It's back-to-school time this week for students and staff members from the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools. For 27 years, teacher Joan Engel has been preparing her kindergarten room for the first day of classes at Smith Elementary School in Plymouth. She's been in the same room every year. Engel said she feels energized when she comes back each year because she spends her summers reading and getting new ideas.

Program stresses hands-on learning

By Keith Postler
staff writer

A developmental learning program for first grade students that promises hands-on experiences will be district wide this fall in Plymouth-Canton.

The program is designed to tailor teaching to the needs of the children and is in place for kindergarten students. It will expand to include second grade next fall, said Claudia Kulnis.

"The developmental curriculum is really just a process of how we teach children," said Kulnis, the new principal at Smith Elementary School and a member of the Plymouth-Canton Schools curriculum development team. "It means we match the curriculum to the needs and levels of the children as they enter school."

When children enter kindergarten and the first grade, teachers monitor and analyze them to determine their specific learning needs. Once that happens, teachers can shape the curriculum to match each child's learning level, she said.

This type of learning program is not new, Kulnis said, but gives elementary school teachers more flexibility and decision making power.

"The exciting thing with this is teachers are able to make decisions in the classroom about the direction the curriculum will take," she said.

Research indicates that children learn more and develop higher self-esteem with a developmental learning curriculum than with traditional programs, Kulnis said.

"All the current research ... is leading to this approach," she said. "That's the current trend; people are aware how children learn. Using this philosophy, I know the child's self-esteem is raised. That's what learning is all about."

The developmental learning program stresses hands-on techniques in traditional areas such as reading, writing and arithmetic, she said.

In reading, for instance, children are encouraged to read a wide variety of literary materials, from classical to current titles.

"We want first graders to come in and just do lots of reading, because our goal is for these students to read and write like never before," Kulnis said. "We want them to be excited about this as they move into the second grade. With this approach, we want to teach them reading successfully from the first day. We want our first graders

Group seeks sponsors for ice carnival

By Doug Funke
staff writer

The fate of Plymouth's annual ice-carving festival should be sealed one way or another by the middle of next month.

That's the deadline the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce has set to raise enough money to sponsor the extravaganza.

"It's all revolving around our ability to secure commitments from larger corporations in the area," said Pam Kosteva, chamber president.

"Everyone has goodwill and good feelings about the event," she said. "Can we translate that into dollars to support the event?"

"We walked away with the feeling we'd need $75,000 to $100,000 in cash donations or in-kind services," Kosteva said of a meeting last week involving chamber and Plymouth city and township officials.

A PRIVATE, non-profit corporation headed by Scott Lorenz and Henry Graper has run the festival the past seven years.

Graper resigned as city manager in July. Lorenz has stepped down as general manager of the Mayflower Hotel and is exploring other career options.

Both could leave town soon. Regardless, the pair have indicated that financial considerations preclude their involvement as in previous years.

Sponsors with deep pockets are needed due to the magnitude of the festival, Kosteva said. Chamber members have been tapped recently to fund such projects as moving chamber offices to a more visible location.

"The ice spectacular has to stand on its own," Kosteva said. "We're willing to be the administrative arm."

Brochures mailed without schedule

By Keith Postler
staff writer

A mix-up in scheduling resulted in approximately 1,000 Plymouth-Canton Community education brochures being sent out by mail without the proper registration information enclosed.

"The problem was just an oversight in our office," said program director Larry Masteller. "We have different people in our office putting together different parts of the brochure, and it was just an oversight in terms of who was responsible for getting the schedule section to the typesetter."

The brochure lists community and adult education courses available to Plymouth-Canton residents and businesses and is usually sent out in the mail the third week of August.

Has this sort of mistake happened before?

"Not this particular thing. There have been small errors," Masteller said. "If there are errors, they are typing errors that happen before we send the brochure to the typesetter. Errors like that have happened, but I can't remember ever leaving out a whole section like that."

Plymouth-Canton community and adult education courses are open to residents 18 and older who have a high school diploma, or residents under 18 who do not have a high school diploma and have been out of school at least 90 days. The community and adult education program offers a wide variety of courses, from adult reading and English as a second language to children and youth classes. The program also offers general education degree (GED) preparation and testing, plus free courses for senior citizens 62 and older.

Dentist survives prison, builds new life

By Keith Postler
staff writer

In 1982, Andrzej Dolata's world was confined to a jail cell he shared with 11 other Polish Solidarity members in a prison near the Russian-Czechoslovakian border.

The only future he knew was another day of bitter, sub-zero cold. Of snow blowing in through broken windows that covered his body as he slept and not knowing where he would be the next month.

Today, Dolata, 36, is a free man. He recently received his degree from the University of Michigan Dental School and works as an associate dentist in Dr. Lawrence Seluk's office in Plymouth.

His days as a local Solidarity representative in Bircza that ended with a six-month jail term are only memories, he says.

"It was nine years ago, and I try to forget about it," he said recently from Seluk's office.

In 1980, Dolata shared a small dental office in Przemyśl with his wife, Kristina. It was at that time that he became involved with a fledgling trade union known as Solidarity.

Dolata was a representative for the health community in Bircza and Przemyśl when physicians, dentists, nurses and other health professionals staged a nationwide strike. He was chosen to go to Gdansk, where he met with Lech Welasa and other Solidarity leaders to help mediate the strike with the Communist government.

After that, Dolata's involvement with the trade union became deeper.

"If you do something you have to do it with all your power," he said. "I was involved, I couldn't do it only part-time."

As a dentist, he lobbied on behalf of the health community through Solidarity. Soon, the Communist government took interest in his actions.

When the Communist government declared martial law on Dec. 13, 1981, Dolata and seven other health professionals — all powerful local Solidarity representatives — were thrown in prison.

"They locked the most active people in prison, so they locked me up just because they felt I was a danger to them," Dolata said. "And, of course, we didn't know where we were going, we didn't receive any sentence, we didn't have a trial. They locked us in prison and we didn't know how long we would stay. I stayed six months.

"The worst thing was the first month when I didn't know what would happen, my wife didn't know what happened," he said.

While in prison, Dolata was visited twice by secret police sent by the government. He was told that if he would admit that he worked with an outlawed trade union, and promised not to in the future, he could go free. Both times, he refused.

Dolata was then transferred to another prison. Soon afterward, he was released without explanation.

"They didn't say they were sorry or why they had kept me so long," he said.

After Dolata was freed, the secret police kept an eye on him and other

Plymouth Township services will cost more

By Doug Funke
staff writer

Residential taxpayers in Plymouth Township would pay about 9 percent more for municipal operations next year, according to a budget and tax rate proposed by Supervisor Maurice Breen.

The spending plan as it now stands calls for no increases or decreases in services, no additional municipal employees, no layoffs and no pay increases for township workers.

Breen's general fund budget calls for expenditures of just over $6 million. Revenues are projected at $5.7 million. Nearly $335,000 has been taken from surpluses in previous budgets to balance.

Breen has proposed a tax rate for municipal operations of $3.03 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation (half of market value). The tax rate for operations this year is $3.37 per $1,000 of SEV.

HOMEOWNERS will receive higher municipal tax bills next year than this even with a lower millage rate because property assessments soared by about 17 percent.

The township board must conduct a public hearing before adopting the budget. That hearing hasn't yet been scheduled. A copy of the proposed budget will be available for public inspection at township hall prior to that hearing.

The budget year begins Jan. 1. "It means services will continue at the level they're at with some small increases possible with construction taking place," Breen said of his spending plan.

Breen's construction reference was to a new DPW building and fire station which are expected to be ready for use sometime next year.

A surplus fund account of $2.1 million will remain at the end of the 1990 budget year, Breen projected.

PAY RAISES for all current municipal employees and the hiring of additional firefighters if the township's third fire station were to open next year would come from that fund balance.

"We have dollars in the fund balance," Breen said. "We'll live with whatever we've got. It's adequate to take care of all our anticipated expenses in addition to supporting new building."

As in years past, local property taxes is expected to be the largest single revenue source. The projection is $1.9 million.

Other major revenue sources include:

- State revenue sharing — $1.5 million.
- Trash collection fees — $782,000.
- Building permits/fees — $536,000.
- Interest income — $280,000.

Expenditures for police, fire and dispatching operations are estimated at $2.7 million.

Plymouth Twp. - Proposed budget for 1990

Other major expenditure categories include:

- General administration, including the offices of supervisor, treasurer, and clerk, plus the accounting and assessing departments — $750,000.
- Trash collection expenses — $648,000.
- Capital improvements — $400,000, which includes a $300,000 payment to buy the water and sewer building and move general fund government operations there.
- Building department — $323,000.
- Planning department/commission — $270,000.

The tax rate for retirement of the debt to construct the township's water and sewer system, currently 75 cents per $1,000 of SEV, hasn't yet been determined for next year, said Rosemary Harvey, township finance director.

The municipal portion represents less than 10 percent of the total tax burden for property owners in the township.

Solidarity members. Eventually, he was told by a government official to leave the area, that he was becoming "too powerful."

Dolata did leave. He took his wife, Kristina, and two sons, Matthew and Maciek, and left Poland six and a half years ago with $30 in his pocket and three pieces of luggage.

They arrived in Howell, Mich. and were sponsored by a church group from Livingston County called LOVE. LOVE put Dolata and his family in touch with other groups who helped him build a life in Michigan.

Slowly, Dolata and his wife learned to speak English and they moved to Ann Arbor. It was there that he met Dr. Kenneth Hovey, a Plymouth dentist living in Ann Arbor. Hovey introduced Dolata to Dr. Lawrence Seluk and Seluk hired him almost immediately to work as a lab assistant.

"Andrzej has worked here ever since and he's a real asset to this office," Seluk said.

Dolata's wife Kristina also attended UM, and received a degree three years ago in dental hygiene. She has also worked for Seluk.

He said he would like to return to Poland some day, but not while the Communists are in power. He said he misses his family the most, but believes the country will be free again.

Since coming to America, Dolata is most thankful for the freedom he has.

"The biggest thing is the feeling I can travel. If you'd like to go to China or somewhere you can go, in Poland I couldn't do this," he said. "And what I admire the most is even poor people — and I was poor here — with kids, with family, can reach goals. It's been my goal to be a dentist, so I have the opportunity in this country to get my license, get my diploma and reach my goals."

Kids pack up camp memories

By Diane Gale
staff writer

The country atmosphere at Shamrock Farm is just the right break from city hassles and worrying about school starting next week, according to the kids at the Canton day camp.

They say they want to pack away a few good memories to take back and more importantly buoy them through another school year chock full with homework.

"I like seeing all my friends at school, but I don't like the pressure," one girl from Plymouth said. "Here it's relaxed and I like what I'm doing."

STANDING UNDER a tree facing the barn, Melissa Kowalis, a 13-year-old Plymouth resident about to enter eighth grade, said she would rather stay at camp and ride horses, or even stay home, than return to school.

"It's very relaxing and pretty much you do what you want," Kowalis said. "You don't have to think much to do this. There's more to do here, but it's more fun."

"At home you don't want to do it," she said. "You want to do it here, because it's helping the horses. I guess."

The day at camp is separated into two classes, riding school for children 9 through 16 years old and farm school for children 5 through 9 years old.

For the younger kids the day is spent milking the goats, bottle feeding the lamb and caring for the bunnies. Crafts might include anything from painting t-shirts to making jam.

THE RIDING school starts about 8:30 a.m. when the children begin to groom the horses and prepare to ride. After lunch and another ride the day ends about 3:30 p.m. The campers go off to their homes and return again the next day.

Wendy Valerio, 19-year-old daughter of the farm owners Terry and Joe, lives on the farm and instructs the older campers. Although she wants to see the area remain farmland, she said, actually living on a farm is tough.

"It's a lot of work being on a farm," she said adding that she has watched Canton become more and more developed.

Before the family moved to the farm a few years ago they lived in a Canton subdivision.

"It's a nice place to escape from all the city noise," Valerio said. But she can't escape from the noise when the day camp runs from the third week in June to the third week in August, Valerio said.

THE MOST common comment from the camp kids, she said, is: "I don't want to go back (to school)." Not all the kids are dreading the coming school year.

"I'm looking forward to going back to school," said Janie Decourcy, 13. "For my friends of course, and I feel I'm going to get good teachers this year."

"There's no place around here like this," she added. "When I moved in (in Plymouth Township) three years ago it was country like out here and now it's all built up."

Jessica Jones, 12, of Canton braids the hair of Sarah Carney, 13, of Northville during a recent day at camp.

Amy Pachter, 5, of Ann Arbor, chases a lamb on the farm.

Angela Cipolletti, a teacher at the farm school, has the children following her on horse back.

Lazy days of summer end for kids Tuesday

It's time.

Deep down, most youngsters probably would agree that they're ready to go back to school.

Doors open this week for high school seniors finally taking their place at the top of the heap and kindergartners stepping into a classroom for the very first time. Plus everyone in between.

Plymouth-Canton students in first through 12th grade report for a half day of school Tuesday morning, then settle in for full days Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Kindergarten starts Wednesday.

"WE DEEPLY APPRECIATE the efforts of the community to allow us to restore some programs," said Superintendent John M. Hoben said. "We're looking forward to a very productive year."

Attendance hours at specific elementaries and middle schools vary due to bus transportation schedules. High school students will be in class from 7:25 a.m. to 2:15 p.m.

Hot lunches will be available starting Tuesday at the same prices as last year — $1.30 for elementary students and $1.65 for middle and high schoolers. Milk by itself costs 30 cents.

People can address specific question about the opening of school to Richard Egli, community relations director, at 451-3189.

Hands-on experiences help first graders learn to leave school and say they can read."

The same principles apply to writing. Stories written by students will be displayed prominently in the classroom, as will block letters and other written materials children will like and understand.

Developmental techniques applied to arithmetic will help children manipulate objects and give them a better understanding of numbers concepts, Kulnis said. Blocks, beads, keys, graphs and other symbols and familiar objects also will be used.

Another unique aspect of the program is that teachers will use the thematic approach, she said. Teachers will blend themes popular with children — such as animals and plants — into the curriculum.

Teachers will blend themes popular with children — such as animals and plants — into the curriculum.

Kulnis, who has been teaching in the Plymouth-Canton district for 13 years, was also an assistant principal at Tanger and Isbister Elementary Schools before coming to Smith.

"I guess I enjoy teaching the elementary school-age child so much because they are filled with excitement and wonder, and I feel I can help prepare them to face their world in the 21st century, but I can't do it alone," she said. "I envision this as a skyscraper, with the child on top, supported by teachers, supported by the parents, and then supported by me and the central office. And I want to keep the children in the penthouse."

Sponsors sought for ice show

but that's as far as it can go."

WHILE THE CHAMBER is trying to raise funds to keep the festival alive, city officials are exploring exactly what — if any — contribution to make to the cause.

City DPW crews and police officers have worked overtime in years past to set up stands and ice carvings and work traffic and crowd control.

Exactly what agreements existed previously between the city and festival promoters is still under review, said William Graham, acting city manager.

"My concern is that the city commission understands cost exposure and the city commission determines what its participation will be," he said.

A study committee is looking into the city's involvement in all festivals and special events.

That committee will try to reach conclusions within the chamber's time frame on deciding whether to sponsor the ice festival, said Mary Childs, chairwoman.

The township also will mull over participation, Kosteva said.

No other local individuals or groups have surfaced to carry the ball if the chamber were to punt on the festival.

However, several people here have said they've heard rumblings that other organizations are exploring the possibility of stepping in and moving the show to another community if the local festival dies.

Dream trip to come true for Canton 6-year-old

By Diane Gale
staff writer

For 6-year-old Charlie Everhardt a trip to Disney World is a dream about to come true.

Charlie is the first Canton Township child involved in the Make-a-Wish program, which fulfills the dreams of children 18 and younger who are suffering from life-threatening diseases.

LAST JUNE Charlie was diagnosed as having acute lymphocytic leukemia. He was stricken again last June. And although he is in remission now, the doctors aren't able to say how long it will last.

"The doctor said the next time around, when Charlie comes down with it is that he probably won't hold remission," Charlie's father Greg said. "When he goes out of remission he'll be a bone marrow recipient."

"The bone marrow is our only hope if he falls back out (of remission)," said Greg. "There's a 30 percent chance of the bone marrow taking hold."

As Charlie sits on a chair in the family room, he seems sad and lethargic. His mother explains the mood as an effect of the treatment, including chemotherapy and radiation.

But a few minutes later his mood passes as he and his mother, Diana, leave each other. And he talks about his computer games, swimming and cars.

He giggles as he wraps a rubber band around his father's fingers and makes it snap. And laughs again when he makes his dog Mindy flip over for a treat.

"She'll get every crumb except her drool," he added, this time expecting a laugh.

Charlie anxiously talks about his seventh birthday party complete with a Batman theme. The event is planned for next month when he also begins first grade.

"I like school except on real nice days," Charlie said. "You don't get to do what you want."

CHARLIE WILL get to do a few things he wants via Make-a-Wish.

"It's the little things that kids do (like a hug) that makes the things you do not enough," said Loren Alexander, Make-a-Wish chairman of the Washtenaw-Western Wayne council.

"It's because that's what they feel," he said. "How can you replace it? Where can you find something so genuine or real. No way it's more than you can ever hope for. Charlie he's great."

"That hug tells you what it's all about," he added.

The Make-a-Wish program has never denied a child who fulfills the requirements, which include being 18 years old or younger, a doctor must certify the disease and the wish has to be what the child wants, Alexander said.

"It can't be what the mom and dad wants," he said. "We don't care about the family finances. All we care about is that is what the child wants."

On Saturday Charlie was set to take a ride on a Canton fire engine as a smaller wish granted by the Make-a-Wish council.

"Next week he goes for rides in Lamborghinis and Ferraris," Alexander said. "And then of course he'll go for the bone marrow transplant and we'll try to keep him as happy as we can."

"We feel that the child and family face tough times with doctors, needles and negatives," Alexander said.

"We try to give the child something to look forward to," Alexander said. "In no way will we say we can change things, but the mind can do a lot. If we can give them something positive, just maybe it will have some effect. And now the child's parents know that someone cares. They don't feel so alone."

Wages, part-timers — key issues in S'craft talks

By Janice Brunson
staff writer

Negotiations continue between Schoolcraft College representatives and clerical workers who have worked since July 1 without a contract.

Major issues include the use of non-union labor, wages, probation period and length of contract.

"Quite frankly, we can't seem to agree on anything," said Belinda Eieson, new president of the Schoolcraft College Clerical Association that is represented by the Michigan Education Association (MEA).

Betty Gilbert, Schoolcraft's director of labor relations, insists "things are going along relatively well, in view of when we started negotiations."

Since April, negotiators have met 15 times. Despite rumors of work slowdowns, union officials said members continue to perform their jobs. No strike vote has been taken by the membership.

Negotiations are also under way for custodians and maintenance workers whose contract expired June 30. Food workers, whose contract had also expired June 30, settled last week for salary increases of up to 5.7 percent each of the next three years.

Of primary concern to union employees is Schoolcraft's increasing use of non-union labor, part-time employees whose hourly wages are sometimes higher than those of full-time union workers, and a sharp increase in the use of "classified" employees who are non-union.

"THE MAJOR issue is the college's direction toward a part-time, non-union work force," said Bob Thomas, MEA negotiator for clerical and custodial employees.

Presently, Schoolcraft employs 53 full-time clerical workers who are members of the union. Thomas estimated that some 16 part-time workers are non-union, however, college officials were unavailable to confirm his figure.

Another 65 non-union positions are designated as classified — computer and lab technicians — whose duties, union officials argue, are primarily clerical in nature.

The claim is "a sham," according to Conway Jeffress, vice president of instruction at Schoolcraft. "It's not true that we are replacing union jobs with non-union jobs. We are extending our use of technical classified personnel who do not fall into any of the union categories."

Custodians and maintenance personnel also perceive the use of non-union labor "a real trouble spot," according to David Stabley, president of the school's Support Personnel Association that has 39 members. Only one person in the department is employed part-time and is not a member of the union. Several others are on-call.

"THERE HAS BEEN a significant reduction the past eight years in full time positions among union groups on campus, among instructors, clerical people and food workers," Stabley said, adding that the number of classified employees during the same period of time has doubled.

Stabley is also concerned about the college's Absence Control Program, in which employees may be terminated after missing 16 days of work in one year. While there are exceptions to dismissal, verified illness by a physician is "not automatically one of them."

Other issues of concern to clerical workers include length of contract, wages and probationary periods. Clerical workers presently earn weekly salaries of $275 to $424, with $361 the average salary.

College negotiators have offered a one-year contract and a 3 percent annual salary increase, according to Thomas, who said both offers are "totally inadequate." Thomas' offer of an extended probation period of 60 working days has been rejected as "not long enough," he added.

"Negotiations are not going well at all and I'll tell you, people are pretty frustrated," Thomas said.

Gilbert, negotiating for the college, declined comment on specific issues. "We're not negotiating through the newspaper," she said.

Eieson, too, is frustrated. "WE PLAN TO EXHAUST" all resources in trying to resolve this matter in a friendly manner but we're just not getting anywhere.

"The stumbling block is apparently money," she said.

Schoolcraft's current economic position is "comfortable," according to Butch Raby, vice president of business services. Fall enrollment is up by some 10 percent and tuition fees have been increased, from $32 to $38.50 per credit unit for residents and $45 to $47 for non-residents.

"Between a tuition increase of 6 percent, an enrollment increase budgeted at 2 percent, property taxes that are up 6.5 percent in actual dollars and a 4 percent increase in state aid, we are meeting inflation of 5.5 to 6 percent," Raby said.

But economics is only one facet of the issue, according to Jeffress. "Part of the problem is maintaining a sense of equity, making settlements as even as possible."

"Faculty settlements wag everything. They constitute the maximum settlement and set standards for everyone else. But the union looks at it as the place to start, not the top. They want that much as a given and more (for other labor groups)."

"That's where the gnashing of teeth comes from."

Registration for the fall semester continues. Classes begin Thursday at Schoolcraft.

Commission postpones landing fees for small planes

By Janice Brunson
staff writer

Responding to opposition voiced by the operators of small aircraft, Wayne County commissioners tabled a recommendation calling for landing fees at Detroit Metropolitan Airport.

Members of the Committee on Roads, Airports and Public Services unanimously voted Thursday to postpone action until more information is available.

Commissioner Susan Heintz, a member of the committee whose district includes Livonia, opposed the recommendation. "I want the record to show I oppose landing fees."

Under a proposed schedule, aircraft operators would be charged fees of $7 to $169 for each landing at Metro, depending upon weight of the aircraft. Most of those expressing opposition at Thursday's meeting operate aircraft subject to fees of $7.

"This is a thinly veiled attempt to eradicate general aviation from Metro," said Larry White of Canton, president of the Mang Aero Club whose members rely on Metro to gas their planes.

Bill Bettle of Farmington Hills, chairman of the Tenant Association of Metropolitan Airport, said landing fees were a way of forcing small aircraft owners into paying for airport expansion.

"LIGHT AIRCRAFT doesn't need 10 to 12,000 foot runways or new terminals. The scheduled airlines need them. So let them pay for it," Bettle said.

White maintains small aircraft operators already "pay their fair share" by purchasing gasoline from a self-service pump at Metro. Four cents of each gallon sold goes to Wayne County.

In June, 5,642 gallons were sold and in July, another 4,355 gallons. Many members purchase an estimated 1,000 gallons monthly, according to White, who said an additional 1 cent charge on each gallon of gasoline that is sold would generate enough additional income for the county.

The issue of landing fees first arose two years ago, according to Wayne County Commission clerk Al Montgomery, who told members of the roads and airport committee that scheduled airlines at Metro asked he investigate use fees paid by others.

"When we looked at general aviation, we found many small aircraft operators are not purchasing their fuel at Metro. They are not contributing their fair share," Montgomery said.

Under the current proposal, operators who do purchase gas at Metro would receive credit towards landing fees.

ITEM 20 of a Commission Action Plan for Metro Airport calls for relocating a portion of general aviation traffic. The report said the goal is "achievable," something that should "start in the near term and continue."

Landing fees will certainly result in "relocation," according to White, citing the experience at Lambert International Airport in St. Louis. Landing fees of $7.50 each were recently initiated. "There is (now) only one general aircraft located on this field, a Cessna 172 with one private owner."

Most airports of similar capacity to Detroit Metro, including Houston Intercontinental, Memphis International, Phoenix Sky Harbor and Pittsburgh International, charge no landing fees, White said. Chicago's Midway charges $4.96 per landing and the Minneapolis-St. Paul airport charges $5.

Dog days walk to benefit Humane Society

Pet owners and their dogs are invited to take a hike to help the animals cared for by the Michigan Humane Society.

Saturday Sept. 16 is set for the Dog Days Hike at Merrimam Hollow Picnic area along Edward Hines Drive. Walk with or without a pet along the five-mile course. Canine walkers must be in good shape, on a leash at all times and show proof of distemper and rabies inoculations.

The walk will last from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Refreshments for both people and dog walkers will be provided along the route. Pet refreshments provided courtesy of the Milk Bone Dog Biscuit Co.

Walkers who get more than $100 in pledges will receive a free "Hot to Trot" official walk T-shirt, while the walker who brings in the most pledges will receive a Sony Discman portable compact disc player courtesy of Highland Superstores.

Information and pledge forms are available at all three Michigan Humane Society shelters: 7401 Chrysler Drive, Detroit; 37255 Marquette Road, Westland; and at 3600 Auburn Road, Auburn Hills.

For more information, call 872-3400.

LYME ARTHRITIS

If you have joint or muscle aches, you want to know if the cause is Lyme disease, since antibiotics cure the condition.

However, it is not practical for doctors to test everyone with arthritis for Lyme disease as it accounts for less than one percent of all arthritis in the United States. The expense of testing would add a huge amount to a health bill already under criticism for its enormity. Test candidates are those individuals whose arthritis is in keeping with Lyme disease.

Initial findings include exposure to the wood tick followed by a rash, fever, cough, and muscle aches. Days to weeks later severe headache or a facial paralysis develops, possibly accompanied by an irregular heart beat. Months later, knee or ankle arthritis appears; the hands, wrists, and shoulders are spared.

If your arthritis does not have these associations, it is unlikely that you have Lyme arthritis, and testing is not in order. You may hear of a person, otherwise healthy except for arthritis, in whom testing supposedly uncovered Lyme disease. Remember that the unusual case is not the basis for sound medical decisions and does not dictate a change in testing policy.

Mary Armstrong is Schoolcraft College's new coordinator of prison education. A former Schoolcraft College student, she holds an education degree from the University of Michigan-Dearborn and master's degrees in curriculum and English from Eastern Michigan University.

She helps inmates channel their talents behind bars

By Janice Brunson
staff writer

Mary Armstrong, Schoolcraft College's new coordinator of prison education, said she unwittingly spent nearly 20 years preparing for the job by returning to college and earning three degrees in education and then spending three years writing research papers for a team of psychologists.

"Everything I've done has prepared me for all the issues I now have to deal with, non-readers, behavioral problems" and the like, Armstrong said during a recent interview at Schoolcraft's Livonia campus.

A family tragedy, however, prompted involvement with prisoners. Following the suicide of a son six years ago, Armstrong first volunteered to work with female prisoners and then was hired by Schoolcraft College to teach male prisoners at three area correctional facilities.

"Working with prisoners was a chance to turn a personal tragedy into a positive use of my energies," Armstrong said, adding she is "truly energized" by the work.

"It's so rewarding. I'm amazed at the intelligence and potential of men in prison, when they put their mind to it. It's exciting to see the talent and be instrumental in channeling it."

IN HER NEW JOB, Armstrong coordinates Schoolcraft College Centers Services, including designing and implementing classes at Scott Regional, Western Wayne and Phoenix correctional facilities in Plymouth and Northville townships.

Some 800 prisoners are expected to enroll in 17 classes offered by the college this fall and, for the first time ever, students may now work toward an associate of arts degree. Based on state law, all education or training offered in a prison setting must "aid in employability upon release."

Armstrong, who has been acting coordinator of the Schoolcraft program since February, expanded business courses, making it possible to meet college requirements for graduation. The first graduates are expected later this school year, two prisoners who must complete only two or three more classes to be eligible.

Armstrong, who spends three days a week at the prisons, hopes to further expand existing services by including tutoring and study-skill programs, manned by prisoners who have already successfully completed classes.

She also hopes to implement employment referral, "finding meaningful work" for prisoners who will eventually be released or "lifers" who will likely never leave but who could fill "meaningful" jobs within the prison.

"WHEN THESE MEN get turned on to education, it's amazing to watch the increase in their self-esteem," Armstrong said of students participating in the program.

Curiously, she knows little of a personal nature about the majority of them — ages, crimes or prison sentences. She does not know, for example, the age of either man who is expected to earn an associate's degree this school year. Nor does she know either's release date.

Relationships, Armstrong said, are based on educational needs and goals. Though many prisoners want to discuss daily problems, few speak of former crimes or sentences.

They do, however, talk about home. Armstrong, a native Detroit, is familiar with many of the streets and neighborhoods they name. Some have also attended her alma mater, Redford High School.

A former Schoolcraft College student, Armstrong holds an education degree from the University of Michigan-Dearborn, and master's degrees in curriculum and English from Eastern Michigan University.

She has taught in Northville Public Schools and at Eastern Michigan University. She has taught in Schoolcraft's prison program since 1965 and served on College's Correctional Science Advisory Board since 1987.

Dog wash set for Sept. 10

The Michigan Humane Society West Shelter, 37255 Marquette, Westland, offers dog owners a chance to get Fido looking his best.

Zucchini, zucchini, zucchini

It's that time of year again. Any day now, I'm expecting to see zucchini squash at the produce stands piled as high as an elephant's eye with a big sign proclaiming: Free! Please take one.

The absolutely gorgeous weather we've been enjoying has created a bumper crop of zucchini again this year in the Janes Gang garden. So far, I've sauteed it, grilled it, steamed it, fried it, frozen it, baked it, stuffed it and have given more away to friends than I care to remember. And every morning, when I venture out to check, I've got more.

Certainly, zucchini must be related to rabbits and mosquitoes. Just letting it sit in the garden after a three-day soiree to Cedar Point, I returned to find sizes and shapes that easily could be listed as assault weapons. So, now that the freezer is full and the family echoes in unison, "Zucchini, again!" at dinnertime, I feel that it's my public duty to pass along still other unique ways to serve the vegetable that plagues many gardens during this time of year.

The wild ancestors of the zucchini appear to have originated in the vicinity of the border between Mexico and Guatemala. From there, they spread to North and South America. First use of these vegetables as food appears to have originated around 8000 B.C. in Mexico.

AT THAT TIME, the Indians gathered the wild plants mainly for seeds because the fruits contained only small amounts of bitter-tasting flesh. Over the centuries, mutant plants with more fleshy, milder-flavored fruits appeared and were grown along with beans and corn by the Aztec, Inca and Mayan Indian civilizations of Latin America.

Blame Christopher Columbus for first noticing and transporting the wily vegetable. Shortly after the discovery of America, squashes were brought back to the Old World, where the production eventually surpassed that of the New World. Statistics on the total United States production of zucchini are not readily available, but it is estimated that more than 50,000 metric tons of these vegetables are frozen and that the same amount are canned by processors.

And if you think we have more than what we can deal with, China, the main producer of zucchini and other summer squash, sells a remarkable one million metric tons. (Probably most of it ends up as a filler in chop suey, right?)

Anyone with a vegetable garden is always looking for new ways to produce a prolific vegetable. If you don't have a garden, you can go to someone who does. Very good chance.

Tart connoisseur Sheila Foley with an array of favored offerings (clockwise from bottom left) a flan of fresh strawberry and peach slices, miniature pecan tarts, instant pistachio nut pudding garnished with fresh kiwi, almond-raspberry with lattice top and bite-sized puff pastry tarts with grape jelly.

Bakeries tempt you with tarts

Area shops that sell tarts include:

• Bonnie's Patisserie, 29229 Northwestern Highway, Southfield. In business nine years, Bonnie's uses fruit of the season to feature fruit classics, including Strawberry Devonshire with a sour-cream and cheese-cream base, a walnut-based Apple Frantipan and Swedish Almond featuring apricots and lemon.

• Mrs. Maddox's Cake Shop, 27881 Orchard Lake Road, Farmington Hills. In business 60 years, Maddox's specializes in bite-sized tarts, miniature versions filled with cherry, strawberry, blueberry or raspberry on a bed of sweet custard.

• D'S Quality Cake, 25911 Six Mile Road, Redford. In business two years, D'S features a bite-sized tart of cheesecake and cherries, based on an old family recipe.

• Iverson Bakery, 17180 Lahser, in the Old Redford district of Detroit. In business for more than 30 years, Iverson always tries to have fresh strawberry and key lime tarts on hand. Other standards include cherry and pecan.

• Graf's Pastry Kitchen, 30010 W. 12 Mile Road, Farmington Hills. In business in 12 years, Graf's specializes in European-styled tarts with whipped cream, including yellow and chocolate cake with strawberries and rum, Khalua with coffee cream and apricots and Black Forest with chocolate nuts and cherries.

• Yvonne's To Go, in Farmer Jack, 37685 Five Mile Road, Livonia. In business six years, Yvonne's also has locations in Farmington and Southfield. Flan is available fresh daily, featuring fruits of the season.

Lowly pastry can be high art

By Janice Brunson
staff writer

THE TART, likely of humble origin and elevated to culinary distinction by the French, normally contains a flaky crust as light as the breath of an angel, plump handpicked fruit of the season and a mouth-watering custard of fresh milk and eggs.

But not always.

"The tart has about a hundred definitions," explained Sheila Foley, a foods expert who has taught cuisine and related subjects for 25 years to Livonia school students and, more recently, to adults expressing a belated interest in cookery.

"By definition, a tart is a pie, except one is deeper than the other," said Foley, attempting again to explain a tart.

This much is certain. The tart is a European pastry of common origin, probably a culinary creation of the peasants.

"Most things with fruit were considered common because anybody could pick fruit. Royalty and the like enjoyed things like lamb stuffed with boar, stuffed with pheasant, stuffed with whatever things not everyone could have," Foley said.

THE FRENCH ARE credited with transforming the lowly pastry into a "high art," now savored by gourmands the world over. The American-styled tart is patterned after that favored by the French and English.

Foley has made it her business to become an expert in its preparation, for a series of cooking demonstrations she will teach next month at Kitchen Glamor in Redford Township, West Mountbelle and Rochester Hills.

"The best thing," Foley said in still another explanation of the tart, "is to always say, 'You can't describe it by hard rules.'"

In Eastern Europe, for example, the traditional tart of Yugoslavia, Hungary and Czechoslovakia is loaded with fruit rolled directly into the pastry.

This is Foley's third year of classes for Kitchen Glamor. Tarts is one of five subjects she will teach, topics suggested by Foley and agreed to by the shop. Foley delves deeply into each new subject, emerging as a specialist in that form of cooking.

"Working with adults is wonderful. They pay money and they really want to learn," she said, adding after a pause, "You know, a shocking number of people don't know how to cook." During one demonstration last year, a student in her late 30s confided that the pot roast Foley had just readied and cooked was the first the woman had ever seen prepared.

"THE ALL-TIME favorite 'tart' is the flan, a type of tart styled and named by the French," Foley said.

Consisting of a sweet cookie crust, rich custard cream filling and garnishes of fruit arranged artistically, the flan is always "a certain hit" in culinary circles.

Due to its popularity, it is also terribly overpriced when sold by the slice, according to Foley, who said it is relatively inexpensive to prepare.

She favors garnishing flan with slices of fresh strawberry, wedges of mandarin orange and kiwi, the New Zealand wonder that is available year-round to American consumers.

The flan exemplifies the tart's favored status. A visual delight, its showy nature is particularly fitting on any restaurant dessert cart.

"People can turn down cake but it's not that easy to turn down the tart. People think it's the best thing they've ever in their lives seen," Foley said.

Volcano inspires Italian 'stramboli' bread

By Ariene Funke
special writer

The name is "stramboli" — layers of ham, pepperoni and mozzarella cheese baked into a fresh loaf of bread. "It's almost like a rolled-up pizza," said 27-year-old Joe Mainella of Joe's Deli and Bakery in Livonia, where stramboli has been holding forth during the last five years.

"It's a one-of-a-kind taste," Mainella added.

Hefty, fragrant loaves of fresh-baked stramboli may be sliced and served as a hearty sandwich, snack or full meal. It is available in full loaf, three-pound sizes (10-12 slices) at $7.49, or half-loaf portions at $3.99.

A vegetarian stramboli, with broccoli and cheddar cheese sprinkled with Italian seasoning, also is popular.

Mainella and other family members in 1989 came from their native central Italy to the United States. Five years ago, after working at several other local Italian bakeries, Joe Mainella and his mother, Filomena, opened their own shop at Five Mile and Merriman roads.

"WE SAW the business grow, and one year later we had to bring in the whole family," Mainella said. Father Luigi and brother Phillip, who had been in construction work, joined the bakery. Joe's wife, Anita, and Phillip's wife, Nina, also help out.

The Mainellas, who all live in Livonia, work in the shop baking and selling bread, preparing trays of unbaked pizza, rolling out loaves of stramboli and preparing fancy Italian desserts such as the cream-filled cannoli.

The bakery throbs with the homey, yeast-filled fragrance of dough and the tangy aroma of Filomena Mainella's special spaghetti sauce simmering on a stove in back.

Each week, the bakery sells approximately 60 quarts of the sauce, which contains fresh oregano, basil, parsley, finely chopped onions and tiny nuggets of fresh Italian sausage.

"Everything is made by us," Joe Mainella said.

Mainella owes the introduction of the stramboli to his mother-in-law,

Teresa Coppola of Novi, soon after the bakery opened. Coppola went to New York and, while there, she sampled a similar layered sandwich featuring salami and a sweet-and-sour sauce.

"I didn't particularly like the taste of it," Mainella said.

But he did like the concept, and developed his own variation featuring slices of boiled ham, thin strips of pepperoni and mozzarella cheese sprinkled with green pepper.

"I GOT the name from my mother-in-law," Mainella said. "I think it's the name of a volcano."

Mainella makes stramboli by placing the meats and cheese, in layers, on a piece of pizza dough, which has been flattened.

Each end of the dough is moistened slightly with water. Mainella rolls the dough firmly over the ingredients. When finished, it forms an oblong. The ends are tucked in.

The stramboli is brushed with an egg wash and sprinkled with poppy seeds, then placed in a loaf pan lined with baking paper. Poke the dough with a fork to eliminate air bubbles.

Bake at 380 degrees for one hour.

Stramboli may be eaten cold. But warming enhances the flavors, brings out the cheese and softens the bread to a deliciously chewy consistency.

The ham, pepperoni and mozzarella variety is mildly spicy — not overwhelmed by the pepperoni. The vegetarian-style stramboli is jazzed up slightly with a sprinkling of Italian spices.

JIM JAGOFF/staff photographer

Joe Mainella, owner of Joe's Italian Bakery & Deli in Livonia, shows "stramboli" bread, which is baked with meat or vegetables inside.

THE SHOP sells dry pastas, wing and lunch meat. It makes up party trays and caters weddings and parties. The Mainellas also put out several varieties of bread, dinner rolls and doughnuts.

Some of their special, rich, baked-on-the-premises desserts are small eclairs, napoleons and lemon horns. The slender, cream-filled tubes of pastries called cannoli are light and flaky.

These confections are priced at 4 cents each or $4.99 a dozen for small pastry, or 60 cents each or $7.99 a dozen for the larger.

Another interesting dessert is a Sicilian peach. This round, sweet shell is filled with rich cream and decorated with frosting and a cherry. It costs 99 cents each.

Joe's Bakery and Deli at Five Mile and Merriman is open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday-Saturday. Closed Sunday. Phone 361-5888.

Zucchini, zucchini, zucchini, zucchini appeared on your doorstep mysteriously throughout the night. If you're tired of making them the same old way, here are a few different ideas that will help you get through the remainder of the summer.

For a truly culinary delight, pick the blossoms first thing in the morning so that the bees won't be trapped inside. Then prepare a simple batter using beer, eggs, water and baking soda. Dip the flowers in the batter and lightly fry in hot oil until golden.

IN ADDITION, you can use the seeds the same way you use pumpkin seeds. Take the big monsters, split them and remove the seeds. A fast dip in boiling salted water and then pat dry, followed by a little frying in oil or dry roasting in the oven will produce a munchy treat the whole family will enjoy while watching TV.

One of the most ingenious methods to utilize a great number with minimal fuss is to make a soup stock. After cooking the cubed squash in a slow, rolling boil until tender, the zucchini can then be pureed and made into a cold or warm cream soup. A dash of salt and a sprinkling of fresh, ground pepper, in addition to a cup of cream with an egg beaten in, will turn the mixture into a frothy appetizer that will surely be welcome on a hot, humid afternoon or early evening.

If all else fails and the kids are tired of using zucchini for baseball bats or blow-dart guns, may I suggest donating them to a shelter, group home or soup kitchen? It wouldn't hurt to give the old kitchen cupboard a thorough cleaning while preparing for this, so the inclusion of other canned goods and edibles will be greatly appreciated.

So if summer has brought with it an overabundance of zucchini to your household, try these recipes. You won't be disappointed. Bon Appetit!

CREAM OF ZUCCHINI SOUP WITH CRABMEAT

6 tablespoons butter/margarine
1 1/2 pounds zucchini, grated
1/4 cup chopped celery
1/4 cup finely chopped onion
3 cups rich chicken stock bouquet garni (bay leaf, thyme sprig, 5 fresh basil leaves and 2 peppercorns tied in a small cheesecloth bag)
1/2 cup flour
3 cups whipping cream
salt and pepper to taste
1/4 cup flaked crabmeat

Melt 2 tablespoons butter/margarine in a large saucepan over medium-low heat. Add zucchini, celery and onion and cook until vegetables are very tender, about 15 minutes. Add stock and bouquet garni, increase heat, bring to a boil, then reduce heat and simmer for 5 minutes. Meanwhile, melt remaining butter in another heavy saucepan. Whisk in flour and cook for 3 minutes, making a roux. Gradually whisk in soup and continue to simmer for 3 minutes. Remove bouquet garni. Puree soup in a blender or processor with 2 cups whipping cream. Pour into a bowl. Season with salt and pepper. Chill. Just before serving, whip remaining one cup of cream to stiff peaks. Ladle soup into bowls. Garnish each with whipped cream and a little crabmeat. Enjoy.

ZUCCHINI FETTUCCHINE

makes about 1 pound
8 ounces zucchini, shredded about 3 cups all-purpose flour
4 extra large eggs

dash salt
1 tablespoon vegetable oil

Cook zucchini in boiling salted water for 5 minutes. Drain. Squeeze dry. Place in a processor or blender and chop fine. Squeeze dry to remove any remaining water. Arrange 2 1/2 cups of flour on a working surface and make a well in the center. Add zucchini, eggs and salt to well and blend with fork. Gradually draw flour from inner edge of well to center to incorporate all the flour. Add more flour if necessary. Knead dough until smooth and elastic, about 8 minutes. Wrap dough in plastic and let rest for 30 minutes.

Run dough through a pasta machine 3 times to thin and stretch out. Then, using fettuccine cutter, cut dough into desired lengths. Cook pasta in a large amount of rapidly boiling, lightly salted water until just firm but almost tender, about 1 1/2 minutes. Drain well and toss with vegetable oil.

FRIED ZUCCHINI BLOSSOMS

12 fresh zucchini blossoms
2 eggs
1 cup cheese cracker crumbs
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons margarine
salt and pepper to taste

Dip fresh zucchini blossoms in beaten eggs. Then roll to coat in crushed crackers, coating thoroughly. Heat butter and margarine in a large skillet over medium heat. Add blossoms to butter mixture and fry in batches until golden, turning once. Drain thoroughly, sprinkle with salt and pepper or parmesan cheese.

Update gives facts on canning

AP — Enjoy summer's bountiful harvest next winter, too, by canning or preserving part of the crop. Here's an update on the latest recommendations.

PECTIN

Several types of pectin are available: powdered, natural powdered, light powdered (which requires less sugar and now includes directions for making freezer jam), powdered with sugar added, and liquid.

For best results, liquid pectin must be very fresh. Look for the "use by" date on the package. Powdered pectin is more shelf stable than liquid pectin, but any held-over packages that are lumpy or caked should be discarded.

The most important thing to remember about preserving with pectin: follow package or recipe directions exactly. Never use directions for one type of pectin with another type.

Never make double batches of jellies, jams or preserves.

tablespoons of lemon juice to each quart of tomatoes; 1 tablespoon to each pint.

IF JARS DON'T SEAL

Remove the lid and check the rim of the jar. If it is undamaged, top with a new lid and reprocess at once. Or, store the jar in the refrigerator and eat within a week.

LESS SALT, LESS SUGAR

You can safely reduce or eliminate the salt in any canned vegetable; it's the processing, not the salt, that destroys spoilage organisms.

Don't reduce or omit salt in pickle recipes, or pickles will be mushy.

Fruits can be frozen or canned without adding sugar. Sprinkle fruits that tend to darken with ascorbic-acid color-keeper solution.

To make jelly, jam or preserves with less sugar, use light pectin, following the package directions.

MORE INFORMATION

For more information on preserving foods, contact your local county extension service.

For optimum food safety, the USDA recommends increasing the acidity of tomatoes by adding 2 tablespoons of lemon juice to each quart of tomatoes; 1 tablespoon to each pint.

PROCESSING JELLY

The United States Department of Agriculture recommends that you process all jellies, jams and preserves in a boiling water bath. This prevents molding during storage.

Do not use paraffin to seal jellies, jams or preserves.

Use only standard jelly jars for jellies, jams or preserves.

Look for the new 4-ounce jelly jars; they're great for gift foods or special fruit combinations. Seal with standard lids and process them like the larger sizes.

ACID IN TOMATOES

For optimum food safety, the USDA recommends increasing the acidity of tomatoes by adding 2

Bob Mounsey makes Cheater's Trifle, his version of English trifle, with ingredients quickly put together.

Gourmet picnic easy to prepare

By Ethel Simmons
staff writer

Just to demonstrate the kinds of gourmet picnic foods that may be brought to Meadow Brook's Glynedebourne Picnic, Bob Mounsey of Jacobson's whipped up a few of his own specialties on a recent afternoon in the Kitchen Shop of the Birmingham store.

There was cold salmon with scallop mousse to sample, along with salad nicoise and gazpacho aspic. For dessert, Mounsey prepared his easy-to-do Cheater's Trifle.

The full, beautiful fish-shaped main dish was covered with paper-thin slices of cucumber. Each wedge of the offering revealed tasty salmon side by side with salmon mousse, and was topped with a cucumber sour cream.

Brightly colored salad nicoise combined potatoes, green beans and tomatoes as well as tuna fish, hard-boiled eggs, Greek olives and anchovies. French dressing was served with the salad.

Cheater's Trifle took short cuts, with ready-made pound cake, vanilla pudding, cherries and walnuts among the ingredients.

THE GLYNDEBOURNE Picnic will be held Saturday, Sept. 9, at the Shotwell-Gustafson Pavilion on the Oakland University campus in Rochester Hills. The black-tie event is a benefit for the Kresge Library collections.

J.T. Battenberg III, GM vice president and group executive, and his wife, Luann, are chairmen of this year's picnic. Battenberg, who attended Mounsey's food sampling, said he and his wife lived six years in Europe. "We spent three years in London and attended the Glynedebourne Picnic (the original, after which the Meadow Brook picnic is patterned) there. We have an affinity for British and European food."

For the local picnic, Battenberg and his wife are among six couples who will each bring a specialty dish to share. All the Meadow Brook guests provide their own picnic fare, some having chefs doing the preparation.

The picnic is $100 per couple, $250 patron and $500 benefactor. For more information call 370-24896 or 370-2481.

Here's Mounsey's recipe for Gazpacho Aspic, a rosy ring of the more familiar cold, Spanish summer soup.

GAZPACHO ASPIC

Combine 4 cups V-8; 1 green pepper, 3 celery stalks, 1 red onion, 2 cups cucumber and 2 tomatoes, all chopped fine; 2 cloves garlic, crushed; 1 cup hot salsa, juice of 2 limes, ¼ cup olive oil and 1 teaspoon salt.

Dissolve gelatin in 1 cup V-8, bring to boil. Add the other 3 cups of V-8 and mix with all other ingredients. Put in a mold and chill overnight. Unmold and decorate.

Lowly pastry can be high art

Another Foley favorite is Frantipan, a tart of minced almond nut and egg yolk that Foley said in good conscience she can not recommend. "Too many yolks, seven or eight in the filling and more in the crust."

The Frantipan seems to defy standard definitions of the tart with its absence of fruit.

"GENERALLY, A TART is a shallow pie with fruit. But there are many variations and deviations. Some are very heavy and rich. Others are light and airy," Foley explained yet again.

For variety, she might substitute a cream cheese custard for the standard custard filling. When she is pressed for time, Foley said she is not above using an instant packaged pudding in place of custard prepared from scratch. She also occasionally substitutes prepared puff pastry in lieu of cookie or almond crust.

Tarts come in a variety of sizes, from bite-sized offerings cooked in special miniature pans to delightful heart shapes to wedge-shaped slices cut from a large round.

The tart is easy enough to prepare, providing a good recipe is followed. Foley tests any she recommends. "I've tried some horrible recipes, cockamamie things from magazines that have not been tested."

The best available are by Martha Stewart, in her "Pies and Tarts" cookbook.

"The most important thing of all," Foley concluded, "is fresh ingredients. Nothing substitutes for fresh ingredients."

Foley will demonstrate tarts Saturdays, Sept. 23 and 30, at Kitchen Glamor in West Bloomfield and Rochester. For more information and cost, call 855-4400 in West Bloomfield, 537-1300 in Redford Township and 652-0402 in Rochester.

MINIATURE PECAN TARTS WITH COOKIE CRUST

Cookie crust
½ cup margarine
4 cups sugar
2 egg yolks
1 teaspoon almond extract
2 cups flour

Blend margarine and sugar and beat well. Blend in egg yolks one at a time. Blend in almond extract and flour. Press dough into miniature tart pans. Bake at 400 degrees 8-10 minutes or until lightly browned. Set aside.

Filling
½ cup margarine
½ cup dark Karo syrup
1 cup confectioner's sugar
1 cup chopped pecans

Combine margarine, Karo syrup and confectioner's sugar in a saucepan and bring to a gentle boil. Stir in pecans. Spoon into baked miniature tarts and top with half a pecan. Bake again for 54 minutes at 350 degrees.

ALMOND-RASPBERRY TART

Almond crust
1½ cups ground almonds
1 cup butter or margarine
1 cup sugar
2 egg yolks
1½ teaspoons fresh, grated lemon rind
2 cups flour
1 tablespoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon ground cloves

Cream butter and sugar. Add egg yolks, almonds, lemon rind and blend. Add flour and spices. Mix into dough until firm and holds together. Press half the dough into a 9-inch tart pan with removable bottom. Spoon in 1 cup raspberry jam. Roll remaining dough, cut into strips, and weave lattice top. Bake at 350 degrees for 30-40 minutes.

FLAN WITH SEASONAL FRUIT

Make cookie or almond crust. Press ½ thick into a 10-inch flan pan with removable bottom. Prick with fork and bake at 400 degrees for 10-15 minutes. Set aside.

Custard filling
2 cups milk
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons cornstarch
2 egg yolks

1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon vanilla

Blend flour, cornstarch and sugar in saucepan. Heat milk in separate saucepan and blend with flour mixture. In separate bowl, beat yolks and beat well. Add yolk mixture to remaining flour and milk, mix well and heat to boiling until sauce thickens. Be careful to avoid scorching. When thickened, add vanilla. Spoon into cooled crust and chill.

Decorate with sliced strawberries, peeled and sliced kiwi and mandarin wedges, arranging fruit artistically. If the tart is not to be served for several hours, brush fruit with heated apple or apricot jelly.

● STROH'S YOGURT

Continuing the expansion of its frozen dessert line, Stroh's Ice Cream Division in Detroit is introducing Stroh's Low-Fat Frozen Yogurt. The 98 percent fat-free frozen yogurt has 90-110 calories per three-ounce serving. Sold in half-gallon square packages, it is offered in six flavors — vanilla/chocolate, strawberry/banana, strawberry, peach, blueberry and raspberry. Also for those who want to eat light, Stroh's has a Light Frozen Dairy Dessert line.

● WITH NUTRASWEET

The first non-fat, soft-serve frozen yogurt sweetened with NutraSweet brand sweetener recently was introduced by Elgin-Honey Hill Corp., a Chicago-based manufacturer and distributor of dairy products. Deserve The Frozen Yogurt was originally developed exclusively for Deserve The Sampler Cafe, a new restaurant developed by the NutraSweet Co. that opened last November in the Chicago area. The yogurt has 60-70 calories per 3.5-ounce serving. Flavors available are Dutch chocolate, vanilla, strawberry and black cherry.

Engler criticizes MET board for underpricing

By Tim Richard
staff writer

State Sen. John Engler, the probable Republican candidate for governor next year, criticized the Michigan Education Trust board for raising prepaid college tuitions 13 percent.

But not because the increase was too high. "What was wrong was that it was held to 13 percent. We were underpriced a year ago," Engler said on a 1 County campaign visit.

It will cost parents of a newborn infant $7,664 — up $908 from a year ago — to invest in the MET fund, which guarantees the youngster four years of state university tuition.

Engler said the MET price must cover this year's tuition increases of 9 percent but increases of 9.6 per-

Engler said it's a major reason tuitions are rising faster than consumer price inflation.

DR. C. GARY Artinian, Bloomfield Township physician and member of the Wayne State University board, agreed.

"We (15 state universities) are underfunded. I'm the Lone Ranger against it (9.6 percent tuition increase approved in July by the WSU board)," said Artinian, a Republican who supports Engler.

"The state budgets about $1 billion for all colleges and universities. That doesn't even match Medicaid, which is $1.5 billion to $2 billion."

"Engler has always pushed for more," said Artinian, one of two dozen Oakland and Wayne GOP leaders joining the senator's "exploratory" committee. That committee has 1,500 members, including all GOP legislative leaders and top party officials of the last decade.

"We (Michigan) are at the top in providing social services, but we're 38th among the 50 states in funding higher education."

"Wayne State is still in the top 10 or 15 public universities in the country in tuition. Michigan and Michigan State are in the top 10. We can't afford that," Artinian said.

THE MET BOARD, chaired by state treasurer Robert Bowman, had based its plans on annual tuition increases averaging 7.3 percent and trust fund earnings of 9.5 percent compounded.

But when most major university boards hiked tuition more than 9 percent earlier this summer, the MET board last week raised entry prices into the trust fund.

Bowman, the former Wall Street financier who is Blanchard's economic guru, said:

"If people think this is expensive, they're in for a real shocker when they find out how expensive college is. If people are priced out of MET, they're priced out of college."

Last year parents and grandparents enrolled 40,409 students as MET beneficiaries. "I'll bet we don't see 40,000 people getting into MET this time," predicted Sen. Dan DeGrow, R-Port Huron.

The Associated Press contributed to this story.

THE CAREER lawmaker said "I'm steamed" at Gov. James J. Blanchard's refusal to appoint Engler's designee to the MET board.

As Senate majority leader, Engler, 40, of Mount Pleasant, is allowed by law to designate one member of the board. He said he nominated Gary Wolfram, Hillsdale College professor, former Senate Fiscal Agency budget analyst and former University of Michigan Dearborn faculty member.

"They (Blanchard administration) rejected him. They don't want anybody knowledgeable on the board," Engler said.

In an Oakland County Building news conference Thursday, Engler said, "I fear for the future obligations" of the MET fund because of the underpricing.

And he repeated his general theme: that Democrat Blanchard and House Democrats place too low a budget priority on education, including universities.

John Engler criticizes MET

Bowman holds meeting on trust

The public can learn about the Michigan Education Trust straight from the founder's mouth next week in Royal Oak.

State treasurer Robert Bowman will hold a community forum at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 6, in Kimball High School, 1500 Lexington.

It's one of five being held around the state and the only one in southeastern Michigan. Others will be in Marquette, Traverse City, Haslett (near Lansing) and Grand Rapids.

"The intent of the MET forums is to answer any questions people might have about MET before the Oct. 2-6 open application period," Bowman said.

Parents, grandparents and even employers may invest $7,664 to guarantee a newborn child four years of state university tuition in 18 years. Cost are lower for fewer years and for community colleges.

To make a reservation or for further information, call the state's toll-free hot line at 1-800-MET-4-KID.

Wayne County guide available

Suburban Wayne County's population exceeded that of the city of Detroit in 1988, the first time that has happened in the post-World War II period.

A mid-term census showed there were 1,088,780 residents in Wayne County suburbs, compared with 1,066,220 Detroit residents.

That information and other tidbits about Wayne County and its government is contained in a newly-published League of Women Voters county guidebook.

It is the first time the league has published a county guide since 1974.

County history, government, finance, courts, social programs, public services, regional governmental authorities and elections are discussed in successive chapters. The history of the newly-refurbished Wayne County building is described in the book's appendix.

All county government departments and their functions are described.

The guide also includes maps of state, federal and county commission election districts.

Copies of the guide can be reserved by calling the Livonia League of Women Voters chapter, 476-8846, or the Northville-Canton-Plymouth-Nowi chapter, 349-3555.

The project was financed, in part, through a grant from the Michigan Council for the Humanities.

Game-winning preparations?

Getting the field ready for a friendly game of softball between two departments from Detroit Diesel is Ron Taylor (manning the rake) of Canton Township. Keith Fuson of Novi and Shirley Clinkscales of Detroit act as soil tamers at the field in the Middle Rouge Parkway along Edward Hines Drive. Every couple weeks the product design department plays the product engineering department at the firm. It's friendly rivalry by most accounts. Last week team members had to do a little diamond grooming before play could begin. Other team members are warming up in the background.

Ryan Johnson represents one quarter of what rates as an outstanding offensive backfield at Salem. Johnson split time between quarterback and halfback as a junior but will play the latter position this year and let Rob Kowalski handle the quarterback job on a regular basis.

Line development crucial for Salem

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

On every football team, there's an element of good-natured rivalry between the running backs and the offensive linemen.

Anybody can run with the ball, so say the linemen, but the ball carriers need the help of their blockers.

At Plymouth Salem, the backs hope they can expect the kind of support they need from their teammates up front. The question mark hanging over the offensive line is a crucial concern.

The Rocks have a veteran backfield — possibly the equal of any in the area and possibly Salem's best since the undefeated season of 1974 — and plenty of depth at the skill positions. But that is tempered by the lack of experience in the line.

"We do have our skill people back," Salem coach Tom Moshimer said, "but outside of Casey Nichols and Joe Roza we graduated all of our linemen on both sides of the ball. We're so thin up front we converted two backs to linemen."

SENIOR CENTER Casey Nichols (5-9, 190) is the only returning starter on the offensive line from last season's 6-3 ballclub. The former running backs are seniors Brian Connell (5-11, 190) and Don Parrish (6-0, 215). Connell will play guard and Parrish, who was moved to tight end last season, tackle.

"A year ago today they were halfbacks," Moshimer said. "It will be a while before the offensive line becomes mature enough to handle what it has to handle."

That means opening the quick holes for Salem to be effective at running its triple-option, wishbone attack. And the Rocks have an all-senior backfield that knows how to do that.

Rob Kowalski will start at quarterback after splitting time with Ryan Johnson, who will concentrate on playing halfback, and Pat Bowie returns at fullback. The newcomer is halfback Chad Johnson, who sat out last season after transferring from Redford Catholic Central.

"It was not a case of (Kowalski) beating Ryan out but putting Ryan at halfback so we could put the ball in his hands more," Moshimer said. "We had to get both of them in the game, and this better suited our purposes."

Johnson (6-3, 216) showed he could carry the ball on the option from either position, rushing for 537 yards and eight touchdowns, but Bowie (5-9, 210) is as great a threat, having gained a team-leading 613 yards and scored five TDs. Chad Johnson (5-10, 175) is a quick, elusive runner whereas Bowie and Ryan Johnson are power runners, Moshimer said.

KOWALSKI WAS 11-of-38 passing for 197 yards and two TDs, and he had only one pass intercepted. Junior Chris Tebben, previously the JV quarterback, will be his back-up with Johnson, who completed 12 of 19 passes for 229 yards, always ready if needed.

"Kowalski fits our needs as a wishbone quarterback," Moshimer said, adding he is an adequate runner and passer. "He does both fairly well, and most quarterbacks can't do both."

"The beauty of our backfield is you can't zero in on one player to stop us. You can't ignore one of those backs, because all of them can carry the football."

And, with a strong corps of receivers, the Rocks might throw the ball more, too. Salem has always worked hard on the passing game, Moshimer said, but hasn't been good at it except when it had a quarterback like Rich Hewlett and receiver the quality of Craig Morton.

Salem has a veteran receiver in senior Bryan Schultz, a tri-captain along with Nichols and Bowie, but he'll miss the start of the season after injuring his knee in the summer passing league and having arthroscopic surgery. Schultz (6-3, 160) was having a good summer and had caught five TD passes on the first night, Moshimer said.

But the Rocks have seniors Mike Cygan (5-9, 160) and Scott Austin (5-9, 160), both converted halfbacks, at wide receiver in addition to junior Scott Rodgers (6-0, 170).

"WE ARE GOING to throw the ball," Moshimer said. "Nobody is going to be able to gang up on us anymore. That's one reason we put those kids out there."

"I'd have to say, providing the offensive line comes around, we should

CC considers change in offensive style

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Tom Mach is going through his own personal tug-of-war.

The Redford Catholic Central High football coach is torn between using his familiar ball-control style offensive attack, but is tempted to implement a more wide-open passing game.

Last year the Shamrocks went unbeaten in 12 games before losing the state Class A championship game to Traverse City at the Pontiac Silverdome (24-14).

Mach, 101-28 in 13 seasons with the Shamrocks, finds himself saddled with a speedy group that could be his most explosive team ever.

"I think we have some good backs and receivers," he said. "But right now I'm caught between if we're going to run or we're going to pass. We have the capabilities of doing both."

The big question will be answered when Mach makes his decision about who will succeed All-Observer and All-Catholic League quarterback Scott Hauncher, who was a two-year starter. (He passed for 1,245 yards last year.)

Two juniors, 6-1, 180-pound Jason Carr, and 5-10, 170-pound Jack Davidson are battling for the starting job with a leg up on Joel Mussat.

Carr is the better passer, while Davidson is better runner, according to Mach.

"THERE'S A POSSIBILITY we'll use two, but I'd like to settle on one," said the CC coach. "I'm not afraid to use either at this time of the season. I'll make my decision based on how practice goes along."

Redford CC traveled last Wednesday to scrimmage Monroe, but Carr and Davidson came out virtually even.

"They both did some positive things and then some things that were not as positive," said the CC coach. "But it's a good situation to be in because both are good prospects."

Mach's situation is even better at tailback with the return of senior Dave Owens (5-7, 165) and junior Brian Chaney (6-1, 180) as his backup.

As a junior, Owens gained 716 yards and could double that number this season. (His brother Fred, who graduated from Redford Bishop Borgess High, is a running back at the University of Wisconsin.)

"He's a stronger and we expect him to break a few more tackles," Mach said of Owens. "With a whole year's experience, he should be able to read holes better. He'll be a much-improved back."

CONTESTING AT fullback is Jon Barbra (6-1, 195), noted for his blocking, and speedy Arshon Stewart (5-11, 176), a breakaway threat.

The split ends will be junior Mike Thomas (6-1, 183) and senior Dave Baucus (6-2, 175). The flankers include returnee Mike Mathis (6-1, 190), a deep threat, along with Dan Bradley (5-9, 175) and Erik Burton (6-2, 175 — all seniors.

"Last year we were pretty good at the skill positions," Mach said. "This year we have more speed, but less experience."

Three players are in the running at tight end, led by senior Tim Jackson (6-1, 180), junior Mike Grimes (6-4, 210) and junior Leo Kowalyk (6-1, 185).

The offensive line boasts a pair of outstanding returnees in tackle Ryan Bell (6-3, 245) and guard Chris Ciernia (5-9, 205).

Bell, a second-team All-Observer pick, is a major college prospect who will go both ways.

"Right now he's our best lineman," Mach said.

Junior Gary Gurgold (6-2, 240) and senior Dave Taylor (6-1, 245) are vying at the other tackle slot. Joe Laskowski (6-0, 230) will be at the other guard, with either Don Janda (6-0, 216) or Dorie Hicks (5-10, 210), both seniors, at center.

"OUR PASS BLOCKING needs improvement, but I saw some good signs at our scrimmage," said the CC coach. "We scored more points last year than we had in the past. Our goal will be to score 21 points per game. With 21 points, you should be able to win a high school game."

"I think they'll develop into a fine unit."

Always a "fine unit" for the Shamrocks has been the defense, which is coordinated by long-time Mach assistant Rick Coratti.

Chiefs look elsewhere for '89 scoring punch

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

Of all the losses to graduation suffered by the Plymouth Canton boys soccer team, none loomed larger than the loss of a freshman.

The Chiefs are trying to replace halfback Kerry Zavagnin, a multi-talented player who transferred to Redford Catholic Central. As a freshman last year, Zavagnin led Canton with 15 goals and 10 assists, so new coach Don Smith has to look elsewhere for goal production.

"Kerry is an excellent ballplayer," said Smith, who coaches the Canton girls soccer team in the spring. "I'm hunting for someone to replace him. But we can overcome it if we stick together and work hard. He couldn't win it all by himself for us. We still needed 10 other people."

Smith assumed the boys soccer duties last winter after Mike Morgan resigned following the 1988 season. In his last year at the helm, Morgan guided Canton to a 9-6-4 overall record. The Chiefs were knocked out of the Class A tournament, losing 6-1 in the regional to eventual state champion Livonia Stevenson.

"I DIDN'T get to see them an awful lot," Smith said. "They had a pretty nice team last year. The only difference between them and the best teams it seemed was they didn't play with enough intensity."

"They could play two-thirds of a game with anybody and then have a letdown. It always seemed to be a bad time for a letdown."

Smith has had success coaching the girls, leading the Chiefs to the Class A crown in 1988 and a Top-10 ranking each of the last two years. Smith has coached under-15 aged boys in the Little Caesars Youth League, but he has never coached boys at the high school level.

"It's a little different," he said. "The boys are a little bigger, rougher and more aggressive, but when it comes down to it they're still just kids in school. The boys play at a quicker pace, but other than that the girls play just as good a soccer."

Expected to play center-halfback in place of Zavagnin is senior Kristian Kilpelainen, who lined up at stopper last year. Also in the running is senior Rickey McFelly. The two shared time Thursday in a four-team scrimmage, including Ann Arbor Huron and Pioneer and Brighton.

The Chiefs lost by 1-0 scores to both Huron and Brighton and tied Pioneer 1-1. Smith was pleased by the effort he saw from the center-halfback position and the team in general.

OTHER MIDFIELD candidates include senior Geoff Elsenlord, who played junior varsity last year, junior Scott Jones and sophomore Chris Hayes.

"We didn't put many balls in the back of the net," Smith said, "but we did well, though they were only 25-minute, half games. I was moving

There are benefits to weight training

Dear Myrna: I've been reading your column for a few years now. You haven't written much about weight training. I am 36 years old and have been weight training for six months. I love it. Can you list the benefits of weight training?

Weight training is becoming increasingly popular, especially for men between the ages of 25 and 40.

The typical benefits of weight training are:

- muscle strength;
- muscle endurance and tone;
- muscle mass (hypertrophy);
- muscle enzyme levels;
- speed and power.

You will help:

- rehabilitate injuries;
- improve function of respiratory and cardiocirculatory system;
- prevent injuries.

A positive side benefit of weight training is it will improve your appearance and sense of self-image. Because of the feeling of well-being you get, your mental outlook also will improve.

Studies show through exercise in general, you can become a better, all-around successful person.

(Myrna Partrich, co-owner of The Workout Company of Bloomfield Township, is happy to answer any questions readers may have regarding exercise. Send your questions to: Sports Department, Myrna Partrich, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham 48009.)

Fall leagues in need of bowlers

THIS IS KICK-OFF time for the fall winter league season as Labor Day approaches. Some of the league action already has begun, while many start after the holiday weekend. Although many of the teams are set, there are openings for individuals and whole teams to join many of the bowling leagues around town. With the recent closings of Strikes & Spare in Bloomfield Township and Southland, it has become necessary for some bowlers to find a new house.

This also has an effect as there may be some re-alignments of time slots in order to accommodate more teams in a few of the houses where the displaced bowlers have moved. The same scenario happens every year. There are always some leagues that need a few more bowlers and some bowlers looking for a place to go. There are some very competitive classic leagues and senior house leagues where the best shooters can lock horns weekly.

Some of the action in the top leagues is similar to what you can see watching the pro bowlers on television on Saturday afternoons. Caution: Do not join the leagues unless you are really good.

There are daytime leagues for the ladies who are fortunate enough to have the time and the inclination to join a morning or afternoon league. Some bowling centers even have free baby-sitting. There are all kinds of kids bowling, with most houses set up for Saturdays and some offering weekdays after school. The little ones can start out with bumper bowling for ages 2-7 and go on to bigger and better things like the youth traveling leagues. Some of the inequalities of bowling are the variety of competition at all levels of skill for both sexes.

There are plenty of very good mixed leagues in this area and most will welcome new couples either as regulars or to just come in and sub. Mixed leagues are usually more fun and yet they can still be very competitive. There are some mixed leagues which meet every other week and this makes it easier for those couples who still like to be able to get away for an occasional mini-vacation.

Many organizations have their own bowling leagues. I know of some people who have joined the organization just to see they could bowl with them. Many companies have their own leagues. Check it out: this could be your next big promotion. The senior citizens are a very active and significant part of the bowling scene, and their numbers are constantly growing as people are living longer and healthier lives.

I would like to think the sport of bowling also has an effect on longevity, as it can help keep the seniors active and competitive. There are some amazing men and women in their 70s and 80s rolling up those scores. There are even organized leagues for the blind, the physically impaired and the retarded. Some of the local communities and the high schools are now starting to get organized for open tournament competition. Last season more than 40 high schools competed in the high school tournament and it will be bigger this season as interest grows.

10-pin alley

• Woodland Lanes on Plymouth Road in Livonia offers a wide variety of competition with several openings available. For men bowlers, the Monday night junior house starts Sept. 11 with a 9:30 p.m. time slot. The senior house league bowls each Thursday at 9:30 p.m. starting Aug. 31. There are also openings for the women in the Monday 9:30 p.m. Keglerettes with any average welcome. Tuesday 9:30 p.m. Alley Cats with four girls to a team and the Wednesday 9:30 p.m. Starlights. The mixed league offerings are Wednesday Mixers at 9:30 p.m., two couples to a team, and there is a Sunday 8:30 p.m. mixed foursome which bowls every other week. There is a family foursome bowling every other Sunday at 1 p.m. with a format of two adults, two children. For further details, call Woodland Lanes at 522-4315.

• Beech Lanes on Beech Daly in Redford has openings for the ladies in the Football Widows league which goes into action Monday nights at 8:30 p.m. Beech Lanes is also running a special deal all this week, one free game of bowling to anyone who comes in, doors open at noon each day. If you are not yet a bowler and want to try, remember, balls and shoes are right there for you. For further information, call Beech Lanes at 531-3800.

The Over-50 mixed league invites you to join its 9:30 a.m. Tuesday league starting Sept. 5 at Plymouth Bowl. To join the established 22-team league, contact Dick Deeley at 427-9454.

• Super Bowl on Ford Road in Canton has openings in the Monday men's league at 9:30 p.m. This is a five-man team format with team averages at 775-9000. Ladies are invited to come in for a 12:45 Monday Ladies trio league. The ladies Tuesday 9:30 p.m. trio league also has a need for a few bowlers. The mixed leagues have openings on Fridays at 6:30 p.m. with five to a team and Sundays at 3:30 p.m. for foursomes.

• Westland Bowl on Wayne Road has openings for two teams in the westside senior house league on Wednesdays at 6:30 p.m. with five-man teams average-ing between 950 and 1,025. The Sunday sleepers needs teams for Sundays at 10 a.m. with an 850 to 950 team average, nobody over a 201 average the past three years. The league starts Aug. 27.

• The Battle of the Sexes at a Tuesday 9:30 p.m. time slot needs men's and women's teams, four on a team. The men and women bowl against each other every other week, separate standings for men and women. The Wednesday 9:30 men's league can use more bowlers to compete for a $5,000 prize four on a team. Each player must have averaged under 195 the past season.

• The Thursday 175 & Under league bowls at 9:30 p.m. with four on a team. The Monday night bowlerettes needs teams and individuals for a 9:30 p.m. time slot. Inquire at Westland Bowl for more details. The Thursday night Pinsters is a ladies league with a 9:30 p.m. time slot and four bowlers per team. There are openings for more bowlers in the Monday morning men's league with four on a team starting at 10 a.m. the Tuesday Morning Coffee and Donuts at 9:15 a.m. the Wednesday a.m. trio at 9:30 a.m. Dave's Darlings Wednesdays at 12:45 p.m. and the Monday senior citizens league with a 12:30 p.m. starting time. There are openings in the Las Vegas League Thursdays at 9:30 p.m. and Sundays at 9 p.m. All bowlers mixed four on a team. For information on Super Bowl Leagues, call 459-6070.

• Mayflower Lanes on Plymouth Road in Redford has some openings on the Tuesday men's league at 6 p.m. with four-man teams from 590 to 700 in averages and the Thursday men's league starting at 6:30 with five-man teams averaging from 870 to 950. The Sunday mixed league bowls at 6 p.m. and has openings for all levels of ability with a wide-range in age groupings. The Tuesday men's league started with lots of good bowling already with Hector Ortega leading the way with a 246 game and 643 series. Dave Shoemaker rolled a 245 game and Tom Mills a 222 with a 610 series.

• Congratulations to area bowlers who recently have made news nationally. Jeri Toner of Redford came in third in the recent pro-am during the ladies pro bowlers tour at Satellite Bowl. Jeri rolled 173-256-298 in the no-tap format, but got no help at all from the pros. Jeri has improved with the help of Lou Brightman.

Craig Demeo of Westland won the $2,000 prize for coming in first in the Domino's Pizza Mid-States Masters held in Pontiac. Demeo recorded a four-game series of 265-244-227-158 to win the double-elimination format.

Canton's Tony Stupcak Jr. carried a 201.3 average in winning the men's division. In doing so, Stupcak qualified for the Team USA 1990, along with some others nationwide. Stupcak is the only Michigan resident on the team.

SOCCER CELEB

James Ramsay of Plymouth was one of 1,040 American youth soccer players who toured Europe this summer. Ramsay, a forward for the Michigan Under-16 Select team, was chosen to play for one of four TEAMS/USA Elite ballclubs that toured the Soviet Union.

The team spent seven days in the Soviet Union, training with Soviet coaches at the Minsk Training Center and playing 11 matches against premier Soviet youth soccer teams.

"Players were selected for an Elite team based on their leadership qualities on and off the field, overall attitude and player ability," said Mark Huck, executive director of TEAMS/USA.

The American Elite teams, considered to be the underdog against their European and Soviet opponents, compiled an impressive record of 5-5-1.

"The TEAMS USA Elite team made its finest showing ever in the Soviet Union and deserves a lot of credit for its drive and determination to win," said Glen Tourville, Elite Team coach and regional director for TEAMS USA.

The TEAMS USA European Select Youth Soccer Tour is held annually and lasts approximately one month. Teams are entered in several sports shorts

prestigious cup competitions such as the Gothia Cup in Sweden, the Dana Cup in Denmark and the Holland Cup in Holland. The best players are then selected to play for an Elite team in the Soviet Union.

TEAMS USA is holding national tryouts for the 1990 tour. For information call 1-800-TEAM-USA.

BADMINTON CLUB

A no-fee badminton club will begin its 1989 fall season on Tuesday, Oct. 3, at Plymouth West School at the corner of Sheldon and Ann Arbor Trail roads. The club meets every Tuesday from 8:15 to 10 p.m. in the gymnasium.

The standard of play varies from intermediate through advanced, but beginners who have only previously played the game in the yard will be welcome. Coaching is available. Players must bring their own rackets.

Interested players should call Kit Henderson at 474-4992 during office hours or attend any of the Tuesday sessions.

Ryan Johnson returns to strong safety, Kowalski is slated to double

"I'm not going to say we can beat Farmington Harrison, but this is the type of team that can be in the middle of the pack or right at the top. It's up to them."

Pat Bowie, taking a handoff from Ryan Johnson last season, was Salem's leading rusher with 613 yards from the fullback position. The 5-foot-9, 210-pound senior will get the tough yards inside once again in the triple-option wishbone attack.

district championship last spring. The boys, who upset Plymouth Salem and won a district a year ago, begin the season Saturday when the Chiefs play Portage Central at 10 a.m. in the annual Plymouth Invitational.

"SOME OF THEM are definitely eager to play," Smith said. "They're good-sized kids. Hopefully, they can control the ball."

The forward line is led by senior Daryl Magreta, an All-Western Division selection a year ago. Another senior who started last year, Eric Miller, returns as does senior Dan

It shouldn't take Smith long to acquaint himself with the Western Lakes Activities Association boys soccer. Like the girls side, the same teams seem to dominate. Canton plays in the Western Division of the W.L.A.A.

"Stevenson (Lakes Division) and Churchill (Western) still are predominant favorites, and Plymouth Salem (Lakes) is tough, too," Smith said.

"It seems Salem has it all figured out. They want to beat Stevenson and then play Churchill for the league title. I don't like to make predictions like that. It's always tough to back them up."

Whether it's Madison Square Garden or Wayne County Fairgrounds, professional wrestling draws the same reaction.

small time WRESTLING

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

No Hulkster or Andre the Giant. No multi-colored light shows. This can't be professional wrestling as seen on television, can it?

Heck no. This is 'rassling.' Sorry, no Piper's Pit, but there is a Porta John. No smokey haze, either. Just the dust from the dirt of field. Putrid cigar smell is replaced by the fragrance of cow manure.

Where there's no Mean Gene or Jessie the Body, there's Ken from Zak's Video. ("Could you mention us in your story?," asked Ken, holding a camera at ringside.)

Wayne County Fairgrounds is not exactly Madison Square Garden, more like Farmer Fred's Garden. But when the bell rings, it's no holds barred.

On this night, Midwest All-Pro Wrestling is presenting a card with the likes of the Flying Tigers, the Riot Squad, Rick O'Toole, Cowboy Woody Lee, Irish Mickey Doyle and, yes, the legend from Benton Harbor, the man who chased the original Ayatollah of the Motorola, The Sheik, across the country — Bobo Brazil.

The crowd is a mixture of hardcore wrestling fans and fairgoers who took a wrong turn from the midway.

"BITE 'EM, bite 'em!" screams a young girl as Cowboy Woody Lee seems to have his hands full with Rick O'Toole.

"Everytime they see it on TV, they get like this," said her mother, shaking her head.

This is a scaled down version from the World Wrestling Federation (WWF) or the National Wrestling Alliance (NWA). The reaction, though, it draws from the audience is apparently the same.

Otherwise the guy who emerges from the van in his dark red trunks and boots would hang up the wrestling trunks. But Bobo Brazil is still going strong.

Through the '50s, '60s, '70s and early '80s, Bobo Brazil chased a Middle East nemesis through the East, South, Midwest and West. Bouts between The Sheik and Bobo used to regularly draw sellout crowds at Cobo Arena.

"The Sheik was a very, very mean man," said Bobo, with a furrowed brow of seriousness. "You had to keep your eyes on him at all time."

The Sheik has since folded his turban, but Bobo goes "Cocobutting" along. He limits his wrestling to three nights a week, recently turning down a trip to Japan.

"I'm afraid of those planes; the damn things keep crashing," he said.

Those from Bobo's era seem to be either dead or retired.

● Pampero Firpo: "He's retired and living in San Jose."

● Johnny Valentine: "He's living in Texas. He was badly hurt in a plane crash."

● BULL CURRY: "He passed away about two years ago. I'm not sure what he died from. I think it was a heart attack."

● Cowboy Tex McKenzie: "He's retired and living in Wyoming."

● The Mighty Igor: "I think he's retired."

● Luis Martinez: "I don't know what Louie's been up to."

● Lord Athal Layton: "He passed away, too."

● The Sheik: "I don't know where the hell he's living."

OK, so much for old acquaintances. The recent boom in professional wrestling, especially on television, has given guys like Bobo Brazil "a piece of the action."

In his prime, he made around $250,000 a year. The take is considerably less, today.

"I wrestled all my life. I saved some money," he said. "Wrestling has been very good to me. I love it. I wrestle just as hard at places like this as I did at Madison Square Garden, Joe Louis Arena or Cobo Arena."

Behind Bobo is a man who was once on the receiving end of one of his "Cocobutts" (a "Cocobutt" is performed when Bobo smashes his forehead into an opponent's melon). Johnny Storm, who makes up one-half of the tag-team The Flying Tigers, went against Brazil in only the third match of his career.

MMA has tradition and great location

By Iris Sanderson Jones
contributing travel editor

Q: My Dad was in the Marines and he wants me to go to military school. He says it's my choice, so I want to look into it. I am a good student, entering 11th grade this fall, and I have a year to make up my mind. Since you've written about south Texas, maybe you know something about the Marine Military Academy there?

A: I met a couple of Michigan students when I visited the Marine Military Academy (MMA) on a tour of the Rio Grande Valley last winter. It's in Harlingen, Texas, on the border of Mexico. Tourists go to Harlingen to visit the Confederate Air Force Museum and to see the daily noon parade at the academy.

The Academy's landmark is the Iwo Jima Monument, a 90-foot-high Marine memorial, showing four Marines raising the U.S. flag over Iwo Jima during World War II. The original bronze statue is in Arlington National Cemetery in Washington, D.C.

Sculptor Felix de Weldon gave his original molds to the Marine Academy because MMA is apparently the only private non-profit school in the world that is patterned after the spirit and tradition of the U.S. Marines. And for another good reason that might interest you — a nice warm climate.

There are 380 cadets in grades nine through 12 and in one post-graduate year at the academy. A high percentage go on to either the U.S. Naval Academy or another good college of their choice.

Those are just statistics. For the real scoop, listen to Chad McComb of Battle Creek, who left Penfield High School at the end of his sophomore year to go to the Marine Military Academy in Harlingen.

"My parents read an article about the academy and I decided to try a two-week summer school program here. It was pretty rough, all discipline. I decided to sign up anyway, and found the regular school year was not as tough as summer school."

MOVING PICTURES

Gene Hackman plays Sgt. John J. 'Dad' Gurnea and Joanna Cassidy his ex-wife Eileen in Orion Pictures new release, "The Package."

Summer season winds down with 'Package,' 'Millenium'

As the summer season winds down, film openings slack off. There's just two new movies this week, Gene Hackman in "The Package" and Kris Kristofferson in "Millenium." The coming weeks don't promise much more as distributors hold back new products, rightfully figuring that everyone's caught up in the back-to-school rush.

"Millenium" is a sci-fi thriller featuring Kris Kristofferson as a government investigator at the site of an airline crash. He discovers a number of unusual clues. "Millenium" also stars Cheryl Ladd and Daniel J. Travanti. The scenario was adapted by John Varley from his book of the same title. Michael Anderson directed for Twentieth Century-Fox.

Gene Hackman, Hollywood's busiest male lead, is back again, this time as a career military man escorting a prisoner back to the States from Russia in "The Package." Look what glasnost has done for us.

Of course it's not that simple and Hackman gets caught up in all sorts of shady goings-on. Joanna Cassidy and Tommy Lee Jones also appear in this Orion release directed by Andrew Davis.

STILL PLAYING:

"The Abyss" (D-) (PG-13) 135 minutes. Despite excellent underwater sequences, this muddled and murky sci-fi sea saga sinks.

'The Diz' does it in Cuba

By John Monaghan
special writer

In the mid-1940s, jazz trumpeter Dizzy Gillespie, along with Charlie Parker and Thelonius Monk, ushered in a bright new form of music — bebop. While his contemporaries were plagued by problems, Diz never seemed to take the world too seriously — and lived to talk about it.

Diz, "the clown prince of jazz," is up to his old tricks in a new documentary, "A Night in Havana: Dizzy Gillespie in Cuba." It screens this weekend and next at the downtown Tele-Arts Theatre.

The jazz film coincides with the Montreux-Detroit Jazz Festival, happening this Labor Day weekend.

"A Night in Havana" begins with Dizzy recounting for the 1,000th time well-worn anecdotes about Charlie Parker, his curved trumpet and the trademark that his cheeks puff out when he plays.

The Diz blows through Cuba for the 1985 Havana Jazz Festival. Afro-Cuban drummer Chano Pozo was a vital part of his sound in the late '40s. Despite Poz's untimely death after just two years with the band, the Latin influence has remained strong in Dizzy Gillespie's sound.

Now, he teams with a group of excellent Cuban musicians, including trumpeter Arturo Sandoval and pianist Gonzalo Rubalcaba. The finale includes a solo-filled version of "A Night in Tunisia."

SCATTERED IN between, Dizzy surveys the crumbling beauty of Havana, smokes large stogies, mugs for the camera with Cuban children and even schmoozes with dictator Fidel Castor.

Some have criticized the film for glorifying a fascist regime that has rarely looked favorably on self-expression, including that practiced by jazz musicians.

But "A Night in Havana" isn't about politics. Dizzy Gillespie, the musical ambassador, brings to this party only his decades-spanning love affair with the jazz trumpet.

"The trumpet just sits there, surrounded in luxury," he says slowly, eyeing the red velvet-lined horn case. "It just sits there, waiting to mess someone up."

As the title suggests, "Saxophone Colossus" is a worshipful look at saxophonist Sonny Rollins. He will be playing at the jazz festival this weekend.

Though unavailable for screening, the 1986 concert film, recorded in New York and Japan, has at least one amazing sequence. Rollins falls off a tiny stage, injures his back, but still wails from a prostrate position for almost a half hour.

VIDEO VIEWING

Foreign films fans are in for a major treat Thursday, Aug. 31, when Orion Home Video releases their "International 4 Star Film Festival" — four noted titles by renowned filmmakers Eric Rohmer, Wim Wenders, Jovan Acin and Marco Bellocchio.

In common, all four have yellow English sub-titles with each letter effectively bordered in black for easy reading. They don't, however, have any common ground in the ratings. Of course, there's no G rating, but Rohmer's "Boyfriends and Girlfriends" is PG, Wenders' "Wings of Desire" PG-13, Acin's "Hey Babu Riba" R and Bellocchio's "Devil in the Flesh" available in both R and X-rated versions.

All are in color although "Wings of Desire" has some black and white sequences.

"Hey Babu Riba" wasn't available for screening. It's a Serbo-Croatian film about four teens from Belgrade who love American movies, jazz and a girl called Esther.

X-rated films have the reputation of being either very violent or very sexy — usually the latter — but often that's just in the advertisements, particularly the sexuality. "Devil in the Flesh" is billed as the "sizzling erotic thriller based on the classic novel that shocked Paris."

IT'S HARD TO imagine anything in this film was considered erotic or shocking. There's a good deal of frontal nudity as the heroine tires of waiting for her terrorist boyfriend's trial to finish. To alleviate her boredom, she takes up with a nice young student. Hardly erotic, just frontal nudity with some suggestions of love-making.

David Hirsch, as the new host of USA Network's "American Bandstand," has come a long way for the 11-year-old, would-be disc jockey in the homemade deejay studio of a friend's basement.

He 'tunes in' to teens as the new Dick Clark

By Connie Bodi
special writer

Ever wondered what it would be like to step into the shoes of a legend? Former Birmingham and West Bloomfield resident David Hirsch knows, and the shoes he's filling happen to be "something in a Dick Clark."

After 33 years on the American Bandstand stage, Clark, known as the "world's oldest living teenager," has chosen his successor.

As the new host of USA Network's "American Bandstand," Hirsch made what seems to be a natural progression, starting as an 11-year-old, would-be disc jockey in the homemade deejay studio of a friend's basement. Now 26, Hirsch has been handed the microphone off of America's foremost rock'n'roll podium. Quite literally, that's how it happened.

A graduate of Michigan State University, Hirsch worked at Ross Roy Advertising, biding his time on his road to California.

"All my friends were slowly moving out there, and I knew I wanted to go," Hirsch said. "I took a job with a small sales training company that needed to open an office on the West Coast, and it was just great timing."

Timing, according to Hirsch, plays a major role for anyone trying to make it big in L.A.

"There's people with true talent who just never get anywhere," Hirsch said. "It has a lot to do with timing. It's not just that you go out, and you're the best at something, and you get the job because you're the best."

"You can be poised for greatness, but it's not going to happen unless you know the right people."

While merely admiring the limelight in L.A., Hirsch studied improvisational comedy with a group known as The Groundling and struggled as a copywriting freelancer to pay the bills.

ALTHOUGH HIRSCH was interested in being in front of the camera rather than behind the scenes, he felt he was falling into the Hollywood-bred insecurity of "nothing's happening."

Hirsch said he went through four months of waking up and making a list of "meaningful things" to do each day, waiting for that first break.

"In the meantime," Hirsch said, "I started writing a screenplay for a friend. She had done a first draft on it and wanted me to inject some humor into it."

"A good friend of hers worked at Dick Clark Productions in Burbank and knew that I was interested in comedy and that I wanted to perform," he added.

And so the winning combination of timing and knowing the right people started spinning into play.

"They were hiring four young writers to be segment producers on this new show that Dick Clark was producing called 'Camp Midnight,'" Hirsch said. "They wanted young people to get their first break and write this late night show."

That break came in the form of the "Camp Midnight" job for Hirsch, as it did for three other up-and-comers — Tim Maile, Warren Bell and Tim Conway Jr.

Content for the time being, Hirsch felt that this was the ultimate job.

"The four of us would sit around in this big office with basketball nets and dart boards, and crazy stuff over the walls, and we'd just laugh all day," he said. "We'd think up funny ideas, and we'd just keep laughing."

"But this was a real job. We learned everything. We edited pieces, we wrote pieces, produced pieces. We even did the talent interviews. It was our show, we did it all."

HIRSCH WAS having too much fun to stop and consider what his next progression should — or could — be.

After 26 weeks, however, "Camp Midnight's" option was not renewed, and the show was canceled. And that's when the big break came in, according to Hirsch.

Dick Clark, meanwhile, had decided that he would retire as host of "American Bandstand" before 1990. With the timing factor on Hirsch's side, he felt he was approached for the audition simply because he already worked at Dick Clark Productions, a company that has been very successful in putting a lot of stock in fresh talent and young energy.

While most of the comedy writers and talent from "Camp Midnight" spun off to new or replacement shows, "American Bandstand" executive producer Larry Kline asked Hirsch to audition as Clark's replacement.

Within one week, Hirsch heard about, auditioned for and landed the opening at the top of Dick Clark's rock'n'roll empire. Hirsch's career took off faster than a record played at 78 rpm.

The producers at Dick Clark Productions felt it was time to revamp the format of the show. Along with the move from network to cable television came the move outside the studio.

David Hirsch's "American Bandstand" is taped outdoors on the Universal Studios Tour, giving the show more of a "club feel." The classic podium Dick Clark used to stand behind is in the Smithsonian Institute. As if to invite his audience to stroll with him in and around the crowds, Hirsch interacts more with the dancers and talks with people on the tour.

"IT'S GREAT for people to see an actual show being taped, especially Bandstand," he said. "It's fun because everybody, some way or another, has watched Bandstand or danced on it at sometime in their life."

But you don't mess with something that's worked for 33 years, according to Hirsch. In keeping with tradition, "American Bandstand" can still be seen in its Saturday noon timeslot. Viewers can also tune in to see regular features such as Rate-A-Record, Roll Call and Spotlight Dance.

So now Hirsch's Orchard Lake Middle School pals get to see him seated next to Joan Rivers on "Hollywood Squares" or watch him on "Phil Donahue," remembering the sometimes funny, always well-liked guy who played the drums with his KISS-influenced band at an eighth grade dance.

Complete with the trademark KISS makeup, the band's music wasn't very tight, but Hirsch and the rest of the novice musicians still gave their audience what they wanted to hear.

Hanging on to this memory, Hirsch feels, is the basis of what has made Dick Clark successful.

"He's timeless," Hirsch said. "I believe the way he stays young is by keeping in touch with young people. That's totally the key. He keeps himself on a level with teenagers, because there's nothing like being a teenager. That's when everything kind of happens."

How does he handle the fame that comes along with receiving his first big, Hollywood break at 26? Hirsch said he just has to laugh it all off.

"Some people say, 'Hey, aren't you the new Dick Clark?' And I say, 'No, I'm the old David Hirsch.'"

RIGHTEOUS BROTHERS ANTHOLOGY (1962-74)

— Righteous Brothers

As the title implies, the Righteous Brothers recording career was rather lengthy — but their days as a first rate rock attraction were brief. The blue-eyed soul of Bill Medley and Bobby Hatfield reigned only from the end of 1964 to mid-1966.

With this anthology, re-issue master Rhino Records puts the duo's entire oeuvre out for public display. It's clearly more than the public needs — or even wants — to hear. But there are a few nice surprises.

Those who believe the cream of the duo's musical crop came during their mid-1960s association with mad genius producer Phil Spector might be surprised to find that earlier work — from a number of albums recorded for tiny Moonlight Records — holds up surprisingly well.

Their version of "Little Latin Lupe Lu," for instance, inspired local hero Mitch Ryder to get his Detroit Wheels a-rolling. Even better is "Justine," a wild raver that sounds like a duet between Ray Charles and Little Richard. This is derivative stuff to be sure, but enjoyable nonetheless.

These non-relatives found their voice, however, during their 1964-5 stay on Spector's Philles Records. "You've Lost That Lovin' Feeling" needs no introduction, but the semi-obscure "Just Once in My Life" packs at least an equal emotional punch. "(You're My) Soul and Inspiration," a hit produced without Spector, is also here.

The Brothers' melodramatic style, however, too often drifted toward banality. This is apparent even on some of the early material — "White Cliffs of Dover" is an example — but it mars almost all the material they released after parting company with Spector.

"Lovin' Feeling" is a taste of heaven. "Rock and Roll Heaven," their 1974 "comeback," on the other hand, is contrived as hell.

— Died Pretty

"Lost" is the debut release on RCA-distributed Beggar's Banquet from this Australian band and it's the band's second LP. The first was released in 1986 on the Citadel Label called "Free Dirt."

The founding members, vocalist Ronald S. Peno and guitarist Brett Myers, prefer their mutual interest in 1970s New York music such as The Beatles, Suicide and Television, and claim that this interest brought them together.

Well, they are still cultivating the music and sound of that period but unfortunately, at a stand far below those bands named as their influences.

The first noticeable feature of this LP is the quality, or lack thereof, of the recording. They may have deliberately attempted to re-created the feel of the "do-it-yourself" ethic of those garage-band days. But these days it is possible to control that spirit and record in a studio of some quality.

The sound on this LP approximates that of a band starting out, with a very limited budget, trying to make do with what they can. Either Beggar's Banquet is very cheap or the band was misled by their producer.

The second noticeable feature of "lost" is the extremely busy and distracting drumming of Chris Welsh and the cheap sound of the K mart keyboards. It is only after they tone down the drummer and turn the keyboards way down in the mix do they produce anything of interest.

Vocalist Ronald S. Peno sings in the style of a Dylan or a Petty, with his nasal aggressive attack, but only on one occasion does the quality of the songwriting approach anything above mediocre. This is on the gentle, acoustic, bass-driven, "One Day," where, for once, they produce a melody strong enough to stand by itself.

On the song, "Free Dirt," they get some help from the female vocals of "Astrid Munday" and this provides a necessary distraction worthy of mention.

But that's it.

BAD ENGLISH

— Bad English

Guitarist Neal Schon and keyboardist Jonathon Cain have put their Journey days behind them — and Cain has brought John Waite along for the ride (they've been friends since they were Babes). Add newcomers Ricky Phillips on bass and Deen Castonovo on drums and you have Bad English.

Given the overwhelming qualities of Waite's last few solo releases (the last dog aptly titled "Rover's Return") and Journey's finale "Raised on Radio," this album may not have arrived with much in the way of expectations.

However, all inconsistencies aside, the group's self-titled debut is a highly listenable effort on the majority of tracks (and infinitely more listenable than any of the aforementioned releases).

Things get off to a questionable start on "Best of What I Got," a farce that's similar in more than a few spots to Van Hagar's "Best of Both Worlds" (off "1984"). And to top it off, Waite opens the track with a trademark "Oh Yeah."

Things get better on "Heaven Is a Little Word," and they leave the impression that the band's collective imaginations (can't you hear Tiger Claws and the PMRC breathing a sigh of relief?) "Possession" is the best of the album's three ballads and could have potential as a future single.

"Forget Me Not," the current single, is a rollicking piece that displays Schon at his finger-picking good, better and best, with Cain not far behind.

By the time the listeners reaches side two most of this album's best moments are already past, and inconsistent filler makes a welcome (but not totally unexpected) appearance. It's a sorry thought when you realize a song like "The Paradise One" is an understated gem.

All in all, Waite fans will realize that he's branching out and again, Journey fans will find out what became of the member once known as the fan, it isn't clear whether the English will fly.

Clubs: A singles' option

Dear Barbara,

As an active single person, I read your column with great interest as to alternative ways that single men and women can meet.

It's true when many people are out of school or having gone through a divorce, they find it difficult to meet new people.

You mentioned a dating service as a good alternative way for people to meet, but unfortunately, these services do not come cheap and there is no guarantee of finding Mr./Miss Right. However, there are a great number of ways for single people to meet other than these services or going to the single bars.

One of the better ways is a singles group. Many groups are active and have a good balance of activities, such as volleyball, softball, lectures, field trips, concerts, etc. The big advantage is you can get to know someone at your own pace and you don't feel like you're in a "pick-up joint." Ward Church in Livonia has two excellent singles groups that are highly recommended.

Also there is a very large amount of singles dances that take place on a weekly basis. The Observer has a nice listing of the various organizations holding a dance. This gives the single person a chance for a night out that is inexpensive.

The cover to most of the dances is around $4, with a drink around $2, and there is a good opportunity to meet and socialize with people from all walks of life without the high pressure that you might feel in a bar.

So, if the single person has the motivation, there are some good alternatives to meet Mr./Miss Right.

Thanks,
D.L.K.

Dear D.L.K.,

Thanks for your time in answering my request to singles for more ideas about meeting each other. I have seen listings of singles events and wondered how successful they were.

During a recent talk show on this subject, I asked four single people if they had attended events listed in singles columns. I was disappointed to hear that none had.

I am happy to hear from you that others are taking advantage of community services that can help them.

The four singles in the discussion did agree that being open to new experiences is a most important attribute in being a successful single. They stressed the importance of being "out there." They said that although it seems obvious that you cannot meet people at home, many complaining singles do just that.

Thank you again for your upbeat, optimistic comments.

When wrestling is really 'rassling

"I couldn't believe I was in the ring with the guy I grew up watching on TV," said Storm, who added that he and his partner, Leaping Larry Wilson, come from non-existent place called "Little Chicago."

"I forgot all my moves. He gave me the cocobutt and I was out."

THE FLYING Tigers are similar to other independent wrestlers. They would like to latch on with WWF or NWA. The tag-team already has made the first step, adding their own version of Elizabeth, a black spandex-clad woman named Ilena the Wasp. That is in Wasp the bee, not white, Anglo-Saxon, Protestant.

The Flying Tigers said they make roughly $500-$600 a week. But they can log anywhere from 500 to 2,000 miles a week in their car. Their travel itinerary includes stops in such less than bustling metropolis as Cornuna, Belleville and Bad Axe.

"I like the sound of that," Storm said, "Bad Axe."

The guy running the show is smoking a cigar. He takes the stogie out long enough to talk about his duties with Midwest All-Pro Wrestling, which is based in New Baltimore.

"I'm the founder, president, promoter and secretary . . . You name it, I'm it," said bald-headed guy with a Fu Manchu mustache, who is known as Iron Mike Anthony.

Anthony said his organization specializes in fund-raisers. The venues for the bouts include high school gymnasiums, small auditoriums, or in this case, a fairground.

Wherever, whatever the cause, wrestling fans flock. Tom Altschuler of Redford stands by the wrestler's entrance with a yellow folder. He asks he could speak to one of the wrestlers.

"I want to ask him about Dino Bravo," he said. "I want to know if this is the same Dino Bravo."

He opens the folder to reveal a wrestling program from a card in Minneapolis. The date on the program is Oct. 27, 1957. The action in the ring distracts his attention.

DENNY KASS and Irish Mickey Doyle are suddenly rolling around in the dirt outside the ring. Doyle picks up a "No Trespassing" sign (we interrupt this story for an observational question: Why in the heck would a "No Trespassing" sign by lying near ringside? Just asking) and smacks Kass across the back with it.

Unfinished, Doyle finds a chair (there always seems to be one handy at a wrestling match) and promptly brings it over Kass' head. A mere mortal would be dead, but Kass keeps on scrapping. The two pound one another all the way back behind the fence where other wrestlers are congregated. Match over.

Through the '50s, '60s, '70s and early '80s, Bobo Brazil was drawing sellout crowds at places like Cobo Hall in Detroit.

"If items continue to fly into the ring, we'll have to discontinue the matches," says the ring announcer in a crackling noise that sounds more like a toaster being dropped into the bathtub than a P.A. system.

Undaunted, the fans begin to chant "Bald Headed Geeks!" as Iron Mike Anthony and Mad Max enter the ring. If they put their heads together, they'd be able to moon the crowd.

Ilena the Wasp carries on the chant as The Flying Tigers leap into the ring. The action is furious, perhaps providing the best match of the night.

Jeanette and Jennifer Hill, both 15, think so. Wrestling fans, the identical twins coo in unison when asked about their favorite: "Ultimate Warrior."

Asked to assess this night's wrestlers, they come to agreement. "Not bad," said one. "I think some of them are pretty good."

Rio Grande Valley has plenty to see

THERE'S A seven-week plebe system when the discipline is really strict — no radio, television or liberty. All you do is study, march, shine your shoes and your brass. You start gaining rank by performance and then you get all those things back.

"A person has to have a lot of motivation, has to really want to come here, or it doesn't work. If parents send you here against your will it has exactly the opposite effect to what they want."

McComb went to the academy for one year and went on to university. Chris Mann of Marshall went to the Marine Military Academy because it would help him to get into the naval academy at Annapolis, Md. His day was literally programmed from the moment he got up until the moment he went to bed at night.

"In some ways classes are easier at the academy because they make you study a certain time every night. I don't know whether I'd like it for several years, but it's good for me for one year."

"You learn to live by the clock."

There's absolutely no free time. You squeeze time in between getting your uniform ready and cleaning your room. You learn how to deal with different people, how you can be popular without being nice about everything.

Only you can decide whether a military school is right for you. It sounds like your father was wise to leave the decision up to you, instead of following the too-popular idea that "military school will whip my son into shape."

All MMA seniors take the Scholastic Aptitude Test and their scores are higher than the national average.

The students I talked to made this suggestion: Ask your parents to let you go and visit the school before you decide. Sounds like a great way to get a couple of days in the sun.

WHAT ELSE IS there to do in the area? There are three or four towns strung along the Rio Grande Valley, and most of them have bridges across the river to Mexico. Locals spend a lot of time eating, shopping and playing in the Mexican border cities.

VIDEO VIEWING

It's probably heresy in some quarters, but Wim Wenders' "Wings of Desire" didn't do it for me. In fact, even at fast forward, I was bored. But what do I know, it won best director honors at the 40th Cannes Film Festival.

It does have an interesting premise, an angel wants to be human in order to experience meaning, but the ways in which Wenders works out that idea lack cinematic force. For the most part, "Wings of Desire" is poetic meditation on existence and what it means to be human.

NOT ALL TALKY films, however, suffer from dullness. Eric Rohmer's latest parable on love, "Boyfriends and Girlfriends," is a delightful discussion of human foibles and the problems and process of love.

Despite the relative lack of physical action in this charming film, there are many nice touches, warm feelings about the nature of being human. These are, indeed, rich images that last.

"Boyfriends and Girlfriend" is surprisingly engaging given its lack of physical action.

organizing Dorothy Lehmkuhl

Q. I am disorganized at the office and it is affecting my work. I am very good at tackling the big projects and excel at them. However, the little items and paperwork keep piling up and start getting in the way. Can you help me?

A. A key to your problem may be the way you refer to "big" versus "little" work. You seem to assign more importance to "big projects" while you view the "little items and paperwork" as unimportant pests that have no right to be there.

In fact, those little items are the cogs on the wheels that keep your job moving smoothly. If you don't maintain the vital components of machinery it won't function properly and neither will your job. Those little bits are integral to your career's survival and should be viewed as equally important as the "big" stuff.

Imagine a large contractor who is only concerned with moving hundreds of tons of dirt. If he ignores the oil, tires and other maintenance of his equipment, he could suddenly find his expensive machinery and workers idled. Or imagine a home where everything else is considered more important than cleaning up the kitchen. Those dishes pile up ever so quickly; they don't take long when they are fresh, but if they are left... the same is true at work. It is imperative that you schedule maintenance time every working day to handle what you consider the pesky stuff.

One reason paper accumulates is a lack of on-the-spot decision making. Rather than procrastinating and then having to shuffle through stacks repeatedly, learn the rule "touch it once." Perhaps half the papers on your desk should have been tossed immediately upon receipt and the rest handled right away.

At least place papers in an appropriate slot for action later - a dictation file, filing box or route to others. Take appropriate action as it arrives and then schedule time to do your filing, dictation and reading at specific times daily. Leaving it in a jumble is self defeating.

One advantage of touching it once is maintaining a clear desk. This frees your mind to concentrate on the "big projects" without feeling weighed down by mountains of papers. The other reward is the time-saving ability to find what you need when you need it instead of having to dig through piles of debris several times a day.

Interior design seminar planned

Michigan Design Center of Troy, normally closed to the public, will serve as a backdrop for Schoolcraft College's "Design Directions '89," a comprehensive seminar on interiors to be held 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Friday, Oct. 13.

Four prominent designers will share their expertise and offer advice on subjects all interior design enthusiasts can relate to, whether their taste is traditional, contemporary, country or eclectic. The cost is $55, including luncheon.

An additional feature of "Design Directions '89" is a specially guided tour of the Design Center for all participants. The facility annually serves a buying market of more than eight million professionals from Michigan, Indiana, Ohio and Ontario. The Center is open to the public only when accompanied by a designer, architect, furnishings retailer or contract specifier.

The three separate hour-long sessions with professional designers are: "How to Work with a Designer," Sheldon J. Scott; "Terrific Trends in Home Furnishings and Decorating," Sandra Seligman and Kevin McManamon; and "How to Use Color, Light, Texture and Fabric Effectively" with Brian Killian.

Scott is a 25-year veteran consultant in the field who has been written about nationally for his award-winning work. He will discuss how to choose the right designer to fit the client's need, personality and budget. Scott's session is 9-10 a.m.

Seligman and McManamon have a combination of 30 years of experience as professional designers. During their presentation, they show what works that's old, what's good that's new in the design market and what's best to bring out an individual's style.

Killian has more than a decade of design experience. His designs have recently been in the national spotlight and have been featured in local publications. His presentation of slides will show examples of how to use color, light, fabric and texture effectively. He will discuss their importance as keys to successful interior design.

Following luncheon will be the tour of the Design Center. Each group of 12 will be led by a professional from the International Furnishings and Design Association. For descriptive brochure and registration information, call Schoolcraft College Continuing Education Services, 462-4448.

condo queries Robert M. Melsner

Q. I am living in a two-story town house condominium on the first floor. My upstairs neighbor, who is a nice enough guy, unfortunately creates a terrible noise when he walks over my unit, a noise that is driving me crazy. I have met with the developer, who had previously promised that there was noise conditioning in the unit and that I would not experience any unreasonable noise problems from upstairs. I'm wondering if I'm going crazy or am unreasonable being concerned about this and am wondering what you would suggest I can do.

A. There are acoustical engineers who can define exactly whether or not adequate materials were used, by way of sound insulation, to deal with this noise problem. For example, the degree of impact being made by the upstairs person as it relates to your unit can be measured and qualified. There are standards to which developers should comply so as to maximize the use and enjoyment of a unit by a co-owner.

After you have considered and discussed this matter with an acoustical engineer, you should confront your developer with the results, assuming it shows that there is some liability on the part of the developer. You may also wish to consult with legal counsel to determine what rights you may have concerning representations made to you by the developer as well as the express or implied warranties that may go to the question of sound conditioning and sound transmission.

Q. I have basically a domestic relations and real estate question for you. My ex-wife and I jointly own the marital home, although she is residing in it. I am not happy with the way she is keeping it up, but it is not to be sold until our youngest son reaches the age of 18, three years from now. To make things worse, my ex-wife's lawyer encouraged her to insist that no clause forbidding cohabitation clause be inserted in the divorce decree. She has allowed some beatnik-type flower salesman to move in the house with the kids, operate a business out of the house and store cartons of seeds and other sundry items in one of the rooms on the first floor. I think the idea of cohabitation stinks and am worried about the property values. What can

I do?

A. I can certainly empathize with your plight regarding your concern of not only your real estate investment, but the welfare of your child. Perhaps the most expedient way of resolving the problem, assuming that you cannot get your ex-wife to agree to removing her "live-in" and otherwise to maintain the house more decently, is to seek protection through the courts in regard to the proper upbringing of your child in an effort to attempt to get the flower man out of the house together with his belongings.

It may also be that the flower man is violating the restrictions of the homeowners association in the neighborhood in which your ex-wife is residing, and since you are a co-owner of the premises, you may have standing in that regard.

You should consult with your divorce lawyer to determine what efforts you can take including change of custody.

A virus named Abby going after the gypsy moths

By Earl Aronson
AP Newsfeatures

Will Abby prove to be a potent new weapon against the gypsy moths that devastate trees in many parts of the country?

Abby is an improved biochemical virus strain that kills gypsy moth caterpillars but doesn't harm anything else, according to U.S. Department of Agriculture entomologist Martin Shapiro.

Abby is an NPV — nuclear polyhedrosis virus — that Shapiro named after the town of its origin, Abington, Mass. It has been studied for seven years among 19 different virus strains from all over the world. NPV strains produce a systemic infection in gypsy caterpillars. With Abby, reports Shapiro, "there's a higher kill early in the game."

Once applied, the new Abby could run its own moth-control program from year to year, often with no need to reapply, claims Shapiro. Abby could serve as an alternative to Bacillus thuringiensis bacteria or to Dimilin, a chemical that keeps gypsy moth caterpillars from reaching adulthood. The virus, unlike chemicals, is transmitted from generation to generation and is capable of self-perpetuation within the gypsy moth population, says Shapiro.

The Agricultural Research Service and Forest Service will conduct a joint dose-and-mortality field test with Abby. They will count the number of dead moth larvae and measure the amount of foliage protected by the virus. In field tests at the Beltsville, Md., lab, the new strain performed five times better than the lab's standard virus.

Gypsy moth populations have been exploding in recent years, and federal officials anticipate that this year and the next two years will be worse. All states east of Ohio and north of Virginia are infested with the moths, the officials reported. Pockets of infestation also have been found in California, Oregon, Wisconsin, Michigan, South Carolina and North Carolina.

The caterpillar eats the foliage of more than 500 species of trees, shrubs and ornamentals, but does most harm to American oaks and alders in forests and parks, along roadsides and in back yards.

The gypsy moth was brought to Massachusetts in 1869 by French biologist Louis Trouvelot as part of a silkworm-breeding experiment and escaped from the laboratory. The worst infestation was in 1963,

weeder's guide

Earl
Aronson

When moth caterpillars defoliated about 8 million acres.

Work at the Beltsville Insect Reproduction Laboratory led to a way to rear moths to mass-produce the biochemical virus.

You can help fight gypsy moths by seeking out and destroying their eggs. Your Agricultural Extension Service office has educational information. Check for eggs on tree trunks, lawn furniture and stone walls, and under brush piles. Scrape egg masses into a can of kerosene, bleach or "tree wound" paint and destroy them.

Spray trees or shrubs with an insecticide, preferably a biological one that won't kill bees or other beneficial insects. Recommended is Bacillus thuringiensis, sold under various trade names such as Dipel, Thuricide and Bactospeem, or as "Organic Caterpillar Killer."

Biological controls — beneficial bugs, bacteria, fungi and even viruses — give chemical-free control in food production or require the use of much less chemical pesticide.

"Even where chemicals may not be suspected of polluting water or leaving residues on foods, they simply may no longer control a pest," says the USDA Agricultural Research Service. "Biocontrol can be a large part of the solution to these problems."

ARS biocontrol efforts include: negotiating two five-year agreements on research and exploration with the Soviet Union; sending scientists, starting in May, to China to explore for biocontrols of range weeds and water weeds, such as hydrilla; the gypsy moth virus project; and aiding eggplant growers, "who have seen proof that tiny wasps control Colorado potato beetles better than 15 spray applications of insecticides."
