Police pressured to write tickets — union

By Kevin Brown staff writer

The labor union representing Plymouth police officers says police are pushed to write traffic tickets.

But Police Chief Richard Myers said that by using standards to rate officers' performance in ticket writing and other police tasks, administrators can more fairly evaluate of-

Still, "It has caused concern with employees," Myers said, adding that the department is working with a consultant to change the way officers' performance is rated.

Gerald Radovic, business agent for the Police Officers Association of Michigan, said it's not unusual for officers to be evaluated on the number of tickets they write.

"But there's no pressure put on officers like there is in Plymouth," he

Radovic said some Plymouth officers complain that they must write enough tickets to meet a department average, which they said rises each month as officers try to meet last month's average.

"When you're going down to the last part of your shift and you need a ticket, you write a ticket," said one Plymouth officer.

But Chief Myers points to statistics that show so far this year, officers are averaging 2.4 tickets per 12hour shift - up from 2.0 in 1987.

"I don't know what the problem is." he said, stressing that the increase is small

But Radovic cites another statistic that shows ticket fines returned to the city by the 35th District Court more than doubled in recent years. Myers said that using performance standards to evaluate officers is an improvement over former ways of evaluating them - by judging their attitude, for example. "How do you measure that?" he said. "We have purposely avoided that with our system. Myers also stressed that the numbers of tickets written is only one of several performance areas evaluated by police administration.

Others include squad car mileage, "Are they being seen," Myers said; and officer-initiated activity building checks, school patrols, checking homes of residents on vacation and more.

"Seventy-five percent of their (shift) time is on free patrol," Myers

"We don't have a big crime problem here, we do have a lot of traffic," he said.

ACLU won't challenge Nativity scene — for now

The Christmas display in Plymouth's Kellogg Park probably violates the establishment of a religion clause in the U.S. Constitution. American Civil Liberties Union officials say.
Yet, "We would not pursue any case against them (the city) at this point - the courts have already spoken," said Mimi Gendreau, secretary of the ACLU of Michigan.

She was referring to the recent ruling of the U.S. Sixth Circuit Court

On Nov. 16, the court upheld a lower court ruling allowing placement of a Nativity scene on property owned by the city of Westland, and placement of a similar city-owned Nativity scene in Warren.

The three-judge panel in Cincinnati reaffirmed a December 1988 ruling by U.S. District Judge Philip Pratt.

Pratt ruled that the displays weren't an endorsement of any one religion, as they included non-religious symbols in addition to the traditional depiction of the birth of Jesus.

Students score higher in state math, science tests

staff writer

Plymouth-Canton Community Schools officials are pleased with student performance on a standardized test called the Michigan Education Assessment Program.

Student scores in math and science were higher than last year.

It isn't possible to determine whether students improved in reading, because the reading portion of the test was redesigned and graded differently than in past years.

In math, fourth graders, seventh graders and 10th graders did better than their counterparts did last year. The percentage of fourth graders scoring in the top quarter increased from 87.8 last year to 91.5 this year.

The number of seventh-graders in the top quarter also went up - from 73.7 percent in 1988 to 80.2 percent.

The percentage placing in the top quarter also went up in 10th grade - from 74.2 to 80.2.

State Rep. James Kosteva, D-Canton, is calling for government and industry to accept greater responsibility in making it safer to transport hazardous materials by rail and

"We're living on the hazardous waste equivalent of the San Andreas Fault without being adequately pre-pared to handle a transportation accident involving toxic materials," said Kostova at a press conference he called in Lansing Tuesday.

Kosteva, who chairs the House Subcommittee on Rail Safety, was joined by Reps. Roland Mederstadt, D-Saginaw, and Nick Claramitaro, D-Roseville, who worked on the Michigan Right to Know Act.

Niederstadt's district includes Freeland, a rural town that was evacuated after a recent derailment involving toxic chemicals.

"It's tragic and frightening that hundreds of thousands of lives are at risk, simply because we lack the resources required to protect the peo-ple of Michigan," said Kosteva.

Dow Chemical's Unit Train, the so-called "Death Train," travels through the Plymouth-Canton area every week.

Kesteva outlined five major prob-

· A lack of federal funding to develop local emergency planning commissions.

The need for Congress to accept greater responsibility and increase funding for rail car impections, training of rail personnel and improvement of tanker car design.

• Inadequate plans to inform recidents about materials transported through their communities and across the state.

 Lack of sufficient resources for training emergency response teams handling rail and truck accidents in-volving hazardous chemicals.

"We're proposing legislation that would address these issues by requiring compliance with safety laws and regulations, enforcing stronger penalties for non-compliance, adding emergency personnel, generating funds for emergency planning and training, and requiring offi-

The lawmaker predicted legislative action within it first six months of next year.

"We should have clear sailing. Funding might be the anchor weights that will be cause for some concern," Kosteva said.

Christmas Walk comes to Old Village Sunday

Christmas shopping Old Village-style is the focus of the Old Village Christmas Walk, scheduled for noon to 6 p.m. Sunday.

Santa is scheduled to arrive by horse-drawn carriage at noon at the Friendly Persuasions flower shop at 696 N. Mill, and visit with kids until 6 p.m., said Mark Oppat, president pro-tem of the Old Village Association.

"Last year we didn't have any lines for kids to wait for Santa," Oppat said.

The main feature of the Christmas Walk is that most Old Village shops will be open for shoppers from noon to 6 p.m. "We've got a lot of new shops that have op up," Oppat said.

Rides in Santa's carriage — $2 for adults and $1.50 for kids — will also be available.

Oppat added that a Christmas tree lot on Mill Street by the railroad tracks will also be opening this Christmas season.

Historic Hillside Inn on the financial rebound — Italian style

By Kevin Brown staff writer

A Plymouth area landmark business is trying to rebound from its financial woes of recent years.

The 55-year-old Hillside Inn - recently renamed Ernesto's, an Italian Country Inn - is "going great," said owner Sam Messina.

"We were very nervous about the name change," said Messina, of Bloomfield, who changed the name of the restaurant this spring.

Messina is a Chrysler Corp. director of investment. This is his first restaurant venture. He said he wasn't sure about how the public would accept a new name for the Plymouth Township landmark.

"But people have been absolutely ecstatic about the food," he said. Messina and his brother Stephen bought the restaurant in March 1983 from the Stremich family, which converted the restaurant from a house near a branch of the Rouge River in 1934.

By early 1986, Messina said "staggering overhead" caused the restaurant to operate at a loss. Former owner Betty Stremich filed a lawsuit alleging the new owners owed $57,000 on a land contract and promissory note payments relating

And records in the township and county treasurer's offices showed the Messinas owed $67,000 in property taxes

Meanwhile, some area residents who frequented the restaurant said the quality of the food was inconsist-

But this spring, "We brought on board an absolutely spectacular Italian chef." Ernesto DeMichele. "I thought it was the right thing to do,' Messina said.

Italian cuisine "is zesty, flavorful, and there is the perception of it being very healthful and very affordable," Messina said.

While county and Plymouth township tax officials said the restaurant is still behind in its tax payments, Betty Stremich said her lawsuit with the Messinas "has been resolved."

Messina, who paid nearly $1 million for the restaurant, calls it "a beautiful old place, such great ambiance and charm, it cannot be duplicated."

After taking over, he added a veranda for outdoor dining. "We've tried to make it a little more current," Messina said.

"The first year was a struggle, when we tried to identify our niche. But the last two or three years, there's been growth month after month," he added.

The 55-year-old Hillside Inn has been re-named Ernesto's, an Italian Country Inn, and is doing well.

Judges: Displays not strictly religious

THE CIVIL liberties group will decide in the next few weeks on whether to appeal the Nov. 16 ruling to the U.S. Supreme Court, said Paul Depenfeld, legal director for the Michigan ACLU.

"We believe it is always inappropriate to erect religious displays (regardless of what non-religious symbols are added)," Denenfeld said.

We will continue to look at indi-look (at Plymouth's display)," probably in December, he said.

A possible decision to challenge the city over its Nativity scene would not come before Christmas this year, Denenfeld said.

THE CITY has long erected a Nativity scene in the part of the park just off Main Street facing west.

In recent years, a Santa's house has been set up several yards north of the Nativity scene, and a snowman in the park fountain.

Approximately five years ago, city officials drew up plans to deed park property housing the Christmas display to a service club or the chamber of commerce - in case the ACLU would challenge the city over the display, said Paul Sincock, assistant city manager.

Armed combat on stage isn't typically seen in high school theatrical productions.

Combat is very much a part of the Plymouth Park Players performance of "Rashomon." Two major league, vicious battles - frightening to watch but safe for those involved are included in the production.

"It's a wonderful piece of theater and it's not tackled by high schools very often," said Gloria Logan, director of the Centennial Educational Park production.

"RASHOMON," BASED on the Japanese stories of Ryunoske Akutagawa, was written by Fay and Michael Kanin.

The story involves the trial of a bandit accused of having murdered a samurai after raping his wife. Each witness tells his or her story of what happened in the bamboo forest of Kyoto more than 1,000 years ago.

The play's theme is that the truth isn't always what we'd like it to be. "It's a wonderful piece of literature," Logan said.

PERFORMANCES WILL be at 8 p.m. Friday-Saturday, Dec. 8-9, in the auditorium of Plymouth Salem Migh School, on Joy west of Canton Center in Canton. A dinner theater production is planned, with dinner served 6-7:45 p.m. each day. Ticket prices are $10 for the dinner theater, $3 for the show only. Logan got some help from Chris Barbeau, boyfriend of a former student, in staging the battle scenes. Barbeau is trained in stage combat performance and choreography.

STUDENT ACTORS and technicians have been working on the production for approximately a month, after school and on weekends. They're looking forward to the opening of another show.

done without accents.

"Rashomon" isn't the most lightearted play ever staged at Centennial Educational Park. Audience members most likely won't leave the auditorium after performances humming the music they've just heard.

"The audience has to work along with us, that's for sure," Logan said. Each year, the Plymouth Park Players try to present a variety of productions, some more lighthearted than others.

When we do 'The Robber Bridegroom' in the spring, no one's going to have to think about anything," Logan said.

"RASHOMON" WON'T just provide food for thought. Chinese food will be served each evening before the performance

Catering will be by The Pagoda Inn of Plymouth. Dinner tickets must be bought in advance, by noon the day before each performance. For ticket information, call 459-3518. Tickets for the show only will be sold at the door.

Dinner will include egg rolls, wonton soup, almond chicken or sweet and sour pork, and fortune cookies. Dinner will be served by costumed student waiters.

Diners won't be required to use chopsticks those evenings.

"We don't want them chasing their food down with a stick," Logan said.

Using silverware means theatergoers will be done with dinner in time for the performance.

THE "RASHOMON" cast includes: Leo Moschouris, appearing as the Priest; Scott Mancha, Woodcutter; Kim Baldwin, Wigmaker; Tom Swarthout, Bandit; Mike Gee, Husband; Melanie Farrow, Wife; Sarah Romine, Medium; Jim Carson and Julie Prince, understudies.

The production staff includes: Gloria Logan, director; Chris Barbeau, combat master; Charles Gregory, auditorium manager; Tonya Thomas and Sarah Romine, assistant directors; Jeri Silber, costumer; Scott Mancha, Mark Schmidt and Meghan Lynch, construction/painting; Liz Bain and Jill Benton, makeup; Kristie Howell and Jena Thiele, cuisine.

Also, Kim Strong and Amy Sullivan, publicity; Paul Croll, sound, Todd Linsley, Heather Murley and Beth Turomsha, lights; Karyn Gniewek, house manager.

The running crew includes: Meghan Lynch, Jenny McGrath. Mary Kay Cook, Dave Burtka, Mark Schmidt, Julie Prince, Tonya Thomas, Karyn Gniewek, Kim Gaffield. Kristie Howell, Matt Myhrum. Jim Carson and Melissa Lenzner.

At the gate, the cynical Wigmaker (Kim Baldwin) is bored. The Woodcutter (Scott Mancha) is shocked when grabbed by the Priest (Leo Moschouris). Centennial Educational Park students have been busy rehearing for the upcoming performances of "Rashomon."

New housing complex opens doors to residents

Mary McAninch has been waiting for Canton Place to open for more than five years and by week's end, she'll finally move-in.

McAninch, who is handicapped, is among the first residents to occupy the 118 unit federally subsidized senior and handicapped housing complex on Ford Road at Sheldon.

"We've been waiting for this for a long time," she said while giving her son, Todd and granddaughter, Crystal, 2, a tour of her new home.

"I was so happy when I saw it," in her house. Most of the family she said. "I didn't think I'd get something so nice.'

ALTHOUGH SHE'S relieved that the wait is over, McAninch has mixed feelings about leaving her three bedroom house in Canton, downsizing her belongings and moving to the small apartment.

The only thing that will make it different is the space," she said.

In fact, she invited her family, which includes seven children and eight grandchildren, to a Thanksgiving meal for the last holiday dinner

As McAninch opened the blinds of her apartment window, revealing a birds-eye view of the landscape and development below, she said, it will be convenient living a stone's throw from K mart and Meijers.

"I hope I don't watch Canton grow too much," she said.

McAninch, a victim of Parkinson's disease, said the affliction made it too difficult for her to continue living alone in her Canton home. And now, she said, she looks forward to her new life, which will include decorating her apartment.

ONE OF HER many neighbors in the building is Helen Clinansmith, 66, who has lived in Plymouth most of her life.

"The area is home," she said.

"They're (the rooms) are small, but suitable for a person my age," said Clinansmith, adding she has a queen size bed that will span most of her bedroom.

She was given a penthouse suite on the eighth floor.

"There's an advantage to be with others so we can enjoy each other's company," said Clinansmith adding that she looks forward to potlucks and other building activities.

"There's so much to be offered here," she said. "There's a lot of diversions to keep people busy. If they stay in their apartments it deteriorates their health."

CLINANSMITH AND McAninch were among more than 2,000 people who inquired about the facility operated by National Church Residences, a non-profit organization. And of those, 300 actually applied for the 117 apartments. One additional apartment is used for the resident manager, David Stephens, his wife, Sharon, and son, 18-month-old David.

Residents must be at least 62 years old or handicapped to be eligible. Single people must earn no more than $13,950 annually and couples must earn no more than $15,950 annually, Stephens said.

There have been many delays since Canton's former supervisor James Poole and past grants coordinator Terry Carroll began working on getting Housing and Urban Development to approve Canton as an appropriate site among other proposals nationwide. Recent delays were caused by building problems and code inspections.

"Moving into Canton Place is something we looked forward to with great anticipation," Stephens said. "We're very excited to finally have the building open. And I haven't waited as long as some people who have waited for more than three

Accident on N. Territorial kills owner of antique shop

Mary Marie Riegal, 82, of Livonia was killed on North Territorial Road between Gotfredson and Napier roads in a traffic accident at about 8 p.m. Tuesday night.

Riegal was dead on arrival at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Ann Arbor. Riegal, who owned Riegal's Antique Shop on Plymouth Road in Livonia. was crossing North Territorial when she was struck by Christine Forsch, 34, of Ann Arbor, who was driving

There is no indication that excessive speed or alcohol were factors in the fatality, said Sergeant Harley Rider, supervisor of traffic services for the Washtenaw County Sheriff Department.

No charges are expected to be

Riegal was checking on her brother's house and picking up mail, as he and his wife were out of town. Riegal parked on the north side of the road and was walking across to the south side to the mailbox. "As she did so, she was struck by an eastbound car," said Rider.

Riegal was in the road, not on the shoulder, when she was struck. It was dark and she was wearing dark clothing, Rider said. Road conditions were good.

It marked the 40th fatal accident in Washtenaw County this year. That compares to 34 at this time last year, Rider said.

'North Territorial has been identified as a concerning stretch of roadway. It's basically a wagon path that's been paved over. It's not up to today's engineering standards. It's slowly being upgraded, but it takes time," Rider said.

At the accident site, North Territorial is relatively straight, he said. Riegal was hit at a spot just beyond

"The accident is still under investigation. We'll discuss this with the prosecuting attorney as a matter of course, but we don't expect any charges will be filed when we're finished." Rider said. Forsch was traveling with her husband and their 1-year-old daughter. JO-ANNE D'AMATO OF PLYM-OUTH was Riegal's niece. "My aunt never had an enemy. She was like a mom to me. Her and I were planning a party together for my dad's 80th birthday. "She owned her own antique store," said D'Amato. "She worked for the first woman judge in Michigan, Municipal Judge Lila Neuenfelt in Dearborn. She was her secretary.

With attention paid to traffic patrols in recent years, Myers said, the number of auto accidents has been coming down.

Yet, Radovic maintained that the community is upset about the increase in tickets

"People are becoming more and

BUT REP. Willis Bullard, R-Highland, is holding out for a stateimposed speed limit on chemical-

"They (Kosteva and Democratic leaders) believe federal law preempts in this area. I hope Fesser moves his bill in the Senate. They rejected this approach a little too summarily."

Fessler, R-Commerce, chairs the Senate Transportation Committee. Bullard said discussing such a speed limit might prompt the railroad to modify its speed, perhaps to a compromise 30 mph.

Bullard also disagreed with the contention of House Transportation Committee chairman Curtis Hertel. D-Detroit, who said, "I see this as another classic catastrophe of the Reagan-Bush era of deregula-

Some Wayne County prisoners will soon be sent to jail in western Michigan through a new contract with Al-

But local police, while appreciative, consider the move a symbolic gesture that won't solve the county's jail crowding problem.

Bed space for 32 prisoners has been secured in the Allegan County jail, Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara's office announced "This is significant because it's the first time we've contracted with another county for direct District Court sentencing," deputy county executive Michael Duggan said.

Though the county has maintained a contract with the Alpena County Jail, prisoners sent to that northern Michigan facility have been offenders, already sentenced to the county work force, who failed to show for county-assigned duties.

The new space will prevent prioners "from thumbing their nose" at the county, said Judge Robert Brzezinski of the 16th District Court,

"WE HAVE a hard time getting people (we sentence) to do anything," said Brzezinski, who pressed for jail space as president of the Wayne County District Judges Association. "Even if they're on probabtion, the threat of jail has to be there."

Livonia has already been sending prisoners to outstate jails due to local crowding, he said .
Plymouth Police Chief Richard

Myers, president of the Wayne County Association of Chiefs, said he and his fellow chiefs supported the executive's bid to acquire the new jail space, but even more space was nec-

Band-Aid on a gaping hole."

Despite the additional space in Allegan County, construction of new cells at the existing jail and the possibility of leasing more space in the Oakland County Jail, local chiefs are concerned the county sheriff's department could lack resources to transport prisoners.

"THERE'S A long-standing frus-tration that sheriff's department resources aren't being allocated enough to support functions like this," Myers said.

The frustration could be the result of a misunderstanding of how the sheriff's budget operates, Sheriff Robert Ficano said.

"Just as I don't know how their budgets are allocated, they might not know how ours is allocated." Fi-

In addition to leasing additional space, the county work force — designed for less dangerous offenders is growing.

"There's about 200 people a day out there cleaning up the highways," Duggan said.

Kosteva did not adopt the suggestion of some residents near rail lines that the state set up a revolving fund to aid small communities, in particular, whose budgets are strained by the costs of evacuation, traffic control and clean-up of toxic train spills.

REP. NICK Ciaramitaro, D-Roseville, said residents have a legal right to know about toxic chemicals near their homes.

Groups support check lane plan

AP - Six state and local government organizations are joining Michigan's effort to win U.S. Supreme Court approval of police checkpoints to nab drunken drivers, a policy Michigan courts ruled unconstitutional.

IN A SIMILAR though unrelated issue, a decision on the legality of Wayne County Sheriff's Department check lanes to combat drug dealers is still pending

The sheriff's department conducted the check lanes just one day, Sept.

Sheila Mandt was a 19-year-old University of Detroit coed, a self-described child of privilege from Bloomfield Hills, when in January of 1985 she was brutally raped in broad daylight and left on a Detroit street. Only now, nearly five years later, is she able to confront the savage attack that irrevocably changed her life, emotionally scarring her with continuing terror and straining relationships with family and friends.

"I grew up in a a very affluent house," she said. "My father was very successful. I attended private schools. I had anything a kid could ever want. But it was a glass bubble and people in the bubble are completely unaware of what's really going on in the world.

"I never thought it was as gruesome as it is," said Mandt, now 24 and living in Birmingham.

Part of Mandt's healing process is fierce dedication to the Michigan Victim Assistance Network, a nonprofit organization that provides training seminars for law enforcement officers, members of the judiciary and others who deal with victims of crime.

Because of a recent change in law, the program has lost 50 percent of its state funding, placing it in serious economic jeopardy.

'A program like this needs to be around. With every single crime, there are many people who suffer. The actual victim may be dead, but there are other survivors.'

- Shelia Mandt

"A PROGRAM LIKE this needs to be around. With every single crime, there are many people who suffer. The actual victim may be dead, but there are other survivors," said Mandt, who is fighting to save the network by hosting a fund-raising event in mid-January. (See accompanying article.)

The Michigan Crime Victim's Rights Act, enacted in late 1985, did not exist at the time of Mandt's rape and she did not seek support assistance elsewhere, either during the ensuing trial of her two assailants, each sentenced to 150 years for rape and attempted murder, or later. "Fortunately, everybody I dealt with in the criminal justice system was thorough and did their job well." Still, "I didn't want to talk to the police or anyone else about it." In fact, had the incident occurred closer to home in the suburbs where it would likely have received wider press coverage, Mandt said she would not have reported it.

Talking about it, seeing press re-ports of it, made the incident more alive. Silence helped block horrifying memories.

Nor did she at first inform her parents, sister or two brothers. They learned of the attack two weeks later. It was discussed briefly and never again mentioned. To this day, few friends are aware it ever happened.

"People tell me I'm lucky, I'm alive and well. But part of me was killed and for a long time I wished I had been blown to pieces. I didn't want to pick up and continue."

"I NEEDED HELP" then, but I didn't realize it."

of crime that Mandt was finally able to confront the terror of her experi-

"We were watching the (TV) news when I thought, my God, crime is going on everywhere. I became enraged."

When the friend, a male, asked if she had ever been raped, Mandt at first denied the truth. Then, "sensing he would not judge me," she told him what had happened. For the first time in more than three years, "I was able to say the word rape.

Tragedy struck Mandt again, a year ago when her father, Edward, 53, died suddenly at home. Mandt discovered the body.

Her father, a successful business man who was active in the Boys and Girls Clubs of Michigan, had instilled in Mandt a strong sense of social justice, Mandt said.

"I grew up wanting to save the world.

Her fierce devotion to the Network for victims of crime is Mandt's attempt to "do my best at something. When I die, they can say she gave 110 percent to this.'

Mandt's rape has shown her that dealing with resulting feelings of guilt, shame and fear is difficult under the best of circumstances. Dealing with it alone is "hell. People may not want to face such things, but It was not until a friend noticed they can't be swept under the rug."

Part of Sheila Mandt's healing process is fierce dedication to the Michigan Victim Assistance Network, a non-profit organization that provides training seminars for law enforcement officers, members of the judiciary and others who deal with victims of crime.

During the nearly four years the Michigan Victim Assistance Network has provided service, the organization has received U.S. presidential commendations for its efforts in training some 3,500 law enforcement officers and others in dealing with victims of crime.

Founded by the Michigan Sheriffs' Association, the network "deals with the plight of victims, understanding what the victim or the family is actually going through," said Judy Ni-chols, director of the Lansing-based unreported. If people can count on a

"Anybody can request it," including ordinary citizens, said Nichols, whose interest in victims' rights stems from the 1983 murder of her son in Denver while he was a security officer in the Air Force.

The network offers five courses of training, ranging in length from four hours to four days each. Training is based on criteria established by the National Organization for Victim Assistance.

THE NETWORK is the result of the Michigan Crime Victim's Rights Act, co-authored by Detroit Recorders Court Judge Michael Talbot and state Rep. William Van Regenmorter. R-Jenison.

Based on the law, a victim must be informed of his or her rights within 24 hours of a crime. The law also provides protection for the victim, guarantees his or her participation in all judicial proceedings and allows for restitution from those who are convicted of the crime. Group calls on newspapers to use recycled paper

News must be fresh, but newspapers need not - at least according to a resolution recently adopted by the Conference of Western Wayne.

The multi-community group is calling on local daily and weekly newspapers to make greater use of recycled paper.

Recycling newspapers is seen as a key to reducing America's trash flow. So far, however, the number of papers recycled has far exceeded the number of newspaper companies

'It's no secret there's a tremen dous glut in recycled newspapers," CWW executive director Daniel Gilmartin. "We're asking papers that circulate in our area to do what they can to help relieve that glut."

The CWW represents Canton, Garden City, Livonia, Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Redford and Westland, among other communities.

Copies of its resolution were sent to all newspapers publishing in CWW communities as well as to the Detroit Free Press and Detroit News.

Thus far, Gilmartin said, he has yet to hear any response

WE HAVEN'T heard, but we hope newspapers are at least thinking about recycling," he said.

As much as 30 percent of the newsprint used by the Observer & Eccentric chain has been recycled, general manager Richard Isham said. Its newsprint, bought from an Ontario supplier, contains a mix of virgin pulp and recycled paper.

Motorcycle classes set

Motorcycle safety classes will be offered this month through Schoolcraft College's continuing education services division.

A motorcycle rider class is being offered for riders with limited experience. Motorcycles are provided, though riders must bring their own protective gear. Classsroom and riding range instruction is offered. The class meets 6-10 p.m. Friday, Dec. 1, and 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Dec. 2-3. The fee

Performance-based better biking is being offered for both unlicensed and licensed motorcyclists. Riders can improve their skill in braking, turning and avoiding obstacles. Successful completion will exempt students from the Secretary of State Alternate Motorcycle Operator Skills Test. The class meets 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 3. The fee is $65.

Additional information is available by calling 462-4448. Schoolcraft is at 18600 Haggerty, between Six and Seven Mile, Liyonia.

Holocaust talk focus

Dr. Leon Bass, a member of the U.S. Holocaust Memorial Council Education Committee and a witness to the liberation of Buchenwald, will speak at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 5, at the Jewish Community Center, 6600 W. Maple Road, West Bloom-

Bass' talk, "Is the Price Too High?," is sponsored by the Holocaust Memorial Center.

Bass was with the 183rd Engineers Combat Batallion near the end of World War II and was present when the Buchenwald concentration camp was liberated. After the war, he obtained master's and doctoral degrees from Temple University.

Bass has lectured at numerous universities in the United States and Canada and was a delegate to the International Liberators Conference in Washington, D.C.

He has been cited for his educational efforts by numerous organizations, including the Jewish Welfare Federation of San Francisco, B'nai B'rith and the American Jewish Con-

Bell will offer safety service

Michigan Bell will soon offer a service providing a 24-hour security alarm for homes and businesses, officials said. The program, called Scan-Alert, allows normal telephone lines to be connected to the alarm system. New equipment in company call process-ing offices will monitor the system through telephone lines.

Unlike other alarm systems that go off when an incident occurs, Bell officials said, the Scan Alert system provides continual monitoring.

The system can also be used to report medical emergencies. Ill or elderly people can summon help by pushing a button on an optional transmitter.

The system will be installed over the next eight months. Additional information is available by calling 1-800-482-5481.

City manager Does Plymouth need one?

T'S BEEN NEARLY six months since the departure of former Plymouth City Manager Henry Graper and the city doesn't have a new city manager.

That's makes us wonder if one is needed. If you hold the conventional, traditional belief that every city needs a manager, you would think that the city would fall apart without one.

But from all accounts there's no panic in the neighborhoods of Plymouth over the lack of a manager. The leaves of fall have been sucked up and the garbage is being picked up. That's what most residents care about.

In the downtown area, the Christmas decorations are up and the nativity scene is there. That's what visitors to the community care

All this is happening without a hired city man-

We acknowledge that running a city of about 10.000 residents is more complicated than getting the garbage and leaves picked up, but sometimes we wonder if it isn't made more complex than it should be by consultants hired to help cities and by the bureaucracy in the city itself.

The consulting firm of Bartell & Bartell, a Pennsylvania consulting firm, is being paid $15,000 to look for a new city manager. Meanwhile, William Graham, finance director, has been appointed acting city manager.

THE WHOLE THING makes us wonder. We wonder if Graham isn't going to just end up with the job and we wonder if the $15,000 is being

We also think the entire prolonged process of hiring a city manager should make residents wonder if the position is even needed. Of course it's traditional to have a city manager. We understand the thinking. A top man or woman is needed to take the heat and put some of it on the city staff. Also, the manager is the person to blame when things go wrong. But we wonder if Plymouth couldn't come up with a creative solution to the situation such as having Graham serve as finance director and city manager.

Of course it's traditional to have a city manager. We understand the thinking. A top man or woman is needed to take the heat and put some of it on the city staff. Also, the manager is the person to blame when things go wrong.

We'd expect that under such a situation some of Graham's tasks would be divided up among other city workers. That could probably be done with a few adjustments.

Such a solution would be non-traditional. However, in these days of tight finances, such a solution would save the taxpayers a few dollars. That's something the city commission should always be looking to do.

But we're not making the suggestion just because we think it would save money. We're making it because nearly six months have passed since Graper has departed and during that time the city has encountered no serious problems.

City commissions should be looking for new solutions, things that make government run smoother and more efficiently.

However, judging from the actions of the commission in dealing with the hiring of a new city manager, we think the commission is just doing things the same old way. That translates into more money out of the pocketbooks of residents.

We think Graham would make a fine city manager. And there seems to be sentiment on the part of board members to offer him the job. We even suspect that's what will probably happen. But for some reason government doesn't seem to be able to do anything without calling in a consultant and paying them a big fee first.

We should expect more forceful action from Plymouth's city commission. The election's over and there are two new city commissioners. They should get the ball rolling and get something body's gotta do it.

Tomorrow is Dec. 1 and you know what that means.

You'd better watch out. You won't have to cry, If you'll just BE CAREFUL.

It's time for the annual warnings from those concerned folks who want to let you know that Christmas can be dangerous. So here we go.

War toys are definitely out this year. If you don't believe it, you won't have to ask. Just try to get inside your local Toys "R" Us store, past that person carrying the placard that says "G.I. Joe Has Got To

A professor at Goshen College down in Indiana agrees. She says toys associated with violence should be eliminated from a child's environment because their presence suggests that parents approve of violent

Today's toys, the professor says, aren't the same thing as the cap guns and toy soldiers that some of us grew up with. At a program called "Disarming the Child," Professor Katherine Auschliman said children's toy boxes today are veritable arsenals of imitation weapons and that aggressive play results in aggressive behavior in later life.

You don't want to turn your little darling into a lean, mean fightin' machine by giving him (or her) Go-Bots or Transformers. Stick with something nice, peaceful and safe.

MAKING THAT choice, however,

Research Group released its annual toy safety survey. It contains a list of 25 toys rated "dangerous."

The toys on the list include such things as a Jaunty Jalopy Tot-A-Bout, a Sesame Street Musical TV Wind Up, Big Bird's Motor Boat, a Donald Duck Plush Toy and a particular brand of a wooden train set.

Out in Wisconsin Tom Conrad, the south central regional director for something called the Wisconsin Action Coalition, said he was able to find in the first two aisles of a toy store "enough toys to spend an afternoon talking about their dangers."

I'm not surprised. Just about anything can be dangerous if you give it to a kid too young to know you're not supposed to eat it or stick it in your

You could tell parents to exercise common sense in buying toys for their kids, and I' sommon sense in buying toys for their kids, and I'm sure that's what Tom and his fellow toy activists are trying to get across.

Well, that can be dangerous, too, according to a professor down at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center in Dallas.

No to a radioactive waste dump

To the editor:

The decision by Michigan's Low-Level Waste Authority to possibly place a radioactive waste dump in St. Clair County could spell disaster for Michigan and the United States for generations to come.

There is growing concern that the lethal waste to be buried there will contaminate the Great Lakes, which supply this country with 95 percent of its fresh water daily.

State officials admit that they were not aware of the pipeline when they made their preliminary site selections. If the Low-Level Waste Authority missed a 12-foot foot diameter pipe, the question is are we willing to risk our futures to the competency of this state authority?

Wake up citizens in Rochester Hills, Bloomfield Hills, Utica, Troy, Sterling Heights, Warren, Fraser, Pontiac, Auburn Hills, Mt. Clemens, Clinton, Shelby, St. Clair Shores, Roseville and Romeo. You and 30 other communities in Oakland, Macomb and Lapeer Counties receive water from this pipeline.

To date, there is no safe technology for the permanent disposal of nu-clear waste. The Michigan Depart-ment of Health acknowledges the fact that this dump will eventually leak. So why then are state officials putting the safety of 27 million peo-

To the editor: Last week we had occasion to visit the beautiful town of-Plymouth with all of its unique and wonderful shopping.

We were extremely distressed to find no bathroom facilities available for the public. We had come from Albion with a stop at Hudson Mills Metro Park and then to Plymouth. As time went on we began to ask in every store we entered if facilities were available and were told no. Finally one storekeeper told us to go to the hotel, which at that point was a few blocks from where we were.

On our way back to the car, we stopped at the Chamber of Commerce and were told "that is a probiem." We were unable to enjoy our visit and were rushing through stores in hopes we would eventually find facilities.
You have such a lovely place to visit, shop and enjoy, please make arrangements for the physical needs of your patrons. Plymouth, unfor-tunately, will not be at the top of our list for a leisurely day until better arrangements are made Walt and Jan DeNio.

United Way over the top

We did it! Once again, this community came through to help the Plymouth United Way go over the top in our annual campaign.

There were times during the campaign when it looked like we might have to settle for less than the $475,000 we needed, but the last few weeks helped to push the total dollars in the campaign over the top of that goal.

What a great feeling each of us should have, knowing that we have continued the work of the 16 local agencies and the 22 state and national agencies, which rely heavily on the United Way for their funding. The youngster who is helped by Growth Works, the person who gets a hot meal from the Salvation Army and the boy or girl who grows and matures through scouting are all examples of how our United Way dollar works many wonders.

Although we may never get a per-sonal thank you from those who are helped by our contribution, knowing that we have helped should give each of us a real sense of satisfaction.

On behalf of all those who will benefit and all those who put in long volunteer hours to make possible the successful drive, thank you!

Those are individual cases. Just how does it add up for society as a

Kurt Gorwitz, a consultant to New Detroit Inc., tallied it up in "A Profile of Teenage Pregnancy in Detroit" for Wayne State University's Bureau of Business Research:

The comparable annual statewide cost for 15,319 teeenage recipients exceeded $50 million per year for AFDC and other grants, more than $15 million for food stamps and $45 million for Medicaid — or a total of $110 million-plus."

A FEW WEEKS back, I compiled a number of news stories about disasters occurring to children - accidental shootings, fires and the like. In every case I noted the daily pa-pers and broadcasters got comments from mothers, grandmothers, aunts, uncles and neighbors — but never from fathers. Not one of those stories mentioned a father or his outs. The inescapable conclusion was that fatherless kids were far more prone to premature death by violence than kids in two-parent milles

Now I find - again from the Gorwitz article - that the news media aren't alone in dancing around this delicate question of fatherless

"Further, community service agencies commonly do not acknowledge the existence of adolescent fathers-to-be and fail to provide services for them." he wrote.

"The ultimate result may be lowered self-esteem related to feelings of inadequacy, frustration, anxiety and guilt leading to acts of hostility to the mother and/or child."

For a variety of reasons, Gorwitz said, teen fathers don't accompany their women on prenatal medical visits, aren't present at the birth, and fail to "establish an early emotional and psychological bond with their infant child."

FURTHER ON, Gorwitz piles on the conclusions:

"Teen mothers are less likely to obtain timely and appropriate prenatal care, to eat and exercise properly, and as a result are more likely to have pregnancy complications and to deliver premature/low-weight bables which have a higher probability of death during the first year of life.

"About 450 cases of child abuse are reported each year in Detroit, and approximately 200 of these offenders either are or were teenage parents.

Why are science scores low?

ence teacher for 17 years and 1 just found out that our Michigan Education Assessment Program (MEAP) scores are not very good. As a mat-ter of fact, the scores are a little embarrassing. We have a good science teaching staff in my building. My question is, is the new MEAP science test fair or are we science teachers doing that bad a job in science teach-

A. Depends on who you talk to. One of the problems in regards to not scoring better is that your curriculum doesn't match the eighth grade MEAP science test.

In your district, you teach earth science (geology) at the sixth grade level, biology (sometimes called living science) at the seventh grade and a combination of introductory chemistry and physics at the eighth grade level. When your eighth grade students took the science test last September they had not been taught the physical science (chemistry and physics) portion of the test because your curriculum doesn't teach chemstry and physics in the sixth or seventh grade to any extent.

Said another way, how can you (or I) expect students to score well on a state mandated eighth grade science test when the students haven't yet been taught the concepts tested (physics and chemistry). Nevertheless, this typical educational "guarded" position or rationalization isn't going to "fly" with the general public, let alone boards of education. Therefore, curviculum leaders might as well face the issues. What are the

The first issue is that 45 percent of the eighth grade MEAP science test questions call for students knowledge of "process skills." These skills are not just rote memory answers but call for student thinking and reasoning skills, that is, looking at information and coming to conclusions via the inductive reasoning process. Therefore, if science classes are primarily lecture and questions at the end of the chapter, students are going to have a difficult time responding to 45 percent of those MEAP science questions which deal with the scientific method or process

The problem, however, is not just a teaching issue. Many middle school science environments lack comprehensive laboratory facilities.

Another major problem is that middle school science teachers as a group usually have a stronger background in the living sciences (biology) than in earth science, physics or chemistry. Purther complicating the situation is that many edence teach-ers in our middle schools are reassigned elementary teachers; teachers with a K-6 certification - meaning that although they received all their college training in elementary education they are eligible to teach acience in a middle school setting.

Because of declining enrollments in many districts over the past years, many elementary teac have ended up teaching science in the middle school with a "one class" preparation in college, called "ele-mentary science methods." It is not the district's fault; it is an issue of teacher certification and language in teacher contracts regarding seniority and right to "bump.

What has now occurred is that the Michigan Department of Education, in its infinite wisdom, gathered together competent science teachers throughout the state and determined what basic knowledges or skills students should master by the time they take a state mandated eighth grade science test. These objectives were agreed upon by several reference groups including teachers, professors and leaders in the state science organizations. The purpose was to "standardize" basic skills and objectives to be mastered so that school districts and teachers would have a reference point of what is essential regardless of their background, training, teacher contracts or certifi-

My experience tells me that the MEAP science scores will improve in the next few years. School districts will make curriculum adjustments because of their belief in need for an improved science pro-gram or because the politics of poor scores will negate districts "skating around the issue." In the final analysis, however, scores will improve because there are enough committed educators who know science education and science teacher staff development have long been neglected especially at the elementary level and oftentimes at the middle school and high school levels.

Meteor showers twinkle in December skies

Everyone knows that the start of winter (and the shortest days of the year) occurs in December. This month's events also include two meteor showers, Venus at its brightest and an opposition of Jupiter. Mercury, Venus, Jupiter and Saturn are evening planets this month. Mars will be visible before sunrise.

The length of the day decreases by 11 minutes this month. On Dec. 1 the sun rises at 7:42 a.m. and sets at 5:01 p.m., for a possible nine hours and 19 minutes of sunlight. On the 31st these times are 8:01 a.m. and 5:09 p.m. for a possible nine hours and eight minutes of sun. (All times are Eastern Standard Time.)

Face southwest, 45 minutes after sunset, on Dec. 1 to see a nice grouping with the moon, Venus and Saturn. Venus is the brilliant "star" to the south (left) of the moon. Saturn is about the same distance to the west (right) of the moon.

On the following night, the moon has moved to the south of Venus. (Keep watching Saturn during December. Later this month it will help you find Mercury.)

Use a small telescope to observe Venus before total darkness. You may be surprised to see that planet looking like a one-third crescent

About 14 degrees below the Pleiades is the star Aldebaran (al DEB a ran), the orange-red "eye" of Taurus. On the night of the 11th, the moon forms a triangle with the Pleiades and Aldebaran.

HRISTMAS IN the 1920s had a different look than modern-day celebrations do.

"The Roaring 20s Christmas" is the theme of the current main exhibit at the Plymouth Historical Museum. A visit to the museum, at 155 S. Main in Plymouth, provides a glimpse into Christmases past.

We got the idea because of the wonderful clothing we have in our collection already," said Beth Stewart, museum director.

The museum's central area upstairs shows a group celebrating a 1920s Christmas. The mannequins wear clothing of that era while listening to music on a Victrola.

Musical instruments are included, along with a number of 1920s toys. One exhibit describes the 1929 stock market crash which signaled the end of the era.

Postage stamps are on display, along with a model of Charles Lindbergh's "Spirit of St. Louis" plane made by Phil Lundy. Jewelry is included in the exhibit, along with 1920s Fox Theatre programs.

Holiday buttons, some featuring Santa Claus designs, are on exhibit. One button includes the slogan "Meet Me at Crowley Milner's" and shows Sant with his arms around that Detroit department store.

Various holiday buttons were used by retailers, banks, insurance companies and other businesses during that era.

ONE PART of the exhibit tells the story of Christmas Seals, which have been used throughout this century to raise money for charitable projects. Decorations in the museum, including Christmas trees and wreaths, were provided by members of the Trailwood Garlien Club and pointe Garden Club.

Newlyweds Kevin and Gretchen Goulet of Union Lake take turns preparing dinner - whoever arrives nome from work first.

The Goulets, who married in September, had talked about a lot of things while planning their future together. But the issue of chores never came up until the pair attended marriage preparation classes at Newman House, the Catholic campus ministry center for Schoolcraft College in Livonia.

There, a team of married couples shared their own experiences on such topics as money, children, inlaws and intimacy.

"One of the couples talked about participating," said Gretchen, 25, formerly of Farmington Hills. "It isn't the woman's job to be responsible (for chores). It's whoever gets

A MAJOR theme of the program is the importance of communicating one's own needs and trying to understand and respect each other.

The Rev. Robert Schaden, a Catholic priest, instituted the program, called Pre-Marriage Discovery, when he was assigned to the New-man House in 1970. It is similar to the team pre-marriage counseling he did earlier at St. Edith parish in Working with him is Bert Kelly, a lay marriage/family counselor. Both are trained therapists who do extensive family counseling.

The Archdiocese of Detroit stipulates a six-month waiting period for couples wanting to marry in a Catholic ceremony. That enables them to attend a marriage preparation class. Discovery is one of a variety of programs available.

"No one can tell a couple how to have a marriage," said Kelly, a divorced mother of six who lives in Livonia. "But it's very important to "His family is more closely communicate. The program is de-und." she said. "His shows more signed to stimulate them to talk to each other.

TYPICALLY, COUPLES are in their early to mid-20s and have been referred through their parishes. However, the program isn't limited to Catholics. Participants attend a total of nine hours over several sessions, at a charge of $35 per couple. While most come from metro Detroit, some travel from as far away as Lansing and Petoskey to attend. While some people come "with a chip on their shoulder," most are won over, Schaden said. Some are so uncooperative it results in postponement or cancellation of the wedding.

"We aren't trying to scare people from getting married, but we do raise issues," Schaden said.

Kelly notes that many couples spend months planning the perfect wedding, down to the tiniest detail but fail to discuss crucial issues dealing with finances, division of chores, religious practices and family backgrounds.

Schaden said many newly married people have trouble "crossing the bridge, going from 'me' to 'we.' " In his experience, the major difficulty in rocky marriages is "unmet and often unrealistic expectations."

IN ADDITION, sometimes the people feel that starting new customs will make them disloyal to established family traditions.

"The fact is a lot of people don't leave Father and Mother," Schaden said. Those issues surface in discord over money, children, in-laws, intimacy and religion.

Livonia residents Jack and Cheryl Beaudoin appreciated the frankness of the team members who discussed differences within their marriages.

The couple felt they knew each other well before their October wedding. Cheryl, a 30-year-old hair stylist, had been married previously and has two daughters, ages 9 and 10. Jack, 26, who works in elevator construction, never had been married

"We really looked down every area we could think of, what could come up," said Cheryl. "Jack has been a father figure to the children for more than a year."

But the team's discussion of inlaws "really opened a lot of discussion," she said.

Both of their fathers are deceased. Jack comes from a family of six children, while Cheryl has three siblings. Although the families get along well together, Cheryl believes they crop up. OTHER ISSUES can affect a marriage. While the birth of a child may bring great joy, the baby likely will change the couple's intimacy pat-tern. Job loss, money worries and differences in personality style all have major impact.

"Life experience is one of the best teachers," said Kelly of the team couples, all associated with the Newman House and willing to work hard to keep their marriages fresh. Many of the couples are alumni of the Bill and Sue Bresler, married 11 years, have been on the team for nine years. Helping newlyweds "get off on the right foot" enriches her own marriage, she said.

'Our talks have charged as our lives have changed," she said. "We like being married, and we like to help others.

The Breslers, parents of a 7-year-old daughter and 4-year-old son, recently moved from Redford Township to Livonia. One source of family stress is juggling schedules. Bill, a staff photographer for the Observer and Eccentric Newspapers, has a varied work week. Sue is a substance

Schmidt, 46, a dental hygienist and skin care consultant, and her hus-band, Fred, 49, have been on the team for 12 years. He is a manager at Chrysler, and the couple lives in Livonia. They have been married 26 years and have three children.

Schmidt said she and her husband have had to adjust to very different communication styles over the years. While she tends to be outspoken, he came from a quiet family where long silences were normal.

"We're often on two different wave lengths," she said. "Change doesn't come easily."

The payback for Schmidt is to "show the world that people can stay married for all these years, can work out and have a good life rather. than just giving up when things go

Author/Rabbi Harold Kushner's 22-city, six-week promotional book tour began with a bang, or more correctly a jolt.

He was standing in front of a San Francisco restaurant contemplating the menu when the now infamous earthquake struck and Kushner was covered with concrete dust. He was shaken but unhurt.

"It's not true what they say," Kushner said. "Your whole life does not pass before your eyes. Your only thought is to look for a doorway and get out of it.'

Kushner's tour is to promote his newest book, "Who Needs God," written, he said, "for those who asked why we need more than the commandment to be nice to each other." The book was released last month by Summit books and will be available in most book stores.

THE RABBI came to the Detroit area recently to speak during the Jewish Book Fair at the Jewish Community Center in West Bloomfield. Kushner, part-time rabbi of a Massachusetts congregation, is the well-known author of "When Bad Things Happen to Good People," which sold more than 3 million copies, and "When All You Ever Wanted Isn't Enough," which sold a half mil-

Kushner was interviewed in the midst of his whirlwind tour as he spoke from a pay telephone booth in the lobby of his Nashville hotel. He had already checked out of his room and was about to embark to the airport for his next stop.

"The hard part is being constantly on the go, but you meet so many people who tell you how much your book has meant to them," Kushner said.

Only once in his years of promotional tours has he mixed up his host "I couldn't get it through my head it was Phoenix, not Houston. It was

"Who Needs God" took "six months and 30 years" to write, Kushner said - six months of writing after 30 years of gestation. It extends, not expands, the themes of his earlier books, he said.

"It's the sum of what I believe and am teaching as a rabbi. Some themes continually creep up like the fear of death. The approach is familiar but the material is new."

Draft won't solve problem

I can't tell if he is serious. I hope that he is not. A Detroit Free Press column writer believes that the government should draft everybody. He believes this will make them grow up. I believe he is serious enough for me to argue for the opposition.

For that writer, the younger generation is a bunch of "self-centered bubbleheads." I have met many of the people to whom he refers. I cannot dismiss them so quickly. It is a bit risky for the older generation to judge the younger as fools. Let's con-sider his solution to the problem.

The writer's proposal is to draft everyone so that they will be made uncomfortable enough to grow up. He believes that two years in the military will make responsible, mature people out of these kids.

I just talked with a young man who is in the military through his own choice. He tells me "They treat us like kids." Is this any way to make people grow up? Is forcing people to fit into a system realistic training for maturity and responsibility?

I HAVE met men who have come out of the military who still seem less mature, less aware of what is

I have two main objections to the writer's plan. The first is that the military is not just a place to teach people to grow up and sacretice a little. It is an institution in which people are taught to tall and to be willing to be killed.

"The amount of alcohol that a nursing infant is exposed to in the mother's milk is just a fraction of that consumed by the mother," Little said. "In fact, when a 132-pound mother ingests four drinks with onehalf ounce pure alcohol in each, an 11-pound infant ingests a total of only .01 ounces. Nevertheless, that tiny amount appears to be related to motor development."

The average motor development index score of nursing infants in the study whose mothers drank moderately but regularly — at least one drink daily — while nursing was 98 points. Infants exposed to less alcohol than that had a score of 103. The average score for normal in-

"A difference of five points in the motor development score is not a major problem in terms of individual infants and is not predictive of future difficulties," Little said. "However, when we test large groups of children and see a consistent developmental pattern related to alcohol consumption, then we must be con-

IN 1982 AND 1983, Little and her colleagues used the Bayley Scales of Infant Development to assess the motor and mental skills of 400 infants within two weeks of their first birthdays. The Bayley motor scale measures an infant's ability to walk, crawl, balance, throw and pick up

Drinking can affect child growth

The infants' mothers, members of a health maintenance organization in Seatle, were nearly all white and middle-class. Seventy percent of them had attended college. "Almost all the mothers were social drinkers and no severe problems with alcohol were observed among them. Twelve percent did not drink at all," Little said.

One hundred of the infants were exposed to at least half an ouces of pure alcohol in breast milk daily about one drink consumed by the mother a day - for at least three months. The rest of the infants were exposed to less alcohol.

After controlling for more than 100 variables including environmental effects, mother's age, drinking during pregnancy, smoking and other drug use, the researchers found that regular, moderate drinking during nursing did have an impact on motor development. They also found that an occasional, irregular binge did not have an effect.

"IT APPEARS that when a nursing mother drinks regularly, small, serial doses of alcohol accumulate in the baby's system and affect motor development," Little said. "However, an irregular or occasional binge consuming, for instance, five beers on a Saturday night - seems to result in less accumulation.

"It may be that the alcohol is metabolized and excreted by the infant and the longer it stays in the system, the greater its impact." Little noted that other drugs, such as valium, a tranquillizer, and theo-phylline, a bronchodilator, are meta-bolized or excreted more slowly in infants than in adults.

Get set for auto show

staff writer

Ten to 15 new domestic models and at least 10 worldwide concept cars are expected to be introduced at the 2nd North American International Show Jan. 6-14 at the Cobo Exhibition and Convention Center.

Preparations are well underway for the extravaganza, which is expected to showcase more than 700 vehicles and draw several hundred thousand spectators and about 1,000 reporters, many from outside of the

The fact that Detroit's auto show has become an international show bodes well for the casual car shopper here, said Daniel Hayes, show manager and executive vice president of the Detroit Auto Dealers Association, the Troy-based sponsor of the event.

You get more manufacturers in there. Manufacturers are into more space and exhibit more models. That way they get more attention from the public and press." Hayes said.

When you run an international show, you get manufacturers to put their best foot forward. Consumers can find any car they might want for comparison purposes.

"A CAR is not a spontaneous purchase now," he said. "It's a close

Upwards of 637,000 attended last year's show, Hayes said.

People who haven't taken in an auto show downtown for several years will be in for several surprises this winter besides a significantly larger number of vehicles on display, Hayes said.

'They'll be surprised at the size of Cobo Hall. They'll be surprised at how nice that building is. The main room is 600,000 square feet.

There will be 46 or 47 exhibitors with display stands, glitz. We're in two-tier displays now.

What the show-goer probably will find most interesting is a concept center where we've invited some manufacturers, design houses and engineering houses to show us some concepts of the future." Haves

We think maybe the show (the inaugural North American International exhibition this year) had something to do with it," Hayes said. "We don't know what else to ascribe it to.

"We're mildly optimisitic about the coming year," he added. "Michigan's economy is pretty strong."

That probably will mean another good turnout for next year's show as long as the weather cooperates.

Tickets will cost $5. Children under 12 accompanied by parents are free. People 65 years of age and older also will be admitted free, Doors will be opened at 10 a.m. rather than noon on weekends, and shuttle buses will operate between the city's parking garage in Greektown to help relieve the crush of spectators at Cobo. Hayes said.

Joseph Day is president and CEO of Freudenberg-NOK, an automotive supplier of rubber parts, which is an alliance of American, German and Japanese resources.

Firm researches car rubber applications

By R.J. King special writer

As sophisticated as the horseless carriage has become, with on-board computers monitoring everything from fuel economy to fax machines, it is perhaps surprising that such a vital vehicle component as natural rubber is still procured from the jungle.

From the unspoiled rain forests of Brazil and the Philippines comes the rubber tree's latex sap oozing from wounds in the bark like white blood. Gathered in tin cups or through a series of hoses, the rubber is cooked and blackened before being sold to traveling middlemen and ultimately shipped to industrial centers.

And just as the rubber tree has the deepest roots in the jungle, so, too, does Freudenberg-NOK, an automotive supplier of rubber parts, which recently established a strong footing in Plymouth through a joint venture of two of the world's largest producers of rubber products outside of the tire industry.

'We supply well over 1,000 different parts to the North American automotive industry, including off-road vehicles," said Joseph Day, president and CEO of Freudenberg-NOK. which combines the resources of global leaders Freudenberg & Co. of Weinheim, West Germany, and NOK Corp. of Tokyo, Japan.

"We also produce parts for major appliances such as dishwashers, vibration components for the electronics industry and various rubber and plastic components utilized in packaging for the drug and pharmaceutical industry.

WHILE MUCH has changed since Charles Goodyear first created solid rubber in 1839 by accidentally dropping a band of gummy substance on a hot kitchen stove, here inside the vibration control laboratories of Freudenberg-Nok, research with rubber continues as it did when the world was still powered by horse and carriage. Just as Goodyear experimented with raw rubber to turn the soft, gummy material into a solid capable of withstanding hot and cold weather, so too today, does Freudenberg-NOK use both furnace and freezer to develop everything from hydraulic seals to hydraulic mounts.

"We still procure natural rubber from a host of equatorial countries, and it still comes from trees." Day said during a recent tour of the supplier's headquarters, which houses over $2 million worth of testing equipment. "It's just that today it has a lot more applications and we apply a lot more quality control measures before a product ever gets out the door.'

By means of a linear vibration testing machine, for instance, Day said engineers can test new parts by simulating road conditions using a computer to set engine speeds - creating, in essence, everything from stop-sign idling to red-lining at 6,000 RPMs.

Nearby, heating and cooling units allow testing amid a variety of temperature readings from as low as 17 degrees to as high as 120 degrees. Meanwhile, clients such as Ford, General Motors and Chrysler can bring problem vehicles to the lab for evaluation and further

"A client can bring in a particular vehicle with problems, we'll plug it into our computers, design perhaps a different vibration control device right here, make the prototype, install it, and then conduct road tests," said Day. "There's no need to go anywhere else."

SUCH SOLO support is tantamount to the company's future success. Day said. "In this decade, the automakers have set trends by working with fewer suppliers who offer a consolidation of resources while still maintaining the technical clout to achieve stringent quality standards. That's probably the biggest reason for our consolidation in Plymouth.

Officially opening shop in July, Freudenberg-NOK bills itself as an alliance of American, German and Japanese resources. The company is also a unification of businesses formerly operating in North America as IPC, Disogrin Industries, Armet Industries, TransTec Industries, Escan Corp., Simrit Corp. and NOK

The new venture brings together the North American companies that were acquired over the years by the two parent firms. Under the general partnership, Freudenberg-NOK operates 24 facilities in North American and projects revenues of $400 million for 1989. At the company's corporate headquarters in Plymouth, a one-story building of blue brick and gray stone, 75 people are employed, 45 who have technical and engineering experience. Situated on 11 scres, the 25,000-equarefoot facility cost $6 million to build and equip.

The company also has an option to purchase six acres on adjacent land, but Day declined to predict when the company would expand. "We looked at a number of sites before building

FOR NOW, Day said profits would be channeled back into the company to fund future growth. "The reten-tion of potential earning is an important part of corporate strategy," he said. "We want to continue to expand in this market as well as finance continuing research and development."

Perhaps the company's most notaindustry is a hydraulic engine mounted to the base of an engisorbs vibrations through use of springs and fluids. Before the introduction of the hydro-mount, automakers cut down on engine vibra-tions by wrapping rubber strips around metal.

Bill Faulk, supervisor of the rearwheel drive power-train isolation and chassis structures section for Ford Motor Co. in Dearborn, said the hydro-mount, utilized on the Thunderbird since 1986, helped reduce engine vibrations - and ultimately allowed for a smoother ride.

as far as you can nowadays.' Shatzman's career seems to be a success by almost any measure. A tax specialist and CPA, Shatzman has worked at KPMG Peat Marwick for 171/2 years.

She initially thought she might want to be a teacher, but a few education courses turned her to economics and business. Her first accounting teacher really made the subject come alive and the rest is history. Shatzman earned BA and MBA degrees from the University of Michi-

Bounty for leaking new car photos is just plain silly

Auto apy photographer Jim Dunne recently bought one of those sets of glasses with a Groucho Marz nose and mustache, a move he says was forced by the bounty on his head offered by General Motors.

Dunne has made a career of taking pictures of new cars. The fact that Dunne takes his pictures before the auto companies want him to makes these "spy photos" contraband materiel that gets published in newspapers and magazines that find their readers fascinated by what's coming down the road, so to speak.

The smart small businessman motivates people with money

Pay is a key management tool for any small business.

It functions as a motivator when it is based on merit performance. It is a demotivator when it is given for longevity or with self-serving attitudes of favoritism without consideration for individual, measurable per-

Viewing pay as a resource is critical for small business owners and managers who have developed successful employee compensation systems. Rather than offering annual or semi-annual across-the-board increases based on some flat percentage or inflation factor, effective compensation systems are based on a more personalized method of reviewing employee performance.

Even more important, across-theboard increases negate the ability of a firm to pay its top producers well. This type of system also endorses and rewards unproductive attitudes and incompetence. As a result, better performers often move on to another opportunity where they will be rewarded in a more fair and equitable manner, based on performance.

Compensation practices that demotivate employees include giving equal raises or rewards to everyone, giving small or insignificant raises and paying too much to poorer performers and abrogating ability to pay top performers well. Along with this, putting limits or ceilings on performance pay, saying one thing and paying for another, or firing people rather than cutting their pay for unsatisfactory performance contributes to the problem.

METHODS OF compensation that serve to motivate employees begin by following through on the philosophy of paying for performance and results. Business owners must pay special attention to the needs of those who perform; they must also demand specific performance requirements while remaining fair and empathetic. Incompetence should not be tolerated, especially in the case of long-term employees who may show the signs of career bur-

Business owners should also keep their options open so employees can be rewarded when performance deserves financial recognition. Firms that lock themselves into high basic wages will never have available the funds to reward performance on a timely basis.

When announcing a new compensation system, it is critical to communicate that the goals of your business are performance- and profitoriented, and that productivity will be rewarded. Although it is much easier to operate under a standard timetable of employee reviews and pay increases, this practice does nothing to recognize outstanding performance when appropriate.

Next week, we will explore career burnout by identifying its symptoms and successful treatment options.

People don't talk about IRAs anymore as if they are dead. But they are alive, well and a good

The provisions regarding the deductibility of an IRA are summarized in the top table. If neither spouse is covered by a qualified plan, a tax deduction of $2,000 per worker or $2,250 per one-income-couple is allowed, regardless of income. Married couples covered by a corporate plan with an adjusted gross income of less than $40,000 keep the full deduction. The deduction vanishes altogether when adjusted gross income exceeds $50,000, but is prorated between $40,000 and $50,000.

The comparable limits for a single person are $25,000 and $35,000, respectively.

Limits for an unmarried person who files separately are not as straightforward. In general, no deduction is allowed if the adjusted gross income is more than $10,000. If the adjusted gross income is less than $10,000, a partial deduction is allowed, and the amount of deduction calculated by using a special formula.

For instance, suppose John Johnson is married, files a separate return, and is an active participant in an employer plan.

deductibility of IRA

	adjusted	pension	plan?
	gross income	yes	no
joint	$40,000 or less	$2,000	$2.000
	$40,000-50,000	$200-2,000	$2,000
	Above $50,000	None	$2,000
single	$25,000 or less	$2,000	$2.000
	$25,000-35,000	$200-2000	$2,000
	Above $35,000	None	$2,000
married
filing	$10,000 or less	partial	$2,000
jointly	Over $10,000	deduction*	$2,000

*special deductibility rules apply.

John's adjusted gross income is $7,500. The maximum deductible IRA contribution is $500:

Step 1: $7,500 ($7,500 — $0) Step 2: $2,500 ($10,000 - $7,500) Step 3: $500 ($2,500 x .20)

THE MAGIC OF compounding and the concept of time value of money make IRAs grow. Two thousand dollars invested at the beginning of every year at 10 percent for 30 years would total $361,887. If the investment earns a 12-percent return, in 30 years the IRA fund would grow to a half million dollars.

State endorses plan for Haggerty Road bypass

In a major effort to ease traffic congestion, the Michigan Depart-ment of Transportation has recomded that a new multi-lane boulevard be built west of Haggerty Road from I-96 to Pontiac Trail.

The long-awaited decision an-nounced by MDOT officials drew immediate criticism from citizens opposed to urban sprawl and potential environmental damage.

"We oppose it, and we will continue to oppose it," said Lorna McEwen, co-president of Concerned Citizens for West Bloomfield. "This will not solve the problem. It will create more traffic congestion because of the new development it will MDOT's announcement that it endorses building a six- to eight-lane boulevard west of Haggerty followed three years of studies and meetings between MDOT officials, community leaders, business representatives and citizens.

The proposal, one of several that had been considered, won the endorsement of the West Bloomfield Township Board, the Walled Lake Board of Education and numerous other area government boards that ly and only after additional studies formed a united front to support a are completed in coming years.

THE NEXT step for the project, estimated to cost $75 million, will be to prepare a final environmental impact statement that will be submitted for approval to the Federal Highway Administration.

MDOT spokesman Hank Lotoszinski said MDOT hopes to receive federal approval by next October, at which time initial bids could be taken. Lotoszinski said the five-mile boulevard could be completed in late 1994 or early 1995.

Lotoszinski said the so-called Haggerty Road connector would provide new access to the freeway system that includes the interchanges of I-96, I-696, I-275 and Eight Mile Road.

He also said it would ease traffic congestion on roads, such as Haggerty, that have become swamped by motorists due to new residential and commercial development in Oakland

The boulevard would be built about a half-mile west of Haggerty.

Some officials have formally endorsed a proposal to extend the new boulevard north from Pontiac Trail

But MDOT officials have stressed that decisions about extending the boulevard will be made independent-

MCEWEN SAID some citizens and vernment officials appear to believe that "It is a foregone conclusion" that the boulevard eventually would be extended.

"We're against that, too," McEwen said.

Meanwhile, McEwen accused some governments, such as West Bloomfield Township, of looking at their own needs without considering what is best for the entire Metro De-

"Every time you add a few miles to it (the freeway system), you di-minish the possibility of ever getting any kind of mass transportation system," she said. "And that's what we need.

McEwen said she is "really disap pointed" that the West Bloomfield Township Board supported a new

However, project manager Mike Flajole has said that 90 percent of all comments made by area residents at public hearings pointed to a new boulevard as the most feasible way to address traffic problems.

OFFICIALS HAD considered other options, such as widening the existing Haggerty Road.

Early holiday gift: 1-696 opening set for Dec. 14

staff writer

The Michigan Department of Transportation Wednesday an-nounced plans for a Dec. 14 opening of the final segment of I-696 (Walter Reuther) freeway, which cuts through Southfield and Lathrup Village on its way through southern Oakland County.

The last eight-mile segment from Franklin Road in Southfield to the I-75 Royal Oak/Ferndale interchange will complete a 28.2-mile freeway extending from I-275 in Novi on the west to I-94 at St. Clair Shores on the east.

The segment between I-275 to Franklin Road cutting through Farmington Hills opened in Octo-

"A big celebration is planned," said Brenda Peek-Redhead, DOT spokeswoman for the opening events.

"There will be a series of events recognizing all of the people involved with the project over the last 25 years — the key people who have made this thing possible."

AMONG THOSE honored will be the family of the late prominent la-bor leader Walter Reuther, for whom the freeway is named.

Theme of the grand opening is "East Meets West.

"There won't be a ribbon cutting, it will be a knot-tying instead, representing the bringing together of the communities," said Peek-Red-

The freeway is designed as a bypass of congested urban streets and will provide improved access to the dozens of suburban communities that lie within this corridor.

The final section travels through eight communities: Southfield, Lathrup Village, Royal Oak Town-ship, Oak Park, Huntington Woods, Royal Oak, Pleasant Ridge and Ferndale.

It follows 11 Mile Road from Lahser to east of Southfield Road, Road near Coolidge and follows 10 Mile to the existing interchange at 1-75.

ACCORDING TO MDOT, the freeway is six lanes from Lahser to Southfield Road and an eight-lane freeway from there to I-75. There are additional weaving lanes betweep some interchange ramps. Flush 12-foot-wide shoulders on the left and right of each roadway extend throughout the project.

Dick Headlee will always remember Lenny Scutnick.

"I watched that on TV and I got goose pimples," said Headlee, recalling Scutnick's daring rescue of a passenger from the icy Potomac River in early 1982 when an Air Florida jet crashed into Washington's 14th Street bridge.

There's another man Headlee will always remember, though he knows very little about him. He was a 22year-old unidentified man who took the time to fill out a donor card.

We never knew this young man. He was never a big shot in the press. But he enhanced the life of Dick Headiee. He affected a minimum of eight other lives," said Headlee, president and CEO of Farmington Hills-based Alexander Hamilton Life Insurance Co. of America.

To Headlee, both men are among the unsung heroes of our time. Neither was rich nor famous. But to Headlee, their valor and service to others is what life is all about.

Thanks to the unidentified main with a donor card, the 59-year-old Headlee has a 24-year-old neart. In the summer of 1987. Headlee underwent a heart tramsplant, necessary because of progressive cardiorphopathy, possibly the result of a childhood virus that weakened the

"I REALLY feel better about myself, not when I win in business or a political bituation — though that brings a temporary thrill — but when I know I'm needed by others," the Farmington Hills resident said.

His heart surgery and subsequent recevery paried — including an un-recovery period — including an un-expected galibladder operation didn't take the wind out of Headlee's sails. His second chance at life, and knowing a 22-year-old made the greatest sacrifice of all, reinforced his principles.

"I knew I had to take the opportu-nity to enhance the lives of others, to improve the quality of life. People are amazed I came back and am working 10-12 hours a day. But if the Lord blessed me with the strength to work and be involved that's what I want to do," said Héadlee, a devout Mormon.

Honest-to-goodness, old-fashioned values, hard work, and strong family and religious ties have helped label Headlee as a die-hard, unbendable conservative.

That's fine with Headlee. As far as he's concerned, the Boy Scout motto, "On my honor, I will do my best to serve God and my country," is still a rule for living.

"That says a lot. If someone makes that kind of a commitment whether it's to become involved in the Republican or Democratic parties, or to be involved in service to others - they have committed to

THAT MAY be hard to believe for thers who see Headlee at the top of the world as a former 1982 gubernatorial candidate and head of the largest insurance company beadquartered in metro Detroit.

But those who know him are pretty convinced Headlee's for real.

Friend and former Gov. George Romney and the Clinton Valley Council of the Boy Scouts of America will honor Headlee as the Oakland County Citizen of the Year for community involvement and his leadership and service to the Boy Scouts. Headlee is national spokesman for the Scouts' organ donor awareness program.

"He's very dedicated to his goals and his beliefs," said Jody Soronen, Farmington-Farmington Hills Chamber of Commerce executive director and co-chair of the Boy Scouts awards ceremony Wednesday at the Pontiac Silverdome.

"I think you sense that he is a man who is sincere and who has an agenda he feels strongly about," Soronen said. "He's a fine man, a gentleman

Headlee admits that professionally, he's been in the right place at the right time. But he's worked hard nonetheless, ensuring that hard work and values walk hand-in-hand.

"I haven't always been here. I was offered the job as president. I never in my wildest dreams would have thought I would sell insurance," he

But Headlee wasn't hired as president and CEO of Alexander Hamilton 17 years ago for his knowledge of insurance sales. He knew nothing about it. His employers offered him the job because they liked his values.

They said: 'We don't care if you don't sell insurance. We just want to be sure the assets are there the next time we look."

HEADLEE HASN'T always been identified with Alexander Hamilton and the controversial 1982 Headlee Constitutional Tax Limitation Amendment. A graduate of Utah State University, Headlee's career actually has included more community service work than climbing the

Canton tames Tigers

By Dan O'Meara staff writer

Plymouth Canton was supposed to be a spectator for the Final Four in the Class A girls basketball tourna-

Thursday, November 30, 1989 O&E

That was the assumption of most everybody but the underdog Chiefs, who toppled No. 3-rated Benton Harbor 61-50 in a quarterfinal game Wednesday night at Jackson Lumen Christi High School.

And, in the wake of that impressive victory, No. 9 Canton will play The Chiefs, 22-3, face West Bloomfield, 23-3, at 8 p.m.

Both semifinal games will be played at Grand Rapids Union High School, and the final is scheduled for 2 p.m. Saturday at Grand Valley State University.

"This team continues to work hard at the end of the year," Canton coach Bob Blohm said. "They're not tired or bored. They seem to be interested in playing basketball right now.

"OUR KIDS are playing solid basin the state semifinals Friday night. ketball, not spectacular basketball, but solid. I thought we defended a really good team tonight."

The Chiefs did everything well, including holding Benton Harbor star Taneshia Welch to eight points through three quarters and 12 for the game.

Canton didn't win in a breeze, but it was in control the entire game. The Tigers, 24-2, couldn't stop Canton center Susan Ferko, who was one of several keys to the victory with a game-high 21 points.

"When we came out and started to score, it gave us confidence," Ferko said. "We thought it would be tough the whole way, and it was. (Her teammates) got the ball in right on time, all the time. When they do that, it's easy."

Benton Harbor didn't have a starter smaller than 5-foot-10 up front, but 6-foot sophomore Laticia Morris couldn't stop Ferko, who hit the bank shot as usual and knocked in 17 firsthalf points to propel Canton to a 32-25 halftime lead.

"Keeping it in a half-court game was critical," Blohm said, "and going to the free-throw line helped a lot in the first half."

FREE THROWS were another reason the Chiefs started so well and eventually won. Going inside early and attacking the defense put the Tigers in foul trouble and Canton on the line. The Chiefs were 6-of-10 in the first quarter, and Jenny Russell and Stacey Thompson combined for nine free throws in the last two minutes of the game. In fact, Canton's margin of victory was gained at the line, where the Chiefs were 19-of-30, Benton Harbor 8-of-14.

Canton was able to play its game and force the Tigers into a half-court contest with strong rebounding and its success at breaking the Benton Harbor press.

Jenny Clark, Ferko and Thompson went to the boards aggressively early in the game and established Canton as a force in that respect. Russell's ball-handling skills were a great asset, but everybody did something at some time to help solve the press.

"Russell was fantastic against the press," Blohm said. "(Benton Harbor coach Lou) Harvey was intent on going inside early, and we defended well inside. We didn't give any second and third shots."

In addition to Ferko's scoring, Thompson had 15 points, Russell 12 and Mary Barna eight. Deetra Berry scored 14 points to lead the Tigers. and Morris added 10.

"WE KNEW we had to come out and play the best we could," Thompson said. "A lot of people saw Benton Harbor as the better team, and we had to prove ourselves.

"On the floor, it was tough the whole way. If we let up, we knew they'd come right back at us. That kept us in the game.'

Ferko scored the last 11 points of the first half for Canton and 13 the second (34-27).

The Tigers limited her to two field goals in the second half, but others came to the team's rescue. Thompson hit three perimeter shots and Barna two as the Chiefs soared to a 44-30 lead with 21/2 minutes left in the third quarter.

Russell's baseline layup to begin the fourth period gave Canton its biggest margin, 50-35. But the Tigers made their last serious attempt at catching Canton when they cut it to 50-41 on three straight baskets.

The Chiefs started working the clock with four minutes to go, and Benton Harbor waited another two minutes before fouling.

FREE THROWS by Russell (5) and Thompson (4) shut the door. Thompson also rebounded consecutive misses from 3-point distance in the last minute.

"I was worried about fatigue in the third quarter," Blohm said, "but our kids found some more fuel. When we got into the fourth, I felt good about our conditioning.'

The Chiefs now are set to make their first appearance in the Final Four and are only two victories from a state championship.

"That was our goal of all goals." Thompson said. "We just played like a team that wanted to keep going, ketball for Canton after a rough-and-tumble quarterfinals. Ocelots answer wake-up call

Mary Barna maintains possession of the bas- favored Benton Harbor 61-50 in the Class A

After dropping the opening game in the Erie Community College (New York) tournament Saturday, Schoolcraft women's basketball coach Jack Grenan was a bit disgruntled with his team's performance.

"I wasn't overly pleased with our intensity." explained Grenan. "So I woke everybody up at 7 a.m. to practice our intensity before the second game."

The early wake-up call did wonders for the Ocelots. who crushed host Erie 91-40 in the consolation game. Lisa DePlanche led all scorers with 23 points for the Ocelots and Tracy Osborne added 22, including six-of-eight from three-point range. Barb Krug (Plymouth Salem) chipped in with 15 points, followed by Ann Hardy with 13 and Teressa Farpoints from the field while tallying 22 from the free throw line.

BILL BRESLER/staff photographe

In the opening game, Schoolcraft dropped a 75-57 decision to Cuyahoga College (Ohio).

The Ocelots fell behind 19-0 at the start of the game and played catch-up for the duration of the game. They closed to within seven, 55-48, in the second half, but that's as close as they came to catching Cuyahoga.

DePlanche and Denise Kokowicz (Garden City) were the only Ocelots to score in double figures, finishing the gamwe with 13 points each.

Schoolcraft, 2-2 on the season, travels to Dowagiac today to meet Southwestern College. The Ocelots will try to avenge a Nov 17th, 58-57, loss to Southwestern.

Ryan Johnson is one of three Plymouth Salem players on the 1989 All-Observer football team. The 6-foot-2, 216-pound Johnson, a bruising runner and hard-hitting linebacker, is joined by teammates Pat Bowle and Brian Burlison on the defensive unit. Pioneer women Salem award hails former RU harrier

staff writer

Mike Krafchak figures he's coached about 800 runners since he began his career at Redford Union High School in 1973. This year, his first as girls cross country coach at Plymouth Salem High School, he established the team's most prestigious award in honor of one of those athletes - Joanne

Crippen. He says picking her out was easy. "She deserves

A season of suspense ended with Krafchak's presentation of the award to senior Jennifer Harris at the Rocks' recent awards banquet.

"When I first started coaching at Redford Union, my first team had this lady, Joanne Crippen, on it," said Krafchak in introducing the guest at the head table in Salem's cafeteria.

'She defined my formula for success.'

It was 1974 — shortly after schools, forced into action by Title IX, offered women's sports. Just three women at RU were interested in running competitively. So Crippen ran cross country with the boys team and became one of a handful of women competing in the state.

"It was the first year girls were allowed to run. I was the girls coach and really didn't want the job," Krafchak recalled. "Two people — Joanne and a hurdler - decided what the program at RU would be. Joanne established a work ethic."

CRIPPEN, NOW Joanne Crippen Piasecki, trained in cut-off jeans and shoes that today would make her shudder. She was determined to be a sprinter, asthma notwithstanding.

"I decided to try out as a sprinter, because I was pretty fast," said Crippen Piasecki, now a Farmington Hills resident. "But I wasn't competi-

Krafchak suggested she give distance running a try.

"I remember when he told us to go out and do
"I remember when he told us to go out and do five miles. I looked at him like he was nuts," she said with a laugh.

Before long, the would-be sprinter fell in love with distance running. While at RU, Crippen Piasecki was all-invitational in almost every invitational she entered. Her second year running track, the 5:14 miler was good enough to travel to the state meet.

In the fall of 1974, she ran a 19:36 three mile in a cross country meet at Grand Ledge. To compare her performance to that of his 1989 team, Krafchak translates Crippen Piasecki's three-mile time of 19:36 to a 20:15 5K, which would rank second on Salem's all-time list of fastest 5Ks. Harris, with a 20:52, is the only member of this year's squad to make the top 10 list.

Crippen Plasecki went on to compete at Eastern Michigan University with such standouts as Sue Parks, still among Michigan's elite women runners and a coach at Michigan State University, and Cindy Barber, former winner of the Detroit Free Press International Marathon and frequent Olympic Trials qualifier.

A debilitating knee injury that still bothers her sidelined Crippen Piasecki for the majority of her collegiate career.

THE CRIPPEN AWARD, a huge plaque now displayed in Salem's trophy case, reads, "In honor of Joanne Crippen, who was a distance runner in the mid-1970s. Through her running and leadership, she defined such words as dedication, desire, discipline, effort, pride in self, pride in school and persistence that are to this day standards for other athletes."

In presenting the award to Harris, Krafchak said, "Joanne has taken these and applied them to work, school and life. Because of that, she has been successful as a runner, on her teams and as an individual.

"Dave Piasecki is a very smart man," Krafchak added. "He was intelligent enough to marry Joanne."

Crippen Piasecki, a Michigan Bell engineer, said she was at work when Krafchak called her to inform her about the award a few weeks ago.

"I was crying at my desk when he told me," she said. "I was really touched."

Now 32 and a veteran marathoner, Crippen Piasecki still is exercising her infectious brand of

One of 14 women runners on Bell's corporate sports team, Crippen Piasecki competes in races throughout Michigan. The last two years, Michigan Bell has qualified for national competition.

This year, Crippen Piasecki was unable to compete. But last year, at Hilton Head, S.C., she ran a 5K personal best of 20:14 — on the beach, no less. On a hard surface, breaking 20 minutes would have been a cinch. Closer to home, Crippen Piasecki competes in Corporate Challenge races - where her mom, dad, husband, 2-year-old daughter Katie and other family fans turn out to cheer her on.

At the Corporate Sports Battle in Detroit, when her baby was just 5 months old, Crippen Piasecki nursed her in between swimming and running events. She placed third overall. For Katie, being on the move is no big deal. Her mom ran through seven months of pregnancy.

Crippen Piasecki was among the women who suggested Michigan Bell make a locker room available for female employees — a benefit just male employees enjoyed previously. The facility made it possible for Bell's female team members to train on their lunch hour, which they do downtown, four days a week.

Neff retires as Churchill soccer coach

By Brad Emons staff writer

On the heels of Pete Scerri's resignation recently at Stevenson High, Livoija lost another successful soccer coach last week when Churchill's John Weff announced his retirement.

Neff, who compiled a nine-year record of 108-25-12, is also retiring from teaching where he has spent the past 28 years, most recently as a business histructor at Wayne Memorial High.

"There are no regrets, it was a good experience," said Neff. "I loved the hids and it was great. If you don't like kids, you shouldn't be in coaching. I always got along my teams."

Churchill athletic director Larry Joiner said Neff will be missed.

"He was an outstanding person, a top-rate educator," said the Churchill D. "John saw more than just the soccer player. He kept things in perspecive. He was always super organized and highly dependable. We need more like him in high school coaching."

WHEN HE RETIRES from teaching in June, Neff plans to spend more time at his summer home in the Charlevoix area. "I have a place up north and I'm going to prioritize my time a little differently," he said. "But I'll definitely be back to watch some games in the fall. I can't help but miss it because I've been in it so long."

Neff's teams won several division titles. His 1986 team captured the Western Lake Activities Association crown outright. His 1989 club shared the title this year with Stevenson.

When Bentley High closed in 1986, Neff inherited a talented group of transfers. Platooning 20 players, the Chargers earned a No. 1 ranking, finishing the year at 16-1-1.

This year's squad was also ranked No. 1 before falling in a shootout to city nemesis Stevenson in the district finals. The Chargers finished 15-1-1.

'I have a place up north and I'm going to prioritize my time a little differently. But I'll definitely be back to watch some games in the fall. I can't help but miss it because I've been in it so long.'

> - John Neff former Churchill coach

"This season was one of the nicest groups I've ever had," Neff said. "They were very enjoyable to coach and probably the most talented I've ever had."

IN HIS FIRST season (1981), Neff's team went 13-2-2, reaching the quarterfinals of the state high school invitational tournament.

In 1982, the first year the Michigan High Athletic Association sanctioned a state tournament, Churchill reached the championship game before falling Ironically, Scerri, whose teams won four state titles and finished second two other times, also called it quits at the end of this season, bowing to pressures put on him by overzealous parents. "John never got one phone call from an unhappy family, even where a player was cut," Joiner said. Neff, who coached his own children while starting out in the Livonia Family Y's 10-and-under leagues, hasn't ruled out the possibility of getting back

"In a couple of years I'll probably move permanently up north and once I settle in, maybe there's a place where I can coach a team," he said.

NEFF'S SUCCESSOR, meanwhile, is anybody's guess.

The outgoing coach said he will recommend Marty Caves, the JV coach. for the varsity job.

Caves, a former All-Area standout at Bentley who played collegiately at Central Michigan University, may have the inside track.

The job has been posted internally through the Livonia Public Schools, but Joiner said he'll probably have to go outside the district to find a new coach.

Hunting mishap hits close to home

ETURNING HOME from the firearm deer season, I was ready to fill this space with a report on successful hunt-

But hunting success turned re-motely obscure as I watched a report on the local evening news.

The lead story was about a Dear-born man killed in a hunting acci-

Hunters die needlessly each year during the Michigan firearms deer season, usually because someon else fails to follow the commandments of hunter safety.

I've barked about reckless hunters in this space before. It always hurts to hear that a fellow hunter has been injured, worse yet killed, because of someone else's careless mistake. But in time, that pain fades as we fall back into our daily routines.

Not this time. This time, the tragedy hit much closer to home. This time the pain will linger. The hunter's name was John Francis Lee. I'll remember him better as "Little

THE FIFTH OF seven Lee siblings, John tragically was killed November 18th, just two days shy of his 27th birthday.

Hunting on his brother's property in Livingston County near Fowlerville, John and younger brother Eddie were dragging John's deer from the woods when he was accidentally shot by another hunting companion and close friend Now, because of a split-second of carelessness, John has moved on to the Great Hunt in the Sku and that friend must now bear an enormous burden for the rest of his life.

According to Sgt. Hobart at the Michigan State Police Department's Brighton Post, the two brothers were dragging a deer across an open field when the accident occurred. The shooter, hunting from a corner of the field, saw a deer get up in the area of the victim and took a shot. It was near dark - the police report listed 6:10 p.m. as the time of the accident - and the deer was approximately 65 yards away.

ONE ROUND of buckshot.

One pellet from one round of buckshot was all it took to snuff out a life and inflict a lifetime worth of mis-

The man reporting the incident on TV made a point of stating that a gun was responsible for John's death. But before he could launch a one-man campaign on the horrors of hunting and gun ownership, John's family turned the table on him. They explained, even in their grief, that guns do not kill by themselves. It takes human intervention before a gun will discharge. A gun must first be loaded by a human, aimed by a human and triggered by a human. Guns do not load, aim and discharge by themselves.

Human error causes hunting accidents, not self-operating guns. Care-lessness, recklessness and foolishness cause hunting accidents, not self-operating guns.

THOUSANDS OF PEOPLE die in our state each year in automobile accidents, yet I never hear anyone complain about how automobiles kill. I've never heard anyone crying about automobile control or about an automobile ban. Don't they know -

Of course, that would be ridiculous. We all know cars can not operate by themselves. Automobile accidents do not occur without human intervention. Automobile accidents do not occur unless someone drives without thinking of safety first. Automobile accidents occur when drivers act in a careless, reckless or foola boat, snowmobile, bow and arrow

THE HORROR HERE is not in the gun, but in the hunter who chooses to overlook safety and com-

One look at the State Police's sketch of the accident indicated to me that the accident occurred because of human error, not because of a self-motivated gun. The victim and his brother were walking in the general area of the target. Although the shot was not directed at the victim, he was, unfortunately, too close to the target area. For safety sake, the shot should not have been fired. It was a judgment call. Unfortunately, it appears poor judgment was used. Perhaps, overexcitement played a major role. Obviously, safety was not the priori-

If only the shooter had taken a second, a split second, to be sure of his target and to take notice of the victim and his brother. They were, after all in the middle of an open field. If only the shooter had taken a split-second to think about SAFETY FIRST maybe this accident could have been avoided.

THERE IS NO room in the woods for careless hunters. There is no room in the world for careless gun owners. Certainly, there is no room on the road for a careless driver.

"Little John" will never again be able to share the camaraderie of the hunting camp or the excitement of dowhing a trophy buck, but his memory will live forever in the hearts and minds of his family and friends. He has joined a host of other great hunters on the greatest hunt of all. May God rest his soul and comfort the hearts of the loved ones he leaves

Those 3 square meals may have too much fat

Dear Myrna: I'm a female runner. I've been running for two years — four times per week — at least 45 minutes to an hour each time. I know I am raising my metabolism and not my calorie intake. My weight is important to me. I've maintained my weight nicely and I do eat 'three squares' (three square meals) a day. Why haven't I lost

As a runner, it is interesting that you haven't told me how many miles a week you run. This means you are being conscious of the time spent on your energy output and weight control. It also may be that you understand your metabolic energy system. I'm going to assume all these things and go right to what could be your problem.

It's about those 'three squares' you eat daily.

Are you counting calories and not fat intake?

Studies on the obese show that high fat intake, not calorie intake, leads to obesity. Important: A calorie of fat is more fattening than a calorie of carbohydrate because the conversion of dietary fat requires only about 3 percent of the original calories. Converting carbohydrates to body fat, on the other hand, costs as much as 23 percent of

Also, digestion of carbohydrates requires about eight times more energy than fat digestion. Ultimately, metabolism is unique from in-dividual to individual. Sex, age and training habits figure into the energy equation. Unfortunately, women carry more body fat and less muscle tissue than men. We require fewer calories for basal metabolism. We also know the metabolism rate declines with age. I understand your dilemma, it can be frustrating.

While analyzing your own diet and exercise habits, remember the best way to maintain or lose weight is simply to follow a balanced carbohydrate low fat diet and 'not worry about caloric intake.' It is a formula you will find just for you.

I work very hard physically both teaching and taking exercise classes. My diet is borderline vegetarian (I eat chicken or fish once or twice a week). If I can avoid eating animal fat altogether, I do.

A diet high in complex carbohydrates really works for me. If you want to talk further, please call me.

(Myrna Partrich, co-owner of The Workout Company, Inc. of Bloomfield Township, is happy to answer any questions readers may have regarding exercise. Please send your letters to: Sports Department, Myrna Partrich, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, Mi. 48009).

Bagged a big buck during the early archery or the firearm deer seasons? How 'bout a little buck?

If you have, here's your last chance to gloat.

I'll be running a special column in the near future to report on all the successful hunters in the Observer & Eccentric coverage area. If you, a friend or a family member bagged a buck I want to hear about it.

I'll be manning the phone on Monday, Dec. 4, from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m. to take your calls. Give me a ring at our Birmingham office, 644-1101 or 644-1103 to report all the details.

Successful hunters from the early elk hunt should also give me a call. If you can't call on Monday, drop me a line as soon as possible and include the successful hunter's name, the size of the rack and the dressed-out weight if you know it. Also include the date, time and county in which the deer was taken.

Prior to the USTA Girls 16 National Indoor Tennis Tournament at the Franklin Racquet Club, Da-vidson had never drawn the top seed for a national tournament.

Last weekend at Franklin, however, Davidson drew the top seed, and along with it all the pressure that goes with being selected the player in the competition be-

Davidson earned an easy 6-1, 6-3, victory over Jennifer Jensen in her match of the tournament She followed that with a 6-3, 6-3, win over Sarah Dixon and a 6-3, 6-3, win over Sonya Olejar.

In the quarterfinals, Davidson dropped a 4-6, 2-6, decision to Chiminello. Ironically, Chiminello is also Davidson's doubles partner.

'I'd rather lose to her (Chiminello) than anyone else," said Davidson, the 1989 Class B Michigan high school state champion. "I'd rather see her win it than someone else. She is very good. She's not a

"The kids this year did what they had to do," he added. "They won all of their games, and you can't do any better than that."

A YEAR AGO, Herrington said Coleman might be the best high school quarterback ever to play in Michigan. The 5-foot-9, 165-pound Coleman having passed for a staterecord 7,464 yards in his career, Herrington has a more definite opin-

Following the euphoria of winning another title, the afterglow was tinged with melancholy since it meant the end of an era at Harrison. Coleman, who is being sought by all the major colleges, led the Hawks to a 37-2 record the last three years.

"I do (feel sentimental) but I feel

THE HAWKS will lose 21 seniors and starters at 17 positions - Gove, Hightower, Saputo, George and Hill having been two-way starters. But such losses are commonplace at Harrison, which means the Hawks should have another outstanding team next year. Right? "That remains to be seen," said

Herrington had said, tongue firm-ly in cheek, he was planning to leave along with Coleman.

"We have a tradition that we always joke with the next team with them coming back, we're retiring," he said. "Basically, it's to motivate them.

"(Assistant) coach (Bob) Sutter and I met (Monday) and went over next year's personnel. We're ready to go right now."

Harrison will return enough talent to be viewed as a contender again, whether that be at the league or state level. But the main concern is finding a successor for Coleman.

THE TOP prospects are sophomore Andy Fitzpatrick and junior Andy Smith, both of whom are 6-2 and 170 — good size for high achool quarterbacks. Others are junior Plamen Magdovski and freshman Jeff Cisio.

The Hawks also will return juniors Blazo Sarcevich and Gary Devine and sophomores Greg Piscopink and Roy Granger - all of whom started this year.

Devine, who played noseguard, will succeed Conley at tailback and might not play defense. Granger will continue to play swingback and cornerback and will be Devine's back-up.

In a couple of surprise moves, Sarcevich (6-3, 212) will move from guard to tight end and return to inside linebacker. Piscopink - "a great athlete," according to Herring-Herrington, who expects Plymouth ton - will switch from tight end to wide receiver and monsterback to free safety.

By Dan O'Meara staff writer

HE FINAL OBSERVER-LAND football rankings had Farmington Hills Har-rison and Westland John Glenn as the top teams in the area.

That was certainly substantiated by their play in post-season competi-

Harrison, extending the state's longest winning streak to 26 games with a 13-0 season, won its second straight Class B championship and fourth state title of the decade.

Glenn was 9-2, losing only to two No. 1-rated teams, Birmingham Brother Rice in Class A and Harrison. The Rockets whipped a good Dearborn Fordson team in the playoffs before bowing to Rice in a hard-fought contest.

Not surprisingly then, Harrison and Glenn have the most players six apiece - on the 1989 All-Area Football Team.

Special recognition goes to Harrison senior Mill Coleman, who ends his four-year varsity career - the last three with the Hawks - as the all-time passing leader in Michigan history with 7,464 yards.

Plymouth Salem and Catholic Central also had fine seasons. The Rocks, who came within five seconds of beating Glenn and a perfect record, were 8-1 and just missed making the playoffs. Salem placed three players on the team as did the Shamrocks, who were 7-2.

Wayne Memorial, Plymouth Canton, Livonia Clarenceville, Redford St. Agatha and North Farmington also had good years and are represented on the all-area first team.

Bob Khoenle was named coach of the year after leading Canton to its most successful season in school history. The Chiefs won their first six games and were 7-2, losing only to Harrison and Salem.

ALL-AREA OFFENSE

Mark Johnston, lineman, Glenn: One of the state's top linemen, he started both ways for two years. Johnston opened a lot of holes for running back Shannon Layne and recorded 122 tackles, including 36 solos, from his linebacker position.

"He had a great year for us," coach Chuck Gordon said. "He's a very smart player who always plays hard."

Blazo Sarcevich, Ilneman, Harrison: Sarcevich started the season at offensive tackle and moved to guard. He also was a standout at inside linebacker. leading the Hawks in tackles with 91 solos and 37 assists. He has 160 career tackles and could break Sam Pink's school

"He will be our top returning player next year," coach John Herrington said. hink he will be a big-time prospect. We project him as a big-time linebacker."

Trond Darby, lineman, Canton: Darby's play at guard was a factor in the Chiefs being an explosive, high-scoring team. But he also excelled at inside linebacker and was one of Canton's leading

'He was the most consistent total football player we had," coach Bob Khoenle said. "In the coaches' opinion, he was the outstanding leader on our team, and most of it was done by example."

Pat Wagner, lineman, St. Agatha: Wagner was a standout on the team that won the Catholic League's C-Section championship, played in the annual Prep Bowl at the Silverdome and finished 7-2. Coach John Goddard compares him to former Aggie linemen Joe Churches (Central Michigan) and Mike Boyle (Eastern Michigan)

"He's the best blocker we've ever had," Goddard said. "When he gets on a guy he doesn't let up. He has a/super atti-

Dennis Parker, lineman, Borgess: Parker was a two-way lineman and an outstanding trap blocker on diffense and made 62 tackles on defense. He missed only three plays in nine games.

'He is dedicated to the game and is an overall good athlete," coach Walt Bazylewicz said. "We would not have had the offense we did without him. He was our mainstay as an offensive blocker.

Ryan Bell, lineman, Catholic Central: Without question, Bell is another of the standout players in the state, going both ways for the Shamrocks for two years. He made 58 tackles (23 first hits) and recorded four sacks.

'He's one of the best I've seen," coach Tom Mach said. "He's as good as any lineman we've had at CC. He has good size, but his ability to move his feet and get from one point to another is what makes him so good."

Larry Johnson, end, Wayne: An amazing season saw him catch 41 passes for 796 yards and 11 touchdowns. He had six interceptions on defense. "He has the ability to catch the ball in a crowd," coach Chuck Howton said. "As a person, he was great to have on the team. He was a team player and contributed so much to our team.

David Ryan, end, Glenn:Ryan was quarterback Eric Stover's favorite receiver, hauling in 33 passes for 667 yards and "He has excellent hands and runs good routes," Gordon said. "He played his best games in the big games." Mill Coleman, quarterback, Harrison: The Hawks were 37-2 with him at quarterback the last three years. He was 123-of-207 passing this year for 1,968 yards and 17 touchdowns. Always a threat to scramble, he also ran for 711 yards and seven TDs. "He's the most prolific passer in Michigan history. What else can you say?" Herrington said. "I think he'll be an outstanding college player. Size will not be that much of a detriment, because he has so many other skills. He can be an option quarterback or a throwing quarterback."

Eric Stover, quarterback, Glenn: Stover was such an outstanding player himself he deserved to be a first-team selection despite comparisons to Coleman. He hit on 82 of 148 passes for 1,486 yards and a school-record 18 touch-

"He has a great arm," Gordon said. "He's been an excellent young man to coach. The bigger the game, the better he played.

David Owens, back, Catholic Central: Owens averaged five yards per carry while gaining 1,058 and rushing for seven TDs. He also returned punts and kickoffs and amassed an all-purpose total of more than 1,500 yards.

"As a tailback, he's the best we've had since Aaron Roberts," Mach said. "He proved his worth by the amount of carries and yards he had while playing in a very tough league." Shannon Layne, back, Glenn: Glenn had the steady ground game to complement its passing attack, and Layne, the tailback, was the primary rea-son it was so effective. He gained 1,130 yards and scored 13 touchdowns on 205

"He really ran hard for us and also made some guys miss," Gordon sald. "He didn't have one turnover all year and was a very good blocker, too." Matt Conley, back, Harrison:A three-year varsity player, Conley rushed for a team-leading 976 yards and 17 touchdowns. He averaged 75 yards per game and 4.5 yards per carry.

"He's been our No. 1 back the last two go to inside the 10, and he gets the ball in the end zone."

ALL-AREA DEFENSE

Mondel Hightower, lineman, Harrison: Highflower was a two-way player at tackle and was one reason the Hawks were so tough against the run. He had 44 solo tackles and 18 assists.

"He's probably the most improved player on our team," Herrington said. "He's our best defensive lineman and has great speed. We always have kids (develop) as seniors, but he got so much better as the season progressed."
Pat Bowle, lineman, Salem:Bowle

made 49 tackles, including 25 solos, from his tackle postion, and he added five sackes for a minus-51 yards. As a wishbone fullback, he averaged 8.2 yards per carry, rushing for 735 yards and six TDs.

"On defense, his biggest asset is his quickness, coach Tom Moshimer said. 'He doesn't appear to be as quick as he is because he's short and stout. He's a powerful runner; he runs people over. If he gets into the open field, he has decent Steve Hill, linebacker, Harrison: Besides being a standout on defense, Hill was a triple-threat player who could catch, run or kick the ball. He kicked 49 of 52 extra points, giving him 158 for his career and putting him fourth on the alltime national list. He also rushed for three TDs, was 3-of-9 on field goals and caught 18 passes for 266 yards. Hill made 105 tackles and intercepted two passes.

"Steve is our second most-talented player," Herrington said. "He can do so many things well. As a freshman, we brought him up for the tournament, so he's played in 15 extra games - almost Kendrick Harrington, back, Clarenceville: A second-team pick at offensive end last year, Harrington excelled at that position again but made 31 tackles on defense. He caught 41 passes for 852 yards and four TDs for the Trojans, who were 7-2 under first-year coach Vic Balai. "He was a great man-on-man player, Balaj said. "We always put him on their best receiver. He allowed us to run multiple stunts with him covering the other team's best receiver Pierre Hixon, back, Wayne: Hixon played monsterback for the Zebras and was among their top tacklers. His speed also made him a good pass defender. "He's a tremendous hitter and a great tackler," Howton said. "He has good reactions and reads the pass-run well. He ed player.

Tom Luxton, back, Glenn: Opponents were misled by Luxton's lack of size, but his hitting ability was never questioned. The aggressive defender intercepted five passes and returned two punts for TDs.

"He was our most physical player," Gordon said. "He's an intense competitor who gives you a great effort every day."

Steve Weikal of Troy leans against upper balcony rail, overlooking dance area and main floor of the State Theatre in Detroit. He is director of sales for the theater, which is used for Clubland, a hot, new nightclub, as well as for a variety of private bookings.

Elegance revived in State Theatre

By Cathle Breidenbach special writer

ITH ITS TOWERING domed ceiling of ornamented plaster, its faux marble columns, and plush red-carpeted lobbies hung with crystal chandeliers, the recently renovated State Theatre in Detroit brings to life the palatial elegance of the old movie houses of the '20s and Steve Weikal, magiciaa, entertainer and businessman who lives in Troy, is director of sales for the State Theatre. He spreads the word among the corporate and social public that the majestic rococo splendor of the restored State Theatre would be the perfect setting for musicals, operas, concerts and plays, as well as private parties, fund-raisers, company gatherings, presentations and product roll-outs.

The State, with seating for 2,500, can accommodate large-scale musical and theatrical productions be-cause it was built in 1926 as a vaudeville house with a full stage and five stories of backstage dressing rooms - unlike many movie houses built only to show films.

The acoustics are wonderful," Weikal says, because good acoustics were essential in a vaudeville house before the advent of sophisticated row of the balcony, I can talk to you from the stage."

CLUBLAND, A NON-STOP media blitz with roving video cameras in the lobby and a multistory bank of screens on stage, uses a half-milliondollar state-of-the-art sound system that can easily accommodate multimedia corporate presentations. We can show TV commercials and can produce everything here so a company wouldn't have to go to an outside source," Weikal says.

Traditional seats on the main floor of the "new" State Theatre have been replaced with cabaret seating around small cocktail tables. Weikal says the theater plans to serve luncheons and dinners by covering the cocktail tables with larger table-

"We can do black tie and opera. The building lends itself to a certain formality, although Clubland is informal," he says. The mezzanine accommodates private cocktail and hors d'oeuvres parties for 200 and can be booked even during Clubland hours. Weikal explains, "Door hosts secure the entrance staircases to the mezzanine, but guests (at the private party) are tagged so they can come and go as they please."

Weikal is a connoisseur of old movie palaces, even though he is only 26. He says, "My generation never experienced the grand old downtown movie houses is changing that, as restorers like Ray Shepardson bring to new life what Weikal calls "a slice of 20th century American history."

He says, "From the financial standpoint, it's tremendously expensive to build new theaters with the same acoustical perfection of the old ones. If theaters are in good locations, it's cheaper to restore the old." That's what's happening in downtown Detroit.

FANFARE HERALDED the opening of the Fox as the first step in the revitalization of the Grand Circus Park area, now being called the Fox Center. Metropolitan Detroiters are flocking downtown to revel in nostalgia and view the gilded grandeur of the Fox-Theatre. The State Theatre, near the Fox on Woodward, has been renovated more recently. It opened in September as Clubland, Steve Jarvis' nationally syndicated nightclub and non-stop media happening. Clubland is fast becoming one of the hottest dancing spots in metropolitan Detroit. On opening weekend the nightclub drew a crowd of more than 10,000, far surpassing expectations.

Weikal explains that Clubland is open only Thursday-Sunday, from 9 p.m. until 2 a.m. That leaves three full days of the week, as well as days and early evenings Thursday-Sunday when the elegant building can be scheduled for other events. Booking the State Theater for non-nightclub uses is Steve Weikal's job. The Detroit Symphony Orchestra booked the State for a Big Band Night fundraiser in November, when theater's walls reverberated with the mellow sounds of the big band era rather than the rock, Top 40 and house music that keeps the place jumping during regular Clubland hours. Dodge also scheduled a product launch in November, and the calendar has been filling up with private and corporate bookings.

As sales director for the State Theatre, Weikal comes in at 9 a.m. and works days rather than nights. He says, "I'm in the theater busin not the nightclub business. I deal with the corporate clientele, business suit types."

Still, he raves about Clubland and "the pleasant blend of interesting city and the suburbs, almost every age and color, black and white, single and married. They come wearing everything from black tie to black leather." His friends call Clubland the closest thing to New York or Chicago that Detroit's ever had."

A series of lucky coincidences and connections as far away as Australia led the magician-entertainer to set up shop in the ninth floor office of the Palms Building, where workmen in boots and flannel shirts check the blueprints for the ongoing State re-novation and applicants fill out forms for the 100 staff jobs as bartenders, wait persons, and entertainers at Clubland.

While in Sydney performing at a nightclub, his love of majestic old movie theaters led him to snap photographs of the Regent, a stately old theater that had been boarded up.

'Snapshots' appea in 'The Fifth of July

Performances of "The Pifth of July" continue through Satur-day, Dec. 9, at the Theatre Guild of Livonia-Redford playhouse in Redford. For ticket information call the box office at 538-5678.

By Bob Welbel special writer

Rebecca Smith's superbly designed set, a talented cast and strong direction by Robert Grossman combine for a splendid production of "The Fifth of July" by the Theatre Guild of Livonia-Red-

Playwright Langford Wilson treats us to a stage full of zany characters in what amounts to a series of monologues and sketches. There is little or no plot in the classical sense. Rather, "The Fifth of July" evolves as a series of snapshots that sometimes seem disconnected. As we learn more, we're magically drawn into their lives, and the scenes blend together like single frames from a movie so we see the big picture.

Wilson cleverly gets us to laugh at his oddball characters caught in a web of conflicted relationships. Underlying the comedy, however, are adult themes with earthy language that allows us to experience their darker side, as they go through the pain of reconciling their dreams with the reality of their lives.

"The Fifth of July" takes place in the summer of 1977 at the Talley farmhouse in Missouri. As eccentric family and weirdo friends arrive to reminisce with owner Ken Talley about the '60s, Berkeley and the Vietnam war, old, unresolved hostilities emerge, and the fireworks begin.

AT THE EYE of the storm is Ken Talley's struggle to keep the farm and lead a useful life as a teacher - and as a legless Vietnam veteran. Charles VanHo plays Ken with an und strength that makes his rage be-lievable and his depression polici nant. Rick Corooran embues the

with a quiet dignity that is never Hank Bennett is perfectly cast as Ken's old friend, John, a big-time deal-maker with an unsavory past: And Patricia Jones gives an outstanding performance as John's girlfriend, Gwen, a shallow, burntout flower child and would-be sing-role of his homosexual lover, Jed.

Maxine Parshall is Ken's sister, June, an embittered '60s radical who now is a pill popper. She is very consistent, but one is aware that she is "acting." Perhaps a less caustic edge to her personality would make her more natural.

Kate Thorp sparkles as June's teen-aged daughter, Shirley, a precocious pubescent, who wears wild clothes and dreams of being a great artist.

Blanche Graham is an absolute delight as Ken's aunt, Sally, who carries her husband's ashes around in a candy box and talks to such things as her scissors.

Rounding out the cast is Jim Posante's hilarious portrayal of Weston Hurley, who is still in the '60' strumming his guitar, reading Kafka and saying things like "far out."

Bob Weibel of Westland is a freelance writer, who has spent more than 25 years in community theater as a director, designer and performer.

Pets of the week

Lucky, a 2-year-old, neutered shepherd mix, and Casey, a 13-month-old spaniel mix, need homes. So do Calli, a long-haired kitten, and Smokey, a gray, short-haired kitten. These pets, and others, are available through the Humano Society of Southeastern Michigan. They can be adopted by calling 421-7878.

Pets need special care in winter, the Michigan Humane Society ad-

Pets normally kept indoors should wear coats or sweaters for extended outdoor trips in cold, wintry weather. Short-haired breeds especially need the extra protection.

While the Humane Society generally discourages keeping pets outdoors, it is aware many pets are outdoor in nature.

For those pets, the society offers these tips: · Keep dog houses and other pet housing in good repair, fill in cracks, leaks or gaps. • Elevate pet housing to 4-6 inches above the ground to allow floors to stay dry. · Place the doorway southeast, away from prevailing winds. • Put a flap over the door to keep out draft.

 Use straw insulation and change it frequently. The Humane Society emphasizes straw must be kept clean.

As with human beings, animals expend more calories keeping themselves warm during winter months. Because of that, increase the animal's food intake by 15-20 percent during the winter.

Water dishes should be frequently checked for freezing.

When the temperature or wind chill factor falls below freezing, consider bringing the pet inside. A garage or basement area is best, because overly warm areas will make the pets with heavy coats uncomfort-

Search on for poets

Schoolcraft College and "The MacGuffin," the college literary magazine, are holding their seventh annual poet hunt.

The contest, open to all Michigan residents, offers a $100 first prize for previously unpublished verse. Entrants may submit up to five original poems of 50 lines or less. Poems must be typed on standard typing paper. Name, address and telephone number should be typed on a separate 3-by-5-inch index card, rather than placed on the poems themselves. There is a 50-cent entry fee per poem.

Entries should be mailed to "Poet Hunt," Liberal Arts Building, Schoolcraft College, 18600 Haggerty, Livonia 48152.

The deadline is Wednesday, Jan. 31. Entries will be judged by noted poet Alice Fulton.

In addition to the $100 first prize, there will be a $50 second prize, $25 third prize and three honorable mention prizes.

Winners will be announced March 12. All six award winners will be invited to read their works at a college program April 9.

Winning entries will also be published in the fall 1989 issue of "The MacGuffin."

Additional information is available by calling Art Lindenberg of the college English department, 462-4400, Ext. 5292.

The Livonia Symphony will offer a variety of musical holiday gifts to the community at its "Magical Moments of Christmas" concert

Saturday, Dec. 9.

Included will be dance sequences from "The Nutcracker Ballet," performed by students of the Rose Marie Floyd Ballet Company of Livonia, and a fully staged rendition of "The Night Before Christmas" with students from the Livonia Center for the Creative and Performing Arts (CAPA).

Special guests for the 8 p.m. program in Churchill High School will be Jim Mulleague and Hal Doyle, both of the Detroit area, as 'The New Laurel and Hardy.'

The concert will be under the baton of Francesco DiBlasi, LSO music director and conduc-

Floyd is recipient of the Wayne State Headliner Award and holds a Master Ceccetti advanced diploma, the most advanced honor in the ballet branch of the Imperial Society of England.

Livonia's CAPA trains students in dance, instrumental music, theater, vocal music and visual arts. The intensified training in CAPA is designed with college preparation or career/ avocational goals in mind, said its program director, Steven Kosinski.

IN ADDITION to the many performers involved in the program, Santa will "clown around" during intermission. His appearance is being made possible by Mobile Ed Productions Inc. of Livonia.

DiBlasi will begin the program with LeRoy Anderson's "A Christmas Festival" and the prelude to the opera, "Hansel and Gretel" by Other orchestral numbers include Waldteufel's "Skater's Waltz" and Anderson's "Sleigh Ride.

The evening's entertainment will be concluded with Andrea Hughes leading a singalong, with the audience invited to join her in traditional carols and a "Hanukkah Celebration" by Feldstein.

The hig problem this year, especially when it comes to children's books, is that there is so much to choose from.

Months ago, as I looked ahead to future columns, I made a note to devote one column in late November to gift suggestions for book lovers. But it can't be done. No way can I even begin to scratch the surface of possibilities in a single column. So, I'll try to do as much as I can in two columns, instead. This week, I'll talk about gifts for little ones. Next time, I'll conclude with a look at what's out there for those of us kids who have grown a little taller.

ACTUALLY, THE whole family can have fun with Graeme Base's intricately illustrated "The Eleventh Hour: A Curious Mystery" (Abrams, sneaky critter lifted all the goodies intended for Horace the Elephant's big birthdy bash? Was it the pig who came to the party dressed as an admiral? A pair of giraffes, costumed as ballerinas? Or maybe that wily zebra? The answer can be found within Base's splendid artwork.

Speaking of masterful illustrations (and also of children's books the family can enjoy), don't miss Mark Helprin's striking version of the legendary ballet-story, "Swan Lake" (Houghton Mifflin, $19.95). Accompanied by the jewel-like illustrations of Chris Van Allsburg, this story of a fatherless prince and orphaned princess may be a bit complex for very young readers who try it on their own, but most will find it an absolutely enchanting "read-to-me" story. For a different look at the story of Christmas, there's illustrator Julie Vivas' "The Nativity" (Gulliver/zart's Symphony No. 40" and a med-HBJ, $13.95). With the text from the Authorized King James version of the Bible, Vivas' images are delightfully unique. Who said the Angel Gabriel had to be divinely beautiful, anyway?

Here, he's a homely red-head wearing high-topped, comfy boots, and equipped with a pair of enormous, papery wings that look as if they'd been dipped in a magical paint pot. The Virgin Mary is very obviously "great with child" (a lov-ing Joseph has his hands full, getting her up on to that donkey). Vivas' images of the newborn Christ Child, the ragged shepherds, and the exotic, awe-struck wise men (atop their blue-and-green camels) are irresisti-

OTHER DELIGHTS include Joyce Maxner's "Nicholas Cricket" (Harper and Row, $12.95), illustrated by William Joyce. In this charming, rhymed tale especially for ages 4-8, Cricket Nick "plays every night/in the Bug-a-Wug Cricket Band" at a place called (what else?) Nick's Cafe. Ducks and rabbits swing and sway till dawn, alongside ladybugs, toads, moths, mantises, snap-turtles, grasshoppers . . . "The music is just so grand!" and so is this book. For ages 8-12, "Ma and Pa Dracula" (Holiday House, $12.95) by Ann M. Martin (author of the Baby-Sitters Club series) offers a distinctively zany look at a wonderfully weird family. For those smallest story-lovers on your list, remember to take a look at 'Henry's Moon" (Little, Brown, $12.95) by Geoffrey Moss. This endearing story of the little boy who builds himself a moon comes accompanied by a bedside nightlight.

For youngest Chanukah-celebrants, noted children's author and illustrator, Tomie dePaola, has put together a charming board-book in-troduction to the holiday. "My First Chanukah" (Putnam, $5.95), in simple text accompanied by dePaola's colorful artwork, identifies Chanukah traditions like the lighting of the menorah, the spinning dreidel, and festive holiday foods.

Also, in time for Chanukah, Eric Kimmel's "Hershel and the Hanukah Goblins" (Holiday House, $14.95). Not to worry - those pesky ghoulies that go bump in the night are put in their place in Kimmel's story, illustrated by Caldecott Medal winner. Trina Schart Hyman.

Rabbit Book and Toy Box" (Warne, $19.95) comes complete with a 9-th inch, plush rendition of Beatrix Potter's most famous character, and four Rabbit tales. Maria Danly's "Lullaby River" (knopf, $19.95) fea-tures lullables in print and on cas-sette; tucked inside is soft, silkscreened Tucker the Turtle for sleepyheads like himself.

Don't forget book/cassette sets. One of the most attractively-packaged this year is Chris Van Allsburg's "Polar Express" (Houghton Mifflin, $24.95). Narrated on cassette by actor William Hurt, each gift set contains Van Allsburg's breathtakingly beautiful book and a small, silvery sleigh bell that looks as if it might have been snipped from the harness of one of Santa's

Finally, if you're interested in best-sellers when it comes to children's literature, you'll want to know that, locally at least (and probably everywhere else), H.R.H. the Duch-ess of York's "Budgle, The Little Helicopter" (Simon and Schuster, $9.95), with whimsical ilustrations by John Richards, is selling like there's no tomorrow.

There's lots, lots more out there in the world of "kiddy lit." Go and see for yoursrif. I regret that I can't include more of it here, but, as promised, I think those I've mentioned will give you a good start. Happy hunting!

Establish overall color scheme rs for these rooms are quite different since we're doing our redecorating piecemeal. The only thing we've settled on is to use soft rose ting throughout the first floor. My husband its to use the same carpeting in the entrance hall, but I'm afraid so much of one color will look too monotonous. Any suggestions?

A . Before you proceed much further with your redecorating, I would strongly suggest establishing an overall scheme. Quite a wide range of colors harmonize with soft rose, depending upon what kind of effect you want. Whatever your final color selection will be, you might consider anchoring the overall color scheme with black and white for the entrance hall. It can be accessorized with pewter or brass for the lighting fixture, and a decorative mirror for one

Black and white is one of the most universally accepted and understood color combinations. It acts as a bridge to all types of color schemes you have now or plan on having in the future.

This indominable combination is suitable to any style of furniture, and is especially dramatic in the classic black and white flooring squares made up in high quality vinyl, ceramic, or even marble. Later, you can add a vase of real or silk flowers in colors taken from your living and dining rooms - and have it placed in front of the

Q. I've never given much thought how the various tones of off-white can influence a color scheme until I moved into my new apartment recently. I like it except for the mismatched ook of the antique white walls and the warm beige carpeting. The antique white looks grey compared to the carpeting. I'm thinking of re-painting the walls myself, but need your advice because my furniture upholstery is in a combination of warm terracottas and cool, soft greens. All my wood tones are fairly warm and light. What do you suggest?

A. The antique whites, which have been around for a while, are very greyed yellows that sometimes give off an impression of a greenish cast. All subsequent off-whites created by the paint industry are much purer in tone, which means they are much less greyed.

If you decide to repaint your apartment in another off-white, I would shift over into the warmer, yellow-orange family. When these colors are grayed, they turn into elegant tans and beiges. This would be more suitable for terracotta and green color harmonies.

But if you can arrange it with your building management, I would go one step further and select either a richer pastel, in the soft apricot range, or go for a two-tone combination of a soft apricot in combination with a deeper or brighter version of the same color family. For a contrasting accent, I would then introduce a jade colored ceramic vase or lamp bases.

Be careful to stay away from stark, blue-cast whites, or anything with too much yellow in it. You can also play around with finishes, reserving a matte finish for the larger, lighter color, and experimenting with higher gloss for the darker, to give the color more depth.

Builders association honors Janet Compo

By Doug Funke staff writer

It was almost ordained that Janet Compo would one day make her mark in the world as a builder.

As a young teen she was enthralled by sketches of floor plans made by her dad of home improvements and the family cottage.

She met her husband, James, while both were students at Cass Tech High School in Detroit. She concentrated in art, he in architecture building.

They married and in 1961 formed James D. Compo Inc. The couple started with remodeling jobs, moved on to small industrial buildings, then found a niche in new residential construction.

Janet Compo, chief executive officer of James D. Compo Inc., was honored Wednesday as Builder of the Year for 1989 by the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan.

The selection was based on her work as chairwoman of the association's Remodelers Council and efforts to establish a rental housing program for the homeless.

"THE THING that fascinates me is it's never boring and always a challenge," said the 55-year-old Farmington Hills woman.

"You have to work with every type of personality involved. When you're building custom homes, it's almost like you're marrying.

"Ideas are a challenge and the most fun part of the business," Compo added. "I've designed every kind of house imaginable from super contemporary to Victorian.

"If you're any kind of custom builder, you read everything you can about design," she said.

The Compo business involves sons

Paul, a troubleshooter, and Chris, a superintendent.

Daughter Carole used to work in the business until she moved to Pennsylvania. Son David, who also pitched in at one time, now is in the entertainment business.

'SHE'S A VERY hard worker for the association and a very hard worker in her own business," James Bonadeo, BASM president, said of Compo. "She's terrific in that she not only sells but designs and builds."

James Compo credits his wife for making their company go.

"She runs the business from the point of view of books and the financial end. I'd probably end up giving the store away. She's a good business person plus good with designs," he Janet passes compliments right back to her husband. "He encouraged me in all of this. He said, 'Go for it.' Jim taught me construction."

Compo Inc. builds 30-35 houses per year priced on average between $300,000 and $500,000.

Aside from her company duties Janet enjoys working with the association's Remodelers Council - a networking group set up to instill professional standards and help young contractors run a successful

SHE ALSO would like to help people who are down on their luck build a new philosophy - and lives - by providing rental properties for them to live in, which they themselves would help refurbish through sweat

Compo intends to have an open house at her Villa Fantasia model under construction in Northville's Pheasant Hills Subdivision with proceeds going to a fund to buy used rental housing for the homeless.

Other builders will be asked to participate in similar efforts, she said, adding that specific details of the program need to be worked out.

"We're trying to show in the free enterprise system we can help people," Compo said.

For fun, Janet and Jim enjoy a private airplane - he flys, she navigates - and vacationing in the Virgin Islands and Cancun.

"In order to be a builder and make it, you've got to be up and positive all the time," she said.

That's just how Janet Compo, Builder of the Year for 1989, comes

But he admits it is gratifying being selected to the Builders Association of Southeast Michigan Hall of Fame by his colleagues - not for the prestige the selection might offer, but because it's a sign of respect from his peers.

He's been a successful builder for almost 40 years - most of that time working for himself and he's worked hard he said. Despite being named to the Hall of Fame and having a long, distinguished career, Jacobson said he doesn't envision himself as a role model for young builders.

"I'd be flattered to think that's the case," he said. "I would like to be thought of as a hard worker who has always kept his word. I'd hate to think of myself as an old guard for anything just because I've been around a long time.

"It's been an interesting career and I've had a lot of good experiences," he said.

Being selected for the Hall of Fame doesn't mean his career is over

The company now is building in the Long Lake bright idea: Select lighting to match tasks

Create drama by framing art

There are three types of lighting task, ambient and decorative," said Kathleen Foote, manager of residential lighting for GTE Sylvania. "Effective home lighting incorporates all three."

Task lighting is used for a specific job, such as cooking or paying bills. Ambient (general) lighting provides overall illumination of the space. Decorative (accent) lighting highlights painting and works of art.

The most common lighting situation in the kitchen is often the worst: a fixture in the middle of the ceiling that forces you to work in your own shadow. Instead, use several sources

In the kitchen:

• Task lighting should be bright. A single-arm fixture is useful because it can be adjusted to a variety of heights and tasks.

In the home office, look to install proper lighting to reduce eyestrain.

 To reduce glare and reflection for a home computer, place light sources beside or behind the terminal. This will wash light over the

In the bathroom:

• The most flattering reflection comes from three sides. Most bathrooms have one overhead light that creates deep shadows and an unattractive appearance.

• Tasks such as reading or needlework require a brighter light from either a table or floor lamp. Use bright 100-watt bulbs or three-way bulbs that allow you to increase the light's brightness as needed.

Hall of Famer started as lawyer

A FIRST-GENERATION builder, Jacobson of est Bloomfield, almost backed into building. He arted out as an attorney for Weiss, Wasser, Jaffe nd Radner in Detroit after graduating from wayne State University law school in 1949. One of his clients was the Edward Rose building firm, now Edward Rose and Sons, Southfield, one of Detroit's ggest builders.

He became acquainted with building through his association with Edward Rose, decided he had a flair for it, and joined the firm. Eight years later, in 1959, he started his own building company.

Since then, Jacobson has developed more than 12,000 single family and multiple residential developments, been actively involved in BASM, and has so chaired the Michigan State Residential Builders and Maintenance and Alterations Contractors oard. He has been a member for 14 years of the tate board that regulates builder licensing. But his first passion remains building.

'It's difficult to put into words the satisfaction one gets from taking a raw piece of land, visualizing what can be done with it, working the land, building on it and completing a project."

The tough ones, Jacobson said, are particularly satisfying. Park Place apartments, a recently completed 737-unit complex in Northville, was built atop a gravel pit.

That piece of property sat there for a long time because no one wanted it.' But Jacobson thought that something could be

By Doug Funke staff writer

Not everyone, it seems, wants the wood frames in their houses concealed.

There are some people who enjoy the ambience of a simpler time when timber beams, connected by wooden pegs, were set right out in the open for everyone to see.

Back then, substance took precedence over form.

Things are a little different now. Modern houses for the most part use 2-by-4 stud frames hidden by drywall.

But some people still are enchanted by exposed timber beams.

And Riverbend Timber Framing, founded 10 years ago and headquartered in Blissfield, provides the

DON'T CONFUSE timber framing with log cabins.

The interior of a log cabin will look like a log cabin. On a house with timber framing, the interior framing is exposed, but the buyer has a choice of wall covering.

"It's versatile," said Daryl Baldwin, shop manager for River-bend Timber. "With timber frames, you can have drywall (paint), wallpaper or you could go rustic."

The cost of timber frame construction ranges from $75-90 per square foot — competitive with traditional stud frame construction containing large vault ceilings and good insulation, said Frank Baker, chief executive officer and founder of Riverbend Timber. Here's how it works.

Beams with thicknesses as large as 7-by-9 inches for posts and 7-by-15 inches for girders are cut to design in the company's shops in Bliss-

HOLES ARE drilled in the oak wooden beams where they are to be connected.

The beams are then shipped to the home site, connected in mortise and tenon fashion (slotting one end of a timber into the hole of another) and secured with wooden pegs by the same crew that did the measuring.

"It's almost like a large tinker toy," Schrock said. The beams are preserved with a Swedish oil.

Stress-skin wall panels as large as 4-by-12 feet are nailed to the beams from the outside. The laminated panels, upward of

A VENTILATING system set up in the basement that mixes air from outside and inside the house is strongly recommended due to the tight insulation of the house, Schrock said.

The typical frame house built by Riverbend Timber ranges from 1,500 to 2,000 square feet. Lately, several houses in excess of 6,000 square feet have been ordered, Baldwin said.

The company is now erecting framing and a shell for a 6,400-square-foot house us a two-sere site in Northville Township for an airline pilot and his wife. The counte intends to finish the interior themselves.

(AP) - Residential real estate is a local rather national market, and no better illustration can be found than in the latest report on median prices gathered from Realtors across

Those figures show, in fact, that real estate cannot even be viewed on a regional basis or maybe even a city basis, because huge price differences exist between cities in the same region and between neighborhoods within cities.

Based on the latest survey by the National Association of Realtors, prices in the Northeast rose 1.5 percent over a year ago, but there were strong advances and strong declines with-

In the Midwest, prices increased 5.1 percent from a year earlier, but Cleveland prices rose 11.6, and the median price of a single-family house in Grand Rapids rose 11.4 percent. In Detroit, prices fell 0.3 percent.

In Albany-Schenectady-Troy, N.Y., where increases had for months lagged those in other Northeast areas, prices rose 17.7 percent. In Buffalo they rose 11.4 percent, but in metropolitan New York the median price fell 5.1 percent.

In the West, where prices rose 11.7 percent, there was an enormous variance in the latest report. In the Seattle-Tacoma, Wash., area prices rose 23.7 percent, but in Spokane, the price increase amounted to just 3.5 percent.

Prices in Houston jumped 8.2 percent, and in the Fort fell 1.7 percent, and in Oklahoma City the decline amounted to ...

THERE ARE several lessons in the figures:

1. Never rely on national figures to determine the direction of the demand or price of housing - or even the cost of fi-

This is a hard rule to follow, because generalizations about both demand and price follow almost automatically the release of figures out of Washington. But, while the statistics are

- 2. While a great deal is made of the inability of first-time buyers to find affordable houses, they are available. The median is a midpoint; it means that half the houses are priced higher and half lower.
- 3. Studies of housing prices sometimes show big price differences between nearby communities, often reflecting conditions perhaps political or cultural — that may be temporary. Economics tends to close such gaps.
- 4. Price and demand react to mortgage rates. As almost every potential buyer has discovered, the price of the house may not be as important as the monthly charge, which can vary by hundreds of dollars.
