Plymouth Hilton to become Radisson

By C. L. Rugenstein staff writer

The Plymouth Hilton has been inviting people to watch its sign space for weeks.

And on July 1, there will be a new name — the Radisson.

Deborah J. Frisco, director of sales for the hotel, said one of the reasons that Columbia Sussex, the company that owns and manages the hotel, changed franchises is for the "higher visibility of the Radisson name."

"We stand to increase profits" with the name change, she said.

She said Columbia Sussex is the biggest Radisson franchise holder in the U.S.

Change has been in the air for about a year now, with the company "redefining goals and markets," Frisco said.

The management plans to keep the emphasis on conventions and business meetings. The future Radisson Hotel has the fourth-largest ballroom in the state and 195 sleeping rooms. The occupancy rate ranges between 40 and 50 percent, with the meeting rooms in use daily, according to Tom Ferrell, the general manager.

But plans call for pursuing a more aggressive marketing strategy within the community as well.

One change is the addition of Chaplin's Comedy Club to attract a younger crowd to the lounge. They hope to expand the idea to a show in the ballroom with big-name comedy acts, Frisco said.

Also in the works are a number of package deals, like a family weekend at the Radisson, with dinner in the Park restaurant or an evening at the comedy club.

"We'd like to tie in the pool with attractions in the area," said Ferrell. "I've done this at other places — with pizza, movies and popcorn" for

The Hilton has had a swim club for local residents, where a $300 yearly membership for the family included use of all the pool facilities — playground, exercise rooms and jacuzzi.

Other packages could include a day at Northville Downs.

The hotel is also working on a fall color package, and one for antique shoppers, Frisco said. It's all part of an attempt to "take in the community close to the hotel, the events that take place in the area."

"Like the Mayflower (Hotel) does with the tour and travel market," Frisco said. "It's something we're just starting to scratch the surface of."

Though it's rated by the American Automobile Association, the hotel's out-of-the-way location has not made vying for the transient market profitable in the past. But it's an idea the management is considering.

Location has been an asset with the corporate market, which likes to get away from the hustle and bustle of business.

A lot of cosmetic work on the complex — painting and papering — is planned, but no major construction or renovation, Ferrell said.

He said the main emphasis will be on tightening the operation and improving the level of service.

"Through marketing and advertising, we want to educate the public to the changes being made," Frisco said. "We've got sales teams on the streets every day, telling them about the changes, creating enthusiam."

It'll take a while to work out all the details, but Frisco said everything should be done in time for the Radisson's grand opening party in the fall.

Tyburski describes wife's beating death

By Peggy Aulino staff writer

Leonard Tyburski testified Wednesday that he beat his wife's head against a beam and flung her body into a freezer in September of 1985.

"I closed the lid on the freezer. I just couldn't stand to look at her. I felt so terrible and ashamed that I had done that," said Tyburski, 46, testifying in his defense.

Tyburski, of Canton, on trial in Detroit Recorders Court on a charge of second-degree murder, was emotionless through most of his 45-minute

His voice cracked only when he described returning to the freezer, after washing blood off of himself, and seeing Dorothy Tyburski's lifeless body.

Dorothy Tyburski's body was discovered in January, more than three years after her death on Sept. 28, 1985. The couple's daughter, Kelly, 20, pried open the locked freezer on Jan. 2, 1989, and called Canton Township Police.

Tyburski, a dean at Detroit's Mackenzie High School, was arrested the same day, and the case received media attention from around the nation.

Defense attorney Carole Stanyar asked Tyburaki why he left the body in the freezer for three years and three months.

"I didn't mean any disrespect to my wife's body. I knew no more harm could come to her where she was," Tyburski said.

"I loved my wife too much to just dump the body. I couldn't just dump it."

Tyburski also said he thought his two daughters were "too young to understand what had happened."
"I felt that at a later time it would

"I felt that at a later time it would be less painful to them to understand," he said.

Tyburski testified that the argument with his wife began when he asked her if she was having an affair with Craig Albright. Albright was Kelly Tyburski's boyfriend and was living at the Tyburski home at the

He said his wife threw a steak knife and some plastic containers from the freezer at him during the argument. He said she later retrieved the knife and tried to stab him.

"I have never seen that kind of look in her eyes before. They were red." he said.

"It was a look like, 'I'm going to take you out.' For a second, I was afraid."

Tyburski said he grabbed the back of his wife's head, "and I started smashing her head against the beam many, many times."

He said he then "thrust her in the freezer, or flung her in would be a better word for it."

In his statement to police upon arrest, Tyburski said his wife had fallen into the freezer.

On Tuesday, Albright testified that he had had two sexual encounters with Dorothy Tyburski within a month before her death. Albright, 22, said Dorothy Tyburski initiated them and that he had resisted.

"She said, 'Either have sex with me or I'll tell Leonard or I'll tell Kelly,' "Albright testified when asked about the encounters by assistant Wayne County Prosecutor Glenn

The 10- by 6-foot memorial, spearheaded by about a dozen area residents and funded by private donations, will be placed adjacent to Kellogg Park in downtown Plymouth.

Dedication is planned for the Fourth of July.

"I think it's going to turn out very well, something I can be proud of," said Goldsworthy, who's actually doing the engraving and etching. "It's something that's going to be there permanently."

NAMES OF area soldiers killed in Vietnam and Korea will be engraved on the wings.

The large center piece will contain commemorative messages on both front and back. Eagles, a dove and head profiles will be etched into the granite.

Shapes are etched with a diamond-tipped vibrating tool. Letters are first cut into a rubber sheet placed over the granite, then sand-blasted or steel-shot into the stone.

The Plymouth Vietnam Veterans Association, a non-profit group formed to build the monument, planned the design with Blake and Goldsworthy.

School district to consider ban on smoking

By Helen Niemiec special writer

A policy to ban tobacco from the Plymouth Canton Community Schools is being considered by the school board.

Board President David Artley proposed that the ban go into effect in June 1990.

Several board members and administrators had proposed putting the ban into effect this summer. There are now two designated outside smoking areas for students at Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton high schools.

"Putting a ban into effect now would allow us to gauge its effectiveness during the summer," said Dr. Michael Homes, assistant superintendent of instruction. "Then we would be prepared to go distict-wide with this policy. This would set a direction."

Board member Marilyn Schwinn applauded the idea of banning cigarettes, snuff and chewing tobacco from all schools, but questioned whether starting a policy this summer and then perhaps not continuing it in the fall would be inappropriate.

Homes said that for a policy to be effective, there would need to be enforcement, which he said could be accomplished by the hiring of five additional security guards in the district.

Roland Thomas, board vice president, and Jeanette Wines, a board member, said this year's school budget doesn't allow for adding on five to the staff.

Homes also recommended that to create a smoke-free environment, the ban on tobacco should apply not only to students but also to faculty and staff. He said that it would mean eliminating designated smoke areas in buildings and that would involve negotiations with faculty and staff.

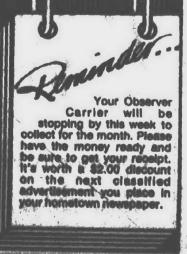

The board added that it would have to address providing educational seminars about the health benefits of not smoking, methods of enforcement and penalties for breaking the policy.

Livonia and Northville school districts have smoke-free building policies in place. Board member flaribera Greham asked that the board take a close look at those two districts while further investigating a policy for Plymouth Canton.

CEP band director retiring on happy note

James Griffith in action.

The year 1988 was a championship season for veteran band director James Griffith of the Plymouth Cen-tennial Educational Park band, so he decided it was a good time to pass the baton and go on to other things.

Griffith announced his retirement as director of the CEP marching band at the end of the school year. Glenn Adsit, Griffith's assistant Griffith, who began his 32-year teaching career with the Plymouth schools, will continue to teach music education at the high schools. He'll also coordinate and direct all bands and staff during the school day.

"I've had 32 years of terrific experiences," he said during a recent phone interview. "It's a good time to go on to other experiences."

The "reduced responsibilities" will give him time to do some things the rigorous marching band schedule didn't permit. Griffith, who spoke from his cottage in Northport, near Grand Traverse Bay, said he was enjoying "sitting, watching the ducks, geese and sailboats."

For him, directing and developing the marching band has been more than a full-time job. It was his first job after graduating from the University of Michigan in 1957.

Marching band responsibilities in-volved two hours daily of afterschool practice during the football season, August through November. It also involved "all of the meetings before and after to analyze and re-view results," Friday football games, plus Saturday practices, and

Board examines classroom visits

By Helen Niemiec special writer

There won't be any changes made in the policy covering visits to classrooms by members of the Plymouth Canton Community School Board.

The board looked at such visits because of one made by board member Barbara Graham earlier this spring during which she called the decor of a room at Plymouth Canton High School depressing. She also questioned the use of the Metro Times, an alternative urban weekly newspaper.

The visit sparked charges that she was trying to censor materials used in classrooms, and came in the midst of a millage campaign No policy change after controversy and school board election. Voters approved a 4 mill increase and 8 mill renewal at the polls on June

Graham's actions brought criticism from the teacher and some parents, though Graham was supported by other parents at a board meeting in April.

At the meeting on Monday, David Artley, board president, asked each board member to explain what they do upon entering school buildings in an effort "to reach a consensus, and eventually a procedure, as to how we go about our information gathering.

Five members spoke before the member-by-member survey reached Graham.

"All this is generated by one inci-dent," she said. "I did go into a classroom and I was asked my opinion. I told them that the decor was depressing."

Graham added that when she walked into the room there was no teacher present, which she called "unusual."

"I didn't walk in there to terrorize anyone," she told the board. She said the Metro Times was on a table and available to anyone. E.J. McClendon, a board member, told her that if she had a problem with its content that the concern should have been taken to the building administrator since the district does have a review policy for materials that parents or students find objectionable. Marge Fitzgerald, of Canton, supported Graham for her stand against the Metro Times in the classroom.

"She found out things that are going on that we don't want and we don't like and we want it stopped," Fitzgerald said.

Fitzgerald, after the meeting, said she may take advantage of the district's review process of materials by filing a complaint against Metro Times in classrooms. She said that she would talk to members of the Citizens for Better Education, a group of Christian conservatives, before making a final

Bus mirror change reflects state law

When school starts again in September, school buses will have a new look.

It won't be much of a new look, but it'll be one mandated by a 1963 state law. Buses will be required to have one more of the 71/2-inch convex mirrors that enable drivers to see the blind spot just before and under their front bumpers. Bus drivers will also have a check-

Worth and Eastern Michigan freshman Linette Lao (formerly of the Perspective) received a second place award in the "Art and/or Typography" category.

Derek Clemens of Plymouth and Rob McClain of Canton participated in the statewide Junior High/Middle School Mathematics Competition held at Central Michigan University on May 20. Derek placed 12th and Rob placed 22nd in the state contest.

The competition started with approximately 2,000 schools at the local level in both the Lower and Upper Peninsulas. From these local contests, more than 3,000 students were sent to regional competitions at eight different sites around the state. The contestants were divided approximately equally among sixth, seventh and eighth graders. From each region, the top 25 students at each grade level were sent to the statewide competition.

As president of the state BPW, it will be Zimmerman's responsibility to organize the 1990 state convention, entitled "Say Yes To Success," which will be held at the Clarion Inn in Lansing. Coinciding with the initials BPW, the theme will be "Building Personal Worth."

ZIMMERMAN JOINED the Canton BPW in 1981 and was named a Young Careerist, an honorary position, at both the chapter and district levels in 1982. The position recognizes the honors and achievements of women on their way up.

Zimmerman was also a cheerlead-er at Eastern Michigan University, where she carned a bachelor's degree in business education in 1978.

FOR SIX months until June 1979, she taught pregnant high school girls typing, shorthand and accounting for the Wayne County Intermediate School District.

"When I graduated from college, they were pink-slipping teachers with 10 to 15 years experience," Zimmerman said.

At the same time, she taught adult education for the Melvindale-Allen Park school district.

She did her student teaching at Plymouth-Canton High School.

"I am very fortunate. I have a very supportive husband and a very supportive employer," Zimmerman said. "My husband encouraged me to get involved. He didn't hold me back. He wasn't intimidated by the honors and awards I received. He pushed me to do more."

When she goes away for the weekend, she returns to find her laundry done, she said.

This is the final story in a three-part series examining animal cruelty.

Jack McMahan, a former North Carolina police officer and Florida sheriff turned humane officer, cautions against reading his employ-ment manuel at night "'cause it's sorta scary."

McMahan, a seasoned officer who investigates animal cruelty for the Michigan Humane Society, is the organization's specialist on ritual killing, perhaps the most chilling form of cruelty visited upon helpless ani-from books, not actual experience," "Most of my experience comes McMahan said, because documenting ritual killing is extremely difficult. Clues are rarely left behind.

In the six years he has been an animal investigator McMahan has observed only one certain instance of animal sacrifice.

In early 1987, the body of a black pit bull was discovered on a carpeted altar beneath a makeshift arch of bricks in a deserted foundry along Detroit's riverfront. The dog had been stabbed in the heart. Nearby, the staked head of a doll was missing its left eye. Left is symbolic of Sa-

"WE THINK whoever did it knew only a little (about the occult)," McMahan said, because knowlegeable Satanists would remove the right eye that represents God.

Although an extensive investigation failed to turn up any clues, McMahan suspects the scene was the activity of teens dabbling in the oc-

Steve Doran of Southfield, a former private detective who has written a handbook on the occult and now consults on the subject, agreed.

Doran said, to the best of his knowledge, there is no organized Church of Satan in Michigan. Moreover, most of those practicing the occult are bored teens, many living in rural areas with little else to do. There is no increase in occult activity now. It is simply more public, said

The common denominator of all occult activity, according to Doran, is why people become involved.

They're after the promise of ultimate power. It's a very individualized religion, getting something for nothing. People set their own criteria, based on their own needs," he Doran first encountered the occult in 1981, while a security officer for the U.S. Marine Corps. Within two years, he encountered another two incidents, each involving enlisted men in Korea and Okinawa.

"The more I learn, the more I realize how little I actually know and understand about it all," Doran said.

OCCULT PRACTICES often include animal sacrifice, according to Detective Larry Jónes of the Boise, Idaho, police force who founded Cult Crime Impact Network in 1987 after realizing "there was a tremendous lack of information on occulton occult-related crime and stages workshops to increase awareness on the subject, includes law enforcement officials, members of the judiciary, social workers and psychologists who rely on one another for information on subjects little known or understood.

The topic is immense. There are countless practices, each with their own complicated rituals, symbolism and deities: Satanic cults like the Church of All Worlds, the Temple of Truth or the better known Ordo Templi Orientis (OTO), and voodoo Santeria and Palo Mayombe, baseu on primitive African and West Indies religions.

Two-thirds of the American public believe the devil exists, and half of those see evidence that he directly affects their lives, according to an article on Satan in this month's issue of Life Magazine.

DIANE DASKALAKIS of Plymouth Township is certain that Satanic worship is alive and well, "threaded" throughout society and, in particular, the Plymouth-Canton school district which she and others in the area who share her convictions have targeted for change.

They have organized as Citizens for Better Education. And Daskalakis, self-taught on the twin subjects of witchery and Satanism, has emerged as a leader of the conservative Christian group.

Some months ago, Daskalakis said she explored underground tunnels at the abandoned Wayne County Child Development Center on Sheldon and Five Mile roads. Based on a video tape of the astonishing experience, the facility, closed since 1978, appears to have hosted a myriad of activity since.

We found two, one outside and one inside," Daskalakis said, referring to what she said are sites of animal sacrifice, complete with altars, skeletons, boiling pots and hides. Graffiti-covered walls proclaim "Satan lives" and "die," in addition to such satanic symbols as triple-6's and five-point stars.

The skeleton outside is likely a cat, the bones boiled clean or worn clean with time. A clot of fur hide is heaped nearby. Inside, the decomposing carcass is clearly that of a

TEEN PRANKS or Satanic wor-

Capt. Philip Presnell of Northville Township police said a co-investiga-tion with Michigan State Police concluded the facility has been damaged by vandals but "there is no evidence to indicate occult activity."

Daskalakis concludes otherwise. "Unbelievability is attached to the topic. Because we're more aware, we're more able to identify signs," she said. The future? "There is going to be more of it, lots, lots, lots EpiSmile, for the smile you've always wanted.

Achieve The Designer Smile

EpiSmile™ is a remarkable new tooth brightener and cleanser that can give you whiteness you can measure. Safe and powerful, it is the result of years of research by Dr. Irwin Smigel, innovator in the field of aesthetic dentistry and a leading New York dentist. Having earlier developed the technique of dental bonding, Dr. Smigel was particularly determined to find a new, non-abrasive, stainremoving formula for his patients with bonded teeth, a formula he later ascertained to be just as safe and effective on natural teeth.

EpiSmile also protects against plaque. CalProx, the stain remover in EpiSmile, works by dissolving an invisible layer of protein that constantly forms over tooth surfaces and attracts stain and plaque. When that layer is removed, there is nothing for stain and plaque to adhere to. EpiSmile also contains fluoride so it may be used in place of regular toothpaste.

Inside the EpiSmile box is a unique measuring device that lets you measure the improvement in the whiteness of your teeth. Measure before you start, then brush twice a day as directed. Generally after three weeks, you will begin to measure the difference. Your teeth will certainly feel different right away. . . slicker, smoother. . . on your way to the brighter smile you've always wanted.

EpiSmile comes in a 4 az. pump container, $12. Cosmetics all stores except Twelve Oaks.

school money proposals to support.
"We're telling our people not to oppose either one. We've supported both in the past," said Larry Chunovich, the former Southfield math teacher who heads the Michigan Education Association, the largest teachers' union.

MEA delegates will decide Aug. 5 whether to support Plan 1, a halfcent increase in the sales tax worth $400 million to public schools, or Plan 2, a two-cents increase with $400 million for public schools and $1.1 billion for property tax relief.

POLITICAL EYES will be on the MEA when its 60-member board meets in Sault Ste. Marie to decide where to concentrate not only its money but its member power. There is one board member for every 2,000 teachers plus others to represent higher education and support staff.

We're looking at the polling data. We're looking at the (state aid) distribution formula," Chunovich said Monday.

"We will not oppose either one. We're having hearings in all 17 regions of the state with information on each proposal." Wayne County is Region 2; Oakland, Region 7.

"If they (local units) have a tendency to back one, we say, 'Don't opnose the other.' We need one to pass. We have to find out which."

By law, if both are approved, the one with the most yes votes will take effect next Jan. 1. A voter-approved amendment to the state constitution is required to raise the

put into the campaign.
It has been widely reported the Democratic-leaning union didn't buy into Gov. James J. Blanchard's fund-raisers, first because it was saving its cash for the money campaign, second because it was miffed the governor didn't back any school money proposal sooner. Blanchard is expected to support Plan 1, which came out of a committee he called together. He considers Plan 2 to have no chance of voter approval.

Chunovich estimated the total campaign would cost "in the neighborhood of $3 million. We look to a lot of groups," he said, citing associations of school boards, school administrators, manufacturers and a coalition called Equal Partners composed of 28 groups such as the PTA.

The MEA will provide the most field workers. "We are probably the only organization with members in every precinct," Chunovich said. "It will be similar to a millage effort - 568 local efforts.

Lawmakers split on plans

It's not 100 percent certain those proposals will be on the Nov. 7 ballot. They are tied to five House bills amending business property taxes and taking the sales tax off some utility bills. The House has approved them, but the Senate Finance Committee has been sitting on them since March 7.

Faxon sees an opportunity for mischief. "I question whether you can tie-bar this to bills whose effect is unknown," he said, calling the step a "substantial flaw."

SEN. FAUST and Rep. Kosteva both lean toward the second plan.

"It's fundamental, long-term change. It addresses the complete problem - schools and the property tax." said Kosteva. He said the 2-percent plan was supported by in-formula districts such as Wayne-Westland but not by out-of-formula districts such as Plymouth-Canton.

'I was in touch with every superintendent, said Faust. "The majority wanted the 2percent one and urged me to vote to put it on the ballot."

Faust added. Rep. Gerald Law, "I was surprised R-Plymouth at some of the Republican votes."

While Senate majority leader John Engler, the probable 1990 GOP gubernatorial candidate, voted no, such leading Republican lights as Dan DeGrow of Port Huron, John Schwarz of Battle Creek, finance chairman Norm Shinkle of Monroe and William Sederburg of East Lansing voted

An environmentalist effort to make polluters pay for toxic waste cleanups ran into tough questioning in the state Senate Natural Re-Sources Committee.

But Senate Bill 375 was stoutly backed by Department of Natural Resources director David Hales, the attorney general's office and the Public Interest Research Group in Michigan (PIRGIM).

"The cost of cleanup should be borne by those who caused it when they're identified and collection is possible," said the sponsor, Sen. Lana Pollack, D-Ann Arbor.

"This is not meant to be punitive," she said of the fines and treble dam-ages her bill would-enact. "We have them as a stick."

An opening hearing in Lansing last week was cut short by pressure on the Legislature to put school money proposals on the ballot and clear the Capitol for extensive renovations. No vote will be taken for some weeks, said chairman Vern Ehlers, R-Grand Rapids.

THE PRESENT 1983 toxic waste

law is weak, Pollack said.
"The state has no direct authority to order a polluter to clean up a toxic site. The money that is recovered is deposited into the state's general

The $640 million bond issue approved by voters in 1988 should be aimed at "orphan sites, where no viable responsible party can be found!" the said.

Her proposal would make the DNR director, rather than the governor, responsible for cleanups; give DNR officials better access to propoerty; and seeks to replace court cases with administrative orders.

BUT SEN. JOE Mack, D-Ironwood, predicted "a lot of court liti-

Added Sen. Harry Gast, R-St. Joseph: "I have a concern with 'threat-ened release' of contaminants." Gast also was bothered by sanctions against chemicals that "may be-come" injurious to public health. "You need the word 'threatened,'"

Pollack replied, "because DNR sometimes sees an accident about to happen."

DNR's Hales said the bill would speed cleanups rather than cause litigation. "We've spent years dealing with lawyers rather than cleaning up contaminated sites," he said.

Reickel said SB 375's standards are the same as in a federal statute. But to recover state cleanup costs, the state cannot use the federal law in federal court: it needs a state law.

PIRGIM program director Andrew Buchsbaum said Michigan has more than 2,000 toxic waste sites with only a handful of completed cleanups in the past decade.

"DNR estimates the costs of cleanup up existing sites will be be-tween $3 billion and $8 billion." He added that the federal "superfund" may assist in cleaning up only 80 of the worst sites.

"Voluntary private party cleanups increase in number and effectiveness when the administering agency has the legal authority to order cleanup activity and easily recover moneys spent by the state on cleanup," the PIRGIM spokesman said.

Love of politics, leadership prompted run for SC board

directioning first in his class from in University of Detroit with a ma-in political science probably island That-four McCritics mare his light decited office this month.

It certainly didn't hurt. McCotter, 23, is now midway through law aghool at U-D and embarking on a new part-time career — that of poard trustee of the Livenia based schoolcraft Community College.

Son of Livenia City Councilwoman

Joan McCotter, the new school trus-tee is quick to point out that while name recognition may have helped with Livonia voters, he was virtually unknown throughout the remainder of the district, which includes Plymouth, most of Canton Township, Garden City, Northville, part of West-land and a small section of Novi.

"If a person wants to succeed in the public arena, they have to stand on their own. No amount of family support will get you there," he said.

"PEOPLE in the (Republican) party and a (Schoolcraft) board member approached me about a position on the board," added McCotter, who in true political fash-inn refused to divulge which trustee asked him to run for office.

A two time precinct delegate who also took off a school term to work for the re-election of U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, McCotter is no stranger to the political process. Nor to rock and roll.

Posters of Winston Churchill, Bobby Kennedy and the Rolling Stones decorate his room. Music - he plays guitar and writes songs - and politics help define who he is.

A few years back he was part of

"That was just before (creation of) WCSX, which plays that kind of music," he recalled. "No heavy metal, no punk, no junk, no funk. We did all right for awhile. I still write songs."

Although college board trustee isn't the type of position an aspiring politician may dream about becoming, McCotter said "it becomes a question of when do you run (for office) and what do you run for. If you don't get involved, you may never get involved."

McCOTTER likes to draw differences between his generation and those who came of age during the tumultuous 60s.

"At least we want to work within the system, do constructive things," he said. "We're not just out there criticizing. We're out there doing things. If you don't stand up and express ideas, offer yourself for leadership, you can't accomplish what you set out to do. We're willing to get out there and help take responsibility for the future."

He would like to see the Republican Party go into the inner cities and make an effort to reach the people.

"Republicans are coming out on top at the top level but not on the lower levels. I like the Kemp style. We have to tell people how they can change their lives. Empower themselves: Republicans have to come in with business leadership for minorities and the poor, reach out to people. I think I can start doing that within a couple more years — not at within a couple more years — not at Schoolcraft."

But for now Schoolcraft is the political reality in McCotter's life. He began studying the school and its administration before the campaign so he could intelligently answer voter queries, he said.

Battle for money

Schools should do more of it

HOUGH WE endorsed the recent 4-mill tax increase for Plymouth-Canton Schools, we made it equally clear we would like to see the increase made or space, to discuss steps to be taken.

In the heat of the election, there wasn't time.

There is something our schools — and community officials — can do to help assure the millage expires, without renewal, in two years. It's this: We believe our area needs to revise its policy on industrial tax breaks. Michigan public school districts have the right to fight tax increases, though here, as in most other communities, they rarely do. Standing up before city or township officials to argue against granting a tax break to a particular industry is something school officials appear loath to do.

We can understand why. Arguing against a tax break already on the table is a negative action. What is needed is something positive.

Rather than fighting head-to-head, we'd prefer to see our school and local officials sit down at the same table to discuss the issue. Rather than arguing against a specific tax break, for a specific business, we'd prefer to see them hammer out new guidelines, at the minimum restricting tax breaks, if not banning them outright.

WHILE TAX breaks may be good news for businesses, which can save 50 percent on their tax bills, they are bad news for schools. This is especially true in Plymouth-Canton, where money worries have long been an overriding concern. It won't get better, either, as the district loses its state aid. School officials may not have been concerned in the days when Plymouth-Canton received state money for basic classroom expenses, but they should be now that the district is going out of formula, losing that aid.

While some communities have abandoned the practice, or at least cut down upon the number of years a tax break is in effect, tax breaks of up to

While some communities have abandoned the practice, or at least cut down upon the number of years a tax break is in effect, tax breaks of up to 12 years are not uncommon in Plymouth and Canton townships.

12 years are not uncommon in Plymouth and Canton townships.

Within the past month, Canton has granted at least two tax breaks. Plymouth Township has granted at least one over the same period.

That has to change. Want a good reason? Consider this - homeowner property tax assessments in the Plymouth/Canton area have risen a minimum 25 percent over the past two years. Now consider this, property taxes assessments increased 0 percent for area businesses and industries in the past year. That's right - zero.

The lack of assessment increases on commercial property aren't directly linked to tax breaks. The assessments were primarily placed against existing businesses; tax breaks were granted to businesses that are yet-to-be.

Nonetheless, the information should be enough to give township board members reason enough for revising their policy. If not, they can always look at how hard our local schools had to fight to keep its financial head above water.

We said it before, elsewhere on this page, and we'll say it again: schools and communities need to work together more closely in mapping out their collective future.

Having Plymouth-Canton Schools and community officials sit down together to revise the area's tax break policy would go a long way toward making that future a better one - for the schools as well as for taxpayers.

Force the legislature to make hard choice

POLITICAL COURAGE has become a rare commodity in Lansing.

So, you already know that. But this time the state Legislature and executive are really trying to pull a fast one on the taxpayers of Michigan. And we should be nothing short of furious.

No matter where political inclinations lean - left, right or center -Michigan voters can feel unanimously used.

Making the tough decisions — that's what we pay'em for, those hard-working state legislators. But they've figured out a ploy to avoid doing just that.

Strange, although they pass reams of bills and resolutions every session, for the last few years, state lawmakers have been paralyzed when it comes to making the most important decision of all - the future of our educational system.

But come November, you'll have an opportunity to make it blow up in their collective faces.

Let me explain.

Few of the powerbrokers in Lansing are willing to risk their political skins to decide how to squeeze more money out of already beleaguered taxpayers. They've been throwing this political hot potato from one side of the aisle to the next for a couple of years, now.

The governor, we all should note, hasn't been any more courageous. The potato has done it's fair share of scorching his pinkies.

But education tax reform is such a hot item that politicians feel that no matter what decision they make, the public will burn them. So in a stroke of less-than-genius, they've collectively decided to turn the tables on

In November, you will have the chance to decide. Your choices:

 A two-cent increase in sales tax, with a 37 percent cut in school taxes for homeowners and a 22 percent decrease for business, which would garner $468 million in new dollars for schools.

• A one half-penny increase (figure that one out), which would generate $400 million.

DON'T BUY either one, folks. Although you can bet that the more than $3 million in campaign hoopla that will fill your television sets and mailboxes will talk about the two alternatives, another, more important alternative is open to you.

Vote no on both We pay legislators to make decisions, even when they are unpopular. That should be the point of this entire election. A thousand ways to finance schools can be manufactured. So the alternatives offered are really irrelevant.

But making state lawmakers accountable is a whole other challenge.

They'll become like a bunch of immature kids if we pass one of these alternatives. You know, as long as you keep picking up your child's clothes, the longer they'll let you do it for them.

And then they'll pompously point their fingers at us in derision when the public fights among itself and say, "see, we told you so."

We must insist on a responsible Legislature. The only ones who can make them uphold their duties are

Dropout rate

Legislation comes up short

T'S A NOVEL IDEA, and maybe we should give them credit for that. But once again our state legislators have come up short in addressing one of the problems facing Michigan educators.

We are speaking of the dropout rate and a pair of proposals currently making the rounds in Lansing that would allow the state - with the approval of the school district in question - to suspend the driver's license of any youth under 18 who drops out or is expelled from high school.

Under House Bills 4234 and 4236, superintendents of public and private secondary schools would be required to report names of these youths to the secretary of state. Sponsors are Reps. Philip Hoffman, R-Horton, and Claude Trim, R-Waterford.

The bills are meant to address the state's 62percent high school graduation rate, 48th in the nation according to one survey.

ON THE surface, the intent is laudable and the plan is certainly a creative one. But let's take a look at what we'd actually accomplish with it.

Legislation like this will no doubt succeed at keeping some teenagers in school. It doesn't mean they will become better students, though.

This type of fringe student will probably manage to disrupt the learning process for others in the classroom, too.

For others, the threat of losing driving privileges won't be much of a deterrent, according to James Myers, principal at Westland's John Glenn High School.

'When you're dealing with kids who have

State lawmakers should be working on measures that will make all youths - those who drop out and those who stay in - capable of functioning in today's society. For example, how about beefing up minimum standards in reading, math and science so that by the time someone is 16 he'll have the basic skills to compete?

The solution to the dropout problem goes beyond holding uncooperative students hostage in the secretary of state's office.

Racism depends on viewpoint

FOR YEARS I have puzzled over the distinction between the weather forecast that calls for "partly cloudy skies" and the one that promis skies will be "partly sunny."
I think I've finally figured it out.

It's the same forecast, but the way it is phrased depends on the politics of the meteorologist.

I arrived at this conclusion recently after reading countless newspaper stories and columns about a series of U.S. Supreme Court rulings relating to the general area of civil rights.

Liberals see the decisions as 'blows," "setbacks," "attacks" and so forth on the civil rights cause.

Conservatives, being more cautious with their language as well as their politics, tend to view the rulings as an indication that the court is returning to doing what it is supposed to do: interpreting laws according to what they say and what they mean and not what the justices think they should say and mean.

I've got to go with the conservatives on this one.

BUT ONE fascinating aspect of the whole debate is the obvious bias in the rhetoric of the civil rights activists. They must all be students of Lewis Carroll's Humpty-Dumpty.

"When I use a word," Humpty-Dumpty told Alice, "it means just what I choose it to mean - neither more nor less.

Consider just one example. When the court ruled on June 12, in a suit brought by white firefighters in Birmingham, Ala., that white men have the right to challenge employment plans that give preferential treatment to minorities and women, civil rights activists were appalled. That's understandable, considering their point of view.

But newspapers — in their news stories, mind you, not on the opinion page - called the ruling a "new setback to minorities," a "setback to blacks and women," a "blow to affirmative action," etc.

None of the accounts that I read focused on the ruling as a "gain for white men" or a "return to fairness in hiring practices" or anything like that. Almost without exception, the decision was treated as a negative news accounts were typical of the rhetoric of the entire civil rights movement. The words mean just what the activists choose them to

Journalists, for instance, reported that the Birmingham firefighters were battling what they saw as "reverse discrimination."

I'm not sure when that phrase en-tered the language, but I think it was in 1978 when the high court re-viewed a California case in which a white man challenged a university's affirmative action program that established a quota system for admissions. I thought then, as now, that the phrase was a convolution. Discrimination is discrimination.

"Affirmative action," itself, has a nice, positive ring to it, but when translated it simply means "paternalism." For a good cause, of course. Never mind that "affirmative action" depends, in part, on discrimination against whites and white males in particular. It sounds positive. And that kind of discrimination, as one liberal columnist recently put it, is "discrimination for a good

IN MORE ANTICS with semantics, civil rights activists said the recent court decisions are erasing all the gains that the movement has made in the past 25 years — since Lyndon Johnson signed the Civil Rights Act of 1964. "The court doesn't seem to recognize," the liberal columnists tell us, "that racism still exists."

But wait a minute. The 1964 civil rights act didn't address "racism." It effectively outlawed "discrimination." Those are two substantively different concepts. But the activists aren't making the distinction.

Discrimination is a practice that can be isolated and legislated against. It can, perhaps, in time be nished. Racism can't.

Racism is a state of mind. It has existed as long as races have existed. That doesn't make it right, but you can't legislate it out of existence. That's getting too close to Big Brotherism.

And the time has come to stop dealing with discrimination with the 'eye for an eye" philosophy. Two wrongs just don't make a right. And is "right" isn't necessarily what the liberal activists would like

That's what the court, in its recent decisions, seems to be trying to say. And that's not racist. It's justice.

Let's bring back old-style debates

AT FIRST I thought someone across town had read my 1988 column on the Lincoln-Douglas de-bates and was expropriating the

"No, I didn't see it," chuckled Clark Durant. "I guess great minds work along the same channel."

Durant, 40, a lawyer in Detroit, is seeking the Republican nomina-tion for U.S. Senate next year. He's one in a prospective field of three or four who would like to take on two-term Sen. Carl Levin, 54, of Detroit. And Durant isn't coy. He's Picking up on Levin's own stated intention of campaigning on issues, Durant is challenging the incumbent to debate. Not one debate, mind you, but seven. And not your pot-boiler TV debates, but a Lincoln-Douglas style series - the real life, genuine article.

TODAY'S DEBATES are made for television and people with television-type minds.

The TV mind can't concentrate on a single topic for more than a minute and a half. The TV mind thinks in terms of 20-second, smart-aleck bites instead of sub-

One recalls the vice-presidential debate where the only line that made the news was Lloyd Bentsen's jibe to Dan Quayle: "Senator, you're no John Kennedy, conveniently forgetting that JFK's senatorial nickname was "Bedchamber Jack."

In the typical TV-style debate, a panel of newspeople pop surprise questions on any topic under the sun, and the debater has one to three minutes to respond. Such debates reveal who has been coached in TV-style answers, who can memorize and deliver quips, but not who can formulate public policy and run a government. The pundits analyze who "came off" best, who seemed most confident, who sweated. They never get into substance.

DURANT IS proposing the winner of the GOP primary and Levin discuss topics Lincoln-Douglas style.

In that format, the first speaker goes on for two time units, the second for three time units, and the first closes in one time unit. The time units can be up to a half-hour.

In my own view, the debates should have a single topic: the defense budget; why the U.S. has the most evaporation medical care in the most expensive medical care in the world but not necessarily the best; the international economy, the dis-solving family and its burden on the welfare system — or anything else the combatants can agree ou.

But none of this two minutes per Durant's notion is to scatter the debates across the state, and not just in a TV studio or the Econ Club of Detroit. I propose the UAW local on Plymouth Road, Clarence-ville High School (some folks are serious about dissolving the district), some place near the Warren tank plant, a Farm Bureau hall in Clinton County (the farm economy has been wretched for years), and the Miller Auditorium at Western Michigan University (Upjohn Co. is there; it waited for years to get federal approval for a hair prod-uct, and it's the topic of takeover gossip).

Both men are attorneys of some skill. I'd like to hear them discuss the Bork nomination to the Supreme Court (Levin voted no), a matter covered superficially as a women's rights political story on TV. The Wayne State Law School in Detroit or the Cooley Law School in Lansing would be good sites.

Summer school has its disadvantages

Q: My daughter is going to attend summer school to take typing and government. If she takes typing now she'll be free to take more foreign language next year. And government is required for graduation. Are summer school classes as challenging as classes taken during the regular school year?

A: How challenging a course is, whether during the summer or during the regular school year, depends on the course objectives and the teacher teaching the course.

SUMMER SCHOOL was established to remediate or bring up to grade level students who were failing. Also, all students must pass American Government, which is a required course, to graduate.

fear of failing the course in their senior year and then not graduating. On the other hand, some students take government and other courses during the summer to free up a class period for the next fall. The latter are usually highly motiviated students who want six full class periods during the regular school year. Sometimes to ensure they have time for band, choir, drama, art, journalism, honors of other enriching class-

Let's look at the advantages and disadvantages of summer school.

 A summer school class is usually 60 hours while the same class during the regular school year is 90.

What if the teacher selected to teach government has been teaching only world history over the past several years? Remember, in some cases, it is not easy to have the regular September to June teacher available for the summer class. Advantage or disadvantage? Disadvantage; even though the teacher has a major in social studies, a seasoned government teacher would be best for the sum-

A few highly motivated students are in a class in which the other students who are unmotivated have failed the class during the school year. Advantage or disadvantage? Disadvantage. Remediating unmotivated students while, at the same time, keeping the academically tal-ented students challenged is a very difficult task.

A high-achieving student takes summer classes every summer to allow him/her to take more challenging course during their four year tenure. Advantage or disadvantage? Advantage. Although contradicting the previous information, taking some skills classes, i.e. typing and basic computer skills, can free upthe ambitious student for a full schedule the next year.

Metro expansion

Officials say its back on track

by Mary Redrique

Wayne County will move forward with a proposed $1 billion expansion to Detroit Metropolitan Airport unfor an agreement with the new owners of Northwest Airlines.

Northwest Vice President James Thorne and Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara announced class Tuesday in a joint press consense. Northwest will spend $3 million for a design competition to both concepts for the construction of a new World Travel Center, a 60 o 70 gate midfield terminal to handle all international flights. The rejuest for proposals is scheduled to be issued in July, with designs to be abmitted to Northwest and the county shortly thereafter.

The plan ends an adversarial relationship between the top air carrier at Metro and county officials, who lied suit last month in federal court o block the airline's takeover. McNamara said the county will drop lead action.

Since March, a battle has been reaged for control of NWA, Inc., parent company of Northwest Airlines. Speculation ended Monday when a group headed by Los Angeles based investor Alfred Checchi agreed to buy the airline for $121 a share, or $3.6 billion.

"WE'RE JUST ELATED,"

McNamara said. "The Checchi buyout is turning out to be good news. Metro is now on its way to becoming the kind of airport everyone in Michigan can be proud of."

The county's fear over the past few months has been that whatever group took over the airline it would be so in debt that it would be unable to commit to expansion plans already negotiated. But Checchi is keeping Northwest management in place and has announced intentious to see the airline grow, not shrink in

Michael Duggan, deputy county executive, said Monday that the county has been in negotiations for two weeks with Northwest brass to reach an accord.

At risk was the loss of hundreds of millions of dollars in planned development providing thousands of jobs, according to Duggan. McNamara said the new terminal should be ready within five years.

McNamara praised Michigan's congressional delegation who made it clear that Northwest would have a fight in Washington had it agreed to a takeover that left the company in a financially precarious position.

Northwest, the fourth largest air carrier in the U.S. and by far the dominant airline at Detroit Metro, accounting for nearly 60 percent of business, has been primarily responsible for a dramatic rise in operations and air passenger traffic at Metro since 1982.

New construction will be financed by the federal Department of Transportation, federal and state grants, and the airlines, which will pay the lion's share based on user fees, according to McNamara.

To upgrade facilities, Wayne County issued a $90.5 million bond sale in December 1985. As part of that bond sale, Republic (which was bought out by Northwest in 1986) promised to support a larger capital improvement program.

A general airport revenue bond issue to finance phase one of a multiphase capital improvement program was sold by the county in August 1986 for approximately $166 million.

Extensive studies have been undertaken — with Northwest the only airline represented on a master plan committee — to determine the optimum design and location of additional improvements.

The anticipated cost of the expansion program, which would be implemented over several years, is projected in excess of $908 million.

The county contends that the needs of the air traveling public in southeast Michigan cannot be adequately served by present airport facilities.

WITH THE PROPOSED World Travel Center, Metro Airport would become one of the most modern and efficient passenger terminals in the world, McNamara said. Some im'We're just elated. The Checchi buyout is turning out to be good news. Metro is now on its way to becoming the kind of airport everyone in Michigan can be proud of.'

provements would have continued at Metro regardless of Northwest's fu-

Such improvements include a ring road, earth berms, two new runways (a second east-west runway and a fourth north-south runway), new fire rescue station and installation of utilities and access road for a new flight tower.

Northwest has been the beneficiary of two major recent improvements at Metro. One was the addition of seven temporary gates, all of which are used exclusively by Northwest. Plans are for the gates to be used for five years, until the new terminal is in place. The temporary gates cost $5.75 million which was paid out of an existing improvement project fund, to which all the airlines contribute.

The other was the expansion of the international terminal, primarily to accommodate additional Northwest flights overseas.

Non-stop service to Tokyo, which began with two flights a week last year, is now up to eight flights a week. On June 1, Northwest began service to Seoul, Frankfort and Par-

Improvements at the international terminal included a new mechanized bag line, 16 federal inspection stations, six new custom stations, offices, an escalator and a new elevator. That $7 million capital improvement was bonded in 1986 as part of capital improvements.

Northwest, which uses Metro as a hub, controls 57 percent of the passenger traffic at the airport.

In 1982, 4.2 million passengers boarded planes at Metro. That was up to 9.9 million in 1987 and was projected, before Northwest became an object of takeovers, to reach 14.8 million by 1995.

Many bidders sought NWA

By Mary Rodrique staff writer

NWA Inc., the Minnesota-based parent company of Northwest Airlines, officially went on the selling block last April, a month after two investor groups launched buyout bids.

One of those groups, headed by Alfred Checchi, a former Marriott executive, was successful Monday, clinching the deal for $121 a share, or $3.6 billion for the fourth-largest airline in the U.S.

A rival offer by Los Angeles financier Marvin Davis for $2.7 billion was rejected, as was a subsequent hostile offer by the Davis group.

Various other groups were interested in acquiring Northwest, the major airline operating out of Detroit Metropolitan Airport. They included Kohlberg, Kravis Roberts & Co., one of the premier leveraged buyout firms in the country, which paid a record $25 billion for the acquisition of RJR Nabisco Inc. earlier this year.

Also offering bids were a Minneapolis investment firm, MEI Diversified, Inc., which includes Carl Pohlad, owner of the Minnesota Twins; corporate raider Irwin Jacobs; and Pan Am Corp. Chairman Thomas Plaskett.

Last week Northwest received its final round of bids and began meeting with Checchi.

Northwest's stock jumped from $42.25 when buyout speculation began to $114.12. Last year, the airline generated $5.65 billion in revenues.

THREE CITIES Art Club members also display their work in Kellogg Park during the Plymouth Fall Festival, although that's not a judged show. Club member Judy Gibbs was chairwoman for this past weekend's judged show. Chellstorp had the responsibility

Author Iris Halberstam Mickel has made the anguish of her own experience with scoliosis and that of her daughters the basis for her book "Stand Up Straight."

Mickel's book which took 12 years to emerge, may be the first published book on scoliosis, a condition defined as a side-to-side curve of the spine. It affects from 7 to 10 percent of adolescents.

In the case of Mickel, she didn't find scoliosis, for which there is no known cause or cure, the disorder found her. In 1957 she had a spinal fusion. "Bone was grafted from my left leg and placed along the major curve on my spine, fusing approxi-mately six vertebrae to a solid mass of bone," she writes.

"This was done to stop the progression of the curve in the major curve area."

Mickel recalls some 30 years of being poked, researched, exercised, and examined. "And I still live with a severe spinal deformity."

LEARNING TO live with her scoliosis, Mickel adjusted pretty well. That is, until her own daughter, Shari, began to show the telltale signs. "She had one shoulder higher than the other, a protruding right shoulder blade, and right rib rotation," said Mickel.

Mickel who had repressed her own childhood feelings, the pain, the body cast, the braces, reacted in anger that her own child should suffer as she had. Eventually, a second daughter, Jodi, also was found to have sco-

Mickel wrote to the Southfield Eccentric, asking that a notice be published telling scoliosis families they should meet and support each other. Along the way, the Scoliosis Association of Michigan (SAM) was formed and later affiliated with a national group in New York.

library that could be shared, and just -to know and comfort one another.

Mickel was employed in South-field where the family lived. The work of SAM was carried on by her from her home with help from a telephonetape machine. "We had no phone, no equipment, no staff to copy or mail material," she said. Nevertheless, SAM did good work.

A vital offshoot of the support group was the passage of the Sco-liosis Screening Bill No. 349 in the Michigan Senate as sponsored by Senator Jack Faxon. "Our goal was always public awareness," Mickel.

Doing business with Japanese people takes some getting used to for Americans.

"There are many sources of con-flict and frustration," said Shohei Koike, an assistant professor in the Department of Foreign Languages and Bilingual Studies at Eastern Michigan University.

The Japanese are status-con-scious, Koike said. When they're functioning as buyers while making a business deal, they expect the sellers to understand their needs and to show humility and respect. That's particularly the case when a larger company is buying from a smaller one. Younger people are also expected to be deferential when dealing with their elders.

Koike, who received his doctor ate in political science from the University of Oregon, spoke Mon-day to members and guests at a Plymouth Business and Profession-al Women's Club meeting. The meeting, held at the Mayflower Hotel in Plymouth, also included speaker Izumi Suzuki, president of the Novi-based consulting firm of Suzuki, Myers & Associates Ltd.

THE PROGRAM gave participants a chance to learn about Japa-nese culture and its influence on U.S. businesses. A Japanese tea ceremony, presented by Keiko. Umeda and narrated by Suzuki, was featured.

U.S. residents have traditionally viewed trade with Japan as being harmful, Koike told the BPW members and guests.

"Japanese investment in the United States is also viewed as more harmful than beneficial," he Joint ventures involving Japan and the United States in manufacturing operations tend to be viewed in a more positive light. Establishment of such manufacturing operations in the U.S. has led to increased interest in and awareness of cultural differences.

U.S. business people must learn how to negotiate with their Japanese counterparts. Patience is probably the most valuable commodity in doing so, Koike said.

Japanese business etiquette is different from that found in the United States. Goals and styles in negotiating and decision-making are also different.

Despite the growing interest in Japanese culture, there continues joyed the presentation. to be a shortage of programs to such instruction, said. That's true not only at the college/university level in the United States but also in public schools.

Those cultural differences can lead to misunderstandings on both sides, said Kotch, an account executive with Prescott, Ball & Turben in Plymouth. Understanding those differences is critical for businesspeople, not only the auto industry but also in other industries.

"We thought it was very timely, based on what was going on in our culture," Kotch said.

Thursday, June 22, 1989 O&E

The first edition of the Japanese Guide to Preferred Detroit Business is to be published in September by Nihon-U.S. Ltd. The firm offers language instruction, translation services and business development for American and Japanese companies.

"They desperately need to get in-formation," Nihon director Hiroko Miller said of the Japanese people whose jobs bring them to Detroit. "Most of them cannot speak English.

They cannot read so well. They don't know the system."

The directory will consist of about 50 pages, 10 of which will be editorial content. The remaining pages will contain advertising. Advertisers' names will be in English and Japa-

The advertising will be from upscale establishments because Japanese people who come to Detroit "are not into discount stores," Fenner said.

The directory will also provide information on selecting an acceptable school district, getting a Social Security card and renewing one's visa.

Miller said there were about 20 Japanese businesses in the Detroit area 10 years ago, and that number has risen to 250. Her company's research indicates the number of Japanese companies will double in the next five years, she said.

Nihon plans to publish the guide twice a year.

The directory will have a circula-tion of about 5,000. It will be distributed to companies and hotels here and in Japan as well as Japanese families and social organizations in the Detroit area.

Similar directories have been successful in Japanese communities in Chicago, New York and San Francis-

Madonna College exports master's degree to Taiwan

By Peggy Aulino staff writer

Eight Madonna College professors will travel to Taiwan over the next year as part of a program to offer graduate degrees to Taiwanese stu-

The students are either business persons or school administrators who, because of a government-controlled limit on the number of spaces available in graduate schools, cannot earn a master's degree in their native land, according to Sister Rose Marie, Madonna's academic vice president. Students will range in age from 24 to 45. "The Taiwanese higher education system doesn't offer evening courses for the working adult. Also, admission to graduate study is limited to those pursuing college teaching,"

Sister Rose Marie said. A master of science degree in administration with specialties in business administration and educational leadership will be offered. The students will study for two-week periods with the American professors and do the remaining course work independently. They will be required to come to the Livonia campus for about a month next summer. The program will take about a year to

"We feel it will be a very culturally enriching experience not only for the Taiwanese students, but for the American students who will have an opportunity to mix at close range with these individuals," said Sister Rose Marie.

Classes will be taught in the Taiwan capital of Taipei and will be limited to 25 people in each of the two programs. The Taiwanese students will pay the same college fees charged to international students who study at Madonna.

DR. ERNEST NOLAN, dean of graduate studies, planned the program details and said the content of the courses will be "essentially the same as what American students receive.

"The professors will adapt the courses to the needs of the students," Nolan said. "When we were designing this program . . . we were told again and again that the Taiwanese students are really interested in American ideas . . . because they feel that we're on the cutting edge."

The classes will be taught in English, but there will be a translator on hand in case communications problems arise. Each student has had a minimum of six years of English language study.

Madonna College was approached about initiating the program by Dr. Chen L. Chang, principal from a L'Anse Creuse vocational-technical center, east of Detroit. Chang, is a Taiwan native and naturalized U.S. citizen who contacted the school after he read about its educational leadership master's program. G gr "Although it sounded very unusual, I agreed to a first appointment," said Sister Rose Marie. "As he spoke of the possibilities, it seemed more and more possible."

The program is being treated "as if it can be repeated," Sister Rose Marie said. "We will evaluate very closely the first time, and if we feel we can continue to offer a quality service, we will continue to do that."

The program, which has received approval from the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools, will start in July. Nolan will spend a week there registering students. On July 14, business professors Charlotte Neuhauser and Donald Blouin and education professors Lorraine Jakublelski and William Herman will leave for Taiwan. A different business professor will teach there in November, and another group of four will make the trip in February or March.

Nolan said the program is part of a trend toward expanding Madonna's

Save now to fund retirement

Americans no longer assume that retirement must wait until their 65th birthday. In the last decade, the average age people retire has dropped from age 64 to 62. Similarly, more people now apply for Social Security at age 62 than at 65. The statistics undescore a trend that is likely to continue and perhaps even accelerate as the baby boom generation approaches retirement.

But choosing early retirement is not simply a matter of deciding that when to retire is life expectancles. Currently, the average life expectancy for men and women is approximately 80 years. The U.S. Census Bureau expects the percentage of those age 85 or older to double in approximately 30 to 40 years. Consequently, someone retiring at age 55 may need to finance some 30 years of retire-

If you hope to retire at an early age, you need to take a long look at your possible sources of retirement income. More important, you have to find out exactly how an early retirement can reduce the amount of money you will draw from each of those sources.

Social Security benefits are based on your age, when you apply and the amount of lifetime earnings on which you paid Social Security taxes. Any covered worker born before 1938 can apply for Social Security at age 65 and receive full benefits. For those born in 1938 and beyond, the age at which one can retire with full benefits gradually increases. For example, someone born in 1957 will not be able to retire with full benefits until six months after his or her 66th birthday. For those born after 1960.

What happens to your Social Security benefits if you take an early retirement? Retire before age 62 and you will receive no benefits until you reach 62. If you retire after age 62 but before 65, you will receive a monthly benefit check that will be permanently reduced by as much as 20 percent. Still, some financial planners believe an early retirement may pay off in the long run because the amount of Social Security you collect between ages 62 and 65 can sometimes compensate for the smaller monthly checks.

Social Security should not be your sole source of retirement income. For most people, a comfortable retirement will also require an employer's pension plan. Once almost taken for granted, today employer-sponsored benefits can be extraordinarily elusive. Economic pressures and new employment patterns frequently force workers to jump from employer to employer before they ever become fully yested in a com-pany's pension plan.

about 12 percent this year, but the problem with the two customers is expected to drop earnings per share down to $1.30 for the 1900 fiscal year. In the last five years, sales have more than doubled, and Fraser believes they can do it again in the coming five years. He also expects the 15-percent profit margin of last year to be maintained.

The company also has started to develop optical data storage devices. In the fall of 1988, the company hought Magnetic Data Inc., which is a leader in the repair of high-capaci-ty rigid disk drives. It is also developing its Thinfilm operations and

The company probably has had a slow time for several months while its major customers work out their problems, but my guess is you have a good chance of doubling the present price over the next five years.

"You're driving a truck."
Which may have led to a thought or two about why this was a reason for being pulled over at 7 a.m. in a city park, or even why the activity demanded two backup officers flanking the rear of the small white pickup convertible.

Being at an age where pragma-tism seems to beat a constitutional argument in the face of a traffic cop, the incident ends when the driver offers an explanation as to where the driver is going and what he is doing which seems to satisfy the officer who, in fact, is merely intent on assessing the lifestyle of the driver after pulling him over because he we driving an illegal status symbol.

THE ABOVE incident took place a couple of weeks ago, and similar confrontations presumably are still taking place following the recent banning of "trucks" on Beile Isle, the biggest public park in the city of De-

Along with trucks, the park has been posted against cars with trailers, loud music and motorcycles in the early morning hours.
At first there didn't seem to be anything particularly sinister about this ban, since I assumed the posting was aimed at line haul semis that might have wandered off the ex-sole vehicle is a truck, used alternately for small business delivery and personal transportation, so I fig-ured it was worth looking into.

An inquisitory "Huh?" about the ban on trucks was followed with the explanation delivery vehicles, semis, etc. were in fact OK - the ban was apparently for sport trucks associated with teens cruising the park.

Having grown up in a simpler era, when police simply harassed teenagers as a matter of course, I could empathize with the intent, if not the spirit of the new law. Teenagers cruise partly to aggravate adults.

As previously reported in this column, cruising lately has been adopted by drug dealers as a way of show-ing off their ill-gotten Mercedes, Jeeps and, yes, pickup trucks.

IN PACT, the emergence of a heavily customized small pickup as the drug dealer's status symbol is a relatively recent phenomenon in De-troit, having drifted here from California (of course), and sport pickups recently have more or less pushed

Cruising drug dealers in city parks have been a chronic problem for the past couple of summers, haraning picnichers, softball players and even other teenagers out merely to aggre-

A direct approach to the problem might have been posting "No cruis-ing drug dealers," which would have been more or less to the point, but today's drug dealer is heavily pro-tected by an armor of civil rights in-terpretations. In fact, the ordinance opens the ground for some blatent discrimination.

GOOD TRUCKS, even truck conventions, are tolerated or even encouraged (a good truck is one driven by a nice guy, or a fellow police offi-cer). Bad trucks are apparently trucks too clean, or too customized, customized the wrong way, or too imported.

Idaybe someone should take up the case for trucks. It's also worth poing that maybe a third of the visicies sold today are trucks, and flecity of Detroit has subsidied light truck manufacturing to the tune of a half billion or so in the past few manufacturing to the grantion of years — including the expithe Jefferson Avenue plant.

UP TO this point, no ACLU type has taken up the cause of the pickup truck, although singling out a status symbol seems blatently discriminatory.

If something isn't done, the next step might be a ban on "prominent German status symbols with gold anodized wheels. Maybe they'd hire better lawyers.

While most experts carefully guard their prediction techniques, some generously share, at least partly, their analytical techniques. Today I would like to share with you views of Frank Cochrane, whose views on the current market condi-

JUNE 29 10 AM TO 5 PM

There are three major points to examine in the movement of the Dow Jones Industrial Average between January and June:

1. There were three gaps: 2300, 2340 and 2390. A "gap" occurs when opening price on a given day is much higher than the closing price of the previous day. From a longer-term perspective, these gaps are unhealthy, because ultimately they are always closed: To use an analogy, if you build a house with a weak foundation and walls, the roof eventually caves in.

2. The market may be in a "topping process." The market usually drops after the formation of a topping triangle.

finances and you

Sid Mittra

3. On the basis of an impressive increase in the DJIA during the past three months (2300-2500), many brokerage houses and portfolio managers have suggested that we are in a 'new bull market" and should become fully invested.

What's the verdict? Given the formation of several triangles it appears that the market is ket has experienced a 5- to 8-percent correction (2350-2390 on the DJIA), it will be ready for a major advance.

In conclusion, a word of caution is in order. Do NOT play this market if you do not have the expertise. Consult your financial planner.

and the late was have an according to the late was as a second of a visiting discussion Detroit of the late was a late wa oring summer's day. Recently I decided to take a stroll

I was told the area was still thriving and as busy as it had ever been. I was also told that the preliferation of strip malls and super regional malls now surrounding this district had no negative effect on it.

After a short walk throu downtown Dearborn area, I was re-minded of the old saying, "You can't go back home again." So many of the stores where I had spent hours shop-ping had been out of business for

And as for the businesses that had replaced them — well, they certainly weren't of the same caliber I expected. Kresge's was now McCrory's. Albert's had been replaced by by a retailer that reminded me of "Rave" revisited.

And what had been Federal's was now home to a medical center. Seeing a great deal of vacant lease space was also discouraging, especially because the majority of these storefronts were eyesores.

On a positive note, I was pleased to see many of my old favorites still going strong. Alcamo's Italian mar-hot, Lombardi's, Sanders and Mont-gomery Ward were not only looking od but were obviously surviving well enough to stay downtown.

From a cosmetic viewpoint, trees now line Schaefer where no trees had been before. The sidewalks along Michigan Avenue were being replaced, and a new grocery store complex now stood where a much smaller grocery store, bar and photography studio had once been.

But as one local resident said, 'I'm not going to shop there because of the trees and sidewalks."

Keeping this in mind, I wonder if this district (and others like it) un-derstand how revitalization works and the commitment it takes to make it successfully happen. Trees and sidewalks are a start, but that can't be where it ends.

It takes a lot of work involving community leaders, business owners and residents to do what's needed for "up Schaefer" and any other district trying to make its way back. Mary DiPaolo is the owner of time, and Consumers Power Co. is helping to promote some of the season's major events to both Michigan natives and visitors.

Approximately 2 million customers of Consumers Power are receiving, along with their June bill, a bro-chure listing some of the summertime activities available in the state.

The brochure notes that, in addition to walking the lake shores, enjoying the thousands of lakes and exploring the forests, nearly 600 festivals and events will take place this

The brochure, whose design, production and distribution is being done solely by Consumers Power, is part of the utility's on-going efforts to assist the Michigan Travel Bureau in promoting tourism.

Topping the agenda is the "Celebrate! The Great Lakes" celebration in which Michiganians are not only using these unparalleled resources for recreation, they are also pledging to take care of the lakes so that future generations can celebrate them, too.
The events began earlier this season with free golf clinics, free canoeing lessons and free fishing days. They will continue all summer with seven special "Celebrate! The Great Lakes" festivals sponsored by the Michigan Council for the Humani-

The festivals are being held at Midland, June 11; Escanaba, June 30 through July 2; Ludington, July 29-30; Sault Ste. Marie, Aug. 12-13; South Haven, Aug. 19-20; Mackinac Island, Aug. 25-27; and Wyandotte,

The brochure lists nine regional events taking place in the state this summer, beginning with the Colonial Life Festival celebrating the 60th anniversary of the Henry Ford Museum & Greenfield Village in Dearborn, July 8-9.

When it ends, a short hop up the road will take a visitor to the open-ing parade of the Chesaning Showboat, which will steam along July 9-15, featuring vaudeville acts, dancers and headline entertainers.

A quick hop across the "Mitten" will take you to the National Cherry Festival in Traverse City July 9-15. It will feature 120 acts, three parades and enough sweet or tart cherries to satisfy any cherry lover.

The roar of power boats will fill the air around Bay City July 20-22, when the Bay Harbor Charity Classic speeds along Saginaw Bay. If you enjoy power boating and can't make that event, the brochure lists other races sanctioned by the American Power Boat Association in Grand Haven Aug. 12, and Traverse City

If Michigan's forests attract your interest, you can visit the Great Lakes Forestry Exposition in Mio July 20-22. You'll see would-be Paul Bunyans competing in the Michigan Lumberjack Tournament.

You can jump back into the water at the festivities marking the 199th anniversary of the founding of the U.S. Coast Guard at the festival in Grand Haven July 28 through Aug. 6. It will feature carnivals, bands and entertainment.

August in the Upper Peninsula is delightful, especially Aug. 15-20, when the Upper Peninsula State Fair is held in Escanaba.

Hot jazz gets in its licks when the Miller Lite Montreux Detroit Jazz Festival takes place Aug. 31 through Sept. 4. More than 100 famous jazz musicians will perform at free con-

The highlight of every Michigan summer is the Mackinac Bridge Walk on Labor Day. The brochure welcomes everyone to take part on Sept. 4 in this traditional event, which is led by the governor.

The brochure also recommends that Michigan residents and visitors plan to visit the first state building created especially for public use in more than a century, the Michigan Library & Historical Center in Lansing. Housed in the facility are The Library of Michigan, the only state library modeled after the federal Library of Congress; The State Archives of Michigan, where the state's documentary heritage is preserved and made available for research; and The Michigan Historical Museum, whose exhibits tell the story of our state's development from its geological beginnings. Best of all, admission is free.

The events listed in the brochure are just a sampling of activities scheduled this summer.

PCB-laced oil was sold to companies in Detroit area

Thousands of gallons of PCBlaced oil have been sold to companies in suburban Detroit and Ontario, which in turn have used it in industrial fuel, asphalt and dustcontrol mixtures, Michigan officials say.

The state probably will pursue charges but has not determined who concealed the presence of the cancer-linked contaminants, John Bohunsky of the Michigan Deaprtment of Natural Resources said Friday.

"The fact someone falsely represented this waste has criminal ramifications," said Bohunsky, regional supervisor for compliance with the DNR's Waste Management Divison.

Polychlorinated biphenyls have been banned in Michigan since 1976, after tests linked them to cancer and reproductive failures in animals. PCBs once were widely used to insulate electrical equip-

The state is investigating the distribution of oil containing up to 700,000 parts per million of PCBs removed from old electric transformers at Group 8 Technoliges Inc. in Wyandotte, Bohunsky

Federal law requires close regulation of the treatment, storage and handling of materials containing more than 50 parts per million

In April, Group 8 sold the oil to CIW Co., a Romulus oil reclamation company that diluted it and sold it, he said.

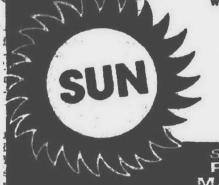

The DNR has traced at least 40,000 gallons of the PCB-laced oil to 22 companies, Bohunsky said. The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency will notify those companies about how to dispose of it, he said. But thousands of gallons still may be unaccounted for, he said.

The oil probably was diluted enough during processing so that is posed no environmental threat, said John Connell, chief of EPA's regional PCB control section in

DIW officials said Group 8 didn't inform them the material contained PCBs. "We're victims in this," CIW President Walter Poci-

Forgotten theater finds new life

Sketch (above) shows new Wayne Theatre proposed by the Palace Theatre Company. (Left) a recent drawing depicts the theater as it originally looked, back in 1927. It was the home of vaudeville and "photo plays." Later, it became a movie house, which closed in 1951. Then, the facility was used for a various of purposes, until a fire in 1985. Now a non-profit corporation is buying the theater, planning to renovate it and turn it into a performing arts center for Western Wayne County and to establish a professional, resident is expected to be in operation by next summer.

By Bob Welbel special writer

HIS IS THE STORY of a theater that once was the talk of Western Wayne county. Today, it's all but forgotten. The final chapter, however, is yet to be written.

If a group of concerned citizens are successful, the story will tell of a a theater that literally returned from the grave to live again with laughter and applause.

Back in 1926, when most the area was rural farmland, when Michigan Avenue was the main highway between Detroit and Chicago and when the village of Wayne was the hub of activity, local businessmen built a theater and hotel complex. It included five stores along Michigan Avenue and a bowling alley in the basement.

The Wayne Theatre, by all accounts, was one of the most beautiful ever built in a small town. It seated 850 (625 on the main floor, 225 in the balcony) and featured excellent acoustics, a full orchestra pit and a flyloft for stage curtains.

ADS CALLED IT "The Pride of Wayne." They promised the latest in photoplays (that's what they called movies in those days) and the best in vaudeville on Saturday and Sunday.

Opening night was Saturday. Aug 27, 1927. Newspaper articles tell of patrons lined up for more than a block when the doors opened at 6:30 p.m. A standing-room-only audience saw Marion Davies in "Tillie the Toiler," an Our Gang comedy, "Yale vs. Harvard," a Paramount News short, and five vaudeville acts. The shows were a hit. Soon, it was the most popular theater around.

The Woodward Theatre Company, headed by Henry S. Koppin, operated the theater. Koppin managed 26 theaters in Michigan that were popularly known in the Midwest as the Koppin Vaudeville Circuit. Many of the big acts that toured Detroit, such as Al Jolson and Fred Astaire, also played Wayne.

Special radio nights included a broadcast of the Jack Dempsey-Gene Tunney fight. And radio station WWJ regularly presented "The Oklahoma Cowboys" live from the stage.

But, alas, the stock market crash of 1929 caused Koppin to close his chain of theaters. A few months later, Walter Shafer reopened the Wayne Theatre and operated it with his sons, Charles and Martin, as a movie house until 1951, when it was closed. The Shafers had recently opened the larger, more modern State down the street. As with the vaudeville that once was so popular, the Wayne Theatre soon became but a fond memory.

'it's a true historic treasure. We want to save it from the wrecking ball and preserve a part of our heritage for future generations.'

- Dave Carrick

THE LOBBY WAS converted into a music store. Occasionally, high schools used the stage. Eventually, however, the seats were removed, and the auditorium was partitioned into music and dance rehearnal rooms. It remained that way until April 1985, when a fire destroyed the lobby and the stores along Michigan Avenue. The theater itself sustained only minor smoke damage.

It sat vacant and fenced for nearly two years. Finally, a group of theater buffs, headed by Dave Carrick of Westland, formed a nonprofit corporation to restore the theater. "We call ourselves the Palace Theatre Company, after the Palace Opera House that was built in Wayne in 1886," Carrick said.

An open house was held Aug. 27, 1987 (60 years after opening night) to announce restoration plans. These include rebuilding the lobby, refusishing the auditorium to its formula splender and creating a performing arts center for the Western Wayne County area. "We also plan to establish a professional, Equity acting company, similar to the Attic Thatre in Detroit," Carrick said.

"So far we've done a lot of clean up work, staged two success haunted-theater fund-raisers and a cently signed a purchase agreema
We have also applied for foundation grants, and a benefit concert is to tatively planned for Sept. 23 at Char ry Hill High School," he said.

"We have letters of enforcement from surrounding communities in hope to involve a wide variety people in the restoration. The Way Theatre is one of the few remains vandeville houses in the Deticarea. Only a miracle saved it from flery demise. It's a true historicasure. We want to save it from the wrecking hall and preserve part of our heritage for future generations."

For more information, call the theater at 728-SHOW, or write Palace Theatre Company, 35164 Michigan Ave., Wayne 48184.

Those who have seen Ball perform would also likely scoff at such no-tions. In a spaghetti-stropped black dress, she resembles more a pianist playing Billy Joel covers in a cock-tail lounge then tail lounge than a goodtime boogle woogle planist.

But once she swings her leg over ind starts keeping rhythm, all hell is paid to break loose when Ball is onstage. Great balls of fire, you bet.

Ball brings her readhouse style of whythm and blues to this area on the heels of a successive album release. "Gatorhythms" (Rounder) is a delectable mix of rhythm and blues and some country. She fluctuates between her New Orleans upbringing and Austin, Texas, roots on her latest effort, which is her third album re-rhythm and blues and soul," said Ball, whose grandmother was a ragtime pianist. "As a piano player, that was fertile ground for me. Country centers more on the guitar."

Her music centers on heartfelt rhythms. There are no frills, or accessories with Ball. The rollicking sound more than inspires movement on the dance floor.

Little Richard and Lewis were at the forefront of the piano-based dance music. But through the years, perhaps with the exception of Elton John, the music has waned.

That's what I grow up with - rhythin and blues and soul. As a plano player, that was fertile ground for me.'

- Marcia Ball

Although it has been a struggle, especially without any radio play, Ball said she can't think of a better time to be a boogle woogle planist cially since the movie, "Great Balls of Fire," about Jerry Lee Lewis' life is about to be released and with Little Richard enjoying some new found notoriety with younger

All of which shouldn't hurt the sales of "Gatorhythms." On the disc, Ball covers Dr. John's "How Do You Carry On" and "Red Hot" by Lee Roy Parnell and Cris Moore. But songs like "Mama's Cooking" were written by her, which is something different for Ball.

"I think there was a little insecurity about how it was going to be accepted," Ball said. "Now that it's received positive reviews, I'm more settled about it."

CHICKEN KABOB

HER TRAVEL itinerary is hardly settled. Ball performs an average of 175 to 200 shows a year in clubs, which is made difficult, being married with a teenage son and teenage stepdaughter and stepso

"Our traveling schedule is so hard," said Ball, 39. "I often wish I could beam them in and beam them out. I wish they were here with me in Chicago and we could go to the art museum. But it's not possible."

Marcia Ball will perform at 9:30 p.m. Friday, June 23, at Sully's, 4758 Greenfield, north of Michigan Avenue, Dearborn. For information, call 846-5377. Ball will also perform at 8 p.m. Saturday, June 24, at the Frog Island Zudeco, Blues and Jazz Festival in Ypsilanti. For information, call 487-2229.

Pye picks school over pro contract

By Steve Kowalski staff writer

Bill Pye and Dave Burke waited patiently, so now it's time for the National Hockey League to wait for

The two players were both selected in the sixth round of Saturday's NHL draft, 4½ hours after the first player was taken.

The Buffalo Sabres used the second pick in the sixth round (107th overall) to take Pye, a Plymouth resident who plays goalie for Northern Michigan University.

The Toronto Maple Leafs, drafting third in Round No. 6, selected Burke, a defenseman for Cornell University. Burke was the valedictorian last year at Redford Union.

EACH PLAYER, however, has decided to stay in school instead of signing a professional contract. The Sabres and Maple Leafs will retain the rights to sign Pye and Burke, respectively, when they decide to leave school.

"I don't think I'm ready yet," said Pye, who has two years of eligibility remaining at NMU, an NCAA playoff qualifier last year. "When people get drafted in the NHL, it's not like basketball or football where all seniors in college are picked. They get drafted so young in hockey that only two guys in the whole draft last year played regularly. That says it all right there. I have time to develop."

For Burke, the wait was especially agonizing. The Hockey News' Draft Preview profiled Burke as a player that could go in the third round, no lower than the fourth.

Burke and family members drove to Minneapolis, Minn., the site of the draft, so they could be there when the anticipated high selection occurred. But round after round passed without mention of Burke, a 6-foot-1, 196-pounder, who carried a 3.6 grade point average in engineering as a freshman at Cornell.

"THEY DIDN'T make things easy on me, I'll tell you that much," said Burke, who added he is 100 percent sure he will finish his degree before going pro. "It's kind of automatic once you get in dress clothes and wait that long. After a while, I couldn't feel the air conditioning."

Scouts don't question Burke's intelligence, but one scout quoted in The Hockey News said the question asked most often about Burke is, "Does he have the mentality to be a pro hockey player?"

"I think some people who know me would disagree," Burke said. "That's a fallacy. One-hundred percent wrong. In high school, I fought the dumb jock image and always thought I could do both. Here I've done both and now I get it from the other end. No one went back to the source. No one asked me if I want to play in the NHL."

Burke added, "there's a lot of opportunity in Toronto. It has great tradition. The only place that rivaliit is Montreal and maybe Detroit, because of the 'Original Six."

Though it is impossible to predict their future hockey paths, the immediate future calls for Pye and Burke to be teammates this summer of the East Team in the National Sports Festival in Oklahoma City, Okla. They will report Tuesday, July 18.

BURKE AND Pye played together in 1978-79 when they were team mates on the Redford Mite Transferam.

"I don't talk to him much and more," Pye said. "It'll be kind of neat to play on his team."

Plymouth resident Pete Podrasky, a teammate of Pye's at NMU, poselected to play for the North at the National Sports Festival. Podrasky plays defense for the Wildcats, and he has one year remaining at the Marquette school.

The NHL held its supplemental draft Monday for players 21 discover, and Livonia Stevenson projects Rob Tustian (Michigan Tustian Chris Tancill (Wisconsin) were drafted in the third round, 14th and 15th, respectively.

Top trackman has tools for success

By Steve Kowalski staff writer

The All-Observer boys track team is an intriguing group, one that includes strength, speed, brains and Jason Belaire — who happens to have all three qualities.

Belaire, a four-year letterman at Livonia Churchill, is Observerland's 1989 Trackman of the Year. Belaire also lettered in football and basketball, and is extremely bright in the classroom.

Belaire owns three school records and two Western Lakes Activities Association standards, and he will be remembered most for his all-around ability. This year, he finished sixth at the Class A meet in the 300-meter hurdles and won the regional high jump.

"It has really been a pleasure to have such a tough competitor and talented athlete all wrapped up in one body," Churchill coach Fred Price said. "His contributions to Churchill track have been many and we will miss him dearly."

The Coach of the Year is Richard Gordon, who guided Westland John Glenn to the WLAA meet title, as well as a regional crown.

Introducing the 1989 All-Observer boys track team:

FIELD EVENTS

Jason Gutting, Farmington, shot put: Gutting, a senior, won the Western Lakes Activities Association meet with a throw of 48 feet, 5 inches. His toss of 50-2 at the Oakland County meet gave him third place and it was Observerland's best this spring.

Gutting was fourth at the regional (47-81/2) and he won the Farmington City Meet.

"Jason has been extremely conscientious and a pleasure to coach," coach Jerry Young said. "When a big, talented athlete becomes motivated to practice hard and improve technique, the result usually produces a champion. His future is going to be exciting and very rewarding."

Zaim Cunmulaj, North Farmington, discus: A three-sport star, Cunmulaj capped a brilliant high school career by placing first in the discus at the Class A meet. Cunmulaj, who also was an All-Observer football player and wrestler, had the area's best throw, 163-11.

The team captain captured the WLAA meet crown, placed first at the regional, and second in the Oakland County meet.

"Zaim's a great person and a hard worker," coach Mark Bechard said. "He works with the other discus throwers, helping them out. I do not think Zaim has reached his full potential in the discus, having thrown only for two years. And if he throws in college, he should be a good one."

ty Meet.

"Jason has been extremely conscitious and a pleasure to coach," and a pleasure to coach," and least a chief the comes.

Wendell Smith, Wayne Memorial, long jump: The senior was Wayne's most valuable performer, and his long jump of 22-4½ broke a school record.

Smith won both the high jump and 300-meter hurdles at the Wolverine A League meet. He cleared 6-7 in the high jump indoors, and this spring his best jump outdoors was 6-5. Smith also competed on occasion in the 1,600 meter relay.

"Wendell's versatility made him a key member on Wayne's co-championship (Wolverine A) team," said Joe Grasley, whose team tied Class A runnerup Monroe for the Wolverine A regular-season title.

Jason Belaire, Churchill, high jump: The Jason Belaire Era has ended, but his records might never be forgotten — or broken any time soon, for that matter.

The Observerland Trackman of the Year exits with school records in the 300 hurdles (39.4); 110 hurdles (14.4); and high jump (6-8). He also leaves with WLAA records in the 110 hurdles and high jump.

Among his accomplishments this spring were: regional champion, high jump; sixth place, Class A meet, 300 hurdles; titles at the WLAA meet in the high jump, 110 hurdles, and 300 hurdles; 110 hurdle champion at the Observerland Relays.

Belaire also figured in three of the Chargers' four relay events during his career. He was a three-time MVP

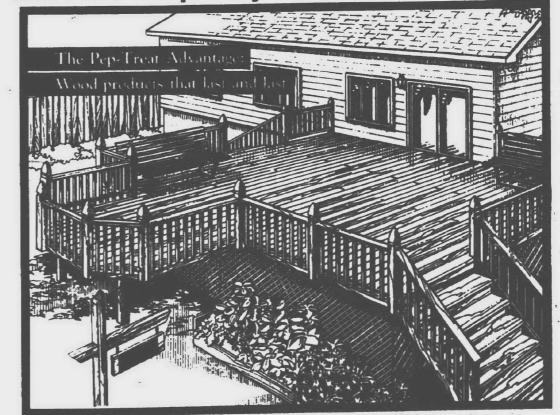

Mike Bianchi, Redford Union, pole vault: Bianchi, a senior, was a Northwest Suburban League champion, and a runnerup at the regional. His best clearance of 12-6 gave him Observerland's third-best jump.

He also cleared 5-9 in the high jump and posted a time of $3.9 in the 400 run.

"Mike works hard," coach Jim Gibbons said. "He takes pride in his performance and the way he represents himself. He's a great team leader."

"Tiberia made remarkable progress, as this was only his second year running track and first year running burdles," coach Kevin Kavanagh said. "He became a mainstay of the team this year."

Perlin Whitlow, John Glenn, 300 hurdles: Whitlow proved he was a quick learner, making a big impact on the Glenn track team in his first year of competition.

The senior was the 300 hurdle Dick Waters meet champion, he was second at the regional in the 300 hurdles, and second in the 110 hurdle

Shasky shines as all-star

By Dan O'Meare staff writer

Jennifer Shasky doesn't like being a show-off, but it was expected of her Saturday and show off she did.

The former Birmingham Marian star put on display the talents that carned her the title of Miss Basketball in the annual Basketball Coaches Association of Michigan all-Shasky scored a game-high 17 points and pulled down seven rebounds - all on the defensive glass in the Class A girls contest at Eastern Michigan University's Bowen Field House.

Her efforts, however, occurred in a losing cause as the East team, which included Shasky, Rochester's Dawn Brooks and Plymouth Canton's Michelle Fortier, were beaten 74-69 by the West.

The Observer & Eccentric area was represented by Jill Estey of Plymouth Salem on the winning team, but winning wasn't the priority in this game.

"I THOUGHT this was a lot different," Shasky said. "When I was playing for Marian, we were playing to win; whereas, in an all-star game you're trying to show off yourself and I'm not as good at showing off as I am trying to win."

While the main emphasis in such games is individual performance, Shasky was thinking about the score late in the game.

The West appeared on its way to an easy victory, but the East closed a 74-58 gap to five points in the final count. Shasky made both of her 3point shots - the only triples of the game - during that final run.

That also capped what had been a solid second half for Shasky, who shot 50 percent (7-of-14) from the floor and also had four assists, two steals and one block. She added another 10 points after halftime.

"In that first half, I couldn't get comfortable," Shasky said. "I was real anxious. In the second half, especially toward the end, I started to get in a groove, and I felt I could make some shots.

"We're all stars from our own teams, and it's hard to be a role player when everyone is used to being the star. The idea is to have fun. It's not a do-or-die type of thing."

Nikki Beaudry of Plint Powers and the West team was named the most valuable player after scoring 13 points and grabbing a game-high nine rebounds. She was the only one with more rebounds than Shasky, though Dana Filzek of the East and Coquese Washington and Anne Brocker of the West had as many.

THE ENTIRE East team was slow to get rolling — Shasky scored its first field goal at 16:05 — and nerves were certainly a factor for many players. With the expectations that come with being labeled Miss Basketball, Shasky said she couldn't sleep Friday night and was anxious about how she would do.

"At first, I thought I should come in here and prove something," she said. "But all the other players were real nice, and they said 'We know you're Miss Basketball; just be yourself and play your game.

"You always feel you can do better, but most of the time I'm trying to beat myself," she added. "It's in my own mind half the time."

Brooks, who was in the starting unit for the East along with Shasky, Traverse City's Wendy Merriman, Lansing Eastern's Nicole Keyton and Trenton's Stephanie Chaffin, scored eight points, grabbed five rebounds and also passed for three as-

Brooks, who led the Falcons to a 23-2 record and the Class A quarterfinals last fall, had the right shooting touch. She, too, made 50 percent (4of-8) of her field-goal attempts.

"Yesterday, I had a rough scrimmage, and I was just happy to get a shot," said Brooks. "They happened to go in and that was excit-

BROOKS, WHO will play basketball at Adrian College, was impressed by the balanced scoring. Only Shasky and Keyton were in doubles for the East. The West had four two-digit scorers with Reba Thigpen of Flint Northern leading the way with 15.

"Looking at the stat sheet, I see the scoring was well-rounded, and that represents what an all-star game should be," Brooks said.

"I thought, with it being an all-star game, somebody would be shooting. This time everyone got the ball and did their thing."

Brooks, who averaged 14 points and eight rebounds for Rochester, admitted to having some of the same pre-game jitters that Shasky experi-

"I was nervous (Friday), but my friends told me there would be so many good players that not everybody would be looking at just one player. I said, 'Yeah, it's just basketball and we all love to play.'

"The fact is was an all-star game made it pretty exciting," she added.
"But when it came right down to it, it was just another game of basketball, and we went out there and

Neither Jill Estey nor Michelle Fortier expected to lead her team in scoring Saturday in the annual Basketball Coaches Association of Michigan girls

As point guards, that wasn't their roles.

Estey, playing for the West, and Fortier, performing for the East, did the required tasks that don't show up in the stat sheet, each playing a steady game while directing the offense and playing defense.

"I didn't make any tremendous turnovers, and I got the ball to the player," said Estey, who was on the West squad that posted a 74-69 victory in Eastern Michigan University's Bowen Field House. "Bring the ball up the court and take care of it - that was my main goal."

When the two were on the court together, the Class A contest offered a touch of deja vu for Fortier and Estey, who resumed their rivalry from the recent past when Fortier starred at Plymouth Canton and Estey at Plymouth

"Still guarding Michelle, the never-ending saga," added Estey.

IN WHAT most everyone agreed was a balanced, well-rounded showing by as many of the all-stars as possible, Estey and Fortier were largely responsible for the shared opportunities.

Estey's five assists was second only to Coquese Washington's six for the West. Fortier, with three assists for the East, took a back seat only to Miss Basketball Jennifer Shasky, who had four.

Fortier, who will play college ball for Western Michigan, chipped in four points and was 2-of-8 from the floor, and Estey, headed for the University of Illinois on a baskethall scholarship, added two points on 1-of-3 shooting.
"I thought it was neat how everyone shared the ball," Estey said. "When you get an all-star team together, you think everyone is going to be shooting the ball and going 1-on-1. But everybody was passing the ball, and that's what I was real happy about."

After falling behind 39-30 at halftime and 55-40 in the second half, the East appeared to have given up hope of winning, but it rallied to within five by scoring the last 10 points of the game.

"I was hoping we could pull it off," Fortier said. "Even though it was to be for fun, we all wanted to win.

"IN THE first half, I think we were just nervous and trying to play our best. Trying too hard made us make some mistakes. In the second half, we were more comfortable and tried to win the game." One of the differences between an all-star game and a regular game is the amount of playing time players receive. Being stars on their school teams, most are accustomed to playing nearly the entire game. When they split time in all-star games, it makes it difficult to chalk up impressive stats.

"I thought I played pretty well," Fortier said. "I made a couple pa mistakes, but I made up for them in a couple other situations." Both players said they enjoyed the all-star experience and thought it helped their own games. "I wish we could have this opportunity all the time," Estey said. "With this many good players on the floor, it makes your game go up. The better the players you play with, the better you get." "In this game, everybody is good," Fortier said. "There wasn't a time that you could rest because there was an easy player guarding you. You had to play hard at all times."

A little boy — no tailer than his father's waist — approached U.S. national team volleyball player Javier Gaspar Monday night at the Palace, seeking an autograph.

The boy probably watched the Detroit Pistons win the NBA world championship a week ago, but on this night his heroes included Gaspar and teammates Steve Timmons and and teammates Steve Timmons and Karch Kiraly — two of the world's best volleyhall players.

Playing in the second stop of a five-match Stars & Spikes American tour, the U.S. defeated the Soviet Union national team 15-11, 15-8, 15-4 in front of a Palace crowd of 10,012.

More important, the players left a lasting impression on the little ones in the crowd, those who will have the option to play volleyball in the fu-ture instead of basketball.

THE PLAYERS were there to promote volleyball and no doubt did a good job of it. (The Observer & Eccentric was one of the event spon-

"One of our functions is to promote volleyball itself, and it doesn't matter if it's girls, boys, women's, men's or coed volleyball," said setter Jeff Stork, a member of the 1968 gold-medal winning U.S. Olympic

"Our job is to present volleyball in such a way that it looks fun so people would like to play it. It's one of the fastest-growing sports in the world."
It hasn't grown as fast competitively among boys in the states.

Of the 12 players on the touring U.S. roster, 10 were born and raised in California where boys volleyball is as popular as bikinis. Only Gaspar (Washington, D.C.) and Bob Samuelson (Port Jefferson, N.Y.) hail from states other than California.

GIRLS VOLLEYBALL in Michigan and most states is well-established at the high school varsity level, but only California, New York, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin and Hawaii have varsity volleyball for boys.

The U.S. men's team has captured the gold medal at the last two Olympic games, but coach Bill Neville isn't sure how long that success can last relying mainly on West Coast

Remember the hoola-hoop craze which had its roots in California in the 1960s before spreading across the country? Neville has his fingers crossed for boys volleyball.

"Obviously, we're doing it with mirrors," he said. "We have the best team in the world, but there's no telling how much stronger the program would be if we could tap into the whole country instead of one geographic area.

Everyone that comes up to me and has never seen men's volleyball before says 'This is great,' because it's a different image. If we can keep the team in front of the public, then they'll follow us."

Timmons, 30, who plans to retire from the U.S. team at the end of the tour, has become one of the sport's best role models - something he didn't have when he was younger.

"It's gotta start with the kids." he said. "They have an advantage I didn't have, because now there is a team and stars to emulate.

"WHEN I STARTED playing, I looked at basketball players as role models because I didn't have that. Now we see kids who are jump serving and doing things we've started doing in the last couple years."

Team members also are fighting myths about their sport.

"I always thought it was a family reunion sport," said Lois Franchino, 35, who traveled from Lansing to watch the exhibition. "When I went to high school, they had nine players

(now there are six) on each side, and the sport has changed a lot.

"It's a really big sport now in Lansing. Unfortunately, it's just for girls."

ne Martin, assistant director of the Michigan High School Athletic Association, predicts boys volleyball will be the next varsity sport added

Martin said several Michigan high schools have turned away boys who wanted to play on girls varsity volleyball teams, because "the schools were trying to preserve the girls program" under Title IX.

INSTITUTED IN the mid 1970s, Title IX stated that tax-supported institutions had to provide equality in programs among the sexes regarding facilities, coaches and money.

Martin said a girls sport does not need to be added under Title IX if a school adds a boys volleyball team. The biggest barriers instead are facilities and budget costs. Schools must also worry about jeopardizing other programs, such as football or basketball, if volleyball were scheduled in the fall or winter, Martin

"There is interest," Martin said. "It just hasn't formulated yet. There are pockets of interest in Michigan, like in Kalamazoo, the southeast section, Grand Rapids, Muskegon, Flint and Bay City.

"But programs can't exist without opponents and leagues. And you have to figure where you're going to fit it in - the fall, winter or spring. You don't want to pull away other athletes from other programs."

George Lovich, athletic director at Livonia Franklin, played volleyball while attending high school in Pennsylvania in the 1950s. Male students have queried about starting a boys program at Franklin, but they've also asked Lovich about starting up

"If I had the facility, I'd love to see volleyball; it's a great sport," Lovich said. "But I have trouble practicing. In the winter, our gym is taken from 2:30 until 9:30 every day, and we have the ninth graders sometimes practicing from 7 until 9, and large real oak vanities by bertch mfg.

"Plus, it dilutes the pool of athletes. If we schedule volleyball for the winter, we're taking from basketball; in the fall, we take from football and in the spring, baseball. When I played volleyball — and I'm ancient — we played between bas-ketball and baseball seasons, and we had only five sports then. Now we

MOT options Grand Circus Theater

By Mary Jane Doerr special writer

Thursday, June 22, 1989 O&E

HE TERRA-COTTA FA-CADE is camouflaged by light green awnings and a yellow billboard. Anything attractive around the windows is covered by plywood.

"This is dangerous," said Ray Shepardson as we looked around the soon-to-be renovated 57-year-old Grand Circus Theater in Detroit. "From time to time plaster falls from the ceiling and believe me it Shepardson has toured many old movie palaces. The architectural historian specializes in restoring theaters and is working some 25 theaters throughout the country. His most recent Detroit venture is the Fox Theatre.

"That is a temple, this is a palace," said Shepardson. "When Michigan Opera Theatre first approached me about the Grand Circus Theater, I knew nothing about it. I have to admit that is a little like Channel 2 not knowing anything about Channel

Above us in the cold, damp air of the long-closed lobby was the seethrough ceiling from which plaster had fallen, forming large jigsaw puzzles on the floor.

The scaffolding called attention to the arches of the art deco styled building. Toward the front of the lobby was the popcorn stand and a tile floor, which contrasted sharply with the once magnificant five-foot chandelier of Czechoslovakian cut glass, now broken on the floor. The red flowered carpet on the staircase leading to the balcony at the right was covered with more obstacles from the ceiling.

THIS THEATER IS built on three parcels of land between Broadway and Madison Avenue. The lobby at the Broadway entrance to the Grand Circus is larger than the other at Madison Avenue. The parcel is flanked by two parking lots which makes this the ideal theater.

C. Howard Crane designed the Grand Circus Theater in 1922, one of nearly 250 theaters he built in a 10 year period.

"Crane referred to the layout of the theater as 'opera style' which I think is quite prophetic now that MOT is buying it," said Shepardson. acoustics or he was just lucky. All of his theaters have outstanding acoustics - like Orchestra Hall. I would ex-

David DiChiera, general director of Michigan Opera Theater, has built the comany from a dream to a major entity. A theater designed for opera would top his many suc-

pect this one will too."

MOT has an option to buy the Grand Circus Theater until July. In the last few months, the company has ordered structural and engineering studies to determine the actual extent of needed renovation. Elated MOT officials say those studies indicate the building is in far better condition than expected. The water in the basement is from the leaking roof and asbestos wasn't used in the

"Despite it's appearance, this building is a long way from falling down," said Shepardson. "Can you believe it was last used in 1985?"

Detroit has the largest collection of Crane theaters in the country the Fox Theatre (1928) is the largest and most ornate and Orchestra Hall (1919) is an early example of his more intimate style and skill for achieving perfect acoustics.

Picking up a piece of fallen molding, Shepardson explained how the thin jute-backed plaster was one reason for the marvelous acoustics.

THE DARK LOBBY stretched out along the back of the 2,000-seat first o the Madison Avenue lobby. Above the cast iron railings was the second level box seat area. In the center there is a large grand staircase leading to the balconies. Above the lobbies two ornately mirrored waiting rooms have been dubbed the 'Versailles Rooms" by the MOT

All 3,367 seats in the theater have perfect sight lines. Flanked with a low ceiling such as in the Fox Theatre, the cozy 19 box seats are the most appealing. Above each box is a spider net styled stained glass hiding the now dark lighting.

The once ornate walls of the theater are scagliola. Now the olive green paint covering the simulated marble is peeling off.

'We don't know what color the walls were originally. We do not determine color by cutting through the paint because that method does not help us determine the finish of the paint. I do it with paint stripper, taking off one coat of paint at a time.

The remnants of the leaking ceiling showed in the spongy carpeting on the grand staircase. On the third level balcony, Shepardson explained how the terraces between the seats would be enlarged and the number of seats would be reduced to 3,000.

"We will use the same seats but we will have to make the backs larger," said Shepardson. At the top of the balcony were the projection booths that showed the once popular silent movies. At 10 cents a person, even during the Depression this house was filled. Above the ceiling's caved-in arches was a concert roof.

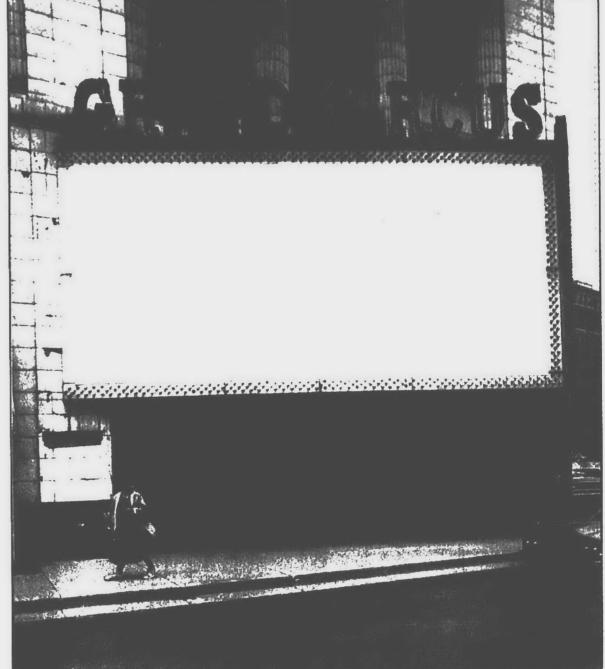

"The roof is covered with wood to house the restaurant that was originally planned," he said.

If MOT exercises its option to buy this theater, it will be one of the few opera companies to own its own building. Company treasurer Cameron B. Duncan estimates the entire project will cost the company $15-20

"What I want to do is to take a year to make the plans for the building and then spend the next two years rebuilding and renovating," said Shenardson.

IT IS DANGEROUS to walk out into the theater proper to view the stage because of the weakened floors. MOT's General Director David DiChiera said he needs at least 76 feet back stage to mount sets for the operas, to avoid what happened this spring in "Marriage of Figaro." (Masonic Temple has about 56 feet.) Once renovated the Grand Circus Theater would surpass even the Metropolitan Opera itself.

it will be a world class house. "What is so remarkable about Detroit is that there are four enormous historic theaters in this small area with more than 4,000 parking spaces in a 90-minute driving distance for over nine million pe a theater district in the country with those facilities. #### St. James' tour has variety

The Birmingham Garden Walk, sponsored by Episcopal Church Women of St. James Church, will be held 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Thursday, Presale tickets are $5 and day-ofthe-walk tickets are $6. For ticket information, call 643-9218.

Tour participants may park in Divine Science Church parking lot, 1129 W. Maple, and walk to the first two gardens. One is self-contained, with winding garden paths and many perennial plantings. The other has a country atmosphere in the heart of the city. Also on the tour are a developing rose garden with old-fashioned roses, shrub roses and reliable tea roses; gardens surrounding an authentic reproduction 18th century New England saltbox home; a large site with a lush English style garden and contemporary outdoor sculpture; and the gardens and "sort of waterfall" on a charming, historic site on North Adams. Maps are on the tickets, which will be available at 222 Lake Park the day of the walk.

The English cottage architecture of the home is enhanced by lush plantings in front and the rose garden being developed with old fashioned as well as contemporary favorites.

Spend day in Beverly Hills

Beverly Hills Garden Club, a member of the Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan, is hosting a garden walk 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday, rain or shine. Presale tickets are $4 from any club member or $5 on day of the walk at Beverly Hills Park Pavilion, Beverly Road between Southfield and Evergreen. For information, call 644-5139.

There are five gardens on the tour, all within relatively short distance - a brick terraced garden on a lot that slopes sharply down to the Rouge River in which the owners let the contour of the land dictate the design of the garden with small ponds and a bridge to a wooded area; a garden around a 1940 Cape Cod that is a mixture of deciduous and evergreen plantings, a trick patio, fountain pond and lots of flowers; a yard with lots of shade and flowering trees and shrubs, a planted berm and colorful show of annuals; 35year old garden planted around unusual and rare varieties of trees; and a yard of plantings designed to pro-vide a year-round display of colors .

Free, homemade refreshments, gift boutique and white elephant sale at the Beverly Pavilion are included in the ticket price.

More than 60 species of birds have been identified by Mary and Bill Basses who built the rock gardens above the Rouge River themselves more than 20 years ago.

good bullines of structure and detail.

It is discussivelestic in grantness just a part of a drawing when you have yet to block in the main chapes of the rest of your picture. When you add details to small sections at a time, your lotal drawing doesn't grow together. Often certain features which are completed at one time are out of proportion to parts of the drawing which have details completed at another time.

Plaishing a section also puts pressure on the artist. You end up thinking, "I hope I don't blow this after a great start."

THOSE WHO ARE, able to see, or have been thught to see, details have a problem of deciding what to draw and what to leave out. Those who haven't the ability or haven't learned to see de-tails are bothered by their inability to render their way to realism.

Both kinds of artists are in trouble. Although ose who are able to see details are better suit-de, their drawings are most often rendered to death and they look like they should be titled "studies in patience."

Now those who cannot see details usually den't spend the time needed to draw a good picture because they simply do not "see" the need. Their drawings float somewhere between gesture drawings and cartoons. ture drawings and cartoons.

Pen and ink will quickly and graphically show you if you are an "overlooker" or an "underlook-

OVERLOOKERS SPT, and watch as their hand systematically adds more and more ink and their drawing slowly approaches a black blob on the paper. While underlookers sit and stare at their almost blank sheet of paper wondering what they left out.

In some media you blend with your fingers or brushes but in pen and ink you have a pen tip that makes a clean black line. So how do you get shades of grey?

Crosshatching is the most common way of shading. This is merely drawing lots of lines in one direction which appears to form a gray area. If you need this area darker turn the paper slightly and cross over the same lines. This will shade the area twice as much. You can repeat this over and over until this area appears to be black with little white dots.

When drawing animals it is important to watch the direction of the hair and feathers and to make sure you follow close to your model or photos. When drawing buildings, barns and shacks, draw in the main shapes then begin shading in the direction of whatever wood grain there may be.

CROSSHATCHING CAN become a little disturbing when it is obviously seen as lines run-ming across the grain of wood. So simply add more lines in the direction of the wood grain.

Crosshatching is a shading technique and should not be distracting from the main shape did impact of your drawing. So keep your lines, erisp and clean. You also can vary the line width for a clearer looking drawing, heavier lines de-short fine and thin strokes for an area like the fine hairs on the nose of a cat. Often there are times that a line, no matter how fine, seems too hold. Here stipple or pointalism is extremely useful. This is merely lots and lots of dots. The darker areas need hundreds of dots. One of my best tips in pointalism is that the light areas should be white with black dots and the black areas should be black with white dots. Stay away from solid black areas they pull the eye away from all the subtle shading in the light

Before next week try a pen and ink. The best way to start is to do a light pencil sketch on white smooth paper. If the paper becomes too messy, transfer your finished drawing to a clean white piece of paper.

Remember you transfer a drawing by rubbing the back of your original drawing with a graphite stick, then centering it on the new paper.

Tape both sides then trace over your lines in a ball point pen. This will produce a beautiful pencil drawing on clean white paper.

Use of antiques to soften setting

No house should be a museum. Nothing, however, can soften a home as much as the use of antiques. For me, a gathering of people is much more enjoyable when there is a mixture of young and old, so a room always seems more charming when there is a combination of cont. asting eras in furniture and accesso-

No matter what type of home or apartment you have, it would be better decorated with a sprinkling of things from the past.

What kind of antiques go into the living of to-day? You can start with your fireplace and an-tique andirons. The real old ones are rather primitive looking and are mostly black. The polished brass ones are dressier and give a room the added shine so desired today. A shiny brass fender is practical and will dress up the hearth-

Antique door knobs are still available and can add much to the charm and elegance of the home. Decorative old curtain and tie racks in antique brass are great for embelishing the look

I remember my last house in Birmingham when all the hardware was antique. It may not be possible to have matching hardware when you are planning to use it throughout, but keeping the hardware the same in one area will do it.

Russell Hardware of Birmingham is a good source when you start to convert your hardware.

Eve Garvin has been an interior designer in the area for many years. She welcomes comments and questions from readers. Send those to her in care of this newspaper, 36251 Schoolcraft Road, Livonia 48150.
