Elected officials support school millages

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

If it were up to several area governmental officials, both millages being sought by Plymouth-Canton Community Schools in the upcoming election would be approved.

Voters will be asked June 12 to approve an 8-mill renewal and 4 mills in additional property taxes. They'll also elect one school board candidate to a four-year term.

Canton Township Supervisor Thomas Yack, Plymouth City Manager Henry Graper, state Rep. James Kosteva, D-Canton, and state Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, support both the renewal and the increase.

AND THEY agree that school officials and pro-millage citizens' groups have done a better job this time around informing the community about the district's money problems.

"I think they have gotten the word out so much better than in past elections," Kosteva said. "The fact that more people know about the financial plight of the schools I think will benefit the school district, not only in the short run, but in the long run."

"I think this is really a quality campaign," Yack said. "They have been able to achieve the grass-roots effort necessary to win a tough, tough issue like this.

"From what I can see, they (citizens' groups) have a lot of energy, good ideas, involvement and activity," Yack said.

VOTERS WOULD be well advised not to depend on the Legislature to do anything soon about correcting inequities in school finance, Kosteva and Geake said.

"I have become increasingly pessimistic about the state's ability to solve the finance (problems) the state of Michigan has," Kosteva said. "I think it's either going to take some sort of court action or strong, courageous leadership. I emphasize courageous because you cannot change a system of winners and losers without creating new winners and losers.

"It will take that kind of courageous leadership to be able to convince those areas of the state and those school districts who have to begin to share some of their property tax wealth for the benefit of all residents that reforms are needed.

School districts are being penalized because of an antiquated school aid formula, Kosteva said.

"Why should a kid's public education be dependent upon which side of a boundary a business happens to locate on?"

"I don't hold out much hope for a massive revision of school finance," Geake said. "If it did take place, it would not be likely to help high SEV (state equalized valuation) districts like Plymouth.

"Plymouth now spends less money per pupil than districts like Detroit that are largely seen as unsuccessful schoool systems," Geake said. "People need to be aware that if they don't adequately fund their school system, we could end up not having a satisfactory educational system for our children here."

REALTORS ARE changing their tune about Plymouth-Canton schools, Graper said.

"The school system has a definite effect upon the value of properties in this community. I haven't heard that property values haven't been reached, but I have heard realtors speak to the point," Graper said.

"People no longer are saying the Plymouth-Canton school system is really outstanding and that they can promote it as well as they once could. I think a lot of it has to do with the fact that we're not putting the dollars behind the students."

THUS FAR, developers doing business in Canton are pleased with the schools, said Yack, a Plymouth-Canton school board member from 1974-85.

"The development community is very tuned into what school district

Clergy knocks CBE stance

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

Never have clergy from churches in the Plymouth-Canton community joined together to take a position on an issue.

Not until Citizens for Better Education came along, that is.

CBE, a group of Christian conservatives, objects to showing R-rated movies in schools and to teaching materials concerning witchcraft, Satanism and the occult. CBE has elected one school board member and is supporting a candidate in the upcoming election.

"We don't view ourselves as CBE bashers. Our concern was that we saw things happening that were fragmenting our community," said Rev. William Myers, pastor of Faith Community Moravian Church in Canton. "We were concerned about issues that would polarize our community."

3 incumbents are running for city commission

By Doug Funke
staff writer

Three of the four Plymouth city commissioners whose terms expire this year have so far taken out nominating petitions to remain in office.

R. Jack Kenyon, who was appointed last September to finish the term of William L. Robinson, has returned his petition to city hall and has been certified as a candidate.

Mayor Karl Gansler II and Robert Jones, elected to four-year terms in 1985, are circulating petitions.

James M. Jabara, a property manager and developer elected to a two-year term in 1987, said he intends to seek re-election. But he hadn't acquired petitions as of noon Tuesday.

Kenyon, 63, is a retired Ford Motor Co. executive. He was elected to a two-year term on the city commission in 1979 and re-elected to a four-year term in 1981.

Kenyon resigned his commission seat two months before his term was to expire in 1985 to serve as a library board trustee. City charter prevented Kenyon from seeking a third consecutive term to the commission in '85.

Kenyon was appointed to finish Robinson's term when health concerns prompted Robinson to resign last year.

Kenyon was unavailable for comment earlier this week.

Several other candidates with interesting backgrounds have taken out petitions for the commission. They are:

- Jerry Vorva, a student, real estate agent and former city police officer who was fired last year. Vorva, who is appealing the discharge, has filed his nominating petition and has been certified as a candidate.
- W. Edward Wendover, editor and publisher of The Community Crier.
- Jean L. Morrow, a retired industrial engineer who now works part time for a medical clinic. Morrow, who regularly attends commission meetings, was the first to return his petitions and be certified as a candidate.
- John F. Vos III, a lawyer, who has been active in several community service organizations.

If nine or more candidates file for commission, a primary election to narrow the field to eight will be conducted Tuesday, Aug. 8. If fewer than nine file, all will advance to the general election Tuesday, Nov. 7.

The three top vote-getters in November will win four-year terms, the fourth best finisher will receive a two-year term.

Nominating petitions are still available at city hall, 201 S. Main. Candidates must obtain the signatures of at least 25 registered voters but not more than 50 and return their petitions by Tuesday, June 20. There is no filing fee.

Candidates, themselves, must be registered voters.

The commission, which generally meets twice a month, approves the city budget and local ordinances, sets the city tax rate, decides rezoning (land use) requests and sets general municipal policy.

The commission also hires the city manager, the chief administrative officer for the city, and the city attorney.

Work crews to cut hazard of 'Death Train'

By Tom Henderson
staff writer

The "Death Train" should become less hazardous this fall with the opening of a state-run facility to teach emergency workers how to clean up chemical spills.

The so-called Death Train is a 70-car train that travels between Texas and Midland, loaded with chemicals used in the manufacture of plastic products.

The train, which travels through a corner of Westland each week, derailed near Midland in April, forcing the temporary evacuation of residents.

In the April accident, firefighters didn't learn for eight hours that toxic materials were leaking.

Firefighters didn't learn for eight hours that toxic materials were leaking from one of the cars.

Chemical, trucking and railroad companies will donate the $300,000 it will take to build and equip the center, which will be located in a state government complex southeast of Lansing and which will be run by the State Police.

THE COST of maintaining and staffing the facility will come through training fees charged for each participant. Private-industry workers as well as firefighters, police officers, and other municipal workers will be eligible to attend the school.

State Rep. James Kosteva, D-Canton, said that legislation is in the works that would require trucks and trains carrying hazardous materials to include a placard describing their contents and an 800, 24-hour number for emergency crews seeking information about cargoes.

Kosteva chairs the Rail Safety Subcommittee, which held hearings last summer on the issue of possible chemical spills during derailments.

Part of the committee's findings was that better training was needed.

"We want to make sure that the first respondents on the site have the capability to know what to do," said Kosteva.

KOSTEVA SAID that industry officials hope to raise the $300,000 within 60 days, and that the center should be open by the end of the year.

He said the center should be able to train about 350 persons a year.

He said legislation requiring the placards and 800 number is in the draft stage and will not be ready by the time the Legislature breaks in the next few weeks for summer vacation.

Clergy gathers, knocks CBE stance

Myers, clergy from other area churches and Major Robert Geddis of the Salvation Army issued a statement last week acknowledging CBE's rights and addressing their concerns.

The letter read in part: "While it is certainly true that not all materials belong in the classroom, we believe our school system has more than adequate processes to safeguard the moral and ethical fiber of our community. Moreover we deplore any vigilante mentality which would lead our community on witch hunts and book burnings.

"Our school system has been criticized for promoting Satanism and witchcraft. We find no validity in such charges.

"We are deeply concerned about those who would establish a parochial system within our community schools with seeming insensitivity and callous disregard for the rights of any religious minority.

"CBE has frequently expressed its displeasure with the school board for its failure to respond to its concerns and charges. After reviewing the list of complaints which CBE has filed, we are of the opinion that the school board has listened carefully to CBE and has in some instances reviewed and changed its practices and policies.

"As clergy in the Plymouthy-Canton community we are not interested in raising sheltered children. We do want them to be exposed to different ideas and thoughts. We would like them to learn to think both independently and responsibly."

The letter was signed by representatives of churches, including Geneva Presbyterian, First Presbyterian, Our Lady of Good Counsel, St. Kenneth, St. John Neumann, St. Thomas A Becket, St. John's Episcopal, Cherry Hill United Methodist, Faith United Methodist and First United Methodist.

"I don't believe legislative legalism can become a substitute for personal discipline," said Rev. John Grenfell of the First United Methodist Church.

For our schools "to try and write policies or laws is counterproductive to development of the human being," Grenfell said.

Rev. Kenneth Gruebel said the group plans "to continue to offer ourselves as a resource. We've never really done that, but we'd like to offer our expertise to teachers, parents and the school board if it can be helpful in bringing us together as a community.

"These issues aren't going to go away just because the election is going to happen June 12. These issues are going to continue. Perhaps one way they can be resolved is to communicate."

DIANE DASKALAKIS, CBE chairwoman, said communication with the church leaders would be more than welcome.

"None of those ministers even contacted us before writing their letter. That was very discouraging to us. That was strange from our point of view. We had no idea whatsoever that there were any ministers that were not in agreement with us."

Daskalakis declined to name five ministers she said are supportive of CBE's views.

"I think you will find these pastors are quietly and amongst themselves in agreement with us. It's hard to get rallied in defense at this date. They have to have time to research these materials."

Several ministers have given sermons denouncing censorship and supporting family involvement in education.

St. Michael's Lutheran Church in Canton is staging an information night entitled "Taxes, Tolerance and Turmoil." at 7 p.m. Wednesday, June 7. A school board member and a CBE representative will "share their views in a non-confrontational manner," according to an item in Sunday's parish Sunday bulletin.

Elected officials back school millages

their property is located in. The first question asked is, 'What school district is served by that piece of property?' Without reservation, when they hear Plymouth-Canton schols, they are very happy. Quality developers want to be in quality districts."

Yack, who is supporting incumbent David Artley in the school board race, stressed the need for better communication between school administration and the community.

"They just have to be more responsive than they have been. In this case, it would be wise for school officials to reach out to as many of these people (working for the millage) as possible — to keep them involved and learn from them. Probably a lot of fresh ideas have come forward, not just to pass the millage, but to provide better programs and better service.

"USUALLY WHAT comes out of efforts like this are lessons about what we should be doing, but aren't.

"In reality, the schools may not be delivering the service people really are interested in," said Yack, a former teacher.

"The only way you know that is by seeking out people's points of view. That means having an ongoing communications program. But you have to want to communicate.

"When I was on the board, we were coming out of a real difficult employee conflict. We made a commitment that we were going to make an effort to create better relationships between the parties, and that happened.

"In this situation, this board can commit itself to creating a better communication environment. And they can make it happen, no question. They have done it during the campaign. If they weren't committed, they wouldn't have 500,000 people doing jobs that normally just a few people would do."

Police arrest 5 on drunk driving charges

Plymouth Township police arrested five people for drunken driving during a three-day period from early last Friday morning through midafternoon Monday.

One of those motorists was involved in a rollover accident but was not seriously injured, police said.

Police arrested:

- A 22-year-old Ferndale man at 3:11 p.m. Monday on Ann Arbor Road near Haggerty. He was stopped for an equipment violation, a cracked windshield.
- A 30-year-old Livonia man at 2:50 a.m. Monday on Joy near Oakview. He was stopped for erratic driving.
- A 17-year-old Canton man at 1:28 a.m. Monday on Crabtree. He was pulled over for speeding.
- A 23-year-old Plymouth man at 2:28 a.m. Saturday after a rollover accident at Tennysin and Denice. The driver walked home and apparently wasn't seriously hurt, police reported.
- A 17-year-old Northville woman at 3:29 a.m. Friday on Northville Road near Five Mile. She was stopped for erratic driving.

ACADEMY BREAK-INS: Four vehicles were tampered with on Academy Drive between 10:30 p.m. Saturday and 11:30 a.m. Sunday.

Some of the vehicles were locked, others unlocked.

The total value of the property reported stolen was $655. That included two radar detectors, a pocket television set, 12 cassette tapes, fishing equipment and a set of keys.

The top of a convertible was ripped in one instance, resulting in damage estimated at $1,000.

BICYCLE FOUND: A blue girls bicycle, a Ross model in poor condition, was found Sunday at a house on Pinetree near Canton Center Road and turned over to township police.

POLE DAMAGED: A gas light pole in front of a house on Baywood was knocked over, bending nearby shrubs, between 1:30 a.m. and 7:50 a.m. Saturday. Damage was estimated at $400.

CACTUS STOLEN: A cactus plant valued at $25 was reported stolen between 9:30 p.m. Friday and 7 a.m. Saturday from Graye's Greenhouse on Lilley.

These are just some of the incidents recently reported by and to Plymouth police. Phone 453-3869 to contact township police and 453-8600 or 9-1-1 to reach city police.

Room to grow

Good Counsel planning parish offices, auditorium

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Big changes in the form of a parish hall, meeting rooms, office space and a chapel have been proposed at Our Lady of Good Counsel Catholic Church.

By Doug Funke
staff writer

Our Lady of Good Counsel Catholic Chusch, growing by leaps and bounds, wants to expand with a 7,200-square-foot parish hall and kitchen, a small auditorium, offices and meeting rooms and a chapel.

According to preliminary proposals, the improvements — two stories plus a basement — would be connected to the existing rectory, church and school.

Good Counsel, roughly bounded by Church, Penniman, Arthur and Williams streets, serves at least of 2,500 families in Plymouth and Canton.

Proposals unveiled to parishioners last week were well received, said Larry Sutherland, parish council president.

"We don't have enough facilities as it is," he said. "As you know, population is growing around here. A lot of homes are being built."

Nothing is final, Sutherland said.

"THESE ARE all very tentative," he said of drawings prepared by David Schaff, who is an architect. "We still have to hire an architect and get approval from the archdiocese.

"We're hoping to get started within a year," Sutherland said.

Nothing has been filed yet with the city of Plymouth engineering department, a spokesman said.

Schaff's proposal indicates:

- An auditorium 42-by-59 feet, two meeting rooms, an office for the music director and storage on the basement level.
- Seven offices, a conference room, a chapel and a parish commons on the first floor.
- A 106-by-67-foot parish hall capable of being divided into smaller rooms and a kitchen on the second floor.

Schaff projected construction costs at $2.5 million.

A couple of years ago, residential neighbors of Good Counsel were concerned about the church's intentions for expansion when the parish bought a house across Arthur.

Nothing ever came of it. The parish is renting the house.

SCHAFF SAID his proposal uses vacant land on the church's property without encroaching on the neighborhood.

Schaff said he's been working on expansion proposals with parish officials for about a year.

"I'd say they're probably a year away from construction," he said. "They have to go to the archdiocese."

Parish officials hope to meet with Cardinal Edmund Szoka and his advisers soon, said Jay Berman, spokesman for the archdiocese.

The Rev. Richard Perfetto, pastor of Good Counsel, failed to return several telephone calls to the Observer. Tony Derhake, chairman of the parish's facilities steering committee, declined comment.

Parishioners would pay for improvements through a loan deposit program maintained by the archdiocese, Berman said. "There is not a big pot of gold," he said.

Good Counsel, founded in 1920, is now the eighth-largest parish in the archdiocese in terms of members, Berman said.

The church pays no property taxes on buildings and land used for religious purposes.

Sparklers, soccer open Challenge Fest

By Diane Gale
staff writer

If you missed the fun and activities during Canton's Challenge Fest last weekend, don't fret. You still have a few days to get in on the action.

The festival runs through June 4.

One of the highlights of the 10-day community affair was the colorful fireworks Friday night. The 30-minute display cost $4,000 and attracted 3,000 spectators, not including those who watched the show from the comfort of their homes, said Mike Gouin, Canton recreation superintendent.

THE EVENT was compliments of Burda Brothers, a Canton wholesale fireworks distributor, Gouin said.

"Next year we'll probably double or triple that — based on the quality of the show," Gouin said. "Fireworks watchers said they had never seen a better local show than that."

And if you're a soccer fan, you had a chance to get your fill last weekend, when 368 games were played by 4,700 players on 226 teams during the 7th Annual Soccer Tournament.

Other than three emergency runs, for minor injuries, the games were a success, said Phil LaJoy, Canton soccer club chairman.

This is the first year of the Canton Challenge Fest, which sports the theme 'Family, Fitness and Fun.' It replaces the longstanding Canton Country Festival.

Gouin estimated that 15,000 people attended games played in fields throughout the township. Burger King donated more than $5,000 worth of food and pop for participants.

While the tournament is the biggest fund-raiser for the Canton Soccer Club, it's also good for area businesses.

"The tournament does help the hotel and restaurant business the most, and it does help some shopping, too," said Jim Glinski, Canton Chamber of Commerce president and an area dentist.

THE CASH flow from the games put $30,000 to $40,000 in the Canton Soccer Club fund, Gouin said. Money was raised from entry fees, raffles, concessions and souvenirs during the event that attracted teams from Michigan, Ohio, Indiana and Canada.

REMAINING EVENTS include:

- Used book sale, Friday, June 2, through Sunday, June 4, at the Canton Public Library.
- Junior Golf Tourney, 11 a.m. Sunday, June 4, at Fellows Creek Golf Course.
- Co-ed softball, Saturday, June 3, and Sunday, June 4, at Canton Softball Center.
- Fishing derby, 9 a.m to 5 p.m. Saturday, June 3, and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday, June 4, at the Canton Recreation Complex pond.
- Walk/run for literacy, 1-3 p.m. Sunday, June 4, at the Canton Public Library.
- Horseshoe tourney, 2 p.m. Sunday, June 4, at the Canton Recreation Complex.
- Youth fitness field day, Saturday, June 3, late afternoon at the Plymouth-Canton Centennial Education Park.
- Bike-a-thon, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, June 3, at First Baptist Church, Cherry Hill and Sheldon.
- Photo contest and exhibit. Photos will be on display at the Canton library during regular hours.
- Government bowl-off, 7 p.m. Friday, June 2, at the Super Bowl.
- Hole-in-one contest, May 27 through June 1, at Fellows Creek Golf Course. For $1, golfers get two shots at a hole-in-one.

Barbecue ignites store fire

The K mart in Plymouth Township was evacuated and closed for more than an hour Saturday evening when charcoal used in a barbecue promotion earlier in the day reignited in a trash compactor and filled a rear storage room with smoke.

Damage, estimated at $2,000, was confined to the storage room, said Fire Chief Larry Groth.

Firefighters arrived at the store on Ann Arbor Road at about 6:30 p.m. and remained there until about 8 p.m., Groth said. The store was evacuated at about 6:45 p.m. and reopened soon after firefighters left.

No injuries were reported, Groth said.

Some smoke filtered into the retail portion of the store, but most was confined to the rear storage area, the chief said.

Charcoals used in a barbecue promotion apparently smoldered and reignited in a container where they had been placed in the back storage area and in the trash compactor, Groth said.

Annual Run set for June 18

The Plymouth Community Family YMCA will sponsor its 10th Annual Run on Sunday, June 18, through the streets of downtown Plymouth. A one mile fun run/walk, a 5 kilometer run, and a 10 kilometer run will be held.

The pre-registration fee is $8 for the one mile and $10 for the 5K and 10K runs. Registration fees the morning of the race are $10 for the one mile and $12 for the 5K and 10K runs.

There are 14 age divisions both male and female. Plaques are awarded to the first, second and third place finishers overall in all three races, medals are awarded to the first, second and third place finishers in each age division of the 5K and 10K races.

Long sleeve T-shirts are included in the race fee. Refreshments are available to all runners at the finish line.

Registration the morning of the race begins at 7 a.m. The one-mile fun run/walk and the 5K run begin at 8 a.m. and the 10K run begins at 8:45 a.m.

Applications and run routes can be obtained by sending a stamped self-addressed envelop to: Plymouth YMCA Annual Run, P.O. Box 134, Plymouth 48170. If you have any questions, call Joanne McCarthy, or Debbie Glomski, at 453-2904.

Summer craft show this weekend

The city of Plymouth Parks and Recreation Department will sponsor its annual Summer Arts and Crafts Show 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday-Saturday, June 2-3, at the Plymouth Cultural Center. The show will feature more than 65 crafts people.

This is the fourth year that the Plymouth Recreation Department has run a summer show.

The following is a list of Plymouth-Canton crafters participating in this year's show: Anita Luceus, handstrung bead jewelry; Carolyn Huffer, bridal accessories; Lorry Boxberger, children's custom-made clothing; Diane Bradley, country Victorian; Irene Winek, stained glass; Mary George, teddy bears; Maria Burr, baskets and folk art; Aletta and Alvin Lottman, cross-stitch dolls and toy chests; Val Crilley, country cloth crafts; Liz Ryda and Marissa Wood, fashion T-shirts; Paula Mancini, fabric-covered photo albums; Vera Lorion, wood and fabric; Bill and Elaine Doughty, hardwood home accessories; Ruth Risdale, ceramics; Val Davis and Debra Jordan, folk art; and Sue Smith, spice wreaths.

For further information, call the Parks and Recreation Department at 455-6620.

Concert set Friday night

The Plymouth Centennial Educational Park bands will present their Finale Concert 8 p.m. Friday, June 2, in the Plymouth-Salem Auditorium.

Four bands, under the direction of Jim Griffith, will present a variety of music.

The finale number will feature the combined Symphony, Concert and Varsity bands in the John Philip Sousa march, "The Stars and Stripes Forever."

There is no admission charge for the concert. A reception will immediately follow the performance in the Salem cafeteria.

Arch support?

Sign standing tall during zoning appeal

By Tom Henderson
staff writer

A zoning appeal that would allow an old pair of golden McDonald's arches to remain up in the air is up in the air.

The old arches continue to stand at the new McDonald's at Ford and Radcliff on the Westland-Garden City border.

Erected in 1968, they announced the presence of Big Macs and hot fries to a generation of residents who patronized the original McDonald's on that site, which was razed in April to make way for a new and larger building.

But the new building meant the old sign violated three building codes, requiring Westland zoning board of appeals approval to be retainéd.

McDonald's is willing to donate the old sign to the Westland Historical Commission, whose chairman says the commission won't be able to accept the sign for at least a year.

McDonald's needs three zoning variances in the meantime for the sign to be legal.

The zoning board of appeals was scheduled to vote on the requested variances May 17, but the vote was postponed to June 21 after attorneys for the zoning board and McDonald's admitted they had yet to agree on language involving the donation.

"At one point, there was no time limit. McDonald's could keep the sign up 10 years if they wanted, and we didn't think that was acceptable," said Golden.

CURRENT ZONING limits outdoor signs to 63 square feet, which is less than a third of the 193 square feet in the current sign. It is also 24 feet high, twice the legal limit, and is only two feet back from the front property line and 11 back from the side line, instead of the required 15 feet.

'What we're proposing is they leave the sign in place, and when we have a place available at the museum, we'd move it.'

—Thomas Brown
Westland Historical Commission

Golden said the board would prefer that McDonald's donate the sign and have a replacement for it within six months, because that is the limit for zoning variances. If the sign can't be moved in three months, three more variance must be approved.

But council member Thomas Brown, historical commission chairman, said it is unlikely the commission will be ready to accept the sign for at least a year.

The commission owns five acres of land behind its museum at 857 N. Wayne Road, but because of the sign's size and shape, "it's pretty hard to find a place for it," said Brown.

"What we're proposing is they leave the sign in place, and when we have a place available at the museum, we'd move it."

Teen thwarts kidnap attempt

By Bill Casper
staff writer

Redford police suspect that a somewhat complex scheme was devised to abduct a 15-year-old girl from a Redford Township high school.

The attempted abduction went awry May 15 when the sophomore at Redford Union High refused a ride from two strange men, township police officer Keith Anderson said.

The police probe of the incident has not produced any leads on the suspects and investigators are asking for public assistance to help them find the men involved.

INVESTIGATORS ARE looking for a red or orange-colored Chevrolet Monte Carlo, of 1970s vintage, with a large dent in the left front fender, Anderson said.

The driver is described as a white man in his mid-20s, about 5-feet-10-inches tall, with brownish-red, shoulder-length hair, Anderson said. He wore a black and gray-colored jean jacket, Anderson said.

A description of the passenger was not obtained.

Anyone who has information about the car or the driver should call Redford Police at 537-2425 during the day Monday through Friday or 537-3030 any time, Anderson said.

A high school counselor told police that he received a call at about 1 p.m. or shortly after from an unidentified man, who said the girl's grandmother was in the hospital, Anderson said.

The man requested she be dismissed from class so her father could pick her up in front of the school and take her to the hospital, Anderson said.

The counselor got the girl dismissed from class and told the girl the reason, Anderson said.

She went to wait in front of the school and the men, whom she did not know, stopped their car near her, Anderson said.

THE DRIVER asked the girl's name to confirm she was waiting for a ride to the hospital, then he told her that her father was in the hospital and "we're here to take you" to him, Anderson said.

11 candidates vie for 2 seats on S'craft board

There is not one contested Schoolcraft College race this year, but two.

Voters will choose one candidate from the six running for a four-year seat on the college board of trustees.

They will also choose three of the five candidates running for a six-year term on the board.

Candidates for the four-year seat include: Ronaele Bowman, Richard Hayward, Thaddeus McCotter, Patricia Sacha and M. Andrea Taylor, all of Livonia and Thomas Davis of Northville. Jeffrey Theodore of Canton Township will also appear on the ballot though he has withdrawn from the race.

Candidates for the six-year seat include: Harry Greenleaf, Jack Kirksey and Lawrence Whitmarsh, all of Livonia, Mary Breen of Plymouth Township and David Tatman of Plymouth. Breen, Greenleaf and Kirksey are incumbents.

The total number of candidates is among the largest in the college's 28-year history.

Candidates in each race were asked to respond to an Observer Newspapers questionnaire. Their responses appear here and on pages 7, 9 and 11.

Voters in the Livonia, Clarenceville, Garden City, Plymouth-Canton and Northville public school districts are eligible to vote in the Schoolcraft election.

The college board meets monthly to determine college policy.

Schoolcraft, a two-year community college, maintains a main campus at 18600 Haggerty, Livonia. It also maintains Schoolcraft College-Radcliff, 1751 Radcliff, Garden City. Additional college classes are held within the Plymouth-Canton schools.

Ronaele Bowman, 46, is a Livonia resident. She trains youth assistance volunteers for the Michigan Training and Resource Center, Northville. Her community activities include Livonia Youth Assistance, Friends of the Homeless and Homes for Black Children, where she serves on the board of directors. She holds a bachelor's in liberal arts, with a major in sociology, from Marquette University, Milwaukee.

1. Schoolcraft College tuition has risen in each of the past three years. Is it fair to continue "soaking the students" as critics have charged? If tuition isn't raised, what other options would you prefer should the college need additional money?

With the last tuition increase, it now costs a Schoolcraft student $104 per class (based on a three credit class). Since one of the goals of a community college is to provide affordable education, other options must be explored rather than raising tuition. Leasing of land to private developers and using the revenue from that land for general fund expenses, maintenance and property improvements is an option. Another option is contracting with industry on a major scale; employers are paying tremendous fees to have their employees trained and retrained to meet their current needs. The college could also offer more advanced workshops and seminars to industry and to the community.

2. Schoolcraft has embarked upon a program of letting a private developer build office buildings on a portion of college-owned land, though a group of nearby Livonia residents said the offices represent "over-development." Is this project necessary?

Land use for commercial or office development is a very delicate and unpopular issue, particularly if you live in the area and are inconvenienced by traffic problems which often result. However, the development represents an opportunity for the college to realize millions of dollars in revenue to develop programs to raise the standards of the college and it provides funds to maintain the physical plant of the college. If the college is to accomplish its goals of excellence in the community without burdening the students or taxpayers, then it is a necessary project.

3. What, in your opinion, should be the role of Schoolcraft College in the 1990s? Given a choice of only one, which should be given the top financing priority: classes preparing students for the work place, classes preparing students for advancement to four-year colleges and universities or adult education classes? Why would you give top priority to that area?

To choose a top financing priority, where all three are necessary to a progressive community college, is difficult. With my strong liberal arts background, I have to advocate preparing students for advancement to four year colleges and offering more advanced liberal arts courses in the future. On the other hand, I heard Philip Power speak at a recent workshop and he emphasized the need for preparing students for the work place. Many automotive industries are cutting back on unskilled labor and looking for technically skilled employees. At the present time, 42 percent of Schoolcraft graduates are between 22-34, indicating they have been in the job market for a while and are looking for improvement of skills. A community college serves the needs of many, and one area cannot receive priority without weakening the other.

Thomas Davis, 50, lives in Northville Township. He is a Ford Motor Co. finance supervisor and was a member of the Livonia Board of Education from 1974-78. He holds a bachelor's in finance from the University of Detroit. Davis has coordinated several area campaigns, including Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara's last two Livonia mayoral campaigns.

1. Schoolcraft College tuition has risen in each of the past three years. Is it fair to continue "soaking the students" as critics have charged? If tuition isn't raised, what other options would you prefer should the college need additional money?

The primary option to avoid a tuition increase would be to obtain an increase in state aid. State aid has declined from 41 percent of the budget in 1979 to less than 30 percent for the 1989-90 fiscal year. Every effort should be made to reduce cost before raising tuition.

2. Schoolcraft has embarked upon a program of letting a private developer build office buildings on a portion of college-owned land, though a group of nearby Livonia residents said the offices represent "over-development." Is this project necessary?

The concept of the project has merit because it will result in increased tax revenue to the city of Livonia and rental income to Schoolcraft College. The income to Schoolcraft will offset some increased costs and help to keep tuition and property taxes lower. A traffic study must be conducted to determine if the proposal is acceptable to the community before the decision is made.

3. What, in your opinion, should be the role of Schoolcraft College in the 1990s? Given a choice of only one, which should be given the top financing priority: classes preparing students for the work place, classes preparing students for advancement to four-year colleges and universities or adult education classes? Why would you give top priority to that area?

Top priority should be preparing students for the work place. There is significant need in the community for educational opportunities that will prepare students to gain employment where the level of skill required is greater than what is provided by the high schools but does not require a four-year degree.

Richard Hayward, 60, is a Livonia resident. A self-employed steel industry consultant, he served on the Schoolcraft board from 1978-81. He is a member of the Livonia Economic Development Corp., Madonna College Business Advisory Council and has served on the Livonia Chamber of Commerce and Livonia Hockey Association Board. He was also active in St. Aidan Parish, Livonia. He holds a bachelor's in business administration from Madonna and has received the college's distinguished alumni award.

1. Schoolcraft College tuition has risen in each of the past three years. Is it fair to continue "soaking the students" as critics have charged? If tuition isn't raised, what other options would you prefer should the college need additional money?

I don't feel "soaking the students" is a proper description of the policies of Schoolcraft College. There is no question that tuition has risen at all institutions of higher learning and it is becoming a problem for many students. The only other options are millages and state funds. Additional state funds seem to be the only answer other than local taxes. fiscal restraint will have to be exercised if tuition is to be kept down.

2. Schoolcraft has embarked upon a program of letting a private developer build office buildings on a portion of college-owned land, though a group of nearby Livonia residents said the offices represent "over-development". Is this project necessary?

Necessary is not the word to describe the project. If the project fits in with the overall planning of the community, allows for maintaining the land for the college's future use and, at the same time, generates income for the college and tax dollars for the city, it seems that it would be a good idea.

3. What, in your opinion, should be the role of Schoolcraft College in the 1990s? Given a choice of only one, which should be given the top financing priority: classes preparing students for the work place, classes preparing students for advancement to four-year colleges and universities or adult education classes? Why would you give top priority to that area?

The role of Schoolcraft College in the 1990s would be to continue the forward thinking which has allowed it to meet the changing needs of the community. I don't believe that you can give top financing priority to any one area without knowing the needs that exist in that area due to the constantly changing aspects of our society.

Thaddeus McCotter, 23, is a Livonia resident. He is a law student at the University of Detroit and recipient of the U-D law school's Jerome P. Cavanaugh Scholarship. McCotter is also a law clerk at the Livonia firm of Brashear, Tangora and Spence. He has been active in recent Livonia-area GOP campaigns. He is a member of the Schoolcraft College Foundation, the Livonia Symphony League, the Livonia Cultural League and the Livonia Jaycees. Lead guitarist and singer for a rock band, McCotter has had six of his compositions copyrighted.

Thaddeus McCotter

1. Schoolcraft College tuition has risen in each of the past three years. Is it fair to continue "soaking the students" as critics have charged? If tuition isn't raised, what other options would you prefer should the college need additional money?

In the past 12 years, state aid to Schoolcraft has fallen 12 percent. Tuition has risen 4 percent and millage revenue 17 percent to cover the decrease. While this doesn't constitute "soaking the students," I know from personal experience that every tuition increase is another obstacle to a student's education. Schoolcraft must find new revenue sources before the cost of education becomes prohibitive. Schoolcraft must work with local leaders to acquire more state aid and expand joint educational undertakings with business to raise new revenue and spread fixed costs. Also, Schoolcraft must work closely with its alumni association and foundation to increase endowments.

2. Schoolcraft has embarked upon a program of letting a private developer build office buildings on a portion of college-owned land, though a group of nearby Livonia residents said the offices represent "over-development." Is this project necessary?

The south end project seems a bit premature. I would prefer to see the impact that the north end development has upon Schoolcraft and upon tuition in particular. I would also like to see what impact alternative attempts at revenue procurement might have. Schoolcraft's leasing of public land is not a violation of the public trust if

● VOLUNTEERS NEEDED

Suburban West Community Center is the Community Mental Health Agency serving the Western Wayne County cities of Livonia, Northville and Plymouth, and the townships of Canton, Northville, Plymouth and Redford. It offers professional services that are financed through the Wayne County Mental Health Board to mentally ill adults who have been previously hospitalized. These services include outpatient care, crisis intervention, case management, partial day care (including vocational training) and Assertive Commmunity Treatment (in the client's home environment). The agency needs people from the service area to work with and serve on the volunteer board of directors. If you have a concern for the quality of care available in your community and would be willing to share your professional, business, legal, education or other talents, contact Suburban West Community Center, Redford Township, or call 937-9500 or 981-2665 and ask for Debbie Taylor.

● POOLS NEEDED

The Plymouth Community Family YMCA is looking for residents to donate use of a pool. The Y needs the pools for one to two hours a day during July and August to conduct programs. The classes are taught by certified instructors and pool owners donating their pool can get free lessons. For information, call Deborah Glomski at 453-2904.

● TINY TOTS

Tiny Tots Nursery School has a few openings for 3- or 4-year-olds. Two- or three-day-a-week classes are offered. Classes are held at the Plymouth Salvation Army. For information, call 453-5464.

Announcements for the community calendar should be submitted by noon Monday for the Thursday issue and by noon Thursday for the Monday issue. Bring in or mail announcements to the Observer, 489 S. Main, Plymouth 48170.

S'craft candidates address election issues

the revenue generated is used to ensure students quality, affordable and accessible education. The key questions are: will office buildings meet this standard, and will the market and political process support the development as proposed?

3. What, in your opinion, should be the role of Schoolcraft College in the 1990s? Given a choice of only one, which should be given the top financing priority: classes preparing students for the work place, classes preparing students for advancement to four-year colleges and universities or adult education classes? Why would you give top priority to that area?

While vocational and continuing education are integral parts of its mission, Schoolcraft's primary function is to offer students an education that enables them to achieve higher degrees. With spiraling university tuition and an increasingly competitive work force, an associate's degree from Schoolcraft must continue to provide the initial opportunity for future achievement. The ability to question and comprehend a complex and changing world is an eternal asset.

Patricia Sacha, 61, lives in Livonia. A retiree, she taught in the Detroit public schools and spent 20 years in supervisory positions with the Birmingham public schools, reassessing the district curriculum and creating programs for learning disabled students. She also served as a district media specialist. Sacha holds bachelor's and master's degrees in education from Wayne State University.

1. Schoolcraft College tuition has risen in each of the past three years. Is it fair to continue "soaking the students" as critics have charged? If tuition isn't raised, what other options would you prefer should the college need additional money?

Patricia Sacha

All costs have risen in the past three years and, as in everything else, schools do not run on love. I would favor getting the needed money from the state. We need to be actively involved in the state financial situation. We now receive only 29 percent support, down from 40 percent. The latest figures show "schools get money from two pots: $2.8 billion from the protected school aid fund (including the lottery) and only $540 million from the general fund." The total is down from 66 percent to less than 6 percent now. Taxpayers pour in billions to the state and receive very little in return for education.

2. Schoolcraft has embarked upon a program of letting a private developer build office buildings on a portion of college-owned land, though a group of nearby Livonia residents said the offices represent "over-development." Is this project necessary?

Presently, I am in favor of allowing Schoolcraft to receive money from Duke for leasing the south property. The council is checking the "need" for this project. With that appropriate check and assessment for the traffic situation, I feel that the new building would be a tremendous asset to Schoolcraft.

3. What, in your opinion, should be the role of Schoolcraft College in the 1990s? Given a choice of only one, which should be given the top financing priority: classes preparing students for the work place, classes preparing students for advancement to four-year colleges and universities or adult education classes? Why would you give top priority to that area?

I have tried to prioritize the Schoolcraft roles, but find I cannot. My philosophy is to continue the fine programs which are now in existence, and with careful study of all factors involved and a great deal of preplanning, make decisions which would be in keeping philosophically and budgetarily.

M. Andrea Taylor, 43, is a Livonia resident. A food service manager for the Plymouth-Canton Schools, she also operates Andy's Cakes and Catering, a Livonia-based catering company. This month, she received an associate's degree in culinary management at Schoolcraft. Taylor plans to continue her education, working toward a degree in hotel and restaurant management.

1. Schoolcraft College tuition has risen in each of the past three years. Is it fair to continue "soaking the students" as critics have charged? If tuition isn't raised, what other options would you prefer should the college need additional money?

I feel the funds needed to keep up the high educational quality of the college is most important. I look at tuition as an investment in one's future. If raising tuition is what is prescribed by the financial advisers of the college, then it should be considered a necessity. A possible alternative might be to evaluate the many programs and eliminate those that are not cost-effective. To articulate with other colleges and high schools in the area so that Schoolcraft does not offer courses such as typewriting, drafting and computer skills that may be redundant.

2. Schoolcraft has embarked upon a program of letting a private developer build office buildings on a portion of college-owned land, though a group of nearby Livonia residents said the offices represent "over-development." Is this project necessary?

In 1961, the founders of Schoolcraft College had the good sense to acquire 183 acres for the college. I believe in progress as a rule, and I feel that leasing the property is a wise decision. The financial rewards, along with assisting in the growth of our community, are beneficial to the college. The funds generated by the leasing provide financing that allows for such cultural additions to the college as the Performing Arts Theater.

3. What, in your opinion, should be the role of Schoolcraft College in the 1990s? Given a choice of only one, which should be given the top financing priority: classes preparing students for the work place, classes preparing students for advancement to four-year colleges and universities or adult education classes? Why would you give top priority to that area?

When Schoolcraft College was first founded, its main objective was to serve its community as an educational, cultural and recreational center and to provide an environment conducive to the pursuit of quality education, which condensed simply means to prepare a student for life. In my recent experience, as a student in a two-year vocational program at Schoolcraft, my top priority was to prepare for the work force, and I found that the two years spent in the food management curriculum has given me the opportunity to develop my potential, which includes continuing my education at a four-year college. It has also encouraged me to become a candidate in the race for a seat on the board of trustees of this college. Therefore, I see for the 1990s the continuation of the original objective to insure its future success.

Mary Breen, 55, lives in Plymouth Township. A retiree, she taught in the Wayne-Westland and Dearborn schools and was assistant principal of Livonia Stevenson High School. She was first elected to the board in 1983 and was leading vote-getter in that year's race. Breen holds a bachelor's degree in business education from Wayne State University and a master's degree in administration from Eastern Michigan.

1. Schoolcraft College tuition has risen in each of the past three years. Is it fair to continue "soaking the students" as critics have charged? If tuition isn't raised, what other options would you prefer should the college need additional money?

Schoolcraft College makes a great effort to provide quality education for the tuition that is paid. Because state aid has decreased over the past 10 years, tuition increases were the sole option. As my voting record shows, I favor first exploring all other options before considering the necessity of a tuition increase.

2. Schoolcraft has embarked upon a program of letting a private developer build office buildings on a portion of college-owned land, though a group of nearby Livonia residents said the offices represent "over-development." Is this project necessary?

The college is proposing a reorganization of facilities to better serve our students, including a planned Student Services Building. All funding alternatives, including state support and leasing of land, are being reviewed. We should work closely with the city and college officials to ensure that any projects undertaken are beneficial to both the surrounding community and the college.

3. What, in your opinion, should be the role of Schoolcraft College in the 1990s? Given a choice of only one, which should be given the top financing priority: classes preparing students for the work place, classes preparing students for advancement to four-year colleges and universities or adult education classes? Why would you give top priority to that area?

I believe that students and their future employers deserve the guarantee that the education received at Schoolcraft College will provide the tools and skills needed to ensure success in the work environment. A balanced education is the goal of the college, i.e. a combination of technical and liberal arts skills. the program chosen by the student will ideally present he right "mix." I believe that strong technical programs combined with appropriate liberal arts curricula represent the balance that students and employers seek.

Harry Greenleaf, 52, is a Livonia resident. He was first elected to the board in 1977 and is currently board vice chairman. He is a management supervisor with Ford Motor Co., Dearborn. A member of Michigan Republican state committee, he is also active in local party activities. He is also active in Newburg United Methodist Church and has taught at Henry Ford Community College, Dearborn. Greenleaf holds a bachelor's in engineering and management from Rensselear Polytechnic Institute, Troy, N.Y.

1. Schoolcraft College tuition has risen in each of the past three years. Is it fair to continue "soaking the students" as critics have charged? If tuition isn't raised, what other options would you prefer should the college need additional money?

The historic funding strategy of approximately one-third from local millage, one-third from state appropriations and one-third from tuition remains sound strategy. The contribution of tuition to the college's income has continued to average below 30 percent of the total budget. Tuition should only be raised when, and by the amound necessitated, by controlled costs and program needs. However, tuition rates that rise gradually as needs dictate provide more stability and sustained quality levels than large tuition increases engendered periodically by built-up institutional pressures. State appropriations continue to lag behind rising operational needs, and show little promise for substantial improvement in the future. Local millage already provides approximately 40 percent of our operating budget.

SC hopefuls take stands on tuition rates, land use

2. Schoolcraft has embarked upon a program of letting a private developer build office buildings on a portion of college-owned land, though a group of nearby Livonia residents said the offices represent "over-development". Is this project necessary?

Development of this asset is important to long range vitality of the college. Capital investment funds from the state level have been exceedingly limited as other priorities such as prison construction have risen. The Seven Mile Crossing project is already generating funds to the college which have been designated for endowment and capital improvement. The Six Mile development would be attractive and economically beneficial to our communities. Ultimately, endowment fund income can contribute substantively to the college's operating budget.

3. What, in your opinion, should be the role of Schoolcraft College in the 1990s? Given a choice of only one, which should be given the top financing priority: classes preparing students for the work place, classes preparing students for advancement to four-year colleges and universities or adult education classes? Why would you give top priority to that area?

As a trustee, I have worked to create, at Schoolcraft, a community of opportunity where all can advance their knowledge and skills in their areas of ability and interest. In the 1990s, Schoolcraft should continue to offer a diverse range of programming. The recent small increase in the number of transfer students should be encouraged through the maintenance of quality instruction, specific articulation agreements, structures that facilitate transfers. Given a choice of only one, top financing should go toward preparing students for the work place, especially skills updating, re-education and retraining that is vital to our business and industry.

Jack Kirksey, 60, lives in Livonia. He was appointed to the board in January 1988. He is director of community education for Livonia Public Schools. A state House member from 1977-84, he was also a 1987 Livonia mayoral candidate. He serves on the board of directors of Livonia Chamber of Commerce, Livonia Family Y, Michigan Human Services and Schoolcraft College Foundation and is a lieutenant colonel in the U.S. Air Force reserves. Kirksey holds holds bachelor's, master's and education specialist degrees from Wayne State University.

1. Schoolcraft College tuition has risen in each of the past three years. Is it fair to continue "soaking the students" as critics have charged? If tuition isn't raised, what other options would you prefer should the college need additional money?

I voted against the recent increase in student tuition. In this instance, I felt it was an excessive escalation of the student fees. The three primary college revenue sources are: taxes, student fees and state aid. Even after adjusting millage rates downward (required by truth-in-taxation and the Headlee provisions) the college will realize approximately an 8 percent increase in revenue over the previous school year. This additional revenue can be used to meet much of the increasing financial needs of the college.

2. Schoolcraft has embarked upon a program of letting a private developer build office buildings on a portion of college-owned land, though a group of nearby Livonia residents said the offices represent "over-development." Is this project necessary?

In responding to the question, if we focus on the word "necessary," very few of the developments in Livonia would meet that criteria. The developments in general, however, do meet a need for our ever-expanding economy. I have a great deal of respect for the feelings of the residents who lie in this section of Livonia and are concerned with increasing traffic and other related problems. This proposed project, however, will provide revenue to the college in the future to help meet an essential public need. This is the important difference in this project versus the others that have been approved.

3. What, in your opinion, should be the role of Schoolcraft College in the 1990s? Given a choice of only one, which should be given the top financing priority: classes preparing students for the work place, classes preparing students for advancement to four-year colleges and universities or adult education classes? Why would you give top priority to that area?

This is a very difficult question since you are asking to establish a single priority for three very important aspects of education. To respond to the question, I would give priority to classes preparing students for advancement to four-year colleges and universities. Although Schoolcraft College has a well-deserved excellent reputation in all facets of educational offerings, preparing an individual for the work place and adult education offerings are available not only at Schoolcraft but at a number of other public and private educational sources in this area.

David Tatman, 31, is a Plymouth resident. He is a superintendent with GM Hydra-Matic, Ypsilanti. He is active with Washtenaw United Way, the Boy Scouts of America, Washtenaw Council, and First United Methodist Church of Plymouth. 1. Schoolcraft College tuition has risen in each of the past three years. Is it fair to continue "soaking the students" as critics have charged? If tuition isn't raised, what other options would you prefer should the college need additional money?

I am not unilaterally or unequivocally opposed to tuition increases. However, they must be considered only after all revenue sources have been exhausted and all unnecessary expenditures eliminated. Creative revenue sourcing is a district possibility here, especially considering the options of developing college real estate privately and the possibility of some type of "joint venture" in an academic sense with local industries.

Candidate outlines his vision for SC in the 1990s

Lawrence W. Whitmarsh

1. Schoolcraft College tuition has risen in each of the past three years. Is it fair to continue "soaking the students" as critics have charged? If tuition isn't raised, what other options would you prefer should the college need additional money?

In 1975, when I was attending Schoolcraft, tuition was $11 per credit hour. I felt it was high then, but the bottom line is that quality education, as well as other things in our lives, rises in cost. The decision to raise tuition or ask for a millage increase has to be made when it comes up. If, in fact, an increase is necessary, a team made up of community members, students, trustees and representatives from the college should be established to find out the facts and review alternative resources.

2. Schoolcraft has embarked upon a program of letting a private developer build office buildings on a portion of college-owned land, though a group of nearby Livonia residents said the offices represent "over-development." Is this project necessary?

As a trustee, I would stress that we listen to the voice of the customer. Schoolcraft College is supported by many customers, such as the community, through taxes, students through tuition and businesses who have training needs. We need to survey these groups and get their input into the development of this land so when completed all will feel confident the right decision was made. This land is a tremendous and valuable resource which could be utilized to hold down tuition costs for years to come.

3. What, in your opinion, should be the role of Schoolcraft College in the 1990s? Given a choice of only one, which should be given the top financing priority: classes preparing students for the work place, classes preparing students for advancement to four-year colleges and universities or adult education classes? Why would you give top priority to that area?

The role of Schoolcraft College in the 1990s must be to keep abreast of the changes in business and industry and constantly assess what the college offers, to meet the ever changing needs, we must enhance the liaison between industry, business and the college so that the school can build programs useful to students entering these sectors. Provided Schoolcraft meets these needs, business and industry will identify with the school by taking advantage of the services provided by the college. The need in today's society is not what program receives financing, but rather how quickly the college can react to change.

Tatman: SC will benefit from land-lease policy

Under the current vision for Schoolcraft's future, and based on demographic data with respect to anticipated student population, this is a fiscally responsible decision. I really don't think the "necessity" of additional office space in the Livonia area is at issue here. Presumably, the private developer perceived the need, was willing to provide funding and capital improvements to meet that need and is wholly responsible for the assumption of the risk entailed in such a venture. Schoolcraft College stands only to benefit from this relationship.

3. What, in your opinion, should be the role of Schoolcraft College in the 1990s? Given a choice of only one, which should be given the top financing priority: classes preparing students for the work place, classes preparing students for advancement to four-year colleges and universities or adult education classes? Why would you give top priority to that area?

Very clearly, the role of a good community college is three fold: preparation of students for the work place, preparation of students who will advance to a four-year institution and adult education. It is my opinion that Schoolcraft does a great job in the latter two areas, therefore, undoubtedly, my focus as a top financing priority in the 1990s would be a curriculum preparing students to assume responsible roles in today's work environment, particularly in the manufacturing sector. I have a very firm belief that higher education is the cornerstone to restoring America's worldwide competitiveness.

David Artley is our choice

WE FEEL LIKE WE'RE caught between the devil and the deep blue sea when looking at the seven candidates running for the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education in the June 12 election.

On one side we have Robert Anderson, backed by the Citizens for Better Education, and on the other, six candidates, any one of whom would do a good job if elected to the four-year term.

Citizens for Better Education claims that devil worship is encouraged by the school district and that R-rated movies are shown to students. The district has rejected those charges.

We also find it interesting that CBE has backed down from its former position against the 4-mill increase and the 8-mill renewal, which also on the June ballot.

However, it is CBE's position on education that we see as dangerous. It's one we don't want to see on the school board.

We couldn't even think of endorsing Anderson. When quizzed by staff members of the Plymouth and Canton Observer newspapers, Anderson talked about kids learning facts and not values in school.

Facts are fine, but they are usually quickly forgotten and can usually be looked up when needed. The important thing for students to learn is how to think.

And we don't think that CBE candidates for school board are going to encourage that.

When it comes to the other candidates, we're impressed by most of their ideas. All seem to be qualified, and selecting one to endorse during any other year would be tough.

But there's the political situation. If Anderson were to be elected, he would join Barbara Graham, a CBE-backed school board member, on the board.

There's a chance of that. In the seven-person school board race, CBE has clout. By voting en masse, it can put a candidate in office.

We don't want to see that.

So, we are endorsing David Artley, even though we have some concerns about him and the current board.

He's competent, knows education issues, gets out in the community and he can win.

One complaint lodged against the board is that it needs to communicate better. Artley agreed when questioned by the Observer.

We've often heard that political bodies need to better communicate, and have often wondered what that means, but in the case of the school board, it means the board should be more responsive to the public. That position was echoed by Artley's challengers.

During our interview with Artley, he talked about dealing with the public, and said that in addressing citizens' concerns at board meetings, the board follows district policy.

That's true. Citizens concerned about items not on the agenda are given three minutes to address the board.

Often, those citizens are upset. They're making their first contact with the board after becoming frustrated elsewhere trying to resolve their problem. Often, trustees and administrators give the person no immediate response. They go on to the next item. No wonder the board comes off as unconcerned and uncaring.

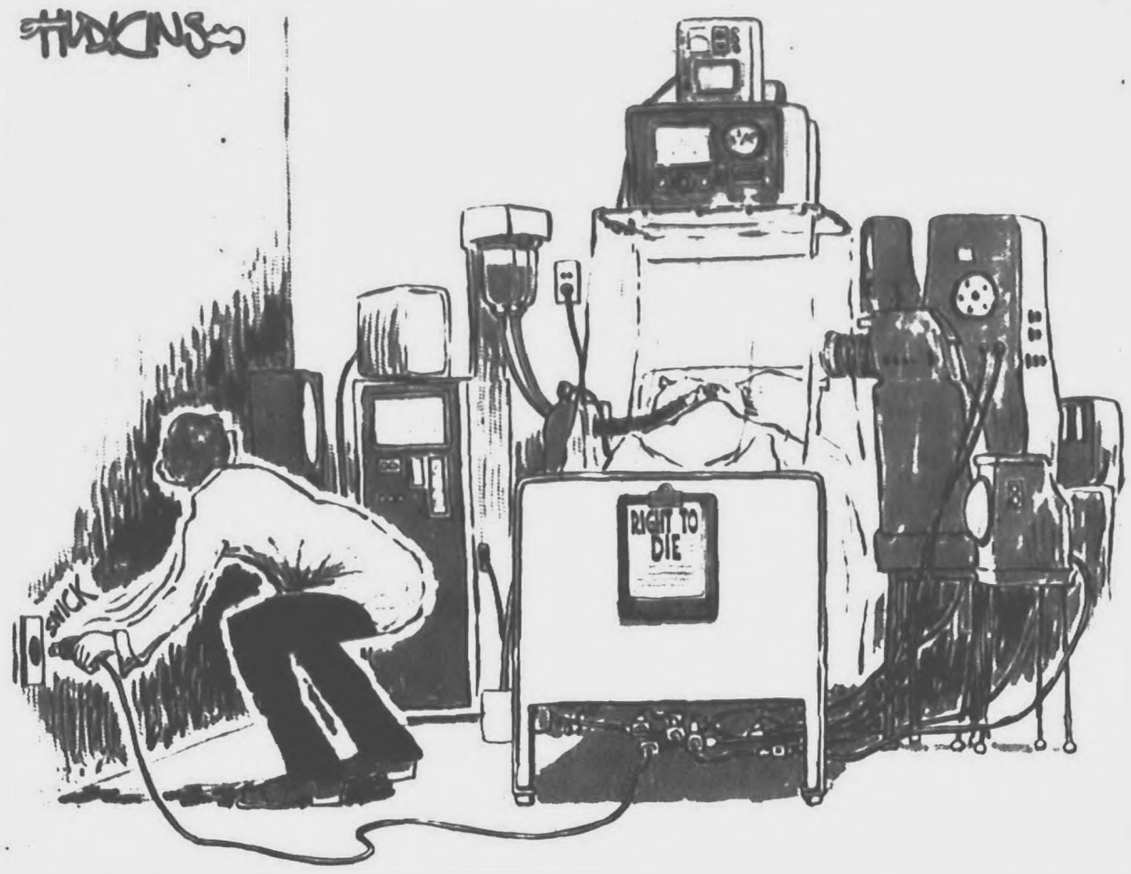

We think school board members should be in the business of explaining the district policy, and when that policy seems to need it, revise it.

When a citizens' group recently presented a report to the board, it rearranged the furniture in the board room, which is too small for meetings

Instead of seating board members at tables arranged in a horseshoe, board members were placed in one long row. Instead of facing each other, board members faced the audience. The setup created more room for the audience, which often spills out into the hallways. Forcing people to listen to a meeting from outside a room doesn't facilitate communication. It's doubtful that audience members forced to stand for hours feel as though their presence is appreciated or welcomed.

In his next term, we'd like to see Artley set a tone that facilitates that kind of responsiveness and cooperation.

He has done a decent job during his past term, but we would like to see him do even better this time. He should take what he has learned while campaigning and apply it the next four years.

A community confronts issues that affect us all

BIRMINGHAM school district residents who used to live in Detroit know what racism did to Rosedale Park. They know the same can happen to Quarton Lake Estates.

This past Tuesday evening a troubled, yet optimistic, group of residents gathered to share their feelings on the problem which cripples our society more than any other — racial and ethnic bigotry.

This meeting could have taken place in your community. If one hasn't, you can bet that one soon will.

It just so happened on this particular rainy Tuesday night a group of more than 250 people huddled together in the Birmingham Community Center to share their feelings about this very serious problem.

Black, Jew, Gentile and Oriental gathered.

"Reaffirming our commitment to democracy."

That's the way that Michael Bouchard, president of the Beverly Hills Village Council, portrayed the gathering.

In the past year the Birmingham district has been plagued with a series of racial incidents — student against student, an age-old problem passed from generation to generation.

STUDENTS espousing racial separation, calling themselves skinheads, have been transferred from one building to another. Students have scratched racial epithets on lockers.

Parents trying to understand, have been surprised to learn often times their children share in the animosity. Oh no. Most students, the majority, haven't done anything blatantly racist.

This past Tuesday evening a troubled, yet optimistic, group of residents gathered to share their feelings on the problem which cripples our society more than any other — racial and ethnic bigotry.

The community seems to take some solace in the fact that most of the kids are less than outwardly hostile. But many parents at this week's meeting admitted that in the privacy of their homes, the children expressed resentment over the racial intrusion into their lives.

For years, now, Birmingham area residents have prided themselves on being leaders in the metro Detroit area. And to a great extent, they have been. The greater Birmingham/Bloomfield area has given us many corporate and civic leaders. The community has set the standard for the American dream.

Frankly, Birmingham isn't used to this kind of attention. Attention yes, for the nice homes, good schools, bright students and all the upscale amenities that many other communities seek.

Steve Barnaby

But conflict between the races is something new. Up until now, that's been left to other communities to sort out.

Now it's Birmingham's turn.

And those who attended the meeting handled it well. The tone was something close to a revival meeting. While television lights glared, students and adults poured out their hearts. The mood was hopeful. The mood was impressive.

Notably absent were long-winded speeches from politicans, many of whom managed to miss this very important function. After all, advocating racial integration in the suburbs still doesn't bring many votes.

Notably absent were statements by corporate leaders. Selling racial diversity is a lot riskier than peddling autos.

But residents who have the courage to care spoke out. Black children and white children . . . "free at last, free at last."

SC board race

Elect Bowman, keep incumbents

THERE ARE many capable candidates running for seats on the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees in the June 12 community college election.

We find Ronaele Bowman stands out from among the half dozen candidates running for a four-year term on the Schoolcraft board. We also recommend retaining incumbents Mary Breen, Harry Greenleaf and Jack Kirksey in the race for a trio of six-year board seats.

It is a particularly tough choice in the race for the four-year seat. From educator, to business person, to former Schoolcraft student, the six candidates provide the diversity of backgrounds needed to create a successful community college board.

Only one, however, can be elected.

The choice becomes clear when one considers the seat to be filled had been held by Rosina Raymond.

We believe Ronaele Bowman is the candidate who best matches that venerable lady's outlook.

Not that there aren't plenty of reasons for recommending Bowman on her own. Trained in sociology and psychology, she carries a lifetime commitment to senior citizens and troubled youth.

As an unashamed liberal, and champion of liberal arts, she would provide balance to the increasingly conservative board — and what is so wrong with that?

We have no doubts that she possesses the intellect, dedication and enthusiasm necessary to become a successful Schoolcraft trustee.

Like Raymond, she probably won't win all her battles, nor most of them, but she will provide a much-needed perspective, one that otherwise would be lost.

Other candidates impressed us, too. Thaddeus McCotter struck us with his thoughtful answers and youthful energy. M. Andrea Taylor's background as a former Schoolcraft student and small businesswoman, is also impressive. In fact, we give all the candidates, including businessmen Thomas Davis and Richard Hayward and former educator Patricia Sacha, credit for running. It's refreshing that voters have such a choice.

For reasons listed above, however, the best choice is Ronaele Bowman.

We find Mary Breen, Harry Greenleaf and Jack Kirksey the best qualified candidates for the six-year seats and Ronaele Bowman the best choice for the four-year seat.

IN THE RACE for the six-year seats, we believe challengers David Tatman and Lawrence Whitmarsh could each prove a competent trustee.

Neither, however, can match the depth of experience the incumbents can bring to the board.

Breen, the board's current president, is a personable leader with a strong background in academics. While we sometimes wish she would take stronger stands on the issues, we acknowledge her self-described role as a compromiser among the other six board members.

Greenleaf, a former board president, is now the board's senior trustee. As such, he is steeped in Schoolcraft's history and brings a wealth of experience to the board. While he is a business executive, and a strong booster of technical courses, Greenleaf also understands the vital role reading, writing and mathematics play in producing competent employees. We believe that's a valuable viewpoint.

Kirksey has only been on the board for one year and it's difficult, at this point, to judge his effectiveness. But he can boast a relationship with Schoolcraft that carries back two decades. As director of Livonia School's adult education program, he can keep a sharp eye out for duplication of services between those programs and Schoolcraft's own continuing education services department. As a former state legislator, he can help speak for college interests in Lansing.

While we're not recommending them this time, we still give high marks to challengers Tatman and Whitmarsh. We believe Tatman's business background and desire to "give something back" to the community could serve the college in many capacities. We're also glad someone like Whitmarsh is already serving the college as a member of its quality management advisory committee.

Nonetheless, we find Mary Breen, Harry Greenleaf and Jack Kirksey the best qualified candidates for the six-year seats and Ronaele Bowman the best choice for the four-year seat.

Yes vote urged

To the editor:

I am writing in response to two items published in your newspaper on Thursday, May 4. I am the parent of two school-age children and a resident of Plymouth Township.

I was a member of the CREW Class-Size Committee and was present at the presentation of the CREW Committee findings to the school board on May 1. I was dismayed by the fact that the article reporting this presentation gave the impression that the report was very negative and critical of the school district as it is at the present time. It is only natural that a report of this nature would contain many suggestions that we feel would make Plymouth-Canton the perfect school district. However, missing from the article were the many comments made by committee members, which were very positive. Both the school board members and the committee members were very upbeat and positive at the end of the presentation. Comments made emphasized a feeling of faith that our school district is in good hands. Some of the committee members expressed an initial skepticism that was allayed as we investigated the facts and became familiar with our central administrators and board members. These people are sincere and caring individuals working very hard to do whatis best for this community.

I was also concerned by the fact that the Finance Committee report received so little mention. At this time of financial crisis in our schools, the public has a right to know that an independent CPA audited the finances of this district over the last four years and studied the projections for the next year. He found no misuse of funds and was essentially amazed that this district is maintaining its programs under the difficult circumstances brought on by the rapid loss of state aid in addition to the effect of the Headlee Amendment on school revenues.

The second issue I wish to address is a letter to the editor about the worksheet handed out at the I CARE rally on April 4. That worksheet shows the difference between operational school taxes paid in 1988 and those projected to be paid in 1989 when the 4-mill increase is approved.

The $200 is an estimated figure based on what the 4 mills will cost the individual homeowner, not the total increase is approved.

An increase in taxes is a reality. This school district is asking the public to give a little more to tide them over through this period of financial crises. It is important to realize that this increase is an investment in the value of your home. For every hundred dollars invested in the schools, thousands are returned in the equity of your home. The quality of education is directly related to the quality of the community and thus, the value of real estate within the community.

We have already scheduled many presentations, to all kinds of groups, about the facts of this millage campaign. If you wish to understand the facts better, call your local school and find out when and where one of many coffees is scheduled in your neighborhood to explain the real issue — how our children will benefit when this two year, 4-mill increase is approved.

Children only go through school once. For the good of the entire Plymouth-Canton community, if you care for kids, you'll vote yes on June 12.

A visit to school

To the editor:

I am the parent of three daughters who attend Plymouth Canton schools.

On May 9, I had the opportunity and pleasure of spending the day at Pioneer Middle school. My visit was by invitation to participate in Gov. Blanchard's Teacher Day/Family Day.

I had long ago chosen to vote yes on the tax issue, both for the renewal and the two year proposed millage.

Nothing, during my five hour visit at Pioneer, surfaced to change my mind. My hostesses were veteran teachers of 12 to 21 years. One of these has a master's degree and had already received a pink slip. She is, by my direct observation, a thoroughly organized, prepared, and effective teacher.

In the business world, an MBA commands salaries of over $60,000 per year. At least three men I know personally with MBAs are people who will have minimal or no influence on the future quality of life for my children. Financing the acquisition of an MBA is no different from the expense of a teacher's tuition at for example, EMU.

According to many cultures around the world, past and present, a teacher is regarded with the highest esteem. Jesus Christ was a teacher, as were Buddha, Mohamed, Aristotle, and Ghandi. Our priorities are upside down when we are willing to pay high ticket prices to see grown men play games and we, as a society, are not ready to compensate our teachers with what amounts to much less than their worth.

The proposed new millage is a small price to pay to keep even one excellent teacher on the job performing at the highest level of excellence.

In an earlier letter to the Observer, I equated the cost of the 2 mills with a day out shopping in the Plymouth Canton area. With the revision of the formula which I had used to calculate the amount, I have computed $179, or almost $15 a month. When I treat the family to McDonald's that is about what we spend and we do that less than once a month. If this means giving up a fast food meal, in my view, this is not a sacrifice.

I am extremely optimistic that Plymouth Canton residents and voters have their priorities in the correct order and they know the quality education of our children is our only hope for continued excellence as a community and a nation.

M. Weckerle

Different views needed

To the editor:

After reading about another CBE public school attack, it brought to mind a quote "nothing in education is so astounishing as the amount of ignorance it accumulates in the form of inert facts," and I must respond.

I have finally had enough. I find it disgusting a school board member usurps her position of policy and budget setting to become a classroom vigilante, or the CBE leadership bestows the cloak of community morality upon themselves and constantly interjects their beliefs of what's right and wrong. Well, I guess it's time the rest of use speak out!

I am a life member in an organization that encourages each learner to develop to that person's highest potential, fosters the development of a creative, disciplined mind, equips each learner with intellectual skills to make wise choices, and helps each learner live as a productive, responsible citizen in an ethnically diverse, pluralistic and changing society.

This quality education can not be accomplished if the schools only teach one view-point, if the students are not exposed to various ideas and then provided the opportunities to evaluate and apply the ideals that are right for each of them.

Teaching students to be critical thinkers is one of the school's most important functions. Critical thinking is a learned behavior and essential for a democracy to survive "liberty of thought is the life of the soul." Censoring and impounding materials that CBE finds offensive is not protecting the students, nor is it healthy for the community. There are appropriate procedures for legitimate concerns.

I'm also tired of CBE getting so much press. Give us a break! The local school district has more pressing problems like trying to make changes in the state's school funding, as well as passage of two local millages. Please, stop printing about their myopic view of life! Concentrate on the good things that are going on in schools and the community.

I am the mother of two teenagers that have developed, progressed and matured nicely through the Plymouth school system. I have been a teacher in the system for many years and have been involved in the community since I moved here. I am concerned about the well-being of the school system. I can not sit idly by and let others make decisions that adverrely affect me and my children.

I hope other rational-minded residents take the time to step forward and be heard at the ballot on June 12.

Graham visit objected to

To the editor:

It is certainly within the job description of board of education members to visit the schools. In fact, it would seem very appropriate for school board members to visit our schools more often to see what education in Plymouth-Canton is all about. Very few (if any) of our school board members have a background in education/teaching, so they may be limited in their understanding of education today. Visiting schools and classrooms would give them first hand observation of the various curricula used; implementation of curricula and materials; effects of class size on educating the students; and much more.

It would seem, then, that board member Barbara Graham's visit to the high school was that of a person fulfilling duties of her elected position. However, it was the intent with which Ms. Graham made her visit that is so alarming. As reported in the Observer on April 17, Ms. Graham wanted to "roam the halls" and have a look around the English department, in particular, because it is a source of "controversy." She had been told this and the name of a particularly controversial teacher by the organizer of Citizens for Better Education. It seems, then, that it was Ms. Graham's intent not just to observe our students, teachers, curricula and education system, but to look specifically for things she finds controversial, offensive or questionable. Upon reading her remarks and description of her visit, it also seems that she intended to harass both staff and students with her presence and removal of materials. Also, true to CBE tactics, Ms. Graham was not interested in learning about the whole picture but rather chose to comment on bits taken out of context without a knowledgeable understanding of artwork in classroom.

I would encourage Ms. Graham to visit our schools again but with the desire to gain the knowledge she needs to fulfill her duty to serve Plymouth-Canton Community schools and all of its 15,000 plus students.

Carol Bachmann,

CBE stance questioned

To the editor:

My wife and I have listened to Ms. Daskalakis and the CBE and tried to understand their complaints. With the substantial media coverage, some community members may feel there is a basis for such criticisms. Before forming an opinion, please ask yourself some basic questions:

Why would a "Better Education" group run a negative smear campaign to defeat all basic operating funds for our school district?

Why does CBE engage in name calling of respected people in our community? Are Board members really "immoral," teachings "satanic," and a veteran teacher's classroom "depressing" merely because they involve ideas the CBE deems objectionable?

Why does CBE make false claims that our district administration "does not listen" and are "rude" when, in actuality, over 15 committees have reviewed and judged school materials at CBE's request, and our libraries and curriculm guides have been open for their inspection?

These criticisms make no sense to us, and the only conclusion we have been able to reach is that they don't intend to critique real problems stemming from school policies and instead have another agenda that is unspoken and is hidden by inflammatory and illogical rhetoric. To us, their agenda seems closest to that of the extremist groups who would like to bring about radical changes in the American way of life, such as:

Home schooling, and with it the destruction of the public school system return to traditional values, meaning censored classrooms that deny students critical inquiry, drug education, health education, suicide prevention, study of media, the arts and humanities.

Required school prayer, meaning abandonment of the First Amendment's freedom to pray and practice the religion of one's choice.

We grew up in this town and now teach in its school system. CBE's agenda has little to do with the Plymouth community that we remember, characterized by conservative, level-headed values and beliefs. Rational conservation holds on to the best in community tradition and regards change with skepticism, whereas the reactionary CBE moves in and undermines the best in the community while claiming to be the standard bearers for American values. Most recently, their tactics include working to financially cripple our schools. To hand this community over a group with such anti-American and anti-community beliefs and motives is "beyond our belief."

We are sympathetic with Plymouth-Canton taxpayers, but we also fear that a defeated millage is a vote for CBE and a forefeiture of the real traditional values in this community. Has Plymouth changed that much? Will faith in healthy children and healthy public schools truly give way to such fright tactics as those used by the CBE? If not, cast a vote to reaffirm and conserve the real values that have made the Plymouth-Canton School System one of the best in the state.

Jerrold and Kathryn Thompson,
Ypsilanti,

Two issues in election

To the editor:

There are two separate and distinct decisions that the voters of the Plymouth-Canton School District are being asked to make in the June election. It is time to separate these issues for the sake of the students. If we do not, we must all bear the responsibility for jeopardizing their future potential for higher education and competition in the job market for the 21st century.

The first issue is economic. Our school district is in the process of going out of formula. In simple terms, this means that Michigan is phasing out its financial contribution to our school district. In two years, there will be no more state aid in our budgeted income. The costs remain the same in terms of per pupil expenditure, whether the state gives us money or not. Therefore, the taxpayers are being asked to renew the current millage, and to support an additional 4 mills for a limited period of two years. This is to cover the transition period as we go out of formula.

The second issue is philosophical, and must be separated from the economic issue. The energy and emotion that have been expended in discussions about censorship, curriculum content, the behavior of a school board member and the materials handed out in the classrooms reflect the fact that we all care very much about the education of the students in this district.

We are given the opportunity to reflect that in the election by our choice for school board members. There are candidates that support both sides of the philosophical issues.

Vote for the candidate who best represents your ideas on these issues. You can make your opinion known by the choice you make for the school board.

A very dangerous game is being played out right now. Our students are being taken as economic hostages in a battle that is philosophical in nature. If the millage does not pass, the school day will be shortened. If that happens, the Plymouth-Canton school district will lose its academic accreditation. Our students will not be able to get in the required number of prerequisite classes for college admission without doing post-graduate work at the high school or a community college. There simply will not be enough hours available to meet these requirements.

Let us not overlook the issue of property values. While no one likes the idea of higher taxes, we all have certainly benefited from the increased value of our property in this district. Our schools have been a major factor contributing to the enhanced value of our property. Let us not throw the baby out with the bathwater. There may be some things in our district that could stand improvement. However, that is not sufficient justification for destroying the outstanding educational system that has been developed in the Plymouth-Canton Community.

It is time to put emotions aside. We must objectively separate and evaluate the decisions before us. Our children are our most valuable asset. The only ones who will be punished by a millage defeat will be the students-innocent victims of a childish power play. We need to set an example of how adults responsibility handle the decision-making process. The future potential of our students is at stake. We will make or break them by our decision on the millage. There are other ways to register displeasure with administrative decisions and policy regarding the materials in this district.

The decision is ours. How much do we really care about the consequences? Are we going to throw it all away over issues that can be resolved without making innocent victims of our students?

Adventures await readers

Canton library offers children's programs

By Julie Brown
staff writer

LEARNING DOESN'T have to come to a halt during the summer.

Summer reading programs for children are offered at the Canton Public Library and at the Dunning-Hough Library in Plymouth. (See related story.) The programs are enjoyable for children — and for the librarians.

"We always look forward to summer reading," said Judy Teachworth, department head for youth services at the Canton Public Library. "It gives us a chance to talk to the kids and help them find books. It's one of our favorite times."

This year's summer reading club for the Canton Public Library has a "Reach for the Stars" theme. The club is for first through eighth graders who read independently.

"We try to encourage children to read during the summer," Teachworth said. "It's a way to motivate for reading."

MANY TEACHERS encourage parents to have children sign up for the program, she said. Participating helps children develop their reading skills.

The Canton Public Library also has a Read-to-Me Club for preschool children.

Registration for the "Reach for the Stars" program will start Monday, June 19, in person at the library, 1200 S. Canton Center in Canton. Each child participating must have a library card.

Registrations for "Reach for the Stars" won't be accepted after 9 p.m. Wednesday, July 19. Children registered will have a chance to attend fun-filled programs. Participants must register in advance for each program, either by phone or in person.

SESSIONS, TO be held in the library meeting room, include:

- 2-2:45 p.m. Thursday, July 6, The String Puppet Theatre, a marionette company, presenting the classic tale of "Jack and the Beanstalk." Registration will start after 9:30 a.m. Thursday, June 29;

Youngsters enjoy summer fun

There'll be a whole lot of reading going on this summer at the Dunning-Hough Library in Plymouth.

The "Reach for the Stars" summer reading program is designed for children ages 6-12 who read independently. The "Star Travelers" Read-to-Me program is for children age 6 and younger who aren't reading on their own just yet. Both programs are sponsored by the Friends of the Dunning-Hough Library.

"It's basically to encourage the children to read," said Peggy Morgan, a children's librarian. "Certainly, as librarians, we want to encourage children to read. Having programs like this does just exactly that."

Registration for both programs will start Monday, June 19, in person at the Dunning-Hough Library, 223 S. Main in Plymouth.

Children registering for the summer reading program will sign a contract indicating the number of books they plan to read. Participants must read a minimum of three books.

"They can choose anything they want," Morgan said. "We do not require that they read a specific type of book."

CHILDREN REGISTERED for the "Reach for the Stars" program will have a chance to attend a variety of activity sessions. Sessions, to be held at 2 p.m. Thursdays, include:

- June 29, ages 6-8, singer/musician Mike Wise;
- July 6, ages 9-12, singer/musician Mike Wise;
- July 13, ages 6-8, movies, "Nate the Great" and "Alice's Adventures in Wonderland," at the library;
- July 20, ages 9-12, a movie, "The Electric Grandmother," at the library;
- July 27, ages 6-8, an audience participation story, "The Fat Cat," and string stories (stories based on shapes created with string);
- Aug. 3, ages 9-12, an audience participation story, "The Fat Cat," and string stories;
- Aug. 10, the awards celebration, featuring The Tuxedo Brothers with a performance incorporating magic, juggling and comedy.

"They encourage audience participation as they perform," Morgan said. "The kids will really enjoy their presentation."

The awards celebration will be held at the Plymouth Cultural Center, 525 Farmer. All other sessions will be held at the Dunning-Hough Library.

ATTENDANCE AT activity sessions is optional. Sessions will last 45-60 minutes, and the awards celebration will last 60-75 minutes.

Children in the "Reach for the Stars" program will start reading June 26 and have until Aug. 5 to record books and complete their contracts. Children must fulfill their contracts in order to attend the awards celebration.

When they register, program recipients will receive a reading record, to be used to list the titles and authors for each book read. Each time a child comes into the library, a children's librarian will review his or her record and stamp it.

The six-week program will include weekly contests, such as "connect the dots" or "fill in the blanks." A Read-A-Lottery drawing will be featured as well; for each book read, a child will get a chance to enter that contest. Names of winners will be drawn at the Aug. 10 awards celebration.

A guessing contest, in which children guess the number of "planets" in a jar, will be included, with the contest winner named at the Aug. 10 awards celebration. Winners for each contest will receive prizes.

The "Star Travelers" Read-to-Me program is designed for younger children. The kickoff session for that program will be held 10:30-11 a.m. Monday, June 26, at the Plymouth Cultural Center. That session will feature stories, songs and puppet performances.

CHILDREN AND their parents in that program are encouraged to visit the library each week. Parents will help children choose books, read to them and keep track of the number of books read.

During library visits, children in the Read-to-Me program will receive incentive items, such as stickers or finger puppets. A final celebration for that program will be held 10:30-11 a.m. Monday, Aug. 7, at Plymouth resident Adina Rice enjoys her volunteer work in the library at East Middle School. "I needed something to do to get out of the house," she said.

She gives job her best

By Julie Brown
staff writer

Adina Rice is retired now, but she still finds time to volunteer in the library at East Middle School in Plymouth.

Rice spent many years as a teacher and librarian with the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools. She retired from her position as a librarian at East in 1985.

"I needed something to do to get out of the house," said Rice, a Plymouth resident. During this school year, she's volunteered one day a week in the library at East.

"It's very interesting. It's changed a lot. When I was here, they didn't have the computers."

Rice started working at East as a librarian in the fall of 1969, and was there until the spring of 1985 when she retired.

SHE TAUGHT fourth and fifth grades at Farrand Elementary School in Plymouth Township, starting in the late 1950s and continuing until she moved to Smith Elementary School in Plymouth. Rice was a librarian at Smith during the 1968-69 school year.

Her volunteer job at East includes card catalog work. She pulls catalog cards for books that are no longer in the collection.

Rice enjoys being with her fellow educators and likes seeing the students at East.

"I think they're very well-behaved. They've been very polite to me. They get a little noisy sometimes. I think that's kind of normal."

Rice's experience with students includes teaching elementary school for several years in Michigan's St. Joseph County. That was before she and her husband, Richard, moved to Plymouth.

The Rices have four grown sons, all of whom graduated from the local schools, and two grandchildren.

The Rices have seen changes in the community during the 30 years or so they've lived here.

"So many condominiums. They didn't have the apartments and condominiums when we moved here," she said. New shopping centers have been built during that time as well.

THE RICES live within walking distance of downtown Plymouth. She enjoys going into a store and knowing the clerk. They like to walk downtown for summertime concerts in Kellogg Park.

"We thoroughly enjoy that. We like the small-town atmosphere."

Rice asked if she could volunteer at East Middle School, and is glad she did so. She'd like to volunteer during the next school year.

Dolores Prom, the librarian at East, is glad to have Rice's help.

"She's a great asset," Prom said. "It's nice. I have full confidence in her capabilities."

Work offers many rewards for volunteer

Other helpful volunteers work in the library at East. Some parents have helped with the process of putting the library onto a computer system; such a system keeps track of the library collection and what's been checked out.

Adina Rice thinks the use of computers can help librarians.

"I can see a lot of advantages," Rice said. "She can do her inventory much faster than I could."

Rice has other interests in addition to her volunteer work at East. She and her husband are Plymouth Historical Society members and volunteer docents at the Plymouth Historical Museum. Rice is a member of the Plymouth Business and Professional Women.

RICE EARNED a bachelor's degree in sociology/psychology from DePauw University in Greencastle, Ind. She earned a master's degree in elementary education from Eastern Michigan University and a master's in library science from the University of Michigan.

As you might expect, Rice likes to read.

"I read a lot, mostly biographies or history, historical fiction, that kind of thing." She's now reading "The Covenant" by James Michener. Rice has enjoyed other works by Michener and the late Barbara Tuchman's books on history.

Adina Rice would like to continue her volunteer work during the next school year.

She has some common-sense advice for others planning to retire soon.

"They have to find some interests, of course. You have to look ahead and plan your finances, that's for sure."

Working as a volunteer is different from being a paid employee, but there are some similarities.

"Volunteers have to realize that if they volunteer, people are dependent on them. They can't just come and go as they please. If Dolores is depending on me, I've got to be here."

Library: the place to be

• 2-2:45 p.m. Thursday, July 13, Yarrow, a folk singer. Registration will start after 9:30 a.m. Monday, July 10;

• 2-2:45 p.m. Thursday, July 20, Ming the Magnificent, with a magic show. Registration will start after 9:30 a.m. Monday, July 17;

• 2-3:30 p.m. Thursday, July 27, the "Celebration of Readers Party."

Prize winners will be announced and refreshments served at the party. No registration is required. Friends of the Canton Public Library members will assist with the party.

CHILDREN WHO read five books will receive a reading club certificate. Library staffers will keep track of what each child has read; the child will be given that list at the end of the program.

Various poster contests will be part of the fun for "Reach for the Stars" participants. Contests, such as "connect the dots" or "name the planets," are designed to accommodate children at different ages and reading levels.

Posters for the contests will be displayed at the Canton Public Library. Each child will be allowed to enter each contest once. Contest winners will be announced at the Thursday, July 27, party.

A READ-A-LOTTERY drawing will be included as well. Children will receive one Read-A-Lottery ticket for each book read. A lottery drawing for prizes of paperback books will be held at the Thursday, July 27, party.

"We give out all kinds of prizes, lots of them," Teachworth said. "We end up giving away about 200 paperbacks."

Children in the "Reach for the Stars" program should choose from books in the Canton Public Library collection. They should read books on their own reading level; no cartoon or comic books will be accepted.

"They read a lot of the lighter books," Teachworth said.

CHILDREN ENJOY reading mysteries, science fiction and fantasy books during the summer. Books from series, such as The Babysitters Club and Sweet Valley Twins, are popular.

"Some of them do like to read the non-fiction, about snakes and frogs and things like that," Teachworth said. "Dinosaurs are always popular, even in the summer."

Children don't read as many books about foreign countries and geography in the summer. Biographies aren't quite as popular during the summer, although some children enjoy reading them.

Last year, just over 1,000 children signed up for the summer reading club and Read-to-Me programs. Approximately 650 were in the summer reading club, which is being offered for the ninth summer this year.

THE READ-TO-ME Club is open to all preschool children. Parents and librarians will help preschoolers choose books. Reading logs will be kept at the library.

"There's a great interest in things for the younger children," Teachworth said. "We have a very strong preschool and toddler program, because the demand is so great."

For the Read-to-Me Club, a different picture will be stamped on the listener's hand each time he or she comes to the library to list stories. Each child will receive a certificate when the program ends.

The Read-to-Me program will begin Monday, June 19, and end Tuesday, July 25. From 2-2:30 p.m. Tuesday, July 25, Brenda McDonald will present a musical program for participants.

Registration for the "Sing Along With the Stars" session Tuesday, July 25, will start after 9:30 a.m. Tuesday, July 18, by phone or in person. Each child should attend with an accompanying adult.

McDonald will perform with puppets Music McGee, Singing Sam and Beary Musical. The session will be held in the library meeting room.

the Plymouth Cultural Center. Singer/musician Mike Wise will perform.

The reading programs, offered each summer, are popular. A total of 450 school-age children registered for last summer's reading program, with most fulfilling their contracts. The Read-to-Me program had just over 200 participants last summer.

"We're very happy that the program was so successful last year," Morgan said.

The librarians have found that fiction is popular with young readers during the summer. Encyclopedias — much in demand during the school year for assignments — aren't read as much by children in the summer.

Non-fiction, covering such subjects as dinosaurs, sharks and sports is popular as well in the summer.

"Origami and craft books are also very popular," Morgan said. "It really varies from child to child, but certainly a lot of the reading they're doing is pleasure reading."

This house provides warmth, shelter

By Julie Brown
staff writer

The Truesdell home is easy to spot on Haggerty Road in Canton.

The Victorian-era home is south of Cherry Hill Road, not far from Field Elementary School. The home's old-fashioned appearance, reminiscent of an earlier era, sets it apart from nearby modern apartments, houses and condominiums.

John and Diane Nuoffer now own the home. They've lived there for two years. The home has been a good place to raise their five children.

"The night I saw it, I didn't sleep all that night," said Diane Nuoffer, a homemaker. She liked the big rooms and the home's old-fashioned good looks.

"The location is just ideal," she said. "It's a place where we're going to stay for the rest of our lives."

SOME MEMBERS of the Plymouth branch, American Association of University Women, know a great deal about the home. The AAUW's landmark study group recently presented a landmark award in recognition of the home's architectural and historical significance.

The award, given annually, is presented during Michigan Week. Study group members did extensive research on the history and architecture of the Truesdell home.

The Nuoffers were pleased their home was chosen. This is the third older home they've lived in; they had homes in Northville and in Plymouth.

The Truesdell home is the oldest one they've lived in. Their homes in Plymouth and Northville were wood; and they were attracted to the red brick of the Truesdell home.

The Nuoffer children — Jessica, 10, Jacob, 6, Amelia, 4, Julia, 2, and Paul, 2 months — have plenty of space to play. The home rests on about 2½ acres, which means that mowing the lawn takes some time.

Their son, Jacob, doesn't have far to travel when he goes to school. His kindergarten class meets in the Truesdell School, now used as part of Field Elementary School.

The Nuoffers didn't start from scratch in refurbishing their home. The previous occupants had done quite a bit of cleanup work.

"She stripped all the wallpaper off the walls," Diane Nuoffer said. The walls had some eight layers of accumulated wallpaper.

THE PREVIOUS occupants also did some roof repair work and cleared away much of the brush.

The Nuoffers didn't get to work on their home right away; the day they were supposed to move, Diane Nuoffer went into labor and had a baby. Some friends helped the family move to their new home while she was in the hospital.

One friend, Mike Pray, takes care of the barn and fencing. He'll help plant the garden this summer. They plan to grow sweet corn and tomatoes.

Another friend who is handy lived with the family when they first moved in. He helped with the painting, did much of the kitchen renovation and put in a shower.

The Nuoffers have worked on remodeling the kitchen. An older enamel sink was replaced with a more modern one. The kitchen has modern appliances, including a dishwasher.

The Nuoffers aren't rushing to complete home improvement projects.

"With all these little kids around here, they take your time," said John Nuoffer, who works in assembly at the General Motors Hydra-Matic Division plant in Ypsilanti.

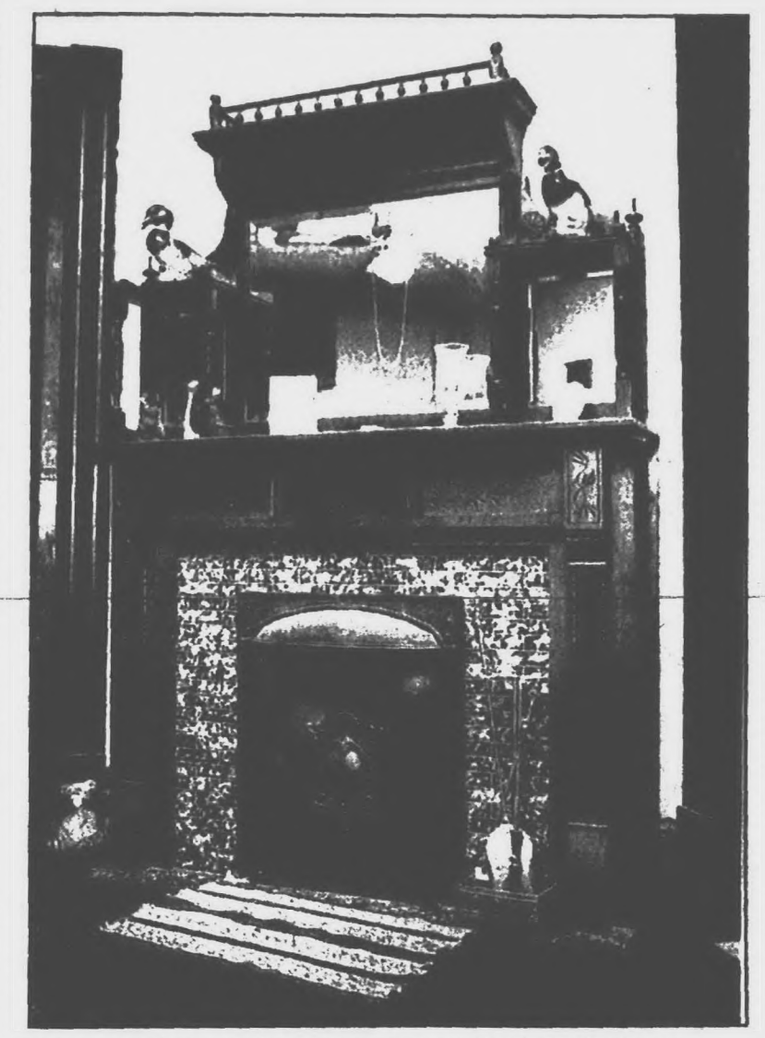

"We've been working on it a little bit as we go," he said. They want to keep the home in as close to its origi-

The Truesdell home is a brick structure built in the Queen Anne style. The Nuoffer family now lives in the Canton house.

A fireplace in the sitting room enhances the house's decor.

Canton home has a proud history

Construction of the Truesdell home was begun in 1869 by Ephraim Truesdell upon his return from the Civil War. The house was built of bricks from the John Haggerty Brick Company.

The house, on Haggerty Road in Canton Township, is built in the Queen Anne style. The front door still contains the original tinted red glass.

The home's foyer is enhanced by an open staircase. Seeing the original woodwork gives a visitor a sense of what it was like to live there many years ago.

The two-story home contains 10 rooms. The Truesdell homestead was the hub of a 200-acre farm.

Those glimpses of local history were compiled by members of the Plymouth branch, American Association of University Women. The AAUW's landmark study group did extensive research on the history and architecture of the home.

The home's windows are segmented and covered with shutters. The plastered walls are approximately 90 percent original.

THE DINING room houses a floor-to-ceiling wooden cupboard with glass doors, measuring approximately 13 feet. The sitting room has an inviting fireplace and bay window.

The house originally had a summer kitchen and the standard kitchen. The summer kitchen is now used as a "mud room." A second kitchen staircase leads to the back bedrooms, once occupied by household help.

Principal crops on the Truesdell farm were corn, wheat and oats. Ephraim Truesdell and his descendents lived, worked, attended school and socialized with neighboring farm families in Canton.

The Truesdells, a prominent pioneer family, continued to live in the home for many years. John and Diane Nuoffer now live there with their five children.

Irene Truesdell, a member of the AAUW's landmark study group, is a great-niece of Ephraim Truesdell. Mary Fritz, another study group member, shares a cousin relationship with Irene Truesdell and with Zelma Truesdell Huebler, Ephraim's granddaughter.

Study group members interviewed Zelma Truesdell Huebler, who lived in the house from 1911 until her marriage in 1928. She and her brother, Glen, crossed the side yard to attend the Truesdell School, built about 1869. The present school was built in 1950 and now houses the kindergarten classes of Field Elementary School.

Study group members interviewed John and Diane Nuoffer and used several reference sources in doing their research. Other landmark study group members were: Anne Schlick, chairwoman; Luan Brownlee; Gerry Dugan; Peg Heiney; and Bea Laible.

nal condition as possible.

THEIR PROJECT this summer will be repairing the porches on the home's north side. Those porches have rotted and are in need of repair. Landscaping is also one of their projects this year. Diane Nuoffer is putting in flower beds around the home.

"I'm almost halfway around," she said with a smile. "It's a big house."

The home has been made livable with many modern conveniences, but not everything is just as you'd find it in a 1980s-era home.

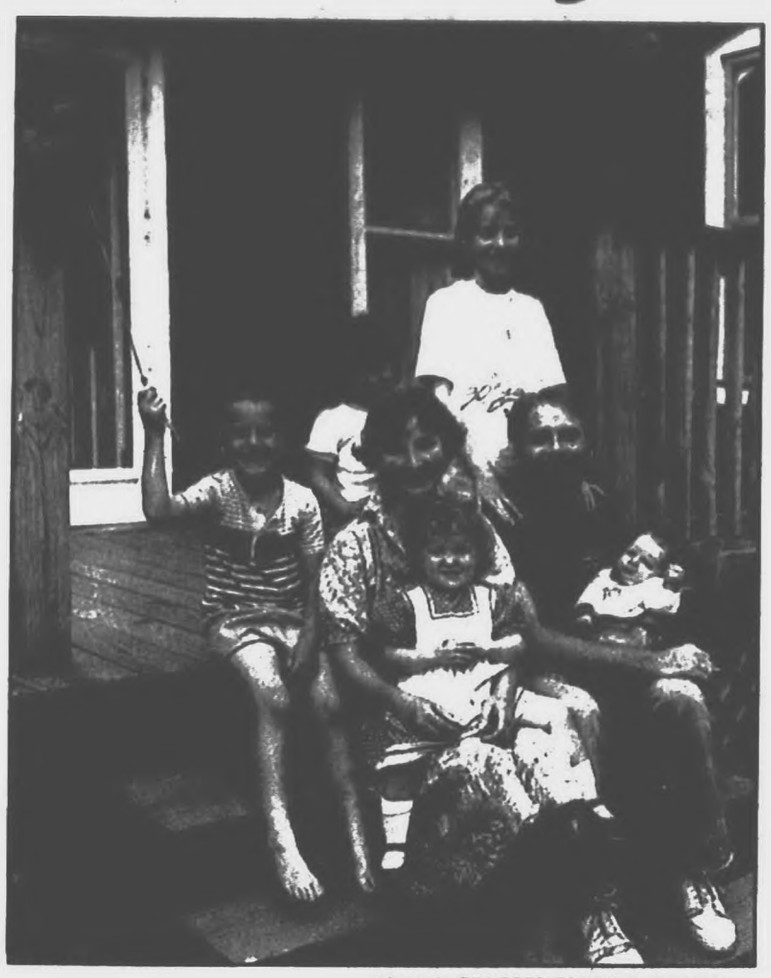

"There's no where in here to plug anything in," John Nuoffer said, gesturing toward the walls of the dining room. The bathroom, once part of the summer kitchen, is relatively small.

The house has 10 rooms, including five bedrooms upstairs.

"We've got great plans for the rooms," she said. "We like being home a lot, so we enjoy having things to do here. We can enjoy it if while we're working on it we take our time."

Their Canton neighbors enjoy being in the vicinity of the Truesdell home.

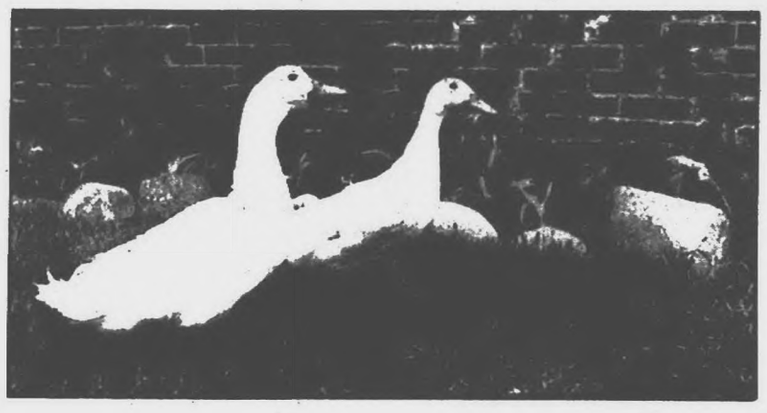

"They love it," she said. "They really like looking at it."

The home has been made livable with many modern conveniences, but not everything is just as you'd find it in a 1980s-era home.

Humans aren't the only ones who call the Truesdell homestead site home. In years gone by, the house served as the hub for a 200-acre farm.

Pianga-Richardson

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Pianga of Westland announce the engagement of their daughter, Robin Marie Pianga of Canton, to Kirk Micheal Richardson of Canton.

The prospective bridegroom is the son of Ray Richardson of Canton and Pat Richardson of Boyne City, Mich.

The bride-elect is a graduate of John Glenn High School and of Patricia Stevens Career College in Milwaukee, Wis. She is employed by Jacobson's in Livonia.

Her fiance is a graduate of Boyne City High School. He is employed by American Catering in Garden City.

An early July wedding is planned at Greenmead in Livonia.

WHEN ONE OF THESE SYSTEMS BREAKS DOWN...

THIS HIGHLY ADVANCED ONE TAKES OVER.

To perform properly, the human body depends upon several systems. If just one of them develops a problem, it affects the entire body. Which is why we developed another, highly advanced system—Metro Medical Group.

Metro Medical Group is a system of nine medical centers, including a specialty center for rehabilitation and sports medicine.

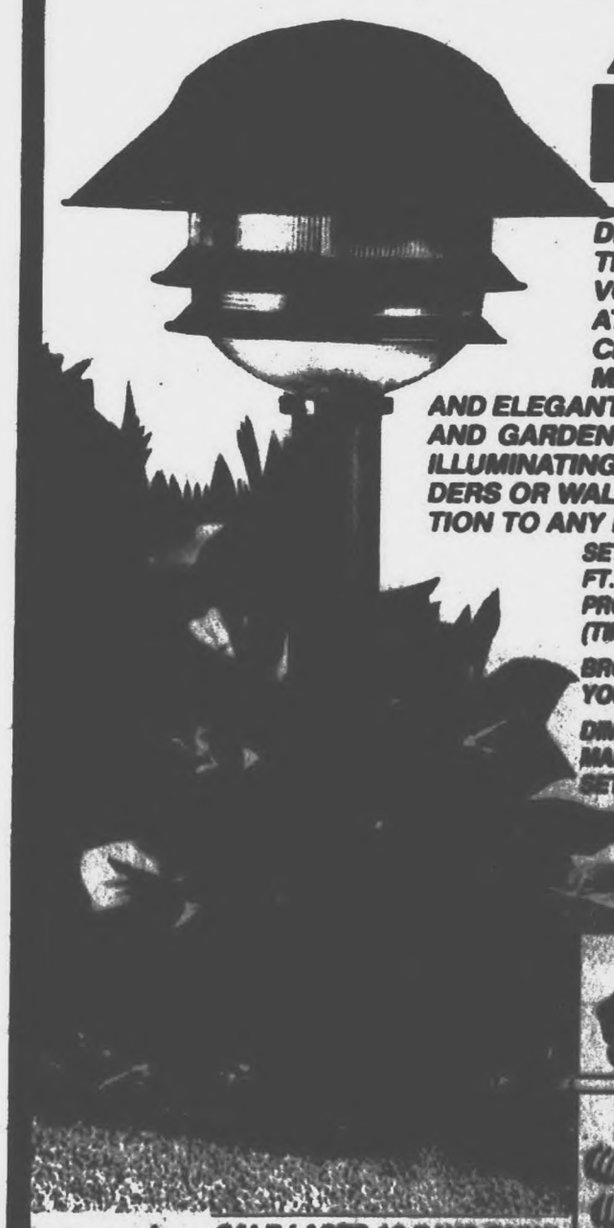

And Metro Medical Group centers accept most insurance and health care plans, including Health Alliance Plan.

The next time one of your systems needs attention, make an appointment with our system.

Woman named pastor at St. Timothy Church

The congregation of St. Timothy Presbyterian Church in Livonia will be welcoming a new pastor June 11 and at the same time making its mark on history.

The 125-member congregation will participate in a special 3 p.m. installation service that day, when the Rev. Janet Noble will assume leadership of the 24-year-old church. She is the church's third pastor and first first female pastor.

Noble's father, the Rev. Robert E. Noble Jr., will participate in the service.

Noble comes to St. Timothy's from Mt. Nebo Presbyterian Church in Sewickley, Pa., where she had served as interim pastor. Her arrival ends a nine month search for a pastor at St. Timothy's.

Noble was born in Pakistan. The daughter of missionaries, she lived most of her life overseas.

She graduate from Westminster College in New Wilmington, Pa., in 1983 with a bachelor of arts degree in Christian education. She served one year as a volunteer in mission with the Presbyterian Church at the Loresno Community Church in Nairobi, Kenya, where she was director of Christian Education.

She returned to the United States and entered the Princeton, N.J., Theological Seminary, graduating with a master of divinity degree in 1987. She was ordained in November 1987.

Rev. Janet Noble

Noble will begin her ministry at St. Timothy's Thursday, June 1. The church was formed in 1965 and met at Hoover Elemetary School before moving to its permanent location at 16700 Newburgh Road, south of Six Mile, Livonia.

CREED indeed

Group helps Soviet Christians in need

By Mary Rodrique
staff writer

Things go better with glasnost.

That is apparent to Dr. Ernest Gordon, president of the Christian Rescue Effort for the Emancipation of Dissidents (CREED).

Gordon's organization is committed to making life more bearable for Soviet Christians. He recently brought CREED's message to the congregation of Trinity Presbyterian Church in Plymouth.

"The (Soviet) Jews have done a splendid job of making their plight known, but there was so little awareness of Christians," said Gordon, in a phone interview from Princeton University, where he was dean of the chapel for 26 years.

CREED was launched in March 1980 to help the 20,000 to 30,000 Pentecostals appealing for help emigrating from the Soviet Union. Gordon, a prisoner of war in Malaysian camps for three years during World War II, was tapped as its leader.

"At that time, there were 560 (Soviet Christians) known in prison, 350 in psychiatric hospitals and an enormous number in exile," said Gordon. "In the Soviet Union, everybody is to be educated as an atheist and communist, to affirm openly something to the contrary is propaganda."

But if Christians were suffering a reign of terror a short decade ago, the massive letter writing campaign, increased public awareness and the freer society of Soviet Premier Mikhail Gorbachev has given CREED a measure of success.

"GORBACHEV has had to deal with tremendous resistance to Russian ideology," Gordon said. "He is an extremely bright man. He recognizes the idealogy is dead, though he is still trying to dress it up."

Gordon calls the period of 1960-64 the Russian spiritual renaissance, with writers like Nobel Prize winner Aleksandr Solzhenitsyn, author of "A Day in the Life of Ivan Denisovitch," and Boris Pasternak, who wrote "Dr. Zhivago," greatly influencing intellectuals of the day.

"In the 1970s, we saw a multiplication of Christian developments which took care of families of those imprisoned," Gordon said.

A vast country, the Soviet Union has a mere 6,000 churches — "peanuts," according to Gordon — "but the real life is in the fellowship, the bible study groups."

The spiritual movement is ecumenical in nature, Gordon said, although Russian orthodox is the predominant church.

He sees Polish solidarity, both the defiant trade union and the staunch Roman Catholic population which Pope John Paul, a native, visited in 1979, providing a pattern for communist bloc countries to emulate.

"CREED carries on an enormous amount with very little resources," Godon said. "We are very busy interceding on behalf of Christians."

CREED helps not only those Christians seeking refuge outside the Soviet Union, but tries to make life more tolerable within the Soviet Union. Bibles are sent "two at a time because large shipments are stolen and sold on the black market," according to Gordon.

Gordon also broadcasts Christian programming on a shortwave radio network which allows 30 million Soviets to hear "Life in Christ" Sunday mornings.

"PEOPLE ARE very hungry to correspond with Christians in the United States," said Gordon. "I don't think we would've had glasnost without the spiritual revolution, if people here hadn't woken up and if information wasn't passed on. We must use our freedom or lose our freedom."

Over the past decade, Gordon has testified before Congress. He has visited Soviet bloc nations five times, and successfully interceded on behalf of dissidents who either wanted to leave or stay and be free to be Christians.

He has degrees from the University of Edinburgh, the University of Glasgow and Hartford Theological Seminary.

Donations to CREED can be sent in care of Trinity Presbyterian Church, 10101 W. Ann Arbor Road, Plymouth 48170.

Scales of judgment should be the same

Rabbi Irwin Groner

An ancient law, dealing with business practices, first stated in the Book of Deuteronomy, has been promulgated in every age including our own: "You should not have in your house diverse measures, a great measure and a small measure, a large weight and a small weight. You should have a perfect weight and a just weight . . . ."

This statute addresses those engaged in commerce, admonishing them that their weights and measures were to be precise. If a person possessed different kinds of weights, he could practice deception by buying his goods with a large weight and selling them with a small weight. Thus, he could buy more than rightfully was his, sell less than the customer had paid for.

This regulation, which emphasizes the correct conduct of business activities, has a larger meaning. It affirms the truth that our lives should be of one standard. Life should not be composed of different measures and different judgments that we apply to obtain conditions and terms favorable to ourselves.

One of the most serious charges that can be levied against our age is that we live by dual standards, individually and collectively. How do we judge others and how do we judge ourselves?

WE JUDGE others by their deeds and by outward actions and our judgments are harsh.

How do we judge ourselves? By our thoughts, intentions, hopes and feelings. When we commit and error, we are kind to ourselves. We take into account all of the extenuating circumstances, all of our difficulties, problems and burdens. But when we weigh the faults of others, we do not refrain from using a different measure and putting our thumb on the scale.

Consider the following:

"Isn't it funny . . . when the other fellow takes a long time to do something, he's slow; when I take a long time to do something, I'm thorough. When the other fellow doesn't do it, he's too lazy, but when I don't do it, I'm too busy.

"When the other fellow finds fault, he is a carping critic, but when I do it, this expresses my good taste. When the other fellow does anything on his own, he is aggressive and oversteps his authority, but when I do the same, that's initiative.

"When the other fellow states his side of a question strongly, he is opinionated, but when I state my side of the question strongly, I'm being firm. When the other fellow overlooks a few rules of etiquette, he's rude, but when I skip a few rules, I'm original."

Recently, I came upon a store in northern Michigan that carried the following sign: "We buy junk — we sell antiques."

WE HAVE another set of double standards — the values we profess and the values by which we really live.

We extol self-control and we practice self-indulgence. We proclaim brotherhood and we are guilty of prejudice.

We preach the sanctity of human life and reverence for moral ideals, but the media portray the themes of brutality, depravity and decadence in living color. We proclaim ourselves a non-violent people, but we insist that each person be allowed to own his own gun.

You and I are not guilty of all these things. But collectively, we share in the responsibility for these double standards, a responsibility not to be discharged by blaming our political leaders or the party in power.

Moral schizophrenia develops in a society that proclaims the dignity and sanctity of man, and then debases human life in its mass culture. This schism acts deeply into the consciousness of our young.

Our youths wonder about a nation that spends more on cosmetics than on charity, more on cigarettes than on cancer research.

The time has come to reject "double standards" in every aspect of our personal and collective lives.

Rabbi Irwin Groner is with the Shaarey Zedek Congregation in Southfield.

For information, call 534-6383.

David Schultz of Livonia (left, back row) has been named as a member of The Foresters at Concordia College in River Forest, Ill.

Livonian makes the grade for college singing group

David Schultz, a freshman from Livonia, has been named a member of The Foresters, Concordia College's promotional singing group for 1989-90.

Forester selections are made on the basis of musical ability, academic proficiency and Christian character. Schultz is one of eight students chosen for the 1989-90 group and will receive a $2,000 Forester Choral Scholarship.

Schultz is a member of Christ Our Savior Lutheran Church in Livonia and a 1989 graduate of Lutheran High School in Westland. He is a secondary education major at Concordia College in River Forest, Ill. He is a member of the Festival Chorale and plays the bass guitar, piano and the euphonium.

The Foresters are considered one of the premier college singing groups in The Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod. They travel more than 14,000 miles annually and are heard by more than 25,000 people. The Foresters sing for worship services, banquets, high school assemblies and chapels, conferences, conventions and youth gatherings.

Suburban buildings criticized as vacuous

Southfield singled out

By Philip A. Sherman
staff writer

When future generations sift through business communities and try to piece together what our civilization was like, they will look to our architectural accomplishments for clues.

They will find buildings. Big, tall, stacked glass buildings. Low, flat, stacked glass buildings. Medium, tubular, stacked glass buildings. Angular, tinted, stacked glass buildings.

They will think the buildings, particularly some along the Northwestern Highway strip, are "vacuous and pedestrian," according to Bruno Leon, dean of the University of Detroit's school of architecture. "What it says is that every human being's identical, right?"

LEON IS leading a charge against such architecture. Southfield isn't his only target.

He also mentioned, for example, the new Ritz Carlton hotel in Dearborn. "This post-modernism, supposedly an answer to the frigidity of modern movement, is in my opinion equally shallow because it borrows superficially or cosmetically.

"It's so stylistic and so non-derivitive from the society itself that that thing's going to be tasteless when the petticoats go down again (when trends change again)."

But Leon's comments focused on Southfield — the city in search of a downtown that serves as the unofficial downtown for the tri-county area. It has a local, statewide, national and international reputation, thanks to companies such as EDS. The city's ability to attract business is near legend. Business builds buildings.

LEON THINKS architects and developers willingly ignore how those buildings address civic responsibility, mesh with the community, act on the environment and reflect our cultural heritage.

"Most of the time, these buildings are designed for one purpose and one purpose alone, and that is the maximization of profit," Leon said. He cited laws that allow developers to depreciate buildings over a seven-year period of time and then dump them, if they so choose.

"We run a sort of Kleenex society in America. We don't place significant values in things that become our footprints through history. You know — it's a piece of Kleenex. I'll use it momentarily, and then I'll throw it away," Leon said.

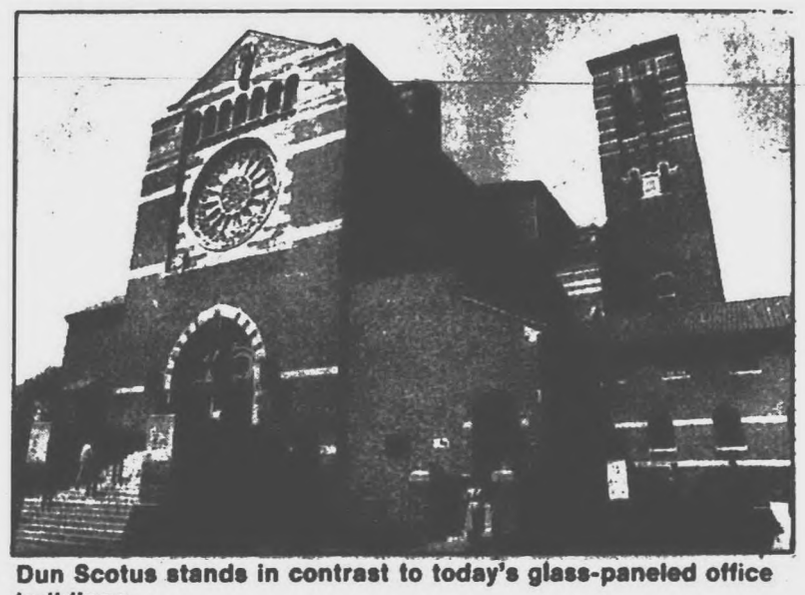

DON GROSS, Southfield's strategic development director, said he could agree with Leon on some points. Gross did not think Southfield, however, was a city without a history. Instead, he noted Southfield hadn't had much time to make tracks in the sand.

"Architecture is one of those things where beauty is in the eye of the beholder and from Southfield's standpoint, we don't have a lot of history to be reflected in our archi-

Architect says buildings should have 'character'

What makes a building architecturally sound?

Louis Redstone, a prominent Livonia architect, said a building should have a character of its own, add cultural character to an area and bring art to architecture.

Redstone — who has been an architect for 50 years — and his architectural design company are known for the Globe Building in Detroit, the Manufacturers National Bank building in Livonia, the Wayne H. Buell building on the Lawrence Technological University campus and the Grand Traverse Tower at the northern Michigan resort, among others.

"People will know it's Southfield and not South America," Redstone said when he talked about what an architect should keep in mind while designing a building. "Know that you're a member (of the community) — that's the most important part."

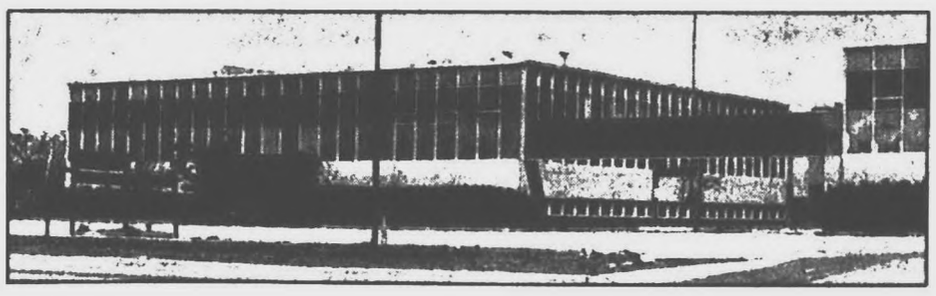

Art in architecture is paramount to Redstone. As president of the Business Consortium for the Arts in Southfield, he thinks that one way to tie buildings together, create a theme and bring art into the community is through sculpture.

He would like to see a piece of sculpture in front of office buildings and might get an opportunity to move his idea along at the Northland Theater. "We are making preliminary sketches now" and conducting an investigation to turn the theater into a performing arts center, Redstone said.

Don Gross, Southfield's strategic planner, confirmed that a feasibility study has been done and that it would cost $3 million to $5 million to convert the theater.

"We're going to pursue it," Gross said.

"I'm hoping to inject some kind of spirit and culture in Southfield," Redstone said. "The city is also trying to inject this kind of a spirit."

Imperial Plaza was called the "kind of a golden-paneled building that demonstrates the taste of Donald Trump more than anything else'" by U of D dean.

Schoolcraft business officer in running for national honor

Vice president gets state title

By Peggy Aulino
staff writer

A Schoolcraft College administrator has been named Regional Outstanding Business Officer by the National Council of Community College Business Officials.

That means Butch Raby, Schoolcraft's vice president of business services, is in the running for the national title, which is awarded each December by the professional organization.

Raby, 48, said he received notification of the regional award several days before Easter. But he had to turn down an offer to pick up his plaque at a Dec. 30 ceremony in Washington, D.C.

"I said 'Thank you, but I'm committed to be away with my family that week,' " Raby said during a recent interview in his office. Then he quipped: "Once in a while they get top priority."

Besides being Schoolcraft's chief financial officer, Raby is involved with about a half dozen professional organizations.

"To stay current with the trends, you need to have that kind of exposure. When I do the day-to-day stuff, that doesn't keep me current," he said.

The "day-to-day stuff" goes beyond keeping an eye on the college's finances. He is responsible for 105 full-time employees in "all of the service enterprises," such as campus security and food services. And when there was a small fire in a campus building recently, "They dragged me out in the middle of the night," Raby said.

"It makes every day interesting because I'm never sure what I'm going to have to tackle," he said.

THE CRITERIA on which Raby was judged was, he said, "How well your own organization is running? Is it financially stable? Is it moving forward? Obviously, we think Schoolcraft is."

Raby said the council goes through a review of potential honorees, whose names are submitted by their peers.

"Quite frankly, I'm not sure how it came about," he said of his nomination for the award.

Raby was born and raised in New Hampshire, but got his higher education in Detroit.

"I came to Wayne State University in the late '60s, met a charming young lady and I've been in Michigan ever since," he said.

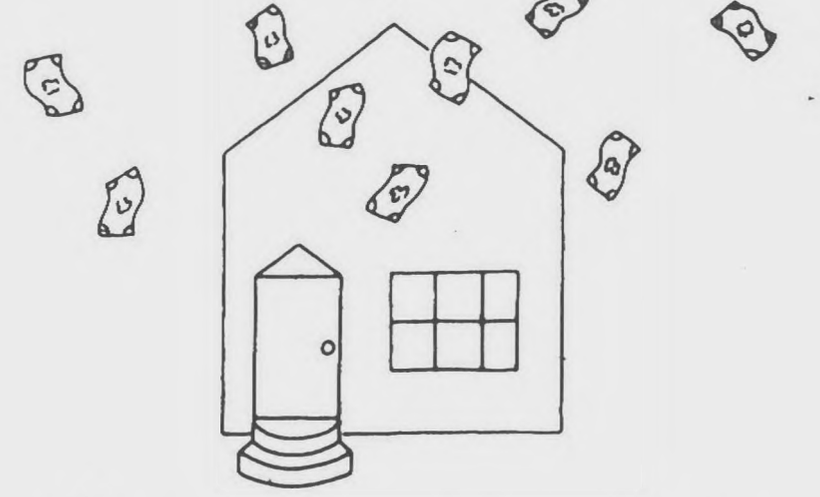

Raby and his wife, Kaye, and their two children live in Novi.

Raby was a teacher and administrator at Monroe Community College before arriving at Schoolcraft in the fall of 1981.

Architecture dean criticizes suburban office buildings

tecture," Gross said, adding the city is barely 30 years old. "But to some degree, I guess I would tend to agree with Bruno Leon."

THAT DEGREE extends to the Imperial Plaza on Eight Mile between Northwestern and Southfield, an office Leon called "kind of a gold-en-paneled building that demonstrates the taste of Donald Trump more than anything else." Gross acknowledged the building hasn't much appeal, but said the Plaza, like many buildings along Eight Mile, was built in the '50s.

"They have no appeal to them currently. They could. And they may in the future.

"In order to retrofit them and make them more attractive to become more competitive, they may have to do some things to just change their curb appeal," Gross said.

GROSS ALSO agreed with Leon on the Prudential Town Center: It probably is the best example of good architecture in the city, largely, in Leon's assessment, due to the spacious indoor garden and large atrium in the original building.

"The way that they were able to build a half a dozen different buildings of different forms and still make them all a part of the same complex, I think, has turned out very well," Gross said.

But Gross didn't see the Northwestern strip, even partially, as the glass wasteland Leon described. Gross cited the Galleria office, a low-slung, vast expanse of angular, multicolored glass on Northwestern south of 12 Mile, as a building he liked.

As to how the buildings fit in with the community, Gross said that while design plans are available for inspection, and residents have the chance to review those plans, few take advantage of the opportunity.

"We don't have them lined up at the counter, but there are people who come in and want to see what the building's going to look like," Gross said.

KARL GREIMEL, dean of the school of architecture at the Lawrence Technological University in Southfield, wonders why people aren't lined up at the counter in Gross' office.

"People today have lost a sense of where they live. Communities flow together, and you can't tell where one begins and one ends," he said. "If you don't create some sense of identity, you don't create a coordinating relationship with people of the area."

Leon and Greimel, whose opinions about architecture appear similar, don't heap the blame for bad buildings on the community alone. Leon added to the list "those developers who are simply interested in the making of money, those architects that participate by actually designing those buildings, and the architectural community at large that doesn't protest."

THEY ALSO think the excuse that today's high costs prohibit recreations of Fisher Building-type structures is a convenient lie perpetuated by greed.

"Good architecture is not more expensive, it's simply more productive and more humane," Greimel said. "The wrong force (money) drives architecture today. People are caught up in stylistic rather than human interests."

Without better architecture, Greimel said neighborhoods deteriorate because "there is no common sharing, no common center.

"I would return to strong, visible symbols of (a) core city. We must maintain a sense of place," Greimel said. "Governmental identities must be established.

"But you can't produce instant history."

Interest rates serve different purposes

By Thomas O'hara
special writer

Please explain the difference between the discount rate, prime rate, federal funds rate and treasury bill, note and bond rates.

The discount rate as an interest rate is what the Federal Reserve charges member banks for loans, using government securities or eligible paper as collateral. This provides a floor on interest rates since banks set their loan rates above the discount rate. Borrowing from the Fed at the discount rate is not something banks do every day. They only go to the Fed when they are short of reserves.

While the discount rate only applies to banks, the prime rate is one that affects us more as individuals. The prime rate is set by each bank as the rate at which it will loan to its most preferred customers.

While the individual bank sets its prime rate, the market is very competitive. When a major bank makes a change, most others quickly follow suit. If a lead bank makes an change and others do not follow it, it probably will be forced by competition to get back in line with the majority of banks.

When banks have more money than their reserve requirements, they deposit this money at the Federal Reserve. This money becomes known as federal funds. Banks lend this money to one another, and the interest rate on them is the federal funds rate.

The rate changes daily and is the most sensitive interest rate. The text books say the rate is a free market rate set by pressure on the banks for money. While that is true, the Fed can affect the rate by changing the reserve requirement it sets for banks.

Treasury bills are issued weekly for 91 days, 182 days or occasionally a year. An offering announcement is issued on Teusday, and the auction is the following Monday. Individuals usually pay the price set by the larger bidders.

The bills sell at a discount from face value, and the "interest" is the difference between the selling price and the face value.

Individuals buy treasury bills from their nearest Federal Reserve Bank or branch. They pay a fee if they buy them from a regular bank or broker. The rate is determined by the discount from face value at which the bill is bought.

Treasury notes are also issued by the Treasury Department and have maturities of one to 10 years. The denominations are from $1,000 to $1 million or more.

Treasury bonds have maturities of 10 years or more and also are available in units of $1,000 or more. The rates on both treasury notes and bonds are determined, like bills, at the auctions at which they are sold.

Personal contact best way to build business

Lee Douglas

Setting up shop in a busy mall may automatically guarantee exposure, even if those who stop by are only curiosity seekers. But people operating a business out of their home cannot rely on location or the reputation of an already successful company to steer clients their way.

Of the many ways to promote a business, research shows that personal contact, or networking, can be among the best. With a little investigation work, you will find there are numerous organizations in the area that provide networking opportunities. For help in the search, call your local chamber of commerce or ask for help from a research libararian for names of associations in your field.

Once you've decided to attend a networking function, maximize your effectiveness by preparing for the event. First, arrive early. Food is usually served, and the best time for meeting people is before the food is served. Carrying businesses cards is a must. Circulate as much as possible and introduce yourself. Pass out business cards to the people you meet and ask for theirs. Find out as much information as you can about the people to whom you speak, especially those who would be most likely to use your services.

If dinner is served, sit with those you have never met. Have each person introduce him or herself and do your best to remember and use names when adddressing others. Check out resource tables. You may be allowed to place your company materials here. Some organizations use a bulletin board where those attending can place their business cards. This can provide a way of discovering contacts you should meet before the event ends. Listen to the speaker for helpful tips. Don't pass up the opportunity to circulate one last time before the meeting ends.

Followup is critical to networking. After the meeting, jot notes about those with whom you need to speak while you can still remember details about them or their company. Then use the information when you make the contact, whether it be a telephone call, mailing or personal visit. Best of all, develop a standard procedure or system when networking and then stick to it.

Buyback guarantees pinching auto makers

Dan McCosh

By Dan McCosh
special writer

I was a bit early to take advantage of the huge runup in prices of collectible classic cars when I bought a slightly used, bilious green AMC Concord with a Gucci interior for $250 from one happy seller, who stood next to the car, patting it on its fender, which moved slightly, causing a slight dusting of rust to roll out in an ominous cloud from the wheel well.

"This car's going to be worth a lot of money some day," he said, then adding. "But not today."

WHICH ALSO turns out to be the plight of the makers of certain luxury cars today, according to a recent article in Automotive News. Cadillac's Allante, Ford's Scorpio and some Audi's were sold a couple of years ago under a deal that guaranteed a fixed value when the car was traded in on new car of the same make, sort of like a pop bottle. Mercedes likewise has been propping up used-car prices through a buyback program in its dealerships to encourage customers to trade in on brand-new cars.

The effect is that most of these companies are starting to pay out sizeable sums of money to owners attempting to unload luxury cars in a market glutted with aging status symbols.

GUARANTEED BUYBACK prices were one of those things that seemed like a good idea at the time, since the notion of certain luxury brands being "good investments" has been a selling point for decades.

Actually, high resale prices for certain luxury cars, notably Mercedes and BMW, stemmed mainly from the rapid escalation in price of a new replacement for the same model. With BMW five-series sedans selling for roughly triple what they fetched 10 years ago, an old model that runs still is worth something. The catch is that the difference between a used BMW and a new model today exceeds the price of the car bought new six years or so ago.

IN A strange sort of way, this scenario means that capping the runup in luxury car prices, or worse yet, introducing actual cuts as Porsche has done recently, affects the secondary used-car market far more strongly that it used to.

It's worse for some brands than others, as the current crop of recognizable status cars is diluted by yet more brands coming into the market this fall. Yet others fall from grace due to a spate of bad publicity or a change in the public's taste.

ONE OF the ironies of rapidly depreciating used-car prices is that it tends to create tremendous bargains for two- to three-year-old cars, particularly for oddball models that never quite took off. A used Renault Fuego, for example, or a top line Mitsubishi.

Also, while luxury cars struggle to hold some value in the classifieds, more mundane hardware, particularly used trucks and minivans, have become the Cadillacs of the transportation special sections. It's tough to find any minivan today selling for much less than half its original price, while any pickup with enough metal remaining so that you can stand in the bed costs a couple of thousand.

SOMETHING LIKE Hollywood, I suppose, where the character actors have a long and lasting career, while the hot starlets and glamour actors play out when their looks wear out.

On the other hand, there's still something about a big, old Caddy, parked on the back of the lot with a few rust flecks on the side, and a beat-up pair of horns added by a country western star you never heard of.

It's going to be worth a lot of money some day.

It's worth your time to check the return on savings finances and you

Sid Mittra

Part II

Last week we discussed several criteria for savings media solution. This week we will concentrate on the important criterion of return on savings.

Savings Accounts

The most traditional of all bank savings accounts, which were previously called passbook accounts, form the backbone of bank savings. Until the interest rate ceiling was removed in April 1986, the maximum legally allowable rate on regular savings in federally insured institutions was 5.5 percent on savings accounts.

Checking Accounts

Contrary to the commonly held belief, interest can be earned on checking accounts, but only if certain stated criteria are met. Generally, regular checking pays no interest and usually costs about $5 per month. This cost is waived by the bank if a minimum balance of $400 to $500 is maintained. In contrast, NOW (Negotiated Order of Withdrawal) accounts pay interest and also allow check withdrawals.

For those with $5,000 to $20,000 in cash and securities, the AIOAs (All-In-One Accounts) provide the best alternative. These accounts consist of a package of automated cash management, preferential personal treatment and certain investment services provided by the bank.

On the cash management side, the bank covers the check written by the depositor by transferring exactly the right amount from the money-market balance to the checking account. On the investment side, the depositor can use the bank facilities not only for trading securities but also for financial planning, managing real estate investments and trust and estate planning.

Even more important, dividends, interest, and proceeds from the sale of securities are depositied directly into the interest-bearing money market account.

Simple vs. Compound Interest

A common practice among financial institutions is to advertise a high rate on multi-year account, but it is simple interest, not compounded. This practice can be utterly misleading to the neophyte and the unsuspecting saver.

For instance, if ABC bank pays a 10¾ percent simple interest on its five-year CD, and XYZ bank pays just 9 percent interest on its CD compounded annually over the same period, to the uninitated ABC bank looks more attractive, but in reality XYZ bank offers a better deal.

Delayed Deposit Credit

The real yield on a deposit also depends upon the number of days the money is allowed to earn interest. Some banks wait several days before crediting the account with the new deposit. This practice could significantly cut the yield on the new deposit.

Minimum Monthly Balance Requirement

Basically, there are six methods for paying interest:

- low quarterly balance,
- low monthly balance,
- pro-rata balance — FIFO,
- pro-rata balance — LIFO,
- day-of deposit to day-of withdrawal balance, and
- 60 average daily balance.

If a $10,000 deposit is made on Jan. 1 at 5¼ percent, compounded and paid quarterly, under each of the preceding six methods the annual interest would be $535.42. The differences result from the deposit or withdrawal during the interest period and their effect on the final amount of the interest paid, depending on which method of calculation is used.

Grace Period Allowance

Grace days are also important in determining how much interest an account will earn. A grace period for deposits allows savings institutions to pay the interest from the first calendar day of the month and also on deposits withdrawn during the last three business days of a month (called dead days). When a bank allows a grace period, it automatically boosts the real yield.

Other Factors

Other factors that affect real yield include charges for excess withdrawals, penalties for premature closing of accounts and other assorted charges. The effect of these charges and penalties on the real yield can vary greatly depending upon individual policies adopted by various financial institutions.

Legislators OK incinerator ash bill

By Tim Richard
staff writer

State Sen. Vern Ehlers of Grand Rapids and Rep. Ken Sikkema of Grandville are better known to western Michigan political buffs than to metro residents.

But those two Republican lawmakers, with reputations as environmentalists, helped convince wavering lawmakers to pass a bill resolving the state incinerator ash crisis.

"I'm not an expert," said Rep. Gerald Law, R-Plymouth, who said he listened to Sikkema, a member of the conservation and forestry committees. "People who know a lot about the environment said it (House Bill 4311) wasn't bad. Burning it is better than burying it."

The bill requires an intermediate form of landfill for municipal incerators — something less costly than toxic landfills. If signed by Gov. James Blanchard, the law would take effect immediately.

THE CRISIS arose when officials in Jackson County, Detroit and the east side suburbs ran afoul the state Department of Natural Resources.

DNR said their trash incinerators contained enough toxics that the ash should be disposed of in toxic landfills — many times more expensive than standard landfills.

Rep. Michael Griffin, D-Jackson, sponsored a bill to allow an intermediate type known as a "monofill." When his bill flew silently through the House late in March, environmentalists rallied on the State Capitol steps and put heat on Ehlers, chair of the Senate natural resources committee and himself holding a doctorate in physics.

Ehlers made a number of amendments — enough to win 23-13 passage in the Senate and 79-22 House concurrence.

The second House vote gave the measure a bigger majority than the earlier.

Despite their apparent compromise, many suburban lawmakers opposed the measure.

AREA SENATORS voted:

Yes — William Faust, D-Westland, and Richard Fessler, R-Commerce.

No — Doug Cruce, R-Troy, Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, Robert Geake, R-Northville, and George Hart, D-Dearborn.

Excused absence — Rudy Nichols, R-Waterford.

"There's a double standard. Everything is permissible in Detroit," said Hart, whose district includes Garden City. "I listened to my communities," said Hart, who voted no.

Geake voted no because "the standards for potentially toxic landfill material were substantially weakened."

"It opened them up to hazardous substances," said Faxon, another no vote.

But Fessler said he had been approached by representatives of Oakland County Executive Daniel T. Murphy, who told him they were concerned that Oakland's incinerator project could be delayed without it. The county has let a contract on the first of three incinerators to burn 1,500 tons daily of trash.

THE HOUSE vote was:

Yes — Democrat James Kosteva of Canton; Republicans Law, Jan Dolan of Farmington Hills and Gordon Sparks of Troy.

No — Democrats Justine Barns of Westland, John Bennett of Redford, Maxine Berman of Southfield, William Keith of Garden City and Wilfred Webb of Hazel Park; Republicans Lyn Bankes of Livonia, Mat Dunaskiss of Lake Orion, David Honigman of West Bloomfield and Judy Miller of Birmingham.

"We don't need a special category," said Miller.

"I voted with the environmentalists," said Bankes, acknowledging a flood of organized mail opposing the bill. "I want to leave the world safe for my grandchild," said Bankes, whose son John expects to be a father around Christmastime.

But Kosteva said the bill "provides environmental protection that are equal to those of hazardous waste regulations."

"THE GENERAL public doesn't get the whole ream of materials," said Dolan, a freshman serving with Sikkema on the conservation committee.

A yes vote, Dolan said monofills would have a new type of liner that would adequately control any toxic materials.

She announced support of bills that would require separation of batteries, chief sources of toxic lead and cadmium in landfills. Sen. Ehlers is sponsor of such a bill.

"We have to have source separation. We have to have them all," said Dolan.

House defeats 'living will' bill

Saying he was "furious" with his colleagues, Perry Bullard, D-Ann Arbor, denounced Right To Life of Michigan after the House defeated his "living will" bill.

The vote last week was 42 in favor and 59 against.

Bullard said Right to Life "stomps on the rights of 1.5 million older people in this state.

"I simply do not understand how this body can bow to a small, well-financed, vocal minority and allow them to abort the will of the majority," Bullard said.

HOUSE BILL 4174 would have allowed a person to make a revocable, written declaration either before or after an illness strikes.

The individual could authorize all measures to prolong life, permit the use of experimental or non-traditional treatment, or refuse all medical treatment except what is necessary for comfort.

The declaration would not take effect until the person was terminally ill or permanently unconscious.

Barbara Listing, Right To Life of Michigan president, said the Bullard bill would not have precluded withholding food and water from non-dying patients as an acceptable means of causing death.

HERE'S HOW Observer & Eccentric area lawmakers voted:

Yes — Democrats Maxine Berman of Southfield and James Kosteva of Canton; Republicans Lyn Bankes of Livonia, Jan Dolan of Farmington Hills, David Honigman of West Bloomfield, Judith Miller of Birmingham and Gordon Sparks of Trou.

No — Democrats John Bennett of Redford, William Keith of Garden City and Wilfred Webb of Hazel Park; Republicans Mat Dunaskiss of Lake Orion and Gerald Law of Plymouth.

Tour groups see the Palace scene

By Victor Swanson
special writer

IT'S BEEN NEARLY a year since the Palace of Auburn Hills opened.

Maybe you've seen the place. You know, that brownish mass of a building off I-75 at Exit 81. It's the home of the Detroit Pistons and scene of many rock and pop star concerts and other entertainment.

Even if you've been in the audience at the Palace, you haven't had the full opportunity to see the facility. Each Tuesday tour groups can now view the arena where the games and concerts are presented, as well as see some places not always observed by the general public. Tours are offered at 10 a.m., 11 a.m., noon or 1 p.m., by reservation.

Tour groups range from 10 to 40 people. Among the first people to take the recently inaugurated tours were 15 members of the Keenagers of North Perry Baptist Church, Pontiac.

Groups meet their guide at the Palace Grille, reminiscent of places in Hollywood or New York, with seating for 237. Celebrity caricatures on the east wall may have you trying to guess how many faces you recognize.

MARIAN GALLO was tour guide for the Keenagers. She told them about the Palace Grille, the Palace Club and the Palace Lounge, all of which are run by Machus Enterprises, and she let the group look around before the nearly 45-minute tour really got going.

Down a grayish hallway on level three, numbered doors lead to some of the suites, those expensive private rooms with lush, cushioned couches and chair, a projection television and bar. Across the room are glass, sliding doors, offering the tour group its first view of the arena.

The arena was nearly empty. There weren't some 22,000 screaming basketball fans or big-time wrestling fanatics jumping up and down in their seats.

Four people were working around one of the basketball hoops. The big Trinitron screen came to life. A Pistons basketball game tape was being run from the television center.

The guide said the screen is 12-feet wide and 9-feet high and that the lighting grid to the right is moveable. It can be easily raised and lowered, which is important when a lot of lights have to be hung for a concert or other event.

THE GUIDE CLOSED the door to the suite and led the group to the television center. It is made up of three main parts: the control room, where, at event time, you'd find a harried director and staff; the audio room; and the equipment room, where there are five big one-inch-tape machines, used for replays and other things. The tape operator was the person who put that basketball game up on the big screen.

Next on the tour was a press-box level view of the arena.

On the way to the Pistons dressing rooms, you pass other dressing rooms and the press room. In the Pistons' dressing area are showers, a sauna, and workout room, which has a variety of equipment especially for the players. The guide found one of Bill Laimbeer's size 17 basketball shoes. (Anyone on the tour is permitted to take photographs, except for photographs of the players' personal items.)

Finally, after seeing much more, the group went to the heart of the Palace, the arena proper. There are those 55,000 seats. Most importantly, though, is the basketball court. You may not walk on it with your shoes.

The tour also includes lunch which could be, for example, beef stroganoff or seafood newburgh with rice, or the "Tour Special" buffet.

To arrange for a tour of the Palace, contact Jeannie Wilusz, assistant marketing director, or Marilyn Desjardins, marketing director, by telephoning 377-8220. Tour packages per person cost about $9.75, $7.95 or $4.95, mostly depending on which lunch you choose.

The arena site for the Palace of Auburn Hills covers 92.3 acres. The overall building area is 470,000 square feet and building height is 117 feet. The arena is 500 feet in diameter, with 30,000 square feet on the arena floor.

A four-sided video scoreboard offers live-action, instant replays and animated graphics. A total of 180 private suites are located on three levels. The Palace has an in-house TV studio and production facility.

More than 150 events annually are presented at the Palace. The NBA Eastern Conference Champion Detroit Pistons basketball team plays there. Family show spectaculars, major concerts, and collegiate and professional sporting events are among the other activities.

Seating capacity for basketball games is 21,455. For concerts, using the the end stage, seating is 22,519; concerts in the round seat 22,933. Boxing and wrestling can play to 22,859 fans, and circus and hockey, to 20,471.

There are 21 concession stands. Also, an on-site restaurant, lounge and banquet facility, catered by Machus Enterprises.

The box office has 20 club-level ticket windows. In the parking lot, 8,000 spaces await visitors.

Albert Collins travels blues singer's road

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

The voice is graveled. The blues master has seen more road than a semi (truck).

Because of that, a previous appointment for an interview was pushed back. Explained his apologetic manager, "Albert's crashed."

The man who has won a Grammy, appeared at Live Aid and performed concerts with such notable rock 'n' roll acts as the Who, Creedence Clearwater Revival, Grateful Dead and Fleetwood Mac still carries the travel itinerary of a bounty hunter instead of one of music legend. Today, Chicago. Tomorrow, Toledo and next week? Consult the road map.

Albert Collins' story is perhaps no different than many blues performers, though few would be hard-pressed to match the gap between his many accomplishments and his lack of popular acclaim. Even B.B. King is a well-known name, especially after teaming with U2 on "When Love Comes to Town."

Ironically enough, it was the silver screen that brought Collins some instant recognition. He had a cameo role in the film "Adventures in Babysitting."

Things are starting to change, if slowly. The blues are once again becoming popular with the masses, and Collins sounds optimistic.

"I'm glad of it, too, man," said Collins, who will perform Thursday (June 1) at Saint Andrew's Hall in Detroit. "It's been going up and down for so many years. The young kids are listening to it . . . That makes it good for us."

Renewed popularity of the blues makes Albert Collins a name to reckon with. He plays Thursday (June 1) at St. Andrew's Hall in Detroit.

'It's been going up and down for so many years. The young kids are listening to it. . . . That makes it good for us.'

— Albert Collins

THE YOUNG set is also playing it. At the forefront of the revival is one Robert Cray, who carves out a rock-blues sound on his guitar. Some purists disdain such associations, claiming that Cray's sound is more rock 'n' roll than blues.

Collins can relate. His music has acquired a bit of a funk edge through the years.

"I never wanted my music to be like Delta blues," Collins said. "I wanted it to where I was putting on a show with my own style of blues. When you're playing for young kids, they get bored. They like to dance.

"I put myself in their shoes. When I was young, I got a little bored watching the blues."

As a youngster in Houston, Texas, Collins took to the blues sound laid down by John Lee Hooker and Lightin' Hopkins (his cousin). In fact, it was Hooker's rendition of "Boogie Chillun" that made Collins switch from the organ to the guitar.

In 1958, Collins released what would be the first of 13 albums, "The Freeze." "Ice Pickin' " was released in 1979 and was nominated for a Grammy. He struck paydirt in the Grammy department in 1987 for the "Showdown" (Alligator) LP that included Robert Cray and Johnny Copeland.

He developed a penchant for naming albums and songs in cold terms. His latest LP "Cold Snap" (Alligator) is a nine-song work that features Collins' famous tune "Ain't Drunk."

HIS NAME in blues circles has become renowned through constant touring. He has performed in Europe, Japan and Canada in addition to the United States. For a time, a guitarist from Livonia toured with him — Robert Noll.

Noll likes to tell the story about the time that group's bus broke down in the middle of nowhere during a cold winter night. Band members huddled around a kerosene heater until help arrived.

Collins laughs at the memory, perhaps still smelling the kerosene today.

"He (Noll) was a real good guitar player," Collins said. "We had a lot of fun playing together."

Such incidents make for great stories, which Collins tells through song. For instance, a pair of numbers ("Defrost" and "Frosty") came out of a road anecdote when a band member asked Collins to turn on the defroster.

Already, Collins has a 14th album in the works. He will begin recording in August.

"I'm looking for some material," he said. "I got a little material. I don't know exactly what I'm going to do. Once you get into the studio, you start to get ideas. I'm going to keep my fingers crossed."

Birds needs a hand building nests

TIM NOWICKI/Illustration

Birds that build nests to raise their young expend a great deal of energy in this endeavor. Some suburban yards are so well manicured that it is hard for a robin to find any dried grasses or mud to use as nest material.

For eons now, winter has merged into spring as days lengthen, and temperatures slowly rise. Warm weather may not come at exactly the same time each year, but as time continues spring will melt into summer.

This predictability in climate has been engrained in the behavior of all species of animals. They begin raising and feeding young in spring because the warm months ahead provide abundant food and mild temperatures. Those that start early enough generally get to raise more young.

Birds that build nests to raise their young expend a great deal of energy in this endeavor. Some suburban yards are so well manicured that it is hard for a robin to find any dried grasses or mud to use as nest material. So in order to help the various species of birds nesting in your yard, why not supply some natural materials for them to use.

By placing concentrated sources of nesting material in your yard, birds will not have to spend as much time searching for suitable material. This allows them to get down to the business of egg laying and incubation sooner. It will also provide you with an opportunity to watch them gather the material, and possibly to watch them build the nest.

nature

Timothy Nowicki

DRIED GRASSES may be accumulated into a wire mesh gage similar to that used for a suet feeder. Material will not blow away and yet the birds will be able to see it. Do not hide it from their view, or your view.

If you have a long haired dog, put some of the hair you comb out into a similar wire mesh. In one museum 78 percent of the nests examined contained animal hair. Most birds use it to line the cup of the nest which is in direct contact with the nestlings.

Some birds, like robins and barn swallows, use mud in their nest construction. Providing a shallow puddle with a dirt bottom can help these species to complete their nest. A readily available source can be very handy if you are a barn swallow that has been known to make 1,200 trips to get mud for a single nest.

Casino gambling rolls snake eyes in Senate

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Hopes for casino gambling — in the western Upper Peninsula or anywhere else — were dashed as the Michigan Senate shot down a bill to permit it.

Sponsor Joe Mack, D-Ironwood, asked for reconsideration but appeared less than hopeful after Tuesday's 15 to 22 vote.

"It's not a gambling act. It's an economic revitalization act," said Mack, reciting the grim economic statistics of Gogebic County, for which the bill is intended.

Opponents said the definition of "economically distressed" was loose enough that the bill, if enacted, could be applied in many areas of the state.

OPPOSING MACK'S bill were area senators Doug Cruce, R-Troy, Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, Robert Geake, R-Northville, George Hart, D-Dearborn, and Rudy Nichols, R-Waterford.

"Since 1837," said Faxon, "gambling has not been held up as a virtue, a profession or an occupation. Gambling is an addictive habit. It's not designed to win. It's for professional losers."

Faxon launched into a stem-winding speech with such words as "grimy, vulturous and decadent" before closing with the admonition: "Let Hell, Mich., be only a city and not a state reality."

"Very bad public policy," added Geake. "It encourages people to spend in the hopes of getting something for nothing. It opens the door for organized crime."

TO SEN. John Kelly, D-Grosse Pointe Farms, the Mack bill was "a sub rosa attempt" to bring casino gambling into Michigan by starting in the most-remote corner of the UP.

"Gogebic is a sham. They want to start as far away from Detroit as you can get it," Kelly said.

The bill defines "economically distressed" as "the condition of a countywide economy which has historically been based on mineral resources which have been sufficiently depleted or commercially inaccessible so as to make them exhausted relative to economic viability. . ."

The definition includes "high unemployment, low median family income, high property tax rates, high average age of its residents, family stress related to the geographic loss of young people because of inadequate local opportunity, high millage rates, air and rail transportation services below average levels, and school facilities below current standards."

Mack said he had invited "responsible people" to look over prospects, and they foresaw a $100 million investment in a convention center, health spa, tennis, swimming, golf and hotel as well s a casino.

Permitted games would have been baccarat, blackjack, craps, roulette, bix six, poker, sports, book, keno and minibaccarat.

SENATORS REJECTED an amendment by Gilbert DiNello, D-East Detroit, to allow all 83 counties to hold referendums on casino gambling.

Sens. Jack Welborn, R-Kalamazoo, said, "Casinos are operating on Indian reservations. They're not doing that well."

The roll call vote cut across party lines. Mack's bill was supported by five Republicans and 10 Democrats, including minority leader Art Miller of Warren. It was opposed by 16 Republicans and six Democrats, including majority leader John Engler, R-Mount Pleasant. One Democrat missed the vote.

If you're over 35, ask your doctor about mammography.
AMERICAN CANCER SOCIETY

Give yourself a hand against breast cancer

Breast self-examination is easy, takes only a few minutes and can be performed in the privacy of your own home. It's an important way you can detect early and highly curable breast cancer. Through monthly breast self-examinations, you will learn how your normal breast tissue feels and will be able to recognize a change if one occurs. In fact, most breast lumps are found by women themselves.

Take control of your body and your life.

Make breast self-examination a part of your monthly routine. And see your doctor regularly for clinical exams and advice on mammography.

For a free pamphlet about breast self-examination, call your local American Cancer Society.

We're here to help.

EXPERIENCE A CAR WHOSE ONLY LIMITATION IS ITS AVAILABILITY.

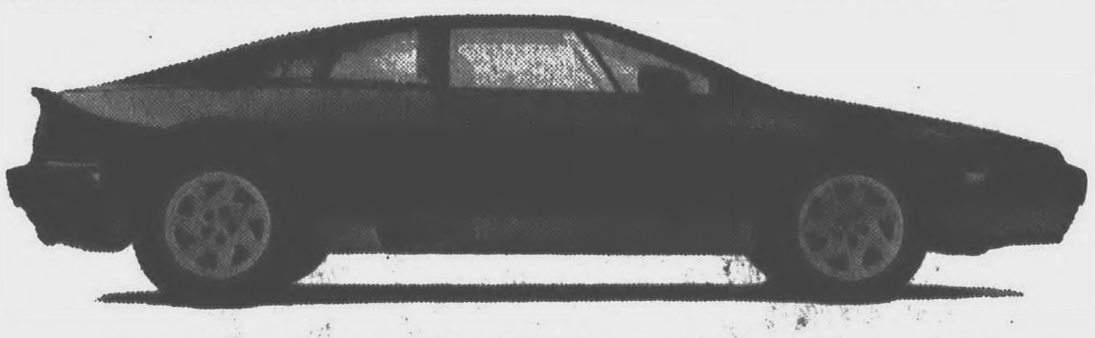

Once outside the factory, a Lotus Esprit Turbo can rocket you from 0 to 60 MPH in only 5.2 seconds and on up to nearly 160 MPH with seeming effortlessness.

Inside the factory, however, it travels at a somewhat slower pace. Each and every Lotus receives three months of meticulous assembly, hand-fitting, hand-finishing and paintwork that's nine coats deep.

While this excessive fine tuning doesn't result in an excessive number of Lotus Esprit Turbos, fewer than 500 fortunate drivers this year will discover it's well worth the effort.

To be among them, contact your Lotus dealer for a test drive. And experience a car that commands as much attention in the factory as it does on the road.

District bound

Plymouth Canton third baseman Karen Keenan crosses home plate during an earlier game for the Chiefs, who will compete in the Class A district tournament Saturday at Howell. Canton, 20-7 overall, defeated Brighton 11-7 last Friday in the predistrict round and will play No. 6-rated Ann Arbor Pioneer, which eliminated Western Lakes Activities Association champion Northville, at 10 a.m. Saturday.

E. Lansing upsets defending champs

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

About the time the mid-Michigan skies closed up Wednesday evening so did the East Lansing goal.

Following a 45-minute storm delay, the Trojans held Plymouth Canton scoreless during the final 27⅓ minutes of the girls regional soccer game and rallied for a 3-2 victory over the defending state champion.

The outcome means the Class A winner, for the first time in three years, will not come from the Plymouth-Canton area. The No. 2-rated Chiefs finish with a 14-3 record, and unranked East Lansing advances with a 15-2-1 mark.

"We'll come back and play next year," Canton coach Don Smith said. "It's pretty tough to repeat. The girls had in mind they could do it, but it sort of slipped through our fingers."

The Chiefs took a 2-1 lead early in the second half when Shannon Meath converted Jenny Russell's corner kick, and it was shortly after that a severe storm passed over the field at McDonald Middle School in East Lansing.

THE OFFICIALS suspended play because of the danger presented by the lightning the rainstorm included. The teams returned to a soaked and sloppy playing surface at 6:45 p.m., but the ball took an East Lansing bounce after the delay.

The underdog Trojans, not considered one of the state's top teams as determined by the coaches poll, had plenty of incentive in taking on highly regarded Canton, according to Carrie Thomas, who scored two East Lansing goals, including the game winner on a direct free kick.

"That definitely made us want to come out and try our best," she said. "That's something that motivated me and motivated our whole team.

"We had no idea coming in what we were like against a team from the suburbs of Detroit," she added, "and we really wanted to see how we matched up and what we could do."

Thomas' free kick from 25 yards out sailed high and long, and it snuck between the upper right corner of the Canton goal, too high for a leaping Michelle Fortier to reach.

"I've had a lot of direct kicks lately," Thomas said, "and I've been working a lot on shots like that, hoping I could put one in in a game that really counts."

THE TROJANS had tied the score by taking advantage of a rare Canton defensive lapse shortly after the interruption.

The ball popped into the Canton end, and Stephanie Rummel fired a shot from the right corner before the Chiefs could set up defensively. Fortier came out to get the ball but lost her footing on the wet surface, leaving the ball free for Nicole Mitchell to knock into the open net.

"We got caught napping on the second goal, and they were pretty fired up after that," said Smith, adding he didn't think the delay was a factor in deciding the game.

"Not only (did Fortier fail to cover the ball), but we didn't have anybody back. All of a sudden only their player is there. It was a strange situation. We don't get caught like that very often.

"We came out playing pretty well (after the delay)," he added. "I think we still outplayed them on the wet field, but they still outscored us and that's the thing that counts."

Canton dominated play early in the game, but four shots on goal were turned away by Trojan keeper Sherri Dressel, who made key saves to keep the Chiefs off the scoreboard late in the second half.

THOMAS ADDED to the Canton frustration when she converted a penalty kick for the game's first goal. The Chiefs, however, forced a 1-1 halftime time when Russell lifted a left-footed shot that curved from right to left and into the Trojan goal.

"We were kind of the sleeper team," East Lansing coach Nick Archer said. "People overlooked us because there's only two teams (the Trojans and Okemos) in this area that play soccer. This is a great win for the girls."

Though the brunt of the storm had passed, the rain and lightning continued throughout the second half, and both coaches thought the officials should have stopped the game.

With the score tied 2-2, Archer and his staff brought the matter to the referee's attention repeatedly.

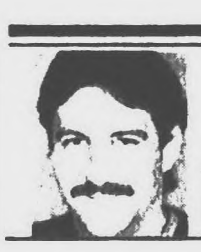

"We were 30 seconds from pulling our team off the field when we were behind and ahead," Archer said. "I was more concerned about the girls' safety.

"(The referee) let us know it was his decision, but we let him know if it continued we were pulling our team off the field. In retrospect, nobody got hurt, but it was a real quandary."

Archer said it was a moment-to-moment situation whether to pull his team or not. For the Chiefs, it would have been best if the game had not been restarted. Canton would have won 2-1, though Smith didn't belabor that fact.

"I WAS SURPRISED we even got started again with all the lightning that was going on," Smith said. "They'll wait until somebody does get hurt and then decide they have to change things."

Charting year's top hits in sports

BACKTRACKING.

It's a favorite with anybody. Terminology may differ, but it amounts to the same thing — this adulation of memories.

How else could movie sequels proliferate? And "classic rock" radio stations? And Elvis lookalikes?

Comparisons with — and memories of — the past are an integral part of sports. And there are few years in a person's life that are as fixed in time as those he/she spends in high school.

With that in mind, and with the end of another school year in sight, here are a few of the more notable headlines of the past nine months from Observer & Eccentric land. Not all the news is happy, but most is worth remembering.

BASKETBALL BLISS: Believe me, the O&E area has boasted far better basketball talent than last season's, but rarely have teams fared so well.

In girls basketball, the Jennifer Shasky-led Birmingham Marian Mustangs romped to a Class A championship, and Shasky copped the state's Miss Basketball award — the second in a row for O&E land (Dena Head won in '88) and third overall (Emily Wagner of Livonia Ladywood got the first, in 1984).

In boys basketball, Detroit Country Day was an easy winner in Class C — thanks to Chris Webber. Since Webber's just completing his sophomore year, it's probably a good idea for the Yellowjackets to jump up a class and compete in B next year. Class C was no challenge.

Whenever such success stories surface, however, someone else is overlooked. Troy enjoyed its finest boys season ever, going 23-3 and reaching the Class A quarterfinals before losing to perennial state runner-up Detroit Southwestern. Rochester (21-1) and Auburn Heights Avondale (20-3) also enjoyed outstanding seasons.

SOCCER FIRSTS: After Plymouth Canton out-penalty-kicked Livonia Churchill for the Class A girls title last year, the Michigan High School Athletic Association decided state championship games still tied after overtime would mean a co-championship.

It wasn't a popular decision among coaches, but most didn't like the shoot-out format, either. So what happened? Two of the three boys title matches end in ties: Madison Heights Bishop Foley vs. Richland Gull Lake in Class B and Country Day vs. Muskegon Western Michigan Christian in Class C-D. Only Livonia Stevenson — always, it seems, the team to beat in Class A — won an outright crown.

The girls soccer state champ won't be decided for another week, but already the tournament is lacking something of note — a team from Livonia. Since the first statewide tourney in 1983, a Livonia school has been in the state finals. This year, not one got as far as the quarters. Stevenson was the last hope, but the Spartans lost to Northville 3-1 Saturday.

PRO PRIZES: Last year, for the first time ever, the O&E area was represented at the top level of all four major pro sports.

Todd Krumm (from West Bloomfield) played football with the Chicago Bears; Chris Sabo (from Redford Catholic Central) was baseball's National League rookie of the year with the Cincinnati Reds, and Pat Sheridan (from Wayne Memorial) is well-known to Tiger fans; Al Iafrate (from Livonia) was a defenseman with hockey's Toronto Maple Leafs; and John Shasky (from Bloomfield Hills) was a rookie center with basketball's Miami Heat.

Incidentally, it was a big year for the Shaskys. Jennifer, the Birmingham Marian star, is John's sister.

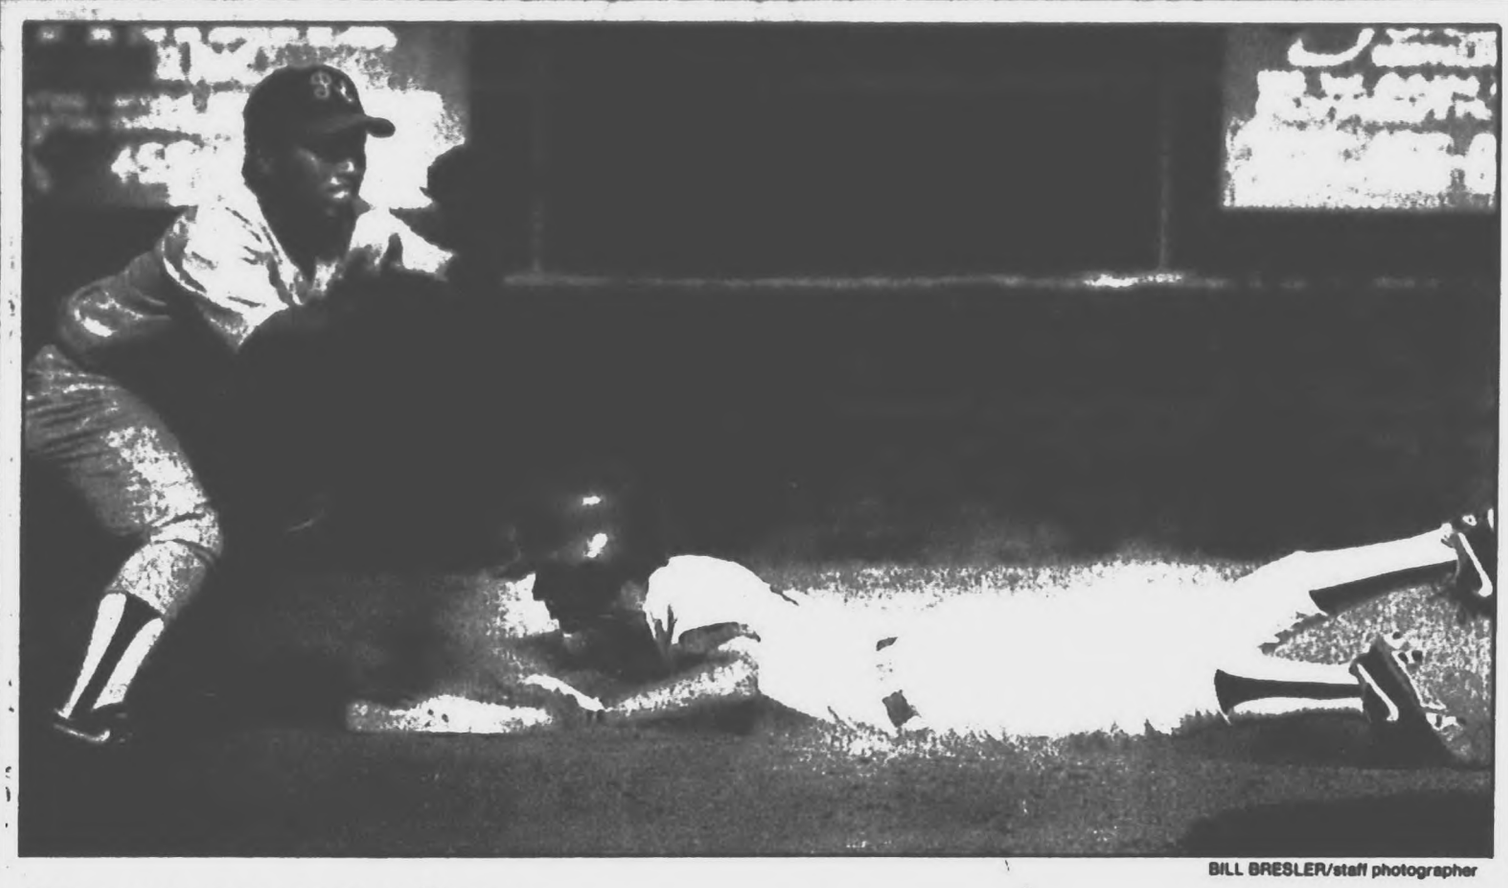

SOUTHFIELD BURNING: Charges are still pending against Carlton Collins and Ron Hairston in connection with the Feb. 20 fire that resulted in $3 million worth of

Tournament play

Mikio Tanaka, second baseman for the Plymouth Canton baseball game, awaits the throw from his catcher during an earlier game with Salem. Tanaka and his teammates will play Farmington at 10 a.m. Saturday in the district tournament at Northville. The winner faces either Livonia Stevenson or Livonia Churchill at 3 p.m. In the annual Plymouth Tournament last Saturday, Canton lost 11-8 to Dearborn Divine Child in the final. The Chiefs beat Belleville 8-0 and Divine Child blanked Salem 5-0 in first-round games.

Schmid pitches club into district

baseball

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

When he gave up a first-inning home run to North Farmington's Joe Sturtz, Chris Schmid might have thought he and his teammates were in for a long afternoon.

He might have, but he didn't.

Schmid ended up pitching a complete game, allowing only five more hits, as Farmington defeated the host Raiders 6-3 in a Class A predistrict baseball contest Friday.

The Falcons, 10-11 overall, will face Plymouth Canton at 10 a.m. Saturday in the district tournament at Northville. North ends the season at 12-11.

"I know Joe is a good hitter," Schmid said, "so I tried to keep my poise and tell myself you expect a guy like that to do that once in a while.

"It was early in the game, and I knew we were going to get some runs."

'I know Joe (Sturtz) is a good hitter, so I tried to keep my poise and tell myself you expect a guy like that to (hit a home run) once in a while. It was early in the game, and I knew we were going to get some runs.'

— Chris Schmid
Farmington's winning pitcher

FARMINGTON DID that in the third inning when it scored all six, wiping out the 2-0 lead North took on Sturtz' blast over the right-center field fence.

The Falcons had six of their eight hits in that inning and were helped by two North errors. P.J. Green and Scott Lakatos had two-run singles, and Kevin VanOrd and Gary Shelp singled home the other runs.

North starter Tim McEvilly finished that inning, but sophomore sensation Andrew Margolick replaced him to begin the fourth.

North coach Irv Horwitz blamed himself for the loss. With two on and two out in the Farmington third, he wished he had called for an intentional pass to Green and then regretted not pulling McEvilly after Green got the game-tying hit.

"Tim is a helluva pitcher, but I made a mistake with runners on second and third," Horwitz said. "Then, instead of taking him out, I let him go, and if I had taken him out it might have changed the whole game."

Horwitz had Margolick warming up and would have brought him in sooner, but he hesitated to bring his young pitcher in to face a difficult situation.

"ANDREW TAKES a while to warm up, so I didn't think he was ready coming from first base," Horwitz said. "I thought he needed an inning to warm up, but he didn't. That's where I was wrong."

Margolick allowed only one hit in the final four innings, but neither could the Raiders get to Schmid, who was helped by three double plays.

VanOrd, the shortstop, produced one of the game's big defensive plays in the fifth. The Raiders had runners at first and second with nobody out when VanOrd scooped up a ground ball off the bat of Chris White, stepped on second and relayed to first for the second out.

Schmid, who struck out seven, walked five and hit one batter, allowed one hit — the Sturtz homer — through four innings. North got three of its remaining five in the sixth, but the Raiders got only one run after an outfield error allowed Sturtz to take third on a lead-off single.

"When we made those errors in that one inning, I was a little upset," Schmid said, "but I kept thinking 'be positive.'

"(The solid start) gets your confidence going. You're more sure of things. We took the attitude 'Hey, we've got it right now and we've got to keep putting it on them."

THE FALCONS had reason to be wary of the big inning and comfortable lead, having learned the hard way this year not to count the 'W' until the game is over. Farmington has seen four apparent victories slip away in the last inning.

"We've had a couple games when we had big innings," Farmington coach Kevin Kansman said. "Sometimes you win on that and sometimes you don't.

"I was just a little worried (about Schmid). He walked a couple guys on four pitches, and he doesn't do that. And when the wind is blowing you have to be ready for anything."

The weather was ideal for baseball, but a strong wind made for uncertain conditions. Schmid, however, thought the wind was an ally more than an obstacle, adding it turned his fastball into a pitch resembling a changeup.

"The wind helped my knuckleball," he said. "It helped give me some movement on the knuckleball and slowed down the fastball, too. I was trying to change speeds all day."

Kansman added the victory and possibility of winning a district title is a morale booster for his squad.

"This really helps," he said. "If we do well next Saturday, it's really going to help our season. If we had lost today, it would have been a tough off season, because this team is much better than its record."

Darkowski key to Hines Park win

baseball

The Livonia Collegiate Baseball League started up its 1989 season with a trio of games Friday.

Hines Park Lincoln-Mercury defeated Duffy's Plumbing 6-4 in a game played at Ford Field.

Derek Darkowski, who plays college baseball at Michigan State, pitched seven strong innings for Hines Park to pick up the victory. He allowed six hits, three walks and struck out three.

Dennis Sechowski supported Darkowski's pitching with a two-run single in the first innning off losing pithcer Joe Jentzer. Hines Park scored five runs in the first two innings to chase Jentzer, the first of four Duffy's pitchers.

However, Duffy's scratched back, scoring two runs in the fifth and one more in the seventh to lighten up the score. It almost pulled out the victory, loading the bases in the seventh inning before Darkowski got the final out.

Duffy's coach Rey Fracassi thought his team easily could have won the game.

"We hit Darkowski," he said. "But their center fielder (Scott Wladischkin) made two outstanding plays on us, or we would have had the ball game won."

WALTER'S HOME Appliance also was victorious in its opening game Friday, besting Little Caesars 7-4.

John Gotts' bases-loaded triple in the fifth inning was the big blow for Walter's. Dave Houghtby and Eric Opalach started the fifth inning rally by getting on via a pair of base on balls. Damian Hall then singled to load the bases for Gotts.

Gotts also added a single in the game, going 2-for-4.

Randy Buchler (Hillsdale College) went the distance on the mound for Walter's and gave up four hits to gain the win. He struck out six and walked seven.

Billy DeFillipo shut down Tom Holzer Ford on three hits Friday, and Wendy's cruised to a 5-1 victory in a game played at Washtenaw Community College.

Jamie Schmunk had two hits and two RBI to lead Wendy's hitting attack.

Holzer Ford's pitchers limited Wendy's to only five hits, but four Holzer Ford errors proved costly.

GREG'S EMERGENCY Room compiled three victories and two losses in action last week in the Michigan-Ontario International Baseball League.

On Wednesday, Greg's split a doubleheader with Advanced Uniform, losing the opener 9-3 and winning the nightcap 2-1 in eight innings.

Greg's defeated CJ Express by a 10-3 count last Thursday.

Greener was again the hitting star, pounding a two-run homer and driving in four runs. Teammate Dave Mondoux contributed two RBI, courtesy of a pair of sacrifice flies.

Mondoux also contributed on the mound by tossing a nine-hitter and striking out seven.

Earlier in the week, Greg's split a pair of games Sunday with Windsor. Greg's won the first game 9-8 but lost the rematch 10-6.

In other games played last Sunday, Tecumseh swept a pair of games from CJ Express, 9-1 and 14-3, and Sarnia took two from GJ Sewer, 8-5 and 12-2.

On Tuesday, GJ Sewer defeated CJ Express 4-2 in eight innings, and Sarnia bested CJ Express 12-0. In games played last Wednesday and Thursday, Windsor beat GJ Sewer 9-8, and CJ Express 13-3.

The records for the teams in the league as of last Thursday are as follows: Sarnia 8-1, Tecumseh 7-2, Greg's Emergency Room 5-3, Advanced Uniform 5-5, Windsor 4-4, GJ Sewer 3-6, and CJ Express 0-11.

college sports

The season's over, and University of Detroit's baseball team can only think its ending came too soon.

The Titans needed one more win to reach the NCAA tournament, but they fell in the Midwestern Collegiate Conference tournament to Notre Dame twice on the last day, 4-1 and 21-10.

Still, several local products enjoyed banner seasons for U-D. Dennis Bushart, a junior from Redford Union who switched from shortstop to second base at midseason, was named to the all-MCC first team. Bushart suffered a severe knee injury before the final regular-season weekend of games, but he had a .287 average with six doubles, a triple, a homer and 25 runs batted in.

Named to the all-MCC second team was sophomore shortstop Rick Tavormina, from Westland John Glenn. Tavormina hit .328 with seven doubles, a triple, a home run and 26 RBI.

Pat Miller, a junior righthander from RU, enjoyed his finest season as a Titan, compiling a 6-1 record with a 3.75 earned run average. Miller was named to the MCC's all-tournament team after pitching 9⅔ innings against Evansville and allowing seven hits and two runs.

Others worth noting: sophomore catcher Mike Stefanski (from RU), .336 average, nine doubles, one triple, 24 RBI; sophomore first baseman Lance Sullivan (Livonia Churchill), .331, seven doubles, two triples, two homers, 29 RBI; and senior lefthander Mark Coburn (Plymouth Canton), 4-2 record, 4.35 ERA.

U-D finished its season with a 30-26-1 overall record, 17-7 in the MCC . . .

Mary Hebert, a sophomore outfielder for Western Michigan's softball team from Garden City, was instrumental in the Broncos' success this season. Hebert hit .239 with three doubles, three triples, a homer and 23 RBI, as WMU reversed its 16-42 record of 1988 (8-24, eighth in the Mid-American Conference) to 38-20 this year (20-10 in the MAC, third) . . .

Henry Miller, a sophomore righthanded pitcher for Wayne State from Westland (Livonia Franklin), was an honorable mention selection to the all-Great Lakes Conference baseball team. Miller finished 5-4 overall with a 3.36 ERA, and he led the Tartars with 41 strikeouts. In the GLIAC, Miller was 3-1 with a 2.00 ERA .

Glenn survives weather, WLAA foes

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Westland John Glenn managed to dodge the thunder, lightning and rain — as well as 11 other schools — to win the Western Lakes Activities Association boys track championship Wednesday at Plymouth Salem.

The two-day ordeal began Tuesday at Livonia Churchill, but it was well worth the wait for coach Richard Gordon and his Rockets, who came on strong during the meet's final four events to wrap up the title, scoring 178½ points. Churchill was second with 146, while Salem and Livonia Stevenson placed third and fourth, respectively. (See statistical summary.)

"We had a long talk with our kids after we got back to the school (on Tuesday) and we talked about how the community had supported us all season long and we were going back today with some pride," Gordon said. "Our mission was to win the conference."

When the meet was halted with four events to go late Tuesday, Glenn trailed Churchill, 128-122½.

But the Rockets came back Wednesday at Salem, site of the girls venue, like a bolt out of the sky, as Andrew Dobbins and Ferlin Whitlow finished one-two in the 200-meter dash. Carl Lowe and David Ryan also went one-two in the 800, while the Rockets closed out the meet with a first in the 1,600 relay (Steve Wiseley, Quentin Lott, Ryan and Lowe) in a meet record time of 3:27.06.

GORDON, however, had to be concerned about the inclement weather, particularly after a snow squall cut short his team's bid to win the Observerland Relays, which was stopped with six events to go on May 6. Host Churchill was declared the winner.

"You have to lose some battles to win the war," said Gordon, whose team won the title in 1987. "But our season has been great. We were second at the Elks Relays, Dick Waters Relays and at Observerland. We're division champs and now we're conference champs. And we were second in the regional to a tough Southfield team.

"Of all the teams I've coached in my 27 years, this is one of the best I've ever coached."

Churchill rolled up 47 points to Glenn's 31½ in the field events, but the Rockets quickly bounced back, opening the running portion of the meet with a victory in the 3,200 relay as Joe Zawol, Jim Zurawski, Jason Nowicki and Ryan clocked a season best 8:12.0.

Gordon juggled his relay lineup and shifted others to score in some of the other individual events. The strategy paid off. Glenn also captured the 800 and 1,600 relays, along with a second in the 400 relay.

DOBBINS, swept the 100 and 200 dashes, while Lowe won the 400 in 49.9 and the 800 in 2:01.3, along with anchoring the victorious 1,600 relay.

Ferlin Whitlow was second in both the 110 and 300 hurdles. He also gained second in the 200 and was a member of the first-place 800 relay squad along with Prentice Barker, Lowe and Dobbins.

"It takes every individual to win a meet like this, even an eighth place in the shot put by Garnett Woody inspired us," Gordon said. "The Churchill squad gave everything they had. You can't deny their effort.

"Every single individual for us gave his all."

Churchill senior Jason Belaire certainly tried to put the Chargers over the top single-handedly, setting WLAA meet records in the high jump (6 feet, 7inches) and 110 hurdles (14.5). He also captured the 300 hurdles.

"We can't complain, almost all of our kids ran their personal bests," said Churchill assistant coach Dave Westover, who was filling in for head coach Fred Price, who was out of town because of a death in the family. "The delay hurt us and I don't think it hurt them (Glenn) one bit. And I think Dick (Gordon) would agree. They just had more speed."

SALEM COACH Gary Balconi figured it was a longshot to overhaul either Glenn or Churchill, but was satisfied with his team's effort.

"Glenn made a great finish," he said. "And Churchill had a great meet, they ran well. Like Glenn, we're young. We made a couple of major mistakes, but we went 7-1 in dual meets this season and I'm proud of the guys. Third was the best I felt we could do."

Stevenson, thanks to a series of smooth handoffs, captured the 400 relay as Mark Thomas, Greg Allan, Ryan Myers and Mike O'Keefe were clocked 45.4.

One of the meet's top performers was Walled Lake Western's Brian Grosso, who shattered both the 1,600 and 3,200 league records.

The Western senior went 4:14.6 in the 1,600 and 9:06.15 to win the 3,200.

Other individual firsts were garnered by Zaim Cunmulaj of North Farmington, discus, 167 feet, 1 inches; Jason Gutting of Farmington, shot put, 48-5½; and Dennis DiLorenzo of Livonia Franklin, pole vault, 12-0.

Marlins fare well

Farmington Hills Mercy had six members of its track and field team earn all-city honors Saturday in the annual Operation Friendship meet at the University of Detroit High School.

The meet annually pits the best teams and athletes from the Detroit Catholic League against the best of the Detroit Public School League.

The Marlins were second in the team standings behind Detroit DePorres, but they finished ahead of Dearborn Divine Child, which edged Mercy for first place in the Catholic League A-B Division meet earlier last week.

Mercy's Charese Sanders was the city champion in the shot put with a throw of 36 feet, 6 inches, and teammate Jeanette Turner broke a long-standing school record while finishing second in the discus. Her mark of 117-1 surpassed the throw of 115-3 set by Beth Bosse in 1979.

The Marlins also were second in the 3,200-meter relay with Kathleen Gerigk, Heather Noll, Carrie Walton and Lauren Hood finishing in 10:10. The top three in each event were accorded all-city recognition.

Gerigk also was third in the 1,600 run at 5:40, and Noll added a third in the 3,200 with a 12:15 time. Walton scored in the 1,600, taking fourth place at 5:45.

Southfield, Troy claim county titles

By Mike Rosenbaum

Southfield easily defended its county title at Birmingham Groves Friday. For the Blue Jays, the meet was a tune-up for Saturday's state meet, which they also won in 1988. Southfield beat second-place Pontiac Central, 129-53.

The differences between the winning teams at the Oakland County track meet, which began in warm sunshine and ended in the cool of a spring evening, were like night and day.

Southfield easily defended its county title at Birmingham Groves last Friday. For the Blue Jays, the meet was a tune up for Saturday's state meet, which they also won in 1988. Southfield beat second-place Pontiac Central, 129-53.

But Troy, last year's Oakland County runner-up, had to overcome a slow start to win the strongly contested girls meet.

The Colts won their first-ever county championship by capturing four of the final seven events and three of the last four. Troy finished the meet with 76 points, while Pontiac Central had 48 and Clarkston 47.

Troy girls coach Kevin Spencer found nothing outstanding about Troy's performance, except for the result.

"Things didn't start out like we wanted 'em to. But I'm happy with the outcome," he said.

Spencer said his team was "more up for the league" meet, adding, "there's a couple of things we've got to make adjustments on" before the state meet. The team will work on speed this week, he said.

TROY'S ONLY points from field events came from Anna Jontony's win in the high jump (5-4), where she edged Farmington's Julie Lawton and Birmingham Seaholm's Deanne Burson (both at 5-3). The Maples were strong in the field, led by Christine Dobosenski's win in the long jump (16-8 3½). They also took third in the discus behind the effort of Melanie Pavia (108-9).

Meanwhile, Southfield's boys took one of five field events as Jamar Sexton leaped 21 feet to take the long jump. The Jays were also in contention in the high jump, which started in the afternoon and continued into early evening as Ricky Duncan battled Rochester's Dan Reddan and Tad Smith from Waterford Kettering. Reddan won at 6-8 with fewer misses than Smith, who also jumped 6-8. Duncan was third at 6-6. Rochester also won the discus, as Corey O'Brien outdistanced North Farmington's Zaim Cunmulag, 157-9 to 157-1.

On the track, Southfield won 9 of 13 events, led by Jeff Reynolds, who came from behind to win the 100 (10.55), then added the 200 (21.45) and ran on the Jays' victorious 800-meter relay team (1:27.81), along with Bobby Johnson, Cassidy Wright and Marvin Reynolds.

Wright won the 400 (49.0) and the 110 hurdles (14.03) by edging teammate Marvin Reynolds (14.24). Chris Porter was fourth for the Jays in the 110. Jeff Gibson won the 300 hurdles (37.71), the 1600 relay team finished first in 3:20.53 and James Robinson took the 800 (1:55.97), proving that Southfield can do more than just sprint.

The individual boys highlight came in the 3200, where Brian Grosso of Walled Lake Western beat the state record (8:56.8). His time is not an official state mark because it did not occur in the state meet. But the crowd gave him the biggest cheer of the night as the public address announcer informed them of his progress throughout his run.

SOUTHFIELD was not a factor in distance races.

Bloomfield Hills Lahser's Rob Huff won the 1,600 (4:23.24) over Birmingham Brother Rice's John Cowan (4:24.13), while the Troy boys won the 3,200 relay. Mit Desai, Ramsey Wilson, Ed Andrews and Alex Ramos ran the relay in 7:59.54, less than a minute faster than Grosso's individual time.

West Bloomfield won the girls 3,200 relay, with Stacey and Tracy Abbott, Hollis Lisac and Amira Danforth running 9:31.29. But Troy was second, and just getting warmed up. Angie Knox continued the Colts' comeback by winning the 100 (12.35) over Krista Bowers of Rochester Adams (12.4).

Jontony won her second event, the 400, in 59.24. Knox soon added her second win, in the 200 (25.94).

Kristie Westerby won the 800 (2:19.18) ahead of three Clarkston girls. The Colts, with the meet already won, capped the day by winning the 1600 relay (4:02.89).

Troy's Kristi McKimson was edged in the 1,600 by Colleen Yuhn of Walled Lake Central, 5:14.5 to 5:15.44.

Birmingham Detroit Country Day won the two girls hurdle races. Hameera Newman took the 300 in 46.39, beating Groves' Shannon Spencer (47.71). Peggy Evans, who was third in the shot behind Milford's Erinn Wikaryasz and Oak Park's Angela Harrell, won the 100 (15.04).

Babits brothers make formidable vaulting duo

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

track

Paul and Bob Babits, America's most successful pole-vaulting brothers, know that clearing the bar is just one of the obstacles they face at track meets.

The Babits travel the world to compete, but their first concern is getting around without leaving their pole — a vaulter's most treasured possession — at the airport. Making sure of that can be as difficult as clearing 19 feet.

Ever see a guy (in a suit and tie, no less) lug a 17-foot pole through an airport? How about two?

"We have all sorts of trouble exporting those around," said Paul, a 1979 Redford Union graduate. "I was in New York once, and the five-minute taxi ride from the hotel to the airport cost $13 — plus the cabbie wanted a tip for strapping the pole to the side of his car. I gave him $50 and he started yelling and wouldn't let me go because he wanted more.

"I couldn't believe it. It's a pain in the neck. My dad said we should have been distance runners."

CORRECTION.

Robert Babits Sr. probably used to say that.

Paul, 28, and Bob Jr., 29, are just the second pair of brothers in the history of track and field to have cleared at least 18 feet. The other two are the Soviet Union's Sergei and Vaseley Bubka, both of whom have cleared 19 feet.

Paul's leap of 17 feet, 4 inches gave him the title at the Jesse Owens Invitational in Columbus, Ohio, last month. Bob did not jump competitively from 1983 until 1986, but he's making a fine comeback, placing third at the Owens meet at 16-6.

The Babits, who live in the Ann Arbor area, belong to the Chicago Track Club.

"I've got the time right now, and I still like it," said Bob, a '77 RU graduate. "We're just reaching our prime. A lot of the best jumpers in the country are in their late 20s, early 30s. You probably don't start losing speed until 32 or 33. That's the end of a pole vaulting career."

There are rumors that the Babits will be matched against the Bubka's in a brothers-only meet, and Paul's agent, John Nubani, is serious about it. Nubani also represents Roger Kingdom, a gold medalist in the high hurdles at the Seoul Olympics.

"THERE'S BEEN talk about it," Paul said. "If we can get our jumps up to 18-8, we have a chance. When we get the right conditions, both of us can clear 18-8."

Paul's best outdoors leap came last year, when he cleared 18½ at the Tampa (Fla.) Gatorade Meet. He cleared 18-2 indoors last December at the Eastern Michigan University Holiday Invitational. Bob vaulted 18½ March 12 at the Midwest Regional in Columbus, Ohio, for his personal best.

Both have their sights set on making the 1992 U.S. Olympic team, and that would call for continued progress. Paul has outleaped 1988 Olympic team member Billy Olson once and Earl Bell, another Olympian, twice, in winning two invitationals this season.

The nationals are June 15-17 in Houston, Texas.

"The Olympics are my goal," said Paul, who leaped for three years at Murray State (Ky.), and one at San Jose State (Calif.) after high school. "I want to jump 18-4 this year and 18-8 next year. I want to progress in four-inch increments every year and by '92 that would mean I'd be jumping 19-2 — 18-8 went to the Olympics in '88. I'd be right on schedule."

THE COMPETITION between the Babits doesn't end with pole vaulting. They also compete as brokers in the computer world, but it's a friendly rivalry.

"It's friendly — as long as he doesn't beat me," says Paul.

Bob remembers more than one meet when the public address announcer kept calling him "Paul."

"I've jumped in some meets where they announced me as being Paul the whole time," Bob said. "It's good for us. It's gotten us entered in some events — having us both jump over 18 feet. But you wouldn't know we were brothers by the way we jumped. We look alike, but I wear glasses and he doesn't.

"He's got a slow style with higher grips (on the pole). He's more controlled. My jump is quicker, with a lower grip, but the result is usually the same."

Head continued to make news as college player damage to Southfield High School's library. Hairston was a track star who was named to the all-Eccentric team; Collins, too, was an athlete of some renown.

The two, both 1988 graduates, are charged with breaking and entering and arson. What may never be completely understood is, why?

FOOTBALL'S FINEST: Two O&E teams reached the state finals last year, and Farmington Harrison — which enjoyed perhaps the easiest tournament run in history — left just one question unanswered after demolishing St. Joseph's 44-9 in the Class B final: Were the Hawks the best team in the state in any class?

The opinion here is the Hawks should consider doing the same thing Country Day is planning to do in boys basketball — moving up a class, to A. Certainly the rest of the teams on Harrison's schedule (all Class A-sized) would appreciate it.

The story is different for Redford Catholic Central. The Shamrocks have reached the state's final step in each of the last two years — the Class A championship game — but have been unable to scale it. Maybe they should swap spots with Harrison.

NEVER FORGOTTEN: At Livonia Franklin, the memories of 1988-89 won't be of basketball comebacks or late hockey goals or last-minute touchdowns. It will be of Craig Allard and John Shea, two athletes who were allegedly run down by a drunk driver as they crossed a street outside Orlando, Fla., in March.

Such tragedies are becoming too commonplace. At Franklin, the sorrow may lessen, in time, but it will never be completely eradicated. Which is only right.

SWIMMING TRADITION: For years, Bloomfield Hills Andover ruled girls swimming. The Barons won state title after title in Class A — five in a row between 1980-84 and six in seven years through 1986. Their reign ended in 1987, when Ann Arbor Pioneer ascended to the throne.

Then last year the championship returned to O&E land — but not to Andover. Birmingham Groves captured its first girls title ever, outdueling crosstown rival Seaholm. And Andover? The Barons placed fifth.

MAKING A NAME: Two former O&E standouts took opposite directions in pursuit of fame and mention in Sports Illustrated.

Dena Head, the Plymouth Salem grad and the state's Miss Basketball in '87, went to University of Tennessee and found herself a starter by midseason at a position she rarely (if ever) played in high school: point guard.

Head, mind you, was not just a freshman starter at a major NCAA Division I school. Tennessee was one of the best teams in the land. By season's end, with Head running the show, the Volunteers were the best in the NCAA. They defeated Auburn 76-60 in the NCAA title game, with Head scoring 19 points.

For Marcus Reliford, finding his name in SI wasn't what he might have hoped it would be. The young running back from Orchard Lake St. Mary's wasn't recognized for his on-field contributions at Colorado; instead, he was noted for charges brought against him for allegedly burglarizing a woman student's dormitory room and raping her.

That news was reported by the national magazine, but the final consequences were not. Last week, Reliford was found innocent of rape. The other charge was dropped earlier. The memory of such accusations will not be easily forgotten, however, and that's unfair. Even though proven innocent, the stain will remain with Reliford.

FALLEN SHAMROCK: In 22 years as wrestling coach at Catholic Central, Mike Rodriguez had built a reputation bordering on legend. He had guided the Shamrocks to seven state championships, a record hard to match.

Now Rodriguez will be remembered for a mistake, instead of his championships. He altered results of a dual meet so that Mike Gentile could wrestle at 119 in the state tournament, a weight he had never wrestled at during the season.

After Gentile won the district championship at 119, Rodriguez withdrew him from the state tournament. But the damage was done. Rodriguez's violation was reported to the MHSAA, and he's been barred from coaching in next year's state tournaments. CC's wrestling program was also placed on two years probation.

In the NCAA, cheating has become so prevalent, it's expected. Penalties have become part of the game. It can only be hoped such an attitude will not filter down to high school athletics.

TITLE RUN: Last November, Tom Teeters did the unexpected: He guided a small but talented Schoolcraft College team to the National Junior College Athletic Association womens volleyball championship.

Two weeks later, Teeters was preparing Livonia Ladywood for another run at the Class A title, which they captured in 1988. He lamented the lack of size on this year's Blazer team, hoping they could develop by year's end.

They did. Ladywood knocked off Harper Woods Regina (which defeated Rochester Adams in the semis) in the Class A final to win its second consecutive state crown, and the third championship in as many tries for Teeters. Quite a record, eh?

There was more, of course — much more. Everyone's memories of the past nine months will vary, both in degree of importance and recollection. But that just adds fuel for debates that will linger far into the future. Which is the way it should be; lessons learned, lessons remembered.

Renowned golf architect adds Walnut Creek to list

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Arthur Hills knows what it takes to make a golf course. A few well-placed hills (and assorted hazards) can transform a course into a piece of art.

It was that expertise in designing golf courses that caused members of Walnut Creek Country Club to seek out Hills' professional assistance.

Hills, 59, has developed a national reputation in the two decades he has been designing and renovating courses across the country. One of his most noted works is the Tournament Players Club in Coral Springs, Fla., the site of the annual Honda Classic.

He also is responsible for the design of Fox Hills Country Club in Plymouth and Pine Trace in Rochester Hills. He has made contributions to nine other courses in the Observer & Eccentric area, including Oakland Hills Country Club (Birmingham), Western Golf & Country Club (Redford) and Plum Hollow Golf Club (Southfield).

Hills' latest project was the redesign of the nine-hole white course at Walnut Creek, situated on 350 acres off Johns Road in South Lyon.

MEMBERS OF the former Farmington Hills Country Club at 12 Mile and Haggerty sold their property and bought Godwin Glen in 1987, voting to rename it Walnut Creek. The club has a 27-hole course but plans to add another nine on an adjacent 89 acres it recently bought.

In turning a public course into a championship course, the task is for Hills to make the course more difficult by presenting golfers with serious choices.

"You have to decide whether to shoot over the bunker and at the flag or shoot off to the left and around the bunker," Hills said.

"You need to set up choices and options. That's what makes a good hole. The different ways of playing a hole depend on what your skills are."

Hills, who initiated play on the redesigned white nine Friday with the first tee shot, begins work on renovating Walnut Creek's red nine today.

The plan is for Hills, who will put his stamp on the new nine to be built, to redo the blue nine during the winter months and always have 27 holes operational during the season, said J.B. Warford, chairman of the Public Relations and Membership Development committees.

HILLS SAID he stepped into a pretty good situation at Walnut Creek, looking at the quality of the land and routing system.

"It was a public course to start with," Hills said. "The holes are spread well apart, but it was designed for public play. There weren't many hazards around the greens or off the tees. There wasn't a lot of definition.

"That's what you want on a public course, so people can keep moving. The course was well conditioned, however.

"There was just a need for more definition to challenge the players, and we had to do some shaping and bunkering to create interest around the greens."

Hills also added some water and reshaped some of the lakes already on the course.

"It not only improves the esthetics of the golf course, but it's the kind of thing that makes it into a stronger, more challenging golf course."

Construction is nearly complete on a new $4 million clubhouse at Walnut Creek and is expected to open later this month.

The club has taken on 50 additional members in the last nine months, and the membership now stands at 310. Warford said the club has a goal of 375.

Farmington blanks T'birds in regional

By Steve Kowalski
special writer

Mother Nature couldn't do it, so Dearborn Edsel Ford coach Mike McGinty decided to shower the Farmington girls soccer team Wednesday — with praise.

Lots of it.

Farmington stormed past the Thunderbirds, 4-0, in a Class A regional semifinal match played under threatening skies, but not much rain, at Ford.

It finally started drizzling late in the lopsided game, but it might have taken a monsoon to stop the No. 1-ranked Falcons, now 15-0-4 overall.

"They have some mighty fine offensive players in (Amy) Trunk, (Carrie) Maier, (Jenny) Misaros) and (Margaret) Martin," gushed McGinty, who led Edsel Ford to a Northwest Suburban League title and a 17-4-1 record. "All of them are good and all are class players. They have an excellent chance to win the state (title).

"Three years ago, we faced (Livonia) Churchill (the 1986 state champion) and this team is comparable to that one. They move the ball equally as well and have as much speed. Every year we seem to run into a buzzsaw."

THE WIN PUTS Farmington into the regional final, 2 p.m. Saturday at Southfield High against the winner of Wednesday's Birmingham Marian-West Bloomfield match.

Farmington first-year coach Cathy Cole inserted a 2-4-4 offensive alignment this year and seldom during the storybook campaign have the Falcons executed any better.

soccer

'They have some mighty fine offensive players in (Amy) Trunk, (Carrie) Maier, (Jenny) Misaros) and (Margaret) Martin . . . They have an excellent chance to win the state.'

— Mike McGinty
Edsel Ford coach

Farmington drilled 49 shots at the Edsel Ford goalkeeper Heather Ruber, with 17 belonging to Martin, who ironically was held off the board.

Maier scored two goals, both in the first half, giving the Falcons a 2-0 halftime advantage. Freshman Julie Dugan and Trunk contributed single goals in the final 40 minutes of action to round out the scoring.

Trunk's goal — 30 yards out — gave the Falcons at four-goal cushion. The tally concluded a big day for the junior forward, who made a nifty crossing pass in the first half to set up Maier's second goal.

BEFORE COLE'S arrival this season, Farmington played a 3-3-4 offense, but now she employs Trunk and Maier together on the front line, giving the dangerous pair more room to roam.

Trunk has a minor hip injury, but you couldn't tell by her performance.

"We have a lot more room to make diagonal runs and the outside is more open for the halfback to come up and take over the spot," Trunk said of the new offense. "We like the big field, and we're better trained than most teams. We're a bit more finessed."

Deb WesterKamp added to her long list of shutouts for the Falcons, though she was only required to make one save.

Cole stresses teamwork, and if they are to win the Class A crown, everyone must contribute, she said. Farmington appears to be adapting well to the new offense.

"It depends on how well our transition is and the support we get," Cole said. "It takes teamwork. We have to create our opportunities. Today, we played well. We played real well.

COLE WASN'T worried about the high humidity because most of her players are used to the summer conditions.

"We're in shape and can play in this," she said. "We play in this yearround, so we can play in long duration."

We Need Volunteers Who Love Happy Campers!

Sun Deer® campers are happy campers and it's no wonder because most severely asthmatic kids are forced to spend their summers indoors. At Camp Sun Deer,® asthmatic kids ages 9-12 participate in a variety of outdoor activities, but they can't do it without your help. The limitations and doubts they face can be diminished by a volunteer who cares. Your participation at Camp Sun Deer® can make all the difference in an asthmatic child's summer.

Pets of the week

Tramp, a 6-month-old female terrier mix, and Budweiser, an 11-month old male kitten, need homes. Tramp (Control No. 247627) is believed to be house broken. Budweiser (Control No. 232007) is litter trained and has been spayed. To adopt these pets or others, or to check for lost pets, call the Westland Kindness Center of the Michigan Humane Society, 721-7300. The center is at 37255 Marquette, Westland.

S'craft has just the class for you

Schoolcraft College's division of continuing education services is offering a series of courses ranging from making the best of being single to how to ride a motorcycle.

The college is on Haggerty Road, between Six and Seven Mile in Livonia. The information number for the courses is 462-4448.

Motorcycling

This course is intended for the experienced rider who may need brushing up in order to obtain a motorcycle endorsement on a driver's license.

The class, which costs $20, is in a classroom from 6-10 p.m. Friday, June 2, and on a driving range at various assigned times on Saturday and Sunday, June 3 and 4.

Motorcycles will be furnished; riders must bring their own protective gear.

Popularity

The key to success is often the ability to be liked and respected. If you need help getting others to like you, you may need a course titled "Selling Yourself — How to Be Well Liked."

The course, which costs $40, is offered on four consecutive Tuesdays 7-9 p.m., beginning June 6. Topics include being more positive and enthusiastic, resolving differences, gaining cooperation and being more tolerant.

Children's esteem

You can increase your child's self-esteem and teach him or her how to deal with family stress in a two-session class that meets 7-9:30 p.m. Monday, June 5, and Monday, June 12. The fee is $25.

Happy singles

Tired of sitting home alone? A course titled "Enjoying Being Single" is offered on 9-11 a.m. Saturday, June 3.

Topics include groups for singles, meeting new people, raising your self-esteem and networking.

State training services available at S'craft

Area residents who need information on programs offered throughout the state of Michigan can make use of Training Station, a new state supported program offered at Schoolcraft College.

The computerized program provides information, assistance, and referrals to individuals who are: exploring educational opportunities, looking for specific job training programs, and/or in need of help finding a job. Training Stations also provide information on child and adult care services, transportation assistance for those who wish to attend school; and drug and alcohol assistance programs.

An individual who wants to use the computerized program will be assisted by a trained technician. There is no charge for this service.

Schoolcraft College is at 18600 Haggerty, between Six and Seven Mile. For more information, call Jan Munday in the Schoolcraft counseling department, Monday through Thursday 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., 462-4429.

Men, if you're about to turn 18, it's time to register with Selective Service at any U.S. Post Office.

It's quick. It's easy. And it's the law.

Canvases exude prayerful presence

By Corinne Abatt
staff writer

For several months after she rented gallery space in a Pontiac warehouse, Nancy Thayer couldn't bring herself to move in. She has always had a studio in her Lathrup Village home as does her husband, Russell. And while not as large as she needed, it was familiar territory. Even though there are about 40 other artists in the warehouse, it is still a quiet place, without phones, loud noises and interruptions.

It took almost a year for Thayer to feel comfortable there, but when she did, her horizons and the actual size of her art broadened. Now, she's ready to exhibit the results of the change of scene. Her paintings on cast paper and constructed canvasses will be on display at Rubiner Gallery of West Bloomfield June 8-30.

While she is skilled at casting paper and building unusual and multiple section canvasses, it is the act of painting which brings the special satisfactions.

These works, she said were greatly influenced by a trip to the Mayan pyramids on the Yucatan Penninsula and the Cleopatra exhibit at Detroit Institute of Arts earlier this year.

"I was taken with the similarities in the hieroglyphics of the two. I was taken with the power of primitive symbolism and it started to come out in the art unconsciously."

She agreed that a lot of this new art has a spiritual quality adding, "It is not Judaic, not Mayan, not Egyptian, but it does have a sense of prayerful presence."

VERY FREQUENTLY in the works which have a spiritual turn of form, she has used an arch as a symbol of a doorway to something that lies beyond, either real or imagined. When she was doing painted constructions several years ago, this form was involved.

"Things tend to conclude, disappear, then reappear," she said by way of explanation of the return of the arch. There's a lot of universal symbolism in these particular pieces and a lot of forms which seem related to the symbols. She didn't try, for instance, to reproduce hieroglyphics exactly. She did make sure, however, that she wasn't inadvertently writing something offensive in her pictograph like images.

Three, primarily cutout forms, she has painted, are called "The Three Graces." "They are portraits in a sense," she said explaining that each represents a specific woman friend and was done with that person in mind. "The graces are said to be a gift from the gods."

The warehouse studio where she does the painting (she still casts paper and builds the canvasses in her home studio) has high ceilings and lots of wall space for hanging her large pieces. She can easily put six or more on one wall, study them, live with them, so to speak, and decide if they are totally resolved or need more work. She has come to enjoy that luxury along with the long, uninterrupted hours of painting. She has not only come to terms with the silence, she has come to appreciate it.

She works with acrylics, often applies many layers for a rich, deep look and can make them look like watercolors, oils or impasto. The colors sink into the cast paper while the uneven, textured surfaces help create unusual and fascinating highlights.

In this exhibit, Thayer's long view of the world, which has always been good, shines more brightly than ever. This is her best and strongest so far.

Rubiner Gallery, 7001 Orchard Lake, West Bloomfield, is open 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday; reception 7-9 p.m. Thursday, June 8.

Artist Nancy Thayer's latest works are influenced by a trip to the Mayan pyramids on the Yucatan Penninsula and the Cleopatra exhibit at Detroit Institute of Arts earlier this year. Her "Three Graces' (excerpt at bottom of right photograph) expressee the personalities of three of her women friends.

1989 home tour

Area houses and condominiums will be featured in Sunday's IFDA tour

The 1989 home tour, sponsored by the International Furnishings and Design Association, IFDA, will be held 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday. The three homes and three condominiums on the tour are in the Birmingham, Farmington Hills and West Bloomfield areas.

A variety of styles and treatments are represented in the tour residences. There will be a 4,000 square foot English Tudor, eclectically done with 18th century English, French, country and Oriental influences; a jewel box of a condo in an artful blend of contemporary and Art Deco; a 1950s Beverly Hills ranch transformed to fit a luxurious 1980s lifestyle; a condo full of art, dynamic color schemes and rich textures; a contemporary home with a mixture of streamlined furnishings, antique and Oriental accessories; and a condo in a lovely setting done in the client's favorite colors, red and green.

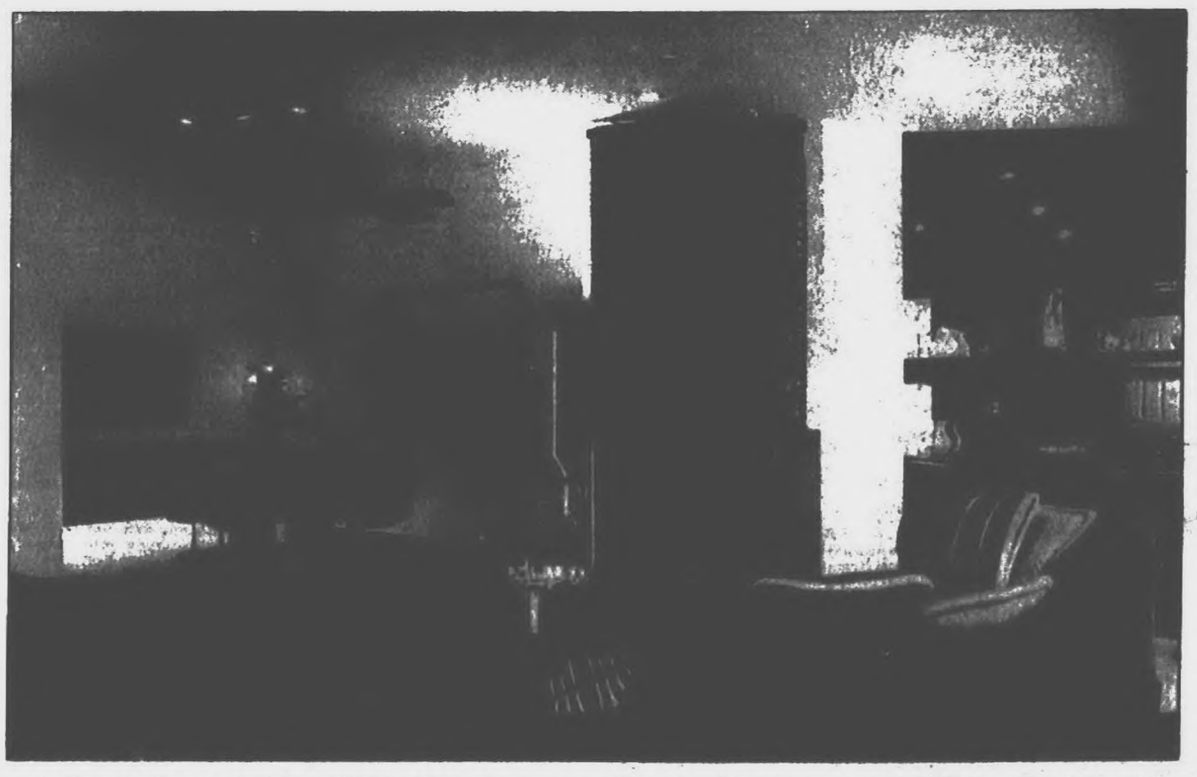

There are outstanding examples of art in three of the residences. Also notable is the use of authentic finishes such as marble and wood as well as attractive faux finishes, unusual fibers and fabrics. One features an updated kitchen complete with granite counter tops and skylights.

TICKETS, $10 each, are available at Gorman's stores in Southfield, Troy and Dearborn; Walter Herz Interiors of Birmingham; Mary Lee Draperies of Bloomfield Hills; Pierson Interiors of Bloomfield Hills; Beaver Distributors, Sterling Heights, Farmington Hills and Troy; and any IFDA member.

Walter Herz Interiors, 350 Pierce, Birmingham is sponsoring a hospitality open house 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on the day of the tour where refreshments will be available and tickets will be on sale.

IFDA, a non-profit organization was established 40 years ago as the National Home Furnishings League, to improve the quality in human environment by serving as the communications catalyst between industry and the public.

Proceeds from the home tour will help fund the IOFDA's Design Fellowship Competition for college students, Career Day for high school and college students interested in the interior furnishings industry and consumer affairs programs.

Interior designers Patrice Hill and David Mark Weiss of Interior Corp, Ltd. of Farmington Hills gave this two-story Farmington Hills condo a very cosmopolitan look. The wall hanging, silver, black leather and fuchsia was commissioned from Urban Jupena. The watercolor was commissioned from Gail Blitz. The upholstery is black tone on tone and black ultra suede. The cabinetry, dining room table and buffet are by Vogue Furniture of Livonia.

Proceeds from the home tour will help pay for the IOFDA's Design Fellowship Competition for college students, Career Day for high school and college students interested in the interior furnishings industry and consumer affairs programs.

RECENTLY, AUTHOR Mary Higgins Clark breezed through town on a promotional tour for her latest novel, "While My Pretty One Sleeps," a suspense thriller centered around a mysterious murder in New York's fashion world.

Last month, Clark signed a new contract with her publisher, Simon & Schuster, to write four more novels, plus a collection of short stories, over the next half-dozen years or so.

For her trouble, she'll get $10,100,000.

A pause while those who write for a living reach for a cold cloth, and pray that this is a trend.

It's true. Really true. Ten million dollars plus. The bejewelled, smiling Clark told me so herself.

"TEN MILLION dollars for the novels," she said, sweetly, and "100,000 for the collection of short stories."

Dressed in pink-and-blue silk and made up and manicured to a dazzling fare-three-well, the Bronx native of Irish descent met Detroit fans and signed autographs with all the aplomb and poise of an internationally-celebrated actress.

As she prepared to jet on to Los Angeles, San Francisco, and other points west to promote her latest, she spoke of a June promotional tour of England, plus a trip home via the QE II. Then, sometime after the Fourth of July fireworks displays have died out near her Cape Cod home, she'll settle down to begin work on "Loves Music, Love to Dance," her next thriller — a story about a woman who answers a personal ad and, shortly thereafter, disappears, seemingly without a trace.

If they asked her, Clark could write a book about her own life and how she came today to rank among America's top-selling authors.

FRESH OUT OF A Bronx high school, she worked for a time in an advertising agency and as an airline stewardess, before marrying Warren Clark, a man she says she had been in love with since she was 16.

Soon after the couple returned from their honeymoon, Clark enrolled in a writing class at New York University, and began sending out stories.

It would take six years and 40 rejection slips later before she would see a single word in print.

"I sold my first story to Extension Magazine in 1956 for $100," she recalls. She didn't keep the $100 check, but she did frame the letter of acceptance, and still has it.

Her husband, ill for some time, died in 1964 of heart disease at age 45, leaving Clark with five children to support, and not much money. (Because of the heart disease, he had been unable to secure any kind of life insurance to leave to his widow and children.)

Clark got a job soon after his death, writing brief radio scripts for a New York radio station and, at about the same time, decided to try her hand at writing a book. With time at a premium, she got up each morning and wrote from 5-7 a.m., before getting the children off to school, and leaving for work herself. The book, a biographical novel about the life of George Washington called "Aspire to the Heavens," sold to a publisher.

Unfortunately, it didn't sell to readers.

"IT WAS REMAINDERED as it came off the presses," Clark said, able now to joke a bit about her unpromising debut into the book market.

Not to worry, though. Her next effort — the suspense novel, "Where Are the Children?" wowed readers and publishers alike, and became that rarest of rate commodities: a stunning best-seller written by an author who was virtually unknown. Written in 1975, it was an imaginative page-turner about a woman accused of murdering her own children.

Clark says she opted to write a suspense novel simply because suspense thrillers were what she herself most enjoyed reading. "I remember looking at my bookshelves one day, and discovering that they were filled with books by writers like Agatha Christie, Conan Doyle, Charlotte Armstrong, Josephine Tey . . ."

"Where Are the Children?" was followed by five other best-sellers. Between best-sellers, the engergetic Clark managed to obtain a degree in philosophy from Fordham University in 1979.

Artistic genesis

Her ancient themes have contemporary look

By Arlene Funke
special writer

LIVONIA artist Susan Pickering Rothamel mixes ancient, spiritual themes in colorful, contemporary designs.

Although she draws heavily from biblical themes, Rothamel is not delivering heavy-handed, stern messages. Instead, she seeks to portray subtle, loving ideas that reach out to the viewer.

"I believe in subtletry," said the 38-year-old self-taught artist. "Rather than people, I like to portray ideas and stories."

Rothamel's style is impressionistic. She works in oils, gouache (a water-based opaque paint), pottery, fiber collages and enamel. An exhibit of her recent work will be on display at Jacobson's in Livonia, in the second-floor gallery area, through Tuesday, June 13. The store is at Six Mile and Newburgh roads.

The oil paintings, which reflect themes from the Old Testament, are filled with vibrant pinks, blues and purples.

ONE OF ROTHAMEL'S favorites is a piece called Genesis. It is a bold depiction of the beginning of mankind. It explodes with bold shades of red. Another piece, called the First Day, portrays the biblical passage, "Let there be light." It is characterized by bursts of blue and gold.

"Genesis would probably be my most sentimental piece," Rothamel said. "It was the inspiration to complete the series of other (days). It was a challenge to use no light-colored paints."

The pottery is blue and rough-textured, softened with small, delicate pink and blue enamel accents and highlighted with metallic braid. The enamels are richly-colored aquas and reds, edged in gold and studded with small stones.

Rothamel said her biblical inspirations are loving and generous. Her pieces, splashed with pastel colors and dappled with rich gold leaf, emanate optimisim and joy.

"They aren't dark because that dredges up fear," Rothamel said. "I love color and I like putting it together to make beautiful things."

ROTHAMEL WAS BORN and raised in Bucks County, Pa., an area near Philadelphia dotted with art galleries. Several members of her family are artists, writers and musicians.

Rothamel's own artistry was largely untapped until around 12 years ago. At the urging of a friend, Rothamel took an oil painting class from a woman teaching in her basement.

Rothamel was hooked. Her talent bloomed and, within a year, she too was spending a lot of time painting. Eventually, she taught art through several local art-supply stores.

"I feel I was bestowed a gift from God to be able to paint," said Rothamel.

Her prefrences have evolved from her early landscapes and interest in the first primitive style of art. Currently her work is heavily influenced by biblical, or scriptural themes.

"I work in all media, whatever media it takes to portray the idea I want to get across," Rothamel said.

She has an extensive library of reference, art and history books. She collects small pieces of metallic yarn, tiny and delicate beads, fossils and small gemstones, and "anything beautiful I can get my hands on."

Rothamel especially enjoys the challenge of tackling different media.

"AS SOON AS I know what I'm doing out there, I reach a little farther," she said.

Rothamel sold her first group of paintings, some primitive art pieces, during a street fair sponsored by the old Wayne-Westland Arts Association.

"I was thrilled," Rothamel recalled. "I was a selling artist. Artists always wonder if their work is good enough."

Despite periods of self-doubt, Rothamel feels fortunate. She has received much encouragement from her husband David, an automotive engineer, and the couple's two children. She also expresses appreciation for the support she has received from her artist friends and from Bob Black, a pottery instructor at Schoolcraft College in Livonia.

The pieces at Jacobson's includes oil paintings, pottery and copper enamels. Rothamel creates the enamels by applying glass powders to copper which has been designed, cut and polished. The pieces are fired in a kiln at 1,500 degrees F. Some pieces are fired four or five times to achieve a rich, deep color.

The pottery is priced at $50-$115 per piece. The enamels average $250 each and the oil paintings are in the $2,000-$2,500 range.

ROTHAMEL'S WORK also is available at several galleries.

Currently the Ilona Gallery of West Bloomfield carries Rothamel's collages. The Carol and James Gallery in Royal Oak exhibits her enamel art and the Button Galleries of Saugatuck and Douglas have a variety of her work.

Rothamel, who has had four one-woman shows and has exhibited in group shows, also does commission work.

Although Rothamel has cut back on her teaching assignments, she still likes to teach a few students in her home-based studio.

"It's so satisfying to see an artist find things coming together and to be part of that when it happens is so gratifying," Rothamel said. "I can teach anybody to paint, if not for commercial value, for their own amazement or amusement."

● SCRAPS OF LIFE

Arpilleras — small appliqued and embroidered wall hangings that show scenes of daily life in Chile — are on exhibit at the Swords into Plowshares Peace Center and Gallery now through July 8.

This folk craft has become a tool of the women in Chile, many of whose husbands or sons have "disappeared," to expose and protest the repressiveness of the Pinochet dictatorship.

The gallery is at 45 E. Adams on Grand Circus Park, opposite the People Mover station in the Whitney Building. Hours are 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. For more information, call 965-4422.

● 'SECRET' GARDEN PARTY

The magical gates of the University of Michigan's Matthaei Botanical Gardens will open at 5 p.m. Sunday, June 4 for guests attending a Secret Garden Party, benefiting Ann Arbor's first annual flower and garden show next spring.

Following the theme of F. H. Burnett's famous children's story, "The Secret Garden," guests will be treated to a gourmet dinner with the Matthaei beautiful gardens as background. Classical music will be provided by the Cassini Ensemble. Tickets are $50 each. For more information, call Judith Katch, 763-7061.

● ARTFUL DECEPTIONS

"Artful Deception: the Craft of the Forger," will begin its national tour at the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House in Grosse Pointe Shores May 24 to July 30. The exhibit will include the portrait of the Mona Lisa done by a late 16th Century admirer of Leonardo de Vinci and will include a number of works by well-known forgers.

The exhibit may be viewed from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Ford House Wednesday through Sunday. Guided tours are available 11:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Admission is $3 for adults with no charge for children. Admission is $1 when also purchasing tickets for the regular Ford House tours which are $4 for adults; $3 for senior citizens; and $2 for children under 12.

For more information, call the Ford House at 884-3400 or 884-4222.

WOLFE MARKETING AGENT

Understated elegance is potter's trademark

By Noreen Fleck
special writer

Detroit artists would display their work in the streets on hot summer days wearing cut-off jeans and tank tops. To display their wares, they used orange crates with flimsy boards holding their pieces which sold for whatever they could get.

At least that's how Farmington Hills artist Elizabeth Lurie remembers the first art fair she was ever in 18 years ago as a fledgling potter.

Today, art shows are totally different, she said. People are much more interested in art. But shows have become much more commercialized.

"Artists are feeling the pressures of the marketplace," Lurie said. "Galleries call and say, 'I need two dozen more of such and such and I need it by . . .' You can do that with a factory, but artists can't produce like that. When someone makes things by hand, each piece is different and cannot be duplicated."

LURIE BEGAN folding her hands in clay in 1969 at Pewabic Pottery in Detroit. Her first studio was set up the laundry room in the basement of her home where she worked at the potter's wheel while she raised two children.

"In my work, I strive for a kind of simplicity and understated elegance, a subtle beauty that wears well over time," Lurie said.

Lurie graduated from Trinity College in Washington, D.C., with a bachelor's degree in English literature and went on to the University of Michigan and graduated with a master's in English in 1965.

Most of Lurie's work is functional art, sculptural objects which can be used, such as teapots and butter dishes, or they can stand alone as art pieces. She begins a piece by designing "form first" and then working with colors and glazes.

Jeff Guido, Pewabic Pottery gallery director, calls Lurie the "consummate craftsman."

"Everything she does is very, very finished," he said. "Everything is impeccably done. Her pieces are very beautiful, simplistic, approachable and appealing which makes her different from many potters."

LURIE'S WORK IS displayed at Pewabic Pottery in Detroit, the Detroit Artist's Market, the Troy Gallery and the Swindler Gallery in Royal Oak. Her work can also be purchased directly at her studio in Farmington Hills, but an appointment is necessary. That can be arranged by calling 851-1732.

Some of her work, including a porcelain teapot, a turquoise bowl and a wall sculpture, were exhibited in the 18th Annual Invitational Art Fair at Somerset Mall last month.

"I don't have a lot to say about my work," Lurie said. "What I have to say is said in the pieces. I feel satisfied when people respond to my work. That tells me I have communicated. I've done it without the words."

Dairy group taps fledgling designer's logo

The United Dairy Industry of Michigan's 60-countrywide teleconference to be aired this fall will have as its logo the work of a first-year Schoolcraft College design student.

He is Paul Wardell, of Canton Township, who may be a novice at architectural design, but a pro in another field of design — hair styling. Wardell, a native Detroiter, has been a hair stylist for the past 11 years with the Philip Nolan studio in Livonia.

Wardell, who also has an associate's degree in business from Schoolcraft, said he has always been interested in art and design and decided to enroll in a design class at the community college.

The challenge to come up with a logo for the dairy council teleconference was a class project, he said, under the direction of instructor Steve Glazier and included students from other Schoolcraft art classes. Dairy council officials made the selection.

FOR HIS EFFORTS, Wardell was given a $150 first prize.

But actually, he feels he won more than a monetary prize. It did wonders for his confidence, Wardell said, with a grin. Especially as he tackles his next project — that of formalizing some of his ideas for a 300-acre subdivision a developer/friend expects to construct in the Howell area.

Thrust of the dairy council's national teleconference is to increase viewers' awareness of the health and nutrition issues facing elderly people and innovative programs and services for this growing sement of the population. It is targeted to all health professionals caring for the elderly.

Paul Wardell wins design award

The appliances and cabinetry in both kitchen and bath are the latest design. Only the most modern conveniences are to be found here.

The elegance extends to the space outside, where you'll find a brand new fitness center, indoor heated Olympic size swimming pool, saunas, and racquetball right in your own backyard.

FOR SO LITTLE (from $49,900).

This is truly the amazing part of Walden Condominiums. Here, you can have a home in Ann Arbor, with all this luxury, from $49,900. Plus the tax advantages. Come in today and see how luxurious Walden living really is.

Small 'punchy' touches

Q. I need help. The sofas in my living room, bought 10 years ago, are a linen floral in what I thought was a gray-and-yellow print. In this same room I have a secretary bench and games tables with upholstered seats. The period is Queen Anne. The seats are a miniprint tapestry-type fabric. The secretary bench and the games chairs plus my dining chairs are all covered in this same fabric. Using the arm covers as my guide for color selection in carpet, I find what I thought was gray is really a mushroom color and the yellow is mustard color. What can I do to give these rooms a lift? I'd like some pizzazz — what do you suggest? I need this for my new apartment.

A. A pearl gray carpet, vanilla walls and a paper border of vanilla, gray, beige and yellow will have the flavor of your upholstery and give some punch to the room. I suggest you add tie cushions to the seats of your chairs.

Adding the tassels to the ties in the same colors would be a nice touch. For the cushions, use a pewter gray in ultra suede. The look is great, and it's very practical.

WRITE IT AND REAP!

Writing a classified ad that gets results— whether it be for real estate, employment, the personals, transportation, or merchandise— is easy if you follow the guidelines below.

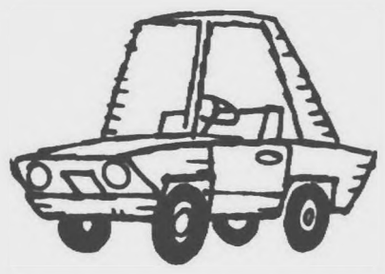

1. Give the reader specific information. Pretend you are someone reading the classifieds. What would you like to know about the item, service or job you are advertising? Be sure to add details such as color, size, condition, brand name, age, features and benefits. Be accurate! Don't embellish your ad with misleading information. Stick to the facts and reap the rewards!

2. Include the price. Don't waste your time or a potential buyer's time. If you advertise the price of the item or service you offer, the people who respond to your ad will be those who are genuinely interested. Surveys show that readers are more interested in those items and services they know are within their price range.

3. Avoid abbreviations. Don't make a potential customer work too hard! Although you may be tempted to cut down on the cost of your ad by using abbreviations, surveys indicate that many people don't understand such abbreviations as EIK (eat-in kitchen) or WSW (white side wall) tires and won't take the time to figure them out. A confused reader is a disinterested reader. Get the most for your money and use complete words.

4. Include phone number and specify hours. Be sure to let potential customers know when and where to call. Surveys show that even if a person is very interested in your item or service, he or she will not call back after the first attempt. Stay near the phone during the hours you indicate you will be available. Don't risk missing a sale!

5. Run on consecutive days. Your ad will not get results if people don't see it! Therefore, it is important to set up a consistent and consecutive ad schedule with your telephone salesperson or outside sales representative.

Use this form to write your classified advertisement before you call...or fill it in and mail to:

The Green Hill difference:

Do you come home to an apartment or a 75-acre estate?

Most apartment living measures 600+ sq. ft. Ours measures over 3,000,000 sq. ft. Green Hill residents enjoy a gorgeous 75-acre estate setting of park and woodland, peace and tranquility. You're right next door to the I-275 corridor, Michigan's multi-billion dollar explosive growth area and just minutes away from I-96, a direct route to downtown Detroit. See our 1- and 2-bedroom luxury apartments, terrace residences and country townhouses on 9 Mile, 1½ miles west of Farmington Road in Farmington Hills.

LIVE AMONG THE RARE AND BEAUTIFUL.

Aldingbrooke—West Bloomfield's premier rental community—has always attracted its own special flock.

Our magnificent estate-like grounds are home to a collection of geese and swans. And to many of metropolitan Detroit's most discerning individuals and families.

Set in a gated community, residents appreciate Aldingbrooke's world of privacy and custom options, with all the services they've come to expect from a luxury apartment community.

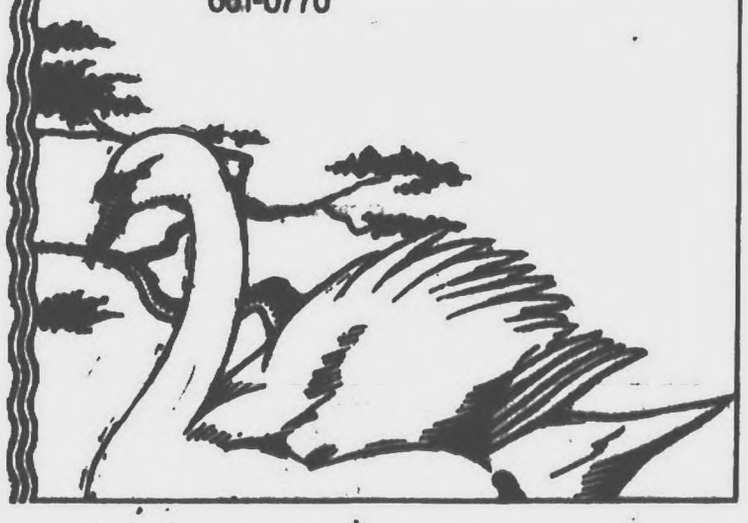

Residences up to 2800 square feet include such desirable features as private entryways, split-level or ranch-style designs, dens, breakfast rooms, cathedral ceilings, fireplaces and attached garages.

All for much less than you'd expect to pay for such luxury. From $650 to $1650 per month.

Whatever your mind can imagine in luxurious living, you can discover on your first visit to Aldingbrooke.

SCHOONER COVE ON FORD LAKE

"I finally found a townhome as large as a home."
"I looked long and hard to find a 2000 sq. ft., cathedral ceiling elegant three-bedroom townhome. (Of course, I could have chosen a two or three-bedroom ranch.) With my own two-car attached garage, my own private basement and patio. And--luxury touches like deluxe kitchens and whirlpool tubs plus landscaping that I love. Nothing could get me to move from Covington. Nothing."

ARE YOU WINNING THE RAT RACE?
Do you get tired of work, work & work to end up with little more for yourself than a new car, some fancy clothes, a nice home & a few vacations? Your job is taking you nowhere, you're bored & you're constantly trying to figure your way out of the Rat Race. You detest traffic, but you're in it every day & you have no time to enjoy life - or enough money even if you had time. You're mortgaged to the max & what's worse, you're between jobs.

THERE IS A BETTER WAY!!
I quit the Rat Race and NOW my headaches, heartburn & depression are gone. I am my own Boss. I set my own hours, have no employees, no overhead & I don't fight traffic. I became a Distributor for the most unbelievable networking deal in history. This year, I will earn more money than most corporate executives & more importantly, I will have the freedom to enjoy it.

OUR PRODUCT LINE is unique & exciting and our No. 1 Best Seller is a Hair Breakthrough straight from Europe. Total investment is under $1,000. If you are willing to make a commitment for your own success, I'll recruit & train you into the greatest opportunity of your life. Don't call unless you are willing to be interviewed. I refuse to discuss this opportunity over the phone. The only thing you have to lose is one hour & you're losing 8-10 of those each day. Remember, even if you win the Rat Race, you're still a Rat! For more info, call (313)-927-6102

Sale

Now is the time to clear out those closets, attics, basements and garages and make some quick cash in the process.

How do you plan a garage sale?

It's easy!

Just follow these simple guidelines:

1. Gather together the items you have for sale. Sort them into appropriate categories and price them fairly.

2. Place a classified advertisement in The Observer & Eccentric by calling one of the numbers below.

3. Hang signs throughout your neighborhood alerting residents to the upcoming sale.

4. Decide what to do with all the money you'll have after your sale!

Or, if you love to bargain-hunt and would rather shop then sell, be sure to look for our special garage sale listings every Monday and Thursday in your hometown newspaper. Observer & Eccentric classifieds make it easy to earn money and save money. Discover for yourself, today!
