike at any age. It affects 37 million Americans. Over 100 forms have been reported. Osteoarthritis, affecting joints, and rheumatoid arthritis, affecting the whole body, are the most common forms. Warning signs for arthritis include: swelling in one or more joints, early morning stiffness, recurring pain or tenderness in any joint, in-ability to move a joint normally, obvious redness and warmth in a joint, unexplained weight loss and fever or weakness combined with joint pain.

We Need Volunteers Who Love Happy

Sun Deer® campers are happy campers and it's no wonder because most severely asthmatic kids are forced to spend their summers Indoors. At Camp Sun Deer, asthmatic kids ages 9-12 participate in a variety of outdoor activities, but they can't do it without your help. The limitations and doubts they face can be diminished by a volunteer who cares. Your participation at Camp Sun Deer* can make all the difference in an asthmatic child's summer.

Missy Smith bettles Cortney Wood of Troy Athens in the Plymouth Salem soccer team's season opener April 11. Smith and her father, play the Chiefs at Centennial Educational Park.

Plymouth Canton coach Don Smith, will be on opposite sides Friday night when the Rocks

Father vs. daughter in Canton-Salem tilt

By Dan O'Mears staff writer

Whenever Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton compete in any sport, it's always an intense, emotion-filled rivalry. But when the sport is girls soccer the game affects more than two teams. It becomes a family affair for the Smiths of Plymouth.

Don Smith coaches the Canton team; Missy Smith plays for Salem. Furthermore, defending state cham-plon Canton is ranked No. 1; Salem is So not only will their respective teams renew their rivalry in a showdown between top-rated ballclubs at 7 p.m. Friday, but it will be father against daughter as well.

And there is more riding on the outcome than victory and defeat.

"THE LOSER is going to take the other out to breakfast on Saturday, but I'll probably have to pay for it both ways," the elder Smith said.

While both take their soccer seriously, they try not to bring the game home with them. But then, after two years of being on opposite sides, the Smiths are accustomed to the anxiety that precedes a Canton-Salem

"This year I think it will be more relaxed than before," Don said. "We've been through it enough times now that it's not as big a deal."

That wasn't the case last spring when Canton and Salem faced each other for the district championship. Smith, the coach, and the Chiefs won that round 3-2.

Salem was the defending state champion, and Missy had been a member of that 1987 team, too. Canton also had a good team, and there was a lot at stake.

Don Smith Canton soccer coach

"It was a little more tense last year," Don said. "Last year, my wife said she just wanted to float through the day and get it over with.

"IN THE district, whoever loses quits playing. They don't go on. If we get that far this year, it will probably be more intense, too."

Naturally, the outcome of that district final caused Missy to have mixed feelings.

"At that moment I was upset," she said. "The year before we did real well, and we wanted to do well

But then it was my dad's team that won, and I was going to cheer for him just as much. It was better than some other team winning it."

While athletes on both sides may not have much sympathy for their cross-campus counterparts, Missy's unique situation gives her a different perspective in soccer - when the Rocks aren't playing the Chiefs.

"Sometimes, when I go with friends (to watch a Canton game), they don't want Canton to win, so that we'll have the edge or better record," she said. "But I always root for them, because I know a lot of girls on that team, too. I played with a lot of them in youth soccer.

BUT THERE'S no question where her loyalty lies when Salem is playing Canton, even if her father is coaching the opponent. And competition being what it is, Don Smith saw last year's district victory in terms of evening the score since Salem had defeated Canton at the same stage of the tournament in '87.

"I could tell she wasn't happy, but she wasn't depressed," Smith said. "She's a gamer, she's going to play her best, but she's not going to let it bother her for too long a time.

"She said: Good game, dad," and I kissed her on the forehead."

Smith knows what it's like to have his loyalty questioned. When he was hired in 1987, some Canton players were suspicious about having a coach with a daughter on the Salem

"The girls wondered why I would want to coach at the other school," he said. "They wondered if I would really do my best. I guess it seemed

Marriage takes priority over football for Morton

t's difficult to be thing could rate more important than a career in pro foot-

Con Charles Control of the Control o

We're talking about a sport of sacrifice. Pain is nothing. Injuries are ignored. In an occupation in which one play can end a career, the only thing that won't be tolerated is a loss of playing time. The pro football lifespan is too short as it is.

Some college players - like Heisman Trophy winner Barry Sanders, from Oklahoma State — leave school early; they don't want to jeopardise a pro contract worth millions.

Then there is Craig Morton. He will graduate on time - in four years - from Dartmouth College in June. The Plymouth Salem alumnus will have his degree from an Ivy League school, he will have a betterthan-3.0 grade-point average, and on Sunday - draft day - he could have had the opportunity to seek fame and fortune in the NFL.

He won't. He has already notified all 28 NFL clubs - he sent each a postcard - that he has decided not to play pro ball this season.

WHY, THEY might have asked? Are you hurt?

No, Morton would reply. Are you independently wealthy?

No again.

Are you insane? I am quite sane, his answer would be. And I am quite in love.

It's true. Morton has decided not to attempt to play pro football this year because he is getting married in June to Karen Redding of Milwaukee. She's currently a school teacher near Hanover, N.H., where Dartmouth is located.

His pending marriage isn't the entire reason Morton has forsaken football. "I'm a Christian," he explained softly. "And I think the Lord has told me that the best thing for me to do is wait a year and get used to being married."

What does he mean when he says the Lord has told him? "It's not necessarily an audible voice," he said. "He gave me the ability to play. I just think marriage is an important step, a lifelong step. It deserves my full attention."

...IT SHOULD BE understood Morton does plan on playing pro football. He attended the NFL's combined workouts for college players Feb. 1 in Indianapolis. "I felt I did well," he said. "I ran reasonably well. The times (in the 40-yard dash) seemed slow for everyone. I ran a 4.52 and a

That's pretty good for a wide receiver, but Morton's done better. He's been clocked at 4.3. Although not overly big (6-foot, 170 pounds), he's big enough to play in the NFL.

'I'm a Christian. And I think the Lord has told me that the best thing for me to do is wait a year (before playing pro football) and get used to being married.'

impressive: 44 catches, 1,063 yards 10 touchdowns as a sophomore; 41 catches, 651 yards, three TDs as a junior, and 53 receptions, 891 yards, six TDs last season. He was a unanimous All-Ivy League choice in 1986 and '88, and he ranks as Dartmouth's all-time leading receiver.

Considering Morton's ability and knowing the Big Green struggled the past decade until going 5-5 last season (4-3 in the Ivy), it is hardly surprising Morton is under pressure to change his religious mind.

"Golly, you wouldn't believe it," he said of the opinions leveled at him. Another pro player, joining Cincinnati Bengal linebacker Reggie Williams, would be a boost to Dartmouth's program.

"I feel bad about that," admitted Morton, adding, "That almost made me change my mind."

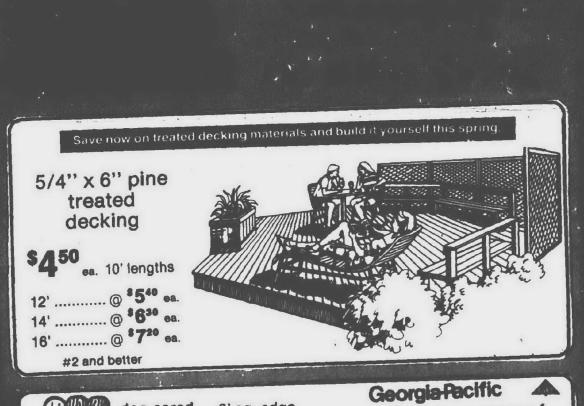

BUT HE WON'T. "My decision's been made. I'm anxious to see what happens (in the draft). I hope I made an impression (at the combined workout), enough so they'll remem-

Meaning he still plans to play. "I'm very much looking forward to it. I've come to the conclusion that next year, if I do change my mind about playing, then I wasn't too serious about it in the first place."

Make no mistake, Morton is serious about both not playing this year and playing next year. He plans to stay in Hanover so he can continue to use the athletic facilities. A religion major, he'll get a part-time job and work out, trying to add some bulk. "And I might help coach the freshmen team," he added.

Morton probably wouldn't have been drafted higher than the middle rounds — five through eight — anyway. Now it's likely he won't be drafted at all, although the possibility remains. A team could pick him late and try to sign him before the 1990 draft.

Whatever happens won't make a difference to Morton. He won't regret his decision. He is convinced his destiny in in the Landia was a second convinced his destiny is in the Lord's very capable hards, and he will not fight it.

Tom Niemi said he was shocked and disappointed at being fired as Plymouth Canton's boys basketball coach but is willing to accept the decision.

Niemi was told his contract would not be renewed during a meeting Thursday with Canton principal Tom Tattan and athletic director Paul Cummings. He said the reason given for his release was the administration's desire to have a coach in the building.

Niemi coached the varuity team for the last four years, including an 11-10 finish last season. Niemi's best season was the 1987-88 campaign in which Canton was 19-5 and won its first district championship.

"I felt the staff and I had done an outstanding job," Niemi said. "But they have the right to make any change they see fit, and they chose to make a change.

"I'm proud of what we accomplished, but if people don't want you there's nothing you can do about it."

NIEMI, WHO said he and his assistants Tim Evans, Bob deBear and Dave Visser worked hard at keeping the program strong, was looking forward to future seasons and was surprised by the action.

"We had some excellent athletes coming up," he said. "We were looking down the road to having a shot at the state (championship) in a couple years with the size we had coming up.

"I feel had because I worked hard. I wanted to finish there, but that's Niemi, who was paid $3,500 per season to coach the team, said he inquired every year about the possibility of having a teaching job at Canton, but the seniority he has accumulated at other districts wouldn't have transferred under school district policy. Niemi teaches history at Belleville High School and must work another four years before being eligible for early retirement.

They don't give you seniority, and I can't come in at zero, he said. In accepting the finality of the decision, Niemi declined to comment further on the action and said he would just as soon let the issue die. Niemi, who has coached at six schools during a 25-year career, hopes to land a varsity position at some other school.

"All I can do is look for a program that needs a coach," he said. "I just want to coach and help kids.

THEY GAVE me the opportunity to coach when Bentley closed, and I've always wanted to do things with class. I take a lot of pride in the players we developed and those relationships."

Prior to coaching at Canton, Niemi spent two seasons at Livonia Bentley before that school closed. He began his career at Frost Junior High in Livenia, and he was the JV coach and varsity assistant at Negaunee for one year and Livonia Franklin for four years. Niemi was the varsity coach at Belleville from 1973-1983.

Tattan reiterated what Cummings told the Observer last week about the district wanting a basketball coach in the building, though other athletic teams at Canton and Salem are coached by non-staff personnel.

"We do in football and try wherever we can," Tattan said. "Basketball is one we'd like to have that connection. It adds to the program and the promotion of the program in the school. We don't have that luxury in

"We hope when we're not in a millage crunch that we'll have a very viable middle school program that needs to be overseen by the head

Tattan said there was no chance of having Niemi employed as a teacher at the high school in light of recent staff cutbacks. He also said the district, despite its rigid goal to have a coach in the building, had no specific candidate in mind when it decided to fire Niemi.

"You're speculating now," Tattan said. "We'll post it and see what

CANTON ALSO must resolve the matter of who will coach the girls basketball team next fall. Rob Neu told the Observer in January he would not be back to coach since he didn't have a teaching position. But according to Cummings, Neu has not submitted an official letter of resignation yet.

Hinzman went the distance, scattering four hits for the Rocks, now 1-1 overall. She walked seven and struck out three.

North got two runs in the top of the first inning, but Salem scored four runs in the bottom of the inning and gave Hinzman a comfortable 9-2 margin after four innings. The Rocks scored most of their runs on passed balls and wild nitches.

Jennifer Lydon suffered the loss for North, allowing four hits and nine walks in six innings of work.

PLY, CHRISTIAN 23, MACOMB CHRISTIAN 13: Plymouth Christian scored 13 runs in the last-half of the fifth inning Tuesday, making the trip home even longer for the visitors from Macomb County

Plymouth Christian is 3-2 overall. Tamara Tilly was the major threat on the bases for the Eagles, stealing six bases and scoring four runs. Joy Simon stole four bases and scored four runs, while Kami Rowe collected three hits and an RBI. Melissa Goodchild added a double. Rachelle Oxley earned the win, pitching 3% innings in relief of Tilly.

W.L. CENTRAL 15, HARRISON 0: Farmington Harrison remained winless Tuesday in three games, getting mercied by the visitors from

Walled Lake Central. Freshman pitcher Carrie Cassinski improved Central to 2-0, turning in a solid performance in which she didn't allow a walk. She gave up two hits and struck out five in four innings. Shellie Bouwens had control

Messner, Miller await NFL draft

staff writer

There are at least a pair of former Observerland football stars who are hoping that the end of their collegiate careers isn't the end of their playing days.

Both Mark Messner, an All-American defensive lineman at the University of Michigan from Redford Catholic Central, and John Miller, an all-Big Ten strong safety (honorable mention All-American) from Farmington Harrison, are anxiously awaiting a stretch of approximately 36 hours, beginning at noon Sunday.

And the longer they have to wait, the more agonizing it will be.

Sunday is draft day in the National Football League. In spite of their glowing collegiate credentials, neither Messner nor Miller is expected to be drafted on day No. 1, when the pros muddle through the first four rounds of the 12-round selection pro-"I sometimes think they do it backwards," admitted Messner. "They look at a piece of paper first, instead of results. I think they should do their evaluation on (the past four years)." MESSNER'S SOMEWHAT bitter attitude is understandable. After all, he was a finalist for the Outland Trophy, presented to the nation's top lineman. He broke U-M's records for sacks and tackles for loss. But there are other numbers that pro scouts are more interested in. Messner is small by defensive line-and not particularly fast. When rating college talent, the pros put potential higher than production.

men standards (6-foot-3, 255-pounds)

"I've been very effective in college going against pro-size people," said Messner. "And they still say I'm too small." Both Messner and Miller were among approximately 350 college players invited to the NFL's combined workout in Indianapolis Feb. 1. Players were tested for speed, strength and jumping ability. After the combined workout, NFL teams contact players they are interested ? in for more extensive individual

"THERE HAVE been probably 20 a teams to look at me," said Messner. "This own evaluation of his combined" ** workout wasn't good. "But I've nev- "" er been a person who's tested well. I've been a person who's produced on the field."

Messner is expecting to be picked " somewhere between the third and sixth rounds. "They say I'm a 'tweener," he said, meaning it's uncertain what position he will play. "P He's projected as either a lineman or linebacker.

"I don't care where I play, as long as I play," he said.

Miller's predicament is similar. A four-year starter at MSU - including his freshman season - his statistics were glowing. He intercepted three passes as a senior, returning one for a touchdown, and averaged 11.9 yards on punt returns. Miller is tied for fourth on the MSU career interception list with 14. He nabbed ? eight as a junior, including four against U-M.

Unlike Messner, Miller's size - 6-2, 194 — isn't in question, but — like. Messner — his speed is. According to one source, Miller has run a 4.6 40yard dash, a bit slow for a defensive back by NFL standards.

However, Miller's former MSU defensive backfield teammate, safety Todd Krumm, drew similar criticisms from pro scouts and was undrafted. Krumm played most of last season with the Chicago Bears.

There are a few other notable factors in Miller's favor. He's a punishing tackler (he was third on the Spartans in tackles last year), he's never been seriously hurt and he rarely makes a mistake.

Which is something pro scouts of might be doing if they bypass him. Miller figures to go in the later rounds on Monday.

Canton swept the girls relays and won all but two individual events. The Chiefs, 1-0, were led by Amy Van Buhler, who won the long jump and both hurdles races.

Van Buhler, who also anchored the 400 relay, reached 14-111/2 in the long jump, and she went 18.7 in the 100-meter hurdles and 56.4 in the 300 hurdles. She later teamed with Kristy Brugar, Ifoema Okwumabua and Sandy Sherwin for a 54.9 time in the sprint relay.

Canton's Heather Spencer won the high jump at a height of 4-8, and Okwumabua captured the shot put with a distance of 30%. North's Adrienne Mocello won the discus

Sherwin added a victory in the 100 dash with a 13.6 time, and the Chiefs won all but the 200, in which North's Julie Ewing had a 29.1 time. Heather Meyer was the 400 winner in 1:06.4, and teammate Marnie Smith ran 2:33.7 to break the ribbon in the 800. Canton's Lori Penland won the 1,600 in 5:48.7 and Missy Jasnowski the 3,200 in 12:51.7.

Brugar was the lead-off runner for every relay but the 3,200. In the 800, it was Brugar, Spencer, Michelle Miller and Alecia King going 1:56.8, and Brugar, Michelle Gudeth, Angle Sarrault and Monica Pellow finished the 1,600 in 4:38.5.

Canton's strength in the distances showed with Penland, Kris Marquard, Adrienne Garrow and Amy Smith taking first in the 3,200 relay with a 10:41.3 time.

Canton will be host for the Lady Chiefs Relays Saturday, while the Raiders will compete in the West Bloomfield Invitational.

Chiefs enter relays as defending champ

Plymouth Canton will face formidable opposition Saturday as it attempts to defend the title it won last year in the annual Lady Chiefs Relays.

The field events begin at 10 a.m. at Centennial Educational Park, and the eight-mile relay gets under way at 10:30 a.m. The remainder of the running relays are scheduled for an 11:30 a.m. start, with the meet expected to conclude around 2:30 p.m.

"It should be a great matchup between Farmington and Livonia Stevenson," Canton coach George Przygodski said. "They have to be the two teams in the running for the league title.

"Stevenson is solid event by event. That's the route we took to win the (Western Lakes Activities Association) championship last year.

"And Farmington has a corps of outstanding sprinters," he added. "They should be one of the teams that is right there."

Plymouth Salem might have the most outstanding individual in Jenny Harris, who excels in the high jump and hurdles.

"She might be the best overall athlete in our conference," Przygodski said. "She's someone to keep an eye on."

Other top athletes who will compete Saturday include Livonia Franklin hurdler Cheryl Bayer, Stevenson discus thrower and shot putter Jessann Martin, Farmington Hills Mercy shot putter Charese Sanders and distance runners Jennifer Kiel of Farmington and Michelle Gayney of Redford Bishop Farmington's top sprinters are Jennifer Reed, Carrie Maier and Amy Trunk, "and we've got some good distance kids, too," Przygodski said. That group includes Lori Penland, Missy Jasnowski, Kris Marquard, Cindy Spessard and Adrienne Garrow among others.

The 15-team field also includes Adrian, Ann Arbor Huron, Dearborn, Farmington Hills Mercy, Livonia Churchill, Walled Lake Central and Western and Wayne Memorial.

Salem 2nd in tourney

Plymouth Salem tied tournament host Essexville Garber for runner-up honors in boys tennis competition Saturday. No. 8-ranked Traverse

City claimed first place. The six-team event included Troy Athens, Woodhaven and Ludington. Each school played three matches at every flight, and Salem won all of its first-round matches with the exception of one. Salem's Scott Hobbs and Matt Lore captured the No. 1 doubles title, winning their matches against Garber 6-0, 6-2, Athens 6-1, 5-7, 6-4 and Traverse City 6-4, 6-4. Traverse City's only losses were to Salem's

No. 1 and 4 doubles teams Salem's No. 1 singles player, Rich Cundiff, was sidelined by a viral infection, causing the other singles players to move up one position. Ryan Bannan, at No. 1 singles, defeated Athens 7-6, 6-2, but lost to Traverse City 6-1, 6-1 and Ludington

At other flights in matches involving Salem players, the results were as follows:

No. 2 singles: Wade Garard defeated Ludington 1-6, 6-3, 6-3; lost to Traverse City 6-1, 6-1; defeated Garber 4-6, 6-1, 6-

No. 3 singles: Chris Marschak beat Woodhaven 6-1, 6-3; lost to Ludington 7-6. 6-4; lost to Traverse City 6-4, 6-1. No. 4 singles: Wilson Lee lost to Traverse City 6-0, 6-1; lost to Athens 6-2, 6-1; deteated Woodhaven 6-4, 6-4. No. 2 doubles: Jeff Rearick and Mike Sell defeated Athens in the first round and

No. 3 doubles: Jeff Elliott and K.C. Kirkpatrick beat Ludington 6-0, 6-2; lost to Traverse City 8-4, 6-2; defeated Woodhaven 6-1, 6-2.

No. 4 doubles: Patrick Alphonso and Jeremy Clonca defeated Woodhaven 6-2, 6-1; lost to Athens 3-6, 6-4, 7-6; defeated Traverse City 6-4, 3-6, 6-4.

The Rocks were second in the four-mile relay and third in the two-mile and distance medley relays, helping Salem maintain its record of good showings in the annual meet.

Salem, which won the meet two years ago and has never finished lower than fifth in five appearances, scored 31 points and was fourth in the 11-team meet at Dearborn High School. The host Pioneers were first with 47 points. Plymouth Canton finished 10th.

The Rocks were second in the four-mile relay with lead-off runner Scott Stryker setting a good pace with a 4:38 mile. Salem coach Gary Balconi was impressed with the consistent efforts as Brendon Masterson, Dave Hamway and Dave Christensen each followed with 4:44 runs.

Salem was third in the other distance relays. Bob Anzivino, John Thomas, Hamway and Masterson combined for an 8:42.3 time in the two-mile relay, and Brian Burlison, Dave Van Hoose, Stryker and Sean Speakman completed the medley relay in 11:24.5. "IT WAS AS fine a team performance by our distance kids since I've been involved with Plymouth Salem track," said Balconi, giving credit to assistant coach Geoff Baker for his work with the distance runners.

The Rocks had two additional second-place finishes. In the high hurdle shuttle relay, Steve Burlison, Jim Ramsey, Troy Giacherio and Roger Parry posted a combined time of 1:09.3.

Salem also was runner-up in the shot put in which Don Parrish threw the shot 41 feet, 3 inches, gon 39-0 and Jack Lupo 39-4.

Purry linked with Bryan Neal and Leon Hister to give the Rocks third place in the long jump. Parry leaped 19-6, Histor 18-10% and Neal 17-7. Parry also had a hand in Salem's fourth-place finish in the high jump. He jumped 6-2, Mike Al-bertson 6-0 and Ramsey 5-4.

Salem also had a pair of fifth places in sprint relays. Robert Copeland, Todd Cimo, Randy Fill and Matt Perron were clocked at 1:37.5 in the 800 relay, and Histor, Todd Marsee, Pat Bowie and Perron completed the 400 contest in

New goalie saves day for reigning champs, 1-0

Plymouth Canton, the defending Class A girls soccer champion, de-feated Livenia Churchill 1-0 Wednes-day and the shutout belonged to goalkasper Michelle Portier. Probably known more for her ss to dive for loose basketballs, Fortier kicked aside all 12 Churchill shots, playing in place of Jacqi Walkowiak.

Walkowiak broke her jaw in Canton's season-opening 5-2 win over Birmingham Marian, so the goalie duties the rest of the way belong to Fortier, normally a left halfback.

Fortier, who has accepted a basketball scholarship to Western Michigan University, is ready for the

"I THOUGHT I played all right, but the defense did most of the work," said Fortier, who played two games in goal last year. "It's nervewracking. There's more pressure in being a goalie than a halfback. If you give up a goal then you feel like it's your fault."

Sophomore forward Ayana Nash gave Canton the only goal it needed just 7:35 into the first half when her crossing pass deflected off a Churchill player and got by Churchill's stunned goalkeeper Dana Keller. Canton, ranked No. 1 in this week's Class A pell, improved to 2-0 and meets No. 2-ranked Plymouth Salem Friday at 7 p.m at Centennial Education Park.

The loss drops Churchill to 1-1 overall. The game was the season opener for both teams in the Western Division of the Western Lakes Activities Association.

Canton coach Don Smith praised the play of Fortier afterward, knowing the Chiefs might have been on the losing end without her.

"CHURCHILL OUTSHOT us, outscrapped us, but we got lucky on the scoreboard," Smith said. "Michelle played well. And she's going got no choice. She's played goal-keeper before so she doesn't need any special directions."

Churchill had several good oppor-tunities to tie the game in both the first and second halves.

A shot by Nikki Johnson in the first half hit the crossbar and the rebound was headed just wide of the net by Dana Pososki.

Midway through the second half. Fortier made a diving save off an inuirect kick at point-blank range.

Keller also frustrated Canton, keeping the Chiefs' high-scoring forwards Shannon Meath and Jenny Russell off the scoreboard. She kept Churchill in the game in the second half, making a diving save on a shot

"Fortier saved some tough ones, but most of them were from far out." Churchill coach Nick O'Shea said. "We didn't get inside on her enough. It's a bad way to open (the Western Division schedule), but Canton's a tough team. We'll be all right. It's a long season, and we have a strange to have a coach with a family member on the other team."

But anyone who has seen a Canton soccer game and witnessed Smith's vocal and highly involved coaching style has no doubt the Chiefs have his full commitment.

QUITE A FEW played for me in Bonanza soccer, so they knew I didn't just do things for fun," he said. "They knew we'd always be going out there and doing

From the time she was 7 years old and began playing soccer until she was a high school sophomore, Missy played on youth teams coached by her dad.

At first, it was strange when she heard his voice from the sideline and then realized he wasn't yelling instructions to her anymore. But now she enjoys playing against her father's team, and both agree it's probably best that way. Nobody can accuse the coach of fa-

But there are still times when Smith is tempted to yell instructions to his daughter from the stands, but he manages to pull in the reins and refrain from doing so.

"Of course, you always think you can get your kids to do more for you, but I never say anything to her," he said. "I don't want to try and coach her anymore, because she's playing for somebody else." Because the Smiths had such a longstanding coachplayer relationship in addition to their father-daughter relationship, Missy empathized with her father when the Rocks beat Canton to win the 1987 district champi-

"THAT WAS his first year, and I think that year we did have the better team," she said. "But I think I did. kinda. When I was young, we always had good teams and we won together.'

such as prying for inside information about the other's

"They had a game Saturday, and I asked her how she did and who scored," Don said. "But that's about all we

"She pretty much knows what we're going to do. Soccer is a game of spontaneity. It's not like football with set plays. It's action and reaction, and the game goes on from there." The Smiths might be the only family - certainly one of the few - to have won back-to-back state champions ships with different teams. It's quite possible the Class A title could remain in Plymouth-Canton for a third straight year. Is there an ongoing debate in the Smith house to whom that might be?

"We really haven't said anything about that," Missy said. "We just talk about how we're doing and how we look. I think we both have a good chance because we're two of the best teams out there.'

FRIDAY'S GAME might not be as pressure packed as a possible rematch in the district could be, but Missy is hoping to sweep the Chiefs, which is what Canton did to Salem last year.

"I really want this one because we didn't win last year, and I won't be playing soccer again after this year." she said

As for the Chiefs, they had an important Western Division game Wednesday night with Livonia Churchill. So there won't be much time for Smith, who teaches at Gompers Elementary School in Detroit, to think about playing Salem until game day. Everybody is going their own speed and direction around here in the morning," he said. "She'll probably be gone before I get home. I'll go and watch the JV game to settle my nerves."

And the Smiths can talk about the game over break-

Rocks sail past Mercy

The Class A girls soccer ratings came out this week with Plymouth Canton earning the top spot and Salem

The Rocks proved they belong in the top 10 Monday, defeating Farmington Hills Mercy 5-1 in the rain and mud at Centennial Educational Park.

Friday, we'll find out how accurate the poll is at the Salem and Canton meet at 7 p.m. at CEP to decide who owns the early-season bragging rights. Canton is the defending Class A state champion while Salem won

"IT'LL BE a dogfight," Salem coach Ken Johnson said. "We can't relax because they've got (Shannon) Meath and (Jenny) Russell - they're two good forwards. We'll get a couple goals, but we've got to stop

"Then there's the invisible element. There's a lot of emotion in this game. It depends on which way the emo-tion swings. Sometimes the better team doesn't win." Salem's offense was in high gear Monday, with striker

Michelle Minton tallying three goals and center-halfback Jill Estey collecting two goals. Estey added two assists and is responding well to the new position, after playing the last three years on the frontline.

Estey, a basketball point guard, has similar responsibilities on the Salem soccer team.

"She's still getting the goals but the way she works the ball up the middle she reminds me of a point guard,"

Johnson said. "She picks up the loose balls and plays with good vision - just like a point guard."

Salem again got superb play from freshman goalkeeper Jennifer Emmett. Johnson pulled Emmett with the game decided and about 10 minutes left, and by then she had recorded six saves. Terese Rosinski was Emmett's replacement in the net.

Dana Lehmkuhl scored the lone goal for Mercy, which is winless in three games.

FARMINGTON RAN its record to 3-0 Monday night with a 12-0 victory over host Southfield Lathrup.

It was the second straight game in which the Falcons won by that score, and it raised their early-season goal differential to 32-1. Farmington defeated Bloomfield Hills Lahser and Redford Union in its first two games.

"When we play disciplined and play well, we're going to have opportunities to score a lot of goals," Farmington coach Cathy Cole said. "I'm looking forward to getting into division and conference play."

Amy Trunk led the latest goal-scoring barrage with five, including three in the first half as the Falcons built

Carrie Maier scored three goals, and Jennifer Misaros, Margaret Martin, Julie Dugan and Jody Perris had one apiece. Martin and Perris also had two assists, Maier, Misaros, Dugan, Katie MacDonald and Sue Gib-

Deb Westerkamp and Kristen Soper split time in goal for Farmington, sharing the shutout.

Marlins runners-up at Oxford

Farmington Hills Mercy tasted sweet victory Monday as it defeated arch rival Harper Woods Regina in truck and field, 84%-43%.

That success in the first dual meet of the season came on the heels of a second-place showing Friday in the Oxford Relays. Troy won the meet with 74 points, and the Marlins were close behind with 69.

In the dual, Mercy won all but one field event and all the running events with the exception of one. Charese Sanders won the shot put,

Gail Murie the high jump and Jamie Robinson the long jump. Kim Cook captured first place in the 200-meter dash, Lauren Hood the 400, Heather Sullivan the 800, Brigitte Dery the 1,600 and Carrie Walton the 3,200. Mary Beth Strand was the 100-meter hurdles winner.

The Marlins also captured a pair of relays. Adanna Amanze, Yvonne Bostic, Murie and Cook beat Regina in the 400, and Kathleen Gerigk, Hood, Noelle Gates and Sullivan did the same in the 1,600.

MERCY WAS among the best in most events at Oxford, but its lone firsts came in the shot put and

Sanders, Bostic and Laure DeMattia had a combined distance of 89-7 in the shot, and Sanders, Katie Padilla and Jeanette Turner accumulated a mark of 246 feet, 51/2 inches in the

The Marlins had a pair of seconds in distance relays. Dery, Heather Noll, Kristine August and Judi Rosowski went 25:21 in the 6,400 relay, and Gerigk, Sullivan, Noll and Walton finished the distance medley in rneys,

men's

From the perfect weather to the torrid finishing times, the 13th ages-al West Bloomfield half-marathon was a race to femember.

Fast? Any faster and they'd have to get the United States Auto Club to John McKay of Ann Arbor broke the course record by 50 seconds — and he didn't even finish first. Doug Kurtis, 37, of Northville, a former Livonia prep star and Michigan State runner, threw in surge after surge, finally breaking McKay at the nine-mile mark and pulling away to a 24-second victory, in 1:07:32.

Rurtis, who holds the American record with 40 sub-2:20 marathons, ended up breaking the course record by nearly a minute and a half, which usually calls for strong adjectives. But if you use words like "shat-tered," or "crushed" for Kurtis' 13.1mile romp, what do you use to describe the performance put in by lit-tle Cheri Siy of Dexter? Siy, 24, who looks more like a girl in her first day of junior high than a woman on the verge of world-class status, finished in 1:18:57 to break Ella Willis' fiveyear old course record by nearly four minutes.

And — get this — Sly did it on a day when she said she felt bad, had dead legs and was on the verge of panicking on and off during the run because of how lousy she was doing.

SLY PLACED in the top 15 in two major races in Florida this winter, the Gasparilla 15K in Tampa and the Red Lobster 10K in Orlando, both of which draw an international field of the sport's stars. And last summer she broke the course record at the prestigious Dexter-Ann Arbor halfmarathon. So it was no surprise to see her in the lead Sunday.

While it may have surprised some by how far she was in the lead - she beat runner-up Beth Mitchell, 25, of East Lansing by more than eight minutes — Sly said it really was an off-day for her.

"My legs have been dead lately," said Sly, who realized she wouldn't reach her pre-race goal of 1:14 when she went through the first mile in 5:38. "It was preity hard out there. I was panicking, thinking 'Great, I'm going to run a 1:17 or something.' I was really tired, not feeling too

Sly heard about the race from McKay, her partner on the Domino's racing team. McKay, a second-year medical student at the University of Michigan and a former varsity runner at U-M, had a 13-year edge on Kurtis, but a big deficit in experi-

"I'm happy with my time," said McKay. "Doug was surging the whole race and got a bit of space on me at nine miles. I couldn't catch him. Even after he got away, I felt good, I thought I had a chance to come back on him, but I didn't have

"I could feel him slow up at nine, so I picked it up a bit, just enough to hurt him," said Kurtis, who won the Barcelona marathon last month in 2:16, his fastest time in years, and who also won last fall's Free Press International Marathon.

"I thought I'd broke him, but I looked around at 11 miles and he was still close, so I pushed him again," said Kurtis, who said he was using the race to test his fitness for winning and losing. Or, to be more precise, it's about only winning. Just finishing makes you a winner. Ask Karen Braniecki of West Bloomfield, the last winner to finish, in 250-00. Competition is still the heart of it, though. Marybeth Dillon, an Observ-or & Ecountric reporter who was helping to cover the race. group in 1:31:09.

One of the women with whom she as dueling was June MacDonald of Detroit, a newcomer to the 40-49 group. MacDonald pulled away late and won her division by more than utes in 1:30:46.

Herve Corne of Windsor had reason to smile. A native Frenchman, he came to run as a tuneup for the Paris Marathon. He ran 1:14:06 and was second in the 30-39 age group, a nice present on his 38th birthday.

Larry Olszewski, 41, of Detroit, won the masters (40 and up) in

The only grumbling — and it was substantial — was by the women and the older men at the awards ceremony. Though the West Bloomfield race is one of the area's largest, with 724 entrants, awards only went out two deep to men 50-59 and 60-69 and to women in all age groups. The stan-dard at races is either three deep in five-year age groups, or five deep in 10-year age groups.

"They go 12 deep in 30 to 39 and 10 deep in 40 to 49 and only two deep 50 and over? That's not fair," said Ralph Judd, 50, of Detroit.

Mandi Pulk set a meet record for Girls 12 and under in the 50-yard breaststroke (22.45), leading the Clarenceville Swim Club to the A Clarencevillo Swim Club to the A Division title at the 19th annual Michigan Metro Winter Longue Champiouships, hosted April 8 by the Southfield Swim Club.

Clarenceville scored 1,197 points in beating the Pointes Aquatic Swim Club (1,010), Taylor Pool Sharks (833) and host Southfield

In the B Division, the Wayne Recreation Dolphins took the title with $88 points followed by the Dearborn Dolphins (423) and the Allen Park Barracudas (379).

Falk added to her record by taking a third in the 50 butterfly.

Teammate David Knapp, mean-while, tied the Boys 8 and under mark in the 25 butterfly with a time of 15.81. He also placed second in the 25 freestyle (14.81) and was a member of Clarenceville's record-setting 8 and under mixed 100 freestyle relay (58.97) along with Karl Pawlewicz, Amy Schaner and Rebecca Noechel.

"The Fight of the Century" Seminar

May 7, 8, 9, 10

Two generations agreed upon by researchers on our society are (1) that social disorder in our culture results from complete family disorganization, and (2) that the forces of disorganization arise primarily not from within the family, but from circumstances in which the family finds itself and from the way of life that is imposed on it by those circu

This seminar discusses those circumstances. They are such obvious problems as divorce, homosexuality, pornography, abortion and many other evil realities of our culture. But the seminar does not stop there: It goes much deeper into the WHYS of those problems. It leads us to thoroughly examine the philosophies which have made our homes vulnerable, shows how those philosophies operate within our culture, and then gives us the knowledge with which we can BUILD BETTER CHRISTIAN HOMES.

If you want to know how Christian families are being attacked what humanists believe, and how their beliefs change our society what humanism is - who modern enemies of Christian homes are - how humanism dominates major professions, such as law, media, medicine, psychology, etc. - how public schools are used to teach humanism - how Christians suffer because of humanism - what Christians can do to oppose humanism - whether Christians will be persecuted in America etc., THEN YOU SHOULD HEAR THESSE MESSAGES!

Madonna's mark 6-11

After losing four-streight games last weekend, Madonna College's baseball team rebounded to sweep Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association leader Calvin College, 3-2 and 6-5, Tuesday in Grend Rapids. The twin wins raised Madonna's record to 6-11. Calvin is 7-11.

The opener was a pitcher's duel until the seventh, when Knights' starter Tom Weyler loaded the bases by walking two Madonna batters and hitting a third. He was relieved by Brian Ganzezoort, who walked the first man he faced, Jim Boucher, to force in the eventual game-winning

Greg St. John went the distance for the Fighting Crusaders, allowing five hits and two walks while striking out five. The only blemish against St. John came with two out in the fourth, when Calvin's Steve Ritsema tagged him for a two-run

In the second game, the Crusaders pounded out 14 hits and had a 6-2 lead with two out in the seventh before Calvin rallied with a walk, two singles and a two-run double by Jim Timmer. Mike Hocking relieved starter Pete Berrios and induced Peter Rozean to fly out to right field, ending the game.

Mike Wienczak led the Madonna hit parade with two singles that delivered three runs. Boucher also contributed a key hit, a two-run double in the fifth that broke a 2-2 tie. Rich

ON SUNDAY, Madonna lost twice at Northwood Institute, 18-7 and 18-8, and most of the damage could be credited to a pair of Madonna coach Mike George's former Redford Bishop Borgess players. Ed Dreslinski had two doubles in the first game and three hits, including a three-run homer, in the second.

Ed's brother Paul was equally de-structive: four-for-four, with three stolen bases and three runs scored, . in the opener, and two solo homers and three RBI in the nightcap.

The Crusaders managed just six hits in the opener. Coffell had a tworun double in the seventh and Terlecki had two hits and two RBI. Hayward was the losing pitcher.

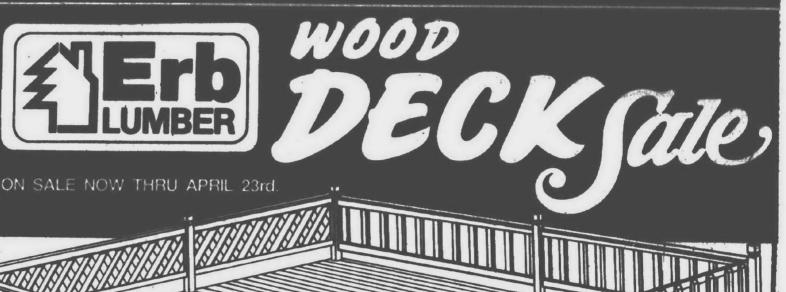

In game No. 2, Terlecki went fourfor-five and hit a solo homer in the first to lead a 13-hit attack. Still, it wasn't enough. Gierczak, Hayward and Berrios each had two hits, with Berrios driving in two runs (one on a fourth-inning solo shot), and St. John added a solo homer in the seventh. Berrios was the losing pitcher.

LAST FRIDAY, the Crusaders fell twice to Siena Heights, 8-1 and 8-7, at Ford Field. Brent Loomis handcuffed them with a two-hitter in the opener. St. John was the loser.

In the second game, Siena trailed 5-3 with two out and no one on base in the sixth inning. The Saints rallied for five runs in the inning on two walks and four hits for the win.

Horror fiction success story has him smiling

IGHT YEARS ago, Troy schoolteacher John Stchur packed up his first novel and sent it on its rounds to publishers. The 250-page action-adventure story had taken him 14 months to write.

There were no takers.

Not dismayed, he immediately set to work on another action-adventure tale. After another 14 months of work, he tried to sell that to publishers, too.

Still no luck.

The faint-of-heart or the not-quiteso-determined might have put away their pens, paper, and aspirations to write a published novel at about this point, but not John Stchur.

Instead, he did-a bit or research and found that the market for action-adventure novels at the time was, at best, lukewarm — so lukeware, in fact, that even titles penned by "name" authors were sometimes languishing on the shelves.

CLEARLY, AS AN unknown writer, he felt he had to go in the direction of another genre, if he was to meet with any success. But which Eventually, he chose to write horror fiction, a genre he'd come to know and relish, and one which had been highly popular with readers since the early '70s. Good choice.

"Down on the Farm," an eerie tale set in rural Michigan, was sold in 1986 to St. Martin's Press. And, this week, the 42-year-old Stchur's second horror novel, "Paddywhack" (also set in Michigan), makes its appearance in bookstores across the country.

"Through writing, I feel I'm communicating with a lot of people, and that's very exciting for me," says Stchur of his recent success. "I think one of the reasons I write is that I don't consider myself a very good conversationalist. In fact, I think I'm a terrible conversationalist. But, at the same time, I've always felt I had something to say, always had ideas and thoughts I wanted to share. So, simply to know that I'm communicating is one of the best parts of seeing my books in print."

SEVERAL YEARS AGO, while working on a graduate degree in physical education at Wayne State University, Stchur simply made up his mind to write a book. At the time, his imagination was fired by his study of an 18th century "superstrong man" named Thomas Topham, and both Stchur's action-adventure novels were based on a fictional descendant of Topham.

But a funny thing happened on the way to publication. Though his interest in Topham waned a bit with the writing of the two books, his interest in seeing his work published grew stronger with each publisher's rejection.

"Let me tell you, that can get to be a real burning desire," he says, laughing a bit, but only a bit, at his own dead-serious determination back then.

To work toward making a published book a reality, Stchur took a writing class, joined a writers' group, dropped out of the group, went on to join another writers' group, and considered with infinite care every word of advice or encouragement given him by editors and agents along the way.

In addition, of course, he wrote—always composing in long-hand in spiral notebooks, and typing the finished work later. Every day, after teaching classes at Troy's Martell Elementary School, he placed himself in a kind of voluntary "detention," staying after school to write for two to three hours.

Special events highlight cabaret

Special features for the evening promise to add some extra zing to the Livonia Symphony's annual cabaret concert beginning at 8 p.m. Saturday, April 29, at Madonna College Activities Center.

Some of that interest will be at the hands of guest conductors — including Betty Jean Awrey, symphony board member; Sister Mary Francilene, president of Madonna College, (who is getting to be an old hand at guest conducting, incidentally); and Detroit advertising executive Ernie Jones, long-time orchestra supporter, who also has appeared previously in the guest spot.

A touch of the unexpected will come with the selection of a guest conductor from the audience — chosen as the winner of one of several raffles that will take place during the evening.

"FAT BOB" Taylor, aka the "singing plumber," will assume a familiar role as master of ceremonies and baritone soloist. Sharing the soloist spotlight will be soprano Mary Irvine.

errices/epidiet

Directing the musicians will be conductor Francesco DiBlasi.

Advance reservations for tables of eight ($72 per table) and of 10 ($90) may be made with Ida Krandle, by calling 851-4524. Tickets, at $10 each, may also be purchased at the door with snacks and an open bar available from 7 p.m.

Taylor, formerly a disc jockey with radio stations WJR in Detroit and WAAM-AM in Washtenaw County, is now with station WPZA-AM in Ann Arbor. At the cabaret, he will sing selections from "Man of LaMancha" and will join with Irvine in the statement of the stateme

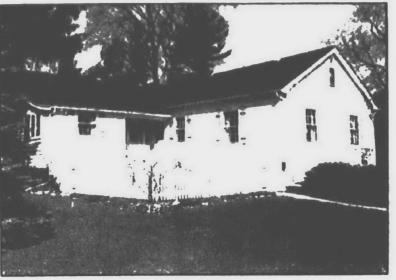

Irvine, who will solo with "Summertime" from "Porgy and Bess," has taught at Oakland University and in the metropolitan area. Educated in the United Kingdom, she has studied with Elly Amerling, Alice Engram of the Detroit area and Madama Gertrude Drinkwater.

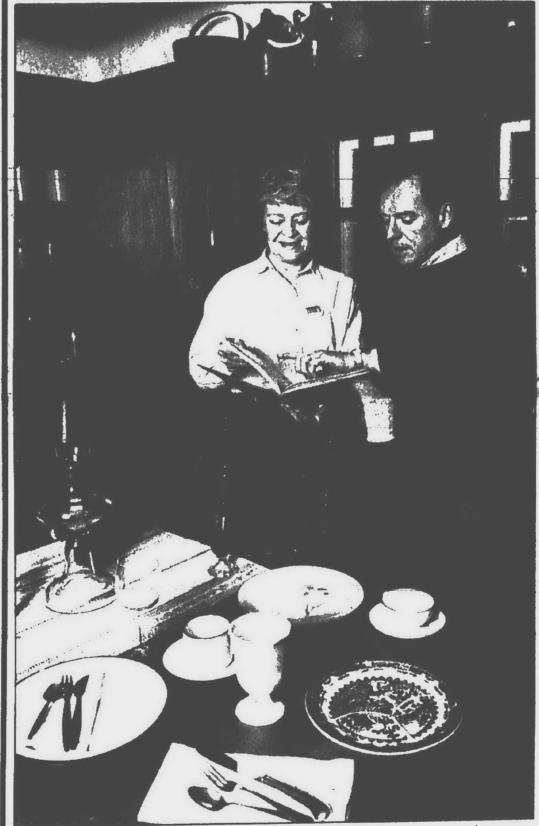

DiBlasi will lead the orchestra in works by Delibes, Scott Joplin, Rossini, Sousa and Sibelius and others.

History comes to dinner

By Marie McGee staff writer

PTER "LOOKING at about 8,000 houses," Louise and Glynn Scanlan finally found the house of their dreams tucked away in one of those out-of-the-way rural pockets of Livonia.

On a dirt road, the house — in a state of disrepair — could scarcely be seen from the street because of overgrown shrubbery and a woods gone wild.

"Glynn wouldn't even leave the car," recalled Louise Scanlan with a smile. "But I went up. And the minute I saw the windows, I knew it had possibilities."

What was under all that brush and neglect was a charming three-bedroom modified cape cod style house steeped in the original owner's personal history and now further enhanced by the Scanlans' talents both inside and out.

IT'S BEEN 18 YEARS since that fateful Saturday morning and a lot of hard work has gone into turning the 1938-vintage house into a showplace of early Americana with Shakerperiod accents. The gardens are probably more beautiful under Glynn Scanlan's care than under the original owner, a Michigan Bell executive who, quaintly enough, enjoyed miniature railroading.

Both Scanlans admittedly are "great"

Both Scanlans admittedly are "great junkers."

That they have been successful on their many weekend forays to garage sales, antique auctions and the like is evident in a tour of the house — she with accessories and he for furniture "finds" that he eventually winds up restoring to their original beauty.

But not only are the Scanlans great antiquers, they love entertaining and Louise admittedly "loves to cook."

And therein lies a connection that links the Scanlans to the shakers and movers of historical preservation in the Livonia community.

It came about three years ago after Louise began volunteering as a tour guide at Hill House Museum at Greenmead, Livonia's historical site. Her involvement led to the couple volunteering to act as hosts in the Livonia Historical Society's annual Progressive Dinner, to raise funds to restore the Alexander Blue House in the Greenmead historical village.

THEY'RE REPEATING THEIR ROLE

again this year — along with several other couples. All host couples will serve an entree of Chicken and Pecans with Dijon Sauce using a recipe from the historical society's own cookbook, submitted by Janet Delazanne, society member.

With an eye to historical significance, the evening will start and end at the American House, a retirement residence on Middlebelt road, the original site of the Blue House before it was moved to Greenmead.

Hors d'oevres at 6 p.m. will start the groups moving to their designated homes. After dinner, guests will return to the American House for dessert, entertainment and program. As a special feature this year, the hor d'ouevres and desserts will be provided by area restaurants and bakeries.

The event, open to the public, is $25 per person. Reservations may be made by calling Marian Renaud at Greenmead, 477-7375, or dinner chairman Jessie Mae Sanderson at 425-7690. Tickets are also available in the fourth floor LOVE office, Livonia City Hall.

Louise and Glynn Scanlan (above) do a bit of research on table settings for their part of the progressive dinner, sponsored by the Livonia Historical Society benefiting restoration efforts of the Alexander Blue House at Greenmead. Louise Scanlan is planning three tables using separate color schemes of blue, green and red. Photo at the right, Jessie Mae Sanderson, chairman of this year's event, goes over the recipe with Louise Scanlan that all the main-course hosts will use. The dinner is open to the public.

History book added

Readers who may want to know about a kinder, gentler Michigan may be interested in a history book recently added to the Livonia library collection. Written by ploneer Michigan resident Lila McKenzie Armbruster, the book, "Shipake" is an autobiography of what it was like growing up in Michigan with particular focus on the Detroit area during the '20s and '30s. Armbruster, 81. now lives in Livonia's McNamara Towers senior citizen residence. One copy of her book is available in the author reference section of Civic Center Library. Two others can be checked out. Shown here with Armbruster is Michael Deller, head librarian of the Livonia system.

THE HOT-SELLER he eventually came up with - "Down on the Farm" - was inspired by his memories of an old barn on the farm where he grew up near Adrian, he says.

Inside the barn was a strange, underground room that he and his friends often avoided because it had an odd, "uncomfortable" aura about it. He started thinking about why a room would make anyone feel that way, he says, and from there, the story about a demonic presence that lurks beneath the floor of an old barn, was off

Stchur's past also served as inspiration for "Paddywhack," an inventive tale of grisly terror about an elderly woman's obsessive relationship with her dog.

"I'd always been around people who started assigning human traits to their pets," Stehur says. "And it's my belief that, after awhile, that can get real eerie. Also, when I was a kid, I'd had some really distasteful experiences with a certain breed of dog, and I think that helped me, as I wrote the story, to muster up genuine feelings about the dog in "Paddywhack."

WHILE STCHUR'S BOOKS, chock-full as they are with chilling images and graphic horror, may not be something to recommend to the insomniac who tends to hear things that go bump in the night, they're destined to be the perfect cup of tea for those who delight in being "safely

We made our annual spring getaway to New York City this past weekend. And what a trip it was. Rain, rain, literally buckets of rain, but not enough to dampen my spirits after one visit to the furniture department in B. Altman Co. Baker, Kittinger and Henredon are well represented there. The "look" is TRADITIONAL.

Yanda, and wastle of Files chinty on the unhol-

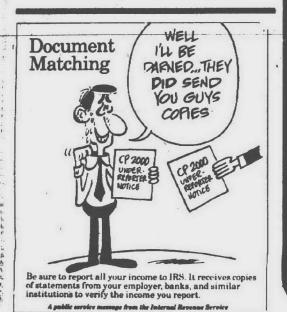

Yards and yards of crisp chintz on the upholstered furniture with draperies of the same puddled on the floor. The patterns are floral roses - large ones, small ones - every size and

Cushions and throw pillows are accented with coordinated fringe, tassels or cord giving additional accent to the piece. For the most part, the pieces were skirted with either gathered or open pinched pleated. Faux finishes in yellow and some in burgandy that look like leather are the perfect fell for the beckgrounds used in the modperfect foil for the backgrounds used in the mod-

I forgot the nasty weather and reveled in what I was seeing. It truly was a delightful experience. I highly recommend a visit to this store if you are contemplating a trip to New York.

Baker Knapp and Tubbs have the same pieces of furniture as well as the Henredon line. They, as well as Kittinger, are all in the Michigan Design Center. As for the fabrics, a visit to any of the fabric showrooms would be a help there

Nearby-transportation, recreation and shopping

Castle Woods is located in a natural picturesque wooded setting on Hunter Avenue (a new road) just South of Westland Mall and Warren Road. I-275 is 21/2 miles west and Ford Road is a half mile south. Living and shopping in this community will be a pleasure at the many stores and designer boutiques, along with restaurants, theaters, office complexes and hotels, all close at hand.

OPEN DAILY & SUNDAY 1 p.m.-6 p.m. (except Thursday)

You feel it as you walk into your own private foyer. Each unit is spacious and self-contained. Outside, Castle Woods is warm and inviting. Early American brick and color design blends beautifully with grassy berms. You'll enjoy the unique country charm of this convenient location.

"I finally found a townhome as large as a home."

"I looked long and hard to find a 2000 sq. ft., cathedral ceiling elegant three-bedroom townhome. (Of course, I could have chosen a two or three-bedroom ranch.) With my own two-car attached garage, my own private basement and patio. And—luxury touches like deluxe kitchens and whirlpool tubs plus land—scaping that I love. Nothing could get me to move from Covington. Nothing.

Aldingbrooke — West Bloomfield's premier rental community - has always attracted its own special flock. Our magnificent estate-like grounds are home to a collection of geese and swans. And to many of metropolitan Detroit's most discerning individuals and families.

Set in a gated community, residents appreciate Aldingbrooks's world of privacy and custom options, with all the services they've come to expect from a luxury apartment community.

Residences up to 2800 square feet include such desirable features as private entryways, split-level or ranch-style designs, dens, breakfast rooms, cathedral ceilings, fireplaces and attached garages.

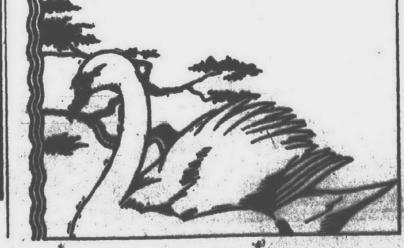

All for much less than you'd expect to pay for such luxury. From $650 to $1650 per month.

Whatever your mind can imagine in luxurious living, you can discover on your first visit to Aldingbrooke. It is indeed rare and beautiful.
