Candidates, city settle sign issue

That flap over campaign signs involving the city and two city com-mission candidates has been re-

"I guess you could call it a settlement or compromise," said John Vos

Vos, a city commission candidate and attorney, and candidate Jerry Vorva, filed suit against the city Oct.

The suit was sparked by city workers removing campaign signs from between street curbs and sidewalks, known as the city's right of way.

Vorva and Vos won an injunction to keep DPW workers from removing the signs, ordered by Wayne County Circuit Judge John Gillis Jr.

Both said the city ordinance drafted last spring allowing placement of campaign signs is unclear. William Graham, acting city manager, agreed.

"Once we get past the election and get the new commissioner or com-amendment to the ordinance." Graham said.

"I think that the candidates for the most part agree they won't use the yard extensions (right of way)," he said.

Graham said signs in the right of way can be a traffic hazard, as they can distract motorists.

While Vorva said he disagrees on that point, he told campaign volunteers not to place signs in the city right of way. "My greatest concern was which part of the ordinance are they going to decide to enforce next?" he said.

Vorva praised city attorney Ron Lowe for working out differences between the city and the candidates over the sign dispute.

Besides Vorva and Vos. other candidates for four seats on the commission are challengers Jean Morrow and Gregory Green, and incumbents Robert Jones, Ralph (Jack) Kenyon and James Jabara.

PTA targets state sales tax legislation

By Marie Chestney staff writer

A bombshell dropped at a Parent-Teacher Association convention in new policy was affiounced. May has forced the 600 PTA chapthey never did before - pay the state's 4 percent sales tax on items they either buy or sell at school fund-

The Michigan PTA is now campaigning to convince the state's lawmakers to pass legislation exempting the non-profit group from paying or levying the state sales tax.

The PTA is urging passage of either of two bills, House Bill 5130, which was aired in a hearing Wednesday before the House Taxation Committee, or Senate Bill 581. soon to be aired in the Senate Finance Committee.

HB 5130 would exempt schools and community colleges from the state sales tax. SB581 would do the same for all non-profit organizations in Michigan.

THE PTA WAS informed of the new policy by agents from the state Treasury Department.

State Rep. James Kosteva, D-Canton, vice-chair of the House Taxation Committee, explained what hap-

"There apparently was an audit and the Treasury Department found that they were not enforcing an obscure section of an act passed in 1933. The act says that non-profit organizations should pay a sales tax on items bought or sold. They decided to enforce the law."

Berkley resident Marc Katz, who serves on the Michigan PTA's legislative committee, told what happened at the convention after the

"When they said we had to be conters around the state to do something sidered like any vendor and charge a sales tax when we sell an item, like K mart or Sears, well, it could have blown the roof off the building. It would have registered 30 on the Richter scale."

Peg Sippola said the news created the most confusion and the biggest uproar she has seen and heard in her two years as PTA state treasurer.

"I've been fielding calls from PTAs all over the state wanting to know what is taxable and what isn't," Sippola said.

WHILE THE law applies to fundraisers held by any non-profit group, including the Boy or Girl Scouts, Lion's Club and veterans' groups, the PTA is one of the few groups in the state that decided to fight it.

The PTA said it objects to the administrative paperwork of forcing volunteer parents to collect taxes and fill out government forms.

"These are just moms and dads who don't want to get involved in taxation matters," said Pat Tancill, former president of the Livonia PTA, the state's largest.

The PTA also objects to giving money to the state that in past years was funneled back into the schools.

Kosteva said PTA spokespersons will say at Wednesday's hearing that the state is taking money that should

"They will say that they are reducing the state's burden in supporting the schools," Kosteva said. On the other hand, Kosteva said, state treasury officials will argue that schools should not be treated any differently than any other non-profit organization. They will say how much money (the exemption) will cost the state and argue for taxpayer equity," Kos-

CAROL STROM, vice president for legislative activities for the Michigan PTA, said the PTA has advised all Michigan PTAs to collect and pay the tax. "We don't want to be in violation of the law," said Strom of Livonia.

It means that a school PTA will pay the state's sales tax when it buys a computer for the school's library. It means that high school seniors will pay sales tax on their yearbook. It means that popcorn sold at a school fair in a sealed box won't be taxed, but that popcorn sold in an open box will be.

In urging compliance with the law, Katz said the treasury department has opened a "big can of worms" for non-profit organizations, which have to collect the tax at fundraisers and then take care of the bookkeeping involved in getting the money to the state.

Beginning this week, shoppers at the Canton Meijer store can help the environment by selecting "Earth Friendly" products as part of the company's new environmental Metjer's "We Care About the Earth We Share" program gives consumers the chance to buy products billed as safe for the environment — including products from biodegradable diapers to eggs sold in containers made of recycled paper.

Shoppers at the Canton store will eventually be able to choose from as many as 250 products labeled as "Earth Friendly," said Meijer spokeswoman Jennifer White. "Earth Friendly" products will be stored on specially-marked shelves. Canton officials said they were Last Tuesday, Meijer, Inc. chair-man Pred Meijer kicked off the program at the company's Haggerty Road store in Northville.

"As a retailer, we zerve as a purchasing agent for our customers, and as such we are in a unique position of being able to provide our customers with helpful information about the care of our environment," he said.

Some of the "Earth Priendly" products that consumers will be able to identify include Scott Tissue brand products, Jonny Cat Litter, Aussie Moist Shampoo, Simple Green all-purpose cleaner, all Kellogg cereals and Hefty and Glad brand trash bags.

One example of the program that Canton shoppers may quickly recog-nize is Meijer's switch from plastic foam egg cartons to ones made from recycled paper.

Meijer estimates that about 300 tons of recycled paper will be used to make the six million pulp egg cartons that will be sold annually throughout the chain's 50 Michigan and Ohio stores.

Shoppers can also pick up brochures that give information about the proper disposal of common household hazardous waste, such as used motor oil.

"The company will strive to make shopping more convenient for those customers looking for environmental alternatives," Meijer said. "These options could involve either the packaging or the product itself."

In addition, Meijer will also raise customer awareness about the environment by printing relevant messages on grocery bags. Educational

Students told totakecharge against drugs

Creigs Beverly's solution to fighting substance abuse is simple but powerful - if you want to win, you have to take charge.

More than 800 students and advisers from 106 metropolitan area high schools gathered at Roma's of Livonia Tuesday to exchange ideas on preventing drug and alcohol abuse among teens and listen to Beverly's message.

The daylong program, "Change Agents: Making a Better World in Your School," was part of Project Graduation's 5th Annual student leadership conference.

Beverly, a Wayne State University professor noted for his work with at-risk youth, delivered the morning keynote address in which he stressed the importance of leadership and unity in fighting drug and alcohol abuse.

Research reveals amazing stories

staff writer

The many stories of Michigan's midwives have yet to be told, although some are being uncovered by Southfield's Paula Stofer, a historian who is researching a book on midwi-

None of the stories could have a more surprising ending than that be-longing to Selma Wiljanen, a Marquette midwife who got paid in 1938 for a job she did in 1920.

Wiljanen was visited by one of two twin boys she delivered in January 1920. One of the twins knocked on the door to invite the midwife over for dinner and belated thanks.

"At the end of the visit, she gets to her car and she can't get in," Stofer said. Wiljanen's car was filled with homegrown lettuce, corn, cabbage and other produce from the family's

"She got paid 18 years later with a lot of interest," Stofer said.

THERE WERE several reasons why the family may have wanted to pay Wiljanen back, according to Stofer, a professor at Lawrence

First of all, Wiljanen walked sev-

After getting there, the versatile Wiljanen did much more than just 'catch the babies," a phrase used to describe what a midwife most-often

She heard a noise in the barn, then proceeded to discover a cow preparing to calve in the freezing conditions. Noticing that another newborn calf had already died from the cold weather, Wiljanen made sure the second calf would not meet the same Wiljanen also played cook for the family and a large band of borders who lived there, Stofer said. Of course, the midwife's primary and most important job was delivering the twins and subsequently tending to them and the mother.

ANOTHER MIDWIFE lost her Rogers City home to a fire around the turn of the century.

With work on rebuilding the home halfway completed, the woman's husband died. She became destitute. Stofer said.

"The town helped build the rest and she worked (as a midwife) for a

In the end, the lawyer ruled that the midwife could garnishee wages?

A third story shows that midwives: held high moral views in addition to: being handy and kind-hearted. Stofer: said.

At least one midwife, who twice reluctantly delivered babies for and unwed mother, put pressure on the father to own up to his responsibility, so the story goes.

"WHEN THE midwife delivered the first baby, it offended her morality," Stofer said. "When the second one came, she didn't want to go. But! her compassion for women overrode. her moral indignation, so she delivered the child."

That wasn't the end of her task. however. "She gave the man a real strong lecture that he was going to marry her."

To make sure, the midwife made the wedding gown and completed all other necessary arrangements for the occasion.

"She didn't show up with a shetgun but darn close," Stofer said.

The sculpture's owner, Gilbert Silverman, an internationally known art collector and a leading arts henefactor, brought the artwork from a previous business on Lahser Road in Southfield, where it was displayed in a back courtyard until the building was sold two years ago.

"Covington" is expected to remain at its present location at 30833 Northwestern Highway until Silver-man moves it to his new small office building at Telegraph and Northwestern Highway in South-

"I promised to leave it up for one year," Silverman said.

In addition to the Whitney, the white-painted, aluminum artwork has been exhibited outdoors at the Dag Hammarskjold Plaza, New York City, and the Everson Museum of Art, Syracuse, and indoors at the Cranbrook Academy of Art Museum, Bloomfield Hills.

Controversial artwork draws official approval

AS A result of a complaint in April 1988 by a Farmington Hills resident who city planning and zoning will not name, the sculpture became the subject of a year-long community

In 1988, the zoning board of appeals denied Silverman a variance for "Covington" on the lawn in front of the building because the city has no provision in its building codes for a work of art.

Despite strong criticisms, the Farmington Hills City Council enacted a controversial artwork ordinance 5-2 in April. Council members Jean Fox and Paul Sowerby, who opposed any attempt to regular art, opposed the ordinance.

The ordinance allows "one statue, sculpture or similar structure" in front yards of non-single-family residential property following review of plans and the structure by the planning commission.

The artwork is required to pass muster with the Farmington Area Arts commission. In July, the arts commission designated "Covington" a "legitimate and acceptable" art-

"In any community, you will have dissenters and promoters of art," said Bev Ellis, who chairs the ninemember appointed arts commission. 'Anything positive that will promote the arts is a plus."

IN ADDITION to the arts commis-sion's recommendation, the sculp-ture or structure can't be in the right of way; be a sign or commercial message; pose a danger to public health, safety and welfare; exceed health requirements; or demean or degrade any racial, religious, ethnic or gender group.

The book, "Art in Public Places" by Dennis Alan Nawrocki (1980), describes "Covington": "Covington is one of a series of gates or fence-like constructions named after small towns which Hall began in 1969. Forms reflect the rural Midwestern landscapes with their gates, fences, pipelines and bill-

Mid-size models find a place on some area police patrols

By Mary Rodrique staff writer

This is not your father's Oldsmobile, or your patrol officer's sturdy Dodge Diplomat.

The Michigan State Police trooper you notice on the highway may be driving a Ford Mustang.

Likewise, the Wayne County Sher-iff's patrol is evaluating the Ford Taurus - which will offer a police package on the popular mid-sized model for the first time in early

Is the face of the once full sized automotive police car industry changing? Yes and no.

"I can make an argument for both (full- and mid-sized) cars," said Richard Myers, Plymouth chief of

"As the cars are downsized, so are the specialized police equipment. The radio and siren unit takes up half the space as earlier models. Shotgun racks are more flexible for mounting.

THE DOWN side of downsizing, according to Myers, is that the nature of police work makes ample interior space crucial: "The addition of mobile data terminal space in the front passenger section takes up a lot of space. The rear interior space, after the protective barrier is installed, leaves no leg room for the sity trustees.

"Price that meets our standards is the number one factor. And we have found with the Chevrolet package that maintenance costs are down considerably," he said.

Myers relies on Michigan State Police vehicle test results to choose the right car for his department.

"As police departments across the country look for more economical police vehicles, the Ford Taurus will give them an attractive option," said Emil W. Loeffler, technical liaison for Ford Division's fleet operations.

The Taurus package is designed to provide a patrol vehicle which offers excellent maneuverability and fuel economy, driver comfort and convenience — plus all the inherent advantages of front wheel drive,"

Ten Taurus police vehicles are currently being evaluated by the San Diego Police Department and Utah Highway Patrol in addition to the Wayne County Sheriff's Department.

SGT. BILL McFall, in the executive division of the Michigan State Police office in Lansing, said the Mustangs are being used on freeways during daylight hours only.

We're always interested in what the car manufacturers have out there," said William Hoff, Livonia deputy police chief. "I'd be interested in looking at the Taurus." Livonia replaces half of its 30 marked patrol units each year.

Livonia has the in-car computer terminals which take up considerable room on the passenger side. Although most patrol officers drive solo, officers in training ride on the passenger side on occasion

Redford police Sgt. John Buck said the mid-sized police vehicles could "fill needs for special uses. The Mustang is used (by state police) for pursuit and interception. I just talked to a deputy from Wayne County who feels the Taurus would be a good patrol car.

"The road handling on mid-sized cars might be superior, but for prisoner transportation and to make room for all our electronic equipment, it's best to stay with the fullsized cars.'

Canton Township also uses fullsized Chevrolets.

"We have 17 cars and two Harley Davidsons," said John Santomauro, director of public safety.

"There are two reasons we use full-sized cars - the room because of the amount of equipment being used for regular patrol and the durability. Canton is 36 square miles, 18 miles are rural. It's a question of how well other vehicles could handle the dirt roads and rough terrain."

WHILE MOST police departments dispose of their used police vehicles via public auction, Canton has another approach.

"At 60,000 miles, we roll those cars into the building department. Then they're driven until they won't run any longer," Santomauro said., "The police department gets the new cars. It's the most cost effective ap-

Center tackles eating disorders has become at $15 billion industry in the United States. And that doesn't take into account the millions of dollars spent at health spas to shake and sweat off unwanted pounds.

Americans are trying to fit the image Madison Avenue has picked for them, many are shedding more pounds than necessary.

Thin may be in, but for one group of people, eating can be a sometimes deadly way of controlling their lives. Such was the case of pop star Karen

Carpenter, half of the 1970s pop group The Carpenters, died in 1983 from complications as the result of anorexia, an eating disorder in which she literally starved herself to death rather than eat.

Anorexia is just one of three disorders treated at the Eating Disorders Recovery Center at St. Mary Hospital in Livonia. The others are bulimia nervosa, a condition in which one binges then purges, to keep from gaining weight, and compulsive overeating.

"A lot of time, people with eating disorders feel they're in a very overpowering family and don't have con-trol of their lives," said Suzanne Culen, professional services coordinator at the clinic. "But when it comes to eating, that's one area they can control.

With the anorectic, the compulsive behavior is to not eat. Because of a distorted body image, the anorectic thinks of herself as fat even though she may be emaciated. A large portion of anorectic patients tend to be in their teens.

"CHILDREN IN western societies tend to diet more than kids from Europe," Cullen said. "There's a lot of peer pressure to look a certain way, and a lot of the emphasis comes from society.

"Pick up a teen magazine and you're sure to find a diet in it. The expectation for teens is that they can have things quickly and they don't tend to see the boundary of areas where they can't have it now.'

The bulimic has a pattern of binge eating, but follows it up by purging - self-induced vomiting, extreme exercise or the use of diuretics.

"The bulimic thinks he or she has found a new weight loss program,"

When it comes to treating a patient at St. Mary Hospital's Eating Disorder Clinie, it's a team effort. Working with patients are therapists Susan Smith (from left) and Helene Heaton, profes-

don't even feel like they get filled up when they eat. Opened in April 1986, the St. Mary center works with patients to help them correct their eating problems, using a combination of education and behavioral change, generally in group sessions although individual sessions are available.

The center's program focuses on the physical, psychological/emotional and family aspects of the disorder. Patients also work with a dietician from St. Mary Hospital to learn how to take a more common sense approach to food.

We don't teach diets," Cullen said. "What we do is set very small goals for the patients. You can't tell an anorectic to gain 10 pounds. That would blow their mind.

"WE SEE PEOPLE as being different. Everyone that comes in the door doesn't receive the same treat-Bulimics and compulsive overeaters who turn to the center for help tend to realize "they're out of control." but treatment of anorexia tends to be because of concerned family members. Denial is big with anorectics, therapist Helen Heaton

"We encourage patients to recog-nize that they didn't wake up one day and have an eating disorder, so they won't wake up one morning and find it gone," Heaton said. "People with eating disorders focus on parts of their bodies they don't like. That can be very disturbing for people like the compulsive overeater who has never looked in a mirror or have only a small mirror so they don't see the whole body."

The incidence of eating disorders, specifically anorexia and bulimial has been increasing and to help inco mote public awareness of eating disorders, the clinic is among m throughout the United State da and Europe which are observing International Eating Disorders Awareness Week this week.

One activity was a conference: held Wednesday at the Ford World Headquarters in Dearborn, that at tracted treatment providers, support groups and recovering individuals.

A hotline number — 474-1144 —

also has been set up for the week and can provide interested people with more information on EDAW activities, professionals speakers or treats ment referrals.

"For those suffering the torment of an eating disorder, will power isn't enough," Cullen said. "An eat? ing disorder is an addiction."

Campaign signs They really aren't problem

Somebody, somewhere gets into a dispute over campaign signs. This year, the dispute is in Plymouth.

To City officials and a city commission candidate swent to Wayne County Circuit Court in a dispute gover the city's removal of campaign signs.

Now, it looks as though the signs will stay because the city admitted its campaign sign ordinance was vague.

Regardless of the specifics of this case, let's just say this: Phooey.

Phooey on the people who are always complaining about campaign signs.

WE'VE HEARD the complaints before, in other cities and at other times. Campaign signs are an eyesore. Campaign signs spoil the area's matural beauty. Campaign signs stay up rotting in the rain, long after the election is over.

Maybe the last argument has some merit. But it's easy enough to correct, especially in a small Somebody, somewhere always gets into a dispute about campaign signs. This year, the dispute was in Plymouth.

town like Plymouth. Just have city work its take the signs down — the day after the election.

Remember, this is a democracy and democracy, sometimes, is a messy process. Campaign signs are a small price to pay.

Any threat to campaign signs, we believe, is on shaky constitutional ground. But it's more than just a First Amendment issue.

To our way of thinking, campaign signs aren't an eyesore at all. They're an indication a community has active, involved citizens who care not about serving on its governing body.

And what could be more beautiful than that?

Happy Halloween Make it a safe holiday, too

PAPPY HALLOWEEN, kids. Now, go get your parents. This message is aimed squarel vat them.

Parents, make it a safe as well as a happy Halloween for your children when they go door-to-door Tuesday.

Plymouth area police offer these tips:

• Use face makeup instead of masks for outdoor trick-or-treating. Masks restrict vision and can be troublesome for youngsters who cross streets to collect their treats.

• Have your children wear light colored costumes, or add a few strips of reflective tape to darker costumes, if they are to go out at night. Flashlights are another acceptable option.

Accompany your young children on their rounds. Make sure they travel with friends and in familiar, well-lit neighborhoods.

• Inspect all candy as soon as children bring it home. Throw out unwrapped candy, fruit or anything else that looks suspicious.

 If driving that night, especially downtown, take extra care. Extra police patrols will help protect trick-or-treaters, but police can't be

Proposal A

It will improve school funding

ROPOSAL A, on the Nov. 7 ballot, will not itself solve the terrible problems in Michigan's K-12 schools. But in fixing some of the financing problems that have affected our schools for years, it sets the tage for the wholesale restructuring that must

For this reason we urge a ves vote.

Essentially, Proposal A would raise the state ales tax by half-a-cent, to 4.5 percent, and ump the resulting $390 million per year into K-2 schools.

This shifts school financing away from taxes n property values and toward sales taxes. That akes sense. Taxing property is a poor way of qualizing the burden of taxes, as the retired erson on a fixed income who owns a nice house nows all too well.

FOR TAXPAYERS, this very well could reluce the need for future millage increases.

The plan would also create a constitutionally rotected fund devoted to school financing, se-ure from raids by the Department of Education ureaucracy. It would also siphon a quarter of he old 4 percent sales tax off into this fund.

All of this will smooth out the funding basis for ur schools, which has ridden a roller coaster rom pre-recession 1980 high ($845 million in tate aid) to mid-recession 1983 low ($360 milon) to current semi-recovery ($600 million). redictability of funding is an important preconition for sensible, businesslike management of r schools.

It is certainly true that Proposal A itself will little to improve school quality. A package of dislation, now bottled up in the state Senate, is pposedly going to address quality. We shall see.

More importantly, by clearing up the financing blems that have plagued our schools for ars. Proposal A lays the groundwork for the al task: reforming our schools so our children e actually taught something and made ready to e the competitive world of the next century.

HERE IS HOW Proposal A can improve the

A proposal to increase the sales/use tax from 4 cents to 6 cents per dollar, reduce school property taxes, and set permanent school operating millages not subject to voter renewal, and constitutionally dedicate funds for local schools.

 Portions of the existing use, industrial facilities, commercial facilities and tech park facilities taxes are dedicated to the protected school fund.

• The state Department of Education would be unable to siphon off any big portion of the new money because its share is capped at 5 percent.

WE ALSO recommend that voters reject Proposal B.

In this election, voters will be able to vote on both proposals. The one garnering the highest many whom to have vote total will win.

Proposal B would raise sales and use tax to 6 percent. It would redistribute the industrial tax base by collecting it statewide. It would be patently unfair to communities that have made sacrifices to attract industry and put up with the inconvenience that malls and high-tech plants

Proposal B would result in two. iform to 1 rate (and) ocal control.

Mask bigotry makes for a grim Halloween

BIGOTRY HAS reared its ugly head over, of all places, my favorite holiday, Halloween.

As usual the bigotry was hiding behind a mask. Now that's enough to make any Halloween-lover angry. I'd trade you Halloween for Christmas, Thanksgiving and Easter, all wrapped into one.

That's why, when hearing about the Southfield store selling masks that made fun of Arabs, I became

My favorite holiday doesn't deserve to be mistreated by stupidity.

Ethnic and racial disharmony come in a multitude of versions. All are very difficult to understand, all very trying to endure. Some are dangerous by their subtleties. Other forms are just silly.

RECENTLY A group of Arab-Americans called for the boycott of a Southfield store because it was selling Halloween masks that portray Arabs as shifty and vicious.

Some people will do anything to make money. In this country, it is beginning to feel like most people will. How silly, how cruel. But we've seen it happen before.

In past years targets have been Indians, made to look brutal and bloodthirsty; Africans, made to look savage and uncivilized.

The targets are those who are viewed as unpopular at the time and usually defenseless to do anything about the smear.

Blacks used to have to put up with this kind of stuff all the time. But they organized, fought back and today a mask-seeker would be hard pressed to see a Halloween mask that distorts their racial heritage.

Arab-Americans, an industrious lot, are getting the idea, too. After years of minding their own lives and working to build successful businesses, they realize that sometimes you have to go public and fight back.

Arab-Americans are getting sick and tired of the indignities and are fighting back. Good for them. Every American with a conscience should

THIS TIME the merchants were foiled.

Masks, somehow, are emblematic of the problem. History shows that those who are ignorant and afraid often hide behind masks to proudly demonstrate their ignorance. We have brought the problems of the Middle East to our shores, unwashed and unexplained.

The Arabic view of the Middle East is little regarded in America. The Arabic culture is even less understood. For years, Arabs have been either dismissed as uncivilized or forgotten as irrelevant.

Creativity comes first

As members of the Elementary Writing Committee of the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, we would like to reply to the recent column regarding invented spelling.

Writing like many other per of the elementary school curriculum, has changed in recent years in response to new research about how young children learn. First grade children have lots of ideas to express, but do not yet have the skills in place to enable them to put their thoughts on paper using conventional spelling. By permitting them to express their thoughts in whatever manner they choose, including invented spelling, we are saying to these children, "Your ideas matter." When these students write, they are focusing on the meaning.

Later, if their writing is to be put in final form to be shared with others through publication, the children are helped with editing. Children understand that their spelling is temporary and not the same as adult spelling. As they do more and more writing, their spelling evolves into a more conventional form. Formal spelling instruction begins near the end of second grade after students have developed confidence in their writing skills and have the reading ability to make this instruction meaningful.

Children move through certain predictable stages as they learn to write, similar to the stages of learning to speak. Just as children babble before they talk, they scribble before they write. As children continue to practice babbling, then progress to identifiable words, phrases and sentences, parents encourage them by responding positively. In the same spirit, teachers and parents need to accept early attempts at writing. We would like to invite Mr. Gladden to examine the writing our first grade students are doing at this point in the school year and again at the end of the year. Those of us who work with these students see the excitement they display as they grow in their ability as authors. Many adults do not enjoy writing and actively avoid it. We hope our current first graders' enthusiasm for writing will continue through high school and into their adult lives. Plymouth-Canton Elementary

Q:l am a fourth grade teacher and experiencing an influx of children from other nations. There are some children who come to the class unable to speak English. Not understanding other people's customs and values is a handicap for both teachers and administrators but especially children.

Years ago as an assistant high school principal, I made a major cultural error. While disciplining an American Indian student for skipping school, he took his eyes off me and put his head down. I said, "When I'm talking to you, pick up your head and look me straight in the eye."

Later, from the father, I discovered it was a sign of respect when an American Indian responds by lowering his eyes. It meant he was accepting this responsibility in this situation. When I forced him to look me in the eye, it went against his cultural and historical customs.

Other situations are even more profound, Calling a Cambodian child to you with your hand moving toward your chest is what they do with dogs in Cambodia. Consider a situation where a teacher gently pats a newly arrived third grade Vietnamese child on the head as a sign of affection. To many Vietnamese, a pat on the head is for animals not children.

Not only educators, but doctors, lawyer and others are tragically behind in their understanding of different cultures, beliefs and traditions. As an example, there are Viet-namese who believe when a woman has a baby, her spirit leaves her body for three days. Her spirit moves into the baby and her body is not to be touched for three days until her spirit returns. Student nurses coming in to help bathe a Vietnamese mother could have a battle

Speed limits, if enforced, can save lives

DON'T SPEED in Pennsylvania,

Those were my daughter's parting words as last weekend I prepared to fly to Washington, D.C., to drive with my mother from there to her birthplace of Cleveland.

My daughter knew of what she spoke. She had been stopped over the Labor Day weekend on the Pennsylvania Turnpike, where the officer only gave her a warning — which obviously worked — and let her

But Pennsylvania isn't the only state where police enforce and motorists adhere to the speed limit. Driving through Maryland and Ohio, there was no one going more than 8 miles over the limit - generally considered to be within the non-ticketable limits.

In both Maryland and Pennsylvania, posted speeds were 55 mph. Only in Ohio, did the limit go up to 65. And signs were posted all along, YOU, SLOW DOWN! or WE TICKET FOR EXCESSIVE SPEED.

Both by reputation and by those postings, they scare the dickens out of you. And you simply obey.

BY CONTRAST, Michigan has no such reputation for being tough-on speeders, although individual communities may on the roads within their towns.

When was the last time you drove within 8 miles of the speed limit on our state's highways - except in jammed traffic?

It's a paradox that Michigan, the home of America's auto industry, generally doesn't enforce its freeway speed limits. It would seem to go hand-in-hand with the crackdown on drunk driving, but it doesn't.

If you aren't going 70 on the newly-reconstructed 55 mph I-696 through Farmington Hills, forget it. And don't dare to take up space in the fast lane of I-275 as you drive the stretch from Novi to Livonia or you will be honked over or passed on the right.

Police failure to enforce the speed limits has further repercussions. It signals our residents, that other traffic laws can be broken too. A yellow light, for instance, at one time meant stop because it's going to turn red. Now, it seems to mean to many peo-- try and get through before it

Bankes on child panel

One suburban lawmaker and five area business leaders will meet with Gov. James Blanchard and his wife, Janet, to study child care alterna-

The 25-member group will meet over the next 90 days. Blanchard is looking for a plan the state, as an einployer, can adopt and that private employers can use voluntarily - not a government-mandated sys-

One vice-chair is Robert Naftaly of West Bloomfield, Blanchard's former budget director and now a vice der' and chief financial officer of Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Michigan Inc.

State Rep. Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia, is one of two lawmakers on the panel. Bankes has been active in promoting employer interest in providing child care alternatives.

Others are Denise Ilitch-Lites, a corporate executive from Little Caesar Pizza, headquartered in Farmington Hills; Pearl Lipner, chief financial officer of Image Express, Southfield; Walter J. McCarthy Jr., of Birmingham, board chairman of Detroit Edison Co.; and Leslie A. Murphy, partner in Plante Moran, Southfield.

Another member is Elizabeth Howe, former Rochester area resident and now director of the state Department of Labor.

Between now and the year 2000," Mrs. Blanchard said, "65 percent of new entrants into the work force will be women in every type of profession and career. Mothers with young children are the single fastest growing segment of the work force. Increasingly, these parents will place child care, parental leave and maternal leave high on their list of employment benefits and priorities."

The state already has a program allowing 60,000 employees to set aside up to $5,000 in wages each year to pay for child care. That sum would not be subject to income tax-

IN THE play, Flo's husband tells her he doesn't want to be married' anymore, and throws her out of their home.

"She (Flo) cries a lot," said Janice Anderson, director for the Plymouth Theatre Guild production. "She's Flo moves in with Olive, who is the producer of a TV network news show. Olive's not messy in terms of her physical appearance; she just doesn't enjoy housework.

"This is a good show with a lot of meaty parts for women," said Anderson, a Canton resident.

She directed a community theater production of the show while living in Columbus, Miss.

"We got the theater started on the

THE LOCAL production's cast includes six women and two men.

Plymouth Theatre Guild performances will be at 8 p.m. Friday-Saturday, Nov. 3-4, 10-11 and 17-18, and at 2 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 12. Performances will be in the theater on the campus of Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital.

Safety measures make Halloween more enjoyable.

By Julie Brown staff writer

ALLOWEEN IS JUST around the corner, and local police officials want the day to be a safe one.

"The key to having a good time is safety," said Chief Richard Myers of the Plymouth Police Department. "It just enhances the enjoyment for everybody."

Safety starts at home when children are planning what to wear on Halloween. Some costume designs are safer than others.

"We prefer costumes that don't have tace minks," said Chief Carl Berry of the Ptymouth Township Public Department Pace masks can atterpret tilton, making it more dangerous for children to cross streets.

Face makeup is ideal for Halloween, Berry said, in that it doesn't block children's vision.

Carrying a flashlight is a good idea, Nemecek said. Doing so makes trick-or-treaters easier to spot and helps children see where they're going.

Trick-or-treaters should stick to a pre-planned, well-lit route, crossing the street only at intersections. A parent, other adult or older teenager should accompany younger children. Older students should travel in groups and stay in familiar neighborhoods.

Hours for trick-or-treating in Plymouth Township will be 6-8 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 31. Trick-ortreating hours for city of Plymouth youngsters will be 5:36-8 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 31.

"I thought I would just stay home and have lots of babies. That was just the thing to do in the '60s for most of society, I would think."

She grew up in the Philadelphia area, got married and had two children. For some time, Galea was a homemaker and part-time worker.

For the past six years, she's worked in the financial planning field. She owns Gemini Financial Services, a full-service financial planning practice in Plymouth.

It's not unusual for her to work 12 to 15 hours a day, and to work seven days a week during the winter.

"But that's a commitment you make when you own your own business." She's been in business for herself since Aug. 6, 1986.

"I was always interested in numbers, number crunching, and the market in general." Galea also enjoys working with people.

IN THE EARLY 1980s, she had an opportunity to train with a mutual fund company.

"Someone was kind enough to give me an opportunity. Those opportuni-ties don't come along every day," She took licensing exams and learned as much as she could about investments.

Galea was recently named 1989's "Woman of the Year" by the Canton Business and Professional Women. She was nominated for the award by one of her business associates, Wende Sharma.

"I was surprised. Surprised and pleased," Galea said. She received that honor at a recent dinner meeting at the Roman Forum Restaurant in Canton.

HERE WAS a time when ing to church meant putting on your Sunday best. For many worshipers these days, that style of dress has gone the way of the Edsel.

"For the most part today, people wear normal, everyday clothes to church," said the Rev. George Charnley, pastor at St. John Neumann Catholic Church in Canton.

Some older members at St. John Neumann Church dress more formally for Mass.

"I think both are acceptable," Charnley said.

Other area ministers and priests have noticed a change as well.

"I think it's just what happened with styles," said the Rev. David Strong, pastor at St. Matthew's United Methodist Church in Livonia. "People feel more comfortable dressing in different ways."

CHARNLEY, STRONG and other pastors aren't all that concerned about what people wear to church.

"It doesn't bother me," Charnley said. "I'm just happy that they're here to pray as a community of believers. A lot of people who get dressed up aren't Christian."

Charnley hopes parishioners take with them what they've learned from the scriptures and use it in their daily lives.

A couple of casual Sundays are held at Strong's church each year. Members enjoy a picnic and can wear jeans to church on those days. "You don't see blue jeans, let's say, in church normally."

associated with the counterculture. "That doesn't concern me," he said. "I don't see that as a problem

Charnley has found that 99 per-cent of worshipers use good judg-ment when choosing clothes to wear

"Well, bathing suits I guess aren't appropriate." Other than that, Charnley's not concerned about what people wear to church.

Most people at the First United Methodist Church of Plymouth wear businesslike attire, according to the Rev. John Grenfell Jr., pastor at the church. Some choose more casual at-

GRENFELL WOULD find extremes in dress - such as a bathing suit or a see-through blouse - objectionable in church. People have been known to come to church in risque

"I'd have to say it's very rare," Grenfell said. He has several thoughts on what people should wear to church.

"I do think that people tend to be-have as they dress." At the same time, Grenfell doesn't like to see too much focus on the external at the expense of the internal.

"It's the inner life of a person that I think is important." That inner life isn't divorced from outer life, Grenfell said.

At Geneva Presbyterian Church in Canton, there's a history of encouraging people to be comfortable in worship. The church's welcoming ' brochure tells worshipers they don't need to get dressed up for services.

"We personally feel it's more important what's in a person's heart," Some young adults at Strong's said the Rev. Kenneth Gruebel, paschurch have worn unusual hairstyles tor at Geneva Presbyterian Church.

business suits or dresses. An equal if not greater number choose more casual attire.

Some men at Gruebel's church have jobs where they must wear suits five days a week. They prefer to dress more casually on Sunday.

PLYMOUTH'S GRENFELL hasn't seen a great distinction between attire worn to weddings and funerals and that worn for regular Sunday services. It's uncommon for people to dress inappropriately for weddings and funerals, the clergymen said.

"I do a lot of funerals," Gruebel said. "Usually, the family is well-

Many others at funerals are equally well-dressed, but Gruebel is sometimes surprised by the casual attire he sees at funerals.

"There's certainly been a relaxing in the standard of dress. I think we're always in the process of changing as a society." That's more a sociological phenomenon than a religious one, Gruebel said.

Gruebel would consider any attire disruptive to other people's worship inappropriate for church. Cut-off shorts, for example, wouldn't be the thing to wear.

The pastors have noticed some worshipers get more dressed up for Christmas and Easter. Priests and ministers generally dress more formally for worship services throughout the year.

"That I think is typical of the cler-gy," said Strong, of St. Matthew's United Methodist Church. He wears a robe during Sunday services.

or a robe with a stole for services. "I've always felt a little bit awkward in a robe." Gruebel does wear a robe for some weddings. Most worshipers probably expect their pastor to dress up a bit, Gruebel said, although that varies from congregation to congregation. Grenfell, of the First United Methodist Church of Plymouth, wears a robe for worship services. During the week, he wears business suits. Grenfell doesn't even own a clerical

Laypeople may tend to put the clergy on a pedestal, he said, and that's not the best thing for clergy or

Miracle offers a message CATASTROPHES ARE never

What would it be like to be trapped under fallen concrete in a subcompact automobile for 90 hours? Buck Helm has had a few things to say about that in the past few days. Buck went from being an unknown to being a national celebrity all because he was driving down the wrong highway at the wrong time.

Then again, "Lucky Bucky," as he has come to be called, may owe his celebrity status to the power of our imagination. Most of us can imagine the horror of being trapped in such a claustrophobic-producing cage of steel and concrete. We imagine and we relate.

People cheered when he was lifted to the daylight. Others noticed tears in their eyes as they sat in front of television sets far from Highway 880 and listened to the tale told by rescuers. To these people who risked their own lives, he was not simply a job. He was another human being.

To his ex-wife, he was more than an "ex," he was a person in need. To those of us who saw the TV coverage, he was not just a story, he was someone who could have been

Perhaps that is because when the floods come or the earth caves in, we begin to realize how vulnerable we all are. have been and still are trapped and often hopeless. But their would-be tomb is not made of steel or con-crete. Rather, their boundaries are set by systems, sometimes political, sometimes religious, often foreign but just as likely domestic.

THESE ARE the children as well as the men and women who work in sub-human conditions picking the lettuce for our salads in the same state whose soil supports Highway 880. They are the homeless who have fallen between the cracks of our systems that all too often come crashing down on unsuspecting lives.

They are the ones whose pain is compounded by shame as they succumb to the modern-day leprosy known as AIDS. They are often the senior citizens who live trapped in their loneliness or the single moms who are forced to sell houses to finance medical services for their uninsured children.

As I write this article, Buck's condition is still guarded. I do pray that he makes it. In the meantime, perhaps some reflection on how we have related to him can open us to relate to these many other trapped human beings. That may even invite us to confront the systems that keep them that way. Then we would have a miracle at least and great and certainly as wonderful as: the one on Highway 880.

The Rev. Robert Schaden is with the Newman House campus ministry at Schoolcraft College in Livonia.

Gun, Will Travel." Ellefson's should read, "Have Table, Will Travel."

After 360 hours of training at the Myomassethics Center in Southfield and post-graduate courses in sports massages and polarity — basically a tune-up for the body — Ellefson is his new-found craft not in salons, but in the comfort of clients'

With a custom-made portable massage table, a gym bag full of fresh linens and the equipment for paraffin wax, thermophore, ice pack and cryo-stem treatments, he hits the road every day to take the wonders of myomassology to people through the metropolitan area.

"Yeah, I guess you could say 'Have Table, Will Travel,' " the Churchill High School graduate said. "I liked working in a salon, but the reason I go into homes is because the clients I work with are more apt to tell me if they have a sore spot. They seem to open up more and give more "They tend to relax more in their home. Sometimes, I have to help them up because they're so relaxed."

THAT "SO relaxed" feeling is much the result of how he gives a massage, Ellerson said. Rather than doing deep pressure massaging at once, Elletson said he takes his time and works each muscle "so you don't get that soreness."

"I do a salesman for Northwest Airlines who couldn't believe how long I took and how thorough I was with each part of the body," he said. But for some clients, I go right to the problem areas first rather than try to do the whole body.

"It usually should take 11/2 hours for a good thorough massage."

BEING A myomassologist is far different from the auto body repair work Ellefson had been studying, or the several factory jobs he had since gave him massages for a sore back.

"I used to ask a lot of questions, so she suggested that I try it," he said.

Ellefson also got encouragement in a roundabout way. His grand-mother had diabetes and he would give her back rubs to help her circulation. His work landed him praise from her doctor, who told him to "keep up the good work."

"I figured that since massages helped me, I'd pass that on to other people," Ellefson said. "And I was always told I gave good back rubs. I'm so in to it now that I don't want to do anything else."

ELLEFSON WAS a member of the center's first graduating class and has been doing in-home massages since June 1988. While his business isn't growing by leaps and bounds - "I'm making a living right

Larry Meyer: "I want to avoid

Commerce chief's goal: stimulate state economy

By Gerald Frawley staff writer

Unemployment compensation, product liability, the U.S.-Canada free trade agreement and education top the fall agenda of Michigan's department of commerce director deignee Larry Meyer

Meyer told the Livonia Chamber of Commerce Wednesday that he is meeting with business people to present his direction for the commerce department. Meyer was the president of the Michigan Retailers Association prior to his selection by Gov. James Blanchard this summer. Meyer said his main goal is to stimulate the Michigan economy and continue the economic boom that began in the mid 1980s. "I want to avoid the traditional bunker mentality where business, labor and government dig ditches and start throwing grenades at one another."

Unemployment compensation, he said, is one of the first priorities he set for himself. For the past several ment leaders have been putting together a proposal that will significantly rework Michigan's unemployment system.

"They worked together, put aside their differences — or decided the differences weren't important and put together a 14-bill package," Meyer said. The state legislature should begin addressing the issue

THERE ARE GENERALLY two basic complaints about the system that the proposed bills will address, he said. One, people aren't getting their checks, and two, individual businesses are paying the wrong tax rate for their size. "In the past, we haven't had a reliable administrative structure.

Meyer said the key obstruction to implementing a better unemployment system has always been a lack of a clear line of accountability and responsibility.

Another big issue on his fall agenda, Meyer said, is product liability. Although still in the early planning stages, reworking product liability laws to cope with a litigious society will require "immense give and take" in the legislature.

Meyer said he also intends to be-

Meyer said he also intends to begin work on refining Michigan education and preparing the state for the U.S.-Canada free trade agreement. Both will be ongoing issues

Perhaps most important of all, however, is education in Michigan, he said. 'To qualify for a job, a youngster has to be better prepared the days when someone can drop out of high school and work at General Motors are long gone." MEYER SAID there is no quick fix for solving the state's education dilemma, but the workforce must be more competitive if Michigan is going to continue attracting jobs.

Proposal A, the half-cent sales tax increase for education, is a step in the right direction, Meyer said, adding the proposal promises increased emphasis on computers and math, but also calls for more accountability in the education process.

Business people should support education improvements because they need more qualified workers, Meyer said, but as parents and grandparents, Michigan residents have a moral responsibility to support edu-

Livonia Chamber president John Landis said he is confident that Meyer will be a good replacement for Doug Ross. "He's been in business so he's coming from the right direction," he said.

'We as a chamber may not agree with everything he tries to do (in the future), but the key thing is that we will be able to maintain communica-

Landis said he was initially surprised at Meyer's appointment because Blanchard is a Democrat and Meyer is a Republican. It was a non-political decision."

Meyer also spoke at the opening of the Southfield Marriott, He is expected to officially assume his posi-

In our column last week, we looked at the most common means people use to build their long-term wealth — through systematic saving and investing. Payroll deduction plans and dollar-cost-averaging programs were two examples of strategies that many people use effectively to accomplish their

This week, we will examine two alternate methods of building assets. We term the groups using these two methods the achievers and the investors.

The achievers are those who build up their assets in a long-term, illiquid enterprise. These include business owners and real estate property owners. For their activities to be profitable, they must put in a great deal of hard work and effort into these enterprises - thus the name achievers.

Building and operating a new business is a highrisk method of building assets. Many businesses fail due to a variety of internal or external factors. But in the right set of circumstances, this can be an excellent method of building net worth and financial

Other successful achievers we have interviewed have the time, the inclination and the temperament to operate successfully in the real estate arena. Typically, they will, over time, buy and rent several investment properties, actively managing the properties to increase their value. Often, such properties need significant repairs and renovations. If the buildings are in attractive areas, and the owner has the time and skills to make these repairs, significant value can be rapidly added to the properties.

Contrary to the books and advertisements, this method of wealth building is not a get-rich-quick scheme. It takes time, patience, persistence and a commitment to hard work in this area over a long

Ultimately, the properties can be sold and the profits used to provide income at retirement. Alternatively, the properties might continue to be held. The rents provide the owner with needed retirement income, and periodic increases in the rent provide protection against inflation.

MOST PEOPLE think it would be easy to manage a large sum of money. From a practical standpoint, this is not necessarily true. For example, a study of Michigan lottery winners concluded that, in many cases, the winning of the lottery caused more problems than it solved. Those who were generally the most successful in handling it were those who made few changes in their lifestyle.

The most common windfall received is an inheritance. If it is a substantial amount, and if the majority is put aside for future needs rather than for current consumption, it can be an important nest egg providing long-term security. If current income is needed from the inheritance, keeping the principal intact becomes critical. Only the interest and dividends should be used for income. It is all too easy to dip into the principal to enhance lifestyle. This can start the slow but inexorable depletion of this wind-

Some people have irregular incomes. Working in sales on a commission basis, or working in jobs where a periodic bonus is a major part of one's compensation, or working as a consultant may result in dramatic fluctuations in income. In this situation, proper management of this irregular income is vital.

Smoothing out the highs and lows often can be accomplished by establishing a reserve account. Placing a portion of the bonus of large commission check into a long-term investment plan should be a priority item. If, as frequently happens, it is either mentally spent or actually spent before it is received, little is ever put aside for the long term.

There are a number of other ways in which wind-

Consulting breaks offered

Small businesses which have advanced beyond the embryo stage and now need help dealing with the problems of growth can get it through the state of Michigan.

The department of commerce is ready to expand Growth Margin, a demonstration program in which young companies can take advantage of reduced consulting fees.

The program started about a year and a half ago with a survey of small-business owners.

"We saw plenty of examples of companies that grew fast, then exploded," said Jeffrey Padden, a former state legislator and now an administrator with the commerce department.

"Growth got ahead of the business owner's ability to manage," he said. "One of the differences we found between companies that grew successfully and those that didn't was outside expertise."

So, the state recruited several consultants — firms like Rehmann Robson & Co. of Farmington Hills and Arthur Andersen of Detroit - who were willing to offer their services at a reduced rate in exchange for a guaranteed volume of business.

THE CONSULTANT reviews a company's current situation, then develops a plan to expedite growth, Padden said.

Companies can buy up to 40 hours of consulting services. The state, in addition to getting consultants to reduce their fees, pays 20 percent of

Unlike many state and federal programs, there are no eligibility criteria for businesses to participate. Padden projected that a small business owner could acquire consulting services worth $2,000-$3,500 for an actual out-of-pocket outlay of $800-$1,400.

'What we wanted to do was stimulate the private market, not take over services," Padden said. "We are a quality control manager. Actual delivery of services is out in the INDIVIDUAL COMPANIES wanting in on the program can contact the Oakland County Economic Development Group (858-0732) or the Pontiac Growth Group (333-2990) for referrals.

Padden said he suspects that an economic or chamber of commerce group in Wayne County will express an interest in trying to match clients with consultants when the program expands Jan. 1.

The typical target company is one that has been around two or three years, has 10 to 100 employees and a management committed to growth, Padden said. It can be either service or manufacturing oriented.

"What we're trying to do is improve the odds that companies will grow and add jobs," Padden said. "This isn't a training ground. It's for consultants with experience.

"IF WE get only one job per com-pany that we otherwise would not get, our service will more than pay for itself," he said. "It's job growth that wouldn't have happened other-wise. That's what the public gets in return for its investment (of state

The state expects to make approximately $450,000 available for the program between January and September, said Jean Johnson, project

"Another value for the consultant is we're doing marketing for them," Padden said.

It's obvious what a business gets - consulting services at a reduced

Upward of 60 companies will have participated in pilot and demonstration programs by the end of the year, Padden said.

Mike Carr, general manager and vice president for Barroncast of Oxford, said his company wasn't at all happy with a more expensive consultant it hired on its own before getting involved with Growth Margin.

Carr said he wouldn't hesitate to recommend the state program.

"AS FAR AS preliminary data we've received, we thought it was helpful in an economical way to develop a plan for growth potential."

Diana Ipsen, a principal with Shul-man Ipsen Associates, said her firm has completed four evaluations as part of the Growth Margin program. Two of those clients have already contracted with the firm for further services and the other two are expected to do so, she said. 'We're delighted," Ipsen said. "I think it's good for the companies and good for the state of Michigan economy.

"It was our thought for the last couple of years the state could assist with management help for these small companies. The state could very well serve to fill in the gap," Padden fully expects that business

FINANCIAL SUCCESS does not necessarily follow from increased income. It is the effective management of that income that results in success or failure.

One common trait found in most financially successful savers, achievers and investors is that they use debt wisely. Some avoid it entirely, but most see debt as a tool to use prudently in their financial lives. They generally don't buy items when ans of repayment is unclear.

The exception to this might be the business owner, where frequently large risks are taken to achieve potential gains in the future. But even then, the risk of using borrowed money is a calculated one.

Once you become obligated to too many monthly debt payments, your financial options can be severely limited. A high percentage of income is needed to make the monthly payments, and no real progress can be

Through proper allocation of income and management of your assets, financial success is attainable by almost everyone. The definition of success will vary from person to person, as should be expected.

WHAT'S THE

IT'S SOLID AND LIQUID AT THE SA

Most things are pretty much black and white. Oil and water don't mix. East is East. West is West. Something can't be solid and liquid at the same time. Well, not so with The First Rate Fund. Because it earns you a great rate, without tying up your principal.

Earn 9 Percent For Up To 60 Days. From October 2 until November 30. The First Rate Fund earns interest at an annual rate of 9 percent. After that, it's tied to the 91-day Treasury Bill, guaranteeing a highly competitive rate. All it takes is a $10,000 deposit to start.

And you can add to it, whenever you like. Make a withdrawal and you won't have to pay a penalty.

So, by all means, open your FirstRate Fund now, and earn an annual rate of 9 percent for as long as possible.

Solid. And Liquid, Too.

Unlike some other investments with a high return like the FirstRate Fund, you can get to your money, whenever you need to. All you have to do is drop us a line. Seven days later, you'll have your money. We'll even call to tell you when you can pick up your check.

Insurance For Your Money Most investments like this require some risk taking. Not so with The FirstRate Fund.

Your bank deposits are FDIC insured for up to $100,000. Meaning your principal's safe to the maximum amount allowed by law.

In short, you have nothing to lose. But an awful lot to gain.

Where's The Fine Print? You Just Read It.

If you're going to name something FirstRate, it ought to be just that.

So there are no funny restrictions or conditions. Just a straightforward investment that, unlike a lot of competitive investments, is unquestionably attractive. Which leaves us with one last question. What are you waiting for? The FirstRate Fund. Only from First of America.

Stop by any one of our First of America offices to invest in one, or call 1-800-544-6155.

Remember, this offer may not last forever, is available to individuals only, and may change without notice.

EMPLOYMENT LAW

Wednesday, Nov. 1 - Dickinson Wright Employment Law seminar offered 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the Hyatt Regency Dearborn. Information:

Joint ownership isn't necessarily the best way Most of us own property jointly because we believe that's the thing spouses have equal rights of ownership in this property and its earnings, but they also share such equal to do. However, that's not always the ownership rights in the income debest strategy, as revealed by today's rived from salaries, wages, or other compensation for services.

In the non-community states, the nature of distribution of assets held jointly depends on the form of joint ownership. Of the three types of joint ownership permitted in these states, one is designed specifically to put all assets through probate, whereas the other two completely bypass probate. Each of the three types of joint-ownership has its own distinct characteristics and is discussed be-

Joint tenancy with right of survivor-

This type of ownership can be set up by any two or more persons. Each owner is known as a joint tenant and owns an equal share of the property.

Co-owners may not sell or give away their interests without the partners' permission. When death occurs, the share of the deceased passes to the surviving partners. Upon death the property is divided in accordance with the vested interest of each party, although the property could be equally divided by prior consent. This type of ownership completely bypasses the probate process, but is includible in the gross estate for estate tax purposes at either the proven portion of ownership or at 100 percent of the market value if it is not possible to prove the percentage of ownership. Generally, it is not a recommended form of ownership except under certain circumstances.

Tenancy by the entirety

This form of joint tenancy differs from the joint tenancy with the right of survivorship in two respects. First, in those states that permit it, tenancy by the entirety can be established only by married couples. Second, neither spouse can sell or give away any property without the consent of the other spouse. When death ocurs, the deceased's share passes to the survivor. This form, too, bypasses the probate.

This type of ownership directs all property not to the co-owners but rather to the heirs named in the will Consequently, its major objective is to insure that all assets pass through the probate court. Obviously, tenancy in common is not used to save on probate costs and delays by bypass

Sun. Nov. 12 1:00 p.m. 8:30 p.m.

1. Give the reader specific information. Pretend you are someone reading the classifieds. What would you like to know about the item, service or job you are advertising? Be sure to add details such as color, size, condition, brand name, age, features and benefits. Be accurate! Don't embellish your ad with misleading information. Stick to the facts and reap the rewards!

L. Include the price. Don't vaste your time or a potential puyer's time. If you advertise the price of the Item or service you offer, the people who respond o your ad will be those who are renuinely interested. Surveys how that readers are more nterested in those items and envices they know are within their price range.

4 door tomat cruise roster.

3. Avoid abbreviations. Don't make a potential customer work too hard! Although you may be tempted to cut down on the cost of your ad by using abbreviations, surveys indicate that many people don't understand such abbreviations as EIK (eat-in kitchen) or wsw (white side wall) tires and won't take the time to figure them out. A confused reader is a disinterested reader. Get the most for your money and use complete words.

4. Include phone number and specify hours. Be sure to let potential customers know when and where to call. Surveys show that even if a person is very interested in your item or service, he or she will not call back after the first attempt. Stay near the phone during the hours you indicate you will be available. Don't risk missing a sale!

5. Run on consecutive days. Your ad will not get results if people don't see it! Therefore, it is important to set up a consistent and consecutive ad schedule with your telephone salesperson or outside sales representative.

Jeff Gold of Salem is tripped up by Canton defender Shawn Mac in Monday's district soccer game at Centennial Educational Park. Despite tight, aggressive defense by the Chiefs, Salem won the opening-round contest 2-0. See story on Page 2D.

Salem evens score, shares division lead

By Bob Stebbins staff writer

The outside bombers from North Farmington (12-3) fell one missile short Tuesday as Plymouth Salem (8-7) topped the host Raiders 40-37 in girls basketball action.

The Rocks' victory left both teams tied for first place in the Lakes Division of the Western Lakes Activities Association with 7-1 records.

North, down 11 points entering the fourth quarter, had a chance to send the game into overtime, but Kim Gurecki's three-point attempt with :03 to play was off the mark.

Salem coach Fred Thomann was extremely happy with the win.

"With a young team, you have to learn how to win big games," he said. "This was a positive step in the right direction, learning how to beat a good basketball team. Except for Mercy, this was the best win we've had so far this year."

THE KEY TO victory for Salem was its first-half performance.

The Rocks led 13-7 after one quarter and then scored the first eight points of the second to open up a 21-7

The inside strength of Salem was apparent early as the Rocks were able to consistently get the ball inside for easy baskets. All five of Salem's field goals in the quarter were scored within six feet of the basket.

Center Emily Giuliani scored eight of her 10 points in the opening half to lead Salem to a 25-13 edge at the intermission.

Conversely, the Raiders were stuck outside, bombing from the per-imeter. In the first half, the shots weren't falling. For the most part, North's offense consisted of Gurecki and Eve Claar toeing the three-point line and launching bombs.

Thomann expected North to perimeter game," he said. "They have done it all season long."

THE THIRD quarter was evenly played, with North outscoring Salem 10-9 to cut the Rocks' lead to 34-23 entering the final quarter.

After committing numerous turnovers in the opening half, North finally solved Salem's three-quartercourt press in the later stages of the third quarter.

"We practiced against it all week," North coach Greg Capling North coach Greg Capling said. "We just made a few adjust-

In the fourth quarter, North started turning up the defensive pressure. The Raiders extended their press and picked up the intensity, and the result was a plethora of Salem turn-

Thomann gave North credit for causing errors.

"The pressure of their defense and the pressure of the game had some-thing to do with it," he said. When Salem did break North's press, they missed easy shots. The Rocks missed four layups in the final

"EVERY TIME we missed a makable shot, the pressure increased,' Thomann said.

Claar and Gurecki took advantage of the miscues, combining for a trio of three-pointers in the period. Claar's triple with 3:02 to play brought the Raiders within three at

After a pair of foul shots by Salem point guard Kelly Austin at the 1:57 mark increased the lead to five, the North bombers went cold.

Gurecki and Claar each missed a pair of threes before Gurecki rebounded a missed shot and was fouled with 1:12 to play. Gurecki split the pair and, with 17 seconds left, scored after stealing a pass to close the gap to 39-37.

Austin broke the North press after the tally and was fouled with :10 to play. She calmly hit the front end of the 1-and-1 to give the Rocks the final margin of victory.

Gurecki had one last chance to tie it for the Raiders, but her threepoint attempt from the top of the key was rebounded by Yolanda Jackson as time ran out.

Gurecki (18 points) and Claar (18 points) were a two-person wrecking crew for North, combining for 36 of its 37 points.

SALEM, ON THE other hand, had a balanced scoring attack. Sarah Ruete (8), Darcie Miller (6), Wendy Bailey (6) and Austin (6) combined with Giuliani to provide the bulk of the Rocks' attack.

Capling looked to the first half as the difference in the game.

"We got off to a slow start," he said. "We didn't put the ball in the hole and had to battle back from

Still, Capling was philosophical in

"The kids were disappointed, but I told them the sun will come up to-morrow," he said.

CEP grid rivalry never been better

HE HIGH SCHOOL football season reaches its zenith Friday night when Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem have their long-awaited Diplomacy will not be in vogue, however.

In the past, the rivalry itself was always reason enough to hype this football game. But it was usually just that: a nice little rivalry but lacking any substance. This year the game definitely has substance. Oh, does

For the first time since Centennial Educational Park was constructed 17 years ago, both have produced successful football teams simultaneously. The Rocks and Chiefs come armed with 7-1 records for their version of The Clash of the Titans, and the spoils of victory could very well include a Class A playoff berth.

It used to be Salem would win this game without much trouble. Again, the game was all hype. But no more. That changed a year ago.

There isn't a lot of history behind the series - the teams have only been playing each other since 1982 but the Rocks hold a 7-1 advantage.

Canton, however, took its first win a year ago when it upset Salem 21-14. The Chiefs went into that game with a 2-6 record, the Rocks 6-2.

"OBVIOUSLY, THE fact they beat us last year when we had the good record and they didn't kinda sticks in our craw over here," Salem coach Tom Moshimer said.

That is point No. 2 as we build toward Friday's game. Incidentally, game time is 7:30 p.m., and I suggest you get there early, especially since the warm temperatures that are predicted should swell the crowd.

The revenge factor alone would have added a great deal of interest to this year's game. Can the Chiefs, once perennial losers in this contest, do it again? Perhaps the Rocks had gotten lax in this rivalry.

Maybe it didn't have much meaning to them. Could it be Salem had begun to take the Chiefs too lightly? "For once, we're going into the game with something to prove," Moshimer said. "I don't know if revenge is what I'd call it, but this is a different situation for us to be in, so it should be more motivation than usual."

This game to be played Friday will have meaning, and neither team will be taking the other too lightly. For the first time in this relatively brief series, both have quality teams and are evenly matched. And that is a basic reason why the game holds so much interest. THAT THE Chiefs have their best team in school history would have made this one of the most appealing Canton-Salem games. But here is Salem, too, having its best season in six years. The Rocks haven't done this well since having back-to-back, 8-1 seasons in 1982-83.

But there is more at stake. These teams won't be playing to add one just more win to an already fine season. Each will playing to extend its season into postseason play.

"I can't remember a Canton-Salem game having as much significance as this game," Canton coach Bob Khoenle said. "It adds a little more salt to it. I really think it will be a good and exciting game."

Both teams have playoff aspirations, but the outlook is more promising for Canton. (See the accompanying playoff ratings.) Should the Chiefs win, they will be in the playoffs next weekend. Salem is way behind in the region and, as it looks now, won't make the playoffs even if it wins Friday. That doesn't mean it can't happen, but it seems mathematically unlikely, considering the ground the Rocks need to

Salem's chances suffered terribly under the Western Lakes Activities Association crossover format last

First of all, it didn't help playing the same team (Northville) twice, because that team couldn't earn additional bonus points for Salem. Secondly, it was a bad team with only two wins, which meant fewer bonus points. And lastly, the Rocks were the only Lakes Division team to win a game. No help there.

CANTON, ON the other hand, jumped ahead of Salem because it played a good team (North Farmington) and picked up a lot of bonus points. Plus, every Western Division team but Northville won its crossover game, bringing in a bonanza of bonus points for the Chiefs.

Thus, Canton is a definite with another victory. Salem is still a maybe at best. The Rocks would need a lot of help from previous opponents, but only a few are projected winners in their final games.

The Chiefs should have tremendous incentive since they know a win will surely put them in the playoffs. If nothing else, that should inspire Salem to play the role of spoiler.

While on the subject, Salem should never have been made to play Northville a second time. The WLAA botched this one

At best, the Rocks should have played Livonia Churchill, which tied with Northville but lost the headto-head game.

As for giving each an equal shot at the playoffs, Salem and Canton - the true runners-up in each division - should have played each other two weeks in a row. That would have guaranteed one (or possibly both) getting in the playoffs, and it would have been following the WLAA format to the letter

But, all that aside, this should be a classic Salem-Canton game nonetheless.

Ryan Pitzpatrick and Chris Olson scored goals and Matt Tudor got his 12th shutout as Salem (13-3-1) defeated its arch rival for the second time in six days at Centennial Educational Park, 2-0.

The Rocks were coasting at the start of October. They were unbeaten and ranked No. 1, in the state when the team went through a difficult period, going 0-3-1 in its next took it out on each other because we weren't passing," Olson said. "As you saw, we got our passing back to-

SALEM USED its coordinated passing approach to keep the pres-sure on the Chiefs (5-10-3) most of the night, but Canton was emotionally ready for the post-season game after losing 4-1 to the Rocks in the regular-season finale on Wednesday.

The Chiefs, who went on the offensive early, fell back to concentrate on stopping Salem and were successful for the first 36 minutes.

"We were trying to keep them from acoring as long as we could," Canton coach Don Smith said, "and, hopefully, sneak one in and maybe go to a shootout."

Jeff Pryslak, who was added to the Canton defense as an extra sweeper, and the regular at that po-sition, Shawn Mac, led an effort that frustrated the Rocks until Fitzpatrick scored his first varsity goal with four minutes left in the first

Fitzpatrick caught the Chiefs off guard after play was momentarily halted on a possession call. Canton left him uncovered to fire a hard shot from the left wing that just got under the crossbar.

"Those restarts have been killing us," Smith said. "I bet we've had 10 of those scored against us. We follow (the opponent) down there and don't react quickly enough. They didn't catch the goalie (Andy Collins) sleeping, but it was a good shot."

With the Rocks dominating play and leading only 1-0 at halftime, Salem coach Ken Johnson instructed his players to keep the ball low and not wait so long to pass.

"I TOLD THEM we had to release quicker and open up the game," Johnson said. "We had to have less individual play.

"It's tough because Jeff (Gold) and Greg (Christensen) are natural dribblers. They gave up the individual (play) for the good of the team. We decided that when the occasion arises we have to do that." The Canton defense and Collins, who made several big saves, held the Rocks scoreless for the first 29 minutes of the second half. Collins stopped a shot by Gold, but Olson directed the rebound away from the

The goal ended a seven-game scoring drought for the senior forward.

"Collins is a strong goalie against me; he saves everything," Olson said. "All I've been doing in practice is shooting, shooting and shooting, and I got my confidence back because I had lost it."

While the Chiefs were untiring on defense, they didn't have the offense to complement it. Smith used the extra sweeper in hopes of eliminating the need for the forwards to come back and help on defense.

"It was working for a while," he said. "We moved the ball nicely at times, but we couldn't do anything once we got it down there tight.

Salem's Bill Joker and Canton's Jim Yack go for the ball simultaneously in district soccer action Monday. The Rocks defeated Canton a third time this season, 2-0.

Pilots fly over CC in title game

By C.J. Risak staff writer

Suddenly the sun was shining. The wind died down, toog For the first time in days, the weather bordered on tolerable.

Of course the change came too late. The match had ended a few minutes before, with Warren De-LaSalle holding on for a 2-0 victory over Redford Catholic Central in a winter-like Catholic League soccer final.

The weather conditions Saturday at Harper Woods Notre Dame were not the only contrasting elements. Rather, the frigid gusts that swept the field throughout the game, then surrendered to very-welcome warm sunshine after)the game, provide one of the afternoon's several contradictions.

"Our approach to this game was, sure, we want to win the Catholic League title," said CC coach John Boots. "But win or lose, we're going to play again Monday. If we lose Monday, our season's over."

SO AS MUCH as Boots would have liked to beat DeLaSalle, he figured it would be in his team's best interests to instead focus on the Class A state tournament, which the Shamrocks open today at Livonia Franklin.

'We wanted to have fun," said Roots

On the other bench, the attitude was as different as the two team's playing styles. Moments after the title-clinching triumph, DeLaSalle coach Terry Mukhtar told Boots how much the victory meant to the Pi-

"We really get ready for you because we think you have one of the teams in the state," said Mukhtar to Boots.

Maybe so - CC (14-2-1) was ranked second in Class A by the coaches association last week - but he Shamrocks have yet to overcome the Pilots' defense consistently. Satarday's meeting was the third this season between the two sides. De-LaSalle leads 2-1; they are CC's only losses, and the only two shutouts CC has suffered this year.

THE PILOTS, 16-2 overall, struck midway through the first half when midfielder Jeff Fratarcangeli crossed the ball to Craig Abraham. Abraham headed it past CC keeper J.P. Angell - which may have disappointed, but didn't surprise, Boots.

"(DeLaSalle's) whole game is played above everyone's head," said Boots. "We wanted to bring the ball down and make them play it with their feet, where I think we'd have the advantage."

It didn't hurt the Pilots to have a half-dozen players well over 6 feet tall on the field - a sizable advantage in head-ball situations. Nor did it help the Shamrocks that perhaps their best defender, Jason Ries, has been lost for the season with torn knee ligaments. Ries also happens to measure 6-foot-3.

But Boots would not use his "let's have fun" approach, or DeLaSalle's size advantage, or even the weather, as an excuse. "Our plan was to beat them to the ball, and we didn't," he said. "We didn't play as well as we should have. We had scoring opportunities. We didn't take advantage of

WHICH IS where DeLaSalle keeper Dan LeBeau entered into the picture. "Their keeper made two or three saves in the first half that kept them in the game," said Boots. "I wasn't that impressed with him before, but he sure did the job today."

Said Mukhtar: "Danny LeBeau was outstanding.

So was the rest of the Pilots' tightmarking defense. "We wanted to pinpoint their strong players and take them out of the play," explained Mu-khtar. "We wanted to neutralize them and force someone else to beat

The outcome remained in doubt until the final minute. That's when DeLaSalle's Brian Maisonneuve gained possession in CC's end of the field and headed toward the goal. Angell came out to challenge him, but Maisonneuve put his shot past Angell into the far corner to ice the victory. "The season's been pretty pressure-oriented for CC," said Boots. "I wanted them to loosen up. But I seriously hope we get a chance to play (DeLaSalle) again."

That could only happen in the state finals. Which means another chapter in this battle of contrasting styles and philosophies may be added before this season ends.

Salem shoots for district crown

Jeff Gold's four goals Wednesday paced Plymouth Salem to a 6-1 soccer victory over host Brighton and advanced the Rocks to the district final at 11 a.m. Satur-

Sixth-ranked Salem, 14-3-1, will play Ann Arbor Pioneer, a 2-0 winner over Ypsilanti in the other secondround game Wednesday, at Ypsilanti High School.

Coach Ken Johnson expects a good game from the Pioneers, who upset No. 7 Ann Arbor Huron 1-0 in overtime Monday. Huron had beaten Livonia Stevenson 1-0.

"I like playing teams we haven't played," Johnson said. "It's tough playing the Churchills and Stevensons all the time. They don't know you, and you can play your who assisted on Olson's goal, scored the next four, including three first-half goals for a 4-0 halftime lead.

Gold scored twice on headers with assists going to Ryan Fitzpatrick and Greg Christensen, and the third was a penalty kick.

"I thought we played our best soccer of the season in the first half," Johnson said. "Olson has come to life at the right time. He's a powerful shooter, but he hasn't gotten any breaks."

A pass from Christensen led to Gold's second-half goal, and Todd LaJoy scored his first goal of the season. With the Rocks up 6-0, the reserves took over, and Brighton scored with five minutes remaining against backup goalie Nick Dazer, a sophomore who replaced the injured Derek Olson on the varsity.

Chiefs clinch Focus on football playoffs I share of title in Western

Plymouth Canton had no trouble clinching a share of the Western Division girls basketball championship Tuesday, whipping Northville 61-

The Chiefs, 8-0 in the division and 13-2 overall, now have won or shared the title for five consecutive years.

Canton can clinch the championship outright by beating Farmington (8-8) Thursday and decide the issue before it meets second-place Livenia Franklin (6-2) Tuesday.

After building a 31-13 halftime lead against Northville, the rest became elementary as the Chiefs dominated the second half, outscoring the Mustangs 14-0 in the third quarter and 16-7 in the fourth.

Stally Thompson led the Chiefs with 20 points, making 12 of 14 free throws. Center Susan Ferko added 15 for the winners.

Canton made 20 of 32 free throws, and Northville found the hoop on Tour of seven chances.

"This is a big victory for us," Canton coach Bob Blohm said. "It really puts us in the driver's seat."

T'S NAIL-BITING time for area high school football teams and their prognosticators.

The end of the regular seathis weekend with state playoff berths on the line. Also on the line is the overall championship between the prognosticators.

Last week, the friendly Irishman (Dan O'Meara) hit a considerable stroke of luck by picking 13 of 14 games correctly.

Meanwhile, the frowning Weishman (Brad Emons) suffered through That means only two games separate the two in the season standings: Emons is 88-26 overall, while O'Meara is 86-28.

The games on tap this weekend will be under close scrutiny, not to mention these playoff ramifications:

CLASS A — Region II: Unbeatens Lansing Sexton (8-0) and Portage Central (8-0) are virtual "locks" for two of the top four spots if both prevail this weekend. The third place spot should go to Plymouth Canton (7-1) if it can beat Plymouth Salem (7-1), but the No. 9 Rocks would still be in jeopardy even if they beat Canton. Also in the hunt are Novi (7-1), which meets Northville (2-6) this week, and Brighton (7-1), which takes on Taylor Center (2-6).

: Region III: The picture is somewhat cloudy.

Birmingham Brother Rice (8-0) should be in regardless of the outcome Sunday in the Catholic League Prep Bowl against Southgate Aqui-Dearborn Fordson (8-0) and Dearborn Edsel Ford (8-0), each competing for berths in Region III, collide this weekend. Fordson can afford a loss and still make it but Edsel can-

Detroit Mackenzie (8-0) should make it, even with a loss to Detroit King (8-0) in Public School League championship.

Westland John Glenn (7-1) must defeat Wayne Memorial (6-2) to gain any type of shot at one of the top four berths. The Rockets, however, hold the edge over Birmingham Seaholm (7-1), which should win Friday gainst rival Groves (1-7). West Bloomfield (7-1) is another longshot. Because the playoff system is based on strength of schedule, the Lakers don't help themselves by finishing their season against Milford (2-6).

The pivotal matchup is the Fordson-Edsel game. An Edsel Ford victory could make it tough for Glenn CLASS B - Region IV: Topranked Farmington Hills Harrison (8-0) can lose to Farmington (1-7) this weekend and still be the No. 1ranked team in this region.

Jockeying for the other spots are: Allen Park (7-1), Milan (7-1), Riverview (7-1) and Warren (7-1). Mount Clemens Clintondale (6-2) and Aquinas (5-3) are longshots.

CLASS C — Region II: Detroit St, Martin DePorres (8-0) is running away with the No. 1 slot. DePorres meets U-D Jesuit (7-1) in the wildcard game Sunday at the Pontiac Unbeatens Onsted (7-0) and Harbor Beach (7-0) can each secure berths this weekend with victories. The fight is for fourth place between New Haven (7-1), Flat Rock (6-2), Detroit Country Day (6-2) and Redford St. Agatha (7-1).

The Aggies must beat Detroit East Catholic (7-0) on Sunday at the Silverdome and have almost half of their playoff competitors lose this weekend to have any kind of hope.

> FRIDAY'S GAMES (all 7:30 p.m. unless noted)

Lutheran Westland at Det. Luth. West (7 p.m.): Lutheran Westland (4-4) has had two weeks rest after gaining a forfeit win last week over North Branch Wesleyan. Detroit Lutheran West (6-2) is a good team, smarting from a 21-12 loss last week to Mount Clemens Lutheran North. West is still in the hunt for a playoff berth in Class D (Region II). PICKS: Lutheran Westland's Dennis Tuomi, who was the longtime coach at Lutheran West, wishes he was on the other side. Go West young

City bragging rights (get there early) are also on the line in this one. Wayne (6-2) could well be undefeated having lost a pair of close games to Wyandotte and Dearborn Fordson. The Zebras, playing at home two years ago, played the spoiler role by upsetting Glenn and knocking the Rockets out of the playoffs. It's the same scenario all over again. Glenn's defense must contain the scrambling of Wayne quarterback Brent Tapp and the pass catching of Larry Johnson. PICKS: Glenn wins a squeaker, predicts Emons. The Zebras do a repeat of two years ago, says

Plymouth Canton vs. Plymouth Salem (at CEP): Last year the Chiefs took out the Rocks. With a playoff berth at stake, it could come down to the final few minutes. Canton proved it is no fluke by beating North Farmington last week. Defense will be the key. Can Salem control the passing of Karl Wukie? Can Canton contain the inside power of Ryan Johnson and the wishbone attack? PICKS: Salem wins the grudge match and ponders the playoff possibilities, says Emons. O'Meara thinks the Chiefs will do it again.

Walled Lk. Western at Walled Lk. Central: The battle of Walled Lake could be another close one, despite records of 2-6 and 1-7, respectively. Central is due for a win. Western is coming off a 21-7 victory over Livonia Stevenson, A coin file. may be needed. PICKS: Take Western.

> S'ATURDAY'S GAMES (all at 1 p.m. unless noted)

Liv. Clarenceville at Red. Thurston: Two contrasting styles. Thurston (3-5) is conservative offensively and relies on the running of Jesse Welker. Clarenceville (62) comes at you with an assertment of weepons ted by quarterback Chris "The Boes" Foss, taltback Andy Weighill and receiver Kendrick Hantington. Wurston has played a tougher athedde, but I Clarenceville won last year's meeting. PICKS: Emons says Thurston pulls the tupset win. O'Means believes the Trojane will rehound from their loss to Avandale.

Garden City at Liv. Franklin: Could be another tight battle. Garden City's sched-) ule has been murderous against the likes, of unbesten Dearborn Edsel Ford and Bay City John Glenn, not to mention Wayne. Franklin (3-5) is coming off a narrow 13-12 win over Walled Lake Central. The Cougars were blasted last week by Bay City (49-14) . PICKS: Emons says Franklin wins. O'Meara says Garden City

Redford Union at N. Farmington: Could be the mismatch of the weekend. RU (0-8) should be playing Farmington instead, while North (5-3) should be playing against Herrison. The Panthers, who had to forfeit their only victory, do not have the horses to stay with North, PICKS: North in a romp.

Farmington at Farm, Harrison: The Falcons (1-7) will go down throwing, but they won't have enough in their arsenal to. beat the Hawks, who are gunning for their 22nd consecutive victory. PICKS: Harrison names the score.

Bishop Borgess at Orchard Lk. St. Mary's: A little bit of deja vu? Remember these two teams met in the season opener at the Pontiac Silverdome. St. Mary's rolled to a 37-8 victory. Borgess (1-7), should make it a little closer, but St. Mary's (6-2), led by quarterback Vaughn. Bryant, is loaded with talent. PICKS: Take the Eaglets again.

Redford CC vs. Dbn. Divine Child (1:30 p.m. at Crestwood): The Shamrocks' state playoff hopes went down the drain last weekend after falling to Warren DeLaSalle in the final seconds, 19-14, Pride is on the line in this one. Can CC (6-2) bounce back? Divine Child (5-3) is a formidable opponent. PICKS: The Sham-, rocks rebound to finish 7-2.

SUNDAY'S GAME

St. Agatha vs. Det. East Catholic (4 p.m. at Silverdome): The Aggles are making their second straight appearance in this C-D Division championship game at the Pentiac Silverdome. Detroit East son-opening win over St. Clement because of an illegal transfer. Speedy East Catholic, led by junior quarterback freesh Gray and sophomore tallback Leonard Holmes, can put points on the scoreboard. The Aggles' defense is tough, ted by Pat Wagner and Brian Rich. The offersive attack will control the ball, fed by quarterback Brian Kutch and fullback Ken Prokes. PICKS: The Aggles make up for sary. Coach John Goodard takes a victory dip in Cass Lake. Redford Catholic Central's 19-14 football loss Saturday to Warren Del aSalle was costly in more ways than one. (The game was played at ivenia Clarenceville High.) The Shamrocks, beaten in the fi-

High stakes in big game

If the Rocks thought little of this series and have been awakened by the

"Their scheme of things fits well with what they have, and what we do fits well with what we have," Khoenle said.

Canton quarterback Karl Wukie has completed 45 of 105 passes for 610 yards and 12 touchdowns. He also has rushed for 400 yards and nine TDs.

Tailback Jason Riggs is the primary ball carrier, gaining 525 yards on 80 carries and scoring four TDs. In addition, he has three TD recep-

They're a fine defensive team, but they have a lot of offensive threats, too," Moshimer said. "Wukie is dangerous because he can get to the corner and turn it on or throw the ball."

SALEM CAN'T overlook fullback

Chris James, a junior like Wukie and Riggs. He secred his first touch-downs (2) — one a 65-yard sprint — in Capten's 26-15 win over North Parmington on Saturday. His 93-yard game gave him 400 for the sea-

"He's a very deceiving runner," Khoenle said. "It doesn't look like he's moving, but he runs like a deer. He runs from the waist down."

With the Rocks having a size advantage somewhat, Khoenle is concerned about his small but quick defense handling Salem's big backs—210-pound fullback Pat Bowle and 215-pound halfback Ryan Johnson.

Johnson has rushed 112 times for 666 yards and 15 touchdowns, Bowie 80 times for 542 yards and four TDs. In addition, Rob Kowalski, who is 17of-38 passing for 251 yards, is an option threat. He's contributed 420 yards and scored four TDs.

"They've got some 18-wheelers over there," Khoenle said, "and we've only got a couple four-wheelers. They're going to be hard to stop. Only one team (Westland John Glenn) has been able to beat them, and that was sort of a lucky thing."

The Rockets beat Salem 7-6 two weeks ago for the Lakes Division title, but they needed a touchdown with five seconds remaining to do it. Nonetheless, that game proved how tough Salem's 6-1 defense is.

Linemen Don Parrish (40 tackles), Bowie (36), Joe Roza (37) and linebackers Johnson (54) and Brian Burlison (34) are the leading tacklers. Cornerback Scott Austin has four interceptions. Johnson two interceptions and two fumble recoveries. Bowie has sacked the opposing quarterback four times.

"I THINK OUR defense is as good as any defense around," Moshimer said. "I think that is borne out by the fact our first defense has not given up one rushing TD (in regulation play) and gave up only one in the conference. The defensive differences are along the same lines. Salem can overpower and outmuscle foes with its size and strength. The Chiefs employ smaller personnel and prefer a quick, swarming approach. Both are aggressive in their own right, however, and have their share Canton noseguard Craig Piwko (5-

Angler's good luck runs out

OMETIMES YOU have to take the good with the had. Just ask Pat Kleppert.
After fishing in six Michigan Division qualifying tournaments of the Operation Bass Redman Tournament Trail, Kleppert finished eighth in the division and earned the chance to compete in the $50,000 Red Man Regional, last weekend on the Mississippi River.

But Kleppert's good luck turned sour in Mississippi as the Rochester resident came up empty handed in the scoring of the regional competition.

The top 24 anglers in the Michigan Division (based on a system using points and pounds of fish) competed against the top 24 anglers from three other divisions in the regional tournament. The top 10 at each of four regionals advance to the $150,000 Red Man All American.

Kleppert entered the regional with aspirations of advancing to the All American. But those hopes slipped away during the first day of com-petition as Kleppert's boat broke down 20 miles upstream from the start of the competition and he had to be towed back to the landing ramp.

"I guess that's the way it goes," Kleppert said "You have to take the good with the bad and I sure had a lot of good (in the Michigan Division tournaments). I'll have to regroup and give them hell next time."

ACTUALLY, KLEPPERT'S luck began changing when he fell out of his boat during the first day of practice.

On the first day of competition, Kleppert "spun a hub on the propeller", limiting his access to the river. He tried to fish a little, while idling the engine, but to no avail. He wound up fishless after the first day of competition.

On the second day of the two-day event deppert had the engine repaired and was back in action. But by then, it was all but too late.

"I had to go for broke on the second day. I caught two, but I needed about 20-pounds to qualify (for the All American)," said Kleppert, who released the fish before returning to shore. "I guess I could have saved face a little and weighed them in, but I was just a little disap-

TWO OTHER local anglers also participated in the regional. Rochester's Art Ferguson III, who finished 22nd in the Michigan Division, placed 54th at the regional with 10-pounds of fish. Jim Clauser of Leonard (north of Roches-"It was my fault," said Kleppert, who works at ter), finished 83rd at the regional with 31/2-

Division. Andrew Scott of Arkansas won the re-gional with 23-pounds 16-ounces of fish. Kleppert, 22, can gain a little redemption this weekend when he and fishing partner Jerry Doucette of Drayton Plains, compete in the American Scholarship Regional Bass Tourne-

"We're going to Arkansas this week for the American Scholarship Regional and we hope to do a little better," Kleppert said. But he admitted the Red Man Classic was the tournament he had his sights set on. "I really haven't thought too much about the American Scholarship till now, since the Red Man is over for me."

Kleppert and Doucette head into the American Scholarship Regional after finishing fifth in the Michigan Division competition.

FISHING HAS reopened at the south end of Manistee Lake.

Fishing was closed on Sept. 6 to insure passage of enough fish to allow Department of Natural Resources biologists to collect the number of eggs needed for the state's fish rearing program. The Manistee weir is the primary source of Chinook salmon eggs for the entire Great Lakes stocking effort.

SC maintains hope

The Lady Ocelots (#-3-2) came away with a win and a tie over the weekend in a pair of games in Long Island, N.Y.

On Saturday, No. 7-ranked SC defeated host Nassau (N.Y.) CC, 1-0, on a second-half goal by Garden City's Lori Hodges. The goal was set up by Joan Arndt (Livonia Ladywood) and assisted by Robin Lawson (Ann Arbor Huron).

Goalie Tisha Guido (Garden City) earned the shutout.

The Lady Ocelots made the trip without one of their top defenders, Rosemary Hally of Livonia Churchill. She was out because of illness

Picking up the slack in her absence was Bev DeJohn (Dearborn Edsel Ford).

On Sunday, SC battled No. 4ranked Farmingdale (N.Y.) to a scoreless draw.

NICK O'SHEA, the Lady Ocelots coach was pleased with his team's "We had pressure on them most of the game and had loads of chances," he said. "But we couldn't get the hall past one of the best heepers in the NJCAA. She (the Farmingtale goal-ie) did not give us any rebounds." SC's defense — paced by DaJohn, sweeper Kellie Davis (Churchill), steeper Angen Stickmaker (Linguis stopper Angee Stighmaier (Livoni Franklin) and Gina Carozzo (Ladywood) - did not allow Farming to mount any significant pressure enabling Guido to record her second straight shutout The game also marked the return of midfielder Dawn Gabriel, who was back in the lineup after sitting out the last two weeks because of injury.

"I was happy with the way we played considering Rosemary didn't make the trip," O'Shea said. "Shannon Meath (Plymouth Canton) had an outstanding weekend. We moved her around a little bit. She played some midfield and some forward.

Lansing team ends SC's reign

Schoolcraft College's four-year strangle-hold on SC Women's Volleyball Invitational ended Saturday when Lansing CC defeated the host Lady Ocelots in the championship final, 15-10, 15-4.

The Lady Ocelots, defending National Junior College Athletic Association champions, suffered their first home defeat in two years.

Despite three ace serves by Cathy Coak (Wayne Memorial High) and eight kills from JoAnn Kolnitys (Wayne), Schoolcraft could not overcome Lansing. "It was a good matchup for us," said SC's Tom Teeters. "They're tall and they block very high, whereas were's small and tend to hit up. It's something we'll have to figure out and study more on the films." In pool play, SC routed Kellogg CC (15-4, 15-3) and Delta CC (15-3, 15-3) before splitting with Lansing (16-18, 17-15). (Alisha Love of Detroit Henry Ford served 10 points, including eight aces against Kellogg.) In the semifinals of the six-team tournament, SC blasted Kellogg again, 15-4, 15-3, to set up a rematch with Lansing. But despite strong middle hitting and jump-setting by Kolnitys and Jenny

Sproul (Churchill), SC was unable to crack Lansing.
On Tuesday, Schoolcraft bounced back to beat host Henry Ford CC, 15-10, 15-7, 15-5, as Angellette Love (Henry Ford) registered 12 kills and Kolnitys added seven. Coak added six digs.

SC. 28-11 overall, returns to action tonight at Macomb in an Eastern Conference match before traveling Saturday to Huntington (Ind.) College for a four-team invitatonal, which also includes Hillsdale and Wooster of Ohio.

MADONNA COLLEGE ran its overall record to 25-12 Tuesday with a 15-8, 8-15, 15-11, 11-15, 15-4 triumph over host Alma College.

Recording seven kills each for the Fighting Crusaders were: Tonia Smith (Walled Lake Central), Melissa Mars (Redford Bishop Borgess), Stacey Girard (Livonia Ladywood) and Maria Wordhouse (Plymouth Salem).

Ann DiMambro and Lisa Dreske, both of Borgess, recorded six and five In Monday's 15-1, 15-8, 15-5 triumph over visiting St. Clair College of

Windsor, Ontario, registering eight kill shots each were Smith, Girard and Val Perrone (Borgess), Dreske and Wendy Wesala each contributed five

On Saturday, Madonna outlasted visiting Saginaw Valley State, 13-15, 15-

10, 15-12, 15-3, behind Girard's 11 kills. Smith and Wordhouse added nine kills apiece, while Jenny Sladewski (Livonia Stevenson) and Wendy Spencer contributed seven digs each.

Ocelots coast, 4-0

Four first-half goals allowed the Schoolcraft College men's soccer team to breeze to an easy 4-0 victory Saturday over Lakeland (Ohio) Community College.

The win increases SC's overall record to 10-1-2. The Ocelots are 5-0-2 in Region 12 of the National Junior College Athletic Association.

Brendan O'Reilly (Redford Union) scored breakaway from Brian Thomas (Livonia Churchill) to give Schoolcraft a 1-0 lead at the 10-min-

Jeff Saylor (Ann Arbor Pioneer) found the net five minutes later on an assist from Rick Menary (Plymouth Canton). The play was set up by a Thomas corner kick.

Menary then made it 3-0 on a penalty shot when O'Reilly was taken down on a breakaway (25 minutes).

Chris Moore (Redford Catholic Central) then tapped in a rebound from Menary and O'Reilly to close out the scoring at 30 minutes.

GOALIE JEFF SHUK (Reno, Nev.) turned in a sparkling second-half effort to preserve the shutout. SC coach Van Dimitriou substituted freely, using all 15 players.

He held out Khaled Zeidan (Churchill) and Dave Hebestreit (Churchill) because of injuries.

Meanwhile, Chris Speen (Church-ill), out since the first week of the season with an injury, is expected to return to action for Saturday's big Region 12 matchup against Cuyahoga (Ohio) CC. (Game time is 1 p.m.) SC must win or at least tie to earn a berth in the Region 12 playoffs.

Quality varies in Trinity's one acts

Performances of "Four One Acts" continue through Saturday, Dec. 2, at Trinity House Theatre in Livonia. For ticket information, call 464-6302.

By Bob Weibel special writer

Trinity House Theatre has designed a rather effective setting for its current production, simply entitlied "Four One Acts." The walls of broken concrete embedded with links of chain symbolize the fractured relationships and conflicted personalities in each story.

The plays, however, are an uneven lot.

The first, "Breakfast, Lunch and Dinner," is an original piece by Paul Fatton. The concept is interesting, the dialogue witty and clever. It wants to be a domestic comedy about a young couple learning to communicate with each other after the honeymoon glow is over. David Denis gives us some nice comedic moments as the husband. Unfortunately, Renee Denis appears to be a less experienced performer and plays the wife as if in a heavy other hand, is uniformly good. It takes place in a German railway office during World War II. Paul Patton, after a shaky opening, is very effective as a trainmaster who changes from being an apolitical civil servant concerned with keeping the trains on time - to assisting the SS in transporting people to the concentration camps and rationalizing his actions. Sarah Hedeen is splendid as his secretary and mistress. She cannot live with his decision and comes up with an appropriate final solution of her

R. Edward Anderson in his black leather coat is an imposing presence as an SS security officer. A little harder edge to his voice and mannerisms would make his character outstanding.

THE EVENING'S third selection, "The Cure," opens with nice lighting but is more like a scene than a fully developed one act.

Beth Temple displays a fine range of character as a daughter recovering from acute depression in a rest home - and learning that her father, played rather mechanically by James C. Ball, has married a younger woman.

"The Valiant" is something of a melodramatic potboiler about a young man convicted of murder who refuses to reveal anything about his past. The script is a bit far-fetched at times, but nevertheless Rago manages a moving portrayal in the lead role. Julie Cullen is appealing as an innocent young woman who claims to be his sister. Rounding out the cast are William Garfield as Father Daly, Mattie Wolf as the Warden and Art McCoy as a Policeman.

Bob Weibel of Westland is a freelance writer, who has spent more than 25 years in community theater as a director, de-.. signer and performer.

Renee Denis is "Mrs." and Dave Denis is "Mr." in the one act "Breakfast, Lunch and Dinner."

Christine Elliott is Mary in the musical "Oil City," running Tuesday, Oct. 31, through Sunday, Dec. 3, at the Birmingham

Two of them, Mark Hardwick and Mike Craver starred in the smash hit New York City production and will be directed by the New York director Larry Forde in the Birmingham production. The most effective bit is Khaled Hanna's dual role as Otto Von Brunno and a mobster. Using a curtained archway to continuously switch between the two personas, Hanna al-most makes the audience think he is twins with his near-flawless per-

The show is slow in building momentum, but Hanna's double-person-ality bit puts the show into high gear, making the end of the first act seem to come all too soon.

The play involves Capt. Hugh "Bullshot" Crummond, an English detective. Bullshot is a cross between Sherlock Holmes and Don Knotts. He is an astute sleuth who picks up on the smallest details, but he is also a bumbling wimp who has a high opinion of himself.

NICK TOMASIN, a North Farmington High School senior, although a bit young-looking for the role, does well as Bullshot.

Bullshot is asked by Rosemary Fenton (Kate Bernard) to rescue her father (Tom Williams-Young), a professor kidnapped by Von Brunno trying to get his secret formula.

Except for the role of Von Brun-no's wife, Lenya (Devona Eubanks), Williams-Young plays the remaining roles is the play, including Algy Longwort, a country policeman, a waiter, Inspector Scabbard, Wolfgang Schmidt and Marovitch. Williams-Young does an excellent job of filling the seven roles often begins filling the seven roles, often having only seconds to change characters.

Part of Williams-Young's success comes from the costumes and makeup. Though not extravagant, these technical areas help Williams-Young keep the different characters distinct from each other.

The technical areas are nothing spectacular, but they do fill the needs of the show, providing the basics of what is needed and sometimes offering a bit of humor them-

BIGGEST WEAKNESSES of the show are with the accents and the timing. Occasionally, the accents make it difficult to understand the characters' lines. Meanwhile, Eu-banks sounds like she got her Ger-man accent from watching "Hogan's

In slapstick, timing is everything. For the most part, the cast has the timing down, but there are several instances where things need to be tightened up. The most noticeable bit is the scene where the Von Brunnoes are in one car and Bullshot and Rosemary are in the automobile be-

They use the same car for their lines, with quick blackouts hiding the change of performers. As long as the actors wait for total darkness to change cars, the comedy works. Friday night, trying to keep the pace as fast as possible, the performers started leaving the car before the complete blackout, taking away from the effect.

The play runs about an hour and a half and is best enjoyed when already in a bit of a silly mood.

As with many of the shows at the Smith Theatre, a dinner-theater package was available Friday. The dinner was arranged through the culinary arts program of OCC.

Not to take away from the performance, the elegance and greattasting food of the dinner could be termed the best part of the evening. no matter how good the play is.

Guidebooks can answer nursing home questions

Q. My father is going to have to go to a sursing home. Are there any books that can tell us how to handle the move and what to ex-

A. There are many fine publications concerned with nursing home placement that address the questions and concerns of the potential resident and their families. I am partial to a book entitled "Choosing a Nursing Home, A Guidebook for Families." Published by the University of Washington Press and edited by six health care professionals, the book covers a wide range of topics concerning potential nursing home residents and their families, including financial considerations. Acknowledging the need for nursing home care is discussed as is caring for a relative at home. The book explores common feelings such as sadness, anger, helplessness, resentment, and guilt. It talks about losses suffered by the older adult. There is a chapter on helping the elderly person ease into their new situation, how to leave their home, what to take to their new residence. legal arrangements, a checklist of what has to be done prior to admissions, and what information to give the nursing home staff. The book discusses how to help the older adult adjust to their new home and the adjustments the families must also make. This includes rebuilding of your own interests and taking care of yourself. Making visiting enjoyable and easier and the special problems of communication with the nursing home resident are covered. There is a section devoted to how to work with the nursing home, understanding nursing home constraints, dealing with difficult issues, who and what support services are, joint care planning and volunteer partic-

There are questions to ask yourself about your relative who is living alone and questions about caring for your relative in your own home. The questions are concerned with safety, nutrition, hygiene, medical and social needs, family constraints, and the caregiver's time and energies. There is a list of additional suggested readings.

The book, a paperback priced at $8.95, should be available on the shelves or by order from your local bookstore. Also check with your local library.

Q. Where can I get information concerning senior services in the Plymouth area?

A. The Information Center Inc... located in Southgate, can provide information for and about older adults in Plymouth, Canton, Redford, Livonia and Garden City. This is a referral agency that can assist people 60 years or older to find the services they need. The Information Center can inform seniors where to obtain help with health care, emergency assistance, in-home help, sliding scale legal ser-vices, nutritional services, tax assistance and care management. The Center can also provide lists of available senior housing. Adminis-tered through The Senior Alliance. (Area Agency on Aging 1-C); through the Older Americans Act, the service is available at no cost.

For information on older adult. services in Western Wayne County call the Information Center, Inc. at 422-1052, Monday-Priday, 9-5, or visit the office, located at 15100 Northline Road, Suite 159, Southgate. The office is open Monday-Friday, 9-5.

Q. Is the Health Department giving flu shots again?

A. The Oakland County and the Oakland County Health Departments offer flu shots for older adults 65 years of age or older. The shots can be taken at many local senior centers or at the Health Department offices. There is a $2 charge for those able to pay. Marking 10 years of photo exhibitions

staff writer

When Marcia Boxman, Elaine Yaker and Nanette Carnick opened Pierce Street Gallery of Birmingham 10 years ago, a lot of people gave them a year at the outside. A few thought maybe they'd last two or three, but few if any thought they'd beat the odds and be flourishing after a decade.

As they talked about their early years, they recalled the uphill battle to convince the public that photography was a collectible item. Boxman remembered hearing a friend comment after one of their early shows, "People will buy anything. won't they?'

"I'm very proud of where we began," Yaker said of their first show in October 1980 of works by Mario Giacomelli, 'He is a very fine printer. There was great beauty in his work, but this was not a simple Boxman said Lisette Model's visit was memorable.

"Our greatest regret was that we didn't tape record Lisette Model when she was here," Boxman said. "We took her to see Cranbrook and she said it was an authentic American beauty."

Model, a tiny woman who loved to portray anything large, died several years ago in her mid '70s. Boxman said she laughs every time she thinks of Model and the biting comments she made about many of her peers.

Lazlo Willinger, who photographed the great movie stars of the 30s and 40s, is another whom Boxman remembers,

"I just loved this man," she said "He did a memorable photograph of Joan Crawford and after the hook,"Mommy Dearest," came out, I asked him about her and he said, 'she was a professional' and he didn't want to be involved in that."

The women began to list the names of photographers who showed their works for the first time in this area in their gallery - Robert Adams, John Pfahl, Deborah Tuberville, Disfarmer, Denny Moers, John Gruen - names were coming as fast as they could get them out.

All expressed regret that they didn't buy more for their personal

"You find too in the art market that photography is the last collectible although prices have gone up,"

Yakir nodded in agreement.

"They've doubled and tripled in many cases," she said. "We hear the 'I wish I had, I should have, if only I had known' comments all the time. Ruth Bernhard came in at $600, she's $1.500 today."

"Lotte Jacobi was $450, now she's $1,500 and you can't get them," Carnick added.

Boxman said that photographs by O. Winston Link have gone from $700 in 1983 to $1,500 today.

All three expressed admiration for many of their artists. Yaker remembered how Denny Moers wrote and said he wanted them to change the labels in his show to Dennis because Denny wasn't dignified enough. Soon after he wrote again that he had changed his mind - go with Denny

THEY AGREED that the photographs by Moers represent the greatest range of work.

"Each stage has represented a further departure from the original," said Yaker.

"They're like outgrowths of each stage," Carnick added.

The gallery took shape originally because Boxman, Carnick and Yakir shared an interest in photography. They had been in photography classes together at Wayne State University and the Center for Creative Studies. They had attended photography workshops together — the most re-cent of which was in Colorado where they ended up doing a lot of darkroom work, something they had not done for a long time.

"The darkroom is still exciting,"

"It's still magical, even after 10 years of not doing it, it came back awfully fast," Yakir said.

Out of this, a second business, Pierce Street Portraits, Fine Art Photographs of Children, was born.

"The work is done here," Yaker said. "A lot of time is given to just chatting and making the children comfortable. We're not focusing on a proper sitting, we're focusing on these children. She said parents call and ask what the children should wear, should they buy a new outfit. The answer is to bring the child in some favorite piece of clothing, something that is typical of the way the child looks Portraits are done in black and white, which Boxman called "the most honest of all art mediums.'

There is a new acceptance of black and white because we have been so inundated with color," Yaker

Before the gallery opened these three women were photographers first and gallery owners second. Then the priorities were reversed. Now, finally the two are in balance - or almost.

Exhibit documents decade

"Looking Back, 10 Years of Photography at the Pierce Street Gallery" continues through Saturday,

Many of the photographers the gallery has shown over the last decade are represented — Bill Rauhauser, Lazlo Willinger, Disfarmer, O. Winston Link, Jay Dessard, David Lubbers, Tomaz Tomaszewski and hundreds more.

Hours are 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday-Saturday, 217 Pierce, Birmingham.

Portraits of children, such as this one, are done in black and white, which Marcia Boxman calls "the most honest of all art mediums." Black and white is gaining a new acceptance because people are inundated with color photography, Elaine Yaker said.

In 1981, Pierce Street Gallery exhibited the works of John Gruen. Included in that show Edith Briskin poses near one of the 19th century Oriental tables in Briskin Antiques, the Birmingham shop she owns with her husband, Barry.

Detailed yet uncluttered carvings such as these show the craftsmanship of 19th century Oriental furniture intended for the domestic market. Furniture was made of hardwoods, usually rosewood.

By Louise Okrutsky staff writer

After 24 years of collecting antiques, Edith and Barry Briskin began to search for a different challenge.

It came in the shape of a shop filled with mostly 19th century Ori-ental antiques. When the couple bought the antique store nearly four years ago, they were relatively unfamiliar with Oriental furnishings.

"We've always loved antiques and we've always collected a lot," said Edith Briskin. "But what do you collect next?"

Briskin Antiques in Birmingham seems to have answered that question for the couple. Most of the furnishings are of the kind used in wealthy Chinese homes. In some cases, the furniture's spare lines insulate it from the ebb and flow of changing styles.

"It hasn't changed in style dramatically since the establishment of the Ming Dynasty," she said. "Period Chinese furniture is Ming furniture."

Briskin's husband will be on hand with several pieces from the show Nov. 17-19 at the Junior Group 1989 Goodwill Antiques Show at the Michigan State Fairgrounds.

Furniture didn't hold the same importance as traditional artwork so there wasn't a demand for styles to change, Briskin said.

"It's very difficult to date the furniture," she said. "Sometimes you can do it by the wood." Furniture makers used all hardwoods with a preference for rose-

THOSE INTERESTED in buying Ming Dynasty furniture can still find it, if they're prepared to pay the price. Chairs or tables can fetch beeen $20,000-$50,000 according to Instead these pieces were designed to resemble styles popular in a specific market. Late 19th century Chinese export items were made to reflect Victorian taste. They have the ornate touches that many associate with Chinese style.

The simpler styles of furniture made for the domestic market were built to be durable. Much of it was made to withstand the rigors of travel. Chests can be taken apart and stacked up again. Poles were slid through handles on each sides of the chests to make the containers easier

'Furniture had to be easy to carry, easy to transport and very func-tional," she said. "It would have to be simple.

'We haven't been able to find nice quality furniture at affordable prices from Japan and Korea," Briskin

The exchange rate, unfavorable to the U.S. dollar, has helped to raise prices for Japanese and Korean antiques bought overseas.

Prosperity has changed the way Koreans and Japanese view their antiques. After centuries of watching invading nations cart off the best of their past, the Koreans are buying back their country's antiques. The Japanese have done this for years, according to Briskin.

Most Chinese pieces in the U.S. market have been out of that country for many years. The only antiques trickling out of China are generally of inferior quality. Dealers who do buy from the mainland must

Meanwhile, a book published with-in the last few years in Come has spurred an interes in making an-tique reproductions. The book detail-ing the dimensions of classic Ming ing the dimensions of classic Ming furniture is a vertiable primer on producing the pieces. Perhaps a reproduction market will open up, quid latex offers fun dimension to sculpting

I was just telling some of my sculpture students that perhaps sculpture is a little more frustrating than drawing. When they asked why, I said, "Because a three-dimensional te is one dimension worse than a two-dimension mistake." So go easy on yourself, start simple and by all means have fun. But what do you do when you're done sculpting? And what if more than one person wants

The liquid latex rubber technique is fast, easy and the only way to produce many copies or castings from one original. The original can be soft clay, baked ceramic, wood, metal or just about anything you want to Another good feature about liquid rubber is that it will not harm your original piece. For a mold of a simple piece imagine a detailed clay sculpture of a dog's head and neck.

DON'T WORRY ABOUT the rubber's ability to cast details as it will clearly cast even a thumbprint left on the clay. First of all, with a throwaway brush, lightly apply a thin coating of rubber forcefully blowing out any air bubbles.

The first coat will dry in about 20 minutes. Then apply the second coat a little thicker allowing an hour or two drying time. Continue until rubber is about %-inch thick.

Best of all, you can repeat this casting over and over, creating dozens of perfect copies of one original from only one rubber mold.

Now before you pull the mold from off the original, mix up some moulding plaster and make a onetwo- or three-piece mold around the rubber mold. Without this support mold, the rubber mold will balloon out when you pour casing plaster

The support mold only takes about an hour to make and is well worth the effort. On a simple shape, as our example, can merely stick the empty rubber mold in sand for support if the support mold step seems to involved.

Now with your support mold finished, separate the halves and peel the rubber from off the original.

LET THE MOLD TURN inside out as your pull it from off of the original (kind of like pulling off a sock). Next return the rubber mold so that it is a perfect negative of the original. Place the support mold around it and turn it upside down, so that the base of the mold is facing up.

Now mix your hydrostone to a heavy cream consistency and slowly pour the mixture into the negative space of the rubber mold. Hit, shake or vibrate the mold to loosen any air bubbles that might form against the rubber mold surface. Hydrostone will not stick to the rubber mold and in only 18 minutes, it is almost at a ceramic hardness.

Here's the fun part: When the hydrostone is hard, separate the support mold and peel the rubber from off of the now perfect copy of the original. Best of all, you can repeat this casting over and over, creating dozens of perfect copies of one origi-nal from only one rubber mold.

You'll love making molds with liquid rubber. You may even catch yourself walking around the house looking for things to duplicate three dimensionally.

A. You and your husband can create an elegant and dramatic effect even with sparse furnishings if you approach the situation with bravado.

Think of your walls and ceilings—even the floor— as if they were giant canvases. Also think of defining space with color, not filling it.

After selecting at least two favorite colors in the warm and cool families, further separate each color into dark, bright and pale tone varia-

Once you have painted the rooms to your satisfaction, group your fur-niture in functional arrangements. Don't try to spread out pieces of fur-niture through the house.

Take advantage of current trends by draping fabric over hardware poles at the windows, and covering some of your upholstered pieces in solid or patterned sheets to coordinate with the walls.

For the rooms and spaces left empty, focus a light fixture on the

But don't discount the seductive power of advertising as well. It has raised the image of the bright red car, especially in a racy model, up to, a level of a cultural icon, conveying power and strength. It's hard to ignore, particularly if that side of you has been neglected.

Traditional downtowns, with little parking, suffered as the popularity of the automobile grew. But some see a backlash against cookie-cutter malls, which bodes well for downtowns such as Plymouth.

Development:

Looking back to the future to determine a course of action

special writer

As more subdivisions, strip malls and miles of highways spring up around us, it's not difficult to predict what our suburbs will look like in the year 2000.

But if suburban sprawl continues to a point where every available inch is developed, it would signal defeat, say area architects, planners and scholars. Every suburb would look the same, traffic would be horrendous, quality of life would diminish and developers would start looking elsewhere.

Still, that appears to be where we're headed. While many suburbs went through a period of rapid growth following World War II, fueled in large part by the enormous impact of the automobile, many of the characteristics that drew people to suburbia - privacy, open space and mobility - are disappearing.

"Let's face it, nobody paid any attention to what was going up in the suburbs," said Roger Marz, a professor of political science at Oakland University and a former manager with the Oakland County Planning Division. "And if something's not done to cope with the problem, urban sprawl will continue unabated and sadly, the population won't be dense enough to warrant rapid trans-

"Trafic will continue to get worse," Marz continued. "And if you think we have problems now, wait five years and we'll be in the same boat as Washington, D.C., where there are no rush hours, but rush days, and things are tied up until 9

THE GREAT EXPANSION of the street. But now we've had a reaction suburbs has also taken its toll on a community's sense of character and place. Yet for the future, nothing could be more of a mistake than to allow new and existing suburbs to look the same, said Ron Rea, vice president of Peterhansrea, an architectural firm in downtown Birming-

"The development market is not real creative today when it comes to looking at things differently," Rea said. "The new buildings, especially strip malls, are void of any endearing detail or design, which is really a mistake."

"There hasn't been a traditional downtown built in Oakland County since World War II," said Ed Hustoles, executive director of planning for the Southeast Michigan Council or Governments (SEMCOG) in De-

"Part of the reason is such downtowns as Detroit, Birmingham, Rochester and Plymouth were never created with the automobile in mind. It used to be you'd go downtown to shop and have to circle round and round or park some distance away.

"Then came the malls like Northland which offered parking, a close cluster of stores available under one roof and you didn't have to worry about the kids running out in the

to that. The regional malls are too crowded, parking is getting worse and you kinda hate to go there.

The next generation of development in the western and northern suburbs, Hustoles said, would involve a step forward and a step back. The future may include a proposed $300 million megamall in Auburn Hils, which will offer shoppers a series of small, street-lined courts devoted to retail shops, entertainment and even a hotel, allowing visitors to stay overnight.

But the mammoth 2.3 millionsquare-foot project — Auburn Mills, planned for I-75 and Baldwin Road has run into bitter opposition from such communities as Southfield, Rochester Hills and Lake Angelus. Officials have charged the megamall will isolate jobs and money in one region, instead of spreading it more evenly across the suburbs.

The developer for Auburn Mills, Western Development, said the mall would create 2,000 temporary construction jobs and 5,000 permanent jobs. But the company is based in in Washington, D.C., meaning the development's profits will travel out of

Despite continued office construction and fears that developers will overbuild, metropolitan Detroit's major office market continues to thrive.

Concern that construction would eventually dwarf demand, resulting in high vacancy rates, has yet to materialize, according a third quarter report on major office markets compiled by Cushman & Wakefield of Michigan.

Overall, vacancy rates in the southeast Michigan suburbs fell 1 percent from the same period last year, according to Lewis "Bud" Kasselman, vice president of Cushman & Wakefield, Southfield. Suburban vacancy rates range from 6.4 percent in Dearborn to 45.6 percent in Novi. The average vacancy rate for major suburban office markets is 19.3 percent. (See accompanying chart.) A suburban vacancy rate of 20 percent is generally considered to be the national average, Kasselman said.

During the third quarter of 1989, the Birmingham/Bloomfield Hills area, Livonia and Southfield all showed increased office leasing, according to the report.

SOFT MARKET fears are unfounded because office construction has been so strong in recent years, Kasselman said. Novi and Auburn Hills, which has a vacancy rate of 32.7 ercent, could probably be called soft - they are examples of communities where office space has clearly outstripped demand — but a 20.4-percent vacancy rate in Southfield or 20.7ercent vacancy rate in Troy is less alarming, Kasselman

Most major office markets continue to show substantial growth, according to Cushman and Wakefield's report.

For example, Southfield has almost 500,000 square feet of office space currently under construction. More than 209,000 uare feet of space is under construction in the Birmingham. Bloomfield area - one of the hottest office markets, according to the report

DESPITE HIGHER vacancy rates than in previous years in Troy, developers are building an additional 120,000 square feet, the report said. Farmington Hills, with 120,000 square feet under construction, also has a growing office market.

Even Novi, with the highest vacancy rate of all the major markets, has almost 102,000 square feet of office space under construction

In West Bloomfield, developers are building 33,000 square feet. No office construction was in Livonia and Auburn Hills as of Oct 1. Since then Livonia has seen ground broken on an office building in its Victor Corporate Park.

Both Southfield, which has nearly 15 million square feet of available office space, and Troy, which has more than 11 million square feet, still have substantial markets, Kasselman

"(Leasing activity) may be slower than in previous years, but that is an indication of how strong those years were - not an indication of a weak market."

BUT OFFICE building is falling off, Kasselman said. During the first quarter of 1989, approximately 6.3 million square feet of office space was under construction. By the start of the third quarter, that number had fallen to slightly more than 3 million square feet.

Some of this decline can be attributed to the perception that there is a softening market, Kasselman said.

"Some people are publishing stories that the market is soft and the developers and investors get nervous."

Composting reduces material sent to landfills

Composting, the microbial decom-position of organic matter, is not a new idea or process. If it were not posting, the planet would be ep in dead organic matter.

Backyard leaf composting is a semi-controled system in which you manage the moisture and air to complete the decomposition. Compost—the end product — is a dark, friable, partially decomposed substance similar to organic matter found in the LEAVES CAN be composted by ling them in heaps near the garden similar spot that is out of sight. For the most efficient use of space, owever, it is better to contain the leaves in a bin or other enclosure that is loose enough to allow some air circulation. One side should be open, or easily opened, to turn the pile and remove the finished prod-

Woven wire or wooden fencing or concrete blocks on their sides can be used to contain the material. Since wood decomposes and wire rusts, these items will need to be replaced from time to time. Treat wooden posts with a preservative for longer life or use metal posts.

THE LEAF PILE or bin should be at least four feet in diameter and three feet high. If it is too small, it is difficult to maintain adequate temperatures for rapid decomposition. A maximum size is 10 feet in diameter and five feet high.

If your pile is too large, the interi-or will not obtain the oxygen it needs for adequate, odor-free decomp tion. If you have large quantities of leaves and similar organic matter that can be composted, consider a rectangular bin four-five-feet wide, five feet high and long enough to handle all the fallen leaves and material on hand.

MOST COMPOSTING instructions suggest layering the material as the pile is built. This is not necessary if you are adding only leaves; you can add them as they are raked. If you add grass clippings, you might want to mix them with the leaves to prevent compacting the clippings.

Moisture is an important part of recensful composting. Unless leaves are collected in a very wet condition, you should add water while placing them in the pile. Without moisture, the microorganisms will not func-

Moisten the leaves to the point where it is posssible to squeeze dro-plets of water from a hand-held mass of leaves. A note of caution: Don't add this much water to a compost pile constructed mostly of clippings and other organic waste.

DEAD LEAVES will lack enough nitrogen for rapid decomposition. Nitrogen is the "food" microorganisms use as they convert the leaves into humus. Five ounces (about a half cup) of 10-percent nitrogen fer-tilizer mixed into each 20-gallon can of hand-compacted leaves will speed are in no hurry to use the comp allow Mother Nature to carry on.

It is generally not necessary to add limestone to leaf compast piles because they seldom become too acidic. If fertilizer had been added, an equivalent amount of limestone will counteract the acidity produced by the nitrogen. Little or no limes should be added if you plan to use the compost on acid-tolerant plants such as rhododendron.

IT IS generally not necessary to add soil to the leaves because there are enough microorganisms on the leaves to enhance decomposition. Some soil will be raked into the leaves as they are collected, and a few pulled weeds can be tossed in as you build the pile. Commercial ac-porting beleration.

Avoid jacking the leavestor tightly. Too much compaction will limitair movement through the pile and hamper decomposition. If you shred the leaves, the will break more

THE PILE must be kept moist but not soggy for hest decomposition. Low moisture levels reduce microhial activity, while excess water may cause anaerobic conditions and unwanted odors. A thin layer of dry leaves is unavoidable.

For the most efficient operation, periodically mix the pile. The main objectives of turning are to shift. leaves from the outer edge, of the pile closer to the center for better. decomposition and to inderporate

But if a group of architects has its way, these wastelands would be transformed into suburban havens, each with its own character. All development would revolve around one major point: the village center.

Generally, a suburb is born when high-density development is situated at a highway interchange, built around the foundations of an old town or located near a regional air-suburbs developing traditional downtowns may be a new trend in development. In Novi, the city administration is looking at plans to offer a mixed-use project of commercial, residential and office space at the intersection of Novi Road and

"Right now we're looking at various types of downtowns in an attempt to concentrate development in one area, instead of across the city's landscape," said Jim Wahl, Novi's planning and community development director. "Our goal is to cut down on traffic and enhance the quality of life here by being pro-ac-

Wahl said the project would be built by private developers, with the city establishing a framework as far as types of architecture, amenities and design.

"I don't think you can change Novi Road or Grand River into Main Street," he said. "But we can establish one or reroute traffic."

Meanwhile, existing suburban downtowns are finding retailers who once abandoned central business districts for malls are now returning. Faced with higher rents, additional labor and maintenance fees, former

"Those same tenants who pooh-

"DOWNTOWNS HAVE charm built right into the brick and mortar, where if you take a walk through a mall, you find merchants are trying to create the downtown feel with elaborate facades. That's tough to do when you're starting in a cornficld."

But will revitalization of suburban downtowns continue?

"In this day and age, the consumer is far more discriminating," said Leonard Siegal of Siegal/Tuomaala Associates, an architectural and planning firm in Farmington Hills. Lifestyle determines decor

By Marie Dety special writer

The home magazines make it look so easy.

A new sofa here, some charming curtains there, and voils — that cold-looking empty house you just into comothing comfortable. bought is transformed into some but stylish.

So how does it happen that the pink-and-white sofa, so delightful in Nifty Homes and so adorable in the store, looks like an overstuffed pink elephant when you bring it home?

And, by now, there is the ominous feeling that perhaps — with three kids under 5, two cats and a St. Bernard who thinks he's a lap dog — pink-and-white chintz was not the best choice of fabric.

But who wants to live with industrial-strength brown tweed until the kids grow up and the dog is too old to sneak up on the sofa? This is why most home furnishing stores offer decorating services: to steer customers on a happier course - to help them choose something they'll love as much in their homes as they did in the store. Mistakes can be too costly to change but too painful to live with.

"Many people only buy two or three living rooms in their lifetime," said Bob Hubbard, a furniture store owner. "It's one of the largest, most important purchases they will make.

"Many feel that the way they decorate their home is one of the ways they're judged by their peers, so it's very traumatic for many people. Yet, because they buy furniture so seldom, it's difficult for the average person to become experienced.

"So we put them in contact with people who do it

ALL DECORATORS say they begin by asking questions.

"It's important that we get some idea of taste, color scheme, the way they're going to use th room and — of course, their price range," said Dolores

Among the questions asked are: how many children and whether there are pets. This gives the decorator an indication of the fabric needed, Youngblood said. "The furniture in some family rooms gets very little use. In other family rooms, it's used like a trampoline." "When I walk into a room (to be decorated), I say, "Tell me what you want to keep," said decorator Mary Ellen Grieve, who works for Hubbard. Both Youngblood and Mimi Katz echo Grieve's words. "It's important to find out what they have already that they want to keep," said Katz, a decorator and furniture store owner. Sometimes the clients will want to save only a family heirloom, such as a clock, an old rocking chair or a bureau. "If it's something sentimental, a client should keep it. You never want to get rid of sentimental ties. You just find things to go with it," said Gene Cross, a furniture store owner and interior decora-

Other clients may be seeking just one piece to fit in with the rest of the room.

It is this — fitting in a single upholstered piece—that provides the greatest challenge to any decorator. Sometimes just one new piece can make a positive change in a room tying together other ele-ments that didn't quite make it before. But obviously, finding the piece that will do this can be difficult.

Another factor the decorators keep in mind is comfort.

"A family room with a TV - no matter how beautiful it may be - is not working if it doesn't have comfortable chairs in which to watch TV,"

"And a client's lifestyle is important. A couple may fall in love with a very formal room here in the store. But if their lifestyle is very relaxed and casual and this is a room in which they'll spend a lot of time, they will not find the formal furniture comfortable for the long run." Many people now have worked out a compromise. Great-grandmother's parlor is back.

"Two-career couples often have a living room as a showplace," Cross said. "They live in the family room, but they decorate their living room more for looks, for style. They often stop in the hall and look at the living room on their way to the family room.

"Once people put cheap furniture in the family room. Now this is the room they use — even for much of their entertainment - so they're much more concerned about what goes in the family Family room sofas and chairs, as much as possible, should fit the size of the people who buy them. For someone who is very short, a sofa should not be too deep," Katz said. "If customers are tall, we must be conscious of that, "Sometimes we have a couple with one person tall and the other very short, and that's another problem. We have to find something that's a compromise, something which both can live with."

Polystyrene walls 'suck up cold'

Don Grieb's macrotherm system and you'll hear a hollow sound that will make you think the residents are easy prey

When you learn that the house is made from polystyrene, a material similar to that used in plastic foam coffee cups, you'll think the inhabitants are silly little pigs indeed.

But don't be feeled.

Although the house is built with lightweight, energy-efficient materials, it is strong enough to withstand forces far hore powerful than the huff and puff of a wolf.

Despite its hollow sound, "you can run a bulldozer into it nd it won't break," Grieb said.

Mary Ullrich and Mark Nissen, who own the first polystyrene house Grieb built, know that from experience. An elderly neighbor ran her car into their suburban Glendale house one morning while they were having breakfast. "She hit it darn good," Nissen said. "We thought she had need up in one of the bedrooms."

BUT DESPITE the noise, the only damage to the house was a black mark from the woman's bumper, Nissen said, adding "that says something for the structure of the-

Grieb, a Milwaukee architect, has much more to say about the structure of the house and about the two other ouses he's built using his patented system.

"It's a wonder-like material," he said. "I'm frustrated to say that I can't use it in all instances that it can be used.' In addition to the Glendale house, Grieb has also used the macrotherm system to build houses in Marco Island, Fla.,

The Glendale house — a three-bedroom ranch — is far different from the showplace house built in Florida. The Florida house is a three-story, four-bedroom house featuring spiral columns, a fiberglass circular stairway and a screened $,000-square-foot spa area that looks out onto Caxambas Bay.

THE AREFONA house was designed by another architect to be built with traditional building materials, but the owner heard about the house in Florida and decided to use the magnetherm system Griek said.

the macrotherm system, Grieb said.

Grieb has a patent on his system, and contractors must be trained by representatives of his company to use it. But building with lightweight expanded polystyrene blocks is easier than building with "sticks and stones," he said.

The system is so easy to use, he said, three people can build a house in three to five days. More women would also be able to use the system, he said.

"Why shouldn't we let women be construction people as well? This would lighten the labor."

Not only is labor lighter with Grieb's technique, the material insulates better than regular building materials, thereby making houses made from polystyrene more energy efficient, he said. Traditional houses are extremely inef-

"Our houses are just like sponges sucking up water — only they're walls sucking up cold."

The energy efficiency was a factor that prompted Nissen and Ullrich to buy their house. When the house was tested the heating bill for an entire year was $149.

"We did think there was some risk involved in buying it," Nissen says, "but we liked the economy involved."
Nissen and Ullrich say the highest monthly heating bill they've had was $56. In their previous house, their heating bills often ran as high as $180 per month during the winter.

As energy requirements for new houses become more and more strict, builders may explore materials — such as expanded polystyrene — that provide more insulation than ditional materials. By using traditional materials, Grieb says, builders are forced to reduce the number and size of windows in new houses in order to meet energy require-you'll have to have nothing but walls and peepholes for windows."

Despite the savings homeowners can expect with one of Grieb's houses, the price of building one is about $38 per square foot — a cost that's comparable to most traditional ouses, Grieb said.

"Our conventional builders are building with two-byfours, bricks and lumber. It's foolishness to build in that manner when you have materials that can withstand 190 mile-per-hour winds and yet are so much easier to build

Mass producing houses with his system could bring the cost down to $30 per square foot, he said. Such well-insulated and durable housing could protect against weather extremes including hurricanes, he said.

"I'd like more than anything to build low-cost housing for

Stagger counter heights

(AP) — The kitchen used to be Mom's demain, but now each member of the family is likely to take a turn at cooking and cleaning up.

A recent survey by Maytag Co. found that almost 46 percent of today's teenagers cook at least once a week, and 25 percent of the preteens help in the kitchen daily. Slightly over 3 percent of American husbands cook on a daily basis, a significant numa turn at cooking and clear ber, said James W. Krengel, head of Maytag's Kitchen Idea Center.

Now that the family has discovered the kitchen, the kitchen needs to be adapted to accommodate the family. One of the best ways, said Krengel, is to install counters of varying heights. While the 36-inch-high counter is ideal for the average woman, 30 to 32 inches would better suit children and short women, and a 42-inch counter works best for tall people, Krengel said.

One way to meet the need for varied heights is to install a large center island. The back portion might be raised to 42 inches, the front set at 36 nches and one end at 32 inches.

"We have found that this works in practice, looks interesting and the function is terrific. Another advantage is that the entire family can work together at the island, facing one another.

IF AN ISLAND isn't practical, vary the counter heights along the sink wall. Next to the sink, install several feet of counter space at 36 inches. Then

With the dishwasher higher than usual under the 42-inch counter, you'll have to bend less - a real boon to older family members. According to a University of Minnesota survey, 42 inches off the floor is an ideal height for a microwave oven, so put the microwave on this counter top. Varied-height counters can serve other functions as well. For example, a 42-inch-high counter is ideal for serving buffet meals. The 30- or 32-incher is a good height for an average size adult to roll out dough or use for other baking preparations.

It pays to rearrange storage from time to time, Krengel said. Where there are young children, put everyday dishes and glassware on below-counter shelves so it is easier and safer for kids to set the table and empty the dishwasher.
