Lawyer wants noise limits

By Doug Funke
staff writer

John Stewart still wants decibel standards incorporated into a local noise law even though some colleagues on the Plymouth Township Board of Trustees don't think much of the idea.

Stewart, a lawyer, believes that specific numbers on the books will give local officials another tool to deal with noise problems that may develop.

Others on the board aren't so sure the problem is big enough to warrant such action.

"I want to have decibel (noise level) meters and guidelines that are practical and enforceable because I believe in sound and noise pollution," Stewart said. "It's damaging physically, emotionally and mentally."

A consultant concluded last year that provisions of the township's land-use ordinance dealing with noise is based on outdated measurements.

The township board will accept proposals to update the noise ordinance, then look at the issue again at its June 27 meeting.

COMPLAINTS FROM homeowners in the Arbor Village Subdivision about noise coming from Howmet Corp., a jet engine manufacturer on Ann Arbor Road, sparked his interest in the noise ordinance, Stewart said.

Some trustees wonder whether a separate noise ordinance with specific decibel standards is necessary.

"If we have a provision let's enforce it," said Abe Munfakh. "If we have a deficiency, let's repair it."

Ron Griffith said even if decibel levels were adopted, they wouldn't immediately apply to existing industry.

A report from the township attorney indicates the township's existing land-use ordinance "requires quantification prior to enforcement."

"It's almost a philosophical issue between those who like to adopt ordinances and those who like to react to complaints," said Supervisor Maurice Breen. "There's no right or wrong on this issue."

CBE changes its stance on millage issue

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

Citizens for Better Education, which has been against two school tax proposals on the June 12 ballot, is softening its stance.

The group now says it is taking no position on the 8-mill renewal and has yet to address the 4-mill increase.

Voters in the Plymouth-Canton school district are being asked to approve 4 mills in additional taxes and an 8-mill renewal. Both are two-year proposals.

CBE is a group of Christian conservatives opposed to the use of R-rated films and other teaching materials it considers unsuitable for the classroom.

After investigating school finances, looking at the district's land holdings, visiting schools and consulting with its members, CBE has decided to neither support nor oppose the renewal, said Diane Daskalakis, CBE chairwoman.

"Since we have recently experienced the discomfort of those who feel they should control the vote of all, we feel sympathetic toward both (viewpoints)."

"These people are smart. They should vote the way that best reflects their financial knowledge," said Daskalakis.

"We're kind of glad we found out there is more financial responsibility than we thought there was," she added.

"Our great problem has never been financial. Our problem has been the board leadership. We want to take our time and effort to support (school board candidate) Bob Anderson."

"We haven't addressed the 4 mills," said Daskalakis. "We may not be taking a stand as an organization unless we find something else. Our stand will be official when our literature is printed."

CBE member Alicia Coscia of Plymouth Township said, "I don't think our real beef is money. But we're unwilling to give them money to work against us, against our beliefs and to challenge the parental role."

Two area citizens groups have

formed to pass the millages and counteract CBE, which has more than 2,600 members, according to Daskalakis.

The Plymouth Citizens Election Committee and the Committee for Academic Freedom and Excellence apparently have made their presence felt among CBE members.

"Three weeks before the election, we've seen what it's like for some people if they're not going to vote for the millages," said Daskalakis, a Plymouth Township jeweler.

"They've made it sound like we're very bad individuals."

CAFE formed after CBE stated its intention to elect a new school board and oppose the millages because of the district's response to their complaints, said Doug McClennen, CAFE co-chairman. "We just took it as blackmail. It makes the kids the pawns of the adults in this controversy."

"One wonders whether that (CBE's revised stand on the renewal) is an indication that among CBE members themselves there's been some feeling that voting against the renewal is going too far," he said.

"When we interviewed Bob Anderson, he was neutral on the renewal. To whatever extent he is the official CBE candidate, I suspect there has been some concern about the organization coming out so strongly against both the renewal and the 4 mills."

JACK FARROW, of the Citizen's Election Committee, said, "I have never believed that Diane was unreasonable. I must say I am quite happy that she has listened to the facts and responded to them."

"We have certainly tried to get the facts out, but I don't think our committee can take any credit for it," Farrow said.

Architect sought for new fire station

By Doug Funke
staff writer

Plymouth Township's third fire station, planned for the intersection of N. Territorial and Beck roads, has come one step closer to materializing with the board's mandate to find an architect for the project.

Ambulance and fire runs west of Sheldon Road — which last year had an average response time of more than eight minutes — should get down to five minutes once the third station is operational, said Fire Chief Larry Groth.

However, that probably won't happen for another 18 months, he added. "It will take that long to get the building up, get equipment and train people to man the station," Groth said. "We want it well planned. That will be the last station built to serve vice the township.

"WE HAVE LOOKED at stations from $500,000 to $1.4 million in the last five months in southeastern Michigan," he said. "What I am looking at is a three-bay, drive-through station."

Groth said he'll probably recommend the hiring of nine full-time firefighters and 10 part-timers to staff the new station.

Supervisor Maurice Breen suspects fewer, five or six full-timers, will be hired. The department has 15 full-time and 20 part-time staff members now, Groth said.

An EMS unit costing more than $65,000 also will be needed, the chief said.

If Station 3 had been operational last year, firefighters there would have been the first to respond to 28 percent of the 1,384 medical/fire runs in the township, Groth said.

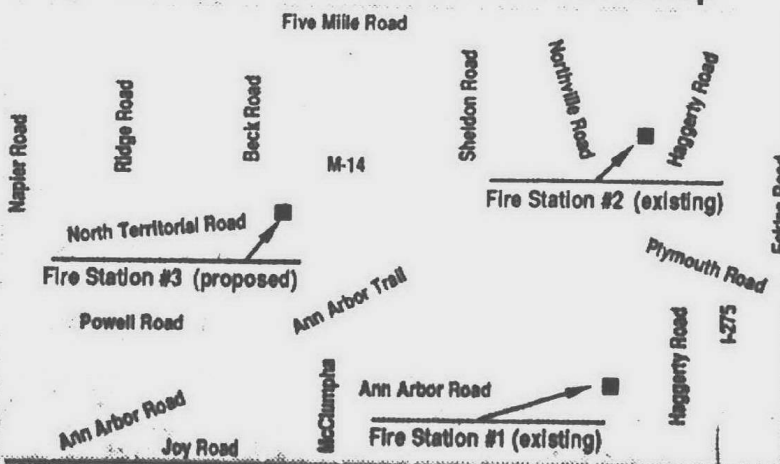

Time is crucial for firefighters.

"When deprived of oxygen, the brain begins to deteriorate after five minutes," Groth said of rescue runs. "Chances for revival and recovery begin to narrow."

"A fire allowed to burn for more than five minutes freely is more de-

Mail stacks up for college-bound students

By Peggy Aulino
staff writer

Some young people treat it as junk mail and throw it in the trash without a second thought. Others peruse the pamphlets out of curiosity, and then throw them away. Still others study them and glean useful information.

Those letters and brochures college-bound students get from schools throughout the country can start filling up their mailboxes as early as junior year. For high achievers, they can arrive in droves. Even self-described "average" students say they get a fair share of handouts.

"What I usually tell students is . . . if you're smart you'll take advantage of this information. Don't just trash it," said Gloria Banks, a guidance counselor at Plymouth Canton High School.

THE DELUGE begins after juniors and seniors take college entrance exams. The reason it starts is because many students check "yes" on the portion of the answer form where it asks if they want to be involved in the college search program.

"What that means is: Are you giving your permission to send your name to colleges throughout the country," Banks explained. "They will hear from schools they never heard of before."

Sure enough, students from Plymouth and Canton offer accounts of being contacted by schools they didn't know existed.

"It comes from everywhere," Junior Derrick Long said of the mail he's been getting from colleges.

But Long and others said they don't have much use for unsolicited college information.

"I look to see who it's from. The only time that you'd look at something is if it's a higher name school," said Long, of Canton.

Erin Koeth, a Canton senior, said she looked over some of the materials "just to see how expensive it was."

And senior Todd Browne said he lost interest in that sort of mail as soon as he was admitted to the college of his choice.

"After I got the (acceptance) letter from Ferris, I just pitched everything else," said Browne, of Plymouth, who will be attending the Big Rapids school come fall.

ERICA MANTZ, a senior from Canton, said she got "lots of stuff" from a variety of colleges.

"They wanted me to come look at their school," she said. But Mantz didn't even look at the loads of information she got because, she said, "I knew where I wanted to go."

Jim McKinnon, another senior from Canton, said the majority of the literature he's received was from branches of the U.S. military.

"I pitched it," he said. Unlike students, Banks and other counselors are glad colleges send information to potential students. They said there are students who learn about a school through that particular marketing technique.

Wayne Sparkman, a counselor at Plymouth Salem High School, said one of his young charges became interested in Washington University in St. Louis after getting mail from the school. It was a college about which Sparkman had little information.

'What I usually tell students is . . . if you're smart you'll take advantage of this information. Don't just trash it.'

— Gloria Banks

"There are so many schools in our country it's impossible (for counselors) to know about every single one of them," Sparkman said.

Another means by which schools market themselves to prospective students is college fairs. Those are events, sometimes held during the school day, when representatives from several colleges are on hand to answer questions about their institution.

Unlike other seniors who were interviewed, McKinnon said he attended such a fair. He said the experience helped him "narrow a lot of colleges down."

But one of his classmates has another opinion.

"I think most kids do it just to get out of classes," said Koeth.

IF A student is involved in athletics, he or she may get more personalized attention from colleges. Senior Bill Thams, a Plymouth resident, said one head football coach sent him a Christmas card. That's on top of invitations to tour schools and have lunch with officials.

Thams is going to attend Olivet College this fall. When it came to making a decision, he said he based his choice not on the mail he got but on the fact that Olivet has a student/teacher ratio of 14 to 1.

Juniors, more so than seniors, said they have little use for college materials.

"They're shoving college down your throat too soon," said Sara

McIntyre, a Canton resident who is a member of the class of 1990. "You've still got two more years of school and you're trying to figure out what you want to do."

But Sparkman doesn't think the third year of high school is too soon to start planning for college.

Juniors must do research on colleges "so that when they apply in the fall of their senior year they've done their investigations," Sparkman said.

Missing — one goat

A little brown goat, possibly a lost pet, raised quite a stir last week in the Arboretum Condominiums off McClumpha south of Ann Arbor Road.

"It has a great appetite for expensive shrubs and leaves his calling card everywhere," said Norman Stockmeyer, who lives there. "As soon as he sees anybody, he leaps into the woods. It's impossible to catch him."

Stockmeyer suspects that the goat is a frightened pet that somehow roamed away from home and now is lost.

The goat was first spotted in the area the weekend of May 20-21.

Its appearance hasn't been all negative.

"We're getting acquainted with neighbors we hardly knew because we're trying to find the owner of the goat," Stockmeyer said.

Tax break denied for Plymouth move

By Marie Chestney
staff writer

After threatening two companies earlier this year but then backing down, the Livonia City Council Wednesday made good on its warning that it will no longer give the approval required by law for a Livonia company to get a tax break in another Michigan community when it decides to move.

The oft-threatened ax fell on Grayco Robotics Inc., 12898 Westmore. By a 5-2 vote, the council refused to give Grayco the approval it needs under Public Act 198 and Act 338 to move to new quarters in Plymouth Township.

The council's denial means that Grayco still can leave Livonia but it won't be able to get the two tax breaks it wants for its new 100,000-square-foot office, research and manufacturing facility in Plymouth Township.

Both acts require approval from the community the company is moving from if the company seeks a tax break in its new community.

"I NOW have a problem with companies going from community to community. I can't support this," council vice president Joan McCotter said.

Voting to deny permission for Grayco to leave were McCotter, members Gerald "Joe" Taylor, Ron Ochala and Laura Toy and council president Fernon Feenstra.

The lone holdouts were council members Robert Bishop and Dale Jurcisin. Both said Grayco is being made the "fall guy" for a law city officials find objectionable.

"You're punishing them for leaving. That's not the duty or business of government," Bishop said. "We all object to the law. We'll wind up the loser here. We should get the legislature to change the law, not punish them for the legal use of this law."

Jurcisin called the council's action an "unfair restriction on trade."

SINCE FEBRUARY, city officials have criticized the two acts, saying they are no longer doing what they originally were meant to do — bring new companies into Michigan.

Instead of bringing new business into the state, city officials say the act is now pitting city against city, with communities using the carrot of a tax break to lure other Michigan companies.

So far this year, the council twice threatened to deny the approval needed to two companies that wanted to move and get a tax break elsewhere.

But opponents of the acts failed to muster enough votes among their colleagues; the two companies, TnT-EDM Inc. and Astro Automation, eventually got the OK they needed to leave and get a tax break in Plymouth Township.

Wednesday, the tide turned, however. Enough council members had joined the bandwagon to let the ax fall on Grayco.

IN MARCH, the council asked state Rep. Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia, state Rep. John Bennett, D-Redford, and state Sen. R. Robert Geake, R-Northville, to "introduce appropriate legislation which either repeals Act 198 or at least amends it."

Bankes said she asked the House service bureau to prepare a bill amending it. The bill should be ready by September, she said.

In a letter to the council, Geake said that he saw little chance the act would be killed but that it could be amended in some way so it didn't apply to certain Michigan businesses.

THE MICHIGAN Department of Commerce recently completed a three-year study of Act 198. The study shows the act is overwhelmingly being used by companies already in Michigan.

In 1988, the study compared Westland, Grand Rapids and Benton Township. In these three communities, three companies that used the act were new to Michigan; 38 companies already were in Michigan.

In 1987, the study compared Auburn Hills, Livonia and Breitung Township. In these three communities, two companies that used the act were new to Michigan; 16 companies already were in Michigan.

In 1986, the study compared Kalamazoo, Hillsdale and Coldwater. In the three communities, one company that got a tax break under the act was new to Michigan; 22 already were based in Michigan.

Lines, fence spark damage to house

Downed power lines last week on Brookline in Plymouth Township electrified a chainlink fence, which in turn, electrified the aluminum siding of a nearby house causing an estimated $15,000 damage to the structure and $5,000 to contents.

No one was in the house when the damage occurred, according to Fire Chief Larry Groth.

A neighbor reported the fire at about 6 a.m. Thursday, Groth said. Firefighters had to wait on the scene for about two hours for Detroit Edison crews to shut off power before they could get to work.

Walls were damaged in two bedrooms. Siding was damaged around the house. The structure's wiring also could be damaged, Groth said.

The wind or lightning caused a tree branch to bring two power lines down onto the fence. Part of the fence was touching the aluminum siding on the house, Groth said.

"If you have a chainlink fence, it should no way be attached to your house," he said. "Aluminum is a conductor of electricity."

CBE alters stance

"Diane would have found the facts out by herself anyway because she has access to the same information we do. All the information we're working with is public information. She simply examined the facts and came to the same conclusion we did."

CURRENTLY, firefighters at Station 1, Ann Arbor Road and Lilley, are the first to respond to all runs south of N. Territorial and Hines Drive.

Firefighters at Station 2, Wilcox Road near Schoolcraft, go out first on all runs north of Hines Drive and North Territorial.

The average response time on runs east of Sheldon Road from Station 1 last year was 4:18 and from Station 2, 5:48, Groth said. The average response time from either station west of Sheldon was 8:12.

"We're serving the western portion of the township from the very eastern part of the township," Groth said. "That's why you have long response times. It depends on time of day, weather and traffic load."

Supervisor Maurice Breen said he doesn't intend to pursue additional millage to build and operate the fire station.

Lawyer wants noise limits

STEWART POINTS to a Dearborn ordinance adopted in 1980 that spikes out specific sound level standards for residential, commercial and industrial areas depending on time of day as a possible model for the township.

"I'd rather go in with a specific number than generalities," said Dearborn police Cpl. Ronald Wilson, who's also a lawyer. "It's evidence. It makes me feel a lot more comfortable as an attorney."

The city has never been in court with its decibel ordinance, Wilson said.

"First we're going to go to the neighbor and tell him, 'Your stereo is too loud. Turn that baby down,'" Wilson said. "Ninety-nine point nine percent of the time, people will comply."

Six Dearborn police officers are certified to use the city's sound machine, he said.

Stewart said he envisions township police using a decibel meter only after receiving a complaint. Most would involve factories, he speculated.

"I think enough people have acknowledged that we need to revise and update our noise ordinance," Stewart said. "I hope it's done."

Japanese governor: Remember language

By Diane Gale
staff writer

East met West, moved West and now some of the young people have a yen for the lifestyle.

But Toranosuke Takeshita, governor of Japan's Hiroshima prefecture, wants his Japanese compatriots to remember their native language. That was the message he gave during his visit Wednesday with Japanese students attending Plymouth-Canton High School.

Most of the students' parents work for Mazda.

"One thing I'm concerned about is our kids will forget the Japanese language," Takeshita said through an interpreter. "So I'm thinking how to help them keep up with their language."

"The University of Michigan has had a very fine Japanese educational center that is number one in the United States. Hiroshima University has a very nice educational system," he said.

A stronger tie can be secured between the people of both countries through the universities, he said.

WHEN TAKESHITA mingled

among the students in the Canton high school library and asked them about their adjustments, the conversation always came back to language.

A student, in the United States for three months, said mastering words were her biggest obstacle.

Risako Takahashi, a three-year Canton resident, said it took her two years to feel comfortable with the language and now she has plans to attend college in the United States. Takeshita asked about her biggest concerns.

"It takes a lot of money," she said and laughed.

TAKAHASHI SMILED and said she never met the governor when she lived in Japan.

"We have more freedom here, especially for the students," Takahashi said.

Waving her hand toward her lipstick and earrings, Takahashi said Japanese students wear uniforms and are banned from wearing make-up or having pierced ears.

Sitting next to her, Asaka Motoyama said driving has been the best freedom for her. In Japan, you have to be at least 18 years old to drive.

THE JAPANESE students bring an internationalism to the school, said Tom Tattan, Canton principal.

"It brings home the global nature of the world and our inter-relations," Tattan said.

A Japanese student who attended Plymouth-Canton schools returned to his hometown and easily passed entrance exams for Hiroshima University, Tattan said.

"So the students haven't suffered (educationally)" during the time spent in local schools, he said.

Young authors follow script of hard work

By Julie Brown
staff writer

DeLeon Demicoli thinks writing's a lot of fun.

"It's great. I love it," said DeLeon, a fifth grader at Hoben Elementary School in Canton.

He and his classmates know that writing isn't an effortless task. It takes time and concentration.

"First, I brainstorm," DeLeon said. "We do that a lot."

He then picks his ideas and writes a draft.

"After the draft, I start revising."

He fixes the grammar and spelling.

"After that, you write your story," DeLeon said. "I like writing stories."

Hoben students had a chance to display their writing during the school's "Art, Reading, Writing Fair — Hoben's Spring Kaleidoscope." The program, held Wednesday, May 24, was part of the school's annual Young Authors celebration.

STUDENTS IN kindergarten through fifth grade learned about the process of writing during the school year, said Cyndi Morningstar, learning specialist at Hoben. Examples of student writing — poetry, reports and creative writing — and art work were on display throughout the school.

Kindergartners began with the basics.

"They start with a scribble," Morningstar said.

Kindergartners then progressed to letter strings, to words with invented spellings and to stories.

A DISPLAY of work done by fifth graders was set up next to that showing kindergarten work. Those fifth graders worked with kindergartners on a group story, "Little White Duck."

"They really liked working with them," Morningstar said.

The older students enjoyed being guides, helping kindergartners with the writing and art work.

A first grade class worked on a group project, putting together newspapers based on such fairy tales as "Cinderella" and "Jack and the Beanstalk." Each newspaper was divided into several sections, such as sports, food, entertainment and the front page.

Helen Shelanskey's second graders wrote letters to President George Bush and received a response. Their letters and the president's response were displayed with pride at the fair.

WRITING WAS integrated with science and social studies throughout the year at Hoben. Some students wrote about dinosaurs. Some created dioramas, three-dimensional scenes built inside shoe boxes.

Cathy Sibert's fourth grade class studied the desert and other regions of the world. As part of that, they created pottery pieces from textiles.

Third graders in Fran Snyder's class wrote brief autobiographies. Those students also picked their favorite books and created illustrations for them.

STUDENTS FOUND a variety of subjects to write about. It wasn't all "What I Did on My Summer Vacation."

"There are many fables and hero tales," Morningstar said. "Some are on history."

Some students used the Civil War era as the setting for their stories. Many chose to write adventure stories. Space travel was a popular subject for young writers.

The students did quite a bit of research in the library, helping them do a better job of writing.

"We really are into a lot of using literature as a springboard to develop learning patterns," Morningstar said. "I think that shows through their writing."

LAST WEEK'S celebration wasn't just for students and staff members at Hoben. Wednesday evening, parents came to the school to see the work done during the year.

A display set up the gym covered the different steps of the writing process. Students were at each station, ready to explain to parents the steps involved in writing.

That visit by parents gave students a chance to show off "all the great things that they've done throughout the year," Morningstar said. "I think that children enjoy having their works displayed."

Greenpeace to look for members in Plymouth

Volunteers from the environmentalist group Greenpeace will be canvassing Plymouth in June but not for the amount of hours they had planned.

The city commissioners approved the door-to-door education and fund-raising efforts for June 1-

Greenpeace had requested permission to canvass from 5-9 p.m. weekdays and 1-6 p.m. Saturdays.

Commissioner Mary Childs said other groups at permitted to go door-to-door until 8 p.m. weekdays and 5 p.m. Sundays.

"Asking them to follow the same rules as other groups is not undue interference," said city commissioner Ralph Kenyon.

The commissioners granted permission for the canvassing with the ending times set an hour earlier than requested.

Deadline for letters

It's been a hot school election campaign. And residents in the Canton-Plymouth community have been burning up their typewriters and blowing the boards off their word processors, writing us letters about the millage and the school board race.

But it's time to bring it to a close. The election is Monday, June 12, and because of that, the Plymouth and Canton Observer Newspapers will have to cut off letters. We will accept letters through 5:30 p.m. Wednesday, May 31.

Because of the volume of letters, we will be unable to print them all. Thanks for writing.

Jeff Counts, editor

Education isn't free

To the editor:

We care! The best things in life aren't free. Voting yes on the school millage and renewal may cost us some dinners out, video movies, or that extra desert-item in the shopping cart over the next two years. But the rewards in providing a stimulating environment in which education will prosper obviously outweigh the inconvenience of meeting this short-term invoice. The alternative is to have a school system that cannot meet the needs of the community and a subsequent crash in property values; not to mention the potential loss of dedicated school personnel tired of our apathy. Voting yes will not ensure frills; the basic educational framework is what's at stake.

Plymouth-Canton Schools' Administration has taken the rap long enough for the government's failure to adequately subsidize education. During the good times, a generous fund balance was maintained and the school board has frugally protected the assets of this district, while fostering a sound educational program held in high esteem in many circles. That policy has carried us well into these lean years when we have seen losses in state aid revenue projected at $10 million during the three years, 1987-90, plus the compounding effects of the Headlee rollbacks of $11 million. These are substantial losses of income within a $85 million annual budget.

The facts support our claim: Plymouth-Canton School District's 1988 operating millage at $34.17 (the millage we pay is $34.17 for operating plus $2.00 for voter-approved debt servicing of the bond issue) is one of the lowest in Wayne County.

Operating expenses per pupil of $3,376 are extremely low: fourth lowest of 34 Wayne County School Districts.

We are the eleventh largest district in the State of Michigan in student population, and our administration and business costs rank 38th out of 525 districts in Michigan at $830, compared to Northville's per-pupil cost of $1,342 or 21st in the State (facts from State Bulletin 1014).

Our teacher's average salary is $35,412; while in Wayne County, average salaries are in the $33,000-$41,000 range and 21 of the 34 County districts have a higher average salary. (Salaries compose about 85 percent of expenditures in Plymouth-Canton Schools' budget. Any losses in revenue substantially reflect in loss of teacher personnel).

One day two years from now we will no longer be reliant on the state's formula to return our tax dollars to the district in the form of state aid per pupil. And because increased home values will produce increased revenues from taxes, the district should be at a break-even point in terms of revenue. We only need to provide the bridge to that day. And the cost to us of passing the renewal and the additional 4 mills: after Headlee's effect will net us about 2.08 mills over the current operating millage. Support the millage. Go to your neighborhood school. Sign an I CARE card! And vote yes, yes on June 12.

Filth in our schools

To the editor:

Why is it that your paper is so not against Citizens for Better Education (CBE)? You say censoring is the terrible thing that CBE is forcing down our school district's throat.

If that's what you call getting filth out of our children's lives, then I admit I don't want that in our schools.

You seem to have a double standard. Your paper censors your editorials, your ads, your articles, your reporters, and, I might add, your editors. Every day you censor, but that's OK as long as it's you doing the censoring and not someone else.

Most parents don't allow their children to read or view pornography. Yet some papers and videos used in our schools are nothing short of blatant pornography and are being allowed by our administrators.

I CHALLENGE our school district parents to go out and rent the video "The Breakfast Club" and view it. Just listen to the filthy language in it. Our ministers would be shocked as I am. I say no more trash for our children's minds. They've got enough to cope with today.

I say to those few teachers that insist on their rights, not with my money.

Our administrators had better literally clean up their acts if they want any more of my money.

The seniors in our community would be flabbergasted by the things that go on in a few of our classrooms. I am confused why most of our fine teachers just sit by and tolerate this nonsense. It's teachers like Seaman and Masters that do a disservice to the teaching industry.

Quality education is not accomplished by higher per-student spending rates. The greatest resource in our district — our teachers — have not even been asked how they think things could be improved. These are creative resources. Let's start tapping it.

If quality education comes from the Metro Times and R-rated movies, our school district is in bigger trouble than we all realize. Vote no for the increased millage.

Jerry Raymer, Plymouth Township

CBE after schools

To the editor:

When my husband and I were purchasing a new home, we knew that we wanted to live within the Plymouth-Canton school system. Its reputation was one of a terrific educational program. Our children have attended Allen, Isbister, Hoben, East and Central and Salem. I can honestly say that every teacher and principal I have met is a caring and concerned individual and one who is genuinely interested in the educational growth of each student.

At this time, I am very frightened of the possibility of the millage failures. I am also frightened and angry that a small group of citizens in this community can make our schools look so bad.

WE ALL know that in every area of life there are problems — in business, government and even within the church. There are also those who look for the problems and blow them out of proportion so that nothing looks good. The truth is that there are very many good things about our schools, and you need to see it for yourself.

As a pre-student teacher from EMU, I have had the opportunity to work in several school districts in the area and must say that I am most impressed with the schools in our own community. I am so tired of hearing about the waste in our district and how much our schools should cut back, when I work in these classrooms and see that your dollars are so well spent. (And Plymouth-Canton spends less per pupil than 30 districts in this county!)

PLEASE SPEND time in a school, with a teacher or a principal, and see how your tax dollars are being spent. And yes, you need to check in at the office so they know who is it the building. Our children's protection is the responsibility of the school staff — against kidnapping, drug dealers or the other loonies we have all read about in the papers.

How many of you plan to sell your home in the next few years? Have you thought of how the millage failure could hurt not only the sale, but the value of your home? Would you be able to move elsewhere when our schools are in the same situation as inner-city schools? Yes, the same kind of trouble.

CONSIDER YOUR children and decide whether or not they deserve the extra $200 ($100,000 home) per year for the next two years to maintain our quality school district. Don't forget that some of the $200 is refunded on your tax returns in the form of a tax deduction!

Don't vote yes or no because someone convinces you that they are right. Find out for yourself and make a decision! As I mentioned earlier, simply stop in at any of the school offices, and I know that someone would be happy to take you on a tour of the building and try to explain the need for the renewal and additional mills.

There are materials available to you to help you in making a logical decision. There is a real financial problem, and it is due to the fact that as of next year, our school district will no longer receive any state aid.

Please, don't place a cost on education. It is priceless, and so are our children and their futures.

Karen Elander McClain, Canton

CBE not only Christians

To the editor:

Recently, the papers have been filled with letters from residents of Plymouth-Canton regarding CBE and, more importantly, Diane Daskalakis. After reading these letters, I would like to applaud, since more people are looking into this organization and this woman and discovering that they do not represent Citizens for a Better Education but a small party of concerned Citizens for a Censored Education — censored according to what they believe.

It is a great feeling to have fellow Christians writing in stating that Diane Daskalakis and Citizens for Better Education do not represent them, as is stated in her literature.

I believe that these letters are good and that they should remain in the Readers' Opinion Column.

WHAT I object to is the constant front-page headlines about Diane Daskalakis and CBE and Barbara Graham. This group is backing a person who is running for a position on the board of education. Convince me that this entire campaign over the Metro Times wasn't planned with the election in mind, knowing quite well that free advertising and the name of Citizens for Better Education would be plastered everywhere right before an election.

I would like to suggest that from now 'til election day you print front pages that have pictures of the people who support each candidate with a cover story on what these supporters stand for.

Let's face it, Diane Daskalakis has enough political savvy to write her own rules for a radicals manual illustrating how to gain power and bog down the system to disguise the real issues.

By the way Diane, just because you mail one of your pieces of "yellow journalism" to someone does not mean that that person is one of your supporters. Twenty-six hundred people supporting you? Be real.

HANDS DRIFT

— One of the features of rheumatoid arthritis is its effect on the hands, such that the fingers drift outward and take on the appearance of being out of kilter. Fortunately, this distortion occurs only in severe cases.

— The cause is related to a loss of tendon and ligament balance. A group of muscles called the lumbricals, cross to the back of the hand for the palm via the large knuckles. These large joints are also the sites of arthritis inflammation. The lumbricals when caught up in this irritation, are like innocent bystanders injured by the overflow and momentum of the melee.

— The result is drift of the fingers, as the weakened lumbricals cannot counter the pull of ligaments which pull the fingers outward.

— Using splints to keep the fingers from drifting will not work, as the problem is in the knuckles, not in the digits. Treatment aims to control the arthritis before inflammation gains a foothold in the knuckles. Medicine, heat, injection and careful hand gripping are the strategies used to contain impairment.

— If these approaches fail, then patient and physician turn to surgery. Because the hand is such an intricate mechanism, the surgeon usually cannot restore function, but aims instead to preserve what can be kept functional.

Rally a success

More than 1,000 people packed the bleachers at Plymouth-Canton High School during a pro-millage rally Thursday. William Revelli, retired University of Michigan band director, and retired U-M athletic director Don Canham addressed the crowd, speaking about the necessity of quality schools. Staged by the I Care citizens' committee, the rally featured an informal dinner, performances by the Centennial Educational Park Marching Band and the Symphonic Winds, and "displays of excellence" showcasing schools throughout the district. Voters will be asked to approve an 8-mill renewal and an additional 4 mills in an election June 12.

spokesman. She made a right turn from Canton Center onto Holmes, struck a model home and went through a garage door. At right, a tow truck driver prepares to remove the car as a Canton officer looks on. The driver of the Volvo was cited for failure to use due care and caution.

Area leaders benefit from waste industry PACs

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara received $12,000 in contributions from waste industry PACs last year, according to a recent survey, the largest amount received by any elected official in Michigan.

An American Lung Association of Michigan survey of political action committee contributions listed McNamara, the Saginaw Valley Fund and Gov. James Blanchard the state's top three recipients of waste industry-related contributions. The Saginaw Valley Fund, maintained by state House Speaker Lewis Dodak, received $10,000, according to the Lung Association survey. Blanchard received $6,000.

The Lung Association listed contributions to 178 candidates and political advocacy groups made by six waste industry PACs.

Contributions are legal. The Lung Association, however, said they were a sign of the influence of waste disposal companies, particularly as related to the controversy surrounding incinerator ash.

"OUR PURPOSE (in publishing the list) was in trying to explain why the Legislature was not doing anything about the incinerator ash issue," Lung Association spokesman Alex Sagady said. "This is public information and we feel the public should know. The people who have to live near incinerators don't have PACs."

McNamara was unavailable for comment. A spokesman, however, called the report "misleading."

"First of all, these people operate landfills, not incinerators," deputy county executive Michael Duggan said. "We haven't received a nickel from anyone who operates an incinerator. For the Lung Association to conclude that someone's lungs are going to be damaged because we've accepted a contribution from a landfill operator is misleading. Frankly, I think they should be more concerned about who received money from the tobacco PACs."

Landfills could cause a health risk that was separate from, but related to, waste burning itself.

The Lung Association is lobbying against two House bills related to toxic incinerator ash because its members believe the bills would fail to provide adequate safety standards for ash disposal, Sagady said.

"It's interesting they would make the connection (between the PACs and the bills) because it's not the waste industry that's advocating the bills," said state Rep. James Kosteva, D-Canton. "The push is coming from Detroit, Grand Rapids and the Central Wayne Incinerator Authority, and that's a public body."

Kosteva said he doubted whether the contributions would influence legislators' votes.

"There are some legislators, I would admit, who vote based upon

'This is public information and we feel the public should know. The people who have to live near incinerators don't have PACs.'

— Alex Sagady, lung association spokesman what they've received," he said. "But the majority do not."

OTHER NOTABLE area officials listed in the report included: Detroit Mayor Coleman Young, $2,700; Oakland County Executive Daniel Murphy, $1,280; Wayne County Commission vice chairwoman Susan Heintz, $1,250; Wayne County Commission chairman Arthur Carter, $500; and Wayne County Sheriff Robert Ficano, $450.

County commissioner Milton Mack, chairman of the county's solid waste implementation committee received $200, according to the report. Commissioner Kay Beard received $55. Heintz, R-Northville Township, represents Livonia, Plymouth and Plymouth Township. Mack, D-Wayne, represents Canton Township. Beard, D-Inkster, represents Westland and Garden City. No waste industry contributions were listed for commissioner Richard Manning, D-Redford Township.

Figures were drawn from records filed by the PACs with the Michigan Secretary of State's office for the filing period that ended last November, Sagady said. "We didn't look at each individual office holder's records," he added.

State, county and municipal officials were included in the list. PACs included in the report included:

• CMCAPAC, related to City Management Corp., contractor for the hauling of Detroit incinerator ash. Listed as providing total contributions of $77,869.

• WDPAC, related to Wayne Disposal, operator of a hazardous waste landfill in Belleville. Listed as providing total contributions of $22,845.

• Waste Management Inc. Employees for Better Government PAC, related to Waste Management Inc., a large national firm with operations in Wayne County. Listed as providing contributions of $8,795.

• BFIPAC, related to Browning and Ferris Industries, currently negotiating to buy the Jackson County Board of Public Works Incinerator. Listed as providing contributions of $4,470.

• MWIPAC, related to Michigan Waste Industries, operator of out-state landfills. Listed as providing contributions of $3,200.

• OCPAC, related to Ogden Corp., an incinerator building firm. Listed as providing contributions of $2,400.

McNAMARA WAS listed as receiving $6,000 from the City Management PAC and $2,000 each from the Wayne Disposal, Waste Management and Browning and Ferris PACs. In addition, the Lung Association said the Waste Management PAC listed a $3,900 contribution but accounted for $2,000.

Heintz was listed as receiving $1,000 from the City Management PAC and $250 from the Browning and Ferris PAC.

"Many people contribute to me, but I make no commitments," Heintz said. "In fact, I've supported recycling over incineration."

Kosteva, a member of the House Conservation and Environment

Committee, was listed as receiving $1,250, but called the figure inaccurate.

Kosteva said he returned a $500 contribution from Wayne Disposal and that he received $300 from the Michigan Waste Industry PAC, not the $500 shown in the report.

"I RETURNED the Wayne Disposal PAC money because they operate a landfill in my district," Kosteva said.

He was also listed as receiving $200 from the Waste Management PAC and $50 from the Browning and Ferris PAC.

Mack was listed as receiving $200 from the City Management PAC. Beard was listed as receiving $55 from the same PAC.

Political advocacy groups listed as receiving contributions included: Proposal A political action fund, banning Medicaid-financed abortions, $200 from the City Management PAC; Senate Republican Majority Committee, $2,000 from the Wayne Disposal PAC; Fund for a Democratic House, $300 each from the City Management and Waste Management PACs; House Democratic Campaign Committee, $500 from the Wayne Disposal PAC and Dukakis Presidential Campaign, $500 from the Wayne Disposal PAC.

S'craft president garners praise, raise

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Schoolcraft College president

Richard McDowell received high marks — and a raise — from college trustees after his annual evaluation Wednesday.

McDowell will receive a $4,000 pay raise and $8,000 merit bonus for his accomplishments in the past school year. His salary will rise to $76,000.

Trustees also added a year to McDowell's contract, extending the pact to June 30, 1992. McDowell has been Schoolcraft president since 1981.

The college will continue to buy out McDowell's previous military and civilian benefits over the next year, under terms of last year's contract.

McDOWELL WAS termed a "very capable administrator who is personable and leads by example," in a summary statement issued after the evaluation.

"It's an excellent evaluation," board chairwoman Mary Breen said. Trustees conducted the evaluation in closed session at McDowell's request.

In the statement, trustees praised McDowell's skills in planning, staff development and fund raising, as well as his ties to community and government leaders.

His selection as one of America's top 51 community college presidents, in a poll of his 1,250 peers, also drew praise.

McDOWELL IS a member of the Michigan Education Trust board of directors, helping direct the state tuition-guarantee program.

He is a past president of the Livonia Chamber of Commerce and president of the Livonia Rotary Club.

Last year, trustees expressed a concern McDowell was undertaking too many outside activities.

"We appreciate the fact that he's active in the community, but it was a concern," Breen said. "I think Dick himself realizes he was trying to do too much."

THOUGH COMMENTS were overwhelmingly positive, trustees asked McDowell to give them a greater role in long-range financial planning, program evaluation and community relations.

"Evaluation of the president is really an evaluation of the board, too," Breen said. "Last year, it seemed as though we were moving in six different directions."

In addition, the board asked McDowell to place renewed emphasis upon mutual gains bargaining with Schoolcraft unions.

"It's where you come to the table with two or three solid proposals, not a wish list of things you know you won't be able to obtain," Breen said. "We feel it's worked very effectively for everyone involved in the past, but there's been a tendency to get away from it."

McDowell received a $2,000 raise and $7,500 merit bonus last year.

This year's raise is in keeping with guidelines used to set union contracts, Breen said.

Brews to keep you cool

Since this is the weather for grass cutting, garden tilling, tree trimming, gutter cleaning and other sundry outdoorsy-type jobs, nothing quenches this big boy's thirst better than a cold beer.

Especially with all the hoopla the ad people are pushing — someone dying of thirst has a hard time deciding whether to choose a cold-filtered one, a light one, a dry one, a wet one — needless to say, there are as many descriptions for beer as there are varieties on the market.

One thing that is very prevalent however, is the dedication to brand loyalty.

Being a downriver boy, the big names at the market were always Blatz, Altes and what used to be a very popular selection, E&B. Many of my friends wouldn't touch anything other than their favorite brands, with the majority leaning on the Miller Lite (for obvious reasons) variety.

So how can the novice beer buyer make a realistic selection for what will truly be the icing on the cake on a hot, dusty summer afternoon? Following is a primer list of basic store offerings:

ALE — The pilgrims brought ale, rather than beer, to America. Both beverages contain malted barley, hops, yeast and water, but ale is stronger and contains more alcohol than beer. Another difference is that production of ale utilizes strains of yeast which rise to the top of the fermentation tank. Hence, it is said to be a "top-fermented" beverage.

BEER — What is commonly called beer here in America is known as lager in Europe. The process for brewing was brought to America by German immigrants who arrived in the 1840s. These beers are made with yeasts that drop to the bottom of the fermentation tank. They tend to be lighter, lower in alcohol and contain less hops than ales.

BOCK BEER — Usually available in the spring, it is darker, heavier and sweeter than most beers, mainly because of the highly toasted, dark malt that is used.

DRY BEER — The industry will probably come down on me for saying this, but dry beer is simply a more bitter beer that is heavily hopped (usually twice more than regular) and is known in England as pale ale.

LAGER — The name of this type of beer is derived from the German word "lagern" which means to "store." A lager is light colored, mild tasting, mainly from the added storage in cool conditions.

MALT LIQUOR — American labeling regulations provide that brewed beer containing more than 5 percent alcohol cannot be called beer but must be designated as malt liquors.

PILSENER — Once, this name applied only to a highly regarded lager beer from Pilsen, Czechoslovakia. Now, it merely signifies that a certain product may bear a resemblance to the beer from Pilsen.

PORTER — This ale-like beverage got its name from London market porters who utilize several different brews by mixing them together.

STOUT — Some time ago, a demand arose in Great Britain for an "extra-stout" porter. Hence, this very dark and slightly bitter ale came to be brewed from dark malt.

SAKE — Many people call sake "rice wine" because it has an alcohol content of 15 percent, which is more comparable to wine than a beer. It is truly a cereal beer because the starches in the rice must be converted to sugars before fermentation can take place. Many Japanese beers are surfacing as "yuppie brews," with a slightly lower alcohol content and a sweeter taste.

Morel of the story is they're hard to find

By Larry Janes

LOOKING FOR the best place to hunt morel mushrooms this year? All across the state, morel maniacs are suggesting that you get a super-saver airline ticket to Washington or Oregon.

No, they are not trying to keep their hunting locations a secret, but once again, as for the last six years, hunting for the delectable fungi is poor, mainly due to the light rainfall and late spring.

Anyone who knows me knows that my idea of picking mushrooms is sifting through a box at my local produce market. So, when it comes to writing a story on morels, I contacted some of the state's foremost morel hunters.

First off, and probably the most reliable, were good old Aunt Doris and Uncle Harold, who hail from a tiny city west of Traverse called Cedar. A few years back, Aunt Doris took me, Aunt Phyllis and Cousin

Mike morel hunting, and after a few hours of wandering through the woods and being told, "No, we're not lost," we emerged with about five pounds of the delectable morels.

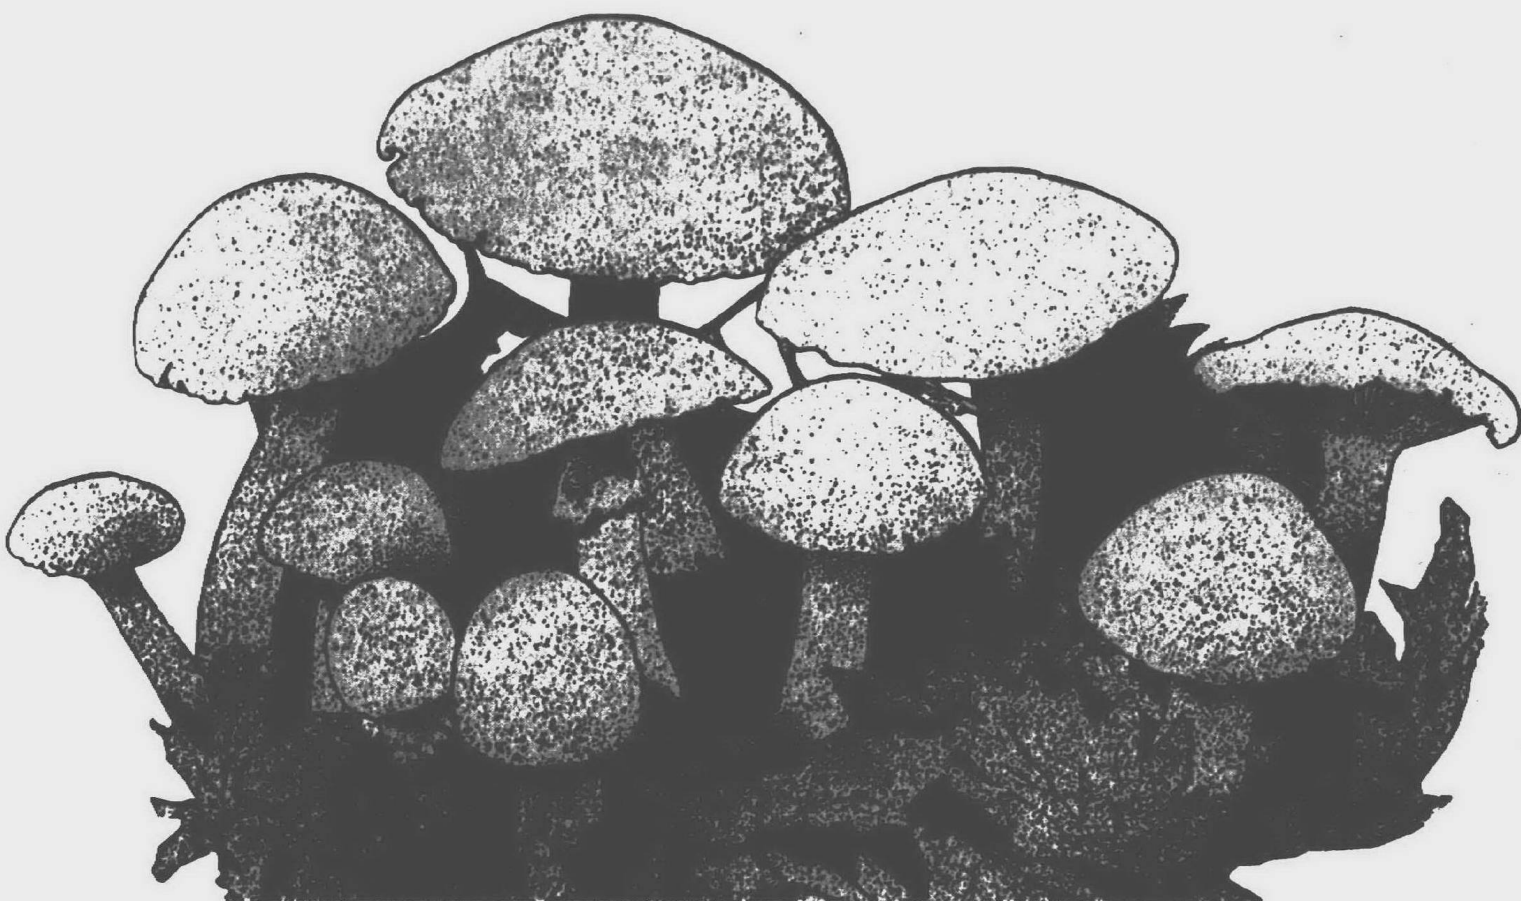

AUNT DORIS and Uncle Harold made me promise never to reveal the location, and all I remember is that it was near a cherry orchard (where we later "found" cherries) about five miles from Fritz Mountain in Cedar.

Numerous telephone calls and letters to Aunt Doris had her spotting only an occasional morel and, in her own words, "If they're not out between April 15 and May 15, they're not going to show." Maybe next year, eh, Aunt Doris? (But I'll be up in the summer to "find" some more cherries, okay?)

My next source, who had a little better luck but not much, was Jim Lark, owner of the Lark restaurant in West Bloomfield. A call to Jim's hideaway in Petoskey found that he had located 40 or so, mainly white

CREAM OF MOREL MUSHROOM SOUP (recipe from the Golden Mushroom, Southfield)

1/2 cup butter
1/2 cup chopped onions
1/2 cup flour
4 cups good chicken broth or stock
1 bay leaf pinch salt pinch nutmeg
2 teaspoons butter
1/2 pound fresh morel mushrooms (or domestic), chopped fine
1 egg yolk
1/2 cup whipping cream

Melt the butter in a heavy saucepan. Add onions and cook slowly until onions are transparent. Add the flour and stir over low heat for 3 minutes. Add the chicken broth and the seasonings. Whip until all lumps are dissolved. Bring to a boil, simmer slowly for 20 minutes, strain. Heat 2 tablespoons butter in a large skillet. Add morels. Cook over high heat until the morels turn grey, but do not brown. Add to soup and simmer 10 minutes. Just before serving, heat soup to a boil. In a separate bowl, mix egg yolk with the cream. Start adding hot soup, whipping steadily with a wire whisk. When half the soup is added, pour it all back into the remaining soup in the saucepan. Do not boil. Serve immediately. Serves 4.

MORELS WITH PASTA IN A LIGHT HERBAL CREAM SAUCE

(from "Uncommon Fruits and Vegetables" by Elizabeth Schneider, Harper and Row, 1986)

1/2 cup light cream
1/2 teaspoon dried tarragon
1/2 teaspoon dried thyme
1 tablespoon finely minced shallot dash salt
1/4 pound fresh morel mushrooms (trimmed, sliced and clean)
1/2 pound fresh linguine, tagliatelle or fettuccine

fresh black pepper

Combine cream with tarragon, thyme, shallot and salt. Simmer uncovered until shallot is soft, about 5 minutes. Add morels to cream mixture. Cover and simmer until tender, about 10-15 minutes. Boil noodles in a large pot of salted water until tender. As the noodles are finishing, uncover morel mixture and boil for a few minutes, if necessary, to thicken slightly. Drain noodles and combine at once with the sauce. Season with salt and pepper and serve at once. Serves 2 generously as a main course or 4 smaller appetizers.

Le Peep: It's le place for le breakfast

At the first sign of le light, and the first thought of le breakfast, think Le Peep.

There you will find the lightest, fluffiest eggs, prepared in the most ingenious ways. A hot cup of coffee — "leaded" or "unleaded" — awaits. And bright morning light streams in from its second-level site in the new Woodward Square building in downtown Birmingham.

No, it's not a French restaurant, in spite of its name and its menu offering Le Breakfast, Le Brunch and Le Lunch. Actually, Le Peep refers to the first sound from a chicken as it emerges from its egg. So, no wonder then, that you will find the freshest, yummiest egg dishes at this exciting new restaurant.

Like the Dawn Breaker ($4.95) of scrambled eggs with fresh mushrooms, bacon, a sprinkling of chives and plenty of cheese and diced tomatoes. It's just perfect for the person seeking something a little different — but familiar enough to be edible as early as 6:30 a.m.

FOR THE MORE adventurous, or those to whom 6:30 a.m. is well into the day, there's a version of eggs benedict which features chorizo sausage, salsa, cheddar and jack cheese, sour cream and chives — and is served with tortilla chips and salsa ($5.50).

As you would expect, the restaurant serves eggs any style you can think of, and with just about any ingredient: with smoked salmon and cream cheese, or with chicken, mushrooms, almonds and onions, or with seafood and snow crab.

Le Peep's panhandled dishes feature varied ingredients topped with two basted eggs and served with its own version of hash browns. Its "awesome" omelettes have standard versions — like the western — but also eye openers like a ham and cheese, which features smoked ham and Wisconsin white cheddar cheese ($4.85).

With such an exciting array of egg dishes, it's almost difficult to think of Le Peep in terms of lunch entrees, yet lunchtime is its busiest time of the day and the menu is being expanded to accommodate customer requests for more soups and salads. Presently, it has an excellent "Fruit Splash" cold soup with a strawberry base and yogurt and cinnamon ($3.95). The broccoli cheese and old-fashioned chicken soups are substantial and are served with apple slices, fresh veggies and cheese strips.

The open-face sandwiches, described as "knife 'n' fork" creations are innovative too, such as the B.L.T. smothered in cheese ($4.95) or the Le Egg Salad sandwich with deviled egg salad on a kaiser roll ($3.95).

AS IS FITTING in today's environment, Le Peep offers variations on traditional entrees for the health conscious, such as dump cakes ($4.25), pancakes with honey-laced granola and slivered almonds, or trail cakes featuring (what else?) trail mix and apples. And you can choose a whole-grain English muffin as well as the original or raisin.

Being in the heart of Birmingham, and being one of the only restaurants where guests can sit alongside large windows and view the city below, you might think Le Peep's would be ultra-trendy, a yuppie haven in fact. Not so. This is one place where you will see families, business people, older couples, singles, about as varied a clientele as its treatment of eggs.

Once inside, you will do like everyone else, request a window seat — the heck with smoking versus non-smoking — unless you're conducting a business meeting, in which case a nice little corner section near the restaurant entrance will do quite nicely.

Business meetings are common, incidentally. Even on Saturdays where we overheard one patron say he accomplishes more in Saturday morning meetings than almost any other time.

A morning patron can likely find street parking, but at lunchtime, unless you work or live within walking distance, you won't be so lucky. The parking structure on Peabody Street is just a block away and inexpensive — 20 cents an hour.

CURRENTLY, the restaurant offers breakfast and lunch, but may expand to early evenings, using the same menu, says Dave Andrejko, director of Burmarta II, the parent company. While the Birmingham restaurant is one of two franchises currently in Michigan (one in Ann Arbor), the company will open one in West Bloomfield (Northwestern Highway and Orchard Lake Road area) soon and a fourth in Novi (near the Novi Hilton) later this summer.

That means many more mornings for those of us who love good breakfasts. It's a dream come true.

Details: Le Peep, 335 S. Woodward in the Woodward Square Building, Birmingham. Phone: 252-6678. Hours: 6:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Mondays-Fridays; 7 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Saturdays-Sundays. No reservation, but larger groups may be accommodated most times.

Prices: $2.95-$6.25. MasterCard, Visa, American Express. Value: Wonderful breakfasts and lunches, but definitely a great breakfast place.

Clear juices tell chicken is done

By Ethel Simmons
Staff writer

Kathleen Perry, hostess of the syndicated TV show "The Everyday Gourmet," has traveled the country talking about chicken safety, for the National Broiler Council.

Perry said bacteria is present on the skin of any meat, fish or poultry. It's easy to eliminate bacteria from chicken by cooking it to 165 degrees (for boneless chicken) and 185 degrees (for whole chicken or cut-up parts with bone), she explained.

So you don't have a meat thermometer? "If the juices run clear, instead of pink, everything's all clear," Perry said.

Thawing chicken requires care. "When you thaw, thaw it in the refrigerator the night before, or in the microwave, or under cold, running water. Bacteria loves to grow at room temperature," she said.

When you buy a whole chicken, it should be removed from the bag, rinsed and repackaged in a plastic bag. If you buy it in the supermarket package, that's fine. "It's already antiseptically done at the processor."

WASHING YOUR hands, cutting board and knives in hot soapy water is important. Also, "Keep cold foods cold and hot foods hot until serving," she said. Maximum time at room temperature should be two hours.

"The Everyday Gourmet" offered some suggestions for quick, easy meals using chicken. "When you buy chicken breasts with the tenderloin (the long, skinny strips) still attached, save the tenderloin for a separate meal," she said.

"Freeze them. When you get enough, you can do a quick stir-fry, and serve it over pasta or rice. You can also bread the tenderloins with parmesan dressing and have your own Chicken Tenders."

When cooking chicken breasts, "Tarragon is especially lovely," Perry said. She gave a recipe for "just a quick saute, with equal parts (one tablespoon each) of butter and oil — peanut butter is nice — it has a high smoking temperature."

Don't season the chicken until af-

'When you buy chicken breasts with the tenderloin (the long, skinny strips) still attached, save the tenderloin for a separate meal.'

— Kathleen Perry
"the Everyday Gourmet"

ter it is cooked. Otherwise, the seasoning will draw out the juices. Remove the chicken from the heat, pour off the fat and deglaze the pan on high heat, with 1/4 cup wine or chicken broth. "Let it boil down, or cook down to 1/4 cup. Add spices (tarragon, pepper and salt) and a couple tablespoons of cream."

ANOTHER RECIPE, from her cookbook "The Everyday Gourmet," is for Medallions of Turkey (or chicken) with Mushroom Tarragon Sauce. "It can be served over pasta or rice," Perry said.

Other spices good with chicken include rosemary, or garlic. Her favorite recipe for chicken breasts is Chicken Rollups. "You can vary the fillings. It looks like you really fussed. Ham and cheese is chicken cordon bleu. Call it rollups, the kids will eat it. It makes its own sauce in the microwave."

Try chicken breasts with herb butter (dill, tarragon or basil). "You can put a pat over the chicken, and just saute it," Perry said.

Her cookbook, published in 1986, is available in paperback in the Warner Books Edition for $8.95.

"I used to be a real gourmet," Perry said. "It took a great deal of time and effort." She found she was doing fewer things her family enjoyed, so she "simplified the classic recipes. Everything (the ingredients) is available from the supermarket."

WITH BARBECUE season coming up, she stressed, "Don't put cooked meat on the platter that carries meat to the grill. Use a separate platter."

Wood cutting boards need to be scoured well. "Use acrylic because it goes in the dishwasher. Save the wood board for vegetables."

Arabian Nights party is fun

In the last several years, there has been an influx of Arab peoples into our society. Their foods are becoming quite familiar to Americans.

Most people have tried some of the better-known dishes in local restaurants. Even some fast-food places serve pita bread sandwiches these days.

If you find yourself in the mood to host a romantic dinner party for a few friends, or just an intimate evening for two, why not plan an "Arabian Night"? Try your hand at preparing some of these delicacies. It's lots of fun, and not nearly as difficult as it may sound.

Set the mood by draping sheets from the center of the ceiling to hide the walls and create the illusion of being in a tent. Pile big pillows on the floor to sit or recline on around a low table. And don't forget to burn a little incense ahead of time, and play appropriate music in the background.

Dress the part, and encourage your guests to do the same. Small women look great in harem pants, and big girls look marvelous in striped and tasseled caftans. Make up your eyes to look as large and dark as possible. Use a pale ivory foundation base on your face, and no rouge. You want to appear mysterious and sultry. Wear lots of large silver or gold jewelry.

MEN SHOULD wear robes and El Kafriyyas or turbans. You may wish to provide these for your man, and dress him yourself. Drape his head with a scarf, or even a towel, and tie it with a braided cord.

He will love the comfort of the loose robes and the excitement of playing a very macho role with you as his handmaiden.

But remember, this is just a game for one evening. Next time you play it, let him dress like the genni from Aladdin's lamp and be your slave. He can cook and serve the food; peel your grapes and cater to your every command.

After dinner, provide appropriate entertainment. If you are the type for it, do some belly-dancing or perform a dance of the veils. However, if that is not your cup of tea, try a little Turkish Coffee.

Entertain your guests by preparing this in front of them, with all its ritual. Serve it in tiny demi-tasse cups, and then read their fortunes in the coffee grounds.

The suggested menu is Almond Soup, Mint Salad, Feta Cheese and Greek Olives, Stuffed Grape Leaves, Open-Faced Meat Pies, Fresh Dates, Kadayif and Turkish Coffee.

STUFFED GRAPE LEAVES

(Can be made ahead and served cold or re-heated. Can even be frozen.)

1 cup canned or packaged grape leaves, or 30-40 fresh leaves — Fresh leaves are picked early in the summer, before they are fully mature juice of two lemons
1 tablespoon olive oil or other vegetable oil water sprigs of fresh mint or parsley filling mixture

Put the leaves in a large bowl, and kitchen witch

scald them with boiling water. Soak for 5 minutes. Drain and rinse with cold water.

Separate the leaves and drain them on paper towels, dull side up.

Use broken leaves (about 10 full ones in all), to line the bottom of a baking dish or casserole. Take the remaining leaves, one at a time, cut off any stems and place one tablespoon of filling in the center.

Fold the stem end of the leaf over the filling. Then fold in the sides and roll up in a neat little roll about 2 inches long.

Layer the stuffed leaves into the pan, side by side, seam side down. Sprinkle them with lemon juice and olive oil. Add enough water to just barely cover the rolls. Place a plate or saucer over the rolls to hold them down.

Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes to 1 hour.

Serve hot or cold. Drain and arrange on a serving tray in neat straight lines, and garnish with slices of lemon and sprigs of mint or parsley.

Filling Mixture

1 medium onion, finely chopped
2 tablespoons olive oil, or other vegetable oil
1 pound ground lamb or beef
1 cup cooked long-grain rice
1/2 teaspoon allspice
2 cloves garlic, pressed

2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley or mint
salt and pepper to taste

Fry onions in oil until transparent. Combine with the other ingredients and mix thoroughly.

ALMOND SOUP

3 cups chicken stock
2 tablespoons butter
1 small onion, finely diced
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup ground almonds
1 cup light cream (or frozen non-dairy creamer)
salt and pepper
slivered almonds for garnish.

Bring stock to a boil. Meanwhile, melt butter in pan and saute onions until just softened. Stir in flour, and blend well. Slowly add boiling stock, stirring constantly.

Add ground almonds. Stir well, reduce heat and simmer for 10-15 minutes. Remove from heat and stir in the cream. Season with salt and pepper, and serve with slivered almonds.

OPEN-FACED MEAT PIES

pita bread
1 cup pine nuts (or chopped walnuts) pinch of cinnamon
1 tablespoon finely chopped parsley juice of one lemon
salt and pepper to taste

butter, melted plain yogurt, or sour cream

Carefully split and pull apart the two sides of each pita bread, so that you have two rounds. Brush each side with butter and arrange on a baking sheet, cup side up.

Mix together all the ingredients except the yogurt or sour cream, and spread the mixture evenly over the pita bread.

Bake in a 450-degree oven about 20 minutes, or until lightly browned. Serve hot, with a bowl of yogurt or sour cream to be spooned over the pies before eating.

MINTED SALAD

(Prepare ahead)

1/2 head romaine lettuce
1/2 head Boston lettuce
1 tablespoon dried mint, or 3 tablespoons fresh mint, chopped.

Dressing
6 tablespoons olive oil
1 1/2 tablespoons lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon sugar
salt and pepper

Mix dressing ingredients in a screw-top bottle or jar. If you are using dried mint, add it to the dressing now. Refrigerate.

Wash and dry the lettuce. Wrap in paper towels and store in the refrigerator until ready to use. When ready, unwrap lettuce and break into a bowl with the dressing, and toss. If you are using fresh mint, add it now.

Next month's column will include recipes for the Kadayif and for preparing the Turkish Coffee and reading the grounds. If you have any questions, don't hesitate to call Gundella at 427-1072.

Dill enlivens new potatoes

Following is a recipe from an article on "A Bridal Show" in the May issue of Gourmet magazine.

NEW POTATOES WITH DILL
24 small red potatoes (about 2 inches in diameter)
1/4 cup extra-virgin olive oil
1 1/2 tablespoons snipped fresh dill

In a kettle combine the potatoes and enough cold salted water to cover them by 2 inches, bring the water to a boil, and simmer the potatoes for 8-10 minutes, or until they are just tender. Drain the potatoes, return them to the kettle, and let them steam over moderately low heat for 1 minute, shaking the kettle gently.

Let the potatoes cool until they can be handled. The potatoes may be prepared up to this point 4 hours in advance and kept covered. Cut the potatoes into 1/4-inch slices, arrange them in a shallow dish, and season them with salt and pepper. Drizzle the potatoes with the oil and sprinkle them with the dill. Serves 12.

Jewish cookery highlighted in 2 new books

Within the last few months two cookbooks have been published featuring Jewish cuisine. "The Gourmet Jewish Cook" by Judy Zeidler (William Morrow and Co., 1988, $22.95) and "The Complete American-Jewish Cookbook" by Anne London and Bertha Kahn Bishov (Harper and Row, 1989, $12.95).

Judging any cookbook for its value and usefulness requires a shrewd eye as well as an experienced one. Although I don't have an extensive background in Jewish cookery, I found "The Gourmet Jewish Cook" to be a refreshing, ambitious cookbook from its colorful cover to its sophisticated recipes. Judy Zeidler, a nationally syndicated columnist, also anchors a cable TV show, "Judy's Kitchen."

cook's books
Geri Rinschler

This cookbook is filled with sample menus for all the Jewish holidays, with a special section on Passover and Purim. There are traditional recipes for staples such as Chopped Herring and Apple Strudel and updated versions of time-tested favorites like Brisket of Beef with Dried Fruit and Whole Wheat Chocolate Mandelbrot.

There's a glossary of Jewish food terms and a chapter on cooking tips and techniques. "The Gourmet Jewish Cook" especially brings a contemporary approach to traditional Jewish entertaining. As the opening pages proclaim, kosher cooking can be world-class and Zeidler expresses just that in menus titled "Country French Duck Dinner" and a "Rio Brunch."

THE VOLUME also offers dozens of recipes from famous chefs around the world, adjusted to meet kosher standards. There is personal commentary accompanying almost all the recipes, plus interesting historical detail preceding the holiday chapters.

"The Complete American-Jewish Cookbook" was originally written in 1971 as a hardcover book. This is the first time it has been published in cloth. Just as the title suggests, this is an all-inclusive book with more than 3,500 traditional recipes, which make up the essence of Jewish cookery. Favorites such as potato pancakes, rumel borsht and cheese blintzes are all written in an easy-to-follow format.

Both authors bring a wealth of experience to this tome. Anne London, former director of the Homemakers Research Institute, is a food editor and also operates kosher kitchens in major resort hotels. Bertha Kahn Bishov is a dietitian who has worked with the Chicago Jewish Family and Community Services.

The thick paperback was written to conform to the Jewish dietary laws and covers all the food categories such as cakes, meats, fish, cookies, quick breads, beverages and a whole lot more. A glossary of special Yiddish terms explains the meanings of foods such as khametz which, by the way, is either leavened bread or a utensil regarded as not kosher for Passover.

If you've never seen or eaten a hamantaschen, the cookbook says it's "a triangular cake filled with honey or poppy seed eaten usually at Purim. The triangular shape of the cakes traditionally recalls the triangular hat Haman is supposed to have worn" (although the book's glossary doesn't explain who Haman was).

THERE'S A CHAPTER on canning and freezing foods and a dictionary of culinary terms. A novice to the world of Jewish cookery would find this a very useful edition to own. The book is without color pictures and has very few illustrations. One needs to use a lot of imagination here, especially if you've never eaten foods prepared in the traditional Jewish fashion.

Personally not having a need for a comprehensive Jewish cookery, between the two books I'd choose the intriguing "The Gourmet Jewish Cook," filled with its unconventional dishes. Each book is well done. You will undoubtedly have to get them both.

CHOCOLATE BIT TORTE
From "The Gourmet Jewish Cook" by Judy Zeidler

10 eggs, separated
1 cup sugar
1/4 cup honey
1/4 cup orange juice
1 tablespoon grated orange zest
1/2 cup Passover Concord grape wine
8 ounces semisweet Passover chocolate, finely ground (1 cup)
4 ounces almonds, finely ground (1 cup)
1 cup matzo cake meal
1/4 cup potato starch
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon salt
chocolate glaze optional
1/2 cup sliced almonds

Preheat the oven to 350 degrees. In the bowl of an electric mixer, beat the egg yolks and sugar until light in color and texture. Beat in the honey, orange juice, zest and wine. Mix together the chocolate and almonds and blend into the egg yolk mixture. Combine the matzo cake meal, potato starch, cinnamon and salt and blend into the egg yolk mixture.

In a large bowl, beat the egg whites until stiff enough to hold a peak. Fold one quarter of the whites into the batter to lighten it. Gently fold in the remaining whites until thoroughly blended.

Pour the batter into an ungreased 10-inch tube pan and bake for 45 minutes to 1 hour, until a toothpick inserted near the center of the cake comes out dry. Remove the cake from the oven. Immediately invert the pan and let it cool. Loosen the sides and center of the torte with a sharp knife and unmold it from the pan onto a cake plate. Sprinkle with pulverized sugar or chocolate glaze and garnish with sliced almonds.

Chocolate Glaze
8 ounces semisweet chocolate
1 tablespoon safflower or vegetable oil
1/4 pound unsalted butter or margarine, cut into small pieces

Melt the chocolate in the top of a double boiler over simmering water. Add the oil and margarine, blending until melted.

ALMOND MACAROONS

From "The Complete American-Jewish Cookbook" by Anne London and Bertha Kahn Bishov

4 teaspoons cake meal
1 pound blanched almonds, finely ground
4 cups confectioners' sugar grated rind of 2 lemons
5 egg whites

Combine cake meal, almonds, sugar and lemon rind. Fold in egg whites, beaten until stiff but not dry. Dust a greased cookie sheet thickly with cake meal. Drop mixture from a teaspoon, allowing 1 inch between cookies. Bake in a slow oven, 300 degrees, 15 minutes, then increase heat to 350 degrees for about 10-15 minutes to brown the macaroons. Let cool before removing from sheet. Yield: about 36 cookies.

morels with an occasional black beauty popping up somewhere in Emmet and Charlevoix County.

Jim, like all morelers I know, refused to disclose his favorite hunting grounds. He said he had seen a few avid hunters with big bounties, but most of the folks, like him, were walking out of the woods with handfuls rather than bagfuls.

We finished the telephone conversation with a report that he was abandoning the morel search and heading out instead for some wild leeks, which this year are plentiful.

So what is the host of this year's Michigan bounty dinner at the Lark, on Tuesday and Wednesday, going to do with just a handful of morels? "I'll be shipping them in from Washington State and Oregon" was his speedy reply. Better luck next year, Jim.

Last but not least, I tried unsuccessfully to get ahold of Chef Milos Cihelka from the Golden Mushroom restaurant in Southfield. Milos, the first certified master chef in the United States, was in northern Michigan trying his luck out in the woods. Earlier discussions with Milos found that he has a special technique he uses when hunting for morels.

"WHEN I WAS about 8 years old, I remember becoming frustrated because everyone in the village was finding mushrooms but me. An elderly woman from the area took me aside and explained her technique, which has worked ever since," he said.

The woman told him to put a visual picture in his mind of what a morel looks like. Next, she said to block out everything else so that as the ground is scanned, he would see nothing but a morel — the picture he had in his mind — appearing in front of him.

Sounds to me like the woman was doing advance research on Norman Vincent Peale. Since Milos was unavailable as of press time, next time you see him at the Golden Mushroom, ask him how his technique worked this year.

Of course, if Washington or Oregon is a little too far, rumor has it that last summer's forest fires have created a boom season for morels in Idaho, Montana and California. Round-trip airfare is about $340, and the kids can fly free.

If you're bent on having morels and don't want to pack up the family and head out West, local sources are about as scarce as the tasty morels themselves. Your best bet is to contact your local fruit and vegetable market manager, but if all else fails, try Nino Salvaggio's Strawberry Hills at 14 Mile and Orchard Lake roads in West Bloomfield, telephone 855-5570. (But bring your checkbook, as scarcity doesn't come cheap. Depending upon what Salvaggio pays for them, the morels are priced between $18-$20 per pound.)

Pioneer no threat to dethrone Chiefs

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Michelle Fortier probably wondered why she had to bother guarding the Plymouth Canton goal.

Ann Arbor Pioneer's offense was such an infrequent caller Saturday afternoon the goalkeeper must have thought she was in another area code.

"The defense did its job and kept the ball out of there," said Fortier after the Chiefs captured their second straight district championship with a 2-0 victory at Concordia College. "They didn't get too many chances, but that's fine with me."

Fortier had to make just one save in the first half, and that was it for the game. The ball entered Canton territory just seven times in the second half, but the Pioneers never stayed for long as defenders Tricia Greenhalge, Chris Zawacki, Erin Morgan and Laurie McNamara cleared the ball effectively.

But while the defending state champion Chiefs proved to be the dominant team, they didn't overwhelm Pioneer. Nonetheless, they were content with a modest victory on goals by Shannon Meath and Greenhalge.

Canton is 14-2 overall and headed for East Lansing where it will play the Trojans at 5 p.m. Wednesday. The Chiefs fired 17 shots at Pioneer goalkeeper Vickie Doyen and were close on eight other balls that went wide of the net.

BUT THE lopsided outcome that many expected the No. 2-rated Chiefs to accomplish against unranked Pioneer was thwarted by the zone defense employed by the Pioneers, 7-7-2.

"The zone looks ragged in the middle of the field," Pioneer coach Bill Browning said. "But in basketball it looks tough under the boards. In soccer, it looks tough in front of the goal.

"They dominated us in terms of scoring opportunities, but we played very well in front of the goal."

"We've lost seven games, but nobody has taken us apart," he added.

The Chiefs controlled the play in Pioneer's end with superior passing, but the Pioneers were usually able to cut off any plays in front of their net.

Canton's leading scorer, Jenny Russell, had the majority of shot attempts, including a pair of early breakaways that Doyen managed to block.

"They had a good defense and stopped a lot of shots," Russell said. "I have to give credit to their defense. They played well."

"I THINK we moved the ball around well, but as you can see, we have a long ways to go. I think we have some possibilities (of winning another state title), but we have to look at each game one at a time."

It was in the first minutes of the game that Russell got behind the Pioneer defense and went 1-on-1 with Doyen. If Russell had been successful, the final score might not have been so close, Canton coach Don Smith said.

"I think if we had made that very first one when Russell broke away, that would have put a damper on them," he said.

"But they kept stopping them, and it just kept going on and on. That excites them and frustrates us, so it's a double whammy."

"Eventually, we're going to put some in (when a team is controlling play as much as Canton did). Hopefully, more than two, but two is a whole lot better than one — and one is better than none."

While the Pioneer defense prevented a slaughter, Canton's defense found boredom to be as much of an opponent as the Pioneers since it was inactive for lengths of time.

"When they had the wind in the second half, a lot of strange things can happen in a 1-0 ball game," Smith said. "When the ball is down in the other end of the field, it's a challenge to stay in the game."

Canton still Western's best

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Plymouth Canton remains the undisputed champion of Western Division girls track and field.

The Chiefs wrapped up their fifth consecutive title Thursday by turning back host Farmington Hills Harrison 69-59.

The Hawks, whose leading scorer, Jane Peters, was sick and unable to compete, could have forced a three-way tie for the championship between Harrison, Canton and Livonia Franklin if they had won.

The Chiefs, 5-0 in the division and 6-1 overall, didn't allow that to happen, and Canton's advantage in the field events was the reason why, according to coach George Przygodski.

"Our distance kids balanced out their sprinters," he said. "The difference was the field events where we outscored them 25-11."

The Chiefs won three of those events, and all three winners are underclassmen — an indication Canton might not give up its title next year, either.

Junior Heather Spencer won the high jump at 5 feet, sophomore Hoesma Okwumabua the discus with a toss of 91-3 and sophomore Kristina Kozuch the high jump with a 13-1½ effort.

"Those are the kids who haven't gotten a lot of attention but should girls track

have," Przygodski said. "They really came through in that meet."

"Heather Spencer is probably the most underrated athlete on our team," he added. "She qualified for state and has consistently beaten everybody in dual meets."

Canton's Amy Van Buhler won the 100-meter hurdles in 17.4, and the Chiefs demonstrated their usual proficiency in the distance runs. Lori Penland took first place in the 800 (2:35.2), Amy Smith the 1,600 (5:58) and Cindy Spessard the 3,200 (13:02). Being consistent with that, Canton also won the 3,200 relay as Penland, Adrienne Garrow, Erica Carson and Smith posted an 11:13.9 time.

"(The division title) is a great victory for the seniors," Przygodski said. "The thing we have to keep in perspective is that it's a year-to-year occurrence, and the seniors did a great job of pulling this group together and performing on the track."

"I'm just happy for the kids, especially the seniors. It's their team and it's something they'll remember the rest of their lives."

Harrison coach Mark Babcock believed Peters would have made a difference, at least in terms of giving the Hawks a better chance of overtaking Canton. He figured Peters would have won the 100 hurdles and enabled Harrison to sweep the 300 hurdles.

As it was, the Hawks, 3-2 in the division and 3-3 overall, dominated the relays and the sprints.

Maria Chalagianis, who won the 300 hurdles in 51.1, took Peters' place as the anchor on the 800 relay and combined with Audra Cockerham, Carrie Hentnik and Nivin Hakim for a 1:51.8 time.

Hentnik, who replaced Peters in the lead-off spot in the 1,600 relay, Hakim, Cockerham and Chalagianis won that race in 4:21.9, and Heather Conley, Nicole Leo, Hentnik and Hakim were clocked at 53.2 for 400 meters.

Leo was a double winner in the sprints, winning the 100 dash in 13.8 and the 200 race in 28.2. Cockerham was the top quarter miler with a 1:03.6 time. Harrison's lone winner in the field events was Aimee Jarvenpaa, who threw the shot put 31-3.

"Obviously, (the Chiefs) didn't run their best times, but our kids really hung in there," Babcock said. "I think our kids ran pretty tough. (The loss of Peters) had some effect. The timing was bad, but those are the breaks."

PLYMOUTH SALEM raced past North Farmington Wednesday at home, winning three of the four relays in posting an 86-42 Lakes Division win. The Rocks finish 3-2 in the division and 6-2 overall, the Raiders 2-3 and 2-4.

Kim Ploucha, Nikki Wygonik, Tracey Livermore and Rima Zayed were on two winning relay teams each.

Ploucha, Wygonik, Zayed and Andrea Kinnelly finished the 400 relay in 53.0. Ploucha and Wygonik joined Trish Hill and Livermore in capturing the 800 relay in 1:50.38, while Livermore, Zayed, Amy Hobgood and Melissa Benoit won the 1,600 relay in 4:20.2.

No Salem performer managed to win two events outright, but Jennifer Harris tied for first with Benoit in the high jump at 4-4 and won the 300 hurdles with a time of 49.3.

Other Salem winners included Ploucha and Livermore, who tied for first in the long jump at 15-5. Shannon Wolitas, 100 hurdles, 17.6; Wygonik, 200 dash, 27.7; and Tammy Hickey, 1,600 run, 5:55.2.

Jennifer Stoe was a double winner for North, claiming first in the shot put with a throw of 30-0 and the 400 dash in 1:04.6.

Adrienne Mocello's throw of 101-9½ won the discus for the Raiders. Julie Ewing won the 100 dash in 13.5, Jenny Web was first in the 800 run (2:30) and top honors in the 3,200 run went to Lisa Rives (11:59.4).

District baseball, softball tourneys to include Chiefs

Mike Sulak struck out 13, including five of the last six batters he faced Friday, leading Plymouth Canton to a 9-5 predistrict baseball win over host Walled Lake Central.

Sulak, 5-1 with three saves, went the distance and scattered seven hits. He walked only three.

The win puts the Chiefs, 18-7 overall, into the district semifinal at 10 a.m. Saturday against Farmington at Northville High School.

Canton led 5-3 after four innings but broke the game open in the top of the fifth with a three-run rally.

Derek Humphries had three hits and one RBI for the winners. The biggest hit belonged to Mike Culver, who had two hits, including a three-run, first-inning homer, and five RBIs.

Culver's two-run double highlighted the fifth-inning eruption. Jeff Kugelman and Geoff Allen also had two hits each. Jamie Sisler contributed an RBI single and Ron Groh had a sacrifice fly that scored another run.

"It was a tough place to play, especially with the win," coach Fred Crissy said. "But the ball Culver hit nobody was going to catch. With the windy conditions, I was pleased to get out of there with a win."

Losing pitcher Bob Trusty, who lasted 4½ innings and gave up eight of Canton's 10 hits, hit a two-run homer for the Vikings.

The Chiefs ended the regular season Wednesday, beating host Livonia Franklin 12-1 behind the combined four-hit pitching of Allen and John Anthony. Allen started and left after five innings, surrendering all four Franklin hits.

Humphries hit safely four times — crushing three doubles — and scoring four runs. Culver's two hits drove in three runs, and Chris Robinson went three for four.

Jason Dembny and Groh had two hits and drove in a pair of runs each.

PLYMOUTH CANTON 11, BRIGHTON 7: Canton's softball team earned its way into Saturday's district semifinal, conquering host Brighton in a predistrict game Friday.

The Chiefs, who reached their preseason goal of 20 victories Friday, will play either Northville or Ann Arbor Pioneer at 10 a.m. Saturday in the district at Howell.

Canton rode the two-hit pitching Friday of Stacey Thompson, whose only trouble was control as she walked seven. Only two of Brighton's seven runs were earned.

Kim Schulte, Allison Flakamp, Thompson and Rhonda Kibliko went two for four at the plate to lead Canton's 10-hit attack.

Schulte scored twice and Flakamp scored three runs and had two RBIs. Kibliko, playing in place of the injured Jenny Clark at catcher, had four RBIs.

Clark broke a finger last week in practice, and Kibliko, a converted outfielder, has performed admirably in her place.

"She did a very good job," coach Dave Racer said.

ADRIAN 12, SALEM 6: Plymouth Salem hit the ball well enough to win most games Friday, but two big innings by Adrian carried the host team to the predistrict softball win.

Adrian fell behind 4-0 after two innings but scored five runs in the third and seven in the fifth off losing pitcher Holly Hinemann to put some distance between itself and Salem.

Seniors Jo Wiklund and Tracie Robinson had two hits each. The Rocks collected eight hits as a team, but Salem committed three errors and the Maples countered with a 10-hit attack.

"They had two big innings and three others they went out 1-2-3," Salem coach Rob Willette said. "We played bad ball."

"It's tough to win that way. We've played that way the whole season. I was hoping things would change in the state playoffs, but they didn't. We jumped ahead 4-0. Things looked pretty good and then we went back to our old habits."

Chiefs finish strong, edge Hawks

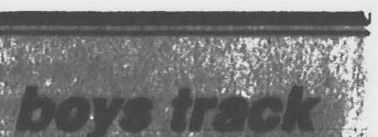

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Plymouth Canton overcame a 19-point deficit with four events remaining Wednesday to stun Farmington Hills Harrison 70-87 in a boys dual meet.

"It was good for our kids," Canton coach Bob Richardson said. "We'd been losing some meets, and this allows us to finish on a real positive note."

The Chiefs, who end the dual-meet season 2-3 in the Western Division and 3-4 overall, trailed 63-43 after the 300-meter hurdles but swept the next two events to close within a point, 62-41.

Mike Ream and Brad Lenzner led the Canton slams in the 800 run and 200 dash, respectively. Ream ran 2:09.4 with teammates Matt Boland and Chris Nelson finishing second and third. Lenzner, a sophomore scoring his first varsity points, won the 200 in 24.6 and was followed by Josh Walaskay and Ron Staples.

Harrison's Jeff Barringer won the 3,200 run in 10:05 to keep the Hawks in the lead, 67-65. But the Chiefs grabbed second and third in that event, forcing a showdown in the 1,600 relay.

Canton overtook the Hawks in the meet finale and capped its amazing comeback with the first-time unit of Mark Farris, Dave Washenko, Mike Ream and Jeff Prysak taking first place in 3:40.

"PRYSK RAN his best split of the year, knowing that (Chad) Burgess was hot on his heels," Richardson said.

The turn of events late in the meet had an unusual twist, however.

From a Harrison standpoint, the outcome resulted from a miscalculation in the score with five events to go. The team's coaching staff figured it had the meet won and replaced some of its varsity athletes with reserve runners.

Harrison, 3-2 in the division and 6-3 overall, realized its error prior to the 3,200 run and kept Barringer in that race in an attempt to salvage the victory, but it was too late as the Chiefs won the decisive showdown in the final relay.

"We tried to stack the relay as well as we could," Harrison coach John Schumacher said, "but they were the better team."

It so happened the three events in which the Hawks didn't have their best runners, according to Schumacher, were the ones in which Canton swept all three places.

THE CHIEFS also slammed Harrison in the 1,600 run. Ream got his first of two individual victories in that race with a 4:39 time, Brian Beach finished second and Chris Nelson was third.

Canton was not a team at all strength, either. The Chiefs were without three of their top scorers — Jeremy Rhequit, Eric Miller and Jason Napolitano — due to injuries that kept them out of the meet.

Falcons to play Thunderbirds

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

Complacency hasn't set in at Farmington High, even though the Falcons have one of the most favorable draws in the state Class A girls soccer playoffs.

Playing every game as if it's the final round, the No. 1-ranked Falcons continued their playoff run Friday, bombarding Farmington Hills Mercy 5-0 in a district final at Southfield High School.

Farmington, which has outscored the opposition 11-0 in two playoff games, plays Dearborn Edsel Ford Wednesday in a regional semifinal game.

The Thunderbird brings an impressive 17-3-1 record into the regional semifinal, so Farmington coach Cathy Cole won't let the Falcons take Edsel Ford lightly.

The T-birds play in the unheralded Northwest Suburban League, but Cole will prepare the Falcons as if they were facing Western Lakes Activities Association heavyweight Plymouth Canton.

BESIDES, HOW could a coach who makes her team do calisthenics after a game allow a team to become complacent?

"The draw sure is nice," admitted Cole. "Of course, anything can happen. We have to look at it in regards to that. We look for competition every game."

Mercy won five of its last six games and finished 9-6-3.

Kathryn Dudley, Mercy's leading scorer with 12 goals, was slowed by mononucleosis and forward Dana Lehmkuhl played with a bruised knee, but coach Henry Klimes didn't offer those setbacks as excuses.

"They (Farmington) should be the team to beat," Klimes said. "They should be able to handle the Trenton winner (Edsel Ford) with no problem. I haven't seen (No. 2-ranked) Canton, but we played Salem and Farmington's better than them."

"Farmington was a much better team than us. Cathy knows what to do and she has Carrie (Maier), a superstar. Definitely, she's a premier player."

Farmington built a 3-0 halftime lead and Maier and Margaret Martin finished the game with two goals each. The other goal belonged to Jennifer Misaros, who beat Mercy goalkeeper Renee Larabell in the second half.

THE FALCONS' defense, largely responsible for their 14-0-4 record, swarmed around Dudley and gave goalkeeper Deb Westerkamp plenty of help.

Trailing 2-0, Lehmkuhl hit the goalpost for Mercy, and later Farmington fullback Kim Popyk stepped in and stopped a shot that surely would have gotten behind Westerkamp.

"I have my defense to thank for that," Westerkamp said. "That one Kimmie made was nice. She was right where she was supposed to be by the post."

"I was expecting more shots from (Mercy). Our team has improved a lot. There's been a lot of good defenders added to our team."

Said Dudley, who has played despite contacting mono two weeks ago: "It felt like they had an extra player out there. There were so many of them. Every time I got the ball, it was like they knew you were going to be there."

"I tried to work around them and do the best I can. Next year we'll move on to bigger and better things."

The game was played in a stiff breeze, and Cole elected to take the wind in the first half when the Falcons won the coin flip. Cole didn't believe the wind dictated much of the action since the Falcons were able to control the second half going into the wind.

"We try to keep the ball on the floor as much as possible, especially with the wind (being so strong)," she said.

Sweat glands help cool down the body

Dear Myrna: When I do aerobics, I sweat profusely. Usually, I have no odor. Can you explain? Is it good to wear deodorant when exercising?

It's good to sweat. When your body is overheated, perspiration cools it down efficiently. No one objects to the sweat that accompanies a vigorous workout.

There are two kinds of sweat glands: eccrine and apocrine.

The eccrine glands are located all over the body and concentrated in the forehead, palms and soles of the feet. Eccrine sweat is fairly clear, virtually odorless and responds to outside temperature changes and physical exertion. We can call eccrine glands our aerobic glands.

Sometimes our diet affects the odor we expel when we workout. Spicy foods and foods with garlic will do it. You probably are not eating Italian food the night before your workouts.

Apocrine glands are concentrated mainly in the underarms, genitalia, nipples and buttocks. Since these glands are associated with hair follicles, they are stimulated by the same hormones.

In addition to water and salt, apocrine secretions contain protein and fatty substances that attract bacteria. Apocrine sweat is stimulated by anger, nervousness, sexual arousal, caffeine, drugs or illness.

This is why you are more likely to have an odor after a stressful situation and not a workout. Americans are paranoid about body odor and often overcompensate with deodorant or antiperspirant to be safe.

We can control normal odor causing bacteria by bathing regularly, wearing clothes with natural fibers thereby allowing the skin to breathe and changing our clothes daily. This is not true in other countries.

Your question of deodorants or antiperspirants? Obviously, keeping in mind what I've told you about eccrine glands, it's not necessary to apply before exercise.

According to the Food and Drug Administration, deodorants are cosmetics consisting of perfumed alcohol that essentially camouflages odor. While antiperspirants are classified as drugs, their primary ingredient is a germicide to kill odor-causing bacteria.

Some antiperspirants have aluminum or zinc, which plug the pores to prevent sweat. However, these chemicals have proven unsafe. Why use chemicals if not necessary?

Note that I am referring to exercise situations. I'm not bucking the American way of cleanliness. What do they say, "Cleanliness is next to godliness."

(Myrna Partrich, co-owner of The Workout Company, Inc. of Bloomfield Township, is happy to answer any questions readers may have regarding exercise. Please send your questions to: Sports Department, Myrna Partrich, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, Mi. 48012.)

Season offered many highlights

GLANCING BACK at the season ended, it's time to review the highlights.

This column began reporting the bowling scene around the end of January, so many of the early happenings did not come to my attention. If there are any readers who may have bowled a particularly good game or series and it did not get in this column, I apologize to you.

All scores that are reported we try to print, and some scores are deleted because of space. Others are just never reported by the leagues, so if I don't know about it you don't see it in print.

There were some great games bowled around the town, and there were some nice human interest stories as well. The coverage of bowling ran through a wide range, from the kids to the seniors.

There were names like Jennifer McPherson and Kelly Wantin, a pair of young ladies who received awards from the Y.A.B.A. for being among the nation's Top 10 in their age group.

Some bowlers were mentioned frequently, the names like Greg Wigard, Phil Pietryk, Lynn Lewis, Bill Funke, Tamika Glenn, Roy Biggs, Howard Clark, Sr., Ken Kubit, Mark Cumbo, Dave Myers, Art Kapetanaky, Lori Anderson, Patricia Monge, Jeep Newton, Jarv Wohlske, Denise Wolber, Chuck Myers, Jeff Adamczyk, Gary Flummerfelt, Kevin Chambers, Ted Goldberg, Fred Vitali, Mark McCusker, Gloria Meritz, Lona Palise, Julie Wright, Jill Lhamon, Dave Linquist, Michael Nowland, Walt Zielinski, Lisa Bishop, Ted Kress, Lee Snow, Don Johnson, Linda Filban, Donnie Harrison and Charlie O'Rourke.

The ultimate goal in bowling is the 300 game and of this we had a few. Some others came very close with 299s and 298s, which indicates they had rolled the first 11 strikes only to be foiled on the last shot.

Recording 300 games this year were Ron Goebel, at Merri Bowl Lanes; Brandon Heaney and Frank Briscoe, Westland Bowl; Frank Camilleri and Steve Pencola, Town & Country; Bill Weed, Country Lanes; James T. Moore, Plymouth Bowl; Thomas Johnson, Westland Bowl; Joe Herbstreit, in the high school tournament at Emerald Lanes; Ted Goldberg, Bel Aire Lanes; Mike Leleniewski, Westland Bowl; Roger Stanford, Merri Bowl; Greg Durham, Drakeshire Lanes; Jack Treolar, of Redford in the ABC Tournament in Wichita, Kan.; John Vitale, Merri Bowl; Ray Bajer, Merri Bowl; and finally Lorraine Anderson, Country Lanes, the first 300 game ever bowled by a woman in that house.

All of the 300s reported were ABC sanctioned. The lanes are inspected by American Bowling Congress officials to verify the conditions were fair and complied to legal specifications. The bowler who achieves the perfect mark also is awarded a ring from ABC.

This column intends to report on a wide range of bowling activities, not just the high scores. There are many charity events in which area bowlers raise substantial funds for some of the worthwhile and needy charities such as Cystic Fibrosis, Cancer Fund, Leader Dogs for the Blind, Make-A-Wish and others too numerous to mention.

Some of the highlights from the past season included 16-year-old Lona Palise with a pair of 700 series this year. The K of C Tournament at Cloverlanes on Schoolcraft in Livonia, The Southeast Michigan High School Championships in which more than 40 high school teams participated. One kid who had dropped out of school came back to high school so he could join his bowling team. Now he intends to continue school and graduate.

10-pin alley

There was some fantastic bowling from some of the future stars now in the youth leagues such as Lisa Bishop, Tamika Glenn, Melissa Lindroth, Robin Ostro, Eric Tulley, Julius Maisano, Brian Brandon, Steve Lingertot, Nelson Kluska, Duane Henderson, Amos Mathis, Don Harrison, Keri Priestorn and many others also deserving of mention. But to do that would take up a whole page in this newspaper.

This also was the season that bowling was an event in the Seoul Olympics as an exhibition sport. It is hoped bowling will have full medal status in future Olympics, and every competing nation will send a team to the Olympics. Overall, 1989 was an excellent season. There were more than 200,000 sanctioned men and women bowlers in various leagues in the Greater Detroit Area plus several more thousand Y.A.B.A. bowlers.

Some of the results are still trickling. The Independence Green Sunday Mixed League has just reported its results from Bel Aire Lanes in Farmington. The championship team consisted of Rhonda Trafficante, Ronald Trafficante, Arlene Gerber and Tony Camerella. Men's high series went to Mike Elliott with a 581. Men's high game was held by Camerella at 287 while the ladies trophies went to Sally Osann with a 599 high series and Barbara Lowen with her high game at 245.

Spring/summer league action shows the Men's Trio League at Bel Aire Lanes on Tuesday night with some nice scoring from John Flores with a 257 game and 631 set, Mel Partovich a 255 game and Lynn Lewis 244.

There is a weekly "King of the Hill" competition after the Trio League finishes at about 9:30 p.m. with a first-place prize of $100. This is a head-to-head elimination and can get pretty exciting like last week when Chuck Barstow and Billy Golembiewski tied in the semifinals. Billy "G" took the tie-breaker and went on to bowl Phil Horowitz for the first prize. This time, Phil took first place, while the Hall of Famer Billy "G" settled for a lesser prize. This competition is open to any sanctioned league bowler who would like to come in and compete. There is a $5 entry fee.

Lorraine Anderson of Plymouth bowled her way into the Open Division singles Top 10 May 11 in the 1989 Women's International Bowling Congress Championships at Capito Lanes in Bismarck, N.D. Anderson fired games of 222, 236 and 225 for 683. Her score is currently in first place.

Anderson is one of 41,545 women competing in the 68-day tournament. Competition began April 6 and will continue daily until June 12. The WIBC tournament is the largest sports participation event in the world for women. The annual event has been held in 46 different cities throughout the country since 1916 — a total of 70 times.

Walleye gain numbers, popularity

PICKEREL, Marbel Eye, Stizostedion Vitreum. Call them what you want, but walleye are still one of the tastiest fish lurking in Michigan waters.

The walleye fishery in Michigan has been up and down over the past 30 years, but is currently on a huge upswing, due mostly to stocking and management programs and better water quality on the southern portions of the Great Lakes.

Last year, the walleye harvest in Michigan exceeded 2 million fish. Walleye moved up to the number two position on the list of the most sought after sport fish in Michigan, second only to perch.

A creel census, conducted annually by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, revealed that anglers caught 9 million fish in Michigan waters last year. Perch were the top catch with 5 million taken, followed by walleye at 2.2 million and trout/salmon at 700,000. And the news gets even better for walleye anglers.

"WE ESTIMATE that the walleye catch will double over the next three to four years," said John Robertson, Chief of the DNR's Fisheries Division. "I would say that walleye are going to be the premiere fish in Michigan very soon."

Lake Erie, Lake St. Clair, the Detroit River and the St. Clair River are the best spots for catching walleye in Southeastern Michigan. Inland lakes in the area that produce walleye include Belleville Lake in Wayne County and Cass and Kent lakes in Oakland County. Stony Creek Lake, at Stony Creek Metro-park, is also starting to produce results from a five-year walleye stocking program. Park superintendent "Bing" Eberhart stated that walleye catches this past winter were much improved over previous years and expects to see improved results this spring and summer as well.

A creel census, conducted annually by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources of more than 70,000 anglers, revealed that anglers caught nine million fish in Michigan waters last year.

THE MICHIGAN United Conservation Clubs is asking concerned citizens to contact their state senators over the next several days and urge them to support legislation (House Bill 4296) to regulate commercial and residential development of the state's unique coastal sand dunes located along the shorelines of Lake Michigan and Lake Superior.

Under the proposed legislation, the DNR would have two years to design permanent land use standards governing development projects on approximately 60,000 acres of dunes.

In the last three years, MUCC has gathered more than 80,000 voter signatures and more than 8,000 letters to legislators in support of the sand dunes protection bill. In addition, a recent statewide survey of MUCC members revealed that 93-percent supported legislative efforts to enact a measure protecting coastal sand dunes from overdevelopment.

REMINDER . . . Free Fishing Days will be held June 10-11. On these two days, residents and non-residents may fish anywhere on Michigan Great Lakes and inland lakes without purchasing a Michigan fishing license or a trout/salmon stamp.

Fishing, conservation and travel groups throughout the state will also be hosting fishing clinics and derbies. For a list of free fishing weekend events write to the: Michigan Department of Natural Resources, Fisheries Division, P.O. Box 30028, Lansing, Mi., 48909.

The daily $2 car and $4 car/trailer use fee will also be waived at all 44 DNR Recreation Division public access boat launch facilities (not state parks).

In addition, free fishing and boat safety information stations will be held at four state highway welcome centers, noon to 6 p.m. Friday, June 9, and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, June 10. Fishing tips, brochures and a listing of free fishing events will be available as well as free boat safety checks. The four centers are: John C. Mackie Welcome Center on U.S.-27 north of Clare; New Buffalo Welcome Center on eastbound I-94 at the Michigan/Indiana border; Dundee Welcome Center on U.S.-23 south of Dundee, and the Menominee Welcome Center on Highway 41 near the Michigan/Wisconsin border.

EXPERIENCE A CAR WHOSE ONLY LIMITATION IS ITS AVAILABILITY.

Once outside the factory, a Lotus Esprit Turbo can rocket you from 0 to 60 MPH in only 5.2 seconds and on up to nearly 160 MPH with seeming effortlessness. Inside the factory, however, it travels at a somewhat slower pace. Each and every Lotus receives three months of meticulous assembly, hand-fitting, hand-finishing and paintwork that's nine coats deep. While this excessive fine tuning doesn't result in an excessive number of Lotus Esprit Turbos, fewer than 500 fortunate drivers this year will discover it's well worth the effort.

To be among them, contact your Lotus dealer for a test drive. And experience a car that commands as much attention in the factory as it does on the road.

'Crazy' clothes: So wild, whacky . . . expensive

By Charlene Mitchell
special writer

Patterns that don't seem to match, colors that clash and garments that look more like they belong in the garbage rather than on a store manikin . . .

Clothes Encounters in Farmington features this peach-colored, two-piece outfit — the leggings with attached angular skirt is $57 while the mock turtleneck top is $33.

It's the "Dirty Dancing" look from Function-al Funwear, chartreuse tie-dyed denim shorts with matching oversized pullover shirt. The shorts are $44 and the shirt $32 at Hersh's on the Boardwalk in West Bloomfield.

That's the way a lot of consumers view the new wave of clothing that is quickly becoming the rage among dressers who dare to be different. Some of the clothes are downright weird looking, but stores that stock the mismatched, faded and often torn merchandise insist that there is a growing market for it.

"My customers are always looking for something different," said Hersh Rothenberg, who has owned Hersh's on the Boardwalk in West Bloomfield for five years. "Today's kind of look is more than just putting on the garment. It's learning different ways of tying, belting, layering and accessorizing."

Because many of the outfits that hang on the racks of stores are not "preput-together," some shoppers are intimidated and are not willing to try clothes on unless they can see a finished look first.

One shopper at Crowley's in Farmington complained to a saleswoman that she couldn't figure out what to do with the four-foot-long piece of cotton knit fabric that accompanied an oversize pullover top.

"Is it a belt or a scarf?"

The seemingly confused saleswoman pointed to a manikin's head wrap and said, "I think that's what you're suppose to do with it."

BUT WHILE some of us might not be hip enough for this trendy fashion scene, those that understand it seem to love it.

"I love being different," said Adria Bircoll of West Bloomfield. "Usually I stick with black and white clothes, but this new wild stuff suits me fine. I've spent tons of money for the summer."

Larry Sallen, owner of the two-year-old Clothes Encounter Boutique in downtown Farmington, believes the current wild looks are more than just a flash in the pan.

"I think women want clothes that are fun and comfortable," he said. "That's what they get with big loose tops covered with sparkles and jewels. The leggings are still hot. Short skirts are still hot, and the big baggy pants are wonderful."

Mixing of plaids with polka dots or stripes may not be the kind of combination that is suitable for all occasions, but it looks like we'll be seeing more of it even through next fall.

Ethnic looks, including the Latin and African influences, are finding their way into the mainstream.

"You'd be surprised to find that women in their 40s are dressing just their teenage daughters," Rothenberg said.

An example is a two-colored cotton knit set that is covered with rips and tears and sells for a hefty $120.

"It may look like junk, but it's not cheap," Rothenberg said. "It cost money to have this look!"

WHILE MANY conservative-minded women are off on a mission to find clothes that don't yell and shout, retailers believe the verdict is already in on what to expect over the next two seasons. They are predicting a rapid change in the way women are willing to dress. They say we will conform.

It all sounds like hype since they hope not to get stuck with a heavy inventory of funny-looking clothes.

"Even at 50 to 70 percent off, there are some people who would NEVER wear my clothes," said one retailer in Southfield who specializes in the uncommon.

But this story is not really about those who won't. It's about those who do, and the numbers are growing.

photos by Randy Borst/staff photographer

A geometric pattern sets off this Japanese style trouser, cut at an angle, sleeveless top and oversized shirt jacket. The trousers are $38, the top $19 and the jacket $36 at Clothes Encounter in Farmington.

Andersonville: Place to remember

By Iris Sanderson Jones
contributing travel editor

Second of a two-part series.
Last week I answered the first half of a question posed by a reader:

"Here's a tough question for you. Sue and I want to spend a week in central Georgia before the schools get out mid-June. I want to find my great-great-grandfather's grave at the Civil War cemetery in Andersonville. Mary likes golf, flowers and craft shopping. Can you help us plan a trip where we can stay in one place the whole week? S.H., Livonia."

Last week I talked about staying in or around Columbus, Ga., or along the nearby Andersonville Trail. This week I would like to tell our reader about visiting the Andersonville National Historic Site, which was once a Confederate prison.

Highway 49 leads south approximately 80 miles to Andersonville, past farmlands and overgrown fields. Small, modern ranch houses stand beside the road but occasionally you see a 19th century house tucked in a thick stand of trees, the kind that author McKinley Kanter described in the opening chapter of his novel, "Andersonville."

That novel is an easy way to get a picture of what this part of Georgia was like when the Confederates decided to build an Army prison here in 1864. Our reader's great-great-grandfather died in that prison, known then as Camp Sumter.

A NARROW road winds into the village of Andersonville, a pleasant place of small, wooden houses and craft shops, with a statue of camp commander Capt. Henry Wirz in the center of town. Wirz was hanged in Washington for his part in the desperate condition of the prison, but locals thought he was unfairly accused.

The prison was built near Andersonville because there was a good railway line, this was the "bread basket of the South" and there was a fine stand of trees as well as a creek. Neither trees nor creek lasted long.

You won't forget your first sight of what is now Andersonville National Historic Site. Today it is dedicated to all the Americans who died in war, but as you pass through the gates you probably won't be

MOVING PICTURES

Indiana Jones (Harrison Ford), Dr. Henry Jones (Sean Connery), Marcus Brody (Denholm Elliott) and Sallah (John Rhys-Davies) go on a quest to find the Holy Grail in "Indiana Jones and the Last Crusade."

'Crusade' marches on in typical Jones' style

Well, the Spielberg-Lucas axis has done it again in a sequel production that shows us how one of the screen's more popular characters got that way.

While "Indiana Jones and the Last Crusade" (B+, PG-13, 120 minutes) is good entertainment, it is too long, it trades too heavily on Indiana's previous exploits and presents Spielberg-Lucas trademarks which are rapidly becoming clichés — snakes and other vermin, booby-trapped caves, and bodies which degenerate into skeletons before your very eyes.

The film represents adulation of a character who has not achieved the legendary, mythic cultural position worthy of such worship. Despite the success of "Raiders" and "Temple of Doom," all of Indiana Jones' (Harrison Ford) movements and personality quirks are not major civic events.

The first third of the film is a bit slow despite a typical Indiana Jones action sequence with River Phoenix as the young Indy trying to save an artifact from grave-robbers who want the crucifix for profit. His father, Dr. Henry Jones (Sean Connery), is distant and seemingly disinterested and that sets up the film's best section, the middle third.

Here, the mature Indy is lured away from his classroom by the wealthy museum patron, Walter Donovan (Julian Glover), who reports that Indy's father has disappeared while searching for the Holy Grail.

Despite the similarity to the search for the Ark in "Raiders," the proceedings are fun as Indy rescues his father. Ford and Connery work well together treating the strained father-son situation with wry good humor. As well, in this section, the exploits are restrained — at least for Indy.

That's not something that can be said about the final part. While we've all come to expect the impossible of Indiana Jones, near the end the style, humor and vivacity of earlier portions are discarded in favor of exaggerated and repetitive heroics which dull the excitement.

Even fantasy needs a certain credibility which doesn't exist when Indiana Jones overdoes it, as Spielberg has allowed in the tank battle sequence.

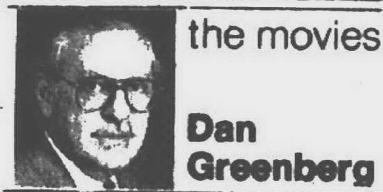

There's also a couple of continuity problems that are unusual for a big budget Spielberg-Lucas event, most notably a machine-gunned, smoking speed boat that suddenly repaired itself. An out-of-focus shot of Connery and some visually weak projection shots also were unexpected. No explanation is offered for how the mature Indy winds up fighting the same villains over the same crucifix that bedevilled his youthful self.

Despite these problems, "Indiana Jones and the Last Crusade" is entertaining and well worth your time and money. Hopefully, however, this will be Indy's last campaign.

Michael Lemley (Bryan Madorosky) is one weird little kid and "Parents" (F, R, 90 minutes) is one weird little movie. Had it succeeded as a metaphor for the nightmare of suburban living in the '50s, the foreign world of adulthood and the tortures of the pre-pubescent imagination, "Parents" would have been an outstanding film.

The pieces are all there, but floating about and the puzzle never quite comes together despite gems like having the father (Randy Quaid) working hard to develop a new defoliant at a company called, "Toxi-co."

The movie drags on in episodic, TV fashion. The prologue doesn't lead anywhere and what might have been a bright, comic look at childhood is wasted on a curious mix of effective visual imagery and boring exposition.

Admittedly, it is hard to tell a story about cannibalism without dinette table-talk, but this drones on, bordering on the ridiculous. We know what the kid suspects about his parents, so get on with it already!

Randy Quaid and Mary Beth Hurt waste their considerable talents but manage to maintain dignity as the ship sinks. Sandy Dennis plays — big surprise — Sandy Dennis. Madorosky plays a completely joyless child who sees the world through blood-colored glasses. It's not easy to do and harder to watch.

One of "Parents' few bright spots is Juno Mills-Cockell as Shielah, Michael's precocious and only friend.

The moral of this suburban fable: Never trust anyone who's had Freud 101 to tell a good, clean, fun tale of youthful whimsy. Reviewed by Susan Finchem.

Clint Eastwood finally took some good advice and lightened up his act. The result is the unexpectedly funny "Pink Cadillac" (B+, PG-13, 110 minutes). Eastwood looks and sounds great in this tale of a soft-hearted bounty hunter out to rescue a baby from a gang of ex-con neo-Nazis. (You didn't really expect him to play a bad guy, did you?)

Bernadette Peters is wonderful as Lou Ann, the innocent felon and mother who unwittingly incurs the gang's anger when she takes off in a pink Cadillac that conceals their treasure. Peters breaks free of the inevitable kewpie doll comparisons by wryly exploiting them in her characterization of a repressed good girl who emerges to become a better woman.

It's good to finally see Eastwood enjoying his work. He actually smiles once or twice and brings a dead-pan charm to his portrayal.

The "Pink Cadillac" isn't meant to be a classic, it's meant to entertain and its does that quite well. There are a few problems with pacing, but on the whole, this is well written, well executed movie, a mint condition vehicle for Eastwood's comic talent. Reviewed by Susan Finchem.

ALTERNATIVE VIEWING

'Mad Love' the twilight of Peter Lorre's career

"Mad Love," at the Detroit Institute of Art's Afternoon Film Theatre this Tuesday through Sunday, is a film that's nicer to think and talk about than to actually watch.

As a drama, it's disappointing in many ways. This can be said of a lot of classic horror films. But who cares? Aficionados watch "The Cat People" for the pool scene and "Psycho" for the shower scene. And on those occasions when "Mad Love" is screened, they go to see Peter Lorre.

"Mad Love" (released in England as "The Hands of Orlac") was Lorre's first American film. Released in 1935, it represents a sort of twilight stage in his career, when he was transformed from a hot young Berlin stage actor who was one of Bertolt Brecht's favorite colleagues, to a typecast Hollywood character player known chiefly for his funny accent.

This small, gargoyle-like man with bulging hyperthyroid eyes was certainly one of the weirdest looking human beings ever to achieve international film stardom.

YET THERE was always a certain grotesque appeal about him, and under Karl Freund's direction in "Mad Love," he evinces at times a sort of supernatural beauty.

Publicity stills for the film have an androgynous seductive quality, with Lorre half closing his great eyes with the ecstatic expression of a stoned starlet.

In "The Citizen Kane Book," Pauline Kael notes the uncanny resemblance between Lorre in this film and Orson Welles as the eccentric, Xanadu-bound Charles Foster Kane. Gregg Toland, who was co-cinematographer for "Mad Love," was cinematographer for "Kane," and Welles was nuts for thrillers. There's even a sulphur-crested cockatoo featured prominently in both films. Coincidence? Hmm.

"Mad Love" features Lorre (completely bald, looking fetchingly like a youth Uncle Fester) as a brilliant, but lonely Parisian, who's passionately obsessed with a beautiful actress, Madame Orlac, who performs in Grand Guignol-like horror shows.

Since the real madame is unattainable — she's married to handsome concert pianist Colin Clive — the lovelorn Dr. Gogol has a wax work made of her, which he tenderly dresses in her clothes, reads poetry to and serenades with his pipe organ.

When poor Monsieur Orlac loses his hands in a horrible accident, Dr. Gogol is called on to graft on new ones. He does, but determines to use the opportunity to drive Orlac mad and get him out of the way as he is tired of getting wax under his fingernails. He wants... "the real thing."

THIS IS Karl Freund's first turn at directing, and his last. He would chiefly be known as a cinematographer. One of his notable achievements was as director of photography for the "I Love Lucy" show. He invented the three-camera technique for shooting sit-coms in real time before a live audience that has remained a standard technique well into the "Murphy Brown" era.

"Mad Love," or rather "Los Manos de Orlac con Peter Lorre," is a running motif in Malcolm Lowry's novel "Under the Volcano."

"I think I've seen the Peter Lorre movie somewhere," comments on character, seeing a publicity poster, of it. "He's a great actor, but it's a lousy picture."

Well, let's just say a great actor, and leave it at that.

Musically, The General could be described as punk with a pop flair. They try to capture a simple melody with a simple line without cliches in their songs.

Generals: 'Simply' successful

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

About every three seconds, Kevin James' eyes light up with another marketing idea.

The latest in a series of light bulbs concerns The Generals' next LP, which will be titled "Use Once and Destroy." The album should be out sometime in July.

"Just think, it could become a cult thing," said James, who is lead guitarist in the band. "People would buy the album, listen to it once and destroy it and then buy another one. All we would need is for four people to buy it."

"Which is about how many people bought our single," added bass player Flip Cherven with a smirk.

Humor and philosophy are not lacking in The Generals' camp. Band members are quite adept with both.

Musically, The Generals can be described as punk with a pop flair. There's snarl. There's hooks. In the final analysis, there's songs that deserve a second look.

Around here, though, that isn't easy. Where do you want to start? Radio? How about the lack of clubs? Or the missing strong independent record label? All of which adds up to a dilapidated support network for new bands.

THE GENERALS shrug it all off. Instead, they have taken their act on the road. The band has performed before appreciative crowds in Minneapolis, Minn., Chicago and other places in the Midwest.

People in the Detroit music scene are a bit surprised by The Generals' success. The band hasn't been a regular on the concert trail for awhile, except for a few shows at Saint Andrew's Hall in Detroit.

The Generals formed in 1986. Vocalist Tony Cole, drummer Matt Washburn and James were in Alien Nation and Cherven was in the Mangoes. They broke with those bands. (Washburn joined The Generals recently.)

At first, the band could be found performing at The Graystone in Detroit. Known mainly for hardcore punk acts, The Generals were automatically lumped into that category.

"That's been a problem for us for a long time," said James, who lives in Birmingham. "In Detroit, there's two extremes. We weren't hardcore enough or you'd play some places and were too loud. We were sort of caught in the middle."

People in places, such as Minneapolis and Chicago, have been a bit more open minded, taking The Generals at face value. Some expect a Detroit band to kick out the MC-5 or the Iggy Stoooges sound, but The Generals shake them up.

SONGWRITING is the key, they believe. The Generals try to capture a simple melody with a simple line without cliches. James, who is an English major at the University of Michigan, sees to that.

"The song is a song," James said.

"It's not a poem. It's not 'Paradise Lost.' We're not out to write an epic."

"We'll leave that to (rock group) Yes," Cherven added.

The Generals have a cut, "How Much More," on the recently released WORF-FM compilation tape. The previous recording effort, a seven-inch single "Danger Stranger," didn't fare too well.

"We marketed it the wrong way," Cherven said. "We sat on it too long."

Those mistakes will be avoided this time out. "Use Once and Destroy" is being recorded at Diversion Studios in Berkley. This band is definitely in it for keeps.

Otherwise, James wouldn't be sounding like a junior Jaccoca.

"There are the basic laws," he said, striking his index finger up in the air. "If it's yellow and tastes like soap, it's beer. If it's yellow and tastes like vinegar, but only costs 85 cents a quart, buy it."

LIVE

JOHNNY ALLEN & THE APPEAL — Paycheck's Lounge, Hamtramck.

The yeoman approach to their craft is indeed to be admired. You wait for this five-piece outfit, led by Johnny Allen, to slow down, but it never comes to be. Instead, Johnny Allen & The Appeal build into a whirlwind of momentum that only ceases when the lights are turned off.

For little more than an hour, Johnny Allen and his band burned through a 17-song set. Most of the tunes were originals, featuring some of the great cuts off Allen's "Desperate Year's" LP and showcasing material for his next LP, "Blood." The sound is rather straight-forward, get-your-kicks rock 'n' roll.

Allen lives out the role of the underdog rock 'n' roll Joe. The jeans ripped in the knee, the black leather jacket with the motorcycle boots to match — the look is complete. His songs allude to dreams, ones that he lives out on stage.

And, at times, on stage is where he gets beside himself with a emotion. On some songs, he pulls his guitar behind his head for a little feedback. He hits his knees to re-emphasize the commitment he has to the songs. Then there are the occasions when he wanders out into the audience with his guitar in hand. After a rather exhausting number, Allen goes as far as to make a sign of the cross (Well, heck, it was Sunday).

Such Springsteen-esque gestures, though, might be forgivable only because Johnny Allen seems sincere. Anthemic numbers such as "Barefoot in the Snow" and "Desperate Year's" further drive this home. The material he showcases for the next LP, such as "Certain" and "I Know Just What You're Thinking" are along the same lines.

Allen is backed up by a rather skilled, if not steady, group of musicians. If anything, they help anchor the whole production. The most intriguing of the other band members is the back-up vocalist, whose voice certainly stands out. She and Allen had dueling tamborines on a cover version of the Beatles' "Come Together."

Johnny Allen & The Appeal already have their act together.

They're a 'jar' full of good music

St. James' 'Twiggy' is local rage

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Ladies and gentlemen, from Peach-On-Cobbler, England... it's Twiggy Barbust and the Lizards in Jars.

No, they are not appearing in junior high science classes, but are the latest rage in local pubs. Twiggy and Company recently performed a rather hot set of covers at Paycheck's Lounge, opening up for Johnny Allen & The Appeal.

Some rather familiar faces dot the Twiggy Barbust lineup, including Scott Campbell, guitar; Skeen (Funhouse), guitar; Ken Dudek, drummer; Mike Bisch (Figure 4), bass; Lance Graves, guitar; Missy Gibson (Strange Bedfellows) and Beaux Mitchell (Skanking Voodoo).

But who is this Twiggy character? Geez, he looks an awful lot like WRIF-FM disc jockey Greg St. James.

"Naw, he's my first cousin, three times removed," St. James said.

According to St. James, Twiggy apparently has been residing in Bad Moon Rising, West Germany, after recovering at the Hoover Institute. Twiggy, you see, is a recovering "vaulobolic."

Though the disease has yet to find its way into medical journals, apparently it can begin with dust-busters and evolve into mass buying of custodial-sized Hoovers.

TWIGGY HAS triumphed over his weakness for vacuum cleaners, instead blowing out some rather spirited rock'n'roll. The all-star group performed a seven-song set, featuring some rather inspired covers of David Bowie's "Rebel, Rebel" and "Putting Out Fire (With Gasoline)."

Before the group launched into "Jumpin' Jack Flash," Twiggy slowly walked to the microphone and peered out into the crowd.

"Guns N' Roses stole this from the Rolling Stones," said Twiggy, striking a serious Bonosque pose. "Well, we're stealing it back."

Twiggy Barbust and the Lizards in Jars made their debut last summer at the "Morons of Rock" show at Saint Andrew's Hall. Since then, Twiggy has miraculously lost his British accent (not to mention ditching the Rod Stewart wig) and been playing benefits and other gigs.

Twiggy, err St. James, is the driving force behind the group.

Twiggy Barbust, who resembles Greg St. James of WRIF-FM, and the Lizards in Jars are the latest rage in local pubs.

"Since it's so hard to get local music on the radio, I thought I'd get all the local bands together," St. James said. "This is my way to support local bands."

REVIEWS

SOMETHING REAL

— Phoebe Snow

I approached this LP on Elektra with some enthusiasm, having had it recommended by someone whose taste I used to respect.

Well, I won't get fooled again.

Ten songs, smooth as silk and blandly harmless. Songs that make AOR radio programmers sleep well at night. Songs that make the rest of us sleep well while listening to them. Songs that allow Phoebe Snow to show how wonderfully talented she is and to impress with such an incredible vocal range.

Songs that deal with relationships — "I want something real from you baby, one time before I die, we can make love all night 'til the sky catches fire, keeping talking for hours and never get tired, I don't want you to lie but you're such a beautiful liar."

Yawnwwwwww. All are gift-wrapped with a Steve Winwood style of "hip" with smooth, contemporary production. Gentle acoustic guitars, laid back saxphones and atmospheric keyboard drones around.

Snow writes four of the songs, but they are as boring as her choice of other people's material.

"I was stubborn when I was young, I thought I had all of the answers," it says in "Mr. Wondering." Now, how did they think of that original line?

This is an album for all those lonely country girls, sitting at home waiting for Mr. Right, still listening to Carol King's "Tapestry" and considering Whitney Houston to be the greatest thing ever and cries every time she hears Elton John's "Your Song."

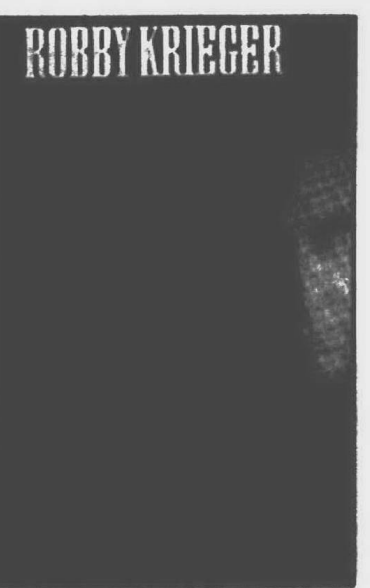

Watch out. If you put this on your turntable, you may not stay awake long enough to remove it.

Just say no.

NO HABLA

— Robby Krieger

Let's play word association. We'll mention a band and you'll tell us what name pops into your mind.

The Doors?

Chances are 99.9 percent of the people questioned would utter the name Jim Morrison, who was the singer/songwriter of the famed group. But few people know that it was guitarist Robby Krieger, not Morrison, who wrote "Light My Fire" and "Hello, I Love You."

And, it was Krieger who was instrumental in patenting the Doors' sound. Anyway, Krieger is definitely a candidate for an American Express Card commercial.

Perhaps the release of "No Habla" (L.R.S.) may change that.

Those expecting some reshaped licks from his Doors days will be disappointed, though. There are some Doors' cuts, such as "Wild Child" and "You're Lost, Little Girl."

But Krieger's finger work put a different shade on each tune. He stretches the boundaries with his searing guitar play.

Aside from those, there are several jazz-influenced numbers that are intriguing. Some even tip-toe on the boundaries of new age. If anything, they definitely have movie soundtrack potential.

Krieger's strength is his ability to somehow blend in with the other musicians and then take his guitar above it all. Each song has its own trademark.

This album could open the doors for some well-deserved notoriety for Krieger.

THROUGH THE STORM

— Aretha Franklin

She is the "Queen of Soul." On this effort, though, it's more the Queen of Soul and her court.

The heavyweights in the pop music industry are rolled out to help see Franklin "Through the Storm" (Arista). James Brown, Whitney Houston, Elton John and Levi Stubbs of the Four Tops team up with the Detroit native on her follow-up to the Grammy-winning "One Lord, One Faith, One Baptism."

The thought here must be: If it worked with George Michael, why not everyone else?

For the most part, the duets here are excellent. Listening to Franklin trade soulful belts with the Godfather (James Brown) on "Gimme Your Love" is something to cherish. Then there is the girl duet with Whitney Houston on "I Don't Know What It Ain't Never Gonna Be."

ONE OF the better pairings comes with Elton John on "Through the Storm." Here, there is a tag-team songfest that evolves into a rather joyful piece of music. Franklin and Stubbs also combine for the elegant "If Ever a Love There Was."

Not only do the duets make for some great music, they offer some what of a historical perspective of her career. When the Queen of Soul was racking up the hits, Whitney Houston was probably playing in sand boxes.

Franklin proves she can hold her own, and then some, with her contemporary. Her best moments come solo, especially on the more sexy and slow-moving numbers such as "Nasty" and "Come to Life."

Her voice is timeless. Against the drum machines and wah-wahs of the 1970s, she remains above it all. These duets certainly don't do justice to a great number like "Think (1969)." Yet Franklin's vocals are nothing less than stunning 30 years later.

STREET SENSE

There's an element of luck in love

Dear Barbara,

I've been reading your column since it started appearing in Street Scene earlier this year and for the most part, agree with the advice you have given. However, I was disappointed with your column that appeared on May 8 in that the only insight I got into men is that there's some out there in the same plight as "Needing a Man."

At one time, I was in the same position of "Needing a Man." I had just escaped from a rotten 10-year marriage — I had made a lifetime commitment, but my ex-husband had a different agenda.

Divorce decree in hand, I faced the future and it didn't look too bright. In my 30s, intelligent and bound to survive even if it meant working two jobs to pay the bills I had inherited with that decree, I faced the choice of becoming an old maid or finding a man. The latter raised the BIG question: How do you find a man after being out of the dating scene for 10 years?

Frankly, the singles scene at the bars did absolutely nothing for me when I was in my 20s and was even less appealing in my 30s, considering the man I had just unloaded was an alcoholic. You know the saying about "once burned." Well, once was more than enough for me. And I was interested in more than a series of one-night stands.

Likewise, the thought of a dating service turned me off not only because they're too costly, but a person can easily hide their true self behind a nice piece of literature.

To make a long story short, I found the man of my dreams through a friend. We had the most horrible of blind dates — my first, and thank God, my last. Everything that could go wrong did, but what was nice about it was that we found out everything we needed to know about each other in one lump sum. We shared a lot of common experiences and interests and had the same temperaments. It wasn't too long after that we realized we were made for each other and decided to take the plunge. It's been almost three years and we're still as happy as we were the day we found each other.

We have a young man — in his mid-30s — who boards with us and it's been an eye-opening experience to see the machinations he goes through in the singles scene. He's a very nice young man, but he seems to have the penchant for finding losers. We've spent plenty of time propping him up after failed relationships and giving him advice. And he, like my husband and myself once did, wonders where you go to find a nice girl?

I guess what I'm saying to "Needing a Man" and those three guys in need of a woman is that with today's "me" generation, finding the right person is nothing more than a crap shoot. You can decide the kind of person you want to spend the rest of your life with — successful, yuppie, whatever — but what it comes down to is what you feel comfortable with. Love is an important part of marriage, but you have to also like your mate. After all, that person becomes your best friend in life.

I found my best friend without playing the crap shoot. I found him when I wasn't looking. Maybe the problem with these people is that they're just trying too hard. Going out and looking for a specific person is like going out to buy a specific dress or suit. You're bound to end up disappointed.

As for where to find a nice person, well, work probably is the worst place. Office romances are the nectar of the gods when it comes to fodder for the rumor mill. My suggestion is to look to your friends, people. They're your friends because you have something in common with them. And their social circles more times than not contain single people with similar commonality.

One of the lucky ones

Dear "One of the lucky ones,"

I am so delighted that we are able to print in this column an example of happiness and success. All singles should have such luck. The significance of luck is difficult for many to accept, taking away, as it does, our feelings of control. Its importance, however, remains undiminished.

With that said, I want to thank you for the opportunity to expound on those areas of courting and marriage which are under our control.

I understand your disappointment in my column on "men out there needing a woman." However, men (and women) vary so much that it would seem irresponsible of me to pretend to give you insights that would fit all men. Many women desire these "rules" because the rules give them a feeling of security and of knowing what to do. But the safety is only temporary and does not replace the ability to discern, judge and understand each individual on their own.

That is my emphasis. Each man is different and must be thought of as who he is, not what group he fits into. It is, then, the people who cannot judge on an individual basis that are in the "crap shoot" you talk about.

As I have said, luck is an important element in courting for all. But finding the right man is even more of a shot of one dice for those of us who do not think clearly. In other words, clear thinking can improve our odds. And we need all the help we can get in the dating situation because intense intimate relationships encourage and exaggerate murky appraisals of others.

WOMEN SNOWED by the significant others' good looks, financial success or sweet talk or by their own love of romance or need for security, will have difficulty knowing if the other person is truly what they seem to be. It is easy to understand why the matchmaker, Dolly Levi, was a popular institution. She could do the thinking for you and minimize the element of luck.

I do have one objection to your letter. You were lucky enough to find the man you wanted without entering the bar scene, the work scene and without using a dating service. But these avenues can be successful for others. I treated a woman who had just divorced a schizophrenic man. She went to a bar and met her future husband. In a 15-year follow-up, they had endured together.

It is often too easy for people to make excuses for why some course of action won't work. I prefer encouraging people to take chances in all the avenues open to them. Success is difficult enough to achieve even when all possibilities are considered. There is more than one right way. Success often depends on realizing all the creative alternatives and having the guts and courage to enact them.

Picture yourself in Street Scene

Are you tired of lugging around a briefcase of snapshots of your marvelous Maui vacation to show anyone or everyone whether they want to see them or not?

Is attendance at your annual summer vacation slide show as sparse as those at last year's Lions football games?

Yep, everybody has a collection of cute vacation snapshots they want to share and few people to share it with. So what happens? They end up in a box or an album, relegated to the darkest corner of the closet floor or stashed in the attic to collect dust.

Well, there's a solution of sorts. It's Street Scene's "Wish You Were Here."

Beginning Monday, June 5, readers will have a chance to share the very best of their vacation snapshots with an unknown audience. Each week, throughout the summer months, Street Scene will run one photograph, be it pretty, funny, cute, pretty cute, pretty funny or whatever.

All you need to do is send the snapshot to Street Scene, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

There's a little more to it than that, however. Include a brief description of the circumstances under which the photo was shot and if you wish, some technical information on how it was shot.

Oh, and be sure to include some identification — like where the photo was taken (we're not geographical whiz kids here) and who is in it.

And last, but not least, include your name and where you live. We want to know where to send all the photographic jobs offers that will come in after Sports Illustrated and National Geographic see your work.

Yep... "Wish you were here." P.S. If you'd like your photo returned, be sure to include a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Making a 'bee'-line to fame photos by SHARON LEMIEUX/staff photographer

There was no place to hide when it came time for the oral spelling bee as contestants took their place on stage before judges and a crowd of thousands.

Spelldown brings out wordy best

By Mary Rodrigue
staff writer

It all began when the "bee" buzzed into the office one sunny Thursday. She flitted from one department to the next trying to muster enthusiasm for a companywide spelling bee.

I wondered if this full-sized female "bee," complete with antennae flopping on her head, drove along the freeway in that get-up. It was nowhere near Halloween.

Despite her regal attire, response to the "bee" was lukewarm. She looked desperate. I answered the call and marched off to a conference room with about 20 other contestants.

This approach I later learned is the best way to participate in a spelling bee. I was unprepared, because how can you study for a spelling bee short of memorizing a dictionary?

And I was calm. It was a spur-of-the-moment decision. There was no time to get jittery.

Slowly, the ranks were whittled down with comrades falling by the wayside on words like "piccalilli" and "glockenspiel." My downfall was "jodhpurs" — I put the p before the h. I went back into the newsroom to finish writing a story.

A FEW MINUTES later, I was informed I was back in the bee. The moderator had mispronounced jodhpurs and according to the contest rules, I was reinstated.

So on it went until there were two of us. Either we both spelled the given words correctly or we had the uncanny ability of misspelling the same words. Finally, my opponent misspelled "camouflage." I spelled it correctly and the following word "exonerated" to clinch the contest.

"Congratulations," the "bee" said as she handed me a word study guide and told me about a statewide competition I would be in at Cobo Hall that weekend.

What? State final? Cobo Hall? What did I get myself into? I hate this kind of stuff. I thought the winner got two Tiger baseball tickets and that was the end of it. Now I was learning there was more battle to fight and the stakes were considerably higher.

The prizes at the Cobo Hall competition were $2,000, $1,000 and $500 respectively for the top three finishers. Told I would be one of 200 competitors, I mulled the thought. The odds would be better than winning a lottery.

Chipping away at a portion of the study guide each night was tedious, and I would later learn, a complete waste of time. Two days before the contest, the "bee" called me to say there would be 350 competitors and we would begin at 10 a.m. instead of the previously scheduled 12:30 p.m.

Bee day arrived and with it came butterflies. I felt like I was back in college on final exams day. I just wanted it to be over.

AT COBO HALL, a half dozen busy "bees" were swarming around the auditorium, seating contestants and making sure we were equipped with clipboard, pen and paper. To expedite matters, there would be a 40-word spelling test to whittle down contestants from 350 to 50 for the oral bee.

To my left, a guy from MichCon pulled out his company newsletter to show me what was written about his office spelling bee. He won on the word "extemporaneous" and the prize was a $200 savings bond. To my right, a woman from the Detroit Tourist and Convention Bureau said no one in her office was interested in a bee, so she volunteered to represent her company.

Ten o'clock came and went. At 10:30, people were still scrambling for seats. At 11, the place was noisy and nothing much was happening. I looked back into the cheering section, the area designated for friends and family of contestants. I sheepishly eyed my friend who looked even more bored than I was. A graduate student who works full time, I was keeping her away from the one day a week she can spend doing research in the library.

At least my own family had the good sense to make other plans. My husband and two children were off on a one-day train adventure that turned out to be much more fun than my day.

Finally at 11:15, a speaker approached the podium. A spokesman for bee sponsor, temporary personnel provider Olsten Services, told us that there are 17 million functional illiterates in America. This contest, the third annual, was created to promote literacy in the work place. This year by far was the greatest turnout, Olsten president Frank Liguori said. He said the people of Michigan are highly competitive.

WE WERE ALL getting fidgety. Rules ran through my head: "I before e except after c," "when two vowels go walking, the first one does the talking." These long dormant pearls of wisdom from third grade were seeping into my consciousness. My palms were sweaty. This was turning out to be as much fun as oral surgery.

Finally, at 11:30, the show was on the road. Elbow to elbow, with my neighbors, we heard moderator Lloyd Anderson give a word and then had 30 seconds to neatly print it into the numbered boxes provided — one letter per box, all capital letters. Any mistake, however unintentional, constituted an error. A bell rang after 30 seconds and we moved onto the next word.

I immediately got off to a bad start, giving inoculate an extra n. My nerves, the heat and closeness of the crowd were taking its toll. Mich-Con kept leaning over and asking me to repeat the words. Of the 40 words, I think three appeared on the word study guide.

When it was over, we exchanged papers with our neighbors to correct them. My score was a pathetic 20 correct — exactly half. Before you wonder why an illiterate would choose a career in writing, consider some of the words I misspelled — belligramite, shihtzu, putsch, bacchanalian, tontine, denouement, onomatopoeia and rapprochement.

Some of the words I spelled correctly were chihuahua, hamburg, connoisseur, numismatics, hallelujah, grosgrain, bourgeoisie and tsetse. At least I've heard of these words.

In retrospect, I think a dog breeders manual and high school French would have served me better preparation than high school Spanish and the word study guide.

CONVINCED I was nowhere near the top 50 finishers, guilty of keeping my friend away from her research, and desperate for Tylenol to quell my aching head, I left the competition at this point.

Hours later, David Zimny, a political science instructor at Lansing Community College, plunged onward to victory, clinching the $2,000 kitty on "sebaceous."

But I don't want this to sound like sour grapes. The Olsten people were very cordial and they served everyone a nice lunch. On the positive side, I probably increased my word power and, if someone wants to know how to spell whippoorwill, I'll be able to tell them.

Marian Marquis, a librarian for the city of Southfield applauded fellow contestants before being knocked out when she misspelled "tobogganer."

Grand prize winner David Zimny (left), a political science instructor at Lansing Community College, was pretty calm as he waited with Roger Wayne of Farmington for their chance to spell.

Historic site remembers those who died in war thinking about World War II or Vietnam.

When you drive through the gates you see the small, white gravestones crossing the slopes in every direction, with a few large memorial statues set in the grass among them. A total 48,000 Union soldiers were confined here, and 13,000 of them are buried under those small stones. The first one I saw read: #8719 Edward F. Bulson, Sgt., Michigan.

It was 90 degrees and getting hotter when I visited Andersonville last June. Hot enough to burn your skin and parch your tongue. All I had to do to cool off was walk into the shade of a tree, or drink a glass of cool water from the visitor's center.

Edward Bulson and your great-great-grandfather didn't have that option when they were prisoners of war here during the Civil War. Or, as they say here in the South, the War Between the States, or the War of Northern Aggression.

THE FIRST of the tall trees were cut down by slaves, each cut log 20 feet long, and buried upright five feet into the ground to create a palisade, a wall that surrounded the 26.5-acre site. Prisoners cut the rest down to keep warm that first cold winter.

By the hot, dry summer of the following year there was no shade and the narrow creek was polluted enough to kill prisoners by the thousands. They died so fast they were buried shoulder to shoulder, without caskets, and with only a wooden stick to mark their place.

A 19-year-old prisoner from Connecticut was assigned to keep track of the graves. He didn't trust the bureaucracy, and he was sure that the families would never know where those men had died, so he sewed a second copy of the list into his uniform and later delivered it in Washington to Clara Burton, the Civil War nurse closely associated with the establishment of the American Red Cross.

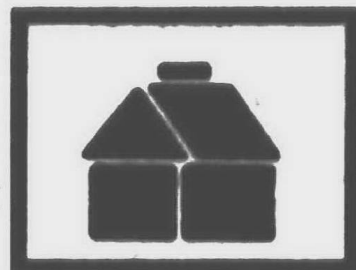

Together they came back to the prison site, created wooden headboards for the graves, built a wall around the grave site and filled it with flowers. The site was bought and cared for by various groups until it became part of the National Park Service in 1970.

WHAT YOU see now is rolling fields where the stockade once stood; the NPS has rebuilt a corner of it to show you how it looked. Many states, including Michigan, have built large memorials. A visitors center gives you a visual idea of what the site was like, and provides the information you need to find one of your ancestors among the dead.

If you want more information, you can write to the Andersonville National Historic Site, Andersonville, Ga. 31711. For general information on the area, call the Columbus Convention and Visitors Bureau toll free at (800) 999-1618.

condo queries

Robert M. Meisner

Q. With the spring and summer season coming up, I am concerned about the abuse in our cooperative by a number of the tenants who place their barbecues on the common areas, which is a violation of the restriction. I am concerned about the safety and health hazard which is created by that, and our board seems to be willing to do nothing about the problems. What can I do?

A. I assume, from your question, that there are rules and regulations against the placement of barbecues on certain common areas of the cooperative. If that be the case, you should write the board of directors to advise them of the violations and to request that they take whatever action is necessary to enforce the rules and regulations against barbecue owners and point out to them the potential safety and environmental hazards in connection with the barbecuing issue to the extent that there are these problems, and remind them of their legal and fiduciary responsibilities to enforce these restrictions on behalf of the members of the cooperative. If that does not work, see your friendly lawyer.

Q. We are having difficulty getting the plans and specifications from a local municipality. As a member of the board of our homeowners association, I need to see the plans for the clubhouse, as I am constantly met with frustration and discontent, and the building inspector says he cannot find the plans at present and, even if he found them, he couldn't release them to me. What can we do?

A. Every homeowner, cooperative or condominium association should have a complete set of the plans and specifications of the project and/or buildings for which the association has the responsibility to maintain, repair or replace.

Presumably, those plans and specifications can be obtained from the developer of the project. Assuming that that is not possible, the association should determine whether the architect or engineer involved in their project had an extra set of plans which could be provided to the association. But, even if such plans are obtained, the association should confirm exactly which set of plans and specifications were filed and approved by the local municipality.

The municipality should have these plans and specifications on record. If they do not cooperate with you in providing them to you, you should contact the city manager, mayor's office, or the like, and register your complaint. Moreover, while most municipalities will not release a set of the plans, they will arrange to have them copied for you, sometimes at considerable expense.

Nonetheless, you should be persistent in regard to obtaining what you have the right to, namely, a copy of the plans and specifications of the project in which you live from the applicable municipality.

Peeling has many sources

By ANDY LANG
special writer

AP — Painting the outside of a house is a tedious but fairly simple chore if you do not have to contend with peeling.

When a previous coat of paint has peeled, even to a minor degree, the new painting job becomes far more difficult. Instead of a little sanding during the course of the all-important preparation of the surface, the task must be detailed and thorough. Sometimes, when the preparation has not been proper, the trouble will appear to have been cleared after the paint has been applied, but it is only a temporary solution. In a matter of days, weeks or months, peeling will recur. Actually, it hasn't recurred as much as it has resurfaced, since it was there all the time.

Peeling, as with nearly all paint failures, is caused by moisture. But many of the affiliated causes have to do with adhesion of some sort. If for instance, the peeling goes right down to the bare wood, it usually means the primer was applied over damp wood. In that event, the scraping to remove the peeling must go right down to the wood. Sometimes, the peeling is only in the top coat, which is a sign this coat did not adhere well to the primer. Or, it may be the prime coat was too dirty or glossy. Or, it could be a sign of incompatibility between the two coats.

WHEN THE ENTIRE surface of a house is in bad condition and requires complete removal of all the old paint, a professional job is needed. It's one tough job to get off the old paint, no matter what method is used. And, we have always maintained a blow torch should not be used on the outside of a house except by a professional or at least somebody who is experienced in its use.

Fortunately, there are many cases where peeling takes place only in what might be called localized areas. When a homeowner undertakes this task himself, the rough edges that show up when scraping has been done must be feathered or blended with sandpaper so as not to have an uneven appearance.

Peeling occasionally will take place when new paint has been applied over chalking paint. Chalking paint, used on surfaces where it is necessary to wash away the dirt during a rain, can be removed first by washing with a cleaner like trisodium phosphate. By the way, when there is excessive peeling under the eaves of the house it on the house

usually is because the areas are not cleaned by rain.

Many of the problems associated with moisture can be bypassed by the use of a special latex paint that can be applied even over damp surfaces. But the best way to take care of such trouble is by preventing it in the first place. You not only must be sure your house is well-caulked and otherwise protected from the elements, you must take steps to see that the excessive moisture created in modern houses has a way to escape.

VENTILATING FANS to get rid of this excess moisture are a help. So are vents installed in the house siding. These vents permit the moisture to leave the house rather than building up on the inside and pushing its way through the paint film, with the inevitable blistering and peeling. Special kinds of paint keep dampness from going through the walls and getting at the outside paint, but this must be done in conjunction with a moisture-escape method.

If your house has gutters and downspouts, keep them in working order. When they do not work, overflowing may add to your water difficulties. And be sure shrubbery planted close to the house isn't keeping the sun's rays from the siding and retaining moisture, a frequent cause of mildew.

Paint formulations change over the years. Even if you are using paint made by the same manufacturer as the last time you painted, check the label on the container carefully and see whether your paint dealer has some kind of brochure on that particular brand. The addition or absence of certain ingredients may help you get a better result.

(Do-it-yourselfers will find detailed information on all aspects of painting in Andy Lang's booklet, "Paint Your House Inside and Out," which can be obtained by sending $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, NY 11743.)

Yews need your attention

AP — Last summer's heat and drought may have damaged your evergreen plants — and if the winter was rugged in your area, this could have been intensified, since evergreens continue to lose moisture through the year.

Even yews — one of the most popular evergreens in home landscapes and one with few past problems — have had inner needles turn brown or growing tips die back. Ray Rothenberger, a horticulturist at the University of Missouri Extension Service, said that last fall, a mix of brown outer shoots with green inner needles was evident, and in some cases, entire branches (and occasionally entire plants) have died.

Yews suffer when soils are extremely wet or dry for long periods. Such conditions kill roots. Rothenberger said the extent of damage showing on the tops would depend on root damage.

He advises: "If damage is not too great, selective pruning to remove dead or dying branches is the first step to recovery. Water thoroughly. Unless there are extensive fall rains, all evergreens can benefit from watering just before soil freezes.

"MANY EVERGREENS have relatively shallow root systems, especially where the native

weeder's guide

soil is heavy clay. Unless there is plenty of soil moisture, the shallow roots are unable to absorb water as fast as it is lost through the needles, and needle browning and drop result. Evergreens in shade or protected from prevailing winter winds are less subject to this type of damage since their water loss is reduced."

Spruces also may show drought damage. Excess needle drop indicates a need for help, Rothenberger said. If damage is slight, natural or added water is important. Careful watering this summer, when conditions are hot and dry, will be critical.

"Do not water trees such as spruce and pine only close to the trunk," he advises. "Wet the entire area beneath the tree and beyond the entire branch spread."

Events need to be charted

Q. Our teenager has become a real grouch because he is feeling pressure from all the end-of-school activities and is afraid he won't have time to get everything done. How can I help him?

A. This is an excellent time to teach your youngster good time management techniques. Help him learn how to clarify what need doing and to "break work down into units."

On a blank paper, draw out a calendar page showing the days through the end of his busy season. Write in all of his events, including sports, proms or banquets, outings to Cedar Point, etc. Record the dates his school work assignments are due, as well as the dates of tests and final exams.

List on another page all preparations or follow-up (such as estimated study time or sleeping in after late night activities) for each event. Add his other To Do activities, such as job hunting, home chores, summer trip preparations, etc. Schedule each of these items for specific hours on his calendar. For difficult subjects, break his study periods down into manageable units of 30 or 45 minutes over a period of days instead of one last-minute marathon study session.

One boy was nervous about a 2,000-word theme, a 10-minute speech, homework that was behind in a subject he didn't understand — while facing finals, maintaining lawnmowing jobs and trying to relax a little in between. After a scheduling session he recognized that, being a slow typist, he had to set aside a Saturday and Sunday afternoon to type his theme, and found a tutor to help him catch up on homework on school nights. By doing lawns after school, taking time for a long dinner break and studying each evening, he realized he did have the time to accomplish everything. This allowed him to relax with a feeling of control, enabling him to think more clearly and study more effectively.

If there really is too much to accomplish, some choices must be made about which activities can be trimmed. Try to maintain a good balance of work and play. He'll do better if he doesn't feel burned out. This technique works equally well for those with too much to do, teen-aged procrastinators who need to get moving — and overloaded adults, too.

Nagler to introduce 'Southwest' color series

Photographer Monte Nagler will be featured in an exhibition, "Images of the Southwest," June 5-17 in Jacobson's Livonia store. He will introduce the collection of color photographs at a reception 6-9 p.m. Thursday, June 8.

Nagler left an established career in the automotive field six years ago to begin a professional career in photography. After studying with Ansel Adams, Nagler said he realized "that making photographs is a way to experience beauty instead of just looking at it."

Nagler writes a photography column for the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers and teaches photography classes at The Community

House in Birmingham, the Farmington Community Center and conducts seminars for Cranbrook P.M.

His photographs are found in galleries all over the country, including Carmel, Calif.; Denver, Chicago, and New York, are also featured in the Detroit Institute of Arts' permanent collection.

With a comparison that using black and white film is like reading a book and that using color film is like watching a movie, Nagler's work has been dominantly black and white. However, for the first time, Nagler will introduce color photographs, featured in his "Images of the Southwest" collection. All works are limited to 50.

Woodsy setting for Arbor Farms development

Located off Tuck Road Road, just north of Eight Mile between Orchard Lake and Middlebelt, a new subdivision by Arbor Farms Development Group is blending the convenience of a location near main roads with rustic beauty of a natural wood setting.

Offering ranch, colonial, bi-level, tri-level models, the homes are modestly priced beginning in the high $80,000s available in a choice of four elevations. There's a total of five floor plans available.

"OUR MAIN GOAL IS to provide affordable new housing, says partner Steven Schaffer. "It's tough to find a good used home for the price of one of our new homes. Especially in such a great location." In addition to standard move-in features such as carpeting, sinks and cement driveways, the home are equipped with Owens Corning insulation, Therma-Tru insulated doors and Whirlpool dishwashers, Comfortmaker furnaces and Armstrong No-Wax kitchen floors.

"We're also open to building options to suit," added Schaffer. In this, we achieve the look and feel of a custom-designed home with the high cost."

Building on a total of 19 lots situated in a heavily wooded area, the group intends to preserve as much of the natural beauty of the area as possible.

Construction on all homes is expected to be completed by late September.

"I finally found a townhome as large as a home."
"I looked long and hard to find a 2000 sq. ft., cathedral ceiling elegant three-bedroom townhome. (Of course, I could have chosen a two or three-bedroom ranch.) With my own two-car attached garage, my own private basement and patio. And luxury touches like deluxe kitchens and whirlpool tubs plus landscaping that I love. Nothing could get me to move from Covington. Nothing."
