Hearing looks into chemical train fires

staff writer

Fire officials and concerned citizens from around the state converged at a legislative hearing on rail transportation in Wayne on Monday, sounding a plea for stricter safety regulations and more training and financing for firefighters.

"We have a serious hazardous materials problem in this state. We tried to address it and failed," said Jim Carr, coordinator of the Hazardous Materials Response Team serving western Wayne County.

'We don't have the funds to train people in this area. We've done it, but it's a great financial burden."

STATE REP. James Kosteva, D-Canton, who chairs the house Rail Safety Subcommittee, scheduled the hearing after the derailment in July of a CSX freight

At a hearing on rail safety at Wayne City Hall, state Rep. James Kosteva, D-Canton, said more data is needed from the National Transportation Safety Board on the causes

Three tanker cars caught fire, emitting toxic fumes and causing the weeklong evacuation of 3,000 residents from a 25-square-mile area. The train, which travels every week from Dow's Texas facility to Midland, pases through the Plymouth-Canton and Westland area.

Since February 1989, three derailments have occurred in Michigan.

Kosteva, whose district is crisscrossed by railroads. conducted the hearing along with State Rep. Curtis Her-tel, D-Detroit, chairman of the House Transportation

In attendance were representatives of organizations including the Federal Railroad Administration; State Police; Firefighters Training Council of Michigan; Citizens Against Toxic Trains and the Michigan State Firefighters Union.

HAD THE CSX train derailed in western Wayne County, "could we have evacuated 28 square miles for all that time? Could we have lived with that situation? I don't think so," said Carr, deputy chief of the Dearborn Heights Fire Department.

"This is the most populated area that chemical train goes through.'

While coordination is good among Michigan agencies, "we haven't come close to achieving a coordinated response plan," said Charles Griffith, research director with the Michigan State Firefighters Union. "The metropolitan area is as far behind as anyone.

'Unless the whole community is aware of the dangers and has some confidence in local agencies, the public has little trust in the process. When you lose public confidence, you also lose public safety, because people don't react in an organized manner."

"MICHIGAN RANKS third in the nation in the incidence of hazardous materials accidents with 5.63 per 1,000 miles of track," Frank Lieder of Citizens Against Toxic Trains told the legislators.

'The people of Michigan feel they can no longer entrust our lives to the Federal Railroad Administration. 'We beseech the state to lower speed limits and adopt stricter guidelines," Lieder said. The CSX Dow train "stops right in front of my house

"IT'S CLEAR we can put an emphasis on training, but in other areas, it's difficult to know where and how we could have the most effectiveness," Kosteva said.

"We don't have accurate enough data yet. Hopefully, we can get some data from the National Transportation Safety Board as to the specific causes of accidents.

'It's going to help us look at how we Plymouth Fall Festival profits will be down this year, due to rain Saturday and a tornado threat Friday that forced people to evacuate the festival site.

But things were better Sunday, and "the Sunday crowd was one of the best we've ever had," said Joe Bida, who organized the festival.

He said that because of the rains "we'll probably be down from the last year or two.'

The rain didn't dampen Bida's assessment of the relative success

"It was great," he said. Profits from the annual four-day festival won't be known until the But with attendance down an es-

Among those improvements likely to be put off are repairs to the booths, Bida said.

While inclement weather affected attendance at some outdoor events, Bida said indoor events antique sales and art at the school among them - gained. "That's where they got the crowds," Bida said.

Food events not affected by the weather were successful.

Plymouth Rotary Foundation sold out of 11,500 chicken barbecue dinners by 3:30 p.m. Sunday, the Lions Club sold out of 1,500 fish dinners Friday and the Kiwanis Club sold out of pancake breakfasts on Saturday.

But Saturday night, the Kiwanians sold just 650 of a planned 1,500 steak dinners, thanks to thundershowers. "They're going to package them and sell them to their members," Bida said.

Yet, festival changes and improvements implemented this year were successful, Bida said.

Ballot proposals called 'monster'

By M.B. Dillon

Plymouth-Canton school board members grappled Monday with school finance Proposals A and B, dubbed "the two-headed monster" by president

A disenchanted board failed to reach a consensus on whether to support the proposals that will appear on the Nov. 7 general election ballot.

Proposal A would increase the sales tax by a half cent, providing $400 million in new revenue for education.

Proposal B would raise the sales tax two cents, generating $325 million for education. B also would provide property tax relief and limit voterapproved tax increases to 4 mills.

If voters approve both proposals, the one with the most yes votes will be imposed.

"It's highly unlikely either will pass, just based on math," said Swartzwelter. "This is a hypothetical exercise to get people all stirred up. We're taking positions disagreeing with each other, and camouflaging the truth. This just lulis the educational community to sleep."

"It's a legislative cop-out," agreed Supt. John Hoben. "At the last minute so they could go home, they threw both on the ballot. They haven't come up with a clearly articulated school reform plan. This doesn't address school reform so much as tax

"I don't think either one will pass," said Hoben.
"The proposals are too confusing. I don't know how they will squeeze them into 100 words (for placement on the ballot)."

Monday's meeting began with Trustee Dave Artley proposing a resolution supporting both.

"A and B don't address all the needs of the Plymouth-Canton district, but this appears to be a significant effort on the part of the Legislature to allow the people to have a voice," Artley said.

"If neither passes, we won't see school finance reform until the next century. We have to start somewhere."

Trustee E.J. McClendon said, "I don't know how can vote for either, given their inadequacie They're trying to punish everyone with a growing tax base. We're betting on a dead horse.

"We can no longer deduct sales tax. We're sending more and more money to Washington, and get-ting less and less of it back."

"I'm concerned that supporting one or both would be misleading to the people of Plymouth-Canton," said Trustee Marilyn Schwinn.

"Equity is not truly addressed. The poor stay poor and the rich stay rich. I don't go along with saying something is better than nothing."

The cost of training firefighters to deal with hazardous materials is aggering, an area fire chief said.

"Just for two people to be trained to be on the response team cost us $13,500 in manpower, equipment costs and the city's share of response team expenses," Westland fire Chief Larry Lane said, speaking at a legislative hearing on rail transportation in Wayne on Monday. "And it has to be ongo-ing training."

State Rep. James Kosteva, D-Canton, who chairs the house Rail Safety Subcommittee, scheduled the hearing after the derailment in July of a CSX freight train.

It's hoped that setting up more response teams and and establishing a state-run training center in Lansing will help lessen the burden on local communities. But financ-ing is an obstacle, said Lt. Arthur Nash Jr. of the State Police fire marshal division.

"THE GOAL is to ensure that well-trained response teams can respond within an hour anywhere in Michigan. We have 16 response teams now, but all are in the southern part of the state," he said at Monday's hearing.
"Just to establish the response teams there'll be an initial cost of $1.5 million, with continuing costs of $340,000 a year to train those response teams

"If we can't come up with the funding, the Legislature is going to have to look at this and say, 'Is this something we want to fund?' That's the only way those who need training will receive it," Nash said.

'The goal is to ensure that well-trained response teams can respond within an hour anywhere in Michigan. We have 16 response teams now, but all are in the southern part of the state.'

to forward documentation of costs to the subcommittee.

"One of the consternations I'm having is that money is needed at a number of levels. If we expect to go advocate for additional funding, having exact figures and what they'd buy would be a great help," Kosteva said.

Francis Ray of the United Transportation Union in Lansing proposed defraying costs by imposing 'a ton mileage tax on shippers and haulers of hazardous materials."

Charles Griffith, research director with the Michigan State Firefighters Union, supported the idea.

"Ohio has passed one of the nation's best pieces of transportation legislation," Griffith said. "So far. CSX has been successful in holding it up as it pertains to rail, but its primary provisions include registration of hazardous material carriers in the state and route assess-

"Hopefully this will result in concrete proposals we can take to the Legislature that show here is where money is needed, and here's what the funding can do."

A representative of the NTSB was unable to attend the hearing.

"MR. KOSTEVA has a tough task," said Richard Powell, executive secretary of the Firefighters Training Council. "Statewide, 85 percent of our fire departments are staffed by volunteers. There's no response team in the Upper Peninsula, and nothing near Bay

"In Michigan, we've had pretty good relationships with industry. But we're finding it's not enough. Dow Chemical creates 60,000 to 70,000 chemicals. Fire departts don't have chemists. The expectation that fire departments can handle everything just isn't Helen Eckles and Carol Mills roll pie crust in preparation for the Plymouth Grange's final Fall Festival. The historic Grange will be torn down to make way for the Wilcox apartment project.

Grange serves last festival

staff writer

Home, home at the Grange. What a tranquil place the old place was Thursday afternoon as aproned Helen Eckles, 84 years young, Carol Mills and Bath Strebbing baked nearly 150 pies in preparation for last weekend's Fall Festival.

The aroma of freshly baked apple pies filled the kitchen. As the last of pies browned in the huge iron stove, the timer was ticking and the ladies were resting. The view through the wooden screen door was lush and

Pies just out of the oven cooled on a counter underneath a huge open window overlooking grass and an overgrown garden. It was Eckle's 33rd year at the helm of the baking operation, and her last at the oven.

THE GRANGE, founded as a national agrarian fraternity in 1919, soup, sloppy joes or pickles at next year's Fall Pestival.

The Plymouth Grange's Union Street facility - which once served as the livery for the nearby Wilcox - will be knocked down to make room for the Wilcox apartment project now under way.

"In a way, I'm sad this is our last year," said Eckles who used six bushels of apples from a Northville orchard to bake her pies. (Eckles cut back from 300 pies this year.)

"But we're glad, too. We're awfully tired. When you get into your 80s, crowding 90, you can't do that amount of work anymore."

IN 1956, the pie making project in-volved just Eckles and her husband

"He helped me for several years and after he died, whoever could help did. A lot of good friends have helped out over the years," said Ec-kles, nodding at Miles and Strebbing.

Strebbing was helping out a little too much early in the week. "I fired her Wednesday to giver her a day of rest," said Eckies.

Why was Strebbing back?
"She found she couldn't get along without me," said Strebbing, retired from Central Middle School where she was cafeteria manager. "It's a long stint," said Mills of the four-day Fall Festival

ECKLES, WHO grew accustomed to work days that began at 7 a.m. and ended 11 or 12 hours later during Fall Festival week, decided to work fewer hours this year.

Festival-goers could help themselves to pie, split pea and vegetable beef soup, sloppy joes, ice tea, donuts, cider and pizza at the Grange from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Upstairs at the Grange, arts and crafts people staffed 14 booths.

Money raised at Fall Festival has been donated by the Grange to a va-riety of charitable projects.

GRANGE MEMBERS, who will have a community room in the new Wilcox development, are hoping to start a junior organization for children aged 4 to 14. "This was a farming organization when it started. Over the years the farmers have disappeared. But it's an ongoing, family-oriented group that is keeping the heritage and traditions going," said Strebbing, who made sloppy joes and pickles from homegrown cucumbers for the festival.

Eckles panicked a little after Strebbing allowed friend and Observer photographer Bill Bresler to measure the sugar, flour and cinnamon for a few pies.

"I don't know what they'll taste like. They'll probably ruin my reputation," said Eckles, her hair neatly

"We just jazzed them up a little," Bresler said.

ECKLES IS relaxed now. 'We sold out of everything and raised over $1,000," she said Tuesday.

"We needed 150 more pies. We should have had more. "We were busy all the while. It wasn't a grand rush, but they were comes around."

> The market for rare coins been blossoming since the turn of the century, Jarrait said.

> The reasons for the surge in popularity, he said, are twofold. Truly rare, high-quality coins are available in a fixed, limited supply only, while the number of collectors and investors continues to grow.

> In the late 1950s and early '60s, for instance, Jarrait estimated that 500,000 coin collectors were in the United States. Today, that number has ballooned to 18-20 million, he

> "Coins can be a tremendous investment if you just follow the rules," Jarrait said. "It's just like any other investment, but people just don't know the rules involved with rare coin investment."

JARRAIT SUGGESTED the following rules:

• Make sure the coins have been graded and certified by one of the major independent grading services. The services are the Professional Coin Grading Service (PCGS), 1-714-250-1211; the Numismatic Guaranty Corporation of America (NGC), 1-201-984-6222; the American Numismatic Association Certified Service (ANACS), 1-719-632-2646; and the Numismatic Certified Institute (NCI), 1-214-742-2200.

The PCGS is the industry standard for grading rare coins and can provide a list of authorized PCGS dealers in the United States and Canada, said Mike Saum, a rare coin dealer with Richard Charles. Of the four services listed above, the NCI is generally viewed as more liberal, Jarrait said.

· Buy quality. Low-grade coins, as a rule, tend not to perform as well

Why is a high-grade coin so rare and valuable? There is no one answer, Jarrait said. Rare coins are more valuable because fewer were minted and even less are in circulation today. Some are high quality because of the detail and the artisans who handcrafted them; others are rare because of their metal content and bullion value.

• Don't bounce in and out of the coin market. Coins are normally considered long-term investments (three-to-five-years). If you don't think you will hold the coin for a minimum of three years, don't buy

• Buy coins that are special and unusual. When looking at rare coins as an investor rather than a collector, you only want high quality rare coins, not high quality old coins.

• For your protection, deal only with a dealer that is a member of the Coin and Bullion Dealer Accreditation Program (CABDAP). CAB-DAP, is an independent, voluntary and industrywide program of selfregulation, like the Securities Exchange Commission is to the securities industry.

"As long as people are knowledgeable and people know the rules, coins can be a tremendous investment, and have proven to be a tremendous investment," Jarrait said.

"I think the more we are able to alert the public, it piques people's curiosity about what is going on and how they can protect themselves from getting ripped off," Saum said.

Now see this Computer boards grow

By Wayne Peal staff writer

In his days as a U.S. Navy electronics specialist, the 54-year-old Canton man gained an advance look at a number of technological breakthroughs.

"I remember the first time I saw color radar," he said. "It was top secret stuff back then, they didn't want us to tell anyone about it even after we left the Navy.

These days, Hampton believes he's seeing the future again - every time he calls a computer bulletin board to his video screen.

"THIS IS really Jetsons stuff,"

Hampton said. Computer bulletin boards have fast become a staple of business and government. President George Bush and Soviet Premier Mikhail Gorbachev can share information on global warming trends through a U.S.-U.S.S.R. link-up.

But the growing personal use market may prove even more intriguing. Bulletin boards provide access to business programs and computer games, allowing users to check spelling or organize mailing lists while providing inexpensive entertainment for their children.

"There's just tons of things out there for people to use," said Russ Delaney of Great Lakes Computer Systems Inc., an area dealer. "Many of the programs that people buy,

Program divides AIDS fact, fiction

staff writer

Fact or fiction:

• You can become infected with the AIDS virus by giving blood.

• You can contract AIDS by caring for someone with the disease, sharing their bathroom facilities, bathing them or assisting in feedings and medication.

• Being very selective in your choice of sexual partners is the best protection against contracting AIDS.

Each of these statements are false But such myths are unfortunately be-Meved by many, according to Jan Thaxton, a registered nurse from Westland. Thaxton hopes to help set the record straight in a lecture "AIDS: Fact, Fiction and Fear," Oct. 4 at Schoolcraft College.

"As a result of new drugs, AIDS is becoming a chronic disease. More and more people (infected with the virus) are living longer and leading productive lives. Both quality and quantity of life have been extended," Thaxton said. A graduate of Schoolcraft's nursing program, Thaxton now directs AIDS public education for the American Red Cross, Southeastern Michigan Chapter.

"AIDS may not personally affect most of us, but it indirectly affects all of us," reads a description of the Lecture in Schoolcraft College's fall brochure announcing Continuing Education Services.

In addition to dispelling myths, Thaxton has other goals as well, including public education about a disease that conjures up visions of horror for most.

Some news is even heartening.

PATIENTS NOW diagnosed with Human Immunodeficiency Virus (HIV) that accounts for AIDS, can expect to live longer than those diagnosed previously because of such new drugs as Vidovudine (AZT).

"If treatment is begun before the final stages of illness, these new medications help the immune system fight off deadly infections. People live longer," Thaxton said. Of the 1,257 Michiganians who

The majority of Michigan patients live in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties, nearly half are between the ages of 30 and 39 years and 80 percent have contracted the disease through high risk behavior, 59 percent through male to male sex and 21 percent through intravenous drug

"Most people are aware of how transmission occurs but not many are able to change their behavior, like using condoms or clean needles. Behavior modification is a very difficult thing to do. Anyone who has ever tried to loose weight or quit smoking knows that," Thaxton said.

The remainder of AIDS cases in Michigan were contracted through blood transfusions (5 percent), heterosexual sex (3 percent) and at birth (2 percent). The origins of 4 percent are unknown, according to nomers had placed into one nation wide computer service.

Computers turning into 'electronic back fence'

Delaney, who maintains a bulletin board at his company's Ganton store, estimates there are more than 450 bulletin boards in the 313 area code

Hampton, a trucker by trade, was well acquainted with the last communications craze, CB radios, but predicts computer bulletin boards won't fade from general use like 1970s CBs.

The difference from CB and ham radio is that, there, you're sending out a signal to whoever will listen," he said. "Here, you can target your

A list of area bulletin boards is available at computer stores, including Great Lakes outlets in Canton and Farmington Hills.

Computer services that charge for information include Prodigy, the heavily promoted marriage of computer giant IBM and retail giant

With shop-at-home, bank-at-home and news service features, Prodigy and its rivals represent the next wave, Delaney said.

One rival, CompuServe, a 10-year veteran in the field, offers more than 160 different bulletin boards, which the company calls "forums."

The Columbus, Ohio-based firm bills itself as the largest information system of its kind.

The key to the home use market, Thomas said, is that people are only now becoming aware of what computers can do.

"PEOPLE WHO may have bought computers to balance their check books now want to get something more out from their investment,"

Despite the presence of Prodigy, CompuServe and other giants like Dow Jones, enthusiasts said the bulk of the action is generated by the doit-yourself home bulletin boards.

What programs users choose often depends upon their age. 'I don't use the news services. I'm mostly interested in the computer games," said 16-year-old Geoff Gladden of Canto

Creating a bulletin board isn't complex, according to Delaney.

"Once you have a personal computer, it isn't too expensive to start one," he said. "Though you have to add another telephone line."

Some lines have short lifespans, however, because operators find it tough to pay their new telephone bills. That is why some operators ask for voluntary payment.

'It's really an honor system type of thing," Hampton said.

Families help Irish kids spend peaceful holiday

staff writer

One minute, Paul Casey, an 8-year-old from Belfast, Northern Ireland, was clowning around with his friends, posing for a photographer on the front lawn of his American host family's home.

The next minute, Paul, long lashes framing his large green eyes, was in a more serious mood. He was sitting by the driveway, talking about what he likes and dislikes about the United States and Northern Ireland.

The food here is kind of different. It's good," said Paul, a few hours before he and his brother Kevin, 6, ended their recent six-week stay in the

Area hosts give youngsters respite from strife in Belfast

Kelly said what Kathy told her out Northern Ireland "sounds like but some can be really mean. y yell and swear at people. I 't believe things till I'm right re. But now I understand better."

EATHY, WHO has blue eyes and long, wavy strawberry blonde hair, said she's going to miss her new friends and "going to the beach." She's looking forward to Irish food, and "playing soccer and hurling with my brothers and friends."

What she dreads about going home is "just all the British soldiers shooting and fighting all the time, and just the feeling of people dying.

"Ever since I was little, two or three times every year, the soldiers have raided our house. It's scary. They come really early, at 1 or 3 in the morning. They kick the door. If no one answers, they try and kick it

They have guns and dogs and they get everyone downstairs, and search the house. They look under the carpet, and look in the attic. They wreck the house looking for guns and bombs. They've nover found any. "If all the British soldiers were put out of Ireland, there would be no more trouble over there," she said. "If the British don't leave, there will just be sadness. It will always be the

HOST FAMILIES and folks ranging from the manager at Meijer to Detroit Tigers owner Tom Monaghan did what they could to help the children forget about their war-torn country for a while.

"The manager at Meijer's gave toys to Kevin and Paul," said Pat Ranger of Brighton, who with her husband Ray organized the trip and hosted three of the young visitors.

"People said Tom Monaghan would never do anything, but he sent the kids Tigers yearbooks and key chains. We had a lot of neighbors and friends donate clothing, toys and "The children are all going home with new shoes, jeans, shirts and toys," she added.

The Matthews family of Howell hested Rossa Quigley, who celebrated his 12th birthday during his visit.

"Rossa had never had a birthday party, and Anne (hfaithews) gave him one," said Ranger. "They hired a magician, and had balloons, favors and greese near decorations, and and crepe paper decorations, and served dinner to 25 kids. The kids wore birthday hats. Rossa may have thought that was kind of dorky, but he's going home with a birthday par-ty under his belt."

Chaperone Rosie Murray, whose husband and brothers have been political prisoners, enjoyed a welcome respite as well. The top of Rangers' garage served as her sun deck, and Meijer as her second home. Just hours before the Irish entourage was about to leave, she was still shopping for clothes for family and friends.

Ranger hopes that next year more children and wives of political pris-oners can visit the United States. Anyone interested in information, or in contributing to next year's exchange trip, can write P.O. Box 24744. Detroit, 48224.

George Washington said its creation was "little short of a miracle." James Madison said, "It is impossible for the man of pious reflection not to perceive in it a finger of that Almighty hand," when describing the process that created it.

Washington and Madison were commenting on nothing less than the document that created our government: The Constitution of the United States. The Constitution is the foundation of our country and the means by which we achieve the rule of law and protect our freedom.

The week of September 17th is Constitution Week. Many libraries will have displays and information on this incredible document.

Lindsey is a 5-year-old diabetic. Her daily insulin shots diet restrictions and constant blood monitoring only provide day-to-day control over the disease. They do not cure it. So Lindsey, along with 11 million other Americans, still faces the long-term risks of diabetes - like heart disease, blindness, stroke, amputation and kidney disease. The complications of diabetes will account for an estimated 150,000 deaths this year alone.

But thanks to your contributions to the Juvenile Diabetes of diabetes and its treatment, Foundation, Lindsey and millions like her have something more to look forward to. In the past decade, JDF research has made great strides in isolating the causes and conditions of diabetes, bringing us closer to a cure. At the same time, diabetes increases by 6% every year. And in ten years the number of diabetics will have doubled.

Downtown Study doesn't go far enough

HE PLAN to spend $51,000 on a study of how to make downtown Plymouth look better sounds like a good one to us, but we wish the city would go further and revise its master plan.

The city is so small that minor changes downtown affect residents.

That happened recently with the Wilcox project. Residents nearby complained that the five-story buildings proposed for the project are too high and would keep the sun out of the yards of their houses.

Maybe that's a minor concern to the city, but it's a quality-of-life issue for those residents.

The zoning allows for such projects in that area, which means not much can be done by the city to change the project.

That's why we think the study approved is a piece meal way of doing things. If changes are made downtown, the city should look at how those changes would affect neighborhoods. To us that's the start of a review of the master plan.

The city first billed the study as such a review but didn't deliver.

We think it should start.

ON THE STUDY, we think the city is on the right track with the items to be looked at. They are kiosks, store directories, historic signs, utilities, parking, lighting, landscaping, planters and other streetscape elements such as benches and waste containers.

Taking a look at how those elements work together and making suggestions on how Plymouth should look overall is important.

City officials say that by updating the downtown, it can compete with large shopping malls.

That sounds good on the surface. But while we acknowledge that downtown does compete for shoppers with malls, we wonder if residents see their community that way?

Do they want downtown to be like Fairlane or Westland malls?

These are questions that should be posed during public hearings that accompany the review of a master plan.

We think the time has come to take a look at the entire city and not just one part. Plymouth is too small to treat just one part of the patient. The entire city should be looked it. The study for downtown is a good idea, but there's more work

Smoking

It must be stopped at schools

E WERE DISMAYED by comments made recently by John Hoben, the superintendent of the Plymouth Canton schools, about a survey of local

The survey, conducted by state Sen. Robert Seake, R-Northville, asked residents if smoking by students and adults should be banned at schools. Of those surveyed, 81 percent said the state Legislature should pass such a law. However, when Hoben was asked to comment, The said the survey is something that should be taken into account when the school formulates

WE COULD understand that stance, if it only applied to teachers. However, at the Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem High schools there are designated smoking areas for students.

By keeping those smoking areas, the district is giving its backhanded endorsement to smoking. One reason the district gives for keeping the designated smoking areas is that it doesn't have the money to hire security guards to police those

We find that a lame excuse. Teachers, principals and others already on the payroll could check those areas and at the very least discourage smoking.

Fighting drugs

More local action needed now

RESIDENT GEORGE Bush's message is clear. If we want to rid our nation of illegal drugs, it's up to us.

If it's war we want, we'll have to be the ones who wage it - in our home towns and in

Though far-reaching, the president's proposal is woefully short of money. Consider this: the federal government will spend just $32 for each man, woman and child in its new war on drugs. And that is with a $2.2 billion increase.

The president's speech set a moral tone. For now, however, it's up to us to put it into action. Whatever our disagreements with the president's proposal, now is no time to be sitting on our

WHAT CAN be done to combat drugs? Plenty. First, let's not kid ourselves into believing illegal drugs are solely an urban problem.

If our suburban communities are free from crack houses - and that point is debatable law enforcement officials agree that dealers live here - even in the nicest of neighborhoods.

Government officials need to understand that. Western Wayne County, for example, has a multi-department police task force dedicated to knocking down suburban drug kingpins. Unfortunately, not every community contributes offi-

THIS ISN'T any time to slack off on community pressure, either. Parents need to continue spreading the word about the dangers of drug

We know of one large suburban community whose parental drug abuse task force has lapsed into obscurity.

But if it's an anti-drug abuse message we are sending, that message should be clear.

We know of another parental task force that financed anti-drug abuse programs through a cocktail party fund-raiser - without seeing the irony in its action.

Our proposed solutions are these: We call on area police to redouble cooperative efforts. And we call on local elected officials to come forth with the money and manpower to make those efforts a success. Also we call on all of us to re-examine our own behavior. Are we, like that parents group, sending mixed messages?

But if we shouldn't kid ourselves about suburban drug abuse, then neither should we kid ourselves that these steps, alone will be successful.

They, and the initial level of federal spending, establish a beachhead, not a war.

WHILE LOCAL police can be wonderfully effective in bringing down local pushers, they can't be expected to wage war against sophisticated South American cartels.

While parental guidance can help a child choose not to use illegal drugs, it is no substitute for the professional guidance needed for those children who have already made that choice.

And while clear, unambiguous anti-drug messages may work for suburban youths, it might not prove enough for urban youths trapped in poverty with no jobs or any on the horizon.

Make no mistake, we believe President Bush's program should be ratified by Congress. But it's only a start. We challenge Congress to come up with more money - without cheating programs designed to benefit poor Americans, as has been charged of the president's plan.

FINDING THE $1.8 billion necessary to pay for last year's Anti-Drug Abuse Act is a start. Just $1 billion has been appropriated of the $2.8 billion authorized.

But more money will be needed not only to punish the pusher but also to treat the victim. The president has called drug users, even casual ones, a major part of the problem. Dealers wouldn't deal, he argues, if users didn't buy.

But health care professionals believe there must be more money to get users off drugs.

There is a national cry for a balanced approach: one part law enforcement, another part education and yet another part treatment.

We spend billions on weapons to protect us from øutside attack, yet we're bleeding internally. What enemy ever devastated as many lives as illegal drugs? What enemy ever wasted so much human potential?

President Bush has given all of us our marching orders. And we should follow them.

But the president and Congress must realize that while it's war we want, we can't win it without their support.

Excitement on the field, not in bottle this season

OUR SUBURBS will be pretty empty Saturday.

A good percentage of local residents will be hightailing it for East Lansing or Ann Arbor, as Michigan State and the University of Michigan launch their football seasons.

And this year, the excitement at the games (at least by the second half) will be generated from what's going on on the field and not from what's coming out of a bottle.

The University of Michigan, exhibiting one more facet of the leadership that should come from a worldclass university, last month banned bringing containers into the stadium - anything that could hold food or drink

Last week, MSU followed suit.

As U-M season ticket holders, who like many fans have been relegated to the same seats in the same row and section for the past five years, we've become accustomed to the people and tone of our section. It doesn't matter that from row 16, section 20, we can't see the far side of the field at all - we've got a great view when it's on our goal line.

SINCE RUMOR has it you have to be willed tickets or pay the hefty price to join The Victors Club to change season ticket seats, we expect to be seeing these same folks

But I wonder what the funny guy in front of us will be like - without a drink in his hand. He usually starts out quiet, but by the half he's getting into it - no matter what's happening on the field - and his high fives are extended to a broader and broader audience as the game goes on.

I wonder what the funny guy in front of us will be like - without a drink in his hand? . . . It would be a shame if it turned out that without spirits he is spiritless.

And, as a member of one of the few sections with its own cheerleader, I wonder if he will still have the courage to stand up on the divider between the field and the seats and lead us in the M-I-C-H-I-G-A-N chant after a score - then gesture pointedly to the end-zone section reserved for fans of the opposing team.

I sure hope so. He is an institution. It would be a shame if it turned out that without spirits he is spiritless.

ON A LIGHTER note, lost in all the press given the crackdown on alcohol consumption is U-M's crackdown on umbrellas.

That's really sticking it to us. We'll certainly be able to tell who's a fair-weather fan now

Alternatives to abortion

To the editor:

I am responding to the recent letter (Aug. 24 Observer) from Debra Darvick regarding freedom to choose abortion.

In her letter she asks Ms. Shea (who wrote a letter against abortion) several questions such as, "What would Ms. Shea say to the women whose birth control fails them, to the rape victim who finds herself pregnant, or to a woman who learns through prenatal testing that the fetus she is carrying suffers from handicaps she is incapable of handling?"

All of these are tough questions with no easy answers. Let's face it, life is full of many problems with no easy solutions. But there are alternatives to abortion.

Ms. Darvick ends her letter in this manner: "Ms. Shea, let your conscience guide your reproductive decisions. And please, allow me the freedom to have my conscience be my guide as well."

Conscience deals with morality and morality in my eyes has to do with God's laws. So my question is, 'What would God say?"

I looked up "conscience" in the dictionary and it is defined: "knowledge or feeling of right and wrong, with a compulsion to do right; moral judgment that opposes the violation of a previously recognized ethical principle." However, to make a good decision, one must have an informed conscience. Unfortunately, many people tend to believe that since something is legal, it must also be morally correct. Not so. There is a higher order involved.

Those of us who believe in God understand that no matter what life deals us, he will help us to "hang on" and if we but trust - tough as it may be - he will bring good from it. "I believe in the sun when it isn't shining; I believe in God when he is Barb-Schmid,

Schools don't really care

To the editor:

We have lived in Plymouth Township for 20 years. Generally speaking, ours is a very caring communi-

However, there is one exception - the school administrative system personnel. I won't go into previous unpleasant experiences with them, but a current situation reveals that nothing has changed: Their attitude is still very indifferent and uncaring!

About six weeks ago, the Observer carried an ad for Plymouth District school bus drivers. My husband applied. After a reasonable amount of time had passed and he had not heard anything, he went back to the Administrative Office and asked to see a person from the Personnel Department.

THAT PERSON promised to check his application and let him know he might be considered. Time passed and no telephone call was received, so my husband went to the bus yard and talked with management there. Again, a call was promised, but none was received. He has since returned to both the Administrative Office and the bus yard, and again received promises of a telephone call to advise if he had the necessary qualifications for the job. To this date, no one has shown the

By the way, one has to wonder which applicant would be more qualified than he is - a Brink's armored truck driver for 29 years with a perfect safe-driving record along with an exemplary personal driving record. He is in perfect health, taking no medication and has never used alcoholic beverages in his life.

Well, I guess the millage has passed and the "I Care Committee" has again retired.

Enjoyment of 'my lake'

MY LITTLE lake is one that thousands of other folks know about.

On Labor Day weekend, nearly alle 200 campsites are awash with trailers, motor homes, RVs and tents.

The water is of pristine clarity, the way you imagine water was when Nicolet and Joliet canoed into Michigan. It takes two solid days of boats powered by 150 horse power engines towing water skiers to stir up even a little sediment.

The air is abuzz with engines four-wheel drives, inboards, outboards, chain saws, all-terrain vehicles, the truck of a guy who sells campers firewood at $1.50 a bundle, even though the forest is full of deadfall pine and oak branches.

One chap with a guitar played about 15 minutes. The rest of the time, you hear rock music on radios.

Families mostly take over the place, nice folks from the metro Detroit suburbs, Midland, Bay City, Monroe. Much of the sound is made by children at play. This little lake doesn't attract partying, foulmouthed drunks.

The park manager, a career DNR type, takes pride in its maintenance and regrets only that he can't make improvements faster.

MY LITTLE LAKE reveals another side when the weekend hordes

Last year, the Tuesday following Labor Day, an adult bald eagle visited the dead tree next to the picnic beach. I was able to glide the boat within 100 feet of our national bird, who looked past me as if I were a worthless worm.

This year, one cool morning before the water skiers were out, an osprey did a diving act.

The lake level is down, given the dry summers of recent years, so the beach is wide. The woods are dry and free of mosquitoes. You can take a leisurely stroll a few hundred yards from the campground. If you can sit there with a book, or maybe read about the Posen Potato Festival in the Alpena paper, all sorts of birds reappear.

Did you know there was such a thing as a hairy woodpecker? Did you realize that despite a "snipe hunt" being a game, there really is such a long-beaked bird as a snipe?

And if you drive at a leisurely pace down a county road instead of the maniacal pace of 1-696, you can see big flocks of wild turkeys, families of deer and grouse.

WHEN IT'S QUIET after the hordes depart, you can hear the highpitched bugling of the elk as he stakes out his territory and serenades for mates.

You must listen carefully. Any transistor radio will obscure his 'Oo-o-o-e-e-e-e-e." I doubt many water skiers ever hear it.

Across the two-lane highway from my little lake is a gravel pit. The pit and the neighboring woods are used only by ATV drivers, as near as I can tell from the sandy ruts that carve the hills, and guys who shoot holes in Busch beer cans.

Too bad, because the flatter rocks contain tiny fossils of sea creatures from millions of years ago. The glaciers that covered the North American continent to the Ohio River picked them up and laid them down

I had the place pretty much to myself. Maybe fossils of ancient creates aren't as much fun as running gasoline toys. Or maybe the people are all fundamentalists who insist the world was created in six days in 4004 B.C. and that fossiles are tricks of the devil. Or maybe people just

WHEN GEORGE BUSH announced his plans for cracking down on drugs last week, he said twice that he wanted to send the message to drug traffickers that "the rules have changed."

By Jack Gladden staff writer

The phrase was intended to show that the kind and gentle president was getting tough ... on drugs at least. And since politicians are always changing the rules in the middle of the game, that idea didn't seem to bother anyone. Except may-What bothered me about the phrase was not the words but the concept. We are in the middle of an era when changing the rules has become all too common and all too

Rules are changed by government bodies, public officials and private organizations to meet what are perceived to be the needs of the moment without any regard to the long-term effects.

All too often individual liberties are eroded in the process.

The rule-changers are acting with the kind of panic mentality that exists in wartime. And that, I suspect, is at the heart of the matter.

'War" has become the buzzword of the current era. We don't try to solve the problems of crime or racism or drugs or hunger. We declare war on them.

Thus, we have the "War on Racism," the "War on Drugs," the "War erties are lost

THAT'S THE reason the American Civil Liberties Union attacked parts of the president's drug program, which includes, among other things, more drug testing of workers, more penalties for first-time users and more pre-trial forfeiture of vehicles and other assets.

The ACLU issued a statement calling some of the measures "attacks on basic values like the presumption of innocence, the right to be free from unreasonable searches and seizures and the right to due process of the law."

Yet we seem to be forfeiting bits and pieces of these rights every time some official or organization "changes the rules."

Consider just one minor skirmish in this series of Social Wars - the "War on Smoking." Smokers, in the eyes of the warmongers, have forfeited all rights just by lighting

A classic example of this showed up in a small help-wanted ad that appeared in this newspaper a few months ago. The last line in the ad read: "EOE — Non-smokers only."

How any company could proclaim itself to be an "equal opportunity employer" that discriminates only against smokers is beyond me. But that's the kind of logic that even the most liberal among us accept as perfectly reasonable today.

IN ITS FERVOR to join the "War on Racism," the University of Michigan — one of the hotheds of liberalism - recently adopted a policy that was so strident in its attack that a federal judge ruled that parts of the document were in clear violation of the First Amendment. That ruling has caused Birmingham schools to delay adopting a similar policy for their system.

Troy Schools, joining the crusat-ers against gambling, drugs and to-bacco, recently added a catch-all phrase to the student rule book that could play absolute havoc with individual rights. In listing things that students are not allowed to possess, the term "etc." was added after the words "drug paraphernalia."

At least one board member worried about that small addition, saying that police liaison officers could; be "exceedingly zealous" in enforcing the rules.

And in Southfield, when the question of drug lesting of school employees was raised, one teacher said . it didn't bother him. "It may be a : violation of my rights," he added, 'but the kids have rights, too."

Yes, they do. We all have rights. But little by little they are being; chipped away in the panic of waging war on societal problems. And we're giving them up without a protest. We need to find solutions to the problems of drugs and crime and poverty. But we dare not give up our ; individual liberties in the process.

Our best teachers usually get the 'splits'

Q: I just found out my fourthgrade daughter is going to be mixed in a class with fifth-grade students. I think fourth-grade students should be in a class with other fourth graders and fifth-grade students with other fifth graders. Is this going to be a problem for my daughter? What is the real reason for mixing fourth and fifth graders?

A: What you are referring to is called a "split" class. Although not always popular, "splits" are not unusual, especially in communities such as yours, which is experiencing a surge of student growth.

We need to understand there is no such thing as a fourth-grade student. For instance, a reading level for a fourth- or fifth-grade student can range from the third to the ninth grade. Furthermore, students for a 'split" are selected based on their academic and intellectual ability and may indeed be closer in their range of skills than students in a regular fourth- or fifth-grade class-

Students selected for "splits" usually have comparable test scores, similar reading abilities, interests and work habits.

·Indeed, a greater "split" can occur in a 12th-grade government class (a required course for graduation) in which students can range in reading skills from a second-year college level to a ninth-grade high school

If we grouped only by chronological age for all education experiences, your school band and football team may have to disband. Musicians and athletes range in ability. A freshman may blow the trumpet while a sophomore may be the best issue always raises its head at the start of the school year. You asked for the real reasons for "splits." There are many, but the most common is the sudden increase in enrollment at a specific grade Let us assume there are two fourth-grade and two fifth-grade classes, both filled with students according to the teacher contract or by district philosophy. Assume that in August, nine fourth graders and seven fifth graders move into an elementary attendance area. There is only one classroom available. Two classrooms simply don't exist to have separate fourth and fifth grades.

All this withstanding, the "split"

If two classrooms are available, the school board must hire two teachers to avoid a "split." If there are 10 potential "splits" in a school district (with moderate funds) and the administration decides not to use "split" sections, the cost is 10 extra teachers or $350,000 (with benefits). The question then becomes, "Is the district being fiscally responsible?"

Principals generally place one of their most experienced and competent teachers in a "split" to grant a quality experience for children and to reduce parental anxiety.

Therefore, the most critical variable for a positive experience is the teacher who you have indicated - in your case - is a well-respected, quality educator.

Woman balances her career, family

staff writer

Sally and Bud Bailey agree parenthood has been a rewarding experience.

"We've just found real enjoyment," she said. "Overall, it's been so much fun. We just love it."

The Baileys, Plymouth Township residents, are the proud parents of Meridith, 7 months old, their first and only child. They'd like to increase the size of their family

Child care was a subject very much on their minds when they learned a child was on the way. Sally Bailey, 30, was only 16 weeks pregnant when she interviewed their care provider.

"I'd say we lucked out," said Bud Bailey, 36, an electrical engineer with the Eaton Corp. in Southfield. "For our situation, I don't think it was a bad adjustment."

Sally Bailey is employed as a clinical nurse manager at the McAuley Family Birthplace at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor. Both she and her husband work full MERIDITH IS cared for in a family day care home in Plymouth. A friend of theirs recommended that facility, and an opening was available. A child care facility is at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital for employees, but the couple chose not to pursue that option. "We both really wanted to be involved in the picking her up, taking her, that kind of thing," Sally said. The responsibility would have been mostly Sally Bailey's if Meridith had gone to the hospital's facility.

"Being a nurse, I wanted her in a setting where she wouldn't be around a lot of other children.'

Three children are in that day care home, making it less likely that Meridith will become ill if the others are BOTH BAILEYS wanted a facility where their daughter would get plenty of attention.

"I think I was looking for somebody to help me be a

Sally Bailey has extensive training and experience as a nurse; even so, she was a bit nervous about becoming a mother and wanted a caregiver who would provide emotional support. Their caregiver doesn't mind phone calls from worried parents

Bud Bailey works mostly weekday business hours, with occasional overtime. His wife's schedule includes working 7 or 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 or 5 p.m. or later.

'I usually take her because it's on my way," he said. Sally Bailey isn't too comfortable dropping her daughter off, and prefers to pick her up in the evening.

SHE SOMETIMES has to call her husband and ask him to pick Meridith up. Their care provider has a 5 p.m.

"So we try to manage that," Sally Bailey said. "Plus, she's there so many hours."

Sally Bailey had eight weeks of maternity leave and took an additional month of vacation time after that before returning to work.

She had spent four years in college and two years in graduate school. Bailey has found this to be an exciting time for the nursing profession, and didn't want to leave her field. She also works for financial reasons.

THEY'RE PLEASED with their child care situation, but still face some difficulties. Their care provider takes a vacation in August.

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Bud and Sally Bailey both work full time outside the home. They're the parents of Meridith, Sally Bailey took a week of vacation time in August. A niece from Bay City came to help out. Other than that, the couple relied on a mishmash of sitters for August.

Bud Bailey got the impression that good care options were few and far between. They were fortunate in their search and didn't have to exhaust all possibilities.

His family is in North Carolina and hers in Bay City, Mich. They couldn't rely on family members to help with child care regularly.

"You can't impose on your friends. It's a good way to lose friends," Sally said.

They advise other parents to shop around and find a day care setting they're comfortable with. "It really makes or breaks how your day goes at work,"

Sally said.

Day care: Who has my baby?

By Shirlee Rose Iden staff writer

Who will care for my child?

Grandma works as a grocery checker or may be off on a cruise. Relatives are in far away cities. Dad walked out when the kids were tiny babies, so mommy has to work. Who will care for her child?

With the sun's light at morning, more than half of American mothers are off to the job, facing the challenges of the work place only after having deposited their preschool children in some type of day care.

According to agencies involved in child care services, as many as two-thirds of preschool children in the country will have working mothers by 1995.

Doctors, lawyers, educators, engineers, clerks, waitresses and office cleaners all ponder the child care question. They are mothers and fathers who ask: "How can we insure the care, cuddling, feeding, socialization of the children we must work to support?

For many mothers, child care choices boil down 40 bringing a relative or helper into the home or seeking a care center or family day care elsewhere.

RESEARCH ON the social development of young children in non-maternal care is just beginning. Moreover, even the early researchers don't always agree.

One study, by psychologist Deborah Phillips of Yale University and colleagues, indicates that the kind, of day care received is of key importance to children's social growth, perhaps as important as family background.

Another study, flashing caution signs for parents suggests that daily separation from mother during the first year of life, even with the child at home, is a risk factor which could lead to a disturbed mother-infant relationship.

Rosalind Gilson, preschool educator, is an educational observer for Head Start and the Merrill-Palmes Institute and was director of the Beth Hayeled Nursery of Congregation Shaarey Zedek in Southfield.

On home day care, she commented: "There are the types of child care in homes, first, group care for up to children requiring a license; and secondly, family care, for up to six children requiring registration." The advantage of family care for the child is that the staff won't pick up and leave. Frequent changes in staff is a big problem in day care.'

Gilson, and others involved, indicate that the only discernable difference between children in day care and kids at home with mother is that the day care kids are "more outgoing and adjustable."

Dr. Berry T. Brazelton, a nationally known child expert, is alarmed because he sees a society of families and parents "not seeming to care about kids."

Teens are acting out all over the country and the one relates them to the parenting of little kids," little said recently. "A working parent coming home has to save some energy, stride in and grab all the kids in a warm hug, then maybe move to a rocking chair and just rock and rock."

"There are too many children in overcrowded rooms with a TV as the teacher," he said. "Money spent on child care does pay off, if its quality child

LINDA BOLTON, a Birmingham pediatrician on the staff of Providence Hospital in Southfield, has many tools to ply her trade. But beside the stethoscope at blood pressure machine, she stocks booklets such "Breast-feeding Guide for Working Mothers" circulated by a company involved in infant nutrition.

"It has instruction for breast-feeding mothers whose babies are in day care while they work," Dr. Bolton said. "Mothers don't have to wean because they are returning to work.'

Bolton, a social worker before going to medical school, is well versed in the problems of child care. "I know every permutation of the child raising situation," she said.

"Some women need to be home with their babies. Other can't. I know bankers, doctors and a pediatrician who stayed home and others who couldn't cope with being at home.

"Some have the luxury of choice, others don't. People who have the most stress are those who don't have to work but have a good job. The major question in this country today is career vs. child raising.

Linda Bolton

"Remember, almost no pregnancies are accidents

BOLTON SAID studies about child care do not con-firm parental guilt. "The 2-, 3- and 4-year-olds love day care centers and many in this area have excellent equipment, even music facilities.

"But, checking out day care is just plain tough

Mothers should talk to other parents, check lic look the place over, and make sure its clean, neat, flexible where you're always welcome.

Two evenings a week, Kathe Hetter leaves her home and goes to work at the Toys R Us distribution center in Canton.

Hetter, 32, spends her time there checking shipping logs. Her work commitment - six hours a week leaves her time to spend with her two children.

Hetter and her husband, Chuck, live in Canton with their children, Allison, 2, and Christian, 4. For now. she's pretty much a full-time mom.

"You're responsible for your own kids," said Chuck Hetter, 31, a Ford Motor Co. engineer at the Rawsonville plant. "We try to be as responsible as possible."

The couple lived in St. Louis, Mo., where Kathe Hetter had worked as a lab technician before the children were born. They moved to Michigan when Christian was just a few months old.

They're glad they decided she would stay at home to care for the children.

When Lynne Homes was studying education at Michigan State University, she didn't hear much about the Montessori method.

"I never really did expect that I would end up working with the very young," said Homes, now an assistant at the Plymouth Montessori School.

Homes, a Plymouth Township resident, earned a bachelor's degree in elementary education from MSU. She taught elementary school for 10 years before her sons were born.

In 1977; Homes and her husband, Michael, moved to Plymouth. Michael Homes is assistant superintendent for instruction with the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools. Their sons, 14-year-old Matt and 16-year-old Mike, were 2 and 3 at that time.

She looked for a school program for her sons and was impressed with the Montessori method. The method, named for Italian educator Maria Montessori, emphasizes training of the senses and guidance to encour-

Lynne Homes was ready to start working part time in her field. She was hired as a Montessori assistant and for the first two years worked in a class with one of her sons.

"They have of course moved on. I've enjoyed it so much I've stayed."

Homes works with the Plymouth Montessori School, now meeting at the First United Methodist Church of Plymouth. The Hines Park Montessori School, run by the same administration, meets at the Canton Free Methodist Church. Local Montessori programs are designed for children ages 21/2 to 6.

Matt and Mike Homes attended Montessori classes through kindergarten and switched to the public schools for first grade. Lynne Homes is glad she was able to be close to them at work in their younger days. "I just had the best of both worlds, I really did."

When her sons were younger, Homes occasionally received calls from their school. She lived nearby and handling those situations wasn't difficult.

HOMES REALIZES it's been a luxury for her to be able to work part time in a field she love

"I still have plenty of time for my family, our home, myself, other interests." In many cases, mothers must work full time outside the home and have difficulty

"That's a serious issue for women and their families," Homes said.

Her job at the Plymouth Montessori School doesn't involve much paperwork. Instead, she's working with the children, providing guidance to help them learn at The program is designed to help children take advantage of their innate desire to learn. Children work with staff members one-on-one, in addition to participating in group activities. The school's calendar is similar to that of the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, with no classes held in the summer.

Children in the Montessori program attend either a morning or afternoon session, each of which lasts two hours and 45 minutes.

It's not necessary to have a college degree in education to be a Montessori assistant, Homes said, although some assistants do. Montessori staff members regularly attend training workshops and programs; a ratio of one adult for each 10 children is maintained.

SHE'S SEEN an increasing need for quality child care. Her class list from last year included six children, or 20 percent of the total, whose parents both work full time outside the home.

A couple of those children are cared for by grandparents, with a couple others cared for in home-based day care settings. The other two are taken care of by a full-time baby sitter or nanny at home, Homes said.

Among the remaining 80 percent in the class, a little more than half come from homes where the mother isn't employed. A little less than half come from homes where mothers work part time, have flexible hours and in some cases do work at home.

'They're in the same place that I was in," Homes said. She's found parents are willing to pay for educational programs; parents are creative in the ways they find day care for the other portion of each day.

As the need for child care continues to grow, more employers will need to start providing it as a fringe benefit, Homes said.

"I think it's been shown that there is greater productivity from employees who have on-site child care.'

JANET PONT, director of the Beth Hayeled Nursery School, says that Congregation Shaarey Zedek has parenting classes for parents who are "juggling the physical and emotional needs of their kids."

'We're also investigating feasibility of younger day care (infants) in a program to be supervised by the Conservative Jewish Movement," Pont said.

A recent recipient of her master's in preschool and parent education, Pont will shortly begin work on her doctorate at Wayne State University.

There is a trend right now for all day kindergartens, but this is for need rather than education," she said. "The needs of parents have changed drastically, but the needs of children are to be children. Play is a child's learning. Overall, children need to develop self-

"Many children in day care are quite resilient and sometimes even more independent than others, but we have to look at long range results."

Today's working parents shop for day care even before conception. Finding just the right place to have a child nurtured is tedious and demanding, but vital.

Shelly Moss Brooks, who heads the child development department at Oakland Community College, hasn't learned about day care in the ivory tower, but as a working mother, a former nursery school owner, and a quality home day care provider. She estimates she has raised more than 10,000 children.

"I practice what I teach, and I try to do it well," she said. "Kids are special and so are parents. Some of our children are spending 11 hours a day in child care, so it is vital to work at developing their self-esteem and

Brooks contends that day care is especially advantageous for only children. She figures that some parents drive a long way to the center, usually on the way to or from their job. "I'm seeing a lot of father involvement. Maybe mom's on a business trip."

Brooks believes that family centers offer children a view of normal family life, that employers should be conscious of the stress over child care and can benefit from taking a part in the solution of these problems, and alleviating work place stress.

"Flex time is wonderful. Part time workers have the best of both worlds," she said.

Speaking in Southfield in 1972, Mary Dublin Keysterling, an economist from Washington, D.C. labeled her talk on day care for preschoolers "the number one item of unfinished business of the American people."

your children become much more flexible," Holmes said. "I think they're much more understanding."

Holmes and her husband, Solomon, are expecting their second child in November. She plans to take a few months off when the baby is born and then return to work.

Holmes has worked at Omnicom full-time since January 1983, and did a college internship there in 1981. She's been in her current position for about three years.

HER HUSBAND works for General Motors in production at the Willow Run plant. The family lives in Ypsilanti Township.

Karissa, who is starting kindergarten this fall, has done just fine in

"It takes some adapting, but they generally do well," Holmes said. 'She's a very outgoing child and I think that helps a lot."

During the first year Karissa was in day care, she stayed with Holmes' mother-in-law.

"That worked out well," she said. Karissa went to her grandmother's Ypsilanti home on those days. Holmes paid her mother-in-law for providing child care, just as she would have for any baby sitter.

When Karissa was about 11/2, her parents decided to put her in a home-based, day-care facility. That home, in Ypsilanti, was licensed to provide care for 12 children.

A local woman, assisted by her mother, ran the facility. Some children there had physical disabilities. "They became very normal to her," Holmes said. The home also had children from "The best thing I can say is that various nationalities and ethnic backgrounds, an experience that helped Karissa.

FLEXIBLE HOURS were another plus at the Ypsilanti facility. Holmes works varied hours; her husband works mostly afternoons.

Karissa went to the facility for several years. At that point, the care giver had a family situation that required her to cut back day care hours. Karissa again went to her grandmother's for child care.

'You know there are always going to be crises here and there," Holmes

She recalled interviewing an applicant who seemed nervous and reluctant to reveal information. Holmes was concerned about that person's qualifications.

"I think it's tough to find good day care," she said. "I think unfortunately there are not enough people who are well-trained who are available."

Holmes, 30, is grateful her husband has helped out with child care and household tasks. She occasionally goes on business trips and feels comfortable leaving their daughter

She's also found being a mother has helped her as a manager,

"I think that being a parent makes you generally a more understanding person," she said. "You understand home crises because you have them yourself. You're less apt to jump to conclusions.'

The couple's lives will change with the arrival of a new baby.

THEY KNOW more about caring for an infant than they did when Karissa was born and their daughter will help them care for the new

"She's been a real help to me and she's real excited about the baby

They are considering having someone come to their home to care for their children. The couple will like day care for the children at their home, particularly during the first six months, she said.

Holmes is active in her church and is president of the Plymouth Business and Professional Women's Club. She enjoys her job and plans to work for another five years or so.

She'd like to stay home at some point while her children are still young. She would also like to do volunteer work, including involvement in the school PTO, Girl Scouts and other activities.

She chose teaching in part because it means she'll be home summers with her children. Hetter knows children reach an age when they're too old for a sitter, but still need some supervision.

She may have a high school student or a neighbor help out with child care part time when her kids are older. Kathe Hetter couldn't see not doing something when her children are older, volunteer work is one option. Many organizations today need volunteers, and in have a difficult time finding them, she said.

Help youngsters prepare for day care

By Julie Brown staff writer

Getting kids ready to go to a child care facility can be challenging, but there are steps parents can take to help. "I think the biggest thing is for parents to have worked

Parents can go slowly in getting children used to spending time at a day-care facility. Parents can spend some time with the child at the child care center or caregiver's

It's a good idea to give some thought to how to say goodbye, Breeden said. It can be detrimental to make too much of a production out of goodbyes.

"On the other hand, you don't want to sneak out."

PARENTS CAN help children adjust by being consistent in their preparation and by providing as much struc-ture and predictability as possible. Children need to know, for example, who is to pick them up and at what

Some parents find it helpful to say their goodbyes at home and have someone else drop the child off. "You don't have to be the martyr."

Parents need to help children develop a sense of autonomy. Children need to be aware that they have rights and should speak up if they're uncomfortable.

"Your best monitor of that is your child." Children can let their parents know if problems develop, Breeden said.

Children should know, for example, that it's not OK to

Some families find goodbye rituals helpful. Parents may, for example, wave goodbye each day at the front door. Some children take a favorite doll or toy with them to the child-care facility.

SOME CLIENTS at Plymouth Family Service, a Plymouth Community United Way agency, worry about their children being in child-care settings. That's particularly common for women. "All of them seem to struggle with the issue of whether to leave their children or not," Breeden said. He's seen that concern, not only among agency clients but among women in general. 'My impression is that it's an uneasy peace, particularly for a lot of mothers. I see very much that kind of struggle in them over trying to blend those two roles." His sense is that parents benefit from having their children in care facilities on-site or close to work. Having greater access to their children helps ease parents' fears. ECONOMIC CIRCUMSTANCES require many women to work outside of the home these days, and balancing those responsibilities is difficult. "Maybe that's where fathers need to come in more," said Breeden, the father of two young adult children. Maybe that's the next step.' It's become more acceptable for fathers to take an active part in child care. Even TV commercials show rhore men in that role. "I think it's happening," he said. "It's changing. Men are a little more involved, and they should be."

Children and mothers aren't the only ones who benefit when fathers take on an active role, Breeden said. "It's because they miss something as fathers by being Continued from Page 1

Child care benefits, long overlooked by corporate America, are receiving renewed attention by employers scrambling to fill jobs from a shrinking labor pool.

"The benefit of the '90s," predicts Georgiana Jasnowski of the 4-C Child Care Coordinating Council in Wayne County. "Employers have to do something," she said, in view of "a decreasing work force and more jobs."

Jasnowski's 4-C counterpart in Oakland County, Paulette Chaplin, agrees.

"Severe labor shortages at entry level positions already exist. While big employers aren't feeling the crunch yet, they very soon will. And I think they're going to be forced into providing child care services," Chaplin said.

To date, few firms offer such benefits. Of an estimated 6 million companies nationwide, a mere 4,150 have programs, based on figures maintained by the National Commission on Working Women.

In Michigan, an estimated 200 firms, 30 percent located in metropolitan Detroit, offer various programs, but most are limited because "the whole concept is new to corporate America," according to one corporate official whose firm launched benefits this summer.

"A CAFETERIA-STYLE benefit program" offering a variety of options is the ideal, according to John Szutarski of Alexander Hamilton Life Insurance in Farmington Hills. Last May, the firm offered a flexible payment account, today's benefit of choice by most corporations.

Under such a plan, untaxed salary is earmarked for child care costs, saving the employee and the corporation taxes on withheld sums. While actual benefits are small, the program is considered by many to be at least a beginning.

Fidelity Bank, a community bank with branches in Birmingham, Bloomfield Township, Southfield and Troy, and Olin Industries in Livonia maintain such accounts.

Alexander Hamilton also implemented flexible work schedules this summer. From May to September, work hours were extended Mondays through Thursdays. Each Friday, the workday ended at noon.

Flexible working hours "provide extended opportunity for families to be together, increased R and R time on the weekend," Szutarski said. The firm is now considering flexible work schedules on a permanent basis.

Six years ago, employees of the city of Southfield decided an onsite day care would be an asset for them. With the passage of years, all of those parents' children are now in school, but the idea'

Within a month the Southfield Employees Day Care Center will open in the old Tennis and Arts Center of the Civic Center. It will be the first municipal child care center in Oakland County.

Other possibilities for consideration include child care subsidies in lieu of health, vacation or other benefits now earned by employees and resource and referral systems that assist in tailored child care, rather than settling for what is readily available.

Presently, Burger King of Michigan subsidizes wages of employees at 19 outlets in Kent, Ottawa and Montcalm counties, paying an additional $1.50 hourly to those with young children. The big three auto firms, GM, Ford and Chrysler, each offer resource and referral services.

"MORE WOMEN THAN ever before are majoring in accounting, some 50 percent of all students," said Barbara Fornasiero of Plante & Moran, an accounting firm with offices in Southfield and Rochester.

"We looked at our demographics, who we are hiring, and decided it's necessary to do these kinds of things for the viability of the company," Fornasiero said of child care benefits offered by that firm.

In addition to extended parental leave (18 weeks beyond accrued paid leave) and flexible funding, the firm offers free on-site child care each Saturday in the Southfield office during tax season, from January to mid-April. Up to 20 children ages 18 months to 12 years are cared for in a specially outfitted conference room that is converted into a day care center.

Quality on-site child care is costly and almost always requires some corporate funding, especially when starting up and if infants and toddlers are included, according to Janet Munson.

"It's expensive bringing child care onto your campus," said Munson, an early childhood specialist whose firm, on-site Child Care Services, has assisted in establishing many of the 17 on-site corporate centers now in Michigan, including those at Pontiac Osteopathic and St. Joseph hospitals in Pontiac, St. Mary in Livonia and William Beaumont in Troy.

Hospitals, responding to critical nursing shortages (many of whom are child-bearing age females) and the expense in training new employees, are setting trends in on-site care, aimed at stabilizing employee pools.

BOTSFORD HOSPITAL in Farmington Hills operates a stateof-the-art facility, featuring furnishings scaled in size to fit small children and felt-covered walls.

Launched three years ago by Munson and partner Kathleen Boylan, the center has an open door policy that permits unscheduled parental visits throughout the day, creating a "fish bowl" effect that Munson and Boylan said results in quality care.

Still, in spite of recent expansion that now accommodates 80 children, admission waits are lengthy and hours of operation, 6 a.m. to 6 p.m., do not accommodate employees on night shifts. Costs range from $105 weekly or $3 hourly for infants and toddlers to $80 weekly or $2.50 hourly for children ages 2 to 5 years.

The Botsford center is a corporate model, according to Munson

The wave of the future, Boylan added, are centers catering to both the young and the old, "combined care for sandwiched families" responsible for the care of children and aging parents.

Employers, Munson said, "need to realize how important the entire family picture is to the health of the employee and then be responsive to those needs. If not, everyone — the employer and taxpayers like — is going to be paying costs four or five times over down the road when the children who aren't getting quality care today are grown."

Complex to offer on-site day care

By Janice Brunson staff writer

When Birmingham-based developer Peter Burton married Sandi Burton in 1980, she had a son, Christopher, then 9.

Her tales about the difficulty in finding adequate child care as a working single parent before the marriage impressed Burton, seeding an idea he has translated into an innovative touch in an enormous commercial project under way by Burton and partners Robert Katzman and Ronald Hughes.

The Arboretum Office Park
Complex in Farmington Hills, a six-stage development containing a million square feet of office space, will contain an onsite child care center for tenants of the six massive buildings in the project.

"It's a commitment to society at large, a way of making the world a better place to live," said Burton, 35, describing himself as "sensitive to social issues" as a result of the 1960s.

The center will be located in the fifth building, slated for, construction next year when space in the recently completed fourth building is fully let.

Mercy Health Services, Delta Dental and TRW, a credit bureau, now occupy space in the complex. They and another 30 or so tenants were polled about interest in a child care center.

OF THOSE WHO responded, "100 percent were very suppportive of the idea," according to Joanne Fletcher of Arboretum Properties, the firm developing the project. Fletcher recently completed an exhaustive search for a child care operator.

"We wanted to use a local vendor, someone able to adapt to the interest of the develoment. We didn't feel the (national) chains were flexible enough for us," Fletcher said. A decision will be made later this month from an array of possible providers, including existing child care centers seeking expanded facilities, area consultants and national firms specializing in the development of child care centers.

Such firms are relatively new on the horizon, in the forefront of a promising industry now that corporate child care is emerging as "the employee benefit of the '90s."

Gerber Children's Centers, a division of Gerber Products in Fremont, offers a franchised turnkey operation such as that now in operation at Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit. Children's World and Kindercare offer similar franchises.

Some 20 firms in metropolitan Detroit provide more individualized servicest including Americare, noted for expertise in establishing resource and referral systems, and the Merrill-Palmer Institute at Wayne State University that offers a host of services.

Sandi Burton's tales about the difficulty in finding adequate child care prompted her husband, Birminghambased developer Peter Burton, to include on-site child care at the new Arboratum Office Complex in Farmington Mills.

State lawmakers prefer volunteer child care plans

By Tim Richard

Republicans and Democrats agree: State government shouldn't mandate child care benefits, but it's wonderful if businesses provide benefits voluntarily.

"We did not want governmentmandated benefits," said state Rep. Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia, chair of a GOP task force that is producing how-to booklets for business and giving non-cash awards to employers that run a good program. "We need to stroke companies for new ideas."

"We're not handling it as a women's issue. It's not a women's issue," said Jeanette Hercik, a highranking official in Gov. James Blanchard's state Commerce Department.

"I'm not a child development person. I'm a working mother," added Hercik, who is putting together a 21-member, business-dominated task force on child care this fall

THERE ARE virtually no bills in Michigan's legislative hopper on child care, although in time there may be cautious advances in licens-

There are federal income tax benefits to setting up child care programs, and both parties are scurrying to make the 1986 tax law better known

House Republicans have a free booklet called "The Michigan Employers' Guide to Child Care" that covers taxes and other ideas.

The Blanchard administration is setting up tax-free accounts for state employees. And his Treasury Department is working on a plan to do the bookkeeping for small businesses unable to do it themselves.

It works like this: The employee has up to $5,000 of pre-tax earnings deducted and set up in a special "child/dependent care account." A couple earning $36,000 can save $1,244 on federal income taxes, $230 on state income taxes and $375 on social security taxes for a total of $1,849.

There's a short-run disadvantage: Social security taxes and benefits are also reduced, lawmakers point out.

The worker draws on this account to pay for child care.

Blanchard announced in his State of the State address that Treasury will do "care accounts plus" bookeeping for small businesses. Beier said it's "not up and running yet" but will be ready about Jan. 1.

Under that, employers will withhold employees' care account money as well as taxes and submit them to Treasury, which will do the accounting. Employees would submit reimbursement requests to the state, which would make payments from individual "care accounts

If 30,000 Michigan families set up child care accounts, the state Treasury estimates it would lose only about $7 million in revenue — 1/10th of 1 percent of the budget.

JEANETTE Hercik of the Commerce Department said Blanchard will announce the 21 members of the child care task force sometime this month.

"Fifteen will come from the private sector. The private sector should have a majority," she said.

"It will have a business perspective — the economic climate — not a social service perspective. We want to maintain Michigan's competitive advantage."

Hercik said Blanchard himself will chair the group's few meetings in its 90 days of life.

Her view is that many businesses want to do the right thing but don't know how. "Companies are calling me on how to do child care because they're not in the kid business," she

WHAT KINDS of changes could a task force recommend?

• A child care ombudsman in the Commerce Department.

• Training of day care providers. At present, a provider working at home with fewer than six children need only register with the state Department of Social Services. Larger establishments must be licensed.

 A study of capital needs of providers.

 Mechanisms to help groups of employers provide joint programs.

 A statewide how-to conference for employers. (The Michigan Small Business Forum, held in Novi in May, had a seminar on the topic.)

MEANWHILE, the state and federal governments continue to provide $863,000 to the "Four C's" — "Child Care Coordinating Council.

"It has 13 regional offices in the state," said Sue Allen, who manages that account for the state in the Office of Children and Youth.

Senate child care measure broadens role of government

Senate Bill S5, (ABC) the Act for Better Child Care, was passed on June 23, 1989, authorizing subsidies and tax credits for child care.

Final version of the the Senate bill authorized $1.75 billion in grants to the states for subsidies to child care providers and payments to parents. States would be required to set standards for child care providers.

In the House, the bill is now being moved along by the Ways and Means Committee.

IT APPEARS both parties in the House and Senate are trying to provide some measure of federal relief for working parents.

HB3, sponsored by California Democrat Augustus Hawkins, would carry out a three-pronged delivery of child care.
Approximately 25 percent would finance full day/full year programs for Head Start, and more children, some from families with somewhat higher incomes, would be served.

Another quarter chunk would flow directly to preschools to establish or expand early childhood programs and before and after school i "latchkey" programs.

Approximately 35 percent would be made available to child care providers to pay for day care programs for infants, toddlers and children under 13 years old.

The remainder would finance grants to help states coordinate child care activities, improve standards, provide training and enforce regulations at the local level.

THE BILL would allow the poorest families to get services for free, but moderate-income families would have to pay based on a sliding scale.

A presidential veto is possible, according to Labor Secretary Elizabeth Dole and Health and Human Services Secretary Louis Sullivan.

Dole said in a letter to the committee that the range of choices available to parents would be restricted due to the bias in favor of center based care and against informal arrangements favored by many parents.

Labor Act outlines wages, standards for in-home sitters

Child care workers who receive at least $50 in cash wages in a calendar quarter or work a total of more than eight hours a week are entitled to a minimum wage of $3.35 an hour, according to the Pair Labor Standards Act.

Operators of preschool or day care centers who have fewer than two employees or whose only employees are members of their immediate family are not subject to the not.

When your child becomes ill, a parent inevitably will have to take occasional days off from work. A new type of child care, called sickchild care, is gradually emerging in the Detroit area. These are options to consider if your child is only mildly ill or has to stay in bed for one or two more days before returning to school. Or perhaps you absolutely have to be at work for one reason or

Celebrating a 25th anniversary with prayers, games

The Rev. Dr. Paul Foust, former Evangelism Secretary of the Michigan District, Lutheran Church Missouri Synod spoke during the services. He was joined by the congregation's first two called pastors, the Rev. David Romberg and the Rev. Kenneth Zielke. The current pastor, Rev. K.M. Mehrl has served the parish since May 1987.

That afternoon the congregation rallied around an old fashioned family picnic complete with barbequed chicken in Township Park. Children teamed up with partners and tried to outrace and outhop each other to the finish lines. Adults joined in a sing-along and watched a video on evangelism. Former parishioners were invited to attend.

Desire to serve motivates new associate pastor

By Julie Brown staff writer

NTIL RECENTLY, the Rev. Lee Seese hadn't spent much time in Michigan. Seese, the new associate stor at the First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth, started work

Aug. 23. Before that, Seese had served as interim pastor at a Presbyterian church in Seattle. He'd been to Michigan to visit pastor friends periodically, while he was passing through the state to other destinations.

The basic response we got when we said we were moving was 'Where?'

Seese and his wife, Lisa Konick, recently moved to Plymouth. They have a son, Jeremy, 21/2. Lisa Konick, a journalist, has worked for The Seattle Times and done freelance work for The New York Times.

Some people he spoke with before moving thought Michigan was just Detroit and that Detroit was just crime. Seese, however, found the people he met here to be warm and genuine.

'So my first impression was good. I'm more of a people person than a place person.'

War on drugs begins at home

moral perspectives Rev. Lloyd

The enemy has been located. War has been declared and forces mobilized to destroy the enemy. The war on drugs has turned its course to a war on the drug lords of Colombia.

The drug lords of Colombia are easy to hate. I can't think of a single redeeming feature in any of their actions that bring drugs to the users in any country. Everything they do to produce and provide drugs for street use is among the most reprehensible of all human activity.

The drug lords of Colombia surely need to be brought to justice. Whatever our country can do to assist Colombia in bringing these destroyers of life to the public tribunals of justice and order we must do as surely as we joined with our Allies in defeating the enemies of World War II.

Book tackles cholesterol issue

OK, so you went for your yearly checkup and came home with a list of good and bad foods. Your doctor didn't say much, just nodded at your cholesterol level. It's 220, high but considered high normal.

Is it time to join the oat bran generation?

Not necessarily, but it is time to rethink your eating habits, according to Drs. Glenn Griffin and William Castelli, the authors of a new book, "Good Fat, Bad Fat: How to Lower Your Cholesterol and Beat the Odds of a Heart Attack."

In their book, the doctors try to cut through the confusion about how to reduce "cholesterol calories" and focus on the real culprit in the war against clogged arteries - saturated fat.

"Merely reducing the amount of cholesterol you eat is not enough because your body manufactures cholesterol when you eat saturated fat," the doctors said. "If you want clean and open arteries, you can make the decision to change your eating habits and live longer - or don't change and eat yourself into an early grave."

Rest assured, "Good Fat, Bad Fat" doesn't read like a Danielle Steele novel, but it is an eye-opener for the fast-food generation.

According to the doctors, the average cholesterol level of adults in the United States, Canada and similar cultures is 210. And the odds of dying of a heart attack or stroke are 50-50.

HOWEVER, most other people around the world have cholesterol levels of 150 - and they don't have as much coronary-artery disease The reason is that they don't eat as much saturated fat as most North Americans. Their diets include beans, rice, seafood and fruits

North Americans, on the other hand, are heavy meat-eaters and dabble in fast-food meals. Think of saturated fat shaped like a stick of butter, then think about a typical fast-food lunch of a big chee burger, french fries and milkshake You've just consumed a half of stick of saturated fat.

This isn't a run-of-the-mill how-to book. It can be technical at times, but for the most part, the book does what its title implies.

It delves into the good and bad cholesterol and fats found in the human body and in foods. It also offers a simple formula for calculating daily saturated fat/cholesterol consumption and as an added bonus, a recipe section that includes the amount of saturated fat and cholesterol in each serving.

The book isn't a cure-all for cholesterol problems, but it does offer tips on how to eat out and not blow your program to reduced saturated fat and cholesterol intake. And throughout, the doctors stress the need to know your cholesterol level and have it checked at a cholesterol screening or monitored by a physi-

The authors aren't just expounding on medical knowledge. In fact, they point out that as recently as 1986, only 40 percent of physicians knew that a high-fat diet has a large effect on coronary-artery disease.

· Part of what they write about is from experience.

Griffin knows first-hand the ramifications of eating bad fat. The editor-in-chief of two McGraw Hill medical journals, "Postgraduate Medicine" and "Senior Patient," he had bypass surgery after it was discovered a vital coronary artery was 98 percent blocked and another also was also found in the right coronary

GRIFFIN KNEW about his problem with bad fat, and in his quest to figure out what to eat without worsening his condition, he discovered it was "mind-boggling."

"With the skimpy information available, it seemed I would need a full-time personal mathematician and a gourmet dietician," he said. "I definitely needed better answers and a simpler system than anyone explained to me."

Castelli is considered a crusader, traveling the country and the world to educate people about the dangers of saturated fat and cholesterol.

Appointed medical director of the Framingham Heart Study at the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute, he has been recognized by the U.S. Public Health Service with a meritorious service medal for his ef-

Budgeting college expenses

It doesn't take person with a perfect SAT score to determine that the costs of a college education go far beyond tuition, room and board.

The Farmington Hills-based Michigan Association of CPAs advises that college students develop a budgthat can rapidly empty your wallet.

The easy part is calculating the amount of money you have available to spend. Most students have four possible sources of money: a parttime job, a savings account, a monthly allowance supplied by parents and scholarship or loan money (or what's left after paying for tuition, room and board).

Now comes the hard part: planning for expenses. Some colleges will provide you with an estimate of how much you may need for personal expenses, but these figures can be way off the mark. After all, the college's calculations probably miss important personal expenses, such as those marathon telephone calls to your best friend on the other side of the country

To simplify the budgeting process, break down your expenses into categories such as books, supplies and lab fees; meals; transportation; toiletries; utilities; and entertainment.

START WITH books and supplies. You may hate to spend $45 on that computer textbook, but if your heart is set on a career as a systems analyst, you better be ready to foot the

Go to the local book store and scan the prices of books you may have to buy over the next year. Some courses will land you in the texts costing top dollar. Find out now when you can anticipate the expenses rather than next term, when you may have

To develop a realistic budget, evaluate each of your expenses exnausted buuget. Don't forget to include lab fees and the cost of such supplies as notebooks, typewriter ribbons and computer disks

Even if you are on a meal plan, reserve some money for those midnight snacks. If you can't resist Friday night pizza outings, make sure you include the cost in your budget.

WHETHER YOU are commuting or living in a dorm, you will have to contend with transportation expenses. Calculate how much a visit home costs and how many visits you plan to make. Talk to your parents and find out if they are willing to pay for any trips home. If you own a car, estimate how much gasoline you may use each week. It is likely the car will need repairs or a tune-up during the year?

If you are living away from home, remember that you will now have to pay for such basic necessities as toothpaste, shampoo and laundry. Although these items seem insignificant, they can add up to a sizeable sum by year's end.

Other expenses to consider are utility bills. If these are not included in your room and board fees, ask other students to estimate how much you can expect to spend. And, of course, no budget is complete until it includes entertainment expenses. If you are a movie buff, don't forget to reserve a few dollars for an occasional night out at the movies.

TRY TO ESTIMATE expenses

realistically, and as a safeguard against unexpected costs, increase your total by 10 percent. You won't be sure your estimate is on target until you've tested it a few months. So try your budget out and see how it fits. During the first month or two, jot down every dime you spend so you know where your money is going and whether your budget figures are accurate. If the same patterns continue the next month, adjust your budget accordingly. But what if you can't make ends meet? The solution is easy, even if achieving it isn't. You have to increase your income or decrease your expenses.

Chances are you've already exhausted all the normal options for producing income. If so, maybe it's time for you to try a more creative approach. Some schools offer venture-capital money to help launch student entrepreneurs. Students have successfully initiated businesses to fill obvious needs, such as typing term papers, running a wake-up call service or house sitting.

ALTHOUGH YOU may think you are living on a bare-bones budget, you will be surprised at how much you can still cut back. Often your college ID can be the key to discounts on food, entertainment, haircuts and school supplies. Don't hesitate to ask when paying for goods and services.

Shop for food and personal items wisely, taking advantage of sales and coupons. To save on transportation costs, plan ahead to buy discounted airline tickets. Find out if buses and trains in your area offer discounts to student travelers. To trim your telephone bill, shop around for the best long-distance rates and make your calls at non-peak times when rates tend to be lower.

To ease the burden of buying books, buy used texts from other students or book stores. But plan on shopping early because supplies of used books are generally limited.

Shop around for the bank that best meets your needs. In comparing, consider such convenience factors as location, hours and automated teller machines, as well as savings rates and checking charges. Find out if the bank offers special student accounts such as no-fee checking.

With a little bit of planning, you can have your education and an oc-casional night out, too.

Reformulating gas beats switching to methanol

On a clear day you can barely see Los Angeles, which is why the latest California clean air initiative runs roughshod over political sensibilities and bans barbecues, charcoal lighter fluid and even some house paint, all of which are blamed in some small part for their contribution to the choking clouds of smog that Californitins seem to thrive on.

As California goes, so goes the na-tion, as anyone who has filled in the holes in an abandoned trampoline center can tell you. This is one reason why President Bush is encouraging the use of methanol as an alternate fuel for automobiles

METHANOL IS a type of alcohol that burns with fewer hydrocarbons than gasoline. It's generally accepted that smog is mainly the result of uhburned hydrocarbons that float up into the atmosphere and react in the presence of sunlight_to turn into Johnny Carson jokes. Since gasoline is mainly hydrocarbons, and auto engines burn the stuff, gasoline is a primary culprit in urban air pollution. But while methanol does burn cleaner than gasoline, it generates fumes that act like peeling onions on your eyes. It also takes twice the amount as gasoline for equivalent mileage, and is so toxic a small amount ingested causes blindness. Also, there isn't enough produced today to propel more than a handful of cars, and developing a production capacity large enough to supply the stuff would mean building up a whole new industry.

A RECENT copyrighted story in Automotive News suggests that there is a hidden pact between the auto companies and oil refiners to kill the use of methanol as an alternative fuel out of vested self-interest

- an accusation the powers that be

Still, the suggestion that alternate fuels might work has shaken the industry out if its doldrums.

By now, we are nearing the end of two decades of legislation and engineering work aimed at controlling so-called auto emissions. Early efforts at making cars burn cleaner involved twiddling with the engine tuning and had the side effect of cutting mileage roughly in half just as the Arabs cut off the supplies of

THE BREAKTHROUGH was the introduction of the catalytic converter in 1975 by General Motors, an invention that hangs underneath your car and simply burns up the gasoline that isn't burned in your engine. This meant that engines could be retuned and returned to their former mileage, while about 90 percent of the hydrocarbons still were removed from the exhaust.

Arguably the invention of the catalytic converter accounts for almost all the progress in the effort to clean up air. Catalytic converters have been fine tuned, made more durable and ultimately ended up on all the cars on the road, immensely improving air quality.

BUT LIKE they say, there's no free lunch. Catalytic converters don't work with lead additives used to boost octane. The butane-based additives used in unleaded gasoline tend to evaporate easily - creating pollution on their own.

Also, the life of a catalytic converter originally was planned to be only half of the life of the car, which means the guy buying the transpor-tation special gets stuck with replacing it. Of course, he doesn't anyway — killing the effect of the whole sys-

Both are reasons why auto com nies are interested in reformulating gasoline so that it doesn't evaporate so easily and helps catalysts to live longer. Changing gasoline isn't as simple as it seems, since we consume such hage quantities of the stuff that altering the refining pro-cess is a multi-billion dellar change.

REGARDLESS, THE auto comp nies and oil refiners are starting to see that as preferable to developing. a new system to make and distribute something as alien as methanol.

So now the Big Three and major oil refiners are forming a joint re-search effort to study major fuel al ternatives aimed at improving air quality.

Clearly, the spectre of having to develop a separate production and distribution system such as methanol, as proposed both by California and the new clean air legislation, basroused interest in seeking a more viable alternative, and the first priority is an improved gasoline formula.

Kiddie tax can't prevent deflection

Fourth of five parts

By Sid Mittra

The fourth tax reduction strategy is deflection, which involves the shifting of taxable income to someone in the lower tax bracket. There are several ways of accomplishing this objective.

The kiddie tax is based on a parent's top rate if (1) the child is under 14, and (2) has net investment income after reducing gross investment income by $1,000. This tax is not levied on earned income. Investment income may consist of interest, dividends, royalties, rents and profits on the sale of property.

Only net investment income is subject to tax at the parent's top rate. For purposes of this rule, net investment income equals gross investment income minus $1,000 if the child does not itemize deductions. If itemized deductions is used, net investment income equals gross investment income reduced by the larger of (1) $1,000, or (2) $500 plus itemized deductions that are directly connected with the generation of investment income.

Notwithstanding the new kiddie tax rules, a number of strategies can be used to beat the kiddle tax. For instance, a taxpayer can take advantage of the fact that the first $1,000 of an under-age-14 child's unearned income is tax-favored. This is done by transferring assets that produce up to $1,000 of annual unearned income for the child. Another strategy is to switch the child's savings into investments that pay little or no current taxable income. these investments include U.S. Series EE bonds, municipal bonds and zero coupon bonds. Also, minor's trusts, under which assets and earnings do not have to be turned over to the child until age 21, probably are taxed at a lower trust rate even though the child is under 14 and has income of over $1,000. However, eventually this strategy does result in double

An attractive way to shift income is for an individual with a high marginal tax bracket to give gift to a child in a low tax bracket. A gift of cash benefits the taxpayer to the extent that the after-tax return received by the child would presumably be higher than the after-tax return received by the taxpayer. A gift of appreciated property, such as common stock or income-producing property, can bring even higher tax benefits. For instance, the appreciated stock could be liquidated and reinvested to generate a greater after-tax return for the child than it would be for the taxpayer.

An example can demonstrate the use of gifts as a way of reducing the tax liability. Assume John Smith wishes to create a college fund for his son Mike and has $5,000 in a money market earning 7 percent interest. Assuming a 28 percent tax bracket, John currently pays a tax of $98 (28 percent of $350). If he gives the money to Mike who has no other. sources of income, Mike immediately gains $98 because he would not owe this tax to the government.

Actor Todd Heughens, a former Troy resident, couldn't get an audition for a role in "Fiddler on the Roof" but with ingenuity, he managed to become a dancer in the show.

"Fiddler," which opens Tuesday at the Fox Theatre in Detroit, stars Topol, who played the lead role in the movie version of "Fiddler on the Roof," released by United Artists Pictures in November 1972.

"The producers (of the stage production) were worried that everyone who was interested in seeing 'Fiddler' had already seen it," Heughens said during recent telephone interview from Cincinnati, where the production was playing.

"But they want to see it again — done right. They've all seen the dinner theater and community theater productions, and now they want to see the guy (Topol) from the movie."

"FIDDLER" RUNS through Sunday, Sept. 24, at the Fox. Besides being one of the dancers, Heughens also understudies the part of Mendel, the Rabbi's son. As Heughens said, "I was hired as a dancer — slash — understudy."

He was nearly not hired at all for the production.

"I was out of town working in Cincinnati, which is where I am right now, when they (the producers) were holding principal calls, auditions for the leading roles, and I had my agent submit me anyway, and I was thinking I could always fly in." Flatly he said, "They didn't want to see me for any of the roles."

Determined to get a part, Heughens attended a cattle call for the show when he returned to New York

"There were about 250 guys auditioning as dancers, and by the end of the day, there were maybe 80 left. They called us back for another day, and throughout the day — the sixhour audition — they weeded it down to eight. It's a pretty grueling

What's surprising is that Heughensgot a part without really knowing much about "Fiddler on the Roof."
"I hadn't even seen 'Fiddler' — the movie or the play — before I auditioned for it," he said.

Heughens explained, as simply as he could, what "Fiddler on the Roof" is about. "The storyline has to do with this man, Tevye (played by Topol) and his relationship with his three daughters, and through the show each of them ends up falling in love, and Tevye has to deal with them wanting to spend the rest of their lives with these three men, when the tradition is that they would be set up with men chosen by a matchmaker . . . The third daughter falls in love with a Russian - a non-. and he just can't deal with that. He (Tevye) says, 'I can only bend so far before I break!"

Heughens described the production as "almost a perfect musical." He added, "It really gets to the heart. It's very funny and very moving. And, certainly, Topol does a, wonderful job with it."

ALSO IN THE CAST is Ruth Jaroslow, who plays — as she has for many stage productions over the last 20 years — Yente. Roz Harris, who joined the cast in Cincinnati, is Tevye's wife. In the 1971 movie, she was one of the daughters, Zeitel.

So far, the production has been on the road for about 12 weeks. It's scheduled for a 40-week tour of the country, which has already taken it to audiences in such cities as San Francisco, where it opened; Seattle,

SITTING BACK in a comfortable lounge chair in the lobby of the St. Regis, a casually dressed, long-haired Richard Jay-Alexander declared, "Detroit makes me nervous."

"There are no guarantees in this business. I don't come in here cocky, sure of myself, thinking that we can't lose. I have been told that this is a great theater town but I am not ready to cash in my chips."

Jay-Alexander was still jetlagged from his flight from Las Vegas the night before. The associate director and executive producer of what has become the most successful musical of all time, "Les Miserables," he was exuberant as he talked about his show. Next door, the sets had been hung at the Fisher Theatre, ready for the first rehearsal of the Chicago cast.

"Les Miz" played for nine months in Boston, six months in Philadelphia and six months in Chicago. There are five casts now playing North America and 17 casts around the world. The Broadway production costs $4-½ million but recouped the investment in only 23 weeks. It now records weekly profits of hundreds of thousands of dollars for the show's English producer Cameron Mackintosh. As mastermind of "Cats," "Les Miz," and "Phantom of the Opera," Mackintosh is the most powerful producer anywhere.

"MACKINTOSH WOULD have

He also appeared in a well-received production at Pord's Theatre in Washington, D.C., called "The Hot Mikado," which looked as if it would go to Broadway.

"They had Broadway in mind and it ('The Hot Mikado') was a huge hit in Washington, and we were given Broadway opening dates (and) re-hearsal dates and everything. I wasn't living in New York at the time, and they said, 'Well, you better find an apartment!' And I did, and I never heard anything about it (the show going to Broadway)."

I have seen it perhaps more times than anyone else maybe as many as 1,000 times - but it still moves me when I hear the music or see it again."

What makes this "pop opera" dif-ferent from a traditional opera is the acting demands on the cast. The actress who plays Eponine appears in a variety of roles in the show. "Les Mix" opened in Paris in 1980 as a series of tableaux. The French audience was familiar with the story so no explanation was needed between the scenes. When Mackintosh decided to take the show to London. he had it rewritten, shortening it to three hours and adding many of the famous songs - "Stars," "Empty Chair and Empty Tables" and "Bring Him Home." It's an old-fashioned country fair and it's called the International Plowing Match, 600 exhibitors on 100 acres, from September 19 through 23. You'll like the folk dancing, the big draft horses, the sounds of steam-tractors and a hearty farm dinner. Or shop for pottery and glass, wooden rocking horses, wildlife carvings and handmade quilts. 8 miles east of Windsor on County road 42. Information available at the Ontario Travel

These bikers are easy to like...

That's because they are a great bunch of conscientious kids who have turned in their Observer & Eccentric newspaper collections accurately and on time.

Their routes take them out into all kinds of weather all year long.

So what better way to show our appreciation than a 10-speed bike? Because these 12 youngsters are exceptional carriers, they were allowed to enter our annual drawing for a new bike. They are winners in every way!

If you have a potential carrier—someone reliable and responsible—in your family or know of someone who does, call us at one of the numbers below.

Gold's goal keeps Salem undefeated

Andy Cosenza of Salem (17) takes control of CEP. Jeff Gold scored the lone goal in Salem's the ball while Jim Yack defends for Canton in the soccer game played Wednesday night at

By Dan O'Meara staff writer

The weather, the field conditions and the opponent caused Jeff Gold to recall a soccer game he'd just as

"This reminded me of the district game last year when Canton beat us," said Gold, who scored the only goal Wednesday night as Plymouth Salem beat the Chiefs a second time .. this season, 1-0.

The chilly air filled with a steady, blowing drizzle and the wet muddy surface at Centennial Educational Park provided a sense of deja vu for both teams.

Gold said the undefeated Rocks, who are rated No. 4 in Class A and have won five of their six games by shutout, used the similarities as motivation, but he also paid tribute to Canton for playing a fine game.

"In school, you keep hearing 'Yeah, we're No. 4 and we'll probably blow them out,' but it's always close when we play Canton," he said. "It was rainy all day, and we knew it was going to be the same kind of

Gold, who had a half dozen nearmisses in the first half, put Salem in front as a result of an direct free kick just five minutes into the game.

The Rocks were in control in the first half, with their much-heralded defense clearing the ball and the offense, led by Gold, pressing the attack. But there was a shift in tempo in the second half, and Canton (3-3-1), which lost 3-0 to Salem in the Plymouth Invitational on Sept. 2, was a more formidable foe.

"I told them they've gotta play a little harder to the ball and try to keep it a bit longer," Canton coach Don Smith said. "They're a good team. I think we've got to score on them first and get fired up, and then maybe we could hold them off."

Gold, a midfielder who leads Salem with 10 goals, said the playing conditions offered a slight advantage to the Chiefs since it's more difficult for the Rocks to play their finesse game on a slippery track.

"We're a controlled team that passes the ball around," he said. "On a field like this, it's so much harder to work the ball. They're a hustling, aggressive team, and they were beating us to the ball."

Canton appeared to have scored the tying goal with 27 minutes left in the game, but the goal, which resulted from a mad scramble in front of the Salem net, was disallowed.

"Somebody must have been knocked down," said Smith, who couldn't see the play clearly and added he was eager to look at the film to determine why it was waved off. "But there was so much pushing and shoving going on, it was hard to pick anybody out. (The goal) would have been a big lift."

Salem's defense and the play of goalkeeper Matt Tudor were up to par throughout the game, but especially when the heat was on late in the contest.

Chris LaJoy made a big play when, with Tudor unable to reach the ball in time, he screened off Canton's Eric Miller in front of the Sa lem net and prevented an almost certain goal.

"Our midfield game is attacking and getting back," Salem coach Ken Johnson said. "When you slosh through the mud for 80 minutes, you lose energy in your legs, and that's when the defense has to come through."

Gold expressed his appreciation for Tudor's work.

"The defense held strong and Tu-dor did a great job," he said. "If not for Tudor, I don't know if we would have come out of this game with a

Johnson said a year ago he thought the Rocks would field a state contender this year and, while the season is still young, Salem's early success has supported his contention.

"Coach talks a lot about the defense, but I think our midfield is one of the best in the state," Gold said. "With our defense and Tudor, I don't see any weaknesses on our team.'

Canton bests field

Fred Libbing, boys golf coach at Plymouth Canton, likes his team's chances this year in light of what the Chiefs did Tuesday.

Canton, led by the twosome of Rod Jesena and Jon Paupore, won the 19th Annual John F. Sandman Best-Ball Tournament at Brae Burn Golf Course, besting 22 other challengers

'If we don't do well, it's because a lot of other teams are a helluva lot better," Libbing said, "because the potential is there to win the division or even the league.'

Jesena, a junior in his third year on the team, and Paupore, a secondyear sophomore, combined for a medal-winning round of 1-under-par 67. In addition, the all-senior duo of Mike Kostick and Geoff Allen provided solid back-up with 69 and helped the Chiefs to a 136 team total.

Par at Brae Burn is 68 since the No. 4 hole - a 600-yard, double-dogleg par-5 - is undergoing reconstruction and has been reduced to a 150-yard par-3. The tee for the tournament was placed at the second do-

"I DIDN'T THINK we'd win it, but I thought we'd come in close," Libbing said. "The guys turned in a helluva round. I don't know what the rest of the season looks like, but if they keep turning in those kind of scores

"I'm real proud of the kids. They work hard in practice every day and want to improve. There has to be lightning or a tornado to cancel practice; that's how motivated they

Ann Arbor Pioneer was second with 142. Billy Lyle and Chih Chang also shot 69 and won a sudden-death playoff against Kostick and Allen for second-place honors.

Walled Lake Western was third at 145, and defending champion Plymouth Salem finished one stroke back in fourth place.

Western's Chris Sobieck and Chris

Schneider combined for a 70, and Eric Matthews and Jason Taterton paced the Rocks with 71. Salem's Dan Alcock and Dave Weaver carded a 75.

"We won the tournament last year and our score was 146." Salem coach Rick Wilson said. "So I'm not disappointed with our score. Normally, it's a good score."

AMONG OTHER Observerland schools, Redford Thurston and Trenton tied for fifth (148), Redford Union was seventh (149), Walled Lake Central 15th (155), Livonia Stevenson 16th (159), Garden City tied for 17th (161), Livonia Franklin 20th (162) and Westland John Glenn 23rd (170)

Canton also defeated Salem in a dual meet last Thursday at Brae Burn, 201-203. Allen was medalist

"That's the first time we've beaten Salem in a while," Libbing said, adding it was Canton's first championship in the best-ball tournament, "and that bodes well for the rest of the year. We won over 22 other schools, and that's quite an honor.'

Consistency lifts Chiefs

Plymouth Canton demonstrated the benefits of pack running Tuesday as the Chiefs made a clean sweep of Plymouth Salem in cross country

The Chiefs defeated Salem 22-33 in the boys race at Cass Benton Park, and the Canton girls whipped the Rocks 15-48. It was the first dual meet for each team.

Brendon Masterson was the boys individual winner. but the Chiefs put the next four runners across - all within 34 seconds of each other. In the girls race, Canton had the top five runners and seven of the first eight.

Masterson ran 17:07 to capture first place, and the Canton foursome that followed consisted of Brian Beach (17:11), Mike Ream (17:33), Matt Boland (17:35) and Jason Napolitano (17:45).

Rounding out the Canton scoring was Matt Hall in eighth place at 18:00. Salem's John Thomas (17:52) and Dave Hamway (17:59) were sixth and seventh, and teammates Brian Uryga (18:14) and Todd Cimo (18:20) finished ninth and 10th.

"WE RAN A good race and so did they," Canton coach Jim Hayes said. "They were real tough at the mile mark, but by the time we came around with three minutes to go our guys had separated a little bit.

"We've got that little bubble that is built in there. We have four kids who are right there, and Matt Hall was real close, too. His time is dropping real fast." A pair of sophomores paced the Canton girls, who have won three straight meetings with the Rocks. Amy Smith was the winner in 22:11, and teammate Carolyn Way was second at 22:43. The senior trio of Missy-Jasnowski, Adrienne Garrow and Kim Rice followed in the next three places with times of 22:59, 23:13 and 23:18, respectively.

Salem's Jenny Harris slipped in the No. 6 spot at 23:36, but Canton's Lara Antezak and Anne Dibble took the next two places with times of 23:44 and 23:45, re-

The Rocks claimed the Nos. 9-12 positions. Alison Rybski ran 23:48, Jennifer Marshke 24:01, Payal Parekh 24:04 and Cathy Boyd 25:32.

"It was a real good start for us, running for the first time (this year) at Cass competitively," Canton spach George Przygodski said.

Swim relays rate as toss-up

Hooker Wellman, coach of the Plymouth Canton girls swim team, ame a father for the second time late Monday night. Sean Marcus Wellman was born at 11:19 p.m., and his arrival could mean good news for more than just the Wellman family.

"Whenever we have a baby arous here, something good seems to hap-pen," said Hooker Wellman, refer-ring to Saturday's Western Lakes Activities Association Relays in which the Chiefs are the defending Plymouth Salem will serve as host for the meet, which begins with diving at 11 a.m. and follows with the swimming portion at 1:30 p.m.

"The last time (when Charlie Wellman was born) Andy Fowler won the state (title in diving)," Wellman said. "Maybe it's an omen. Maybe something good will happen on Saturday."

CANTON HAS the talent to repeat, but a number of other schools, including North Farmington, Livonia Stevenson and Churchill. Plymouth Salem and Northville are strong possibilities, too.

"We definitely have a shot at it, but the league has changed consider-ably," Wellman said. "North Farmington has a lot of people back, Northville won the conference meet by over 100 points and Churchill and Salem are real strong."

Instead of submitting entries this year, coaches had only to name the events they will participate in and

Wellman hasn't seen any of that information, but he said Bill Faunce, the meet director, told him the Chiefs will have to swim faster than last year if they hope to win again.

Canton's only competition thus far was a scrimmage meet with Novi, so the Chiefs have no time to waste getting their feet wet.

"I think we've got a balanced lineup and as strong as we can put together," Wellman said, "but it depends where other teams put their "WE HAVE A good 400 modley, but if North Farmington, Churchill, Northville and Salem decide they want to go for it, too, we could en up fourth or fifth."

North coach Pat Duthie, whose Raiders won the meet two years ago, agrees with Wellman's assessment of the unpredictableness of such a

"A couple of teams could load up in one event, and you could have a couple of pretty good swimmers fin-ishing down the road in that event,"

"We like to approach it like a fun situation. We don't attach an awful lot of importance to the meet, but we're certainly going to try and do the best we can.

Duthie had not made out his final lineup at midweek, but he was probably no different from the other 11 coaches.

"I have no idea where we'll put our kids or how we'll do," he said. "A number of our kids are pretty versatile, so it's hard to make up your mind. We have the same problem everybody else does."

Marlins repeat as relay champ

Farmington Hills Mercy was impressive to say the least in defending its title Saturday in the 11th Annual Griffin Memorial Swimming and Diving Relays.

The Marlins, who have won the Brighton High School meet three consecutive years, captured first place in six of the 10 events and set records in three.

It was also the second straight year Mercy has won the meet without any divers, coach Chuck McClune added. The Marlins had 98 points, West Bloomfield 62, Milan 60, Brighton 54, Adrian 50 and Northville 46.

Mercy's record-setting swims came in the 800- and 400-yard freestyles and the 200 medley.

Michelle McCaffrey, Liz DeMattia and Becky Wiquist were on both freestyle relays. They combined with Erika Smith for an 8:19.48 time in the 800 and with Karen Neyer for a 3:47.69 showing in the DEMATTIA AND Neyer teammed up with Katie Westhoff and Katie Knipper to set a pool record as well as a meet standard of 1:54.75 in the medley.

"We really went after the medley and the 400 and 800 freestyles and stacked those relays," McClune said. "We tried to put our best lineup in those relays to see what they could do."

The Marlins also were the best in the 200 backstroke, 200 freestyle

Chiefs contend for S'craft title

Some of the area's top cross country teams will converge Saturday on Schoolcraft College for the 24th running of the annual high school invitational meet for boys and girls.

The first race begins at 9 a.m. with Plymouth Canton gunning for its third consecutive girls championship under coach George Przy-

Returning as favorites for the girls individual crown will be Farmington's Jennifer Kiel, who finished second behind Walled Lake Central's Colleen Yuhn last year. Another challenge should come from Redford Union's Liza Mockeridge, who was fifth in 1988.

Farmington, which defeated Plymouth Canton in a tiebreaker last season, will be gunning for an unprecedented sixth straight boys

Coach Jerry Young's team, however, will be getting a severe challenge from Plymouth Canton, led by Brian Beach, who was fifth a year ago. Walled Lake Central's banquet at approximately 11:30 Mark Kwiatkowski, second a year a.m.

Raiders start fast

North Farmington was going at full speed when it hit the water Tuesday night for its season debut in girls swimming.

The Raiders registered seven state-qualifying swims in defeating host West Bloomfield 103-69. The meet was to have taken place at North, but the roof over its pool is still being repaired.

"It was a good jumping off point for us," North coach Pat Duthie said. "We have lots of tough stuff ahead of us, but it was nice to have a meet and get our minds off the pool situation and focus on what swimming is all about."

Christie Duthie won the 50- and 100-yard freestyles and met the qualifying standards in each with 25.54 and 55.63 times.

Kerry Doran had one individual first but qualified in two events. She won the butterfly in 1:00.95 and was runner-up to West Bloomfield's Linda Goldstein with a 1:57.55 time in the 200 freestyle. Goldstein swam 1:57.31.

In other events, North's Karrie Kranz and freshman Anna Palmer won the individual medley and breaststroke, respectively, with state-cut times of 2:17.98 and 1:11.01.

The Raiders also took first place in the backstroke with Julianne Markey swimming a 1:05.84 time, and North prevailed in both relays, too. Christie Duthie, Jennifer Wagner, Kranz and Doran posted a qualifying time of 3:48.86 in the freestyle relay, and Markey, Palmer, Kristen Celko and Amy Duthie combined efforts for a 2:00.98 time in the medley relay.

Chiefs plan to defend title in Hoops Classic

Plymouth Canton will return to defend its crown in the Mercy Hoops Classic tonight when it plays St. Joseph in the first round at 6:15 p.m.

The other matchup has the host Marlins playing Trenton at 8 p.m. The championship is slated for 7:45 p.m. Saturday.

The Chiefs were 19-2 a year ago and are 1-1 under first-year coach Bob Blohm. St. Joseph had the same record last season, and Trenton, a loser to Canton in the 1989 opener, was 25-2 and a Class A semifinalist.

Canton defeated Waterford Kettering 54-47 to win the Hoops title last year, and Traverse City downed Mercy 64-45 in the consolation game. Canton guard Michelle Fortier, one of four scholarship players to play in that tournament, was named the most valuable player.

The other players who are now on scholarship in the college ranks were Traverse City's Wendy Merriman and Lisa Anderson (both at Central Michigan) and Kettering's Nicole Leigh (Oakland University). Fortier is at Western Michigan.

Among the top players this year will be Canton center Susan Ferko, a Mercy Hoops all-star last year, guard Jenny Russell and forward Stacey Thompson. The Marlins (1-2) are led by center Lee Albrecht, swing player Joanne Stephens and point guard Jenny Clinton.

Tracey Bloodworth, a Class B all-stater, is the driving force behind the St. Joseph team, and Trenton returns 5-11 Kim Hoppes and 6-0 Katie Mans from its Final Four team.

A young Plymouth Salem girls basketball team did a lot of growing up Saturday night.

After starting the season with three losses, the Rocks defeated a good Parmington Hills Mercy outfit 43-26 in the Salem gymnasium. "We knew, with this team, it was going to take some time and we've got a long ways to go," Salem coach Pred Thomann said. "But it definitely is a building block. I think we've got it in place and can take this game and grow."

The Rocks, who have two players idle with injuries, used balanced scoring and, most importantly, solid defense to get their first victory.

Salem's objective was to keep Mercy center Lee Albrecht, who had 18 points in a loss to South Lyon last week, away from the basket and point guard Jenny Clinton from pen-

"WE WORKED to keep them on the perimeter, and our players did a real nice job of doing that," Thomann said. "We did a great job of controlling the defensive boards, and that was one of the key factors in the

For the team's young players -Giuliani and Austin are sophomores, Volanda Jackson a freshman - Thomann said the victory was especially beneficial.

"No question, this was a growth game for them," he said. "They've been feeling the heat from a lot of teams, and Mercy was no different. But they handled the pressure and because of that we were able to be

What started with such promise Tuesday. OU made 10 errors on service and had 16 more on serve reception. Only middle blocker Jen-Just last week, Oakland Universinifer Zielinski (nine kills in 15 atty volleyball coach Bob Hurdle was tacks with three errors, .400 hitting, envisioning a bright season. He had a four block assists) and setter Janice Van Velsen (eight kills, .429 hitting, team with dominating middle blockers and a new, improved setter. If 27 assists-to-kills) performed well.

At NMU, the hitting was again poor. In Friday's opening loss to North Dakota State (15-4, 15-10, 11-15, 15-6), the Pioneers were -.030; in their 15-5, 15-13, 15-8 loss to FSU, they hit -.012.

There were some bright spots. OU swept NMU 15-8, 17-15, 15-2, with Zielinski getting 11 kills in 18 errorless attacks (.611 hitting). The Pioneers also struggled, but defeated, North Dakota 15-8, 4-15, 15-9, 7-15, 15-9. And the one game they won against North Dakota State was the only game the third-ranked Lady Bison lost in the tournament.

OU will try to get back on track this weekend at the Indiana-Purdue at Fort Wayne Tournament.

St. Agatha coach all wet after victory

staff writer

It took five years, but Redford St. Agatha football coach John Goddard finally took a victory dip in the Grand Traverse Bay.

After being kidded and goaded by a couple of local prep prognosticators, Goddard gladly jumped in for a late Saturday night swim af-ter his Aggies defeated host Traverse City St. Francis, 14-0.

"It was great," said Goddard, who removed his shoes before taking the plunge. "It wasn't even 10 seconds after the game had ended when the kids were already yelling: 'Coach is going swimming, Coach is going swimming.'

"It was a big win for us and it definitely felt good because we've taken our lumps there in the past. We had about 100 people follow us out to the Bay. It wasn't bad. I'd go swimming every week if it meant a

The Aggies played stingy defense and error-free football.

Both scores came as the result of turnovers. St. Francis (0-2) committed six on the night.

In the first quarter, defensive end John DiPonio caused a fumble and teammate Joe Boards, the other defensive end, scooped it up and rambled in 12 yards for a touchdown. (Agatha added the twopoint conversion when holder Ken Kroll hit Kevin Smith with a pass in the end zone.)

In the second quarter, defensive back Fred Schick picked off a pass and ran 51 yards for a touchdown. (He missed the extra point.)

The defense then took over as Brian Kutch added a pair of interceptions and DiPonio recovered two more fumbles.

Spearheaded by the play of Krol, a senior linebacker, the Aggies held St. Francis to 160 yards in total of-

'We felt we could beat them last year and we wound up getting thumped 46-12, but we said this time we've got to get up early and then see how they would react,'

Goddard said. "We did just that." Goddard may have to go swimming again this week.

REDFORD CC 7, LANSING EASTERN 0: State-ranked Redford Catholic Central (2-0) beat the elements (thundershowers) and the Quakers (0-2) in a non-leaguer Saturday at Livonia Clarenceville High.

The Shamrocks were outgained in total yardage, 190-45, but scored the game's only touchdown with 38 seconds left to play in the first quarter when junior quarterback Jason Carr hit Leo Kowalyk with a 5-yard pass. (Kerry Zavagnin kicked the extra point.)

CC's defense, meanwhile, got a boost from Mike Mathis, who thwarted an Eastern drive when he picked off a pass at the goal line and returned it 20 yards in the second period.

Defensive end Tim Jackson was the Shamrocks' top tackler with one sack, four solos and five assists. Linebacker Rich Walsh was in on nine tackles, recording a sack, three assists and five

Dave Owens, CC's leading ball carrier with 124 yards in a season-opening 31-0 win over Detroit Osborn, was held in check. The senior tailback had 49 yards in 16 carries, but had a 30-yard TD run wiped out in the fourth quarter because of a holding call. (Junior fullback Jon Barbara led CC with 54 yards

Experts attempt to rebound

prognosticating duo of Emons and O'Meara, there was a little too much of the latter a week

Not only were many of last Friday's games delayed and/or postponed until Saturday because of severe thunderstorms, but the fearless forecasters also took a bath with some erroneous predictions.

O'Meara was 8-5 last week and Emons 7-6. Both were wrong on the Taylor Center-Thurston, Borgess-Redford Union, Wyandotte-Wayne, Clarenceville-Lutheran East and St. Agatha-Traverse City St. Francis

After two weeks of making predictions, the lone separator has been the Lutheran Westland-Peck game, because it's the only game the two have disagreed on. O'Meara is 20-7 overall, Emons 19-8.

Oh, well, enough about last week's disasters and poor percentages. It's upward and onward. There's some redeeming to be done.

The prep seers are eager to turn those blues into yellow rays of sunshine. They are heartened by the prospects of removing crow from a sports writer's diet.

In a pair of games pitting unbeaten teams, Redford Catholic Central plays at Ann Arbor Pioneer on Friday night and Westland John Glenn visits North Farmington on Saturday

So let's give it another try. The envelope, please:

FRIDAY'S GAMES

(All games 7:30 p.m. unless noted) Farmington at Pty. Salem: The visiting Falcons are 0-2 while the unbeaten Rocks (2-0) are off to a rolling start and building up steam. Can Farmington handle Ryan Johnson and the wishbone offense? Pick: Salem's momentum has a steamroller effect on Farmington.

W.L. Central at Liv. Stevenson: Central (1-1) was manhandled last week by Farmington Hills Harrison, the No. 1-rated team-in Class B, and coach Gary Tuz is right when he says the Vikings won't face many better the rest of the year. Stevenson has had two close games but is 0-2 nonetheless. Pick: Central rebounds from that 56-0 shellacking. Emons believes Stevenson will win this one.

W.L. Western at Northville: One team comes away a winner for the first time. Both are 0-2 but have faced fough opponents in each of their first two games. The Warriors played a pair of 1988 playoff teams in Novi and Westland John Glenn, and the Mustangs played South Lyon and Plymouth Salem. Pick: We have to pick a nner, so the edge goes to Northville.

Harper Woods at Clarenceville: Clarenceville has always been trouble for O'Meara, who picks the Trojans to lose when they win and vice versa. But he thinks he has things figured out this week First-year coach Vic Balaj's team is 2-0, Harper Woods 0-2. Pick: The Trojans take a third victory.

Garden City at Ypsilanti Lincoln: The Railsplitters have been a hard-luck team in the early going, losing twice in overtime to Willow Run and Tecumseh. Garden City also is 0-2 but has been outscored 70-7 Pick: Abe Lincoln would be proud of the 'Splitters' ability to persevere set-

Redford Union at Dearborn, 4 p.m.: Both teams (1-1) have been up and down, and that makes this Northwest Suburban League opener a hard game to predict. RU beat Stevenson and lost to Bishop Borgess. Dearborn lost to Thurston and beat Allen Park Cabrini. Pick: Toss a coin and take the host Ploneers. Emons is sticking with RU.

Red. Thurston at Annapolis, 4 p.m.: The euphoria surrounding Thurston's opening win turned sour last week when the Eagles lost to Taylor Center, but Annapolis is 0-2. If Jesse Walker has a good day, Thurston should do OK. Pick: It's another potential coin-tosser, but give the edge to the Eagles.

Wayne Memorial at Monroe: Monroe has been beaten handily twice, and the 39-0 loss to Fordson indicates the Trojans aren't nearly the team they were last year when they went to the Class A playoffs. Wayne, however, was stung by Wyandotte in one of those games the supposedly omniscient Observer men failed to call correctly. Pick: Wayne wiggles its way into the win column.

Redford CC at A.A. Pioneer: The Sharnrocks rallied from an 18-0 halftime deficit last year to beat the defending Class A champs 22-18. That win avenged a 3-0 loss to the Pioneers in the 1987 state final. This should be another classic in what has become an annual rivalry. CC edged Lansing Eastern 7-0 last Saturday to go 2-0, while Pioneer has beaten East Lansing and Pontiac Northern. Pick: This time it's Pioneer's turn to win. Emons says CC can do it.

Red. St. Agatha at Univ. Liggett, 4 p.m.: Liggett boasts a 2-0 record while the Aggles are 1-1, but that doesn't mean anything in this game. The Knights beat Kinde North Huron and Harper Woods, but St. Agatha has played a pair of traditional Class C powers, losing to the likes of Country Day and beating Traverse City St. Francis. Pick: The Aggies harvest another victory.

Lutheran Wsld. at Tekonsha: Where is Tekonsha, you ask? Well, we checked, and it's in the south-central part of the state between Albion and Battle Creek. The Indians (1-1) are coming off a 20-8 loss to Allendale, but Allendale, as well as first-game opponent Wyoming Lee, is a formidable foe. Lutheran Westland (1-1) must also contend with a lengthy bus ride. Pick: Tekonsha scores a TKO.

SATURDAY'S GAMES (all games at 1 p.m. unless noted)

Liv. Churchill at Farm. Harrison: The Chargers are still a decent 0-2 team, losing to powerful Sterling Heights and, in the mud, to North Farmington. But there's no comparison with Harrison. If Mill Coleman doesn't get you, Steve Hill, Joe George, Roy Granger, Matt Conley, Mike Saputo, Jon Schaeffer, etc. . Pick: Maybe Churchill's season will parallel WWII when Ol' Winnie led the British to eventual victory, but that means the Chargers must undergo the blitz this Wsld. John Glenn at N. Farmington: Glenn has held the upper hand in this Lakes Division rivalry, winning key games in 1987 and '88 that helped put the Rockets in the WLAA final. After a shaky start, Glenn rolled last week. In a close game. North kicker Mike Cowen could be the difference. Pick: The Rockets stay on track for a possible rematch with Harrison for the league title.

Pty. Canton at Liv. Franklin: A victory in the Western Division opener would give Canton (2-0) its finest start in school history. On a dry field, the Chiefs have the skill players to make things happen, but Franklin (1-1) has some mean linemen who might decide differently. Pick: Canton rates the edge.

Divine Child at Red. Bishop Borgess, 7:30 p.m. at Garden City Junior High: Divine Child (1-1) was blanked 22-0 by DePorres while the Spartans (1-1) are coming off a victory over Redford Union. There's no doubt DC, a 7-0 winner over a highly rated Bishop Gallagher team in the opener, has faced the tougher competition. Pick: The Falcons are no fly-by-night

Knee problem is always a concern

Dear Myrna: I am a 43-year-old woman and I have enjoyed aerobic exercise on and off for the last 10 years. I have been going to classes regularly — three to four times per week — for the last two years. I go to both high and low impact classes, mostly low. My problem, which recently began, is my knees have been bothering me. I feel an aching under my knee cap, one knee more so than the other. Do you have any idea of what could be causing this? Am I too old for aerobics? Any suggestions would be appreciated. Thank you.

Medically speaking, as far as your knee is concerned, your doctor or an orthopedic surgeon would be able to give you a better answer than myself.

The most famous joint in sports is the knee. A knee-joint problem is the most fearsome type of injury to a professional athlete. They immediately begin to think their careers are shot. Sounds a little like

Unfortunately, the knee is not a very stable joint. There are at least five places where the knee cap can be injured — the cartilages, the ligaments, the muscles around the knee, the kneecap (the bone in front of the joint) and the knee cap tendon.

So you see the knee can by a tricky ordeal. You must see a doctor. As far as your aerobic career coming to a halt — never. We have too many alternatives in aerobics now for that to be a problem.

There are two important factors to look at in your aerobic program floor surface and your own body alignment (both muscular and

What kind of surface are you aerobicizing on?

In our studio we have a floor designed by Russians dedicated to saving their dancers' bodies in the early 1900s. It has been duplicated by us and a few others in the Michigan area. Check it out - it's not just an elevated wood floor. Look for the rubber side moldings with air holes at the top. If you aerobicize on a carpeted floor, it is bad news. Even if there is three inches of padding, a cement floor remains

As far as body alignment, skeletal problems are generally from birth. We can increase strength to problem areas by working on the adjoining muscles. No one has been created perfect. Most likely, there could be a variety of tiny areas where your skeletal system is a little off. 'Proper muscle balance' is major to maintain good body align-

You need to work with an exercise expert to check your body alignment and make sure you are executing the best movements you possibly can. For example, if you are jogging with your body weight leaning forward, you could be causing damage to your knees. Foot striking (how your foot lands on the floor) could be another factor to cause

It's a good idea to vary your aerobics, both impact and low impact. Low impact aerobics shouldn't bother your knee. Again you need to talk to an exercise expert and learn, if necessary, how to alter your

Too old? Don't be silly.

Recent studies show that baby boomers, ages 32 to 46, are the largest exercise population ever. It's happening now and we're all

Warriors surprise Falcons

The Walled Lake Western boys cross country team wasn't the only problem Farmington had to deal with Monday.

The Falcons also had to contend with a steep and undulating course at Gilbert Willis Park, and Farmington came up short 24-35.

"We have a real hilly course," Western coach Dennis Keeney said. "I think it played with Farmington a bit.

We hoped their runners would come out hard and then finally hit the hilly part of the course and be all winded out. That's exactly what happened." Despite the course's unpredictable terrain, Farmington's Ben Goba ran an exceptional race and posted a first-place time of 17:08. Finishing second was Western sophomore Bill Crosby (17:21) followed by teammate Jeff Grosso (17:36). Farmington's Kevin Van Ord ran well enough to capture fourth with a time of 18:21.

Tiller helps thwart pass attack

By C.J. Riesk staff writer

It didn't make any sense. Wayne State was attacking a team with one of the worst pass defenses around in 1968; opponents averaged nearly 200 aerial yards a game against Saginaw Valley State's porous defenders last

And the Tartars' battle plans were formulated around the suddenly pop-ular run-and-shoot offense, a scheme that replaces the tight end and full-back with two additional wide receivers. The passing formation is supposed to result in a wide-open, high-scoring affair.

It's true that what happened last year hardly matters this year. But consider that two of the Cardinals' four defensive backfield starters against WSU had never started pre-

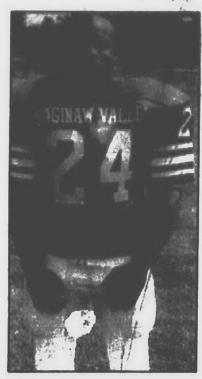

Add it all together, and it would seem to spell trouble — BIG trouble — for SVSU.

SO WHAT happened?

The Tartars' veteran quarterback, Mike Grennier, was a paltry sevenof-16 passing for 54 yards. WSU had just eight completions in 19 attempts for 63 yards in the game.

Which explains why SVSU won easily, 24-6, Saturday.

Experience, it seems, isn't everything. Chad Burgess is a perfect example. A Farmington Harrison graduate, Burgess has been in college about two weeks. In an era when most football players are redshirted as freshmen and don't step onto the playing field until their third year in school, Burgess is starting at free safety in his first season at SVSU.

"I didn't expect to start at first," he said after a game in which his open-field tackling was as impressive as his pass defense (he made six tackles, one for a loss).

WHITTHING IS going protty but they're a lot faster (in col-than they were in high school."

A year ago, Burgess was lighting up defenders as a pass receiver for Hisrison's Class B state champions. He teammed with Bryan Wauldron to give the Hawks a superb offen-sive-defensive combination; both were receivers and defensive backs (Wauldron is now a wide receiver at Eastern Michigan).

Burgess has no illusions about his status. He realizes opposing quarter-backs are going to test a freshman. "I know they're going to come at me," he said. "But the team's there, and that helps. I'm already starting to feel more comfortable.

"I guess I'm going to have to work a lot harder, though."

FOR ONE of his defensive backfield mates, the struggle to reach the starting lineup has been longer but no less impressive. Brian Tiller, a third-year sophomore, earned his starting spot at the short-side cornerback by beating out senior Larry Washington — a second-team all-Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference selection in '88.

Tiller had to learn to play defense. At Plymouth Salem, he was a tailback and quarterback.

"They converted me to defense when I came up here," he said. He worked his way into a part-time starter's role last season, but entering the '89 campaign nothing was as"I didn't have (a starting position) coming into camp," Tiller said. "I just took it day by day."

He also knows there's no guarantee he will keep his spot. "I'm just going to have to keep working hard."

THEIR HARD work apparently paid off against WSU. The run-andshoot offense is supposed to confuse defenders, who aren't used to seeing four fleet wide receivers sipping across the field. Also, the Tartars tried to keep their adoption of the run-and-shoot a secret, to surprise

The last ploy didn't work. "We heard about it through the grape-vine," said Tiller. Burgess added, "We worked on it during camp."

Still, last season the SVSU pass defenders were well-briefed on opposing offenses, and they were still victimized for 197 yards a game. This year, the pressure is on the Cardinal defense. The offense is solid with the backfield tandem of Kevin Mitchell and Rob Cook, both of whom gained more than 1,000 yards rushing in '88, returning.

But the defense must improve after surrendering an average of 340 yards and 28 points a game last season, a major reason the Cardinals

"We knew coming into the season we were going to have to work as a unit," said Tiller. How well that unit meshes the rest of the season could make a difference in the GLIAC

shutout victim of Rocks

Plymouth Salem boys soccer coach Ken Johnson can't help but be delighted with his team's early success this season.

The Rocks managed to increase their winning streak to five games Monday by beating Livonia Franklin

Both teams could have packed up and gone home after the first half as the Salem built an early lead of 3-0. The Patriots never got on track and, therefore, never scored on Salem goalie Matt Tudor, who recorded his fourth shutout in five games.

Offensively, the Rocks were led by Chris Olson and Greg Christensen. They each fired two goals into the Franklin net. Jeff Gold, Joe Cosenza and Joe Tippmann had one apiece.

Billy Joker had two assists and Matt Gold, John Truskowski, Tom Baker and Cosenza each had one for the Rocks (5-0).

"The playing conditions were ridiculous," Smith said. "You were ankle-deep in mud."

The Chiefs were also in action on Friday and Saturday.

On Friday, the Chiefs traveled to Farmington Hills Harrison, and the Hawks probably wish they hadn't as Canton handed Harrison a 4-0 loss.

Rick McFeely led the Chiefs with a goal and an assist. Steve Shiner. Kristian Kilpelainen and Dan Martin each sent the ball into the Hawk net,

Collins had the shutout in goal for Brighton managed to give the Chiefs plenty of grief Saturday, as the two teams played to a 2-2 tie. The game was close from the beginning, with each team exchanging first-half goals for a 1-1 tie. Brighton took a 2-1 lead early in the second half, but with five minutes left in the game, Mike Presley tied the score. Canton hit the goal post several times after that but never put the ball in.

Hawks blank WL Central

Farmington Hills Harrison posted its first win of the boys soccer season Monday, making a victim of Walled Lake Central 3-0. The Hawks (1-4) led 3-0 at halftime on goals by Vince Berg, Mike Jacobs and Ben Pinsky. Berg had an unassisted goal, and Mike Wolters and Shaw Brown assisted on the other two, respectively. Harrison goalkeeper Chris Schrowe got his first shutout, and stopper Steve Blankenship led the defense.

FARMINGTON 2, W.L. WESTERN 2: Mike Gammerath scored both goals to rally the Falcons from a 2-0 deficit in the Western Lakes Activities Association crossover game Monday at Western. "I'm looking for him to lead our offense and he came through," Farmington coach Cathy Cole said. "We needed that because we've been having a problem scoring." The Warriors, who led 2-1 at halftime, got goals from stopper Jimmy Capicchioni, who scored on a penalty kick, and Chris Crawford.

Mike Sheehy spent the first half in goal for the Falcons, and Greg Bjedov stoned Western in the second half.

"In the second half, the game was played mostly in the midfield," Warriors coach Dave Morgan said. "Once they scored their second goal, they settled into a defensive style."

A recent study of male letter carriers showed that their low cholesterol levels placed them at reduced risk for heart disease.

Walking can lower your cholesterol

· Anorexia nervosa is an eating disorder that is characterized by constant dieting, rapid weight loss and the feeling of being too fat in spite of being markedly underweight. Most anorexics are girls or women who are literally starving themselves to death. Unfortunately, this was the case with singer Karen Carpenter, who died of anorexia nervosa in 1983.

• The need for sleep seems to decrease with age. Although an infant may sleep as much as 16 to 20 hours a day, the child's grandparents may need only 5 to 6 hours of sleep a night.

 A recent study of male letter carriers showed that their low cholesterol levels placed them at reduced risk for heart disease. These men, who averaged 25 miles of walking a week, also had extremoly high HDL cholesterol levels. which are apparently protective against heart disease. The researchers speculated that their ex-cellent blood fat profiles were a direct result of their long duration, low intensity exercise.

· On the other hand, regular vigorous exercise does not guarantee "immunity from heart disease." According to pooled autopsy studies of 72 conditioned middle-aged subjects who died suddenly during or immediately after exercise, coronary artery blockage was the cause of death in 69 of the

Biological clock helps nature cope

AS WE LOOK at our clocks to see what time darkness sets in, we notice that it is much earlier than just a few weeks ago.

In a few days the length of day and night will be equal. During the winter months, days reach their shortest point. We gradually return to days and nights of equal duration again in spring.

This seasonal change, coupled with the daily alternation of day and night resulting from the Earth rotating on its axis, has been occurring for eons. Because these phenomena are so dependable, many animals have come to rely on them to serve as clues for what is most likely to happen next.

BIRDS, FOR instance, are flocking in preparation for their migration south for the winter months. Large groups of starlings, black-birds, and robins can be seen flying around neighborhoods. What makes them form flocks now and not form flocks several weeks ago?

One factor very influential in stimulating this change of behavior is the length of daylight or photoperiod. When the photoperiod begins to change during the summer months, it serves as a stimulus for animals like woodchucks to begin eating voraciously in order to put on enough fat to sustain them through winter.

Flying squirrels normally collect hickory nuts when they can at the rate of about 20 per night during the summer. When the photoperiod stimulates food storing behavior, flying squirrels can collect as many as 300 nuts per night. If a squirrel did not take advantage of this urge to cache food it might not survive. So through the years, those squirrels that did cache food survived.

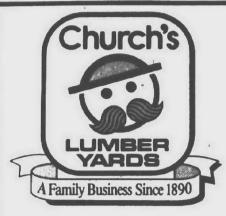

Once the flocks of birds decide to move south on migration, they use the sun to help guide them in a southerly direction. At night, when many birds migrate, they use the north star and surrounding constellations as a guide. On cloudy days they can use the Earth's magnetic field.

Using the sun and stars requires the birds to compensate for their movement across the horizon. Birds and many animals have a biological clock that keeps running and tells them what time of the day it is so they can adjust their directional orientation accordingly. Even if placed in a laboratory under constant light conditions, they will maintain their regular daily activities.

The actual source of this biological clock is not known, but given a minimal stimulus it keeps on ticking, enabling animals to know when and how to prepare for life's events.

Tim Nowicki is a naturalist at Independence-Oaks Park in Oakland County. He lives in Livonia.

S THE champagne and Perrier flowed, a financial planner, a lawyer, a doctor of radiology, a Ford executive, a former art gallery manager and retired U of M fund-raiser talked together. A typical cross section of people at an art gallery opening, you might think.

Unusual though, is that these same six area professionals, - making up three husband/ wife teams - also are business partners hosting the opening of their new contemporary art gallery on Main Street in downtown Plymouth - the Chameleon Gallery.

'And the funny thing is, we didn't even really know any of these folks two months ago," said Joe Hanish, a Farmington resident, and a financial planner with Merrill Lynch. "It came together fast and now we're like family."

Hanish and his wife, Pat, who recently retired as a fund-raiser for the University of Michigan, served as the catalyst for the project. "Pat and I originally were looking into buying a business here on Main Street. Plymouth just attracts all kinds of consumers throughout the year. And we wanted to aim at an opening for the Fall Festival, but we couldn't come to terms with the current owners. Then space became available here at 370 Main Street, absolutely an ideal location with plenty of space (1,800 square feet)."

"THROUGH A MUTUAL friend," said Pat Hanish, "we were introduced to Denni (Englehart) and her husband Jim. Denni used to manage a very successful art gallery in Australia, which was fantastic because we didn't want to manage a place full time."

And through Jim Englehart, a Ford executive, the Hanishes met another couple interested in investing in a new business venture, Walt and Karen Borda. Karen is a radiologist at Henry Ford Hospital and Walt is a lawyer in private practice.

Aside from traveling all over the Orient -China, Japan, Singapore, Hong Kong and Thailand, the Engleharts lived in Australia before resettling in Plymouth. While Jim worked with Ford Motor, Denni went into business, opening what turned out to be the very successful Artist Proof Galleries, in Melbourne. She brings to the Chameleon Galleries her expertise and commitment to contemporary art.

"What's nice is that we immediately fill a retail niche so far unaddressed here in downtown Plymouth," said Denni Englehart. "The country/colonial market is well taken care of. But in Plymouth alone, for example, there are new homes going up that are more contemporary in style. And those homes need furnishing. We're bringing in pieces from around the world and across the U.S."

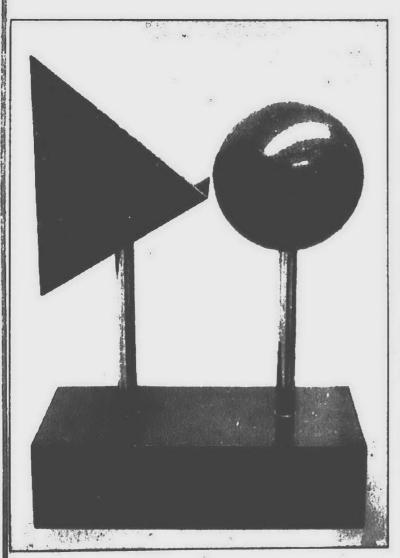

"And as close to home as Ann Arbor, Flint and Saugatuck," added Denni's husband, Jim, who is executive director of truck operations and light truck product development for Ford Motor Company.

Stone cutter to sculptor—a fine line

Francesco Actitelli refers to his black marble sculpture, "Equal Volumes," as a "little intellectual exercise." It is a pedestal piece, different from anything else in the exhibit.

staff photos by Jerry Zolynsky

By Corinne Abatt staff writer

Francesco Acitelli of Detroit is frequently described as a stone cutter and carver. That's an extremely modest description for a outstanding sculptor who works in stone, metal and wood.

His work is on display at the Americ Centers building, 7 West Square Lake Road, Bloomfield Hills. It will be on display through Nov. 17

The building, completed in March 1988, is an attractive setting for these 18 works of art. Several handsome outdoor pieces are in the ground level garden patio, opening off the lobby. Others are in the lobby and in two rooms, specially set aside, down the hall.

ACITELLI, SON of Italian immigrant parents, learned stonecutting from his father.

"I worked summers when I was a kid," he said, "I grew up with the tools.'

But, this self-taught artist has taken his work far beyond that traditionally associated with skilled stonecutters, although he still does that on commission for residences and commercial buildings.

HE DOES functional and nonfunctional pieces, but he disagreed on the term non-functional.

"It all functions," he said, "it fills an emotional need."

Then, with a kind of half-smile, he said, "The making of art is about as arrogant a job as a person can have. You can't eat it, you can't make a garden with it, but, it fills a very deep need."

As he spoke of how he laminates marble, in particular the carefully cut and stepped, curved red marble base of a glass-topped table, he said, 'One of the things I try to do in designing is to design stuff no one else can do."

The red marble spiral base is hollow, he said, otherwise it would be too heavy to deal with. As it is, it weighs approximately 85 pounds.

HIS PARTICULAR satisfaction or challenge, he said, "is to defy the limits of the materials." He can make marble look as light and pliable as putty. He can stretch and pull metal so it has the same almost weightless look (until lifted).

Many of the handsome marble pedestal pieces in the exhibit arise from his interest in the helix form that he sees in nature. Two examples he cited were chromosomes and the inside of a conch shell.

"Sometimes the simplest things in nature are the most beautiful."

ONE THAT looks different from the mobius and helix forms in the same room is "Equal Volumes." Acitelli referred to it as "a little intellectual exercise." It is a pedestal piece in black marble with a tilted tetrahedron (a solid figure with four triangular faces) beside a

"It is the juxtaposition of the two that makes it interesting," he said. "The sphere has the least surface for the mass; the tetrahedron has the most, yet they weigh the Acitelli is a master craftsman, but he is also a philosopher, a keen observer of nature and people and a fine artist. He was selected by the Smithsonian Institution of Washington, D.C., to demonstrate the art of stone carving at the Festival of Michigan Folk Life in East Lansing this August.

His furniture pieces have been shown at Billi Born Ltd., Michigan Design Center of Troy. His sculpture is in galleries in Florida and Chicago. He is represented locally by Agnes Derbin.

Easing airbrush goofs

opportunities to goof with an airbrush.

At the top of the long list most common to man (better make that persons) is the "catch-your-foot-inlaint. This is the most common reason for breaking an airbrush. The six-to-10-foot hose is usually looped on the floor or over your knee. In the throes of creative expression, it is easy to forget about the airbrush. So when you move, nudge or twist, bump or however it happens — and it is always unexpected and unwanted — your airbrush somehow gets knocked

To prevent this from happening you can buy an airbrush hanger which costs about 75 cents. Actually a hanger is only a precautionary measure. I'm sure many readers have managed to nudge their airbrush right out of the hanger.

Next on the list is the "too-much-paint-in-too-little-space" syndrome or the "centipede city" painter. With a single-action airbrush, it is important to stay the right distance away from

For example, if you are too close, too much paint will collect on the board and the air will blow little rivers of paint out of the excess, thus looking much like a centipede. This is an even greater problem with those owning a dual action airbrush.

HERE IS THE cure for "centipede city." Place your second digit on the button rather than your finger tip. It takes a much greater effort to pull your finger back, which seems to give you more "play" with the button. The finger tip is too flexile and gives you too much pull on demand. I guarantee it will feel awkward at first, but I also guarantee it will help.

Third on the list of goofs would have to be the "staccato scribble stroke." This mistake I often hear before I can see.

Of course, there are too many goofs to list, but some note-worthy mistakes are "chief spray in the face," "splatter on the pants," "dirty tip blues" and "clean-it-later complainer."

I feel that ink is the best medium to use with an airbrush while you are learning. It is thin and gives you no trouble becoming atomized. It is rich in coverage, which is important so you can see what pattern you are spraying. Ink cleans easily out of the airbrush and usually a quick rinse with water will do.

Most inks are transparent, but with airbrush, transparancy is of little use. Only because of the nature of the spray, even opaque colors take on a form of transparency. Higgens came out with a line of opaque pigmented inks which are my favorite for teaching. As you increase your ability, it is nice to turn to gouache and/or dyes. With gouache, you will encounter the 'dirty tip blues" if you fail to thoroughly clean your airbrush,

I AM A REALISTIC person and I know that if your painting turns out great, you snap it off the easel and go show your critics, leaving a loaded airbrush behind. Likewise, if your painting goes into the circular file or in the bottom of the bird cage, you walk away head drooped, again leaving behind a

Now is the time to clear out those closets, attics, basements and garages and make some quick cash in the process.

How do you plan a garage sale?

It's easy! Just follow these simple guidelines:

1. Gather together the Items you have for sale. Sort them into appropriate categories and price them fairly.

2. Place a classified advertisement in The Observer & Eccentric by calling one of the numbers below. 3. Hang signs throughout your neighborhood alerting residents to the upcoming sale. 4. Decide what to do with all the money you'll have after your sale! Or, if you love to bargain-hunt and would rather shop then sell, be s look for our special garage sale listings every Monday and Thursday in your hometown newspaper. Observer & Eccentric classifieds make it earn money and save money. Discover for yourself, today!
